He also hosts the weekly program Secret's Out on ReelzChannel and introduces movies on the DirecTV Cinema channels. For three years he cohosted the movie review show Hot Ticket, and for six years served as film critic for Playboy magazine. About the Editors

DARWYN CARSON has worked in the film industry for over fifteen years, as an actress (the prostitute who kills in True Confessions, the African mom with nothing to wear—literally—when meeting her adopted son in North, and her personal favorite, a conniving Romulan Tal Shiar Captain in a Star Trek: DS9 episode), as an assistant to the justly esteemed Sidney Poitier, and as a professional print and online journalist/essayist (hi there, Zap2It.com readers!). This is her first year as Managing Editor for the Movie Guide. She has no relatives named Charles or Johnny, thank you for asking. Everybody does.

LUKE SADER was introduced to old movies by his father. He majored in English at Johns Hopkins University, then went backpacking abroad for a year, catching movies everywhere from Helsinki to Cairo. Since starting his television career at CBS News, he has held various producing positions at Entertainment Tonight, CNN, Politically Incorrect with Bill Maher, The Wayne Brady Show, and PBS's Tavis Smiley. He served as coeditor of Leonard Maltin's Movie Encyclopedia, and his film and book reviews appear in The Hollywood Reporter and Quarterly Review of Film and Video. Luke has also headed the jury at the Palm Beach International Film Festival.

MIKE CLARK was USA Today's senior film critic for more than twenty years and currently writes the paper's Tuesday Mike's Menu and the Friday home viewing columns, the latter in its twenty-fifth year. He first came to prominence in 1959, as a ten-year-old, when he won $16,000 answering movie questions on the TV quiz show The $64,000 Question. Since then he has attended NYU's Graduate School of Cinema, been the film critic for the Detroit Free Press, and conceived approximately 150 thematic film series as Director and Program Planner of the American Film Institute Theater of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. He has appeared on HBO, Cinemax, Entertainment Tonight, E! Entertainment, CNN's Reliable Sources, and Turner Classic Movies. He is a member of the National Society of Film Critics.

SPENCER GREEN reminds you that the use of flash photography or any sound recording devices is strictly prohibited during this biography. Mr. Green has written for In Living Color, AAAHH!!! Real Monsters, Duckman, Mad TV, The Fairly Oddparents, and Denis Leary's Merry F#%$in' Christmas, and was a coeditor of Leonard Maltin's Movie Encyclopedia; he also edited We'll Never Be Young Again: Remembering the Last Days of John F. Kennedy. Mr. Green has performed at the Los Angeles comedic writers' salon Sit 'n Spin and is coauthor/colyricist of BUKOWSICAL! which won Outstanding Musical at the 2007 New York International Fringe Festival. He also writes for The Huffington Post and is creator of the parody movie Web site The Parallel Universe Film Guide at www.parallelfilmguide.com. Mr. Green knows at least four words that rhyme with "orange" and he ain't telling.

ROB EDELMAN is coauthor (with his wife, Audrey Kupferberg) of several books, including Matthau: A Life; Meet the Mertzses, a double biography of Vivian Vance and William Frawley; and Angela Lansbury: A Life on Stage and Screen. He also has written Great Baseball Films; Baseball on the Web (which Amazon.com cited as a Top 10 Internet book); several children's books (on such subjects as Watergate and the Vietnam War); and is the editor of Issues on Trial: Freedom of the Press. He offers film commentary on WAMC (Northeast) Public Radio; presents lectures in the Speakers in the Humanities program, sponsored by the New York State Council for the Humanities; and is a Contributing Editor of Leonard Maltin's Classic Movie Guide, Leonard Maltin's Family Film Guide, and Leonard Maltin's Movie Encyclopedia. His byline has appeared in the New Haven Register (where he was film critic); many reference books (including A Political Companion to American Film, Total Baseball, International Dictionary of Films and Filmmakers, The Total Baseball Catalog, Women Filmmakers and Their Films, Baseball and American Culture: Across the Diamond, and St. James Encyclopedia of Popular Culture); and dozens of periodicals (from American Film and Base Ball: A Journal of the Early Game to Variety and The Washington Post). He was director of programming for Home Film Festival and programmed film series at the American Film Institute; he authored an essay on early baseball films for the DVD Reel Baseball: Baseball Films from the Silent Era, 1899–1926; is an interviewee on the director's cut DVD of The Natural; and has been a juror at the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum's annual film festival. He has taught film courses at several universities; his present affiliation is the University at Albany (SUNY).

PETE HAMMOND is currently film critic for Hollywood.com and a contributing reviewer to Boxoffice magazine and Boxoffice.com, as well as Backstage.com. He is also a regular columnist for The Los Angeles Times' popular awards section and site The Envelope. He served as film critic for Maxim magazine and Maxim Online for three years, and has been a frequent contributor to Variety. He is in his eleventh year as host of the KCET Cinema Series in Los Angeles, and has been a moderator for the Variety Screening Series and UCLA Extension's Sneak Preview. He has hosted panels at AFI Fest, the Santa Barbara Film Festival, Mill Valley Film Festival, CineVegas, San Francisco Film Festival, and Cannes Film Festival, and has interviewed top stars and filmmakers at screenings for such groups as SAG, DGA, BAFTA, and WGA. He has held talent producing positions at Entertainment Tonight, Access Hollywood, The Arsenio Hall Show, The Martin Short Show, and the AMC network. He is the recipient of five Emmy nominations for his TV writing and the winner of the 1996 Publicists Guild of America's Press Award. He serves on the Board of Governors for the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences representing writers.

MICHAEL SCHEINFELD has written the "Classic Movies" column as a Senior Writer for TV Guide, where he also wrote articles and a DVD column, as well as film reviews for tvguide.com. He also served as Contributing Editor of Leonard Maltin's Classic Movie Guide and Leonard Maltin's Family Film Guide. He contributed essays for the recently published

City Secrets book, Movies: The Ultimate Insider's Guide, and has written for other books and magazines, including The Motion Picture Guide, The Virgin Film Guide, The 500 Best British and Foreign Films, Films in Review, Laserviews, and Trump World magazine. He has worked for American Movie Classics and MTV Films, and has produced and programmed film series for cable TV channels in Manhattan and Philadelphia.

BILL WARREN is the author of the two-volume Keep Watching the Skies: Science Fiction Movies of the 1950s, which has been called "one of the rare reference works that combines genuine entertainment with impeccable information." He also wrote Set Visits and The Evil Dead Companion. He has written for magazines, including Starlog, Fangoria, American Film, Video Watchdog, and Galaxy Online. He contributed to The New Encyclopedia of Science Fiction, several books on Stephen King, and the annual Science Fiction Writers of America Nebula Award volumes. Without being able to speak much more French than film noir and pommes frites, for ten years he was the Hollywood correspondent for the French television show Destination Series. He has recently completed a page-one rewrite of Keep Watching the Skies; it's now bigger and more obsessive than ever. He likes dogs, cats, his wife, and Hawaii, not necessarily in that order.

JOE LEYDON is an award-winning film critic for Variety and an adjunct professor at the University of Houston and Houston Community College. He also is a blogger at MovingPictureBlog.blogspot.com, a contributing writer for MovieMaker and Cowboys & Indians magazines, a Q&A host at the Nashville and Denver film festivals, and author of the book Joe Leydon's Guide to Essential Movies You Must See. From 1982 until 1995, he was film critic for The Houston Post. More recently, he has reviewed films for the Houston Chronicle, The San Francisco Examiner, MSNBC.com, NBC affiliate KPRC-TV, The Houston Press, and Fort Worth Star-Telegram. Leydon has also written for the New York Daily News, Los Angeles Times, Newsday, The Boston Globe, The Toronto Star, and Austin American-Statesman. He is the proud father of George Leydon (who is an upstanding young man because he takes after his mother, Anne Leydon) and the reluctant co-owner of two moody cats named Little O and Little Z. In his spare time, he yearns to see DVD releases of Albert Finney's Charlie Bubbles and Claude Lelouch's Les Misérables.

CASEY ST. CHARNEZ continues to waltz with his strawberry blonde Lisa Suzonne Harris as they celebrate their thirty-second anniversary together. Casey earned a Ph.D. in movie musicals and an M.A. in cinema studies from New York University, and also holds an M.A. in English literature and comparative mythology. A former publicity associate with Paramount and Fox, he has written for Film Fan Monthly, The Hollywood Reporter, and American Film; is the author of The Complete Films of Steve McQueen; and has contributed an endword on Greer Garson to 100 Years: A Celebration of Filmmaking in New Mexico. Casey often wonders what movies today would be like if there had been no Breen Office, no Will Hays, no Production Code, and no MPAA rating system. Mercy!

Introduction to 2010 Edition

We're surrounded by technology these days—in fact, we're inundated—but if you're reading these words, chances are you still believe there is value to an “old-fashioned” reference book. Thank you, and may your tribe increase.

In defiance of Marshall McLuhan, I don't think the medium is the message—at least not when it comes to the dissemination of movie information. As I learned when I worked on the first edition of this book forty-one years ago (!), movie “facts” are not immutable: actors change the spellings of their names, movie credits may contain mistakes, studios sometimes hand out inaccurate information, etc. My colleagues and I spend endless hours researching the tiniest details, trying to get things right, and sometimes that requires judgment calls. Someone has to make decisions based on savvy, not computer skills.

I don't mean to disparage the Internet; I use it every day and it is an amazing resource. Yet over the past year I have repeatedly hit a wall trying to get exact details about the films I'm writing up. All it takes is for one site to make a mistake and the viral effect is immediate and overpowering.

Checking cast lists is a nuisance when some sources follow the studio handout material and list the actors alphabetically, or in the order in which they appear on-screen. What good is that when you can't find the leading lady until you've scrolled halfway down a list one hundred names long? And who are the top-billed costars? Our goal is to provide as useful a cast list as possible.

I'm certainly not suggesting that we don't make mistakes. In fact, we've corrected some items that have been in print for decades. For instance, Harold and Maude went into national release in January of 1972 but opened in New York in December of 1971—so that's the year we should have cited all along.

As always, we've examined the résumés of actors who have come to the forefront during the past year. Did you know Robert Pattinson of Twilight fame was in Vanity Fair in 2004? Or that Michael Shannon, who made such an impression in Revolutionary Road that he earned an Oscar nomination, has been in films since Groundhog Day in 1993? You'll find Richard Jenkins, Sally Hawkins, Viola Davis, Michael Sheen, James Franco, and Taraji P. Henson newly added to the credits of many films in these pages . . . and you won't have to scan scores of names to learn that they're in those casts.

Of course, one can drown in details. We've always listed Baz Luhrmann's film as (William Shakespeare's) Romeo & Juliet, because that's how it appeared on-screen. A sharp-eyed reader recently said we were wrong and should be using a plus sign. As it turns out, he's wrong, too. We looked closely at the movie's official logo and discovered an ampersand inside a large plus sign. Sometimes you just can't win.

Year in and year out, we also grapple with the bugaboo of running times. If you scanned various outlets to determine the length of Will Smith's Seven Pounds (which, to me, seemed endless) you would find major newspapers and online sources saying 118 minutes. It turns out that the film was screened for critics before its closing credits were added, so in fact the final film is 123m. The studio confirmed this, and we double-checked our copy of the DVD just to be safe.

The situation isn't necessarily easier when it comes to older movies. For years we noted that They Might Be Giants (1971), with George C. Scott and Joanne Woodward, ran 88 minutes in theatrical release, but had 10 minutes added for network television. It turns out that the actual original length was 86 minutes, while that extended TV version hasn't been seen in years. But director Anthony Harvey did get to tinker with the film for DVD release and reinsert 5 minutes of footage for a new total of 91 minutes. Clear?

(We won't even discuss the three different versions of Bob Fosse's Sweet Charity—a roadshow print plus two slightly shorter versions, one with a happy and one with an unhappy ending.)

This research goes for naught when someone watches a contemporary movie on basic-cable TV channels, where those films are routinely censored and slashed by as much as a half hour. We trust our readers know that only in uncut showings can you enjoy the movie the way it was intended to be seen.

One issue I didn't have to deal with way back in 1968 was space. The first edition of this book ran 535 pages, which seemed fairly hefty at the time. We were able to expand for the next thirty years; it was only then that binding such a gigantic book became a problem. First we eliminated made-for-TV movies. Then we invented a spinoff volume, Leonard Maltin's Classic Movie Guide, to accommodate a large number of pre-1960 titles that had to go. (Even more old movies had to go this year, but we will be publishing an expanded Classic Movie Guide in the spring of 2010, and expanding our cutoff by five years to 1965.) We've also cut a great many outdated and irrelevant nuggets of information: alternate titles that no one uses anymore, alternate versions of films prepared for network and cable TV that haven't aired since the 1970s and '80s, etc.

This is the one arena in which online databases excel: there are essentially no limits to the space they can fill. Much as I would like to have all the reviews and information for films from the silent era to the present in one volume, it simply isn't possible anymore. I hope people derive some enjoyment from our reviews and some benefit from the details we try to pack into every entry.

Our challenge, every year, is to make sure we don't get so caught up in minutiae that we forget what matters most: celebrating and recommending good movies, including sleepers that slip through the cracks, like Elegy, King of California, Chop Shop, The Pool, Repo! The Genetic Opera, The Wackness, The Order of Myths, A Christmas Tale, The Deal, I Served the King of England, What Doesn't Kill You, Nothing But the Truth, In the Electric Mist, and Ghost Town. If you've missed any of these underappreciated films I hope you'll seek them out. And if you're adventurous you might want to check out newly revised editions of such films as Revolution, Nickelodeon, and Lookin' to Get Out.

How does anyone keep track of all these movies—let alone the facts about them? That's the job that my hardworking team takes on every year with pluck and good cheer. My deepest thanks go, once again, to Luke Sader, Spencer Green, Mike Clark, Rob Edelman, Pete Hammond, Joe Leydon, Michael Scheinfeld, Bill Warren, Casey St. Charnez, Jerry Beck, and my daughter, Jessie Maltin. This year my longtime associate Darwyn Carson stepped into the role of Managing Editor and faced a steep and daunting learning curve, bearing it with grace and efficiency. This has been her baptism of fire.

Many readers send in useful corrections and suggestions, as do my friends Tom Weaver, Bruce Goldstein, George Feltenstein, Bob O'Neil, and Robert A. Harris. The book would be poorer without their contributions.

Physically producing this book is another Herculean task taken on—and conquered—by Hugh Rawson, Bill Harris, Ken May, and Kathy Murray. I hope they know how much I appreciate what they do.

The people who share my life also share in the fate of this book—and endure my mood swings whenever the deadline draws near. I am so lucky to have Alice as my wife and Jessie as my daughter.

This 2010 edition is the first in many years not to bear the name of the late Cathleen Anderson, who started as a volunteer proofreader and went on to become Managing Editor. I mourn her untimely passing and miss her dry sense of humor.

I'm happy to say that working on an all-consuming reference book all these years hasn't dimmed my passion for movies, not one bit. If anything, it's whetted my appetite to see films—and then learn all about them. I hope that enthusiasm comes across in these pages and continues to do so for many years. Now, please excuse me: I have a deadline for the next edition of Leonard Maltin's Classic Movie Guide.

—LEONARD MALTIN

Key to This Book

Alphabetization: Articles of speech—A, An, The—are eliminated. (The Man Called Flintstone is listed under Man Called Flintstone, The.) Aside from that, film titles are listed in strict letter-by-letter spelling sequence. Separation of words and punctuation are ignored; everything hinges on the letters. So, Pumpkinhead is listed before Pump Up the Volume, because “k” comes before “u.” Titles that begin with Mister or Doctor will come before titles abbreviated Mr. or Dr. Let the alphabet be your guide, letter-by-letter, and you’ll find the title you’re looking for.

Each entry lists title and year of theatrical release in a film’s country of origin. (This doesn’t include film festival exposure; a film may languish for one or more years before coming to theaters, by which time it might be trimmed and even bear a different name.) The letter “C” before a running time indicates that the film was made in color. “D:” indicates the name of the director. This is followed by a listing of the principal cast members. Alternate titles (if any) are noted at the end of the entry.

Ratings range from *, for the very best, down to *½. There is no * rating; instead, for bottom-of-the-barrel movies, we use the citation BOMB.

▼ This symbol indicates the title is available on videocassette;

● indicates laserdisc availability;

▶ indicates DVD availability.

(These symbols indicate that a film has been released at one time; we cannot guarantee current availability.)

The MPAA rates with the following symbols:

G General Audiences: All ages admitted.

PG Parental Guidance Suggested: Some material may not be suitable for children.

PG-13 Parents Strongly Cautioned: Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

R Restricted: Children under 17 require accompanying parent or adult guardian.

NC-17 No Children Under 17 Admitted (age may vary in certain areas).

The rating symbols GP, M, and X are no longer used to classify films.

Leonard Maltin's Movie Lists

People love lists, because they provide both a springboard for ideas—and something to argue about. These brief lists aren't in any way meant to be definitive, just a sampling of ideas on different movie themes. I've deliberately left out many obvious titles in the hope of leading you to some good films (both old and recent) you've never seen, or haven't revisited in a while.

Back to school movies: Zero for Conduct, Remember the Day, The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie, Back to School, Clueless, Election, Saved!

Halloween movies: Abbott and Costello Meet Frankenstein, An American Werewolf in London, Innocent Blood, Mirrormask, Shaun of the Dead, 28 Days Later

Inspiring movies: The Grapes of Wrath, The Miracle Worker, Norma Rae, My Left Foot, Cast Away, The Great Debaters

Romantic movies: Enchanted April (1991), Chances Are, Heart and Souls, Before Sunset, Miss Potter, Something New Political movies: Gabriel Over the White House, State of the Union, Advise & Consent, Primary Colors, Bob Roberts, Bulworth

Movies for foodies: Babette's Feast, Big Night, Soul Food, Eat Drink Man Woman, Tortilla Soup

Underappreciated Animation: FernGully . . . The Last Rainforest, The Iron Giant, Howl's Moving Castle, Home on the Range, The Tune

Unusual biopics: Backbeat, Antwone Fisher, The Sea Inside, Cobb, The Harmonists, Wild Hearts Can't Be Broken, Downfall, Topsy-Turvy

Unsung musicals: Cannibal! The Musical, The Five Heartbeats, Teacher's Pet (2004), Hedwig and the Angry Inch, Once, Repo! The Genetic Opera Overlooked Christmas movies: Babes in Toyland (1934), A Muppet Christmas Carol, The Family Man, The Family Stone, Joyeux Noel

Mail-Order and Online Sources for Home Video

Welcome to this twentieth installment of our movie hunters' guide.

Once again, here we address our readers' desire to find their gotta-have-it movies.

For the first time this year, film fans have a new medium, DVDs on demand, at last debuting from a major studio, www.WarnerArchive.com, to wit. We hope other studios will follow suit.

Our top shopping suggestion: Even in this age of global Internet shopping, try your own area video stores first. No luck locally? Then move on to mail-order and the computer. The following list is a decent place to start.

Remember our bargaining advice: 1. Always be cautious. 2. Look around and compare prices. 3. Wait patiently for sales. 4. Check guarantees and return policies. 5. Investigate shipping options. 6. Make a copy of your order.

We continue to notate our movies with a  for DVD, along with a retro  for tape and  for laserdisc.

Note: Innumerable titles are now out of print; if they were ever available, we symbolized them then, and encourage you still to search for them now.

And one major heads-up: Though many titles are available exclusively in Canada and abroad, our listings are strictly U.S.A., whether in public domain or under American copyright.

So, happy hunting number twenty . . . and counting.

Widescreen Glossary

An aspect ratio is the relationship between the width and height of a screen image. Virtually all sound films until 1953 were 1.37 to 1, that is, slightly wider than they were tall—a modest rectangle. Since television screen size is 1.33:1, little is lost when an older movie is shown on TV. (Even films in the later standard 1.66:1 don't suffer too badly.)

In the 1950s, however, Hollywood's attempt to lure people away from TV and back into theaters led to a battle of screen sizes, beginning with CinemaScope, more than twice as wide as it was high.

Today, most films are 1.85:1; since this has become the norm, they are no longer thought of as "widescreen." Our listings only cite films in special widescreen processes, such as the ones below:

Aaron Loves Angela (1975) C-98m. *****
 D: Gordon Parks, Jr. Kevin Hooks, Irene Cara, Moses Gunn, Robert Hooks, Ernestine Jackson, José Feliciano. New York-made variation on Romeo and Juliet set in Harlem, with black boy (Kevin) in love with Puerto Rican girl (Cara). OK combination of comedy, drama, violence, and Feliciano's music. [R] ▼

Abandon (2002) C-99m. * D: Stephen Gaghan. Katie Holmes, Benjamin Bratt, Charlie Hunnam, Zoëy Deschanel, Gabrielle Union, Gabriel Mann, Mark Feuerstein, Melanie Jayne Lynskey, Will McCormack, Philip Bosco, Tony Goldwyn, Fred Ward. Police detective with a checkered past is assigned to investigate the disappearance of a college boy but finds himself attracted to the missing student's girlfriend. Murky whodunit with paranormal ingredients that, annoyingly, don't pay off. Directing debut for the Oscar-winning screenwriter of TRAFFIC. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Abandoned, The (2007-Spanish-Bulgarian-British) C-96m. ½ D: Nacho Cerdà. Anastasia Hille, Karel Roden, Valentin Ganev, Paraskeva Djukelova, Carlos Reig-Plaza. American adoptee gets trapped in an endless labyrinth of horror when, after receiving a mysterious invitation, she returns to Russia to learn more about her roots. In her dank, oppressively creepy childhood home, she must confront various evil forces, a murderous clone, and the disturbing secrets of her past. Anybody looking for a coherent narrative will find this throwback to surreal Euro-horror films of the '70s maddening. Fails to build fear and tension, but Cerdà fills the screen with enough gorgeous, chilling imagery to satisfy fans of nonlinear horror fare. Super 35. [R] ▼

Abandon Ship (1957-British) 100m. *****
 D: Richard Sale. Tyrone Power, Mai Zetterling, Lloyd Nolan, Stephen Boyd, Moira Lister, James Hayter. Tyrone is officer suddenly in command of lifeboat holding survivors from sunken luxury liner. Tense, exciting study of people fighting to stay alive while exposed to savage seas and each other. British title: SEVEN WAVES AWAY. ▼

Abbott and Costello Go to Mars (1953) 77m. *½ D: Charles Lamont. Robert Paige, Mari Blanchard, Martha Hyer, Horace McMahon. Unimaginative vehicle has Bud and Lou sailing through space with escaped gangsters, landing on Venus, a planet populated with scantily clad women. Look quickly for Anita Ekberg. ▼

Abbott and Costello in Hollywood (1945) 83m. * D: S. Sylvan Simon. Frances Rafferty, Robert Stanton, Jean Porter, Warner Anderson, Dean Stockwell. Uneven comedy with A&C as barber and porter in Tinseltown. A few peeks behind the scenes at MGM with Rags Ragland, Lucille Ball, Preston Foster, Butch Jenkins, and director Robert Z. Leonard. Officially titled BUD ABBOTT LOU COSTELLO IN HOLLYWOOD. ▼

Abbott and Costello in the Foreign Legion (1950) 80m. * D: Charles Lamont. Patricia Medina, Walter Slezak, Douglass Dumbrille. Unexceptional vehicle pitting A&C against nasty sergeant Slezak. Best scene involves mirages in the desert. ▼

Abbott and Costello Meet Captain Kidd (1952) C-70m. * D: Charles Lamont. Charles Laughton, Hillary Brooke, Fran Warren, Bill Shirley, Leif Erickson. Middling pirate spoof with too many lousy songs, worth catching to see Laughton having the time of his life in atypical low comedy. ▼

Abbott and Costello Meet Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (1953) 77m. * D: Charles Lamont. Boris Karloff, Craig Stevens, Reginald Denny, Helen Westcott, John Dierkes. Disappointing attempt to mix A&C with Jekyll (Karloff) and Hyde (stuntman Eddie Parker), with too few funny scenes. Special effects are film's main asset. ▼

Abbott and Costello Meet Frankenstein (1948) 83m. ½ D: Charles Barton. Lon Chaney, Jr., Bela Lugosi, Lenore Aubert, Jane Randolph, Glenn Strange, Frank Ferguson. Dracula (Lugosi) plans to put Lou's brain in Frankenstein's monster; werewolf Larry Talbot (Chaney) has his paws full convincing the boys they're in danger. All-time great horror-comedy still works beautifully, mainly because the monsters play it straight. Yes, that is Vincent Price's voice at the end. Officially titled BUD ABBOTT LOU COSTELLO MEET FRANK-ENSTEIN. ▼●●

Abbott and Costello Meet the Invisible Man (1951) 82m.  D: Charles Lamont. Nancy Guild, Arthur Franz, Adele Jergens, Sheldon Leonard. One of the team's best vehicles, with Bud and Lou as detectives helping boxer (Franz) who's been framed by mobster Leonard, with aid of invisibility formula. The effects are top-notch. ▼●●

Abbott and Costello Meet the Keystone Kops (1955) 79m.  D: Charles Lamont. Fred Clark, Lynn Bari, Mack Sennett, Maxie Rosenbloom, Frank Wilcox, Henry Kulky, Sam Flint. Low-budget comedy could have been better. Clark is fine as conniving producer in this synthetic period piece of silent-slapstick movie days. ▼●

Abbott and Costello Meet the Killer Boris Karloff (1949) 84m. ½ D: Charles Barton. Lenore Aubert, Gar Moore, Donna Martell, Alan Mowbray. Pleasant blend of comedy and whodunit with bodies hanging in closets perplexing hotel dick Abbott, and phony mystic Karloff trying to do away with klutzy bellboy Costello. ▼●●

Abbott and Costello Meet the Mummy (1955) 79m. ½ D: Charles Lamont. Marie Windsor, Michael Ansara, Dan Seymour, Kurt Katch, Richard Deacon. Amusing adventure with A&C mixed up with villainess Windsor, a valuable tomb, and a mummy who's still alive. ▼●●

Abby (1974) C-92m. ½ D: William Girdler. Carol Speed, William Marshall, Terry Carter, Austin Stoker, Juanita Moore. Not-bad black variation on THE EXORCIST. Speed, wife of minister Carter and daughter-in-law of minister Marshall, is the possessed Abby. Out of circulation for years because of a lawsuit that claimed it was a ripoff of THE EXORCIST. ▼

ABC Murders, The SEE: Alphabet Murders, The

Abdication, The (1974-British) C-103m.  D: Anthony Harvey. Peter Finch, Liv Ullmann, Cyril Cusack, Paul Rogers, Michael Dunn. Plodding historical drama of what happened to Sweden's Queen Christina when she abdicated to convert to Catholicism. Finch is the cardinal who must test her sincerity and with whom she falls in love. [PG] ▼

Abe Lincoln in Illinois (1940) 110m. * D: John Cromwell. Raymond Massey, Gene Lockhart, Ruth Gordon, Mary Howard, Dorothy Tree, Minor Watson, Alan Baxter, Howard da Silva. First-rate Americana; sincere story of Lincoln's life and career is beautifully acted by Massey, with top support from Gordon as Mary Todd. Based on Robert Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize-winning play. ▼●

movie in which two addictive personalities—a fast-and-loose-living cokehead (Headey) and her alcoholic wreck of a father (Skarsgård), from whom she has been long estranged—endure each other's company as she escorts him from Norway to Scotland. Sometimes tough to watch, as the characters wallow in their dysfunction, but they are vividly etched and their multilayered relationship is wholly believable. ▼●

Abigail: Wanted SEE: Stingray (1978)

Abominable Dr. Phibes, The (1971-British) C-94m.  D: Robert Fuest. Vincent Price, Joseph Cotten, Peter Jeffrey, Hugh Griffith, Terry-Thomas, Virginia North. Above average camp horror film in which Price, disfigured in a car wreck, seeks revenge on those he believes responsible for the death of his wife. Sequel: DR. PHIBES RISES AGAIN! ▼●●

About a Boy (2002) C-101m.  D: Chris Weitz, Paul Weitz. Hugh Grant, Toni Collette, Rachel Weisz, Nicholas Hoult, Victoria Smurfit. Self-absorbed bachelor Grant, who happily lives a hedonistic existence, comes into the life of an isolated, misfit 12-year-old boy whose mom is chronically depressed. Out of this unlikely situation a friendship slowly develops in which the boy and the man fill voids in each other's lives. Bright, unpredictable, and refreshingly humanistic comedy-drama doesn't hew to any formula, and though it skirts credibility at times it comes up a winner. Based on the novel by Nick Hornby, coscripted by the directors. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

About Adam (2001-British-U.S.-Irish) C-105m. ½ D: Gerard Stembridge. Kate Hudson, Frances O'Connor, Stuart Townsend, Charlotte Bradley, Alan Maher, Rosaleen Linehan. Cute romantic comedy about a duplicitous charmer who woos all three sisters of an eccentric, close-knit Dublin family. Slight but charming fare has a refreshingly hedonistic attitude but never really convinces us why these robust Eves are so smitten by such a cipher of a man. Good showcase for its trio of leading ladies (Hudson, O'Connor, Bradley). [R] ▼●

About Last Night . . . (1986) C-113m.  D: Edward Zwick. Rob Lowe, Demi Moore, James Belushi, Elizabeth Perkins, George DiCenzo, Michael Aildredge, Robin Thomas, Catherine Keener. True-to-life look at problems faced by a young couple fleeing the singles scene, biggest problem being his inability to make genuine emotional commitment to her. True-to-life doesn't make it terribly interesting, however. Expanded (and diluted) from David Mamet's one-act play Sexual Perversity in Chicago. Coscenarist Tim Kazurinsky appears briefly. [R] ▼●●

About Mrs. Leslie (1954) 104m.  D: Daniel Mann. Shirley Booth, Robert Ryan, Marjorie Millar, Alex Nicol, Sammy White, James Bell, Eilene Janssen, Henry (Harry)

About Schmidt (2002) C-124m. ½ D: Alexander Payne. Jack Nicholson, Hope Davis, Dermot Mulroney, Kathy Bates, Len Cariou, Howard Hesseman, June Squibb. Superb human comedy about a newly retired insurance actuary in Nebraska who begins—for the first time—to question the choices he has made in life. Subtle, deliberately paced, and splendidly acted, with as many sad moments as funny ones. Nicholson's magnificently quiet, true performance may be the best of his career. Enhanced by Rolfe Kent's perfectly nuanced score. Payne and Jim Taylor (loosely) adapted Louis Begley's novel. [R] ▼●

