Dominique Is Dead SEE: Dominique Domino (2005-French-U.S.) C-127m. ½ D: Tony Scott. Keira Knightley, Mickey Rourke, Edgar Ramirez, Rizwan Abbasi, Delroy Lindo, Mo'Nique, Lucy Liu, Christopher Walken, Mena Suvari, Macy Gray, Jacqueline Bisset, Dabney Coleman, T.K. Carter, Shondrella Avery, Tom Waits. Gritty but jumbled thriller inspired by the life of Domino Harvey (Knightley), an angry young woman who rebels against her background—she's the daughter of jet-setting actor Laurence Harvey—by becoming a bounty hunter. Potentially intriguing but dramatically convoluted, and fails to offer meaningful insight into its title character. Of note for Knightley's offbeat casting and the mass of familiar faces in supporting roles. Screenplay by Richard Kelly of DONNIE DARKO fame. Harvey died at age 35 of an apparent drug overdose after the film's completion but before its release. Super 35. [R]▼

Domino Principle, The (1977) C-97m. BOMB D: Stanley Kramer. Gene Hackman, Candice Bergen, Richard Widmark, Mickey Rooney, Edward Albert, Eli Wallach. Muddled thriller about lunthead Hackman's recruitment by a mysterious organization bent on political assassination. Bergen fails to convince as a lower-middle-class housewife. [R]▼

Dona Flor and Her Two Husbands (1978-Brazilian) C-116m. ½ D: Bruno Barreto. Sonia Braga, José Wilker, Mauro Mendoca, Dinorah Brillanti. Braga is torn between giving body and soul to the dead, irresponsible husband who keeps returning to earth, or to the considerate dillard who's become her new mate. Original, very sexy fantasy. Remade as KISS ME GOODBYE. [R]▼●●

Dona Herlinda and Her Son (1986-Mexican) C-91m.  D: Jaime Humberto Hermosillo. Arturo Meza, Marco Antonio Trevino, Leticia Lupersio, Guadalupe del Toro, Angelica Guerrero. Amusing, cheerfully subversive comedy about a pair of gay men, one a surgeon and the other a student, who move in with the former's willful mother. Liberating in its depiction of the lovers; a film to be savored regardless of one's sexual preference. ▼

Don Is Dead, The (1973) C-115m. *1/2 D: Richard Fleischer. Anthony Quinn, Frederic Forrest, Robert Forster, Al Lettieri, Angel Tompkins, Ina Balin. Mafia wars form the convoluted plot of this trashy, derivative gangster saga. Retitled BEAUTIFUL BUT DEADLY. [R] ▼

Don Juan DeMarco (1995) C-97m.  D: Jeremy Leven. Marlon Brando, Johnny Depp, Faye Dunaway, Geraldine Pailhas, Bob Dishy, Rachel Ticotin, Talisa Soto, Richard Sarafian, Tresa Hughes, Franc Luz. Psychotherapist on the verge of retirement becomes entranced with a new patient, a fervent young man who believes he is the world's greatest lover. Fanciful story (by director Leven) is made compulsively watchable by its stars: Brando, compelling as ever, Depp, hypnotically believable, and Dunaway, a delightful match for Brando, as his wife. Ill-fated Tejano singer Selena appears in the opening scene. [PG-13] ▼

Donkey Skin (1971-French) C-90m.  D: Jacques Demy. Catherine Deneuve, Jacques Perrin, Jean Marais, Delphine Seyrig. Charming adaptation of Charles Perrault's fairy tale about widowed King who vows that his new Queen must be as beautiful as his first. Sumptuous color production, witty script by Demy. ▼

Donnie Brasco (1997) C-127m. 1/2 D: Mike Newell. Al Pacino, Johnny Depp, Michael Madsen, Bruno Kirby, James Russo, Anne Heche, Željko Ivanek, Gerry Becker, Zach Grenier, Brian Tarantina, Val Avery, Gretchen Mol, Tim Blake Nelson, Paul Giamatti. Fresh, original take on life among the "wiseguys" in N.Y.C.'s Italian crime families, with rich characterizations by Pacino (as a low-level hood in the Mob food chain) and Depp (as an FBI undercover agent who becomes his protégé). Depp's assignment forces him to virtually abandon his wife and children, as he becomes more and more a part of his adoptive Mob family. Rings true start to finish; based on Joseph Pistone's memoir, scripted by Paul Attanasio. Also available in unrated 147m. version. Super 35. [R] ▼

Donnie Darko (2001) C-113m.  D: Richard Kelly. Jake Gyllenhaal, Jena Malone, Drew Barrymore, James Duval, Maggie Gyllenhaal, Mary McDonnell, Holmes Osborne, Katharine Ross, Patrick Swayze, Noah Wyle, Seth Rogen. A tortured teen who attends a repressive high school in the 1980s has nightmarish visions. Are they premonitions or hallucinations? Writer-director Kelly has ambitious and interesting ideas, but the film builds to an unsatisfying conclusion. Barrymore executive-produced and has a relatively minor role as a schoolteacher. "Director's Cut," theatrically released in 2004, runs 133m. Followed by a DVD sequel, S. DARKO. Panavision. [R] ▼

Do Not Disturb (1965) C-102m. 1/2 D: Ralph Levy. Doris Day, Rod Taylor, Hermione Baddeley, Sergio Fantoni, Reginald Gardiner, Mike Romanoff, Leon Askin. Mild Day vehicle with Taylor as executive husband who brings her to suburban England. She meets suave Fantoni, enraging jealous hubby. Not up to her earlier fashion romps. CinemaScope. ▼

Donovan's Brain (1953) 83m.  D: Felix Feist. Lew Ayres, Gene Evans, Nancy Davis (Reagan), Steve Brodie. Scientist is dominated by brain of dead industrialist, which he's kept alive in his lab; intriguing story by Curt Siodmak; modest, capable production. Filmed before as THE LADY AND THE MONSTER, again as THE BRAIN. ▼

Donovan's Reef (1963) C-109m.  D: John Ford. John Wayne, Lee Marvin, Elizabeth Allen, Jack Warden, Cesar Romero, Dorothy Lamour, Mike Mazurki. Action-comedy bounces along with a good cast. Wayne and his freewheeling friends on a Pacific island are disrupted by Warden's grown daughter (Allen) who comes to visit. Lots of fun in Wayne's last feature film with John Ford. That's Ford's yacht Araner in several scenes. ▼

Don Q, Son of Zorro (1925) 110m. 1/2 D: Donald Crisp. Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Astor, Jack McDonald, Donald Crisp, Stella De Lanti, Warner Oland, Jean Hersholt. Fairbanks in his element in OK sequel to THE MARK OF ZORRO, as Don Cesar de Vega, who romances lovely Astor, clashes with heinous Crisp (and is falsely accused of murder). Doug is both father and son in the rousing finale. ▼

Don Quixote (1973) C-107m.  D: Rudolf Nureyev, Robert Helpmann. Nureyev, Helpmann, Lucette Aldous, Australian Ballet. Fine ballet version of Cervantes' classic, choreographed by Nureyev, who plays barber Basilio; Helpmann is the wandering knight. Not just for ballet buffs. [G] ▼

interaction—sexual and otherwise—among a group of young suburbanites who get together to watch election returns. (Important note: In Australia, the “liberals” are actually the conservative party.) Stunning direction, top performances by all; biting script by David Williamson, from his play. ▼

Don't Be a Menace to South Central While Drinking Your Juice in the Hood (1995) C-88m.  D: Paris Barclay. Shawn Wayans, Marlon Wayans, Keenen Ivory Wayans, Chris Spencer, Suli McCullough, Darrell Heath, Helen Martin, Isaiah Barnes, Craig Wayans, Kim Wayans, Omar Epps, Faizon Love, Antonio Fargas, LaWanda Page, Damon Wayans, Bernie Mac. NAKED GUN-like spoof of coming-of-age “hood” pictures is only intermittently successful, despite the presence of more Wayans than there are in Heaven. Thoroughly predictable. Marlon and Shawn (who also cowrote and coexecutive-produced) are amusing as homies. [R] ▼

Don't Bother to Knock (1952) 76m. ½ D: Roy (Ward) Baker. Richard Widmark, Marilyn Monroe, Anne Bancroft, Jeanne Cagney, Elisha Cook, Jr., Gloria Blondell. Title has more punch than improbable yarn of airline pilot Widmark getting involved with mentally disturbed Monroe hired as babysitter in large hotel. Bancroft's film debut. Remade for TV as THE SITTER. ▼

Don't Come Knocking (2005-U.S.-German-French) C-122m. ½ D: Wim Wenders. Sam Shepard, Jessica Lange, Tim Roth, Gabriel Mann, Sarah Polley, Eva Marie Saint, Fairuza Balk, George Kennedy, James Gammmon, Marley Shelton, Julia Sweeney. Troubled Western movie star rides his horse off his current film set and journeys back to his roots—and the family he left behind decades earlier. Returning to the Southwest of PARIS, TEXAS, Wenders and Shepard (who collaborated on the story) seem to be slumming here, but screenwriter Shepard provides himself with a meaty role and makes the most of it, particularly in scenes with Saint (as his mother) and Lange. Franz Lustig's cinematography is a standout. Hawk-Scope. [R] ▼

Don't Do It! (1994) C-90m. *½ D: Eugene Hess. Alexis Arquette, Balthazar Getty, Heather Graham, James Le Gros, Sheryl

Lee, James Marshall, Esai Morales, Sarah Trigger. Talented cast flounders in this confusing, meandering Generation X drama of various couples whose love and sex lives are intertwined. Means to be insightful, but the result is a talky bore. ▼

Don't Drink the Water (1969) C-100m.  D: Howard Morris. Jackie Gleason, Estelle Parsons, Ted Bessell, Joan Delaney, Michael Constantine, Howard St. John, Avery Schreiber. Uninspired adaptation of Woody Allen play about American family held prisoner in Iron Curtain country of Vulgaria, and their desperate attempts to escape. Cast works hard, with sporadic results. Remade for TV in 1994. [G] ▼

Don't Give Up the Ship (1959) 89m.  D: Norman Taurog. Jerry Lewis, Dina Merrill, Diana Spencer, Mickey Shaughnessy, Robert Middleton, Gale Gordon, Claude Akins. Top comedy with Jerry as U.S. Navy lieutenant who lost a destroyer escort during war and doesn't remember how. Shaughnessy is pal who helps look for it underwater. One of Lewis' all-time best. ▼

Don't Just Stand There (1968) C-100m. ½ D: Ron Winston. Robert Wagner, Mary Tyler Moore, Harvey Korman, Glynis Johns, Barbara Rhoades. Frantic comedy with perky stars; Wagner and Moore try to unravel mystery of disappearance of authoress Johns after writing the first half of a new book. Players' vivacity makes script seem better than it is. Techniscope.

Don't Knock the Twist (1962) 87m. BOMB D: Oscar Rudolph. Chubby Checker, Gene Chandler, Vic Dana, Linda Scott, Mari Blanchard, Lang Jeffries. The Dovells. Television producer Jeffries, with Checker's assistance, coordinates a twist show. Chandler, with cape, monocle and top hat, sings “Duke of Earl”; otherwise, you may want to twist your way to your TV set. ▼

Don't Look Back (1967) 96m. ½ D: D. A. Pennebaker. Bob Dylan, Joan Baez, Donovan, Alan Price, Albert Grossman, Allen Ginsberg. Candid documentary about Dylan's '65 concert tour of England, highlighted by his pseudo-hip personality, appearances by Baez and Grossman (Dylan's manager). Dylan performs “The Times They Are a Changin'.” “Don't Think Twice, It's All Right,” “It's All Over Now, Baby Blue,” and “Subterranean Homesick Blues.” Pennebaker assembled a collection of never-before-seen outtakes and performances in 2007 and released it as 65 REVISITED. ▼

Don't Look Now (1973-British) C-110m.  D: Nicolas Roeg. Julie Christie, Donald Sutherland, Hilary Mason, Clelia Matania, Massimo Serato. Arty, over-indulgent but gripping Daphne du Maurier occult thriller about parents of drowned child and their horror-laden visit to Venice; highlighted by memorably steamy love scene and violent climax. [R] ▼

Don't Make Waves (1967) C-97m. *****

D: Alexander Mackendrick. Tony Curtis, Claudia Cardinale, Sharon Tate, Robert Webber, Mort Sahl, Jim Backus, Edgar Bergen, Joanna Barnes. The one gem out of nine million bad Tony Curtis comedy vehicles; satire on Southern California has good direction, funny performance by Sharon Tate, and a catchy title song sung by the Byrds. Good fun. Panavision. ▼

Don't Move (2004-Italian) C-125m. ½

D: Sergio Castellitto. Penélope Cruz, Sergio Castellitto, Claudia Gerini, Angela Finocchiaro, Pietro De Silva, Lina Berardi, Marco Giallini. Well-to-do Italian surgeon whose daughter lies on the brink of death after a motorcycle accident looks back on a torrid affair with a poor prostitute 15 years earlier, just before his child was conceived. Odd, very intense melodrama never quite comes together in the way it was intended. Offers an almost unrecognizable Cruz a showcase for her acting chops; she delivers with an effective portrayal that won her the Italian equivalent of the Oscar. Super 35. ■

Don't Raise the Bridge, Lower the River

Don't Say a Word (2001) C-113m.  D:

Gary Fleder. Michael Douglas, Sean Bean, Brittany Murphy, Famke Janssen, Oliver Platt, Jennifer Esposito, Skye McCole Bartusiak, Victor Argo. In order to rescue his daughter from kidnappers, a successful N.Y.C. psychiatrist must unlock a secret guarded for ten years by a mental patient (Murphy)—on a one-day deadline. Entertaining thriller builds to a conventional Hollywood-style ending and a silly final scene, but the pace never flags and the cast is first-rate. Super 35. [R] ▼

Don't Tell (2005-Italian) C-120m. ½ D:

Cristina Comencini. Giovanna Mezzogiorno, Alessio Boni, Stefania Rocca, Angela Finocchiaro, Giuseppe Battiston, Luigi Lo Cascio. A woman seemingly content in her marriage and career discovers she is pregnant at about the same time she starts having nightmares about her earlier life. She contacts her brother, a professor at a U.S. university, to help her uncover the secret in their family's past and unlock the answers that will enable her to move on. Melodrama is slow moving and hard to crack at times, but has fine performances and an intriguing story that grows on you. Comencini co-adapted her own novel. [R] ■

Don't Tell Her It's Me (1990) C-101m.

*½ D: Malcolm Mowbray. Steve Guttenberg, Jami Gertz, Shelley Long, Kyle MacLachlan, Kevin Scannell, Madchen

Amick, Beth Grant. If you can buy Guttenberg and Long as siblings, or Guttenberg in a skull cap and bloated facial makeup to convey Parkinson's disease radiation treatments, or Guttenberg masquerading as a scruffy New Zealand biker, then maybe you'll find something to like in this romantic comedy of mistaken identity ... but don't tell her (or him) you did. Aka THE BOYFRIEND SCHOOL. [PG-13] ▼

Don't Tell Mom the Babysitter's Dead

Don't Tempt Me (2001-Spanish-French-

Italian) C/B&W-108m.  D: Agustín Díaz Yanes. Penélope Cruz, Victoria Abril, Demián Bichir, Fanny Ardant, Gael García Bernal, Juan Echanove, Emilio Gutiérrez Caba, Cristina Marcos, Gemma Jones, Bruno Bichir, Elena Anaya, Peter McDonald. Heaven and Hell assign agents Abril and Cruz to vie for the soul of an embittered pro boxer. Gangsters, supermarket cashiers, and assorted otherworldly emissaries all figure into this oddball seriocomic fantasy. More than a little Almodóvar-esque, with some truly weird soundtrack choices ("Kung Fu Fighting"?!?). Original title: SIN NOTICIAS DE DIOS. Widescreen. [R] ▼

Don't Turn the Other Cheek (1973-Italian)

C-93m. ½ D: Duccio Tessari. Franco Nero, Lynn Redgrave, Eli Wallach, Mariilu Tolo, Horst Janson. Slapstick spaghetti Western detailing exploits of unlikely trio: a fiery, revolution-fomenting Irish journalist (Redgrave), a bogus Russian prince (Nero), and a seedy Mexican bandit (Wallach) with proverbial heart of gold. Aka LONG LIVE YOUR DEATH. Techniscope. [PG] ▼

Don't Worry, We'll Think of a Title

Doogal (2005-British) C-79m. *½ D: Dave

Borthwick, Jean Duval, Frank Passingham. Voices of Daniel Tay, Jimmy Fallon, Whoopi Goldberg, Judi Dench, William H. Macy, Chevy Chase, Jon Stewart, Ian McKellen, Kevin Smith, Kylie Minogue. A group of pets takes on a quest to stop a power-mad wizard who has encased their village (and their human owners) in ice. Pedestrian computer-animated film is aimed strictly at kids. Based on a 1960s British children's TV series. The Magic Roundabout, and originally released in England under that title with an all-star British voice cast (including Tom Baker, Jim Broadbent, Joanna Lumley, and Robbie Williams). [G] D

Doolins of Oklahoma, The (1949) 90m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. Randolph Scott, George Macready, Louise Allbritton, John Ireland. Action-packed Western with Scott as head of the Doolin gang, who decides to give up his life of crime. **▼

Doom (2005-British-Czech-German-U.S.) C-100m. BOMB D: Andrzej Bartkowiak. Karl Urban, The Rock, Rosamund Pike, DeObia Oparei, Ben Daniels, Raz Adoti, Richard Brake, Al Weaver, Dexter Fletcher, Brian Steele, Doug Jones. Brainless, high-testosterone sci-fi-horror drivel, with the ultra-macho Rapid Response Tactical Squad ordered into action when scientists are mysteriously locked down in a high-security lab located on Mars. Unimaginative ALIEN clone is all special effects, gore, and noise; a dumb script and leaden pacing don't help. Inspired by the controversial, wildly popular Doom video game. Unrated director's cut runs 113m. Super 35. [R] **▼

Doom Generation, The (1995-U.S.-French) 85m. *½ D: Gregg Araki. Rose McGowan, James Duval, Johnathon Schaech, Margaret Cho, Lauren Tewes, Christopher Knight, Parker Posey, Amanda Barse, Heidi Fleiss. Two young lovers turn their lives upside down when they pick up a dangerous drifter who involves them in murder and a sexual triangle. Bleak, bleak view of the younger generation makes KIDS look like THE LITTLE MERMAID. **▼

Doomsday (2008-British) C-105m.  D: Neil Marshall. Rhona Mitra, Bob Hoskins, Adrian Lester, Alexander Siddig, David O'Hara, Malcolm McDowell, Craig Conway. Shamelessly derivative, ultraviolent postapocalyptic thriller in which the British authorities dispatch feisty action heroine Mitra and a band of mercenaries to sealed-off Scotland to find a cure for a deadly virus. Their foes include a standard-issue mad scientist (McDowell) and a Mohawk-coiffed zombie (Conway), who may as well be a refugee from a MAD MAX movie. Unrated DVD runs 113m. Super 35. [R] **▼

Doomsday Machine, The (1972) C-88m. BOMB D: Lee Sholem, Harry Hope, Denny Miller, Mala Powers, Bobby Van, Ruta Lee, Grant Williams, Henry Wilcoxon. Tired cast in lumpy, stultifyingly boring melodrama about scientists on a space voyage who are constantly bickering. Aka ES-CAPE FROM PLANET EARTH. **▼

inhabited by a rather odd-acting population. Topical, thought-provoking mystery-thriller, not at all bad of its type. Based on the British TV series of the same name. **▼

Door in the Floor, The (2004) C-111m.  D: Tod Williams. Jeff Bridges, Kim Basinger, Jon Foster, Elle Fanning, Bijou Phillips, Mimi Rogers, Robert LuPone, Donna Murphy, Louis Arcella. Noted children's book writer/illustrator hires a college student as his assistant for the summer. The boy has no idea what he's in for, as the man and his wife are reeling from a family tragedy and acting out in entirely different ways. Their young daughter, meanwhile, has problems of her own. Williams adapted the first section of John Irving's best-selling novel A Widow for One Year to create this moving, multilayered drama. Despite superficial echoes of other stories, it has a feeling all its own. Fanning is Dakota Fanning's younger sister. Bridges is at the top of his form. Super 35. [R] **▼

Doors, The (1991) C-135m. ½ D: Oliver Stone. Val Kilmer, Frank Whaley, Kevin Dillon, Meg Ryan, Kyle MacLachlan, Billy Idol, Dennis Burkley, Josh Evans, Michael Madsen, Michael Wincott, Kathleen Quinlan, John Densmore, Will Jordan, Mimi Rogers, Paul Williams, Crispin Glover, Bill Graham, Billy Vera, Bill Kunstler, Wes Studi, Costas Mandylor. Vivid impression of famed rocker Jim Morrison's rise to fame, and eventual undoing. Stone masterfully recreates the late '60s/early '70s rock and drug scene, and Kilmer is perfect in the lead . . . but when it's all over you don't know very much more about Morrison than when the film began. The film's excesses also tend to parallel Morrison's. Stone appears briefly as a UCLA film professor. Panavision. [R] **▼

Door-to-Door Maniac (1961) 80m. *½ D: Bill Karn. Johnny Cash, Donald Woods, Cay Forrester, Pamela Mason, Midge Ware, Victor Tayback, Ronny Howard, Merle Travis. Cash and Tayback plot a bank robbery. Of interest only for the cast; also known as FIVE MINUTES TO LIVE. **▼

Dopamine (2003) C-79m. ½ D: Mark Decena. John Livingston, Sabrina Lloyd, William Windom, Bruno Campos, Rueben Grundy, Kathleen Antonia, Nicole Wilder. Hit-and-miss "relationship" movie about a computer programmer (Livingston) who has difficulty interacting with women, and his connection to equally troubled kindergarten teacher Lloyd. Director-croscrypter Decena attempts to offer a novel, perceptive take on modern romance; sincere, occasionally insightful, but static and talky. HD 24P Widescreen. [R] **▼

Doppelganger: The Evil Within (1992) C-104m. BOMB D: Avi Nesher. Drew Barrymore, George Newbern, Dennis Christopher, Leslie Hope, Sally Kellerman, George Maharis, Luana Anders. Screenwriter Newbern's roommate, heiress Barrymore, claims her doppelgänger (ghostly double) is killing off her family in this sick, nonsensical, would-be slasher film. Loud (and corny) music renders the dialogue unintelligible, which is actually no loss. Drew's mother, Jaid Barrymore, plays her mom on-screen. [R]▼●●

dot the i (2003-British-Spanish) C-92m. ½ D: Matthew Parkhill. Gael García Bernal, Natalia Verbeke, James D'Arcy, Tom Hardy, Charlie Cox, Yves Aubert. Fiery Spanish woman is torn between her dull but devoted fiancé and a more attractive, passionate man she chances to meet one evening. Their relationship grows more fervent—and more dangerous—with each passing day, but all is not what it seems to be. Debut film for writer-director Parkhill is undeniably clever, but terribly self-conscious, and eventually runs out of steam. Bernal is charismatic and completely at ease in his first English-language film. Released in the U.S. in 2005. [R]●

Double Con SEE: Trick Baby

Double Confession (1950-British) 86m.  D: Ken Annakin. Derek Farr, Joan Hopkins, Peter Lorre, William Hartnell, Kathleen Harrison, Naunton Wayne. Murky melodrama at a seaside resort: an innocent man tries to set someone else up as a murder suspect in his wife's mysterious death, only to get involved with some real killers.▼

Double Crossbones (1951) C-75m.  D: Charles Barton. Donald O'Connor, Helena

Carter, Will Geer, Hope Emerson, Glenn Strange, Rock Hudson. O'Connor is would-be buccaneer who seeks to win his sweetheart and expose crooked city official. Light satire which doesn't quite come off.●

Double Dragon (1994) C-96m. *½ D: James Yukich. Robert Patrick, Mark Dacascos, Scott Wolf, Julia Nickson, Kristina Malandro Wagner, John Mallory Asher, Leon Russom, Alyssa Milano, Michael Berryman, Vanna White, George Hamilton. In the junky, gang-dominated post-earthquake "New Angeles" of 2007, martial artist brothers Dacascos and Wolf battle evil billionaire Patrick for the possession of a two-part Chinese medallion that grants mystical powers. Sometimes lively but mostly silly and tedious; based on an arcade game. [PG-13]▼●●

Double Dynamite (1951) 80m.  D: Irving Cummings. Frank Sinatra, Jane Russell, Groucho Marx, Don McGuire. Sinatra plays a bank clerk falsely accused of robbery. Flat comedy marked a career low point for all three of its stars. Filmed in 1948.▼●

Double Edge (1992-U.S.-Israeli) C-86m. ½ D: Amos Kollek. Faye Dunaway, Amos Kollek, Mohammad Bakri, Makram Khouri, Anat Aizmon. Dunaway is well cast as an overly ambitious American reporter covering the Arab-Israeli conflict in this uneven drama about journalistic objectivity and responsibility. Never quite delivers as it should, but it does effectively mix fiction with fact, as Dunaway interviews Jerusalem mayor Teddy Kollek (the director-actor-screenwriter's father) and other real-life political figures. [PG-13]▼

Double Happiness (1994-Canadian) C-100m.  D: Mina Shum. Sandra Oh, Stephen Chang, Allanah Ong, Frances You, Callum Rennie. Insightful, refreshingly unclichéd tale of a free-thinking young Chinese-Canadian woman (appealingly played by Oh), an aspiring actress whose Old World parents are pressuring her to find a boyfriend and marry. Writer-director Shum does not paint the parents as stodgy villains; they just want what they feel is best for the daughter they love. Bright touches of humor enhance this charming film. [PG-13]▼●●

Double Impact (1991) C-118m.  D: Sheldon Lettich. Jean-Claude Van Damme, Geoffrey Lewis, Alan Scarfe, Alonna Shaw, Cory Everson. Identical twins are separated at six months when Hong Kong thugs murder their parents, only to be reunited in revenge a quarter-century later. Van Damme's attempts to delineate two characters (one of them a gruff cigar-chomper) are nearly as goofy as one slow-motion love scene; studio press material, praising this Van Damme career stretch, extolled "the light, charming side of his persona that we haven't seen before." [R]▼●●

Double Indemnity (1944) 106m. * D: Billy Wilder. Barbara Stanwyck, Fred

MacMurray, Edward G. Robinson, Porter Hall, Tom Power, Fortunio Bonanova, Jean Heather, Bess Flowers. Wilder-Raymond Chandler script (from the James M. Cain novel) packs fireworks in account of insurance salesman MacMurray lured into murder plot by alluring Stanwyck and subsequent investigation by Fred's colleague Robinson. An American movie classic, with crackling dialogue throughout. Remade for TV in 1973 with Richard Crenna and Samantha Eggar, and the obvious inspiration for Lawrence Kasdan's BODY HEAT. ▼●●

Double Jeopardy (1999) C-105m.  D: Bruce Beresford. Tommy Lee Jones, Ashley Judd, Bruce Greenwood, Annabeth Gish, Roma Maffia, Davenia McFadden. Woman is framed for the murder of her husband; while serving the jail sentence she learns he's alive and vows revenge, especially since she can't be tried twice for the same crime. Slick entertainment gives you pretty much what you'd expect. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Double Life, A (1947) 104m. ½ D: George Cukor. Ronald Colman, Signe Hasso, Edmond O'Brien, Shelley Winters, Ray Collins, Millard Mitchell. Colman gives a bravura, Oscar-winning performance as an actor whose stage roles spill over into his life—and now he's about to play Othello. Brilliant melodrama by Ruth Gordon and Garson Kanin, with wonderful New York theater flavor. Miklos Rozsa's fine score also won an Oscar. Watch for playwright Paddy Chayefsky as a crime-scene photographer. ▼●

Double Life of Veronique, The (1991-Polish-French) C-97m. ½ D: Krzysztof Kieslowski. Irène Jacob, Wladyslaw Kowalski, Guillaume de Tonquedec, Philippe Volter. Two women (one Polish, one French, both played by Jacob) subtly affect each other's lives while remaining total strangers. Unfolds like a half-hour teleplay with a supernatural premise stretched to 1½ hours. Film, though, has enough going for it to pick up a cult, for which luminous lead Jacob deserves credit. ▼●●

Double Man, The (1967-British) C-105m. ½ D: Franklin Schaffner. Yul Brynner, Britt Ekland, Clive Revill, Anton Diffring, Moira Lister, Lloyd Nolan. Unconvincing spy thriller with Brynner playing both unemotional C.I.A. agent and East German lookalike. Excellent photography by Denys Coop.

Double McGuffin, The (1979) C-89m. ½ D: Joe Camp. Ernest Borgnine, George Kennedy, Elke Sommer, Rod Browning, Dion Pride, Lisa Whelchel, Jeff Nicholson, Michael Gerard, Vincent Spano. Teenagers stumble onto clues leading to assassination plot, but no one will believe them. Family-oriented thriller from creator of BENJI. Orson Welles explains film's title at the outset, for non-Hitchcock devotees. [PG]▼●

Double Negative (1980-Canadian) C-96m. *½ D: George Bloomfield. Michael Sarrazin, Susan Clark, Anthony Perkins, Howard Duff, Kate Reid, Al Waxman, Elizabeth Shepherd, John Candy, Joe Flaherty. Confusing, annoying thriller with mentally tortured photojournalist Sarrazin attempting to track down his wife's murderer. Sarrazin is his usual bland self; Clark is wasted. Based on Ross Macdonald's The Three Roads. Aka DEADLY COMPANION. ▼

Double or Nothing (1937) 95m. ½ D: Theodore Reed. Bing Crosby, Martha Raye, Andy Devine, Mary Carlisle, William Frawley, Fay Holden, Frances Faye. Entertaining musical about four people given 30 days to double gifts of $5000. Several good specialty acts thrown in for good measure, and Bing sings "The Moon Got in My Eyes." ●

Double Take (2001) C-88m. BOMB D: George Gallo. Orlando Jones, Eddie Griffin, Edward Herrmann, Gary Grubbs, Shawn Elliott, Brent Briscoe, Daniel Roebuck, Garcelle Beauvais, Andrea Navedo. Slick, awful buddy pic about a yuppie banker who swaps identities with a ghetto con artist when he's framed for laundering millions for a Mexican drug cartel. Full of car crashes and south-of-the-border caricatures . . . and perpetuates that old stereotype that all black people look alike. Inexplicably based on a Graham Greene short story, filmed before as ACROSS THE BRIDGE. Vivica A. Fox appears unbilled. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Double Trouble (1962) SEE: Swingin' Along

Double Trouble (1967) C-90m.  D: Norman Taurog. Elvis Presley, Annette Day, John Williams, Yvonne Romain, The Wierie Brothers, Chips Rafferty, Michael Murphy. Teen-age heiress falls for pop singer Presley when he's performing in England; usual Elvis fare, but he does sing "Long Legged Girl," one of his best post-Army tunes. Panavision. ▼●●

adaptation of Ferenc Molnár's play Great Love. ▼●

Doubt (2008) C-104m.  D: John Patrick Shanley. Meryl Streep, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Amy Adams, Viola Davis, Alice Drummond, Audrie Neenan, Joseph Foster II, Paulie Litt. In a Bronx parish, circa 1964, a relentlessly stern nun who serves as high school principal suspects that her gregarious priest is showing unnatural interest in the school's first black student. She has certainty on her side; now she needs proof. Often-electrifying drama is played out by a peerless cast, though its power must have been even greater onstage, where it originated. Shanley adapted his own play. Davis shines as the student's mother in one extended, unforgettable scene. [PG-13]●

Doughboys (1930) 79m. *½ D: Edward Sedgwick. Buster Keaton, Sally Eilers, Cliff Edwards, Edward Brophy, Victor Potel. One of Buster's worst films; a tiresome Army comedy. Obnoxious sergeant Brophy overrides few comic moments; some bright spots with "Ukulele Ike" Edwards. ▼●

Doulos—The Finger Man SEE: Le Doulos Dove, The (1974) C-105m. ½ D: Charles Jarrott. Joseph Bottoms, Deborah Raffin, John McLiam, Dabney Coleman. Pleasant round-the-world adventure based on true story of 16-year-old who sails to every imaginable port. Produced by Gregory Peck. Filmed on location. Panavision. [PG]▼

Down Among the Z Men (1952-British) 70m.  D: Maclean Rogers. Harry Secombe, Peter Sellers, Carole Carr, Spike Milligan, Clifford Stanton, Graham Stark, Miriam Karlin. Creaky vehicle for radio's The Goons in story of criminals who visit small town to steal a professor's secret scientific formula. Some good bits, especially Sellers doing impressions of Yank soldiers, but overloaded with dull song-and-dance numbers by a female chorus line. ▼●●

Down and Out in Beverly Hills (1986) C-103m. ½ D: Paul Mazursky. Nick Nolte, Richard Dreyfuss, Bette Midler,

Down Argentine Way (1940) C-90m.  D: Irving Cummings. Don Ameche, Betty Grable, Carmen Miranda, Charlotte Greenwood, J. Carrol Naish, Henry Stephenson, Leonid Kinskey. Enjoyable 20th Century-Fox musical with Grable (in the movie that boosted her to stardom) falling in love with smooth Argentinian horse breeder Ameche. Miranda is terrific in her first American movie, performing infectious Brazilian songs with her own band . . . and look out for the Nicholas Brothers, who do a dynamite specialty number. Picture-postcard color throughout. ▼●●

Down by Law (1986) 107m. ½ D: Jim Jarmusch. Tom Waits, John Lurie, Roberto Benigni, Ellen Barkin, Billie Neal, Rockets Redglare, Vernel Bagneris, Nicoletta Braschi. Third feature by writer-director Jarmusch is intriguing, amusing, and ever so slight, a look at three losers who wind up in jail together—and then make a break for it. Really comes alive when Italian comic Benigni turns up. Slow moving, strikingly photographed (in black & white) by Robby Müller on location in Louisiana. Costars Lurie and Waits also provide music on the soundtrack. [R]▼●●

Downfall (2004-German) C-155m. ½ D: Oliver Hirschbiegel. Bruno Ganz, Alexandra Maria Lara, Corinna Harfouch, Ulrich Mathes, Juliane Köhler, Heino Ferch, Christian Berkel, Matthias Habich, Thomas Kretschmann. Riveting dramatization of Hitler's final days in and around his Berlin bunker, as the Nazi leader descends into madness and paranoia and his adjutants respond in various ways, from jumping ship to standing firm alongside their Führer. Inspired in part by the memories of his young secretary, Traudl Junge (interviewed on screen in BLIND SPOT), whose words bookend the film. Long but thoroughly engrossing; Ganz is outstanding. Screenplay by Bernd Eichinger. [R]● Downhill (1927-British) 95m. ½ D: Alfred Hitchcock. Ivor Novello, Ben Webster, Robin Irvine, Sybil Rhoda, Lillian Braithwaite, Isabel Jeans, Ian Hunter. Schematic silent film charts a man's spiritual slide, beginning when, as a schoolboy, he is disowned by his family after an indiscretion with a girl, and later as an adult when his wife fritters away his unexpected inheri-

Downhill Racer (1969) C-102m.  D: Michael Ritchie. Robert Redford, Gene Hackman, Camilla Sparv, Karl Michael Vogler, Jim McMullan, Christian Doermer, Dabney Coleman. Vivid study of an empty life, with Redford as small-town egotist who joins U.S. Olympic ski team. Basically a character study; problem is an unappealing character. Dazzling ski scenes make lulls worth enduring. Ritchie's feature directorial debut. [MPG]▼●

Down in the Delta (1998) C-111m. ½ D: Maya Angelou. Alfre Woodard, Al Freeman, Jr., Wesley Snipes, Mary Alice, Esther Rolle, Loretta Devine. With her life a mess and virtually no hope of employment, single mom Woodard boards the bus with her two children to spend the summer in the Mississippi Delta, living with relatives and working in their chicken restaurant. Episodic drama recovers from clumsy exposition to win points for sheer likability, though it's put over almost exclusively by its cast. Woodard shines, and Freeman gives one of the best performances of his career. [PG-13]▼●

Down in the Valley (2006) C-114m. ½ D: David Jacobson. Edward Norton, Evan Rachel Wood, David Morse, Rory Culkin, Bruce Dern, Geoffrey Lewis, Artel Kayaru, Ty Burrell. Interesting attempt to merge a classic Western motif into a contemporary story set in Southern California's San Fernando Valley, where a 30-something charmer rides into the life of an impressionable teenage girl. Their romance goes awry as he reveals his true personality. Norton, recalling a young Henry Fonda, is excellent, but writer-director Jacobson introduces and then drops too many story threads. Intriguing if violent character study seems like the bastard child of TAXI DRIVER and LONELY ARE THE BRAVE. Panavision. [R]▶

Down Periscope (1996) C-92m. ½ D: David S. Ward. Kelsey Grammer, Lauren Holly, Bruce Dern, Rob Schneider, Rip Torn, Harry Dean Stanton, William H. Macy, Ken Hudson Campbell, Toby Huss, Duane Martin, Harland Williams. Maverick naval officer is finally given a submarine to command, but it turns out to be a mothballed wreck—with a crew that's not much better. But if he can prove his mettle (and the ship's) in a war-game environment, he can graduate to a first-class nuclear sub. Mild comedy follows the misfits-make-good formula fairly well. [PG-13]▼●

Downstairs (1932) 77m. ½ D: Monta Bell. John Gilbert, Paul Lukas, Virginia Bruce, Hedda Hopper, Reginald Owen, Olga Baclanova. Crackling, adult drama about a heel who sleeps and cajoles his way from one wealthy household to another—using both the mistresses of the houses upstairs and the servants downstairs. Gilbert delivers an audacious performance that more than any other redeems his maligned reputation as a "talkie" actor; he also gets story credit for the film. Leading lady Bruce was then his wife. Karen Morley appears unbilled in final scene.

Down to Earth (1947) C-101m.  D: Alexander Hall. Rita Hayworth, Larry Parks, Marc Platt, Roland Culver, James Gleason, Edward Everett Horton. Terpsichore, the Goddess of Dance (Hayworth), comes to Earth to help Parks with his mythological musical play. Rita's beauty is only asset of this hack musical, which appropriates Gleason, Horton, and Culver characters from HERE COMES MR. JORDAN. Remade as XANADU.▼●

Down to Earth (2001) C-87m. ½ D: Chris Weitz, Paul Weitz. Chris Rock, Regina King, Chazz Palminteri, Eugene Levy, Frankie Faison, Mark Addy, Jennifer Coolidge, Greg Germann, Wanda Sykes, Greg Cho. A would-be standup comic is taken to heaven before his time, then returned to life in the body of a ruthless tycoon. Appallingly clumsy remake of HEAVEN CAN WAIT (and its source, HERE COMES MR. JORDAN), reshaped as a vehicle for Rock. He shines when he's doing a comedy riff, but his acting is monotonous. [PG-13]▼▶

Down to the Bone (2005) C-105m.  D: Debra Granik. Vera Farmiga, Hugh Dillon, Clint Jordan, Caridad "La Bruja" De La Luz, Jasper Moon Daniels, Taylor Foxhall. Working-class woman tries to keep her family and home intact while feeding a cocaine habit. Going through rehab helps her on a short-term basis but presents her with other challenges—and choices—after she comes to trust an addict-turned-counselor (Dillon). Superior fly-on-the-wall filmmaking is anchored by Farmiga's remarkably honest performance. Based on writer-director Granik's 1997 short SNAKE FEED, which won a prize at Sundance—as did this film.▶

Down to the Sea in Ships (1949) 120m.  D: Henry Hathaway. Richard Widmark, Lionel Barrymore, Dean Stockwell, Cecil Kellaway, Gene Lockhart. Young Stockwell fulfills seafaring goal on crusty Barrymore's whaling ship, under guidance of sailor Widmark. Good atmospheric yarn.

Downtown (1990) C-96m.  D: Richard Benjamin. Anthony Edwards, Forest Whitaker, Joe Pantoliano, David Clennon, Penelope Ann Miller, Kimberly Scott, Art Evans, Rick Aiello. Naive white cop Edwards is transferred from easy suburban precinct to tough downtown area of Philadelphia and teamed with a sad, streetwise loner (Whitaker); together they go after a peculiar stolen-car ring. Uneasy mix of farce, melodrama, and buddy movie looks something like a pilot for a (bad) TV series. [R] ▼●●

Down to You (2000) C-91m. BOMB D: Kris Isacsson. Freddie Prinze, Jr., Julia Stiles, Shawn Hatosy, Selma Blair, Zak Orth, Ashton Kutcher, Rosario Dawson, Henry Winkler, Lucie Arnaz. Prinze and Stiles futilely try chumming us up by speaking directly into the camera, explaining how their once-idyllic college romance went bust (though not as bust as the movie). Somehow, this manages to find room for subplots about a TV cooking show (hosted by Winkler, as Prinze's dad) and a buddy who dabbles as an adult-movie entrepreneur with a kind of bohemian/intellectual porn actress. Numbly inept comedy. [PG-13] ▼●

Down Twisted (1987) C-88m. *½ D: Albert Pyun. Carey Lowell, Charles Rocket, Trudi Dochterman, Thom Matthews, Norbert Weisser, Linda Kerridge, Nicholas Guest. Unremittingly complicated, and unsatisfying, caper yarn with innocent young woman suddenly caught up in web of intrigue when she's thought to have a priceless artifact the bad guys are after. Echoes of other (better) movies abound. [R] ▼

Down With Love (2003) C-94m.  D: Peyton Reed. René Zellweger, Ewan McGregor, David Hyde Pierce, Sarah Paulson, Tony Randall, Jeri Ryan, Rachel Dratch. Spoof of 1960s Doris Day-Rock Hudson comedies has Zellweger as the author of a best-selling book on female independence in a battle of the sexes with playboy/magazine writer McGregor. Andrew Laws' lush, over-the-top Hollywood-fantasy production design is the real star here; everything else is heavy-handed and hollow, a self-consciously artificial parody of an already lightweight movie genre. Randall's final film. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Do You Want to Dance With Me? SEE: Come Dance With Me!

rero, Manuel Arbo. Spanish-language adaptation of the horror classic was filmed simultaneously with the Hollywood version—at night, on the very same sets—but much of the staging and camerawork is actually better! Other major difference: the women are dressed more provocatively. All that's missing is an actor with the charisma of Lugosi in the lead. ▼●

Dracula (1958) SEE: Horror of Dracula
Dracula (1979) C-109m. *½ D: John Badham. Frank Langella, Laurence Olivier, Donald Pleasence, Kate Nelligan, Trevor Eve, Janine Duvitski, Tony Haygarth. Murky retelling of Bram Stoker classic, with Langella's acclaimed Broadway characterization lost amid trendy horror gimmicks and ill-conceived changes in original story. Filmed in England. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Dracula A.D. 1972 (1972-British) C-100m.  D: Alan Gibson. Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee, Stephanie Beacham, Michael Coles, Christopher Neame, Caroline Munro. Farfetched, confusing tale of modern-day descendant of Dr. Van Helsing (Cushing) battling recently revived vampire (Lee). Somewhat jarring to see Dracula amid 1970s youth setting. Aka DRACULA TODAY. Followed by THE SATANIC RITES OF DRACULA. [PG] ▼●

Dracula and Son (1979-French) C-78m. *½ D: Eduard Molinaro. Christopher Lee, Bernard Menez, Marie-Helene Breillat, Catherine Breillat, Jack Boudet. Limp horror satire chronicling the comic misadventures of the title vampire (Lee) and his bumbling offspring (Menez); they become rivals for the pretty heroine. Virtually destroyed by grotesquely inappropriate English dubbing. Aka DRACULA, FATHER AND SON and DRACULA PERE ET FILS. [PG] ▼

Dracula: Dead and Loving It (1995) C-90m.  D: Mel Brooks. Leslie Nielsen, Peter MacNicol, Steven Weber, Amy Yasbeck, Lysette Anthony, Harvey Korman, Mel Brooks, Mark Blankfield, Megan Cavanaugh, Clive Revill, Chuck McCann, Avery Schreiber, Charlie Callas, Anne Bancroft. Dracula gets the Mel Brooks treatment in this parody which spends so much time retelling the familiar Transylvanian's story it forgets to be funny. There are choice moments for Brooks fans . . . just not enough. The cast mugs its best, including MacNicol as Renfield, Brooks as Dr. Van Helsing, Korman in an amusing impression of Nigel Bruce, and Nielsen as the suavely sinister Count. Bancroft has a delightful cameo as "Madame Ouspenskaya." [PG-13] ▼●●

Dracula, Father and Son SEE: Dracula and Son

Dracula Has Risen From The Grave (1968-British) C-92m. ½ D: Freddie Francis. Christopher Lee, Rupert Davies, Veronica Carlson, Barbara Ewing, Barry

Andrews, Michael Ripper. Dracula runs afoul of small-town monsignor when he pursues the churchman's beautiful blonde niece. Pretty good Hammer horror, third in the series. Sequel: TASTE THE BLOOD OF DRACULA. [G]▼●●

Dracula—Prince of Darkness (1966-British) C-90m.  D: Terence Fisher. Christopher Lee, Barbara Shelley, Andrew Keir, Suzan Farmer. Sequel to HORROR OF DRACULA doesn't measure up. The vampiric Count (Lee) is revived by a servant and wreaks terror on a group of tourists in a secluded castle. Techniscope.▼●●

Dracula's Daughter (1936) 70m.  D: Lambert Hillyer. Gloria Holden, Otto Kruger, Marguerite Churchill, Irving Pichel, Edward Van Sloan, Nan Grey, Hedda Hopper. Sequel to the Lugosi classic depicts vampirish activities of Holden; Pichel adds imposing support as her sinister manservant. Hillyer, normally a B-Western director, manages to imbue this chiller with a moody, subtly sensual quality.▼●●

Dracula 2000 SEE: Wes Craven Presents: Dracula 2000

Dracula's Widow (1989) C-86m. *½ D: Christopher Coppola. Josef Sommer, Sylvia Kristel, Lenny Von Dohlen, Stefan Schnabel, Marc Coppola, Rachel Jones. Kristel plays the title character, who comes to L.A. and takes up residence at a wax museum. Dull, minor fare. Twenty-five-year-old director Coppola is the nephew of Francis. Filmed in 1987. [R]▼

Dracula vs. Frankenstein (1970) SEE: Assignment Terror

Dracula vs. Frankenstein (1971) C-90m. BOMB D: Al Adamson. J. Carrol Naish, Lon Chaney, Jr., Zandor Vorkov, Russ Tamblyn, Jim Davis, Anthony Eisley. Self-conscious comedy masquerading as horror film wasting talents of old-timers Naish and Chaney; Dracula makes deal with aging Dr. Frankenstein so as to have steady supply of blood. Regrettably, both Naish and Chaney's final film. Aka THE REVENGE OF DRACULA. [PG]▼●● its era better than almost anything. Highly recommended on a nonesthetic level.▼

Dragnet (1987) C-106m. ½ D: Tom Mankiewicz. Dan Aykroyd, Tom Hanks, Christopher Plummer, Harry Morgan, Alexandra Paul, Jack O'Halloran, Elizabeth Ashley, Dabney Coleman. Aykroyd is a comic reincarnation of Jack Webb, playing Sgt. Joe Friday's dense but dedicated nephew in this parody. Hanks is fun as his free-wheeling new partner, with Morgan, Webb's onetime sidekick, now promoted to captain of the L.A.P.D. Starts out quite funny, then goes flat . . . but the punchline is a howl. Aykroyd coscripted with Mankiewicz and Alan Zweibel. [PG-13]▼●●

Dragonball: Evolution (2009-U.S.-Hong Kong) C-85m.  D: James Wong. Justin Chatwin, Chow Yun-Fat, Emmy Rossum, Jamie Chung, James Marsters, Joon Park, Eriko Tamura, Randall Duk Kim, Ernie Hudson. Young man trained in mystic martial arts by his grandfather has to gather seven magical balls to make a wish that will save the world from the return of the supernatural villain Lord Piccolo. Based on the phenomenally popular Japanese manga, which spawned three anime TV series and seventeen animated feature films. Lively and colorful (with a mildly amusing turn by scruffy martial arts master Chow) and laden with extravagant special effects, this is, nonetheless, just colorful eyewash, barely comprehensible to non-initiates. Super 35. [PG]

Dragonfly (1976) SEE: One Summer Love

Dragonfly (2002) C-103m. ½ D: Tom Shadyac. Kevin Costner, Kathy Bates, Joe Morton, Ron Rifkin, Linda Hunt, Susanna Thompson, Jacob Vargas, Jay Thomas, Matt Craven. An emergency room physician, grieving for his dead wife, receives a series of signals from her—including messages from young patients who've had near-death experiences. But what do they mean? More drawn out than it needs to be, but an intriguing and unusual story of one man's spiritual—and physical—odyssey. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

state-of-the-art digital animation). Fine score by Randy Edelman. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Dragon Seed (1944) 145m. ½ D: Jack Conway, Harold S. Bucquet. Katharine Hepburn, Walter Huston, Aline MacMahon, Turhan Bey, Hurd Hatfield, Agnes Moorehead, Frances Rafferty, J. Carrol Naish, Akim Tamiroff, Henry Travers; narrated by Lionel Barrymore. Well-meant but over-long film of Pearl Buck's tale of Chinese town torn asunder by Japanese occupation; fascinating attempts at Asian characterization. ▼●

Dragons Forever (1987-Hong Kong) C-94m. ½ D: Samo Hung. Jackie Chan, Samo Hung, Yuen Biao, Yuen Wah, Benny Urquidez, Deannie Yip, Pauline Yeung. Simply delightful film has Chan playing a lawyer who enlists crook Hung and cracked friend Biao to help him spy on a woman involved with a case. Everything changes when love blossoms. Action, comedy, and romance blend together seamlessly under Hung's direction. All three stars shine in moments of incredible acrobatics and hilarious slapstick. Aka CYCLONE Z. ▼●●

Dragonslayer (1981) C-108m.  D: Matthew Robbins. Peter MacNicol, Caitlin Clarke, Ralph Richardson, John Hallam, Peter Eyre, Albert Salmi. Enjoyable fantasy-adventure about a sorcerer's apprentice who takes on the challenge of slaying a dragon—and finds he is in over his head. A bit scary and graphic for some kids. Filmed in England, Scotland, and Wales with a mostly British cast but American MacNicol in the lead—somewhat incongruously. Fine Alex North score. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Dragon: The Bruce Lee Story (1993) C-119m.  D: Rob Cohen. Jason Scott Lee, Lauren Holly, Robert Wagner, Michael Learned, Nancy Kwan, Kay Tong Lim, Sterling Macer, Ric Young, Sven-Ole Thorson. Corny but very likable biopic about legendary action-movie star who died at age 33 in 1973. Plenty of martial-arts mayhem, but also the story of a man who must overcome a variety of obstacles to find his place in the world. Adapted from a book by Lee's widow, Linda. The film's star is no relation to Bruce. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Dragon Wars (2007-South Korean) C-100m.  D: Hyung-rae Shim. Robert Forster, Jason Behr, Amanda Brooks, Craig Robinson, Elizabeth Peña, Chris Mulkey, Aimee Garcia, John Ales, Cody Arens. With a reported budget of $70 million, South Korea's biggest production ever is a dopey B monster movie elevated (only slightly) by some impressive effects. What story there is revolves around a 500-year-old battle that is being reborn in contemporary L.A., where a young boy is imbued with the spirit of an ancient warrior in order to take on dreaded serpentlike creatures.

There's some fun in watching a flying Korean zoo take hold of the town, but that's about it. Also known as D-WAR. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Dragonwyck (1946) 103m. ½ D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Gene Tierney, Walter Huston, Vincent Price, Glenn Langan, Anne Revere, Spring Byington, Henry (Harry) Morgan, Jessica Tandy. Period chiller set at a gloomy mansion on the Hudson, with good cast but episodic presentation. Mankiewicz's directorial debut; he also scripted from the Anya Seton story. ●

Dr. Akagi (1998-Japanese) C-128m.  D: Shohei Imamura. Akira Emoto, Kumiko Aso, Juro Kara, Masanori Sera, Jacques Gamblin, Keiko Matsuzaka. Pointed satiric drama set in the waning days of WW2 about a small-town doctor who fears that a hepatitis epidemic is about to sweep his country. Savagely lampoons Japanese military bureaucracy, but works best as a loving portrait of a dedicated man and those in his inner circle. ▼●

Dr. Alien (1988) C-87m.  D: David DeCoteau. Judy Landers, Billy Jacoby, Olivia Barash, Stuart Fratkin, Raymond O'Connor, Arlene Golonka, Linnea Quigley, Troy Donahue, Ginger Lynn Allen, Edy Williams. Landers is an alien who disguises herself as a college professor and transforms freshman Jacoby from wimp to dreamboat. Silly stuff (with an all-star schlock movie supporting cast). [R] ▼●●

Draughtsman's Contract, The (1982-British) C-103m.  D: Peter Greenaway. Anthony Higgins, Janet Suzman, Anne Louise Lambert, Hugh Fraser. Arrogant young artist takes commissions from the mistress of an estate in return for sexual favors; sumptuous-looking 17th-century tale, but cold and aloof. Will be of greater interest to fans of writer-director Greenaway. [R] ▼●

Dr. Bethune (1990-Canadian-Chinese-French) C-115m. ½ D: Phillip Borsos. Donald Sutherland, Helen Mirren, Helen Shaver, Colm Feore, James Pax, Ronald Pickup, Guo Da, Anouk Aimée. Hand-somely mounted but episodic account of controversial Canadian doctor Norman Bethune (well played by Sutherland), ardent anti-fascist and proponent of socialized medicine. Much terrain is covered, from his love life to his involvement in the Spanish Civil War and with Mao Tse-tung fighting the Japanese; unfortunately, you never really know what makes him tick. Original title: BETHUNE: THE MAKING OF A HERO. Released in the U.S. in 1993; Sutherland also starred in BETHUNE, a 1977 Canadian TV movie. ▼

Dr. Black, Mr. Hyde (1976) C-87m. ½ D: William Crain. Bernie Casey, Rosalind Cash, Marie O'Henry, Ji-Tu Cumbuka, Milt Kogan, Stu Gilliam. Black lab scientist Casey tests experimental serum on himself and turns into a white monster. No surprises, but not bad, either, with Casey doing first-rate job. Aka THE WATTS MONSTER and DR. BLACK AND MR. WHITE. [PG] ▼

Dr. Bull (1933) 75m.  D: John Ford. Will Rogers, Marian Nixon, Ralph Morgan, Rochelle Hudson, Berton Churchill, Louise Dresser, Andy Devine. Rogers in fine form as country doctor battling small-town pettiness as much as fighting illness. Stereotyped characters are perfect foils for Rogers' common-sense pronouncements; director Ford provides ideal atmosphere. ▮

Dr. Dolittle 2 (2001) C-87m. ½ D: Steve Carr. Eddie Murphy, Kevin Pollak, Kristen Wilson, Jeffrey Jones, Raven-Symoné, Kyla Pratt, Lil' Zane, Andy Richter. Amiable sequel to 1998 hit DOCTOR DOLITTLE has Murphy trying to save a forest by propagating an endangered species. In order to do so, a performing bear has to mate with his female counterpart in the wild. Meanwhile, Dolittle is trying to strengthen a shaky bond with his 16-year-old daughter. Considerably less raunchy than the earlier film, though there's no shortage of "mating" jokes. Many celebrities provide voices (Steve Zahn, Norm Macdonald, Lisa Kudrow, Michael Rapaport, Isaac Hayes, Andy Dick, Michael McKean, David L. Lander, Mandy Moore, Joey Lauren Adams, Frankie Muniz, Jamie Kennedy, John Leguizamo), not all of them credited. Followed by three DVD sequels. Super 35. [PG] ▼ ▮

Dream a Little Dream (1989) C-99m. *½ D: Marc Rocco. Corey Feldman, Meredith Salenger, Jason Robards, Piper Laurie, Harry Dean Stanton, William McNamara, Corey Haim, Susan Blakely, Victoria Jackson, Alex Rocco, Josh Evans. Yet another personality-exchange comedy—this one with Robards and Feldman switching bodies after a bike mishap. Perfectly dreadful. Director is son of costar Alex Rocco. Direct-to-video sequel: DREAM A LITTLE DREAM 2. [PG-13] ▼ ▮

Dreamcatcher (2003) C-131m.  D: Lawrence Kasdan. Morgan Freeman, Thomas Jane, Jason Lee, Damian Lewis, Timothy Olyphant, Tom Sizemore, Donnie Wahlberg, Michael O'Neill. This adaptation of a Stephen King novel seems like three or four different movies squashed into one. The initial story is the best, as four boyhood friends who share extrasensory powers meet for a weekend at their remote cabin in the woods, where things are definitely askew. Then we get a yucky-monster movie, a military paranoia film, a typical King childhood nostalgia vignette, and more. By the time we reach the climax, with the future of mankind at stake, it's difficult to muster any interest at all. Screenplay by Kasdan and William Goldman. Super 35. [R] ▼ ▮

DreamChild (1985-British) C-94m. ½ D: Gavin Millar. Coral Browne, Ian Holm, Peter Gallagher, Caris Corfman, Nicola Cowper, Jane Asher, Amelia Shankley, Shane Rimmer. Woman for whom Rev. Charles Dodgson (Lewis Carroll) invented his Alice in Wonderland stories comes to America at age 80 for the author's centenary, unable to understand the fuss, and fearful of her own repressed memories. Fascinating material seriously flawed by romantic subplot and ludicrous re-creation of N.Y.C. setting and characters of the 1930s. Browne's superb performance makes it all worthwhile. Jim Henson's Creature Shop provided Wonderland characters. Written by Dennis Potter. [PG] ▼

Dream Demon (1988-British-U.S.) C-89m.  D: Harley Kocklis. Kathleen Wilhoite, Jemma Redgrave, Timothy Spall, Jimmy Nail, Susan Fleetwood, Mark Greenstreet, Annabelle Lanyon, Nickolas Grace. Soon-to-be-married Redgrave has horrifying dreams, unwillingly pulling into them Wilhoite, an American in London seeking secrets of her own past. Good special effects and performances undercut by who-cares story and many repetitive sequences. Released in the U.S. in 1993. [R] ▼

Dreamer: Inspired By a True Story (2005) C-102m. ½ D: John Gatins. Kurt Russell, Dakota Fanning, Kris Kristofferson, Elisabeth

Shue, David Morse, Freddy Rodríguez, Luis Guzmán, Oded Fehr, Ken Howard, Dick Allen. Routine account of 10-year-old Fanning, who is convinced that a horse with a broken leg not only can be nursed back to health but will win the Big Race. Pleasant enough family film, although it's corny and awfully predictable. Super 35. [PG]▼

Dreamers, The (2003-British-Italian-French) C-115m.  D: Bernardo Bertolucci. Michael Pitt, Eva Green, Louis Garrel, Robin Renucci, Anna Chancellor. Young American joins the die-hard film buffs at Paris' Cinematheque Française in 1968 and gets involved with an attractive brother and sister who draw him into a world of kinky sex and mind games. Any film that opens with footage of Parisians and filmmakers protesting the ouster of the Cinematheque's legendary Henri Langlois and goes on to "quote" movies ranging from FREAKS to QUEEN CHRISTINA is on the right track. Strongly reminiscent of films from the period it depicts: bold, excessive, daringly sexual, self-serious at times, but vibrantly alive. Screenplay by Gilbert Adair, from his novel The Holy Innocents. [NC-17]▼

Dream for an Insomniac (1998) C/B&W-88m.  D: Tiffani DeBartolo. Ione Skye, Jennifer Aniston, Mackenzie Astin, Michael Landes, Seymour Cassel. Waitress/aspiring actress (Skye) falls for the new counter-boy/poet (Astin) just 48 hours before she's about to move to L.A. Cute but sitcom-ish romantic comedy set in a Sinatra-themed, family-owned coffeehouse in San Francisco. Charismatic casting helps, particularly Aniston as Skye's flaky best friend, but you wish they'd all stop their yapping. Written by the director. Filmed in 1995. [R]▼

Dreaming of Joseph Lees (1999-British-U.S.) C-92m.  D: Eric Styles. Samantha Morton, Lee Ross, Rupert Graves, Frank Finlay, Miriam Margolyes, Nick Woodson, Holly Aird, Lauren Richardson. Hackneyed soaper, set in rural England in 1958, in which a young woman (Morton) takes up with a self-absorbed pig farmer (Ross) despite her desire for her cousin, Joseph Lees (Graves), a gentle geologist who lost a leg while working in Italy. Morton rises above the trite material. [R]▼

Dreamland (2006) C-88m.  D: Jason Matzner. Agnes Bruckner, Kelli Garner, Justin Long, John Corbett, Gina Gershon, Brian Klugman, Chris Mulkey. Teenaged Bruckner lives in a remote New Mexico trailer park called Dreamland with her father, who's never gotten over the death of her mother, and a best friend whose poor health has made her a chronic dreamer. Bruckner feels responsible for these needy people, putting her own life and dreams on hold. Well-acted mood piece went direct to DVD. [PG-13]▶

Dreamlife of Angels, The (1998-French) C-113m. ½ D: Erick Zonca. Elodie Bouchez, Natacha Régnier, Grégoire Colin, Jo Prestia, Patrick Mercado. Evocative study of two young women—one generous and impulsive, the other sullen and despairing—who meet at a clothing factory in Lille, France, and become close friends, then drift apart as one becomes involved with a club owner. An elusive story, directed with quiet precision by coscreenwriter Zonca (his feature debut), which slowly, penetratingly reveals a wealth of detail about the bonds of friendship and the vagaries of destiny. Bouchez and Régnier are outstanding. [R]▼

Dream Lover (1986) C-104m. *½ D: Alan J. Pakula. Kristy McNichol, Ben Masters, Paul Shenar, Justin Deas, John McMartin, Gayle Hunnicutt, Matthew Penn. Abysmal thriller about young woman's attempts to expunge recurring nightmare from her mind through "dream therapy." Intensely unsettling film with an interesting idea torpedoed by snail-like pacing and sterile atmosphere. What Hitchcock could have done with this! [R]▼

Dream Lover (1994) C-103m. ½ D: Nicholas Kazan. James Spader, Mädchen Amick, Bess Armstrong, Fredric Lehne, Larry Miller, Kathleen York, Blair Tefkin, Scott Coffey, Clyde Kusatsu, William Shockley. Handsome, wealthy architect Spader meets gorgeous, enigmatic Amick and the two become a passionate, perfect couple—until her cloudy past (eventually) raises his suspicions. Fluid camerawork (by Jean-Yves Escoffier) and some smart dialogue go out the window as plausibility level declines alarmingly. Stars

register well but can't overcome a noirish mystery that just misses. Feature directing debut for screenwriter Kazan. Also available in unrated version. [R]▼●●

Dream Machine, The (1990) C-86m.  D: Lyman Dayton. Corey Haim, Evan Richards, Jeremy Slate, Randall England, Tracy Fraim, Brittney Lewis, Susan Seaforth Hayes. Super-wealthy Slate is murdered by an embezzler after cheating on his wife. She's just learned of his infidelity and, on an impulse, gives his new turbo-charged Porsche to immature college student Haim (who doesn't know the deceased's body is stuffed in the trunk). By-the-numbers action-thriller with an intriguing (if unlikely) premise. [PG]▼●●

Dream of Kings, A (1969) C-107m.  D: Daniel Mann. Anthony Quinn, Irene Pappas, Inger Stevens, Sam Levene, Radames Pera, Val Avery. Emotional study of robust Quinn trying to find money to take ailing son to Greece. Vivid look at Greek community in Chicago; heart-rending story by Harry Alan Petrakis. Stevens exceptional as young widow attracted to Quinn. [R]▼●
Dream of Light (1990-Spanish) C-138m. ½ D: Victor Erice. Unusual, understated documentary of renowned Spanish painter Antonio Lopez Garcia as he attempts to capture a backyard quince tree's beauty on canvas. A rare portrait of an artist at work as he deals with his inner voices—and the mundane details of life. Quiet, deliberate, and completely absorbing.▼

Dream of Passion, A (1978-Greek) C-106m. *½ D: Jules Dassin. Melina Mercouri, Ellen Burstyn, Andreas Voutsinas, Despo Diamantidou, Dimitris Papa-michael. Aside from Burstyn's powerhouse performance as an American jailed in Greece for killing her three children, this attempt to parallel her story with Medea's is the kind of idea that should never have left the story conference. Mercouri is typically hammy as the actress who takes up her cause. [R]▼

D: Howard Zieff. Michael Keaton, Christopher Lloyd, Peter Boyle, Stephen Furst, Dennis Boutsikaris, Lorraine Bracco, Milo O'Shea, Philip Bosco, James Remar. Four mental-hospital patients become separated from their doctor while on a field trip to Yankee Stadium, and find themselves stranded in an even-larger looney bin: The Big Apple. Uneven farce seems inspired by ONE FLEW OVER THE CUCKOO'S NEST, and gets its mileage from the performances of its leading actors. [PG-13]▼●●

Dream With the Fishes (1997) C-96m.  D: Finn Taylor. David Arquette, Brad Hunt, Cathy Moriarty, Kathryn Erbe, Patrick McGaw, J. E. Freeman, Timi Prulhiere, Allyce Beasley, Peter Gregory. Mismatched buddy tale about a suicidal voyeur and a terminally ill drug addict who decide to "go for it" when they take off on a memorable trip that involves, among other things, nude bowling and bank holdups. Small film has its charms but seems to be trying too hard to be quirky. [R]▼●

Dressed to Kill (1980) C-105m. ½ D: Brian De Palma. Michael Caine, Angie Dickinson, Nancy Allen, Keith Gordon, Dennis Franz, David Margulies, Brandon Maggart. High-tension melodrama about a psycho-killer who stalks two women—one a frustrated suburban housewife, the other a street-smart hooker who teams up with the first woman's son to trap the murderer. Writer-director De Palma works on viewer's emotions, not logic, and maintains a fever pitch from start to finish. Chilling Pino Donaggio score. Unrated version also available. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Dresser, The (1983-British) C-118m. ½ D: Peter Yates. Albert Finney, Tom Courtenay, Edward Fox, Zena Walker, Eileen Atkins, Michael Gough, Cathryn Harrison. Excellent film adaptation of Ronald Harwood's play about an aging actor-manager (based on real-life Donald Wolfit) whose very survival depends on the constant pampering and prodding of his dresser—who lives vicariously through the old man's performances. Finney, as Sir, and Courtenay, as Norman the dresser, are simply superb. Yates captures the look and feel of wartime England, and backstage atmosphere of a small touring company, with uncanny ability. A must for anyone who loves acting and the theater. [PG]▼●●

Dressmaker, The (1988-British) C-89m. ½ D: Jim O'Brien. Joan Plowright, Billie Whitelaw, Peter Postlethwaite, Jane Horrocks, Tim Ransom. Medium account of two Liverpool sisters, one repressed (Plowright) and the other spirited (Whitelaw), and what happens when their naive, fragile niece falls for an American GI during WW2. Well acted, and starts off promisingly, but bogs down.▼●●

Dr. Goldfoot and the Bikini Machine (1965) C-90m.  D: Norman Taurog. Vincent Price, Frankie Avalon, Dwayne Hickman, Susan Hart, Fred Clark. Mad scientist tries to make a fortune manufacturing lifelike lady robots to marry wealthy men. Good chase scene, but otherwise just silly. Panavision.▼●

Drive, He Said (1972) C-90m. ½ D: Jack Nicholson. William Pepper, Karen Black, Michael Margotta, Bruce Dern, Robert Towne, Henry Jaglom, Michael Warren, Charles Robinson, David (Ogden) Stiers, Cindy Williams. Confusing tale of youth alienation contains fine performances but loses itself in its attempt to cover all the bases; Dern is fabulous as gung-ho college basketball coach. Nicholson's directorial debut; he also cowrote the screenplay with Jeremy Lamer. [R]●

Drive-In (1976) C-96m.  D: Rod Amateau. Lisa Lemole, Glen Morshouer, Gary Cavagnaro, Billy Milliken, Lee Newsom, Regan Kee. Amiable low-budget trash about a night in the life of teenaged yahoos at a Texas drive-in during the unreeling of a campy disaster film (which takes up much of the screen time). Better after 20 beers. [PG]▼

Drive Me Crazy (1999) C-91m.  D: John Schultz. Melissa Joan Hart, Adrian Grenier, Stephen Collins, Ali Larter, Mark Metcalf, William Converse-Roberts, Faye Grant. In order to win their dream prom dates, the most popular girl in school and a rebel outcast team up and pretend they're going steady. Predictable teen comedy could easily be called HE'S ALL THAT but is kept afloat by likable lead performances. Tries to have it both ways by featuring an on-screen number from punk girl band The Donnas and a title track by Britney Spears. [PG-13]▼

Driven (2001) C-117m. BOMB D: Renny Harlin. Sylvester Stallone, Burt Reynolds, Kip Pardue, Til Schweiger, Stacy Edwards, Estella Warren, Gina Gershon, Brent Briscoe, Robert Sean Leonard. Embarrassing amalgam of racing-pic clichés finds has-been Sly (who scripted) hiring on as mentor to green Pardue, a member of Reynolds' Championship Auto Racing Team who's manipulated by his brother. This is the kind of movie in which two racers create nighttime havoc racing 195 mph through metropolitan streets, only to get off with just a $25,000 fine . . . the kind of movie whose contempt for its audience knocked both Stallone and Reynolds off their superstar thrones. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Driver, The (1978) C-90m.  D: Walter Hill. Ryan O'Neal, Bruce Dern, Isabelle Adjani, Ronnee Blakley, Matt Clark, Felice Orlandi. Tense throwback to the Hollywood film noir era pits getaway driver O'Neal against creepy cop Dern. Oddball melodrama doesn't seem like much at the time, but has a way of staying with you afterwards. Great car chase sequences. [PG—edited from original R rating]▼

Driving Lessons (2006-British) C-98m.  D: Jeremy Brock. Julie Walters, Rupert Grint, Laura Linney, Nicholas Farrell, Michelle Duncan, Jim Norton, Tamsin Egerton. Adolescent Grint escapes from an enervating home life with his domineering, religious-fanatic mother (Linney) and his soft-spoken minister father (Farrell) by taking a job as companion and helper to an aged actress (Walters). Walters is great fun as a card-carrying eccentric and free spirit who has a liberating effect on her young charge. Charming yet pointed film about youthful stumbling and adult hypocrisy. Directorial debut for screenwriter Brock (MRS. BROWN, CHARLOTTE GRAY), who drew on his own life for source material. [PG-13]▼

Driving Miss Daisy (1989) C-99m.  D: Bruce Beresford. Morgan Freeman, Jessica Tandy, Dan Aykroyd, Patti LuPone, Esther Rolle. Genteel, entertaining adaptation of Alfred Uhry's stage play about a simple black man who's hired as chauffeur for a cantankerous old Southern woman, and winds up being her most faithful companion. A smooth and enjoyable ride, with fine performances by the two leads.

Aykroyd is likable in an unusual "straight" role as Tandy's son, though you can never quite forget who's playing the part (especially with such obvious makeup). Oscar winner for Best Picture, Actress, Screenplay (by Uhry), and Makeup. [PG]▼

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (1920) 96m.  D: John S. Robertson. John Barrymore, Martha Mansfield, Brandon Hurst, Nita Naldi, Charles Lane, Louis Wolheim. One of several silent versions of famous tale, this one can hold its own next to the later March and Tracy filmings; Barrymore is superb as curious doctor who ventures into the unknown, emerging as evil Mr. Hyde. Bravura performance sparks well-made production.▼

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (1932) 97m.  D: Rouben Mamoulian. Fredric March, Miriam Hopkins, Rose Hobart, Holmes Herbert, Halliwell Hobbes. Exciting, floridly cinematic version of famous story with March in Oscar-winning portrayal of tormented doctor, Hopkins superb as tantalizing Ivy. Beware of 82m. re-issue version.▼

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (1941) 114m.  D: Victor Fleming. Spencer Tracy, Ingrid Bergman, Lana Turner, Donald Crisp, Ian Hunter, Barton MacLane, C. Aubrey Smith, Sara Allgood. Tracy and Bergman are excellent in thoughtful, lush remake of Robert Louis Stevenson's classic, which stresses Hyde's emotions rather than physical horror. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼

Dr. Jekyll and Ms. Hyde (1995) C-90m. *½ D: David Price. Sean Young, Tim Daly, Lysette Anthony, Stephen Tobolowsky, Harvey Fierstein, Thea Vidale, Jeremy Piven, Polly Bergen, Stephen Shellen, Jane Connell, Julie Cobb, Robert Wuhl. Did we really need a comic retreat of the classic Robert Louis Stevenson tale, with Jekyll's great-grandson (Daly) morphing into seductress Helen Hyde (Young)? If so, it should have been a lot better. [PG-13]▼

Dr. Jekyll & Sister Hyde (1971-British) C-94m. ½ D: Roy Ward Baker. Ralph Bates, Martine Beswick, Gerald Sim, Lewis Fiander, Susan Broderick. Interesting twist to classic tale finds the good doctor discovering that his evil life is brought out in the form of a beautiful but dangerous woman. No thrills but fun; resemblance between Bates and Beswick is remarkable. Released in Britain at 97m. [PG]▼

adence. Brilliantly directed, designed, and photographed. Originally shown in two parts; the second half, DR. MABUSE, KING OF CRIME, details Mabuse's descent into madness. It isn't as flamboyant as Part One, but still quite good. Adapted by Lang and Thea Harbou from a novel by Norbert Jacques. Shown as separate films for many years; prints circulate in various lengths. Lang later made THE TESTAMENT OF DR. MABUSE (1932) and THE 1,000 EYES OF DR. MABUSE (1960). ▼

Dr. No (1962-British) C-111m. ½ D: Terence Young. Sean Connery, Ursula Andress, Joseph Wiseman, Jack Lord, Bernard Lee, Lois Maxwell. First James Bond film is least pretentious, with meaty story, fine all-round production of Ian Fleming caper. Bond investigates strange occurrences in Jamaica, encounters master-fiend Dr. No (Wiseman). ▼●●

Drop Dead Fred (1991) C-98m. BOMB D: Ate De Jong. Phoebe Cates, Rik Mayall, Marsha Mason, Tim Matheson, Carrie Fisher, Keith Charles, Ron Eldard. Putrid fantasy-comedy about a repressed young woman who—as her life is crumbling around her—is revisited by her childhood make-believe “friend” Drop Dead Fred, a repulsive mischief-maker. Cates' appealing performance can't salvage this mess. Recommended only for people who think nose-picking is funny. [PG-13] ▼●●

Drop Dead Gorgeous (1999) C-98m. *½ D: Michael Patrick Jann. Kirsten Dunst, Denise Richards, Kirstie Alley, Ellen Barkin, Allison Janney, Brittany Murphy, Sam McMurray, Amy Adams, Mindy Sterling, Mo'Nique, Nora Dunn. Annoying pseudo-documentary satire about small-town Midwestern teen beauty pageants. Full of frantic mugging and outrageous gags about eating disorders, but most of them aren't funny. Only prize-winner here is Janney as good-hearted trailer trash. To see how it's done right, watch SMILE. [PG-13] ▼●

Drop Squad (1994) C-86m.  D: D. Clark Johnson. Eriq LaSalle, Vondie Curtis Hall, Ving Rhames, Kasi Lemmons, Leonard Thomas, Billy Williams, Eric A. Payne, Vanessa Williams, Nicole Powell, Paula Kelly. Unsatisfying tale of a black ad-agency employee (LaSalle) who conjures up idiotic advertising campaigns, thus forsaking his roots; he becomes the target of some vigilante deprogrammers who seek to make him aware of his ethnic and family loyalties. Well-intentioned satire of corporate racism, but neither as humorous nor as daring as it sets out to be. Executive producer is Spike Lee, who appears briefly in one of the commercials. [R] ▼●●

Drop Zone (1994) C-102m. ½ D: John Badham. Wesley Snipes, Gary Busey, Yancy Butler, Michael Jeter, Corin Nemec,

Kyle Secor, Luca Bercovici, Malcolm-Jamal Warner, Rex Linn, Grace Zabriskie, Claire Stansfield, Andy Romano. Solid if predictable actioner with U.S. marshal Snipes going up against some sky-diving baddies out to pilfer data on undercover drug agents to sell to international narcotics dealers. The scenario is preposterous, but there are enough dazzling airborne stunts to keep you entertained. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Drowning by Numbers (1987-British) C-118m. ½ D: Peter Greenaway. Joan Plowright, Bernard Hill, Juliet Stephenson, Joely Richardson. Another bizarre, fascinating celluloid put-on from Greenaway, about an obsessive coroner and his involvement with three generations of women from the same family. Stunningly filmed and very entertaining (but recommended most enthusiastically to Greenaway fans). Not released in U.S. until 1991. ▼●●

Drowning Mona (2000) C-95m. ½ D: Nick Gomez. Danny DeVito, Bette Midler, Jamie Lee Curtis, Neve Campbell, Casey Affleck, William Fichtner, Marcus Thomas, Peter Dinklage, Kathleen Wilhoite, Tracey Walter, Will Ferrell. Fairly amusing black comedy about a small town shaken by the drowning of its most reviled citizen (Midler), and the repercussions felt by her idiot son and husband, the town sheriff (DeVito), and others who knew and loathed her. [PG-13] ▼●

Drowning Pool, The (1976) C-108m. ½ D: Stuart Rosenberg. Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward, Anthony Franciosa, Murray Hamilton, Melanie Griffith, Richard Jaeckel, Gail Strickland, Linda Haynes. Newman returns as private eye Harper, (based on Ross Macdonald's Archer character) in slickly made but slow whodunit; here he is called to help former lover Woodward out of a jam. Screenplay by Tracy Keenan Wynn, Lorenzo Semple, and Walter Hill. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb (1964-British) 93m. * D: Stanley Kubrick. Peter Sellers, George C. Scott, Sterling Hayden, Slim Pickens, Keenan

Wynn, Peter Bull, James Earl Jones. U.S. President must contend with the Russians and his own political and military leaders when a fanatical general launches A-bomb attack on U.S.S.R. Sellers plays the President, British captain, and mad inventor of the Bomb in this brilliant black comedy, which seems better with each passing year. Sellers' phone conversation with Soviet premier is classic. Outstanding cast, incredible sets by Ken Adam. Jones' film debut. ▼●●

Dr. Syn, Alias the Scarecrow (1962) C-98m. ½ D: James Neilson. Patrick McGeehan, George Cole, Michael Hordern, Tony Britton, Geoffrey Keen, Kay Walsh, Patrick Wymark. Agreeable Disney production made in England (and originally shown in three parts on the Disney TV show as The Scarecrow of Romney Marsh) about country vicar who in reality is a smuggler and pirate. McGeehan is well cast as the mysterious bandit-hero who conducts his nightly raids disguised as a scarecrow. Filmed before in 1937 with George Arliss; another 1962 version, NIGHT CREATURES, stars Peter Cushing. [G]▼

Dr. T & the Women (2000) C-122m. *½ D: Robert Altman. Richard Gere, Helen Hunt, Farrah Fawcett, Laura Dern, Shelley Long, Tara Reid, Kate Hudson, Liv Tyler, Robert Hays, Matt Malloy, Andy Richter, Lee Grant, Janine Turner. Dismal Altman misfire about a high-society Dallas gynecologist who reveres women, even though personally and professionally they are starting to shake up his world. Gere's fine, understated performance is almost buried under a pile of strident, unfunny female caricatures, pointless subplots, and an ending that seems rejected from MAGNOLIA. Super 35. [R] ▼

Dr. Terror's Gallery of Horrors SEE: Return from the Past

Dr. Terror's House of Horrors (1965-British) C-98m. ½ D: Freddie Francis. Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee, Roy Castle, Max Adrian, Michael Gough, Donald Sutherland, Neil McCallum, Edward Underdown, Ursula Howells, Jeremy Kemp, Bernard Lee. Don't let title steer you from this intelligent episodic thriller about a strange doctor (Cushing) who tells five men's fortunes on a train. Enjoyable horror-fantasy. Techniscope. ▼

tobiographical novel of the 1970s. Screenplay by Van Sant and Daniel Yost. [R]▼●●

Drum (1976) C-110m. BOMB D: Steve Carver. Warren Oates, Ken Norton, Isela Vega, Pam Grier, Yaphet Kotto, John Colicos, Brenda Sykes, Paula Kelly. Continuation of MANDINGO—a new and dreadful low in lurid characters and incidents. Norton in title role generates neither interest nor sympathy. [R]▼

Drumline (2002) C-118m. ½ D: Charles Stone III. Nick Cannon, Zoë Saldana, Orlando Jones, Leonard Roberts, GQ, Jason Weaver, Earl C. Poitier, Candace Carey, J. Anthony Brown. Teenage drummer from N.Y.C. is accepted at a Georgia college where the marching band is all-important. But his cocky ways put him at odds with the unyielding band director, and his giant ego causes friction with fellow band members. Feel-good film covers fresh territory in a strictly formulaic way—and goes on a half hour too long—but the music is hard to resist. Alternate version runs 122m. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Drums (1938-British) C-99m.  D: Zoltan Korda. Sabu, Raymond Massey, Valerie Hobson, Roger Livesey, David Tree. Fine, colorful adventure with precocious Sabu rescuing British cavalry in early 20th-century India; atmospheric and actionful. Originally titled THE DRUM. Original British running time: 104m. ▼●

Drums Along the Mohawk (1939) C-103m. ½ D: John Ford. Claudette Colbert, Henry Fonda, Edna May Oliver, John Carradine, Jessie Ralph, Arthur Shields, Robert Lowery, Ward Bond. John Ford richly captures flavor of Colonial life in this vigorous, courageous story of settlers in upstate N.Y. during Revolutionary War. Action, drama, sentiment, humor deftly interwoven in beautiful Technicolor production. From Walter Edmonds' novel. ▼●●

Drums of Tahiti (1954) C-73m. *½ D: William Castle. Dennis O'Keefe, Patricia Medina, Francis L. Sullivan, George Keymas. Footloose American aids a Tahitian queen who opposes annexation by the French in the late 1800s. Silly Sam Katzman production whose only novelty (in theaters) was the use of 3-D—as you can tell by flaming torches poked at the camera!

Yuen Sui Tin, Wang Jang Lee, Hsu Hsia, Ling Yang, Dean Shek, Yuen Shun-Yee. Jackie plays Chinese folk hero Wong Fei Hung in this kung fu comedy, his first big hit. Almost plotless film has Wong studying under hard-drinking master played by Yuen Sui Tin, the director's father. Enjoyably silly, with some good stunt work and comic moments. Of note mostly for its importance to Chan's career. Aka DRUNKEN MONKEY IN THE TIGER'S EYE(!) Followed by a sequel in 1994. Widescreen. ▼

Drunken Master II (1994-Hong Kong) C-113m.  D: Lau Kar Leung. Jackie Chan, Anita Mui, Ti Lung, Andy Lau, Gabriel Wong, Ken Lo, Chin Kar-Lok. Chan returns to the role that made him a star 16 years earlier, confronting art smugglers and a father who disapproves of his drunken fighting style. Some truly amazing fight sequences, especially the complex final battle in a steel mill—which may leave you as breathless as the performers! The fellow Jackie fights under the train is the film's director. Reissued in the U.S. as THE LEGEND OF DRUNKEN MASTER. Technovision. ▼

Drunks (1996) C-90m. ½ D: Peter Cohn. Richard Lewis, Faye Dunaway, Amanda Plummer, Spalding Gray, Parker Posey, Calista Flockhart, Howard Rollins, Lisa Gay Hamilton, Dianne Wiest, Sam Rockwell, Kevin Corrigan. Potent, if stagy, character study about alcoholics (of varied backgrounds) who tell all at an Alcoholics Anonymous meeting. Comedian Lewis is effective as a particularly pained group leader. A fine actors' showcase with some strong moments. Debuted on cable TV before theatrical release. [R] ▼

Dr. Who and the Daleks (1965-British) C-85m. ½ D: Gordon Flemyng. Peter Cushing, Roy Castle, Jennie Linden, Roberta Tovey, Barrie Ingham. Pleasing feature inspired by the long-running British TV serial, with the Doctor and his young friends transported to another world where humans are threatened by robotlike Daleks. Followed by DALEKS—INVASION EARTH 2150 A.D. Techniscope. ▼

Dry White Season, A (1989) C-107m. ½ D: Euzhan Palcy. Donald Sutherland, Janet Suzman, Zakes Mokae, Jürgen Prochnow, Susan Sarandon, Marlon Brando, Winston Ntshona, Thoko Ntshinga, Susannah Harker, Rowan Elmes. Disappointing film about South African apartheid, set in 1976, with Sutherland as a schoolteacher who slowly awakens to the appalling reality of how blacks are treated in his country. Crucially important subject matter is unfortunately presented in the context of a story that's contrived and dramatically hollow. Brando is magnetic (if somewhat askew) in a showy supporting role as an outspoken barrister. [R] ▼

D2: The Mighty Ducks (1994) C-107m.

 D: Sam Weisman. Emilio Estevez, Kathryn Erbe, Michael Tucker, Jan Rubes, Carsten Norgaard, Maria Ellingsen, Joshua Jackson, Elden Ryan Ratliff (Hansen), Shaun Weiss, Matt Doherty. Having led his rag-tag hockey team to surprise victory in THE MIGHTY DUCKS, Estevez now gets a chance to coach Team USA (incorporating his former Ducks) in the Junior Goodwill Games—and make a bundle of money as a potential celebrity. The kind of film that gives the word "contrivance" a bad name: a Disney movie with mixed messages about competition, commercialism, puberty, and sportsmanship. Kids may like it anyway. Sports stars ranging from Wayne Gretzky to Kareem Abdul Jabbar make cameo appearances. [PG] ▼

D3: The Mighty Ducks (1996) C-104m.

 D: Robert Lieberman. Emilio Estevez, Jeffrey Nordling, Joshua Jackson, David Selby, Heidi Kling, Joss Ackland, Elden Ryan Ratliff (Hansen), Shaun Weiss, Vincent A. Larusso, Matt Doherty, Colombe Jacobsen, Aaron Lohr. Those adolescent hockey players have won scholarships to a fancy private school, where they have a new, no-nonsense coach (Nordling) and find themselves outsiders in a snooty varsity league. Oh yes—and Charlie (Jackson) has a girlfriend. The Ducks franchise has run out of steam. [PG] ▼

Du Barry Was a Lady (1943) C-101m.

 D: Roy Del Ruth. Red Skelton, Lucille Ball, Gene Kelly, Virginia O'Brien, Rags Ragland, Zero Mostel, Donald Meek, George Givot, Louise Beavers, Tommy Dorsey and His Orchestra. Nightclub worker Skelton pines for beautiful singing star Ball; when he swallows a Mickey Finn, he dreams he's Louis XV, and has to contend with the prickly Madame Du Barry (Ball). Colorful nonsense, missing most of the songs from Cole Porter's Broadway score, though "Friendship" is used as the finale. Opens like a vaudeville show, with beautiful chorines and specialty acts, including young Mostel, and Dorsey's band—with Buddy Rich on drums—doing a sensational "Well, Git It." They turn up later in powdered wigs, as do The Pied Pipers, with Dick Haymes and Jo Stafford. Lana Turner has a bit part. ▼

Duchess, The (2008-British) C-105m. ½ D: Saul Dibb. Keira Knightley, Ralph Fiennes, Charlotte Rampling, Dominic Cooper, Hayley Atwell, Simon McBurney, Aidan McArdle, Michael Medwin. Knightley is well cast as Georgiana Spencer, who marries well in the late 1700s and becomes the Duchess of Devonshire. However, she soon discovers that her husband has little interest in her beyond her ability to give him an heir. Vivid, well-appointed yet somewhat heavy-handed adaptation of Amanda Foreman's best-selling book Georgiana: Duchess of Devonshire about the real-life socialite whose plight bears some striking parallels to those that faced her descendant Princess Diana. Knightley and especially Fiennes are excellent but the film lacks a certain spark. Michael O'Connor earned an Oscar for Costume Design. Panavision. [PG-13]▶

Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox, The (1976) C-103m. *½ D: Melvin Frank. George Segal, Goldie Hawn, Conrad Janis, Thayer David, Roy Jensen, Bob Hoy, Richard Farnsworth. Dumb comedy about card-sharp Segal and dance-hall cutie Hawn teaming up in the Old West. Occasional laughs, inappropriate song interludes. Panavision. [PG]▶●●

Duchess of Langeais, The (2007-French-Italian) C-138m.  D: Jacques Rivette. Jeanne Balibar, Guillaume Depardieu, Michel Piccoli, Bulle Ogier, Barbet Schroeder. In post-Napoleonic France, an intense relationship unfolds as a glum, wounded general (Depardieu) is smitten with a flirtatious, married socialite (Balibar). What follows is like a moral chess match between love and religion, well played by the two leads. Master filmmaker Rivette uses occasional intertitles—some taken from the Honoré de Balzac source material—to play up the ironies and emotions. Even at this length, one of the more accessible Rivette films. Original title: NE TOUCHEZ PAS LA HACHE (DON'T TOUCH THE AXE).

Duck Season (2004-Mexican) 85m.  D: Fernando Eimbcke. Enrique Arreola, Diego Cataño, Daniel Miranda, Danny Perea. Disarmingly offbeat comedy set in a high-rise apartment building, where two 14-year-old boys spend a day together, joined by a girl from next door who borrows their oven and a pizza delivery guy, all of whom are affected by a power blackout. Deadpan vignettes and character observations make this a winner, so long as the viewer adjusts to its pace and sensibility. Screenplay by first-time director Eimbcke. [R]▶

Duck Soup (1933) 70m. * D: Leo McCarey. Groucho, Harpo, Chico, Zeppo Marx, Margaret Dumont, Louis Calhern, Raquel Torres, Edgar Kennedy, Leonid Kinskey, Charles Middleton. The Marx Brothers' most sustained bit of insanity, a flop when first released, but now considered a satiric masterpiece. In postage-stamp-sized Freedonia,

Prime Minister Rufus T. Firefly (Groucho) declares war on neighboring Sylvania just for the hell of it. Enough gags for five movies, but our favorite is still the mirror sequence, Zeppo's swan song with his brothers.▶●●

DuckTales: The Movie—Treasure of the Lost Lamp (1990) C-73m. *½ D: Bob Hathcock. Voices of Alan Young, Christopher Lloyd, Rip Taylor, June Foray, Chuck McCann, Richard Libertini, Russi Taylor. Disney's premier "Movietoon" feature falls somewhere between traditional studio standards and Saturday morning gruel. Story centers on an archeological trek for a genie's lamp that can, among other things, make ice cream fall from the sky, pitting Uncle Scrooge McDuck against the evil Merlock. Mild vehicle for Huey, Dewey, Louie, and company. [G]▶●●

Duck, You Sucker (1972-Italian) C-158m.  D: Sergio Leone. Rod Steiger, James Coburn, Romolo Valli, Maria Monti. Big, sprawling story of Mexican revolution, and how peasant thief Steiger gets talked into taking sides by Irish explosives expert Coburn. Tremendous action sequences; Leone's wry touches and ultra-weird Ennio Morricone score make it worthwhile diversion. Aka A FISTFUL OF DYNAMITE; originally intended to be called ONCE UPON A TIME DURING THE REVOLUTION. Restored to complete Italian running time in 2006; other prints run 121m. and 138m. Techniscope. [PG]▶●●

Dudes (1987) C-90m. BOMB D: Penelope Spheeris. Jon Cryer, Daniel Roebuck, Flea, Lee Ving, Catherine Mary Stewart. Incomprehensible, idiotic account of a trio of N.Y.C. punk rockers, and their fate when harassed by a gang of redneck killers in the Southwest. Thoroughly repugnant. [R]▶●●

Dude, Where's My Car? (2000) C-83m. BOMB D: Danny Leiner. Ashton Kutcher, Seann William Scott, Kristy Swanson, Jennifer Garner, Marla Sokoloff, Charlie O'Connell, David Herman, Andy Dick. Witless comedy about two stoner pals (Kutcher, Scott) who attempt to piece together the events of the previous evening. Only for those who think of the title as the height of comic repartee. Brent Spiner appears unbilled. [PG-13]▶●

Bibi Andersson, Dennis Weaver, Bill Travers, William Redfield, John Crawford, John Hubbard, John Hoyt. Aging Indians vs. Cavalry formula comes alive in this exciting Western; offbeat casting with tight direction. Some may find it too violent, but a must for action and Western fans. Look for Richard Farnsworth as a wagon driver. ▼●●

Duel at Silver Creek, The (1952) C-77m. *½ D: Don Siegel. Audie Murphy, Stephen McNally, Faith Domergue, Susan Cabot, Gerald Mohr, Lee Marvin. Ponderous oater has Murphy as the "Silver Kid" helping marshal fight town criminals. ▼●

Duel in the Sun (1946) C-130m.  D: King Vidor. Jennifer Jones, Joseph Cotten, Gregory Peck, Lionel Barrymore, Lillian Gish, Herbert Marshall, Walter Huston, Butterfly McQueen, Charles Bickford, Tilly Losch, Harry Carey. Producer-writer David O. Selznick's ambitious attempt to duplicate success of GONE WITH THE WIND: big, brawling, engrossing, often stupid sex-Western, with half-breed Jones caught between brothers Peck and Cotten. Great in Technicolor, with some memorable scenes and an unexpectedly bizarre finale. From the novel by Niven Busch. Superb score by Dimitri Tiomkin. ▼●●

Duelliists, The (1977-British) C-101m.  D: Ridley Scott. Keith Carradine, Harvey Keitel, Edward Fox, Cristina Raines, Robert Stephens, Diana Quick, Tom Conti, Albert Finney, Peter Postlethwaite. Competent screen version of Joseph Conrad's The Duel concerns long-running feud between French officers Carradine and Keitel during the Napoleonic wars. Supporting players are more convincing than two leads; film is among most staggeringly beautiful of its time. Scott's first feature. [PG] ▼●●

Duel of Champions (1961-Italian) C-105m.  D: Ferdinando Baldi. Alan Ladd, Franca Bettoja, Franco Fabrizi, Robert Keith, Luciano Marin. Stodgy epic set in ancient Rome with bored-looking Ladd the Roman leader who challenges forces of Alba. Totalscope. ▼●

Duel of the Titans (1961-Italian) C-88m.  D: Sergio Corbucci. Steve Reeves, Gordon Scott, Virna Lisi, Massimo Girotti. Reeves is Romulus and Scott is Remus in this fictional account of justice overcoming tyranny in ancient Rome. CinemaScope. ▼

Duet for One (1986) C-107m. ½ D: Andrei Konchalovsky. Julie Andrews, Alan

Bates, Max von Sydow, Rupert Everett, Margaret Courtenay, Cathryn Harrison, Macha Meril, Liam Neeson. World-class violinist Andrews is stricken with multiple sclerosis, and her comfortable, rewarding life is shattered. Tom Kempinski based his two-character play (virtuoso and psychiatrist) on a real-life cellist, but for film it was opened up and, in the process, diluted. Husband Bates, therapist von Sydow, and rebellious protégé Everett are fine, but it's Andrews' gutsy performance that breathes life into the film. Made in England. [R] ▼

Duets (2000) C-112m. *½ D: Bruce Paltrow. Maria Bello, Andre Braugher, Paul Giamatti, Huey Lewis, Gwyneth Paltrow, Scott Speedman, Angie Dickinson, Marian Seldes, Lochlyn Munro. Three nobodies are paired with optimistic spiritual guides in this road-trip odyssey, culminating at an Omaha karaoke contest. Press notes claim "the funny, raucous world of karaoke bars and chain hotels" is revealed; we must have missed that part. Director Paltrow is Gwyneth's father. One of the karaoke performers is a young Michael Bubl . [R] ▼●

Duffy (1968-U.S.-British) C-101m. *½ D: Robert Parrish. James Coburn, James Mason, James Fox, Susannah York, John Alderton. Scummy crime comedy about two half-brothers who decide to rob their father of bank notes he is transporting by ship. A waste of everyone's talents and lovely location photography. [M/PG]

Dukes of Hazzard, The (2005) C-105m. BOMB D: Jay Chandrasekhar. Johnny Knoxville, Seann William Scott, Jessica Simpson, Burt Reynolds, Willie Nelson, Lynda Carter, Joe Don Baker, M. C. Gainey, David Koehn, Kevin Heffernan, James Roday. Just as in the 1979-85 TV series, good ole boys drive and shoot, drink and deliver moonshine, spit and fight and chase women. A smutty, slutty, laughless, nearly plotless flat tire about a road race and a land grab in Georgia (though filmed in Louisiana). Kindly unfasten your seat belts. Unrated version is two minutes longer. Followed by a direct-to-video prequel. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

benefits from solid work by the stars. Original running time: 98m. [PG]▼

Duma (2005) C-100m.  D: Carroll Ballard. Alex Michaletos, Eamonn Walker, Campbell Scott, Hope Davis. Beautifully filmed story of a South African boy who raises an orphaned cheetah from the time it's a cub, then has to face the inevitable when it's time to return the animal to the wild. His chore becomes a journey of growth and self-discovery, with an unlikely adult ally at his side. First-rate family entertainment from the director of THE BLACK STALLION, inspired by a true story and a book that set it down in print. [PG]●

Dumb & Dumber (1994) C-106m.  D: Peter Farrelly. Jim Carrey, Jeff Daniels, Lauren Holly, Teri Garr, Karen Duffy, Mike Starr, Charles Rocket, Victoria Rowell, Cam Neely. No, dumbest: a self-proclaimed no-brainer about two idiot pals who drive cross-country to Aspen to return a briefcase which (unbeknownst to them) contains a fortune in ransom money. Cheesy, gross-out comedy has its moments here and there, and enthusiastic performances by the two stars, who deserve a better script than this. Followed by a prequel and an animated TV series. Unrated version runs 113m. [PG-13] ▼●●

Dumb and Dumberer: When Harry Met Lloyd (2003) C-85m. BOMB D: Troy Miller. Eric Christian Olsen, Derek Richardson, Rachel Nichols, Cheri Oteri, Luis Guzmán, Elden Henson, William Lee Scott, Mimi Rogers, Eugene Levy, Lin Shaye, Shia LaBeouf, Julia Duffy. Desperate prequel to the 1994 comedy hit shows the two oafish friends meeting up in high school and becoming pawns in their slimy principal's scheme to get funding for a special education class—and abscond with the funds. The actors playing younger versions of Jim Carrey and Jeff Daniels do a good job, but this movie is appallingly unfunny; a particular waste of Levy and Oteri's comedy talents. [PG-13] ▼●

Dummy (2003) C-90m. ½ D: Greg Pritikin. Adrien Brody, Milla Jovovich, Illeana Douglas, Vera Farmiga, Jessica Walter, Ron Leibman, Jared Harris, Mirabella Pisani. Slight though occasionally ingratiating comedy about a suburban schnook (Brody), the product of a stereotypically dysfunctional family, who decides to take up ventriloquism; his new

Dunera Boys, The (1985-Australian) C-150m. ½ D: Sam Lewin. Joseph Spano, Bob Hoskins, Joseph Furst, John Meillon, Warren Mitchell, Mary-Anne Fahey, Simon Chilvers, Steven Vidler, Moshe Kedem. Low-key, fact-based drama of Jewish refugees in England at the outset of WW2 who, because of their nationalities, are suspected of being Nazi spies and exiled to a POW camp in Australia. Hoskins plays a loutish fishmonger who's as English as Winston Churchill, but somehow is deported with the others. Fascinating subject matter, but film is overlong and uneven. Made for Australian television. ▼●

Dungeonmaster, The (1985) C-73m. *½ D: Rosemarie Turko, John Buechler, Charles Band, David Allen, Steve Ford, Peter Manogian, Ted Nicolaou. Jeffrey Byron, Richard Moll, Leslie Wing. It took seven—count 'em, seven—directors to make this short, sour chronicle of a girl held hostage by a villain. Her savior (atrociously played by Byron) must overcome seven challenges. You have only one: to sit through this. [PG-13] ▼●

Dungeons & Dragons (2000-U.S.-Czech) C-107m. *½ D: Courtney Solomon. Jeremy Irons, Justin Whalin, Marlon Wayans, Zoe McLellan, Thora Birch, Bruce Payne, Kristen Wilson, Richard O'Brien, Tom Baker. In a sword-and-sorcery fantasy world, three young heroes opposed by evil sorcerer Irons and his henchman Payne try to obtain powerful talismans to help threatened princess Birch. Irons is spectacularly hammy, the effects highly variable, the writing and direction amateurish. Based on the game, whose fans are the most likely audience for this lavish but empty movie. Lots of dragons, though. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [PG-13] ▼●

Jackson, Lionel Jeffries. Near-epic dramatization of the rescue by the Royal Navy and small civilian craft of 300,000 British soldiers trapped on the French beach of the title in 1940. One of the last films of the famed Ealing studios. Very realistic, with a fine cast and good direction. Original British length: 135m. Metroscope.

Dunston Checks In (1996) C-88m. ½ D: Ken Kwapis. Jason Alexander, Faye Dunaway, Eric Lloyd, Rupert Everett, Graham Sack, Paul Reubens, Glenn Shadix, Nathan Davis, Jennifer Bassey. Easy-to-take kids' comedy about the sons of a hard-working hotel manager who discover that an orangutan has been sneaked into the establishment by a crafty thief. Alexander is excellent, the kids are appealing, the orangutan is just right, Everett does a Terry-Thomas homage, Dunaway goes slapstick, and everyone has a good time, including the audience. [PG]▼●●

Dunwich Horror, The (1970) C-90m. ½ D: Daniel Haller. Sandra Dee, Dean Stockwell, Ed Begley, Sam Jaffe, Lloyd Bohner, Joanna Moore, Talia Coppola (Shire). Adaptation of H. P. Lovecraft's story about warlock Stockwell's sinister plans for girlfriend Dee. Often effective, but ending ruins the whole film. [M]▼●●

Duplex (2003) C-89m. *½ D: Danny DeVito. Ben Stiller, Drew Barrymore, Eileen Essell, Harvey Fierstein, Justin Theroux, James Remar, Robert Wisdom, Swoosie Kurtz, Wallace Shawn, Maya Rudolph, Amber Valletta, Tracey Walter. Young couple purchases a Brooklyn brownstone as their dream house, but the elderly tenant upstairs, who comes along as part of the deal, makes their life a living hell. A comedy about pain, destruction, and nastiness is standard DeVito fare by now, but it's hard to watch such likable stars caught in this morass. Unbearable. [PG-13]▼

Duplicity (2009) C-125m. ½ D: Tony Gilroy. Julia Roberts, Clive Owen, Tom Wilkinson, Paul Giamatti, Tom McCarthy, Denis O'Hare, Kathleen Chalfant, Wayne Duvall, Carrie Preston, Oleg Stefan, Ulrich Thomsen. High-toned hybrid of romantic comedy and espionage yarn with Roberts and Owen as sexually charged spies who wind up working for cutthroat rival industrialists Wilkinson and Giamatti in N.Y.C. It isn't hard to recognize this as the work of the same writer-director who brought us MICHAEL CLAYTON, though his complicated flashback/flash-forward structure will keep you on your toes. The stars' chemistry—and a strong supporting cast—trumps the realization that the movie is really one long shaggy-dog joke. Panavision. [PG-13]

Dust (1985-French-Belgian) C-88m. ½ D: Marion Hansel. Jane Birkin, Trevor Howard, John Matshikiza, Nadine Uwampa, Lourdes Christina Sayo, Rene Diaz. Birkin gives a fine performance as an unmarried woman, in need of love and affection, who murders her arrogant father (Howard) after he seduces the wife of his farm's black foreman. An intense, rewarding portrayal of isolation, oppression, and degradation.▼

Dust Be My Destiny (1939) 88m. ½ D: Lewis Seiler. John Garfield, Priscilla Lane, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, John Litel, Billy Halop, Henry Armetta, Stanley Ridges, Bobby Jordan, Charley Grapewin. Garfield is ideally cast as an alienated drifter who finds himself in jail, where he falls for vicious prison foreman's stepdaughter (Lane). The stars rise above their less-than-original material.●

Dust Devil (1993-British-French) C-87m.  D: Richard Stanley. Robert Burke, Chelsea Field, Zakes Mokae, John Matshikiza, Rufus Swart, William Hootkins, Marianne Sägebrecth. In Africa's Namibia Desert, evil spirit Burke, trapped in human form, must kill to enter a spiritual realm; he meets Field, fleeing an unhappy marriage, and is pursued by policeman Mokae. Interesting premise, good acting partly offset lethargic pace, pretentious approach. [R]▼●●

Dusty (1982-Australian) C-88m.  D: John Richardson. Bill Kerr, Noel Trevarthen, Carol Burns, Nicholas Holland, John Stanton, Kate Edwards. Subtle, touching little film about a dingo (wild dog of the bush), captured while a puppy and eventually raised by an old man (Kerr). Adults will enjoy it as much as kids.▼

Dusty and Sweets McGee (1971) C-95m. ½ D: Floyd Mutrux. Unconventional, no-holds-barred docudrama detailing day-to-day life of various heroin addicts in Los Angeles area. [R]●

Dutch (1991) C-105m. ½ D: Peter Faiman. Ed O'Neill, Ethan Randall (Embry), JoBeth Williams, Christopher McDonald, Ari Meyers, E. G. Daily, Kathleen Freeman. Yet another warm-hearted concoction from the John Hughes assembly line, in which a stuck-up rich kid learns all about life when he travels home for Thanksgiving with his mother's blue-collar boyfriend, Dutch. Some choice, almost Chaplinesque moments (particularly one terrific scene in a homeless shelter) and appealing performances by O'Neill and Randall can't make us forget that we've seen this formula many times before. [PG-13]▼●●

Dutchman (1966-British) 55m. ½ D: Anthony Harvey. Shirley Knight, Al Freeman, Jr. Two-character allegory, based on LeRoi Jones's play, of confrontation between sadistic white trollop Knight and naive black Freeman in a subway car. Tense and well acted, but contrived.▼●

D-War SEE: Dragon Wars

Dying Gaul, The (2005) C-101m. ½ D: Craig Lucas. Patricia Clarkson, Campbell Scott, Peter Sarsgaard, Ryan Miller, Robin Bartlett, Linda Emond, Jason-Shane Scott. Grieving writer of an autobiographical screenplay becomes erotically entangled with a slick producer, who offers him one million dollars to produce the project as long as he makes the gay protagonists straight. Meanwhile, he becomes emotionally entangled with the producer's lonely wife, a former screenwriter turned stay-at-home mom. Twists, tragedies, and fine performances mark this intelligent but dense character study. Directorial debut for playwright Lucas (Longtime Companion, Prelude to a Kiss). [R] D

Dying Young (1991) C-105m. ½ D: Joel Schumacher. Julia Roberts, Campbell Scott, Vincent D'Onofrio, Colleen Dewhurst, David Selby, Ellen Burstyn. Aimless young woman answers a classified ad and becomes nurse/companion to a 28-year-old poor-little-rich-boy who's suffering from leukemia; needless to say, they fall in love. As vehicle for Roberts' charms, it works; as love story it has its moments; but as a tearjerker it never really delivers, wandering toward an inconclusive (and unsatisfying) finale. Scott shares a few scenes with his real-life mother, Dewhurst. [R] **▼●●

Dynamite (1929) 129m.  D: Cecil B. DeMille. Conrad Nagel, Kay Johnson, Charles Bickford, Julia Faye, Joel McCrea. Enough plot for seven films in this silly but fascinating early talkie; aristocratic Johnson marries miner Bickford, who's about to be executed, to gain inheritance... then Bickford is cleared. Typical DeMille entertainment.

Dynamite Chicken (1971) C/B&W-76m.  D: Ernie Pintoff. Richard Pryor, John Lennon, Yoko Ono, Sha Na Na, Ace Trucking Company, Joan Baez, Ron Carey, Andy Warhol, Paul Krassner, Leonard Cohen, Malcolm X, many others. Odd, dated pastiche of songs, skits, television commercial parodies and old movie clips, filmed when nudity and profanity on celluloid were still shocking. Worth a look alone for Pryor. [R] **▼

DysFunKtional Family (2003) C-89m.  D: George Gallo. Raucous, raunchy combination concert film—documentary spotlighting Eddie Griffin, actor/stand-up comic and wannabe Richard Pryor; he performs on-stage and is seen in his Kansas City, Missouri, hometown, with his real-life family members. The humor is blunt and vulgar; some will find it racist, chauvinistic, and homophobic, while others will think it hilarious. Most interesting when Griffin recounts his childhood and his family members' impact on his life. [R] **▼

Each Dawn I Die (1939) 92m.  D: William Keighley. James Cagney, George Raft, George Bancroft, Jane Bryan, Maxie Rosenbloom, Stanley Ridges, Louis Jean Heydt, Abner Biberman, John Wray, Victor Jory, Thurston Hall. Reporter Cagney is framed, sent to prison, where he meets tough-guy Raft. Good performances all around—Cagney hits a white-hot peak as the embittered, stir-crazy fall guy—but last half of film becomes outrageously improbable. Music score by Max Steiner. **▼●●

Eagle and the Hawk, The (1933) 68m. ½ D: Stuart Walker. Fredric March, Cary Grant, Jack Oakie, Carole Lombard, Guy Standing, Douglas Scott. Well-produced antiwar film with reluctant hero March, bullying gunner-observer Grant, everyone's friend Oakie, sympathetic society girl Lombard. Sobering John Monk Saunders story is still timely. Mitchell Leisen, credited as "associate director," reportedly directed most of the film. Originally 72m. **▼

Eagle and the Hawk, The (1950) C-104m. ½ D: Lewis R. Foster. John Payne, Rhonda Fleming, Dennis O'Keefe, Thomas Gomez, Fred Clark. Contrived actioner set in 1860s Mexico-Texas with O'Keefe and Payne U.S. law enforcers stifling coup to make Maximilian ruler of Mexico; Fleming is fetching love interest.

Eagle Eye (2008) C-117m.  D: D. J. Caruso. Shia LaBeouf, Michelle Monaghan, Billy Bob Thornton, Rosario Dawson, Michael Chiklis, Anthony Mackie, Ethan Embry, Anthony Azizi, William Sadler, Lynn Cohen, Bill Smirtovich, Cameron Boyce, Marc Singer. LaBeouf is a college dropout mistaken for a terrorist by a U.S. government overly fond of surveillance. Forced to become a fugitive, he teams (on the run, natch) with earnest single mom Monaghan. Frequently preposterous action-thriller plays like DISTURBIA on steroids. Instead of an updated REAR WINDOW, film seems to have been inspired by numerous other Hitchcock plots (check out that climax), beefed up with gadgets galore. Tech-heads and LaBeouf buffs may enjoy it. Super 35. [PG-13] D

Eagle Has Landed, The (1977) C-123m.  D: John Sturges. Michael Caine, Donald Sutherland, Robert Duvall, Jenny Agutter, Donald Pleasence, Anthony Quayle, Jean Marsh, Sven-Bertil Taube, John Standing, Judy Geeson, Treat Williams, Larry Hagman, Jeff Conaway. Action-packed wartime adventure taken from fanciful Jack Higgins best-seller about Nazi plot to kidnap Winston Churchill. Hardly a dull moment, thanks to solid cast and lively, twist-laden story. Original running time in England was 134m. Panavision. [PG] **▼

Eagle's Wing (1979-British) C-111m. *½ D: Anthony Harvey. Martin Sheen, Sam Waterston, Caroline Langrishe, Harvey

Keitel, Stephane Audran, John Castle, Jorge Luke. God never intended penguins to fly or the British to make Westerns. Dreary, artsy glop entangling half a dozen plots cribbed from other, better oaters; principal one involves seesawing between renegade Indian Waterston and trapper Sheen for possession of magnificent white stallion. Billy Williams' lush cinematography doesn't help. Most U.S. prints run 98m. Panavision. [PG]▼

Eagle vs. Shark (2007-New Zealand) C-87m. ½ D: Taika Waititi. Loren Horsley, Jemaine Clement, Brian Sergent, Rachel House, Craig Hall, Joel Tobeck. A celebration of life's oddballs, as mousy Lily (Horsley, who helped develop the story based on a character she created for the stage) sets her sights on self-styled macho man Jarrod (Clement), who lives only to exact revenge on the classmate who used to beat him up in high school. This likable absurdist comedy gives off the same vibe as NAPOLEON DYNAMITE, but seems overly self-conscious. [R]●

Early Summer (1951-Japanese) 125m.  D: Yasujiro Ozu. Setsuko Hara, Chishu Ryu, Kuniko Miyake, Chikage Awashima, Chiyeko Higashiyama. Stirring tale of a woman (Hara) who, at 28, is aging by her society's standards. She resides with her elderly parents, and must deal with their pressure to marry the man of their choice. A sensitively rendered film about basic human emotions, made by a master filmmaker.▼●●

Earrings of Madame de . . . , The (1953-French-Italian) 105m. * D: Max Ophuls. Charles Boyer, Danielle Darrieux, Vittorio De Sica, Jean Debucourt, Lia de Léa. Captivating classic detailing the events that unravel after fickle Darrieux pawns the earrings presented her by husband Boyer. A knowing look at the effect of living a shallow, meaningless life. Masterfully acted and directed, with dazzling tracking shots. Screenplay by Marcel Achard, Ophuls, and Annette Wademant, from the novel by Louise de Vilmorin. Aka DIAMOND EARRINGS.▼●●

Earth (1930-Russian) 90m. * D: Alexander Dovzhenko. Semyon Svashenko, Stepan Shkurat, Mikola Nademsky, Yelena Maximova. Lyrical, deservedly famous classic about collective farming in the Ukraine, with peasants opposing a landowner and the arrival of a tractor symbolizing the transformation of Soviet society. This ode to the wonders of nature is loaded with beautiful imagery. Long a staple on all-time-best film lists.▼●

Earth (2007-U.S.-British-German) C-96m.  D: Alastair Fothergill, Mark Linfield. Narrated by James Earl Jones. Eye-filling look at the natural wonders of our planet, with a particular emphasis on the yearlong struggles of three species: a polar bear father trying to find food for his mate and her cubs, a great white whale and her calf making a 4,000-mile migration, and an elephant mother and child on an exhausting journey overland in search of water. Adapted from the acclaimed BBC/Discovery Channel TV series Planet Earth, with some footage never used in the show. U.S. version produced by Disney is aimed at family audiences with friendly, colloquial narration by Jones, a new score, and an upbeat ending. British version is narrated by Patrick Stewart. [G]

Earthbound (1981) C-94m. *½ D: James L. Conway. Burl Ives, Christopher Connelly, Meredith MacRae, Joseph Campanella, Todd Porter, Marc Gilpin, Elissa Leeds, John Schuck, Stuart Pankin. Average family from outer space lands in Middle America due to a faulty flying saucer. Will dastardly government official Campanella shoot them? Trite, dumb, idiotic. [PG]

Earth Dies Screaming, The (1964-British) 62m. ½ D: Terence Fisher. Willard Parker, Virginia Field, Dennis Price, Vanda Godsell. Grim thriller with invaders taking over remote village; packs great initial suspense but labors.●

Earth Girls Are Easy (1989) C-100m. ½ D: Julien Temple. Geena Davis, Jeff Goldblum, Jim Carrey, Damon Wayans, Julie Brown, Michael McKean, Charles Rocket, Larry Linville, Rick Overton, Angelyne. Infectiously goofy musical comedy about aliens landing in the San Fernando Valley and being ushered into materialistic Southern California life by a ditsy manicurist. Not enough substance to sustain a feature film, but there are some good laughs, and an endearing performance by Davis. Costar Brown (who sings airhead anthem "'Cause I'm a Blonde") also cowrote the movie. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Earthling, The (1980-Australian) C-102m. ½ D: Peter Collinson. William Holden, Ricky Schroder, Jack Thompson, Olivia Hamnett, Alwyn Kurts. Holden, terminally ill, teaches Schroder, orphaned and lost, how to survive in the bush country. OK drama features much nature footage and will appeal mainly to kids. Originally released at 97m.,

Earthquake (1974) C-129m. BOMB D: Mark Robson. Charlton Heston, Ava Gardner, George Kennedy, Genevieve Bujold, Richard Roundtree, Lorne Greene, Barry Sullivan, Marjoe Gortner, Lloyd Nolan, Victoria Principal, Walter Matuschansky (Walter Matthau), Gabriel Dell, Pedro Armendariz, Jr., Lloyd Gough, John Randolph, Donald Moffat. Title tells the story in hackneyed disaster epic originally released in Sensurround. Marjoe as a sex deviate and Gardner as Lorne Greene's daughter tie for film's top casting honors. Additional footage was shot for inclusion in network showings. Won Oscar for Sound, plus special achievement for Visual Effects and citations for the development of Sensurround. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Earth vs. the Flying Saucers (1956) 82m.  D: Fred F. Sears. Hugh Marlowe, Joan Taylor, Donald Curtis, Morris Ankrum, Tom Browne Henry; voice of Paul Frees. Matter-of-fact presentation gives tremendous boost to familiar storyline (alien invaders order us to surrender peaceably—or else). Literate dialogue, subdued performances, and solid Ray Harryhausen effects make this a winner that belies its B origins nearly every step of the way. Also available in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Earth vs the Spider (1958) 73m.  D: Bert I. Gordon. Ed Kemmer, June Kenny, Gene Persson, Gene Roth, Hal Torey, Sally Fraser, June Jocelyn, Troy Patterson, Hank Patterson. A spider bigger than a bus is found in a cave; when it's apparently killed, it's put on display in a high school gym—where it is revived by the sounds of rock 'n roll! Teenager-oriented Bert I. Gordon movie is more watchable than most of his giant-thing-on-the-loose films. Aka THE SPIDER. Remade in name only in 2001. ▼●

Easiest Way, The (1931) 74m. ½ D: Jack Conway. Constance Bennett, Adolphe Menjou, Robert Montgomery, Marjorie Rambeau, Anita Page, Clark Gable, Hedda Hopper. Bennett rises from dire poverty to a life of luxury after becoming the mistress of advertising mogul Menjou, but finds heartbreak when she falls for reporter Montgomery. Watered-down adaptation of notorious play about high-priced call girls starts out great, then turns into a standard romantic triangle melodrama to satisfy the Hays Office. Gable has a small but strong role in his first film as an MGM contract player.

Eastern Promises (2007-Canadian-British) C-100m.  D: David Cronenberg. Viggo Mortensen, Naomi Watts, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Vincent Cassel, Sinéad Cusack, Jerzy Skolimowski, Sarah-Jeanne Labrosse, Mike Sarne. London hospital midwife Watts discovers the diary of an abandoned, pregnant teenager who dies in childbirth, and determines to locate the girl's family. This leads her into a shady, ruthless world of Russian mobsters operating out of Mueller-Stahl's restaurant, where she becomes intrigued by enigmatic chauffeur-enforcer Mortensen. Intelligent thriller set against a rich tableau, courtesy of screenwriter Steven Knight (DIRTY PRETTY THINGS). Mortensen is superb and has one unforgettable scene in a Turkish bathroom. [R]●

Easter Parade (1948) C-103m. ½ D: Charles Walters. Judy Garland, Fred Astaire, Peter Lawford, Ann Miller, Jules Munshin. Delightful Irving Berlin musical about Astaire trying to forget ex-dance partner Miller while rising to stardom with Garland. Too good to watch just at Eastertime. Musical highlights include Astaire's solo "Steppin' Out With My Baby," Miller's "Shaking the Blues Away," Fred and Judy's "A Couple of Swells," and the Fifth Avenue finale with Berlin's title song. Oscar winner for musical scoring (Johnny Green and Roger Edens). Story by Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett; they also scripted with Sidney Sheldon. ▼●●

East is East (1999-British) C-96m.  D: Damien O'Donnell. Om Puri, Linda Bassett, Jordan Routledge, Archie Panjabi, Emil Marwa, Chris Bisson, Lesley Nicol, Gary Damer, Emma Rydal, Ruth Jones, John Bardon. Piquant look at a cross-cultural family in 1970s London. Pakistani immigrant George (Puri) has lived there for 25 years; his wife is English, and their seven children have been raised as Brits, but he clings to his old-world ways and (rather hypocritically) expects them to conform to Pakistani customs. Keenly observed social comedy-drama never betrays its stage origins; Ayub Khan-Din scripted from his play. [R]▼

East of Eden (1955) C-115m. * D: Elia Kazan. James Dean, Julie Harris, Raymond Massey, Jo Van Fleet, Burl Ives, Richard Davalos, Albert Dekker. Emotionally overwhelming adaptation of the John Steinbeck novel about two brothers' rivalry for the love of their father; affects today's generation as much as those who witnessed Dean's starring debut. Van Fleet (in film debut) won Oscar as boys' mother. Screenplay by Paul Osborn. Remade as TV mini-series. CinemaScope. ▼●●

East of Elephant Rock (1977-British) C-92m. BOMB D: Don Boyd. Judi Bowker, John Hurt, Jeremy Kemp, Christopher Cazenove, Anton Rodgers. Inept period drama set in 1948 Malaya; final reel ripped off from W. Somerset Maugham's THE LETTER. Further sabotaged by campy songs on soundtrack as well as opening disclaimer, which invites viewers to "laugh and smile" at the film. Bowker is beautiful, as are Sri Lanka locations. ▼

D: Nathan Juran. Anthony Quayle, Sylvia Sims, Derek Fowlds, Jenny Agutter, Johnny Sekka. British trooper falls for English governess when he leads her and several others to safety from Arabs in 1880s; OK juvenile adventure. Techniscope.

East Side of Heaven (1939) 90m.  D: David Butler. Bing Crosby, Joan Blondell, Mischa Auer, Irene Hervey, C. Aubrey Smith, Baby Sandy. Cute Crosby comedy with songs; Bing becomes guardian of abandoned baby, croons title tune, "Sing a Song of Sunbeams." ▽

East Side Story (1997-German-French) C/B&W-87m. ½ D: Dana Ranga. "Soviet musicals" sounds like an oxymoron, but more than 40 were made behind the Iron Curtain from the early '30s until the late '60s. This documentary doesn't limit itself to clips from the films, but includes interviews with filmmakers, critics, and ordinary moviegoers. Some of the musicals are propaganda featuring deliriously happy workers, but others, especially those directed by Grigori Alexandrov, look so delightful you long to see titles like THE JOLLY FELLOWS and VOLGA VOLGA, Stalin's favorite movie. An absolute must for film buffs. ▽

East Side, West Side (1949) 108m. ½ D: Mervyn LeRoy. Barbara Stanwyck, James Mason, Ava Gardner, Van Heflin, Cyd Charisse, Gale Sondergaard, William Frawley, Nancy Davis (Reagan). Stanwyck and Mason have pivotal roles as chic N.Y.C. society couple with abundant marital woes, stirred up by alluring Gardner and understanding Heflin. Static MGM version of Marcia Davenport's superficial novel. ▽

East-West (1999-French-Russian-Spanish-Bulgarian) C-121m.  D: Régis Wargnier. Sandrine Bonnaire, Oleg Menchikov, Catherine Deneuve, Sergei Bodrov, Jr. A doctor and his French wife join other Russian émigrés who are invited back to their homeland following WW2, but once there, their lives become a nightmare. Fascinating historical subject matter is turned into a turgid soap opera. Deneuve has a small, thankless role as a politically active stage star, but Bonnaire is luminous. [PG-13] ▽

Easy Come, Easy Go (1967) C-95m. *½ D: John Rich. Elvis Presley, Dodie Marshall, Pat Priest, Elsa Lanchester, Frank McHugh, Pat Harrington. Presley's a frogman diving for buried treasure in this hackneyed comedy. Fortunately, he doesn't sing underwater. Yet he does get to perform such classics as "The Love Machine" and "Yoga Is As Yoga Does." ▽

Easy Life, The (1963-Italian) 105m.  D: Dino Risi. Vittorio Gassman, Catherine Spaak, Jean-Louis Trintignant, Luciana Angiolillo. Gassman has proper joie de vivre for playing middle-aged playboy who introduces student Trintignant to life of frolic with tragic results; well played and haunting. ▽

Easy Living (1937) 86m.  D: Mitchell Leisen. Jean Arthur, Edward Arnold, Ray Milland, Franklin Pangborn, William Demarest, Mary Nash, Luis Alberni. Millionaire Arnold throws spoiled-wife's mink out the window; it drops on unsuspecting working girl Arthur. Arnold's son Milland, off making his career, falls in love. The girl: Arthur. Delightful comedy written by Preston Sturges. ▽

Easy Money (1983) C-95m. ½ D: James Signorelli. Rodney Dangerfield, Joe Pesci, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Candy Azzara, Taylor Negron, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Tom Ewell. Working-class slob has one year to give up all his bad habits—drinking, overeating, smoking, gambling—in order to collect big inheritance. Dangerfield's first starring comedy vehicle is pleasant enough—with a refreshing amount of restraint for an '80s comedy. Final gag is right out of W. C. Fields. [R] ▽

Easy Rider (1969) C-94m. ½ D: Dennis Hopper. Peter Fonda, Dennis Hopper, Jack Nicholson, Karen Black, Luke Askew, Luana Anders, Robert Walker, Phil Spector, Toni Basil. Low-budget film of alienated youth nearly ruined Hollywood when every studio tried to duplicate its success. Tale of two cyclists chucking it all and searching for "the real America," while inevitably dated, remains quite worthwhile, highlighted by fine Laszlo Kovacs photography, great rock soundtrack, and Nicholson's star-making performance as boozy lawyer who tags along. Written by Fonda, Hopper, and Terry Southern. [R] ▽

Easy Virtue (1927-British) 89m. ½ D:

Alfred Hitchcock. Isabel Jeans, Franklin Dyall, Eric Bransby Williams, Ian Hunter, Robin Irvine, Violet Farebrother. Jeans suffers nobly as the wife of an alcoholic and the lover of a suicide in this melodramatic silent Hitchcock. Laughable dramatics but imaginatively shot, based on a Noel Coward play. Remade in 2009. ▼●

Easy Virtue (2008-U.S.-British) C-96m. ½ D: Stephan Elliott. Jessica Biel, Colin Firth, Kristin Scott Thomas, Ben Barnes, Kris Marshall, Kimberley Nixon, Katherine Parkinson, Pip Torrens, Christian Brassington, Charlotte Riley. Lively if uneven adaptation of Noel Coward's play about a staid family that's shaken up when the prodigal son (Barnes) brings home a dashing American auto-racing champion (Biel) as his wife. Arch dialogue abounds in this deconstruction of the British class system, but director and coadapter Elliott tries to have it both ways, winking at the audience one moment and asking us to take things seriously the next. Great showcase for Biel, who holds her own amidst a top-notch British cast. Filmed before by Alfred Hitchcock in 1927. Super 35. [PG-13]

Easy Way, The SEE: Room for One More Easy Wheels (1989) C-94m.  D: David O'Malley. Paul Le Mat, Eileen Davidson, Marjorie Bransfield, Jon Menick, Barry Livingston, Mark Holton, Theresa Randle, Danny Hicks, George Plimpton, Ted Raimi, Ben Stein. A gang of good male bikers combats a baby-stealing gang of women bikers in the Midwest. Satirical action comedy is awkwardly directed, but has some good ideas. Writer "Celia Abrams" in the credits is really Sam Raimi. [R] ▼

Eat a Bowl of Tea (1989) C-104m.  D: Wayne Wang. Cora Miao, Russell Wong, Victor Wong, Lau Siu Ming, Eric Tsang Chi Wai. From 1924 until the end of WW2, most Chinese women were not allowed to accompany their menfolk who emigrated to the U.S. This charming but pointed ethnic comedy chronicles what happened when the ban was lifted, as American-born Russell Wong brings Chinese-born bride Miao to N.Y.C. A film that no one else but Wang could have made. [PG-13] ▼●

Eat Drink Man Woman (1994-Taiwan) C-124m.  D: Ang Lee. Sihung Lung, Kuei-Mei Yang, Chien-Lien Wu, Yu-Wen Wang, Winston Chao, Ah-Leh Gua, Sylvia Chang. Director Lee's follow-up to THE WEDDING BANQUET is another charming study of love, family, and tradition, which follows a Taipei master chef (Lung) who has lost his taste buds and has grown apart from his three daughters. The multiple stories and their resolutions are a bit too predictable, but Lee's handling of the action is dexterous and the entire cast is winning. The presentation of food onscreen is, in all senses of the word, delectable, ranking with the dishes of TAMPOPO, BABETTE'S FEAST, and LIKE WATER FOR CHOCOLATE. Lee coscripted as well. Remade in 2001 as TORTILLA SOUP. ▼●

Eaten Alive (1976) C-96m. ½ D: Tobe Hooper. Neville Brand, Mel Ferrer, Carolyn Jones, Marilyn Burns, William Finley, Stuart Whitman, Robert Englund. Ill-fated Hollywood debut feature by TEXAS CHAINSAW director Hooper is a garishly stylized, relentlessly bizarre film about a psychopath (Brand) who has a crocodile living in the front yard of his hotel. Periodically guests who upset the management are fed to this pet. Originally titled DEATH TRAP; aka STARLIGHT SLAUGHTER, LEGEND OF THE BAYOU, and HORROR HOTEL. ▼●

Eating (1990) C-110m.  D: Henry Jaglom. Frances Bergen, Lisa Richards, Nelly Alard, Gwen Welles, Mary Crosby, Marlene Giovi, Marina Gregory, Daphna Kastner, Elizabeth Kemp, Toni Basil. A group of women, attending a birthday party, sit around talking about food and life—in that order. Typically idiosyncratic, low-budget Jaglom outing, but this one really works: the conversation is fascinating and often hilarious. Frances Bergen (Edgar's widow, Candice's mom) is a revelation. ▼

Eating Raoul (1982) C-83m. ½ D: Paul Bartel. Paul Bartel, Mary Woronov, Robert Beltran, Susan Saiger, Buck Henry, Dick Blackburn, Edie McClurg, Ed Begley, Jr., John Paragon, Hamilton Camp. Delicious black comedy about the Blands, a super-square couple who lure wealthy swingers to their apartment and kill them, which both reduces the number of "perverts" and helps finance their dream restaurant. Sags a little here and there, but overall a bright, original, hilarious satire; Paragon has a super bit as a sexshop owner. Directors Joe Dante and John Landis also appear. [R] ▼

Eat My Dust! (1976) C-90m. *½ D: Charles Griffith. Ron Howard, Christopher Norris, Warren Kemmerling, Dave Madden, Rance Howard, Clint Howard, Corbin Bernsen. Nervewracking yarn about two young drivers unable to satisfy passion for speed. Hang on! [PG] ▼

Eat the Peach (1986-Irish) C-95m. ½ D: Peter Ormrod. Stephen Brennan, Eamon Morrissey, Catherine Byrne, Niall Toibin, Joe Lynch, Tony Doyle. Two hard-luck friends in rural Ireland, suddenly unemployed, are inspired by a scene in Elvis Presley's movie ROUSTABOUT and decide to build a "wall of death" (a huge wooden cylinder in which they ride their motorcycles in a circuslike stunt). Can fame and fortune be far behind? Uniquely dour Irish sensibility permeates this uneven but engaging little film about hopes and dreams—even cockeyed ones like these. Director Ormrod and producer John Kelleher based their script on a true story. ▼

Eat the Rich (1987-British) C-88m. BOMB D: Peter Richardson. Noshier Powell, Lanah Pellay, Fiona Richmond, Ronald Allen, Sandra Dorne. Ironically tasteless black comedy about Pellay getting fired from his job in a restaurant, where he later returns leading a band of revolutionaries and begins serving human flesh on the menu. Weird point of view and noisy heavy metal music score by Motorhead. Many pointless cameos by the likes of Paul and Linda McCartney, Bill Wyman, Miranda Richardson and Koo Stark. [R]▼

Ebirah, Horror of the Deep SEE: Godzilla Vs. The Sea Monster

Eboli (1979-Italian) C-120m. ½ D: Francesco Rosi. Gian Maria Volonté, Irene Pappas, Paolo Bonicelli, Alain Cuny, Lea Massari. Slow-moving but rewarding chronicle of anti-Fascist writer/artist Carlo Levi's exile in a small, primitive southern Italian mountain village during the mid-1930s. Stunningly directed, with Volonté perfect as Levi. Video title: CHRIST STOPPED AT EBOLI; most prints with this title run 210m.▼

Echelon Conspiracy (2009) C-105m. ½ D: Greg Marcks. Shane West, Edward Burns, Ving Rhames, Martin Sheen, Yuri Kutsenko, Sergey Gubanov, Steven Elder, Sandra De Sousa, Jonathan Pryce, Greg Donaldson. It may be BOURNE-lite but it's still an entertaining sci-fi spy thriller in which West's insanely smart cell phone sends him all over the world alerting him to big casino winnings, great stock tips, and all the beautiful women he can handle. Soon he is being chased around the globe by agents with high-tech gadgets of their own. This male fantasy is by-the-numbers filmmaking but it's a guilty pleasure with an attractive cast, good enough to pass the time between Bourne and Bond movies. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Echoes (1983) C-89m. ½ D: Arthur Allan Seidelman. Richard Alfieri, Nathalie Nell, Mercedes McCambridge, Ruth Roman, Gale Sondergaard, Mike Kellin, John Spencer. Art student Alfieri becomes obsessed by a dream in which his twin brother, who died before birth, is out to kill him. Intriguing premise, just adequate result. [R]▼

Echoes of a Summer (1976) C-99m.  D: Don Taylor. Richard Harris, Lois Nettleton, Jodie Foster, Geraldine Fitzgerald, William Windom, Brad Savage. Another film in the "disease" genre, as 12-year-old Foster's stolid reaction to impending death inspires those around her. Overwritten tearjerker, but Jodie is always worth a look. [PG]

Echoes of Paradise (1987-Australian) C-92m. *½ D: Phillip Noyce. Wendy Hughes, John Lone, Steven Jacobs, Peta Toppano, Rod Mullinar, Gillian Jones. Frustrated Hughes' husband cheats on her, so while in Thailand she liberates herself by commencing an affair with Balinese dancer Lone. Boring (though attractive) soaper is an unfortunate misfire for talented stars and director. Australian title: SHADOWS OF THE PEACOCK. [R]▼

Echo Park (1986-Austrian-U.S.) C-93m. ½ D: Robert Dornhelm. Susan Dey, Thomas Hulce, Michael Bowen, Christopher Walker, Richard (Cheech) Marin, Cassandra Peterson, Timothy Carey. Small film set in older L.A. neighborhood, which follows the fortunes of three offbeat characters: a single mother/actress, a pizza delivery man/poet, and an Austrian weightlifter/TV hopeful. Bowen (as the latter) scores best in this mildly diverting film; first half is best. [R]▼

Eclipse (1962-French-Italian) 123m.  D: Michelangelo Antonioni. Alain Delon, Monica Vitti, Francisco Rabal, Lilla Brignone, Louis Seigner, Rossana Rory. Obvious but fascinating drama of alienation, Antonioni-style, about a translator (Vitti) who breaks up with her boyfriend and commences an affair with stockbroker Delon. Antonioni strikingly captures Vitti's isolation, and the world (and city of Rome) as filtered through her sensibilities. Third in a trilogy, following L'AVVENTURA and LA NOTTE. Original title: L'ECLISSE.▼

Ecstasy (1933-Czech) 88m. ½ D: Gustav Machaty. Hedy Kiesler (Lamarr), Aribert Mog, Jaromir Rogoz, Leopold Kramer. A young bride discovers her husband is impotent and has an affair. Undistinguished romantic drama was once notorious for scenes of pre-Hollywood Hedy in the buff—and showing her in the throes of sexual passion.▼

Ed (1996) C-94m. *½ D: Bill Couturié. Matt LeBlanc, Jayne Brook, Bill Cobbs, Jack Warden, Charlie Schlatter, Carl Anthony Payne II, Zacharias Ward, Tommy Lasorda. Nervous pitcher getting his big break on a minor-league baseball team becomes roommate with the club's new third baseman: a full-grown chimpanzee. Uninspired vehicle for Friends star LeBlanc (and Hollywood debut for award-winning documentary director Couturié). Strikes out as a warm family comedy, though younger viewers may be amused. [PG]▼

Eddie (1996) C-100m. ½ D: Steve Rash. Whoopi Goldberg, Frank Langella, Dennis Farina, Richard Jenkins, Lisa Ann Walter, John Benjamin Hickey, Troy Beyer. Gimmicky star vehicle for Whoopi finds her going overnight from rabid N.Y. Knicks fan to being coach of the team—when the cynical new owner finds there's great publicity value in it. Despite the far-fetched premise, Whoopi mines laughs—especially early on, before the film begins to take itself too seriously. Look for cameos by various N.Y. celebs and basketball stars. [PG-13]▼

Eddie and the Cruisers (1983) C-92m.  D: Martin Davidson. Tom Berenger, Michael Paré, Joe Pantoliano, Matthew Laurance, Helen Schneider, Ellen Barkin.

Ideal premise—whatever happened to the members of a legendary, innovative rock 'n' roll band of the '60s—buried by terrible script. Paré plays band's iconoclastic leader, who ran his car off a pier; Barkin is TV reporter who tries to piece together story, a la CITIZEN KANE . . . but there's no Rosebud here. Good song score by John Cafferty. Followed by a sequel. [PG]▼●●

Eddie and the Cruisers II: Eddie Lives! (1989) C-103m. BOMB D: Jean-Claude Lord. Michael Paré, Marina Orsini, Bernie Coulson, Matthew Laurance, Michael Rhoades, Anthony Sherwood, Bo Diddley. Now get this: Eddie Wilson did not die in a 1964 New Jersey car accident; he's living incognito in Montreal (where movies can be financed more cheaply) and is only surfacing now because the producers wanted a sequel. Eddie's life signs did not extend to the box office. [PG-13]▼●●

Eddie Macon's Run (1983) C-95m. ½ D: Jeff Kanew. Kirk Douglas, John Schneider, Lee Purcell, Leah Ayres, Lisa Dunsmear, Tom Noonan, John Goodman. Bumpy chase-and-car-crash picture that has wrongly convicted prison escapee Schneider (in his first starring role after attaining Dukes of Hazzard fame) trying to elude his relentless pursuer (Douglas) and make it to Mexico. Based on the novel by James McLendon. Goodman's film debut. [PG]▼●●

Eddie Murphy Raw (1987) C-93m.  D: Robert Townsend. Occasionally uproarious but ultimately dispiriting Murphy concert film, shot at N.Y.C.'s Felt Forum. Best moments: the comic's imitations of Bill Cosby and Richard Pryor giving their opposing views on the crude tone of so much Murphy material. Worst: sexist slurs that too often predominate. Fades in the stretch; there's an amusing fictional prologue, "set" in the Murphys' home two decades ago. [R]▼●●

Eddy Duchin Story, The (1956) C-123m.  D: George Sidney. Tyrone Power, Kim Novak, Victoria Shaw, James Whitmore. Glossy Hollywood bio of pianist-bandleader of 1930s and '40s; Power tries hard (Carmen Cavallaro dubs at keyboard). Tearjerker ending and theme song memorable. CinemaScope.▼●●

Eden (1998) C-106m.  D: Howard Goldberg. Joanna Going, Dylan Walsh, Sean Patrick Flanery, Sean Christensen, Edward O. Blenis, Jr. Original, provocative film set in 1965 about a young mother with MS, married to a prep school professor, who has an out-of-body experience that leads her away from her mundane life toward an exploration of her cosmic self. No mumbo jumbo here, but instead a gripping drama in which the main character forces the people closest to her to examine their own lives. Written by the director. Made in 1996. [R]▼●●

Edge, The (1997) C-117m. ½ D: Lee Tamahori. Anthony Hopkins, Alec Baldwin, Elle Macpherson, Harold Perrineau, L. Q. Jones, Bart the Bear. Quiet billionaire Hopkins accompanies his supermodel wife on a location shoot in Alaska, then finds himself stranded in the wilderness with photographer (Baldwin) and his assistant (Perrineau) when their plane crashes. The bookish rich guy turns out to be a pretty fair survivalist, but meets his match in killer Kodiak bear. Good acting, exciting action sequences, but a stretch of credibility (more in the relationships than in the survival mode) makes this an uneven outing. Written by David Mamet. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Edge of Love, The (2008-British) C-111m. *½ D: John Maybury. Keira Knightley, Sienna Miller, Cillian Murphy, Matthew Rhys. Mawkish soaper, set during WW2, involving an egocentric poet (Rhys) and the two women in his life. One (Miller) is his high-spirited wife; the other (Knightley), a coolly beautiful singer, is a friend from childhood. Into their world comes an idealistic soldier (Murphy) who falls obsessively in love with Knightley. Means to be lyrical and insightful, but the characters are superficially rendered and the actors fail to rise above the material. It seems of minor importance that the poet is Dylan Thomas and the story is "inspired, in part, by actual events." Playwright Sharman Macdonald, Knightley's mother, penned the screenplay.●

Edge of Sanity (1989-British) C-90m. *½ D: Gérard Kikoine. Anthony Perkins, Glynis Barber, Sarah Maur-Thorp, David Lodge, Ben Cole. Grotesque, overwrought travesty on Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (Robert Louis Stevenson is not even credited). Jekyll (Perkins) accidentally discovers the Hyde formula, transforms only very slightly, and becomes Jack the Ripper. Tasteless, pointless, and unpleasant. [R] ▼●●

Edge of the City (1957) 85m. * D: Martin Ritt. John Cassavetes, Sidney Poitier, Jack Warden, Ruby Dee, Kathleen Maguire, Ruth White. Somber, realistic account of N.Y.C. waterfront life and corruption. Friendship of army deserter Cassavetes and dock worker Poitier, both conflicting with union racketeer Warden, provides focus for reflections on integration and integrity in lower-class society. Masterfully acted by all. Ritt's first film as director. Robert Alan Aurthur adapted his own 1955 TV play, A Man Is Ten Feet Tall (which was also film's British title), in which Poitier originated his role. Also shown in computer-colored version. ●

Edge of the World, The (1937-British) 74m. ½ D: Michael Powell. Niall MacGinnis, Belle Chrystall, John Laurie, Finlay Currie, Eric Berry. The life and death of an isolated Shetland island as it is evacuated of its citizens. Engrossing drama, filmed on the North Sea isle of Foula. That's Powell playing the yachtman in opening scene. Powell and those cast and crew still alive revisited the location 40 years later to film the documentary RETURN TO THE EDGE OF THE WORLD. ▼●

Edison Force (2006) C-99m. BOMB D: David J. Burke. Morgan Freeman, Kevin Spacey, Justin Timberlake, LL Cool J, Dylan McDermott, John Heard, Cary Elwes, Roselyn Sanchez, Damien Dante Wayans, Piper Perabo. Two Oscar winners topline this loud, violent direct-to-DVD clunker in which a menagerie of shady politicians, corrupt cops—and one intrepid reporter—clash in a crime-ridden metropolis. Indescribably bad film opens with a standard-issue shootout, and much of the dialogue that follows is unintentionally funny. Pop star Timberlake's acting debut. Originally screened at film festivals as EDISON. Super 35. [R] ●

Edith and Marcel (1983-French) C-104m.

*½ D: Claude Lelouch. Evelyne Bouix, Marcel Cerdan, Jr., Jacques Villeret, Jean-Claude Brialy, Francis Huster, Jean Bouise, Charles Aznavour. Passionless retelling of the love affair between singer Edith Piaf and middleweight boxer Marcel Cerdan, who died in a 1949 plane crash. Bouix and Cerdan, Jr., are bland in the title roles. Originally 162m. Piaf and Cerdan's relationship is also dramatized in LA VIE EN ROSE. ▼

Edmond (2005) C-82m.  D: Stuart Gordon. William H. Macy, Rebecca Pidgeon, Joe Mantegna, Julia Stiles, Jeffrey Combs, Bai Ling, Debi Mazar, Denise Richards, Mena Suvari, George Wendt, Dylan Walsh, Dulé Hill, Bokeem Woodbine, Wren Brown. On his way home from work a middle-aged exec heeds a fateful tarot reading and leaves his wife to embark on an all-night odyssey through the city's underbelly. Adapted by David Mamet from his 1982 one-act play and episodic by design, this fable becomes more difficult to take as it goes on and Macy's character exorcises all of his sexist, racist paranoia. Something less than Homeric, made palatable only by Macy's commanding performance. [R] ●

Ed's Next Move (1996) C-88m.  D: John Walsh. Matt Ross, Callie Thorne, Kevin Carroll, Ramsey Faragallah, Nina Sheveleva. Sweetly engaging romantic comedy; a sincere, knowing story of the difficulties of finding love in the Big City. The title character (Ross), a Wisconsin native who comes to N.Y.C. to make his fortune, is immediately attracted to a struggling musician (Thorne), who is already involved with someone. [R] ▼●●

Ed TV (1999) C-122m.  D: Ron Howard. Matthew McConaughey, Jenna Elfman, Woody Harrelson, Sally Kirkland, Martin Landau, Ellen DeGeneres, Rob Reiner, Dennis Hopper, Elizabeth Hurley, Adam Goldberg, Viveka Davis, Clint Howard. Entertaining yarn about a desperate cable TV network that decides to broadcast an ordinary guy's life for every waking moment of the day—turning the poor sap into an overnight celebrity. Interesting twists in Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandel's script keep this from being a one-joke comedy. Well cast right down the line. Remake of a Canadian film, LOUIS XIX: ROI DES ONDES. [PG-13] ▼●●

Educating Rita (1983-British) C-110m.  D: Lewis Gilbert. Michael Caine, Julie Walters, Michael Williams, Maureen Lipman, Jeanne Crowley, Malcolm Douglas. Entertaining adaptation of Willy Russell's stage play about a young working-class wife who wants to better herself, and selects boozy professor Caine as her tutor. Walters is excellent in her film debut (re-creating her stage role) and Caine has one of his best roles as her mentor. [PG-13] ▼●●

Education of Charlie Banks, The (2009) C-101m. ½ D: Fred Durst. Jesse Eisenberg, Jason Ritter, Eva Amurri, Christopher Marquette, Sebastian Stan, Gloria Votsis, Dennis Boutsikaris. Class-conscious coming-of-age story, set in the '70s and early '80s, about a well-bred Manhattan boy (Eisenberg) who thinks he's left a neighborhood tough guy (Ritter) behind when he goes to an Ivy League college. But Ritter shows up in his dorm one day, ostensibly for a visit, and finds the tony atmosphere (and Eisenberg's girlfriend, Amurri) to his liking. Highly uneven but interesting take on social mores and boundary lines; creditable feature directing debut for Durst, of the rock group Limp Bizkit (filmed before 2008's THE LONGSHOTS). Super 35. [R] D

Education of Little Tree, The (1997) C-114m. ½ D: Richard Friedenberg. James Cromwell, Tantoo Cardinal, Joseph Ashton, Graham Greene, Mika Boorem, Christopher Heyerdahl. An 8-year-old boy, half-white/half-Cherokee, goes to live with his grandparents in the backwoods of Tennessee in 1935 and is taught the way of life and the land. Beautifully photographed family film never fully takes hold, but fine performances and solid values make it pleasant viewing. [G] **▼●●

Education of Sonny Carson, The (1974) C-105m. ½ D: Michael Campus. Rony Clanton, Don Gordon, Joyce Walker, Paul Benjamin, Ram John Holder. Interesting if overemotional drama of rebellious black youth in Brooklyn of the '50s and '60s. Based on Carson's autobiography; the film takes on additional meaning with regard to his latter-day notoriety on the N.Y.C. political scene. [R] **▼●

Edukators, The (2004-German-Austrian) C-127m. ½ D: Hans Weingartner. Daniel Brühl, Julia Jentsch, Stipe Erceg, Burghart Klaußner, Hanns Zischler. Thoughtful, if verbose and overlong, satirical exploration of political idealism and hypocrisy in contemporary Germany. A pair of strident young radicals (Brühl, Erceg) see themselves as 21st-century Robin Hoods, which gives them an excuse to break into the homes of the well-heeled. Complications arise when Erceg's girlfriend (Jentsch) participates in one of their escapades. [R] D

Edward, My Son (1949-British) 112m. ½ D: George Cukor. Spencer Tracy, Deborah Kerr, Ian Hunter, James Donald, Mervyn Johns, Felix Aylmer, Leueen McGrath. Well-acted but talky, stagy drama in which brash, rags-to-riches Tracy pampers his son, failing to instill within him a sense of responsibility. Gimmicks of Tracy talking to viewer, title character never being shown, come off as forced. Based on a play by Robert Morley and Noel Langley.

Edward Scissorhands (1990) C-100m.  D: Tim Burton. Johnny Depp, Winona Ryder, Dianne Wiest, Vincent Price, Alan Arkin, Anthony Michael Hall, Kathy Baker, Conchata Ferrell, Caroline Aaron, Dick Anthony Williams. Strikingly original fable (expanded from an idea Burton hatched as a child) about a man-made boy whose creator dies before attaching human hands to his body. Now he's adopted by a relentlessly cheery Avon Lady, and taken to live in American suburbia. Mixture of fairy tale elements and social satire loses its story momentum toward the end, but that can't erase its charm or good-natured humor. Depp is perfect as the fragile scissor-handed boy, and it's great fun to watch Price as his master. [PG-13] **▼●●

Ed Wood (1994) 124m.  D: Tim Burton. Johnny Depp, Martin Landau, Sarah Jessica Parker, Patricia Arquette, Jeffrey Jones, G. D. Spradlin, Vincent D'Onofrio, Lisa Marie, Bill Murray, Mike Starr, Max Casella, Brent Hinkley, Juliet Landau, George "The Animal" Steele. A loving look at Edward D. Wood, Jr., a man of boundless enthusiasm and no talent who made some of the worst movies of all time (including GLEN OR GLENDA and PLAN 9 FROM OUTER SPACE). Cast to perfection, with Depp ideal in the title role. Landau—in Rick Baker makeup (both men won Oscars)—is positively astonishing as the aged and impoverished Bela Lugosi, whom Wood befriended. There isn't much story thrust here, but the vivid re-creation of time and place makes this a must for any old-movie buff. [R] **▼●●

Eegah! (1963) C-92m. BOMB D: Nicholas Merriwether (Arch Hall, Sr.). Arch Hall, Jr., Marilyn Manning, Richard Kiel, William Watters (Arch Hall, Sr.). In the desert near Palm Springs, a prehistoric giant (Kiel) falls in love with teenage Manning. A staple at "All-Time Worst Film" festivals. Arch Hall, Jr., sings the memorable "I Love You, Vickie." **▼●●

Eel, The (1997-Japanese) C-117m.  D: Shohei Imamura. Koji Yakusho, Misa Shimizu, Fujio Tsuneta, Mitsuko Baisho, Akira Emoto, Sho Aikawa, Ken Kobayashi. A businessman brutally murders his wife

upon discovering that she has been cheating on him. Eight years later, he is paroled from prison, and can only relate to his pet eel, because it will not disappoint or betray him. Then he saves a woman who has attempted suicide after a bad love affair. Pensive, poignant allegorical drama. ▼

 D: Paul Newman. Joanne Woodward, Nell Potts, Roberta Wallach, Judith Lowry. Woodward gives superb performance in tale of secluded boor of a mother and her two strange daughters. Alvin Sargent adapted Paul Zindel's Pulitzer Prize-winning play. [PG] Effi Briest (1974-German) 135m. ½ D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Hanna Schygulla, Wolfgang Schenck, Karl-Heinz Böhm, Ulli Lommel, Ursula Stratz, Irm Hermann. Sharply observed drama, set in 19th-century Germany, is one of Fassbinder's best. It's the story of the social and sexual victimization of the title character (Schygulla), an innocent teenager stifled by the conventions of society and lacking the resolve to challenge them. Fassbinder also scripted; based on a novel by Theodor Fontane, which was filmed three times before. ▼

Efficiency Expert, The (1992-Australian)

C-85m.  D: Mark Joffe. Anthony Hopkins, Alwyn Kurts, Rebecca Rigg, Russell Crowe, Angela Punch McGregor, Ben Mendelsohn, Bruno Lawrence, Toni Collette. Pleasant farce that follows the plight of Hopkins, an uncompromising management consultant whose attitude is ever-so-slightly altered by the various, humorously inefficient workers at a small factory. Hopkins offers a solid comic performance. Original title: SPOTSWOOD. [PG] ▼

Egg and I, The (1947) 108m.  D:

Chester Erskine. Claudette Colbert, Fred MacMurray, Marjorie Main, Louise Allbritton, Percy Kilbride, Richard Long, Donald MacBride, Samuel S. Hinds. Colbert is delightful as city girl who marries chicken farmer MacMurray and struggles to survive on his farm; first appearance of Ma and Pa Kettle. From Betty MacDonald's best-seller. Later a TV series. ▼

Egyptian, The (1954) C-140m.  D:

Michael Curtiz. Jean Simmons, Victor Mature, Gene Tierney, Michael Wilding, Bella Darvi, Peter Ustinov, Edmund Purdom, Judith Evelyn, Henry Daniell, John Carradine, Tommy Rettig. Ponderous, often unintentionally funny biblical-era soaper with Purdom cast as the sensitive, truth-seeking title character, a physician in ancient Egypt. Darvi's performance as a femme fatale is hilariously awful; see how much of her dialogue you can understand. Loosely based on Mika Waltari's novel. CinemaScope. ▼

Eiger Sanction, The (1975) C-128m. *½

D: Clint Eastwood. Clint Eastwood, George Kennedy, VONETTA MCGEE, Jack Cassidy,

Thayer David, Heidi Bruhl, Reiner Schoene, Brenda Venus. Pseudo-James Bond misfire, often unintentionally funny. Thrilling mountain-climbing climax does not make up for film's many faults and ungodly length. Jack Cassidy as gay, treacherous spy contributes the only creative acting. Based on novel by Trevanian. Panavision. [R] ▼

8½ (1963-Italian) 135m. * D: Federico

Fellini. Marcello Mastroianni, Claudia Cardinale, Anouk Aimée, Sandra Milo, Barbara Steele, Rossella Falk, Madeleine LeBeau, Caterina Boratto, Edra Gale, Mark Herron. Fellini's unique self-analytical movie casts Mastroianni as a filmmaker trying to develop a new project, amid frequent visions and countless subplots. A long, difficult, but fascinating film, overflowing with creative and technical wizardry. Certainly one of the most intensely personal statements ever made on celluloid. Screenplay by Fellini, Tullio Pinnelli, Ennio Flaiano, and Brunello Rondi. Oscar winner for Costume Design and as Best Foreign Language Film. ▼

8½ Women (1999-British) C-121m. *½

D: Peter Greenaway. John Standing, Matthew Delamere, Vivian Wu, Shizuka Inoh, Barbara Sarafian, Kirina Mano, Toni Collette, Amanda Plummer, Natcha Amal, Manna Fujiwara, Polly Walker. When a successful businessman is widowed, his son tries to help him through his grief by taking him on a sexual odyssey. The women range from a former nun (Collette) to a horsewoman/pig fancier (Plummer) who wears a bizarre see-through harness. Copious male and female nudity can't keep this from being a colossal bore. A supposed homage to Fellini, this isn't in his league. [R] ▼

Marshall. Paul Walker, Bruce Greenwood, Moon Bloodgood, Jason Biggs, Gerard Plunkett, August Schellenberg, Wendy Crewson. When the staff of a U.S. National Science Research team is ordered to abandon its Antarctic camp, wilderness guide Walker despairs about leaving his eight huskies behind. How the resourceful dogs struggle to survive, and how Walker refuses to give up on them, is the crux of this Disney film. Goes astray as story drags on much longer than it should, but the animal action and wintry location footage are first-rate. Loose remake of the fact-based 1983 Japanese movie NANKY-OKU MONOGATARI (ANTARCTICA). Super 35. [PG] ▼

Eight Crazy Nights (2002) C-75m. BOMB

D: Seth Kearsley. Voices of Adam Sandler, Rob Schneider, Jackie Titone, Kevin Nealon, Norm Crosby, Jon Lovitz, Tyra Banks, Carl Weathers, Lainie Kazan, Alison Krauss. Adam Sandler fans and cartoon buffs beware! Raunchy animated musical comedy, about a small-town slacker given a second chance at redemption by aiding a pint-sized basketball coach. Scatological humor abounds

at the expense of the handicapped, all religious groups and ethnicities. Story is set during the holiday season merely as an excuse for Sandler's popular comic "Hanukkah Song" to be sung over the end credits. Sandler provides voices for three characters and wrote the forgettable and numerous musical numbers. Not for kids, adults, or anyone. Full on-screen title is ADAM SANDLER'S EIGHT CRAZY NIGHTS. [PG-13] ▼

18 Again! (1988) C-100m. ½ D: Paul Flaherty. George Burns, Charlie Schlatter, Tony Roberts, Anita Morris, Red Buttons, Miriam Flynn, Jennifer Runyon. 81-year-old Jack Watson (92-year-old Burns) becomes 18 again via his grandson's body and a bump on the head. Sound familiar? What it lacks in originality is made up in part by Schlatter's utterly charming performance as the young George, and that fountain of youth Burns (who, alas, we see precious little of). [PG] ▼

Eighth Day, The (1996-French-Belgian) C-118m. ½ D: Jaco van Dormael, Daniel Auteuil, Pascal Duquenne, Miou-Miou, Isabelle Sadoun, Henry Garcin, Michele Maes. Well-intentioned but overly familiar feel-good story of uptight, phony-balance Belgian businessman Auteuil, who (predictably) undergoes a personality transformation after finding himself in the company of a Down's Syndrome victim (Duquenne, who actually suffers from the malady). If you've seen RAIN MAN . . . Auteuil and Duquenne both won Cannes Film Festival acting prizes. Super 35. ▼

Eight Hundred Leagues Down the Amazon (1993) C-75m. ½ D: Luis Llosa. Daphne Zuniga, Barry Bostwick, Adam Baldwin, Tom Verica, E. E. Bell, Ramsay Ross. In the 19th century, planter Bostwick, his daughter Zuniga, and others drift down the Amazon on a huge raft; scheming Baldwin causes complications. Underbudgeted but overplotted, this curio is as ponderous as its little-used raft. From a novel by Jules Verne. [PG-13] ▼

Eight Legged Freaks (2002) C-99m. ½ D: Ellory Elkayem. David Arquette, Kari Wuhrer, Scott Terra, Scarlett Johansson, Doug E. Doug, Rick Overton, Leon Rippy, Eileen Ryan. If you want to see a movie about giant marauding spiders, this one's for you: toxic waste turns the inhabitants of a spider farm into monsters that wreak havoc on an Arizona town. A female sheriff (Wuhrer) and her onetime boyfriend (Arquette) try to fend off the fearsome killers. A spirited, goey, and amusing homage to 1950s films like TARANTULA and THEM! (which is glimpsed briefly on TV). Tom Noonan appears unbilled. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Eight Men Out (1988) C-119m.  D: John Sayles. John Cusack, Clifton James, Michael Lerner, Christopher Lloyd, John Mahoney, Charlie Sheen, David Strathairn, D. B. Sweeney, Michael Rooker, Perry Lang, James Read, Bill Irwin, Kevin Tighe, Studs Terkel, John Anderson, Maggie Renzi. Exquisitely detailed period piece about the infamous 1919 "Black Sox" World Series, in which members of the Chicago White Sox agreed to throw the games in return for cash. Writer-director Sayles (who also appears as sportswriter Ring Lardner) touches all the bases, except perhaps in terms of emotion; the story doesn't have the impact it might have, though the actual baseball scenes are superb and the key performances (by Strathairn, Sweeney, and Cusack) are top-notch. Based on a book by Eliot Asinof. [PG] ▼

8 Mile (2002) C-110m.  D: Curtis Hanson. Eminem, Kim Basinger, Brittany Murphy, Mekhi Phifer, Evan Jones, Omar Benson Miller, Eugene Byrd, De'Angelo Wilson, Anthony Mackie, Taryn Manning, Michael Shannon. Angry young white rapper tries to use his music to escape the grimness of life in Detroit but freezes when forced to compete in a public forum with his glib black counterparts. Familiar underdog formula is given grit and resonance, and makes a convincing case for the power of self-expression. Real-life rapper Eminem is impressive in a tailor-made film that echoes his own life story. Oscar winner for Best Song, "Lose Yourself." Super 35. [R] ▼

alcoholic ex-cop who gets involved with high-priced call girl and her "friends" (a powerful pimp and a sleazy drug dealer). Slow, arid film populated by unpleasant and uninteresting characters. Remarkably poor script (cowritten by Oliver Stone) has only faint resemblance to Lawrence Block's fine novel. [R]▼●

8MM (1999) C-123m.  D: Joel Schumacher. Nicolas Cage, Joaquin Phoenix, James Gandolfini, Peter Stormare, Anthony Heald, Catherine Keener, Chris Bauer, Myra Carter. Private detective accepts an unusual assignment: to learn whether or not a "snuff" film in which a girl apparently dies is genuine. Despite himself, he becomes obsessed with the case and mired in a netherworld he cannot stand. An intensely grim, often unpleasant film, somewhat reminiscent of HARDCORE, is weakened by serious issues of credibility in Cage's character and motivation. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel in 2005. Super 35. [R]▼●

Eight on the Lam (1967) C-106m. BOMB D: George Marshall. Bob Hope, Phyllis Diller, Jonathan Winters, Jill St. John, Shirley Eaton. Another of Hope's horrible '60s comedies casts him as a widower with seven children who finds $10,000; even Winters can't help this dud.▼●

8 Seconds (1994) C-104m. ½ D: John G. Avildsen. Luke Perry, Stephen Baldwin, Cynthia Geary, James Rebhorn, Carrie Snodgrass, Red Mitchell, Ronnie Claire Edwards, Linden Ashby, Renee Zellweger. OK bio of rodeo legend Lane Frost gets standard Avildsen ROCKY rah-rah treatment. Perry and Geary (as his wife) put the film over, up to a point, with natural, winning performances, but day-to-day rodeo life was captured with far more flavor in THE LUSTY MEN and JUNIOR BONNER. [PG-13]▼●

8 Women (2002-French) C-113m. ½ D: François Ozon. Danielle Darrieux, Catherine Deneuve, Isabelle Huppert, Fanny Ardant, Emmanuelle Béart, Virginie Ledoyen, Firmine Richard, Ludvine Sagnier. Wonderful opportunity to watch some of France's most formidable females in an odd whodunit-melodrama-musical set in the 1950s (and inspired, Ozon says, by the lush, artificial Technicolor films of Douglas Sirk and Vincente Minnelli). The story, a deliberate contrivance, involves a murder in an isolated mansion in winter, and the various secrets being hidden by the women of the household. Fun to a degree, especially when the actresses sing and dance, but awfully forced. [R]▼●

death threat from a man he helped send to Death Row (McDonough). Lumbering, heavy-handed theatrics and clumsy attempts at suspense make this a total waste of time. Super 35. [R]●

84 Charlie Mopic (1989) C-95m.  D: Patrick Duncan. Jonathan Emerson, Nicholas Cascone, Jason Tomlins, Christopher Burgard, Glenn Morshower, Richard Brooks, Byron Thomas. Imaginative low-budget film provides fresh approach to life on the front line in Vietnam. Writer-director Duncan tells his story completely from the point of view of a combat cameraman who's assigned to follow a special seven-man reconnaissance unit on a dangerous mission. Lulls in pace made up for by film's overall vitality, commanding performances by cast of unknowns. [R]▼●

80 Steps to Jonah (1969) C-107m.  D: Gerd Oswald. Wayne Newton, Mickey Rooney, Jo Van Fleet, Keenan Wynn, Diana Ewing, Slim Pickens, Sal Mineo. A loner, running from the police, stumbles upon camp for blind children; new world changes his outlook on life. Major liability: casting of Newton in leading role. Music score by George Shearing. [G]

80,000 Suspects (1963-British) 113m.  D: Val Guest. Claire Bloom, Richard Johnson, Yolande Donlan, Cyril Cusack. Capable cast saddled with yarn of doctor (Johnson) and wife (Bloom) finding new love together while combating local small-pox outbreak. CinemaScope.

Eijanaika (1981-Japanese) C-151m. ½ D: Shohei Imamura. Shigeru Izumiya, Kaori Momoi, Masao Kusakari, Ken Ogata, Shigeru Tsuyuguchi, Mitsuko Baisho. Fascinating, compelling saga of corruption, politics, greed, power, deceit, focusing on experiences of peasant who has just returned to Japan after being shipwrecked and sent to America during the 1860s. Fine performances, with a memorable finale. Some prints run 127m.▼● into harassing tenants he unfairly wants to evict; seduced by the boss's lusty mistress (Jurado), he then falls in love with a girl whose father he accidentally murdered. Simplistic, quite unsubtle melodrama, a disappointment from a master filmmaker. Aka THE BRUTE. ▼

El Cantante (2007) C-116m.  D: Leon Ichaso. Marc Anthony, Jennifer Lopez, John Ortiz, Manny Perez, Vincent Laresca, Federico Castelluccio, Nelson Vasquez. Puerto Rican-born Héctor Lavoe (Anthony) finds success in N.Y.C. introducing a new brand of Latin music called salsa in the 1970s. While he also finds the love of his life, drugs erode his success onstage and off. The two stars (married in real life) are extremely well cast in this biopic. Lopez looks gorgeous, and the music is great, but the story is a sad, one-note affair. Lopez also coproduced . . . and perhaps should have cut a few of those loving close-ups of herself. [R] ▼

El Cid (1961) C-184m.  D: Anthony Mann. Charlton Heston, Sophia Loren, Raf Vallone, Genevieve Page, John Fraser, Gary Raymond, Hurd Hatfield, Massimo Serato, Herbert Lom, Michael Hordern. Mammoth Samuel Bronston spectacle, shot in Spain, celebrates that country's 11th-century warrior hero. When not clashing with Moors, Heston's Cid romances his equally statuesque wife (Loren). Uneven dramatics are sold by top-scale production values, including Miklos Rozsa's famed score. One of the better historical epics of its time. Super Technirama 70. ▼

El Crimen Perfecto (2004-Spanish-Italian) C-105m. ½ D: Álex de la Iglesia. Guillermo Toledo, Mónica Cervera, Luis Varela, Enrique Villén, Fernando Tejero, Javier Gutiérrez, Kira Miró. Top achiever in the women's department of a busy store is living the high life, bedding many of his customers, but when his quest to become floor manager fails, a nasty argument with his chief rival ends in murder. From here a darkly funny comedy takes incredible turns and loses the steam it has built up. Hitchcockian farce was a hit in its native Spain and takes a partially successful stab at pulling off the art of black comedy. Toledo is pretty much the whole show and delivers a sly performance. Super 35. ▼

up to RIO BRAVO finds aging gunfighter Wayne helping drunken sheriff pal Mitchum quell a range war. Typically smooth Hawks mix of comedy and action, with zesty Leigh Brackett script and exemplary performances, especially by Mitchum, Caan as young gambler who can't shoot, and George as ultra-cool hired gun. ▼

Eleanor Roosevelt Story, The (1965) 91m. ½ D: Richard Kaplan. Narrated by Archibald Macleish, Eric Sevareid, Francis Cole. Oscar-winning documentary account of the former First Lady, a great American citizen who overcame personal obstacles and became a beacon of human kindness. A most effective music score by Ezra Laderman. ▼

Election (1999) C-103m. ½ D: Alexander Payne. Matthew Broderick, Reese Witherspoon, Chris Klein, Jessica Campbell, Mark Harelik, Phil Reeves, Molly Hagan, Delaney Driscoll, Colleen Camp, Matt Malloy. Audacious, wickedly funny satire about an earnest Nebraska schoolteacher's attempt to put a roadblock in the path of an overachiever who's running unopposed for class president. Highly original story also involves adultery, lust, and lesbianism; somehow manages to avoid mean-spiritedness while taking dead aim at its subjects. Written by Payne and Jim Taylor from the novel by Tom Perrotta. Broderick and Witherspoon are exceptionally good. Super 35. [R] ▼

Electric Dreams (1984) C-95m. ½ D: Steve Barron. Lenny Von Dohlen, Virginia Madsen, Maxwell Caulfield, voice of Bud Cort. Old-fashioned boy meets girl story told in rock-video terms, with a third corner to the love triangle: a jealous computer. Good idea gets sillier as it goes along. [PG] ▼

Electric Horseman, The (1979) C-120m. ½ D: Sydney Pollack. Robert Redford, Jane Fonda, Valerie Perrine, Willie Nelson, John Saxon, Nicolas Coster, Wilford Brimley, James B. Sicking. Innocuous rip-off of LONELY ARE THE BRAVE tries to palm off Redford as a near-derelect who steals a $12 million thoroughbred from a Vegas hotel and heads for some grazing land. Pleasant, to be sure, but considering the people involved, a disappointment. Panavision. [PG] ▼

fessor who is smitten with a beautiful ex-student, but consistent with his lifelong air of detachment, can't give her the emotional commitment she needs. Nicholas Meyer adapted Philip Roth's The Dying Animal, which is beautifully realized by Coixet and a superb cast. Cruz and Kingsley have never been better; the gifted Clarkson has an especially well-written part as Kingsley's long-time sex partner who's content with the boundary lines they've set for their relationship. [R] ▽

Elektra (2005) C-96m. *½ D: Rob Bowman. Jennifer Garner, Goran Visnjic, Kirsten Prout, Will Yun Lee, Terence Stamp, Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa. Garner's Marvel character ended up dead in DAREDEVIL, but she's resurrected here, a fate not likely to happen to this movie's reputation. As an assassin, she's assigned by The Hand (another organization up to no good) to track a father and daughter on the lam. Lackluster fight scenes, Garner's sleepwalking, and a tendency toward the psychoanalytic (Elektra had a tough childhood) make this a groan . . . a far cry from the franchise it was intended to launch. Director's cut runs 104m. Panavision. [PG-13] ▽ ▽

Element of Crime, The (1984-Danish) C-104m.  D: Lars von Trier. Michael Elphick, Esmond Knight, Me Me Lei, Gerald Wells, Ahmed El-Shenawi, Astrid Henning Jensen, Lars von Trier. It's the post-holocaust future, and the world is suffering from an ecological imbalance; ragged cop Elphick undergoes hypnosis in order to properly investigate a series of horrible mutilation murders of young girls. Surreal, thought-provoking thriller is crammed with references to earlier films, from Hitchcock to film noir to BLADE RUNNER. Von Trier also scripted, in an impressive feature debut. Shot in English. ▽ ▽

Elena and Her Men (1956-French) C-98m.  D: Jean Renoir. Ingrid Bergman, Jean Marais, Mel Ferrer, Jean Richard, Magali Noel, Juliette Greco, Pierre Bertin. Claude Renoir's exquisite cinematography highlights this otherwise so-so account of impoverished Polish princess Bergman's romantic intrigues with Marais and Ferrer. Overrated by some; far from Renoir's (or Bergman's) best. French-language version, called PARIS DOES STRANGE THINGS, is better and runs 95m. ▽ ▽

Eleni (1985) C-117m. ½ D: Peter Yates. Kate Nelligan, John Malkovich, Linda Hunt, Oliver Cotton, Ronald Pickup, Rosalie Crutchley, Dimitra Arliss, Glenna Headly. N.Y. Times reporter gets himself assigned to Athens bureau so he can resolve life-long obsession with finding truth about his mother's execution by communists in Greece following WW2. Steve Tesich's script is based on Nicholas Gage's book—and life—but coldness of the lead

character is just one reason this film remains aloof and uninteresting instead of being an emotional powerhouse. Nelligan plays Gage's mother in convincing flashback sequences. [PG] ▽ ●

Elephant (2003) C-81m.  D: Gus Van Sant. Alex Frost, Eric Deulen, John Robinson, Elias McConnell, Jordan Taylor, Carrie Finklea, Nicole George, Brittany Mountain, Timothy Bottoms, Matt Malloy. Dramatically inert yet sometimes queasily effective, this you-are-there mood piece takes a clinical rather than emotional approach to recreating events leading up to a Columbine-type school massacre. Manages to create an under-your-skin sense of dreadful foreboding and offers a few telling details of high school life (like homogenized cafeteria food) but no insights whatsoever. Somehow this took the Palme d'Or award at Cannes. [R] ▽ ▽

Elephant Boy (1937-British) 80m.  D: Robert Flaherty, Zoltan Korda. Sabu, W. E. Holloway, Walter Hudd, Allan Jeayes, Bruce Gordon, D. J. Williams. Interesting early-day docudrama about native boy (Sabu, in film debut) who claims he knows location of mythic elephant herd. ▽ ●

Elephant Man, The (1980) 125m. ½ D: David Lynch. Anthony Hopkins, John Hurt, Anne Bancroft, John Gielgud, Wendy Hiller, Freddie Jones, Michael Elphick, John Standing, Phoebe Nicholls, Kathleen Byron, Kenny Baker, Patricia Hodge. Moving dramatization of the story of John Merrick, a grotesquely deformed man shown compassion for the first time in his life by an eminent doctor in turn-of-the-century London. No relation to the Broadway play (in which one had to imagine how Merrick looked). Fine performances by all; rich Victorian atmosphere created by Lynch and veteran cameraman Freddie Francis—in beautiful black and white. Screenplay by Christopher DeVore, Eric Bergren, and the director. Panavision. [PG] ▽ ● ●

Elephant Walk (1954) C-103m.  D: William Dieterle. Elizabeth Taylor, Dana Andrews, Peter Finch, Abraham Sofaer. Overblown melodrama set on Ceylon tea plantation, with Taylor as Finch's new bride who must cope with environment and his father complex. Pachyderm-stamped climax comes none too soon. Vivien Leigh, replaced by Taylor, can be seen in long shots. ▽ ▽

Elevator to the Gallows (1958-French) 91m. ½ D: Louis Malle. Jeanne Moreau, Maurice Ronet, Georges Poujouly, Yori Bertin, Jean Wall, Charles Denner, Jean-Claude Brialy. Malle's experience making documentaries informs his first fictional feature, as an amorous man and woman attempt to pull off the perfect crime. Filmed by Henri Decaë on the streets of Paris in a bracing style that anticipates the

New Wave. Famous score improvised by Miles Davis. Original U.S. title: FRANTIC.

11:14 (2005-U.S.-Canadian) C-86m. ½ D: Greg Marcks. Henry Thomas, Blake Heron, Clark Gregg, Hilary Swank, Shawn Hatosy, Barbara Hershey, Stark Sands, Colin Hanks, Ben Foster, Patrick Swayze, Rachael Leigh Cook. At 11:14 p.m. a body lands on the windshield of a car and the tipsy driver tries to hide the corpse. Intersecting flashbacks reveal the mishaps immediately before and after the incident and how they converge to change the lives of several people one night in a small town. Despite the clever structure of the screenplay (by the director) and some amusing black comedy, it's hard to care about this collection of dumb, morally bankrupt characters. Without the time-juggling gimmick, the story would add up to very little. Filmed in 2002. [R] ▼

11 Harrowhouse (1974-British) C-98m.  D: Aram Avakian. Charles Grodin, Candice Bergen, James Mason, Trevor Howard, John Gielgud, Helen Cherry. Funny action spoof of heist films, as diamond merchant Grodin robs the world clearinghouse for gems. Grodin also adapted Gerald A. Browne's best-selling novel. Aka ANYTHING FOR LOVE and FAST FORTUNE. Panavision. [PG] ▼

11th Hour, The (2007) C-95m. ½ D: Leila Conners Petersen, Nadia Conners. Co-producer Leonardo DiCaprio's intense sincerity serves him well as on- and off-screen narrator of this sprawling, frequently distressing documentary about the various ways mankind is despoiling our planet. In addition to footage of melting icecaps, widespread deforestation, overflowing landfills, etc., the directors include cogent testimony by disparate experts and activists, from Stephen Hawking to Mikhail Gorbachev, who suggest specific steps that can be taken to keep Earth inhabitable. [PG] ▼

Elf (2003) C-95m.  D: Jon Favreau. Will Ferrell, James Caan, Zooey Deschanel, Mary Steenburgen, Daniel Tay, Edward Asner, Bob Newhart, Faizon Love, Peter Dinklage, Amy Sedaris, Clint Howard, Michael Lerner, Andy Richter, Kyle Gass, Jon Favreau; voice of Leon Redbone. One of Santa's elves learns that he is actually a human being and sets off for N.Y.C. to meet his father—as un-Christmassy a character as ever lived. Ferrell is a delight as the elf who has a gift for spreading good cheer, even in a world of cynics, and ably carries this film (with a little help from old pros like Newhart and Asner, and the charming Deschanel), but Caan is miscast in an underwritten role as the father. Animated characters brought to life by the Chiodo Brothers recall Rankin-Bass TV specials of yore; the polar bear cub is voiced by stop-motion master Ray Harryhausen. [PG] ▼

El Greco (1966-Italian-French) C-95m.  D: Luciano Salce. Mel Ferrer, Rosanna Schiaffino, Franco Giacobini, Renzo Giovampietro, Adolfo Celi. Despite lavish trappings, story of painter reduced to soap-opera terms falls flat. Beautiful color, but no plot of any distinction. CinemaScope.

Eliminators (1986) C-96m. *½ D: Peter Manoogian. Andrew Prine, Denise Crosby, Patrick Reynolds, Conan Lee, Roy Dotrice. Woman scientist, white male guide, a ninja, and a cyborg team up to battle a mad-genius industrialist who wants to take over the world. Good to see an equal-opportunity adventure, but this RAIDERS clone has little to offer but low humor. Crosby is Bing's granddaughter. [PG] ▼

Elizabeth (1998-British) C-123m.  D: Shekhar Kapur. Cate Blanchett, Geoffrey Rush, Joseph Fiennes, Richard Attenborough, Christopher Eccleston, Vincent Cassel, Fanny Ardant, Kathy Burke, Eric Cantona, Emily Mortimer, John Gielgud, Edward Hardwicke, Daniel Craig. Queen Mary I dreads the prospect of her half-sister, a heathen Protestant, ascending to the throne, but upon Mary's death that's exactly what happens, leading to intrigues and divisiveness within the court. Elizabeth (Blanchett) tries to rule with common sense and sees no reason to abandon her lover simply to satisfy protocol. Interesting historical drama anchored by Blanchett's charismatic performance as a woman who was far ahead of her time. Oscar winner for Best Makeup. Followed by ELIZABETH: THE GOLDEN AGE. [R] ▼

Elizabethtown (2005) C-123m.  D: Cameron Crowe. Orlando Bloom, Kirsten Dunst, Susan Sarandon, Alec Baldwin, Bruce McGill, Judy Greer, Jessica Biel, Paul Schneider, Loudon Wainwright III, Gailard Sartain. West Coast yuppie (Bloom) whose life is in disarray flies to Kentucky to attend to his father's funeral. A stranger in a strange land, he's given signposts by a worldly-wise flight attendant (Dunst), then finds himself

immersed in the dynamics of his cheerfully oddball family. Writer-director Crowe casts his stars adrift in a pleasant but aimless comedy that seems to go on forever. [PG-13]▼

Ellie Parker (2005) C-95m. ½ D: Scott Coffey. Naomi Watts, Rebecca Rigg, Scott Coffey, Mark Pellegrino, Chevy Chase, Blair Mastbaum, Keanu Reeves. Watts is the whole show in this digital video oddity about a struggling actress who treks off to auditions while breaking up with her boyfriend and questioning her existence. Inside look at life on the fringes of the L.A. "entertainment industry" will be of interest primarily to film-biz wannabes and Watts completists; it certainly showcases her range. Originally a 16m. short that premiered at the 2001 Sundance Film Festival, prior to Watts' stardom; expanded intermittently over four years' time. Watts coproduced with writer-director Coffey. [R]▼

Elling (2001-Norwegian) C-89m.  D: Petter Naess. Per Christian Ellefsen, Sven Nordin, Marit Pia Jacobsen, Jorgen Langhelle, Per Christensen. Winning comedy about a middle-aged mama's boy (Ellefsen) who winds up in a mental institution after the death of his mother. Eventually, with his sex-obsessed hospital roommate, he moves into a state-provided apartment. This funny, charming film works so well because it never loses sight of who these characters are. This was Norway's all-time biggest box-office hit. [R] ▼

El Mariachi (1992) C-81m.  D: Robert Rodriguez. Carlos Gallardo, Consuelo Gomez, Peter Marquardt, Jaime de Hoyos, Reinol Martinez, Ramiro Gomez. Energetic little film about a young singing guitarist (mariachi) who comes to a small town, where he's mistaken for a ferocious prison escapee. Arresting, original (and violent) film was shot in two weeks for just $7,000, but offers more entertainment than most of today's megabuck Hollywood movies. Director Rodriguez also photographed, edited, coproduced, and wrote the picture; Gallardo also served as copro-

Elmer Gantry (1960) C-145m. ½ D: Richard Brooks. Burt Lancaster, Jean Simmons, Dean Jagger, Arthur Kennedy, Shirley Jones, Patti Page, Edward Andrews, Hugh Marlowe, John McIntire, Rex Ingram. Lancaster gives a vibrant Oscar-winning performance as the salesman with the gift of gab who joins evangelist Simmons' barnstorming troupe in the 1920s Midwest. Jones won Academy Award as his jilted girlfriend turned prostitute; Brooks also won an Oscar for his sprawling screenplay from Sinclair Lewis' trenchant novel.▼

El Norte (1983) C-139m. * D: Gregory Nava. Zaide Silvia Gutierrez, David Villalpando, Ernesto Gomez Cruz, Alicia del Lago, Heraclio Zepeda, Stella Quan, Lupe Ontiveros. Sweeping, emotional saga of a brother and sister who leave their violence-torn village in Guatemala to find a better life in The North—El Norte. Getting to America is half the story; making a life there is the other half. Writer-director Nava presents a heightened sense of reality that removes this from the realm of documentary; a compassionate, heart-rending, unforgettable film. Cowritten and produced by Anna Thomas, for American Playhouse. [R]▼

El Super (1979) C-90m.  D: Leon Ichaso, Orlando Jimenez-Leal, Raymundo Hidalgo-Gato, Zully Montero, Raynaldo Medina, Juan Granda, Hilda Lee, Elizabeth Pena. The trials of homesick exiled Cuban who labors as an apartment-house super in Manhattan. Hidalgo-Gato is excellent as a comically sad outsider, still in transit after a decade away from his homeland.▼

El Topo (1970-Mexican) C-125m.  D: Alejandro Jodorowsky. Alejandro Jodorowsky, Brontis Jodorowsky, Mara Lorenzo, David Silva, Paula Romo, Hector Martinez, Alfonso Arau. Clad in black leather, a gunslinger rides through the Old West with his naked 7-year-old son in tow and guns down everyone in sight, after which he sets himself on fire. Divided into sections, with such names as Genesis, Psalms, and Apocalypse, this pretentious head-trip cult film borrows from Fellini and Leone, while employing meaningless symbolism and lots of perverse sex and violence. Overlong and overrated, though it seemed pretty cool in its day. Rafael Corkidi's photography is striking.▼

Elusive Corporal, The (1962-French) 108m. ½ D: Jean Renoir. Jean-Pierre Cassel, Claude Brasseur, Claude Rich, O. E. Hasse, Jean Carmet. Pointed if predictable chronicle of French corporal who attempts to escape with his pals from a German prison camp during WW2. Sobering look at friendship and freedom, which Renoir explored more successfully in other, earlier films. The wry comic touches are an asset.▼

Elusive Pimpernel, The (1950-British)

C-109m.  D: Michael Powell, Emeric Pressburger. David Niven, Margaret Leighton, Cyril Cusack, Jack Hawkins, Arlette Marchal, Robert Coote, Patrick Macnee. Colorful remake of THE SCARLET PIMPERNEL. Niven is British for who secretly aids victims of Reign of Terror; lively fun. This was filmed as a musical—you can tell where the numbers were cut! Released in U.S. in 1954 as THE FIGHTING PIMPERNEL. ▼

Elvira Madigan (1967-Swedish) C-89m.  D: Bo Widerberg. Pia Degermark, Thommy Berggren, Lennart Malmer, Nina Widerberg, Cleo Jensen. Lovers on the run, in soft-focus photography: tightrope walker Degermark and married army officer Berggren run off together. Though based on a true story (and filmed before in 1943), stylistically this too often resembles a shampoo commercial. Still, it was a big hit, with attractive stars, lush photography, and canny use of Mozart music. [PG]▼●●

Elvira, Mistress of the Dark (1988) C-96m. BOMB D: James Signorelli. Elvira (Cassandra Peterson), W. Morgan Sheppard, Daniel Greene, Susan Kellermann, Jeff Conaway, Edie McClurg, William Duell. Peterson takes her TV horror host character to the screen in this flimsy story of a TV host shaking up a small New England town which she's visiting to pick up an inheritance. Unfunny, one-joke script (cowritten by Peterson) keeps its attention firmly riveted to the star's ample bosom. More yawns than yocks. [PG-13]▼●●

Elvis on Tour (1972) C-93m.  D: Pierre Adidge, Robert Abel. Static study of rock 'n' roll's biggest super-star going through his paces at a series of U.S. concerts. Even the music is not up to standard. Multiple Screen. [G]▼●●

Elvis: That's the Way It Is (1970) C-97m.  D: Denis Sanders. Engaging look at Elvis Presley offstage, preparing major nightclub act, culminating in opening-night performance in Las Vegas. Well-filmed if one-sided documentary paints vivid picture of Elvis as master showman. Reedited from original source material for cable and video release in 2001; that version runs 95m. Panavision. ▼●●

Embassy (1972-British) C-90m. ½ D: Gordon Hessler. Richard Roundtree, Chuck Connors, Max von Sydow, Ray Milland, Broderick Crawford, Marie-Jose Nat. Spotty spy thriller about Russian defector von Sydow seeking asylum and the State Department's efforts to have agent Roundtree smuggle him out of the Mideast under KGB man Connors' nose. Good cast works valiantly with contrived plot, talky script. Aka TARGET: EMBASSY. [PG]▼

Embryo (1976) C-104m.  D: Ralph Nelson. Rock Hudson, Diane Ladd, Barbara Carrera, Roddy McDowall, Anne

Schedeen. Sometimes interesting, sometimes repulsive horror sci-fi about woman and dog grown from fetuses outside the womb—with terrifying results. Retitled CREATED TO KILL. [PG]▼

Emerald Forest, The (1985) C-113m.  D: John Boorman. Powers Boothe, Meg Foster, Charley Boorman, Dira Pass. American engineer spends ten years searching for his kidnapped son, who's been raised by primitive Amazon tribe. Fascinating look at a unique civilization, but lack of emotional empathy for the father and contrived storyline weaken overall impact. Still worthwhile. Script by Rospo Pallenberg; rich music score by Junior Homrich. And a completely convincing performance by young Boorman, son of the film's director. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Emigrants, The (1971-Swedish) C-191m.  D: Jan Troell. Max von Sydow, Liv Ullmann, Eddie Axberg, Allan Edwall. Solid if rambling tale of peasant farmer von Sydow, wife Ullmann, and fellow Swedes who emigrate to America in the 19th century. Sequel, THE NEW LAND, is even better; both have been edited together for TV, dubbed in English, and presented as THE EMIGRANT SAGA. See also THE OX. [PG]▼●●

Emigrant Saga, The SEE: Emigrants, The and New Land, The

Emil and the Detectives (1964) C-99m. *½ D: Peter Tewksbury. Walter Slezak, Bryan Russell, Roger Mobley, Heinz Schubert, Peter Erlich, Cindy Cassell. Turgid Disney version of Erich Kastner's children's book about a young boy who is robbed and determines to nail the thief with the help of young detective friends. Filmed in Germany, where it was made before in 1931. ▼

Emily Brontë's Wuthering Heights SEE: Wuthering Heights (1992)

Eminent Domain (1991) C-102m. ½ D: John Irvin. Donald Sutherland, Anne Archer, Jodhi May, Paul Freeman, Bernard Hepton. Intriguing story of high political official (Sutherland) in pre-Solidarity Poland who wakes up one morning to discover his privileged Politburo position no longer exists and no one will give him a satisfactory reason for (or even acknowledge) the eerie snafu. Reminiscent of Kafka's The Trial; often disturbing, but confusing in spots. [PG-13]▼

Emma (1996) C-111m.  D: Douglas McGrath. Gwyneth Paltrow, Jeremy Northam, Toni Collette, Greta Scacchi, Juliet Stevenson, Alan Cumming, Polly Walker, Ewan McGregor, James Cosmo, Sophie Thompson, Phyllida Law. Charming, witty adaptation of Jane Austen's comedy of manners about a headstrong young woman who makes a habit of playing matchmaker for others, but can't recognize her own true

feelings—or those of the men who surround her. Paltrow is delightful and surrounded by an ideal (and highly attractive) cast. Thompson (sister of actress Emma T.) is wonderful as the talkative Miss Bates; that's her real-life mother, Law, playing Mrs. Bates. Script by McGrath, making his directorial debut. Oscar-winning score by Rachel Portman. [PG]▼●

Emotional Arithmetic (2007-Canadian) C-99m. ½ D: Paulo Barzman. Susan Sarandon, Christopher Plummer, Max von Sydow, Gabriel Byrne, Roy Dupuis, Dakota Goyo. Decades after the close of prewar Drancy Internment Camp on the outskirts of Paris, two survivors (von Sydow and Byrne) travel to the home of a third (Sarandon). This highly anticipated reunion leads to mental and emotional upheaval as unresolved issues are finally unearthed. Uneven drama (told partly in flashback) doesn't provide a fully satisfying experience. Still, it remains a sensitive and telling look at the way horrific events inform lives and how survivor guilt can bring down those who made it out . . . if they let it. Retitled AUTUMN HEARTS: A NEW BEGINNING. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Emperor and the Assassin, The (1999-Chinese) C-161m.  D: Chen Kaige. Gong Li, Zhang Fengyi, Li Xuejian, Wang Zhiwen, Chen Kaige, Lu Xiaohu. Sweeping, fact-based account of the ruler of a Chinese kingdom (Xuejian) in 320 B.C. who is determined to annex the country's other kingdoms and become its first emperor. For this purpose, he enlists the help of his concubine (Li, ravishing as ever); she, in turn, falls for an assassin (Fengyi). The story's predictability is outweighed by the beautifully staged spectacle; this is reportedly the most expensive Chinese film ever made. [R]▼●

Emperor Jones, The (1933) 72m. ½ D: Dudley Murphy. Paul Robeson, Dudley Digges, Frank Wilson, Fredi Washington, Ruby Elzy. Robeson plays Pullman porter who escapes from chain gang and improbably becomes king of a Caribbean island. Pretentious adaptation of Eugene O'Neill play derives its chief interest and value from Robeson himself. Look for Moms Mabley in bit part. ▼●●

Emperor's Club, The (2002) C-109m.  D: Michael Hoffman. Kevin Kline, Steven Culp, Embeth Davidtz, Patrick Dempsey, Joel Gretsch, Edward Herrmann, Emile Hirsch, Rob Morrow, Harris Yulin, Paul Dano, Roger Rees. Absorbing story about a dedicated Classics professor at an exclusive prep school who puts his faith in a troublesome boy. This is not the film one might expect (in spite of renaming Ethan Canin's short story "The Palace Thief" to sound more like DEAD POETS SOCIETY), with interesting nuances and plot turns as it tackles issues of ethics and morality. Kline is perfectly cast, and so is young Hirsch. [PG-13]▼●

Emperor's New Clothes, The (2002-British-Italian-German) C-107m. ½ D: Alan Taylor. Ian Holm, Iben Hjejle, Tim McInnerny, Nigel Terry, Hugh Bonneville, Murray Melvin, Clive Russell. Slight but entertaining "what if" tale with Napoleon escaping forced exile on St. Helena in 1821 and heading to Paris to retake France. Unfortunately, his plan goes awry from the very beginning, starting with the hiring of a look-alike commoner to fool his captors. Holm seems to relish the dual roles (he played Bonaparte before, in TIME BANDITS and a 1974 British TV miniseries titled Napoleon in Love), but the story is thin and goes on too long. The return to Waterloo and sanitarium scenes are gems, however. [PG]▼●

Emperor's New Groove, The (2000) C-79m. ½ D: Mark Dindal. Voices of David Spade, John Goodman, Eartha Kitt, Patrick Warburton, Wendie Malick, Kellyann Kelso, Tom Jones. An Incan emperor with an outsized ego is rousted by a scheming advisor and transformed into a llama—but that doesn't stop him from seeking revenge on those who wronged him. A most un-Disney-like Disney cartoon feature, this one has a fresh look and some funny moments, but relies too heavily on Spade's smart-alecky comic persona—a little of which can go a long, long way. Features two songs by Sting. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [G]▼●

Emperor Waltz, The (1948) C-106m. ½ D: Billy Wilder. Bing Crosby, Joan Fontaine, Roland Culver, Lucile Watson, Richard Haydn, Sig Ruman. Lavish but lackluster musical set in Franz Joseph Austria with Bing selling record players to royalty. Awfully schmaltzy material for writer-director Wilder. Filmed in 1946. Jasper National Park in Alberta, Canada, fills in for Tyrolean Alps. ▼●

Empire (2002) C-95m.  D: Franc Reyes. John Leguizamo, Peter Sarsgaard, Denise Richards, Vincent Laresca, Nestor Serrano,

Delilah Cotto, Sonia Braga, Isabella Rossellini, Treach, Fat Joe. South Bronx drug dealer Leguizamo is a success on his home turf, but is he out of his league when he becomes involved in a scheme with hotshot Wall Street financier Sarsgaard? Intriguing premise, but the plot holes are gaping and the Hispanic stereotypes are downright embarrassing at times. Rossellini is oddly cast as a Colombian drug lord. Super 35. [R] ▼

Empire of Passion (1978-Japanese) C-110m.  D: Nagisa Oshima. Kazuko Yoshiyuki, Tatsuya Fuji, Takahiro Tamura, Takuzo Kawatani. Peasant woman Yoshiyuki has affair with village good-for-nothing Fuji; they murder her husband, whose ghost returns to haunt them. Boring, despite interesting subject matter. A follow-up to IN THE REALM OF THE SENSES. Aka IN THE REALM OF PASSION. [R] ▼

Empire of the Ants (1977) C-90m. *½ D: Bert I. Gordon. Joan Collins, Robert Lansing, Albert Salmi, John David Carson, Robert Pine, Jacqueline Scott. Laughable man-vs.-giant insects chiller from H. G. Wells' story. Vacationers on an isolated island find themselves at the mercy of voracious ants that have become monsters after feasting on a leaking barrel of radioactive waste. [PG] ▼

Empire of the Sun (1987) C-152m.  D: Steven Spielberg. Christian Bale, John Malkovich, Miranda Richardson, Nigel Havers, Joe Pantoliano, Leslie Phillips, Masato Ibu, Emily Richard, Rupert Frazer, Ben Stiller, Robert Stephens, Burt Kwouk. British boy, living a well-sheltered life in Shanghai, is separated from his parents and forced to fend for himself when Japan invades China at the outset of WW2. Sprawling, ambitious, but emotionally distant and loaded with cinematic crescendos (replete with crane camera shots and overbearing music by John Williams) that simply don't have the emotional content to warrant all that fuss. Tom Stoppard adapted J. G. Ballard's autobiographical novel (Ballard appears briefly in Beefeater costume in an early party scene). [PG] ▼

Empire Records (1995) C-91m. *½ D: Allan Moyle. Anthony LaPaglia, Debi Mazar, Liv Tyler, Maxwell Caulfield, Rory Cochrane, Johnny Whitworth, Robin Tunney, Renée Zellweger, Ethan Randall (Embry). A day in the life of a record store, which the manager is desperately trying to save from a corporate takeover. A series of noisy vignettes which add up to nothing, despite attractive young cast. Disappointing outing from Moyle, who directed the more potent PUMP UP THE VOLUME. Alternate version runs 107m. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Empire Strikes Back, The (1980) C-124m. * D: Irvin Kershner. Mark Hamill, Harrison Ford, Carrie Fisher, Billy Dee Williams,

Anthony Daniels, David Prowse, Peter Mayhew, Kenny Baker, Frank Oz, Alec Guinness, Clive Revill, Julian Glover, John Ratzenberger, voice of James Earl Jones. Smashing sequel to STAR WARS manages to top the original in its embellishment of leading characters' personalities, truly dazzling special effects (which earned a special Oscar) and nonstop spirit of adventure and excitement. Story threads include a blossoming romance between Han Solo and Princess Leia, the cosmic education of Luke Skywalker (by the mystical Yoda), an uneasy alliance with opportunistic Lando Calrissian, and a startling revelation from Darth Vader. 1997 reissue included 3 minutes of additional footage. Full title onscreen is STAR WARS EPISODE V: THE EMPIRE STRIKES BACK. Sequel: RETURN OF THE JEDI. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Employee of the Month (2006) C-108m. *½ D: Greg Coolidge. Dane Cook, Jessica Simpson, Dax Shepard, Andy Dick, Tim Bagley, Brian George, Efrén Ramirez, Harland Williams, Marcello Thedford, Danny Woodburn. At a warehouse store, slacker Cook and weasely Shepard compete and cheat for both knockout newbie Simpson and the title award. No laughs whatsoever in this CLERKS/OFFICE SPACE slapstick wannabe, and the performances are awful. Shot in New Mexico; too bad they didn't bury it there. [PG-13] ▼

Employees' Entrance (1933) 75m.  D: Roy Del Ruth. Warren William, Loretta Young, Wallace Ford, Alice White, Allen Jenkins. Zesty pre-Code look at life in a department store and its ruthless, amoral manager. Gripping, funny, outrageous, racy. Based on a stage play. ▼

Empty Canvas, The (1963-French-Italian) 118m. *½ D: Damiano Damiani. Bette Davis, Horst Buchholz, Catherine Spaak, Isa Miranda, Lea Padovani, Daniela Rocca, Georges Wilson. Artist Buchholz is obsessed with model Spaak, eventually decorates her naked body with bank notes. Davis is his wealthy mother; hopefully, she was well paid for her time. Based on an Alberto Moravia novel. ▼

Empty Mirror, The (1999) C-119m. *½ D: Barry J. Hershey. Norman Rodway, Joel Grey, Peter Michael Goetz, Glenn Shadix, Camilla Soeberg, Doug McKeon. Ignorant of time and place, we're thrust into a strange environment where Adolf Hitler encounters key people from his past as he dictates his memoirs. Surreal, ambitious film, intercut with footage from TRIUMPH OF THE WILL and Eva Braun's home movies, pretty well lives up to its title: there's not much to reflect on. Grey's appearance as Joseph Goebbels is an interesting career counterpart to his m.c. from CABARET. [PG-13] ▼

Lima. Amy Adams, Patrick Dempsey, James Marsden, Timothy Spall, Susan Sarandon, Idina Menzel, Rachel Covey; narrated by Julie Andrews. Wide-eyed Giselle (Adams) from Andalusia, about to marry a handsome prince, is hurled down a well by the evil queen and emerges in modern-day Manhattan. Divorce lawyer Dempsey and his 6-year-old daughter try to help her, though he can't believe she's for real. Adams' glowing performance buoys this delightful Disney fantasy, which opens with lush, hand-drawn animation (supervised by James Baxter) and segues into live-action. Terrific songs by Alan Menken and Stephen Schwartz include "That's How You Know," which inspires a dazzling production number in Central Park. Memorable costumes by Mona May. Affectionate spoof of classic Disney fairy tales features Jodi Benson (the voice of Ariel), Paige O'Hara (Belle), and Judy Kuhn (Pocahontas) in small parts. Only the finale seems anticlimactic—and unnecessary. Super 35. [PG] D

Enchanted April (1935) 66m. ½ D: Harry Beaumont. Ann Harding, Frank Morgan, Katharine Alexander, Reginald Owen, Jane Baxter, Ralph Forbes, Jessie Ralph, Charles Judels, Rafaela Ottiano. Nicely realized adaptation of Elizabeth von Arnim's novel about two repressed Englishwomen who leave their husbands to rent an Italian villa for a month—and blossom in the rarefied atmosphere. Harding is ideal in the lead, but Owen is way over the top as a British blowhard. Improved upon by the 1991 remake.

Enchanted April (1991-British) C-101m. ½ D: Mike Newell. Josie Lawrence, Miranda Richardson, Joan Plowright, Polly Walker, Alfred Molina, Jim Broadbent, Michael Kitchen, Adriana Facheddi. Utterly charming film about two repressed, married women who seize an impulse and rent an Italian villa for a month, taking on two very different women as housemates for this daring adventure. Ideally cast, nicely realized, and very romantic. Screenplay by Peter Barnes. Elizabeth von Arnim's 1921 novel was filmed before in 1935. Made for British television, released theatrically in the U.S. [PG] **▼●●

Enchanted Cottage, The (1945) 92m. ½ D: John Cromwell. Dorothy McGuire, Robert Young, Herbert Marshall, Mildred Natwick, Spring Byington, Hillary Brooke. Adaptation of Arthur Pinero play about two misfits, a homely woman and a disfigured man, who find each other beautiful in the enchanted cottage. Never quite as good as you'd like it to be. Previously filmed in 1924. Some prints run 78m. **▼●●

with elderly Niven recalling his tragic love as he watches great-niece Keyes' romance with Granger. **▼●●

Encino Man (1992) C-89m. *½ D: Les Mayfield. Sean Astin, Brendan Fraser, Pauly Shore, Megan Ward, Robin Tunney, Rick Ducommun, Mariette Hartley, Richard Masur, Rose McGowan. Nerdy teenager Astin and his weirdo pal Shore dig up a frozen caveman in Astin's suburban L.A. backyard. The scant laughs come from plunging the affable Cro-Magnon into teenage life, circa 1992. Formulaic teen comedy; Shore's bogus slang irritates, but limber, good-natured Fraser (as the cave-dude) has his moments. Followed by 1996 TV sequel, ENCINO WOMAN. [PG] **▼●●

Encore (1952-British) 85m.  D: Pat Jackson, Anthony Pelissier, Harold French, Nigel Patrick, Roland Culver, Kay Walsh, Glynis Johns, Terence Morgan. Entertaining trilogy of Somerset Maugham stories: brothers try to outdo one another over money; busybody matron almost ruins ship cruise; apprehensive circus performer faces a crisis. **▼

Encounters at the End of the World (2008) C-101m. ½ D: Werner Herzog. On assignment for the National Science Foundation, Herzog idiosyncratically profiles Antarctica, a land of no natives, no flora, no crime. Spiraling deeper into the continent's dreamy mysteries—among them, a tragically deranged penguin—the film dives far under an icy surface that might be no more than eight inches thick. It also profiles some of the brilliant misfits who have fallen to the bottom of the planet. This right-brain travelogue feeds the mind, the eye, and the mind's eye. Wryly, sometimes impatiently, narrated by the director, who dedicates the film to Roger Ebert. [G] D

End, The (1978) C-100m.  D: Burt Reynolds, Burt Reynolds, Sally Field, Dom DeLuise, Joanne Woodward, Kristy McNichol, Robby Benson, David Steinberg, Norman Fell, Carl Reiner, Pat O'Brien, Myrna Loy. Uneven but original black comedy by Jerry Belson about man who learns he's dying and decides to commit suicide. DeLuise is achingly funny as Burt's schizophrenic sanitarium pal, and Reynolds' final soliloquy is great (in uncensored version). [R] **▼●●

Endless Love (1981) C-115m. BOMB

D: Franco Zeffirelli. Brooke Shields, Martin Hewitt, Shirley Knight, Don Murray, Richard Kiley, Beatrice Straight, James Spader, Robert Moore, Penelope Milford, Jan Miner, Tom Cruise, Jami Gertz. Scott Spencer's deservedly praised novel about an obsessive romance between two teenagers is thoroughly trashed in textbook example of how to do everything wrong in a literary adaptation. Rightfully regarded as one of the worst films of its time. Cruise's and Spader's film debuts. [R]▼●

Endless Night (1972-British) C-99m.  D: Sidney Gilliat. Hayley Mills, Hywel Bennett, Britt Ekland, George Sanders, Per Oscarsson, Peter Bowles, Lois Maxwell. Gripping Agatha Christie thriller about chauffeur (Bennett) who marries rich American girl (Mills) and moves into "dream house" which turns out to be more a nightmare. Aka AGATHA CHRISTIE'S ENDLESS NIGHT.▼●●

Endless Summer, The (1966) C-95m.  D: Bruce Brown. Mike Hynson, Robert August. Enjoyable documentary on surfing, filmed on location around the world, with a most diverting tongue-in-cheek narrative. Followed by a sequel—28 years later. Followed in 2000 by ENDLESS SUMMER REVISITED.▼●●

Endless Summer II, The (1994) C-107m.  D: Bruce Brown. Patrick O'Connell, Robert "Wingnut" Weaver. Superior sequel to Brown's 1966 surfing documentary, enhanced this time by a bigger budget and sophisticated camera work. Exotic locales and eye-popping surfing footage will make this a must-see for hot-doggers; others will still enjoy the unspoiled beauty of big-wave beaches from Alaska to Java. Several of the veteran surfers from the original documentary turn up here as does some brief topless beachbunny nudity. Brown's son continued the surfing odyssey with STEP INTO LIQUID. [PG]▼●●

End of Days (1999) C-122m. *½ D: Peter Hyams. Arnold Schwarzenegger, Gabriel Byrne, Kevin Pollak, Robin Tunney, CCH Pounder, Rod Steiger, Derrick O'Connor, Miriam Margolyes, Udo Kier. The Devil takes the form of a wealthy New Yorker (Byrne) and sets out to find his pre-ordained bride; if he can impregnate her before midnight on New Year's Eve, 1999, he will bring about Hell on Earth, or Armageddon, or something. However, Satan never reckoned with Arnold, who's actually quite good as the burned-out cop/defender of humanity. Overproduced junk. Super 35. [R]▼●●

a breakdown, thanks to quarreling parents and a rich assortment of rotten men. Passionately acted by Cannon, who as a writer-director may have been in over her head. [R]▼

End of the Affair, The (1955-British) 106m. ½ D: Edward Dmytryk. Deborah Kerr, Van Johnson, John Mills, Peter Cushing, Michael Goodliffe. Graham Greene's mystic-religious novel about a wartime love affair in London loses much in screen version, especially from mismatched stars. Remade in 1999.▼●

End of the Affair, The (1999-British-U.S.) C-109m.  D: Neil Jordan. Ralph Fiennes, Julianne Moore, Stephen Rea, Ian Hart, Samuel Bould, Jason Isaacs. Finely wrought rendition of Graham Greene's (reportedly autobiographical) novel about a WW2 love affair that takes a surprising turn when the married woman (a radiant Moore) has an unexplained change of heart. Director-screenwriter Jordan captures the understatement and nuance of a vintage British drama with his keen eye and gifted stars. [R]▼●

End of the Game (1976-German-Italian) C-103m.  D: Maximilian Schell. Jon Voight, Jacqueline Bisset, Martin Ritt, Robert Shaw, Gabriele Ferzetti, Donald Sutherland. Complex thriller about dying police commissioner Ritt, who for three decades has been trying to nail omnipotent criminal Shaw. Director Ritt, in a rare acting role, is excellent; Voight plays his assistant, and Sutherland appears as a dead man! Based on Friedrich Duerrenmatt's novel; aka GETTING AWAY WITH MURDER. [PG]

End of the Line (1987) C-105m. * D: Jay Russell. Wilford Brimley, Levon Helm, Mary Steenburgen, Barbara Barrie, Kevin Bacon, Holly Hunter, Bob Balaban, Clint Howard, Rita Jenrette, Howard Morris, Bruce McGill, Trey Wilson. Two lifelong Southern railroad workers, suddenly unemployed when their parent company abandons the rails for air freight, take off for the Chicago corporate headquarters in a stolen engine. Labor of love for executive producer Steenburgen begins promisingly, quickly degenerates into silly Capra-esque fantasy. Cast makes it a curio. [PG]▼●●

End of the Road (1970) C-110m. ½ D: Aram Avakian. Stacy Keach, Harris Yulin, Dorothy Tristan, James Earl Jones, Grayson Hall, Ray Brock, James Coco. Keach and Jones give stinging performances in solid filmization of bizarre John Barth novel about unstable college instructor who becomes involved with the wife of a professor. Tristan is superb in crucial and difficult role. Screenplay by Dennis McGuire, Terry Southern, and the director. [X]▼●

End of the World (1977) C-87m. * D: John Hayes. Christopher Lee, Sue Lyon, Kirk Scott, Lew Ayres, Macdonald Carey,

Dean Jagger, Liz Ross. Lee plays a priest and his sinister "double" in this strange sci-fi tale about imminent world destruction by alien invaders. Opens strong but drifts into dullness. [PG] ▼

End of the World in Our Usual Bed in a Night Full of Rain, The SEE: Night Full of Rain, A

End of Violence, The (1997) C-122m.  D: Wim Wenders. Bill Pullman, Andie MacDowell, Gabriel Byrne, Traci Lind, Loren Dean, Daniel Benzali, Pruitt Taylor Vince, John Diehl, Peter Horton, Rosalind Chao, Frederic Forrest, Sam Fuller. Wenders' first American film since PARIS, TEXAS is gorgeous to look at but fuzzy and half-baked. Movie producer Pullman hides out with a Mexican family after surviving a professional "hit" that may have something to do with a high-tech security project being run out of L.A.'s Griffith Park Observatory. Lind is appealing as a stuntwoman, MacDowell less so packing a rod while decked out in bikini nightwear. Ry Cooder's score sells the movie to a point, just as it did for UNTIL THE END OF THE WORLD. Super 35. [R] ▼

Endurance (1999) C-82m. ½ D: Leslie Woodhead. Interesting, well-made docudrama about Ethiopian long-distance runner Haile Gebrselassie, who won a Gold Medal at the 1996 Atlanta Olympic Games. Dramatically recreates his difficult childhood and the decisions leading up to his extraordinary running career. (Haile is portrayed by his nephew in flashback; his sister plays his mother.) Matter-of-fact, even sleepy at times, and missing the conclusive emotional punch you're waiting for. Olympic footage directed by Bud Greenspan. Coproduced by Terrence Malick and based on his idea. Super 35. [G] ▼

Enduring Love (2004-British) C-100m. ½ D: Roger Michell. Daniel Craig, Rhys Ifans, Samantha Morton, Bill Nighy, Susan Lynch, Corin Redgrave. "Obsessive" love might be more apt. Professor Craig, picnicking in the countryside with girlfriend Morton, tries to assist balloonists in distress. Back in London, he not only can't shake the incident, he's puzzled by a visit from Ifans, a rural loner he met that fateful day. Contemporary psychological study of not just love but the fragility of relationships and the world around us; worth checking out. From a novel by Ian McEwan. Craig, director Michell, and producer Kevin Loader teamed the previous year on THE MOTHER. Super 35. [R] ▼

Enemies, A Love Story (1989) C-119m. ½ D: Paul Mazursky. Anjelica Huston, Ron Silver, Lena Olin, Margaret Sophie Stein, Alan King, Judith Malina, Rita Karlin, Phil Leeds, Elya Baskin, Paul Mazursky. Quietly haunting film about an aloof Jewish intellectual (Silver) who managed to hide from the Nazis during WW2 and now, in 1949, leads a double life in

Coney Island, N.Y., married to his wartime protector (Stein) and fooling around with a sexy married woman (Olin). Things get even more complicated when his first wife (Huston), who was thought dead, turns up. Typically quixotic Isaac Bashevis Singer material—full of irony, wit, and heartbreak—is beautifully realized by Mazursky (who cowrote the screenplay with Roger L. Simon) and a perfect cast. Kudos also to Pato Guzman for his incredibly evocative production design. [R] ▼

Enemy at the Gates (2001-German-British-Irish-U.S.) C-131m. ½ D: Jean-Jacques Annaud. Joseph Fiennes, Jude Law, Rachel Weisz, Ed Harris, Bob Hoskins, Ron Perlman, Eva Mattes, Gabriel Marshall-Thomson. A Russian sharpshooter is built up to be a hero to bolster his country's morale during the tense days surrounding the Battle of Stalingrad. As a result, the Germans send their top marksman (Harris) to pick him off, leading to a deadly battle of wits. Starts off strong but loses its way; interesting WW2 story is diminished by a silly romantic subplot. Super 35. [R] ▼

Enemy Below, The (1957) C-98m.  D: Dick Powell. Robert Mitchum, Curt Jurgens, Theodore Bikel, Doug McClure, Russell Collins, David Hedison. Fine submarine chase tale, which manages to garner interest from usual crew interaction of U.S. vs. Germany in underwater action; the special effects for this earned Walter Rossi an Academy Award. CinemaScope. ▼

Enemy From Space SEE: Quatermass 2: Enemy From Space

Enemy Mine (1985) C-108m. ½ D: Wolfgang Petersen. Dennis Quaid, Louis Gossett, Jr., Brion James, Richard Marcus. Mortal space enemies are stranded together on a barren planet, forced to become friends in order to survive. Warmhearted science-fiction tale gets a bit too cuddly at times, but it's entertaining. Gossett's lizardlike makeup (by Chris Walas) is incredible; so is Rolf Zehetbauer's production design. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Enemy of the People, An (1979) C-103m. ½ D: George Schaefer. Steve McQueen, Charles Durning, Bibi Andersson, Richard Bradford, Robin Pearson Rose, Richard A. Dysart. Bearded scientist McQueen defies community by taking stand against polluted water system in Arthur Miller's adaptation of the Ibsen play. Sincere, plodding effort was a labor of love for McQueen, but understandably sat on the shelf for years and received limited distribution. Still superior to other films from McQueen's final period. Filmed in 1977. [G] ▼

Enemy of the People, An (1989-Indian) C-100m. ½ D: Satyajit Ray. Soumitra Chatterjee, Dhritiman Chatterjee, Ruma Guhathakurta, Mamata Shankar, Dipankar

Dey. Adaptation of the Ibsen play, updated and set in Bengal. Its message, about the perils of greed, religious fanaticism, and environmental pollution may be topical, but the film is too static. Still, there are enough flashes of Ray's brilliance to make it worthwhile. The director also scripted.

Enemy of the State (1998) C-132m.  D: Tony Scott. Will Smith, Gene Hackman, Jon Voight, Lisa Bonet, Regina King, Stuart Wilson, Tom Sizemore, Loren Dean, Barry Pepper, Ian Hart, Jake Busey, Scott Caan, Jason Lee, Gabriel Byrne, James LeGros, Dan Butler, Jamie Kennedy, Bodhi Pine Elfman, Jack Black. Crackerjack thriller about a successful D.C. lawyer who happens to get in the way of a ruthless executive at the National Security Agency (Voight). The NSA official finds it necessary to ruin the attorney's reputation and throw his life into disarray... but the lawyer finds help from an unlikely source. Never takes a breath! Jason Robards appears unbilled. Unrated version runs 140m. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Enforcer, The (1951) 87m.  D: Bretaigne Windust. Humphrey Bogart, Zero Mostel, Ted de Corsia, Everett Sloane, Roy Roberts. When informer de Corsia dies, D.A. Bogart has to find another way to prove that Sloane is the head of a murder-for-hire ring. Loosely based on the true story of Murder, Inc., this is a generally effective, moody thriller. Mostel is particularly good as a frightened crook.▼●●

Enforcer, The (1976) C-96m.  D: James Fargo. Clint Eastwood, Tye Daly, Harry Guardino, Bradford Dillman, John Mitchum, DeVeren Bookwalter, John Crawford, Albert Popwell. Rule-breaking detective Dirty Harry Callahan (Eastwood) has to contend with a female partner (Daly) as he goes after an underground terrorist group in San Francisco. Violent, bubble-gum-mentality script, but it's a formula that just seems to work. Followed by SUDEN IMPACT. Panavision. [R]▼●●

England Made Me (1973-British) C-100m.  D: Peter Duffell. Peter Finch, Michael York, Hildegard Neil, Michael Hordern, Joss Ackland. Unappreciated in its initial release, drama of a powerful financier in Nazi Germany of 1935 is absorbing, thoughtful fare. Made in Yugoslavia. [PG]

Englishman Who Went Up a Hill, but Came Down a Mountain, The (1995-British) C-99m. ½ D: Christopher Monger. Hugh Grant, Tara Fitzgerald, Colm Meaney, Ian McNeice, Ian Hart, Kenneth Griffith, Tudor Vaughn, Hugh Vaughn. Two British mapmakers raise the ire of a Welsh community during WW1 when they designate the village's prized landmark a hill and not a you-know-what. Woe be the one-joke movie when the joke isn't much of a grabber, despite being based on real Welsh legend. Agreeable cast and attractive physical trap-

English Patient, The (1996) C-162m. ½ D: Anthony Minghella. Ralph Fiennes, Juliette Binoche, Willem Dafoe, Kristin Scott Thomas, Naveen Andrews, Colin Firth, Julian Wadham, Jürgen Prochnow, Kevin Whately. Mesmerizing adaptation (by Minghella) of Michael Ondaatje's novel about a man badly burned in a WW2 plane crash in the African desert; a Canadian nurse (Binoche) tends to him in an abandoned monastery in Italy, and slowly, bit by bit, his story emerges. Fiennes and Scott Thomas are perfectly matched in this intelligent, passionate romance about two people thrown together by chance during a tumultuous period. The story unfolds novelistically, layer by layer, drawing the viewer in with its sinuous, sensuous images and jarring depictions of wartime brutality. Strikingly photographed by John Seale. An exceptional achievement all around. Winner of nine Oscars: Best Picture, Director, Cinematography, Supporting Actress (Binoche), Art Direction, Sound, Score (Gabriel Yared), Costumes, and Editing. [R]▼●●

Enid Is Sleeping (1990) C-100m.  D: Maurice Phillips. Elizabeth Perkins, Judge Reinhold, Jeffrey Jones, Maureen Mueller, Rhea Perlman, Michael J. Pollard. Very black comedy about a woman who accidentally kills her much-hated sister—after being caught sleeping with her husband (who happens to be a police officer). Macabre humor may not be to everyone's taste, but slapstick antics with the "dead" body and genuine character development put this leagues ahead of the similar WEEK-END AT BERNIE'S. Severely cut by its studio, then reclaimed (and restored) by its star and director; a triumph for Perkins, who's never been better. Video title: OVER HER DEAD BODY. [R]▼●

Enigma (1982-British-French) C-101m. ½ D: Jeannot Szwarc. Martin Sheen, Brigitte Fossey, Sam Neill, Derek Jacobi, Michel Lonsdale, Frank Finlay. The KGB sends out five crack assassins to eliminate five Soviet dissidents; CIA agent Sheen (who's apparently seen NOTORIOUS once too often) tries to stop them by having ex-lover Fossey cozy up to top Russian agent Neill. Fine cast does its best with so-so material; script by John Briley. [PG]▼

Enigma (2001-British-German-U.S.) C-119m. ½ D: Michael Apted. Dougray Scott, Kate Winslet, Jeremy Northam, Saffron Burrows, Tom Hollander, Corin Redgrave. A burned-out cryptographer is brought back to active duty at Bletchley Park where, during WW2, several hundred British operatives work day and night to crack the Nazi code—and understand the workings of their brilliantly designed "enigma" machine. Great material

(adapted from Robert Harris' book by Tom Stoppard) and faultless re-creation of the period ought to make for a top-notch film, but this one peters out as it becomes unfocused and—yes—confusing. Coproduced by Mick Jagger, who appears briefly in a club scene. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Enigma of Kaspar Hauser, The SEE: Every Man for Himself and God Against All Enjo (1958-Japanese) 96m. ½ D: Kon Ichikawa. Raizo Ichikawa, Tatsuya Nakadai, Ganjiro Nakamura, Yoko Uraji, Tanie Kitabayashi. Troubled young novice priest Ichikawa cannot handle corruption around him and burns down a temple. Perceptive psychological study of a human being's destruction; based on a Yukio Mishima novel, fashioned around a true story. Aka CONFLAGRATION. Daiescope.▼

Enormous Changes at the Last Minute (1983) C-115m. ½ D: Mirra Bank, Ellen Hovde. Maria Tucci, Lynn Milgrim, David Strathairn, Ellen Barkin, Ron McLarty, Zvee Scooler, Kevin Bacon, Jeffrey DeMunn, Studie Bond. Three separate dramas about contemporary women living in N.Y.C., and their relationships with husbands, ex-husbands, lovers, parents, children. Ambitious but uneven, with some good performances and touching moments. Screenplay by John Sayles with Susan Rice, based on the stories of Grace Paley. "Faith's Story" was filmed in 1978; "Virginia's Story" and "Alexandra's Story" in 1982. Aka TRUMPS.▼●

Enough (2002) C-115m. ½ D: Michael Apted. Jennifer Lopez, Billy Campbell, Juliette Lewis, Dan Futterman, Noah Wyle, Tessa Allen, Russell Milton, Chris Maher, Ruben Madera. Lopez plays a waitress who marries a customer and seems to be living happily ever after until she discovers what kind of man he really is and flees for her life, with her young daughter in tow. Lopez is well cast in this saga of domestic abuse (and revenge), but the ending is so set up and melodramatic that it robs us of real satisfaction. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Enron: The Smartest Guys in the Room (2005) C-113m.  D: Alex Gibney. Sharp documentary, based on the book by Bethany McLean and Peter Elkind, telescopes the Byzantine behind-the-scenes machinations that led to the collapse of the giant Houston energy company. Clean, understandable presentation of the events as they unfolded (with only an occasional nod to "wink-wink" filmmaking) and the larger implicit evils of corporate America. Some of the incriminating footage and facts involving bigwigs Kenneth Lay, Jeff Skilling, and Andy Fastow truly make the mind reel and the stomach turn. [R]▼

lie Perkins, Kay Medford. Flat sequel to MISTER ROBERTS has Walker sinking in Jack Lemmon role amid synthetic seaboard and coral-isle shenanigans. Worth noting for its large cast of future stars: Larry Haggman, Gerald O'Loughlin, Al Freeman, Jr., James Farentino, James Coco, Diana Sands, and Jack Nicholson. Panavision.▼

Enter Laughing (1967) C-112m.  D: Carl Reiner. Reni Santoni, Jose Ferrer, Shelley Winters, Elaine May, Jack Gilford, Janet Margolin, David Opatoshu, Michael J. Pollard, Don Rickles, Nancy Kovack, Rob Reiner. Reiner's funny semi-autobiographical Broadway play becomes bland screen comedy as youngster struggles to make it as an actor, despite all manner of problems in his way.▼

Entertainer, The (1960-British) 104m. ½ D: Tony Richardson. Laurence Olivier, Brenda de Banzie, Roger Livesey, Joan Plowright, Daniel Massey, Alan Bates, Shirley Anne Field, Albert Finney, Thora Hird. Seedy vaudevillian (Olivier, recreating his stage role) ruins everyone's life and won't catch on. Film captures flavor of chintzy seaside resort, complementing Olivier's brilliance as egotistical song-and-dance man. Coscripted by John Osborne, from his play. Film debuts of Bates and Finney. Olivier and Plowright married the following year. Remade as a 1975 TVM starring Jack Lemmon.▼●●

Entertaining Angels: The Dorothy Day Story (1996) C-110m.  D: Michael Ray Rhodes. Moira Kelly, Martin Sheen, Boyd Kestner, Lenny Von Dohlen, James Lancaster, Heather Graham, Paul Lieber, Heather Camille. By-the-numbers biography, set in the 1920s and '30s, of Dorothy Day (Kelly), the fabled Roman Catholic activist. Scenario spotlights her spiritual evolution from journalist and suffragette in Greenwich Village to her conversion to Roman Catholicism and her devotion to helping the poor. Disappointingly superficial. [PG-13]▼

Entertaining Mr. Sloane (1970-British) C-94m. ½ D: Douglas Hickox. Beryl Reid, Harry Andrews, Peter McNery, Alan Webb. Acting by McNery, Reid, and Andrews is extraordinary in story of young man who becomes involved with both brother and sister. Uneven adaptation of Joe Orton play.▼

Enter the Dragon (1973) C-97m. ½ D: Robert Clouse. Bruce Lee, John Saxon, Jim Kelly, Ahna Capri, Yang Tse, Angela Mao. Almost perfect Kung Fu film that forgets about plot and concentrates on mind-boggling action. Martial arts expert Lee (in last complete film role) infiltrates strange tournament on island fortress. This was filmed after (but released before) Lee's RETURN OF THE DRAGON. 3m. added on video in 1998. Aka THE DEADLY THREE. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Enter the Ninja (1981) C-94m. *½ D: Menahem Golan. Franco Nero, Susan George, Sho Kosugi, Alex Courtney, Will Hare, Zachi Noy, Dale Ishimoto, Christopher George. Ninjitsu master Nero takes on greedy Christopher George and old rival Kosugi. Third-rate chop-socky actioner and certainly no ENTER THE DRAGON. Original running time: 99m. Followed by REVENGE OF THE NINJA. [R]▼

Entity, The (1983) C-115m.  D: Sidney J. Furie. Barbara Hershey, Ron Silver, Jacqueline Brooks, David Lablosa, George Coe, Margaret Blye, Alex Rocco. Woman is raped repeatedly by giant invisible mass. Her psychiatrist thinks it's all in the mind, until parapsychologists set a trap for the critter. Effectively sensational but atrociously exploitive; supposedly based on actual incident. Panavision. [R]▼

Entrapment (1999) C-112m. ½ D: Jon Amiel. Sean Connery, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Will Patton, Ving Rhames, Maury Chaykin. American insurance investigator Zeta-Jones convinces her boss to let her set the bait to capture world-class art thief Connery, leading to a gigantic cat-and-mouse game played out in London and Kuala Lumpur. The two stars are easy to watch, and there are lots of gimmicky action scenes, but it's all rather flat. Connery coexecutive-produced. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Entre Nous (1983-French) C-110m. ½ D: Diane Kurys. Miou Miou, Isabelle Huppert, Guy Marchand, Jean-Pierre Bacri, Robin Renucci, Patrick Bauchau. Moving, multilayered story of two women who form a bond of friendship that lasts many years, takes many turns, and threatens their ineffectual husbands. Compassionate telling by Kurys of her own mother's story, with extraordinary performances all around. Original French title: COUP DE FOUDE. Followed by C'EST LA VIE. Panavision. [PG]▼

Envy (2004) C-99m. *½ D: Barry Levinson. Ben Stiller, Jack Black, Rachel Weisz, Christopher Walken, Amy Poehler. The close relationship between two best friends who live across the street from each other changes drastically when one of them hits the jackpot with an invention that turns him into a multimillionaire. The cast can't be faulted for this wrong-headed comedy misfire, but the script can; it's unpleasant at best, mean at worst, a sketch idea drawn out to feature length. [PG-13]▼

Epic Movie (2007) C-85m. BOMB D: Jason Friedberg, Aaron Seltzer. Kal Penn, Adam Campbell, Jennifer Coolidge, Jayma Mays, Fauna A. Chambers. Four siblings find themselves meandering through lame slapstick parodies of recent epic movies and other obvious pop-culture targets. Typically tedious, unfunny hack job, with an array of cameo appearances including Crispin Glover, who (as a perverted, sadistic Willy Wonka) provides the film with its only moments of admittedly sordid energy. Unrated version runs 93m. [PG-13]▼

Equilibrium (2002) C-107m.  D: Kurt Wimmer. Christian Bale, Emily Watson, Taye Diggs, Angus Macfadyen, Sean Bean, David Hemmings, Matthew Harbour, William Fichtner. In the future, any display of emotion is against the law; citizens take a daily drug, and transgressors are punished by an elite corps of police. Writer-director Wimmer's warmed-over rehash of 1984, Brave New World, and Fahrenheit 451 doesn't make a lot of sense (some of the leading characters do show emotion), but it isn't worth the time or effort to figure out. Bale is so intense here it seems as if he might implode at any moment. Super 35. [R]▼

Equinox (1971) C-80m.  D: Jack Woods. Edward Connell, Barbara Hewitt, Frank Boers, Jr. (Frank Bonner), Robin Christopher, Jack Woods, Fritz Leiber. Archaeology students confront Satanism—and mutantlike monsters—while searching for vanished professor. Late-1960s amateur film (directed by later special-effects Oscar winner Dennis Muren) was reworked for theatrical release, mixing movie clichés with good special effects. This film took several years to complete, and the young cast obviously ages in it. Aka THE BEAST. [M/PG]▼

Equinox (1993) C-110m.  D: Alan Rudolph. Matthew Modine, Lara Flynn Boyle, Fred Ward, Tyra Ferrell, Marisa Tomei, Kevin J. O'Connor, Tate Donovan, Lori Singer, M. Emmet Walsh, Gailard Sartain, Mark Modine. Slow-moving mystery with Modine playing two men—a weakling auto mechanic and an underworld tough guy—who live in the same city and lead parallel lives. Typically quirky Rudolph drama, but weaker than most; rife with commentary on contemporary mores and morals. [R]▼

Equus (1977) C-138m. ½ D: Sidney Lumet. Richard Burton, Peter Firth, Colin Blakely, Joan Plowright, Harry Andrews, Eileen Atkins, Jenny Agutter. Peter Shaffer's shattering play makes bumpy screen adaptation, its vivid theatricality lost on film; Burton, however, is superb as troubled psychiatrist trying to unlock deep-rooted problems of stable boy Firth. [R]▼

value). Based on the first in a series of popular books by Christopher Paolini. Super 35. [PG] Eraser (1996) C-114m.  D: Charles Russell. Arnold Schwarzenegger, James Caan, Vanessa Williams, James Coburn, Robert Pastorelli, James Cromwell, Danny Nucci, Roma Maffia, Camryn Manheim. High-octane, high-tech, violent and cartoonish action-thriller about a specialist in the Federal Witness Protection Program who vows to keep a female witness safe and sticks to his word even after he becomes as much a target as she. Explosive, cutting-edge action and special effects give fans their money's worth, and then some. Indefensible on any artistic level, but lots of fun. Panavision. [R] Eraserhead (1978) 90m.  D: David Lynch. John (Jack) Nance, Charlotte Stewart, Allen Joseph, Jeanne Bates, Judith Anna Roberts, Laurel Near, V. Phipps-Wilson. Brooding experimental film full of repulsive imagery tells story of zombielike misfit, his spastic girlfriend, and their half-human offspring. Bona fide cult film is full of surreal, nightmarish tangents. Feature film debut of director Lynch. Erendira (1983-Mexican-French-German) C-103m. ½ D: Ruy Guerra. Irene Papas, Claudia Ohana, Michael Lonsdale, Oliver Wehe, Rufus. Strange does not begin to describe this fable of queenly Papas forcing beautiful, obedient granddaughter Ohana into prostitution in a vast, surreal desert. Ambitious and fluidly directed, but unmemorable; from a screenplay by Gabriel Garcia Marquez. Remade as ERENDIRA IKIKUNAI (2008). Erik the Conqueror (1961-Italian) C-81m.  D: Mario Bava. Cameron Mitchell, Alice Kessler, Ellen Kessler, Françoise Christophe. Unexceptional account of 10th-century Viking life, with Mitchell fighting for virtue and love. Released on video as THE INVADERS at 88m. Dyaliscope. Erik the Viking (1989-British) C-104m. BOMB D: Terry Jones. Tim Robbins, Mickey Rooney, Eartha Kitt, Terry Jones, Imogen Stubbs, John Cleese, Antony Sher, Gordon John Sinclair, Freddie Jones. Robbins is a revisionist Erik, but what's the Norse expression for "unwatchable satire"? Director's cut runs 79m. [PG-13] Erin Brockovich (2000) C-131m.  D: Steven Soderbergh. Julia Roberts, Albert Finney, Aaron Eckhart, Marg Helgenberger, Cherry Jones, Conchata Ferrell, Tracey Walter, Mimi Kennedy, Peter Coyote. Roberts won a Best Actress Oscar for her performance as a brassy, divorced mother of three, at the end of her rope; she talks her way into a job in Finney's law office, then becomes obsessed with a pro bono case involving residents of a California desert town who have been exposed to poisonous polluted water. Energetic, engaging David vs. Goliath story never states—or overstates—the obvious, and travels far on Roberts' charisma and Finney's expertise.

That's the real Erin Brockovich playing a waitress. [R] Ernest Goes to Camp (1987) C-93m. *½ D: John R. Cherry 3rd. Jim Varney, Victoria Racimo, John Vernon, Iron Eyes Cody, Lyle Alzado, Gailard Sartain. Ernest, an obnoxious dimwit popularized in a spate of TV commercials, is the star of this clumsy and unfunny comedy about a dumb cluck who wants to be a summer camp counselor in the worst way—and gets his wish. Aimed at children who aren't very bright. Followed by ERNEST SAVES CHRISTMAS. [PG] Ernest Goes to Jail (1990) C-82m.  D: John Cherry. Jim Varney, Gailard Sartain, Bill Byrge, Barbara Bush, Randall (Tex) Cobb, Barry Scott, Charles Napier. Third in the surprisingly successful series about Ernest P. Worrell finds our hero in prison as the result of a switch set up by an evil inmate look-alike (also played by Varney). Harmless, predictable, and hokey. Followed by ERNEST SCARED STUPID. [PG] Ernest Goes to School (1994) C-90m. BOMB D: Coke Sams. Jim Varney, Linda Kash, Bill Byrge, Corrine Koslo, Kevin McNulty, Jason Michas. Sub-atomic brain accelerator is used to make Chickasaw Falls High's school custodian, Ernest, a temporary genius in an attempt to undermine a plot to close the school. Completely predictable and unfunny; only for die-hard Ernest fans. Followed by SLAM DUNK ERNEST. [PG] Ernest Saves Christmas (1988) C-89m. *½ D: John Cherry. Jim Varney, Douglas Seale, Oliver Clark, Noelle Parker, Robert Lesser, Gailard Sartain, Billie Bird. The title character, who makes Gomer Pyle seem like Albert Einstein, attempts to help Santa Claus on Christmas Eve. This is one Christmas present to be opened with extreme caution . . . unless you're a fan of Ernest P. Worrell. Followed by ERNEST GOES TO JAIL. [PG] Ernest Scared Stupid (1991) C-91m. *½ D: John Cherry. Jim Varney, Eartha Kitt, Austin Nagler, Jonas Moscartolo, Shay Astar. The fourth Ernest P. Worrell feature has a patently redundant title. Originally released at Halloween time, the story has dimwitted Ernest inadvertently releasing a villainous troll from its tomb. Pretty lame; Kitt is wasted as a witch. Followed by ERNEST GOES TO SCHOOL. [PG] Eros (2004-French-Italian-U.S.-Hong Kong) C/B&W-108m. *½ D: Wong Kar-wai, Steven Soderbergh, Michelangelo Antonioni. Gong Li, Chang Chen, Robert Downey, Jr., Alan Arkin, Christopher Buchholz, Regina Nemni, Luisa Ranieri. As if they were facing an overpowering baseball pitcher in the ninth inning, three internationally renowned directors strike out 1-2-3 in this anthology. Wong's episode is the meatiest, but seems twice as long as it is: A young tailor remains faithful to a courtesan (Gong) through her long professional slide. Shrink Arkin and patient Downey bandy in Soderbergh's shaggy dog joke, unworthy of the wait for a punch line. Antonioni's segment about an impaired relationship is the least substantive but most fun to watch; he still has his camera eye. [R] ●

Erotique (1993-U.S.-German) C-93m.  D: Lizzie Borden, Monika Treut, Clara Law, Kamela Lopez-Dawson, Bryan Cranston, Liane Curtis, Priscilla Barnes, Camilla Soeberg, Michael Carr, Peter Kern, Marianne Sägebrecth, Tim Lounibos, Hayley Man, Choi Hark-kin. Uneven feature in three parts, each a story with a female slant. Borden's piece, about a phone sex worker exacting revenge against one of her callers, is obvious and annoying; Treut tells the trite tale of a pair of lesbians who set out to seduce a man. By far the best of the lot is Law's perceptive study of the cultural differences between a Hong Kong woman and her Australian-Chinese boyfriend. A fourth episode, the muddled account of a teacher's erotic encounter while on a trip, was excluded from the final print but added to the video release. It is directed by Ana Maria Magalhaes and stars Claudia Ohana and Guilherme Leme. Video running time is 117m. ▼●●

Errand Boy, The (1961) 92m. ½ D: Jerry Lewis. Jerry Lewis, Brian Donlevy, Howard McNear, Sig Ruman, Fritz Feld, Iris Adrian, Kathleen Freeman, Doodles Weaver, Renee Taylor. Jerry on the loose in a movie studio has its moments. Long string of gags provide the laughter; veteran character actors produce the sparkle. ▼●●

Escapade (1955-British) 87m.  D: Philip Leacock. John Mills, Yvonne Mitchell, Alastair Sim, Jeremy Spenser, Andrew Ray, Marie Lohr, Peter Asher. Mills is a professional pacifist whose life is anything but tranquil; his three sons, fearing that their parents are about to be divorced, react in a most unusual manner. Ambitious, insightful, solidly acted drama about the cynicism and hypocrisy of adults and the idealism of youth. Stick with this. ▼

Escapade in Japan (1957) C-93m.  D: Arthur Lubin. Cameron Mitchell, Teresa Wright, Jon Provost, Roger Nakagawa, Philip Ober, Kuniko Miyake, Susumu Fujita. Stunning location filming in Japan is the prime asset of this forgettable adventure about two young boys, one American and the other Japanese, and their search for the former's parents. Clint Eastwood appears briefly as a pilot. Technirama. ▼ polished, with sterling cast. Based on Ethel Vance's 1939 best-seller.

Escape (1948) 78m.  D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Rex Harrison, Peggy Cummins, William Hartnell, Norman Wooland, Jill Esmond, Frederick Piper, Marjorie Rhodes, Betty Ann Davies, Cyril Cusack. Intelligent, well-paced story of law-abiding man for whom a chance encounter leads to a prison sentence; morally outraged, he determines to escape. Harrison is excellent as the cerebral hero of this John Galsworthy story (which was filmed before in 1930). Shot on natural locations around England. Screenplay by Philip Dunne.