Above the Law (1988) C-99m.  D: Andrew Davis. Steven Seagal, Pam Grier, Sharon Stone, Henry Silva, Ron Dean, Daniel Faraldo, Thalmus Rasulala. Chicago cop doesn't hesitate to use his martial arts skills as he battles police corruption and drug dealing. Seagal's film debut reveals the real-life Aikido master to be more of the Chuck Norrisian than the Stanislavskian school of acting. Seagal also cowrote and coproduced; slick but stupid actioner. [R] ▼●●

Above the Rim (1994) C-93m. ½ D: Jeff Pollack. Duane Martin, Leon, Tupac Shakur, David Bailey, Tonya Pinkins, Marlon Wayans, Bernie Mac. By-the-numbers tale of a promising high school basketball player (Martin) and his conflicting relationships with two very different brothers: one a drug dealer (Shakur), the other a troubled ex-scholastic hoop star (Leon) employed as a school security guard. Despite insightful moments, film wallows in clichés and plot contrivances. [R] ▼●●

static biography of Lincoln; can't match Griffith's silent masterpieces. ▼●●

Absence of Malice (1981) C-116m.  D: Sydney Pollack. Paul Newman, Sally Field, Bob Balaban, Melinda Dillon, Luther Adler, Barry Primus, Josef Sommer, John Harkins, Don Hood, Wilford Brimley. A reporter (Field) is duped by a scheming government investigator into printing a story that discredits innocent Newman; while she hides behind the privilege of the press, he determines to get even. Absorbing drama by former reporter Kurt Luedtke with two charismatic star performances. Filmed in Miami. [PG] ▼●●

Absent Minded Professor, The (1961) 97m.  D: Robert Stevenson. Fred MacMurray, Nancy Olson, Keenan Wynn, Tommy Kirk, Ed Wynn, Leon Ames, Elliott Reid. MacMurray discovers flubber (flying rubber) in this Disney audience-pleaser, but no one will believe him except Keenan Wynn, who tries to steal the substance. Broad comedy and bright special effects make this a lot of fun. Also shown in computer-colored version. Sequel: SON OF FLUBBER. Remade in 1995 (as a TVM) and in 1997 as FLUBBER. ▼●●

Absolute Beginners (1986-British) C-107m. ½ D: Julien Temple. Eddie O'Connell, Patsy Kensit, David Bowie, James Fox, Ray Davies, Eve Ferret, Anita Morris, Lionel Blair, Steven Berkoff, Mandy Rice-Davies, Sade Adu. Energetic, original musical set in London, 1958, when teenagers first came into their own. Highly stylized film (directed by music-video veteran Temple) suffers from two-dimensional characters and a misguided attempt to add substance by dealing with the rise of racism in England... but its virtues almost outweigh its shortcomings. Pulsating score supervised by jazz great Gil Evans; musical highlights from Sade ("Killer Blow") and jazz veteran Slim Gaillard ("Selling Out"). And don't miss that incredible opening shot! Adapted from Colin MacInnes' 1959 novel. Super Techniscope. [PG-13] ▼●●

Absolute Power (1997) C-120m.  D: Clint Eastwood. Clint Eastwood, Gene Hackman, Ed Harris, Laura Linney, Judy Davis, E. G. Marshall, Scott Glenn, Dennis Haysbert, Melora Hardin, Richard Jenkins. Aging thief pulls off one valedictory jewel heist, but along the way accidentally witnesses a sexual assault and murder involving none other than the President of the United States (Hackman). Barely credible (and fatally diluted) adaptation of David Baldacci's best-seller by William Goldman. Eastwood and Harris (as a wily cop) play a fun game of cat and mouse, but Hackman is over the top, and the whole thing runs aground in the second half. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Absolution (1981-British) C-105m. ½ D: Anthony Page. Richard Burton, Dominic Guard, Dai Bradley, Billy Connolly, Andrew Keir, Willoughby Gray. Burton gives a commanding performance as a humorless, by-the-book priest who teaches at a boys' school, and falls victim to a snowballing practical joke played upon him by his pet student. Straightforward melodrama loses credibility toward the end. Written by Anthony Shaffer. Filmed in 1978, unreleased in the U.S. until 1988, four years after Burton's death. [R] ▼●●

Abyss, The (1989) C-145m.  D: James Cameron. Ed Harris, Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, Michael Biehn, Leo Burmester, Todd Graff, John Bedford Lloyd, J.C. Quinn, Kimberly Scott, Jimmie Ray Weeks, Chris Elliott. Spectacular underwater saga about an oil-rig crew that gets involved in a perilous mission to rescue a sunken nuclear sub. Better as underwater adventure than futuristic sci-fi, with a couple of crises too many, but still a fascinating, one-of-a-kind experience. Great score by Alan Silvestri; Oscar winner for Visual Effects. Special edition includes 27m. of extra footage, some of it all-too-obviously cut from theatrical release. It fleshes out characters, amplifies plot points, and includes some spectacular special effects—but "literalizes" the other-worldly finale. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Accatone (1961-Italian) 120m.  D: Pier Paolo Pasolini. Franco Citti, Franca Pasut, Roberto Scaringella, Adele Cambria, Paolo Guidi, Silvana Corsini. Pasolini's first film is a vivid, unsentimental look at the desperate (and depressing) existence of pimps and petty thieves living in the slums of Rome. Bernardo Bertolucci was one of the assistant directors. Released in the U.S. in 1968. ▼●●

Accepted (2006) C-93m.  D: Steve Pink. Justin Long, Jonah Hill, Adam Herschman, Blake Lively, Columbus Short, Maria Thayer, Lewis Black, Anthony Heald. A group of teenagers who've been rejected by various colleges start their own in an abandoned mental institution. Premise is so far-fetched that it keeps you watching just to find out how it's going to resolve itself. Its message that a college education kills the creative genius that teenagers would otherwise cultivate on their own is hard to swallow after seeing the "self-made students" do nothing but drink and party. Soundtrack is full of cover songs paying homage to other, better teen-revolution movies. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

sor who falls in love with a student) as just a foundation for examination of characters' thoughts and actions. A challenging film that operates on many levels; entire cast superb, including York in his first major film role. Based on a novel by Nicholas Mosley, who plays Don. Pinter is amusing as a TV producer. ▼●

Accidental Tourist, The (1988) C-121m.  D: Lawrence Kasdan. William Hurt, Kathleen Turner, Geena Davis, Amy Wright, Bill Pullman, Robert Gorman, David Ogden Stiers, Ed Begley, Jr. Hurt gives an exquisite performance as a man shattered by the death of his son, who comes out of his shell when he meets a kooky, aggressive young woman (Oscar winner Davis) who couldn't be less his type. Finely wrought, extremely faithful adaptation of Anne Tyler's novel dares to take its time; may be too slow and quiet for some viewers, but offers many rewards. Pan-avision. [PG] ▼●●

Accidents Will Happen (1939) 62m. ½ D: William Clemens. Ronald Reagan, Gloria Blondell, Sheila Bromley, Dick Purcell, Addison Richards. Good little B picture about a young go-getting insurance claims adjuster who tries to blow the whistle on a phony-accident racket.

Accompanist, The (1992-French) C-111m.  D: Claude Miller. Richard Bohringer, Elena Safonova, Romaine Bohringer, Samuel Labarthe, Bernard Verley. Somber drama of deceit (toward oneself and one's country) set during WW2. An unworldly young woman (Bohringer) is hired as accompanist to a famous Parisian singer who, with her husband, has been collaborating with the enemy. Potentially potent story but the result is too often bland and forgettable. ▼

Accused, The (1948) 101m.  D: William Dieterle. Loretta Young, Robert Cummings, Wendell Corey, Sam Jaffe, Douglas Dick. Professor Young is sexually attacked by a student, accidentally kills him in self-defense, and then tries to cover it up. Taut thriller, with good support from Cummings.

Accused, The (1988) C-110m.  D: Jonathan Kaplan. Kelly McGillis, Jodie Foster, Bernie Coulson, Leo Rossi, Ann Hearn, Carmen Argenziano. Public prosecutor McGillis deals with a gang-rape case in cut-and-dried fashion, until the victim demands full retribution for what she has suffered. Compelling drama inspired by a notorious real-life case and propelled by Foster's powerhouse, Oscar-winning performance as the provocative, foul-mouthed woman who gets her day in court. Only quibble: Was the climactic reenactment really necessary? [R] ▼●●

Ace Eli and Rodger of the Skies (1973)

C-92m.  D: Bill Sampson (John Erman). Cliff Robertson, Pamela Franklin, Eric Shea, Rosemary Murphy, Bernadette Peters, Alice Ghostley. Tepid tale of 1920s stunt flyer and son who tags along. Muddled film sat on shelf a long time; doctoring didn't help. Story by Steven Spielberg. Peters' film debut. Panavision. [PG]

Ace High (1969-Italian) C-123m.  D: Giuseppe Colizzi. Eli Wallach, Terence Hill, Bud Spencer, Brock Peters, Kevin McCarthy, Steffen Zacharias. Awkwardly dubbed spaghetti Western tries to imitate Clint Eastwood-Sergio Leone epics, but director Colizzi lacks Leone's style. Hill plays a character named Cat Stevens, but there are no rock songs here. Techniscope. [M] ▼

Ace in the Hole (1951) 112m.  D: Billy Wilder. Kirk Douglas, Jan Sterling, Bob Arthur, Porter Hall, Frank Cady, Richard Benedict, Ray Teal, Gene Evans. An embittered New Mexico reporter looking for the elusive brass ring finds it when he stumbles onto a story of a man trapped in an ancient Indian ruin. Unrelentingly cynical (yet mostly believable) tale of how the reporter exploits the "human interest story" for his own benefit—and how the potential tragedy turns into a three-ring circus—has a peculiarly contemporary ring to it. Biting and extremely well acted. Originally titled THE BIG CAR-NIVAL. Inspired by the actual 1925 Floyd Collins case; the real reporter won a Pulitzer Prize. ▽

Aces High (1976-British) C-104m.  D: Jack Gold. Malcolm McDowell, Christopher Plummer, Simon Ward, Peter Firth. Strong antiwar statement focusing on indoctrination of WW1 pilot Firth and his disillusioned squadron leader (McDowell). Solid cast (with cameos by John Gielgud, Ray Milland, Trevor Howard, and Richard Johnson) and exciting aerial dogfights highlight this remake of R. C. Sherriff's JOURNEY'S END. [PG]

Aces: Iron Eagle III (1992) C-93m. *½ D: John Glen. Louis Gossett, Jr., Rachel McLish, Christopher Cazenove, Horst Buchholz, Sonny Chiba. This time, maverick pilot Gossett and a group of WW2 veteran pilots stage an air raid on a Peruvian cocaine factory (having run out of targets in the Middle East). Unsatisfying mélange of flyboy machismo, unintentional slapstick, and inane action—with novelty of female bodybuilder McLish in cast. [R] ▼

Ace Ventura, Pet Detective (1994) C-86m.  D: Tom Shadyac. Jim Carrey, Courtney Cox, Sean Young, Tone Lōc, Dan Marino, Noble Willingham, Troy Evans, Randall "Tex" Cobb. Miami-based "pet detective" is hired to find the kidnapped mascot of the Dolphins football team. No-brainer comedy/whodunit was the breakout role for Carrey, who mugs nonstop (and we mean nonstop). Some good gags, but runs out of steam—which Carrey never does. Real-life members of the Miami Dolphins appear. A minute of new footage added for video. Followed by a sequel, an animated TV series, and a DVD sequel. [PG-13] ▼

Ace Ventura: When Nature Calls (1995) C-105m.  D: Steve Oedekerk. Jim Carrey, Ian McNeice, Simon Callow, Maynard Eziashi, Bob Gunton, Sophie Okonedo, Tommy Davidson. Sloppy assemblage of gags (with most of the good ones near the beginning) ostensibly about Ace's anti-p.c. hijinks with battling African tribes while trying to locate a rare white bat. Clever opening spoof of CLIFFHANGER and a funny sight gag involving asparagus; otherwise, more of the same. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Across 110th Street (1972) C-102m.  D: Barry Shear. Anthony Quinn, Yaphet Kotto, Anthony Franciosa, Richard Ward, Paul Benjamin, Ed Bernard, Antonio Fargas, Norma Donaldson, Gilbert Lewis. N.Y.C. police race the mobs to catch three blacks who, disguised as cops, stole $300,000 from a Mafia-controlled bank; mutual distrust of both black and Italian hoods is mirrored by differences between cops Quinn and Kotto. Exciting, well paced, and extremely violent, with fine use of Harlem locations. Quinn was also coexecutive producer. [R] ▼

Across the Bridge (1957-British) 103m.  D: Ken Annakin. Rod Steiger, David Knight, Maria Landi, Noel Willman, Bernard Lee, Bill Nagy, Eric Pohlmann. Smug German business magnate flees his home base in England when Scotland Yard investigates his corrupt dealings. His only hope is to get to Mexico through the U.S., but en route he switches identities with a fellow train passenger. Engrossing yarn based on a Graham Greene novella. Shot mostly in Spain. Later remade as DOUBLE TAKE. ▼

Across the Pacific (1942) 97m. *½ D: John Huston. Humphrey Bogart, Mary Astor, Sydney Greenstreet, Victor Sen Yung, Keye Luke, Richard Loo. Three MALTESE FALCON leads reteam for enjoyable WW2 adventure. Bogart trails spies to Panama, has running battle of wits with Greenstreet, while romancing enticing Astor. Despite title, the movie never gets to the Pacific, much less across it. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Across the Tracks (1991) C-101m. *½ D: Sandy Tung. Rick Schroder, Brad Pitt, Carrie Snodgrass, David Anthony Marshall. Reasonably compelling teen sports drama with Schroder returning from reform school stint to compete on high school track team and outperforming straight-A track star brother (Pitt). Realistic portrayal of teen problems and aspirations make this best suited for young people, although the

R rating (for normal raunchy high school language) may make this film inaccessible to its key audience. [R] ▼●●

Across the Universe (2007) C-131m. ½ D: Julie Taymor. Evan Rachel Wood, Jim Sturgess, Joe Anderson, Dana Fuchs, Martin Luther McCoy, T. V. Carpio, Spencer Liff, Lisa Hogg, Bill Irwin, James Urbaniak, Dylan Baker, Joe Cocker, Bono, Salma Hayek, Harry J. Lennix, Eddie Izzard. A young Brit comes to the U.S. in search of his father, and falls in love with an all-American girl, just as she (and her entire generation) experience the mind-bending changes of the Vietnam era. Routine story is just an excuse to pictorialize—and attempt to contextualize—more than 30 landmark Beatles songs. Imaginative at times but increasingly wearying as the song cues line up (yes, there are characters named Prudence, Maxwell, Jude, et al.), famous faces appear, and the plotline bogs down. Our favorite number: Joe Cocker singing “Come Together.” Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Across the Wide Missouri (1951) C-78m. ½ D: William Wellman. Clark Gable, Ricardo Montalban, John Hodiak, Adolphe Menjou, Maria Elena Marques, J. Carrol Naish, Jack Holt, Alan Napier, George Chandler, Richard Anderson. Location filming helps pedestrian frontier adventure about explorer Gable and other pathfinders moving westward in 19th century. ▼

Action Jackson (1988) C-95m.  D: Craig R. Baxley. Carl Weathers, Craig T. Nelson, Vanity, Sharon Stone, Thomas F. Wilson, Bill Duke, Robert Davi, Jack Thibau. Strictly standard B-movie fare pitting good guy Weathers (a cop) vs. bad guy Nelson. Plenty of explosions, car chases, corpses and noise. [R] ▼●●

Act of Love (1953) 108m. ½ D: Anatole Litvak. Kirk Douglas, Dany Robin, Barbara Laage, Robert Strauss, Gabrielle Dorziat, Serge Reggiani, Brigitte Bardot. Entertaining if unremarkable chronicle of the romance between lonely American soldier Douglas and down-and-out French girl Robin in Paris. Scripted by Irwin Shaw, based on Alfred Hayes’ novel The Girl on the Via Flaminia.

Act of Murder, An (1948) 91m.  D: Michael Gordon. Fredric March, Florence Eldridge, Edmond O’Brien, Geraldine Brooks. March is excellent as strict jurist who must judge himself for saving his wife the anguish of illness by killing her; absorbing drama.

Act of the Heart, The (1970-Canadian) C-103m.  D: Paul Almond. Genevieve Bujold, Donald Sutherland, Bill Mitchell, Monique Leyrac. Fascinating study of religious fanaticism manifesting itself in one young woman and her love for a Catholic priest. Beautifully atmospheric but ending deeply hurts film. [PG]

Act of Violence (1949) 82m.  D: Fred Zinnemann. Van Heflin, Robert Ryan, Janet Leigh, Mary Astor, Phyllis Thaxter, Berry Kroeger, Taylor Holmes. Stark, well-acted drama, with crippled, embittered Ryan stalking former senior officer Heflin, who betrayed his men while a POW. Fine vignette by Astor as a sympathetic call girl. ●

Act One (1963) 110m. ½ D: Dore Schary. George Hamilton, Jason Robards, George Segal, Eli Wallach, Sam Levene, Ruth Ford, Jack Klugman. Interesting for oddball cast, this fabrication of writer Moss Hart’s autobiography lacks finesse or any sense of reality, but Robards is ideally cast as George S. Kaufman.

Actors and Sin (1952) 82m. ½ D: Ben Hecht, Lee Garmes. Edward G. Robinson, Eddie Albert, Marsha Hunt, Alan Reed, Dan O’Herlihy, Tracey Roberts, Rudolph Anders, Paul Guilfoyle, Jenny Hecht, John Crawford. Uneven two-part film: the overly melodramatic “Actor’s Blood” concerns has-been thespian Robinson and his hard-hearted (and murdered) Broadway star daughter Hunt; the more successful “Woman of Sin” details the plight of agent Albert, whose newest client is a 9-year-old (Hecht, Ben’s daughter), who’s penned a lascivious book. ▼

Actress, The (1953) 91m. ½ D: George Cukor. Spencer Tracy, Jean Simmons, Teresa Wright, Anthony Perkins, Mary Wickes. Flavorful account based on Ruth Gordon’s experiences as a teenager in early 20th-century Massachusetts, determined to become an acting star; Tracy is the irascible father. Perkins’ film debut. ●

Ada (1961) C-109m.  D: Daniel Mann. Susan Hayward, Dean Martin, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Martin Balsam. Rags-to-riches soaper of poor Hayward maneuvering easy-going Martin to governor’s mansion, using hellbent stamina to overcome political corruption. Hayward vs. Hyde-White in state senate is highlight. CinemaScope.

Adalen 31 (1969-Swedish) C-115m.  D: Bo Widerberg. Peter Schildt, Kerstin Tidelius, Roland Hedlund, Stefan Feierbach. Strikers in a Swedish paper mill disagree over whether or not to make their case with violence; matters are further complicated when a striker’s son falls in love with—and impregnates—the factory manager’s daughter. Generally appealing mix of romance and history, though no one will ever mistake Widerberg (the director of ELVIRA MADIGAN) for a gritty filmmaker of social realism. Techniscope. [X] Adam at 6 A.M. (1970) C-100m.  D: Robert Scheerer. Michael Douglas, Lee Purcell, Joe Don Baker, Grayson Hall, Charles Aidman, Meg Foster. Underrated film about young college professor from California who spends summer in Missouri working as a laborer. Authentic location footage and good performances by Purcell and Baker give rare, genuine feeling for the Midwest. [PG] ▼

Adam Resurrected (2008-U.S.-German-Israeli) C/B&W-106m.  D: Paul Schrader. Jeff Goldblum, Willem Dafoe, Derek Jacobi, Ayelet Zurer, Hana Laszlo, Joachim Król. Take a dash of Kirk Douglas in THE JUGGLER, sprinkle in what you've heard about Jerry Lewis' THE DAY THE CLOWN CRIED, then imagine what Schrader at his most left-field-ish could bring to a Holocaust story. Flashback film from Yoram Kaniuk's eponymous 1968 novel finds a once-popular prewar Berlin clown (Goldblum) in a postwar Israeli mental facility recalling concentration camp life—where he was forced to walk around on all fours like a dog by a commandant (Dafoe) who remembered him from his performing days. This merely scratches the weird surfaces of a brave, barely released movie (with a Goldblum performance tough to fault) that's at once flamboyant yet too chilly to engage many viewers. Super 35. [R]

Adam's Apples (2005-German-Danish) C-91m.  D: Anders Thomas Jensen. Ulrich Thomsen, Mads Mikkelsen, Nicolas Bro, Paprika Steen, Ali Kazim, Ole Thestrup, Nikolaj Lie Kaas. Ineffectual black-comedy allegory about a clash of wills between Ivan (Mikkelsen), a hard-luck soul who embraces religion and is in denial about the existence of evil, and Adam (Thomsen), a hardened career criminal and neo-Nazi. Means to be profound, as it deals with the nature of good and evil, but it's merely overwrought. Super 35. [R]

Adam's Rib (1949) 100m. * D: George Cukor. Spencer Tracy, Katharine Hepburn, Judy Holliday, Tom Ewell, David Wayne, Jean Hagen, Hope Emerson, Polly Moran, Marvin Kaplan, Paula Raymond, Tommy Noonan. Smart, sophisticated comedy (by Ruth Gordon and Garson Kanin) about husband and wife lawyers on opposing sides of the same attempted-murder case. One of Hollywood's greatest comedies about the battle of the sexes, with peerless Tracy and Hepburn supported by movie newcomers Holliday, Ewell, Hagen, and Wayne. Cole Porter contributed the song "Farewell, Amanda." Remade in Bulgaria in 1956 (in this version the heroine rebels against tradition as a result of her conversion to Marxism-Leninism!). Later a TV se-

Adaptation. (2002) C-115m. ½ D: Spike Jonze. Nicolas Cage, Meryl Streep, Chris Cooper, Tilda Swinton, Cara Seymour, Brian Cox, Judy Greer, Maggie Gyllenhaal, Ron Livingston, Stephen Tobolowsky. Super-neurotic screenwriter Charlie Kaufman (BEING JOHN MALKOVICH) is hired to adapt Susan Orlean's book The Orchid Thief as a movie, but finds it a torturous process. His carefree twin brother, Donald, has no such problems, and even tries his hand at writing. We also meet author Orlean (Streep) and her main subject, a colorful Southern character who knows everything there is to know about plants (Cooper, in an Oscar-winning performance). Surreal, dazzling, dizzying, often perplexing but brilliant film about the creative process; Cage (in two distinct performances as the twin brothers), Streep, and Cooper are all great. Cameos by John Malkovich, Catherine Keener, John Cusack, David O. Russell, and Curtis Hanson (as Streep's husband). Screenplay is credited to Charlie and (the late) Donald Kaufman. [R] ▼●

Addicted to Love (1997) C-100m.  D:

Griffin Dunne. Meg Ryan, Matthew Broderick, Kelly Preston, Tcheky Karyo, Maureen Stapleton, Nesbitt Blaisdell, Remak Ramsay. Tilted lover Broderick settles in an abandoned N.Y.C. building across the street from his ex-girlfriend's apartment so he can watch her and her new lover. Then he's joined by the lover's ex-g.f., whose agenda is even more extreme: she wants revenge. Dark, twisted comedy has its moments, and a likable cast, but Ryan's seriously disturbed character makes it hard to "root" for her, and renders the inevitable fadeout scene less than ideal. Feature directing debut for actor-producer Dunne; his famous father, author Dominic Dunne, plays a restaurant critic. [R] ▼●●

Addiction, The (1995) 82m.  D: Abel Ferrara. Lili Taylor, Christopher Walken, Annabella Sciorra, Edie Falco, Paul Calderon, Kathryn Erbe, Michael Imperioli. Intelligent, allegorical vampire movie, shot in beautiful black-and-white, about an NYU philosophy student (well played by Taylor), a decent human being who is horrified by the atrocities of history. Her good intentions do not protect her from evil, as she is bitten by a vampiress and goes on to crave the blood of any- and everyone she meets. Not nearly as bloody and outrageous as some of Ferrara's earlier films; this one says the only hope for mankind is in spirituality. An interesting companion piece to Ferrara's KING OF NEW YORK and BAD LIEUTENANT. ▼●

Adding Machine, The (1969-U.S.-British) C-100m. ½ D: Jerome Epstein. Milo O'Shea, Phyllis Diller, Billie Whitelaw, Sydney Chaplin, Julian Glover. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Adios, Sabata (1971-Italian-Spanish) C-104m. *½ D: Frank Kramer (Gianfranco Parolini). Yul Brynner, Dean Reed, Pedro Sanchez (Ignazio Spalla), Gerard Herter. Gunslinger gets involved with Mexican revolutionaries, helping himself to a cache of gold along the way. Ersatz sequel to SABATA (with Brynner instead of Lee Van Cleef) was titled INDIO BLACK until dubbed and retitled for U.S. release. Genuine sequel, THE RETURN OF SABATA, showed up in 1972. Techniscope. [PG] ●

Adjuster, The (1991-Canadian) C-102m.  D: Atom Egoyan. Elias Koteas, Arsinee

Khanjian, Maury Chaykin, Gabrielle Rose, Jennifer Dale, David Hemblen, Don McKellar. Audacious, provocative examination of voyeurism and the power of images. Among the characters are an insurance adjuster (Koteas) who plays peekaboo with the lives of those he deals with professionally and his wife (Khanjian), a censor who secretly tapes the pornographic material she's classifying. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Charming rendering of Somerset Maugham's novel Theatre and the play of the same title he penned with Guy Bolton. Palmer is an aging stage star who becomes the mistress of young Sorel (despite being wed to director-producer Boyer). Bolton also cowrote the script. Remade as BEING JULIA. ▼

Adoration (2009-Canadian) C-101m.  D: Atom Egoyan. Arsinee Khanjian, Scott Speedman, Rachel Blanchard, Noam Jenkins, Devon Bostick, Kenneth Welsh, Maury Chaykin. After hearing his French teacher read an article about a man who sent his pregnant wife onto a plane with a bomb, a student writes an essay imagining the man and woman as his parents (who died some years ago) and presents it as the truth. This initiates a multilevel series of conversations, confrontations, and revelations about terrorism, personal responsibility, and family dynamics. Provocative at first, Egoyan's puzzle-like story actually becomes less interesting as the pieces fit together. [R]

Advance to the Rear (1964) 97m. ½ D: George Marshall. Glenn Ford, Stella Stevens, Melvyn Douglas, Joan Blondell, Jim Backus, Andrew Prine. During Civil War, Northern soldier rejects are sent to Western territory. Stevens as Reb spy and Blondell as saucy worldly woman add only spice to predictable slapstick comedy. Panavision.

Adventure (1945) 125m.  D: Victor Fleming. Clark Gable, Greer Garson, Joan Blondell, Thomas Mitchell, Tom Tully, John Qualen, Richard Haydn. Gable's back, Garson's got him; they both sink in cumbersome comedy of seagoing roustabout and meek librarian. Not even breezy Blondell can save it. ▼

Adventure in Baltimore (1949) 89m.  D: Richard Wallace. Shirley Temple,

John Agar, Robert Young, Josephine Hutchinson. Mild (and, some might say, reactionary) comedy, set in the horse-and-buggy era. Temple plays a spunky miss whose independent spirit and feminist leanings are depicted as youthful folly. Young, auditioning for Father Knows Best, plays Shirley's understanding pastor-father.

Adventureland (2009) C-106m. ½ D: Greg Mottola. Jesse Eisenberg, Kristen Stewart, Martin Starr, Bill Hader, Kristen Wiig, Ryan Reynolds, Margarita Levieva, Matt Bush, Jack Gilpin, Wendie Malick, Josh Pais, Mary Birdsong. In 1987, a brassy (and virginal) college graduate (Eisenberg) plans a trip to Europe before attending grad school, but a change in family finances forces him to take a menial summer job at a run-down amusement park in his hometown of Pittsburgh. Things take an interesting turn when he falls for a pretty coworker (Stewart). Seriocomic coming-of-age tale boasts strong acting and moments of insight, but covers familiar territory and drags in several spots. Mottola also wrote the semiautobiographical script. [R]

Adventure of Sherlock Holmes' Smarter Brother, The (1975) C-91m. ½ D: Gene Wilder. Gene Wilder, Madeline Kahn, Marty Feldman, Dom DeLuise, Leo McKern, Roy Kinnear, John LeMesurier. Wilder's first film as writer-director-star is mild spoof of Sherlockian adventures, as Sigerson Holmes becomes involved with music-hall songstress Kahn, a damsel in distress. DeLuise, as hammy opera star, adds film's liveliest moments. Listen carefully for vocal cameo by Mel Brooks. Made in England. [PG] ▼

Adventurers, The (1970) C-171m. BOMB D: Lewis Gilbert. Bekim Fehmiu, Candice Bergen, Ernest Borgnine, Olivia de Havilland, Leigh Taylor-Young, Thommy Berggren, Rossano Brazzi, Jaclyn Smith. Three-hour challenge to the kidneys based on Harold Robbins' best-seller about fictional South American republic that has a new revolution every two minutes. Incredible mess wastes attractive cast. Panavision. [PG—edited from original R rating] ▼

Adventures in Babysitting (1987) C-99m.  D: Chris Columbus. Elisabeth Shue, Maia Brewton, Keith Coogan, Anthony Rapp, Calvin Levels, Vincent Phillip D'Onofrio, Penelope Ann Miller, Albert Collins, George Newbern, John Ford Noonan, Lolita David (Davidovich). Shue, extremely winning in her first lead role, plays a teenager who takes her two babysitting charges into downtown Chicago to help get a friend out of a jam—and winds up in a snowballing series of wild adventures, à la FERRIS BUELLER'S DAY OFF. Young teens might go for it, but it's mediocre at best. Screenwriter Columbus' directing debut. [PG-13] ▼

Adventures of a Young Man SEE: Hemingway's Adventures of a Young Man Adventures of Baron Munchausen, The

Adventures of Barry McKenzie, The (1972-Australian) C-114m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Barry Crocker, Barry Humphries, Peter Cook, Spike Milligan. Melbournean Crocker, not particularly fond of the British, finds himself displaced in England. Broad, gross comedy, overlong, and a bit much for American audiences. Beresford's first film, from a cartoon strip by Humphries and Nicholas Garland. Sequel: BARRY MCKENZIE HOLDS HIS OWN.

Adventures of Buckaroo Banzai Across the Eighth Dimension, The (1984) C-103m.  D: W. D. Richter. Peter Weller, John Lithgow, Ellen Barkin, Jeff Goldblum, Christopher Lloyd. Off-the-wall pulp fiction by Earl Mac Rauch about a hero who's a neurosurgeon, physicist, rocket-car driver, rock singer, and government troubleshooter. Should be fun, but it's incoherent, like coming in at the second chapter of a Saturday matinee serial. Still, it has a fervent following. Aka BUCKAROO BANZAI. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Adventures of Bullwhip Griffin, The (1967) C-110m.  D: James Neilson. Roddy McDowall, Suzanne Pleshette, Karl Malden, Harry Guardino, Richard Hayden, Hermione Baddeley, Bryan Russell. Bright Disney spoof of gold-rush sagas, with McDowall as Bostonian butler who learns to fend for himself in the wild and woolly West. Clever comic ideas and visual gimmickry make this fun. ▼

Adventures of Don Juan (1948) C-110m.  D: Vincent Sherman. Errol Flynn, Viveca Lindfors, Robert Douglas, Alan Hale, Ann Rutherford, Raymond Burr. Handsome tongue-in-cheek swashbuckler has Errol stringing along countless maidens and even enticing the Queen (Lindfors); Oscar winner for Best Costumes. ▼

his search leads him to Grouchland, where he tangles with the villainous Huxley (Patin-kin). Fine fare for young fans, but little else for older viewers. Elmo, Patinkin, and Williams seem to be having fun. [G]▼

Adventures of Felix (2000-French) C-95m.  D: Jacques Martineau, Olivier Ducastel. Sami Bouajila, Patachou, Ariane Ascaride, Pierre-Loup Rajot, Charly Sergue. An HIV-positive young man travels to Marseilles to find the father he never knew, and along the way meets a variety of people whom he imagines as his ideal family. Tackles hard-hitting issues (AIDS, racism, homophobia) in the guise of a gentle social comedy. Beautifully photographed by Matthieu Poirot-Delpech. Soundtrack features sweet jazz vocals from Blossom Dearie. Super 35.▼

Adventures of Ford Fairlane, The (1990) C-96m. *½ D: Renny Harlin. Andrew Dice Clay, Wayne Newton, Priscilla Presley, Morris Day, Lauren Holly, Maddie Corman, Gilbert Gottfried, David Patrick Kelly, Brandon Call, Robert Englund, Ed O'Neill, Tone Loc, Sheila E. Controversial standup comic Clay's first starring vehicle is an old-time private-eye yarn transplanted to the contemporary world of rock 'n' roll. Clay's got what it takes, but the film is clumsy, crude, and immature (just like his character). For rabid Clay fans only. Panavision. [R]▼

Adventures of Gerard, The (1970-British-Italian-Swiss) C-91m. BOMB D: Jerzy Skolimowski. Peter McEnery, Claudia Cardinale, Eli Wallach, Jack Hawkins, John Neville. Clumsy farce from Arthur Conan Doyle story about cocky but stupid officer who becomes fall guy for Napoleon's (Wallach) wartime strategy. Panavision.

Adventures of Huck Finn, The (1993) C-108m.  D: Stephen Sommers. Elijah Wood, Courtney B. Vance, Robbie Coltrane, Jason Robards, Ron Perlman, Dana Ivey, Anne Heche, James Gammon, Paxton Whitehead, Tom Aldredge, Curtis Armstrong, Mary Louise Wilson, Frances Conroy. Utterly unimaginative rendering of Mark Twain's perennial, which should remain off-limits to Hollywood from this point on. As Huck, young Wood looks and acts too contemporary by decades, while Vance (as Jim) seems too young. Early scenes involving Huck's brutal father may be too intense for very young children . . . and this a Disney release! [PG]▼

Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, The (1939) 90m.  D: Richard Thorpe. Mickey Rooney, Walter Connolly, William Frawley, Rex Ingram, Lynne Carver. Subdued Rooney fine, Ingram excellent as Huck and Jim in classic Mark Twain tale of early 19th-century America; Connolly and Frawley are amusing as riverboat con artists. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼

Adventures of Ichabod and Mr. Toad, The (1949) C-68m.  D: Jack Kinney. Clyde Geronimi, James Algar. Voices of Eric Blore, Pat O'Malley, John Ployardt, Colin Campbell, Claude Allister, The Rhythmairs. Very entertaining animated doubleheader from Disney: a witty adaptation of Kenneth Grahame's The Wind in the Willows, about the puckish residents of Toad Hall centering on Toad's infatuation with motorcars, narrated by Basil Rathbone; and a broad, cartoony version of Washington Irving's The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, with a genuinely scary climax, narrated (and sung) by Bing Crosby.▼

Adventures of Marco Polo, The (1938) 100m. *½ D: Archie Mayo. Gary Cooper, Sigrid Gurie, Basil Rathbone, George Barbier, Binnie Barnes, Ernest Truex, Alan Hale. Lighthearted approach to famed explorer's life doesn't always work, but Cooper is pleasant and Rathbone's a good villain; sumptuous production. Look for Lana Turner as one of the handmaidens.▼

Adventures of Mark Twain, The (1944) 130m.  D: Irving Rapper. Fredric March, Alexis Smith, Donald Crisp, Alan Hale, C. Aubrey Smith, John Carradine, Percy Kilbride. This Hollywoodized story of Samuel Clemens' colorful life may not be great biography, but it's consistently entertaining—despite some biopic clichés. March is fine in title role. Filmed in 1942.▼

Adventures of Mark Twain, The (1985) C-90m.  D: Will Vinton. Voices of James Whitmore, Chris Ritchie, Gary Krug, Michele Mariana. Tom Sawyer, Huck Finn, and Becky Thatcher stow away on Mark Twain's amazing flying machine, heading for Halley's Comet in this clay-figure animated feature. Strangely disjointed and ineffectual, incorporating pieces of Twain stories with interesting (but unsettling) look at darker side of his personality. Still, impressive use of Claymation. [G] ▼●●

Adventures of Milo and Otis, The (1989-Japanese) C-76m. ½ D: Masanori Hata. Narrated by Dudley Moore. Cute film for kids about a dog and a cat who venture away from their farm and experience a variety of adventures. Not very strong on story but buoyed (in the U.S. release version) by Moore's delightful narration. Original version, released in 1986, ran 90m. [G] ▼●●

Adventures of Pinocchio, The (1996-British-French-German) C-96m.  D: Steve Barron. Martin Landau, Jonathan Taylor Thomas, Genevieve Bujold, Udo Kier, Bebe Neuwirth, Rob Schneider, Corey Carrier, John Sessions; voice of David Doyle. Appealing live-action rendition of the Collodi fable about a wood-carver who creates the magical, mischievous marionette Pinocchio... who wants only to be a real boy. Some variations from the Disney version, but gentle of spirit and enjoyable throughout. Only adults are likely to question the variety of accents (American, British, German, Italian) in a story supposedly set in Italy. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. Panavision. [G] ▼●●

Adventures of Pluto Nash, The (2002) C-95m. *½ D: Ron Underwood. Eddie Murphy, Randy Quaid, Rosario Dawson, Joe Pantoliano, Jay Mohr, Luis Guzman, James Rebhorn, Peter Boyle, Pam Grier, John Cleese, Burt Young, Miguel A. Nunez, Jr., Ileana Douglas. Murphy sleepwalks through this dumb comedy as a nightclub owner on a moon colony in the year 2087 who tries to prevent a Mafia-type kingpin from turning his establishment into a gambling casino. Expensive misfire became Murphy's biggest box-office bomb, earning comparisons with HOWARD THE DUCK and ISHTAR. Alec Baldwin appears unbilled. [PG-13] ▼

Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert, The (1994-Australian) C-102m.  D: Stephan Elliott. Terence Stamp, Hugo Weaving, Guy Pearce, Bill Hunter, Sarah Chadwick, Mark Holmes. Cheerfully outrageous comedy about three flamboyant lip-sync performers—two drag queens and a transsexual—who journey to a remote desert gig on a converted schoolbus named Priscilla. Diverting, if you can get past the bitchy banter, and anchored by Stamp as the transsexual. A must for ABBA fans. Oscar winner for Costume Design. Arriscope (and Dragarama). [R] ▼●●

Adventures of Robin Hood, The (1938) C-102m. * D: Michael Curtiz, William Keighley. Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Basil Rathbone, Claude Rains, Patric Knowles, Eugene Palette, Alan Hale, Herbert Mundin, Una O'Connor, Melville Cooper, Ian Hunter, Montagu Love. Dashing Flynn in the definitive swashbuckler, winning hand of de Havilland (never lovelier as Maid Marian), foiling evil prince Rains, dueling

wicked Rathbone. Erich Wolfgang Korngold's outstanding score earned an Oscar, as did the art direction and editing. Scripted by Norman Reilly Raine and Seton I. Miller. Arguably Flynn's greatest role. ▼●●

Adventures of Robinson Crusoe (1952-Mexican) C-90m. ½ D: Luis Buñuel. Dan O'Herlihy, Jaime Fernandez. Colorful, entertaining adaptation of Daniel Defoe's classic story about a resourceful shipwreck victim, with some distinctive Buñuel touches; vivid performance by O'Herlihy. Screenplay by Philip Ansell Roll (Hugo Butler) and Buñuel. Excellent music score by Anthony Collins. Main title on film is ROBINSON CRUSOE. ▼

Adventures of Rocky and Bullwinkle, The (2000) C-88m. *½ D: Des McAnuff. Rene Russo, Jason Alexander, Robert De Niro, Piper Perabo, James Rebhorn, Randy Quaid, Taraji (P.) Henson; voices of Keith Scott, June Foray. FBI agent yanks Rocket J. Squirrel and Bullwinkle Moose out of cartoon reruns in order to foil world-domination plans of Fearless Leader (De Niro). Fans of Jay Ward's cartoons will probably cut this more slack than others, but in trying to please both us and contemporary kids this benign comedy winds up neither fish nor fowl. De Niro (who also coproduced the film) has fun and even spoofs Travis Bickle! A number of stars appear in gag cameos. [PG] ▼

Adventures of Sebastian Cole, The (1999) C-104m.  D: Tod Williams. Adrian Grenier, Clark Gregg, Aleska Palladino, Margaret Colin, John Shea, Mami Lustig, Joan Copeland, Tom Lacy, Rory Cochrane, Levon Helm, Famke Janssen. Compassionate coming-of-age story about an introverted adolescent and the impact on him and his family when his stepfather (Gregg) announces he is planning a sex-change operation. Despite this offbeat premise, the film is more true to life than many other teen-angst tales. [R] ▼

Adventures of Shark Boy and Lava Girl 3-D, The (2005) C-92m. *½ D: Robert Rodriguez. Taylor Lautner, Taylor Dooley, Cayden Boyd, George Lopez, David Arquette, Kristin Davis, Jacob Davich. A daydreaming boy named Max is visited by two characters he created—Sharkboy and Lavagirl—who need his help to keep Planet Drool from being taken over by dark forces, including a nasty kid named Minus (who resembles Max's schoolyard tormentor) and his henchman Mr. Electric (who looks just like his teacher). Inspired by the drawings and dreams of his 7-year-old son Racer, Rodriguez uses computer wizardry to create an eye-popping world of wonder for young viewers... though his script and dialogue remain strictly earthbound. [PG] ▼

Adventures of Sherlock Holmes, The (1939) 85m. ½ D: Alfred Werker. Basil Rathbone, Nigel Bruce, Ida Lupino, Alan Marshal, Terry Kilburn, George Zucco,

E. E. Clive, Mary Gordon. The master sleuth faces one of his greatest challenges when the nefarious Professor Moriarty (Zucco) plots to steal the Crown Jewels. The second and last of Fox's excellent Rathbone-Bruce period pieces, which predated Universal's entertaining modern series. ▼●●

Adventures of the Wilderness Family, The (1975) C-100m.  D: Stewart Raffill. Robert F. Logan, Susan Damante Shaw, Hollye Holmes, Ham Larsen, Buck Flower, William Cornford. Good human-interest drama. Modern couple with two children forsake big city for life in magnificent but sometimes dangerous Rocky Mountain region. Followed by two look-alike sequels. [G] ▼●

Adventures of Tom Sawyer, The (1938) C-77m. ½ D: Norman Taurog. Tommy Kelly, Jackie Moran, Ann Gillis, May Robson, Walter Brennan, Victor Jory, Spring Byington, Margaret Hamilton. Entertaining David O. Selznick production of Mark Twain classic with more slapstick than Twain may have had in mind. Cave sequence with Injun Joe is unforgettable. Original running time 93m. Previously filmed in 1930, and again in 1973 (twice that year)—all under the title TOM SAWYER. Refilmed in 1995 as TOM AND HUCK. ▼●

Adventures, The (1946-British) 98m.  D: Frank Launder. Deborah Kerr, Trevor Howard, Raymond Huntley, Liam Redmond, Harry Webster. A feisty Irish lass is persuaded to help a German agent during WW2—because it will hurt her sworn enemies, the British. Well-made, low-key film with touches of droll humor. British prints were originally 114m., which explains some abruptness in exposition. British title: I SEE A DARK STRANGER. ▼●

Advise & Consent (1962) 139m.  D: Otto Preminger. Henry Fonda, Don Murray, Charles Laughton, Walter Pidgeon, Peter Lawford, Gene Tierney, Franchot Tone, Lew Ayres, Burgess Meredith, Paul Ford, George Grizzard, Betty White. Long but engrossing drama of Washington wheeling and dealing, from Allen Drury novel. Cast is fine, with effective underplaying by Ayres and Tone standing out among more flamboyant performances by Laughton (his last film) and Grizzard. Also shown in computer-colored version. Panavision. ▼●●

Advocate, The (1994-British) C-101m.  D: Leslie Megahey. Colin Firth, Amina Annabi, Jim Carter, Donald Pleasence, Ian Holm, Nicol Williamson, Lysette Anthony. Lawyer Firth abandons the bustle of 15th-century Paris for the supposedly more pastoral pace of rural France, only to get involved in a murder cover-up that culminates in his defending a pig—back when animals actually used to stand trial. Very offbeat but very accessible drama of courtroom intrigue with vivid characterizations. Aka HOUR OF THE PIG. [R] ▼●

Aeon Flux (2005) C-93m. *½ D: Karyn Kusama. Charlize Theron, Marton Csokas, Jonny Lee Miller, Sophie Okonedo, Frances McDormand, Pete Postlethwaite, Amelia Warner, Nikolai Kinski. Brainless sci-fi thriller in which a sexy rebel/assassin (Theron) battles to liberate a walled city from its dictatorial rulers. This nonsensical, sleep-inducing live-action cartoon is based on Peter Chung's animated MTV series; the material is far better served in its original format. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Affair in Trinidad (1952) 98m. *½ D: Vincent Sherman. Rita Hayworth, Glenn Ford, Alexander Scourby, Torin Thatcher, Juanita Moore, Steven Geray. Hayworth and Ford sparkle as cafe singer and brother-in-law seeking her husband's murderer. Hayworth is most enticing. ▼●●

Affair of Love, An (1999-French-Belgian) C-80m.  D: Frédéric Fonteyne. Nathalie Baye, Sergi Lopez. Provocative and interesting film about a woman who places an ad in a magazine to find a man who will participate in her sexual fantasy. Soon the couple is meeting on a weekly basis, but she is reluctant to take the next step and get to know him as a person. French title is UNE LIAISON PORNOGRAPHIQUE (A PORNOGRAPHIC AFFAIR), which refers to Baye's definition of their relationship; the film itself is fairly discreet. Super 35. ▼●

Affair of the Necklace, The (2001-U.S.-French) C-120m.  D: Charles Shyer. Hilary Swank, Jonathan Pryce, Simon Baker, Adrien Brody, Brian Cox, Joely Richardson, Christopher Walken, Hayden Panettiere. Handsome but ponderous historical drama—based on real-life events—in which a young woman, seeking to restore her family name and reclaim her home, dares to scheme against Marie Antoinette and the power-hungry Cardinal Louis de Rohan. Swank's performance lacks fire and charisma, however, and the film itself never ignites. Narration, by King Louis' house minister (Cox), is heavy-handed and often unnecessary. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Affairs in Versailles SEE: Royal Affairs in Versailles

Affairs of Cellini (1934) 80m.  D: Gregory La Cava. Constance Bennett, Fredric March, Frank Morgan, Fay Wray, Jessie Ralph. March is excellent as roguish Renaissance artist who falls in love with duchess. Lavish production, fine cast make this most entertaining. Lucille Ball plays a lady in waiting.

Affairs of Dobie Gillis, The (1953) 74m.  D: Don Weis. Debbie Reynolds, Bobby Van, Hans Conried, Lurene Tuttle, Bob Fosse. Entertaining musicomedy based on

Max Shulman's book of college kids. Debbie and Van make a cute couple; Conried is their dour professor. Later a TV series. ▼

Affair to Remember, An (1957) C-115m. ½ D: Leo McCarey. Cary Grant, Deborah Kerr, Richard Denning, Neva Patterson, Cathleen Nesbitt, Robert Q. Lewis, Charles Watts, Fortunio Bonanova. Well-remembered but middling remake of McCarey's 1939 LOVE AFFAIR. Bubbling shipboard comedy in first half is overshadowed by draggy soap-opera clichés and unnecessary musical numbers in N.Y.C. finale. Still, Grant and Kerr make a wonderful couple. Film is a major reference point in 1993 hit SLEEPLESS IN SEATTLE. Remade again as LOVE AFFAIR in 1994. Vic Damone croons the title song. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Affliction (1998) C-114m.  D: Paul Schrader. Nick Nolte, Sissy Spacek, James Coburn, Willem Dafoe, Mary Beth Hurt, Marian Seldes, Jim True. Portrait of a man whose screwed-up life—and mental imbalance—can be laid at the feet of his abusive father; the son (Nolte) tries to stay afloat, as traffic cop/jack-of-all-trades (and miserable part-time dad) in a small, wintry New Hampshire town. Bleak in the extreme, with no light or hope for any of its principal characters, but extremely well acted; Coburn won a Best Supporting Oscar. Schrader adapted Russell Banks' novel. [R] ▼●●

African Lion, The (1955) C-75m. ½ D: James Algar. Narrated by Winston Hibler. Outstanding True-Life documentary is perhaps Disney's best. African Queen, The (1951) C-105m. * D: John Huston. Katharine Hepburn, Humphrey Bogart, Robert Morley, Peter Bull, Theodore Bikel, Walter Gotell. Superb combination of souse Bogart (who won an Oscar) and spinster Hepburn traveling downriver in Africa during WW1, combating the elements and the Germans, and each other. Script by James Agee and director Huston from C. S. Forester's novel; gorgeously filmed on location in the Belgian Congo by Jack Cardiff. ▼●●

Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Africa—Texas Style (1967) C-106m. ½ D: Andrew Marton. Hugh O'Brian, John Mills, Nigel Green, Tom Nardini, Adrienne Cori. Feature (which later spun off a TV series, Cowboy in Africa) doesn't offer much excitement, with O'Brian helping Mills preserve wild game in the dark continent. Hayley Mills has a cameo. ▼

After Dark, My Sweet (1990) C-114m. ½ D: James Foley. Jason Patric, Rachel Ward, Bruce Dern, George Dickerson, James Cotton, Rocky Giordani, Corey Carrier. Piquant modern-day film noir based on a Jim Thompson novel, about a drifter who becomes involved with a beautiful but troubled woman and her criminally scheming friend. Interesting at first, but eventually you catch on that it's heading nowhere—10 miles per hour, at that. Both Patric and Dern are excellent. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Afterglow (1997-U.S.-Canadian) C-113m. ½ D: Alan Rudolph. Nick Nolte, Julie Christie, Lara Flynn Boyle, Jonny Lee Miller, Jay Underwood, Domini Blythe, Yves Corbeil. Typically odd Rudolph fare, set in Montreal: longtime marrieds Nolte and Christie have hit an emotional roadblock; he's a handyman (named Lucky) who cats around while she seeks to relive her days as a movie actress. Meanwhile, businessman Miller has given his young, beautiful wife the cold shoulder—leaving her vulnerable to the charms of Nolte. Dense, slow, not entirely satisfying, but Christie is impressive as a woman who's drowning in sorrow. Written by Rudolph, produced by Robert Altman. [R] ▼●●

Griffin Dunne, Rosanna Arquette, Vena Bloom, Thomas Chong, Linda Fiorentino, Teri Garr, John Heard, Cheech Marin, Catherine O'Hara, Dick Miller, Bronson Pinchot. Ordinary guy goes through a series of bizarre experiences during one incredible night in N.Y.C. How much you enjoy this comic nightmare will depend on how closely you identify with Dunne—the only normal person in the picture! [R] ▼●●

at a way station between heaven and earth, who help the recently deceased choose a single moment from their pasts to live inside for the rest of eternity. Quiet, poetic examination of life, death, and memory, filled with gentle humor and blessedly free of any feel-good bromides. A plea to Hollywood: do not remake this. Written by the director. ▼

After Midnight (1989) C-90m. *½ D: Ken Wheat, Jim Wheat, Jillian McWhirter, Pamela Segall, Ramy Zade, Nadine Van Der Velde, Marc McClure, Marg Helgenberger, Billy Ray Sharkey. After Office Hours (1935) 75m.  D: Robert Z. Leonard. Constance Bennett, Clark Gable, Stuart Erwin, Billie Burke, Harvey Stephens, Henry Travers, William Demarest, Katherine Alexander. After the Fox (1966-British-Italian) C-103m. ½ D: Vittorio De Sica. Peter Sellers, Victor Mature, Britt Ekland, Martin Balsam. Not always successful comedy of Italian con man Sellers, who poses as a movie director. A must-see for Mature's performance as a fading romantic star with tremendous ego. Script by Neil Simon. Panavision. ▼

After the Rehearsal (1984-Swedish) C-72m.  D: Ingmar Bergman. Erland Josephson, Ingrid Thulin, Lena Olin, Nadja Palmstjerna-Weiss, Bertil Guve. While staging the production of a Strindberg play a womanizing director is browbeaten by the actress daughter of an old lover, then a middle-aged actress/ex-lover who has fallen on tougher times. Short running time or not, you can exhaust yourself trying to figure out the relationships here. Small-screen viewing should make this original telefilm easier to take than it was in theatrical screenings. Fine acting. [R] ▼

Aspires to be TO CATCH A THIEF but can't come close; attractive cast and scenery don't generate enough heat. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Delightful second entry in the series finds the urbane Charleses in San Francisco and, when not inordinately inebriated, investigating murder charges brought against Loy's unstable cousin (Landi). Slightly overlong but first rate, with a truly surprising culprit. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

After the Wedding (2006-Danish-British) C-124m.  D: Susanne Bier. Mads Mikkelsen, Rolf Lassgård, Sidse Babett Knudsen, Stine Fischer Christensen, Christian Tafdrup, Mona Malm. Against All Flags (1952) C-83m. ½ D: George Sherman. Errol Flynn, Maureen O'Hara, Anthony Quinn, Mildred Natwick. Flynn found his forte again as dashing British soldier who maneuvers way into pirate fortress, while managing to flirt with O'Hara. Although not Flynn's final swashbuckler, this was his last good entry in that genre. Remade as THE KING'S PIRATE. ▼

Against All Odds (1984) C-128m. ½ D: Taylor Hackford. Rachel Ward, Jeff Bridges, James Woods, Alex Karras, Jane Greer, Richard Widmark, Dorian Harewood, Swoosie Kurtz, Saul Rubinek, Pat Corley, Bill McKinney, Kid Creole and the Cocoanuts. Unemployed jock accepts a job from a sleazy ex-teammate to find his girlfriend, who's run off to Mexico. The plot thickens, in several directions, in this loose remake of OUT OF THE PAST (with Greer playing the mother of her character in the original). Good stab at film noir feeling, but script is plot-heavy and unsatisfying. Best scene—a

hair-raising race along Sunset Boulevard—is completely out of step with the rest of the film. An interesting misfire. Haunting title song by Phil Collins. [R] ▼●●

Against the Ropes (2004) C-111m.  D: Charles S. Dutton. Meg Ryan, Omar Epps, Tony Shalhoub, Tim Daly, Charles S. Dutton, Kerry Washington, Joe Cortese. Jackie Kallen (Ryan), exposed to boxing since childhood, sets out to make a name for herself by promoting street brawler Epps as a potential champion. To do this, she has to buck some heavy-duty criminals and a pervasive prejudice against women in the business. Shaky script changes tone from one round to the next; surely the real-life Kallen's story wasn't this clichéd. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Agatha (1979) C-98m.  D: Michael Apted. Dustin Hoffman, Vanessa Redgrave, Timothy Dalton, Helen Morse, Celia Gregory, Paul Brooke. Fictional speculation on writer Agatha Christie's famous 11-day disappearance in 1926; Redgrave is superb in this absorbing yarn, Hoffman oddly miscast as smooth American reporter who tracks her down. [PG] ▼●●

Agatha Christie's Endless Night SEE: Endless Night

Agency (1981-Canadian) C-94m. *½ D: George Kaczender. Robert Mitchum, Lee Majors, Valerie Perrine, Saul Rubinek, Alexandra Stewart. Shifty Mitchum plots to gain political clout via information transmitted subliminally in television ads. Fascinating idea, but result is dull and unconvincing. Aka MIND GAMES. [R] ▼●

buck, Anna Chancellor, Keith Allen, David Kelly, Keith David. That juvenile secret agent is back for a U.K. adventure, with Anderson all too obviously shoehorned into the proceedings for comedy relief as his watchdog. Muniz and perky Spearritt are game, but the characters and plotting are just plain dull. P.S. Madonna and Jason Alexander are among the executive producers! Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Agent 8¾ (1964-British) C-98m.  D: Ralph Thomas. Dirk Bogarde, Sylva Koscina, Leo McKern, Robert Morley, Roger Delgado, John LeMesurier. Released at height of James Bond craze, this spoof features Bogarde as a bumbling secret agent working in Czechoslovakia. Sometimes witty, bright comedy. Originally released in U.S. at 77m. Original British title: HOT ENOUGH FOR JUNE.

Age of Consent (1969-Australian) C-103m. ½ D: Michael Powell. James Mason, Helen Mirren, Jack MacGowran, Neva Carr-Glyn, Frank Thring. A put-upon artist escapes to the quietude of Australia's Great Barrier Reef, where he's inspired by a feisty young girl whom he persuades to pose (often nude) for him. General amiability and pretty scenery help make up for clumsy comedy relief and gaps in story and characterization. Based on life of Norman Lindsay, later the subject of SIRENS. [R] ●

Age of Innocence, The (1934) 81m. ½ D: Philip Moeller. Irene Dunne, John Boles, Lionel Atwill, Helen Westley, Laura Hope Crews, Julie Haydon. Modest but effective version of Edith Wharton's novel about a thwarted romance between an engaged attorney and a divorcée, in rigid 1870s Manhattan society. Starts off with a terrific Jazz Age montage prologue, then gets bogged down in static, stagy treatment as elderly Boles relates the story of his ill-fated affair to his grandson. Dunne gives a luminous and touching performance. Remade in 1993.