Escape Artist, The (1982) C-96m.  D: Caleb Deschanel. Griffin O'Neal, Raul Julia, Teri Garr, Joan Hackett, Gabriel Dell, Elizabeth Daily, Hederico (Desi) Arnaz, Huntz Hall, Jackie Coogan, M. Emmet Walsh, David Clennon, Harry Anderson, Carlin Glynn, Margaret Ladd. Maddeningly muddled tale of teenager O'Neal, an amateur magician, and the adults who attempt to exploit him. Griffin, son of Ryan and brother of Tatum, has a pleasing screen presence. Directorial debut for cinematographer Deschanel. [PG] ▼●

Escape From Alcatraz (1979) C-112m.  D: Donald Siegel. Clint Eastwood, Patrick McGohran, Roberts Blossom, Jack Thibeaue, Fred Ward, Paul Benjamin. Straightforward, methodical telling of true story about 1962 breakout from supposedly impregnable prison. Vivid and credible throughout. Watch for Danny Glover in his film debut. [PG] ▼●●

Escape From L.A. (1996) C-101m.  D: John Carpenter. Kurt Russell, Stacy Keach, Steve Buscemi, Cliff Robertson, Valeria Golino, Peter Fonda, Michelle Forbes, A. J. Langer, George Corraface, Pam Grier, Robert Carradine, Bruce Campbell, Paul Bartel. In the year 2013, the Island of L.A. is a penal colony for America's undesirables. Snake Plissken (Russell) is sent there to bring back a valuable destruction device that was smuggled away by the daughter of the U.S. President. Lackluster follow-up to ESCAPE FROM NEW YORK is tongue-in-cheek, but devoid of wit, and not likely to satisfy action fans, either. Russell coproduced and cowrote the script. On-screen title: JOHN CARPENTER'S ESCAPE FROM L.A. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

* D: John Carpenter. Kurt Russell, Lee Van Cleef, Ernest Borgnine, Donald Pleasence, Isaac Hayes, Adrienne Barbeau, Harry Dean Stanton, Season Hubley. For a "fun" film this is pretty bleak. The year is 1997, Manhattan is a maximum-security prison, and a character named Snake Plissken (Russell) must effect a daring rescue from within its borders. Reminiscent in some ways of Carpenter's AS-SAULT ON PRECINCT 13, which was smaller—and better. Followed by ESCAPE FROM L.A. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Escape From the Planet of the Apes (1971) C-98m. * D: Don Taylor. Roddy McDowall, Kim Hunter, Bradford Dillman, Natalie Trundy, Eric Braeden, William Windom, Sal Mineo, Ricardo Montalban. Third in series is best of the sequels, with the Apes in modern-day L.A.; ingeniously paves the way for 4th and 5th entries in series. Followed by CONQUEST OF THE PLANET OF THE APES. Panavision. [G] ▼●●

Escape From Zahrain (1962) C-93m. ½ D: Ronald Neame. Yul Brynner, Sal Mineo, Madlyn Rhue, Jack Warden, James Mason, Jay Novello. Plodding film of five prisoners escaping from jail in Mideastern country, being chased across desert. Nice photography at least. Panavision.

Escape Me Never (1947) 104m. ½ D: Peter Godfrey. Errol Flynn, Ida Lupino, Eleanor Parker, Gig Young, Reginald Denny, Isobel Elsom. Sappy remake of 1935 Elisabeth Bergner vehicle, with Lupino as an itinerant waif (!) and Flynn as struggling composer who marries her but takes up with his brother's aristocratic fiancée (Parker). Forget it. ▼

Escape to Athena (1979-British) C-101m.

*½ D: George Pan Cosmatos. Roger Moore, Telly Savalas, David Niven, Claudia Cardinale, Richard Roundtree, Stefanie Powers, Sonny Bono, Elliott Gould, William Holden. Agreeable time-filler, with all-star cast in outlandish adventure yarn about WW2 POWs planning escape and art heist at the same time. Released in England at 125m. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Escape to Burma (1955) C-87m.  D: Allan Dwan. Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Ryan, David Farrar, Murvyn Vye, Lisa Montell, Reginald Denny. Stanwyck rides herd over a tea plantation—and a pack of wild animals—but doesn't quite know how to deal with a wanted man who seeks refuge. Cast does what it can with pulp material. SuperScope. ▼●

Escape to the Sun (1972-British-Israeli) 105m. ½ D: Menahem Golan. Laurence Harvey, Josephine Chaplin, John Ireland, Lila Kedrova, Jack Hawkins, Clive Revill.

Suspense tale about aftermath of unsuccessful attempt by Soviet Jews to hijack a plane wastes a capable cast. [PG] ▼

Escape to Witch Mountain (1975) C-97m.

 D: John Hough. Eddie Albert, Ray Milland, Kim Richards, Ike Eisenmann, Donald Pleasence. Excellent Disney mystery-fantasy: two children with mysterious powers try to discover their origins, while being pursued by evil Milland, who wants to use their powers for his own purposes. Remade for TV. Followed by sequel RETURN FROM WITCH MOUNTAIN. [G] ▼●●

Escape 2000 (1981-Australian) C-92m.

BOMB D: Brian Trenchard-Smith. Steve Railsback, Olivia Hussey, Michael Craig, Carmen Duncan, Roger Ward. Repellently violent, unpleasant ripoff of THE MOST DANGEROUS GAME, set in future society where criminals are hunted in a controlled environment. Original title: TURKEY SHOOT. Beware of alternate 80m. version. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Especially on Sunday (1991-Italian-French-Belgian) C-90m. ½ D: Giuseppe Tornatore, Giuseppe Bertolucci, Marco Tullio Giordana, Philippe Noiret, Ornella Muti, Bruno Ganz, Maria Maddalena Fellini, Chiara Caselli, Andrea Prodan, Bruno Berdini, Nicoletta Braschi, Jean-Hugues Anglade. Trio of short films, each set in the Italian countryside, is a mixed bag. The first, by Tornatore (featuring Noiret as a barber who is comically harassed by a dog), is slight; the second, by Bertolucci (middle-aged Ganz picks up a pretty young woman and her mentally ill brother), is trite; the third, by Giordana (widow Fellini develops a most unusual unspoken bond with her new daughter-in-law), is the best of the lot, a thoughtful meditation on loneliness. Fellini is Federico's sister; this is her screen debut. European release version includes a fourth film, by Francesco Barilli. [R]

Esther and the King (1960-U.S.-Italian)

C-109m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Joan Collins, Richard Egan, Denis O'Dea, Sergio Fantoni. Cardboard biblical costumer pretends to recreate 4th-century B.C. Persia, with stony performances by Egan and Collins as the king and the Jewish maiden he wants to replace murdered queen. Filmed in Italy. CinemaScope. ▼●

Esther Kahn (2000-French-British) C-145m. ½ D: Arnaud Desplechin. Summer Phoenix, Ian Holm, Fabrice Desplechin, Frances Barber, Ian Bartholomew, Emmanuelle Devos. Overlong, overwrought drama about a single-minded young Jewess in late-19th-century London who struggles with her feelings and fears while setting out to become an actress. Potentially interesting subject matter is done in by boring stretches, laughably stilted dialogue, a maddeningly uneven lead performance by Phoenix, and unnecessary narration that telegraphs points and emotions. A plus: Eric Gautier's luminous cinematography. ▼●

Eternally Yours (1939) 95m. ½ D: Tay Garnett. Loretta Young, David Niven, Hugh Herbert, C. Aubrey Smith, Billie Burke, Broderick Crawford, ZaSu Pitts, Eve Arden. Wayout idea comes off fairly well; Young is married to magician Niven, thinks his tricks are taking precedence to their married life. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●

Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind (2004) C-108m.  D: Michel Gondry. Jim Carrey, Kate Winslet, Kirsten Dunst, Mark Ruffalo, Elijah Wood, Tom Wilkinson, Jane Adams, David Cross, Deirdre O'Connell. A man learns his ex-girlfriend has had him literally erased from her memory and decides to get the same procedure done . . . but has second thoughts as his mind is being purged. Ingenious, Oscar-winning screenplay by Charlie Kaufman (from a story by Kaufman, Gondry, and Pierre Bismuth) is extremely well executed by director Gondry (and cinematographer Ellen Kuras), though the film tends to cleverly dance around the roots of emotional and romantic pain rather than fully engage them. Carrey has never been better; Winslet is (as always) exceptional. [R] ▼●

Ethan Frome (1993) C-107m. ½ D: John Madden. Liam Neeson, Patricia Arquette, Joan Allen, Tate Donovan, Katharine Houghton, Stephen Mendillo. Stately, just-adequate adaptation of Edith Wharton's famed 1911 novella of tragedy, irony, and repression, set in rural New England: the tale of a farmer who weds a domineering woman (Allen), then falls in love with her poor but pretty cousin (Arquette). Beautifully photographed (by Bobby Bukowski) and intelligently scripted (by Richard Nelson), but not as powerful and moving as it should be. An American Playhouse theatrical feature. [PG] ▼●●

E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial (1982) C-115m. * D: Steven Spielberg. Dee Wallace, Henry Thomas, Peter Coyote, Robert MacNaughton, Drew Barrymore, K.C. Martel, Sean Frye, Tom (C. Thomas) Howell. A 10-year-old boy (Thomas) befriends a creature from another planet that's been stranded on Earth. A warm, insightful story of childhood innocence, frustration, courage, and love . . . with a remarkable "performance" by E.T. An exhilarating experience for young and old alike. Screenplay by Melissa Mathison. John Williams won an Oscar for his soaring score, as did the sound and visual effects teams. Trivia note: Debra Winger contributed to E.T.'s voice. Reissued in a somewhat revised form in 2002, running 123m. [PG] ▼●●

Eulogy (2004) C-91m.  D: Michael Clancy. Hank Azaria, Jesse Bradford, Zoëy Deschanel, Glenna Headly, Famke Janssen, Piper Laurie, Kelly Preston, Ray Romano, Rip

Tom, Debra Winger, Curtis Garcia, Keith Garcia, Paget Brewster, Rene Auberjonois, Claudette Nevins, Micolle Mercurio, Rance Howard. Dysfunctional family reunites over the death of the patriarch and standard sitcom shenanigans ensue, with frantic mugging and bad sex jokes. Hard to totally fail with this caliber of ensemble players, but still pretty weak. Laurie and Deschanel come off best as suicidal grandmother and her granddaughter (the only normal one in the pack). Winger uncharacteristically hits all the wrong notes as a homophobic, neurotic aunt. [R] ▼●

Eureka (1983) C-130m.  D: Nicolas Roeg. Gene Hackman, Theresa Russell, Rutger Hauer, Jane Lapotaire, Ed Lauter, Mickey Rourke, Joe Pesci, Corin Redgrave. Klondike prospector becomes fabulously wealthy, watches his kingdom crumble 30 years later when his daughter's problems and Miami thugs converge on him at the same time. Odd drama, even for Roeg, that somehow climaxes with long, windy courtroom histrionics. Shelved by its studio, sporadically released in 1985. Aka RIVER OF DARKNESS. [R] ▼●

Eureka (2000-Japanese-French) 217m. ½ D: Shinji Aoyama. Koji Yakusho, Aoi Miyazaki, Masaru Miyazaki, Yoichiro Saito. A tragic and shattering event has life-changing consequences for both a bus driver and the two orphaned children who are the only survivors of the incident. Epic film deals with the aftermath of a traumatic moment as the characters search for meaning and redemption. Beautifully shot in black and white, this demanding film does have rewards for the adventurous filmgoer but is ultimately compromised by its indulgent overlength.

Europa Europa (1991-French-German) C-115m. ½ D: Agnieszka Holland. Marco Hofschneider, Rene Hofschneider, Julie Delpy, Ashley Wanninger, Piotr Kozłowski, Halina Labomska, Hanns Zischler. German-Jewish teenage boy flees the Nazis and conceals his identity—only to find himself drafted into Hitler's army! Eye-opening, fact-based WW2 Holocaust drama, from Solomon Perel's autobiography, is both harrowing and humorous; deftly blends horrific images with black comedy to depict the growing pains of a boy becoming a man in the midst of a world in chaos. Polish writer-director Holland has made a riveting and moving film. [R] ▼●●

Europa '51 SEE: Greatest Love, The Europeans, The (1979) C-90m.  D: James Ivory. Lee Remick, Robin Ellis, Wesley Addy, Tim Choate, Lisa Eichhorn, Tim Woodward, Kristin Griffith. Meticulous film of Henry James novel vividly recreates 19th-century life in New England, as the arrival of two foreign cousins disrupts the stern-faced calm of a plain American family. Deliberately paced, but richly rewarding. ▼●●

Trachtenberg, Travis Wester, Jessica Boehrs, Vinnie Jones, Lucy Lawless, Fred Armisen, Diedrich Bader, Patrick Malahide, Matt Damon, Joanna Lumley. A high school grad who's just been dumped by his girlfriend goes to Europe to meet a German e-mail pen pal (who, he's just learned, is a hot babe); he and three hometown pals have a series of misadventures along the way. All too typical teen comedy should please adolescent boys with its female nudity and gross-out gags; others will take their cue from the fact that there is a vomit joke in the animated main titles! Jeffrey Tambor appears unbilled. Unrated version available on DVD. [R] ▼

Eva (1962-British) 100m.  D: Joseph Losey. Jeanne Moreau, Stanley Baker, Virna Lisi, Nona Medici, Francesco Rissone, James Villiers. Brooding account of writer Baker whose continued attraction for Eva (Moreau) causes wife (Lisi) to have tragic death. Premise isn't always workable, but Moreau is well cast as personification of evil. Based on a novel by James Hadley Chase. Director's cut (titled EVE) runs 119m. ▼

Evan Almighty (2007) C-96m. *½ D: Tom Shadyac. Steve Carell, Morgan Freeman, Lauren Graham, John Goodman, Wanda Sykes, John Michael Higgins, Jonah Hill, Molly Shannon, Harve Presnell, Johnny Simmons, Graham Phillips, Jimmy Bennett. In this follow-up to BRUCE ALMIGHTY former newscaster Evan Baxter (Carell), a newly elected congressman, is told by God (Freeman) to build an enormous ark in preparation for a devastating flood. Wacky hijinks ensue. Wasting the likable and talented Carell, this shrill farce tries to sugarcoat its religious conservatism with a feel-good sitcom style, but possesses about as much genuine spirituality as a velvet painting of Jesus. And is God really creating a flood to get back at a crooked Washington lawmaker? Super 35. [PG] ▼

Evel Knievel (1972) C-90m. ½ D: Marvin Chomsky. George Hamilton, Sue Lyon, Bert Freed, Rod Cameron. Biography of daredevil motorcyclist contains some great action footage; modest but effective film. Shouldn't be confused with VIVA KNIEVEL! (in which Evel played himself). Remade for cable TV in 2004. [PG] ▼

Evelyn (2002-U.S.-Irish-British) C-95m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Pierce Brosnan, Aidan Quinn, Stephen Rea, Alan Bates, Julianna Margulies, Sophie Vavasseur. Brosnan's company produced this button-pushing, feel-good movie based on the true story of a working-class Irishman who has to battle the government to regain custody of his sons and daughter after his wife walks out on them. Set in 1953, the film doesn't seem to trust the inherent drama in its story, and plays everything broadly, with nudge-nudge wink-wink acting by its able cast. Could have, and should have, been much better. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Evelyn Prentice (1934) 80m. ½ D: William K. Howard. William Powell, Myrna Loy, Una Merkel, Rosalind Russell, Isabel Jewell, Harvey Stephens. Story of successful attorney who doesn't know his own wife is in trouble is too drawn-out, ultimately too implausible. Cast rises above material, but Cora Sue Collins is an obnoxious brat. Russell's first film. Remade as STRONGER THAN DESIRE. ▼

Even Cowgirls Get the Blues (1994) C-97m. BOMB D: Gus Van Sant. Uma Thurman, Lorraine Bracco, Angie Dickinson, Rain Phoenix, John Hurt, Roseanne Arnold, Keanu Reeves, Noriyuki "Pat" Morita, Sean Young, Crispin Glover, Ed Begley, Jr., Faye Dunaway, Steve Buscemi, Heather Graham, Victoria Williams, Carol Kane, Grace Zabriskie. Tom Robbins' hopelessly dated novel about a hitchhiker with oversized thumbs is a candidate for the decade's worst movie: there is not enough peyote in the entire American Southwest to render scenes set in the feminist-collective ranch comprehensible or possible to endure. Recut by the director after its stormy reception at the Toronto Film Festival knocked it off the '93 release schedule. The k.d. lang score is the movie's sole worthy component. William S. Burroughs is briefly seen at film's beginning on a N.Y.C. street. [R] ▼

Even Dwarfs Started Small (1968-German) 96m.  D: Werner Herzog. Helmut Doring, Gerd Gickel, Paul Glauer, Erna Gschwendtner, Gisela Hartwig. Unusual, disturbing, truly unsettling parable about dwarfs and midgets confined to a barren correctional institution who literally take over the asylum. Reminiscent of Tod Browning's FREAKS. ▼

Evening (2007) C-117m.  D: Lajos Koltai. Claire Danes, Toni Collette, Vanessa Redgrave, Patrick Wilson, Hugh Dancy, Natasha Richardson, Mamie Gummer, Eileen Atkins, Meryl Streep, Glenn Close, Barry Bostwick. Two sisters try to interpret their mother's ramblings while on her deathbed; they eventually learn about the unfulfilled love of her life in a series of extended flashbacks. Lugubrious translation of Susan Minot's time-skippping novel (by the author and Michael Cunningham), filmed on location in Newport, Rhode Island. Gummer is Streep's real-life daughter; they play the same character, young and old. Richardson is Redgrave's daughter, and they play mother and daughter on-screen. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

son, Jennifer Grant. The further adventures of feisty, eccentric Aurora Greenway, who's now raised three grandchildren (born to Debra Winger in TERMS OF ENDEARMENT). Trades on the memory of a much better movie; even Nicholson's brief appearance only reminds us of the earlier film. There's barely an honest moment in the picture. Ross stands out as MacLaine's loyal longtime housekeeper and friend. Based on Larry McMurtry's novel. Johnson's final film. [PG-13]▼●●

Even Money (2007-U.S.-German) C-113m.  D: Mark Rydell. Forest Whitaker, Kim Basinger, Danny DeVito, Kelsey Grammer, Ray Liotta, Tim Roth, Jay Mohr, Nick Cannon, Carla Gugino, Grant Sullivan. Melancholy look at a handful of losers and dreamers—including compulsive gamblers Whitaker and Basinger, has-been magician DeVito, underworld boss Roth, and small-time bookies Mohr and Sullivan. The resolutions to these stories are alternately squalid and improbable. Good performances pique your interest at first, but the movie runs out of gas. Director Rydell has a cameo near the end. [R]●

Event, The (2003-Canadian) C-110m. *½ D: Thom Fitzgerald. Parker Posey, Don McKellar, Sarah Polley, Jane Leeves, Brent Carver, Olympia Dukakis, Joanna P. Adler, Dick Latessa, Christina Zorich. The investigation of an apparent suicide, one of a series of mysterious deaths in the gay community of N.Y.C.'s Chelsea neighborhood, leads to surprising revelations. Well intentioned but destroyed by a hopelessly muddled script, pedestrian direction, and a series of over-drawn stereotypes. Only Dukakis emerges with dignity intact, somehow managing to create yet another memorable screen mother. Cowritten by the director. [R]▼●

Event Horizon (1997-U.S.-British) C-95m.  D: Paul Anderson. Laurence Fishburne, Sam Neill, Kathleen Quinlan, Joely Richardson, Richard T. Jones, Jack Noseworthy, Jason Isaacs, Sean Pertwee. In 2047, a rescue mission is launched to Neptune when the exploration ship Event Horizon reappears as mysteriously as it had vanished seven years before. The returned ship's crew is gone, but there's a disturbing presence aboard, perhaps connected to the black hole designed to warp space. Well-acted movie begins promisingly but becomes increasingly unlikely; offers no explanation for the strange events. Some intense horror scenes. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Eve of Destruction (1991) C-98m.  D: Duncan Gibbins. Gregory Hines, Renee Soutendijk, Michael Greene, Kurt Fuller, John M. Jackson, Kevin McCarthy. This muddled FRANKENSTEIN variation might have worked with a better script, and without a point of view that manages to at the same time be reverse-sexist and anti-feminist. Soutendijk gives her all in a dual role: Dr. Eve Simmons, a scientist, and Eve VIII, the android/robot bomb she's created in her own likeness—and which is running amok. Hines is the good guy who sets out to immobilize it. Dutch actress Soutendijk's U.S. film debut. [R]▼●●

Ever After (1998) C-122m.  D: Andy Tennant. Drew Barrymore, Anjelica Huston, Dougray Scott, Patrick Godfrey, Megan Dodds, Melanie Lynskey, Timothy West, Judy Parfitt, Jeroen Krabbé, Richard O'Brien, Jeanne Moreau. The Queen of France (Moreau) summons the Brothers Grimm to her castle so she may tell them the true story of Cinderella: what unfolds is a charming rethinking of the classic fairy tale, with Barrymore as a feisty orphan (named Danielle) who puts her potential Prince Charming to shame with her bravery and regard for humankind. Long, but exquisitely filmed on location in France. Barrymore is a delight as a Cinderella for feminists. Alternate version is rated PG. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Ever in My Heart (1933) 68m. ½ D: Archie Mayo. Barbara Stanwyck, Otto Kruger, Ralph Bellamy, Ruth Donnelly, Frank Albertson. New Englander Stanwyck, a Daughter of the American Revolution, weds German-born college professor Kruger. He becomes an American citizen—and then WWI comes. Well-meaning soapier reflects the mood of the period, but is too hurried and simplistic to really score.

Everlasting Moments (2008-Swedish) C-131m.  D: Jan Troell. Maria Heiskanen, Mikael Persbrandt, Jesper Christensen, Callin Öhrvall, Ghita Nørby, Amanda Ooms, Emil Jensen. In early 20th-century Sweden a hardworking woman with many children—and a lusty, often abusive husband—finds purpose (and solace) by taking photographs with a camera she won in a lottery. Absorbing, evocative period piece is meticulously realized by Troell, who also shot the film (in collaboration with Mischa Gavrjus-jov) and cowrote the story with his wife, Agneta Ulfstätter Troell, and Nikolas Rådström, based on a real-life woman's experiences. Title onscreen is MARIA LARSSON'S EVERLASTING MOMENTS.

Everlasting Piece, An (2000) C-105m. ½ D: Barry Levinson. Barry McEvoy, Brian F. O'Byrne, Anna Friel, Pauline McLynn, Ruth McCabe, Laurence Kinlan, Billy Connolly, Des McAleer. Intermittently funny, sometimes silly satire set in Belfast (rather than director Levinson's customary Baltimore), about a pair of inept barbers-turned-wig-salesmen; one (McEvoy) is insolent and Catholic, the other (O'Byrne) is more restrained and Protestant. McEvoy also scripted. [R]▼●

waited all your life to see a film about a traveling missionary dentist, wait no more: Day-Lewis plays a fanatic who works for a "dental consciousness" foundation and travels the hinterlands to spread his noble message. Off-beat, to say the least, but grows wearisome after a while. Filmed in Argentina. [PG] ▼●

Everybody Does It (1949) 98m. ½ D: Edmund Goulding. Paul Douglas, Linda Darnell, Celeste Holm, Charles Coburn, Millard Mitchell, Lucile Watson, John Hoyt, George Tobias. Exceptionally amusing yarn of aspiring singer Holm, harried husband Douglas, and prima donna Darnell. Celeste wants vocal career, Douglas gets one instead. Remake of WIFE, HUSBAND, AND FRIEND; Nunnally Johnson adapted his earlier screenplay (based on a James M. Cain story).

Everybody's All-American (1988) C-127m.  D: Taylor Hackford. Jessica Lange, Dennis Quaid, Timothy Hutton, John Goodman, Carl Lumbly, Ray Baker, Savannah Smith Boucher, Patricia Clarkson. The 25-year saga of a college football hero and his homecoming queen, who find a rocky road living happily ever after. Quaid seems too aware of the caricature he is about to become, but Lange's bittersweet performance rings true throughout and makes this film worth seeing. Based on Frank Deford's novel. [R] ▼●●

Everybody's Famous (2000-Belgian-French-Dutch) C-97m. *½ D: Dominique Derudere. Josse De Pauw, Eva van der Gucht, Werner De Smedt, Thekla Reuten, Victor Löw, Gert Portael. Factory worker dreams of celebrity for his overweight daughter (a Madonna wannabe). He concocts an inane kidnapping scheme to that end, reveling in the notoriety it brings him. Odd, twisted comedy-drama struggles to entertain. Maybe you have to be Flemish. . . . [R] ▼●

Everybody's Fine (1990-Italian) C-112m. ½ D: Giuseppe Tornatore. Marcello Mastroianni, Michele Morgan, Marino Cenna, Roberto Nobile, Valeria Cavali, Norma Martelli, Fabio Iellini, Salvatore Cascio. Mastroianni is elderly, slightly befuddled Sicilian patriarch who embarks on extended tour of Italy to visit his five grown children. Provocative idea of showing a parent's hopes and dreams dashed by reality; unfortunately, it becomes a lumbering Felliniesque travelogue. Creator of CINEMA PARADISO looks at flip side of nostalgia here with so-so success (and a typically vital Mastroianni performance). Michele Morgan is lovely in small role of woman in tour group. ▼●

fighting weak material about nutty family involved in putting on a show. After loud finale you'll be waiting for a sequel called EVERYBODY SHUT UP. ▼●

Everybody Wins (1990) C-98m. BOMB D: Karel Reisz. Debra Winger, Nick Nolte, Will Patton, Jack Warden, Judith Ivey, Kathleen Wilhoite, Frank Converse, Frank Military. Private detective with an ax to grind ties his professional reputation to a schizoid small-town hooker who outbugs Bugs and Daffy. Arthur Miller's first screenplay since THE MISFITS (based on his one-act play "Some Kind of Love Story") gave fruit to this ironically titled fiasco; Winger flounders in a difficult—perhaps even unplayable—role. [R] ▼●●

Every Day's A Holiday (1937) 80m.  D: A. Edward Sutherland. Mae West, Edmund Lowe, Charles Butterworth, Charles Winninger, Walter Catlett, Lloyd Nolan, Louis Armstrong. Mae sells Herman Bing the Brooklyn Bridge, so police detective Lowe orders her to leave N.Y.C. She returns to help expose crooked police chief Nolan. Gay '90s setting for fast-moving West vehicle, written by the star herself. ▼

Every Girl Should Be Married (1948) 85m. ½ D: Don Hartman. Cary Grant, Franchot Tone, Diana Lynn, Betsy Drake, Alan Mowbray. Airy comedy of girl (Drake) setting out to trap bachelor (Grant) into marriage; Tone has thankless "other man" role. Drake also "captured" Grant in real life; they were married soon after this film came out. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●

Every Home Should Have One SEE: Think Dirty

Every Little Crook and Nanny (1972) C-91m.  D: Cy Howard. Lynn Redgrave, Victor Mature, Paul Sand, Austin Pendleton, John Astin, Dom DeLuise, Pat Harrington, Severn Darden. Good idea—the kidnapping of a mobster's son by nanny Redgrave—gets away in this comic crime-and-caper film. One bright spot: Mature's gangster portrayal. [PG]

Every Man for Himself (1980-French-Swiss) C-87m. ½ D: Jean-Luc Godard. Isabelle Huppert, Jacques Dutronc, Nathalie Baye, Roland Amstutz, Anna Baldaccini. Self-conscious account of three characters whose lives are intertwined: Dutronc, who has left his wife for Baye; Baye, who is leaving Dutronc for life in the boondocks; and Huppert, country girl turned prostitute. Godard's "comeback" film was widely overrated, and certainly can't compare with his best work of the past.

Every Man for Himself and God Against All (1975-German) C-110m. * D: Werner Herzog. Bruno S., Walter Ladengast, Brigitte Mira, Hans Musaus, Willy Semmelrogge, Michael Kroecher. Man kept in confinement from birth mysteriously appears in 1820s Nuremberg. Poignant tale

based on real incident explores his alternate vision of the world and his attempts to adjust to society. Herzog's best film (from his own screenplay) features stunning performance by Bruno S. as Kaspar Hauser. Story also told in KASPAR HAUSER. Aka THE MYSTERY OF KASPAR HAUSER and THE ENIGMA OF KASPAR HAUSER. ▼

Everyone's Hero (2006) C-88m. ½ D: Christopher Reeve, Colin Brady, Dan St. Pierre. Voices of William H. Macy, Rob Reiner, Brian Dennehy, Raven-Symoné, Robert Wagner, Richard Kind, Jason Harris, Jake T. Austin, Joe Torre, Mandy Patinkin, Forest Whitaker, Whoopi Goldberg, Dana Reeve, Robin Williams. In this animated film aimed at kids, a boy sets out across country to "help" Babe Ruth and the 1932 N.Y. Yankees triumph in the World Series by finding and returning a stolen magical bat. Theme of persevering no matter what the odds can be traced to the spirit and guidance of initial director Reeve. A bit too obvious for any but the youngest viewers; still, there's heart and hope in the story and a stellar voice cast. Reeve's final film project; he died during production. [G] ▼

Everything But the Truth (1956) C-83m.  D: Jerry Hopper. Maureen O'Hara, John Forsythe, Tim Hovey, Frank Faylen. When youngest Hovey joins truth pledge crusade at school, repercussions to his family and townfolk grow; cutesy.

Everything for Sale (1968-Polish) C-105m.  D: Andrzej Wajda. Beata Tyszkiewicz, Elzbieta Czyzewska, Daniel Olbrychski, Andrzej Lapicki. Not top-drawer Wajda, but still an ambitious, fluidly directed examination of life on a movie set, the relationship between a director and his actors, and what happens when the leading man is accidentally killed. A very personal homage to Zbigniew Cybulski, Wajda's star of the '50s, who died in a freak mishap in 1967. ▼

106m.  D: Liev Schreiber. Elijah Wood, Eugene Hutz, Boris Leskin, Laryssa Lauret. Jonathan (Wood), a nerdy young Jewish American who is obsessed with the objects that link him to his family's past, travels to the Ukraine to explore his roots. Initially, his eccentric tour guides and their screwball antics are out of sync with the seriousness of the story, but once their journey begins—and especially when they discover an elderly woman who might have saved Jonathan's grandfather from the Nazis—the film becomes a poignant exploration of how objects allow us to hold on to memories. Scripted by first-time director Schreiber, from Jonathan Safran Foer's best-seller. [PG-13] ▼

Everything Put Together (2001) C-88m. ½ D: Marc Forster. Radha Mitchell, Megan Mullally, Justin Louis, Catherine Lloyd Burns, Alan Ruck, Michele Hicks, Matt Malloy, Vince Vieluf. Probing look at a woman who's pregnant at the same time as her best friends . . . but when her newborn dies they abandon her and she goes through several stages of personal hell. Perceptive, mature, often uncomfortably real, with a superb performance by Mitchell. The director cowrote with costar Burns and Adam Forgash. Shot on digital video. [R] ▼

Everything's Ducky (1961) 81m.  D: Don Taylor. Mickey Rooney, Buddy Hackett, Jackie Cooper, Roland Winters. Nonsense of Rooney-Hackett teaming up with talking duck, with trio ending up on Navy missile orbiting earth; strictly for kids.

Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex (But Were Afraid to Ask) (1972) C-87m.  D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, John Carradine, Lou Jacobi, Louise Lasser, Anthony Quayle, Tony Randall, Lynn Redgrave, Burt Reynolds, Gene Wilder, Jack Barry, Erin Fleming, Robert Q. Lewis, Heather MacRae, Pamela Mason, Sidney Miller, Regis Philbin, Geoffrey Holder, Jay Robinson, Robert Walden. One of Woody's most cinematic comedies, also most uneven, most tasteless. In multi-episode feature based very loosely on Dr. David Reuben's book, only a few segments stand out: final sequence inside male body during intercourse is a gem. [R] ▼

Every Time We Say Goodbye (1986-Israeli) C-95m. ½ D: Moshe Mizrahi. Tom Hanks, Cristina Marsillach, Benedict Taylor, Anat Aizman, Gila Almagor. Hanks' presence adds to this otherwise average soaper-romance, about an American flyer who falls for a Sephardic Jew (Marsillach) in WW2 Jerusalem. [PG-13] ▼

Every Which Way but Loose (1978) C-114m. BOMB D: James Fargo. Clint Eastwood, Sondra Locke, Geoffrey Lewis, Beverly D'Angelo, Ruth Gordon. Clint takes the first pickup truck to Stupidsville, with an orangutan as his best friend, in this bizarre change of pace for the action star. The clumsiest comedy of its year. Sequel: ANY WHICH WAY YOU CAN. [PG]▼●●

Eve's Bayou (1997) C-109m.  D: Kasi Lemmons. Jurnee Smollett, Meagan Good, Samuel L. Jackson, Lynn Whitfield, Debbi Morgan, Jake Smollett, Ethel Ayler, Dianhan Carroll, Vondie Curtis Hall, Lisa Nicole Carson, Branford Marsalis, Victoria Rowell; narrated by Tamara Tunie. Absorbing tale of a privileged Creole family of the early 1960s, as seen through the eyes of a 10-year-old girl, who learns that her parents have very human frailties . . . and are still susceptible to age-old superstitions and even voodoo. Exceptional cast, led by young Smollett, give credence to the often fanciful story, which is drenched in Southern gothic atmosphere. Impressive writing and directing debut for Lemmons. Costar Jackson was one of the film's producers. [R]▼●●

Evictors, The (1979) C-92m. *½ D: Charles B. Pierce. Michael Parks, Jessica Harper, Vic Morrow, Sue Ane Langdon, Dennis Fimple, Bill Thurman. Couple moves into eerie house, unaware of its violent history. Tired rehash of an all too familiar formula. Panavision. [PG]▼

Evil, The (1978) C-90m. ½ D: Gus Trikonis. Richard Crenna, Joanna Pettet, Andrew Prine, Cassie Yates, Lynne Moody, Victor Buono, George O'Hanlon, Jr. Doctor Crenna rents "haunted" house to use as clinic, but he and associates are violently victimized by powers within. Slow-moving film covers familiar ground; some chills. Video title: HOUSE OF EVIL. [R]▼●●

Evil (2003-Swedish) C-113m. ½ D: Mikael Häfström. Andreas Wilson, Henrik Lundström, Gustaf Skarsgård, Linda Zilliacus, Jesper Salén, Filip Berg, Fredrik af Trampe. Vivid and violent story of a troubled kid who's good with his fists; he's shipped to a boys' boarding school where the seniors rule and make life miserable for the younger ones. As he tries to change his ways and succeed academically he is sucked into the dark underworld of the campus. Although set in the '50s and featuring a tip of the hat to REBEL WITHOUT A CAUSE, this is closer in spirit to Lindsay Anderson's IF. . . . and FIGHT CLUB. Originally released in the U.S. unrated. [R]●

Evil Dead, The (1983) C-85m. ½ D: Sam Raimi. Bruce Campbell, Ellen Sandweiss, Betsy Baker, Hal Delrich, Sarah York. Five kids at mountain cabin chop each other to pieces when demons possess everything. Wildly stylish, ultra-low-budget movie made by precocious college students is one of the grossest horror films ever. Borrowing inspiration from NIGHT OF THE LIVING DEAD, SUSPIRIA, THE EXORCIST and THE HOUSE ON

HAUNTED HILL (just to name a few), it provides a deliriously imaginative roller coaster ride for those with strong stomachs. Video version rated R. Followed by two sequels.▼●●

Evil Dead II (1987) C-85m.  D: Sam Raimi. Bruce Campbell, Sarah Berry, Dan Hicks, Kassie Wesley, Theodore Raimi, Denise Bixler, Richard Domeier. After recapping the first film, this inventive sequel takes off in a unique direction, blending horror and humor as no other movie ever has. In that same cabin, Campbell is again (or still) beset by demons, including, memorably, his own possessed hand. Vivid, fast paced, spectacularly gory, and highly original. Followed by ARMY OF DARKNESS. [R]▼●●

Evil Eden SEE: Death in the Garden

Evil Eye, The (1962-Italian) 92m. ½ D: Mario Bava. Leticia Roman, John Saxon, Valentina Cortese, Dante Di Paolo. Incredible but enjoyable chiller set in Rome, with Roman involved in a series of unsolved brutal murders. Aka THE GIRL WHO KNEW TOO MUCH.▼●

Evil in the Deep SEE: Treasure of Jamaica Reef, The

Evil Mind, The SEE: Clairvoyant, The Evil of Frankenstein (1964-British) C-84m.  D: Freddie Francis. Peter Cushing, Duncan Lamont, Peter Woodthorpe, James Maxwell, Sandor Eles. Dr. F. thaws out his monster, with all-too-predictable consequences in this Hammer Films potboiler, a sequel to REVENGE OF FRANKENSTEIN. Followed by FRANKENSTEIN CREATED WOMAN.▼●●

Evil That Men Do, The (1984) C-89m. *½ D: J. Lee Thompson. Charles Bronson, Theresa Saldana, Joseph Maher, Jose Ferrer, Rene Enriquez, John Glover, Raymond St. Jacques, Antoinette Bower. Typical, violent Bronson entry, with Charlie a professional killer on the trail of a sadistic British doctor (Maher). For Bronson addicts only. [R]▼●●

Evil Under the Sun (1982-British) C-117m.  D: Guy Hamilton. Peter Ustinov, Jane Birkin, Colin Blakely, Nicholas Clay, Roddy McDowall, James Mason, Sylvia Miles, Denis Quilley, Diana Rigg, Maggie Smith, Emily Hone. Murder at a resort hotel, with Hercule Poirot (Ustinov) to the rescue. An all-star cast and top production values, but still blah. Based on the Agatha Christie novel, with a script by Anthony Shaffer; exteriors filmed in Majorca. [PG]▼●●

Evita (1996) C-134m. ½ D: Alan Parker. Madonna, Antonio Banderas, Jonathan Pryce, Jimmy Nail. The world's longest music video: a lavish adaptation of Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice's 1978 stage musical about the rise of Eva Peron, from her illegitimate childhood to near-deification as First Lady in 1940s Argentina. As pageant, it works, but there is no emotional center, leaving the viewer aloof from its leading character from start to finish. Madonna parades (and sings) well enough, but Pryce's strong presence as Juan Peron and Banderas's fiery singing commentary bring it to life. Newly added song, "You Must Love Me," won an Oscar. 2.35 Research PLC. [PG]▼●●

Evolution (2001) C-103m.  D: Ivan Reitman. David Duchovny, Orlando Jones, Julianne Moore, Seann William Scott, Ted Levine, Ethan Suplee, Michael Bower, Dan Aykroyd, Sarah Silverman, Richard Moll. Scattershot sci-fi-comedy/GHOSTBUSTERS throwback about a pair of Arizona community college science teachers (Duchovny, Jones) who investigate the crash of a meteor, which begins oozing aliens that quickly evolve. Loud, silly, and only occasionally funny. [PG-13]▼●

Ex, The (2007) C-89m. ½ D: Jesse Peretz. Zach Braff, Amanda Peet, Mia Farrow, Charles Grodin, Jason Bateman, Donal Logue, Ian Hyland, Amy Adams, Fred Armisen, Amy Poehler, Paul Rudd. New York slacker must come to terms with career and family after his pregnant wife quits her high-paying law firm and forces him to move back to her Ohio hometown, where he goes to work for his father-in-law's ad company. Rarely lifts itself above the level of a TV sitcom but a likable cast does its best to make do with the material at hand. Grodin is an especially welcome presence in his first screen role in 13 years. Released briefly in 2006 as FAST TRACK. [PG-13]●

Excalibur (1981-British) C-140m. ½ D: John Boorman. Nicol Williamson, Nigel Terry, Helen Mirren, Nicholas Clay, Cherie Lunghi, Corin Redgrave, Paul Geoffrey, Patrick Stewart, Gabriel Byrne, Liam Neeson. Eccentric but spellbinding, sexually aware rendition of the King Arthur legend by a stylish filmmaker working at the peak of his powers. Written by Rospo Pallenberg and Boorman. That's the director's son, Charley Boorman, as young Mordred. Magnificent production values. Later edited to 119m. and rated PG. [R]▼●●

Excess Baggage (1997) C-101m. *½ D: Marco Brambilla. Alicia Silverstone, Benicio Del Toro, Christopher Walken, Nicholas Turturro, Harry Connick, Jr., Sally Kirkland. Predictable story of rich, hostile brat Silverstone trying to get her neglectful father's attention by faking her own kidnapping. She smokes, drinks, and whines her way through this tedious "comedy" in which everybody involved in the convoluted plot is "clueless." [PG-13]▼●●

Excessive Force (1993) C-90m. *½ D: Jon Hess. Thomas Ian Griffith, James Earl Jones, Charlotte Lewis, Lance Henriksen, Burt Young, Tony Todd, W. Earl Brown. Martial arts whiz Griffith wrote this violent tale, and stars as a Chicago cop who's accused of stealing millions and setting up his partners for murder. Very familiar stuff for genre fans, with nothing much to set it apart from dozens of similar films. Followed by EXCESSIVE FORCE II: FORCE ON FORCE. [R]▼●

Excuse My Dust (1951) C-82m. ½ D: Roy Rowland. Red Skelton, Sally Forrest, Macdonald Carey, Monica Lewis, William Demarest. Amiable Skelton musicomedy. Red invents automobile which almost costs him his sweetheart; her father owns town livery stable.

Executioner, The (1970-British) C-107m.  D: Sam Wanamaker. Joan Collins, George Peppard, Judy Geeson, Oscar Homolka, Charles Gray, Nigel Patrick, Keith Michell. Pedestrian thriller with British spy Peppard suspecting that colleague Michell is a double agent. Panavision. [PG]▼

Executioner, Part II, The (1984) C-85m. BOMB D: James Bryant. Christopher Mitchum, Aldo Ray, Antoine John Mottet, Renee Harmon. Amateurish actioner, atrociously directed and acted, with homicide cop Mitchum hunting down a vigilante murderer. Has no connection to any other EXECUTIONER title. [R]▼

Executive Decision (1996) C-132m.  D: Stuart Baird. Kurt Russell, Steven Seagal, Halle Berry, John Leguizamo, Oliver Platt, Joe Morton, David Suchet, Len Cariou, Mary Ellen Trainor, Marla Maples Trump, J. T. Walsh, Nicholas Pryor, B. D. Wong. The situation: Arab terrorists are in control of a 747. The solution: Sneak an elite team aboard the plane, already in flight. The problems: The team has to depend on inexperienced Russell, and there's a nerve gas bomb aboard that will wipe out Washington, D.C. Tense, inventive thriller that—until a misfired final reel—delivers the goods in high style. Directing debut for top editor Baird, who might have tightened the story a bit. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Executive Suite (1954) 104m.  D: Robert Wise. William Holden, June Allyson, Barbara Stanwyck, Fredric March, Walter Pidgeon, Louis Calhern, Shelley Winters, Paul Douglas, Nina Foch, Dean Jagger. Slick, multifaceted story of company power struggle with top cast, from Cameron Hawley novel . . . though similar film PATTERNS is much better. Later a TV series.▼●●

eXistenZ (1999-Canadian-British) C-97m.  D: David Cronenberg. Jennifer Jason Leigh, Jude Law, Willem Dafoe, Ian Holm, Don McKellar, Callum Keith Rennie, Sarah Polley, Christopher Eccleston. Preposterous film set in the near future about a virtual-reality game designer who gets trapped in one of her own games with a man who's supposed to be protecting her. At one point they wonder how to get out of the game; it's much easier to get out of the movie. Cronenberg also scripted this silly concoction. ▼●●

Exit to Eden (1994) C-113m. *½ D: Garry Marshall. Dana Delany, Paul Mercurio, Rosie O'Donnell, Dan Aykroyd, Hector Elizondo, Stuart Wilson, Iman, Sean O'Bryan, Stephanie Niznik, Rosemary Forsyth, Donna Dixon, John Schneider. Strange cinematic catastrophe, pried from an Anne Rice novel, attempts to jerry-build a standard cop sitcom (Aykroyd and O'Donnell investigate a murder) onto the sexual shenanigans at S&M island fantasy camp. O'Donnell's bright performance is the one justification for its existence. If anything, resembles a raunchier version of Marshall's old TV show Love, American Style. [R] ▼●●

Exit Wounds (2001) C-101m.  D: Andrzej Bartkowiak. Steven Seagal, DMX, Tom Arnold, Isaiah Washington, Anthony Anderson, Michael Jai White, Bill Duke, Jill Hennessy, David Vadim. Blah actioner with aging, ever-wooden Seagal playing a tough loner cop who tangles with some on-the-take colleagues. Rapper DMX adds life to the proceedings as a mysterious drug entrepreneur. All too familiar, but the target audience might not mind. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Ex-Lady (1933) 65m. ½ D: Robert Florey. Bette Davis, Gene Raymond, Frank McHugh, Claire Dodd, Ferdinand Gottschalk. Davis, looking sensational, plays an independent-minded woman who loves Raymond but doesn't believe in marriage. Provocative and sexy, stylishly filmed, but begins to drag and become conventional by the second half. A remake of ILLICIT, filmed just two years earlier! ▼

Ex-Mrs. Bradford, The (1936) 80m.  D: Stephen Roberts. William Powell, Jean Arthur, James Gleason, Eric Blore, Robert Armstrong. Chic à la THIN MAN comedy-mystery, with Powell teaming with ex-wife Arthur to crack a case. ▼●

becomes sporadic action epic. Newman as Israeli resistance leader, Saint as non-Jewish army nurse aren't a convincing duo; supporting roles offer stereotypes. Best scene shows refugees escaping Cyprus detention center, running British blockade into homeland. Ernest Gold won an Oscar for his score. Super Panavision 70. ▼●●

Exorcism of Emily Rose, The (2005) C-119m.  D: Scott Derrickson. Laura Linney, Tom Wilkinson, Campbell Scott, Jennifer Carpenter, Colm Feore, Joshua Close, Ken Welsh, Mary Beth Hurt, Shohreh Aghdashloo, Henry Czerny. An agnostic lawyer (Linney) is hired to defend a priest (Wilkinson) accused of negligent homicide in the death of a college student he attempted to exorcise. Peculiar mix of horror movie and courtroom melodrama is unconvincing on all levels, though handsomely produced and well acted. Loosely based on a real European incident, though the movie is set in the U.S. Unrated version runs 122m. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Exorcist, The (1973) C-121m. ½ D: William Friedkin. Ellen Burstyn, Max von Sydow, Linda Blair, Jason Miller, Lee J. Cobb, Kitty Winn, Jack MacGowran. Intense, well-mounted adaptation of William Peter Blatty's best-seller, calculated to keep your stomach in knots from start to finish. Blair is "normal" 12-year-old whose body is possessed by the Devil, Miller a troubled priest who attempts to confront the demon in her—and in himself. Oscar winner for Blatty's screenplay; vocal effects by Mercedes McCambridge. Followed by two sequels, a prequel, and countless imitations. Reissued in 2000 with 11m. of (mostly needless) additional footage. [R] ▼●●

Exorcist II: The Heretic (1977) C-110m. *½ D: John Boorman. Richard Burton, Linda Blair, Louise Fletcher, Kitty Winn, James Earl Jones, Ned Beatty, Max von Sydow. Preposterous sequel to 1973 hit. Special effects are only virtue in this turkey about priest (Burton) trying to unravel mystery of demon still living inside Blair. Boorman recut the film (from 117m.) the day after its premiere, and made numerous changes—to no avail. Restored to 117m. for homevideo. [R] ▼●

Exorcist III, The (1990) C-110m.  D: William Peter Blatty. George C. Scott, Ed Flanders, Brad Dourif, Jason Miller, Nicol Williamson, Scott Wilson, Nancy Fish, George DiCenzo, Viveca Lindfors, Samuel L. Jackson. Police inspector Scott is confronted by a series of gruesome murders, unmistakably the work of a serial killer who was executed the same night as the exorcism of the original movie. Film begins well but grows more absurd and confusing until it self-destructs. Shows strong evidence of post-production tinkering. [R] ▼●●

D: Renny Harlin. Stellan Skarsgård, Izabella Scorupco, James D'Arcy, Remy Sweeney, Ben Cross, Andrew French, Ralph Brown. Yet another in the endless line of EXORCIST follow-ups. This one attempts to explain Father Merrin's early years, in particular when he was in East Africa battling the demon Pazuzu, long before he exorcised demons from the body of Linda Blair. Competently made, shot by the great Vittorio Storaro, with many horrific images; all that's missing is a reason why we should care. Harlin replaced writer-director Paul Schrader, whose "scrapped" version is a separate film, DOMINION: THE PREQUEL TO THE EXORCIST. Univision. [R] ▼

Exotica (1994-Canadian) C-104m. ½ D: Atom Egoyan. Bruce Greenwood, Mia Kirshner, Don McKellar, Arsinee Khanjian, Elias Koteas, Sarah Polley, Victor Garber, David Hemblen. Five disparate characters become linked to each other's destinies, with a strip club called Exotica as the focal point. Only at the end of the film do we fully learn the "back story" that brought two key characters into each other's lives. Intriguing, like all of Egoyan's work, but not entirely satisfying. Winner of the Genie Award as Canada's Best Picture of 1994. [R] ▼

Experience Preferred ... but Not Essential (1983-British) C-80m.  D: Peter Duffell. Elizabeth Edmonds, Sue Wallace, Geraldine Griffith, Karen Meagher, Ron Bain, Alun Lewis, Robert Blythe. Simple, charming little film about a girl's experiences working as waitress for the summer at seaside resort hotel. June Roberts' script focuses on the blossoming of one young woman, while making humorous observations about the offbeat group of people around her. Short and sweet; made for British TV. [PG] ▼

Experiment, The SEE: Das Experiment
Experiment in Terror (1962) 123m.  D: Blake Edwards. Glenn Ford, Lee Remick, Stefanie Powers, Ross Martin, Roy Poole, Ned Glass. Taut suspense with bank clerk Remick terrorized by murderous extortionist Martin ... but FBI agent Ford is on the case. Realistic, unsentimental, with convincing performances by Remick and Martin. Great Henry Mancini score, good use of San Francisco locations. ▼

orah Foreman, James Keach, Jan Rubes, Brian Doyle-Murray, Rick Ducommun. Fatally bland comedy about two Manhattan hipsters who are hired to open a nightclub in a small Nebraska town—which is really an exact replica of the hamlet built in the U.S.S.R. and used to train Russian spies. Weak in all respects, and peculiarly sentimental about the 1950s. Barely released to theaters. Costars Travolta and Preston later married. [PG-13] ▼

Explicit Ills (2009) C-87m.  D: Mark Webber. Paul Dano, Rosario Dawson, Naomie Harris, Lou Taylor Pucci, Frankie Shaw, Tariq Trotter, Francisco Burgos. Meandering, self-conscious account of the everyday traumas of various low-income denizens of inner-city Philadelphia. They run the gamut from enterprising and clearheaded to drugged-out. The finale, involving a poor people's march for health care, seems tacked on. Webber's attempt to create a relaxed lyricism is reminiscent of the early works of his executive producer, Jim Jarmusch. Super 35. [R]

Explorers (1985) C-109m.  D: Joe Dante. Ethan Hawke, River Phoenix, Jason Presson, Amanda Peterson, Dick Miller, Robert Picardo, Dana Ivey, Meshach Taylor, Mary Kay Place. Youngster hooked on science fiction yearns to travel into space and gets his wish, with the help of a whiz-kid friend. Opens beautifully, takes its time developing story—then makes disastrous wrong turn in space that transforms film into a shaggy-dog joke! Director Dante has restructured film somewhat for video release. That version is 107m. [PG] ▼

Explosive Generation, The (1961) 89m.  D: Buzz Kulik. William Shatner, Patty McCormack, Billy Gray, Steve Dunne, Lee Kinsolving, Virginia Field, Phillip Terry, Edward Platt, Beau Bridges. High school teacher Shatner causes an uproar when he has his students write essays on their attitudes about sex. Based-on-fact account is an intriguing relic of its era (both for its subject and cast).

Exposed (1983) C-100m. *½ D: James Toback. Nastassia Kinski, Rudolf Nureyev, Harvey Keitel, Ian McShane, Bibi Andersson, Ron Randell, Pierre Clementi, James Russo. Girl from the Midwest quits school, comes to N.Y.C., hits it big as a fashion model, then gets involved with enigmatic Nureyev and his plan to kill terrorist Keitel in Paris. Seems like three different movies—all of them strange. Nureyev's performance might best be described as overripe. That's writer-director Toback in the role of Kinski's professor/lover. [R] ▼

can photographer (Coyote), living in Rio de Janeiro, who becomes immersed in a seamy, violent underworld (and undergoes quite a personality change), searching for killer of young prostitute. [R]▼●

Express, The (2008) C-129m.  D: Gary Fleder. Rob Brown, Dennis Quaid, Darrin Dewitt Henson, Omar Benson Miller, Nelson Ellis, Charles S. Dutton, Justin Martin, Justin Jones, Nicole Beharie, Anjanue Ellis, Clancy Brown, Saul Rubinek. Inspirational biography of Syracuse University football star Ernie Davis, the first African-American Heisman Trophy winner. Adapted from Robert Gallagher's book, this story of toughness and determination in the face of racism and tragedy may be formula stuff, but it's extremely well done. Super 35. [PG]▶

Expresso Bongo (1959-British) 108m. ½ D: Val Guest. Laurence Harvey, Sylvia Syms, Yolande Donlan, Cliff Richard, Ambrosine Phillpotts, Eric Pohlmann, Hermione Baddeley, Wilfrid Lawson, Kenneth Griffith, Susan Hampshire. Atmospheric but dated drama with Harvey shining as a high-energy, jive-spouting London hustler who thinks he's found his version of Elvis in poor young bongo-playing rocker Richard. Written by Wolf Mankowitz. Dyaliscope.▶

Exterminating Angel, The (1962-Mexican) 95m. ½ D: Luis Buñuel. Silvia Pinal, Enrique Rambal, Jacqueline Andere, Jose Baviera, Augusto Benedico. Guests at elegant dinner party cannot bring themselves to leave, begin to starve and die after several days. Wry assault on bourgeois manners by master surrealist Buñuel.▶

Exterminator, The (1980) C-101m. BOMB D: James Glickenhaus. Christopher George, Samantha Eggar, Robert Ginty, Steve James, Tony Di Benedetto. Gore galore with Vietnam veteran Ginty aping Charles Bronson in DEATH WISH as he rubs out a gang who mugged and paralyzed a friend. If you love this film, good news—there's a sequel! Unrated director's cut runs 104m. [R]▼●

Exterminator II (1984) C-88m. BOMB D: Mark Buntzman. Robert Ginty, Mario Van Peebles, Deborah Geffner, Frankie Faison, Scott Randolph, Arye Gross, John Turturro. Ginty and his blowtorch are back, hot after a gang whose most sadistic member is named X. Obnoxious, grade Z garbage. [R]▼

clips from 1940s newsreels and Faye's eye makeup. Panavision. [G]

Extreme Measures (1996) C-118m.  D: Michael Apted. Hugh Grant, Gene Hackman, Sarah Jessica Parker, David Morse, Bill Nunn, John Toles-Bey, Paul Guilfoyle, Debra Monk, J. K. Simmons. Emergency room doctor senses something fishy going on after a man who dies mysteriously vanishes from the hospital's records. Medical conspiracy thriller starts out well enough but quickly becomes obvious and hollow. Grant has one of his best parts as a dedicated doctor; his girlfriend Elizabeth Hurley produced the film. Director David Cronenberg plays the head of a medical review board. Panavision. [R]▼●

Extreme Ops (2002-British-German-Luxembourgian) C-93m.  D: Christian Duguay. Devon Sawa, Rupert Graves, Bridgette Wilson-Sampras, Rufus Sewell, Heino Ferch, Joe Absolom, Jana Pallaske. Ho-hum actioner in which a wild-and-crazy film crew, shooting a commercial in the Austrian Alps, tangles with a Serbian war criminal in hiding. The generic snowboarding/skiing/kayaking sequences look as if they've been lifted from a sports video. Super 35. [PG-13]▶

Extreme Prejudice (1987) C-104m.  D: Walter Hill. Nick Nolte, Powers Boothe, Michael Ironside, Maria Conchita Alonso, Rip Torn, Clancy Brown, William Forsythe, Larry B. Scott. Boyhood friends Nolte and Boothe are now on opposite sides of the law, as Texas Ranger and drug kingpin on the Texas/Mexico border. Though its excesses (in characterization, music, and especially violence) are apparently deliberate, that doesn't make them any more entertaining, though it helps if you accept it as tongue-in-cheek. [R]▼●

is victimized by a taunting rapist in her own home but manages to turn the tables and trap him. William Mastrosimone adapted his own play, but what worked in a theater doesn't translate to film; Fawcett's adequate but one-note performance is another liability. [R] ▼●●

Eye, The (2002-Hong Kong-Singaporean) C-98m. ½ D: Danny Pang, Oxide Pang. Lee Sin-Je, Lawrence Chou, Chuctcha Rujinanon, Candy Lo, Pierre Png, Ko Yin Ping, Edmund Chen. A young, blind violinist receives a cornea transplant . . . and is soon plagued by visions of dead people. Muted psychological horror piece is nicely atmospheric with some genuinely creepy moments but loses steam by the end. Followed by several sequels. Remade in India in 2005 (as NAINA) and in the U.S. in 2008. [R] ▼

Eye, The (2008) C-97m.  D: David Moreau, Xavier Palud. Jessica Alba, Alessandro Nivola, Parker Posey, Rade Serbedzija, Fernanda Romero, Rachel Ticotin, Obba Babatundé, Danny Mora, Chloe Moretz, Tamlyn Tomita. Violinist Alba, blind since childhood, has a successful cornea transplant. But there's a catch: she is now haunted by creepy visions and can see dead people. Slick but empty remake of the 2002 Asian horror film, with a wooden Alba appealing only as eye candy. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Eye Creatures, The (1965) 80m. *½ D: Larry Buchanan. John Ashley, Cynthia Hull, Warren Hammack, Chet Davis, Bill Peck. Gory horror film about title creatures and the intrepid band that tries to fight them off. Remake of INVASION OF THE SAUCER MEN. Aka ATTACK OF THE THE EYE CREATURES (sic). ▼

Eye for an Eye, An (1966) C-92m.  D: Michael Moore. Robert Lansing, Pat Wayne, Slim Pickens, Gloria Talbott. Oater with twist: two physically disabled men, who can function via teamwork as one sharpshooter, hunt down killers of older man's family. Video title: TALION. ▼

Eye for an Eye, An (1981) C-106m.  D: Steve Carver. Chuck Norris, Christopher Lee, Richard Roundtree, Matt Clark, Mako, Maggie Cooper, Terry Kiser. Cop Norris's partner is killed by drug traffickers; he has nightmares, becomes a one-man army seeking vengeance against villain Lee and his cronies. Silly and predictable, but delivers for formula fans. [R] ▼

Eye for an Eye (1996) C-101m.  D: John Schlesinger. Sally Field, Ed Harris, Kiefer Sutherland, Joe Mantegna, Beverly D'Angelo, Olivia Burnette, Alexandra Kyle, Darrell Larsen, Charlayne Woodard, Philip Baker Hall, Keith David, Natalija Nogulich, Armin Shimerman. When Field's teenage daughter is brutally raped and murdered, she seeks revenge on the creep who did

it. Field is ideally cast as the mother driven to take the law into her own hands, but this is little more than DEATH WISH in drag, a manipulative movie that becomes awfully far-fetched. What's more, those attack scenes are very tough to take. [R] ▼●●

Eye of the Beholder (1999-British-Canadian) C-109m. *½ D: Stephan Elliott. Ewan McGregor, Ashley Judd, Jason Priestley, k.d. lang, Patrick Bergin, Genevieve Bujold. Terrible but oddly watchable mess with high-tech private eye McGregor tailing sexy serial killer Judd around the U.S.—and falling in love with her in the process. Plays like a voyeuristic music video. U.S. release runs 101m. Super 35. [R] ▼

Eye of the Cat (1969) C-102m. ½ D: David Lowell Rich. Michael Sarrazin, Gayle Hunnicutt, Eleanor Parker, Tim Henry, Laurence Naismith. Glossy but intriguing suspenser with seductive Hunnicutt teaming with Sarrazin to murder his aunt (Parker), who keeps a houseful of felines. Most terrifying scene has wheelchair Parker tottering atop a San Francisco hill. [M/PG]

Eye of the Devil (1967-British) 92m. ½ D: J. Lee Thompson. Deborah Kerr, David Niven, Donald Pleasence, Edward Mulhare, Flora Robson, Emlyn Williams, Sharon Tate, David Hemmings, John Le Mesurier. Excellent cast in odd, low-key thriller set in France. The Marquis de Bellac (Niven) abruptly leaves wife in Paris to "do what he must" at ancestral estate near Bordeaux. Strange continuity due to cuts before initial release. Also titled: 13.

Eye of the Needle (1981) C-112m.  D: Richard Marquand. Donald Sutherland, Kate Nelligan, Ian Bannen, Christopher Cazenove, Philip Martin Brown. Solid WW2 spy saga from Ken Follett's best-seller. Sutherland plays a super-cool German agent temporarily stranded on an island off the British coast, where he meets a lonely, sexually frustrated woman. [R] ▼●●

Eye of the Storm (1991-German-U.S.) C-94m. *½ D: Yuri Zeltser. Craig Sheffer, Bradley Gregg, Lara Flynn Boyle, Leon Rippy, Dennis Hopper. After their parents are brutally murdered, and one of the boys is blinded, two brothers take over operation of the family's motel in a desolate location. When Boyle and Hopper rent a room, unsettling truths begin to emerge. Tedious until the last ten minutes. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Eye of the Tiger (1986) C-90m. *½ D: Richard Sarafian. Gary Busey, Yaphet Kotto, Seymour Cassel, Bert Remsen, William Smith, Kimberlin Ann Brown, Denise Galik, Judith Barsi. Ex-con Busey's town is invaded by Hells Angels types, who sadistically murder his wife . . . so he goes on a one-man crusade for revenge.

Eyes of an Angel (1994) C-91m. *½ D: Robert Harmon. John Travolta, Ellie Raab, Tito Larriva, Jeffrey DeMunn. When single parent Travolta and his daughter flee from the mobsters who threaten him, the fight dog she secretly nursed back to health makes a preposterous cross country trip to find her. Too violent for kids, too boring and absurd for adults. Sat on a shelf for four years; released after Travolta's PULP FICTION success. Original title: THE TENDER. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Eyes of a Stranger (1981) C-85m. BOMB. D: Ken Wiederhorn. Lauren Tewes, Jennifer Jason Leigh, John DiSanti, Peter DuPre, Gwen Lewis. Overweight creep DiSanti rapes and kills women, and the blood flows like wine; Tewes tracks him down, while her deaf, dumb, and blind sister (Leigh) is established as a potential victim. Utter trash. Leigh's film debut. [R]▼●

Eyes of Hell SEE: The Mask (1961)

Eyes of Laura Mars (1978) C-103m. ½ D: Irvin Kershner. Faye Dunaway, Tommy Lee Jones, Brad Dourif, Rene Auberjonois, Raul Julia, Frank Adonis, Darlante Fluegel, Rose Gregorio, Michael Tucker. A high-fashion photographer has frightening premonitions of grisly murders; some genuine suspense, lots of red herrings, and a silly resolution add up to an OK thriller but Dunaway's kinky colleagues and their lifestyles are a real turnoff. John Carpenter cowrote. [R]▼●●

Eyes of Tammy Faye, The (2000) C-79m.  D: Fenton Bailey, Randy Barbato. Narrated by RuPaul Charles. Eye-opening documentary about Tammy Faye Bakker-

Messner, former wife of popular televangelist Jim Bakker, and her fall from grace. Interesting as a chronicle of money-driven TV ministries as well as an entertaining portrait of the movement's former First Lady. [PG-13]▼●

Eyes, the Mouth, The (1982-Italian-French) C-100m.  D: Marco Bellocchio. Lou Castel, Angela Molina, Emmanuelle Riva, Michel Piccoli, Antonio Piovaneli. Dreary, pretentious pap about the effect of a man's suicide on his actor-brother (Castel), mother (Riva) and pregnant lover (Molina). At one point Castel and Molina see FIST IN HIS POCKET, also directed by Bellocchio and starring Castel. We suggest the viewer do the same. [R]▼

Eyes Wide Shut (1999) C-154m.  D: Stanley Kubrick. Tom Cruise, Nicole Kidman, Sydney Pollack, Marie Richardson, Todd Field, Lisa Leone, Thomas Gibson, Vinessa Shaw, Rade Sherbedgia, Leelee Sobieski, Alan Cumming, Fay Masterson. Affluent, happily married N.Y.C. doctor starts to come apart after his wife admits to having had a potent sexual fantasy about a man she never met. This leads the husband to foray into a world of sexual adventure for the first time. Provocative film takes place in a distinctive Kubrick environment—contained, almost claustrophobic at times. Overlong, and flawed, but still compelling, with two megawatt star performances. Nudity is plentiful, but the European version (now available on DVD) is even more graphic and runs 158m. Screenplay by Kubrick and Frederic Raphael from a 1926 Arthur Schnitzler novel. Kubrick's final film. [R]▼●●

Eyes Without a Face (1959-French-Italian) 88m.  D: Georges Franju. Pierre Brasseur, Alida Valli, Edith Scob. Moody horror film, a classic in some circles, about a brilliant but crazed scientist/surgeon/researcher (Brasseur) and his fate after disfiguring his daughter. Aka THE HORROR CHAMBER OF DR. FAUSTUS. ▼●●

Eye Witness (1950-British) 104m. ½ D: Robert Montgomery. Robert Montgomery, Felix Aylmer, Leslie Banks, Michael Ripper, Patricia Wayne (Cutts). Unpretentious yarn of American attorney Montgomery in London to defend friend accused of homicide, coping with contrasting British legal system while hunting title figure. Originally titled YOUR WITNESS. ▼

Eyewitness (1970) SEE: Sudden Terror
Eyewitness (1981) C-102m.  D: Peter Yates. William Hurt, Sigourney Weaver, Christopher Plummer, James Woods, Irene Worth, Kenneth McMillan, Pamela Reed, Steven Hill, Morgan Freeman. Slick but unsatisfying thriller about a building janitor who uses his second-hand knowledge of an unsolved murder to get close to a female TV news reporter with whom he's been infatuated. Steve Tesich's script is needlessly cluttered with minor characters and story twists. [R]▼●●

Fabiola (1948-Italian-French) 96m.  D: Alessandro Blasetti. Michele Morgan, Michel Simon, Henri Vidal, Massimo Girotti, Louis Salou, Gino Cervi. Confusing but impressive epic of persecution against Christians in 4th-century Rome. Simon is the powerful, forward-thinking Fabius Severus; Morgan is Fabiola, his cavalier offspring; Vidal is Rhual, steadfast Christian gladiator. Originally released in Europe at 150m.; English-dubbed version, adapted by Marc Connelly and Fred Pressburger and featuring an altogether different storyline, opened in the U.S. in 1951.▼

Fabulous Baker Boys, The (1989) C-113m. ½ D: Steve Kloves. Jeff Bridges, Michelle Pfeiffer, Beau Bridges, Ellie Raab, Jennifer Tilly. Two brothers' 15-year partnership as a twin-piano nightclub lounge act is shaken by the addition of a feisty (and sexy) singer, who sparks changes in their act—and their relationship. Writer Kloves' directing debut is stylish and self-assured, with some great scenes and set-pieces, but it skimps on story—and never really fleshes out Jeff Bridges' sullen character. The real-life Bridges brothers are perfectly cast, Pfeiffer is ideal. Her steamy rendition of "Makin' Whoopee" atop piano considered a minor classic. [R]▼●●

Fabulous Baron Munchausen, The (1961-Czech) C-84m. ½ D: Karel Zeman. Milos Kopecky, Jana Brejchova, Rudolph Jelinek, Jan Werich. Filmmaker Zeman (FABULOUS WORLD OF JULES VERNE) provides another visual delight here, but his episodic fantasy—which takes his hero from the inside of a whale to the surface of the moon—is stilted and uninviting. Aka THE ORIGINAL FABULOUS ADVENTURES OF BARON MUNCHAUSEN.▼●

Fabulous Dorseys, The (1947) 88m.  D: Alfred E. Green. Tommy Dorsey, Jimmy Dorsey, Janet Blair, Paul Whiteman, William Lundigan. Limp "biography" of bandleading brothers, constantly arguing in between "Marie," "Green Eyes," and other hit songs. Musical highlight: a jam session with Art Tatum, Charlie Barnet, Ziggy Elman and Ray Bauduc.▼●●

Fabulous Journey to the Center of the Earth, The SEE: Where Time Began

Fabulous World of Jules Verne, The (1958-Czech) 83m. ½ D: Karel Zeman. Lubor Tolos, Arnost Navratil, Miroslav Holub, Zatloukalova. Zeman's ingenious visual effects, reproducing the look of 19th-century engravings, outshine leaden enactment of fanciful sci-fi story by Verne. Released here in 1961 with Americanized names in credits and pointless introduction by Hugh Downs.▼

Face Behind the Mask, The (1941) 69m.

 D: Robert Florey. Peter Lorre, Evelyn Keyes, Don Beddoe, George E. Stone, John Tyrrell. Model B film of immigrant Lorre having face disfigured in fire, donning mask, bitterly turning to life of crime. Extremely well done on slim budget.

Face in the Crowd, A (1957) 125m.

½ D: Elia Kazan. Andy Griffith, Patricia Neal, Anthony Franciosa, Walter Matthau, Lee Remick, Kay Medford. Perceptive script by Budd Schulberg about homespun hobo (Griffith) discovered by Neal and promoted into successful—and unscrupulous—TV star. Cast gives life to fascinating story. Film debuts of Griffith and Remick. Look for young Rip Torn and Lois Nettleton. Many celebrities also appear as themselves, including Burl Ives, Mike Wallace, Betty Furness, Bennett Cerf, Faye Emerson, and Walter Winchell.▼

Face/Off (1997) C-138m.  D: John Woo. John Travolta, Nicolas Cage, Joan Allen, Alessandro Nivola, Gina Gershon, Dominique Swain, Nick Cassavetes, Colm Feore, John Carroll Lynch, CCH Pounder, Margaret Cho, Jamie Denton. Two thirds of a terrific movie: Federal agent Travolta agrees to have a heinous criminal's face grafted onto his own, in order to fool the no-good's brother into spilling vital information. But the daring plan goes awry in more ways than one. Travolta and Cage are charismatically over the top, and Woo's staging of action scenes is powerfully good . . . but the film doesn't know when to stop. Silly plotting and dialogue might have been overlooked in a tighter film. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Face of Fu Manchu, The (1965-British) C-96m.  D: Don Sharp. Christopher Lee, Nigel Green, James Robertson Justice, Howard Marion-Crawford, Tsai Chin, Walter Rilla. First of new series with Emperor Fu bent on conquering West.

Faces (1968) 130m. ½ D: John Cassavetes. John Marley, Gena Rowlands, Lynn Carlin, Seymour Cassel, Fred Draper, Val Avery. Highly personal drama about assorted infidelities is one of the few Cassavetes films to make it with general public. Powerful film with great acting, especially by Carlin and Cassel. [R]▼●●

Face to Face (1976-Swedish) C-136m.  D: Ingmar Bergman. Liv Ullmann, Erland Josephson, Gunnar Bjornstrand, Aino Taube-Henriksson, Kari Sylwan, Sif Ruud. Brilliant Ullmann performance and Sven Nykvist photography compensate somewhat for déjà vu feeling one gets from drama about woman psychiatrist who suffers severe nervous breakdown. As harrowing as they come; not for every taste or

mood. Originally a four-part Swedish TV miniseries. [R]

Face to the Wind SEE: Cry for Me, Billy Facing the Giants (2006) C-111m. ½ D: Alex Kendrick. Alex Kendrick, Shannen Fields, Tracy Goode, Chris Willis, Bailey Cave, Steve Williams, Mark Richt, Jason McLeod. Faith-based family drama about a losing football coach whose Christian high school is about to fire him. He also faces a dying car, a deteriorating house, and a receding hairline. At his lowest ebb he pulls religion off the bench and the team begins to pray and play together as one. Sincere if familiar home-grown production was financed by the congregation of the Sherwood Baptist Church in Albany, GA, and cowritten and edited by the director, who also stars. The giants, incidentally, are failure and fear. [PG]●

Factory Girl (2006) C-90m.  D: George Hickenlooper. Sienna Miller, Guy Pearce, Hayden Christensen, Jimmy Fallon, Jack Huston, Armin Amiri, Tara Summers, Mena Suvari, Shawn Hatosy, Beth Grant, James Naughton, Edward Herrmann, Illeana Douglas, Sally Kirkland, Mary Kate Olsen, Don Novello, Grant James. Sad, true story of 1960s socialite Edie Sedgwick (Miller) and her self-destructive spiral into depravity and drug addiction after becoming one of Andy Warhol's underground-movie "superstars." Christensen plays a famous musician who looks, acts, and sounds suspiciously like Bob Dylan, with whom she has a stormy affair. Miller gives a raw, passionate performance, while Pearce is uncanny, seemingly channeling Warhol's voice and mannerisms, but the script is repetitive and superficial, and last-minute reshoots and reediting are all too obvious. [R]●

Factotum (2006-Norwegian-U.S.-German) C-94m. ½ D: Bent Hamer. Matt Dillon, Lili Taylor, Marisa Tomei, Fisher Stevens, Didier Flamand, Adrienne Shelly, Karen Young, Tom Lyons. Low-key adaptation of Charles Bukowski's 1975 novel, with Dillon excellent as the author's booze-soaked alter ego, Henry Chinaski, who floats through a series of jobs and women. Many well-observed moments, with solid performances, but as aimless as its source, and its protagonist's self-love becomes a bit wearying. Chinaski also is portrayed by Mickey Rourke in BARFLY. [R]●

Facts of Life, The (1960) 103m.  D: Melvin Frank. Bob Hope, Lucille Ball, Ruth Hussey, Don DeFore. Sophisticated comedy with Bob and Lucy leaving their spouses for an interlude together. The two stars make a team worth watching. ▼●●

Faculty, The (1998) C-104m. ½ D: Robert Rodriguez. Josh Hartnett, Jordana Brewster, Elijah Wood, Salma Hayek, Piper Laurie, Famke Janssen, Chris McDonald, Robert Patrick, Bebe Neuwirth, Clea Du-

Vall, Laura Harris, Shawn Hatosy, Usher Raymond, Jon Stewart, Daniel von Bargen. Ohio high school students who normally clash with one another band together when they discover that their teachers are being taken over by aliens. Self-referential horror film, with a healthy nod to INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS, is a cut above usual teen gore fests and has a first-rate cast. Overlong but sharply written (by Kevin Williamson, from a story by David Wechter and Bruce Kimmel). [R] ▼●●

Fade-In (1968) C-93m.  D: Allen Smythe (Jud Taylor). Burt Reynolds, Barbara Loden, Noam Pitlik, Patricia Casey, James Hampton, Joseph Perry. Odd little film made concurrently with BLUE, about love affair between film editor Loden and man she meets while working on location. Not very good, but a definite curio; never released theatrically. BLUE actors Terence Stamp, Joanna Pettet, Ricardo Montalban, and Sally Kirkland can be glimpsed here. Video title: IRON COWBOY. ▼

Fade to Black (1980) C-100m. *½ D: Vernon Zimmerman. Dennis Christopher, Linda Kerridge, Tim Thomerson, Morgan Paul, Marya Small, Mickey Rourke. Weirdo film buff Christopher does in his enemies while dressed up as his favorite cinema villains. Interesting idea ruined by excessive violence, poor performance by Christopher. Marilyn Monroe lookalike Kerridge, as Christopher's girlfriend, is like a rose in a cesspool. [R] ▼●

Fahrenheit 451 (1966) C-111m.  D: François Truffaut. Julie Christie, Oskar Werner, Cyril Cusack, Anton Diffring, Jeremy Spenser, Bee Duffell, Alex Scott, Mark Lester. Odd and generally slow-going adaptation of Ray Bradbury sci-fi novel depicting future Earth civilization where all printed reading material is banned. Though viewer interest is held throughout, film has curiously reserved, unemotional feel to it. Truffaut's only film in English. ▼●●

Fahrenheit 9/11 (2004) C-122m.  D: Michael Moore. Moore's controversial, take-no-prisoners condemnation of George W. Bush, highlighting the Bush family's supposed ties to Saudi Arabia and Osama bin Laden and the manner in which the U.S. President allegedly exploited the tragedy of 9/11 to spearhead his own political agenda. At its best, the film pointedly undercuts Bush's justification for starting the Iraq war; it's less effective when spotlighting Moore and his patented, attention-getting theatrics. How you respond to this openly propagandistic film will depend on your political leanings and your tolerance for Moore's incendiary brand of filmmaking. [R] ▼●

Fail-Safe (1964) 111m. ½ D: Sidney Lumet. Henry Fonda, Walter Matthau, Fritz Weaver, Dan O'Herlihy, Sorrell Booke, Larry Hagman, Frank Overton, Dom De-

Luise. U.S. bomber is accidentally ordered to nuke Moscow, plunging heads of American and Russian governments into crisis of decision making as time runs out. High-tension drama done with taste and intelligence. Walter Bernstein adapted the Eugene Burdick-Harvey Wheeler best-seller. Remade in 2000 for TV. ▼●●

Failure to Launch (2006) C-96m. ½ D: Tom Dey. Matthew McConaughey, Sarah Jessica Parker, Zooey Deschanel, Justin Bartha, Bradley Cooper, Kathy Bates, Terry Bradshaw, Patton Oswalt, Stephen Tobolowsky, Rob Corddry. Bachelor McConaughey is content living at home with his folks, a fact that usually puts off any woman who's getting too serious about a relationship. Then his parents hire Parker, a so-called professional at motivating men like this to leave the nest. Pleasant-enough romantic comedy that heads exactly where you know it will. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Fair Game (1995) C-91m. BOMB D: Andrew Sipes. William Baldwin, Cindy Crawford, Steven Berkoff, Christopher McDonald, Miguel Sandoval, Johann Carlo, Salma Hayek, John Bedford Lloyd. Totally pre-fab action thriller that almost looks as if producer Joel Silver is trying to satirize himself. Miami lawyer Crawford survives the requisite amount of firepower and fireballs during her pursuit by former KGB operatives. Baldwin is the cop trying to keep them both alive. Arguably the worst movie of 1995. In her acting debut, supermodel Crawford makes a good jogger. [R]▼●●

Faithful (1996) C-88m.  D: Paul Mazursky. Cher, Chazz Palminteri, Ryan O'Neal, Paul Mazursky, Amber Smith, Elisa Leonetti, Stephen Spinella, Jeffrey Wright, Allison Janney. On her 20th anniversary, the unhappy, neglected wife of a wealthy businessman is seized by a hit man who ties her up and awaits a signal from her husband to murder her. Meanwhile, they engage in a lively and surprisingly revealing conversation. All too obviously derived from a stage play (by Palminteri, who also wrote the script), this interesting piece simply doesn't work on film,

despite good performances. Filmed in 1994. [R]▼●●

Faithless (2000-Swedish-German) C-155m. ½ D: Liv Ullmann. Lena Endre, Erland Josephson, Krister Henriksson, Thomas Hanzon, Michelle Gylemo, Juni Dahr. Ingmar Bergman scripted this forceful drama about the impact of an extramarital love affair. Sparks erupt when a successful, happily wed actress-mother (Endre) inexplicably becomes involved with her gloomy friend (Henriksson). Exquisitely played; a complex and provocative rumination on love, sex, desire, and betrayal. [R]▼●

Fakers, The SEE: Hell's Bloody Devils

Falcon and the Snowman, The (1985) C-131m. ½ D: John Schlesinger. Timothy Hutton, Sean Penn, David Suchet, Lori Singer, Pat Hingle, Dorian Harewood, Mady Kaplan, Richard Dysart, Chris Makepeace, Michael Ironside. True story, based on Robert Lindsay's book about two young men from affluent families who decide to sell government secrets to the Russians. Much food for thought, but we never get to share Hutton's feelings, and that keeps this well-made film somewhat aloof. Standout: Penn's performance as a desperate, amoral, drugged-out kid. [R]▼●●

Fall, The (2008-U.S.-Indian-British) C-118m. ½ D: Tarsem. Lee Pace, Catinca Untaru, Justine Waddell, Robin Smith, Julian Bleach, Jeetu Verma, Leo Bill, Daniel Caltagirone. In 1920s California, a young girl (Untaru) recuperating from a broken arm in a remote convalescent hospital befriends a suicidal patient (Pace), who spins an incredible yarn that holds her spellbound. In it, five heroic figures escape captivity on a desert island and go after the man who imprisoned them, a powerful governor. Visual opus by music video-commercial cult figure Tarsem is alternately whimsical and ponderous, but location filming in more than 20 countries provides a panorama of stunning locations for his showy, often imaginatively staged sequences. Based on a 1981 Bulgarian movie called YO HO HO. [R]●

Fallen (1998) C-124m.  D: Gregory Hoblit. Denzel Washington, John Goodman, Donald Sutherland, Embeth Davidtz, James Gandolfini, Elias Koteas, Gabriel Casseus, Robert Joy, Aida Turturro, Barry Shabaka Henley. Philadelphia homicide cop investigates brutal copycat murders—but is slow to realize that there may be an explanation beyond the normal for how and why these deaths are being executed. Hybrid of supernatural and cop-thriller genres doesn't pay off, despite creepy atmosphere and solid performances. It takes much too long to get where it's going, and the finale sub-

verts the film's own "ground rules." Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Fallen Angel (1945) 97m. ½ D: Otto Preminger. Alice Faye, Dana Andrews, Linda Darnell, Charles Bickford, Anne Revere, Bruce Cabot, John Carradine. Andrews, hard up and bitter, stops in a small California town and falls for sultry waitress Darnell. To get money to marry her, he plans to first wed mousy heiress Faye and fleece her. Slow-paced (if good-looking) film noir was an ill-fated change of pace for musical star Faye, in her last starring movie.▶

Fallen Angels (1995-Hong Kong) C-95m.  D: Wong Kar-Wai. Leon Lai, Michelle Reis, Takeshi Kaneshiro, Charlie Yeung, Karen Mok. Slickly made but emotionally uninvolved (and practically narrative-free) portrait of cultural alienation, which like its predecessor, CHUNGKING EXPRESS, focuses on two sets of characters: an assassin and the beautiful colleague who desires him; and a mute ex-con and the woman he covets. Dazzling cinematography, camera angles, and editing aside, this is mostly meandering and confusing—and as emotionally distant as the characters it portrays. ▼●●

Fallen Idol, The (1948-British) 94m. ½ D: Carol Reed. Ralph Richardson, Michele Morgan, Bobby Henrey, Sonia Dresdel, Jack Hawkins, Bernard Lee. Young boy idolizes a household servant who is suspected of murdering his wife. Exceptional realization of Graham Greene story "The Basement Room," told in large part from the child's point of view. Scripted by Greene, Lesley Storm, and William Templeton. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Fallen Sparrow, The (1943) 94m. ½ D: Richard Wallace. John Garfield, Maureen O'Hara, Walter Slezak, Patricia Morison, Martha O'Driscoll, Bruce Edwards, John Miljan, John Banner, Hugh Beaumont. Entertaining if somewhat vague WW2 thriller with Garfield returning to N.Y.C. after fighting in the Spanish Civil War, only to find himself hunted by undercover Nazis. Promising material never really pans out. ▼●●

Falling Down (1993) C-115m. ½ D: Joel Schumacher. Michael Douglas, Robert Duvall, Barbara Hershey, Frederic Forrest, Tuesday Weld, Rachel Ticotin, Lois Smith, Michael Paul Chan, Raymond J. Barry, D. W. Moffett, Brent Hinkley, Dedee Pfeiffer, Vondie Curtis Hall, Jack Kehoe, John Diehl. Nerdy Douglas blows his cool one morning, abandons his car in freeway traffic, and starts wandering L.A. on an increasingly violent odyssey—while Duvall, his last day before retiring from the police force, sniffs him out. Dead-on portrait of a disenfranchised, modern-day American who goes off the deep end. It's vivid, it's credible, it's extremely well acted . . . but what exactly is the point? Panavision. [R] ▼●●

BOMB D: John Mellenkamp. John Mellenkamp, Mariel Hemingway, Kay Lenz, Claude Akins, Dub Taylor, Larry Crane. Warned-over Larry McMurtry tripe about a country music star who returns to his hometown, opening old family wounds and reigniting a relationship with his one-time girlfriend, who's now married to his brother. Lenz's sexy character is the only one that avoids cliché; Mellenkamp's performance is simply boring. This marked the singing star's directing debut. [PG-13] ▼●●

Falling in Love (1984) C-107m. ½ D: Ulu Grosbard. Robert De Niro, Meryl Streep, Harvey Keitel, Jane Kaczmarek, George Martin, David Clennon, Dianne Wiest. Straightforward film about two married people who—against their better judgment—have an affair. BRIEF ENCOUNTER it's not, but De Niro and especially Streep lift it out of the ordinary. [PG-13] ▼●●

Falling in Love Again (1980) C-103m. *½ D: Steven Paul. Elliott Gould, Susannah York, Stuart Paul, Michelle Pfeiffer, Kaye Ballard, Robert Hackman, Steven Paul. Amateurish slop wherein a frustrated Gould flashes back to his halcyon youth in the Bronx and his courtship of a WASP princess. Artificial, to say the least. Twenty-year-old producer-director-writer-actor Paul scores points forchutzpah, not talent, with this feature debut; also Pfeiffer's film debut. Aka IN LOVE. [PG] ▼●●

Fall of the Roman Empire, The (1964) C-180m. ½ D: Anthony Mann. Sophia Loren, Stephen Boyd, Alec Guinness, James Mason, Christopher Plummer, Anthony Quayle, John Ireland, Omar Sharif, Mel Ferrer, Eric Porter. Intelligent scripting, good direction, and fine acting place this far above the usual empty-headed spectacle. Mason and Guinness are superb; several action sequences are outstanding. A winner all the way. Screenplay by Philip Yordan, Ben Barzman, and Basilio Franchina. Ultra Panavision 70. ▼●●

Fame (1980) C-133m. ½ D: Alan Parker. Irene Cara, Lee Curreri, Eddie Barth, Laura Dean, Paul McCrane, Barry Miller, Boyd Gaines, Gene Anthony Ray, Maureen Teefy, Antonia Franceschi, Anne Meara, Albert Hague, Debbie Allen, Richard Belzer, Isaac Mizrahi, Meg Tilly. The dreams, aspirations, struggles, and failures of students at N.Y.C.'s High School for Performing Arts should have made a great film, but this one just misses the mark, despite good ingredients and Oscar-winning music (by Michael Gore) and song (by Gore and Dean Pitchford). Moments of insight, excitement, and creativity eventually get lost in abrupt, disjointed continuity, which leaves a bushel of loose ends and unresolved ideas. Later a TV series. [R]▼●

Family, The (1970-Italian) C-100m. ½ D: Sergio Sollima. Charles Bronson, Jill Ireland, Telly Savalas, Michel Constantin, Umberto Orsini, George Savalas. Fast pacing fails to hide clichés in this action drama about an ex-con (Bronson) in single-minded hunt for the man who framed him and stole his girl. Lots of chefs involved in writing this brew, among them Lina Wertmüller. Also called VIOLENT CITY. Techniscope. [R]▼

Family, The (1987-Italian) C-127m.  D: Ettore Scola. Vittorio Gassman, Fanny Ardant, Stefania Sandrelli, Andrea Occhipinti, Jo Ciampa, Philippe Noiret. Episodic, revealing chronicle of 80 years in the life of an upper-middle-class Italian clan (with some characters portrayed through the decades by several different actors). An affectionate depiction, leisurely paced but well worth catching. Don't look for any sumptuous Roman exteriors: Scola never once strays from the family's apartment! [PG]▼●

Family Affair, A (1937) 69m.  D: George B. Seitz. Lionel Barrymore, Mickey Rooney, Spring Byington, Cecilia Parker, Eric Linden, Julie Haydon, Charley Grapewin, Sara Haden. Amiable first entry in the Andy Hardy series centers on Judge Hardy (Barrymore) solving various family problems while trying to be reelected. A good intro to the sentimental charm of life in Louis B. Mayer's idealized vision of smalltown America. Byington and Barrymore's roles were taken over by Fay Holden and Lewis Stone for the rest of the series. Based on the play Skidding by Aurania Rouverol.

Family Business (1986-French) C-98m. ½ D: Costa-Gavras. Johnny Hallyday, Fanny Ardant, Guy Marchand, Laurent Romor, Remi Martin, Juliette Rennes, Caroline Pochon. Well-made but inconsequential comedy of professional safecracker Hallyday, whose wife, daughter, and (most tellingly) son are involved in various ways with his "career." The motivations of his spouse (Ardant), particularly in relation to their son, are utterly confounding. Aka CONSEIL DE FAMILLE. ▼

Family Business (1989) C-115m. ½ D: Sidney Lumet. Sean Connery, Dustin Hoffman, Matthew Broderick, Rosana DeSoto, Janet Carroll, Victoria Jackson, Bill McCutcheon, Deborah Rush. Brainy Broderick, estranged from father Hoffman, enlists the aid of his grandfather Connery, a career criminal, to pull off a can't-miss heist. Worth seeing for three terrific performances by the charismatic leads, even though they're never quite believable as family—and the story lets them down. Further undermined by one of the most appalling music scores of recent memory, composed by Cy Coleman. Based on a novel by Vincent Patrick. [R]▼●

Family Game, The (1984-Japanese) C-107m.  D: Yoshimitsu Morita. Yusaku Matsuda, Juzo Itami, Saori Yuki, Junichi Tsujita, Ichirota Miyagawa. Arrogant tutor is engaged to propel an indolent younger son into a classy school but ends up taking over entire household. Overlong, but original, satire of Japan's burgeoning middle class offers plenty of chuckles, insights into modern-day Japan. ▼

Family Jewels, The (1965) C-100m. ½ D: Jerry Lewis. Jerry Lewis, Donna Butterworth, Sebastian Cabot, Robert Strauss, Milton Frome. Depending on your taste for Lewis, you'll either be in ecstasy or writhing on the floor in pain because he plays seven parts—all of them as potential guardians of little girl who is inheriting several million dollars. ▼

Family Life (1971-British) C-108m.  D: Kenneth Loach. Sandy Ratcliffe, Bill Dean, Grace Cave, Malcolm Tierney, Hilary Martyn, Alan MacNaughton. Forceful drama about a weak-willed and deeply troubled young woman (Ratcliffe) and her deepening psychological turmoil as her parents compel her to have an abortion. While Loach's left-of-center worldview makes this a politically loaded (and occasionally preachy) allegory, he and screenwriter David Mercer nonetheless paint a harrowing portrait of an uncaring medical bureaucracy. Originally titled WEDNESDAY'S CHILD. ▼

Family Man, The (2000) C-125m. ½ D: Brett Ratner. Nicolas Cage, Téa Leoni, Jeremy Piven, Don Cheadle, Saul Rubinek, Josef Sommer, Harve Presnell, Mary Beth Hurt, Amber Valletta, Francine York. A ruthless financial exec with no emotional ties is magically transported into a life he's never known: the working-class suburban existence he might have had if he'd married his college girlfriend. Smart and sentimental: a rare contemporary holiday-themed comedy-fantasy that has the courage of its own convictions; this one scores a bull's-eye. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Family Plot (1976) C-120m. ½ D: Alfred Hitchcock. Karen Black, Bruce Dern, Barbara Harris, William Devane, Ed Lauter, Cathleen Nesbitt, Katherine Helmond. Hitchcock coasts along in this tongue-in-cheek thriller. Harris is phony psychic who gets involved in a murder plot hatched by sinister Devane. Mildly entertaining but never credible. Ernest Lehman scripted Hitch's 54th and final film. [PG]▼●

lescent Jewish boy struggling to prepare for his bar mitzvah, while suffering the ups and downs of life with a gambling-addicted father. Competent editing would have made this an excellent after-school special. This sat on the shelf after completion in 1991. [PG]▼●

Family Stone, The (2005) C-103m.  D: Thomas Bezucha. Diane Keaton, Sarah Jessica Parker, Dermot Mulroney, Luke Wilson, Claire Danes, Craig T. Nelson, Rachel McAdams, Ty Giordano, Brian White, Elizabeth Reaser, Paul Schneider. Warm-hearted comedy-drama about an eventful New England family gathering at Christmastime, where one of five siblings (Mulroney) brings his uptight girlfriend and potential fiancée (Parker) to meet his folks, who put her on the spot. Starts simply, then reveals a succession of layers that broaden and enrich the story. The cast couldn't be better. Written by the director. [PG-13]●

Family That Preys, The SEE: Tyler Perry's The Family That Preys

Family Thing, A (1996) C-109m. ½ D: Richard Pearce. Robert Duvall, James Earl Jones, Michael Beach, Irma P. Hall, David Keith. When tractor salesman Duvall discovers his real mother was a black woman, he travels to Chicago to meet his half-brother, policeman Jones. Issues of race and family conflict are resolved a bit too easily in this rather contrived story, made sweet and believable by the efforts of a superior cast. Hall steals every scene as their blind aunt. Co-scripted by Billy Bob Thornton. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Family Viewing (1987-Canadian) C-92m.  D: Atom Egoyan. David Hemblen, Aidan Tierney, Arsinée Khanjian, Gabrielle Rose, Selma Keklikian, Jeanne Sabourin, Rose Sarkisyan. Early Egoyan feature is a provocative, daring drama-cum-black comedy about a dysfunctional family and its members' fixation on television, video, and impersonal means of communication. On-target commentary on the way hollow imagery and technology have affected contemporary life. Written by the director.▼●

Family Way, The (1966-British) C-115m.  D: Roy Boulting. Hayley Mills, Hywel Bennett, John Mills, Marjorie Rhodes, Avril Angers, Murray Head. Winning comedy about young newlyweds' problems, including impotence, and difficulty of living in same house as his parents. This warm, gentle film was actually considered controversial in 1967 when released in U.S.! Music score by Paul McCartney.

Fan, The (1949) 80m. * D: Otto Preminger. Jeanne Crain, Madeleine Carroll, George Sanders, Richard Greene. Oscar Wilde's comedy of manners Lady Windermere's Fan, involving marital indiscretion and social-climbing in Victorian England, loses much of its wit in this version. Madeleine Carroll's last film. Previously filmed in 1916, 1925, 1935 (in Germany), and 1944 (in Mexico), and remade in 2004 as A GOOD WOMAN.

Fan, The (1996) C-117m. *½ D: Tony Scott. Robert De Niro, Wesley Snipes, Ellen Barkin, John Leguizamo, Benicio Del Toro, Patti D'Arbanville-Quinn, Chris Mulkey, Dan Butler, John Kruk, Jack Black. Ridiculous retreat of all-too-familiar material, with De Niro cast as a '90s Travis Bickle, a loser on the edge, whose unhealthy passion is the S.F. Giants and their newest $40 million star, Snipes. This hollow melodrama is so overheated and overhyped by souped-up visuals and sound that the viewer feels he's been assaulted as much as the victimized baseball star. Worst of all, the film puts not one but two children in jeopardy and subjects them to psychological and verbal abuse. Ugh. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Fandango (1985) C-91m. ½ D: Kevin Reynolds. Kevin Costner, Judd Nelson, Sam Robards, Chuck Bush, Brian Cesak, Marvin J. McIntyre, Suzy Amis, Glenne Headly. Five college pals have one last fling before moving on to face Real Life. Based on Reynolds' student film called PROOF, expanded to feature length under sponsorship of Steven Spielberg. Fresh and likable, if uneven. [PG]▼●●

Fanfan La Tulipe (1952-French) 99m.

 D: Christian-Jaque. Gérard Philipe, Gina Lollobrigida, Noel Roquevert, Olivier Hussenot, Marcel Herrand, Sylvie Pelayo, Genevieve Page. Delightful satire of swashbuckling epics; Philipe is ideal as sword-wielding, love-hungry 18th-century Frenchman joining Louis XV's army. D

Fanny (1932-French) 120m. ½ D: Marc Allegret. Raimu, Pierre Fresnay, Charpin, Orane Demazis, Alida Rouffe. Marius (Fresnay) abandons Fanny (Demazis) with his child; with Cesar (Raimu) playing Cupid, she marries Panisse (Charpin). Second of Marcel Pagnol's charming trilogy, preceded by MARIUS and followed by CESAR. All three were the basis of the play and movie FANNY (1961). **▼●●

Fanny and Alexander (1983-Swedish) C-197m. * D: Ingmar Bergman. Pernilla Allwin, Bertil Guve, Gunn Wallgren, Allan Edwall, Ewa Froling, Jan Malmjsjo, Erland Josephson, Harriet Andersson. Haunting, engrossing autobiographical family saga set in tum-of-the-century Sweden; a summing up of Bergman's career (announced as his final film). Scenes of joy, exuberance, pain, torment, exquisitely expressed, and largely seen through the eyes of a young boy. This earned Oscars as Best Foreign Film and for its costumes, art direction-set decoration, and Sven Nykvist's lovely cinematography. Edited from an even longer television miniseries, which ran 312m. Look for Lena Olin as a maid. Bergman's family history is further explored in THE BEST INTENTIONS, SUNDAY'S CHILDREN, and PRIVATE CONFESIONS. [R] **▼●●

Fan's Notes, A (1972-Canadian) C-100m.  D: Eric Till. Jerry Orbach, Burgess Meredith, Patricia Collins, Julia Ann Robinson, Rosemary Murphy. Confused, football-obsessed writer becomes disillusioned with the Great American Dream of success and conformity, and ends up in mental hospital. Unfortunate misfire of Frederick Exley's highly regarded novel. [R]

Fantasia (1940) C-120m. ½ D: Ben Sharpsteen (production supervisor). Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra; narrated by Deems Taylor. Walt Disney's eight-part marriage of music and animated images remains an amazing achievement; Taylor's narration dates it more than the content. "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" (with Mickey Mouse), "The Dance of the Hours" (with dancing hippos and alligators), "Rite of Spring" (dinosaurs stalking the earth), and "A Night on Bald Mountain" (with Cherno-bog, the personification of evil) are so stunning that they make up for the less compelling sequences. Also notable for groundbreaking use of multichannel stereophonic sound. DVD (with newly filmed credits) runs 124m. Followed by FANTASIA 2000. **▼●●

Fantasia 2000 (2000) C-75m.  D: James Algar, Gaetan Brizzi, Paul Brizzi, Hendel Butoy, Francis Glebas, Eric Goldberg, Pixote Hunt, Don Hahn, Steve Martin, Bette Midler, James Earl Jones, Penn and Teller, Quincy Jones, Itzhak Perlman, Angela Lansbury, James Levine, Chicago Symphony Orchestra. Update of the 1940 Disney milestone suffers from the fact that marrying music and images is no longer a novel idea; TV-style host intro don't help. But there are a number of entertaining segments, including "The Pines of Rome," with its wondrous whales, "Rhapsody in Blue," a UPA-type cartoon set in N.Y.C., "Pomp and Circumstance," with Donald Duck as Noah's assistant, and the "Firebird Suite" finale. [G] **▼

Fantasies (1981) C-81m. BOMB D: John Derek. Kathleen Collins (Bo Derek), Peter Hooten, Anna Alexiadis, Phaedon Gheorghitis, Therese Bohlin. Amateurish nonsense about Derek's and Hooten's efforts to renovate a Greek island into a tourist trap. Shot in 1973, when Bo was 16, as AND ONCE UPON A LOVE. [R] **▼

Fantastic Four (2005) C-106m.  D: Tim Story. Ioan Gruffudd, Jessica Alba, Chris Evans, Michael Chiklis, Julian McMahon, Hamish Linklater, Kerry Washington, Laurie Holden, Maria Menounos. Scientist Reed Richards (Gruffudd) tries to capture the power of a cosmic storm, with the backing of flamboyant billionaire Victor Von Doom (McMahon) . . . but something goes terribly wrong. This comic-book movie doesn't try to court an adult audience—and risks alienating hard-core fans by inventing a brand-new "origin" tale told in strictly two-dimensional terms. Best suited to 10-year-old boys. Based on the Marvel characters created by Stan Lee and Jack Kirby; Lee has a cameo as a mailman. Alternate unrated version runs 111m. Followed by a sequel. Super 35. [PG-13] **▼

Fantastic Four: Rise of the Silver Surfer (2007) C-92m.  D: Tim Story. Ioan Gruffudd, Jessica Alba, Chris Evans, Michael Chiklis, Julian McMahon, Kerry Washington, Andre Braugher, Doug Jones, Brian Posehn, Kenneth Welsh, Vanessa Minnillo; voice of Laurence Fishburne. Sequel finds the earth imperiled by a mysterious force that is wreaking havoc with weather systems (and global landmarks), and making the impending N.Y.C. nuptials of Reed (Gruffudd) and Sue (Alba) difficult to plan. The culprit may be the Silver Surfer or possibly the returning Victor Von Doom (McMahon). A special-effectsapalooza masquerading as a feature film. Look for the comic's cocreator Stan Lee as a party guest. Super 35. [PG] D

Fantastic Invasion of Planet Earth (1966) C-91m. ½ D: Arch Oboler. Michael Cole, Deborah Walley, Johnny Desmond. Released theatrically in 3-D, this plays like a padded Twilight Zone episode; young couple find themselves trapped in seemingly deserted town enclosed in a giant Baggie. The original title, THE BUBBLE, was far less misleading: there are no aliens and no "invasion" in evidence, and not much excitement, either. Originally 112m. Filmed in widescreen Space-Vision. ▼●

Fantasticks, The (2000) C-86m. ½ D: Michael Ritchie. Brad Sullivan, Jean Louisa Kelly, Joe McIntyre, Joel Grey, Barnard Hughes, Jonathon Morris, Teller. Adaptation of the longest-running off-Broadway show in history (by Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt) is sweet and slight; this musical fable of young lovers, their fathers and a mysterious showman is almost an anachronism. Beautifully shot (on some of the same Arizona locations used for OKLAHOMA!), it's a treat for musical devotees, even if it isn't perfect. Released after sitting on the shelf for five years, recut by Francis Ford Coppola; Ritchie's version, with additional songs, is on the DVD. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Fantastic Planet, The (1973-French) C-72m. ½ D: Rene Laloux. Interesting animated feature about futuristic planet where men are dominated by superdeveloped mechanized race. Worthwhile, but static and aloof. [PG] ▼●

Fantastic Voyage (1966) C-100m. ½ D: Richard Fleischer. Stephen Boyd, Raquel Welch, Edmond O'Brien, Donald Pleasence, Arthur O'Connell, William Redfield, Arthur Kennedy, James Brolin. Tremendously entertaining science fiction story of medical team reduced to microscopic size, injected inside human body. Film's then-state-of-the-art visual effects look great in widescreen. Screenplay by Harry Kleiner, based on a story by Otto Klement and Jay Lewis Bixby (Jerome Bixby). Won Oscars for art direction-set decoration and special visual effects. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Fantomas Against Scotland Yard (1966-French-Italian) C-104m. ½ D: Andre Hunebelle. Jean Marais, Louis De Funes, Mylene Demongeot, Henri Serre. Satirical cliff-hanger-type adventure yarn, with Marais as super-criminal engaged in athletic escapades. Retitled: FANTOMAS. Franscope.

Far and Away (1992) C-140m. ½ D: Ron Howard. Tom Cruise, Nicole Kidman, Thomas Gibson, Robert Prosky, Barbara Babcock, Colm Meaney, Eileen Pollock, Michelle Johnson, Cyril Cusack, Clint Howard, Rance Howard. Scrappy, dirt-poor Irish tenant farmer hooks up, in unlikely fashion, with the equally feisty daughter of a wealthy landowner, and together they sail for America to seek their ultimate destiny in the 1893 Oklahoma land rush. Ideal vehicle for Tom and Nicole, who are both beautiful and engaging; problem is a dire lack of story to fill the lulls between fight scenes. Filmed in Ireland and Montana. Climactic land rush really gallops in Panavision Super 70. [PG-13] ▼●●

Faraway, So Close! (1993-German) C/B&W-140m. ½ D: Wim Wenders. Otto Sander, Bruno Ganz, Solveig Dommartin, Peter Falk, Willem Dafoe, Nastassja Kinski, Horst Buchholz, Lou Reed, Mikhail Gorbachev. The perfect Wenders cast (if not the perfect Wenders movie) takes up where the more successful WINGS OF DESIRE left off; this time it is angel Sander who becomes mortal, joining old celestial pal Ganz—who's now married to circus performer Dommartin, with whom he's raising a daughter and running a pizza shop in unified Germany. Lighter going than its predecessor, but also more lightweight; it's still a borderline ordeal in the beginning and final segments, despite having been trimmed from 164m. ▼●●

Far Country, The (1955) C-97m.  D: Anthony Mann. James Stewart, Ruth Roman, Corinne Calvet, Walter Brennan, Jay C. Flippen, John McIntire, Harry Morgan, Jack Elam, Robert Wilkie, Connie Gilchrist, Kathleen Freeman. Cattleman Stewart, a confirmed loner, brings his herd to Alaska and finds nothing but trouble; solid Western set against colorful backdrop of mining camp towns. Story and screenplay by Borden Chase. ▼●●

Farewell, Friend (1968-French-Italian) C-115m.  D: Jean Herman. Alain Delon, Charles Bronson, Olga Georges-Picot, Brigitte Fossey, Bernard Fresson. Mercenaries return to Marseilles following service in Algeria, team up for robbery, and inevitably clash. Ordinary and overlong. Aka HONOR AMONG THIEVES and THE CODE (1968). [M/PG] ▼●

Farewell, My Concubine (1993-Chinese) C-155m. ½ D: Chen Kaige. Leslie Cheung, Zhang Fengyi, Gong Li, Lu Qi, Ying Da. Elaborate aria, no favorite at home but cwinner of Cannes' top prize, about the contentious 52-year relationship of two male childhood apprentices in the Peking Opera, one a specialist in female roles with a lifelong attraction to his heterosexual partner, who in turn marries a beauty from a brothel. A long but consistently absorbing drama spanning China's warlord era, the Cultural Revolution, and beyond. At its best in the first half; originally 170m. [R] ▼●●

MURDER, MY SWEET and THE FALCON TAKES OVER; followed by THE BIG SLEEP (1978). [R]▼

Farewell to Arms, A (1932) 89m.  D: Frank Borzage. Helen Hayes, Gary Cooper, Adolphe Menjou, Mary Philips, Jack LaRue, Blanche Frederici. Lushly romantic adaptation of Hemingway novel about ill-fated WWI romance between American soldier and British nurse; dated but well done. Charles Lang's exquisite cinematography won an Oscar. Remade in 1951 (as FORCE OF ARMS) and 1957. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Farewell to Arms, A (1957) C-152m. ½ D: Charles Vidor. Rock Hudson, Jennifer Jones, Vittorio De Sica, Alberto Sordi, Mercedes McCambridge, Elaine Stritch, Oscar Homolka. Overblown, padded remake has unconvincing leads, static treatment of story so romantically told in Hemingway novel. Hudson is American ambulance driver wounded in WWI Italy who falls in love with nurse Jones. Last film produced by David O. Selznick. CinemaScope. ▼

Farewell to the King (1989) C-117m.  D: John Milius. Nick Nolte, Nigel Havers, James Fox, Marilyn Tokuda, Frank McRae, Aki Aleong, William Wise. Disappointing actioner with Nolte an army deserter who becomes the leader of a Borneo tribe during WW2. Goal: to protect his people from the atrocities of the Japanese and the lies of the British. Intriguing premise, but result sinks into cliché. Milius scripted, from Pierre Schoendoerffer's novel. [PG-13] ▼●●

Far From Heaven (2002) C-107m.  D: Todd Haynes. Julianne Moore, Dennis Quaid, Dennis Haysbert, Patricia Clarkson, Viola Davis, James Rebhorn, Celia Weston. Fascinating filmmaking exercise in which writer-director Haynes replicates the look and feel of a 1950s Douglas Sirk Technicolor soap opera, while tackling issues that would have been taboo in that era. Moore is a picture-perfect suburban wife, Quaid her successful husband, but he has a dark secret, while she finds herself attracted to her Negro gardener (Haysbert). Not so much a parody as a re-creation, as if a 1957 movie were being made in 2002, with art direction, camerawork, costuming, music, and color that recall such films as ALL THAT HEAVEN ALLOWS. [PG-13] ▼

Far From Home: The Adventures of Yellow Dog (1995) C-80m. ½ D: Phillip Borsos. Mimi Rogers, Bruce Davison, Jesse

Far From the Madding Crowd (1967-British) C-171m. ½ D: John Schlesinger. Julie Christie, Peter Finch, Terence Stamp, Alan Bates, Prunella Ransome. Shamefully underrated adaptation of Thomas Hardy novel about beautiful woman and her profound effect on three men. Superb production, with brilliant photography by Nicolas Roeg, score by Richard Rodney Bennett, script by Frederic Raphael, and performances by Finch and Bates. Panavision. ▼●●

Fargo (1996) C-97m. ½ D: Joel Coen. Frances McDormand, William H. Macy, Steve Buscemi, Harve Presnell, Peter Stormare, Kirstin Rudrud, John Carroll Lynch, Larry Brandenburg, Steven Reavis, Jose Feliciano. The Coen Brothers put a unique spin on a murder case, layering their story with droll observations about Minnesotans and winding up with a totally disarming comedy! McDormand is terrific as an efficient (and pregnant) police chief with multiple murders on her hands; Macy is equally good as a two-bit schemer who tries to stay cool when he finds himself way over his head in a quicksand of crime. Love that Muzak in the background! Oscar winner for Best Screenplay (Joel and Ethan Coen) and Actress (McDormand). [R] ▼●●

Far Horizons, The (1955) C-108m. ½ D: Rudolph Maté. Fred MacMurray, Charlton Heston, Donna Reed, Barbara Hale, William Demarest. Movie fiction about Lewis and Clark expedition, beautifully photographed; sporadic action; implausible love interest. VistaVision. ●

Farinelli (1994-Belgian) C-110m. ½ D: Gerard Corbiau. Stefano Dionisi, Enrico Lo Verso, Jeroen Krabbé, Elsa Zylberstein, Caroline Cellier, Marianne Basler. Sumptuously filmed saga of two brothers in 18th-century Europe, one a composer and the other a castrato opera singer (who, despite childhood castration, still woos women energetically, with the help of his brother). Rambling script has too many flashbacks and too little insight into the brothers' motivations; still, it's provocative and good-looking. Farinelli's castrato vocals were re-created by a digitally morphed mixture of a male and female opera singer. Original title: FARINELLI IL CASTRATO. [R] ▼●●

Farm, The SEE: Curse, The Farmer's Daughter, The (1947) 97m. ½ D: H. C. Potter. Loretta Young, Joseph Cotten, Ethel Barrymore, Charles Bickford, Rose Hobart, Harry Davenport, Lex Barker, James Aurness (Aurness), Keith Andes, Rhys Williams, Art Baker. Young won an Oscar for her irresistible performance as a naïve but straight-thinking farm

girl who goes to work for a senator—and winds up running for a congressional seat against his party. Delightful comedy with an excellent cast. Allen Rivkin and Laura Kerr adapted Juhani Tervapää's play Hulda, Daughter of Parliament. Later a TV series. ▼

Farmer's Wife, The (1928-British) 97m. ½ D: Alfred Hitchcock. Jameson Thomas, Lillian Hall-Davies, Gordon Harker. A Hitchcock silent comedy. Farmer Thomas, unsuccessful at finding a bride, is secretly loved by devoted housekeeper Davies. Enjoyable rustic comedy; written by the director. Based on a play by Eden Philpotts. ▼

Farmer Takes a Wife, The (1953) C-81m.  D: Henry Levin. Betty Grable, Dale Robertson, Thelma Ritter, John Carroll, Eddie Foy, Jr. Musical remake of 1935 film is slow-paced account of life in 1800s along the Erie Canal. ▼●

Far North (1988) C-90m. *½ D: Sam Shepard. Jessica Lange, Charles Durning, Tess Harper, Donald Moffat, Ann Wedgeworth, Patricia Arquette, Nina Draxton. Shepard's directing debut, which he also scripted, is a pointless, artificial drama about the various members of a Minnesota family and what happens when patriarch Durning is almost killed by a wild horse. Good cast is wasted. [PG-13] ▼●

Far Off Place, A (1993) C-105m.  D: Mikael Salomon. Reese Witherspoon, Ethan Randall (Embry), Maximilian Schell, Jack Thompson, Sarel Bok, Robert Burke, Patricia Kalember, Daniel Gerroll. Borderline-slow, but head-on-straight, Disney kids' adventure about a young Bushman guide, a game warden's daughter, and a visiting city boy who flee across the desert from murderous poachers. Frank treatment of death makes this iffy for young kids, but older children should find it rewarding. Based on the books A Story Like the Wind and A Far Off Place by Laurens van der Post. Juan Ruiz-Anchia's magnificent photography is a standout. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Far Out Man (1990) C-91m. BOMB D: Tommy Chong. Tommy Chong, Shelby Chong, Paris Chong, C. Thomas Howell, Martin Mull, Rae Dawn Chong, Judd Nelson. Labeled "A Tommy Chong Attempt," this vanity production is high on nepotism but short on laughs—or coherence. Chong plays a burned-out, leftover 1960s druggie who's trying to find his ex-lady and their child (played by their real-life counterparts). Longtime partner Cheech Marin contributes a cameo, but is sorely missed throughout the rest of the grungy film. [R] ▼●●

Fascination (2004-German-British) C-95m. BOMB D: Klaus Menzel. Jacqueline Bisset, Adam Garcia, Alice Evans, Stuart Wilson, James Naughton. Dad drowns despite being an excellent swimmer, and his son is irked when his mom immediately takes on a new squeeze with a grown daughter (who has her own checkered history). Elements are in place for a noir-ish mystery, but the only heat we get is solar from beach scenes shot in daylight. The real fascination comes from speculating how this even got made, let alone released (which it just barely was). Filmed in 2002. Super 35. [R] ▼

Fashions of 1934 (1934) 78m.  D: William Dieterle. William Powell, Bette Davis, Verree Teasdale, Reginald Owen, Frank McHugh, Phillip Reed, Hugh Herbert. Trivial but enjoyable romp of con man Powell and designer Davis conquering the Paris fashion world. Fine cast glides along with dapper Powell; Busby Berkeley's "Spin a Little Web of Dreams" number is great fun. ▼

Fast & Furious (2009) C-106m. ½ D: Justin Lin. Vin Diesel, Paul Walker, Michelle Rodriguez, Jordana Brewster, John Ortiz, Laz Alonso, Gal Gadot, Jack Conley, Sung Kang. Fourth installment of the popular franchise reunites four stars of 2001's THE FAST AND THE FURIOUS for a mostly ridiculous but frequently exciting action-adventure set along the U.S.-Mexico border. Two reluctant allies (illegal street racer Diesel and maverick FBI agent Walker) team up for a vengeful campaign against a murderous drug cartel. Serviceable plot is merely an excuse for some spectacular high-speed car chases, but fans of the series won't be disappointed by the thrills and spills of this demolition derby. Super 35. [PG-13] D

Fast and Sexy (1958-Italian) C-98m. ½ D: Reginald Denham. Gina Lollobrigida, Dale Robertson, Vittorio De Sica, Carla Macelloni. Lollobrigida is fun-loving widow who returns to her village seeking new husband. Technirama.

Fast and the Furious, The (1954) 73m.  D: Edwards Sampson. John Ireland. John Ireland, Dorothy Malone, Iris Adrian, Bruce Carlisle, Jean Howell, Larry Thor. Ireland is fugitive on the lam from murder frameup who jockeys Malone's sports car, with uninspired romantic interludes and cops-on-the-chase sequences. Produced and written by Roger Corman, this was the first film for American Releasing Corporation—soon to be the fabled AIP (American-International Pictures). ▼

Fast and the Furious, The (2001) C-107m. ½ D: Rob Cohen. Paul Walker, Vin Diesel, Michelle Rodriguez, Jordana Brewster, Rick Yune, Chad Lindberg, Johnny Strong, Matt Schulze, Ted Levine, Ja Rule. A souped-up 21st-century version of a 1950s hot-rod movie. Newcomer Walker tries to ingratiate himself with the kingpin of Southern California street racing (Diesel), hoping to join his extended family. Rudimentary storyline frames some pulse-quickening action scenes . . . but this goes on longer than any drive-in movie really should. Followed by 2 FAST 2 FURIOUS. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Fast and the Furious: Tokyo Drift, The (2006) C-104m. ½ D: Justin Lin. Lucas Black, Brandon Brendel, Zachery Ty Bryan,

Daniel Booko, David V. Thomas, Amber Stevens, Bow Wow, Lynda Boyd, Nikki Griffin, JJ Sonny Chiba. Third installment of the series travels to Japan when Black destroys his car in an illegal street race and is sent overseas to avoid jail or juvenile detention. But old habits die hard; while in Tokyo he gets involved in the dangerous underworld sport of "drifting" (racing cars around terrifying curves). Just as loud and frenetic as its predecessors, this benefits from a change of scenery and has a couple of ferocious pedal-to-the-metal sequences. Veteran martial arts star Chiba is fun to watch as an evil Yakuza boss. Followed by FAST & FURIOUS. Super 35. [PG-13] D

Fast Charlie, The Moonbeam Rider (1979) C-99m. ½ D: Steve Carver. David Carradine, Brenda Vaccaro, L. Q. Jones, R. G. Armstrong, Jesse Vint. Period action comedy-drama about a WWI deserter who enters the first long-distance motorcycle race. Appealing performance by Vaccaro as an early-day bike groupie and picturesque re-creations of post-WWI America are definite pluses. Also known as FAST CHARLIE AND THE MOONBEAM. [PG]

Fast, Cheap & Out of Control (1997) C/B&W-82m.  D: Errol Morris. Documentary filmmaker Morris delves into the lives of four disparate men: a topiary gardener, a lion tamer, a robot scientist, and a naked-mole-rat expert. Utilizing different film formats, Morris creates a fascinating examination of lifelong passions and occupations that touches on the nature of existence itself. A completely original film, enhanced by Caleb Sampson's music. [PG] V **●●

Fastest Guitar Alive, The (1967) C-87m.  D: Michael Moore. Roy Orbison, Sammy Jackson, Maggie Pierce, Joan Freeman. Doomed effort to turn recording star Orbison into a movie star—with the dumbest title imaginable for a Civil War espionage story! V

Fastest Gun Alive, The (1956) 92m.  D: Russell Rouse. Glenn Ford, Jeanne Crain, Broderick Crawford, Russ Tamblyn. Sincere Western with a moral. Ford is a peace-loving storekeeper trying to live down renown as gunslinger, but there's always someone waiting to challenge him. Tamblyn has an impressive solo dance feature. Also shown in computer-colored version. V

Fast Food, Fast Women (2000-U.S.-French) C-96m. ½ D: Amos Kollek. Anna Thomson, Jamie Harris, Louise Lasser, Robert

Modica, Lonette McKee, Victor Argo, Angelica Torn, Austin Pendleton, Valerie Geffner, Mark Margolis. Breezy character-based comedy revolves around the ever-changing romantic lives of customers (and their dedicated waitress) in a downtown Manhattan coffee shop. Wonderful cast makes the most of the uneven but occasionally insightful script from writer/director Kollek. [R] V D

Fast Fortune SEE: 11 Harrowhouse

Fast Forward (1985) C-110m. *½ D: Sidney Poitier. John Scott Clough, Don Franklin, Tamara Mark, Tracy Silver, Cindy McGee, Gretchen F. Palmer, Irene Worth, Constance Towers. Eight squeaky-clean teens from Sandusky, Ohio, crash N.Y.C. in search of their Big Break in Show Biz. Despite the title, this film is stuck in the 1950s; break-dancing can't disguise such cornball stuff. [PG] V **●

Fast Lady, The (1963-British) C-95m. ½ D: Ken Annakin. James Robertson Justice, Leslie Phillips, Stanley Baxter, Kathleen Harrison, Julie Christie, Eric Barker. Enjoyable, modest farce of naive Baxter, a Scotsman living in England, learning to drive an antique car—and to woo Christie in the process. Julie, in second film role, is thoroughly charming.

Fast Runner, The (2002-Canadian) C-161m. * D: Zacharias Kunuk. Natar Ungalaaq, Sylvia Ivalu, Peter-Henry Arnatsiaq, Lucy Tulugarjuk, Madeline Ivalu, Paul (Pauloosie) Qulitalik. A sterling epic, perhaps the only Inuit-made film we'll ever see, about a young hunter (Ungalaaq) whose tribe has been cursed; he falls in love but must face the ire of a spiteful rival. The highlight is our hero's barefooted journey across the North Canadian wilderness. A privileged peek into Inuit culture and a stirring, deeply personal drama; based on an ancient Inuit folk tale. Beautifully filmed in wide-screen digital video. Aka ATANARJUAT . . . (THE FAST RUNNER). [R] V D

Fast Times at Ridgemont High (1982) C-92m.  D: Amy Heckerling. Sean Penn, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Judge Reinhold, Robert Romanus, Brian Backer, Phoebe Cates, Ray

Walston, Vincent Schiavelli, Forest Whitaker, James Russo, Pamela Springsteen, Martin Brest. Brashly entertaining look at Southern California high school kids, who hang out at the Mall and think mostly about sex. Funny, surprisingly honest, with a very appealing cast and a memorable performance by Penn as a doped-out goofball named Spicoli. High-energy feature debut for director Heckerling, based on Cameron Crowe's factual book. Film debuts of Forest Whitaker, Eric Stoltz, Anthony Edwards, and Nicolas Cage (billed under his real name, Nicholas Coppola). Some footage of Sean Penn was added for pay TV—but songs on soundtrack changed, altering running time to 90m. Later a TV series. [R]▼●●

Fast Track SEE: Ex, The

Fast-Walking (1982) C-115m. ½ D: James B. Harris. James Woods, Tim McIntire, Kay Lenz, Robert Hooks, M. Emmet Walsh, Timothy Carey, Susan Tyrrell. Oddball prison picture, laced with black humor, stars Woods as Fast-Walking Miniver, mercenary prison guard who's hired to assassinate politico Hooks. McIntire gives a standout performance as a very cagey inmate in a film whose interesting but disparate elements never quite gel. [R]▼

Fatal Assassin SEE: Target of an Assassin

Fatal Attraction (1987) C-119m. ½ D: Adrian Lyne. Michael Douglas, Glenn Close, Anne Archer, Ellen Hamilton Latzen, Stuart Pankin, Ellen Foley, Fred Gwynne, Meg Mundy. Happily married man has a weekend fling with a sexy woman who turns out to be psychotic and proceeds to turn his (and his family's) life into a living hell. Audience-pleasing thriller telegraphs most of its suspense payoffs and features a finale that seems more appropriate to RAMBO. Still, it's extremely well acted and certainly holds your attention. The film's original ending, which was more subtle and intriguing (but dumped after an unsuccessful preview), is available on video. James Dearden based his screenplay on his own British short subject, "Diversion." [R]▼●●

Fatal Beauty (1987) C-104m. BOMB D: Tom Holland. Whoopi Goldberg, Sam Elliott, Ruben Blades, Harris Yulin, John P. Ryan, Jennifer Warren, Brad Dourif, Neill Barry, Richard (Cheech) Marin. An inexcusably awful concoction with Goldberg as a narcotics cop. There's no shortage of gratuitous violence . . . and an antidrug message to rationalize its excesses. Some of the dialogue is mind-bogglingly awful. [R]▼●●

Fat Albert (2004) C-93m.  D: Joel Zwick. Kenan Thompson, Kyla Pratt, Dania Ramirez, Shedrack Anderson III, Jermaine Williams, Keith D. Robinson. Late-adolescent Pratt is downtrodden because she has no friends, so Albert, Mushroom, and the rest of the Philly-neighborhood Bill Cosby creations emerge from her TV set as live editions of their animated-cartoon selves. This solves her problem, but not before this mild but harmless family comedy throws in some blatant plugs for Albert DVDs. Cosby himself shows up; he also cowrote and cocreative produced with his wife, Camille. Other famous folk appear in cameos. Super 35. [PG]▼●

Fatal Instinct (1993) C-88m. *½ D: Carl Reiner. Armand Assante, Sherilyn Fenn, Kate Nelligan, Sean Young, Christopher McDonald, James Remar, Tony Randall, Clarence Clemons, Michael Cumpsty, Blake Clark, Eartha Kitt, Bernard Hiller. Woeful, decades-belayed spoof of vintage film noir, with contemporary references to BASIC INSTINCT, BODY HEAT, and FATAL ATTRACTION thrown in. Assante shows an unexpected flair for farce as a cop/lawyer targeted for murder by wife Nelligan and her lover (McDonald); Young fares best as a blonde sexpot named Lola. [PG-13]▼●●

Fateless (2005-Hungarian-German-British) C-140m.  D: Lajos Koltai. Marcell Nagy, Béla Dóra, Bálint Péntek, Áron Dimény, Péter Fancsikai, Zsolt Dér, Daniel Craig. During WW2 a Hungarian Jewish teen (Nagy) is picked off a bus and dispatched to the death camps of the Holocaust. Without analyzing his plight or anguishing over his wretched circumstances the boy settles into a pattern of life amid the horrors of Auschwitz and Buchenwald. Cinematographer Koltai's directorial debut is a powerful, sensitive rendering of Nobel Prize winner Imre Kertész's semiautobiographical novel, although at times the filmmaker's approach is a bit too operatic. Kertész also scripted. Panavision.●

Fat Girl (2001-French-Italian) C-86m.  D: Catherine Breillat. Anaïs Reboux, Roxane Mesquida, Libero De Rienzo, Arsiniée Khanjian, Romain Goupil, Laura Betti. Potent drama from the always-provocative Breillat explores the complex relationship between two sisters, aged 15 and 12, who (like all the director's heroines) are obsessed by sex. The older one (Mesquida) is pretty and desirable; the other (Reboux) may be plump and miserable, but has her own yearnings. Breillat offers a voice to the title character, a type who is usually the object of scorn or ridicule. Features graphic sex scenes and an unsettling finale. ▀

Father Goose (1964) C-115m.  D: Ralph Nelson. Cary Grant, Leslie Caron, Trevor Howard, Jack Good, Nicole Fesette. Grant goes native as shiftless bum on a South Seas island during WW2, who's persuaded to become a lookout for the Australian navy—and finds himself sheltering Caron and a gaggle of schoolgirls fleeing the Japanese. Lightweight and enjoyable. Oscar-winning script by Peter Stone and Frank Tarloff. ▀ ▀

Father Hood (1993) C-94m. *½ D: Darrell James Roodt. Patrick Swayze, Halle Berry, Sabrina Lloyd, Brian Bonsall, Michael Ironside, Diane Ladd, Bob Gunton, Adrienne Barbeau, Georgann Johnson. Embarrassingly bad action comedy about self-centered, two-bit hood Swayze, who inexplicably hooks up with his two kids (who've been ill treated while in foster care) and takes them on a less-than-enthralling odyssey. In desperate need of a coherent script and characters who are even slightly likable. [PG-13] ▀ ▀ ▀

Father of the Bride (1950) 93m. * D: Vincente Minnelli. Spencer Tracy, Elizabeth Taylor, Joan Bennett, Billie Burke, Leo G. Carroll, Don Taylor, Rusty (Russ) Tamblyn. Liz is marrying Don Taylor, but Dad (Tracy) has all the aggravation. Perceptive view of American life, witty script by Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett (based on Edward Streeter's book), and peerless Tracy performance. Sequel: FATHER'S LITTLE DIVIDEND. Later a TV series. Remade in 1991. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▀ ▀ ▀

Father of the Bride (1991) C-105m. ½ D: Charles Shyer. Steve Martin, Diane Keaton, Martin Short, Kimberly Williams, Kieran Culkin, George Newbern, B. D. Wong, Peter Michael Goetz, Kate McGregor Stewart, Martha Gehman. Pleasant update of the 1950 comedy gem about a father unwilling to let go of his little girl. It's refreshing to find such "normal" characters in a '90s movie, but there are too many lulls (and a few too many sidesteps into silliness) for it to hit the bull's-eye as the original did. P.S.: Can we now arrange a moratorium on the song "My Girl"? Funny cameo by Eugene Levy. Followed by a sequel. [PG] ▀ ▀ ▀

Father of the Bride Part II (1995) C-106m.  D: Charles Shyer. Steve Martin, Diane Keaton, Martin Short, Kimberly Williams, George Newbern, Kieran Culkin, B. D. Wong, Peter Michael Goetz, Kate McGregor Stewart, Eugene Levy. Agreeable sequel has married daughter Williams announcing that she's pregnant, which impels Dad (Martin) to confront middle age. His midlife crisis includes a rash decision to sell their house and a renewed romanticism. Longish but fun. [PG] ▀ ▀ ▀

rane, Mitchell Marchand, Famke Janssen, Natasha Gregson Wagner, Paul Hipp, Ellen Greene, Samuel L. Jackson, Joie Lee, Rosanna Arquette. Odd, slow-paced drama about a movie director (Goldblum) now almost a recluse, who lives on the Jersey shore with his teenage son (Cochrane). Crowded plot involves drugs, a serial killer, a prophetic book, telepathy, mutated dolphins and alcoholism. Tackles too much, but is occasionally effective; Goldblum is excellent, as usual. John C. McGinley appears unbilled. Written by the director. [R] ▀ ▀

Fathers' Day (1997) C-98m.  D: Ivan Reitman. Robin Williams, Billy Crystal, Julia Louis-Dreyfus, Natassja Kinski, Charlie Hofheimer, Bruce Greenwood, Jared Harris, Louis Lombardi, Patti D'Arbanville, Charles Rocket, Meagen Fay. When her 16-year-old son runs away, a desperate Kinski tells each of two ex-lovers that he's the real father, hoping that this will spur one of them to find the boy. The two men—a genuine odd couple—wind up working together on this daunting task. Lackluster remake of Francis Veber's LES COMPÈRES gets whatever mileage it has from the two comic stars' personalities . . . but the boy is extremely dislikeable, and a subplot with his stepfather (Greenwood) is a complete misfire. Panavision. [PG-13] ▀ ▀ ▀

Father's Little Dividend (1951) 82m.  D: Vincente Minnelli. Spencer Tracy, Joan Bennett, Elizabeth Taylor, Don Taylor, Billie Burke, Rusty (Russ) Tamblyn. Delightful sequel to FATHER OF THE BRIDE with same cast. Now Tracy is going to be a grandfather and he doesn't look forward to it. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▀ ▀ ▀

Father Was a Fullback (1949) 84m. ½ D: John M. Stahl. Fred MacMurray, Maureen O'Hara, Betty Lynn, Rudy Vallee, Thelma Ritter, Natalie Wood. Wholesome comedy with most engaging cast. MacMurray is football coach with as many household problems as on the gridiron. ▀

Fathom (1967) C-99m.  D: Leslie H. Martinson. Tony Franciosa, Raquel Welch, Clive Revill, Greta Chi, Richard Briers, Ronald Fraser, Tony Adams. Fast-paced, tongue-in-cheek spy caper with sky-diver Welch getting mixed up with dubious good-guy Franciosa. Great fun, with Revill's performance as eccentric millionaire stealing the show. Music score by John Dankworth. CinemaScope. ▀ ▀

Fat Man, The (1951) 77m. ½ D: William Castle. J. Scott Smart, Rock Hudson, Julie London, Clinton Sundberg, Jayne Meadows, Emmett Kelly. The star of radio's popular series of the same name appeared in this one-shot film adaptation as the corpulent gourmet/detective (created by Dashiell Hammett) whose investigation of a murder leads him to a circus for whodunit showdown.

Fat Man and Little Boy (1989) C-126m.  D: Roland Joffé. Paul Newman, Dwight Schultz, Bonnie Bedelia, John Cusack, Laura Dern, Ron Frazier, John C. McGinley, Natasha Richardson. Flawed but still arresting film about the development of the atomic bomb, personalizing the story by focusing on General Groves (Newman), the bullheaded Army officer who was handed the job, and the brilliant J. Robert Oppenheimer (Schultz), who organized the brain trust creating the bomb. One complaint: some decidedly non-1940s slang amid the dialogue. J-D-C Scope. [PG-13]▼●●

Fatso (1980) C-94m.  D: Anne Bancroft, Dom DeLuise, Anne Bancroft, Candice Azzara, Ron Carey, Michael Lombard, Sal Visusco. Bancroft's only feature as writer-director is disappointing. Fat man DeLuise halfheartedly tries to reduce after the death of his obese cousin. Film veers unevenly between comedy and pathos, with a few too many excrement jokes, perhaps the uncredited contribution of Mel Brooks. [PG]▼●

Fat Spy, The (1965) C-75m. *½ D: Joseph Cates, Phyllis Diller, Jack E. Leonard, Brian Donlevy, Jayne Mansfield, Jordan Christopher, The Wild Ones, Johnny Tillotson. Once-in-a-lifetime cast makes this a must for camp followers—and a sure thing to avoid for most others. Fat Jack plays dual roles, in a story of a search for the Fountain of Youth. Shot in Florida.▼●

Faust (1926-German) 116m.  D: F. W. Murnau. Emil Jannings, Gosta Ekman, Camilla Horn, Wilhelm (William) Dieterle, Yvette Guilbert, Eric Barclay. Off-told story of the eternal, earthly conflict between good and evil, in which the title character bargains away his soul to Mephistopheles (Jannings). Not a classic like Murnau's THE LAST LAUGH or SUNRISE, but still a compelling, inventively directed, visually sumptuous film, highlighted by clever special effects and impressive use of light and shadow. Based on the play by Goethe. Dieterle, then an actor, later directed THE DEVIL AND DANIEL WEBSTER.▼●●

Favor, The (1994) C-97m.  D: Donald Petrie. Harley Jane Kozak, Elizabeth McGovern, Bill Pullman, Brad Pitt, Ken Wahl, Larry Miller, Holland Taylor. "Happily" married Kozak asks best friend McGovern to look up—and sleep with—her high school hunk boyfriend, so she can vicariously experience the affair. Pleasant cast undone by comedy material that doesn't ring true for one minute. Sat on the shelf after completion in 1991; its latter-day release did no one any favors. [R]▼●●

Favour, the Watch, and the Very Big Fish, The (1991-French-British) C-89m.  D: Ben Lewin. Bob Hoskins, Jeff

Goldblum, Natasha Richardson, Michel Blanc, Jacques Villeret, Angela Pleasence, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Samuel Chaimovitch. Pianist Goldblum agrees to pose as Christ on the cross for a photographer specializing in Biblical pictures—and then starts taking his role too seriously. Weak attempt at farce never quite connects, despite some amusing moments scattered about. This cast deserves better. [R]▼●●

Fay Grim (2007-U.S.-German) C-118m. ½ D: Hal Hartley, Parker Posey, Jeff Goldblum, James Urbaniak, Saffron Burrows, Liam Aiken, Elina Löwensohn, Leo Fitzpatrick, Chuck Montgomery, Thomas Jay Ryan. Sequel to Hartley's HENRY FOOL picks up where that film left off, as Posey—abandoned by her husband, who may or may not be dead—struggles with her rebellious teenage son. She then becomes a pawn of CIA agent Goldblum and flies to Europe to carry out a strange bargain involving Henry Fool's unpublished manuscript, which supposedly contains volatile information. Highly committed performances by the cast invite you to go along on this screw-loose, convoluted, straight-faced but tongue-in-cheek journey, even though it doesn't make much sense. Hartley also edited and composed the score. [R]●

Fear (1996) C-95m.  D: James Foley. Mark Wahlberg, Reese Witherspoon, William Petersen, Amy Brenneman, Alyssa Milano. Squeaky-clean teen falls for sexy psycho who locks horns with protective papa in a deadly battle. Passable slasher pic is somewhat redeemed by Foley's taut, stylish direction (the roller coaster scene is pretty steamy) and decent performances. Still, it's awfully derivative, especially the final showdown at the family nest. Former rapper/Calvin Klein pinup Wahlberg is menacing as the lovestruck hood, but he could benefit from diction lessons. Executive producer Brian Grazer called this "FATAL ATTRACTION for teens." Panavision. [R]▼●●

Fear and Desire (1953) 68m.  D: Stanley Kubrick. Frank Silvera, Kenneth Harp, Paul Mazursky, Steve Coit, Virginia Leith; narrated by David Allen. Kubrick's elusive, shoestring-budget feature-film debut is an existential antiwar allegory centering on four G.I.s (including a very green Mazursky, in his film debut) stranded behind the lines of an unknown enemy and fighting a fictitious war in an unidentified country. Long suppressed by Kubrick himself—who also photographed, edited, and cowrote with poet/playwright Howard Sackler—the movie contains some striking imagery and shows the germs of budding talent, but generally comes off as an arty and pretentious student film.

Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas (1998) C-119m. BOMB D: Terry Gilliam. Johnny Depp, Benicio Del Toro, Tobey Maguire, Craig Bierko, Katherine Helmond, Mark Harmon, Tim Thomerson, Penn Jillette, Cameron Diaz, Lyle Lovett, Flea, Gary Busey, Christina Ricci, Michael Jeter, Harry Dean Stanton, Ellen Barkin. Excruciating adaptation of Hunter S. Thompson's 1971 book, which defined the counterculture of its day. The film, however, is simply one monotonous, painfully long drug trip—replete with close-ups of vomit and swooping camera movements at any and every opportunity. Perhaps Thompson diehards will find some value here; others beware. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Fear Chamber, The (1971-Mexican-U.S.) C-80m. *½ D: Juan Ibanez, Jack Hill. Boris Karloff, Julissa, Carlos East, Isela Vega, Yerye Beirut. Strange film about a semi-living stone from volcano caves that requires fluid from a terrified person in order to communicate with humans; dedicated scientist Karloff and his assistants are all too eager to help. Though faintly better than the other three Mexican-American productions Karloff worked on in 1968 (just before his death), this is still awful. Aka TOR-TURE ZONE.▼●

Fear City (1984) C-96m. *½ D: Abel Ferrara. Tom Berenger, Billy Dee Williams, Jack Scalia, Melanie Griffith, Rossano Brazzi, Rae Dawn Chong, Joe Santos, Michael V. Gazzo, Jan Murray, Ola Ray, Maria Conchita Alonso. Incredibly sleazy look at Manhattan lowlife—violent and repellent in the extreme. Remarkably good cast for this kind of exploitation fodder. [R]▼●●

FearDotCom (2002-British-Luxembourgian-German) C-101m. *½ D: William Malone. Stephen Dorff, Natascha McElhone, Stephen Rea, Udo Kier, Amelia Curtis, Jeffrey Combs, Nigel Terry, Michael Sarrazin. Cop Dorff and health worker McElhone link a series of strange deaths in N.Y.C. to a particular computer Web site. Dark, gloomy, and very gory, this urban nightmare is well visualized, but the story is confusing and hard to follow. Super 35. [R]▼●

Fear Inside, The (1992) C-115m.  D: Leon Ichaso. Christine Lahti, Dylan McDermott, Jennifer Rubin, David Ackroyd, Thomas Ian Nicholas, Paul Linke. Lahti shines as an agoraphobic book artist held hostage at home by a pair of killers. David Birke's well-turned screenplay owes something, it seems, to LADY IN A CAGE. Theatrical film that premiered on cable television. [R]▼●●

Fear in the Night (1947) 72m.  D: Maxwell Shane. Paul Kelly, DeForest Kelley, Kay Scott, Ann Doran, Robert Emmett Keane. Nifty chiller in which bank teller

Kelley dreams he has killed a man in a mirrored room—and wakes up to be confronted by evidence that his fantasy was in fact reality. Based on the story "Nightmare" by William Irish (Cornell Woolrich); remade under that title in 1956.▼●

Fear in the Night (1972-British) C-94m.  D: Jimmy Sangster. Judy Geeson, Joan Collins, Ralph Bates, Peter Cushing. Newlywed Geeson accompanies husband Bates to a private school where the only other inhabitants are a somewhat befuddled headmaster (Cushing) and his cool wife (Collins). Geeson can't get anyone to believe someone is trying to kill her. Minor Hammer thriller.▼●

Fear Is the Key (1972-British) C-103m. *½ D: Michael Tuchner. Barry Newman, Suzy Kendall, John Vernon, Dolph Sweet, Ben Kingsley. Confused, unsatisfying Alistair MacLean thriller about a man driven to extremes in pursuit of stolen booty—and revenge for the murder of his wife and child. A man feels his life, his outlook, his entire raison d'être changed after he survives a terrible plane crash; he can no longer deal with his own family, but is drawn to another survivor (Perez), who's unable to cope with the loss of her baby in the crash. Superior writing and acting, with Bridges (good as always) matched by Rossellini (in her best performance to date, as his wife) and Perez. Screenplay by Rafael Yglesias, based on his novel. [R]▼●●

Fearless Frank (1967) C-83m. BOMB D: Philip Kaufman. Jon Voight, Monique Van Vooren, Joan Darling, Severn Darden, Anthony Holland, Lou Gilbert, David Steinberg, Nelson Algren. Naive country boy Voight treks off to the Big City, is murdered by gangsters, and is reincarnated as a superhero and his monsterlike clone. Pretentious as film of interest only as a curio—and as Voight's film debut. Filmed in Chicago in 1965. Aka FRANK'S GREATEST ADVENTURE and subsequently cut to 78m. Techniscope.

Fearless Vampire Killers or: Pardon Me, But Your Teeth Are in My Neck, The (1967-British) C-98m. ½ D: Roman Polanski. Jack MacGowran, Roman Polanski, Sharon Tate, Alfie Bass, Ferdy Mayne, Terry Downes, Ronald Lacey. Near-brilliant mixture of humor and horror: Professor Abronski and assistant Alfred (great bumbling idiot team) attempt to destroy family of Slavic vampires. Full 107m. version also available. Screenplay by Polanski and Gérard Brach. Later a Broadway musical

Fearmakers, The (1958) 83m. ½ D: Jacques Tourneur. Dana Andrews, Dick Foran, Marilee Earle, Veda Ann Borg, Mel Tormé. Brainwashed ex-POW Andrews comes home from the Korean War to discover that his PR firm has been overrun by subversives. Crisply told, low-budget Cold War thriller. While it's very much of its time, it anticipates contemporary ideas about the way politicians and political ideas are sold to the public. ▼

Fear Strikes Out (1957) 100m.  D: Robert Mulligan. Anthony Perkins, Karl Malden, Norma Moore, Adam Williams, Perry Wilson. Security guard Turturro is curious to find out who killed his wife and why. Slow, dull exercise in the emptiness of movies—uh, sorry, life . . . no, movies . . . life . . . argghhh! The type of film where the viewer spends more time wondering at which yard sale the set decorator found the lamp than caring about the story or characters. Feast (2005) C-87m. BOMB D: John Gulager. Duane Whitaker, Balthazar Getty, Chauntae Davies, Diane Goldner, Josh Zuckerman, Henry Rollins, Eileen Ryan, Jason Mewes, Judah Friedlander, Krista Allen, Eric Dane. The filmmakers who starred on the reality TV show Project Greenlight came up with this noisy, tedious ordeal, in which a motley crew of strangers in a bar find themselves attacked by goopy, flesh-eating creatures. Doesn't have a shred of character development, plot, or suspense but offers copious amounts of gore, explosions, and incoherent, choppy editing. Director's father, Clu Gulager, plays a bartender. Unrated DVD also available. Followed by two DVD sequels. HD Widescreen. [R] ●

vidtz, Tom Bell, Gemma Jones, James Purefoy, Greg Wise, Kenneth Anderson, Ben Chaplin. A wandering, abandoned unwed mother finds shelter with three brothers and their parents, setting off sexual sparks in the formerly placid Victorian household. Poky prestige film, produced by Merchant-Ivory and based on the H. E. Bates novel, begins and ends satisfactorily, but the middle 90 minutes is slow going. Davidtz is almost too ambiguous in the lead. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Feast of Love (2007) C-102m.  D: Robert Benton. Morgan Freeman, Greg Kinnear, Radha Mitchell, Selma Blair, Alexa Davalos, Billy Burke, Toby Hemingway, Fred Ward, Jane Alexander, Missi Pyle, Erika Marozsán. Love and heartache amidst a group of people whose lives interweave in Portland, Oregon, including a seemingly serene college professor (Freeman), an upbeat coffee shop owner (Kinnear) who can't ever see what's going on with the women in his life, and a young woman (Davalos) who promises to brighten things up. Genteel and attractive, but after a while you can feel the wheels turning . . . slowly. Based on a novel by Charles Baxter. Super 35. [R] ●

Federal Hill (1994) 100m.  D: Michael Corrente. Nicholas Turturro, Anthony DeSando, Libby Langdon, Michael Raynor, Jason Andrews, Robert Turano, Frank Vincent. Story of male camaraderie among young Italian-Americans "from the neighborhood" (Providence, R.I.) has an awfully familiar MEAN STREETS ring to it, but it's quite well done—extremely well acted and filled with unexpected twists. Turturro gives a star-making performance as the firecracker-tempered Ralphy, though the film concentrates on Nicky (DeSando), the local hunk infatuated with a pretty archeology student who's way out of his league. Director Corrente (who also scripted) plays Fredo. Available on video in original and computer-colored versions. [R] ▼●●

Fedora (1978-German) C-114m. ½ D: Billy Wilder. William Holden, Marthe Keller, Hildegard Knef, Jose Ferrer, Frances Sternhagen, Henry Fonda, Michael York, Mario Adorf, Stephen Collins. Stylish but ponderous filmization of Thomas Tryon's short story about a producer's disastrous attempt to lure a Garbo-esque actress out of seclusion. Wilder's potshots at today's films and filmmakers might carry more weight if this film was better. [PG] ▼●●

reau cooperation; result is laughless—and thus, pointless—comedy. [PG-13]▼●

Feeling Minnesota (1996) C-95m.  D: Steven Baigelman. Keanu Reeves, Vincent D'Onofrio, Cameron Diaz, Delroy Lindo, Courtney Love, Tuesday Weld, Dan Aykroyd, Levon Helm. Baigelman's highly touted writing and directing debut explores the explosive and unpredictable relationship between two brothers and the cagey young woman who comes between them. Watchable at times, but utterly disappointing; interesting cast is left high and dry, including the always welcome Weld as the boys' mother. Movie's title was suggested by a line in a song by Soundgarden. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Feel the Noise (2007) C-88m.  D: Alejandro Chomski. Omarion Grandberry, Giancarlo Esposito, Zulay Henao, James McCaffrey, Kellita Smith, Melonie Diaz. After running afoul of a Harlem gangster, a young would-be rapper (R&B singer Grandberry) seeks safe haven with his longestranged father (Esposito) in Puerto Rico, where he develops a taste for reggaetón—a my caliente mix of rap, hip-hop, reggae, and salsa. Stock characters abound in this formulaic music-fueled drama, but viewers may get in the groove while savoring energetic reggaetón performances and modestly steamy dance sequences. Look sharp, and you'll catch a glimpse of coproducer Jennifer Lopez (and husband Marc Anthony) during the movie's final minutes. [PG-13]●

Feet First (1930) 91m. ½ D: Clyde Bruckman. Harold Lloyd, Barbara Kent, Robert McWade, Lillian Leighton, Henry Hall. Lloyd talkie tries to rekindle spirit of his silent comedies with middling results. Episodic film has some very funny moments, but Harold's building-ledge routine doesn't quite come off. ▼●

Felicia's Journey (1999-Canadian-British) C-113m.  D: Atom Egoyan. Bob Hoskins, Arsinée Khanjian, Elaine Cassidy, Sheila Reid, Peter McDonald, Gerard McSorley, Brid Brennan. Mild-mannered catering manager at a British factory takes a kindly interest in a young pregnant woman who's come over from Ireland looking for the boyfriend who abandoned her . . . but the man's intentions are far from pure. A disappointment from Egoyan, from whom we expect more than just another story about a psycho—however layered it may be. Egoyan scripted from William Trevor's novel. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Fellini Satyricon (1970-Italian) C-129m.  D: Federico Fellini. Martin Potter, Hiram Keller, Max Born, Capucine, Salvo Randone. Opinions vary on merits of this visually stunning but overindulgent spectacle on ancient Rome, but if you love Fellini, you'll be more receptive than most viewers to his unique panorama of colorful and bizarre characters. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Fellini's Casanova (1976-Italian) C-158m.

½ D: Federico Fellini. Donald Sutherland, Tina Aumont, Cicely Browne, John Karlsen, Daniel Emilfork Berenstein. Uninvolving if opulent version of 18th-century lover's life, made entirely at Rome's Cinecittà Studios. Sutherland is enigmatic, the film stylized to a sometimes absurd degree. Nino Rota's music helps. Danilo Donati won an Oscar for his costumes. [R]▼

Fellini's Roma (1972-Italian) C-128m. ***

D: Federico Fellini. Peter Gonzales, Britta Barnes, Pia de Doses, Fiona Florence, Marne Maitland, Renato Giovannoli, Federico Fellini. Famed director's impressionistic ode to Eternal City of his youth, his adolescence, and the present—complete with fantasy sequence and usual carnival-of-life point of view. [R]▼●●

Fellow Traveler (1989-British) C-97m. ***

D: Philip Saville. Ron Silver, Hart Bochner, Imogen Stubbs, Daniel J. Travanti, Katherine Borowitz. Excellent political thriller detailing the plight and fate of a pair of childhood pals, one (Bochner) a movie star and the other (Silver) a scriptwriter, who are both blacklisted during the McCarthy era. Especially on target as a reflection of the temper of the 1950s, with a perceptive script by Michael Eaton. ▼

Female (1933) 60m.  D: Michael Curtiz. Ruth Chatterton, George Brent, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Philip Favershaw, Ruth Donnelly, Johnny Mack Brown, Lois Wilson, Gavin Gordon. Chatterton runs a major auto company with an iron hand—and tries to conduct her love life the same way—until independent-minded Brent comes along. (The two stars were then married in real life.) Funny, fascinating role-reversal yarn with incredibly lavish set design—watch for the organist perched in Ruth's entrance foyer!▼●●

Female on the Beach (1955) 97m.  D:

Joseph Pevney. Joan Crawford, Jeff Chandler, Jan Sterling, Cecil Kellaway, Judith Evelyn, Natalie Schafer, Charles Drake. Hot, heavy—and very tacky—melodrama, in which fisherman-stud Chandler attempts to put the make on wealthy widow Crawford. Outrageously trashy script is crammed with sexual double entendres. A must for Crawford fans—but don't expect anything resembling a good movie.

Female Perversions (1997) C-119m.  D:

Susan Streifeld. Tilda Swinton, Amy Madigan, Karen Sillas, Frances Fisher, Laila Robins, Clancy Brown, Paulina Porizkova, John Diehl, Lisa Jane Persky, Marcia Cross. Story of highly successful lawyer (Swinton), in line for a judgeship, who is consumed by self-doubt. She swings both ways sexually, and repeatedly puts her reputation at risk. That her Ph.D. candidate sister is a shoplifter is testimony to their highly dysfunctional upbringing. Disjointed, pretentious film with a title more titillating than the film itself. [R]▼●

Female Space Invaders SEE: Starcrash

Feminine Touch, The (1941) 97m. ½ D: W. S. Van Dyke, II. Rosalind Russell, Don Ameche, Kay Francis, Van Heflin, Donald Meek, Gordon Jones, Robert Ryan. Brittle comedy of author Ameche writing book on jealousy, finding himself a victim when he brings wife Russell to N.Y.C.; she suspects he's carrying on with glamorous Francis.

Femme Fatale (1991) C-90m. BOMB D: André Gutfreund. Colin Firth, Lisa Zane, Billy Zane, Scott Wilson, Lisa Blount, Carmine Caridi. Firth is squeaky-clean newlywed whose mysterious bride vanishes on eve of their honeymoon; he then uncovers lurid underground lifestyle she came from and to which she may have returned. Lisa Zane isn't terribly enigmatic, just tedious. Psychological drama begs for a sensible screenplay. Lisa and Billy Zane are sister and brother. [Available in both R and PG versions] ▼●

Femme Fatale (2002-French) C-112m. ½ D: Brian De Palma. Rebecca Romijn-Stamos, Antonio Banderas, Peter Coyote, Ériq Ebouaney, Edouard Montoute, Rie Rasmussen, Thierry Frémont, Gregg Henry. Giddy mix of ingredients from vintage De Palma (and Hitchcock) thrillers with Romijn-Stamos in fine form—literally and otherwise—as a deadly blonde bombshell. She cheats her partners out of the loot from a daring theft and assumes a new identity, but she's been caught on film by photographer Banderas . . . and the twists just keep a-comin'. Story doesn't make much sense, but tries to intoxicate the viewer with its audacity and a swirl of stylish images and set pieces. Régis Wargnier and Sandrine Bonnaire appear in the Cannes Film Festival segment, screening their film EAST-WEST. Written by the director. [R] ▼●

FernGully . . . The Last Rainforest (1992) C-76m.  D: Bill Kroyer. Voices of Tim Curry, Samantha Mathis, Christian Slater, Robin Williams, Grace Zabriskie, Cheech Marin, Thomas Chong, Tone Loc. Entertaining animated feature for kids, with an ecological message. Mystical miniature forest creatures are threatened when human invasion of their rainforest (with bulldozers) threatens to unleash an evil spirit who's been locked up in a tree for years. Lively and enjoyable, if not memorable, with plenty of laughs for grownups in the free-flowing dialogue of Batty Koda, a whacked-out bat voiced by Robin Williams. Followed by a video sequel, FERNGULLY 2: THE MAGICAL RESCUE. [G] ▼●●

funny, with on-target jabs at high school life, then wanders through heavy-handed slapstick and moody self-serious ruminations before regaining momentum for a bright finish. Typically uneven John Hughes script, but one of the pop-culture landmarks of its time. Later a TV series. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Ferry Cross the Mersey (1965-British) 88m.  D: Jeremy Summers. Gerry and The Pacemakers, Cilla Black, The Fourmost, Jimmy Saville. Gerry Marsden and The Pacemakers perform eight songs in this musical made to cash in on their popularity; most appropriately, they appear as a Liverpool band attempting to compete in a music contest.

Ferry to Hong Kong (1959-British) C-103m. ½ D: Lewis Gilbert. Orson Welles, Curt Jurgens, Sylvia Syms, Jeremy Spenser. Welles and Jurgens have field day as straight-faced ferry boat skipper and drunken Austrian on trip to Macao. Otherwise just routine. CinemaScope. ▼

Festival in Cannes (2002) C-99m.  D: Henry Jaglom. Anouk Aimée, Maximilian Schell, Greta Scacchi, Zack Norman, Ron Silver, Jenny Gabrielle, Alex Craig Mann, Peter Bogdanovich. Slice-of-life drama set against the Cannes Film Festival, where everyone is after something: a deal, a script, a commitment, a comeback, a reconciliation. Told in Jaglom's loose, sometimes ragged improvisational style, with exceptional actors adding substance to the proceedings. Funny, observant, and especially recommended for movie buffs. Cameos include Faye Dunaway and William Shatner. ▼●

Fed, The (1989) C-96m.  D: Bill D'Elia. Rene Auberjonois, Ron McLarty, Joe Grifasi, Scott Allegrucci, Gale Mayron, David Strathairn, Stanley Tucci, Lynne Killmeyer, Kathleen Doyle, Libby George. David Lynch meets Norman Rockwell in this oddly likable satire of 1950s small-town America, centering on a feud that erupts between two families in neighboring hamlets. Broadly played; has cult-status possibilities. Based on Thomas Berger's novel; coscripted by first-time director D'Elia. [R] ▼

Fever (2001) C-93m. ½ D: Alex Winter. Henry Thomas, David O'Hara, Teri Hatcher, Bill Duke, Remak Ramsey, Marisol Padilla Sanchez, Irma St. Paule. Somber, pitch-black chiller about a struggling young artist/drawing instructor (Thomas) who lives in a dingy Brooklyn tenement. On the night a mysterious stranger moves in upstairs, his landlord is brutally murdered. Is his new neighbor real or imagined? Does the cop on the case think he's the killer? Occasional boring stretches are outweighed by genuinely creepy atmosphere and effectively understated performances; Winter (of BILL & TED fame) does a fine job of visualizing the artist's fears and growing paranoia. [R] ▼

Fever in the Blood, A (1961) C-117m. ½ D: Vincent Sherman. Ephem Zimbalist, Jr., Angie Dickinson, Herbert Marshall, Don Ameche, Jack Kelly, Carroll O'Connor. Turgid dramatics focusing on murder trial which various candidates for governor use to further political ambitions.

Fever Pitch (1985) C-96m. BOMB D: Richard Brooks. Ryan O'Neal, Catherine Hicks, Giancarlo Giannini, Bridgette Andersen, Chad Everett, John Saxon, William Smith. Anachronistic look at gambling fever with newspaper columnist (and "fever" victim) O'Neal. Embarrassingly bad; overwritten by veteran Brooks with declamatory dialogue from the Dragnet school of scripts. [R] ▼

Fever Pitch (1997-British) C-102m.  D: David Evans. Colin Firth, Ruth Gemmell, Neil Pearson, Lorraine Ashbourne, Mark Strong, Holly Aird, Ken Stott, Stephen Rea. Likable, often perceptive look at a soccer-obsessed schoolteacher and the colleague who falls in love with him but can't understand (or embrace) his obsession with a local team. Nick Hornby (HIGH FIDELITY) adapted his novel, which offers a fresh look at the differences between men and women. Remade in 2005. [R] ▼

Fever Pitch (2005) C-101m.  D: Peter Farrelly, Bobby Farrelly, Drew Barrymore, Jimmy Fallon, James B. Sicking, JoBeth Williams, Willie Garson, Evan Helmuth, Ione Skye, KaDee Strickland, Marissa Jaret Winokur. Appealing comedy about a workaholic, just turning 30, who meets a nice-guy schoolteacher one winter, only to learn as spring arrives that he is a lifelong Boston Red Sox fanatic. Writers Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandel paint a believable picture of two people who love each other but have to overcome a major obstacle. A departure from gross-out absurdism for the Farrelly Brothers; the stars couldn't be more likable. Set against the backdrop of the Red Sox's amazing 2004 season. Based on Nick Hornby's novel, filmed before in 1997. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Few Days in the Life of I. I. Oblomov, A SEE: Oblomov

Few Days With Me, A (1988-French) C-131m.  D: Claude Sautet. Daniel Auteuil, Sandrine Bonnaire, Jean-Pierre Marielle, Dominique Lavanant, Danièle Darrieux, Tanya Lopert. Intriguing chronicle of chameleonlike Auteuil, whose family owns a department-store chain, and the series of events that ensue upon his checking up on one outlet, located in a provincial town. Veers too much between comedy (some of which is hilarious) and drama.

Few Good Men, A (1992) C-138m.  D: Rob Reiner. Tom Cruise, Jack Nicholson,

Demi Moore, Kevin Bacon, Kiefer Sutherland, Kevin Pollak, James Marshall, J.T. Walsh, Christopher Guest, J.A. Preston, Matt Craven, Wolfgang Bodison, Cuba Gooding, Jr., Noah Wyle. Aaron Sorkin's powerful one-set play is effectively expanded for movie retelling, as a slick young Navy lawyer (Cruise) is driven to investigate the case of two Marines who killed a compatriot. Nicholson bristles as the commanding officer of the base who doesn't want the whole story told. Smashing courtroom climax, top-grade performances all around, but a handful of contrivances keep this from scoring a direct hit. Panavision. [R] ▼

ffolkes (1980) C-99m.  D: Andrew V. McLaglen. Roger Moore, James Mason, Anthony Perkins, Michael Parks, David Hedison, Jack Watson, Lea Brodie. Moore has fun playing an eccentric counterterrorist hired by the British government when a team of terrorists threaten to blow up two North Sea oil rigs. Surprisingly little action per se, but an entertaining yarn. Retitled ASSAULT FORCE for TV. Aka NORTH SEA HIJACK. [PG] ▼

F for Fake (1974) C-88m. ½ D: Orson Welles. Wellesian tomfoolery, which started out as a portrait of notorious art forger Elmyr de Hory. When one of the interviewees turned out to be Clifford Irving—who fooled the world with a bogus Howard Hughes autobiography—Welles was forced to alter his film. Now it's a free-form treatise on hoaxes, with Welles' on-camera charm compensating for some of the movie's rough edges. Joseph Cotten, Paul Stewart, and Laurence Harvey appear briefly as themselves, along with Welles' longtime companion, Oja Kodar. ▼

Fickle Finger of Fate, The (1967-U.S.-Spanish) C-91m. *½ D: Richard Rush. Tab Hunter, Luis Prendes, Patty Shepard, Gustavo Rojo, Fernando Hilbeck. Idiomatic comedy with Hunter an American engineer falsely accused of smuggling a candlestick, known as The Finger of Fate, out of Spain. He goes undercover in an attempt to unmask the real culprit. ▼

Fiddler on the Roof (1971) C-181m.  D: Norman Jewison. (Chaim) Topol, Norma Crane, Leonard Frey, Molly Picon, Paul Mann, Rosalind Harris, Michele Marsh, Neva Small, Candice Bonstein, Paul (Michael) Glaser. Rousing, colorful location-filmed adaptation of Joseph Stein's hit play based on Sholem Aleichem stories of humble village of Anatevka. Topol is hearty as Tevye, trying to preserve Jewish heritage against growing odds. Sheldon Harnick-Jerry Bock score melodically performed; Isaac Stern's violin featured on soundtrack. Earned Oscars for Cinematography (Oswald Morris) and Scoring (John Williams). Reissued at 150m. For an interesting comparison, see the original Yiddish-language TEVYE. Panavision. [G] ▼

drew Currie. Carrie-Anne Moss, Billy Connolly, Dylan Baker, K'Sun Ray, Tim Blake Nelson, Henry Czerny, Sonja Bennett, Jennifer Clement, Rob LaBelle, Aaron Brown. Standard boy-and-his-dog formula is given a darkly amusing futuristic twist. A boy named Timmy (of course) adopts a domesticated six-foot-tall zombie that performs all the tasks a family pet might . . . until he starts sucking on the neighbors and terrorizing the tight-knit community. Smart premise could have been a contender in better hands; starts out great but quickly lapses into predictable silliness and gore. Connolly is fun to watch as Fido. Super 35. [R] ●

Field of Dreams (1989) C-106m. ½ D: Phil Alden Robinson. Kevin Costner, Amy Madigan, Gaby Hoffmann, Ray Liotta, Timothy Busfield, James Earl Jones, Burt Lancaster, Frank Whaley, Dwier Brown. Costner plays a novice farmer in Iowa who hears "a voice" that inspires him to build a baseball diamond on his property, in the hope of bringing the legendary baseball star Shoeless Joe Jackson (whose career was cut short by the Black Sox scandal) back to life. A story of redemption and faith, in the tradition of the best Hollywood fantasies, with moments that are pure magic. Kudos to writer-director Robinson, who adapted W. P. Kinsella's book Shoeless Joe, for hitting (and maintaining) just the right note from start to finish. Lovely score by James Horner. [PG] ●●

Fiendish Ghouls, The SEE: Mania

Fiendish Plot of Dr. Fu Manchu, The (1980-British) C-108m. BOMB D: Piers Haggard. Peter Sellers, Helen Mirren, Sid Caesar, David Tomlinson, Simon Williams, Steve Franken. Disastrous comedy features Sellers in a dual role, as the title character and as his archenemy, Scotland Yard detective Nayland Smith. Painfully unfunny and, sad to say, Sellers' last film. [PG] ●●

Fiend Who Walked the West, The (1958) 101m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. Hugh O'Brian, Robert Evans, Dolores Michaels, Linda Cristal, Stephen McNally. Interesting if not altogether successful transposition of KISS OF DEATH to Western setting, with Evans ludicrous in the Widmark psycho role. CinemaScope. ▼

Fiend Without a Face (1958-British) 74m. *½ D: Arthur Crabtree. Marshall Thompson, Kim Parker, Terence Kilburn, Michael Balfour, Gil Winfield. Scientist materializes thoughts in form of invisible brain-shaped creatures which kill people for food. Horrific climax; good special effects. ▼●●

Fierce Creatures (1997) C-93m. ½ D: Robert Young, Fred Schepisi. John Cleese, Jamie Lee Curtis, Kevin Kline, Michael Palin, Ronnie Corbett, Carey Lowell, Robert Lindsay. Heartless corporate mogul takes over a failing British zoo and insists it pay its own way, leaving the new zoo director (Cleese) to deal with a resentful staff and other complications. Pleasant enough farce cowritten by Cleese to reunite the cast of A FISH CALLED WANDA never quite pays off, but has its moments. Kline is fun in a dual role. Filmed in 1995, then largely rewritten and refilmed in 1996 with a new director (Schepisi); note how Lowell disappears from whole sections of the picture. Cynthia Cleese, one of the zookeepers, is John's daughter. Panavision. [PG-13] ●●

Fierce People (2007) C-112m.  D: Griffin Dunne. Diane Lane, Anton Yelchin, Donald Sutherland, Kristen Stewart, Elizabeth Perkins, Paz de la Huerta, Chris Evans. Sutherland's amusing performance as a reclusive billionaire dominates this wildly uneven adaptation of Dirk Wittenborn's novel, an '80s coming-of-age story about a substance-abusing masseur (Lane), her codependent teenage son (Yelchin), and the eventful summer they spend as guests on the billionaire's New Jersey estate. Barely released two years after its film festival debut. [R] ●

Fiercest Heart, The (1961) C-91m.  D: George Sherman. Stuart Whitman, Juliet Prowse, Ken Scott, Raymond Massey, Geraldine Fitzgerald. Good cast and action-packed skirmishes with Zulus can't raise this programmer to any heights. Set in Africa. CinemaScope.

the American media/celebrity machine. Highly charged, in-your-face, sometimes over-the-top moviemaking with attitude to spare. Written by the director. Super 35. [R] ▼

5th Ave. Girl (1939) 83m.  D: Gregory LaCava. Ginger Rogers, Walter Connolly, Verree Teasdale, James Ellison, Tim Holt, Kathryn Adams, Franklin Pangborn, Louis Calhern, Jack Carson. Tiresome social comedy with Rogers as homeless girl taken in by unhappy millionaire Connolly; even Ginger is lifeless in this film that purports to show that poor is better than rich if you've got a head on your shoulders. ▼●

Fifth Day of Peace, The (1972-Italian) C-100m.  D: Guillianio Montaldo. Richard Johnson, Franco Nero, Bud Spencer, Michael Goodliffe, Helmut Schneider. Episodic story of several disillusioned WWI German soldiers aimlessly wandering war-ravaged Italian countryside following the armistice. [PG] ▼●●

Fifth Element, The (1997-French) C-127m.  D: Luc Besson. Bruce Willis, Gary Oldman, Ian Holm, Milla Jovovich, Chris Tucker, Luke Perry, Brion James, Tommy "Tiny" Lister, Jr., Lee Evans, John Neville. Wildly imaginative tale set in the 23rd century, where a world-weary Brooklyn, N.Y., cab driver finds himself involved with a strange woman who may be responsible for saving the world from destruction. A visual candy store of futuristic images, but the film's strongest suit is its sense of humor. Unfortunately, it gets a bit tedious and formulaic toward the end, with Tucker's over-the-top radio host hogging the spotlight. Conceived by Besson when he was a teenager. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Fifth Floor, The (1980) C-90m. BOMB D: Howard Avedis. Bo Hopkins, Dianne Hull, Patti D'Arbanville, Sharon Farrell, Mel Ferrer, Julie Adams, John David Carson. A few laughs don't compensate for derivative story of college disco dancer who is wrongly committed to an insane asylum. Collectors of screen dementia should study Hopkins' performance. [R] ▼

Fifth Monkey, The (1990) C-93m.  D: Eric Rochat. Ben Kingsley, Mika Lins, Vera Fischer, Silvia De Carvalho. Straightforward, extremely enjoyable tale of snake and rare animal hunter Kingsley, and his escapades while attempting to get chimps and earn enough money to wed the woman of his dreams. Rochat, who also scripted, movingly illustrates the necessity for mankind to respect the animal world. Beautifully filmed in Brazil. [PG-13] ▼●

5th Musketeer, The (1979-Austrian) C-103m. ½ D: Ken Annakin. Beau Bridges, Sylvia Kristel, Ursula Andress, Cornel Wilde, Ian McShane, Lloyd Bridges, Alan Hale, Jr., Jose Ferrer, Helmut Dantine, Rex Harrison, Olivia de Havilland. Lavish, well-cast remake of THE MAN IN THE IRON MASK offers

nothing new, but retells Dumas' story in capable fashion. Major points of interest: Austrian location, veteran cast. Filmed in 1977. [PG] ▼

Fifty/Fifty (1992) C-101m. *½ D: Charles Martin Smith. Peter Weller, Robert Hays, Charles Martin Smith, Ramona Rahman, Kay Tong Lim, Dom Magwili. CIA mercenaries Weller and Hays bicker and bumble through the jungle in this silly action/adventure, in which revolvers outshoot machine guns; takes a serious turn when the "heroes" finally take a stand. [R] ▼

50 First Dates (2004) C-96m.  D: Peter Segal. Adam Sandler, Drew Barrymore, Rob Schneider, Sean Astin, Lusia Strus, Blake Clark, Dan Aykroyd, Amy Hill, Allen Covert, Maya Rudolph, Nephi Poikaikai Brown. A veterinarian living in Hawaii who's known for quickie relationships falls in love with a woman who—it turns out—has short-term memory loss. That means he has to win her over every single day! Not-bad premise for an offbeat romantic comedy gets typical Sandler treatment, portraying him as a lovable guy while purveying a stream of crude jokes at the same time. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Ryan Phillippe, Salma Hayek, Neve Campbell, Mike Myers, Sela Ward, Breckin Meyer, Sherry Stringfield, Ellen Albertini Dow, Heather Matarazzo, Lauren Hutton, Michael York, Daniel Lapaine, Mark Ruffalo, Ron Jeremy. Dreary drama attempts to capture the spirit of hedonistic nightclub Studio 54, which flourished in the 1970s and attracted naive young people like Phillippe, who thought entry meant a stepping-stone to success and self-esteem. Clichéd story takes focus off the most interesting person on-screen—Myers, in a canny performance as Steve Rubell, the ringmaster of this nightly drug-and-sex party. Various celebrities appear as themselves. [R] ▼●●

52 Pick-Up (1986) C-110m.  D: John Frankenheimer. Roy Scheider, Ann-Margret, Vanity, John Glover, Robert Trebor, Lonny Chapman, Kelly Preston, Clarence Williams III, Doug McClure. Self-made businessman is caught in web of blackmail and murder—and determines to break free by himself. Elmore Leonard's story is good, but the lead characters are cold, and film wallows too long in the sleazy, voyeuristic world of the bad guys. It also would have been better shorter.

Same novel was adapted just two years earlier as THE AMBASSADOR. [R]▼●●

Fight Club (1999) C-139m.  D: David Fincher. Brad Pitt, Edward Norton, Helena Bonham Carter, Meat Loaf (Aday), Jared Leto. A disaffected office worker (Norton) whose life has turned gray finds unexpected release through violent fistfights, organized by a new "friend" (Pitt), who lives life on the edge. The impromptu battles evolve into an underground network of fight clubs where guys pummel each other . . . but the friend has an even more ambitious agenda. Draws you in with its intriguing story, black comedy, and flamboyant visuals, then shifts tone, turns heavy-handed, and heads toward an alarmingly senseless resolution. Super 35. [R]▼●

Fighting (2009) C-105m.  D: Dito Montiel. Channing Tatum, Terrence Howard, Zulay Henao, Michael Rivera, Flaco Navaja, Peter Anthony Tambakis, Luis Guzmán, Anthony DeSando, Brian J. White, Roger Guenveur Smith, Altigracia Guzmán. Tightly written and directed melodrama about a small-town hustler who comes to N.Y.C. and is lured into the world of underground bare-knuckle fighting by a shady hood looking to make a quick buck. Vivid, action-packed fight sequences are supported by a solid storyline and strong performances from Tatum and Howard. Montiel proved with A GUIDE TO RECOGNIZING YOUR SAINTS (also with Tatum) that he knows his way around these particular mean streets; he impressively avoids turning this simple tale into a bad imitation of a grade-B '40s boxing movie. [PG-13]

Fighting Back (1982) C-98m. ½ D: Lewis Teague. Tom Skerritt, Patti LuPone, Michael Sarrazin, Yaphet Kotto, David Rasche, Ted Ross, Pat Cooper. A return visit to DEATH WISH territory; fed up with lackadaisical police, hotheaded South Philly deli owner (Skerritt, who's excellent) organizes Guardian Angels-like patrol to clean up criminal scum, but is unprepared for the complications which ensue. Unpleasant, but fast, slick, and convincing; these people know which buttons to push. [R]▼

Fighting Kentuckian, The (1949) 100m. ½ D: George Waggner. John Wayne, Vera Ralston, Philip Dorn, Oliver Hardy, Marie Windsor. Frontierland around 1810 is setting for two-fisted saga of Kentuckian (Wayne) combating land-grabbing criminals and courting Ralston, French general's daughter. Hardy makes rare solo appearance in character role. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●

Fighting Mad (1976) C-90m. ½ D: Jonathan Demme. Peter Fonda, Lynn Lowry, John Doucette, Philip Carey, Scott Glenn, Kathleen Miller, Harry Northup. Typical revenge picture, with peaceable Fonda driven to violence by ruthless landowner who wants to take over his farm. On-target for this kind of entertainment. [R]▼●

Fighting Pimpernel, The SEE: Elusive Pimpernel, The

Fighting Seabees, The (1944) 100m.  D: Edward Ludwig. John Wayne, Susan Hayward, Dennis O'Keefe, William Frawley, Leonid Kinskey, J. M. Kerrigan, Ben Welden, Paul Fix, Grant Withers, Duncan Renaldo. Spirited WW2 saga of construction company boss Wayne and naval officer O'Keefe tangling professionally and personally, with journalist Hayward the love interest. The scenario charts the manner in which the "Seabees" (or battalion of construction worker-soldiers) came to be established. Screenplay by Borden Chase and Aeneas MacKenzie. Action-packed second unit direction by Howard Lydecker.▼●

Fighting 69th, The (1940) 90m. ½ D: William Keighley. James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, George Brent, Jeffrey Lynn, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Dennis Morgan, Dick Foran, John Littel, George Reeves, Frank Coghlan, Jr. Overripe (but tough to dislike) WW1 tale mixes roughneck comedy, exciting battle action, sloppy sentiment, incredible characterizations (especially Cagney's) detailing exploits of famed Irish regiment. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●

Fighting Sullivans, The SEE: Sullivans, The

Fighting Temptations, The (2003) C-123m. ½ D: Jonathan Lynn. Cuba Gooding, Jr., Beyoncé Knowles, Melba Moore, Mike Epps, Reverend Shirley Caesar, LaTanya Richardson, Steve Harvey, Montell Jordan, T-Bone, Faith Evans, The O'Jays, Angie Stone, Faizon Love, Rue McClanahan. A would-be mover and shaker who's talked his way out of a good job in N.Y.C. returns to Georgia and takes over his hometown church choir, aiming to win an annual gospel competition. He also has an eye for Knowles, who's something of an outcast in town but has a great voice. Obvious and overlong, but buoyed by heaping doses of great music. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Figures in a Landscape (1970-British) C-95m.  D: Joseph Losey. Robert Shaw, Malcolm McDowell, Henry Woolf, Christopher Malcolm, Pamela Brown. Capable leads and some amazing helicopter stunt work offer scant compensation for muddled allegory about two fugitives in an unnamed country pursued by an unnamed enemy. Barely released. Losey fans will want to give a look. Panavision. [PG]

File of the Golden Goose, The (1969-British) C-105m.  D: Sam Wanamaker. Yul Brynner, Charles Gray, Edward Woodward, John Barrie, Adrienne Corri. Strictly formula effort with American agent and Scotland Yard man going undercover in London to get the goods on murderous counterfeiting gang. [M/PG]

File on Thelma Jordan, The (1949) 100m. ½ D: Robert Siodmak. Barbara Stanwyck, Wendell Corey, Joan Tetzel, Stanley Ridges, Richard Rober, Paul Kelly. Tough little film noir focusing largely on romance between unhappily married assistant D.A. Corey and femme fatale Stanwyck. Handsomely photographed by George Barnes. Aka THELMA JORDON.

Fillmore (1972) C-105m.  D: Richard T. Heffron. Bill Graham, The Grateful Dead, It's a Beautiful Day, Santana, Jefferson Airplane, Quicksilver Messenger Service. Good rock documentary about Fillmore West's final days is made even better by extensive footage of its magnetic owner, Bill Graham, on the phone and on stage; one of the better rock films. Multiscreen. [R]▼

Final Analysis (1992) C-125m. ½ D: Phil Joanou. Richard Gere, Kim Basinger, Uma Thurman, Eric Roberts, Paul Guilfoyle, Keith David, Robert Harper, Agustin Rodriguez. Stylish, sexy thriller about a San Francisco psychiatrist who becomes involved with a patient's unhappily married sister—only to find himself enmeshed in an elaborate Hitchcockian web of murder and duplicity. Basinger is surprisingly good, Gere distressingly low-key; but the film's plodding mid-section almost undermines a bravura finale. Written by Wesley Strick. Harris Yulin appears unbilled as the prosecuting attorney. [R]▼●●

Final Approach (1991) C-100m. *½ D: Eric Steven Stahl. James B. Sicking, Hector Elizondo, Madolyn Smith, Kevin McCarthy, Cameo Kneuer. Pilot Sicking, testing a stealth-type jet, apparently ejects—then awakens in the office of psychiatrist Elizondo, who wants to investigate the pilot's past. Weary, hackneyed plot treated as if it sparkles with originality. This was the first film recorded with digital technology; the sound is great, but the movie isn't. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Final Assignment (1980-Canadian) C-92m. BOMB D: Paul Almond. Genevieve Bujold, Michael York, Burgess Meredith, Colleen Dewhurst, Alexandra Stewart. Television reporter Bujold takes on the KGB when she discovers the Russians are conducting scientific experiments on children. Schlock production, with Montreal an unsatisfactory substitute for Moscow; poor script, embarrassing performances. [PG]▼

Final Chapter—Walking Tall (1977) C-112m. BOMB D: Jack Starrett. Bo Svenson, Margaret Blye, Forrest Tucker, Lurene Tuttle, Morgan Woodward. Yet another saga about true-life Tennessee sheriff Buford Pusser, and inferior to its predecessors. Despite title, this is not the final chapter; a TV movie (A REAL AMERICAN HERO) and series followed. Aka WALKING TALL—FINAL CHAPTER. [R]▼●●

Final Conflict, The (1981) C-108m. *½ D: Graham Baker. Sam Neill, Rossano Brazzi, Don Gordon, Lisa Harrow, Mason Adams. The third OMEN movie has the anti-Christ Damien Thorn (Neill) 30ish and the U.S. Ambassador to England. For genre addicts only. Followed by a TVM, OMEN IV: THE AWAKENING. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Final Countdown, The (1980) C-104m.  D: Don Taylor. Kirk Douglas, Martin Sheen, Katharine Ross, James Farentino, Ron O'Neal, Charles Durning. An aircraft carrier (the real-life U.S.S. Nimitz) enters a time-warp and finds itself in the Pacific just before the attack on Pearl Harbor. Familiar but satisfying fantasy yarn; perfect TV fare although better viewed in widescreen. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Final Cut, The (2004-Canadian-German) C-105m.  D: Omar Naim. Robin Williams, Mira Sorvino, Jim Caviezel, Mimi Kuzyk, Stephanie Romanov, Thom Bishops. Dour sci-fi piece set in a near future when humans have implanted memory chips that record their every moment. Williams is a digital whiz who is expert at editing his deceased wealthy clients' lives to give them a positive spin. Williams has played a repressed automation before—but he does it well. Stylized mystery-thriller is funereal in more ways than one. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Final Destination (2000) C-97m. ½ D: James Wong. Devon Sawa, Ali Larter, Kerr Smith, Kristen Cloke, Daniel Roebuck, Roger Guenveur Smith, Chad E. Donella, Seann William Scott. Before the plane carrying him and his classmates to Paris takes off, teenager Sawa has a vision of it crashing. He and others leave the plane, which (of course) does explode—but the survivors soon start dying in mysterious accidents. Horror movie has an unusual and interesting premise, but paints itself into a corner; the ending is annoyingly unsatisfactory. Feature debut for X-Files vet Wong. Followed by two sequels. [R]▼●

Final Destination 2 (2003) C-90m. *½ D: David R. Ellis. Ali Larter, A. J. Cook, Michael Landes, T. C. Carson, Jonathan Cherry, Keegan Connor Tracy, Sarah Carter, Lynda Boyd, David Paetkau. A girl has a premonition of death and learns (like the survivors of the plane crash in the first film) that by avoiding it she and others around her have cheated fate. Film exists for the sole purpose of killing its characters—through fire, car

crash, crushing, decapitation, impalement, etc.—in horrifyingly realistic detail. But some people view this as comedy. If so, help yourself! [R] ▼

Final Destination 3 (2006) C-92m. *½ D: James Wong. Mary Elizabeth Winstead, Ryan Merriman, Kris Lemche, Texas Battle, Alex Johnson, Jesse Moss, Gina Holden, Sam Easton, Crystal Lowe, Chelan Simmons, Amanda Crew. They used the word “Final” in the titles of two predecessors—but they lied. Winstead is a high school straight-arrow who gets a sense of deaths to come from a roller coaster ride. As expected, the survivors then suffer their own supernatural dispatching in TEN LITTLE INDIANS style. Most memorable demise comes after two senior-class slatterns who say “totally” a lot enter a tanning salon. Super 35. [R] ▼

Final Fantasy: The Spirits Within (2001-Japanese-U.S.) C-106m.  D: Hironobu Sakaguchi, Motonori Sakakibara. Voices of Ming-Na, Alec Baldwin, Ving Rhames, Steve Buscemi, Peri Gilpin, Donald Sutherland, James Woods, Keith David, Jean Simmons, Matt McKenzie. Dr. Aki Ross runs into trouble in the year 2065 when she and her mentor confront a power-hungry general over the best way to battle aliens in their midst. Notable as the first major feature to use computer-generated actors. Adaptation of popular computer game plays like a standard-issue sci-fi yarn with spiritual undertones. At their dullest, the actors who provide the voices would still be more interesting to watch than their hollow-eyed, computerized counterparts. [PG-13] ▼

Final Option, The (1982-British) C-125m. BOMB D: Ian Sharp. Lewis Collins, Judy Davis, Richard Widmark, Robert Webber, Edward Woodward, Tony Doyle, John Duttine, Kenneth Griffith, Ingrid Pitt. Laughably ridiculous account of Britain’s Special Air Services team and how one officer (Collins) goes underground—more or less—to infiltrate a terrorist gang with plans to take over the American Embassy. Lots of violence, but no brains in sight. Third-billed Widmark has precious little screen time, as the U.S. Secretary of State. Original British title: WHO DARES WINS. [R] ▼

Final Season, The (2007) C-123m.  D: David Mickey Evans. Sean Astin, Rachael Leigh Cook, Powers Boothe, Michael Angarano, Mackenzie Astin, Tom Arnold, Marshall Bell, Matthew W. Allen, James Gammon, Larry Miller. True story of Iowa baseball coach Kent Stock, who ditches his job (and wedding) to guide Norway High School to one final championship after their school is merged into a larger one. By-the-numbers sports story, with clichéd dialogue, doesn’t really connect. Astin covered this turf much better in RUDY. Clairmont-Scope. [PG] ▼

Final Terror, The (1981) C-82m. *½ D: Andrew Davis. John Friedrich, Adrian Zmed, Daryl Hannah, Rachel Ward, Mark Metcalf. Pretty bad dead-teenagers film set in the backwoods, of marginal interest for presence of latter-day stars in cast (though they don’t get much of a showcase here). [R] ▼

Finders Keepers (1984) C-96m.  D: Richard Lester. Michael O’Keefe, Beverly D’Angelo, Louis Gossett, Jr., Ed Lauter, David Wayne, Pamela Stephenson, Brian Dennehy, John Schuck, Timothy Blake, Jim Carrey, Jack Riley. Wholehearted attempt at farce, involving stolen money, con artists in disguise, a bungling hit man, and other promising ingredients, remains disappointingly flat. Lester manages a few neat sight gags, and Wayne is genuinely funny as the world’s oldest train conductor. [R] ▼

Finding Amanda (2008) C-96m. ½ D: Peter Tolan. Matthew Broderick, Brittany Snow, Maura Tierney, Peter Facinelli, Daniel Roebuck, Bill Fagerbakke, Jennifer Hall, Steve Coogan, Ed Begley, Jr. Fading TV comedy writer and congenial liar Broderick heads to Las Vegas in search of his 20-year-old hooker niece. It’s a bad place for him to be, given that he’s addicted to gambling. Meanders at first but gets better as it goes along, particularly when it peels away the façade of the title character. One amusing bit: the pimp who’s a wannabe screenwriter. Written by the director. [R] ▼

Finding Forrester (2000) C-136m. ½ D: Gus Van Sant. Sean Connery, Rob Brown, F. Murray Abraham, Anna Paquin, Busta Rhymes, April Grace, Michael Nouri. Bronx high school student meets an odd neighborhood resident, a reclusive novelist who’s been hiding from the world since his first burst of fame. The curmudgeon becomes his mentor as the boy moves to an upscale Manhattan private school, and has to examine his choices—and priorities. Slick entertainment, and a great vehicle for Connery (who also coproduced), but more than a bit pat—with heavy-handed “villainy” from jealous professor Abraham. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

101m. ½ D: Marc Forster. Johnny Depp, Kate Winslet, Julie Christie, Radha Mitchell, Dustin Hoffman, Kelly Macdonald, Ian Hart, Freddie Highmore, Joe Prospero, Nick Roud, Luke Spill, Mackenzie Crook. Trapped in a loveless marriage, at a crossroads in his writing career, James M. Barrie is drawn to four young brothers who play at a nearby park—and their attractive, widowed mother—and becomes a surrogate member of their family. In time, they become the inspiration for his play Peter Pan. Beautifully crafted, nicely underplayed period piece set at the turn of the 20th century, anchored by an irresistible performance by Depp as the warmhearted but eccentric Scotsman. Oscar winner for Jan A. P. Kaczmarek's score. Super 35. [PG] ▼

Find Me Guilty (2006) C-124m.  D: Sidney Lumet. Vin Diesel, Peter Dinklage, Linus Roache, Ron Silver, Alex Rocco, Annabella Sciorra, Raúl Esparza, Jerry Adler, Richard Portnow, Josh Pais. Diesel gives a wonderful, transformative performance as real-life N.J. gangster "Jackie Dee" DiNorscio, an outgoing character who decides to defend himself in a record-breaking Federal case against the Lucchese crime family in 1987–88. Better than most crime fiction, this lively courtroom–mob saga is impeccably cast and directed with brio by Lumet, who also cowrote the screenplay. Putting Louis Prima on the soundtrack doesn't hurt, either. [R] ▼

Find the Lady (1976–Canadian-British) C-79m. *½ D: John Trent. Lawrence Dane, John Candy, Mickey Rooney, Peter Cook, Alexandra Bastedo, Dick Emery. PREPOLICE ACADEMY comedy about inept cops Dane and Candy, on the trail of a kidnapped socialite. A couple of genuine laughs, but mostly silly—and occasionally offensive. Candy and Dane played same characters a year earlier in IT SEEMED LIKE A GOOD IDEA AT THE TIME. Aka CALL THE COPS! and KOPEK AND BROOM. ▼

Fine Madness, A (1966) C-104m.  D: Irvin Kershner. Sean Connery, Joanne Woodward, Jean Seberg, Patrick O'Neal, Colleen Dewhurst, Renee Taylor. It's stubborn, nonconformist poet Connery versus the rest of society in uneven but sometimes outrageously funny satire. Screenplay by Elliot Baker, from his novel. ▼

Fine Mess, A (1986) C-88m. *½ D: Blake Edwards. Ted Danson, Howie Mandel, Richard Mulligan, Stuart Margolin, Maria Conchita Alonso, Jennifer Edwards, Paul Sorvino. A slapstick saga of two bumbling, with laughs few and far between. Familiar Blake Edwards trademarks, and the supposed inspiration of Laurel and Hardy's Oscar-winning short, THE MUSIC BOX, don't carry this very far. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Fine Pair, A (1968) C-89m. BOMB D: Francesco Maselli. Rock Hudson, Claudia

Cardinale, Thomas Milian, Leon Askin, Ellen Corby, Walter Giller. N.Y.C. policeman Hudson falls for Cardinale, daughter of an old pal, and helps her rob some jewels in terrible comedy-thriller minus laughs or suspense. Panavision. [M/PG]

Fine Romance, A (1992–U.S.-Italian) C-83m.  D: Gene Saks. Julie Andrews, Marcello Mastroianni, Ian Fitzgibbon, Jean-Pierre Castaldi, Jean-Jacques Dulon, Maria Machado, Catherine Jarret. Andrews and Mastroianni try (but fail) to enliven this obvious, barely funny farce, cast as a pair whose mates have run off together, and who predictably become romantically involved themselves. Scripted by Ronald Harwood. [PG-13] ▼

Finger of Guilt (1956–British) 85m. ½ D: Joseph Losey. Richard Basehart, Mary Murphy, Constance Cummings, Roger Livesey, Mervyn Johns, Faith Brook. Film director Basehart is blackmailed by woman claiming to be his mistress, which threatens his career and marriage. Intriguing film with disappointing resolution; good look inside British film studio, however. Directed by blacklisted Losey under pseudonyms Alec Snowden/Joseph Walton. Originally released in England as THE INTIMATE STRANGER at 95m.

Finger Points, The (1931) 88m. ½ D: John Francis Dillon. Richard Barthelmess, Fay Wray, Regis Toomey, Robert Elliott, Clark Gable. Vivid though meandering melodrama about crime reporter Barthelmess on the payroll of the mob. Wray is a newspaperwoman who urges him to go straight; Gable scores as a gang boss. One of the writers was W. R. Burnett.

Fingers (1978) C-91m. ½ D: James Toback. Harvey Keitel, Jim Brown, Tisa Farrow, Michael V. Gazzo, Tanya Roberts, Marian Seldes, Danny Aiello, Ed Marinaro, Zack Norman. Crude but fascinating melodrama about an aspiring concert pianist who reluctantly "collects" on debts owed to his domineering father. Powerful, disturbing film is compellingly sensual and brilliantly acted, especially by Brown in a rare subdued role. Remade in 2005 as THE BEAT THAT MY HEART SKIPPED. Screenplay by the director. [R] ▼

Finian's Rainbow (1968) C-145m. ½ D: Francis Ford Coppola. Fred Astaire, Petula Clark, Tommy Steele, Keenan Wynn, Al Freeman, Jr., Don Francks, Barbara Hancock. Whimsical Burton Lane–E. Y. Harburg musical fantasy about racial injustice was ahead of its time in the late '40s on Broadway, embarrassingly dated 20 years later, but Coppola and an attractive cast work wonders with it in this imaginatively filmed, widescreen winner—perhaps the best movie musical of its era. Harburg's lyrics remain elegant and witty, and Astaire is fun as the transplanted Irishman whose leprechaun comes to life in the American South. Try to see it in a theater. Panavision. [G] ▼●●

Fiorile (1993-Italian-French-German) C-118m.  D: Paolo and Vittorio Taviani. Claudio Bigagli, Galatea Ranzi, Michael Vartan, Lino Capolicchio, Constanze Engelbrecht, Athina Cenci, Giovanni Guidelli, Chiara Caselli. While driving to visit his ailing, reclusive father, a man reveals to his two children the legend of their family's history, beginning with how their ancestors came into wealth dishonestly during the Napoleonic era. Complex, ironic tale of tarnished innocence, outside forces cruelly separating lovers, and how ill-gotten wealth will in one way or another taint the spirit. [PG-13] ▼●●

Fire (1997-Canadian-Indian) C-104m.  D: Deepa Mehta. Shabana Azmi, Nandita Das, Kulbushan Kharbanda, Jaaved Jaferi, Ranjit Chowdhury, Kushal Rekhi. Ho-hum lesbian-feminist drama set in New Delhi, which charts the growing spiritual/sexual attraction between a long-married woman (Azmi) and her young, newlywed sister-in-law (Das). Without exception, every male character in the story is a simplistic chauvinist pig, and the result is a superficial drama that substitutes female outrage for thoughtful filmmaking. ▼

Fire and Ice (1983) C-81m. ½ D: Ralph Bakshi. Voices of Susan Tyrrell, Maggie Roswell, William Ostrander, Stephen Mendel. Muscular hero and buxom heroine become involved in power struggle between two warring world powers. Animated sword-and-sorcery saga is no worse (and arguably no better) than an average live-action entry, and benefits from graphic design by fabled illustrator Frank Frazetta, though the animation itself has been traced from live footage. Scripted by well-known comic book writers Roy Thomas and Gerry Conway. [PG] ▼●●

Fireball, The (1950) 84m.  D: Tay Garnett. Mickey Rooney, Pat O'Brien, Beverly Tyler, Marilyn Monroe, Milburn Stone, Glenn Corbett. Rooney's energetic performance carries this film. Orphan boy devotes himself to becoming big-time roller-skating champ. ▼

Fire Birds (1990) C-85m. BOMB D: David Green. Nicolas Cage, Tommy Lee

Jones, Sean Young, Bryan Kestner, Dale Dye, Mary Ellen Trainor, J. A. Preston, Peter Onorati. High-tech Apache helicopters (with an assist from their pilots) take on South American drug cartels from the air. Standard military issue with a ruptured-duck script and no romantic chemistry between professional rivals Cage and Young. Jones doesn't evoke memories of Gregory Peck in TWELVE O'CLOCK HIGH when he pep-talks Cage into a "full-tilt boogie for freedom and justice." [PG-13] ▼●●

Firechasers, The (1970-British) C-101m.  D: Sidney Hayers. Chad Everett, Anjanette Comer, Keith Barron, Joanne Dainton, Rupert Davies, John Loder. Strong production values in familiar story of insurance investigator hunting for arsonist.

Firecreek (1968) C-104m. ½ D: Vincent McEveety. James Stewart, Henry Fonda, Inger Stevens, Gary Lockwood, Dean Jagger, Ed Begley, Jay C. Flippen, Jack Elam, Barbara Luna. Somber Western has makings of a classic at outset, but goes astray, and goes on too long. Stewart is mild-mannered part-time sheriff in small town terrorized by Fonda and fellow plunderers. Beautifully photographed (by William H. Clothier), but unrelentingly downbeat. Panavision. ▼

Fired! (2007) C-71m.  D: Chris Bradley, Kyle LaBrache. Writer-performer Annabelle Gurwicht uses her real-life dismissal from a play by Woody Allen as the basis for exploring what it means to be fired from a job. Scattershot, superficial first-person documentary tries to combine comedy, personal anecdotes, and social commentary with very mixed results; only former Labor Secretary Robert Reich's and Ben Stein's observations have any real impact. Other interviewees include Tim Allen, Fred Willard, Illeana Douglas, and Anne Meara. ▽

Fire Down Below (1957-British) C-116m. ½ D: Robert Parrish. Rita Hayworth, Robert Mitchum, Jack Lemmon, Herbert Lom, Bernard Lee, Anthony Newley. Contrived but entertaining melodrama of Mitchum and Lemmon, owners of tramp boat, falling in love with shady Hayworth on voyage between islands. Title song composed by Lemmon. CinemaScope. ▼

gosto, Sarah Roemer, Molly Sims, Danneel Harris, David Walton, Adhir Kalyan, Anna-Lynne McCord, Philip Baker Hall, Juliette Goglia, John Michael Higgins, Margo Harshman, Amber Stevens, Francia Raisa. As stars of the football team, D'Agosto and Olsen have conquered their school's entire female population and are in search of a new hunting ground. What better place than cheerleader camp? The two leads are funny but the story meanders; over-the-top supporting characters and bad acting detract from this otherwise entertaining comedy. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Firefly, The (1937) 129m. ½ D: Robert Z. Leonard. Jeanette MacDonald, Allan Jones, Warren William, Billy Gilbert, Henry Daniell, Douglass Dumbrille, George Zucco. Tried-and-true operetta moves slowly and goes on too long, but Jones' "Donkey Serenade" and Jeanette's vivacity remain enjoyable. ▼

Firehouse Dog (2007) C-111m.  D: Todd Holland. Josh Hutcherson, Bruce Greenwood, Bill Nunn, Scotch Ellis Loring, Mayte Garcia, Teddy Sears, Steven Culp, Dash Mihok, Bree Turner, Hannah Lochner, Claudette Mink, Shane Daly. Clever variation of the boy-and-his-dog genre finds a pampered, spoiled superstar movie mutt named Rex (star of JURASSIC BARK and THE CANINE MUTINY) lost and alone in a small town when an airplane stunt goes wrong. He soon finds his way into the local fire station, which is about to be razed to make way for a new development, but can he save the day for the fire chief and his son? Predictable stuff, but executed with such skill it's hard to resist. Fun for kids and their parents, too. [PG] ●

Fire, Ice and Dynamite (1990-German) C-102m. BOMB D: Willy Bogner. Roger Moore, Shari Belafonte, Simon Shepherd, Uwe Ochsenknecht, Geoffrey Moore, Connie de Groot, Marjoe Gortner, Isaac Hayes. Obscenely wealthy Moore, whose empire is crumbling, fakes suicide to test the mettle of his children and creditors in an athletic competition. Loud, lame, occasionally offensive timewaster, redeemed (just barely) by the stuntwork. As inept as Bogner's earlier FIRE AND ICE. [PG] ▼

Fire in the Sky (1993) C-107m.  D: Robert Lieberman. D. B. Sweeney, Robert Patrick, Craig Sheffer, Peter Berg, James Garner, Henry Thomas, Bradley Gregg, Noble Willingham, Kathleen Wilhoite.

Failed sci-fi outing, allegedly based on fact, with Sweeney cast as Travis Wilson, a man who mysteriously disappeared for five days, during which time he supposedly was taken prisoner by extraterrestrials. Written by Tracy (son of Mel) Tormé, and based on Wilson's book The Walton Experience. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Firelight (1998-U.S.-British) C-103m.  D: William Nicholson. Sophie Marceau, Stephen Dillane, Dominique Belcourt, Kevin Anderson, Lia Williams, Joss Ackland, Sally Dexter. A beautiful Swiss governess (Marceau) is hired to bear a child for a 19th-century British aristocrat (Dillane) whose wife is an invalid, but naturally the two of them fall helplessly in love with each other. Well-made, old-fashioned Gothic soap opera in the MADAME X/JANE EYRE vein. Written by the director. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Fireman Save My Child (1932) 67m. ½ D: Lloyd Bacon. Joe E. Brown, Evalyn Knapp, Lilian Bond, Guy Kibbee, Virginia Sale. Amusing Brown romp with Joe dividing his time between firefighting and baseball. The first in his baseball trilogy, followed by ELMER THE GREAT and ALIBI IKE.

Fireman Save My Child (1954) 80m. *½ D: Leslie Goodwins. Spike Jones, The City Slickers, Buddy Hackett, Hugh O'Brian, Adele Jergens. Sloppy slapstick with Spike Jones et al. manning fire station in 1900s San Francisco, running amuck when they receive a new fire engine. Originally intended for Abbott and Costello.

Firemen's Ball, The (1967-Czech) C-73m.  D: Milos Forman. Jan Vostrel, Josef Sebanek, Josef Valnoha, Josef Kolb, Václav Stockel. Acclaimed comedy of small-town firemen's ball which turns into sprawling disaster apparently has elusive charm that completely escaped us. ▼●●

Fire on the Amazon (1996) C-81m.  D: Luis Llosa. Craig Sheffer, Sandra Bullock, Juan Fernandez, Judith Chapman, Ramsey Ross, David Elkin, Jorge Garcia Bustamante. Well-intentioned "save the rainforest" story, marred by appallingly reckless and hostile behavior of photojournalist Sheffer, whose stupidity should have had him blown away very early in the film. Contrived romance with activist Bullock is no more believable. Filmed in 1990. Executive-produced by Roger Corman. Unrated version also available. [R] ▼●

Fire Over England (1937-British) 89m.  D: William K. Howard. Laurence Olivier, Flora Robson, Leslie Banks, Raymond Massey, Vivien Leigh, Tamara Desni, Morton Selten, Robert Newton, Donald Calthrop. Satisfying historical drama of British-Spanish conflict in 1500s with flawless performance by Robson (Queen Elizabeth), fine villainy by Massey, romantic support by Olivier and Leigh. Watch for James Mason in a small (unbilled) role. ▼●●

Firepower (1979-British) C-104m. ½ D: Michael Winner. Sophia Loren, James Coburn, O. J. Simpson, Eli Wallach, Anthony Franciosa, George Grizzard, Vincent Gardenia, Victor Mature. Another international all-star action thriller, with beautiful people in beautiful locations (this time, the Caribbean). Inane, complicated story has Loren seeking revenge for murder of her chemist husband. Passable time-filler, especially on TV. [R]▼

Fire Sale (1977) C-88m. BOMB D: Alan Arkin. Alan Arkin, Rob Reiner, Vincent Gardenia, Anjanette Comer, Kay Medford, Sid Caesar, Barbara Dana, Alex Rocco, Richard Libertini, Augusta Dabney. Wretched black comedy about a department store owner and his two sons gives bad taste a bad name. Truly unbearable. [PG]

Fires on the Plain (1959-Japanese) 105m. ½ D: Kon Ichikawa. Eiji Funakoshi, Mantaro Ushio, Yoshihiro Hamaguchi, Osamu Takizawa. Japanese soldiers struggle to survive at the finale of the Philippine campaign during WW2; focus is on travails of tubercular Funakoshi, separated from his unit. Graphically realistic, disturbing, and depressing vision of damnation on earth, with a sobering antiwar message. Daiescope. ▼●●

Firestarter (1984) C-115m.  D: Mark L. Lester. David Keith, Drew Barrymore, George C. Scott, Martin Sheen, Heather Locklear, Art Carney, Louise Fletcher, Moses Gunn, Freddie Jones. Silly, sometimes laughable yarn about little girl whose parents acquired unusual mental powers as a result of a government experiment and who herself can set anything on fire at will. Lumbering story wastes a lot of acting talent, though it certainly gave employment to a number of stunt people and special effects technicians. From Stephen King's best-seller. Followed in 2002 by a made-for-TV movie. J-D-C Scope. [R]▼●●

Firestorm (1998) C-89m. ½ D: Dean Semler. Howie Long, William Forsythe, Scott Glenn, Suzy Amis, Christianne Hirt, Garwin Sanford. Wily con Forsythe and cohorts have pulled off a prison escape, incinerating a Canadian forest as their "cover." This makes the job of smoke jumpers (who parachute into difficult fires) all the more risky. By-the-numbers script is fashioned as an action vehicle for athlete Long, who suggests what Ed Harris might look like if he couldn't move his facial muscles. [R] ▼●●

Fires Within (1991) C-86m.  D: Gillian Armstrong. Jimmy Smits, Greta Scacchi, Vincent D'Onofrio, Luis Avalos, Bertila Damas, Raul Davila, Bri Hathaway, Daniel Fern. Well-intentioned but underdeveloped story of anguish suffered by a Cuban political prisoner and his family when they're reunited in Miami after an eight-year separation. Smits and Scacchi certainly make a great-looking couple. [R]▼●

Firewalker (1986) C-104m. BOMB D: J. Lee Thompson. Chuck Norris, Lou Gossett, Melody Anderson, Will Sampson, Sonny Landham, John Rhys-Davies, Ian Abercrombie. Anderson, hair perfectly intact throughout, hires Gossett and fellow mercenary Norris to find a hidden cache of loot she's imagined exists. Press releases described Norris' character as a "soldier-of-wacky-misfortune"; his light comedy skills recall a sportswriter's description of Yogi Berra playing third base—"like a man trying to put up a pup tent in a windstorm." Arguably Chuck's worst—but who wants to argue? [PG]▼●●

Firewall (2006) C-105m. *½ D: Richard Loncraine. Harrison Ford, Paul Bettany, Virginia Madsen, Robert Forster, Alan Arkin, Robert Patrick, Mary Lynn Rajsckub, Carly Schroeder, Jimmy Bennett, Vince Vieluf. A security expert must break into his own bank in order to save his family; that's the premise of this muddled, often preposterous thriller. Ford seems an unlikely technophile, and while the action builds toward the end, by then the audience has been drained of all emotional investment. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Fire With Fire (1986) C-103m. ½ D: Duncan Gibbins. Craig Sheffer, Virginia Madsen, Jon Polito, Jeffrey Jay Cohen, Kate Reid, Jean Smart, D. B. Sweeney. Story of a forbidden love affair between a boy imprisoned at a juvenile detention facility and girl who feels imprisoned at Catholic girls' school nearby. Pleasant enough to watch . . . until ludicrous finale. Film buffs should note Ann Savage in the small role of Sister Harriet. [PG-13]▼

Fire Within, The (1963-French) 108m. ½ D: Louis Malle. Maurice Ronet, Lena Skerla, Yvonne Clech, Hubert Deschamps, Jeanne Moreau, Alexandra Stewart. Shattering study of alcoholism, as wealthy Ronet, released from a sanitarium after a breakdown, visits his old friends in Paris one last time. Probably Malle's best early film—photographed, scored (with the music of Erik Satie), and acted to maximum effect—and with a minimum of self-pity. ▼●

Fireworks (1998-Japanese) C-103m.  D: Takeshi Kitano. "Beat" Takeshi, Kayoko Kishimoto, Ren Osugi, Susumu Terajima, Tetsu Watanabe, Taro Itsumi. Tough cop's world crumbles around him: his wife is dying, his partner becomes confined to a wheelchair, and a young detective dies in a shootout because of his blunder, forcing him into a deal with the yakuza. Strongly directed film begins with clear but fragmentary flashbacks; melancholy, violent, sardonic, and romantic, it's an outstanding movie of its genre. The director, who also wrote and coedited, uses "Beat" Takeshi as an acting name. Original title: HANA-BI. ▼●

First Blood (1982) C-97m. *½ D: Ted Kotcheff. Sylvester Stallone, Richard Crenna, Brian Dennehy, David Caruso, Jack Starrett, Bill McKinney, Michael Talbott. Ex-Green Beret is falsely arrested by smalltown cops, escapes and leads his pursuers into all kinds of booby traps in the "jungles" of U.S. Northwest. Throws all credibility to the winds about the time he gets off with only a bad cut after jumping from a mountain into some jagged rocks. A kewpie doll to anyone who can understand more than three words of Sly's final monologue. Followed by RAMBO: FIRST BLOOD PART II. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Firstborn (1984) C-103m.  D: Michael Apted. Teri Garr, Peter Weller, Christopher Collet, Corey Haim, Sarah Jessica Parker, Robert Downey, Jr. Divorced mom is doing her best to raise two sons—until she lets her latest boyfriend (a real lout) move into the house and take over. Credible, if unappealing, drama leads to repellent conclusion, à la DEATH WISH, putting to waste the film's good qualities and performances. [PG-13]▼●●

First Daughter (2004) C-104m. *½ D: Forest Whitaker. Katie Holmes, Marc Blucas, Amerie, Michael Keaton, Margaret Colin, Lela Rochon Fuqua, Michael Milhoan, Dwayne Adway. Fairy-tale romance for wholesome teens centers on the sheltered daughter of the U.S. President, who goes off to college to get away from her omnipresent Secret Service detail and falls for a hunky student whose true identity holds a big surprise (not really). CHASING LIBERTY was bad enough; did we really need another formulaic, juvenile variation of ROMAN HOLIDAY the same year? [PG]▼●

First Deadly Sin, The (1980) C-112m.  D: Brian G. Hutton. Frank Sinatra, Faye Dunaway, David Dukes, Brenda Vaccaro, Martin Gabel, James Whitmore. Sinatra's first starring feature after 10-year absence finds him in good form in adaptation of Lawrence Sanders' best-seller about an N.Y.C. cop who stalks a psycho during his wife's illness. Dunaway's near-comatose role couldn't be more thankless, but good supporting cast and moody Gordon Jenkins score make this one of Frank's better serious vehicles. Look fast for Bruce Willis half-hidden under a cap in a bar scene. [R]▼●●

First Family (1980) C-104m.  D: Buck Henry. Bob Newhart, Gilda Radner, Madeline Kahn, Richard Benjamin, Bob Dishy, Harvey Korman, Rip Torn, Austin Pendleton, Fred Willard, Julius Harris, Buck Henry. Almost laughless political satire, written by Henry, with Newhart a bumbling U.S. President, Kahn his inebriated First Lady, Radner their horny First Daughter. However, Newhart's conversation with African Ambassador Harris is a gem. [R]▼

First Kid (1996) C-101m.  D: David Mickey Evans. Sinbad, Brock Pierce, Blake Boyd, Timothy Busfield, Art La Fleur, Robert Guillaume, Lisa Eichhorn, James Naughton, Fawn Reed, Zachery Ty Bryan, Bill Cobbs. Very entertaining Disney comedy about a hang-loose Secret Service agent on the White House detail who gets the worst assignment in town: guarding the President's bratty son. Soon enough, however, he and the boy form a bond. Subplot about a disgruntled ex-agent gets a little intense for a family film, but otherwise this is bull's-eye stuff and a great comic vehicle for Sinbad. [PG]▼●●

First Knight (1995) C-132m.  D: Jerry Zucker. Sean Connery, Richard Gere, Julia Ormond, Ben Cross, Liam Cunningham, Christopher Villiers, Valentine Pelka, Colin McCormack, Ralph Ineson, John Gielgud. Handsome, sweeping, romantic adventure saga that focuses on a love triangle involving King Arthur (Connery), Lady Guinevere (Ormond), and a restless, roving spirit, who lives by his wits, named Lancelot (Gere). Awkward narrative moments (and the casting of a contemporary-sounding American as Lancelot) outweighed by the overall intelligence of William Nicholson's script, John Box's breathtaking production design, Jerry Goldsmith's majestic score, and the splendid performances by Ormond and Connery. Camelot has never looked so magical. [PG-13]▼●●

First Legion, The (1951) 86m.  D: Douglas Sirk. Charles Boyer, William Demarest, Lyle Bettger, Barbara Rush. Engrossing low-key account of Jesuit priest who is dubious about an alleged miracle occurring in his town. Boyer gives one of his best performances.▼

First Love (1939) 84m.  D: Henry Koster. Deanna Durbin, Robert Stack, Helen Parrish, Eugene Pallette, Leatrice Joy, Marcia Mae Jones, Frank Jenks. Charming Cinderella story of orphaned girl (Durbin) going to live with uncle and finding romance with Stack (in his film debut). Durbin sings "Amapola" and other songs; her first screen kiss (courtesy Stack) made headlines around the world. ▼

First Love (1970-British-French-Swiss) C-90m.  D: Maximilian Schell. John Moulder-Brown, Dominique Sanda, Maximilian Schell, John Osborne. Original, often moving story of young lovers is total concept of Schell. While his direction often wanders, his script is extremely good. [R] ▼

First Love, Last Rites (1998) C-93m.  D: Jesse Peretz. Giovanni Ribisi, Natasha Gregson Wagner, Robert John Burke, Jeannette Arnette, Donal Logue. Deadeningly slow story of two young lovers who shack up in a modest apartment on the Louisiana bayou. Feature directorial debut for music-video helmer Peretz has a sensual mood and attractive leads but is devoid of dramatic incident. Only plus: art-rockers Shudder to Think's score, which is meant to evoke old 45 singles. Based on a short story by Ian McEwan. [R] ▼

First Men in the Moon (1964-British) C-103m.  D: Nathan Juran. Edward Judd, Martha Hyer, Lionel Jeffries, Erik Chitty. Lavish adaptation of H. G. Wells novel is heavy-handed at times, overloaded with comic relief, but still worthwhile; good Ray Harryhausen special effects. Cameo appearance by Peter Finch. Panavision. ▼

First Monday in October (1981) C-98m. ½ D: Ronald Neame. Walter Matthau, Jill Clayburgh, Barnard Hughes, James Stephens, Jan Sterling, Joshua Bryant. Talky but OK adaptation of Jerome Lawrence-Robert E. Lee stage hit about Tracy-and-Hepburn-like clash of wills between first female member of the Supreme Court (a staunch conservative) and the most liberal of her brethren. Lost some of its novelty when it happened for real just before film was released, but still amusing. Panavision. [R] ▼

First Name: Carmen (1983-French-Swiss) C-85m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Maruschka Detmers, Jacques Bonnafe, Myriem Roussel, Christophe Odent, Jean-Luc Godard. Title character is a femme fatale, terrorist, and aspiring filmmaker, and Godard plays her uncle, a famous but "sick" and "washed-up" director named Jean-Luc Godard. Funny and compelling, if you like Godard's later work; otherwise, it will seem like a waste of time and celluloid. ▼

mel, Diana Canova, Alexandra Morgan, Leslie Ackerman. Basically a one-joke idea that wears thin despite an air of amiability: a desperate young filmmaker (Nathan) tries to rescue his studio by making a porno musical, complete with production numbers such as "Dancing Dildos." Best contributions come from those who keep their clothes on. Kimmel also scripted and wrote most of the songs. Ron Howard appears unbilled. [R] ▼

First of the Few, The SEE: Spitfire (1942)
First Power, The (1990) C-99m. ½ D: Robert Resnikoff. Lou Diamond Phillips, Tracy Griffith, Jeff Kober, Mykel T. Williamson, Elizabeth Arlen, Dennis Lipscomb. Cat-and-mouse battle between an L.A. cop and the spirit of an executed Devil's disciple who has the ability to pop in and out of other people's bodies. Very weak supernatural horror that fails to frighten, or offer anything fresh. Griffith is Melanie Griffith's half-sister. [R] ▼

First Snow (2007) C-102m. ½ D: Mark Fergus. Guy Pearce, Piper Perabo, William Fichtner, J. K. Simmons, Shea Whigham, Rick Gonzalez, Luce Rains, Adam Scott, Jackie Burroughs. Slick salesman Pearce, who's always looking for the right angles and that elusive "big deal," consults a palm reader while his car is being repaired—and doesn't get good news about his future. What's more, a boyhood pal has just gotten out of jail and may be looking for him. Pretty good thriller bolstered by a first-rate cast. Written by Mark Fergus and Hawk Ostby, two of the writers of CHILDREN OF MEN; Fergus' directorial debut. Super 35. [R] ▼

First Sunday (2008) C-98m.  D: David E. Talbert. Ice Cube, Katt Williams, Tracy Morgan, Loretta Devine, Michael Beach, Keith David, Regina Hall, Malinda Williams, Chi McBride, Clifton Powell, Nicholas Turturo, Olivia Cole. Two petty criminals scheme to rob their local church when they need quick cash in order to pay off a debt . . . but they get much more than they bargained for. Jokes mostly fall flat in this all-too-typical vehicle for Ice Cube and company. A couple of genuine laughs are provided by Williams and Morgan. [PG-13] ▼

First Time, The (1969) C-90m. ½ D: James Neilson. Jacqueline Bisset, Wes Stern, Rick Kelman, Wink Roberts, Gerald Parkes. Combination of Ozzie and Harriet and WALK ON THE WILD SIDE concerns a teenager's sexual initiation. Artificial look at adolescence. [M] ▼

First Time, The (1983) C-95m.  D: Charlie Loventhal. Tim Choate, Krista Erickson, Marshall Efron, Wendy Fulton, Raymond Patterson, Wallace Shawn, Wendie Jo Sperber, Cathryn Damon. Surprisingly intelligent, funny portrait of virginal, movie-loving college freshman Choate. A cut above other films of its type, and a promising debut

for young Loventhal, a protégé of Brian De Palma. Aka DOIN' IT. [R]▼

First to Fight (1967) C-97m. ½ D: Christian Nyby. Chad Everett, Marilyn Devin, Dean Jagger, Bobby Troup, Claude Akins, Gene Hackman. Conventional WW2 yarn with Everett the one-time hero who almost loses his courage on the battlefield. Panavision.▼

First Traveling Saleslady, The (1956) C-92m.  D: Arthur Lubin. Ginger Rogers, Barry Nelson, Carol Channing, David Brian, James Arness, Clint Eastwood. Rogers and Channing try to elevate this plodding comedy of girdle-sellers in the old West, but barely succeed. Carol and Clint make one of the oddest couples in screen history.

First Wives Club, The (1996) C-102m. ½ D: Hugh Wilson. Goldie Hawn, Bette Midler, Diane Keaton, Maggie Smith, Dan Hedaya, Stockard Channing, Sarah Jessica Parker, Victor Garber, Stephen Collins, Elizabeth Berkley, Marcia Gay Harden, Bronson Pinchot, Jennifer Dundas, Eileen Heckart, Philip Bosco, Rob Reiner, James Naughton, Debra Monk, Kate Burton. Three college pals meet up years later at a mutual friend's funeral and discover they have something in common: husbands who've dumped (or dumped on) them. Predictable, but still pretty entertaining, thanks to three lively stars and an impressive supporting cast. Diluted from Olivia Goldsmith's novel. Heather Locklear appears unbilled. [PG]▼●●

Fisher King, The (1991) C-137m.  D: Terry Gilliam. Robin Williams, Jeff Bridges, Amanda Plummer, Mercedes Ruehl, Michael Jeter, Harry Shearer, John de Lancie, David (Hyde) Pierce. Expansive, emotional fable of a smart-aleck, self-absorbed radio personality driven into a deep funk by an unexpected tragedy—and his unlikely rescue by a strange street vigilante who's in desperate need of rescue himself. Unusual and absorbing, both comic and tender, this takes the viewer on quite a journey. Ruehl won Best Supporting Actress Oscar as Bridges' girlfriend. Look fast for Kathy Najimy. Written by Richard LaGravenese. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Fish Hawk (1980-Canadian) C-95m.  D: Donald Shebib. Will Sampson, Charlie Fields, Geoffrey Bowes, Mary Pirlle, Don Francks, Chris Wiggins. Bland family film about an alcoholic Indian who tries to mend his ways—and becomes a companion to an impressionable young farm boy. This is the kind of unchallenging, inoffensive fare that gives G-rated movies a bad reputation. [G]▼●

F.I.S.T. (1978) C-145m. ½ D: Norman Jewison. Sylvester Stallone, Rod Steiger, Peter Boyle, Melinda Dillon, David Huffman, Tony Lo Bianco, Kevin Conway, Cassie Yates, Henry Wilcoxon, Brian Dennehy. Stallone's one-dimensional performance prevents this well-produced epic about a Hoffa-like labor kingpin from sustaining a strong first half. Peter Boyle does well with a role inspired by former Teamster boss Dave Beck. Screenplay by Stallone and Joe Eszterhas. [PG]▼●●

Fistful of Dollars (1964-Italian) C-100m.  D: Sergio Leone. Clint Eastwood, Gian Maria Volonté, Marianne Koch, Wolfgang Lukschy, Mario Brega, Carlo Brown. Sagebrush remake of YOJIMBO single-handedly invented the "spaghetti Western," made an international superstar of Eastwood, and boosted the careers of Leone and composer Ennio Morricone as well. Clint plays the laconic Man With No Name, a tough gunslinger manipulating (and manipulated by!) two rival families warring over small frontier town. Amusing, violent, and very stylish. Released in the U.S. in 1967. Sequel: FOR A FEW DOLLARS MORE. Techniscope.▼●●

Fistful of Dynamite, A SEE: Duck, You Sucker

Fist in His Pocket (1966-Italian) 105m. * D: Marco Bellocchio. Lou Castel, Paola Pitagora, Marino Mase, Liliana Gerace, Pier Luigi Troglio. Brilliant one-of-a-kind about a mad family of epileptics whose protagonist kills his mother and drowns his younger brother, while his sis merely settles for repressed incest. One of the great, if largely unheralded, foreign films of the '60s, with Castel more than up to the demands of the difficult role.●

Fist of Fear, Touch of Death (1980) C-90m. *½ D: Matthew Mallinson. Fred Williamson, Ron Van Clief, Adolph Caesar, Aaron Banks, Bill Louis. Boring chop-

socky film chronicling the happenings at a Madison Square Garden martial arts tournament. Highlighted are short clips of legendary Bruce Lee. Aka DRAGON AND THE COBRA. [R]▼

Fists of Fury (1971-Hong Kong) C-103m.  D: Lo Wei. Bruce Lee, Maria Yi, Han Ying Chieh, Tony Liu, Miao Ker Hsiu. Lee, in his initial Kung Fu actioner, plays a young fellow who takes a job in an ice house, and discovers his boss is a drug smuggler. Feeble. Original title: THE BIG BOSS. Dyaliscope. [R]▼●●

Fitzcarraldo (1982) C-157m. * D: Werner Herzog. Klaus Kinski, Claudia Cardinale, Jose Lewgoy, Miguel Angel Fuentes, Paul Hittscher. Vivid, fascinating portrait of a man obsessed (made by a man obsessed—see BURDEN OF DREAMS) who's determined to capture a shipping route on the Amazon, even though it means hauling a boat over a mountaintop, through hostile tribal territory. Then he's going to bring in grand opera! Astonishing and captivating movie, in spite of its length; admittedly not to everyone's taste. [PG]▼

Fitzwilly (1967) C-102m. ½ D: Delbert Mann. Dick Van Dyke, Barbara Feldon, Edith Evans, John McGiver, Harry Townes, John Fiedler, Norman Fell, Cecil Kellaway, Sam Waterston. Ordinary fluff about butler who has to rob Gimbel's on Christmas Eve to save his employer. Van Dyke's screen career was hurt by too many films like this one. This was Feldon's film debut. Panavision.▼

Five (1951) 93m.  D: Arch Oboler. William Phipps, Susan Douglas, James Anderson, Charles Lampkin, Earl Lee. Intriguing, offbeat film by famed radio writer-director Oboler about the survivors of an atomic holocaust. Talky (and sometimes given to purple prose) but interesting. Filmed in and around Oboler's Frank Lloyd Wright house.▶

5 Against the House (1955) 84m.  D: Phil Karlson. Guy Madison, Kim Novak, Brian Keith, Kerwin Matthews, William Conrad, Alvy Moore. "Perfect crime" caper has five friends set out to rob Reno, Nevada, casino. Execution of robbery, along with gorgeous Novak, keep this film rolling along. Based on a novel by Jack Finney.▶

set in WW2 Middle Europe. Five girls scorned by partisans for consorting with Nazis prove their patriotism.

Five Came Back (1939) 75m.  D: John Farrow. Chester Morris, Lucille Ball, Wendy Barrie, John Carradine, Allen Jenkins, Joseph Calleia, C. Aubrey Smith, Patric Knowles. This sleeper shows its age a bit, but remains interesting for colorful character studies among passengers on plane downed in headhunter-infested Amazon jungle. Remade by Farrow as BACK FROM ETERNITY.▼●

Five Corners (1988) C-92m.  D: Tony Bill. Jodie Foster, Tim Robbins, Todd Graff, John Turturro, Elizabeth Berridge, Rose Gregorio, Gregory Rozakis, John Seitz. Moody piece about young people whose lives converge in a Bronx neighborhood in 1964. One of them, just released from prison, stirs trouble for the others. Unexpectedly melodramatic but potent and believable... and seemingly the only 1960s period film not to use oldies to evoke the era. James Newton Howard's moody score is much more effective, anyway. Written by John Patrick Shanley. [R]▼●●

Five Day Lover (1961-French-Italian) 86m.  D: Philippe De Broca. Jean Seberg, Micheline Presle, Jean-Pierre Cassel, François Perier. Perceptive, flavorful bedroom comedy featuring Seberg as a bored housewife-mother who has an affair with Cassel, who's being kept by her friend (Presle).

Five Days One Summer (1982) C-108m.  D: Fred Zinnemann. Sean Connery, Betsy Brantley, Lambert Wilson, Jennifer Hilary, Isabel Dean, Gerald Buhr, Anna Massey. Middle-aged man brings a young woman—ostensibly his wife—on Swiss vacation in the early 1930s where their hesitant relationship is explored against the natural drama of mountain climbing. Adaptation of a Kay Boyle story doesn't come off, despite impeccable production. Slow, ethereal, ultimately unsatisfying. Zinnemann's last film. [PG]▼

Five Easy Pieces (1970) C-98m. * D: Bob Rafelson. Jack Nicholson, Karen Black, Billy Green Bush, Fannie Flagg, Susan Anspach, Sally Struthers, Ralph Waite, Lois Smith. Brilliant character study of musician with great promise who gave up a career to work on an oil rig. Nicholson's performance is superb, but Black, Anspach, Smith, and Bush all contribute heavily. Helena Kallianiotes is hilarious as a malcontent hitchhiker; this is the film with Jack's famous "chicken salad sandwich" speech. Beautifully written by Adrien Joyce (Carole Eastman). [R]▼●●

5 Fingers (1952) 108m.  D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. James Mason, Danielle Darrieux, Michael Rennie, Walter Hampden, Oscar Karlweis, Herbert Berghof, John Wengraf, Michael Pate. Exceptionally intelligent spy thriller with Mason as a cool customer selling high-priced secrets right under the noses of his British government employers during WW2. Based on true-life events! Followed by a short-lived TV series.▼●

Five Fingers of Death (1973-Hong Kong) C-102m. *½ D: Cheng Chang Ho. Lo Lieh, Wang Ping, Wang Ching-Feng. Only interesting in that it is the Kung Fu film that began the craze in America. Family honor defended with every part of the body except the mouth, which is horrendously dubbed. Shawscope.[R]▼●

Five Golden Hours (1961-British-Italian) 90m.  D: Mario Zampi. Ernie Kovacs, Cyd Charisse, George Sanders, Kay Hammond, Dennis Price, Finlay Currie, Ron Moody. Con man Kovacs fleeces wealthy widows, but his luck is sure to change after falling for Charisse, whose husband has just died. Limp comedy wastes the talents of its cast.▼

Five Graves To Cairo (1943) 96m. ½ D: Billy Wilder. Franchot Tone, Anne Baxter, Akim Tamiroff, Erich von Stroheim, Peter Van Eyck, Fortunio Bonanova. WW2 intrigue situated in Sahara oasis hotel run by Tamiroff and Baxter; Tone attempts to obtain secrets from visiting

Field Marshal Rommel (von Stroheim). Billy Wilder—Charles Brackett script manages to incorporate wit and humor into genuinely exciting wartime yarn. A remake of HOTEL IMPERIAL.▼

Five Guns West (1955) C-78m.  D: Roger Corman. John Lund, Dorothy Malone, Touch (Mike) Connors, Jack Ingram. Fair Corman Western, which he coscripted, about a group of Rebel soldiers who hold up a Yankee stagecoach. This was Corman's first film as director.▼●

Five Heartbeats, The (1991) C-120m.  D: Robert Townsend. Robert Townsend, Michael Wright, Leon, Harry J. Lennix, Tico Wells, Diahann Carroll, Harold Nicholas, John Canada Terrell, Chuck Patterson, Hawthorne James, Paul Benjamin. Corny but entertaining saga of a 1960s singing group's rise to fame; loosely based on R&B group The Dells. Awfully predictable, but star/director/cowriter Townsend and his cast are so likable they make up for it. The scene in which a youthful belter named Tressa Thomas helps Townsend piece together a song on the spot is worth the price of admission. Coscripted by Keenen Ivory Wayans. [R]▼●●

Five Miles to Midnight (1962) 110m. ½ D: Anatole Litvak. Tony Perkins, Sophia Loren, Gig Young, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Pascale Roberts. Jumbled murder mystery with Perkins convincing wife Loren to collect insurance money when it's thought he's been killed, with ironic results.▼

Five Minutes to Live SEE: Door-to-Door Maniac

Five Obstructions, The (2003-Danish-Swiss-Belgian-French) C/B&W-88m.  D: Jørgen Leth, Lars von Trier. Unusual, stimulating semidocumentary in which von Trier mischievously dares his former teacher, Danish filmmaker Leth, to remake THE PERFECT HUMAN, a 12m. film he directed in 1967, with a proviso: Leth must create several versions, each with a different set of restrictions (or "obstructions") concocted by von Trier. Not for all tastes, but noteworthy as an exploration of the varying styles filmmakers employ and the artistic choices they make.●

Five Pennies, The (1959) C-117m. ½ D: Melville Shavelson. Danny Kaye, Barbara Bel Geddes, Tuesday Weld, Louis Armstrong, Bob Crosby, Harry Guardino,

Ray Anthony, Shelley Manne, Bobby Troup. Danny plays jazz trumpeter Red Nichols in this sentimental biography. Only bright spots are musical numbers, especially duets with Kaye and Armstrong. VistaVision. ▼●●

Five Senses, The (1999-Canadian) C-104m.

 D: Jeremy Podeswa. Mary-Louise Parker, Pascale Bussières, Richard Clarkin, Brendan Fletcher, Marco Leonardi, Nadia Litz, Daniel MacIvor. Intricately woven comedy-drama centers on the inhabitants of an office/apartment building in Toronto. Though the interconnected stories deal individually with the five senses, they're never tricky or schematic, but instead revealing, amusing, and moving. [R] ▼

5,000 Fingers of Dr. T., The (1953)

C-88m.  D: Roy Rowland. Peter Lind Hayes, Mary Healy, Tommy Rettig, Hans Conried. A boy who hates to practice the piano has a vivid nightmare about a land where his officious teacher, Dr. Terwilliger (Conried), rules over hundreds of boys and a gigantic keyboard. Imaginative fantasy conceived by Dr. Seuss with clever songs by Seuss and Frederick Hollander. Major weakness: conventional "grown-up" leads played by then-popular performers Healy and Hayes. Look for George Chakiris among the dancers. ▼●●

5x2 (2004-French) C-90m.  D: François

Ozon. Valeria Bruni-Tedeschi, Stéphane Freiss, Géraldine Pailhas, Françoise Fabian, Michael Lonsdale, Antoine Chappey, Marc Ruchmann. Simple, effective drama charting the anatomy of a marriage; the gimmick is that the story is told in five episodes and in reverse chronological order, starting with the characters' divorce proceeding and ending with their initial meeting at a vacation resort. With a wisp of sadness, Ozon peels away the gradations of the relationship and the secrets and lies that tear it apart. [R] ▼

Five Weeks in a Balloon (1962) C-101m.

fails on the screen; story of unjustly imprisoned Jewish handyman in turn-of-the-century Russia concerns itself too much with the thoughts of its main character to be effective as film. [M/PG] ▼

½ D: Clint Eastwood. Ryan Phillippe, Jesse Bradford, Adam Beach, John Benjamin Hickey, John Slattery, Barry Pepper, Jamie Bell, Paul Walker, Robert Patrick, Neal McDonough, Melanie Lynskey, Tom McCarthy, Chris Bauer, Judith Ivey, Joseph Cross, Scott Reeves, David Patrick Kelly, Beth Grant, Jon Polito, Gordon Clapp, Tom Verica, David Clennon, David Rasche, Jason Gray-Stanford, George Grizzard, Harve Presnell, George Hearn, Len Cariou. Intimate, involving portrait of the men who landed on Iwo Jima island in 1945, encountered death and unspeakable horrors, raised the U.S. flag, then were labeled heroes and put on display for a U.S. bond-selling tour. Told in flashback as the son of one such man—who came home and never spoke about his experiences—goes in search of his father's story. Stirring, sad, often profound in its simplicity and directness, with a hellish depiction of combat one didn't see in WW2 movies of the 1940s. Well cast and crafted on every level. Reeves, who has a small part as a Marine, is Eastwood's son. Screenplay by William Broyles, Jr., and Paul Haggis, from the book by James Bradley with Ron Powers. Followed by LETTERS FROM IWO JIMA. Panavision. [R] ▽

Flame and the Arrow, The (1950) C-88m.

 D: Jacques Tourneur. Burt Lancaster, Virginia Mayo, Robert Douglas, Aline MacMahon, Nick Cravat. Bouncy, colorful action with Lancaster romping through his gymnastics as rebel leader in medieval Italy leading his people on to victory. Mayo is gorgeous heroine. ▼●●

Flame and the Flesh, The (1954) C-104m.

 D: Richard Brooks. Lana Turner, Pier Angeli, Carlos Thompson, Bonar Colleano, Charles Goldner, Peter Illing. Pointless Turner vehicle filmed in Europe involving brunette Lana being romanced by continental Thompson, which causes a lot of misery.

Flamenco (1995-Spanish) C-100m. ½

D: Carlos Saura. Saura's love of flamenco saturates this ecstatic, beautifully made performance film featuring flamenco singers, dancers, and guitarists of all ages, the best of whom are nothing short of dazzling. There are neither subtitles nor dialogue—and none are needed! ▼

Flame of Araby (1951) C-77m. ½ D:

Charles Lamont. Maureen O'Hara, Jeff Chandler, Maxwell Reed, Susan Cabot. O'Hara, looking fetching as ever, rides through this costumer of the Far East, involving battle over a prize horse. ▼

Flame of New Orleans, The (1941) 78m.

 D: René Clair. Marlene Dietrich, Bruce

Cabot, Roland Young, Laura Hope Crews, Mischa Auer, Andy Devine. Dietrich can have her pick of any man in New Orleans, can't decide between wealthy Young or hard-working Cabot. Picturesque, entertaining. Clair's first American film. ▼

Flame of the Barbary Coast (1945) 91m. ½ D: Joseph Kane. John Wayne, Ann Dvorak, Joseph Schildkraut, William Frawley, Virginia Grey. Hick rancher Wayne competes with slick Schildkraut for savvy saloon singer Dvorak; undemanding fluff, with Republic Pictures' version of the San Francisco earthquake. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Flame Over India (1959-British) C-130m.  D: J. Lee Thompson. Lauren Bacall, Kenneth More, Herbert Lom, Wilfrid Hyde-White. Fast-paced actioner set on northern frontier of India as British soldiers and governors Bacall seek to speed an Indian prince to safety aboard a run-down train. Originally titled NORTH WEST FRONTIER. CinemaScope. ▼

Flamingo Road (1949) 94m.  D: Michael Curtiz. Joan Crawford, Zachary Scott, Sydney Greenstreet, David Brian, Gertrude Michael, Gladys George. Crawford is excellent as tough carnival dancer ditched in small town where she soon is loving Scott and Brian and matching wits with corrupt politician Greenstreet. Remade as TVM in 1980, which later spun off a TV series. ▼

Flaming Star (1960) C-91m.  D: Don Siegel. Elvis Presley, Barbara Eden, Steve Forrest, Dolores Del Rio, John McIntire. Elvis is excellent as a half-breed Indian who must choose sides when his mother's people go on the warpath. No songs after the first ten minutes but lots of action; along with JAILHOUSE ROCK, Presley's best film. CinemaScope. ▼

Flanders (2006-French) C-91m.  D: Bruno Dumont. Adélaïde Leroux, Samuel Boidin, Henri Cretel, Jean-Marie Bruveart, David Poulain. Pretty teen Leroux loves farmer Boidin, but he is unable to reciprocate

her feelings, driving her into the arms of another. He goes off to war and she becomes pregnant. Compelling, vividly etched portrait of the cruelty of war and human existence, featuring inarticulate characters who are incapable of thinking or controlling their lives. Punctuated by jarring scenes of passionless, animalistic sex and senseless violence. Written by the director. Hawk-Scope. ▼

Flannel Pajamas (2006) C-124m.  D: Jeff Lipsky. Justin Kirk, Julianne Nicholson, Rebecca Schull, Jamie Harrold, Chelsea Altman, Stephanie March. Two people meet, fall madly in love, get married, and almost immediately find that their diverging personalities are tearing the relationship apart. Intelligent, engaging character study with good performances and many moments that ring true, but the couple's transition from blissful to wildly dysfunctional seems implausibly quick. [R] ▼

Flap (1970) C-106m.  D: Carol Reed. Anthony Quinn, Claude Akins, Tony Bill, Victor Jory, Shelley Winters. Uneven story of Indian outcast Quinn. You're supposed to pity Flapping Eagle, but script is so weak that the chances are you won't. At times funny, but supposedly tragic. Panavision. [PG]

Flareup (1969) C-100m. ½ D: James Neilson. Raquel Welch, James Stacy, Luke Askew, Don Chastain, Ron Rifkin, Jean Byron. Go-go dancer gets stalked from Las Vegas to L.A. by psychopathic ex-husband of friend who blames her for breakup of the marriage. Fast melodrama is helped by good location footage. [MP/G] ▼

Flashback (1990) C-108m. *½ D: Franco Amurri. Dennis Hopper, Kiefer Sutherland, Carol Kane, Cliff De Young, Paul Dooley, Michael McKean, Richard Masur. Young straight-arrow FBI agent (Sutherland) is ordered to transport a recently captured "underground" political fugitive to the scene of his '60s crime—disruption of a Spiro Agnew rally. Enervatingly predictable until its (surprisingly) bloody climax. Masur and McKean, who seem to be winging it, amuse as onetime political activists now trapped in a middle-class environment. [R] ▼

Flashbacks of a Fool (2008-U.S.-British) C-114m. ½ D: Baillie Walsh. Daniel Craig, Jodhi May, Claire Forlani, Harry Eden, Olivia Williams, Miriam Karlin, Mark Strong. Adult male's emotional age is stunted when, at 15, a traumatic event causes him to run away from home. Craig is on the mark as the now-successful Hollywood star who's boozing, womanizing, and drugging himself into oblivion. May stands out among a cast of top-notch actors. Scripted by Walsh, whose quiet, compelling direction helps give this soap-opera tale added dimension. Panavision. [R] ▼

Flashdance (1983) C-96m. ½ D: Adrian Lyne. Jennifer Beals, Michael Nouri, Lilia

Skala, Sunny Johnson, Kyle T. Heffner, Lee Ving, Ron Karabatsos, Belinda Bauer, Cynthia Rhodes, Liz Sagal, Robert Wuhl. How to turn a rock video into a feature film—with glitzy images, high energy, an arresting music score (principally by Giorgio Moroder), and the stupidest story this side of Busby Berkeley. Still, this concoction about a girl with the perfect fantasy life (macho welder by day, sexy dancer by night, courted by the rich and handsome boss, watched over by a patron-saint ballerina) was a smash. Title song won an Oscar. [R]▼●●

Flash Fire SEE: Dangerous Summer, A Flash Gordon (1980) C-110m.  D: Mike Hodges. Sam J. Jones, Melody Anderson, Topol, Max von Sydow, Ornella Muti, Brian Blessed, Timothy Dalton, Mariangela Melato. Updated version of comic strip is better than expected, thanks to eye-filling production/costume design by Danilo Donati, amusing rock score by Queen. Jones and Anderson are liabilities as Flash and Dale Arden, but Muti's evil Princess Aura (who would make any male stray from Right) leads a strong supporting cast. Todd-AO 35. [PG]▼●●

Flash of Genius (2008) C-120m. ½ D: Marc Abraham. Greg Kinnear, Lauren Graham, Dermot Mulroney, Jake Abel, Daniel Roebuck, Tim Kelleher, Bill Smitrovitch, Alan Alda, Mitch Pileggi. In the 1960s Detroit science teacher and inventor Robert Kearns (Kinnear) pitches his intermittent windshield washer to the Ford Motor Company. When they steal the invention he becomes obsessed with seeing justice done—and sacrifices everything (including his wife and six children) to that end. A true-life David and Goliath story with a twist: David isn't very likable. Interesting for a while, with good period flavor, but wears thin as we lose rooting interest. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Flash of Green, A (1984) C-131m.  D: Victor Nunez. Ed Harris, Blair Brown, Richard Jordan, George Coe, Helen Stenberg, John Glover. Reporter in a small Florida coastal town gets in over his head when he plays footsie with a scheming county commissioner who's behind a shady land-fill development racket. Capable performances and refreshingly offbeat subject matter are eventually negated by overlength and plot redundancies. Made for American Playhouse and produced by costar Jordan. Based on John D. MacDonald's book.▼

Flashpoint (1984) C-94m.  D: William Tannen. Kris Kristofferson, Treat Williams, Rip Torn, Kevin Conway, Miguel Ferrer, Jean Smart, Roberts Blossom, Tess Harper. Two maverick Texas Border Patrol officers stumble into volatile territory when they discover a cache of money that figures in a long-dormant mystery. Intriguing overall premise (and good cast) defeated

by uninteresting presentation. Bonus: the worst title song of 1984 (sung over closing credits). [R]▼●●

Flatfoot SEE: Knock Out Cop, The Flatliners (1990) C-105m. ½ D: Joel Schumacher. Kiefer Sutherland, Julia Roberts, Kevin Bacon, William Baldwin, Oliver Platt, Kimberly Scott, Hope Davis. Off-beat but sophomoric supernatural drama (with touches of horror and humor) about medical students experimenting with life after death. Slick camerawork and effects can't camouflage the superficiality of the script, which undermines an intriguing idea. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Flawless (1999) C-110m.  D: Joel Schumacher. Robert De Niro, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Barry Miller, Chris Bauer, Skipp Sudduth, Daphne Rubin-Vega. N.Y.C. cop suffers a stroke, and gets speech therapy lessons from the unlikely source imaginable, a drag queen he can't stand who happens to live in the same apartment house. Meanwhile, a local crimelord is searching for stolen money that's stashed somewhere in the building. Overlong, overplotted film (written by Schumacher) is kept afloat by the talent of its stars, De Niro and Hoffman. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Flawless (2008-British) C-108m. ½ D: Michael Radford. Michael Caine, Demi Moore, Lambert Wilson, Nathaniel Parker, Shaughan Seymour, Nicholas Jones, David Barras, Joss Ackland. In the kind of film he could have made in the '60s (and did, only better), Caine's latest gambit finds him as a janitor who decides his retirement gift from the London Diamond Corp. should include some of their product. He enlists an underappreciated female exec at the office to help him with the heist. Caine could do this in his sleep but he's still fun to watch; Moore has learned a lot about acting since she played Caine's daughter in 1984's BLAME IT ON RIO. A pleasant enough diversion. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Flea in Her Ear, A (1968-U.S.-French) C-94m.  D: Jacques Charon. Rex Harrison, Rosemary Harris, Louis Jourdan, Rachel Roberts. Unfunny farce about philandering barrister. Some of the slapstick gags go on interminably. Panavision. [M/PG]

Fled (1996) C-98m. ½ D: Kevin Hooks. Laurence Fishburne, Stephen Baldwin, Will Patton, Robert John Burke, Salma Hayek, Michael Nader, David Dukes, Brittney Powell, RuPaul, Taurean Blacque. Fishburne and Baldwin escape prison chained together in DEFIANT ONES style, leading to an extended chase that involves trains, trucks, cycles, cable cars, and the clichéd like. Self-conscious movie references abound in a story dealing with a secret computer disk that has the goods on a Cuban mobster.