Agnes Browne (1999-U.S.-Irish) C-92m. ½ D: Anjelica Huston. Anjelica Huston, Marion O'Dwyer, Ray Winstone, Arno Chevrier, Gerard McSorley, Tom Jones. Good-natured film about a working-class stiff in late 1960s Dublin whose husband has just died, leaving her to raise seven children on her own. Fortunately, her best friend (O'Dwyer) is always there to lend a hand. Comedy is rich in atmosphere but pat, with a subplot involving singer Tom Jones pushing things a bit too far. [R]▼●

Agnes of God (1985) C-98m. ½ D: Norman Jewison. Jane Fonda, Anne Bancroft, Meg Tilly, Anne Pitoniak, Winston Reckert, Gratien Gelinias. A young nun apparently became pregnant, then murdered the baby in the cloistered atmosphere of a convent, but court-appointed psychiatrist finds no easy explanations. Disturbing, not always satisfying, but electrified by three lead performances, and beautifully photographed by Sven Nykvist. Screenplay by John Pielmeier, from his play. [PG-13]▼●●

Agony and the Ecstasy, The (1965) C-140m. ½ D: Carol Reed. Charlton Heston, Rex Harrison, Diane Cilento, Harry Andrews, Adolfo Celi. Huge spectacle of Michelangelo's artistic conflicts with Pope Julius II has adequate acting overshadowed by meticulous production. Short documentary on artist's work precedes fragmentary drama based on bits of Irving Stone's novel. Todd-AO. ▼●●

Agronomist, The (2004) C-91m. ½ D: Jonathan Demme. Powerful, uncompromising documentary portrait of a fascinating individual: Jean Dominique, a leading Haitian radio personality and prominent figure in the country's struggle for human rights. While the film offers insight into the politics and history of (and U.S. influence in) Haiti during the latter 20th century, its primary purpose is to give us a vivid portrait of one man's fierce determination, deep-seated humanism, and passionate love of country. The finale is shattering. [PG-13]●

Aguirre: The Wrath of God (1972-German) C-94m. ½ D: Werner Herzog. Klaus Kinski, Ruy Guerra, Del Negro, Helena Rojo, Cecilia Rivera, Peter Berling. Powerful, hypnotic tale of deluded conquistador who leads a group of men away from Pizarro's 1560 South American expedition in search of seven cities of gold. Dreamlike film was shot on location in remote Amazon jungles; Kinski is perfect as the mad Aguirre. Filmed in both German- and English-language versions; try to avoid the latter.▼●

Ah, Wilderness! (1935) 101m. ½ D: Clarence Brown. Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore, Aline MacMahon, Eric Linden, Cecilia Parker, Mickey Rooney, Frank Albertson, Bonita Granville. Rich Americana in this adaptation of Eugene O'Neill play about turn-of-the-century small-town life, focusing on boy facing problems of adolescence. Rooney, playing younger brother, took the lead in musical remake SUMMER HOLIDAY. Screenplay by Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich.▼●

AI Artificial Intelligence (2001) C-145m.  D: Steven Spielberg. Haley Joel Osment, Jude Law, Frances O'Connor, Brendan Gleeson, Sam Robards, William Hurt, Jake Thomas, Ken Leung, Michael Mantell, Adrian Grenier; narrated by Ben Kingsley. In the near future, scientist Hurt and his team develop a highly sophisticated robot child who can experience emotions, including love, but his adoption by a loving couple who have lost a son is fraught with problems. Intriguing story draws us in, thanks in part to Osment's exceptional performance, but takes several wrong turns; ultimately, it just doesn't work. Spielberg rewrote the adaptation Stanley Kubrick commissioned of the Brian Aldiss short story "Super Toys Last All Summer Long"; result is a curious and uncomfortable hybrid of Kubrick and Spielberg sensibilities. Striking music score by John Williams. Robin Williams, Chris Rock, and Meryl Streep are unbilled for the use of their voices. [PG-13]▼●

Aimée & Jaguar (1999-German) C-125m.  D: Max Färberböck. Maria Schrader, Juliane Köhler, Johanna Wokalek, Heike Makatsch, Elisabeth Degen, Detlev Buck. Felice (Schrader) is a Jewish lesbian who's employed, "underground" fashion, by the Germans in 1943 Berlin, while Lilly (Köhler) has four children by the Nazi husband on whom she cheats—with other Nazis. The two women fall in love, which would seem awfully contrived if it weren't based on a true story. Production values are surprisingly detailed and lush, and the acting is first-rate. Title alludes to the affectionate nicknames the women have for each other.▼●

Laos during the Vietnam War. They crate anything and anyone anywhere—too bad they couldn't fly in a script doctor. Alleged action-comedy has few laughs and makes little sense. Even Gibson's patented swagger can't keep this one airborne. No relation to the 1998 TV series. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Airborne (1993) C-91m. *½ D: Rob Bowman. Shane McDermott, Seth Green, Brittney Powell, Edie McClurg, Patrick O'Brien, Jack Black. Pedestrian teen film about a surfer who's shipped off to Cincinnati, where, away from the waves, he seeks to gain respect through his amazing skill on rollerblades. Tough skating for anyone but kids; some truly spectacular rollerblading stunts are the film's sole grace. [PG] ▼●●

Air Bud (1997) C-97m. ½ D: Charles Martin Smith. Kevin Zegers, Michael Jeter, Wendy Makkena, Bill Cobbs, Eric Christmas. Innocuous Disney kiddie film about a new boy in town who befriends a lovable stray dog with the uncanny ability to shoot hoops. Jeter is malevolent fun as Bud's former owner, a terrible children's party clown who tries to cash in on the dog's celebrity. Mildly entertaining. Director Smith starred in NEVER CRY WOLF, a much superior Disney film about animals. Followed by a sequel. [PG] ▼●●

Air Bud: Golden Receiver (1998) C-90m. ½ D: Richard Martin. Kevin Zegers, Gregory Harrison, Shayn Solberg, Cynthia Stevenson, Nora Dunn, Robert Costanzo, Tim Conway, Dick Martin. Title canine catches pigskins rather than shoots hoops. He and his young owner (Zegers, the lone cast member from the original) join the school football team—plus, a pair of Boris and Natasha-like villains plot to abduct the pooch for their traveling circus. Predictable but harmless fun. Followed by several direct-to-video sequels. [G] ▼●●

Air Force (1943) 124m.  D: Howard Hawks. John Garfield, John Ridgely, Gig Young, Arthur Kennedy, Charles Drake, Harry Carey, George Tobias, Faye Emerson. Archetypal WW2 movie, focusing on archetypal bomber crew. Tough to stomach at times ("Fried Jap going down," chimes Tobias after scoring a hit), but generally exciting, well done. ▼●●

Air Force One (1997) C-124m.  D: Wolfgang Petersen. Harrison Ford, Gary Oldman, Glenn Close, Dean Stockwell, Wendy Crewson, Paul Guilfoyle, William H. Macy, Liesel Matthews, Xander Berkeley, Bill Smitrovich, Elya Baskin, Jürgen Prochnow. Supercharged thriller about brutal Kazakhstani terrorists taking over Air Force One and holding the President, his family, and his entourage hostage in midair. Intense, violent, edge-of-your-seat popcorn fodder, anchored by Ford as a two-fisted president who's not afraid to fight. Requires the usual suspension of disbelief, but pays

Airheads (1994) C-91m.  D: Michael Lehmann. Brendan Fraser, Joe Mantegna, Steve Buscemi, Adam Sandler, Chris Farley, Michael McKean, Judd Nelson, Ernie Hudson, Amy Locane, Nina Siemaszko. Three metalheads with toy guns reluctantly take a rock radio station hostage, hoping to get play for their one existent demo tape. Not exactly the toughest subject to satirize, but the script is dull-witted anyway; fairly energetic direction and compact running time help a bit. [PG-13] ▼●●

Air I Breathe, The (2008-U.S.-Mexican) C-97m. *½ D: Jieho Lee. Kevin Bacon, Julie Delpy, Brendan Fraser, Andy Garcia, Sarah Michelle Gellar, Clark Gregg, Emile Hirsch, Forest Whitaker, Kelly Hu, Evan Parke, Taylor Nichols, Victor Rivers, Jon Bernthal. Four overlapping, connect-the-dots storylines, based on a Chinese proverb and titled "Happiness," "Pleasure," "Sorrow," and "Love," comprise this mess of a movie. Starts out promisingly, as a disgruntled office drone (Whitaker) accidentally learns that a horse race has been fixed, then degenerates into a cartoonish train wreck. Pounding music score, jerky editing, and pretentious narration are no help. Super 35. [R] ●

Airmail (1932) 83m.  D: John Ford. Pat O'Brien, Ralph Bellamy, Russell Hopton, Slim Summerville, Frank Albertson, Gloria Stuart. Routine story of pioneer airmail pilots supercharged by fine aerial scenes and good cast. First-rate. From a Frank "Spig" Wead story.

Airplane! (1980) C-86m.  D: Jim Abrahams, David Zucker, Jerry Zucker. Robert Hays, Julie Hagerty, Robert Stack, Lloyd Bridges, Peter Graves, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Leslie Nielsen, Lorna Patterson, Stephen Stucker. Very funny spoof of AIR-PORT-type pictures (and Arthur Hailey's ZERO HOUR in particular), with a nonstop string of gags that holds up almost to the end (why carp?). Our favorite: the strange plight of Lt. Hurwitz. Stay tuned through final credits. Followed by a sequel. [PG] ▼●●

GRAND HOTEL plot formula reaches latter-day zenith in ultraslick, old-fashioned movie that entertains in spite of itself, detailing hectic winter night at metropolitan airport. Plastic performances dominate, with down-to-earth Kennedy, touching Stapleton, and nervous Heflin standing out. Helen Hayes won Oscar as impish stowaway. Based on the Arthur Hailey bestseller; followed by three sequels—so far. Todd-AO. [G]▼●●

Airport '77 (1977) C-113m. ½ D: Jerry Jameson. Jack Lemmon, Lee Grant, Brenda Vaccaro, George Kennedy, James Stewart, Joseph Cotten, Olivia de Havilland, Darren McGavin, Christopher Lee, Robert Foxworth, Robert Hooks, Monte Markham, Kathleen Quinlan, Gil Gerard, Pamela Bellwood, Arlene Golonka, M. Emmet Walsh, Chris Lemmon. All the clichés and stock characters are trucked out for another made-to-order disaster epic, not bad as these things go: Stewart's private luxury jet is sabotaged and sinks in the ocean, forcing daring rescue attempt. Lemmon brings conviction to his role as dedicated pilot. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Air Up There, The (1994) C-102m.  D: Paul M. Glaser. Kevin Bacon, Charles Gittington, Yolanda Vazquez, Winston Ntshona, Mabutho "Kid" Sithole, Sean McCann, Dennis Patrick. Brash ex-hoopster with college coaching aspirations journeys to Africa in search of the perfect prospect, leading to the standard culture-clashing situations one might expect. As affably minor as director Glaser's previous THE CUTTING EDGE, but not as deftly put together. [PG]▼●●

AKA (2002-British) C-123m. ½ D: Duncan Roy. Matthew Leitch, Diana Quick, George Asprey, Lindsey Coulson, Blake Ritson, Bill Nighy, Geoff Bell, Peter Youngblood Hills. Effective story of a young, gay, working-class boy who manages to infiltrate England's upper crust, posing as a lord and almost getting away with it. Shot on digital video, story is told via a triptych, simultane-

Akeelah and the Bee (2006) C-112m.  D: Doug Atchison. Laurence Fishburne, Angela Bassett, Keke Palmer, Curtis Armstrong, Tzi Ma, Lee Thompson Young, J. R. Villarreal. Irresistible story of an 11-year-old black girl from L.A. who's learned to suppress her intelligence in order to get along at school . . . until a teacher and the principal discover her talent for spelling. They introduce her to a demanding coach (Fishburne), who, it turns out, can learn a few things from her. A feel-good movie that actually makes you feel good, told with heart (and canny precision) by writer-director Atchison. Palmer is wonderful as Akeelah. Fishburne also coproduced. Panavision. [PG]●

Akira (1988-Japanese) C-124m.  D: Katsuhiro Otomo. Voices of Jimmy Flanders, Drew Thomas, Lewis Lemay, Barbara Larsen, Stanley Gurd, Jr. Bloody and violent animated science-fiction feature based on Japanese comic-book novel. A group of motorcycle-riding teenagers living in post-apocalyptic Neo-Tokyo tries to stop one of the gang who has run amok after becoming empowered with telekinetic powers in a government experiment. Technically spectacular, with colorful animation somewhat derailed by confusing storytelling and a cryptic ending. A must-see for adult animation buffs. [R]▼●●

Akira Kurosawa's Dreams (1990-Japanese) C-120m.  D: Akira Kurosawa. Akira Terao, Mitsuko Baisho, Mieko Harada, Chishu Ryu, Hisashi Igawa, Mitsunori Isaki, Toshihiko Nakano, Yoshitaka Zushi, Toshie Negishi, Martin Scorsese. Eight vignettes—increasingly apocalyptic—as "dreamt" by an 80-year-old widely regarded as the greatest living filmmaker of the era. Results vary in quality, though any three viewers are likely to rate the episodes in widely shuffled order. At least one—mountain climbers caught in an all-consuming blizzard—is vintage "K." Scorsese portrays Van Gogh in one segment. (Do you detect any Burt Lancaster in his speech patterns?) [PG]▼●●

cartoon, as Aladdin conjures up a Genie who's bursting with shtick. Williams' hilarious rapid-fire patter (with equally rapid-fire animation by Eric Goldberg) forms the centerpiece of this otherwise conventional story, colorfully (and tunefully) presented. Music and lyrics by Alan Menken, Howard Ashman, and Tim Rice; Oscar winner for Best Music Score (Menken) and Best Song ("A Whole New World," by Menken and Rice). Followed by direct-to-video sequels, THE RETURN OF JAFAR, ALADDIN AND THE KING OF THIEVES, and an animated TV series. [G]▼●●

Alakazam the Great (1961) C-84m. ½ Voices of Jonathan Winters, Frankie Avalon, Arnold Stang, Sterling Holloway. Alambrita! (1977) C-110m. ½ D: Robert M. Young. Domingo Ambriz, Trinidad Silva, Linda Gillin, Ned Beatty, Julius Harris, Paul Berrones, Edward James Olmos. Boyish, naive Ambriz illegally crosses the U.S.-Mexican border and is exploited as he seeks work to support his family. Touching, fresh, insightful; director Young's first feature.

Alamo, The (1960) C-161m.  D: John Wayne. John Wayne, Richard Widmark, Laurence Harvey, Richard Boone, Carlos Arzuza, Frankie Avalon, Pat Wayne, Linda Cristal, Chill Wills, Ken Curtis, Hank Worden, Denver Pyle, Olive Carey, Veda Ann Borg, John Dierkes, Guinn "Big Boy" Williams. Long, and long-winded, saga of the Alamo, with plenty of historical name-dropping and speechifying. Worthwhile for final attack, a truly memorable movie spectacle. Fine score by Dimitri Tiomkin includes popular "The Green Leaves of Summer." Filmed on location in Brackettville, Texas. Cut by 26m. after its L.A. premiere; restored on video. Todd-AO. ▼●●

Alamo, The (2004) C-135m.  D: John Lee Hancock. Billy Bob Thornton, Dennis Quaid, Jason Patric, Patrick Wilson, Emilio Echeverría, Jordi Mollá, Leon Rippy, Marc Blucas, Rance Howard. Impassioned recreation of events leading up to the legendary 1836 siege in San Antonio, Texas; more accurate than earlier renderings of the story, it still struggles to deal with the many facets of this historical event. Cowriter-director Hancock stresses the human element and captures the defenders' nobility in defeat. Thornton is the heart and soul of the film as Davy Crockett, who wasn't larger than life but became a hero just the same. Battle scenes are especially well photographed, staged, and edited—and frighteningly believable. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Lighthearted French comedy of a teenage orphan who becomes apprentice to a small village's tailor, only to break into the fashion world of the '60s. Alan Smithee Film: Burn Hollywood Burn, An (1998) C-86m. BOMB D: Alan Smithee. Ryan O'Neal, Eric Idle, Coolio, Chuck D, Richard Jeni, Leslie Stefanson, Sandra Bernhard, Harvey Weinstein, Sylvester Stallone, Whoopi Goldberg, Jackie Chan. Any film with Robert Evans and Billy Barty in its cast can't be ignored—but this leaden, sophomoric Hollywood satire ought to be. Idle plays a filmmaker named Alan Smithee—but since that's also the pseudonym directors must use when they don't want screen credit, he's stuck when he wants to disown his latest movie. As one character says of the film-within-a-film, "It's worse than SHOWGIRLS." The ultimate irony: this film's director, Arthur Hiller, removed his name after squabbling with writer-producer Joe Eszterhas. [R]▼●●

Alarmist, The (1998) C-93m.  D: Evan Dunsky. David Arquette, Stanley Tucci, Kate Capshaw, Mary McCormack, Ryan Reynolds, Tricia Vessey, Michael Learned. Offbeat but uneven black comedy about a novice door-to-door security alarm salesman (Arquette) who discovers that his boss and self-styled mentor (Tucci) actually breaks into people's homes to stir up business. Then the young man falls in love with his first customer (Capshaw). Never the sharp satire on modern paranoia it strives to be, though Tucci is terrific. Arquette's father Lewis and brother Richmond appear as his on-screen family. [R]▼●●

Alaska (1996) C-110m. ½ D: Fraser C. Heston. Thora Birch, Vincent Kartheiser, Dirk Benedict, Charlton Heston, Duncan Fraser, Gordon Tootoosis. Juvenile adventure yarn on a grand scale, as a brother and sister take off in search of their father and his downed airplane. Plotted like an old grade-B melodrama, but carried out with conviction against magnificent, snowy scenery . . . and featuring an irresistible polar bear who befriends the young people. Heston (whose son directed the picture) plays a mean, wily bad guy. Super 35. [PG]▼●●

Emmet Walsh, Joe Mantegna, Frankie Faison, Melinda McGraw. Disappointing chamber piece about a trio of dysfunctional criminals who hide out in a basement bar in New Orleans, inadvertently initiating a hostage siege. Meanwhile, the Feds gather outside, thinking a much more dangerous (and wanted) criminal is holed up inside. Spacey's directorial debut presents a good cast and gets off to a good start, but it sputters to a dramatic halt halfway through. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Alex & Emma (2003) C-96m.  D: Rob Reiner. Kate Hudson, Luke Wilson, Sophie Marceau, David Paymer, Rob Reiner, François Giroday, Lobo Sebastian, Cloris Leachman, Rip Taylor. Anemic romantic comedy about a novelist who has 30 days to complete a manuscript and his budding relationship with the stenographer he hires to help him do the job. She also turns up, in various guises, as we see his fantasy vision of the story—set in the 1920s—unfold. The two leads are OK, but the big laughs never come. Inspired, believe it or not, by real-life experiences of Feodor Dostoyevsky while he was writing The Gambler. [PG-13] ▼●

Alexander (2004-French-British-Dutch) C-175m. *½ D: Oliver Stone. Colin Farrell, Angelina Jolie, Val Kilmer, Christopher Plummer, Jared Leto, Rosario Dawson, Anthony Hopkins, Jonathan Rhys Meyers, Brian Blessed, Tim Pigott-Smith. Lumbering historical epic about the life of Alexander the Great, as dictated some years after his demise by Ptolemy. Attempt to explore the many conflicts—from the moment of his birth onward—that shaped this fabled warrior sheds very little light and makes one wish the elephants who attack in a climactic scene would do their worst. Only Jolie, as Alexander's mother, Olympias, brings any spark to the film. Perhaps the first Oliver Stone movie one can honestly describe as boring. Director's cut runs 167m. Followed a year later by ALEXANDER REVISITED: THE FINAL CUT at 220m. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Alexander Nevsky (1938-Russian) 107m. * D: Sergei Eisenstein. Nikolai Cherkassov, Nikolai Okhlopov, Alexander Abrikossov, Dmitri Orlov, Vassily Novikov. Alexander's Ragtime Band (1938) 105m.  D: Henry King. Tyrone Power, Alice

Faye, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman, Jack Haley, Jean Hersholt, Helen Westley, John Carradine. Corny but entertaining musical chronicling the professional and romantic ups and downs of hot-headed aristocrat band-leader Power, nice-guy pianist-composer Ameche, and tough-but-vulnerable singer Faye (in one of her best performances). Sparked by Irving Berlin songs "Blue Skies," "Easter Parade," title tune. ▼●●

Alexander the Great (1956) C-141m.  D: Robert Rossen. Richard Burton, Fredric March, Claire Bloom, Danielle Darrieux, Harry Andrews, Stanley Baker, Peter Cushing, Michael Hordern, Helmut Dantine. Remarkable cast, intelligent acting, but a static epic, lacking essential sweep to make tale of Greek conqueror moving. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Alex and the Gypsy (1976) C-99m. ½ D: John Korty. Jack Lemmon, Genevieve Bujold, James Woods, Gino Ardito, Robert Emhardt, Titos Vandis. Meandering story of romance between bailbondsman Lemmon and gypsy Bujold who's accused of attempted murder. Some interesting ideas lost in the muddle of an indecisive film. [PG—originally rated R]

Alex in Wonderland (1970) C-109m.  D: Paul Mazursky. Donald Sutherland, Ellen Burstyn, Viola Spolin, Federico Fellini, Jeanne Moreau. Camera follows young film director Sutherland through tedium of his everyday life. Self-indulgent imitation of Fellini (who appears briefly) caused some wags to dub this film 1½. Burstyn stands out as Sutherland's wife. [R] ▼

Alex Rider: Operation Stormbreaker (2006-British-German) C-93m. *½ D: Geoffrey Sax. Alex Pettyfer, Robbie Coltrane, Stephen Fry, Damian Lewis, Bill Nighy, Ewan McGregor, Sophie Okonedo, Mickey Rourke, Andy Serkis, Alicia Silverstone, Ashley Walters, Sarah Bolger, Missi Pyle. When his super-spy uncle dies under mysterious circumstances, young Alex is thrust into the world of the British Secret Service and must foil a plot to take over the world's supercomputers. Based on the first of Anthony Horowitz's best-selling books, this could have been a clever junior James Bond outing but gets caught up in its own cuteness. Takes off in unattractive directions and comes up a big double-zero. Original British title: STORMBREAKER. Super 35. [PG] ●

Alfie (1966-British) C-114m. ½ D: Lewis Gilbert. Michael Caine, Shelley Winters, Millicent Martin, Julia Foster, Jane Asher, Shirley Anne Field, Vivien Merchant, Eleanor Bron, Denholm Elliott, Alfie Bass, Graham Stark, Murray Melvin. Well-turned version of Bill Naughton play (he also scripted). Caine is superb as philandering Cockney playboy who can't decide if bachelor life is so bloody marvelous. Cher sings title tune. Followed by ALFIE DARLING. Remade in 2004. Techniscope. ▼●●

Alfie (2004) C-106m. ½ D: Charles Shyer. Jude Law, Marisa Tomei, Omar Epps, Nia Long, Jane Krakowski, Sienna Miller, Susan Sarandon, Renee Taylor, Dick Latessa, Gedde Watanabe. N.Y.C. limo driver Alfie, an ex-Londoner, loves women but only on his own terms, meaning sex when he feels like it without any strings attached . . . but lately he's starting to think there may be something missing in his life. Law is saucy, the women are well cast, but it doesn't add up to much, especially compared to the 1966 original, which was darker and more misogynistic. [R] ▼

Alfie Darling (1975-British) C-102m.  D: Ken Hughes. Alan Price, Jill Townsend, Joan Collins, Annie Ross, Sheila White, Rula Lenska. Forgettable sequel to ALFIE, with Price a most inadequate replacement for Michael Caine. This time around our hero falls for a chic magazine editor. Video title: OH, ALFIE. ▼

Alfredo, Alfredo (1972-Italian) C-98m. ½ D: Pietro Germi. Dustin Hoffman, Stefania Sandrelli, Carla Gravina, Clara Colosimo, Daniele Patella, Duilio Del Prete. All-too-typical Italian comedy about a milquetoast who wins and weds a sexy woman, only to regret his conquest. Sole interest is observing Hoffman in this unusual setting (with a dubbed voice!). Originally 110m. [R] ▼

Alfred the Great (1969-British) C-122m.  D: Clive Donner. David Hemmings, Michael York, Prunella Ransome, Colin Blakely, Julian Glover, Ian McKellen. Story of young leader of 9th-century England can't decide if it's a serious historical chronicle or broad swashbuckler; succeeds in neither department. Only highlight is series of meticulously filmed battle scenes; otherwise, ambitious script is boring. McKellen's film debut. Panavision. [M/PG]

Algiers (1938) 95m.  D: John Cromwell. Charles Boyer, Sigrid Gurie, Hedy Lamarr, Joseph Calleia. Alan Hale, Gene Lockhart, Johnny Downs, Paul Harvey. Boyer as Pepe Le Moko falls in love with alluring Lamarr visiting Casbah district of Algiers: Calleia as police official, Lockhart as informer, stand out in well-cast romance. Remake of French PEPE LE MOKO, remade as CASBAH. ▼

Ali (2001) C-158m. ½ D: Michael Mann. Will Smith, Jamie Foxx, Jon Voight, Mario Van Peebles, Ron Silver, Jeffrey Wright, Mykelti Williamson, Jada Pinkett Smith, Nona Gaye, Michael Michele, Joe Morton, Paul Rodriguez, Bruce McGill, Barry Shabaka Henley, Giancarlo Esposito, Laurence Mason, LeVar Burton. Disappointing bio of the extraordinary prizefighter, born Cassius Clay, covering the years 1964 to 1974. Despite its length, film is surprisingly sketchy; we learn very little about the man except his conversion to Islam and his determination to win in the ring. The "Rumble in the Jungle" finale, which ought to be triumphant, plays out as just one more fight, since we've seen so many others reenacted by then. Smith does a good job—but the real Ali was even more charismatic. Director's cut runs 165m. Super 35. [R] ▼

Alias Betty (2001-French-Canadian) C-101m. ½ D: Claude Miller. Sandrine Kiberlain, Nicole Garcia, Mathilde Seigner, Luck Mervil, Édouard Baer, Stéphane Freiss. So-so drama-thriller charting the spiraling events that occur when a little boy dies in an accident and his emotionally disconnected grandmother kidnaps another child to take his place. Opening scenes are riveting, but story bogs down as it gets involved with too many extraneous characters. Based on the Ruth Rendell novel The Tree of Hands. ▼

Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves (1944) C-87m. ½ D: Arthur Lubin. Maria Montez, Jon Hall, Scotty Beckett, Turhan Bey, Kurt Katch, Andy Devine, Frank Puglia. Colorful escapism with rightful prince Hall battling evil man who put him out of the way years ago; much footage reused in SWORD OF ALI BABA. Devine speaking in flowery "Arabian Nights" dialogue may put off all but his staunchest fans. ▼

able, but the whimsy seems forced, the story overly familiar. Even Allen's usually infallible choice of soundtrack music is heavy-handed. Nice screen farewell for character actor Keye Luke, however. Judith Ivey has an unbilled cameo. [PG-13] ▼●●

Alice Adams (1935) 99m. ½ D: George Stevens. Katharine Hepburn, Fred MacMurray, Fred Stone, Evelyn Venable, Ann Shoemaker, Frank Albertson, Hattie McDaniel, Charley Grapewin, Grady Sutton, Hedda Hopper. Excellent small-town Americana with social-climbing girl finally finding love in person of unpretentious MacMurray. Booth Tarkington's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel becomes fine film, if not altogether credible. The dinner-table scene is unforgettable. Screenplay by Dorothy Yost, Mortimer Offner, and Jane Murfin. Filmed before in 1923. ▼●●

Alice and Martin (1998-French-Spanish) C-123m.  D: André Téchiné. Juliette Binoche, Alexis Loret, Mathieu Amalric, Carmen Maura, Jean-Pierre Lorit, Marthe Villalonga. A young man, tormented by his childhood, meets his half-brother's companion (Binoche), who is drawn to him in spite of his severe emotional wounds. His troubled past is gradually revealed in flashbacks, but it's difficult to care about him or his future in this off-putting film. [R] ▼

Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore (1974) C-113m. ½ D: Martin Scorsese. Ellen Burstyn, Kris Kristofferson, Billy Green Bush, Alfred Lutter, Diane Ladd, Jodie Foster, Harvey Keitel, Vic Tayback, Valerie Curtin. Excellent look at a woman's odyssey to find herself and some measure of happiness after her husband dies, leaving her and a young son penniless. Kristofferson is gentle, well-meaning man who tries to win her love. Burstyn won well-deserved Oscar for Best Actress. Rich screenplay by Robert Getchell. Look very carefully in the final diner scene for Ladd's daughter Laura Dern eating ice cream cone at counter. Later reworked into a long-running TV sitcom called Alice. [PG] ▼●●

Alice in the Cities (1974-German) 110m.  D: Wim Wenders. Rudiger Vogler, Yella Rottlander, Lisa Kreuzer, Chuck Berry. After wandering aimlessly across America, alienated journalist Vogler meets a woman—and finds himself saddled with her 9-year-old daughter when she mysteriously disappears. Intelligent, often hypnotic film reflects on the effect of American pop culture on postwar Europeans. The first in Wenders' "road movie" trilogy, followed by WRONG MOVE and KINGS OF THE ROAD. ▼ disguised as Lewis Carroll characters, in this slow-moving adaptation of the classic story. Fascinating for its casting—Cooper as White Knight, Fields as Humpty Dumpty, Grant as Mock Turtle—but, overall, a bore. Screenplay by Joseph L. Mankiewicz and William Cameron Menzies.

Alice in Wonderland (1933) 77m.  D: Norman Z. McLeod. Charlotte Henry, Richard Arlen, Gary Cooper, W. C. Fields, Cary Grant, Edward Everett Horton, Baby LeRoy, Edna May Oliver, Jack Oakie, many others. Top Paramount stars appear,

Alice in Wonderland (1951) C-75m.  D: Clyde Geronimi, Hamilton Luske, Wilfred Jackson. Voices of Kathryn Beaumont, Ed Wynn, Richard Haydn, Sterling Holloway, Jerry Colonna, Verna Felton, Bill Thompson. Entertaining, if somewhat aloof, rendering of Lewis Carroll's classic, with the Walt Disney animation team at its best bringing the Cheshire Cat, the Queen of Hearts, and the Mad Hatter to life. Episodic film is given major boost by strong personalities of Wynn, Colonna, Holloway, et al., and such tunes as "I'm Late" and "The Unbirthday Song." ▼●●

Alice's Adventures in Wonderland (1972-British) C-96m. *½ D: William Sterling. Fiona Fullerton, Michael Crawford, Ralph Richardson, Flora Robson, Peter Sellers, Dudley Moore, Michael Jayston. Tedious British film version of Lewis Carroll's classic proves Americans don't have a monopoly on making bad children's musicals. Waste of a good cast. Todd-AO 35. [G] ▼●

Alice's Restaurant (1969) C-111m.  D: Arthur Penn. Arlo Guthrie, Pat Quinn, James Broderick, Michael McClanathan, Geoff Outlaw, Tina Chen. Guthrie's popular record inspired this odd blend of satire, whimsy, melodrama, and social commentary. Generally fun, with quizzically downbeat ending, showing freeform lifestyle of group of friends headed by Broderick and Quinn (as Alice). Also shown in PG-rated version. [R] ▼●

Alice, Sweet Alice SEE: Holy Terror

Alien (1979) C-117m. ½ D: Ridley Scott. Tom Skerritt, Sigourney Weaver, John Hurt, Ian Holm, Harry Dean Stanton, Yaphet Kotto, Veronica Cartwright. Commercial spacecraft unwittingly takes on an alien being that wreaks merciless havoc on the crew. Space-age horror film reverts to 1950s formula, but unfolds at a deliberate pace, populates the story with interesting, colorful characters, and plants its (genuine) shock moments with exceptional skill. Imitated but seldom equaled. Screenplay by Dan O'Bannon, from his and Ronald Shusett's story; inspired by IT! THE TERROR FROM BEYOND SPACE. For 2003 reissue, Scott trimmed some material and added 4½m. of new footage, resulting in a 115m. movie. Followed by ALIENS. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

cent, a cruel alien prison warden, sends unstoppable, Amazonian “hunter unit” Teagan after fugitive Hagen, who’s crash-landed on Earth. OK sci-fi from the prolific Ray, with a great B movie cast, but looks like two movies overlapping. [R]▼●

Alien Nation (1988) C-94m. ★½ D: Graham Baker. James Caan, Mandy Patinkin, Terence Stamp, Kevin Major Howard, Leslie Bevins. In the near future, a race of odd-looking aliens is slowly (and grudgingly) being integrated into society. World-weary L.A. cop Caan agrees to take one on as his partner, so he can track down the alien who killed his former sidekick. A great concept that doesn’t quite pay off, despite many clever touches and terrific performances by Caan and Patinkin. Followed by a TV series and three made-for-TV movies. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Alien Resurrection (1997) C-108m. ★ D: Jean-Pierre Jeunet. Sigourney Weaver, Winona Ryder, Dominique Pinon, Ron Perlman, Gary Dourdan, Michael Wincott, Kim Flowers, Dan Hedaya, J. E. Freeman, Brad Dourif. Two hundred years after ALIEN³, Ripley (Weaver) is cloned aboard a spaceship with a touch of alien in her makeup, and more aliens to battle with the help of a band of space pirates. Clumsy sequel with crummy logic, far too many wisecracks; a few good action scenes, but strictly for series fans. Special edition runs 116m. Followed by ALIEN VS. PREDATOR. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Aliens (1986) C-137m. ★★★½ D: James Cameron. Sigourney Weaver, Carrie Henn, Michael Biehn, Paul Reiser, Lance Henriksen, Bill Paxton, Jenette Goldstein. Weaver, the sole human survivor from ALIEN, returns to planet that spawned the yukky creatures with a Marine squadron that’s ready to wipe them out. Intense, exciting sequel directed by Cameron the same way he did THE TERMINATOR—once it gets going there’s just no letup! Weaver is sensational in compelling lead role. The special effects won an Oscar. “Director’s cut” version runs 154m. Followed by ALIEN³. [R]▼●●

Alien’s Return, The SEE: Return, The Alien Terror SEE: Sinister Invasion Alien³ (1992) C-115m. ★ D: David Fincher. Sigourney Weaver, Charles S. Dutton, Charles Dance, Paul McGann, Brian Glover, Ralph Brown, Danny Webb, Lance Henriksen, Pete Postlethwaite. More-of-the-same sequel has Weaver and other survivors of ALIENS on isolated prison

planet where (you guessed it) the alien regenerates itself and runs amok. Good performances, some scares, but a definite feeling of déjà vu hangs over the proceedings. Special edition runs 144m. Followed by ALIEN RESURRECTION. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Alien Trespass (2009-Canadian) C-88m. ★½ D: R. W. Goodwin. Eric McCormack, Jenni Baird, Robert Patrick, Jody Thompson, Dan Lauria, Aaron Brooks, Sarah Smyth. Amusing straight-faced spoof of 1950s sci-fi movies has a spacecraft crash-landing just outside a typical American town; before long an unseen force overtakes many of the residents, including pipe-smoking scientist McCormack. It’s all been parodied before but this amiable film gets the look and feel just right. Opens with a faux newsreel that sets up the movie as a long-lost nugget of film history. [PG]

Aliens vs. Predator—Requiem (2007) C-94m. ★★ D: The Brothers Strause. Steven Pasquale, Reiko Aylesworth, John Ortiz, Robert Joy. Follow-up to 2004’s monster matchup brings the iconic extraterrestrials together for an earthbound smackdown in a small Colorado town. More graphically violent, yet significantly less atmospheric, than ALIEN VS. PREDATOR, sequel offers undemanding, occasionally exciting B-movie thrills. Expectant mothers might do well to avert their eyes during an ingeniously creepy maternity-ward sequence. Full significance of the final scene will be lost on anyone not intimately familiar with arcane aspects of the ALIEN movie myths. Unrated version runs 101m. Super 35. [R]●

Ali—Fear Eats the Soul (1974-German) C-94m. ★★★ D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Brigitte Mira, El Hedi Ben Salem, Barbara

Valentin, Irm Hermann, Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Widow Mira, in her 60s, falls in love with and marries an Arab 30 years her junior. Interesting, quietly effective Fassbinder film, a remake of Douglas Sirk's ALL THAT HEAVEN ALLOWS. ▼

Alive (1993) C-125m.  D: Frank Marshall. Ethan Hawke, Vincent Spano, Josh Hamilton, Bruce Ramsay, John Haymes Newton, David Kriegel, Kevin Breznahan, Sam Behrens, Ileana Douglas, Jack Noseworthy. Queasy movie about the rugby team that survived 72 days in the Andes Mountains when their plane crashed on its way from Uruguay to Chile. A half-good movie encumbered by clunky dialogue (or its delivery)—but physically impressive beyond the astonishing particulars of its story (which involves cannibalism). Unquestionably the most chilling portrayal of a plane crash in movie history. Scripted by John Patrick Shanley, from the book by Piers Paul Read. John Malkovich appears unbilled. Same story previously filmed as SURVIVE! [R] ▼ ● ●

Alive and Kicking (1997-British) C-98m.  D: Nancy Meckler. Jason Flemyng, Antony Sher, Dorothy Tutin, Anthony Higgins, Bill Nighy, Philip Voss, Diane Parish. Martin Sherman (author of the play Bent) scripted this touching drama about a self-involved gay dancer (Flemyng) who refuses to let the fact that he is afflicted with AIDS disrupt his career; he also becomes romantically involved with a therapist (Sher) who treats HIV-positive patients. The scenario may be familiar, but it's sincere and extremely well acted, and the world of dance is nicely rendered. Original British title: INDIAN SUMMER. [R] ▼

All About Eve (1950) 138m. * D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Bette Davis, Anne Baxter, George Sanders, Celeste Holm, Gary Merrill, Thelma Ritter, Marilyn Monroe, Hugh Marlowe, Gregory Ratoff. Brilliantly sophisticated (and cynical) look at life in and around the theater, with a heaven-sent script by director Mankiewicz (based on the story "The Wisdom of Eve" by Mary Orr). Davis is absolutely perfect

as an aging star who takes in an adoring fan (Baxter) and soon discovers that the young woman is taking over her life. Witty dialogue to spare, especially great when spoken by Sanders and Ritter. Six Oscars include Best Picture, Director, Screenplay, and Supporting Actor (Sanders). Later musicalized on Broadway as Applause. ▼ ● ●

All About My Mother (1999-Spanish-French) C-101m. ½ D: Pedro Almodóvar. Cecilia Roth, Marisa Paredes, Penélope Cruz, Antonia San Juan, Candela Peña, Rosa María Sardá, Eloy Azorín. When a woman loses her son, she returns to Barcelona, rekindles a dormant friendship with a transvestite pal, and becomes involved with a stage actress her son admired. Almodóvar's most moving film to date—more serious than most, but not without his trademark humor—and distinguished by exceptional performances all around. A paean to women, in real life and on stage and film. Oscar winner for Best Foreign Film. Panavision. [R] ▼

All About the Benjamins (2002) C-98m.  D: Kevin Bray. Ice Cube, Mike Epps, Eva Mendes, Tommy Flanagan, Carmen Chaplin, Valarie Rae Miller, Roger Guenveur Smith, Anthony Michael Hall. Miami bounty hunter is determined to bring in petty con man Epps, but they both get caught in the cross fire of a diamond theft gone haywire. Attempt at an action-comedy in the 48HRS vein benefits from Epps' non-stop chatter, but doesn't sustain its thin, worn-out premise. Ice Cube cowrote the screenplay. Super 35. [R] ▼

All American (1953) 83m.  D: Jesse Hibbs. Tony Curtis, Lori Nelson, Richard Long, Mamie Van Doren, Gregg Palmer, Stuart Whitman. Ordinary drama in which college football hero Curtis gives up the game after his parents' death and accepts an architecture scholarship at a snooty Ivy League-type school. Of note for appearances of several all-Americans (including Frank Gifford). Look fast for football great Tom Harmon in the announcing booth.

All-American Boy, The (1973) C-118m.  D: Charles Eastman. Jon Voight, E. J. Peaker, Ned Glass, Anne Archer, Carol Androsky. Muddled drama about Olympic hopeful Voight's attempt to succeed as a boxer; striking locations of northern California, but that's all. Panavision. [R] ▼

All-American Murder (1992) C-93m.  D: Anson Williams. Christopher Walken, Charlie Schlatter, Josie Bissett, Joanna Cassidy, Richard Kind, Woody Watson, J. C. Quinn. Rebellious college student Schlatter is suspected of murdering the virginal girl he loved, but cop Walken's not so sure. Highly guessable plot studded with slasher-movie murders cheats viewers; frequent tilted camera angles may make you seasick. [R] ▼ ● ●

Allan Quatermain and the Lost City of Gold (1987) C-99m. BOMB D: Gary Nelson (additional scenes: Newton Arnold). Richard Chamberlain, Sharon Stone, James Earl Jones, Henry Silva, Robert Donner, Doghmi Larbi, Cassandra Peterson. Cheapjack followup to 1985 version of KING SOLOMON'S MINES with the same stars; Chamberlain returns to Africa in search of his brother, who's been tracking a lost white tribe. Post-production patchups are all too obvious. Remake of the 1977 KING SOLOMON'S TREASURE. J-D-C Scope. [PG]▼◆

All at Sea (1957-British) 87m.  D: Charles Frend. Alec Guinness, Irene Browne, Percy Herbert, Harold Goodwin. Robust comedy that holds its own throughout. Guinness is admirable as seaman who can't bear sight of water but buys rundown house-laden pier, turning it into an amusement palace. Original title: BARNACLE BILL.

All Dogs Go to Heaven (1989) C-85m. *½ D: Don Bluth. Voices of Burt Reynolds, Loni Anderson, Judith Barsi, Dom DeLuise, Vic Tayback, Charles Nelson Reilly, Melba Moore. Bluth's colorful animation is only saving grace of this downbeat musical cartoon about an orphan "adopted" by an unlovable mutt (Reynolds) who has returned from heaven to do a good deed. Misguided film has some good moments (a musical sequence with a Cajun alligator), but hurt by unappealing characters, confused storytelling, and forgettable songs. Followed by three sequels and an animated TV series. [G]▼◆◆

All Dogs Go to Heaven 2 (1996-U.S.-British) C-84m. ½ D: Paul Sebella, Larry Leker. Voices of Charlie Sheen, Sheena Easton, Dom DeLuise, Ernest Borgnine, George Hearn, Bebe Neuwirth, Adam Wylie, Dan Castellana, Wallace Shawn, Pat Corley, Bobby DiCicco, Jim Cummings, Maurice La Marche. Cartoon canine Charlie Barkin (Sheen), bored with life in heaven, volunteers a return to earth in an effort to retrieve Gabriel's horn, which was stolen by evil dog Carface (Borgnine). Big improvement over the first picture in terms of story and music, but fails to match the original's lush animation. Followed by two direct-to-video sequels. [G]▼◆◆

Allegheny Uprising (1939) 81m.  D: William Seiter. John Wayne, Claire Trevor, George Sanders, Brian Donlevy, Robert Barrat, Moroni Olsen, Chill Willis. Wayne leads band of brave men against crooked Donlevy, tyrannical British captain Sanders in pre-Revolutionary colonies. Fine, unpretentious film; Trevor appealing as girl who goes after Wayne. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼◆◆

even but imaginative collection of vignettes set to music by Debussy, Dvorak, Vivaldi, Stravinsky, and others, framed by heavily-handed live-action slapstick featuring an oafish orchestra-conductor. Best sequences: Sibelius' "Valse Triste," with a melancholy cat, and a chronicle of evolution set to Ravel's "Bolero."▼◆◆

All Fall Down (1962) 110m.  D: John Frankenheimer. Warren Beatty, Eva Marie Saint, Karl Malden, Angela Lansbury, Brandon de Wilde. Improbable but absorbing William Inge script about narcissistic young man (Beatty), his admiring younger brother (de Wilde), indulgent parents (Lansbury and Malden), and the older woman (Saint) with whom he becomes involved. Fine performances. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼◆

All Hands on Deck (1961) C-98m.  D: Norman Taugog. Pat Boone, Buddy Hackett, Dennis O'Keefe, Barbara Eden. Innocuous musical comedy of free-wheeling sailors, Boone and Hackett, is lightweight entertainment. CinemaScope.

All I Desire (1953) 79m. ½ D: Douglas Sirk. Barbara Stanwyck, Richard Carlson, Lyle Bettger, Lori Nelson, Maureen O'Sullivan. Family togetherness and home-town approval is answer to title, in period piece uplifted by Stanwyck's valiant performance as erring mother of three who returns to her husband.▼

Alligator (1980) C-94m.  D: Lewis Teague. Robert Forster, Robin Riker, Michael Gazzo, Perry Lang, Jack Carter, Henry Silva, Bart Braverman, Dean Jagger, Angel Tompkins, Sue Lyon, Pat Petersen. If you've got to make a film about a giant alligator that's terrorizing Chicago, this is the way to do it—with a sense of fun to balance the expected violence and genuine scares. The knowing screenplay is by John Sayles; Silva does a hilarious self-parody as an egomaniacal Great White Hunter. Don't miss the graffiti in the final scene. Followed by a sequel. [R]▼◆

Alligator II: The Mutation (1991) C-92m. BOMB D: Jon Hess. Joseph Bologna, Dee Wallace Stone, Richard Lynch, Woody Brown, Holly Gagnier, Bill Dailey, Steve Railsback, Brock Peters, Julian Reyes. Another big alligator menaces another big city, with only cops Bologna and Brown, plus Cajun alligator hunter Lynch, to stop it from gobbling up the revelers at a lake. Lame-brained and dreary. [PG-13]▼◆◆

All in a Night's Work (1961) C-94m. ½ D: Joseph Anthony. Dean Martin, Shirley MacLaine, Charlie Ruggles, Cliff Robertson. Featherweight (and often featherbrained) comedy about innocent office worker caught in compromising position with big-business exec, leading to a series of misunderstandings. Filled with familiar character actors (Gale Gordon, Jerome Cowan, Jack Weston, et al.).▼◆

All I Wanna Do (1998) C-97m.  D: Sarah Kernochan. Kirsten Dunst, Gaby Hoffmann, Lynn Redgrave, Rachael Leigh Cook, Thomas Guiry, Vincent Kartheiser, Monica Keena, Matthew Lawrence, Heather Matarazzo, Hayden Christensen. Clever, funny comedy with serious undertones about a girls' boarding school in 1963—in the years just before women's lib—where newcomer Hoffmann bonds with a group of mischief-makers. Good showcase for its talented young cast, though somehow this never got a wide theatrical release. Written by the director. Originally screened as STRIKE! [PG-13]▼

All I Want (2002) C-92m.  D: Jeffrey Porter. Elijah Wood, Franka Potente, Mandy Moore, Chris William Martin, Elizabeth Perkins, Deborah Harry, Aaron Pearl, Aloma Wright. Strictly derivative coming-of-age comedy about a quirky teenage boy who moves into a boardinghouse peopled exclusively by eccentrics—including two women who show more than casual interest in him. Attractive cast makes this watchable, but it has too many echoes of other, better movies. Never released theatrically. Aka TRY SEVENTEEN. [R]▼

All I Want for Christmas (1991) C-92m. *½ D: Robert Lieberman. Harley Jane Kozak, Jamey Sheridan, Ethan Randall (Embry), Kevin Nealon, Thora Birch, Leslie Nielsen, Lauren Bacall. Slapdash tale of kids' efforts to get their divorced parents back together for the title holiday. A feel-good movie whose emotion seems as authentic as a plastic Christmas tree. A waste of time for all concerned (including Bacall, as the children's grandmother). [G]▼

All My Sons (1948) 94m.  D: Irving Reis. Edward G. Robinson, Burt Lancaster, Mady Christians, Louisa Horton, Howard Duff, Arlene Francis, Lloyd Gough, Henry (Harry) Morgan. Arthur Miller's compelling drama of returning soldier (Lancaster) discovering that his father (Robinson) cheated on a war matériel order, with tragic results. Post-WW2 drama is well acted, but verbose and preachy.▼

Allnighter, The (1987) C-108m. BOMB D: Tamar Simon Hoffs. Susanna Hoffs, Dedee Pfeiffer, Joan Cusack, Michael Ontkean, John Terlesky, James Anthony Shanta, Pam Grier, Meshach Taylor. Three female airheads stumble through assorted sexual hijinks during the final senior weekend at a Pacific party college. Grotesque in the AIDS era, though it would be a stinker anytime. Director Hoffs is the mother of the star, a member of The Bangles rock group. [PG-13]▼

and black bandleader, and their lingo, a drummer (amusingly played by McGeehan). Guest musicians include Dave Brubeck, Charlie Mingus, John Dankworth.

All Night Long (1981) C-88m. ½ D: Jean-Claude Tramont. Gene Hackman, Barbra Streisand, Diane Ladd, Dennis Quaid, Kevin Dobson, William Daniels, Ann Doran. Married Hackman takes up with neighbor's wife Streisand after he's demoted to managing a downtown all-night drugstore, the clientele of which has torridly high weirdo quotient. Streisand is badly, if rather endearingly, miscast (she replaced Lisa Eichhorn after film was already in production), but Hackman is at the peak of his charm in this gentle, underrated comedy. [R]▼

All of Me (1984) C-93m.  D: Carl Reiner. Steve Martin, Lily Tomlin, Victoria Tennant, Madolyn Smith, Richard Libertini, Dana Elcar, Jason Bernard, Selma Diamond. The soul and spirit of a crotchety millionairess (Tomlin) enter the body of a young, idealistic lawyer (Martin) with often hilarious results. Uneven comedy-fantasy actually gets better as it goes along, and characters become more endearing. Martin's performance is a comic tour-de-force. [PG]▼

All or Nothing (2002-British) C-128m.  D: Mike Leigh. Timothy Spall, Lesley Manville, Alison Garland, James Corden, Ruth Sheen, Marion Bailey, Paul Jesson, Sally Hawkins, Helen Coker, Daniel Mays. Dim, drab slice of working-class life, with cab-driver Spall barely eking out a living, earning no thanks from his common-law wife (who gave up on him years ago), his hostile son, or his silent daughter. Neighbors in their housing project seem to be in similar doldrums, but for one doggedly optimistic soul (Sheen). Tough going, without the rich, rounded characterizations that have marked Leigh's better films. [R]▼

All Over Me (1997) C-90m.  D: Alex Sichel. Alison Folland, Tara Subkoff, Wilson Cruz, Cole Hauser, Ann Dowd, Pat Briggs, Leisha Hailey, Shawn Hatosy. Dark, brooding but absorbing coming-of-age drama about two girls—one gay, one straight—whose friendship unravels after a fatal gay-bashing in their Hell's Kitchen neighborhood. The whole cast is excellent, but Folland as the shy budding lesbian is the emotional center. Powered by a terrific soundtrack featuring Patti Smith and Ani DiFranco, among others. Film's costars are also indie rockers: Briggs is the frontman of Psychotica, Hailey sings with The Murrurs. Written by director Sichel's sister, Sylvia. [R]▼

Ricci, Lisa Kudrow, Joanna Kerns. Likable comedy about two gay guys who survive a disastrous blind date and settle into friendship, not realizing true love is staring them right in the face. Loaded with smart one-liners and clever potshots at sexless gay studio movies like IN & OUT. Terrific supporting cast includes Martin as a touchy-feely therapist mom and THE OPPOSITE OF SEX costars Ricci and Kudrow. Written by Bucatinsky, based on his stage play. [R] ▼

All Quiet on the Western Front (1930) 133m. * D: Lewis Milestone. Lewis (Lew) Ayres, Louis Wolheim, John Wray, Slim Summerville, Russell Gleason, Ben Alexander, Beryl Mercer. Vivid, moving adaptation of Erich Maria Remarque's eloquent pacifist novel about German boys' experiences as soldiers during WW1. Time hasn't dimmed its power, or its poignancy, one bit. Scripted by Milestone, Maxwell Anderson, Del Andrews, and George Abbott. Academy Award winner for Best Picture and Director. Originally shown at 140m., then cut many times over the years; restored in 1998. It's 130m. on video. Sequel: THE ROAD BACK. Remade for TV in 1979. ▼●●

All Screwed Up (1974-Italian) C-105m.  D: Lina Wertmuller. Luigi Diberti, Nino Bignamini, Lina Politò, Sara Rapisarda. Appealing tragicomedy of various young working-class men and women, and what happens when they move into a Milan apartment. Released in the U.S. in 1976. [PG] ▼

All That Heaven Allows (1955) C-89m.  D: Douglas Sirk. Jane Wyman, Rock Hudson, Agnes Moorehead, Conrad Nagel, Virginia Grey, Gloria Talbot, William Reynolds, Charles Drake, Merry Anders. When middle-class widow Wyman allows gardener Hudson—a younger man—to romance her, she faces the ire of her children, friends, and society. Typically sleek Sirk soaper. Remade by Rainer Werner Fassbinder as ALI—FEAR EATS THE SOUL. ▼

All That Jazz (1979) C-123m. ½ D: Bob Fosse. Roy Scheider, Jessica Lange, Ann Reinking, Leland Palmer, Cliff Gorman, Ben Vereen, Erzsébet Foldi, Sandahl Bergman, John Lithgow, Keith Gordon, Ben Masters, Nicole Fosse, Theresa Merritt, Wallace Shawn. Director-choreographer Fosse's own 8½ casts a self-indulgent and largely negative look at his life; great show biz moments and wonderful dancing are eventually buried in pretensions, and an interminable finale which leaves a bad taste for the whole film. But that opening number (set to George Benson's recording of "On Broadway") is a wow! [R] ▼●●

All the Brothers Were Valiant (1953) C-101m. ½ D: Richard Thorpe. Robert

Taylor, Stewart Granger, Ann Blyth, Keenan Wynn, James Whitmore, Lewis Stone. Waterlogged adventure based on Ben Ames Williams' novel. Taylor and Granger lack conviction as New Bedford whalers having career and romantic conflicts. ▼

All the Fine Young Cannibals (1960) C-112m. *½ D: Michael Anderson. Robert Wagner, Natalie Wood, Susan Kohner, George Hamilton, Pearl Bailey, Anne Seymour. Clichés abound in this romantic soap opera that was actually inspired by the life of jazz trumpeter Chet Baker (whose role is played here, somewhat improbably, by Wagner). British music group Fine Young Cannibals took its name from this film. CinemaScope.

All the King's Men (1949) 109m. * D: Robert Rossen. Broderick Crawford, Joanne Dru, John Ireland, Mercedes McCambridge, John Derek, Shepperd Strudwick, Anne Seymour. Brilliant adaptation (by director Rossen) of Robert Penn Warren's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel about the rise and fall of a Huey Long-like governor, played by Crawford in the performance of his career. He and McCambridge (in her first film) won well-deserved Oscars, as did the film, for Best Picture. Campaign montages directed by Don Siegel. Remade in 2006. ▼●●

All the King's Men (2006) C-128m.  D: Steven Zaillian. Sean Penn, Jude Law, Kate Winslet, James Gandolfini, Mark Ruffalo, Patricia Clarkson, Kathy Baker, Jackie Earle Haley, Anthony Hopkins, Kevin Dunn, Tom McCarthy, Frederic Forrest, Tom Aldredge, Keb' Mo'. Remake of the 1949 classic traces the story of grassroots Southern politician Willie Stark (inspired by the real-life Louisiana governor Huey Long), his unlikely rise to power, and how it corrupts not only him but those around him. Penn's histrionics never ring true, and his talented costars are wasted in this disappointing production. Clarkson's role as Stark's savvy campaign strategist—and mistress—won Mercedes McCambridge an Oscar in the original film, but the character is barely sketched this time around. Zaillian wrote the ineffectual screenplay. [PG-13] ●

... All the Marbles (1981) C-113m.  D: Robert Aldrich. Peter Falk, Vicki Frederick, Laurene Landon, Burt Young, Tracy Reed, Ursaline Bryant-King, Claudette Nevins, Richard Jaeckel. There's no reason why this sloppily constructed, shallowly written movie—about a pair of beautiful female wrestlers and their two-bit manager—should be so entertaining, but it is. The climactic championship bout is a real audience-rouser. Retitled THE CALIFORNIA DOLLS. Aldrich's final film. [R] ▼

All the President's Men (1976) C-138m.

* D: Alan J. Pakula. Robert Redford, Dustin Hoffman, Jason Robards, Jack Warden, Martin Balsam, Hal Holbrook, Jane Alexander, Stephen Collins, Meredith Baxter, Ned Beatty, Robert Walden, Polly Holliday, F. Murray Abraham, Lindsay Ann Crouse. Redford and Hoffman play real-life Washington Post reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, who persevered in their investigation of Watergate break-in that led to earthshaking scandal. Best elements of newspaper pictures, detective stories, and thrillers rolled into one superb movie. Won Oscars for Supporting Actor (Robards), Screenplay (William Goldman), Art Direction, and Sound. [PG] ▼●●

½ D: Billy Bob Thornton. Matt Damon, Henry Thomas, Lucas Black, Penelope Cruz, Ruben Blades, Robert Patrick, Julio Oscar Mechoso, Miriam Colon, Bruce Dern, Sam Shepard. Ambitious but uneven adaptation (by Ted Tally) of Cormac McCarthy's prize-winning novel. A young man and his best friend, sensing no future in post-WW2 Texas, drift across the border in search of the cowboy life that's disappearing around them. Alternately leisurely and lurching in its storytelling, the film looks good, but never gels; signs of post-production cutting are painfully obvious. Damon and Thomas are quite good. Panavision. [R]▼●

All the Queen's Men (2002-U.S.-Austrian-German-Hungarian) C-105m. BOMB D: Stefan Ruzowitzky. Matt LeBlanc, Eddie Izzard, James Cosmo, Nicolette Krebitz, Udo Kier, David Birkin, Edward Fox. Dreadful comedy, ostensibly based on the true story of a hotshot American undercover agent who's saddled with three ill-prepared British colleagues behind German lines—in drag—during WW2. Clunky film never finds the right tone, so it isn't funny or believable. Even Izzard doing a Dietrich turn isn't interesting. Widescreen. [PG-13]●

All the Real Girls (2003) C-108m. ½

D: David Gordon Green. Paul Schneider, Zooey Deschanel, Patricia Clarkson, Maurice Compte, Danny McBride, Benjamin Mouton, Shea Whigham. Life in a small southern town is revealed in this slowly paced love story about a young man taking baby steps in a quest for his first meaningful relationship. Story complications disrupt the film's tone, and the film is never as satisfying as it promises to be. Good performances and evocative atmosphere overcome most obstacles, but this is no LAST PICTURE SHOW. Leading actor Schneider cowrote the story with Green. 2.35 Research PLC. [R] ▼●

All These Women (1964-Swedish) C-80m.

Aka NOW ABOUT THESE WOMEN.

All the Way Home (1963) 97m. ½

D: Alex Segal. Jean Simmons, Robert Preston, Aline MacMahon, Pat Hingle, Michael Kearney, John Cullum, Thomas Chalmers. Outstanding filmization of the Tad Mosel play, set in 1915 Tennessee, an adaptation of James Agee's A Death in the Family. Preston is subdued in the pivotal role of a father and husband who is accidentally killed, leaving his loved ones to interpret the meaning of their lives before and after his death. Beautifully done, with Simmons offering an award-caliber performance as Preston's wife. Fine script by Philip Reisman, Jr.

All Things Bright and Beautiful (1979-

British) C-94m. ½ D: Eric Till. John Alderton, Lisa Harrow, Colin Blakely, Bill Maynard, Richard Pearson, Paul Shelley. Pleasant, inoffensive film for kids who like animals and can appreciate an entertainment devoid of car crashes. Kind-hearted veterinarian James Herriot (Alderton) tends to under-the-weather animals in Yorkshire at the end of the '30s. Based on two of Herriot's books, Let Sleeping Vets Lie and Vet in Harness, published in the U.S. as All Things Bright and Beautiful. A sequel to ALL CREATURES GREAT AND SMALL, made for U.S. TV. Aka IT SHOULDN'T HAPPEN TO A VET. [G]

All Things Fair (1995-Swedish-Danish) C-128m. ½ D: Bo Widerberg, Johan Widerberg, Marika Lagercrantz, Tomas Von Brömssen, Karin Huldt, Nina Gunke, Bjorn Kjellman, Kenneth Milldoff. In 1943 Sweden a recently transferred high school student falls for his attractive new teacher; their subsequent affair is both passionate and deceitful on many levels. Extremely well made film is exquisitely performed by the two leads (young Johan Widerberg is the director's son) and Swedish star Von Brömssen is equally adept in the role of an unorthodox cuckolded husband. Director Widerberg (of ELVIRA MADIGAN fame) also wrote the screenplay and edited this, his final film. This can stand alongside the best coming-of-age films. ●

All This, and Heaven Too (1940) 143m.  D: Anatole Litvak. Bette Davis, Charles Boyer, Jeffrey Lynn, Barbara O'Neil, Virginia Weidler, Helen Westley, Walter Hampden, Henry Daniell, June Lockhart. Nobleman Boyer falls in love with governess Davis, causing scandal and death; stars do very well in elaborate filmization of Rachel Field book set in 19th-century France. ▼●

Humphrey Bogart, Conrad Veidt, Kaaren Verne, Jane Darwell, Frank McHugh, Peter Lorre, Judith Anderson, William Demarest, Jackie Gleason, Phil Silvers, Barton MacLane, Martin Kosleck. Bogart's gang tracks down Fifth Columnists (Veidt, Lorre, Anderson) in WW2 N.Y.C. Interesting blend of spy, gangster, and comedy genres, with memorable double-talk and auction scenes. ▼●●

Almost an Angel (1990) C-95m.  D: John Cornell. Paul Hogan, Elias Koteas, Linda Kozlowski, Charlton Heston, Doreen Lang, Joe Dallesandro, David Alan Grier, Stephanie Hodge. Hokey, paper-thin afterlife fantasy with Hogan a thief who turns do-gooder after an otherworldly confrontation with God (Heston, naturally). Hogan's effortless charisma cannot salvage it. He also scripted and executive produced. Super 35. [PG] ▼●●

Almost Angels (1962) C-93m. ½ D: Steve Previn. Peter Weck, Hans Holt, Fritz Eckhardt, Bruni Lobel, Vincent Winter, Sean Scully. Schmaltzy but entertaining Disney film about two youngsters who become friends in the Vienna Boys Choir. Pleasant story, fine music. ▼

Almost Famous (2000) C-122m. ½ D: Cameron Crowe. Billy Crudup, Frances McDormand, Kate Hudson, Jason Lee, Patrick Fugit, Anna Paquin, Fairuza Balk, Noah Taylor, Zooey Deschanel, Bijou Phillips, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Peter Frampton, Jimmy Fallon. Crowe won an Oscar for writing this appealing autobiographical story about a guileless 15-year-old boy who wants to write about rock music and goes on the road with a band for Rolling Stone magazine in the 1970s. Newcomer Fugit is perfect as the boy, McDormand a delight as his overprotective mother, Hudson adorable as the band follower who wins him over, and Crudup right on target as a charismatic musician. Layered with telling details; this one's from the heart. Alternate version (the so-called "bootleg cut") runs 159m. [R] ▼●

Almost Heroes (1998) C-90m. *½ D: Christopher Guest. Chris Farley, Matthew Perry, Eugene Levy, Kevin Dunn, Lisa Barbuscia, Bokeem Woodbine, Steve M. Porter, David Packer, Hamilton Camp, Lewis Arquette; narrated by Harry Shearer. A would-be explorer hires a rowdy tracker in the hope of beating Lewis and Clark to the Pacific Ocean in 1804. Farley (in his last starring film, shot in 1996 and released six months after his death) is as bombastic as ever, but the gags are either flat or nonexistent in this misbegotten comedy. Levy and Dunn have all the best moments, in colorful supporting roles. [PG-13] ▼●●