Final gag isn't that great, but it's the best thing in the movie. [R]▼●●

Flesh + Blood (1985) C-126m.  D: Paul Verhoeven. Rutger Hauer, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Tom Burlinson, Jack Thompson, Susan Tyrrell, Ronald Lacey, Brion James, Bruno Kirby. Rowdy adventure set in 16th century: Leigh is betrothed to young Prince Burlinson but falls into clutches of Hauer and his motley band of warriors. Plenty of flesh and blood, but it's all rather foul and nasty; Verhoeven (in his first American English-language effort) does score points for sheer audaciousness. Aka THE ROSE AND THE SWORD. Technovision. [R]▼●

Flesh and Bone (1993) C-127m. ½ D: Steve Kloves. Dennis Quaid, Meg Ryan, James Caan, Gwyneth Paltrow, Scott Wilson, Christopher Rydell, Betsy Brantley, Julia Mueller. Moody but murky "sins of the father" drama, with Quaid well cast as a vending machine supplier who discovers that the tough-luck case he's been driving around Texas figured in the childhood tragedy that has dominated his life. Absolutely no dramatic payoff, but simply oozing in portent. Undeniable standouts are Philippe Rousselot's photography and the performance of Paltrow as a sexy con woman. [R]▼●●

Flesh and Fantasy (1943) 93m.  D: Julien Duvivier. Charles Boyer, Edward G. Robinson, Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Benchley, Betty Field, Robert Cummings, Thomas Mitchell, Charles Winninger. Three-part film of supernatural linked by Benchley; Field is ugly girl turned beauty by Cummings' love; Robinson's life is changed by fortune-teller Mitchell; Boyer is psychic circus star haunted by Stanwyck. Robinson sequence, based on Oscar Wilde's Lord Arthur Saville's Crime, is the most interesting. Coproduced by Duvivier and Boyer. Look for Peter Lawford as a Mardi Gras reveler in the first sequence. Fourth episode, dropped before release, subsequently expanded into feature titled DESTINY.

Flesh and Flame SEE: Night of the Quarter Moon

Flesh and Fury (1952) 82m. ½ D: Joseph Pevney. Tony Curtis, Jan Sterling, Mona Freeman, Wallace Ford, Harry Guardino. Curtis gives presentable performance as deaf prizefighter who seeks to regain hearing and love of decent girl.

Flesh and the Devil (1927) 112m.  D: Clarence Brown. John Gilbert, Greta Garbo, Lars Hanson, Barbara Kent, William Orlamond, George Fawcett, Eugenie Besserer. Garbo at her most seductive as temptress who comes between old friends Gilbert and Hanson. Pulsatingly romantic, beautifully filmed, probably the best Garbo-Gilbert love match. But talk about surprise endings!▼●

Flesh and the Fiends, The SEE: Mania

Flesh Eaters, The (1964) 87m. ½ D: Jack Curtis. Martin Kosleck, Rita Morley, Byron Sanders, Barbara Wilkin. Group trapped on island with deranged scientist is menaced by tiny but plentiful sea creatures that eventually mass to make one giant monster. Occasionally tense, but gruesome and generally boring. Longer version on video.▼●

Flesh Feast (1970) C-72m. BOMB D: B. F. Grinter. Veronica Lake, Phil Philbin, Heather Hughes, Chris Martell, Martha Mischon. Lake's final film (which she coproduced) is embarrassing, amateurish gorefest. As a mad scientist working on rejuvenation, she tortures Hitler to death at film's climax (maggots eat at his face in close-up), then addresses us directly, shouting a patriotic, anti-Nazi diatribe! [R]▼●

Fletch (1985) C-96m. ½ D: Michael Ritchie. Chevy Chase, Dana Wheeler-Nicholson, Tim Matheson, Joe Don Baker, Richard Libertini, Geena Davis, M. Emmet Walsh, George Wendt, Kenneth Mars. Chase plays a smart-ass undercover reporter (with a penchant for disguises) who goes after major drug ring. Good mystery absolutely smothered in wisecracks, some funny, some tiresome; if you're not a fan of Chevy, stay clear! Watchable but never credible. Screenplay by Andrew Bergman from Gregory McDonald's novel. Followed by a sequel. [PG]▼●●

returns as Fletch, the multi-personality L.A. reporter, in silly sequel. He finds himself in Louisiana, dealing with a parade of stereotypical Southern morons. For diehard Chase fans only. [PG]▼●●

Flicka (2006) C-95m.  D: Michael Mayer. Alison Lohman, Tim McGraw, Maria Bello, Ryan Kwanten, Dallas Roberts, Nick Searcy, Danny Pino, Dey Young. Teenage Lohman has no interest in school and only comes alive when she's home on her family's ranch. Then she encounters a wild horse and claims it as her own—in spite of her stern father's warnings to leave the animal alone. First-rate modern-day adaptation of Mary O'Hara's novel My Friend Flicka (filmed before in 1943) is ideal family fare. It's nice to see veteran Western actor Buck Taylor as the rodeo clerk. Super 35. [PG]■

Flight Command (1940) 116m.  D: Frank Borzage. Robert Taylor, Ruth Hussey, Walter Pidgeon, Paul Kelly, Nat Pendleton, Shepperd Strudwick, Red Skelton, Dick Purcell. Hackneyed story with good cast as upstart Taylor tries to make the grade in naval flight squadron. Look fast for John Raitt as a cadet.

Flight for Freedom (1943) 99m.  D: Lothar Mendes. Rosalind Russell, Fred MacMurray, Herbert Marshall, Eduardo Ciannelli, Walter Kingsford. Stilted tale of dedicated aviatrix Russell (loosely based on Amelia Earhart), who gains worldwide fame, and is romanced by self-centered flier MacMurray.

Flight From Ashiya (1964) C-100m.  D: Michael Anderson. Yul Brynner, Richard Widmark, George Chakiris, Suzy Parker, Shirley Knight. Slow movie dealing with three aviators in rescue attempt over Pacific. Big name cast will attract; stiff script. Panavision.

Flight of Rainbirds, A (1981-Dutch) C-94m.  D: Ate de Jong. Jeroen Krabbé, Marijke Merckens, Henriette Tol, Huib Rooymans, Claire Wauthion. Thoughtful, whimsical tale of sex, death, and religion, with Krabbé in a dual role as an inept, 34-year-old biologist who's never had a date, let alone slept with a woman, and his Alter Ego, who informs him that he has seven days to seduce a woman; otherwise he'll die and end up in hell. ▼

Flight of the Doves (1971-British) C-105m.  D: Ralph Nelson. Ron Moody, Jack Wild, Dorothy McGuire, Stanley Holloway, Helen Raye, William Rushton. Calculated cuteness mars tale of two Liverpool children who flee to Ireland to visit their grandmother; good cast isn't seen to best advantage. [G]

Flight of the Eagle, The (1982-Swedish) C-139m.  D: Jan Troell. Max von Sydow, Goran Stangertz, S. A. Ousdal, Eva von Hanno. Beautifully shot true story about a foolhardy but heroic balloon mission to the North Pole in 1897 strives to become its country's national film epic, but falls short of greatness. Stays in the memory, however, despite the fact that the second half of a lengthy running time deals only with three men freezing to death in the snow. Simultaneously filmed as a miniseries for Swedish TV. An Oscar nominee for Best Foreign Film. ▼●●

Flight of the Innocent (1992-Italian-French) C-105m.  D: Carlo Carlei. Manuel Colao, Federico Pacifici, Sal Borgese, Giusi Cataldo, Lucio Zagaria, Massimo Lodolo, Francesca Neri, Jacques Perrin. Exciting, fast-paced thriller about a little Sicilian boy (well played by Colao) who finds himself immersed in Mafia warfare and is forced to flee for his life. Immensely entertaining, this film also observes the stranglehold that organized crime can have over a society. Excellent debut feature for director/coscripser Carlei. [R]▼●●

Flight of the Intruder (1991) C-113m. *½ D: John Milius. Danny Glover, Willem Dafoe, Brad Johnson, Rosanna Arquette, Tom Sizemore, J. Kenneth Campbell, Dann Florek, Madison Mason, Ving Rhames, David Schwimmer. Dull adaptation of Stephen Coonts' novel, chronicling the exploits and frustrations of bombardiers in the Vietnam war. It plays like one of those 1950s service dramas that was "filmed in cooperation with the U.S. military," and this is incongruous given the story's setting. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Flight of the Navigator (1986) C-90m. ½ D: Randal Kleiser. Joey Cramer, Veronica Cartwright, Cliff De Young, Sarah Jessica Parker, Matt Adler, Howard Hesseman. 12-year-old boy is whisked away by an alien spaceship and returns home eight years later—still a 12-year-old boy. That's when the adventure really begins. Yet another film featuring a youthful hero and a cute robot; adequate entertainment for kids. The voice of the robot, billed as Paul Mall, is actually Paul Reubens, aka Pee-wee Herman. [PG]▼●●

Flight of the Phoenix, The (1965) C-147m. ½ D: Robert Aldrich. James Stewart, Richard Attenborough, Peter Finch, Hardy Kruger, Ernest Borgnine, Ian Bannen, Ronald Fraser, Christian Marquand, Dan Duryea, George Kennedy. A plane crash leaves a group of men stranded in the Sahara desert; film avoids clichés as tension mounts among the men. Stewart as the captain, Attenborough as the navigator stand out in uniformly fine cast. Remade in 2004. ▼●●

Flight of the Phoenix (2004) C-113m.  D: John Moore. Dennis Quaid, Tyrese Gibson, Miranda Otto, Giovanni Ribisi, Tony Curran, Hugh Laurie, Kirk Jones (Sticky Fingaz), Jacob Vargas, Scott Michael Campbell, Jared Padalecki. Remake of the 1965 film has a plane crashing (this time) in the Gobi Desert, with captain Quaid and fellow passengers running out of water, patience, and hope. Solid but unspectacular and, unlike the original, clichéd. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Flight of the Red Balloon (2008-French) C-115m.  D: Hou Hsiao-hsien. Juliette Binoche, Simon Iteanu, Song Fang, Hippolyte Girardot, Louise Margolin. Harried Parisian working mother tries to juggle her career in puppet theater while raising her young son, Simon. Bringing some calm into her life is a new nanny, a young Asian who tells Simon of the beloved 1956 short film by Albert Lamorisse, "The Red Balloon" (which features a boy Simon's age). Plot development is surrendered to exploration of character and the artistic temperament in this well-made if laid-back domestic drama. A red balloon plays a peripheral role here, appearing to be almost another hovering caregiver for the still-innocent boy. Emotionally powerful story, full of symbolic and cross-cultural touchstones, though not for all tastes. ▽

Flightplan (2005) C-98m.  D: Robert Schwentke. Jodie Foster, Peter Sarsgaard, Erika Christensen, Sean Bean, Kate Beahan, Marlene Lawston, Greta Scacchi, Judith Scott, Michael Irby, Stephanie Faracy. Grieving mother (Foster, solid as always) takes her young daughter home on a jumbo plane that's also carrying her husband's coffin. When she wakes up from a nap, her little girl is missing and no one believes that the youngster ever boarded the plane! Suspenseful at first, this thriller becomes remote and uninvolved; by the climax it's just plain ridiculous. Too bad Miss Froy wasn't along. Super 35. [PG-13] ▽

Flight to Fury (1966) 76m.  D: Monte Hellman. Dewey Martin, Fay Spain, Jack Nicholson, Jacqueline Hellman, Vic Diaz. Odd group of adventurers headed for Philippines location and hidden diamonds when plane crashes. Low-budgeter has its points, but never really comes across. Initially released at 62m., later reedited. ▼

Flight to Mars (1951) C-72m.  D: Lesley Selander. Marguerite Chapman, Cameron Mitchell, Virginia Huston, Arthur Franz. Adequate sci-fi about scientists and newspapermen who land on Mars and discover a lost civilization. Special effects hampered by modest budget. ▼

Flim-Flam Man, The (1967) C-104m.  D: Irvin Kershner. George C. Scott, Sue Lyon, Michael Sarrazin, Harry Morgan, Jack Albertson, Alice Ghostley, Albert Salmi, Slim Pickens. Scott is engaging as a veteran Southern con man who takes on Sarrazin as apprentice in his travels, but finds the novice a bit too honest. Entertaining comedy. Panavision. ▼

Flintstones, The (1994) C-92m. ½ D: Brian Levant. John Goodman, Elizabeth Perkins, Rick Moranis, Rosie O'Donnell, Kyle MacLachlan, Halle Berry, Elizabeth

Taylor, Dann Florek, Richard Moll, Jonathan Winters; voices of Harvey Korman, Sheryl Lee Ralph, Laraine Newman, Jay Leno. If you're going to make a live-action feature from a one-note, two-dimensional TV cartoon series, this is about as good as you could hope for: a bouncy concoction with an enthusiastic cast, including a surprisingly funny Taylor as Fred Flintstone's nagging mother-in-law. Mainly for kids, who should understandably lap it up. Series creators Bill Hanna and Joe Barbera, and Wilma's original voice, Jean Vander Pyl, have cameos. Followed by a prequel. [PG] ▼●●

Flintstones in Viva Rock Vegas, The (2000) C-91m.  D: Brian Levant. Mark Addy, Stephen Baldwin, Kristen Johnston, Jane Krakowski, Thomas Gibson, Joan Collins, Alan Cumming, Harvey Korman, Alex Meneses, John Taylor; voice of Rosie O'Donnell. Silly FLINTSTONES prequel featuring Fred and Barney as unmarried employees of the Bedrock Quarry; they court Wilma and Betty, while Wilma is pressured to wed snooty, slimy rich boy Chip Rockefeller. The cast is game, but the result is one big cliché that only will appeal to undiscriminating youngsters. [PG] ▼

Flipper (1963) C-90m. ½ D: James Clark. Chuck Connors, Luke Halpin, Kathleen Maguire, Connie Scott. Typical wholesome family fare about a boy who befriends a dolphin. Spun off into a TV series in 1964 (with Halpin) and another in 1995. Remade in 1996. ▼

Flipper (1996) C-96m. ½ D: Alan Shapiro. Paul Hogan, Elijah Wood, Chelsea Field, Isaac Hayes, Jonathan Banks, Jason Fuchs, Jessica Wesson. Low-key but agreeable time-filler about a teenage boy who spends the summer with his unruly uncle in Coral Key, Florida, and is befriended by a supersmart dolphin. Simplistic storytelling aimed at a juvenile crowd. Luke Halpin, star of the earlier film and TV series, appears briefly. Super 35. [PG] ▼●●

Flipper's New Adventure (1964) C-103m.  D: Leon Benson. Luke Halpin, Pamela Franklin, Helen Cherry, Tom Helmore, Brian Kelly. Further exploits of everybody's favorite dolphin: Flipper and Halpin thwart escaped convicts' efforts to blackmail millionaire Helmore. Pleasant, inoffensive fare for kids, filmed in the Bahamas and Key Biscayne. ▼

Flirt (1995-U.S.-German-Japanese) C-85m. ½ D: Hal Hartley. Bill Sage, Parker Posey, Martin Donovan, Dwight Ewell, Geno Lechner, Peter Fitz, Miho Nikaidoh, Toshizo Fujisawa, Chikako Hara. Quirky three-part film in which the same mini-drama is told three different ways: Flirt leaves lover to head off on a job, but the lover demands a commitment before the departure. The stories are set in N.Y.C., Berlin (with the characters gay), and Tokyo (with the male-female roles reversed). The point: male, female, gay, straight, and across the globe, people experience the same feelings and romantic crises. More interesting as an exercise than as entertainment. ▼

Flirtation Walk (1934) 97m. ½ D: Frank Borzage. Dick Powell, Ruby Keeler, Pat O'Brien, Ross Alexander, Guinn Williams, Henry O'Neill, Tyrone Power. West Point plot is clichéd and trivial as cadet Powell falls in love with officer's daughter Keeler; some fairly good numbers highlighted by "Mr. and Mrs. Is the Name." ▼

Flirting (1990-Australian) C-100m.  D: John Duigan. Noah Taylor, Thandie Newton, Nicole Kidman, Bartholomew Rose, Felix Nobis, Josh Picker, Liri Paramore, Marc Gray, Greg Palmer, Joshua Marshall, David Wieland, Craig Black, Leslie Hill, Naomi Watts. Charming sequel to Duigan's THE YEAR MY VOICE BROKE, which finds shy Taylor at boarding school where he falls in love with a Ugandan girl (Newton) who goes to a nearby girls' school. Nothing particularly new but still a warm, perceptive look at the pains of adolescence, with winning performances from everyone in the cast. Director Duigan also wrote the screenplay. ▼

Flirting With Disaster (1996) C-92m. ½ D: David O. Russell. Ben Stiller, Patricia Arquette, Téa Leoni, Alan Alda, Mary Tyler Moore, George Segal, Lily Tomlin, Josh Brolin, Richard Jenkins, Celia Weston, Glenn Fitzgerald, David Patrick Kelly, John Ford Noonan. Married and now a father, adopted Stiller decides to seek out his birth parents, with the help of a psychology grad student; taking his wife in tow, they embark on a cross-country trek that leads to calamity at every turn. Determinedly offbeat and full of comic twists, not all of which pay off; still, a cut above the norm for contemporary comedy. Moore and Segal make a great neurotic Jewish couple, matched by Tomlin and Alda as middle-aged flower children. [R] ▼

Floating Weeds (1959-Japanese) C-119m. ½ D: Yasujiro Ozu. Ganjiro Nakamura, Machiko Kyo, Haruko Sugimura, Ayako Wakao. Struggling acting troupe visits remote island, where its leader (Nakamura) visits his illegitimate son and the boy's mother, with whom he had an affair years before. Powerful drama is meticulously directed, solidly acted. Ozu directed the same story, as a silent film, in 1934. Aka DRIFTING WEEDS. ▼

working-class life involving love, money, crime, and morality. Set and shot in Pennsylvania; the Florentine is a neighborhood bar and meeting place. Based on a stage play. Released direct to video. [R] ▼

Flower Drum Song (1961) C-133m.  D: Henry Koster. Nancy Kwan, James Shigeta, Miyoshi Umeki, Benson Fong, Jack Soo, Juanita Hall, Reiko Sato, Patrick Adiarte, Victor Sen Yung. Rodgers and Hammerstein's Broadway musical becomes a bright Technicolor confection about life and love in San Francisco's Chinatown, where Old World traditions clash with modern American sensibilities. Songs include "I Enjoy Being a Girl." All-Asian cast was a rarity in Hollywood at that time. Opera singer Marilyn Horne dubs Sato's voice on "Love, Look Away." ▼

Flower in His Mouth, The (1975-Italian) C-113m. *½ D: Luigi Zampa. Jennifer O'Neill, James Mason, Franco Nero, Orazio Orlando. O'Neill moves to small Italian town, finds its people paralyzed by fear but unwilling to tell why. Murky thriller isn't worth time it takes to figure out.

Flower of Evil, The (2003-French) C-104m.  D: Claude Chabrol. Nathalie Baye, Benoît Magimel, Mélanie Doutey, Suzanne Flon, Bernard Le Coq, Thomas Chabrol. Low-key Chabrol melodrama, coscripted by the director, is set in contemporary Bordeaux, where a prosperous family harbors more twisted genealogical secrets than you can count. Film makes reference to France's murky WW2 history, but comes out flat; Baye's character, a local politician, is underwritten and her young, sexy costars' storyline doesn't add up to much. Longtime Chabrol dévotées may boost rating of this cerebral film. ▼

Flower of My Secret, The (1995-Spanish-French) C-100m. ½ D: Pedro Almodóvar. Marisa Paredes, Juan Echanove, Imanol Arias, Carmen Elias, Rossy de Palma, Chus Lampreave, Joaquín Cortés, Manuela Vargas. A middle-aged woman (Paredes), who has been happy and a successful writer, seems to be suffering a breakdown. Her work and marriage (to an often absent military-strategist husband) are meaningless, and she must relearn the joys of living. A more focused, somber portrait than usual for Almodóvar—although not without farcical flare-ups—which seems strangely reminiscent of the Douglas Sirk–Jane Wyman collaborations of 1950s Hollywood. [R]▼●●

Flowers in the Attic (1987) C-95m.  D: Jeffrey Bloom. Louise Fletcher, Victoria Tennant, Kristy Swanson, Jeb Stuart Adams, Ben Granger, Lindsay Parker, Marshall Colt. Disappointing adaptation of the V.C. Andrews best-seller tones down the incest and sadomasochism of the story about four youngsters kept locked up by evil granny (Fletcher) in the family mansion. Material is strangely compelling nonetheless; benefits from effective casting. [PG-13]▼●●

Flubber (1997) C-93m.  D: Les Mayfield. Robin Williams, Marcia Gay Harden, Christopher McDonald, Raymond J. Barry, Clancy Brown, Ted Levine, Wil Wheaton, Edie McClurg, voice of Jodi Benson. Surprisingly dull remake of Disney's THE ABSENT MINDED PROFESSOR, with Williams as the fragile genius who accidentally invents flubber—flying rubber—but forgets to attend his own wedding. Needlessly complicated by John Hughes' heavily rewritten script, which manages to leave out most of the funny stuff from the original, except for the springy basketball game. Nancy Olson (the female lead in 1961) has a cameo as a secretary. [PG]▼●●

Fluke (1995) C-96m.  D: Carlo Carlei. Matthew Modine, Nancy Travis, Eric Stoltz, Max Pomeranc, Ron Perlman, Jon Polito, Bill Cobbs, Collin Wilcox Paxton; voice of Samuel L. Jackson. Touching, beautifully filmed story of a young family man killed in a mysterious car accident and reincarnated as a dog named Fluke—while on his way to rejoin his wife and son. More appropriate for older audiences than for young kids, who might be disturbed by certain scenes and themes within the picture. Samuel L. Jackson provides the voice of Fluke's dog friend, Rumbo. Based on James Herbert's best-selling novel. [PG]▼●●

Flushed Away (2006-U.S.-British) C-84m.  D: David Bowers, Sam Fell. Voices of Hugh Jackman, Kate Winslet, Ian McKellen, Jean Reno, Bill Nighy, Andy Serkis, Shane Richie, Kathy Burke, David Suchet, Miriam Margolyes. A pampered pet mouse is flushed into the sewers of London by a rowdy rat. While struggling to find a way back home, he teams up with an intrepid

garbage-scow captain (Winslet) and helps her evade the clutches of a menacing toad. Good fun with clever gags to please both grown-ups and kids, and an unlikely cast of heroes—including some very funny singing slugs. First computer-generated film from the clay-animation geniuses at Aardman studios. [PG]●

Fly, The (1958) C-94m.  D: Kurt Neumann. Al (David) Hedison, Patricia Owens, Vincent Price, Herbert Marshall, Kathleen Freeman. Improbable but diverting sci-fi (screenplay by James Clavell!) about scientist who experiments with disintegration machine and has his atomic pattern mingled with that of a fly. "Help me! Help me!" Two sequels—RETURN OF THE FLY and CURSE OF THE FLY. Remade in 1986. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Fly, The (1986) C-100m. ½ D: David Cronenberg. Jeff Goldblum, Geena Davis, John Getz, Joy Boushel. Goldblum is just right as slightly crazed scientist who tests himself in a genetic transporter machine—and starts to evolve into a human fly. Extremely intense, sharply written remake of the 1958 movie that (unfortunately) goes over the line to be gross and disgusting. Written by Charles Edward Pogue and director Cronenberg. An Oscar winner for makeup (Chris Walas, Stephan Dupuis). Followed by a sequel. [R]▼●●

Fly II, The (1989) C-104m. BOMB D: Chris Walas. Eric Stoltz, Daphne Zuniga, Lee Richardson, John Getz, Frank Turner, Ann Marie Lee, Gary Chalk, Saffron Henderson, Harley Cross, Matthew Moore. A case of "like father, like son"; too bad director Walas isn't like David Cronenberg. Stoltz, son of deceased Jeff Goldblum, has attained puberty at five with the intellect to match; now he's being unknowingly exploited by—here's a novel twist—the scientists in whose care he's entrusted. Alternately dull and messy but mostly dull. [R]▼●●

Fly Away Home (1996) C-107m.  D: Carroll Ballard. Jeff Daniels, Anna Paquin, Dana Delany, Terry Kinney, Holter Graham, Jeremy Ratchford. First-rate family film about a girl who goes to live with her estranged father in Canada after the death of her mom and only finds happiness when she adopts a flock of baby geese. Then father and daughter embark on the adventure of teaching the birds how to migrate! Credible, involving story (inspired by a real-life incident), sparked by Paquin's and Daniels' strong performances. Photographed by Caleb Deschanel, who previously collaborated with director Ballard on THE BLACK STALLION. [PG]▼●●

Daniel Rigby. Agreeably old-fashioned yarn about the diverse young Americans who went to France in 1916 to serve in the Lafayette Escadrille, long before the U.S. officially entered WWI. They bond, bicker, find love on the ground and danger in the air. No surprises here, but this modern update of films like THE DAWN PATROL still entertains, and offers cutting-edge CG imagery to make the aerial sequences more vivid than ever before. Despite a formulaic screenplay, the writers did their homework: most of the characters in this story really existed. HD Widescreen. [PG-13] D

Flying (1986-Canadian) C-94m.  D: Paul Lynch. Olivia d'Abo, Rita Tushingham, Keanu Reeves, Jessica Steen, Renee Murphy. Minor imitation of FLASHDANCE has statuesque d'Abo overcoming a leg injury to become a medal-winning gymnast; Tushingham (with shocking carrot-colored hair) is her tough coach. This formula has whiskers, but d'Abo is easy to watch, even though her full figure is unconvincing for a gymnast. Video title: TEENAGE DREAM. V

Flying Aces SEE: Flying Deuces, The Flying Deuces, The (1939) 65m.  D: A. Edward Sutherland. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Jean Parker, Reginald Gardiner, Charles Middleton, James Finlayson. Stan and Ollie join the Foreign Legion so Ollie can forget Parker; usual complications result. Good fun, faster paced than most L&H films, includes charming song and dance to "Shine On, Harvest Moon." V **●●

Flying Down to Rio (1933) 89m.  D: Thornton Freeland. Dolores Del Rio, Gene Raymond, Raul Roulien, Ginger Rogers, Fred Astaire, Blanche Frederici, Eric Blore, Franklin Pangborn. Slim Del Rio vehicle memorable for its scene of dancing girls cavorting on plane wings, plus Astaire and Rogers doing "The Carioca" in their first screen teaming. Also shown in computer-colored version. V **●●

Flying Leathernecks (1951) C-102m.  D: Nicholas Ray. John Wayne, Robert Ryan, Jay C. Flippen, Janis Carter, Don Taylor, William Harrigan. Major Wayne is exceedingly tough on his Marines; executive officer Ryan thinks he should be a little nicer. Guess who wins this argument. Solid, if not especially original, WW2 actioner, with good aerial scenes and nice turn by Flippen as crafty sergeant. V **●●

Flying Scotsman, The (2006-British-German) C-98m.  D: Douglas Mackinnon. Jonny Lee Miller, Billy Boyd, Laura Fraser, Morven Christie, Steven Berkoff, Brian Cox. Based-on-fact triumph-of-the-underdog tale involving Graeme Obree (Miller), a young outsider for whom bicycling is an escape, a salvation. He is inspired to build a new kind of cycle, using homemade materials, which he hopes will allow him to set a world speed record . . . but there are complications and repercussions. Potentially rousing story is pleasant at best, but mostly episodic and uninspiring. [PG-13] D

Flying Tigers (1942) 102m. ½ D: David Miller. John Wayne, John Carroll, Anna Lee, Paul Kelly, Mae Clarke, Gordon Jones, James "Jimmie" Dodd. Good war film in which Wayne commands the volunteer Flying Tigers in China prior to Pearl Harbor while contending with egotistical ace pilot Carroll. Exciting dog-fight scenes. Also shown in computer-colored version. V **●●

FM (1978) C-104m. ½ D: John A. Alonzo. Michael Brandon, Martin Mull, Eileen Brennan, Cleavon Little, Cassie Yates, Alex Karras, Norman Lloyd, James Keach. Hip comedy (which could well have inspired TV's WKRP) about various conflicts at maverick radio station, chiefly against its profit-hungry parent company. More a series of sketches than a movie, but nicely captures feel of '70s L.A. and Mull is marvelous as the station's craziest dj. Good rock soundtrack, plus concert appearances by Linda Ronstadt, Jimmy Buffett, Tom Petty, and REO Speedwagon. Panavision. [PG] V **●●

Focus (2001) C-106m. ½ D: Neal Slavin. William H. Macy, Laura Dern, David Paymer, Meat Loaf Aday, Kay Hewtrey, Michael Copeman. Gentile personnel director is demoted at work and shunned in his WW2-era Brooklyn neighborhood because his new glasses supposedly make him look Jewish. Well-acted relic, adapted from Arthur Miller's 1945 novel, establishes a concrete feel for its tight neighborhood milieu, even though it was shot in Toronto on a budget. Otherwise, it's heavy-handed and "small"—a lethal combination. [PG-13] V D

Fog, The (1980) C-91m. ½ D: John Carpenter. Adrienne Barbeau, Jamie Lee Curtis, Hal Holbrook, Janet Leigh, John Houseman, Tommy Atkins, Nancy Loomis, Charles Cyphers. Carpenter's follow-up to HALLOWEEN is a well-directed but obvious ghost story about a California coastal town cursed by a hundred-year-old shipwreck. Remade in 2005. Panavision. [R] V **●●

Fog, The (2005-U.S.-British) C-100m. ½ D: Rupert Wainwright. Tom Welling, Maggie Grace, Selma Blair, DeRay Davis, Kenneth Welsh, Adrian Hough, Sara Botsford, Rade Sherbedgia. A dense fog from the Pacific creeps over a Northwest seaside village, bringing with it murderous, vengeful ghosts. Lame remake of John Carpenter's 1980 movie alters the plot slightly but is no improvement. Carpenter and longtime partner Debra Hill produced this. Alternate version also available. Super 35. [PG-13] V D

Fog of War, The (2003) C-105m. ½ D: Errol Morris. Unique, memorable documentary about the life of Robert S. McNamara, the controversial former secretary of defense who played a pivotal role during the Vietnam War. Director Morris explores myriad political, social, and moral issues that resonate even more tellingly today, and McNamara—85 when the film was made—remains an outspoken and forceful personality who refuses to provide any easy answers about the history he helped to shape. An emotional powerhouse for anyone who lived through the era depicted here so vividly. Oscar winner for Best Documentary Feature. Film carries the subtitle ELEVEN LESSONS FROM THE LIFE OF ROBERT S. McNAMARA. [PG-13]▼

Folies Bourgeoises SEE: Twist, The (1976)

Folks! (1992) C-107m. BOMB D: Ted Kotcheff. Tom Selleck, Don Ameche, Anne Jackson, Christine Ebersole, Wendy Crewson, Robert Pastorelli, Michael Murphy. Excruciating comedic misfire about stockbroker Selleck trying to deal with aging dad Ameche's senility and death wish. An outrageous number of mishaps to Selleck give slapstick a bad name. [PG-13]▼●●

Folks at Red Wolf Inn, The SEE: Terror House

Following (1999-British) 71m.  D: Christopher Nolan. Jeremy Theobald, Alex Haw, Lucy Russell, John Nolan. Interesting ultra-low-budget precursor to Nolan's MENTO: another nonlinear story about a young aimless man who decides to follow people, just for the hell of it . . . until one of his "subjects" turns the tables and lures him into his world, where he robs empty apartments and invades his victims' lives. Provocative and original. [R]▼

Follow Me, Boys! (1966) C-131m. ½ D: Norman Tokar. Fred MacMurray, Vera Miles, Lillian Gish, Charlie Ruggles, Elliott Reid, Kurt Russell. Mile-high Disney corn about simple fellow who settles in small town during 1930s and starts Boy Scout troop, devoting his life to this inspiring pursuit. A little less syrup would have helped, but at least it's done with great conviction.▼

Follow Me Quietly (1949) 59m.  D: Richard O. Fleischer. William Lundigan, Dorothy Patrick, Jeff Corey, Nestor Paiva, Charles D. Brown, Paul Guilfoyle. Solid little film noir about police manhunt for self-righteous psychopathic killer called The Judge. Packs style and substance into just 59 minutes.▼

Follow That Bird SEE: Sesame Street Presents Follow That Bird

Follow That Camel (1967-British) C-95m. ½ D: Gerald Thomas. Phil Silvers, Jim Dale, Peter Butterworth, Charles Hawtrey, Kenneth Williams, Anita Harris, Joan Sims. Silvers as conniving sergeant livens up otherwise standard CARRY ON outing with Foreign Legion setting.▼

Follow That Dream (1962) C-110m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. Elvis Presley, Arthur O'Connell, Anne Helm, Joanna Moore, Jack Kruschen, Simon Oakland. Presley and family move to southern Florida where they intend to homestead, despite all opposition. Easygoing comedy from Richard Powell's book Pioneer Go Home. Elvis sings "Home Is Where the Heart Is" and "On Top of Old Smokey"! Panavision.▼●●

Follow the Boys (1944) 110m.  D: A. Edward Sutherland. Marlene Dietrich, George Raft, Orson Welles, Vera Zorina, Dinah Shore, W. C. Fields, Jeanette MacDonald, Maria Montez, Andrews Sisters, Sophie Tucker, Nigel Bruce, Gale Sondergaard. Universal Pictures' entry in all-star WW2 series has Raft organizing USO shows, Welles sawing Dietrich in half, MacDonald singing "Beyond the Blue Horizon," Fields doing classic pool-table routine, etc. Lots of fun.▼

Follow the Boys (1963) C-95m.  D: Richard Thorpe. Connie Francis, Paula Prentiss, Ron Randell, Janis Paige, Russ Tamblyn, Dany Robin. Dumb comedy unspiked by Francis' singing or antics as quartet of girls chase around the French Riviera seeking husbands. Panavision.●

Follow the Fleet (1936) 110m. * D: Mark Sandrich. Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Randolph Scott, Harriet Hilliard (Nelson), Astrid Allwyn, Betty Grable. Delightful musical with sailors Astaire and Scott romancing sisters Rogers and Hilliard. Irving Berlin songs include "Let's Face the Music and Dance," "Let Yourself Go," "We Saw the Sea." A reworking of SHORE LEAVE, a 1925 Richard Barthelmess silent, and the 1930 musical HIT THE DECK. That's Lucille Ball as Kitty.▼●●

Follow the Sun (1951) 93m. ½ D: Sidney Lanfield. Glenn Ford, Anne Baxter, Dennis O'Keefe, June Havoc. Fictionalized biopic of golfer Ben Hogan with hokey dramatics to fill in lean spots.

Folly to Be Wise (1952-British) 91m.  D: Frank Launder. Alastair Sim, Elizabeth Allan, Roland Culver, Martita Hunt. Generally amusing nonsense with Sim an Army chaplain trying to enliven service life with various unique entertainment programs.

Fond Kiss, A (2004-British-Belgian-German-Italian-Spanish) C-104m.  D: Kenneth Loach. Atta Yaqub, Eva Birthistle, Shabana Bakhsh, Shamshad Akhtar, Ahmad Riaz, Ghizala Avan, Pasha Bocarie. Provocative, refreshingly unformulaic drama about the ins and outs of a mixed-race relationship between a second-generation Pakistani (Yaqub) living with his Muslim family in Glasgow and a Catholic schoolteacher (Birthistle). All the characters are vividly etched, and Loach and screenwriter Paul Laverty offer no simple solutions to the problems their characters encounter. Original title is AE FOND KISS. . . [R] ▼

Food of the Gods (1976) C-88m. BOMB D: Bert I. Gordon. Marjoe Gortner, Pamela Franklin, Ida Lupino, Jon Cypher, Ralph Meeker. Dreadful adaptation of H. G. Wells' novel. Strange substance causes giant growth in wasps, worms, chickens and rats. Not for the squeamish. Similar to VIL-LAGE OF THE GIANTS, filmed by Gordon 11 years earlier. [PG] ▼

Food of the Gods II (1989-Canadian) C-91m. BOMB D: Damian Lee. Paul Coufos, Lisa Schrage, Jackie Burroughs, Colin Fox, Frank Moore. This time, gigantic laboratory rats terrorize a college campus. No connection to the first film, or (goodness knows) H. G. Wells' novel. Ugh! Aka GNAW. ▼

Fool and His Money, A (1988) C-84m. BOMB D: Daniel Adams. Jonathan Penner, Sandra Bullock, Gerald Orange, George Plimpton, Jerzy Kosinski, Tama Janowitz, Jose Torres. Plimpton as "God" tells ex-musician/ex-ad man Penner to start his own business, so he founds the "Preferent Church," a religion whose main tenet is selfishness. Embarrassing attempt at satire features Bullock on the video box, but she only has about eight minutes on screen as a public defender who can't believe her boyfriend has turned into such a jerk. [R] ▼

Fool for Love (1985) C-106m.  D: Robert Altman. Sam Shepard, Kim Basinger, Harry Dean Stanton, Randy Quaid. Altman's inventive direction tries to breathe life into what is ultimately a photographed play. Shepard's examination of two ex-lovers who find themselves inextricably bound together. Biggest problem is generating some interest in these characters. Very much of a piece with Shepard's other work; if you're a fan, you might adjust our rating upward. [R] ▼

Foolin' Around (1980) C-111m.  D: Richard T. Heffron. Gary Busey, Annette O'Toole, Cloris Leachman, Eddie Albert, John Calvin, Tony Randall, W. (William) H. Macy. Dumb 1950s-style comedy about a good-hearted klutz who pursues a wealthy girl, although she's already engaged. Card-board characters and clumsy slapstick. [PG] ▼

part concert film, total disaster. Story centers around a comic who feels he is not using his talents wisely and throwing away his potential. Yeah, that's right; he coulda been a contender. Alas, nothing he says is even remotely funny. Film is also meant to capitalize on the success of hip hop star Master P, who also executive-produced. The title says it all. [R] ▼

Foolish Wives (1922) 107m.  D: Erich von Stroheim. Erich von Stroheim, Maud George, Mae Busch, Cesare Gravina, Malvine Polo. Von Stroheim's third film as director is a typically sophisticated, fascinating tale of seduction, fake counts, blackmail, suicide, lechery, and murder. Great photography by William Daniels and Ben Reynolds, and an incredible set depicting the Monte Carlo casino designed by von Stroheim and Richard Day. ▼

Fools (1970) C-97m. BOMB D: Tom Gries. Jason Robards, Katharine Ross, Scott Hylands, Roy C. Jensen, Mark Bramhall. Wretchedly acted, written, and directed drama about love affair in San Francisco between horror movie star and beautiful, neglected wife of a lawyer. Storyline is vaguely similar to PETULIA but the execution certainly isn't. [PG] ▼

Fools for Scandal (1938) 81m. ½ D: Mervyn LeRoy. Carole Lombard, Fernand Gravet, Ralph Bellamy, Allen Jenkins, Isabel Jeans, Marie Wilson. Generally a misfire, despite lovely Lombard as movie star who meets impoverished Paris nobleman Gravet; Bellamy plays the sap again.

Fool's Gold (2008) C-112m. ½ D: Andy Tennant. Matthew McConaughey, Kate Hudson, Donald Sutherland, Alexis Dziena, Ewen Bremner, Ray Winstone, Kevin Hart, Malcolm-Jamal Warner, Brian Hooks, David Roberts. Newly divorced McConaughey and Hudson get back together when he gets a bead on some sunken treasure they've been trying to find for years . . . but they aren't the only ones after it. Needlessly plotty romantic comedy is notably unfunny at first but gets livelier and more engaging as the treasure hunt kicks in. Beautiful scenery helps. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Fools of Fortune (1990-British) C-109m. ½ D: Pat O'Connor. Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, Iain Glen, Julie Christie, Michael Kitchen, Sean McClory, Frankie McCafferty. Muddled, haphazardly organized family chronicle set against decades of fighting between the British army and the IRA, from 1920 on. Very difficult to sort out who's doing what to whom. Mas-trantonio, who shows up quite late (despite her billing), is awkward as Glen's love interest. Based on William Trevor's novel.

[PG-13]▼●

Fools' Parade (1971) C-98m.  D: Andrew V. McLaglen. James Stewart, George
Kennedy, Anne Baxter, Strother Martin, Kurt Russell, William Windom, Kathy Can-
non. Another great Stewart performance can't save melodramatic treatment of Davis Grubb novel. Story of three ex-cons stalked by their former prison guard is unintentionally funny too many times to be taken seriously. [PG]

Fools Rush In (1997) C-107m. ½ D:
Andy Tennant. Matthew Perry, Salma
Hayek, Jon Tenney, Carlos Gomez, Tomas
Milian, Siobhan Fallon, John Bennett Perry,
Stanley DeSantis, Suzanne Snyder, Jill
Clayburgh. Hard-working New Yorker
Perry chances to meet self-reliant Mexican-American photographer Hayek in Las Vegas, and it's lust at first sight . . . but when she becomes pregnant, it's hard for either of them to know what course to take.
Pleasant if unexceptional romantic comedy-drama with appealing and credible performances by the two stars. [PG-13]▼●

Foot Fist Way, The (2008) C-83m. *½
D: Jody Hill. Danny McBride, Mary Jane
Bostic, Ben Best, Spencer Moreno, Carlos
Lopez IV, Jody Hill, Ken Aguilar, Collette Wolfe. Meandering, one-note account of self-deluded, painfully insufferable tae-kwondo instructor McBride. This crude, cringe-inducing comedy barely sustains interest and seems overlong even at 83m!
However, fans of JACKASS: THE MOVIE
may feel otherwise. [R]●

Footlight Parade (1933) 104m. ½ D:
Lloyd Bacon. James Cagney, Joan Blondell,
Ruby Keeler, Dick Powell, Guy Kibbee,
Ruth Donnelly, Hugh Herbert, Frank
McHugh. Cagney plays a stage director who tries to outdo himself with spectacular musical numbers. Fast-paced Warner Bros. opus winds up with three incredible
Busby Berkeley numbers back-to-back:
"Honeymoon Hotel," "By a Waterfall," and "Shanghai Lil." ▼●●

Footlight Serenade (1942) 80m.  D:
Gregory Ratoff. Betty Grable, Victor Mature, John Payne, Jane Wyman, Phil Silvers, James Gleason, Mantan Moreland, Cobina Wright, Jr. Cute backstage musical with cocky boxer Mature turning to Broadway and trying to woo Grable, who's secretly engaged to Payne. Good fun.▼

Footloose (1984) C-107m. ½ D: Herbert
Ross. Kevin Bacon, Lori Singer, John
Lithgow, Dianne Wiest, Christopher Penn, Sarah Jessica Parker, John Laughlin, Elizabeth Gorcey, Frances Lee McCain, Jim Young, Brian Wimmer. City kid moves to small town where dancing has been outlawed—and confronts hellfire minister (Lithgow) in effort to bring it back. Too much emphasis on hackneyed story in so-called musical (though the soundtrack did spawn a number of Top 10 hits). Bacon's charisma sparks innocuous film. Later a Broadway musical. [PG] ▼●●

Footsteps in the Dark (1941) 96m. ½
D: Lloyd Bacon. Errol Flynn, Brenda Marshall, Ralph Bellamy, Alan Hale, Lee Patrick, Allen Jenkins. Flynn leads double life as happily married businessman and mystery writer. Silly but genial.▼

Footsteps in the Fog (1955-British) C-90m.
 D: Arthur Lubin. Stewart Granger,
Jean Simmons, Finlay Currie, Bill Travers, Ronald Squire. Cat-and-mouse battle involving servant girl who blackmails her employer for having murdered his wife.
Fine acting, rich Victorian atmosphere.

For a Few Dollars More (1966-Italian)
C-130m.  D: Sergio Leone. Clint Eastwood, Lee Van Cleef, Gian Maria Vol-onté, Jose Egger, Mara Krup, Rosemarie
Dexter, Klaus Kinski, Mario Brega. Sequel to FISTFUL OF DOLLARS finds two gunslingers forming an uneasy alliance in their quest for outlaw Indio (Volonté)—although their reasons for chasing him are markedly different. Slightly draggy but still fun; don't miss the scene where Van Cleef strikes a match on the back of Kinski's neck! Trademark atmospheric score by Ennio Morricone. Released in the U.S. in 1967. Followed by THE GOOD, THE BAD, AND THE UGLY. Techniscope.

For All Mankind (1989) C-80m.  D:
Al Reinert. Excellent documentary on the Apollo moon flights, culled from a zillion hours of NASA footage seamlessly edited into one representative journey. Impressive, if a bit on the cold side; end credits inform us film was shot "on location." Let us hope.▼●●

For Better, For Worse SEE: Zandy's

Forbidden (1932) 81m.  D: Frank Capra.
Barbara Stanwyck, Adolphe Menjou, Ralph
Bellamy, Dorothy Peterson, Henry Armetta.
A spinster schoolteacher takes a cruise and falls in love with a man who can never marry her. Fine performances and stunning Joseph Walker photography buoy this BACK STREET soap opera until its ridiculous conclusion.

Forbidden (1953) 85m. ½ D: Rudolph
Maté. Tony Curtis, Joanne Dru, Lyle
Bettyger, Marvin Miller, Victor Sen Yung.
OK suspenser in which two-fisted Curtis arrives in Macao, hired by a gangland chief to uncover the whereabouts of Dru (who just so happens to be Curtis' ex-girlfriend).

Forbidden Dance, The (1990) C-97m. BOMB D: Greydon Clark. Laura Herring, Jeff James, Sid Haig, Richard Lynch, Barbara Brighton, Kid Creole. Brazilian jungle princess treks to America on behalf of her endangered rain forests, ends up on a TV special as . . . a lambda dancer?!? Marginally lesser of two "L-word" quickies that opened the same week. Inability of ex-Miss USA Herring to dance is good for a few chuckles. [PG-13] ▼●●

Forbidden Games (1951-French) 87m. ½ D: René Clément. Brigitte Fossey, Georges Poujouly, Louis Herbert. During WW2, young Parisian girl is orphaned and taken in by simple peasant family; she develops friendship with their youngest son, and shares with him a private world which the grown-ups cannot understand. Sad, intensely moving drama earned a Best Foreign Film Oscar. ▼●●

Forbidden Kingdom, The (2008-U.S.-Chinese) C-105m. ½ D: Rob Minkoff. Jackie Chan, Jet Li, Michael Angarano, Collin Chou, Liu Yifei, Li Bing Bing. Boston boy is magically transported to a mystical kingdom, bearing a golden staff that must be returned to its rightful owner. He acquires a valuable ally in a seemingly drunken kung-fu master (Chan), and before long they encounter a silent monk (Li) who may or may not be on their side. Uninspired story unfolds against magnificent Chinese scenery and ornate sets, photographed by Peter Pau. Chan and Li square off for one great fight (choreographed by Woo-Ping Yuen) but the film as a whole is just lukewarm. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Forbidden Planet (1956) C-98m. ½ D: Fred McLeod Wilcox. Walter Pidgeon, Anne Francis, Leslie Nielsen, Warren Stevens, Jack Kelly, Richard Anderson, Earl Holliman, George Wallace, James Drury. Sci-fi version of Shakespeare's The Tempest remains one of the most ambitious and intelligent films of its genre; only slow, deliberate pacing works against it, as Nielsen and fellow space travelers visit planet where expatriate Pidgeon has built a one-man empire with daughter Francis and obedient Robby the Robot. Great effects, eerie electronic score. Beware 95m. reissue prints. Lavish use of wide-screen CinemaScope is severely diminished on television. ▼●●

Forbidden Street, The (1949-British) 91m.  D: Jean Negulesco. Dana Andrews, Maureen O'Hara, Sybil Thorndike, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Fay Compton. Fanciful melodrama, set in Victorian England, of wealthy O'Hara defying her family by marrying beneath her class; Andrews has a dual role, as a down-and-out artist (with his voice dubbed) and an ex-barrister. Scripted by Ring Lardner, Jr. Originally titled BRITANNIA MEWS.

Forbidden World (1982) C-86m. *½ D: Allan Holzman. Jesse Vint, June Chadwick, Dawn Dunlap, Linden Chiles, Fox Harris. Roger Corman-produced ALIEN rip-off is followup to (and uses sets from) his GALAXY OF TERROR as well as battle scenes lifted from his BATTLE BEYOND THE STARS. Lots of gore, weak special effects. Aka MUTANT. [R] ▼●●

Forbidden Zone (1980) 76m. *½ D: Richard Elfman. Herve Villechaize, Susan Tyrrell, Marie-Pascale Elfman, Viva. Pastiche film set in the Sixth Dimension, an underground kingdom ruled by Villechaize and Tyrrell. Mostly a collection of bizarre, campy musical numbers, done in the style of 1930s Max Fleischer cartoons. If only everything about the film weren't so ugly! Has an inevitable cult following. [R] ▼●

Forbin Project, The SEE: Colossus: The Forbin Project

Forced March (1989-U.S.-Hungarian) C-104m. ½ D: Rick King. Chris Sarandon, Renee Soutendijk, Josef Sommer, John Seitz. American actor Sarandon faces challenge after traveling to Budapest to star in a film about Miklos Radnoti, Hungarian-Jewish poet who fell victim to the Holocaust. Ambitious, potentially potent drama mostly falls flat; scenes of the actor are pointlessly interspersed with those of the film in which he is starring. ▼●●

Forced Vengeance (1982) C-90m. *½ D: James Fargo. Chuck Norris, Mary Louise Weller, Camilla Griggs, Michael Cavanaugh, David Opatoshu, Seiji Sakaguchi. Clichéd karate nonsense with Norris, badly in need of an acting lesson, taking on Hong Kong mobster Cavanaugh. [R] ▼●

Force: Five (1981) C-95m.  D: Robert Clouse. Joe Lewis, Pam Huntington, Master Bong Soo Han, Richard Norton, Benny "The Jet" Urquidez. Lewis and company attempt to rescue girl from the clutches of religious-cult-head Han. Retreat of Clouse's much-used martial arts formula, with gimmick of disparate five-person "team" as the collective hero. Remake of HOT POTATO. [R] ▼

Force of Arms (1951) 100m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. William Holden, Nancy Olson, Frank Lovejoy, Gene Evans, Dick Wesson. Updating of Hemingway's A FAREWELL TO ARMS to WW2 Italy, with unmemorable results. Reissued as A GIRL FOR JOE. ▼

Force of Evil (1948) 78m.  D: Abraham Polonsky. John Garfield, Beatrice Pearson, Thomas Gomez, Roy Roberts, Marie Windsor, Howland Chamberlin, Beau Bridges. Rock-solid film noir about a racketeer's lawyer (Garfield, in a stunning performance), whose ideals have been obscured by his greed. Beautifully photographed (by George Barnes) and lit; this has become something of a cult item. Polonsky, who coscripted with

Ira Wolfert, was blacklisted and didn't make another film until 1969's TELL THEM WIL-LIE BOY IS HERE. ▼●●

Force of One, A (1979) C-90m. ½ D: Paul Aaron. Chuck Norris, Jennifer O'Neill, Clu Gulager, Ron O'Neal, James Whitmore Jr., Clint Ritchie, Pepe Serna. Follow-up to GOOD GUYS WEAR BLACK has karate champ Norris using his expertise to help California town combat drug trafficking. OK action fare. [PG] ▼●

Force 10 From Navarone (1978-British) C-118m. BOMB D: Guy Hamilton. Robert Shaw, Harrison Ford, Edward Fox, Franco Nero, Barbara Bach, Carl Weathers, Richard Kiel. Awful sequel to classic GUNS OF NAVARONE, poor in all departments, although Shaw, Ford, and Nero try to give it a lift. Mixed group (naturally), hindered by traitor Nero, attempt to blow a bridge vital to Nazis. They blew the film instead. Based on the Alistair MacLean novel. Restored to 128m. on laserdisc. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Foreign Affair, A (1948) 116m. ½ D: Billy Wilder. Jean Arthur, Marlene Dietrich, John Lund, Millard Mitchell, Peter Von Zemeck, Stanley Prager. Staid Arthur is sent to Berlin to investigate post-WW2 conditions, finds romance instead, with hot competition from Dietrich. Marlene sings "Black Market," "Ruins of Berlin," but Jean Arthur's Iowa State Song equally memorable in great Wilder comedy. Written by Charles Brackett, Billy Wilder, and Richard Breen. ▼

Foreign Body (1986-British) C-108m. ½ D: Ronald Neame. Victor Banerjee, Warren Mitchell, Trevor Howard, Geraldine McEwan, Amanda Donohoe, Denis Quilley, Eve Ferret, Anna Massey. In a real casting switch, A PASSAGE TO INDIA star Banerjee has a field day as an itinerant Indian in London who poses as a doctor and soon finds all the women dying to get him into bed. Throwback to the style of 1950s British sex comedies. [PG-13] ▼

Foreign Correspondent (1940) 119m. * D: Alfred Hitchcock. Joel McCrea, Laraine Day, Herbert Marshall, George Sanders, Albert Basserman, Robert Benchley, Edmund Gwenn, Eduardo Ciannelli, Harry Davenport, Martin Kosleck. McCrea in title role caught in middle of spy ring with reporters Sanders and Benchley, innocent Day, suspicious father Marshall. Tremendously entertaining film with several vintage Hitchcock showpieces. Scripted by Charles Bennett and Joan Harrison; dialogue by James Hilton and Benchley. ▼●●

Foreign Intrigue (1956) C-100m.  D: Sheldon Reynolds. Robert Mitchum, Genevieve Page, Ingrid Thulin, Frederick O'Brady. Colorful location filming throughout Europe enlivens this otherwise plodding suspense, with stolid press agent Mitchum investigating the death of his wealthy, mysterious employer. Based on a syndicated TV series of the same name.

Foreign Student (1994) C-96m. ½ D: Eva Sereny. Robin Givens, Marco Hofschneider, Rick Johnson, Charlotte Ross, Edward Herrmann, Jack Coleman, Charles S. Dutton, Hinton Battle, Anthony Herrera. Mild, but fairly individualized, low-budget nostalgia piece about an 18-year-old Parisian's taboo romance with a beautiful black schoolteacher/domestic while attending a small college in Virginia's Shenandoah Valley in r&b 1956. Spotty little film mixes it up with subplots involving football, William Faulkner, and blues greats Howlin' Wolf and Sonny Boy Williamson; from wistful memoirs of filmmaker Philippe Labro, a huge best-seller in France. [R] ▼●

Forever Amber (1947) C-140m.  D: Otto Preminger. Linda Darnell, Cornel Wilde, Richard Greene, George Sanders, Jessica Tandy, Anne Revere, Leo G. Carroll. "Musical beds" costumer, taken from Kathleen Winsor's once-scandalous novel, about blonde Darnell's ascension to the court of Charles II. Lengthy but colorful and entertaining, with David Raksin's outstanding score. ▼●

Forever and a Day (1943) 104m.  D: René Clair, Edmund Goulding, Cedric Hardwicke, Frank Lloyd, Victor Saville, Robert Stevenson, Herbert Wilcox. Brian Aherne, Robert Cummings, Ida Lupino, Charles Laughton, Herbert Marshall, Ray Milland, Anna Neagle, Merle Oberon, Claude Rains, Victor McLaglen, Buster Keaton, Jessie Matthews, Roland Young, C. Aubrey Smith, Edward Everett Horton, Elsa Lanchester, Edmund Gwenn. Eighty-odd British (and American) stars contributed their services to this episodic film, about a house and its inhabitants over the years, to raise funds for British War Relief. Uneven result, but has many fine moments and star-gazing galore; once-in-a-lifetime cast. ▼●

Forever, Darling (1956) C-91m. ½ D: Alexander Hall. Lucille Ball, Desi Arnaz, James Mason, Louis Calhern. Ball's mad-cap antics nearly drive husband Arnaz to divorce, but guardian angel Mason saves the day. Contrived but enjoyable. ▼●●

Forever Female (1953) 93m. ½ D:

Irving Rapper. Ginger Rogers, William Holden, Paul Douglas, Pat Crowley, James Gleason, Jesse White, Marjorie Rambeau, George Reeves, King Donovan, Marion Ross. Top-notch show business comedy, with Rogers the star who finally realizes she is too old for the ingenue role, allowing writer Holden to cast Crowley in the part. Film captures flavor of the Broadway, summer stock milieu. Scripted by Philip and Julius Epstein; suggested by James M. Barrie's play Rosalind. ▼●●

Forever, Lulu (1987) C-85m. BOMB D: Amos Kollek. Hanna Schygulla, Deborah Harry, Alec Baldwin, Annie Golden, Paul Gleason, Dr. Ruth Westheimer. Embarrassing, amateurish imitation of DESPERATELY SEEKING SUSAN has budding novelist Schygulla becoming embroiled in a real-life mystery in N.Y.C. involving drugs and killers. Despite having the title role, singing star Harry makes only a brief cameo appearance. Israeli director Kollek also turns in a poor acting job as Schygulla's agent. Baldwin's first film. Aka CRAZY STREETS. [R]▼●●

Forever Mine (2000-Canadian-British-U.S.) C-115m. ½ D: Paul Schrader. Joseph Fiennes, Gretchen Mol, Ray Liotta, Vincent Laresca, Myk Watford, John Henry Canavan, Lindsey Connell. Florida, stylized romantic saga about a Florida cabana boy who falls deeply in love with a beautiful married guest and refuses to be deterred by her hot-tempered husband. An homage to the lush 1950s Douglas Sirk melodramas, this film isn't perfect, and demands a leap of faith, but offers the kind of passionate romance they don't make anymore. Written by the director. Made for theaters. U.S. debut on cable TV. Panavision. [R]▼

For Ever Mozart (1996-French-Swiss) C-84m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Madeleine Assas, Frederic Pierrot, Ghalia Lacroix, Vicky Messica, Harry Cleven. One of Godard's better latter-career films is the complex, poetic account, set in four sections, of a director attempting to mount a movie. Here, Godard insightfully deals with one of his more prominent themes: how art (and, specifically, the art of cinema) relates to politics (in this case, the political implications of the war in Bosnia). ▼●

Forever Young (1992) C-102m.  D: Steve Miner. Mel Gibson, Jamie Lee Curtis, Elijah Wood, Isabel Glasser, George Wendt, Joe Morton, Nicolas Surovy, David Marshall Grant, Art LaFleur. The year is 1939, and test-pilot Gibson (whose girlfriend is comatose after being hit by a car) volunteers to be frozen as part of a cryogenics experiment. He's accidentally thawed out in 1992, and becomes involved in the lives of a young boy (Wood) and his mom (Curtis). This romantic comedy-fantasy may play out by the numbers as it tugs at your heartstrings, but it's hard to resist, thanks to a charismatic cast. [PG] ▼●●

Forget Paris (1995) C-101m.  D: Billy Crystal. Billy Crystal, Debra Winger, Joe Mantegna, Cynthia Stevenson, Richard Masur, Julie Kavner, William Hickey, Robert Costanzo, John Spencer, Cathy Moriarty, Tom Wright. Crystal plays a basketball referee who falls head over heels for Winger, while burying his father in Paris. Sharply written comedy (by Crystal and Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandel) about the trials and tribulations of making a marriage work—after falling in love. Many top basketball stars appear as themselves; Dan Castellana appears unbilled. [PG-13] ▼●●

Forgetting Sarah Marshall (2008) C-112m.  D: Nicholas Stoller. Jason Segel, Mila Kunis, Kristen Bell, Paul Rudd, Bill Hader, Russell Brand, Jonah Hill, Jack McBrayer, Maria Thayer, William Baldwin, Jason Bateman, Steve Landesberg, Gedde Watanabe. After his TV-star girlfriend leaves him for another man, a self-pitying composer goes to Hawaii to mend his broken heart. Then his ex and her new boyfriend turn up at the same resort! Another entry from producer Judd Apatow's comedy crew, this smart, funny comedy hits all the right notes, pushing the envelope for sexual content but never losing sight of real emotions. Segel wrote the screenplay and gives himself a great star vehicle, with plenty of room for other cast members to shine. Unrated version runs 118m. [R]●

Forgiven Sinner, The (1961-French) 116m. ½ D: Jean-Pierre Melville. Jean-Paul Belmondo, Emmanuele Riva, Patricia Gozzi, Irene Tunc. Belmondo gives subdued, offbeat performance as clergyman trying to set shady woman onto the path of righteousness. Aka LEON MORIN, PRIEST. ▼

Forgotten, The (2004) C-91m. ½ D: Joseph Ruben. Julianne Moore, Dominic West, Gary Sinise, Anthony Edwards, Alfre Woodard, Linus Roache, Robert Wisdom, Jessica Hecht. Woman still grieving for her son, who died more than a year ago, is told the boy never really existed! She refuses to believe this and doggedly seeks the truth, which leads her into unexplored territory. Thriller goes way off base for a while, testing our patience and credulity, before tying things up with an interesting payoff. A couple of real jolts along the way keep it from ever getting dull. Alternate version on DVD runs 94m. [PG-13] ▼●

For Heaven's Sake (1926) 58m. * D: Sam Taylor. Harold Lloyd, Jobyna Ralston, Noah Young, James Mason, Paul Weigel. Screamingly funny silent comedy has Lloyd a blase young millionaire whose crush on Ralston inspires him to help attract "customers" for her father's Bowery Mission. Even THE FRENCH CONNECTION hasn't dimmed the luster of Lloyd's chase climax on L.A. streets. ▽

For Keeps (1988) C-98m. ★½ D: John G. Avildsen. Molly Ringwald, Randall Batinkoff, Kenneth Mars, Miriam Flynn, Conchata Ferrell, Sharon Brown, Renee Estevez, Larry Drake. Studious teen Ringwald becomes pregnant, and must quickly face adult responsibilities. Subject matter is most worthwhile, but the result is predictable and phony. Tim Kazurinsky coauthored the screenplay. [PG-13] ▽●●

For Love Alone (1986-Australian) C-102m. ★★★ D: Stephen Wallace. Helen Buday, Sam Neill, Hugo Weaving, Hugh Keays-Byrne, Naomi Watts. Nicely filmed romantic drama, set in the 1930s, with Australian university student Buday falling in love with her professor (Weaving); even though he treats her poorly, she follows him to England. Neill does well as an altogether different man who enters her life. Based on the novel by Christina Stead. ▽

For Love of Ivy (1968) C-102m. ★★ D: Daniel Mann. Sidney Poitier, Abbey Lincoln, Beau Bridges, Leon Bibb, Nan Martin, Lauri Peters, Carroll O'Connor. Family wants to keep maid, so they find her a beau; ho-hum black romance. [G] ▽

For Love of the Game (1999) C-137m. ★★½ D: Sam Raimi. Kevin Costner, Kelly Preston, John C. Reilly, Jena Malone, Brian Cox, J. K. Simmons, Vin Scully. Likable vehicle for Costner as a 20-year baseball veteran who looks back on the last five years of his life during an eventful end-of-season game. Effectively played for star value and sentiment, but goes into extra innings for no apparent reason, stretching out a conclusion that comes as no surprise. Pannavision. [PG-13] ▽●●

For Love or Money (1963) C-108m. ★½ D: Michael Gordon. Kirk Douglas, Mitzi Gaynor, Gig Young, Thelma Ritter, William Bendix, Julie Newmar. Comedy strains to be funnier than it is. Widow Ritter hires lawyer Douglas to find spouses for her three daughters.

For Love or Money (1993) C-95m. ★★ D: Barry Sonnenfeld. Michael J. Fox, Gabrielle Anwar, Anthony Higgins, Michael Tucker, Bob Balaban, Isaac Mizrahi, Udo Kier, Simon Jones, Dianne Brill, Dan Hedaya, Fyvush Finkel, Bobby Short. Tepid APARTMENT variation about aggressive, ambitious Fox, concierge at an upscale N.Y.C. hotel, who'll do anything to please his guests. Trouble brews when he finds himself attracted to beautiful Anwar, the mistress of married Higgins (a Donald Trump clone). Fox and a fine cast try their best, but this comedy runs out of steam long before its predictable finale. [PG] ▽●●

For Me and My Gal (1942) 104m. ★½ D: Busby Berkeley. Judy Garland, George Murphy, Gene Kelly, Marta Eggerth, Ben

Blue, Horace (Stephen) McNally, Keenan Wynn, Richard Quine. Music sustains old-hat plot of vaudeville couple determined to play Palace, circa WW1. Kelly's film debut; he and Garland sing title tune and other old favorites. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▽●●

Formula, The (1980) C-117m. ★★ D: John G. Avildsen. George C. Scott, Marlon Brando, Marthe Keller, John Gielgud, G. D. Spradlin, Beatrice Straight, Richard Lynch, John Van Dreelen, Craig T. Nelson. Amazingly matter-of-fact thriller about a cop who investigates a friend's murder and finds him linked to a mysterious plot involving a formula for synthetic fuel. Scott and Brando are always worth watching, but writer-producer Steve Shagan telegraphs all his punches. [R] ▽●●

Formula 51 (2001-British-Canadian) C-91m. ★★½ D: Ronny Yu. Samuel L. Jackson, Robert Carlyle, Emily Mortimer, Rhys Ifans, Meat Loaf, Sean Pertwee, Ricky Tomlinson, Paul Barber. Wild, tongue-in-cheek Hong Kong-style yarn loaded with action and violence. Jackson plays a pharmaceutical whiz who develops the ultimate narcotic, then double-crosses his L.A. connection (Meat Loaf) and flies to Liverpool to make a more lucrative deal there. Needless to say, things don't go smoothly. An indefensible guilty pleasure that offers no intellectual stimulus whatsoever. Mortimer is fun as a gun-toting, motorcycle-riding hit woman. Jackson also coexecutive-produced. Original British title: THE 51ST STATE. Super 35. [R] ▽

For Pete's Sake (1974) C-90m. ★★½ D: Peter Yates. Barbra Streisand, Michael Sarrazin, Estelle Parsons, William Redfield, Molly Picon, Louis Zorich, Vincent Schiavelli, Anne Ramsey. Amiable, feather-weight comedy about devoted wife who tries to raise money for her ambitious cab-driver husband, and gets involved with assorted nuts and underworld types. Streisand is fine in forgettable film. [PG] ▽

For Queen & Country (1988-British) C-105m. ★★★ D: Martin Stellman. Denzel Washington, Dorian Healey, Amanda Redman, Sea Chapman, Bruce Payne. Striking, laced-in-acid contemporary thriller of life in Thatcherite England. Washington is well cast as a former paratrooper who struggles for survival in an atmosphere of racism, poverty, and corruption—and then loses his British citizenship because of an immigration-law technicality. The director also cowrote the screenplay. [R] ▽

Forrest Gump (1994) C-142m. ★★½ D: Robert Zemeckis. Tom Hanks, Robin Wright, Gary Sinise, Sally Field, Mykelti Williamson, Michael Humphreys, Hanna Hall, Haley Joel Osment. A slow-witted boy grows to adulthood, floating through life—like a feather—with only a vague understanding of the tumultuous times he's living through. (He manages to be on hand for virtually every socio-pop-political phenomenon of the formative Baby Boomer decades, from the rise of Elvis to the fall of Nixon.) Either you accept Hanks in this part and go with the movie's serio-comic sense of whimsy, or you don't (we didn't)—but either way it's a long journey, filled with digitized imagery that puts Forrest Gump into a wide variety of backdrops and real-life events. Based on the (more satiric) novel by Winston Groom. Oscar winner for Best Film, Best Actor (Hanks), Director, Film Editing, Visual Effects, and Adapted Screenplay. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

For Richer or Poorer (1997) C-115m. ½ D: Bryan Spicer. Tim Allen, Kirstie Alley, Jay O. Sanders, Michael Lerner, Wayne Knight, Larry Miller, Miguel A. Nunez, Jr., Megan Cavanagh, Carrie Preston, Katie Moore. Crass, filthy-rich New Yorkers Allen and Alley, whose marriage is on the rocks, are forced to take it on the lam when they're accused of tax fraud—and hide out on an Amish farm, where they pretend to be cousins of farmer Sanders. Spoiled and lazy, they're forced to do hard, honest work, and actually come to like it. Predictable in every way, but pleasant enough. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

For Roseanna (1997-British) C-95m. ½ D: Paul Weiland. Jean Reno, Mercedes Ruehl, Polly Walker, Mark Frankel, Giuseppe Cederna, Renato Scarpa. Sweet, well-intentioned film about a man who has promised his wife, who's terminally ill, that she will be buried in their village churchyard cemetery . . . but with only a few vacant plots left, he takes it upon himself to keep the other townspeople healthy! Winning performances and vivid Italian atmosphere help compensate for a script (by veteran TV comedy writer Saul Turteltaub) that strains credibility to the bursting point. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Forsaken, The (2001) C-90m. *½ D: J.S. Cardone. Kerr Smith, Brendan Fehr, Johnathon Schaech, Izabella Miko, Phina Oruche, Simon Rex, Carrie Snodgrass. Straight-arrow Smith drives east from L.A., heading for Miami, but quickly discovers the Southwest has become infested with creepy nocturnal predators, led by Schaech. This vampire film offers no surprises. [R] ▼●

Forsaking All Others (1934) 84m. ½ D: W. S. Van Dyke II. Clark Gable, Joan Crawford, Robert Montgomery, Charles Butterworth, Billie Burke, Frances Drake, Rosalind Russell, Arthur Treacher. Gable, just back from Spain, is about to propose to Crawford but learns she's set to wed flaky Montgomery. Star trio sparkles in this so-romantic comedy, scripted by Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Butterworth is a treat, as always. ▼●●

For Singles Only (1968) C-91m. BOMB D: Arthur Dreifuss. John Saxon, Mary

Ann Mobley, Milton Berle, Lana Wood, Mark Richman, Chris Noel, The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band. Certainly not for those who like good movies. Two girls move into singles apartment where Berle is social director; result is a rape, an attempted suicide, and several songs.

Fort Apache (1948) 127m.  D: John Ford. John Wayne, Henry Fonda, Shirley Temple, Pedro Armendariz, John Agar, Ward Bond, George O'Brien, Victor McLaglen, Anna Lee, Irene Rich, Dick Foran, Guy Kibbee, Mae Marsh, Hank Worden. Fonda is effectively cast against type as stubborn martinet who rubs his own men—as well as neighboring Indians—the wrong way. First of Ford's cavalry trilogy tells its story slowly, deliberately, with time for comedy and telling characterizations. Followed by SHE WORE A YELLOW RIBBON. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

For the First Time (1959) C-97m. ½ D: Rudolph Maté. Mario Lanza, Johanna Von Koszian, Kurt Kasznar, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Hans Sohnker. Lanza is typecast as fiery opera singer who falls in love with beautiful deaf girl in Capri. Not bad, with plenty of music to satisfy Lanza fans; this was his last film. Technirama. ▼●

For the Love of Benji (1977) C-84m.  D: Joe Camp. Benji, Patsy Garrett, Cynthia Smith, Allen Fuzat, Ed Nelson, Peter Bowles, Bridget Armstrong. Moviedom's smartest pooch since Lassie in his second delightful screen adventure, this time scampering through the streets of Athens with secret agents in pursuit, trying to get the formula tattooed on his paw. Fine family entertainment. Followed by OH, HEAVENLY DOG! [G] ▼●

For Those Who Think Young (1964) C-96m.  D: Leslie H. Martinson. James

Darren, Pamela Tiffin, Paul Lynde, Tina Louise, Bob Denver, Robert Middleton, Nancy Sinatra, Claudia Martin, Ellen McRae (Burstyn), Woody Woodbury, Louis Quinn, Sammee Tong, Addison Richards, Mousie Garner, Benny Baker, Anna Lee, Jack La Rue, Allen Jenkins, Robert Armstrong, Lada Edmund, Jr. Great time-capsule cast in a silly time-waster about college high jinks. Notable for taking its title from a Pepsi slogan at the time—making this a milestone in the history of product placement! George Raft and Roger Smith appear unbilled. Techniscope.

Fortress (1993) C-91m. *½ D: Stuart Gordon. Christopher Lambert, Loryn Locklyn, Kurtwood Smith, Lincoln Kilpatrick, Clifton Gonzalez Gonzalez, Jeffrey Combs. Husband and wife flee futuristic society (which forbids them from having a second child) because she is pregnant again. They're captured and sent to a high-tech maximum security prison run by a sadistic warden. (Is there any other kind?) Intriguing premise is sabotaged by weak acting and a weaker script. Incredible international success resulted in a sequel. [R] ▼●●

Fort Saganne (1984-French) C-190m. ½ D: Alain Corneau. Gérard Depardieu, Philippe Noiret, Catherine Deneuve, Michel Duchaussoy, Roger Dumas, Sophie Marceau, Jean-Louis Richard. Handsomely mounted but clichéd and overlong epic detailing the exploits of Charles Saganne, a French officer of modest background who is posted to the Sahara in the years before WWI. Depardieu is quietly impressive, many of the desert sequences are well done, and Philippe Sarde's score adds to the atmosphere. Depiction of Depardieu's affair with journalist Deneuve is especially trite. Technovision. ▼●

Fort Ti (1953) C-73m.  D: William Castle. George Montgomery, Joan Vohs, Irving Bacon, James Seay. Best facet of this oater set during French-Indian war of 1760s is its 3-D gimmickry; otherwise, standard stuff.

Fortune, The (1975) C-88m. ½ D: Mike Nichols. Jack Nicholson, Warren Beatty, Stockard Channing, Scatman Crothers, Florence Stanley, Richard B. Shull. Nicholson and Beatty make like Laurel and Hardy in this uneven 1920s comedy about two bumblers who plan to murder a dizzy heiress to get her money. Worth seeing if only for Nicholson's wonderful comic performance. David Shire's period music is nice, too. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Fortune and Men's Eyes (1971-Canadian) C-102m. ½ D: Harvey Hart. Wendell Burton, Michael Greer, Zooey (David) Hall, Danny Freedman. Homosexuality in prison is the theme; sincere but exploitative, unpleasant. [R] ▼

Fortune Cookie, The (1966) 125m.  D:

Billy Wilder. Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, Ron Rich, Cliff Osmond, Judi West, Lurene Tuttle. Biting Wilder comedy about TV cameraman (Lemmon) injured during football game and shyster lawyer (Matthau) who exaggerates damages for insurance purposes. Matthau's Oscar-winning performance hits home. Scripted by Wilder and partner I.A.L. Diamond. Panavision. ▼●●

Fort Worth (1951) C-80m.  D: Edwin L. Marin. Randolph Scott, David Brian, Phyllis Thaxter, Helena Carter. Scott learns that pen is not mightier than the sword; he's a gunslinger who becomes newspaper editor but can only rid town of outlaws via six-shooter. ●

40 Days and 40 Nights (2002) C-95m. *½ D: Michael Lehmann. Josh Hartnett, Shannyn Sossamon, Vinessa Shaw, Paulo Costanzo, Griffin Dunne, Maggie Gyllenhaal, Michael Maronna, Glenn Fitzgerald, Mary Gross, Stanley Anderson, Adam Trese, Barry Newman. Young stud with an insatiable appetite for women—but no idea how to build a relationship—is so stung by his latest dumping that he decides to give up sex for Lent. Then he meets Miss Right—and can't explain to her why he's unable to consummate their relationship. Inane comedy, full of stupid, obnoxious characters. [R] ▼●

Forty Deuce (1982) C-89m. *½ D: Paul Morrissey. Orson Bean, Kevin Bacon, Mark Keyloun, Harris Laskaway, Tommy Citera. Heavyhanded, poorly directed drama of teenage hustler Bacon attempting to sell runaway to wealthy Bean; complications arise when the boy overdoses on heroin. From an off-Broadway play by Alan Bowne. Second half of film is in widescreen. ●

two days to help him catch Murphy's escaped (and really disturbed) partner. Naturally, they hate each other's guts at first, but... Murphy, in his screen debut, is nothing short of sensational, but so is Nolte in his low-key, raspy way; scene where Murphy terrorizes a red-neck bar is the standout. Written by Roger Spottiswoode, Larry Gross, Steven E. de Souza, and Hill. Sequel: ANOTHER 48HRS. [R]▼●●

49th Parallel (1941-British) 123m. ½ D: Michael Powell. Anton Walbrook, Eric Portman, Leslie Howard, Raymond Massey, Laurence Olivier, Glynis Johns, Niall MacGinnis, Finlay Currie. Taut, exciting WW2 yarn of Nazi servicemen whose U-boat is sunk off the Canadian coast. Top-notch cast, rich suspense and characterizations. Oscar winner for Best Story (Emeric Pressburger); screenplay by Pressburger and Rodney Ackland. U.S. title: THE INVADERS. First released in the U.S. at 107m.▼●●

49 Up (2006-British) C/B&W-135m.  D: Michael Apted. Seventh installment in the unique and remarkable series that began with the TV documentary 7 UP in 1964. Apted revisits most of the young people who first participated in the series and brings us up to date on their lives, which in some cases have taken highly unexpected turns. Several of the interviewees talk about the impact these documentaries have had on their privacy and sense of self. Thoroughly absorbing.▶

42nd Street (1933) 89m. * D: Lloyd Bacon. Warner Baxter, Ruby Keeler, George Brent, Bebe Daniels, Dick Powell, Guy Kibbee, Una Merkel, Ginger Rogers, Ned Sparks, George E. Stone. The definitive backstage musical still has plenty of sass—along with its clichés. Ailing director Baxter puts everything into what may be his final show, then leading lady Daniels twists her ankle! Good thing Ruby Keeler's on hand. Harry Warren-Al Dubin songs include title tune, "Young and Healthy," "You're Getting to Be a Habit With Me," "Shuffle Off to Buffalo." Busby Berkeley's ground-breaking production numbers are sensational. Scripted by Rian James and James Seymour, from Bradford Ropes' story. Adapted for the Broadway stage 50 years later. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

47 Ronin, Part I, The (1941-Japanese) 112m. ½ D: Kenji Mizoguchi. Chojuro Kawarazaki, Yoshizaburo Arashi, Utaemon Ichikawa, Mieko Takamine. Legendary samurai warriors scheme to gain revenge for the death of their leader, who was tricked and forced to commit suicide. Based on a famous Japanese story, and fascinating as both cinema and as propaganda (remember, this was made during WW2). First of Mizoguchi's two-part epic, also known as THE LOYAL 47 RONIN. Several dozen versions of this same story have been filmed in Japan.▼▶

47 Ronin, Part II, The (1942-Japanese) 113m. ½ D: Kenji Mizoguchi. Chojuro Kawarazaki, Yoshizaburo Arashi, Utaemon Ichikawa, Mieko Takamine. The 47 Ronin gain vengeance for their master's death. Together with its predecessor, this was the most impressive Japanese film produced during WW2; the finale is especially stirring and revealing.▼▶

Forty Shades of Blue (2005) C-108m. ½ D: Ira Sachs. Rip Torn, Dina Korzun, Darren Burrows, Paprika Steen, Red West. Longtime girlfriend of a famous but washed-up music producer finds her life shaken up by the arrival of the producer's estranged son. Torn and Korzun give knockout performances in this gem, which should have earned more attention than it got. Sachs' camera pays close attention to nuances of human behavior, and each shot and sequence adds another layer of emotional depth to the story. Almost painful to watch at times, but highly rewarding.▶

43: The Petty Story SEE: Smash-Up Alley 42 Up (1999-British) C/B&W-130m.  D: Michael Apted. Picking up where 35 UP left off, Apted revisits all but three of his lifelong subjects as they settle into middle age. As compelling as ever. Followed by 49 UP.▼▶

40 Year Old Virgin, The (2005) C-116m. ½ D: Judd Apatow. Steve Carell, Catherine Keener, Paul Rudd, Romany Malco, Seth Rogen, Elizabeth Banks, Leslie Mann, Jane Lynch, Nancy Walls, Mo Collins, Cedric Yarbrough, David Koechner. When some rowdy, randy coworkers at an electronics store discover that the nerd in their midst is still a virgin, they make it their mission to coach him to manhood. Meanwhile, he awkwardly begins a relationship with a nice woman (who's got three kids) and doesn't want sex to be a stumbling block. Carell's first starring vehicle, which he cowrote with director Apatow, is funny, but its startlingly raunchy gags clash with the sweet romantic-comedy approach to its love story. Alternate unrated version runs 133m. [R] ▼

For Your Eyes Only (1981-British) C-127m.  D: John Glen. Roger Moore, Carole Bouquet, (Chaim) Topol, Lynn-Holly Johnson, Julian Glover, Jill Bennett, Cassandra Harris, Desmond Llewelyn, Lois Maxwell, Walter Gotell. After years of space-age gadgetry, cartoon villains, female mannequins, and giants with steel teeth came this one-shot return to the old days of Ian Fleming minimalism. No other James Bond film has provoked so much debate among 007 fans (even us); judge for yourself. The chases and stuntwork are spectacular; debuting helmer Glen directed 2nd-unit on some earlier Bonds. Look for Charles Dance as gunman. Panavision. [PG] ▼

For Your Love Only (1976-German)

C-97m.  D: Wolfgang Petersen. Nastassia Kinski, Christian Quadflieg, Judy Winter, Klaus Schwarzkopf. Young student Kinski has an affair with a teacher, then kills the man who tries to blackmail and seduce her. Turgid soap opera. Made for German TV; theatrical release in 1982. ▼

Foul Play (1978) C-116m. ½ D: Colin Higgins. Goldie Hawn, Chevy Chase, Burgess Meredith, Dudley Moore, Rachel Roberts, Eugene Roche, Marilyn Sokol, Billy Barty, Marc Lawrence, Brian Dennehy. Innocent woman (Hawn) gets caught in strange murder plot in San Francisco; no one believes her except detective Chase, who's falling in love with her. Likable stars, good fun, but protracted story, tasteless comedy, and Hitchcock plagiarism detract. Followed by a short-lived TV series. [PG] ▼

Fountain, The (2006) C-95m.  D: Darren Aronofsky. Hugh Jackman, Rachel Weisz, Ellen Burstyn, Cliff Curtis, Mark Margolis, Sean Patrick Thomas, Stephen McHattie, Donna Murphy, Ethan Suplee. Ambitious film about a man (Jackman) in three different time frames—16th-century Spain, the modern day, and the 26th century—who seeks to understand the essence of life. The contemporary research scientist is driven to cure his wife (Weisz), whose life is ebbing away from cancer. Sincere but overwrought new-age drama (mixing science fiction and soap opera) will elicit a wide range of opinion; the ultimate epiphany is the kind of thing that might work in a novel but doesn't play well on-screen. Written by the director. [PG-13] ▼

Fountainhead, The (1949) 114m. ½ D: King Vidor. Gary Cooper, Patricia Neal, Raymond Massey, Kent Smith, Robert Douglas, Henry Hull, Ray Collins, Jerome Cowan. Ambitious but confused version of Ayn Rand philosophic novel, spotlighting an idealistic architect's clash with compromises of society; cast does what it can with the script. ▼

Four Adventures of Reinette and Mirabelle (1986-French) C-99m.  D: Eric Rohmer. Joelle Miquel, Jessica Forde, Philippe Laudembach, Yasmine Haury, Marie Riviere, Beatrice Romand. Typically charming, perceptive Rohmeresque slice of life, chronicling the friendship between country girl Reinette (Miquel) and city girl Mirabelle (Forde), who become roommates in Paris. At its best when focusing on their contrasting viewpoints, and the manner in which their friendship evolves. ▼ reunite when their mother is murdered in Detroit and swear revenge, whatever the consequences. Violent, somewhat overlong action-thriller veers toward melodrama but maintains rooting interest for its rough-and-tumble "heroes" from start to finish. Flanagan is a standout in her few scenes as the boys' good-hearted mother. As widely noted, this plays like an updated urban version of THE SONS OF KATIE ELDER. Super 35. [R] ▼

Four Christmases (2008) C-88m.  D: Seth Gordon. Vince Vaughn, Reese Witherspoon, Robert Duvall, Sissy Spacek, Jon Voight, Jon Favreau, Mary Steenburgen, Dwight Yoakam, Tim McGraw, Kristin Chenoweth, Katy Mixon, Colleen Camp, Peter Billingsley. Unsatisfying holiday comedy involving a couple (Vaughn, Witherspoon) forced to visit each of their divorced parents in one day. Main characters are unusual for this type of fare: they're unmarried, alienated from their families, and don't want kids. Even so, the film is predictable, the finale is illogical, and the stellar cast is wasted. Carol Kane appears unbilled. [PG-13] ▼

4 Clowns (1970) 97m. * D: Robert Youngson. Laurel and Hardy, Buster Keaton, Charley Chase. A must for viewers of all ages: some of the best silent comedy ever. Interesting solo footage of Laurel and Hardy; Keaton's classic SEVEN CHANCES; hilarious sequences with underrated Chase including his best short, LIMOUSINE LOVE. One of compiler Youngson's very best efforts. [G]

Four Daughters (1938) 90m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Claude Rains, Rosemary Lane, Lola Lane, Priscilla Lane, Gale Page, John Garfield, Jeffrey Lynn, Frank McHugh, May Robson, Dick Foran. Believable, beautifully acted soap of small-town life; four young women with musical father Rains have lives altered by four young men. Garfield is superb in first film, matched by fine cast. Followed immediately by DAUGHTERS COURAGEOUS and sequels FOUR WIVES and FOUR MOTHERS. Remade as YOUNG AT HEART. ▼

Four Days in September (1997-Brazilian) C-106m.  D: Bruno Barreto. Alan Arkin, Pedro Cardoso, Fernanda Torres, Luiz Fernando Guimarães, Seltón Mello, Claudia Abreu, Nelson Dantas, Fisher Stevens. Emotion-charged, based-on-fact account of the events surrounding 1969 kidnapping of American ambassador (Arkin) by an idealistic yet diverse group of young Brazilian revolutionaries. All sides are given a voice in this empathetic and well-detailed political drama. [R] ▼

Four Deuces, The (1975) C-87m. ½ D: William H. Bushnell, Jr. Jack Palance, Carol Lynley, Warren Berlinger, Adam Roarke, E. J. Peaker, Gianni Russo. Action comedy/drama involving Prohibition Era

bootleggers. Palance is a gang lord whose mob and casino bear the film's title; Lynley is the moll he loves and fights for. [R] ▼

Four Faces West (1948) 90m. ½ D: Alfred E. Green. Joel McCrea, Frances Dee, Charles Bickford, Joseph Calleia. Quiet Western of fugitive pursued by determined sheriff, with cast giving intelligent interpretation to standard formula. Original, and more appropriate, title: THEY PASSED THIS WAY. ▼

Four Feathers, The (1939-British) C-115m. * D: Zoltan Korda. John Clements, Ralph Richardson, C. Aubrey Smith, June Duprez, Allan Jeayes, Jack Allen, Donald Gray, Clive Baxter. Grand adventure from A. E. W. Mason story of tradition-bound Britisher who must prove he's not a coward by helping army comrades quell Sudan uprising. Smith is just wonderful as tale-spinning army veteran. Screenplay by R. C. Sherriff, Lajos Biro, and Arthur Wimperis. Score by Miklos Rozsa. Original release ran 130m. Previously filmed in 1921 and 1929; remade as STORM OVER THE NILE, as a TVM in 1978 with Beau Bridges, and in 2002. ▼

Four Feathers, The (2002-U.S.-British) C-130m. ½ D: Shekhar Kapur. Heath Ledger, Kate Hudson, Wes Bentley, Djimon Hounsou, Michael Sheen, Lucy Gordon, Rupert Penry-Jones, Nick Holder, Alex Jennings, Tim Pigott-Smith. Well-crafted remake of the A.E.W. Mason story, set in the late 1800s, about a young British soldier who is branded a coward and then has to redeem himself. Ledger is excellent (and credible) in the leading role, and the battle scenes are impressive . . . but the story is confusing at times, the character motivations muddy, and a touch of humor (so memorably supplied in the 1939 version by C. Aubrey Smith) is sorely missed. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Four Flies on Grey Velvet (1971-Italian-French) C-101m.  D: Dario Argento. Michael Brandon, Mimsy Farmer, Bud Spencer, Francine Racette. Unabsorbing psychological murder-mystery with performers who walk through their roles in a very disinterested fashion. Techniscope. [PG]

4 for Texas (1963) C-114m.  D: Robert Aldrich. Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Anita Ekberg, Ursula Andress, Charles Bronson, Victor Buono, Richard Jaeckel, Mike Mazurki, Jack Elam, The Three Stooges, Yaphet Kotto. Nonsensical Sinatra-Martin romp set in the old West, with their antics only outdone by Buono as villainous banker. Ekberg and Andress both outstanding scenery attractions. ▼

Four Friends (1981) C-115m.  D: Arthur Penn. Craig Wasson, Jodi Thelen, Jim Metzler, Michael Huddleston, Reed Birney, James Leo Herlihy, Glenna Headly, Mercedes Ruehl. A journey of self-discovery for an idealistic young Yugoslavian immigrant (Wasson), who lives through the turbulent American 1960s. Charming, coy, powerful, sentimental, and sometimes astonishingly old-fashioned—a real mixed bag, with many rewards and not a few flaws. Largely autobiographical script by Steve Tesich. [R] ▼

Four Girls in Town (1956) C-85m.  D: Jack Sher. George Nader, Julie Adams, Gia Scala, Marianne Cook (Koch), Elsa Martinelli, Sydney Chaplin, Grant Williams, John Gavin. Clichéd but absorbing account of four contrasting would-be stars coming to Hollywood seeking fame and romance; excellent musical score by Alex North. CinemaScope.

Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, The (1921) 131m.  D: Rex Ingram. Rudolph Valentino, Alice Terry, Alan Hale, Jean Hersholt, Nigel de Brulier, Wallace Beery. Famous silent spectacle cemented Valentino's popularity via legendary tango scene, but aside from that it's a relentlessly grim anti-war story of cousins who end up fighting on opposite sides during WW1. Extremely well made, with imagery that still staggers and message that cannot be overlooked. Based on the Blasco Ibanez novel. Remade in 1962. ▼

Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse (1962) C-153m. ½ D: Vincent Minnelli. Glenn Ford, Ingrid Thulin, Charles Boyer, Lee J. Cobb, Paul Henreid, Paul Lukas, Yvette Mimieux, Karl Boehm. Glossy, padded trash, losing all sense of reality in its telling of a family whose members fight on opposite sides during WW2. Loose remake of the 1921 silent film based on a novel by Vincent Blasco Ibanez. Angela Lansbury dubbed in Thulin's lines. CinemaScope. ▼

Four Hundred Blows, The (1959-French) 99m. * D: François Truffaut. Jean-Pierre L aud, Patrick Auffay, Claire Maurier, Albert Remy, Jeanne Moreau, Jean-Claude Brialy, Jacques Demy, Fran ois Truffaut. Captivating study of Parisian youth who turns to life of small-time crime as a reaction to derelict parents. First of Truffaut's autobiographical Antoine Doinel series; followed by the "Antoine et Colette" episode in LOVE AT TWENTY. Dyaliscope. ▼

Four Jacks and a Jill (1942) 68m.  D: Jack Hively. Ray Bolger, Desi Arnaz, Anne Shirley, June Havoc, Eddie Foy, Jr., Jack Durant, Henry Daniell, Fritz Feld. Struggling hooper/pianist Bolger and his musician pals take in singing waif Shirley in this lackluster musical. Bolger's dancing is always a pleasure to watch, but Arnaz is wasted as an exiled king turned taxi driver. Remake of STREET GIRL and THAT GIRL FROM PARIS. ▼

Four Jills in a Jeep (1944) 89m. ½ D:

William A. Seiter. Kay Francis, Carole Landis, Martha Raye, Mitzi Mayfair, Phil Silvers, Dick Haymes, Jimmy Dorsey and His Orchestra; guest stars Betty Grable, Alice Faye, Carmen Miranda, George Jessel. Contrived wartime entertainment with four leading ladies reenacting their actual experiences entertaining soldiers overseas (which Landis turned into a popular book of the same name). Some good musical moments but nothing to shout about. ▼

Four Kinds of Love SEE: Bambole!

4 Little Girls (1997) C-102m. * D: Spike Lee. Shattering documentary about the fatal bombing of a black Birmingham, Alabama church on September 15, 1963, which not only killed four innocent children but galvanized the entire nation and accelerated the civil rights movement. Remembering its young (ages 11 to 14) victims are families, now-grown-up friends, ministers, reporters, political activists, and the lawyer who, years later, helped convict the key perpetrator. One of filmmaker Lee's finest hours. Produced for HBO but also given theatrical release. ▼

Four Men and a Prayer (1938) 85m.  D: John Ford. Loretta Young, Richard Greene, George Sanders, David Niven, C. Aubrey Smith, William Henry, J. Edward Bromberg, Alan Hale, Reginald Denny, John Carradine. Compelling story of four brothers determined to unravel mystery behind their father's murder; handsome, well-paced production. Remade as FURY AT FURNACE CREEK. ▼

4 Months, 3 Weeks and 2 Days (2007-Romanian) C-113m. ½ D: Cristian Mungiu. Anamaria Marinca, Laura Vasiliu, Vlad Ivanov, Alex Potocean, Ioan Sapdaru, Teo Corban, Tania Popa. In totalitarian Romania, 1987, a student agrees to help her roommate obtain an illegal abortion, never suspecting that it will turn into an emotional ordeal, as much for her as for her friend. Told in a series of long, unbroken takes with a fly-on-the-wall camera, this forceful film illustrates a society's moral decay, as well as one woman's awakening to reality. Its matter-of-fact tone makes it all the more devastating. Written by the director. Winner of the Palme d'Or at the Cannes Film Festival. Super 35. ▼

Four Mothers (1941) 86m. ½ D: William Keighley. Priscilla Lane, Rosemary Lane, Lola Lane, Gale Page, Claude Rains, Jeffrey Lynn, May Robson, Eddie Albert, Frank McHugh, Dick Foran. FOUR DAUGHTERS formula wearing thin in soapy tale of McHugh going bankrupt.

Four Musketeers, The (1975) C-108m.  D: Richard Lester. Oliver Reed, Raquel Welch, Richard Chamberlain, Frank Finlay, Michael York, Christopher Lee, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Geraldine Chaplin, Simon Ward, Faye Dunaway, Charlton Heston.

Second half of Lester's irreverent but amusing approach to Dumas with less emphasis on slapstick this time around. Rich cast in top form. Filmed in 1973, at the same time as THE THREE MUSKETEERS. Followed by THE RETURN OF THE MUSKETEERS. [R]▼●●

Four Nights of a Dreamer (1971-French) C-83m.  D: Robert Bresson. Isabelle Weingarten, Guillaume des Forêts, Maurice Monnoyer, Jérôme Massart, Lidia Biondi. Slow-moving but beautifully filmed adaptation of Dostoyevsky's White Nights, updated to modern Paris. A painter meets a girl on a bridge as she's about to commit suicide and falls in love with her over the next few nights; then the lover who abandoned her returns. Possessed of Bresson's usual lyrical qualities, the film also contains an unexpected sense of humor and romance.

Four Poster, The (1952) 103m. ½ D: Irving Reis. Rex Harrison, Lilli Palmer. Jan de Hartog play is tour de force for stars who enact various phases of married couple's life; warm, witty script; superb performances enhanced by ingenious animated interludes by UPA studio. Later became the stage musical I Do! I Do!

Four Rooms (1995) C-98m. BOMB D: Alison Anders, Alexandre Rockwell, Robert Rodriguez, Quentin Tarantino. Tim Roth, Antonio Banderas, Jennifer Beals, Paul Calderon, Sammi Davis, Amanda de Cadenet, Valeria Golino, Kathy Griffin, Marc Lawrence, Madonna, David Proval, Ione Skye, Quentin Tarantino, Lili Taylor, Marisa Tomei, Tamlyn Tomita, Alicia Witt, Lana McKissack, Danny Verduzco, Salma Hayek. What a cast . . . what a waste! Embarrassingly awful compilation consisting of four short films, with the sole point of interest being which one is the worst. Set in an L.A. hotel on New Year's Eve, and linked by the participation of Ted the Bellhop (Roth). Bruce Willis appears unbilled in the final episode, by Tarantino. [R]▼●●

Four's a Crowd (1938) 91m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Rosalind Russell, Patric Knowles, Hugh Herbert, Lana Turner. Lightheaded romance in which everyone loves another; straight comedy's a switch for Flynn. Pleasant. ●

Four Seasons, The (1981) C-107m.  D: Alan Alda. Alan Alda, Carol Burnett, Len Cariou, Sandy Dennis, Rita Moreno, Jack Weston, Bess Armstrong. Four stages of friendship among three middle-aged couples who vacation together. As comedy it scores, with warmly winning cast, but like its main character, it professes to discuss serious issues while pulling back after just touching the surface. Alda scripted, made feature directing debut; later a TV series. [PG]▼●●

Fourteen Hours (1951) 92m.  D: Henry Hathaway. Paul Douglas, Richard Basehart, Barbara Bel Geddes, Debra Paget, Agnes

Moorehead, Robert Keith, Howard da Silva, Jeffrey Hunter, Martin Gabel, Grace Kelly, Jeff Corey. Well-made suspense drama about a man threatening to jump off the ledge of a building, told in semidocumentary fashion. Look for Harvey Lembeck and Ossie Davis as cabbies, Joyce Van Patten as Paget's girlfriend. Grace Kelly's film debut. ●

1492: Conquest of Paradise (1992-U.S.-British-French-Spanish) C-145m.  D: Ridley Scott. Gérard Depardieu, Sigourney Weaver, Armand Assante, Frank Langella, Loren Dean, Angela Molina, Fernando Rey, Michael Wincott, Tchékya Karyo. The second of 1992's Christopher Columbus epics, this effort is beautifully mounted, but a long haul in steerage. The burden falls on Depardieu as the famed explorer, a French actor cast as an Italian working for Spain in an English-language movie—and an actor who speaks English like Bela Lugosi reading from cue cards. Might have been better had the action aped director Scott's finale to THELMA & LOUISE, by having Columbus and crew sail off the edge of the world. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

1408 (2007) C-104m.  D: Mikael Håfs-tröm. John Cusack, Samuel L. Jackson, Mary McCormack, Tony Shalhoub, Len Cariou, Isiah Whitlock, Jr., Jasmine Jessica Anthony, Kevin Dobson. There have been 56 deaths, natural and otherwise, in the title room, located in a Kafkaesque N.Y.C. hotel-from-hell. Intrepid occult writer Cusack is determined to spend the night there. Genuinely scary chiller, nicely paced with clever touches, brings new meaning to the Carpenters' song "We've Only Just Begun." Based on a Stephen King short story. Unrated director's cut runs 112m. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Fourth Man, The (1983-Dutch) C-104m. ½ D: Paul Verhoeven. Jeroen Krabbé, Renee Soutendijk, Thom Hoffman, Dolf De Vries, Geert De Jong. Sexy blonde hairdresser Soutendijk may or may not have murdered three husbands but definitely does screw up the mind of gay writer Krabbé when he tries to find out. Stylish dream-vs.-reality black comedy deserved its art-house success; flashy direction, eroticism to spare. ▼●●

Fourth Protocol, The (1987-British) C-119m. ½ D: John Mackenzie. Michael Caine, Pierce Brosnan, Joanna Cassidy, Ned Beatty, Betsy Brantley, Peter Cartwright, David Conville, Matt Frewer, Ray McAnally, Ian Richardson. Pretty good spy thriller adapted by Frederick Forsyth from his best-selling novel. Caine plays a British spy who's assigned to foil a Russian plot that would destroy relations between the U.S. and England by setting off a nuclear bomb near an American air base in the U.K. Brosnan does well as a Russian agent. J-D-C Scope. [R]▼●●

Fourth War, The (1990) C-91m. ½ D:

John Frankenheimer. Roy Scheider, Jürgen Prochnow, Tim Reid, Harry Dean Stanton, Lara Harris, Dale Dye. Well-done but ever-so-familiar Cold War thriller in which an American colonel (Scheider) and his Soviet counterpart (Prochnow) engage in a private, potentially disastrous war. Best for fans of the genre. Stanton looks very out of place as Scheider's commanding general. [R]▼●

Four Weddings and a Funeral (1994-British) C-117m.  D: Mike Newell. Hugh Grant, Andie MacDowell, Kristin Scott Thomas, Simon Callow, Rowan Atkinson, James Fleet, John Hannah, Charlotte Coleman, David Bower, Corin Redgrave, Kenneth Griffiths, Jeremy Kemp, Rosalie Crutchley. Delightful contemporary comedy about a young man who can't sustain a relationship, while all his friends seem to be getting married. Then he hits it off with another wedding guest, and the plot thickens. Fine ensemble, headed by the engaging Grant, keep this buoyant under Newell's sure-handed direction. Richard Curtis' screenplay may not bear close scrutiny (that final conversation really seems out of place), but it's certainly fun. [R]▼●●

Four Wives (1939) 110m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Claude Rains, Eddie Albert, Priscilla Lane, Rosemary Lane, Lola Lane, Gale Page, John Garfield, May Robson, Frank McHugh, Jeffrey Lynn. Sentimental but well-acted sequel to FOUR DAUGHTERS, further chronicling the lives and loves of the title quartet. Garfield appears briefly in flashback. Max Steiner's score includes his Symphonie Moderne.

Fox, The (1968) C-110m.  D: Mark Rydell. Sandy Dennis, Keir Dullea, Anne Heywood, Glyn Morris. Nicely crafted tale of lesbians Dennis and Heywood, and what happens when intruder Dullea happens among them. Scripted by Lewis John Carlino and Howard Koch; based on a D.H. Lawrence novella. Filmed in Canada.

Fox and His Friends (1975-German) C-123m. * D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Rainer Werner Fassbinder, Peter Chatel, Karlheinz Böhm, Adrian Hoven, Ulla Jacobsson. Compassionate, politically astute melodrama by German wunderkind Fassbinder about gay lower-class carnival performer winning lottery fortune only to have his upper-class lover exploit him. Fassbinder is brilliant in title role. Aka FIST RIGHT OF FREEDOM. ▼●

Fox and the Hound, The (1981) C-83m.  D: Art Stevens, Ted Berman, Richard Rich. Voices of Mickey Rooney, Kurt Russell, Pearl Bailey, Jack Albertson, Sandy Duncan, Jeanette Nolan, Pat Buttram, John Fiedler, John McIntire, Paul Winchell, Corey Feldman. Charming Disney animated feature about the childhood friendship between two natural enemies, a fox cub and a hound pup; as they grow older their relationship is put to the test by their emerging instincts. Warm and brimming with personable characters, this one approaches the old Disney magic at times. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [G]▼●

Foxes (1980) C-106m. ½ D: Adrian Lyne. Jodie Foster, Cherie Currie, Marilyn Kagan, Kandice Stroth, Scott Baio, Sally Kellerman, Randy Quaid, Lois Smith, Laura Dern. Four teenaged girls try coping with the standard non-Our Town problems brought by growing up in San Fernando Valley. Capable cast; apparently sincere intentions undermined by choppy storyline that just isn't compelling enough. [R]▼●●

Foxes of Harrow, The (1947) 117m. ½ D: John M. Stahl. Rex Harrison, Maureen O'Hara, Richard Haydn, Victor McLaglen, Vanessa Brown, Patricia Medina, Gene Lockhart. Lavish but lumbering tale of philanderer breaking up his marriage to seek affluence and fame in New Orleans in 1820. Pretty stale despite the trimmings.

Foxfire (1996) C-102m. *½ D: Annette Haywood-Carter. Hedy Burress, Angelina Jolie, Jenny Lewis, Jenny Shimizu, Sarah Rosenberg, Peter Facinelli, Dash Mihok, Cathy Moriarty, Richard Beymer, John Diehl. Knee-deep adaptation of Joyce Carol Oates' novel about four high school girls who form a gang when an enigmatic female drifter comes to town. The cast tries hard but they're done in by a heavy-handed script; plays like an R-rated After School Special. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Foxtrap (1986-U.S.-Italian) C-88m. *½ D: Fred Williamson. Fred Williamson, Chris Connelly, Arlene Golonka, Donna Owen, Beatrice Palme, Cleo Sebastian, Lela Rochon. Low-budget actioner of Williamson hired to bring runaway Owen back home from Europe to her family. Little more than a fashion show by director Williamson spotlighting his favorite actor: Williamson. [R]▼

Foxtrot (1976-Mexican-Swiss) C-91m.  D: Arturo Ripstein. Peter O'Toole, Charlotte Rampling, Max von Sydow, Jorge Luke, Helen Rojo, Claudio Brook. O'Toole and his wife flee Rumania in the late 1930s and retreat to an island paradise to isolate themselves from a world about to erupt into war. Shallow, predictable drama; filmed in Mexico. Alternate version with additional sex footage titled THE OTHER SIDE OF PARADISE. [R]▼

Foxy Brown (1974) C-94m. ½ D: Jack Hill. Pam Grier, Peter Brown, Terry Carter, Kathryn Loder. Violence and little else in tale of nurse Grier and her vendetta against drug ring that killed her lover. [R]▼●●

Stamberg, Joe Spano. Hopkins plays a cold, calculating man who shoots his wife after he discovers she's been sleeping with an L.A. police lieutenant. But there is no concrete evidence, which makes the case an unexpected challenge for assistant D.A. Gosling, who's just about to move on to a cushy job at a high-end law firm. Decent thriller has some surprises up its sleeve but takes a long time to lay them all out. Super 35. [R]◆

Fra Diavolo SEE: Devil's Brother, The Fragment of Fear (1971-British) C-96m.  D: Richard C. Sarafian. David Hemmings, Gayle Hunnicutt, Flora Robson, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Daniel Massey, Roland Culver, Adolfo Celi, Mona Washbourne. Hemmings is good in disappointing murder mystery that begins well, then falls apart. Photographed by the great Oswald Morris. [PG]

Frailty (2002) C-99m.  D: Bill Paxton. Bill Paxton, Matthew McConaughey, Powers Boothe, Matt O'Leary, Luke Askew, Jeremy Sumpter, Derk Cheetwood, Melissa Crider. A Texas widower tells his two young sons that he has had a vision: they have been chosen to destroy demons who are walking the earth in human form. His boys are then forced to witness—and participate in—a brutal series of axe murders. Story is told in flashback by Paxton's now grown-up son (McConaughey) to FBI agent Boothe. Twisty mood piece is well crafted by first-time director Paxton, but difficult to digest—especially for a parent. [R]◆

Framed (1947) 82m.  D: Richard Wallace. Glenn Ford, Janis Carter, Barry Sullivan, Edgar Buchanan, Karen Morley. Rootless patsy Ford falls for scheming Carter but is kept in the dark as she hatches a robbery plan with banker Sullivan. Not especially stylish but efficient noir-ish melodrama.

Framed (1975) C-106m. ½ D: Phil Karlson. Joe Don Baker, Conny Van Dyke, Gabriel Dell, John Marley, Brock Peters, Roy Jenson. Railroaded to jail, Baker vows revenge on the corrupt cops who put him there. The writer, director, and star of WALKING TALL, old hands at this kind of action melodrama, make the most of the situation. [R]◆

Frances (1982) C-140m. ½ D: Graeme Clifford. Jessica Lange, Kim Stanley, Sam Shepard, Bart Burns, Jeffrey DeMunn, Jordan Charnay, Lane Smith, Anjelica Huston. Biography of 1930s movie star Frances Farmer—who wound up in a barbaric insane asylum—chronicles her tragic life in some detail, but doesn't help us understand the reasons for her self-destructive tendencies. Well crafted but cold and depressing, despite impressive performances by Lange and Stanley, as Frances' crazed mother. Her story is also told in the TVM, WILL THERE REALLY BE A MORN-

ING? and in the independent feature COMMITTED. Look for Kevin Costner, who has one line in an alley. [R]◆◆

Francesco (1989-Italian-German) C-105m. BOMB D: Liliانا Cavani. Mickey Rourke, Helena Bonham Carter, Andrea Ferreol, Hans Zischler, Mario Adorf, Paolo Bonacelli. Laughably inept historical drama with a miscast Rourke muttering his way through his role as Francis of Assisi(!), son of a rich Italian merchant, who undergoes a spiritual rebirth. The narrative is often confusing, the direction is slipshod, and the result is a real snooze. [PG-13]◆◆

Francis (The Talking Mule) series SEE: Leonard Maltin's Classic Movie Guide

Francis of Assisi (1961) C-111m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Bradford Dillman, Dolores Hart, Stuart Whitman, Cecil Kellaway, Finlay Currie, Pedro Armendariz. Lavish religious epic dealing with story of founder of school of monks with sympathetic performance by Dillman. Good cast and atmosphere. Script tends to sag at wrong moments. CinemaScope.◆

Frank and Ollie (1995) C-89m.  D: Theodore Thomas. Charming documentary about Frank Thomas and Ollie Johnston, friends since the early 1930s, next-door neighbors, and longtime animators at the Walt Disney studio, where they created some of the most memorable and expressive characters ever brought to life . . . from Thumper in BAMBI to Baloo and Mowgli in THE JUNGLE BOOK. Affectionate (and informative) portrait by Thomas's son and daughter-in-law, Kuniko Okubo. [PG]◆

Frankenhooker (1990) C-90m. ½ D: Frank Henenlotter. James Lorinz, Patty Mullen, Charlotte Helmkamp, Shirley Stoler, Louise Lasser. Grim, gory, and seldom funny horror comedy about a novice mad scientist (Lorinz) who needs body parts to sew onto the severed head he has on ice back at the lab. When he sells N.Y.C. 42nd Street hookers a deadly "supercrack," they explode—giving him all the spare limbs and organs he desires. Offensive, cheap, and ugly—even by splatter genre standards.◆◆

Frankenstein (1931) 70m. ½ D: James Whale. Colin Clive, Mae Clarke, Boris Karloff, John Boles, Edward Van Sloan, Dwight Frye, Frederick Kerr, Lionel Belmore. Definitive monster movie, with Clive as the ultimate mad scientist, creating a man-made being (Karloff) but inadvertently giving him a criminal brain. It's creaky at times, and cries for a music score, but it's still impressive . . . as is Karloff's performance in the role that made him a star. Long-censored footage, restored in 1987, enhances the impact of several key scenes, including the drowning of a little girl. Based on Mary Shelley's novel. Followed by BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN.◆◆

Frankenstein (1994) SEE: Mary Shelley's Frankenstein

Frankenstein and the Monster From Hell (1974-British) C-93m.  D: Terence Fisher. Peter Cushing, Shane Briant, Madeline Smith, Dave Prowse, John Stratton. Guess who runs a hospital for the criminally insane? Hammer's final entry in their Frankenstein cycle is amusing if you catch it in the right frame of mind. [R] ▼

Frankenstein Conquers the World (1965-Japanese) C-87m.  D: Ishiro Honda. Nick Adams, Tadao Takashima, Kumi Mizuno. Grade-C horror film, with Adams a scientist in Tokyo trying to combat giant, newly grown Frankenstein monster terrorizing the countryside; poor special effects. Toho-scope. ▼

Frankenstein Created Woman (1967-British) C-92m.  D: Terence Fisher. Peter Cushing, Susan Denberg, Robert Morris, Barry Warren, Thorley Walters, Duncan Lamont. Sequel to EVIL OF FRANKSTEIN finds Dr. Frankenstein (Cushing) trying to put the soul of recently (and wrongly) executed man into body of scarred lover (Denberg). Everything goes wrong, including script. Followed by FRANKSTEIN MUST BE DESTROYED! ▼

Frankenstein '88 SEE Vindicator, The Frankenstein Island (1981) C-89m. BOMB D: Jerry Warren. John Carradine, Andrew Duggan, Cameron Mitchell, Steve Brodie, Robert Clarke, Katherine Victor. Low-budget filmmaker Warren's first feature in 15 years reunites some of his old hands (like Clarke and Victor) for a sort of remake of TEENAGE ZOMBIES, with a monster who only shows up at the end, and who may or may not be Frankenstein! [PG] ▼

Frankenstein Meets the Space Monster (1965) 78m. BOMB D: Robert Gaffney. James Karen, David Kerman, Nancy Marshall, Marilyn Hanold. Low-grade horror entry dealing with interplanetary robot that goes berserk. Bizarre, Flash Gordon-esque aliens also involved. Has gained a peculiar cult reputation. Aka MARS INVADES PUERTO RICO. ▼

Frankenstein Meets the Wolf Man (1943) 72m.  D: Roy William Neill. Lon Chaney, Jr., Patric Knowles, Ilona Massey, Bela Lugosi, Maria Ouspenskaya, Lionel Atwill, Dennis Hoey, Rex Evans, Dwight Frye. Sequel to both THE GHOST OF FRANKENSTEIN and THE WOLF MAN finds werewolf Chaney seeking Dr. Frankenstein, hoping to be put out of his misery. He finds the scientist is dead—but the Monster isn't. Slick, atmospheric, fast-paced fun; Lugosi's only stint as the Monster. Followed by HOUSE OF FRANKENSTEIN. ▼

Frankenstein Must Be Destroyed! (1969-British) C-101m. ½ D: Terence Fisher. Peter Cushing, Simon Ward, Veronica Carlson, Freddie Jones. Cushing is more cold-blooded here than usual, as he forces young couple to help his brain transplant experiments. One of the best in Hammer series. Followed by THE HORROR OF FRANKENSTEIN. [M/PG] ▼

Frankenstein—1970 (1958) 83m. BOMB D: Howard W. Koch. Boris Karloff, Tom Duggan, Jana Lund, Donald Barry. As last of the Frankenstein scientists, Karloff uses money from TV production shooting in his castle to revive original monster with atomic energy. Film is slow, monster unexciting, and Karloff hammy. CinemaScope. ▼

Frankenstein's Daughter (1959) 85m. BOMB D: Richard Cünha. John Ashley, Sandra Knight, Donald Murphy, Sally Todd, Harold Lloyd, Jr. Low-grade descendant of famed monster series with a new female horror-robot being created with typical results; tinsel sets. ▼

Frankenstein Unbound (1990) C-85m. *½ D: Roger Corman. John Hurt, Raul Julia, Bridget Fonda, Nick Brimble, Catherine Rabett, Jason Patric, Michael Hutchence, Catherine Corman, Mickey Knox, voice of Terri Treas. Thoroughly expendable horror outing casts Hurt as a 21st-century scientist, not really mad, whose implosion experiments zap him back to the days of Doc Frankenstein (Julia) and Mary Shelley (Fonda). Capable cast goes slumming in schlockmeister Corman's first directorial effort in nearly 20 years. Hutchence, here Percy Shelley, was lead singer of Australian rock band INXS. ▼

Frankie and Johnny (1966) C-87m. ½ D: Frederick de Cordova. Elvis Presley, Donna Douglas, Harry Morgan, Sue Ane Langdon, Nancy Kovack. Saloon song expanded into feature film story for Elvis. Riverboat setting, cohort Morgan, several pretty starlets, and tuneful songs make this a satisfactory time-filler. ▼

Frankie and Johnny (1991) C-118m.  D: Garry Marshall. Al Pacino, Michelle Pfeiffer, Hector Elizondo, Nathan Lane, Kate Nelligan, Jane Morris, Greg Lewis, Al Fann, K Callan, Phil Leeds. Winning (if overlong) Hollywoodization of Terrence McNally's Off-Broadway play Frankie and Johnny in the Clair de Lune. Pacino (never more appealing) plays a man recently released from prison who gets a job as a short-order cook and falls in love with a waitress who tries to keep all social contact at arm's length. Pfeiffer manages to overcome her miscasting with an equally affecting performance. A moving ode to loneliness. Screenplay by the playwright. [R] ▼

Clair de Lune to help restore her self-esteem as an actress and possibly bring the two of them closer together. Forget reality TV: here's a winning, perceptive, truth-is-stranger-than-fiction story, filmed documentary-style, about people worth getting to know. A number of TV and show-business notables play themselves. [R]●

Frankie Starlight (1995-U.S.-Irish) C-101m.  D: Michael Lindsay-Hogg. Matt Dillon, Anne Parillaud, Gabriel Byrne, Rudi Davies, Corban Walker, Alan Pentony, Georgina Cates. Engagingly offbeat drama, the tale of an Irish dwarf (a man imprisoned in a child's body) who writes a revealing, autobiographical novel in which he describes his youth; his mother (Parillaud), a WW2 refugee from France; and the two men (Byrne and Dillon) who love her and become his role models. A gentle, flavorful film that moves seamlessly from the past to the present. [R]▼●

Frank McKlusky, C.I. (2002) C-82m. BOMB D: Arlene Sanford. Dave Sheridan, Randy Quaid, Enrico Colantoni, Kevin Pollak, Orson Bean, Cameron Richardson, Andy Richter, Tracy Morgan, Joanie Laurer, Dolly Parton, George Lopez. Son of a daredevil grows up hyper-safety conscious, becoming a claims investigator for an insurance company. Crude, clumsy comedy barely got theatrical release. Many cameos include Scott Baio, Emmanuel Lewis, Gary Owens, Lou Ferrigno. [PG-13]▼●

Frantic (1958-French) SEE: Elevator to the Gallows

Frantic (1988) C-120m. ½ D: Roman Polanski. Harrison Ford, Emmanuelle Seigner, Betty Buckley, John Mahoney, Jimmie Ray Weeks, Yorgo Voyagis, David Huddleston, Gerard Klein. American doctor is drawn into espionage, and the underworld, when his wife disappears on the first day of their trip to Paris. Carefully controlled suspense thriller never really cuts loose but keeps its grip thanks to Ford's believable performance. [R]▼●

Fraternity Row (1977) C-101m.  D: Thomas J. Tobin. Peter Fox, Gregory Harrison, Scott Newman, Nancy Morgan, Robert Emhardt, Wendy Phillips. Well-done drama of campus life at exclusive Eastern college, 1954. Writer-producer Charles Gary Allison used USC students and crew, got professional Hollywood advice for polished look at tragic, fact-based, fraternity hazing. Cliff Robertson narrates, Don McLean did original score. Costar Newman is the late son of Paul Newman. [PG]

dled with a nerdy "brother" on a pleasure trip to Palm Springs, bet a rival they can be the first to score with an aloof, beautiful blond. Less strident, and thus less offensive, than many of its ilk, but still nothing to enrich our moviegoing heritage. [R]▼●

Fraulein Doktor (1969-Italian-Yugoslavian) C-102m.  D: Alberto Lattuada. Suzy Kendall, Kenneth More, Capucine, James Booth, Alexander Knox, Nigel Green, Giancarlo Giannini. Big cast and budget in rarely seen European antiwar film centering on career of real-life double-agent during WW1. Some of the battle sequences impressive. Same story has been filmed many times before, in Hollywood as STAMBOUL QUEST and in France as MADEMOISELLE DOCTEUR. [M]

Freaked (1993) C-79m.  D: Alex Winter, Tom Stern. Alex Winter, Megan Ward, Michael Stoyanov, Randy Quaid, Mr. T, Brooke Shields. Bratty movie star and entourage fall into the hands of mad circus owner who mutates them and adds them to his collection of freaks. Wildly inventive makeup and, well, freakish ideas are undercut by an in-your-face directorial style that hammers home every joke. It would make a terrific short. Winter's BILL & TED compatriot Keanu Reeves appears unbilled as Dog Boy. [R]▼●●

Freakmaker SEE: Mutations, The
Freaks (1932) 64m. ½ D: Tod Browning. Wallace Ford, Olga Baclanova, Leila Hyams, Harry Earles, Roscoe Ates, Johnny Eck, Daisy and Violet Hilton, Prince Randian, Zip and Pip, Schlitzie. A unique movie about a traveling sideshow and the camaraderie of its unusual performers, goaded to vengeance by cruel trapeze star Baclanova. Horror-film master Tod Browning gathered an incredible cast of real-life sideshow freaks for this bizarre and fascinating film. Severely cut in U.S. during release and banned in the U.K. for 30 years, some reissue prints are missing brief epilogue; aka NATURE'S MISTAKES. ▼●●

Freaky Friday (1977) C-97m.  D: Gary Nelson. Barbara Harris, Jodie Foster, John Astin, Patsy Kelly, Dick Van Patten, Sorrell Booke, Marie Windsor, Charlene Tilton. Harris and Foster shine as mother and daughter who magically switch personalities for a day; their performances make this exceptional Disney fare, even though Mary Rodgers' script winds up with formula slapstick chase. Same premise was the basis of the 1948 movie VICE VERSA and several later Hollywood comedies (including LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON and the 1988 VICE VERSA). Remade in 2003 and for TV in 1995. [G] ▼●●

tertaining, souped-up remake of the 1977 Disney comedy about a stressed-out mother and her teenage daughter, who magically switch bodies and have to somehow cope with their new identities. Good fun, with top-notch performances by Curtis and Lohan as the mixed-up duo. [PG] ▼

Fred Claus (2007) C-115m. *½ D: David Dobkin. Vince Vaughn, Paul Giamatti, John Michael Higgins, Miranda Richardson, Rachel Weisz, Kathy Bates, Trevor Peacock, Chris "Ludacris" Bridges, Kevin Spacey, Elizabeth Banks, Allan Corduner. Ho, ho, ho? No, no, no. Tepid comedy about a motor-mouth Chicago hustler (Vaughn) who's forced to borrow a sizable sum from his much more successful younger brother—Santa Claus (Giamatti). Laughs aren't exactly plentiful as the ne'er-do-well older sibling pays off the loan (and, of course, becomes a much better person) while working alongside elves at the North Pole. It doesn't help that the special effects are strikingly shoddy. Super 35. [PG] ●

Freddie as F.R.O.7 (1992-British) C-90m.  D: Jon Acevski. Voices of Ben Kingsley, Jenny Agutter, Brian Blessed, Nigel Hawthorne, Michael Hordern, Edmund Kingsley, Phyllis Logan, Victor Maddern, Jonathan Pryce, Prunella Scales, Billie Whitelaw. If James Bond was green, and animated, he might have turned out like Freddie. This toon saga of a secret agent frog is lively, but often difficult to follow. Reedited with James Earl Jones narration and retitled FREDDIE THE FROG. [PG] ▼

Freddie the Frog SEE: Freddie as F.R.O.7
Freddy Got Fingered (2001) C-87m. BOMB D: Tom Green. Tom Green, Rip Torn, Marisa Coughlan, Eddie Kaye Thomas, Harland Williams, Stephen Tobolowsky, Anthony Michael Hall, Julie Hagerty, Drew Barrymore. Instantly notorious word-of-mouth debacle became the poster child for all that's wrong with movie comedy. Next to unemployable at 28, but with vague hopes of becoming a cartoonist, live-at-home Green leaves for California to seek success and, hopefully, romance (which he finds with a wheelchair-bound simpleton who lives only to give him oral sex). Gags include the maiming of an innocent child and a newborn spun around in the air by its umbilical cord—compounded by the almost unimaginable ineptitude with which they're executed. [R] ▼

Freddy's Dead: The Final Nightmare (1991) C-90m. *½ D: Rachel Talalay. Robert Englund, Lisa Zane, Shon Greenblatt, Leslie Deane, Ricky Dean Logan, Breckin Meyer, Yaphet Kotto, Elinor Donahue. Don't believe the title. This NIGHTMARE ON ELM STREET entry has Freddy Krueger trying to break out of the town where he's been slaughtering teens in their dreams. Now the stage is set for the end-all Freddy showdown—a 10-minute 3-

D finale that didn't even look good in theaters. A total yawner. Cameos by Alice Cooper, Roseanne and Tom Arnold, and Johnny Depp, whose film debut was the first NIGHTMARE. Followed by WES CRAVEN'S NEW NIGHTMARE. [R] ▼ ●

Freddy Vs. Jason (2003) C-97m.  D: Ronny Yu. Robert Englund, Ken Kirzinger, Monica Keena, Jason Ritter, Kelly Rowland, Christopher George Marquette, Brendan Fletcher. Freddy Krueger (Englund), from the NIGHTMARE ON ELM STREET series, is stuck in Hell because the Elm Street kids don't believe in him anymore. So he uses hockey-masked, machete-wielding Jason Voorhees, from the FRIDAY THE 13TH series, to rouse the fear of Freddy. Tricky setup for a simple story that's basically a NIGHTMARE with Jason added. The fight promised by the title is a long time coming. OK of its sort, but mostly for fans (who were numerous, making this a major hit). Super 35. [R] ▼

Freebie and the Bean (1974) C-113m. *½ D: Richard Rush. James Caan, Alan Arkin, Loretta Swit, Jack Kruschen, Mike Kellin, Alex Rocco. Some good action, but mostly repellent humor as San Francisco cops Arkin and Caan nearly wreck the city trying to get the goods on a numbers racketeer. Valerie Harper has a nice cameo as Arkin's Latin wife. Later a short-lived TV series. Panavision. [R] ▼ ●

Freedomland (2006) C-112m.  D: Joe Roth. Samuel L. Jackson, Julianne Moore, Edie Falco, Ron Eldard, William Forsythe, Aunjanue Ellis, Anthony Mackie, LaTanya Richardson Jackson, Philip Bosco. Affectionately regarded white teacher with a sadsack personal history claims a black man abducted her young son. This exacerbates community-police testiness from vocal black neighborhood dwellers who say the cops are paying undue attention because the child is white; investigating cop Jackson is caught in the middle. Richard Price adapted his own praised novel in unwieldy fashion, while Roth's pedestrian direction undermines the story throughout. Moore's histrionics throw the film off balance and make it increasingly tough to watch. Super 35. [R] ●

teaching job at a Long Beach, California, high school: she's to teach freshman English to the worst students on the campus, hardened by life and divided on racial lines. She turns their lives around by respecting and believing in them. Based on the real-life experiences of Erin Gruwell. LaGravenese's screenplay captures the raw emotions of its young characters and their indomitable teacher without condescension or phony Hollywood histrionics. Swank also coexecutive-produced. [PG-13] D

Free Enterprise (1999) C-116m.  D: Robert Meyer Burnett. William Shatner, Rafer Weigel, Eric McCormack, Audie England, Patrick Van Horn, Jennifer Sommerfield, Phil LaMarr, Deborah Van Valkenburgh. Long-time friends and major sci-fi movie and TV buff McCormack and Weigel are stunned to be befriended by William Shatner. But he has problems of his own, like his desire to stage Julius Caesar with himself in all the roles. Uneven but entertaining comedy gives Shatner a great, self-spoofing role. Written by director Burnett and Mark Altman, who based the lead characters on themselves. [R] **▼●●

Freejack (1992) C-108m. *½ D: Geoff Murphy. Emilio Estevez, Mick Jagger, Rene Russo, Anthony Hopkins, Jonathan Banks, David Johansen, Amanda Plummer, Grand L. Bush, Frankie Faison, Esai Morales, John Shea. Good cast is wasted in this mindless actioner, in which race car driver Estevez dies in 1991 and finds his body snatched into the year 2009 so that it may house the soul of ruthless tycoon Hopkins. Tiresome, superficial fare. Based on the novel Immortality, Inc. by Robert Sheckley. Jagger plays a bounty hunter; it's his first screen acting role since PERFORMANCE in 1970. Panavision. [R] **▼●●

Free Money (1999-Canadian) C-94m. *½ D: Yves Simoneau. Marlon Brando, Charlie Sheen, Thomas Haden Church, Donald Sutherland, Mira Sorvino, Martin Sheen, David Arquette, J. P. Bergeron, Christin Watson, Holly Watson. How does a movie with a cast like this get rejected for theatrical release and go straight to cable? By being a frantically unfunny "comedy" that's shrill and desperate from the word go. A gargantuan, bald-headed, bushy-mustached Brando has his biggest role in years as a psychotic, small-town prison warden whose two idiot sons-in-law try to rob a train. Often embarrassing to watch. **▼

Free Soul, A (1931) 91m. ½ D: Clarence Brown. Norma Shearer, Lionel Barrymore, Clark Gable, Leslie Howard, James Gleason. A hard-drinking, free-swinging attorney successfully defends gangster Gable on a murder rap—then finds to his dismay that his equally free-spirited daughter has fallen in love with him. Dated morality play—melodrama retains interest because of its cast and Barrymore's famous courtroom finale, which clinched him an Oscar. Based on Adela Rogers St. Johns' book about her father. Remade as THE GIRL WHO HAD EVERYTHING. **▼

Freeway (1988) C-91m.  D: Francis Delia. Darlanne Fluegel, James Russo, Billy Drago, Richard Belzer, Michael Callan, Joey Palese, Steve Franken, Kenneth Tobey, Clint Howard. A nurse whose husband was the victim of a freeway shooting becomes obsessed with finding the Bible-quoting murderer, who habitually phones a radio psychiatrist from his car while cruising L.A. looking for new victims. Based on a novel but prompted by similar real-life crimes in L.A., this film is surprisingly nonexploitive, but slow and unconvincing. [R] **▼●●

Freeway (1996) C-102m.  D: Matthew Bright. Reese Witherspoon, Kiefer Sutherland, Brooke Shields, Wolfgang Bodison, Dan Hedaya, Amanda Plummer, Michael T. Weiss, Bokeem Woodbine, Brittany Murphy, Conchata Ferrell. Corrosive modern version of Little Red Riding Hood in which a teenage girl, on her way to grandma's, hitchhikes a ride with a psychotic child psychiatrist (Sutherland). Extremely violent satire is bolstered by Witherspoon's one-of-a-kind lethal Lolita performance and a smart screenplay by debut director Bright. Not for the faint of heart. Deliciously oddball score by Danny Elfman. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [R] **▼●●

Free Willy (1993) C-112m. ½ D: Simon Wincer. Jason James Richter, Lori Petty, Michael Madsen, Jayne Atkinson, Michael Ironside, Richard Riehle, August Schellenberg, Mykelti Williamson. Wayward 12-year-old, ordered to remove paint from aquarium walls, befriends and helps train an orca whale, eventually exploited by his seedy owner. Aggressively marketed sleeper hit is perfectly OK children's fare, with an appealing performance by young Richter. Michael Jackson sings "Will You Be There" over closing credits. Followed by two sequels and an animated TV series. Panavision. [PG] **▼●●

Free Willy 2: The Adventure Home (1995) C-98m. ½ D: Dwight Little. Jason James Richter, August Schellenberg, Jayne Atkinson, Jon Tenney, Elizabeth Pena, Michael Madsen, Francis Capra, Mary Kate Schellhardt, Mykelti Williamson, M. Emmet Walsh. Richter has younger half-brother Capra forced upon him, finds young love with Schellhardt, and helps his orca friend Willy (and Willy's relatives) when an oil spill endangers the cetaceans. Overplotted children's film lacks the spark of the first, but is still good entertainment of its kind. The killer whales are almost all miniatures or computer graphics. Panavision. [PG] **▼●●

Free Willy 3: The Rescue (1997) C-85m.  D: Sam Pillsbury. Jason James Richter, August Schellenberg, Annie Corley, Vincent Berry, Patrick Kilpatrick, Tasha Simms. Richter, now a teenager, gets a summer job on a marine biology research boat and clashes with a group of poachers who want to make whale sushi out of Willy and his pregnant girlfriend Nikki (or at least their animatronic/computer-graphic likenesses). Shortest entry in the series is easy to take, but utterly predictable and formulaic. [PG]▼●●

Free Woman, A (1972-German) C-100m. ½ D: Volker Schlöndorff. Margarethe von Trotta, Friedhelm Ptok, Martin Luttge, Walter Sedlmayer. Von Trotta divorces Ptok, has trouble adjusting to life apart from husband and son as she tries to liberate herself from her traditional functions. Truthful but boring drama.

Free Zone (2005-Israeli-Belgian-French-Spanish) C-90m. ½ D: Amos Gitai. Natalie Portman, Hana Laszlo, Hiam Abbass, Carmen Maura, Makram Khoury, Aki Avni, Uri Klauzner. Young American woman living in Jerusalem breaks up with her Israeli boyfriend, jumps into a cab, and asks the female driver to take her "anywhere." Eventually they head to Jordan's Free Zone, where the cabbie (Laszlo) is to meet a mysterious person called The American, her husband's Palestinian business associate. A labor of love for Israeli-born Portman, the film turns out to be a showcase for Laszlo, who won a Best Actress prize at the Cannes Film Festival. Dialogue heavy and sometimes over the top, but worth it for the performances. Opening sequence in which the camera remains on a close-up of the anguished Portman is riveting. ▽

French Cancan (1955-French) C-93m.  D: Jean Renoir. Jean Gabin, Françoise Arnoul, Maria Felix, Edith Piaf. Not top-drawer Renoir, but still an impressive, enjoyable fiction about beginnings of the Moulin Rouge and impresario Gabin's revival of the cancan. Originally released in the U.S. in 1956; a brilliantly beautiful restored version, with approximately 10m. of additional footage, opened theatrically in 1985. Originally released in France as ONLY THE FRENCH CAN at 102m. ▼●●

French Connection, The (1971) C-104m. * D: William Friedkin. Gene Hackman, Fernando Rey, Roy Scheider, Tony Lo-Bianco, Marcel Bozzuffi. Landmark urban action film detailing attempted international heroin smuggle into N.Y.C., and maverick detective who stops it. Five Oscars include Best Picture, Actor, Director, Screenplay (Ernest Tidyman) and Editing (Jerry Greenberg), the latter particularly for one of the most exciting car chases ever filmed. Followed by a sequel and, in 1986, a TV movie, POPEYE DOYLE. [R]▼●●

French Connection II (1975) C-119m. ½ D: John Frankenheimer. Gene Hackman, Fernando Rey, Bernard Fresson, Jean-Pierre Castaldi, Charles Millot, Philippe Leotard, Ed Lauter, Cathleen Nesbitt. Gruff N.Y. cop Popeye Doyle goes to Marseilles, determined to nail narcotics king (Rey) who eluded him in America. Enjoyable opening and riveting chase finale are separated by long, agonizing drug addiction segment that weighs whole film down. [R]▼●●

French Detective, The (1975-French) C-93m.  D: Pierre Granier-Deferre. Lino Ventura, Patrick Dewaere, Victor Lanoux. Neat, entertaining police story with Ventura a tough, independent, middle-aged cop who, with exuberant young partner Dewaere, determinedly pursues a hood working for politician Lanoux. ▼

French Kiss (1995) C-111m.  D: Lawrence Kasdan. Meg Ryan, Kevin Kline, Timothy Hutton, Jean Reno, François Cluzet, Victor Garrivier, Susan Anheb. Charmless contrivance about a jilted woman who follows her fiancé to Paris and hooks up with a French rogue. Will these opposites ultimately attract one another? Duh! The stars' comic savvy can only carry this so far . . . though they're good, and the French scenery is nice. Soundtrack harmonica by the great Toots Thielemans. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

French Lieutenant's Woman, The (1981-British) C-123m. ½ D: Karel Reisz. Meryl Streep, Jeremy Irons, Leo McKern, Hilton McRae, Emily Morgan, Charlotte Mitchell, Lynsey Baxter. A scandalous romance between a gentleman and a tainted woman in Victorian England is contrasted with a contemporary affair between the actor and actress who are playing those roles in a movie. The juxtaposition is jarring at first, but becomes more engaging as the film progresses. Beautifully visualized, with rich period detail, superb performances; script by Harold Pinter, from John Fowles' novel. [R]▼●●

French Line, The (1954) C-102m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. Jane Russell, Gilbert Roland, Arthur Hunnicutt, Mary McCarty, Craig Stevens, Steven Geray, Joyce McKenzie, Paula Corday, Scott Elliot. Russell's bust in 3-D was the gimmick to sell this dull musical. All that's left is flat tale of wealthy Texas girl in Paris being romanced by Parisian. McCarty's wisecracking is a blessing. If you blink, you'll miss Kim Novak modeling a gown. ▼

French Postcards (1979) C-92m.  D: Willard Huyck. Blanche Baker, Miles Chapin, Debra Winger, Mandy Patinkin, Valerie Quennessen, David Marshall Grant, Marie-France Pisier, Jean Rochefort. Kind of follow-up to AMERICAN GRAFFITI from that film's authors (Huyck and Gloria Katz), detailing romantic misadventures of group of college students spending junior year abroad. Pleasant but forgettable comedy. [PG]▼

French Provincial (1974-French) C-91m.  D: André Téchiné. Jeanne Moreau, Michel Auclair, Marie-France Pisier, Claude Mann, Orane Demazis. Moreau, as a laundry woman who marries into a bourgeois family, shines in this otherwise flaky, superficially symbolic saga of economic change in France from the 1930s through 1970s.

French Quarter (1978) C-101m.  D: Dennis Kane. Bruce Davison, Lindsay Bloom, Virginia Mayo, Alisha Fontaine, Lance LeGault, Laura Misch Owens, Ann Michelle, Becky Allen, Barry Sullivan, William Sims. Neglected drive-in treat is a genuine curiosity; tongue-in-cheek melodrama mixes PRETTY BABY plot with FRENCH LIEUTENANT'S WOMAN structure (but predates both!). Tale of young Fontaine, growing up in New Orleans as Storyville prostitute at the turn of the century, is paralleled by present-day story with same cast, linked by voodoo plot device. Ends bizarrely with narrator reminding us to "hang up your speakers and drive home safely." And Dick Hyman did the music! [R]▼

French, They Are a Funny Race, The (1956-French) 83m.  D: Preston Sturges. Jack Buchanan, Noel-Noel, Martine Carol, Genevieve Brunet. Director-writer Sturges' last film is a misfire, with Buchanan as veddy-British major whose marriage to Frenchwoman sparks continuing nationalistic arguments. Original title: LES CARNETS DU MAJOR THOMPSON at 105m.

French Twist (1995-French) C-100m. ½ D: Josiane Balasko. Victoria Abril, Josiane Balasko, Alain Chabat, Ticky Holgado, Miguel Bosé, Catherine Hiegel, Catherine Samie. Bouncy comedy written and directed by French star Balasko (TOO BEAUTIFUL FOR YOU), who plays a gay van driver/drifter who accidentally meets a jolly housewife (Abril) and her philandering husband (Chabat). What follows is a very French twist on the old love triangle theme. Enjoyable farce is liberal to a fault but loses credibility as it unfolds. Still, Abril shines, as usual, in a terrific role. Original title: GAZON MAUDIT. ▼

French Way Is, The SEE: Love at the Top

Frenzy (1944) SEE: Torment

Frenzy (1972-British) C-116m. ½ D: Alfred Hitchcock. Jon Finch, Barry Foster, Barbara Leigh-Hunt, Anna Massey, Alec McCowen, Vivien Merchant, Billie Whitelaw, Clive Swift, Jean Marsh. Hitchcock in high gear, telling story of suave London strangler (Foster) and innocent man (Finch) suspected of murder spree. All classic Hitchcock elements are here, including delicious black humor, several astounding camera shots. Script by Anthony Shaffer. [R] ▼

Frequency (2000) C-117m.  D: Gregory

Hoblit. Dennis Quaid, Jim Caviezel, Andre Braugher, Elizabeth Mitchell, Noah Emmerich, Shawn Doyle, Jordan Bridges. N.Y.C. cop whose fireman father died when he was six digs out his dad's old ham radio set, and by freakish fluke, finds he can communicate with his old man! Soon the father realizes he can help his son prevent crimes that are about to happen—and the son begins to wonder if he can keep his father from perishing in a flaming building. Entertaining at first but never quite convincing (like Quaid's unfortunate New York accent), this convoluted Twilight Zone-ish story misses the mark. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Fresh (1994-U.S.-French) C-112m.  D: Boaz Yakin. Sean Nelson, Giancarlo Esposito, Samuel L. Jackson, N'Bushe Wright, Ron Brice, Jean LaMarre, Luis Lantigua. Disturbing, controversial chronicle of 12-year-old black youth who divides his time between school and his duties as a busy heroin courier. When he witnesses a playground killing, young Fresh (unforgettably played by Sean Nelson) must use his street smarts to fight for survival. An unflinching look at the urban narcotics nightmare; some may be disturbed by the ambivalent view of the bright young protagonist as drug dealer, victim, survivor, and hero. Impressive debut for writer-director Yakin. Music by Stewart Copeland. [R] ▼

Fresh Horses (1988) C-105m. ½ D: David Anspaugh. Molly Ringwald, Andrew McCarthy, Patti D'Arbanville, Molly Hagan, Viggo Mortensen, Doug Hutchison, Ben Stiller, Leon Russom. Collegian McCarthy, engaged to a wealthy dullard, falls for Ringwald's underage no-no, a semi-shantytramp who lives across the river from his Cincinnati campus. Slightly better than expected, thanks to fine Midwest location work from the director of HOOSIERS. Ringwald isn't totally convincing in the kind of role Gloria Graham invented. [PG-13]▼

Freshman, The (1925) 76m. * D: Sam Taylor, Fred Newmeyer. Harold Lloyd, Jobyna Ralston, Brooks Benedict, James Anderson, Hazel Keener. One of Lloyd's best-remembered films casts him as collegiate patsy who'll do anything to be popular on campus, unaware that everyone is making fun of him. Football game finale is one of several comic highlights. A real audience-rouser. ▼

Freshman, The (1990) C-102m.  D: Andrew Bergman. Marlon Brando, Matthew Broderick, Maximilian Schell, Bruno Kirby, Penelope Ann Miller, Frank Whaley, Paul Benedict, B. D. Wong, Bert Parks. New York University film student Broderick falls in with loony mob family headed by Brando in this infectious, off-center comedy. Not an outstanding film per se, but strong cast and New York flavor, plus Bergman's original and amusing screenplay, put it over. Best of all: Marlon's knockout performance (remind you of anyone?), and his rapport with Matthew. [PG]▼●●

Freud (1962) 120m. ½ D: John Huston. Montgomery Clift, Susannah York, Larry Parks, David McCallum, Susan Kohner, Eileen Herlie. Intelligent, unglamorous account of Sigmund Freud as young doctor, focusing on his early psychiatric theories and treatments and his struggle for their acceptance among Viennese medical colleagues. Fascinating dream sequence. Originally released at 139m. Also known as FREUD: THE SECRET PASSION.

Frida (1984-Mexican) C-108m.  D: Paul Leduc. Ofelia Medina, Juan Jose Gurrola, Max Kerlow, Salvador Sanchez, Claudio Brook. Solid biography effectively captures the spirit of an extraordinary woman: Frida Kahlo (Medina), Mexican artist and radical who dealt with various physical crises (resulting from polio and a paralyzing accident). Also central to her story are her relationships with Diego Rivera and Leon Trotsky. Visually captivating, with superior cinematography by Angel Goded and an unstructured narrative that not so much traces the incidents in its subject's life but paints a portrait of her.▼●

Frida (2002) C-123m. ½ D: Julie Taymor. Salma Hayek, Alfred Molina, Geoffrey Rush, Ashley Judd, Antonio Banderas, Edward Norton, Valeria Golino, Mia Maestro, Roger Rees, Diego Luna, Patricia Reyes Spindola, Margarita Sanz, Saffron Burrows, Didi Conn. Ambitious biography of Mexican artist and activist Frida Kahlo, who fought both physical and emotional challenges throughout her life, while her work remained in the shadow of her husband, Diego Rivera. Hayek, who shepherded this project to fruition, does a good job; Molina is superb as the robust, womanizing Rivera, and Rush is equally good in a small part as Leon Trotsky. Despite the efforts of four credited writers, rich source material, and Taymor's visual embellishments, the movie never really soars . . . but it certainly covers a lot of ground. Oscar winner for Best Makeup and Score (Elliot Goldenthal). [R]▼●

Friday (1995) C-89m. *½ D: F. Gary Gray. Ice Cube, Chris Tucker, Nia Long, Tiny "Zeus" Lister, Jr., John Witherspoon, Anna Maria Horsford, Regina King, Paul Jai Parker, Bernie Mac, Angela Means, Faizon Love, LaWanda Page. Rap star/actor Ice Cube coproduced, cowrote, and stars in this comedy, revealing the fun side he never showed in films like BOYZ N THE HOOD and TRESPASS. Talented cast can't rescue this practically plotless film about youth trying to survive life in L.A.'s South Central 'hood. Followed by NEXT FRIDAY. [R]▼●●

Friday After Next (2002) C-82m. *½ D:

Marcus Raboy, Ice Cube, Mike Epps, John Witherspoon, Don "D.C." Curry, Anna Maria Horsford, Clifton Powell, BeBe Drake, Terry Crews. Slipshod comedy from the 'hood follows FRIDAY and NEXT FRIDAY. After a scummy Santa Claus robs Cube and Epps, they're forced to get jobs as security guards in order to pay for a Christmas party. That's about it for story; the rest of the film is filled with notably foul language (including overuse of the "n" word), and enough stereotypes to set back civil rights a hundred years. Cube scripted and coproduced. [R]▼●

Friday Foster (1975) C-90m.  D: Arthur Marks. Pam Grier, Yaphet Kotto, Godfrey Cambridge, Thalmus Rasulala, Eartha Kitt, Jim Backus, Scatman Crothers, Ted Lange, Carl Weathers. Black bubblegum nonsense based on comic strip about fashion photographer who gets involved in mystery and intrigue; here she tries to foil assassination/conspiracy plot against black politicians. [R]▼●

Friday Night (2002-French) C-90m.  D: Claire Denis. Valérie Lemercier, Vincent Lindon, Hélène de Saint-Père, Grégoire Colin. Seductive, dazzlingly visual account of a night in the life of a young Parisian (Lemercier) who is preparing to move out of her apartment and has an unusual encounter with a stranger. Using very little dialogue, Denis deftly employs the camera to tell her story, recording the minutest details of everyday life and creating a sense of intimacy that is purely cinematic.▼●

Friday the 13th (1980) C-95m. *½ D: Sean S. Cunningham. Betsy Palmer, Adrienne King, Harry Crosby, Laurie Bartram, Mark Nelson, Jeannine Taylor, Kevin Bacon. Palmer, who figures in an admittedly bravura finale, slaughters teens holed up in woody summer camp. Young folks unexpectedly made this gory, cardboard thriller a box-office smash—one more clue to why SAT scores continue to decline. Rates higher than BOMB simply because it's slightly better than part 2. Unrated DVD adds a few seconds of carnage. Followed by a seemingly never-ending series of sequels and a TV series. Remade in 2009. [R] ▼●●

Friday the 13th (2009) C-97m. *½ D: Marcus Nispel. Jared Padalecki, Danielle Panabaker, Amanda Righetti, Travis Van Winkle, Aaron Yoo, Derek Mears, Jonathan Sadowski. The 12th FRIDAY isn't a sequel but something like a remake of the 1st and 3rd. As before, some annoying teenagers encounter the silent, murderous Jason, who chops, stabs, and bludgeons his way through the cast, though without as much gore as in previous entries. Plodding, dull, and repetitive, this is only occasionally creepy and never scary. Yes, there's a setup for a sequel, if anyone cares. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Friday the 13th, Part 2 (1981) C-87m. BOMB D: Steve Miner. Betsy Palmer, Amy Steel, John Furey, Adrienne King, Kirsten Baker, Stu Charno, Warrington Gillette. More nubile campers, more bloody executions. If you loved Part 1 . . . [R] ▼●●

Friday the 13th Part 3 (1982) C-96m.  D: Steve Miner. Dana Kimmell, Paul Kratka, Tracie Savage, Jeffrey Rogers, Catherine Parks, Larry Zerner. Strictly amateur night in terms of acting and writing, but this entry deemphasizes explicit gore in favor of shocks, and delivers a few—especially in 3-D and widescreen. [R] ▼●●

Friday the 13th—The Final Chapter (1984) C-91m. BOMB D: Joseph Zito. Crispin Glover, Kimberly Beck, Barbara Howard, E. Erich Anderson, Corey Feldman, Ted White, Bruce Mahler, Lawrence Monoson. Why bother with a new script? Jason finally gets his—except that (title notwithstanding) the door is left open for yet another sequel! [R] ▼●●

Friday the 13th Part V: A New Beginning (1985) C-102m. BOMB D: Danny Steinmann. John Shepard, Melanie Kinnaman, Shavar Ross, Richard Young, Carol Lacatell, Corey Parker, Corey Feldman. A clever title (after . . . THE FINAL CHAPTER) for more gore galore, as gruesome and disgusting as ever. [R] ▼●●

Friday the 13th, Part VI: Jason Lives (1986) C-87m. BOMB D: Tom McLoughlin. Thom Mathews, Jennifer Cooke, David Kagan, Renee Jones, Kerry Noonan, C.J. Graham, Tony Goldwyn, Ron Palillo. Jason's summer camp has enjoyed years of tranquility after changing its name, but watch out! If you really think there's something to gain from watching Jason rise from the grave again, good luck! The pits. [R] ▼●●

Friday the 13th Part VII—The New Blood (1988) C-88m. *½ D: John Carl Buechler. Lar Park Lincoln, Terry Kiser, Susan Blu, Kevin Blair, Susan Jennifer Sullivan, Elizabeth Kaitan. Makeup expert Buechler fails to inject much life into this

endless series. Pretty, blonde Lincoln foolishly travels to Crystal Lake (with her mom and her shrink) where her talent for telekenesis brings the monstrous Jason back up from his watery grave. [R] ▼●●

Friday the 13th Part VIII: Jason Takes Manhattan (1989) C-100m.  D: Rob Hedden. Jensen Daggett, Kane Hodder, Peter Mark Richman, Scott Reeves, Barbara Bingham, V. C. Dupree. The best film in the "Friday" series, imaginatively directed and written by Hedden, is still just a slasher film, though less gruesome than most. Despite the title, most of the film takes place on a cruise ship. Too long and not really for fans of the series. Followed by JASON GOES TO HELL: THE FINAL FRIDAY. [R] ▼●●

Friendly Persuasion (1956) C-140m. * D: William Wyler. Gary Cooper, Dorothy McGuire, Marjorie Main, Anthony Perkins, Richard Eyer, Robert Middleton, (Peter) Mark Richman, Walter Catlett, William Schallert. Charming account (from Jessamyn West novel) of Quaker family struggling to maintain its identity amid confusion and heartbreak of Civil War. Warm, winning performances in this beautifully made film. Music by Dimitri Tiomkin. Though no screenplay credit appears, film was written by blacklisted Michael Wilson; he received posthumous credit in 1996. Remade for TV in 1975 with Richard Kiley and Shirley Knight. ▼●●

Friends (1971-British) C-102m. BOMB D: Lewis Gilbert. Sean Bury, Anicee Alvina, Pascale Roberts, Sady Rebbot, Ronald Lewis. Yucky early-teen romance about French boy and girl who run off to the seashore, set up housekeeping, and have a baby . . . then Mommy and Daddy show up to take them home. Popular in its day, primarily due to Elton John song score. Buy the album instead. Sequel (!): PAUL AND MICHELLE. [R] ▼

Friends and Lovers (1999) C-104m. *½ D: George Haas. Stephen Baldwin, Danny Nucci, George Newbern, Claudia Schiffer, Alison Eastwood, Suzanne Cryer, David

Rasche, Neill Barry, Leon, Robert Downey, Jr., Ann Magnuson. Group of friends gather for a Christmas ski holiday that quickly finds them coupled in unlikely romantic pairings. Embarrassing on every level, a good group of actors is wasted in this would-be farce that sets its sights low and misses the mark anyway. In her first major film role, Schiffer proves that as an actress she's a mighty fine model. ▼

Friends of Eddie Coyle, The (1973) C-102m. ½ D: Peter Yates. Robert Mitchum, Peter Boyle, Richard Jordan, Steven Keats, Alex Rocco, Mitchell Ryan. Ultrarealistic depiction of criminals and police, as hardened con laborers to supply guns and make deal with cops. Bleak nightmare picture of underworld enhanced by numerous Boston locations, flawless performances. Only liabilities: film's offbeat low-key narrative approach and finale. Adapted by Paul Monash from George V. Higgins's novel. [R] ▼

Friends With Money (2006) C-88m.  D: Nicole Holofcener. Catherine Keener, Jennifer Aniston, Frances McDormand, Joan Cusack, Simon McBurney, Jason Isaacs, Scott Caan, Ty Burrell, Bob Stephenson, Greg Germann. Wry slice of life examining the fault lines in the friendship of four women, three of whom are married and prosperous, one of whom (Aniston) is single, unhappy, and resentful. Good performances and sharp observations about marriage, money, and middle age make this a winner. Super 35. [R] ▼

Fright (1971-British) C-87m.  D: Peter Collinson. Susan George, Honor Blackman, Ian Bannen, John Gregson, George Cole, Dennis Waterman. Young babysitter (George) spends terror-filled evening at country house, menaced by mental hospital escapee. Contrived, mechanical direction and so-so script. [PG] ▼

Frightened City, The (1961-British) 97m. ½ D: John Lemont. Herbert Lom, John Gregson, Sean Connery, Alfred Marks, Yvonne Romain. Interesting inside look at a London racketeer amalgamating various city gangs for master plan syndicate. ▼

Frighteners, The (1996-New Zealand-U.S.) C-109m. ½ D: Peter Jackson. Michael J. Fox, Trini Alvarado, Peter Dinklage, John Astin, Jeffrey Combs, Dee Wallace Stone, Jake Busey, Chi McBride, Jim Fyfe, Troy Evans, Julianna McCarthy, R. Lee Ermey. Overlong, but original blend of paranormal, horror, and black-comedy ingredients. Fox plays a psychic investigator/exterminator on the trail of an otherworldly serial killer. Zigzags from grisly humor to slasher-movie horror. Combs (of REANIMATOR fame) has a scenery-chewing role as a wacked-out FBI agent on the case. Definitely not for all tastes. Filmed in New Zealand, home of director/cowriter Jackson. Director's cut runs 123m. Super 35. [R] ▼

Fright Night (1985) C-105m.  D: Tom Holland. Chris Sarandon, William Ragsdale, Amanda Bearse, Roddy McDowall, Stephen Geoffreys, Jonathan Stark. Teenage boy enlists the aid of TV horror-movie host (and erstwhile actor) to kill suave, cunning vampire who's moved in next door. Entertaining, old-fashioned horror outing energized by Richard Edlund's spectacular special effects and highlighted by two wonderful performances, by McDowall and Sarandon. Written by Holland. Followed by a sequel. Panavision. [R] ▼

Fright Night Part 2 (1989) C-104m.  D: Tommy Lee Wallace. Roddy McDowall, William Ragsdale, Traci Lin, Julie Carmen, Jonathan Gries, Russell Clark, Brian Thompson, Merritt Buttrick, Ernie Sabella. Sister of the vampire who met a grisly end in FRIGHT NIGHT seeks revenge on the duo who destroyed him. More-of-the-same sequel is definitely a comedown from the earlier film, though well produced. Panavision. [R] ▼

Fringe Dwellers, The (1986-Australian) C-98m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Kristina Nehm, Justine Saunders, Bob Maza, Kylie Belling, Denis Walker, Ernie Dingo. Ambitious young aborigine woman convinces her family to move out of their shantytown and into a prosperous, mostly white middle-class neighborhood in present-day Australia; the expected readjustment woes follow. Sincere, very well-acted drama (especially by Nehm) is undercut by sentimental, dramatically dishonest conclusion. Overall, worth a look. [PG] ▼

Frisco Kid (1935) 77m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. James Cagney, Margaret Lindsay, Ricardo Cortez, Lili Damita, Fred Kohler, George E. Stone, Donald Woods. Routine drama of Barbary Coast with Cagney fighting his way to the top, almost dethroned by local gangs but saved by blueblood Lindsay.

Frisco Kid, The (1979) C-122m. ½ D: Robert Aldrich. Gene Wilder, Harrison Ford, Ramon Bieri, Val Bisoglio, George Ralph DiCenzo, Leo Fuchs, Penny Peyser. Offbeat story of Polish rabbi crossing U.S. in 1850 and developing friendship with young bank robber. Wilder's performance and some charming vignettes make up for many other shortcomings. [PG] ▼

Fritz The Cat (1972) C-78m.  D: Ralph Bakshi. X-rated animated feature somewhat based on Robert Crumb's underground comics character. Flawed but engaging, irreverent look at radical-hip lifestyles of the 1960s, geared for people who experienced that era. Imaginatively conceived cartoon. Sequel: THE NINE LIVES OF FRITZ THE CAT. Frogmen, The (1951) 96m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. Richard Widmark, Dana Andrews, Gary Merrill, Jeffrey Hunter, Robert Wagner, Jack Warden. Intriguing look at underwater demolition squads in action in the Pacific during WW2. ▽

Frogs (1972) C-91m. ½ D: George McCowan. Ray Milland, Sam Elliott, Joan Van Ark, Adam Roarke, Judy Pace. Patriarchal Milland has been destroying bayou wildlife and now all the swamp critters are out to destroy his whole family. Dumb but enjoyable thriller. [PG] ▽

Frogs for Snakes (1999) C-98m.  D: Amos Poe. Barbara Hershey, Robbie Coltrane, Harry Hamlin, Ian Hart, John Leguizamo, Lisa Marie, Debi Mazar, Ron Perlman, Clarence Williams III. Another Tarantino wannabe, this black comedy has a clever conceit: Struggling N.Y. actors who'll do anything for a good part make money on the side as hit men for a Russian racketeer (Coltrane). Story goes nowhere, despite a good cast. [R] ▽

From a Whisper to a Scream SEE: Offspring, The

From Beyond (1986) C-85m. ½ D: Stuart Gordon. Jeffrey Combs, Barbara Crampton, Ted Sorel, Ken Foree, Carolyn Purdy-Gordon, Bunny Summers, Bruce McGuire. The RE-ANIMATOR team returns to H. P. Lovecraft territory for this similarly demented film based on a scientist's search for a sixth sense . . . which, in time, causes his associates to go berserk. Takes its time getting revved up, but then cuts loose in outrageous fashion. As before, this is not for the squeamish, but if you liked RE-ANIMATOR . . . [R] ▽

From Beyond the Grave (1973-British) C-97m.  D: Kevin Connor. Peter Cushing, Margaret Leighton, Ian Bannen, Donald Pleasence, David Warner, Diana Dors, Angela Pleasence, Nyree Dawn Porter, Lesley-Anne Down. Neat multi-storied horror pic. Visitors to Cushing's antique shop, Temptations Ltd., meet terrible fates. Leighton excels as wacky clairvoyant. Retitled: CREATURES. [PG] ▽

From Dusk Till Dawn (1996) C-108m.  D: Robert Rodriguez. Harvey Keitel, George Clooney, Quentin Tarantino, Juliette Lewis, Salma Hayek, Cheech Marin, Tom Savini, Fred Williamson, John Saxon, Kelly Preston, Marc Lawrence, Michael Parks, Ernest Lui, Danny Trejo, Tito Lariva. Two out-of-control criminal brothers mow their way through Texas, heading for a rendezvous in Mexico, and take a family (and their RV) hostage. But the rendezvous location turns out to be a hellish biker bar inhabited by vampires! Indefensible trash certainly works on a visceral level; how much you can take will depend on your

G.Q. (grossout quotient). Rodriguez and screenwriter/actor Tarantino seem to be having fun, especially in their casting choices, but this is just a celebration of excess. In fact, it might be retitled NATURAL BORN VAMPIRES. Followed by two direct-to-video sequels. [R] ▽

From Hell (2001) C-122m.  D: The Hughes Brothers. Johnny Depp, Heather Graham, Ian Holm, Robbie Coltrane, Ian Richardson, Jason Flemyng, Katrin Cartledge, Susan Lynch. Eccentric London police inspector Depp is determined to capture Jack the Ripper despite a growing sense that there is a cover-up at hand to protect some very important people. Gothic thriller treads familiar ground (for Ripperphiles) but is colorful and entertaining; an impressive showing for the Hughes Brothers. Only Graham seems out of place as a weathered Whitechapel prostitute. Based on a graphic novel by Alan Moore and Eddie Campbell. Panavision. [R] ▽

From Hell to Borneo (1964) C-96m.  D: George Montgomery. George Montgomery, Julie Gregg, Torin Thatcher, Lisa Moreno. Filmed in the Philippines, tale recounts Montgomery's efforts to maintain sanctity of his private island against aggressive crooks and smugglers. ▽

From Hell to Victory (1979-French-Italian-Spanish) C-100m.  D: Hank Milestone (Umberto Lenzi). George Peppard, George Hamilton, Horst Buchholz, Capucine, Sam Wanamaker, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Anny Duperey. Friends of various nationalities are torn apart by the coming of WW2. Undistinguished, superficial actioner. Technovision. [PG] ▽

From Here to Eternity (1953) 118m. * D: Fred Zinnemann. Burt Lancaster, Montgomery Clift, Deborah Kerr, Donna Reed, Frank Sinatra, Philip Ober, Ernest Borgnine, Mickey Shaughnessy, Jack Warden, Claude Akins, George Reeves. Toned-down but still powerful adaptation of James Jones' novel of Army life in Hawaii just before Pearl Harbor. Depiction of Japanese sneak attack combines unforgettable action scenes with actual combat footage. Brilliantly acted by entire cast, including Sinatra in his "comeback" role as the ill-fated soldier Maggio. Eight Oscars include Best Picture, Director, Screenplay (Daniel Taradash), Cinematography (Burnett Guffey), and Supporting Actors Sinatra and Reed. Remade in 1979 as a TV miniseries, which in turn spun off a brief series. ▽

From Justin to Kelly (2003) C-81m. *½ D: Rob Iscove. Kelly Clarkson, Justin Guarini, Katherine Bailess, Anika Noni Rose, Greg Siff, Brian Dietzen, Jason Yribar. Guzzle sunscreen instead of sitting through this insipid musical vehicle for TV's American Idol stars, which finds them trying to make a love connection during Miami spring break.

No one was expecting Shakespeare, but there's less heft here than in an Archie comic book. Justin and Kelly belt and gyrate through a series of forgettable numbers but generate no chemistry, even in a chaste Frank-Annette sort of way. [PG] ▼

From Mao to Mozart: Isaac Stern in China (1980) C-84m. ½ D: Murray Lerner. Isaac Stern, David Golub, Tan Shuzhen. Moving documentary about violinist Stern's '79 tour of China. Most memorably, he tutors talented Chinese students, encouraging them to feel their playing. Shuzhen, deputy director of the Shanghai Conservatory of Music, describes his incarceration during the Cultural Revolution. Deservedly won Best Documentary Academy Award. [G] ▼

From Nashville With Music (1969) C-87m. *½ D: Eddie Crandall. Marilyn Maxwell, Leo G. Carroll, (Pedro) Gonzalez-Gonzalez, Marty Robbins, Merle Haggard, Buck Owens. Some good C&W music, but one is better off buying one of the performers' albums instead of suffering through this story of a N.Y.C. couple who go to the Grand Ole Opry by mistake.

From Noon Till Three (1976) C-99m. ½ D: Frank D. Gilroy. Charles Bronson, Jill Ireland, Douglas Fowley, Stan Haze, Damon Douglas, Anne Ramsey. Likably offbeat story (adapted by Gilroy from his own novel) about a two-bit robber who enjoys a brief tryst with a woman who—after he is thought dead—fictionalizes their romance and turns him into a legendary hero. A kind of shaggy dog joke, which while pleasant, doesn't quite work. A nice change of pace for Bronson, though. [PG] ▼

From Russia With Love (1963-British) C-118m. ½ D: Terence Young. Sean Connery, Daniela Bianchi, Lotte Lenya, Pedro Armendariz, Robert Shaw, Bernard Lee, Lois Maxwell. Second James Bond film is one of the best; plenty of suspense and action, and one of the longest, most exciting fight scenes ever staged. Lenya makes a very sinister spy. ▼

From the Earth to the Moon (1958) C-100m. ½ D: Byron Haskin. Joseph Cotten, George Sanders, Debra Paget, Don Dubbins, Patric Knowles, Melville Cooper, Carl Esmond, Henry Daniell. Jules Verne's fiction doesn't float well in contrived sci-fi of early rocket flight to the moon. Veteran cast looks most uncomfortable. ▼

From the Hip (1987) C-112m. BOMB D: Bob Clark. Judd Nelson, Elizabeth Perkins, John Hurt, Darren McGavin, Ray Walston, Dan Monahan, David Alan Grier, Nancy Marchand, Allan Arbus, Edward Winter. Once again, Nelson plays a character only a mother could love: a lawyer who's made a name for himself by winning a hopeless case through outrageous courtroom tactics. Now he's given another challenge: defending

Hurt, who's accused of murder. Hurt's flamboyant performance can't save this mongrel of a movie. J-D-C Scope. [PG] ▼

From the Life of the Marionettes (1980-German) C/B&W-104m. ½ D: Ingmar Bergman. Robert Atzorn, Christine Buchegger, Martin Benrath, Rita Russek, Lola Muethel, Walter Schmidinger, Heinz Bennent. Powerful, provocative drama about a respectable, successful businessman (Atzorn), who ravishes and strangles a prostitute. He has also been obsessed with killing his wife (Buchegger), with whom he constantly quarrels. Not coincidentally, both were minor characters in SCENES FROM A MARRIAGE. [R] ▼

From the Mixed-Up Files of Mrs. Basil E. Frankweiler (1973) C-105m. *½ D: Fielder Cook. Ingrid Bergman, Sally Prager, Johnny Doran, George Rose, Georgann Johnson, Richard Mulligan, Madeline Kahn. Fanciful tale of New Jersey kids Prager and Doran who hide out in N.Y.C.'s Metropolitan Museum, creating a dream world and befriending recluse Bergman, seen too briefly. Best for children. Blanche Hanalis adapted E. L. Konigsburg's novel. Reissued as THE HIDEAWAYS. Remade in 1995 for TV with Lauren Bacall. [G] ▼

From the Terrace (1960) C-144m.  D: Mark Robson. Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward, Myrna Loy, Ina Balin, Leon Ames, Elizabeth Allen, Barbara Eden, George Grizzard, Patrick O'Neal, Felix Aylmer, Mae Marsh. John O'Hara's ironic chronicle of young war veteran's rise to financial and social success is superficial film. Woodward is chic and Newman wooden; Loy is superb as drunken mother, Ames fine as bitter dad. CinemaScope. ▼

Front, The (1976) C-94m. * D: Martin Ritt. Woody Allen, Zero Mostel, Herschel Bernardi, Michael Murphy, Andrea Marcovicci, Remak Ramsay, Joshua Shelley, Lloyd Gough, Danny Aiello, Charles Kimbrough, Josef Sommer. Bull's-eye comedy with serious theme. Allen is a schnook enlisted by blacklisted writers to put his name on their scripts during 1950s witch-hunt era, leading to various complications. Allen's casting is perfect, and Mostel is standout as "tainted" comic fighting for survival. Original script by blacklisted Walter Bernstein; Ritt, Mostel, Bernardi, Shelley, and Gough were also blacklisted in real life. [PG] ▼

Frontier Hellcat (1966-German) C-98m. ½ D: Alfred Vohrer. Stewart Granger, Elke Sommer, Pierre Brice, Gotz George. Another Karl May Winnetou story, which captures flavor of Old West in adventure of pioneers passing through Rockies. Ultra-scope.

Frontier Marshal (1939) 71m.  D: Allan Dwan. Randolph Scott, Nancy Kelly, Cesar Romero, Binnie Barnes, John Car-

radine, Lon Chaney, Jr., Chris-Pin Martin, Eddie Foy, Jr. Colorful retelling of events leading to legendary gunfight at the O.K. Corral. Scott is fine as Tombstone's new marshal, Wyatt Earp; Romero is more moody than cold-blooded as Doc Halliday, and Kelly is the girl from his past who reminds Doc of his earlier, saner days as—an obstetrician! Many scenes and bits of dialogue were used in the 1946 remake, MY DARLING CLEMENTINE. Ward Bond, who plays Earp's brother in the later film, appears briefly as a cowardly town marshal. ▀

Front Page, The (1974) C-105m.  D: Billy Wilder. Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, Carol Burnett, Susan Sarandon, Vincent Gardenia, David Wayne, Allen Garfield, Austin Pendleton, Charles Durning, Harold Gould, Herb Edelman, Dick O'Neill, Jon Korkes, Martin Gabel. Third filming of the Hecht-MacArthur play about wild and woolly Chicago newspapermen in the 1920s has hardly anything new to offer (except four-letter words) but remains an enjoyable vehicle for this fine cast. Only Burnett misses the boat as pathetic hooker Molly Malloy. Remade again (!) in 1988 as SWITCHING CHANNELS. Panavision. [PG] ▽ ● ●

Frost/Nixon (2008) C-122m. * D: Ron Howard. Frank Langella, Michael Sheen, Kevin Bacon, Rebecca Hall, Toby Jones, Matthew Macfadyen, Oliver Platt, Sam Rockwell, Patty McCormack, Joe Spano, Clint Howard, Andy Milder. Ebullient TV host David Frost, in a career lull, persuades disgraced former President Richard Nixon to agree to a series of television interviews. His backup team hopes to elicit a public apology for his misdeeds, while Nixon's loyalists intend to restore his tarnished reputation. Incredibly gripping drama conceived by Peter Morgan, who wrote THE QUEEN, and so effectively reinvented as a movie—by Morgan and director Howard—that you'd never know it originated on the stage. Langella and Sheen are superb and utterly believable, even if you remember the real-life figures they portray. Super 35. [R] ▀

Frozen Assets (1992) C-96m. *½ D: George Miller. Shelley Long, Corbin Bernsen, Larry Miller, Dody Goodman, Matt Clark, Paul Sand, Teri Copley, Gloria Camden, Gerrit Graham. Low-octane comic trifle, in which Bernsen is transferred to a new bank—only to discover it's a sperm bank (get it?). He meets repressed biologist Long and after a lot of potency jokes they find themselves drawn to each other. Misguided movie vehicle for two proven TV stars. Corbin's mother, The Young and the Restless' Jeanne Cooper, has a small role. [PG-13] ▽

Frozen Dead, The (1966-British) C-95m.  D: Herbert J. Leder. Dana Andrews, Anna Palk, Philip Gilbert, Kathleen Breck, Karel Stepanek, Edward Fox. Bizarre account of scientist Andrews who froze group of top Nazis, now trying to revive them and the Third Reich; sloppy production values mar tale. Released theatrically in b&w. ▀

Frozen River (2008) C-96m.  D: Courtney Hunt. Melissa Leo, Misty Upham, Michael O'Keefe, Charlie McDermott, Mark Boone Junior, James Reilly, Jay Klaitz. The setting is upstate New York near the Canadian border. Working-class Leo, whose husband has run off with their money—leaving her with broken dreams and two kids to raise—gets an offer she can't refuse from a sullen young Mohawk woman (Upham) to make "easy" money transporting people across the border under perilous conditions. Low-key but utterly compelling drama with two finely etched performances. Based on writer-director Hunt's 2004 short subject of the same name. [R] ▀

Fruit Machine, The (1988-British) C-103m.  D: Philip Saville. Emile Charles, Tony Forsyth, Robert Stephens, Claire Higgins, Bruce Payne, Robbie Coltrane. Diverting contemporary thriller about two gay but very different Liverpool teens (Charles and Forsyth, in spirited performances) who witness a gangland murder and must flee for their lives. Scripted by Frank (LETTER TO BREZHNEV) Clarke. Video title: WONDERLAND. ▽ ●

F.T.A. (1972) C-94m.  D: Francine Parker. Jane Fonda, Donald Sutherland, Len Chandler, Holly Near, Pamela Donagan, Michael Alaimo. Unusual, rarely-seen documentary of Fonda and Sutherland's Free (or F) the Army revue, presented near Army bases and featuring antiwar skits and songs. Interesting only as a curio. ▀

Fuel (2008) C-112m.  D: Joshua Tickell. Documentary about the odyssey of activist-turned-filmmaker Tickell, a long-time exponent of biofuel as a source of clean energy. Revised after its 2008 Sundance debut (as FIELDS OF FUEL), when biofuel got a black eye in the media. Interviewees include scientists, cutting-edge innovators, and proactive celebrities (including Julia Roberts, Sheryl Crow, Woody Harrelson, Larry Hagman, and Neil Young). More interesting for its content than its fluidity as cinema, but undeniably educational and provocative.

Fugitive, The (1947) 104m. ½ D: John Ford. Henry Fonda, Dolores Del Rio, Pedro Armendariz, J. Carrol Naish, Leo Carrillo, Ward Bond. Brooding drama set in Mexico with revolutionist priest turned in by man who once sheltered him. Superbly shot by Gabriel Figueroa. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●

Fugitive, The (1993) C-127m. ½ D: Andrew Davis. Harrison Ford, Tommy Lee Jones, Sela Ward, Julianne Moore, Joe Pantoliano, Jeroen Krabbé, Andreas Katsulas, Daniel Roebuck, L. Scott Caldwell. Slick, solid update of the 1960s TV series about a doctor wrongly convicted of murdering his wife; he takes it on the lam, with a dogged federal marshal (Jones, in an Oscar-winning performance) and his team on his trail. Great action and stunts, including an eye-popping bus crash/train wreck, but it's the cat-and-mouse game between two strong personalities—Ford and Jones—that makes this work. Scripted by Jeb Stuart and David Twohy from Twohy's story; based on coexecutive producer Roy Huggins' original TV premise. Followed by U.S. MARSHALS. [PG-13] ▼●●

Fugitive Kind, The (1959) 121m. ½ D: Sidney Lumet. Marlon Brando, Anna Magnani, Joanne Woodward, Maureen Stapleton, Victor Jory, R. G. Armstrong. Uneven filming of Tennessee Williams' Orpheus Descending, with strange casting. Wandering bum (Brando) arrives in Southern town, sparking romances with middle-aged married woman (Magnani) and spunky Woodward. Movie goes nowhere. Remade for cable TV in 1990 as ORPHEUS DESCENDING. ▼●

Fugitive Pieces (2008-Canadian-Greek) C-106m. ½ D: Jeremy Podeswa. Stephen Dillane, Rade Sherbedgia, Rosamund Pike, Ayelet Zurer, Robbie Kay, Ed Stoppard, Rachelle Lefevre, Themis Bazaka, Nina Dobrev. Jewish writer (Dillane) deals with his present-day demons while immersed in the memory of his boyhood during WW2: witnessing his parents' slaughter, wondering about the fate of his sister, being rescued by a kindly Greek archaeologist (Sherbedgia). Somber mood perfectly reflects the mind-set of the main character, but the film is too drawn out and one-dimensionally downbeat. Podeswa scripted, based on Anne Michaels' acclaimed novel. [R] ●

Fuller Brush Girl, The (1950) 85m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. Lucille Ball, Eddie Albert, Jeff Donnell, Jerome Cowan, Lee Patrick. Low-grade slapstick with energetic Lucy as door-to-door salesgirl, mixed up with thieves. ▼●

Fuller Brush Man, The (1948) 93m. ½ D: S.Sylvan Simon. Red Skelton, Janet Blair, Don McGuire, Adele Jergens, Ross Ford, Hillary Brooke. Usual Skelton slapstick, with Red involved in murder while valiantly trying to succeed as a door-to-door salesman. ▼●

Full Fathom Five (1990) C-82m. BOMB D: Carl Franklin. Michael Moriarty, Maria Rangel, Michael Cavanaugh, John LaFayette, Todd Field, Daniel Faraldo, Orlando Sacha. Roger Corman's "Red October" is a waterlogged mess: a group of renegades seize a Russian sub and threaten the nuclear annihilation of Houston, while the U.S. is preparing to invade Panama. Far too cheap for its ambitions. [PG] ▼

Full Frontal (2002) C-101m. *½ D: Steven Soderbergh. Julia Roberts, David Duchovny, David Hyde Pierce, Catherine Keener, Nicky Katt, Mary McCormack, Blair Underwood, Brad Pitt, David Fincher, Terence Stamp, Enrico Colantoni, Erika Alexander, Brad Rowe, Cynthia Gibb, Jerry Weintraub, Sandra Oh. Self-indulgent, Hollywood-insider piffle offers a film within a film as we meet such L.A. denizens as a magazine writer and a movie star (both played by Roberts), an unhappily married couple (Pierce and Keener), and a movie producer (Duchovny) who's invited everyone to his 40th birthday party. Occasional moments of genuine emotion are undermined by showing us that it's "only a movie" after all. An unsatisfying mess. Shot on digital video. [R] ▼●

Full Metal Jacket (1987) C-116m.  D: Stanley Kubrick. Matthew Modine, Adam Baldwin, Vincent D'Onofrio, Lee Erney, Dorian Harewood, Arliss Howard, Kevyn Major Howard, Ed O'Ross. Adaptation of Gustav Hasford's The Short Timers is divided into two sections: a harrowing look at Marine basic training on Parris Island; and combat experiences in Vietnam. The first half is so strong (thanks in part to real-life former D.I. Erney) that the second half suffers in comparison, as it covers more familiar ground, while keeping emotions in check. Still, it's compelling, well acted, and supremely well crafted, certainly in keeping with Kubrick's recurring theme of dehumanization. Original music by Abigail Mead, aka Vivian Kubrick, the director's daughter. Filmed in England. [R] ▼●●

Full Monty, The (1997-British-U.S.) C-95m. ½ D: Peter Cattaneo. Robert Carlyle, Tom Wilkinson, Mark Addy, Lesley Sharp, Emily Woof, Steve Huison, Paul Barber, Hugo Speer, Deirdre Costello. Bull's-eye comedy about unemployed Sheffield steel-mill workers who, out of desperation, the need for money, and an equal need to have something to do, decide to become male strippers. Funny, well cast, and never mean spirited, this film earns its laughs honestly. Clever screenplay by Simon Beaufoy. Oscar-winning score by Anne Dudley. Later a Broadway musical. [R]▼●●

Full Moon High (1981) C-94m.  D: Larry Cohen. Adam Arkin, Ed McMahon, Elizabeth Hartman, Roz Kelly, Bill Kirchenbauer, Kenneth Mars, Joanne Nail, Alan Arkin. Infectiously silly teenage werewolf comedy, with Arkin as a high-school football star whose strange, right-wing father (McMahon) takes him to Transylvania and inadvertently changes his life. Lots of off-the-wall laughs and cameos by various comedy performers. [PG]▼

Full Moon in Blue Water (1988) C-93m.  D: Peter Masterson. Gene Hackman, Teri Garr, Burgess Meredith, Elias Koteas, Kevin Cooney, David Doty. Hackman is wallowing in self-pity over his drowned wife, as creditors duplicitously plot foreclosure on his coastal Texas bar. Also involved in the talky interchange are feisty bus driver Garr, Hackman's elderly father-in-law Meredith, and mentally shaky employee Koteas. This screen original by playwright Bill Bozzone feels like bad theater. [R]▼●●

Full Moon in Paris (1984-French) C-102m.  D: Eric Rohmer. Pascale Ogier, Fabrice Luchini, Tecky Karyo, Christian Vadim, Virginie Thevenet. Neat little comedy from Rohmer about a headstrong young woman (Ogier), and her relationships with three men. Wonderful dialogue and characterizations, with a charming Ogier performance. [R]▼●

Full of It (2007) C-93m.  D: Christian Charles. Ryan Pinkston, Kate Mara, Teri Polo, Craig Kilborn, John Carroll Lynch, Cynthia Stevenson, Amanda Walsh, Derek McGrath, Joshua Close, Matt Gordon, Carmen Electra. Passable teen comedy was probably pitched as LIAR, LIAR set in high school. Loser student with an active imagination suddenly finds all the whoppers he's been telling start coming true, making him the most popular guy on campus. Largely uninspired gags deal with every possible teenage fantasy. [PG-13]●

Full of Life (1956) 91m.  D: Richard Quine. Judy Holliday, Richard Conte, Salvatore Baccaloni, Esther Minciotti. Holliday's pregnant wife antics almost matched by Baccaloni's as excitable father-in-law with his own way of running things. ▼

Fun (1993) C-105m.  D: Rafal Zielinski. Alicia Witt, Renee Humphrey, William R. Moses, Leslie Hope, Ania Suli. Jarring account of seemingly average young suburban teens who have just murdered a trusting elderly woman, for the "fun" of it! A thoughtful, disquieting film, every bit as impressive as HEAVENLY CREATURES, featuring riveting performances by its talented young leads. A biting commentary on "celebrity" in America. ▼●

Funeral, The (1984-Japanese) C-124m.  D: Juzo Itami. Nobuko Miyamoto, Tsutomu Yamazaki, Kin Sugai, Ichiro Zaitzu, Nekohachi Edoya. Itami's debut feature is an on-target black comedy that chides solemn, traditional Japanese funeral rites. The scenario details what ensues when a modern family is compelled to hold a Buddhist funeral for its patriarch—who happened to own a brothel. ▼●

Funeral, The (1996) C-99m. ½ D: Abel Ferrara. Christopher Walken, Chris Penn, Annabella Sciorra, Isabella Rossellini, Vincent Gallo, Benicio Del Toro, Gretchen Mol, John Ventimiglia, Paul Hipp, Victor Argo, Edie Falco, Moody 1930s gangster film which follows what happens as thug siblings Walken and Penn respond to the murder of their Communist kid brother (Gallo). Occasionally meanders, and the flashbacks are confusing, but there's atmosphere to spare, and Ferrara vividly depicts a macho world in which one must be unfeeling and conquer his fears in order to attain "manhood." He also deals with his familiar themes of God and religion in a world of brutality. [R]▼●●

Funeral Home (1982-Canadian) C-93m.  D: William Fruet. Lesleh Donaldson, Kay Hawtrey, Barry Morse, Dean Garbett, Stephen Miller, Harvey Atkin. Teenager Donaldson investigates when guests begin disappearing from grandmother Hawtrey's summer motel. OK of its type; aka CRIES IN THE NIGHT. [R]▼●

Funeral in Berlin (1966) C-102m.  D: Guy Hamilton. Michael Caine, Eva Renzi, Paul Hubschmid, Oscar Homolka, Guy Doleman. Second of three Harry Palmer films (based on Len Deighton's novels) featuring Caine as the British spy arranging for defection of Russian officer in charge of Berlin war security. Caine and Homolka are good, Renzi attractive, but slow-moving tale just doesn't click. Followed by BILLION DOLLAR BRAIN. Panavision. ▼●●

Funhouse, The (1981) C-96m. ½ D: Tobe Hooper. Elizabeth Berridge, Cooper Huckabee, Miles Chapin, Largo Woodruff, Sylvia Miles, William Finley, Kevin Conway. Intense drama about four teenagers who decide to spend night in funhouse of a sleazy traveling carnival. Once inside, there is sex, violence, suspense and an increasing tension as they encounter the unknown. Stylish visuals help create an eerie atmosphere in this not entirely successful chiller. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Fun in Acapulco (1963) C-97m. ½ D: Richard Thorpe. Elvis Presley, Ursula Andress, Paul Lukas, Alejandro Rey. Scenery outshines story of Presley working as life-guard and entertainer in Mexican resort city and performing the likes of "No Room to Rhumba in a Sports Car" and "You Can't Say No in Acapulco." Lukas is amusing as temperamental chef. ▼

Fun Loving SEE: Quackser Fortune Has a Cousin in the Bronx

Funny About Love (1990) C-101m. *½ D: Leonard Nimoy. Gene Wilder, Christine Lahti, Mary Stuart Masterson, Robert Prosky, Stephen Tobolowsky, Anne Jackson, Susan Rutan, Jean De Baer, David Margulies. Cartoonist Wilder and caterer Lahti can't conceive, despite the latest techniques of their laugh-a-minute fertility doctor; ensuing problems force Gene to take up with college sorority sister Masterson, obviously many years younger. Terminally mild comedy with odd, ham-handed flickers of black humor. [PG-13] ▼

Funny Face (1957) C-103m. ½ D: Stanley Donen. Audrey Hepburn, Fred Astaire, Kay Thompson, Michel Auclair, Suzy Parker, Ruta Lee. Stylized and highly stylized musical with Astaire as fashion photographer who turns Hepburn into chic Paris model. Top Gershwin score ("How Long Has This Been Going On," "He Loves and She Loves," "S'Wonderful," title tune), striking use of color, entertaining performance by Thompson as magazine editor. Cinematography by Ray June and John P. Fulton. Leonard Gershe based his screenplay on an unproduced stage musical—and Astaire's role was based on Richard Avedon, who's credited as visual consultant. VistaVision. ▼

Funny Farm, The (1982-Canadian) C-95m.  D: Ron Clark. Miles Chapin, Eileen Brennan, Jack Carter, Tracy Bregman, Howie Mandel, Marjorie Gross, Lou Dinos, Peter Aykroyd. Young man from Ohio comes to L.A. to make it as a stand-up comic. Slow-moving film introduces many unknown comics who do short bits at a "comedy store" owned by Brennan. Some funny moments, but overall is nothing much. [R] ▼

Funny Farm (1988) C-101m. ½ D: George Roy Hill. Chevy Chase, Madolyn Smith, Joseph Maher, Jack Gilpin, Brad Sullivan, MacIntyre Dixon, Glenn Plummer, Mike

Starr, Sarah Michelle Gellar. Oddly easygoing—and thus mildly endearing—Chase comedy about a N.Y. sportswriter who discovers, MR. BLANDINGS style, that country living isn't quite what it's cracked up to be. Has the look of quality (it was photographed by Miroslav Ondricek, designed by Henry Bumstead) but too many gags fizzle. Final episode is the best. [PG] ▼

Funny Games (1997-Austrian) C-104m.  D: Michael Haneke. Susanne Lothar, Ulrich Mühe, Arno Frisch, Frank Giering, Stefan Clapczynski, Doris Kunstmann, Christoph Bantzer, Wolfgang Glück. Two repugnant creeps bully their way into the country house of a middle-class family, who find themselves under siege physically and psychologically. Writer-director Haneke attempts to offer pungent commentary on the way contemporary society has been desensitized by violent images on TV and in movies, but this film is barely credible—and highly unpleasant. Remade by Haneke in 2008. ▼

Funny Games (2008-French-Italian-British) C-107m.  D: Michael Haneke. Naomi Watts, Tim Roth, Michael Pitt, Brady Corbet, Devon Gearhart, Boyd Gaines, Siobhan Fallon Hogan, Robert LuPone. Suburban family is terrorized and systematically tortured by two seemingly normal young men who gain entry into their vacation home. Shot-by-shot remake of Haneke's 1997 Austrian thriller has been transported to a picturesque U.S. lakeside setting but still leaves a sickening aftertaste. With characters breaking the fourth wall and speaking directly to the audience, the filmmaker is trying to make a comment on extreme violence in movies in a story that provides plenty itself. Effectively made, but for strong stomachs only. [R] ▼

Funny Girl (1968) C-155m.  D: William Wyler. Barbra Streisand, Omar Sharif, Kay Medford, Anne Francis, Walter Pidgeon, Lee Allen, Gerald Mohr. Streisand's Oscar-winning film debut as Fanny Brice, singer-comedienne whose unhappy private life contrasted comic antics onstage. Bad as biography, but first-rate as musical, including fine Bob Merrill-Jule Styne score ("People," title tune), memorable tugboat finale to "Don't Rain on My Parade," plus Brice standards "My Man" and "Second Hand Rose." Sequel: FUNNY LADY. Panavision. [G] ▼

Funny Lady (1975) C-137m. ½ D: Herbert Ross. Barbra Streisand, James Caan, Omar Sharif, Roddy McDowall, Ben Vereen, Carole Wells, Colleen Camp. FUNNY GIRL sequel shows Fanny Brice at height of career, meeting and marrying ambitious showman Billy Rose (Caan). Disjointed film has fine moments of music and comedy, but a cliché-ridden script to contend with. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Funnyman (1967) C-98m.  D: John

Korty. Peter Bonerz, Sandra Archer, Carol Androsky, Larry Hankin, Barbara Hiken, Gerald Hiken. Winning little film about improvisational comic (Bonerz) who's nagged by the idea that he should be doing something more "important." Features great skits by The Committee and funny animated spoofs by director Korty.

Funny Money (2007-German) C-98m. *½ D: Leslie Greif. Chevy Chase, Penelope Ann Miller, Armand Assante, Robert Loggia, Christopher McDonald, Alex Meneses, Kevin Sussman, Guy Torry, Rebecca Wisocky, Tim Stack. Droning worker bee at a wax-fruit factory (Chase) accidentally brings home the wrong briefcase one night—filled with 5 million dollars. Foreign crooks, a crooked cop, a horny boss, a randy art dealer, a comedic cabdriver, and assorted others descend upon Chase's home in the ruckus that follows. Ray Cooney's lowbrow British stage farce doesn't translate well to film. Made in 2005—mostly in Romania! [R] ●

Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, A (1966) C-99m. ½ D: Richard Lester. Zero Mostel, Phil Silvers, Buster Keaton, Jack Gilford, Michael Crawford, Annette Andre, Michael Hordern. Frenzied adaptation of Broadway musical about conniving slave (Mostel) in ancient Rome; tries too hard, comes off forced. Still, with great comic cast, there's plenty worth seeing. Self-spoof on song "Lovely" is a highlight; score by Stephen Sondheim. ●●

Fun With Dick and Jane (1977) C-95m. ½ D: Ted Kotcheff. Jane Fonda, George Segal, Ed McMahon, Dick Gautier, Allan Miller, John Dehner. Lightly amusing comedy about Segal losing his job, he and wife Fonda trying to cope with no income and finally turning to crime. Falls apart after promising start, becoming fragmented and pointless. Watch for Jay Leno in a bit. Remade in 2005. [PG] ▼

Fun With Dick and Jane (2005) C-90m. ½ D: Dean Parisot. Jim Carrey, Téa Leoni, Alec Baldwin, Richard Jenkins, Angie Harmon, John Michael Higgins, Richard Burgi, Laurie Metcalf, Clint Howard. Not exactly a leader in the "crying need of remaking" department, this is obviously an Enron-influenced riff on the 1977 original about an upward middle-class couple who turn robbers after they're caught in an economic squeeze. Carrey gets promoted to VP in a company that barely exists, about a day before boss Baldwin helicopters away with the profits. Fitfully amusing comedy gets off to a fair start but loses its way into scattershot farce. Leoni makes a good fit with Carrey's manic persona. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

exander. Attempting to explore famed photographer Arbus' artistic awakening in metaphoric terms, this film (set in 1958) follows her evolution from a stifled upper-class N.Y.C. wife and mother to an artist who's open to a world of society's outcasts that her parents taught her to shun. Downey plays a fugitive from a freak show with a furry body who moves in upstairs. He's a fictitious character in this "imaginary portrait" that tells us little about a very interesting woman. Ambitious and intriguing, with Kidman perfectly cast, but a strange, unsatisfying film. "Inspired by" Patricia Bosworth's biography of Arbus. [R] ●

Furies, The (1950) 109m. ½ D: Anthony Mann. Barbara Stanwyck, Walter Huston, Wendell Corey, Gilbert Roland, Judith Anderson, Beulah Bondi, Thomas Gomez, Albert Dekker, Blanche Yurka, Wallace Ford. Fiery Stanwyck has always been able to sweet-talk her cattle-baron father, who presides over a vast New Mexico ranch called The Furies—but lately he isn't listening, and she locks horns with him. Operatic-style Western saga of love and hate, adapted by Charles Schnee from a Niven Busch novel and directed with flair by Mann. Striking cinematography by Victor Milner. This was Huston's final film. ●

Further Adventures of Tennessee Buck, The (1988) C-88m. ½ D: David Keith. David Keith, Kathy Shower, Brant van Hoffman, Sydney Lassick, Tiziana Stella, Patrizia Zanetti. Fun imitation of the INDIANA JONES films; big white hunter Keith goes on safari in Borneo with former Playboy Playmate of the Year Shower and her rich nerd husband van Hoffman. They meet up with a cannibal tribe whose women give Shower a vivid oil rubdown (the film's highlight). Actor-director Keith maintains a breezy tone. [R] ●●

Further Adventures of the Wilderness Family, The (1978) C-105m.  D: Frank Zuniga. Robert Logan, Susan D. Shaw, Heather Rattray, Ham Larsen, George (Buck) Flower, Brian Cutler. This clone of 1975's family hit ADVENTURES OF . . . has same cast, same elements, same magnificent Colorado scenery. So who's to argue with success? Aka THE WILDERNESS FAMILY, PART 2; followed by MOUNTAIN FAMILY ROBINSON. ▼

Further Perils of Laurel and Hardy, The (1968) 99m. ½ D: Robert Youngson. Laurel and Hardy, Charley Chase, Max Davidson, James Finlayson. Repetitious format of "episodes" dulls edge of great material, but still fun, with rare L&H silent footage, pleasing interludes by Chase and Davidson. ● of lynch mobs and mob rule in small town, making an embittered man of innocent Tracy, spoiling his love for sweetheart Sidney. Lang's first American film; he also scripted with Bartlett Cormack, from a Norman Krasna story. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Fury, The (1978) C-118m.  D: Brian De Palma. Kirk Douglas, John Cassavetes, Carrie Snodgrass, Amy Irving, Fiona Lewis, Andrew Stevens, Charles Durning, Gordon Jump, Dennis Franz. Stylish trash about young woman (Irving) with psychokinetic powers, and Douglas' desperate attempt to save his similarly gifted son from being used—or destroyed. Bloody and violent—the ultimate litmus test for those who prefer form over content. Film debut of Daryl Hannah; look fast for James Belushi as an extra. [R] ▼●●

Fury at Smuggler's Bay (1961-British) 92m.  D: John Gilling. Peter Cushing, Michele Mercier, Bernard Lee, George Coulouris, Liz Fraser. Sea yarn of pirates scavenging passing ships and reaping rewards off the English coastline. Panascope.

Future Cop SEE: Trancers

Future Shock (1994) C-93m.  D: Eric Parkinson, Francis "Oley" Sassone, Matt Reeves. Vivian Schilling, Scott Thompson, Martin Kove, Sam Clay, Bill Paxton, Brion James, Sidney Lassick, James Karen, Amanda Foreman, Tim Doyle. This three-story film's setup: Evil experimenters test virtual-reality scenarios on unsuspecting psychiatric patients. A frightened woman can't get her husband to understand her fears of urban violence and wolves in Malibu; a mild nerd is victimized by his punkish new roommate; a photographer becomes obsessed with guarding against accidental death. Only the final segment shows real imagination. Unrated version runs 97m. [PG-13] ▼●●

Futureworld (1976) C-104m.  D: Richard T. Heffron. Peter Fonda, Blythe Danner, Arthur Hill, Yul Brynner, Stuart Margolin, John Ryan. Suspenseful sequel to WEST-WORLD has overtones of INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS as robot duplicates try to take over. Short on action but intelligently done. [PG] ▼●●

Futz (1969) C-92m. *½ D: Tom O'Horgan. Seth Allen, John Bakos, Mari-Claire Charba, Peter Craig, Sally Kirkland. Director O'Horgan, whose youthful touch made this a mild off-Broadway hit, brings bizarre tale to screen with disastrous results. No plot worth describing, except that there's a man in love with a pig. ▼

Fuzz (1972) C-92m.  D: Richard A. Colla. Burt Reynolds, Raquel Welch, Yul Brynner, Jack Weston, Tom Skerritt, Peter Bonerz, Steve Ihnat, James McEachin, Bert Remsen. Oddball film tries to mix laughs and excitement, to be the MASH of police dramas, but doesn't have the style to pull it off; another disappointment for Reynolds fans. Script by Evan Hunter from one of his 87th Precinct stories, written as "Ed McBain." [PG] ▼●

F/X (1986) C-106m.  D: Robert Mandel. Bryan Brown, Brian Dennehy, Diane Venora, Cliff De Young, Mason Adams, Jerry Orbach, Joe Grifasi, Josie DeGuzman, Martha Gehman. Movie special-effects man is hired to stage a phony "hit" with a Mafia man the target—but quickly learns that he's been double-crossed. Fast-moving, entertaining yarn that's a lot of fun, as long as you don't think about it for a moment afterward. Dennehy and Grifasi make a hilarious pair of Mutt and Jeff cops. Angela Bassett's film debut. Followed by a sequel and a TV series. [R] ▼●●

G (2005) C-96m.  D: Christopher Scott Cherot. Richard T. Jones, Blair Underwood, Andre Royo, Chenoa Maxwell, Laz Alonso, Nicoye Banks, Andrew Lauren, Jillian Lindsey. Shady character in the music industry rediscovers the great love from his past . . . but she's got a new man. Uncredited remake of THE GREAT GATSBY moves Fitzgerald's Jazz Age tragedy farther east on Long Island to the Hamptons, where the hip-hop-inflected romance remains faithful to its source in spirit if not in word (and that word would begin with F). Attractive, ultra-glam mounting with catchy music helps, but a bland Jones is no Redford—or Alan Ladd, for that matter. Written by the director. Shot in 2002. Super 35. [R] ●

Gabbah (1996-Iranian-French) C-75m. ½ D: Mohsen Makhmalbaf. Shaghayegh Djodat, Hossein Moharami, Roghieh Moharami, Abbas Sayahi. Simple, sweet allegory in which an elderly woman washes a gabbah (carpet) by the side of a river. From the gabbah emerges a young woman, a member of a nomadic tribe who recounts a series of related stories. This elegantly lyrical, stunningly visual fable allows a peek into a non-Western culture and the way it records its history. ▼●

Gable and Lombard (1976) C-131m. BOMB D: Sidney J. Furie. James Brolin, Jill Clayburgh, Allen Garfield, Red Buttons, Joanne Linville, Melanie Mayron. Pure tripe about offscreen romance of two great stars. Brolin and Clayburgh are game

but one-dimensional; script and direction are hopeless. [R]●

Gabriela (1983-Brazilian-Italian) C-102m.  D: Bruno Barreto, Marcello Mastroianni, Sonia Braga, Antonio Cantafora, Ricardo Petraglia. Obvious tale of barkeeper Mastroianni taking on luscious, free-spirited Braga as a cook and lover. Braga's body and smile are the main interests here. Based on Jorge Amado's novel, which was developed into a top soap opera on Brazilian television. [R]▼

Gabrielle (2005-French-Italian-German) C-90m. ½ D: Patrice Chéreau. Isabelle Huppert, Pascal Greggory, Claudia Coli, Thierry Hancisse, Chantal Neuwirth, Thierry Fortineau. In fin-de-siècle France, a smug and wealthy publisher who thinks of his wife as his prized possession is shocked when she suddenly leaves him for another man. But she returns later that day, leading to an unexpected conclusion. Polished, penetrating, but cold and talky series of scenes from a marriage; expanded from Joseph Conrad's short story "The Return," changing the setting from London to Paris and shifting the dramatic focus from the pompous husband to the repressed wife. Chéreau coscripted. Panavision.●

Gabriel Over the White House (1933) 87m.  D: Gregory La Cava. Walter Huston, Karen Morley, Franchot Tone, C. Henry Gordon, Samuel S. Hinds, Jean Parker, Dickie Moore. Dizzying Depression fantasy of crooked Huston elected President, experiencing mysterious change that turns him into Superpresident, determined to eliminate racketeers, find world peace. Bizarre, fascinating.▼●

Gaby (1956) C-97m. ½ D: Curtis Bernhardt. Leslie Caron, John Kerr, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Taina Elg. Remake of WALTERLOO BRIDGE, telling of ballerina Caron and her romance with soldier Kerr in WW2 England. Not bad but not up to original. CinemaScope.

Gaby—A True Story (1987) C-110m.  D: Luis Mandoki. Liv Ullmann, Norma Aleandro, Robert Loggia, Rachel Levin (Chagall), Lawrence Monoson, Robert Beltran, Tony Goldwyn. Incredible true story of Gaby Brimmer, born with cerebral palsy to wealthy European refugee parents in Mexico, leaving her body almost completely paralyzed—but not affecting her mind. Levin, who is not disabled in real life, gives a stunning performance in the lead (matched by Monoson as her boyfriend), with Aleandro a tower of strength as the woman who devotes her life to Gaby. An often painful but worthwhile film. Brimmer executive-produced. [R]▼●

of Gypsy villagers, becomes "adopted" by a loud old drunk, and falls in love with a peasant woman. Things get complicated when the drunk's real son, a Gypsy mafioso, arrives fresh from jail. Overdone and melodramatic, this story too often plays on one note. Aka CRAZY STRANGER.▼●

Gaily, Gaily (1969) C-107m.  D: Norman Jewison. Beau Bridges, Melina Mercouri, Brian Keith, George Kennedy, Hume Cronyn, Margot Kidder, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Melodie Johnson. Ben Hecht's colorful memories of apprenticeship on Chicago newspaper are destroyed by silly, hollow script that even changes "Hecht" to "Harvey." Expensive sets, period flavor are only bright spots in contrived comedy. Kidder's film debut. [M]

Galaxina (1980) C-95m. *½ D: William Sachs. Stephen Macht, Dorothy R. Stratten, James David Hinton, Avery Schreiber. Cheap STAR WARS/STAR TREK spoof reeks of low production values, boring scenario, and non-acting. Definitely not a vehicle for the late Ms. Stratten, though the film is of interest for her appearance as a robot. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Galaxy of Terror (1981) C-80m. *½ D: B. D. Clark. Edward Albert, Erin Moran, Ray Walston, Bernard Behrens, Zalman King, Sid Haig. Aka MINDWARP: AN INFINITY OF TERROR and PLANET OF HORRORS. Followed by FORBIDDEN WORLD. [R]▼●

Galaxy Quest (1999) C-104m.  D: Dean Parisot. Tim Allen, Sigourney Weaver, Alan Rickman, Tony Shalhoub, Sam Rockwell, Daryl Mitchell, Enrico Colantoni, Robin Sachs, Patrick Breen, Missi Pyle. Engaging comedy about the washed-up cast of a Star Trek-like TV show now reduced to making personal appearances at fan conventions; suddenly they're whisked off to a starship where an alien civilization (believing their television adventures to be real) seeks their help to save the aliens from oblivion. By Grabthar's hammer, it's clever, funny, and sweet. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Galileo (1973-British) C-145m.  D: Joseph Losey. Topol, Edward Fox, Colin Blakely, Georgia Brown, Clive Revill, Margaret Leighton, John Gielgud, Michael Gough, Judy Parfitt, Patrick Magee, Tom Conti. Bertolt Brecht's play, whose 1947 U.S. premiere was staged by director Losey, turned into unremarkable but generally satisfactory film. Topol is a little much as the scientist whose theories of the universe confound the church, but supporting actors are excellent. An American Film Theatre Production. [PG]▼●

Gallant Hours, The (1960) 111m.  D: Robert Montgomery. James Cagney, Dennis Weaver, Ward Costello, Richard Jaeckel.

Sincere, low-key biog of WW2 Admiral "Bull" Halsey played documentary-style. Cagney is reserved and effective, but production needs livening. ▼

Gallery of Horror SEE: Return From the Past

Gallipoli (1981-Australian) C-110m. ½ D: Peter Weir. Mark Lee, Mel Gibson, Bill Kerr, Robert Grubb, David Argue, Tim McKenzie. Youthful idealists Lee and Gibson enlist in the military, meet their fate in title WW1 battle. Engrossing human drama with meticulous direction, striking feel for period detail. Final freeze-frame shot is reminiscent of Robert Capa's classic Spanish Civil War photo of soldier at the moment of death. Panavision. [PG] ▼ ● ●

Gal Young 'Un (1979) C-105m. ½ D: Victor Nunez. Dana Preu, David Peck, J. Smith, Gene Densmore, Jenny Stringfellow, Tim McCormick. Low-budget gem about Prohibition-era widow Preu charmed and then exploited by foppish hustler Peck. Effective performances, use of locales (near Gainesville, Florida), depiction of the era. From Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings story. ▼

Gambit (1966) C-109m.  D: Ronald Neame. Michael Caine, Shirley MacLaine, Herbert Lom, Roger C. Carmel, John Abbott. Gimmicky robbery yarn with scoundrel Caine hiring Eurasian MacLaine to carry out perfect heist of invaluable piece of sculpture; great fun. Techniscope. ▼

Gamble, The (1988-Italian) C-105m. ½ D: Carlo Vanzina. Matthew Modine, Faye Dunaway, Jennifer Beals, Corinne Clery, Federica Moro, Ana Obregon, Vernon Wells, Feodor Chaliapin, Ian Bannen. So-so adventure in the TOM JONES mold, in which roguish Modine gambles with sinister countess Dunaway. The stakes: his life, for the family fortune she won from his father. Hokey and irrational, and the ending doesn't work, but still amusing. [R] ▼

Gambler, The (1974) C-111m.  D: Karel Reisz. James Caan, Paul Sorvino, Lauren Hutton, Morris Carnovsky, Jacqueline Brookes, Burt Young, Carmine Caridi, Vic Tayback, Steven Keats, London Lee, M. Emmet Walsh, James Woods, Stuart Margolin. Misfire about college prof Caan's compulsion to gamble; much inferior to Altman's CALIFORNIA SPLIT. Written by James Toback. [R] ▼ ● ●

Gambler, The (1997-Hungarian-French) C-97m.  D: Károly Makk. Michael Gambon, Jodhi May, Polly Walker, Dominic West, Luise Rainer, William Houston. An adaptation of Dostoevsky's 1866 novel, this is as much about the writing of that book as the story the author was trying to tell. Fiction and reality merge as Dostoevsky, with huge debts from his gambling habit, signs away rights to his life's work unless he can deliver a new novel in just 27 days. Lacks emotional power, despite fine performances by Gambon and Rainer (who's making her first big-screen appearance since 1943's HOSTAGES). [R] ▼ ● ●

Gambling Lady (1934) 66m. ½ D: Archie Mayo. Barbara Stanwyck, Joel McCrea, Pat O'Brien, Claire Dodd, C. Aubrey Smith. Honest professional gambler Stanwyck weds society boy McCrea; her motives are suspect because, after all, she's from "the other side of the tracks." So-so drama picks up in its second half. And isn't that Tyrone Power in a bit in the Park Avenue gambling scene?

Gamblin' Man SEE: Cockfighter Game, The (1997) C-128m.  D: David Fincher. Michael Douglas, Sean Penn, Carroll Baker, Deborah Kara Unger, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Peter Donat, James Rebhorn. Cold-hearted financial whiz (Douglas) gets an unusual birthday present from his brother (Penn)—a gift certificate for a sophisticated recreational company that stages a "game," the nature of which is never revealed. Before long, Douglas' entire existence is stripped away, on a roller-coaster ride heading straight down. Unusually mean-spirited film offers no letup—and has no sense of humor, either. Filmed in San Francisco. Super 35. [R] ▼ ● ●

Game for Vultures (1979-British) C-106m. BOMB D: James Fargo. Joan Collins, Richard Harris, Richard Roundtree, Ray Milland, Jana Cilliers, Sven-Bertil Taube, Denholm Elliott, John Parsonson, Ken Gampu. Tired cast in a dreadful drama about racial strife in Rhodesia. The subject matter may be worthy, but the result couldn't be more ponderous. [R] ▼

Game Is Over, The (1966-French) C-96m. ½ D: Roger Vadim. Jane Fonda, Peter McEnery, Michel Piccoli, Tina Marquand, Jacques Monod. Fonda marries wealthy Piccoli, falls in love with and seduces his son (McEnery). Handsome, updated version of Zola's La Curée is not bad; at the time, best performance of Jane's career. Panavision. [R] ▼ ●

Gamekeeper, The (1980-British) C-84m.  D: Kenneth Loach. Phil Askham, Rita May, Andrew Grubb, Peter Steels, Michael Hinchcliffe. Simple, effectively subtle tale of conservative young gamekeeper Askham, who sublimates his anger at being unable to crack the British class system.

Game of Death, A (1946) 72m. ½ D: Robert Wise. John Loder, Audrey Long, Edgar Barrier, Russell Wade, Russell Hicks, Jason Robards (Sr.), Noble Johnson. Second official version of THE MOST DANGEROUS GAME—madman Barrier hunts humans shipwrecked on his island. Moves well, but indifferently acted; nowhere nearly as exciting as the 1932 original. Next remake: RUN FOR THE SUN.

Game of Death (1978) C-102m. ½ D: Robert Clouse. Bruce Lee, Gig Young, Hugh O'Brien, Colleen Camp, Dean Jagger, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Chuck Norris. Lee died midway through production of this karate thriller. Six years later, Clouse reassembled

the surviving actors and, with the use of doubles, completed the film. Standard fare until final, incredible half hour, when Lee goes one-on-one with each of the villains in some of the most explosive fight scenes ever filmed. Aka BRUCE LEE'S GAME OF DEATH. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Game of Their Lives, The (2005) C-96m.

 D: David Anspaugh. Gerard Butler, Wes Bentley, Jay Rodan, Gavin Rossdale, Costas Mandylor, Louis Mandylor, Zachery Ty Bryan, Patrick Stewart, Terry Kinney, John Rhys-Davies, Freddy Adu. The director (Anspaugh) and screenwriter (Angelo Pizzo) of HOOSIERS and RUDY try for the same results with this story of an Italian-American soccer team from St. Louis that becomes the core of an underdog U.S. squadron sent to Brazil for the 1950 World Cup games. Alas, all the emotions are told (in speeches) and heard (in the overbearing music) rather than felt. Widescreen. [PG]●

Game Plan, The (2007) C-110m. ½ D: Andy Fickman. Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson, Madison Pettis, Kyra Sedgwick, Roselyn Sanchez, Morris Chestnut, Paige Turco, Gordon Clapp. Egocentric superstar quarterback (Johnson) becomes a better person—and a better player—after he spends quality time with the 8-year-old daughter (Pettis) he never knew he had. Predictable mix of rib-tickling and heart-tugging elements; this family-friendly comedy sticks close to the rulebook for movies about self-absorbed workaholics suddenly saddled with parental responsibilities. Johnson enlivens the tired material with megawatt charisma and first-rate comic timing. Super 35. [PG]●

Games (1967) C-100m. ½ D: Curtis Harrington. Simone Signoret, James Caan, Katharine Ross, Don Stroud, Estelle Winwood. After arrival of mysterious Signoret at kinky newlywed N.Y.C. apartment, borderline pranks become deadly conspiracy. The trick: guess who's double-crossing whom. Attempts at deeper meanings unfulfilling, despite good cast. Techniscope. ▼

Games, The (1970-British) C-97m. ½ D: Michael Winner. Michael Crawford, Stanley Baker, Ryan O'Neal, Charles Aznavour, Jeremy Kemp, Elaine Taylor, Kent Smith, Sam Elliott, Mona Washbourne. Dull film on potentially interesting subject: preparation of four runners for grueling 26-mile marathon in the Olympics. Rafer Johnson plays one of the commentators. Panavision. [G]

Game 6 (2006) C-83m. ½ D: Michael Hoffman. Michael Keaton, Robert Downey, Jr., Ari Graynor, Bebe Neuwirth, Griffin Dunne, Shalom Harlow, Catherine O'Hara, Harris Yulin, Nadia Dajani, Tom Aldredge, Lillias White, Roger Rees. N.Y.C. in 1986: a playwright and rabid baseball fan whose newest show is about to open tries to deal with a variety of conflicts, including the daily struggle of existence in Manhattan and his beleaguered Red Sox's chance to win a World Series against the Mets. Consistently interesting, if not quite successful; a writer's film if there ever was one, marking the first screenplay by novelist Don DeLillo. Coproduced by Dunne. [R]●

Gamera, The Invincible (1966-Japanese-U.S.) 88m. *½ D: Noriaki Yuasi. Brian Donlevy, Albert Dekker, John Baragrey. A giant, jet-propelled fire-breathing space turtle terrorizes the earth following atomic explosion. First in a series of juvenile sci-fi films. Original Japanese version—without American actors and titled GAMERA—runs 82m. Daiciscope. ▼●●

Gandhi (1982-British-Indian) C-188m.

Gang Related (1997) C-111m.  D: Jim Kouf. James Belushi, Tupac Shakur, Dennis Quaid, Lela Rochon, James Earl Jones, David Paymer, Wendy Crewson, Gary Cole, T. C. Carson, Brad Greenquist. Corrupt cops Belushi and Shakur sell coke to dealers, then kill them and recycle the drugs, but their scam starts to unravel when one of their victims turns out to be an undercover DEA agent. Sleazy crime thriller maintains some interest for a while, but falls apart due to its laughably contrived script and a schizophrenic tone that alternates faux-nihilism with shameless sentimentality. The late Shakur shows some talent in his last role, but Belushi gives an embarrassingly hammy performance. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Gang's All Here, The (1943) C-103m.

"No Love, No Nothin'." And, as an added kitsch treat, Benny Goodman sings! Watch for June Haver as a hat-check girl, Jeanne Crain by the swimming pool. ●●

Gangs of New York (2002) C-168m. ½ D: Martin Scorsese. Leonardo DiCaprio, Daniel Day-Lewis, Cameron Diaz, Liam Neeson, Jim Broadbent, John C. Reilly, Henry Thomas, Brendan Gleeson, Gary Lewis, David Hemmings, Alec McCowen, Cara Seymour, Barbara Bouchet. Epic-scale film about rivalries among warring factions of New Yorkers in the 1860s. A young man who's been away for 16 years returns to his home turf determined to avenge his father's death at the hands of Bill the Butcher (Day-Lewis), the self-appointed leader of the nationalistic "Native Americans." Visceral, cinematic storytelling, acted out on Dante Ferretti's extraordinary sets by a solid cast, led by a brilliant Day-Lewis as the eccentric—and ferocious—Bill. Introduction of the notorious draft riots toward the end seems abrupt, but the overall impact of the film is still formidable. Screenplay by Jay Cocks, Steven Zaillian, and Kenneth Lonergan, suggested by Herbert Asbury's 1928 book. Magnificently photographed by Michael Ballhaus. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Gangster, The (1947) 84m.  D: Gordon Wiles. Barry Sullivan, Belita, Joan Lorring, Akim Tamiroff, Harry Morgan, John Ireland, Fifi D'Orsay, Shelley Winters. Sullivan gives strong performance as man who falls victim to his slum environment and ends up a vengeful crook. ▼

Gangster No. 1 (2000-British-German) C-105m.  D: Paul McGuigan. Malcolm McDowell, David Thewlis, Paul Bettany, Saffron Burrows, Kenneth Cranham, Eddie Marsan. An aging mobster thinks back about his life, and how he went from being a street hood to a powerful racketeer. Stylish and interesting, with strong performances, but loses its story momentum and becomes repellently brutal. [R] ▼●

Gangster Story (1959) 65m. *½ D: Walter Matthau. Walter Matthau, Carol Grace, Bruce McFarlan, Gerrett Wallberg. Matthau's lone film as director is a low-quality, ultra-low-budget chronicle of the plight of a bank robber and killer. Grace, as a librarian who falls for the thug, is real-life Mrs. Matthau. ▼●

Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight, The (1971) C-96m.  D: James Goldstone. Jerry Orbach, Leigh Taylor-Young, Jo Van Fleet, Lionel Stander, Robert De Niro, Herve Villechaize. Film version of Jimmy Breslin's best-seller about comical, twelfth-rate N.Y.C. crooks is well cast, but adapted in slapdash fashion and directed without much feeling for the material. [PG] ▼●

Garbage Pail Kids Movie, The (1987) C-100m. BOMB D: Rod Amateau. Anthony Newley, MacKenzie Astin, Katie Barberi. Crude live-action kiddie film "inspired" by the popular and controversial bubble-gum cards which feature creatures with names like Greaser Greg and Valerie Vomit. They all live in a garbage pail, where they are destined to be joined by the negative of this movie. [PG] ▼●

Garbo Talks (1984) C-103m. ½ D: Sidney Lumet. Anne Bancroft, Ron Silver, Carrie Fisher, Catherine Hicks, Steven Hill, Howard da Silva, Dorothy Loudon, Harvey Fierstein, Hermione Gingold, Mary McDonnell. Silver sets out to fulfill his dying mother's last request: to meet Greta Garbo. Bancroft is a treat as the feisty mom, but film is just a series of vignettes, occasionally poignant but overall self-conscious and contrived, further undermined by Cy Coleman's saccharine score. That's writer-performer Betty Comden as Garbo in the last scene. [PG-13] ▼●

Garde à Vue (1981-French) C-87m.  D: Claude Miller. Lino Ventura, Michel Serrault, Romy Schneider, Guy Marchand. Prominent lawyer Serrault, suspected of raping and murdering two girls, is interrogated by police inspectors Ventura and Marchand. Tense, involving drama, with fine performances by all.

Garden, The (1990-British) C/B&W-92m. ½ D: Derek Jarman. Tilda Swinton, Johnny Mills, Philip MacDonald, Roger Cook, Kevin Collins, Pete Lee-Wilson, Spencer Lee, Jody Graber, Michael Gough. Surreal, deeply personal union of images and sound, which tells (in very abstract terms) the story of the Passion of Christ; however, the Christ figure is replaced by a pair of homosexual lovers, who are destined to experience suffering and humiliation. As with most of Jarman's work, some will find it thought provoking while others will be bored (if not offended). ▼

Garden of Allah, The (1936) C-80m.  D: Richard Boleslawski. Marlene Dietrich, Charles Boyer, Tilly Losch, Basil Rathbone, Joseph Schildkraut, Henry Kleinbach (Henry Brandon), John Carradine. Flagrantly silly romance set in the Algerian desert; full of ripe dialogue, troubled glances, beauty shots of Marlene in a variety of gorgeous sheaths and flowing gowns, and some wonderful Technicolor scenery (which helped win its cameramen, W. Howard Greene and Harold Rosson, a special Oscar). It just isn't very good. ▼●

Garden of Evil (1954) C-100m. ½ D: Henry Hathaway. Gary Cooper, Susan Hayward, Richard Widmark, Hugh Marlowe, Cameron Mitchell, Rita Moreno. Meandering adventure set in 1850s Mexico, with trio escorting Hayward through bandit territory to save her husband. CinemaScope. ●

Garden of the Finzi-Continis, The (1971-Italian) C-95m. * D: Vittorio De Sica. Dominique Sanda, Lino Capolicchio, Helmut Berger, Fabio Testi, Romolo Valli. Exquisitely photographed drama about aristocratic Jewish family in WW2 Italy which conveniently ignores the spectre of the concentration camp until it's too late. Sad, haunting film boosted Sanda to stardom and won an Oscar as Best Foreign Film. Screenplay by Vittorio Bonicelli and Ugo Pirro; from novel by Giorgio Bassani. [R] ▼●●

Gardens of Stone (1987) C-111m. ½ D: Francis Coppola. James Caan, Anjelica Huston, James Earl Jones, D. B. Sweeney, Dean Stockwell, Mary Stuart Masterson, Dick Anthony Williams, Lonette McKee, Sam Bottoms, Larry Fishburne. Well-acted story about life in Arlington National Cemetery's home guard during the thick of the Vietnam war—and one young soldier's determination to go into battle. Strong performances keep it going most of the way, but toward the end the dialogue sounds hollow, like the sentiment itself. Carmine Coppola's funereal music doesn't help. Jones steals the show in a warm-hearted role; young leading lady Masterson's real-life parents, Peter Masterson and Carlin Glynn, play her folks on-screen. [R] ▼●●

Garden State (2004) C-109m. ½ D: Zach Braff. Zach Braff, Natalie Portman, Peter Sarsgaard, Ian Holm, Ron Leibman, Jean Smart, Method Man. After his mother's death, a wannabe actor returns to his New Jersey hometown and is slowly brought out of a numbed (and overmedicated) existence by a free-spirited young woman. Interesting debut feature from actor-writer-director Braff, who has an eye for original, quirky detail but slides into self-conscious whimsy a bit too often. Sarsgaard and, especially, Portman shine. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Garfield (2004) C-80m.  D: Pete Hewitt. Breckin Meyer, Jennifer Love Hewitt, Stephen Tobolowsky; voices of Bill Murray, Nick Cannon, Alan Cumming, David Eigenberg, Brad Garrett, Jimmy Kimmel, Debra Messing. Murray is an ideal voice for the world's laziest (and hungriest) cat in this innocuous, uninspired comedy combining computer-generated animation and live action. Meyer is Garfield's hapless owner, who tries to woo attractive veterinarian Hewitt by adopting Odie, a homeless mutt, which spurs Garfield into defensive action. Based on Jim Davis' comic strip and animated TV series. Followed by a sequel. [PG] ▼●

Garfield 2 (2006) C-78m. ½ D: Tim Hill. Breckin Meyer, Jennifer Love Hewitt, Billy Connolly, Ian Abercrombie, Roger Rees, Lucy Davis, Jane Carr; voices of Bill Murray, Bob Hoskins, Sharon Osbourne, Tim Curry, Jane Leeves, Jane Horrocks, Richard E. Grant, Vinnie Jones, Rhys Ifans, Jim Piddock; narrated by Roscoe Lee Browne. While tagging along with Meyer on a trip to London, Garfield is mistaken for a look-alike cat who's come into a big inheritance. Minor but amusing. Alternate version runs 86m. Advertised as GAR-

FIELD: A TAIL OF TWO KITTIES. [PG]

Gas (1981-Canadian) C-94m. BOMB D: Les Rose. Donald Sutherland, Susan Anspach, Howie Mandel, Sterling Hayden, Sandee Currie, Peter Aykroyd, Helen Shaver. Noisy, moronic garbage about the effect of a phony gas shortage on an "average" American town. Car crashes ad nauseam, with Sutherland wasted as Nick the Noz, a hip disc jockey. [R] ▼

Gas Food Lodging (1992) C-101m. ½ D: Allison Anders. Brooke Adams, Ione Skye, Fairuza Balk, James Brolin, Robert Knepper, David Lansbury, Jacob Vargas, Donovan Leitch, Chris Mulkey, Tiffany Anders. Truck-stop waitress struggles to raise two daughters in a Laramie, N.M., trailer park, with the older one already jaded by men and the younger idealistic to the end. Overrated by some, but still fairly passionate despite a slender budget and minimalist cinematics. Good performances extend to Brolin's, as a wandering dad. Skye (Trudi) and Leitch (Darius) are real-life sister and brother. [R] ▼●●

Gaslight (1940-British) 84m. ½ D: Thorold Dickinson. Anton Walbrook, Diana Wynyard, Frank Pettingell, Cathleen Cordell, Robert Newton, Jimmy Hanley. First version of Patrick Hamilton's play about an insane criminal who drives his wife crazy in order to discover hidden jewels. Electrifying atmosphere, delicious performances, and a succinctly conveyed sense of madness and evil lurking beneath the surface of the ordinary. Screenplay by A. R. Rawlinson and Bridget Boland. U.S. title: ANGEL STREET. ▼●

Gaslight (1944) 114m.  D: George Cukor. Ingrid Bergman, Charles Boyer, Joseph Cotten, Dame May Whitty, Angela Lansbury, Terry Moore. The bloom has worn off this classic chiller about a man trying to drive his wife insane, but lush production, Victorian flavor, and fine performances remain intact. Bergman won Oscar; Lansbury's film debut. Filmed before in 1940. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Gas-s-s-s (1970) C-79m.  D: Roger Corman. Bud Cort, Cindy Williams, Robert Corff, Ben Vereen, Tally Coppola (Talia Shire), Elaine Giftos. Insane, often uproarious story focusing on reactions of youngsters in crisis: a gas kills everyone on Earth over 25. Reddited against Corman's wishes, causing much disjointedness, but stay with it. Aka GAS! OR IT BECAME NECESSARY TO DESTROY THE WORLD IN ORDER TO SAVE IT. [PG] ▼●

Gate, The (1987) C-92m.  D: Tibor Takacs. Stephen Dorff, Christa Denton, Louis Tripp, Kelly Rowan, Jennifer Irwin, Deborah Grove, Scot Denton. It's a boring weekend: Dorff is grounded, his sister is babysitting while the parents are away—then he and a pal discover the gate to hell in their suburban backyard. Worthless first half is somewhat redeemed by amusing/scary special effects in the second. Followed by a sequel. [PG-13]▼●●

Gate II (1992) C-95m. *½ D: Tibor Takacs. Louis Tripp, Simon Reynolds, Pamela Segall, James Villemaire, Neil Munro. Demons of the underworld are resummoned by now-teenaged Tripp to grant his wishes. Though his intentions are on the naive side, it's safe to say that all hell breaks loose. None of THE GATE's goofy fright made its way into this unnecessary sequel. This spent three years on the shelf. [R]▼●●

Gate of Hell (1953-Japanese) C-86m. ½ D: Teinosuke Kinugasa. Machiko Kyo, Kazuo Hasegawa, Isao Yamagata, Koreya Senda. Stark, stunning historical drama, set in 12th-century Japan, about a Samurai who falls in love with—and then tragically shames—a married woman. This beautiful production earned Oscars for Costume Design and Best Foreign Film.▼

Gates of Heaven (1978) C-82m. ½ D: Errol Morris. Delightfully offbeat yet piercing documentary about a pet cemetery in—where else?—California. At once hilarious and an allegory about the absurdity of American priorities. Not to be confused with Michael Cimino's HEAVEN'S GATE, or Stephen King's PET SEMATARY, for that matter.▼

Gator (1976) C-116m.  D: Burt Reynolds. Burt Reynolds, Jack Weston, Lauren Hutton, Jerry Reed, Alice Ghostley, Mike Douglas, Dub Taylor. Not-so-hot sequel to WHITE LIGHTNING, about Justice Dept. agent Weston and moonshiner ex-con Reynolds out to get the goods on corrupt Southern politicians. Some good action, but overlong and poorly constructed. Reynolds' directing debut. Todd-AO 35. [PG]▼●●

Gator Bait (1976) C-93m. *½ D: Ferd and Beverly C. Sebastian. Claudia Jennings, Sam Gilman, Doug Dirkson, Clyde Ventura, Bill Thurman. All the menfolk are after sexy swamp-girl (Playboy Playmate of the Year Jennings) but she has a surprise or two in store for them. A tedious tease of a film, with moments of truly repellent violence. Followed by a sequel. [R]▼

Gattaca (1997) C-112m.  D: Andrew Niccol. Ethan Hawke, Uma Thurman, Jude Law, Gore Vidal, Loren Dean, Alan Arkin, Xander Berkeley, Blair Underwood, Ernest Borgnine, Tony Shalhoub, Jayne Brook, Elias Koteas. In the near future, parents can choose to have all genetic imperfections eliminated from their children prior to birth. This has given rise to a new form of discrimination: the genetically perfected "Valids" vs. the naturally born "In-Valids." In-Valid Hawke pays disabled Valid Law for the rights to his identity. Bracingly intelligent, wittily ironic, and very well acted. Given the premise, however, the dull, conformist society depicted seems unconvincing. Notable directing debut for Niccol, who also scripted. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Gaucha, The (1927) 96m.  D: F. Richard Jones. Douglas Fairbanks, Lupe Velez, Eve Southern, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Nigel de Brulier, Geraine Greear (Joan Barclay). Corny melodramatics and moralizing and not enough action hamper this lesser Fairbanks vehicle, in which he plays a famed, egocentric South American cowboy. Mary Pickford, Fairbanks' wife, appears as "Our Lady of the Shrine."▼●●

Gaudi Afternoon (2002-Spanish) C-90m.  D: Susan Seidelman. Judy Davis, Marcia Gay Harden, Lili Taylor, Juliette Lewis, María Barranco, Christopher Bowen, Courtney Jines. Overbaked, gender-bending mish-mash with oddball American Harden arriving in Barcelona, hiring translator Davis to help her find a missing person. Davis is shrill and Taylor doesn't so much act as yell, but Harden is a hoot in a most unusual role. Based on a book by Barbara Wilson. [R]▼●

Gauntlet, The (1977) C-109m. ½ D: Clint Eastwood. Clint Eastwood, Sondra Locke, Pat Hingle, William Prince, Bill McKinney, Mara Corday. Eastwood stars as a none-too-clever cop escorting hooker Locke to trial; corrupt officials are determined to stop them, whatever the cost. Exciting at times, but not meant to be taken seriously. Panavision. [R]▼●●

usual musical numbers, including Oscar-winning "Continental" and Cole Porter's "Night and Day." Rhodes is memorable as would-be corespondent in divorce case. Incidentally, the Broadway hit on which this was based was called The Gay Divorce, but the Hollywood Production Code disapproved. ▼●●

Gay Purr-ee (1962) C-86m. ½ D: Abe Levitow. Voices of Judy Garland, Robert Goulet, Red Buttons, Hermione Gingold, Paul Frees, Morey Amsterdam. A naive cat's misadventures in Paris. Stylish cartoon from UPA studio, written by Chuck and Dorothy Jones, lacks storytelling oomph. Chief assets are Garland and Goulet performing original songs by Harold Arlen and E. Y. Harburg, who wrote THE WIZARD OF OZ score for Judy years earlier. ▼●●

Gazebo, The (1959) 100m.  D: George Marshall. Glenn Ford, Debbie Reynolds, Carl Reiner, Doro Merande, John McGiver, Mabel Albertson. Offbeat comedy involving murder and a backyard gazebo that covers up crime. Character actors McGiver and Merande wrap this up, but stars are competent. Also shown in computer-colored version. CinemaScope. ▼

Geisha Boy, The (1958) C-98m. ½ D: Frank Tashlin. Jerry Lewis, Marie McDonald, Sessue Hayakawa, Nobu McCarthy, Suzanne Pleshette, Barton MacLane, Robert Hiran. Jerry, an inept magician, travels to Japan with disastrous consequences. Imaginative visual gags; there's a cute sequence featuring the Los Angeles Dodgers (and, in particular, Gil Hodges). Pleshette's film debut. VistaVision. ▼

Gene Krupa Story, The (1959) 101m. ½ D: Don Weis, Sal Mineo, Susan Kohner, James Darren, Susan Oliver, Yvonne Craig, Lawrence Dobkin, Red Nichols, Buddy Lester. Hackneyed version of great jazz drummer's life, his ups and downs, his siege of dope addiction. ▼●●

Genealogies of a Crime (1997-French) C-114m. ½ D: Raul Ruiz. Catherine Deneuve, Michel Piccoli, Melvil Poupaud, Andrzej Seweryn, Bernadette LaFont. Deneuve is dazzling in a dual role as the lawyer for and victim of a strange young man who's accused of murdering his psychiatrist aunt after she allegedly subjected him to radical mind-control treatments. Well-acted but pretentious, intentionally confusing mixture of mystery, satire, and surrealism; tricked up with meaningless flashbacks within flashbacks and other narrative and visual gimmicks. ▽

General, The (1927) 75m. * D: Buster Keaton, Clyde Bruckman. Buster Keaton, Marion Mack, Glen Cavender, Jim Farley, Joseph Keaton. One of Keaton's best silent features, setting comedy against true Civil War story of stolen train, Union spies. Not as fanciful as other Keaton films, but beautifully done; Disney did same story in 1956 as THE GREAT LOCOMOTIVE CHASE. ▼●●

General, The (1998-Irish) 124m. ½ D: John Boorman. Brendan Gleeson, Jon Voight, Adrian Dunbar, Sean McGinley, Maria Doyle Kennedy, Angeline Ball, Eamonn Owens. Boorman scripted this character study of a true-life Dublin working-class criminal known as the General, who evaded police capture for years. Following his own skewed code of ethics, he masterminds robberies both large and small, extracts loyalty from his soldiers, loves two women simultaneously, and matches wits with a hard-nosed cop (Voight) who is determined to nail him. Interesting, well made, but overlong. Filmmaker Jim Sheridan has a bit part. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

General Della Rovere (1959-Italian) 129m. ½ D: Roberto Rossellini. Vittorio De Sica, Hannes Messemer, Sandra Milo, Giovanna Ralli, Anne Vernon. De Sica is brilliant as a con man forced by the Nazis to impersonate a just-deceased Italian general and find out the identity of a Resistance leader. Will this charade somehow transform a coward into a hero? ▼ ▽

General Died at Dawn, The (1936) 97m. ½ D: Lewis Milestone. Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll, Akim Tamiroff, Dudley Digges, Porter Hall, William Frawley. Fine, atmospheric drama of Oriental intrigue, with mercenary Cooper falling in love with spy Carroll while battling evil warlord Tamiroff. Author John O'Hara has cameo as reporter on train. Another celebrated writer, Clifford Odets, scripted from Charles Booth's novel. ▼ ▽

General's Daughter, The (1999) C-125m. ½ D: Simon West. John Travolta, Madeleine Stowe, James Cromwell, Timothy Hutton, Leslie Stefanson, Daniel von Bargen, Clarence Williams III, James Woods, John Frankenheimer. Army investigator Travolta uncovers more than he ever imagined when he looks into the murder of a popular general's daughter, herself a captain. As evidence of a major scandal grows, it becomes clear that the Army's only concern is keeping a lid on the matter. Slickly done, but this twisty tale (from Nelson DeMille's best-seller) has a heavy air of contrivance about it. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Generation, A (1954-Polish) 88m.  D: Andrzej Wajda. Ursula Modrzinska, Tadevsz Lomnicki, Zbigniew Cybulski. Strong, necessarily downbeat drama about the Polish Resistance during World War 2 and what happens when a young man falls in love with the woman who leads the Resistance group. Wajda's first film and the first of a trilogy that includes the even better KANAL and ASHES AND DIAMONDS. Young Roman Polanski is featured in the cast. ▼ ▽

Generation (1969) C-104m.  D: George Schaefer. David Janssen, Kim Darby, Carl

Reiner, Peter Duel, Andrew Prine, James Coco, Sam Waterston. Darby helps otherwise dreary comedy based on Broadway play about just-married couple who infuriate the girl's father when husband plans to deliver their soon-to-arrive baby himself; plays like a TV sitcom. [M/PG]▼

Genevieve (1953-British) C-86m. ½ D: Henry Cornelius. Dinah Sheridan, John Gregson, Kay Kendall, Kenneth More, Geoffrey Keen, Joyce Grenfell, Michael Medwin. Lively, colorful comedy (by William Rose) pits two couples and their vintage roadsters against one another in a cross-country race. Uniquely British, brimming with charm and humor; a huge success in its day. Music score by harmonica virtuoso Larry Adler.▼

Genghis Khan (1965) C-124m. *½ D: Henry Levin. Omar Sharif, Stephen Boyd, James Mason, Eli Wallach, Françoise Dorleac, Telly Savalas, Robert Morley, Yvonne Mitchell, Woody Strode. Laughable epic with gross miscasting and juvenile script, loosely based on legend of Mongol leader. No sweep or spectacle, but radiant Dorleac and earnest Sharif. Panavision.

Gentle Giant (1967) C-93m.  D: James Neilson. Dennis Weaver, Vera Miles, Clint Howard, Ralph Meeker, Huntz Hall. Feature film which hatched TV series Gentle Ben is appealing children's story of boy and his pet bear.▼

Gentleman Jim (1942) 104m. ½ D: Raoul Walsh. Errol Flynn, Alexis Smith, Jack Carson, Alan Hale, John Loder, William Frawley, Minor Watson, Ward Bond, Arthur Shields. Sassy biography of polished boxer Jim Corbett in fight game's early days. Flynn is dynamic in title role (reportedly his favorite), supported by colorful cast—especially Bond in larger-than-life role as legendary champ John L. Sullivan. Scripted by Vincent Lawrence and Horace McCoy. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Gentleman's Agreement (1947) 118m.  D: Elia Kazan. Gregory Peck, Dorothy McGuire, John Garfield, Celeste Holm, Anne Revere, June Havoc, Albert Dekker, Jane Wyatt, Dean Stockwell, Sam Jaffe. Sincere Oscar-winning adaptation of Laura Z. Hobson's novel of writer (Peck) pretending to be Jewish, discovering rampant anti-Semitism. Holm won Supporting Actress Oscar as chic but lonely fashion editor, as did Kazan for his direction. Then-daring approach to subject matter is tame now. Screenplay by Moss Hart.▼●●

Gentlemen Don't Eat Poets (1995-British) C-97m.  D: John-Paul Davidson. Alan Bates, Sting, Theresa Russell, Lena Headey, Steven Mackintosh, Anna Massey, Trudie Styler, Maria Aitken. An English butler, in cooperation with the mistress of the house, frames his master for murder in this blackest of black British comedies. Other than its clever (and somewhat prophetic) title, this lacks the necessary wit to succeed. Sting is

understated as the butler; you get the feeling he's doing it only because his wife, Trudie Styler, produced the film. Original title: THE GROTESQUE. Video title: GRAVE INDISCRETIONS. [R]▼●●

Gentlemen Marry Brunettes (1955) C-97m.  D: Richard Sale. Jane Russell, Jeanne Crain, Alan Young, Rudy Wallace, Scott Brady. Anita Loos' follow-up to GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES has Russell and Crain, two sisters in show biz in Paris, trying to avoid romances. Not up to original. CinemaScope.