Almost Perfect Affair, An (1979) C-93m. ½ D: Michael Ritchie. Keith Carradine, Monica Vitti, Raf Vallone, Christian De Sica, Dick Anthony Williams. Romantic comedy-drama about affair between naive American filmmaker and worldly wife of film producer; set against backdrop of Cannes Film Festival, it will appeal mostly to film buffs and insiders. Almost You (1984) C-96m. *½ D: Adam Brooks. Brooke Adams, Griffin Dunne, Karen Young, Marty Watt, Christine Estabrook, Josh Mostel, Laura Dean, Dana Delany, Miguel Pinero, Joe Silver, Joe Leon, Spalding Gray. Muddled, overlong, self-satisfied "romantic comedy" about Dunne's attempts to break out of his plodding existence with wife Adams in N.Y.C. Originally shown at 110m, which only made matters worse. [R] ▼●

aloha, bobby and rose (1975) C-88m.  D: Floyd Mutrux. Paul LeMat, Dianne Hull, Tim McIntire, Leigh French, Martine Bartlett, Robert Carradine, Eddie (Edward James) Olmos. Aloha Summer (1988) C-98m.  D: Tommy Lee Wallace. Chris Makepeace, Yuji Okumoto, Don Michael Paul, Tia

Carrere, Andy Bumatai, Lorie Griffin, Sho Kosugi. Well-meaning but bland story about six young American, Japanese, and Hawaiian boys coming of age on surfboards in Waikiki during the summer of 1959. There's nothing fresh; the waves, however, are outta-sight. [PG] ▼●

Alone in the Dark (2005) C-96m. BOMB D: Uwe Boll. Christian Slater, Tara Reid, Stephen Dorff, Will Sanderson, Mark Acheson, Frank C. Turner. Paranormal investigator Slater tangles with a mad scientist in this unintelligible time-waster based on an Atari video game. The opening crawl is dopey and over-long; what follows is mind-numbingly awful. Casting Reid as an anthropologist is like assigning Curly Howard the role of a neurosurgeon. Unrated director's cut runs 99m. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Along Came a Spider (2001) C-104m. *½ D: Lee Tamahori. Morgan Freeman, Monica Potter, Michael Wincott, Mika Boorem, Dylan Baker, Michael Moriarty, Jay O. Sanders, Penelope Ann Miller. As if he were doing us any great favors, Freeman reprises his role from KISS THE GIRLS as psychologist/detective Dr. Alex Cross, from James Patterson's novels. Case here involves the day-school abduction of a U.S. senator's young daughter, and Freeman's sleuthing with guilt-ridden Secret Service agent Potter. Premise is unpleasant, its execution unspeakably dull, and a "big" plot twist just doesn't cut it. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Along Came Jones (1945) 90m.  D: Stuart Heisler. Gary Cooper, Loretta Young, William Demarest, Dan Duryea, Frank Sully, Russell Simpson. Three stars are most ingratiating in very low-key, leisurely Western spoof, with Cooper (who also produced) mistaken for notorious outlaw Duryea. ▼●

Along Came Polly (2003) C-90m.  D: John Hamburg. Ben Stiller, Jennifer Aniston, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Debra Messing, Hank Azaria, Bryan Brown, Alec Baldwin, Ju Garcia, Michele Lee, Bob Dishy, Missi Pyle, Judah Friedlander, Cheryl Hines, Caroline Aaron, Rabbi David Baron. An insurance risk manager gets married, only to have his wife cheat on him before their honeymoon is over. Back home in N.Y.C. he meets a cute but flaky woman and decides she's the right one for him—but she's the one who's scared of commitment. Yet another Ben Stiller comedy of embarrassment; if you're looking for a story about a man with irritable bowel syndrome, search no further! Azaria all but steals the film as a French stud who teaches scuba diving in St. Barts. [PG-13] ▼●

Along the Great Divide (1951) 88m. ½ D: Raoul Walsh. Kirk Douglas, Virginia Mayo, John Agar, Walter Brennan. Douglas is appropriately tight-lipped as lawman determined to bring in his man, despite desert storm; some spectacular scenery. ▼●

Alphabet City (1984) C-98m.  D: Amos

Poe. Vincent Spano, Kate Vernon, Michael Winslow, Zohra Lampert, Jami Gertz, Raymond Serra. Slick, arty but shallow and almost plotless portrait of teenage hood Spano and his life on N.Y.C.'s Lower East Side. All imagery, no content. [R] ▼●

Alphabet Killer, The (2008) C-98m.  D: Rob Schmidt. Eliza Dushku, Cary Elwes, Timothy Hutton, Tom Malloy, Michael Ironside, Bill Moseley, Carl Lumbly, Brian Scannell, Larry Hankin, Jack McGee, Melissa Leo, Tom Noonan, Martin Donovan. A young girl is raped and strangled, and Rochester, N.Y., police detective Dushku, who has all sorts of psychological issues, becomes obsessed with solving the case. By-the-letters thriller poses one burning question: Who let this woman on the police force? Loosely based on a series of murders that took place in Rochester in the 1970s. Scripted by Malloy, who plays Officer Stephen Harper. [R] ▼●

Alphabet Murders, The (1966-British) 90m. ½ D: Frank Tashlin. Tony Randall, Anita Ekberg, Robert Morley, Guy Rolfe, James Villiers. Odd adaptation of Agatha Christie's The ABC Murders (the film's original British title), with Hercule Poirot after a killer who seems to be doing in his victims in alphabetical order. Strange casting of Randall as the Belgian sleuth and a little too much slapstick make this more a curiosity than anything else. Margaret Rutherford makes a gag appearance as Miss Marple. ▼

Alpha Dog (2007) C-122m. *½ D: Nick Cassavetes. Emile Hirsch, Ben Foster, Shawn Hatosy, Christopher Marquette, Justin Timberlake, Anton Yelchin, Bruce Willis, Sharon Stone, Lukas Haas, Alex Kingston, Harry Dean Stanton, Alex Solowitz, Dominique Swain, Alan Thicke, Vincent Kartheiser, Fernando Vargas. Two fun-filled hours about the cretins who orbit around amoral drug dealer Hirsch. The nihilistic fun and games turn serious when they snatch the kid brother of a "friend," then realize they've actually perpetrated a kidnapping. Cassavetes' screenplay is based on real-life events but the film is pointless . . . as is the framing device of a documentary about the case (using split-screen) which disappears after the opening scenes and returns abruptly at the end. J-D-C Scope. [R] ▼●

Alphaville (1965-French) 95m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Eddie Constantine, Anna Karina, Akim Tamiroff, Howard Vernon. Jumbled Godard epic, recommended for New Wave disciples only. ▼●●

quivel) jumps out of a tree in the hope of flying; he becomes a hunchback, but learns to stand tall when he joins guerrillas fighting in a Central American country. Certainly unsubtle, but far from uninteresting allegory, filmed in Nicaragua. [R]▼●

Altered States (1980) C-102m. ½ D: Ken Russell. William Hurt, Blair Brown, Bob Balaban, Charles Haid, Thao Penghlis, Dori Brenner, George Gaynes, Drew Barrymore. A scientist (Hurt, in his film debut) becomes involved with primal research, using himself as guinea pig with mind-bending results. Talky and cerebral at first, then turns into a cross between THE WOLF MAN and THE TIME MACHINE, using state-of-the-art special effects. More successful as an assault on the senses than as a film, with thoroughly unappealing protagonists and a ludicrous story resolution. Paddy Chayefsky disowned his adaptation of his novel, and the script is now credited to his given name, "Sidney Aaron." Barrymore's film debut. Look for John Larroquette as an X-ray technician. Alvarez Kelly (1966) C-116m. ½ D: Edward Dmytryk. William Holden, Richard Widmark, Janice Rule, Victoria Shaw, Patrick O'Neal. Slow-moving Civil War tale. Alvin and the Chipmunks (2007) C-91m. ½ D: Tim Hill. Jason Lee, David Cross, Cameron Richardson, Jane Lynch; voices of Justin Long, Matthew Gray Gubler, Jesse McCartney. The musical myths of Ross Bagdasarian's singing chipmunks (Alvin, Simon, and Theodore) is amusingly reimagined in this kid-friendly mix of cartoonish live-action and impressive CG animation. Lee is the nominal star, as David Seville (Bagdasarian's stage name), the critters' surrogate father, but Cross grabs every scene that isn't bolted to the floor as a snarky record producer. [PG]●

Always (1985) C-105m.  D: Henry Jaglom. Henry Jaglom, Patrice Townsend, Joanna Frank, Alan Rachins, Melissa Leo, Jonathan Kaufer, Bob Rafelson, Michael Emil, Andre Gregory. Often hilarious, but also insightful, comedy about what it means to be a couple. A trio of them—one about to get divorced, one about to get married, one solidly married—spend a July 4th weekend together. The first is played by the director and Townsend, his own ex-wife. Like all of Jaglom's stream-of-consciousness films, this one's not for all tastes. [R]▼●●

Always (1989) C-121m. ½ D: Steven Spielberg. Richard Dreyfuss, Holly Hunter, John Goodman, Brad Johnson, Audrey Hepburn, Roberts Blossom, Keith David, Marg Helgenberger. Slick remake of 1943's

A GUY NAMED JOE, with Dreyfuss as a cocky pilot who specializes in dousing forest fires from the air, and Hunter as the dispatcher who loves him—and fears for his life. When he does in fact die, he returns in spirit form to guide a young pilot (Johnson) who wants to pursue the same career and the same woman. Certainly entertaining but suffers from a serious case of The Cutes. Hepburn, in her final film appearance, plays an angel. [PG]▼●●

Always Goodbye (1938) 75m. ½ D: Sidney Lanfield. Barbara Stanwyck, Herbert Marshall, Ian Hunter, Cesar Romero, Lynn Bari, Binnie Barnes. Still another sacrificing mother tale—specifically, a remake of GALLANT LADY. Stanwyck is forced to give up her illicit child. Nicely done, but the same old story.

Always Leave Them Laughing (1949) 116m. ½ D: Roy Del Ruth. Milton Berle, Virginia Mayo, Ruth Roman, Bert Lahr, Alan Hale. Berle is at home in tale of cocky comedian's ups and downs. Unfortunately, zesty opening leads into soggy drama. Lahr does his classic "stop in the name of the stationhouse" routine.

Amadeus (1984) C-158m. ½ D: Milos Forman. F. Murray Abraham, Tom Hulce, Elizabeth Berridge, Simon Callow, Roy Dotrice, Christine Ebersole, Jeffrey Jones, Cynthia Nixon. Abraham won well-deserved Oscar as composer Salieri, whose music never surpasses mediocrity, while a hedonistic young boor named Mozart expresses musical genius almost without trying! Literate, intelligent, exquisitely filmed (in Prague, by Miroslav Ondricek) . . . but fatally overlong and missing dramatic fire that distinguished Peter Shaffer's play (Shaffer rethought and rewrote it for the screen). Worth noting: Jones' wonderful performance as musical dilettante Emperor Joseph II. Winner of seven other Oscars, including Best Picture, Director, Screenplay, Art Direction. Reissued in 2002 with an additional 20m. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Amal (2008-Canadian) C-105m.  D: Richie Mehta. Rupinder Nagra, Naseeruddin Shah, Seema Biswas, Koel Purie, Vik Sahay, Roshan Seth, Tanisha Chatterjee, Amardeep Jha, Dr. Shiva. Heartwarming story of a poor rickshaw driver in New Delhi, India, whose humanity triumphs over tragedy and treachery. Amal's kindness to two strangers—a street beggar and a cantankerous passenger—has unusual repercussions. The story may be contrived, but its sincerity and the warmth of its actors make it difficult to resist. Debut feature for director Mehta, who expanded it from a 2004 short he wrote with his brother Shaan.

nostalgia trip to the Italy of his youth in the 1930s; warm, funny, poignant, bawdy episodes about love, sex, politics, family life, and growing up. Academy Award winner as Best Foreign Film. [R] ▼●

Amateur, The (1982-Canadian) C-111m. BOMB D: Charles Jarrott. John Savage, Christopher Plummer, Marthe Keller, Arthur Hill, Ed Lauter, Nicholas Campbell, Graham Jarvis, John Marley. Savage is grossly miscast as a CIA computer whiz who hunts down the terrorists who seized the American Consulate in Munich and murdered his girlfriend. Complex and ultimately ridiculous spy thriller. [R] ▼

Amateur (1994-U.S.-French) C-105m. ½ D: Hal Hartley. Isabelle Huppert, Martin Donovan, Elina Lowensohn, Damian Young, Chuck Montgomery, David Simmonds, Parker Posey. Typically quirky Hartley tale about an ex-nun (Huppert) who writes pornographic fiction (!) and hooks up with a seemingly harmless amnesiac (Donovan) with a disturbing past. As in all of the director's films, this one is filled with off-beat characters who do and say the weirdest things; among them are a pair of hit men who look like Wall Street yuppies. Interesting, but decidedly not for all tastes. An American Playhouse coproduction. [R] ▼

Amateurs, The (2007) C-99m. ½ D: Michael Traeger. Jeff Bridges, Tim Blake Nelson, Joe Pantoliano, William Fichtner, Ted Danson, Patrick Fugit, John Hawkes, Glennie Headly, Lauren Graham, Alex D. Linz, Jeanne Tripplehorn, Steven Weber, Isaiah Washington, Valerie Perrine, Judy Greer, Eileen Brennan, Brad Garrett, Elden Henson. Group of small-town losers decides to turn their lives around and make the world's first community-sponsored porno film. With Bridges' character leading the way they enlist an unlikely group of participants. Hilarious, if uneven, comedy delivers on its amusing premise with a sterling group of actors. Screened on the film festival circuit as THE MOGULS. [R] ▼

Amati Girls, The (2001) C-91m.  D: Anne DeSalvo. Cloris Leachman, Mercedes Ruehl, Paul Sorvino, Sean Young, Dinah Manoff, Mark Harmon, Jamey Sheridan, Lily Knight, Lee Grant. Schmaltz-fest about a close-knit Italian-American family, focusing on a death-obsessed matriarch (Leachman) and her four daughters (Ruehl, Young, Manoff, Knight). In her directorial debut, actress DeSalvo juggles soapy stories, has a sense of humor and an unabashed reverence for Catholicism, but the results are not quite MOONSTRUCK. [PG] ▼

Amazing Colossal Man, The (1957) 80m. ½ D: Bert I. Gordon. Glenn Langan, Cathy Downs, James Seay, Larry Thor. Army officer who survives an atomic explosion starts growing; at 60 feet he attacks

Las Vegas! Starts well but ends up as your standard monster-on-the-loose flick. Sequel: WAR OF THE COLOSSAL BEAST. ▼

Amazing Dobermans, The (1976) C-94m. ½ D: David and Byron Chudnow. James Franciscus, Barbara Eden, Fred Astaire, Jack Carter, Billy Barty. Engaging action comedy that has Bible-quoting ex-con-man Astaire's five remarkable Doberman pinchers helping treasury agent Franciscus thwart a racketeer and his gang. Higher-budgeted sequel to THE DOBERMAN GANG and THE DARING DOBERMANS, aided by offbeat casting of Astaire. [PG—edited from original R rating] ▼

Amazing Grace (1974) C-99m.  D: Stan Lathan. Moms Mabley, Slappy White, Moses Gunn, Rosalind Cash, Dolph Sweet. A few laughs in Philadelphia-made comedy about an elderly busybody who disrupts corrupt Baltimore politics. Mabley's only starring film; cameos by Butterfly McQueen, unrecognizable Stepin Fetchit. [G] ▼

Amazing Grace (2007-British) C-116m. ½ D: Michael Apted. Ioan Gruffudd, Romola Garai, Benedict Cumberbatch, Albert Finney, Michael Gambon, Rufus Sewell, Youssou N'Dour, Ciarán Hinds, Toby Jones, Bill Paterson. Earnest and enlightening historical drama about William Wilberforce, who spent 20 exhausting years in the late 1700s trying to convince his fellow members of Parliament to ban slavery in the British Empire. Impressive roster of actors lends weight to this well-made film, but somehow it never reaches the dramatic heights it should, considering the passionate nature of its protagonist and the nobility of his cause. [PG] ▼

Amazing Grace and Chuck (1987) C-115m. *½ D: Mike Newell. Jamie Lee Curtis, Alex English, Gregory Peck, William L. Petersen, Joshua Zuchelke, Dennis Lipscomb, Lee Richardson. A 12-year-old Little League whiz decides to stop playing baseball until the world agrees to complete nuclear disarmament . . . and soon, other athletes around the world follow suit, as the protest escalates. Producer-writer David Field's Capraesque wish-fulfillment fantasy is one of those films you either swallow wholeheartedly, or don't. It's dripping with good intentions. [PG] ▼●

Amazing Mr. Blunden, The (1972-British) C-99m.  D: Lionel Jeffries. Laurence Naismith, Lynne Frederick, Garry Miller, Rosalyn Landor, Marc Granger, Diana Dors, James Villiers. Dickensian fantasy about a genial ghost who takes two children back in time to help two mistreated tots. Colorful family film whose only liability is somewhat muddled storyline. [G]▼

Amazing Panda Adventure, The (1995-U.S.-China) C-85m. ½ D: Christopher Cain. Ryan Slater, Stephen Lang, Yi Ding, Huang Fei, Zhou Jiuguo, Yao Erga. Time-honored "boy and his dog" story, except in this case it's a boy and his panda. Ten-year-old American boy and a Chinese girl trek through China in order to rescue the cub from poachers. Too predictable for adult viewers, but the spectacular Chinese scenery makes it worthwhile. Slater is Christian's younger brother. [PG]▼●●

Amazon Women on the Moon (1987) C/B&W-85m. *½ D: Joe Dante, Carl Gottlieb, Peter Horton, John Landis, Robert K. Weiss. Rosanna Arquette, Ralph Bellamy, Carrie Fisher, Griffin Dunne, Steve Guttenberg, Michelle Pfeiffer, Peter Horton, Sybil Danning, Ed Begley, Jr., Henny Youngman, Paul Bartel, Lou Jacobi, Howard Hesseman, B.B. King, Steve Allen, Steve Forrest, Russ Meyer, Arsenio (Hall), Phil Hartman, Joe Pantoliano, Rip Taylor, David Alan Grier, Angel Tompkins, Kelly Preston, Andrew Dice Clay, Mike Mazurki, Corinne Wahl. Series of unrelated skits in the KENTUCKY FRIED MOVIE vein, most of them astonishingly unfunny. Parody of CAT WOMEN OF THE MOON that punctuates the film is so exact that you might as well watch the original—it's just as funny. Best of all is the 1930s sex-film spoof with Bartel and Fisher, but that comes at the very end. [R]▼●●

Ambassador, The (1984) C-90m.  D: J. Lee Thompson. Robert Mitchum, Ellen Burstyn, Rock Hudson, Fabio Testi, Donald Pleasence, Michal Bat-Adam. Intelligent, entertaining thriller of American ambassador Mitchum, his adulterous wife Burstyn, and his attempts to peacefully mediate the Israeli-Palestinian crisis. Based on Elmore Leonard's novel 52 Pick-Up, and remade just two years later under that name. Hudson's final theatrical film. [R]▼

Ambassador's Daughter, The (1956) C-102m. ½ D: Norman Krasna. Olivia de Havilland, John Forsythe, Myrna Loy, Adolphe Menjou, Edward Arnold, Francis Lederer, Tommy Noonan, Minor Watson. Oomph is missing even though stars give all to uplift sagging comedy of de Havilland out for a fling in Paris, romanced by soldier Forsythe. CinemaScope.▼●

Ambition (1991) C-100m. BOMB D: Scott D. Goldstein. Lou Diamond Phillips, Clancy Brown, Cecilia Peck, Richard Bradford, Willard Pugh, Grace Zabriskie, Katherine Armstrong, J. D. Cullum, Haing S. Ngor. Awful thriller about a writer who becomes totally obsessed with his subject—a man who happens to be a convicted

murderer. Phillips makes his screenwriting debut here but he's bitten off more than he can type. A bust! [R]▼●

Ambushers, The (1968) C-102m. BOMB D: Henry Levin. Dean Martin, Senta Berger, Janice Rule, James Gregory, Albert Salmi, Kurt Kasznar, Beverly Adams. Do you really care that the first U.S. flying saucer has been stolen right out of space? Third entry in the Matt Helm series may be the weakest, but few film scholars will want to take time making certain. Sequel: THE WRECKING CREW.▼●●

Amélie (2001-French-German) C-121m. ½ D: Jean-Pierre Jeunet. Audrey Tautou, Mathieu Kassovitz, Rufus, Yolande Moreau, Artus de Penguern, Urbain Cancelier, Dominique Pinon, Maurice Benichou. Clever, charming comedy about a sheltered young woman who, in her first foray into "real life," decides to manipulate the people around her to make their lives happier. But when she encounters a man who is attracted to her, she can't figure out how to deal with the situation. Told with visual flair and originality, with a star-making performance by Tautou. Written by the director and Guillaume Laurant. Full title is LE FABULEUX DESTIN D'AMÉLIE POULAIN, or AMÉLIE FROM MONTMARTRE. Super 35. [R]▼●

AMEN. (2002-French-German) C-130m.  D: Costa-Gavras. Ulrich Tukur, Mathieu Kassovitz, Ulrich Mühe, Michel Duchaussoy, Ion Caramitru, Mächel Iures. Compelling tale of an SS officer who discovers that the chemicals he's using to purify water for troops at the front are being used for Hitler's Final Solution. He turns to the Vatican for help and finds a willing priest but a reluctant hierarchy. Slow going at first, and not the biting indictment of the Roman Catholic Church you might expect from the director; instead, a tempered examination of self-preservation, sacrifice, and fear. Adapted by Costa-Gavras and Jean Claude Grumberg from Rolf Hochhuth's play The Deputy.▼●

ard Belzer, Liz Torres, Howard Thomas-shesky, Laura Ashton. Downey lamely attempts to recapture the freewheeling satires of the 1960s (such as his classic PUTNEY SWOPE) with this amateurish tale of the loonies at a N.Y. cable TV station, whose signal is accidentally bounced off the moon, bringing them worldwide fame. Hopelessly dated; filmed in 1982. [R]▼

America, America (1963) C-168m. * D: Elia Kazan. Stathis Giallelis, Frank Wolff, Elena Karam, Lou Antonio, John Marley, Estelle Hemsley. The dream of passage to America—as it unfolded for late 19th-century immigrants—is movingly captured by writer-director Kazan in this long, absorbing film, based on his uncle's experiences. Heartfelt and heart-rending, with impressive Oscar-winning art direction/set decoration by Gene Callahan.▼●

American Affair, An (2009) C-92m. *½ D: William Sten Olsson. Gretchen Mol, Cameron Bright, Noah Wyle, James Rebhorn, Mark Pellegrino, Perrey Reeves. Laughably bad drama about a 13-year-old boy (Bright) who develops a crush on the glamorous blond woman across the street in Washington, D.C.—little dreaming that she is the mistress of President John F. Kennedy. Mol is sexy but that's all one can say for this absurd mix of conspiracy yarn and teenage hormonal fantasy, which at one time carried the fanciful title BOY OF PIGS. [R]

American Anthem (1986) C-100m. *½ D: Albert Magnoli. Mitch Gaylord, Janet Jones, Michelle Phillips, R.J. Williams, Michael Pataki, Patrice Donnelly. Supremely corny, badly written tale of a gymnast with family problems which keep him from fulfilling his destiny. Inauspicious movie debut for Olympic gymnast Gaylord is strangely reminiscent of PURPLE RAIN, with the same music video approach to drama; Magnoli directed them both. [PG-13]▼●

American Beauty (1999) C-121m. ½ D: Sam Mendes. Kevin Spacey, Annette Bening, Thora Birch, Wes Bentley, Mena Suvari, Chris Cooper, Peter Gallagher, Allison Janney, Scott Bakula, Sam Robards, Jaret Winokur. Exceptional and original look at the American Dream gone sour. Spacey is having a midlife crisis, and decides to throw caution to the winds; his wife, Bening, who's forsaken him for her real estate career, seeks sexual fulfillment elsewhere. And their alienated teenage daughter is attracted to a strange young man next door. Amusing, bittersweet, and insightful

American Buffalo (1996) C-87m.  D: Michael Corrente. Dustin Hoffman, Dennis Franz, Sean Nelson. Arresting film version of David Mamet's profane, provocative three-character play. Hoffman plays Teach, a self-enobled world expert who hurls in on the plans of his friend, junk shop owner Don (Franz), to commit a robbery with the help of a teenaged protégé (Nelson). A simple character study, with perfectly cast actors bringing Mamet's own screen adaptation to life. One of the rare photographed stage plays that works. [R]▼●

American Carol, An (2008) C-83m. *½ D: David Zucker. Kevin Farley, Kelsey Grammer, Trace Adkins, Robert Davi, Jon Voight, Chriss Anglin, Geoffrey Arend, Serdar Kalsin, Leslie Nielsen, Dennis Hopper, James Woods, Kevin Sorbo, Fred Travalena, Gary Coleman, David Alan Grier, Gail O'Grady. A slobbering, sarcastic "liberal" filmmaker (and Michael Moore clone) wants to abolish the Fourth of July. Several ghosts drop in to instill within him the true American spirit. Whatever your politics, this simpleminded, mean-spirited comedy deals in generalities—and has very few laughs to offer. Some familiar faces make cameo appearances. [PG-13]▼

American Dream, An (1966) C-103m. ½ D: Robert Gist. Stuart Whitman, Janet Leigh, Eleanor Parker, Barry Sullivan, Lloyd Nolan, Murray Hamilton, J. D. Cannon, Les Crane, Paul Mantee, Harold Gould, George Takei. Distorted, watered-down Norman Mailer novel, dealing superficially with TV commentator wanted by underworld and police for murdering his wife; nightmare sequences are sterile.

American Dream (1989) C-100m. ½ D: Barbara Kopple. Gripping, Academy Award-winning documentary about the hows, whats and whys of a labor strike at the Hormel meat plant in the small town of Austin, Minnesota. It's the story of a profitable company attempting to reduce wages and break a union just for the sake of doing so. This is the stuff of high drama.▼●

American Dreamer (1984) C-105m.  D: Rick Rosenthal. JoBeth Williams, Tom Conti, Giancarlo Giannini, Coral Browne, James Staley, Huckleberry Fox, C.B. Barnes. Misguided, miscast comedy-adventure yarn about a housewife who wins trip to Paris and (through circumstance) believes herself to be the daring heroine of a series of adventure thrillers. Cute idea (not dissimilar to ROMANCING THE STONE) that an otherwise able cast can't pull off. [PG]▼

American Dreamz (2006) C-107m.  D: Paul Weitz. Hugh Grant, Dennis Quaid,

Mandy Moore, Willem Dafoe, Chris Klein, Jennifer Coolidge, Sam Golzari, Marcia Gay Harden, Seth Meyers, John Cho, Judy Greer, Shohreh Aghdashloo, Tony Yalda, Marley Shelton. Self-loathing host of a hugely popular American Idol-like TV talent show meets a kindred spirit in deceptively sweet-faced contestant Moore. Then he's offered the President of the U.S. as a guest judge—little dreaming that the Chief Executive has been going through a near breakdown and crisis of confidence. Weitz's script veers between satire and farce but still treats its key characters as human beings. Entertaining and funny, with surprisingly dark, even subversive, elements. Contestant who sings "Rockin' Man" is South Park's Trey Parker. [PG-13]●

American Flyers (1985) C-114m.  D: John Badham. Kevin Costner, David Grant, Rae Dawn Chong, Alexandra Paul, Janice Rule, Luca Bercovici, Robert Townsend, John Amos, Jennifer Grey. Two brothers—one of whom is dying—enter a grueling bicycle race marathon. Likable, sweet-natured, root-for-the-good-guys film, if a bit too pat and manipulative at times. Written by Steve Tesich, whose cycle theme fared even better in BREAKING AWAY. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

American Friend, The (1977-U.S.-French-German) C-127m.  D: Wim Wenders. Dennis Hopper, Bruno Ganz, Lisa Kreuzer, Gerard Blain, Jean Eustache, Sam Fuller, Nicholas Ray. Vague but suspenseful statement about American gangster films and the Americanization of European cinema and lifestyles, centering on a young German picture-framer (Ganz) hired to assassinate a mobster. Hopper is the title character, a mystery man; film directors Ray and Fuller appear as heavies. Based on Patricia Highsmith's Ripley's Game; remade under that title in 2003. Hopper's character, Tom Ripley, also appears in PURPLE NOON and its remake, THE TALENTED MR. RIPLEY.▼●●

American Friends (1991-British) C-95m. ½ D: Tristram Powell. Michael Palin, Trini Alvarado, Connie Booth, Alfred Molina, David Calder, Simon Jones, Robert Ed-ison, Alun Armstrong. A very proper (and very repressed) senior tutor at Oxford chances to meet a young American girl during a holiday in the Swiss Alps and finds his outlook on life undergoing some dramatic changes. Slight, slowly paced, but diverting; Palin coscripted the film, based on journals left behind by his great-grandfather.▼

Gugino, Roger Bart, KaDee Strickland, Jon Polito. Two parallel stories begin in the late 1960s. Washington is Frank Lucas, who figures the way to rule Harlem is to import heroin directly from Southeast Asia. But scrupulously honest cop Crowe can't bring down the man who's spreading pure heroin around the streets until he can identify him. Not the visceral gangland movie you might expect, but a methodical saga of two determined men who use their brains—and know when to bend the rules. Screenplay by Steven Zaillian, based on Mark Jacobson's article "The Return of Superfly." Clarence Williams III appears unbilled. Unrated version runs 176m. [R]●

American Gigolo (1980) C-117m. BOMB D: Paul Schrader. Richard Gere, Lauren Hutton, Hector Elizondo, Nina Van Pallandt, Frances Bergen, John Duke. Schrader presents his weakest variation yet on his favorite theme, the seamy side of American life. Feeble morality play, posing as a thriller, is further undermined by neurasthenic acting and some of the unsexiest sex scenes ever. [R]▼●●

American Graffiti (1973) C-110m. ½ D: George Lucas. Richard Dreyfuss, Ronny Howard, Paul LeMat, Charlie Martin Smith, Cindy Williams, Candy Clark, Mackenzie Phillips, Wolfman Jack, Harrison Ford, Bo Hopkins, Kathy Quinlan, Suzanne Somers, Joe Spano, Debralee Scott. Highly entertaining, insightful mosaic about youngsters "coming of age" after high school graduation in 1962. Often hilarious, always on-target, this film made Dreyfuss a star and boosted many other careers. Re-edited to 112m. for 1978 reissue to play up latter-day stars. Look fast for Kay Lenz at the dance. Sequel: MORE AMERICAN GRAFFITI. Techniscope. [PG]▼●●

American Guerrilla in the Philippines (1950) C-105m. ½ D: Fritz Lang. Tyrone Power, Micheline Prelle (Presle), Tom Ewell, Bob Patten, Tommy Cook, Jack Elam. Interesting but flawed account of resistance to Japanese after the fall of the Philippines during WW2, focusing on the activities of American naval officer Power. Marred by clichéd, jingoistic script, predictable romantic subplot involving Prelle. On-location filming adds authentic flavor. Based on Ira Wolfert's novel.

American Gun (2005) C-95m.  D: Aric Avelino. Donald Sutherland, Forest Whitaker, Marcia Gay Harden, Linda Cardellini, Tony Goldwyn, Christopher Marquette, Nikki Reed, Arlen Escarpeta, Gacelle Beauvais-Nilon, Melissa Leo, Schuyler Fisk, Daniel Hugh Kelly. Ambitious but unsuccessful film offers multiple storylines about people in different states coming to grips with the effect of gun violence on their lives. Serious and well-intentioned treatise eschews melodrama where it can, but adds up to very little. Good cast tries hard. Fisk was one of the film's composers. Whitaker coexecutive-produced. [R]▼

American Haunting, An (2006-U.S.-British-Canadian-Rumanian) C-90m. *½ D: Courtney Solomon. Donald Sutherland, Sissy Spacek, Rachel Hurd-Wood, James D'Arcy, Matthew Marsh, Thom Fell, Sam Alexander. In early 19th-century rural Tennessee, the devout Bell family is driven increasingly batty by a spirit that takes over their house—and specifically targets their teenaged daughter in her bedroom. Based on a purportedly real incident, and briefly framed by a contemporary family's tale, the only real horror here is the film's meager story and one-note screenplay. Alternate version runs 91m. Super 35. [PG-13]▶

American Heart (1993) C-113m.  D: Martin Bell. Jeff Bridges, Edward Furlong, Lucinda Jenney, Tracey Kapisky, Don Harvey, Maggie Welsh. Sobering, sometimes brilliant drama of gruff ex-con who is reunited with his son, an alienated teen in desperate need of a dad. Jarring, credible portrait of lost souls in urban America, with riveting performances by its stars. First fiction feature for Bell, who directed the documentary STREETWISE. Bridges also coproduced. [R]▼

American History X (1998) C/B&W-118m.  D: Tony Kaye. Edward Norton, Edward Furlong, Fairuza Balk, Beverly D'Angelo, Avery Brooks, Stacy Keach, Jennifer Lien, Elliott Gould, William Russ, Joe Cortese. Hard-hitting drama of a young man who's seduced into a white supremacy movement in Venice, California, goes to prison after committing a heinous crime, and has his head straightened out. When he's released, his only thought is to steer his younger brother away from that same existence. Frighteningly powerful—and believable—performance by Norton sparks this intense drama of a family torn apart. [R]▼

American Hot Wax (1978) C-91m.  D: Floyd Mutrux. Tim McIntire, Fran Drescher, Jay Leno, John Lehne, Laraine Newman, Jeff Altman, Chuck Berry, Jerry Lee Lewis, Screamin' Jay Hawkins. Rose-colored story of controversial 1950s disc jockey Alan Freed. Uneven dramatically, but McIntire is excellent, period flavor is strong, and the original rock 'n' roll acts are fun to see. Freed's

life also is chronicled in MR. ROCK AND ROLL (in which the DJ plays himself) and the TVM MR. ROCK 'N' ROLL: THE ALAN FREED STORY. [PG]▼

American in Paris, An (1951) C-115m. ½ D: Vincente Minnelli. Gene Kelly, Leslie Caron, Oscar Levant, Georges Guetary, Nina Foch. Joyous, original musical built around Gershwin score; dazzling in color. Plot of artist Kelly torn between gamine Caron and wealthy Foch is creaky, but the songs, dances, production are superb. Oscars include Best Picture, Story and Screenplay (Alan Jay Lerner), Cinematography (Alfred Gilks and John Alton), Scoring (Johnny Green and Saul Chaplin), Art Direction, Costume Design, and a special citation to Kelly. Look fast for Noel Neill as an art student. ▼

Americanization of Emily, The (1964) 117m. ½ D: Arthur Hiller. James Garner, Julie Andrews, Melvyn Douglas, James Coburn, Joyce Grenfell, Keenan Wynn, Judy Carne, Liz Fraser, Edward Binns, William Windom, Alan Sues. Garner is fall guy for U.S. admiral's master plan to have American naval officer first Normandy invasion victim, with predictable results. Cynical Garner-Andrews romance blends well with realistic view of life among U.S. military brass. Script by Paddy Chayefsky, from William Bradford Huie's novel. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

American Me (1992) C-126m. ½ D: Edward James Olmos. Edward James Olmos, William Forsythe, Pepe Serna, Danny De La Paz, Evelina Fernandez, Sal Lopez, Daniel Villarreal, Cary Hiroyuki Tagawa. Ambitious look at the so-called "Mexican Mafia" reflected through the life of a crime lord (Olmos), and the cycle of gang violence which extends from prison to the Southwest's Hispanic barrio communities. Attempts to be epic in scope and subject, but is too unfocused to really score, despite many tough, powerful moments. Olmos—who made his directorial debut here—and Forsythe stand out in the large cast. The prison scenes at Folsom were actually shot there. [R]▼

American Movie (1999) C-104m. ½ D: Chris Smith. Thoroughly engaging documentary about Mark Borchardt, an obsessive independent filmmaker whose aspirations clearly outweigh his talent. Unable to fund his most recent project, he sets out to complete the cheesy horror film he started but abandoned years earlier. Funny and revealing, but director Smith is never condescending toward his subject's dreams and desire for acknowledgment. [R] ▼

American Ninja (1986) C-95m. *½ D: Sam Firstenberg. Michael Dudikoff, Steve James, Judie Aronson, Guich Kooock, John Fujioka, Don Stewart, John LaMotta. Low-grade martial-arts entry series set at U.S. Army base in Philippines, with beefy Dudikoff as a soldier who finds ample reason to use his deadly skills. James comes off well as Dudikoff's equally proficient Army pal. Followed by four crummy sequels. [R] ▼

Americano, The (1955) C-85m. ½ D: William Castle. Glenn Ford, Cesar Romero, Frank Lovejoy, Ursula Thiess, Abbe Lane. American cowboy Ford delivers a herd of cattle to Brazil, but stays on when he gets caught up in a quarrel between rancher Lovejoy and local peasants. He falls for Thiess and becomes friendly with bandit Romero (fun in a flamboyant role). Standard Western set in 1955 Brazil benefits from South American shooting and colorful characters. ▼

American Pie (1999) C-95m.  D: Paul Weitz. Jason Biggs, Shannon Elizabeth, Alyson Hannigan, Chris Klein, Natasha Lyonne, Thomas Ian Nicholas, Tara Reid, Seann William Scott, Eugene Levy, Lawrence Pressman, Mena Suvari, Jennifer Coolidge. Good-natured teen comedy about four guys who vow to lose their virginity by the night of the high school prom. Raunchy gags gave this film its reputation, but they grow honestly out of its believable characters and situations. In fact, its values are old-fashioned, even if its sense of humor is not. Casey Affleck appears unbilled. Also available in unrated version. Followed by two theatrical sequels and three direct-to-video spin-offs. [R] ▼

American Pie 2 (2001) C-104m.  D: J.B. Rogers. Jason Biggs, Shannon Elizabeth, Alyson Hannigan, Chris Klein, Natasha Lyonne, Thomas Ian Nicholas, Tara Reid, Seann William Scott, Mena Suvari, Eddie Kaye Thomas, Eugene Levy, Chris Owen, Denise Faye, Lisa Arturo, Casey Affleck. Lazy sequel to comedy hit reunites the male friends for a summer at the beach after their first year of college; most of the female co-stars make only token appearances. Crude and obvious where the first film was clever and original, this squeezes all it can from echoes of the original movie and the likability of

its cast. Jennifer Coolidge appears unbilled. Unrated version runs 111m. Followed by AMERICAN WEDDING. [R] ▼

American Pimp (2000) C-90m.  D: The Hughes Brothers. Hard-hitting documentary focuses on 30 real-life black male "entrepreneurs" and their experiences in "the life." The filmmakers wisely let their flashy subjects speak for themselves, and they do so with amazing candor, stripping away the Hollywood image and revealing them as misogynist capitalists. Makes witty use of classic blaxploitation movie images of pimps to juxtapose fantasy with cold, hard reality. ▼

American Pop (1981) C-97m. ½ D: Ralph Bakshi. Voices of Ron Thompson, Marya Small, Jerry Holland, Lisa Jane Persky, Roz Kelly. Ambitious animated film, which follows 20th-century American music through pivotal characters in four generations. Bold graphics and a challenging narrative keep this interesting, if not always successful; animation buffs may wince at awkward rotoscoping (tracing from live action). Ultimate dilemma: the culmination of this heavily dramatic, multigenerational saga is the creation of punk rock! [R] ▼

American Psycho (2000) C-97m. *½ D: Mary Harron. Christian Bale, Willem Dafoe, Jared Leto, Reese Witherspoon, Samantha Mathis, Chloë Sevigny, Justin Theroux, Guinevere Turner, Matt Ross. A 1980s Wall Street yuppie has all the trappings of success—and the need to fit in—but also has an uncontrollable drive to kill people. Intense adaptation of Bret Easton Ellis' 1991 novel makes its satiric points early on, then has nothing to add. Bale gives a dynamic performance in this turgid film. Unrated version also available. Followed in 2002 by a direct-to-video sequel. Super 35. [R] ▼

American Rhapsody, An (2001) C-106m. ½ D: Éva Gardos. Nastassja Kinski, Tony Goldwyn, Scarlett Johansson, Kelly Endrész Banlák, Ági Bánfalvy, Zsuzsa Czinkóczi, Mae Whitman, Lisa Jane Per-

sky, Larisa Oleynik. A couple fleeing from Hungary in 1956 is forced to leave an infant daughter behind. At age six she's torn from the only mother and father she's ever known to join her real parents in America. Heartfelt film based on writer-director Gardos' own life doesn't really gel until its heroine becomes a teenager (Johansson) and rebels against her overprotective mother. Coproducer Colleen Camp appears briefly as a friendly neighbor. [PG-13] ▼

American Romance, An (1944) C-122m. ½ D: King Vidor. Brian Donlevy, Ann Richards, Walter Abel, John Qualen, Stephen McNally. Long, flavorful story of immigrant steelworker's rise to wealth and power. Might have been a better film with someone more magnetic than Donlevy in the lead. Originally released at 151m.

American Soldier, The (1970-German) 80m. ½ D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Karl Scheydt, Elga Sorbas, Jan George, Margarethe von Trotta, Hark Bohm, Ingrid Caven, Kurt Raab. Fassbinder sacrifices believability for mood in this dour film noir about a Vietnam vet (Scheydt) who becomes a hired assassin in the Munich underworld. Not so much an ode to the celluloid American gangster or allegory about the Vietnam war as a character study, loaded with in-jokes and absurdist references (such as the duplicitous moll named Rosa von Praunheim). Fassbinder also scripted. ▼

American Splendor (2003) C-101m. ½ D: Shari Springer Berman, Robert Pulcini. Paul Giamatti, Hope Davis, Judah Friedlander, James Urbaniak, Earl Billings, Donal Logue, Molly Shannon. Innovative film blends real life and dramatization in telling the story of Cleveland, Ohio, cynic Harvey Pekar, who becomes an unlikely celebrity by chronicling his mundane life in a series of comic books. The filmmakers manage to fuse footage of Pekar, his family, and friends with their movie alter egos in a fresh and constantly surprising way. Giamatti is perfect as the unrepentant curmudgeon. Written by the directors. [R] ▼

American Success SEE: American Success Company, The

American Success Company, The (1979) C-94m.  D: William Richert. Jeff Bridges, Belinda Bauer, Ned Beatty, Steven Keats, Bianca Jagger, John Glover. A contemporary fable about a young loser—in business and marriage—who decides to change his luck by emulating a macho prince. Offbeat in the extreme, often funny, but decidedly uneven. Filmed in Germany; based on a story by Larry Cohen. Richert has twice reedited and reissued the film: in 1981 as AMERICAN SUCCESS, then in 1983 simply as SUCCESS. [PG]

American Tail, An (1986) C-80m. ½ D: Don Bluth. Voices of Dom DeLuise, Christopher Plummer, Nehemiah Persoff, Madeline

Kahn, Phillip Glasser, John Finnegan, Cathianne Blore, Will Ryan. A young Russian mouse is separated from his family as they're about to arrive at their new homeland, America, in the late 19th century. Handsome, occasionally heart-tugging cartoon feature with a cute main character—but serious story flaws (why are there three climaxes?). Producer Steven Spielberg's first foray into animation. Followed by three sequels and an animated TV series, Fievel's American Tails. [G] ▼

American Tail: Fievel Goes West, An (1991) C-74m. ½ D: Phil Nibelink, Simon Wells. Voices of Philip Glasser, James Stewart, Erica Yohn, Cathy Cavadini, Nehemiah Persoff, Dom DeLuise, Amy Irving, John Cleese, Jon Lovitz. Pleasant enough animated feature for small fry follows immigrant Fievel the mouse and his family on a trek to the American West. Mediocre songs and uninspired character animation make it less than memorable—but Stewart's performance as over-the-hill sheriff Wylie Burp is a treat. Followed by two direct-to-video sequels. [G] ▼

American Teen (2008) C-102m.  D: Nanette Burstein. Enjoyable documentary follows five prototypical teenagers during their senior year of high school in Warsaw, Indiana. Almost too conveniently they fit into pigeonholes (a rich girl who's also the most popular, a basketball star, an artsy girl who doesn't fit in, a hunk, and a total dweeb), but it's impossible to predict how they will respond to various pressures that arise during this crucial year in their lives. Slickly packaged (and widely criticized for that) but undeniably entertaining. [PG-13]

American Tragedy, An (1931) 95m.  D: Josef von Sternberg. Phillips Holmes, Sylvia Sidney, Frances Dee, Irving Pichel, Frederick Burton, Claire McDowell. Straightforward telling of Theodore Dreiser story about weak young man torn between poor girlfriend and beautiful, wealthy girl who falls in love with him. Sidney is ideally cast, but film is cold and uninvolved; certainly not as florid as remake, A PLACE IN THE SUN.

American Violet (2009) C-103m.  D: Tim Disney. Nicole Beharie, Tim Blake Nelson, Will Patton, Michael O'Keefe, Xzibit, Charles S. Dutton, Alfre Woodard, Malcolm Barrett, Tim Ware, Paul David Story, David Warshofsky, Lucinda Jenney. Fortright, emotion-packed account of Dee Roberts (Beharie), an African-American single mother living in Texas. After being unjustly busted for drugs, she determinedly fights the system rather than accept a plea bargain for a crime she did not commit. Fact-based story is both an eye-opener and crowd-pleaser, with the 2000 presidential election tellingly playing out in the background. Beharie is a real find. Super 35. [PG-13]

American Way, The SEE: Riders of the Storm

American Wedding (2003) C-97m.  D: Jesse Dylan. Jason Biggs, Alyson Hannigan, Thomas Ian Nicholas, Seann William Scott, Eddie Kaye Thomas, Fred Willard, Eugene Levy, January Jones, Deborah Rush, Molly Cheek, Angela Paton, Jennifer Coolidge, Nikki Ziering, Lawrence Pressman. Biggs and Hannigan are getting married, but things start to go wrong in this second sequel to AMERICAN PIE... especially when Scott (as the ever-obnoxious Stifer) shows up. Some good farcical moments are offset by gross-out gags designed to see just how far one can go in search of laughs. Followed by two direct-to-video sequels. Super 35. [R] ▼

American Werewolf in London, An (1981) C-97m.  D: John Landis. David Naughton, Jenny Agutter, Griffin Dunne, John Woodvine, Brian Glover. A young man is bitten by a wolf on the British moors, with terrifying results. Not a spoof, but a full-blooded horror film that happens to have a sharp sense of humor—as well as a reverence for horror films past. Dynamite direction and script by Landis, startling Oscar-winning makeup effects by Rick Baker. Followed by an in-name-only sequel. [R] ▼

American Werewolf in Paris, An (1997) C-97m. *½ D: Anthony Waller. Tom Everett Scott, Julie Delpy, Vince Vieluf, Phil Buckman, Julie Bowen, Pierre Cosso, Tom Novembre, Thierry Lhermitte. Thrill-seeking American Scott falls for Parisienne Delpy, but she's a werewolf, and soon he's one, too, pitted against a group of leering lycanthropes bent on wiping out the unfit—such as American tourists. Begins well, but soon goes awry, with too much comedy and romance, and too much plot; the werewolf effects are plentiful but second-rate at best. No plot connections to the superior John Landis original. [R] ▼

American Women SEE: Closer You Get, The

America's Heart & Soul (2004) C-84m.  D: Louis Schwartzberg. An unsentimental portrait of America as seen through images, sounds, and the stories of some colorful people who represent individualism at its best—from a weaver carrying on a generations-old tradition to a disabled boy who competes in marathons in tandem with his father. This final story is so moving, nothing could follow it. [PG] ▼

America's Sweethearts (2001) C-102m. ½ D: Joe Roth. Julia Roberts, Billy Crystal, Catherine Zeta-Jones, John Cusack, Hank Azaria, Stanley Tucci, Christopher Walken, Alan Arkin, Seth Green. Slick if forgettable comedy about a much-loved Hollywood couple—now split—who agree to come together to promote their final film at a press junket. Crystal is the can-do publicist, Roberts is the sister and assistant to a very spoiled Zeta-Jones. No particular hilarity or insights here, but an easy-to-take mix

Amistad (1997) C-152m.  D: Steven Spielberg. Morgan Freeman, Anthony Hopkins, Matthew McConaughey, Nigel Hawthorne, Djimon Hounsou, David Paymer, Pete Postlethwaite, Stellan Skarsgård, Anna Paquin, Tomas Milian, Austin Pendleton, Allan Rich, Paul Guilfoyle, Peter Firth, Xander Berkeley, Jeremy Northam, Arliss Howard, Chiwetel Ejiofor. Little-known saga of the Spanish slave ship La Amistad, whose "cargo" broke their chains in 1839—and wound up in a U.S. courtroom, ultimately attracting the attention of ex-president John Quincy Adams (Hopkins). A good film that's frustratingly uneven: the slave ship scenes are wrenching (and unavoidably reminiscent of Spielberg's SCHINDLER'S LIST), and Adams' final summation is a showcase speech. But the film is long, and the dramatic gaps too many. Hounsou offers a powerful presence as Cinque, the leader of the slave revolt. [R] ▼

Amityville Horror, The (1979) C-117m. *½ D: Stuart Rosenberg. James Brolin, Margot Kidder, Rod Steiger, Don Stroud, Murray Hamilton, Michael Sacks, Helen Shaver, Natasha Ryan, Val Avery, John Larch, Amy Wright, James Tolkan. Family moves into supposedly haunted Long Island home, finds that "supposedly" is inoperative. Based on Jay Anson's (supposedly) nonfiction best-seller, film is yawn-inducing rehash of old schticks; not even good for laughs, with Steiger mercilessly hamming it up as local priest. Followed by a prequel, AMITYVILLE II: THE POSSESSION, a TV movie, and several so-called sequels. Remade in 2005. [R] ▼

Amityville Horror, The (2005) C-89m.  D: Andrew Douglas. Ryan Reynolds, Melissa George, Jesse James, Jimmy Bennett, Chloë Grace Moretz, Rachel Nichols, Philip Baker Hall. Reynolds, his new wife, and stepchildren move into an old Long Island house where multiple murders occurred a year before. The youngest child is befriended by a ghost, while the husband is slowly driven into a homicidal rage. Professionally made, well-acted, but uninvolved tale is both familiar and overdone. Based on the same supposedly true story as the 1979

movie, but ends up resembling THE SHINING. Super 35. [R]▼

Amityville II: The Possession (1982) C-104m. BOMB D: Damiano Damiani. Burt Young, Rutanya Alda, James Olson, Jack Magner, Diane Franklin, Andrew Prine, Ted Ross, Moses Gunn. Officially a prequel to THE AMITYVILLE HORROR, but actually just a ripoff. A loathsome lout (Young) moves into notorious Long Island house with his troubled family and all hell breaks loose. Alternately dull and disgusting. [R]▼

Amityville 3-D (1983) C-105m. ½ D: Richard Fleischer. Tony Roberts, Tess Harper, Robert Joy, Candy Clark, John Beal, Leora Dana, John Harkins, Lori Loughlin, Meg Ryan. Thoroughly familiar retreat of spirit-in-the-house formula, with Roberts as a Doubting Thomas who buys the dreaded Amityville house (seen in two otherwise unrelated films). Competence at every level keeps this from being trash; excellent 3-D effects too. Shown on TV as AMITYVILLE: THE DEMON; followed by TV movie AMITYVILLE 4: THE EVIL ESCAPES and two direct-to-video sequels. ArriVision. [PG]▼

Among Giants (1998-British) C-96m. ½ D: Sam Miller. Pete Postlethwaite, Rachel Griffiths, James Thornton, Lennie James, Andy Serkis, Rob Jarvis, Alan Williams. A rough-hewn contractor hires a rowdy lot to paint the huge electric pylons that dot the British countryside. They become a sort of outlaw family, and are joined by an adventurous Aussie woman who likes heights. Good performances and rich atmosphere help, but it's a less successful dip into working-class life by the writer of THE FULL MONTY, Simon Beaufoy. [R]▼

Amongst Friends (1993) C-86m. ½ D: Rob Weiss. Joseph Lindsey, Patrick McGaw, Steve Parlavacchio, Mira Sorvino, Brett Lambson, Michael Artura. Superficial (and, by now, all-too-familiar) tale of young male punks coming of age on America's mean streets, only these are suburban rather than urban and the boys are wealthy instead of working-class. Well made and not uninteresting, but Martin Scorsese did it—and did it better—20 years earlier. [R]▼

Amores Perros (2000-Mexican) C-153m.  D: Alejandro Gonzalez Inarritu. Emilio Echevarria, Gael Garcia Bernal, Goya Toledo,

Alvaro Guerrero, Vanessa Bauche, Jorge Salinas, Marco Perez, Rodrigo Murray. Arresting look at divergent lives that intersect in a Mexico City car crash. Broken into three sections, film traces several different characters and their relationships, all connected in one way or another by their dogs, raising tough questions about the human condition in an unforgiving city. Brutally realistic (but judiciously edited) depiction of dogfights and their outcomes will make this tough for some viewers; for others there are considerable rewards here. Feature debut for TV commercial director Inarritu. English title: LOVE'S A BITCH. [R]▼

Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders, The (1965-British) C-126m. ½ D: Terence Young. Kim Novak, Richard Johnson, Angela Lansbury, George Sanders, Vittorio De Sica, Lilli Palmer, Leo McKern, Cecil Parker. Billed as female Tom Jones, Moll is far from thrilling. Fine cast romps through 18th-century England from bedroom to boudoir, but film needs more spice than Novak can muster. The two leads were married briefly in real life. Panavision.▼

Amos & Andrew (1993) C-94m. BOMB D: E. Max Frye. Nicolas Cage, Samuel L. Jackson, Dabney Coleman, Brad Douir, Michael Lerner, Margaret Colin, Chelcie Ross, I. M. Hobson, Jodi Long, Giancarlo Esposito, Loretta Devine, Bob Balaban, Tracey Walter. Agonizing comedy about a professionally distinguished black man who moves into a new home, only to be harassed by white neighbors who assume he's a prowler. Intended social satire is as broadly silly as a '60s Disney comedy; maybe they should have called this THAT DARN AFRO-AMERICAN. [PG-13]▼

Amsterdam Kill, The (1977) C-90m. ½ D: Robert Clouse. Robert Mitchum, Bradford Dillman, Richard Egan, Leslie Nielsen, Keye Luke. Tired drug bust movie gets a shot from Mitchum's presence as a retired narc who's lured back by a former colleague suspected of being part of an international dope ring. Panavision. [R]▼

Amy (1981) C-100m.  D: Vincent McEveety. Jenny Agutter, Barry Newman, Kathleen Nolan, Chris Robinson, Lou Fant, Margaret O'Brien, Nanette Fabray, Lance LeGault, Lucille Benson. Sincere, entertaining Disney tale of Agutter leaving her husband in the early 1900s, teaching at a school for the handicapped. Though the film is targeted at kids, parents won't be bored. Made for TV, released to theaters instead. [G]▼

her overprotective mother, the widow of a rock star. Some of the film's ingredients seem contrived, others endearing, as it shifts from quirky comedy to drama and back again. Written and photographed by Tass' partner and husband, David Parker. [PG-13] ●

Amy's Orgasm (2001) C-87m. ½ D: Julie Davis, Julie Davis, Nick Chinlund, Caroline Aaron, Jeff Cesario, Mitchell Whitfield, Jennifer Bransford, Mark Brown. Writer-director Davis stars as an Ivy League-educated self-help author who somehow manages to fall for a shock jock with a reputation for dating bimbos. Although the romance between these two opposites develops a little too quickly, the actors make the budding relationship fun to watch anyway. Warning for those expecting a hot sex romp: the title is as steamy as it gets in this indie comedy. Aka AMY'S O. [R] ▼●

Anaconda (1997) C-90m.  D: Luis Llosa. Jennifer Lopez, Ice Cube, Jon Voight, Eric Stoltz, Jonathan Hyde, Kari Wuhrer, Owen Wilson, Vincent Castellanos. Documentary film crew adrift on the Amazon is besieged by a giant killer snake. Hokey special effects and an expositionless script detract, but there's campy fun in the form of Voight's demonic snake poacher, who speaks with a bad Brandoesque drawl and strangles human victims between his knees. Film makes most of beautiful Brazilian rainforest locale, yet the big serpentine climax looks strangely like deepest, darkest Arcadia. (In fact, it's the Arboretum in L.A. County.) Followed by ANACONDAS: THE HUNT FOR THE BLOOD ORCHID and two TV sequels. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Anacondas: The Hunt for the Blood Orchid (2004) C-96m.  D: Dwight H. Little. Morris Chestnut, Johnny Messner, KaDee Strickland, Matthew Marsden, Nicholas Gonzalez, Eugene Byrd, Salli Richardson-Whitfield. The original ANACONDA had Jennifer Lopez tied up to Ice Cube and a snake-regurgitated Jon Voight; in this sequel, we have Chestnut getting woozy after a rare spider gives him a 151-proof bite. Still, that's an apparent occupational hazard for anyone trekking the Borneo jungle seeking a fountain-of-youth plant right near the spot where snakes converge for mating season. There's a jolt or two to satisfy diehards. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Analyze That (2002) C-95m.  D: Harold Ramis. Robert De Niro, Billy Crystal, Lisa Kudrow, Joe Viterelli, Cathy Moriarty-Gentile, Reg Rogers, Callie Thorne, Pat Cooper. De Niro is sprung from Sing Sing into the custody of psychiatrist Crystal, who actually believes the mob boss is going to go straight. Another good argument for outlawing sequels; all the novelty and freshness of ANALYZE THIS is gone, replaced by contrived plotting and just a handful of laughs. Even watching De Niro sing tunes

Analyze This (1999) C-103m.  D: Harold Ramis. Robert De Niro, Billy Crystal, Lisa Kudrow, Joe Viterelli, Chazz Palminteri, Bill Macy, Leo Rossi, Max Casella, Molly Shannon, Pat Cooper, Elizabeth Bracco. Amusing comedy about a mob boss who's losing his grip and is persuaded to talk to a psychiatrist—which causes him great embarrassment. A small idea stretched out too far but made worthwhile by De Niro's wonderful comic performance as the foulmouthed mobster who feels "conflicted." Followed by ANALYZE THAT. [R] ▼●●

Anastasia (1956) C-105m. * D: Anatole Litvak. Ingrid Bergman, Yul Brynner, Helen Hayes, Akim Tamiroff, Martita Hunt, Felix Aylmer, Natalie Schafer, Ivan Desny. Inspired casting makes this film exceptional. Bergman won Oscar as amnesiac refugee selected by Brynner to impersonate surviving daughter of Russia's last czar. High point: confrontation scene in which Hayes as grand duchess must determine if girl is her relative. Screenplay by Arthur Laurents based on Marcelle Maurette's play. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Anastasia (1997) C-88m. ½ D: Don Bluth, Gary Goldman. Voices of Meg Ryan, John Cusack, Kelsey Grammer, Angela Lansbury, Christopher Lloyd, Hank Azaria, Bernadette Peters, Kirsten Dunst, Andrea Martin, Jim Cummings, Liz Callaway, Lacey Chabert, Jonathan Dokuchitz. Elaborate but uneven cartoon musical about the daughter of Nicholas and Alexandra, who supposedly survived in Russia in 1917 only to reappear in Paris a decade later—where two schemers try to collect part of her inheritance from her grandmother, the Dowager Empress. Innocuous enough for kids, but adults may question the '90s American dialogue (and readings). Animation style is also inconsistent—some of it realistic, some of it wildly fanciful. Loosely based on the 1956 movie. Followed in 1999 by a direct-to-video sequel: BARTOK THE MAGNIFICENT. CinemaScope. [G] ▼●●

Anatomy of a Murder (1959) 160m. * D: Otto Preminger. James Stewart, Lee Remick, Ben Gazzara, Arthur O'Connell, Eve Arden, Kathryn Grant (Crosby), George C. Scott, Orson Bean, Murray Hamilton. Long, exciting courtroom drama; daring when released, tamer now. Sterling cast: O'Connell as drunken lawyer inspired by Stewart, Scott as prosecuting attorney, Joseph Welch as judge (Welch was the famous Army-McCarthy hearings lawyer who later became a judge in real life). Stewart towers over all as witty, easygoing, but cagy defense lawyer. Script by Wendell Mayes, from novel by Robert Traver (Judge

John D. Voelker). Duke Ellington composed the score and also appears on-screen. ▼●●

Anatomy of a Syndicate SEE: Big Operator, The

Anatomy of Hell (2004-French) C-80m. BOMB D: Catherine Breillat. Amira Casar, Rocco Siffredi. After attempting suicide in the bathroom of a gay disco, a woman hires the man who rescues her to spend four nights in her company, challenging him to "watch me where I'm unwatchable." Meant to be provocative and controversial, but mostly it's pretentious and homophobic. There's plenty of XXX footage, which is alternately monotonous and unintentionally funny. The title is apt. ▼