Gentlemen Prefer Blondes (1953) C-91m.  D: Howard Hawks. Jane Russell, Marilyn Monroe, Charles Coburn, Elliott Reid, Tommy Noonan, George "Foghorn" Winslow. Slick, colorful bauble of entertainment with two sassy leading ladies tantalizing the men of two continents; Marilyn is at her best as fortune-hunter Lorelei Lee, and Russell gives a sly, knowing comic performance as her pal. Based on the Broadway adaptation of Anita Loos' venerable story, with sprightly Leo Robin-Jule Styne songs including "Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend." Sequel: GENTLEMEN MARRY BRUNETTES.▼●●

George of the Jungle (1997) C-91m. ½ D: Sam Weisman. Brendan Fraser, Leslie Mann, Thomas Haden Church, Holland Taylor, John Bennett Perry, Abraham Benrubi, Greg Cruttwell, Richard Roundtree, voice of John Cleese; narrated by Keith Scott. Live-action Disney comedy feature based on Jay Ward's 1960s cartoon show about a clumsy king of the jungle. Aimed at kids, who should enjoy it thoroughly; for adults its one-note silliness wears thin, with a preponderance of story climaxes, but Fraser and Mann are immensely likable. Why couldn't they come up with at least a few funny lines for the Ape named Ape? Followed in 2003 by a direct-to-video sequel. [PG]▼●●

George Raft Story, The (1961) 106m. ½ D: Joseph M. Newman. Ray Danton, Jayne Mansfield, Barrie Chase, Julie London, Neville Brand, Frank Gorshin. Danton is good in title role of fast-moving account of Raft's rise from Broadway dancer to top Hollywood star. How much is true, who can say?●

George's Island (1991-Canadian) C-90m. ½ D: Paul Donovan. Nathaniel Moreau, Ian Bannen, Sheila McCarthy, Maury Chaykin, Vicki Riddler, Brian Downey. Young Nova Scotia boy is taken from his crusty grandpop—who has regaled him with tales of pirate ghosts and local buried treasure from Captain Kidd's raids—and must escape from a grim foster home to complete his treasure quest. Modest tale dwells too long on adult caricatures and too little on boyhood adventures. ▼●

Great clips from ALICE ADAMS, SWING TIME, GUNGA DIN, THE MORE THE MERRIER, A PLACE IN THE SUN, SHANE, GIANT, etc. Stevens, Jr., supplies personal insights, plus fascinating home movies taken by his father on film sets—and color footage shot during WW2 in Europe. ▼●●

George Washington (2000) C-89m.  D: David Gordon Green. Candace Evanofski, Donald Holden, Damian Jewan Lee, Curtis Cotton III, Rachael Handy, Paul Schneider, Eddie Rouse, Janet Taylor. Eye-opening debut feature from writer-director Green, spotlighting a small group of pre-teens in a lazy North Carolina town and how they individually and collectively react to a terrible accident. Strikingly original, dreamlike film is filled with beautiful imagery and naturalistic performances, hampered only by the constraints of its low budget. J-D-C Scope. ▼●

George Washington Slept Here (1942) 93m. ½ D: William Keighley. Jack Benny, Ann Sheridan, Charles Coburn, Percy Kilbride, Hattie McDaniel, William Tracy, Joyce Reynolds, Lee Patrick, Charles Dingle, John Emery, Sheridan (never more beautiful) surprises her city-dweller husband Benny by buying a dilapidated country house and pouring all their money—and patience—into the process of fixing it up. Pleasant but predictable adaptation of the Kaufman-Hart play, with Benny in good form, and Kilbride recreating his Broadway role as the hayseed contractor. ▼●

George White's Scandals (1945) 95m.  D: Felix E. Feist. Joan Davis, Jack Haley, Phillip Terry, Martha Holliday, Bettejane (Jane) Greer, Margaret Hamilton, Glenn Tryon. Mild musical centering around the mounting of a "Scandals" stage show, and chronicling the romances of Davis-Haley and Holliday-Terry. Tryon plays George White; the real impresario produced. ▼

Georgia (1995) C-117m.  D: Ulu Grosbard. Jennifer Jason Leigh, Mare Winningham, Ted Levine, Max Perlich, John Doe, John C. Reilly, Jimmy Witherspoon, Jason Carter, Tom Bower, Smokey Hormel. A strung-out, self-destructive young woman lives in the shadow of her older sister, a popular singer, and wants to be her—though the younger sister has no talent. Leigh is as brilliant as ever getting inside an intense and difficult character (she does her own vocals, too), but that doesn't mean we care about her much. She also coproduced the film with her mother, Barbara Turner (who wrote the screenplay). Winningham is excellent as the serene older sister and also does her own very appealing vocals. [R] ▼●●

Georgy Girl (1966-British) 100m. ½ D: Silvio Narizzano. James Mason, Alan Bates, Lynn Redgrave, Charlotte Rampling, Bill Owen, Claire Kelly, Rachel Kempson. Delightful, adult British comedy of modern-day morals, with Redgrave as ugly-duckling Georgy, Mason as the wealthy, aging married man who wants her for his mistress. Entire cast is excellent, with Rampling scoring as Georgy's bitchy roommate. Faithful adaptation of Margaret Forster novel; scripted by Forster and Peter Nichols. ▼●●

Germinal (1993-French) C-158m.  D: Claude Berri. Renaud, Gérard Depardieu, Miou-Miou, Jean Carmet, Judith Henry, Jean-Roger Milo, Laurent Terzieff, Jean-Pierre Bisson, Bernard Fresson, Jacques Dacqmine, Anny Duperey. Sprawling adaptation of classic 1884 Emile Zola novel, this manages to tell both the epic tale of a bleak rural community and the personal story of coal miner Depardieu's impoverished family. The action begins when a young job-seeker (played by French singer Renaud, in his feature acting debut) stirs up the workforce in the mining village and begins to politicize the populace. Impressively recreates the period, though the characters sometimes seem a bit hollow. Still, it's hard to come away unaffected. Previously filmed in France in 1963. Panavision. ▼●

Geronimo (1962) C-101m. ½ D: Arnold Laven. Chuck Connors, Kamala Devi, Pat Conway, Armando Silvestre, Lawrence Dobkin, Ross Martin, Denver Pyle, Adam West. Connors fares well as the noble Apache warrior who refuses to submit to the U.S. Army. Connors later married leading lady Devi. Panavision. ▼●

Gerry (2003) C-103m.  D: Gus Van Sant. Matt Damon, Casey Affleck. Two friends go for a hike and leave the marked path. Before long they realize they're lost and must adopt increasingly challenging tactics to survive and stay sane. The screenplay, such as it is, is credited to both stars and the director, although Van Sant devises clever and creative ways of staging and filming his characters' odyssey. Some may find this existential poppycock stimulating; others will run for the exits. Ariscope. [R] ▼●

Getaway, The (1972) C-122m.  D: Sam Peckinpah. Steve McQueen, Ali MacGraw, Ben Johnson, Sally Struthers, Al Lettieri, Slim Pickens, Dub Taylor, Bo Hopkins. Exciting, enjoyable film built around a chase. Bank robber McQueen and wife MacGraw take it on the lam when robbery goes haywire. Many fine vignettes, including hair-raising episode on garbage truck. Written by Walter Hill from a Jim Thompson novel. Music by Quincy Jones. Remade in 1994. Todd-AO 35. [PG] ▼●●

Getaway, The (1994) C-115m.  D: Roger Donaldson. Alec Baldwin, Kim Basinger, Michael Madsen, James Woods, David Morse, Jennifer Tilly, James Stephens, Richard Farnsworth, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Burton Gilliam, Royce D. Applegate. He's nailed for robbery and thrown in prison; she frees him by playing up to a crime kingpin; he spends the rest of the movie resenting her. Or something like that. Action, violence, and sex by the numbers in this halfhearted remake of the 1972 hit; even the usually dynamic Woods seems to be just going through the motions. Watching real-life couple Baldwin and Basinger make love is uncomfortably voyeuristic. It takes Farnsworth, in the film's closing moments, to bring it to life. One sexy scene added for video. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

music, though there is also some vintage footage of The Beatles. Director Lester made more imaginative use of McCartney when he directed him and his compadres in A HARD DAY'S NIGHT and HELP! [PG] ▼●

Get Bruce! (1999) C-73m. ½ D: Andrew J. Kuehn. Slight but very amusing look at Hollywood comedy writer and self-styled character Bruce Vilanch, whose credits range from the Academy Awards to Hollywood Squares. Not what you'd call a probing character profile (especially since it was done with its subject's complete cooperation), but the interviews with Robin Williams, Billy Crystal, Whoopi Goldberg, and others are often hysterically funny. [R] ▼●

Get Carter (1971-British) C-112m.  D: Mike Hodges. Michael Caine, Ian Hendry, Britt Ekland, John Osborne, Tony Beckley, George Sewell. Austere, brutal crime drama about a cheerless hit man who goes to Newcastle to investigate his brother's death. Caine perfectly embodies his amoral character, and the film's violence still packs a wallop. Based on a novel by Ted Lewis, adapted by Hodges. Remade a year later (as HIT MAN) and again in 2000. [R] ▼●

Get Carter (2000) C-104m. ½ D: Stephen Kay. Sylvester Stallone, Miranda Richardson, Rachael Leigh Cook, Alan Cumming, Mickey Rourke, John C. McGinley, Michael Caine, Rhona Mitra, Johnny Strong. Las Vegas enforcer goes home to Seattle to investigate his brother's death and meets one sleazy character after another who may have been involved. Routine crime drama, enlivened by high-powered car chases but burdened by show-offy visual gimmicks. Remake of the far superior 1971 film that starred Caine, whose role here is thankless. Gretchen Mol appears unbilled. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Get Crazy (1983) C-92m.  D: Allan Arkush. Daniel Stern, Malcolm McDowell, Gail Edwards, Allen Goorwitz (Garfield), Ed Begley, Jr., Miles Chapin, Lou Reed, Stacey Nelkin, Bill Henderson, Franklyn Ajaye, Bobby Sherman, Fabian Forte, Lori Eastside, Lee Ving. Arkush's years working at Fillmore East rock palace form the basis for wonderful cartoonlike comedy set at a trouble-plagued New Year's Eve concert. Gags fly at machine-gun pace, interspersed with delightful musical numbers; superb take-offs on Mick Jagger (McDowell), Bob Dylan (Reed), and Muddy Waters (Henderson), plus many familiar rock stars and character actors in bits. [R] ▼

October 1995. Not a polemic, but a series of character studies and vignettes; occasional speechifying and contrivances are forgivable because, overall, the film deals so well with issues facing all Americans. Screenplay by Reggie Rock Bythewood. Kudos to Dutton as the bus company rep and Davis as the senior member of the brigade. This low-budget film was financed by 15 African-American men, including Danny Glover, Will Smith, and Wesley Snipes. Randy Quaid appears unbilled. [R]▼●●

Get Out Your Handkerchiefs (1978-French-Belgian) C-109m. ½ D: Bertrand Blier. Gérard Depardieu, Patrick Dewaere, Carole Laure, Riton, Michel Serrault, Eleonore Hirt. Disarming black comedy about a man who will do almost anything to keep his sexually frustrated wife happy; highly unconventional. Oscar winner for Best Foreign Film. [R]▼●

Get Over It (2001) C-86m.  D: Tommy O'Haver. Kirsten Dunst, Ben Foster, Melissa Sagemiller, Colin Hanks, Sisqó, Martin Short, Shane West, Swooisie Kurtz, Ed Begley, Jr., Carmen Electra, Kylie Bax, Zoë Saldaña. Teen variation of A Midsummer Night's Dream, with Foster unable to deal with being dumped by his girlfriend, ignoring the fact that his best friend's kid sister is in love with him. Cute film can't stay focused, which dampens the fun, but Short is hilarious as a high school drama coach. Opens with a dynamic musical number under the main titles. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Get Real (1999-British) C-109m. ½ D: Simon Shore. Ben Silverstone, Charlotte Brittain, Brad Gorton, Louise J. Taylor, Tim Harris, Stacy Hart. Teenage schoolboy in England realizes he's gay but can't admit it to his parents, teachers, or schoolmates. Then he falls in love with the class jock. Sincere and well acted, but tends to plod at times. Scripted by Patrick Wilde from his play What's Wrong With Angry? Panavision. [R]▼●

Get Rich or Die Tryin' (2005) C-117m.  D: Jim Sheridan. Curtis "50 Cent" Jackson, Terrence Howard, Joy Bryant, Bill Duke, Adewale Akinuoye-Agbaje, Omar Benson Miller, Viola Davis, Leon, Sullivan Walker, Russell Hornsby. The director of MY LEFT FOOT and IN AMERICA tackles a gangsta-rap saga, which isn't as jarring as it might seem given Sheridan's obvious affection for societal underdogs. Clichés and undeveloped story lines sink a promising beginning in which a fatherless youngster with musical inclinations tags along with a man-magnet mom as she deals drugs on the street. Jackson eventually takes over this autobiographical role and isn't commanding enough to carry a long movie. Super 35. [R]●

Get Shorty (1995) C-105m.  D: Barry Sonnenfeld. John Travolta, Gene Hackman, Rene Russo, Danny DeVito, Dennis Farina, Delroy Lindo, James Gandolfini, David

Paymer, Martin Ferrero, Miguel Sandoval. Clever black comedy about a small-time, cool-as-ice Miami enforcer coming to L.A. on business, hooking up with a slick, grade-Z producer who can fulfill his dream of being connected with the movies. Ingenious plotting, tip-top performances, and some delicious digs at Hollywood are offset by a certain aloofness. Scott Frank scripted from Elmore Leonard's novel. Bette Midler appears unbilled; other famous faces turn up in amusing cameo. Followed by BE COOL. [R]▼●●

Get Smart (2008) C-110m. ½ D: Peter Segal. Steve Carell, Anne Hathaway, Dwayne Johnson, Alan Arkin, Terence Stamp, James Caan, Masi Oka, Nate Torrence, Ken Davitian, Terry Crews, David Koechner, Dalip Singh, Bill Murray, Larry Miller, Kevin Nealon, Blake Clark, Patrick Warburton, Bernie Kopell. Update of the much-loved 1960s spy-spoof TV series (created by Mel Brooks and Buck Henry) stars Carell as CONTROL Agent 86 Maxwell Smart, who's sent into "the field" for the first time alongside worldly Agent 99 (Hathaway) to expose a nuclear weapon plot hatched by KAOS. The stars' likability carries this overlong feature, which pays respect to the TV show but never equals it. Overblown action finale seems to belong in some other movie. Oka and Torrence's characters, Bruce and Lloyd, star in a companion DVD movie. [PG-13]●

Getting Away With Murder (1976) SEE: End of the Game

Getting Away With Murder (1996) C-92m. BOMB D: Harvey Miller. Jack Lemmon, Dan Aykroyd, Lily Tomlin, Bonnie Hunt, Brian Kerwin, Jerry Adler, Andy Romano. Ethics professor Aykroyd discovers that his next-door neighbor (Lemmon) is a notorious Nazi war criminal who is plotting to leave the country. Strictly for those who found JUDGMENT AT NUREMBERG a laugh riot; a career nadir for the comic talents on both sides of the camera. [R]▼●●

comic story of a 31-year-old virgin and his attempts to cope with people—women in particular—seems mundane and meandering at first, and just gets better as it goes along. Some wonderful characterizations, especially Redgrave as a wealthy woman with a world-weary facade who just wants to be loved. Screenplay by Elizabeth Jane Howard, from her novel. Made in England by an American director and producer. [R] ▼●

Getting of Wisdom, The (1977-Australian) C-100m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Susannah Fowle, Hilary Ryan, Alex Longman, Sheila Helpmann, Patricia Kennedy, Barry Humphries, John Waters. A spirited, sensitive 13-year-old girl (Fowle) from the outback matures on her own terms at a snobbish Victorian ladies college. Fowle is miscast; however, the era is carefully recreated. Based on autobiographical novel by one Henry Handel Richardson. ▼

Getting Straight (1970) C-124m. ½ D: Richard Rush. Elliott Gould, Candice Bergen, Jeff Corey, Max Julien, Cecil Kellaway, Robert F. Lyons, Jeannie Berlin, John Rubinstein, Brenda Sykes, Harrison Ford. A period piece, but central issue of graduate student Gould choosing between academic double-talk and his beliefs remains relevant. Gould's personality propels glossy film. Bob Kaufman adapted Ken Kolb's novel. [R] ▼

Get to Know Your Rabbit (1972) C-91m. ½ D: Brian De Palma. Tom Smothers, John Astin, Suzanne Zenor, Samantha Jones, Allen Garfield, Katharine Ross, Orson Welles. Offbeat comedy was barely released, and heavily tampered with at that; starts with great premise of Smothers dropping out of establishment life to become tap-dancing magician, then loses it-self. Still has some inventive moments, funny ideas. Filmed in 1970. [R] ▼

performances. Final film for Richard Jordan, who has the most poignant role in the picture as General Armistead. Superb score by Randy Edelman. Also released on video in 271m. director's cut. Followed by a prequel: GODS AND GENERALS. [PG] ▼●

Ghidrah, The Three-Headed Monster (1964-Japanese) C-85m. ½ D: Ishiro Honda. Yosuke Natsuki, Yunko Hoshi, Hiroshi Koizumi, Akiko Wakabayashi, Takashi Shimura, Emi Ito, Yumi Ito. Beautiful princess, feared killed in a plane crash, reappears, claiming to be from Mars and warning that we're about to be attacked by a space dragon. Darned if she isn't right. Debut of King Ghidorah (whose name was misspelled by the original U.S. distributor) is one of the better Toho monster rallies, with Godzilla, Rodan, and Mothra calling a truce to battle this new foe. Akira Ifukube's dynamic score is a plus, as is the warm presence of the illustrious Shimura. Japanese running time is 92m. Tohoscope. ▼

Ghost, The (1963-Italian) C-96m. ½ D: Robert Hampton (Riccardo Freda). Barbara Steele, Peter Baldwin, Leonard Elliott (Elio Jotta), Harriet White. In 1910 Scotland, adulterous wife Steele and doctor-lover are seemingly haunted by the vengeful ghost of her crippled husband, whom they murdered. Measured, moody horror, let down by routine plot; still atmospheric and watchable. Follow-up to THE HORRIBLE DR. HICHCOCK. ▼

Ghost (1990) C-122m.  D: Jerry Zucker. Patrick Swayze, Demi Moore, Whoopi Goldberg, Tony Goldwyn, Rick Aviles, Vincent Schiavelli, Gail Boggs, Armelia McQueen, Phil Leeds. Overlong but enjoyable mix of fantasy, thriller, and romance. Swayze is killed, and when he learns (in his ghostly state) that he was the victim of a botched hit, he tries to warn his grieving girlfriend (Moore) that she's in danger too. Storefront medium Whoopi (in an Oscar-winning role) turns out to be the only one who can convey his messages to her. Swayze runs the gamut of expressions from A to B, but the relationships are credible and as a result the fantasy works. Oscar winner for Best Original Screenplay (Bruce Joel Rubin). [PG-13] ▼●

would-be reporter who seizes his big chance for a scoop by spending a night in a supposedly haunted house. Full of familiar character faces. Techniscope. ▼●●

Ghost and Mrs. Muir, The (1947) 104m. ½ D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Gene Tierney, Rex Harrison, George Sanders, Edna Best, Vanessa Brown, Anna Lee, Robert Coote, Natalie Wood. A lonely widow is romanced by the ghost of a sea captain in her “haunted” English cottage. Charming, beautifully made fantasy, a distant cousin to later TV sitcom; lovely score by Bernard Herrmann. Philip Dunne scripted, from the R.A. Dick novel. ▼●●

Ghost and the Darkness, The (1996) C-109m. ½ D: Stephen Hopkins. Michael Douglas, Val Kilmer, Tom Wilkinson, John Kani, Bernard Hill, Brian McCauley, Henry Cele, Emily Mortimer, Om Puri. In 1896, an Irish bridge builder heads to Africa for his latest project, but the campsite is soon cursed by violent and unexplainable attacks by a pair of man-eating lions. Eventually, renowned big-game hunter Douglas is called in. What begins as a rousing, old-fashioned adventure somehow loses its way—and its impact. Screenplay by William Goldman. Based on the same true story that inspired BWANA DEVIL. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Ghost Breakers, The (1940) 85m.  D: George Marshall. Bob Hope, Paulette Goddard, Richard Carlson, Paul Lukas, Anthony Quinn, Willie Best, Noble Johnson, Tom Dugan, Lloyd Corrigan. More plot than usual for a Hope film as Bob and Paulette investigate eerie Cuban castle that she’s inherited. Some real chills as well as laughs in this first-rate film. Remade as SCARED STIFF (1953). ▼●●

Ghost Brigade (1994) C-80m. ½ D: George Hickenlooper. Corbin Bernsen, Adrian Pasdar, Ray Wise, Martin Sheen, Cynda Williams, Billy Bob Thornton, David Arquette, Matt LeBlanc. Yankees and Rebs team up to confront supernatural brigade of evil soldiers that’s been wreaking gruesome slaughter on both sides. Odd mix of Civil War and horror genres aspires to a Peckinpah-type brutality but generally opts for mere shock value. Putting APOCALYPSE NOW star Sheen and HEARTS OF DARKNESS documentary director Hickenlooper together gives viewer an unmistakable feeling of déjà vu, as if you’re back up the delta in Cambodia looking for Col. Kurtz. Aka GREY NIGHT and THE KILLING BOX. [R] ▼●●

Ghostbusters (1984) C-107m.  D: Ivan Reitman. Bill Murray, Dan Aykroyd, Harold Ramis, Sigourney Weaver, Rick Moranis, Annie Potts, Ernie Hudson, William Atherton, Reginald VelJohnson. The first multimillion-dollar scare comedy, about a trio of flaky “paranormal investigators” who go into business flushing out ghosts and spirits in N.Y.C.—and find their business booming! Engagingly offbeat, even subdued at times, with Murray’s flippant personality nicely contrasting Richard Edlund’s eye-popping special effects. Great fun all the way; written by Aykroyd and Ramis. Followed by a sequel and an animated TV series. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Ghostbusters II (1989) C-102m.  D: Ivan Reitman. Bill Murray, Dan Aykroyd, Sigourney Weaver, Harold Ramis, Rick Moranis, Ernie Hudson, Peter MacNicol, David Margulies, Annie Potts, Ben Stein, Janet Margolin, Harris Yulin, Philip Baker Hall. Amiable, entertaining sequel has the ghostbusting boys reteaming five years after their last adventure to save N.Y.C. from a slime attack of gargantuan proportions, generated by all the “negative energy” in the air of the Big Apple. Longish but good-natured, with some solid laughs along the way. Chloe Webb has a funny unbilled cameo as a guest on Murray’s cable TV show. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Ghost Dad (1990) C-84m.  D: Sidney Poitier. Bill Cosby, Kimberly Russell, Denise Nicholas, Ian Bannen, Christine Ebersole, Barry Corbin, Salim Grant, Brooke Fontaine, Dakin Matthews, Dana Ashbrook, Arnold Stang. Overworked businessman (and widower) Cosby dies in a taxi accident, and learns he has only a few days to try to straighten out his finances so his three kids will be secure. Positive family message aside, this effects-laden fantasy plays like an extended sitcom. Younger kids may like it—others beware. [PG] ▼●●

Ghost Dog: The Way of the Samurai (1999-U.S.-French) C-116m.  D: Jim Jarmusch. Forest Whitaker, John Tormey, Cliff Gorman, Henry Silva, Isaach de Bankolé, Tricia Vessey, Victor Argo. Ghost Dog (Whitaker), a solitary hit man who lives by the code of the Samurai, finds himself a target after a job gone wrong. Typically original (though sometimes pretentious) Jarmusch mix of mysticism, action, and even comedy, anchored by Whitaker’s quiet, intense performance. Very bloody at times, and not for all tastes. Written by the director. [R] ▼●●

Ghost in the Invisible Bikini, The (1966) C-82m. *½ D: Don Weis. Tommy Kirk, Deborah Walley, Aron Kincaid, Quinn O’Hara, Nancy Sinatra, Claudia Martin, Harvey Lembeck, Jesse White, Susan Hart, Basil Rathbone, Boris Karloff, Patsy Kelly, Francis X. Bushman, Benny Rubin. Seventh (and final) BEACH PARTY movie failed to provide a shot in the arm with entirely new set of characters (save Lembeck’s Eric Von Zipper); larger-than-usual roster of veteran movie greats might attract masochistic film buffs. Panavision. ●

Ghost in the Machine (1993) C-95m. *½ D: Rachel Talalay. Karen Allen, Chris Mul-

key, Ted Marcoux, Wil Horneff, Jessica Walter, Brandon Quintin Adams, Rick Ducommun. The spirit of a dying serial killer is sucked into a computer mainframe in Cleveland, from which he continues to pursue his latest target, single mother Allen, by killing her friends and ruining her credit. Both obvious and ludicrous. [R] ▼●●

Ghost in the Noonday Sun (1973-British) C-89m. BOMB D: Peter Medak. Peter Sellers, Anthony Franciosa, Spike Milligan, Clive Revill, Peter Boyle, Richard Willis. Absolutely atrocious pirate comedy which understandably never got full-fledged theatrical release. Milligan, who's credited with "additional dialogue," appears in one sequence with his onetime Goon Show colleague Sellers, but even their chemistry can't save this turkey. ▼

Ghost of Frankenstein, The (1942) 68m. ½ D: Erle C. Kenton. Cedric Hardwicke, Lon Chaney, Jr., Lionel Atwill, Ralph Bellamy, Bela Lugosi, Evelyn Ankers, Dwight Frye. Sequel to SON OF FRANKENSTEIN. Ygor (Lugosi) tries to convince Dr. Frankenstein (Hardwicke) to put his brain into the Monster. Good cast manages to save stale plot. Followed by FRANKENSTEIN MEETS THE WOLF MAN. ▼●●

Ghost Rider (2007) C-110m.  D: Mark Steven Johnson. Nicolas Cage, Eva Mendes, Wes Bentley, Sam Elliott, Donal Logue, Matt Long, Peter Fonda, Brett Culen. Daredevil motorcyclist makes a deal with the Devil (Fonda) in order to save his father's life, then tries to adjust to living a cursed existence. In time he finds his true identity as a cycle vigilante who rides engulfed in flames, his head a burning skull! Adaptation of the Marvel comic book set out West might have been better if it didn't take so long to spell out its premise and get up a head of steam. Unrated version runs 127m. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Ghosts Can't Do It (1990) C-95m. BOMB D: John Derek. Bo Derek, Anthony Quinn, Leo Damian, Don Murray, Julie Newmar, Dee Krainz. And neither (at least on film) can John and Bo. Standard Derek atrocity involves Bo's international search for the perfect male body to house the spirit of her beloved but deceased husband (Quinn). Tony looks as if he's been photographed through the Lucille Ball MAME filter for the supernatural scenes. Just when you think it can't get any worse, Donald Trump shows up in a cameo. [R] ▼●●

Ghost Ship, The (1943) 69m.  D: Mark Robson. Richard Dix, Russell Wade, Edith Barrett, Ben Bard, Lawrence Tierney. Offbeat Val Lewton melodrama about young man who signs on merchant ship run by power-crazy captain (Dix) who's obsessed with "authority." Absorbing mood piece with unfortunately abrupt conclusion. ▼●●

Ghost Ship (2002) C-91m.  D: Steve Beck. Julianna Margulies, Gabriel Byrne,

Ron Eldard, Desmond Harrington, Isaiah Washington, Karl Urban. A salvage crew learns that a long-lost ocean liner is adrift in the vicinity, offering a potential windfall. Once aboard, they face a decidedly eerie environment and an alarming mortality rate. Flat, by-the-numbers horror fare, with some graphically gory scenes. [R] ▼●

Ghosts—Italian Style (1967-Italian) C-92m.  D: Renato Castellani. Sophia Loren, Vittorio Gassman, Mario Adorf, Margaret Lee, Aldo Guiffre. Newlyweds Loren and Gassman move into haunted house. Weak vehicle for engaging stars. [G] Ghosts of Girlfriends Past (2009) C-100m.  D: Mark Waters. Matthew McConaughey, Jennifer Garner, Michael Douglas, Breckin Meyer, Lacey Chabert, Robert Forster, Anne Archer, Emma Stone, Daniel Sunjata. A tepid reimagining of A Christmas Carol as a romantic comedy, with McConaughey typecast as a roguish lothario who's encouraged to change his charming-wastrel ways while visited by various apparitions—including his late playboy uncle (scene stealer Douglas)—the night before his brother's wedding. Game actors aren't helped by flat cinematography (even Garner, as McConaughey's once and future sweetie, looks drab) and predictable writing. Super 35. [PG-13]

Ghosts of Mars (2001) C-98m. ½ D: John Carpenter. Natasha Henstridge, Ice Cube, Pam Grier, Clea DuVall, Jason Statham, Liam Waite, Joanna Cassidy, Wanda De Jesus, Duane Davis, Robert Carradine. In the near future, Mars has been colonized, but there's an outbreak of mass murder in some remote settlements. People are possessed by vengeful Martian ghosts; it's up to the team of a lady cop and a hardened criminal to battle them. Routine, predictable, and dull; unimaginatively, the Martian-possessed people adopt a punk/grunge look. Basically a remake of Carpenter's early ASSAULT ON PRECINCT 13. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Ghosts of Mississippi (1996) C-130m.  D: Rob Reiner. Alec Baldwin, Whoopi Goldberg, James Woods, Craig T. Nelson, Susanna Thompson, Lucas Black, William H. Macy, Terry O'Quinn, Virginia Madsen, Bonnie Bartlett, Wayne Rogers, Diane Ladd. Straightforward drama about Mississippi assistant D.A. Bobby DeLaughter (Baldwin), who reopens the case against the murderer of civil rights leader Medgar Evers 30 years after the fact. Reminiscent of 1960s movies in its earnestness and sobriety, it still works, but lacks the edge and energy to make it soar. Goldberg is surprisingly good as Evers' widow, and Woods has a showy part (in heavy makeup) as the aged murderer, Byron De La Beckwith. [PG-13] ▼●●

Ghost Story (1981) C-110m. ½ D: John Irvin. Fred Astaire, Melynn Douglas, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., John Houseman, Craig Wasson, Alice Krige, Patricia Neal,

Ken Olin. Four elderly New Englanders are tormented by a 50-year-old secret, which now visits evil on one of their sons as well. Absorbing if not altogether satisfying simplification of Peter Straub's best-seller, which loses steam as it nears its resolution. Astaire's last film. [R] ▼●●

Ghost Town (1988) C-85m. ½ D: Richard Governor. Franc Luz, Catherine Hickland, Jimmie F. Skaggs, Penelope Windust, Bruce Glover, Blake Conway, Laura Schaefer. Imaginative fantasy thriller has modern-day Western sheriff Luz chosen to rid a century-old town of its curse by avenging its dead sheriff in HIGH NOON fashion. Fine special effects distinguish this modest sleeper. [R] ▼●●

Ghost Town (2008) C-102m.  D: David Koepp. Ricky Gervais, Téa Leoni, Greg Kinnear, Billy Campbell, Kristen Wiig, Dana Ivey, Aasif Mandvi, Alan Ruck, Brian d'Arcy James. Acerbic, people-phobic N.Y.C. dentist Gervais is haunted by a ghost (Kinnear) who needs to resolve issues with his widow (Leoni) before he can rest in peace. Then the unexpected happens: the dentist falls in love with her. This is the kind of fantasy-comedy "they don't make anymore," buoyed by Gervais' distinctive comic persona and his hilarious mutterings. Funny and heartfelt; written by director Koepp and John Kamps. [PG-13] ●

Ghost World (2001) C-111m. ½ D: Terry Zwigoff. Thora Birch, Scarlett Johansson, Steve Buscemi, Brad Renfro, Illeana Douglas, Bob Balaban. A sour teenage iconoclast (Birch) finds her only friend (Johansson) drifting away after their high school graduation, so she attaches herself to geeky record collector Buscemi. A well-observed study of alienation, coscripted by Zwigoff and Daniel Clowes from the latter's comic book . . . but it's difficult to care about a character who refuses to be cared about. Zwigoff's first fictional feature, following CRUMB; in fact, R. Crumb contributed a drawing to this film. Teri Garr appears unbilled. [R] ▼●

Ghoul, The (1933-British) 79m. ½ D: T. Hayes Hunter. Boris Karloff, Cedric Hardwicke, Ernest Thesiger, Dorothy Hyson, Anthony Bushell, Ralph Richardson, Kathleen Harrison. England's answer to Hollywood's horror films: Egyptologist Karloff wishes to be buried with a jewel he believes will allow him eternal life. It's stolen, and he rises from the dead in search of the culprit. Slow going until Karloff's resurrection; then it really hums. Richardson's film debut. Remade as 1962 comedy NO PLACE LIKE HOMICIDE! ▼●

Ghoul, The (1975-British) C-88m. ½ D: Freddie Francis. Peter Cushing, John Hurt, Alexandra Bastedo, Gwen Watford, Veronica Carlson, Steward Bevan. Innocent people fall victim to a mysterious flesh-eating "monster" in Cushing's secluded home. Fairly interesting, nongory thriller, with Hurt as Cushing's crazed gardener. ▼

Ghoulies (1985) C-84m. *½ D: Luca Bercovici. Peter Liapis, Lisa Pelikan, Michael Des Barres, Jack Nance, Peter Risch, Tamara de Treaux. Boring, ridiculous film about young man who invokes Satanic spirits in the form of gremlinlike creatures (who look like muppets dipped in shellac) at a creepy old mansion. Followed by three sequels. [PG-13] ▼●

Giant (1956) C-201m. * D: George Stevens. Elizabeth Taylor, Rock Hudson, James Dean, Carroll Baker, Jane Withers, Chill Wills, Mercedes McCambridge, Dennis Hopper, Sal Mineo, Rodney (Rod) Taylor, Earl Holliman. Near-legendary epic based on Edna Ferber's novel about two generations of larger-than-life Texans holds up beautifully, although still very much of its time. Hudson's best performance, close to Taylor's best, and Dean's last film. Stevens won Oscar for direction. Screenplay by Fred Guiol and Ivan Moffat. ▼●●

Giant Gila Monster, The (1959) 74m. *½ D: Ray Kellogg. Don Sullivan, Lisa Simone, Shug Fisher, Jerry Cortwright, Beverly Thurman, Don Flourney, Pat Simmons. Big, beaded lizard menaces small Texas town. Not as good as it sounds. Has a couple of wildly inappropriate songs. ▼●●

Giant Steps (1992-Canadian) C-94m. ½ D: Richard Rose. Billy Dee Williams, Michael Mahonen, Robyn Stevan, Ted Dykstra, Raneé Lee. Idealistic teen trumpeter Mahonen befriends his idol, Slate Thompson (Williams), a legendary, self-destructive jazz pianist attempting to remain true to his art. Well meaning but obvious and preachy. ▼

G.I. Blues (1960) C-104m. ½ D: Norman Taurog. Elvis Presley, Juliet Prowse, Robert Ivers, Leticia Roman, Ludwig Stossel. Prowse's versatile performance as a cabaret dancer uplifts this standard Presley fare about a guitar-playing G.I. in West Germany. Elvis sings "Tonight Is So Right for Love," "Wooden Heart," "Blue Suede Shoes," and title song. ▼●●

Gideon of Scotland Yard (1958-British) C-91m. *½ D: John Ford. Jack Hawkins, Dianne Foster, Cyril Cusack, Andrew Ray, James Hayter, Ronald Howard, Anna Massey, Anna Lee, Laurence Naismith. A typical day in the life of a Scotland Yard inspector; Hawkins is likable but the film is unbelievably dull. A surprising dud from director Ford. British version, titled GID-

EON'S DAY, runs 118m. Originally released theatrically in the U.S. in b&w.

Gideon's Day SEE: Gideon of Scotland Yard

Gidget (1959) C-95m. ½ D: Paul Wendkos. Sandra Dee, James Darren, Cliff Robertson, Arthur O'Connell, Joby Baker, Yvonne Craig, Doug McClure, Tom Laughlin. California teenage girl hits the beach one summer and falls in love with two surfer boys. Dee is spirited in the title role of this hit movie (based on Frederick Kohner's novel about his daughter), which led to a number of sequels and two different TV series! CinemaScope. ▼●●

Gidget Goes Hawaiian (1961) C-102m.  D: Paul Wendkos. James Darren, Michael Callan, Deborah Walley, Carl Reiner, Peggy Cass, Eddie Foy, Jr. Inane follow-up has teenager off to the Islands, with embarrassing results for all. ▼●

Gidget Goes to Rome (1963) C-101m.  D: Paul Wendkos. Cindy Carol, James Darren, Jessie Royce Landis, Cesare Danova, Jeff Donnell. Mild follow-up has fetching teenager off to Italy, involved in predictable romancing. ▼●

Gift, The (1982-French-Italian) C-105m.  D: Michel Lang. Pierre Mondy, Claudia Cardinale, Clio Goldsmith, Jacques Francois, Cecile Magnet, Remi Laurent. Bank employees chip in to buy their colleague a surprise retirement gift: a beautiful prostitute. A "good clean sex farce," strained and silly, with no sex, very little nudity, and the improbable casting of beautiful Cardinale as Mondy's wife. [R] ▼

Gift, The (2000) C-111m. ½ D: Sam Raimi. Cate Blanchett, Giovanni Ribisi, Keanu Reeves, Katie Holmes, Greg Kinnear, Hilary Swank, Michael Jeter, Kim Dickens, Gary Cole, Rosemary Harris, J. K. Simmons, Chelcie Ross. Young widow and mother Blanchett earns money doing psychic readings for her Georgia neighbors, but incurs the wrath of an abusive Reeves . . . and then becomes a key witness in a murder trial. Uneven blend of Southern gothic/psychic/courtroom/whodunit ingredients, made watchable by a strong ensemble. Written by Billy Bob Thornton and Tom Epperson. [R] ▼●

Gift From Heaven, A (1994) C-102m.  D: Jack Lucarelli. Sharon Farrell, Gigi Rice, David Steen, Sarah Trigger, Gene Lythgow, Mark Ruffalo, Nicholas Worth, Molly McClure. Solid characterizations add immeasurably to this complex, impassioned drama about an emotionally scarred backwoods North Carolina mother (Farrell). She gave birth to the eldest of her two grown children (Steen) when she was twelve, after being seduced by her preacher uncle: the emotional sparks begin to fly upon the arrival of an orphaned cousin (Trigger). Actor Steen also scripted the film.

Gift Horse, The (1952-British) 100m. ***

D: Compton Bennett. Trevor Howard, Richard Attenborough, Sonny Tufts, James Donald, Joan Rice, Bernard Lee, Dora Bryan, Hugh Williams, Sidney James. Solid WW2 drama with Howard as a troublesome ship's captain, disliked by his crew, who comes into his own while battling a German U-boat. Also known as GLORY AT SEA. ▼

Gift of Love, The (1958) C-105m.  D: Jean Negulesco. Lauren Bacall, Robert Stack, Evelyn Rudie, Lorne Greene, Anne Seymour. If you could put up with SENTIMENTAL JOURNEY you might bear this remake, which isn't even as good. Bacall dies but returns to earth as guiding spirit for her husband and daughter. Remade again for TV as SENTIMENTAL JOURNEY. CinemaScope.

Gig, The (1985) C-92m.  D: Frank D. Gilroy. Wayne Rogers, Cleavon Little, Andrew Duncan, Jerry Matz, Daniel Nalbach, Warren Vache, Joe Silver, Jay Thomas. Perceptive, touching comedy-drama about dreams, compromises, disappointments—what it means to be alive. A group of middle-class, middle-aged men play jazz both to amuse themselves and to escape from the pressures of their lives; they are hired for their first professional engagement at a small resort, and the experience proves to be unexpectedly unsettling. Gilroy also wrote the script. ▼

Gigantic (2009) C-98m.  D: Matt Aselton. Paul Dano, Zooey Deschanel, John Goodman, Ed Asner, Jane Alexander, Ian Roberts, Robert Stanton, Clarke Peters, Susan Misner, Zach Galifianakis. Dano plays the son of older parents (Asner and Alexander) and baby brother of two robust siblings; his only goal in life is to adopt a baby from China. Then he meets Deschanel, who lives in the shadow of her bombastic father (Goodman). Quirky, hip, sexy New York-based comedy with a disarmingly oblique sense of humor. Feature directing debut for Aselton, who scripted with Adam Nagata. Super 35. [R]

Gigantis, the Fire Monster (1959-Japanese) 78m.  D: Motoyoshi Oda, Hugo Grimaldi. Hiroshi Koizumi, Setsuko Makayama. A new Godzilla, here called Gigantis, battles spiny Angorous, trashing another Japanese city. First sequel to GODZILLA, KING OF THE MONSTERS!, retitled: GODZILLA RAIDS AGAIN. ▼

Gigi (1948-French) 83m. ½ D: Jacqueline Audry. Daniele Delorme, Frank Villard, Yvonne de Bray, Gaby Morlay, Jean Tissier, Madeleine Rousset. Original version of Colette's novel is not a musical but a drolly amusing (if talky and uncinematic) comedy of manners. Delorme, who starred in two more films based on Colette stories, is delightful as Gigi, the girl trained to be a courtesan by her aunt and grandmother in fin de siècle Paris. Originally 109m. ●

Gigi (1958) C-116m. * D: Vincente Minnelli. Leslie Caron, Maurice Chevalier, Louis Jourdan, Hermione Gingold, Jacques Bergerac, Eva Gabor. Charming turn-of-the-century musical based on Colette's story of a French girl who's groomed to be a courtesan. Exquisitely filmed, perfectly cast, with memorable Lerner & Loewe score: title tune, "Thank Heaven for Little Girls," "I Remember It Well." Winner of nine Academy Awards including Best Picture, Director, Writing (Alan Jay Lerner), Cinematography (Joseph Ruttenberg), Costumes (Cecil Beaton), Song ("Gigi"), and Scoring (Andre Previn). Chevalier received an honorary Oscar. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Gigli (2003) C-124m. *½ D: Martin Brest. Jennifer Lopez, Ben Affleck, Justin Bartha, Lainie Kazan, Al Pacino, Christopher Walken, Missy Crider, Lenny Venito. Underworld functionary Affleck is hired to kidnap the brother of a federal prosecutor; then, inexplicably, Affleck's boss sends Lopez to keep an eye on him! Sorry excuse for a script (by Brest) lurches from one boring, silly, illogical, and/or unpleasant sequence to another, when in fact it exists merely to show off its sexy female star, who (in the film's most memorable scene) talks dirty while performing yoga. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Gigot (1962) C-104m.  D: Gene Kelly. Jackie Gleason, Katherine Kath, Gabrielle Dorziat, Albert Remy, Yvonne Constant. Sentimental, well-acted tale of a deaf mute (Gleason) and a young girl in Paris. Simple film, well done; Gleason is excellent. Remade for TV as THE WOOL CAP MAN (2004).

G.I. Jane (1997) C-124m.  D: Ridley Scott. Demi Moore, Viggo Mortensen, Anne Bancroft, Scott Wilson, Jason Beghe, Daniel Von Bargen. Contrived movie about a woman selected as a test case for admitting females into naval combat. She undergoes the unbelievable rigors of Navy SEALs training, determined not to be shown favored treatment. Pumped-up Moore is perfect for the part, though it's a toss-up as to which scenes are more off-putting—her body-building workouts or her physical abuse at the hands of her Master Chief (Mortensen). Typically dense Scott soundtrack renders much of the dialogue unintelligible—but it's no loss. Too bad they didn't lose the anticlimactic final action sequence. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Gilda (1946) 110m.  D: Charles Vidor. Rita Hayworth, Glenn Ford, George Macready, Joseph Calleia, Steven Geray. Highly charged story of emotional triangle—mysterious South American casino owner Macready, his new man-Friday Ford, and Macready's alluring wife (Hayworth)—unfortunately cops out with silly resolutions. Rita has never been sexier, especially when singing "Put the Blame on Mame." ▼●●

Gilda Live (1980) C-90m. ½ D: Mike Nichols. Gilda Radner, Father Guido Sarducci (Don Novello). Filmization of Radner's Broadway show, with the comedienne doing uncensored versions of her familiar Saturday Night Live TV characters. Best song: "Let's Talk Dirty to the Animals." [R] ▼

Gilded Lily, The (1935) 80m.  D: Wesley Ruggles. Claudette Colbert, Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland, C. Aubrey Smith, Edward Craven, Luis Alberni, Grace Bradley. Colbert has to choose between aristocratic Milland and down-to-earth MacMurray. Fine romantic fluff. MacMurray's breezy performance here made a strong impression and boosted him to stardom.

Gilles' Wife (2004-French-Belgian-Swiss) C-108m. ½ D: Frédéric Fonteyne. Emmanuelle Devos, Clovis Cornillac, Laura Smet, Colette Emmanuelle, Gil Lagay. A simple, happily married woman in a small Belgian village begins to suspect that her husband is seeing another woman—namely, her sister. Exquisite rendering of Madeleine Bourdouxhe's 1937 novel recalls French films of that period; much of the story is told through Devos' expressive face and the painterly images of cinematographer Virginie Saint-Martin. Deliberate in both its pacing and attention to detail. Fonteyne co-wrote the screenplay with Philippe Blasband and Marion Hänsel. ▶

Gimme Shelter (1970) C-91m. * D: David Maysles, Albert Maysles, Charlotte Zwerin. Rolling Stones, Jefferson Airplane, Tina Turner, Melvin Belli. Outstanding documentary of the Rolling Stones and the famous Altamont Speedway free concert that resulted in chaos and murder. Chilling, beautifully handled, with the Stones performing their best songs of the period ("Satisfaction," "Sympathy for the Devil," etc.). Reissued in PG form at 90m., then reedited for reissue in 2000 at 91m. [R] ▼●●

Gina SEE: Death in the Garden

Ginger and Fred (1986-Italian) C-126m.  D: Federico Fellini. Giulietta Masina, Marcello Mastroianni, Franco Fabrizi, Frederick Von Ledeburg, Martin Blau, Toto Mignone. Fellini satirizes TV, and the cult of instant celebrity, in this relaxed and amusing film. Ginger and Fred are, in fact, two small-time entertainers who used to imitate Rogers and Astaire and who are being reunited by an unctuous TV show. The targets are a bit obvious and the pace a bit leisurely, but the climactic sequence is fun, and the two stars are wonderful to watch, as always. [PG-13] ▼●

Gingerbread Man, The (1998) C-115m.  D: Robert Altman. Kenneth Branagh, Embeth Davidtz, Robert Downey, Jr., Daryl Hannah, Tom Berenger, Famke Janssen, Mae Whitman, Jesse James, Robert Duvall. Cocky Savannah lawyer (Branagh, with a terrific accent) sleeps with a woman he's

just met (Davidtz, in a strong performance), then gets into hot water when he tries to protect her from her lunatic father. If he's so smart, how could he leave himself so vulnerable? Ask John Grisham, who wrote this thriller, which grows more implausible with each new story twist. Final showdown is especially weak. Screenplay credited to a pseudonymous Al Hayes. [R]▼●

Ginger in the Morning (1973) C-89m. ½ D: Gordon Wiles. Sissy Spacek, Monte Markham, Mark Miller, Susan Oliver, Slim Pickens. So-so romantic comedy about a lonely salesman who picks up a comely hitchhiker. He's attracted to her young, fresh independence; she's drawn to his old-fashioned romanticism. [PG]▼

Girl Can't Help It, The (1956) C-99m. ½ D: Frank Tashlin. Tom Ewell, Jayne Mansfield, Edmond O'Brien, Julie London. One-joke film about press agent Ewell trying to hype gangster's girlfriend (Mansfield) to stardom. Some good Tashlin sight gags; classic performances by Fats Domino ("Blue Monday"), The Platters ("You'll Never Know"), Gene Vincent and His Blue Caps ("BeBop A Lula"), Little Richard ("She's Got It," "Ready Teddy," and "The Girl Can't Help It"). CinemaScope.▼

Girl Crazy (1943) 99m. ½ D: Norman Taurog. Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Gil Stratton, Robert E. Strickland, "Rags" Ragland, June Allyson, Nancy Walker, Guy Kibbee, Tommy Dorsey and His Orchestra. Rooney sent to small Southwestern school to forget girls, but meets Garland and that's that. Great Gershwin score includes "I Got Rhythm," "Embraceable You," "But Not For Me." Busby Berkeley (the original director) staged the finale. Filmed before in 1932; remade as WHEN THE BOYS MEET THE GIRLS.▼●

girlfight (2000) C-113m.  D: Karyn Kusama. Michelle Rodriguez, Jaime Tirelli, Paul Calderon, Santiago Douglas, Ray Santiago, Elisa Bocanegra. A hotheaded Latina teenager who lives in Brooklyn finds a way to channel her anger—in the boxing ring. Making her way in a male-dominated sport is no easy matter, especially when she falls in love with a fellow boxer. Rodriguez is utterly believable in this entertaining debut feature for writer-director Kusama. John Sayles, who coexecutive-produced, has a small part as a science teacher. [R]▼

Girl for Joe, A SEE: Force of Arms

warm, winning performance helps likable but uneven film over rough spots. [PG]▼

Girl From Jones Beach, The (1949) 78m. ½ D: Peter Godfrey. Ronald Reagan, Virginia Mayo, Eddie Bracken, Dona Drake, Henry Travers, Lois Wilson, Florence Bates. Breezy comedy about an artist trying to find living embodiment of the perfectly proportioned female in his illustrations. Capable romantic-comedy performance by Reagan.

Girl From Lorraine, The (1980-French-Swiss) C-107m. ½ D: Claude Goretta. Nathalie Baye, Bruno Ganz, Angela Winkler, Patrick Chesnais. Unemployed draughtswoman Baye, from the provinces, maintains her dignity in lonely, unfriendly Paris. Quietly rewarding drama with an extremely likable heroine; however, sometimes as dreary as some of the characters she meets. Originally titled LA PROVINCIALE.

Girl From Missouri, The (1934) 75m.  D: Jack Conway. Jean Harlow, Lionel Barrymore, Franchot Tone, Lewis Stone, Patsy Kelly, Alan Mowbray. Delightful fluff about good girl Harlow trying to win a millionaire without sacrificing her integrity. Wise-cracking Kelly as her girlfriend is a treat.▼

Girl From Petrovka, The (1974) C-104m.  D: Robert Ellis Miller. Goldie Hawn, Hal Holbrook, Anthony Hopkins, Gregoire Aslan, Anton Dolin. Old-fashioned comedy-drama about a bittersweet affair between American correspondent Holbrook and Russian Hawn. Filmed in Vienna and Hollywood. Panavision. [PG]▼

Girl From 10th Avenue, The (1935) 69m.  D: Alfred E. Green. Bette Davis, Ian Hunter, Colin Clive, Alison Skipworth, John Eldredge, Philip Reed, Katherine Alexander. Honest working girl Davis gets alcoholic, recently jilted society lawyer Hunter back on his feet; then his ex-girlfriend decides she wants him back. Davis shines in this engrossing soap.

Girl-Getters, The (1966-British) 79m.  D: Michael Winner. Oliver Reed, Jane Merrow, Barbara Ferris, Julia Foster, David Hemmings. Realistic study of hoodlum youths at British seaside resort, their prankish games and romances; intelligently portrayed. Retitled: THE SYSTEM.▼

Girl Happy (1965) C-96m. ½ D: Boris Sagal. Elvis Presley, Shelley Fabares, Harold J. Stone, Gary Crosby, Joby Baker, Nita Talbot, Mary Ann Mobley, Chris Noel, Jackie Coogan. Formula Presley musical with tiresome plot of Elvis in Fort Lauderdale chaperoning Fabares, daughter of Chicago mobster. Panavision.▼

Girl He Left Behind, The (1956) 103m. ½ D: David Butler. Tab Hunter, Natalie Wood, Jessie Royce Landis, Jim Backus, Henry Jones, Murray Hamilton, Alan King, James Garner, David Janssen. Hunter is new recruit in Army. Reminiscent of SEE

HERE, PRIVATE HARGROVE, without any of the warmth or humor.

Girl Hunters, The (1963-British) 103m. ½ D: Roy Rowland. Mickey Spillane, Lloyd Nolan, Shirley Eaton, Hy Gardner. Spillane plays his own fictional detective Mike Hammer in this rugged murder mystery. Since the disappearance of his devoted secretary, Hammer has been wallowing in alcohol; he sobers up, and goes into action, upon learning she might be alive. Panavision. ▼

Girl in a Swing, The (1989-U.S.-British) C-112m. BOMB D: Gordon Hessler. Meg Tilly, Rupert Frazer, Nicholas Le Prevost, Elspet Gray, Lorna Heilbron, Helen Cherry. Antique dealer marries a mysterious German woman after a whirlwind courtship and pays the consequences, surviving her hallucinations and related erratic behavior. Despite lots of simulated (and unrated) screen sex, this is absolutely unwatchable—though Frazer looks just enough like Regis Philbin to give this stinker some unexpected subtext. [R] ▼

Girl in Every Port, A (1952) 86m.  D: Chester Erskine. Groucho Marx, Marie Wilson, William Bendix, Don DeFore, Gene Lockhart, George E. Stone. Nonsense of two gobs who become involved with a lame racehorse. Good cast is wasted. ▼

Girl, Interrupted (1999) C-127m.  D: James Mangold. Winona Ryder, Angelina Jolie, Clea DuVall, Brittany Murphy, Whoopi Goldberg, Vanessa Redgrave, Jared Leto, Jeffrey Tambor, Mary Kay Place, Joanna Kerns, Kurtwood Smith, Ray Baker. Vivid adaptation of Susanna Kaysen's autobiographical book (set in the late 1960s) about a girl who enters a mental institution at the age of 18, thinking she's normal compared to most of the others—though she did try to kill herself. Jolie is incandescent in an Oscar-winning performance as the firebrand of the ward, who, like most of the others, hides her true emotions. [R] ▼

Girl in the Red Velvet Swing, The (1955) C-109m. ½ D: Richard Fleischer. Ray Milland, Joan Collins, Farley Granger, Cornelia Otis Skinner, Glenda Farrell, Luther Adler. Glossy, fictionalized account of Evelyn Nesbit-Stanford White—Harry Thaw escapade of early 20th-century N.Y.C. Showgirl falls in love with prominent architect, which upsets mentally disturbed millionaire. CinemaScope. ▼

Girl Most Likely, The (1957) C-98m.  D: Mitchell Leisen. Jane Powell, Cliff Robertson, Keith Andes, Tommy Noonan, Kaye Ballard, Una Merkel. Musical remake of TOM, DICK AND HARRY comes off as bright, cheerful entertainment. A girl must decide which one of the trio she'll wed; Kaye Ballard does very well in supporting role. Choreography by Gower Champion. ▼

Girl Named Tamiko, A (1962) C-110m. ½ D: John Sturges. Laurence Harvey, France Nuyen, Martha Hyer, Gary Merrill, Michael Wilding, Miyoshi Umeki, Lee Patrick. Overblown soaper set in Tokyo. Harvey charms Hyer into proposing marriage so he can get U.S. citizenship. Nuyen is sweet Oriental whom Harvey really loves. Panavision.

Girl Next Door, The (1953) C-92m.  D: Richard Sale. Dan Dailey, June Haver, Dennis Day, Billy Gray, Cara Williams, Natalie Schafer. Minor but cheerful musical about a chorus-girl-turned-star who moves next door to a widower and his son and threatens to break up their buddy relationship. Great set design, clever use of animation (by the UPA studio), bright Harry Warren-Josef Myrow songs, and eye-popping film noir production number "Nowhere Guy" spark this likable confection. Haver's last film before retiring. ▼

Girl Next Door, The (2004) C-108m. ½ D: Luke Greenfield. Emile Hirsch, Elisha Cuthbert, Timothy Olyphant, James Remar, Chris Marquette, Paul Dano, Timothy Bottoms, Jacob Young. Straight-arrow high school senior breaks out of his nerdy routine when he falls head over heels for his new next-door neighbor, a blonde knockout who turns out to be a porn star trying to go straight. Excellent casting and some good laughs are mitigated by film's overreliance on ideas "borrowed" from RISKY BUSINESS, key scenes that don't ring true, and a storyline that's much more complicated than it has to be. [R] ▼

Girl of the Golden West, The (1938) 120m. ½ D: Robert Z. Leonard. Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Walter Pidgeon, Leo Carrillo, Buddy Ebsen, Leonard Penn. Oft-produced tale of love affair of good girl MacDonald and bandit Eddy, with tuneful Gus Kahn-Sigmund Romberg score that didn't produce any hits. ▼

Girl on a Motorcycle (1968-British-French) C-91m.  D: Jack Cardiff. Marianne Faithfull, Alain Delon, Roger Mutton, Marius Goring, Catherine Jourdan. Cardiff also photographed this oddity: a mod, psychedelic, existential tale of a woman who leaves her husband and rides her motorcycle to visit her ex-lover. From André Pieyre De Mandiargues's novel. Trimmed from X-rated version titled NAKED UNDER LEATHER. [R] ▼

Girl on the Bridge (1951) 77m. ½ D: Hugo Haas. Hugo Haas, Beverly Michaels, Robert Dane, Johnny Close, Anthony Jochim. Kindly shopkeeper saves young woman from suicide and takes her in—along with her baby. Typical Haas melodrama but better than most. ▼

Girl on the Bridge, The (1999-French) 92m.  D: Patrice Leconte. Daniel Auteuil, Vanessa Paradis, Demetre Georgalas, Bertie Cortez. A mysterious knife-thrower

(Auteuil) saves a young woman from jumping off a bridge and recruits her for his death-defying act. Their success together is based not just on his skill, but on their almost telepathic (and sensual) sense of oneness. Stylish, provocative fable, shot in widescreen b&w, opens with real-life pop star Paradis delivering a mesmerizing monologue. Panavision. [R]▼

Girls, The (1968-Swedish) 90m.  D: Mai Zetterling. Bibi Andersson, Harriet Andersson, Gunnel Lindblom, Gunnar Bjornstrand, Erland Josephson, Ulf Palme. Trenchant study of modern marriages and female roles, loaded with fantasy sequences. Fabulous cast drawn by actress-turned-director Zetterling from Ingmar Bergman's repertory company. Aka FLICKORNA.▶

Girls! Girls! Girls! (1962) C-106m. ½ D: Norman Taurog. Elvis Presley, Stella Stevens, Laurel Goodwin, Jeremy Slate, Benson Fong, Robert Strauss, Ginny Tiu. Presley is chased by a mass of girls and can't decide which one he prefers. Along the way, he sings "Return to Sender" and some other less memorable numbers (like "Song of the Shrimp").▼

Girl Shy (1924) 81m.  D: Fred Newmeyer, Sam Taylor. Harold Lloyd, Jobyna Ralston, Richard Daniels, Carlton Griffin. Enjoyable Lloyd vehicle mixes comedy and sentiment with a spectacular chase finale. Harold is a small-town boy who's petrified of women but writes book on lovemaking secrets! Fantasy scenes of his love life mark highlight.▼

Girl 6 (1996) C-105m.  D: Spike Lee. Theresa Randle, Isaiah Washington, Spike Lee, Jennifer Lewis, Debi Mazar, Peter Berg, Michael Imperioli, Dina Pearlman, Maggie Rush, Kristen Wilson, Naomi Campbell, Desi Moreno, John Turturro, Madonna, Quentin Tarantino, Halle Berry, Richard Belzer, Ron Silver, Susan Batson, Gretchen Mol. A frustrated young actress takes (and becomes addicted to) a job as a phone-sex worker. Done in by its predictability and lack of insight into the character of Girl 6. Worth a look for Randle's appealing performance and Lee's vivid depiction of the phone-sex world. [R]▼

Girls Just Want to Have Fun (1985) C-87m. ½ D: Alan Metter. Sarah Jessica Parker, Lee Montgomery, Morgan Woodward, Jonathan Silverman, Helen Hunt, Holly Gagner, Ed Lauter, Shannen Doherty. Likable, upbeat teen comedy about girl with reactionary father who wants to enter dance contest. Clichés and contrivances are counterbalanced by believable portrayal of teenage girls, appealingly played by Parker and Hunt. [PG]▼

Girls of Summer SEE: Satisfaction

Girls on the Beach, The (1965) C-80m. ½ D: William N. Witney. Martin West, Noreen Corcoran, Peter Brooks, Lana Wood, The Beach Boys, Lesley Gore, Dick Miller. Three coeds promise they'll get The Beatles to make a personal appearance and then have a mite of trouble delivering. The Beach Boys sing two tunes in this predictable comedy. Reissued as SUMMER OF '64.

Girls Town (1959) 92m. ½ D: Charles Haas. Mamie Van Doren, Mel Torme, Paul Anka, Ray Anthony, Maggie Hayes, Cathy Crosby, Gigi Perreau, Gloria Talbott, Jim Mitchum, Elinor Donahue, Sheila Graham, The Platters, Harold Lloyd, Jr. Wise-cracking bad girl is sent to title correctional institution, where she learns that she doesn't have all the answers. Absurd in the extreme, but has definite camp value just for the cast alone... plus, Anka sings "Ave Maria"! As Mamie says, it's "cool, crazy, fantabulous." Aka INNOCENT AND THE DAMNED.▼

Girls Town (1996) C-90m. ½ D: Jim McKay. Lili Taylor, Bruklin Harris, Anna Grace, Aunjanue Ellis, Guillermo Diaz, Ernestine Jackson, Tara Carnes, Michael Imperioli. Disparate clique of teenage girlfriends discover the depths of their individual secrets when one of their group inexplicably commits suicide. A largely improvised script results in realistic dialogue that considers the issues of teenage boredom, friendship, victimization of women, solidarity, and empowerment. A painfully unsentimental, sometimes humorous, coming-of-age in the '90s story. [R]▼

Girl 27 (2007) C-80m.  D: David Stenn. Fascinating, highly personal documentary by Hollywood historian-biographer Stenn about a forgotten woman named Patricia Douglas, who was raped during an MGM sales convention in 1937. Stenn does admirable detective work piecing this long-buried story together, and reveals his discoveries one by one. Use of 1930s movie scenes to parallel the true-life story told here doesn't always work, but the overall result is excellent.▶

Girl Who Couldn't Say No, The (1968-Italian) C-83m.  D: Franco Brusati. Vima Lisi, George Segal, Lila Kedrova, Akim Tamiroff, Paola Pitagora, Felicity Mason. Square Segal and childhood friend Lisi fall for each other, but just can't maintain a permanent relationship; mild comedy. Telescope. [M/PG]

Girl Who Had Everything, The (1953) 69m. ½ D: Richard Thorpe. Elizabeth Taylor, Fernando Lamas, William Powell, Gig Young, James Whitmore, Robert Burton. Good cast uplifts murky remake of A FREE SOUL. Independent-minded Taylor is attracted to gambling kingpin Lamas, the client of her trial-lawyer father (Powell). Young has another of his thankless "other man" roles.▼

Girl With a Pearl Earring (2003-British-Luxembourgian) C-99m. ½ D: Peter Webber. Colin Firth, Scarlett Johansson, Tom Wilkinson, Judy Parfitt, Cillian Murphy, Essie Davis, Joanna Scanlan, Alakina Mann. Exquisite rendering of Tracy Chevalier's best-selling novel about the circumstances that lead a scullery maid to pose for one of Johannes Vermeer's most famous portraits. First-time feature director Webber and his team create a breathtaking sense of time and place (Delft in the 17th century), and Johansson is perfect as the unassuming girl who seeks to find her place in the combustible Vermeer household. Screenplay by Olivia Hetreed. Super 35. [PG-13] **▼

Girl With a Suitcase (1960-Italian) 111m. ½ D: Valerio Zurlini. Claudia Cardinale, Jacques Perrin, Luciana Angelillo, Corrado Pani. Impressive film of devoted but shady girl Cardinale following her ex-lover to Parma, only to fall in love with his adolescent brother. Confusing at times, but extremely well acted. Original Italian running time 135m. **▼

Girl With Green Eyes (1964-British) 91m.  D: Desmond Davis. Rita Tushingham, Peter Finch, Lynn Redgrave, T. P. McKenna, Marie Kean, Julian Glover. Moving drama of young farm girl falling in love with writer Finch, highlighted by winning Tushingham performance. Redgrave scores as her roommate. Filmed in Dublin. **▼

Girl With the Red Hair, The (1981-Dutch) C-116m. *½ D: Ben Verbong. Renee Soutendijk, Peter Tuinman, Loes Luca, Johan Leysen, Robert Delhez, Ada Bouwman. Give a Girl a Break (1953) C-82m. *½ D: Stanley Donen. Marge and Gower Champion, Debbie Reynolds, Helen Wood, Bob Fosse, Kurt Kaszner, Richard Anderson, William Ching, Larry Keating. Innocuous musical fluff about three young women competing for the starring role in a Broadway musical. Watching Marge and Gower dance is always a treat, but the real highlight is seeing two of the greatest choreographers of all time (Champion and Fosse) dancing together. Undistinguished score by Ira Gershwin and Burton Lane. **▼

Give 'Em Hell, Harry! (1975) C-102m.

 D: Steve Binder. James Whitmore. Straight reproduction of Whitmore's one-man stage triumph as Harry Truman, covering high points in both the political and personal life of our 33rd President. Video-taped and transferred to film for theatrical release, but original tape version used for TV. [PG] **▼

Give Me a Sailor (1938) 80m. *½ D: Elliott Nugent. Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Betty Grable, Jack Whiting, Clarence Kolb, J. C. Nugent. Fast-moving comedy with Raye an ugly duckling constantly upstaged by her prettier, self-centered sibling (Grable); Hope and Whiting are Navy brothers who play out a comic/romantic scenario involving the sisters. **▼

Give My Regards to Broad Street (1984-British) C-108m. * D: Peter Webb. Paul McCartney, Bryan Brown, Ringo Starr, Barbara Bach, Linda McCartney, Tracey Ullman, Ralph Richardson. Vanity film with silly "plot" about a missing album tape connecting a number of music video-type numbers ("Ballroom Dancing," "No More Lonely Nights"). Some of the music is good (and McCartney reprises a couple of Beatles songs) but mostly it's a big snooze. [PG] **▼

Gizmo (1977) C/B&W-77m. *½ D: Howard Smith. Entertaining compilation of film clips on 20th-century "inventors" and their often outlandish contraptions. Good fun, though it can't quite sustain feature length. [G] **▼

Gladiator (1992) C-98m. ½ D: Rowdy Herrington. Cuba Gooding, Jr., James Marshall, Robert Loggia, Ossie Davis, Brian Dennehy, Cara Buono, John Heard, Jon Seda, Lance Slaughter. Pubescent ROCKY wannabe about a tough Chicago teenager becoming involved in the tawdry underground boxing scene. Builds to ludicrous climax with crooked fight promoter Dennehy actually getting in the ring! [R] **▼

Gladiator (2000) C-154m.  D: Ridley Scott. Russell Crowe, Joaquin Phoenix, Connie Nielsen, Oliver Reed, Derek Jacobi, Djimon Hounsou, Richard Harris, David Hemmings. Impressive tale from the days of the Roman Empire, with Crowe as a dedicated soldier who refuses to transfer his loyalty to the new emperor Commodus (Phoenix) and suffers the consequences, winding up a gladiator in the Roman Colosseum. Crowe is so good in his Academy Award-winning performance—and his character so compelling—that one is willing to forgive story lulls; the spectacle is grand, but the opening battle scene stresses chaos over coherence. Reed's last film; he died during production. Also won Oscars for Best Picture, Costume Design, Sound, and Visual Effects. Extended edition runs 171m. Super 35. [R] **▼

Glass Bottom Boat, The (1966) C-110m.

Glass House, The (2001) C-106m. ½ D: Daniel Sackheim. Leelee Sobieski, Stellan Skarsgård, Diane Lane, Bruce Dem, Kathy Baker, Trevor Morgan, Chris Noth, Michael O'Keefe, Rita Wilson, Gavin O'Connor. When their well-off parents are killed in an auto accident, late-teen Sobieski and her younger brother are adopted by family friends whose financial overextension makes the kids' trust fund look mighty attractive. Sobieski seems more sullen than vulnerable as the script degenerates into often-laughable chiller-melodrama clichés. As a drug-addicted mom, Lane's underdeveloped character compels more than the rest. Followed by a DVD sequel. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Glass Houses (1972) C-90m.  D: Alexander Singer. Jennifer O'Neill, Bernard Barrow, Deirdre Lenihan, Ann Summers, Phillip Pine, Lloyd Kino. Low-grade drama about infidelity and incestuous desire is mildly interesting in a lurid kind of way; O'Neill's first film, but released after RIO LOBO and SUMMER OF '42. [R]

Glass Key, The (1935) 80m.  D: Frank Tuttle. George Raft, Claire Dodd, Edward Arnold, Rosalind Keith, Ray Milland, Guinn Williams. Solid Dashiell Hammett story about politician Arnold getting involved in mysterious murder, Raft trying to dig out the facts. Drags during second half, but still quite good. Remade in 1942.

Glass Key, The (1942) 85m. ½ D: Stuart Heisler. Brian Donlevy, Veronica Lake, Alan Ladd, Joseph Calleia, William Bendix, Bonita Granville, Richard Denning. Fast-moving remake of 1935 film, with wardheeler Donlevy accused of murder, henchman Ladd bailing him out. Lake fine as mysterious love interest, Bendix effective as brutal bodyguard. Akira Kurosawa claims this was his inspiration for YOJIMBO. Dashiell Hammett novel neatly adapted by Jonathan Latimer. ▼●

Glass Menagerie, The (1950) 107m. ½ D: Irving Rapper. Jane Wyman, Kirk Douglas, Gertrude Lawrence, Arthur Kennedy. More notable for its cast and intention than results. Slow-moving version of Tennessee Williams' drama of lame girl, her faded Southern belle mother, and idealistic brother, all living in their own fragile dream worlds. Remade twice.

Glass Menagerie, The (1987) C-134m.  D: Paul Newman. Joanne Woodward,

John Malkovich, Karen Allen, James Naughton. Respectable, well-made version of Tennessee Williams' now legendary play, with Woodward fine as Amanda Wingfield and Malkovich superb as son Tom. Woodward, Allen, and Naughton had appeared in two regional stage productions of Williams' play prior to making this film. [PG] ▼●

Glass Shield, The (1995) C-108m.  D: Charles Burnett. Michael Boatman, Lori Petty, Richard Anderson, Ice Cube, Bernie Casey, Elliott Gould, Michael Ironside, Don Harvey, Michael Gregory, M. Emmett Walsh, Sy Richardson, Natalija Nogulich, Wanda de Jesus, Victoria Dillard. Young, wide-eyed Boatman is the first black man assigned to a tight-knit office of the L.A. Sheriff's Department; he soon discovers just how dirty this precinct really is. A polemic masquerading as a movie, with heavy-handed "villains" and a story that eventually loses its focus and its momentum. [PG-13] ▼●●

Glass Sphinx, The (1967-Italian-Spanish) C-91m. *½ D: Luigi Scattini. Robert Taylor, Anita Ekberg, Gianna Serra, Jack Stuart, Angel Del Pozo, Jose Truchado. World-famous archaeologist Taylor is on the trail of the tomb of a glass sphinx containing magic elixir; foreign agents have similar idea. Confusing and forgettable. Techniscope. ▼●

Glass Web, The (1953) 81m.  D: Jack Arnold. Edward G. Robinson, John Forsythe, Kathleen Hughes, Marcia Henderson, Richard Denning, Hugh Sanders. Robinson is fine as criminal research authority for TV mystery show, who's caught up in murder utilized as basis for one of the programs. Kathleen Freeman and Beverly Garland have bits. Originally shot in 3-D.

Gleaming the Cube (1989) C-104m.  D: Graeme Clifford. Christian Slater, Steven Bauer, Ed Lauter, Micolle Mercurio, Richard Herd, Charles Cyphers, Le Tuan. Rebellious young skateboarder sets out to find his brother's murderers with the help of a street-smart detective. Skateboard stunts are sensational, but the story is by-the-numbers TV stuff. The title is skateboarding jargon for reaching the ultimate—which this movie never does. Retitled A BROTHER'S JUSTICE for TV. [PG-13] ▼●●

Glen and Randa (1971) C-94m. ½ D: Jim McBride. Steven Curry, Shelley Plimpton, Woodrow Chambliss, Garry Goodrow. Years after nuclear destruction of world, teenage lovers follow comic-book "clues" and look for Metropolis. [R—originally rated X] ▼●●

about an office full of desperate real-estate salesmen-cum-con-artists is faithfully reproduced (Mamet did the adaptation himself) with a gallery of stunning performances. Pacino is dynamic as the office hotshot, Lemmon totally credible as the loser, and Baldwin is dynamite (in a part created especially for the film) as an insulting "motivator." Never succeeds in being anything but a photographed play, but when the play and the actors are this good it's hard to complain. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Glenn Miller Story, The (1954) C-116m.

 D: Anthony Mann. James Stewart, June Allyson, Charles Drake, George Tobias, Harry Morgan, Frances Langford, Louis Armstrong, Gene Krupa. Stewart is convincingly cast as the popular bandleader in this extremely sentimental (and largely fictitious) account of his life. Music's the real star here, with most of Miller's hit records re-created. ▼●●

Glen or Glenda (1953) 61m. BOMB D: Edward D. Wood, Jr. Bela Lugosi, Dolores Fuller, Daniel Davis, Lyle Talbot, Timothy Farrell, "Tommy" Haynes, Charles Crafts, Conrad Brooks. Sensational but sincere "docu-fantasy" about transvestism could well be the worst movie ever made. Legendarily awful director Wood stars (under the name Daniel Davis) as Glen, who can't decide how to tell his fiancée he wants to wear her clothes. Dizzying hodge-podge of stock footage, demented dream sequences, and heartfelt plea for tolerance linked by campy Lugosi narrating from haunted house. "Bevare!" Even more inept and hilarious than Wood's infamous PLAN 9 FROM OUTER SPACE. Also released as I CHANGED MY SEX, I LED 2 LIVES, and HE OR SHE. Reissued at 67m. ▼●●

Glimmer Man, The (1996) C-92m. *1/2 D: John Gray. Steven Seagal, Keenen Ivory Wayans, Michelle Johnson, Brian Cox, Bob Gunton, John Jackson, Stephen Tobolowsky. Seagal and Wayans team up to track down a serial killer who is terrorizing the L.A. area. Tired buddy/cop picture, even by Seagal's fairly low standards; he also coproduced. [R] ▼●●

Glitter (2001) C-104m. *1/2 D: Vondie Curtis Hall. Mariah Carey, Max Beesley, Da Brat, Tia Texada, Valarie Pettiford, Ann Magnuson, Terrence Howard, Dorian Harewood, Grant Nickalls, Padma Lakshmi, Eric Benét. In 1980s N.Y.C. a backup singer is discovered by an ambitious club d.j. (Beesley) who vows to make her a star. That's fine with her, but if only she could reconcile with the mother who abandoned her when she was a child. . . . Vehicle for pop star Carey is tiresome at best and awash in clichés. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Global Affair, A (1964) 84m. 1/2 D: Jack Arnold. Bob Hope, Yvonne De Carlo, Gloomy Sunday (1999-German-Hungarian) C-112m.  D: Rolf Schübel. Erika Marozsán, Joachim Król, Ben Becker, Stefano Dionisi, András Bálint, Géza Boros, Rolf Becker, Ilse Zielstorff. Old-fashioned love triangle set in Budapest during the 1930s and '40s, built around the title tune (made famous in the U.S. by Billie Holiday), which came to be known as "The Suicide Song." A genial restaurateur hires a moody young man to play piano in his establishment, little dreaming that the woman he loves will be torn between them. Romantic, sexy, and evocative of an earlier era (and its films). Based on a novel by Nick Barkow. ▼

Gloria (1980) C-121m.  D: John Cassavetes. Gena Rowlands, Buck Henry, John Adames, Julie Carmen, Lupe Guarnica. Ex-mob mistress goes on the lam with a young neighbor-boy after gangland hit-men wipe out his parents. Good-looking but way over-long melodrama, which Cassavetes may or may not be playing for laughs. Remade in 1999. [PG] ▼●●

Gloria (1999) C-108m.  D: Sidney Lumet. Sharon Stone, Jean-Luke Figueroa, Jeremy Northam, George C. Scott, Cathy Moriarty, Bonnie Bedelia, Mike Starr. Unnecessary, sentimental remake of 1980 John Cassavetes melodrama with Stone stepping into Gena Rowlands' pumps as a tough ex-gun moll on the lam with an adorable Puerto Rican tyke (Figueroa) in tow. Still watchable, thanks to Stone's funny, full-bodied performance (once you get over her barely credible Noo Yawk accent) and her cuddly costar. Scott's final theatrical film. [R] ▼●●

Glory (1989) C-122m. * D: Edward Zwick. Matthew Broderick, Denzel Washington, Cary Elwes, Morgan Freeman, Jihmi Kennedy, Andre Braugher, John Finn, Donovan Leitch, John David Cullum, Bob Gunton, Cliff DeYoung. Exceptional story of America's first unit of black soldiers during the Civil War and the young, inexperienced Northerner (Broderick) who's given the job of training and leading them. Based in part on the letters of that young officer and brought to life with astonishing skill and believability. Grand, moving, breathtakingly filmed (by veteran cinematographer Freddie Francis) and faultlessly performed. One of the finest historical dramas ever made. Oscar winner for Cinematography, Sound, and Supporting Actor (Washington). Screenplay by Kevin Jarre. Jane Alexander (as Broderick's mother) and

Raymond St. Jacques (as Frederick Douglass) appear unbilled. [R]▼●●

Kerr, Alphonso McAuley, Mehdad Brooks, Sam Jones III, Damaine Radcliff, Emily Deschanel, Al Shearer, Tatyana Ali. Jerry Bruckheimer—produced feel-good movie about an obscure basketball coach named Don Haskins, who recruits raw but promising players—including a large number of blacks—for a community college in El Paso, Texas, and heads for the 1966 NCAA championship. Echoing REMEMBER THE TITANS, this film pushes the right buttons, and dramatizes the historic game in which an all-black team faced an all-white opponent . . . but glosses over some of the most interesting aspects of the real-life story. Super 35. [PG]▼

Gloria Stompers, The (1967) C-85m. BOMB D: Anthony M. Lanza. Dennis Hopper, Jody McCrea, Chris Noel, Jock Mahoney, Lindsay Crosby. Hopper, pre-EASY RIDER, stars as motorcycle-gang leader who wears a swastika patch and mouths lines like, "Hey, like, ya know, I wanna dance with you, baby." Freeman, Jane Krakowski, Breckin Meyer, Jay Mohr, Timothy Olyphant, Scott Wolf, James Duval. A frenetic twenty-four hours in the lives of some hedonistic L.A. teens, as seen from several points of view. Energized, well cast, and cleverly contrived, this paean to a what-the-hell lifestyle is geared to appeal to like-minded young people . . . but others may find it too much like a junior PULP FICTION. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Goalie's Anxiety at the Penalty Kick, The (1971-German) C-101m. ½ D: Wim Wenders. Arthur Brauss, Erika Pluhar, Kai Fischer, Libgart Schwarz, Marie Bardschewski. Kuno Becker, Alessandro Nivola, Stephen Dillane, Anna Friel, Marcel Iures, Sean Pertwee, Lee Ross, Cassandra Bell, Kieran O'Brien, Tony Plana, Miriam Colon. Since there have been "inspirational" sports movies on everything except contract bridge, another one about soccer (or football, as it's known internationally) was probably inevitable. Entertaining story of a poor Mexican-American player who travels from L.A. to England against his father's wishes for a chance to play in the big leagues. Less about the game than the young man's family and team relationships, providing plenty of heart and pluck. Real-life soccer superstars appear in cameos. Followed by two sequels. Super 35. [PG]D

Godfather, The (1972) C-175m. * D: Francis Ford Coppola. Marlon Brando, Al Pacino, James Caan, Richard Castellano, John Cazale, Diane Keaton, Talia Shire, Robert Duvall, Sterling Hayden, John Marley, Richard Conte, Al Lettieri, Abe Vigoda, Al Martino, Morgana King, Alex Rocco. The 1970s' answer to GONE WITH THE WIND, from Mario Puzo's novel on the violent life and times of Mafia patriarch Don Corleone (Brando). Pulp fiction raised to the highest level; a film of epic proportions, masterfully done, and set to Nino Rota's memorable music. Absolutely irresistible. Academy Award winner for Best Picture, Actor (Brando), and Screenplay (Coppola and Puzo). Baby in baptism scene is actually Coppola's infant daughter Sofia—who later costarred in THE GODFATHER PART III. Followed by two sequels. [R]V●●

Godfather Part II, The (1974) C-200m. * D: Francis Ford Coppola. Al Pacino, Robert Duvall, Diane Keaton, Robert De Niro, John Cazale, Talia Shire, Lee Strasberg, Michael V. Gazzo, G.D. Spradlin, B. Kirby, Jr. (Bruno Kirby), John Aprea, Morgana

King, Mariana Hill, Troy Donahue, Joe Spinell, Abe Vigoda, Fay Spain, Harry Dean Stanton, Danny Aiello, Roger Corman, Dominic Chianese, James Caan. They said it couldn't be done, but cowriter-director Coppola made a sequel that's just as compelling. This one contrasts the life of melancholy "don" (Pacino) with early days of his father (De Niro) as an immigrant in N.Y.C. Winner of six Oscars including Best Picture, Director, Screenplay (Coppola, Mario Puzo), Supporting Actor (De Niro). Score (Nino Rota, Carmine Coppola), Art Direction/Set Decoration (Dean Tavoularis, Angelo Graham, George R. Nelson). [R]V●●

Godfather Part III, The (1990) C-161m.  D: Francis Ford Coppola. Al Pacino, Diane Keaton, Talia Shire, Andy Garcia, Eli Wallach, Joe Mantegna, George Hamilton, Bridget Fonda, Sofia Coppola, Raf Vallone, Franc D'Ambrosio, Donal Donnelly, Richard Bright, Helmut Berger, Don Novello, John Savage, Mario Donatone, Al Martino. Only a filmmaker like Coppola (teamed with writer Mario Puzo) could extend his history-making Mafioso saga and make it work so well. Absorbing story of Pacino's attempt to remove himself from the world of crime, and how fate and circumstance draw him back in, with his trigger-happy nephew (Garcia) and the rest of his family in tow. Longish, but masterfully told, with one almost-fatal flaw: the casting of Coppola's daughter Sofia (an amateur) in the pivotal role of Pacino's daughter. Video release is so-called "final director's cut," 9m. longer than theatrical version. Super 35. [R]V●●

God Forgives, I Don't (1969-Italian-Spanish) C-101m. *½ D: Giuseppe Colizzi. Terence Hill, Bud Spencer, Frank Wolff, Gina Rovere, Jose Manuel Martin. God Grew Tired of Us: The Story of Lost Boys of Sudan (2006) C-89m. ½ D: Christopher Dillon Quinn. Narrated by Nicole Kidman. The subject of 2003's THE LOST BOYS OF SUDAN is given a new, perhaps more human perspective in this documentary as we learn what happened when three survivors came to the U.S. after spending time in a Kenyan refugee camp. Scenes featuring the three are alternately touching and surprisingly funny and show the true meaning of life in America as seen through outsiders' eyes. [PG]D

God Is Great, I'm Not (2001-French) C-95m. ½ D: Pascale Bailly. Audrey Tautou, Edouard Baer, Julie Depardieu, Catherine Jacob, Philippe Laudenbach, Cathy Verney, Mathieu Demy. Tautou is winning as a flaky 20-year-old model who flits from relationship to relationship and religion to religion; she embraces Judaism, even though her newest boyfriend is a nonpracticing Jew. Ambitious attempt to reflect on how individuals search for meaning in their lives, but it's not as emotionally involving as it ought to be. Video title: GOD IS GREAT, AND I'M NOT. ▼

God Is My Co-Pilot (1945) 90m. ½ D: Robert Florey. Dennis Morgan, Raymond Massey, Andrea King, Alan Hale, Dane Clark, John Ridgely, Stanley Ridges, Donald Woods. Well-intentioned drama of WW2 pilots bogs down in clichés, still has many good scenes. ▼

God Said, "HA!" (1999) C-83m. ½ D: Julia Sweeney. Julia Sweeney. Faithful film record of Sweeney's one-woman show in which she describes, with disarming good humor, her experience caring for her brother as he died of cancer—then discovering that she had a rare form of cervical cancer herself. Quentin Tarantino coexecutive-produced. [PG-13] ▼

Gods and Generals (2003) C-223m. ½ D: Ronald F. Maxwell. Jeff Daniels, Stephen Lang, Robert Duvall, Mira Sorvino, Kevin Conway, C. Thomas Howell, Frankie Faison, Matt Letscher, Jeremy London, William Sanderson, Kali Rocha, Bruce Boxleitner, Robert Easton. Writer-director Maxwell's prequel to GETTYSBURG is not in the same league but does manage to capture some of the sights, sounds, and personalities of the Civil War's early years, with an emphasis on the South. Lion's share of the story is devoted to Lang's pious "Stonewall" Jackson. Telling vignettes and vivid battle scenes make up for some ponderousness, speechiness, and overlength (it's even longer—231m.—on video). Film's backer, media mogul Ted Turner, has a cameo as a Confederate soldier. Based on the Jeff Shaara novel. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Gods and Monsters (1998) C-105m. ½ D: Bill Condon. Ian McKellen, Brendan Fraser, Lynn Redgrave, Lolita Davidovich, David Dukes, Kevin J. O'Connor. Exceptional (if entirely fictional) character study of film director James Whale (best remembered for FRANKENSTEIN and BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN), alone at the end of his life in the 1950s, and fearful of losing his mind. An exquisite rendering of time and place, with a superb performance by McKellen, matched by Fraser as a gardener who catches his fancy, and Redgrave as his hilariously severe but loving housekeeper. A quiet, deliberately paced film; beautifully rendered, with a unique blend of flashback and hallucination. Director Condon won an Oscar for adapting Christopher Bram's novel Father of Frankenstein. Super 35. ▼

God's Country (1985) C-88m. ½ D: Louis Malle. Poignant, insightful, occasionally hilarious look at life in Glencoe, Minnesota, a small, conservative farming community. Mostly shot in 1979; Malle returned six years later to update the lives of his subjects. ▼

Godsend, The (1979-British) C-93m.  D: Gabrielle Beaumont. Cyd Hayman, Malcolm Stoddard, Angela Pleasence, Patrick Barr. OMEN/EXORCIST-type horror film about an angelic little blonde girl who is left at a family farm on a rainy night by a strange woman. In the years that follow, death, disaster, and hostility are visited upon the family in this medium thriller. [R] ▼

Godsend (2004-U.S.-Canadian) C-102m. ½ D: Nick Hamm. Greg Kinnear, Rebecca Romijn-Stamos, Robert De Niro, Cameron Bright, Jenny Levine. A couple grieving over the loss of their 8-year-old son is approached by a medical researcher who promises that he can enable the woman to give birth to the identical child all over again—using a revolutionary (if illegal) cloning method he's perfected. Good performances and an interesting premise reel us in, but then the filmmakers string us along, teasing us about where the story is headed. It doesn't pay off. Filmed in Canada, which never looked more unlike the U.S. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

God's Little Acre (1958) 117m.  D: Anthony Mann. Robert Ryan, Tina Louise, Aldo Ray, Buddy Hackett, Jack Lord, Fay Spain, Michael Landon, Vic Morrow, Rex Ingram. Picaresque Americana from Erskine Caldwell's best-selling book about a lusty, eccentric Georgia family. Amusing, passionate, and highly charged; quite sexy for its time. Some censored moments were restored years after its original release. Wonderful score by Elmer Bernstein. ▼

Gods Must Be Crazy, The (1981-Botswana) C-108m.  D: Jamie Uys. Marius Weyers, Sandra Prinsloo, N!xau, Louw Verwey, Michael Thys. Highly original, offbeat comedy about cultural clashes in Africa, involving a bushman who encounters civilization for the first time, a pretty schoolteacher whose new assignment is a remote village, and a bumbling scientist whose attempts to make her welcome result in slapstick catastrophes. Film itself is clumsy at times, but completely disarming. A U.S. sensation in 1984. Uys, who also wrote and produced, plays the reverend. Followed by a sequel. Techniscope. [PG] ▼

Gods Must Be Crazy II, The (1989-U.S.-Botswana) C-97m.  D: Jamie Uys. N!xau, Lena Farugia, Hans Strydom, Eiros, Nadies, Erick Bowen. Follow-up to the surprise smash-hit farce is just as funny and endearing. N!xau returns as the bushman; here, his two young children are accidentally transported to "civilization" by a pair of poachers, and he follows them with the expected, comic result. This started shooting in 1985 and sat on the shelf for several years. [PG] ▼

Gods of the Plague (1969-German) 91m.  D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Hanna

Schygulla, Margarethe von Trotta, Harry Baer, Gunther Kaufmann, Ingrid Caven. A pair of pals plot a robbery, only to have their scheme disrupted by two women (both of whom love one of the men). Low-key, noirish gangster film is an ode to the Hollywood films of the genre, with a French New Wave sensibility. At the same time, it's a knowing portrait of an aimless, alienated post-war German generation. ▼

Godspell (1973) C-103m. ½ D: David Greene. Victor Garber, David Haskell, Jerry Sroka, Lynne Thigpen, Katie Hanley, Robin Lamont. Sophomoric updating of Jesus' life with young bouncy disciples following their leader around modern-day N.Y.C. Energetic adaptation of popular stage musical; brilliant use of N.Y.C. locations, good score by Stephen Schwartz including "Day by Day," but hollow and unmoving. [G] ▼

God Told Me To SEE: Demon

Godzilla (1954-Japanese) SEE: Godzilla, King of the Monsters!

Godzilla (1998) C-139m. ½ D: Roland Emmerich. Matthew Broderick, Hank Azaria, Jean Reno, Maria Pitillo, Harry Shearer, Kevin Dunn, Michael Lerner, Vicki Lewis, Doug Savant, Arabella Field, Bodhi Elfman. Giant lizard monster moves swiftly from the Pacific to N.Y. harbor, and terrorizes the Big Apple. Biologist Broderick hooks up with mystery man Reno and his team to stop it. Giant-scale, fx-driven no-brainer doesn't make much sense, has shallow characters, and goes on too long—but still offers a surprising amount of fun. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Godzilla, King of the Monsters! (1954-Japanese) 80m. ½ D: Terry Morse, Ishiro Honda. Raymond Burr, Takashi Shimura, Momoko Kōchi, Akira Takarada. A fire-breathing lizard threatens civilization: the special effects are the star in this, the original GODZILLA movie. Originally released in Japan in 1954 as GOJIRA (a far superior film), at 98m; over 20m. were eliminated, and inserts with Burr were added. Updated in 1985 and reworked in 1998. Original Japanese version restored in 2004. ▼

Godzilla Mothra King Ghidorah (2001-Japanese) C-105m.  D: Shusuke Kaneko. Chiharu Niyama, Ryudo Uzaki, Masahiro Kobayashi, Shiro Sano, Takashi Nishina. Writer-director Kaneko was brought in to "shake things up," and he certainly succeeded with this dark, very violent epic, which reverts Godzilla to a soulless, nuclear-created killing machine. Mothra, Baragon, and even King Ghidorah are now "guardian spirits" who are awakened to stop his wave of destruction. The 25th Godzilla movie is considered by many fans to be the apex of the series, with terrific special effects and a consistently adult tone; worth seeing even for

Godzilla 1985 (1985-Japanese) C-91m. BOMB D: Kohji Hashimoto, R. J. Kizer. Raymond Burr, Keiju Kobayashi, Ken Tanaka, Yasuko Sawaguchi, Shin Takuma. Supposed update of original GODZILLA is just a retreat, with the atomic-fueled monster threatening Tokyo again. Burr is back in cheaply filmed insert sequences making like Greek chorus. Too straight to be funny; the Big Fella is just a Big Bore. [PG] ▼

Godzilla on Monster Island (1972-Japanese) C-89m.  D: Jun Fukuda. Hiroshi Ishikawa, Tomoko Umeda, Yuriko Hishimi, Minoru Takashima. Garbo talks? Ha! In this harmless, toylike movie, Godzilla talks, as he and spiny Angillus battle alien-summoned Ghidrah and new playmate Gigan, who has a buzz saw in his belly. Standard colorful Toho monster hijinks. Aka GODZILLA VS. GIGAN. Tohoscope. [G] ▼

Godzilla Raids Again SEE: Gigantis, the Fire Monster

Godzilla's Revenge (1969-Japanese) C-69m. ½ D: Ishiro Honda. Kenji Sahara, Tomonori Yazaki, Machiko Naka, Sachio Sakai, Chotaro Togin, Yoshitomi Tujima. Fantasy of child daydreaming of adventures with Godzilla's son and other monsters. Battle scenes are mostly stock footage from GODZILLA VS. THE SEA MONSTER and SON OF GODZILLA. Good juvenile sci-fi. Tohoscope. [G] ▼

Godzilla 2000 (1999-Japanese) C-99m.  D: Takao Okawara. Takehiro Murata, Naomi Nishida, Mayu Suzuki, Hiroshi Abe, Shiro Sano, Tsutomu Kitagawa. Lively, well-made series entry centers on the discovery of a centuries-old alien craft designed to convert Earth's environment into one suitable for its creators. Godzilla is tricked into saving the planet again. Engaging film with fine effects and sharp script, weighed down only by a drawn-out monster-clash climax. Reworked, redubbed and rescored for U.S. release from the 107m. original. Super 35. [PG] ▼

Godzilla vs. Hedorah SEE: Godzilla vs. the Smog Monster

Godzilla vs. Mechagodzilla SEE: Godzilla vs. the Cosmic Monster

Godzilla vs. Megalon (1976-Japanese) C-80m. *½ D: Jun Fukuda. Katsuhiko Sasaki, Hiroyuki Kawase, Yutaka Hayashi, Robert Dunham. Series sinks to new low as Godzilla teams up with robot superhero against Megalon and his pal Gigan. Incredibly cheap, with lots of unintended laughs. A hoho from Toho in Tohoscope. [G] ▼

Godzilla vs. the Cosmic Monster

Godzilla vs. the Cosmic Monster (1974-Japanese) C-80m.  D: Jun Fukuda. Masaaki Daimon, Kazuya Aoyama, Reiko Tajima, Barbara Lynn, Akihiko Hirata. Godzilla battles robot duplicate of himself, built by alien apes intent on conquering the world. He's helped this time by ancient Okinawan monster Kingseesar. Pokey until zappity-pow climax. Aka GODZILLA VS. THE BIONIC MONSTER and GODZILLA VS. MECHAGODZILLA, and remade in 1993 under that title. Tohoscope. [G] ▼●●

Godzilla Vs. The Sea Monster (1966-Japanese) C-83m. ½ D: Jun Fukuda. Akira Takarada, Kumi Mizuno, Chikara Togin, Hideo Sunazuka, Toru Watanabe, Akihito Hirata, Toru Ibuki. Four people are shipwrecked on a South Seas island, where they not only have to avoid a terrorist organization called the Red Bamboo, but also Godzilla, Mothra, and a giant crablike creature called Ebirah. Seventh Godzilla movie (the first directed by Fukuda) is also the first to do away with trademark scenes of urban destruction. Splendid use of color and nice, change-of-pace jazzy score by Masaru Sato make this one of the more entertaining entries. Japanese running time is 87m. Aka EBIRAH, HORROR OF THE DEEP. Tohoscope. [PG] ▼

Godzilla vs. the Smog Monster (1972-Japanese) C-87m. ½ D: Yoshimitu Banno. Akira Yamauchi, Hiroyuki Kawase, Toshio Shibaki. Godzilla freelances as dogooder in ridding Japan of monster born of waste, fed on factory fumes and smog. Dubbed and daffy. Aka GODZILLA VS. HEDORAH. Tohoscope. [G—edited from original PG rating] ▼●●

Godzilla vs. the Thing (1964-Japanese) C-90m. ½ D: Ishiro Honda. Okira Takarada, Yuriko Hoshi, Hiroshi Koizumi, Yu Fujiki. Vivid special effects highlight battle between reptile Godzilla and Mothra, giant moth. Aka GODZILLA VS. MOTHRA. Tohoscope. ▼●●

Go Fish (1994) 87m.  D: Rose Troche. V. S. Brodie, Guinevere Turner, T. Wendy McMillan, Anastasia Sharp, Migdalia Melendez. A romantic tale about finding a soulmate; the difference here is that both partners are women. Funny, intelligent comedy about brash Turner forging a relationship with shy Brodie. Only quibble: the heavy-handed political correctness of the secondary characters. Made on a practically nonexistent budget; Troche (who coscripted with Turner) is a talent to watch. [R] ▼●●

Go for Broke! (1951) 92m.  D: Robert Pirosh. Van Johnson, Lane Nakano, Henry Nakamura, George Miki, Henry Oyasato, Warner Anderson. Fine WW2 drama with Johnson, a bigoted Texan, assigned to train and lead the 442nd Regimental Combat

Team, composed mostly of Japanese-Americans (Nisei). Crammed with ironic touches, and uncompromising in its point of view (reflecting the Nisei's collective heroic war record). Pirosh also scripted. ▼

Go-Getter, The (2008) C-93m.  D: Martin Hynes. Lou Taylor Pucci, Zoey Deschanel, Jena Malone, William Lee Scott, Maura Tierney, Judy Greer, Bill Duke, Julio Oscar Mechoso, Jsu Garcia. Recently orphaned teenager who can't get his act together impulsively steals a car and embarks on a road trip, hoping to find his elusive stepbrother (whom he hasn't seen in years) . . . but along the way he develops a relationship via cell phone with the owner of the car. Picaresque road movie benefits from strong lead performances, but its supposed spontaneity too often seems studied, and many fine actors appear in cameos that are frustratingly brief. Feature debut for writer-director Hynes. [R] ▼

Gohatto SEE: Taboo

Goin' Coconuts (1978) C-96m.  D: Howard Morris. Donny and Marie Osmond, Herbert Edelman, Kenneth Mars, Chrystin Sinclair, Ted Cassidy, Marc Lawrence, Khigh Dhiegh, Harold Sakata. Bad guys go after Marie's necklace in Hawaii, but the villainy, like the story, is strictly kindergarten level. Of course, Donny and Marie get to sing. [PG]

Goin' Down the Road (1970-Canadian) C-90m. ½ D: Donald Shebib. Doug McGrath, Paul Bradley, Jayne Eastwood, Cayle Chernin, Nicole Morin. Award-winning film made for less than $100,000 puts most Hollywood blockbusters to shame; modest tale of two unlucky Nova Scotians and their near-tragic finish packs a memorable punch. McGrath and Bradley are remarkably good. [PG—edited from original R rating]

Going All the Way (1997) C-110m.  D: Mark Pellington. Jeremy Davies, Ben Affleck, Amy Locane, Jill Clayburgh, Lesley Ann Warren, Rose McGowan, Rachel Weisz. Listless screen version of Dan Wakefield's popular memory novel about two young army vets who become friends in 1950s Indianapolis despite having existed on wholly different social planes during their high school years. A good book but an indifferent (and familiar-seeming) coming-of-age movie, despite a Wakefield script. Set in 1954, film opens with a huge 1957 pop hit—never a good sign. [R] ▼●●

Going Ape (1970) SEE: Where's Poppa?

Going Ape! (1981) C-87m. BOMB D: Jeremy Joe Kronsberg. Tony Danza, Jessica Walter, Stacey Nelkin, Danny De Vito, Art Metrano, Joseph Maher. Inept comedy, with Danza set to inherit $5 million if he cares for a trio of orangutans. Directorial debut for screenwriter Kronsberg, who also penned Clint Eastwood's EVERY WHICH WAY BUT LOOSE—with an orangutan prominently featured. [PG] ▼

Going Berserk (1983-Canadian) C-85m. BOMB D: David Steinberg, John Candy, Joe Flaherty, Eugene Levy, Alley Mills, Pat Hingle, Richard Libertini, Paul Dooley, Murphy Dunne, Dixie Carter, Ernie Hudson. Awesomely inept comedy about the misadventures of a young dolt (Candy) who's set to marry the daughter of a pompous congressman. Only a performer as likable as Candy could survive such a debacle; his SCTV colleagues Flaherty and Levy have little to do. [R]▼●●

Going Hollywood (1933) 80m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Marion Davies, Bing Crosby, Fifi D'Orsay, Stuart Erwin, Ned Sparks, Patsy Kelly. Enjoyable fluff with Davies following crooner Crosby to Hollywood determined to win him away from tempestuous screen star D'Orsay. Kelly all but steals film from stars. Songs include "Temptation," "We'll Make Hay While the Sun Shines," and the title tune.▼●

Going Home (1971) C-97m.  D: Herbert B. Leonard. Robert Mitchum, Jan-Michael Vincent, Brenda Vaccaro, Jason Bernard, Sally Kirkland, Josh Mostel. Powerful, if downbeat, study of young man's troubled relationship with his father, who's just been released from prison after serving time for killing his wife. [PG]▼●

Going in Style (1979) C-96m. ½ D: Martin Brest. George Burns, Art Carney, Lee Strasberg, Charles Hallahan, Pamela Payton-Wright. Three retirees in Queens get more than they bargain for when they rob a bank in Manhattan to relieve their boredom. Unexpected gem from a 28-year-old writer-director is predictably funny but unpredictably moving, with Burns standing out in a terrific cast. [PG]▼●

Going My Way (1944) 126m. * D: Leo McCarey. Bing Crosby, Barry Fitzgerald, Rise Stevens, Frank McHugh, James Brown, Gene Lockhart, Jean Heather, Porter Hall, Fortunio Bonanova, Stanley Clements, Carl (Alfalfa) Switzer. Sentimental story of down-to-earth priest Father O'Malley (Crosby) winning over aging superior (Fitzgerald) and sidewalk gang of kids is hard to resist—thanks to the skills of writer-director McCarey, who won two Oscars. Academy Awards also went to Crosby, Fitzgerald, Best Picture, and Best Song: "Swinging on a Star." Sequel: THE BELLS OF ST. MARY'S.▼●●

Going Places (1974-French) C-117m.  D: Bertrand Blier. Gérard Depardieu, Patrick Dewaere, Miou-Miou, Jeanne Moreau, Brigitte Fossey, Isabelle Huppert. Crude, overgrown juvenile delinquents Depardieu and Dewaere commit petty crimes, terrorize and share women. Funny, earthy, sometimes even lyrical examination of alienation; Moreau appears briefly as an ex-con who trysts with the boys. [R]▼●

Going Shopping (2005) C-106m. *½ D:

Henry Jaglom. Victoria Foyt, Rob Morrow, Lee Grant, Mae Whitman, Bruce Davison, Jennifer Grant, Cynthia Sikes, Martha Gehman, Juliet Landau, Pamela Bellwood, Robert Romanus. Santa Monica boutique is threatened with foreclosure unless its owner can come up with some quick cash. To do this she throws the mother of all Mother's Day sales. Means to explore women's obsession with shopping as EATING dealt with female food issues. This stitched-together film—indulgent even by Jaglom standards—stars the director's ex (Foyt, who also cowrote) and some of his usual troupe. At best a clearance-sale item. [PG-13]●

Goin' South (1978) C-109m.  D: Jack Nicholson. Jack Nicholson, Mary Steenburgen, Christopher Lloyd, John Belushi, Veronica Cartwright, Richard Bradford, Danny DeVito, Luana Anders, Ed Begley, Jr., Anne Ramsey. Amusing Western comedy, not for all tastes, with Nicholson saving himself from lynch mob by marrying a spinster. Steenburgen is refreshingly offbeat and Belushi's disappointingly small role is a real hoot. Film debuts of both. [PG]▼●●

Goin' to Town (1935) 74m.  D: Alexander Hall. Mae West, Paul Cavanagh, Ivan Lebedeff, Marjorie Gateson, Tito Coral. Good West vehicle of dance-hall girl trying to crash society, highlight: Mae doing "Samson and Delilah" scenes.▼●

Go, Johnny, Go! (1958) 75m.  D: Paul Landres. Jimmy Clanton, Alan Freed, Sandy Stewart, Chuck Berry, Jo-Ann Campbell, The Cadillacs, Ritchie Valens, Eddie Cochran, Harvey (Fuqua), The Flamingos, Jackie Wilson. Orphan Clanton, booted out of church choir for playing rock 'n' roll, is transformed by Freed into "Johnny Melody," teen idol. ("He's dreamy. Oh wow, he's the living end.") Not very good, but an artifact of its era. Berry, who acts as well as sings, performs "Memphis, Tennessee," "Little Queenie," and "Johnny Be Good," Cochran performs "Teenage Heaven," and Wilson does "You'd Better Know It."▼●

Gold (1974-British) C-120m.  D: Peter Hunt. Roger Moore, Susannah York, Ray Milland, Bradford Dillman, John Gielgud. Grand-scale adventure action yarn about plot to control price of gold on world market by destroying South African mine. Moore is stalwart hero. Long but entertaining. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Gold Diggers of 1933 (1933) 96m. ½

Gold Diggers of 1935 (1935) 95m.  D: Busby Berkeley. Dick Powell, Adolphe Menjou, Gloria Stuart, Alice Brady, Glenda Farrell, Frank McHugh, Winifred Shaw. Big-scale Berkeley musical with stereotypes providing plot line and laughs between fantastic precision production numbers, including "The Words Are In My Heart," and classic, Oscar-winning "Lullaby of Broadway," sung by Wini Shaw. ▼●●

Gold Diggers of 1937 (1936) 100m. ½ D: Lloyd Bacon. Dick Powell, Joan Blondell, Glenda Farrell, Victor Moore, Lee Dixon, Osgood Perkins. Those gold-diggers won't give up; this time it's a group of insurance salesmen backing a show. Top song: "With Plenty of Money and You." ▼●●

Gold Diggers: The Secret of Bear Mountain (1995) C-94m.  D: Kevin James Dobson. Christina Ricci, Anna Chlumsky, Polly Draper, Brian Kerwin, Diana Scarwid, David Keith. New girl in town (Ricci) makes an unlikely friend—an aggressive, unpopular kid (Chlumsky) who's prone to telling lies. However, her tallest tale may not be bogus, and leads them on a search for long-buried treasure in a watery cave. Unsatisfying conclusion shortchanges this story; its strongest asset (sure to appeal to preteen girls) is the depiction of the girls' friendship. [PG] ▼●●

Golden Age of Comedy, The (1957) 78m.

* D: Compiled by Robert Youngson. Laurel and Hardy, Carole Lombard, Ben Turpin, Will Rogers, Harry Langdon. Peerless grouping of some of silent comedy's greatest moments, including Rogers' classic spoofs of silent stars, and ending with Laurel and Hardy's legendary pie fight from BATTLE OF THE CENTURY. ▼●●

Golden Arrow, The (1936) 68m. ½ D: Alfred E. Green. Bette Davis, George Brent, Eugene Pallette, Dick Foran, Carol Hughes, Catherine Doucet. Pleasant but featherweight comedy of "heiress" Davis and down-to-earth reporter Brent establishing marriage of convenience.

Golden Blade, The (1953) C-81m. ½ D: Nathan Juran. Rock Hudson, Piper Laurie, Gene Evans, George Macready, Kathleen Hughes, Steven Geray. Hudson, with the help of the magical Sword of Damascus, helps Baghdad princess Laurie battle her caliph father's grand vizier (Macready) and his strong-arm son (Evans). Typical but sprightly, entertaining Arabian Nights adventure; amusing and imaginative. ▼●●

Golden Bowl, The (2001-British) C-130m.  D: James Ivory. Uma Thurman, Nick Nolte, Kate Beckinsale, Jeremy Northam, Anjelica Huston, Madeleine Potter. Compelling adaptation of Henry James' novel about an Italian prince and an American woman, both impoverished, who must forsake their love in order to marry for money—but find themselves entangled just the same: he weds the sheltered daughter of an American billionaire, and she marries the father. Excellent performances amidst the beautiful settings one expects from a Merchant-Ivory period piece. Screenplay by Ruth Prawer Jhabvala. Panavision. ▼●●

Golden Boy (1939) 99m.  D: Rouben Mamoulian. Barbara Stanwyck, Adolphe Menjou, William Holden, Lee J. Cobb, Joseph Calleia, Sam Levene, Don Beddoe. Italian immigrant's son is torn between his love of the violin—instilled by his insistent father—and his passion for prizefighting. Clifford Odets' story may seem like one giant cliché by now but it's played with gusto (perhaps too much gusto by Cobb as the Henry Armetta-ish father) and benefits from Stanwyck's heartfelt performance. This role propelled an unknown Holden to stardom. ▼●●

Golden Braid (1990-Australian) C-88m.

 D: Paul Cox. Chris Haywood, Gosia Dobrowolska, Paul Chubb, Norman Kaye, Robert Menzies, Jo Kennedy. Thoughtful, gentle film about a clockmaker (Haywood), obsessed with all things past, and what happens when he finds a braid of blonde hair in an 18th-century cabinet. A film with a refreshing point of view: clocks may stop ticking, and human hearts may stop beating, but time still goes on—and human beings must celebrate life.

Golden Child, The (1986) C-96m. BOMB D: Michael Ritchie. Eddie Murphy, Charlotte Lewis, Charles Dance, Victor Wong, Randall "Tex" Cobb, James Hong, J.L. Reate. Top candidate for the worst megahit of all time. A "perfect" child (Reate) is kidnapped despite his magical powers; as foretold by an ancient oracle, only Murphy can rescue him. Lewis is more wooden than most ex-models; entire reels go by with nary a chuckle. A box-office smash—but have you ever met anyone who liked it? [PG-13] ▼●●

Golden Coach, The (1952-Italian) C-101m. ½ D: Jean Renoir. Anna Magnani, Odoardo Spadaro, Nada Fiorelli, Dante Rino, Duncan Lamont, Jean Debucourt. Delightful film about an acting troupe touring South America in the 18th century and the amorous adventures of its leading lady. Theatrical and stylized, this is one of the great films about acting—and a stunning achievement in the use of color. Ironically, it was a flop when first released, then critically rediscovered. Photographed by Claude Renoir; music by Vivaldi. ▼●●

Golden Door (2006-Italian-German-French) C-118m.  D: Emanuele Crialese. Charlotte Gainsbourg, Vincenzo Amato, Aurora Quattrocchi, Francesco Casisa, Filippo Pucillo, Isabella Ragonese, Vincent Schiavelli. Heartfelt, dreamlike account of a dirt-poor Italian family that treks from rural Old World Sicily to Ellis Island and the U.S., where they enter a new, modern world. Although it is set at the dawn of the 20th century, the film is a poetic ode to the aspirations of immigrants of all eras. Filled with stunning images, it begs for a sequel following these characters into the New World. Original Italian title: NUOVOMONDO. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Golden Earrings (1947) 95m. ½ D: Mitchell Leisen. Ray Milland, Marlene Dietrich, Murvyn Vye, Dennis Hoey, Quentin Reynolds. Incredible yet enjoyable escapism set in WW2 Europe has Milland joining gypsy Dietrich for espionage work; Dietrich most convincing. Gypsy Vye sings the title song. ▼

GoldenEye (1995) C-130m.  D: Martin Campbell. Pierce Brosnan, Sean Bean, Izabella Scorupco, Famke Janssen, Joe Don Baker, Judi Dench, Robbie Coltrane, Tcheky Karyo, Gottfried John, Alan Cumming, Desmond Llewelyn, Samantha Bond. Brosnan's debut as 007 is a slam-bang action adventure in the best Bond tradition, with eye-popping stunts, sexy women, and international intrigue. (There are also P.C. remarks about Bond being sexist and/or an anachronism.) The crux of the story is internal sabotage within Russia, and Bond's attempt to figure out who's behind it—and how to stop them before they use their stolen weapons to harm the free world. That's

Golden Gate (1993) C-90m. *½ D: John Madden. Matt Dillon, Joan Chen, Bruno Kirby, Teri Polo, Tzi Ma, Stan Egi, Jack Shearer. Young FBI agent Dillon pursues subversives in San Francisco during the McCarthy witchhunts, when guiltless Chinese were harassed simply for mailing money to their families back home. Potentially compelling film is hampered by listless direction and David Henry Hwang's meandering, melodramatic screenplay. An American Playhouse coproduction. [R] ▼●●

Goldengirl (1979) C-104m.  D: Joseph Sargent. Susan Anton, Curt Jurgens, Robert Culp, Leslie Caron, Harry Guardino, Jessica Walter. Statuesque Anton is more or less turned into a robot so she can become a star in the Olympics. So-so. [PG] ▼

Golden Heist, The SEE: Inside Out (1975)

Golden Needles (1974) C-92m.  D: Robert Clouse. Joe Don Baker, Elizabeth Ashley, Jim Kelly, Burgess Meredith, Ann Sothern. Everyone seems out of place in this Hong Kong-L.A. filmed action pic about a scramble for golden statue containing youth-restoring acupuncture needles. Silly. Retitled THE CHASE FOR THE GOLDEN NEEDLES. Panavision. [PG]

Golden Rendezvous (1977) C-103m.  D: Ashley Lazarus. Richard Harris, Ann Turkel, David Janssen, Burgess Meredith, John Vernon, Gordon Jackson, Keith Baxter, Dorothy Malone, John Carradine. Attractive cast in pointless adaptation of Alistair MacLean's novel about gambling ship held hostage by terrorists. Retitled NUCLEAR TERROR for television. ▼

Golden Salamander (1950-British) 96m.  D: Ronald Neame. Trevor Howard, Anouk Aimée, Walter Rilla, Herbert Lom, Wilfrid Hyde-White. Courting a Tunisian girl, Howard becomes involved in gun smuggling; taut actioner. ▼

Golden Seal, The (1983) C-95m.  D: Frank Zuniga. Steve Railsback, Michael Beck, Penelope Milford, Torquill Campbell, Seth Sakai, Richard Narita, Sandra Secat. Straightforward family film about a young couple and their son, living in the Aleutian islands, cut off from the world. Like the Aleut natives, the father (Railsback) has long pursued the golden seal, a near-mythical creature with an enormous bounty on its head, but it's the boy (Campbell) who finds him, and tries to protect him. Dialogue is stiff, but when the action picks up it's absorbing and enjoyable. [PG] ▼

Golden Voyage of Sinbad, The (1974-British) C-104m.  D: Gordon Hessler. John Phillip Law, Caroline Munro, Tom Baker, Douglas Wilmer, Gregoire Aslan, John Garfield, Jr. Delightful rehash of earlier Sinbad adventures that evokes Saturday matinee fare of the 1950s, with Ray Harryhausen's finest "Dynamation" effects: a ship's figurehead comes to life, and a six-armed statue does sword battle with Sinbad in action highlights. Grand entertainment. [G] ▼●●

Goldfinger (1964-British) C-111m. ½ D: Guy Hamilton. Sean Connery, Gert Frobe, Honor Blackman, Shirley Eaton, Bernard Lee, Lois Maxwell, Harold Sakata, Tania Mallet. Entertaining, exciting James Bond adventure, third in the series. Full of ingenious gadgets and nefarious villains, with hair-raising climax inside Fort Knox. Frobe (Goldfinger) and Sakata (Oddjob) are villains in the classic tradition. ▼●●

Gold for the Caesars (1964-French-Italian) C-86m. *½ D: Andre de Toth. Jeffrey Hunter, Mylene Demongeot, Ron Randell, Massimo Girotti, Giulio Bosetti, Ettore Manni. Still another Roman slave epic starring an American actor who'd look more at home in David and Ricky Nelson's fraternity. Nothing special. Original French running time: 95m. CinemaScope.

Gold Is Where You Find It (1938) C-90m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. George Brent, Olivia de Havilland, Claude Rains, Margaret Lindsay, John Litel, Barton MacLane. And gold-rush miners find it on California farmland, starting bitter feud in brisk film, perked by good cast.

Gold of Naples (1954-Italian) 107m.  D: Vittorio De Sica. Sophia Loren, Vittorio De Sica, Totò, Silvana Mangano, Paolo Stoppa. Four vignettes—poignant, perceptive, hilarious in turn: Loren as philandering wife of pizza baker; De Sica as avid cardplayer upstaged by 8-year-old; Totò as Milquetoast family man; Mangano as prostitute involved in unusual marriage. ▼●

Gold of the Seven Saints (1961) 88m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. Clint Walker, Roger Moore, Leticia Roman, Robert Middleton, Chill Wills, Gene Evans, Roberto Contreras. Fur-trappers Walker and Moore (the latter sporting blond hair and an Irish brogue) find 125 lbs. of gold nuggets and are pursued across the desert by several parties who want to pry it loose from them. Enjoyable Western knockoff of THE TREASURE OF THE SIERRA MADRE, featuring some striking Utah scenery and a tangy script cowritten by Leigh Brackett. WarnerScope.

Gold Rush, The (1925) 82m. * D: Charlie Chaplin. Charlie Chaplin, Georgia Hale, Mack Swain, Tom Murray. Immortal Chaplin classic, pitting Little Tramp against Yukon, affections of dance-hall girl, whims of a burly prospector. Dance of the rolls, eating leather shoe, cabin tottering over cliff—all highlights of wonderful, timeless comedy. Chaplin reedited film in 1942; that version, with his narration and music, runs 72m. ▼●●

The prophet Elijah (Gilbert) emerges from Lake Michigan, is pursued by sculptor Erhart. Quirky, inventive film made on a shoestring in Chicago. Based on a story by Martin Buber. Original running time: 115m. ●

Goldwyn Follies, The (1938) C-120m. *½ D: George Marshall. Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds, Kenny Baker, The Ritz Brothers, Zorina, Helen Jepson, Bobby Clark, Edgar Bergen & Charlie McCarthy. Dreadful hodgepodge as producer Menjou hires Leeds as "Miss Humanity;" to judge his movies from average person's point of view. She probably would have skipped this one. Ritz Bros. come off best, while Baker sings "Love Walked In" about 30 times. George Balanchine's ballet is a matter of taste. Look for Alan Ladd as an auditioning singer. ▼●●

Golem, The (1920-German) 75m. ½ D: Paul Wegener, Carl Boese. Paul Wegener, Albert Steinruck, Ernst Deutsch, Lyda Salmonova. Chilling, visually dazzling story of the supernatural, based on a famous Jewish folktale of the 16th century. Rudolph of Hapsburg has exiled the Jews, blaming them for a plague; a rabbi conjures up a golem (a clay monster, played by Wegener) in order to convince the king to repeal the edict. This classic of German Expressionist cinema is also a forerunner of FRANKENSTEIN, from the way the golem is brought to life to his attraction to a child. The sets were designed by famed architect Hans Poelzig. The story has been filmed many times; Wegener also codirected versions in 1914 and 1917, and Julien Duvivier filmed it in 1938, with Harry Baur. Aka THE GOLEM: HOW HE CAME INTO THE WORLD. ▼●

Goliath and the Vampires (1961-Italian) C-91m. *½ D: Giacomo Gentilomo. Gordon Scott, Jacques Sernas, Gianna Maria Canale. Cloak-and-sandal nonsense; spotty special effects add only color to film. U.S. release 1964. Totalscope. ▼●

Go, Man, Go! (1954) 82m. ½ D: James Wong Howe. Dane Clark, Pat Breslin, Sidney Poitier, Edmon Ryan. Imaginative telling of the formation of Harlem Globetrotters and their rise as famed basketball team. A rare directorial effort by celebrated cinematographer Howe.

Go Masters, The (1982-Chinese-Japanese) C-123m.  D: Junya Sato, Duan Jishun. Rentaro Mikuni, Sun Dao-Lin, Shen Guan-Chu, Misako Honno, Tsu Kasa Itoh. Sprawling, involving romance-mystery-suspenser, set between the 1920s and '50s and focusing on the relationships between two families, one Japanese and the other Chinese. Most fascinating is various characters' obsession with Go, a chesslike strategy game. The first Sino-Japanese co-production, and a smash hit in both countries. ▼

Gomorrah (2008-Italian) C-137m. ½ D: Matteo Garrone. Salvatore Abruzzese, Gianfelice Imparato, Maria Nazionale, Toni Servillo, Carmine Paternoster, Salvatore Cantalupo, Gigio Morra, Marco Macor, Ciro Petrone. Stark drama based on Roberto Saviano's best-selling exposé of the Neapolitan crime organization Camorra, which permeates every facet of life in the region. Separate stories follow a pair of SCARFACE-obsessed teenage thugs who want to be accepted as mobsters, an even younger boy who's heading in the same direction, a tailor whose moonlighting activities spell trouble, a bagman who tries to stay out of the line of fire, and a businessman's scheme to dump toxic waste quickly and cheaply. Absence of a music score helps achieve a level of authenticity in this film that feels like a punch to the gut. Italian title: GOMORRA. Super 35.

Go Naked in the World (1961) C-103m.  D: Ranald MacDougall. Gina Lollobrigida, Anthony Franciosa, Ernest Borgnine, Luana Patten. Turgid melodrama badly cast. Easy-loving Lollobrigida hooks Franciosa, much to his father's (Borgnine's) dismay. CinemaScope.

Gene Are the Days (1963) 97m.  D: Nicholas Webster. Ossie Davis, Ruby Dee, Sorrell Booke, Godfrey Cambridge, Alan Alda, Beah Richards. Davis' satiric fable Purlie Victorious survives cheap adaptation, thanks to buoyant performances and basic story: self-appointed preacher schemes to undo a despotic plantation owner, as a symbolic freeing of his people from ways of the Old South. Alda's film debut. ▼

Gene Baby Gene (2007) C-115m.  D: Ben Affleck. Casey Affleck, Michelle Monaghan, Morgan Freeman, Ed Harris, John Ashton, Amy Ryan, Titus Welliver, Amy Madigan. Private detectives Affleck and Monaghan are asked to help investigate the disappearance of a 4-year-old girl from a working-class Boston neighborhood. They discover that the truth is elusive as they deal with police, drug dealers, and tangled community ties. Tense, gritty drama loses steam by the end, but an atmosphere of regional clannishness and thick moral rot is impressively conveyed by first-time director Affleck (who also has a great eye and ear for Boston "types"). His brother Casey stands tall in a terrific cast, with Ryan particularly good as the young girl's less-than-ideal mother. The director and Aaron Stockard adapted Dennis Lehane's novel. [R] ▼

Gene Fishin' (1997) C-94m. BOMB D: Christopher Cain. Joe Pesci, Danny Glover, Rosanna Arquette, Lynn Whitfield, Nick Brimble, Carol Kane, Willie Nelson. Annoyingly unfunny gambit of two bungling buddies off to the Florida Everglades where their dream fishing vacation is a catastrophe from beginning to end. This film really smells. [PG] ▼

Gone in 60 Seconds (1974) C-103m.  D: H. B. Halicki. H. B. Halicki, Marion Busia, Jerry Daugirda, James McIntire, George Cole, Parnelli Jones. Muddled drama about a car-theft ring is highlighted by a 40-minute-long chase sequence, which is well made—but so what? Remade (in name only) in 2000. [PG] ▼

Gone in Sixty Seconds (2000) C-117m. *½ D: Dominic Sena. Nicolas Cage, Giovanni Ribisi, Angelina Jolie, Robert Duvall, Delroy Lindo, TJ Cross, William Lee Scott, Scott Caan, James Duval, Will Patton, Timothy Olyphant, Christopher Eccleston, Chi McBride, Jaime Bergman, Frances Fisher, Bodhi Elfman, Arye Gross. Relentlessly stupid remake of the 1974 drive-in hit about a reformed car thief who—to save his kid brother—agrees to marshal a mass theft in 48 hours' time, while cop Lindo is hot on his trail. Even for a no-brainer this is pretty poor, with low-octane action and a preposterous finale. Jolie is barely in it; Duvall and Lindo are wasted. Unrated version also available. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Gone To Earth SEE: Wild Heart, The

Gone With the Wind (1939) C-222m.

Gong Show Movie, The (1980) C-89m. BOMB D: Chuck Barris. Chuck Barris, Robin Altman, Mabel King, Murray Langston, Jaye P. Morgan, Jamie Farr, Rip Taylor. Barris created a bizarre TV show that belongs in a time capsule, but this movie (which dwells on Chuck's pressures and problems as host and producer of the show) belongs in the trash bin. [R]

Gonzo: The Life and Work of Dr. Hunter S. Thompson (2008) C-120m. ½ D:

Alex Gibney. Running the full political-commentary gamut from George McGovern to Patrick J. Buchanan, director Gibney's first outing following TAXI TO THE DARK SIDE examines the volatile career of celebrity journalism's most iconoclastic figure. Though it skimps on Thompson's formative years growing up as a Louisville outsider, this kinetic portrait is staggering on an "access" level, from both of Thompson's wives to writer Tom Wolfe to Rolling Stone publisher Jann Wenner to illustrator Ralph Steadman to Hells Angel Sonny Barger to Jimmy Carter. Johnny Depp reads passages from Thompson's classic Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas against clips from the screen version, in which he starred. [R] D

Good (2008-British-German) C-96m.  D: Vicente Amorim. Viggo Mortensen, Jason Isaacs, Jodie Whittaker, Mark Strong, Gemma Jones, Steven Mackintosh, Rick Warden. German university professor (Mortensen) resists the rise of Nazism in the early 1930s but ultimately finds himself caught in its tide . . . to the astonishment of his best friend, a Jewish psychiatrist (Isaacs) whose life is made more hellish with each passing year. Ineffectual and unsatisfying, considering the dramatic ingredients. Based on a stage play by C. P. Taylor. Super 35.

Good Boy! (2003) C-88m.  D: John Hoffman. Molly Shannon, Liam Aiken, Kevin Nealon, Brittany Moldowan, Hunter Elliot, Mikhael Speidel; voices of Matthew Broderick, Vanessa Redgrave, Delta Burke, Donald Faison, Cheech Marin, Carl Reiner, Brittany Murphy. Lonely boy finds a "best friend" in a dog from the neighborhood pound, but this canine is actually from another planet, fulfilling a mission on Earth. What's more, he enables the boy to hear what he and all his fellow dogs have to say. Mild fantasy-comedy may appeal to very young children. [PG] VD

Good Burger (1997) C-95m.  D: Brian Robbins. Kel Mitchell, Kenan Thompson, Sinbad, Abe Vigoda, Shar Jackson, Dan Schneider, Jan Schwieterman, Ron Lester, Carmen Electra, Shaquille O'Neal, Robert Wuhl. Broad, juvenile comedy aimed at fans of Kenan and Kel from their Nickelodeon TV series. The existence of a scruffy fast-food establishment ("Welcome to Good Burger, home of the good burger, may I take your order?") is threatened by the arrival of all-powerful Mondo Burger across the street. Like fast food itself, this film offers no real nourishment, but will appeal to kids just the same. [PG] VD

Goodbye Again (1961) 120m.  D: Anatole Litvak. Ingrid Bergman, Tony Perkins, Yves Montand, Jessie Royce Landis, Diahann Carroll. Françoise Sagan's chic soap becomes teary Bergman vehicle of middle-aged woman having affair with Perkins, still craving playboy Montand. Set in Paris. V

Goodbye Charlie (1964) C-117m. ½/2 D: Vincente Minnelli. Tony Curtis, Debbie Reynolds, Pat Boone, Walter Matthau, Martin Gabel, Ellen McRae (Burstyn). Tasteless, flat version of George Axelrod's play; crude gangster dies and comes back to earth as Reynolds. Even Matthau struggles for laughs. James Brodin is an extra in big party scene. CinemaScope. V

Goodbye, Children SEE: Au Revoir, les Enfants

Goodbye, Columbus (1969) C-101m.  D: Larry Peerce. Richard Benjamin, Ali MacGraw, Jack Klugman, Nan Martin, Michael Meyers. Philip Roth's stinging portrait of successful suburban Jewish family as seen through eyes of young man (Benjamin, in his film debut) who falls in love with daughter (MacGraw, in her first starring role). Meyers steals the show as Ali's brother. Director's father Jan Peerce has a cameo role at a wedding; look for Jaclyn Smith as a model. Music composed and performed by The Association. [PG—originally rated R] VD

Goodbye Girl, The (1977) C-110m. ½ D: Herbert Ross. Richard Dreyfuss, Marsha Mason, Quinn Cummings, Paul Benedict, Barbara Rhoades. Neil Simon's warmest comedy to date puts young actor Dreyfuss and dumped-on divorcée Mason together as unwilling tenants of the same N.Y.C. apartment, explores their growing relationship. High-caliber script and performances to match; Dreyfuss won Oscar. Nicol Williamson appears unbilled. Later a Broadway musical. Remade for TV in 2004. [PG] VD

Good Bye, Lenin! (2003-German-French) C-119m.  D: Wolfgang Becker. Daniel Brühl, Katrin Sass, Chulpan Khamatova, Maria Simon, Florian Lukas, Alexander Beyer, Burghart Klaussner. An East Berlin teenager (Brühl) feels liberated when the Wall comes down in 1989; his mother, a divorcée who has become an ardent Communist, falls into a coma just as Westernization is being welcomed. So the teen, with his older sister, decides to dupe his recuperating mother into believing German reunification never happened! Leisuredly paced, lighthearted film deals with the transient nature of history as well as coming of age in a single-parent household. This was a box-office smash in Germany. [R] VD

Goodbye Lover (1999) C-104m. ½/2 D: Roland Joffé. Patricia Arquette, Dermot Mulroney, Don Johnson, Ellen DeGeneres, Mary-Louise Parker, Ray McKinnon, Andre Gregory, John Neville, Lisa Eichhorn, Barry Newman. It's double-cross upon double-cross in this comic noir exercise of battling brothers Mulroney and Johnson—and the wacko femme fatale/realtor in their lives (Arquette), who takes her marriage vows loosely, to say the least. So bad it's almost fun, from a seriously slumming director. DeGeneres' sardonic detective seems to have wandered in

from another movie altogether. Telltale trouble sign: Alex Rocco and Max Perlich are billed, but hard to spot. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Goodbye, Mr. Chips (1939-U.S.-British) 114m. ½ D: Sam Wood. Robert Donat, Greer Garson, Paul von Hrenreid (Henreid), Terry Kilburn, John Mills. Donat won well-deserved Oscar for memorable portrayal of shy schoolmaster who devotes his life to "his boys," only coming out of his shell when he meets Garson. Extreme length works against film's honest sentiment, but Donat makes it all worthwhile. Garson's film debut made her a star overnight. Based on James Hilton's novel; scripted by R. C. Sherriff, Claudine West, and Eric Maschwitz. Remade as a musical in 1969. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Goodbye, Mr. Chips (1969) C-151m.  D: Herbert Ross. Peter O'Toole, Petula Clark, Michael Redgrave, George Baker, Sian Phillips, Michael Bryant. Lumbering musical remake of 1939 classic. O'Toole is good as prim schoolteacher, but Clark's role as showgirl is shallow, ludicrous. Mediocre songs don't help; what emotion there is gets lost when film plods on to modern-day anticlimax. Ross' directorial debut. Some prints are 133m. Panavision. [G]▼●●

Goodbye, My Fancy (1951) 107m.  D: Vincent Sherman. Joan Crawford, Robert Young, Frank Lovejoy, Eve Arden. Congresswoman Crawford returns to her old college, more to see former boyfriend Young than to receive honorary degree. Lovejoy is callous newsman. Film debut of Janice Rule. ●

Good-bye, My Lady (1956) 95m. ½ D: William Wellman. Walter Brennan, Phil Harris, Brandon de Wilde, Sidney Poitier. James Street novel of small boy (de Wilde), an elderly man (Brennan), and the basenji dog that brings joy into their lives is basis for easy-going, poignant film, set in the South. ▼●●

Goodbye, New York (1985-U.S.-Israeli) C-90m. ½ D: Amos Kollek. Julie Hagerthy, Amos Kollek, David Topaz, Aviva Ger, Shmuel Shiloh, Jennifer Babbist. Goodbye, Norma Jean (1976) C-95m. BOMB D: Larry Buchanan. Misty Rowe, Terence Locke, Patch Mackenzie, Preston Hanson. Sleazy look at adolescent Marilyn Monroe and her rocky road to stardom. An utter piece of tripe. Techniscope. [R]▼●

Goodbye People, The (1984) C-104m. *½ D: Herb Gardner. Judd Hirsch, Martin Balsam, Pamela Reed, Ron Silver, Michael Tucker, Gene Saks. Absolute torture (adapted by Gardner from his play) about Balsam's begging-for-bankruptcy scheme to open a tropical drink stand on some ill-located beach property. Gardner's A THOUSAND CLOWNS may strike some as sentimental and dated, but this one doesn't even have comedy to carry it. A mawkish disaster, long on the shelf. [PG]▼●●

Goodbye Pork Pie (1981-New Zealand) C-105m.  D: Geoff Murphy. Kelly Johnson, Tony Barry, Claire Oberman, Bruno Lawrence, John Beach, Frances Edmond. [R]▼

Goodbye Solo (2009) C-91m.  D: Ramin Bahrani. Souleymane Sy Savané, Red West, Carmen Leyva, Diana Franco Galindo, Lane "Roc" Williams, Mamadou Lam. Solo (Savané) is a garrulous cabdriver from Senegal who lives and works in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. A taciturn passenger named William (West) hires him for a future date for a trip far out of town to a spot where he plans to end his life. Solo refuses to mind his own business and insinuates himself into William's life. Vivid slice of life, with acute details of character and setting, from the director and cowriter of MAN PUSH CART and CHOP SHOP, and inspired by Abbas Kiarostami's A TASTE OF CHERRY.

Good Companions, The (1956-British) C-104m.  D: J. Lee Thompson. Eric Portman, Celia Johnson, Hugh Griffith, Janette Scott, John Fraser, Joyce Grenfell, Bobby Howes, Rachel Roberts, Thora Hird, Mona Washbourne, Alec McCowen, John Le Mesurier, Anthony Newley, Shirley Anne Field. Fabulous cast adds luster to this entertaining chronicle of a group of individuals who combine their resources to save a failing "concert party" (musical troupe). Based on a novel by J. B. Priestley; first filmed in 1933. CinemaScope.

Good Die Young, The (1954-British) 100m.  D: Lewis Gilbert. Laurence Harvey, Gloria Grahame, Richard Basehart, Stanley Baker, Margaret Leighton, John Ireland, Joan Collins. Solid cast fails to enhance standard robbery tale, with a quartet of strangers coming together to commit a holdup.

Good Earth, The (1937) 138m. * D: Sidney Franklin. Paul Muni, Luise Rainer, Walter Connolly, Charley Grapewin, Jessie Ralph, Tilly Losch, Keye Luke, Harold Huber. Mammoth Pearl Buck novel recreated in detail, telling story of greed ruining lives of simple Chinese farming couple. Rainer won Oscar as the ever-patient wife of Muni, as did Karl Freund for his cinematography. Screenplay by Talbot Jennings, Tess Slesinger, and Claudine West. The special effects are outstanding. ▼●●

Good Fairy, The (1935) 97m. ½ D: William Wyler. Margaret Sullavan, Herbert Marshall, Frank Morgan, Reginald Owen, Alan Hale, Beulah Bondi, Cesar Romero. Sparkling romantic comedy, adapted from Molnar play by Preston Sturges; wide-eyed Sullavan tries to act as “good fairy” to struggling lawyer Marshall, while hotly pursued by wealthy Morgan. Hilarious, charming; movie spoof near beginning is priceless. Remade as I’LL BE YOURS. ▼

Good Father, The (1987-British) C-90m. ½ D: Mike Newell. Anthony Hopkins, Jim Broadbent, Harriet Walter, Fanny Viner, Simon Callow, Joanne Whalley, Michael Byrne. Hopkins is excellent in the role of a father who loses custody of his child and takes out his incredible anger by befriending Broadbent and funding latter’s court case to regain his kid’s custody. Callow is terrific as an unscrupulous lawyer. Dramatically uneven, but worth a look. Made for British TV. [R] ▼●●

GoodFellas (1990) C-146m. ½ D: Martin Scorsese. Robert De Niro, Ray Liotta, Joe Pesci, Lorraine Bracco, Paul Sorvino, Frank Sivero, Tony Darrow, Mike Starr, Frank Vincent, Chuck Low, Frank DiLeo, Christopher Serrone, Samuel L. Jackson, Henny Youngman, Jerry Vale, Debi Mazar, Kevin Corrigan, Michael Imperioli, Illeana Douglas. A boy grows up in an Italian-American neighborhood of Brooklyn and dreams of becoming part of the Mob. Fascinating look at the allure—and the reality—of day-to-day life in a Mafia family, based on experiences of Henry Hill (Liotta), who wound up in the Federal witness protection program. The violence is (necessarily) harsh and off-putting, like the film itself at times, but it’s brilliantly realized by Scorsese and cinematographer Michael Ballhaus. Major criticism: It goes on too long. Bracco and Oscar winner Pesci stand out in an exceptional cast; that’s Scorsese’s mother as Pesci’s mom. Screenplay by the director and Nicholas Pileggi, based on the latter’s book Wiseguy. [R] ▼●●

Good Fight, The (1983) C/B&W-98m. ½ D: Mary Dore, Sam Sills, Noel Buckner. Incisive, often moving documentary of the 3,200 American men and women who were among 40,000 volunteers battling Fascism in the Spanish Civil War. Franco may have won and they may have been harassed by their own government, but they are ultimately both authentic American patriots and survivors. Cut to 85m. for PBS showings. ▼●●

tian Oliver. War correspondent Clooney returns to Berlin in 1945 on the eve of the Potsdam conference and discovers a city in ruins, both physically and morally. His driver-escort (Maguire) has mastered the black market, and a woman Clooney knew before (Blanchett) has done God knows what in order to survive the war. Now Clooney finds himself knee-deep in international intrigue and murder—and still emotionally connected to Blanchett. Shot on the Warner Bros. back lot in order to invoke 1940s Hollywood movies, this is an interesting stylistic exercise for Soderbergh (who also shot and edited, under pseudonyms) and pretty entertaining, but it lacks, in Rick Blaine’s words, a “wow finish.” Paul Attanasio adapted Joseph Kanon’s novel. Good Girl, The (2002) C-93m. ½ D: Miguel Arteta. Jennifer Aniston, Jake Gyllenhaal, John C. Reilly, Zooey Deschanel, Tim Blake Nelson, Mike White, Deborah Rush, John Carroll Lynch. A 30-year-old woman who feels her life is at a dead end becomes intrigued with a 20-ish loner, and winds up putting her marriage at risk. A rare film that manages to make a transition from comedy to poignant drama, with a denouement that’s nearly heartbreaking—thanks to good writing and wonderful acting by the leads. Screenplay by White, who costars as a security guard. [R] ▼

Good Guys and the Bad Guys, The (1969) C-91m. ½ D: Burt Kennedy. Robert Mitchum, George Kennedy, David Carradine, Tina Louise, Douglas Fowley, Lois Nettleton, Martin Balsam, John Carradine. Good Man in Africa, A (1994) C-93m. *½ D: Bruce Beresford. Colin Friels, Joanne Whalley-Kilmer, Sean Connery, John Lithgow, Louis Gossett, Jr., Diana Rigg, Sarah-Jane Fenton, Maynard Eziashi, Jackie Mofokeng. Crass, slapdash filming of William Boyd's novel about a weak-willed (and all-too-often insufferable) British diplomat (Friels) in a new African nation; the scenario accomplishes little more than to depict blacks as silly, unbelievable stereotypes. Connery is sorely wasted in the role of a sympathetic doctor. Boyd scripted and also coproduced with Beresford. [R]▼●

Good Marriage, The SEE: Le Beau Mariage

Good Morning Babylon (1987-Italian-French-U.S.) C-117m.  D: Paolo and Vittorio Taviani. Vincent Spano, Joaquim De Almeida, Greta Scacchi, Desiree Becker, Charles Dance, Omero Antonutti, David Brandon. Two Italian brothers, whose artisan family has shaped and restored cathedrals for generations, come to America in 1915 and wind up working for D. W. Griffith on his epic film INTOLERANCE. A valentine to the early days of moviemaking, and a statement about the immortality of art, be it sculpture or film. Beguilingly naive, like the period (and the people) it depicts, with a surprising turn of events for its denouement. Dance is a stand-out as D.W. Griffith. [PG-13]▼●

eral generations, small-town spinster schoolteacher has touched and helped shape lives of her students. Now hospitalized, her past is revealed through flashbacks. Sentimental, warm, and wonderful. CinemaScope.

Good Morning, Vietnam (1987) C-120m.  D: Barry Levinson. Robin Williams, Forest Whitaker, Tung Thanh Tran, Chintara Sukapatana, Bruno Kirby, Robert Wuhl, J.T. Walsh, Noble Willingham, Floyd Vivino. Williams is the whole show here, playing an Army disc jockey who turns Armed Forces radio inside out when he's brought to Saigon in 1965. His manic monologues are so uproarious that they carry the rest of the film, which has a weakly developed "story" and often irrelevant musical interludes. Apparently the real-life Adrian Cronauer, on whom story was based, wasn't nearly as funny or outrageous as Williams. [R]▼●●

Good Mother, The (1988) C-103m.  D: Leonard Nimoy. Diane Keaton, Liam Neeson, Jason Robards, Ralph Bellamy, Teresa Wright, James Naughton, Asia Vieira, Joe Morton, Katey Sagal, Tracy Griffith, Charles Kimbrough. Keaton is excellent as usual in the role of a divorced woman who finds sexual fulfillment for the first time in her life... but unwittingly jeopardizes her ability to raise her daughter in the process. Tedious adaptation of the Sue Miller novel. Film debut of Matt Damon (as an extra). [R]▼●●

Good News (1947) C-95m.  D: Charles Walters. June Allyson, Peter Lawford, Patricia Marshall, Joan McCracken, Ray McDonald, Mel Torme, Donald MacBride, Tom Dugan, Clinton Sundberg. Spirited remake of the 1920s collegiate musical (by DeSilva, Brown, and Henderson), given a new coat of varnish by screenwriters Betty Comden and Adolph Green. Lawford is Tait College's cocky football hero, and Allyson is the brainy girl who catches him on the rebound. Vintage songs include "The Best Things in Life are Free," "Just Imagine," "Varsity Drag"; new numbers include "The French Lesson" and "Pass That Peace Pipe." Filmed previously in 1930.▼●●

Good Night, The (2007-U.S.-British-German) C-93m. ½ D: Jake Paltrow. Penélope Cruz, Martin Freeman, Michael Gambon, Gwyneth Paltrow, Simon Pegg, Danny DeVito, Keith Allen, Lucy DeVito. Pleasant enough Tylenol PM fantasy about a former pop star, now a bored composer for TV commercials, who yearns to find his (literal) dream girl. Then she becomes a tad too real. Somewhat like THE SCIENCE OF SLEEP without the metaphysics or VERTIGO without the murder. Easy to take but leaves you wanting more. A brunette Gwyneth dials down her glow to "dim" in this debut film from her younger brother, who also scripted. Third-billed Gambon barely appears. Lucy DeVito is Danny's real-life daughter. [R]▼

Good Shepherd, The (2006) C-167m. ½ D: Robert De Niro. Matt Damon, Angelina Jolie, Alec Baldwin, Tammy Blanchard, Billy Crudup, Robert De Niro, Keir Dullea, Michael Gambon, Martina Gedeck, William Hurt, Timothy Hutton, Mark Ivanir, Gabriel Macht, Lee Pace, Joe Pesci, Eddie Redmayne, John Sessions, Oleg Stefan, John Turturro. Gripping story of an emotionally repressed young man who is recruited at Yale to do espionage work during WW2 and then to join the nascent Central Intelligence Agency, even though it means an enormous sacrifice to his family life. Eric Roth's fictional screenplay (based heavily on fact) covers a lot of ground and provides great insight into the nature of the "spy business." De Niro's treatment uses THE GODFATHER as its dramatic template, quite successfully. Damon is excellent and surrounded by well-chosen actors in every part, no matter how small. Exceptional cinematography by Robert Richardson. Super 35. [R]▼

Good Son, The (1993) C-87m.  D: Joseph Ruben. Macaulay Culkin, Elijah Wood, Wendy Crewson, David Morse, Daniel Hugh Kelly, Jacqueline Brookes,

Quinn Culkin. Superficial BAD SEED-type thriller, which exploitively casts HOME ALONE star Culkin as an unremorseful, pre-teen sociopath who terrorizes his cousin (Wood), among many others. What's next: bringing back Shirley Temple and having her place high-tech explosives on the Good Ship Lollipop? Macaulay's sister Quinn plays his sibling, and his brother Rory can be glimpsed in a key photograph. [R]▼●●

Good, the Bad, and the Ugly, The (1966-Italian-Spanish) C-161m. ½ D: Sergio Leone. Clint Eastwood, Lee Van Cleef, Eli Wallach, Rada Rassimov, Mario Brega, Chelo Alonso. Third and best of Leone's "Dollars" trilogy, set during Civil War; three disparate low-lives search for Confederate government treasure chest, each possessing only partial whereabouts. Long, funny, and flamboyant, with memorable Ennio Morricone score; the quintessential spaghetti Western. Followed by ONCE UPON A TIME IN THE WEST. Techniscope. Restored version (newly dubbed by Eastwood and Wallach) runs 180m. [R—originally rated M]▼●●

Good Thief, The (2003-British-Irish-French-Canadian) C-109m.  D: Neil Jordan. Nick Nolte, Tcheky Karyo, Said Taghmaoui, Nutsa Kukhianidze, Gerard Darmon, Ouassini Embarek, Emir Kusturica, Marc Lavoinie, Mark Polish, Mike Polish, Ralph Fiennes. Sleepy remake of Jean-Pierre Melville's BOB LE FLAMBEUR, with Nolte as a mumbling, heroin-addicted gambler and thief based in Nice who reluctantly takes part in a Riviera casino heist in order to replenish his finances. Colorfully cast and photographed (by Chris Menges), with Nolte making Robert Mitchum seem frenzied by comparison. Some regard this film as the ultimate in Cool; we find it lethargic. [R]▼●

Good Times (1967) C-91m. ½ D: William Friedkin. Sonny and Cher, George Sanders, Norman Alden, Larry Duran. Back when the singing duo was considered kooky, they made this enjoyable little film, with Sonny fantasizing their potential movie roles and he and Cher singing "I Got You Babe." Friedkin's first film.▼●

Good to Go (1986) C-87m.  D: Blaine Novak. Art Garfunkel, Robert Doqui, Harris Yulin, Reginald Daughtry, Richard Brooks, Hattie Winston, Anjelica Huston. Forgettable fare about journalist Garfunkel, who's framed on a rape-murder charge. Of interest mainly for its go-go music, which came out of the Washington D.C. ghetto . . . and did not become the national music fad of its time. Highlighted are the performances of such go-go groups as Redds & the Boys, Trouble Funk, Chuck Brown & the Soul Searchers, among others. Video title: SHORT FUSE. [R]▼

Good Wife, The (1986-Australian) C-92m. ½ D: Ken Cameron. Rachel Ward, Bryan

Brown, Sam Neill, Steven Vidler, Jennifer Claire, Bruce Barry. Isolated, bored wife Ward becomes obsessed with the new man in town (Neill). Predictable and a bit slow but also well made and well acted. Overall, a very mixed bag. Original Australian title: THE UMBRELLA WOMAN. [R] ▼

Good Will Hunting (1997) C-126m.  D: Gus Van Sant, Matt Damon, Robin Williams, Ben Affleck, Minnie Driver, Stellan Skarsgård, Casey Affleck, Cole Hauser. Four working-class friends hang out together in South Boston, but one of them, pugnacious Will Hunting (Damon), has an unusual gift: he's a genius. When M.I.T. math professor Skarsgård gets wind of this, he insists that the young man stop wasting his talents, and sends him to psychologist/teacher Williams to try to crack his brittle shell. Well-acted fiction written by costars Damon and Ben Affleck doesn't bear close scrutiny but certainly entertains, with an array of good performances. Oscar nods for Best Original Screenplay and Best Supporting Actor (Williams). [R] ▼

Good Woman, A (2005-U.S.-Spanish-Italian-British-Luxembourg) C-93m.  D: Mike Barker. Helen Hunt, Scarlett Johansson, Milena Vukotic, Stephen Campbell Moore, Mark Umbers, Roger Hammond, John Standing, Tom Wilkinson, Diana Hardcastle. Ill-conceived version of Oscar Wilde's Lady Windermere's Fan (filmed several times across the decades), set in Italy rather than England and updated from the 1890s to the 1930s. A number of Wilde's British characters now are Americans; one of them is Mrs. Eryllynne (a sorely miscast Hunt), an insolvent adventuress who arrives in Amalfi and determines to seduce filthy-rich, newly married Robert Windermere (Umbers). Released in the U.S. in 2006. [PG] ▼

Good Year, A (2006) C-117m. ½ D: Ridley Scott. Russell Crowe, Albert Finney, Marion Cotillard, Abbie Cornish, Didier Bourdon, Tom Hollander, Freddie Highmore, Isabelle Gardener, Archie Panjabi, Rafe Spall, Kenneth Cranham, Valeria Bruni Tedeschi. Ruthless London commodities trader learns that a beloved uncle has died and left him his property in Provence; when he goes back to this scene of happy childhood memories he slowly experiences a change in his outlook on life. Based on the book by Peter Mayle (who also wrote A Year in Provence), story takes a backseat to atmosphere, and while it's attractive, the film needs a light touch that neither Crowe nor director Scott can provide. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Goofy Movie, A (1995) C-78m. ½ D: Kevin Lima. Voices of Bill Farmer, Jason Marsden, Jim Cummings, Kellie Martin, Rob Paulsen, Wallace Shawn, Jenna Von Oy, Frank Welker, Jo Anne Worley, Julie Brown, Joey Lawrence, Pat Buttram. Ever-lovable

Goofy takes his son, Max, on a road-trip vacation, but it's a culture clash between the '90s boy and his old-fashioned father. Simple, straightforward Disney cartoon feature for kids with a handful of serviceable songs and a nice "message" about father-son relationships. No Disney classic, but pleasant enough. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [G] ▼

Goonies, The (1985) C-114m. ½ D: Richard Donner. Sean Astin, Josh Brolin, Jeff Cohen, Corey Feldman, Kerri Green, Martha Plimpton, Ke Huy Quan (Jonathan Ke Quan), John Matuszak, Anne Ramsey, Joe Pantoliano. A bunch of kids go in search of hidden treasure in this old-fashioned adventure yarn (from a story by Steven Spielberg, who may have recalled Our Gang's MAMA'S LITTLE PIRATE). Big, lively, and exceptionally noisy, aimed squarely at kids, with a likable bunch of kids onscreen. Also makes appropriate use of Max Steiner's swashbuckling theme from ADVENTURES OF DON JUAN. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Gor (1988) C-95m. *½ D: Fritz Kiersch. Urbano Barbarini, Oliver Reed, Rebecca Ferratti, Larry Taylor, Graham Clarke, Arnold Vosloo, Chris Du Plessis, Paul L. Smith, Jack Palance. Ordinary sword-and-sorcery adventure in which meek American professor is magically whisked off to "counter-Earth" Gor, where he becomes a hero and battles chuckling, tyrannical Reed. Based on the first in "John Norman's" series of Edgar Rice Burroughs-inspired adventure fantasies. Palance's role is just a cameo setting up the sequel, OUTLAW OF GOR. [PG] ▼

Gordon's War (1973) C-90m.  D: Ossie Davis. Paul Winfield, Carl Lee, David Downing, Tony King. When a Vietnam vet comes home to find his wife hooked on drugs, he trains four-man army to destroy the pushers. Good action, but gets lost toward the end. [R] ▼

Gordy (1995) C-90m.  D: Mark Lewis. Doug Stone, Kristy Young, Michael Roescher, Tom Lester, Deborah Hobart, Ted Manson. Gordy is a talking pig who somehow becomes involved in big business—and a quest to save his family from the slaughterhouse. Very undemanding kids' film has its moments. Based on a story by Green Acres veterans Jay Sommers and Dick Chevillat. Besides top-billed Stone the film features such other country music stars as Roy Clark, Mickey Gilley, Jim Stafford, Box Car Willie, and Moe Bandy. [G] ▼

Gorgeous Hussy, The (1936) 102m. ½ D: Clarence Brown. Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, Lionel Barrymore, Franchot Tone, Melvyn Douglas, James Stewart, Alison Skipworth, Beulah Bondi, Louis Calhern, Melville Cooper, Sidney Toler, Gene Lockhart. Star-studded cast in strained, fictionalized historical drama of Peggy O'Neal, President Andrew Jackson's controversial

confidante. Crawford et al. are beautifully costumed in well-appointed settings. Based on the novel by Samuel Hopkins Joyce. ▼
Gorgo (1961-British) C-78m.  D: Eugene Lourie. Bill Travers, William Sylvester, Vincent Winter, Bruce Seton, Joseph O'Connor. Good sci-fi story of captured baby sea monster put into London circus and gigantic parent coming to rescue it. Exciting special effects. ▼●●
Gorgon, The (1964-British) C-83m. ½ D: Terence Fisher. Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee, Richard Pasco, Barbara Shelley, Michael Goodliffe. In 19th-century Balkan village, one of the snake-headed Gorgons still survives, turning her victims to stone—but who is she by day? Good Hammer production. ▼●●
Gorillas in the Mist (1988) C-129m.  D: Michael Apted. Sigourney Weaver, Bryan Brown, Julie Harris, John Omirah Miluwi, Iain Cuthbertson, Constantin Alexandrov, Waigwa Wachira. Absorbing drama based on the life of Dian Fossey, who journeyed to Africa in 1967 and, with no prior experience, set out to document the vanishing breed of mountain gorillas for National Geographic. Her transformation from diligent researcher to obsessive madwoman is a bit more abrupt than it ought to be, but it's still a good film, and Weaver is compelling in the lead. [PG-13] ▼●●
Gorky Park (1983) C-128m.  D: Michael Apted. William Hurt, Lee Marvin, Brian Dennehy, Ian Bannen, Joanna Pacula, Alexander Knox. Absorbing murder mystery set in Russia, where police investigator Hurt doggedly pursues the case of three bodies buried in Gorky Park. Lots of twists and turns, vivid atmosphere (with Helsinki doubling for Moscow) . . . marred somewhat by unconvincing romance and protracted finale. Dennis Potter adapted Martin Cruz Smith's novel. [R] ▼●●
G.O.R.P. (1980) C-90m. BOMB D: Joseph Ruben. Michael Lembeck, Dennis Quaid, Philip Casnoff, Fran Drescher, David Hudleston, Robert Trebor, Julius Harris, Rossana Arquette. Sophomoric, depressingly unfunny drug-oriented comedy set in a summer camp. Makes MEATBALLS seem like Hamlet; for people who think the word "Quaalude" is automatically funny. [R] ▼

lippe, Maggie Smith, Geraldine Somerville, Kristin Scott Thomas, Sophie Thompson, Emily Watson, James Wilby. Another of Altman's multicharacter mosaics, painting a colorful picture of life upstairs and down during a weekend at an English country estate in 1932, where murder rears its head. Great cast and telling details can't mask the film's superficiality, made worse by a poky pace and overlength. Balaban (who conceived the idea for the film with Altman) plays the producer of Charlie Chan mysteries; too bad no one remembered that those films run about an hour and a quarter. Nevertheless, Julian Fellowes' script won an Oscar for Best Original Screenplay. Super 35. [R] ▼●
Gospel (1982) C-92m. ½ D: David Levick, Frederick A. Ritzenberg. James Cleveland and the Southern California Community Choir, Walter Hawkins and the Hawkins Family, Mighty Clouds of Joy, Shirley Caesar, Twinkie Clark and the Clark Sisters. Inspiring, tremendously entertaining concert film spotlighting top gospel performers. Each number is more rousing than the last. Followed in 2004 by OH HAPPY DAY (which is mostly a compilation of unused footage from this film). ▼
Gospel, The (2005) C-105m. *½ D: Rob Hardy. Boris Kodjoe, Idris Elba, Nona Gaye, Clifton Powell, Aloma Wright, Donnie McClurkin, Omar Gooding, Tamyra Gray, Keshia Knight Pulliam, Sean Nelson. Upon hearing that his preacher father has cancer, a rock star returns home to come to terms with his dad, his best-friend-turned-rival, and his mother's death. Surprisingly (or not) he still has time to begin a relationship with a single mother and stage a glitzy fund-raiser to help open a new church. Tedious, predictable, and composed entirely of clichés; at least the gospel numbers are well performed. [PG] ▼
Gospel According to St. Matthew, The (1964-Italian-French) 135m. * D: Pier Paolo Pasolini. Enrique Irazoqui, Margherita Caruso, Susanna Pasolini, Marcello Morante, Mario Socrate. Unconventional, austere film on life and teachings of Christ, based solely on writings of the Apostle, Matthew. Amateur cast (including director's mother) is expressive and moves with quiet dignity. Ironically, director of this masterpiece was a Marxist. ▼●● Gospel According to Vic, The (1985-British) C-92m.  D: Charles Gormley. Tom Conti, Helen Mirren, David Hayman, Brian Pettifer, Jennifer Black. Very minor comedy of Catholic schoolteacher Conti and the series of miracles that befall him. Mirren is wasted as a music teacher/love interest. Aka HEAVENLY PURSUITS. [PG-13] ▼
Gospel of John, The (2003-Canadian-British) C-180m. ½ D: Philip Saville. Henry Ian Cusick, Stuart Bunce, Daniel Kash, Stephen Russell, Diana Berriman, Alan Van Sprang, Scott Handy; narrated by

Christopher Plummer. Overlong but surprisingly compelling retelling of Jesus' life. Although the material is obviously familiar and well-worn movie fodder, Cusick's fresh and utterly believable performance as Jesus ranks favorably with any other cinematic interpretation. Effectively narrated by Plummer. 129m. version also available. [PG-13] ▼●

Gospel Road, The (1973) C-83m. ½ D: Robert Elfstrom. Johnny Cash, June Carter, Robert Elfstrom. Musical journey through Holy Land follows story of Jesus from his birth to his death and resurrection. Sincere but not especially good. [G] ▼●

Gossip (2000) C-91m. BOMB D: Davis Guggenheim. James Marsden, Lena Headey, Norman Reedus, Joshua Jackson, Kate Hudson, Marisa Coughlan, Eric Bogosian, Edward James Olmos, Sharon Lawrence. Inane tale of three college roomies who hatch a rumor as a class project that (naturally) gets way out of hand. Any dropout could guess these plot twists; viewer has an easier choice. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Gosta Berling's Saga SEE: Atonement of Gosta Berling, The

Gotcha! (1985) C-101m. ½ D: Jeff Kanew. Anthony Edwards, Linda Fiorentino, Nick Corri, Alex Rocco, Marla Adams, Klaus Loewitsch, Christopher Rydell. Nerdy college kid goes to Paris on vacation, meets seductive older woman who involves him in espionage in East Berlin. Very nearly a good movie, with some sharp dialogue to start, but loses its appeal as it loses its credibility. [PG-13] ▼●●

Go Tell the Spartans (1978) C-114m. ½ D: Ted Post. Burt Lancaster, Craig Wasson, Jonathan Goldsmith, Marc Singer, Joe Unger, David Clennon, Dolph Sweet, James Hong. Perceptive, moving Vietnam War picture, set in early 1964; Burt shines as "advisory group" commander who is already starting to have his doubts about the conflict. More realistic in dialogue and situation than other, more publicized, popular films on the subject. Wendell Mayes' cynically funny script is right on target. Based on Daniel Ford's novel Incident at Muc Wa. [R] ▼●●

Gothic (1986-British) C-90m.  D: Ken Russell. Gabriel Byrne, Julian Sands, Natasha Richardson, Miriam Cyr, Timothy Spall. That night in 1816 when Mary Shelley (author of Frankenstein) and Dr. Polidori (The Vampyre) were inspired to write their Gothic classics—previously depicted in THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN—is given the wild Ken Russell treatment here. Too weird for some, too highbrow for many horror fans, but full of Russell's hallucinatory visuals. Same story was told two years later in HAUNTED SUMMER. [R] ▼●●

Gothika (2003) C-113m. ½ D: Mathieu Kassovitz. Halle Berry, Robert Downey, Jr.,

Penélope Cruz, Charles S. Dutton, John Carroll Lynch, Bernard Hill, Dorian Harewood. A mental health professional wakes up in the psychiatric ward of the prison where she works, accused of a brutal murder she doesn't remember committing. Take an earnest Berry, add a senseless script and misguided direction, and you get this horror/suspense/supernatural thriller/murder mystery/SNAKE PIT hodgepodge. [R] ▼●

Go Tigers! (2001) C-103m.  D: Kenneth A. Carlson. Entertaining documentary about Massillon, Ohio, a working-class town where high school football has been a mania for 106 years. Now the team's very existence is at stake as a controversial school levy is put to the voters. An empathetic, close-up, cinéma vérité-style view of the star athletes, coaches, teachers, parents, boosters, and even naysayers over the course of one crucial season. P.S. The filmmaker grew up in Massillon. [R] ▼●

Governess, The (1998-British) C-112m. ½ D: Sandra Goldbacher. Minnie Driver, Tom Wilkinson, Florence Hoath, Jonathan Rhys-Meyers, Harriet Walter, Arlene Cockburn, Emma Bird. Intriguing but somewhat unfocused film, set in the 1800s, about a spirited young Jewish woman who leaves her newly impoverished London family to take a job as governess on a remote Scottish island. There she develops an unusual relationship—both cerebral and passionate—with the master of the house. Slow-moving film has interesting passages but never gels. Written by the director, who bites off more than she can chew. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Go West (1925) 69m. ½ D: Buster Keaton. Buster Keaton, Howard Truesdale, Kathleen Myers, Brown Eyes. Buster plays a greenhorn named Friendless who winds up working on a cattle ranch out West, and finding his soulmate in a cow named Brown Eyes. Not one of Buster's best silents, this still has plenty of good scenes, especially the climactic stampede, executed with typically Keatonesque comic skill. ▼●●

Go West (1940) 81m.  D: Edward Buzzell. Groucho, Chico, and Harpo Marx, John Carroll, Diana Lewis, Walter Woolf King, Robert Barrat. Big letdown from Marxes, until hilarious train-ride climax. Occasional bits sparkle through humdrum script. ▼●●

Go West, Young Man (1936) 82m.  D: Henry Hathaway. Mae West, Randolph Scott, Warren William, Alice Brady, Elizabeth Patterson, Lyle Talbot, Isabel Jewell. Movie queen Mae is stuck in the sticks, but passes time nicely with handsome farm boy. Not top-notch West, but still fun. ▼●

Goya in Bordeaux (1999-Italian-Spanish) C-104m. ½ D: Carlos Saura. Francisco Rabal, José Coronado, Eulalia Ramón, Maribel Verdú, Dafne Fernández, Emilio Gutiérrez Caba, Joaquin Climent, Manuel de Blas,

Cristina Espinosa, José María Pou. Vivid, highly theatricalized vision of exiled Saragossan painter Francisco Goya's waning days in France, as he wanders through deathbed memories of the women and the wars that inspired his work. Sumptuously shot by Vittorio Storaro, but directed with a pervasive melancholy that makes for slow drama. Some nudity, but not nearly enough. Aka GOYA. Univision. [R] ▼

Goya's Ghosts (2007-U.S.-Spanish) C-113m. ½ D: Milos Forman. Javier Bardem, Natalie Portman, Stellan Skarsgård, Randy Quaid, José Luis Gómez, Michael Lonsdale. The kind of oddball movie only Forman can make. Two-part story begins during the Spanish Inquisition, as a Goya model (Portman) is unjustly imprisoned and raped in her cell by a hypocritical Catholic Church Brother (Bardem). Returning 15 years later from Napoleonic France, the Brother is asked by Goya (Skarsgård) to help track down a daughter conceived by the rape. Cowritten by Forman and Jean-Claude Carrière, plot-heavy result is fairly zippy and not without entertainment value, but the tone is shaky and the wildly multinational casting distracts. Which isn't to say that Quaid as Spain's King Carlos IV isn't without its amusements. [R] ●

Grace Is Gone (2007) C-85m.  D: James C. Strouse. John Cusack, Shélan O'Keefe, Gracie Bednarczyk, Alessandro Nivola. Midwestern working-class father learns that his wife has died while serving in the U.S. Army in Iraq. Unable to confront his two young daughters with the news, he takes them on a road trip instead, trying to seize every opportunity for happiness. Touching film never goes overboard with sentiment; Cusack strikes just the right note, and the girls who play his daughters seem absolutely genuine. Marisa Tomei and Mary Kay Place make eyeblink-long appearances. Score by Clint Eastwood. Written by first-time director Strouse. [PG-13] ●

Grace of My Heart (1996) C-115m. ½ D: Allison Anders. Illeana Douglas, John Turturro, Eric Stoltz, Matt Dillon, Patsy Kensit, Bruce Davison, David Clennon, Christina Pickles, Amanda De Cadenet, Chris Isaak, Bridget Fonda, voice of Peter Fonda. Disappointing film about a great subject: the pop music world centered around N.Y.C.'s Brill Building in the 1950s and '60s. Aspiring singer-songwriter Douglas finds doors closed to her as a performer but becomes a successful pop tunesmith instead; her destiny is then linked to a succession of men in the music business. Nice moments here and there but superficial at every turn—a real shame. Full of pleasant sound-alike songs from the period, plus one showstopper, "God Give Me Strength," written by Elvis Costello and pop veteran Burt Bacharach. [R] ▼●●

Grace Quigley (1985) C-87m. *½ D: Anthony Harvey. Katharine Hepburn, Nick Nolte, Elizabeth Wilson, Chip Zien, Kit Le Fever, William Duell, Walter Abel, Denny Dillon. Abysmal misfire that manages to be both bland and tasteless, about lonely, elderly Hepburn, who hires hit man Nolte to kill her—and then others of her set who would all rather be dead. Filmed in 1983, first shown at 1984 Cannes Film Festival at 102m. However, another version of this exists, titled THE ULTIMATE SOLUTION OF GRACE QUIGLEY and put together by its scriptwriter, A. Martin Zweiback. Despite an uneven second half, it is a touching, funny, surreal black comedy about the problems of the elderly and the right of choice. This cut runs 94m. and is rated ½. [PG] ▼

Gracie (2007) C-95m.  D: Davis Guggenheim. Carly Schroeder, Elisabeth Shue, Dermot Mulroney, Andrew Shue, Jesse Lee Soffer, Joshua Caras, Julia Garro, Hunter Schroeder. Shue plays her mother in this sports biopic based on her own teenage years. Schroeder is adequately spunky as the future actress who wants nothing more than to play competitive soccer, circa 1978, just like her scrappy brothers. Extremely lightweight and predictable (and very loosely based on the facts), this should appeal to preteen girls. Elisabeth, her costar brother Andrew, and director Guggenheim (Elisabeth's husband) all coproduced. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Graduate, The (1967) C-105m. * D: Mike Nichols. Anne Bancroft, Dustin Hoffman, Katharine Ross, Murray Hamilton, William Daniels, Elizabeth Wilson, Brian Avery, Norman Fell, Marion Lorne, Alice Ghostley. Landmark film of the late '60s that's still just as pungent—and funny—as ever. Hoffman, in his first major film role, plays ultra-naïve college grad who's seduced by a middle-aged woman, then falls in love with her daughter. Perfect song score by Simon and Garfunkel. Script by Buck Henry (who plays the desk clerk) and Calder Willingham from Charles Webb's novel. Nichols won Best Director Oscar. Look fast for Mike Farrell in hotel lobby and Richard Dreyfuss in Berkeley rooming house. Later a Broadway play and a reference point for the 2005 movie RUMOR HAS IT... Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Graduation Day (1981) C-96m. BOMB D: Herb Freed. Christopher George, Patch Mackenzie, E. Danny Murphy, Michael Pataki, E. J. Peaker, Vanna White. A bloody FRIDAY THE 13TH clone, done with no talent or imagination. [R] ▼

Graffiti Bridge (1990) C-91m. *½ D: Prince. Prince, Morris Day, Jerome Benton & The Time, Jill Jones, Mavis Staples, George Clinton, Ingrid Chavez, Robin Power, T.C. Ellis, Tevin Campbell. Further auteur antics from the rocker-filmmaker (and nonactor), a sequel of sorts to PUR-

PLE RAIN, but with murky religious overtones. Even the musical numbers, source of the film's socko CD soundtrack, are botched here. If you don't even like Prince's music, you'd better convert our rating to BOMB. Purple piffle. [PG-13]▼●●

Grand Canyon (1991) C-134m.  D: Lawrence Kasdan. Danny Glover, Kevin Kline, Steve Martin, Mary McDonnell, Mary-Louise Parker, Alfre Woodard, Jeremy Sisto, Tina Lifford, Patrick Malone. Ruminations on why and how Life is Lousy, especially in L.A., as a handful of disparate lives intersect: a lawyer who feels distant from his wife, a wife who's discovered an abandoned baby, a tow-truck driver who's worried about his sister's survival in a violent neighborhood, etc. Give Kasdan (and cowriter Meg Kasdan) credit for attempting to make a serious film that deals with matters of importance... but the results are mushy, superficial, and unconvincing. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Grande Bouffe, The (1973-French-Italian) C-130m. ½ D: Marco Ferreri. Marcello Mastroianni, Ugo Tognazzi, Michel Piccoli, Philippe Noiret, Andrea Ferreol. Four bored middle-aged men decide to commit group suicide by eating themselves to death. Outrageous idea, but overbaked—no pun intended—and excessively, graphically gross. [X]▼●

Grand Highway, The (1987-French) C-104m.  D: Jean-Loup Hubert. Anemone, Richard Bohringer, Antoine Hubert, Vanessa Guedj, Christine Pascal. Fine, subtle, slice-of-life tale of a fragile nine-year-old boy (Hubert, son of the director) and his experiences while spending three weeks in a rural village while his mother is off giving birth. Guedj is a delight as the tomboy who becomes his friend. Original title: LE GRAND CHEMIN. Remade in U.S. as PARADISE. [R]▼

Grand Hotel (1932) 113m. * D: Edmund Goulding. Greta Garbo, John Barrymore, Joan Crawford, Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore, Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Tully Marshall, Mary Carlisle. Vicki Baum's novel and play of plush Berlin hotel where "nothing ever happens." Stars prove the contrary: Garbo as lonely ballerina, John B. her jewel-thief lover, Lionel B. a dying man, Crawford an ambitious stenographer, Beery a hardened businessman, Stone the observer. Scripted by William A. Drake. Best Picture Oscar winner; a must. Plot reworked many times (in HOTEL BERLIN, WEEK-END AT THE WALDORF, etc.). Later a Broadway musical. ▼●●

Grand Illusion (1937-French) 117m. * D: Jean Renoir. Jean Gabin, Pierre Fresnay, Erich von Stroheim, (Marcel) Dalio, Dita Parlo, (Julien) Carette, Gaston Modot, Jean Dasté. Renoir's classic treatise on war, focusing on French prisoners during WWI and their cultured German commandant. Beautiful performances enhance an eloquent script (by Renoir and Charles Spaak). Edited to 94m. for U.S. release in 1938. Beware of other versions with variant running times. ▼●●

Grandma's Boy (1922) 56m.  D: Fred Newmeyer. Harold Lloyd, Mildred Davis, Anna Townsend, Charles Stevenson, Noah Young, Dick Sutherland. Lloyd's first great success casts him as a mousy small-town type inspired to fight for his girl—and his honor—by his grandma's tales of family heritage. Very entertaining. ●

Grandma's Boy (2006) C-96m.  D: Nicholas Goossen. Allen Covert, Linda Cardellini, Shirley Jones, Shirley Knight, Doris Roberts, Peter Dante, Kevin Nealon. Slacker accountant Covert moves in with granny Roberts and her golden-girl friends while taking a new job as a tester at a video game company supervised by babe Cardellini. Stoner comedy's crude humor (coscripted by Covert) occasionally engenders more chuckles than expected. As a veteran showbiz groupie whose liaisons included one with Don Knotts, Jones' raunchy role may color your future viewings of CAROUSEL or The Partridge Family. Coproduced by Covert and Adam Sandler; several comedy cronies appear unbilled. Super 35. [R]●

Grand Prix (1966) C-175m.  D: John Frankenheimer. James Garner, Eva Marie Saint, Yves Montand, Toshiro Mifune, Brian Bedford, Jessica Walter, Françoise Hardy. Big cast is saddled with rambling script about personal lives of auto racers and their loves; spectacular action scenes and use of split screen are best appreciated on the big screen. Deservedly won Oscars for the editing and sound effects people. Mifune's English dialogue is dubbed by Paul Frees. Super Panavision 70. ▼●●

Grand Slam (1967-Italian-U.S.) C-120m.  D: Giuliano Montaldo. Edward G. Robinson, Janet Leigh, Adolfo Celi, Klaus Kinski, Georges Rigaud, Robert Hoffman. International jewel-heist film, with all the trappings. Nothing new, but smoothly done, most enjoyable. Techniscope. ●

Grand Theft Auto (1977) C-85m.  D: Ron Howard. Ron Howard, Nancy Morgan, Marion Ross, Pete Isacksen, Barry Cahill. Howard's directorial debut (he also coscripted with his actor-father Rance) is typical unsophisticated car-crash action fare, no better or worse than most. [PG]▼●●

Grand Tour, The (1992) C-99m. ½ D: David N. Tsohy. Jeff Daniels, Ariana Richards, Emilia Crow, Jim Haynie, David Wells, Nicholas Guest, Robert Colbert, Marilyn Lightstone. The proprietor of a small-town hotel fears that his unexpected guests are tourists from the future, visiting for a frightening reason. Intelligent, low-key sci-fi, well acted and consistently surprising, but too drawn-out. From the novella "Vintage Season" by Lawrence O'Donnell and C. L. Moore. Filmed for theatrical release but debuted on cable TV instead. Aka DI-SASTER IN TIME. [PG-13] ▼●●

Grandview, U.S.A. (1984) C-97m. ½ D: Randal Kleiser. Jamie Lee Curtis, C. Thomas Howell, Patrick Swayze, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Ramon Bieri, Carole Cook, Troy Donahue, William Windom, Elizabeth Gorcey, M. Emmet Walsh, John Cusack, Joan Cusack, Michael Winslow. So-so slice of Americana, focusing on several characters in archetypal Midwestern town: a young boy coming of age, an independent young woman trying to make it on her own running her father's demolition-derby business, and a lovesick sap who's her ace driver. Passable time-filler but nothing more. [R] ▼

Gran Torino (2008) C-117m.  D: Clint Eastwood. Clint Eastwood, Bee Vang, Ahney Her, Christopher Carley, Brian Haley, Geraldine Hughes, Brian Howe, Dreama Walker, John Carroll Lynch. With the death of his beloved wife, retired auto worker Walt Kowalski (Eastwood) is crankier than ever. Intolerant of the Asians who have taken over his Detroit neighborhood, he slowly develops a relationship with two youngsters who live next door and ultimately becomes protective of them. Eastwood channels Archie Bunker (and to some degree Dirty Harry) in this disarming fable about a man out of touch with a changing world who unexpectedly finds purpose to his life. Only Clint could have pulled this off—for an audience that's watched him grow and change over the years. Panavision. [R] ●

Grapes of Wrath, The (1940) 129m. * D: John Ford. Henry Fonda, Jane Darwell, John Carradine, Charley Grapewin, Dorris Bowden, Russell Simpson, John Qualen, O. Z. Whitehead, Eddie Quillan, Zeffie Tilbury, Darryl Hickman, Ward Bond, Charles Middleton, Tom Tyler, Mae Marsh, Jack Pennick. One of the great American films, an uncompromising adaptation of John Steinbeck's novel about impoverished Okie farmers making the trek to California during the Depression, where the good life they've hoped for is well out of reach. Fonda is great in his defining role as an ex-con whose social conscience is aroused; Darwell is unforgettable as the matriarch Ma Joad. She and Ford won well-deserved Oscars. Screenplay by Nunnally Johnson. ▼●●

Grass Harp, The (1996) C-107m.  D: Charles Matthau. Piper Laurie, Sissy Spacek, Walter Matthau, Edward Furlong, Nell Carter, Jack Lemmon, Mary Steenburgen, Sean Patrick Flanery, Joe Don Baker, Charles Durning, Roddy McDowall, Doris Roberts, Scott Wilson; narrated by Boyd Gaines. Thoughtful drama based on Truman Capote's evocative memoir of his boyhood in the South, where he was raised by his

wealthy aunt and her lightheaded sister. Exquisite performance by Laurie as the boy's free-spirited soulmate, matched by Spacek as a woman who's been hardened by life. Director Matthau appears as a customer in McDowall's barbershop. [PG] ▼●●

Grasshopper, The (1970) C-95m.  D: Jerry Paris. Jacqueline Bisset, Jim Brown, Joseph Cotten, Corbett Monica, Ramon Bieri. Episodic but fairly compelling chronicle of how a beautiful 19-year-old from British Columbia ends up as a burned-out Vegas call girl at age 22. Better than expected melodrama actually features Brown in a sympathetic role. Look fast for Penny Marshall. Aka THE PASSION OF EVIL AND PASSIONS. [R] ▼●

Grass Is Greener, The (1961) C-105m.  D: Stanley Donen. Cary Grant, Deborah Kerr, Robert Mitchum, Jean Simmons. Chic drawing-room fare that suffers from stagnation. Grant-Kerr marriage is threatened by Simmons and Mitchum romancing the two, respectively. Technirama. ▼●●

Grass Is Singing, The (1981-British-Swedish) C-108m.  D: Michael Raeburn. Karen Black, John Thaw, John Kani, John Moulder Brown, Patrick Mynhardt. Black is excellent as a lonely woman who marries farmer Thaw and cannot adjust to life in the African woodland. Filmed in Zambia; based on a novel by Doris Lessing. Released in U.S. in 1984 as KILLING HEAT. ▼●

Graveyard Shift (1989) C-89m. ½ D: Gerard Ciccoritti. Silvio Oliviero, Helen Papas, Cliff Stoker, Dorin Ferber, Dan Rose, Don Jones. Oliviero has the perfect occupation for a modern vampire: an all-night cabdriver. His only victims are those in "their cycle of death," but things get out of hand anyway. Intelligent, well-acted low-budgeter harmed only by not knowing when to quit. Filmed in 1985. Aka CENTRAL PARK DRIFTER. Followed by a sequel: THE UNDERSTUDY. [R] ▼●●

Graveyard Shift (1990) C-87m. BOMB D: Ralph S. Singleton. David Andrews, Kelly Wolf, Stephen Macht, Brad Dourif, Andrew Divoff, Vic Polizos. Bottom-of-the-barrel, cliché-ridden shocker chronicling the goings-on in a mysterious mill, whose workers are disappearing within its rat-infested bowels. Poorly directed, with even worse special effects. Based on a short story by Stephen King. [R] ▼●●

Gravy Train, The (1974) C-96m. ½ D: Jack Starrett. Stacy Keach, Frederic Forrest, Margot Kidder, Barry Primus, Richard Romanus, Denny Miller. OK blend of fast-moving action and comedy as West Virginia brothers Keach and Forrest develop a liking for crime. Aka THE DION BROTHERS. [R]

Graveyard (1978) C-104m. ½ D: Charles B. Pierce, Ben Johnson, Iron Eyes Cody, Lana Wood, Jack Elam, Paul Fix, Alex Cord. Interesting if flawed rehash of THE SEARCHERS with Johnson tracking the Indian (Cord) who kidnapped his daughter. Good classic Western style an asset, sluggish pacing a drawback. Produced, directed, written by Pierce, who also appears. Panavision. [PG]▼

Gray Lady Down (1978) C-111m.  D: David Greene. Charlton Heston, David Carradine, Stacy Keach, Ned Beatty, Ronny Cox, Rosemary Forsyth. Tired drama about rescue of nuclear submarine, captained by Heston. Good special effects, and colorful performance by Carradine as designer of experimental diving craft. Look for Christopher Reeve as one of the officers. Panavision. [PG]▼

Gray Matters (2007) C-96m.  D: Sue Kramer. Heather Graham, Tom Cavanagh, Bridget Moynahan, Alan Cumming, Molly Shannon, Sissy Spacek, Rachel Shelley, Gloria Gaynor. Gray—yes, that's her name—lives with her brother in Manhattan; they're inseparable, and most people think they're a "couple." Then he meets a beautiful woman and asks her to marry him. Gray is genuinely happy for her brother, then finds herself powerfully attracted to his fiancée. Artificial in the extreme, this attempt to emulate and update 1930s/40s screwball comedies stays afloat only because its stars are so likable. Written by the director. [PG-13]●

Gray's Anatomy (1996) C/B&W-80m.  D: Steven Soderbergh. Spalding Gray. Gray's brilliance as a raconteur shines through in this witty, inventively directed monologue charting his experience of passing his 50th birthday and finding himself afflicted with a rare eye disease. His encounters with traditional and alternative medicine are both funny and frightening.▼

Grbavica: The Land of My Dreams (2006-Austrian-Herzegovinian-German-Croatian) C-90m.  D: Jasmila Zbanic. Mirjana Karanovic, Luna Mijovic, Leon Lucev, Kenan Catic, Bogdan Diklic. Bosnian writer-director Zbanic (in her feature-film debut) provides a revealing look at life in postwar Sarajevo and the lingering impact it has on a struggling single mother and her rebellious 12-year-old daughter, who live in the city's Grbavica district (the site of a former prison camp where torture and rape were commonplace). An escalating rift between mother and daughter forces them to confront the harsh realities of their lives, and the war's continuing emotional toll. Impressive and powerful.●

Grease (1978) C-110m.  D: Randal Kleiser. John Travolta, Olivia Newton-John, Stockard Channing, Jeff Conaway,

Didi Conn, Eve Arden, Sid Caesar, Joan Blondell, Edd Byrnes, Alice Ghostley, Dody Goodman, Lorenzo Lamas, Michael Tucci, Dinah Manoff, Barry Pearl. Energetic, imaginative filming of long-running Broadway show fantasizes 1950s life; spirited cast, clever ideas, and Patricia Birch's choreography make it fun. Hit songs (written for movie) include "You're the One That I Want," "Hopelessly Devoted To You," and title number, sung by Frankie Valli. Followed by a sequel. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Grease 2 (1982) C-114m. BOMB D: Patricia Birch. Maxwell Caulfield, Michelle Pfeiffer, Adrian Zmed, Lorna Luft, Didi Conn, Eve Arden, Sid Caesar, Dody Goodman, Tab Hunter, Connie Stevens, Christopher McDonald. Mindless sequel to the musical hit; opens with a great back-to-school number, then goes downhill. Pedestrian music, clumsy comedy, uncharismatic leads; only the supporting players (like newcomer Luft and veteran Arden) shine through. Inauspicious directing debut for choreographer Birch. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Greased Lightning (1977) C-94m.  D: Michael Schultz. Richard Pryor, Beau Bridges, Pam Grier, Cleavon Little, Vincent Gardenia, Richie Havens, Julian Bond. Spirited cast does little to enliven plodding, episodic bio of Wendell Scott, the first black racing car driver. A waste of Pryor, both dramatically and comically. [PG]▼

Greaser's Palace (1972) C-91m.  D: Robert Downey. Allan Arbus, Albert Henderson, Luana Anders, George Morgan, Larry Moyer, Michael Sullivan, James Antonio, Ron Nealy. Super-offbeat Jesus Christ parody with Western setting. Drifter (Arbus) discovers "true identity" and heals "sick" cowboys in crazy, tiny town. Seven-year-old Robert Downey, Jr., appears as a mutilated child! Aka ZOOT SUIT JESUS.▼

Great Adventure, The (1975-Italian-Spanish) C-87m.  D: Paul Elliotts (Gianfranco Baldanello). Jack Palance, Joan Collins, Fred Romer (Fernando Romero), Elisabetta Virgili, Manuel de Blas, Remo de Angelis. Middling Jack London tale of a boy and his dog trying to make it in the wilds of gold-rush Alaska—fighting the odds, marauding wolves, sinister town boss Palance, dancehall queen Collins.▼

Great American Broadcast, The (1941) 92m. ½ D: Archie Mayo. Alice Faye, John Payne, Jack Oakie, Cesar Romero, The Four Ink Spots, James Newill, Mary Beth Hughes. Fictional fun of development of radio industry, with such musical guests as zany Wiere Brothers. Entertaining; bright cast.●

Great American Cowboy, The (1974) C-90m.  D: Kieth Merrill. Narrated by Joel McCrea. Exciting documentary on rodeo life focuses on rodeo superstar Larry Mahan and his competition with newcomer

Phil Lyne. Oscar winner as Best Documentary Feature. [G]▼

Great Balloon Adventure, The SEE: Olly, Olly, Oxen Free

Great Balls of Fire! (1989) C-102m. ½ D: Jim McBride. Dennis Quaid, Winona Ryder, Alec Baldwin, Lisa Blount, Trey Wilson, John Doe, Steve Allen, Stephen Tobolowsky, Lisa Jane Persky, Michael St. Gerard, Peter Cook. Slick, highly stylized cartoon about the rise (and temporary fall) of '50s rocker Jerry Lee Lewis, a twice-married hellraiser whose doom was sealed when he took his 13-year-old second cousin as wife No. 3. Quaid's amusing but verriy broad lead performance is balanced by Ryder's more even-keeled portrayal of cousin Myra. Reasonably entertaining but falls far short of its potential. [PG-13] ▼●●

Great Bank Robbery, The (1969) C-98m. *½ D: Hy Averbach. Zero Mostel, Kim Novak, Clint Walker, Claude Akins, Akim Tamiroff, Larry Storch. Bogus preacher and company, Mexican gang led by Tamiroff, and local outlaws all compete for control of the town of Friendly. Spoof of Westerns is a total dud. Be warned. Panavision. [M/PG]●

Great Battle, The (1978-German-Yugoslavian) C-97m. BOMB D: Humphrey Longan (Umberto Lenzi). Helmut Berger, Samantha Eggar, Giuliano Gemma, John Huston, Stacy Keach, Henry Fonda, Edwige Fenech. Amateurish muddle about WW2 combines tired vignettes with well-known stars, dubbed sequences with others, and newsreel footage narrated by Orson Welles. A waste of everybody's time. Aka THE GREATEST BATTLE, BATTLE FORCE, THE BATTLE OF MARETH, and THE BIGGEST BATTLE. [PG]▼

Great Buck Howard, The (2009) C-90m.  D: Sean McInly. John Malkovich, Colin Hanks, Emily Blunt, Ricky Jay, Tom Hanks, Debra Monk, Steve Zahn, Griffin Dunne, Wallace Langham, Adam Scott. Young man quits law school and stumbles into a job as road manager for a self-absorbed stage performer whose career peaked years ago on The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson. Small but entertaining film is worth seeing for Malkovich's endearing and persuasive performance as a "mentalist," inspired by The Amazing Kreskin. Tom Hanks coproduced the film and plays his real-life son Colin's dad. [PG]

Great Caruso, The (1951) C-109m.  D: Richard Thorpe. Mario Lanza, Ann Blyth, Jarmila Novotna, Dorothy Kirsten. Biographical fiction about the legendary singer, entertainingly done. Fine music makes clichés endurable. ▼●●

kins, Akim Tamiroff. Terrible adaptation of George Bernard Shaw's comedy about Catherine the Great wastes capable cast; wait for Dietrich's THE SCARLET EMPRESS.

Great Day in the Morning (1956) C-92m. ½ D: Jacques Tourneur. Virginia Mayo, Robert Stack, Ruth Roman, Alex Nicol, Raymond Burr. Good cast, beautiful color scenery help so-so story of pre-Civil War Colorado, when gold rush fever and separationist sentiments clashed. SuperScope. ▼

Great Debaters, The (2007) C-123m.  D: Denzel Washington. Denzel Washington, Nate Parker, Jurnee Smollett, Denzel Whitaker, Jermaine Williams, Forest Whitaker, Gina Raveria, John Heard, Kimberly Elise. At all-black Wiley College in rural Texas, circa 1935, radical professor Melvin B. Tolson (Washington) motivates his student debate team to work through their personal problems in order to excel. Eventually they travel to Harvard for a precedent-shattering debate. Inspiring true-life drama plays with the facts and succumbs to formulaic storytelling at times but never loses sight of its goal: to remind us that education—and determination—can help ordinary people surmount even the most formidable obstacles. Coproduced by Oprah Winfrey. Panavision. [PG-13]●

Great Dictator, The (1940) 128m. ½ D: Charles Chaplin. Charles Chaplin, Paulette Goddard, Jack Oakie, Reginald Gardiner, Maurice Moscovitch, Billy Gilbert, Henry Daniell. Chaplin's first full talkie; unusual comedy combines slapstick, satire, and social commentary, as he plays dual role of Jewish ghetto barber and dictator Adenoid Hynkel of Tomania. Unique, surprisingly effective film also features Oakie in unforgettable portrayal of "Benzino Napaloni" of rival country Bacteria. ▼●●

Stock. Allied POWs plot massive escape from Nazi prison camp. Based on true story, this blockbuster was beautifully photographed by Daniel Fapp on location in Germany. Rip-roaring excitement with marvelous international cast; script by James Clavell and W. R. Burnett, from Paul Brickhill's book. Rousing score by Elmer Bernstein. Followed by a TV sequel 25 years later. Panavision. ▼●●

Mosley, Ben Johnson, Paul Winfield, Lloyd Haynes, Dina Merrill, David Clennon. Potentially exciting screen bio of the great heavyweight champ becomes an episodic mess suffering from a script devoid of dramatic focus and ham-handed direction. Ironically, Mosley (as Sonny Liston) has the charisma Ali lacks. Soundtrack features George Benson's "The Greatest Love of All." [PG] ▼●

Greatest Game Ever Played, The (2005) C-120m.  D: Bill Paxton. Shia LaBeouf, Stephen Dillane, Josh Flitter, Peyton List, Elias Koteas, Marnie McPhail, Stephen Marcus, Luke Askew, Peter Firth, Len Cariou, Joe Jackson, Dawn Upshaw. Winning story of sportsmanship and class struggle surrounding the 1913 U.S. Open Tournament in Brookline, Massachusetts, where a caddy, Francis Ouimet (LaBeouf), is allowed to play opposite the much-admired British champion Harry Vardon (Dillane). Solid, old-fashioned storytelling with a modern eye; golf has never been portrayed like this before. Screenplay by Mark Frost, from his book. Eye-catching title sequence uses vintage photographs and footage to set the stage for this meticulously produced period picture. [PG] ●

Greatest Love, The (1951-Italian) 110m. *½ D: Roberto Rossellini. Ingrid Bergman, Alexander Knox, Giulietta Masina, Teresa Pellati, Ettore Giannini. Bergman plays a wealthy American living in Rome, who feels compelled to help people in order to restore meaning to her own life after her son's suicide. Obvious, slow-moving story. Originally titled EUROPA '51. ▼

Greatest Show on Earth, The (1952) C-153m. ½ D: Cecil B. DeMille. Betty Hutton, Charlton Heston, Cornel Wilde, Dorothy Lamour, Gloria Grahame, James Stewart, Henry Wilcoxon, Lawrence Tierney, Lyle Bettger. Big package of fun from DeMille, complete with hokey performances, clichés, big-top excitement, and a swell train wreck. Stewart well cast as circus clown with mysterious past. Some funny surprise guests appear. Oscar winner for Best Picture and Story (Fredric M.

Frank, Theodore St. John, Frank Cavett).

Greatest Story Ever Told, The (1965) C-193m. ½ D: George Stevens. Max von Sydow, Charlton Heston, Carroll Baker, Angela Lansbury, Sidney Poitier, Shelley Winters, John Wayne, Ed Wynn, Jose Ferrer, Van Heflin, Claude Rains, Telly Savalas, many others. Some of the most spectacular scenes ever filmed lose all validity because of incessant cameos that run throughout film. Would you believe John Wayne as a Roman centurion supervising Christ's crucifixion? Carl Sandburg is listed in credits as a Creative Associate. Originally shown at 225m., then cut to 141m. Great Expectations (1934) 102m. ½ D: Stuart Walker. Jane Wyatt, Phillips Holmes, George Breakston, Henry Hull, Florence Reed, Alan Hale, Francis L. Sullivan. Acceptable version of Dickens' story about a young boy and unknown benefactor is dwarfed by '46 classic. Sullivan plays Jagers in both films. ▼

Great Expectations (1998) C-111m. ½ D: Alfonso Cuarón. Ethan Hawke, Gwyneth Paltrow, Anne Bancroft, Chris Cooper, Hank Azaria, Robert De Niro, Josh Mostel, Kim Dickens, Nell Campbell, Stephen Spinella. Modern story based on the Dickens classic has Finn (né Pip) helping a convict on the Florida marshes, then being summoned to the decrepit mansion of equally decrepit Ms. Dinsmoor (née Havisham), where he meets the love of his life, the beautiful but heartless Estella. Eventually, he's whisked off to N.Y.C. to find fame and fortune as an artist. So stylishly crafted that it's a shame it doesn't add up to much of anything. The skeleton of Dickens is there, but no resonance. Panavision. [R] ▼●● star who becomes romantically entangled with his scheming married assistant. ▼

Great Garrick, The (1937) 91m.  D: James Whale. Brian Aherne, Olivia de Havilland, Edward Everett Horton, Melville Cooper, Lionel Atwill, Lana Turner, Marie Wilson. Members of the Comédie Française perpetrate a hoax to deflate the ego of pompous David Garrick (Aherne) in this entertaining, fictionalized yarn about real-life British actor. ▼

Great Gatsby, The (1949) 92m. ½ D: Elliott Nugent. Alan Ladd, Betty Field, Macdonald Carey, Barry Sullivan, Ruth Hussey, Shelley Winters, Howard da Silva. Misguided adaptation of F. Scott Fitzgerald's book about a mysterious young millionaire who crashes Long Island society in the 1920s. Too talky and much too literal-minded. Ladd is pretty good, but Field (as Daisy Buchanan) gives a strangely petulant performance. Filmed before in 1926, again in 1974, and for TV in 2001.

Great Gatsby, The (1974) C-144m. ½ D: Jack Clayton. Robert Redford, Mia Farrow, Bruce Dern, Karen Black, Scott Wilson, Sam Waterston, Lois Chiles, Howard da Silva, Edward Herrmann, Patsy Kensit, Roberts Blossom. Bland adaptation of F. Scott Fitzgerald's jazz-age novel about a golden boy in Long Island society; faithful to the book, and visually opulent, but lacks substance and power. Script by Francis Ford Coppola; Theoni V. Aldredge's costumes and Nelson Riddle's score earned Oscars. [PG] ▼

Great Gilbert and Sullivan, The (1953-British) C-105m.  D: Sidney Gilliat. Robert Morley, Maurice Evans, Eileen Herlie, Peter Finch, Martyn Green. Agreeable production is only a superficial biography of the legendary operetta composers, but does offer many highlights from their wonderful works. Their lives are probed more incisively in TOPSY-TURVY. Original British title: THE STORY OF GILBERT AND SULLIVAN.

Great Guns (1941) 74m.  D: Monty Banks. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Sheila Ryan, Dick Nelson, Edmund MacDonald. Later L&H Army comedy is weak, not as bad as some but far below their classic films. Look quickly for Alan Ladd. ▼

Great Guy (1936) 75m.  D: John G. Blystone. James Cagney, Mae Clarke, James Burke, Edward Brophy, Henry Kolker, Bernadene Hayes, Edward McNamara. Second-rate Cagney in low-budget production about inspector crusading against corruption in meat business. ▼

Great Impostor, The (1961) 112m. ½ D: Robert Mulligan. Tony Curtis, Karl Malden, Raymond Massey, Edmond O'Brien, Arthur O'Connell, Gary Merrill, Frank

Gorshin. Incredible story of Ferdinand Demara, who succeeded in a variety of professional guises. Film is episodic and pat. ▼

Great Lie, The (1941) 107m.  D: Edmund Goulding. Mary Astor, Bette Davis, George Brent, Lucile Watson, Hattie McDaniel, Grant Mitchell, Jerome Cowan. Brent marries Davis when alliance with Astor is annulled. He is lost in plane crash, leaving Davis and pregnant Astor to battle each other and the elements. Well-mounted soaper won Astor an Oscar as fiery concert pianist. ▼

Great Locomotive Chase, The (1956) C-85m.  D: Francis D. Lyon. Fess Parker, Jeffrey Hunter, Jeff York, John Lupton, Eddie Firestone, Kenneth Tobey. True story of Andrews' Raiders (filmed before by Buster Keaton as THE GENERAL) comes to life in colorful Disney film; Parker is famous Union spy who leads a rowdy band in capturing and "kidnapping" a Confederate railroad train during Civil War. Retitled ANDREWS' RAIDERS. CinemaScope. ▼

Great Lover, The (1949) 80m.  D: Alexander Hall. Bob Hope, Rhonda Fleming, Roland Young, Roland Culver, George Reeves, Jim Backus. Vintage Hope; Bob's a boy scout leader on ship filled with his troop, luscious Fleming, and murderer Young. ▼

Great Man, The (1956) 92m. ½ D: Jose Ferrer. Jose Ferrer, Dean Jagger, Keenan Wynn, Julie London, Jim Backus, Ed Wynn. Well-loved TV star dies and Ferrer prepares memorial show, only to discover star was a despicable phony. Hard-bitten look at TV industry; top performances by senior and junior Wynns. Ferrer and Al Morgan adapted Morgan's thinly veiled novel about Arthur Godfrey.

Great Manhunt, The SEE: State Secret

Great Man's Lady, The (1942) 90m. ½ D: William Wellman. Barbara Stanwyck, Joel McCrea, Brian Donlevy, Thurston Hall, K. T. Stevens, Lucien Littlefield. Saga of the West is no great shakes as McCrea dreams of oil wells, Donlevy takes his girl. Stanwyck ages to 100 years to frame story. ▼

Great Man Votes, The (1939) 72m. ½ D: Garson Kanin. John Barrymore, Peter Holden, Virginia Weidler, Donald MacBride, William Demarest. Simple, sincere, delightful film of Barrymore, once a professor, now a sousé, fighting for custody of his children, suddenly elevated to new stature when election time rolls around. MacBride fun as small-time politico, Demarest an energetic campaign promoter. ▼

edy classics, but Donlevy is excellent as bum who is manipulated into governor's chair by crooked political machine—then blows it all when he tries to be honest. Typically sharp dialogue, plus fine work by Sturges' stock company of character actors. Donlevy and Tamiroff reprised their roles as a gag in Sturges' THE MIRACLE OF MORGAN'S CREEK. ▼●●

Great Moment, The (1944) 83m.  D: Preston Sturges. Joel McCrea, Betty Field, Harry Carey, William Demarest, Franklin Pangborn, Grady Sutton, Louis Jean Heydt. Confused biography of anesthesia pioneer wavers from comedy to drama: ineffectual, filled with frustrating flashbacks. Very off-beat for writer-director Sturges, although film was taken out of his hands and reedited. Filmed in 1942. ▼●●

Great Moments in Aviation SEE: Shades of Fear

Great Mouse Detective, The (1986) C-80m.  D: John Musker, Ron Clements, Dave Michener, Burny Mattinson. Voices of Vincent Price, Barrie Ingham, Val Bettin, Susanne Pollatschek, Candy Candido, Eve Brenner, Alan Young, Melissa Manchester. Brisk animated adaptation of Eve Titus' book Basil of Baker Street, about a Sherlockian mouse who matches wits with the nefarious Prof. Ratigan (whose role is performed with gusto by Price). Not much depth to this Disney cartoon feature, but it is a lot of fun. Reissued in 1992 as THE ADVENTURES OF THE GREAT MOUSE DETECTIVE. [G]▼●●

Great New Wonderful, The (2006) C-87m.  D: Danny Leiner. Olympia Dukakis, Jim Gaffigan, Judy Greer, Maggie Gyllenhaal, Tom McCarthy, Sharat Saxena, Naseeruddin Shah, Tony Shalhoub, Stephen Colbert, Dick Latessa, Will Arnett, Anita Gillette, Edie Falco. Striking drama, set one year after 9/11, focuses on an array of New Yorkers who are either struggling to deal with their feelings about that horrific day or going about their lives as if nothing had happened. They include a couple with a dysfunctional son, an elderly woman trapped in an unhappy marriage, a pair of security guards, and an outwardly affable accountant who worked at the World Trade Center and survived 9/11, unlike many of his coworkers. Subtle, incisive study of suppressed rage uses humor and insight to emphasize the importance of living a life that has meaning. [R]●

Great Northfield Minnesota Raid, The (1972) C-91m.  D: Philip Kaufman. Cliff Robertson, Robert Duvall, Luke Askew, R. G. Armstrong, Dana Elcar, Donald Moffat, Elisha Cook, Jr., Royal Dano, Mary-Robin Redd. Revisionist Western depicts the last major raid by the James gang, led by fanatic Jesse (Duvall) and easygoing Cole Younger (Robertson). Fictionalized, but more factual than most movie depictions of the famous raid. Robertson is genial in the leading role, Duvall amusingly intense as the brutal Jesse. Occasional comedic moments don't work terribly well. Written by the director. [PG]▼●

Great O'Malley, The (1937) 71m. *½ D: William Dieterle. Pat O'Brien, Humphrey Bogart, Ann Sheridan, Donald Crisp, Mary Gordon, Frieda Inescort, Sybil Jason. Syrupy film of ruthless cop O'Brien and poor man Bogart who has lame daughter and turns to crime to support her. Pretty sticky.

Great Outdoors, The (1988) C-90m. *½ D: Howard Deutch. Dan Aykroyd, John Candy, Stephanie Faracy, Annette Bening, Chris Young, Ian Giatti, Hilary Gordon, Rebecca Gordon, Robert Prosky. Joyless scattershot comedy about disintegration of Candy clan's summer vacation by the uninvited appearance of boorish in-law Aykroyd and family. Written by John Hughes, apparently with something else on his mind. Bening's first film. [PG]▼●●

Great Profile, The (1940) 82m. ½ D: Walter Lang. John Barrymore, Mary Beth Hughes, Gregory Ratoff, John Payne, Anne Baxter, Lionel Atwill, Edward Brophy. Barrymore on downslope provides some laughs in self-parodying tale of aging, conceited actor.

Great Race, The (1965) C-150m. ½ D: Blake Edwards. Tony Curtis, Natalie Wood, Jack Lemmon, Peter Falk, Keenan Wynn, Larry Storch, Dorothy Provine, Arthur O'Connell, Vivian Vance, Ross Martin, George Macready. Long, sometimes funny, often labored comedy, not the greatest ever made, as advertised. Duel sequence and barroom brawl are highlights, but pie fight falls flat, other gimmicks don't work. Definitely a mixed bag (although Natalie never looked better); one good song, "The Sweetheart Tree." Panavision. ▼●● ways, with impeccable staging of the climactic raid, but not nearly as good as the story it's re-creating. Completed in 2003. Super 35. [R]●

Great Raid, The (2005) C-132m. ½ D: John Dahl. Benjamin Bratt, James Franco, Joseph Fiennes, Connie Nielsen, Marton Csokas, Motoki Kobayashi, Robert Mammone, Natalie Mendoza, Cesar Montano, Mark Consuelos, Dale Dye. Dramatization of a remarkable, little-known episode from WW2: the dramatic rescue of 500 Americans from a Japanese POW camp in the Philippines in 1945, involving an elite corps of freshly trained U.S. Rangers, Filipino guerrilla fighters, and members of the local resistance movement. Admirably old-fashioned in many

Great Rock 'n Roll Swindle, The (1980-British) C-103m.  D: Julien Temple. Malcolm McLaren, Johnny Rotten (John Lydon), Sid Vicious, Steve Jones, Paul Cook, Ronnie Biggs, Liz Fraser. Controversial, outrageously cynical free-form documentary about the infamous, ground-breaking punk-rock band Johnny Rotten and The Sex Pistols. Film also shows how Pistols' manager Malcolm McLaren cleverly marketed the group. One of the many highlights: the late Sid Vicious' version of "My Way."▼●●

Great Santini, The (1979) C-116m. ½ D: Lewis John Carlino. Robert Duvall, Blythe Danner, Michael O'Keefe, Lisa Jane Persky, Stan Shaw, Theresa Merritt, David Keith. Character study of a career Marine who, in 1962, is "a warrior without a war," except for the one he wages with his adolescent son. Compelling performances give film its meat, but dramatic structure and resolutions are not nearly as strong. Adapted by Carlino from Pat Conroy's novel. Aka THE ACE. [PG]▼●●

Great Scout and Cathouse Thursday (1976) C-102m. ½ D: Don Taylor. Lee Marvin, Oliver Reed, Robert Culp, Elizabeth Ashley, Howard Platt, Strother Martin, Sylvia Miles, Kay Lenz. Broad comedy set in Colorado of 1908 involves swindles, defanged snake, kidnapped prostitutes, and robbery of proceeds from big boxing match. Could have been funnier, but Reed is a delight as an Indian(!). [PG]▼

Great Sinner, The (1949) 110m. ½ D: Robert Siodmak. Gregory Peck, Ava Gardner, Melvyn Douglas, Walter Huston, Ethel Barrymore, Frank Morgan, Agnes Moorehead. Lavishly produced but murky, talky costumer of writer Peck falling for beautiful Gardner and becoming obsessed with gambling. Screenplay by Christopher Isherwood.

Great Smokey Roadblock, The (1976) C-84m. ½ D: John Leone. Henry Fonda, Eileen Brennan, John Byner, Dub Taylor, Susan Sarandon, Melanie Mayron, Austin Pendleton. Innocuous story of aging trucker (Fonda) attempting one perfect cross-country run before his truck is repossessed; his haul is a houseful of evicted prostitutes. Some nice vignettes. Originally titled THE LAST OF THE COWBOYS, running 106m. Coproduced by Sarandon. [PG]▼●

Great Spy Mission, The SEE: Operation Crossbow

Great St. Trinian's Train Robbery, The

(1966-British) C-94m.  D: Frank Launder, Sidney Gilliat. Frankie Howerd, Reg Varney, Richard Wattis, Dora Bryan. Overly droll entry in popular series begins with the real Great Train Robbery, then injects political satire with usual hijinks as crooks' hiding place for loot becomes new site for infamous girls' school. Alastair Sim's presence is sorely missed.▼

Great Texas Dynamite Chase, The (1977) C-90m. *½ D: Michael Pressman. Claudia Jennings, Jocelyn Jones, Johnny Crawford, Chris Pennock, Tara Strohmeier. A pair of sexy female bank robbers take to the roads in this all-too-typical low-budget outing. [R]▼●

Great Train Robbery, The (1979-British) C-111m.  D: Michael Crichton. Sean Connery, Donald Sutherland, Lesley-Anne Down, Alan Webb, Malcolm Terris, Wayne Sleep, Robert Lang. Stylish fun as an elegant trio conspire to pull off the greatest heist of all time, in the mid-1800s: stealing shipment of gold from a moving train! Crichton based his script on true incident, filmed it against beautiful Irish countryside. British title: THE FIRST GREAT TRAIN ROBBERY. [PG]▼●●

Great Waldo Pepper, The (1975) C-107m.  D: George Roy Hill. Robert Redford, Bo Svenson, Bo Brundin, Susan Sarandon, Geoffrey Lewis, Edward Herrmann, Margot Kidder, Scott Newman. Box-office disappointment from director of BUTCH CASSIDY and THE STING is a much more personal film, even though brilliantly photographed story of aviation pioneers wavers uncomfortably between slapstick and drama. Worth a look. Todd-AO 35. [PG]▼●●

Great Wall, A (1986) C-100m. ½ D: Peter Wang. Peter Wang, Sharon Iwai, Kelvin Han Yee, Li Qinqin, Hy Xiaoguang. Good-natured story of culture clash that results when Chinese-American family makes its first trip to mainland China. Amiable but hardly inspired. First U.S.-Chinese coproduction is also Wang's first feature as cowriter, director, and star (he played the chef in CHAN IS MISSING by Wayne Wang—no relation). [PG]▼●●

Great Waltz, The (1938) 102m. ½ D: Julien Duvivier. Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet, Miliza Korjus, Hugh Herbert, Lionel Atwill, Curt Bois. Music outdoes drama in this elaborately produced biography of composer Johann Strauss, with plenty of waltzes covering up a standard triangle tale. Joseph Ruttenberg's lovely cinematography earned an Oscar.▼●●

Great Waltz, The (1972) C-135m. BOMB D: Andrew L. Stone. Horst Buchholz, Mary Costa, Rossano Brazzi, Nigel Patrick, Yvonne Mitchell, James Faulkner. Bio of Johann Strauss is unintentionally funny in the way director Stone's SONG OF NORWAY was, but after 135 minutes, even the laughs begin to subside. Filmed on location in Austria. Panavision. [G]

Great White Hope, The (1970) C-101m.

 D: Martin Ritt. James Earl Jones, Jane Alexander, Lou Gilbert, Joel Fluellen, Chester Morris, Robert Webber, R. G. Armstrong, Hal Holbrook, Beah Richards, Moses Gunn. Supercharged adaptation of Broadway success with Jones and Alexander (in her film debut) repeating stage roles as Jack Jefferson, famed heavyweight champion, and white mistress. Not a boxing film or social doctrine, but emotional character study. Holds up until final scene, which doesn't ring true. Howard Sackler adapted his own play. Panavision. [PG]▼

Great White Hype, The (1996) C-90m.

½ D: Reginald Hudlin. Samuel L. Jackson, Jeff Goldblum, Damon Wayans, Peter Berg, Jon Lovitz, Corbin Bernsen, Cheech Marin, Jamie Foxx, Salli Richardson, John Rhys-Davies, Rocky Carroll. Flamboyant boxing promoter Jackson needs a new gimmick: his champ (Wayans) isn't drawing the big money anymore, so he realizes a white contender is required. Berg is amusing as the dumb-but-earnest rival. Occasionally very funny, often snidely cynical, but the satire is not as pointed as intended. Written by Ron Shelton and Tony Hendra. [R]▼

Great World of Sound (2007) C-106m.

 D: Craig Zobel. Pat Healy, Kene Holliday, Robert Longstreet, Rebecca Mader, John Baker, Tricia Paoluccio. Two hucksters travel the country signing "undiscovered" singing talent to a bogus record label. Comedy mixes its fictional scenario with candid-camera-style real-life auditions, earning this clever independent film extra points as it merges originality and smart dialogue with believable situations. Holliday is a standout as a weathered salesman who has seen it all. [R]▼

Great Ziegfeld, The (1936) 176m. ½ D: Robert Z. Leonard. William Powell, Myrna Loy, Luise Rainer, Frank Morgan, Fanny Brice, Virginia Bruce, Reginald Owen, Ray Bolger, Stanley Morner (Dennis Morgan). Spectacular, immensely entertaining biography of flamboyant impresario Florenz Ziegfeld, with Powell quite dashing in the title role. However, Rainer (as Anna Held) is stunning, and won an Academy Award; her telephone scene is a classic. Also won Oscars for Best Picture and Dance Direction (the "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody" number, supervised by Seymour Felix).▼

Greed (1925) 140m. * D: Erich von Stroheim. Gibson Gowland, ZaSu Pitts, Jean Hersholt, Chester Conklin, Dale Fuller. Powerful adaptation of Frank Norris' novel McTeague, about a simple man whose wife's obsession with money eventually drives him to madness. Even though von Stroheim's version was taken from him and severely cut by the studio (it originally ran eight hours), this remains a stunning work, one of the greatest of all silent films. The final sequences in Death Valley are unforgettable. Reconstructed in 1999, using stills to cover long-lost footage; this version runs 242m.▼

Greedy (1994) C-113m.  D: Jonathan Lynn. Michael J. Fox, Kirk Douglas, Nancy Travis, Olivia d'Abo, Phil Hartman, Ed Begley, Jr., Jere Burns, Colleen Camp, Bob Balaban, Joyce Hyser, Mary Ellen Trainor, Siobhan Fallon, Kevin McCarthy, Tom Mason, Austin Pendleton, Kirsten Dunst. Vena family can't wait for a crotchety uncle to die, so they can get their hands on his money, but when he threatens to give it all to a sexy young companion, they dig up long-estranged nephew Fox. Naming the family McTeague (after von Stroheim's GREED) is the cleverest thing in Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandel's wearisome script—which isn't helped by Lynn's slack-paced direction. (The director also appears as Kirk's put-upon butler.) Based, believe it or not, on Charles Dickens' Martin Chuzzlewit. [PG-13]▼

Greek Tycoon, The (1978) C-106m. *½ D: J. Lee Thompson. Anthony Quinn,

Jacqueline Bisset, Raf Vallone, Edward Albert, Charles Durning, Camilla Sparv, James Franciscus, Luciana Paluzzi, Kathryn Leigh Scott, Roland Culver, Linda Thorson, Lucy Gutteridge, Henderson Forsythe. Pointless fabrication about romance and marriage of Aristotle Onassis and a certain president's widow. Beautiful settings add only luster to tepid script that doesn't even rate as good trash. Alternate version runs 112m. Technovision. [R]▼

Green Berets, The (1968) C-141m. BOMB

D: John Wayne, Ray Kellogg. John Wayne, David Janssen, Jim Hutton, Aldo Ray, Raymond St. Jacques, Bruce Cabot, George Takei, Jack Soo, Patrick Wayne, Mike Henry. Politics aside, this overlong, incredibly clichéd salute to the Special Forces has enough absurd situations and unfunny comedy relief to offend anyone; don't miss now-famous final scene, where the sun sets in the East. Panavision. [G]▼

Green Card (1990-Australian-French)

C-108m. ½ D: Peter Weir. Gérard Depardieu, Andie MacDowell, Bebe Neuwirth, Gregg Edelman, Robert Prosky, Jessie Keosian, Ann Wedgeworth, Ethan Phillips, Mary Louise Wilson, Lois Smith, Simon Jones. Young woman agrees to marry Frenchman—in name only—so he may legally remain in this country... but when Immigration authorities begin to investigate, she's forced to spend time with the man. Thin, scarcely credible romantic comedy, written by the director; worth watching for Depardieu, who's charming in English-language debut. [PG-13]▼

Greendale (2004) C-87m.  D: Bernard Shakey (Neil Young). Sarah White, Eric Johnson, Ben Keith, Erik Markegard, Elizabeth Keith, Pegi Young, James Mazzeo.

Provocative, free-flowing music video/rock opera about events that befall the Green family of Greendale, California. The script consists of lyrics from ten songs written and sung by Young, lip-synched by the actors; their content is deeply personal and political, tackling such issues as corporate corruption, ecological abuse, and media overkill. Those who caringly recall 1960s and '70s social activism (and Young's tenure with Buffalo Springfield) will likely find this most appealing. Filmed in Super 8, to look like a poorly shot home movie. Young appears in a cameo, as "Wayne Newton." ▾

Green Dolphin Street (1947) 141m. ½ D: Victor Saville. Lana Turner, Van Heflin, Donna Reed, Richard Hart, Frank Morgan, Edmund Gwenn, Dame May Whitty, Reginald Owen, Gladys Cooper, Moyna MacGill, Linda Christian, Gigi Perreau. If only for its glossy production and Oscar-winning special effects (earthquake and resultant tidal wave), this plodding costumer has merit. Story of two sisters (Turner, Reed) after the same man in 19th-century New Zealand is tedious. ▼●

Greenfingers (2001-British-U.S.) C-91m. ½ D: Joel Hershman. Clive Owen, Helen Mirren, David Kelly, Natasha Little, Warren Clarke, Danny Dyer, Adam Fogerty, Paterson Joseph. Minor but diverting film inspired by the real-life inmates at a progressive British prison who began gardening and wound up competing at England's leading flower show at Hampton Court. Owen plays a loner who's persuaded to try getting back to the soil by his aged, canny cellmate (Kelly). A bit too pat, but pleasant. [R] ▼▾

Green Fire (1954) C-100m. ½ D: Andrew Marton. Grace Kelly, Stewart Granger, Paul Douglas, John Ericson, Murvyn Vye. Hokum about love and conflict between emerald prospector (Granger) and coffee-plantation owner (Kelly), set in Colombia, South America. Attractive stars, hot love scenes, slimy villain (Vye). CinemaScope. ▼

Green for Danger (1946-British) 93m. * D: Sidney Gilliat. Alastair Sim, Sally Gray, Trevor Howard, Rosamund John, Leo Genn, Judy Campbell, Megs Jenkins. Exciting whodunit set in a rural English emergency hospital during WW2. Tension neatly counterbalanced by droll wit of Sim as implacable Scotland Yard inspector; a must-see classic. Written by Gilliat and Claude Guernsey. ▼●●

Greengage Summer, The SEE: Loss of Innocence

Green Grow the Rushes (1951-British) 80m.  D: Derek Twist. Richard Burton, Honor Blackman, Roger Livesey, Geoffrey Keen, Archie Duncan. Talky, fitfully funny comedy of a Kent community involved in brandy smuggling. Of interest solely for the presence of Burton, in his last British film before going Hollywood. ▼

Green Horizon, The SEE: Afrika Monogatari

Green Ice (1981-British) C-115m.  D: Ernest Day. Ryan O'Neal, Anne Archer, Omar Sharif, Domingo Ambriz, John Larroquette. Emerald smuggling, with good guy O'Neal, bad guy Sharif, Archer the woman in between. Painless time-killer. [PG] ▼●

Green Light, The (1937) 85m. ½ D: Frank Borzage. Errol Flynn, Anita Louise, Margaret Lindsay, Cedric Hardwicke, Henry O'Neill, Spring Byington, Erin O'Brien-Moore. Genuinely odd blend of melodrama, religion, purple prose, and medical drama with Flynn as an idealistic doctor who makes a career sacrifice and then tries to understand the larger meaning of his life. Adaptation of a Lloyd C. Douglas novel is entertaining enough but awfully hard to swallow seriously.

Green Man, The (1957-British) 80m.  D: Robert Day. Alastair Sim, George Cole, Terry-Thomas, Jill Adams, Avril Angers, Colin Gordon. Droll comedy of a seemingly timid clockmaker who prefers his part-time job as paid assassin.

Green Mansions (1959) C-104m. ½ D: Mel Ferrer. Audrey Hepburn, Anthony Perkins, Lee J. Cobb, Sessue Hayakawa, Henry Silva, Nehemiah Persoff. W. H. Hudson's romance set in South America suffers from miscast Hepburn as Rima the Bird Girl, whom fate decrees shall not leave her sanctuary. Perkins properly puzzled as male lead. CinemaScope. ▼●

Green Mile, The (1999) C-188m. ½ D: Frank Darabont. Tom Hanks, David Morse, Bonnie Hunt, Michael Clarke Duncan, James Cromwell, Michael Jeter, Graham Greene, Doug Hutchison, Sam Rockwell, Barry Pepper, Jeffrey DeMunn, Patricia Clarkson, Harry Dean Stanton, Dabbs Greer, Eve Brent, Gary Sinise. An elderly man recalls the incident that changed his life, in 1935, when he supervised Death Row at a Louisiana state prison and encountered a gentle black behemoth (movingly played by Duncan) with an unusual gift. Well-made film has powerful moments, but they're needlessly stretched over three hours . . . and the central conceit isn't easy to buy. Repeated scenes of executions are tough to take. Based on Stephen King's best-seller. [R] ▼●●

Green Room, The (1978-French) C-95m.  D: François Truffaut. François Truffaut, Nathalie Baye, Jean Daste, Jean-Paul Moulin, Jeanne Lobre. Truffaut stars as a death-obsessed journalist who converts a rundown chapel into a memorial for his deceased WW1 comrades. Dreary, lifeless, disappointing, with Truffaut's character engulfed in his own rhetoric. Based on writings of Henry James; coscripted by Truffaut and Jean Gruault. [PG] ▼

Green Slime, The (1969-Japanese-U.S.) C-99m. *½ D: Kinji Fukasaku. Robert

Horton, Richard Jaeckel, Luciana Paluzzi, Bud Widom. On space station, title substance—exposed to blood—grows into red-eyed, tentacled monsters that quickly multiply and threaten to spread to Earth. Not as much fun as it sounds. Toeiscope. [G]▼

Green Street Hooligans (2005-U.S.-British) C-106m.  D: Lexi Alexander. Elijah Wood, Charlie Hunnam, Claire Forlani, Marc Warren, Leo Gregory, Henry Goodman, Geoff Bell, Rafe Spall. American boy (Wood) who's unfairly expelled from Harvard flees to England, where his sister is living. He quickly falls in with his brother-in-law's rowdy sibling (Hunnam), the leader of a "firm" that regularly engages in bloody combat with rival gangs who support various football teams. To his surprise, the Yank finds that he likes living on the edge and engaging in mayhem. Intriguing film plays out badly, with story contrivances and changes in tone submerging some of its better qualities. Painfully violent at times. Super 35. [R]■

Greenwich Village (1944) C-82m. ½ D: Walter Lang. Carmen Miranda, Don Ameche, William Bendix, Vivian Blaine, Felix Bressart, Tony and Sally DeMarco, The Four Step Brothers. Silly but amiable musical about a "serious" composer (Ameche) persuaded to adapt his songs for a Broadway revue starring Blaine. When it's supposed to be 1922 N.Y.C. and Carmen Miranda turns up, you know not to expect stark realism. Look fast in both party scenes to spot The Revuers (Betty Comden, Adolph Green, Judy Holliday, Alvin Hammer).■

Green Years, The (1946) 127m. ½ D: Victor Saville. Charles Coburn, Tom Drake, Hume Cronyn, Gladys Cooper, Dean Stockwell, Jessica Tandy, Norman Lloyd, Wallace Ford. Sentimental A. J. Cronin weeper of orphaned Irish lad and his experiences growing up with his mother's family in Scotland. Coburn is wonderful as his great-grandfather, an irascible teller of tall tales. Tandy plays Cronyn's daughter here.

Greetings (1968) C-88m.  D: Brian De Palma. Jonathan Warden, Robert De Niro, Gerrit Graham, Richard Hamilton, Megan McCormick, Allen Garfield. Loose, informal, improvisational satire about the draft, sex, the counterculture. Exudes a late '60s N.Y.C.—Greenwich Village ambience not to be found in any Hollywood feature. Sequel: HI, MOM! [R—edited from original X rating]▼●●

Gregory's Girl (1981-Scottish) C-91m.  D: Bill Forsyth. Gordon John Sinclair, Dee Hepburn, Chic Murray, Jake D'Arcy, Alex Norton, John Bett. Bright, winning comedy of wimpy teenager Sinclair's love for Hepburn, who takes his place on the school soccer team. Enjoyable, if perhaps a bit overrated. Followed in 1999 by GREGORY'S TWO GIRLS. [PG]▼■

Dante. Zach Galligan, Phoebe Cates, Hoyt Axton, Frances Lee McCain, Polly Holliday, Glynn Turman, Dick Miller, Keye Luke, Scott Brady, Judge Reinhold, Jackie Joseph, Harry Carey, Jr., Corey Feldman. A teenager's unusual new pet spawns a legion of vicious, violent monsters who turn picture-postcard town into living hell. Comic nightmare is a cross between Capra's IT'S A WONDERFUL LIFE and THE BLOB; full of film-buff in-jokes but negated by too-vivid violence and mayhem. Cameos range from animator Chuck Jones to Robby the Robot—but you have to look fast for executive producer Steven Spielberg. Howie Mandel is the voice of Gizmo. Followed by a sequel. [PG]▼●●

Gremlins 2 The New Batch (1990) C-106m.  D: Joe Dante. Zach Galligan, Phoebe Cates, John Glover, Robert Prosky, Robert Picardo, Christopher Lee, Haviland Morris, Dick Miller, Jackie Joseph, Gedde Watanabe, Keye Luke, Kathleen Freeman; voice of Tony Randall. Not so much a horror film as a goofy sendup of itself, this sequel turns the slimy creatures loose in N.Y.C. Filled with gags, movie in-jokes, satiric barbs, and gratuitous cameo appearances. Glover is especially funny as a Donald Trump/Ted Turner type, and Lee is a delight as a genetic scientist. Be sure to stay with this through the closing credits. [PG-13]▼●●

Grendel, Grendel, Grendel (1980-Australian) C-90m. ½ D: Alexander Stitt. Voices of Peter Ustinov, Keith Michell, Arthur Dignam, Ed Rosser, Bobby Bright, Ric Stone. Crude but appealing animation highlights this fable about Grendel, a medieval monster only a mother could love, and his observations about the creatures he calls "man"—who murder and pillage. Based on a novel by John Gardner. Score by harmonica great Toots Thielemans.▼

Grey Fox, The (1982-Canadian) C-92m.  D: Phillip Borsos. Richard Farnsworth, Jackie Burroughs, Wayne Robson, Ken Pogue, Timothy Webber. Low-key account of real-life robber Bill Miner, who switched from stagecoaches to trains after spending 33 years in jail. Director Borsos may be just a bit too laid back, but Farnsworth's charming and commanding performance makes up for that. The scene in which he watches THE GREAT TRAIN ROBBERY is a gem. [PG]▼●●

Greyfriars Bobby (1961) C-91m. ½ D: Don Chaffey. Donald Crisp, Laurence Naismith, Alex Mackenzie, Kay Walsh, Duncan Macrae, Gordon Jackson. British Disney film based on true story of a Skye terrier who became "neighborhood pet" in Edinburgh during 19th century through unusual circumstances. Great charm, fine performances offset by slow pacing. A remake of CHALLENGE TO LASSIE, which also features Crisp (who played the dog's master in the earlier film). Remade in England in 2006. ▼

Grey Gardens (1976) C-95m.  D: David and Albert Maysles. Tasteless, suspect, but riveting documentary about Edith Bouvier Beale (79) and daughter Edie (57)—aunt and cousin of Jacqueline Onassis—filmed in their rotting, filthy 28-room mansion in East Hampton, N.Y., which was officially declared a health hazard. Fascinating for voyeurs, but film would have had more depth had we been given a better picture of mother and daughter in their youth. Later transformed into a stage musical and the basis for a 2009 cable TV movie. In 2006, Albert Maysles selected 90m. of outtakes of Edith and Edie to create entire new documentary, THE BEALES OF GREY GARDENS. [PG] ▼

Grey Night SEE: Ghost Brigade

Grey Owl (1999-British-Canadian) C-117m.  D: Richard Attenborough. Pierce Brosnan, Annie Galipeau, Nathaniel Arcand, Vlasta Vrana, David Fox, Charles Powell, Graham Greene. It's difficult to accept Brosnan as the title character, a celebrated North American Indian and conservationist whose true identity is discovered by a reporter in 1936; the rest of the story unfolds in flashback. Sincere but ineffectual telling of this interesting tale went straight to video in the U.S. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Greystoke: The Legend of Tarzan, Lord of the Apes (1984) C-129m.  D: Hugh Hudson. Christopher Lambert, Andie MacDowell, Ian Holm, Ralph Richardson, James Fox, Cheryl Campbell, Ian Charleson, Nigel Davenport. Retelling of Tarzan tale, liberally adapted from Edgar Rice Burroughs' original. Infant son of shipwrecked couple is raised by apes, discovered at manhood by a Belgian explorer, and returned to civilization—and his doting grandfather (Richardson, who's just wonderful in his final film performance). At its best in the jungle, with Rick Baker's incredible makeup effects; more sluggish back in Britain, and hampered by obvious signs of prerelease cutting. Leading lady MacDowell's voice was dubbed by Glenn Close. Alternate version runs 135m. Super Techniscope. [PG] ▼

Grey Zone, The (2002) C-108m.  D: Tim Blake Nelson. David Arquette, Steve Buscemi, Harvey Keitel, Mira Sorvino, Natasha Lyonne, Daniel Benzali, Allan Corduner, David Chandler, Lisa Benavides. Potent drama about day-to-day life at Auschwitz, based on the memoirs of Dr. Miklos Nyiszli, a Jewish doctor who carried out Josef Mengele's experiments in order to preserve his own life and his family's. Aiding him are the Sonderkommandos, Jewish prisoners who extend their lives by leading fellow Jews into the gas chambers. Episodic and stylized but still powerful, as it poses the question of how far someone will go in order to survive. Keitel coexecutive-produced. Adapted by Nelson from his stage play. [R] ▼

Gridiron Gang (2006) C-120m. ½ D: Phil Joanou. Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson, Xzibit, L. Scott Caldwell, Leon Rippey, Kevin Dunn, Jade Yorker, David V. Thomas, Trevor O'Brien, Setu Taase, Mo, Jurnee Smollett. The Rock, emoting more than usual, is a counselor at a detention facility for wayward kids who decides to form a football team. The program is threatened when bad outside influences take hold of some team members. Filled with sports-movie clichés and stereotypical characters, but has extra weight since it's based on a true story. Based on a documentary of the same name. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Gridlock'd (1997) C-91m. ½ D: Vondie Curtis Hall. Tupac Shakur, Tim Roth, Thandie Newton, Charles Fleischer, Howard Hesseman, James Pickens, Jr., John Sayles, Eric Payne, Tom Towles, Vondie Curtis Hall, Kasi Lemmons, Lucy Alexis Liu. Occasionally spunky comedy (a poor cousin to TRAINSPOTTING) about drug-addicted musicians Shakur and Roth, who struggle (mostly against an uncaring bureaucracy) to kick their habits after their singer friend (Newton) overdoses. The two leads offer solid performances. Feature directorial debut for actor Curtis Hall (who also scripted). Elizabeth Peña appears unbilled. [R] ▼

Grippers, The (1990) C-114m.  D: Stephen Frears. Anjelica Huston, John Cusack, Annette Bening, Pat Hingle, Henry Jones, Michael Laskin, Eddie Jones, J.T. Walsh, Charles Napier, Stephen Tobolowsky, Sandy Baron, Gailard Sartain. Icy cold adaptation of Jim Thompson's novel about con artists, with steely "working-woman" Huston coming back into the life of her grown son after many years of estrangement . . . and finding that he's taken up with a woman much like herself. Bleak and fascinating, with three first-rate performances. Screenplay by Donald E. Westlake. Coproduced and narrated by Martin Scorsese. [R] ▼

Grimm Brothers' Snow White, The SEE: Snow White: A Tale of Terror

Grim Prairie Tales (1990) C-94m.  D: Wayne Coe. James Earl Jones, Brad Douir, Will Hare, Marc McClure, Michelle Joyner, William Atherton, Lisa Eichhorn, Wendy Cooke. Lame, low-budget horror/Western anthology framed by Jones and Douir spinning scary tales around a campfire. The four stories vary widely: a cowboy is buried alive by Indians; a traveling man is seduced by a pregnant, supernatural wanderer; a homesteader pursues a nocturnal hobby of lynching black men; and a gunslinger is haunted by one of his victims. [R] ▼

Grim Reaper, The (1981-Italian) C-81m. *½ D: Joe D'Amato. Tisa Farrow, Saverio

Vallone, Vanessa Steiger, George Eastman. Farrow and friends are stalked by killer on a Greek island. Trifling shocker. [R]▼●●

Grind (1997) C-96m. ½ D: Chris Kentis. Billy Crudup, Adrienne Shelly, Paul Schulze, Frank Vincent, Saul Stein, Amanda Peet. Flawed but arresting drama about an ex-con/race car driver wannabe who moves in with his blue-collar brother and sister-in-law and becomes involved in an insurance scam. Predictable, but offers a thoughtful look at working-class lives, dreams and frustrations. Shot in 1994. ▼●

Grind (2003) C-105m. BOMB D: Casey La Scala. Mike Vogel, Vince Vieluf, Adam Brody, Joey Kern, Jennifer Morrison, Randy Quaid, Bam Margera, Summer Altice, Chad Fernandez, Christine Estabrook, Erin Murphy, Jason London, Christopher McDonald, Dave Foley. What should (and could) have been an innocuous teen movie about four skateboarding friends who want to go pro is torpedoed by a weak script that wallows in crass humor and sexism. Cameos by such comic luminaries as Tom Green and Bobcat Goldthwait can't compete with vomit jokes. [PG-13]▼●

Grindhouse (2007) C-192m.  D: Robert Rodriguez, Quentin Tarantino. "Planet Terror": Rose McGowan, Freddy Rodriguez, Josh Brolin, Marley Shelton, Michael Biehn, Jeff Fahey, Michael Parks, Naveen Andrews, Nicky Katt, Stacy Ferguson, Quentin Tarantino. "Death Proof": Kurt Russell, Rosario Dawson, Vanessa Ferlito, Jordan Ladd, Rose McGowan, Sydney Poitier, Tracie Thoms, Mary Elizabeth Winstead, Zoë Bell, Michael Parks, Eli Roth, Quentin Tarantino. Homage to exploitation double features of yore is long but a lot of fun. Rodriguez offers an unabashedly gory mutant-zombie yarn with plenty of action and a memorable prosthetic for victim-turned-heroine McGowan. Tarantino lingers on chick-power chatter before paying it off in his car-chase homage to VANISHING POINT, with real-life stunt woman Bell earning her paycheck. Faux trailers (by Rodriguez, Eli Roth, Rob Zombie, and Edgar Wright) are virtual replicas of '70s sleaze fare—more so than the features themselves. Bruce Willis appears unbilled; other familiar faces are in the trailers. Both features were expanded for separate release. Super 35/HD Widescreen. [R]●

Grisom Gang, The (1971) C-127m.  D: Robert Aldrich. Kim Darby, Scott Wilson, Irene Dailey, Tony Musante, Ralph Waite, Connie Stevens, Robert Lansing, Wesley Addy, Gary Grimes. Outlandish, extremely violent comic-book thriller set in the 1920s. Heiress Darby is kidnapped by family of drooling grotesques, whose leader (Wilson) starts to fall in love with her. Very funny if you appreciate the Aldrich sense of humor; otherwise, solid action fare. Remake of 1948 British film NO ORCHIDS FOR MISS BLANDISH. [R]▼●

Grizzly (1976) C-92m.  D: William Girdler. Christopher George, Andrew Prine, Richard Jaeckel, Joan McCall, Joe Dorsey. OK rip-off of JAWS about an 18-foot, 2000-pound grizzly bear who launches series of attacks on campers in national park. Might be subtitled "Claws." Aka KILLER GRIZZLY. Todd-AO 35. [PG]▼●

Grizzly Man (2005) C-103m. ½ D: Werner Herzog. Amazing documentary about self-styled animal rights activist Timothy Treadwell, who spent thirteen summers filming his own exploits as he communed with bears in Alaska's Katmai National Park and Preserve before getting killed by one of them. Herzog (who also narrates) is the perfect director for this remarkable, empathetic study of obsession, identity, and the relationship between a filmmaker and his subject. Treadwell, whom we see in extensive footage from his own videos, is an amusing, confounding character. Footage of Treadwell on David Letterman's TV show is cut from the DVD. [R]●

Grizzly Mountain (1997) C-96m. *½ D: Jeremy Haft. Dan Haggerty, Dylan Haggerty, Nicole Lund, Kim Morgan Greene, Perry Stephens, Martin Kove, Megan Haggerty. While camping in the Oregon mountains, two city kids go into a cave and are transported back to 1870, where they help a friendly mountain man (guess who) battle greedy developers who want to destroy sacred Indian land. Ultra-innocuous family film, but worthy message is lost amidst amateurish acting, cheesy production values, and lamebrained comedy relief. [G]▼●●

Groomsmen, The (2006) C-98m. ½ D: Edward Burns. Edward Burns, Brittany Murphy, John Leguizamo, Jay Mohr, Matthew Lillard, Donal Logue, Shari Albert, Jessica Capshaw. Five lifelong pals reunite on the eve of Burns' nuptials to Murphy, stirring up a lot of unfinished business and reopening old wounds. The setup couldn't be more transparent, and the characters aren't very deep, but they do ring true for the most part and the cast is first-rate. Written by the director. [R]●

Groove (2000) C-83m.  D: Greg Harrison. Lola Glaudini, Hamish Linklater, Denny Kirkwood, Mackenzie Fergens, Rachel True, Steven Van Wormer, DJ John Digweed. Lively, ingratiating saga of a weekend rave in San Francisco, from start to finish, and the disparate characters whose lives crisscross there. Good spirits and vivid re-creation of the rave scene make up for the simplistic quality of director Harrison's script. [R]▼●

Groove Tube, The (1974) C-75m. ½ D: Ken Shapiro. Ken Shapiro, Lane Sarason, Chevy Chase, Richard Belzer, Mary Mendham, Bill Kemmill. Sometimes funny, sometimes stupid collection of satirical episodes about television. Definitely has its heart in the right place, but a mixed bag. Originally X-rated, later trimmed; Chase's feature debut. [R]▼

Gross Anatomy (1989) C-109m. ½ D: Thom Eberhardt. Matthew Modine, Daphne Zuniga, Christine Lahti, Todd Field, John Scott Clough, Alice Carter, Robert Desiderio, Zakes Mokae. Doctor-in-training Modine doesn't take his studies as seriously as he should. Not bad, but not particularly distinguished; Lahti is wasted as the aspiring doctors' demanding instructor. Viewers who've attended medical school may appreciate this more. [PG-13]▼

Grosse Fatigue (1994-French) C-87m. ½ D: Michel Blanc. Michel Blanc, Carole Bouquet, Philippe Noiret, Josiane Balasko, Christian Clavier, Charlotte Gainsbourg. French variation of STARDUST MEMORIES, with Blanc finding his celebrityhood turning into a bad dream after he is accused of defiling Balasko. Intriguing, self-involved, crammed with guest appearances by familiar faces from French cinema. Blanc, Balasko, and Bouquet all play "themselves." Video title: DEAD TIRED. [R]▼

Grosse Pointe Blank (1997) C-107m. ½ D: George Armitage. John Cusack, Minnie Driver, Alan Arkin, Dan Aykroyd, Joan Cusack, Hank Azaria, K. Todd Freeman, Mitchell Ryan, Jeremy Piven, Barbara Harris, Jenna Elfman. Professional hit man combines business with pleasure when he attends his 10-year high school reunion while on assignment... but the girl he dumped (and all his friends) want to know why and how he disappeared. Cusack cowrote and coproduced this sharp black comedy, brimming with hip dialogue and loaded with attitude. But the climactic violence leaves a bad taste and undermines the comedy. [R]▼

Groundhog Day (1993) C-103m. ½ D: Harold Ramis. Bill Murray, Andie MacDowell, Chris Elliott, Stephen Tobolowsky, Brian Doyle-Murray, Marita Geraghty, Angela Paton, Rick Ducommun, Rick Overton, Robin Duke, Michael Shannon. Smug TV weatherman Murray goes to Punxsutawney, Pa., to cover the Groundhog Day ceremony and finds himself trapped in a daily replay of the same 24 hours. Near classic comedy-fantasy improves on each viewing, with endless twists and turns that are funny, moving, and even profound. Murray, perfectly cast, provides just the right combination of edginess and incipient humanity. Director-cowriter Ramis has a brief scene as a local neurologist. [PG]▼

Groundstar Conspiracy, The (1972-Canadian) C-96m. ½ D: Lamont Johnson. George Peppard, Michael Sarrazin, Christine Belford. When explosion smashes secret space project, espionage work first begins. Tightly made, but poor dialogue. Panavision. [PG]▼

Ground Truth, The (2006) C-77m. ½ D: Patricia Foulkrod. A roster of the maimed, the burned, and the spiritually fried incisively describes life and death in the killing fields of Iraq. American youth, brainwashed by recruiters' lies and brutalized by boot camp sadists, morph into peer-approved mass murderers as they fight a war without armor, intel, or a clue. Using interviews strictly from the GIS' point of view, without input from generals or politicians, this film depicts a place where madness is the norm and the daily grind is worse than any horror movie. No sanctimony here. Unnerving soundtrack has contributions from Mos Def and Tom Waits. [R]▼

Ground Zero (1987-Australian) C-109m.  D: Michael Pattinson, Bruce Myles. Colin Friels, Jack Thompson, Donald Pleasence, Natalie Bate, Simon Chilvers, Neil Fitzpatrick, Bob Maza, Peter Cummins. Cameraman learns that his father may have died because he saw—and photographed—too much during British A-bomb testing in Australia in the 1950s. Exciting political paranoia thriller, though sluggish in spots. Pleasence is excellent in supporting role as hermitlike survivor of those tests. A fictional story based on factual events. Panavision. [PG]▼

Group, The (1966) C-150m.  D: Sidney Lumet. Candice Bergen, Joan Hackett, Elizabeth Hartman, Shirley Knight, Joanna Pettet, Mary-Robin Redd, Jessica Walter, Kathleen Widdoes, James Broderick, Larry Hagman, Richard Mulligan, Hal Holbrook, Carrie Nye, Leora Dana, George Gaynes. Uneven, but generally good adaptation of Mary McCarthy's high-class soap opera about eight graduates of Vassar-type college. Knight and Hackett stand out in excellent cast. Film debuts of Bergen, Hackett, Pettet, Widdoes, and Holbrook.▼

Group Marriage (1972) C-85m. ½ D: Stephanie Rothman. Victoria Vetri, Claudia Jennings, Aimee Eccles, Zack Taylor, Jeff Pomerantz, Jayne Kennedy, Milt Kamen. Engaging drive-in comedy with something to say. Group of young Californians sets up a communal housekeeping situation, gradually adding new members. Needless to say, the neighbors are less than thrilled. Nicely done, attractive cast. [R]▼

Grudge, The (2004-U.S.-Japanese) C-91m. ½ D: Takashi Shimizu. Sarah Michelle Gellar, Jason Behr, William Mapother, Clea DuVall, Grace Zabriske, Bill Pullman, Ted Raimi, Ryo Ishibashi, Yuya Ozeki, Takako Fuji, KaDee Strickland. In Tokyo, a young American woman finds her life (and her friends' as well) in danger from ghosts haunting a modest home where murders took place. Remake of JU-ON: THE GRUDGE (2003) by same director (with some of the same cast) tells a more linear story than the original; it's a shade less effective, but still

imaginative and intelligent. Alternate version runs 98m. Followed by THE GRUDGE 2 and a DVD sequel. [PG-13]

Grudge 2, The (2006) C-102m. *½ D: Takashi Shimizu. Amber Tamblyn, Arielle Kebbel, Jennifer Beals, Edison Chen, Christopher Cousins, Teresa Palmer, Misako Uno, Joanna Cassidy, Sarah Roemer, Matthew Knight, Takako Fuji, Shaun Sipos, Jenna Dewan, Sarah Michelle Gellar. The same creaking ghosts terrorize teenage girls (and others) in Japan and Chicago. Plodding, confusing mess, much inferior to the first, switching clumsily from Japan to the U.S. repeatedly. The two threads are unlinked until the last few minutes—that is, if anyone's still watching. Unrated version runs 108m. Followed by a DVD sequel. [PG-13]

Grumpier Old Men (1995) C-100m. ½ D: Howard Deutch. Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, Ann-Margret, Sophia Loren, Daryl Hannah, Kevin Pollak, Burgess Meredith, Ann Guilbert, Max Wright, James Andelin. Now reconciled, the longtime neighbors/nemeses argue over their offsprings' impending wedding, while a new arrival in town (Loren) turns their bait shop into a restaurant. Agreeable sequel, though it's discouraging to see two great comic actors reduced to getting cheap laughs by spouting epithets at one another. Loren is a breath of fresh air as Matthau's unlikely love interest. Meredith is back in form as Lemmon's horny dad. [PG-13]

Grumpy Old Men (1993) C-104m. ½ D: Donald Petrie. Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, Ann-Margret, Burgess Meredith, Daryl Hannah, Kevin Pollak, Ossie Davis, Buck Henry, Christopher McDonald. Engagingly performed but malnourished comedy about two mateless Minnesota retirees, rabid ice-fishermen, whose lifelong feud escalates when an attractive widow moves in across the street. Walter and Jack are fun as usual, but a few too many plot threads get wrapped up in the final 15 minutes. Compensations are a funny end-credit sequence and the singular chance to hear Meredith (as Lemmon's father) make endless salacious wordplays on the male organ of love. Followed by a sequel. [PG-13]

Guadalcanal Diary (1943) 93m. ½ D: Lewis Seiler. Preston Foster, Lloyd Nolan, William Bendix, Richard Conte, Anthony Quinn, Richard Jaeckel, Lionel Stander. WW2 actioner based on a reporter's best-selling account of the Marines taking a Pacific island stronghold. This hasn't aged especially well, with archetypes instead of characters, from Bendix's Brooklyn cabbie to Jaeckel (in his film debut) as the ultimate mama's boy. Still watchable, but for an overload of racial slurs. ▼

Guardian, The (1990) C-93m.  D: William Friedkin. Jenny Seagrove, Dwier

Brown, Carey Lowell, Brad Hall, Miguel Ferrer, Natalia Nogulich. Yuppie couple hires a nanny for their newborn child, but we know there's something odd about her: she feeds babies to a tree in a nearby gully. Friedkin's first return to horror after THE EXORCIST has a few good scenes, but a ludicrous story and a humorless approach. Seagrove is very good in an almost unplayable role. Copwritten by the director from novel The Nanny by Dan Greenburg. [R]

Guardian, The (2006) C-139m.  D: Andrew Davis. Kevin Costner, Ashton Kutcher, Melissa Sagemiller, Bonnie Bramlett, Clancy Brown, Sela Ward, Neal McDonough, John Heard, Brian Geraghty, Dulé Hill, Omari Hardwick. After a tragic accident, veteran Coast Guard rescue swimmer Costner is reassigned to teach new recruits—and is especially hard on a young hotshot (Kutcher) with whom he has more in common than either one might suspect. Strictly formulaic military yarn is reminiscent of everything from AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN to G.I. JANE, but goes through its paces with energy and conviction. Rescue scenes at sea are especially exciting. If only it didn't have three endings! [PG-13]

Guarding Tess (1994) C-98m.  D: Hugh Wilson. Shirley MacLaine, Nicolas Cage, Austin Pendleton, Edward Albert, James Rebhorn, Richard Griffiths, John Roselius, David Graf, Dale Dye. Secret Service agent tries to get out of his demanding and frustrating assignment, protecting a former First Lady—but she won't let him go. Extremely satisfying comedy-drama buoyed by two perfect performances, by MacLaine and Cage. Incidentally, that's director/co-writer Wilson as the voice of the President on the phone. [PG-13]

Guardsman, The (1931) 89m.  D: Sidney Franklin. Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne, Roland Young, ZaSu Pitts, Maude Eburne, Herman Bing. The Lunts' only starring film is charming tour de force from Molnar's comedy of jealous husband testing his wife's fidelity. Remade as THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER and LILY IN LOVE. ▼

Guess Who (2005) C-105m. ½ D: Kevin Rodney Sullivan. Bernie Mac, Ashton Kutcher, Zoë Saldana, Judith Scott, Hal Williams, Kellee Stewart, Robert Curtis Brown, RonReaco Lee, Sherri Shepherd, Richard Lawson, Jessica Cauffiel. Modern spin on GUESS WHO'S COMING TO DINNER, with Saldana bringing fiancé Kutcher home to her mom and her demanding, overprotective dad—without telling them that he's white. Comedy quotient is fairly mild but it's all pleasant enough. [PG-13]

Guess Who's Coming to Dinner (1967) C-108m.  D: Stanley Kramer. Spencer Tracy, Katharine Hepburn, Sidney Poitier,

Katharine Houghton, Cecil Kellaway, Beah Richards, Roy E. Glenn, Sr., Virginia Christine, Isabel Sanford. Glossy tale of mixed marriage as Houghton (Hepburn's real-life niece) brings home fiancé Poitier to meet her perplexed parents. Fluff is given strength by Oscar-winning Hepburn and Tracy in his last film appearance. William Rose also took home an Oscar for his story and screenplay. Remade in 2005 as GUESS WHO. ▼●●

Guest, The (1964-British) 105m.  D: Clive Donner. Alan Bates, Donald Pleasence, Robert Shaw. Derelict Pleasence invades the world of mentally ill Shaw and his sadistic brother Bates. Superior cast and superb performances, but claustrophobically directed by Donner. Screenplay by Harold Pinter, based on his play The Caretaker, which was also this film's title in Britain.

Guide to Recognizing Your Saints, A (2006) C-100m. ½ D: Dito Montiel. Robert Downey, Jr., Shia LaBeouf, Chazz Palminteri, Dianne Wiest, Channing Tatum, Melonie Diaz, Martin Compston, Eric Roberts, Rosario Dawson, Adam Scarimbo, Julia Garro, Peter Tambakis, Scott Michael Campbell. Montiel also scripted this autobiographical slice-of-life in which a successful L.A. writer (Downey, Jr.) returns to his Queens, N.Y., home for the first time in many years when he learns his father is seriously ill. Jumps between the present and past, when he's a rough-and-tumble teen who hangs out with his aimless friends and is inspired to escape into a better life. Ambitious film means to be cutting-edge, but often seems awkwardly improvisational and tends to ramble. [R]●

Guilty as Charged (1992) C-95m. ½ D: Sam Irvin. Rod Steiger, Lauren Hutton, Heather Graham, Lyman Ward, Isaac Hayes, Zelda Rubinstein, Irwin Keyes, Michael Beach. Religious zealot turns out to be a self-made executioner who does away with criminals in his own homemade electric chair. Very black comedy seems a likely candidate for a cult following. Steiger's performance calls to mind his work in NO WAY

TO TREAT A LADY; it's also fun to watch Isaac Hayes as one of his henchmen. Stylishly directed by first-timer Irvin. [R]▼●

Guilty as Sin (1993) C-107m.  D: Sidney Lumet. Rebecca De Mornay, Don Johnson, Stephen Lang, Jack Warden, Dana Ivey, Ron White, Norma Dell'Agness, Sean McCann, Luis Guzman, Robert Kennedy. Clever lawyer De Mornay, obsessed with winning (whether or not her clients are guilty), takes the case of sleek womanizer Johnson, who's accused of murdering his wife. Then she learns she may have made a bargain with a killer—who now has designs on her. The idea of intelligent opponents going head to head is intriguing, but Larry Cohen's script is underplotted and ordinary. [R]▼●●

Guilty by Suspicion (1991) C-105m.  D: Irwin Winkler. Robert De Niro, Annette Bening, George Wendt, Patricia Wettig, Sam Wanamaker, Luke Edwards, Chris Cooper, Ben Piazza, Martin Scorsese, Barry Primus, Gailard Sartain, Stuart Margolin, Barry Tubb, Tom Sizemore, Illeana Douglas, Jon Tenney. Hollywood Blacklist drama, set in 1951, is earnest, superficial, and numbingly bland. De Niro is hotshot director who can't comprehend severity of Communist witch hunt; Bening is his sympathetic ex-wife, and Wettig (way over the top), an actress friend. Viewers unfamiliar with this dark chapter of history may find film as fascinating as intended. Wanamaker, who spent this era in exile in England, plays a villainous attorney. Veteran producer Winkler's (mediocre) writing and directing debut. [PG-13]▼●●

Guinevere (1999-Canadian-U.S.) C-104m. ½ D: Audrey Wells. Stephen Rea, Sarah Polley, Jean Smart, Gina Gershon, Paul Dooley, Francis Guinan, Sandra Oh, Jasmine Guy, Gedde Watanabe. Well-played tale of a charming but iconoclastic photographer who acquires younger, female protégées, schooling them in the world of art as well as sex. His latest is a 20-year-old girl whose highly strung family doesn't understand her. Story sags at times, but is buoyed by Rea and Polley's enormously ingratiating performances. Written by the director. [R]▼●

Gulliver's Travels (1939) C-74m. ½ D: Dave Fleischer. Singing voices of Lanny Ross, Jessica Dragonette. Max Fleischer's feature-length cartoon version of Jonathan Swift tale suffers from weak scripting, never getting audience involved in story. Towncrier Gabby is obnoxious, but he's got film's most memorable song, "All's Well." ▼●●

Gulliver's Travels (1977-British-Belgian) C-80m. ½ D: Peter R. Hunt. Richard Harris, Catherine Schell, Norman Shelley, Meredith Edwards; voices of Julian Glover, Murray Melvin, Bessie Love, others. Unimaginative retelling of the Jonathan Swift classic. Part live-action, part animation;

the songs are the most forgettable since the 1973 LOST HORIZON. [G]▼

Gulliver's Travels Beyond the Moon (1966-Japanese) C-78m.  D: Yoshio Kuroda. OK animated feature has Gulliver and companions going into outer space; acceptable kiddie fare.

Gumball Rally, The (1976) C-107m.  D: Chuck Bail. Michael Sarrazin, Tim McIntire, Raul Julia, Normann Burton, Gary Busey, Nicholas Pryor, Susan Flannery, Steven Keats, J. Pat O'Malley, Tricia O'Neil, Med Flory. First of the cross-country road-race comedies is still the only good one, with genuinely funny characters, great cars, and loads of cartoon-like action. Julia steals the film as lecherous Italian who throws out his rear-view mirror because "what's behind me is not important." Definitely superior to CANNONBALL and the later CANNONBALL RUN movies, which were all inspired by the same real-life event. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Gumby the Movie (1995) C-90m.  D: Art Clokey. Voices of Charles Farrington, Art Clokey, Gloria Clokey, Manny LaCaruba. Episodic clay-animated feature starring the popular character is slow going for all but the green guy's biggest fans. Convoluted story concerns Gumby's rock group, the Clayboys, and their benefit concert to help farmers thwarted by the Blockheads. Parodies of STAR WARS, TERMINATOR 2, and various swashbuckling epics do not help. Aka GUMBY 1.▼

Gummo (1997) C-89m. BOMB D: Harmony Korine. Jacob Reynolds, Nick Sutton, Jacob Sewell, Darby Dougherty, Chloë Sevigny, Carisa Bara, Linda Manz, Max Perlich. Plotless, clueless, mind-numbingly awful directorial debut for Korine (the 23-year-old scriptwriter of KIDS) about a circle of pathetic poor white trash in a small Ohio town. Tries to be shocking and outrageous—two of the characters kill cats and sell their corpses to a supermarket—but succeeds only in being trite, with scenes pointlessly dragging on . . . and on. [R]▼●●

Gumshoe (1971-British) C-88m. ½ D: Stephen Frears. Albert Finney, Billie Whitelaw, Frank Finlay, Fulton Mackay, Janice Rule, Carolyn Seymour. Whimsical crime-comedy of small-time British vaudevillian who has seen too many Bogart films and decides to play private eye. Music score by Andrew Lloyd Webber. Finney also produced. [PG]▼

Gun Crazy (1949) 86m. ½ D: Joseph H. Lewis. Peggy Cummins, John Dall, Berry Kroeger, Morris Carnovsky, Anabel Shaw, Harry Lewis, Nedrick Young, Rusty (Russ) Tamblyn. Knockout of a sleeper in the BONNIE AND CLYDE tradition, stylishly (and sometimes startlingly) directed. Cummins is femme fatale who leads gun-crazy Dall into life of crime. Screenplay credited to MacKinlay

Kantor and Millard Kaufman (who was "fronting" for then-blacklisted writer Dalton Trumbo), from Kantor's Saturday Evening Post story. Aka DEADLY IS THE FEMALE. Loosely remade in 1992.▼

Gun Crazy (1969) SEE: Talent for Loving, A

Guncrazy (1992) C-96m.  D: Tamra Davis. Drew Barrymore, James LeGros, Billy Drago, Rodney Harvey, Joe Dalesandro, Michael Ironside, Ione Skye. Noirish tale of an abused teenager from the wrong side of the tracks who falls for a born-again-Christian ex-con trying to go straight, ending up on a crime spree with him. Written by Matthew Bright but bearing a more than slight resemblance to a pair of 1949 favorites, the similarly titled GUN CRAZY and THEY LIVE BY NIGHT. Made for theaters, but debuted on cable. [R]▼●●

Gunfight, A (1971) C-90m. ½ D: Lamont Johnson. Kirk Douglas, Johnny Cash, Jane Alexander, Raf Vallone, Karen Black, Keith Carradine. Off-beat Western about two aging gunfighters who meet and decide to sell tickets for a winner-take-all final shoot-out. Cash is good in his acting debut; also Carradine's first film. [PG]▼

Gunfight at Comanche Creek (1964) C-90m. *½ D: Frank McDonald. Audie Murphy, Colleen Miller, Ben Cooper, DeForest Kelley, Jan Merlin, John Hubbard. Undistinguished Western. Detective Murphy infiltrates gang of outlaws forcing wanted men to participate in robberies, then killing them to collect reward money. Panavision.

Gunfight at the O.K. Corral (1957) C-122m.  D: John Sturges. Burt Lancaster, Kirk Douglas, Rhonda Fleming, Jo Van Fleet, John Ireland, Lee Van Cleef, Frank Faylen, Kenneth Tobey, DeForest Kelley, Earl Holliman, Dennis Hopper, Martin Milner, Olive Carey. Stimulating Western filled with tense action sequences in recreation of Doc Holliday-Wyatt Earp battle in streets of Tombstone with Clanton gang. Written by Leon Uris. Frankie Laine sings title song. VistaVision.▼●●

Gregory Peck, Helen Westcott, Millard Mitchell, Jean Parker, Karl Malden, Skip Homeier, Verna Felton, Ellen Corby, Richard Jaeckel, Alan Hale, Jr. Peck is most impressive as gunslinger trying to overcome his bloody past. Classic psychological Western scripted by William Bowers and William Sellers; story by Bowers and Andre de Toth. Exteriors shot in Lone Pine, California. Catch this one!▼●●

Gunfire (1978) SEE: China 9, Liberty 37

Gun for a Coward (1957) C-73m. ½ D: Abner Biberman. Fred MacMurray, Jeffrey Hunter, Janice Rule, Chill Wills, Dean Stockwell, Josephine Hutchinson. MacMurray is rancher whose two younger brothers have contrasting personalities; predictable results. CinemaScope.

Gunga Din (1939) 117m. * D: George Stevens. Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Joan Fontaine, Sam Jaffe, Eduardo Ciannelli, Montagu Love, Abner Biberman, Robert Coote, Lumsden Hare, Cecil Kellaway. The Hollywood action-adventure yarn, vaguely based on Rudyard Kipling's famous poem, about three soldier-comrades in 19th-century India battling the savage thuggee cult when they aren't busy carousing and getting into trouble. Water boy Jaffe saves the day in rousing climax. Splendid comic adventure whose story is credited to Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur (who based the relationships of the central characters on the same marriage/rivalry device used in The Front Page); scripted by Joel Sayre and Fred Guiol. For years most prints ran 96m., until film was archivally restored. Shot on location in Lone Pine, California. Also shown in computer-colored version. Remade as SERGEANTS THREE. ▼●●

Gung Ho! (1943) 88m. ½ D: Ray Enright. Randolph Scott, Grace McDonald, Alan Curtis, Noah Beery, Jr., J. Carrol Naish, David Bruce, Robert Mitchum, Sam Levene. Typical WW2 action film is marked by outrageous jingoism, celebrating the bloodthirsty misfits of the "gung ho" squadron as great American patriots. A jaw-dropping experience. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●

Gung Ho (1986) C-111m.  D: Ron Howard. Michael Keaton, Gedde Wata-nabe, George Wendt, Mimi Rogers, John Turturro, Soh Yamamura, Sab Shimono, Clint Howard, Michelle Johnson. Cocky Keaton convinces Japanese company to reopen shuttered auto factory in his economically depressed hometown—but doesn't count on culture clash that follows. Extremely light-weight but entertaining comedy. Later a TV series. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Gun Hawk, The (1963) C-92m. ½ D: Edward Ludwig. Rory Calhoun, Rod Cameron, Ruta Lee, John Littel, Rod Lauren, Morgan Woodward, Robert J. Wilke. Outlaw Calhoun attempts to reform Lauren, who's heading for criminal life.

Gun in Betty Lou's Handbag, The (1992) C-89m. *½ D: Allan Moyle. Penelope Ann Miller, Eric Thal, Alfre Woodard,

William Forsythe, Cathy Moriarty, Julianne Moore, Andy Romano, Ray McKinnon, Xander Berkeley, Michael O'Neill, Billie Neal, Gale Mayron, Faye Grant, Marian Seldes, Meat Loaf, Catherine Keener, Cordell Jackson. Now there's a box-office title. Meek mouse Miller stumbles onto the title murder weapon, accidentally fires it in a public restroom, then capitalizes on her newfound attention by falsely confessing to the crime. Miller's considerable charm is tested and found wanting in this blandly trying comedy from Disney. [PG-13] ▼●●

Gunman's Walk (1958) C-97m.  D: Phil Karlson. Van Heflin, Tab Hunter, Kathryn Grant (Crosby), James Darren. Rancher Heflin tries to train sons Hunter and Darren to be respectable citizens, but clashing personalities cause outburst of violence. Tight-knit Western. CinemaScope. ▼

Gunmen (1994) C-90m. *½ D: Deran Sarafian. Christopher Lambert, Mario Van Peebles, Denis Leary, Patrick Stewart, Kadeem Hardison, Sally Kirkland, Richard Sarafian, Robert Harper, Brenda Bakke, Deran Sarafian. U.S. agent Van Peebles and smuggler Lambert set out to recover the loot of drug lord Stewart (who's also responsible for the murder of Van Peebles' father). Strictly by-the-numbers actioner is often pointlessly violent; the in-your-face direction is no help. Real-life rappers (including Big Daddy Kane, Dr. Dre, and Ed Lover) appear as themselves. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Gun Moll SEE: Jigsaw (1949)

Gunn (1967) C-94m. *½ D: Blake Edwards. Craig Stevens, Laura Devon, Edward Asner, Sherry Jackson, Helen Traubel, Albert Paulsen. Unsuccessful attempt to recapture flavor of Peter Gunn TV series; Herschel Bernardi, Lola Albright sorely missed, along with quiet understatement and wit that made it memorable. New story is tasteless, violent whodunit involving curious madam. Screenplay by Edwards and William Peter Blatty. Revived again for TV in 1989 as PETER GUNN.

Gunner Palace (2005-German-U.S.) C-85m. ½ D: Michael Tucker, Petra Epperlein. Terrific documentary offers a firsthand, close-up look at daily life for a squadron of U.S. soldiers who are headquartered at Uday Hussein's former pleasure palace in Baghdad. Blending interviews, fly-on-the-wall footage taken during "routine" patrols and overtly dangerous assignments, and even inspired commentary in rap form, this film allows the soldiers' experiences to speak for themselves. Filmed in late 2003 and early 2004. [PG-13] ●

Gunpoint (1966) C-86m.  D: Earl Bellamy. Audie Murphy, Joan Staley, Warren Stevens, Edgar Buchanan. Murphy as sheriff gathers a posse to catch outlaw gang who have kidnapped saloon girl.

Gun Riders (1970) C-98m. BOMB D: Al

Adamson. Jim Davis, Scott Brady, Robert Dix, John Carradine. Ruthless gunman terrorizes settlers one more time, but his heroic counterpart is there to stop him. Cast is full of Western veterans, but they're not much help. Also known as FIVE BLOODY GRAVES and LONELY MAN. Telescope. [PG—edited from original R rating] ▼

Gun Runner, The (1984-Canadian) C-92m. *½ D: Nardo Castillo. Kevin Costner, Sara Botsford, Paul Soles, Gerard Parkes, Ron Lea, Mitch Martin, Larry Lewis, Aline Van Dine, Ruth Dahan. Murky gangster melodrama about idealistic Costner, seeking guns for Chinese rebellion during the 1920s, returning to native Canada and becoming involved with liquor smugglers. Tedious, to say the least, this film was (understandably) shelved until Costner's stardom prompted a 1989 video release . . . but he isn't very good in this one. [R] ▼

Gun Runners, The (1958) 83m.  D: Don Siegel. Audie Murphy, Eddie Albert, Patricia Owens, Everett Sloane, Jack Elam. Murphy is involved with gun-smuggling to Cuba in this bland remake of TO HAVE AND HAVE NOT.

Guns at Batasi (1964-British) 103m. ½ D: John Guillermin. Richard Attenborough, Jack Hawkins, Mia Farrow, Flora Robson, John Leyton. Acting is all in this intelligent but predictable account of British military life in present-day Africa. CinemaScope. ▼

Guns for San Sebastian (1968) C-111m.  D: Henri Verneuil. Anthony Quinn, Anjanette Comer, Charles Bronson, Sam Jaffe, Silvia Pinal. Quinn plays a popular bandit who helps Mexican village defeat some Yaqui Indians after he is mistaken for a priest, but he can't conquer ridiculous script. Francospe.

Gun Shy (2000) C-102m. ½ D: Eric Blakeney. Liam Neeson, Oliver Platt, Sandra Bullock, Jose Zuniga, Richard Schiff, Andy Lauer, Mitch Pileggi, Paul Ben-Victor, Mary McCormack, Frank Vincent, Taylor Negron. Neeson gives a wonderful comic performance as an undercover DEA agent who's suffering from stress and goes to group therapy while working on a major sting operation. Platt is equally good as a not-too-bright hood, and Bullock (who produced the film) has a relatively minor role as Neeson's open-minded love interest. Plot-heavy but underdeveloped; written by the director. [R] ▼

Gunslinger (1956) C-83m. *½ D: Roger Corman. John Ireland, Beverly Garland, Allison Hayes, Martin Kingsley. Strange little Western of female marshal trying to maintain law and order in outlaw-ridden town. ▼

Gunsmoke (1953) C-79m. ½ D: Nathan Juran. Audie Murphy, Susan Cabot, Paul Kelly, Charles Drake, Jack Kelly.

Compact Western with Murphy reforming to run a ranch and marry his employer's daughter. ▼

Guns of August, The (1964) 99m.  D: Nathan Kroll. Straightforward documentary about World War I spans the period from Edward VII's funeral (1910) through the final Armistice eight years later. Highly competent, if not exceptional, adaptation of Barbara Tuchman's best-seller utilizes lots of rare combat footage from the time. Well worth a look. ▼

Guns of Darkness (1962-British) 95m. ½ D: Anthony Asquith. David Niven, Leslie Caron, David Opatoshu, James Robertson Justice, Eleanor Summerfield, Ian Hunter. Civilized drama of Niven searching for life's meaning, set in South America.

Guns of Fort Petticoat, The (1957) C-82m.  D: George Marshall. Audie Murphy, Kathryn Grant (Crosby), Hope Emerson, Jeff Donnell, Isobel Elsom. Most enjoyable Western, with Army deserter Murphy supervising a group of Texas women in the art of warfare against impending Indian attack.

Guns of Navarone, The (1961) C-157m. ½ D: J. Lee Thompson. Gregory Peck, David Niven, Anthony Quinn, Stanley Baker, Anthony Quayle, James Darren, Irene Papas, Gia Scala, James Robertson Justice, Richard Harris, Albert Lieven, Bryan Forbes, Walter Gotell. Explosive action film about Allied commandos during WW2 plotting to destroy German guns; high-powered adventure throughout this first-rate production, highlighted by Oscar-winning special effects. Script by Carl Foreman from the Alistair MacLean novel. Sequel: FORCE 10 FROM NAVARONE. CinemaScope. ▼

Guns of the Magnificent Seven (1969) C-106m. ½ D: Paul Wendkos. George Kennedy, Monte Markham, James Whitmore, Reni Santoni, Bernie Casey, Joe Don Baker, Scott Thomas, Michael Ansara, Fernando Rey. Third time out, the "Seven" plot to free Mexican revolutionary leader from a well-guarded fortress. Nothing new, but well done, with plenty of action. Panavision. [G] ▼

Guns of the Timberland (1960) C-91m. ½ D: Robert D. Webb. Alan Ladd, Jeanne Crain, Gilbert Roland, Frankie Avalon. Pat telling of loggers vs. townpeople.

Guns, Sin and Bathtub Gin SEE: Lady in Red, The

Gun the Man Down (1956) 78m.  D: Andrew V. McLaglen. James Arness, Angie Dickinson, Robert Wilke, Emile Meyer. Wounded outlaw swears vengeance on cohorts who left him during holdup. Routine. Retitled: ARIZONA MISSION. ▼

Guru, The (1969) C-112m.  D: James Ivory. Michael York, Rita Tushingham, Utpal Dutt, Saeed Jaffrey, Madhur Jaffrey.

Sincere but uninvolved story of rock star York who goes to India to learn sitar, meditation from guru Dutt. Director Ivory dwells on Indian lifestyle, settings; Tushingham provides welcome lighter moments in slow-moving film. [G]

Guru, The (2003-U.S.-British) C-91m. ½ D: Daisy von Scherler Mayer. Heather Graham, Marisa Tomei, Jimi Mistry, Michael McKean, Christine Baranski, Rob Morrow, Emil Marwa, Malachy McCourt, Ajay Naidu, Anita Gillette. Innocuous comedy about an Indian dance teacher (Mistry) who comes to America seeking fame and fortune in the movies; instead, he lands a job in a porno film, is befriended by its beautiful star (who's actually a "good girl" leading a double life), then inadvertently becomes a celebrity as the "guru of sex." Some funny gags, a likable leading man, and good comic performances by Graham and Tomei enhance this uneven feel-good movie. The faux Bollywood number is fun. [R] ▼

Gus (1976) C-96m.  D: Vincent McEveety. Edward Asner, Don Knotts, Gary Grimes, Tim Conway, Liberty Williams, Dick Van Patten, Dick Butkus. Football-kicking mule catapults a last-place team to victory; crooks try to kidnap Gus with usual results (like slapstick chase in a supermarket). Entertaining Disney comedy. [G] ▼

Guyana: Cult of the Damned (1980-Mexican-Spanish-Panamanian) C-90m. *½ D: Rene Cardona, Jr. Stuart Whitman, Gene Barry, John Ireland, Joseph Cotten, Bradford Dillman, Jennifer Ashley, Yvonne De Carlo. Not easy to turn the awesomeness of the Jonestown tragedy—where cult followers committed mass suicide—into lackluster drama, but that's what they've done here. [R]

Guy Named Joe, A (1943) 120m. ½ D: Victor Fleming. Spencer Tracy, Irene Dunne, Van Johnson, Ward Bond, James Gleason, Lionel Barrymore, Barry Nelson, Esther Williams, Don DeFore. Good cast flounders in meandering fantasy about WW2 pilot Tracy coming back to Earth to give young serviceman Johnson a hand in his romance with Tracy's girlfriend Dunne. Remade in 1989 as ALWAYS. ▼

Guys, The (2003) C-88m.  D: Jim Simpson. Sigourney Weaver, Anthony LaPaglia. A N.Y.C. fire department captain who lost eight men in the 9/11 World Trade Center disaster gets help from a professional writer as he prepares to deliver eulogies for the deceased. Based on Anne Nelson's play, this works surprisingly well as a film, thanks to restrained emotions, honest performances by the two stars, and the nobility it finds in the lives of ordinary hardworking people. Director Simpson coscripted with Nelson; Weaver is his wife. [PG] ▼

Guys and Dolls (1955) C-150m.  D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Marlon Brando, Jean Simmons, Frank Sinatra, Vivian

Blaine, Stubby Kaye, B. S. Pully, Veda Ann Borg, Sheldon Leonard, Regis Toomey. Lavish Hollywoodization of classic Broadway musical based on Damon Runyon's colorful characters with Blaine, Kaye, Pully, and Johnny Silver reprising their stage performances and Brando making a not-bad musical debut as gambler Sky Masterson. Tuneless Frank Loesser score includes "Fugue for Tinhorns," "If I Were a Bell," "Luck Be a Lady," Blaine's memorable "Adelaide's Lament," and Stubby's showstopping "Sit Down, You're Rockin' the Boat." CinemaScope. ▼

Guy Thing, A (2003) C-101m. *½ D: Chris Koch. Jason Lee, Julia Stiles, Selma Blair, James Brolin, Shawn Hatosy, Lochlyn Munro, Julie Hagerty, Diana Scarwid, Thomas Lennon, Jackie Burroughs. It took four writers to concoct this tiresome, derivative comedy of embarrassment about a guy who sleeps with a girl after his bachelor party—little dreaming she's his fiancée's cousin. Senseless from start to finish; even the likable leading ladies are wasted. Larry Miller appears unbilled. [PG-13] ▼

Guyver, The (1992-U.S.-Japanese) C-92m. *½ D: Screaming Mad George, Steve Wang, Mark Hamill, Vivian Wu, Jack Armstrong, David Gale, Jimmie Walker, Michael Berryman, Peter Spollos, Spice Williams, Willard Pugh, Jeffrey Combs, David Wells, Linnea Quigley. All-American Armstrong, infected by an alien gadget, becomes an armored superhero; good thing, since almost everyone else in the movie can turn into a nightmarish monster. (CIA agent Hamill turns into a big cockroach.) Clumsy clumps of humor only make the contrived plot seem even more foolish. From a Japanese comic book. Followed by GUYVER: DARK HERO. [PG-13] ▼

Guy Who Came Back, The (1951) 91m.  D: Joseph M. Newman. Paul Douglas, Linda Darnell, Joan Bennett, Don DeFore, Zero Mostel. Cast is above such material but does well by it: ex-football star tries to "find himself."

Guy With a Grin SEE: No Time for Comedy

Gymkata (1985) C-90m. BOMB D: Robert Clouse. Kurt Thomas, Tetchie Agbayani, Richard Norton, Edward Bell. Champion gymnast Thomas stars in this silly martial-arts potboiler, shot in Yugoslavia by the folks who brought you ENTER THE DRAGON. Amateurish stuff, based on Dan Tyler Moore's novel, The Terrible Game. [R] ▼

Gypsy (1962) C-149m.  D: Mervyn LeRoy. Rosalind Russell, Natalie Wood, Karl Malden, Paul Wallace, Betty Bruce, Parley Baer, Harvey Korman. Entertaining screen version of bittersweet Broadway musical about the ultimate stage mother, Mama Rose, and her daughters Baby June (Havoc) and Gypsy Rose Lee. Can't lose with that Stephen Sondheim-Jule Styne score. Suzanne Cupito (Morgan Brittany) and Ann Jilliani (Jillian) both play young June. Remade as a TVM in 1993 with Bette Midler. Technirama. ▼●●

Gypsy Colt (1954) C-72m. ½ D: Andrew Marton. Donna Corcoran, Ward Bond, Frances Dee, Larry Keating. Tender film of faithful horse who returns to mistress after parents sell it to racing stable. Remake of LASSIE COME HOME. ▼

Gypsy Girl (1966-British) C-102m. ½ D: John Mills. Hayley Mills, Ian McShane, Laurence Naismith, Geoffrey Bayldon. Brooding account of backward Hayley Mills finding her first romance with McShane; atmospheric but meandering. Originally titled SKY WEST AND CROOKED.

Gypsy Moths, The (1969) C-110m.  D: John Frankenheimer. Burt Lancaster, Deborah Kerr, Gene Hackman, Scott Wilson, Bonnie Bedelia, William Windom, Sheree North. Story of three skydivers in Kansas captures the Midwest well; Kerr, Wilson, and Bedelia help raise potential soap opera to a higher plane. [R] ▼●

Hackers (1995-U.S.-British) C-105m. ½ D: Iain Softley. Jonny Lee Miller, Angelina Jolie, Fisher Stevens, Matthew Lillard, Laurence Mason, Jesse Bradford, Renoly Santiago, Alberta Watson, Lorraine Bracco, Wendell Pierce, Penn Jillette, Felicity Huffman, Marc Anthony. A group of young computer fanatics is framed for crimes committed by computer whiz and would-be master criminal Stevens, and have to use their own hacking skills to prove themselves innocent. No great shakes, but fast pace and vivid direction make it fun. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Haiku Tunnel (2001) C-90m. ½ D: Jacob Kornbluth, Josh Kornbluth. Josh Kornbluth, Warren Keith, Helen Shumaker, Amy Resnick, Brian Thorstenson, Sarah Overman, Harry Shearer. Small, fitfully amusing film about a temporary office worker and the struggle between "temps" and "perms." Leading actor/director Josh also cowrote the screenplay. [R] ▼●

Hail Caesar (1993) C-97m. BOMB D: Anthony Michael Hall. Anthony Michael Hall, Robert Downey, Jr., Frank Gorshin, Samuel L. Jackson, Judd Nelson, Nicholas Pryor. Repulsive rock-star wannabe (Hall) is in love with an obnoxious debutante, whose father is involved in a plot to sabotage a peace conference. Astonishingly bad movie without a single likeable character; an inauspicious directing debut for Hall. Downey and

Nelson, who get costar billing, have a total of six minutes' screen time. [PG] ▼●

Hail! Hail! Rock 'n' Roll SEE: Chuck Berry Hail! Hail! Rock 'n' Roll

Hail, Hero! (1969) C-97m. *½ D: David Miller. Michael Douglas, Arthur Kennedy, Teresa Wright, John Larch, Louise Latham, Charles Drake, Peter Strauss, Deborah Winters, Virginia Christine, John Qualen, Carmen Zapata. Talky, overblown drama about a well-scrubbed hippie (Douglas) who confronts his family as he sorts out his feelings about Vietnam war. Notable only as screen debuts for Douglas and Strauss, and a rare film contribution by musician Gordon Lightfoot, who composed and sings two songs. Originally 100m. [M/PG] ▼

Hail, Mafia (1965) 89m. ½ D: Raoul Levy. Henry Silva, Jack Klugman, Eddie Constantine, Elsa Martinelli, Micheline Presle. Fairly interesting melodrama about hired killers going after a witness to gangland mayhem; has some good European players and nice photography by Raoul Coutard. ▼

Hail Mary (1985-French-Swiss) C-107m. *½ D: Jean-Luc Godard. Myriem Roussel, Thierry Rode, Philippe Lacoste, Manon Anderson, Juliette Binoche. Boring, overblown updating of the story of Christ's birth, with Mary a student/basketball player/gas station attendant and Joseph her cab-driver boyfriend; although still a virgin, she finds herself pregnant. This film sparked much controversy and was even condemned by the Pope; however, all the fuss was much ado about very little. A variety of running times have been credited to this film, so beware; has been screened with THE BOOK OF MARY, an infinitely superior featurette about a girl and her bickering parents, directed by Godard associate Anne-Marie Miéville. ▼●●

Hail the Conquering Hero (1944) 101m. * D: Preston Sturges. Eddie Bracken, Ella Raines, Raymond Walburn, William Demarest, Bill Edwards, Elizabeth Patterson, Jimmy Conlin, Franklin Pangborn, Jack Norton, Paul Porcasi, Al Bridge, Freddie Steele. Frail Bracken, rejected by Marine Corps, is mistaken for war hero by home town. Satirical Sturges at his best, with Demarest and Pangborn stealing much of the crazed proceedings. ▼●●

Hair (1979) C-121m. ½ D: Milos Forman. John Savage, Treat Williams, Beverly D'Angelo, Annie Golden, Dorsey Wright, Don Dacus, Cheryl Barnes, Nicholas Ray, Charlotte Rae, Miles Chapin, Michael Jeter. James Rado-Gerome Ragni-Galt MacDermot's hit musical play celebrated the '60s as the Age of Aquarius; unfortunately, it's now a period piece and its impact considerably muffled. Story of straitlaced midwesterner who falls in with N.Y. hippies has exciting musical moments, but doesn't hang together. Choreography

by Twyla Tharp. Among the singers: Nell Carter, Melba Moore, Ellen Foley, Ronnie Dyson, Charlene Woodard. [PG]▼●●

Hairdresser's Husband, The (1992-French) C-84m.  D: Patrice Leconte. Jean Rochefort, Anna Galiena, Roland Bertin, Maurice Chevit, Philippe Clevenot. Young boy with a fixation on a bosomy haircutter grows up to marry a woman who's practically a reincarnation of his childhood dream. Skillfully assembled comedy-drama makes great use of Rochefort's basset-hound face; slight but charming. Definite U.S. remake possibilities. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Hair High (2006) C-75m. ½ D: Bill Plympton. Voices of Sarah Silverman, Eric Gilliland, Dermot Mulroney, Beverly D'Angelo, Zak Orth, Keith Carradine, David Carradine, Martha Plimpton, Tom Noonan, Craig Bierko, Ed Begley, Jr., Matt Groening. The rose-colored high school world of GREASE and Happy Days is reimaged by animator Plympton, though his fascination with anatomical grotesquerie doesn't seem an ideal fit for this subject matter. Story tells of mismatched high school classmates Spud, the bumbling new kid in town, and Cherri, the pampered cheerleader, and how they become sweethearts. A virtual one-man production, as usual, for the talented animator-writer-director-producer.

Hair Show (2004) C-105m. BOMB D: Leslie Small. Mo'Nique, Kellita Smith, Gina Torres, David Ramsey, Vivica A. Fox, Tiny Lister, James Avery, John Salley, Roshumba Williams, Taraji P. Henson. Inspired comedy finds loud, overbearing hairstylist (Mo'Nique) running to her sister's L.A. salon to escape the I.R.S. Happy coincidence: there's a hair design contest where the prize money is the exact amount she owes. (Taxes on winnings not included.) Yes, that's tennis star Serena Williams in her film debut. Coexecutive-produced by Earvin "Magic" Johnson. [PG-13]●

Hairspray (1988) C-96m.  D: John Waters. Sonny Bono, Ruth Brown, Divine, Colleen Fitzpatrick, Michael St. Gerard, Debbie Harry, Ricki Lake, Leslie Ann Powers, Jerry Stiller, Shawn Thompson, Pia Zadora, Ric Ocasek, John Waters. Shock/schlock merchant Waters goes PG, with irresistible nostalgia satire about the integration of a TV teen dance program in 1962 Baltimore. "Name" performances include Harry as the shellac-haired mother of a deposed local celebrity, Zadora as a pot-smoking Bohemian, Brown as the owner of an r & b record store, and director Waters as the deranged psychiatrist. Loses steam toward the end, but still fun. Rich soundtrack mixes chestnuts and deservedly unearthed oldies. Later a Broadway musical, which in turn was made into a theatrical film in 2007. [PG]▼●●

Hairspray (2007) C-115m.  D: Adam

Shankman. John Travolta, Michelle Pfeiffer, Nikki Blonsky, Christopher Walken, Queen Latifah, Amanda Bynes, Zac Efron, Elijah Kelley, Brittany Snow, James Marsden, Allison Janney, Paul Dooley, Taylor Parks, Jerry Stiller. Candy-colored musical based on the Broadway adaptation of John Waters' 1988 movie about Tracy Turnblad, a perpetually cheerful teenage girl (newcomer Blonsky) in 1962 Baltimore whose can-do attitude helps bring about change all around her—even on the local teen-dance TV show where whites and blacks appear separately. Taking a cue from the original film and show, Tracy's mother Edna is played by a man in drag (Travolta). Director-choreographer Shankman keeps things moving; Waters and Ricki Lake (who played Tracy in 1988) have cameos. Marc Shaiman and Scott Wittman added new songs to their Broadway score. Super 35. [PG]●

Half A Sixpence (1967) C-148m. ½ D: George Sidney. Tommy Steele, Julia Foster, Penelope Horner, Cyril Ritchard, Grover Dale. Boisterous but cardboard musical based on show adapted from H. G. Wells' Kipps, about draper's assistant who inherits fortune, tries to crash society. Colorfully filmed in England, but totally without charm. Story first filmed in Britain (sans music) as KIPPS in 1941. Panavision.▼●

Half Baked (1998) C-85m. ½ D: Tamra Davis. Dave Chappelle, Jim Breuer, Harland Williams, Guillermo Diaz, Clarence Williams III, Rachel True. Three potheads try to raise money for their buddy's release from jail by selling marijuana, without Chappelle's girlfriend finding out. Some surprisingly clever touches and attempts to moralize against drugs, completely overshadowed by Breuer's irritating character and general plot stupidity. Cameos include Steven Wright, Willie Nelson, Snoop Doggy Dogg, Tommy Chong and Janeane Garofalo. [R]▼●●

Half-Breed, The (1952) C-81m.  D: Stuart Gilmore. Robert Young, Janis Carter, Jack Buetel, Barton MacLane, Reed Hadley, Porter Hall. Unscrupulous profiteer incites Apaches to attack white settlers in this predictable Western.▼

Half Moon Street (1986) C-90m. BOMB D: Bob Swaim. Michael Caine, Sigourney Weaver, Keith Buckley, Patrick Kavanagh, Nadim Sawalha, Angus MacInnes. Intriguing premise has Weaver playing a Ph.D researcher by day and glorified call girl by night, Caine a British diplomat who becomes an extra special client. Sounds as if it can't miss, but is worthless on every level; perennially fresh Weaver gives the first stilted performance of her career. Adapted from Doctor Slaughter, the first half of Paul Theroux's two-part novella Half Moon Street. Look for Janet McTeer as a secretary. [R] ▼●●

Half Nelson (2006) C-106m. ½ D: Ryan Fleck. Ryan Gosling, Shareeka Epps, Anthony Mackie, Deborah Rush, Jay O. Sanders, Tina Holmes, Denis O'Hare, Monique Curmen. Dedicated Brooklyn grade-school teacher tries to make a difference in the lives of his kids, and pays special attention to 13-year-old Drey (Epps), whom he fears is at risk of making the wrong choices. But she knows her teacher's darkest secret: he's a hopeless drug addict. Outstanding performances by Gosling and Epps anchor this riveting, intimate drama. Fleshed out from a short subject by director Fleck and cowriter Anna Boden. [R]▶

Half Past Dead (2002) C-99m. BOMB D: Don Michael Paul. Steven Seagal, Ja Rule, Morris Chestnut, Nia Peeples, Bruce Weitz, Tony Plana, Stephen J. Cannell, Claudia Christian. Seagal is an undercover FBI agent who arrives as an inmate at a prison on the same day a team of crooks—get this—break into the joint, to get a condemned man to tell them where there's a hidden stash of gold bars. To call this bad is an understatement... even by Seagal standards. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [PG-13]▶

Hallelujah (1929) 106m. ½ D: King Vidor. Daniel L. Haynes, Nina Mae McKinney, William Fountaine, Everett McGarity, Victoria Spivey. King Vidor's early talkie triumph, a stylized view of black life focusing on a Southern cotton-picker who becomes a preacher but retains all-too-human weaknesses. Dated in some aspects and unabashedly melodramatic, but still quite moving. Beautifully filmed on location, with outstanding musical sequences. ▼●●

Hallelujah I'm a Bum (1933) 82m. ½ D: Lewis Milestone. Al Jolson, Madge Evans, Frank Morgan, Harry Langdon, Chester Conklin, Tyler Brooke, Edgar Connor. Fascinating Depression curio about a hobo who tries to "reform" for the sake of a beautiful woman. Provocative, politically savvy script by Ben Hecht and S. N. Behrman, rhyming dialogue and lovely songs by Rodgers and Hart (who also make cameo appearances as a photographer and a bank clerk, respectively), and winning performances all around. Beware edited prints (reissue title: THE HEART OF NEW YORK) and the frequently screened British version, cut and redubbed as HALLELUJAH I'M A TRAMP. ▼●●

rambunctious temperance leader out to stop cavalry-guarded shipment of whiskey en route to thirsting Denver miners; amiable but lumbering western satire goes on and on. Ultra Panavision 70. ▼●●

Halloween (1978) C-91m.  D: John Carpenter. Donald Pleasence, Jamie Lee Curtis, Nancy Loomis, P. J. Soles, Charles Cyphers, Kyle Richards. Low-budget chiller about psychotic murderer who struck on Halloween as a child, and threatens to do so again 15 years later. Well made, with lots of scares, plus in-joke references for film buffs. Alternate 104m. version prepared for network TV is available on video. Followed by several sequels and myriad clones. Curtis' feature film debut. Remade in 2007. Panavision. [R]▶

Halloween (2007) C-109m.  D: Rob Zombie. Malcolm McDowell, Brad Dourif, Tyler Mane, Daeg Faerch, Sheri Moon Zombie, William Forsythe, Udo Kier, Richard Lynch, Clint Howard, Danny Trejo, Leslie Easterbrook, Bill Moseley, Sybil Danning, Dee Wallace, Micky Dolenz, Tom Towles, Sid Haig. Umpteenth rehash of the 1978 movie retells the story of Michael Myers, who kills his family and spends 17 years in a mental institution before escaping. As he searches for his younger sister he sets off on a rampage, treating the town of Haddonfield to his latest murderous tricks. Although horror fanatic Zombie remains faithful to the premise (with more backstory on Myers than ever before), it's clearly just an excuse to show off the latest advances in movie gore. Unrated version runs 121m. Super 35. [R]▶

Halloween II (1981) C-92m. *½ D: Rick Rosenthal. Jamie Lee Curtis, Donald Pleasence, Charles Cyphers, Jeffrey Kramer, Lance Guest, Pamela Susan Shoop, Dana Carvey. Explicitly bloody sequel is as bad as any of HALLOWEEN's countless clones, with maniac continuing to stalk Curtis on the same night on which the original ends. Scripted by John Carpenter and Debra Hill. Panavision. [R]▶

Halloween III: Season of the Witch (1983) C-96m. BOMB D: Tommy Lee Wallace. Tom Atkins, Stacey Nelkin, Dan O'Herlihy, Ralph Strait, Michael Currie. Genuinely repellent '80s-style horror film, with gore galore (after a slow start), about a maniacal plot to murder millions of children on Halloween. Nice, huh? No relation to either of the earlier HALLOWEEN films, but owes more than a bit to INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS. Panavision. [R]▶

Halloween 4: The Return of Michael Myers (1988) C-88m.  D: Dwight H. Little. Donald Pleasence, Ellie Cornell, Danielle Harris, George P. Wilbur, Michael Pataki, Beau Starr, Kathleen Kinmont. Unkillable monster is back, this time mindlessly headed for his hometown to murder his niece (young

Harris). Standard horror thriller is technically well made but offers little novelty. [R]▼●●

Halloween 5 (1989) C-96m. *½ D: Dominique Othenin-Girard. Donald Pleasence, Danielle Harris, Donald L. Shanks, Wendy Kaplan, Ellie Cornell, Jeffrey Landman. Slightly more plot than before but still just a sequential slaughter of teenagers as Michael Myers (Shanks) again sets out to kill his young niece (Harris). Routine and plodding, with too many endings and unnecessary setup for sequel. [R]▼●●

Halloween H20: 20 Years Later (1998) C-85m.  D: Steve Miner. Jamie Lee Curtis, Adam Arkin, Josh Hartnett, Michelle Williams, Adam Hann-Byrd, Jodi Lyn O'Keefe, Janet Leigh, LL Cool J, Chris Durand, Joseph Gordon-Levitt. Twenty years after the killings in HALLOWEEN, Laurie Strode (Curtis) has built a new life for herself and her son, but her psychotic brother Michael Myers is after her again with a big sharp knife. Surprisingly good belated sequel is plenty scary, and has a nice sense of humor (note Leigh's car), but the plot could have used more complications. Curtis, who suggested this project, gives a terrific performance. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Halloween: Resurrection (2002) C-89m. *½ D: Rick Rosenthal. Jamie Lee Curtis, Brad Loree, Busta Rhymes, Bianca Kajlich, Sean Patrick Thomas, Daisy McCrackin, Thomas Ian Nicholas, Tyra Banks, Ryan Merriam. Six young people are chosen to spend a night in Michael Myers' childhood home, with Web cams watching their every move. Mayhem ensues. Forget logic, story construction, consistency of characterization—the filmmakers certainly did! This movie franchise shoulda stayed dead. Curtis is only here for her name value; the director appears as a college professor. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Halloween: The Curse of Michael Myers (1995) C-88m. *½ D: Joe Chappelle. Donald Pleasence, Paul Stephen Rudd, Marianne Hagan, Mitchell Ryan, Kim Darby, Bradford English, Keith Bogart, Mariah O'Brien. Pursued by the masked killer, Michael's niece escapes from mysterious catacombs with her newborn baby. Then he starts killing a family which has the misfortune merely to live in his former home. Routine slash-fest, of interest only to the dedicated, even though this time it links Michael to the Druids! [R]▼●●

Halloween Party SEE: Night of the Demons

Halls of Anger (1970) C-96m. ½ D: Paul Bogart. Calvin Lockhart, Janet MacLachlan, James A. Watson, Jr., Rob Reiner, Jeff Bridges, Edward Asner. Standard violence-in-school story, but with a racial angle. No better or worse than a dozen other similar films. [M/PG]

Halls of Montezuma (1951) C-113m. ***

D: Lewis Milestone. Richard Widmark, Karl Malden, Walter (Jack) Palance, Reginald Gardiner, Robert Wagner, Richard Hylton, Richard Boone, Skip Homeier, Jack Webb, Bert Freed, Neville Brand, Martin Milner, Philip Ahn. Gung-ho salute to the U.S. Marines as a squadron embarks on a typically rugged WW2 Pacific island invasion, with flashbacks to various men's civilian lives. Especially notable for a cast filled with future stars . . . including real-life ex-Marine Brand.▼●●

Hambone and Hillie (1984) C-89m. ½ D: Roy Watts. Lillian Gish, Timothy Bottoms, Candy Clark, O. J. Simpson, Robert Walker, Jack Carter, Alan Hale, Anne Lockhart. Elderly Gish loses her devoted mutt at an airport and he races cross-country to find her. Sugar-coated soapier is no dog, but is also no BENJI. [PG]▼

Hamburger Hill (1987) C-110m.  D: John Irvin. Anthony Barrile, Michael Patrick Boatman, Don Cheadle, Michael Dolan, Don James, Dylan McDermott, M. A. Nickles, Tim Quill, Courtney B. Vance, Steven Weber. Cold, clinical, yet occasionally preachy recreation of some true-life 1969 Vietnam carnage, with troops of the 101st Airborne Division encountering the enemy in mutual slaughter for the title reward. Authentic, with expertly staged battle scenes—but limited in its emotional power. Scripted by Jim Carabatsos. [R]▼●●

Hamlet (1948-British) 153m. * D: Laurence Olivier. Laurence Olivier, Eileen Herlie, Basil Sydney, Felix Aylmer, Jean Simmons, Stanley Holloway, Peter Cushing. Brilliant adaptation of Shakespeare's play about Danish prince "who just couldn't make up his mind." Won Oscars for Best Picture, Best Actor (Olivier), Art Direction-Set Decoration, and Costumes.▼●●

Hamlet (1969-British) C-114m. ½ D: Tony Richardson. Nicol Williamson, Gordon Jackson, Anthony Hopkins, Judy Parfitt, Mark Dignam, Marianne Faithfull. Richardson and Williamson moved their boisterous interpretation of the Shakespeare play from stage to screen with only fair results; perhaps the irritating overuse of close-ups will play better on TV. Interesting casting of Faithfull as Ophelia. [G]▼

Hamlet (1990) C-135m.  D: Franco Zeffirelli. Mel Gibson, Glenn Close, Alan Bates, Paul Scofield, Ian Holm, Helena Bonham Carter, Stephen Dillane, Nathaniel Parker, John McEnery. Agreeable re-do of the Shakespeare staple with Gibson giving an energetic interpretation of the Melancholy Dane. In fact, Mel comes off better than costar Close (Gertrude); Bates, as Claudius, is the standout in the stellar cast. Never as enthralling or perceptive as Kenneth Branagh's HENRY V, but still worthwhile. [PG]▼●●

Hamlet (1996-U.S.-British) C-242m. ***

D: Kenneth Branagh. Kenneth Branagh, Julie Christie, Derek Jacobi, Kate Winslet, Rufus Sewell, Richard Briers, Brian Blessed, Gérard Depardieu, Charlton Heston, Rosemary Harris, Jack Lemmon, Billy Crystal, Robin Williams, Richard Attenborough, Nicholas Farrell, John Gielgud, John Mills, Rowena King. Branagh's unexpurgated Bard workout is a movie of moments and mixed blessings, with the story's updating—to the second half of the 19th century—doing a lot to defuse any criticism of its stunt casting. Jacobi (Claudius), Christie (Gertrude), and Winslet (Ophelia) come off extremely well, though Branagh essentially gives a stage performance that's nearly as cinematically over the top as some of his directorial touches. Guest star turns are extremely variable. Gorgeously shot in 70mm by Alex Thomson. Panavision Super 70. [PG-13] ▼●●

Hamlet (2000) C-112m.  D: Michael Almereyda. Ethan Hawke, Kyle MacLachlan, Sam Shepard, Diane Venora, Bill Murray, Liev Schreiber, Julia Stiles, Karl Geary, Steve Zahn, Dechen Thurman, Jeffrey Wright, Paul Bartel, Casey Affleck. Transplant of Shakespeare's timeless play to modern-day N.Y.C., where the head of the Denmark Corporation has died, adds nothing to our understanding or appreciation of the story. Some clever gags and stunt casting score occasional points. Hawke, sporting a ski cap through much of the action, is easily outshone by Schreiber (as Laertes), MacLachlan (as Claudius), and Stiles (an impressive Ophelia). [R] ▼●

Hamlet 2 (2008) C-94m. ½ D: Andrew Fleming. Steve Coogan, Catherine Keener, David Arquette, Amy Poehler, Melonie Diaz, Joseph Julian Soria, Skylar Astin, Phoebe Strole, Elisabeth Shue, Marshall Bell; narrated (uncredited) by Jeremy Irons. Twisted comedy about an overly earnest—but spectacularly untalented—high school drama teacher. When he's given notice, he decides to go out with a bang, and stirs up his unmotivated students to join him in a painfully autobiographical, and plainly blasphemous, concoction called Hamlet 2. Wildly inconsistent, this does have some very funny moments, with Coogan perfectly cast as the clueless hero. The film also offers a neat showcase for Shue, playing "herself." [R] ●

Hammer (1972) C-92m. *½ D: Bruce Clark. Fred Williamson, Bernie Hamilton, Vonetta McGee, William Smith, Charles Lampkin. Black boxer takes on the syndicate in fast, but mindless melodrama. Some violence may be cut. [R] ●

Hammer, The (2008) C-90m. ½ D: Charles Herman-Wurmfeld. Adam Carolla, Oswaldo Castillo, Heather Juergensen, Harold "House" Moore, Tom Quinn, Jonathan Hernandez. A once promising fighter, now 40 and aimlessly working at construction jobs, gets A Second Chance with a shot at making the Olympic boxing team. Modest, likable sports comedy trots out every cinematic underdog cliché, but comedian-radio host Carolla (who wrote the story and is a former Golden Gloves fighter) keeps things percolating with his sardonic working-class persona and scores some genuine laughs. [R] ●

Hammersmith Is Out (1972) C-108m.

 D: Peter Ustinov. Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton, Peter Ustinov, Beau Bridges, Leon Askin, Leon Ames, John Schuck, George Raft. Grotesque comedy about mental patient, his male nurse, and a hash slinger proves once again that Liz and Dick would do anything for money; cast has more fun than viewers in this variation on the Faust legend. [R] ▼

Hammers Over the Anvil (1994-Australian) C-97m. ½ D: Ann Turner. Charlotte Rampling, Russell Crowe, Alexander Outhred, Frankie J. Holden, Frank Gallacher. Too much narration hampers this heartfelt tale of a crippled boy coming of age in early-20th-century rural Australia. Crowe exudes charisma as a free-spirited but emotionally vulnerable horse breaker. Watch this and you'll see why he became an international star. ▼●

Hammett (1983) C-97m.  D: Wim Wenders. Frederic Forrest, Peter Boyle, Marilu Henner, Elisha Cook, R. G. Armstrong, Richard Bradford, Roy Kinnear, Lydia Lei, Sylvia Sidney, Samuel Fuller, Royal Dano. Wenders' first American film is a real treat for detective buffs: an adaptation of Joe Gores' fiction about famed author Dashiell Hammett's involvement in a real-life mystery (elements of which would find their way into his later stories). You couldn't ask for a more faithful re-creation of 1930s studio look; a magnificent-looking (and sounding) film. [PG] ▼●

Hamster of Happiness, The SEE: Second-Hand Hearts

Hamsun (1996-Norwegian-Swedish-German) C-152m. ½ D: Jan Troell. Max von Sydow, Ghita Nørby, Anette Hoff, Asa Soderling, Gard B. Eidsvold, Eindride Eidsvold. Famed Norwegian author Knut Hamsun (von Sydow), winner of the 1920 Nobel Prize, supported the Nazi takeover of his own country. This thoughtful film illuminates the combination of naïveté, arrogance and nationalism that led to his sorry choice. Entire cast is excellent, but von Sydow and Nørby (as his ego-starved wife) are brilliant, and the movie deserves to be better known. Based on a book by Thorkild Hansen. ▼●

Hana-Bi SEE: Fireworks

Hancock (2008) C-92m. *½ D: Peter Berg. Will Smith, Charlize Theron, Jason Bateman, Eddie Marsan, Johnny Galecki, Thomas Lennon, Jae Head. Foul, wrong-headed "comedy" about a drunken, antisocial

cial superhero and a struggling p.r. man (Bateman) who tries to rehabilitate him. It's bad enough that the material stinks, but director Berg shoots it in nausea-inducing handheld style, with pointless macro-close-ups of the actors. Woe to parents who share this with their kids in the misguided belief that it's going to be fun. Film's coproducers Michael Mann and Akiva Goldsman appear briefly. HD Widescreen. [PG-13]●

Hand, The (1981) C-104m. *½ D: Oliver Stone. Michael Caine, Andrea Marcovicci, Annie McEnroe, Bruce McGill, Viveca Lindfors, Rosemary Murphy, Mara Hobel, Pat Corley, Charles Fleischer. Cartoonist Caine's drawing hand is severed in auto accident, which destroys his career and places additional strain on his shaky marriage. Life becomes even more nightmarish when the hand returns on a murderous spree; unfortunately it didn't get Caine or writer-director Stone. Stone plays a bum who gets killed. [R] ▼●●

Handful of Dust, A (1988-British) C-118m. ½ D: Charles Sturridge. James Wilby, Kristin Scott Thomas, Rupert Graves, Judi Dench, Anjelica Huston, Alec Guinness, Pip Torrens, Cathryn Harrison. Rich adaptation of Evelyn Waugh's ironic story about a doomed marriage among England's smart set in the early 1930s, and the unexpected results for both the stifflingly tradition-bound husband (brilliantly and movingly played by Wilby) and the nonchalantly selfish wife (perfectly essayed by Thomas). Superior script by Tim Sullivan, Derek Granger, and Sturridge is matched by an unerring eye for period detail. [PG]▼●

Handle With Care (1977) C-98m.  D: Jonathan Demme. Paul LeMat, Candy Clark, Ann Wedgeworth, Marcia Rodd, Charles Napier, Alix Elias, Roberts Blossom, Ed Begley, Jr. Fine character studies and vignettes make up for shortcomings in bright, original film. Loosely revolves around LeMat and his obsession with C.B. radio; subplot with bigamist truckdriver is hilarious. Written by Paul Brickman. Originally released as CITIZENS BAND. [PG]▼

Handmaid's Tale, The (1990) C-109m. ½ D: Volker Schlöndorff. Natasha Richardson, Robert Duvall, Faye Dunaway, Aidan Quinn, Elizabeth McGovern, Victoria Tennant, Blanche Baker, Traci Lind. Intriguing story set in a near-future world in which young, healthy white women are brainwashed to become bearers of babies for a new, "pure" generation. Richardson must overcome the jealousy of an infertile wife (Dunaway) while fending off the advances of her high-powered husband (Duvall). Interesting but best described as sterile. Scripted by Harold Pinter from the novel by Margaret Atwood. David Dukes appears unbilled as a doctor. [R]▼●●

Hands Across the Table (1935) 80m. ***

D: Mitchell Leisen. Carole Lombard, Fred MacMurray, Ralph Bellamy, Astrid Allwyn, Marie Prevost. Lombard sparkles as fortune-hunting manicurist who has to choose between MacMurray and Bellamy. ▼●

Hands of a Stranger (1962) 86m. ½ D: Newton Arnold. Paul Lukather, Joan Harvey, James Stapleton, Irish McCalla, Barry Gordon, Sally Kellerman. Entertaining and well-directed little chiller is an unacknowledged fourth version of THE HANDS OF ORLAC. Brilliant young pianist's hands are injured in a car accident; idealistic surgeon replaces them with those of a just-deceased criminal. ▼●

Hands of Death SEE: Beyond the Living
Hands of Orlac, The (1925-German) 81m.  D: Robert Wiene. Conrad Veidt, Fritz Kortner, Carmen Cartellieri, Alexandra Sorina, Fritz Strassny. Veidt is an eerie presence as Paul Orloc, a celebrated pianist whose hands are crushed in a train wreck; a strange doctor replaces them with those of an executed killer. Genuinely spooky chiller, adapted from Maurice Renard story and made by the director of THE CABINET OF DR. CALIGARI. Remade in 1935 (as MAD LOVE) and 1961. ▼●

Hands of Orlac, The (1961-British-French) 95m.  D: Edmond T. Greville. Mel Ferrer, Lucile Saint-Simon, Christopher Lee, Dany Carrel, Felix Aylmer, Basil Sydney, Donald Wolfitt, Donald Pleasence. Pianist gets hand transplant from a strange doctor—and finds he has the impulse to kill. Flat remake of Maurice Renard's famous story, filmed before in 1925 and (as MAD LOVE) in 1935. French-language version runs 105m. Also known as HANDS OF THE STRANGLER. ▼●

Hands of the Ripper (1971-British) C-85m. ½ D: Peter Sady. Eric Porter, Angharad Rees, Jane Merrow, Keith Bell, Derek Godfrey. Early believer in Freud tries to help young daughter of Jack the Ripper. Great atmosphere, solid performances, but after good start, dissolves into series of bloody murders. [R]▼

Hands of the Strangler SEE: Hands of Orlac, The Hands over the City (1963-Italian) 101m.  D: Francesco Rosi. Rod Steiger, Salvo Randone, Guido Alberti, Marcello Cannavale, Dante Di Pinto, Alberto Conocchia, Carlo Fermariello, Terenzio Cordova. The collapse of a building in a Naples slum triggers a series of shady political schemes and backroom deals, as a ruthless land developer (Steiger) uses his position as a city councilman to manipulate the investigation to his advantage. Fiery critique of civic corruption and capitalist greed in the name of "progress" is vividly filmed on location, using many real-life Neapolitan politicians in the cast. ●

Hand That Rocks the Cradle, The (1992)

C-110m.  D: Curtis Hanson. Annabella Sciorra, Rebecca De Mornay, Matt McCoy, Ernie Hudson, Julianne Moore, Madeline Zima, John de Lancie, Mitchell Laurance. Demented, revenge-seeking nanny De Mornay takes a job with unsuspecting married couple Sciorra and McCoy—guess what happens next. Some good performances (especially by De Mornay) boost this otherwise derivative shocker. Tension builds, but gruesome finale is fairly predictable. McCoy may be the most sensitive screen husband of the early '90s. [R]▼●●

Handyman, The (1980-Canadian) C-99m. ½ D: Micheline Lanctot. Jocelyn Berube, Andree Pelletier, Jannette Bertrand, Paul Dion, Marcel Sabourin. Shy, boyish, romantic Berube—he's not exactly short, but other men seem to tower over him—has a love affair with a married woman. A sad, beautifully made little film about people who can never get what they want because they are unable to take stands.

Hangar 18 (1980) C-93m. *½ D: James L. Conway. Darren McGavin, Robert Vaughn, Gary Collins, James Hampton, Philip Abbott, Joseph Campanella, Pamela Bellwood, Steven Keats, Tom Hallick, William Schallert. This Sunn Classic Picture alleges that the U.S. government is concealing a captured UFO. Slickly made, but about as credible as THE THREE STOOGES IN ORBIT; shown on TV as INVASION FORCE with new ending that undermines entire film! [PG]▼●●

Hang 'em High (1968) C-114m. ½ D: Ted Post. Clint Eastwood, Inger Stevens, Ed Begley, Pat Hingle, Arlene Golonka, James MacArthur, Ruth White, Ben Johnson, Charles McGraw, Bruce Dern, Alan Hale Jr., Dennis Hopper, Bob Steele. Slick American attempt at spaghetti Western comes off fairly well. Eastwood survives his own hanging, swears vengeance on nine men who lynched him. Fine supporting cast; nice cameo by James Westerfield as a fellow dungeon prisoner. [M]▼●●

Hanging Garden, The (1997-Canadian) C-91m.  D: Thom Fitzgerald. Chris Leavins, Kerry Fox, Seana McKenna, Peter McNeill, Christine Dunsworth, Troy Veinotte, Sarah Polley, Joel S. Keller, Joan Orenstein. Strikingly original, multi-layered psychological drama about Sweet William, the product of a dysfunctional family, who returns home after a ten-year absence to attend his sister's wedding. The film moves in and out of reality, and between present and past; a telling exploration of the complexities and emotional truths of family relationships. [R]▼●

Hanging Tree, The (1959) C-106m.  D: Delmer Daves. Gary Cooper, Maria Schell, Karl Malden, George C. Scott, Karl

Swenson, Ben Piazza, Virginia Gregg. Literate, low-key Western with outstanding performance by Schell as a blind girl nursed by Cooper, a frontier doctor with a past. Not for all tastes. Scott's first film.▼

Hanging Up (2000) C-94m. BOMB D: Diane Keaton. Meg Ryan, Diane Keaton, Lisa Kudrow, Walter Matthau, Adam Arkin, Duke Moosekian, Ann Bortolotti, Cloris Leachman. Three sisters live most of their lives via cell phone, but Ryan finds herself the only one willing to bear responsibility for their father, who's hospitalized and senile. It's hard to think of a movie with more strident, obnoxious characters, or a script that makes so little sense from scene to scene. Three appealing stars are hung out to dry in this seriocomedy, written by Nora and Delia Ephron, from Delia's book. Matthau's final film. [PG-13]▼●

Hangin' With the Homeboys (1991) C-88m.  D: Joseph P. Vasquez. Doug E. Doug, Mario Joyner, John Leguizamo, Nestor Serrano, Kimberly Russell, Mary B. Ward. Jarringly honest, energetically directed and acted account of a day in the lives of several young African-Americans and Puerto Ricans who've grown up on the mean streets of the South Bronx. Each is different, but all are linked in that they're traveling down a road to nowhere. [R]▼●●

Hangman, The (1959) 86m.  D: Michael Curtiz. Robert Taylor, Tina Louise, Fess Parker, Jack Lord, Mickey Shaughnessy, Shirley Harmer. Rugged Taylor is the lawman who must buck the entire Western town defending a man wanted for murder.

Hangman's House (1928) 72m.  D: John Ford. June Collyer, Larry Kent, Earle Foxe, Victor McLaglen, Hobart Bosworth. Florid melodrama of frustrated romance and family honor, with Collyer acceding to her father's wishes and marrying blackguard Foxe despite her love for Kent. Elevated by sumptuous production and Ford's sure direction, with McLaglen playing a character who is the polar opposite of his role in THE INFORMER. Steeplechase scene predates the one in THE QUIET MAN and you can spot young John Wayne as one of the animated spectators along the racetrack railing!▼●

Hangman's Knot (1952) C-81m. ½ D: Roy Huggins. Randolph Scott, Donna Reed, Claude Jarman, Jr., Richard Denning, Lee Marvin. Above-par Scott Western involving Rebs robbing gold shipment and officer Scott deciding they should return it.▼●

Hangmen Also Die! (1943) 131m. ½ D: Fritz Lang. Brian Donlevy, Walter Brennan, Anna Lee, Gene Lockhart, Dennis O'Keefe, Lionel Stander. OK WW2 drama, loosely based on fact and spotlighting the resistance by Czech citizens against their Nazi occupiers and the plight of Donlevy after he assassinates Reinhard Heydrich,

Nazi governor of Prague. Based on a story by Lang and Bertolt Brecht, which is also told in HITLER'S MADMAN. ▼

Hangover Square (1945) 77m.  D: John Brahm. Laird Cregar, Linda Darnell, George Sanders, Glenn Langan, Faye Marlowe, Alan Napier, Frederic Worlock. Cregar (in his final film) is delicious as unhinged composer who goes off his top and kills women whenever he hears loud, discordant noises. Barre Lyndon's script bears little relation to the Patrick Hamilton novel, but result is still entertaining, with superb Victorian London sets and evocative Bernard Herrmann score. ●

Hangup (1974) C-94m.  D: Henry Hathaway. William Elliott, Marki Bey, Cliff Potts, Michael Lerner, Timothy Blake. Disappointing black-oriented actioner about a drug racket; Hathaway has done many fine films, but this, his last, isn't one. Bey is good as a doomed prostitute. Aka SUPER DUDE. [R]

Hanky Panky (1982) C-110m. *½ D: Sidney Poitier. Gene Wilder, Gilda Radner, Kathleen Quinlan, Richard Widmark, Robert Prosky, Josef Sommer, Johnny Sekka. Innocent architect Wilder is chased by spies, cops, etc. Predictable, barely funny comedy-thriller, with Radner miscast as the love interest. (The film was intended to be a follow-up to STIR CRAZY, but Richard Pryor's part was rewritten for Gilda.) You've seen it all before, and better. [PG] ▼ ● ●

Hannah and Her Sisters (1986) C-106m. ½ D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, Michael Caine, Mia Farrow, Carrie Fisher, Barbara Hershey, Lloyd Nolan, Maureen O'Sullivan, Daniel Stern, Max von Sydow, Dianne Wiest, J.T. Walsh, Richard Jenkins, Julie Kavner, Julia Louis-Dreyfus, John Turturro, Joanna Gleason, Bobby Short. Allen strikes gold as he examines some typically interesting and neurotic New Yorkers whose lives intertwine. Superbly cast with Woody in peak form as Farrow's hypochondriac ex-husband; Wiest in a powerhouse performance as Mia's self-consuming, self-destructive sister. There's also an atypical Allen touch of warmth, even sentiment, as frosting on the cake—all of it set to some wonderful old songs. Academy Award winner for Best Supporting Actor (Caine), Best Supporting Actress (Wiest), and Woody's Original Screenplay. Tony Roberts and Sam Waterston appear unbilled. One of the children at the Thanksgiving celebrations is Soon-Yi Previn. [PG-13] ▼ ● ●

ture version of popular Disney Channel TV series about a girl named Miley who leads a double life, as an average teen and (with blond wig) as pop star Hannah Montana. But when her dad (played by real-life dad Cyrus) takes her home to her grandmother's farm in Tennessee she finds it difficult to shed her alter ego and the trappings that go with it. Innocuous song-filled fare should please the show's young fans—but it's too bad the slapstick gags are staged so poorly. [G]

Hannah Takes the Stairs (2007) C-83m. BOMB D: Joe Swanberg. Greta Gerwig, Kent Osborne, Andrew Bujalski, Ry Russo-Young, Mark Duplass. Patience-testing time-waster is every bit as unfocused and self-indulgent as its eponymous heroine, a Chicago production company employee (gratingly played by Gerwig) who wanders through a series of short-lived relationships that aren't romances so much as crushes with benefits. If you're curious about the so-called Mumblecore genre of improvised indie films about aimless 20-somethings you're better off checking out Bujalski's MUTUAL APPRECIATION. ●

Hanna K. (1983-French) C-108m.  D: Constantine Costa-Gavras. Jill Clayburgh, Jean Yanne, Gabriel Byrne, Mohammed Bakri, David Clennon. Intriguing but unsatisfying melodrama about flaky lawyer Clayburgh and her conflicting relationships with ex-husband Yanne, Israeli district attorney Byrne and Palestinian Bakri, who's attempting to reclaim his ancestral home. Controversial because of its pro-Palestinian stand, but on artistic terms a major disappointment from Costa-Gavras. [R] ▼

Hanna's War (1988) C-148m. *½ D: Menahem Golan. Ellen Burstyn, Maruschka Detmers, Anthony Andrews, Donald Pleasence, David Warner, Denholm Elliott, Vincenzo Ricotta, Ingrid Pitt. The true story of Hungarian freedom fighter Hanna Senesh (Detmers), based in part on her diaries, is a misguided mess. The young, Jewish WW2 martyr deserved a far better production than this overlong, uninspiring melodrama. Hanna's prison-issue designer blouses don't help matters. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼ ● ●

Hannibal (1960-U.S.-Italian) C-103m.  D: Edgar G. Ulmer. Victor Mature, Rita Gam, Gabriele Ferzetti, Milly Vitale. Cardboard costume saga follows Hannibal and his elephants across the Alps and into Rome . . . but you may not last that long. SuperCinescope. ●

Hannibal (2001) C-132m.  D: Ridley Scott. Anthony Hopkins, Julianne Moore, Ray Liotta, Giancarlo Giannini, Gary Oldman, Frankie R. Faison, Francesca Neri, Željko Ivanek, Hazelle Goodman. A big, long tease of a movie, quite unlike its predecessor, SILENCE OF THE LAMBS, though mostly faithful to Thomas Harris' novel. Hannibal Lecter, now at large in Florence, Italy, reenters the life of FBI agent Clarice

Starling (Moore, taking over for Jodie Foster) at a troubled time in her career. A twisted, unfocused black comedy, stylish but slowly paced, with several key gross-out moments. Scripted by David Mamet and Steven Zaillian. Followed by a prequel: RED DRAGON. [R]▼

Hannibal Brooks (1969-British) C-101m. ½ D: Michael Winner. Oliver Reed, Michael J. Pollard, Wolfgang Preiss, Helmut Lohner, Karin Baal, Peter Karsten. Pleasant, forgettable film of British P.O.W. Reed assigned to evacuate valuable elephant from Munich zoo during WW2; forced to go on foot, he turns trip into escape plan. Wavers from comedy to melodrama, with Pollard major comic character; good action climax. [M/PG]

Hannibal Rising (2007-Italian-U.S.-French-Czech-Italian) C-121m. *½ D: Peter Webber. Gaspard Ulliel, Rhys Ifans, Gong Li, Helena Lia Tachovska, Dominic West, Aaron Thomas, Kevin McKidd, Richard Brake. The Secret Origin of Hannibal Lecter: as a child at the end of WW2 he had to watch while Nazi collaborators ate his younger sister! As a young adult (Ulliel), inspired by his Japanese aunt, he hunts down the killers and exacts brutal revenge. Handsome but ponderous, dull and self-important, though never as gory as might be expected. Scripted by Thomas Harris from his own novel. Ulliel never recalls Brian Cox, much less Anthony Hopkins. Super 35. [R]▼

Hannie Caulder (1971-British) C-85m. ½ D: Burt Kennedy. Raquel Welch, Robert Culp, Ernest Borgnine, Jack Elam, Strother Martin, Christopher Lee, Diana Dors. Bizarre, mystical Western about raped/widowed/homeless woman who begs bounty hunter Culp to teach her to shoot so she can seek vengeance. Neat idea to have bad guys Borgnine, Elam, and Martin play it a la The Three Stooges, but laughter is vitiated by their gory killings. Nice turn by Lee as sympathetic gunsmith. Panavision. [R]▼

Hanoi Hilton, The (1987) C-130m. *½ D: Lionel Chetwynd. Michael Moriarty, Paul LeMat, Jeffrey Jones, Lawrence Pressman, Stephen Davies, David Soul, Rick Fitts. What may have been a sincere effort to dramatize the plight of American POWs in Vietnam becomes an unbearably dull, impossibly overlong, and embarrassingly clichéd drama, which does a real disservice to its subject . . . and throws in right-wing polemics and potshots at Jane Fonda to boot. [R]▼

Hanover Street (1979) C-109m.  D: Peter Hyams. Harrison Ford, Lesley-Anne Down, Christopher Plummer, Alec McCowen, Richard Masur, Michael Sacks. WW2 romance between married English-woman and American soldier who's sent on daring mission behind enemy lines is slick but contrived and unconvincing. Script by director Hyams. Panavision. [PG]▼

Hans Christian Andersen (1952) C-112m. ½ D: Charles Vidor. Danny Kaye, Farley Granger, Jeanmaire, Roland Petit, John Qualen. Melodic Frank Loesser score ("Inchworm," "Ugly Duckling," "Thumbelina," etc.) can't save musical biography of vagabond tale-teller. Glossy and completely fabricated—has no relation to real Andersen's life story. ▼

Hansel & Gretel (2002) C-88m. BOMB D: Gary J. Tunnicliffe. Jacob Smith, Taylor Momsen, Lynn Redgrave, Howie Mandel, Delta Burke, Gerald McRaney, Dakota Fanning; voices of Sinbad, Tom Arnold, Bobcat Goldthwait. Lame live-action rendition of the classic tale is not particularly faithful to the Brothers Grimm. It's also cheap-looking, low-brow, and jokey. Arriscope. [PG]▼

Hanussen (1988-German-Hungarian) C-115m. ½ D: Istvan Szabo. Klaus Maria Brandauer, Erland Josephson, Ildiko Banskagi, Walter Schmidinger, Karoly Eperjes. Brandauer offers a compelling performance as the title character, a WWI Austrian soldier who is shot in the head—and develops the ability to read minds and foretell the future. An intriguing, insightful, based-on-fact tale; third in a trilogy, following MEPHISTO and COLONEL REDL. [R]▼

Happening, The (1967) 101m.  D: Elliot Silverstein. Anthony Quinn, George Maharis, Michael Parks, Robert Walker, Faye Dunaway, Milton Berle, Oscar Homolka, Jack Kruschen, Clifton James, Eugene Roche. Lighthearted and lightheaded caper story centering around kidnapping of a now respectable former gangster (Quinn). Turns unpleasantly serious towards end. Dunaway's film debut. The title song became a No. 1 hit for The Supremes.

Happening, The (2008) C-89m.  D: M. Night Shyamalan. Mark Wahlberg, Zooey Deschanel, John Leguizamo, Betty Buckley, Frank Collison, Ashlyn Sanchez, Spencer Breslin, Robert Bailey, Jr., Alan Ruck. Philadelphia schoolteacher Wahlberg, his wife, and friends flee after a strange virus overtakes the city . . . but what's causing it and where can they be safe? Tense, even frightening at first, but then spins its wheels with nowhere to go. Shyamalan's signature portentousness is punctuated by moments so absurd they inspire unintended laughter; the director also appears in a small role. [R]▼

Happenstance (2000-French) C-97m.  D: Laurent Firode. Audrey Tautou, Faudel, Eric Savin, Lysiane Meis, Irène Ismaïloff, Eric Feldman. Sweet, thoughtful allegory in which a group of strangers become linked by a series of small, seemingly disconnected encounters, all of which lead to a "chance" meeting between two potential soul mates. This winning exploration of destiny is sparked by a solid ensemble (including Tautou, as a wide-eyed salesgirl). [R]▼

Happiest Days of Your Life, The (1950-

British) 84m.  D: Frank Launder. Alastair Sim, Margaret Rutherford, Guy Middleton, Joyce Grenfell, Edward Rigby, Muriel Aked, John Bentley, Bernadette O'Farrell, Richard Wattis, Pat (Patricia) Owens. Funny comedy involving a boys' school sharing quarters with a displaced girls' academy, with frantic situations resulting. Launder and John Dighton scripted, from the latter's play. ▼

Happiest Millionaire, The (1967) C-118m. ½ D: Norman Tokar. Fred MacMurray, Tommy Steele, Greer Garson, Geraldine Page, Gladys Cooper, Hermione Baddeley, Lesley Ann Warren, John Davidson. Lively but overlong and uninvolved Disney musical (the last film he personally oversaw) about Philadelphia household of eccentric millionaire Anthony J. Drexel Biddle (MacMurray). Lightly entertaining. Originally tradescreened at 164m., then released at 141m.; reissued in 1984 at 159m. ▼

Happily Ever After (1990) C-74m.  D: John Howley. Voices of Irene Cara, Edward Asner, Carol Channing, Dom DeLuise, Phyllis Diller, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Linda Gary, Jonathan Harris, Michael Horton, Sally Kellerman, Malcolm McDowell, Tracey Ullman, Frank Welker. All-star voice cast gives major boost to this otherwise undistinguished sequel to the story of Snow White, who's surrounded here by dwarfelles. (Don't ask.) Produced by Filmmation Studios with noticeably better animation than their Saturday morning product can boast. Aka SNOW WHITE IN THE LAND OF DOOM. [G] ▼

Happily N'Ever After (2006-German-U.S.) C-87m. ½ D: Paul J. Bolger, Yvette Kaplan. Voices of George Carlin, Andy Dick, Sarah Michelle Gellar, Jon Polito, Sigourney Weaver, Rob Paulsen, Freddie Prinze, Jr., Wallace Shawn, Phil Proctor, Patrick Warburton, Laraine Newman, Tom Kenny, Tress MacNeille, Kath Soucie. Not-so-clever storybook takeoff finds evil Frieda (Weaver) plotting to take over Fairy Tale Land, battling against stepdaughter Ella (Gellar), who fears she will be erased forever unless she takes matters into her own hands. Routine animation and a by-the-numbers script torpedo this low-budget 'toon that even kids will see right through. Followed by a DVD sequel. [PG] ▼

Happiness (1965) SEE: Le Bonheur

Happiness (1998) C-140m. ½ D: Todd Solondz. Jane Adams, Jon Lovitz, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Dylan Baker, Lara Flynn Boyle, Cynthia Stevenson, Molly Shannon, Louise Lasser, Ben Gazzara, Camryn Manheim, Jared Harris, Elizabeth Ashley, Marla Maples. Portrait of an unhappy family—three sisters, their mother and father—and others who come into their orbit, each dealing with personal demons. They range from a telephone stalker who can't confront women in person to an eternally hopeful young woman named Joy whose life is a perpetual mess. Any film that tackles such topics as masturbation and pederasts isn't going to appeal to everyone, but writer-director Solondz makes them real people and tempers everything with humor. A truly remarkable film. ▼

Happiness Cage, The (1972) C-94m. ½ D: Bernard Girard. Christopher Walken, Joss Ackland, Ralph Meeker, Ronny Cox, Marco St. John, Tom Aldredge. Uneven but thought-provoking drama about doctor in Germany who utilizes shock treatment on soldiers to stabilize aggressive behavior. Video titles: THE MIND SNATCHERS and THE DEMON WITHIN. [PG] ▼

Happy Accidents (2001) C-110m.  D: Brad Anderson. Marisa Tomei, Vincent D'Onofrio, Nadia Dajani, Holland Taylor, Tovah Feldshuh, Sean Gullette, Anthony Michael Hall. Fantasy-romance about a guy who tells a girl he is a time traveler from the future who fell in love with her old photo and just had to visit her era in order to meet her. Has some amusing moments, but somehow we just can't shake the feeling that we have seen this all before. [R] ▼

Happy Birthday, Gemini (1980) C-107m.  D: Richard Benner. Madeline Kahn, Rita Moreno, Robert Viharo, Alan Rosenberg, Sarah Holcomb, David Marshall Grant, Timothy Jenkins. Disappointing adaptation of Albert Innaurato's long-running Broadway play Gemini, centering on young man's sexual identity crisis. Colorful stage characters are lost on film. [R] ▼

Happy Birthday to Me (1981-Canadian) C-108m. BOMB D: J. Lee Thompson. Melissa Sue Anderson, Glenn Ford, Tracy Bregman, Jack Blum, Matt Craven, Lawrence Dane. Is or is not Anderson killing off her classmates at Crawford Academy because they inadvertently caused her mother's death four years earlier? More killings, more blood, more exploitation; Ford, as Anderson's psychiatrist, hit rock bottom with this appearance. [R] ▼

Happy Birthday, Wanda June (1971) C-105m.  D: Mark Robson. Rod Steiger, Susannah York, George Grizzard, Don Murray, William Hickey, Pamela Ferdin, Steven Paul. Stagy but enjoyable film of Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., play. Male chauvinist explorer, returning home after eight years, finds his wife matured (and engaged), and his values now obsolete. Fine performances of Vonnegut's funny black-humor situations and dialogue; Hickey hilarious as Steiger's Jerry Lewis-esque buddy. [R]

Happy Ending, The (1969) C-112m. ½ D: Richard Brooks. Jean Simmons, John Forsythe, Lloyd Bridges, Shirley Jones, Teresa Wright, Dick Shawn, Nanette Fabray, Robert (Bobby) Darin, Tina Louise. Initially intriguing view of modern marriage drones on interminably, as Simmons walks

out on husband and family trying to find herself. Michel Legrand score highlighted by "What Are You Doing the Rest of Your Life?" Panavision. [MP/G]▼

Happy Endings (2005) C-130m.  D: Don Roos. Lisa Kudrow, Maggie Gyllenhaal, Tom Arnold, Jesse Bradford, Laura Dern, Steve Coogan, Jason Ritter, Bobby Cannavale, Sarah Clarke, David Sutcliffe. Kudrow has been living a lie for years, having given up a son for adoption; now a young would-be filmmaker essentially blackmails her into cooperating on a documentary. But everyone who has even tangential contact with these characters carries secrets around with them as well. Interesting mosaic-style comedy-drama wryly explores the nature (and consequences) of lies, half-truths, and hypocrisy in our contemporary culture. Peter Horton appears unbilled. Written by the director. Super 35. [R]▼

Happy Feet (2006-U.S.-Australian) C-108m. ½ D: George Miller. Voices of Elijah Wood, Robin Williams, Brittany Murphy, Hugh Jackman, Nicole Kidman, Hugo Weaving, Anthony LaPaglia, E. G. Daily, Magda Szubanski, Miriam Margolyes, Steve Irwin, Chrissie Hynde. An Antarctic penguin is ostracized from his tribe because he can't sing a mating call—but he sure can dance! Endearing characters, beautifully animated in a breathtaking landscape, make this an eye-ful, and there's vintage pop music galore on the soundtrack . . . but the story becomes protracted as it tries to drive home an ecological message. Savion Glover's dancing and body language are successfully transposed to Mumble. Williams is very funny as the voice of Ramón. Oscar winner as Best Animated Feature. Digital Widescreen. [PG]▶

Happy Gilmore (1996) C-92m.  D: Dennis Dugan. Adam Sandler, Christopher McDonald, Carl Weathers, Julie Bowen, Alan Covert, Bob Barker, Frances Bay, Joe Flaherty, Kevin Nealon, Richard Kiel, Dennis Dugan. Sporadically funny vehicle for Sandler, as a would-be hockey player whose inability to skate leads him to the pro golf tour, where he turns game on its ear with his sportsmanlike antics. Highpoint: a brawl between Sandler and The Price Is Right's Barker. Sandler cowrote the script. Ben Stiller appears unbilled. [PG-13] ▼●●

Happy-Go-Lucky (2008-British) C-118m.  D: Mike Leigh. Sally Hawkins, Eddie Marsan, Alexis Zegerman, Andrea Riseborough, Sinéad Matthews, Kate O'Flynn, Sarah Niles, Sylvestra Le Touzel, Karina Fernandez. Schoolteacher Poppy (Hawkins) goes through life spreading good cheer—even where it isn't welcome—and refusing to dwell on the negative. Potentially annoying at first, we come to learn that Poppy isn't a fool; she's bright and compassionate and chooses to take an upbeat approach to life . . . unlike, say, her driving instructor (a memorable Marsan), who may explode at any moment. More a character study than a story, the film meanders a bit but Hawkins' genuine performance makes it worthwhile. Super 35. [R]▶

Happy Hooker, The (1975) C-96m.  D: Nicholas Sgarro. Lynn Redgrave, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Lovelady Powell, Nicholas Pryor, Elizabeth Wilson, Tom Poston, Conrad Janis, George Dzundza, Vincent Schiavelli, Mason Adams, Anita Morris. Xaviera Hollander's best-seller about her rise as N.Y.C.'s most prominent madam is so heavily sanctitized that one wonders just what audience scripter William Richert had in mind; moderately amusing, and cast seems to be having a good time. Followed by two fictitious sequels. [R]▼●●

Happy Hooker Goes Hollywood, The (1980) C-85m. *½ D: Alan Roberts. Martine Beswick, Chris Lemmon, Adam West, Phil Silvers, Richard Deacon, Lindsay Bloom, Army Archerd, Edie Adams. Now Xaviera is a brunette; she and her girls rush to the aid of a corruption-riddled movie studio in this limp rehash of SILENT MOVIE. Fine comic cast is wasted, although film buffs might enjoy seeing cult actors Beswick and Dick Miller in bed together. [R]▼●●

Happy Hooker Goes to Washington, The (1977) C-89m. *½ D: William A. Levey. Joey Heatherton, George Hamilton, Ray Walston, Jack Carter, Phil Foster, Billy Barty, David White. Xaviera (a blonde this time) is called before Congress to answer charges that sex is ruining the country and subsequently gets involved in a CIA escapade. A few chuckles here and there, but overall, more silly than sexy; Hamilton and writer Bob Kaufman did considerably better with their next film, LOVE AT FIRST BITE. [R]▼

Happy Hour (2004) C-93m.  D: Mike Bencivenga. Anthony LaPaglia, Eric Stoltz, Caroleen Feeney, Robert Vaughn, Mario Cantone, Malachy McCourt. Uninspired novelist LaPaglia spends his days toiling at an ad agency and his nights in a bar. Then he befriends school teacher Feeney, who also loves to drink, and his life is no longer the same. Good performances save this often slow, dark film about relationships, emotional baggage, and mortality.▶

Happy Mother's Day Love, George (1973) C-90m.  D: Darren McGavin. Patricia Neal, Cloris Leachman, Bobby Darin, Ron Howard, Simon Oakland. Unconvincing horror tale, despite some clever attempts by director McGavin to spice it up. Strange doings in seaside house include two great gory murders, but everything else is weak. Retitled: RUN, STRANGER, RUN. [PG]▼

Happy New Year (1973-French) C-112m.  D: Claude Lelouch. Lino Ventura, Françoise Fabian, Charles Gerard, André Falcon. Two thieves plot a robbery, but one falls hard for the liberated charmer who runs the antique shop next to the target. Bright romantic caper film is easy to take. Remade in Hollywood in 1987. Retitled: THE HAPPY NEW YEAR CAPER. ▼

Happy New Year (1987) C-85m. ½ D: John G. Avildsen. Peter Falk, Wendy Hughes, Charles Durning, Tom Courtenay, Joan Copeland. Falk is a treat to watch in this pleasant Americanization of Claude Lelouch's French comedy caper about a pair of sophisticated crooks and their plans to hit a jewelry store in West Palm Beach, Florida. Hughes is charming in her first American film; Lelouch has a cameo in the opening scene. [PG] ▼

Happy New Year Caper, The SEE: Happy New Year (1973)

Happy Road, The (1957) 100m. ½ D: Gene Kelly. Gene Kelly, Barbara Laage, Michael Redgrave, Bobby Clark, Brigitte Fossey. Two single parents—American Kelly and Frenchwoman Laage—are drawn together when their children run away from school together. Pleasant but minor family fare, enhanced by location filming in French countryside.

Happy, Texas (1999) C-99m.  D: Mark Illsley. Jeremy Northam, Steve Zahn, William H. Macy, Ally Walker, Illeana Douglas, M.C. Gainey, Ron Perlman, Paul Dooley, Mo'Nique. Engaging comedy about two prison escapees who steal a van and assume the identities of its owners, gay partners who stage kiddie talent contests. Holed up in a small Texas town, they're forced to assume those lives while getting more involved with the locals than they ever intended. Shot on a shoestring, but it doesn't show; Zahn is a comic standout in the first-rate cast. [PG-13] ▼

Happy Thieves, The (1962) 88m. ½ D: George Marshall. Rex Harrison, Rita Hayworth, Joseph Wiseman, Gregoire Aslan, Alida Valli. Sad pairing of star duo, out of place in museum theft caper, set in Spain.

Happy Time, The (1952) 94m. ½ D: Richard Fleischer. Charles Boyer, Louis Jourdan, Bobby Driscoll, Marsha Hunt, Kurt Kasznar, Linda Christian, Marcel Dalio, Jeanette Nolan, Richard Erdman. Charming film about a boy's coming of age in 1920s Ottawa, Canada, amidst a colorful and eccentric family. Driscoll is the adolescent who develops a crush on pretty magician's assistant Christian. Boyer is his understanding father, eternally forgiving of his two wayward brothers (Jourdan and Kasznar, recreating his Broadway role). Earl Felton adapted Samuel A. Taylor's play, based in turn on Robert Fontaine's autobiographical stories.

Happy Times (2000-Chinese) C-102m.  D: Zhang Yimou. Zhao Benshan, Dong Jie, Dong Lihua. The director of RAISE THE RED LANTERN and TO LIVE indulges his sense of humor this time out. A 50-ish strikeout with women (Zhao) starts developing feelings for the blind stepdaughter (Dong Jie) of the emotional abuser he's been dating. With his equally ragtag buddies, he acquires an abandoned warehouse, tells the young woman it's part of a hotel he owns and "hires" her with fake paper money to be its masseuse, piping in street sounds through a boom box as she gives chaste, no-nonsense backrubs to cohorts posing as customers. Sentimental, but not overly so, movie holds its emotions in check until the affectingly wistful finale. [PG] ▼

Happy Together (1989) C-102m.  D: Mel Damski. Patrick Dempsey, Helen Slater, Dan Schneider, Marius Weyers, Barbara Babcock, Brad Pitt. Slight, predictable romantic comedy in which college students Dempsey and Slater are accidentally paired as roommates. You can just guess how this one turns out. [PG-13] ▼

Happy Together (1997-Hong Kong) C/B&W-97m. ½ D: Wong Kar-Wai. Leslie Cheung, Tony Leung Chiu-wai, Chang Chen. Polished production overshadows a predictable, paper-thin chronicle of a deeply troubled relationship between a constantly bickering Hong Kong gay couple in Buenos Aires. The filmmaker won a Best Director prize at Cannes for this, but pointedly the script did not. ▼

Happy Years, The (1950) C-110m.  D: William Wellman. Dean Stockwell, Scotty Beckett, Darryl Hickman, Leo G. Carroll, Margalo Gillmore, Leon Ames. High-spirited boy in turn-of-the-century prep school finds he has trouble fitting in. Familiar comedy-drama, adapted from Owen Johnson's Lawrenceville Stories, is hardly typical Wellman fare, but well done. Robert Wagner makes his film debut.

Hardball (2001) C-106m. ½ D: Brian Robbins. Keanu Reeves, Diane Lane, John Hawkes, Bryan Hearne, Julian Griffith, Michael B. Jordan, A. Delon Ellis, Jr., DeWayne Warren, Mike McGlone, D.B. Sweeney, Graham Beckel. Addictive gambler Reeves hits rock bottom and a friend agrees to bail him out if he will coach a kids' baseball team in the Chicago projects. Naturally, he regains his own self-esteem as he steers these emotionally needy kids onto the right path. Call it corny, but it works surprisingly well and emphasizes the fact that one person can make a difference in the world around him. Based on Daniel Coyle's experiences, as related in his book. [PG-13] ▼

Hard-Boiled (1992-Hong Kong) C-126m.  D: John Woo. Chow Yun-Fat, Tony Leung, Teresa Mo, Philip Chan, Anthony Wong, Kwan Hoi-Shan, A-Lung. Stylish, ultra-violent story of police inspector (Yun-Fat) who teams up with a mysterious hit man (Leung) to stop a gang of arms dealers. Standard plot of revenge and male bonding is springboard for unbelievable action sequences that are bloody, comic, and hypno-

tic. Yun-Fat is a perfectly assured hero, and director Woo (who wrote the original story) appears as a bartender. ▼●●

Hard Bounty (1995) C-89m.  D: Jim Wynorski. Matt McCoy, Kelly LeBrock, John Terlesky, Felicity Waterman, Jay Richardson, Ross Hagen, Kimberly Kelley. Languid, corpse-laden Western, in which whore LeBrock and her entourage saddle up and seek revenge after tragedy strikes. McCoy is an Eastwoodesque bounty hunter known as The Holy Ghost. [R] ▼

Hard Candy (2006) C-103m. ½ D: David Slade. Patrick Wilson, Ellen Page, Sandra Oh, Jennifer Holmes. Essentially a two-character drama, supremely intense story has a 14-year-old girl meeting a 32-year-old photographer she has flirted with on the Internet. When they go back to his place, her real purpose is revealed as she traps him in a personal sting operation to extract a major price for what she believes is his criminal past. Watching her turn the tables on this sexual predator gives this tale a certain perverse fascination. While it has echoes of thrillers like FATAL ATTRACTION and MISERY, Page's brutal vengeance seeker makes Kathy Bates' character seem like Pippi Longstocking. Super 35. [R] ●

Hard Contract (1969) C-107m. ½ D: S. Lee Pogostin. James Coburn, Lee Remick, Lilli Palmer, Burgess Meredith, Patrick Magee, Sterling Hayden, Karen Black. Hired killer Coburn starts to have self-doubts when a woman (Remick) humanizes him. Film is too concerned with making an "important statement" to become particularly entertaining or involving. Panavision. [PG]

Hardcore (1979) C-108m. ½ D: Paul Schrader. George C. Scott, Peter Boyle, Season Hubley, Dick Sargent, Leonard Gaines, David Nichols. Calvinistic Midwesterner Scott (in powerful performance) searches for teenage daughter who's inexplicably dropped out. He's heartsick after viewing porno film starring her, and his journey into netherworld of prostitution and porn is at times fascinating, sad, and repellent. Marred by unbelievable conclusion. [R] ▼●●

Hard Country (1981) C-104m. ½ D: David Greene. Jan-Michael Vincent, Kim Basinger, Michael Parks, Gailard Sartain, Tanya Tucker, Ted Neeley, Daryl Hannah, Richard Moll. Good ole boy Vincent works all day, parties all night; his girlfriend (Basinger) wants to marry him, but also wants out of Texas. Overshadowed by URBAN COWBOY, but not bad and done with conviction. Music by Michael Martin Murphey. Film debuts of Basinger and Nashville star Tucker. [PG] ▼●●

idea of a typical day in the group's life. He lets his imagination run wild; result is a visual delight, with many Beatles songs on the soundtrack (including "Can't Buy Me Love," "And I Love Her," "I Should Have Known Better," and the title tune). Original screenplay by Alun Owen. Reissued in 1982 with a short prologue. ▼●●

Hard Driver SEE: Last American Hero, The

Hard Eight (1997) C-101m.  D: Paul Thomas Anderson. Philip Baker Hall, John C. Reilly, Gwyneth Paltrow, Samuel L. Jackson, Phillip Seymour Hoffman. Spare but accomplished Nevada mood piece about a minor gambling pro who, for reasons that remain tantalizingly obscure for three-fourths of the movie's length, elects to tutor a much younger man in eking out a minimal living "working" casinos. Punctuated by sporadic and deftly timed spurts of violence; Paltrow is successfully cast against type as a cocktail waitress and sometime hooker with no brains at her disposal. Aka SYDNEY. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Harder They Come, The (1973-Jamaican) C-103m.  D: Perry Henzell. Jimmy Cliff, Janet Barkley, Carl Bradshaw, Ras Daniel Hartman, Bobby Charlton. Country-boy Cliff comes to Kingston to make it as a singer; ironically, it isn't until he turns to a life of crime that his record starts to climb the charts. Crude but powerful film almost single-handedly launched reggae music's popularity in America; still a major cult favorite. Terrific song score includes "You Can Get It If You Really Want," "Many Rivers to Cross," title tune. [R] ▼●●

Harder They Fall, The (1956) 109m. ½ D: Mark Robson. Humphrey Bogart, Rod Steiger, Jan Sterling, Mike Lane, Max Baer, Edward Andrews. Bogart's last feature casts him as cynical sportswriter-turned-press agent who realizes for the first time how badly prizefighters are manipulated by their unfeeling managers. Powerful drama by Budd Schulberg. ▼

Hard, Fast and Beautiful (1951) 79m.  D: Ida Lupino. Claire Trevor, Sally Forrest, Carleton Young, Robert Clarke, Kenneth Patterson. Domineering mother pushes daughter into world of competitive tennis. Straightforward story, awkwardly filmed (and acted) at times. Director Lupino and Robert Ryan make cameo appearances.

Hard Knocks (1980-Australian) C-85m.  D: Don McLennan. Tracey Mann, John Arnold, Bill Hunter, Max Cullen, Tony Barry. Gritty, powerful drama centering on the efforts of ex-con Mann to straighten out her life, highlighted by a brilliant, multifaceted lead performance. ▼

ry's "comeback" (filmed in Florida in 1979) is typical lamebrain comedy (about an unemployed circus clown who bumbles from one job to another), but an older Jerry wavers between playing the oafish kid of yore and a more "mature" character. Not a very good movie; the opening montage from earlier films is much funnier than anything that follows. Trimmed from European release length. [PG]▼

Hard Promises (1992) C-95m. *½ D: Martin Davidson. Sissy Spacek, William Petersen, Brian Kerwin, Mare Winningham, Jeff Perry, Olivia Burnette, Peter MacNicol, Ann Wedgeworth, Amy Wright, Lois Smith. Petersen gets the invitation to ex-wife Spacek's new marriage one day before the ceremony, and rushes home to small Texas town to disrupt the proceedings. Surprisingly unpleasant comedy, with Petersen's loutish behavior in the establishing scenes mitigating against any potential fun. Rip Torn (Spacek's cousin) appears unbilled. [PG]▼●●

Hard Rain (1998) C-96m. ½ D: Mikael Salomon. Morgan Freeman, Christian Slater, Randy Quaid, Minnie Driver, Ed Asner, Michael Gorrjian, Mark Rolston, Richard Dysart, Betty White. As a small Midwest town disappears under rising flood waters, a criminal gang headed by Freeman tries to catch armored car guard Slater, who's hidden the money they're after. The cast is above average, the effects are impressive, and the setting is unusual, but a routine script barely keeps this afloat. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Hard Ride, The (1971) C-93m. ½ D: Burt Topper. Robert Fuller, Sherry Bain, Tony Russel, Marshall Reed, Biff Elliot, William Bonner. Ex-sergeant Fuller accompanies the body of a black buddy home from Vietnam and tries to persuade the vet's white sweetheart and the Indian leader of his motorcycle gang to attend his funeral. Not just another cycle flick, and not bad. [PG]▼

Hard Target (1993) C-94m. ½ D: John Woo. Jean-Claude Van Damme, Lance Henriksen, Arnold Vosloo, Yancy Butler, Kasi Lemmons, Wilford Brimley, Chuck Pfarrer. Acclaimed action-director Woo's U.S. debut is a disappointing thriller featuring Van Damme as a sailor aiding hard-luck veterans being exploited by sadistic Henriksen (who by now can play this kind of role in his sleep). Not bad of its type, but doesn't match Woo's highly touted Hong Kong-made efforts. [R]▼●●

Hard Ticket to Hawaii (1987) C-96m.  D: Andy Sidaris. Dona Speir, Hope Marie Carlton, Ronn Moss, Harold Diamond, Rodrigo Obregon, Cynthia Brimhill, Patty Duffek, Wolf Larson. Typical Andy Sidaris mix of action, beautiful scenery, and buxom bimbos baring their breasts. The story? Something about female undercover agents running a sting operation that gets them in hot water with drug lords. Does anyone

care about the story? Followed by PI-CASSO TRIGGER. [R]▼●

Hard Times (1975) C-97m.  D: Walter Hill. Charles Bronson, James Coburn, Jill Ireland, Strother Martin, Maggie Blye, Michael McGuire. Bronson is a tight-lipped street-fighter and Coburn is the sharpster who arranges his bare-knuckled bouts in 1930s New Orleans. Colorful (but violent) entertainment. Hill's directorial debut. Panavision. [PG—edited from original R rating]▼●●

Hard to Get (1938) 80m.  D: Ray Enright. Dick Powell, Olivia de Havilland, Charles Winninger, Allen Jenkins, Bonita Granville, Penny Singleton. Good variation on spoiled-rich-girl-meets-poor-but-hardworking-boy idea. Winninger, as Olivia's wealthy father, and Singleton, as their maid, are hilarious. Film is full of great supporting comics (Grady Sutton, Thurston Hall, Arthur Housman, etc.), and includes "You Must Have Been a Beautiful Baby."▼

Hard to Handle (1933) 78m. ½ D: Mervyn LeRoy. James Cagney, Mary Brian, Ruth Donnelly, Allen Jenkins, Emma Dunn, Claire Dodd, Robert McWade. Cagney sparkles in this otherwise so-so Depression-era comedy as a fast-talking promoter/hustler who courts pretty Brian; Donnelly is ace as her mom. The "Grapefruit Acres" and diet schemes are homages of sorts to Cagney's legendary scene with Mae Clarke in THE PUBLIC ENEMY.

Hard to Hold (1984) C-93m. *½ D: Larry Peerce. Rick Springfield, Janet Eilber, Patti Hansen, Albert Salmi, Bill Mumy. Pampered rock star collides (literally) with spirited young woman who doesn't know—or care—who he is . . . so naturally he falls in love with her. Tiresome romance designed as star vehicle for teen idol Springfield, and retitled "Hard to Watch" by some wags. [PG—edited from original R rating]▼●●

Hard to Kill (1990) C-95m.  D: Bruce Malmuth. Steven Seagal, Kelly LeBrock, Bill Sadler, Frederick Coffin, Bonnie Burroughs, Zachary Rosencrantz, Dean Norris. Police detective Seagal uncovers a major political corruption ring and is shot and left for dead; when he awakens from a seven-year coma, he's ripe for revenge. Full of the usual violence and chases for this genre, but Seagal is fun to watch. LeBrock, who nurses him back to health, was then the real-life Mrs. Seagal. [R]▼●●

Hard Traveling (1985) C-107m. ½ D: Dan Bessie. J. E. Freeman, Ellen Geer, Barry Corbin, James Gammon, Jim Haynie. Occasionally touching but ultimately disappointing drama about a gentle, decent, but uneducated and disadvantaged man (Freeman) who finds love and stability with widow Geer, but commits murder when unable to support her. Done in by too many flashbacks. Based on the novel Bread and a Stone by Alvah Bessie, father of the director. [PG]▼

Hardware (1990-British-U.S.) C-92m.  D: Richard Stanley, Dylan McDermott, Stacy Travis, John Lynch, Iggy Pop, William Hootkins, Mark Northover. Somewhere in the post-nuke future, desert scavenger McDermott presents some android remains to Travis; eventually, the stuff rekindles what is apparently its life mission—to destroy all living things (and the Travis pad, besides). Surprisingly well made, but recalls many earlier (and better) films. Heavy violence nearly earned this an X rating, before it was trimmed. [R]▼●

Hard Way, The (1942) 109m.  D: Vincent Sherman. Ida Lupino, Dennis Morgan, Joan Leslie, Jack Carson, Gladys George, Julie Bishop. Intriguing but artificial story of strong-willed Lupino pushing younger sister Leslie into show business career. Holds up until improbable finale, although it seems unlikely that Broadway would cheer Leslie as the greatest discovery of the age. Morgan and Carson (in first of several teamings) match Lupino's fine performance. ▼●

Hard Way, The (1991) C-111m. ½ D: John Badham. Michael J. Fox, James Woods, Stephen Lang, Annabella Sciorra, Penny Marshall, John Capodice, Luis Guzman, LL Cool J, Delroy Lindo, Christina Ricci, Karen Lynn Gorney. Long, loud, loose cannon of a movie about a spoiled-brat Hollywood star who attaches himself to a reckless N.Y.C. street cop to prepare for his next movie role. Some laughs, lots of action, but it all goes out of control. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Hard Word, The (2002-Australian-British) C-103m.  D: Scott Roberts. Guy Pearce, Rachel Griffiths, Robert Taylor, Joel Edgerton, Damien Richardson, Rhonda Findleton, Kate Atkinson, Vince Colosimo. Violent crime caper with a tough attitude, a sly sense of humor, and some neat story twists. Three convicts (led by Pearce, the brains of the outfit) commit a string of robberies with the help of their crooked warden and a slick lawyer—but a series of double-crosses leads to bitterness and a hunger for revenge, even if the score takes time to settle. Written by the director. Super 35. [R]▼●

Harem (1985-French) C-113m. *½ D: Arthur Joffe. Nastassja Kinski, Ben Kingsley, Dennis Goldson, Zohra Segal, Michel Robin, Juliette Simpson. Thin, boring drama about Arab prince Kingsley, who kidnaps Kinski and adds her to his harem. Solid production values can't take the place of a coherent scenario and fully fleshed-out characterizations. Panavision. ▼●

Harlan County, U.S.A. (1977) C-103m. ½ D: Barbara Kopple. Gripping, human documentary (an Academy Award winner) about the strike of Kentucky mine workers against the Eastover Mining Company, a subsidiary of Duke Power. Memorable scene of miner and Brooklyn cop having a "conversation." [PG]▼●

Harlem Nights (1989) C-115m.  D: Eddie Murphy. Eddie Murphy, Richard Pryor, Redd Foxx, Danny Aiello, Michael Lerner, Della Reese, Berlinda Tolbert, Stan Shaw, Jasmine Guy, Lela Rochon, Arsenio Hall, Robin Harris. Proprietor of an after-hours club in 1930s Harlem (Pryor) and his adopted son (Murphy) try standing up to a white mobster determined to cut in on their take or put them out of business. Murphy's debut as writer-director is skimpily scripted and completely devoid of energy. Even Pryor's effortless charisma can't breathe much life into this one. [R]▼●●

Harlequin (1980-Australian) C-96m. ½ D: Simon Wincer. Robert Powell, David Hemmings, Carmen Duncan, Broderick Crawford, Gus Mercurio, Alan Cassell. Faith-healer Powell helps politician Hemmings' son, who has leukemia; however, his wife (Duncan) is also attracted to the healer. Middling drama updating story of Rasputin, Nicholas, and Alexandra. Retitled DARK FORCES. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Harley Davidson & the Marlboro Man (1991) C-99m. *½ D: Simon Wincer. Mickey Rourke, Don Johnson, Chelsea Field, Daniel Baldwin, Giancarlo Esposito, Vanessa Williams, Tom Sizemore. Another title in search of a movie. Drifter Rourke and onetime rodeo cowboy Johnson rob a bank to help their pal, whose Rock 'n' Roll Bar and Grill is about to be closed by strong-armed creditors. Moderately futuristic comic-adventure moves fast enough, but even some unexpectedly silly encounters can't distinguish it. Touted in the studio press material as "the lighter side of Mickey Rourke." [R]▼●●

Harlow (1965) C-125m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. Carroll Baker, Peter Lawford, Red Buttons, Michael Connors, Raf Vallone, Angela Lansbury, Martin Balsam, Leslie Nielsen. Slick, colorful garbage will hold your interest, but doesn't ring true. Baker could never match the real Harlow, but Vallone and Lansbury are good as her stepfather and mother. Rushed through production to compete with the slipshod Carol Lynley version. Panavision. ▼

Harlow (1965) 109m.  D: Alex Segal. Carol Lynley, Efreem Zimbalist, Jr., Barry Sullivan, Hurd Hatfield, Ginger Rogers, Hermione Baddeley, Lloyd Bochner, Audrey Totter, John Williams, Robert Strauss. Amateurish off-the-cuff tedium loosely based on screen star of the 1930s. Rogers as Mama

Harlow is best. This quickie production made news in 1965 because it was produced in an unusual manner: staged as a live television show and recorded as a kinescope.

Harmonists, The (1997-German-Austrian) C-116m.  D: Joseph Vilsmäier. Ben Becker, Heino Ferch, Ulrich Noethen, Heinrich Schafmeister, Max Tidof, Kai Wiesinger, Meret Becker, Katja Riemann. Straightforward telling of a fascinating story about the formation of an innovative vocal group whose enormous popularity in late 1920s-early '30s Germany almost seems impervious to growing Nazi dictums—but inevitably runs afoul of the new government, as three of the singers are Jewish. The same story was chronicled in a German documentary, THE COMEDIAN HARMONISTS, which was this film's title in Europe. Super 35. [R]▼

Harold & Kumar Escape from Guantanamo Bay (2008) C-102m. *½ D: Jon Hurwitz, Hayden Schlossberg. John Cho, Kal Penn, Rob Corddry, Jack Conley, Roger Bart, Neil Patrick Harris, Danneel Harris, Eric Winter, Paula Garcés, Jon Reep, Missi Pyle, Beverly D'Angelo, David Krumholtz, Christopher Meloni, Eddie Kaye Thomas, Ed Helms. Appalling follow-up to the 2004 comedy finds the pot-smoking slackers mistaken for terrorists. Corddry plays a Homeland Security Chief who's on their trail. The first film was benign and goofy, but this one is determined to be as raunchy as possible . . . to an astonishing degree. Harris again plays "himself," a drug-addled sexaholic. Alternate version runs 107m. [R]▼

Harold & Kumar Go to White Castle (2004-U.S.-Canadian) C-87m.  D: Danny Leiner. Kal Penn, John Cho, Paula Garcés, Neil Patrick Harris, David Krumholtz, Eddie Kaye Thomas, Christopher Meloni, Ryan Reynolds, Fred Willard, Ethan Embry, Jamie Kennedy, Malin Ackerman. Two friends try to satisfy a craving by driving to a White Castle hamburger stop in New Jersey but have a nightlong series of misadventures instead. Good actors in the leads and a distinctive goofball vibe are definite assets, but a spotty script too often fails to deliver on its promise. (We won't even mention the toilet scene.) Anthony Anderson appears unbilled; Harris plays himself. Unrated version runs 90m. Followed by a sequel. [R]▼

Harold and Maude (1971) C-90m. ½ D: Hal Ashby. Bud Cort, Ruth Gordon, Vivian Pickles, Cyril Cusack, Charles Tyner, Ellen Geer. Black comedy focuses on loving relationship between 20-year-old Cort, who's obsessed with death, and 79-year-old swinger Gordon. Dismissed at time of release, this has become a cult favorite, and the cornerstone of writer Colin Higgins' reputation. Cort's phony suicides are hilarious. Music by Cat Stevens. [PG]▼

Harold Lloyd's World of Comedy (1962) 94m.  Compiled by Harold Lloyd.

Harold Lloyd, Bebe Daniels, Mildred Davis. Delightful comedy scenes show why Lloyd was so popular in the 1920s. Highlights include classic building-climbing episode and other great sight gags. A real gem.▼

Harrad Experiment, The (1973) C-88m. ½ D: Ted Post. Don Johnson, James Whitmore, Tippi Hedren, B. Kirby, Jr. (Bruno Kirby), Laurie Walters, Robert Middleton, Victoria Thompson. Fair adaptation of offbeat best-seller by Robert Rimmer in which experimental coed college pushes policy of sexual freedom. Two pairs of relationships singled out as in book, but film actually should've been longer! Improvisational group Ace Trucking Co. appears as itself. Melanie Griffith (Hedren's daughter) was an extra in this—at age 14. Look for young Gregory Harrison. Sequel: HARRAD SUMMER. [R]▼

Harrad Summer (1974) C-103m. ½ D: Steven H. Stern. Richard Doran, Victoria Thompson, Laurie Walters, Robert Reiser, Bill Dana, Marty Allen. Fair sequel to THE HARRAD EXPERIMENT, about sex-education school for young students that sends them home, where they can apply what they've learned. Aka STUDENT UNION. [R]▼

Harriet Craig (1950) 94m.  D: Vincent Sherman. Joan Crawford, Wendell Corey, Lucile Watson, Allyn Joslyn, Ellen Corby. Remake of CRAIG'S WIFE is well cast, with Crawford in title role of perfectionist wife who'll stop at nothing to have her house and life run as she wishes.▼

O'Donnell, J. Smith-Cameron, Robert Joy, Eartha Kitt. Young girl is encouraged by her eccentric nanny (O'Donnell) to keep a journal of everything she sees, which eventually gets her into trouble with friends and foes alike. Gets lost somewhere in the middle, but makes an impressive recovery in the final third, when an insightful look at childhood relationships comes to the fore. Based on the popular juvenile novel by Louise Fitzhugh. [PG]▼●●

Harrison's Flowers (2002-French) C-130m.  D: Elie Chouraqui. Andie MacDowell, David Strathairn, Elias Koteas, Adrien Brody, Brendan Gleeson, Alun Armstrong, Diane Baker, Marie Trintignant. When MacDowell is told that her photographer-husband has died in war-torn Yugoslavia, she refuses to believe it and goes there to find him. Vivid look at life in the midst of a chaotic, seemingly senseless war, and the way photojournalists thrust themselves into the thick of that tumult . . . but surrounding story is woefully underwritten. Main character's odyssey is more grueling than inspiring. Super 35. [R]▼

Harry and Son (1984) C-117m.  D: Paul Newman. Paul Newman, Robby Benson, Joanne Woodward, Ellen Barkin, Wilford Brimley, Judith Ivey, Ossie Davis, Morgan Freeman. Newman directed, coproduced and cowrote this contrived, meandering drama about the relationship between a widower father (who's just lost his job—and his self-respect) and son (who hasn't gotten his life in order yet). Newman isn't really convincing as the old man; Benson has played the younger role a bit too often. [PG]▼●

Harry and the Hendersons (1987) C-110m. ½ D: William Dear. John Lithgow, Melinda Dillon, Margaret Langrick, Joshua Rudoy, Kevin Peter Hall, David Suchet, Lainie Kazan, Don Ameche, M. Emmet Walsh. Family encounters a Bigfoot-type monster in the woods and takes it home, thinking it's dead. When it comes alive, the family finds itself becoming attached to the hairy fellow. Amusing but fatally overlong, this sweet-natured variation on E.T. THE EXTRA-TERRESTRIAL runs hot and cold; best recommended for kids. Lithgow is terrific as always. Rick Baker's makeup earned an Academy Award. Later a TV series. [PG]▼●●

Harry and Walter Go to New York (1976) C-123m.  D: Mark Rydell. James Caan, Elliott Gould, Diane Keaton, Michael

Caine, Charles Durning, Lesley Ann Warren, Val Avery, Jack Gilford, Carol Kane. Lavish but lopsided period farce with Caan and Gould as low-grade vaudevillians in the 1890s who wind up trying their luck as safecrackers in N.Y. Spirited but strenuous comedy misses the mark. Nice art direction by Harry Horner. Panavision. [PG]▼

Harry in Your Pocket (1973) C-103m.  D: Bruce Geller. James Coburn, Michael Sarrazin, Trish Van Devere, Walter Pidgeon. Engaging story of group of super-pickpockets and how they prey upon innocent victims. Pidgeon steals the film as sleazy professional crook.

Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets (2002) C-161m. ½ D: Chris Columbus. Daniel Radcliffe, Rupert Grint, Emma Watson, Kenneth Branagh, John Cleese, Robbie Coltrane, Warwick Davis, Richard Griffiths, Richard Harris, Jason Isaacs, Alan Rickman, Fiona Shaw, Maggie Smith, Julie Walters, Shirley Henderson, Miriam Margolyes, Mark Williams, Gemma Jones. J. K. Rowling's saga of witchcraft and wizardry continues in a darker vein as Harry, Ron, and Hermione enter their sophomore year at Hogwarts, where they battle a mysterious evil force that threatens the school's very existence. Second verse, pretty much the same as the first, with a plethora of engaging action set pieces (including another Quidditch match, a flying car, a CGI elf named Dobby, talking spiders, and a climactic battle with a formidable serpent), but the film suffers from overlength and uninspired transcription from page to screen. New cast members Branagh (as a pompous professor) and Isaacs (Draco Malfoy's malevolent father) add some spark. Super 35. [PG]▼

Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire (2005) C-157m. ½ D: Mike Newell. Daniel Radcliffe, Rupert Grint, Emma Watson, Robbie Coltrane, Ralph Fiennes, Michael Gambon, Brendan Gleeson, Jason Isaacs, Gary Oldman, Miranda Richardson, Alan Rickman, Maggie Smith, Timothy Spall, Frances de la Tour, Pedja Bjelac, David Bradley, Warwick Davis, Robert Hardy, Robert Pattinson, Shirley Henderson. Harry's fourth year at Hogwarts is marked by the Quidditch World Cup and a Triwizard Tournament in which students from three schools compete in a series of increasingly challenging contests. By far the most intense installment in the series, dealing not only with the magical aspects of the characters' lives but also the trials of adolescence. Again, Steve Kloves tries to compress the contents of J. K. Rowling's hefty book into a cohesive screenplay, and while some avid fans of the novel may feel unfulfilled, the action, storytelling, and performances are excellent. The familiar players are joined here by several world-class newcomers. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix (2007) C-138m.  D: David Yates.

Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone (2001) C-152m. ½ D: Chris Columbus. Daniel Radcliffe, Rupert Grint, Emma Watson, Richard Harris, Robbie Coltrane, Maggie Smith, Ian Hart, Alan Rickman, John Hurt, John Cleese, Fiona Shaw, Richard Griffiths, Sean Biggerstaff, Tom Felton, Warwick Davis, Julie Walters, Zoe Wanamaker, David Bradley. At age 11, J. K. Rowling's bespectacled hero is freed from the custody of his miserable aunt and uncle to fulfill his destiny at Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry, where he makes friends and enemies, learns dangerous secrets, and has many high-flying adventures. Begins with a real sense of wonder and magic, winds up an overlong, bombastic special-effects movie... but nothing can erase

the charm of Rowling's characters and ideas, especially in the hands of a peerless British cast. Known outside U.S. as HARRY POTTER AND THE PHILOSOPHER'S STONE. First of series. Super 35. [PG] VD

Harry's Machine SEE: Hollywood Harry
Harry's War (1981) C-98m. ½ D: Kieth Merrill. Edward Herrmann, Geraldine Page, Karen Grassle, David Ogden Stiers, Salome Jens, Elisha Cook. Easygoing postman Herrmann battles the IRS after his aunt (Page) is unfairly billed for $190,000 in back taxes. Capra-esque one-man-against-the-bureaucracy tale is sometimes touching but mostly over-baked. Herrmann performs earnestly; Merrill also wrote the screenplay. [PG] VD

Harry Tracy, Desperado (1982-Canadian) C-100m. ½ D: William A. Graham. Bruce Dern, Helen Shaver, Michael C. Gwynne, Gordon Lightfoot. Saga of outlaw who lives by his own moral code. Laid-back but worthwhile for Dern's fine performance and vivid re-creation of Western life at the turn of the 20th century. Original Canadian title: HARRY TRACY. [PG] VD

Harsh Times (2006) C-117m.  D: David Ayer. Christian Bale, Freddy Rodríguez, Eva Longoria, Terry Crews, Noel Gugliemi, Chaka Forman, Michael Monks, J. K. Simmons. Brutally intense drama about a former soldier, experienced in cold-blooded killing, who wants to join the L.A.P.D. but is much more interested in getting into trouble with his lifelong pal and keeping him from his responsibilities (including a promise to his girlfriend to go job-hunting). Bale makes yet another psychotic character utterly believable in this ugly, visceral portrait of society's underbelly. Gripping but emotionally draining. Directorial debut for TRAINING DAY writer Ayer, who also scripted. [R] D

Hart's War (2002) C-125m.  D: Gregory Hoblit. Bruce Willis, Colin Farrell, Terrence Howard, Cole Hauser, Marcel Iures, Linus Roache, Vicellous Shannon, Adrian Grenier, Joe Spano, Rory Cochrane. American soldier who's never seen action is taken prisoner during WW2 and wages a battle of wits with the ranking officer at his POW camp. The plot thickens when two Black soldiers arrive on the scene and racism flares up. Entertaining yarn is a good showcase for Farrell and a perfect fit for Willis, though its message about honor is a bit muddy. There's still no villain quite like an urbane, educated Nazi. Based on a novel by John Katzenbach. Super 35. [R] VD

Harum Scarum (1965) C-86m. ½ D: Gene Nelson. Elvis Presley, Mary Ann Mobley, Fran Jeffries, Michael Ansara, Jay Novello, Philip Reed, Theo Marcuse, Billy Barty. Visiting the Middle East gives usual Presley musical formula a change of scenery, via back-lot desert locations. VD

Harvard Man (2002) C-100m. ½ D:

James Toback. Adrian Grenier, Sarah Michelle Gellar, Joey Lauren Adams, Eric Stoltz, Rebecca Gayheart, Gianni Russo, Ray Allen, John Neville. Harvard basketball player who's sleeping with his philosophy professor (Adams) as well as the daughter (Gellar) of a Mafioso borrows money from the don—mistake #1—then tries out a friend's new batch of LSD—mistakes #2, 3, and 4. Typically edgy, in-your-face Toback movie; arresting at first, but then goes completely haywire, with unbelievable and absurd story twists. Al Franken makes a very funny unbilled appearance. Super 35. [R] ▼

Harvest (1937-French) 127m. * D: Marcel Pagnol. Gabriel Gabrio, Orane Demazis, Fernandel, Edouard Delmont, Henri Poupon. Simple, stark tale of peasants Gabrio and Demazis struggling against all odds to till the land and give life to the earth. Magnificent, with Fernandel memorable as Demazis' comical husband. ▼

Harvey (1950) 104m. ½ D: Henry Koster. James Stewart, Josephine Hull, Peggy Dow, Charles Drake, Cecil Kellaway, Victoria Home, Jesse White, Wallace Ford, Ida Moore. Stewart gives one of his best performances as tippler Elwood P. Dowd, whose companion is a six-foot invisible rabbit named Harvey (actually, he's 6 feet, 3½ inches). Hull won Oscar as distraught sister. Mary Chase and Oscar Brodney adapted Chase's Pulitzer Prize-winning play. Hull and White re-create their Broadway roles. Remade for TV in 1998. ▼●●

Harvey Girls, The (1946) C-101m.  D: George Sidney. Judy Garland, Ray Bolger, John Hodiak, Angela Lansbury, Preston Foster, Virginia O'Brien, Marjorie Main, Kenny Baker, Cyd Charisse, Catherine McLeod. Westward expansion brings with it Fred Harvey's railroad station restaurants, and proper young waitresses who have civilizing influence on rowdy communities. Silly script made entertaining by good cast and a few musical highlights (like Oscar-winning "On the Atchison, Topeka, and the Santa Fe"). ▼●●

Harvey Middleman, Fireman (1965) C-75m.  D: Ernest Pintoff. Gene Troobnick, Hermione Gingold, Patricia Harty, Arlene Golonka, Will MacKenzie, Charles Durning. Low-key comedy about mildmannered fireman trying to coordinate fantasy and real life; amiable but unfocused film was animator Pintoff's first live-action feature.

Has Anybody Seen My Gal (1952) C-89m. ½ D: Douglas Sirk. Charles Coburn, Piper Laurie, Rock Hudson, Gigi Perreau, Lynn Bari, William Reynolds, Larry Gates, Skip Homeier. Pleasant, lightweight 1920s nostalgia about rich old Coburn planning to leave his fortune to the family of a woman who turned down his marriage proposal years earlier. Coburn's performance is the whole show; look fast for James Dean. ●

Hasty Heart, The (1949-British) 99m. ½ D: Vincent Sherman. Ronald Reagan, Patricia Neal, Richard Todd, Anthony Nicholls, Howard Crawford. Sensitive film version of John Patrick play, focusing on proud Scottish soldier who discovers he has short time to live and friendships he finally makes among his hospital mates. Remade in 1983 for cable TV. ▼●

Hatari! (1962) C-159m. ½ D: Howard Hawks. John Wayne, Elsa Martinelli, Red Buttons, Hardy Kruger, Gerard Blain, Bruce Cabot. Filmed in Tanganyika; title is Swahili for "Danger!" ▼●●

Hatchet (2007) C-83m.  D: Adam Green. Joel David Moore, Tamara Feldman, Deon Richmond, Kane Hodder, Tony Todd, Joel Murray, Patrika Darbo, Robert Englund. Horror fans might have a few guilty-pleasure giggles with this crude but knowing homage to '80s slashier movies. Mardi Gras revelers are methodically (and graphically) murdered by a misshapen psycho after they venture into a "haunted" Louisiana swamp. Also available in unrated version. [R] ●

Hatchet for the Honeymoon (1971-Italian-Spanish) C-93m. ½ D: Mario Bava. Stephen Forsyth, Dagmar Lassander, Laura Betti, Gerard Tichy, Femi Benussi. Characteristic Bava horror thriller: strong on vivid imagery, shot in fluid, cinematic style, with a screwy, hard-to-follow plot about a madman who murders brides, while haunted by the ghost of his own wife. [PG] ▼●

Hatchet Man, The (1932) 74m. ½ D: William Wellman. Edward G. Robinson, Loretta Young, Dudley Digges, Blanche Frederici, Leslie Fenton. Fascinating yarn about Chinatown tongs, and Robinson's attempts to Americanize himself. Potent melodrama, once you get past obvious barrier of Caucasian cast.

Hatchet Murders, The SEE: Deep Red
Hate (1995-French) 95m.  D: Mathieu Kassovitz. Vincent Cassel, Hubert Kounde, Saïd Taghau, Karim Belkadra, Edouard Montoute. Two-fisted tale of three young hoods (an Arab, a Jew, and a black), living in the projects outside of Paris, who seek retribution when their best friend is beaten into a coma by the cops. Basically an anti-police polemic, this is short on subtlety but still powerfully effective. Bravura camerawork is reminiscent of Spike Lee, but Kassovitz's mise-en-scène is his own and aptly reflects the alienated world of lower-class kids without keys to their own city. Winner of Best Director award at Cannes. Original title: LA HAINE. [R] ▼●

Hatful of Rain, A (1957) 109m.  D: Fred Zinnemann. Eva Marie Saint, Don

Murray, Anthony Franciosa, Lloyd Nolan, Henry Silva, Gerald S. O'Loughlin, William Hickey. Realistic melodrama of the living hell dope addict Murray undergoes, and the effects on those around him; fine performances. Scripted by Michael V. Gazzo, Alfred Hayes, and Carl Foreman from Gazzo's play. CinemaScope.

Hatter's Castle (1941-British) 90m. ½ D: Lance Comfort. Deborah Kerr, James Mason, Robert Newton, Emyln Williams. Fine cast must support fair material in tale of poor man who relentlessly pursues his dream of social acceptance; from A. J. Cronin's novel.

Hatter's Ghost, The (1982-French) C-129m. *½ D: Claude Chabrol. Michel Serrault, Charles Aznavour, Monique Chaumette, Aurore Clement. Disappointing murder mystery from Chabrol, based on a Georges Simenon novel. Tailor Aznavour learns that nephew Serrault is a mass killer, but is too scared to inform the police. Potentially exciting thriller is badly handled.

Haunted Honeymoon (1940-British) 83m. ½ D: Arthur B. Woods. Robert Montgomery, Constance Cummings, Leslie Banks, Seymour Hicks, Robert Newton, Googie Withers. Famed amateur criminologist Lord Peter Wimsey (Montgomery) marries mystery writer (Cummings) and settles down to quiet honeymoon—until murder enters the picture and demands their involvement. Montgomery miscast as Dorothy L. Sayers' witty sleuth. Originally titled BUSMAN'S HONEYMOON.

Haunted Honeymoon (1986) C-82m. BOMB D: Gene Wilder. Gene Wilder, Gilda Radner, Dom DeLuise, Jonathan Pryce, Paul L. Smith, Peter Vaughan, Bryan Pringle. Tediiously unfunny "scare movie" farce inspired by old Bob Hope/Red Skelton comedies; set in an old dark house full of creepy people (with one great gag lifted from Fred MacMurray's MURDER, HE SAYS). When you put Dom DeLuise in drag and still can't get laughs, you know something's wrong. [PG]▼●●

Haunted Mansion, The (2003) C-98m.  D: Rob Minkoff. Eddie Murphy, Terence Stamp, Wallace Shawn, Marsha Thomason, Jennifer Tilly, Nathaniel Parker, Dina Waters, Marc John Jefferies, Aree Davis. Workaholic real estate salesman Murphy brings his family along when his wife is summoned to a creepy old mansion. It seems the master of the house thinks she is his long-lost love. Flat, poky attempt at ghostly comedy, inspired by the great Disney theme park attraction; too scary for small children, too boring for adults, despite Murphy's trademark energy. Super 35. [PG]▼●

D: Roger Corman. Vincent Price, Debra Paget, Lon Chaney, Jr., Frank Maxwell, Leo Gordon, Elisha Cook, Jr., John Dierkes. When a man arrives in New England town to claim family castle, he discovers the town populated by mutants and the castle under an ancestor's evil spell, which soon possesses him. Good-looking but minor film from Corman's Edgar Allan Poe cycle, although based mainly on H. P. Lovecraft's The Strange Case of Charles Dexter Ward. Script by Charles Beaumont. Panavision.▼●●

Haunted Strangler, The (1958-British) 81m. ½ D: Robert Day. Boris Karloff, Anthony Dawson, Elizabeth Allan, Jean Kent, Derek Birch. Offbeat story set in 1880; socially conscious author Karloff investigates the case of a man who was executed 20 years earlier. Original British title: GRIP OF THE STRANGLER.▼●●

Haunted Summer (1988) C-106m. ½ D: Ivan Passer. Phillip Anglim, Laura Dem, Alice Krige, Eric Stoltz, Alex Winter. Flawed film version of Anne Edwards' novel about the fabled and emotional meeting between poets Lord Byron and Percy Shelley, novelist Mary Godwin, and Dr. John Polidori in Italy in 1816. The psychedelic '60s had nothing on this "summer of love" and experimentation. Beautifully filmed, and better than Ken Russell's similar GOTHIC, but it's still forced and unconvincing. [R]▼●●

Haunting, The (1963) 112m. ½ D: Robert Wise. Julie Harris, Claire Bloom, Richard Johnson, Russ Tamblyn, Lois Maxwell, Fay Compton. 90-year-old New England haunted house is setting for chosen group being introduced to the supernatural, with hair-raising results. Don't see this one alone! Filmed in England; Nelson Gidding adapted Shirley Jackson's The Haunting of Hill House. Remade in 1999. Panavision.▼●●

Haunting, The (1999) C-114m. *½ D: Jan De Bont. Liam Neeson, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Owen Wilson, Lili Taylor, Bruce Dem, Marian Seldes, Virginia Madsen. Three people are lured to a creepy mansion under false pretenses by a psychological researcher (Neeson). Incredibly dull chiller has all the special effects money can buy but no sense, no logic, and virtually no scares. Taylor's performance as a lonely woman who feels a kinship with the house is the only redeeming feature of this clunker, which has little in common with the 1963 movie or Shirley Jackson's novel, on which it's supposedly based. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Haunting Fear (1991) C-88m. *½ D: Fred Olen Ray. Brinke Stevens, Jay Richardson, Jan-Michael Vincent, Karen Black, Della Sheppard, Robert Clarke, Robert Quarry, Michael Berryman. Stevens fears being buried alive, her husband has a sexy mistress, and Vincent is lurking around in the street. Odd plot tries to bring it all together, but motivation is absent. Hasty, empty film allegedly based on Poe's "Premature Burial." ▼●

Haunting in Connecticut, The (2009) C-92m. *½ D: Peter Cornwell. Virginia Madson, Kyle Gallner, Elias Koteas, Amanda Crew, Martin Donovan. Creaky horror picture show, purportedly based on fact, about a family that learns the hard way why they got such a great deal on a rental property with "a bit of a history." Long on spooky atmosphere, short on drama. There's nothing here you haven't seen done better, and scarier, in other haunted house dramas. Super 35. [PG-13]

Haunting of Julia, The (1976-British-Canadian) C-96m.  D: Richard Loncraine. Mia Farrow, Keir Dullea, Tom Conti, Jill Bennett, Robin Gammell, Cathleen Nesbitt. Occult thriller about a young woman who tries to start a new life after the death of her daughter and moves into a house inhabited by a troubled spirit. A good (if familiar) start, but soon lapses into unsatisfying contrivance. From a Peter Straub story. Originally titled FULL CIRCLE. Panavision. [R] ▼

Haunting of Molly Hartley, The (2008) C-87m. *½ D: Mickey Liddell. Haley Bennett, Jake Weber, Chace Crawford, Shannon Marie Woodward, Shanna Collins, AnnaLynne McCord, Marin Hinkle, Nina Siemaszko. After being stabbed by her psycho mom, Bennett is dispatched to a hoity-toity prep school, where she comes to believe she may be demonic. Dull, clumsy horror thriller. [PG-13] ●

Haunts (1977) C-98m.  D: Herb Freed. May Britt, Cameron Mitchell, Aldo Ray, William Gray Espy, Susan Nohr. You have to stay with it to appreciate this offbeat horror pic fully, but it's well worth the effort. Writers Anne Marisse and Herb Freed and a good cast have vividly captured small-town atmosphere when a series of murders grips the countryside. As a farm woman with demons of her own, Britt gives the best performance of her erratic career. [PG] ▼●

Havana (1990) C-140m. ½ D: Sydney Pollack. Robert Redford, Lena Olin, Alan Arkin, Tomas Milian, Daniel Davis, Tony Plana, Betsy Brantley, Lise Cutter, Richard Farnsworth, Mark Rydell. No masterpiece, overly reminiscent of CASABLANCA, and a huge box-office disaster, but still unjustly maligned as a stinker. Redford (aging, but marvelous) plays a professional gambler hoping to score in the waning hours of Batista's Cuba; Olin (surprisingly stiff) is the married Swede who takes his mind off the game. Production designer's dream is very entertaining for about 90 minutes, then tails off. Similar to the underrated Richard Lester film CUBA. Raul Julia appears unbilled. [R] ▼●●

Haven (2004-U.S.-British-German-Spanish) C-98m.  D: Frank E. Flowers. Bill Paxton, Orlando Bloom, Stephen Dillane, Zoe Saldana, Razaq Adoti, Agnes Bruckner, Victor Rasuk, Lee Ingleby, Anthony Mackie, Robert Wisdom, Joy Bryant, Bobby Cannavale, Serena Scott Thomas. Slickly directed but confusing, connect-the-dots story that opens with Paxton and his teen daughter fleeing to the Cayman Islands when the Feds show up on his doorstep. Who is he? Why is he on the run? More important, why should we care? Annoyingly fragmented narrative tries to be clever but succeeds only at being convoluted. Bloom coproduced. [R] ●

Have Rocket—Will Travel (1959) 76m. ½ D: David Lowell Rich. The Three Stooges, Jerome Cowan, Anna Lisa, Bob Colbert. Good slapstick as the Stooges accidentally launch into space, meet a unicorn, and go on to become national heroes. This was the trio's first starring feature after being rediscovered on TV, though Joe DeRita had, by this time, filled the Curly/Shemp slot. ▼

Having a Wild Weekend (1965-British) 91m. ½ D: John Boorman. Dave Clark Five, Barbara Ferris, Lenny Davidson, Rick Huxley, Mike Smith, Denis Payton, David Lodge. Just as The Dave Clark Five tried to steal some of the Beatles' thunder, this fast-paced trifle tried to capture success of A HARD DAY'S NIGHT. The Five star as stuntmen who, along with a model (Ferris), search for a dream island. Songs include "Having a Wild Weekend," "Catch Us If You Can," "I Can't Stand It." Director Boorman's first film. Originally titled CATCH US IF YOU CAN. ▼

Having Wonderful Crime (1945) 70m. ½ D: A. Edward Sutherland. Pat O'Brien, George Murphy, Carole Landis, Lenore Aubert, George Zucco. Lively mystery-comedy in which a trio of friends—brash lawyer O'Brien and wise-cracking newlyweds Murphy and Landis—become involved with a magician who disappears and his mysterious assistant. Based on characters created by Craig Rice, though the film bears no relation to Rice's novel of the same name. ▼

Having Wonderful Time (1938) 71m. ½ D: Alfred Santell. Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Peggy Conklin, Lucille Ball, Lee Bowman, Eve Arden, Dorothea Kent, Richard (Red) Skelton, Donald Meek, Jack Carson, Allan Lane, Grady Sutton. OK film about Catskills resort hotel; Ginger wants culture on summer vacation but gets Doug instead. Arthur Kober adapted his own Broadway comedy, but the original's satiric depiction of Jewish New Yorkers is completely homogenized. Skelton sparkles in his feature debut; Dean Jagger plays Ginger's brother and Ann Miller is visible among the campers. ▼●●

Barbara Kopple. Anne Hathaway, Bijou Phillips, Shiri Appleby, Michael Biehn, Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Matt O'Leary, Freddy Rodriguez, Laura San Giacomo, Mike Vogel, Cecilia Peck, Sam Bottoms. Well-meaning but overwrought chronicle of a bright, wealthy, bored teen who's sleep-walking through her life. She and her friends attempt to adopt a gangsta lifestyle but don't know what they're getting into when they mix with real inner-city Latinos. Potentially intriguing exploration of race, class, and teen lifestyles goes way over the top. Rare non-documentary effort by Kopple, scripted by another Oscar winner, Stephen Gaghan. Released direct to DVD in the U.S. Unrated version runs 93m. Followed by a direct-to-DVD sequel. [R]▶

Hav Plenty (1998) C-92m. *½ D: Christopher Scott Cherot. Christopher Scott Cherot, Chenoa Maxwell, Hill Harper, Tammi Katherine Jones, Betty Vaughn. Smug, self-satisfied romantic comedy about down-and-out writer who finds unexpected sparks with his best friend when he spends New Year's weekend with her crazy friends and family. Maxwell gives a truly irritating performance as the inexplicable girl of Cherot's dreams, but the writer-director-editor-star has charisma; it's his filmmaking skills that need polishing. Dopey movie-within-a-movie ending features Shemar Moore, Nia Long, TLC's Chili, The Fugees' Lauryn Hill, and Mekhi Phifer. [R]▶▶

Hawaii (1966) C-171m.  D: George Roy Hill. Julie Andrews, Max von Sydow, Richard Harris, Torin Thatcher, Gene Hackman, Carroll O'Connor, Jocelyne LaGarde, John Cullum, George Rose, Michael Constantine. Sprawling filmization of James Michener's novel. Story (adapted by Dalton Trumbo and Daniel Taradash) follows growth of Hawaii in 1800s as fierce but well-intentioned missionary tries to bring religion to the undeveloped islands. Uneven but generally entertaining epic. Originally released at 189m.; some prints 151m. Look for Bette Midler as a passenger on the Hawaii-bound ship. Sequel: THE HAWAIIANS. Panavision. ▶▶▶

Hawaiians, The (1970) C-134m.  D: Tom Gries. Charlton Heston, Geraldine Chaplin, John Phillip Law, Tina Chen, Alec McCowen, Keye Luke, Mako. Sequel to HAWAII is epic narrative of seafaring Heston returning home to a restless, changing Hawaii. Film follows several decades of relationships, conflict, hardship, progress, sex, leprosy—you name it. Compelling, colorful storytelling, with outstanding performance by Chen. Panavision. [PG]

tries to find meaning in his life by capturing and attempting to train a red-tailed hawk. Unceasingly intense drama is done in by pretension and confusion . . . and is an ordeal to sit through. Giamatti rises way above the material. Based on a novel by Harry Crews.▶

Hawks (1988-British) C-107m.  D: Robert Ellis Miller. Timothy Dalton, Anthony Edwards, Janet McTeer, Camille Coduri, Jill Bennett, Sheila Hancock, Connie Booth. Heavy-handed black comedy about British lawyer Dalton and American jock Edwards, both terminally ill with cancer but still equally red-blooded; they rip off an ambulance and head for the brothels of Amsterdam for one final fling. Uneasy mixture of humor and touchy-feely emotion does not work. Barry Gibb (of the Bee Gees, who did the music) is coauthor of the story upon which this is based. [R]▶

Hawk the Slayer (1980-British) C-93m. *½ D: Terry Marcel. Jack Palance, John Terry, Bernard Bresslaw, Ray Charleson, Peter O'Farrell, Harry Andrews, Roy Kinnear, Ferdy Mayne. Brothers Palance and Terry vie for a magical family sword in this period costumer. Labored, with gimmicky direction.▶▶▶

Hawmps! (1976) C-113m.  D: Joe Camp. James Hampton, Christopher Connelly, Slim Pickens, Jack Elam, Denver Pyle. Amusing idea based on real life incident: camels trained as Army mounts in Texas desert. Some comedy results, but how far can you stretch one idea? Originally released at 126m. [G]▶▶

Head (1968) C-86m.  D: Bob Rafelson. The Monkees, Terry (Teri) Garr, Vito Scotti, Timothy Carey, Logan Ramsey, Frank Zappa, Jack Nicholson. Far-out film debut for TV rock group was written (or concocted) by Rafelson and Nicholson before they made big splash with FIVE EASY PIECES; this overlooked item is a delightful explosion of crazy ideas with no coherent plot, many old film clips, some good songs, and such unlikely guest stars as Sonny Liston and Victor Mature. Well worth seeing. [G]▶▶▶

Head Above Water (1996-U.S.-British) C-92m.  D: Jim Wilson. Harvey Keitel, Cameron Diaz, Craig Sheffer, Billy Zane, Shay Duffin. Black comedy-thriller about lovely substance abuser Diaz; she's married to judge Keitel, but her male friends still carry a torch for her, with disastrous consequences. Convoluted plot twists abound, but you don't really care what happens to any of these characters. Remake of same-named 1993 Norwegian film. U.S. debut on cable TV. Super 35. [PG-13]▶▶▶

Heading South (2005-Canadian-French) C-108m.  D: Laurent Cantet. Charlotte Rampling, Karen Young, Louise Portal, Ménothy Cesar, Lys Ambroise, Jackenson Pierre Olmo Diaz. Absorbing, politically

loaded drama set in Haiti during the late 1970s, where pampered, sexually frustrated middle-aged female tourists have hunky young native boys service them, blissfully unaware of the pressures they face under the brutal dictatorship of "Baby Doc" Duvalier. The spotlight is on Rampling and Young, who vie for the attention of a handsome local (Cesar). Based on short stories by Dany Laferrière. D

Head in the Clouds (2004-Canadian-British) C-133m.  D: John Duigan. Charize Theron, Penélope Cruz, Stuart Townsend, Thomas Kretschmann, Steven Berkoff, David La Haye, Gabriel Hogan. Fortright young woman (Theron) lives a Bohemian life in 1930s Paris, some of it in a ménage à trois with a photographer's model (Cruz) and an uptight Irish beau (Townsend) who is drawn to the plight of the Spanish Republicans. Duigan's screenplay bites off more than it can chew, spanning 20 years, the evolution of two relationships, and a character's political awakening. WW2 section rings hollow; artificial backdrops don't help. Theron and Cruz are quite good, and very sexy. Super 35. [R] VD

Headless Body in Topless Bar (1996) C-101m. *½ D: James Bruce. Raymond Barry, Jennifer MacDonald, Rustam Branan, April Grace, Taylor Nichols, David Selby, Paul Williams, Biff Yeager. This "psychological dark comedy" based on the infamous 1983 New York Post headline is a talky character piece about an ex-con who takes the inhabitants of a topless bar hostage after killing the bartender. Might have worked better as a one-act play—or, better yet, left on the newsstand. VD

Head Office (1986) C-86m.  D: Ken Finkleman. Judge Reinhold, Eddie Albert, Jane Seymour, Danny DeVito, Rick Moranis, Don Novello, Michael O'Donoghue, Wallace Shawn, Lori-Nan Engler. Naive Reinhold is hired by world's most powerful multinational conglomerate after his father pulls strings, falls for board chairman's renegade daughter. Episodic, wildly uneven comedy wastes good cast, though Novello, Albert, and O'Donoghue have their funny moments, Seymour some sexy ones. Panavision. [PG-13] VD

Head of State (2003) C-95m. ½ D: Chris Rock. Chris Rock, Bernie Mac, Dylan Baker, Nick Searcy, Lynn Whitfield, Robin Givens, Tamala Jones, James Rebhorn, Keith David, Stephanie March, Nate Dogg, Jude Ciccolella, Tracy Morgan. A hardworking community activist and alderman from Washington, D.C., is drafted as a last-minute replacement candidate for president. He soon tires of following orders and begins to speak his mind. Rock is the whole show here, and he's on top of his game, spouting the kind of straight talk we'd all like to hear from candidates. The filmmaking is sloppy, as is the story development, but the director, cowriter and star deliver the laughs. [PG-13] VD

Head-On (2004-German-Turkish-French) C-121m.  D: Fatih Akin. Birol Ünel, Sibel Kekilli, Catrin Striebeck, Güven Kirac, Meltem Cumbul, Zarah McKenzie, Stefan Gehelhoff. Two Turks, one a late-30s alcoholic nightclub employee, the other a young but far-from-innocent woman determined to escape her traditional family, meet in a hospital in their adopted country of Germany. They embark on a paper marriage and live as roommates, but drugs and other influences cause their lives to intertwine in unexpected ways. Harsh, powerful drama of stubborn determination and immigrant culture provides a glimpse into a seedy milieu that never seems phony. D

Head Over Heels (1979) C-97m. ½ D: Joan Micklin Silver. John Heard, Mary Beth Hurt, Peter Riegert, Kenneth McMillan, Gloria Grahame, Nora Heflin, Griffin Dunne. Low-key story of Heard's obsession with winning back former girlfriend Hurt; the kind of film that engenders strictly personal reactions—it will either charm or annoy you. Based on Ann Beattie's novel CHILLY SCENES OF WINTER, and reissued under that name at 93m. Jazz harmonica great Toots Thielemans is prominently featured on the soundtrack. [PG] VD

Head Over Heels (2001) C-91m. *½ D: Mark Waters. Monica Potter, Freddie Prinze, Jr., Shalom Harlow, Ivana Milicevic, Sarah O'Hare, Tomiko Fraser, China Chow, Timothy Olyphant. Klutzy, unlucky-in-love art restorer Potter falls for nice-guy fashion exec Prinze, whose apartment is next door to the one she's sharing with four fashion models. While peeping in on him, she thinks she sees him commit murder. Forget REAR WINDOW: this is an adlebrained, cliché-laden romantic comedy-farce-thriller. Super 35. [PG-13] VD

Health (1979) C-100m.  D: Robert Altman. Carol Burnett, Glenda Jackson, James Garner, Lauren Bacall, Diane Stilwell, Henry Gibson, Donald Moffat, Paul Dooley, Dick Cavett, Alfre Woodard. Offbeat political satire using health-food convention in Florida hotel as basis for various backroom shenanigans. Non-Altman buffs may like this more than devotees; Woodard steals the film—no easy feat considering that incredible cast—as hotel's ultra-patient manager. Shelved for two years. Title is acronym for Happiness, Energy, And Longevity Through Health. Panavision. [PG]

Hear My Song (1991-U.S.-British) C-104m.  D: Peter Chelsom. Ned Beatty, Adrian Dunbar, Shirley Anne Field, Tara Fitzgerald, David McCallum, William Hootkins, Harold Berens, James Nesbitt. Wheeler-dealer nightclub owner must redeem himself with his girlfriend—and his

community—by finding expatriate Irish tenor Josef Locke and bringing him back to England for an engagement. Charming offbeat, old-fashioned film written by its first-time feature director and leading man Dunbar, very loosely based on real-life story. If Beatty (as Locke) didn't pull off the climactic scene, it wouldn't work—but he does. [R]▼●

Hear No Evil (1993) C-97m. *½ D: Robert Greenwald. Marlee Matlin, D. B. Sweeney, Martin Sheen, John C. McGinley, Christina Carlisi, Greg Elam, Charley Lang, Marge Redmond. Plotline reminiscent of WAIT UNTIL DARK, except the terrorized young woman here is deaf, not blind. You can fill in the blanks. Grade-Z thriller, only partly redeemed by the presence of Matlin. [R]▼●●

Heartaches (1981-Canadian) C-93m. ½ D: Donald Shebib. Margot Kidder, Annie Potts, Robert Carradine, Winston Rekert, George Touliatos, Guy Sanvido. Pregnant Potts abandons husband Carradine—who is not the baby's father—and becomes the unwilling buddy of man-hunting screwball Kidder. Fine lead performances spark this minor comedy. [R]▼●

Heart and Souls (1993) C-104m.  D: Ron Underwood. Robert Downey, Jr., Charles Grodin, Alfie Woodard, Kyra Sedgwick, Tom Sizemore, David Paymer, Elisabeth Shue, Eric Lloyd, Bill Calvert, Lisa Lucas, Richard Portnow, B. B. King. Four disparate San Franciscans die in a bus accident in 1959, and find themselves inexorably linked with a baby who's been born at that same exact moment; what's more, only he can see and hear them. A great showcase for Downey—whose body is inhabited, at various times, by his heavenly friends—though Woodard is equally good, as usual. Fans of mushy, sentimental, old-fashioned Hollywood fantasies (like us) should enjoy this fable; others beware. Based on a 9-minute short subject by the coauthors of this script. Look fast to see Bob Newhart's son, Robert William Newhart, impersonating his dad. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Heart Beat (1980) C-105m. *½ D: John Byrum. Nick Nolte, Sissy Spacek, John Heard, Ray Sharkey, Anne Dusenberry, Kent Williams, Tony Bill, Steve Allen. Hapless chronicle of the relationship between Jack Kerouac (Heard) and Carolyn (Spacek) and Neal (Nolte) Cassidy. Byrum's flaky script (based more on fiction than on fact) has no continuity whatsoever. Sharkey stands out as the Allen Ginsbergesque Ira; good period score by Jack Nitzsche. Watch for John Larroquette. Cassidy's life is also explored in NEAL CASSADY. [R]▼●

Heartbeeps (1981) C-79m. *½ D: Allan Arkush. Andy Kaufman, Bernadette Peters, Randy Quaid, Kenneth McMillan, Melanie Mayron, Christopher Guest; voice of Jack Carter. Two robots fall for each other in this misfired futuristic comedy. Students of makeup might want to take a peek at Stan Winston's work. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Heartbreakers (1984) C-98m. ½ D: Bobby Roth. Peter Coyote, Nick Mancuso, Carole Laure, Max Gail, James Laurenson, Carol Wayne, Kathryn Harrold, Jamie Rose. Moody, provocative film about two male friends (avant-garde artist Coyote), second-generation businessman Mancuso) seeking creative and sexual fulfillment and trying to define their relationships with others. Highly personal, occasionally insightful film invites highly personal reactions. Bull's-eye performances, great use of L.A. locations. [R]▼

Heartbreakers (2001) C-123m. ½ D: David Mirkin. Sigourney Weaver, Jennifer Love Hewitt, Gene Hackman, Ray Liotta, Jason Lee, Anne Bancroft, Jeffrey Jones, Nora Dunn, Julio Oscar Mechoso, Carrie Fisher, Ricky Jay, Sarah Silverman, Shawn Colvin, Kevin Nealon, Elya Baskin. Sleazy if watchable comedy about mother-and-daughter con artists who marry men and then take them for everything they're worth in divorce settlements. Cast seems to be having a good time; wonderful performance by Hewitt's breasts. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Heartbreak Hotel (1988) C-93m. ½ D: Chris Columbus. David Keith, Tuesday Weld, Charlie Schlatter, Jacque Lynn Colton, Angela Goethals, Chris Mulkey, Karen Landry. A reliable test of your whimsy threshold, as an Ohio teen (Schlatter) kidnaps Elvis in 1972, then transports him home to the divorced mom (Weld) who's carried a torch for the King since the mid-1950s. Keith's Presley, like the entire film, is fun, though the premise is so hard to swallow that you're likely to go with this—or reject it—all the way. Pair this with WILD IN THE COUNTRY or ROCK, ROCK, ROCK for a compatible video double bill. [PG-13]▼●●

Heartbreak Kid, The (1972) C-104m.  D: Elaine May. Charles Grodin, Cybill Shepherd, Jeannie Berlin, Eddie Albert, Audra Lindley. Neil Simon's supreme comedy of embarrassment, adapted from Bruce Jay Friedman's short story "A Change of Plan." Jewish boy (Grodin) gets married (to Berlin) but meets beautiful WASP blonde (Shepherd) on honeymoon, and determines to juggle plans. Either hilarious or horrifying, depending on your point of view; directed for maximum impact by May, whose daughter plays Grodin's bride. Remade in 2007. [PG]▼●●

Heartbreak Kid, The (2007) C-116m.

*½ D: Bobby Farrelly, Peter Farrelly, Ben Stiller, Malin Akerman, Michelle Monaghan, Jerry Stiller, Rob Corddry, Carlos Mencia, Scott Wilson, Polly Holliday, Leslie Easterbrook, Eva Longoria. Eligible San Francisco bachelor Stiller chances to meet a beautiful blonde dream girl (Akerman) and in no time flat gets married. Only on their honeymoon to Mexico does he discover that she's the bride from hell . . . while striking up a warm relationship with an American tourist (Monaghan) staying at the same hotel. Reinvention of the 1972 hit plays surprisingly well, given the Farrellys' usual penchant for overlength and gross-out gags (though this one flopped). Super 35. [R]●

Heartbreak Ridge (1986) C-130m. *½ D:

Clint Eastwood. Clint Eastwood, Marsha Mason, Everett McGill, Moses Gunn, Eileen Heckart, Bo Svenson, Boyd Gaines, Mario Van Peebles, Arlen Dean Snyder. Eastwood is so enjoyable to watch, as a hell-raising career marine sergeant who whips a squadron of young recruits into shape, that he makes this predictable and protracted film worthwhile. But it's still pretty thin stuff and takes longer to play out than the real-life invasion of Grenada it depicts. [R]▼●●

Heartburn (1986) C-108m.  D: Mike Nichols. Meryl Streep, Jack Nicholson, Jeff Daniels, Maureen Stapleton, Stockard Channing, Richard Masur, Catherine O'Hara, Steven Hill, Milos Forman, Karen Akers, Anna Maria Horsford, Mercedes Ruehl, Joanna Gleason, Yakov Smirnoff, Kevin Spacey, Natasha Lyonne. Nora Ephron adapted her own best-selling (and autobiographical) book about a sophisticated couple whose marriage seems just fine until she learns he's been having an affair—while she's pregnant! Lightweight, superficial story is supercharged by two charismatic stars, who make it a must-see. Director Forman's acting debut. [R]▼●●

Heart Condition (1990) C-95m. *½ D:

James D. Parriott. Bob Hoskins, Denzel Washington, Chloe Webb, Roger E. Mosley, Ja'net DuBois, Alan Rachins, Ray Baker, Jeffrey Meek. Superficial but entertaining yarn about a crass, bigoted L.A. cop who gets a heart transplant and learns, to his dismay, that the donor was the slick black lawyer he'd been stalking. What's more, the deceased appears as a ghost/companion who wants the cop to help avenge his murder. Outlandish premise made palatable by its two dynamic leads. [R]▼●●

Heart Is a Lonely Hunter, The (1968)

C-125m.  D: Robert Ellis Miller. Alan Arkin, Sondra Locke, Laurinda Barrett, Stacy Keach, Jr., Chuck McCann, Biff McGuire, Percy Rodriguez, Cicely Tyson, Jackie Marlowe. Heart-rending drama of a deaf mute's lonely world, and how he helps an adolescent girl struggling to find herself.

Sincere adaptation of Carson McCullers' novel, set in the Deep South, benefits from moving performances—including Arkin, Locke (whose debut film this was), and comic actor McCann, in a revelatory change-of-pace part as Arkin's simple-minded mute friend. Also marked film debut for Keach. [G]▼

Heart Is Deceitful Above All Things, The (2004-U.S.-British-French-Japanese) C-97m.

* D: Asia Argento. Asia Argento, Jimmy Bennett, Cole Sprouse, Dylan Sprouse, Peter Fonda, Ben Foster, Ornella Muti, Kip Pardue, Michael Pitt, Marilyn Manson, Jeremy Sisto. Pretentious drama about a woman who is ill equipped for parenthood but gains custody of her young son, who has been in foster care. He's justifiably angry; she callously toys with his feelings, with no regard for his safety. One-note film may be read as an outsider's warped view of an American heartland populated by abusive parents, pervers, and hypocritical Bible-thumping rednecks. Argento also scripted. Winona Ryder appears unbilled. [R]●

Heartland (1979) C-96m. ½ D: Richard Pearce. Rip Torn, Conchata Ferrell, Barry Primus, Lilia Skala, Megan Folson, Amy Wright. Simple, well-told story of hearty Americans surviving the rigors of frontier life, circa 1910. Ferrell plays a young widow who accepts a job as housekeeper for dour rancher Torn in the wilds of Wyoming. Well acted, well filmed, and beautifully understated; based on the actual diaries of a pioneer woman. [PG]▼●

Heartland Reggae (1980-Canadian) C-87m. BOMB D: J. P. Lewis. Bob Marley and the Wailers, Peter Tosh, Jacob Miller and the Inner Circle Band, Althea and Donna. Shoddy documentary of '78 concert commemorating a visit to Jamaica by Haile Selassie. Even the music can't save it.▼

Heart Like a Wheel (1983) C-113m.

*½ D: Jonathan Kaplan. Bonnie Bedelia, Beau Bridges, Leo Rossi, Hoyt Axton, Bill McKinney, Anthony Edwards, Dean Paul Martin, Paul Bartel, Dick Miller, Terence Knox. Well-made but curiously uninspiring bio of race-car driver Shirley Muldowney, who had to fight sexism—and the conflict of career vs. marriage—to become a champion on the track. Bedelia's performance is outstanding, but disjointed narrative—particularly where her relationship with racer Connie Kalitta (Bridges) is concerned—is a handicap. [PG]▼●●

Heart of Dixie (1989) C-95m. ½ D:

Martin Davidson. Ally Sheedy, Virginia Madsen, Phoebe Cates, Treat Williams, Don Michael Paul, Kyle Secor, Francesca Roberts, Kurtwood Smith, Richard Bradford, Barbara Babcock. Forgettable story of Alabama college sorority in the late 1950s and one girl's awakening to larger realities of life—including the mistreatment of blacks in the South. Superficial and uninvolved, to say the least. [PG]▼●●

Heart of Glass (1976-German) C-93m.

 D: Werner Herzog. Josef Bierbichler, Stefan Autter, Clemens Scheitz, Volker Prechtel, Sonia Skiba. A glassblower has died without revealing the secret formula of his craft, and this has a profound, disturbing effect on his fellow townspeople. Thematically muddled but visually stunning; crammed with stark, graphic, beautiful images. Based on a Bavarian legend; Herzog each day put his cast into a hypnotic trance, to attempt to achieve an effect of collective hysteria.▼●

Heart of Me, The (2003-British) C-96m.

½ D: Thaddeus O'Sullivan. Helena Bonham Carter, Olivia Williams, Paul Bettany, Eleanor Bron, Luke Newberry, Tom Ward, Gillian Hanna, Andrew Havill, Alison Reid. A fine cast enlivens this earnest soap opera about an upper-class gent in 1930s London falling into an indiscreet affair with his wife's sister. Well made, with good period detail, this film works mainly as a showcase for its actors. Based on the novel by Rosamond Lehmann. [R]▼●

Heart of Midnight (1988) C-93m. *½ D:

Matthew Chapman. Jennifer Jason Leigh, Peter Coyote, Gale Mayron, Sam Schacht, Denise Dummont, Frank Stallone, Brenda Vaccaro, Steve Buscemi. Psychological thriller about a young woman teetering on the edge of sanity, who inherits a seedy sex club which attracts a sick clientele. Good performance by Leigh and artsy approach to subject are minor diversions in this muddled and unpleasant film. Written by the director. [R]▼●

Heart of the Game, The (2006) C-97m.

½ D: Ward Serrill. Narrated by Chris "Ludacris" Bridges. Filmmaker Serrill spent seven years filming a Seattle-area high school girls' basketball team, and his first gift was finding its unorthodox coach (college tax prof Bill Resler, moonlighting). Eventually, he was awarded a second (player Darnellia Russell, gifted but a bundle of emotions) and the kind of unanticipated personal/legal plot twist that has to be the dream of all documentarians. HOOP DREAMS originated this kind of movie, but this is an extraordinary story and it gets the crowd-pleasing rendering it deserves. [PG-13]●

Heart of the Matter, The (1953-British)

105m.  D: George More O'Ferrall. Trevor Howard, Elizabeth Allan, Maria Schell, Denholm Elliott. Graham Greene's novel of inner and outward conflict set in Sierra Leone, with Howard as police officer on verge of mental collapse.

Heart of the Stag (1984-New Zealand)

C-91m.  D: Michael Firth. Bruno Lawrence, Mary Regan, Terence Cooper, Anne Flannery. Lawrence is mysterious stranger who signs on as a farmhand and disrupts in-cestuous relationship of Cooper and his red-headed daughter Regan. Pretentious drama benefits from good acting, tense musical score by Leonard Rosenman. [R]▼●

Hearts and Armour (1982-Italian) C-

101m.  D: Giacomo Battiato. Tanya Roberts, Barbara De Rossi, Zeudi Araya, Rick Edwards, Leigh McCloskey, Ron Moss. Well-mounted but confusing fantasy based on the 1516 classic Orlando Furioso by Ludovico Ariosto. De Rossi is a sexy female warrior in knight's armor fighting in the war between Christians and Moors. American stars such as Roberts and McCloskey add little to a film (also shot in TV miniseries form) aimed at an international audience. Technovision.▼

Hearts and Minds (1974) C-110m. ½

D: Peter Davis. Oscar-winning documentary about our misguided involvement in Vietnam was political hot potato for a while, but may rate more frequent showings now that the country has caught up with it. Packs a wallop, regardless of one's political persuasion. [R]▼●●

Hearts in Atlantis (2001) C-101m.  D:

Scott Hicks. Anthony Hopkins, Hope Davis, David Morse, Anton Yelchin, Mika Boorem, Alan Tudyk, Celia Weston, Tom Bower. An impressionable boy, being raised by his mother—who resents single parenthood—falls under the spell of a mysterious, charismatic stranger who comes to board with them. Mushy mumbo-jumbo, nostalgically set in 1960. Adapted by William Goldman from two short stories—Stephen King's—but not the one that bore this title! Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Hearts of Darkness: A Filmmaker's Apocalypse (1991) C-96m. ½ D: Fax Bahr, George Hickenlooper. Top-notch documentary detailing the disaster-laden production of Francis Coppola's 1979 Vietnam epic, APOCALYPSE NOW. Expertly mixes footage shot by Eleanor Coppola (the director's wife) during the film's shooting in the Philippines and decade-later interviews with crew and cast (excluding Marlon Brando, who declined to participate). Revealing peek into the filmmaking process and a record of events during this particular film's chaotic shoot. [R]▼●●

Hearts of Fire (1987) C-95m. BOMB D:

Richard Marquand. Fiona (Flanagan), Rupert Everett, Bob Dylan, Julian Glover, Suzanne Bertish, Ian Dury, Richie Havens, Larry Lamb, Maury Chaykin. Perfectly dreadful account of the rise of a rock singer (Fiona), and her relationships with her mentors: a British pop star (Everett) and a cynical, retired rock legend (who else but Dylan). Dylan's first screen appearance since 1978's RENALDO AND CLARA; Marquand's final credit as director. This turkey played briefly in England in 1987, and was released to video in 1990. There are 19 songs on the soundtrack (but none memorable enough to raise its rating). J-D-C Scope. [R] ▼●

Hearts of the West (1975) C-102m.  D: Howard Zieff. Jeff Bridges, Andy Griffith, Donald Pleasence, Blythe Danner, Alan Arkin, Richard B. Shull, Herb Edelman, Alex Rocco, Marie Windsor, Dub Taylor, William Christopher. Offbeat comedy. Starry-eyed Bridges comes to 1930s Hollywood hoping to be a Western writer, winds up starring in cheap cowboy films instead. Enjoyable but low-key. [PG] ▼

Heat (1987) C-101m. BOMB D: R. M. Richards. Burt Reynolds, Karen Young, Peter MacNicol, Howard Hesseman, Neill Barry, Diana Scarwid, Joe Mascolo, Alfie Wise. Dim, dingy, scattershot film (written by William Goldman, of all people) about a Las Vegas tough, whose exact livelihood is never defined, but who knows how to handle the low-lives—and teaches “protégé” MacNicol all he knows. So what? [R] ▼●●

Heat (1995) C-172m. ½ D: Michael Mann. Al Pacino, Robert De Niro, Val Kilmer, Jon Voight, Tom Sizemore, Diane Venora, Amy Brenneman, Ashley Judd, Mykelti Williamson, Wes Studi, Ted Levine, Dennis Haysbert, William Fichtner, Natalie Portman, Tom Noonan, Kevin Gage, Hank Azaria, Henry Rollins, Tone Loc, Jeremy Piven. Dynamite cops-and-robbers saga, with Pacino an obsessive, supersmart L.A. detective on the trail of high-tech, high-precision robber De Niro and his tight-knit gang. It turns out that the two have more in common than either one might think. A fascinating, multilayered character study studded with gripping (and often violent) action scenes, plus a chance to see two of the world’s greatest actors working together—even though they share precious little screen time. Overlength is the only criticism of this crackerjack contemporary drama. Mann scripted, reworking his 1989 TV movie L.A. TAKEDOWN. Bud Cort appears unbilled. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Heat and Dust (1983-British) C-130m.  D: James Ivory. Julie Christie, Greta Scacchi, Christopher Cazenove, Julian Glover, Susan Fleetwood, Shashi Kapoor, Madhur Jaffrey, Barry Foster, Zakir Husain, Patrick Godfrey. Englishwomen Scacchi and great-niece Christie, 60 years apart, fall in love with India and become pregnant by natives—yet still remain outsiders in a land they can never fully comprehend. Intelligent drama, lovely performances. Screenplay by Ruth Praver Jhabvala, from her novel. [R] ▼●

Heat and Sunlight (1988) C-98m. ½ D: Rob Nilsson. Rob Nilsson, Consuelo Faust, Don Bajema, Ernie Fossetius, Bill Bailey, Bill Ackridge. Photographer Nilsson must deal with his feelings and obsessions as his love affair with dancer Faust ends. Lively in its best moments, but also meanders and lacks structure. Characters are the most interesting element here. ▼●●

Heathers (1989) C-102m. ½ D: Michael Lehmann. Winona Ryder, Christian Slater, Shannen Doherty, Lisanne Falk, Kim Walker, Penelope Milford, Glenn Shadix, Lance Fenton. Sharp, somewhat smug satire of high school social strata, with Ryder in a terrific performance as a girl who hangs out with the school’s bitch-queens but doesn’t feel quite comfortable about their reign of terror. Outrageous black humor works at first, but isn’t sustained; uneven script goes far astray. Slater is commanding in his Jack Nicholson-esque performance. Feature debut for director Lehmann and writer Daniel Waters, with many virtues as well as flaws. [R] ▼●●

Heat of Desire (1980-French) C-90m.  D: Luc Beraud. Patrick Dewaere, Clio Goldsmith, Jeanne Moreau, Guy Marchand, Pierre Dux, Jose-Luis Lopez Vasquez. Happily married university professor is whisked away for spontaneous sex by mysterious, loose-living free spirit, who soon destroys his marriage and scuttles his career. Silly but sometimes sexy heavy-breather; several screen-filling shots of Goldsmith’s ample frame. U.S. release: 1984. [R] ▼●●

Heat’s On, The (1943) 80m. ½ D: Gregory Ratoff. Mae West, Victor Moore, William Gaxton, Lester Allen, Mary Roche, Hazel Scott, Xavier Cugat, Lloyd Bridges. Mae’s last starring vehicle (for several decades) is a routine show-biz musical about a star involved with conniving producers. Befuddled Moore and colorful Cugat are fun, but there isn’t enough of West in this film; when she’s on screen, she’s just as funny as ever. ▼

Heatwave (1983-Australian) C-99m.  D: Phillip Noyce. Judy Davis, Richard Moir, Chris Haywood, Bill Hunter, John Gregg, Anna Jemison. Radical Davis protests destruction of neighborhood for $100 million redevelopment project by firm which might have mob connections. Situation further complicated by attraction between her and project architect Moir in this Aussie counterpart to CHINATOWN. From a real-life incident, which also inspired THE KILLING OF ANGEL STREET. [R] ▼

Heaven (1987) C-80m.  D: Diane Keaton. Nothing if not bizarre, this personal project of Keaton’s intersperses oddly shot interviews with non sequitur clips from old movies on the subject of Heaven: how to get there, what it will be like, if it exists, etc. Clips range from METROPOLIS to THE HORN BLOWS AT MIDNIGHT—what's the point? [PG-13] ▼●●

Heaven (1998) C-103m.  D: Scott Reynolds. Martin Donovan, Danny Edwards, Richard Schiff, Joanna Going, Patrick Malahide, Karl Urban. An intriguing premise goes unrealized in this muddled psychological thriller about a deeply troubled architect (Donovan) with a severe gambling problem who's been rejected by his wife. Endless, confusing plot twists are set into motion when he mixes with Heaven (Edwards), a transvestite stripper who is also clairvoyant. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Heaven (2002-U.S.-German) C-96m.  D: Tom Tykwer. Cate Blanchett, Giovanni Ribisi, Mattia Sbragia, Alberto Di Stasio, Remo Gironi, Alessandro Sperduti, Francesca Neri. English schoolteacher living in Italy, frustrated by a corrupt drug culture that's harming her students, plants a bomb in the office of a local bigwig and suffers the consequences. During her police interrogation, a young, naïve translator falls in love with her and helps her escape. Ethereal, existential drama takes us on a surprising journey—with the always-riveting Blanchett at its core. This was the final screenplay written by Krzysztof Kieslowski with his partner, Krzysztof Piesiewicz. [R] ▼●

Heaven and Earth (1990-Japanese) C-106m. ½ D: Haruki Kadokawa. Takaai Enoki, Masahiko Tsugawa, Atsuko Asano, Tsunehiko Watase, Naomi Zaizen, Binpachi Ito; narrated by Stuart Whitman. Physically impressive, large-scale Samurai epic, notable for budget (reportedly over $40 million) and because much of it was shot in Canada! Lacks the mastery of a Kurosawa at the helm, but fans of big battle scenes may enjoy it anyway. Released in Japan at 119m. ▼●

Heaven & Earth (1993) C-140m. ½ D: Oliver Stone. Tommy Lee Jones, Hiep Thi Le, Joan Chen, Haing S. Ngor, Debbie Reynolds, Dustin Nguyen, Conchata Ferrell, Vivian Wu, Dale Dye, Liem Whitley. Vietnamese woman's painful odyssey from a peaceful childhood in a peasant village to a lifetime of upheaval both in Vietnam and the U.S. This true story (based on two published memoirs by Le Ly Hayslip) tells of a woman forever caught between forces of North and South in her native country; between the spiritual and the practical; between Vietnamese and American ways. A jumbled narrative, difficult to watch at times, but writer-director Stone lets us share the character's emotional catharsis at the conclusion. Hayslip can be seen briefly as a jewelry broker; Jeffrey Jones appears unbilled as a priest. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Heaven Can Wait (1943) C-112m. ½ D: Ernst Lubitsch. Gene Tierney, Don Ameche, Charles Coburn, Marjorie Main, Laird Cregar, Spring Byington, Allyn Joslyn,

Eugene Palette, Signe Hasso, Louis Calhern. Excellent comedy-fantasy told in flashback. Ameche, who believes he's lived a life of sin, recalls his past as he requests admission to Hades. Witty Samson Raphaelson script helps make this a delight. Based on the play Birthdays by Laszlo Bus-Fekete. ▼●●

Heaven Can Wait (1978) C-100m.  D: Warren Beatty and Buck Henry. Warren Beatty, Julie Christie, Jack Warden, Dyan Cannon, Charles Grodin, James Mason, Buck Henry, Vincent Gardenia. Gentle, pleasing remake of HERE COMES MR. JORDAN with Beatty as good-natured football player who is taken to heaven ahead of schedule, and has to return to 'life' in another man's body. Amiable but never moving, with Christie miscast as the woman who inspires Beatty. Scripted by Beatty and Elaine May. This was remade as DOWN TO EARTH (2001). [PG] ▼●●

Heaven Help Us (1985) C-104m.  D: Michael Dinner. Donald Sutherland, John Heard, Andrew McCarthy, Mary Stuart Masterson, Kevin Dillon, Malcolm Danare, Jennie Dundas, Kate Reid, Wallace Shawn, Philip Bosco, Patrick Dempsey, Christopher Durang. Very funny evocation of Catholic high school life in Brooklyn, circa 1965, with solid ring of truth throughout. Shawn has hilarious cameo as priest who kicks off school dance with denunciation of lust. Impressive feature debuts for writer Charles Purpura and director Dinner. [R] ▼●●

Heavenly Creatures (1994-New Zealand) C-99m. ½ D: Peter Jackson. Melanie Lynskey, Kate Winslet, Sarah Peirse, Diana Kent, Clive Merrison, Simon O'Connor. Dark, exhilarating story based on the true-life case of New Zealand teenagers Pauline Parker and Juliet Hulme, whose obsessive relationship drove them to murder. Very well acted, and stunningly directed by Jackson, who plunges us into the bizarre fantasy world that the girls create for themselves. The real-life Hulme, it was later discovered, has written best-selling murder mysteries for years under the pseudonym Anne Perry. Jackson also cowrote the screenplay with Frances Walsh. Director's cut runs 109m. Original New Zealand running time: 108m. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

teen of the early '60s who dies in a chicken race and can't get into heaven—until he helps out a young nerd in the 1980s. [PG-13]▼

Heavenly Pursuits SEE: Gospel According to Vic, The

Heaven's Gate (1980) C-149m.  D: Michael Cimino. Kris Kristofferson, Christopher Walken, Isabelle Huppert, Jeff Bridges, John Hurt, Sam Waterston, Brad Dourif, Joseph Cotten, Geoffrey Lewis, Richard Masur, Terry O'Quinn, Mickey Rourke, Willem Dafoe. Writer-director Cimino's now-notorious spectacle is missing just one thing: a story. It deals, more or less, with the conflict between immigrant settlers of 19th-century Wyoming and the ruthless American empire-builders who want them eliminated. Stunningly photographed (by Vilmos Zsigmond) on magnificent locations, with incredible period detail—all to little effect, since the narrative, character motivations, and soundtrack are so hopelessly muddled. Originally shown at 219m. Panavision. [R]▼

Heaven's Prisoners (1996) C-126m. ½ D: Phil Joanou. Alec Baldwin, Mary Stuart Masterson, Kelly Lynch, Eric Roberts, Teri Hatcher, Vondie Curtis Hall. Alcoholic former New Orleans cop Baldwin and his wife Lynch rescue a little girl from a wrecked aircraft, but this leads to involvement with drug runners and murder. Adaptation of James Lee Burke's popular novel about a Cajun detective is too long and slow, and captures little of the regional atmosphere; except for the miscast Baldwin, the cast is excellent, especially Masterson as a stripper and Roberts as a drug lord. Tommy Lee Jones later played detective Dave Robicheaux in IN THE ELECTRIC MIST. [R]▼

Heaven With a Gun (1969) C-101m. ½ D: Lee H. Katzin. Glenn Ford, Carolyn Jones, Barbara Hershey, John Anderson, David Carradine. Peace-loving man is forced to return to world of violence in the Old West. Uneven. Panavision. [M]

Heavy (1996) C-105m. ½ D: James Mangold. Pruitt Taylor Vince, Liv Tyler, Shelley Winters, Deborah Harry, Joe Grifasi, Evan Dando. Somber character study about Victor (Vince), a chubby, balding, hopelessly shy pizza chef who toils in a rural eatery run by his widowed mother (Winters). Enter a pretty teen (Tyler), the new waitress; Victor fantasizes about becoming her boyfriend and savior. There is a sense of sadness and eloquence to Victor, but not quite enough.▼

Heavy Metal (1981-Canadian) C-90m.  D: Gerald Potterton. Voices of Richard Romanus, John Candy, Joe Flaherty, Don Francks, Eugene Levy, Harold Ramis, John Vernon. Episodic animated feature is uneven, but great fun on a mindless, adolescent level. Sexy sci-fi stories and vignettes in a variety of graphic styles, many set to rock music. Our favorites: "Harry Canyon," about a N.Y.C. cabbie of the future, and "Den," a boy's macho fantasy. Film is actually the work of many animation studios, directors, and writers around the world. Followed in 2000 by an in-name-only direct-to-video sequel. [R]▼

Heavy Petting (1988) C-80m. ½ D: Obie Benz. David Byrne, Sandra Bernhard, Allen Ginsberg, Ann Magnuson, Spalding Gray, Josh Mostel, Laurie Anderson, John Oates, Abbie Hoffman, Jacki Ochs. ATOMIC CAFE-style look at sexual mores in the 1950s, punctuated by celebrity interviews and highlighted by hysterical period film clips. Scattershot quasi-documentary lacks strong point of view, but it's tough to knock a film in which such "witnesses" as David Byrne, William S. Burroughs, and Zoe Tamerlis (of MS. 45 cultdom) offer their views on teen dating. [R]▼

Heavy Traffic (1973) C-76m. ½ D: Ralph Bakshi. Animated feature is somewhat pretentious and largely gross in telling of young New Yorker depressed by sights and sounds around him, finding refuge at drawing-board. Dazzling cinematic treatment, with often revolutionary combination of live-action and animation. Some brilliant set-pieces within loose story framework. [R—edited from original X rating]▼

Heavyweights (1994) C-97m.  D: Steven Brill. Tom McGowan, Aaron Schwartz, Ben Stiller, Shaun Weiss, Tom Hodges, Leah Lail, Paul Feig, Max Goldblatt, Jeffrey Tambor, Jerry Stiller, Anne Meara. Yet another summer camp movie, this one about a haven for overweight kids where, as the press release said, "big is beautiful and thin isn't in." That is, until campers meet up with the fitness counselor of their nightmares. This heavy-handed comedy's intended "message" about self-esteem is undermined by a barrage of fat jokes! [PG]▼

Hedda (1975-British) C-104m. ½ D: Trevor Nunn. Glenda Jackson, Peter Eyre, Timothy West, Jennie Linden, Patrick Stewart. Royal Shakespeare Company production of Ibsen's Hedda Gabler attains a modicum of vitality from Jackson's showy performance in the title role. So-so. [PG]▼
Hedwig and the Angry Inch (2001) C-91m.  D: John Cameron Mitchell. John Cameron Mitchell, Miriam Shor, Stephen Trask, Theodore Liscinski, Rob Campbell,

Michael Aronov, Andrea Martin. Hedwig is an "internationally ignored" rock star, the survivor of a botched sex-change operation whose dumping by the boy-toy rock idol he helped nurture has left him dazed and embittered. Very offbeat off-Broadway musical is cleverly filmed by its author-star in an impressive directing debut. Even wary viewers might be pulled in by the terrific score (by costar Trask) and inventive musical numbers. Imaginative animation by Emily Hubley. [R]▼

He Got Game (1998) C-136m. ½ D: Spike Lee. Denzel Washington, Ray Allen, Milla Jovovich, Rosario Dawson, Hill Harper, Zelda Harris, Ned Beatty, Jim Brown, Joseph Lyle Taylor, Bill Nunn, John Turturro, Lonette McKee. A prisoner is freed for one week to convince his son—the country's hottest high school basketball player—to sign with the state governor's favorite college. Far-fetched premise is played out with conviction, but its points are obvious and hammered home redundantly. Redeemed by strong characterizations and powerful moments. Many basketball stars and coaches appear as themselves; young Allen is himself an NBA player. [R]▼

Heidi (1937) 88m. ½ D: Allan Dwan. Shirley Temple, Jean Hersholt, Arthur Treacher, Helen Westley, Mady Christians, Sidney Blackmer, Sig Ruman, Marcia Mae Jones, Mary Nash. Classic children's story set in 19th-century Switzerland is good vehicle for Shirley, playing girl taken from grandfather (Hersholt) to live with cruel Nash. Nice tear-jerker for children. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼

Heidi (1965-Austrian-German) C-95m.  D: Werner Jacobs. Eva Marie Singhammer, Gertraud Mittermayr, Gustav Knuth, Lotte Ledi. Fine retelling of classic children's story about young girl who leaves her cozy home in Swiss Alps for adventures in the world below.▼

Heidi's Song (1982) C-94m. *½ D: Robert Taylor. Voices of Lorne Greene, Sammy Davis, Jr., Margery Gray, Michael Bell, Peter Cullen. Animated feature from Hanna-Barbera studio reprises all-too familiar Heidi tale. Despite songs by Sammy Cahn and Burton Lane, awkward continuity, lifeless animation and an excess of cute animals leave this little better than most Saturday morning fare. [G]▼

Heights (2005) C-93m.  D: Chris Terrio. Glenn Close, Elizabeth Banks, James Marsden, Jesse Bradford, Matt Davis, John Light, Andrew Howard, Eric Bogosian, George Segal, Isabella Rossellini, Rufus Wainwright, Tom (Thomas) Lennon. Compelling look at 24 hours in the life of hip, young Manhattanites, both gay and straight, and their tumultuous romantic relationships. Anchored by Close's bravura turn as an aging theater legend. Stylish feature debut

Heimat (1984-German) C/B&W-940m.  D: Edgar Reitz. Marita Breuer, Dieter Schaad, Rudiger Weigang, Karin Rasenack, Willi Burger, Gertrud Bredel, Mathias Kniesbeck. No, that running time is not a typo! This is an ambitious epic, almost 16 hours in length, about life in a provincial German village between 1919 and 1982. First few hours are generally more compelling than the last. Has its boring stretches, and after a while it does seem like a glorified soap opera, but at its best, perceptive, comic, even poetic. Gernot Roll's cinematography is exquisite. Followed by two sequels.▼

Heiress, The (1949) 115m. * D: William Wyler. Olivia de Havilland, Ralph Richardson, Montgomery Clift, Miriam Hopkins, Vanessa Brown, Mona Freeman, Ray Collins, Selena Royle. Henry James' novel Washington Square receives superlative screen treatment with Oscar-winning de Havilland as spinster wooed by fortune-hunter Clift in 19th-century N.Y.C., despite warnings from her cruel father, Richardson. Aaron Copland's music score also won an Oscar. Adapted by Ruth and Augustus Goetz from their stage play. Remade in 1997 as WASHINGTON SQUARE.▼

Heir to Genghis Khan, The SEE: Storm Over Asia

Heist (2001) C-107m. ½ D: David Mamet. Gene Hackman, Danny DeVito, Delroy Lindo, Sam Rockwell, Rebecca Pidgeon, Ricky Jay, Patti LuPone, Jim Frangione. Career criminal is ready to retire with his girlfriend, but his backer insists on one more robbery—a daring heist of a Swiss cargo plane. Hackman and his crew aren't just thieves, they're master con artists, so the film is overloaded with cons, twists, twists on cons, etc. Mamet's script is sharp and funny but perhaps too clever for its own good; by the end it's no longer satisfying. [R]▼

He Knows You're Alone (1981) C-94m. *½ D: Armand Mastroianni. Don Scardino, Caitlin O'Heaney, Elizabeth Kemp, Tom Roling, Patsy Pease, Tom Hanks, Dana Barron, Paul Gleason. Yet another entry in slice-and-dice genre, this one with minor novelty of brides-to-be as victims. A bit less bloody than others of its ilk; otherwise, business as usual. Hanks' film debut. AKA BLOOD WEDDING. [R]▼

pardieu, Laurence Masliah, Bernard Verley, Jean-Louis Loca. Pensive account of an average married couple (Depardieu and Masliah) who reside in a Swiss village, and what happens when the husband's body supposedly is borrowed by a "god." Of interest as an examination of the meaning of faith, but the narrative is much too fragmented and the film too cluttered with declarations and episode headings. Godard based his screenplay in part on Greek legend. Video title: OH, WOE IS ME. ▼

Held Up (2000) C-91m. *½ D: Steve Rash. Jamie Foxx, Nia Long, Barry Corbin, John Cullum, Jake Busey, Michael Shamus Wiles, Eduardo Yanez, Sarah Paulson, Julie Hagerty. While vacationing in the Grand Canyon, Long dumps her fiancé (Foxx) upon learning that he's spent their nest egg on a vintage Studebaker. Then the car is stolen . . . and finally, Foxx is taken hostage. The real crime is that time-wasters like this make it to the screen. [PG-13] ▼

Helen Morgan Story, The (1957) 118m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Ann Blyth, Paul Newman, Richard Carlson, Gene Evans, Alan King, Cara Williams. Fiction about dynamic 1920s and '30s torch singer, dwelling on her romances and alcoholism; Blyth never captures the star's pathos or greatness. She's dubbed by Gogi Grant. CinemaScope. ▼

Helen of Troy (1956) C-118m.  D: Robert Wise. Stanley Baker, Rossana Podesta, Brigitte Bardot, Jacques Sernas, Cedric Hardwicke, Harry Andrews. Sweeping pageantry, but empty script spoils this version of story about the woman who caused the Trojan War. Filmed in Italy. CinemaScope. ▼

Hell and High Water (1954) C-103m. ½ D: Samuel Fuller. Richard Widmark, Bella Darvi, Victor Francen, Cameron Mitchell, Gene Evans, David Wayne, Stephen Bekassy, Richard Loo. Uneven mixture of romance, espionage, and a demolition caper, stemming from submarine mission to Arctic. Tame film got a boost from being shot in CinemaScope. ▽

Hellbenders, The (1967-Italian-Spanish) C-92m. *½ D: Sergio Corbucci. Joseph Cotten, Norma Bengell, Julian Mateos, Gino Pernice, Angel Aranda, Maria Martin. Dreary spaghetti Western in which crazed ex-Confederate officer Cotten schemes to rekindle the rebel cause, facing a variety of complications and crises. ▼

Hellbent (2005) C-85m.  D: Paul Etheredge-Oultz. Dylan Fergus, Bryan Kirkwood, Hank Harris, Andrew Levitas, Matt Phillips, Wren T. Brown. A group of gay men find themselves stalked by a serial killer during West Hollywood's Halloween parade. This "first gay slasher film" (as its ads proclaimed) has moments that cleverly combine and send up slasher movie conventions and gay stereotypes, but it isn't much scarier or more entertaining than typical made-for-video horror fare. Still, after years of watching movies where straight people act stupid and get killed, gay horror fans may welcome a mediocre genre picture to call their own. [R] ▽

Hellbound (1993-U.S.-Canadian-Israeli) C-95m. *½ D: Aaron Norris. Chuck Norris, Calvin Levels, Christopher Neame, Sherie J. Wilson, David Robb, Cherie Franklin, Jack Adalst, Erez Atar. After being imprisoned by Richard the Lion-Hearted in 1186, Satan's emissary (Neame) is freed in modern times to face a more formidable foe: Chuck Norris. Too much acting from Neame, not enough from Norris, and a silly story with little action. This sat on the shelf for two years before going direct to video. Some attractive Israeli settings. [R] ▼

Hellbound: Hellraiser II (1988-British) C-97m. *½ D: Tony Randel. Ashley Laurence, Clare Higgins, Kenneth Cranham, Imogen Boorman, Sean Chapman, Doug Bradley, William Hope. Confusing, tedious sequel begins immediately after first film ends. Teenage heroine literally goes to Hell in effort to rescue ill-fated father, but encounters opposition from her revived stepmother and an occult-obsessed psychiatrist. But Hell is a boring, dusty labyrinth. Almost as gruesome as HELLRAISER (it's not a sequel to HELLBOUND), but nowhere near as entertaining. Followed by HELLRAISER III: HELL ON EARTH. [R] ▼

Hellboy (2004) C-125m.  D: Guillermo del Toro. Ron Perlman, John Hurt, Selma Blair, Rupert Evans, Karel Roden, Jeffrey Tambor, Doug Jones, Ladislav Beran, Bridget Hodson. Explosive adaptation of Mike Mignola's comic book about a powerful creature born during a (literally) hellish confrontation during WW2; nowadays he works as a "secret weapon" for the U.S. government. Only problem: he's a bit of a wiseguy. Enough effects and imaginative ideas for at least two movies stuffed into one, leavened by a disarming sense of humor. Perlman is terrific as the cigar-chomping, emotionally vulnerable Hellboy. Del Toro also scripted. David Hyde Pierce provides the uncredited voice for Abe Sapien. Director's cut runs 145m. Followed by an animated series and a sequel. [PG-13] ▼

Hellboy II: The Golden Army (2008) C-110m.  D: Guillermo del Toro. Ron Perlman, Selma Blair, Jeffrey Tambor, Doug Jones, John Alexander, James Dodd, Luke Goss, Anna Walton, John Hurt, Roy Dotrice; voice of Seth MacFarlane. Now married but just as ornery as ever, Hellboy (or Red, as his wife Liz calls him) and his paranormal partners battle a power-hungry "dark prince" who's determined to awaken a slumbering army of mechanical soldiers and take over the world. This one's all about the journey, not the destination; filled with wildly imaginative creatures, special effects set pieces, and the snarky sense of humor shared by del Toro and Mike Mignola, who created the Hellboy comic books. Only complaint: it goes on too long. [PG-13] ▾

Hellcats of the Navy (1957) 82m. ½ D: Nathan Juran. Ronald Reagan, Nancy Davis (Reagan), Arthur Franz, Harry Lauter, Selmer Jackson. Satisfactory actioner of WW2 exploits of U.S. submarine and its crew. Ronald and Nancy Reagan's only screen appearance together. ▽ ▾

Hell Comes to Frogtown (1987) C-88m. ½ D: R. J. Kizer, Donald G. Jackson. Roddy Piper, Sandahl Bergman, Rory Calhoun, Cec Verrill, William Smith, Nicholas Worth, Kristi Sommers. Goofy post-holocaust tale with wrestler "Rowdy" Roddy as the only fertile male left on earth, who sets out to rescue women being held captive by froglike mutants. At least the frog masks are good. 1992 sequel: RETURN TO FROGTOWN. [R] ▾ ● ●

Hell Divers (1932) 113m.  D: George Hill. Wallace Beery, Clark Gable, Conrad Nagel, Dorothy Jordan, Marjorie Rambeau, Marie Prevost, Cliff Edwards. Beery and Gable are boisterous rivals in the Naval Air Force in this often lively but overlong MGM effort, with some still-exciting aerial action. Watch for young Robert Young as a sailor.

Hell Drivers (1957-British) 91m. ½ D: Cy Endfield. Stanley Baker, Herbert Lom, Peggy Cummins, Patrick McGeehan, Jill Ireland, Gordon Jackson, David McCallum, Sean Connery. Taut account of ex-con trucker carrying heavy cargoes over rugged roads and trying to expose boss' racket. British running time: 108m. VistaVision.

Heller in Pink Tights (1960) C-100m. ½ D: George Cukor. Sophia Loren, Anthony Quinn, Margaret O'Brien, Steve Forrest, Edmund Lowe. Colorful tale of theatrical troupe that travels throughout the Old West—with the law often in pursuit. Based on a Louis L'Amour novel. ▽ ▾

Hellfighters (1968) C-121m.  D: Andrew V. McLaglen. John Wayne, Katharine Ross, Jim Hutton, Vera Miles, Bruce Cabot, Jay C. Flippen. Broadly acted adventure about men who fight oil fires is made endurable by good cast. Wayne's character is based on real-life oil well firefighter Red Adair. Panavision. [R] ▾ ● ●

Hellfire Club, The (1961-British) C-93m.  D: Robert S. Baker, Monty Berman. Keith Michell, Adrienne Cori, Peter Cushing, Peter Arne, Kai Fischer, David Lodge, Martin Stephens, Miles Malleon, Francis Matthews. Lively, entertaining 18th-century swashbuckler with familiar rightful- vs. wrongful-heir plot; acrobatic Michell makes a dashing hero. The depraved, powerful, real-life club of the title serves as backdrop. DyaliScope. ▽ ▾

Hell in the Pacific (1968) C-103m.  D: John Boorman. Lee Marvin, Toshiro Mifune. Two men, one American, one

Japanese, confront each other on deserted WW2 Pacific island. Gripping idea well executed, with two dynamic actors; only the finale disappoints. Panavision. ▽ ● ●

Hellions, The (1962-British) C-87m. ½ D: Ken Annakin. Richard Todd, Anne Aubrey, Lionel Jeffries, Zena Walker, Jamie Uys, Marty Wilde. Western revenge plot transferred to 19th-century South Africa; inevitable shoot-out intact. Technirama.

Hell Is for Heroes (1962) 90m.  D: Donald Siegel. Steve McQueen, Bobby Darin, Fess Parker, Harry Guardino, James Coburn, Mike Kellin, Nick Adams, Bob Newhart. Tough, taut WW2 film about a small squadron forced to hold off a German attack by pretending they're larger—and more powerful—than they really are. Takes its time getting started but builds in intensity to a riveting climax. Only incongruous note: presence of young Newhart, who even interpolates a variation on one of his telephone monologues into the story! Cowritten by WW2 specialist Robert Pirosh. ▽ ● ●

Hell Night (1981) C-101m. ½ D: Tom DeSimone. Linda Blair, Vincent Van Patten, Peter Barton, Jenny Neumann, Kevin Brophy, Suki Goodwin. How's that for originality? Four college fraternity/sorority pledges must spend a night in Garth Mansion, which is haunted by ghost of retarded killer. Unfortunately, reports of his death were greatly exaggerated. No nudity or explicit violence, which makes one wonder just what audience they had in mind. Extremely dull. [R] ▽ ▾

Hello Again (1987) C-96m.  D: Frank Perry. Shelley Long, Judith Ivey, Gabriel Byrne, Corbin Bernsen, Sela Ward, Austin Pendleton, Carrie Nye, Robert Lewis, Madeleine Potter, Illeana Douglas. Long Island housewife chokes to death but is brought back to life by her witchlike sister one year later . . . and soon discovers that she can't simply pick up her life where she left off. Contemporary comedy written by Susan Isaacs doesn't develop its premise with any logic or momentum, and quickly sags. Long tries her best. [PG] ▽ ● ●

Hello, Dolly! (1969) C-146m. ½ D: Gene Kelly. Barbra Streisand, Walter Matthau, Michael Crawford, E. J. Peaker, Marianne McAndrew, Tommy Tune, Louis Armstrong, Danny Lockin. Splashy treatment of smash Broadway play with Jerry Herman's popular score. Dolly Levi insists on playing matchmaker, even when she herself gets matched. Overblown and unmemorable, but colorful diversion. Based on Thornton Wilder's The Matchmaker (filmed in 1958). Oscar winner for Sound, Art Direction, and Score (Lennie Hayton and Lionel Newman). Some prints run 118m. Todd-AO. [G] ▽ ● ●

Hello Down There (1969) C-98m. ½ D: Jack Arnold. Tony Randall, Janet Leigh, Jim Backus, Roddy McDowall, Ken Berry,

Merv Griffin, Richard Dreyfuss. So-called comedy about family living in experimental underwater home might entertain children if you pay them to watch it. Reissued as SUB-A-DUB-DUB. [G]●

Hello Frisco, Hello (1943) C-98m.  D: H. Bruce Humberstone. Alice Faye, John Payne, Jack Oakie, Lynn Bari, Laird Cregar, June Havoc, Ward Bond. Hackneyed musicomedy of Payne getting too big for his britches as Barbary Coast entrepreneur; Oscar-winning song, "You'll Never Know." Big comedown from earlier musicals with star trio. ▼●

Hello-Goodbye (1970-British) C-107m. BOMB D: Jean Negulesco. Michael Crawford, Curt Jurgens, Genevieve Gilles, Ira Furstenberg, Lon Satton. Absymal love triangle goes nowhere, makes no sense. Awful, loose, and annoying. [PG]

Hello Mary Lou: Prom Night II (1987-Canadian) C-96m. ½ D: Bruce Pittman. Lisa Schrage, Michael Ironside, Wendy Lyon, Justin Louis. No relation to PROM NIGHT. Lyon, who looks great in or out of costume, is possessed by the spirit of a murdered prom queen and becomes her instrument of revenge. [R] ▼●●

Hellraiser (1987-British) C-94m. ½ D: Clive Barker. Andrew Robinson, Clare Higgins, Ashley Laurence, Sean Chapman, Oliver Smith, Robert Hines. Robinson and Higgins move into a roomy British dwelling, unaware that his half brother—and her former lover—is hiding upstairs in a kind of gelatinous/skeletal state; soon the beast is forcing her to lure stray men back to the house so he can replenish himself with their blood. Grisly but stylish directorial debut by famed horror novelist Barker; ugly fun all the way. Followed by HELLBOUND: HELLRAISER II. [R] ▼●●

Hellraiser III: Hell on Earth (1992) C-93m. *½ D: Anthony Hickox. Terry Farrell, Doug Bradley, Paula Marshall, Kevin Bernhardt, Ken Carpenter, Ashley Laurence. Further adventures of the gross-out Pinhead goes for the jokes, not the jugular. This time Pinhead crosses paths with an ambitious TV newswoman who winds up with the grisliest (if not the biggest) story of her career. Freddy and Jason are starting to look good by comparison. [R] ▼●●

Hellraiser: Bloodline (1996) C-85m. BOMB D: Alan Smithee. Bruce Ramsay, Valentina Vargas, Doug Bradley, Adam Scott, Charlotte Chatton. Pinhead matches wits with a demon lover/cohort, ironically named Angelique (Vargas). Dull and plot-heavy, even if you're a Clive Barker devotee. Re-caulk your bathtub instead. Followed by five direct-to-video sequels. [R] ▼●●

Hell Ride (2008) C-84m. *½ D: Larry Bishop. Larry Bishop, Michael Madsen, Eric Balfour, Vinnie Jones, Leonor Varela, David Carradine, Dennis Hopper, Julia Jones,

Michael Beach, Laura Cayouette, Francesco Quinn. Generally dreadful Tarantino wannabe, charting the swagger and antics of a band of aging bikers. Oh yes, there's plenty of female nudity, with the babes collectively young enough to be the bikers' offspring. Bishop (the star of 1960s and '70s biker films) also scripted and produced. Quentin Tarantino, in fact, is one of the executive producers. Super 35. [R]●

Hell's Angels (1930) 127m. ½ D: Howard Hughes. Ben Lyon, James Hall, Jean Harlow, John Darrow, Lucien Prival, Roy Wilson. Hughes' expensive, indulgent WWI aviation film is in a class by itself; slow-moving and sometimes corny storywise, but unmatched for aerial spectacle. Also the film that launched Harlow ("Would you be shocked if I put on something more comfortable?") to stardom. Two-color Technicolor party scene and tinted night sequences were restored in 1989. James Whale, credited as dialogue director, actually wrote and directed much of the film. Beware shorter prints. ▼●

Hell's Angels on Wheels (1967) C-95m. ½ D: Richard Rush. Adam Roarke, Jack Nicholson, Sabrina Scharf, Jana Taylor, John Garwood. Excellent photography by then-unknown Laszlo Kovacs, and Nicholson's characterization as gas station attendant named Poet, make this one tough to resist on a trash level. Famed Angel Sonny Barger was technical advisor. ▼●

Hell's Bloody Devils (1970) C-92m.  D: Al Adamson. Broderick Crawford, Scott Brady, John Gabriel, Kent Taylor, John Carradine, Robert Dix, Keith Andes, Jack Starrett, Anne Randall, Vicki Volante. Traveling the low road to action with, believe it or not, a gang of sadistic bikers, a band of neo-Nazis, the Vegas mob, a sinister dude named Count von Delberg—all beating one another to a pulp. Add a cast of veteran actors and, incredibly, a score by Nelson Riddle! Aka THE FAKERS, SMASHING THE CRIME SYNDICATE, and SWASTIKA SAVAGES. [PG]●

Hell's Island (1955) C-84m. ½ D: Phil Karlson. John Payne, Mary Murphy, Francis L. Sullivan, Eduardo Noriega, Paul Picerni. Tough-talking melodrama about Payne's pursuit of stolen gem and relationship with deceitful former girlfriend; script has echoes of THE MALTESE FALCON, and even a Sydney Greenstreet figure in the person of Sullivan. VistaVision.

Hell's Long Road (1963-Italian) C-89m. ½ D: Charles Roberti. Elena Brazzi, Kay Noland, Berto Frankis, Bela Kaivi, Marcello Charli. Offbeat costume sudser set in ancient Rome during rule of Nero (Frankis), focusing on personal life of arch senator (Charli) and romance with splendiferous Brazzi; vivid settings.

Hellstrom Chronicle, The (1971) C-90m.

½ D: Walon Green. Lawrence Pressman. Documentary about man's impending struggle against insects somehow beat THE SORROW AND THE PITY for the Oscar, but sappy narration and repetitive structure lessen its effect. Still, microphotography is incredible; enjoyed brief vogue as a "head" movie. [G]▼

Hell to Eternity (1960) 132m. ½ D: Phil Karlson. Jeffrey Hunter, David Janssen, Vic Damone, Patricia Owens, Sessue Hayakawa. Straightforward drama based on true story of WW2 hero Guy Gabaldon, who was raised by Japanese foster parents; battle scenes galore.▼

Hell Up in Harlem (1973) C-96m. BOMB D: Larry Cohen. Fred Williamson, Julius W. Harris, Gloria Hendry, Margaret Avery, D'Urville Martin. Excessively violent, poorly filmed sequel to BLACK CAESAR as Fred makes N.Y.C. a decent place to live by annihilating all who stand in his way. [R]▼

Hell With Heroes, The (1968) C-95m. ½ D: Joseph Sargent. Rod Taylor, Claudia Cardinale, Harry Guardino, Kevin McCarthy, Peter Duel, William Marshall. OK pulp fiction about WW2 flyers Taylor and Duel who run air-cargo service, become involved with notorious smuggler Guardino and his mistress (Cardinale). Unprofound, but slickly done. Techniscope.

Hellzapoppin' (1941) 84m.  D: H. C. Potter. Ole Olsen, Chic Johnson, Martha Raye, Mischa Auer, Jane Frazee, Hugh Herbert, Robert Paige, Shemp Howard, Elisha Cook, Jr. Famous madcap Broadway show is conventionalized by Hollywood, with romantic subplot and too many songs, but still has many inspired moments of lunacy, from a throwaway CITIZEN KANE gag to the mutterings of Hugh Herbert.

He Loves Me . . . He Loves Me Not (2002-French) C-96m.  D: Laetitia Colombani. Audrey Tautou, Samuel Le Bihan, Isabelle Carré, Clément Sibony, Sophie Guillemin, Eric Savin. Evocative psychological thriller about a young art student (Tautou) who is obsessively in love with a married cardiologist (Le Bihan) and is convinced he's about to leave his wife for her. Then the story is told from his point of view. Most enjoyable, and an assured feature debut for director/coscreenwriter Colombani.▼

Help! (1965-British) C-90m. ½ D: Richard Lester. John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison, Ringo Starr, Leo McKern, Eleanor Bron, Victor Spinetti, Roy Kinnear, Patrick Cargill. Crazy, funny film, the Beatles' second. Lots of wild gags, many songs (including "Ticket to Ride," "Another Girl," "You've Got to Hide Your Love Away," title tune). The story: a religious sect attempts to recover a sacrificial ring from Ringo. Written by Charles Wood and Marc Behm.▼●●

Help Me Dream (1981-Italian) C-112m.

Hennessy (1975-British) C-103m. ½ D: Don Sharp. Rod Steiger, Lee Remick, Richard Johnson, Trevor Howard, Peter Egan, Eric Porter. Interesting but unbelievable thriller about Irish man whose wife and child are killed in Belfast violence, stirring him to plan bombing of Parliament on opening day when the Royal Family attends. Henry & June (1990) C-134m. ½ D: Philip Kaufman. Fred Ward, Uma Thurman, Maria de Medeiros, Richard E. Grant, Kevin Spacey, Jean-Philippe Ecoffey, Bruce Myers, Jean-Louis Bunuel. Stylish, atmospheric, and surprisingly unerotic adaptation of the Anais Nin diaries dealing specifically—and in sexually explicit fashion—with her lover (author Henry Miller) and Henry's wife June. Performed with gusto (in Ward's case, broad gusto) and distinguished by brilliant production design of randy Paris, circa 1931. Screenplay by Philip and Rose Kaufman. Controversy over the adult material in this film finally caused the MPAA to create a new NC-17 rating. [NC-17]▼●●

Henry Fool (1998) C-137m. ½ D: Hal Hartley. Thomas Jay Ryan, James Urbaniak, Parker Posey, Maria Porter, James Saito, Kevin Corrigan, Liam Aiken, Miho Nikaïdo, Gene Ruffini. Hartley just misses the mark with this characteristically offbeat tale of Simon Grim (Urbaniak), a bashful gabgeman, and the title character (Ryan), a free spirit who encourages him to begin writing poetry. An allegory that, in its best moments, serves as an ode to nonconformity and risk-taking; but it's uneven and overlong. Scripted by Hartley. Followed a decade later by FAY GRIM. [R]▼

Henry VIII and His Six Wives (1973-British) C-125m. ½ D: Waris Hussein. Keith Michell, Donald Pleasence, Charlotte Rampling, Jane Asher, Lynne Frederick. Adapted from BBC-TV series, historical pageant divides time evenly among the wives, Rampling and Frederick coming off best. Michell is exceptional as the King. [PG]●

Henry V (1945-British) C-137m. * D: Laurence Olivier. Laurence Olivier, Robert Newton, Leslie Banks, Renee Asherson, Esmond Knight, Leo Genn, Ralph Truman, Harcourt Williams, Ivy St. Helier, Ernest Thesiger, Max Adrian, George Cole, Felix Aylmer, Robert Helpmann, Freda Jackson, Jimmy Hanley, John Laurie. Olivier's masterful rendition of Shakespeare play is a cinematic treat, filmed in rich color and framed by ingenious presentation of a typical performance at the Globe theater during 1500s. This earned Olivier a special Academy Award "for his outstanding achievement as actor, producer, and director in bringing HENRY V to the screen."▼●●

Henry V (1989-British) C-137m. ½ D: Kenneth Branagh. Kenneth Branagh, Derek Jacobi, Brian Blessed, Alec McCowen, Ian Holm, Richard Briers, Robert Stephens, Robbie Coltrane, Christian Bale, Judi Dench, Paul Scofield, Michael Maloney, Emma Thompson, Geraldine McEwan. Stunning revitalization of Shakespeare's play about the warrior-king, with Branagh (in an incredible directorial debut) breathing fire and meaning into the worthy text. A different reading from Olivier's but no less impressive; when he finishes his speech before leading his men into battle at Agincourt, you're ready to enlist! Superb music by Patrick Doyle. Supporting cast is peppered with familiar faces from the elite of British theater and film. Won Costume Design Oscar.▼●●

Henry IV (1984-Italian) C-95m.  D: Marco Bellocchio. Marcello Mastroianni, Claudia Cardinale, Luciano Bartoli, Latou Chardons, Leopoldo Trieste. Disappointing update of Pirandello's brilliant satirical play on the nature of madness and illusion. When a nobleman falls off his horse, he comes to believe he's Emperor Henry IV . . . or does he? The two stars do what they can to extract a few moments of lucidity from the confusion. [PG-13]▼●

Henry Poole Is Here (2008) C-99m.  D: Mark Pellington. Luke Wilson, Radha Mitchell, Adriana Barraza, Cheryl Hines, George Lopez, Richard Benjamin, Morgan Lily, Rachel Seifert, Beth Grant. Depressed man dumps his fiancée and business when he believes he is dying and moves back to the neighborhood where he grew up, wanting to be left alone. When neighbors think they see a stucco image of Christ on his property, his serenity is interrupted by constant visitors in search of a miracle.

Wilson is dour and dreary throughout, but Barraza is wonderful as a gentle true believer. Simple story of a man's spiritual awakening is well told but not particularly compelling. Super 35. [PG]●

Henry: Portrait of a Serial Killer (1990) C-90m. ½ D: John McNaughton. Michael Rooker, Tracy Arnold, Tom Towles. Unpleasant, unexploitive, and brilliantly directed portrayal of diseased minds (not just Henry's), loosely based on the life of self-confessed Texas mass murderer Henry Lee Lucas. As disturbing as Michael Powell's PEEPING TOM, which it in many ways resembles. Definitely not for everyone, with some very graphic scenes; a powerful (if minimalist) movie experience. Screenplay by director McNaughton and Richard Fire. Filmed in 1986. Followed by a 1997 sequel. [X]▼●●

Her Alibi (1989) C-94m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Tom Selleck, Paulina Porizkova, William Daniels, James Farentino, Hurd Hatfield, Patrick Wayne, Tess Harper, Joan Copeland. Successful mystery writer hopes to cure his career slump by providing a fake alibi for accused murderer Porizkova (by putting her up in his dreamy country home and observing her behavior). Amiable but awkwardly directed comedy benefits from attractive leads and amusing supporting cast; would you believe Wayne in a ponytail and loud golf pants? [PG]▼●●

He Ran All the Way (1951) 77m. ½ D: John Berry. John Garfield, Shelley Winters, Wallace Ford, Selena Royle, Gladys George, Norman Lloyd. Taut but predictable thriller with on-the-lam cop killer Garfield hiding out in Winters' home. Garfield's final film.

Herbie: Fully Loaded (2005) C-101m.  D: Angela Robinson. Lindsay Lohan, Michael Keaton, Matt Dillon, Justin Long, Breckin Meyer, Cheryl Hines, Jill Ritchie. Single father Keaton takes daughter Lohan to an auto junkyard so she can pick out a car as a college graduation present; instead, a car (Herbie) picks her. In fact, the Volkswagen Beetle steers her into a rivalry with cocky NASCAR driver Dillon. Family-friendly reprise of the Disney series that began with THE LOVE BUG, and a good vehicle for Lohan. Real-life racers and sportscasters appear as themselves; cowriter Thomas Lennon plays Dillon's hapless brother. [G]●

Herbie Goes Bananas (1980) C-100m. *½ D: Vincent McEveety. Charlie Martin Smith, Steven W. Burns, Cloris Leachman, John Vernon, Elyssa Davalos, Harvey Korman, Richard Jaeckel, Alex Rocco, Fritz Feld. Fourth Disney LOVE BUG epic finds Smith and Burns driving ol' '53 toward a race in Brazil, but encountering all sorts of "hilarious" obstacles along the way. One amusing scene where the VW turns matador; otherwise, strictly scrap metal. A TV series followed. [G]▼●●

Herbie Goes to Monte Carlo (1977) C-91m.  D: Vincent McEvety. Dean Jones, Don Knotts, Julie Sommars, Roy Kinnear, Jacques Marin. Spy ring hides diamond in Herbie the Volkswagen's gas tank while Jones is racing in Europe. Disney's LOVE BUG formula is starting to run out of gas. [G]▼●●

Herbie Rides Again (1974) C-88m. ½ D: Robert Stevenson. Helen Hayes, Ken Berry, Stefanie Powers, Keenan Wynn, John McIntire, Huntz Hall. Daiescope.

Hercules (1959-Italian) C-107m. ½ D: Pietro Francisci. Steve Reeves, Sylva Koscina, Gianna Maria Canale, Fabrizio Mioni, Ivo Garrani, Gina Rovere, Luciana Paoluzzi (Paluzzi). This Italian import became a surprise U.S. hit, and served as the prototype of all cloak-and-sandal pictures to come: Reeves is musclebound mythical hero in essentially a retelling of the story of Jason and the Golden Fleece. Sequel: HERCULES UNCHAINED. Dyaliscope. ▼●●

Hercules (1983-Italian) C-98m. *½ D: Lewis Coates (Luigi Cozzi). Lou Ferrigno, Mirella D'Angelo, Sybil Danning, Ingrid Anderson, William Berger, Brad Harris, Rossana Podesta. Hercules (1997) C-93m.  D: John Musker, Ron Clements. Voices of Tate Donovan, Susan Egan, James Woods, Danny DeVito, Rip Torn, Samantha Eggar, Bobcat Goldthwait, Matt Frewer, Hal Holbrook, Barbara Barrie; opening narration by Charlton Heston. Entertaining Disney cartoon feature based on Greek mythology. Baby Hercules is stolen from Mount Olympus by the bungling henchmen of Hades; raised as a mortal with extraordinary strength, he must prove himself a real hero to regain entry to the home of the gods. Funny, well-paced story is peppered with gags and songs (by Alan Menken and David Zippel), and a standout characterization by Woods as the garrulous and glib villain. Followed by an

animated TV series and a video sequel. [G]▼●●

Hercules II (1985-Italian) C-90m. *½ D: Lewis Coates (Luigi Cozzi). Lou Ferrigno, Milly Carlucci, Sonia Viviani, William Berger, Carlotta Green, Claudio Cassinelli. Sequel to HERCULES (1983). Hercules in New York (1970) C-91m. *½ D: Arthur Allan Seidelman. Arnold Stang, Arnold Strong (Schwarzenegger), Taina Elg, James Karen, Deborah Loomis, Ernest Graves, Tanny McDonald. Hercules journeys to Earth from Mt. Olympus and gets mixed up with wrestling promoters—and mobsters—in this lumbering comedy. Inept, but irresistible for the opportunity to watch a young, badly dubbed Schwarzenegger in his movie debut. (His original dialogue track was restored for the DVD.) Reissued as HERCULES—THE MOVIE at 82m., and HERCULES GOES BANANAS at 75m. [G]▼●●

Hercules in the Haunted World (1961-Italian) C-83m.  D: Mario Bava. Reg Park, Christopher Lee, Leonora Ruffo, Giorgio Ardisson, Ida Galli. Occasionally sparked by atmospheric settings, this sword-and-sandal epic narrates adventures of Park in the devil's kingdom. Totalscope Super/100. ▼●

Hercules Unchained (1960-Italian) C-101m.  D: Pietro Francisci. Steve Reeves, Sylva Koscina, Primo Carnera, Sylvia Lopez. Par-for-the-course entry featuring the muscleman hero and his princess bride setting off for the city of Thebes; along the way he will bid to prevent a war and tangle with a sinister queen. Dyaliscope. ▼●●

Here Comes Mr. Jordan (1941) 93m. * D: Alexander Hall. Robert Montgomery, Evelyn Keyes, Claude Rains, Rita Johnson, Edward Everett Horton, James Gleason, John Emery. Excellent fantasy-comedy of prizefighter Montgomery accidentally sent to heaven before his time, forced to occupy a new body on earth. Hollywood moviemaking at its best, with first-rate cast and performances; Harry Segall won an Oscar for his original story, as did Sidney Buchman and Seton I. Miller for their screenplay. Characters used again in DOWN TO EARTH (1947); film remade as HEAVEN CAN WAIT in 1978 and DOWN TO EARTH (2001). Look fast for a young Lloyd Bridges. ▼●●

Lamour, Phil Harris, and Cass Daley, plus Oscar-winning song, "In the Cool, Cool, Cool of the Evening." ▼●●

Here Comes the Navy (1934) 86m. ½ D: Lloyd Bacon. James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Gloria Stuart, Dorothy Tree, Frank McHugh. Enjoyable but standard tale of cocky Cagney who becomes Navy hero; nothing new, but well done.

Here Come the Co-Eds (1945) 87m. ½ D: Jean Yarbrough. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Peggy Ryan, Martha O'Driscoll, June Vincent, Lon Chaney (Jr.), Donald Cook. Pretty zany Abbott and Costello comedy of two wacky caretakers turning formerly staid girls' school on its ear. ▼●

Here Come the Girls (1953) C-78m. ½ D: Claude Binyon. Bob Hope, Arlene Dahl, Rosemary Clooney, Tony Martin, Fred Clark, Robert Strauss, the Four Step Brothers. At times amusing romp with Hope a naive show biz-ite who becomes involved with killer on the loose. ▼●●

Here Come the Nelsons (1952) 76m.  D: Frederick de Cordova. Ozzie, Harriet, David, Ricky Nelson, Rock Hudson, Ann Doran, Jim Backus, Barbara Lawrence, Sheldon Leonard, Gale Gordon. Expanded version of radio's Adventures of Ozzie & Harriet, spotlighting a series of typical, comical situations. Light, predictable fare that paved the way for the long-running TV series. ▼

Here Come the Waves (1944) 99m.  D: Mark Sandrich. Bing Crosby, Betty Hutton, Sonny Tufts, Ann Doran, Gwen Crawford, Noel Neill, Catherine Craig, Mae Clarke. Zippy wartime music-comedy with Crosby cleverly cast as a Sinatra-like crooner, the idol of bobby-soxers, who joins the Navy, and becomes involved with twin sisters (played by Hutton—and one's even demure!). Harold Arlen—Johnny Mercer score includes "Let's Take the Long Way Home," "(That Old) Black Magic" (reprinted from STAR SPANGLED RHYTHM), and "Ac-cent-u-ate the Positive," which is performed in blackface! Yvonne De Carlo and Mona Freeman have bit parts. ▼●

Here on Earth (2000) C-96m.  D: Mark Piznarski. Chris Klein, Leelee Sobieski, Josh Hartnett, Michael Rooker, Bruce Greenwood, Annette O'Toole, Annie Corley, Elaine Hendrix, Stuart Wilson. Spoiled prepie Klein falls for small-town girl Sobieski while rooming with her boyfriend's family for the summer. Fateful teen romantic triangle is strictly by-the-numbers. Sobieski gets points for radiantly dangling two hunky guys along; if she were any more angelic she'd explode. [PG-13] ▼●●

Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush (1968-British) C-96m. ½ D: Clive Donner. Barry Evans, Judy Geeson, Angela Scouler, Sheila White, Vanessa Howard, Denholm Elliott. British teenager Evans is hung up on girls, but finds his pursuits a constant dead-end. Amusing, often clever adolescent romp; music by Stevie Winwood & Traffic, Spencer Davis Group.

Her Majesty Mrs. Brown SEE: Mrs. Brown

Hero, The (1970) C-97m. ½ D: Richard Harris. Richard Harris, Romy Schneider, Kim Burfield, Maurice Kaufman, Yossi Yadin. Old-fashioned film about a soccer star and the young boy who idolizes him; partly filmed in Israel. [PG] ▼

Hero (2002-Hong Kong-Chinese) C-96m.  D: Zhang Yimou. Jet Li, Tony Leung Chiu-wai, Maggie Cheung, Zhang Ziyi, Chen Dao Ming, Donnie Yen, Liu Zhong Yuan. A ruthless, ambitious king is attempting to merge the conflicting Chinese municipalities into a united empire in 3rd-century A.D., and the title character (Li, perfectly cast), a warrior called Nameless, relates how he overpowered the king's three most potent enemies. Different versions are offered in a RASHOMON-like manner, and each unfolds using a different color scheme. Action-packed, visually sumptuous saga also charts a love triangle between two of the enemy warriors (Cheung, Leung Chiu-wai) and a servant (Ziyi). A bit confusing at times, but visually dazzling. Aka JET LI'S HERO. Released in the U.S. in 2004. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Hero Ain't Nothin' But a Sandwich, A (1978) C-105m. ½ D: Ralph Nelson. Cicely Tyson, Paul Winfield, Larry B. Scott, Helen Martin, Glynn Turman, David Groh. Well-meaning drama (from Alice Childress' book) about intelligent but alienated black ghetto youth who takes up drugs. Moralistic film may get PTA recommendations, but doesn't really deliver: young Scott's performance is major asset. [PG] ▼●●

Hero and the Terror (1988) C-96m. *½ D: William Tannen. Chuck Norris, Brynna Thayer, Steve W. James, Jack O'Halloran, Ron O'Neal, Billy Drago. Flat melodrama proves to be an unwise change of pace for action star Norris, here playing a "sensitive" police detective who must exorcise his personal demons by doing battle one last time with his larger-than-life maniac nemesis O'Halloran. Film's cowriter, former actor Michael Blodgett, has an endless cameo in a restaurant scene. [R]▼●●

Hero At Large (1980) C-98m. ½ D: Martin Davidson. John Ritter, Anne Archer, Bert Convy, Kevin McCarthy, Harry Bellaver, Anita Dangler. Unemployed actor Ritter is mistaken for do-gooding "Captain Avenger"; political hucksters Convy and McCarthy attempt to co-opt him. Winning if naive satire. Look fast for Kevin Bacon. [PG]▼●

Heroes, The (1972-Italian) C-99m.  D: Duccio Tessari. Rod Steiger, Rod Taylor, Rosanna Schiaffino, Claude Brasseur, Terry-Thomas. A middling script sinks this forgettable actioner about a motley crew that bands together to pull off a heist of "lost" military money. Techniscope. [PG]

Heroes (1977) C-113m. ½ D: Jeremy Paul Kagan. Henry Winkler, Sally Field, Harrison Ford, Val Avery, Olivia Cole, Hector Elias. Innocuous film marked Winkler's first starring role, as crazy Vietnam vet who chases a dream of wealth and success cross-country; Field is appealing as the girl he meets and wins along the way. [PG]▼●

Heroes for Sale (1933) 73m.  D: William A. Wellman. Richard Barthelmess, Loretta Young, Aline MacMahon, Robert Barrat, Grant Mitchell, Douglass Dumbrille, Charles Grapewin, Ward Bond. Potent melodrama with Barthelmess as an American Everyman who manages to survive one calamity after another—from morphine addiction (as a result of a WWI injury) to job-hunting during the Depression—and continues to endure, like the country itself. Ambitious script by Wilson Mizner and Robert Lord tackles everything from the hypocrisy of hero worship to Communism! A fascinating social document of the early 1930s.▼●

Heroes of Telemark, The (1965-British) C-131m. ½ D: Anthony Mann. Kirk Douglas, Richard Harris, Michael Redgrave, Mervyn Johns, Eric Porter. Douglas and Harris spend more time battling each other than the Nazis overrunning Norway in this pictorially striking (filmed on location), predictable blow-up-the-German-factory yarn. Panavision.▼

Hero's Island (1962) C-94m. ½ D: Leslie Stevens. James Mason, Kate Manx, Neville Brand, Rip Torn, Warren Oates, Brendan Dillon, (Harry) Dean Stanton. Peculiar mixture of adventure and soap opera set in 18th-century on island near North Carolina, involving pirates and home-steaders. Mason coproduced. Panavision.

Hers to Hold (1943) 94m.  D: Frank Ryan. Deanna Durbin, Joseph Cotten, Charles Winninger, Nella Walker, Gus Schilling, Ludwig Stossel, Irving Bacon. Grown-up Durbin is in love with serviceman Cotten in undistinguished romance, brightened by Deanna's singing. Songs: "Begin The Beguine," etc.

He Said, She Said (1991) C-115m.  D: Ken Kwapis, Marisa Silver. Kevin Bacon, Elizabeth Perkins, Sharon Stone, Nathan Lane, Anthony LaPaglia, Stanley Anderson, Charlaine Woodard, Danton Stone. We say, piffle. Gimmick comedy charts the dissolution of a romance between two Baltimore journalists who parlay their rival point/counterpoint columns into a popular local TV spot. Kwapis' half (marginally funnier) is shown from Bacon's point of view; Silver's (marginally better, thanks to Perkins) takes overlong story from the opposite perspective. About as contemporary as a '60s TV sitcom, with clumsy fantasy sequences. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

He's Just Not That Into You (2009) C-129m.  D: Ken Kwapis. Ginnifer Goodwin, Jennifer Aniston, Jennifer Connelly, Scarlett Johansson, Drew Barrymore, Bradley Cooper, Ben Affleck, Kevin Connolly, Justin Long, Kris Kristofferson, Busy Phillips, Leonardo Nam, Sasha Alexander, Wilson Cruz. Men send signals to women—more than ever in the age of electronic devices—but some women don't know how to read them. That's what needy Goodwin tries to learn with help from self-styled master of communication Long. Other attractive couples face a variety of crises in this episodic comedy with unexpectedly serious undertones. Not another airheaded romantic comedy but a "battle of the sexes" for our times, based on the book by Greg Behrendt and Liz Tuccillo. Luis Guzmán appears unbilled. Panavision. [PG-13]●

He's My Girl (1987) C-104m.  D: Gabrielle Beaumont. T.K. Carter, David Hallyday, Misha McK, Jennifer Tilly, David Clennon. A few amusing moments cannot save this silly comedy about Carter dressing in drag to accompany pal Hallyday on a free trip to Hollywood. Lots of energy, but it's mostly for naught. [PG-13]▼

Hester Street (1975) 92m. ½ D: Joan Micklin Silver. Steven Keats, Carol Kane, Mel Howard, Dorrie Kavanaugh, Doris Roberts, Stephen Strimpell. Young Jewish immigrant (Kane) joins her husband in N.Y.C. at turn of the century, only to find that he has forsaken his Old World ways and expects her to do the same. Disarming simple story, outstanding period flavor. [PG]▼●

He Walked by Night (1948) 79m.  D: Alfred L. Werker. Richard Basehart, Scott Brady, Roy Roberts, Whit Bissell, Jack Webb. Grade-A drama of killer hunted by police; told in semi-documentary style (and partially directed by Anthony Mann). Great climax in L.A. storm drains; photographed by the great John Alton. This clearly inspired Webb's creation of Dragnet.▼●●

He Was Her Man (1934) 70m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. James Cagney, Joan Blondell, Victor Jory, Frank Craven, Sarah Padden. Disappointing drama of safecracker Cagney on the lam, meeting Blondell, who's engaged to fisherman Jory. One of Cagney's weakest Warner Bros. vehicles.

He Who Gets Slapped (1924) 85m.  D: Victor Seastrom. Lon Chaney, Norma Shearer, John Gilbert, Tully Marshall, Marc McDermott, Ford Sterling. Brilliant scientist tries to bury personal tragedy under mask of circus clown, who falls in love with beautiful bareback rider (Shearer). Famous story becomes Pagliacci-type vehicle for Chaney. ▼●

He Who Rides a Tiger (1966-British) 103m.  D: Charles Crichton. Tom Bell, Judi Dench, Paul Rogers, Kay Walsh, Ray McAnally. Cat burglar is nice to children and is further softened by love, but he still has professional problems; OK programmer.

Hexed (1993) C-90m.  D: Alan Spencer. Arye Gross, Claudia Christian, Adrienne Shelly, Ray Baker, R. Lee Ermey, Michael Knight, Robin Curtis, Brandis Kemp, Norman Fell, Teresa Ganzel. Hotel clerk with delusions of grandeur gets involved with a once overweight fashion model whose long-ago act of arson killed 32 people. Very hit-and-miss—and at worst, terrible—but at least it isn't bland. Christian, as the model, is a stitch. [R] ▼●

Hey Arnold! The Movie (2002) C-76m.  D: Tuck Tucker. Voices of Spencer Klein, Francesca Marie Smith, Jamil Smith, Dan Castellana, Tress MacNeille, Paul Sorvino, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Christopher Lloyd, Vincent Schiavelli, Maurice LaMarche, Kath E. Soucie. Arnold leads his friends and neighbors in a protest when an industrialist threatens to tear down their neighborhood to build an elaborate mall. Straightforward adaptation of the popular animated TV series plays like an extended episode; OK for young children. [PG] ▼

Hey Babu Riba (1986-Yugoslavian) C-109m.  D: Jovan Acin. Gala Videnovic, Relja Basic, Nebojsa Bakocevic, Marko Todorovic, Dragan Bjelogrić, Milos Zutic. Perceptive film combines nostalgia and political commentary in flashback story of four men recalling their pranks in the early 1950s when all were in love with dream girl Videnovic. Film buffs will appreciate picture being built around kids' fascination with Esther Williams in BATHING BEAUTY; also features vintage footage

from the sexy Swedish classic SHE ONLY DANCED ONE SUMMER. [R] ▼●

Hey Boy! Hey Girl! (1959) 81m. *½ D: David Lowell Rich. Louis Prima, Keely Smith, James Gregory, Henry Slate, Asa Maynor, Sam Butera and The Witnesses. Minor low-budget musical about a singer (Smith) who will join Prima and The Witnesses only if they appear at a church bazaar. Louis sings the unforgettable "A Banana Split for My Baby (And a Glass of Water for Me)."

Hey Good Lookin' (1982) C-86m. *½ D: Ralph Bakshi. Voices of Richard Romanus, David Proval, Jesse Welles, Tina Bowman. Animated feature dips into "nostalgia" for street gangs in 1950s Brooklyn, and a sense of deja vu hangs over the proceedings. More interesting visually than Bakshi's other later films, because this one wasn't completely traced from live-action footage, but as entertainment it's vulgar and pointless. Originally made in 1975, then largely redone for 1982 release. [R] ▼

Hey, Let's Twist! (1961) 80m. BOMB D: Greg Garrison. Joey Dee, The Starliners, Peppermint Loungers, Jo Ann Campbell, Zohra Lampert, Teddy Randazzo, Allan Arbus. Let's not. This minor film about the rise, decline, and rise of the Peppermint Lounge nightclub came out at the height of the Twist dance rage and wasn't very good then . . . now it's just a bad way to kill 80 minutes. Try spotting a young Joe Pesci (then a Starliners guitarist, making his film debut) as an extra.

Hey There It's Yogi Bear (1964) C-89m.  D: William Hanna, Joseph Barbera. Voices of: Mel Blanc, J. Pat O'Malley, Julie Bennett, Daws Butler, Don Messick. First full-length cartoon from Hanna-Barbera studio stars Yogi Bear in amusing musical tale for younger folk. ▼●

H.G. Wells' The War of the Worlds (2005) C-179m. BOMB D: Timothy Hines. Anthony Piana, Jack Clay, James Lathrop, Darlene Sellers, John Kaufmann, Jamie Lynn Sease, Susan Goforth, W. Bernard Bauman. One of three 2005 movies based on Wells' classic novel about a Martian invasion, this is easily the worst, though also the most ambitious in terms of fidelity to its source. The script essentially is the novel, retaining the 1890s setting, and proving conclusively that fidelity is not in itself a virtue. CGI effects are below video-game level. No tension, excitement, or interest, amateurish acting, and lousy, gold-toned color; what's more, it's three hours long. Shot in and around Seattle. Director's cut runs 135m.! [R] ▼

H.G. Wells' War of the Worlds (2005) C-90m. *½ D: David Michael Latt. C. Thomas Howell, Rhett Giles, Andy Lauer, Tinarie Van Wyk-Loots, Jake Busey, Dash Howell, Peter Greene. Invading aliens in tanklike, multilegged fighting machines ravage the countryside. Scientist Howell struggles to reach Washington, D.C., in hopes of finding his wife and son. Direct-to-video adaptation of Wells' novel is respectable but dull with scant, mediocre effects. In this variation, it's our hero who finds a way to defeat the aliens. One of three 2005 movies based on the Wells novel. Followed by a cable TV sequel. [R]●

Hickey & Boggs (1972) C-111m. ½ D: Robert Culp. Robert Culp, Bill Cosby, Rosalind Cash, Sheila Sullivan, Isabel Sanford, Ta-Ronce Allen, Lou Frizzell. Tough melodrama by Walter Hill about two weary, hard-luck private eyes whose search for a missing girl brings death to almost everyone around them. Well made but extremely violent and downbeat; a sharp contrast to the stars' tongue-in-cheek antics on their I Spy TV series. Many now-familiar faces appear in bits: Robert Mandan, Michael Moriarty, Vincent Gardenia, James Woods, and Ed Lauter. [PG]●

Hidalgo (2004) C-135m. ½ D: Joe Johnston. Viggo Mortensen, Omar Sharif, Louise Lombard, Saïd Taghmaoui, Peter Mensah, J.K. Simmons, Zuleikha Robinson, Silas Carson, Joshua Wolf Coleman, Adam Alexi-Malle, Floyd Red Crow Westerman, C. Thomas Howell. Mortensen is perfect as disenchanted real-life cowboy Frank T. Hopkins, who participates in the world's longest, most grueling horse race across the Arabian Desert with his trusty steed Hidalgo. An old-fashioned high adventure, set in 1890, with the added kick of desert veteran Sharif as the sheik who sponsors the race. There are doubts about the inspiration for this "true story," but there's no question about its entertainment value. Written by John Fusco. Malcolm McDowell appears unbilled. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Hidden, The (1987) C-96m.  D: Jack Sholder. Michael Nouri, Kyle MacLachlan, Ed O'Ross, Clu Gulager, Claudia Christian, Clarence Felder, William Boyett, Richard Brooks. L.A. cop Nouri pursues an alien criminal that loves violence, fast cars, and rock music—and can pass from one human body to another. FBI agent MacLachlan, helping out, is really an alien cop. Smart, fast-paced thriller effectively blends horror, sci-fi, and action with humor; good acting and savvy direction. Followed by a sequel. [R]▼●●

Hidden II, The (1994) C-95m. BOMB D: Seth Pinsker. Raphael Sbarge, Kate Hodge, Jovin Montanaro, Christopher Murphy, Michael Weldon, Michael A. Nickles, Tony Di Benedetto, Tom Tayback. Fifteen years after the events in the original, the daughter of the L.A. cop who chased down the body-switching alien teams up with another alien cop, here to save us from more of the evil visitors. Cheap, slow-paced sequel distorts the premise of the original; result is stilted and routine, utterly devoid of the wit and energy that sparked the first. [R]▼●●

Hidden Agenda (1990-British) C-108m.  D: Ken Loach. Frances McDormand,

Brian Cox, Brad Dourif, Mai Zetterling, Jim Norton, Maurice Roebes. American human rights activist McDormand and British police inspector Cox (both excellent) try to unravel mystery surrounding police ambush and cover-up in strife-ridden Belfast during the early 1980s. Effective political thriller set amidst the battleground of Northern Ireland. If not exactly unbiased (director Loach is known for films which are critical of the U.K.), it is believable. Many small roles played by Belfast non-actors. [R]▼●●

Hidden Eye, The (1945) 69m. ½ D: Richard Whorf. Edward Arnold, Frances Rafferty, Ray Collins, Paul Langton, Raymond Lagay, William Phillips. Follow-up to EYES IN THE NIGHT, with blind detective Arnold making good use of other senses to solve murder mystery; fast-moving, entertaining mystery.

Hidden Fortress, The (1958-Japanese) 126m. ½ D: Akira Kurosawa. Toshiro Mifune, Misa Uehara, Minoru Chiaki, Kamatari Fujiwara, Susumu Fujita, Takashi Shimura. Autocratic young Princess Uehara and loyal general Mifune must make dangerous journey to their homeland with royal fortune, with only bare minimum of help from two bumbling misfits hoping to make off with a share of the gold. Solid comedy-adventure with great deadpan performance by Mifune; one of Kurosawa's personal favorites. Acknowledged by George Lucas as a primary inspiration for STAR WARS. Some U.S. prints cut to 90m.; released in Japan at 139m., and reissued in the U.S. in 1984 at that length. Tohoscope.▼●●

Hidden Room, The (1949-British) 98m.  D: Edward Dmytryk. Robert Newton, Sally Gray, Naunton Wayne, Phil Brown, Michael Balfour, Olga Lindo. Very effective suspenser involving Newton's plan to eliminate a man threatening his marriage; nifty climax. Retitled: OBSSESSION.▼●

Hide and Seek (2005) C-101m.  D: John Polson. Robert De Niro, Dakota Fanning, Famke Janssen, Elisabeth Shue, Amy Irving, Dylan Baker, Melissa Leo. After psychologist De Niro's wife commits suicide, he and his traumatized daughter (Fanning) move to the country to start life anew; strange incidents begin occurring when the child befriends a noxious "imaginary" playmate. So-called thriller has a paper-thin script, limp pacing, and a less-than-inspired De Niro performance. Super 35. [R]▼●

Hideaway (1995) C-112m. BOMB D: Brett Leonard. Jeff Goldblum, Christine Lahti, Alfred Molina, Jeremy Sisto, Rae Dawn Chong, Kenneth Welsh, Alicia Silverstone. Horror film from best-selling novel by Dean R. Koontz about a man resuscitated after "dying," who returns psychically linked to a psychotic killer who's also back from the beyond—and intent on making the man's family his next victims. This goes nowhere for nearly two interminable hours; Koontz had the good sense to try and have his name taken off the picture. Super 35. [R]▼●

Hideaways, The SEE: From the Mixed-Up Files of Mrs. Basil E. Frankweiler

Hide in Plain Sight (1980) C-98m. *****
D: James Caan, James Caan, Jill Eikenberry, Robert Viharo, Joe Grifasi, Barbra Rae, Kenneth McMillan, Josef Sommer, Danny Aiello. Caan made a creditable directing debut with this true story about a divorced man whose children are swept away by the U.S. government when their new father is moved underground by the Justice Department's witness relocation program. Straightforward and well done. Panavision. [PG]▼

Hideous Kinky (1999-British-French) C-97m.  D: Gillies MacKinnon. Kate Winslet, Saïd Taghmaoui, Bella Riza, Carrie Mullan, Pierre Clémenti, Sira Stampe. Interesting story about an immature young woman who's left her lover, and her life, in England to seek spiritual satisfaction in Morocco—with her two young daughters in tow. Well-observed study of selfishness, spontaneity, and social mores set in the early 1970s, anchored by Winslet's fine performance. Based on an autobiographical novel by Esther Freud. Super 35. [R]▼●

Hideous Sun Demon, The (1959) 74m. *½ D: Robert Clarke, Tom Boutross. Robert Clarke, Patricia Manning, Nan Peterson, Patrick Whyte, Fred La Porta. Doctor exposed to radiation discovers that sunlight turns him into ghostly lizard creature. Hideously low-budget production stars codirector Clarke himself as demon of title. ▼●

Hide-Out (1934) 83m. *½ D: W. S. Van Dyke. Robert Montgomery, Maureen O'Sullivan, Edward Arnold, Elizabeth Patterson, Whitford Kane, Mickey Rooney, C. Henry Gordon, Edward Brophy. Big-city racketeer recovers from gunshot wound on idyllic farm where he falls in love (of course) with fetching O'Sullivan. Opens and closes great, with some humdrum stuffing in between; wonderful supporting cast (including Henry Armetta and Herman Bing as nightclub co-owners!). Remade in 1941 as I'LL WAIT FOR YOU. ▼

Hide in the House (1991) C-109m. *½
D: Matthew Patrick. Gary Busey, Mimi Rogers, Michael McKean, Kurt Christopher Kinder, Candy Hutson, Elizabeth Ruscio, Bruce Glover. Disturbed Busey creates a secret living space in the home of a family he admires, but his efforts to try to ingratiate himself with them lead to violence. Routine thriller with a ludicrous premise; Busey is fine as the psycho. [R]▼●

the lam from thugs. He hides out by dyeing his hair and becoming an instant high-school senior. Jon's real-life mother, actress/writer Gretchen Cryer, plays Aunt Lucy. [PG-13]▼●

Hiding Place, The (1975) C-145m. ½
D: James F. Collier. Julie Harris, Eileen Heckart, Arthur O'Connell, Jeanette Clift, Robert Rietty, Pamela Sholto. Well-meaning, sometimes effective, but draggy, predictable story of Dutch Christians aiding Jews in WW2. Produced by Billy Graham's Evangelistic Association. [PG]▼●

High and Low (1963-Japanese) 142m.  D: Akira Kurosawa. Toshiro Mifune, Tatsuya Mihashi, Yutaka Sada, Tatsuya Nakadai, Kyoko Kagawa. Carefully paced study of business executive Mifune, who is financially ruined when he nobly pays ransom money to kidnapers who mistakenly stole his chauffeur's son. Based on an Ed McBain story; one color sequence. Tohoscope. ▼●●

High and the Mighty, The (1954) C-147m.  D: William A. Wellman. John Wayne, Claire Trevor, Laraine Day, Robert Stack, Jan Sterling, Phil Harris, Robert Newton, David Brian, Paul Kelly, John Howard, Stanley Blackmer, Julie Bishop, Wally Brown, Doe Avedon, Karen Sharpe, John Smith, William Campbell, Douglas Fowley, (Pedro) Gonzales Gonzales, John Qualen, Ann Doran, Paul Fix, Joy Kim, Carl Switzer, William Hopper, Regis Toomey. Granddaddy of all airborne disaster films and more fun than most of them put together: a GRAND HOTEL cast of characters boards a flight from Honolulu to San Francisco, little dreaming of the trouble in store or the tensions in the cockpit. Corny at times, but still entertaining, bolstered by Dimitri Tiomkin's Oscar-winning music (including the title song, which became a big hit). Written by Ernest K. Gann, from his novel. CinemaScope. ●

High Anxiety (1977) C-94m. ½ D: Mel Brooks. Mel Brooks, Madeline Kahn, Cloris Leachman, Harvey Korman, Dick Van Patten, Ron Carey, Howard Morris, Murphy Dunne, Jack Riley, Charlie Callas. Affectionate, well-made but uneven spoof of Hitchcock films with Brooks as psychiatrist who walks into trouble as new head of sanitarium. Isolated moments of great comedy bolster so-so film. Future RAIN MAN director Barry Levinson, who coscripted this film, appears as a hostile hotel bellman. Kahn's father is played by special effects maestro (and real-life Hitchcock collaborator) Albert J. Whitlock. [PG]▼●●

High Art (1998-Canadian) C-101m.  D: Lisa Cholodenko. Ally Sheedy, Radha Mitchell, Patricia Clarkson, Tammy Grimes, Gabriel Mann, Bill Sage, David Thornton. Off-putting at first, but a clear-eyed character study of a naive young woman whose stock

rises at a pretentious art magazine because of her budding relationship with a once brilliant photographer who had a breakdown years ago. The question is how deeply Mitchell is willing to immerse herself in Sheedy's hedonistic, heroin-infused, lesbian lifestyle. Sheedy is solid and understated; Clarkson is a hoot in a wonderfully showy performance as her companion, an eccentric, egomaniacal German actress. Sarita Choudhury appears unbilled. [R]▼

High Ballin' (1978-U.S.-Canadian) C-100m. ½ D: Peter Carter. Peter Fonda, Jerry Reed, Helen Shaver, Chris Wiggins, David Ferry, Chris Longevin. Good-buddy truckdrivers Fonda and Reed battle a rival kingpin's goons who want to force them off the road for good. Predictable action fare, with added spice from female trucker Shaver. [PG]▼

High Barbaree (1947) 91m.  D: Jack Conway. Van Johnson, June Allyson, Thomas Mitchell, Marilyn Maxwell, Cameron Mitchell. Navy flier's life story told in flashback as he awaits rescue in plane in ocean. Good cast in inferior story.

High Bright Sun, The SEE: McGuire, Go Home!

High Commissioner, The (1968-British) C-93m. *½ D: Ralph Thomas. Christopher Plummer, Rod Taylor, Lilli Palmer, Camilla Sparv, Daliah Lavi, Clive Revill, Franchot Tone. Wonderful cast is wasted in tired spy thriller about diplomat involved in murder at height of Cold War negotiations. British title: NOBODY RUNS FOREVER.▶

High Cost of Loving, The (1958) 87m. ½ D: Jose Ferrer. Jose Ferrer, Gena Rowlands, Joanne Gilbert, Jim Backus, Bobby Troup, Edward Platt, Werner Klemperer, Nancy Kulp. Lots of familiar faces in this very mild romantic comedy about tensions that threaten marriage of Ferrer and Rowlands. Enjoyable but innocuous semisatire. Rowlands' film debut. CinemaScope. High Crime (1973-Italian) C-100m.  D: Enzo G. Castellari. Franco Nero, James Whitmore, Fernando Rey, Delia Boccardo. Energetic but superficial action drama. Narc Nero going up against Mafioso Rey. You've seen it all before.▼

High Crimes (2002) C-115m.  D: Carl Franklin. Ashley Judd, Morgan Freeman, Jim Caviezel, Amanda Peet, Adam Scott, Tom Bower, Bruce Davison, Juan Carlos Hernandez, Jude Ciccolella, Michael Shannon. Successful lawyer defends her husband when he's revealed to be a Marine who's been wanted for 15 years for a massacre he supposedly committed in El Salvador. Then she enlists the aid of a man who knows his way around a military courtroom, eccentric lawyer Freeman. Slick and entertaining, even though you can see some of the story

twists coming around the corner. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Higher and Higher (1943) 90m. ½ D: Tim Whelan. Michele Morgan, Jack Haley, Frank Sinatra, Leon Errol, Marcy McGuire, Victor Borge, Mary Wickes, Mel Torme. Bright, breezy, generally witless musical, with good cheer compensating for lack of material, as once-wealthy Errol schemes with his own servants to raise money. Sinatra's songs are fine: "The Music Stopped," "I Couldn't Sleep a Wink Last Night." This was his starring debut.▼●●

High Fidelity (2000) C-113m. ½ D: Stephen Frears. John Cusack, Iben Hjejle, Todd Louiso, Jack Black, Lisa Bonet, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Joan Cusack, Tim Robbins, Lili Taylor, Joelle Carter, Natasha Gregson Wagner, Sara Gilbert, Bruce Springsteen. After his girlfriend leaves, a music-obsessed Chicago record store owner (Cusack) reflects on his failed relationships. Adaptation of Nick Hornby's novel (originally set in London) is alternately insightful and annoying, embodied by Cusack's direct-to-camera chats and the fanatically detailed depiction of the music scene and its inhabitants. Cusack coproduced and cowrote the screenplay. [R]▼

High Frequency (1988-Italian) C-105m.  D: Faliero Rosati. Vincent Spano, Oliver Benny, Anne Canovas, Isabelle Pasco, David Brandon. Satellite relay station attendant Spano and young ham operator Benny see a murder on a satellite monitor and try to warn a woman they believe will be the killer's next victim. Ersatz REAR WINDOW lifts ideas—but not substance—from the Hitchcock classic. Italian production released with English-language soundtrack. [PG]▼●

High Heels (1972-French) C-100m. ½ D: Claude Chabrol. Jean-Paul Belmondo, Mia Farrow, Laura Antonelli, Daniel Ivernel. High Heels (1991-Spanish) C-115m. ½

D: Pedro Almodóvar. Victoria Abril, Marisa Paredes, Miguel Bosé, Feodor Atkine, Bibi Andersen, Rocío Muñoz. So-so Almodóvar concoction about the conflicts and intricacies in the relationship between a famous, egocentric actress (Paredes) and her TV newscaster daughter (Abril). First half is vintage Almodóvar, but film becomes a bit more serious (than necessary) as it unfolds. Still, there are plenty of the director's outlandish touches—check out that women's prison—and also some interesting views on celebrity. Leading man Bosé (son of Italian actress Lucia Bosé and Spanish bullfighter Luis Miguel Dominguín) is a pop music star in Spain. [R]▼

High Heels and Low Lives (2001-British-U.S.) C-86m. ½ D: Mel Smith. Minnie Driver, Mary McCormack, Michael Gambon, Danny Dyer, Kevin McNally, Mark Williams, Julian Wadham. Broad British import about a pair of down-on-their-luck best friends who accidentally discover a bank robbery in progress and decide to blackmail the burglars into giving up the money. Clever setup and appealing lead performances make this frisky fun, even though the violent climax puts a damper on things—and strains credibility. Enjoyable female buddy caper is more OÜTRAGEOUS FORTUNE than THELMA & LOUISE. [R]▼

High Hopes (1988-British) C-112m. ½ D: Mike Leigh. Philip Davis, Ruth Sheen, Edna Dore, Philip Jackson, Heather Tobias, Lesley Manville, David Bamber. Extraordinary slice-of-life comedy-drama about love, alienation, and responsibility, centered on a young, laid-back working-class couple, his aged mother and manic sister. Writer-director Leigh offers a provocative, highly original view of life's misfits in modern-day England, and offers food for thought along with some very hearty laughs.▼

Highlander (1986) C-111m. *½ D: Russell Mulcahy. Christopher Lambert, Roxanne Hart, Clancy Brown, Sean Connery, Beatie Edney, Alan North. Immortal being is tracked from 16th-century Scotland to modern-day America by his eternal arch-enemy. Interesting notion made silly and boring. Connery, at least, shows some style in smallish role as Lambert's survival tutor. Former rock video director Mulcahy's relentlessly showy camera moves may cause you to reach for the Dramamine. Ran 17m. longer outside U.S. (and reportedly made more sense). Director's Cut edition is 5m. longer. Followed by three sequels, a TV series, an animated TV series, and an anime feature. [R]▼●●

Highlander II: The Quickening (1991) C-88m. *½ D: Russell Mulcahy. Christopher Lambert, Virginia Madsen, Michael Ironside, Sean Connery, John C. McGinley, Allan Rich, Phil Brock, Rusty Schwimmer. Lambert has saved the world by a globe-

encircling shield, but years later, the shield's the problem. At least, that seems to be the setup; hard to tell in a film so awesomely dull. Connery is dull, too, and in it very briefly. We learn new stuff about the immortals that contradicts the first film without adding anything interesting. Even those who liked the first one hated this. Some video versions run 108m. J-D-C Scope. [R]▼●●

Highlander: Endgame (2000) C-88m. BOMB D: Douglas Aarniokoski. Adrian Paul, Christopher Lambert, Bruce Payne, Lisa Barbuscia, Donnie Yen, Ian Paul Cassidy, Sheila Gish. Tedious sequel in which 500-year-old Lambert goes up against fellow immortal Payne, a vengeance-seeking, power-hungry rogue. Also involved is Lambert's clan brother (Paul, from the TV series). Of interest only to die-hard series fans. Fifth in the series—HIGHLANDER: THE SOURCE. Video runs 101m. Super 35. [R]▼

Highlander: The Final Dimension (1994-U.S.-Canadian) C-99m. BOMB D: Andy Morahan. Christopher Lambert, Mario Van Peebles, Deborah Unger, Mako, Raoul Trujillo, Martin Neufeld, Michael Jayston. Conor McCloud, the wanderer from medieval Scotland, does battle in today's N.Y. with evil fellow immortal from the past, the Mongol magician Cane (Van Peebles). Foolish, badly written piffle is a sequel only to the first film, ignoring the second and the TV series. Lambert is glum, Van Peebles shamelessly hammy. Dozens of unexplained elements, starting with Cane's perfect English. Video version rated R. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

High Noon (1952) 84m. * D: Fred Zinnemann. Gary Cooper, Thomas Mitchell, Lloyd Bridges, Katy Jurado, Grace Kelly, Otto Kruger, Lon Chaney (Jr.), Henry (Harry) Morgan, Lee Van Cleef, Robert Wilke, Sheb Wooley. On his wedding—and retirement—day, marshal Cooper learns that a gunman is coming seeking revenge. Though he has good excuses for leaving, he feels a responsibility to stay and face the gunman—but no one in town is willing to help. The story appears to unfold in "real time," as the many on-screen clocks will verify. Legendary Western drama about a crisis of conscience, written by Carl Foreman, underscored by Tex Ritter's performance of Oscar-winning Dimitri Tiomkin-Ned Washington song, "Do Not Forsake Me, Oh My Darlin'." Oscars also went to Cooper, Tiomkin's score, and Elmo Williams' and Harry Gershtad's editing. Followed by 1980 TV sequel with Lee Majors; remade for TV in 2000. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

scious but compelling story of drifter hired by townspeople to protect them from vengeful outlaws who have just been released from prison. Half-serious, half tongue-in-cheek, with great role for midget Billy Curtis. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Highpoint (1980-Canadian) C-88m. BOMB D: Peter Carter. Richard Harris, Christopher Plummer, Beverly D'Angelo, Kate Reid, Peter Donat, Saul Rubinek. Confused and sloppy comedy thriller (reedited by a film doctor) has Harris as an accountant mixed up in a CIA plot and international intrigue. An excuse for frequent chases culminating in a poorly photographed stunt fall off Toronto's CN tower. ▼●

High Risk (1981) C-94m. ½ D: Stewart Raffill. James Brolin, Cleavon Little, Bruce Davison, Chick Vennera, Anthony Quinn, Lindsay Wagner, James Coburn, Ernest Borgnine. Preposterous movie about group of normal Americans becoming mercenaries, flying to South America, parachuting into jungle to rip off dope dealers . . . and that's just the beginning, because they soon run into banditos. Ridiculous story, but good fun. [R]▼●●

High Road to China (1983) C-120m.  D: Brian G. Hutton. Tom Selleck, Bess Armstrong, Jack Weston, Wilford Brimley, Robert Morley, Brian Blessed. Low road to escapism, with Selleck (in his first starring feature) as a boozy ex-WW1 aerial ace hired by heiress Armstrong to find her father. Strictly mediocre, with standard action scenes, and the flattest dialogue this side of the Great Wall. [PG]▼●

High School Confidential! (1958) 85m. *½ D: Jack Arnold. Russ Tamblyn, Jan Sterling, John Drew Barrymore, Mamie Van Doren, Diane Jergens, Ray Anthony, Jerry Lee Lewis, Jackie Coogan, Charles Chaplin, Jr., Lyle Talbot, William Wellman, Jr., Michael Landon. Amateurish, hilariously awful marijuana exposé, with young undercover agent Tamblyn obtaining evidence against dope pushers. A most fascinating cast. Retitled YOUNG HELIONS; followed by COLLEGE CONFIDENTIAL! CinemaScope. ▼●●

High School High (1996) C-86m.  D: Hart Bochner. Jon Lovitz, Tia Carrere, Louise Fletcher, Mekhi Phifer, Malinda Williams, John Neville. Lovitz plays an idealistic teacher who finds himself in an urban high school so mean it even has its own cemetery! Farcical at times, uncomfortably realistic at other moments, this film suffers from a severe identity crisis. AIRPLANE/NAKED GUN veterans David Zucker and Pat Proft were among the writers. [PG-13]▼●●

man, Olesya Rulin, Alyson Reed, Jemma McKenzie-Brown, Matt Prokop. Senior year at East High brings new challenges as basketball star Efron is persuaded to participate in the school musical and girlfriend Hudgens has to decide whether to pursue early admission to college, among other story threads. All the stars of the first two wildly successful Disney Channel TV movies are reunited for this lively, energetic teen musical, executed on a larger scale than its predecessors. Story-wise, this hearkens back to Archie and Veronica, but it's cheerful and upbeat throughout. Extended version runs 117m. [G]●

High Season (1987-British) C-92m.  D: Clare Peploe. Jacqueline Bisset, James Fox, Irene Papas, Sebastian Shaw, Kenneth Branagh, Lesley Manville, Robert Stephens. Romantic misfire has Bisset (stunningly lovely as always) as a photographer residing in Rhodes who becomes involved with obnoxious tourists, a spy, and her egotistical ex-hubbie Fox. Fluff offers little more than luscious views of Bisset and the Greek island setting. [R]▼●●

High Sierra (1941) 100m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Ida Lupino, Humphrey Bogart, Alan Curtis, Arthur Kennedy, Joan Leslie, Henry Hull, Henry Travers, Barton MacLane, Jerome Cowan, Cornel Wilde, Donald MacBride, John Eldredge, Isabel Jewell, Willie Best. Bogey is Mad Dog Earle, killer with a soft heart on the lam from police, in rousing (if not exactly credible) gangster caper. Lupino as the moll and Leslie as the lame innocent Bogart befriends offer interesting contrast. Screenplay by John Huston and W. R. Burnett based on Burnett's novel. Remade as I DIED A THOUSAND TIMES, and in Western garb as COLORADO TERRITORY. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

High Society (1956) C-107m.  D: Charles Walters. Bing Crosby, Grace Kelly, Frank Sinatra, Celeste Holm, John Lund, Louis Calhern, Louis Armstrong, Sidney Blackmer. Fluffy remake of THE PHILADELPHIA STORY is enjoyable, but has lost all the bite of the original. Kelly is about to marry Lund when ex-hubby Crosby arrives, along with reporters Sinatra and Holm. Cole Porter songs include "True Love," "Did You Evah?," "You're Sensational," plus Bing and Satchmo's "Now You Has Jazz." Grace Kelly's last acting role. VistaVision. ▼●●

master. Head-splitting farce full of collapsing sets and lots of wind-machine action; cast members complained that film's producers crudely altered the original whimsical intentions of writer-director Jordan. Unbearable. [PG-13] ▼●●

High Strung (1991) C-93m. ½ D: Roger Nygard. Steve Oedekerck, Denise Crosby, Fred Willard, Thomas F. Wilson, Ed Williams, Jani Lane, Kirsten Dunst, Tony Sawyer. A day in the life of chronic whiner Oedekerck (who cowrote film with Robert Kuhn). Grating comedy was rereleased in 1994 to capitalize on the success of Jim Carrey, who has a very small (about 5 minutes), unbilled role. [PG] ▼●●

High Tension (2003-French) C-91m. ½ D: Alexandre Aja. Cécile de France, Mäiwenn (Mäiwenn Le Besco), Philippe Nahon, Franck Khalfoun, Andrei Finti, Oana Pellea. French import about two girls trying to escape from a perverted serial killer in the isolated countryside was one of the most acclaimed entries in a seemingly endless series of '70s slasher-film revivals. While many of its frightening images and suspenseful, cleverly orchestrated sequences live up to its title, an unsatisfying final twist makes it seem even more dated than the movies it emulates. Cut for U.S. theatrical release. Super 35. [R] ▼●

High Tide (1987-Australian) C-101m. ½ D: Gillian Armstrong. Judy Davis, Jan Adele, Claudia Karvan, Colin Friels, John Clayton, Frankie J. Holden, Monica Trapaga, Mark Hembrow. Quietly emotional story of a woman who inadvertently encounters the teenage daughter she abandoned years ago. Truthfully told, well acted, and set against bleakness of an Australian coastal town, but hampered by a leading character we don't necessarily care about. It's fun to see Davis in the opening scenes playing a backup singer for a crummy Elvis impersonator! [PG-13] ▼●●

High Time (1960) C-103m. ½ D: Blake Edwards. Bing Crosby, Fabian, Tuesday Weld, Nicole Maurey. Middling Crosby vehicle has Bing a widower resuming college career and trying to be one of the boys; forced comedy. CinemaScope.

Highwayman Rides, The SEE: Billy the Kid (1930)

Highway Patrolman (1993-U.S.-Mexican) C-105m. ½ D: Alex Cox. Roberto Sosa, Bruno Bichir, Vanessa Bauche, Zaide Silvia Gutierrez, Pedro Armendariz, Jr., Malena Doria. Portrait of an idealistic young highway patrolman (Sosa), who is committed to upholding the law but gradually allows himself to be corrupted. Mildly entertaining and more straightforward than one might expect from filmmaker Cox; if anything, the problem is the story's lack of dramatic tension. ▼

Highway 61 (1991-Canadian-British) C-

102m. ½ D: Bruce McDonald. Don McKellar, Valerie Buhagiar, Earl Pastko, Peter Breck, Jello Biafra. An odd couple—introverted, inexperienced small-town barber McKellar and eccentric, on-the-lam roadie Buhagiar—find themselves traveling from Ontario to New Orleans, along the highway immortalized by Bob Dylan, with a coffin strapped to the roof of their car. Quirky rock 'n roll road movie is strangely likable, depending on your taste and tolerance for the material. McKellar also wrote the script. [R] ▼●●

Highway to Hell (1992) C-93m. ½ D: Ate de Jong. Patrick Bergin, Chad Lowe, Kristy Swanson, Richard Farnsworth, C. J. Graham, Lita Ford, Kevin Peter Hall. Newlyweds Lowe and Swanson have their honeymoon ruined when she's abducted by a cop from hell ... literally! Lowe then learns that local legend gives him 24 hours to rescue his bride. Oddball yarn is unexciting and unfunny; even comic Gilbert Gottfried in a cameo as Hitler can't salvage this one. Filmed in 1989. [R] ▼●●

High, Wide, and Handsome (1937) 112m. ½ D: Rouben Mamoulian. Irene Dunne, Randolph Scott, Dorothy Lamour, Elizabeth Patterson, Charles Bickford, Raymond Walburn, Alan Hale, Akim Tamiroff, William Frawley. Jerome Kern—Oscar Hammerstein old-time musical of determined Scott drilling for oil in 19th-century Pennsylvania, fighting corrupt Hale. Corny plot put over by energetic cast; result is entertaining. Songs include "The Folks Who Live on the Hill."

High Wind in Jamaica, A (1965-British) C-104m.  D: Alexander Mackendrick. Anthony Quinn, James Coburn, Dennis Price, Gert Frobe, Lila Kedrova, Nigel Davenport, Kenneth J. Warren, Deborah Baxter. Excellent cast and intelligent script about group of children who reveal their basic natures when left adrift aboard a pirate vessel. Score composed by harmonica virtuoso Larry Adler. CinemaScope. ● to the college town that used to be her home, starts the local gossips to fluttering with her behavior. Not much overall, but title character is surprisingly liberated for her time, making her one of the '50s' more interesting screen heroines. CinemaScope.

Hi-Life (1998) C-82m.  1/2 D: Roger Hedden. Katrin Cartlidge, Charles Durning, Daryl Hannah, Moira Kelly, Peter Riegert, Campbell Scott, Eric Stoltz, Anne De Salvo, Sandra Santiago, Bruce McVittie, Carlos Alban. Characters and complications abound in this contrived Christmastime tale about a N.Y.C. bartender (Scott) and his attempt to raise sufficient funds to pay for what he has been led to believe is his sister's abortion. MIRACLE ON 34TH STREET it ain't, but the talented cast makes it watchable. [R] ▼

Hill, The (1965) 122m.  1/2 D: Sidney Lumet. Sean Connery, Harry Andrews, Ian Hendry, Michael Redgrave, Ian Bannen, Alfred Lynch, Ossie Davis, Roy Kinnear, Jack Watson. Powerful drama of military prison camp, with superb performances by all. One problem: British actors bark at each other and much dialogue is unintelligible to American ears (though if you can make it through the first reel, hang on). Written by Ray Rigby. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Hillbillies in a Haunted House (1967) C-88m. * 1/2 D: Jean Yarbrough. Ferlin Husky, Joi Lansing, Don Bowman, John Carradine, Lon Chaney, Jr., Basil Rathbone, Molly Bee, Merle Haggard, Sonny James. Country singers Husky and Lansing spend a night in an old mansion, become involved with an espionage ring. Moronic comedy with an elderly, tired cast; a follow-up to LAS VEGAS HILLBILLYS. Sorry to say, Rathbone's last film. ▼

Hills Have Eyes, The (1977) C-89m.  1/2 D: Wes Craven. Susan Lanier, Robert Houston, Virginia Vincent, Russ Grieve, Dee Wallace, Martin Speer, Michael Berryman. Typical American family on camping trip is harassed by savage, cannibalistic mutants. Above average of its type, with compact direction and plenty of amusing plot twists. Extremely gory film has acquired a cult following. Followed by a sequel. Remade in 2006. [R] ▼

Hills Have Eyes Part II, The (1985-U.S.-British) C-88m. BOMB D: Wes Craven. Michael Berryman, John Laughlin, Tamara Stafford, Kevin Blair, John Bloom. Lame sequel has a group of young motocross enthusiasts stranded in the desert, preyed upon by primitive family. Loaded with flashback footage from 1977 film, including one sequence ludicrously purporting to be a recollection by a dog! Filmed in 1983. [R] ▼

Hills Have Eyes, The (2006) C-107m.  1/2 D: Alexandre Aja. Michael Bailey Smith, Tom Bower, Ted Levine, Kathleen Quinlan, Dan Byrd, Aaron Stanford, Vinessa Shaw, Emilie de Ravin, Robert Joy, Billy Drago. A family follows a creepy gas station attendant's shortcut and gets stranded in the desert, surrounded by a community of deformed killers who inevitably attack. Remaining family members must fend for themselves and avenge their loved ones. Certainly not for all (or even most) audiences; gruesome, disturbing, and finally sort of hokey. Still, Aja deserves credit for a horror remake that—for once—manages to retain much of the original's intensity. Unrated version also available. Followed by a sequel. Super 35. [R] ▼

Hills Have Eyes II, The (2007) C-89m. * 1/2 D: Martin Weisz. Michael McMillian, Jessica Stroup, Daniella Alonso, Jacob Vargas, Lee Thompson Young, Ben Crowley, Eric Edelstein, Flex Alexander, Reshad Strik, Michael Bailey Smith. A National Guard troop training in the Southwestern desert comes up against that tribe of radioactively mutated cannibals from the previous film. Begins well but becomes predictable and routine, especially when everyone ends up in mine tunnels favored by the mutants. Good if grisly makeup effects. Written by Wes Craven and his son Jonathan. Not a remake of THE HILLS HAVE EYES PART II. Filmed in Morocco. Unrated version also available. Super 35. [R] ▼

Hills of Home (1948) C-97m.  D: Fred M. Wilcox. Edmund Gwenn, Donald Crisp, Tom Drake, Rhys Williams, Janet Leigh. Fine Lassie movie about doctor convincing Scottish father to urge son to study medicine. ▼

Hills Run Red, The (1966-Italian) C-89m.  D: Carlo Lizzani. Thomas Hunter, Henry Silva, Dan Duryea, Nando Gazzola. Civil War Western of stolen payrolls; poorly dubbed and loosely acted. Techniscope. ▼

Hi-Lo Country, The (1998) C-114m.  1/2 D: Stephen Frears. Woody Harrelson, Billy Crudup, Patricia Arquette, Sam Elliott, Cole Hauser, Penelope Cruz, Darren Burrows, Jacob Vargas, James Gammon, Lane Smith, Katy Jurado. Story of two cowboy friends in post-WW2 New Mexico who happen to fall in love with the same woman—though she's already married. A paean to the cowboy way of life and the joys of true friendship, this film has so much going for it (including Harrelson's terrific performance as a hell-raiser and Oliver Stapleton's cinematography) that it's a shame it doesn't hit the bull's-eye... and Arquette is so dull. Screenplay by Walon Green from the novel by Max Evans. 2.35 Research PLC. [R] ▼

Hi, Mom! (1970) C/B&W-87m.  1/2 D:

Brian De Palma, Robert De Niro, Allen Garfield, Lara Parker, Jennifer Salt, Gerrit Graham, Charles Durning. Sequel to GREETINGS! is funny satire of the late '60s, with Vietnam veteran De Niro making dirty movies and bombing apartment houses. Aka CONFESSIONS OF A PEEPING JOHN and BLUE MANHATTAN. [R]▼

Hindenburg, The (1975) C-125m.  D: Robert Wise. George C. Scott, Anne Bancroft, William Atherton, Roy Thinnes, Gig Young, Burgess Meredith, Charles Durning, Richard A. Dysart, Robert Clary, Rene Auberjonois, Katherine Helmond. Intriguing premise, that 1937 airship disaster was an act of sabotage, undermined by silly Grand Hotel-type characters and unexciting denouement combining original newsreel footage and newly shot material. This earned special Oscars for its visual and sound effects. 5m. were added to film for network showing. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Hips, Hips, Hooray (1934) 68m.  D: Mark Sandrich. Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey, Dorothy Lee, Thelma Todd, Ruth Etting, George Meeker. One of Wheeler & Woolsey's best vehicles is a lavish, risqué musical comedy about their attempts to save Todd's ailing beauty business. Wild production numbers, plus a nice song from Etting, "Keep Romance Alive."▼●

Hired Hand, The (1971) C-93m.  D: Peter Fonda. Peter Fonda, Warren Oates, Verna Bloom, Robert Pratt, Severn Darden. First-rate photography by Vilmos Zsigmond and good performances by Oates and Bloom aid this offbeat, sometimes pretentious Western about cowboy who goes to work for the wife he deserted seven years before. [PG]▼

Hired to Kill (1990) C-91m. *½ D: Nico Mastorakis, Peter Rader. Brian Thompson, Oliver Reed, George Kennedy, Jose Ferrer, Michelle Moffett, Barbara Lee Alexander, Jordana Capra, Kendall Conrad, Kim Lonsdale, Jude Mussetter, Penelope Reed. Mercenary Thompson poses as a gay fashion designer to spring rebel leader Ferrer from Latin American prison. His commando squad: six gorgeous women posing as fashion models! Well produced, but awesomely silly. [R]▼

Hireling, The (1973-British) C-108m. ½ D: Alan Bridges. Robert Shaw, Sarah Miles, Peter Egan, Elizabeth Sellars, Caroline Mortimer, Patricia Lawrence. Artistic adaptation of L. P. Ensemble British cast, good direction. Screenplay by Wolf Mankowitz. [PG]

Hiroshima, Mon Amour (1959-French-Japanese) 91m. ½ D: Alain Resnais, Emmanuele Riva, Eiji Okada, Stella Dassas,

Pierre Barbaud, Bernard Fresson. Resnais' first feature is a thoughtful, complex study of a French film actress (Riva) and Japanese architect (Okada), each with a troubled past, who have a brief affair in postwar Hiroshima. Scripted by Marguerite Duras.▼

His Brother's Wife (1936) 90m.  D: W. S. Van Dyke, II. Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Taylor, Jean Hersholt, Joseph Calleia, John Eldredge, Samuel S. Hinds. Glossy soap of dedicated scientist Taylor scorning Stanwyck, who marries his brother Eldredge for spite. Stanwyck and Taylor married in real life three years later.

His Girl Friday (1940) 92m. * D: Howard Hawks. Cary Grant, Rosalind Russell, Ralph Bellamy, Gene Lockhart, Helen Mack, Ernest Truex, Clarence Kolb, Porter Hall, Roscoe Karns, Abner Biberman, Cliff Edwards, John Qualen, Frank Jenks, Billy Gilbert. Splendid comedy remake of THE FRONT PAGE with Grant as conniving editor, Russell as star reporter (and his ex-wife), Bellamy as mama's boy she's trying to marry amid hot murder story. Terrific character actors add sparkle to must-see film, scripted by Ben Hecht and Charles Lederer. Remade (with the same gender twist) in 1988 as SWITCHING CHANNELS.▼●●

His Kind of Woman (1951) 120m.  D: John Farrow. Robert Mitchum, Jane Russell, Vincent Price, Tim Holt, Raymond Burr, Charles McGraw, Marjorie Reynolds, Jim Backus. Mitchum blindly goes to Mexico for a payoff of 50 grand, discovers he's the soon-to-be-dead chump whose identity will help deported gangster Burr re-enter the country. Cult film is overlong, but its spoofing of he-man heroics predates the more celebrated BEAT THE DEVIL by three years; Price is hilarious as a ham actor.▼

His Majesty O'Keefe (1953) C-92m. ½ D: Byron Haskin. Burt Lancaster, Joan Rice, Benson Fong, Philip Ahn, Grant Taylor. Another athletic Lancaster buccaneer romp, set in the South Seas.▼

History Boys, The (2006-British-U.S.) C-109m.  D: Nicholas Hytner. Richard Griffiths, Stephen Campbell Moore, Frances de la Tour, Samuel Barnett, Dominic Cooper, Samuel Anderson, James Corden, Andrew Knott, Sacha Dhawan, Jamie Parker, Russell Tovey, Clive Merrison, Penelope Wilton, Georgia Taylor. Screen adaptation of riveting, Tony Award-winning Alan Bennett play arrives with director and its London/Broadway cast intact. Eight gifted goof-offs face university exam prep with two contrasting profs: a wildly idiosyncratic veteran who gives them life lessons (Griffiths) and a humorless younger man hired to drill them on test-taking tactics. Hardly cinematic, but anyone who has ever loved GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS won't mind. [R]▼

History Is Made at Night (1937) 97m. ½ D: Frank Borzage. Charles Boyer, Jean Arthur, Leo Carrillo, Colin Clive, Ivan Lebedeff, George Meeker, Lucien Prival, George Davis. Arthur, fleeing from a jealous husband she doesn't love, falls in love with Parisian headwaiter Boyer. Elegant, adult romantic drama, seamlessly directed by Borzage, with incredible shipboard climax and flawless performances by the two leads. ▼●

History of the World—Part 1 (1981) C-92m. *½ D: Mel Brooks. Mel Brooks, Gregory Hines, Dom DeLuise, Madeline Kahn, Harvey Korman, Cloris Leachman, Ron Carey, Sid Caesar, Pamela Stephenson, Mary-Margaret Humes, Howard Morris, Spike Milligan, Barry Levinson, many guest stars; narrated by Orson Welles. Scattershot comedy wanders from the Stone Age to Roman Empire to French Revolution, dispensing gags ranging from hilarious to hideous. After a while momentum's gone, and it all just lies there, despite efforts of a large comic cast. Caesar scores highest as a caveman in opening scenes. Hines' film debut. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

History of Violence, A (2005-U.S.-Canadian) C-95m.  D: David Cronenberg. Viggo Mortensen, Maria Bello, William Hurt, Ed Harris, Ashton Holmes, Stephen McHattie, Peter MacNeill. Soft-spoken man who runs a small-town luncheonette is suddenly confronted by two violent strangers—and is more than ready to respond. His actions lead to questions and repercussions. Sexually potent, harshly violent story based on the graphic novel by John Wagner and Vince Locke is arresting entertainment that means to hit us right between the eyes, and does. [R] ▼●

Hit! (1973) C-134m.  D: Sidney J. Furie. Billy Dee Williams, Paul Hampton, Richard Pryor, Gwen Welles. Detailed and overlong, but exciting story of black U.S. agent who seeks revenge on top drug importers in Marseilles who are indirectly responsible for his daughter's death. Panavision. [R] ▼

Hit, The (1984-British) C-98m.  D: Stephen Frears. Terence Stamp, John Hurt, Tim Roth, Laura Del Sol, Bill Hunter, Fernando Rey, Jim Broadbent. Sly, offbeat film about a criminal stool pigeon (Stamp) who's been in hiding for ten years but whose time has just run out: two hit men have tracked him down. Sharp, often very funny, and doggedly unpredictable. Written by Peter Prince; memorable theme music by Eric Clapton. Film debut of Tim Roth. [R] ▼●●

Hitch (2005) C-117m.  D: Andy Tennant. Will Smith, Eva Mendes, Kevin James, Amber Valletta, Michael Rapaport, Adam Arkin, Julie Ann Emery, Kevin Sussman, Robinne Lee, Philip Bosco, Matt Mal-

loy. Smith is a date doctor who coaches timid, nerdy New York guys on how to woo women, using several "basic principles." His latest client (James) is madly in love with a celebrated heiress (Valletta), but Smith doesn't see her as unattainable. Then he sets his own sights on gossip columnist Mendes. Likable at first, this romantic comedy becomes needlessly complicated and overlong. Smith also coproduced. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Hitcher, The (1986) C-97m. ½ D: Robert Harmon. Rutger Hauer, C. Thomas Howell, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Jeffrey DeMunn, John Jackson. Hitchhiker Hauer keeps reappearing in Howell's life—is he real, or an hallucination? Reminiscent of other movies, except all those other movies (DUEL, NIGHT OF THE HUNTER) are better. Not without interest, but some of the violence is genuinely grisly and unappealing. Followed in 2002 by a direct-to-video sequel. Remade in 2007. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Hitcher, The (2007) C-83m. *½ D: Dave Meyers. Sophia Bush, Sean Bean, Zachary Knighton, Neal McDonough. Unnecessary remake of the 1986 horror film in which a hitchhiker terrorizes a young couple who wish they'd never picked him up in the first place. Some good car stunts and a credible performance from Bean as the evildoer aren't enough to justify revisiting this material. Apparently the most original change filmmakers could think of was switching the gender in the notorious body "stretching" scene we first saw 20 years earlier. Super 35. [R] ●

Hitch-Hiker, The (1953) 71m. ½ D: Ida Lupino. Edmond O'Brien, Frank Lovejoy, William Talman, Jose Torvay. Well-made suspense yarn about two men on a hunting trip whose car is commandeered by a murderous fugitive. Good performances, especially by a venal Talman in the title role, but the film's once-powerful impact has been muted by decades of more graphic and imaginative films. ▼●●

Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy, The (2005) C-110m.  D: Garth Jennings. Martin Freeman, Sam Rockwell, Mos Def, Zoëy Deschanel, Bill Nighy, Anna Chancellor, John Malkovich, Simon Jones, David Leamer; voices of Alan Rickman, Helen Mirren, Richard Griffiths, Ian McNeice, Thomas Lennon; narrated by Stephen Fry. Clever if low-key screen adaptation of Douglas Adams' much-loved book (which began as a BBC radio serial) about an ordinary bloke who finds himself having an intergalactic adventure after earth is destroyed . . . and encountering other species in search of the Big Answers. Visually and verbally witty, though the energy lags at times. Filmed as a miniseries in 1981. Super 35. [PG] ●

Hitler (1962) 107m. ½ D: Stuart Heisler.

Richard Basehart, Cordula Trantow, Maria Emo, Martin Kosleck, John Banner, Carl Esmond. Basehart gives a cerebral interpretation to the career of the leader of the Third Reich. ▼

Hitler—Dead or Alive (1943) 70m.  D: Nick Grinde. Ward Bond, Dorothy Tree, Warren Hymer, Paul Fix, Russell Hicks, Felix Basch, Bobby Watson. Low-budget nonsense, with con men shooting for high stakes by attempting to kill Hitler. ▼

Hitler Gang, The (1944) 101m. ½ D: John Farrow. Robert Watson, Martin Kosleck, Victor Varconi, Luis Van Rooten, Sig Ruman, Tonio Selwart, Ludwig Donath. Historical drama of Hitler's rise to power had greatest impact on WW2 audiences but is still fairly interesting, though dwarfed by recent documentaries.

Hitler's Children (1943) 83m.  D: Edward Dmytryk, Irving Reis. Tim Holt, Bonita Granville, Kent Smith, Otto Kruger, H. B. Warner, Lloyd Corrigan. Engrossing exploitation film of young people forced to live life of horror in Nazi Germany. Quite sensational in its day. ▼

Hitler's Gold SEE: Inside Out (1975)

Hitler's Madman (1943) 84m. ½ D: Douglas Sirk. Patricia Morison, John Carradine, Alan Curtis, Ralph Morgan, Howard Freeman, Ludwig Stossel, Edgar Kennedy. Vintage WW2 propaganda of citizens in small Czech village and their fate against their Nazi tormentors. Carradine is appropriately depraved as Reinhard Heydrich, Nazi governor of Prague. Coscripted by Yiddish playwright Peretz Hirschbein; look for Ava Gardner in a small part. Loosely based on fact; the story is also told in HANGMEN ALSO DIE!

Hitler: The Last Ten Days (1973-British-Italian) C-108m.  D: Ennio de Concini. Alec Guinness, Simon Ward, Adolfo Celi, Diane Cilento, Gabriele Ferzetti, Eric Porter, Doris Kunstmann. Strange treatment of Hitler's final tyrannies is grimly amusing at times; muddled film doesn't really work. [PG] ▼

Hit List (1989) C-87m.  D: William Lustig. Jan-Michael Vincent, Lance Henriksen, Rip Torn, Leo Rossi, Jere Burns, Ken Lerner. Familiar urban thriller of ordinary guy whose child is mistakenly kidnapped by cold-eyed hit man working for flamboyant mobster Torn. Hero teams up with the real target, an informer. Lots of violent action. Torn and Henriksen are good, but you've seen it all before. [R] ▼

Hit Man (1972) C-90m.  D: George Armitage. Bernie Casey, Pamela Grier, Lisa Moore, Don Diamond, Roger E. Mosley. Reworking of GET CARTER in black mold. Big rubout is key to crime story, and it loses steam before long. [R]

Hitman (2007) C-93m.  D: Xavier Gens. Timothy Olyphant, Dougray Scott, Olga

Kurylenko, Robert Knepper, Ulrich Thomsen, Henry Ian Cusick. Every bit as visually flashy and dramatically sketchy as you would expect a video-game-inspired action-adventure to be. Still, some genuinely rousing run-and-gun sequences—enhanced with rapid-fire editing, slo-mo flourishes, and very loud music—generate interest as prolifically lethal but increasingly self-doubting Agent 47 (Olyphant), a bald-pated, bar-code-tattooed assassin, dashes about Russia after being betrayed by his employers. Unrated version also available. Super 35. [R] ▼

Hitman, The (1991) C-95m. ½ D: Aaron Norris. Chuck Norris, Michael Parks, Al Waxman, Alberta Watson, Salim Grant, Ken Pogue, Marcel Sabourin. Fairly awful Chuck Norris vehicle in which the star goes undercover to infiltrate an organized crime ring. Norris gets to play a heavy—even though we know all along it's a ruse. This acting "stretch" still isn't enough to distinguish the film. Stuntwork remains the only redeeming quality. [R] ▼

Hit Team, The SEE: Company of Killers

Hit the Deck (1955) C-112m. ½ D: Roy Rowland. Jane Powell, Tony Martin, Debbie Reynolds, Ann Miller, Vic Damone, Russ Tamblyn, Walter Pidgeon, Kay Armen, Gene Raymond. Second-string MGM musical of sailors on shore leave is pleasant time-filler, no more, with nice Vincent Youmans songs like "Hallelujah," "Sometimes I'm Happy," "More Than You Know." Filmed before in 1930. CinemaScope. ▼

Hit the Ice (1943) 82m. ½ D: Charles Lamont. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Ginny Simms, Patric Knowles, Elyse Knox, Sheldon Leonard, Marc Lawrence, Joseph Sawyer. Bud and Lou are newspaper photographers involved with gang of thugs in zany comedy with good gags on skating rink. ▼

H. M. Pulham, Esq. (1941) 120m. ½ D: King Vidor. Hedy Lamarr, Robert Young, Ruth Hussey, Charles Coburn, Van Heflin, Fay Holden, Bonita Granville, Leif Erickson, Sara Haden. Intelligent, mature, and witty film (based on John P. Marquand story) about a man who's lived his life as he was supposed to—not as he chose to. Lamarr is excellent as the spirited career woman who coaxes proper Bostonian Young out of his shell, ever so briefly. Scripted by Elizabeth Hill and director Vidor. Anne Revere has unbilled bit as a secretary in flashback scenes. Look fast for Ava Gardner on the dance floor behind Lamarr and Young. ▼

author Clifford Irving convinced a major publisher that he was the conduit to an autobiography of eccentric, elusive billionaire Howard Hughes. Gere brilliantly captures Irving's bravado, and his anxieties; Molina is funny as his hapless partner in crime. Hallström and screenwriter William Wheeler's treatment of the material is unexpectedly complex and challenging, presenting a mental puzzle in cinematic form. [R]●

Hobson's Choice (1954-British) 107m.  D: David Lean. Charles Laughton, John Mills, Brenda de Banzie, Daphne Anderson, Prunella Scales, Richard Wattis, Helen Haye. Laughton is selfish, overbearing owner of bootshop in 1890s who's used to being tended to by his three subservient daughters; then his eldest (De Banzie) decides to take matters into her own hands. Beautifully staged and photographed (by Jack Hildyard), with Laughton having a field day in the lead. Loses momentum along the way, but still entertaining. Filmed before in 1920 and 1931; remade as a TVM in 1983. ▼●●

Hockey Night (1984-Canadian) C-77m. ½ D: Paul Shapiro. Megan Follows, Rick Moranis, Gail Youngs, Yannick Bisson, Henry Ramer, Sean McCann. A girl goalie makes the boys' hockey team in a small Canadian town. Unexceptional but still likable, and ideal nonexploitation fare for pre- and early teens. ▼●

Hocus Pocus (1993) C-95m. *½ D: Kenny Ortega. Bette Midler, Sarah Jessica Parker, Kathy Najimy, Omri Katz, Thora Birch, Vinessa Shaw, Amanda Shepherd, Larry Bagby III, Tobias Jelinek, Stephanie Faracy, Charlie Rocket, Kathleen Freeman, Don Yesso. Lonely male teen in Salem, Mass., conjures up three long-deceased witches who can only sustain themselves by sucking the life out of children. Someone certainly sucked the humor out of this ghoulish, effects-laden concoction. Hammy to the extreme, and a discredit to Disney "family entertainment." [PG]▼●●

Hoffa (1992) C-140m. ½ D: Danny DeVito. Jack Nicholson, Danny DeVito, Armand Assante, J. T. Walsh, John C. Reilly, Frank Whaley, Kevin Anderson, John P. Ryan, Robert Prosky, Natalija Nogulich, Nicholas Pryor, Karen Young, Cliff Gorman. Scattershot (and sanitized) biography of legendary Teamster boss Jimmy Hoffa, transformed into a must-see by the galvanizing performance of Nicholson. DeVito indulges in visual flourishes but seldom engages our emotions; nor does David Mamet's script, which never gives us much insight into the man or his motivations. Nicholson's daughter, Jennifer Nicholson, has a bit as a nursing nun in white. Bruno Kirby appears unbilled as a nightclub comic. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Hoffman (1970-British) C-116m.  D: Alvin Rakoff. Peter Sellers, Sinead Cusack,

Jeremy Bulloch, Ruth Dunning. Very odd, low-key dual character study with Sellers blackmailing attractive young bride-to-be to spend week with him. Slightly overlong; great performances. [PG]●

Holcroft Covenant, The (1985-British) C-112m.  D: John Frankenheimer. Michael Caine, Anthony Andrews, Victoria Tennant, Lilli Palmer, Mario Adorf, Michael Lonsdale. Muddy, twisty, unbelievable tale from Robert Ludlum novel. Caine's late father (a comrade-in-arms of Adolf Hitler) has left a fortune behind, supposedly to make amends for his wrongdoing—and leading Caine on a globe-trotting series of adventures. Just old-fashioned enough to be watchable—but not very good. [R]▼●●

Hold Back the Dawn (1941) 115m. ½ D: Mitchell Leisen. Charles Boyer, Olivia de Havilland, Paulette Goddard, Victor Francen, Walter Abel, Rosemary DeCamp. First-rate soap with Billy Wilder-Charles Brackett script of gigolo Boyer marrying spinsterish Olivia to get into U.S. That's director Leisen in the Hollywood soundstage sequence, directing Veronica Lake and Brian Donlevy in I WANTED WINGS. Catch this one.

Hold Back Tomorrow (1955) 75m.  D: Hugo Haas. Cleo Moore, John Agar, Frank de Kova, Harry Guardino, Jan Englund. Another of writer-director-producer Haas' oddball low-budget dramas, this one about a condemned murderer who marries a girl on the night before his execution. Fairly ambitious for a film clearly made on a shoestring.

Hold Me Thrill Me Kiss Me (1992) C-92m.  D: Joel Hershman. Max Parrish, Adrienne Shelly, Sean Young, Diane Ladd, Timothy Leary, Andrea Naschak, Bela Lehoczky. Parrish goes on the lam after shooting his fiancée (Young), a wealthy weirdo, and becomes involved with an oversexed, abusive stripper and her virginal kid sister, who live in a trailer park inhabited by assorted oddballs. Funky, extremely entertaining comedy. Fans of Pedro Almodóvar, John Waters, and early David Lynch will really go for this. Also available in unrated version. [R]▼●●

Hold On! (1966) C-85m. *½ D: Arthur Lubin. Peter Noone, Herman's Hermits, Sue Ane Langdon, Karl Green, Shelley Fabares. Will NASA name a spaceship after Herman's Hermits? That's the burning question in this awful musical, set while the group is on a U.S. tour. One of their songs is titled "A Must to Avoid," which sums up this loser. Panavision.

Hold That Ghost (1941) 86m.  D: Arthur Lubin. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Richard Carlson, Joan Davis, Mischa Auer, Evelyn Ankers, Marc Lawrence, Shemp Howard, Ted Lewis, The Andrews Sisters. Prime A&C, with the boys inheriting a haunted house. Fine cast includes hilarious

Davis as professional radio screamer. Highlight: the moving candle. ▼●●

Hold Your Man (1933) 86m.  D: Sam Wood. Jean Harlow, Clark Gable, Stuart Erwin, Elizabeth Patterson, Blanche Frederici. Delightful film that effectively makes the transition from comedy to drama with Harlow falling for jailbound Gable. The stars are at their best here. ▼

Hole, The (2001-British) C-102m.  D: Nick Hamm. Thora Birch, Desmond Harrington, Daniel Brocklebank, Laurence Fox, Keira Knightley, Embeth Davidtz. Private school student Birch stumbles onto campus after she and fellow classmates have been missing for over two weeks. She tells a tale of how she and three teens ditched a weekend field trip to hang out in an underground bunker, only to find themselves trapped and at the mercy of a troubled soul. Birch's complex performance is the best part of this lackluster psychological horror film. Released direct to video in the U.S. in 2004. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Hole in the Head, A (1959) C-120m.  D: Frank Capra. Frank Sinatra, Edward G. Robinson, Eleanor Parker, Carolyn Jones, Thelma Ritter, Eddie Hodges, Keenan Wynn, Joi Lansing. Sticky story of a ne'er-do-well (Sinatra) and his son (Hodges) doesn't seem sincere. Only distinction is Oscar-winning song, "High Hopes." CinemaScope. ▼●●

Holes (2003) C-118m. ½ D: Andrew Davis. Sigourney Weaver, Jon Voight, Shia LaBeouf, Khleo Thomas, Patricia Arquette, Tim Blake Nelson, Dulé Hill, Henry Winkler, Nate Davis, Rick Fox, Scott Plank, Eartha Kitt, Siobhan Fallon Hogan, Brenden Jefferson, Jake M. Smith. Boy from an eccentric family is sent to a strange desert detention camp where it's believed that digging holes builds character. As he gets to know the other misfits—among the kids and staff—pieces of his life begin to come together and make sense. Louis Sachar's adaptation of his popular, award-winning novel should please his juvenile audience, but adults may grow impatient as the artificial, incident-laden story plays out over two hours' time. Super 35. [PG] ▼●

Holiday (1930) 96m.  D: Edward H. Griffith. Ann Harding, Robert Ames, Mary Astor, Edward Everett Horton, Hedda Hopper, Monroe Owsley. First version of Philip Barry's play about nonconformity is a pleasant surprise; an unstodgy early talkie with casting that in some cases (Astor, Owsley) even tops the more famous 1938 version (Horton plays the same role in both movies).

Holiday (1938) 93m. ½ D: George Cukor. Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant, Doris Nolan, Lew Ayres, Edward Everett Horton, Henry Kolker, Binnie Barnes, Jean Dixon, Henry Daniell. Fine, literate adaptation of Philip Barry's play (filmed before in 1930) about nonconformist Grant confronting stuffy N.Y.C. society family, finding his match in Hepburn (who had understudied the role in the original Broadway company a decade earlier). Screenplay by Donald Ogden Stewart and Sidney Buchman. Delightful film. ▼●●

Holiday Affair (1949) 87m.  D: Don Hartman. Robert Mitchum, Janet Leigh, Wendell Corey, Gordon Gebert, Griff Barnett, Esther Dale, Henry O'Neill, Henry (Harry) Morgan. Well-done Christmastime story of war widow Leigh, with a young son, who's courted by nice-guy Corey. Fate intervenes when she meets articulate, kindly rolling stone Mitchum. Remade in 1997. ▼●

Holiday for Lovers (1959) C-103m. ½ D: Henry Levin. Clifton Webb, Jane Wyman, Jill St. John, Carol Lynley, Paul Henreid, Gary Crosby, Jose Greco. Arch Dr. Webb and Wyman escort attractive daughters on South American vacation, with predictable mating. CinemaScope.

Holiday in Mexico (1946) C-127m.  D: George Sidney. Walter Pidgeon, Ilona Massey, Roddy McDowall, Jose Iturbi, Xavier Cugat, Jane Powell. Engaging, well-cast musical comedy of daughter of ambassador falling for noted musician. ▼

Holiday Inn (1942) 101m. ½ D: Mark Sandrich. Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire, Marjorie Reynolds, Virginia Dale, Walter Abel, Louise Beavers. Entertaining musical built on paper-thin plot about a romantic triangle, and the establishment of a country inn that's open only on holidays. That's the cue for a raft of Irving Berlin holiday songs (there's even one for George Washington's birthday!) including the timeless Oscar winner "White Christmas." Good fun, and snappier than partial remake WHITE CHRISTMAS. Bing's original Rhythm Boys partner, Harry Barris, plays the orchestra leader. Also available in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Hollow Man (2000) C-114m.  D: Paul Verhoeven. Kevin Bacon, Elisabeth Shue, Josh Brolin, William Devane, Greg Grunberg, Mary Jo Randle, Joey Slotnick, Steve Altes, Kim Dickens. New twist on The Invisible Man has cocky research lab genius Bacon deciding to try his revolutionary formula on himself, with incendiary results. Starts out fun, then turns nasty (in true Verhoeven style) and stupid. A shame, considering how great the special effects are. Fine score by Jerry Goldsmith. Alternate version runs 122m. Followed in 2006 by a direct-to-video sequel. [R] ▼

Hollow Point SEE: Wild Pair, The

Hollow Reed (1996-British-German) C-104m.  D: Angela Pope. Fleming Donovan, Joely Richardson, Jason Flemyng, Ian Hart, Sam Bould. Doctor Donovan, who is divorced, senses that his young son is being abused by his ex-wife's live-in boyfriend. He decides to petition for custody, but knows his concern for his son's safety will be obscured by the fact that he is gay. Intensely dramatic, extremely well-acted psychological drama works on two levels: as a top-notch suspense thriller and a no-holds-barred indictment of homophobia. [R] ▼

Holly and the Ivy, The (1952-British) 80m.  D: George More O'Ferrall. Ralph Richardson, Celia Johnson, Margaret Leighton, Denholm Elliott, Hugh Williams, Roland Culver. Straightforward adaptation of Wynyard Browne play revolving around Christmas holiday with Richardson, the small-town cleric, learning about his three grown-up children; nicely acted.

Hollywood Boulevard (1976) C-83m. ½ D: Joe Dante, Allan Arkush. Candice Rialson, Mary Woronov, Rita George, Jeffrey Kramer, Dick Miller, Paul Bartel. Shameless low-budgeter splices shots from various Roger Corman films into the "story" of a would-be actress who goes to work for some schlock moviemakers. Engaging nonsense and some funny gags (especially for film buffs and Corman devotees)—though not enough to completely hide the fact that this is a schlock movie. Miller and Bartel are great fun as an agent and a motivation-minded director. Don't miss gag after closing credits. [R] ▼

Hollywood Canteen (1944) 124m. ½ D: Delmer Daves. Bette Davis, John Garfield, Joan Leslie, Robert Hutton, Dane Clark, Janis Paige; many guest stars including Joan Crawford, Ida Lupino, Barbara Stanwyck, Eddie Cantor, Jack Carson, Eleanor Parker, Alexis Smith, S. Z. Sakall. Amiable all-star silliness set in Hollywood's real-life haven for WW2 servicemen, featuring cofounders Davis and Garfield. Hutton plays G.I. with a crush on lovely Leslie. Best bits: Peter Lorre and Sydney Greenstreet; Jack Benny and violinist Joseph Szigeti. Roy Rogers introduces "Don't Fence Me In," later reprised by the Andrews Sisters. ▼

Hollywood Cavalcade (1939) C-96m. ½ D: Irving Cummings. Alice Faye, Don Ameche, J. Edward Bromberg, Al Jolson, Mack Sennett, Stuart Erwin, Buster Keaton, Rin-Tin-Tin, Jr. Colorful saga of pioneering days in Hollywood (based, very loosely, on Mack Sennett and Mabel Normand) starts out fun, with some lively recreations of silent slapstick comedies, but gets bogged down in clichéd dramatics later on. ▼

Hollywood Dreams (2007) C-100m. *½ D: Henry Jaglom. Tanna Frederick, Justin Kirk, Zack Norman, Karen Black, David Proval, Melissa Leo, Jon Robin Baitz, Seymour Cassel, Sally Kirkland, Eric Roberts. Jaglom hits rock bottom with this familiar tale of a young midwestern wannabe star who comes to Hollywood and hooks up with a couple of producers who promise to put her in a movie. Eventually she falls for an attractive actor. Dialogue is so corny and contrived, the whole film sinks under its weight. [R] ▼

Hollywood Ending (2002) C-112m.  D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, Téa Leoni, Debra Messing, Treat Williams, Mark Rydell, George Hamilton, Tiffany Thiessen, Marian Seldes, Isaac Mizrahi, Doug McGrath. Often hilarious comedy about a highly neurotic, washed-up movie director who gets a shot at making a comeback thanks to his ex-wife (Leoni) . . . but can't get over the fact that he now has to work for her fiancé, studio head Williams. Woody is in fine fettle here as writer, director, and star, and offers many laugh-out-loud moments as well as a fine showcase for leading ladies Leoni and Messing. [PG-13] ▼

Hollywood Harry (1985) C-99m.  D: Robert Forster. Robert Forster, Joe Spinell, Shannon Wilcox, Marji Martin, Kathrine Forster, Mallie Jackson. Down-the-tubes private eye Forster hires on to find a young girl who's turned up in an X-rated movie. Strictly standard fare. Forster also produced and scripted; his 14-year-old daughter Kathrine plays Harry's niece. Aka HARRY'S MACHINE. [PG-13] ▼

Hollywood Homicide (2003) C-115m. *½ D: Ron Shelton. Harrison Ford, Josh Hartnett, Lena Olin, Bruce Greenwood, Isaiah Washington, Lolita Davidovich, Keith David, Martin Landau, Master P, Gladys Knight, Lou Diamond Phillips, Dwight Yoakam, Eric Idle. Odd-couple L.A. cops (one a part-time realtor, the other an aspiring actor) are obliged to concentrate on a case when there's a bloody shoot-out at a prominent hip-hop club. The stars are good, but if director-cowriter Shelton set out to make a Big Dumb Hollywood Movie, he succeeded all too well. Trying to have us care about the story and turning it into a farce at the same time was not a good plan. Several stars and celebrities appear in cameos. Pannavision. [PG-13] ▼

Hollywood Hotel (1937) 109m. ½ D: Busby Berkeley. Dick Powell, Rosemary Lane, Lola Lane, Ted Healy, Johnny "Scat" Davis, Alan Mowbray, Frances Langford, Louella Parsons, Hugh Herbert,

Glenda Farrell, Edgar Kennedy. Silly, paper-thin plot about Powell winning Hollywood talent contest but finding stardom elusive, buoyed by bright Johnny Mercer-Richard Whiting score, including "Hooray for Hollywood" and historic numbers by the Benny Goodman band ("Sing Sing Sing") and quartet (with Gene Krupa, Lionel Hampton, Teddy Wilson). Ronald Reagan has brief bit as radio announcer. D

Hollywood Knights, The (1980) C-95m. ½ D: Floyd Mutrux. Tony Danza, Michelle Pfeiffer, Fran Drescher, Leigh French, Randy Gornel, Robert Wuhl, Stuart Pankin, P. R. Paul, Richard Schaal, Debra Feuer. A punk answer to AMERICAN GRAFFITI, which follows a band of high-school hell-raisers on Halloween Night, 1965, when their favorite drive-in hangout is about to close. Sophomoric humor to spare, only a small part of it funny. Danza's feature debut. [R]▼

Hollywoodland (2006) C-127m. ½ D: Allen Coulter. Adrien Brody, Diane Lane, Ben Affleck, Bob Hoskins, Lois Smith, Robin Tunney, Larry Cedar, Jeffrey DeMunn, Caroline Dhavernas, Brad William Henke, Dash Mihok, Molly Parker, Kathleen Robertson, Joe Spano. Seedy, small-time private eye (Brody) whose life is a mess takes on a significant case when George Reeves' mother claims her son's death wasn't a suicide. As he pieces together the actor's story—from the time he met his longtime lover Toni Mannix, wife of a powerful MGM executive, to his sudden fame as TV's Superman, to his mysterious demise—he does some soul-searching of his own. Nuanced, well-written and -realized period piece, with Brody, Lane, Hoskins, and especially Affleck turning in flawless performances. Feature directing debut for Coulter. Screenplay by Paul Bernbaum. [R]■

Hollywood or Bust (1956) C-95m. *½ D: Frank Tashlin. Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis, Anita Ekberg, Pat Crowley. Star-struck Lewis teams up with gambler Martin on trek to crash the movie capital; typical comedy by the frantic team. Dean and Jerry's last film together opens with Jerry's "tribute" to movie fans around the world. VistaVision. **▼■

Hollywood Party (1934) 68m. *½ D: No director credited. Jimmy Durante, Laurel and Hardy, Lupe Velez, Polly Moran, Charles Butterworth, Eddie Quillan, June Clyde, George Givot, Jack Pearl, Ted Healy and The Three Stooges, many others. Musical comedy hodgepodge built around screen star Durante throwing a gala party. Romantic subplot is for the birds, but Stan and Ollie battling fiery Velez, Durante as Schnarzan, befuddled Butterworth and opening title tune make it worthwhile. Richard Boleslawski, Allan Dwan, Roy Rowland directed various scenes without credit; some prints run 63m. and are missing appearance by Mickey Mouse and color Disney cartoon HOT CHOC-LATE SOLDIERS. **▼●

Hollywood Revue of 1929, The (1929) 130m. * D: Charles Riesner. Conrad Nagel, Jack Benny, John Gilbert, Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Laurel and Hardy, Bessie Love, Lionel Barrymore, Marion Davies, Buster Keaton, Marie Dressler, Polly Moran, many others. MGM's all-star revue introducing its silent-film stars as talkie personalities, cohosted by Benny and Nagel. Definitely a curio for film buffs, rough sledding for others. Surviving 116m. print is missing some material; several scenes originally filmed in color. **●

Hollywood Shuffle (1987) C-82m. *½ D: Robert Townsend. Robert Townsend, Anne-Marie Johnson, Starletta Dupois, Helen Martin, Craigus R. Johnson. Uneven but enjoyable comedy about young black actor trying to get a foothold in Hollywood, but running into problems of stereotyping at every turn. Townsend (who also directed and cowrote, with Keenen Ivory Wayans) is so appealing, and his message is so dead on-target, that it's hard to dislike this film, even though it's strictly hit-or-miss. [R]▼●

Holocaust 2000 SEE: Chosen, The (1978)
Holy Lola (2004-French) C-128m.  D: Bertrand Tavernier. Jacques Gamblin, Isabelle Carré, Bruno Putzulu, Lara Guirao, Frédéric Pierrot, Maria Pitarresi, Jean-Yves Roan. A French couple travels to Cambodia to adopt a baby; there they join a community of temporary expatriates, all desperately trying to deal with the bureaucracy, corruption, endless waiting, and turbulent emotions that are all part of the process. Heartrending and utterly credible at every turn; in fact, it's difficult to endure at times for just those reasons. Tavernier cowrote with his daughter Tiffany and son-in-law Dominique Sampiero.

Holy Man (1998) C-114m. * D: Stephen Herek. Eddie Murphy, Jeff Goldblum, Kelly Preston, Robert Loggia, Jon Cryer, Eric McCormack, Sam Kitchin. Slick producer for a home shopping TV network stumbles onto a spiritual man named G who says he's on a pilgrimage. Before long, G has affected every part of the man's life and become a sensation on the air. Promising movie wanders all over the place and squanders Murphy's likable performance. It's still watchable, thanks to him, Goldblum, and Preston. Various celebrities appear in cameos, including, most curiously, designer Nino Cerutti. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Holy Matrimony (1943) 87m.  D: John M. Stahl. Monty Woolley, Gracie Fields, Laird Cregar, Una O'Connor, Alan Mowbray, Melville Cooper, Franklin Pangborn. Delightful tale of artist Woolley assuming late butler's identity to avoid publicity, finding many complications. Remake of 1933 film HIS DOUBLE LIFE.

Holy Matrimony (1994) C-92m. *½ D: Leonard Nimoy. Patricia Arquette, Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Tate Donovan, John Schuck, Lois Smith, Courtney B. Vance, Jeffrey Nordling. Arquette, on the lam for robbery, hides out in a Hutterite community and (through contrived circumstances) ends up married to 12-year-old Gordon-Levitt. Bland, juvenile, comedic variation on WITNESS, but Gordon-Levitt is charming. [PG-13] ▼●●

Holy Smoke (1999-U.S.-Australian) C-114m.  D: Jane Campion. Kate Winslet, Harvey Keitel, Julie Hamilton, Tim Robertson, Daniel Wyllie, Sophie Lee, Kerry Walker, Pam Grier. When a young Australian woman falls under the spell of an Indian guru, her family hires an expert American cult deprogrammer to bring her back to her senses. She turns the tables and finds him surprisingly susceptible to her mind games and sexual teasing. Naked performances—in every sense of the word—by the two leads and a layered script rife with quirky humor and sexual politics can't bring credibility to Keitel's character. This is supposed to be his 190th case; what were the other 189 like? [R] ▼●

Holy Terror (1977) C-96m.  D: Alfred Sole. Brooke Shields, Tom Signorelli, Louisa Horton, Paula Sheppard, Mildred Clinton, Linda Miller, Lillian Roth. Does 12-year-old Alice (Sheppard) kill her sister, parents, aunt, etc.? OK murder mystery is noteworthy mainly as Shields' feature debut—and she's bumped off in the first reel. Filmed in Paterson, N.J.; cameo appearance by Roth as a pathologist. Originally 108m. Aka ALICE, SWEET ALICE and COMMUNION. [R] ▼●●

Hombre (1967) C-111m.  D: Martin Ritt. Paul Newman, Fredric March, Richard Boone, Diane Cilento, Cameron Mitchell, Barbara Rush, Martin Balsam. Interesting Western (from an Elmore Leonard story) of Indian-raised Newman trying to survive in white man's world in Arizona circa 1880. Encounters with various characters on a stagecoach provide basis for film's action and drama; well acted, entertaining. Panavision. ▼●●

Home Alone (1990) C-102m. ½ D: Chris Columbus. Macaulay Culkin, Joe Pesci, Daniel Stern, John Heard, Roberts Blossom, Catherine O'Hara, John Candy,

Billie Bird, Angela Goethals, Devin Ratray, Hope Davis. Wildly successful comedy about an eight-year-old boy whose family inadvertently leaves him behind when they go to Paris for Christmas vacation. The plucky kid then proceeds to fend off two bumbling burglars with a variety of elaborate booby-traps. Culkin is terrific, but the film has its ups and downs; the violence, even for a cartoonish farce, is a bit extreme. Climactic scene with forbidding neighbor Blossom is certainly the film's high point. Macaulay's brother Kieran plays his cousin Fuller. Followed by two sequels and a made-for-TV movie. [PG] ▼●●

Home Alone 3 (1997) C-102m. ½ D: Raja Gosnell. Alex D. Linz, Olek Krupa, Rya Kihlstedt, Lenny von Dohlen, David Thornton, Haviland Morris, Kevin Kilner, Marian Seldes, Scarlett Johansson. Another little boy left home alone battles another gang of crooks, but this time they're high-tech industrial thieves after an important computer chip. Unexpectedly funny follow-up (rather than sequel), helped by an appealing little boy (Linz), smarter crooks, and a less sappily sentimental subplot. Written by John Hughes. [PG] ▼●●

Home and the World, The (1984-Indian) C-130m. ½ D: Satyajit Ray. Soumitra Chatterjee, Victor Banerjee, Swatilekha Chatterjee, Gopa Aich, Jennifer Kapoor. Wealthy, liberated estate owner allows his wife to break with the tradition of female seclusion—and she falls in love with his best friend, a nationalist leader. Set in early 20th-century Bengal, and based on a novel by Rabindranath Tagore; a masterful and poignant film, made by a world-class filmmaker. ▼

Home at Seven (1952-British) 85m.  D: Ralph Richardson. Ralph Richardson, Margaret Leighton, Jack Hawkins, Campbell Singer. Taut thriller of club treasurer who can't account for a day in his life when a murder and a robbery occurred. Aka MURDER ON MONDAY. ▼

93m.  D: Michael Mayer. Colin Farrell, Robin Wright Penn, Dallas Roberts, Sissy Spacek, Matt Frewer, Erik Smith, Harris Allan, Andrew Chalmers. Two male friends explore their sexuality during an event-filled adolescence in late 1960s Cleveland. After years apart, they wind up living in a Greenwich Village apartment in the early 1980s with a free-spirited older woman. Michael Cunningham adapted his novel about unconventional relationships that redefine the notion of family. Impressive debut film for stage director Mayer. Farrell is excellent, playing an uncharacteristically gentle soul. Tom Hulce coproduced. Wendy Crewson appears unbilled. Super 35. [R] ▼

Home Before Dark (1958) 136m.  D: Mervyn LeRoy. Jean Simmons, Dan O'Herlihy, Rhonda Fleming, Efreim Zimbalist, Jr. Shiny but poignant telling of Simmons' readjustment to life after nervous breakdown; on-location shooting in Massachusetts.

Homebodies (1974) C-96m. ½ D: Larry Yust. Frances Fuller, Ian Wolfe, Ruth McDevitt, Paula Trueman, Peter Brocco, William Hansen. Bizarre horror-comedy will depend on one's taste for scenario. Elderly tenants of condemned building resort to murder to keep their home. Good cast, including Douglas Fowley as the builder. Made in Cincinnati. ▼

Homeboy (1976) SEE: Black Fist

Homeboy (1988) C-118m. ½ D: Michael Seresin. Mickey Rourke, Christopher Walken, Debra Feuer, Thomas Quinn, Kevin Conway, Antony Alda, Ruben Blades. Downbeat, rainy tale of aging, alcoholic boxer Rourke, his relationship with flashy, philosophical crook Walken, and his romance with a carousel owner. Very well made, with fine, quirky performances by the leads, but so unrelentingly grim it can scarcely be called entertainment. [R] ▼

Homecoming (1948) 113m.  D: Mervyn LeRoy. Clark Gable, Lana Turner, Anne Baxter, John Hodiak, Ray Collins, Cameron Mitchell. Gable and Turner have exciting WW2 romance in the trenches, but that can't support 113 minutes of dreary drama; one of Gable's lesser efforts. ▼

Homecoming, The (1973) C-111m. ½ D: Peter Hall. Cyril Cusack, Ian Holm, Michael Jayston, Vivien Merchant, Terence Rigby, Paul Rogers. Jayston, long separated from his London family, brings wife Merchant home to meet his father and two brothers. Film version of the Harold Pinter play is among the most satisfactory of all stage-to-screen adaptations. An American Film Theater Production. [PG] ▼

Home for the Holidays (1995) C-103m.  D: Jodie Foster. Holly Hunter, Robert Downey, Jr., Anne Bancroft, Charles Durning, Dylan McDermott, Geraldine Chaplin, Cynthia Stevenson, Steve Guttenberg, Claire Danes, Austin Pendleton, David Strathairn,

Amy Yasbeck, Shawn Hatosy. Dreary "comedy" about a woman at loose ends who flies home to spend Thanksgiving with her wildly dysfunctional family. Filled with unpleasant (and in some cases unfathomable) characters who are neither funny nor interesting. Why would anybody want to spend time with these people? [PG-13] ▼

Home Fries (1998) C-93m. *½ D: Dean Parisot. Drew Barrymore, Luke Wilson, Catherine O'Hara, Jake Bussey, Shelley Duvall, Kim Robillard, Daryl "Chill" Mitchell. Black-comedy misfire has two brothers giving their stepfather a unique scare at the behest of Mom. As a result, his pregnant mistress (Barrymore) is left without a father for her child; matters grow complicated when one of the brothers shows interest. She's a Podunk fast-food waitress, which explains the title, but not why this farce is so poky—and laughless. [PG-13] ▼

Home From the Hill (1960) C-150m.  D: Vincente Minnelli. Robert Mitchum, Eleanor Parker, George Peppard, George Hamilton, Luana Patten, Everett Sloane, Constance Ford. Strong drama, set in South-eastern Texas during the 1950s, centering on most prominent family in a small town. Patriarch Mitchum is estranged from wife, Parker, and takes over raising their son, Hamilton, when he comes of age. Peppard is a likable, fatherless local important to both the older man and his son. Low-key, involving, and intelligent; well directed by Minnelli, handling uncharacteristic material. Cast is very good, including Peppard and Hamilton in what may be career-best performances for both. From the best-selling novel by William Humphrey. ▼

Homegrown (1998) C-103m. ½ D: Stephen Gyllenhaal. Billy Bob Thornton, Hank Azaria, Kelly Lynch, Jon Bon Jovi, Ryan Phillippe, Judge Reinhold, Jon Tenney, Jamie Lee Curtis, John Lithgow, Ted Danson. When a big-time drug dealer is assassinated, three of his worker bees try to cover up the death so they can cash in on his latest marijuana crop. Needless to say, they find themselves in way over their heads. Alternately funny and serious, this unfocused film has a strong cast and interesting, often amusing vignettes, but never quite comes together. The director's children, Maggie and Jacob (Jake) Gyllenhaal, appear in small roles. [R] ▼

Home Is Where the Heart Is SEE: Square Dance

Home Movies (1979) C-90m. *½ D: Brian De Palma. Keith Gordon, Nancy Allen, Kirk Douglas, Gerrit Graham, Vincent Gardenia, Mary Davenport. Flaky farce reminiscent of De Palma's early work. Nebbish Gordon, an "extra in his own life," is given Star Therapy treatment by egomaniacal director Douglas (who has his own life filmed constantly), and sets out to woo Allen away from his nutsy older brother (Graham). Original in concept but tiresome in execution, although nobody eats a hamburger like Allen. Most of the production crew was made up of De Palma's filmmaking students from Sarah Lawrence College. Aka THE MAESTRO. [PG] ▼●●

Home of Our Own, A (1993) C-104m. ½ D: Tony Bill. Kathy Bates, Edward Furlong, Soon-Teck Oh, Tony Campisi, Clarissa Lassig, Sarah Schaub, Miles Feulner, Amy Sakasitz, T. J. Lowther. Bates is a determined single mother in 1962 L.A. who uproots her six children and settles in a desolate Idaho town; she has almost no money but a lot of energy and a fierce fighting spirit. Young Furlong is the reluctant "man of the family." Avoids becoming overly sentimental, but film is still basically Disney fare with an edge. Campisi—Bates' persistent boyfriend—is the actress' real-life husband. Director Bill has an unbilled cameo as a doctor. [PG] ▼●●

Home of the Brave (1949) 85m.  D: Mark Robson. James Edwards, Douglas Dick, Steve Brodie, Jeff Corey, Lloyd Bridges, Frank Lovejoy. More daring when made than now, but still hard-hitting account of black soldier Edwards suffering more abuse from fellow G.I.'s than the enemy while on a mission during WW2. From an Arthur Laurents play. ▼●●

Home of the Brave (1986) C-90m.  D: Laurie Anderson. Laurie Anderson, Adrian Belew, Richard Landry, Joy Askew, Dolette McDonald, Janice Pendarvis, William S. Burroughs. Concert film pretty well duplicates what fans of performance artist Anderson have been seeing for years; mix of music and provocative visuals doesn't quite add up to another STOP MAKING SENSE, but it's a generally rewarding introduction for the uninitiated. Mostly accessible, but the middle section will test your openness to unconventional music. ▼

Home of the Brave (2006) C-105m. ½ D: Irwin Winkler. Samuel L. Jackson, Jessica Biel, Brian Presley, Curtis "50 Cent" Jackson, Christina Ricci, Chad Michael Murray, Victoria Rowell, Joyce M. Cameron, Jeffrey Nordling. Story of returning Iraq war vets visits the same territory as such films as THE BEST YEARS OF OUR LIVES and COMING HOME but fails to pack their emotional punch. Focusing primarily on three vets as they readjust to life in Seattle, film has an episodic and sudsy feel, particularly in a scene where a drunken Samuel Jackson disrupts his family's Thanksgiving dinner. Biel is touching as a wounded soldier struggling to establish new relationships. HD Widescreen. [R] ●

Home on the Range (2004) C-76m.  D: Will Finn, John Sanford. Voices of Roseanne Barr, Randy Quaid, Judi Dench, Jennifer

Tilly, Cuba Gooding, Jr., Steve Buscemi, Estelle Harris, Charles Dennis, Charles Haid, Carole Cook, Joe Flaherty, G.W. Bailey, Ja'net DuBois. Three cows set out to capture an elusive rustler and use the reward money to save their beloved farm from foreclosure. A refreshingly "cartoony" Disney animated feature set in the Old West. Filled with colorful characters, funny gags, and lively songs by Alan Menken and Glenn Slater. Good fun for kids and grown-ups alike. Digital Widescreen. [PG] ▼●

Homer and Eddie (1990) C-99m. BOMB D: Andrei Konchalovsky. James Belushi, Whoopi Goldberg, Karen Black, Ernestine McClendon, Nancy Parsons, Anne Ramsey, Beah Richards. He's been mentally impaired since getting smacked in childhood by a flying baseball; she's dying of brain cancer; theirs is an odyssey-by-auto punctuated by service-station knock-offs and a musical interlude where they dance with paper bags on their heads. Not to be confused with Homer & Jethro or Flo & Eddie, though you may be praying for any and all to show up. [R] ▼●●

Home Room (2003) C-132m.  D: Paul F. Ryan. Busy Philipps, Erika Christensen, Victor Garber, Holland Taylor, Ken Jenkins, Raphael Sbarge, James Pickens, Jr., Richard Gilliland, Rick Lenz. Thoughtful drama about the aftermath of a high school shooting rampage, focusing on three characters: an antisocial eyewitness (Philipps), who apparently had some relationship with the shooter; a straight-arrow classmate (Christensen), who survived with physical injuries and major emotional scars; and a compassionate cop (Garber), who's trying to make sense of the incident. Writer-director-editor Ryan wisely concentrates on his specific characters and doesn't try to drive home too many universal truths. [R] ▼●

Homeward Bound: The Incredible Journey (1993) C-84m.  D: DuWayne Dunham. Robert Hays, Kim Greist, Jean Smart, Benj Thall, Veronica Lauren, Kevin Chevalia; voices of Michael J. Fox, Sally Field, Don Ameche. Three beloved household pets, separated from their youthful masters, embark on an almost impossible trek over mountainous terrain to reunite them. Remake of 1963's THE INCREDIBLE JOURNEY enables us to hear the animals talking, and in true '90s fashion, their dialogue is overstuffed with lowbrow wisecracks. Still, the story is compelling, and the vocal performances excellent, especially Ameche, as the older, more faithful canine.

Sure-fire Disney family entertainment. Followed by a sequel. [G]▼●●

Homeward Bound II: Lost in San Francisco (1996) C-88m. ½ D: David R. Ellis. Robert Hays, Kim Greist, Veronica Lauren, Kevin Chevalia, Benj Thall, Michael Rispoli, Max Perlich; voices of Michael J. Fox, Sally Field, Ralph Waite, Sinbad, Jon Polito. Congenial sequel has the three household pets forced to fend for themselves in the City by the Bay, where Chance, Sassy, and Shadow find themselves dodging both canine and human adversaries on the city streets. Enough snappy dialogue to amuse parents as well as their kids. [G]▼●●

Homework (1982) C-90m. *½ D: James Beshears. Joan Collins, Michael Morgan, Shell Kepler, Lanny Horn, Lee Purcell, Carrie Snodgrass, Wings Hauser, Mel Welles, Beverly Todd, Betty Thomas. Atrocious, wildly inconsistent "comedy" about a teenage boy's sexual awakening—and embarrassment. Filmed mostly in 1979, it underwent major surgery, including attempt to simulate nude scenes with Joan Collins (using an alleged double) so it could be promoted as a young boy—older woman sex comedy à la PRIVATE LESSONS and MY TUTOR. [R] ▼●●

Homicidal (1961) 87m. ½ D: William Castle. Jean Arless, Joan Marshall, Patricia Breslin, Glenn Corbett, Eugenie Leonovitch, Alan Bunce, Richard Rust. One of Castle's less gimmicky shockers, about pretty but rather strange young nurse who presides over creepy household consisting of mute stroke victim and decidedly meek young man. Shamelessly steals a great deal from PSYCHO, and much of the dialogue is ludicrous, but still manages to deliver some shudders. ●

Homicide (1991) C-102m. ½ D: David Mamet. Joe Mantegna, William H. Macy, Natalija Nogulich, Ving Rhames, Rebecca Pidgeon, Vincent Guastafarro, Lionel Mark Smith, Jack Wallace, J. J. Johnston. Urban homicide detective is pulled off a major case to take care of a seemingly routine murder of an elderly shopkeeper, but soon finds himself embroiled in a strange, conspiracy-like situation that causes him to question his own motives and his identity as a Jew. Provocative material is underdeveloped by writer-director Mamet, and laid on with too heavy a hand . . . but the "Mametspeak" and lead performance are still quite commanding. [R]▼●●

here. Good script by James Edward Grant, from a story by Louis L'Amour. Originally shown in 3-D. Later a short-lived TV series. ▼●

Honeydripper (2007) C-122m.  D: John Sayles. Danny Glover, Lisa Gay Hamilton, Yaya DaCosta, Charles S. Dutton, Vondie Curtis Hall, Gary Clark, Jr., Dr. Mable John, Stacy Keach, Mary Steenburgen, Sean Patrick Thomas, Keb' Mo', Kel Mitchell. Leisurely, entertaining slice of Southern life, circa 1950. Hard-luck Glover runs a threadbare bar and restaurant in a small Alabama town, and seizes his last chance to make good by hiring a popular bluesman to play his establishment. Less concerned with story than with character and atmosphere, this picaresque film is brimming with juicy performances and good music. Writer-director Sayles has a cameo as a liquor delivery man. [PG-13]●

Honey I Blew Up the Kid (1992) C-89m.  D: Randal Kleiser. Rick Moranis, Marcia Strassman, Robert Oliveri, Daniel and Joshua Shalikar, Lloyd Bridges, John Shea, Keri Russell, Ron Canada, Gregory Sierra, Julia Sweeney, Ken Tobey. Bull's-eye sequel to the surprise Disney hit HONEY, I SHRUNK THE KIDS. This time, absentminded scientist Moranis accidentally enlarges his two-year-old son, who grows to gargantuan proportions and stalks the streets of Las Vegas! Good, clean fun with terrific special effects and a lot of genuine laughs; wears a bit thin after a while, but its upbeat spirit makes up for that. Video sequel: HONEY, WE SHRUNK OURSELVES. [PG]▼●●

Honey, I Shrank the Kids (1989) C-93m.  D: Joe Johnston. Rick Moranis, Matt Frewer, Marcia Strassman, Kristine Sutherland, Thomas Brown, Jared Rushton, Amy O'Neill, Robert Oliveri. Cute comedy-fantasy about a quartet of kids who accidentally trigger Moranis's experimental ray gun and find themselves reduced to microscopic size—and stranded across the yard from their home. Enjoyable family fare, with engaging special effects (by such whizzes as Phil Tippett and David Allen). Followed by HONEY,

I BLEW UP THE KID and later, a TV series. [PG]▼●●

Honeymoon Academy (1990) C-94m. *½ D: Gene Quintano. Kim Cattrall, Robert Hays, Leigh Taylor-Young, Charles Rocket, Lance Kinney, Christopher Lee. Time waster about a secret agent (Cattrall) who tries to take time off for a honeymoon in Madrid, but finds herself involved in espionage business all the same. Attempt at light-hearted chase comedy/romance doesn't come off . . . and incidentally, the film's title has nothing to do with the story. [PG-13]▼●

Honeymooners, The (2005) C-90m. *½ D: John Schultz. Cedric the Entertainer, Mike Epps, Gabrielle Union, Regina Hall, Eric Stoltz, Jon Polito, John Leguizamo. Recasting the classic Jackie Gleason-Art Carney TV hit as an urban comedy might have looked good on paper, but what lands on-screen is a pale version of the original. Ralph Kramden is still a bus driver with big get-rich-quick schemes, but things never go as he plans. The jokes are lame and the actors try awfully hard to wring what life they can out of them. At least there's a cute dog. PG version also available. [PG-13]▼

Honeymoon Hotel (1964) C-89m. *½ D: Henry Levin. Robert Goulet, Jill St. John, Nancy Kwan, Robert Morse, Elsa Lanchester, Keenan Wynn. Asinine shenanigans with bachelors Goulet and Morse arriving at resort for newlyweds. Lanchester is fun despite all. Panavision.

Honeymoon in Vegas (1992) C-95m.  D: Andrew Bergman. James Caan, Nicolas Cage, Sarah Jessica Parker, Pat Morita, Johnny Williams, John Capodice, Robert Costanzo, Anne Bancroft, Peter Boyle, Burton Gilliam, Seymour Cassel, Jerry Tarkanian, Tony Shalhoub, Natasha Lyonne, Ben Stein. Cage and Parker finally decide to tie the knot—in Las Vegas—but he loses her in a rigged poker game to mobster Caan! Engaging farce from writer-director Bergman has enough twists, turns, and cockeyed humor to keep things lively from start to finish . . . including a corps of "flying Elvises." Presley music (performed by everyone from Billy Joel to Bono) fills the soundtrack. [PG-13]▼●●

Honeytoon Killers, The (1970) 108m.  D: Leonard Kastle. Shirley Stoler, Tony LoBianco, Mary Jane Higby, Doris Roberts. Taut, based-on-fact account of the Lonely Hearts Killers: Martha Beck (Stoler), a rotund nurse, and Ray Fernandez (LoBianco), a gigolo. Together, they scheme to swindle and murder wealthy, lonely women. Low-budget item has deservedly developed a cult reputation over the years. Martin Scorsese was the original director; he was replaced by Donald Volkman, who in turn was replaced by Kastle (who also scripted). Same story retold in Arturo Ripstein's DEEP CRIMSON and LONELY HEARTS (2006). [R]▼●●

Honeymoon Machine, The (1961) C-87m. ½ D: Richard Thorpe. Steve McQueen, Jim Hutton, Paula Prentiss, Brigid Bazlen, Dean Jagger, Jack Weston. Pleasant comedy with a spirited cast about two sailors who find a way to beat the roulette table in Venice. Easy to take, easy to forget. CinemaScope.▼

Honey Pot, The (1967) C-131m. ½ D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Rex Harrison, Susan Hayward, Cliff Robertson, Capucine, Edie Adams, Maggie Smith, Adolfo Celi. Director/writer Mankiewicz updates Volpone in sly blend of high comedy and whodunit. Harrison pretends to be dying, sends for former mistresses to see their reactions; hoax evolves into elaborate murder scheme. Never as amusing as one would like it to be. Aka IT COMES UP MURDER.▼

Honeysuckle Rose (1980) C-119m.  D: Jerry Schatzberg. Willie Nelson, Dyan Cannon, Amy Irving, Slim Pickens, Joey Floyd, Charles Levin, Priscilla Pointer, Mickey Rooney, Jr., Diana Scarwid. Appealing, low-key film about a country music star and his lifestyle at home in Texas and on the road, which begins to come apart when he starts fooling around with the young daughter of his longtime musical sidekick. Lots of good music by Willie, fiddler Johnny Gimble, and guest star Emmylou Harris. Officially based on INTERMEZZO, believe it or not! Retitled ON THE ROAD AGAIN. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Hong Kong (1951) C-92m.  D: Lewis R. Foster. Ronald Reagan, Rhonda Fleming, Nigel Bruce, Marvin Miller, Lee Marvin. Mediocre account of Reagan trying to heist a valuable antique from orphaned boy but going straight before finale. Strictly backlot Hong Kong.

Honkers, The (1972) C-102m. ½ D: Steve Ihnat. James Coburn, Lois Nettleton, Slim Pickens, Anne Archer, Richard Anderson, Joan Huntington, Jim Davis. Theme about aging rodeo performer was handled better in J. W. COOP and JUNIOR BONNER (all made same year!); actor Ihnat died shortly after directing this film. [PG]

Honky (1971) C-89m. ½ D: William A. Graham. Brenda Sykes, John Nielson, William Marshall, Maia Danziger, Marion Ross, Lincoln Kilpatrick. Not-bad drama of budding romance between black Sykes and white Nielson, and the problems they encounter. Score by Quincy Jones. Panavision. [R]▼

then drags into talky marathon. Morgan and Wills offer fine character performances. Remade for TV in 1974. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Honkytonk Man (1982) C-122m. *½ D: Clint Eastwood. Clint Eastwood, Kyle Eastwood, John McIntire, Alexa Kenin, Verna Bloom, Matt Clark, Barry Corbin. The kind of film that gives "change-of-pace" a bad name. Clint is Depression-era country singer hoping to make it to the Grand Old Opry before he dies of tuberculosis; son Kyle plays his nephew, who tags along. Artificial and overlong; many music greats appear in bits, including Marty Robbins, who provides film's sole touching moment and, ironically, died himself only days before the picture opened. [PG] ▼●●

Honor Among Thieves SEE: Farewell, Friend

Honor Guard, The SEE: Wolf Lake

Hoodlum (1997) C-130m. ½ D: Bill Duke. Laurence Fishburne, Tim Roth, Vanessa L. Williams, Andy Garcia, Cicely Tyson, Chi McBride, Clarence Williams III, Richard Bradford, William Atherton, Loretta Devine, Queen Latifah. GODFATHER wannabe about 1930s Harlem racketeer Ellsworth "Bumpy" Johnson, who locks horns with Dutch Schultz (Roth) and Lucky Luciano (Garcia), and tries to carve his own niche in the numbers game. Well-crafted, multi-character gangster saga has its moments, but takes a long time to tell its story and never builds the emotional punch it seeks. One welcome novelty: a '30s-style montage illustrating Bumpy's rise to power. [R] ▼●●

Hoodlum Priest, The (1961) 101m.  D: Irvin Kershner. Don Murray, Larry Gates, Keir Dullea, Logan Ramsey, Cindi Wood. Based on real-life clergyman who devoted himself to trying to help would-be criminals, focusing on Murray's efforts to rehabilitate delinquent Dullea (in film debut); splendidly acted. Murray coproduced and cowrote (latter under pseudonym Don Deer). ▼

ther Williams, Angela Lansbury, James Gleason, Lewis Stone, "Rags" Ragland, Frank McHugh, Slim Summerville. Confusing mishmash with Powell a cynical, money-obsessed WW1 vet who, between schemes, falls for pretty Williams. This one squeaks by solely on Powell's charm.

Hoods (1999) C-92m. ½ D: Mark Malone. Joe Mantegna, Kevin Pollak, Joe Pantoliano, Vincent Berry, Jennifer Tilly, Robert Costanzo, Richard Foronjy, John Capodice, Joseph Maher. Wry look at N.Y.C. mobsters and a hapless functionary who's stuck carrying out orders for his mentally incompetent father. Some genuinely funny scenes and ingratiating performances by an A-1 ensemble make this worth a look, even though the payoff is weak. Seymour Cassel and Charles Martin Smith appear unbilled. Made for theaters, debuted on cable. [R] ▼●

Hoodwinked (2005) C-80m. ½ D: Cory Edwards, Todd Edwards, Tony Leech. Voices of Anne Hathaway, Patrick Warburton, Glenn Close, Jim Belushi, David Ogden Stiers, Chazz Palminteri, Anthony Anderson, Andy Dick, Xzibit. In a story-book forest a froggy police detective tries to get the real story behind a well-known fairytale plot, told RASHOMON-style by its leading characters: Red Riding Hood, The Wolf, Granny, and the Woodsman. Each character breaks stereotypes with updated backstories and modern pop-culture references. Low-budget computer-animated feature makes up for artistic shortcomings with witty script and clever vocal performances. Several songs by cowriter-director Todd Edwards are funny and unobtrusive. [PG] ●

Hook, The (1963) 98m.  D: George Seaton. Kirk Douglas, Robert Walker, Jr., Nick Adams, Nehemiah Persoff. Film examines men at war (Korean) and the taking of one life, face-to-face, as opposed to killing many in battle. Earnest, thought-provoking. Music by harmonica virtuoso Larry Adler. Panavision.

Hook (1991) C-144m.  D: Steven Spielberg. Dustin Hoffman, Robin Williams, Julia Roberts, Bob Hoskins, Maggie Smith, Caroline Goodall, Charlie Korsmo, Amber Scott, Phil Collins, Arthur Malet, Dante Basco, Gwyneth Paltrow. Unfortunate cheapening of the beloved James Barrie tale of Peter Pan, with Williams as a heartless corporate takeover honcho who must rediscover his true identity—as Pan—in order to save his children, who've been kidnapped by Captain Hook. Great casting in key roles is dissipated by a script that offers no joy, and very little magic—with a troupe of TV-generation Lost Boys who'd be more at home in a McDonald's commercial. (Musician David Crosby and an unrecognizable Glenn Close have bit parts as pirates.) If this is Peter Pan for the '90s, give us the '50s instead. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Hook, Line & Sinker (1969) C-91m. BOMB D: George Marshall. Jerry Lewis, Peter Lawford, Anne Francis, Pedro Gonzalez-Gonzalez, Jimmy Miller, Kathleen Freeman. Potentially funny premise about supposedly dying man who runs up $100,000 in credit card debts, only to discover he's healthy, is totally botched; even Lewis fans will be bored. [G]

Hooker Cult Murders, The SEE: Pyx, The Hoop Dreams (1994) C-169m. ½ D: Steve James. Exceptional documentary follows two Chicago inner-city kids (Arthur Agee and William Gates), who have dreams of basketball stardom, over four years' time. This intimate and engrossing film plays like drama, not documentary, except that it takes unexpected twists and turns no writer could invent. A searing commentary on our social system, the indomitable strength of the family unit, and the unpredictability of life. Overlong, perhaps, but fascinating most of the way. Produced by Steve James, Frederick Marx, and Peter Gilbert. [PG-13] ▼

Hooper (1978) C-100m.  D: Hal Needham. Burt Reynolds, Jan-Michael Vincent, Sally Field, Brian Keith, John Marley, James Best, Adam West, Robert Klein. Lighthearted look at aging ace Hollywood stunt man Reynolds, his freewheeling lifestyle, and the young tyro who gets him to try the biggest stunt of all. [PG] ▼

Hoosiers (1986) C-114m.  D: David Anspaugh. Gene Hackman, Barbara Hershey, Dennis Hopper, Sheb Wooley, Fern Parsons, Brad Boyle, Steve Hollar, Brad Long, David Neidorf. Hackman gets a last-chance job coaching a small-town Indiana high school basketball team in the 1950s, and faces the dual challenge of bringing the team to the state championship—and redeeming himself. Thoroughly ingratiating (and just as thoroughly calculated), this well-made slice of Americana is hard to resist. Hackman is terrific as usual; Hopper is fine in a showy role as an alcoholic basketball nut. Written by Angelo Pizzo. [PG] ▼

Hoot (2006) C-93m. ½ D: Wil Shriner. Logan Lerman, Brie Larson, Cody Linley, Luke Wilson, Tim Blake Nelson, Jessica Cauffiel, Jimmy Buffett, Neil Flynn, Eric Phillips, Clark Gregg, Robert Wagner, Kin Shriner. Well-meaning but strictly formulaic family comedy-drama in which Lerman, the new kid in middle school, copes with everything from a class bully to the vandalizing of a construction site that is home to endangered owls. Preteens may overlook plot holes and be amused by the innocuous lowbrow humor and the worthy

pro-ecology message. Shriner adapted the novel by Carl Hiaasen, who coproduced, as did Buffett (who composed the score and plays a marine science teacher). [PG] ▼

Hootenanny Hoot (1963) 91m.  D: Gene Nelson. Peter Breck, Joby Baker, Ruta Lee, Pam Austin, Johnny Cash, Sheb Wooley, The Brothers Four, Judy Henske. Predictable comedy about college hootenanny show brought to TV is made bearable only by presence of Cash and other country/folk performers. One of producer Sam Katzman's "topical" low-budgeters.

Hope and Glory (1987-British) C-113m. ½ D: John Boorman. Sarah Miles, David Hayman, Derrick O'Connor, Susan Woodridge, Sammi Davis, Ian Bannen, Sebastian Rice-Edwards, Jean-Marc Barr, Annie Leon. A loving look back at British family life during the first years of WW2, as seen through the eyes of a young boy to whom the whole thing is a great adventure. Boorman's autobiographical tale (he scripted and produced, as well) is funny, moving and richly detailed; no one has captured the experience of living through the London air raids and bombings so well. Charley Boorman (the director's son, who starred in THE EMERALD FOREST) appears briefly as a German pilot who's been shot down. [PG-13] ▼

Hope Floats (1998) C-114m.  D: Forest Whitaker. Sandra Bullock, Harry Connick, Jr., Gena Rowlands, Mae Whitman, Michael Paré, Cameron Finley, Kathy Najimy, Bill Cobbs. Learning her husband has been unfaithful, Bullock moves back to her Texas hometown, taking along her lonely daughter, Whitman. Her mother immediately tries to set her up with Connick, but Bullock is having a hard time just learning about herself. Well acted, particularly by Whitman, with inventive direction, the movie is entertaining throughout, but as shapeless as soup. Excellent song score. Rosanna Arquette appears unbilled. [PG-13] ▼

Hope Springs (2003-U.S.-British) C-92m.  D: Mark Herman. Colin Firth, Heather Graham, Minnie Driver, Mary Steenburgen, Oliver Platt, Frank Collison. Having just been dumped by his fiancée (Driver), British artist Firth heads to the U.S. and falls for Graham. Then, wouldn't you know it, Minnie shows up. Spirited performances from everyone, but not enough laughs for a romantic comedy. Based on the novel New Cardiff by Charles (The Graduate) Webb. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Hoppity Goes to Town (1941) C-77m. ½ D: Dave Fleischer. Pleasant animated feature about residents of bug-ville and their various problems—living in a human world, and threatened by villainous C. Bagley Beetle. Good-looking but un compelling story-wise, with unmemorable Frank Loesser-Hoagy

Carmichael score. Originally titled MR. BUG GOES TO TOWN. Aka BÜGVILLE. ▼●●

Hopscotch (1980) C-104m.  D: Ronald Neame. Walter Matthau, Glenda Jackson, Sam Waterston, Ned Beatty, Herbert Lom. Entertaining contrivance about a maverick CIA operative who's fed up with his idiotic boss (Beatty) and decides to teach him a lesson by publishing his volatile memoirs. Barely believable, but fun to watch, thanks largely to Matthau. From the novel by Brian Garfield, who coproduced and scripted the film. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Horizons West (1952) C-81m. ½ D: Budd Boetticher. Robert Ryan, Julia (Julie) Adams, Rock Hudson, Raymond Burr, James Amess, John McIntire, Dennis Weaver. Standard Western of brothers Ryan and Hudson on opposite sides of the law; the latter attempts to block the former's efforts to ruthlessly acquire power in post-Civil War Texas. ▼

Horizontal Lieutenant, The (1962) C-90m.  D: Richard Thorpe. Jim Hutton, Paula Prentiss, Miyoshi Umeki, Jim Backus, Jack Carter, Marty Ingels, Charles McGraw. Artificial service comedy about inept army intelligence officer Hutton and his misadventures in the Pacific during WW2. CinemaScope. ▼

Horn Blows at Midnight, The (1945) 78m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Jack Benny, Alexis Smith, Dolores Moran, Allyn Joslyn, Reginald Gardiner, Guy Kibbee, John Alexander, Margaret Dumont, Franklin Pangborn, Bobby (Robert) Blake. Enjoyable, original comedy-fantasy about an angel (Benny) sent to destroy earth with a blast from Gabriel's horn. Broad, funny, no classic, but not the turkey Benny so often joked about either. Franklin Pangborn is especially funny as a flustered hotel detective. ▼●●

Hornets' Nest (1970) C-110m. ½ D: Phil Karlson. Rock Hudson, Sylva Koscina, Sergio Fantoni, Jacques Sernas, Giacomo Rossi Stuart, Tom Felleghi. Hudson and group of Italian children plot to blow up Nazi-controlled dam. Reasonably well done and exciting. [M]▼

Horrible Dr. Hichcock, The (1962-Italian) C-76m. ½ D: Robert Hampton (Riccardo Freda). Robert Flemyng, Barbara Steele, Teresa Fitzgerald, Maria Teresa Vianello. Unaware her doctor husband is a (gulp!) necrophiliac, woman accompanies him to the mansion where his first wife apparently died 12 years earlier during sexual games. Eerie, handsome horror, with undertones of Poe. British version, TERROR OF DR. HICHCOCK, runs 88m. and is also available on tape. Followed by THE GHOST. Panoramic. ▼

Horror Castle (1964-Italian) C-83m. *½ D: Anthony Dawson (Antonio Margheriti). Christopher Lee, Rossana Podesta, George Riviere, Jim Nolan, Anny Belli Uberti.

Chiller about a demented WW2 victim running rampant in a Rhine castle, using assorted torture chamber devices on unsuspecting people. Effect is numbing. Aka THE VIRGIN OF NUREMBERG and TERROR CASTLE. British title: THE CASTLE OF TERROR. ▼

Horror Chamber of Dr. Faustus, The SEE: Eyes Without a Face

Horror Creatures of the Prehistoric Planet SEE: Vampire Men of the Lost Planet

Horror Express (1972-Spanish-British) C-88m.  D: Eugenio Martin. Christopher Lee, Peter Cushing, Telly Savalas, Silvia Tortosa, Jorge Rigaud. Crackerjack horror movie, ingeniously staged and well acted by the genre's superstars. Turn-of-the-century chiller has a long-frozen monster coming to life while being transported from Asia to the West. Lee and Cushing are rival anthropologists aboard the train and Savalas is a power-crazed Cossack officer. Aka PANIC ON THE TRANS-SIBERIAN EXPRESS. [R]▼

Horror House (1969-British) C-79m. *½ D: Michael Armstrong. Frankie Avalon, Jill Haworth, Dennis Price, George Sewell, Gina Warwick, Richard O'Sullivan. Below-standard thriller using dog-eared "let's-spend-a-night-in-a-haunted-house" script. Frankie should have stayed on the beach with Annette. Original British title: THE HAUNTED HOUSE OF HORROR. [M/PG]

Horror of Dracula (1958-British) C-82m.  D: Terence Fisher. Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee, Melissa Stribling, Michael Gough, Carol Marsh, John Van Eyssen, Valerie Gaunt, Miles Malleon. Probably Hammer Films' best shocker, a handsomely mounted retelling of the Stoker tale, with fantasy elements deemphasized. Lee is smooth as the Count, and Cushing perfect as tireless Professor Van Helsing. Script by Jimmy Sangster; full-blooded score by James Bernard. Released in Britain as DRACULA; followed by six sequels, the first of which was DRACULA—PRINCE OF DARKNESS. ▼●●

Horror of Frankenstein, The (1970-British) C-95m.  D: Jimmy Sangster. Ralph Bates, Kate O'Mara, Graham Jones, Veronica Carlson, Bernard Archard, Dennis Price, Joan Rice. New kind of Dr. Frankenstein: he arranges murder of father, cheats on his lover, kills his best friend, while creating new, laughable monster. Semi-spoof remake of CURSE OF FRANKENSTEIN. For aficionados only. Followed by FRANKENSTEIN AND THE MONSTER FROM HELL. [R]▼●●

Horror of Party Beach, The (1964) 72m. BOMB D: Del Tenney. John Scott, Alice Lyon, Allen Laurel, Marilyn Clark, Eulabelle Moore. Radioactive waste is dumped off-shore, resulting in scaly monsters who disrupt the fun of a bunch of Connecticut beach bunnies. One of the earliest anti-nuclear warning films, although for some strange reason the message fails to come across. Billed as "The First Horror Musical" by its producers, who evidently never saw Liberace in SINCERELY YOURS. ▼

Horror of the Blood Monsters SEE: Vampire Men of the Lost Planet

Horror on Snape Island (1972-British) C-85m. BOMB D: Jim O'Connell. Bryant Haliday, Jill Haworth, Anna Palk, Jack Watson, Mark Edwards, Derek Fowlds. One of the horrors is a series of brutal murders masterminded by lunatic; another one is the film itself. Retitled TOWER OF EVIL and BEYOND THE FOG. [R] ▼

Horror Planet (1982-British) C-86m. BOMB D: Norman J. Warren. Robin Clark, Jennifer Ashley, Stephanie Beacham, Steven Grives, Barry Houghton, Victoria Tennant, Judy Geeson. Obnoxious, gory garbage about male and female space travelers and their discovery of a crawling terror. Interesting cast wasted in this awful ALIEN clone. Cut for U.S. release. Original title: INSEMINOID. J-D-C Scope. [R] ▼

Horror Show, The (1989) C-95m. BOMB D: James Isaac. Lance Henriksen, Brion James, Rita Taggart, Thom Bray, Matt Clark, Dedee Pfeiffer, Lewis Arquette, Lawrence Tierney, Alvy Moore. Henriksen gives typically strong performance as cop pursued by murderous—and already executed—maniac James, who's intent on wiping out the cop's family by turning nightmares into reality. Confused, silly and boring. Known outside U.S. as HOUSE III. [R] ▼

Horse Feathers (1932) 68m. ½ D: Norman Z. McLeod. Groucho, Harpo, Chico, and Zeppo Marx, Thelma Todd, David Landau, Robert Greig, Nat Pendleton. Groucho is head of Huxley College, building up football team to play rival Darwin U. in crazy Marx nonsense. The password is "swordfish." Originally released at 70m. ▼

Horse in the Gray Flannel Suit, The (1968) C-113m.  D: Norman Tokar. Dean Jones, Diane Baker, Lloyd Bochner, Fred Clark, Ellen Janov, Kurt Russell. Cheerful Disney comedy about advertising man (Jones) who finds a way to link his daughter's devotion to horses with an ad campaign. [G] ▼

Horseman on the Roof, The (1995-French) C-122m. ½ D: Jean-Paul Rappennau. Juliette Binoche, Olivier Martinez, Pierre Arditi, François Cluzet, Jean Yanne, Gérard Depardieu. Gorgeous but rather leisurely spectacle, set in 1832, of Italian cavalry officer (Martinez), part of an underground network spread throughout southern France, who is trying to force Austrian overlords out of Italy. On top of everything else, a cholera epidemic is ravaging the French countryside. Binoche is noblewoman who becomes the horseman's traveling companion. Exquisite

Provence locations help boost this adventure saga, based on Jean Giono's 1951 novel—a literary classic in France. Depardieu has a humorous cameo as an unorthodox police superintendent. Technovision. [R] ▼

Horsemasters, The (1961) C-87m.  D: William Fairchild. Annette Funicello, Janet Munro, Tommy Kirk, Donald Pleasence, Tony Britton, Jean Marsh, John Fraser, Millicent Martin. Minor family fare (originally shown on Disney TV show) about Annette learning horsemanship—and to overcome her fear of jumping—at exclusive British riding school. Filmed in England; released as a feature in Europe. ▼

Horsemen, The (1971) C-109m. ½ D: John Frankenheimer. Omar Sharif, Leigh Taylor-Young, Jack Palance, David De Keyser, Peter Jeffrey. Sharif enters grueling buzkashi tournament to please his demanding father (Palance) and prove his machismo. Old-fashioned action-adventure mixes uncomfortably with soul-searching in Dalton Trumbo's script. Filmed in Afghanistan and Spain. Beautiful photography by Claude Renoir in Panavision. [PG] ▼

Horsemen (2009-U.S.-Canadian) C-91m. BOMB D: Jonas Åkerlund. Dennis Quaid, Ziyi Zhang, Lou Taylor Pucci, Clifton Collins, Jr., Patrick Fugit, Paul Dooley, Barry Shabaka Henley, Eric Balfour, Chelcie Ross, Peter Stormare, Liam James. Overworked, recently widowed detective Quaid investigates a series of gruesome murders that are linked to the Book of Revelations and the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse. Preposterous, sickening mystery-thriller is only for those who are entertained by graphic images of torture. [R] ▼

Horse Named Comanche, A SEE: Tonka Horseplayer, The (1990) C-89m. *½ D: Kurt Voss. Brad Dourif, Sammi Davis, M. K. Harris, Vic Tayback. Extremely odd story of an artist and his seductive sister who interrupt the life of a recluse when they move into his apartment building. No one is quite what they seem—but who cares? [R] ▼

Horse's Mouth, The (1958-British) C-93m. ½ D: Ronald Neame. Alec Guinness, Kay Walsh, Renee Houston, Mike Morgan, Michael Gough, Ernest Thesiger. Guinness adapted Joyce Cary's story into this droll screenplay about a brilliant, eccentric, egocentric—and perpetually starving—artist whom some consider a genius. Many others, who know him more intimately, think of him as a major irritant. Score makes ideal use of Prokofiev's "Lieutenant Kije" suite. ▼

Horse Soldiers, The (1959) C-119m. ½ D: John Ford. John Wayne, William Holden, Constance Towers, Althea Gibson, Hoot Gibson, Anna Lee, Russell Simpson, Ken Curtis, Denver Pyle, Strother Martin, Hank Worden. Ford's only feature set during the Civil War, based on actual incidents.

Union Colonel Wayne leads sabotage party deep into Rebel territory, accompanied by somewhat pacifistic doctor Holden. Large-scale actioner rates only a "medium" by Ford buffs; others may like it better. ▼●●

Horse Whisperer, The (1998) C-169m. ½ D: Robert Redford. Robert Redford, Kristin Scott Thomas, Sam Neill, Dianne Wiest, Scarlett Johansson, Chris Cooper, Cherry Jones, Ty Hillman, Jeanette Nolan, Don Edwards. Exquisite rendering of Nicholas Evans' novel about a teenaged girl, traumatized in a horse-riding accident, whose domineering mother drives them both (and the horse) to Montana, where a renowned horse trainer tries to rehabilitate the animal—and simultaneously, the girl. Story offers a tailor-made part for Redford and an opportunity for mature romance, but like his character, Redford the filmmaker takes his time telling the story. It's risky, but it works. Screenplay by Eric Roth and Richard LaGravenese. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Horse Without a Head, The (1963) C-89m.  D: Don Chaffey, Leo McKern, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Herbert Lom, Pamela Franklin, Vincent Winter. Excellent cast in entertaining British-made Disney film (first shown on the Disney TV show) about kids mixed up with bad guys on the trail of stolen loot. First-rate family fare. ▼

Horton Hears a Who! (2008) C-88m. ½ D: Jimmy Hayward, Steve Martino. Voices of Jim Carrey, Steve Carell, Carol Burnett, Will Arnett, Seth Rogen, Dan Fogler, Isla Fisher, Jonah Hill, Amy Poehler, Jaime Pressly, Jesse McCartney; narrated by Charles Osgood. Another bloated movie based on a classic Dr. Seuss book—in this case, the beloved story of good-hearted Horton the elephant, who hears the teeny-tiny citizens of Whoville, while no one else believes they exist. Seuss' gentle tale is expanded and vulgarized, though it has its moments, and the CG animation from Blue Sky Studios is first-rate. Stick with Chuck Jones' 1970 half-hour TV adaptation. Aka DR. SEUSS' HORTON HEARS A WHO! [G] ▼

Hospital, The (1971) C-103m. ½ D: Arthur Hiller. George C. Scott, Diana Rigg, Barnard Hughes, Nancy Marchand, Richard A. Dysart, Stephen Elliott, Jordan Charney, Roberts Blossom, Robert Walden, Lenny Baker, Frances Sternhagen, Stockard Channing, Katherine Helmond. Sardonic-funny view of modern city hospital where bitterly discouraged doctor (Scott) is drawn into chaos by crazy girl (Rigg) and her scheming father. Paddy Chayefsky's Oscar-winning script makes fun of serious situation by turning it into Marx Brothers-ish lunacy; ultimate truth in what's being said leaves viewer somewhat sad. [PG] ▼●●

Hospital of Terror SEE: Beyond the Living

Host, The (2006-Korean-Japanese) C-119m.  D: Bong Joon-ho, Song Kang-ho, Byeon Hie-bong, Park Hae-il, Bae Duna, Ko Ah-sung, Scott Wilson. An American callously dumps toxic waste down a drain that leads to the Han River. Years later, a huge monster gallops out of the river and wreaks havoc on the populace; what's more, it may be hosting a new plague. When it carries away a little girl (Ah-sung), her somewhat dysfunctional family unites to get her back. Effective monster thrills and great CGI effects blend with satire, comedy, tragedy, and family values, sometimes all at once. A monster movie for the 21st century, this owes a lot to previous films, yet isn't like anything else. Korea's biggest-grossing home-grown movie to date. [R] ▼

Hostage, The (1967) C-84m. ½ D: Russell S. Doughton, Jr. Don O'Kelly, (Harry) Dean Stanton, John Carradine, Ron Hagerthy, Ann Doran. Well-done low-budget film about a six-year-old who stows away on moving van driven by two killers. Shot on location in Iowa. ▼

Hostage (1983-Australian-German) C-90m. *½ D: Frank Shields. Kerry Mack, Ralph Schicha, Judy Nunn, Clare Binney. Young, carefree Mack is blackmailed into marriage by Nazi Schicha, and her life becomes hell on earth. Intriguing scenario, based on a true story and set in the '70s, but the result is disjointed, repetitive, boring. Original title: HOSTAGE: THE CHRISTINE MARESCHE STORY. Video title: SAVAGE ATTRACTION. ▼

Hostage (1992-British) C-101m.  D: Robert Young. Sam Neill, Talisa Soto, James Fox, Michael Kitchen, Art Malik, Cristina Higuera, Jean Pierre Reguerraz. British secret agent Neill wants out of the Service, but his slimy superiors won't let him go. Mildly interesting morality tale of kidnapping and ethical considerations in the world of international politics. [R] ▼

Hostage (2005-U.S.-German) C-113m. ½ D: Florent Emilio Siri. Bruce Willis, Kevin Pollak, Ben Foster, Jonathan Tucker, Marshall Allman, Michelle Horn, Jimmy Bennett, Kim Coates, Serena Scott Thomas. After fatally miscalculating an assignment as the LAPD's hostage negotiator, Willis relocates with estranged wife and daughter to what he thinks is a sleeper burg. Instead, he gets himself involved with two abductions (one an offshoot of the other), the first a household takeover by three teen carjackers, one of whom turns out to be a psycho. Filmed with style and a genuine camera eye, picture goes over the top even on a melodramatic level, though the central house provides the coolest movie digs in a while. Willis' real-life daughter Rumer plays his daughter here. Super 35. [R] ▼

Hostage: The Christine Maresch Story SEE: Hostage (1983)

Hostel (2006) C-95m. *½ D: Eli Roth. Jay Hernandez, Derek Richardson, Eythor Gudjonsson, Barbara Nedeljková, Jan Vlasák. Three buddies on a European vacation backpack to a small Slovakian village lured by the promise of sex and drugs. Instead (of course) they encounter violence and bloodshed. Starts out promisingly as an atmospheric, ominously suggestive horror-mystery that pokes fun at a certain kind of dense, young American tourist, but quickly descends into seemingly endless sequences of torture that are as boring as they are gruesome and painful to watch. Quentin Tarantino coexecutive produced. A slightly gorier unrated version is available on DVD. Followed by a sequel. Super 35. [R]▶

Hostel: Part II (2007) C-93m. BOMB D: Eli Roth. Lauren German, Heather Matarazzo, Roger Bart, Bijou Phillips, Richard Burgi, Jay Hernandez, Jordan Ladd, Vera Jordanova. Dreary, pointless sequel to Roth's original "torture porn" bloodbath. In this variation, it's three beautiful young girls on vacation in Europe who come upon a chamber of horrors when they meet the wrong guys. Once inside they manage to turn the tables on their captors, American businessmen who pay big bucks to engage in sadomasochistic activities. Here's hoping there won't be a PART III. Unrated version also available. Super 35. [R]▶

Hostile Guns (1967) C-91m. ½ D: R. G. Springsteen. George Montgomery, Yvonne De Carlo, Tab Hunter, Brian Donlevy, John Russell. U.S. marshal, transporting prisoners to penitentiary, discovers that female prisoner is a woman he once loved. Typical. Techniscope. ▼●

Hot Blood (1956) C-85m. *½ D: Nicholas Ray. Jane Russell, Cornel Wilde, Luther Adler, Joseph Calleia. Jane Russell shakes her tambourines and drives Cornel Wilde, in this supremely silly (not to mention unbelievable) gypsy yarn. CinemaScope.

Hot Box, The (1972) C-85m.  D: Joe Viola. Margaret Markov, Andrea Cagan, Ricky Richardson, Laurie Rose, Charles Dierkop. Filipino-shot women's prison film adequately runs through the standard changes, as heroines break out and foment a local revolution. Cowritten and produced by Jonathan Demme. [R]▼

Hot Car Girl SEE: Hot Rod Girl

Hot Chick, The (2002) C-104m.  D: Tom Brady. Rob Schneider, Anna Faris, Matthew Lawrence, Eric Christian Olsen, Robert Davi, Melora Hardin, Alexandra Holden, Rachel McAdams, Maritza Murray, Tia Mowry, Tamara Mowry, Michael O'Keefe. Ancient earrings cast a magical spell and put spoiled high school girl McAdams into scuzzy Schneider's body—and vice versa. Schneider is surprisingly good in this very broad comedy, with the now-usual dose of crudities, but when it tries to get warm and fuzzy that's asking too much. Recognize that bathroom attendant? It's '60s comic icon Dick Gregory. Schneider coscripted. Adam Sandler, who coexecutive-produced the film, appears unbilled. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Hot Dog ... The Movie (1984) C-96m. *½ D: Peter Markle. David Naughton, Patrick Houser, Tracy N. Smith, John Patrick Reger, Frank Coppola, Shannon Tweed. Hijinks at a ski resort: an updating of '60s Beach Party-type movies, just as dumb, but now much raunchier. Good ski sequences, but that's about it. Film is so titled to avoid confusion with HOT DOG ... THE OPERA. [R]▼

Hotel (1967) C-124m.  D: Richard Quine. Rod Taylor, Catherine Spaak, Karl Malden, Melvyn Douglas, Richard Conte, Michael Rennie, Merle Oberon, Kevin McCarthy. Adaptation of still another Arthur Hailey multi-charactered novel is not all that inferior to AIRPORT, but that's faint praise; Douglas has some good scenes. Later a TV series. ▼

Hotel (2002-British-Italian) C-109m. BOMB D: Mike Figgis. Rhys Ifans, David Schwimmer, Salma Hayek, Max Beesley, John Malkovich, Saffron Burrows, George DiCenzo, Valeria Golino, Danny Huston, Jason Isaacs, Lucy Liu, Mía Maestro, Chiara Mastroianni, Omella Muti, Burt Reynolds, Julian Sands. Figgis returns to TIMECODE territory (with new, much-touted handheld riggings for picture, sound, and even night-vision photography, which is pointlessly exploited throughout) for another largely improvised story about a foredoomed film troupe attempting to shoot a version of The Duchess of Malfi in Venice. Only Ifans, as the egomaniacal director, has any real spark. This astonishing indulgence prompts two repeated questions from the viewer: "Is it over yet?" and "Why not?" ▼

Hotel Colonial (1983-Italian-U.S.) C-104m. BOMB D: Cinzia Torrini. John Savage, Rachel Ward, Robert Duvall, Massimo Troisi. International mishmash wastes a good cast in downbeat tale of Savage going to Colombia to investigate the death of his brother, aided by embassy attaché Ward and thwarted by evil Duvall. Pretty Mexican scenery is film's only merit. [R]▼●

Hotel for Dogs (2009) C-100m. ½ D: Thor Freudenthal. Emma Roberts, Jake T. Austin, Kyla Pratt, Lisa Kudrow, Kevin Dillon, Don Cheadle, Johnny Simmons, Troy Gentile, Ajay Naidu. Cute film for kids about an orphaned brother and sister, now living with flaky, irresponsible foster parents, who manage to keep the existence of their pet dog a secret. Then they discover an abandoned hotel that becomes a refuge not only for their pooch but for every stray in the city. Likable bit of make-believe with appealing canine costars and some nifty Rube Goldberg-like devices. [PG]▶

Hotel New Hampshire, The (1984) C-

110m. * D: Tony Richardson. Rob Lowe, Jodie Foster, Beau Bridges, Nastassja Kinski, Paul McCrane, Jennie Dundas, Dorsey Wright, Matthew Modine, Wilford Brimley, Amanda Plummer, Wallace Shawn, Anita Morris, Joely Richardson. Faithful adaptation of John Irving's sprawling seriocomic novel about an unconventional family and its bizarre adventures—social, sexual, and political—on both sides of the Atlantic. Some fine vignettes and good performances make this worth watching, though characters eventually wear out their welcome. [R]▼●●

Hotel Paradiso (1966-British) C-96m. ½ D: Peter Glenville. Alec Guinness, Gina Lollobrigida, Robert Morley, Akim Tamiroff. Pretentious farce of manners is only fitfully amusing; meek Guinness tries to carry on his rendezvous with gorgeous neighbor Gina, but everything interferes. Based on the Georges Feydeau play. Panavision.▼

Hotel Rwanda (2004-South African-British-Italian) C-123m. *½ D: Terry George. Don Cheadle, Sophie Okonedo, Joaquin Phoenix, Nick Nolte, Desmond Dube, David O'Hara, Cara Seymour, Fana Mokoena, Hakeem Kae-Kazim. The slaughter of nearly one million Tutsis in the African nation of Rwanda in 1994 is dramatized through the experiences of Paul Rusesabagina, a career-minded hotel manager who becomes a hero, sheltering innocent people within the walls of his establishment. Powerful film avoids being overly didactic by focusing on one compelling character, believably brought to life by Cheadle. Written by director George and Keir Pearson. Jean Reno appears unbilled. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Hotel Sahara (1951-British) 96m. ½ D: Ken Annakin. Yvonne De Carlo, Peter Ustinov, David Tomlinson, Roland Culver. Pleasant fluff about North African hotel owner and beautiful fiancée who must shift "loyalties" every time new army marches into town during WW2.

Hotel Sorrento (1995-Australian) C-112m.  D: Richard Franklin. Caroline Goodall, Caroline Gillmer, Tara Morice, Joan Plowright, John Hargreaves, Ben Thomas, Ray Barrett. Atmospheric, well-acted drama, set in a small seaside Australian town, focusing on the reunion of a trio of very different sisters, one of whom has just published a highly successful autobiographical novel. What follows may be predictable, but the result is compelling nonetheless. Also known as SORRENTO BEACH. [R]▼

Hotel Terminus: The Life and Times of Klaus Barbie (1987) C-267m. ½ D: Marcel Ophuls. Sobering, Oscar-winning documentary about the infamous Nazi war criminal who, decades after WW2, was expelled from Bolivia and returned to France for trial. Filled with incisive interviews with key individuals in his life. A fine companion piece to Ophuls' THE SORROW AND THE PITY.▼●

Hot Enough for June SEE: Agent 8¾

Hot Fuzz (2007-British-U.S.) C-120m.  D: Edgar Wright. Simon Pegg, Nick Frost, Jim Broadbent, Paddy Considine, Timothy Dalton, Billie Whitelaw, Edward Woodward, Rafe Spall, Olivia Colman, Paul Freeman, Martin Freeman, Bill Nighy, Kenneth Cranham, Stuart Wilson, Lucy Punch, David Threlfall. SHAUN OF THE DEAD team reunites for a protracted, disappointing spoof of crime/buddy movies. Pegg (who cowrote with director Wright) plays a by-the-book London cop who's so outstanding he makes everyone else look bad, so his superiors transfer him to a quiet country village. It seems resolutely dull, but Pegg soon discovers otherwise. Some funny gags scattered about can't compensate for unevenness and extreme overlength. Cate Blanchett and Steve Coogan appear unbilled. Super 35. [R]●

Hot Lead SEE: Run of the Arrow

Hot Lead and Cold Feet (1978) C-90m.  D: Robert Butler. Jim Dale, Darren McGavin, Karen Valentine, Jack Elam, Don Knotts, John Williams. Amiable Disney Western spoof with lots of slapstick features British comic Dale in three roles: tough patriarch, tougher gunfighter son, and meek twin, a Salvation Army lad. The brothers participate in a wild obstacle race to gain possession of the town, then to defeat villainous Mayor McGavin. Good Oregon location filming. [G]▼●

Hot Line SEE: Day the Hot Line Got Hot, The

Hot Millions (1968-British) C-105m.  D: Eric Till. Peter Ustinov, Maggie Smith, Karl Malden, Bob Newhart, Robert Morley, Cesar Romero. Wry piece of fluff about Ustinov using a computer to siphon off big bucks from huge American conglomerate. Good performers aid pleasant romp, which became one of the biggest sleepers of its year. Ustinov cowrote script. [G]▼

Hot Potato (1976) C-87m. *½ D: Oscar Williams. Jim Kelly, George Memmoli, Geoffrey Binney, Irene Tsu, Judith Brown. Idiomatic action film in which karate expert Kelly and two cohorts try to rescue kidnapped Senator's daughter from Oriental villain. Comic-book stuff. Filmed in Thailand. Remade as FORCE: FIVE. [PG]▼

Hot Pursuit (1987) C-93m. *½ D: Steven Lisberger. John Cusack, Robert Loggia, Wendy Gazelle, Jerry Stiller, Monte Markham, Shelley Fabares, Ben Stiller. Student Cusack, grounded by bad grades, has been prevented from taking a dream vacation with the family of his wealthy girlfriend. Then he gets last-minute reprieve from a kindly prof, and tries to catch up with them on the road. Silly comedy will probably remind you of Cusack's

earlier THE SURE THING—and the comparison isn't favorable. [PG-13]▼●●

Hot Rock, The (1972) C-105m.  D: Peter Yates. Robert Redford, George Segal, Ron Leibman, Paul Sand, Zero Mostel, Moses Gunn, William Redfield, Charlotte Rae, Topo Swope. Light, funny caper comedy where inept robbers blunder every step of carefully planned jewel heist. Best bit: the raid on the police station. Screenplay by William Goldman from Donald Westlake's novel; followed by BANK SHOT. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Hot Rod (2007) C-88m. *½ D: Akiva Schaffer. Andy Samberg, Bill Hader, Isla Fisher, Jorma Taccone, Will Arnett, Chris Parnell, Chester Tam, Sissy Spacek, Ian McShane. In order to raise money for his abusive father's heart operation, a young Evel Knievel-style daredevil plans a major stunt in which he must jump over 15 buses. Smart-aleck humor and thin script short on laughs make this an ordeal to sit through, even though it's under 90 minutes. Saturday Night Live's digital shorts star Samberg proves he is not quite ready for feature films. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Hot Rod Gang (1958) 72m. *½ D: Lew Landers. John Ashley, Gene Vincent, Jody Fair, Steve Drexel. Low-budget relic of its era, about hot-rod-happy Ashley joining Vincent's band to earn money to enter big race.

Hot Rod Girl (1956) 75m. BOMB D: Leslie H. Martinson. Lori Nelson, Chuck Connors, John Smith, Frank Gorshin, Roxanne Arlen, Dabbs Greer. Blah juvenile delinquency potboiler, with sympathetic cop Connors establishing drag strip to keep hot-rodding teens off the streets. Aka HOT CAR GIRL.▼●

Hot Rod Rumble (1957) 79m. *½ D: Leslie Martinson. Brett Halsey, Richard Hartunian, Joey Forman, Leigh Snowden. Title tells all in this formula programmer of juvenile delinquents.

Hot Rods to Hell (1967) C-92m. ½ D: John Brahm. Dana Andrews, Jeanne Crain, Mimsy Farmer, Laurie Mock. Fast-paced actioner has Andrews and family tormented by hot-rod-happy juvenile delinquents. Original title: 52 MILES TO MIDNIGHT.●

H.O.T.S. (1979) C-95m. *½ D: Gerald Seth Sindell. Susan Kiger, Lisa London, Pamela Jean Bryant, Kimberly Cameron, Lindsay Bloom, Mary Steelsmith, Angela Aames, Danny Bonaduce, Ken Olfson. Lame-brained knock-off of ANIMAL HOUSE with two sororities at each other's throats until they settle their differences with a strip football game. Leering exploitation fare at least has gorgeous girls (including several Playboy playmates) and decent production, making this best watched with the sound off. Written by two women, believe it or not, one of them actress Cheri

Hot Shots! Part Deux (1993) C-89m. ½ D: Jim Abrahams. Charlie Sheen, Lloyd Bridges, Valeria Golino, Richard Crenna, Brenda Bakke, Miguel Ferrer, Rowan Atkinson, Jerry Haleva, Mitchell Ryan, Gregory Sierra. Obligatory sequel with Rambo-like Sheen called into action to rescue U.S. soldiers who tried to rescue soldiers (and so on . . .) held captive after Desert Storm. Plenty of gags and countless movie parodies, but just as many misses as hits this time around, especially in the second half. The cast acquits itself nicely, particularly Sheen, Bridges, and Crenna (who kids his own RAMBO series role). [PG-13]▼●●

Hot Spell (1958) 86m.  D: Daniel Mann. Shirley Booth, Anthony Quinn, Shirley MacLaine, Earl Holliman, Eileen Heckart, Warren Stevens. Quinn—not just a pig but a blue-ribbon hog—cheats on wife Booth, who spouts irritating platitudes like Hazel on speed. Well-acted but dated drama about the breakup's effect on their children; MacLaine shines as their daughter. Set in New Orleans. VistaVision ▼

Hot Spot SEE: I Wake Up Screaming

Hot Spot, The (1990) C-130m. ½ D: Dennis Hopper. Don Johnson, Virginia Madsen, Jennifer Connelly, Charles Martin Smith, William Sadler, Jerry Hardin, Barry Corbin, Leon Rippey, Jack Nance. Sounds as if it can't miss, but does: drifter Johnson, selling used cars in a nowhere Texas burg, gets involved with boss' wife Madsen, an R-rated descendant of Barbara Stanwyck from DOUBLE INDEMNITY. Overlong by 30 minutes and never once hits the bull's-eye, but there's so much ornery sex that you may be compelled to keep watching. Connelly plays the mysterious "nice girl" (with a sensuous body) who handles the car lot's financing. Based on Charles Williams' 1952 novel Hell Hath No Fury. [R]▼●●

Hot Stuff (1979) C-87m. ½ D: Dom DeLuise. Dom DeLuise, Suzanne Pleshette, Jerry Reed, Luis Avalos, Ossie Davis, Marc

Lawrence. Four Miami cops set up a "Sting"-like operation to fence stolen goods. Unexceptional but pleasant trifle that surprises by treating its characters as real human beings instead of cartoon stereotypes. Cowritten by Donald Westlake. [PG]▼●

Hot Sweat SEE: Keejtje Tippel

Hottest State, The (2007) C-116m. ½ D: Ethan Hawke. Mark Webber, Catalina Sandino Moreno, Ethan Hawke, Michelle Williams, Sonia Braga, Laura Linney, Frank Whaley. Adapting his own semiautobiographical novel, writer-director Hawke infuses raw emotional intensity into a familiar story about the turbulent romance of two attractive twentysomethings—an aspiring actor (Webber) from Texas and a Latina pop singer (Sandino Moreno) from Connecticut—who fall madly in love much too quickly in N.Y.C. Best moments of uneven drama focus on male lead's increasingly frantic and self-humiliating attempts at reconciliation after he's dumped. Director Richard Linklater appears in a brief cameo. [R]■

Hottie & The Nottie, The (2008) C-90m. BOMB D: Tom Putnam. Paris Hilton, Joel Moore, Christine Lakin, Adam Kulbersh, The Greg Wilson, Johann Urb. Vehicle for dubious acting talents of real-life celebrity heiress Hilton is complete nonsense as a young man tries to woo the "hottie," only to find true love could be with her incredibly ugly childhood friend, the "nottie." Get it? Actually, forget it. [PG-13]■

Hot Water (1924) 60m.  D: Sam Taylor, Fred Newmeyer. Harold Lloyd, Jobyna Ralston, Josephine Crowell, Charles Stevenson, Mickey McBan, Pat Harmon. Typically entertaining silent comedy feature with Lloyd, atypically, as a put-upon husband. Not as strong as Lloyd's best comedies; built instead on three lengthy set pieces, but they're very funny indeed—especially the ride on the trolley and a trouble-prone automobile outing with the family.▼■

Houdini (1953) C-106m. ½ D: George Marshall. Tony Curtis, Janet Leigh, Torin Thatcher, Ian Wolfe, Sig Ruman. Fanciful biography of famed escape artist; more fiction than fact, but entertaining.▼●●

Hound-Dog Man (1959) C-87m.  D: Don Siegel. Fabian, Carol Lynley, Stuart

Whitman, Arthur O'Connell, Dodie Stevens, Betty Field, Royal Dano, Margo Moore, Claude Akins, Edgar Buchanan, Jane Darwell, L.Q. Jones. Pleasant tale of Southern country boys Fabian (in film debut) and Whitman courting Stevens and Lynley. Fabian is curiously good; of course, he also sings. CinemaScope.

Hound of the Baskervilles, The (1939) 80m.  D: Sidney Lanfield. Basil Rathbone, Nigel Bruce, Richard Greene, Wendy Barrie, Lionel Atwill, John Carradine, Beryl Mercer, Mary Gordon, E. E. Clive. Rathbone made his first appearance as Sherlock Holmes in this grade-A production based on Conan Doyle's story about mysterious murders taking place at a creepy mansion on the moors (though he's off-screen for a good part of the story). Fairly faithful to the source material with the now classic closing line from cocaine-user Holmes: "Quick Watson, the needle!" (Fourth screen version of the of-filmed novel.)▼●●

Hound of the Baskervilles, The (1959-British) C-84m.  D: Terence Fisher. Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee, Andre Morell, Maria Landi, Miles Malleon, John LeMesurier. Cushing is well cast as Sherlock Holmes and Lee is fine as Sir Henry Baskerville in this atmospheric Hammer Films adaptation of the Conan Doyle classic.▼●●

Hound of the Baskervilles, The (1978-British) C-84m. BOMB D: Paul Morrissey. Dudley Moore, Peter Cook, Denholm Elliott, Joan Greenwood, Spike Milligan, Jessie Matthews, Roy Kinnear. Dreadful spoof of Conan Doyle story scripted by Cook (who plays Sherlock Holmes), Moore (as both Watson and Holmes' mother), and director Morrissey. After a few laughs it descends into dreariness and never recovers. What a waste of talent! U.S. version runs 78m., with sequences out of order. Technovision.▼■

Hour of the Assassin (1987) C-93m.  D: Luis Llosa. Erik Estrada, Robert Vaughn, Alfredo Alvarez Calderon, Lourdes Berninzon. OK political thriller has Estrada called back from L.A. to South American nation of San Pedro to assassinate the newly elected democratic president. Vaughn is the CIA agent assigned to stop him. Filmed in Peru. [R]▼

Hour of the Gun (1967) C-100m.  D: John Sturges. James Garner, Jason Robards, Robert Ryan, Albert Salmi, Charles Aidman, Steve Ihnat, Michael Tolan, William Windom, William Schallert, Monte Markham, Frank Converse, Jon Voight. Western about Ike Clanton and the Earp Brothers after O.K. Corral shoot-up begins well, becomes increasingly tedious. Robards has a good time as Doc Holliday; flavorful score by Jerry Goldsmith. Panavision.▼●●

Hour of the Star, The (1986-Brazilian) C-96m.  D: Suzana Amaral. Marcellia Cartaxo, Jose Dumont, Tamara Taxman,

Fernanda Montenegro. Amaral's debut feature (made when she was 52 years old) is a subtle, touching neorealist drama about a plain, awkward, virginal country orphan (Cartaxo) and her experiences in São Paulo. Slow in spots, but still worthwhile. ●

Hour of the Wolf (1968-Swedish) 88m.  D: Ingmar Bergman. Liv Ullmann, Max von Sydow, Erland Josephson, Gertrud Fridh, Gudrun Brost. Lesser Bergman about painter von Sydow, wife Ullmann, and apparitions he sees when they retreat to deserted island. The acting, as usual, is first-rate. ●●

Hours, The (2002) C-114m.  D: Stephen Daldry. Meryl Streep, Nicole Kidman, Julianne Moore, Ed Harris, Toni Collette, Claire Danes, Jeff Daniels, Stephen Dillane, Allison Janney, John C. Reilly, Miranda Richardson, Eileen Atkins, Margo Martindale. Demanding adaptation of Michael Cunningham's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel about three women whose emotional lives intersect: novelist Virginia Woolf (an unrecognizable Kidman in an Oscar-winning performance), 1950s American housewife Moore, and contemporary New Yorker Streep, who's throwing a party—much like Woolf's fictional Mrs. Dalloway—for a dying friend (Harris). Emotionally draining, to say the least, but redeemed by the luminescent performances of its three stars. Screenplay by David Hare, with a memorable score by Philip Glass. [PG-13] ▼●

House (1986) C-93m.  D: Steve Miner. William Katt, George Wendt, Richard Moll, Kay Lenz, Michael Ensign, Susan French, Mary Stavín. Horror novelist Katt, simultaneously suffering from the split-up of his marriage, son's disappearance, and Vietnam memories, is plagued by demonic fantasies when he moves to the Victorian home where his aunt hanged herself. Lots of horror effects that don't hang together, but a quirky attitude, and a sense of humor, buoy things enough to make this moderately entertaining. Followed by several sequels. [R] ▼●●

House II: The Second Story (1987) C-88m. *½ D: Ethan Wiley. Arye Gross, Jonathan Stark, Royal Dano, Lar Park Lincoln, Bill Maher, John Ratzenberger. A follow-up rather than a sequel to HOUSE, this incoherent mess is, if anything, a step down. Another young hero moves into another weird house, and finds himself involved with living-dead gunslingers, crystal skulls, Aztec sacrifices, pterodactyls, and a sword-wielding electrician. Busy, but chaotic and boring. [PG-13] ▼●●

House III SEE: Horror Show, The

House IV (1992) C-100m. BOMB D: Lewis Abernathy, Terri Treas, Scott Burkholder, Denny Dillon, Melissa Clayton, William Katt, Ned Romero, Ned Bellamy, Dabbs Greer, John Santucci. When her husband is killed and her daughter confined to a wheelchair in a car wreck, a young wife holds onto the old house he inherited, despite spooky

goings-on and efforts by her brother-in-law to get her out. Slow, overlong, thrill-less, this lurches from comedy to horror, and can't even match the shoddy effects of the first two. Although Katt has the same character name as in HOUSE, he doesn't seem to be playing the same person. [R] ▼●●

House Arrest (1996) C-108m. ½ D: Harry Winer. Jamie Lee Curtis, Kevin Pollak, Jennifer Tilly, Kyle Howard, Christopher McDonald, Sheila McCarthy, Wallace Shawn, Ray Walston, Caroline Aaron, Mooky Arizona, Colleen Camp, Russel Harper, Jennifer Love Hewitt, Amy Sakasitz, Ben Stein. Sensitive, put-upon teenage boy is so shocked that his parents are separating that he locks them in the basement, hoping to force them to talk out their problems; soon his scheme escalates as other kids bring their parents to join them. Not as bad as it sounds, a sometimes thoughtful comedy that should have been a one-hour TV show. [PG] ▼●●

Houseboat (1958) C-110m. ½ D: Melville Shavelson. Cary Grant, Sophia Loren, Martha Hyer, Harry Guardino, Eduardo Ciannelli, Murray Hamilton. Loren becomes Grant's housekeeper and takes his three motherless kids in hand. Predictable romance ensues, in this delightful comedy. Guardino hilarious as houseboat handyman. VistaVision. ▼●●

House Bunny, The (2008) C-97m. ½ D: Fred Wolf. Anna Faris, Colin Hanks, Emma Stone, Kat Dennings, Katharine McPhee, Rumer Willis, Monet Mazur, Kiely Williams, Tyson Ritter, Beverly D'Angelo, Christopher McDonald, Nick Swardson, Hugh Hefner. Ditzzy but endearing Faris has had a perfect life as a Playmate at the Playboy mansion, so when she's kicked out she feels she has no identity. She becomes a den mother to the worst sorority at a nearby college, vowing to revamp its image and help its eccentric members fit in. Silly and predictable, but Faris and her castmates make this goofy yarn enjoyable. There are cameos by celebrities and Hefner's harem. HD Widescreen. [PG-13] ●

House by the Lake (1977-Canadian) C-89m. *½ D: William Fruet. Brenda Vaccaro, Don Stroud, Chuck Shamata, Richard Ayres, Kyle Edwards. Violent, ugly thriller. Four morons led by Stroud invade weekend retreat of lovers Vaccaro and Shamata. Stroud and Vaccaro good, though. Original title: DEATH WEEKEND. [R] ▼

House by the River, The (1950) 84m.  D: Fritz Lang. Louis Hayward, Jane Wyatt, Lee Bowman, Ann Shoemaker, Kathleen Freeman. Strange, moody tale of larcenous husband (Hayward) who spins web of evil that involves his wife (Wyatt) and brother (Bowman). Overwrought at times—particularly near the end—but full of fascinating touches, striking atmosphere. ●

House Calls (1978) C-98m. ½ D: Howard Zieff. Walter Matthau, Glenda Jackson, Art Carney, Richard Benjamin, Candice Azzara, Dick O'Neill, Thayer David. Matthau plays recently widowed doctor who tries to woo feisty Jackson without sacrificing his independence, in this laughing-out-loud contemporary comedy. Cowritten by Max Shulman and Julius J. Epstein. Carney hilarious as adle-brained head of surgery at Matthau's hospital. Later a TV series. [PG]▼●●

Houseguest (1995) C-109m.  D: Randall Miller. Sinbad, Phil Hartman, Jeffrey Jones, Kim Greist, Stan Shaw, Tony Longo, Paul Ben-Victor, Mason Adams, Kim Murphy, Chauncey Leopardi, Talia Seider, Ron Glass. Deep-in-debt dreamer pursued by thuggish money collectors poses as a world-renowned oral surgeon and childhood friend of a suburban advertising exec. Sinbad is likable, but no funnier than the desperate rest. Woefully overextended comedy is mired in uninvolved subplots and burdened by two of the unfunniest break-ya-fingas comical thugs in screen history. The kind of movie that opens in January. [PG]▼●●

Householder, The (1963-U.S.-Indian) 100m. ½ D: James Ivory. Shashi Kapoor, Leela Naidu, Durga Khote, Hariendernath Chattopadaya. Fair comedy about perplexed schoolteacher Kapoor, coping with his arranged marriage and new obligations. Ivory's first fiction feature, and initial collaboration with longtime producer Ismail Merchant and scriptwriter Ruth Prawer Jhabvala; from her novel.▼●●

Household Saints (1993) C-124m.  D: Nancy Savoca. Tracey Ullman, Vincent D'Onofrio, Lili Taylor, Judith Malina, Michael Rispoli, Victor Argo, Michael Imperioli, Illeana Douglas, Joe Grifasi. Rich, almost folkloric portrait of three generations of Italian working-class N.Y.C. women: elderly immigrant Malina, whose life is ruled by old wives' tales; her daughter-in-law (Ullman), an old-maid-in-training won by Malina's son (D'Onofrio) in a pinocle game; and their religion-obsessed daughter (Taylor). As in her first feature, TRUE LOVE, director Savoca (who scripted with her husband, Richard Guay, from Francine Prose's novel) depicts Italian New Yorkers with uncanny accuracy. [R]▼

House in Nightmare Park SEE: Crazy House (1973)

Housekeeper, The (2002-French) C-91m. ½ D: Claude Berri. Jean-Pierre Bacri, Émilie Dequenne, Brigitte Catillon, Jacques Frantz, Axelle Abbadie, Catherine Breillat. Shortly after separating from his wife a man hires a new housekeeper who does more for him than change the sheets. Typically French in attitude and style, this amusing if minor effort from director Berri manages to explore the ultimate male fantasy. Never fully meets the potential of its concept despite fine, understated performances from its two leads. French title: UNE FEMME DE MÉNAGE. Super 35. [R]▼●

Housekeeper's Daughter, The (1939) 79m.  D: Hal Roach. Joan Bennett, Victor Mature, Adolphe Menjou, William Gargan. Pleasant murder mystery enhanced by chic Bennett, who helps crack a homicide case. Mature's film debut.

Housekeeping (1987) C-116m. ½ D: Bill Forsyth. Christine Lahti, Sara Walker, Andrea Burchill. Two orphaned girls meet their aunt for the first time when she comes to live with them; she turns out to be a free spirit who shuns responsibility and has a profound effect on the sisters' own relationship. Forsyth's first American film, set in the 1950s, is a quiet, offbeat, and melancholy story that unfolds like a novel but lacks a certain momentum. Still, there are many touching moments. Lahti is wonderful as always, and the girls (both movie newcomers) are excellent. Based on Marilynne Robinson's book. [PG]▼

House of Angels (1992-Swedish) C-126m. ½ D: Colin Nutley. Helena Bergstrom, Rikard Wolff, Per Oscarsson, Sven Wollter, Viveka Seldahl, Reine Brynolfsson, Jacob Eklund. Contemporary tale of sexy and liberal Bergstrom who, with her avant-garde pal, descends on a rural Swedish village to claim an inheritance and throws the strait-laced townfolk for a loop. Easygoing, off-beat (if longish) film is really not all that different from those classic Ealing comedies coming from 1950s Britain. U.S. theatrical version ran 119m. Aka COLIN NUTLEY'S HOUSE OF ANGELS. [R]▼

House of a Thousand Dolls (1967-British-Spanish) C-83m. ½ D: Jeremy Summers. Vincent Price, Martha Hyer, George Nader, Anne Smyrner, Wolfgang Kieling, Sancho Garcia. Techniscope.▼

House of Bamboo (1955) C-102m. ½ D: Samuel Fuller. Robert Ryan, Robert Stack, Shirley Yamaguchi, Cameron Mitchell, Sessue Hayakawa. Picturesque if not credible story of army officers and Japanese police tracking down a gang of former soldiers working for a well-organized syndicate. CinemaScope.●

House of Cards (1969) C-105m.  D: John Guillermin. George Peppard, Inger Stevens, Orson Welles, Keith Michell, Ralph Michael, Maxine Audley. Down-and-out boxer/adventurer (Peppard) hired by rich widow (Stevens) to tutor her young son becomes pawn of Fascist millionaires and generals intent on retaking Europe. Sound familiar? One good chase, though. Techniscope. [G]

House of Cards (1993) C-109m.  D: Michael Lessac. Kathleen Turner, Tommy Lee Jones, Park Overall, Shiloh Strong, Asha Menina, Esther Rolle, Michael Horse,

Anne Pitoniak. Architect Turner and her two children return to the U.S. after several years of living among Mayan ruins (and the eerie spirituality of the Mayan Indians) of Central America. When her young daughter becomes increasingly withdrawn and shows signs of autism, Turner battles child psychologist Jones over therapy. Pokey story is less a treatise on the girl's trauma than it is on the benefits of having a well-to-do parent with lots of free time and a big backyard. [PG-13]▼●●

House of Crazyies SEE: Asylum (1972)

House of D (2005) C-97m. ½ D: David Duchovny. Anton Yelchin, David Duchovny, Robin Williams, Téa Leoni, Erykah Badu, Frank Langella, Zeldia Williams, Mark Margolis, Magali Amadei, Harold Cartier, Orlando Jones. Duchovny's debut as writer-director is a semiautobiographical story about a man looking back on his childhood growing up in 1970s Greenwich Village and the life-altering choice he makes when tragedy intervenes. Overly sentimental and shot with so many close-ups it can't be recommended for claustrophobics, this awkwardly structured memory play still has laughs and touching moments. Yelchin is a real find as the younger version of the man, played by Duchovny; Williams is good as the boy's mentally challenged friend and co-worker. Williams' real-life daughter Zeldia makes a charming first-love interest. [PG-13]▼

House of Dark Shadows (1970) C-96m.  D: Dan Curtis. Jonathan Frid, Grayson Hall, Kathryn Leigh Scott, Roger Davis, Joan Bennett, John Karlen, Thayer David, Louis Edmonds, Nancy Barrett. Feature version of popular TV serial, recounting vampire Barnabas Collins' (Frid) quest for a cure so he can wed lovely Scott. Nothing new script-wise, but beautiful locations, flashy direction and camerawork, and some nice jolts make it an enjoyable chiller. Followed by NIGHT OF DARK SHADOWS. [PG]▼●●

House of Dracula (1945) 67m. ½ D: Erle C. Kenton. Onslow Stevens, Lon Chaney, Jr., John Carradine, Martha O' Driscoll, Jane Adams, Lionel Atwill, Glenn Strange, Skelton Knaggs. Sequel to HOUSE OF FRANKENSTEIN takes different tack: Stevens tries "real" science to cure various Universal monsters, but finds that some of their bad habits begin to rub off. Acting, direction, eerie set design compensate for over-ambitious script, hasty resolution. ▼●●

House of Evil (1971-Mexican-U.S.) C-80m. BOMB D: Juan Ibanez, Jack Hill. Boris Karloff, Julissa, Andres Garcia, Angel Espinosa, Beatriz Buz. The old heirs-being-killed-one-by-one story, involving crazy composer Karloff, his old house, killer toys, and an organ melody that heralds death. One of four films Karloff made back to back in 1968, constituting his last film work; this is the worst of the lot. Aka DANCE OF DEATH and SERANATA MACABRA. [PG]▼●

Liberal, but ingenious, adaptation of Conan Doyle's "The Five Orange Pips." ▼●●

House of Flying Daggers (2004-Hong Kong-Chinese) C-119m. ½ D: Zhang Yimou. Takeshi Kaneshiro, Andy Lau, Zhang Ziyi, Song Dandan. China, A.D. 859: The notorious Flying Daggers have won renown for stealing from the rich and giving to the poor. Mei (Ziyi), a blind beauty and martial arts expert who is the daughter of the deceased leader of the Daggers, becomes the love object of two dashing Tang Dynasty government deputies; they compete for her amid many battles and fight scenes. Dazzling set pieces, special effects, and use of color, but long, boring at times, and downright silly toward the end; still, it's great to look at. Zhang's second foray into the martial arts genre, following HERO. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

House of Fools (2002-Russian) C-104m. ½ D: Andrei Konchalovsky. Yuliya Vysotskaya (Julia Vysotsky), Bryan Adams, Sultan Islamov, Stanislav Varkki, Vladas Bagdonas, Yevgeni Mironov. This thoroughly Russian film is set in a mental hospital where one of the patients is fixated on a fantasy life with pop singer Bryan Adams, only to see her dreams shattered by the real-life Chechen war in her midst. An odd cross between NO MAN'S LAND and ONE FLEW OVER THE CUCKOO'S NEST; the actors shine in spite of the film's dreary tone. Adams appears throughout, singing his hit "Have You Ever Really Loved a Woman" perhaps three times too many for his (and the film's) own good. [R] ▼●

House of Frankenstein (1944) 71m. ½ D: Erle C. Kenton. Boris Karloff, J. Carrol Naish, Lon Chaney, Jr., John Carradine, Elena Verdugo, Anne Gwynne, Lionel Atwill, Peter Coe, George Zucco, Glenn Strange, Sig Rumann. Episodic all-star monster opus linked by evil scientist Karloff and hunchback Naish posing as traveling horror show operators. First third has them dealing with Dracula (wonderfully played by Carradine), the rest picks up where FRANKENSTEIN MEETS THE WOLF MAN left off. Contrived, to say the least, but tough to dislike. Strange's first appearance as the Frankenstein Monster. Sequel: HOUSE OF DRACULA. ▼●●

Uptight female psychiatrist (and best-selling author) becomes involved with a slick confidence man and his "team," and quickly gets in over her head. Fascinating Hitchcockian tale by David Mamet, which also marks his film directing debut. Many of his stage cronies are on hand, notably Mantegna, in a dynamic performance, and Crouse, then Mamet's wife. [R]▼●●

Tim Matheson, Charles Haid, Bess Armstrong, Michael Sacks, Lisa Pelikan, George Coe, Ossie Davis, Howard Rollins, Jr., James Cromwell, Sandra Bernhard. Misfire black comedy about bunch of young interns coming to grips with reality of hospital pressures. A few scattered laughs, but mostly a waste of terrific (and then-unknown) talent. Adapted by Wrye from Samuel Shem's novel; never released theatrically. [R] House of Mirth, The (2000-British-U.S.) C-140m. ½ D: Terence Davies. Gillian Anderson, Eric Stoltz, Dan Aykroyd, Eleanor Bron, Terry Kinney, Anthony LaPaglia, Laura Linney, Elizabeth McGovern, Jodhi May. Faithful but mirthless adaptation of Edith Wharton novel about a beautiful woman who is ostracized from N.Y. society at the turn of the 20th century because she doesn't "play the game." Deadly slow, the film gets more interesting as it goes along . . . but a more charismatic leading actress might have helped. Exquisitely mounted production. Arriscope. [PG]▼●

A night of blood-drenched terror begins when two morons and their girlfriends pay a visit to Captain Spaulding's Museum of Monsters and Madmen. This infantile ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW/Texas Chain Saw Massacre wannabe sacrifices genuine scares for gratuitous gore and nonstop profanity. House of Rothschild (1934) 88m.  D: Alfred L. Werker. George Arliss, Boris Karloff, Loretta Young, Robert Young, Florence Arliss, C. Aubrey Smith. Elaborate, entertaining chronicle of famed banking family, with Arliss as Nathan Rothschild at time of Napoleonic Wars, Loretta his daughter, R. Young her suitor, Karloff as civilized villain. Finale shot in color.

House of Sand, The (2005-Brazilian) C-115m.  D: Andrucha Waddington. Fernanda Montenegro, Fernanda Torres, Ruy Guerra, Seu Jorge, Luiz Melodia, Enrique Díaz, Stênio Garcia, Emiliano Queiroz. Sensuous story begins as a crazed man drags his wife (and her mother) to a remote spot in the Brazilian desert where he plans to build a home. The women remain and create a life for themselves away from civilization, spilling into the next generation—and in spite of the daughter's determination to get out. The female stars (who are real-life mother and daughter) exchange roles in a near-mystical passage of 59 years as this unique, cosmic drama unfolds. Super 35. [R]●

House of Sand and Fog (2003) C-126m. ½ D: Vadim Perelman. Jennifer Connelly, Ben Kingsley, Ron Eldard, Frances Fisher, Kim Dickens, Shohreh Aghdashloo, Jonathan Ahdout, Navi Rawat. A lost soul (Connelly) is evicted from her house overlooking the ocean. The county sells it, at a bargain price, to an Iranian ex-colonel now living in diminished circumstances who hopes to resell it for a profit. This sets Connelly and Kingsley on a collision course that wreaks havoc neither one can foresee. There's not a false move or a wasted moment in this exquisitely rendered, emotionally devastating film. Impressive feature debut for director Perelman, who adapted the screenplay with Shawn Otto from Andre Dubus III's best-selling novel. [R]▼●

House of Seven Corpses, The (1973) C-90m.  D: Paul Harrison. John Ireland, Faith Domergue, John Carradine, Carole Wells, Charles Macaulay, Jerry Strickler. A movie crew uses a house with a notorious past for location work on a horror film, and learns to regret it; low budget, but not bad. [PG]▼● House of Strangers (1949) 101m.  D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Edward G. Robinson, Susan Hayward, Richard Conte, Luther Adler, Efreim Zimbalist, Jr., Debra Paget, Hope Emerson, Esther Minciotti. Dynamic drama of ruthless financier Robinson who uses his four sons to suit his own schemes. Unique plot line has been utilized in various disguises for many subsequent films—most memorably, five years later in the Western BROKEN LANCE.▼●

House of the Black Death (1965) 80m. *½ D: Harold Daniels. Lon Chaney, Jr., John Carradine, Andrea King, Tom Drake, Dolores Faith, Sabrina. Warlock holds people captive in a creepy old house; terribly dragged out, grade-Z stuff.▼

House of the Dead (2003-U.S.-German-Canadian) C-92m. BOMB D: Uwe Boll.

Jonathan Cherry, Tyron Leitso, Clint Howard, Ona Grauer, Ellie Cornell, Will Sanderson, Erika Okuma, Jürgen Prochnow. Low-grade horror movie, based on the video-game series, which charts the all-too-predictable fates of some addle-brained young people drawn to an island inhabited by zombies. Sloppily made and mind-numbingly inept. Prochnow's character is named Captain Kirk. How clever! Followed by a TVM, HOUSE OF THE DEAD 2. [R] ▼

House of the Long Shadows (1983-British) C-96m. *½ D: Pete Walker. Vincent Price, Christopher Lee, Peter Cushing, Desi Arnaz, Jr., John Carradine, Sheila Keith, Julie Peasgood, Richard Todd. Arnaz, Jr. single-handedly sinks this sixth screen version of George M. Cohan's spoof, SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE, miscast as a mystery writer staying the night in a spooky mansion on a bet with Todd. Notable only for its historic teaming of four all-time horror masters, all wasted in small roles. [PG] ▼

House of the Seven Gables, The (1940) 89m.  D: Joe May. George Sanders, Margaret Lindsay, Vincent Price, Nan Grey, Alan Napier, Cecil Kellaway, Dick Foran. Good adaptation of Hawthorne's classic novel. Set in 19th-century New England; conniving Sanders frames his brother, Price, for murder of their father in effort to cheat him out of inheritance. Fine performances from all. Price also appeared in TWICE-TOLD TALES, which includes abbreviated version of Seven Gables novel. ▼

House of the Spirits, The (1993-German-Danish-Portuguese-U.S.) C-138m.  D: Bille August. Jeremy Irons, Meryl Streep, Glenn Close, Winona Ryder, Vanessa Redgrave, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Antonio Banderas, Maria Conchita Alonso, Miriam Colon, Vincent Gallo, Jan Niklas, Teri Polo. Epic South American saga that follows a prominent family's turbulent life from the 1920s through the early '70s. Heavy with portent—and clearly written by someone for whom English is not a first language—this sprawling story tries to incorporate the mysticism of Isabel Allende's bestselling novel with sputtering results. Streep is badly miscast, and Irons struggles with his Hispanic role. Mamie Gummer, Streep's daughter, plays her character as a child. Opened in Europe at 145m. Panavision. [R] ▼

House of Usher (1960) C-85m. ½ D: Roger Corman. Vincent Price, Mark Damon, Myrna Fahey, Harry Ellerbe. First-rate horror film based on classic tale by Edgar Allan Poe. When beautiful young girl's suitor arrives to ask her hand in marriage, the doors of the house of Usher fling open, and terror begins. Filmed several times before and since, but never this effectively; a great tour de force for Price. First of Corman's eight Poe adaptations. Aka FALL OF THE HOUSE OF USHER. CinemaScope. ▼

House of Usher, The (1988) C-90m. *½ D: Alan Birkinshaw. Oliver Reed, Donald Pleasence, Romy Windsor, Rufus Swart, Norman Coombes, Anne Stradi. Yet another telling of the Edgar Allan Poe saga is one big yawn, with Reed as Roderick Usher, and Windsor as his prey—the woman who can bear him a son and continue the family name. Filmed in South Africa. [R] ▼

House of Wax (1953) C-88m.  D: Andre de Toth. Vincent Price, Frank Lovejoy, Phyllis Kirk, Paul Picerni, Carolyn Jones, Paul Cavanagh, Charles Buchinsky (Bronson). Remake of MYSTERY OF THE WAX MUSEUM stars Price as vengeful sculptor who rebuilds his fire-destroyed showplace by using human victims as wax figures. Jones excellent as an early victim. Most popular of the era's 3-D films, a status it retains today. This is the film that launched Price on his horror film cycle after 15 years of "straight" roles. Love that paddleball man! Remade in 2005. ▼

House of Wax (2005-U.S.-Australian) C-105m.  D: Jaume Collet-Serra. Elisha Cuthbert, Chad Michael Murray, Brian Van Holt, Paris Hilton, Jared Padalecki, Jon Abrahams, Robert Ri'chard, Damon Herriman. A group of friends heading to a college football game take a shortcut, find themselves stranded, get separated, stumble into a deserted town, and enter a house of wax with a "closed" sign on the door. Plays like a mediocre 1970s slasher flick, but with contemporary, "fleshed-out" characters. An in-name-only remake of the 1953 movie, though the wax sculptor is named Vincent. [R] ▼

House of Women (1962) 85m. ½ D: Walter Doniger. Shirley Knight, Andrew Duggan, Constance Ford, Barbara Nichols, Margaret Hayes, Virginia Gregg. Trite rendition of conditions in a women's prison elevated by good cast and fast pacing. Remake of CAGED.

House of Yes, The (1997) C-90m. ½ D: Mark Waters. Parker Posey, Josh Hamilton, Tori Spelling, Freddie Prinze, Jr., Genevieve Bujold, Rachael Leigh Cook. On a stormy night in 1983, a young man brings his fiancée home to meet his cracked Washington, D.C., family, including his demented twin sister, Jackie-O, whose fantasies about Jacqueline Kennedy have extended to reenacting the JFK assassination—with real bullets. Well-wrought black comedy, based on the stage play by Wendy MacLeod, never quite escapes being a "play on film." Strong performances, led by Posey's, make this worth a look. [R] ▼

House on Carroll Street, The (1988) C-100m.  D: Peter Yates. Kelly McGillis, Jeff Daniels, Mandy Patinkin, Christopher Rhode, Jessica Tandy, Jonathan Hogan, Trey Wilson. McGillis, who's just lost her job after being branded a subversive during the McCarthy era, stumbles onto a strange espionage plot that's being covered up, and gradually persuades FBI agent Daniels that she's on to something big. Finely detailed period piece set in 1950s N.Y.C. starts off well, then chucks its relevance (and believability) for a melodramatic finale filmed à la Hitchcock at Grand Central Station . . . leaving a passel of plot holes and unanswered questions. A real disappointment from onetime blacklisted writer Walter Bernstein. Patinkin is excellent as Roy Cohn—type attorney. [PG]▼●●

House on Haunted Hill (1958) 75m.  D: William Castle. Vincent Price, Carol Ohmart, Richard Long, Alan Marshal, Elisha Cook, Jr., Carolyn Craig, Leona Anderson. Zillionaire Price offers group of people $10,000 each if they'll spend a night in spooky old mansion with murder-laden history; he even provides loaded guns as party favors. Campy fun. Originally presented theatrically with flying skeleton gimmick "Emergo." Remade in 1999. ▼●●

House on Haunted Hill (1999) C-93m. *½ D: William Malone. Geoffrey Rush, Famke Janssen, Taye Diggs, Bridgette Wilson, Peter Gallagher, Chris Kattan, Ali Larter, Max Perlich, Jeffrey Combs, Lisa Loeb. Dreary remake of the 1958 movie, with two obnoxious "hosts"—a venomous married couple (Rush, Janssen)—having a party whose guest list is comprised of five strangers. Each one can win a million dollars for surviving the night in a former sanitarium with a bloodstained past. Heavy-handed, and no fun at all. Followed by a direct-to-DVD sequel. [R]▼●●

House on 92nd Street, The (1945) 88m. ½ D: Henry Hathaway. William Eythe, Lloyd Nolan, Signe Hasso, Gene Lockhart, Leo G. Carroll, Lydia St. Clair. Exciting, trend-setting documentary-style drama—based on fact and staged on actual locations—about FBI counterespionage activities during WW2: Nazi agents, operating in N.Y.C., attempt to pilfer part of the atom bomb formula. Charles G. Booth earned an Oscar for his original story. Screenplay by Booth, Barre Lyndon, and John Monks, Jr. Look for E. G. Marshall, in film debut. Followed by THE STREET WITH NO NAME. ▼●

House on Telegraph Hill, The (1951) 93m. ½ D: Robert Wise. Richard Basehart, Valentina Cortese, William Lundigan, Fay Baker. Good cast in intriguing tale of WW2 refugee assuming dead woman's identity so that she can come to San Francisco where wealthy relatives reside. ●

House Party (1990) C-100m.  D: Reginald Hudlin. Christopher Reid, Robin Harris, Christopher Martin, Martin Lawrence, Tisha Campbell, A. J. Johnson, Paul Anthony. Infectiously good-natured comedy about urban black teenagers and the events leading up to (and following) a house party one night. Upbeat and imaginative, cast with real-life music rappers (including Reid, who plays the leading role of Kid). A solid feature debut for young writer-director Hudlin. Followed by animated TV series Kid 'n Play and three sequels. [R]▼●●

House Party 2 (1991) C-94m.  D: Doug McHenry, George Jackson. Christopher Reid, Christopher Martin, Eugene Allen, George Anthony Bell, Georg Stanford Brown, Tony Burton, Tisha Campbell, Iman, Kamron, Queen Latifah, Martin Lawrence, William Schallert. Uninspired sequel has Kid (Reid) heading off to college—if he can just hold on to the money his church congregation has raised to send him there. Reid is still appealing, but this fragmented film has little to offer, in spite of its social-consciousness rhetoric and get-an-education "message." [R]▼●●

House Party 3 (1994) C-94m. *½ D: Eric Meza. Christopher Reid, Christopher Martin, David Edwards, Angela Means, Tisha Campbell, Bernie Mac, Gilbert Gottfried, Ketty Lester. Kid, amid jitters over his impending marriage, is trying to make it in music management by signing a feisty female rap group and dodging a vindictive tour promoter. Scatter-shot chuckles, but coarse, crude, and misogynistic, unlike the original. More hangover than beer blast. [R]▼●●

HouseSitter (1992) C-102m.  D: Frank Oz. Steve Martin, Goldie Hawn, Dana Delany, Julie Harris, Donald Moffat, Peter MacNicol, Richard B. Shull, Laurel Cronin, Christopher Durang, Cherry Jones. Unusual hybrid of comedy, farce, and screwball romance that doesn't know what it's trying to be. Martin plays a New England architect who meets kooky nonconformist Hawn; in no time she's moved into the vacant dream home he'd intended for Delany and begun spinning lies about being his Mrs. Laughs throughout, and the stars do their best, but the film is painfully Hollywood-cookie-cutter in form. [PG]▼●●

House That Dripped Blood, The (1970-British) C-101m. ½ D: Peter Duffell. John Bennett, John Bryans, Denholm Elliott, Joanna Dunham, Tom Adams, Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee, Nyree Dawn Porter, Jon Pertwee, Ingrid Pitt. Entertaining four-part horror film written by Robert Bloch with a bit too much tongue in cheek, revolving around suitably creepy-looking mansion purchased by new, hesitant owner. Best segments: first and last. [PG]▼●

House That Screamed, The (1970-Spanish) C-94m. *½ D: Narciso Ibanez Serrador. Lilli Palmer, Chistina Galbo, John Moulder-Brown, Mary Maude, Candida Losada. Grisly horror at a home for troubled girls, where disciplinarian Palmer and her sex-starved son (Brown) make life difficult—to say the least—for the young ladies. Franscope. [PG]●

House Where Evil Dwells, The (1982)

C-88m.  D: Kevin Connor. Edward Albert, Susan George, Doug McClure, Amy Barrett, Mako Hattori, Toshiyuki Sasaki, Toshiya Maruyama. American family moves into stylish old house in Kyoto, Japan, ignoring warnings that it's haunted by ghosts of doomed 19th-century love triangle. A few new twists can't relieve familiar formula and general air of silliness. Quite violent at times. [R] ▼●

Housewife (1934) 69m.  D: Alfred E. Green. Bette Davis, George Brent, Ann Dvorak, John Halliday, Ruth Donnelly. Little punch in story of struggling copywriter Brent deserting wife Dvorak for old-flame Davis (playing unsubtle vamp).

How About You . . . (2007-Irish) C-91m.  D: Anthony Byrne. Vanessa Redgrave, Imelda Staunton, Brenda Fricker, Hayley Atwell, Joss Ackland, Orla Brady, Joan O'Hara. Young Atwell comes to work in a residential home whose aging inhabitants are mostly eccentric or crotchety. What might have been an appealing tale of intergenerational bonding is ill conceived and often downright silly. Livens up in Atwell's all-too-brief scenes with elderly, dying O'Hara. Based on a short story by Maeve Binchy. Super 35. ●

Howards End (1992-British) C-140m. * D: James Ivory. Anthony Hopkins, Vanessa Redgrave, Helena Bonham Carter, Emma Thompson, James Wilby, Sam West, Emma Redgrave, Nicola Duffett, Prunella Scales. Sumptuous, stimulating adaptation of E. M. Forster's novel of class distinction—and what happens when members of different social strata collide in 1910 England. Thompson won an Oscar for her terrific performance as an audacious and independent young woman of no means who is ever-so-subtly seduced by Hopkins, a successful man whose social veneer masks an insidious (and even cruel) nature. Extraordinarily good on every level. Also won Oscars for Best Screenplay (by Ruth Praver Jhabvala) and Art Direction—Set Decoration. Simon Callow appears unbilled as a lecturer. Super 35. [PG] ▼●●

Howards of Virginia, The (1940) 122m. ½ D: Frank Lloyd. Cary Grant, Martha Scott, Cedric Hardwicke, Alan Marshal, Richard Carlson, Paul Kelly, Irving Bacon. Historical account of Revolutionary War is OK, but too long for such standard retelling. Look for young Peter Cushing. ▼●

Howard Stern's Private Parts SEE: Private Parts

Howard the Duck (1986) C-111m. BOMB D: Willard Huyck. Lea Thompson, Jeffrey Jones, Tim Robbins, Paul Guilfoyle, Holly Robinson, Miles Chapin, Virginia Capers, David Paymer, Thomas Dolby, and voice of Richard Kiley. Steve Gerber's sarcastic comic-book creation is (unwisely) turned into a live-action character for this hopeless mess of a movie set in Cleveland. Garganuan production produces gargantuan headache. Executive produced, but disowned, by George Lucas. [PG] ▼●

How Do I Love Thee? (1970) C-110m. *½ D: Michael Gordon. Jackie Gleason, Maureen O'Hara, Shelley Winters, Rosemary Forsyth, Rick Lenz, Clinton Robinson. Pleasant cast can't do much for sloppily sentimental film about Gleason's inability to relate to his son, a philosophy professor. Plays like a TV show, a bad one at that. [PG] ▼

How Funny Can Sex Be? (1976-Italian) C-97m. ½ D: Dino Risi. Giancarlo Giannini, Laura Antonelli, Alberto Lionello, Duilio Del Prete, Paola Borboni, Carla Mancini. Eight bawdy episodes on love, sex, and marriage. More misses than hits, but buoyed by Giannini's comic prowess and Antonelli's tantalizing beauty. Released here after Giannini's success in Wertmuller films. [R] ▼

How Green Was My Valley (1941) 118m. * D: John Ford. Walter Pidgeon, Maureen O'Hara, Donald Crisp, Anna Lee, Master Roddy McDowall, John Loder, Sara Allgood, Barry Fitzgerald, Patric Knowles, Rhys Williams, Arthur Shields, Ann Todd, Mae Marsh. Narrated by Irving Pichel; United Kingdom version narrated by Rhys Williams. Moving drama from Richard Llewellyn's story of Welsh coal miners, centering on Crisp's large, close-knit family. Beautifully filmed, lovingly directed, winner of five Academy Awards: Best Picture, Director, Supporting Actor (Crisp), Cinematography (Arthur Miller), Art Direction. Screenplay by Philip Dunne. ▼●●

How High (2001) C-93m.  D: Jesse Dylan. Method Man, Redman, Lark Voorhies, Obba Babatundé, Mike Epps, Fred Willard, Anna Maria Horsford, Chuck Dazio, Jeffrey Jones, Spalding Gray, Hector Elizondo, Tracey Walter. With Willard playing the chancellor of Harvard and Bob Dylan's son directing, this rare Ivy League stoner comedy has a curio advantage going in. Film's rapper leads play goof-offs who finesse their entrance exams by smoking the mind-expanding ashes of a dead friend. (Who says the spirit of Lubitsch is dead?) Movie has enough low-grade laughs to sustain its length, though there have probably been cockfights with more redeeming social value. [R] ▼●

How I Got Into College (1989) C-89m.  D: Savage Steve Holland. Anthony Edwards, Corey Parker, Lara Flynn Boyle, Finn Carter, Charles Rocket, Christopher Rydell, Brian Doyle-Murray, Richard Jenkins, Nora Dunn, Phil Hartman. Aimless senior applies to a small college because his high-achiever dream girl is doing the same, and gets caught up in the cutthroat recruitment machine. Mild execution of ripe satirical premise, buoyed by fantasy set pieces associated with director Holland's previous work. Has its moments, but not enough of them. [PG-13] ▼●●

How I Killed My Father (2001-French-Spanish) C-95m.  D: Anne Fontaine. Michel Bouquet, Charles Berling, Natacha Régnier, Amira Casar, Stéphane Guillon, Hubert Koundé, Karole Rocher, François Berléand. A doctor (Berling) whose specialty is slowing down the aging process among his wealthy clientele learns that his long-estranged father (Bouquet) has died unexpectedly. In a flash, he recalls their last extended meeting—or is this reunion all in his mind? Quietly devastating character study emphasizes the enduring impact parents have on children. Aka MY FATHER AND I. [R]▼●●

How I Won the War (1967-British) C-109m.  D: Richard Lester. Michael Crawford, John Lennon, Roy Kinnear, Jack MacGowran, Michael Hordern, Lee Montague, Alexander Knox. Pungent, if occasionally overbaked, account of a middle-aged veteran whose pompous reminiscences of his wartime heroics cannot obscure his ineptitude in battle. A deliciously cynical parody of the lunacy of war. Interesting to see Lennon in one of his very few acting roles, as the Cockney Gripweed. ▼●●

Howling, The (1981) C-91m.  D: Joe Dante. Dee Wallace, Patrick Macnee, Dennis Dugan, Christopher Stone, Belinda Balaski, Kevin McCarthy, John Carradine, Slim Pickens, Elisabeth Brooks, Robert Picardo, Noble Willingham, Kenneth Tobey, Dick Miller, Meshach Taylor. A female TV news reporter is sent to a strange California encounter-group community to recover from a sexual trauma, unaware that virtually everyone there is a werewolf. A hip, well-made horror film, brimming with film-buff jokes (almost every character is named after a werewolf-movie director) and Rob Bottin's amazing wolf transformations. Only complaint: Why set the horror against such a patently bizarre backdrop? Coscripter John Sayles has a funny cameo as a morgue attendant. Followed by several so-called sequels. [R]▼●●

Howling II: Your Sister Is a Werewolf (1985) C-90m. BOMB D: Philippe Mora. Christopher Lee, Annie McEnroe, Reb Brown, Sybil Danning, Marsha A. Hunt, Ferdy Mayne. Ridiculous sequel is set in Transylvania where unlikely siblings Danning and Lee head up a family of werewolves. Attempt at sending up the genre falls flat. [R]▼●●

Howling III (1987-Australian) C-94m.  D: Philippe Mora. Barry Otto, Imogen Annesley, Dasha Blahova, Max Fairchild, Frank Thring, Michael Pate, Barry Humphries. OK horror spoof stars Annesley, a Kim Basinger-like beauty, as an Australian marsupial werewolf, who gives birth to a cute little creature that lives in a pouch on her belly. Unusual addition to werewolf genre features some funny cameos, including Thring as an Alfred Hitchcock-style director. [PG-13]▼●●

Howling IV: The Original Nightmare (1988-British) C-92m. BOMB D: John Hough. Romy Windsor, Michael T. Weiss, Anthony Hamilton, Susanne Severeid. Being based somewhat more closely on Gary Bradner's original novel doesn't save this film from being a turkey in wolf's clothing. Isolated in a distant cabin, a young woman battles werewolves, including her boyfriend, a newly minted howler. Shot in South Africa, unsuccessfully passing itself off as California. Poor makeup effects. [R]▼●●

Howling V: The Rebirth (1989) C-99m.  D: Neal Sundstrom. Victoria Catlin, Elizabeth Silverstein, Mark Faulkner, Stephanie Shockley, William Stavin. Much better than II or IV, this still suffers from a very low budget—so low there are no werewolves to be seen! All the hairy monster stuff takes place off-screen in this variation on Ten Little Indians, as a group in a picturesque old castle is knocked off one by one by the secret werewolf among them. Some suspense, OK performances, and a genuine surprise at the end. [R]▼●●

Howling VI—The Freaks (1991) C-102m. *½ D: Hope Perello. Brendan Hughes, Michelle Matheson, Bruce Martyn Payne, Jered Barclay, Sean Gregory Sullivan, Antonio Fargas, Carlos Cervantes. This time the werewolf is the hero, a drifter who turns up in a Southwestern desert town just ahead of a circus full of monsters. Intelligently written, especially for this series, but pretentious, with vague Ray Bradburysque overtones. Awkward and confusing, of appeal to buffs only. [R]▼●●

Howl's Moving Castle (2004-Japanese) C-119m. ½ D: Hayao Miyazaki. Voices of Christian Bale, Jean Simmons, Billy Crystal, Lauren Bacall, Emily Mortimer, Blythe Danner, Josh Hutcherson, Jena Malone, Moosie Drier. A girl falls under the spell of a witch and is transformed into a wrinkled old woman . . . but in her new form she acquires a sense of daring and wisdom she never had before, especially when she discovers a magical moving castle. This mystical fable offers a unique experience. It asks the viewer to take a leap of faith—and then offers constant surprise, turning from humor to sadness to a sense of wonder in the blink of an eye. Animation master Miyazaki adapted Diana Wynne Jones' novel. Simmons, Bacall, and Crystal contribute rich vocal performances to the U.S. version. [PG]●

How She Move (2008-Canadian) C-91m.  D: Ian Iqbal Rashid. Rutina Wesley, Tré Armstrong, Clé Bennett, Melanie Nicholls-King, Brennan Gademans, Dwain Murphy, Keyshia Cole, DeRay Davis. Utterly predictable story about a young girl who, after her sister's death, returns to her old neighborhood in the Caribbean projects of Toronto. To earn college tuition money she decides to compete in step-dancing competitions. Mediocre in every way; the dancing and music are uninspired, and they're supposed to drive the film. [PG-13]◆

How Stella Got Her Groove Back (1998) C-124m.  D: Kevin Rodney Sullivan. Angela Bassett, Taye Diggs, Regina King, Whoopi Goldberg, Suzanne Douglas, Michael J. Pagan, Sicily, Richard Lawson, Barry Shabaka Henley, Glynn Turman, Carl Lumbly. Tight-midriffed San Francisco stockbroker, age 40, romances the 20-year-old med-school hopeful she meets while vacationing in Jamaica, setting off a wave of tsk-tsk-ing among her friends and his parents. Overlong and dull, this occasionally lush version of Terry McMillan's novel might be more convincing if Bassett didn't look more like a 25-year-old knockout. Subplot about Goldberg's illness and subsequent hospitalization helps keep the film from getting into a groove. [R]▼●●

How Sweet It Is! (1968) C-99m. *½ D: Jerry Paris. James Garner, Debbie Reynolds, Maurice Ronet, Paul Lynde, Marcel Dalio, Terry-Thomas. Married couple with teenage son goes to Europe to revitalize themselves, but Mom starts to dally with sexy Frenchman. Bland comedy looks like a TV show and is about as memorable. Watch for Penny Marshall as one of the Tour Girls. Panavision.▼

How the Garcia Girls Spent Their Summer (2008) C-128m.  D: Georgina Garcia Riedel. Elizabeth Peña, America Ferrera, Lucy Gallardo, Steven Bauer, Jorge Cervera, Jr., Leo Minaya. Sharply observed and sympathetically detailed dramedy about the romantic entanglements of three generations of Mexican-American women—aging grandmother (Gallardo), divorced mother (Peña), 17-year-old daughter (Ferrera)—in a sleepy Arizona border town. Funny and insightful, but be forewarned: this SUMMER proceeds at the pace of someone amiably drifting through a hot August afternoon. Filmed before, but released after, Ferrera hit it big on TV's Ugly Betty. Panavision. [R]◆

How the Grinch Stole Christmas (2000) C-105m. *½ D: Ron Howard. Jim Carrey, Jeffrey Tambor, Christine Baranski, Bill Irwin, Molly Shannon, Clint Howard, Taylor Momsen; narrated by Anthony Hopkins. Cheerless bastardization of the beloved children's book by Dr. Seuss about a dastardly creature's attempt to rob Whoville of its yuletide holiday. Carrey is good, but the film is loud and cluttered, losing all the charm of the sweet, simple source material. Only good songs are two holdovers from the vastly superior 1966 animated TV special. Rick Baker and Gail Ryan won Oscars for Best Makeup. Full title is DR. SEUSS' HOW THE GRINCH STOLE CHRISTMAS. Later a Broadway musical. Bah, humbug! [PG]▼◆

How the West Was Won (1962) C-155m.

½ D: John Ford ("The Civil War"), Henry Hathaway ("The Rivers, The Plains, The Outlaws"), George Marshall ("The Railroad"). Carroll Baker, Henry Fonda, Gregory Peck, George Peppard, Carolyn Jones, Eli Wallach, Robert Preston, Debbie Reynolds, James Stewart, John Wayne, Richard Widmark, All-Star Cast; narrated by Spencer Tracy. Blockbuster epic about three generations of Western pioneers isn't same experience seen at home as it is on a Cinerama screen, but great cast, first-rate photography and lovely Alfred Newman score still make it top entertainment. Peppard stands out with excellent portrayal. This won Oscars for Story and Screenplay (James R. Webb) and Editing (Harold F. Kress). Cinerama.▼●●

How to Beat the High Co$ of Living

(1980) C-110m. *½ D: Robert Scheerer. Susan Saint James, Jane Curtin, Jessica Lange, Richard Benjamin, Cathryn Damon, Fred Willard, Dabney Coleman, Eddie Albert, Art Metrano, Garrett Morris. Thoroughly blah caper comedy by Bob Kaufman about three housewives who plot a heist at the local shopping center. Worth a glance to see Coleman in rare romantic lead . . . and Saint James and Curtin years before they clicked together as Kate and Allie. [PG]▼◆

How to Be Very, Very Popular (1955)

C-89m. ½ D: Nunnally Johnson. Betty Grable, Robert Cummings, Charles Coburn, Sheree North, Fred Clark, Alice Pearce, Orson Bean. Grable and North on the lam hide in a college fraternity in this semiremake of SHE LOVES ME NOT. Sheree does wild "Shake, Rattle and Roll" number, stealing Grable's spotlight. This was Betty's last movie. CinemaScope.

How to Commit Marriage (1969) C-95m.

 D: Norman Panama. Bob Hope, Jackie Gleason, Jane Wyman, Maureen Arthur, Tim Matheson, Leslie Nielsen, Tina Louise, Irwin Corey. Above average for later Hope movies, but still a far cry from great comedy. Hope and Wyman are about to divorce when their daughter announces plans to marry Gleason's son. "Mod" elements of script were already dated when film came out. [M/PG]▼◆

How to Deal (2003) C-101m.  D: Clare Kilner. Mandy Moore, Allison Janney, Trent Ford, Alexandra Holden, Dylan Baker, Nina Foch, Mackenzie Astin, Connie Ray, Mary Catherine Garrison. Dealing with a divorced mom and a pregnant best friend, a teenage girl vows never to fall in love. Dull attempt at dramedy isn't helped by Moore's uninteresting lead performance. Only the older generation here—Janney, Baker, and Foch as a grandmother who tokes marijuana for "medicinal" reasons—have any fun, though the dotty grandma bit has been overdone by now. Based on two of Sarah Dessen's popular teen novels. Peter

How to Eat Fried Worms (2006) C-83m. ½ D: Bob Dolman. Luke Benward, Hallie Kate Eisenberg, Adam Hicks, Austin Rogers, Alexander Gould, Ryan Malgarini, Philip Daniel Bolden, Clint Howard, Ty Panitz, Kimberly Williams-Paisley, Tom Cavanagh, James Rebhorn. Cooked in Crisco. Mixed with marshmallow. Peanut butter and worm sandwich. These are some of the ways that the new kid in school must dine on phylum Annelida to win a bet and prove a point. Brightly adapted from Thomas Rockwell's 1973 classic novel of preadolescent crudity, this is one big gross-out joke that, while a family movie, is so not a popcorn movie. Young Benward is an appealing hero. Super 35. [PG]■

How to Frame a Figg (1971) C-103m.  D: Alan Rafkin. Don Knotts, Joe Flynn, Elaine Joyce, Edward Andrews, Yvonne Craig. Simplistic chap (Knotts) finds trouble behind every doorway as he is made patsy for crooked politicians. Usual unobnoxious Knotts comedy. [G]▼

How to Get Ahead in Advertising (1989-British) C-95m. ½ D: Bruce Robinson. Richard E. Grant, Rachel Ward, Richard Wilson, Jacqueline Tong, John Shrapnel, Susan Woodlridge, Mick Ford. Advertising hotshot Grant is under so much pressure—and has become so negative about his manipulative profession—that his anxiety brings forth a talking boil on his shoulder with a mind of its own! Certifiably weird comedy by writer-director Robinson (reunited with the star of his first film, WITHNAIL AND I) has its share of funny and bizarre moments, but its attack on advertising is so heavy-handed that as satire it fizzles. [R]▼●

How to Kill Your Neighbor's Dog (2001-U.S.-German) C-107m.  D: Michael Kalesniko. Kenneth Branagh, Robin Wright Penn, Suzi Hofrichter, Lynn Redgrave, Jared Harris, Lucinda Jenney, Peter Riegert, Peri Gilpin, Tamala Jones, David Krumholtz, Johnathon Schaech. Sardonic playwright whose career is in a slump grapples with his wife's desire to have a baby. Meanwhile, a cute little girl moves in across the street and begins to affect the man's outlook—and even his work. Glib and funny, Kalesniko's screenplay depens as it progresses with fine performances by Branagh, Penn, and young Hofrichter. Refreshingly unconventional comedy made its U.S. debut on cable TV. Daniel Stern appears unbilled. [R]▼

How to Lose a Guy in 10 Days (2003) C-115m.  D: Donald Petrie. Kate Hudson, Matthew McConaughey, Michael Michele, Shalome Harlow, Adam Goldberg, Bebe Neuwirth, Robert Klein, Kathryn Hahn, Thomas Lennon, Annie Parisse, Celia Weston, Liliame Monteverchi. Airy romantic comedy about a women's-magazine writer who takes on the challenge of attracting—and then driving away—a man, for the sake of an article, never dreaming that the man she chooses has taken a bet that he can woo and win her. The stars are attractive, though Hudson is obliged to act obnoxious—and is apparently shot through layers of gauze. Diverting for a while, but overlong, and there's barely an honest moment in the film. [PG-13]▼

How to Lose Friends & Alienate People (2008-U.S.-British) C-109m.  D: Robert Weide. Simon Pegg, Kirsten Dunst, Jeff Bridges, Danny Huston, Gillian Anderson, Megan Fox, Miriam Margolyes, Bill Paterson, Max Minghella, Diana Kent, Thandie Newton. Snarky British journalist Pegg desperately wants to be on the inside of the glamour scene and gets the opportunity when N.Y. magazine editor Bridges hires him. His obnoxious, bull-in-a-china-shop behavior is nearly his undoing until he learns to play the game—and gets to score with a sexy starlet (Fox). Drawn from Toby Young's book about working for Vanity Fair, with Bridges having fun as a Graydon Carter type. A sharp look at our celebrity culture. Alternately silly and clever; well cast from top to bottom. [R]■

How to Make an American Quilt (1995) C-116m.  D: Jocelyn Moorhouse. Winona Ryder, Ellen Burstyn, Anne Bancroft, Maya Angelou, Kate Nelligan, Jean Simmons, Samantha Mathis, Alfre Woodard, Lois Smith, Kate Capshaw, Johnathon Schaech, Holland Taylor, Maria Celedonio, Claire Danes, Loren Dean, Melinda Dillon, Dermot Mulroney, Derrick O'Connor, Esther Rolle, Rip Torn, Mykelti Williamson, Alicia (Lecy) Goranson, Adam Baldwin, Richard Jenkins, Jared Leto. Aimless young woman leaves her fiancé behind to spend the summer with her grandmother and great-aunt. Soon she's delving into their lives and the experiences of their female friends who work together in a nonstop quilting bee. Episodic "woman's film" (based on Whitney Otto's novel) offers at least one flashback too many in its quiltlike pattern. It's genteel, good looking, and well acted, but has no narrative momentum. How to Marry a Millionaire (1953) C-95m.  D: Jean Negulesco. Marilyn Monroe, Betty Grable, Lauren Bacall, William Powell, Rory Calhoun, David Wayne, Alex D'Arcy, Fred Clark, Cameron Mitchell. Terrific ensemble work in dandy comedy of three man-hunting females pooling resources to trap eligible bachelors. Nunnally Johnson scripted and produced this remake of THE GREEKS HAD A WORD FOR THEM, which is preceded by Alfred Newman conducting his famed "Street Scene" theme (a prologue designed to show off stereophonic sound). CinemaScope.▼●

How to Murder Your Wife (1965) C-

118m. * D: Richard Quine. Jack Lemmon, Verna Lisi, Terry-Thomas, Eddie Mayehoff, Claire Trevor, Sidney Blackmer, Max Showalter, Jack Albertson, Mary Wickes. Engaging comedy that almost holds up to finale. Cartoonist Lemmon marries Lisi while drunk and spends rest of film devising ways to get rid of her. Mayehoff is standout as Lemmon's lawyer friend. ▼●●

How to Save a Marriage (And Ruin Your Life) (1968) C-108m. ½ D: Fielder Cook. Dean Martin, Stella Stevens, Eli Wallach, Anne Jackson, Betty Field, Jack Albertson. Typical 1960s sex farce has swinging bachelor Dino mistaking Stella for his best friend's mistress, with predictable complications. Stevens wasted again. Panavision. ●

How to Steal a Million (1966) C-127m.  D: William Wyler. Audrey Hepburn, Peter O'Toole, Charles Boyer, Eli Wallach, Hugh Griffith. Hepburn and O'Toole are a delightful match in this sophisticated comedy about a million-dollar theft in a Paris art museum. Boyer, O'Toole's boss, and Griffith, Hepburn's father, are equally good. Panavision. ▼●●

How to Stuff a Wild Bikini (1965) C-93m.  D: William Asher. Annette Funicello, Dwayne Hickman, Brian Donlevy, Buster Keaton, Mickey Rooney, Harvey Lembeck, Beverly Adams, Jody McCrea, John Ashley, Bobbi Shaw. The fatigue is palpable in this sixth BEACH PARTY movie, which tries out another new leading man (with Frankie Avalon again shunted to a cameo role). As usual, the veterans—especially Rooney—live things a little, but overall, pretty mediocre. Followed by GHOST IN THE INVISIBLE BIKINI. Panavision. ▼●

How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying (1967) C-121m. ½ D: David Swift. Robert Morse, Michele Lee, Rudy Vallee, Anthony Teague, Maureen Arthur, Sammy Smith, Robert Q. Lewis. Delightful musical from Broadway hit about ambitious window-washer (Morse) who uses wiles, and a handbook, to rise to prominence in Vallee's Worldwide Wicket Co. Superb farce, good Frank Loesser songs (including "Brotherhood of Man" and "I Believe in You"), imaginative staging of musical numbers by Bob Fosse. Panavision. ▼●●

How U Like Me Now (1992) C-109m.  D: Darryl Roberts. Darnell Williams, Salli Richardson, Raymond Whitfield, Daniel Gardner, Byron Stewart, Darryl Roberts, Charlene Brown. Likable comedy of middle and working-class African-American twenty-some-things in Chicago, with the focus on live-in lovers Williams and Richardson, whose relationship is at a crossroads. Refreshingly, none of the characters are stereotypical ghetto cartoons. [R] ▼●

Huckleberry Finn (1974) C-118m.  D: J. Lee Thompson. Jeff East, Paul Winfield, Harvey Korman, David Wayne, Arthur

O'Connell, Gary Merrill. Little of Mark Twain is left in this handsome but empty-headed musical version of his classic story. Score by Richard and Robert Sherman is as forgettable as their script. Panavision. [G] ▼●●

Hucksters, The (1947) 115m.  D: Jack Conway. Clark Gable, Deborah Kerr, Sydney Greenstreet, Adolphe Menjou, Ava Gardner, Keenan Wynn, Edward Arnold. Glossy dig at advertising and radio industries, with Gable battling for integrity among yes-men. Greenstreet memorable as despotic head of soap company; Kerr's first American movie. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Hud (1963) 112m. * D: Martin Ritt. Paul Newman, Patricia Neal, Melvyn Douglas, Brandon de Wilde, John Ashley. Excellent story of moral degradation set in modern West, with impeccable performances by all. Neal won Best Actress Oscar as family housekeeper who doesn't want to get involved with no-account Newman. Douglas received Best Supporting Oscar as Newman's ethical, uncompromising father, and James Wong Howe's cinematography also earned a statuette. Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank, Jr. scripted from Larry McMurtry's novel Horseman, Pass By. Panavision. ▼●●

Hudson Hawk (1991) C-95m.  D: Michael Lehmann. Bruce Willis, Danny Aiello, Andie MacDowell, James Coburn, Richard E. Grant, Sandra Bernhard, Donald Burton, Don Harvey, David Caruso, Andrew Bryniarski, Lorraine Toussaint, Frank Stallone, Leonardo Cimino. Wildly overblown vanity film (Willis cowrote the story and the title song) about a cat burglar, just sprung from prison, who's blackmailed into performing several daring art heists, including one from the Vatican! Blissfully incoherent, with some good action scenes, but nothing to hang them on except a steady stream of Willis wisecracks, only some of which are funny. [R] ▼●●

Hudson's Bay (1940) 95m. ½ D: Irving Pichel. Paul Muni, Gene Tierney, Laird Cregar, John Sutton, Virginia Field, Vincent Price, Nigel Bruce. Muni's good, but life of founder of Hudson Bay fur-trading company lacks punch. Expansive production. ▼●●

Hudsucker Proxy, The (1994) C-111m.  D: Joel Coen. Tim Robbins, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Paul Newman, Charles Durning, John Mahoney, Jim True, William Cobbs, Bruce Campbell, Joe Grifasi, Peter Gallagher, Noble Willingham, Steve Buscemi, Anna Nicole Smith, Jon Polito. A country bumpkin arrives in the Big City and becomes the unwitting pawn in a scheme to ruin a thriving corporation. The Coen brothers' most extravagant creation to date, an eye-popping '50s fantasy of big business gone berserk, with Robbins absolutely perfect as the wide-eyed patsy who miraculously rises to the top. Newman is a crafty villain, and Leigh is fun (if a bit one-note) as a fast-talking, Kate Hepburn-ish reporter. Written by Ethan and Joel Coen with Sam Raimi; the Coens rival Fellini in the selection of unusual faces to populate their films. [PG]▼●●

Hue and Cry (1946-British) 82m.  D: Charles Crichton. Alastair Sim, Jack Warner, Valerie White, Harry Fowler, Jack Lambert, Frederick Piper, Joan Dowling. Snappy romp as young Fowler suspects that details in the stories published in his favorite weekly pulp magazine are being used as a code by a gang of crooks. Nicely filmed on location on the streets of post-WW2 London. The first of many good Ealing comedies; written by T.E.B. Clarke. Released in the U.S. in 1950.▼

Hugo Pool (1997) C-94m.  D: Robert Downey. Alyssa Milano, Patrick Dempsey, Cathy Moriarty, Malcolm McDowell, Robert Downey, Jr., Richard Lewis, Sean Penn, Bert Remsen, Chuck Barris, Ann Magnuson. Strained whimsy about an L.A. pool cleaner (Milano) and her dealings with her dysfunctional parents and assorted oddball clients, one of whom—a man suffering from Lou Gehrig's disease—she falls in love with. Self-indulgent shaggy-dog farce comes off like an actors' improv exercise and varies wildly from deadpan absurdist comedy to mawkish sentimentality. Laura Downey (the director's wife) coscripted. [R]▼●●

Hugo the Hippo (1976) C-90m. ½ D: William Feigenbaum. Voices of Burl Ives, Marie and Jimmy Osmond, Robert Morley, Paul Lynde. OK children's cartoon musical about a youngster's attempt to save a hippo from extinction in ancient Zanzibar. [G]▼

Hulk (2003) C-138m. ½ D: Ang Lee. Eric Bana, Jennifer Connelly, Sam Elliott, Josh Lucas, Nick Nolte, Kevin Rankin, Celia Weston. Research scientist Bruce Banner represses painful childhood memories that eventually explode and turn him into The Hulk. Only his ex-girlfriend seems to understand his agony, while her father, a general with an age-old chip on his shoulder, wants to bring the big green guy down. Takes its time building character and story, then spoils it with cardboard villains, a heavy-handed KING KONG homage, and a climax where the Hulk bounces around like a video-game character. Even director Lee's ingenious comic-book graphic style wears out its welcome in this overlong, overly serious saga. Lou Ferrigno (TV's The Incredible Hulk) and Marvel's Stan Lee have an amusing cameo together. Based on the comic book created by Lee and Jack Kirby. See also THE INCREDIBLE HULK (2008). [PG-13]▼●

Hullabaloo Over Georgie and Bonnie's Pictures (1978-British) C-89m.  D: James Ivory. Peggy Ashcroft, Victor Banerjee, Larry Pine, Saeed Jaffrey, Aparna Sen, Jane Booker. Wry comedy about the purpose and significance of art, set in an Indian palace where various people (including a British aristocrat, wonderfully played by Ashcroft) are attempting to acquire several miniature paintings. Deftly scripted by Ruth Praver Jhabvala. Originally produced for British television.▼

Human Comedy, The (1943) 118m. ½ D: Clarence Brown. Mickey Rooney, Frank Morgan, Jackie "Butch" Jenkins, James Craig, Marsha Hunt, Fay Bainter, Ray Collins, Darryl Hickman, Donna Reed, Van Johnson. Memorable Americana, faithfully adapted from William Saroyan's sentimental Oscar-winning story of life in a small town during WW2. Unfolds like a novel, with many lovely vignettes, and one of Rooney's best performances as a teenager with growing responsibilities. Screenplay by Howard Estabrook. P.S.: Keep an eye out for those three soldiers on leave: Barry Nelson, Don DeFore, and Robert Mitchum! Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●

Human Desire (1954) 90m. ½ D: Fritz Lang. Glenn Ford, Gloria Grahame, Broderick Crawford, Edgar Buchanan, Kathleen Case, Diana DeLaire. Lang's follow-up to THE BIG HEAT is a well-directed but muddled account of railroad engineer Ford, just back from Korea, who becomes mixed up with married Grahame and murder. Based on Zola's La Bête Humaine, filmed in 1938 in France by Jean Renoir.▼

Human Duplicators, The (1965) C-82m.  D: Hugo Grimaldi. George Nader, Barbara Nichols, Richard Kiel, George Macready, Dolores Faith, Hugh Beaumont, Richard Arlen. An alien giant paves the way for a major invasion by duplicating people—but then falls in love. Some imagination here, but low-budget production sinks it.▼●

Human Experiments (1980) C-82m. *½ D: Gregory Goodell. Linda Haynes, Geoffrey Lewis, Ellen Travolta, Aldo Ray, Jackie Coogan, Darlene Craviotto. As the title says . . . [R]▼

Human Factor, The (1975-British-Italian) C-96m. *½ D: Edward Dmytryk. George Kennedy, John Mills, Raf Vallone, Rita Tushingham, Barry Sullivan, Arthur Franz. Violent, bloody chronicle of Kennedy tracking down the killers of his family. Decent cast wasted. [R]▼●

Human Factor, The (1979) C-115m.  D: Otto Preminger. Nicol Williamson, Iman, Derek Jacobi, Richard Attenborough, Robert Morley, Ann Todd, John Gielgud. Dry, unexciting filmization of Graham Greene's spy novel about a British double agent (Williamson) who's forced to defect to Russia. Top cast, script by Tom Stoppard, but results are mediocre. Preminger's final film. [R]▼

Human Gorilla, The SEE: Behind Locked Doors

Human Highway (1982) C-88m. *½ D:

Bernard Shakey (Neil Young), Dean Stockwell, Neil Young, Russ Tamblyn, Dennis Hopper, Sally Kirkland, Dean Stockwell, Charlotte Stewart, Devo. Young and Tamblyn run a gas station in the middle of nowhere in this wacked-out, anti-nuke comedy. Notable for footage of Young in concert plus rock group Devo performing with a red, radioactive glow about them (caused by the nuclear power plant in the vicinity). ▼●

Humanité (2000-French) C-148m.  D: Bruno Dumont. Emmanuel Schotté, Séverine Canele, Philippe Tullier, Ghislain Ghesquière, Ginette Allègre. Morose police superintendent (Schotté) with a troubled past investigates the rape and murder of an 11-year-old girl in a rural French town. Slow but never boring, and more a character study than a mystery or crime drama; a potent portrait of loneliness and depravity in a quietly ugly world. Written by the director. Hawk-Scope. ▼

Human Jungle, The (1954) 82m. ½ D: Joseph M. Newman. Gary Merrill, Jan Sterling, Paula Raymond, Emile Meyer, Regis Toomey, Chuck Connors, Lamont Johnson, Claude Akins. Documentary-style account of a typical day at a busy police precinct house; nicely done.

Human Monster, The (1939-British) 73m.  D: Walter Summers. Bela Lugosi, Hugh Williams, Greta Gynt, Edmon Ryan, Wilfred Walter. Absurd, sometimes engaging Edgar Wallace tale of evil Lugosi using blind men as pawns in elaborate murder scheme. Original British title: DARK EYES OF LONDON. Remade in West Germany as DEAD EYES OF LONDON. ▼●●

Human Nature (2001-French-U.S.) C-96m. ½ D: Michel Gondry. Tim Robbins, Patricia Arquette, Rhys Ifans, Miranda Otto, Rosie Perez, Robert Forster, Mary Kay Place, Miguel Sandoval, Paul Giamatti, Hilary Duff. Loopy film from Charlie Kaufman, who wrote BEING JOHN MALKOVICH, about a tunnel-visioned research scientist (Robbins) who hooks up with a woman just back from the wild (where she had moved because of embarrassment over her hairy body) to attempt to civilize a man-beast (Ifans). Too laid back, but engagingly silly and unpredictable. [R] ▼

Humanoids from the Deep (1980) C-80m.  D: Barbara Peeters. Doug McClure, Ann Turkel, Vic Morrow, Cindy Weintraub, Anthony Peña, Denise Galik. Mutated salmon monsters with penchant for bikinied beachgoers commit rape and other (graphic) mayhem in small oceanside town. Fast, occasionally hilarious gutter trash from the Roger Corman stable. The finale is not for squeamish viewers. Remade in 1996 for TV. [R] ▼●● class-struggle drama about a business-school student who becomes a trainee at the factory where his father works, only to find that he has to fire him. Cantet achieves a seamless Ken Loach-style social realism. Cast of nonprofessionals—except for boyishly handsome lead Lespert—is impressive. ●

Human Resources (2000-French) C-100m.  D: Laurent Cantet. Jalil Lespert, Jean-Claude Vallod, Chantal Barré, Véronique de Padelàère, Michel Begnez. Engrossing

Human Stain, The (2003) C-105m. ½ D: Robert Benton. Anthony Hopkins, Nicole Kidman, Ed Harris, Gary Sinise, Wentworth Miller, Jacinda Barrett, Harry Lennix, Clark Gregg, Anna Deavere Smith, Lizan Mitchell, Phyllis Newman, Margo Martindale, Mili Avital, Mimi Kuzyk. Moving, intelligent adaptation (by Nicholas Meyer) of Philip Roth's novel about a distinguished college professor whose life is shattered by a chance remark. As he reveals more about himself to a newfound friend (Sinise), we learn that he has been living a lie for most of his adult life. His chance for rebirth and redemption comes through an unlikely affair with a working-class woman much younger than he. Rich in nuance, filled with pitch-perfect performances, and beautifully shot by the late Jean Yves Escoffier. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Human Traffic (1999-British) C-86m.  D: Justin Kerrigan. John Simm, Lorraine Pilkington, Shaun Parkes, Nicola Reynolds, Danny Dyer, Dean Davies. Deeply unoriginal Gen X fare about five Welsh twentysomethings stuck in dead-end jobs; they work for the weekend, when life becomes one big Ecstasy-drenched, debauched rave. Meant to be adrenaline-pumped, nihilistic, TRAINSPOTTING meets Tarantino, but it's way too desperate to be rebel cool. [R] ▼●

Humboldt County (2008) C-96m.  D: Darren Grodsky, Danny Jacobs. Jeremy Strong, Fairuza Balk, Peter Bogdanovich, Brad Dourif, Frances Conroy, Madison Davenport, Chris Messina. Abandoned by his flaky one-night stand, an uptight medical school student (Strong) finds himself among unreconstructed hippies and second-generation fringe dwellers who farm marijuana in the "Lost Coast" region of Northern California. There's a distinctively '70s flavor to this easygoing and ingratiating indie, a character-driven comedy-drama with standout performances by Dourif and Conroy as laid-back leaders of the counterculture community. Written by the directors, who also appear as Bob and Steve. [R] ●

Humongous (1981-Canadian) C-93m. *½ D: Paul Lynch. Janet Julian, David Wallace, Janit Baldwin, John Wildman, Joy Boushel, Layne Coleman. Slow-moving horror film opens with brutal rape and follows with every cliché in the book. A group of youths who wreck their boat on a small island are picked off one at a time by a raving man-beast. Most of the action occurs in com-

Humoresque (1946) 125m. ½ D: Jean Negulesco. Joan Crawford, John Garfield, Oscar Levant, J. Carrol Naish, Craig Stevens, Tom D'Andrea, Peggy Knudsen, Paul Cavanagh. Ambitious violinist Garfield gets involved with wealthy, unstable patroness Crawford. No cardboard soap opera this; superb performances, handsome production, hilarious support from Levant, and a knockout finale. Perhaps Crawford's finest hour. Young Robert Blake plays Garfield as a child, and that's Isaac Stern's violin on the soundtrack. Filmed before in 1920.▼●●

Hunchback of Notre Dame, The (1923) 117m.  D: Wallace Worsley. Lon Chaney, Patsy Ruth Miller, Ernest Torrence, Tully Marshall, Norman Kerry. Lavish filming of Hugo classic, capturing flair of medieval Paris and strange attraction of outcast Chaney for dancing girl (Miller). Silent classic holds up well, with Chaney's makeup still incredible. Various prints survive with different running times.▼●●

Hunchback of Notre Dame, The (1939) 115m. ½ D: William Dieterle. Charles Laughton, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Thomas Mitchell, Maureen O'Hara, Edmund O'Brien, Alan Marshal, Walter Hampden, Harry Davenport, George Zucco, Curt Bois, George Tobias, Rod La Rocque. Superb remake of Lon Chaney silent is even better than the original. Laughton, as Victor Hugo's misshapen bell-ringer Quasimodo, is haunting and unforgettable. Magnificently atmospheric studio recreation of 15th-century Paris also a big plus. Film debut of O'Brien and U.S. debut of O'Hara. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Hunchback of Notre Dame, The (1957-French) C-104m. ½ D: Jean Delannoy. Gina Lollobrigida, Anthony Quinn, Jean Danet, Alain Cuny. Quinn makes a valiant try in lead, but film misses scope and flavor of Hugo novel. CinemaScope.▼●●

Hunchback of Notre Dame, The (1996) C-85m.  D: Gary Trousdale, Kirk Wise. Voices of Tom Hulce, Demi Moore, Kevin Kline, Tony Jay, Jason Alexander, Heidi Mollenhauer, Paul Kandel, Charles Kimbrough, Mary Wickes, Jane Withers, David Ogden Stiers. Intensely dramatic, involving story about the pathetic, put-upon Quasimodo, his evil guardian Frollo, and the one person who shows him kindness, the gypsy Esmeralda. Disney's all-time strangest choice for an animated feature turns out surprisingly well: handsomely designed, dynamically staged, with songs that (if unmemorable) work within the fabric of the story; comic relief, however, involving Quasi's three gargoyles, seems contrived. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [G]▼●●

Hunger, The (1983) C-97m. *½ D: Tony Scott. Catherine Deneuve, David Bowie,

Susan Sarandon, Cliff DeYoung, Beth Ehlers, Dan Hedaya. Kinky trash masquerading as a horror film, with Deneuve as a vampire who needs fresh blood to survive. Bowie's quite good as Deneuve's companion—with an aging scene that's the film's highlight. As for the rest, beware, unless seeing Deneuve and Sarandon in bed together is your idea of a good time. Look for Ann Magnuson and Willem Dafoe in small roles. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Hunger (2008-British-Irish) C-96m. ½ D: Steve McQueen. Michael Fassbender, Liam Cunningham, Stuart Graham, Brian Milligan, Liam McMahon. Raw, riveting, minimalist account of jailed Irish Republican Army members who are horrifically abused by their British jailors. Based on the events surrounding the 1981 Maze Prison hunger strike, during which various IRA detainees, including Bobby Sands (played here by Fassbender), starved themselves to death. Not for the faint of heart. Super 35.

Hunk (1987) C-102m.  D: Lawrence Bassoff. John Allen Nelson, Steve Levitt, Deborah Shelton, Rebecca Bush, James Coco, Robert Morse, Avery Schreiber. Youthful nerd sells his soul to become a California hunk—but still has to deal with the Devil (Coco) and his beautiful emissary (Shelton). Silly stuff benefits from an attractive and colorful cast. [PG]▼●●

Hunted (1952) SEE: Stranger in Between

Hunted, The (1995) C-118m. *½ D: J. F. Lawton. Christopher Lambert, John Lone, Joan Chen, Yoshio Harada, Yoko Shimada. N.Y. businessman is chased by masked ninja assassins who actively conceal their identities, which at least puts them one-up on some of their fellow cast members. Slicing and dicing via DTS sound technology suggests an episode of The Montel Williams Show gone terribly wrong: titles of bona fide Japanese classics indicate what it's like sitting through this: GATE OF HELL, STREET OF SHAME and—in Lambert's case—AN ACTOR'S REVENGE. [R]▼●●

Hunted, The (2003) C-94m.  D: William Friedkin. Tommy Lee Jones, Benicio Del Toro, Connie Nielsen, Leslie Stefanson, John Finn, Jose Zuniga, Ron Canada, Lonny Chapman, Rex Linn. When a soldier (Del Toro) is suspected in a series of brutal murders, the FBI calls on the man (Jones) who helped train him as part of an elite corps of killers in Kosovo. Solid action/suspense yarn with breathtaking hand-to-hand combat scenes and kinetic camerawork (by Caleb Deschanel). Jones and Del Toro apparently did much of their own physical action—and it shows. [R]▼●●

Hunter, The (1980) C-97m. BOMB D: Buzz Kulik. Steve McQueen, Eli Wallach, Kathryn Harrold, LeVar Burton, Ben Johnson. Incomprehensible bio of real-life

Hunters, The (1958) C-108m. ½ D: Dick Powell. Robert Mitchum, Robert Wagner, Richard Egan, Mai Britt, Lee Phillips. Veteran pilot falls for wife of younger flyer—who crashes behind enemy lines. Fair of its type. CinemaScope. ▼●

Hunt for Red October, The (1990) C-135m. ½ D: John McTiernan. Sean Connery, Alec Baldwin, Scott Glenn, Sam Neill, James Earl Jones, Joss Ackland, Richard Jordan, Peter Firth, Tim Curry, Courtney B. Vance, Jeffrey Jones, Fred Dalton Thompson, Timothy Carhart. Exciting, complex thriller from the best-seller by Tom Clancy. Connery stars as a Soviet submarine captain who may (or may not) be planning to defect to the U.S. during the maiden voyage of a supersecret nuclear sub; Baldwin is the American intelligence ace who tries to anticipate his every move. Long, potentially confusing at times, but always manages to make a course correction in the nick of time . . . and deliver another direct hit. Oscar winner for sound-effects editing. Followed by PATRIOT GAMES. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Hunting (1990-Australian) C-97m.  D: Frank Howson. John Savage, Kerry Armstrong, Guy Pearce, Jeffrey Thomas, Rebecca Rigg, Rhys McConnochie. Ambitious but overwrought exercise in style, about beautiful but deeply troubled secretary Armstrong, who forsakes her self-pitying husband, and becomes involved with all-powerful (and predictably evil, hypocritical) empire-builder Savage. Panavision. [R]▼

Hunting Party, The (1971) C-108m. BOMB D: Don Medford. Oliver Reed, Candice Bergen, Gene Hackman, Simon Oakland, L. Q. Jones, Ronald Howard, G. D. Spradlin. When his wife is kidnapped and raped by Reed and his gang, Hackman sets out to kill them one by one. Fine cast wasted in repellently violent Western that adds nothing new to tired plot, unless you count the bordello-equipped train. [R]●

Hunting Party, The (2007) C-103m. ½ D: Richard Shepard. Richard Gere, Terrence Howard, Jesse Eisenberg, James Brolin, Ljubomir Kerekeš, Kristina Krepela, Diane Kruger, Joy Bryant, Dylan Baker. TV producer Howard returns to Bosnia 5 years after the end of the war that he covered as a cameraman with daredevil reporter Gere. Reluctant at first, he allows himself (and tyro newsman Eisenberg) to be talked into joining a now-disgraced Gere on a wild scheme to flush out the world's most wanted war criminal, who's still at large in the Balkans. Gripping, forceful storytelling, dotted with absurdly funny moments; rings true (and is based on real-life journalist

hurlyburly (1998) C-122m.  D: Anthony Drazan. Sean Penn, Kevin Spacey, Robin Wright Penn, Chazz Palminteri, Garry Shandling, Anna Paquin, Meg Ryan. A seamy slice of life about a circle of L.A. friends—self-absorbed, smart-assy, driven, drug-infused people desperately looking for happiness in all the wrong places. David Rabe adapted his much-admired 1984 play, but it loses something in the transition to film, becoming more realistic and less funny despite a powerhouse cast. [R]▼●●

Hurricane, The (1937) 102m. ½ D: John Ford. Dorothy Lamour, Jon Hall, Mary Astor, C. Aubrey Smith, Raymond Massey, Thomas Mitchell, John Carradine, Jerome Cowan. First-rate escapism on isle of Manikooora, where idyllic native life of Hall and Lamour is disrupted by vindictive governor Massey. Climactic hurricane effects have never been equaled. Lovely score by Alfred Newman. Screenplay by Dudley Nichols and Oliver H. P. Garrett, from the novel by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall. Remade in 1979. ▼●●

Hurricane, The (1999) C-125m. ½ D: Norman Jewison. Denzel Washington, Vicesellous Reon Shannon, Deborah Kara Unger, Liev Schreiber, John Hannah, Debbi Morgan, Dan Hedaya, Clancy Brown, Harris Yulin, David Paymer, Rod Steiger. Washington's powerful performance as wrongly imprisoned prizefighter Rubin "Hurricane" Carter makes this otherwise conventional drama worth seeing. Shannon plays a ghetto teenager who reads Carter's autobiography and determines to find a way to set him free. The boy's Canadian guardians are ill-defined characters and weaken the story, along with heavy-handed portrayals of Carter's victimizers. [R]▼●●

Hurricane Streets (1998) C-88m.  D: Morgan J. Freeman. Brendan Sexton III, Shawn Elliott, Isidra Vega, David Roland Frank, L. M. "Kit" Carson, Heather Matarazzo, Edie Falco. Moving drama of adolescents whose underlying decency is put to the test in a world of petty thievery in N.Y.C.'s East Village. Realistic, unsentimental acting highlights this excellent first feature from writer-director Freeman (not to be confused with the actor), who puts both angst and hope into his story. [R]▼●●

Hurry Sundown (1967) C-142m.  D: Otto Preminger. Michael Caine, Jane Fonda, John Phillip Law, Diahann Carroll, Robert Hooks, Faye Dunaway, Burgess Meredith, Robert Reed, George Kennedy, Frank Converse, Loring Smith, Beah Richards, Madeleine Sherwood, Rex Ingram, Jim Backus. Often ludicrous, overripe melodrama with ruthless Southerner Caine determined to buy up cousin's land, stopping at nothing to achieve goal. A curio for Fonda and Caine's offbeat casting, not to mention Horton Foote as one of the scripters. Jane's saxophone "solo," though, is worth checking out. Panavision.

Husbands (1970) C-138m. ½ D: John Cassavetes. Ben Gazzara, Peter Falk, John Cassavetes, Jenny Runacre, Jenny Lee Wright, Noelle Kao. Cassavetes' follow-up to FACES is not nearly as good; story deals with trio of middle-aged buddies who take off for Europe when their best friend dies. Some good scenes, but plagued by Cassavetes' habitual self-indulgence. Originally released at 154m. [PG]▼

Husbands and Wives (1992) C-107m. ½ D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, Blythe Danner, Judy Davis, Mia Farrow, Juliette Lewis, Liam Neeson, Sydney Pollack, Lysette Anthony, Cristi Conaway, Timothy Jerome, Ron Rifkin, Jerry Zaks, Bruce Jay Friedman, Benno Schmidt, Caroline Aaron, Nora Ephron. Long-married couple startles their best friends by announcing they're going to split up; meanwhile, the friends start to stray themselves. Perceptive, witty, knowing script by Allen is brilliantly performed (especially by Davis and Pollack), though Woody and Mia's headline-making scandal at the time of the film's release made it difficult not to grimace at some pointed dialogue. Only negative note: amateurish hand-held camera and jumpcuts are jarring and distracting. [R]▼●●

Hush (1998) C-97m. *½ D: Jonathan Darby. Jessica Lange, Gwyneth Paltrow, Johnathon Schaech, Nina Foch, Debi Mazar, David Thornton, Hal Holbrook. Paltrow and wealthy boyfriend Schaech are manipulated by his neurotic horse-rancher mother (Lange). Viewers could read a novel while watching this "thriller" and still not miss anything. Lange appears to believe she's doing Blanche Dubois all over again. [PG-13]▼●●

Hush ... Hush, Sweet Charlotte (1964) 133m.  D: Robert Aldrich. Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Joseph Cotten, Agnes Moorehead, Cecil Kellaway, Victor Buono, Mary Astor, Bruce Dern. Macabre story of a family with a skeleton in its closet, confusing at times but worth watching for its cast. Bette is Olivia's victimized cousin; Cotten is Olivia's boyfriend.▼●●

Hussy (1980-British) C-95m. *½ D: Matthew Chapman. Helen Mirren, John Shea, Murray Salem, Paul Angelis, Jenny Runacre. Muddled, poorly directed melodrama centering on hooker Mirren, boyfriend Shea, and illicit drugs. [R]▼●

Hustle (1975) C-120m. BOMB D: Robert

Aldrich. Burt Reynolds, Catherine Deneuve, Ben Johnson, Paul Winfield, Eileen Brennan, Eddie Albert, Ernest Borgnine, Jack Carter, Catherine Bach. Pretentious, foul-mouthed, foul-minded story about an L.A. cop and a high-class call-girl who dream of escaping from their gritty life but never make it. This one's the pits. [R]▼●

Hustle & Flow (2005) C-115m.  D: Craig Brewer. Terrence Howard, Taryn Manning, Anthony Anderson, Taraji P. Henson, Paula Jai Parker, Elise Neal, DJ Qualls, Isaac Hayes, Ludacris (Chris Bridges). Potent drama about a small-time pimp in Memphis who, frustrated with his dead-end life, pursues his improbable dream to become a rap star. Despite the squalid setting and dialogue, this is a surprisingly old-fashioned (even corny) movie at times. First-time director Brewer lets his script and talented actors put it across without resorting to flashy editing techniques. Howard has a commanding presence from the film's opening monologue to the final shot. Oscar winner for Best Song, "It's Hard Out Here for a Pimp." [R]●

Hustler, The (1961) 135m. * D: Robert Rossen. Paul Newman, Jackie Gleason, Piper Laurie, George C. Scott, Myron McCormick, Murray Hamilton, Michael Constantine, Jake LaMotta, Vincent Gardenia. Newman is outstanding as disenchanted drifter and pool hustler who challenges legendary Minnesota Fats (Gleason). Dinky pool-hall atmosphere vividly realized in this incisive film. Cinematographer Eugen Shuftan won an Oscar. Walter Tevis novel adapted by Sidney Carroll and director Rossen. Followed years later by THE COLOR OF MONEY. CinemaScope.▼●●

Hysteria (1965-British) 85m. ½ D: Freddie Francis. Robert Webber, Anthony Newlands, Jennifer Jayne, Maurice Denham, Lelia Goldoni, Peter Woodthorpe, Sandra Boize. After a car accident, an amnesiac Yank in London finds himself entangled in a complex murder plot that may or may not be a figment of his imagination. Twisty, reasonably intriguing Hammer thriller starts out promisingly, but gets bogged down.▼

Hysterical (1983) C-87m. BOMB D: Chris Bearde. William, Mark and Brett Hudson, Cindy Pickett, Richard Kiel, Julie Newmar, Bud Cort, Robert Donner, Murray Hamilton, Clint Walker, Franklin Ajaye, Charlie Callas, Keenan Wynn, Gary Owens. Lame parody of AMITYVILLE/EXORCIST type pictures; the start and finish of the Hudsons' screen career. [PG]▼●●

I Accuse! (1958-British) 99m. ½ D: Jose Ferrer. Jose Ferrer, Anton Walbrook, Emlyn Williams, Viveca Lindfors, David Farrar, Leo Genn, Herbert Lom, Harry

Andrews, Felix Aylmer, George Coulouris, Donald Wolfitt. Sincere but pretentious treatment of the treason trial of Alfred Dreyfus (Ferrer), with Williams as his defender, Emile Zola. Screenplay by Gore Vidal. CinemaScope.

I Aim at the Stars (1960) 107m.  D: J. Lee Thompson. Curt Jurgens, Victoria Shaw, Herbert Lom, Gia Scala. Low-key fictional history of Nazi missile scientist Wernher von Braun and his problems adjusting to life in America.

I Am a Camera (1955-British) 98m. ½ D: Henry Cornelius. Julie Harris, Laurence Harvey, Shelley Winters, Ron Randell, Anton Diffring, Patrick McGouhan, Peter Prowse. Intelligent adaptation of John van Druten's play (based on Christopher Isherwood stories) about prewar Berlin, with Harris a delight as a fun-loving young woman who'll accept anything from anyone. Screenplay by John Collier. Basis of Broadway musical and film CABARET. ▼

I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang (1932) 93m. * D: Mervyn LeRoy. Paul Muni, Glenda Farrell, Helen Vinson, Preston Foster, Edward Ellis, Allen Jenkins. Still packs a wallop after all these years, with Muni as innocent man brutally victimized by criminal justice system. Haunting finale is justly famous. Scripted by Sheridan Gibney and Brown Holmes, from Robert E. Burns' autobiographical story. Burns' plight is also dramatized in the made for cable TVM THE MAN WHO BROKE 1,000 CHAINS. ▼●●

I Am Cuba (1964-Russian-Cuban) 141m. ½ D: Mikhail Kalatozov. Sergio Corrieri, Salvador Vud, Jose Gallardo, Raul Garcia. Luz Maria Collazo, Jean Bouise. Sweeping, eye-popping ode to Cuba and the Castro revolution. Vignettes idealize hard-working but exploited peasants and Castro's staunch, freedom-loving revolutionaries, depicting Americans as decadent, sexist swine. And the images are consistently dazzling; the film demands to be seen and savored by any lover of pure cinema. Scripted by Yevgeny Yevtushenko and Enrique Pineda Barnet; released in the U.S. in 1995. ▼●●

I Am David (2004) C-95m.  D: Paul Feig. Ben Tibber, Joan Plowright, Jim Caviezel, Marie Bonnevie, Viola Carinci, Silvia De Santis. In 1952, a young boy escapes from a Bulgarian labor camp and has to make his way through Italy and Switzerland to Denmark, and safety. The only life he's ever known is one of brutality, so he's easily rattled—and confused—during his journey. Genuinely moving story avoids cheap sentimentality and earns our emotional involvement, with a remarkable performance by young Tibber. Impressive feature directing debut for Feig, who adapted Anne Holm's novel. [PG] ▼●

I Am Legend (2007) C-101m. ½ D: Francis Lawrence. Will Smith, Alice Braga,

Charlie Tahan, Salli Richardson, Willow Smith, Darrell Foster, Dash Mihok. In the year 2012, scientist Smith is apparently the world's only human survivor, alone on the island of Manhattan, following a horrifying plague spread by the use of a chemical that was supposed to cure cancer. The only thing that keeps him going is his blind determination to find an antidote to the virus before he's destroyed by rampaging mutants. Third screen version of Richard Matheson's novel (following THE LAST MAN ON EARTH and THE OMEGA MAN) benefits from Smith's charisma and physicality but falls back on horror clichés when it comes to the zombies. Emma Thompson appears unbilled. Alternate version runs 107m. Panavision. [PG-13] ●

i am sam (2001) C-132m. ½ D: Jessie Nelson. Sean Penn, Michelle Pfeiffer, Diane Wiest, Dakota Fanning, Richard Schiff, Loretta Devine, Doug Hutchison, Laura Dern, Stanley DeSantis, Rosalind Chao, Mary Steenburgen, Brent Spiner. A sweet, mentally retarded man becomes a father, but his devotion to his loving daughter runs aground when she reaches the age of seven and a social services agency insists he isn't capable of raising her anymore. Then he finds an unlikely ally: a high-powered, self-absorbed attorney whose own life is a mess. Fine entertainment, with a great performance by Penn and equally good work by Pfeiffer and adorable young Fanning. Penn's fixation on the Beatles is reflected in a terrific soundtrack, with cover versions of their classic songs. [PG-13] ▼●

I Am the Cheese (1983) C-95m. ½ D: Robert Jiras. Robert MacNaughton, Hope Lange, Don Murray, Robert Wagner, Cynthia Nixon, Lee Richardson, John Fiedler, Studie Bond. Paper-thin but occasionally appealing tale of alienated teenager who has witnessed his parents' death, and his fantasies while under psychiatric care. From Robert Cormier's novel. Remade as LAPSE OF MEMORY. [PG] ▼●

I Am the Law (1938) 83m. ½ D: Alexander Hall. Edward G. Robinson, Otto Kruger, Wendy Barrie, John Beal, Louis Jean Heydt, Fay Helm, Barbara O'Neil. No surprises in this story of D.A. Robinson fighting corrupt city government, but it's done so smoothly you forget you've seen it before. Don't miss E.G. dancing the Big Apple at the beginning. ▼●

I Became a Criminal SEE: They Made Me a Fugitive

I Can Get It for You Wholesale (1951) 90m.  D: Michael Gordon. Susan Hayward, Dan Dailey, Sam Jaffe, George Sanders, Randy Stuart, Marvin Kaplan, Harry Von Zell. Hayward is aced as a model-turned dress designer determined to make it in N.Y.C.'s garment industry. Jerome Weidman's flavorful novel was adapted by Vera Caspary and scripted by Abraham Polonsky. Aka: ONLY THE BEST.

I Capture the Castle (2003-British) C-113m.  D: Tim Fywell. Romola Garai, Rose Byrne, Henry Thomas, Marc Blucas, Bill Nighy, Tara Fitzgerald, Sinéad Cusack, Henry Cavill. In the mid-1930s, a wildly eccentric family living in a drafty old castle in the English countryside is changed by the arrival of two wealthy American brothers. Intelligent, involving comedy-drama from the novel by Dodie Smith (of One Hundred and One Dalmatians fame). Beautifully photographed (by Richard Greatrex) and interesting throughout, but just a shade smug. Super 35. [R]▼

Ice Age (2002) C-81m.  D: Chris Wedge. Voices of Ray Romano, John Leguizamo, Denis Leary, Goran Visnjic, Jack Black, Tara Strong, Cedric the Entertainer, Stephen Root, Jane Krakowski. Funny, imaginative computer-animated feature that's sort of a prehistoric THREE GODFATHERS, with a woolly mammoth and a loopy sloth named Sid trying to return a human baby to its tribe. They're joined by a saber-toothed tiger whose motives aren't so altruistic. Distinctively designed, with humor geared for young and old alike. Leguizamo's vocal performance as Sid is a riot. Wonderful score by David Newman. Followed by a sequel. [PG]▼

Ice Age: The Meltdown (2006) C-90m. ½ D: Carlos Saldanha. Voices of Ray Romano, John Leguizamo, Denis Leary, Queen Latifah, Seann William Scott, Josh Peck, Will Arnett, Jay Leno, Stephen Root, Renee Taylor, Joseph Bologna. In this sequel, our heroes learn that the ice around them is melting and they'd better move or be flooded out. Along the way, Manny, fearful that he's the last of his species, encounters a fetching female woolly mammoth who thinks she's a possum! CG-animated family fare lacks the freshness of the original (and makes Diego the sabertooth tiger rather toothless), but it's enjoyable enough. The misadventures of Scrat, the hapless rodent from the first film, punctuate this story. [PG]▼

Ice Castles (1979) C-109m.  D: Donald Wrye. Lynn-Holly Johnson, Robby Benson, Colleen Dewhurst, Tom Skerritt, Jennifer Warren, David Huffman. Successful ice skating career of Iowa farm girl is interrupted after she is blinded in freak accident. Tops for the disease/affliction genre, with well-photographed skating sequences and good performances by all. [PG]▼

Ice Follies of 1939, The (1939) 93m.  D: Reinhold Schunzel. Joan Crawford, James Stewart, Lew Ayres, Lewis Stone, Bess Ehrhardt, Lionel Stander, Roy Shipstad, Eddie Shipstad, Oscar Johnson. Stewart and Ayres are skating partners who split after Jimmy marries Joan; rather than risk hurting their act and getting in the way of Jimmy's dream to start a musical ice revue, she goes off on her own and becomes a movie star overnight! Strange pastiche obviously concocted by MGM to showcase Shipstad and Johnson's Ice Follies show—complete with a (boring) Technicolor finale. ●

Ice Harvest, The (2005) C-88m.  D: Harold Ramis. John Cusack, Billy Bob Thornton, Connie Nielsen, Oliver Platt, Randy Quaid, Mike Starr, T. J. Jagodowski. A recounting of how a "perfect" crime goes awry one Christmas Eve introduces us to a variety of lowlifes in Wichita, Kansas, including lawyer Cusack and porn purveyor Thornton, who've been skimming money from their boss. Mostly unfunny black comedy must have worked better on the pages of Scott Phillips' novel, adapted by the film's coexecutive producers, Richard Russo and Robert Benton. [R]▼

Iceman (1984) C-99m. ½ D: Fred Schepisi. Timothy Hutton, Lindsay Crouse, John Lone, Josef Sommer, David Strathairn, Danny Glover, James Tolkan. A Neanderthal man is found frozen in ice. Scientists manage to bring him back to life, but only Hutton is interested in him as a human being and not a lab specimen. Fascinating, credible science fiction made all the more involving by Schepisi's fine direction. Haunting score by Bruce Smeaton; remarkable performance as the caveman by Lone. Story by John Drimmer; scripted by Chip Proser and Drimmer. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Iceman Cometh, The (1973) C-178m. ½ D: John Frankenheimer. Lee Marvin, Fredric March, Robert Ryan, Jeff Bridges, Martyn Green, Moses Gunn, Bradford Dillman, Evans Evans. Remarkably successful film of Eugene O'Neill's play about assorted barflies in a 1912 saloon; Marvin's Hickey is only adequate, but Ryan dominates an outstanding supporting cast. An American Film Theatre production. First shown at 239m. This was March's last film. [PG]▼

Ice Palace (1960) C-143m. ½ D: Vincent Sherman. Richard Burton, Robert Ryan, Carolyn Jones, Martha Hyer, Jim Backus, Ray Danton, Shirley Knight, Diane McBain, Karl Swenson, George Takei. Typically sprawling (and silly) Edna Ferber saga of two men whose friendship turns to bitter rivalry, and whose lives parallel the development of Alaska. Watchable, to be sure, but hokey from start to finish.▼

Ice Pirates, The (1984) C-91m.  D: Stewart Raffill. Robert Urich, Mary Crosby, Michael D. Roberts, John Matuszak, Anjelica Huston, Ron Perlman, John Carradine, Robert Symonds. Spoofy blend of space opera and swashbuckler, set in an arid future where water has become the most precious of commodities. Script vacillates between clever and half-baked; claustrophobic direction keeps this from being more than passable rainy-afternoon fare. [PG]▼●●

Ice Princess (2005) C-92m.  D: Tim Fywell. Joan Cusack, Kim Cattrall, Michelle Trachtenberg, Hayden Panettiere, Trevor Blumas, Connie Ray, Kirsten Olson, Juliana Cannarozzo, Jocelyn Lai. High school science whiz applies her intellectual curiosity to a study of ice skating and unexpectedly becomes a competitive skater, to the chagrin of her mom, a feminist teacher who has no respect for the sport. Entertaining film for young audiences realistically portrays teenage life, parental pressures, the harsh reality of competition, and the exhilaration of pursuing something you love. Real-life Olympic skating champs Michelle Kwan and Brian Boitano appear as themselves. [G]▼●

Ice Rink, The (1999-French-Belgian-Italian) C-77m.  D: Jean-Philippe Toussaint. Tom Novembre, Mireille Perrier, Bruce Campbell, Dolores Chaplin, Marie-France Pisier, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Gilbert Melki, Dominique Derudder. Cineastes will savor this witty, allegorical film about the making of a movie, completely set in the title locale. Cast includes a sultry French leading lady (Chaplin, granddaughter of Charlie), a Hollywood action-hero leading man, and Lithuanian hockey players; the filmmaking process is amusingly portrayed as organized chaos. ▮

Ice Station Zebra (1968) C-148m. ½ D: John Sturges. Rock Hudson, Ernest Borgnine, Patrick McGouhan, Jim Brown, Tony Bill, Lloyd Nolan. Standard Cold War nail-biter with all-male cast has Hudson a sub commander sailing for North Pole to await orders, not knowing that Cold War incident will ensue; McGouhan a British agent out to trap a Russian spy. Based on the Alistair MacLean novel; originally in Cinerama. Infamous as Howard Hughes' favorite movie! Super Panavision 70. [G]▼●●

Ice Storm, The (1997) C-113m. ½ D: Ang Lee. Kevin Kline, Joan Allen, Sigourney Weaver, Christina Ricci, Elijah Wood, Henry Czerny, Adam Hann-Byrd, Tobey Maguire, Jamey Sheridan, Kate Burton, Larry Pine, Katie Holmes, Allison Janney. Icy adaptation of Rick Moody's much-praised novel about a real-life ice storm in 1973 and how it parallels activities in upscale New Canaan, Connecticut. A sober and absorbing chronicle of sexuality—repressed and unleashed—in '70s suburbia (love those clothes!), but also somewhat clinical and off-putting, until the heartrending finale. A film one can admire without actually enjoying. [PG-13]▼●●

Ice Thief, The (1989-Italian) C-85m. ½ D: Maurizio Nichetti. Maurizio Nichetti, Caterina Sylos Labini, Heidi Komarek, Renato Scarpa. Ingenious satire of contemporary commercialism—and disrespect for the art of film on television—has

Nichetti's BICYCLE THIEF-type drama being presented on TV with so many commercials that soon no one can separate the program from the ads . . . including the actors in the film! Nichetti plays with his audience, often amusingly, but pulls the rug out from under a bit too often.▼

I Come in Peace (1990) C-92m.  D: Craig R. Baxley. Dolph Lundgren, Brian Benben, Betsy Brantley, Matthias Hues, David Ackroyd, Jay Bilas, Michael J. Pollard, Jesse Vint. Black-clad alien, who looks like a giant surfer, arrives to harvest people for their endorphins; his race is addicted to them. Basically just another cop (Lundgren) and new partner (FBI agent Benben) movie, with lots of explosions. Routine and unimaginative. [R]▼●●

I Confess (1953) 95m. ½ D: Alfred Hitchcock. Montgomery Clift, Anne Baxter, Karl Malden, Brian Aherne, Dolly Haas, O. E. Hasse. A priest hears a murderer's confession and is himself accused of the crime. Lesser Hitchcock film, made in Quebec, is nevertheless intriguing for its stark photography and symbolism. See also LE CONFESSIIONNAL. ▼●●

I Could Go on Singing (1963-British) C-99m. ½ D: Ronald Neame. Judy Garland, Dirk Bogarde, Jack Klugman, Aline MacMahon, Gregory Phillips. Garland is famed singer returning to England to claim illegitimate son living with real father (Bogarde). Garland is exceptional in singing sequences revealing the true Judy; sadly, this was her last film. Panavision. ▼●●

I Could Never Be Your Woman (2007) C-97m. *½ D: Amy Heckerling. Michelle Pfeiffer, Paul Rudd, Saoirse Ronan, Fred Willard, Jon Lovitz, Tracey Ullman, Stacey Dash, Sarah Alexander, Sally Kellerman, Wallace Shawn. Desperately unfunny mix of toothless showbiz satire, romantic-comedy clichés, and charm-free fantasy, about a 40-something TV producer (Pfeiffer) who falls for the 29-year-old star (Rudd) of her teen-centric TV series. Despite marquee names on both sides of the camera, this received no U.S. theatrical release. Henry Winkler appears unbilled. [PG-13]▮

I Cover the War (1937) 68m.  D: Arthur Lubin. John Wayne, Gwen Gaze, Major Sam Harris, James Bush, Don Barclay. Second-rate pulp fiction about correspondent Wayne tangling with Arab rebel leader.

I'd Climb the Highest Mountain (1951) C-88m.  D: Henry King. Susan Hayward, William Lundigan, Rory Calhoun, Gene Lockhart, Ruth Donnelly, Barbara Bates, Lynn Bari, Alexander Knox. Simple good-hearted slice of Americana filmed on location in Georgia, with Lundigan as a preacher whose bride must learn a new way of life in Southern hill country. ▼

Ideal Husband, An (1948-British) C-96m. ½ D: Alexander Korda. Paulette Goddard, Michael Wilding, Diana Wynyard, C. Aubrey Smith, Glynis Johns, Michael Medwin. Oscar Wilde's drawing room comedy receives classy presentation but is slow-moving. Remade in 1999. ▼

Ideal Husband, An (1999-British-U.S.) C-96m.  D: Oliver Parker. Cate Blanchett, Rupert Everett, Jeremy Northam, Julianne Moore, Minnie Driver, John Wood, Jeroen Krabbé, Peter Vaughan, Lindsay Duncan. Delightful revision of Oscar Wilde's classic 1895 comedy about a stalwart Member of Parliament who becomes a blackmail target—and can't stand the idea that his devoted wife will find him less than perfect. One couldn't ask for a more attractive or appealing cast, though Everett practically steals the film. [PG-13] ▼

I Deal in Danger (1966) C-89m. ½ D: Walter Grauman. Robert Goulet, Christine Carere, Donald Harron, Werner Peters. Feature version of TV series Blue Light involves adventures of Goulet pretending to be Nazi convert in order to help Allies. ▶

Identification of a Woman (1982-Italian-French) C-128m. ½ D: Michelangelo Antonioni. Tomas Milian, Daniela Silverio, Christine Boisson, Sandra Monteleoni, Giampaolo Saccarola. A familiar Antonioni theme—alienation and the difficulty of initiating relationships in contemporary society—is explored in this low-key tale of a movie director (Milian) and his involvement with two women. Atmospheric, allegorical film of interest mostly to Antonioni diehards. Released in the U.S. in 1996. ▼

Identity (2003) C-90m. *½ D: James Mangold. John Cusack, Ray Liotta, Amanda Peet, John Hawkes, Rebecca De Mornay, Alfred Molina, John C. McGinley, Clea DuVall, Jake Busey, William Lee Scott, Leila Kenzle, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Matt Letscher, Bret Loehr, Holmes Osborne. A group of seemingly unrelated people find themselves holed up in a fleabag motel on a stormy night with a psycho killer on the loose—or so it seems. Means to be clever but at its core is a harsh, unrelentingly ugly rip-off of Agatha Christie's Ten Little Indians. Also hampered by clichéd characters and some truly dumb dialogue. A good cast is wasted. Panavision. [R] ▼

Identity Crisis (1990) C-98m. BOMB D: Melvin Van Peebles. Mario Van Peebles, Ilan Mitchell-Smith, Nicholas Kepros, Shelley Burch, Rick Aviles, Stephen J. Cannell, Olivia Brown, Larry "Bud" Melman, Bobby Rivers. Cuddy, messy pseudo-farce, in which the spirit of a white, stereotypically effeminate fashion designer is mysteriously transferred into the body of black, stereotypically superhip rapper. Excruciating and, ultimately, boring. Scripted by Mario; produced by Melvin (who appears as a police inspector). [R] ▼

I Died a Thousand Times (1955) C-109m.

 D: Stuart Heisler. Jack Palance, Shelley Winters, Lori Nelson, Lee Marvin, Earl Holliman, Lon Chaney (Jr.), Dennis Hopper. Overblown remake of Bogart's HIGH SIERRA with Palance as mad killer with soft spot for crippled girl (Nelson). Winters is his moll in this gangster run-through. CinemaScope. ▼

Idiocracy (2006) C-84m. ½ D: Mike Judge. Luke Wilson, Maya Rudolph, Dax Shepard, Terry Alan Crews, David Herman, Andrew Wilson, Brad "Scarface" Jordan, Justin Long, Thomas Haden Church, Sara Rue; narrated by Earl Mann. It's as simple as this: stupid people procreate at a much greater rate than smart people, so in just a few years the U.S. will be overpopulated with idiots. When a military experiment sends Wilson and Rudolph 500 years into the future, even they are stupefied by the moronic state of affairs that has all but paralyzed society. Smart, funny ideas by Judge and cowriter Etan Cohen can't quite keep this scattershot movie afloat, but it's got some laugh-out-loud moments. Barely released to theaters. Stephen Root appears unbilled. [R] ▶

Idiot, The (1951-Japanese) 166m.  D: Akira Kurosawa. Toshiro Mifune, Masayuki Mori, Setsuko Hara, Takashi Shimura. Kurosawa coscripted this updated version of the Dostoyevsky novel, about a prince and his friend who both love the same woman. Dramatically uneven (because the release version was edited down from Kurosawa's original cut), but there are enough flashes of brilliance to make it worthwhile. ▼

Idiots, The (1998-Danish-French) C-114m. *½ D: Lars von Trier. Bodil Jørgensen, Jens Albinus, Anne Louise Hassing, Troels Lyby, Nikolaj Lie Kaas, Henrik Prip. Pretending to be mentally handicapped, a group of 20-ish dropouts boorishly disrupt restaurants and swimming pools to gain gratis treatment. Too dull to be controversial, this was the first Danish film shot under the "pure cinema" manifesto called Dogma 95; the results look about as groundbreaking in a modern context as Vitaphone. One character talks about trying to find his "inner idiot," which, of course, Jerry Lewis has been doing for half a century. [R] ▼

Idiot's Delight (1939) 105m.  D: Clarence Brown. Norma Shearer, Clark Gable, Edward Arnold, Charles Coburn, Joseph Schildkraut, Burgess Meredith, Virginia Grey. Disparate characters—including a tacky vaudevillian and his one-time flame, who's come up in the world—are forced to share each other's company in a hotel near the Italian border as WW2 is about to erupt. Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize-winning play is badly dated, an interesting period piece, notable for its pacifist ideals ... but frankly more interesting for Gable's famous song-and-dance routine to "Puttin' on the Ritz." Alternate ending for European release was added to U.S. laserdisc. ▼●●

Idle Hands (1999) C-90m. *½ D: Rodman Flender. Devon Sawa, Seth Green, Elden Henson, Jessica Alba, Fred Willard, Jack Noseworthy, Vivica A. Fox. Lazy, dope-smoking teenager Sawa discovers that his right hand is possessed and a killer. He, or it, murders his parents and his two best friends, then he tries to remedy matters. Horror comedy (with ideas reminiscent of many other films, notably EVIL DEAD II) is doomed by too many crude and genuinely tasteless jokes. [R] ▼●●

Idlewild (2006) C-120m. *½ D: Bryan Barber. André Benjamin, Antwan A. (Big Boi) Patton, Paula Patton, Terrence Howard, Malinda Williams, Macy Gray, Ben Vereen, Ving Rhames, Faizon Love, Patti LaBelle, Cicely Tyson, Bill Nunn, Paula Jai Parker. Train wreck of a musical featuring the hip-hop duo OutKast set in Prohibition-era Georgia. Big Boi Patton is a smooth talker who runs a nightclub and performs; Benjamin is a stifled mortician's son who moonlights as a pianist and songwriter. Writer-director Barber's self-consciously cool shots can't make up for long-winded, heavy-handed storytelling and clichéd dialogue. Fragmented song-and-dance numbers unsuccessfully try to merge 1930s swing and hip-hop. Benjamin's climactic song—performed during an embalming ceremony—has to be seen to be disbelieved. Super 35. [R]●

Idol, The (1966) 107m.  D: Daniel Petrie. Jennifer Jones, Michael Parks, John Leyton, Jennifer Hilary, Guy Doleman. Trash about worthless type who makes it with both mother and girl of his best friend; interesting only as chance to see latter-day Jones and watch Parks try to ape James Dean. Filmed in England. ▼

Idolmaker, The (1980) C-119m. ½ D: Taylor Hackford. Ray Sharkey, Tovah Feldshuh, Peter Gallagher, Paul Land, Joe Pantoliano, Maureen McCormick, Olympia Dukakis. Fictionalized bio of rock producer Bob Marcucci, who guided (pushed?) Frankie Avalon and Fabian to stardom in the late '50s. A great idea overcome by a script that builds momentum and then drops the ball. Good performances, sharp direction, though little period flavor (even in rock vet Jeff Barry's slick music score). I Don't Buy Kisses Anymore (1992) C-112m.  D: Robert Marcarelli. Jason Alexander, Nia Peeples, Lainie Kazan, Lou Jacobi, Eileen Brennan, Larry Storch. Chubby shoestore owner Alexander is befriended by psychology student Peeples; he wants romance, but she wants to study his compulsive eating disorder. Romantic com-

I Don't Care Girl, The (1953) C-78m. ½ D: Lloyd Bacon. Mitzi Gaynor, David Wayne, Oscar Levant, Warren Stevens. Premise of George Jessel preparing film bio of Eva Tanguay is vehicle to re-create facets in life of the vaudeville star.

I Don't Want to Talk About It (1994-Argentine) C-102m. ½ D: Maria Luisa Bemberg. Marcello Mastroianni, Luisina Brando, Alejandra Podesta. Memorable but not altogether compelling fable about a polished Casanova who finds himself attracted to a small town's most cultured woman—a dwarf whose physically attractive but repellantly possessive mother has her own eyes set on this eligible bachelor. At 70, Mastroianni remains dashing. [PG-13] ▼●●

I Dood It (1943) 102m.  D: Vincente Minnelli. Red Skelton, Eleanor Powell, Richard Ainsley, Patricia Dane, Lena Horne, Hazel Scott, Sam Levene, Butterfly McQueen, John Hodiak, Jimmy Dorsey and Orchestra. Strained, overlong music comedy about a tailor's assistant obsessively in love with a stage star; good songs include "Star Eyes" and "Taking a Chance on Love," but patchwork film lifts its big finale from Powell's earlier BORN TO DANCE! A remake (more or less) of Buster Keaton's SPIE MARRIAGE. ▼

I'd Rather Be Rich (1964) C-96m. ½ D: Jack Smight. Sandra Dee, Maurice Chevalier, Andy Williams, Robert Goulet, Gene Raymond, Charles Ruggles, Hermione Gingold, Allen Jenkins, Rip Taylor. Airy remake of IT STARTED WITH EVE. Dee finds substitute fiancé to please dying grandfather who wants to see her happy. Only Chevalier-Gingold scenes have spice.

I Dreamed of Africa (2000) C-112m.  D: Hugh Hudson. Kim Basinger, Vincent Perez, Eva Marie Saint, Liam Aiken, Garrett Strommen, Daniel Craig. Story of Kuki Gallmann, an Italian who moves with her young son and new husband to remote African ranch. She is determined to triumph over adverse conditions, and becomes passionate about animal rights. Basinger (an animal activist herself) is effective, but biopic is never quite as compelling as intended. Hawk-Scope. [PG-13] ▼●●

I Drink Your Blood (1970) C-72m.  D: David Durston. Bhaskar, Jadine Wong, Ronda Fultz, George Patterson. To get revenge on sadistic band of hippies, young boy gives them meat pies infected with rabies and they go homicidally crazy. Nuff said. [R] ▼●●

I Eat Your Skin (1970) 82m. BOMB D: Del Tenney. William Joyce, Heather Hewitt, Betty Hyatt Linton, Dan Stapleton, Walter

I Escaped from Devil's Island (1973) C-89m. BOMB D: William Witney. Jim Brown, Christopher George, Paul Richards, Rick Ely, Richard Rust, Jan Merlin. Produced by the Corman boys (Roger and Gene) in Mexico and the Caribbean, this actioner is an insult to vet director Witney's standing with buffs who know his earlier work. Violent, vulgar. [R]

if. . . (1968-British) C/B&W-111m.  D: Lindsay Anderson. Malcolm McDowell, David Wood, Richard Warwick, Robert Swann, Christine Noonan, Arthur Lowe, Mona Washbourne, Graham Crowden, Simon Ward. Magnificent, surrealistic study of students at boarding school who plot revolution—or do they? Originally X-rated, later trimmed for wider acceptance. Written by David Sherwin. [R]▼

If a Man Answers (1962) C-102m. ½ D: Henry Levin. Sandra Dee, Bobby Darin, Micheline Presle, John Lund, Cesar Romero, Stefanie Powers, Christopher Knight, Charlene Holt. Trite pap of Dee and Darin (then married in real life) trying to outdo each other with jealousy-baiting antics.▶

If Ever I See You Again (1978) C-105m. *½ D: Joe Brooks. Joe Brooks, Shelley Hack, Jimmy Breslin, Jerry Keller, George Plimpton, Danielle Brisebois. Producer-director-writer-composer-arranger-conductor Brooks' follow-up to his mediocre YOU LIGHT UP MY LIFE is even worse; this time he stars, as a songwriter trying to rekindle old flame with Hack (in her starring movie debut). Breslin should stick to writing. [PG]▼

If He Hollers, Let Him Go (1968) C-106m. *½ D: Charles Martin. Raymond St. Jacques, Kevin McCarthy, Barbara McNair, Dana Wynter, Arthur O'Connell, John Russell, Ann Prentiss, Royal Dano. Gary Cooper, George Raft, Mary Boland, Charles Laughton, W. C. Fields, Wynne Gibson, Gene Raymond, Charlie Ruggles, Alison Skipworth, Jack Oakie, Frances Dee, Richard Bennett. Wealthy Bennett gives that sum to various people; all the episodes are good, but the most famous are Laughton's worm-turning and Fields' revenge on road hogs.●

If It's Tuesday, This Must Be Belgium (1969) C-99m.  D: Mel Stuart. Suzanne Pleshette, Ian McShane, Mildred Natwick, Murray Hamilton, Sandy Baron, Michael Constantine, Norman Fell, Peggy Cass, Joan Collins. Funny study of Americans abroad on quickie tour; filmed throughout Europe. Host of cameos sprinkled throughout. Refreshed as a TV movie in 1987. [G]▼

If I Were King (1938) 101m.  D: Frank Lloyd. Ronald Colman, Frances Dee, Basil Rathbone, Ellen Drew, C. V. France, Henry Wilcoxon, Heather Thatcher, Sidney Toler. Colman (with that inimitable voice) is ideally cast as the French poet-rogue François Villon, who matches wits with the crafty King Louis XI (Rathbone) and falls hopelessly in love with a lady-in-waiting (Dee). Forget historical accuracy; this is just good entertainment. Scripted by Preston Sturges. Filmed before in 1920 and, as the operetta THE VAGABOND KING, in 1930 and again in 1956. Villon was also played by John Barrymore in THE BE-LOVED ROGUE (1927).▼

If Lucy Fell (1996) C-94m. *½ D: Eric Schaeffer. Sarah Jessica Parker, Eric Schaeffer, Ben Stiller, Elle Macpherson, James Rebhorn, Robert John Burke, David Thornton, Dominic Chianese, Mujibur Rahman, Sirajul Islam, Scarlett Johansson. Puerile "romantic comedy," with writer-director Schaeffer playing an artist of arrested emotional development who shares an apartment with Parker, a therapist (!) with whom he also shares a "death pact," if neither one has found the perfect mate by the age of 30. Any resemblance between these characters and actual human beings is strictly coincidental. Schaeffer isn't dumb, however; he wrote himself a makeout scene with supermodel Macpherson. [R]▼

If Winter Comes (1947) 97m.  D: Victor Saville. Walter Pidgeon, Deborah Kerr, Angela Lansbury, Binnie Barnes, Janet Leigh, Dame May Whitty, Reginald Owen. Good cast fails to enliven wooden drama about a crisis in the life of kindly, highly principled Pidgeon, living in a stuffy small town outside London and trapped in a marriage to coldhearted Lansbury.

If You Could Only Cook (1935) 70m.

 D: William A. Seiter. Herbert Marshall, Jean Arthur, Leo Carrillo, Lionel Stander, Alan Edwards. Arthur and Marshall are superb team in this delightful comedy of wealthy automobile tycoon/inventor and penniless woman, who, for complex reasons, become mobster Carrillo's maid and butler. This film wrongly carried Frank Capra's name as director in many European prints as a fraudulent studio effort to exploit his massive popularity. D

If You Could See What I Hear (1982-

Canadian) C-103m.  D: Eric Till. Marc Singer, R. H. Thompson, Sarah Torgov, Shari Belafonte Harper, Douglas Campbell, Helen Burns. Burr Steers. Kieran Culkin, Ryan Phillippe, Claire Danes, Amanda Peet, Jeff Goldblum, Susan Sarandon, Bill Pullman, Celia Weston, Bill Irwin, Rory Culkin, Jared Harris. Somber comedy-drama about a screwed-up rich kid with a nutty mother and a schizophrenic father; he refuses to stay in school and won't listen to anyone, least of all his preppie older brother. As a result, he's kicked around by life in general and most of the people he meets. Some striking vignettes but not a successful film on the whole; Culkin's fine performance helps, along with a talented cast. Written by the director. Gore Vidal makes a cameo appearance. Super 35. Igor (2008) C-87m.  D: Anthony Leondis. Voices of John Cusack, Jennifer Coolidge, John Cleese, Steve Buscemi, Molly Shannon, Sean Hayes, Eddie Izzard, Jay Leno, Christian Slater. Mad scientist's hunchbacked lab assistant takes over when his master unexpectedly dies. With the help of a sarcastic laboratory rabbit and a fussy robot, Igor creates a she-monster and later saves the kingdom from an evil ruler. Lots of lightning and electrical effects . . . but nothing comes to life. Mediocre computer-generated animated feature feels like a Tim Burton wannabe without any of Burton's style or appeal. whole hood when they get their hands on a truckload of "hot" beepers and cell phones. Dopey vehicle for rapper/producer Master P, and an unremarkable feature debut for R&B video director Martin. Makes FRIDAY look like RASHOMON. [R] ▼●D

I Hate Actors (1986-French) C/B&W-

90m. ½ D: Gerard Krawrzyk. Jean Poiret, Michel Blanc, Bernard Blier, Michel Galabru, Guy Marchand, Dominique Lavanant. Cute, slight little satire on Hollywood, with a series of murders comically disrupting the filming of a costume epic; agent Poiret is the prime suspect. Based on a novel by Ben Hecht and filmed mostly in beautiful black-and-white; set in Tinseltown, yet all of the dialogue's in French. Look very carefully for Gérard Depardieu. [PG]

I Hate Blondes (1981-Italian) C-89m. ***

D: Giorgio Capitani. Enrico Montesano, Jean Rochefort, Corinne Clery, Marina Langner, Paola Tedesco, Ivan Desny. Funny comedy about ghostwriter Montesano, whose work inspires a series of real-life heists. Crammed with sight gags; highlighted by a sequence in which Montesano searches for stolen jewels at a party. **▼

David O. Russell. Jason Schwartzman, Dustin Hoffman, Lily Tomlin, Jude Law, Mark Wahlberg, Naomi Watts, Isabelle Huppert, Jean Smart, Tippi Hedren, Bob Gunton, Shania Twain. Young man seeking the source of coincidences in his life hires a husband-and-wife team of existential detectives who try to show him that everything in life is interconnected. Amusing, impudent comedy about the search for life's imperceptibles resonates with the fun of watching so many good actors bring oddball characters to life. Doesn't necessarily lead anywhere, but the journey is enjoyable enough. Jon Brion offers an appropriately odd music score. Talia Shire, Schwartzman's real-life mom, plays his mother. Richard Jenkins appears unbilled. Panavision. [R] ▼D

I Know What You Did Last Summer

(1997) C-100m.  D: Jim Gillespie. Jennifer Love Hewitt, Sarah Michelle Gellar, Ryan Phillippe, Freddie Prinze, Jr., Johnny Galecki, Bridgette Wilson, Anne Heche, Muse Watson. In coastal North Carolina, four friends accidentally run down a pedestrian on a lonely road. They dump the body into the sea and vow never to mention it again. But a year later, they each begin receiving the title message in the mail, and then the murders begin. . . . Scripter Kevin Williamson's attempt at a SCREAM follow-up is too routine to succeed overall. Followed by I STILL KNOW WHAT YOU DID LAST SUMMER. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

I Know Where I'm Going! (1945-British) 91m. * D: Michael Powell, Emeric Pressburger. Wendy Hiller, Roger Livesey, Finlay Currie, Pamela Brown, Valentine Dyall, Petula Clark. Simple film of headstrong girl (Hiller) who plans to marry for money, stranded in Scottish seacoast town for a week, where she meets and slowly falls in love with Livesey. I'll Do Anything (1994) C-115m.  D: James L. Brooks. Nick Nolte, Albert Brooks, Julie Kavner, Joely Richardson, Tracey Ullman, Whittni Wright, Jeb Brown, Joely Fisher, Ian McKellen, Suzanne Douglas, Robert Joy, Harry Shearer, Rosie O'Donnell, Ken Page, Woody Harelson, Patrick Cassidy, Anne Heche. Self-absorbed actor whose career is on the ropes is suddenly forced to care for his six-year-old daughter. Writer-director Brooks tries to weave a tale of fatherhood into a cutting look behind the scenes of Hollywood, with discouragingly spotty results. Some great "in" material shares screen time with an array of truly dislikeable characters. Kavner and Albert Brooks come off best, as a neurotic match made in heaven. Shot as a musical, before test screenings indicated all the musical numbers should come out! [PG-13]▼●

Illegal (1955) 88m. ½ D: Lewis Allen. Edward G. Robinson, Nina Foch, Hugh Marlowe, Jayne Mansfield, Albert Dekker, Ellen Corby, DeForest Kelley, Howard St. John. Former D.A. Valiant attempt to recapture spark of earlier Robinson vehicles; remake of THE MOUTHPIECE.▼

Illegal in Blue (1994) C-94m. ½ D: Stu Segall. Stacey Dash, Dan Gauthier, Louis Giambalvo, Trevor Goddard, Michael Durrell, Sandra Reinhardt, David Groh, Raye Birk. Cop Gauthier, on leave without pay after turning in some crooked coworkers, becomes involved with a sultry nightclub singer (Dash) who may or may not have murdered her husband. Atmospheric 1990s film noir is occasionally illogical but fun nonetheless, and quite sexy. Unrated version also available. [R]▼

Illegal Tender (2007) C-108m.  D: Franc. Reyes. Rick Gonzalez, Wanda De Jesus, Dania Ramirez, Antonio Ortiz, Tego Calderon, Jessica Pimentel, Manny Perez. When thugs arrive to finish off a job started two decades earlier, she shows her true colors, turning into a pistol-packing mama. Pulp, Latin-flavored melodrama has lots of fireworks and a good performance by De Jesus, but is brought down by mindless violence and an incredible plotline that walls in stereotypes. Super 35. [R]●

Illegally Yours (1988) C-102m. BOMB D: Peter Bogdanovich. Rob Lowe, Colleen Camp, Harry Carey, Jr., Kenneth Mars, Kim Myers. Juror Lowe is shocked to see that defendant Camp was once the girl he lusted for in elementary school, and snoops around on his own to clear her of the charge. Barely released, painfully unfunny farce, with Bogdanovich still trying to emulate Howard Hawks; how bizarre to see pratfalling Lowe (in glasses) aping Ryan O'Neal in WHAT'S UP DOC?—who, in turn, was aping Cary Grant in BRINGING UP BABY. Sudden death of a young would-be hustler brings his brother—a former local crime boss—out of isolation, looking for explanations and revenge. Good cast flounders in this downer of a drama about drug dealers Rapaport, Taylor, and Corrigan—they're the good guys—and a vengeance-seeking ex-partner (Trese) who's just been released from jail. Pretentious, boring, and crammed with fuzzy moralizing. Of note for Danza's offbeat casting as a gay crimelord. Filmed in 1995. [R]▼●

John Turturro, Katherine Borowitz, Susan Sarandon, Christopher Walken, Rufus Sewell, Beverly D'Angelo, Donal McCann, Georgina Cates, Ben Gazzara, Aida Turturro. Life, love, lust, and ambition in a theatrical troupe in turn-of-the-20th-century N.Y.C. (although the flavor is distinctly European). Playwright Turturro is in love with the company's star/manager, and longs to have her perform his latest play. Lively, even campy, roles for a fine cast spark this good-looking but often lumbering production, which plays like a French farce in slow motion. Turturro coscripted with Brandon Cole, based on the latter's play. [R]▼

Illusionist, The (2006) C-109m. ½ D: Neil Burger. Edward Norton, Paul Giamatti, Jessica Biel, Rufus Sewell, Edward (Eddie) Marsan, Jake Wood, Tom Fisher. In turn-of-20th-century Vienna the imperious Crown Prince Leopold (Sewell) sees a master stage magician (Norton) as a threat—especially when it's clear that the Prince's fiancée (Biel) is smitten with the illusionist. Intriguing story lets down toward the end and becomes disappointingly ordinary. Giamatti is especially good as a tenacious police inspector. Based on a short story by Steven Millhauser. Music by Philip Glass. [PG-13]●

Illusion Travels by Streetcar (1953-Mexican) 90m. ½ D: Luis Buñuel. Lilia Prado, Carlos Navarro, Domingo Soler, Fernando Soto, Agustin Isunza. Rival Chicago newspaper reporters reluctantly join forces to investigate a mysterious train wreck—and, naturally, fall in love. A likable homage to vintage Hollywood bickering/bantering romantic comedies with a touch of adventure and suspense thrown in; there are even old-fashioned "wipes" between shots. Unfortunately, the film's overlength hampers its cuteness, and reveals the degree of contrivance at work. [PG]▼●●

Rashida Jones, Andy Samberg, J. K. Simmons, Jane Curtin, Jon Favreau, Jaime Pressly, Rob Huebel, Thomas Lennon, Sarah Burns, Lou Ferrigno. Straight-arrow nice guy Rudd plans to wed girlfriend Jones, but comes to realize he doesn't have any real buddies—and no one to serve as best man. In his quest to make friends he bonds with overage adolescent Segel, who's fun to be with but turns out to be a very loose cannon. The two main characters are sharply drawn and well played in this comedy but the raunch factor is uncomfortably high. Incredible Hulk TV star Ferrigno plays . . . himself. [R]

I Love Your Work (2005) C-111m. ½ D: Adam Goldberg. Giovanni Ribisi, Franka Potente, Joshua Jackson, Marisa Coughlan, Christina Ricci, Jared Harris, Elvis Costello, Jason Lee, Nicky Katt, Randall Batinkoff, Haylie Duff, Judy Greer, Shalom Harlow, Vince Vaughn, Lake Bell. Hot young film actor (Ribisi) has a tempestuous relationship with his movie-star wife while being constantly pawed at in public; as he yearns for an ordinary life, he becomes convinced he's being stalked by a fan. Obvious, occasionally rambling, but still an attention-grabbing exploration of the pitfalls of celebrity. Goldberg cowrote, coproduced, and collaborated on the music. Panavision. [R] ▼

I Love You to Death (1990) C-96m. ½ D: Lawrence Kasdan. Kevin Kline, Tracey Ullman, Joan Plowright, River Phoenix, William Hurt, Keanu Reeves, James Gammon, Victoria Jackson, Miriam Margolyes, Heather Graham. Lumpy black comedy about a gregarious Italian-American pizzeria owner whose constant womanizing remains a secret to his wife—until one day when she learns the truth, and then attempts to murder him, with spectacular lack of success. Kline is fun, Plowright is hilarious as his mordant, Slavic mother-in-law, but unfortunately, the film goes flat. Director Kasdan plays a lawyer in the closing scenes; Kline's real-life wife, Phoebe Cates, has an unbilled part as one of his one-night stands. Amazingly, based on a real-life couple! [R] ▼

Il Postino SEE: Postman, The (1994)

Il Posto (1961-Italian) 93m. ½ D: Ermanno Olmi. Sandro Panseri, Loredana Detto, Tullio Kezich, Mara Revel. This early Olmi feature has something of the feel of early Truffaut and Milos Forman in its portrayal of everyday life with its tiny triumphs and failures. Simple story concerns a teenaged boy getting his first job and meeting a girl, but the beauty of the film is in the loving and perceptive observation of human behavior. A small-scale gem. ▶

I, Madman (1989) C-89m. ½ D: Tibor Takacs. Jenny Wright, Clayton Rohner, Randall William Cook, Steven Memel, Stephanie Hodge. A young woman's reading of a novel brings its murderous, supernatural author back to life. A nice, small surprise: the story is imaginative, scary and funny, the effects are clever, and the cast above average; there's also a wov of an ending. If it only made sense. . . [R] ▼

Imagemaker, The (1986) C-93m.  D: Hal Wiener. Michael Nouri, Jerry Orbach, Jessica Harper, Anne Twomey, Farley Granger, Maury Povich, Marcia Gay Harden. The President's ex-media adviser, still reeling from his wife's death, has an audio tape that could incriminate his former boss; genuine or bogus, people are literally dying to get their hands on it. A muddled mess, though a sometimes entertaining one; high point is a hilariously melodramatic scene on a Washington talk show. Twomey good as an ambitious TV reporter. [R] ▼

Images (1972-U.S.-British) C-101m. ½ D: Robert Altman. Susannah York, Rene Auberjonois, Marcel Bozzuffi, Hugh Millais, Cathryn Harrison. Difficult but fascinating film about a troubled woman who tries to sort out her life; images of reality and fantasy clash in a kind of continuous hallucination. Off-putting at first, but worth the effort to hang on. Filmed in Ireland. Panavision. [R] ▶

Imaginary Crimes (1994) C-105m. ½ D: Anthony Drazan. Harvey Keitel, Fairuza Balk, Kelly Lynch, Vincent D'Onofrio, Elisabeth Moss, Diane Baker, Chris Penn, Amber Benson, Seymour Cassel, Annette O'Toole. Thoughtful, moving (if ultimately overly familiar) coming-of-age story with Keitel doing well as a hustler-dreamer who tries to be the best father he can to his two motherless daughters: drab 17-year-old Balk and younger sister Moss. Lynch shines in her few flashback scenes as the family's deceased wife-mother. [PG] ▼

Imaginary Heroes (2004) C-111m. ½ D: Dan Harris. Sigourney Weaver, Emile Hirsch, Jeff Daniels, Michelle Williams, Kip Pardue, Deirdre O'Connell, Ryan Donowho, Suzanne Santo, Jay Paulson. A shape-shifting drama laced with dark humor about a suburban family struck by tragedy. A strong-willed mother, a disconsolate father, and an emotionally fragile brother each struggles to cope with his own demons and each other. Writer-director Harris (in his feature debut) presents a dysfunctional family to match any in ancient Greek tragedy, with mixed results—but superior performances. Super 35. [R] ▼

Imagine: John Lennon (1988) C-103m. ½ D: Andrew Solt. Narrated by John Lennon. Unusual documentary, produced by Solt and David L. Wolper, assembled from 240 hours of footage from Yoko Ono's personal archives. Not exactly a puff job, but a bit discomfiting given the obvious calculation that went into the project. Not to be missed are Lennon's confrontations with Al Capp and journalist Gloria Emerson. [R] ▼

Imagine Me & You (2006-British-German)

C-93m. ½ D: Ol Parker. Piper Perabo, Lena Headey, Matthew Goode, Celia Imrie, Anthony (Stewart) Head, Daren Boyd, Sue Johnston, Eva Birthistle, Ruth Sheen. Amiable romance with a twist: Perabo weds her longtime boyfriend, only to question her feelings for him when she senses a mutual attraction with the woman hired to provide flowers for their nuptials. Generally winning exploration of the unpredictability of life and love is hampered only by the formulaic (and highly unlikely) finale. Super 35. [R] D

Imagining Argentina (2004-British-Spanish-U.S.) C-108m. ½ D: Christopher Hampton. Antonio Banderas, Emma Thompson, Rubén Blades, María Canals, Kuno Becker, John Wood, Claire Bloom. A military dictatorship rules Argentina in 1976, and journalist-activist Thompson is among the thousands whom the authorities indiscriminately kidnap and imprison—or murder. Husband Banderas searches for her in vain, then begins having visions of the fates of other victims. Sobering, well-intentioned drama pointedly parallels the plight of Argentines during this period to victims of the Holocaust . . . but despite some powerful sequences, the story lacks dramatic cohesion. Hampton scripted, based on a much-lauded novel by Lawrence Thornton. Barely released in the U.S. [R] D

I'm All Right Jack (1959-British) 104m. ½ D: John Boulting. Ian Carmichael, Terry-Thomas, Peter Sellers, Richard Attenborough, Margaret Rutherford, Dennis Price, Irene Handl, Miles Malleon. Carmichael works for his uncle and unwittingly upsets an elaborate and crooked business scheme in this memorable comedy. Sellers wonderful as labor leader. Scripted by Frank Harvey, John Boulting, and Alan Hackney, from Hackney's novel Private Life. Sequel to PRIVATE'S PROGRESS. Produced by Roy Boulting. D

I Married a Communist (1950) 73m.  D: Robert Stevenson. Laraine Day, Robert Ryan, John Agar, Thomas Gomez, Janis Carter, Richard Rober, William Talman. Cornball acting and a "better-dead-than-Red" scenario sink this noirish melodrama, which has become a relic of its era. Ryan is a shipping executive and former political radical whose past comes back to haunt him. The "commies" (headed by Gomez) are depicted as two-bit gangsters, but Talman is especially good as a killer-for-hire. Retitled THE WOMAN ON PIER 13.

I Married a Dead Man SEE: I Married a Shadow

I Married a Monster from Outer Space (1958) 78m. ½ D: Gene Fowler, Jr. Tom Tryon, Gloria Talbott, Ken Lynch, John Eldredge, Jean Carson, Maxie Rosenbloom. One of the silliest titles in film history obscures pretty good little rehash of INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS:

Talbott notices that husband Tryon (as well as some of his friends) has been behaving very peculiarly of late. Some nice, creepy moments in chiller which has slowly developed a cult following. Remade for TV in 1998. VD

I Married an Angel (1942) 84m.  D: W. S. Van Dyke II. Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Edward Everett Horton, Binnie Barnes, Reginald Owen, Douglass Dumbrille. Playboy Eddy dreams he marries angel MacDonald in this bizarre adaptation of Rodgers and Hart musical. MacDonald and Eddy's last film together. Songs include "Spring Is Here." title tune. D

I Married a Shadow (1982-French) C-110m.  D: Robin Davis. Nathalie Baye, Francis Huster, Richard Bohringer, Madeleine Robinson, Guy Trejan. Engrossing if sometimes overwrought drama of abandoned, pregnant Baye taking on the identity of another after a train wreck. Baye is radiant, particularly in the scenes with her newborn baby. Based on a Cornell Woolrich story previously filmed as NO MAN OF HER OWN (1950). Remade in 1996 as MRS. WINTERBOURNE. Aka I MARRIED A DEAD MAN. [PG] D

I Married a Strange Person! (1998) C-74m. ½ D: Bill Plympton. Voices of Charis Michelson, Tom Larson, Richard Spore, Toni Rossi, J. B. Adams, John Russo. Animator-director-cowriter Plympton invokes Picasso's famous quote disdaining "good taste," and follows through with this wild, freeform story of a man who acquires strange powers—and an overactive imagination—just as he embarks on married life. Brash, bizarre, full of deliberately "gross" sight gags involving body parts, and often howlingly funny . . . but not for prudish viewers. Plympton fans should revel in it. VD

I Married a Witch (1942) 76m.  D: René Clair. Fredric March, Veronica Lake, Robert Benchley, Susan Hayward, Cecil Kellaway, Elizabeth Patterson. Witch burned in Salem centuries ago (Lake) comes back to haunt descendants of Puritan (March) who sent her to her death. Saucy comedy-fantasy based on a story by Thorne (Topper) Smith. Good special effects, too. VD

I'm Dancing as Fast as I Can (1982) C-107m. ½ D: Jack Hofsis. Jill Clayburgh, Nicol Williamson, Dianne Wiest, Daniel Stern, Joe Pesci, Geraldine Page, James Sutorius, Cordis Heard, Richard Masur, Ellen Greene, John Lithgow. Successful Valium-addicted TV documentary filmmaker Clayburgh undergoes harrowing ordeal when she quits pills cold-turkey. Searing because of subject matter, but not particularly well made; still, Clayburgh and costars are first-rate. Screenplay by David Rabe (Clayburgh's husband), based on Barbara Gordon's memoir. [R] VD

I'm Going Home (2001-French-Portuguese)

C-90m. * D: Manoel de Oliveira. Michel Piccoli, Catherine Deneuve, John Malkovich, Antoine Chappet, Jean Koeltgen. Poignant, carefully observed account of a celebrated actor (Piccoli) and his solitude upon learning that his family has been wiped out in a car crash, leaving only his grandson behind. A beautifully realized film, from a 93-year-old filmmaker, about the need to maintain one's personal and artistic integrity, the passage of time, and the fleeting nature of life. ▼

I'm Gonna Git You Sucka (1988) C-87m.

 D: Keenen Ivory Wayans. Keenen Ivory Wayans, Bernie Casey, Antonio Fargas, Steve James, Isaac Hayes, Jim Brown, Ja'net DuBois, Dawnn Lewis, John Vernon, Clu Gulager, Kadeem Hardison, Damon Wayans, Jester Hairston, Anne Marie Johnson, Gary Owens, Eve Plumb, Clarence Williams III, David Alan Grier, Kim Wayans, Robin Harris, Chris Rock. Hip spoof of '70s blaxploitation films with Wayans (who also wrote and directed) as Jack Spade, vowing to avenge the death of his brother, who died of an o.g. (overdose of gold chains). Loose and good-natured, with some laugh-out-loud gags. Jim Brown and Isaac Hayes, who made so many straight-faced films of this kind, contribute some of the funniest moments. Look for Robert Townsend in a cameo. [R] ▼

Imitation General (1958) 88m.  D: George Marshall. Glenn Ford, Red Buttons, Taina Elg, Dean Jones, Kent Smith, Tige Andrews. Tepid, occasionally tasteless WW2 comedy defeats its game cast. Ford is a sergeant who impersonates superior officer. CinemaScope.

Imitation of Life (1934) 109m. ½ D: John M. Stahl. Claudette Colbert, Warren William, Rochelle Hudson, Louise Beavers, Fredi Washington, Ned Sparks, Alan Hale, Henry Armetta. Believable but dated first version of Fannie Hurst's soap of working-girl Colbert who makes good with Beavers' pancake recipe; Washington is fine as latter's daughter who passes for white. Ultrasentimental. Adapted for the screen by Preston Sturges. ▼

Imitation of Life (1959) C-124m. *½ D: Douglas Sirk. Lana Turner, John Gavin, Sandra Dee, Dan O'Herlihy, Susan Kohner, Robert Alda, Juanita Moore, Mahalia Jackson, Troy Donahue, Jack Weston. Plush remake of Fannie Hurst story, with Turner as career-driven actress; Moore is the good-hearted black woman who shares her life, and whose troubled daughter (Kohner) passes for white. Fine performances and direction overcome possible soapiness to make this quite credible and moving. ▼

I'm Losing You (1999) C-100m. ½ D: Bruce Wagner. Frank Langella, Rosanna Arquette, Salome Jens, Andrew McCarthy,

Elizabeth Perkins, Amanda Donohoe, Buck Henry, Laraine Newman, Daniel von Bargen. Interesting, adult film about a Hollywood producer who learns he's dying just as his grown children (Arquette, McCarthy) are going through crises of their own. Full of incisive vignettes, though one is left wanting to know more about some of the characters. A creditable directing debut for Wagner, who adapted his own novel. Gina Gershon appears unbilled. [R] ▼

Immediate Family (1989) C-95m. ½ D: Jonathan Kaplan. Glenn Close, James Woods, Mary Stuart Masterson, Kevin Dillon, Linda Darlow, Jane Greer, Jessica James, Mimi Kennedy. Well-off professional marrieds yearn for a child and hook up with a pregnant, underprivileged teenager via an adoption agency. Watchable change of pace from a pair of often angst-ridden leads but more slick and rose-colored than need be. Masterson stands out in a solid acting quartet. [PG-13] ▼

Immortal Bachelor, The (1979-Italian) C-95m. ½ D: Marcello Fondato. Monica Vitti, Giancarlo Giannini, Vittorio Gassman, Claudia Cardinale, Renato Pozzetto. Cleaning woman Vitti is on trial for killing philandering husband Giannini; jury member Cardinale decides she'd prefer him to her boring husband (Gassman). Slight Neapolitan comedy. ▼

Immortal Battalion, The SEE: Way Ahead, The

Immortal Beloved (1994) C-121m. * D: Bernard Rose. Gary Oldman, Jeroen Krabbé, Isabella Rossellini, Johanna Ter Steege, Marco Hofschneider, Miriam Margolyes, Barry Humphries, Valeria Golino. Handsome, absorbing biography is told in picture-puzzle style, as Beethoven's most ardent admirer and confidant (Krabbé) tries to learn the identity of the composer's "immortal beloved," addressed in a passionate letter found after his death. Filmed in and around Prague, it's a sumptuous-looking and sumptuous-sounding tale, but apparently takes as many liberties with the facts as those corny Hollywood composer biopics of yore. Oldman is ideal in the leading role. The director also scripted. Panavision. [R] ▼

Immortal Sergeant, The (1943) 91m. ½ D: John M. Stahl. Henry Fonda, Maureen O'Hara, Thomas Mitchell, Allyn Joslyn, Reginald Gardiner, Melville Cooper. OK wartime drama of inexperienced corporal who is forced to take command of patrol in Africa after sergeant dies. ▼

Immortal Story, The (1968-French) C-63m. * D: Orson Welles. Orson Welles, Jeanne Moreau, Roger Coggio, Norman Eshley, Fernando Rey. Intriguing tale (from an Isak Dinesen story) about a morally bankrupt merchant (Welles) who contrives to make a myth about a sailor seducing a wealthy man's wife come true. Generally well done and, at times, dazzling; originally made for French television. ▼

I'm No Angel (1933) 87m. ½ D: Wesley Ruggles. Mae West, Cary Grant, Edward Arnold, Gertrude Michael, Kent Taylor. West is in rare form as star of Arnold's sideshow who chases after playboy Grant. Builds to a hilarious courtroom climax. Mae gets sole screenplay credit for this, one of her all-time best. ▼●●

I'm Not Rappaport (1996) C-136m. ½ D: Herb Gardner. Walter Matthau, Ossie Davis, Amy Irving, Martha Plimpton, Craig T. Nelson, Guillermo Diaz, Boyd Gaines, Ron Rifkin, Irwin Corey. Too long—and too literal—adaptation of Gardner's 1986 Tony Award-winning Broadway play about a pair of old codgers who develop an adversarial friendship in Central Park. Strong performances by Matthau, as an aged radical and congenial tale-spinner, and Davis, as a nearly blind building superintendent just trying to hang on. The characters are so good and so likable that they almost overcome the silliness of the climactic sequence (standing up to drug pusher Nelson) . . . but not quite. [PG-13] ▼●●

I'm Not Scared (2003-Italian-Spanish-British) C-101m.  D: Gabriele Salvatores. Aitana Sánchez-Gijón, Dino Abbrescia, Giorgio Carecchia, Giuseppe Cristiano, Mattia Di Pierro, Diego Abatantuono. A ten-year-old (Cristiano) inadvertently discovers a boy hidden away in a covered hole in the ground near a spot where he and his friends play; neither one understands what's going on or why, though we in the audience put the pieces together one by one. Understated yet evocative film, set in rural Southern Italy in 1978, is told from an innocent child's point of view. Based on Niccolò Ammaniti's best-selling book. Super 35. [R] ●

I'm Not There (2007-U.S.-German) C/B&W-135m. ½ D: Todd Haynes. Christian Bale, Cate Blanchett, Marcus Carl Franklin, Richard Gere, Heath Ledger, Ben Whishaw, Charlotte Gainsbourg, David Cross, Bruce Greenwood, Julianne Moore, Michelle Williams, Richie Havens; narrated by Kris Kristofferson. Fragmented portrait of Bob Dylan, with six actors (including Blanchett, who is extraordinary) playing different aspects of the musician's biographical and fictional personas. Provocative attempt to circumvent the clichés of a biopic; extremely well filmed and acted, but becomes an exercise that provides little insight into Dylan, his work, or his cultural impact. Dylan fans may find more to enjoy; film buffs will have fun spotting references to Fellini, Godard, and other directors. Super 35. [R] ●

I Mobster (1958) 80m. ½ D: Roger Corman. Steve Cochran, Lita Milan, Robert Strauss, Celia Lovsky. Rugged account of

gangster Cochran and events in his crime-filled life. Full title: I MOBSTER . . . THE LIFE OF A GANGSTER. CinemaScope. ▼●

I, Monster (1971-British) C-74m.  D: Stephen Weeks. Christopher Lee, Peter Cushing, Mike Raven, Richard Hurndall, George Merritt, Kenneth J. Warren. Good, atmospheric production and ensemble performances cannot completely redeem boring adaptation of Stevenson's Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. This time, early student of Freud develops serum to relieve human inhibitions. Intended to be shown in 3-D, which explains some of the camera movements. [PG] ●

Impact (1949) 111m.  D: Arthur Lubin. Brian Donlevy, Ella Raines, Helen Walker, Charles Coburn, Anna May Wong, Robert Warwick, Mae Marsh. Nice-guy Donlevy's wife is cheating on him. She and her lover plot to do him in . . . but there are complications. Entertaining, thoughtful drama will keep you guessing at every turn. ▼●

Importance of Being Earnest, The (1952-British) C-95m.  D: Anthony Asquith. Michael Redgrave, Michael Denison, Richard Wattis, Edith Evans, Margaret Rutherford, Joan Greenwood, Dorothy Tutin. Oscar Wilde's peerless comedy of manners set in Victorian England is given admirable treatment. Remade in 2002. ▼●●

Importance of Being Earnest, The (2002-British-U.S.) C-94m.  D: Oliver Parker. Rupert Everett, Colin Firth, Frances O'Connor, Reese Witherspoon, Judi Dench, Tom Wilkinson, Anna Massey, Edward Fox. Two lotharios pursue their women by adopting false identities in this remake of the Oscar Wilde comedy by the writer-director of AN IDEAL HUSBAND. This time, unfortunately, the tone is all wrong: the actors are terribly, terribly coy, the comedy much too self-aware. Fox fares best as a wry butler—but he's barely in the film. Witherspoon comes off quite well. British accent and all. Lively score by Charlie Mole. Dench's real-life daughter Finty Williams plays her mother's character in flashback scene. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Impossible Object SEE: Story of a Love Story

Impossible Years, The (1968) C-92m. BOMB D: Michael Gordon. David Niven, Lola Albright, Chad Everett, Ozzie Nelson, Cristina Ferrare. Stupid, leering sex farce from hit Broadway play about psychiatrist who has problems of his own with nubile young daughter; the most obscene G-rated film of all. Panavision. [G] ▼

Impostor (2002) C-95m. BOMB D: Gary Fleder. Gary Sinise, Madeleine Stowe, Vincent D'Onofrio, Tony Shalhoub, Mekhi Phifer, Tim Guinee, Lindsay Crouse, Elizabeth Peña. Is Sinise an alien spy impersonating a scientist married to Stowe in 2079? The movie's distributor apparently didn't think anyone cared enough to find out, because this malnourished Philip K. Dick adaptation sat on the shelf for more than a year. Most interesting features are the neat home appliances in the early scenes, which include a voice-activated wall-screen TV that shuts off on command. You should be so lucky when watching this movie at home. Director's cut runs 102m. and is rated R. [PG-13] ▼

Impostors, The (1998) C-100m.  D: Stanley Tucci. Stanley Tucci, Oliver Platt, Alfred Molina, Lili Taylor, Tony Shalhoub, Steve Buscemi, Allison Janney, Richard Jenkins, Isabella Rossellini, Campbell Scott, Billy Connolly, Dana Ivey, Hope Davis, Lewis J. Stadlen. A rare bird for our time: an old-fashioned farce, written and directed by and starring Tucci, who's teamed (providentially) with Platt, as unemployed actors whose audacious behavior toward popular ham actor Molina sends them scurrying—and hiding out on a luxury liner. Doors slam, people trip over each other and fall in love at the drop of a hat. A treat to watch... especially with this cast of supremely gifted actors (including one surprise). [R] ▼

Impromptu (1991-British) C-109m. ½ D: James Lapine. Judy Davis, Hugh Grant, Mandy Patinkin, Bernadette Peters, Julian Sands, Ralph Brown, Georges Corraface, Anton Rodgers, Emma Thompson, Anna Massey. Intellectual romp, in the SMILES OF A SUMMER NIGHT mold, about 19th-century superstars—Chopin, Liszt, Delacroix, George Sand, and the like—on a country holiday. Spirited performances and some timeless satire of culture vultures on the make; compared to A SONG TO REMEMBER, they do make them better than they used to. Film debut of stage director Lapine; screenplay by Sarah Kernochan, his wife. [PG-13] ▼

Improper Channels (1981-Canadian) C-92m. ½ D: Eric Till. Alan Arkin, Mariette Hartley, Sarah Stevens, Monica Parker, Harry Ditson. OK comedy with oddball architect Arkin erroneously accused of child abuse. Stevens, as his 5-year-old daughter, is cute; Hartley, as his estranged wife, is wasted. [PG] ▼

Impulse (1974) C-91m. BOMB D: William Greffe. Ruth Roman, William Shatner, Harold Sakata, Kim Nicholas, Jenifer Bishop, James Dobson. Distasteful Florida-made cheapie with Shatner overacting as a lothario who cons, then kills, women. Truly awful. Originally titled WANT A RIDE, LITTLE GIRL? [PG] ▼

Impulse (1984) C-91m. *½ D: Graham Baker. Tim Matheson, Meg Tilly, Hume Cronyn, John Karlen, Bill Paxton, Amy Stryker. Matheson visits girlfriend Tilly in a small farming community, finds the citizens are robbing banks, shooting children, urinating on cars. Plodding reverse variation on INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS—here, everyone exhibits too much emotion. [R] ▼

Impulse (1990) C-108m.  D: Sondra Locke. Theresa Russell, Jeff Fahey, George Dzundza, Alan Rosenberg, Nicholas Mele, Eli Danker, Charles McCaughan, Lynne Thigpen, Shawn Elliott. Half-standard, half-fresh, and always tough: honest narc Russell, moonlighting as an L.A. streetwalker for the vice squad, briefly but fatefully yields to corruption after lousy hours and failed relationships combine to wear her down. Underrated sleeper doesn't exactly expand parameters of the cop genre, but has a memorable central character; arguably Russell's best performance. [R] ▼

Impulsion SEE: Stepmother, The
Impure Thoughts (1985) C-87m. ½ D: Michael A. Simpson. Brad Dourif, Lane Davies, Terry Beaver, John Putsch, Joe Conley, Mary McDonough, Mary Nell Santacroce; narration by Dame Judith Anderson. A quartet of men has died; they meet in purgatory and recall their lives together as Catholic school students when JFK was president and no one had ever heard of Vietnam. Occasionally funny and insightful, with some truly wonderful moments, but it just doesn't hold together. [PG] ▼

I'm the One That I Want (2000) C-96m. ½ D: Lionel Coleman. Margaret Cho. Terrific concert film of Cho's one-woman show at San Francisco's Warfield Theater details her rise, fall, and rebirth after barely living through All-American Girl, a TV sitcom based on her Korean-American family. Alternately poignant and hilarious material tackles the double standard that women—especially minority women—face in the entertainment industry. [R] ▼

Inadmissible Evidence (1968-British) 96m. ½ D: Anthony Page. Nicol Williamson, Eleanor Fazan, Jill Bennett, Peter Sallis, David Valla, Eileen Atkins. John Osborne's play about barrister who has reached saturation point with everyone and everything preserves Williamson's fine stage performance, but still a photographed play, not a film. Music by Dudley Moore. [R]

In a Lonely Place (1950) 91m. ½ D: Nicholas Ray. Humphrey Bogart, Gloria Grahame, Frank Lovejoy, Robert Warwick, Jeff Donnell, Martha Stewart. Mature, powerful drama about a feisty, self-destructive screenwriter (Bogart) who has an affair with starlet Grahame while trying to clear himself of a murder rap. Excellent performances in this study of two turbulent characters set against realistic and cynical Hollywood backdrop. Written by Andrew Solt. ▼

In America (2003-Irish-British) C-115m. ½ D: Jim Sheridan. Samantha Morton, Paddy Considine, Djimon Hounsou, Sarah Bolger, Emma Bolger, Juan Hernandez. Poignant, bittersweet fable of survival based on writer-director Sheridan's own experiences emigrating to the U.S. (through Canada) with his family. Seen largely through the eyes of two young sisters, who filter out the grunginess of their N.Y.C. existence (human and otherwise) and make a special connection with a seemingly hostile neighbor (Hounsou). Sheridan, always a gifted storyteller, wrote this very personal film with his daughters Naomi and Kirsten, and cast remarkable, real-life sisters as the children. [PG-13]▼

In & Out (1997) C-90m.  D: Frank Oz. Kevin Kline, Joan Cusack, Tom Selleck, Matt Dillon, Debbie Reynolds, Wilford Brimley, Bob Newhart, Gregory Jbara, Shalom Harlow, Lewis J. Stadlen, Ernie Sabella, Dan Hedaya, Joseph Maher, Shawn Hatosy, Selma Blair. When a young actor (Dillon) wins an Oscar, he thanks his small-town high school teacher—who, he says, is gay. The popular teacher, days away from his wedding, denies this emphatically but still has to deal with the tumult and media frenzy that erupt. Very funny script by Paul Rudnick, played to a fare-thee-well by an expert cast. Enjoyable cameos by Whoopi Goldberg and Glenn Close at the mock Oscar ceremony. [PG-13]▼

In a Shallow Grave (1988) C-92m. BOMB D: Kenneth Bowser. Michael Biehn, Maureen Mueller, Michael Beach, Patrick Dempsey, Thomas Boyd Mason. Gloomy, slow-moving tale of WW2 veteran Biehn, disfigured at Guadalcanal, who has retreated to his family's desolate Virginia homestead to brood about his condition (and wallow in self-pity). Biehn tries hard but is overpowered by film's snaillike pacing and bizarre, romantic storyline (involving drifter Dempsey, whose character is weird in the extreme). One of the oddest and most maudlin dramas ever made. An American Playhouse presentation. [R]▼

In a Year with 13 Moons (1978-German) C-129m. ½ D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Volker Spengler, Ingrid Caven, Gottfried John, Elisabeth Trissenaar, Eva Mattes. Extraordinary performance by Spengler in the difficult role of a pathetic transsexual conceived and abandoned by his mother while her husband was in a prison camp. Powerful, disturbing tale of loneliness, alienation, rejection, winningly written and directed by Fassbinder.▼

In Bruges (2008-U.S.-British) C-107m.  D: Martin McDonagh. Colin Farrell, Brendan Gleeson, Ralph Fiennes, Clémence Poésy, Jérémie Rénier, Thelma Reuten, Jordan Prentice, Željko Ivanek. Black comedy about two hit men who are exiled to the Belgian tourist city of Bruges until things cool off after a bungled job at home. Easy-going Gleeson is content to take in the sights but hotheaded Farrell is bored—and itchy. Eventually their mercurial boss (Fiennes) is forced to follow them there. Ingenious feature debut for playwright McDonagh, who creates truly original characters: hard-core criminals, each with his own moral code. All three leading actors are on top of their game. Exceptional score by Carter Burwell. Ciarán Hinds appears unbilled. Super 35. [R]▼

In Celebration (1975-British) C-110m.  D: Lindsay Anderson. Alan Bates, James Bolam, Brian Cox, Constance Chapman, Gabrielle Day, Bill Owen. Overly theatrical but still taut, vivid drama depicting the pain, anger, and intense relationship of three brothers who return to the coal mining town of their youth for their parents' 40th anniversary. Based on a play by David Storey, which Anderson had directed on the stage; an American Film Theatre production. [PG]▼

Incendary (2008-British) C-96m. ½ D: Sharon Maguire. Ewan McGregor, Michelle Williams, Matthew Macfadyen, Nicholas Gleaves, Sidney Johnston, Usman Khokhar, Sasha Behar. Suicide bombers attack a North London stadium during a high-profile soccer match. One of the victims is Williams' young son; as she mourns, she fixates on a boy whose father she believes was one of the terrorists. Barely watchable drama accomplishes the near impossible: It portrays issues relating to terrorism and its impact on individual lives as hackneyed soap opera. Williams' gutsy performance is the sole interest here. Maguire scripted, from Chris Cleave's 2005 novel. Panavision. [R]▼

Incense for the Damned SEE: Bloodsuckers (1970)

Incident, The (1967) 107m.  D: Larry Peerce. Tony Musante, Martin Sheen, Beau Bridges, Jack Gilford, Thelma Ritter, Brock Peters, Ruby Dee, Ed McMahon, Diana Van Der Vlis, Mike Kellin, Jan Sterling, Gary Merrill, Donna Mills. Tough, brutal story of two drunken hoods who terrorize passengers in N.Y.C. subway. Well made but unpleasant—and still topical. Film debuts of Sheen and Mills.▼

Incident at Oglala (1992) C-89m.  D: Michael Apted. Narrated by Robert Redford. Incisive documentary detailing the alleged framing of Leonard Peltier, Native American who was jailed in the wake of a 1975 "incident" at South Dakota's Pine Ridge Reservation that resulted in the deaths of two FBI agents. Must viewing in tandem with the thematically related THUNDERHEART, also directed by Apted. Redford also is executive producer. [PG]▼

Incognito (1997-U.S.-British) C-107m. ½ D: John Badham. Jason Patric, Irène Jacob, Rod Steiger, Thomas Lockyer, Ian

Richardson, Simon Chandler. An art forger (Patric) who's hired to create a fake Rembrandt goes to Europe and falls for an art expert (Jacob) who happens to be the world's foremost Rembrandt authority, and forces her to go on the run with him after he's framed for murder. Barely released, would-be Hitchcockian thriller. Ian Holm appears unbilled. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

In Cold Blood (1967) 134m. * D: Richard Brooks. Robert Blake, Scott Wilson, John Forsythe, Paul Stewart, Gerald S. O'Loughlin, Jeff Corey, Will Geer. Excellent semidocumentary adaptation of Truman Capote's book, tracing stories of two young killers (Blake, Wilson), their motives and eventual arrest after slaughtering innocent family. Incisive, engrossing, unsensational; masterful script, direction by Brooks, fine black-and-white photography by Conrad Hall. Remade as a TV miniseries in 1996. The story of Capote researching this book is recounted in CAPOTE and INFAMOUS. Panavision. ▼●●

Inconvenient Truth, An (2006) C-96m.  D: Davis Guggenheim. Intelligent filmed version of Al Gore's multimedia presentation on the phenomenon of global climate change, in which the former vice president clearly, succinctly explains global warming and its potentially disastrous consequences. While the film persuasively explores an issue that is relevant to the future of planet earth, it also serves as a celluloid press release for Gore by spotlighting the major events in his life, stressing his deep commitment to the issue at hand. Oscar winner for Best Documentary and Original Song "I Need to Wake Up" by Melissa Etheridge. [PG]●

In Country (1989) C-120m. *½ D: Norman Jewison. Bruce Willis, Emily Lloyd, Joan Allen, Kevin Anderson, John Terry, Peggy Rea, Judith Ivey, Richard Hamilton, Patricia Richardson, Jim Beaver. Disappointing, poorly executed film of Vietnam vet Willis and niece Lloyd, two Kentuckians trying to come to terms with the war. Willis is good as a cynical, shell-shocked recluse, but script, from Bobbie Ann Mason's acclaimed novel, is flawed: character relationships are uneven, and too many questions are left unanswered (like Willis' medical condition). Beautifully handled concluding scenes, leading up to Washington, D.C., Veterans Memorial visit, can't redeem film. [R]▼●●

lege lab where he first experimented on himself (and fell in love). Straightforward comic-book movie has energy to spare and a first-rate performance by Norton. Monstrous street-fight finale is reminiscent of the climax of TRANSFORMERS. Offers pleasing nods to the vintage TV series and its stars. Robert Downey, Jr., appears unbilled. The Hulk's cocreator Stan Lee cameo. See HULK (2003). Panavision. [PG-13]●

Incredible Invasion SEE: Sinister Invasion

Incredible Journey, The (1963) C-80m.  D: Fletcher Markle. Emile Genest, John Drainie, Tommy Tweed, Sandra Scott. Entertaining, well-made Disney story of three pets—two dogs and a cat—who make 250-mile journey across Canada on their own to be with their family of humans. Remade by Disney in 1993 as HOMEWARD BOUND: THE INCREDIBLE JOURNEY. ▼●●

Incredible Melting Man, The (1978) C-86m. *½ D: William Sachs. Alex Rebar, Burr DeBenning, Myron Healey, Michael Aldredge, Ann Sweeney, Lisle Wilson. Rebar is only survivor of outer space mission which has turned his body into a melting muck. Cheap, old-fashioned B horror film whose only saving grace is Rick Baker's excellent makeup effects. [R]▼

Incredibles, The (2004) C-115m.  D: Brad Bird. Voices of Craig T. Nelson, Holly Hunter, Samuel L. Jackson, Jason Lee, Wallace Shawn, Sarah Vowell, Spencer Fox, Elizabeth Peña, John Ratzenberger. Dynamic computer-animated film from Pixar about a family of superheroes who now live in a witness-protection program and have to suppress their superpowers . . . until a mysterious source calls on Mr. Incredible for help. Starts out as sharp comedy, then morphs into a comic-book-style action film; result is a shift in tone and a lengthening of the story, but it all comes together. Writer-director Bird provides the voice of costume designer Edna Mode, and includes a cameo by (and tribute to) legendary Disney animators Frank Thomas and Ollie Johnston. Snazzy music score by Michael Giacchino. Oscar winner for Best Animated Feature and Sound Editing. Digital widescreen. [PG]▼●

Incredible Sarah, The (1976) C-106m.  D: Richard Fleischer. Glenda Jackson,

Daniel Massey, Yvonne Mitchell, Douglas Wilmer, David Langton, Simon Williams. Broadly sketched portrait of legendary French actress Sarah Bernhardt; Jackson chews the scenery in a flamboyant performance, but someone should have chewed up the script instead. Filmed in England. [PG]▼●

Incredible Shrinking Man, The (1957) 81m. ½ D: Jack Arnold. Grant Williams, Randy Stuart, April Kent, Paul Langton, William Schallert, Billy Curtis. Accidents result in Williams shrinking ever smaller; trapped in his own basement, he has memorable encounters with a cat and (even smaller) a spider. Intelligent, serious approach, exceptional effects for the period, and a vigorous leading performance result in a genuine sci-fi classic, unsurpassed by later attempts. No dialogue in the last third, just Williams' occasional narration. Director Arnold's best movie. Screenplay by Richard Matheson, from his own novel. ▼●●

Incredible Shrinking Woman, The (1981) C-88m.  D: Joel Schumacher. Lily Tomlin, Charles Grodin, Ned Beatty, Henry Gibson, Elizabeth Wilson, Mark Blankfield, Pamela Bellwood, John Glover, Mike Douglas. Semi-spoof of SHRINKING MAN with Tomlin in three roles, principally as a suburban housewife whose constant exposure to household products causes her to dwindle; she becomes a media darling, then the target of an evil corporation. Never as funny or pointed as it would like to be, but worth catching for really peculiar color schemes and an amazing performance by Rick Baker as a gorilla named Sidney. Schumacher's directorial debut. [PG]▼●

Incredible 2-Headed Transplant, The (1971) C-88m. *½ D: Anthony M. Lanza. Bruce Dern, Pat Priest, Casey Kasem, Albert Cole, John Bloom, Berry Kroeger. The head of an insane murderer is attached to the head of a mental retardate. Which head made this film? [PG]▼●

Incredibly Strange Creatures Who Stopped Living and Became Mixed-Up Zombies!?, The (1963) C-82m. ½ D: Ray Dennis Steckler. Cash Flag (Ray Dennis Steckler), Brett O'Hara, Atlas King, Sharon Walsh, Madison Clarke, Son Hooker. Legendary (thanks to that title) low-budget horror film about hideous goings-on at a carnny sideshow, with lots of rock numbers thrown in. Truly bizarre film features gorgeously saturated color, awful acting, hideous dialogue, haunting atmosphere and little plot. Cinematography by Joe Micelli (author of American Cinematographers' Manual) with very young Laszlo Kovacs and Vilmos Zsigmond helping. Aka THE TEENAGE PSYCHO MEETS BLOODY MARY. ▼●

Incredibly True Adventures of Two Girls in Love, The (1995) C-94m.  D: Maria

Maggenti. Laurel Holloman, Nicole Parker, Maggie Moore, Kate Stafford, Sabrina Arfel. A grungily dressed, white tomboy from a lesbian household falls for a financially secure black beauty—a reciprocated romance that has the latter's snooty high school pals reeling. Given the physical characteristics of the two leads and the script's lack of mean streak, the tolerant may overlook this meagerly budgeted comedy's total lack of cinematic interest. Otherwise, it's more interminable than incredible. [R] ▼●

"In" Crowd, The (1988) C-96m. ½ D: Mark Rosenthal. Donovan Leitch, Jennifer Runyon, Scott Plank, Joe Pantoliano, Bruce Kirby, Wendy Gazelle, Page Hannah. Surprisingly likable look at the lives and loves of those guys and gals who danced their hearts out on daily TV dance shows in the 1960s. Not as hip as John Waters' similarly themed HAIRSPRAY but fun anyway. Leitch is the son of '60s recording star Donovan. [PG]▼●

In Crowd, The (2000) C-104m. BOMB D: Mary Lambert. Lori Heuring, Susan Ward, Nathan Bexton, Matthew Settle, Daniel Hugh Kelly, Taylor Negron, Tess Harper, Jay R. Ferguson. Sub-par cross between a slasher pic and Aaron Spelling sludge about a troubled girl, fresh out of the loony bin, who takes a summer job at an exclusive country club. There she falls in with a homicidal, bisexual young woman and her 90210 hottie friends. The tinup cast pouts, glares, and shows off its tan lines with minimal conviction. [PG-13]▼●

Incubus (1966) 74m.  D: Leslie Stevens. William Shatner, Allyson Ames, Eloise Hardt, Robert Fortier, Ann Atmar, Milos Milos. First—and so far only—movie ever made in the language of Esperanto concerns a beautiful succubus who tries to corrupt a pure soul, only to fall in love instead. Long-lost, genuinely creepy curio written and directed by the creator of The Outer Limits plays like a feature-length episode of that series—as made by Ingmar Bergman. Conrad Hall's expressionistic b&w photography of the striking Big Sur locations is a major asset. ▼●

Incubus, The (1982-Canadian) C-90m. BOMB D: John Hough. John Cassavetes, Kerrie Keane, Helen Hughes, Erin Flannery, Duncan McIntosh, John Ireland. Repulsive, poorly made horror thriller about sex murders in small Wisconsin town. [R]▼●●

In Custody (1993-British-Indian) C-123m.  D: Ismail Merchant. Shashi Kapoor, Shabana Azmi, Om Puri, Sushma Seth, Neena Gupta, Tinnu Anand, Yacov Freedman. Silly tale of a doltish college lecturer and intellectual (Puri) who writes poetry no one will publish; he sets out to interview India's "greatest living Urdu poet" (Kapoor), which quickly proves to be a disheartening experience. Means to be an allegory about the lack of respect for history, intellectualism, and scholarship in modern India, but the result is only nonsensical. Disappointing feature directorial debut from Merchant (better known as James Ivory's longtime producer). [PG]▼

Indecent Proposal (1993) C-118m.  D: Adrian Lyne. Robert Redford, Demi Moore, Woody Harrelson, Oliver Platt, Seymour Cassel, Billy Bob Thornton, Rip Taylor, Joel Brooks, Billy Connolly, Sheena Easton, Herbie Hancock. A cocky high roller offers destitute couple Harrelson and Moore a million dollars to sleep with her for one night. They accept, but are immediately plunged into a whirlpool of remorse, jealousy, and bitterness. Intriguing premise bogged down by sheer silliness (not to mention overlength), though it remains watchable. [R]▼

Independence Day (1983) C-110m.  D: Robert Mandel. Kathleen Quinlan, David Keith, Frances Sternhagen, Cliff DeYoung, Dianne Wiest, Josef Sommer, Bert Remsen, Richard Farnsworth, Brooke Alderson, Noble Willingham, Susan Ruttan. Interesting but unfocused little picture about a young woman who's aching to leave her claustrophobic hometown but held back (in part) by romance with car mechanic Keith. Subplot about battered wife (superbly played by Wiest) seems to be a separate film altogether. [R]▼

Independence Day (1996) C-145m. ½ D: Roland Emmerich. Will Smith, Bill Pullman, Jeff Goldblum, Mary McDonnell, Judd Hirsch, Margaret Colin, Randy Quaid, Robert Loggia, James Rebhorn, Harvey Fierstein, Adam Baldwin, Brent Spiner, James Duval, Vivica A. Fox, Lisa Jakub, Ross Bagley, Bill Smitrovich, Harry Connick, Jr. Spectacular—and spectacularly stupid—sci-fi saga of alien ships hovering over the earth and apparently planning to attack. U.S. President Pullman tries to determine how best to fight, as the stakes keep changing on an hour-to-hour basis. Big, Oscar-winning special effects are impressive, but the human stories are so dumb, the writing so lame, and some of the performances so broad they make some silly '50s sci-fi movies look brilliant by comparison. 15m. added for special edition. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Independent, The (2001) C-85m. ½ D: Stephen Kessler. Jerry Stiller, Janeane Garofalo, Max Perlich, Andy Dick, John Lydon, Ginger Lynn Allen, Billy Burke, Fred Dryer, Richard Paul, Larry Hankin. Mockumentary about legendary schlock film producer Morty Fineman (Stiller), who enlists his estranged daughter to save his bankrupt production company. Uneven, but the cast is game and the clips from Morty's extremely prolific oeuvre are very funny. Many cameos from filmmakers like Ron

Howard, Peter Bogdanovich, and Roger Corman, along with Stiller's wife, Anne Meara, and son, Ben. Stay through the credits for the entire Fineman filmography. [R]▼

Indiana Jones and the Kingdom of the Crystal Skull (2008) C-122m.  D: Steven Spielberg. Harrison Ford, Cate Blanchett, Karen Allen, Ray Winstone, John Hurt, Jim Broadbent, Shia LaBeouf, Igor Jijikine. After a 19-year hiatus, Indy returns with the same brand of high adventure that marked the original RAIDERS OF THE LOST ARK. In 1957 the intrepid archaeologist-professor runs afoul of Russian spies (including a wily Blanchett), then follows a young man (LaBeouf) who bears a letter from an old friend, now lost in the jungles of Peru, that may lead them to the Crystal Skull of Akator—and the lost city of El Dorado. Opens with slam-bang action, falls into a lull of exposition, then revs into high gear for an eye-filling finale. Ford reclaims the role he invented in fine fashion. Written by David Koepp from a story by George Lucas and Jeff Nathanson. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade (1989) C-127m. ½ D: Steven Spielberg. Harrison Ford, Sean Connery, Denholm Elliott, Alison Doody, John Rhys-Davies, Julian Glover, River Phoenix, Michael Byrne, Alex Hyde-White. Follow-the-numbers adventure spectacle has Ford in fine form and Connery adding panache as Indy's archaeologist father, whose mysterious disappearance (while searching for the Holy Grail) sets the story in motion. This deliberately old-fashioned Saturday matinee yarn has everything money can buy, but never really generates a sense of wonder and excitement. A definite improvement over the second Indiana Jones outing, but it still bears the mark of one too many trips to the well. Oscar winner for sound effects editing. Followed by INDIANA JONES AND THE KINGDOM OF THE CRYSTAL SKULL. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom (1984) C-118m.  D: Steven Spielberg. Harrison Ford, Kate Capshaw, Ke Huy Quan (Jonathan Ke Quan), Amrish Puri, Roshan Seth, Philip Stone, Dan Aykroyd. Headache-inducing prequel to RAIDERS OF THE LOST ARK, but this time the 1930s archaeologist-adventurer has a weaker story and wimpier heroine. Re-creates (and outdoes) a bunch of great cliffhanger stunts, but never gives us a chance to breathe. . . and tries to top the snake scene in RAIDERS by coming up with a variety of new "gross-out" gags. Oscar winner for Visual Effects. Followed by INDIANA JONES AND THE LAST CRUSADE. Panavision. [PG]▼

Indian Fighter, The (1955) C-88m.  D: Andre de Toth. Kirk Douglas, Walter Matthau, Elsa Martinelli, Walter Abel, Lon Chaney. Exciting account of Douglas leading wagon train through rampaging Indian country. CinemaScope. ▼

Indian in the Cupboard, The (1995) C-96m.  D: Frank Oz. Hal Scardino, Litefoot, Lindsay Crouse, Richard Jenkins, Rishi Bhat, Steve Coogan, David Keith, Sakina Jaffrey, Vincent Kartheiser, Nestor Serrano. A boy (Scardino) receives an old cupboard as a birthday present, and finds that when he puts a plastic Indian inside and turns the key, the Indian comes to life. Then he learns that the Indian is not a toy, but a real person, and complications ensue—especially when his best friend conjures up a real-life cowboy. First-rate adaptation of Lynne Reid Banks' popular children's book, scripted by Melissa Mathison (of E.T. fame); full of wonder and simple wisdom . . . if a few too many giant closeups of the boy's face. [PG] ▼

Indian Love Call SEE: Rose Marie (1936)

Indian Runner, The (1991) C-125m.  D: Sean Penn. David Morse, Viggo Mortensen, Valeria Golino, Patricia Arquette, Charles Bronson, Sandy Dennis, Dennis Hopper, Benicio Del Toro, Kenny Stabler. Mood piece about a young man's desperate attempts to understand—and get closer to—his troubled kid brother, who's just returned from Vietnam. Lethargic at times, but filled with emotion and truth, and ultimately quite moving. Strong performances all around, with offbeat but effective casting of Bronson as the boys' melancholy father. Impressive achievement for first-time writer/director Penn. Penn's real-life mother, actress Eileen Ryan, plays Mrs. Baker. Inspired by Bruce Springsteen's song "Highway Patrolman." [R] ▼

Indian Scout SEE: Davy Crockett, Indian Scout

Indian Summer (1993) C-97m.  D: Mike Binder. Alan Arkin, Matt Craven, Diane Lane, Bill Paxton, Elizabeth Perkins, Kevin Pollak, Vincent Spano, Julie Warner, Kimberly Williams. Good-natured yuppie nostalgia about thirtysomethings who return to the beloved summer camp of their youth for a reunion weekend. Arkin is wonderful as the camp director, and the cast couldn't be more appealing. Writer-director Binder based this on his own memories, and filmed at the actual Camp Tamakwa he attended in Canada. That's director Sam Raimi playing Arkin's flunky. Pannavision. [PG-13] ▼

Indian Tomb, The (1959-German) C-97m. ½ D: Fritz Lang. Debra Paget, Paul

Hubschmid, Walther Reyer, Claus Holm, Sabine Bethmann, René Deltgen. The pace picks up a bit in this second of Lang's Indian diptych, chronicling the events leading up to lovers Paget and Hubschmid's escape from the clutches of maharajah Reyer. Paget's exotic dance is a highlight. This and Part One (THE TIGER OF ESCHNAPUR) were originally dubbed, edited down to 95m., and released in the U.S. as JOURNEY TO THE LOST CITY. ▼

Indigenees SEE: Days of Glory (2006)

Indiscreet (1958) C-100m.  D: Stanley Donen. Cary Grant, Ingrid Bergman, Cecil Parker, Phyllis Calvert, David Kossoff, Megs Jenkins. Bergman is renowned actress whom American playboy Grant romances and can't forget. Delightful comedy from Norman Krasna play Kind Sir. Made in England. Remade as a 1988 TVM with Robert Wagner and Lesley-Anne Down. ▼

Indochine (1992-French) C-155m.  D: Régis Wargnier. Catherine Deneuve, Vincent Perez, Linh Dan Pham, Jean Yanne, Dominique Blanc, Henri Marteau, Carlo Brandt, Gerard Lartigau. Soap opera set against political upheaval in French Indochina during the 1930s. Deneuve plays a wealthy French landowner who's raised an orphaned Indochinese girl, and now must contend with the fact that she's grown—and has a mind of her own. Interesting historical elements, set against a fascinating landscape, but story is mostly tripe. Even so, nabbed the Foreign Film Oscar. [PG-13] ▼

Indomitable Teddy Roosevelt, The (1983) C-94m.  D: Harrison Engle. Narrated by George C. Scott. Excellent and innovative documentary about the remarkable, larger-than-life figure who became our 26th president. Artfully mixes newsreel footage with meticulous recreations featuring Bob Boyd in the role of T.R. Set to the stirring music of John Philip Sousa. ▼

In Dreams (1999) C-99m.  D: Neil Jordan. Annette Bening, Robert Downey, Jr., Aidan Quinn, Stephen Rea, Paul Guilfoyle, Dennis Boutsikaris, Katie Sagona, Krystal Bann. Massachusetts woman is haunted by disturbing dreams which turn out to be the thoughts of a sick man who's abducting and murdering children. Is she insane, or somehow psychically connected to the killer? Extremely unpleasant adult horror film is well made but hard to watch. It's also hard to top the opening sequence, based on the real-life incident of a town being flooded to create a reservoir. Jordan coscripted with Bruce Robinson. [R]▼●●

In Enemy Country (1968) C-107m.  D: Harry Keller. Tony Franciosa, Anjanette Comer, Guy Stockwell, Paul Hubschmid, Tom Bell, Emile Genest. So-so programmer of WW2 intrigue, set in France and England, filmed on Universal's backlot. Not very convincing. Techniscope.

I Never Promised You a Rose Garden (1977) C-96m.  D: Anthony Page. Bibi Andersson, Kathleen Quinlan, Ben Piazza, Lorraine Gary, Reni Santoni, Susan Tyrrell, Signe Hasso, Jeff Conaway, Diane Varsi, Barbara Steele, Sylvia Sidney, Dennis Quaid. Intelligent adaptation of Hannah Green's book about her treatment for schizophrenia as a teenager, focusing on relationship between her (Quinlan) and dedicated psychiatrist (Andersson). Graphic, clinical approach is often disturbing. [R]▼●

I Never Sang for My Father (1970) C-93m. ½ D: Gilbert Cates. Melvyn Douglas, Gene Hackman, Dorothy Stickney, Estelle Parsons, Elizabeth Hubbard, Lovelady Powell. Sensitive adaptation of Robert Anderson play about grown man (Hackman) faced with problem of caring for elderly father (Douglas). Fine job all around, but extremely depressing. Scripted by the playwright. [PG]▼●●

Inevitable Grace (1994) C-103m. BOMB D: Alex Canawati. Maxwell Caulfield, Stephanie Knights, Jennifer Nicholson, Tippi Hedren, Samantha Eggar, Sandra Knight, Rob Sheffield, Taylor Negron. Lame psychological thriller about a psychiatrist at a mental institution who gets involved in a nasty (and ludicrous) triangle with her patient and the woman's husband. Seemingly endless movie offers a chance to check out Jack Nicholson and Sandra Knight's daughter Jennifer, but that's not much of a recommendation.▼

Infamous (2006) C-118m.  D: Douglas McGrath. Toby Jones, Sandra Bullock, Jeff Daniels, Sigourney Weaver, Daniel Craig, Hope Davis, Isabella Rossellini, Juliet Stevenson, Lee Pace, Gwyneth Paltrow, Peter Bogdanovich, John Benjamin Hickey. Writer Truman Capote (a superb Jones), darling of 1950s New York society, heads to Kansas with novelist pal Nelle Harper Lee (Bullock) when a random murder spree piques his interest. Based on a George Plimpton book, this film covers the same ground as 2005's CAPOTE, but on a broad canvas, with more humor and panache. Written by the director. [R]●

Infernal Affairs (2002-Hong Kong) C-101m.  D: Andrew Lau, Alan Mak. Tony Leung Chiu-wai, Andy Lau, Anthony Wong, Eric Tsang, Chapman To, Lam Ka-tung, Ng Ting-yip, Wan Chi-keung. Hong Kong cop goes deep undercover to infiltrate a Triad crime gang and spends 10 years rising to the top, then learns that the gang has planted a mole in the police department for the same amount of time. Tense game of cat and mouse ensues as each one tries to discover the other's identity. Stylish, character-driven thriller delivers plenty of action while dealing with philosophical notions of morality, identity, and loyalty. Followed by a prequel and a sequel. Remade by Martin Scorsese as THE DEPARTED. Arriscope. [R]●

Infernal Idol, The SEE: Craze Inferno (1953) C-106m. ½ D: Roy (Ward) Baker. Robert Ryan, Rhonda Fleming, William Lundigan, Henry Hull, Carl Betz, Larry Keating. Inferno (1980-Italian) C-107m. ½ D: Dario Argento. Leigh McCloskey, Irene Miracle, Sacha Pitoeff, Daria Nicolodi, Eleonora Giorgi, Veronica Lazar, Alida Valli. American returns to N.Y. from studies in Rome to investigate the gruesome murder of his sister, and discovers "evil mothers" wreaking supernatural havoc on both sides of Atlantic. Surreal, hypnotic shocker by Italian horror maestro Argento is short on sense, but long on style. Second in Argento's Three Mothers trilogy, following SUSPIRIA; followed by MOTHER OF TEARS. Infinity (1996) C-117m. ½ D: Matthew Broderick. Matthew Broderick, Patricia Arquette, Peter Riegert, Dori Brenner, Peter Michael Goetz, Željko Ivanek, Matt Mulhern, Joyce Van Patten, James LeGros. Sweet but uneven movie based on the life of Richard Feynman, whose relationship with Arline Greenbaum (Arquette) in pre-WW2 N.Y.C. takes a fateful turn when he is recruited to work on the Manhattan Project. (The theoretical physicist won the Nobel Prize in 1965.) Effective when dealing with the love story, but meanders when Feynman moves to Los Alamos. Broderick's directorial debut; scripted by his mother, Patricia Broderick. [PG]▼●●

Informers, The (1935) 91m. ½ D: John Ford. Victor McLaglen, Heather Angel, Preston Foster, Margot Grahame, Wallace Ford, Una O'Connor, J. M. Kerrigan, Joseph Sauer (Sawyer), Donald Meek. Dated but still potent study of human nature tells of hard-drinking McLaglen, who informs on buddy to collect reward during Irish Rebellion of 1922. Powerful drama, based on Liam O'Flaherty's novel, with a memorable Max Steiner score. McLaglen's performance won the Oscar, as did Ford, Steiner, and Dudley Nichols (for Best Screenplay). Filmed before in England in 1929. Remade as UP TIGHT.▼●●

Ifans, Chris Isaak, Austin Nichols, Lou Taylor Pucci, Mel Raido, Theo Rossi. Returning to the bored, drug-addled, sex-obsessed L.A. deadheads he made famous in Less Than Zero, author and coscreenwriter Bret Easton Ellis' collection of familiar and wasted Hollywood types adds up to way less than zero this time. A good cast is lost in the fog of clichéd writing and indifferent direction. There's the sinister studio exec, the neglected wife having an affair with the pool boy, the aging newscaster, the low-level hood, and a host of beautiful, vapid young people who spend their days doing drugs and their nights in bed with each other. Yeccccch. This was Renfro's last film. Super 35. [R]

In for Treatment (1979-Netherlands) C-99m. ½ D: Eric van Zuylen, Marja Kok, Helmer Woudenberg, Frank Groothof, Hans Man In't Veld, Marja Kok, Joop Admiraal. Simple, pointed, powerful story of a middle-aged man who checks into a hospital for tests but is really dying of cancer; he must deal with a distant, maddeningly impersonal hospital system. Hard to watch because of the subject, but still poignant and never maudlin; a production of the Werkteater, a Dutch theater collective. ▼

Infra-Man (1976-Hong Kong) C-92m.  D: Hua-Shan. Li Hsiu-hsien, Wang Hsieh, Yuan Man-tzu, Terry Liu, Tsen Shu-yi, Huang Chien-lung, Lu Sheng. Princess Dragon Mom (Liu) and her odd assortment of monster underlings attempt to take over the earth—and it's Infra-Man (Hsiu-hsien) to the rescue. Action-packed, with gloriously corny dialogue (dubbed), outlandish costumes and sets, adequate special effects. Great fun. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Inglorious Bastards (1978-Italian) C-100m.  D: Enzo G. Castellari. Ian Bannen, Bo Svenson, Fred Williamson, Peter Hooten, Michael Pergolani. In God's Hands (1998) C-96m.  D: Zalman King. Matt George, Matty Liu, Patrick Shane Dorian, Shaun Tomson, Maylin Pultar, Bret Michaels. Three world-class surfers (played by three actual world-class surfers) embark on the ultimate global tour of duty. Fictional film suffers from amateurishness of its cast of nonperformers, but is marginally worth seeing for gorgeous cinematography and, of course, some breathtaking wave riding. A change of pace for soft-core auteur King. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

In God We Trust (1980) C-97m. BOMB D: Marty Feldman. Marty Feldman, Peter Boyle, Louise Lasser, Richard Pryor, Andy Kaufman, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Severn Darden. Naive monk Feldman treks to L.A. to raise money for his monastery. A comedy that is tragically unfunny—including

Pryor, who plays God. Feldman also co-wrote the script. [PG] ▼

In Good Company (2004) C-109m.  D: Paul Weitz. Dennis Quaid, Topher Grace, Scarlett Johansson, Marg Helgenberger, Selma Blair, David Paymer, Clark Gregg, Philip Baker Hall, Frankie Faison, Ty Burrell, Kevin Chapman, Amy Aquino, Colleen Camp, Lauren Tom. Successful, happily married, 50-ish sales exec Quaid has his world turned inside out when a young 20-ish hotshot with no experience is installed as his boss—and even starts seeing Quaid's college-age daughter. Smart, relevant social comedy tackles a variety of modern-day ills in a consistently entertaining way. Breakout role for Grace, who's perfect as the corporate climber who finds that his life is empty. Weitz's solo debut as writer-director. Malcolm McDowell appears unbilled. [PG-13] ▼

Inheritance, The (1976-Italian) C-105m. ½ D: Mauro Bolognini. Anthony Quinn, Dominique Sanda, Fabio Testi, Adriana Asti, Luigi Proietti. Moody melodrama about dying patriarch (Quinn) who wants to disown everyone but his calculating daughter-in-law (Sanda), who offers him sexual comforts. Well-acted, handsome production with emphasis on eroticism. Originally 121m. Techniscope. [R] ▼

Inheritors, The (1998-Austrian) C-95m.  D: Stefan Ruzowitzky. Simon Schwarz, Sophie Rois, Lars Rudolph, Julia Gschmitzer, Ulrich Wildgruber, Elizabeth Orth, Tilo Pruckner, Susanne Silverio. A landowner dies and bequeaths his assets to the seven lowly peasants who worked his farm. Spirited, pointed (if predictable) political allegory, set in an Austrian village in the 1930s. Vivid characterizations add punch to the proceedings. [R] ▼

Inherit the Wind (1960) 127m. ½ D: Stanley Kramer. Spencer Tracy, Fredric March, Gene Kelly, Florence Eldridge, Dick York, Harry Morgan, Donna Anderson, Elliott Reid, Claude Akins, Noah Beery, Jr., Norman Fell. Vocals by Leslie Uggams. Absorbing adaptation of Jerome Lawrence-Robert E. Lee play based on notorious Scopes Monkey Trial of 1925, when Clarence Darrow defended and William Jennings Bryan prosecuted a

schoolteacher arrested for teaching Darwin's Theory of Evolution. Names are changed (Kelly's character is based on acid-tongued H. L. Mencken), but the issue is real and still relevant. An acting tour de force, with solid support from Morgan as the judge, Reid as a lawyer, Eldridge as March's devoted wife. Only offbeat casting of Kelly doesn't quite come off. Screenplay by Nathan E. Douglas (Nedrick Young) and Harold Jacob Smith. Remade as 1988 TVM with Kirk Douglas and Jason Robards. Also remade as a TVM in 1999 with Jack Lemmon and George C. Scott. ▼●●

In Her Shoes (2005) C-129m.  D: Curtis Hanson. Cameron Diaz, Toni Collette, Shirley MacLaine, Mark Feuerstein, Ken Howard, Candice Azzara, Brooke Smith, Francine Beers, Norman Lloyd, Jerry Adler. A woman who struggles with her self-image is constantly undone by her sexy sister, whose life is an even bigger mess. Then her sibling travels to Florida and looks up their longestranged grandmother, who's living at a senior community; here, of all places, she finds direction and purpose for the first time in her life. First-rate adaptation of Jennifer Weiner's best-seller by Susannah Grant, ideally cast with a great part for Diaz. MacLaine scores especially well by underplaying. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Inkheart (2008-U.S.-German) C-106m.  D: Iain Softley. Brendan Fraser, Paul Bettany, Helen Mirren, Jim Broadbent, Andy Serkis, Eliza Hope Bennett, Rafi Gavron; narrated by Roger Allam. When Fraser reads aloud he brings characters from books to life—with often frightening results. He and his daughter go to Europe in search of the rare book that can free her mother from imprisonment within its pages. Elaborate fantasy based on Cornelia Funke's novel borrows from other, better, stories (including The Wizard of Oz) and never coalesces into a great yarn of its own. Nice in-joke has Jennifer Connelly, Bettany's real-life wife, doing a cameo as his spouse. Panavision. [PG]●

Inkwell, The (1994) C-110m. ½ D: Matty Rich. Larenz Tate, Joe Morton, Suzanne Douglas, Glynn Turman, Vanessa Bell Calloway, Adrienne-Joi Johnson, Morris Chestnut, Jada Pinkett, Duane Martin, Mary Alice, Phyllis Yvonne Stickney. A 16-year-old, whose toy doll confidante naturally worries his parents, learns about love, SUMMER OF '42-style, in this Summer of '76 nostalgia piece set in a black section of Martha's Vineyard. Clumsily written and directed and (doll aside) irritatingly derivative. Filmmakers groused that the result would have been better without studio interference. [R] ▼●●

Inland Empire (2006-U.S.-Polish-French) C/B&W-179m. ½ D: David Lynch. Laura Dern, Jeremy Irons, Justin Theroux,

Harry Dean Stanton, Peter J. Lucas, Karolina Gruszka, Jan Hench, Grace Zabriskie, Diane Ladd, Julia Ormond, Ian Abercrombie, William H. Macy, Mary Steenburgen, Laura Harring, Nastassja Kinski, Michael Paré; voice of Naomi Watts. Demanding, surreal Lynchian experiment is almost impossible to describe. Suffice it to say that Dern offers staggering performances in several roles (which may or may not be the same character), most prominently as an actress who is cast as the lead in a new movie. A digitally shot companion piece to MULHOLLAND DR. Not for every filmgoer; Lynch buffs will probably rate this higher. Dern also coproduced. [R]●

In-Laws, The (1979) C-103m.  D: Arthur Hiller. Peter Falk, Alan Arkin, Richard Libertini, Nancy Dussault, Penny Peyser, Arlene Golonka, Michael Lembeck, Ed Begley, Jr., Rosana (de) Soto, Art Evans, David Paymer. Wacky comedy about a dentist (Arkin) who becomes involved in the bizarre intrigues of his daughter's father-in-law-to-be (Falk), who claims to be a CIA agent. Andrew Bergman's script commendably unpredictable start to finish; Libertini hilarious as Latin dictator with a Señor Wences fetish. Enjoyable score by John Morris. Remade in 2003. [PG]▼●●

In-Laws, The (2003) C-98m. ½ D: Andrew Fleming. Michael Douglas, Albert Brooks, Robin Tunney, Ryan Reynolds, Candice Bergen, David Suchet, Lindsay Sloane, Maria Ricossa. Needless but amusing-enough remake of the fondly remembered 1979 comedy, bolstered by its well-cast stars. Douglas is a reckless CIA agent—and neglectful father of groom-to-be Reynolds—who takes Brooks, a timid, nebbishy father of the bride, on the adventure of his life in the days leading up to their kids' wedding. Suchet is a standout as the crazed French arms buyer and megalomaniac. [PG-13]▼●

In Like Flint (1967) C-114m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. James Coburn, Lee J. Cobb, Jean Hale, Andrew Duggan, Anna Lee. Weak sequel to OUR MAN FLINT finds our hero going against secret society of women plotting to take over the world. CinemaScope. ▼●●

In Love SEE: Falling in Love Again

In Love and War (1996-U.S.-British) C-115m. BOMB D: Richard Attenborough. Sandra Bullock, Chris O'Donnell, Mackenzie Astin, Emilio Bonucci, Ingrid Lacey, Margot Steinberg. Lumbering catastrophe chronicles Ernest Hemingway's WW1 love affair with Red Cross nurse Agnes von Kurowsky, eight years his senior and the inspiration for the character Catherine Barkley in A Farewell to Arms. Miscast O'Donnell might actually be more credible playing Ernest Borgnine, and the leads have no chemistry. The film leans on what used to be called "scenic values" like a bookie who's been stiffed. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

In My Country (2005-U.S.-British-Irish) C-102m.  D: John Boorman. Samuel L. Jackson, Juliette Binoche, Brendan Gleeson, Menzi Ngubane, Sam Ngakane, Lionel Newton. Reporter Jackson and poet Binoche are covering the Truth and Reconciliation Commission hearings in South Africa, an event where opposing sides from the Apartheid era confront each other. Despite a talented cast and director, important subject matter, and a provocative setting, it all goes awry and winds up being a 3-D movie: dull, dreary, and disappointing. Even Jackson is bland. Original British title: COUNTRY OF MY SKULL. [R]▼●

In Name Only (1939) 94m.  D: John Cromwell. Carole Lombard, Cary Grant, Kay Francis, Charles Coburn, Helen Vinson, Peggy Ann Garner. Solid soaper with wealthy, married Grant falling for widowed Lombard, trying desperately to obtain a divorce from bitchy, manipulative social climber Francis. Beautifully acted.▼●

Inner Circle, The (1991) C-134m. ½ D: Andrei Konchalovsky. Tom Hulce, Lolita Davidovich, Bob Hoskins, Alexandre Zbruev, Feodor Chaliapin, Jr., Bess Meyer, Maria Baranova. Intriguing if ultimately obvious, disappointing saga of life in the Soviet Union under the iron rule of Stalin. Story follows naive, humble projectionist (Hulce) who gets to screen a film for the dictator. Much more subtlety is in order here, as Hulce's performance soon becomes grating and one-dimensional. Based on a true story; some sequences were shot inside the Kremlin, and even KGB headquarters. [PG-13]▼●

Inner Life of Martin Frost, The (2007-U.S.-French-Spanish-Portuguese) C/B&W-93m.  D: Paul Auster. David Thewlis, Irène Jacob, Michael Imperioli, Sophie Auster. Work-weary novelist Thewlis, decompressing alone in a borrowed country home, is startled to wake up one morning next to lovely, cheerful Jacob. Romance blooms—how could it not?—but soon he learns she's not what she appears to be. Intriguing Orphic fable intimately addresses large themes of literature, philosophy, and the creative process, while delicately tiptoeing across the balance beam of fantasy. Adapted from his own novel and austere narrated by director Auster.▶

Innerspace (1987) C-120m. ½ D: Joe Dante. Dennis Quaid, Martin Short, Meg Ryan, Kevin McCarthy, Fiona Lewis, Vernon Wells, Robert Picardo, Wendy Schaal, Harold Sylvester, William Schallert, Henry Gibson, Orson Bean, Kevin Hooks, Kathleen Freeman, Dick Miller, Ken Tobey. Diverting tale of rambunctious Navy test pilot (Quaid) who undergoes miniaturization experiment and is accidentally injected into the body of hypochondriac Short. Heady combination of science fiction and comedy, with an off-the-wall sensibility that keeps things unpredictable... though tightening would have helped. Short is a delight as the comic hero. Oscar winner for Best Visual Effects. [PG]▼●●

Innocence (2000-Australian-Belgian) C-94m. ½ D: Paul Cox. Julia Blake, Charles "Bud" Tingwell, Terry Norris, Robert Menzies, Marta Dusseldorp, Kristien Van Pelticom, Chris Haywood, Norman Kaye. Complex, poignant tale of a long-widowed man and a long-married woman (Tingwell, Blake) who rekindle a romance that first blossomed four decades earlier. This wise, nuanced tale explores the meaning of love, and dares to be both tender and sensuous while dealing with characters who are in the twilight of their lives. Cox also scripted.▼●

Innocent, The (1976-Italian) C-127m. * D: Luchino Visconti. Giancarlo Giannini, Laura Antonelli, Jennifer O'Neill. Digitally released in the U.S. at 115m. Technovision. [R]▼●

Innocent, The (1985-British) C-101m. ½ D: John Mackenzie. Andrew Hawley, Kika Markham, Kate Foster, Liam Neeson, Patrick Daley, Tom Bell, Clive Wood, Miranda Richardson. Medium drama about a young boy (Hawley) on the edge of puberty, growing up in a Yorkshire town during the Depression. Occasionally striking but too often slow.

Innocent, The (1993-British-German) C-107m.  D: John Schlesinger. Isabella Rossellini, Anthony Hopkins, Campbell Scott, Ronald Nitschke, Hart Bochner, James Grant, Jeremy Sinden. Blah Cold War/paranoia thriller, set in the 1950s, about an ingenious British circuitry expert (Scott) sent to Berlin to help set up a complicated phone-tapping apparatus to be used against the East Germans; along the way, he becomes involved in a passionate romance. Hopkins is fine as usual (although he's miscast as a blustery American CIA official). The characters are strictly one-dimensional; a minor credit for all concerned. Unreleased in U.S. till 1996. Innocent Blood (1992) C-112m.  D: John Landis. Anne Parillaud, Robert Loggia, Anthony LaPaglia, David Proval, Don Rickles, Chazz Palminteri, Rocco Sisto, Tony Sirico, Tony Lip, Kim Coates, Angela Bassett, Luis Guzman, Leo Burmester, Linnea Quigley, Frank Oz. Guilty-pleasure time: a sexy French vampire (Parillaud) sinks her teeth into mob boss Loggia and unwittingly unleashes a brood of blood-sucking gangsters! Meanwhile, good cop

LaPaglia tries to figure out just what's going on. Wild and woolly crossbreed of urban action thriller and vampire movie, with a wicked sense of humor; doesn't always make sense, but fun to watch (if you can take the blood). Rickles is terrific as Loggia's loyal lawyer. Landis casts other film directors, as usual, in cameo roles, including Dario Argento, Michael Ritchie, and Sam Raimi. [R]▼●●

Innocent Bystanders (1973-British) C-111m. ½ D: Peter Collinson. Stanley Baker, Geraldine Chaplin, Donald Pleasence, Dana Andrews, Sue Lloyd, Derren Nesbitt. Baker plays James Bond-like character involved in international manhunt for Russian scientist who has escaped from Siberia. Well-made but standard fare, with heavy doses of sadism and violence. [PG]

Innocent Man, An (1989) C-113m.  D: Peter Yates. Tom Selleck, F. Murray Abraham, Laila Robins, David Rasche, Richard Young, Badja Djola. Happily married airline mechanic is mistaken for a drug contact by a pair of on-the-take cops who've burst into his home; victim gets a hearty course of "Slammer 101" after both slugs frame him. Slick and soft at the center, despite some potentially compelling script elements; not too strong on credibility, either. [R]▼●●

Innocents, The (1961-British) 100m. ½ D: Jack Clayton. Deborah Kerr, Michael Redgrave, Peter Wyngarde, Megs Jenkins, Pamela Franklin, Martin Stephens. First-rate thriller based on Henry James' "The Turn of the Screw," with Kerr as governess haunted by specters that may or may not be real. Script by William Archibald and Truman Capote, brilliantly realized on film. Photographed by Freddie Francis. Remade in 1992 as THE TURN OF THE SCREW. CinemaScope.▼●●

Innocent Sleep, The (1996-British) C-95m.  D: Scott Michell. Rupert Graves, Annabella Sciorra, Michael Gambon, Franco Nero, John Hannah, Graham Crowden. A drunken derelict in London finds himself being pursued by a corrupt cop after witnessing a murder and stumbling onto a high-level international conspiracy. Old-fashioned, would-be Hitchcockian "innocent-man-on-the-run" thriller is extremely slow moving and murkily plotted, with a cop-out finale that fails to wrap up the myriad loose ends. Super 35. Innocent Victim (1989-British) C-89m. ½ D: Giles Foster. Helen Shaver, Lauren Bacall, Malcolm Stoddard, Peter Firth, Paul McGann, Katie Hardie, Tony Haygarth, Phyllida Law. When the young son of unmarried writer Shaver unexpectedly dies, her disturbed mother (Bacall) kidnaps another boy, the abused son of a would-be singer (Hardie). Deliberately paced thriller with too many plot twists; well acted, but wefts out its welcome. Based on a novel by Ruth Rendell. Original British title: TREE OF HANDS.▼

Innocent Voices (2005-Mexican-U.S.-Puerto Rican) C-112m. ½ D: Luis Mandoki. Carlos Padilla, Leonor Varela, Gustavo Muñoz, José María Yazpik, Ofelia Medina, Daniel Giménez Cacho, Jesús Ochoa. Heartfelt story of an 11-year-old boy who, with his brother, sister, and hardworking mother, struggles to survive in the midst of the civil war in 1980s El Salvador. It's not a matter of choosing sides when bullets fly through their makeshift house or when the government recruits schoolboys at the age of 12. Based on the experiences of writer Oscar Torres; simplistic at times, but still has the ring of truth and sincerity. [R]●

Inn of the Damned (1974-Australian) C-118m. ½ D: Terry Bourke. Judith Anderson, Alex Cord, Michael Craig, Joseph Furst, Tony Bonner, John Meillon. Aka TERROR FROM UNDER THE HOUSE.▼

Inn of the Sixth Happiness, The (1958) C-158m.  D: Mark Robson. Ingrid Bergman, Curt Jurgens, Robert Donat, Ronald Squire, Athene Seyler, Richard Wattis. True story of English servant (Bergman) who, despite her lack of credentials, realizes her dream of becoming a missionary in China. Bergman is wonderful and Donat memorable in final screen performance. Simple, effective score by Malcolm Arnold. CinemaScope.▼●●

In Old California (1942) 88m.  D: William McGann. John Wayne, Binnie Barnes, Albert Dekker, Helen Parrish, Patsy Kelly, Edgar Kennedy, Dick Purcell, Harry Shannon. In Old Chicago (1938) 95m. ½ D: Henry King. Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Alice Brady, Andy Devine, Brian Donlevy, Phyllis Brooks, Tom Brown, Berton Churchill, Sidney Blackmer, Gene Reynolds, Bobs Watson. Lavish period piece building up to Chicago fire of 1871; Oscar-winning Brady is Mrs. O'Leary, whose sons Power, Ameche, and Brown find their own adventures in the Windy City. Scripted by Lamar Trotti and Sonya

Levien, based on a story by Niven Busch. Originally released at 115m. ▼

In Old Oklahoma (1943) 102m. ½ D: Albert S. Rogell. John Wayne, Martha Scott, Albert Dekker, Gabby Hayes, Marjorie Rambeau, Sidney Blackmer, Dale Evans. Sluggish Wayne brooks no nonsense in this oil-drilling yarn; good action, obligatory romance. Aka WAR OF THE WILD-CATS. ▼

In Our Time (1944) 110m. ½ D: Vincent Sherman. Ida Lupino, Paul Henreid, Nazimova, Nancy Coleman, Mary Boland, Victor Francen, Michael Chekhov. Lupino and Henreid try to save Poland from Nazi takeover in plush soap that seeks to be meaningful propaganda; Nazimova is touching as Henreid's aristocratic mother. Never quite hits the mark.

I Now Pronounce You Chuck and Larry (2007) C-110m. *½ D: Dennis Dugan. Adam Sandler, Kevin James, Jessica Biel, Dan Aykroyd, Ving Rhames, Steve Buscemi, Nicholas Turturro, Allen Covert, Rachel Dratch, Richard Chamberlain, Mary Pat Gleason, Rob Corddry, Lance Bass, Blake Clark. In order to overcome bureaucratic red tape two single, heterosexual Brooklyn firefighters, one (Sandler) a ladies' man and the other (James) a widower, pretend to be a gay couple. Generally idiotic comedy hypocritically lambastes homophobia while featuring characters who are flagrant gay stereotypes. Rob Schneider and David Spade appear unbilled. [PG-13] ▼

In Person (1935) 85m. ½ D: William Seiter. Ginger Rogers, George Brent, Alan Mowbray, Grant Mitchell, Samuel S. Hinds, Joan Breslau. In between TOP HAT and FOLLOW THE FLEET, Rogers made this formula comedy about a movie star who's had a nervous breakdown; while recuperating, she spars romantically with Brent. Trivial, but pleasant. ▼●

In Praise of Love (2001-French-Swiss) C/B&W-97m. ½ D: Jean-Luc Godard. Bruno Putzulu, Cécile Camp, Jean Davy, Françoise Verney, Audrey Klebaner, Jeremy Lippman, Jean Lacouture. Two-part film is a return to form for the ever-provocative director. Part one deals with discussions of a project in the works called "Éloge de L'amour," from which the film took its original French title. In part two, set two years earlier, an elderly couple attempt to sell their story of fighting in the French Resistance to Hollywood. Doesn't always hit its mark, particularly when it takes potshots at Steven Spielberg and SCHINDLER'S LIST, but this challenging film is worth seeing, especially for Godard fans. [PG] ▼

recalls nearly two decades' worth of conquests, all of whom are paraded across the screen in various stages of undress. Strasberg and Stewart are particularly praiseworthy, but nothing else is in this tease of a movie. Remade in 1997. [R] ▼

Inquiry, The (1987-Italian) C-107m. ½ D: Damiano Damiani. Keith Carradine, Harvey Keitel, Phyllis Logan, Lina Sastri. Intriguing story treats the resurrection of Christ as a mystery thriller. Carradine is a hardnosed investigator sent from Rome to find out what happened to the missing body of Jesus Christ; an official cover-up is presumed. Offbeat point of view holds interest. Excellent dubbing of the Italian supporting characters, but it's still distracting to hear Keitel's Bronx accent as Pontius Pilate. ▼

In Search of Gregory (1970-British-Italian) C-90m.  D: Peter Wood. Julie Christie, John Hurt, Michael Sarrazin, Adolfo Celi, Paola Pitagora. Muddled film set in Geneva, about two potential lovers who fantasize about, but never meet, each other. [M/PG]

In Search of the Castaways (1962) C-100m. ½ D: Robert Stevenson. Hayley Mills, Maurice Chevalier, George Sanders, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Michael Anderson, Jr., Keith Hamshire. The British version runs 117m. [X] ▼

Inside (1996) C-94m.  D: Arthur Penn. Eric Stoltz, Nigel Hawthorne, Louis Gossett, Jr., Ian Roberts, Jerry Mofokeng. South African university professor Stoltz is accused of conspiring against the apartheid government and is subjected to ruthless interrogation by a sadistic colonel (Hawthorne). Years later, the colonel is subject to questioning by Gossett. The cast is first rate and the subject matter is interesting, but film lacks dramatic spark. First shown on cable TV. [R] ▼●

Inside Daisy Clover (1965) C-128m. ½ D: Robert Mulligan. Natalie Wood, Robert Redford, Christopher Plummer, Roddy McDowall, Ruth Gordon, Katherine Bard. Potentially biting account of Wood's rise as Hollywood star in 1930s misfires; pat situations with caricatures instead of people. Panavision. ▼●

Inside Deep Throat (2005) C-92m. ½ D: Fenton Bailey, Randy Barbato. Narrated by Dennis Hopper. Saga of DEEP THROAT, the 1972 porno film that became a landmark: the first such movie to enjoy huge mainstream success and a lightning rod for government attacks on obscenity. Neatly mixes archival footage, interviews with the participants (actors Linda Lovelace and Harry Reems, director Gerard Damiano), and popular-culture commentators (Hugh Hefner, Erica Jong, Norman Mailer, Helen Gurley Brown, John Waters, et al.). Interesting, to be sure, but not as profound as its filmmakers would have you believe. R-rated version also available. [NC-17]▶

Denzel Washington, Clive Owen, Jodie Foster, Christopher Plummer, Willem Dafoe, Chiwetel Ejiofor, Carlos Andrés Gómez, Kim Director, James Ransone, Bernard Ratchelle, Peter Gerety, Victor Colicchio, Peter Frechette, Daryl "Chill" Mitchell. Clever reinvention of a bank-heist story with a streetwise N.Y.C. detective (Washington) trying to figure out the real motive of the wily robber (Owen) who is staked out inside the bank building. Laced with uniquely New York-flavored moments of humor and character riffs, though it overplays its hand and goes on too long. Foster brings no color whatsoever to her role as a high-stakes power broker. Super 35. [R]▶

Steven Antin, Katherine Helmond, Patricia Arquette, Tate Donovan, Sandra Bernhard, Sofia Coppola, Rupert Everett, Bo Hopkins, Martha Plimpton, Debi Mazar, Ricki Lake, Lance Loud, Francis Bay. Hit-and-miss L.A. comedy about the title character (Antin), a young screenwriter, and his complex connections with family (most tellingly, soap opera star mom Helmond) and friends. Filled with moments of humor and insight, and tolerance for its various offbeat characters, but at other times affected and formulaic. Loosely autobiographical; star Antin scripted and coproduced. Dynamic fact-based story of a gutsy segment producer for TV's 60 Minutes (Pacino) who sniffs out a story in disaffected scientist Crowe, who's just been fired by a major tobacco company. Compelling, adult entertainment that finds great drama in the real-life machinations of TV journalism (and big business). Great performances all around. Screenplay by Mann and Eric Roth, based on a magazine story by Marie Brenner. Super 35. [R]▶▶

Insignificance (1985-British) C-110m. ½ D: Nicolas Roeg. Gary Busey, Tony Curtis, Theresa Russell, Michael Emil, Will Sampson. Striking, gloriously cinematic examination of the meaning of fame in America and the perils of atomic warfare. The stars are cast as unnamed celebrities—a ballplayer, senator, actress, and professor—who resemble Joe DiMaggio, Joseph McCarthy, Marilyn Monroe, and Albert Einstein, and meet in a N.Y.C. hotel room in 1954. Funny, ironic, thought provoking. Wonderfully acted by all. Screenplay by Terry Johnson. [R]▶▶▶

Skarsgård is good, as always, in this psychological maelstrom. Remade in 2002. ▶▶

Insomnia (2002) C-118m. ½ D: Christopher Nolan. Al Pacino, Robin Williams, Hilary Swank, Maura Tierney, Martin Donovan, Nicky Katt, Paul Dooley, Jonathan Jackson. Famous LAPD detective Pacino and his partner (Donovan) are sent to small town in Alaska to help solve a grisly murder—and to get them away from the firing line of a department controversy. It turns out that whodunit is not the problem, but how to catch the culprit... especially when he starts playing a cat-and-mouse game with Pacino. Multilayered story is enhanced by Nolan's cunning use of visual and aural devices, plus top-notch performances. Remake of 1997 film of the same name, adapted by Hillary Seitz. Panavision. [R]▼

Jean Poiret, Jean-Claude Brialy, Bernadette Lafont, Jacques Dacqmine, Jean-Luc Bideau, Hermine Claire, Pierre-Francois Dumenuaud, Florent Gibassier, Guy Louret, Jean Depusse. Crime and comedy make for an unusual mix in this tale of quirky police detective Poiret's murder investigation in a French seaside village. Lafont—newly widowed, wealthy, and an old flame of the inspector's—and her wacky brother (Brialy) head the list of suspects. A sequel to Chabrol's COP AU VIN/POULET AU VINAIGRE (1984) which introduced Poiret's Lavardin character in a supporting role.▶

Inspector Calls, An (1954-British) 80m.  D: Guy Hamilton. Alastair Sim, Arthur Young, Olga Lindo, Eileen Moore. J. B. Priestley play detailing British police detective Sim's investigation of girl's suicide. Via flashbacks he learns a family's responsibility for her fate. Clever plot finale.

Inspector Clouseau (1968) C-94m.  D: Bud Yorkin. Alan Arkin, Delia Boccardo, Frank Finlay, Patrick Cargill, Beryl Reid, Barry Foster. Scotland Yard calls on inept French detective to crack potential robbery; in spite of Arkin's talents, Peter Sellers is too well identified with the role (from other Pink Panther movies) for one to fully accept this characterization. Besides, film isn't particularly funny. Made in England. Panavision. [G]▶

Inspector Gadget (1999) C-80m.  D: David Kellogg. Matthew Broderick, Rupert Everett, Joely Fisher, Michelle Trachtenberg, Andy Dick, Cheri Oteri, Michael G. Hagerty, Dabney Coleman, Rene Auberjonois, Frances Bay; voices of D. L. Hughley, Don Adams. Desperate gimmick comedy for kids based on the 1980s animated TV series. After a severe accident, Broderick's body is pieced back together with cutting-edge technology, just right for chasing bad guys like Everett (aka Claw). Gizmos and slapstick galore, but precious few laughs in this Disney concoction. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [PG]▼●●

Inspector General, The (1949) C-102m.  D: Henry Koster. Danny Kaye, Walter Slezak, Barbara Bates, Elsa Lanchester, Gene Lockhart, Alan Hale, Walter Catlett. Kaye plays a buffoon who pretends to be a visiting bureaucrat in an Eastern European village. Entertaining musical adaptation of the Gogol story.▼▶

Inspiration (1931) 74m. ½ D: Clarence Brown. Greta Garbo, Robert Montgomery, Lewis Stone, Marjorie Rameau, Beryl Mercer. Lesser Garbo vehicle about beautiful Parisian woman whose past makes her decide to leave Montgomery, even though she still loves him. A modern version of Alphonse Daudet's Sappho. ▼●

Instinct (1999) C-124m. ½ D: Jon Turletaub. Anthony Hopkins, Cuba Gooding, Jr., Donald Sutherland, Maura Tierney, George Dzundza, John Ashton, John Aylward. Ambitious psychiatric resident (Gooding) evaluates brilliant and/or insane primatologist (Hopkins), who's been living among the Rwandan gorillas he studied and who may have murdered some park rangers. Talky drama sets off a few sparks whenever the two leads square off, and has some CUCKOO'S NEST flourishes throughout. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Insurance Man, The (1985-British) C-77m.  D: Richard Eyre. Robert Hines, Daniel Day-Lewis, Jim Broadbent, Hugh Fraser, Tony Haygarth. Dramatically uneven yet still ambitious, impressive account of a young dyeworker named Franz (Hines), whose body develops a rash, and his dealings with both the bureaucracy and a man named Mr. Kafka (Day-Lewis), a claims assessor who also writes. A tribute to Kafka and his work, with a screenplay by Alan Bennett.

Intacto (2001-Spanish) C-108m.  D: Juan Carlos Fresnadillo. Max von Sydow, Leonardo Sbaraglia, Eusebio Poncela, Mónica López, Antonio Dechent, Guillermo Toledo. Ambitious but muddled thriller involving an aging high-stakes gambler/Holocaust survivor (von Sydow) who enjoys, and appears to be able to control, good fortune; he takes away the luck of an underling who's announced his wish to go off on his own. Means to be eerie and compelling, but is pretentious and confusing instead. Super 35. [R]▼

Intended, The (2003-Danish-British) C-110m.  D: Kristian Levring. Janet McTeer, Olympia Dukakis, Brenda Fricker, Tony Maudsley, JJ Feild, David Bradley, Philip Jackson. In 1920s Malaya, a miserable wretch who works as an ivory trading-post overseer (Fricker) makes life intolerable for one and all, including a youthful surveyor (Feild) and his older fiancée (McTeer). An altogether unpleasant—and unnecessary—experience, despite some good performances. Levring and McTeer coscripted. [R]▶

Interiors (1978) C-93m. ½ D: Woody Allen. Diane Keaton, Geraldine Page, E. G. Marshall, Maureen Stapleton, Kristin Griffith, Mary Beth Hurt, Richard Jordan, Sam Waterston. Allen's first screen drama as writer-director is an Ingmar Bergmanesque study of a family full of unhappy, frustrated men and women; drama of anguished lives is not for all tastes, but extremely well done. [PG] ▼●●

Interlude (1968-British) C-113m.  D: Kevin Billington. Oskar Werner, Barbara Ferris, Virginia Maskell, Donald Sutherland, Nora Swinburne, Alan Webb, John Cleese. Charming, sentimental tale of symphony conductor and reporter who have an affair; told in flashback. Previously filmed as WHEN TOMORROW COMES and INTERLUDE (1957). [MP/PG]

Intermezzo (1939) 70m. ½ D: Gregory Ratoff. Leslie Howard, Ingrid Bergman, Edna Best, Cecil Kellaway, John Halliday. One of the best love stories ever filmed, as married Howard, renowned violinist, has an affair with musical protégée Bergman (in her first English-speaking film). Short and sweet, highlighted by Robert Henning-Heinz Provost love theme. Original title: INTERMEZZO, A LOVE STORY; Bergman played same role in Gustav Molander's 1936 Swedish version. Remade, after a fashion, as HONEYSUCKLE ROSE. ▼●●

Intermission (2003-Irish-British) C-102m.  D: John Crowley. Colin Farrell, Shirley Henderson, Kelly Macdonald, Colm Meaney, Cillian Murphy, Ger Ryan, Brian F. O'Byrne, Barbara Bergin, Michael McElhatton, Deirdre O'Kane, David Wilmot. A lively mosaic of stories in modern-day Dublin involving working-class people whose dysfunctional lives collide as they search for love, vent their anger, and commit crimes that can't possibly pay. Alternately furious and funny, shot with a great feeling of spontaneity on high-definition video by a first-time director. The girl with the ice cream cone in the film's first scene is Emma Bolger, who costars in IN AMERICA. [R] ▼●

Internal Affairs (1990) C-117m.  D: Mike Figgis. Richard Gere, Andy Garcia, Nancy Travis, Laurie Metcalf, Richard Bradford, William Baldwin, Michael Beach, Annabella Sciorra, Elijah Wood. Smarmy, overripe, and overlong drama about a young cop who joins L.A.'s Internal Affairs Dept. and becomes obsessed with nailing a cocky, corrupt officer (Gere) who's a past master at manipulating people. Intriguing ideas get lost, and illogic takes over pretty quickly. [R] ▼●●

International, The (2009-U.S.-German) C-118m.  D: Tom Tykwer. Clive Owen, Naomi Watts, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Ulrich Thomsen, Brian F. O'Byrne, Jack McGee, Felix Solis, James Rebhorn. Interpol agent Owen teams up with Manhattan D.A. Watts in an effort to get the goods on an international bank that's involved in all sorts of dirty deals. Slick suspense thriller circles the globe but is discouragingly sparse on suspense or thrills, except for a long, bravura shootout inside N.Y.C.'s Guggenheim Museum. Its seemingly topical subject matter has surprisingly little resonance. Super 35. [R] ●

International House (1933) 70m. ½ D: A. Edward Sutherland. W. C. Fields, Peggy Hopkins Joyce, Stuart Erwin, George Burns, Gracie Allen, Bela Lugosi, Franklin Pangborn, Rudy Vallee, Sterling Holloway, Cab Calloway, Baby Rose Marie. Offbeat, delightful film with early television experiment bringing people from all over the world to large Oriental hotel. Spotlight alternates between Fields and Burns & Allen, all in rare form, with guest spots by various radio entertainers. Short and sweet, a must-see film. Calloway sings the memorable "Reefer Man." ▼●●

International Squadron (1941) 87m. ½ D: Lothar Mendes. Ronald Reagan, James Stephenson, Olympe Bradna, William Lundigan, Joan Perry, Julie Bishop, Cliff Edwards. Air Force straightens out no-account Reagan and turns him into fighting ace. Standard war story, a remake of CEILING ZERO.

International Velvet (1978-British-U.S.) C-127m.  D: Bryan Forbes. Tatum O'Neal, Christopher Plummer, Anthony Hopkins, Nanette Newman, Dinsdale Landon. Long overdue sequel to NATIONAL VELVET has Velvet (Newman) a grown woman with a live-in lover (Plummer) and a niece (O'Neal) primed to follow in her footsteps as an Olympic horsewoman. Too lengthy and shunned by the critics, but deftly played by Hopkins and Plummer; exquisitely filmed, entertaining. [PG] ▼●

Internecine Project, The (1974-British) C-89m.  D: Ken Hughes. James Coburn, Lee Grant, Harry Andrews, Ian Hendry, Michael Jayston, Keenan Wynn. Lackluster espionage drama with Coburn as opportunist who tries to eliminate skeletons in his closet by having a handful of industrial spies kill each other off. [PG] ▼

Interns, The (1962) 120m.  D: David Swift. Michael Callan, Cliff Robertson, James MacArthur, Nick Adams, Suzy Parker, Haya Harareet, Stefanie Powers, Buddy Ebsen, Telly Savalas. Glossy, renovated DR. KILDARE soap opera, kept afloat by an interesting young cast. Followed by sequel THE NEW INTERNS. ▼●●

Interpreter, The (2005-U.S.-German) C-128m. ½ D: Sydney Pollack. Nicole Kidman, Sean Penn, Catherine Keener, Jesper Christensen, Yvan Attal, Earl Cameron, Michael Wright, George Harris, Clyde Kusatsu, Hugo Speer. U.N. interpreter Kidman overhears what sounds like an assassination plot against the leader of her homeland, Matobo, who's about to visit N.Y.C. Federal agent Penn is assigned to investigate the credibility of her claim and becomes emotionally involved. Star wattage and filmmaking craftsmanship help compensate for many loose ends in this thriller (credited to three separate screenwriters, "with the help of" a novel), but it seems neither the CIA, FBI, Secret Service,

U.N. security, nor the NYPD can keep an eye on a suspect for long! Pollack has a small role as Penn's boss. Technovision. [PG-13] ▼

Interrupted Melody (1955) C-106m.  D: Curtis Bernhardt. Eleanor Parker, Glenn Ford, Roger Moore, Cecil Kellaway, Ann Codee, Stephan Bekassy. Fine biography of Marjorie Lawrence, Australian opera star, who made a comeback after being crippled by polio. Eileen Farrell sings for Parker. William Ludwig and Sonya Levien won Oscars for their story and screenplay. CinemaScope. ▼

Intersection (1994) C-98m. *½ D: Mark Rydell. Richard Gere, Sharon Stone, Lolita Davidovich, Martin Landau, David Selby, Jenny Morrison, Ron White. Dreary romantic triangle of wealthy architect Gere, who has drifted apart from his aloof wife (Stone), and taken up with spunky Davidovich. Meanwhile, all involved feel terribly guilty about the teenage daughter they're hurting. Title comes from an accident site, which prompts all this moping around in a series of flashbacks. Derived from a 1970 French feature, LES CHOSES DE LA VIE (THE THINGS OF LIFE), directed by Claude Sautet. [R] ▼

Interval (1973-Mexican) C-84m.  D: Daniel Mann. Merle Oberon, Robert Wolders, Claudio Brook, Russ Conway, Charles Bateman, Barbara Ransom. A globetrotting woman, running from her past, finds true love with a much younger man (Wolders, who became Oberon's husband in real life). Drippy May-December romance, filmed in Mexico and produced by Oberon, whose last film this was. [PG] ▼

Interview (2007) C-86m.  D: Steve Buscemi. Sienna Miller, Steve Buscemi. Political reporter reluctantly carries out an assignment to interview a beautiful young actress who's put off by his obvious indifference to the task. Over the course of an evening, they take turns seducing and bamboozling each other. Remake of Theo van Gogh's Dutch movie of the same name, shot in a series of lengthy handheld takes, ebbs and flows but never completely loses its momentum because of the two stars' compelling performances. Buscemi and David Schechter adapted Theodor Holman's original screenplay. [R] ▼

Interview With the Assassin (2002) C-88m.  D: Neil Burger. Raymond J. Barry, Dylan Haggerty, Renee Faia, Kelsey Kemper, Dennis Lau, Jared McVay. An unemployed cameraman interviews and tapes his terminally ill next-door neighbor (Barry, in a riveting performance), who claims to be the so-called second gunman who assassinated John F. Kennedy. This documentary-style film is a bit gimmicky, but still interesting and disturbing, a worthy companion piece to Oliver Stone's JFK. ▼

pire Chronicles (1994) C-122m. *½ D: Neil Jordan. Tom Cruise, Brad Pitt, Antonio Banderas, Stephen Rea, Christian Slater, Kirsten Dunst, Domiziana Giordano, Thandie Newton, Indra Ove. In contemporary San Francisco, a young man grants an interview about his 200-year existence as a vampire—a "life" with which he has never felt completely comfortable. Likely to satisfy fans of Anne Rice's popular novel, and female fans of its star "hunks," but this descent into the netherworld is unappealing, unrelenting, and (after a while) downright boring. The actors can't be faulted, nor can the handsome production design. Followed by QUEEN OF THE DAMNED. [R] ▼

Intervista (1987-Italian) C-108m.  D: Federico Fellini. Sergio Rubini, Antonella Ponziani, Maurizio Mein, Paola Liguori, Lara Wendel, Antonio Cantafora, Nadia Ottaviani, Anita Ekberg, Marcello Mastroianni, Federico Fellini. Engaging, illuminating mock-documentary about the making of a film about Fellini; the master is depicted in production of an adaptation of Kafka's Amerika. Mastroianni and Ekberg (who costarred almost 30 years before in LA DOLCE VITA) appear as themselves. The film also serves as an homage to Cinecittà, the studio where Fellini shot all of his classics. ▼

In the Army Now (1994) C-91m. *½ D: Daniel Petrie, Jr. Pauly Shore, Lori Petty, David Alan Grier, Andy Dick, Esai Morales, Lynn Whitfield, Art LeFleur, Tom Villard, Keith Coogan. Pauly is a pacifist who joins the army so he can "be all that he can be for free," only to learn that there's more to enlisting than receiving complimentary room and board. Latest in a long line of barracks comedies proves no competition for BUCK PRIVATES. Pauly's fans might disagree. Brendan Fraser appears unbilled. [PG] ▼

In the Bedroom (2001) C-138m.  D: Todd Field. Sissy Spacek, Tom Wilkinson, Nick Stahl, Marisa Tomei, William Mapother, William Wise, Celia Weston, Karen Allen. An avuncular small-town Maine doctor and his wife, who teaches music in the local school, don't approve of the "older" woman their son has fallen in love with . . . but no one is prepared for the events that then unfold. Quiet, observant film explores how grief affects a longtime married couple and the people around them. Rock-solid performances by all the lead actors. Field's feature directing debut; he also coscripted with Rob Festinger, from a story by Andre Dubus. Super 35. [R] ▼

In the Bleak Midwinter SEE: Midwinter's Tale, A

In the Company of Men (1997) C-93m.  D: Neil LaBute. Aaron Eckhart, Stacy Edwards, Matt Malloy, Mark Rector. Provocative but stark and discomfiting low-budget film about two yuppie office workers who—frustrated by the world around them, and women in particular—make a pact that while they're on assignment in another city, they'll both date a woman and then dump her, just for the satisfaction of it. The slicker of the two (Eckhart) turns out to have a hidden agenda, however. Alternately absorbing, humdrum, and distasteful. Eckhart's creepy character does get under your skin. Highly praised in some circles. Written by the director. [R] ▼●●

In the Cool of the Day (1963-British) C-89m.  D: Robert Stevens. Peter Finch, Jane Fonda, Angela Lansbury, Arthur Hill, Constance Cummings, Alexander Knox, Nigel Davenport, Alec McCowen. Good cast flounders in turgid soap, with Finch (who is married to bitchy Lansbury) mediating marital rift between Hill and his emotionally and physically fragile wife Fonda; soon Finch and Fonda fall in love. Location filming in Greece helps. Panavision.

In the Cut (2003-U.S.-Australian) C-118m. ½ D: Jane Campion. Meg Ryan, Mark Ruffalo, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Nick Damici, Sharrieff Pugh. An English teacher becomes involved with a homicide detective who's investigating a series of brutal murders of women in her Manhattan neighborhood. A daring look at a sexual relationship between two emotionally fragile people, set against the backdrop of a murder mystery. Provocative and doggedly antiromantic, the storytelling is faulty and drawn out, but the atmosphere and performances are first-rate. Adapted by Campion and Susanna Moore from the latter's novel. Kevin Bacon appears unbilled. Unrated version runs 119m. [R] ▼●

In the Devil's Garden (1971-British) C-89m. *½ D: Sidney Hayers. Suzy Kendall, Frank Finlay, Freddie Jones, Lesley-Anne Down, James Laurenson, Tony Beckley. Undistinguished thriller of rapist-killer in girls' school; of interest mainly for the presence of Down, in an early role as one of the victims. Aka ASSAULT, THE CREEPERS, TOWER OF TERROR and SATAN'S PLAY-THINGS. Panavision. [R] ▼

In the Electric Mist (2009-U.S.-French) C-102m. ½ D: Bertrand Tavernier. Tommy Lee Jones, John Goodman, Mary Steenburgen, Peter Sarsgaard, Kelly Macdonald, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Justina Machado, Ned Beatty, James Gammon, Levon Helm, Buddy Guy, Julio César Cedillo. Recovering alcoholic Louisiana detective Dave Robicheaux (Jones) is trying to solve a series of gruesome murders when the corpse of a black man killed 40 years ago surfaces in a nearby marsh. Atmospheric and well cast, this police procedural with mystical undertones is highly watchable, although some of the characters and relationships seem a bit sketchy (and may come to life more fully in James Lee Burke's novel or Tavernier's European cut, which runs

117m.). John Sayles has a hilarious cameo as a foulmouthed movie director. Alec Baldwin played Robicheaux in 1996's HEAVEN'S PRISONERS. Panavision. [R] ●

In the French Style (1963) 105m. ½ D: Robert Parrish. Jean Seberg, Stanley Baker, Addison Powell, James Leo Herlihy, Philippe Forquet, Claudine Auger. Two short stories by Irwin Shaw are basis for this overlong account of American girl who discovers transient affairs are marring her life.

In the Good Old Summertime (1949) C-102m.  D: Robert Z. Leonard. Judy Garland, Van Johnson, S. Z. "Cuddles" Sakall, Spring Byington, Clinton Sundberg, Buster Keaton. Musical remake of THE SHOP AROUND THE CORNER, with Garland and Johnson the pen pals who fall in love. Not up to most MGM Garland vehicles, but pleasant. That's young Liza Minnelli with Judy in the finale. ▼●●

In the Heat of Passion (1992) C-102m. ½ D: Rodman Flender. Sally Kirkland, Nick Corri, Jack Carter, Michael Greene, Gloria LeRoy, Carl Franklin. Low-budget but diverting film noir, with Corri a young garage mechanic who puts the moves on wealthy, mysterious Kirkland. When her husband gets in the way, what's a lover to do? Twisty tale encompasses a serial rapist and the reality-TV show tracking him, with Corri's assistance. Genuinely suspenseful, sexually frank film hindered by mediocre production values. [R] ▼●

In the Heat of the Night (1967) C-109m. * D: Norman Jewison. Sidney Poitier, Rod Steiger, Warren Oates, Lee Grant, Scott Wilson, Larry Gates, Quentin Dean, James Patterson, Anthony James, William Schallert. Redneck Southern sheriff grudgingly accepts help from big-city black detective in solving bizarre murder. Marvelous social thriller hasn't dated one bit—tough, funny, and atmospheric, with unbeatable acting and splendid Quincy Jones score. Five Oscars include Best Picture, Actor (Steiger), Screenplay (Stirling Silliphant), Editing (Hal Ashby). Poitier reprised his character in THEY CALL ME MISTER TIBBS! and THE ORGANIZATION. Followed by a TV series 20 years later. ▼●●

In the Land of Women (2007) C-98m.  D: Jonathan Kasdan. Adam Brody, Kristin Stewart, Meg Ryan, Olympia Dukakis, Mackenzie Vega, Elena Anaya, Clark Gregg, JoBeth Williams, Dustin Milligan, Ginnifer Goodwin. A 26-year-old L.A. writer, feeling he's a failure, moves to Michigan to care for his elderly (i.e., frail but feisty) grandmother and soon gets to know/help/save an upscale (i.e., cold and empty) family across the street. Oh, yes—he also finds himself in the process. Brody (The O.C.) is good in his first film lead, but this is pretty predictable stuff. Feature writing and directing debut for Jonathan Kasdan (son of Lawrence, brother of Jake). Super 35. [PG-13]●

In the Line of Fire (1993) C-128m. ½ D: Wolfgang Petersen. Clint Eastwood, John Malkovich, Rene Russo, Dylan McDermott, Gary Cole, Fred Dalton Thompson, John Mahoney, Jim Curley, Clyde Kusatsu, Patrika Darbo, John Heard. Crackling, well-made thriller about a would-be presidential assassin who pulls Secret Service agent Eastwood—who failed to protect President Kennedy in 1963—into a cruel game of cat-and-mouse as he plans to murder the current president. Eastwood, as an older, vulnerable, piano-playing loner, has never been better, and Malkovich matches him as the superintelligent loony. Steve Railsback appears unbilled. Written by Jeff Maguire. Panavision. [R]▼●●

In the Mix (2005) C-95m. BOMB D: Ron Underwood. Usher, Chazz Palminteri, Robert Costanzo, Robert Davi, Matt Gerald, Emmanuelle Chriqui, Anthony Fazio, Kevin Hart, Nick Mancuso, Deezer D, Geoff Stults. Lame vehicle for rap star Usher, who is adequate—and nothing more—in this gangsta nap about a club deejay recruited to guard a mob boss' daughter. When they get involved romantically, Dad gets ticked off. Predictable comedy-drama merges the worlds of hip-hop and the Mob in pedestrian manner. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

In the Mood (1987) C-99m. ½ D: Phil Alden Robinson. Patrick Dempsey, Talia Balsam, Beverly D'Angelo, Michael Constantine, Betty Jinette, Kathleen Freeman, Peter Hobbs, Edith Fellows. Engaging if low-key comedy based on true story of 1944's "woo woo kid" Sonny Wisecarver, a 15-year-old California boy who made headlines because of his affairs with two "older" women, one of whom he actually married. Dempsey is ideal and Robinson's script is delightfully wry, but film lacks a certain punch. The real-life Wisecarver appears as a mailman in newsreel sequence (narrated by an uncredited Carl Reiner). Wonderful score by Ralph Burns, incorporating many vintage songs. [PG-13]▼●

In the Mood for Love (2000-Hong Kong-French) C-97m. ½ D: Wong Kar-wai. Maggie Cheung, Tony Leung, Lai Chin, Rebecca Pan, Siu Ping-lam, Chin Tsi-ang. In 1962 Hong Kong, two lonely, married people are drawn to each other, but dare not pursue their feelings. An intriguing study of repressed emotions, ingeniously filmed so we're often peeking around corners, only partially seeing what is going on. An exceptional mood piece that, like its characters, too often keeps us at an emotional distance. [PG]▼

tensen. From his padded cell, desperate Neill relates his story to Warner: Hired to locate reclusive horror writer Prochnow, Neill finds him in a small New England town. But then people, places, and even reality begin undergoing horrific transformations. The first two-thirds is among Carpenter's best work as a director, and Neill is outstanding, but the last third becomes pointlessly obscure, and the ending is a pretentious letdown. Derived, without credit, from concepts created by H. P. Lovecraft. Panavision. [R]▼●●

In the Name of the Father (1993-U.S.-Irish) C-127m. ½ D: Jim Sheridan. Daniel Day-Lewis, Pete Postlethwaite, Emma Thompson, John Lynch, Corin Redgrave, Beatie Edney, Daniel Massey. Searing, fact-based account of youthful Belfast no-good who's picked up—along with a friend and most of his family—by British police and accused of a terrorist bombing he had nothing to do with. Director Sheridan grabs you by the collar and never lets go; Day-Lewis is extraordinarily intense and believable, Postlethwaite every bit as good as his simple, straightforward dad. Gerry Conlon's book Proved Innocent adapted by Sheridan and Terry George. [R]▼●●

In the Name of the King: A Dungeon Siege Tale (2008-German-Canadian) C-126m. BOMB D: Uwe Boll. Jason Statham, John Rhys-Davies, Ray Liotta, Matthew Lillard, Leelee Sobieski, Burt Reynolds, Ron Perlman, Claire Forlani, Kristanna Loken. Reluctant warrior Statham joins forces with a brave king (Reynolds) to battle a treacherous usurper (Lillard) and a wicked wizard (Liotta). Another videogame-inspired fiasco from the unfortunately prolific Boll. Even with a bigger budget and better actors than usual, this is a plodding patchwork of derivative fantasy-adventure, with substandard CGI effects and haphazardly edited action sequences. Alternate version runs 162m. Super 35. [PG-13]●

In the Navy (1941) 85m. ½ D: Arthur Lubin. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Dick Powell, The Andrews Sisters, Claire Dodd, Dick Foran. Bud and Lou are somehow in the Navy; Lou has hallucinations and nearly wrecks the entire fleet. Powell and Andrews Sisters provide songs, and Costello shows Abbott how $7 \times 13 = 28$. ▼●●

Sexually insatiable Matsuda will do anything to possess husband Fuji. Explicit, controversial, often erotic and well-acted, but overall a pretentious film. The story was previously told in A WOMAN CALLED SADA. ABE: BEYOND THE REALM OF THE SENSES.▼

In the Shadow of the Moon (2007-U.S.-British) C-100m. * D: David Singleton.

The story of the Apollo space program, as told by ten of the men who flew to (and in some cases walked on) the moon, illustrated by breathtaking NASA footage, some of which has never been seen before. The astronauts are candid, articulate, and reflective, nearly 40 years after their otherworldly exploits. (The most impressive: Mike Collins, who's kept a low profile since Apollo 11.) An unexpectedly moving reminder of a time when Americans were united in justifiable pride over a towering human achievement. [PG] ▮

In the Shadow of the Stars (1991) C-93m.  D: Irving Saraf, Allie Light. Absorbing documentary about members of the chorus of the San Francisco Opera Company—the drive that makes them want to sing, the yearning to take center stage, the sacrifices made, the dreams fulfilled. Even nonopera lovers will be caught up in this very human story, simply but eloquently told (with a healthy selection of operatic excerpts). Oscar winner for Best Documentary Feature. ▽ ▮

In the Soup (1992) C/B&W-90m. ½ D: Alexandre Rockwell. Steve Buscemi, Seymour Cassel, Jennifer Beals, Pat Moya, Will Patton, Sully Boyar, Jim Jarmusch, Carol Kane, Stanley Tucci, Rockets Redglare, Elizabeth Bracco, Debi Mazar, Sam Rockwell. Absurdist comedy about a naive, ambitious writer (Buscemi) who's penned a 500-page screenplay and the eccentric small-time hood (Cassel, in a canny, award-caliber performance) who promises to produce his film. At times very funny, but also downright silly; coscripted by Rockwell. Filmed in color, released in b&w. Both versions available on video. ▽ ▮

In the Spirit (1990) C-94m.  D: Sandra Seacat. Marlo Thomas, Elaine May, Peter Falk, Jeannie Berlin, Olympia Dukakis, Melanie Griffith, Michael Emil, Christopher Durang. Oddball throwback to black comedies of the 1970s, as mystic Thomas and house guest May get targeted by the mysterious killer who's murdered the prostitute next door. Packed with characters and performances that tend to grate on the nerves, though it is fun to see Thomas and May doing Abbott and Costello (or is it a neurotic version of Lucy and Ethel?). Griffith has just one scene. [R] ▽

In the Valley of Elah (2007) C-120m. ½ D: Paul Haggis. Tommy Lee Jones, Charlize Theron, Susan Sarandon, Jason Patric, James Franco, Josh Brolin, Frances Fisher, Jonathan Tucker, Mehdad Brooks, Wes Chatham, Jake McLaughlin, Victor Wolf, Barry Corbin. Retired Army investigator Jones takes matters into his own hands when his son, just returned from duty in Iraq, is reported AWOL. In time he convinces police detective Theron that his suspicions are worth checking out, in spite of stonewalling from Army officials and the young man's fellow soldiers. Riveting whodunit takes us into dark, difficult terrain, all of it mirrored on Jones' haunted face; his exceptional performance anchors this outstanding film. Haggis scripted from a story he wrote with Mark Boal, inspired by real-life events. Super 35. [R] ▮

In the White City (1983-Swiss-Portuguese) C-108m. ½ D: Alain Tanner. Bruno Ganz, Teresa Madruga, Julia Vonderlinn, Jose Carvalho. Involving, thought-provoking, Kafkaesque tale of seaman Ganz's experiences while in Lisbon, highlighted by his relationship with chambermaid Madruga. The work of a filmmaker in complete command of his art. ▽

In This Our Life (1942) 97m.  D: John Huston. Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, George Brent, Dennis Morgan, Charles Coburn, Frank Craven, Billie Burke, Hattie McDaniel, Lee Patrick, Ernest Anderson. Fine drama of neurotic family with husband-stealing Davis ruining sister de Havilland's life, and eventually her own; Davis at histrionic height. Based on Ellen Glasgow novel. Walter Huston has cameo role as bartender in one scene. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▽ ● ▮

In This World (2003-British) C-90m.  D: Michael Winterbottom. Jamal Udin Torabi, Enayatullah. Teenage Jamal and his slightly older uncle Enayat pool their resources for cross-country transportation from an Afghan refugee camp to London. They travel by truck, train, and boat with surprisingly few complications—but those few can be deadly. Intriguing, unscripted film was shot as the two protagonists, playing themselves, actually made the journey. This, coupled with handheld photography, creates a powerful sense of realism. Engrossing, almost hypnotic at times, though the ultimate point remains elusive. Digital Video Widescreen. [R] ▽ ▮

Intimate Affairs SEE: Investigating Sex
Intimate Lighting (1965-Czech) 72m.  D: Ivan Passer. Vera Kresadlova, Zdenek Brezusek, Karel Blazek, Jaroslava Stedra, Jan Vostrel, Vlastmila Vlkova, Karel Uhlik. Unpretentious, day-in-the-life story of two old friends, professional musicians, reuniting after long absence at country home. Excellent performances. ▽

Intimate Relations (1996-British-Canadian) C-105m.  D: Philip Goodhew. Julie Walters, Rupert Graves, Matthew Walker, Laura Sadler, Holly Aird, Les Dennis, Elizabeth McKechnie. Black comedy/melodrama of romantic obsession in 1954 England. Housewife Walters (wickedly effective) takes in sailor Graves as a lodger, and in no time passions are aroused throughout the household. Interesting British Empire tale (fact based, and for mature viewers) reminiscent in many ways of both A PRIVATE FUNCTION and HEAVENLY CREATURES. [R] ▽ ●

Intimate Stranger, The SEE: Finger of Guilt

Intimate Strangers (2004-French) C-105m.

 D: Patrice Leconte. Fabrice Luchini, Sandrine Bonnaire, Michel Duchaussoy, Anne Brochet, Gilbert Melki, Laurent Gamelon. A woman forces her way into a psychiatrist's office and pours her heart out about her marital woes; he doesn't have the heart to tell her that she's come to the wrong office, as he is a mere tax adviser. Their relationship blossoms just the same in this charming, often piquant film, with two masterly performances guided by the gifted Leconte. The girl who asks a question in the library is Aurore Auteuil, daughter of Daniel Auteuil and Emmanuelle Béart. Panavision. [R] ▼

Intolerable Cruelty (2003) C-100m. ½ D:

Joel Coen. George Clooney, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Geoffrey Rush, Cedric the Entertainer, Edward Herrmann, Paul Adelstein, Richard Jenkins, Billy Bob Thornton, Julia Duffy, Jonathan Hadary, Tom Aldredge. A swagging divorce attorney meets his match in a gold digger who sets her cap for him as the ultimate conquest. Clooney is terrific, Zeta-Jones is luminous, and they're supported by canny costars and faces out of Fellini's old casting directory . . . but the fun turns sour after a while, as no one is "real" enough to root for. Still, there are many funny moments, especially with Herrmann, Rush, and Thornton. Bruce Campbell appears unbilled. [PG-13] ▼

Intolerance (1916) 178m. * D: D. W.

Griffith. Lillian Gish, Robert Harron, Mae Marsh, Constance Talmadge, Bessie Love, Seena Owen, Alfred Paget, Eugene Pallette, many others. Landmark American epic interweaves four stories of prejudice and inhumanity, from the Babylonian era to the modern day. Melodramatic, to be sure, but gains in momentum and power as it moves toward its stunning climax. That's Lillian Gish as the mother rocking the cradle; Constance Talmadge gives a most appealing and contemporary performance as the sprightly Mountain Girl. Shown in a variety of prints with variant running times—as long as 208m. ▼

In Too Deep (1999) C-95m. ½ D: Michael Rymer. Omar Epps, LL Cool J, Nia Long, Stanley Tucci, Hill Harper, Pam Grier, Veronica Webb. Police academy grad (Epps) goes undercover to take on a ruthless crimelord known as "God" (LL Cool J) but finds he can't get out. Gritty, realistic gangsploitation actually avoids most of the clichés of the genre and has a commanding, understated performance from Epps at its core. Hip-hoppers Jermaine Dupri, Mya and Nas appear in cameos. Super 35. [R] ▼

Into the Arms of Strangers: Stories of the Kindertransport (2000) C/B&W-117m.

½ D: Mark Jonathan Harris. Narrated by Judi Dench. Well-crafted documentary covers a heretofore unexplored subject: the extraordinary efforts to place Jewish children from Germany, Austria, and Czechoslovakia out of harm's way by sending them to live with families in England during WW2. Told in large part by the people who lived through this experience, with the help of some incredibly rare footage from the period. From the same writer-director responsible for THE LONG WAY HOME. Oscar winner for Best Documentary. [PG] ▼

Into the Blue (2005) C-110m. *½ D: John Stockwell. Paul Walker, Jessica Alba, Scott Caan, Ashley Scott, Josh Brolin, James Frain, Tyson Beckford. While diving in the Bahamas, a quartet of Beautiful People encounters the remains of a crashed plane laden with a cache of cocaine. Picturesque scenery and plenty of eye candy don't compensate for a half-baked storyline, routine suspense, and mindless violence. Followed by a DVD sequel. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Into the Fire (1987-Canadian) C-93m. **

D: Graeme Campbell. Susan Anspach, Olivia d'Abo, Art Hindle. Old-fashioned murder/sex triangle thriller has the novelty of a wintry Canadian setting where lodge owner Anspach is an impressive seductress. Almost outdone by one too many plot twists. Precocious d'Abo is also a stunning, contrasting femme fatale. AKA LEGEND OF WOLF LODGE. [R] ▼

Into the Night (1985) C-115m.  D:

John Landis. Jeff Goldblum, Michelle Pfeiffer, Richard Farnsworth, Irene Papas, Kathryn Harrold, Paul Mazursky, Roger Vadim, Dan Aykroyd, David Bowie, Bruce McGill, Vera Miles, Clu Gulager. Engaging, episodic film about a middle-class nerd who helps a beautiful woman who's being chased by killers. Convoluted story filled with offbeat vignettes and colorful characters, many of them played by Hollywood directors (Don Siegel, Jonathan Demme, Jack Arnold, Lawrence Kasdan, Paul Bartel, David Cronenberg, Richard Franklin, Colin Higgins, Andrew Marton, Jonathan Kaufer, Amy Heckerling). Landis himself is very funny as one of the Iranian bad guys. Probably more appealing to film buffs than general audiences. [R] ▼

Into the Sun (1992) C-100m. *½ D:

Fritz Kiersch. Anthony Michael Hall, Michael Paré, Deborah Maria Moore, Terry Kiser, Brian Haley. Hall plays a conceited actor who tags along with U.S. pilot Paré in order to research an upcoming film role. Virtually identical in plot to the Michael J. Fox/James Woods comedy THE HARD WAY, with a change in milieu (and budget). Aerial stunts aren't bad considering the threadbare production values, but it's only for those who'll try anything. [R] ▼

Into the West (1993-Irish) C-97m.  D:

Mike Newell. Gabriel Byrne, Colm Meaney, Ellen Barkin, Ciaran Fitzgerald,

Ruaidhri Conroy, David Kelly, Johnny Murphy, John Kavanagh, Pauline Delaney. Dark, melancholy fable about two young brothers who flee their drab Dublin life (with a morose, widowed father) on the back of a mystical white horse. A highly original film with equal parts charm, dour Irish moods, and the theme of family and its inexorable pull on us all. Written by Jim Sheridan. [PG] ▼●●

Into the Wild (2007) C-148m. ½ D: Sean Penn. Emile Hirsch, William Hurt, Marcia Gay Harden, Jena Malone, Catherine Keener, Vince Vaughn, Kristen Stewart, Hal Holbrook, Brian Dierker, Zach Galifianakis, Thure Lindhardt. Recent college graduate Chris McCandless spurns his parents—and America's capitalist society—in search of quieter, more personal fulfillment in the Alaskan wilderness. But along the road he meets a variety of people who become something like extended family. Idiosyncratic melding of hippie sensibility and nature documentary results in writer-director-coproducer Penn's most artistic and powerful release to date—and a heartbreaker. Working on a large canvas, Penn elicits some wonderful vignettes and expert performances and punctuates it all with music by Eddie Vedder, among others. Based on the nonfiction bestseller by Jon Krakauer. Super 35. [R] ●

Introducing the Dwights (2007-Australian) C-105m. ½ D: Cherie Nowlan. Brenda Blethyn, Rebecca Gibney, Khan Chittenden, Richard Wilson, Frankie J. Holden, Russell Dykstra, Emma Booth, Katie Wall, Philip Quast. A soft-spoken teenage boy has put his own life on hold in order to shuttle his mother—a force of nature not to be trifled with—to engagements in comedy clubs around greater Sydney. But when he acquires a girlfriend for the first time, Mom goes ballistic. Mild comedy-drama about a messed-up family is easy to take and offers Blethyn a great showcase. Original Australian title: CLUBLAND. [R] ●

Intruder, The (1962) 80m.  D: Roger Corman. William Shatner, Frank Maxwell, Beverly Lunsford, Robert Emhardt, Leo Gordon, Jeanne Cooper, Charles Beaumont, George Clayton Johnson, William F. Nolan. Racist Shatner drifts from one small Southern town to another inciting townspeople to riot against court-ordered school integration. Corman's only "message" film—and one of his few box-office flops—still packs a punch; low budget and location filming aid authenticity. Script by Charles Beaumont. Reissued as I HATE YOUR GUTS! and SHAME. ▼●

Intruder, The (2005-French) C-129m.  D: Claire Denis. Michel Subor, Grégoire Colin, Katia Golubeva, Bambou, Florence Loiret-Caille, Beatrice Dalle. Unusual drama of one man's journey, both literal and metaphysical, as he leaves his hearty life behind on the French-Swiss border, arranges for a heart transplant, and moves to a remote South Seas island. Denis demands a great deal of the viewer as she interweaves past, present, and future and alternates between reality and a kind of dream-state. Difficult and fascinating at the same time; beautifully shot by Agnes Godard. Inspired by Jean-Luc Nancy's memoir. Super 35. ●

Intruder in the Dust (1949) 87m.  D: Clarence Brown. David Brian, Claude Jarman, Jr., Juano Hernandez, Porter Hall, Elizabeth Patterson. Black man (Hernandez, in a solid performance) is accused of murder in a Southern town, and a gathering mob wants to lynch him. First-rate adaptation of William Faulkner novel. Surprisingly strong for a mainstream Hollywood film of that period; good use of locations, superbly photographed by Robert Surtees. Biggest problem: Brian's character is always speechifying and moralizing. Screenplay by Ben Maddow. ▼

Invaders, The SEE: 49th Parallel
Invaders From Mars (1953) C-78m.  D: William Cameron Menzies. Helena Carter, Arthur Franz, Jimmy Hunt, Leif Erickson, Hillary Brooke, Bert Freed. Starkly stylish sci-fi told from little boy's point of view, as he alone witnesses arrival of aliens who capture and brainwash residents of average small town. Remade in 1986. Alternate British version runs 83m.—and changes the ending! ▼●●

Invaders From Mars (1986) C-100m. *½ D: Tobe Hooper. Karen Black, Hunter Carson, Timothy Bottoms, Laraine Newman, James Karen, Louise Fletcher, Bud Cort, Jimmy Hunt. Remake of '50s fantasy favorite about a boy's nightmarish experiences when aliens land in his back yard and overtake everyone around him—even his parents. Starts fine, rapidly goes downhill toward utter disaster. Hunt, the youngster in the original film, plays a police chief here; the boy this time is real-life son of costar Black. J-D-C Scope. [PG] ▼●●

Invasion, The (2007) C-99m. *½ D: Oliver Hirschbiegel. Nicole Kidman, Daniel Craig, Jeremy Northam, Jackson Bond, Veronica Cartwright, Jeffrey Wright, Josef Sommer, Celia Weston, Roger Rees, Eric Benjamin, Adam LeFevre. Third remake of INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS is not the charm, as this mess never comes together as both the sci-fi thriller and human drama it seeks to be. Kidman is a Washington, D.C., psychiatrist who slowly discovers that a mysterious disease taking over the planet may be alien-inspired. With the help of doctor Craig she must find the antidote before most of humankind is lost. Widely reported reshoots couldn't salvage this film. [PG-13] ●

Invasion Earth 2150 A.D. SEE: Daleks—Invasion Earth 2150 A.D.

Invasion Force SEE: Hangar 18

Invasion of the Animal People (1962) 73m. *½ D: Virgil Vogel, Jerry Warren. Robert Burton, Barbara Wilson, Sten Gester, Bengt Bomgren. John Carradine is narrator and American link for Swedish-made 1958 production about rampaging monster who escapes from spaceship and terrorizes Lapland. Low-grade nonsense. Original Swedish version, TERROR IN THE MIDNIGHT SUN, available on DVD. ▼

Invasion of the Bee Girls (1973) C-85m.  D: Denis Sanders. Victoria Vetri, William Smith, Anitra Ford, Cliff Osmond, Wright King, Ben Hammer. Wonderfully campy (and sexy) sci-fi outing about a strange force that's transforming women into dangerous creatures who you-know-what men to death in a small California town. Written by Nicholas Meyer PRESEVEN-PER-CENT SOLUTION. [R] ▼

Invasion of the Body Snatchers (1956) 80m. ½ D: Don Siegel. Kevin McCarthy, Dana Wynter, Larry Gates, King Donovan, Carolyn Jones, Virginia Christine. Classic, influential, and still very scary science-fiction (with McCarthy-era subtext) about small-town residents who are being replaced by duplicates hatched from alien "pods." Tense script by Daniel Mainwaring from Jack Finney's The Body Snatchers; Sam Peckinpah can be glimpsed as a meter reader. Appropriately frightening musical score by Carmen Dragon. Reissued in 1979 at 76m., minus unnecessary, studio-imposed prologue and epilogue with Whit Bissell and Richard Deacon. Remade in 1978 and 1994 (as BODY SNATCHERS), and in 2007 as THE INVASION. Also shown in computer-colored version. SuperScope. ▼

Invasion of the Body Snatchers (1978) C-115m.  D: Philip Kaufman. Donald Sutherland, Brooke Adams, Leonard Nimoy, Jeff Goldblum, Veronica Cartwright. Chilling remake of 1956 classic with many new twists and turns; unfortunately, it runs out of steam and offers one climax too many. Kevin McCarthy and Don Siegel, star and director of original film, have significant cameo roles; look fast for Robert Duvall. Weird score by Denny Zeitlin. [PG] ▼

Invasion Siniestra SEE: Sinister Invasion
Invasion U.S.A. (1985) C-107m. BOMB D: Joseph Zito. Chuck Norris, Richard Lynch, Melissa Prophet, Alex Colon. Political-paranoia action film about retired CIA agent (Norris) back on the job when Russian terrorists invade Florida, try to overtake entire country by causing panic and turmoil. Repellent in the extreme. [R] ▼

Inventing the Abbotts (1997) C-120m.  D: Pat O'Connor. Liv Tyler, Joaquin Phoenix, Jennifer Connelly, Billy Crudup, Joanna Going, Kathy Baker, Will Patton, Barbara Williams, Alessandro Nivola, Shawn Hatosy. Two working-class brothers try to woo the beautiful and wealthy Abbott sisters in 1950s Midwest America. Aspires to be a classic coming-of-ager like SPLENDOR IN THE GRASS, but despite a very attractive cast, the proceedings are pretty flaccid. Lush surroundings can't compensate for dull scripting; plays like an anemic Douglas Sirk melodrama or a return to Peyton Place. Michael Keaton narrates unbilled. [R] ▼

Investigating Sex (2006-U.S.-German) C-108m.  D: Alan Rudolph. Dermot Mulrooney, Julie Delpy, Robin Tunney, Neve Campbell, Jeremy Davies, Alan Cumming, Til Schweiger, John Light, Nick Nolte, Terrence Dashon Howard, Tuesday Weld, Emily Bruni. Talky film, set in the 1920s, in which a group of artists and intellectuals initiate a discourse on the subject of sexuality. Occasionally tart dialogue is overshadowed by long stretches of boredom and an outdated sense of daring. Hart Bochner appears unbilled. Completed in 2001. Aka INTIMATE AFFAIRS. [R] ▼

Investigation of a Citizen Above Suspicion (1970-Italian) C-115m.  D: Elio Petri. Gian Maria Volonté, Florida Bolkan, Salvo Randone, Gianni Santuccio, Arturo Dominici. Oscar-winning foreign film about powerful police chief who slashes the throat of his mistress, then waits entire movie to see if he'll be caught. Interesting, but not overly gripping. Superbly creepy score by Ennio Morricone. [R]

Invincible (2002-British-German) C-127m.  D: Werner Herzog. Tim Roth, Jouko Ahola, Anna Gourari, Jacob Wein, Max Raabe, Gustav Peter Wöehler, Udo Kier. A sweetly naïve young Polish Jew becomes a false symbol of hope for Jewry in pre-Hitler Berlin upon winning fame as a strongman in a cabaret show staged by Hanussen (Roth), the magician-clairvoyant. This fact-based account is overlong and by the numbers; it's a compelling tale that deserves a far more subtle, pointed treatment. Hanussen's story is told much more forcefully in Istvan Szabo's HANUSSEN. [PG-13] ▼

Invincible (2006) C-104m.  D: Ericson Core. Mark Wahlberg, Greg Kinnear, Elizabeth Banks, Kevin Conway, Michael Rispoli, Michael Nouri, Kirk Acevedo, Dov Davidoff, Michael Kelly, Sal Darigo, Nicoye Banks. Working-class stiff who's been laid off from his job and dumped by his wife pursues a whim when the new coach of the Philadelphia Eagles football team holds an open tryout. Fact-based story of Vince Papale (well played by Wahlberg) captures the hold a team can have on its hometown fans, especially when they have little else to believe in. Solid entertainment. Super 35. [PG] ▼

Invincible Six, The (1970) C-96m. ½

D: Jean Negulesco. Stuart Whitman, Elke Sommer, Curt Jurgens, James Mitchum, Ian Ogilvy. Energetic action film about a motley crew on the lam who come to the aid of isolated villagers under the thumb of a bandit gang. It's THE MAGNIFICENT SEVEN transplanted to present-day mid-East in this Iranian-made production. Wide-screen. ▼

Invisible, The (2007) C-97m. *½ D: David S. Goyer. Justin Chatwin, Margarita Levieva, Marcia Gay Harden, Chris Marquette, Alex O'Loughlin, Callum Keith Rennie, Michelle Harrison, Ryan Kennedy, Andrew Francis. Dreary teen ghost story about a promising high school senior who is caught in limbo between life and death, "invisible" to all around him and headed for expiration unless he can solve the mystery of his own murder. Sort of a cross between GHOST and RIVER'S EDGE, this tries to be a spiritual whodunit but winds up a whydidtheymakeit instead. Based on a 2002 Swedish film of the same name. Super 35. [PG-13]▶

Invisible Boy, The (1957) 89m.  D: Herman Hoffman. Richard Eyer, Philip Abbott, Diane Brewster, Harold J. Stone, Robert H. Harris; voice of Marvin Miller. The movies' first supercomputer not only helps scientist Abbott's lonely son Eyer become invisible (briefly) but also makes him smarter, so he can reassemble FORBIDDEN PLANET's Robby the Robot. However, the computer wants to use Robby to control the world. Robot-loving kids will take this straight, but it's an amusing, intelligent, low-key spoof of itself.▶

Invisible Circus, The (2001) C-92m.  D: Adam Brooks. Jordana Brewster, Christopher Eccleston, Cameron Diaz, Blythe Danner, Patrick Bergin, Camilla Belle, Moritz Bleibtreu. A teenage girl tries to retrace the footsteps of her older sister, a free spirit who died mysteriously in Europe seven years earlier. Diaz is excellent, but Brewster hits just one note in this unsatisfying film. Brooks adapted Jennifer Egan's novel. [R] ▼

Invisible Man, The (1933) 71m. ½ D: James Whale. Claude Rains, Gloria Stuart, Una O'Connor, William Harrigan, E. E. Clive, Dudley Digges, Dwight Frye. H. G. Wells' fantasy brilliantly materializes on screen in tale of mad scientist who makes himself invisible, wreaking havoc on British country village. Rains' starring debut is dated but still enjoyable. Look fast for John Carradine phoning in a "sighting"; that's Walter Brennan whose bicycle is stolen. ▼●●

Invisible Man Returns, The (1940) 81m.  D: Joe May. Cedric Hardwicke, Vincent Price, John Sutton, Nan Grey, Cecil Kellaway, Alan Napier. Fine follow-up, with Price going invisible to clear himself of murder charge. Considered by many to be Price's first horror film. ▼●●

Invisible Man's Revenge, The (1944) 77m.  D: Ford Beebe. Jon Hall, Alan Curtis, Evelyn Ankers, Leon Errol, John Carradine, Gale Sondergaard, Ian Wolfe, Billy Bevan. Hall allows unsuspecting scientist Carradine to make him invisible so he can seek vengeance on former business partners. Mixed-up script, unfunny comic relief (Errol), and slightly below par special effects add up to weakest INVISIBLE MAN sequel. ▼●●

Invisible Ray, The (1936) 81m. ½ D: Lambert Hillyer. Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Frances Drake, Frank Lawton, Walter Kingsford, Beulah Bondi. Scientist Karloff contracts radiation poisoning that gives him touch of death (and makes him glow in the dark). Interesting yarn, but a notch below other Karloff-Lugosi vehicles. ▼●●

Invisible Woman, The (1941) 72m.  D: A. Edward Sutherland. John Barrymore, Virginia Bruce, John Howard, Charlie Ruggles, Oscar Homolka, Margaret Hamilton, Donald MacBride, Edward Brophy, Shemp Howard, Charles Lane, Thurston Hall. Great cast in likable comedy about screwy professor Barrymore turning model Bruce invisible, arousing the curiosity of playboy sponsor Howard, as well as the more monetary interests of gangster Homolka. Slick and sprightly, with Ruggles terrific as Howard's long-suffering butler; Maria Montez has a bit as one of Bruce's fellow models. ▼●●

Invitation to a Gunfighter (1964) C-92m. ½ D: Richard Wilson. Yul Brynner, George Segal, Janice Rule, Pat Hingle, Brad Dexter. Cast surpasses turgid, talky script about town that hires gunslinger to kill an outcast, with surprising results. ▼

Invitation to the Dance (1956) C-93m. ½ D: Gene Kelly. Gene Kelly, Igor Youskevitch, Claire Sombert, David Paltenghi, Daphne Dale, Claude Bessy, Tommy Rall, Carol Haney, Tamara Toumanova, Belita. Kelly's ambitious film tells three stories entirely in dance. Earnest but uninspired, until final "Sinbad" segment with Kelly in Hanna-Barbera cartoon world. Music by Jacques Ibert, Andre Previn, and Rimsky-Korsakov. Filmed in 1952. ▼

In Which We Serve (1942-British) 115m. * D: Noel Coward, David Lean. Noel Coward, John Mills, Bernard Miles, Celia Johnson, Kay Walsh, Joyce Carey, Michael

Wilding, James Donald, Richard Attenborough. Unlike many WW2 films, this masterpiece doesn't date one bit; superb film about men on a British fighting ship, told through flashback. Written, codirected, and scored by costar Coward (who was given a special Oscar "for his outstanding production achievement"). Lean's first directing credit. Film debuts of Johnson, Attenborough, young Daniel Massey, and infant Juliet Mills. ▼●●

I Only Want You to Love Me (1976-West German) C-101m. ½ D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Vitus Zeplichal, Elke Aberle, Alexander Allerson, Ernie Mangold, Johanna Hofer. Intriguing morality tale of decent, hardworking young bricklayer, whose Bavarian upbringing was noticeably lacking in parental affection. When he marries and moves to Munich, the lure of the big-city consumer society (and the ability to buy on credit) proves disastrous. Deliberately paced but offbeat examination of a shattered psyche. Made for TV; unreleased in the U.S. until 1994. ▼

I Ought to Be in Pictures (1982) C-107m.  D: Herbert Ross. Walter Matthau, Ann-Margret, Dinah Manoff, Lance Guest, Lewis Smith, Martin Ferrero, David Faustino, Michael Dudikoff. Poor formula Neil Simon sitcom, adapted from his play: 19-year-old Brooklynite Manoff hitches to L.A. to make it in movies—and establishes connection with her father (Matthau), screenwriter turned gambler-drinker. Matthau and Manoff do their best; Ann-Margret wasted as Walter's mistress. [PG] ▼

Ipress File, The (1965-British) C-108m. ½ D: Sidney J. Furie. Michael Caine, Nigel Green, Guy Doleman, Sue Lloyd, Gordon Jackson. First and best of Len Deighton's Harry Palmer series, with Caine as unemotional Cockney crook turned secret agent, involved in grueling mental torture caper. Eerie score by John Barry. Followed by two sequels—FUNERAL IN BERLIN and BILLION DOLLAR BRAIN—and a pair of cable TV follow-ups in 1997, BULLET TO BEIJING and MIDNIGHT IN ST. PETERSBURG. Techniscope. ▼●●

Iphigenia (1977-Greek) C-127m. ½ D: Michael Cacoyannis. Irene Papas, Tatiana Papamaskou, Costa Kazakos, Costa Carras, Christos Tsangas. Ambitious but over-directed adaptation of Euripides' Iphigenia in Aulis, in which Agamemnon becomes convinced that, to earn military victory, he will have to sacrifice his daughter Iphigenia (impressively played by young Papamaskou). The elements of high drama are present, but Cacoyannis opts for eye-popping visuals rather than focusing on the heart of the story. ▼●

phen Fry, Tony Shalhoub, Frank Whaley, Keene Curtis, Charles Durning, Alice Playten, Danny Zorn. Pleasant romantic comedy (perhaps too "cute" for some viewers) about a garage mechanic who falls in love with a customer at first sight, and gets some unusual matchmaking help from her uncle—Albert Einstein! Likable performances by well-matched Robbins and Ryan, with Matthau having fun as the cagey Professor. Set in 1950s Princeton, N.J. Super 35. [PG] ▼●●

Ira & Abby (2007) C-100m. ½ D: Robert Cary. Chris Messina, Jennifer Westfeldt, Frances Conroy, Judith Light, Jason Alexander, Robert Klein, Fred Willard, Maddie Corman, Darrell Hammond, Chris Parnell, Jon Hamm, B. D. Wong. Westfeldt (KISSING JESSICA STEIN) wrote this "comedy of divorce" about neurotic New Yorker Ira (Messina), who can't ever make a decision. At the other end of the spectrum, Abby (Westfeldt) wants to get married minutes after meeting him. She's a warmhearted, outgoing person, and he gets caught up in her upbeat life—at least for a while. Light and Klein are funny as Messina's analyst parents, as are Conroy and Willard as Westfeldt's sunny mom and dad. Uneven but often very funny. Donna Murphy appears unbilled. [R] ●

Iraq in Fragments (2006) C-94m.  D: James Longley. Documentary takes its cameras from southern to northern Iraq to see the effect war—and opposing religious philosophies—has taken on the country, in three segments that spotlight Shiites, Sunnis, and Kurds. Using no intruding narration, filmmaker Longley tells the story through the eyes and words of the Iraqi people, painting a compelling portrait of a troubled country and presenting a largely nonpolitical view Americans have rarely seen. Longley photographed, coedited, co-produced, and scored the film. ●

I Remember Mama (1948) 134m. ½ D: George Stevens. Irene Dunne, Barbara Bel Geddes, Oscar Homolka, Philip Dorn, Cedric Hardwicke, Edgar Bergen, Rudy Vallee, Barbara O'Neil, Florence Bates, Ellen Corby. Beautifully realized, exquisitely detailed filming of John Van Druten's play, based on Kathryn Forbes' memoirs about growing up with her Norwegian immigrant family in San Francisco. A bit long, but richly rewarding, with top performances in each and every role. Screenplay by DeWitt Bodeen. Followed by the TV series Mama. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Irina Palm (2008-Belgian-French-German-British-Luxembourgian) C-100m.  D: Sam Garbarski. Marianne Faithfull, Miki Manojlovic, Kevin Bishop, Siobhán Hewlett, Dorka Gryllus, Jenny Agutter. A sixtyish widow (Faithfull), in a financial bind due to her grandson's illness, takes a job as a "hostess" (translation: sex worker) in a Soho, London, club. Simple, no-frills drama presents a hardnosed look at human relations in a cold, cynical world while offering an unusual, nonexploitive spin on the sex industry. Only falters during a couple of unnecessary scenes near the finale. [R] ●

Iris (2001-British-U.S.) C-90m. ½ D: Richard Eyre, Judi Dench, Jim Broadbent, Kate Winslet, Hugh Bonneville, Penelope Wilton, Juliet Aubrey, Samuel West, Timothy West, Eleanor Bron. Dench plays noted British author and psychologist Dame Iris Murdoch, with Broadbent as her devoted husband; Winslet and Bonneville play the characters in flashbacks to the 1950s when they first met at Oxford. As Iris descends into the world of Alzheimer's, her husband loses his grip, and the results become difficult to watch, despite the fine performances. Broadbent won an Oscar for Best Supporting Actor. [R] ▼●

Irish in Us, The (1935) 84m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Olivia de Havilland, Mary Gordon, Frank McHugh, Allen Jenkins. Pretty stale comedy about rivalry between policemen and prizefighters, with good cast to hold one's interest.

Irishman, The (1978-Australian) C-108m.  D: Donald Crombie. Michael Craig, Simon Burke, Robin Nevin, Lou Brown, Andrew Maguire. Effective, wonderfully acted drama of teamster Craig, his wife and sons, and his refusal to accept change and progress during the 1920s. A touching portrait of a family in turmoil. ▼●

Irma la Douce (1963) C-142m. ½ D: Billy Wilder. Shirley MacLaine, Jack Lemmon, Lou Jacobi, Herschel Bernardi, Joan Shawlee, Hope Holiday, Bill Bixby. Wilder's straight comedy adaptation of Broadway musical is a Parisian fairytale for adults. Gendarme Lemmon falls for prostitute MacLaine and will do anything to keep her for himself. Red Light District is vividly recreated, but reteaming of stars and director can't equal THE APARTMENT. André Previn won an Oscar for his scoring. Look fast for young James Caan in walk-on. Panavision. ▼●●

Irma Vep (1996-French) C-96m.  D: Olivier Assayas. Maggie Cheung, Jean-Pierre Léaud, Nathalie Richard, Alex Descas, Nathalie Boutefeu, Dominique Faysse, Bulle Ogier, Arsinée Khanjian, Lou Castel. Keen, insightful satire of movies and the disorder surrounding the moviemaking process. Hong Kong action-film star Cheung (cast as herself) comes to Paris to star in a reworking of Louis Feuillade's 1915-16 serial LES VAMPIRES. However, the inspiration for her character is not so much Feuillade as Michelle Pfeiffer's Catwoman in BATMAN RETURNS. Crammed with cinematic references and biting criticisms of contemporary moviemaking. The title, incidentally, is an anagram. ▼●●

I, Robot (2004) C-115m. ½ D: Alex Proyas. Will Smith, Bridget Moynahan, Bruce Greenwood, James Cromwell, Chi McBride, Shia LaBeouf, Adrian L. Ricard, Alan Tudyk. In the year 2035, Chicago cop Smith harbors a deep resentment toward the robots that have become ubiquitous as servants and laborers in American society. When a prominent scientist dies, he (and he alone) suspects foul play, and won't rest until he connects the dots at the monopolistic corporation that manufactures and sells the robots. Interesting premise is squandered in this obvious and overlong film, with cartoonish special effects and too many Will Smith-isms. "Suggested" by Isaac Asimov's classic short story collection. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Iron Cowboy SEE: Fade-In

Iron Curtain, The (1948) 87m.  D: William Wellman. Dana Andrews, Gene Tierney, June Havoc, Berry Kroeger, Edna Best. Well-made, based-on-fact "anti-commie" saga of Igor Gouzenko (Andrews), who with wife Tierney attempts to defect to the West with top-secret documents. Filmed on location in Canada. Retitled: BEHIND THE IRON CURTAIN.

Iron Eagle (1986) C-119m. *½ D: Sidney J. Furie. Louis Gossett, Jr., Jason Gedrick, David Suchet, Tim Thomerson, Larry G. Scott, Caroline Lagerfelt, Jerry Levine. Dumdum comic-book movie about an 18-year-old who commandeers an F-16 fighter jet and flies to the Middle East (playing rock music on his Walkman all the way) in order to save his dad, who's been taken prisoner. Full of jingoistic ideals, dubious ethics, and people who die and miraculously come back to life. Not boring, just stupid. Followed by three sequels. [PG-13] ▼●●

Iron Eagle II (1988-Canadian-Israeli) C-105m. *½ D: Sidney J. Furie. Louis Gossett, Jr., Mark Humphrey, Stuart Margolin, Alan Scarfe, Sharon H. Brandon, Maury Chaykin. Equally idiotic sequel, with General Gossett recruiting pilot Humphrey to team with his Soviet counterparts on a secret mission in the Mideast. Humphrey may be a Tom Cruise clone, but the film makes TOP GUN seem like FROM HERE TO ETERNITY. Sequels: ACES: IRON EAGLE III and IRON EAGLE IV. [PG] ▼●●

Iron Giant, The (1999) C-86m.  D: Brad Bird. Voices of Jennifer Aniston, Eli Marienthal, Harry Connick, Jr., Vin Diesel, Christopher McDonald, James Gammon, Cloris Leachman, John Mahoney, M. Emmet Walsh. Striking and original animated feature gently pokes fun at 1950s paranoia (and sci-fi movies), as a boy befriends a huge robotic creature from outer space. That writer-director Bird and his animators can bring such feeling to a metallic character is just one of this film's triumphs. Based on the book The Iron Man by Ted Hughes. Celco-Widescreen. [PG]▼●●

Iron Hand, The SEE: Chinese Connection, The

Iron Horse, The (1924) 119m.  D: John Ford. George O'Brien, Madge Bellamy, Cyril Chadwick, Fred Kohler, Gladys Hulette, J. Farrell MacDonald. Epic-scale silent film about building of transcontinental railroad, intertwined with predictable human-interest subplots involving surveyor O'Brien, sweetheart Bellamy, traitor Kohler, etc. May seem hackneyed today, but it's important to note that this movie invented what later became clichés. ▼●

Iron Man (2008) C-126m. ½ D: Jon Favreau. Robert Downey, Jr., Jeff Bridges, Gwyneth Paltrow, Terrence Howard, Leslie Bibb, Shaun Toub, Faran Tahir, Clark Gregg, Bill Smitrovich, Jon Favreau, Peter Billingsley, Tim Guinee; voice of Paul Bettany. When wealthy weapons manufacturer Tony Stark is taken prisoner on a trip to Afghanistan he cobbles together a super-suit . . . and vows to get out of the arms business, having seen the misery it produces firsthand. Not-bad adaptation of the Marvel comic book, with Downey in good form as the brainy billionaire, but there are too many misfired ideas (like the Middle Eastern setting, uncomfortably real for a piece of escapist entertainment) and a retro heroine in Paltrow's lovesick Girl Friday. As usual there's a cameo by the character's co-creator Stan Lee. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Iron Mask, The (1929) 87m.  D: Allan Dwan. Douglas Fairbanks, Belle Bennett, Marguerite De La Motte, Dorothy Revier, Vera Lewis, William Bakewell, Nigel de Brulier, Ullrich Haupt. Entertaining Dumas tale (later filmed as THE MAN IN THE IRON MASK) told from point of view of D'Artagnan (Fairbanks), who becomes Louis XIV's protector from birth to later time when scheming Rochefort (Haupt) tries to pass off twin brother as heir to throne. Lavish silent swashbuckler originally had talkie sequences. Final scenes are especially poignant as this was Doug's farewell to the swashbuckling genre. Most current prints are of the 1940 reissue with narration by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. ▼●●

Iron Maze (1991-U.S.-Japanese) C-102m. *½ D: Hiroaki Yoshida. Jeff Fahey, Bridget Fonda, Hiroaki Murakami, J. T. Walsh, Gabriel Damon, John Randolph. Japanese industrialist Murakami, hoping to build an amusement park in a Pennsylvania steel town, is near-fatally assaulted; his American wife (Fonda) and a laid-off steelworker (Fahey) offer different perceptions of events leading to the incident. Muddled, pretentious RASHOMON remake, coexecutive-produced by Oliver Stone. [R]▼●●

Iron Monkey (1993-Hong Kong) C-87m.

 D: Yuen Wo Ping. Yu Rong Guang, Donnie Yen, Jean Wang, Tsang Sze Man, Yuen Shun Yi, James Wong, Yen Yee Kwan. In medieval China, a kindly village doctor masquerades as Iron Monkey, a Robin Hood type who fights a corrupt governor and helps the downtrodden. Made years before CROUCHING TIGER, HIDDEN DRAGON (and directed by its action choreographer), this anticipates some of its high-flying action techniques but has no pretensions: just a fast, entertaining action yarn with the exaggerated acting style of Hong Kong escapist fare. Pure fun. Cowritten by Tsui Hark. New music score added for slightly edited U.S. release in 2001. [PG-13]▼●

Iron Petticoat, The (1956-British-U.S.) C-87m. ½ D: Ralph Thomas. Bob Hope, Katharine Hepburn, James Robertson Justice, Robert Helpmann, David Kossoff. Curious comedy made in England tries to update NINOTCHKA theme with Hepburn as humorless Russian and Hope as American military man who tries to win her over. Stars' surprising rapport is film's chief value; mediocre script and direction kill the rest. VistaVision.

Iron Triangle, The (1989) C-91m.  D: Eric Weston. Beau Bridges, Haing S. Ngor, Johnny Hallyday, Liem Whatley, James Ishida. A U.S. Army captain, serving in Vietnam in 1969, is captured by a 17-year-old Vietcong soldier, and the pair develop a bond. Intriguing as a look at the war from the side of the "enemy," but the result is confused and slight. [R]▼●●

Ironweed (1987) C-144m. ½ D: Hector Babenco. Jack Nicholson, Meryl Streep, Carroll Baker, Michael O'Keefe, Diane Venora, Fred Gwynne, Margaret Whitton, Tom Waits, Jake Dengel, Nathan Lane, James Gammon, Joe Grifasi, Bethel Leslie, Ted Levine, Frank Whaley. William Kennedy adapted his Pulitzer Prize-winning novel about street people, set in Albany, N.Y., 1938. Nicholson plays a man trying to come to terms with the life he turned his back on years ago. Streep is his longtime companion who, like him, can't stay off the bottle for long. Babenco's first American film is strong on atmosphere and filled with haunting images . . . but it's long and unremittingly bleak, with a few too many dramatic peaks. The salvation is Nicholson and Streep, whose rich performances are a privilege to watch. [R]▼●●

Iron Will (1994) C-109m. *½ D: Charles Haid. Mackenzie Astin, Kevin Spacey, August Schellenberg, David Ogden Stiers, Brian Cox, George Gerdes, John Terry. Youngster enters a Winnipeg-to-St. Paul dog-sled race in the WW1 era; result is so "by the numbers" that you almost expect the numerals to start flashing on the screen, à la John Waters' POLYESTER. Two additional writers polished the original script by veteran John Michael Hayes (REAR WIN- DOW), presumably to make it more like a bad Disney Channel entry. There's a faint pulse whenever Spacey (as a journalist) shows up on screen. [PG]▼●●

Irreconcilable Differences (1984) C-117m.

 D: Charles Shyer. Ryan O'Neal, Shelley Long, Drew Barrymore, Sam Wanamaker, Allen Garfield, Sharon Stone, David Paymer. Bittersweet comedy about a bright young couple who marry and prosper, until success in Hollywood causes them to lose sight of what's really important in their lives. Result: Their ten-year-old daughter sues them for divorce! Perceptive script by Nancy Meyers and first-time director Shyer, with especially funny jabs at Hollywood. Also the only film in memory to drop the name of Sig Rumann! [PG]▼●●

Irreversible (2002-French) C-95m. *½ D:

Gaspar Noé. Monica Bellucci, Vincent Cassel, Albert Dupontel, Philippe Nahon, Jo Prestia. "Controversial" does not begin to describe this ugly, over-the-top rape-and-revenge tale, told in reverse a la MEMENTO, spotlighting events surrounding the defiling of beautiful Bellucci. Graphically violent, even by contemporary standards, this glorified exploitation film features an extended rape sequence and brutal murder that's hard to stomach. Though gimmicky and repugnant, some will admire the film for its audacity. Nahon's character, a butcher, appears in the director's earlier I STAND ALONE. Bellucci and Cassel are married in real life. Super 16.▼

Isadora (1968-British) C-131m. ½ D:

Karel Reisz. Vanessa Redgrave, James Fox, Jason Robards, Ivan Tchenko, John Fraser, Bessie Love, Cynthia Harris. Extremely long but gripping study of Isadora Duncan, first of modern dancers and most prominent free-thinker of her time. Interesting technique and carefully studied performances combine together in this offbeat biography. Originally released at 168 minutes, later recut to 131 minutes and retitled THE LOVES OF ISADORA. A third version, supervised by the director, was released to television in 1987 under the original title. [M/PG]▼

I Sailed to Tahiti with an All Girl Crew

(1968) C-95m. *½ D: Richard L. Bare. Gardner McKay, Fred Clark, Diane McBain, Pat Buttram, Edy Williams. One of the all-time camp classics, if only for its title. Unfortunately, film doesn't live down to its expectations.

Is Anybody There? (2009-U.S.-British) C-

92m. ½ D: John Crowley. Michael Caine, Bill Milner, Anne-Marie Duff, David Morrissey, Rosemary Harris, Elizabeth Spriggs, Leslie Phillips, Sylvia Syms, Peter Vaughan, Linzey Cocker. Ten-year-old boy (Milner, from SON OF RAMBOW) has an insatiable curiosity about death, not surprising since he lives among elderly people in his parents' nursing home. His life changes with the arrival of the Amazing Clarence (Caine), a retired magician. Agreeable, if unremarkable, film buoyed by its two lead performances. British title: IS THERE ANYBODY THERE? Super 35. [PG-13]

I Saw What You Did (1965) 82m.  D:

William Castle. Sara Lane, Andi Garrett, John Ireland, Joan Crawford, Leif Erickson, Patricia Breslin. Tense, gimmick-free Castle shocker about two teenage girls who dial phone numbers at random and whisper film's title; one of their "victims" is Ireland—who's just murdered his wife! Look out! Remade for TV in 1988.▼

I See a Dark Stranger SEE: Adventures, The

I Sent a Letter to My Love (1981-French)

C-96m. ½ D: Moshe Mizrahi. Simone Signoret, Jean Rochefort, Delphine Seyrig. A woman (Signoret) cares for her paralyzed brother (Rochefort); through a newspaper personals column, they unknowingly begin a romantic correspondence. Perceptive character study, highlighted by brilliant Signoret performance; fine work by Rochefort and Seyrig (as their spinsterish friend). Director Mizrahi and Gerard Brach adapted Bernice Rubens' novel. [PG]▼

I Served the King of England (2006-Czech) C-119m.  D: Jirí Menzel. Ivan Barnev, Oldrich Kaiser, Julia Jentsch, Martin Huba, Marián Labuda, Milan Lasica, Josef Abrhám, István Szabó. Wide-eyed young man works as a waiter in increasingly posh establishments during the 1930s, hoping to become a millionaire . . . but when the Germans invade Czechoslovakia his eye for pretty women gets him emmeshed in politics that will affect the rest of his life. Told in flashback as the leading character, now an old man just released from prison, looks back on his life. Alternately whimsical, sexy, and pointed parable about life in a country that has undergone more than its share of upheavals. Menzel adapted the novel by Bohumil Hrabal, who also wrote the director's signature film, CLOSELY WATCHED TRAINS.▶

I Shot Andy Warhol (1996-U.S.-British)

C-106m.  D: Mary Harron. Lili Taylor, Jared Harris, Stephen Dorff, Martha Plimpton, Danny Morgenstern, Lothaire Bluteau, Michael Imperioli, Reg Rogers, Donovan Leitch, Tahnee Welch, Eric Mabius. In 1968, Valerie Solanas shot pop art icon Warhol, seriously wounding him. This film traces her bizarre life leading to that moment, including the writing of her "SCUM Manifesto" decreeing males biologically obsolete. Taylor is brilliant as the delusional Solanas, and the film depicts Warhol (Harris, son of actor Richard), his "Factory," and the period in convincing detail. Not for all tastes and slightly pretentious, but well made and fascinating. [R]▼●●

I Shot Jesse James (1949) 81m.  D: Samuel Fuller. Preston Foster, Barbara Britton, John Ireland, Reed Hadley, J. Edward Bromberg. Flamboyant directorial touches (in Fuller's first film) cannot redeem essential dullness of story about Bob Ford, the man who plugged Jesse in the back. ▼

Ishtar (1987) C-107m.  D: Elaine May. Warren Beatty, Dustin Hoffman, Isabelle Adjani, Charles Grodin, Jack Weston, Tess Harper, Carol Kane, Aharon Ipale. The HEAVEN'S GATE of movie comedies made headlines because of its huge expense and costly delays, but the only thing wrong with it is that it isn't very funny. Beatty and Hoffman go the Hope and Crosby route as untalented singer-songwriters who get involved with international intrigue in North Africa (shades of ROAD TO MOROCCO!). A blind camel and a flock of vultures steal the show. Paul Williams' deliberately awful songs are funny, too, but not funny enough to overcome the flatness of director May's script. Produced by Beatty. [PG-13] ▼

Island, The (1962-Japanese) 96m.  D: Kaneto Shindo. Nobuko Otowa, Taiji Tonoyama, Shinji Tanaka, Masanori Horimoto. Engrossing documentary-style study of peasant family living on rocky island near Japan, struggling to survive. Visually stunning film contains not a single word of dialogue. ▼

Island, The (1980) C-114m. BOMB D: Michael Ritchie. Michael Caine, David Warner, Angela Punch McGregor, Frank Middlemass, Don Henderson, Zakes Mokae, Jeffrey Frank. Absolutely awful thriller about magazine reporter who investigates strange doings in the Caribbean and winds up a prisoner of primitive island tribe. You know you're in trouble when David Warner plays the most normal guy on the island! Peter Benchley scripted from his own novel. Panavision. [R] ▼

Island (1989-Australian) C-93m. ½ D: Paul Cox. Irene Papas, Eva Sitta, Anoja Weerasinghe, Chris Haywood, Francois Bernard. Three women—each struggling with a personal emotional crisis—meet on a remote Greek island. Knowing they are only to cross paths briefly, they unburden their innermost feelings to each other. Atmospheric psychological drama lacks a strong central core.

Island, The (2005) C-136m.  D: Michael Bay. Ewan McGregor, Scarlett Johansson, Djimon Hounsou, Sean Bean, Steve Buscemi, Michael Clarke Duncan, Ethan Phillips, Brian Stepanek. In a futuristic underground city, society is rigidly controlled and a lottery decides who'll get to move to an idyllic island. When McGregor suspects something is amiss, he enlists Johansson's aid to escape into a world they didn't expect. Well-cast but overheated thriller burns itself up with increasingly unbelievable action scenes and an unconvincing plot similar to that of PARTS: THE CLONUS HORROR. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Island at the Top of the World, The (1974) C-93m. ½ D: Robert Stevenson. David Hartman, Donald Sinden, Jacques Marin, Mako, David Gwillim, Agneta Eckemyr. Disney's attempt to score again in Jules Verne territory misses bull's-eye; simplistic, derivative story of Arctic expedition which stumbles across "lost" Viking civilization. Mainly for kids. [G] ▼

Island of Dr. Moreau, The (1977) C-104m.  D: Don Taylor. Burt Lancaster, Michael York, Nigel Davenport, Barbara Carrera, Richard Basehart. Handsomely produced remake of ISLAND OF LOST SOULS with Lancaster heading a solid cast as demented doctor who has spent years creating half-man, half-beast "humanimals." Good horror-fantasy chiller, based on H. G. Wells' novel. Remade in 1996. [PG] ▼

Island of Dr. Moreau, The (1996) C-95m. *½ D: John Frankenheimer. Marlon Brando, Val Kilmer, David Thewlis, Fairuza Balk, Ron Perlman, Marco Hofschneider, Temuera Morrison. Heavy-handed retelling of H. G. Wells' novel, as Thewlis is rescued at sea and brought to Dr. Moreau's island, where he's horrified to discover experiments turning animals into humans. Grotesque in the extreme, obvious, and ultimately pointless, but Brando devotees will want to check out his flamboyantly silly performance, and makeup buffs should admire Stan Winston's remarkable creations. Director's cut version runs 99m. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Island of Lost Souls (1933) 70m. ½ D: Erle C. Kenton. Charles Laughton, Bela Lugosi, Richard Arlen, Kathleen Burke, Stanley Fields, Leila Hyams. Strong adaptation of H. G. Wells' novel of a mad scientist isolated on a remote island, where he transforms jungle beasts into half-human abominations ("... are we not men?"). Laughton hams it up a bit, but despite more explicit horror films of late, this retains its frightening aura, particularly in the grisly finale. Remade as THE ISLAND OF DR. MOREAU in 1977 and 1996.▼●

Island of Love (1963) C-101m. *½ D: Morton Da Costa. Robert Preston, Tony Randall, Giorgia Moll, Walter Matthau, Betty Bruce, Michael Constantine. Con artist Preston sets out to transform a Greek isle into a tourist trap while evading the clutches of vengeful gangster Matthau. Silly, unfunny comedy wastes the talents of all concerned. Panavision.

Island of Terror (1966-British) C-90m.  D: Terence Fisher. Peter Cushing, Edward Judd, Carole Gray, Niall MacGinnis. Sci-fi tale about cancer research gone wild and mutations that result is directed and acted by veterans of the field, but result is nothing special.▼

Island of the Blue Dolphins (1964) C-93m. *½ D: James B. Clark. Celia Kaye, George Kennedy, Ann Daniel, Carlos Romero, Larry Domasin. True story of Indian girl (Kaye) abandoned on small island, befriended only by wild dogs. Set in early 19th century. Well meaning but not very good. Based on the novel by Scott O'Dell.▼

Island of the Burning Damned SEE: Island of the Burning Doomed

Island of the Burning Doomed (1967-British) C-94m. ½ D: Terence Fisher. Christopher Lee, Peter Cushing, Patrick Allen, Sarah Lawson, Jane Marrow, William Lucas. Aliens cause a massive heat-wave during winter. Good sci-fi, with Lee and Cushing at their best. Also known as ISLAND OF THE BURNING DAMNED and NIGHT OF THE BIG HEAT.▼

Island of the Lost (1967) C-91m. *½ D: John Florea; Underwater sequences, Ricou Browning, Richard Greene, Luke Halpin, Mart Hulswit, Jose De Vega, Robin Mattson, Irene Tsu. Anthropologist Greene takes his family on an expedition to find an uncharted South Sea isle but becomes shipwrecked. Clean-cut, highly innocuous travelogue from the Ivan Tors studio, cowritten by Tors and actor Richard Carlson. Underwater expert Browning appeared with Carlson years before as THE CREATURE FROM THE BLACK LAGOON.▼

Islands in the Stream (1977) C-105m.

½ D: Franklin J. Schaffner. George C. Scott, David Hemmings, Claire Bloom, Susan Tyrrell, Gilbert Roland, Richard Evans, Hart Bochner, Julius Harris. Film version of Hemingway novel about an island-dwelling sculptor and his three sons begins well but falls apart completely in the final third. Still one of the better adaptations of this author, with one of Scott's best performances. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Isle of Fury (1936) 60m.  D: Frank McDonald. Humphrey Bogart, Margaret Lindsay, Donald Woods, Paul Graetz, Gordon Hart, E. E. Clive. Mild remake of Somerset Maugham novel The Narrow Corner, involving love triangle on South Sea island.

Isle of Lost Women SEE: 99 Women

Isle of the Dead (1945) 72m.  D: Mark Robson. Boris Karloff, Ellen Drew, Marc Cramer, Katherine Emery, Helene Thimig, Jason Robards (Sr.). Eerie horror tale of assorted characters stranded on Greek island during quarantine—one of them possibly a vampire. Good Val Lewton production.▼●●

Isn't She Great (2000) C-95m.  D: Andrew Bergman. Bette Midler, Nathan Lane, Stockard Channing, David Hyde Pierce, John Cleese, John Larroquette, Amanda Peet. Ill-conceived film about highly driven actress turned authoress Jacqueline Susann (Valley of the Dolls) and the one man who believes in her, her press agent husband, Irving Mansfield. Not funny enough to succeed as a comedy, not serious or solid enough to work as a biography; Lane is awfully hard to resist, however, as the irrepressibly upbeat Mansfield. Screenplay by Paul Rudnick, from Michael Korda's magazine article. [R]▼

Is Paris Burning? (1966-French-U.S.)

Jean-Paul Belmondo, Charles Boyer, Leslie Caron, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Claude Dauphin, Alain Delon, Kirk Douglas, Glenn Ford, Gert Frobe, Daniel Gelin, Yves Montand, Anthony Perkins, Simone Signoret, Robert Stack, Orson Welles. Rambling pseudo-documentary-style recreation of WW2 France, showing liberation of Paris and Nazis' attempt to burn the city. Cameos by international players confuse blotchy film made in Europe. Screenplay by Gore Vidal and Francis Ford Coppola, from the Larry Collins-Dominique Lapierre book. Panavision.▼●●

ISpy (2002) C-96m. *½ D: Betty Thomas. Eddie Murphy, Owen Wilson, Famke Janssen, Malcolm McDowell, Gary Cole, Phill Lewis. In-name-only reincarnation of the smart 1960s TV show (which starred Robert Culp and Bill Cosby). Here, Wilson is an inept NSA operative who uses cocky prizefighter Murphy as his cover to locate a secret weapon in Budapest. An object lesson in bad screenwriting, with an incoherent story, and characters that make no sense; only the occasional comic riffs by Murphy and Wilson keep this from complete disaster. [PG-13] ▼

Istanbul (1957) C-84m.  D: Joseph Pevney. Errol Flynn. Cornell Borchers, John Bentley, Torin Thatcher, Leif Erickson, Martin Benson, Nat "King" Cole, Werner Klemperer. Dull drama of flyer Flynn returning to Istanbul, discovering his ladylove (whom he believed had perished in a fire) to be alive and an amnesiac. Sole bright spot: Cole singing "When I Fall in Love." Remake of SINGAPORE. CinemaScope. ▼

Istanbul (1990-Turkish-Swedish) C-88m. BOMB D: Mats Arehn. Timothy Bottoms, Twiggy, Emma Kilberg, Robert Morley, Lena Endre, Sverre Anker Ousdal. Journalist Bottoms arrives in Istanbul with his daughter to seek information on family of his wife's son, becomes enmeshed in confusing intrigue. Twiggy is a mystery woman. Murky, clumsy, international co-production is about as interesting as watching camel spit dry. [PG-13] ▼●

Is There Sex After Death? (1971) C-97m.  D: Jeanne Abel, Alan Abel. Buck Henry, Alan Abel, Marshall Efron, Holly Woodlawn, Earle Doud. Crude but funny satire of porn films. Famous hoaxer Abel (who, with his wife, also produced and scripted) plays a traveling sexologist; Efron hilariously as an X-rated-film director. [R—edited from original X rating] ▼

I Still Know What You Did Last Summer (1998) C-101m. *½ D: Danny Cannon. Jennifer Love Hewitt, Freddie Prinze, Jr., Brandy, Mekhi Phifer, Muse Watson, Matthew Settle, Bill Cobbs, Jeffrey Combs, Jennifer Esposito, John Hawkes. Hewitt and friends win a vacation to a Caribbean island, where they are pursued by the killer with a hook from the first movie, I KNOW WHAT YOU DID LAST SUMMER. Another film in which the cast runs around screaming while being killed, one by one. Plotless mess lacks any suspense, and makes the original look like a classic. Jack Black appears unbilled. Followed by DVD sequel, I'LL ALWAYS KNOW WHAT YOU DID LAST SUMMER. Panavision. [R] ▼●

It (1927) 72m. ½ D: Clarence Badger. Clara Bow, Antonio Moreno, William Austin, Jacqueline Gadsdon (Jane Daly), Priscilla Bonner. Bow is dazzling in this otherwise ordinary tale of a spirited, gold-digging department-store salesgirl with designs on her handsome boss (Moreno). Based on Elinor Glyn's trendy story of the same title; Madame Glyn appears briefly as herself. Look for Gary Cooper in a walk-on as a reporter. ▼●●

It! (1967) C-96m.  D: Herbert J. Leder. Roddy McDowall, Jill Haworth, Ernest Clark,

It Ain't Hay (1943) 80m. ½ D: Erle C. Kenton. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Patsy O'Connor, Grace McDonald, Leighton Noble, Cecil Kellaway, Eugene Pallette, Eddie Quillan. Pretty good A&C from Damon Runyon story, "Princess O'Hara," of racehorse Teabiscuit; good supporting cast helps. ●

I Take This Woman (1940) 97m.  D: W. S. Van Dyke II. Spencer Tracy, Hedy Lamarr, Verree Teasdale, Kent Taylor, Laraine Day, Mona Barrie, Louis Calhern, Marjorie Main, Frances Drake, Jack Carson. Disappointing soaper with dedicated doctor Tracy sacrificing all for Lamarr, who at first isn't grateful. Long in production, with innumerable behind-the-scenes changes, this was a notorious dud in 1940.

Italian, The (2005-Russian) C-99m. ½ D: Andrei Kravchuk. Kolya Spiridonov, Maria Kuznetsova, Nikolai Reutov, Yriy Itskov, Denis Moiseenko. Six-year-old Vanya (Spiridonov) resides in an orphanage in contemporary Russia, whose administrators sell their charges for profit. Even though an Italian couple has adopted him, he remains determined to find his birth mother, who abandoned him. Dickensian slice-of-life about a youngster who is wise beyond his years and whose childhood has been stolen from him. Occasionally affecting, but not as involving as it should be. [PG-13] ●

Italian Connection, The (1973-Italian) C-92m.  D: Fernando Di Leo. Henry Silva, Woody Strode, Mario Adorf, Luciana Paluzzi, Sylva Koscina, Adolfo Celi. Violent gangster meller has Milanese hood Adorf set up by gang boss Celi for the blame in a six-million-dollar heroin heist. For action fans only. Aka MANHUNT (1973). [R] ▼●

Italian for Beginners (2000-Danish) C-99m.  D: Lone Scherfig. Anders W. Bertelsen, Anette Støvelbaek, Peter Gantzler, Ann Elonora Jørgensen, Lars Kaalund, Sara Indrio Jensen, Bent Mejding. Sweet, upbeat romantic comedy in which several lonely, vulnerable thirty-something singles mix and match while taking an Italian-language adult education class. Most enjoyable, and definitely not for cynics! Filmed using the "pure cinema" rules of Dogma 95. Originally shown at 112m. [R] ▼●

Italian Job, The (1969-British) C-101m. ½ D: Peter Collinson. Michael Caine, Noel Coward, Maggie Blye, Benny Hill, Tony Beckley, Raf Vallone. $4,000,000 in gold bullion's the object in average caper film about prison-based mastermind Coward's plan to divert authorities in Turin, Italy, causing "history's biggest traffic jam." Wild chases galore, plus truly bizarre ending, but characterizations are pat, forgettable. Remade in 2003. Panavision. [G] ▼●●

Italian Job, The (2003) C-110m.  D: F. Gary Gray. Mark Wahlberg, Charlize Theron, Edward Norton, Seth Green, Jason Statham, Mos Def, Franky G, Donald Sutherland. Entertaining caper starts out with a daring robbery, then a traitor disrupts business as usual with the otherwise loyal band of thieves. Winds up in L.A. with a wild chase sequence through the city's streets and subway system. Sleek script, superior action scenes, and an array of colorful, well-drawn characters make this fun from start to finish. Remake of the 1969 film includes a brief homage to its star, Michael Caine. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

It All Came True (1940) 97m. ½ D: Lewis Seiler. Ann Sheridan, Humphrey Bogart, Jeffrey Lynn, ZaSu Pitts, Jessie Busley, Una O'Connor, Grant Mitchell, Felix Bressart. Offbeat story combines comedy, drama, music, and sentiment as gangster Bogart hides out in quaint boarding-house. Fine showcase for Sheridan, who sings "Angel in Disguise" and "The Gaucho Serenade."

It All Starts Today (1999-French) C-117m. ½ D: Bertrand Tavernier. Philippe Torreton, Maria Pitarresi, Nadia Kaci, Véronique Ataly, Nathalie Bécue, Emmanuelle Bercot. Wrenchingly believable study of a dedicated schoolteacher in a working-class French community who tries to overcome one hurdle after another—from government bureaucracy to negligent parents—to provide his children with a decent education. No false dramatics here, just a potent slice of life. Written by the director, his daughter Tiffany, and her husband, Dominique Sampiero (based on his experience as a teacher). Super 35. ▼

It Always Rains on Sunday (1947-British) 92m. ½ D: Robert Hamer. Googie Withers, Jack Warner, John McCallum, Edward Chapman, Jimmy Hanley, John Carol, John Slater, Susan Shaw, Sydney Tafler, Alfie Bass, Betty Ann Davies, Jane Hylton, Hermione Baddeley. Excellent mosaic of characters whose lives intertwine in a drab London neighborhood. McCallum is escaped convict seeking refuge with his ex-lover, Withers. (In real life, the two stars married the following year.) Arthur La Bern's novel was scripted by Henry Cornelius, Angus MacPhail, and Hamer.

It Came From Beneath the Sea (1955) 80m.  D: Robert Gordon. Kenneth Tobey, Faith Domergue, Donald Curtis, Ian Keith, Harry Lauter. Breathtaking special effects highlight this sci-fi thriller. Huge octopus emerges from Pacific Ocean and wreaks havoc on San Francisco. First film made by the team of Ray Harryhausen and producer Charles H. Schneer. Also available in computer-colored version. ▼

It Came From Hollywood (1982) C-80m. ½ D: Malcolm Leo, Andrew Solt. Dan

Aykroyd, John Candy, Cheech and Chong, Gilda Radner. Contemporary comedy stars are spectacularly unfunny introducing and narrating clips from some of Hollywood's worst movies—most of which are funny enough without additional wisecracks. What's more, this pointless, poorly constructed compilation includes scenes from good movies like WAR OF THE WORLDS and THE INCREDIBLE SHRINKING MAN! Even so, howlers like MARS NEEDS WOMEN and PLAN 9 FROM OUTER SPACE still offer some genuine laughs. [PG] ▼

It Came From Outer Space (1953) 81m.  D: Jack Arnold. Richard Carlson, Barbara Rush, Charles Drake, Russell Johnson, Joe Sawyer, Kathleen Hughes. Intriguing science-fiction based on a Ray Bradbury story. An alien ship crashes in the Arizona desert; its passengers assume the identities of nearby townspeople so they can effect repairs unnoticed—they think. Remarkably sober for its era, with crisp performances and real restraint, even in its use of 3-D. The 1996 TV movie IT CAME FROM OUTER SPACE II is a much inferior remake, rather than the sequel the title suggests. ▼

It Came Without Warning: Without Warning

It Comes Up Murder SEE: Honey Pot, The It Conquered the World (1956) 68m. ½ D: Roger Corman. Peter Graves, Beverly Garland, Lee Van Cleef, Sally Fraser, Jonathan Haze, Dick Miller. Low-budget sci-fi which intelligently attempts to create atmospheric excitement in yarn of carrot-shaped monster from Venus, Paul Blaisdell's finest creation. One of Corman's best early quickies, well acted and interesting but awkwardly plotted. Remade as ZONTAR, THE THING FROM VENUS. ▼

It Could Happen to You (1994) C-101m.  D: Andrew Bergman. Nicolas Cage, Bridget Fonda, Rosie Perez, Wendell Pierce, Isaac Hayes, Victor Rojas, Seymour Cassel, Stanley Tucci, J. E. Freeman, Red Buttons, Richard Jenkins. Charming romantic comedy about a Good Samaritan cop who shares a lottery ticket with a hard-luck waitress—little dreaming it will make them both millionaires. Warm, winning performances by Cage and Fonda carry this N.Y.-based fairy tale, with a plot not intended for close scrutiny. Inspired by a true-life story. [PG] ▼

I Think a Fool (1962-British) C-100m.  D: Robert Stevens. Susan Hayward, Peter Finch, Diane Cilento, Cyril Cusack, Kieron Moore, Athene Seyler. Dreary, far-fetched story about Hayward spending a year and a half in prison for mercy-killing, then becoming involved with lawyer Finch, who prosecuted her case, with bizarre results. CinemaScope.

C-105m. * D: Norman Taurog. Elvis Presley, Joan O'Brien, Gary Lockwood, Yvonne Craig. Entertaining Presley vehicle set at Seattle World's Fair, with Elvis and O'Brien brought together by little Ginny Tiu. Listenable tunes (including "One Broken Heart for Sale," "A World of Our Own" and "Happy Ending") help make this most enjoyable. Young Kurt Russell, who later played Elvis in a TV movie, makes his film debut in a small role. Panavision. ▽

It Happened Here (1966-British) 95m. * D: Kevin Brownlow, Andrew Mollo. Pauline Murray, Sebastian Shaw, Fiona LeLard, Honor Feherson. Imaginative fable of Britain taken over by the Nazis during WW2, made in semidocumentary style by two ingenious young filmmakers. To get along in a harsh time, most Brits collaborate with the invaders, including nurse Murray, who has personal reasons to hate the resistance movement. ▽

It Happened in Brooklyn (1947) 105m.  D: Richard Whorf. Frank Sinatra, Kathryn Grayson, Jimmy Durante, Peter Lawford, Gloria Grahame. Hokey musical with Brooklynite Sinatra returning to his beloved borough after WW2; complications follow as he falls for music teacher Grayson. Some good songs, including "Time After Time" and wonderful Sinatra-Durante duet. "The Song's Gotta Come From the Heart." ▽

It Happened One Night (1934) 105m.  D: Frank Capra. Clark Gable, Claudette Colbert, Walter Connolly, Roscoe Karns, Alan Hale, Ward Bond. Legendary romantic comedy doesn't age a bit. Still as enchanting as ever, with reporter Gable and runaway heiress Colbert falling in love on rural bus trip. Hitch-hiking travails, the Walls of Jericho, other memorable scenes remain fresh and delightful. First film to win all five major Oscars: Picture, Actor, Actress, Director, and Screenplay (Robert Riskin). Based on Samuel Hopkins Adams' story "Night Bus," originally published in Cosmopolitan. Remade as musicals EVE KNEW HER APPLES and YOU CAN'T RUN AWAY FROM IT. ▽

It Happened One Summer SEE: State Fair (1945)

It Happened to Jane (1959) C-98m. ½ D: Richard Quine. Doris Day, Jack Lemmon, Ernie Kovacs, Steve Forrest, Teddy Rooney, Russ Brown, Mary Wickes, Parker Fennelly. Breezy, likable comedy: Doris runs a Maine lobster, and Jack is her lawyer; together they tangle with ultracheap villain Kovacs (who hams mercilessly). Aka TWINKLE AND SHINE. ▽

It Happened Tomorrow (1944) 84m. * D: René Clair. Dick Powell, Linda Darnell, Jack Oakie, Edgar Kennedy, John Philliber, Edward Brophy, George Cleveland, Sig Ruman, Paul Guilfoyle. Diverting if somewhat static fantasy yarn about a turn-of-the-century reporter who gets inside track

on tomorrow's headlines, leading to unexpected complications. Low key, often charming. ▽

It Happens Every Spring (1949) 87m. *½ D: Lloyd Bacon. Ray Milland, Jean Peters, Paul Douglas, Ed Begley, Ted de Corsia, Ray Collins, Jessie Royce Landis, Alan Hale, Jr., Debra Paget. Clever little comedy of chemistry professor (Milland) accidentally discovering a chemical mixture which causes baseballs to avoid all wooden surfaces, namely baseball bats. He takes leave from academia and embarks on meteoric pitching career. A most enjoyable, unpretentious picture. Story by Shirley W. Smith and Valentine Davies; scripted by Davies. ▽

I, the Jury (1953) 87m. ½ D: Harry Essex. Biff Elliot, Preston Foster, Peggie Castle, Margaret Sheridan, Alan Reed, Mary Anderson, Tom Powers, Joe Besser, Paul Dubov, Elisha Cook, Jr., John Qualen. Screen debut of Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer (and Elliot as well) finds the thuggish sleuth spending his Christmas holidays hunting down the killer of a close pal. Naturally, more corpses ensue. Dark-humored fun, with a moody Franz Waxman score and stunning 3-D photography by John Alton, including some eye-popping shots inside L.A.'s famed Bradbury Building. Screenplay by Essex. Remade in 1982.

I, the Jury (1982) C-111m.  D: Richard T. Heffron. Armand Assante, Barbara Carrera, Alan King, Laurene Landon, Geoffrey Lewis, Paul Sorvino, Judson Scott. Mickey Spillane's hard-boiled Mike Hammer seems out of place in this updated remake, though contemporary levels of violence and nudity suit the material. Lots of action and some truly beautiful women help camouflage the holes in Larry Cohen's script; Assante is a sulky Hammer. [R] ▽

I Think I Love My Wife (2007) C-94m. *½ D: Chris Rock. Chris Rock, Kerry Washington, Gina Torres, Steve Buscemi, Edward Herrmann, Welker White, Michael K. Williams, Stephen A. Smith, Wendell Pierce. Director-cowriter-coproducer Rock plays a successful but bored suburban family man who is contacted at his N.Y.C. office by an old pal's smoking-hot former flame (Washington). Her flirty afternoon visits become more frequent, and he is sorely tempted to stray. Rock has loosely updated Eric Rohmer's CHLOE IN THE AFTERNOON with dismal results. His own performance is leaden, and even Washington's femme fatale is wasted here. [R] ▽

It Lives Again (1978) C-91m. *½ D: Larry Cohen. Frederic Forrest, Kathleen Lloyd, John Ryan, John Marley, Andrew Duggan, Eddie Constantine. Sequel to IT'S ALIVE offers not one but three murderous babies. More of a horror film than a thriller—and not a very good one. Constantine's first

American film in many years. Aka IT'S ALIVE II; followed by IT'S ALIVE III: ISLAND OF THE ALIVE. [R]▼●●

It Only Happens to Others (1971-French-Italian) C-88m.  D: Nadine Trintignant. Marcello Mastroianni, Catherine Deneuve, Serge Marquand, Dominique Labourier, Catherine Allegret. Loss of young child causes happily married couple to withdraw from society. Heavy on the syrup. Panoramica. [PG]

It Runs in My Family (1994) C-85m.  D: Bob Clark. Charles Grodin, Kieran Culkin, Mary Steenburgen, Christian Culkin, Al Mancini, Troy Evans, Roy Brocksmith, Glenn Shadix, Dick O'Neill, Wayne Grace. Follow-up to A CHRISTMAS STORY—with a new cast—is a huge disappointment, chronicling the same family's adventures in the early '40s—from the boy's efforts to win at top-spinning to the Old Man's feud with his hillbilly neighbors. Culkin and Grodin are no match for Peter Billingsley and Darren McGavin in the earlier film, and many of writer/narrator Jean Shepherd's nostalgic musings don't come off nearly as well as they do in his writings and broadcasts. Barely released theatrically; retitled MY SUMMER STORY. [PG]▼●

It Runs in the Family (2003) C-109m.  D: Fred Schepisi. Michael Douglas, Kirk Douglas, Cameron Douglas, Diana Douglas, Bernadette Peters, Rory Culkin, Michelle Monaghan, Sarita Choudhury. Superficial story about conflicts between fathers, sons, girlfriends, and spouses serves merely as an excuse to bring three generations of Douglases together on-screen (not to mention Kirk's ex, Diana). But this contrivance is just that, with a script that might not pass muster as a TV movie. Michael Douglas also produced. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

I Trust You to Kill Me (2006) C/B&W-90m. ½ D: Manu Boyer. While on hiatus from shooting his hit TV series 24, Kiefer Sutherland acts as road manager on a European tour for Rocco DeLuca & The Burden, the group he's signed to his independent record label. Frank, revealing documentary offers a candid look at a celebrity after hours, but is most effective when contrasting a famous face and a bunch of talented but unknown wannabes. Bogs down in parts, but holds your interest most of the way. Film's title is the name of one of DeLuca's songs. [R]●

It's a Big Country (1951) 89m. ½ D: Charles Vidor, Richard Thorpe, John Sturges, Don Hartman, Don Weis, Clarence Brown, William Wellman. Ethel Barrymore, Keefe Brasselle, Gary Cooper, Nancy Davis (Reagan), Gene Kelly, Keenan Wynn, Fredric March, Van Johnson, James Whitmore; narrated by Louis Calhern. Dore Scharj's plug for America uses several pointless episodes about the variety of people and places in U.S. Other segments make up for it in very uneven film.

It's a Bikini World (1967) C-86m. ½ D: Stephanie Rothman. Deborah Walley, Tommy Kirk, Bob Pickett, Suzie Kaye, The Animals, The Gentrys. Superlover Kirk loves bikinied Debbie, but she doesn't dig him until he masquerades as an intellectual. Not among the best of its kind, if there even is a best of its kind. The Animals, however, do perform "We Gotta Get Out of This Place." Techniscope.

It's a Date (1940) 103m. ½ D: William A. Seiter. Deanna Durbin, Walter Pidgeon, Kay Francis, Eugene Pallette, Lewis Howard, S. Z. Sakall, Samuel S. Hinds, Cecilia Loftus. Durbin faces unique growing pains when she's offered a Broadway role intended for her mother (Francis) and then is courted by a man her mother's age (Pidgeon). Star trio shines brightly in this enjoyable contrivance, which unfortunately goes on too long and ends (incongruously) with Deanna singing "Ave Maria"! Remade as NANCY GOES TO RIO.▼

It's a Great Feeling (1949) C-85m. ½ D: David Butler. Dennis Morgan. Doris Day, Jack Carson, Bill Goodwin. Gentle spoof of Hollywood with Carson's ego making filming difficult for himself and partner Morgan; guest appearances by many Warner Bros. players and directors, including Joan Crawford, Gary Cooper, Michael Curtiz, Jane Wyman, Sydney Greenstreet, Danny Kaye, Edward G. Robinson, King Vidor, Eleanor Parker, Patricia Neal, Raoul Walsh, Ronald Reagan—and even Reagan and Wyman's daughter Maureen!▼●●

It's Alive! (1974) C-91m. ½ D: Larry Cohen. John Ryan, Sharon Farrell, Andrew Duggan, Guy Stockwell, James Dixon, Michael Ansara. Schlocky thriller about a baby who goes on a murderous rampage. Has a devoted following, but not for all tastes. Effective score by Bernard Herrmann. Sequels: IT LIVES AGAIN and IT'S ALIVE III: ISLAND OF THE ALIVE. [PG]▼●●

It's Alive II SEE: It Lives Again

It's Alive III: Island of the Alive (1987) C-91m. ½ D: Larry Cohen. Michael Moriarty, Karen Black, Laurene Landon, Gerrit Graham, James Dixon, Neal Israel, Macdonald Carey. Part 3 makes serious comments on issues ranging from the AIDS crisis to abortion as Moriarty, father of a monster baby, succeeds in preventing society from exterminating all the monster infants, who are quarantined on a desert island. Wild fun, loaded with dark humor. ▼◆

It's All True (1993) C/B&W-87m.  D: Richard Wilson, Myron Meisel, Bill Krohn. Fascinating assemblage of the remaining "lost" footage from Orson Welles' abandoned three-part documentary he was shooting in Brazil in 1942 as RKO brass was taking a knife to THE MAGNIFICENT AMBERSONS back in Hollywood. Only tantalizing snippets remain of the My Friend Bonito episode (shot in Mexico by Norman Foster under Welles' supervision) and of the seductive Carnival footage (some in color); virtually intact is what would have been the original's centerpiece: the Four Men on a Raft tribute to Brazilian fishermen. A major contribution to movie history, albeit one for specialized tastes; film concludes with an audio track of Welles with Carmen Miranda. For film buffs who think they've experienced it all. ▼◆◆

It's Always Fair Weather (1955) C-102m.  D: Gene Kelly, Stanley Donen. Gene Kelly, Dan Dailey, Michael Kidd, Cyd Charisse, Dolores Gray, David Burns. Three WW2 buddies meet ten years after their discharge and find they have nothing in common. Pungent Comden and Green script falls short of perfection but still has wonderful moments, and some first-rate musical numbers (like Cyd's "Baby, You Knock Me Out" and Dolores' "Thanks a Lot But No Thanks"). Best: the ash-can dance in widescreen. CinemaScope. ▼◆◆

It's a Mad Mad Mad Mad World (1963) C-154m. ½ D: Stanley Kramer. Spencer Tracy, Edie Adams, Milton Berle, Sid Caesar, Buddy Hackett, Ethel Merman, Mickey Rooney, Dick Shawn, Dorothy Provine, Phil Silvers, Jonathan Winters, Peter Falk, Jimmy Durante, Terry-Thomas, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, William Demarest, many guest stars. Supercomedy cast in attempt at supercomedy, about group of people racing to find hidden bank loot under watchful eye of detective Tracy. Big, splashy, generally funny, but bigness doesn't equal greatness. Homevideo version restored to 175m. Ultra Panavision 70. ▼◆◆

It's a Wonderful Life (1946) 129m. * D: Frank Capra. James Stewart, Donna Reed, Lionel Barrymore, Thomas Mitchell, Henry Travers, Beulah Bondi, Frank Faylen, Ward Bond, Gloria Grahame, H.B. Warner, Frank Albertson, Todd Karns, Samuel S. Hinds, Mary Treen, Sheldon Leonard, Ellen Corby. Sentimental tale of Stewart, who works all his life to make good in small town, thinking he's failed and trying to end his life. Guardian angel Travers comes to show him his mistake. Only Capra and this cast could pull it off so well; this film seems to improve with age. Capra, Frances Goodrich, Albert Hackett, and Jo Swerling expanded Philip Van Doren Stern's short story "The Greatest Gift" (which had originally been written by Stern as a Christmas card!). Remade for TV as IT HAPPENED ONE CHRISTMAS. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼◆◆

It's a Wonderful World (1939) 86m.  D: W. S. Van Dyke II. Claudette Colbert, James Stewart, Guy Kibbee, Nat Pendleton, Frances Drake, Edgar Kennedy, Ernest Truex, Sidney Blackmer, Hans Conried. Screwball comedy with Colbert a runaway poetess, Stewart a fugitive chased by cops Pendleton and Kennedy. Very, very funny, with Stewart having a field day. Scripted by Ben Hecht, from his and Herman J. Mankiewicz' story. We swear by our eyes!

It Seemed Like a Good Idea at the Time (1975-Canadian) C-106m.  D: John Trent. Anthony Newley, Stefanie Powers, Isaac Hayes, Lloyd Bochner, Yvonne De Carlo, Henry Ramer, Lawrence Dane, John Candy. Tired comedy with a mostly tired cast, centering on Newley's attempts to woo back his remarried ex-wife. Dane and Candy appear as a pair of bumbling cops, characters they replayed a year later in FIND THE LADY. Aka GOOD IDEA! [PG] ▼◆

It Should Happen to You (1954) 87m.  D: George Cukor. Judy Holliday, Peter Lawford, Jack Lemmon, Michael O'Shea, Vaughn Taylor. Holliday is Gladys Glover of Binghamton, N.Y., who has come to N.Y.C. to make a name for herself—and does so, by plastering her moniker across a Columbus Circle billboard. Judy is radiant in this charming romantic comedy/satire, scripted by Garson Kanin. Lemmon's first film. ▼◆◆

It Shouldn't Happen to a Vet SEE: All Things Bright and Beautiful

It's in the Bag! (1945) 87m.  D: Richard Wallace. Fred Allen, Binnie Barnes, Robert Benchley, Sidney Toler, Jack Benny, Don Ameche, Victor Moore, Rudy Vallee, William Bendix. Story similar to THE TWELVE CHAIRS with flea-circus promoter Allen entitled to inheritance; plot soon goes out the window in favor of unrelated but amusing episodes, including hilarious encounter between Allen and Benny. ▼

It's Love I'm After (1937) 90m.  D: Archie Mayo. Bette Davis, Leslie Howard, Olivia de Havilland, Patric Knowles, Eric Blore, Bonita Granville, Spring Byington, Veda Ann Borg. Delightful, witty comedy of ego-struck actor Howard and his fiancée/costar Davis, who explodes when he becomes involved with infatuated admirer de Havilland. Reminiscent in spirit of TWENTIETH CENTURY; Blore is marvelous as Howard's ultra-dedicated valet. ◆

It's My Party (1996) C-109m. ½ D: Randal Kleiser. Eric Roberts, Gregory Harrison, Margaret Cho, Bruce Davison, Lee

Grant, Devon Gummersall, Marlee Matlin, Roddy McDowall, Olivia Newton-John, Bronson Pinchot, Paul Regina, George Segal, Dimitra Arlyis (Arlyss), Christopher Atkins, Ron Glass, Victor Love, Joel Polis, Nina Foch, Sally Kellerman, Greg Louganis. Roberts portrays a successful L.A. designer suffering from AIDS, who decides he'd prefer to die with dignity and throws himself a wild weekend party for a final fling. Quite moving and often very funny. Roberts is excellent in the lead. [R]▼●●

It's My Turn (1980) C-91m.  D: Claudia Weill. Jill Clayburgh, Michael Douglas, Charles Grodin, Beverly Garland, Steven Hill, Teresa Baxter, Joan Copeland, John Gabriel, Charles Kimbrough, Jennifer Salt, Daniel Stern, Dianne Wiest. Enjoyable, low-key romantic comedy-drama about a young woman trying to balance her life as a career woman, mate, and daughter. A quirky and consistently surprising little film with good performances, especially from Grodin as Clayburgh's aloof lover. Film debut of Dianne Wiest. [R]▼●●

It's Not the Size That Counts (1974-British) C-90m. BOMB D: Ralph Thomas. Leigh Lawson, Elke Sommer, Denholm Elliott, Vincent Price, Judy Geeson, George Coulouris, Milo O'Shea. Abominable sequel to PERCY, even worse, if that's possible; Lawson replaces Hywel Bennett as penis-transplant recipient. Original title PERCY'S PROGRESS. [R]▼

It's Only Money (1962) 84m.  D: Frank Tashlin. Jerry Lewis, Joan O'Brien, Zachary Scott, Jack Weston, Jesse White, Mae Questel. TV repairman Jerry wants to be a detective like his idol (White!), so he sets out to locate a missing heir—and guess who it turns out to be? Slick mystery-comedy is one of Lewis' best vehicles, thanks to solid script (by John Fenton Murray) and direction, fine cast, and memorable climax involving runaway army of robot lawn mowers.

It's Pat (1994) C-77m. BOMB D: Adam Bernstein. Julia Sweeney, David Foley, Charles Rocket, Kathy Griffin, Julie Hayden, Kathy Najimy, Larry Hankin, Tim Meadows, Camille Paglia. Sweeney's cheerfully obnoxious, androgynous character from Saturday Night Live skits was never a prime candidate for feature-film stardom. If you can get through the first five minutes, you may get through the whole movie, as Pat finds true love with the equally androgynous Chris (Foley). Barely released theatrically. Sweeney coscripted. [PG-13]▼●●

It Started in Naples (1960) C-100m. ½ D: Melville Shavelson. Clark Gable, Sophia Loren, Vittorio De Sica, Marietto, Paolo Carlini, Claudio Ermelli. Gable is American lawyer, in Italy to bring nephew back to America, but sexy Aunt Sophia won't agree. Star duo never clicks as love match, but they do their best. Attractive fluff. VistaVision.▼●

It Started With a Kiss (1959) C-104m. ½ D: George Marshall. Glenn Ford, Debbie Reynolds, Eva Gabor, Fred Clark, Edgar Buchanan, Harry Morgan. Airy comedy about wacky Reynolds and her Army officer husband Ford, trying to make a go of marriage; set in Spain. CinemaScope.▼

It Started With Eve (1941) 90m.  D: Henry Koster. Deanna Durbin, Charles Laughton, Robert Cummings, Guy Kibbee, Margaret Tallichet, Walter Catlett. Delightful romantic comedy; Deanna poses as Cummings' fiancée to please his dying father (Laughton). Trouble starts when Laughton shows signs of recovery. Remade as I'D RATHER BE RICH.▼●●

It's the Rage (2000) C-97m. *½ D: James D. Stern. Joan Allen, Jeff Daniels, Andre Braugher, Gary Sinise, Josh Brolin, Robert Forster, Anna Paquin, Giovanni Ribisi, David Schwimmer. The lives of a group of seemingly disparate people are connected by personal crises . . . which lead to resolutions with guns. Loud, heavy-handed satire about individual and cultural violence gets worse as it goes along, despite the efforts of a good cast, of whom only Allen and Forster emerge unscathed. Keith Reddin adapted his own play. Made for theaters, but U.S. debut on cable TV. [R]▼●

It Takes All Kinds (1969-U.S.-Australian) C-98m.  D: Eddie Davis. Robert Lansing, Vera Miles, Barry Sullivan, Sid Melton, Penny Sugg. Fair double-cross drama about Miles' shielding of Lansing when he accidentally kills sailor in a brawl in Australia.

It Takes Two (1995) C-101m. ½ D: Andy Tennant. Kirstie Alley, Steve Guttenberg, Mary-Kate Olsen, Ashley Olsen, Philip Bosco, Jane Sibbett, Michelle Grison, Desmond Robertson, Ernie Grunwald, Lawrence Dane. Surprisingly well-wrought comedy for kids about lookalikes who trade places in order to help each other. The fabulously wealthy girl has a father who's about to marry a patently awful woman, while the orphan is about to lose her best friend, the social worker who supervises the orphanage. The twins give very likable performances, as do their adult costars. A cross between THE PRINCE AND THE PAUPER and THE PARENT TRAP. [PG]▼●●

It! The Terror From Beyond Space (1958) 69m. ½ D: Edward L. Cahn. Marshall Thompson, Shawn Smith, Kim Spalding, Ann Doran, Dabbs Greer. The second spaceship to Mars heads for Earth with the sole survivor of the first expedition, accused of murdering his crewmates—but the real killer is a Martian monster (Ray "Crash" Corrigan), which has crept aboard the returning ship. ALIEN owes a lot to this tidy, suspenseful, but underproduced movie, scripted by sci-fi writer Jerome Bixby.▼●●

Ivanhoe (1952) C-106m.  D: Richard Thorpe. Robert Taylor, Joan Fontaine, Elizabeth Taylor, Emlay Williams, George Sanders, Robert Douglas, Finlay Currie, Felix Aylmer, Francis de Wolff, Guy Rolfe, Norman Wooland, Basil Sydney. Almost a classic spectacular, marred by draggy scripting of Walter Scott's epic of England in Middle Ages, in days of chivalrous knights; beautifully photographed on location in Great Britain. Remade as a TVM in 1982. ▼●●

Ivan's Childhood (1962-Russian) 94m.  D: Andrei Tarkovsky. Kolya Burlaiev, Valentin Zubkov, Ye Zharikov, Nikolai Grinko. Taut, poignant account of 12-year-old Burlaiev, whose family is slaughtered during WW2, and his plight as he's sent as a spy into Nazi territory. Tarkovsky's first feature. Retitled: THE YOUNGEST SPY. ▼●●

ivansxtc. (2002) C-94m.  D: Bernard Rose. Danny Huston, Peter Weller, James Merendino, Adam Krentzman, Lisa Enos, Joanne Duckman, Caroleen Feeney, Valeria Golino, Robert Graham, Tiffani-Amber Thiessen, Victoria Silvstedt. Raw, emotionally intense look at the last few weeks of a Hollywood talent agent. Inspired by real-life agent Jay Moloney and based on Tolstoy's The Death of Ivan Ilyich, the film is shot as if it were a cinema-verité documentary and never hits a false note. Huston is astonishingly good as the slick, hedonistic Hollywood agent who finally encounters something he can't finesse or "handle"—his mortality. [R]

Ivan the Terrible, Part One (1943-Russian) 99m. * D: Sergei Eisenstein. Nikolai Cherkassov, Ludmila Tselikovskaya, Serafima Birman. Film spectacle of the highest order. Eisenstein's incredibly lavish, detailed chronicle of Czar Ivan IV's life from coronation to defeat to reinstatement, forging fascinating image of the man and his country. Enhanced by Prokofiev's original score. Heavy going, but worthwhile; the story continues in IVAN THE TERRIBLE, PART TWO. ▼●●

Ivan the Terrible, Part Two (1946-Russian) 88m. ½ D: Sergei Eisenstein. Nikolai Cherkassov, Serafima Birman, Mikhail Nazvanov, Pavel Kadochnikov, Andrei Abrikosov. Continuation of the saga of Czar Ivan IV, in which he takes on the boyars in a battle for power. Impressive film is just a shade below its predecessor. Banned by Stalin because of controversial depiction of Ivan's secret police, and not released until 1958. (The director had planned to shoot Part Three—which, needless to say, he never did.) Banquet-dance sequence was originally in color. ▼●●

I've Always Loved You (1946) C-117m.  D: Frank Borzage. Philip Dorn, Catherine McLeod, Bill Carter, Maria Ouspenskaya, Felix Bressart, Elizabeth Patterson, Vanessa Brown, Lewis Howard, Adele

Mara, Stephanie Bachelor. Heartfelt romantic drama (from the master of the genre, Borzage) about a young woman who studies to be a concert pianist with a brilliant but harsh taskmaster—and falls in love with him. Beautifully photographed in Technicolor, with Artur Schnabel providing the actual piano renditions on the soundtrack. That's young Andre Previn as a piano student in the opening scene. ▼●

I've Heard the Mermaids Singing (1987-Canadian) C-81m. ½ D: Patricia Rozema. Sheila McCarthy, Paule Baillargeon, Ann-Marie McDonald, John Evans. Wistful, original comedy-drama about a young woman who's never been successful at anything but lands a job as assistant to a chic, intelligent art gallery owner whom she comes to idolize. McCarthy's winning and empathetic performance, in her film debut, keeps us hooked even when the movie starts to wander, which it does, more than once, before redeeming itself with the final shot. A slight but impressive first feature for writer-director Rozema. ▼●●

I've Loved You So Long (2008-French-German) C-117m.  D: Philippe Claudel. Kristin Scott Thomas, Elsa Zylberstein, Serge Hazanavicius, Laurent Gréville, Frédéric Pierrot, Lise Ségur, Jean-Claude Arnaud. Zylberstein brings her sister (Scott Thomas) home to live with her husband and family, to whom she is a stranger: she's been away for 15 years. As details of her absence are revealed we come to empathize with this fragile woman's tentative reentry into society. The story can't bear much scrutiny but it's worth seeing for Scott Thomas, who conveys so much through her facial expressions and body language; Zylberstein is also quite good as her well-meaning sister. Directing debut for novelist and screenwriter Claudel. [PG-13] ●

I Vitelloni (1953-Italian) 107m. * D: Federico Fellini. Alberto Sordi, Franco Interlenghi, Franco Fabrizi, Leopoldo Trieste. Magnificent comedy-drama—arguably Fellini's masterpiece—about five shiftless male adolescents in a small Adriatic town who have to cope with emerging adulthood. Film's episodic structure brings to mind AMERICAN GRAFFITI; its love of humanity anticipates the director's own AMARCORD two decades later. In any event, a lovely film. ▼●●

I Wake Up Screaming (1941) 82m.  D: H. Bruce Humberstone. Betty Grable, Victor Mature, Carole Landis, Laird Cregar, William Gargan, Alan Mowbray, Allyn Joslyn, Elisha Cook, Jr. Entertaining whodunit with Grable and Mature implicated in murder of Betty's sister, pursued by determined cop Cregar. Good twist finish. Remade as VICKI; originally titled HOT SPOT. ▼●

I Walk Alone (1947) 98m.  D: Byron Haskin. Burt Lancaster, Lizbeth Scott, Kirk Douglas, Wendell Corey, Kristine Miller, George Rigaud, Marc Lawrence. A prison term changes Lancaster's outlook on life, and return to outside world makes him bitter. Good cast, weak film.

I Walked with a Zombie (1943) 69m.

½ D: Jacques Tourneur. Frances Dee, Tom Conway, James Ellison, Edith Barrett, Christine Gordon, Theresa Harris, James Bell. Nurse Dee comes to Caribbean island to treat zombielike wife of troubled Conway, finds skeletons in family closet, plus local voodoo rituals and legends that cannot be ignored. Exceptional Val Lewton chiller with rich atmosphere, mesmerizing story. Loosely adapted from Jane Eyre! Read small-print disclaimer in opening credits carefully. Remade as RITUAL. ▼●●

I Walk the Line (1970) C-95m. ½ D:

John Frankenheimer. Gregory Peck, Tuesday Weld, Estelle Parsons, Ralph Meeker, Lonny Chapman, Charles Durning. Rural sheriff Peck falls for moonshiner's daughter Weld, thereby destroying both his professional and personal life. Offbeat but aimless drama, helped by excellent Weld performance. Johnny Cash sings five songs. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

I Wanna Hold Your Hand (1978) C-104m.

 D: Robert Zemeckis. Nancy Allen, Bobby DiCicco, Marc McClure, Susan Kendall Newman, Theresa Saldana, Eddie Deezen, Wendie Jo Sperber, Will Jordan. Teenagers connive to get tickets for the Beatles' first appearance on The Ed Sullivan Show. If this original comedy seems occasionally silly and overbearing, that's the price it pays for being a generally accurate portrayal of a raucous event. Comedian Jordan is as hilariously Sullivan-like as ever. Steven Spielberg was executive producer. [PG] ▼●●

I Wanted Wings (1941) 131m.  D:

Mitchell Leisen. Ray Milland, William Holden, Wayne Morris, Brian Donlevy, Constance Moore, Veronica Lake, Hedda Hopper. Stale plot of three men undergoing Air Force training served to introduce Lake as star material; that remains only real point of interest. However, the special effects for this did garner an Oscar.

I Want Someone to Eat Cheese With

(2007) C-80m. ½ D: Jeff Garlin. Jeff Garlin, Sarah Silverman, Bonnie Hunt, Amy Sedaris, David Pasquesi, Gina Gershon, Elle Fanning. Garlin makes an unassumingly engaging impression as an overweight, unlucky-in-love comic who thinks he would be perfect for the lead role in a proposed remake of MARTY (and not just because he still lives with his mother). Mildly amusing ensemble comedy (based on Garlin's stage show) includes fellow alumni of the famed Second

City comedy troupe. Silverman is a standout as a crazy/sexy ice cream parlor waitress. ▽

I Want to Go Home (1989-French) C-

101m. BOMB D: Alain Resnais. Adolph Green, Gérard Depardieu, Linda Lavin, Laura Benson, Micheline Presle, Geraldine Chaplin, John Ashton, Ludvine Sagnier. Musical writer-performer Green (SINGIN' IN THE RAIN) plays a neurotic American cartoonist who travels to Paris for an art gallery show—and to see his estranged daughter (Benson). Depardieu, an exuberant admirer, brings him to his mother's country home for the weekend. Written by Jules Feiffer, with a score by John Kander, this Franco-American curio is appallingly bad, marked by amateurish performances and stilted dialogue. ▽

I Want to Live! (1958) 120m. ½ D:

Robert Wise. Susan Hayward, Simon Oakland, Virginia Vincent, Theodore Bikel, John Marley, Dabbs Greer, Gavin MacLeod. Hayward won an Oscar for her gutsy performance as prostitute-crook Barbara Graham who (according to the film) is framed for murder and goes to gas chamber. Smart presentation, fine acting, memorable jazz score by Johnny Mandel. Nelson Gidding and Don Mankiewicz based script on articles about Graham. Look fast for Jack Weston, Brett Halsey. Remade as a 1983 TVM with Lindsay Wagner. ▼●●

I Want What I Want (1972-British)

C-91m. ½ D: John Dexter. Anne Heywood, Harry Andrews, Jill Bennett, Nigel Flatley, Paul Rogers. Interesting little piece about sexual crisis in the life of man who wants a sex-change operation. ▼

I Want You (1951) 102m.  D: Mark

Robson. Dana Andrews, Dorothy McGuire, Farley Granger, Peggy Dow, Robert Keith, Mildred Dunnock, Martin Milner, Ray Collins, Jim Backus. Dated yet still touching Americana detailing effects of the Korean War on a small-town family. An artifact of its era, with fine performances all around. Screenplay by Irwin Shaw. ▼

I Was a Communist for the FBI (1951)

83m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. Frank Lovejoy, Dorothy Hart, Philip Carey, James Millican. Documentary-style counterspy caper, low key and effective. ▽

I Was a Male War Bride (1949) 105m.

 D: Howard Hawks. Cary Grant, Ann Sheridan, Marion Marshall, Randy Stuart, William Neff, Ken Tobey. Delightful comedy of errors has French Army officer Grant trying to accompany WAC wife Sheridan back to U.S. with hilarious results. Grant in drag makes this one worth watching. ▼ ▽

I Was a Teenage Boy SEE: Something Special

I Was a Teenage Frankenstein (1957)

72m. *½ D: Herbert L. Strock. Whit Bissell, Gary Conway, Phyllis Coates, Robert Burton. Campy junk about mad scientist who pulls young Conway from an auto wreck and "repairs" him. Doesn't live up to that title; worth catching only for Bissell's immortal line, "Answer me! You have a civil tongue in your head! I know—I sewed it in there!" One sequence is in color. ▼

I Was a Teenage Werewolf (1957) 75m.

 D: Gene Fowler, Jr. Michael Landon, Yvonne Lime, Whit Bissell, Vladimir Sokoloff, Guy Williams. Landon plays a hair-trigger-temper teen who's got a nut (Bissell) for a psychotherapist with dangerous ideas about hypnotic regression and man's prehistoric past. Result: a werewolf in a high school jacket. As good as a low-budget drive-in monster movie gets; it launched Landon's career. ▼

I Was a Teenage Zombie (1987) C-92m.

BOMB D: John E. Michalakias. Michael Ruben, George Seminara, Steve McCoy, Cassie Madden. Low-grade horror spoof concerns teen zombie Ruben battling McCoy, the zombie version of a drug pusher who's been preying on adolescents. Amateur night at the movies. ▼●●

I Was Monty's Double (1958-British)

100m. ½ D: John Guillermin. M. E. Clifton-James, John Mills, Cecil Parker, Marius Goring, Michael Hordern, Leslie Phillips, Bryan Forbes. Exciting, true WW2 story of actor persuaded to pose as Gen. Montgomery in order to divert German intelligence in North Africa. Cast is first-rate.

I Went Down (1997-Irish-British) C-107m. ½ D: Paddy Breathnach. Brendan Gleeson, Peter McDonald, Tony Doyle, Peter Caffrey, Antoine Byrne. A good but down-on-his-luck guy is forced to pull off a kidnapping in order to work off a large debt he owes some gangsters. Quirky Irish action comedy has genuine affection for its unlikely heroes but never really catches fire, despite a wily performance from Gleeson as an aging petty thug who can't even steal a car properly. A big hit in Ireland. [R] ▼

I Will, I Will ... For Now (1976) C-96m.  D: Norman Panama. Elliott Gould, Diane Keaton, Paul Sorvino, Victoria Principal, Robert Alda, Warren Berlinger, Madge Sinclair, Candy Clark. Fair satire on frigidity, infidelity, marriage counselling and a sex clinic. Gould and ex-wife Keaton spend film rediscovering each other. Panavision. [R] ▼

I Woke Up Early the Day I Died (1999) C/B&W-90m. BOMB D: Aris Iliopoulos. Billy Zane, Abraham Benrubi, Sandra Bernhard, Karen Black, Conrad Brooks, Tippi Hedren, Eartha Kitt, Ann Magnuson, Andrew McCarthy, Ron Perlman, Will Patton, Max Perlich, Summer Phoenix, Tara Reid, Christina Ricci, John Ritter, Rick Schroeder, Nicolette Sheridan, Jonathan Taylor Thomas,

Vampira, Steven Weber. An unproduced screenplay by Edward D. Wood, Jr., served as the "inspiration" for this tedious chronicle of a thief (Zane) who breaks out of a mental institution. The intention was to make a bad (read: unintentionally funny) movie in the style of Ed Wood, but the result is just boring. Made as a silent movie, with sound effects and music. Zane coproduced. ▼

I Wonder Who's Killing Her Now? (1976)

C-87m. ½ D: Steven H. Stern. Bob Dishy, Joanna Barnes, Bill Dana, Vito Scotti. Luckless husband hires someone to bump off his wife for insurance money, then tries to call it off; uneven but often funny farce, written by Woody Allen's one-time collaborator Mickey Rose. [PG] ▼

I Wouldn't Be in Your Shoes (1948) 70m.

½ D: William Nigh. Don Castle, Elyse Knox, Regis Toomey, Charles D. Brown, Rory Mallinson, Robert Lowell, Bill Kennedy. Knox teams with cop Toomey to save her tap-dancer husband, who was railroaded after throwing a pair of shoes out the window to silence a wailing cat, only to be convicted of murder after police find his shoe prints near the corpse of a rich man. Minor film noir based on a Cornell Woolrich story has good shabby atmosphere and fairly engrossing story; twist ending is pretty obvious, but still satisfying.

Jabberwocky (1977-British) C-100m. ½

D: Terry Gilliam. Michael Palin, Max Wall, Deborah Fallerder, John Le Mesurier, Annette Badland. Gilliam and Palin of MONTY PYTHON AND THE HOLY GRAIL fame give us another satire of medieval times, but the humor is even more spotty than its predecessor's. For fans. [R] ▼●●

J'Accuse (1937-French) C-95m.  D: Abel Gance. Victor Francen, Jean Max, Delaire, Renee Devillers. Very good—but not great—antiwar film, focusing on exploited war veteran Francen; in a vivid sequence, he calls on war casualties to rise from their graves. Previously filmed by Gance in 1918. ▼

Jack (1996) C-113m.  D: Francis Ford Coppola. Robin Williams, Diane Lane, Jennifer Lopez, Brian Kerwin, Fran Drescher, Bill Cosby, Michael McKean, Don Novello, Allan Rich, Adam Zolotin, Todd Bosley. A boy born prematurely—but fully developed—turns out to be aging at four times normal rate. At 10, with the physical characteristics of a 40-year-old man, he leaves his cloistered home to go to school and deal with other kids his age for the first time in his life. Williams is the perfect choice to play this man-child, but the script goes nowhere. Overlong, too adult for kids, too redundant for grown-ups; destined to please no one. [PG-13] ▼●●

Jackal, The (1997) C-124m. ½ D: Michael Caton-Jones. Bruce Willis, Richard Gere, Sidney Poitier, Diane Venora, Tess

Harper, J. K. Simmons, Mathilda May, Stephen Spinella, Richard Lineback, Jack Black, Sophie Okonedo. When the FBI and the KGB are stumped as to how to capture an international assassin called The Jackal, they turn to the one man who knows him—an Irish terrorist (Gere) who's serving time in a U.S. prison. Watchable globe-trotting thriller is weakened by lapses of credibility, but boosted by Gere's charismatic performance. Venora is also a standout as a no-nonsense Russian agent. Bears only the slightest resemblance to the superior THE DAY OF THE JACKAL, despite being "officially" based on that screenplay. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Jackals, The (1967) C-105m.  D: Robert D. Webb. Vincent Price, Diana Ivarson, Robert Gunner, Bob Courtney, Patrick Mynhardt. William Wellman's striking YELLOW SKY reset in the South African Transvaal, with six bandits terrorizing a grizzled old miner (Price) and his granddaughter into surrendering their gold.▼

Jack & Sarah (1995-British-French) C-110m. ½ D: Tim Sullivan. Richard E. Grant, Samantha Mathis, Judi Dench, Ian McKellen, Cherie Lunghi, Eileen Atkins, Imogen Stubbs. A London lawyer is crushed when his young wife dies in childbirth, but he finds a reason to live in his infant daughter. He hires a young American as a nanny, which leads to romance—and complications. Good performances, particularly by the two leads, keep this uneven film watchable and pleasant. Also available in PG version. [R]▼●●

Jack and the Beanstalk (1952) C/B&W-78m. ½ D: Jean Yarbrough. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Dorothy Ford, Barbara Brown, Buddy Baer. A&C version of fairy tale OK for kids, but not as funny as their earlier films. Begins in sepia tone, then changes to color, like THE WIZARD OF OZ.▼●●

jackass: the movie (2002) C-85m.  D: Jeff Tremaine. Johnny Knoxville, Bam Margera, Chris Pontius, Steve-O, Dave England, Ryan Dunn, Jason "Wee Man" Acuña, Preston Lacy, Ehren McGeheey. R-rated expansion of the mysteriously popular MTV show in which guys gleefully injure themselves doing all manner of stupid, raunchy, goofball stunts. Artless frat-house-level humor that some people find hilarious... especially the participants. Followed by a sequel. [R]▼

jackass number two (2006) C-91m. ½ D: Jeff Tremaine. Johnny Knoxville, Bam Margera, Steve-O, Chris Pontius, Preston Lacy, Ryan Dunn, Ehren McGeheey, Jason "Wee Man" Acuña, Jay Chandrasekhar, Tony Hawk, Spike Jonze, Mike Judge, John Waters, Luke Wilson, Rip Taylor. The tagline, "When was the last time a movie made you beg for mercy?" pretty much sums up this sequel, a spinoff from the enormously successful MTV series. With stunts that cross the line and a cast willing to do anything—and we mean anything—for a laugh, this tasteless but sometimes hilarious collection of body-bashing gags is not for everyone—and you all know who you are. Don't try this at home! Unrated version runs 93m. [R]●

Jack Be Nimble (1993-New Zealand) C-93m. ½ D: Garth Maxwell. Alexis Arquette, Sarah Smuts-Kennedy, Bruno Lawrence, Tony Barry, Elizabeth Hawthorne. Weird, clever little chiller in which the title character is adopted into a family of cretins and abused beyond endurance; he sets out to find his long-lost sister, and also to seek revenge. Doesn't quite work when it takes itself too seriously; otherwise, this is devilishly entertaining, and has cult possibilities. [R]▼●●

Jacket, The (2005-U.S.-German-Scottish) C-103m.  D: John Maybury. Adrien Brody, Keira Knightley, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Kris Kristofferson, Daniel Craig, Kelly Lynch, Brad Renfro, Mackenzie Phillips, Jason Lewis. Following a violent 1991 incident while serving in the Gulf War, soldier Brody ends up in Vermont and later in a time-travel journey to 2007. There he deals with the ramifications of a good Samaritan deed he performed—before another act of violence—in his previous life. Ugly to look at and apparently conceived from body parts of previous movies, modest head-case story (with the obligatory shady shrink) is only worth the time if you're curious to see the normally well-scrubbed Knightley sporting the goth look. Super 35. [R]▼●

Jack Frost (1998) C-95m. ½ D: Troy Miller. Michael Keaton, Kelly Preston, Mark Addy, Joseph Cross, Henry Rollins, Dweezil Zappa. A neglectful dad dies in a car accident and comes to life one year later as a snowman in his son's front yard! Warm, likable performances and an absence of treacle make this an OK family film, but it never overcomes its fundamental problem: a very strange premise. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Jackie Brown (1997) C-154m.  D: Quentin Tarantino. Pam Grier, Samuel L. Jackson, Robert Forster, Michael Keaton, Bridget Fonda, Robert De Niro, Michael Bowen, Chris Tucker, Sid Haig. Leisurely paced but enjoyable adaptation of Elmore Leonard's crime caper Rum Punch, reset in Southern California. Grier (in a standout performance) plays a flight attendant who's been trafficking in hot money for lowlife Jackson; when caught, she plays all the angles she can think of to keep herself out of jail, managing to keep the cops, her chief client, and everyone else on ice. Dynamite performances all around sustain film through its periodic lulls. [R]▼●●

Jackie Chan's First Strike (1996-Hong Kong) C-110m. ½ D: Stanley Tong. Jackie Chan, Chen Chun Wu, Jackson Lou, Bill Tung, Jouri Petrov. Hong Kong's most physically agile cop finds himself in a

James Bond-like intrigue involving the CIA, Russian mafia, a nuclear device, and of course, a good-looking female scuba diver. The dubbing here is typically wretched, yet in a lark like this it really doesn't matter; the last two thirds is almost wall-to-wall action, including a doozy of a donnybrook in which Chan makes memorable use of a ladder. Technovision and Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Jackie Chan's Police Story SEE: Police Story (1985)

Jackie Chan's Who Am I? (1998-Hong Kong) C-108m.  D: Jackie Chan, Benny Chan. Jackie Chan, Michelle Ferre, Mirai Yamamoto, Ron Smerczak, Ed Nelson, Tom Pompert. Chan is part of a secret military team sent on a fatal mission; although he survives, he loses his memory, and can't understand why so many people are pursuing him. Lame dialogue and cardboard performances are outshone by one fantastic action scene after another, including a unique episode involving wooden shoes in Rotterdam. Chan also wrote the screenplay. Filmed in English. Originally 117m. Aka WHO AM I? Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Jackie Robinson Story, The (1950) 76m.  D: Alfred E. Green. Jackie Robinson, Ruby Dee, Minor Watson, Louise Beavers, Richard Lane, Harry Shannon, Ben Lessy, Joel Fluellen. Straightforward bio of Robinson, the first black man to play major-league baseball. Fascinating as a social history; pointed in its presentation of the racial issues involved. Interestingly, Robinson's Negro League ball club is called the Black Panthers! Dee plays Robinson's wife; 40 years later, she was cast as his mother in the TV movie THE COURT-MARTIAL OF JACKIE ROBINSON. ▼●

Jack London (1943) 94m. *½ D: Alfred Santell. Michael O'Shea, Susan Hayward, Osa Massen, Harry Davenport, Frank Craven, Virginia Mayo. Hokey, episodic "biography" of famed writer spends too much time maligning Japanese—which was supposed to give topical slant to this period drama in 1943. Aka THE ADVENTURES OF JACK LONDON AND THE LIFE OF JACK LONDON. ▼●

Jack London's Klondike Fever SEE: Klondike Fever

Jackknife (1989) C-102m.  D: David Jones. Robert De Niro, Ed Harris, Kathy Baker, Charles Dutton, Loudon Wainwright III. Simple and involving story of a Vietnam vet (De Niro) who looks up an old Army buddy (Harris) and tries to get him to face up to his repressed memories of Nam, and their mutual best friend who died there. Meanwhile, a romance blossoms between De Niro and Harris' wallflower sister, with whom he lives. Three terrific performances make this a must. Stephen Metcalfe adapted his play Strange Snow. [R]▼●●

Jack of Diamonds (1967-U.S.-German) C-105m. *½ D: Don Taylor. George Hamilton, Joseph Cotton, Marie Lafont, Maurice Evans, Carroll Baker, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Lilli Palmer. Hamilton plays a cat burglar who robs jewels from Baker, Gabor, and Palmer, who are "special guests" in this sorry film. Skip this and wait for TO CATCH A THIEF instead.

Jackpot, The (1950) 87m. ½ D: Walter Lang. James Stewart, Barbara Hale, James Gleason, Fred Clark, Natalie Wood. Dated, minor comedy, uplifted by stars; Stewart is winner of radio contest but can't pay taxes on winnings. ▼

Jackpot (2001) C-96m.  D: Michael Polish. Jon Gries, Daryl Hannah, Garrett Morris, Peggy Lipton, Crystal Bernard, Anthony Edwards, Mac Davis, Adam Baldwin. An over-the-hill desert rat (Gries) ditches his wife and baby daughter to become a traveling karaoke cowboy, playing the Nevada circuit with his clingy, overambitious manager (Morris). Shot on high-definition video, the film looks even more fantastic than Mark and Michael Polish's first feature, TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, but this irony-drenched movie about a failed American dream gets pretty dreary once we realize we're stuck in the company of an irredeemable loser. HD 24P Widescreen. [R]▼●

Jack's Back (1988) C-97m. *½ D: Rowdy Herrington. James Spader, Cynthia Gibb, Rod Loomis, Rex Ryon, Robert Picardo, Chris Mulkey, Danitza Kingsley. Ump-teenth retelling of the JACK THE RIPPER saga is updated to contemporary L.A. where young doctor Spader is the #1 suspect when prostitutes are killed in grisly fashion 100 years to the day after Bloody Jack's legendary crimes. Plot twist half-way through is preposterous; Spader is earnest but miscast. [R]▼●

Jackson County Jail (1976) C-89m. ½ D: Michael Miller. Yvette Mimieux, Tommy Lee Jones, Robert Carradine, Frederic Cook, Severn Darden, Howard Hesseman, Mary Woronov. Prisoner Yvette, dumped on by everyone she meets, goes on the lam with fellow inmate in yet another chase pic. Livelier than most, this one has developed a cult reputation. Miller later remade it for TV as OUTSIDE CHANCE; it was remade again in 1996 as MACON COUNTY JAIL. [R]▼●●

Jack the Bear (1993) C-98m. ½ D: Marshall Herskovitz. Danny DeVito, Robert J. Steinmiller, Miko Hughes, Gary Sinise, Julia Louis-Dreyfus, Reese Witherspoon, Bert Remsen, Andrea Marcovicci. Sporadically affecting, but mostly muddled comedy-drama about the emotional unraveling of a widowed TV horror-movie host whose neighbor is a pro-Nazi psycho who poses a threat to children. Kept on track at least some of the time by Steinmiller's exceptional performance as DeVito's older son (age 12). Set in 1972; based on Dan McCall's novel. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Jack the Giant Killer (1962) C-94m.  D: Nathan Juran. Kerwin Mathews, Judi Meredith, Torin Thatcher, Walter Burke. Marvelous Fantascope special effects make this costume adventure yarn (in the SINBAD tradition) great fun. Beware reissue, which was dubbed into an ersatz musical! ▼●●

Jacob's Ladder (1990) C-115m. ½ D: Adrian Lyne. Tim Robbins, Elizabeth Pena, Danny Aiello, Matt Craven, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Jason Alexander, Patricia Kalember, Eriq La Salle, Ving Rhames. Brooding, often effective tale of Vietnam vet who suffers from hallucinations, which may or may not be linked to his everyday life in N.Y.C. Nightmarish story leads to a climax that—like a bad shaggy-dog joke—negates the entire film! Bruce Joel Rubin's script is reminiscent of Ambrose Bierce's classic "An Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge," only not as good. Macaulay Culkin appears unbilled in a key supporting role. Two deleted scenes were added for the film's cable TV debut. [R] ▼●●

Jacob the Liar (1974-East German) C-95m.  D: Frank Beyer. Vlastimil Brodsky, Erwin Geschonneck, Manuela Simon, Henry Hubchen, Blanche Kommerell, Armin Mueller-Stahl. Touching, sometimes comic tale of Polish Jew Brodsky, whose false tales to fellow ghetto dwellers give some hope against their Nazi captors. Remade in 1999 as JAKOB THE LIAR. ▼

Jacob Two Two Meets the Hooded Fang (1977-Canadian) C-80m. ½ D: Theodore J. Flicker. Stephen Rosenberg, Alex Karras, Guy L'Ecuyer, Joy Coghill, Earl Pennington, Claude Gail. Engaging fantasy for kids written by Mordecai Richler, about a boy who dreams he's sent to children's prison. Low-budget production values are unfortunate detriment. [G] ▼

Jacqueline Susann's Once Is Not Enough (1975) C-121m. BOMB D: Guy Green. Kirk Douglas, Alexis Smith, David Janssen, Deborah Raffin, George Hamilton, Melina Mercouri, Brenda Vaccaro. Trashy film based on Susann's trashy novel of jet-set intrigue, and a blossoming young woman (Raffin) with a father-fixation. Incurably stupid, and surprisingly dull. Vaccaro offers brightest moments as unabashed man-chaser. Panavision. [R] ▼

Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris (1975) C-98m.  D: Denis Heroux. Elly Stone, Mort Shuman, Joe Masiell, Jacques Brel. Jacquot de Nantes (1991-French) C-118m.

½ D: Agnès Varda. Philippe Maron, Edouard Joubéaud, Laurent Monnier, Brigitte de Villepoix. Deeply moving chronicle of the sum of a man's life, as Varda creates a portrait of her late husband, French filmmaker Jacques Demy. Varda cuts from interviews with Demy (lovingly photographed in extreme close-up), to clips from his films, to the re-created story of young "Jacquot" growing up in Nantes during the 1940s and developing a passion for cinema. A heartfelt valentine from one life partner to another. Released in U.S. in 1993 as JACQUOT. Varda has since directed several other celluloid tributes to Demy. ▼

Jade (1995) C-101m.  D: William Friedkin. David Caruso, Linda Fiorentino, Chazz Palminteri, Michael Biehn, Richard Crenna, Donna Murphy, Ken King, Holt McCallany, David Hunt, Angie Everhart, Kevin Tighe. While investigating the brutal murder of a wealthy San Franciscan, assistant D.A. Caruso realizes to his dismay that his old flame (Fiorentino, married to his good friend Palminteri) may be involved. Sordid mystery/thriller from the seedy pen of Joe Eszterhas; has its moments (including an exciting S.F. car chase) but never rises above the mire. Unrated video edition has 12m. additional footage. [R] ▼●●

Jagged Edge (1985) C-108m. ½ D: Richard Marquand. Jeff Bridges, Glenn Close, Peter Coyote, Robert Loggia, John Dehner, Leigh Taylor-Young, Karen Austin, Lance Henriksen, James Karen, Michael Dorn. Wealthy publishing magnate is accused of murdering his wife; hotshot lawyer Close will defend him only if she believes he's innocent. Not only is she convinced—she immediately falls in love with him! Credibility goes out the window in this otherwise well-made, often gripping combination of thriller and courtroom drama. How could such a "smart" movie allow so many silly loopholes? Loggia is terrific as usual as Close's street-smart leg man. [R] ▼●●

Jaguar Lives! (1979) C-90m. *½ D: Ernest Pintoff. Joe Lewis, Christopher Lee, Donald Pleasence, Barbara Bach, Capucine, Joseph Wiseman, Woody Strode, John Huston. Karate champ Lewis is featured in this predictable action cheapie as a special agent sent to dispatch narcotics biggies in various world capitals. Top cast, but don't be fooled. [PG] ▼

Jail Bait (1954) 70m. *½ D: Edward D. Wood, Jr. Timothy Farrell, Lyle Talbot, Steve Reeves, Herbert Rawlinson, Dolores Fuller, Clancey Malone, Theodora Thurman, Mona McKinnon. Farrell leads young Malone into life of crime; when the law closes in, he forces Malone's plastic surgeon father to change his face. Misleadingly titled thriller is less inept than Wood's "classics," and thus less funny, but inspired teaming of Talbot and Reeves (in his first speaking part) as cops is good for a few giggles. ▼●●

Jail Bait (1972-German) C-99m.  D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Eva Mattes, Harry Baer, Jorg von Liebenfels, Ruth Drexel, Kurt Raab, Hanna Schygulla. Another provocative, controversial exploration of emptiness in post-WW2 Germany from the prolific Fassbinder. Here, a seductive 14-year-old (Mattes) becomes involved with Baer, eventually coaxing him into murdering her father. Originally made for German television; not released in the U.S. until 1977.

Jailhouse Rock (1957) 96m.  D: Richard Thorpe. Elvis Presley, Judy Tyler, Vaughn Taylor, Dean Jones, Mickey Shaughnessy. Elvis learns to pick a guitar in the Big House, later becomes a surly rock star. Presley's best film captures the legend in all his nostril-flaring, pre-Army glory. Great Leiber-Stoller score, including "Treat Me Nice," "Don't Leave Me Now," and terrific title song. Also shown in computer-colored version. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Jake Speed (1986) C-104m. BOMB D: Andrew Lane. Wayne Crawford, Dennis Christopher, Karen Kopins, John Hurt, Leon Ames, Roy London, Donna Pescow, Barry Primus, Monte Markham. Utter waste of time about a paperback hero who turns up in real life to help a damsel in distress. Crawford, who has all the star appeal of a can of tuna, presumably got the lead role because he also cowrote and coproduced the film. [PG] ▼●●

Jakob the Liar (1999) C-114m. ½ D: Peter Kassovitz. Robin Williams, Alan Arkin, Bob Balaban, Hannah Taylor Gordon, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Liev Schreiber, Michael Jeter, Nina Siemaszko, Mathieu Kassovitz. In a Polish ghetto in 1944, a wistful widower (Williams) raises hopes among his fellow townspeople after he accidentally hears an optimistic report about the war on a Nazi radio. Soon, he is besieged for more "radio reports," which he is forced to invent. Modest film from Jurek Becker's novel is only mildly successful, though Williams does his best. Mueller-Stahl also appeared in the 1974 version. [PG-13] ▼●

Jamaica Inn (1939-British) 98m.  D: Alfred Hitchcock. Charles Laughton, Maureen O'Hara, Leslie Banks, Robert Newton, Emlyn Williams, Mervyn Johns. Stodgy Victorian costumer of cutthroat band headed by nobleman Laughton; O'Hara is lovely, but plodding Hitchcock film is disappointing. Based on Daphne du Maurier novel; Hitch had far more success a year later with du Maurier's Rebecca. Remade for British TV in 1985 with Jane Seymour and Patrick McGoohan. ▼●●

James and the Giant Peach (1996) C-80m. ½ D: Henry Selick. Paul Terry, Miriam Margolyes, Joanna Lumley, Pete Postlethwaite, Mike Starr; voices of Simon Callow, Richard Dreyfuss, Jane Leeves,

Susan Sarandon, Miriam Margolyes, David Thewlis. Wondrous adaptation of Roald Dahl's fantasy about a beleaguered boy, tended by two harriard aunts, who discovers a magic pathway inside a giant peach. Together with a grasshopper, a spider, a centipede, a worm, a glowworm, and a ladybug, he sets sail for the city of his dreams—N.Y. Starts in live action, then segues to stop-motion animation to bring Dahl's (typically) bizarre but delightful story to life. Gets better and better as it goes along, with impeccable voice characterizations and charming songs by Randy Newman. A rare movie that creates a world all its own, and an even rarer children's film that has real wit and imagination. [PG] ▼●●

James Dean Story, The (1957) 82m.  D: George W. George, Robert Altman. Narrated by Martin Gabel. Uninspired use of available material makes this a slow-moving documentary on life of 1950s movie star. ▼●●

Jamón Jamón (1992-Spanish) C-93m.  D: José Juan Bigas Luna. Penélope Cruz, Stefania Sandrelli, Anna Galiena, Juan Diego, Jordi Molla, Javier Bardem. Clever, erotic black comedy-melodrama about sex and food, which also serves to mirror Spanish society in transition. The scenario focuses on the various members of two families from different classes, and what follows after beautiful Cruz falls for (and becomes pregnant by) her boss' spoiled son (Molla). A delight from start to finish, and a sleeper hit in Europe. ▼

Jane Austen Book Club, The (2007) C-106m.  D: Robin Swicord. Maria Bello, Emily Blunt, Kathy Baker, Amy Brenneman, Maggie Grace, Jimmy Smits, Hugh Dancy, Marc Blucas, Kevin Zegers, Lynn Redgrave, Nancy Travis. Agreeable fare about five women—and one unlikely man—who form a book club devoted to Jane Austen's novels, only to discover that the storylines parallel their own dealings with marriage, divorce, fidelity, etc. Likable cast propels this easy-to-take material, with Blunt a standout as a repressed (yet snooty) schoolteacher. Directing debut for screenwriter Swicord, who also adapted Karen Joy Fowler's novel. [PG-13] ●

Jane Austen in Manhattan (1980) C-108m. *½ D: James Ivory. Robert Powell, Anne Baxter, Michael Wager, Tim Choate, John Guerrasio, Katrina Hodiak, Kurt Johnson, Sean Young. Dreary, confusing oddity about charismatic acting-teacher Powell and his rival Baxter, each trying to produce a newly discovered play written by Jane Austen. Overlong; a disappointment from director Ivory. Hodiak is the daughter of Baxter and John Hodiak. ▼●

Jane Austen's Mafia! (1998) C-84m. ½ D: Jim Abrahams. Jay Mohr, Billy Burke, Christina Applegate, Lloyd Bridges, Pamela Gidley, Olympia Dukakis, Jason Fuchs, Joe Viterelli, Tony Lo Bianco. Parody from the

AIRPLANE/NAKED GUN school takes aim at THE GODFATHER and CASINO but throws in gags referring to everything from FORREST GUMP to JURASSIC PARK. Disorganized, to say the least, but full of funny stuff—funny enough to overlook many of its shortcomings. Bridges' last film. Aka MAFIA! [PG-13] ▼●●

Jane Eyre (1934) 67m.  D: Christy Cabanne. Virginia Bruce, Colin Clive, Beryl Mercer, Aileen Pringle, David Torrence, Lionel Belmore. Thin version of the oft-filmed Brontë novel, produced by Monogram, of all studios, with Bruce in the title role and Clive as Mr. Rochester. Still, it's not uninteresting as a curio. ▼

Jane Eyre (1944) 96m.  D: Robert Stevenson. Orson Welles, Joan Fontaine, Margaret O'Brien, Henry Daniell, John Sutton, Agnes Moorehead, Elizabeth Taylor, Peggy Ann Garner, Sara Allgood, Aubrey Mather, Hillary Brooke. Artistically successful if slow-moving version of Charlotte Brontë novel about orphan girl who grows up to become a governess in mysterious household. One of Elizabeth Taylor's early films. ▼●●

Jane Eyre (1996-French-Italian-U.S.-British) C-117m.  D: Franco Zeffirelli. William Hurt, Charlotte Gainsbourg, Anna Paquin, Geraldine Chaplin, Fiona Shaw, Elle Macpherson, John Wood, Joan Plowright, Amanda Root, Charlotte Attenborough. Unremarkable remake of Brontë's classic romance features Gainsbourg as a very credible Jane. Unfortunately, there is a lack of chemistry between the leads, and a rushed ending that is completely out of sync with the rest of the film. The 1944 version remains the best attempt. [PG] ▼●●

Janis (1975) C-96m.  D: Howard Alk, Seaton Findlay. Documentary on Janis Joplin was filmed with cooperation of her family, so it ignores the singer's dark side. OK within its limits, with a dozen or so songs performed (including "Piece of My Heart," "Me and Bobby McGee," "Kozmic Blues," "Mercedes Benz"). [R] ▼

January Man, The (1989) C-97m. *½ D: Pat O'Connor. Kevin Kline, Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, Susan Sarandon, Harvey Keitel, Danny Aiello, Rod Steiger, Alan Rickman, Faye Grant, Tandy Cronyn. Appallingly wrongheaded mix of cop movie, romantic drama, and offbeat comedy written by John Patrick Shanley, with Kline as a self-styled eccentric whose brother, the police commissioner of N.Y.C., is forced to hire him to help catch a serial killer. Fine cast founders in this unfunny, illogical mess. [R] ▼●●

Japanese Story (2003-Australian) C-99m. ½ D: Sue Brooks. Toni Collette, Gotaro Tsunashima, Matthew Dyktynski, Lynette Curran, Yumiko Tanaka, Kate Atkinson. Geologist Collette is chosen to escort a Japanese businessman to a remote area of Australia where her company operates. They share unexpected adventures and eventually break through their professional reserve; then fate steps in. Intriguing story about the role of chance in our lives; deliberately pulls the rug out from under the audience, but doesn't fully compensate us for that jarring experience. Collette is excellent as usual. Super 35. [R] ▼

Jarhead (2005) C-123m.  D: Sam Mendes. Jake Gyllenhaal, Peter Sarsgaard, Jamie Foxx, Lucas Black, Brian Geraghty, Jacob Vargas, Laz Alonso, Evan Jones, Chris Cooper, Dennis Haysbert. Visual diary of a raw Marine recruit who's shipped to the Arabian desert in 1990, where he and fellow newbies are placed in a holding pattern called Operation Desert Shield, waiting to fight in what eventually became Operation Desert Storm. Absurdities mount up on a daily basis in this surreal, sun-baked atmosphere. William Broyles, Jr., adapted Anthony Swofford's best-selling memoir; Mendes consciously echoes FULL METAL JACKET, APOCALYPSE NOW, and others in this offbeat but compelling war film in which there is precious little combat. Super 35. [R] ▼

Jason and the Argonauts (1963-British) C-104m.  D: Don Chaffey. Todd Armstrong, Gary Raymond, Nancy Kovack, Honor Blackman, Nigel Green. Great special effects (by Ray Harryhausen) and colorful backgrounds in fable about Jason's search for golden fleece. Encounters with mythic monsters and gods highlight this sweeping adventure. Rich score by Bernard Herrmann. Remade for TV in 2000. ▼●●

Jason Goes to Hell: The Final Friday (1993) C-88m. *½ D: Adam Marcus. John D. LeMay, Kari Keegan, Kane Hodder, Steven Williams, Steven Culp, Erin Gray, Rusty Schwimmer, Billy Green Bush. Ninth entry in the FRIDAY THE 13TH series, ignores the plots of the last six or so, and opens with Jason being blown to pieces in an ambush. However, his evil spirit takes over a convenient bystander, and reborn, he heads for home to confront his (hitherto unmentioned) sister. Erratic, illogical, and pointlessly cruel; some fans liked it because of its delight in including elements from other contemporary horror movie series. Followed in 2002 by JASON X. [R] ▼●●

Jason's Lyric (1994) C-119m.  D: Doug McHenry. Allen Payne, Jada Pinkett, Forest Whitaker, Bokeem Woodbine, Treach, Lisa Carson, Suzanne Douglas, Eddie Griffin, Lahmard Tate. Overly familiar (not to mention confusing) tale of good-and-evil brothers. Jason (Payne) is an honest and dependable workingman; Joshua (Woodbine) is a drug-abusing thief. Jason falls in love with an attractive waitress named Lyric (Pinkett)—more a romantic male fantasy than a real person—and you know what's coming. Several sex scenes were trimmed to avoid an NC-17 rating, but gruesome violence remains intact. [R]▼●●

Jason X (2002) C-93m. *½ D: Jim Isaac. Kane Hodder, Lexa Doig, Lisa Ryder, Chuck Campbell, Jonathan Potts, Peter Mensah, Melyssa Ade. In this, the tenth FRIDAY THE 13TH installment (and first since 1993's JASON GOES TO HELL: THE FINAL FRIDAY), cryogenically frozen Jason (Hodder) and a sexy scientist (Doig) are thawed while on board a spacecraft in the year 2455. You can guess what happens next. For dedicated slasher fans only. David Cronenberg appears briefly as Dr. Wimmer. Not to be confused with MALCOLM X. Followed by FREDDY VS. JASON. [R]▼●

Jawbreaker (1999) C-90m. *½ D: Darren Stein. Rose McGowan, Rebecca Gayheart, Julie Benz, Judy Evans Greer, Carol Kane, William Katt, Jeff Conaway, Tatyana Ali, Pam Grier, Brian Warner (Marilyn Manson), P.J. Soles, The Donnas. Monotonous—and unpleasant—black comedy about a tight-knit band of girls who rule their high school—until an accidental murder forces them to “adopt” a geeky student who could cause trouble for them. A short-subject idea padded to feature length. [R]▼●●

Jaws (1975) C-124m. * D: Steven Spielberg. Roy Scheider, Robert Shaw, Richard Dreyfuss, Lorraine Gary, Murray Hamilton, Jeffrey Kramer, Susan Backlinie, Carl Gottlieb. A rare case of a bubble-gum story (by Peter Benchley) scoring as a terrific movie. The story: New England shore community is terrorized by shark attacks; local cop (Scheider), ichthyologist (Dreyfuss) and salty shark expert (Shaw) determine to kill the attacker. Hold on to your seats! Screenplay by Benchley and Gottlieb. Three Oscars include John Williams' now-classic score, Verna Fields' sensational editing. Benchley has cameo as reporter on beach. Followed by three sequels. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Jaws 2 (1978) C-117m. ½ D: Jeannot Szwarc. Roy Scheider, Lorraine Gary, Murray Hamilton, Joseph Mascolo, Jeffrey Kramer, Collin Wilcox. Just when you thought it was safe to turn on your TV set again, here comes another gratuitous sequel. The shark scenes deliver the goods, but Robert Shaw and Richard Dreyfuss are sorely needed when film is on land. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Jaws 3-D (1983) C-97m.  D: Joe Alves. Dennis Quaid, Bess Armstrong, Simon MacCorkindale, Louis Gossett, Jr., John Putsch, Lea Thompson. Road-company Irwin Allen-type disaster film, unrelated to first two JAWS except by contrivance; this time a shark's on the loose in Florida's Sea World. (Does this make it an unofficial remake of REVENGE OF THE CREATURE?) Might play on TV, but in theaters its only real assets were excellent 3-D effects. Retitled JAWS III for TV and homevideo. ArriVision. [PG]▼●●

Jaws the Revenge (1987) C-89m. *½ D: Joseph Sargent. Lorraine Gary, Lance Guest, Mario Van Peebles, Karen Young, Michael Caine, Lynn Whitfield. Watchable but mediocre retread of JAWS, the fourth time around, with Gary as the widow of sheriff Scheider (from the original film) who's convinced the great white shark is deliberately seeking out and killing off members of her family. Marginal movie really sunk by stupid, abrupt finale; Caine wasted in frivolous supporting role. Set mostly in the Bahamas. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Jaws of Death, The SEE: Mako: The Jaws of Death

Jay and Silent Bob Strike Back (2001) C-104m.  D: Kevin Smith. Kevin Smith, Jason Mewes, Ben Affleck, Shannon Elizabeth, Ali Larter, Eliza Dushku, Jennifer Schwalbach, Jason Lee, Will Ferrell, Judd Nelson, Seann William Scott, Carrie Fisher, Jon Stewart, Jason Biggs, James Van Der Beek, Chris Rock, Mark Hamill, Morris Day. The two crude doper-slackers from CLERKS, MALLRATS, etc., journey to Hollywood to stop a movie being made about them—or at least collect some dough. Giant in-joke comedy where the people on screen are clearly having a better time than we are in the audience. Movie-making scene with Affleck and Matt Damon is arguably the funniest; many cameos include stars of earlier Smith films. Super 35. [R]▼●

Jazz on a Summer's Day (1959) C-85m. ½ D: Bert Stern. Louis Armstrong, Big Maybelle, Chuck Berry, Dinah Washington, Gerry Mulligan, Thelonious Monk, Anita O'Day, Mahalia Jackson, Sonny Stitt, Jack Teagarden. Candid, enjoyable filmed record of the 1958 Newport Jazz Festival. A must for jazz aficionados. ▼●

Jazz Singer, The (1927) 89m. ½ D: Alan Crosland. Al Jolson, May McAvoy, Warner Oland, Eugenie Besserer, Otto Lederer, William Demarest, Roscoe Karns. Legendary first talkie is actually silent with several sound musical and talking sequences. Story of Cantor Oland's son (Jolson) going into show business is creaky, but this movie milestone should be seen once. Songs: “My Mammy,” “Toot Toot Tootsie Goodbye,” “Blue Skies,” etc. Look fast for Myma Loy as a chorus girl. Remade twice (so far!). ▼●●

Jazz Singer, The (1953) C-107m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Danny Thomas, Peggy Lee, Mildred Dunnock, Eduard Franz, Tom Tully, Allyn Joslyn. Slick remake benefits from Curtiz' no-nonsense direction and presence of Lee and Dunnock . . . but it's still just so schmaltzy. ▼

Jazz Singer, The (1980) C-115m. BOMB D: Richard Fleischer. Neil Diamond, Laurence Olivier, Lucie Arnaz, Catlin Adams, Franklyn Ajaye, Paul Nicholas, Sully Boyar,

Mike Kellin. Cantor Olivier shouts, "I hef no son!"—one of the highpoints of this moth-balled sudsier in which Diamond becomes a rock star in about as much time as it takes to get a haircut. This remake may actually contain more clichés than the 1927 version! [PG] ▼●●

JCVD (2008-Belgian-Luxembourgian-French) C-96m.  D: Mabrouk El Mechri. Jean-Claude Van Damme, François Damiens, Zinedine Soualem, Karim Belkhadra, Jean-François Wolff, Anne Paulevich, François Beukelaers, Saskia Flanders. Down-on-his-luck action hero ditchés Hollywood (and a costly child custody case) and returns to his European roots. By chance he walks straight into a bloody bank heist and becomes a celebrity, a hostage, and a suspect. Dour, desaturated art-house thriller—partly scripted, partly improvised—seems set in an alternate reality. Van Damme, playing "himself" but not himself, proves he's a real actor as well as a movie star. Who'da thunk it? Super 35. [R] ●

J. D.'s Revenge (1976) C-95m.  D: Arthur Marks. Glynn Turman, Joan Pringle, Lou Gossett, Carl Crudup, James Louis Watkins, Alice Jubert. Black horror melodrama: possession of innocent man by vengeful spirit. Fairly well executed. [R] ▼●

Jean de Florette (1986-French) C-122m. ½ D: Claude Berri. Yves Montand, Gérard Depardieu, Daniel Auteuil, Elisabeth Depardieu, Ernestine Mazurowna, Marcel Champel, Armand Meffre. Proud, cocky French farmer schemes with his simple-minded nephew to acquire some nearby farmland by making sure the new owners never discover an all-important natural spring on the property. Richly textured, emotionally powerful adaptation of Marcel Pagnol novel, exquisitely and meticulously filmed, with galvanizing performances—especially by Depardieu as the doggedly optimistic novice farmer. Story continues in MANON OF THE SPRING. Technovision. [PG] ▼●●

Jeanne and the Perfect Guy (1999-French) C-98m. ½ D: Olivier Ducastel. Virginie Ledoyen, Mathieu Demy, Valerie Bonneton, Jacques Bonnaffe. Musical comedy about a beautiful young woman who finally meets the love of her life, only to lose him when he disappears after learning he is HIV-positive. Unusual subject matter for a musical, to say the least, but Ducastel (seemingly inspired by Jacques Demy films) almost pulls it off. Downbeat subject is eclipsed by inventive use of songs and ultimately life-affirming message. Panavision. ▼●

Jeanne Eagels (1957) 109m. ½ D: George Sidney. Kim Novak, Jeff Chandler, Agnes Moorehead, Gene Lockhart, Virginia Grey. Novak tries but can't rise to demands of portraying famed actress of 1920s. Chandler is her virile love interest.

Jeepest Creepers (2001) C-90m. ½ D: Victor Salva. Gina Philips, Justin Long, Jonathan Breck, Patricia Belcher, Eileen

Brennan, Brandon Smith, Peggy Sheffield. A brother and sister driving across the American South stop to investigate what looks like a murder, but turns out to be something far worse. Well directed and exciting, with an imaginatively conceived monster. This is genuinely scary at times, but the ending is unsatisfying and unpleasantly cynical. Written by the director. Followed by a sequel. [R] ▼●

Jeepest Creepers 2 (2003) C-106m.  D: Victor Salva. Ray Wise, Jonathan Breck, Garikayi Mutambirwa, Eric Nenninger, Nicki Aycox, Travis Schiffler, Lena Cardwell, Billy Aaron Brown, Diane Delano, Luke Edwards. The Creeper returns to attack a school bus filled with teenagers returning from a football game. Well-crafted film creates a tangible sense of fear and dread, and has plenty of good scares... but after a while its bag of tricks empties out. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Jefferson in Paris (1995) C-144m.  D: James Ivory. Nick Nolte, Greta Scacchi, Thandie Newton, Gwyneth Paltrow, Seth Gilliam, James Earl Jones, Simon Callow, Michael Lonsdale, Nancy Marchand, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Daniel Mesguich. While serving as U.S. Ambassador to France in the 1780s, a widowed Thomas Jefferson (Nolte) begins to fall in love with an Italian-born Englishwoman (Scacchi), but also finds himself attracted to a black, teenaged slave (Newton) on his household staff; meanwhile, his strong-willed daughter (Paltrow) seems to want to be the only woman in his life. Story is framed, in flashback, by Jones as free black man who claims to be Jefferson's son. Ambitious, well-appointed drama is also long and sluggish. [PG-13] ▼●●

Jeffrey (1995) C-92m. ½ D: Christopher Ashley. Steven Weber, Michael T. Weiss, Patrick Stewart, Bryan Batt, Sigourney Weaver, Nathan Lane, Olympia Dukakis, Christine Baranski, Robert Klein, Kathy Najimy, Irma St. Paule, Camryn Manheim. Thirtyish New Yorker Jeffrey (Weber), who is gay, has sworn off sex in this era of AIDS—only to meet hunky gym rat Weiss. They launch into a relationship and encounter just about every sort of "type" (gay or straight) imaginable, including Stewart (very good as a homosexual interior designer with a biting wit). Paul Rudnick's off-Broadway success works best when going for laughs; the intended poignancy of this very '90s romantic comedy is more forced. Kevin Nealon appears unbilled. [R] ▼●●

and drug jokes. A few scattered laughs in disappointing directorial debut by veteran comedy writer Belson. [R]▼

Jennifer (1978) C-90m.  D: Brice Mack. Lisa Pelikan, Bert Convy, Nina Foch, Amy Johnston, John Gavin, Jeff Corey, Wesley Eure. Unusually good cast in blatant rip-off of CARRIE, with Pelikan as ostracized high-school girl whose powers include ability to unleash deadly snakes on her victims. Retitled JENNIFER (THE SNAKE GODDESS) for TV. [PG]▼

Jennifer Eight (1992) C-127m. ½ D: Bruce Robinson. Andy Garcia, Uma Thurman, Lance Henriksen, Kathy Baker, Graham Beckel, Kevin Conway, John Malkovich, Perry Lang, Lenny von Dohlen. Taut, entertaining thriller in which burned-out L.A. cop Garcia relocates to a small Northern California town, where he promptly finds himself investigating a series of brutal murders. Will the next victim be beautiful, blind Thurman? Strong performances and eerie snowbound locations are pluses, but unfortunately, credibility dwindles as the story plays out. [R]▼●●

Jennifer on My Mind (1971) C-90m. BOMB D: Noel Black. Michael Brandon, Tippy Walker, Lou Gilbert, Steve Vinovich, Peter Bonerz, Renee Taylor, Chuck McCann, Barry Bostwick, Jeff Conaway. Probably the worst of many drug films released in the early '70s; rootless American drifter and rich American girl smoke grass in Venice, advance to hard drugs back home. Awful script by Erich Segal; of interest mainly for presence of Robert De Niro, in small, prophetic role of gypsy cab driver. [R]▼

Jennifer (The Snake Goddess) SEE: Jennifer

Jenny (1970) C-88m. BOMB D: George Bloomfield. Marlo Thomas, Alan Alda, Marian Hailey, Elizabeth Wilson, Vincent Gardenia, Stephen Strimpell. Sappy soap about filmmaker who marries pregnant girl in order to avoid the draft. Opening scene includes a clip from A PLACE IN THE SUN, which is best thing in film. [M/PG]▼

Jeopardy (1953) 69m. ½ D: John Sturges. Barbara Stanwyck, Barry Sullivan, Ralph Meeker, Lee Aaker. Uneven thriller with Stanwyck, on vacation in Mexico, attempting to save husband Sullivan from drowning—and then being kidnapped herself by killer-on-the-lam Meeker. Starts off well, but then fizzles. Paging Alex Trebek!▶

Jeremiah Johnson (1972) C-116m.  D: Sydney Pollack. Robert Redford, Will Geer, Stefan Gierasch, Allyn Ann McLerie, Charles Tyner, Josh Albee. Atmospheric chronicle of life of a mountain man, surviving wintry wilderness, Indians, rival trappers. Unfortunately, film doesn't know where to quit, rambling on to inconclusive ending. Geer is delightful as feisty mountain hermit. Script by John Milius and Edward Anhalt. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Jeremy (1973) C-90m.  D: Arthur Barron. Robby Benson, Glynnis O'Connor, Len Bari, Leonard Cimino, Ned Wilson, Chris Bohn. Two shy teenagers in N.Y.C. meet, fall in love, then separate. Poignant and real; situations, characters, and atmosphere are memorable. [PG]▼

Jericho SEE: Dark Sands

Jerk, The (1979) C-94m. ½ D: Carl Reiner. Steve Martin, Bernadette Peters, Catlin Adams, Mabel King, Richard Ward, Dick Anthony Williams, Bill Macy, Jackie Mason. Martin's first starring feature is a hit-or-miss comedy about the misadventures of a terminally stupid man. Some very funny moments, but after a while they're spread pretty thin. Martin later produced a TV version, THE JERK, TOO. Rob Reiner has an unbilled cameo. [R]▼●●

Jerky Boys, The (1995) C-82m. *½ D: James Melkonian. John G. Brennan, Kamal Ahmed, Alan Arkin, William Hickey, Alan North, Brad Sullivan, James Lorinz. Crank-call practitioners (who in real life had a hit record in N.Y.C.) who describe themselves as "two low-lifes from Queens" palm themselves off as Chicago hit men, thoroughly confusing N.Y. mobster Arkin. Result may appeal to the type of person who enjoys vandalizing suburban mailboxes. [R]▼●

Jerrico, The Wonder Clown SEE: 3 Ring Circus

Jerry and Tom (1999) C-92m.  D: Saul Rubinek. Joe Mantegna, Sam Rockwell, Maury Chaykin, Ted Danson, Charles Durning, William H. Macy, Peter Riegert, Sarah Polley. Flashback film about a couple of hit men: a mentor and his protégé. A fine cast fires expectations, but despite some good moments, the film never really delivers. Rubinek's first directing effort debuted on U.S. cable. [R]▼

Jerry Maguire (1996) C-138m. ½ D: Cameron Crowe. Tom Cruise, Cuba Gooding, Jr., Renée Zellweger, Kelly Preston, Jerry O'Connell, Jay Mohr, Bonnie Hunt, Regina King, Jonathan Lipnicki, Glenn Frey, Eric Stoltz, Jann Wenner, Alexandra Wentworth, Lucy Alexis Liu. Cocky, super-successful sports agent has a crisis of conscience, which costs him his job and all but one of his clients—the most difficult one on the roster (Gooding, in a charismatic, Oscar-winning performance). His only ally is a young woman (with a little boy) who's devoted to him professionally and personally. Intelligent, original, layered screenplay (by Crowe) with characters who are actually interesting and three-dimensional. Cruise's earnestness is perfect for the part, and Zellweger is a real find. Various sports figures play themselves; Beau Bridges appears unbilled. Only complaint: It goes on too long. Some prints have a faux athletic shoe commercial at the end. [R]▼●●

Jersey Girl (2004) C-102m. *½ D: Kevin Smith. Ben Affleck, Liv Tyler, Jennifer Lopez, George Carlin, Jason Biggs, Raquel Castro, Mike Starr, Stephen Root, Jason Lee, Matt Damon, Will Smith. High-powered music-industry publicist is shattered by his wife's death in childbirth and moves back to his father's house in New Jersey to raise his daughter and lick his wounds . . . until he meets a free-spirited video-store clerk (Tyler) who shakes him out of his stupor. Ultra-sentimental modern-day fairy tale is false and hollow—and played that way by everyone but Tyler. Writer-director Smith's most atypical movie to date—and his worst. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Jerusalem (1996-Swedish-Danish) C-166m. ½ D: Bille August. Maria Bonnevie, Ulf Friberg, Lena Endre, Pernilla August, Sven-Bertil Taube, Reine Brynolfsson, Olympia Dukakis, Max von Sydow. In late 19th-century Sweden, a poor, rural community is swept up in religious fervor; the town becomes bitterly divided, separating a pair of young sweethearts (Friberg, Bonnevie). When the converted emigrate to a Christian commune in Palestine, led by American Dukakis, they find new strife and strain. Long, fact-based epic (from Selma Lagerlöf's novel) is earnest to a fault. Made for Swedish TV. [PG-13]▼

Jesse James (1939) C-105m.  D: Henry King. Tyrone Power, Henry Fonda, Nancy Kelly, Randolph Scott, Henry Hull, Brian Donlevy, John Carradine, Jane Darwell. Sprawling, glamorous Western with Power and Fonda as Jesse and Frank James; movie builds a case that the Old West's most notorious outlaw was misguided. Sequel: THE RETURN OF FRANK JAMES. ▼●●

Jesse James Meets Frankenstein's Daughter (1966) C-88m. *½ D: William Beaudine. John Lupton, Narda Onyx, Cal Bolder, Estelita, Jim Davis, Steven Geray, William Fawcett. Low-budget nonsense mixes horror and Western genres, with Dr. Frankenstein's daughter practicing brain experiments—including turning Jesse's pal into a new monster. ▼●

Jessica (1962) C-112m. ½ D: Jean Negulesco. Angie Dickinson, Maurice Chevalier, Noel-Noel, Gabriele Ferzetti, Sylva Koscina, Agnes Moorehead. Dickinson is an Italian midwife who has men in her village lusting for her, with Chevalier as the local priest. Malarkey. Panavision.

Jesus (1979) C-117m. ½ D: Peter Sykes, John Krish. Brian Deacon, Rivka Noiman, Yossef Shiloah, Niko Nitai, Gadi Roi, David Goldberg; narrated by Alexander Scourby. Straightforward but unmemorable retelling of Jesus' life, produced by The Genesis Project; filmed in Israel. [G] ▼●

Jesus Camp (2006) C-87m.  D: Heidi Ewing, Rachel Grady. Fascinating and frightening look at the evangelical movement as seen through the eyes of three kids from Missouri who spend the summer at a camp for future Jerry Falwells. Artfully shows the indoctrination of children with ideas about politics and religion at an early age, demonstrating how the movement plans to spread its word to future generations. Curriculum includes lectures on the evils of homosexuality and abortion and the importance of working toward a Supreme Court populated by "believers." [PG-13]●

Jesus Christ Superstar (1973) C-103m.  D: Norman Jewison. Ted Neeley, Carl Anderson, Yvonne Elliman, Barry Dennen, Joshua Mostel, Bob Bingham. From record album to Broadway show to motion picture—film retains the Tim Rice—Andrew Lloyd Webber score, adds some interesting settings and visual trappings. It's not everyone's cup of religious experience, but certainly innovative. Watch for ubiquitous porno star Paul Thomas in the chorus. Todd-AO 35. [G]▼●●

Jesus of Montreal (1989-Canadian-French) C-119m. ½ D: Denys Arcand. Lothaire Bluteau, Catherine Wilkening, Johanne-Marie Tremblay, Remy Girard, Robert Lepage, Gilles Pelletier, Marie-Christine Barrault. A group of actors come together to stage an unconventional production of the Passion Play, and find themselves embroiled in controversy. Writer-director Arcand takes on religious hypocrisy, commercialism, and other social ills in this wise, profoundly moving and sometimes savagely funny film. A real gem. Arcand also appears in the role of the judge. [R]▼●●

Jesus' Son (1998-Canadian) C-109m.  D: Alison Maclean. Billy Crudup, Samantha Morton, Denis Leary, Jack Black, Will Patton, Greg Germann, Holly Hunter, Dennis Hopper, Mike (Michael) Shannon, Miranda July. A stream-of-consciousness reminiscence by one young man who's swallowed up in the drug culture of the 1970s. Told in nonlinear flashback style, with vignettes involving a variety of characters who cross his path (played by Leary, Hopper, Hunter). Main problem: it's hard to care about the leading character. Based on Denis Johnson's acclaimed collection of short stories. Super 35. [R]▼●

Jet Lag (2002-French-British) C-91m. ½ D: Danièle Thompson. Juliette Binoche, Jean Reno, Sergi López. A beautician and a chef meet randomly during an airport layover and over the course of 24 hours fall in love. Featherweight romance is just an excuse to see two star performers at the height of their charm . . . but what's wrong with that? Veteran screenwriter Thompson (COUSIN, COUSINE, QUEEN MARGOT) cowrote with her son Christopher. Super 35. [R]▼●

Jet Li's Fearless (2006-Hong Kong-Chinese-

U.S.) C-103m.  D: Ronny Yu. Jet Li, Shido Nakamura, Li Sun, Yong Dong, Hee Ching Paw, Nathan Jones, Brandon Rhea, Anthony De Longis. Li apparently caps his career in this genre playing martial arts legend Huo Yuanjia, China's most famous fighter at the turn of the 20th century, who nearly dies in a tragic incident in which he loses most of his family. In time he returns to the ring and is pitted against four imposing fighters who represent the major foreign powers dominating China at that time. Emotionally charged and visually striking; Li shows why he is a master of the art. Unrated version runs 104m. Aka FEARLESS. Super 35. [PG-13] **▶

Jet Pilot (1957) C-112m. * D: Josef von Sternberg. John Wayne, Janet Leigh, Jay C. Flippen, Paul Fix, Richard Rober, Roland Winters, Hans Conried. One of Howard Hughes' movie curios, updating his HELL'S ANGELS interest in aviation with cold war theme, as American pilot Wayne falls in love with Russian jet ace Leigh. Ridiculous, to say the least, though some of its humor seems to have been intentional. Completed in 1950, unreleased for seven years! Incidentally, some of the stunt flying was done by Chuck Yeager. **▶

Jetsons: The Movie (1990) C-81m. * D: William Hanna, Joseph Barbera. Voices of George O'Hanlon, Penny Singleton, Mel Blanc, Tiffany, Don Messick, Patric Zimmerman. Disappointing expansion of the 1960s animated TV sitcom has nothing to offer now-grown-up fans of the series, but remains a palatable offering for very young children, with pro-social messages thrown in at the end. [G] **▶

Je Vous Aime (1981-French) C-105m. *½ D: Claude Berri. Catherine Deneuve, Jean-Louis Trintignant, Gérard Depardieu, Alain Souchon, Christian Marquand, Serge Gainsbourg. Shallow, solemn tale of liberated career woman Deneuve, who is unable to remain monogamous. Good cast can do little with material; disappointing.

Jeweller's Shop, The (1987-Italian-Canadian) C-97m. * D: Michael Anderson. Burt Lancaster, Ben Cross, Olivia Hussey, Andrea Occhipinti. Lancaster is a mysterious old Polish jeweler at the start of WW2 who brings together two pairs of lovers. Of particular interest both as one of the star's last film appearances and for the fact that it's based on a play by Karol Wojtyła, who later became Pope John Paul II. Aka THE GOLDSMITH'S SHOP.

Jewel of the Nile, The (1985) C-104m. * D: Lewis Teague. Michael Douglas, Kathleen Turner, Danny DeVito, Spiros Focas, Avner Eisenberg, The Flying Karamazov Brothers. Contrived "high adventure" involving an evil potentate and a precious "jewel." Sequel to ROMANCING THE

STONE can't capture charm of original, because the characters are set—and character change (particularly Turner's) is what made the first movie fun. Some good stunts and funny lines, but it all rings hollow. Widescreen. [PG] **▶

Jewel Robbery (1932) 70m. ½ D: William Dieterle. William Powell, Kay Francis, Hardie Albright, Henry Kolker, Spencer Charters, Alan Mowbray, Helen Vinson. Lubitsch-like bauble with wealthy, married Francis (who aches for excitement in her life) being captivated by debonair burglar Powell. Breathlessly paced, witty and charming. Screenplay by Erwin Gelsey, based on a play by Ladislaus Fodor.

Jezebel (1938) 103m. ½ D: William Wyler. Bette Davis, Henry Fonda, George Brent, Margaret Lindsay, Donald Crisp, Fay Bainter, Spring Byington, Richard Cromwell, Henry O'Neill. Davis won her second Oscar as tempestuous Southern belle who goes too far to make fiancé Fonda jealous; Bainter also received Oscar as Davis' sympathetic aunt. Fine production, entire cast excellent. John Huston was one of the writers. Also shown in computer-colored version. **▶

Jezebels, The SEE: Switchblade Sisters

JFK (1991) C/B&W-188m. ½ D: Oliver Stone. Kevin Costner, Sissy Spacek, Kevin Bacon, Tommy Lee Jones, Laurie Metcalf, Gary Oldman, Michael Rooker, Jay O. Sanders, Beata Pozniak, Joe Pesci, Donald Sutherland, John Candy, Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, Ed Asner, Vincent D'Onofrio, Sally Kirkland, Brian Doyle-Murray, Wayne Knight, Tony Plana, Tomas Milian, Sean Stone. Absolutely riveting film about New Orleans D.A. Jim Garrison and his gradual involvement (and eventual obsession) with finding the truth about President Kennedy's assassination. Full of startling scenes, and bravura acting; as dramatic moviemaking, it's superb. Not to be mistaken for a documentary, however, despite its sanctimonious attitude toward the truth. Oscar winner for Robert Richardson's cinematography and Joe Hutshing and Pietro Scalia's phenomenal editing. Screenplay by Oliver Stone and Zachary Sklar. The real Garrison can be glimpsed playing Earl Warren. Lolita Davidovich and Frank Whaley appear unbilled. Director's cut runs 205m. Panavision. [R] **▶

Jigsaw (1968) C-97m. ½ D: James Goldstone. Harry Guardino, Bradford Dillman, Hope Lange, Pat Hingle, Diana Hyland, Victor Jory, Paul Stewart, Susan Saint James, Michael J. Pollard, James Doohan, Kent McCord. Fast-paced, utterly confusing yarn about amnesiac Dillman trying to figure out his past and unravel murder caper he was involved in. Frantic editing and music don't help viewer; remake of MIRAGE. Made for TV but shown theatrically first.

Jigsaw Man, The (1984-British) C-91m.

 D: Terence Young. Michael Caine, Laurence Olivier, Susan George, Robert Powell, Charles Gray, Michael Medwin. Caine, an ex-British Secret Service honcho who defected to Russia, comes back to England (following rejuvenating plastic surgery) for one final mission. Will he serve one country, the other, or play both ends against the middle? Unfortunately this Caine-Olivier pairing is no SLEUTH, so you won't care. [PG]▼●

Jim Buck SEE: Portrait of a Hitman

Jimi Hendrix (1973) C-102m. ½ D: Joe Boyd, John Head, Gary Weis. Documentary on life of noted black rock guitarist; good segments from various concerts, interviews with those who knew him well. Songs include "Purple Haze," "Wild Thing," "Johnny B. Goode." [R]▼●

Jiminy Glick in La La Wood (2005-Canadian) C-90m.  D: Vadim Jean. Martin Short, Jan Hooks, John Michael Higgins, Elizabeth Perkins, Linda Cardellini, Janeane Garofalo, Corey Pearson, Peter Breck. Ill-conceived extension of Primetime Glick, Short's TV series, in which he plays a character introduced on The Martin Short Show: a thickheaded, roly-poly celebrity interviewer-critic from Butte, Montana. Here, Jiminy and his family attend the Toronto Film Festival and become involved in a complicated murder plot. Film buffs will enjoy Short's impersonation of David Lynch, and Jiminy is always hilarious, but he and guest star Steve Martin provide the only bright spots in this painfully unfunny comedy. Other stars appear on camera, caught at the Toronto festivities. [R]●

Jimmy Carter: Man from Plains (2007) C-126m.  D: Jonathan Demme. Intimate documentary portrait of the former U.S. president follows him on his 2006-07 book tour for Palestine: Peace Not Apartheid, in which he stresses that a Middle East peace only will come when the Israelis and Palestinians agree to live in harmony. Compelling account of Carter's life since leaving office in 1981. [PG]●

Jimmy Hollywood (1994) C-109m.  D: Barry Levinson. Joe Pesci, Christian Slater, Victoria Abril, Jason Beghe, John Cothran, Jr., Rob Weiss, Chad McQueen. Well-meaning but one-note tale of hard-luck middle-aged dreamer Pesci, a would-be actor who earns fame by playing out the role of a lifetime: Jericho, an urban vigilante. Obvious look at life in seedy, contemporary Hollywood, which once was a "mecca of dreams." Pesci is good, but his character quickly becomes wearying. Watch for director Levinson at the finale. Levinson also scripted. [R]▼●●

computer-generated cartoon produced by Nickelodeon. When a young inventor inadvertently causes alien invaders to kidnap all the parents in the neighborhood, it's up to him and his classmates to travel through space and mount a rescue. Cute kids' film with plenty of visual and verbal humor, but lavish settings (particularly in outer space) clash with weak character designs and low-budget animation. Followed by a TV series. [G]▼●

Jimmy the Gent (1934) 67m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. James Cagney, Bette Davis, Alice White, Allen Jenkins, Philip Reed, Mayo Methot. Crooked businessman Cagney pretends to refine himself to impress Davis in this bouncy comedy.

Jimmy the Kid (1983) C-85m. *½ D: Gary Nelson. Gary Coleman, Paul LeMat, Walter Olkewicz, Dee Wallace, Ruth Gordon, Don Adams, Cleavon Little, Avery Schreiber. Bored, brilliant son of wealthy husband-and-wife singing team is kidnapped by gang of pathetically incompetent bunglers who teach him how to enjoy being a kid. Coleman returns favor by bringing good cast down to his level of nonacting, consisting of endless mugging and exaggerated eyeball rolling, in this lame comedy. Based on a Donald Westlake novel, with LeMat as the same character played by Robert Redford in THE HOT ROCK. [PG]▼

Jim Thorpe—All-American (1951) 107m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Burt Lancaster, Charles Bickford, Steve Cochran, Phyllis Thaxter, Dick Wesson. The life of the famed American Indian athlete who was stripped of his Olympic medals for playing professional baseball. Lancaster lends dignified vigor to title role; Bickford is especially outstanding as Thorpe's mentor, legendary coach Pop Warner.▼●●

Jindabyne (2006-Australian) C-123m.  D: Ray Lawrence. Laura Linney, Gabriel Byrne, Deborah-lee Furness, John Howard, Leah Purcell, Stelios Yiakmis, Simon Stone, Betty Lucas. Gas station owner (Byrne) and three pals take off for an annual fishing weekend at a remote spot where there isn't cell phone reception. They come upon a woman's dead body floating in the river, and while they're shocked they figure there's nothing they can do to help her, so they continue fishing. That decision has unexpected repercussions not only with their families but with the community at large. Absorbing, multifaceted drama flavored by aboriginal mysticism. Based on Raymond Carver's story "So Much Water So Close To Home," which was also dramatized in Robert Altman's SHORT CUTS. Super 35. [R]●

the sold-out toy the day before Christmas. His chief rival in the search (Sinbad) turns out to be not just a competitor but a major sicko. Even at 88 minutes this feels prolonged and protracted, a dubious '90s addition to the canon of holiday movies. Arnold gives it his best, but he simply isn't funny. [PG] ▼●●

Jinnah (1998-U.S.-Pakistani-British) C-94m.  D: Jamil Dehlavi. Christopher Lee, James Fox, Maria Aitkin, Shashi Kapoor, Shireen Shah, Richard Lintern, Robert Ashby, Sam Dastor. Lee is outstanding as the dedicated, brittle and reserved Mohammed Ali Jinnah, founder of Pakistan, in this odd biography in which, on the verge of death, he's shown the events of his past in Ebenezer Scrooge style. Fox, Ashby, and Dastor are also fine as Mountbatten, Nehru, and Gandhi. A worthwhile, intelligent movie that deserves, like its subject, to be better known. ▼

Jinxed! (1982) C-103m.  D: Don Siegel. Bette Midler, Ken Wahl, Rip Torn, Val Avery, Jack Elam, Benson Fong. Messy black comedy about a Vegas lounge singer, the lout she lives with, and a young black-jack dealer the lout has managed to jinx at his own table. Though a characteristically ripped Rip provides some amusement, the much-reported lack of rapport between Midler/Wahl and Midler/Siegel comes through on the screen. Screenwriter "Bert Blessing" is really Frank D. Gilroy. [R] ▼

Jitterbugs (1943) 74m.  D: Mal St. Clair. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Vivian Blaine, Robert Bailey, Douglas Fowley, Noel Madison. One of the team's better later efforts, with Blaine sharing the spotlight and doing quite nicely. Ollie's scene with Southern belle Lee Patrick is a gem. Previously filmed as ARIZONA TO BROADWAY. ▶

J-Men Forever! (1979) 75m.  D: Richard Patterson. Philip Proctor, Peter Bergman, voice of M. G. Kelly. Clever stunt that really works—scenes from countless Republic serials are re-edited into new feature, with redubbed soundtrack and a few new scenes. Story (by Firesign Theatre's Proctor and Bergman) has The Lightning Bug ("From the Moon, Baby!") out to conquer Earth by flooding radio airwaves with rock; various heroes try to make the world safe for Lawrence Welk. Amazing job of editing by Gail Werbin; one great gag involves a young Leonard Nimoy. [PG] ▼

Joanna (1968-British) C-107m. ½ D: Michael Sarne. Genevieve Waite, Christian Doermer, Calvin Lockhart, Donald Sutherland, Glenna Forster-Jones. Flashy story of wide-eyed girl falling in with loose-living London crowd, growing up through heart-break, conflict. Sutherland steals film in flamboyant role as frail, wealthy young man trying to enjoy life to fullest. Panavision. [R]

Joan of Arc (1948) C-100m. ½ D: Victor Fleming. Ingrid Bergman, Jose Ferrer, Francis L. Sullivan, J. Carrol Naish,

Ward Bond, Shepperd Strudwick, Hurd Hatfield, Gene Lockhart, John Emery, Cecil Kellaway, George Coulouris, John Ireland. Bergman is staunchly sincere in this overlong, faithful adaptation of Maxwell Anderson's play. Not enough spectacle to balance talky sequences. Originally released theatrically at 145m. ▼●●

Joan of Paris (1942) 91m. ½ D: Robert Stevenson. Michele Morgan, Paul Henreid, Thomas Mitchell, Laird Cregar, May Robson, Alexander Granach, Alan Ladd. Excellent WW2 tale of dedicated Morgan giving herself up so Henreid and fellow pilots can return to Allied lines. U.S. debuts for both Morgan and Henreid. ▼

Jocks (1987) C-91m. *½ D: Steve Carver. Scott Strader, Perry Lang, Mariska Hargitay, Richard Roundtree, R. G. Armstrong, Christopher Lee, Stoney Jackson, Adam Mills, Katherine Kelly Lang, Trinidad Silva, Don Gibb. Silly teen comedy of college tennis team's hijinx in Las Vegas. Despite oddball roles for vets Lee and Armstrong, picture only comes to life on the tennis court. Filmed in 1984. [R] ▼

Joe (1970) C-107m. ½ D: John G. Avildsen. Peter Boyle, Dennis Patrick, K. Callan, Audrey Caire, Susan Sarandon, Patrick McDermott. Sleeper film brought Boyle to prominence as hardhat bigot who practices genteel blackmail on executive Patrick, who's murdered his daughter's hippie boyfriend. Overrated film owes much to Boyle's characterization, not to contrived plot. Sarandon's film debut. [R] ▼●●

Joe Cocker: Mad Dogs and Englishmen (1971-British) C-119m.  D: Pierre Adidge. Joe Cocker, Leon Russell, Chris Stainton, Carl Radle, John Price, Bobby Keys, Rita Coolidge, Claudia Linnear. Excellent rockumentary of Cocker's '70 American tour, highlighted by Cocker, Russell, and Linnear in performance. Songs include "Feelin' Alright," "With a Little Help from My Friends," "Darlin' Be Home Soon," many others. Aka MAD DOGS AND ENGLISHMEN. Multiple Screen. [PG] ▼

Joe Dirt (2001) C-91m. *½ D: Dennie Gordon. David Spade, Dennis Miller, Brittany Daniel, Adam Beach, Kid Rock, Jaime Pressly, Christopher Walken, Caroline Aaron, Fred Ward. One would need more than a spade to dig up laughs in this mucky saga of a white-trash loser with a big heart and an even bigger mullet hairdo who's on a quest to find the parents who ditched him when he was eight. Charming comic bits involve frozen animal testicles, incest, excrement, vomit, and the amputation of limbs. Joe Don Baker, Rosanna Arquette, Kevin Nealon, and Carson Daly all appear sans credit, while Walken (as taping janitor Gert E. Frobe) may wish he had done the same. [PG-13] ▼

Joe Gould's Secret (2000) C-104m.  D: Stanley Tucci. Ian Holm, Stanley Tucci,

Patricia Clarkson, Hope Davis, Steve Martin, Susan Sarandon, Patrick Tovatt, Celia Weston, Allan Corduner. New Yorker profile writer Joseph Mitchell (Tucci) is introduced to "the king of the Bohemians," street savant Joe Gould (Holm), and becomes fascinated (and sucked in) by this bombastic Greenwich Village habitue. Notable for its loving re-creation of 1940s N.Y.C. and the world that Mitchell documented so vividly. Holm is simply superb. Screenplay by Howard A. Rodman. [R] ▼

Joe Hill (1971-Swedish) C-114m.  D: Bo Widerberg, Thommy Berggren, Anja Schmidt, Kelvin Malave, Everl Anderson, Cathy Smith. Fabricated story of legendary labor leader has usual Widerberg matter-of-taste glossiness, but also some affecting scenes and pleasant performances. Joan Baez sings title song. [PG]

Joe Kidd (1972) C-88m.  D: John Sturges. Clint Eastwood, Robert Duvall, John Saxon, Don Stroud, Stella Garcia, James Wainwright. Eastwood is hired to hunt down some Mexican-Americans by land baron Duvall in ordinary Western; nice photography and a rousing scene where Eastwood drives a train through a barroom. Written by Elmore Leonard. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Joe Louis Story, The (1953) 88m.  D: Robert Gordon. Coley Wallace, Paul Stewart, Hilda Simms, James Edwards, John Marley, Dots Johnson. Biopic of the heavyweight champ is interesting historically but dramatically hokey; Wallace looks the part of Louis, but is no actor. ▼

Joe Macbeth (1955-British) 90m. ½ D: Ken Hughes. Paul Douglas, Ruth Roman, Bonar Colleano, Gregoire Aslan, Sidney James. Occasionally amusing variation on Shakespeare's Macbeth, with Douglas a 1930s gangster whose wife (Roman) nags him into murdering his way to the top of his "profession."

Joe Panther (1976) C-110m.  D: Paul Krasny. Brian Keith, Ricardo Montalban, Alan Feinstein, Cliff Osmond, A Martinez, Ray Tracey. Good family film about modern-day Seminole youth (Tracey) striving to make his way in the white man's world. [G] ▼

Joe's Apartment (1996) C-80m. ½ D: John Payson. Jerry O'Connell, Megan Ward, Robert Vaughn, Don Ho, Shiek Mahmud-Bey, Jim Sterling, Sandra Denton, Toukie Smith, Scott "Bam Bam" Bigelow, Paul Bartel: voices of Billy West, Reginald Huddlin, Dave Chappelle, B. D. Wong. Joe (O'Connell) lives in a N.Y.C. slum apartment infested by thousands of singing, dancing, and talking cockroaches, who help him defeat the schemes of his evil landlord (Don Ho). To put it mildly, not for all tastes, but if you can handle break-dancing vermin, the effects are excellent, the musical numbers inventive, and the whole thing harmlessly silly. Written by the director. Based on a short that first aired on MTV in 1992. [PG-13] ▼

Joe Somebody (2001) C-98m. ½ D: John Pasquin. Tim Allen, Julie Bowen, Kelly Lynch, Hayden Panettiere, Jim Belushi, Greg Germann, Robert Joy, Patrick Warburton. Beaten-down corporate worker finally stands up for his rights by fighting with a bully in the company parking lot—and discovers that he suddenly has the attention, and respect, of coworkers who never noticed him before. Allen is good in his comedic everyman role, but the concept is hazy and underdeveloped. [PG] ▼

Joe Strummer: The Future Is Unwritten (2007-Irish-British) C-125m.  D: Julien Temple. Compelling documentary traces the life and death of Clash front man, showing his vast influence both musically and personally on those around him. Employing Super 8 home movies, photos, and current interviews (with everyone from Bono to Johnny Depp), Temple presents a telling portrait of a pioneering musician from his childhood influences to his heyday in the late '70s and '80s to his latter-day life as a star, husband, and father. Musical sequences are superbly chosen and edited in this worthwhile look at a true rock music legend. ▼

Joe the King (1999) C-83m.  D: Frank Whaley. Noah Fleiss, Val Kilmer, Karen Young, Ethan Hawke, John Leguizamo, Austin Pendleton, Max Ligosh, James Costa, Camryn Manheim, Amy Wright. A 14-year-old boy's life is one long, losing battle. With a drunken, irresponsible father (Kilmer) and an absentee mother (Young), he's descended into a life of theft and anti-social behavior. He's not really a bad kid, but there is no relief, and certainly no hope, in sight for him. Actor Whaley's writing-directing debut is a vivid portrait of working-class life, but is so dismal it might be retitled THE 800 BLOWS. [R] ▼

Joe Versus the Volcano (1990) C-102m. ½ D: John Patrick Shanley. Tom Hanks, Meg Ryan, Lloyd Bridges, Robert Stack, Dan Hedaya, Abe Vigoda, Ossie Davis, Barry McGovern, Amanda Plummer, Carol Kane, Nathan Lane. Pleasant if pointless fable about a stressed-out nerd who learns he has six months to live, and accepts an eccentric millionaire's offer to enable him to live like a king—so long as he jumps into a volcano at the end of his "vacation." Unfortunately, the story also takes a dive. Writer Shanley's directorial debut turns out to be a shaggy-dog story that doesn't pay off. However, it is fun watching Ryan play three distinctively different women . . . and remember, luggage is everything. Panavision. [PG] ▼

maldi, Frankie Lanz. Hokey but harmless ode to Oldies and Doo Wop, chronicling the troubled personal life of teen rock musician Barry and his relationship with his dad (Quinn), who used to turn out hit records but now toils in a gas station and drinks away his paycheck. Otherwise minor item features cameo appearances by The Limelights (who perform "Daddy's Home"), Silhouettes ("Get a Job"), Ad-Libs ("Boy From New York City"), Elegants ("Little Star"), Screamin' Jay Hawkins ("I Put a Spell on You") and, fleetingly, Jimmy Merchant and Herman Santiago, the only surviving Teenagers ("Why Do Fools Fall in Love?"). [PG]▼

Joey Breaker (1993) C-92m. ½ D: Steven Starr. Richard Edson, Cedella Marley, Fred Fondren, Erik King, Gina Gershon, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Michael Imperioli, Parker Posey. Astute, candid, but too often dramatically static portrait of a suave, self-absorbed N.Y. talent agent (Edson), and how his consciousness is raised. Marley (the daughter of Bob Marley) plays the romantic interest, a Jamaican nursing student. Starr, an ex-William Morris agent, also scripted and coproduced. [R]▼

John and Mary (1969) C-92m. ½ D: Peter Yates. Dustin Hoffman, Mia Farrow, Michael Tolan, Sunny Griffin, Stanley Beck, Tyne Daly, Alix Elias, Marian Mercer, Olympia Dukakis, Cleavon Little, Kristoffer Tabori. John and Mary meet, make love, but don't know if the relationship should end right there. Innuocuous, un compelling trifle. Hoffman seems to be sleepwalking; audience may join him. Panavision. Shirley MacLaine, Peter Ustinov, Richard Crenna, Scott Brady, Jim Backus, Charles Lane, Jerome Cowan, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Fred Clark, Harry Morgan, Telly Savalas, Richard Deacon, Jackie Coogan, Jerome (Jerry) Orbach, Barbara Bouchet. Trapped in desert kingdom, two Americans (pilot, woman reporter) conspire to help Arabian chief Ustinov's football team beat Notre Dame. Notre Dame University found this spoof so offensive it sued in court; the viewer has an easier alternative. Screenplay by William Peter Blatty. Look for Teri Garr. CinemaScope.

John Loves Mary (1949) 96m. ½ D: David Butler. Ronald Reagan, Jack Carson, Patricia Neal, Wayne Morris, Edward Arnold, Virginia Field. Genial adaptation of Norman Krasna's Broadway hit about a soldier (Reagan) who does his pal a favor by marrying the fellow's British girlfriend, so she can come to the U.S.—intending to get divorce upon arrival. Naive fluff was Neal's film debut.▼▶

Johnny Angel (1945) 79m.  D: Edwin L. Marin. George Raft, Claire Trevor, Signe Hasso, Lowell Gilmore, Hoagy Carmichael, Marvin Miller, Margaret Wycherly, J. Farrell MacDonald. Tough, well-done melodrama, with Raft cleaning up notorious mob, solving mystery of father's murder. Trevor lends good support.▼●

Johnny Apollo (1940) 93m.  D: Henry Hathaway. Tyrone Power, Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Lloyd Nolan, Charles Grapewin, Lionel Atwill, Marc Lawrence. Good-natured Power turns crook, resentful of father Arnold, white-collar thief. Good acting, especially by Lamour as the girlfriend.▼▶

Johnny Belinda (1948) 103m. ½ D: Jean Negulesco. Jane Wyman, Lew Ayres, Charles Bickford, Jan Sterling, Agnes Moorehead, Stephen McNally, Rosalind Ivan, Alan Napier, Dan Seymour. Sensitive acted, atmospheric drama of young deaf-mute girl (Wyman) and doctor (Ayres) who works with her. Setting of provincial fishing-farming community vividly realized. Wyman won an Oscar for her fine performance. Elmer Harris play was scripted by Irmgard von Cube and Allen Vincent. Remade for TV in 1982 with Rosanna Arquette. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼▶

Johnny Come Lately (1943) 97m. ½ D: William K. Howard. James Cagney, Grace George, Marjorie Main, Marjorie Lord, Hattie McDaniel, Ed McNamara. Tame but amusing Cagney vehicle, with Jimmy as wandering newspaperman who helps elderly editor George in small-town political battle.▼●

Johnny Concho (1956) 84m. ½ D: Don McGuire. Frank Sinatra, Keenan Wynn, William Conrad, Phyllis Kirk, Wallace Ford, Dorothy Adams, Jean Byron, Claude Akins, John Qualen. Plodding Western with novelty of Sinatra as cowardly soul who must build courage for inevitable shoot-out. Adapted from a Studio One TV play.

Johnny Dangerously (1984) C-90m. *½ D: Amy Heckerling. Michael Keaton, Joe Piscopo, Marilu Henner, Maureen Stapleton, Peter Boyle, Griffin Dunne, Richard Dimitri, Glynnis O'Connor, Byron Thames, Danny DeVito, Dom DeLuise, Ray Walston, Sudie Bond. Lame comedy about Prohibition-era gangsters; looks like a TV show and plays that way, too, with scatter-shot jokes (only a few of them funny) instead of a script. [PG-13] ▼

Johnny Eager (1941) 107m.  D: Mervyn LeRoy. Robert Taylor, Lana Turner, Edward Arnold, Van Heflin, Robert Sterling, Patricia Dane, Glenda Farrell, Barry Nelson. Slick MGM melodrama with convoluted plot about sociology student (and daughter of D.A. Arnold) Turner falling in love with unscrupulous racketeer Taylor. Heflin won Best Supporting Actor Oscar as Taylor's alcoholic friend. ▼

Johnny English (2003-British-U.S.) C-86m.  D: Peter Howitt. Rowan Atkinson, John Malkovich, Natalie Imbruglia, Ben Miller, Douglas McFerran, Tim Pigott-Smith, Kevin McNally, Greg Wise. Very funny James Bond spoof with Atkinson as a hopelessly clumsy office functionary who gets to live out his fantasy and become a secret agent. His adversary: a wily French criminal named Pascal Sauvage, played with brio by Malkovich. Atkinson is in prime form in this engagingly silly sight-gag comedy. Based on a series of British TV commercials from the 1990s. [PG] ▼

Johnny Got His Gun (1971) C-111m.  D: Dalton Trumbo. Timothy Bottoms, Kathy Fields, Marsha Hunt, Jason Robards, Donald Sutherland, Diane Varsi, David Soul, Tony Geary. Morbid film version of Trumbo's novel about WWI basket case has moving opening and climax, but everything in the middle is either talky, pretentious, or amateurish. [PG] ▼

Johnny Guitar (1954) C-110m. ½ D: Nicholas Ray. Joan Crawford, Sterling Hayden, Scott Brady, Mercedes McCambridge, Ward Bond, Ben Cooper, Ernest Borgnine, Royal Dano, John Carradine, Paul Fix, Frank Ferguson. The screen's great kinky Western, a memorable confrontation between saloonkeeper Crawford and righteous hellion McCambridge, who wants her run out of town and/or hanged. Simply fascinating with symbolism rampant throughout. Script by Philip Yordan. ▼

Johnny Handsome (1989) C-94m.  D:

Walter Hill. Mickey Rourke, Ellen Barkin, Elizabeth McGovern, Morgan Freeman, Forest Whitaker, Lance Henriksen, Scott Wilson, Blake Clark. Disfigured Rourke is imprisoned after his abandonment by fellow lowlifes during a heist; a doctor then proposes performing plastic surgery on his features, hoping to lower his recidivism potential. Eccentric, to say the least, and not totally without interest given the cast, but eventually wears out its welcome. Given Rourke's standard appearance, this must be the only skull surgery ever performed without benefit of a shampoo. [R] ▼

Johnny Nnemonic (1995-Canadian) C-98m. *½ D: Robert Longo. Keanu Reeves, Dolph Lundgren, Takeshi, Ice-T, Dina Meyer, Udo Kier, Denis Akiyama, Henry Rollins, Tracy Tweed, Don Francks. In the very ugly future of 2021, a world-weary courier (who carries info in his head) takes one final run from Beijing to Newark, his storage capacity dangerously overloaded with volatile data sought by a huge, ruthless corporation. Intriguing premise, written by William Gibson and directed by artist Longo, goes absolutely nowhere, as uninteresting characters mouth laughable dialogue against a landscape of urban hell. Despite the computer graphics, this is cyberclaptrap. Runs about 15m. longer in Japan. [R] ▼

Johnny O'Clock (1947) 95m. ½ D: Robert Rossen. Dick Powell, Evelyn Keyes, Lee J. Cobb, Ellen Drew, Nina Foch, Jeff Chandler. Cast and director make script about high-class gambler in trouble with the law seem better than it is; Powell is fine in lead role.

Johnny Reno (1966) C-83m. BOMB D: R.G. Springsteen. Dana Andrews, Jane Russell, Lon Chaney (Jr.), John Agar, Lyle Bettger, Tom Drake, Richard Arlen, Robert Lowery. Laughably clichéd Western has Marshal Andrews trying to save accused killer from lynching. Only for buffs who want to play "spot the star." Techniscope. ▼

Johnny Stecchino (1991-Italian) C-100m.  D: Roberto Benigni. Roberto Benigni, Nicoletta Braschi, Paolo Bonacelli, Ignazio Pappalardo, Franco Volpi. A mild and meek school bus driver is the spitting image of a notorious gangster—Johnny Stecchino ("Toothpick"). When the latter's luscious girlfriend drags the naive look-alike down to her Sicilian villa all sorts of shenanigans ensue. Bright physical comedy was Italy's most successful film ever at the box office, and director-cowriter-star Benigni has thrown in a wide array of his trademark physical gags. Material wears a little thin after a while, but it's hard to dislike a film with a heroine whose favorite exclamation is "Holy Cleopatra!" [R] ▼

Johnny Suede (1991) C-95m.  D:

Tom DiCillo. Brad Pitt, Calvin Levels, Alison Moir, Catherine Keener, Tina Louise, Nick Cave, Samuel L. Jackson. Pitt is perfectly cast as Johnny Suede, who sports a glorious pompadour and dreams of stardom as a Ricky Nelson-type pop singer. Clever, winningly hip little film; at its best contrasting Johnny's dream world with the reality that surrounds him. ▼●●

Johnny Tiger (1966) C-102m. ½ D: Paul Wendkos. Robert Taylor, Geraldine Brooks, Chad Everett, Brenda Scott. Set in Florida, tame tale of teacher Taylor, doctor Brooks, and half-breed Seminole Everett trying to come to conclusions about Indians' role in modern world. ▼

Johnny Tremain (1957) C-80m.  D: Robert Stevenson. Hal Stalmaster, Luana Patten, Jeff York, Sebastian Cabot, Dick Beymer, Walter Sande. Excellent Disney film, from Esther Forbes' novel about a young boy who gets involved in the Revolutionary War; sprinkles fiction with fact to bring history to life. ▼●●

John Paul Jones (1959) C-126m. ½ D: John Farrow. Robert Stack, Marisa Pavan, Charles Coburn, Erin O'Brien, Macdonald Carey, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Peter Cushing, Bruce Cabot, Bette Davis. Empty spectacle of 18th-century American naval hero, with cameo by Davis as Russian empress, Catherine the Great. Look for Mia Farrow (daughter of film's director and Maureen O'Sullivan) in film debut. Technirama. ▼

John Q (2002) C-118m. ½ D: Nick Casavetes. Denzel Washington, James Woods, Robert Duvall, Anne Heche, Ray Liotta, Kimberly Elise, Eddie Griffin, Shawn Hatosy, Obba Babatundé, Troy Beyer, Paul Johansson, Daniel E. Smith. Factory worker who's struggling to make ends meet learns that his insurance will not cover his son's heart transplant surgery. Assaulted by red tape and uncaring bureaucrats, he commandeers the hospital's emergency room—willing to do anything to save his child's life. Story ingredients ring true, but the film shamelessly pushes emotional buttons, with speechifying and two-dimensional supporting characters. Redeemed, to a surprising extent, by Washington's powerful performance. [PG-13] ▼●

Johns (1996) C-94m.  D: Scott Silver. Lukas Haas, David Arquette, Arliss Howard, Keith David, Christopher Gartin, Elliott Gould, Terrence Dashon Howard, Richard Kind, John C. McGinley. Depressing tale of friendship between two hustlers on the L.A. scene, set on the day before Christmas. Gritty and bleak with solid performances by Haas and Arquette, but the subject and tone will remind viewers of the far superior MIDNIGHT COWBOY. [R] ▼●

Johnson Family Vacation (2004) C-97m. BOMB D: Christopher Erskin. Cedric the Entertainer, Vanessa Williams, Bow Wow, Shannon Elizabeth, Solange Knowles, Steve

Harvey, Christopher B. Duncan, Jennifer Freeman, Gabby Soleil, Wade Williams, Aloma Wright, Shari Headley. Upright insurance man takes his family—including his estranged wife—on a disaster-prone motor trip from L.A. to Missouri for a family reunion and competition. Amateurish comedy is played so broadly you expect Kingfish Stevens to turn up at any minute. Cedric stars and also plays a bombastic, mush-mouthed character named Uncle Earl. Followed by two DVD sequels. [PG-13] ▼●

John Tucker Must Die (2006) C-90m. *½ D: Betty Thomas. Jesse Metcalfe, Brittany Snow, Ashanti, Sophia Bush, Arielle Kebbel, Jenny McCarthy, Penn Badgley, Fatso-Fasano, Kevin McNulty, Patricia Drake. When three high school girls discover they have all been dating the same two-timing lothario, they convince an innocent classmate to seduce the smooth-talking jock and break his heart. Charmless and predictable teen comedy loses touch with reality about halfway through and winds up a ludicrous mess. Any similarity between these characters and actual human beings is purely coincidental. [PG-13] ●

Jo Jo Dancer, Your Life Is Calling (1986) C-97m.  D: Richard Pryor. Richard Pryor, Debbie Allen, Art Evans, Fay Hauser, Barbara Williams, Carmen McRae, Paula Kelly, Diahnne Abbott, Scoey Mitchell, Billy Eckstine, Wings Hauser, E'lon Cox, Virginia Capers, Dennis Farina. Pryor examines his life, with the help of an alter-ego character; largely autobiographical film only sparks when chronicling the comedian's early life and first show-biz encounters. From there it's downhill: jumbled, at arm's-length, and boring. Pryor's directorial debut, if you don't count an earlier concert film (he also coscripted and produced). Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Joke of Destiny, A (1983-Italian) C-105m. *½ D: Lina Wertmuller. Ugo Tognazzi, Piera Degli Esposti, Gastone Moschin, Renzo Montagnani, Valeria Golino. A high government official is accidentally locked in his computer-controlled limousine, and his dilemma is dealt with as if it's a national crisis. Loud, overwrought satire has a couple of laughs but will either put you to sleep or give you a headache. Full title: A JOKE OF DESTINY. LYING IN WAIT AROUND THE CORNER LIKE A BANDIT. [PG] ▼

Joker Is Wild, The (1957) 126m.  D: Charles Vidor. Frank Sinatra, Mitzi Gaynor, Jeanne Crain, Eddie Albert, Beverly Garland, Jackie Coogan, Sophie Tucker. Sinatra is fine in biography of nightclub performer Joe E. Lewis, with Crain and Gaynor diverting as his two loves. Cahn and Van Heusen song "All the Way" won an Oscar; in fact, the film was reissued as ALL THE WAY. VistaVision.

Jokers, The (1966-British) C-94m. *****
D: Michael Winner. Michael Crawford, Oliver Reed, Gabriella Licudi, Harry Andrews, James Donald, Daniel Massey, Michael Hordern, Frank Finlay, Rachel Kempson, Edward Fox. Droll satire on the Establishment with Reed and Crawford two brothers from upper classes, putting everyone on and carrying out perfect caper; ironic results.

Jolson Sings Again (1949) C-96m. ½
D: Henry Levin. Larry Parks, Barbara Hale, William Demarest, Ludwig Donath, Tamara Shayne. Attempt to continue THE JOLSON STORY only partially succeeds, and is a curio at best . . . especially when Parks (playing Jolson) meets Parks (playing Parks). Jolson standards ("Baby Face," "Sonny Boy," "Back In Your Own Back Yard," and many others) are still great. (●) (●)

Jolson Story, The (1946) C-128m. ½
D: Alfred E. Green. Larry Parks, Evelyn Keyes, William Demarest, Bill Goodwin, Ludwig Donath, Tamara Shayne. Hokey but very entertaining biography of all-time great Al Jolson, with Parks giving his all in story of brash vaudeville performer's rise in the show biz world. Songs: "April Showers," "Avalon," "You Made Me Love You," "My Mammy" plus many others, all dubbed by Jolson; that's the real Jolson in long shot on the runway during the "Swanee" sequence. Morris Stoloff earned an Oscar for his scoring. Sequel: JOLSON SINGS AGAIN. (●) (●)

Jonah: a VeggieTales Movie (2002) C-82m. ½
D: Phil Vischer, Mike Nawrocki. Voices of Phil Vischer, Mike Nawrocki, Tim Hodge, Lisa Vischer, Dan Anderson, Kristin Blegen. The VeggieTales gang learns a lesson in compassion and mercy in the story of Jonah, the messenger of God who is swallowed by a whale, then given a second chance to deliver his message to the wayward people of Nineveh. A feature-length spin-off from a popular series of direct-to-video programs, this low-budget computer-generated Bible-themed animated feature is OK for young kids. [G] (●) (●)

Jonah Who Will Be 25 in the Year 2000 (1976-Swiss) C-115m. ½
D: Alain Tanner. Myriam Boyer, Jean-Luc Bideau, Miou-Miou, Roger Jendly, Jacques Denis. Sensitive, literate, engaging comedy about eight individuals affected by the political events of the late '60s. Miou-Miou is lovely as supermarket clerk with no qualms about liberating groceries. A companion to Tanner's later NO MAN'S LAND (1985). (●) (●)

Jonathan Livingston Seagull (1973) C-120m. ½
D: Hall Bartlett. Voices of James Franciscus, Juliet Mills, Hal Holbrook, Kelly Hamon, Dorothy McGuire, Richard Crenna. Unique film based on Richard Bach's best-seller about an existential seagull. Superb photography allows us to take bird's point of view as he forsakes his flock to explore wonders of flying. Dialogue doesn't work nearly as well, nor does Neil Diamond's overbearing score. Panavision. [G] (●) (●)

Joni (1980) C-108m. ½
D: James F. Collier. Joni Eareckson, Bert Remsen, Katherine De Hetre, Cooper Huckabee, John Milford, Michael Mancini, Richard Lineback. Earnest account of Eareckson's actual struggle to rebuild her life and find religion after breaking her spine in a diving mishap. Based on a book by Eareckson; financed by Billy Graham. [G] (●) (●)

Joseph and His Brethren (1962) C-103m. ****
D: Irving Rapper. Marietto, Geoffrey Horne, Belinda Lee, Finlay Currie, Antonio Segurini, Charles Borromel, Carlo Giustini. Juvenile biblical tale, lavishly produced but empty-headed. Totalscope. (●) (●)

Joseph Andrews (1977-British) C-103m. ****
D: Tony Richardson. Ann-Margret, Peter Firth, Michael Hordern, Beryl Reid, Jim Dale, Natalie Ogle, Peter Bull, Karen Dotrice. Director Richardson returns to Henry Fielding but TOM JONES lightning fails to strike again; well-photographed farce based on concealed identities is dull throughout. [R] (●) (●)

Joseph Conrad's The Secret Agent SEE: Secret Agent, The (1996)

Josh and S.A.M. (1993) C-98m. ****
D: Billy Weber. Jacob Tierney, Noah Fleiss, Martha Plimpton, Stephen Tobolowsky, Joan Allen, Chris Penn, Maury Chaykin, Udo Kier, Allan Arbus, Amy Wright, Jake Gyllenhaal. Odd, unsatisfying road movie about a pair of emotionally put-upon brothers, the offspring of otherwise occupied (as well as divorced) parents, who end up stealing a car and picking up hitchhiker Plimpton. The scenario strains credibility, if only because the boys are aged 12 and 7. There's the germ of an engaging film here, but the result is just too silly. [PG-13] (●) (●)

Joshua (1976) C-75m. *½
D: Larry Spangler. Fred Williamson, Isela Vega, Brenda Venus, Stacy Newton, Kathryn Jackson. Modest Western of Williamson patiently tracking down and killing one by one the bandits who murdered his mother, maid to a frontier family. Embarrassing, cynical script by Williamson insults the audience; Mexican superstar Vega is wasted. Originally titled: THE BLACK RIDER. [PG—reedited from original R rating] (●) (●)

Joshua (2002) C-91m. ****
D: John Purdy. Tony Goldwyn, F. Murray Abraham, Kurt Fuller, Stacy Edwards, Colleen Camp, Giancarlo Giannini. Bland religious parable of affable drifter Goldwyn, a woodworker whose presence in small American town makes nearly everyone happier except grumpy, distrustful Catholic priest Abraham. Giannini plays the Pope! Music by Christian pop star

Michael W. Smith. A good substitute if the babysitter cancels. [G]▼

Joshua (2007) C-106m.  D: George Ratliff. Sam Rockwell, Vera Farmiga, Jacob Kogan, Celia Weston, Dallas Roberts, Michael McKean, Haviland Morris. A precocious 9-year-old in an upper-middle-class N.Y.C. household appears to deeply resent the arrival of his newborn baby sister. Strong performances by indie faves Rockwell and Farmiga, as the understandably stressed-out parents, compensate for a storyline that, though chilling, is also a bit repetitious. Strong on atmosphere and production design but weak on logic. Young couples with dreams of enlarging their families might want to steer clear of young Josh. [R]▶

Joshua Then and Now (1985-Canadian) C-118m.  D: Ted Kotcheff. James Woods, Gabrielle Lazure, Alan Arkin, Michael Sarrazin, Linda Sorenson, Alan Scarfe, Alexander Knox, Robert Joy. Unorthodox life and times of a Jewish writer in Canada whose father was a small-time gangster and who marries into a politically and socially prominent WASP family. Uneven but entertaining comedy-drama, based on Mordecai Richler's semiautobiographical novel; Woods is fine in one of his first leading-man roles, Arkin terrific as his colorful dad. [R]▶

Josie and the Pussycats (2001) C-95m.  D: Harry Elfont, Deborah Kaplan. Rachael Leigh Cook, Tara Reid, Rosario Dawson, Alan Cumming, Parker Posey, Gabriel Mann, Paulo Costanzo, Missi Pyle, Alex Martin, Carson Daly, Jann T. Carl, Russ Leatherman. Live-action treatment finds the Archie Comics girl group used by record execs and the government to front subliminal marketing campaigns to kids. Goofy send-up of trendy teen pop culture often misses the mark, but the occasional hit is straight on. Best part comes early on with the top boy band Dujour (Word!). Breckin Meyer, Seth Green, Donald Faison, and Eugene Levy appear unbilled. [PG-13]▶

Jour de Fete (1949-French) 70m. ½ D: Jacques Tati. Jacques Tati, Guy Decomble, Paul Frankeur, Santa Relli, Maine Vallee, Roger Rafal. In this exquisite feature-film directorial debut French comedian/mime Tati plays a postman whose attempts to modernize delivery link up a series of delightful gags built around a small town's Bastille Day celebration. Tati's cleverness and timing make him one of the most accomplished cinematic comedians since Buster Keaton. Originally filmed in color, but released in b&w with color tinting. Restored to its original color version in 1997. Some prints run 87m. Aka THE BIG DAY.▶●

Journey, The (1959) C-125m.  D: Anatole Litvak. Deborah Kerr, Yul Brynner, Jason Robards, Jr., Robert Morley, E. G. Marshall, Anne Jackson, Ronny Howard, Kurt Kasznar, Anouk Aimée. Heady melodrama set in 1956 Budapest, with assorted

types seeking to leave. Offbeat romance between Kerr and Communist officer Brynner. Film debuts of Robards and Howard.

Journey (1972-Canadian) C-87m. BOMB D: Paul Almond. Genevieve Bujold, John Vernon, Gale Garnett, George Sperdakos, Elton Hayes. Young woman, saved from drowning by head of wilderness commune, believes that she brings bad luck to everyone with whom she comes in contact. Including the people who made this film. Heavy going. [PG]▶

Journey Back to Oz (1974) C-90m. ½ D: Hal Sutherland. Voices of Liza Minnelli, Milton Berle, Margaret Hamilton, Jack E. Leonard, Paul Lynde, Ethel Merman, Mickey Rooney, Rise Stevens, Danny Thomas, Mel Blanc. Long-delayed (made in 1964) animated sequel without the Wizard. Okay for the kids; main interest for grownups is familiar voices, including Minnelli in her late mother's role. [G]▶

Journey for Margaret (1942) 81m.  D: W. S. Van Dyke II. Robert Young, Laraine Day, Fay Bainter, Nigel Bruce, Margaret O'Brien, William Severn. Heartfelt WW2 drama about American journalist Young developing an attachment to children orphaned in London bombings. O'Brien is very appealing scene-stealer, Young her adopted father. ▶

Journey Into Autumn SEE: Dreams (1955)

Journey Into Fear (1943) 69m.  D: Norman Foster. Orson Welles, Joseph Cotten, Dolores Del Rio, Ruth Warrick, Agnes Moorehead, Everett Sloane, Jack Moss, Hans Conried. Often baffling WW2 spy drama started by Welles, taken out of his hands. Much of tale of smuggling munitions into Turkey still exciting. Cotten and Welles scripted this adaptation of the Eric Ambler novel. Remade in 1975. Also shown in computer-colored version.▶●

Journey Into Fear (1975-Canadian) C-103m.  D: Daniel Mann. Sam Waterston, Zero Mostel, Yvette Mimieux, Scott Marlowe, Ian McShane, Joseph Wiseman, Shelley Winters, Stanley Holloway, Donald Pleasence, Vincent Price. Muddled remake of 1943 film, shot throughout Europe, with Waterston as research geologist involved in international intrigue. [R]▶

Journey of August King, The (1995) C-95m.  D: John Duigan. Jason Patric, Thandie Newton, Larry Drake, Sam Waterston, Sara-Jane Wyde, Eric Mabius. Troubled, widowed farmer August King (Patric) comes to the assistance of Annalees Williamsburg (Newton), a vulnerable young slave who has run away from her master in 1815 North Carolina. Contemplative and civilized tale, beautifully filmed and richly humanistic. Waterston (cast as a landowner) also coproduced. Scripted by John Ehle, based on his novel. [PG-13]▶●●

Journey of Hope (1990-Swiss) C-110m.

½ D: Xavier Koller. Necmettin Cobanoglu, Nur Surer, Emin Sivas, Erdinc Akbas, Yaman Okay. Heartbreaking, based-on-fact account of what happens when a poor Turkish couple and their young son set off for Switzerland, in the hope of finding a better life. This could have wallowed in sentiment and clichés, but director-coscripiter Koller consistently keeps it on the right emotional track. Deserving Best Foreign Film Academy Award winner packs a real wallop. ▼●

Journey of Natty Gann, The (1985) C-101m.  D: Jeremy Kagan. Meredith Salenger, John Cusack, Ray Wise, Lainie Kazan, Barry Miller, Scatman Crothers, Verna Bloom. Girl travels cross-country during the hardest days of the Depression, in order to be with her father; along the way she acquires an unlikely companion and protector—a wolf. Low-key but entertaining Disney film travels smoothly to expected conclusion. Rich 1930s atmosphere helps a lot, and the wolf (actually played by a dog!) is great. Widescreen. [PG] ▼●●

Journey Through the Past (1972) C-78m. *½ D: Bernard Shakey (Neil Young). Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young, Buffalo Springfield, Carrie Snodgrass, Jack Nitzsche. Overblown, phony, pseudo-hip home movie centering on rock superstar Young. [R]

Journey to Shiloh (1968) C-101m. *½ D: William Hale. James Caan, Michael Sarrazin, Brenda Scott, Don Stroud, Paul Petersen, Harrison Ford. Limp Civil War programmer about young Texans anxious to engage in battle. Veterans Rex Ingram, John Doucette, and Noah Beery are lost in this jumble. Techniscope.

Journey to the Beginning of the World SEE: Voyage to the Beginning of the World
Journey to the Center of the Earth (1959) C-132m.  D: Henry Levin. James Mason, Pat Boone, Arlene Dahl, Diane Baker, Thayer David, Alan Napier. Entertaining, old-fashioned fantasy-adventure, from Jules Verne's story of daring expedition headed by Mason; long in telling, with silly digressions, but generally fun. Remade in 1999 (for TV), 2008, and as WHERE TIME BEGAN. Best enjoyed in CinemaScope. ▼●●

Journey to the Center of the Earth (2008) C-93m. ½ D: Eric Brevig. Brendan Fraser, Josh Hutcherson, Anita Briem, Seth Meyers. Hoping to salvage the reputation of his vanished brother, scientist Fraser heads for Iceland with his bored nephew Hutcherson. They join forces with an attractive guide (Briem) and set out hiking, as the title says, on a journey to the earth's center, evading dinosaurs and other menaces along the way. Lively, ingratiating family-friendly comedy-adventure is so loosely based on Jules Verne's novel that a copy of the book is a plot element. Good effects and design help, especially when the movie is seen in the intended 3D, imaginatively used throughout. [PG]●

Journey to the Center of Time (1967) C-82m. *½ D: D. L. Hewitt. Scott Brady, Gigi Perreau, Anthony Eisley, Abraham Sofaer, Poupee Gamin, Lyle Waggoner. Very cheap sci-fi time travel adventure to future and past, using plot elements from earlier THE TIME TRAVELERS. Aka TIME WARP. ▼●

Journey to the Far Side of the Sun (1969-British) C-99m.  D: Robert Parrish. Roy Thinnes, Lynn Loring, Herbert Lom, Patrick Wymark. Entertaining exploration of planet hidden behind the sun. The ending makes the movie. Originally titled DOPPELGÄNGER. [G] ▼●●

Journey to the Seventh Planet (1961-Danish) C-83m. *½ D: Sidney Pink. John Agar, Greta Thyssen, Ann Smyrner, Mimi Heinrich, Carl Otosen. In year 2001, expedition to Uranus discovers hostile alien brain that can turn thoughts into reality. Cheap, clumsy, dull, with just a smidge of imagination. ▼●●

Joyeux Noël (2005-French-German) C-116m. ½ D: Christian Carion. Diane Kruger, Benno Fürmann, Guillaume Canet, Gary Lewis, Dany Boon, Alex Ferns, Daniel Brühl, Bernard Le Coq, Michel Serrault, Suzanne Flon, Ian Richardson. Potent dramatization of a real-life incident in which French, German, and Scottish soldiers on the front lines in WWI decide to risk court-martial—or worse—and call a one-night Christmas Eve truce. This simple act demonstrates a clear reason why sometimes the “rules of engagement” should be broken, despite what superiors far from the battlefields dictate. With a flawless international cast, this delivers a lesson worth remembering in any era. Written by the director. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Joy House (1964-French) 98m. ½ D: René Clément. Jane Fonda, Alain Delon, Lola Albright, Sorrell Booke. Living on his looks, a playboy on the run seeks refuge in gloomy French mansion run by two American women. Fate and quicker wits than his control this brooding tale of irony. Aka THE LOVE CAGE. Franscope. ▼●

Joy in the Morning (1965) C-103m.  D: Alex Segal. Richard Chamberlain, Yvette Mimieux, Arthur Kennedy, Sidney Blackmer. Betty Smith's gentle novel of struggling law student and his marital problems becomes mild vehicle for Chamberlain, who crusades for human dignity amid stereotypes of a college town.

tapestry of eight stories; the incredible saga of four women who survived—and prevailed—against all odds in China, and their assimilated American daughters, whose troubles seem almost trivial by comparison. Starts losing its grip in the penultimate sequence, but soars again for a powerhouse finale that will have you reaching for a crying towel. Screenplay by Amy Tan and Ronald Bass, from Tan's best-selling novel. [R]▼●●

Joy of Living (1938) 90m.  D: Tay Garnett. Irene Dunne, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Alice Brady, Guy Kibbee, Jean Dixon, Eric Blore, Lucille Ball. Delightful screwball musicomedy with gay-blade Fairbanks wooing singing star Dunne.▼●●

Joy of Sex (1984) C-93m. BOMB D: Martha Coolidge. Michelle Meyrink, Cameron Dye, Lisa Langlois, Charles Van Eman, Christopher Lloyd, Colleen Camp, Ernie Hudson. Virgin Meyrink, believing she has weeks to live, decides to "do it all" before she dies. Nothing of Alex Comfort's book—including his name—is left (and despite the title, no one seems to be having a good time) in embarrassingly bad high-school comedy. [R]▼

Joyride (1977) C-92m.  D: Joseph Ruben. Desi Arnaz, Jr., Robert Carradine, Melanie Griffith, Anne Lockhart, Tom Ligon, Cliff Lenz. Meandering tale of two young-and-footloose couples on the road to Alaska looking for adventure but drifting into crime. Four show-biz offspring play the leads: the sons of Desi Arnaz (and Lucy) and John Carradine, the daughters of Tippi Hedren and Jane Lockhart. [R]▼●

Joy Ride (2001) C-97m. ½ D: John Dahl. Paul Walker, Leelee Sobieski, Steve Zahn, Jessica Bowman. Egged on by his no-account brother (Zahn), a young man (Walker) plays a prank on a trucker using his CB radio—but the victim of the joke doesn't find it funny and exacts terrifying revenge by stalking the two and the girlfriend who joins them on the road. Lots of action and suspense in this improbable yarn, but the fun drains a bit toward the end. Followed by a direct-to-DVD sequel. Super 35. [R]▼●

J. R. SEE: Who's That Knocking at My Door

Juarez (1939) 132m.  D: William Dieterle. Paul Muni, Bette Davis, Brian Aherne, Claude Rains, John Garfield, Gale Sondergaard, Donald Crisp, Gilbert Roland, Louis Calhern, Grant Mitchell. Interesting biography of Mexican leader (Muni), with unforgettable performance by Rains as Napoleon III; also notable is Garfield's offbeat casting as Mexican General Diaz. Elaborately done, but never as inspiring as it's intended to be.▼

Jubal (1956) C-101m.  D: Delmer Daves. Glenn Ford, Ernest Borgnine, Rod Steiger, Valerie French, Felicia Farr, Noah Beery, Jr., Charles Bronson. It's Bard in the Saddle with this Western OTHELLO: when jealous rancher Borgnine seeks some lovmaking advice from cowhand Ford, along comes Steiger hinting that Ford's giving Borgnine's wife (French) a few "lessons" as well. Brooding, intense drama is pretty good on its own terms, more intriguing if you know the original. CinemaScope.▼●●

Jubilee Trail (1954) C-103m. ½ D: Joseph Kane. Vera Ralston, Joan Leslie, Forrest Tucker, John Russell, Ray Middleton, Pat O'Brien. Expansive Republic Western vehicle for Ralston as heart-of-gold chanteuse sorting out rancher's life in old California.▼

Judas Kiss (1999) C-97m.  D: Sebastian Gutierrez. Carla Gugino, Hal Holbrook, Emma Thompson, Alan Rickman, Roscoe Lee Browne, Lisa Eichhorn, Greg Wise, Philip Baker Hall, Gil Bellows, Simon Baker. Young New Orleans pick-up gang kidnaps an important official of a computer company for a big ransom payoff—but there's more to this caper than first meets the eye. Sexy Gugino (who also coproduced the film) sparks a good cast, but the real treat is watching Thompson and Rickman drawing together as Southern investigators (one Federal, one local) on the case. Written by the director. Made for theaters; debuted on cable. Panavision. [R]▼

Judas Was a Woman SEE: La Bête Humaine

Jude (1996-British) C-123m.  D: Michael Winterbottom. Christopher Eccleston, Kate Winslet, Rachel Griffiths, Liam Cunningham, June Whitfield, Ross Colvin Turnbull. Dour, generally uninvolved adaptation of Thomas Hardy's final novel, Jude the Obscure, about an unschooled but intellectually ambitious 19th-century stonemason who endures a lifetime of smashed dreams. The early going wobbly telescopes many of the book's events into the opening half hour; the movie then gets a desperately needed shot in the arm when Winslet (terrific) shows up as the cousin, lover, and academic rebel trying to exist in a society that systematically crushes rebels. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Judge and the Assassin, The (1975-French) C-121m. ½ D: Bertrand Tavernier. Philippe Noiret, Michel Galabru, Isabelle Huppert, Jean-Claude Brialy, Renee Faure. In a way, the title tells all in this incisive, expertly directed and acted drama: Judge Noiret must determine whether murderer Galabru is insane or faking. Fascinating from start to finish. Panavision.▼●●

Judge Dredd (1995) C-96m.  D: Danny Cannon. Sylvester Stallone, Armand Assante, Diane Lane, Rob Schneider, Joan Chen, Jürgen Prochnow, Max von Sydow, Balthazar Getty, Joanna Miles, Mitchell Ryan. Loud, ugly adaptation of the comic book set in a future world of urban chaos where new-age police are empowered to "judge"—and kill, if need be—on the spot.

Judge Dredd (Stallone) is caught in a conspiracy much bigger and more insidious than he realizes. Some interesting plotting is lost in a sea of hard-edged violence, video game-like special effects, and overripe acting. James Earl Jones reads opening narration; James Remar and Scott Wilson appear unbilled. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Judgement in Stone, A (1986-Canadian) C-102m. *½ D: Ousama Rawi. Rita Tushingham, Ross Petty, Tom Kneebone, Shelley Peterson, Jessica Stern, Jonathan Crombie, Jackie Burroughs. Tushingham is well cast in this otherwise tiresome, drawn-out chiller as a repressed, illiterate, and psychotic spinster who takes a job as a housemaid with tragic results. Aka THE HOUSEKEEPER. Remade in France as LA CÉRÉMONIE. [R] ▼●●

Judge Priest (1934) 80m. ½ D: John Ford. Will Rogers, Tom Brown, Anita Louise, Henry B. Walthall, Stepin Fetchit, Hattie McDaniel. Exceptional slice of Americana with Rogers as commonsensical yet controversial judge in small town; full of warm and funny character vignettes, including Walthall's stirring courtroom scene. Ford remade it in 1953 as THE SUN SHINES BRIGHT. ▼

Judgment at Nuremberg (1961) 178m. * D: Stanley Kramer. Spencer Tracy, Burt Lancaster, Richard Widmark, Marlene Dietrich, Judy Garland, Maximilian Schell, Montgomery Clift, William Shatner. Superior production revolving around U.S. judge Tracy presiding over German war-criminal trials. Schell, who originated the role in Abby Mann's 1959 TV play, won Oscar as defense attorney, as did Mann for his screenplay. Fine performances by Dietrich as widow of German officer, Garland as hausfrau, Clift as unbalanced victim of Nazi atrocities. Later a Broadway play. ▼●●

Judgment in Berlin (1988) C-92m.  D: Leo Penn. Martin Sheen, Sam Wanamaker, Sean Penn, Max Gail, Juergen Hemrich, Carl Lumbly, Max Volkert Martens. U.S. judge Sheen, thrown into one of those Spencer Tracy/Nuremberg situations, has to determine if the hijacking of an East German jet into Berlin is justified. Ragged but just watchable, with actor Penn (the director's son) turning in one unexpectedly heartfelt cameo during some climactic courtroom testimony. Shown on TV as ESCAPE TO FREEDOM. [PG] ▼●●

Judge Night (1993) C-109m. ½ D: Stephen Hopkins. Emilio Estevez, Cuba Gooding, Jr., Denis Leary, Stephen Dorff, Jeremy Piven, Peter Greene. Sporadically tense, competently directed programmer about four suburban buddies who end up being chased through tenements and sewers after driving their fancy RV over a shooting victim in a very tough part of Chicago. Ultimately done in by standard genre clichés, but surprisingly absorbing in the early going. Leary is a standout as the chief heavy. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Judith (1966) C-109m. BOMB D: Daniel Mann. Sophia Loren, Peter Finch, Jack Hawkins, Hans Verner, Zhariha Charifai. Austrian Jewess Loren survives prison camp with makeup intact, comes to Israel in 1948 to locate Nazi husband who betrayed her. Film is both dull and unbelievable, a bad combination. Video title: CONFLICT. Panavision. ▼

Ju Dou (1989-Chinese-Japanese) C-95m. ½ D: Zhang Yimou. Gong Li, Li Wei, Li Bao-Tian, Zhang Yi, Zhen Ji-an. Striking, visually magnificent drama, set during the 1920s, telling the tragic story of a young peasant woman who's forced to wed an elderly, bitter factory owner, and commences an affair with his nephew. Banned in China, supposedly because of its focus on individual values and unflattering depiction of the old man (in a nation ruled by a small elite group of old men); authorities feared audiences would see it as a metaphor for the way China's leaders control society. First Chinese film ever to earn a Best Foreign Film Academy Award nomination—and those responsible for entering it in the competition were disciplined by their superiors. Controversy aside, a powerful, provocative film. ▼●●

Judy Berlin (2000) 96m.  D: Eric Mendelsohn. Barbara Barrie, Bob Dishy, Edie Falco, Carlin Glynn, Aaron Harnick, Bette Henritze, Madeline Kahn, Julie Kavner, Anne Meara, Novella Nelson. Cross-section of residents of Long Island town dream of happiness while facing bleak reality—and a lingering solar eclipse. Original, often eloquent (if slow-paced) statement on contemporary life and love, depicted by top-notch cast of N.Y. actors, including Kahn in her final film. Writer-director Mendelsohn's feature directing debut. ▼

Juggernaut (1974-British) C-109m.  D: Richard Lester. Richard Harris, Omar Sharif, David Hemmings, Anthony Hopkins, Shirley Knight, Ian Holm, Roy Kinnear, Freddie Jones. Surprisingly effective thriller about bomb threat on luxury ocean liner, and demolition experts' attempts to avoid disaster. Harris is first-rate and so is Lester's direction of a formula story. [PG] ▼●●

Juggler, The (1953) 86m. ½ D: Edward Dmytryk. Kirk Douglas, Milly Vitale, Paul Stewart, Alf Kjellin, Beverly Washburn. Sentimental account of Jewish refugee Douglas going to Israel to rebuild his life, overcoming bitterness from life in a concentration camp. Filmed in Israel.

Juice (1992) C-92m.  D: Ernest R. Dickerson. Omar Epps, Jermaine Hopkins, Tupac Shakur, Khalil Kain, Cindy Herron, Vincent Laresca, Samuel L. Jackson. Impressively shot but overly contrived (and extremely violent) tale of four black teenage friends whose lives take a tragic turn when a store robbery goes out of control. Promising directorial debut for Spike Lee's talented cinematographer. Costar Herron (from the group En Vogue), Queen Latifah, and other rap stars appear, and perform on the soundtrack. [R]▼●●

Juke Girl (1942) 90m. ½ D: Curtis Bernhardt. Ann Sheridan, Ronald Reagan, Richard Whorf, Gene Lockhart, Betty Brewer, Faye Emerson, George Tobias, Alan Hale, Howard da Silva, Donald MacBride, William B. Davidson, Fuzzy Knight, Willie Best. Exploitation of farmers is the subject of this robust Warner Bros. film, which is spoiled by typecasting of the bad guys and a melodramatic script that veers way off-course. It does provide Reagan with one of his most interesting parts, however, as an itinerant worker who becomes a farmers' rights activist(!), battling for underdog Tobias against fat-cat Lockhart.

Jules and Jim (1961-French) 104m. * D: François Truffaut. Jeanne Moreau, Oskar Werner, Henri Serre, Marie Dubois, Vanna Urbino. Truffaut's memorable tale of three people in love, and how the years affect their interrelationships. A film of rare beauty and charm. Screenplay by Truffaut and Jean Gruault, based on novel by Henri-Pierre Roché. Americanized by Paul Mazursky in WILLIE AND PHIL. Franscope.▼●●

Julia (1977) C-118m. * D: Fred Zinnemann. Jane Fonda, Vanessa Redgrave, Jason Robards, Maximilian Schell, Hal Holbrook, Rosemary Murphy, Meryl Streep, Lisa Pelikan, Cathleen Nesbitt, John Glover. Fonda plays Lillian Hellman in adaptation of author's story in Pentimento about her exuberant, unusual friend Julia, and how she drew Hellman into involvement with European resistance movement in 1930s. Fine storytelling in beautifully crafted film; Robards (as Dashiell Hammett), screenwriter Alvin Sargent, and radiant Redgrave won Oscars. Streep's feature debut. [PG]▼●●

Julia (2008-French-U.S.-Mexican) C-138m.  D: Erick Zonca. Tilda Swinton, Aidan Gould, Saul Rubinek, Kate del Castillo, Jude Ciccolella, Bruno Bichir. Swinton commands our attention playing a character unlike any she's tackled before: a self-destructive alcoholic and party girl. She's so desperate she hatches a harebrained scheme to kidnap a Mexican neighbor's young son and collect a ransom payoff from his wealthy grandfather. You never know where this audacious, fast-paced film is heading next, and it's a wild ride . . . but even at its most outlandish Swinton keeps it firmly anchored. French filmmaker Zonca made this as an homage to John Cassavetes' GLORIA. Super 35. [R]

Julia and Julia (1987-Italian) C-97m. ½ D: Peter Del Monte. Kathleen Turner, Gabriel Byrne, Sting, Gabriele Ferzetti, Angela Goodwin. Turner is compelling as a woman whose life splits in two, leaving her caught between a happily married existence with Byrne and a dangerous affair with photographer Sting. Intriguing, well-acted psychological thriller that unfortunately leads nowhere. Handsomely photographed by Giuseppe Rotunno, this theatrical release was made on high-definition video, then transferred to film. [R]▼●●

Julia Has Two Lovers (1991) C-86m. ½ D: Bashar Shbib. Daphna Kastner, David Duchovny, David Charles, Tim Ray, Clare Bancroft, Martin Donovan. Children's author, who's "involved" with a man but convinced she can do better, develops a fantasy relationship with a telephone wrong number, who ends up engaging her in mutually stimulating chats. Cheaply made, unevenly acted, but solid-enough premise keeps you engrossed to the end. [R]▼

Julia Misbehaves (1948) 99m.  D: Jack Conway. Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon, Peter Lawford, Elizabeth Taylor, Cesar Romero, Mary Boland, Nigel Bruce. Bouncy account of showgirl Garson returning to dignified husband Pidgeon when daughter Taylor is about to marry; Romero is fun as bragging acrobat. Stars seem right at home with slapstick situations.▼

Julie (1956) 99m.  D: Andrew L. Stone. Doris Day, Louis Jourdan, Barry Sullivan, Frank Lovejoy, Jack Kelly, Ann Robinson, Jack Kruschen, Mae Marsh. Overbaked soaper in which Day contends with jealous, psychopathic spouse Jourdan, who strangled her first husband and now threatens to kill her. Sometimes tense, but too often unintentionally funny. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼

Julien Donkey-Boy (1999) C-94m. ½ D: Harmony Korine. Ewen Bremner, Chloë Sevigny, Werner Herzog, Evan Neumann, Joyce Korine, Chrissy Kopylak, Alvin Law. Korine (of KIDS fame and GUMMO infamy) scripted this disgustingly sordid freak show about a dysfunctional family including a schizophrenic (Bremner), his pregnant sis (Sevigny), and their sadistically cruel father (Herzog). The first American film to utilize the cinematic rules of Dogma 95. [R]▼

Juliet of the Spirits (1965-Italian) C-148m.  D: Federico Fellini. Giulietta Masina, Sandra Milo, Mario Pisu, Valentina Cortese, Lou Gilbert, Sylva Koscina. Surrealistic fantasy triggered by wife's fears that her well-to-do husband is cheating on her. A film requiring viewer to delve into woman's psyche via a rash of symbolism; counterbalanced with rich visual delights.▼●●

tion of William Shakespeare's play of political power and honor in ancient Rome. Lavishly produced (by John Houseman), with an excellent cast and Oscar-winning art direction-set decoration. Screenplay by director Mankiewicz. ▼●●

Julius Caesar (1970) C-117m. ½ D: Stuart Burge. Charlton Heston, Jason Robards, John Gielgud, Richard Johnson, Robert Vaughn, Richard Chamberlain, Diana Rigg, Jill Bennett, Christopher Lee, Michael Gough, Andre Morell. Technically ragged, but acceptable version of Shakespeare play, negated somewhat by Robards' zombielike portrayal of Brutus. The 1953 version (also starring Gielgud) is much better. Panavision. [G] ▼●●

Jumanji (1995) C-104m.  D: Joe Johnston. Robin Williams, Bonnie Hunt, Kirsten Dunst, Bradley Pierce, Bebe Neuwirth, Jonathan Hyde, David Alan Grier, Patricia Clarkson, Adam Hann-Byrd. In 1969 New England, a boy finds a board game buried underground and soon discovers that by playing it a world of terror is unleashed; 26 years later, in the same house, two kids start playing the very same game and bring that boy—now a full-grown man—back to life. A phantasmagoria of digital special effects (a virulent vine, a stampede of wild animals, giant attacking mosquitoes, etc.) seems to be this film's raison d'être. Unfortunately, we're all too aware that they are special effects. The story doesn't seem to have much of a point, except perhaps that one shouldn't play with ancient board games. Based on Chris Van Allsburg's book. Followed by an animated TV series. [PG] ▼●●

Jumbo SEE: Billy Rose's Jumbo

Juniper (2008) C-90m.  D: Doug Liman. Hayden Christensen, Samuel L. Jackson, Diane Lane, Jamie Bell, Rachel Bilson, Michael Rooker, AnnaSophia Robb, Max Thieriot, Tom Hulse, Kristen Stewart. Sci-fi and action-thriller genres awkwardly blend in this overblown (albeit fast-paced) account of Christensen, who can transport himself from locale to locale at will—but not without complications. Based on Steven Gould's novel. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Jumpin at the Boneyard (1992) C-107m. *½ D: Jeff Stanzler. Tim Roth, Alexis Arquette, Danitra Vance, Samuel L. Jackson, Kathleen Chalfant, Luis Guzman, Elizabeth Bracco, Jeffrey Wright. Divorced, unemployed Bronx father's further burden: his younger brother, a crack addict he's reunited with after three years. Honorably intentioned but stillborn drama taking place over 24 hours. Thematically and aesthetically for masochists only. [R] ▼●●

Jumping Jacks (1952) 96m. ½ D: Norman Taurog. Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis, Mona Freeman, Don DeFore, Robert Strauss. Daffy duo has good opportunity for plenty of sight gags when they join military paratroop squad. ▼●●

Jumpin' Jack Flash (1986) C-100m. *½ D: Penny Marshall. Whoopi Goldberg, Stephen Collins, John Wood, Carol Kane, Annie Potts, Peter Michael Goetz, Roscoe Lee Browne, Sara Botsford, Jeroen Krabbé, Jonathan Pryce, Jon Lovitz, Phil Hartman, Tracy Reiner, Jim Belushi, Paxton Whitehead, Tracey Ullman, Jamey Sheridan. Computer programmer is pulled into international intrigue when spy who wants in from the cold contacts her on her terminal. Lively but stupid star vehicle for Goldberg, who's infinitely better than the script. Feature directing debut for Marshall, who cast her producer-director brother Garry as a police detective and former TV costar Michael McKean in an unbilled cameo as a British party guest. [R] ▼●●

Jump Tomorrow (2001-U.S.-British) C-95m. ½ D: Joel Hopkins. Tunde Adebimpe, Natalia Verbeke, Hippolyte Girardot, James Wilby, Patricia Mauzeri, Isiah Whitlock, Jr. Sweet, slight romantic comedy about an uptight office worker on his way to a family-planned marriage (to a girl from his homeland, Nigeria). When he chances to meet a charming Latina, he's smitten... and encouraged to pursue her by a lovesick Frenchman. Debut feature for writer-director Hopkins takes its time to win you over, but succeeds. Based on Hopkins' own award-winning short subject called JORGE. [PG] ▼●

June Bride (1948) 97m.  D: Bretonne Windust. Bette Davis, Robert Montgomery, Fay Bainter, Tom Tully, Barbara Bates, Jerome Cowan, Mary Wickes. Flippant comedy of magazine writers Davis and Montgomery inspired by story they are doing on June brides. Breezy script by Randal MacDougall. Don't blink or you'll miss Debbie Reynolds in her film debut. ▼

Junebug (2005) C-106m. ½ D: Phil Morrison. Amy Adams, Embeth Davidtz, Benjamin McKenzie, Alessandro Nivola, Frank Hoyt Taylor, Celia Weston, Scott Wilson. Exceptional character study of a sophisticated Chicago art dealer and her husband, who travel to his North Carolina home after a long absence and meet head-on with family pressures and chasms in culture. Direct, spare, and moving in a way that is most unusual for an American film, with director Morrison (making his feature debut) and screenwriter Angus MacLachlan quietly and powerfully examining the effects of environment on people and relationships. Adams stands out in a perfect cast. [R] ●

Jungle Book (1942) C-105m.  D: Zoltan Korda. Sabu, Joseph Calleia, John Qualen, Frank Puglia, Rosemary DeCamp, Noble Johnson. Colorful Kipling fantasy of boy (Sabu) raised by wolves. Exciting family fare, fine Miklos Rozsa score. Remade twice (by Disney). ▼●●

Jungle Book, The (1967) C-78m.  D: Wolfgang Reitherman. Voices of Phil Harris, Sebastian Cabot, Louis Prima, George Sanders, Sterling Holloway, J. Pat O'Malley, Verna Felton, Bruce Reitherman. Genial Disney animated feature freely adapted from Rudyard Kipling's stories. Mowgli, the boy raised by wolves, is befriended by a laid-back bear named Baloo (memorably voiced by Harris) who joins him in his jungle adventures. Hand-picked cast of actors help create some vivid characterizations in this easygoing film. Songs include "The Bare Necessities," "I Wanna Be Like You," "Trust in Me." Followed by a sequel 36 years later. Remade in 1998 as a live-action direct-to-video movie: THE JUNGLE BOOK: MOWGLI'S STORY. ▼●●

Jungle Book 2, The (2003) C-72m.  D: Steve Trenbirth. Voices of John Goodman, Haley Joel Osment, Mae Whitman, Connor Funk, Bob Joles, Tony Jay, John Rhys-Davies, Jim Cummings, Phil Collins, David Ogden Stiers. Retread of the 1967 Disney feature has Mowgli leaving the village where he now lives to rejoin his old friends in the jungle—in spite of the ever-present threat of the tiger Shere Khan. Sound-alikes for Phil Harris, George Sanders, and other voices from the original film, and reuse of its hit songs, only emphasize how pointless this sequel really is. [G] ▼●

Jungle Fever (1991) C-132m.  D: Spike Lee. Wesley Snipes, Annabella Sciorra, Spike Lee, Ossie Davis, Ruby Dee, Samuel L. Jackson, Lonette McKee, John Turturro, Frank Vincent, Anthony Quinn, Halle Berry, Tyra Ferrell, Veronica Webb, Tim Robbins, Brad Dourif, Debi Mazar, Nicholas Turturro, Queen Latifah. Engrossing look at a love affair that crosses over racial, ethnic, cultural, and geographic boundary lines, when upwardly mobile, happily married Snipes has a fling with his new temp secretary Sciorra. Less than perfect, with a drug subplot that throws the film off-kilter toward the end—but still utterly compelling. Lee doesn't have all the answers, but he certainly raises interesting questions. Terrific songs by Stevie Wonder and score by Terence Blanchard, although the music practically drowns out the dialogue in some scenes. What's the point of that? [R] ▼●●

Jungle 2 Jungle (1997) C-105m.  D: John Pasquin. Tim Allen, Martin Short, JoBeth Williams, Lolita Davidovich, David Ogden Stiers, Bob Dishy, Valerie Mahafey, Leelee Sobieski. Very likable, if predictable, Disney comedy about a career-obsessed New Yorker who goes to the Amazon to get final divorce papers signed by his ex-wife and comes back with a son he never knew he had. The boy's jungle instincts are no match for life in Manhattan—though he does manage to score some points along the way. Good laughs throughout this family-oriented feature, a remake of the French hit LITTLE INDIAN, BIG CITY. [PG] ▼●●

Junior (1994) C-110m. ½ D: Ivan Reitman. Arnold Schwarzenegger, Danny DeVito, Emma Thompson, Frank Langella, Pamela Reed, Judy Collins, James Eckhouse, Aida Turturro, Welker White. Pleasant-enough comedy about a straitlaced scientist (Schwarzenegger) who's persuaded by an aggressive colleague (DeVito) to try injecting sperm into his body and becoming pregnant. Unexpected result: he doesn't want to give up his baby! This "politically correct farce" boasts enthusiastic performances from its three stars, and precious few laughs after the initial "joke" is presented. Instead, Arnold becomes a better man by experiencing childbearing like a woman. Sheesh. [PG-13] ▼●●

Junior Bonner (1972) C-100m. *½ D: Sam Peckinpah. Steve McQueen, Robert Preston, Ida Lupino, Ben Johnson, Joe Don Baker, Barbara Leigh, Mary Murphy. Totally captivating rodeo comedy-drama as an aging McQueen returns to his home and family to take part in a local contest. Peckinpah's most gentle film is full of natural performances, particularly by Preston and Lupino as McQueen's estranged parents. Written by Jeb Rosebrook. Todd-AO 35. [PG] ▼●

Junkman (1982) C-96m. *½ D: H. B. Halicki. H. B. Halicki, Christopher Stone, Susan Shaw, Lang Jeffries, Hoyt Axton, Lynda Day George. Cars speed, crash, and practically bring each other to orgasm. Oh, yes, there is a story . . . [PG] ▼●

Juno (2007) C-96m. ½ D: Jason Reitman. Ellen Page, Michael Cera, Jennifer Garner, Jason Bateman, Allison Janney, J.K. Simmons, Olivia Thirlby, Rainn Wilson, Cameron Bright. Precocious 16-year-old girl discovers she is pregnant, and decides to deal with the situation herself, choosing the couple she wants to adopt her baby. With her too-cool demeanor and lingo, Juno may be off-putting at first, but we soon discover that she's all too human. Exceptional, Oscar-winning screenplay by Diablo Cody grows warmer at every turn, and leads us in surprising directions. Janney and Simmons are terrific as Juno's straight-shooting parents, and Page is peerless in the title role. Great title sequence and use of music throughout. [PG-13] D

Juno and the Paycock (1930-British) 96m. * D: Alfred Hitchcock. Sara Allgood, Edward Chapman, Sidney Morgan, Marie O'Neill, John Laurie, Dennis Wyndham, John Longden. Faithful but dull, stagebound adaptation (by Hitchcock and Alma Reville) of Sean O'Casey's play about a poor Dublin family's travails during the civil war. The straightforward material defeats the director; however, Allgood is a standout as Juno. That's Barry Fitzgerald as "The Orator," in his screen debut. VD

Ju-on: The Grudge (2003-Japanese) C-92m.  D: Takashi Shimizu. Megumi Okina, Misaki Ito, Misa Uehara, Yui Ichikawa, Kanji Tsuda, Takako Fuji, Kayoko Shibata, Yukako Kukuri, Takashi Matsuyama, Yuya Ozeki. Ghosts of a brutally murdered mother and her son vengefully terrorize and kill a series of people who have a connection with the modest Tokyo home where the murders took place. Not a story as such, but a series of eerie images, some quietly creepy, others outright terrifying; made in the same unnerving style as RINGU. Part of a Japanese series with a dedicated following. The imaginative director remade the movie for Hollywood as THE GRUDGE. Followed by a sequel. [R] VD

Jupiter's Darling (1955) C-96m. *½ D: George Sidney. Esther Williams, Howard Keel, George Sanders, Marge and Gower Champion, Norma Varden. Lavish musical of Robert Sherwood's Road to Rome, which bogs down in tedium: Williams is temptress who dallies with Hannibal (Keel) to prevent attack on Rome. CinemaScope. VD

Jupiter's Thigh (1979-French) C-90m. * D: Philippe De Broca. Annie Girardot, Philippe Noiret, Frances Perrin, Catherine Alric. Blah sequel to DEAR DETECTIVE, with sleuth Girardot and professor Noiret becoming involved in intrigue while honeymooning in Greece. [PG] VD

Jupiter's Wife (1994) C-78m. ½ D: Michel Negroponte. Compelling documentary about a middle-aged homeless woman whom filmmaker Negroponte chanced to encounter in N.Y.'s Central Park. She claims to have ESP and be the wife of the god Jupiter and daughter of the late actor Robert Ryan! Negroponte delves into her past and discovers quite a few surprises in this extremely moving portrait of a shattered life. Shown on cable TV prior to its theatrical premiere. VD

seph Mazzello, Ariana Richards, Samuel L. Jackson, Wayne Knight. Billionaire Attenborough invites paleontologists Dern and Neill and mathematician Goldblum to inspect his island amusement park, populated with living dinosaurs; he even has his grandchildren tag along, blissfully unconvinced that anything could go wrong. Slambang thriller delivers the goods with action, suspense, hair-raising chills, and landmark special effects: the dinosaurs seem alive. The story can't bear such close scrutiny, but while this thrill ride is going, you won't mind. Michael Crichton cowrote the screenplay from his own novel. Won three Oscars, for Visual Effects, Sound, and Sound Effects Editing. Followed by THE LOST WORLD: JURASSIC PARK. [PG-13] VD

Jurassic Park III (2001) C-93m.  D: Joe Johnston. Sam Neill, William H. Macy, Téa Leoni, Alessandro Nivola, Trevor Morgan, Michael Jeter, John Diehl, Bruce A. Young, Laura Dern. Entertaining popcorn movie that takes a formula and plays it for all it's worth: professor-paleontologist Neill is persuaded to lead an air expedition to the forbidden island where dinosaurs roam, but of course he hasn't been told the truth, and the plane lands there . . . a very bad idea. Full of scares, and lots of fun: proof that a thrill-ride type of movie doesn't have to be dumb . . . or overlong. Script by Peter Buchman, Alexander Payne, and Jim Taylor. [PG-13] VD

Juror, The (1996) C-116m. * D: Brian Gibson. Demi Moore, Alec Baldwin, Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Anne Heche, James Gandolfini, Lindsay Crouse, Tony Lo Bianco, Michael Constantine, Matt Craven, Todd Susman, Michael Rispoli, Jack Gilpin. Shady (and, it turns out, psychopathic) underworld figure Baldwin victimizes an unsuspecting Moore so that she will sway fellow jurors into acquitting a Mafia boss. Comparisons to TRIAL BY JURY are apt, but this one goes on (much) longer and gets more ridiculous by the minute. The stars can't be faulted, but the script certainly can. Panavision. [R] VD

Jury Duty (1995) C-85m. BOMB D: John Fortenberry. Pauly Shore, Tia Carrere, Stanley Tucci, Brian Doyle-Murray, Abe Vigoda, Charles Napier, Richard Edson, Richard Riehle, Alex Datcher, Shelley Winters, Dick Vitale, Andrew (Dice) Clay. "BOMB" may be too high a rating for this inane, insulting "comedy" featuring Shore as a jerk who would much rather face duty on a sequestered jury (and get a free hotel room) than find himself a job. Loaded with tasteless, gratuitous references to the O. J. Simpson trial. [PG-13] VD

Jury of One (1974-French-Italian) C-97m. * D: André Cayatte. Sophia Loren, Jean Gabin, Henri Garcin, Julien Bertheau, Michel Albertini. Plodding melodrama about a woman who goes to outrageous extremes to protect her son, on trial for murder and rape. Gabin plays the judge. Aka THE VER-DICT. [R]

Just a Gigolo (1979-West German) C-105m. ½ D: David Hemmings. David Bowie, Sydne Rome, Kim Novak, David Hemmings, Maria Schell, Curt Jurgens, Marlene Dietrich. Very interesting cast is chief attraction of weird melodrama starring Bowie as Prussian war vet who drifts from job to job in Berlin before finally discovering his true calling. Dietrich, in her last film appearance, pops in long enough to croak the title song; Rome's spirited performance gives lift to uneven film that possibly made more sense in original 147m. version released in Europe. [R]▼●

Just a Kiss (2002) C-90m.  D: Fisher Stevens. Patrick Breen, Ron Eldard, Kyra Sedgwick, Marisa Tomei, Marley Shelton, Taye Diggs, Zoe Caldwell, Sarita Choudhury, Ron Rifkin. Love, sex, infidelity, and betrayal among a group of N.Y.C. hipsters, showing how a simple kiss between a philanderer (Eldard) and the girlfriend of his best pal (Breen) leads to a bizarre chain of disasters and deaths. Well-acted feature directing debut for actor Stevens is yet another self-indulgent indie riff on LA RONDE, pointlessly gimmicked up with animation, surreal flashbacks and flash-forwards, and a third-act rewind where the characters get a second chance. Unattractive digital video cinematography doesn't help. Written by Breen, based on his play. [R]▼

Just a Little Harmless Sex (1999) C-98m. ½ D: Rick Rosenthal. Alison Eastwood, Lauren Hutton, Kimberly Williams, Jonathan Silverman, Jessica Lundy, Rachel Hunter, William Ragsdale. After a wife kicks her husband out of the house (when he reluctantly picks up a hooker one night) their marriage is thrust into crisis mode. She calls her girlfriends together for advice, and he does the same with the guys; they all converge at a local club. Minor but entertaining, even insightful, low-budget romantic comedy with a very attractive cast. [R]▼

Just Another Girl on the I.R.T. (1993) C-92m. *½ D: Leslie Harris. Ariyan Johnson, Kevin Thigpen, Ebony Jerido, Chequita Jackson, William Badget, Jerard Washington. A bright, sassy 17-year-old African-American (Johnson) desires to escape from her stifling Brooklyn housing project by going to college and then medical school, but her dreams are shattered when she finds herself pregnant. Cinematically, this is strictly amateur night; plus, the film's two white characters are thoughtless, mean-spirited stereotypes (proving that an African-American filmmaker can be as insensitive and racist as a white one). Sole merit: Johnson, who offers a spirited performance. [R]▼

Just Around the Corner (1938) 70m. **

D: Irving Cummings. Shirley Temple, Joan Davis, Charles Farrell, Amanda Duff, Bill Robinson, Bert Lahr, Claude Gillingwater. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼

Just Ask for Diamond (1988-British) C-94m.  D: Stephen Bayly. Susannah York, Patricia Hodge, Roy Kinnear, Michael Medwin, Peter Eyre, Nickolas Grace, Dursley McLinden, Colin Dale, Bill Paterson, Jimmy Nail, Saeed Jaffrey. Clever, if occasionally cartoonish, detective-film parody, about the kid brother of a dumbbell private eye and the mystery surrounding a box of candy. Best for older children (although they might not get all the references to 1940s Hollywood detective dramas). Screenplay by Anthony Horowitz, from his novel The Falcon's Malteser. Aka DIAMOND'S EDGE. [PG]▼

Just Between Friends (1986) C-110m. ½ D: Allan Burns. Mary Tyler Moore, Ted Danson, Christine Lahti, Sam Waterston, Salome Jens, Jane Greer, James MacKrell. Genteel tearjerker about two women who strike up a friendship, unaware that they share the same man—one as wife, one as lover. Too pat, too neat and clean to really hit home, though the acting is first-rate, and Lahti is terrific as the single career woman. Nice role for Jane Greer, too, as Mary's mom. Directing debut for writer Burns. [PG-13]▼

Just Cause (1995) C-102m. *½ D: Arne Glimcher. Sean Connery, Laurence Fishburne, Kate Capshaw, Blair Underwood, Ed Harris, Christopher Murray, Ruby Dee, Scarlett Johansson, Daniel J. Travanti, Ned Beatty, Liz Torres, Lynne Thigpen, Kevin McCarthy, Hope Lange, Chris Sarandon, George Plimpton. Eminent Harvard Law School professor is persuaded to help a black man in Florida who's about to be executed for a heinous crime he swears he didn't commit. Starts out as an engrossing story, but goes so far afield—and becomes so preposterous (not to mention unpleasant) by the swampy climax that it winds up a huge waste of time. John Katzenbach's novel considerably changed. [R]▼●

Just for You (1952) C-104m.  D: Elliott Nugent. Bing Crosby, Jane Wyman, Ethel Barrymore, Bob Arthur, Natalie Wood, Cora Witherspoon, Regis Toomey. Zesty musical of producer Crosby who can't be bothered with his growing children, till Wyman shows him the way. Pleasant Harry Warren—Leo Robin score, highlighted by "Zing a Little Zong." Based on Stephen Vincent Benet novel Famous.▼●

olds, Amy Smart, Anna Faris, Chris Klein, Julie Hagerty, Stephen Root, Christopher Marquette. An unlikely airplane breakdown traps a handsome music industry bigwig (who was overweight and unpopular as a kid) and a deranged teen pop sensation in his New Jersey hometown. When he tries to get back together with his best friend from high school, who never returned his affections, the expected hijinks ensue. Caricatures, clichés, and painfully unfunny slapstick sequences ruin a potentially sweet love story. [PG-13] ▼

Just Imagine (1930) 109m. ½ D: David Butler. El Brendel, Maureen O'Sullivan, John Garrick, Marjorie White, Frank Albertson, Hobart Bosworth. Famous but utterly disappointing sci-fi musical set in 1980, with Brendel, officially dead since 1930, suddenly revived and unable to get used to phenomenal changes in living. Futuristic sets, gags, costumes made tremendous impression on everyone who saw film in 1930, but alas, it doesn't wear well at all. Songs by DeSylva-Brown-Henderson.

Justine (1969) C-116m. ½ D: George Cukor. Anouk Aimée, Dirk Bogarde, Robert Forster, Anna Karina, Philippe Noiret, Michael York, John Vernon, Jack Albertson, Cliff Gorman, Michael Constantine, Marcel Dalio, Michael Dunn, Abraham Sofaer. Jews and Moslems equal topicality, but this is merely exotic kitsch (though Cukor makes great use of widescreen). Tunisian settings and a lush brothel scene can't rescue this condensation of Lawrence Durrell's Alexandria Quartet. [R] ▼

Just Like a Woman (1994-British) C-102m. ½ D: Christopher Monger. Julie Walters, Adrian Pasdar, Paul Freeman, Gordon Kennedy, Susan Woodlridge. Amiable (if a bit overlong) comedy featuring Pasdar as Gerald, a heterosexual American in London who derives pleasure from becoming "Geraldine" and wearing women's clothes. The film works because it's never condescending toward Gerald; he's not a caricature, but a guy with an unusual predilection. ▼

Just Like Heaven (2005) C-95m. ½ D: Mark Waters. Reese Witherspoon, Mark Ruffalo, Donal Logue, Ben Shenkman, Jon Heder, Dina Waters, Rosalind Chao, Ivana Milicevic. Widower Ruffalo moves into an apartment inhabited by Witherspoon's spirit and an unlikely connection begins. Amiable fluff is sustained by charming performances from the leads and a solid supporting cast. [PG-13] ▼

Just Looking (2000) C-97m.  D: Jason Alexander. Ryan Merriman, Gretchen Mol, Patti LuPone, Peter Onorati, Amy Braverman. Bland coming-of-age sexcom about a 14-year-old Jewish kid (Merriman) who gets sent to his aunt and uncle in the country (read: Queens) for the summer. His mission is to watch two people in the act of love, so he starts spying on a pretty neighbor. Affectionate but disappointing memory trip plays out like an ethnic episode of TV's The Wonder Years. [R] ▼

Just Married (2003) C-94m. ½ D: Shawn Levy. Ashton Kutcher, Brittany Murphy, Christian Kane, David Moscow, Monet Mazur, David Rasche, Veronica Cartwright, Raymond J. Barry. Young couple sets off for a European honeymoon, where one disaster follows another—and the bride is pursued by her onetime boyfriend. Surprisingly likable formula comedy, with Murphy and Kutcher giving it 100 percent. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Just My Luck (2006) C-102m. ½ D: Donald Petrie. Lindsay Lohan, Chris Pine, Faizon Love, Missi Pyle, Bree Turner, Samaira Armstrong, Tovah Feldshuh, Carlos Ponce, Makenzie Vega, McFly. At a masked ball, the world's most naturally fortunate girl kisses a handsome stranger, who just happens to be the most ill-fated fellow alive. Their karmas magically cross, and the girl who used to beat the odds every time stumbles through the rest of the movie trying to figure out what to do about the guy who stole her luck. Romantic comedy's gimmicky switcheroo script has both good and bad gags, but it's Lohan who makes it a star vehicle. [PG-13] ▼

Just One of the Guys (1985) C-100m.  D: Lisa Gottlieb. Joyce Hyser, Clayton Rohner, Billy Jacoby, Toni Hudson, William Zabka, Leigh McCloskey, Sheryllyn Fenn, Arye Gross. Pretty high school senior, convinced that looks have kept patronizing male teachers from supporting her in citywide journalism competition, dons male disguise and tries again at another school. Engagingly eccentric characterizations take this fast-paced sleeper out of the ordinary; performed with gusto by a cast that's aiming to please. [PG-13] ▼

Just Tell Me What You Want (1980) C-112m. ½ D: Sidney Lumet. Ali MacGraw, Alan King, Myrna Loy, Keenan Wynn, Tony Roberts, Peter Weller, Judy Kaye, Dina Merrill, Joseph Maher, Michael Gross, Leslie Easterbrook, David Rasche, John Gabriel. Obnoxious tycoon King drives long-time mistress MacGraw into arms of younger man, then does everything he can to get her back. Bitchy upper-class comedy may be too strident for some tastes, but King's flamboyant performance is sensational, as is Loy's quiet one as his long-suffering secretary. Screenplay by Jay Presson Allen, from her novel. Loy's last theatrical feature. [R] ▼ drama about ne'er-do-well ticket scalper Garcia and his on-again, off-again relationship with MacDowell—who loves him but can't tolerate his utter irresponsibility. Nice characterizations, vivid filming on the streets of N.Y.C.; hurt by uneven narrative and overlength. Garcia produced the film and composed much of its music. Written by the director. [R]▼

Just the Way You Are (1984) C-94m.  D: Edouard Molinaro. Kristy McNichol, Michael Ontkean, Kaki Hunter, Andre Dussolier, Catherine Salvia, Robert Carradine, Lance Guest, Alexandra Paul, Timothy Daly, Patrick Cassidy. Episodic but likable film about crippled musician (McNichol) who goes to French ski resort with her leg in a cast—to see, for once, what it's like when people don't know she's handicapped. Elements of sharp comedy, escapist romance, and travelogue aren't seamlessly connected, but results are extremely pleasant, and McNichol has never been more appealing. Script by Allan Burns. [PG]▼

Just Visiting (2001-French) C-89m.  D: Jean-Marie Gaubert. Jean Reno, Christina Applegate, Christian Clavier, Malcolm McDowell, Matthew Ross, Tara Reid, Bridgette Wilson-Sampras, John Aylward, George Plimpton. A 12th-century French knight and his valet are transported to the 21st century, where their only ally is the descendant of the nobleman's bride-to-be. Americanization of France's 1993 box-office smash LES VISITEURS with the same director and stars, and screenplay revisions by John Hughes. Reno and Clavier (the film's cowriter) are terrific, but this remake is heavy-handed and only occasionally funny. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Just You and Me, Kid (1979) C-95m. ½ D: Leonard Stern. George Burns, Brooke Shields, Lorraine Gary, Nicolas Coster, Burl Ives, Ray Bolger, Leon Ames, Carl Ballantine, Keye Luke. Burns struggles to keep awful comedy afloat, but it ain't easy. Shields plays a runaway who comes to stay with the ex-vaudevillian. Commercial interruptions might help this one. [PG]

Juwanna Mann (2002) C-91m.  D: Jesse Vaughan. Miguel A. Nunez, Jr., Vivica A. Fox, Kevin Pollak, Tommy Davidson, Ginuwine, Kim Wayans, Jenifer Lewis, Lil' Kim (Kimberly Jones), Annie Corley. Egocentric basketball star torpedoes his own career and no one in the NBA will hire him—until he disguises himself as a woman and joins a female team. Naturally, he's attracted to one of his colleagues—and predictably, he suffers a crisis of conscience as the experience turns him into a better man. This is TOOTSIE light—or is it TOOTSIE dark? Similarities to that classic comedy are superficial at best. Several real-life sports figures appear as themselves. [PG-13] ▼

J. W. Coop (1972) C-112m. ½ D: Cliff Robertson. Cliff Robertson, GERALD

Page, Cristina Ferrare, R. G. Armstrong, John Crawford. Vivid character study of none-too-bright drifter who sets his sights on becoming No. 1 rodeo star. Tour de force: director/cowriter/star Robertson scores in all departments. [PG]▼

Kabloonak (1994-Canadian-French) C-105m. ½ D: Claude Massot. Charles Dance, Adamie Quasiak Kuskok, David Bursztein, Patty Hancock, Philippe Fretun, Peter Hudson, Geoffrey Bateman. Dance (who played D.W. Griffith in GOOD MORNING, BABYLON) here portrays pioneer documentarian Robert Flaherty, who spends one year in Alaska befriending Inuit eskimos in order to make NANOOK OF THE NORTH (1922). Interesting throughout, if not particularly inspired. Aka THE STRANGER. ▼

Kabluey (2008) C-86m.  D: Scott Prendergast. Lisa Kudrow, Scott Prendergast, Christine Taylor, Conchata Ferrell, Jeffrey Dean Morgan, Chris Parnell, Teri Garr, Cameron Wofford, Landon Henninger. Burnt-out Kudrow is attempting to raise her two bratty kids while her husband is fighting in Iraq. Her loser brother-in-law arrives on the scene to help out and gets a job that requires him to wear a large blue suit that makes him look like an overgrown extraterrestrial. Bizarre, ambitious, but mostly downright silly; doesn't know if it wants to be a quirky farce, a cynical portrait of corporate culture, or a social commentary on the inanity of contemporary America. [PG-13] ▼

Kadosh (1999-Israeli) C-117m. ½ D: Amos Gitai. Yael Abecassis, Yoram Hattub, Meital Barda, Sami Hori, Uri Ran Klausner, Yussef Abu Warda, Lea Koenig. Thoughtfully made, involving peek into the world of the Orthodox Jew, centering on two deeply troubled sisters who live in an ultra-religious community in Jerusalem and are oppressed by the dictates of their faith. A trenchant exploration of the nature of spirituality and the impact of blindly following the strictures of religion without considering the consequences. ▼

Kafka (1991) CB&W-98m. ½ D: Steven Soderbergh. Jeremy Irons, Theresa Russell, Joel Grey, Ian Holm, Jeroen Krabbé, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Alec Guinness, Brian Glover, Robert Flemyng. Strikingly photographed and designed film about mild-mannered insurance clerk Franz Kafka (Irons), who becomes both curious and assertive for the first time when he begins investigating a friend's disappearance. Teasing, darkly comic tale takes elements from various Kafka stories about oppression and paranoia, and weaves them into an expressionistic tapestry. Set in 1919 Prague. Not a total success, and not for all tastes, but offers many delights, including some choice

character vignettes. Written by Lem Dobbs; photographed on location in Prague by Walt Lloyd. [PG-13] ▼●

Kagemusha (1980-Japanese) C-159m. * D: Akira Kurosawa. Tatsuya Nakadai, Tsutomu Yamazaki, Kenichi Hagiwara, Jinpachi Nezu, Shuji Otaki. Sixteenth-century thief is spared execution if he will pose as secretly deceased warlord whose throne is coveted by others. Grand combination of humanism and spectacle from a great filmmaker in the twilight of his career. Released outside the U.S. at 179m. Aka KAGEMUSHA (THE SHADOW WARRIOR). [PG] ▼●●

Kairo SEE: Pulse (2001)

Kaleidoscope (1966) C-103m.  D: Jack Smight. Warren Beatty, Susannah York, Clive Revill, Eric Porter, Murray Melvin. Idea of Beatty-York teaming can't miss, but does, in bland comedy about American playboy/card-shark forced to capture narcotics smuggler or go to jail. Flashy but forgettable. Filmed in England. ▼●

Kalifornia (1993) C-117m.  D: Dominic Sena. Brad Pitt, Juliette Lewis, David Duchovny, Michelle Forbes, Sierra Pechaur, Gregory Mars Martin. Offbeat road-movie thriller about a writer and a photographer, researching a coffee-table book on serial killers, who get a harsh dose of reality when they hook up with Pitt and Lewis. Effectively ironic, and well acted by its talented cast. Unrated version runs 118m. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Kama Sutra: A Tale of Love (1996-Indian) C-114m.  D: Mira Nair. Indira Varma, Sarita Choudhury, Naveen Andrews, Ramon Tikaram, Rekha, Pearl Padamsee, Arundhati Rao. Frankly erotic, spirited feminist saga of sex and sexual politics in 16th-century feudal India, telling the story of Maya (Varma), an independent-minded servant who seduces a young king. He becomes obsessed with her, but weds a princess whom he does not love. A pointed portrait of a woman who is unwilling to accept a woman's "destiny" of being her father's property one day and her husband's property the next. R-rated version runs 113m. [NC-17] ▼●●

Kamikaze '89 (1982-German) C-106m.  D: Wolf Gremm. Rainer Werner Fassbinder, Gunther Kaufmann, Boy Gøbert, Arnold Marquis, Richy Mueller, Brigitte Mira, Frank Ripplloh, Franco Nero. Police lieutenant Fassbinder (in his final screen role) attempts to foil an alleged bomb plot, set in a futuristic Germany. Exciting if sometimes confusing thriller, from Per Wahloo novel. ▼

Kamilla (1981-Norwegian) C-100m.  D: Vibeke Lokkeberg. Nina Knapkog, Vibeke Lokkeberg, Helge Jordal, Kenneth Johansen, Karin Zetlitz Haerem. Briskly paced yet quietly disturbing chronicle of 7-year-old Knapkog and the world around her: most distressingly, her constantly squabbling parents; most specially, the secret world she shares with a little boy. Knapkog is remarkable, and the film can be favorably compared to SMALL CHANGE and FORBIDDEN GAMES, the celluloid masterpieces about childhood.

Kanal (1956-Polish) 97m.  D: Andrzej Wajda. Teresa Iżewska, Tadeusz Janczer, Wienczyław Głinski, Władysław (Vladek) Sheybal. Intense, almost unrelentingly graphic account of the final days of the September, 1944, Warsaw uprising in Nazi-occupied Poland. This is the second of Wajda's war trilogy, after A GENERATION and before ASHES AND DIAMONDS. Aka THEY LOVED LIFE. Not shown in U.S. until 1961. ▼●

Kandahar (2001-Iranian-French) C-85m. ½ D: Mohsen Makhmalbaf. Nelofer Pazira, Sadou Teymouri, Hassan Tantai, Hayatolah Hakimi. A journalist who fled Afghanistan during one of its many civil wars returns to her birthplace after receiving a suicidal letter from her despondent sister, who remained behind. Timely film of oppression and hypocrisy in a religiously charged country is hurt by amateur actors and an underdeveloped script. The stark photography, simultaneously showing the beauty and desolation of that part of the world, is a plus. Loosely based on Pazira's real life. ▼●

Kangaroo (1986-Australian) C-105m.  D: Tim Burstall. Colin Friels, Judy Davis, John Walton, Julie Nihill, Hugh Keays-Byrne. Muddled account of controversial British writer (Friels) who exiles himself and wife Davis to Australia in the early 1920s, and develops an intellectual attachment to a group of Fascists. Potentially fascinating, insightful portrait of a man of letters and his difficulties in dealing with the real world, but there's little feel for the characters and their motivations. Adapted from D. H. Lawrence's autobiographical novel. Friels and Davis are real-life husband and wife. Panavision. [R] ▼

Kangaroo Jack (2003) C-89m.  D: David McNaally. Jerry O'Connell, Anthony Anderson, Estella Warren, Michael Shannon, Christopher Walken, Bill Hunter, Marton Csokas. Lifelong odd-couple pals are ordered (by O'Connell's mob-boss stepfather) to deliver an envelope of money to Australia—but a kangaroo makes off with the cash. Juvenile comedy has a terrible script, but kids may still respond to the amiable leads and the Australian setting. Don't blink or you'll miss Dyan Cannon in the opening flashback as O'Connell's mother. Followed by an animated direct-to-video sequel. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Kangaroo: The Australian Story (1952) C-84m.  D: Lewis Milestone. Maureen

O'Hara, Peter Lawford, Finlay Currie, Richard Boone. Uninspired blend of romance and adventure, salvaged by Australian landscapes and fetching O'Hara. ▼

Kansas (1988) C-108m. BOMB D: David Stevens. Matt Dillon, Andrew McCarthy, Leslie Hope, Brent Jennings, Brynn Thayer, Kyra Sedgwick. McCarthy gets stranded in the Midwest after his car and possessions blow up on the road, and takes it on the lam after boxcar acquaintance (and punk) Dillon implicates him in a bank robbery. Goes into fast free-fall around the time McCarthy rescues the governor's daughter from drowning (!)—and falls for the kind of farmer's daughter who wears makeup and pearls in the field. Second only to Toto as the Sunflower State's top movie dog. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Kansas City (1996-U.S.-French) C-115m.  D: Robert Altman. Jennifer Jason Leigh, Miranda Richardson, Harry Belafonte, Michael Murphy, Dermot Mulroney, Steve Buscemi, Brooke Smith, Jane Adams, A. C. Smith. Vividly atmospheric but dramatically lackluster portrait of K.C. in the 1930s, a hotbed of racketeering, political machines, and jazz, focusing on local mob kingpin Belafonte, young upstart Mulroney, and his wife, Leigh. Lots of flavor but little substance and a redundant storyline. Best part: the jazz, which is played almost continuously (often on-camera) by an all-star lineup including Nicholas Payton, Joshua Redman, Mark Whitfield, Christian McBride, Cyrus Chestnut, and Ron Carter. [R] ▼●●

Kansas City Bomber (1972) C-99m.  D: Jerrold Freedman. Raquel Welch, Kevin McCarthy, Helena Kallianiotis, Norman Alden, Jeanne Cooper, Dick Lane, Jodie Foster. Once you've seen five minutes, it doesn't pay to stay through the rest. Raquel stars as good-hearted roller derby star who has female colleagues jealous, male employers drooling. Dialogue, situations often unintentionally funny. [PG] ●

Kansas City Confidential (1952) 98m.  D: Phil Karlson. John Payne, Coleen Gray, Preston Foster, Neville Brand, Lee Van Cleef, Jack Elam, Dona Drake. Tough action drama with hard-luck ex-con Payne implicated in a bank heist, determined to quite literally unmask the real culprits. Quentin Tarantino must have seen this one prior to scripting RESERVOIR DOGS! ▼●

Karate Cop SEE: Slaughter in San Francisco

Karate Kid, The (1984) C-126m. ½ D: John G. Avildsen. Ralph Macchio, Noriyuki (Pat) Morita, Elisabeth Shue, Randee Heller, Martin Kove, William Zabka, Chad McQueen, Tony O'Dell, Larry Drake. Teenager is beset by bullies until an unlikely mentor (the Japanese handyman in his apartment house) teaches him about self-confidence—and karate. Unabashedly old-fashioned, manipulative movie is a real audience-pleaser; from director of the original ROCKY. Winning performances by Macchio and Morita. If only they'd trimmed it a bit. Followed by three sequels (last is THE NEXT KARATE KID) and animated TV series. [PG] ▼●●

Karate Kid, Part II, The (1986) C-113m. ½ D: John G. Avildsen. Ralph Macchio, Noriyuki (Pat) Morita, Nobu McCarthy, Danny Kamekona, Yuji Okumoto, Tamlyn Tomita, Martin Kove. Purposeless sequel takes main characters from original film to Japan, where they're confronted by Morita's long-ago arch-enemy and his nasty nephew. Corny in the extreme (all that's missing from climax is hounds and ice floes), but made palatable by performances of Macchio and Morita. Aimed strictly at kids. [PG] ▼●●

Karate Kid III, The (1989) C-111m. BOMB D: John G. Avildsen. Ralph Macchio, Noriyuki (Pat) Morita, Robyn Elaine Lively, Thomas Ian Griffith, Martin Kove, Sean Kanan, Jonathan Avildsen. Utterly stupid sequel has the "kid" (27-year-old Macchio) being set up for slaughter by nemesis Kove (in an obligatory appearance). When Morita refuses to train him, Macchio turns instead to Griffith—a sadistic millionaire Vietnam vet (who also turns out to be a buddy of Kove's!). Will Morita save him? Naturally... but this film is hopeless. [PG] ▼●●

Kate & Leopold (2001) C-121m. ½ D: James Mangold. Meg Ryan, Hugh Jackman, Liev Schreiber, Breckin Meyer, Natasha Lyonne, Bradley Whitford, Paxton Whitehead, Spalding Gray, Philip Bosco, Viola Davis. A genial crackpot (Schreiber) manages to find a portal in time and transport a 19th-century gentleman to 21st-century N.Y.C., where he meets a driven career woman who's as foreign to his acquaintance as he is to her. Cute, funny romantic comedy goes on longer than it should—given that the finale is a foregone conclusion. Jackman is charming, and Meyer is very funny as Ryan's actor brother. [PG-13] ▼●

Kathleen (1941) 88m.  D: Harold S. Bucquet. Shirley Temple, Herbert Marshall, Laraine Day, Gail Patrick, Felix Bressart. Predictable story of neglected daughter Temple bringing widower father Marshall and Day together.

Katyn (2007-Polish) C-118m. ½ D: Andrzej Wajda. Andrzej Chyra, Maja Ostaszewska, Artur Zmijewski, Danuta Stenka, Jan Englert, Magdalena Cielecka, Agnieszka Glińska. Intense, epic drama set in Poland during and immediately following WW2. In 1940, thousands of Polish officers and civilians are massacred by the Russians in the Katyn forest, an event that the Germans use to propagandize the Poles while occupying the country. Once the war ends, the Soviets (who are building their postwar powerbase)

attribute the atrocity to the Nazis . . . and heaven help anyone who disagrees. Scenario focuses on various individuals caught in the chaos; the final, extended sequence is heartbreaking. Octogenarian Wajda co-scripted (based on Andrzej Mularczyk's novel); his father, a captain in the Polish infantry, died in the massacre. Super 35. D

Katzelmacher (1969-German) 88m.  D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Hanna Schygulla, Lilith Ungerer, Elga Sorbas, Doris Mattes, Rainer Werner Fassbinder, Harry Baer. Fassbinder's second film is an aimless serio-comic look at a group of suburban Munich slackers who spend their days sitting on the sidewalk while bitching, bickering, and putting down a Greek immigrant (Fassbinder). Interesting as an experiment in minimalism, but an artistic and dramatic dead end. Based on a play by the filmmaker. **▼

Kazaam (1996) C-93m. *½ D: Paul M. Glaser. Shaquille O'Neal, Francis Capra, Ally Walker, Marshall Manesh, James Acheson, Fawn Reed. Threadbare urban fantasy has a troubled kid accidentally summoning a friendly genie from his home—a boom box. Vehicle for basketball star O'Neal confirms his pleasing personality but gets mired in a story full of grimy and unpleasant characters; far from ideal family entertainment. Glaser also wrote the story. [PG] **▼

Kazablan (1974-Israeli) C-114m.  D: Menahem Golan. Yehoram Gaon, Arie Elias, Efrat Lavie, Joseph Graber. Entertaining musical made in Old Jaffa and Jerusalem, in English, based on a popular show. Gaon repeats his stage role as streetwise war hero out to save his neighborhood from being torn down. Excellent color and location work. Panavision. [PG]

Keane (2005) C-93m.  D: Lodge Kerrigan. Damian Lewis, Amy Ryan, Abigail Breslin. Harrowing portrait of a desperately driven man who (we learn) fell apart after losing sight of his 6-year-old daughter at the Port Authority bus terminal in Manhattan many months ago. A chance meeting with a single mom and her young daughter offers him the first link to stability, and reality, he's had in a long time. A tour-de-force performance by Lewis propels this lean, intense, ultimately satisfying drama shot entirely with a handheld camera. Written by the director. [R]

Keep, The (1983) C-96m. *½ D: Michael Mann. Scott Glenn, Ian McKellen, Alberta Watson, Jürgen Prochnow, Robert Prosky, Gabriel Byrne. German soldiers try to defend a Rumanian mountain pass during WW2 by headquartering in an ancient fortress—ignoring villagers' warnings of a strange presence inside. Outlandish, incoherent, and mostly awful; recommended only for connoisseurs of Strange Cinema. Panavision. [R] **▼

Keep 'Em Flying (1941) 86m. ½ D:

Arthur Lubin. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Carol Bruce, Martha Raye, William Gargan, Dick Foran. Good A&C mixed in with clichéd plot of stunt pilot Foran unable to accustom himself to Air Force discipline. Raye is fun playing twins. **▼

Keeper of the Flame (1943) 100m.  D: George Cukor. Spencer Tracy, Katharine Hepburn, Richard Whorf, Margaret Wycherly, Forrest Tucker, Frank Craven, Audrey Christie, Horace (Stephen) McNally, Darryl Hickman, Howard da Silva, Donald Meek. Reporter Tracy sets out to write the true story of a beloved, just-deceased American patriot. Dated, somewhat heavy-handed treatment of a still-timely theme: the pitfalls of blind hero worship. Scripted by Donald Ogden Stewart, with some interesting echoes of CITIZEN KANE. **▼

Keeper: The Legend of Omar Khayyam, The (2005) C-95m.  D: Kayvan Mas-hayekh. Adam Echahly, Bruno Lastra, Moritz Bleibtreu, Rade Serbedzija, Vanessa Redgrave, Christopher Simpson, Marie Espinosa, Diane Baker, C. Thomas Howell, Daniel Black. Family-friendly double feature: first, a Houston 12-year-old of Iranian descent embarks on a vision quest to find his roots; then, the epic story of the 11th-century Persian poet-scientist of Rubaiyat fame. Eastern and Western halves—seamlessly and subtly braided—are equally engaging, tied together by the theme of passing cultural knowledge to successive generations. In a perfectly cast film, Bleibtreu stands out as the callow sultan. [PG]

Keeping Mum (2005-British) C-103m.  D: Niall Johnson. Rowan Atkinson, Kristin Scott Thomas, Maggie Smith, Patrick Swayze, Tamsin Egerton, Toby Parkes, Liz Smith. British black comedy set in Little Wallop, where vicar Atkinson, his sexually frustrated wife, and their two children welcome an eccentric new housekeeper (Smith). Small but delightfully realized fun, sparked by a sterling cast. Scripted by American novelist Richard Russo but transposed to bucolic English countryside by director-cowriter Johnson. Panavision. [R]

Keeping the Faith (2000) C-129m. ½ D: Edward Norton. Ben Stiller, Edward Norton, Jenna Elfman, Anne Bancroft, Eli Wallach, Ron Rifkin, Milos Forman, Holland Taylor, Lisa Edelstein, Rena Sofer, Ken Leung, Brian George. N.Y.C. boyhood pals grow up to be a priest and a rabbi, both contemporary thinkers with great appeal to their congregations. Into their lives comes a savvy woman who was their best friend at age eight, before she moved away; now they become caught in a most unusual triangle. Smart (if predictable) comedy goes on much too long and wears out its welcome, though the trio of stars is likable throughout. Norton's directorial debut. [PG-13] **▼

Keeping Up with the Steins (2006) C-

90m. ½ D: Scott Marshall. Jeremy Piven, Jami Gertz, Garry Marshall, Daryl Hannah, Daryl Sabara, Doris Roberts, Larry Miller, Cheryl Hines, Richard Benjamin. Utterly likable, if somewhat loose-jointed, comedy about a Hollywood overachiever (Piven) whose rivalry with an arch-nemesis (Miller) reaches its apex as he plans a spectacular bar mitzvah for his son. But when the boy invites his long-estranged grandfather (Marshall) to stay with the family in the days leading up to the big bash, the older mensch sets the kid on a different path. A comedy of recognition for its target audience, though first-time director Marshall (like his father, Garry) is in fact a goy. Filmed in 2004. [PG-13]●

Keep Your Powder Dry (1945) 93m.  D: Edward Buzzell. Lana Turner, Laraine Day, Susan Peters, Agnes Moorehead, Bill Johnson, Natalie Schafer, Lee Patrick, Jess Barker, June Lockhart. Hackneyed tale of playgirl Turner, by-the-book Day, and soldier's wife Peters, and their exploits as they join the WACS during WW2.

Keetje Tippel (1975-Dutch) C-107m. ½ D: Paul Verhoeven. Rutger Hauer, Monique van de Ven, Eddie Brugman, Hannah De Leeuwe, Andrea Domburg. Slickly produced tale of a poor-but-determined young woman (van de Ven), and her struggles as she rises up the social ladder in 19th-century Amsterdam. Superficial social commentary on working class life. However, van de Ven is excellent as Keetje. Aka A GIRL NAMED KATJE TIPPEL, KATIE'S PASSION, CATHY TIPPEL, and HOT SWEAT. [R] ▼●●

Kelly's Heroes (1970) C-145m. ½ D: Brian G. Hutton. Clint Eastwood, Telly Savalas, Don Rickles, Donald Sutherland, Carroll O'Connor, Gavin MacLeod, Stuart Margolin, (Harry) Dean Stanton. Large-scale WW2 film tries for Sergeant Bilko-ish atmosphere with middling results; hippie soldier Sutherland isn't credible in 1940s setting. Action-filled aspects of Savalas and Eastwood's far-fetched gold heist behind enemy lines make film worth watching. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Kennel Murder Case, The (1933) 73m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. William Powell, Mary Astor, Eugene Pallette, Ralph Morgan, Helen Vinson, Jack LaRue, Robert Barrat, Arthur Hohl, Paul Cavanagh. The definitive Philo Vance mystery, about an apparent suicide which Vance believes was really murder, tied to intrigue among rivals competing in a Long Island dog show. Stylish direction and photography and a fine cast make this top-notch by any standard.▼●●

Keetuckian, The (1955) C-104m. ½ D: Burt Lancaster. Burt Lancaster, Diana Lynn, Dianne Foster, Walter Matthau, John McIntire, Una Merkel, John Carradine.

Minor but spirited frontier adventure set in 1820s with Lancaster (doing double duty as star and director) traveling to Texas with his son, hoping to start new life. Based on Felix Holt's novel The Gabriel Horn. Matthau's film debut. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Kentucky (1938) C-95m.  D: David Butler. Loretta Young, Richard Greene, Walter Brennan, Douglass Dumbrille, Karen Morley, Moroni Olsen, Russell Hicks. Lushly filmed story of rival horsebreeding families in blue-grass country, with lovers Young and Greene clinching at finale. Brennan won Best Supporting Actor Oscar.▼

Kentucky Fried Movie, The (1977) C-84m.  D: John Landis. Evan Kim, Master Bong Soo Han, Bill Bixby, George Lazenby, Henry Gibson, Donald Sutherland, Tony Dow, Boni Enten, Ursula Dirgard. Vulgar, often funny skits strung together. Best: a lengthy Bruce Lee takeoff, a b&w spoof of the old courtroom TV shows. Idea originated with Kentucky Fried Theatre, a Madison, Wisconsin, satirical group whose key members—Jim Abrahams, David Zucker, and Jerry Zucker—went on to do AIRPLANE! Followed a decade later by AMAZON WOMEN ON THE MOON. [R] ▼●●

Kes (1969-British) 113m.  D: Kenneth Loach. David Bradley, Lynne Perrie, Freddie Fletcher, Colin Welland, Brian Glover, Bob Bowes. Refreshingly unsentimental account of a young working-class boy who finds release from the dreariness of his life by looking after and training a falcon. This is no typical boy-and-his-pet story; rather, it's a pointed commentary on the lack of opportunities for the lower classes in England—a theme that's been a constant in director Loach's work.

Key, The (1958-British) 125m. ½ D: Carol Reed. William Holden, Sophia Loren, Trevor Howard, Oscar Homolka, Kieron Moore, Bernard Lee. Jan de Hartog novel becomes pointless romance tale. Loren is disillusioned woman passing out key to her room to series of naval captains during WW2, hoping to make their dangerous lives a little happier. Michael Caine has a small role. CinemaScope.▼●

Key Exchange (1985) C-90m.  D: Barnet Kellman. Ben Masters, Brooke Adams, Daniel Stern, Danny Aiello, Nancy Mette, Tony Roberts. Masters plays a neurotic New Yorker who exchanges apartment keys with Adams but can't commit himself to her alone. Amusing adaptation of Kevin Wade's off-Broadway play with fine performances and good use of N.Y.C. locations. [R]▼

Key Largo (1948) 101m. ½ D: John Huston. Humphrey Bogart, Edward G. Robinson, Lauren Bacall, Lionel Barrymore, Claire Trevor, Thomas Gomez, Jay Silverheels, Marc Lawrence, Dan Seymour, Harry Lewis. Dandy cast in adaptation of Maxwell Anderson's play about tough gangster (Robinson) holding people captive in Florida hotel during tropical storm. Trevor won Best Supporting Actress Oscar as Robinson's boozy moll. Script by Huston and Richard Brooks. Score by Max Steiner. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Keys of the Kingdom, The (1944) 137m.  D: John M. Stahl. Gregory Peck, Thomas Mitchell, Vincent Price, Edmund Gwenn, Roddy McDowall, Cedric Hardwicke, Peggy Ann Garner. Peck is fine in this long but generally good film about missionary's life (played as boy by McDowall); from A. J. Cronin novel. ▼●●

Keys to the House (2004-Italian-French) C-105m. ½ D: Gianni Amelio. Kim Rossi Stuart, Andrea Rossi, Charlotte Rampling, Alla Faerovich, Pierfrancesco Favino. Well-meaning, low-key story has a young father meeting his teenage handicapped son for the first time, slowly trying to establish the relationship they never had, and would never have had until fate intervened. Rampling is moving as a woman with a disabled daughter who teaches the man the joy of caring and responsibility. Film might have had more impact if the performance of leading actor Stuart were more affecting. Young Rossi, who is disabled in real life, does an exceptional job. ▼●

Keys to Tulsa (1997) C-113m. *½ D: Leslie Greif. Eric Stoltz, James Spader, Deborah Kara Unger, Joanna Going, Michael Rooker, Randy Graff, Mary Tyler Moore, James Coburn, Peter Strauss, Cameron Diaz. Or, Time Spent with Low-lives in Oklahoma. Tiresome crime melodrama about a perpetual screw-up (Stoltz) who gets involved with a blackmail scheme instigated by seedy Spader, who also happens to be married to Stoltz's longtime heartthrob Unger. Diaz is fun in the first scene, but then disappears—and with her, all hope for some form of entertainment. [R]▼●●

Key to the City (1950) 101m. ½ D: George Sidney. Clark Gable, Loretta Young, Frank Morgan, Marilyn Maxwell, Raymond Burr, James Gleason. Bland romance between Gable and Young, two mayors who meet at convention in San Francisco. ▼

Khartoum (1966-British) C-134m.  D: Basil Dearden. Charlton Heston, Laurence Olivier, Richard Johnson, Ralph Richardson, Alexander Knox, Johnny Sekka, Michael Hordern, Nigel Green, Hugh Williams, Ralph Michael; narrated by Leo Genn. Intelligent, compelling widescreen historical spectacle unfortunately lost in the shadow of LAWRENCE OF ARABIA. Olivier is eerily effective as an 1885-era Osama bin Laden, Heston is first-rate as "Chinese" Gordon, with solid support from a charismatic Richard Johnson. Fabulous battle sequences were staged by the legendary Yakima Canutt. Ultra Panavision 70. ▼●●

Kickboxer (1989) C-105m. *½ D: Mark DiSalle, David Worth. Jean-Claude Van Damme, Denis Alexio, Dennis Chan, Tong Po, Haskell Anderson, Rochelle Ashana. Dull, dumb martial-arts time-killer. Van Damme seeks revenge against Thai fighter who crippled his brother. Strictly by the numbers. Followed by several unrelated sequels. [R]▼●●

Kicked in the Head (1997) C-88m. BOMB D: Matthew Harrison. Kevin Corrigan, Linda Fiorentino, Michael Rapaport, James Woods, Lili Taylor, Burt Young. Woe-fully inept N.Y. comedy about a would-be author of a meaning-of-life book and the tiresome characters he meets in the passing parade—among them motormouthed uncle Woods and flight attendant Fiorentino. Scripted by the director and his star. [R]▼●●

Kicking and Screaming (1995) C-96m.  D: Noah Baumbach. Josh Hamilton, Eric Stoltz, Olivia d'Abo, Chris Eigeman, Parker Posey, Jason Wiles, Cara Buono, Carlos Jacott, Elliott Gould, Jessica Hecht. Guess what? It's another we-just-graduated-from-college-what-do-we-do-now film! This one centers on a group of young men and their life-and-death crises concerning relationships, jobs, parents, etc. Successful in spots, but should have been better. Funniest scene is the opening—a grad night lawn party. Eigeman virtually reprises the roles he had in Whit Stillman's METROPOLITAN and BARCELONA. [R]▼●●

Kicking & Screaming (2005) C-96m. ½ D: Jesse Dylan. Will Ferrell, Robert Duvall, Mike Ditka, Kate Walsh, Musetta Vander, Dylan McLaughlin, Josh Hutcherson, Jeremy Bergman, Elliot Cho, Steven Anthony Lawrence, Laura Kightlinger. Frenetic family sports comedy is a perfect vehicle for Ferrell's everyman appeal and ballistic comic style. When his über-competitive father (Duvall) dumps his own grandson from his kids' soccer team, Ferrell is drafted to coach their ragtag competitors. Less about movie-cute kids than out-of-control parents who adopt a "win at all cost" attitude, this upbeat trifle has some hilarious moments, as when an overcaffeinated Ferrell goes nuts in a coffee store. Former Chicago Bears legend Ditka has a sizeable and amusing role as himself, recruited to juice up Ferrell's timid coaching style. Super 35. [PG]▼●●

Kickin' It Old Skool (2007) C-108m. BOMB D: Harv Glazer. Jamie Kennedy, Maria Menounos, Miguel A. Nunez, Jr., Michael Rosenbaum, Christopher McDonald, Debra Jo Rupp, Bobby Lee, Alan Ruck, Aris Alvarado, Vivica A. Fox. Think of it as BIG

meets BREAKIN' 2: ELECTRIC BOOGALOO, but then again thinking about this abysmal break-dancing comedy is not advised. Kennedy falls off a stage while bustin' some fancy moves at the age of 10 and doesn't wake from a coma until 20 years later. With his mind still in the '80s he puts together his old dance team to challenge a new generation of fancy foot-steppers. This moronic exercise gets its only laughs from a David Hasselhoff cameo. TV's Webster, Emmanuel Lewis, also appears. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Kid, The (1921) 60m. ½ D: Charles Chaplin. Charlie Chaplin, Jack (Jackie) Coogan, Edna Purviance, Chuck Reisner, Lita Grey. Chaplin's first real feature mixes slapstick and sentiment in a winning combination, as the Tramp raises a streetwise orphan. Wonderful film launched Coogan as major child star, and it's easy to see why.▼●●

Kid, The (2000) SEE: Disney's The Kid and I, The (2005) C-93m.  D: Penelope Spheeris. Tom Arnold, Eric Gores, Richard Edson, Linda Hamilton, Henry Winkler, Joe Mantegna, Brenda Strong, Shannon Elizabeth, Arielle Kebbel, Penelope Spheeris. Arnold plays a despondent, down-on-his-luck actor who reluctantly agrees to write and appear in a film with a nonpro: a 17-year-old boy with cerebral palsy (Gores) whose father is bankrolling the movie. Comedy mixes fact and fiction (in real life Gores proposed the idea to Arnold, who wrote and coproduced) and avoids becoming overly maudlin without excelling in any other way. A number of familiar faces appear in cameos. [PG-13]▼

Kid Blue (1973) C-100m. *½ D: James Frawley. Dennis Hopper, Warren Oates, Ben Johnson, Peter Boyle, Janice Rule, Lee Purcell, Ralph Waite, Clifton James, Howard Hesseman, M. Emmet Walsh. Pseudo-hip Western comedy about misfit Hopper's faltering attempts to exist in small Texas town in early 20th century. Laughs, excitement, and interest are at a minimum here in spite of cast; Hopper is too old for his role. Panavision. [PG]

Kid Brother, The (1927) 82m. * D: Ted Wilde, J. A. Howe. Harold Lloyd, Jobyna Ralston, Walter James, Leo Willis, Olin Francis. Delightfully winning, beautifully filmed silent comedy with Harold as Cinderella-type kid brother in robust all-male family, who gets to prove his mettle in exciting finale where he subdues beefy villain. One of Lloyd's all-time best.▼

Kidco (1984) C-105m. ½ D: Ronald F. Maxwell. Scott Schwartz, Cinnamon Idles, Tristine Skyler, Elizabeth Gorcey. Okay comedy about the problems of preteen entrepreneur Schwartz and his cohorts, yuppies-in-training all. Ideal fare for the money-obsessed '80s yet barely released theatrically. Based on a true-life story; filmed in 1982. [PG]▼

Kid for Two Farthings, A (1955-British)

C-96m.  D: Carol Reed. Celia Johnson, Diana Dors, David Kossoff, Jonathan Ashmore, Brenda De Banzie, Primo Camera, Sidney Tafler, Lou Jacobi. Imaginative fable of a poor little London boy (Ashmore) with a vivid imagination; he looks for a unicorn he believes will work miracles, and finds instead a sick, one-horned goat. Script by Wolf Mankowitz, based on his novel.▼

Kid From Brooklyn, The (1946) C-113m.  D: Norman Z. McLeod. Danny Kaye, Virginia Mayo, Vera-Ellen, Steve Cochran, Eve Arden, Walter Abel, Lionel Stander, Fay Bainter. Comedy of milkman accidentally turned into prizefighter is often overdone but still a funny Kaye vehicle; remake of Harold Lloyd's THE MILKY WAY.▼●

Kid Galahad (1937) 101m.  D: Michael Curtiz. Edward G. Robinson, Bette Davis, Humphrey Bogart, Wayne Morris, Jane Bryan, Harry Carey, Veda Ann Borg. Well-paced yarn with promoter Robinson making naive bellhop Morris a boxing star, tangling with mobster Bogart at every turn. Remade in 1941 (as THE WAGONS ROLL AT NIGHT) and in 1962. Shown on TV for years as BATTLING BELLHOP.▼

Kid Galahad (1962) C-95m. ½ D: Phil Karlson. Elvis Presley, Gig Young, Lola Albright, Joan Blackman, Charles Bronson, Ned Glass. This remake lacks wallop of the original. Elvis stars as a boxer who wins championship—and sings six forgettable songs—but prefers quiet life as garage mechanic.▼●●

Kid Glove Killer (1942) 74m.  D: Fred Zinnemann. Van Heflin, Lee Bowman, Marsha Hunt, Samuel S. Hinds, Cliff Clark, Eddie Quillan. Solid B film about police chemist Heflin uncovering the killer of a mayor, with taut direction by Zinnemann. Look for Ava Gardner as a car hop.

Kid in King Arthur's Court, A (1995) C-89m. ½ D: Michael Gottlieb. Thomas Ian Nicholas, Joss Ackland, Art Malik, Paloma Baeza, Kate Winslet, Ron Moody, Daniel Craig. Innocuous kids' comedy about a teen-aged boy who's magically transported to ancient Camelot, where he helps to redeem the doddering King Arthur and undo the arch-villain Lord Belasco. Parents may yawn, but it's a pleasant-enough outing for kids. Young Nicholas is engaging and Ackland is solid as a rock, playing the good King. [PG]▼●●

Kidnapped (1938) 90m. ½ D: Alfred L. Werker. Warner Baxter, Freddie Bartholomew, Arleen Whelan, C. Aubrey Smith, Reginald Owen, John Carradine, Nigel Bruce. Good adventure yarn of 1750s Scotland and England but not Robert Louis Stevenson; fine cast in generally entertaining script.

Kidnapped (1948) 80m.  D: William Beaudine. Roddy McDowall, Sue England, Dan O'Herlihy, Roland Winters, Jeff Corey. Disappointing low-budget adaptation of Robert Louis Stevenson novel. Look for Hugh O'Brian as a sailor. ▽

Kidnapped (1960) C-97m. ½ D: Robert Stevenson. Peter Finch, James MacArthur, Bernard Lee, Niall MacGinnis, John Laurie, Finlay Currie, Peter O'Toole. Disney feature filmed in England is faithful to Robert Louis Stevenson's classic novel, but surprisingly dull. Good cast and vivid atmosphere are its major assets. ▽

Kidnapped (1971-British) C-100m.  D: Delbert Mann. Michael Caine, Trevor Howard, Jack Hawkins, Donald Pleasence, Gordon Jackson, Vivien Heilbron, Lawrence Douglas. Disappointing version of Stevenson tale is made endurable by Caine's pleasing performance as Alan Breck. Panavision. [G]

Kidnapping of the President, The (1980-U.S.-Canadian) C-113m. ½ D: George Mendeluk. William Shatner, Hal Holbrook, Van Johnson, Ava Gardner, Miguel Fernandes, Cindy Girling. The title tells all: Third World terrorists kidnap president Holbrook, with Secret Service chief Shatner intervening. OK actioner is certainly topical; based on Charles Templeton's novel. [R] ▽

Kid Rodelo (1966) 91m. ½ D: Richard Carlson. Don Murray, Janet Leigh, Broderick Crawford, Richard Carlson. After jail term, cowboys go off to search for hidden $50,000 in gold. You've seen it all before. Based on a Louis L'Amour novel. Filmed in Spain.

Kids (1995) C-90m. ½ D: Larry Clark. Leo Fitzpatrick, Justin Pierce, Chloe Sevigny, Rosario Dawson, Yakira Peguero, Harold Hunter, Sarah Henderson. Photographer/skateboardist Clark's filmmaking debut is a cinema vérité-style look at aimless N.Y.C. teens, focusing on Telly (Fitzpatrick), who loves to deflower virgins, and Jennie (Sevigny), who's facing the consequences of one such encounter. A telling portrait of '90s-style hedonism and the results of kids growing up without parents to guide them. Utterly matter-of-fact and nonjudgmental about its sexual frankness and violence, (which is precisely what disturbed many viewers). Is it purely exploitive, or true to life? You be the judge. ▽

Kids Are Alright, The (1979) C-108m.  D: Jeff Stein. Overlong and disjointed, yet frequently exhilarating documentary on The Who that manages to capture the anarchic spirit of the group—and of rock 'n' roll. Brief appearances by Steve Martin, Tom Smothers, and Ringo Starr, along with wild interviews with Townshend, Daltrey, Moon, and Entwistle. Songs include "Magic Bus," "Happy Jack," and several numbers from Tommy. [PG] ▽

Kids in the Hall Brain Candy SEE: Brain Candy

Kid Stays in the Picture, The (2002) C-93m.  D: Nanette Burstein, Brett Morgen. Narrated by Robert Evans. From garment-center hotshot to screen actor to movie mogul and ladies man, Robert Evans has lived a colorful (and often public) life. This documentary allows him to tell his story, but his self-absorption grows tiresome after a while, and only vintage video and film clips bring it to life. Not nearly as much fun as listening to Evans' audiobook version of his autobiography. Highlight: Dustin Hoffman's impression of Evans, shown during the closing credits. ▽

Kika (1993-Spanish) C-111m.  D: Pedro Almodóvar. Peter Coyote, Veronica Forque, Victoria Abril, Alex Casanovas, Rossy de Palma, Santiago Lajusticia, Anabel Alonso, Bibi Andersson. Wacky, very adult story about free-spirited makeup artist Kika (Forque, whose performance is positively infectious) and the men in her life, including an American expatriate writer (Coyote) and a psychotic prison escapee. Almodóvar has given his favorite actress, Abril, the role of a lifetime: a tabloid TV hostess who cruises Madrid with a camera strapped to her head, seeking to capture criminal acts on videotape. Very funny, explicitly sexual film doesn't quite sustain its momentum to the end, but remains fresh and certainly different. ▽

Kiki's Delivery Service (1989-Japanese) C-103m. ½ D: Hayao Miyazaki. Voices of Kirsten Dunst, Phil Hartman, Matthew Lawrence, Debbie Reynolds, Janeane Garofalo, Tress MacNeille, Edie McClurg. Enchanting coming-of-age fable about a friendly, precocious witch who must leave home on her 13th birthday to find her place in life. With her talking cat in tow, she makes friends (and uses her powers and flying broom) as the delivery girl for a small-town bakery. Another beautifully animated, kindhearted gem from filmmaker Miyazaki. [G] ▽

Kikujiro (1999-Japanese) C-116m.  D: Takeshi Kitano. Beat Takeshi, Yasuke Sekiguchi, Kayoko Kishimoto, Yuko Daike, Beat Kiyoshi. Half road movie, half variation on the unhappy child/crusty adult genre, a listless story of a young boy's journey to seek out his long-gone mother—with a low-life chaperone. Title character (played by the director under his "Beat Takeshi" monicker) is an unsympathetic bully, while young Sekiguchi is a bit of a lump. By the time this very protracted story tries turning fanciful by introducing two of the most unlikely bikers in history, a cutting-edge action filmmaker has lost control of his picture. [PG-13] ▽

Kill and Kill Again (1981) C-100m.  D: Ivan Hall. James Ryan, Anneline Kriel, Ken Gampu, Norman Robinson, Michael

Meyer. OK chop-socky actioner, with Ryan foiling scientist Meyer's plot to take over the world. Filmed in South Africa. [PG]▼
Kill, Baby, Kill (1966-Italian) C-83m.  D: Mario Bava. Erika Blanc, Giacomo Rossi Stuart, Fabienne Dali, Giana Vivaldi, Piero Lulli, Max Lawrence. One of horror maestro Bava's best films, spoiled only by his overuse of a zoom lens. Suicide victims in a small Transylvanian village are found with gold coins embedded in their hearts. Stylish, witty and colorful, with many astonishing sequences. Also shown in cut version under title CURSE OF THE LIVING DEAD. [PG]▼

Kill Bill Vol. 1 (2003) C-110m. ½ D: Quentin Tarantino. Uma Thurman, Lucy Liu, Vivica A. Fox, Michael Madsen, Daryl Hannah, David Carradine, Sonny Chiba, Chiaki Kuriyama, Gordon Liu (Chia-hui), Michael Parks, Julie Dreyfus, Bo Svenson. A blood-spattered bride vows revenge on her former boss and colleagues, a team of elite assassins who left her for dead. Tarantino channels a dizzying array of pop culture influences, including spaghetti Westerns, samurai films, vintage Hong Kong chop-socky vehicles, and anime, but the result is all his own: a wild, adrenaline-charged, operatically violent, comic-book action yarn. This would be indefensible if it pretended to be anything other than what it is. The women are all terrific, and the climactic swordfight is a knockout. Ends with a cliffhanger leading to VOL. 2, though originally planned to be one long film. Super 35. [R]▼

Kill Bill Vol. 2 (2004) C-137m.  D: Quentin Tarantino. Uma Thurman, David Carradine, Daryl Hannah, Michael Madsen, Gordon Liu (Chia-hui), Michael Parks, Larry Bishop, Sid Haig, Samuel L. Jackson, Jeannie Epper, Bo Svenson. Perfect companion piece to VOL. 1 doesn't have the same energy or enormous set pieces but establishes its own pace and style. Thurman must eliminate two more assassins (Madsen and Hannah) before her ultimate showdown with the boss, Bill. Carradine gives the performance of his career as Thurman's wily, articulate, and deadly mentor. Parks and Liu play (albeit briefly) entirely different roles than in VOL. 1. Tarantino continues to pay homage to favorite films and genres; there's even a quick shot of Roy Rogers in a William Witney Western. Super 35. [R]▼

Killer, The (1989-Hong Kong) C-110m. ½ D: John Woo. Chow Yun-Fat, Sally Yeh, Danny Lee, Kenneth Tsang, Chu Kong, Lam Chung, Shing Fui-On. Spectacular thriller about a hit man (Yun-Fat) who forms an unusual relationship with a singer (Yeh) he accidentally blinds and the cop (Lee) assigned to stop him. Pulp melodrama achieves near-operatic grandeur, thanks to multileveled characterizations and story, creative direction, and phenomenal action scenes that make most American films look anemic by comparison. Woo also wrote the screenplay. ▼●

Killer: A Journal of Murder (1996) C-91m. *½ D: Tim Metcalfe. James Woods, Robert Sean Leonard, Steve Forrest, Robert John Burke, Cara Buono, Ellen Greene, Jeffrey DeMunn, Christopher Petrosino, Richard Riehle, Harold Gould. In 1929, young Jewish prison guard Leonard befriends Leavenworth convict Carl Panzram (Woods), smuggling him forbidden writing supplies. Panzram, a habitual killer, writes his story, which we see in flashbacks. Woods is brilliant, but the point of view is hackneyed and outmoded. Badly written and directed. [R] ▼●

Killer Elite, The (1975) C-122m.  D: Sam Peckinpah. James Caan, Robert Duvall, Arthur Hill, Bo Hopkins, Mako, Burt Young, Gig Young. Mercenary Duvall double-crosses partner Caan, leading to characteristic but lesser Peckinpah blood-bath involving the CIA. Trashy script slightly redeemed by director's flair for action sequences. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Killer Fish (1979-Italian-Brazilian) C-101m.  D: Anthony M. Dawson (Antonio Margheriti). Lee Majors, Karen Black, James Franciscus, Margaux Hemingway, Marisa Berenson, Gary Collins. Pursuit of stolen jewels dumped in lake full of deadly piranha fish forms basis for this predictable outing filmed in Brazil. Same fishy predators were used in much more enjoyable film, PIRANHA. Also known as DEADLY TREASURE OF THE PIRANHA. [PG]▼

Killer Force (1975) C-101m.  D: Val Guest. Peter Fonda, Telly Savalas, Hugh O'Brian, Christopher Lee, Maud Adams, O. J. Simpson, Ian Yule. Dirty doings at diamond syndicate's desert mine in South Africa. Has cast and potential but overly diffuse and complex. [R]▼

Killer Inside Me, The (1976) C-99m.  D: Burt Kennedy. Stacy Keach, Susan Tyrrell, Keenan Wynn, Tisha Sterling, Don Stroud, Charles McGraw. Bizarre opus about a psychotic deputy sheriff (flashbacks accounting for his present state) about to go off the deep end; saved and made believable by strong performance from Keach. Panavision. [R]▼●

Killer Is Loose, The (1956) 73m.  D: Budd Boetticher. Joseph Cotten, Rhonda Fleming, Wendell Corey, Alan Hale, Michael Pate. Cop Cotten accidentally kills the wife of quiet bank-clerk-turned-robber Corey, who later escapes from prison with eye-for-an-eye revenge in mind. Fast-paced suspenseful sleeper, with excellent L.A. location photography and perhaps Corey's best performance: he's both scary and pathetic.

Killer Klowns From Outer Space (1988) C-88m. ½ D: Stephen Chiodo. Grant Cramer, Suzanne Snyder, John Vernon, John Allen Nelson, Peter Licassi, Michael Siegel, Royal Dano. One-of-a-kind alien invasion sci-fi featuring blood-drinking alien clowns harvesting a small city. Routinely plotted, but vividly designed, with cheeky humor, it plays its premise to the hilt, all circus bases touched. A cult favorite. [PG-13] ▼●●

Killer McCoy (1947) 104m.  D: Roy Rowland. Mickey Rooney, Brian Donlevy, Ann Blyth, James Dunn, Tom Tully, Sam Levene. Good drama of fighter Rooney accidentally involved in murder, with fine supporting cast of promoters and racketeers. Remake of THE CROWD ROARS (1938).

Killer of Sheep (1977) 81m. ½ D: Charles Burnett. Henry Gayle Sanders, Kaycee Moore, Charles Bracy, Angela Burnett, Eugene Cherry, Jack Drummond. Starkly simple series of documentary-style vignettes set in the Watts district of L.A., focusing primarily on a working-class man (Sanders) who's become emotionally numb, especially with his wife. Could it be the result of his job at a slaughterhouse? These quiet slices of black ghetto life are connected by the thinnest possible thread, but offer a portrayal that's both profound and poetic. Barely released in 1977, when it was a thesis project at UCLA film school; theatrically released in 2007. Soundtrack features black artists ranging from Paul Robeson to Earth Wind & Fire. Burnett also photographed and edited. ●

Killers, The (1946) 105m. * D: Robert Siodmak. Burt Lancaster, Ava Gardner, Edmond O'Brien, Albert Dekker, Sam Levene, Virginia Christine, William Conrad, Charles McGraw. Compelling crime drama (based on Hemingway story) of ex-fighter found murdered, subsequent investigation. Film provides fireworks, early success of Lancaster (in film debut) and Gardner. Miklos Rozsa's dynamic score features the familiar dum-da-dum-dum theme later utilized by Dragnet. Screenplay by Anthony Veiller (and, uncredited, John Huston). Reworked in 1964. ▼●●

Killers, The (1964) C-95m. ½ D: Don Siegel. Lee Marvin, John Cassavetes, Angie Dickinson, Ronald Reagan, Clu Gulager, Claude Akins, Norman Fell. Two inquisitive hit men piece together the story of the man they've just murdered, in this free adaptation of Hemingway's short story. Originally shot for TV, it was rejected as "too violent" and released to theaters instead. Some latter-day notoriety derives from Reagan's casting as a brutal crime kingpin; it was his last movie role. Marvin has a great closing line. ▼●

Killer's Curse SEE: Beyond the Living

Killers From Space (1954) 71m. BOMB D: W. Lee Wilder. Peter Graves, James Seay, Steve Pendleton, Barbara Bestar, Frank Gerstle. Scientist Graves, killed in a plane crash, is brought back to life by aliens from the planet Astron Delta. They're planning to invade Earth and want him to pilfer atomic data. Poor in all departments—and too dull to be funny. ▼●

Killer's Kiss (1955) 67m.  D: Stanley Kubrick. Frank Silvera, Jamie Smith, Irene Kane, Jerry Jarret. Meandering account of revenge when boxer's courting of working-girl causes her boss to commit murder. Interesting early Kubrick; the inspiration for the film-within-a-film of STRANGERS KISS. Leading lady Kane became TV and newspaper journalist Chris Chase. ▼●●

Killers Three (1968) C-88m. BOMB D: Bruce Kessler. Robert Walker, Diane Varsi, Dick Clark, Norman Alden, Maureen Arthur, Merle Haggard. Knock-off of BONNIE AND CLYDE doesn't offer much by way of comparison, unless you find the idea of Dick Clark in wire-rimmed glasses. [MPG]

Killing, The (1956) 83m. ½ D: Stanley Kubrick. Sterling Hayden, Coleen Gray, Vince Edwards, Jay C. Flippen, Ted de Corsia, Marie Windsor, Joe Sawyer, Elisha Cook, Timothy Carey. The film that really put Kubrick on the map—a case study of a racetrack heist, with a colorful cast of characters, including the ultimate nebbish (Cook, married to vixenish Windsor) and an ultra-cool killer for hire (Carey). Major flaw: the Dragnet-style narration. Kubrick scripted from Lionel White's novel Clean Break. ▼●●

Killing Affair, A (1988) C-100m. *½ D: David Saperstein. Peter Weller, Kathy Baker, John Glover, Bill Smitrovich. Dreary goings on in the Southern backwoods, circa 1943, where Weller kills Baker's hateful husband, and then develops a turbulent relationship with her. Based on Robert Houston's novel Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, this marks writer Saperstein's directing debut. Filmed in 1985. [R] ▼●●

Killing Fields, The (1984-British) C-141m. ½ D: Roland Joffé. Sam Waterston, Haing S. Ngor, John Malkovich, Julian Sands, Craig T. Nelson, Bill Paterson, Athol Fugard, Spalding Gray. Highly charged drama based on the memoirs of N.Y. Times reporter Sidney Schanberg, who remained in Cambodia after American evacuation—putting his native translator and assistant Dith Pran in great jeopardy. Frighteningly realistic depiction of a country torn apart by war and terrorism; an emotional powerhouse. Long but worthwhile. Impressive feature debut for Malkovich and documentary director Joffé; Ngor (who lived through Cambodian turmoil in real life) won Best Supporting Actor Oscar for his acting debut. Oscars also went to

Killing Me Softly (2002-U.S.-British) C-100m.  D: Chen Kaige. Heather Graham, Joseph Fiennes, Natascha McElhone, Ulrich Thomsen, Ian Hart, Jason Hughes, Kika Markham. American Graham, living in London and already in a relationship, is drawn to a handsome stranger. Will this attraction be fatal? Potentially intriguing tale of desire, obsession, and the fine line between ecstasy and terror starts off promisingly but falls apart, becoming just another predictable thriller. Kaige's English-language debut. Released direct to video in the U.S. Also available in an unrated version. [R]▼●

Killing of a Chinese Bookie, The (1976) C-109m. *½ D: John Cassavetes. Ben Gazzara, Timothy Agoglia Carey, Seymour Cassel, Azizi Johari, Meade Roberts, Alice Friedland. Strange, self-indulgent (even for Cassavetes) home movie centering around the owner of a strip joint, the mob and what used to be called "B-girls." Small cult may take to this; others beware. [R]▼●●

Killing of Angel Street, The (1981-Australian) C-101m. ½ D: Donald Crombie. Liz Alexander, John Hargreaves, Alexander Archdale, Reg Lye, Gordon McDougall. Fair melodrama about corrupt real estate manipulators harassing homeowners to sell their property. Communist Hargreaves and geologist Alexander take on the villains when her activist father mysteriously dies. Supposedly based on actual events that also inspired HEATWAVE (1983).▼

Killing of Sister George, The (1968) C-138m. ½ D: Robert Aldrich. Beryl Reid, Susannah York, Coral Browne, Ronald Fraser, Patricia Medina. Overwrought but entertaining drama, with comedy touches, about soap opera actress Reid who fears her character (Sister George) is due to be "killed." Story follows her deteriorating lesbian relationship with dependent, child-like York, who's caught the eye of network executive Browne. Very good performances in this adaptation of Frank Marcus' play. [R—originally rated X]▼●

Killing Time, The (1987) C-94m.  D: Rick King. Beau Bridges, Kiefer Sutherland, Wayne Rogers, Joe Don Baker, Camelia Kath, Janet Carroll, Michael Madsen, Gracie Harrison. Stale noir-ish thriller about sex, sin, violence and duplicity in a small California town. Sutherland has murdered a deputy, assumed his identity, while new sheriff Bridges and mistress Kath plot to do in her evil husband (Rogers). DOUBLE INDEMNITY it ain't! [R]▼●●

Killing Zoe (1994) C-98m. ½ D: Roger Avary. Eric Stoltz, Jean-Hugues Anglade, Julie Delpy, Tai Thai, Bruce Ramsey, Kario Salem, Salvatore Xurev, Gary Kemp, Martin Raymond, Cecilia Peck. Writer-director Avary, coscripter of PULP FICTION, spreads mayhem and body tissue in his own Paris-set directorial debut—a Bastille Day bank caper in which some participants are preoccupied with drugs, and their imported Yank safecracker is preoccupied with a call girl who has surpassed all expectations. Plot twists and stylistic flourishes notwithstanding, zippy melodrama is too little, too late. Extremely violent. [R]▼●●

Kill! Kill! Kill! (1972-French-Spanish-German-Italian) C-90m. *½ D: Romain Gary. Jean Seberg, James Mason, Stephen Boyd, Curt Jurgens, Daniel Emilfork. Interpol agent Mason, on the trail of Italian drug kingpins, gets competition from fellow agent Boyd, who believes in playing dirty. Hardened violence clashes with writer-director Gary's purple prose. Original title KILL, at 102m.

Kill Me Again (1989) C-94m. ½ D: John Dahl. Val Kilmer, Joanne Whalley-Kilmer, Michael Madsen, Jonathan Gries, Pat Mulligan, Nick Dimitri, Bibi Besch. Femme fatale Whalley-Kilmer makes like Jane Greer in this contemporary film noir, sexily scamming her way through the Nevada desert (and a couple of big cities) trying to steal gangland booty. Fans of detective genre will enjoy this mild send-up of crime flicks. Fun, but also inherently derivative. [R]▼●

Kill Me Later (2001) C-105m.  D: Dana Lustig. Selma Blair, Max Beesley, O'Neal Compton, Lochlyn Munro, D.W. Moffett, Brendan Fehr, Tom Heaton. Young woman who's sour on life is about to end it all when she's taken hostage by a bungling bank robber, who takes it on the lam. In time (of course), they drop their defenses and actually bring out the best qualities in each other, even as the cops close in. Modest but entertaining mix of black comedy and romance with good performances by the two leads. Director Lustig appears as Beesley's ex-wife. [R]▼●

Kill-Off, The (1990) C-110m. ½ D: Maggie Greenwald. Loretta Gross, Andrew Lee Barrett, Jackson Sims, Steve Monroe, Cathy Haase, William Russell. A miserable, manipulative, bedridden woman terrorizes her small seaside town by spreading malicious gossip over the phone. Clearly, this cannot last. First-rate realization of Jim Thompson's novel in this modest, moody film noir, scripted by Greenwald, perfectly photographed by Declan Quinn, with an ideal score by Evan Lurie. [R]▼

Kill or Be Killed (1980) C-90m.  D:

Ivan Hall, James Ryan, Norman Combes, Charlotte Michelle, Danie DuPlessis. Karate champions lock limbs as ex-Nazi coach seeks revenge against Japanese counterpart who bested him in a tournament during WW2. A cut above the usual martial arts fodder. [PG]▼

Killshot (2009) C-95m.  D: John Madden. Diane Lane, Mickey Rourke, Thomas Jane, Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Rosario Dawson, Lois Smith, Don McManus, Hal Holbrook. Routine crime thriller based on Elmore Leonard's novel about a divorcing couple (Lane, Jane) forced to enter the Federal Witness Protection Program after running afoul of a weary, half-Indian hit man (Rourke) and his psychotic young partner (Gordon-Levitt). Quintessential B-movie material is drained of action and suspense via pretentious treatment from the director of SHAKESPEARE IN LOVE, although interesting cast keeps it watchable. Made in 2006 and barely released theatrically (at 84m.), film underwent extensive reshoots and recutting. Super 35. [R]▶

Kim (1950) C-113m. ½ D: Victor Saville. Errol Flynn, Dean Stockwell, Paul Lukas, Thomas Gomez, Cecil Kellaway. Rousing actioner based on Kipling classic, set in 1880s India, with British soldiers combatting rebellious natives. Flavorful production. Remade for TV in 1984 with Peter O'Toole.▶

Kindergarten Cop (1990) C-111m. ½ D: Ivan Reitman. Arnold Schwarzenegger, Penelope Ann Miller, Pamela Reed, Linda Hunt, Richard Tyson, Carroll Baker, Cathy Moriarty, Park Overall, Richard Portnow, Angela Bassett. Macho cop is forced to masquerade as a kindergarten teacher in order to find a youngster who's living with his mother incognito. Amusing but overly contrived Schwarzenegger vehicle blends elements of comedy, cop thriller, and romance. Despite the presence of cute kids, this is definitely not for children—especially the finale. [PG-13]▶

Kind Hearts and Coronets (1949-British) 104m. ½ D: Robert Hamer. Dennis Price, Alec Guinness, Valerie Hobson, Joan Greenwood, Miles Malleson, Hugh Griffith, Jeremy Spenser, Arthur Lowe. Peerless black comedy of castoff member of titled family setting out to eliminate them all. Guinness plays all eight victims! Hamer and John Dighton adapted Roy Horniman's novel Israel Rank.▶

Kind Lady (1951) 78m.  D: John Sturges. Ethel Barrymore, Maurice Evans, Angela Lansbury, Betsy Blair, Keenan Wynn, John Williams, Doris Lloyd. Creepy little chiller about a genteel older woman (Barrymore) who is victimized by a charmer (Evans), who takes over her home—and her life. Wynn is particularly effective as a thug/butler. Coscripted by Edward Chodorov and based on his play; filmed previously in 1936.

Kind of Loving, A (1962-British) 112m.  D: John Schlesinger. Alan Bates, June Ritchie, Thora Hird, Bert Palmer, Gwen Nelson, Malcolm Patton, Leonard Rossiter, Peter Madden. Intelligent account of young couple forced to marry when girl becomes pregnant, detailing their home life; well acted.▶

Kindred, The (1987) C-97m. ½ D: Stephen Carpenter, Jeffrey Obrow. Rod Steiger, Kim Hunter, David Allen Brooks, Amanda Pays, Talia Balsam, Timothy Gibbs, Peter Frechette, Julia Montgomery. Enjoyable horror flick of teens in danger from a scientific experiment that resulted in a grotesque monster. OK special effects in a film marking Steiger's latter-day entry into Donald Pleasence-type horror roles. [R]▶

King, The (2006) C-105m.  D: James Marsh. Gael García Bernal, William Hurt, Pell James, Laura Harring, Paul Dano, Derek Alvarado, Milo Addica. A 21-year-old dreamer, just out of the Navy, returns to his hometown to seek out the father he has only heard about from his deceased Mexican mother. Now a happily married minister with two all-American kids, Dad wants nothing to do with him. Then the young man shatters taboos by taking up romantically with his unwitting half-sister. Dreary tale isn't helped by Bernal's less-than-appealing character and the sick nature of the film's evolving relationships. Predictably violent events unravel what little interest the film holds in its first half. Super 35.▶

King: A Filmed Record ... Montgomery to Memphis (1970) 180m. ½ D: No director credited. Superior documentary covering life of Dr. Martin Luther King from 1955 until his death in 1968 is marred only by the pretentious and unnecessary "bridges" featuring stars Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward, James Earl Jones, Harry Belafonte, Charlton Heston, Clarence Williams III, Ruby Dee, Ben Gazzara, Burt Lancaster, and Anthony Quinn. Otherwise, well-chosen compilation of news footage carries tremendous wallop. Sidney Lumet and Joseph L. Mankiewicz directed portions of the film.▶

King & Country (1964-British) 90m. ½ D: Joseph Losey. Dirk Bogarde, Tom Courtenay, Leo McKern, Barry Foster, James Villiers, Peter Copley. Vivid antiwar treatise beautifully acted by strong supporting cast. Bogarde is detached Army captain lawyer assigned to defend deserter private Courtenay during WW1. Score composed by harmonica virtuoso Larry Adler.▶

King and Four Queens, The (1956) C-86m. ½ D: Raoul Walsh. Clark Gable, Eleanor Parker, Jo Van Fleet, Jean Willes, Barbara Nichols, Sara Shane, Jay C. Flippen. Static misfire with Gable on the search for money hidden by husbands of four women he encounters. CinemaScope.▶

ner, Rita Moreno, Martin Benson, Terry Saunders, Rex Thompson, Alan Mowbray. Excellent film adaptation of Rodgers and Hammerstein Broadway musical, based on book filmed in 1946 as ANNA AND THE KING OF SIAM (and remade as ANNA AND THE KING). Kerr plays widowed English schoolteacher who travels to Siam to teach the King's many children, and finds dealing with His Highness her greatest challenge. Brynner gives the performance of a lifetime, and won an Oscar recreating his Broadway role. Kerr is charming; her singing voice was dubbed by Marni Nixon. Songs include "Hello, Young Lovers," "Getting to Know You," "Shall We Dance." Also won Oscars for art direction-set decoration, Irene Sharaff's costumes, Alfred Newman and Ken Darby's scoring. Screenplay by Ernest Lehman. CinemaScope 55. ▼●●

King and I, The (1999) C-87m. ½ D: Richard Rich. Voices of Miranda Richardson, Christiane Noll, Martin Vidovic, Ian Richardson, Darrell Hammond, Adam Wylie, Allen D. Hong. Condensed animated kiddie version of classic Rodgers and Hammerstein musical now includes romps with animal chums, black magic by the king's evil minister, and unfunny slapstick with his racially stereotyped sidekick. Artwork and settings are colorful and lavish, but animation is erratic. Eight songs (out of twenty) survive somewhat unscathed; Barbra Streisand sings medley over end credits. [G] ▼●●

King Arthur (2004-U.S.-British-Irish) C-126m. ½ D: Antoine Fuqua. Clive Owen, Keira Knightley, Ioan Gruffudd, Stephen Dillane, Stellan Skarsgård, Ray Winstone, Hugh Dancy, Til Schweiger, Mads Mikkelsen, Ray Stevenson. Camelot is nowhere in sight in this revisionist look at the legend of King Arthur: the dark, gritty story concerns a warrior who fights long and hard, only to be betrayed by his sovereign. Better than one might expect, with Owen an ideal lead and Winstone supplying welcome rough-and-tumble comedy relief, but Knightley is too young for the role of Guinevere (and her skimpy costume in the climactic battle scene is laughable). Unrated director's cut runs 138m. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

King Creole (1958) 116m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Elvis Presley, Carolyn Jones, Dolores Hart, Dean Jagger, Liliane Montevecchi, Walter Matthau, Paul Stewart, Vic Morrow. Elvis is quite good as young New Orleans nightclub singer who is eventually dragged into the criminal underworld. Toned-down adaptation of Harold Robbins' A Stone For Danny Fisher (which was set in Chicago), coscripted by Michael V. Gazzo. Songs include "Hard Headed Woman," "Trouble," title number. VistaVision. ▼●●

King David (1985) C-114m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Richard Gere, Edward

Woodward, Alice Krige, Denis Quilley, Niall Buggy, Cherie Lunghi, Hurd Hatfield, Jack Klaff. Solid biblical story traces young David's life from boyhood battle with Goliath to uneasy reign as king; only goes awry in second half, where abruptness undermines narrative. Visually striking, with Donald McAlpine's photography, Carl Davis' music strong assets—along with outstanding performance by Woodward as deposed King Saul. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Kingdom, The (1994-Danish) C-271m. ½ D: Lars von Trier. Ernst-Hugo Jaregard, Kirsten Rolffes, Ghita Norby, Soren Pilmark, Holger Juul Hansen, Annevig Schelde Ebbe, Jens Okking, Otto Brandenburg, Baard Ove, Solbjorg Højfeldt. Four-hour film is actually four Danish TV episodes strung together, set and shot at the real National State Hospital in Copenhagen (known as "The Kingdom"). As virtually every critic has pointed out, this is ER meets Twin Peaks, with crackpot doctors, paranormal goings-on, sex, black humor, etc. A must for those who think they've seen everything. Note: The unusual look of the film (a brownish, dirty-looking print texture) was achieved by shooting on 16mm, transferring to video, editing on video, transferring back to 16mm, and finally blowing up to 35mm! Alternate version runs 291m. Remade as a miniseries for TV in 2004. Followed by THE KINGDOM, PART 2. ▼●●

Kingdom, The (2007) C-110m.  D: Peter Berg. Jamie Foxx, Jennifer Garner, Chris Cooper, Jason Bateman, Ashraf Barhom, Ali Suliman, Jeremy Piven, Danny Huston, Richard Jenkins, Frances Fisher, Anna Deavere Smith, Tim McGraw. The political thriller reinvented as an action movie: blood-pumping story of an elite FBI team that travels surreptitiously to Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, to investigate a massacre at a U.S. compound. Special Agent Foxx teams up with a sympathetic Saudi colonel (Barhom) who cuts through red tape to find the perpetrator of this atrocity. Plays like escapist action fare—except that the setting and political climate are all too real. Director Berg makes a cameo early on. Super 35. [R] ●

Kingdom Come (2001) C-92m.  D: Doug McHenry. LL Cool J, Jada Pinkett Smith, Vivica A. Fox, Whoopi Goldberg, Loretta Devine, Anthony Anderson, Toni Braxton, Cedric the Entertainer, Darius McCrary, Richard Gant, Masasa, Clifton Davis. A funeral brings a raucous family together, but nothing can quell the tumult. Warmhearted, often broadly funny comedy-drama, adapted from the play Dearly Departed by its authors, David Dean Bottrell and Jessie Jones. Impressive performance by LL Cool J as a man coming to terms with his feelings about his father. Super 35. [PG] ▼●

Kingdom of Heaven (2005-British-Spanish-

U.S.-German) C-145m.  D: Ridley Scott. Orlando Bloom, Liam Neeson, Eva Green, Jeremy Irons, David Thewlis, Brendan Gleeson, Marton Csokas, Ghassan Massoud, Edward Norton, Jon Finch, Iain Glen, Michael Sheen. A blacksmith, reeling from personal tragedy, is persuaded to join the Crusades by an illustrious knight, who reveals himself to be the young man's father. The new recruit shows his mettle by proving himself a man of the people who struggles to achieve peace between the Muslims and the Christians while defending Jerusalem. Impressive, epic-scale film manages to find nobility in the Crusades, but never loses sight of its main character's personal journey. Like the man he portrays, Bloom definitely carries his weight. Director's cut runs 194m. Super 35. [R]▼

Kingdom of the Spiders (1977) C-94m.  D: John (Bud) Cardos. William Shatner, Tiffany Bolling, Woody Strode, Lieux Dressler, Altovise Davis. Unsurprising but well-made chiller about veterinarian Shatner and entomologist Bolling discovering that tarantulas are going on the warpath in Arizona. [PG]▼

Kingfisher Caper, The (1975-South African) C-90m. ½ D: Dirk DeVilliers. Hayley Mills, David McCallum, Jon Cypher. Typical tale of intrigue, love and passion interwoven with a family feud over the running of a South African diamond empire. Aka DIAMOND LUST. [PG]▼

King Gun SEE: Gatling Gun, The King in New York, A (1957-British) 100m. ½ D: Charles Chaplin. Charles Chaplin, Dawn Addams, Oliver Johnston, Maxine Audley, Harry Green, Michael Chaplin. Unseen in U.S. until 1973, supposedly anti-American film is rather mild satire of 1950s sensibilities, witch hunts, and technology. Chaplin over-indulges himself, and film lacks focus, but there are good moments, and interesting performance by son Michael as young malcontent.▼●

King is Alive, The (2000-Danish-U.S.) C-108m. *½ D: Kristian Levring. Jennifer Jason Leigh, Janet McTeer, Bruce Davison, Miles Anderson, Romane Bohringer, David Bradley, David Calder, Brion James, Peter Kubheka, Vusi Kunene, Chris Walker, Lia Williams. Dreary, sun-baked drama about a group of exceptionally unpleasant people stranded in the African desert who, to pass the time, stage a production of King Lear. Supposedly inspired by Lear, it plays more like a cross between a Greek tragedy and an episode of Survivor. A Dogma 95 film, written and directed by one of the movement's founders. [R]▼

King Kong (1933) 103m. * D: Merian C. Cooper, Ernest B. Schoedsack. Fay Wray, Robert Armstrong, Bruce Cabot, Frank Reicher, Sam Hardy, Noble Johnson, James Flavin. Classic version of

beauty-and-beast theme is a moviegoing must, with Willis O'Brien's special effects and animation of monster ape Kong still unsurpassed. Final sequence atop Empire State Building is now cinema folklore; Max Steiner music score also memorable. Followed immediately by THE SON OF KONG. Remade in 1976 and 2005. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●

King Kong (1976) C-134m. *½ D: John Guillermin. Jeff Bridges, Charles Grodin, Jessica Lange, John Randolph, Rene Auberjonois, Julius Harris, Jack O'Halloran, Ed Lauter, John Lone. Addle-brained remake of 1933 classic has great potential but dispels all the mythic, larger-than-life qualities of the original with idiotic characters and campy approach. Highly touted special effects (which earned a special Oscar) run hot-and-cold; real marvel is Rick Baker in a gorilla suit. Extra footage added for network showing. Lange's film debut; Joe Piscopo has a small role; look fast for Corbin Bernsen playing a reporter. Followed a decade later by KING KONG LIVES. Panavision. [PG]▼●

King Kong (2005) C-187m. ½ D: Peter Jackson. Naomi Watts, Jack Black, Adrien Brody, Thomas Kretschmann, Colin Hanks, Andy Serkis, Evan Parke, Jamie Bell, Kyle Chandler. In Depression-era N.Y.C. conniving movie producer Carl Denham (Black) shanghai a crew, a screenwriter (Brody), and a leading lady (Watts) for an ocean voyage to Skull Island on the biggest gamble of his career. They soon find themselves in a desperate struggle to survive in a jungle inhabited by predatory prehistoric creatures, while Kong is distracted by the feisty blonde girl. A rare remake that reinvents the original film while honoring it at the same time. Jackson pulls us into a world of wonder, both on Skull and Manhattan island, and takes us on a long but thrilling adventure that's hard to beat. He also cowrote with Fran Walsh and Philippa Boyens. Oscar winner for Sound Mixing, Sound Editing, and Visual Effects. Super 35. [PG-13]●

King Kong Escapes (1967-Japanese) C-96m. BOMB D: Ishiro Honda. Rhodes Reason, Mie Hama, Linda Miller, Akira Takarada. Contrived new plot involving girl who wins ape's heart, battle against would-be world conqueror. Kong never had it so bad. Tohoscope. [G]●

King Kong Lives (1986) C-105m. BOMB D: John Guillermin. Brian Kerwin, Linda Hamilton, John Ashton, Peter Michael Goetz, Frank Maraden, Alan Sader. Dino De Laurentiis sequel gives the ape a mate with everything he loves: She's tall, statuesque, with great mossy teeth. The Army tries to kill them (naturally), but not before a finale that actually rips off the final scene in SPARTACUS. Desperate. J-D-C Scope. [PG-13]▼●

King Kong Vs. Godzilla (1963-Japanese) C-90m.  D: Ishiro Honda, Thomas Montgomery. Tadao Takashima, Kenji Sahara, Yu Fujiki, Ichiro Arishima, Mie Hama, Akihiko Hirata, Jun Tazaki. Essentially a KONG remake, with Tokyo subbing for N.Y.C. and Godzilla showing up to make that mess even bigger. (Oh yes, there's also a gigantic octopus.) Third Godzilla movie—the first in color and widescreen—was originally a clever satire of the worst excesses of TV journalism, but the U.S. version eliminates most of this (as well as Akira Ifukube's thrilling score), and adds awful new scenes with Michael Keith, Harry Holcombe, Byron Morrow, and Victor Milian. Still worth a look. (P.S.: Despite urban legend, only one ending was shot.) Japanese running time 98m. Tohoscope. ▼

King Lear (1971-British) 137m. ½ D: Peter Brook. Paul Scofield, Irene Worth, Jack MacGowran, Alan Webb, Cyril Cusack, Patrick Magee. This version of Shakespeare tragedy could be heavy going for the uninitiated, but often a strong and rewarding experience. Starkly photographed in Denmark. [PG] ▼

King Lear (1987-U.S.-Swiss) C-91m. *½ D: Jean-Luc Godard. Peter Sellars, Burgess Meredith, Molly Ringwald, Jean-Luc Godard, Woody Allen, Norman Mailer, Kate Mailer. Bizarre, garish, contemporary punk-apocalyptic updating of Shakespeare classic. Little to be said about this pretentious mess except . . . avoid it. [PG] ▼

King of California (2007) C-93m. ½ D: Mike Cahill. Michael Douglas, Evan Rachel Wood, Willis Burks II, Laura Kacherus, Paul Lieber, Kathleen Wilhoite. Sixteen-year-old Wood's life turns chaotic when her father is released from a mental institution. A free spirit (to say the least), he is obsessed with locating an ancient Spanish treasure right under their noses in California and pulls her into his crazy scheme—against her better judgment. Whimsically inventive story isn't easily pigeonholed, embracing comedy and drama, dreams and reality, and contrasting individuality vs. "progress." A genuine original, and an impressive debut film for writer-director Cahill. Douglas has never been better. [PG-13] ▼

King of Comedy, The (1983) C-109m. ½ D: Martin Scorsese. Robert De Niro, Jerry Lewis, Diahnne Abbott, Sandra Bernhard, Shelley Hack, Tony Randall, Ed Herlihy, Fred de Cordova. Pungent black comedy about a show-business hanger-on and world class loser who idolizes America's top TV comedian/talk-show host and figures out a bizarre scheme to get on the program. The denouement is a wow! Too mordant and "sick" for many viewers' taste, though it's all been done with a minimum of exaggeration . . . and a pair of knock-out performances by De Niro and

Lewis. Written by Paul D. Zimmerman. Filmed in 1981. [PG] ▼

King of Hearts (1966-French-British) C-102m.  D: Philippe De Broca. Alan Bates, Pierre Brasseur, Jean-Claude Brialy, Genevieve Bujold, Francoise Christophe, Adolfo Celi. Scotsman Bates walks into French town in WW1 that has been abandoned by everyone except those in the insane asylum. Stylish film isn't for all tastes, but has become a cult favorite. Offbeat. Techniscope. ▼

King of Kings, The (1927) 155m.  D: Cecil B. DeMille. H. B. Warner, Ernest Torrence, Jacqueline Logan, Joseph Schildkraut, Victor Varconi, Robert Edeson, William Boyd. Lavish silent film benefits from DeMille's superb storytelling skills and reverence for the subject. The Resurrection sequence is in two-color Technicolor. Some prints run 112m. Remade in 1961. ▼

King of Kings (1961) C-168m. ½ D: Nicholas Ray. Jeffrey Hunter, Siobhan McKenna, Robert Ryan, Hurd Hatfield, Viveca Lindfors, Rita Gam, Rip Torn; narrated by Orson Welles. The life of Christ, intelligently told and beautifully filmed; full of deeply moving moments, such as the Sermon on the Mount, Christ's healing of the lame, and many others. Memorable Miklos Rozsa score. Not without flaws, but well worthwhile; grandly filmed in widescreen. SuperTechnirama 70. ▼

King of Kong: A Fistful of Quarters, The (2007) C-82m. ½ D: Seth Gordon. Vastly entertaining documentary about Billy Mitchell, who has held the world's record for highest score on the first-generation video game Donkey Kong since 1982, and unassuming Seattle schoolteacher Steve Wiebe, who threatens to rob him of his title. Although the film takes us deep inside the video-game community it isn't really about the game at all, but a portrait of some amazing characters. Gordon wisely allows the viewer to make his own judgments. [PG-13] ▼

King of Kong Island (1978-Italian) C-92m. BOMB D: Robert Morris. Brad Harris, Esmeralda Barros, Marc Lawrence, Adrianna Alben, Mark Farran. Mercenary Harris on the trail of loony scientist Lawrence, who's been monkeying around with the brains of apes, making them act like robots. Couldn't be any worse; not even good for laughs. Aka KONG ISLAND. ▼

King of Marvin Gardens, The (1972) C-104m. ½ D: Bob Rafelson. Jack Nicholson, Bruce Dern, Ellen Burstyn, Julia Anne Robinson, Scatman Crothers. Pretentious but genuinely haunting, original drama about Nicholson's failure to discourage brother Dern's outlandish financial schemes. Burstyn's performance as an aging beauty is chilling in its perfection, and Laszlo Kovacs' photography rates with the best of the decade. [R] ▼

King of Masks, The (1997-Chinese) C-101m. ½ D: Wu Tianming. Chu Yuk, Chao Yim Yin, Zhang Riuyang, Zhao Zhigang. Beautifully realized story, set in 1930s Sichuan, about an aged street performer who realizes he has no heir to whom he can pass on his ancient tradition (and secrets) . . . so he purchases a child on the black market. Simple, eloquent, and moving. Written by Wei Minglun. ▼

King of New York (1990) C-103m.  D: Abel Ferrara. Christopher Walken, David Caruso, Larry Fishburne, Victor Argo, Wesley Snipes, Janet Julian, Joey Chin, Steve Buscemi, Paul Calderon, Giancarlo Esposito. Fidgety Walken plays the ex-con lord to a band of black drug dealers who regularly annihilate their Colombian-Italian-Chinese rivals. Cult director Ferrara offers style and little more in this ultraviolent outing; one extended monsoon shootout makes this presumably tongue-in-cheek effort worth a glance on a very draggy night. Walken's improbable headquarters, the Plaza Hotel, begs for a scene between his low-rent minions and Ivana Trump in the service elevator. [R] ▼