Anchorman: The Legend of Ron Burgundy (2004) C-95m.  D: Adam McKay. Will Ferrell, Christina Applegate, Paul Rudd, Steve Carell, David Koechner, Fred Willard, Danny Trejo, Missi Pyle, Holmes Osborne, Fred Armisen, Seth Rogen, Laura Kightlinger, Chris Parnell. In the 1970s, TV news anchor Ron Burgundy (Ferrell) "owns" San Diego, until an attractive and ambitious female reporter arrives on the scene. A sketch comedy inflated to feature length, with occasional laughs and a number of gag appearances that try to camouflage a threadbare, one-note script. Ferrell and director McKay coscripted. Unrated version runs 103m. [PG-13] ▼

Anchors Aweigh (1945) C-140m. ½ D: George Sidney. Frank Sinatra, Kathryn Grayson, Gene Kelly, Jose Iturbi, Dean Stockwell, Pamela Britton. Popular '40s musical of sailors on leave doesn't hold up storywise, but musical numbers still good: Sinatra's "I Fall in Love Too Easily," Kelly's irresistible dance with Jerry the cartoon mouse. ▼●●

Anderson Platoon, The (1967-French) 65m. ½ D: Pierre Schoendorffer. Superior chronicle of soldiers in American Army platoon fighting, living, and dying in Vietnam. Vivid, striking images, photographed at the front line. A Best Documentary Academy Award winner. ▼

Anderson Tapes, The (1971) C-98m.  D: Sidney Lumet. Sean Connery, Dyan Cannon, Martin Balsam, Ralph Meeker, Alan King, Margaret Hamilton, Christopher Walken, Garrett Morris. Fast-paced thriller of ex-con's master holdup plan, and strange electronic surveillances that have tracked him since he left prison. Climax is particularly exciting. Fine Quincy Jones score; Walken's debut. [PG] ▼●●

display in simple tale of man-teaser finding it hard to resist temptation. Great cast clicks in Brigitte's best-known vehicle. Beware edited prints. Remade (in name only) by Vadim in the U.S. in 1988. CinemaScope. ▼●●

And God Created Woman (1988) C-100m. *½ D: Roger Vadim. Rebecca De Mornay, Vincent Spano, Frank Langella, Donovan Leitch, Judith Chapman, Jaime McEnnan, Benjamin Mouton, David Shelley. Surprisingly tepid "variation" on director Vadim's one-time scandale international (see above). Luscious De Mornay marries carpenter Spano merely to secure her release from prison, then keeps him panting as she frolics with gubernatorial candidate Langella. Not all that different from Goldie Hawn's OVERBOARD; beware rock 'n' roll subplot. [R] ▼●●

... And God Spoke (the making of ...) (1993) C-83m.  D: Arthur Borman. Michael Riley, Stephen Rappaport, Lou Ferrigno, Soupy Sales, Eve Plumb, Fred Kaz, Michael Medved. Occasionally clever satire in the THIS IS SPINAL TAP mold, only the subject here is the casting and production of a numbingly awful multi-million-dollar biblical epic. After one day the production is behind schedule. Lou (The Incredible Hulk) Ferrigno plays Cain; Eve (The Brady Bunch) Plumb is Mrs. Noah; and Soupy Sales is Moses! An amusing little sleeper. ▼

... And Justice for All (1979) C-117m. ½ D: Norman Jewison. Al Pacino, Jack Warden, John Forsythe, Lee Strasberg, Jeffrey Tambor, Christine Lahti, Sam Levene, Craig T. Nelson, Joe Morton. Lawyer Pacino single-handedly battles Maryland's judicial system. Outrageous satire mixes uncomfortably with painfully sad moments, in attempt to make biting statement on buying and selling of justice. Strong performances and good location photography cannot overcome weak script. Written by Barry Levinson and Valerie Curtin. Lahti's feature debut. [R] ▼●●

And Now For Something Completely Different (1971-British) C-89m.  D: Ian McNaughton. Graham Chapman, John

Cleese, Eric Idle, Terry Gilliam, Terry Jones, Michael Palin, Carol Cleveland, Connie Booth. First feature by the Monty Python troupe is a kind of "Greatest Hits" album, with some of the most popular sketches and animated bits from their long-running TV series. Fine introduction to their peculiar brand of humor includes Dead Parrot, The World's Deadliest Joke, Upper-Class Twit of the Year, and memorable Lumberjack Song. [PG]▼●●

And Now ... Ladies and Gentlemen ... (2002-French) C-129m.  D: Claude Lelouch. Jeremy Irons, Patricia Kaas, Thierry Lhermitte, Alessandra Martines, Claudia Cardinale, Ticky Holgado, Yvan Attal, Amidou. Thief Irons suffers from a memory disorder that complicates any recollection of having pulled off a robbery for which he's accused. Kaas (in real life a French recording star) has the same affliction and becomes a soul mate. Story seems to start in the middle but eventually straightens itself out; still longer than it needs to be. Large cast of characters rushes in and disappears as if they were merely showing up to plunk an extra quarter in a parking meter. Lelouch hasn't lost his eye; the photography by Pierre-William Glenn (DAY FOR NIGHT and other Truffauts) is luscious. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

And Now My Love (1975-French) C-121m. ½ D: Claude Lelouch. Marthe Keller, Andre Dussollier, Charles Denner, Carla Gravina, Gilbert Becaud, Charles Gerard. A what'll-he-do-next kind of extravaganza, in which Lelouch salutes life, love and the 20th century, using comedy, drama, and music to bring wealthy Keller and ne'er-do-well Dussollier together for the fadeout. Opens in b&w. Originally 150m.; restored version runs 143m. [PG]▼●

And Now the Screaming Starts! (1973-British) C-87m.  D: Roy Ward Baker. Peter Cushing, Stephanie Beacham, Herbert Lom, Patrick Magee, Ian Ogilvy. Beacham weds Ogilvy and finds that she's living in a house that has been under a curse for years; OK horror drama with a good cast. [R]▼●

Andre (1994) C-94m.  D: George Miller.

Keith Carradine, Tina Majorino, Chelsea Field, Aidan Pendleton, Shane Meier, Keith Szarabjka, Joshua Jackson. Agreeably old-fashioned family film, set in a coastal town in Maine in the early 1960s, about an animal-loving clan who adopts a baby seal that adopts them in return, and refuses to leave. Aimed at children, but amiable enough for parents, with a soundtrack full of 1960s pop music. Based on a true story; watch that vintage home-movie footage of Andre during the closing credits. Clairmont-Scope. [PG]▼●●

Andrei Roublev (1966-Russian) C/B&W-185m. * D: Andrei Tarkovsky. Anatoli Solonitzine, Ivan Lapikov, Nikolai Grinko, Nikolai Sergueiev. Brilliantly devised and directed account of famous 15th-century icon painter, focusing on an age-old conflict: should an artist participate in the political and social upheavals of the time, or should he simply record history with his brush? Magnificent film is worthy of comparison with the best of Eisenstein's historical dramas. Scripted by Tarkovsky and Andrei Milchakov-Konchalovsky; shelved by the Soviet authorities, and unseen until 1971. Restored version runs 20m. longer. Sovscope.▼●●

Androcles and the Lion (1952) 98m.  D: Chester Erskine. Jean Simmons, Alan Young, Victor Mature, Maurice Evans, Elsa Lanchester, Robert Newton. Shaw's amusing satire of ancient Rome can't be dampened by dull production retelling fable of Christian and lion he befriends.▼

Android (1982) C-80m.  D: Aaron Lipstadt. Klaus Kinski, Don Opper, Brie Howard, Norbert Weisser, Crofton Hardester, Kendra Kirchner. Entertaining sci-fi story about an almost-human android who's been working as assistant to mad scientist Kinski on a remote space station and learns he is about to be put out of commission. Charming, quirky ultra-low-budget film made on leftover sets from Roger Corman's BATTLE BEYOND THE STARS. Opper, who plays Max 404, also cowrote screenplay. [PG]▼●●

Andromeda Strain, The (1971) C-130m. ½ D: Robert Wise. Arthur Hill, David Wayne, James Olson, Kate Reid, Paula Kelly. Overlong sci-fi thriller in which small team of superscientists tries to isolate deadly strain of virus from outer space, racing against time and nuclear detonation. From Michael Crichton's novel. And the Angels Sing (1944) 96m. ½ D: George Marshall. Dorothy Lamour, Fred MacMurray, Betty Hutton, Diana Lynn, Raymond Walburn, Eddie Foy, Jr. Agreeable musical of singing sister act trying to make it big; MacMurray gives them their break. Brassy Hutton tries to steal the show.

And Then There Were None (1945) 98m. * D: René Clair. Barry Fitzgerald, Walter Huston, Louis Hayward, Roland Young,

June Duprez, C. Aubrey Smith, Judith Anderson, Mischa Auer, Richard Haydn. Highly suspenseful Agatha Christie yarn of ten people invited to lonely island where one by one they're murdered. Great script by Dudley Nichols complemented by superb visual ideas. Remade three times as TEN LITTLE INDIANS. ▼●●

And the Ship Sails On (1984-Italian) C-138m.  D: Federico Fellini. Freddie Jones, Barbara Jefford, Victor Poletti, Peter Cellier, Janet Suzman, Elisa Mai Nardi, Norma West, Paolo Paoloni. Uniquely Felliniesque ocean voyage, circa 1914, with an earnest journalist (Jones) acting as our "host" and introducing us to a variety of celebrated guests who have gathered for funeral voyage of great opera star. Flagrantly unrealistic, deliciously absurd, and somewhat uneven, but full of striking images and those indelible Fellini faces . . . plus an opening sequence that's absolutely mesmerizing. [PG] ▼●

Andy Hardy series SEE: Leonard Maltin's Classic Movie Guide

Andy Warhol's Bad (1977) C-106m. ½ D: Jed Johnson. Carroll Baker, Perry King, Susan Tyrrell, Stefania Cassini, Cyndia Foxe. Queens housewife supplements her facial-hair-removal business by running a murder-for-hire concern specializing in children and animals. Goes without saying that Warhol's most expensive film is in execrable taste, but it frequently succeeds as a sick joke; Baker, at least, seems to be having a good time. [R] ▼●

Andy Warhol's Dracula (1974-Italian-French) C-93m.  D: Paul Morrissey. Udo Kier, Joe Dallesandro, Arno Juerging, Vittorio De Sica, Maxime McKendry, Roman Polanski. Dracula (Kier) learns he must have blood of virgins (pronounced "where-gins") in order to survive. Companion piece to ANDY WARHOL'S FRANKENSTEIN is far less bloody and has some amusing bits . . . but a long way from LOVE AT FIRST BITE. Originally released at 106m.; aka BLOOD FOR DRACULA and YOUNG DRACULA. [R—edited from original X rating] ▼●●

Andy Warhol's Frankenstein (1974-Italian-German-French) C-94m. BOMB D: Paul Morrissey. Joe Dallesandro, Monique Van Vooren, Udo Kier, Srdjan Zelenovic, Dalila di Lazzaro. Mad baron Kier clones body-beautiful monsters out of bloody human innards. Campy and disgusting, with severed heads and hands galore. Originally shown in 3-D. Aka FLESH FOR FRANKENSTEIN. [R—edited from original X rating.] Space-Vision. ▼●●

band Marshall for vacation, falling in love with Douglas. Not worthy of star trio. ▼●

Angel (1982) SEE: Danny Boy

Angel (1984) C-92m. *½ D: Robert Vincent O'Neil. Cliff Gorman, Susan Tyrrell, Dick Shawn, Rory Calhoun, John Diehl, Donna Wilkes. Wilkes is a straight-A high school student by day, Hollywood hooker by night—but despite "colorful" characters like drag queen Shawn, film goes nowhere, and remains inexplicably tame in terms of what it shows. Sequel: AVENGING ANGEL. [R] ▼●●

Angela (1984-Canadian) C-100m.  D: Boris Sagal. Sophia Loren, Steve Railsback, John Huston, John Vernon. Dreary story of the relationship between a woman and a younger man who turns out to be her son. Made in 1978. ▼

Angel-A (2005-French) 91m.  D: Luc Besson. Rie Rasmussen, Jamel Debbouze, Gilbert Melki, Serge Riaboukine, Akim Chir, Erik Balliet. Small-time swindler with endless debts and the mob on his tail decides to end it all by jumping off a bridge. A beautiful girl has the same idea and beats him to it, so he jumps in to rescue her; she returns the favor by turning his luck around. Besson's first time behind the camera since 1999 is a love letter to Paris, filmed in gorgeous widescreen black and white . . . but his foray into romantic comedy is a misstep, taking a sledgehammer approach to a very slight premise. Besson also wrote the screenplay. Super 35. [R] ●

Angel and the Badman (1947) 100m.  D: James Edward Grant. John Wayne, Gail Russell, Harry Carey, Irene Rich, Bruce Cabot. First-rate Western with Russell humanizing gunfighter Wayne; predictable plot is extremely well handled. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Angel, Angel, Down We Go (1969) C-103m. *½ D: Robert Thom. Jennifer Jones, Jordan Christopher, Holly Near, Roddy McDowall, Lou Rawls, Charles Aidman. Awesomely dated tale of corruption, sex, drugs, and fame. Overweight teenager (Near) is distraught when her rock 'n' roll lover (Christopher) begins an affair with her jewelry-obsessed mother (Jones). Reissued as CULT OF THE DAMNED. [R]

Angela's Ashes (1999) C-146m. ½ D: Alan Parker. Emily Watson, Robert Carlyle, Joe Breen, Ciaran Owens, Michael Leake, Ronnie Masterson, Pauline McLynn, Eanna MacLiam, Gerard McSorley, Eamonn Owens; narrated by Andrew Bennett. Competent but uninspired adaptation of Frank McCourt's hugely popular, Pulitzer Prize-winning memoir about growing up in the dire poverty of Dublin in the 1930s and '40s, with a large family, a ne'er-do-well father, and an indomitable mother. Has the right look and feel, but lacks resonance and humor. [R] ▼●

Angel at My Table, An (1990-New Zealand) C-158m. ½ D: Jane Campion.

Kerry Fox, Alexia Keogh, Karen Fergusson, Iris Churn, K.J. Wilson, Martyn Sanderson. Stunning, biting autobiography of Janet Frame, a roly-poly, repressed little girl who grew up to become New Zealand's most famous novelist/poet—but not before being misdiagnosed a schizophrenic, spending eight years in a mental hospital. Campion beautifully portrays the various stages of Frame's life, and captures the writer's inner world. Fox is riveting as the adult Janet. Scripted by Laura Jones; adapted from a trio of Frame's autobiographies. Originally produced as a three-part television series. ▼●●

Angel Baby (1961) 97m.  D: Paul Wendkos, Hubert Cornfield. George Hamilton, Salome Jens, Mercedes McCambridge, Joan Blondell, Henry Jones, Burt Reynolds. Penetrating exposé of evangelistic circuit plying backwood country; Jens in title role, Hamilton the promoter, McCambridge his shrewish wife—marvelous cameos by Blondell and Jones. Reynolds' film debut. ▼●

Angel Baby (1995-Australian) C-105m. ½ D: Michael Rymer. John Lynch, Jacqueline MacKenzie, Colin Friels, Deborah Lee Furness. Lynch and MacKenzie play an emotionally fragile Melbourne couple who meet and fall in love in a rehabilitation center, throwing his family for a loop when she gets pregnant and can't subject the fetus to her medication. Well-acted but overelaborate treatment of the subject matter; won Australian Film Institute awards for Best Picture, Actor, Actress, Director, Screenplay, Cinematography, and Editing. ▼●

Angel Eyes (2001) C-103m. ½ D: Luis Mandoki. Jennifer Lopez, Jim Caviezel, Terrence Howard, Sonia Braga, Jeremy Sisto, Monet Mazur, Shirley Knight, Victor Argo. Lopez plays a Chicago cop who's cut off from her family; then a lost soul comes into her life, a man who's running from his past. Neither he nor she realizes that they share a special connection. Sincere performances by the two leads make this watchable, though the story is predictable and familiar. [R] ▼●

Angel Face (1952) 91m.  D: Otto Preminger. Robert Mitchum, Jean Simmons, Herbert Marshall, Mona Freeman, Leon Ames, Barbara O'Neil, Kenneth Tobey, Jim Backus. Slow-building but engrossing film noir provides uncharacteristic role for Simmons as wealthy Marshall's impulsive daughter, who lures Mitchum away from his job as an ambulance driver (and girlfriend Freeman) and into a job as a chauffeur. But as he falls for her, he's initially unaware that she's nuts and has dark plans for her hated stepmother (O'Neil). Preminger's best movie in this vein after LAURA; its reputation has steadily increased over the decades. ●

chael Higgins, Charles Gordone, Kathleen Wilhoite, Pruitt Taylor Vince. Two-bit private eye Rourke is hired by mysterious De Niro to track down a missing man, which leads him into a serpentine investigation—and a kind of emotional quicksand. An American Gothic yarn, full of striking, sensual, and frightening images, though after a while it bogs down. Intriguing, if not terribly appealing. Script by director Parker, based on the novel Falling Angel by William Hjortsberg. A steamy sex scene was snipped (by seconds) to avoid an X-rating in the U.S.; it's restored on video. [R] ▼●●

Angel in My Pocket (1969) C-105m.  D: Alan Rafkin. Andy Griffith, Lee Meriwether, Jerry Van Dyke, Kay Medford, Edgar Buchanan, Gary Collins. Fans of Griffith's TV series may enjoy homespun story of young minister trying to win confidence of new small-town parish. Predictable situations, cliché dialogue, with Van Dyke intolerable as obnoxious brother-in-law. Techniscope. [G]

Angel Levine, The (1970) C-104m. ½ D: Jan Kadar. Zero Mostel, Harry Belafonte, Ida Kaminska, Milo O'Shea, Eli Wallach, Anne Jackson, Gloria Foster. Touching, humorous, and sad. Black angel named Levine, on the outs in Heaven, tries to help poor old Morris Mishkin. A tale often told—seldom this well. Based on a story by Bernard Malamud; script by Bill Gunn and Ronald Ribman. [PG] ▼●

Angelo, My Love (1983) C-115m.  D: Robert Duvall. Angelo Evans, Michael Evans, Steve "Patalay" Tsigonoff, Millie Tsigonoff, Cathy Kitchen. Fascinating journey into world of modern-day gypsies, with "story" loosely wrapped around precocious Angelo Evans, a remarkable young street hustler. Surprisingly successful attempt by Duvall to weave fictional story into real settings with nonprofessional cast. Incidentally, the two men who sing "Golden Days" in a restaurant scene are Duvall's brothers. [R] ▼●

Angel on My Shoulder (1946) 101m.  D: Archie Mayo. Paul Muni, Anne Baxter, Claude Rains, George Cleveland, Onslow Stevens. Entertaining fantasy of murdered convict Muni sent to earth by Devil as respected judge, and his efforts to outwit Satan while still in mortal form. Remade for TV in 1980 with Peter Strauss and Richard Kiley. ▼●●

Angels SEE: Angels Hard as They Come
Angels & Demons (2009) C-138m. ½ D: Ron Howard. Tom Hanks, Ewan McGregor, Ayelet Zurer, Stellan Skarsgård, Pierfrancesco Favino, Nikolaj Lie Kaas, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Rance Howard, Gino Conforti. In this prequel to THE DA VINCI CODE (based on Dan Brown's best-selling novel), Harvard symbologist Hanks is recruited by the Vatican to help unravel a mystery with a ticking clock: four cardinals have been kidnapped and will die before midnight in ritualistic fashion before a stolen canister of powerfully explosive antimatter is detonated in St. Peter's Square. Is this the work of the ancient society known as the Illuminati? Or are the real enemies within the Vatican itself? Fast-paced thriller is engaging for a while, then turns repetitive, ponderous, and downright silly. As with THE DA VINCI CODE, this movie diminishes the power of the book. Super 35. [PG-13]

Angels and Insects (1995-U.S.-British) C-116m.  D: Philip Haas. Mark Rylance, Kristin Scott Thomas, Patsy Kensit, Jeremy Kemp, Douglas Henshall, Saskia Wickham, Chris Larkin, Anna Massey. Fascinating, mature drama, set in Victorian England, with impoverished naturalist Rylance taken in by Kemp's wealthy family and falling for his lovely, soft-spoken daughter (Kensit). While the man of science studies the social order of the insect world, the humans around him appear increasingly eccentric. Film methodically builds to devastating conclusion; Scott Thomas (playing a poor relation assisting Rylance with his work) delivers an award-caliber performance. A. S. Byatt's novella Morpho Eugenia was adapted by the director and his wife, Belinda Haas. A PBS American Playhouse presentation. [R] ▼●●

Angels Die Hard (1970) C-86m.  D: Richard Compton. Tom Baker, William Smith, Connie Nelson, R. G. Armstrong, Beach Dickerson, Rita Murray, Dan Haggerty, Bambi Allen. Average biker picture has Angels turning out to be good guys for a change as they save people in a mine disaster. Boasts an impressive cast of regulars from this genre. [R] ▼

Angels Hard as They Come (1971) C-90m. *½ D: Joe Viola. James Iglehart, Gilda Texter, Gary Busey, Charles Dierkop, Gary Littlejohn, Larry Tucker, Sharon Peckinpah, Scott Glenn. Loosely structured road movie satirizes the format, but can't escape the clichés. Produced and cowritten by Jonathan Demme (who claims it's a biker version of RASHOMON); Busey's film debut. Aka ANGELS. [R] ▼

Angels in the Outfield (1994) C-102m. ½ D: William Dear. Danny Glover, Tony

Danza, Brenda Fricker, Ben Johnson, Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Milton Davis, Jr., Christopher Lloyd, Jay O. Sanders, Taylor Negron, Matthew McConaughey, Dermot Mulroney, Adrien Brody. Inoffensive remake, with the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates of the original now the last-place California Angels. Glover is the team's scowling manager; the invisible angels of the original are now depicted with glitzy special effects; and the prayers of a boy (Gordon-Levitt), rather than a girl, result in the title miracle. Okay entertainment for kids, but the original was better. Followed by two TV sequels. [PG] ▼●●

Angels Over Broadway (1940) 80m. ½ D: Ben Hecht, Lee Garmes. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Rita Hayworth, Thomas Mitchell, John Qualen, George Watts. Mordant, ahead-of-its-time black comedy in which hustler Fairbanks decides to do "one good deed"—rescuing suicidal embezzler Qualen—aided by chorus girl Hayworth and boozy Mitchell (who spouts reams of sardonic dialogue in a bravura performance). Hecht buff's will undoubtedly rate this higher, but despite impeccable production, it's just too offbeat (and pleased with itself about it) for most viewers. ▼●●

Angel Street SEE: Gaslight (1940)

Angels Wash Their Faces, The (1939) 84m. ½ D: Ray Enright. Ann Sheridan, Dead End Kids, Frankie Thomas, Bonita Granville, Ronald Reagan, Margaret Hamilton, Marjorie Main, Eduardo Ciannelli. Protective sister Sheridan tries to clear brother Thomas' police record, but he joins Dead End Kids for more trouble. OK juvenile delinquent drama.

Angels With Dirty Faces (1938) 97m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Humphrey Bogart, Ann Sheridan, George Bancroft, Billy Halop, Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall, Gabe Dell, Bobby Jordan, Bernard Punsley. Superior cast in archetypal tale of two playmates; one (Cagney) becomes a gangster, the other (O'Brien) a priest. The Dead End Kids idolize Cagney, much to O'Brien's chagrin. Rowland Brown's story was scripted by John Wexley and Warren Duff. Quintessential Warner Bros. melodrama, a favorite of parodists for decades. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Angel Unchained (1970) C-92m.  D: Lee Madden. Don Stroud, Luke Askew, Larry Bishop, Tyne Daly, Aldo Ray, Bill McKinney. Biker Stroud joins a hippie commune. Dune buggy-riding cowboys don't like hippies, so it's Stroud's ex-buddies to the rescue. Anyway, the cast is interesting. [PG] ▼

Angel Wore Red, The (1960) 99m. ½ D: Nunnally Johnson. Ava Gardner, Dirk Bogarde, Joseph Cotten, Vittorio De Sica. Sometimes engrossing tale of clergyman who joins the Spanish loyalist cause and his romance with a good-natured entertainer.

Anger Management (2003) C-106m.  D: Peter Segal. Adam Sandler, Jack Nicholson, Marisa Tomei, John Turturro, Luis Guzman, Allen Covert, Lynne Thigpen, Kurt Fuller, Krista Allen, January Jones, Woody Harrelson, Kevin Nealon, Harry Dean Stanton. Sentenced to undergo therapy after an airline altercation that really wasn't his fault, Sandler is further bewildered when his therapist turns out to be the loosest cannon in New York (Nicholson with a Brillo beard). Comedy offers a dream cross-generational teaming but delivers nothing beyond it, with Nicholson giving a surprisingly one-note performance. Even surprise cameo appearances aren't as funny as they ought to be. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Angie (1994) C-107m.  D: Martha Coolidge. Geena Davis, Stephen Rea, James Gandolfini, Aida Turturro, Philip Bosco, Jenny O'Hara, Michael Rispoli, Betty Miller, Charlaune Woodard, Bibi Osterwald. Davis shines in this star vehicle about an Italian-American from Brooklyn who's always marched to her own drum, and finds—when she's on the verge of marriage and motherhood—that something significant is missing from her life. Todd Graff's script runs the gamut from romantic comedy to melodrama, but Davis' character—both assertive and vulnerable—has the glue to keep it all together. She's surrounded by a fine supporting cast. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Angry Harvest (1985-West German) C-102m.  D: Agnieszka Holland. Armin Mueller-Stahl, Elisabeth Trissenaar, Kathe Jaenicke, Hans Beerhenke, Isa Haller, Margit Carstensen, Wojtech Pszoniak, Kurt Raab. Discerning drama, set during WW2, highlighting the intricacies in the relationship between a working-class Polish farmer (Stahl, who is outstanding) and the upper-class Viennese Jewish refugee (Trissenaar) he shelters. Scripted by director Holland (who later made EUROPA, EUROPA). ▼●

Angry Hills, The (1959) 105m. ½ D: Robert Aldrich. Robert Mitchum, Elisabeth Mueller, Stanley Baker, Gia Scala, Theodore Bikel, Sebastian Cabot. Mitchum shows vim in WW2 actioner as war correspondent plotting escape from Greece with valuable data for Allies.

Angry Red Planet, The (1959) C-83m.  D: Ib Melchior. Gerald Mohr, Nora Hayden, Les Tremayne, Jack Kruschen, Paul Hahn. Martians sic incredible monsters on first Earth expedition to Mars. Lots of wild-eyed effects have given this film cult status. Filmed in odd "Cinematic" process, which mostly turns everything pink. ▼●●

Angry Silence, The (1960-British) 95m.  D: Guy Green. Richard Attenborough, Pier Angeli, Michael Craig, Bernard Lee, Geoffrey Keen, Oliver Reed. Rewarding, unheralded film about brave stand by a simple British factory worker who refuses to join unofficial strike, the repercussions he and his family endure.

Anguish (1987-Spanish) C-89m. ½ D: Bigas Luna. Zelda Rubinstein, Michael Lerner, Talia Paul, Clara Pastor. Imaginative but overly violent horror film turns the action in on itself, as a mad-killer film unspools inside a theater where another mad killer is loose in the audience. Theatrical release carried warnings regarding use of subliminal effects on soundtrack. Well-recorded English dialogue. J-D-C Scope. [R] ▼●●

Angus (1995) C-89m.  D: Patrick Read Johnson. Charlie Talbert, George C. Scott, Kathy Bates, Ariana Richards, Chris Owen, James Van Der Beek, Lawrence Pressman, Rita Moreno. Ostensibly well-meaning—but obvious and superficial—film about an overweight teenager with low self-esteem and a lifelong crush on a cute blond schoolmate. Amidst its upbeat, self-affirming messages, however, we get too many crude jokes and incompetently staged comic scenes that deflate film's impact. Scott's chess-playing partner is played by veteran director Irvin Kershner. [PG-13] ▼●

Animal, The (2001) C-84m. BOMB D: Luke Greenfield. Rob Schneider, Colleen Haskell, John C. McGinley, Edward Asner, Michael Caton, Louis Lombardi, Guy Torry, Adam Sandler, Norm Macdonald. A pathetic nobody awakens after a car accident to find that his body organs have been replaced by those of animals (a dog, a dolphin, a horse, etc.). Filled to the brim with bathroom humor, offensive dialogue, gratuitous nudity . . . everything but genuine comedy. Schneider cownte; Sandler co-executive produced. [PG-13] ▼●

Animal Behavior (1989) C-88m. BOMB D: H. Anne Riley. Karen Allen, Armand Assante, Holly Hunter, Josh Mostel, Richard Libertini, Alexa Kenin, Jon Matthews, Nan Martin. A man, a woman, a chimp, a campus—and let us all be thankful that Bonzo didn't live to see this. Allen, as a monkey researcher sweating out funding, delivers a most discomfiting lemme-outa-here performance. Director's name is a pseudonym; Jenny Bowen started the picture in 1984; producer Kjehl Rasmusen finished it. [PG] ▼●

Animal Crackers (1930) 98m.  D: Victor Heerman. Groucho, Harpo, Chico, and Zeppo Marx, Margaret Dumont, Lillian Roth, Louis Sorin, Hal Thompson, Robert Greig. Marx Brothers' second movie, adapted from Broadway success, suffers from staginess and musical comedy plotting, but gives the zany foursome plenty of comic elbowroom. "Story" has to do with stolen painting, but never mind: Groucho performs "Hooray for Captain Spaulding," Chico and Harpo play bridge, Groucho shoots an elephant in his pajamas, etc. ▼●●

Animal Factory (2000) C-95m.  D:

Steve Buscemi, Willem Dafoe, Edward Furlong, Mickey Rourke, Tom Arnold, Steve Buscemi, John Heard, Danny Trejo, Seymour Cassel. Compelling drama of prison life, with Furlong, locked up for marijuana dealing, becoming the protégé of Dafoe, who virtually runs the place. Dafoe is powerful, as always, but the film's distinction is the matter-of-fact way it deals with the horrors of life behind bars. Based on a novel by ex-con Edward Bunker, who coscripted. U.S. debut on cable TV. [R]▼

Animal Farm (1955-British) C-75m.  D: John Halas, Joy Batchelor. Good straightforward animated-feature version of George Orwell's political satire. Ending changed from original to make it more upbeat, but trenchant views of government still hold fast. Not a kiddie film. Remade for cable TV in 1999. ▼●●

Animal House SEE: National Lampoon's Animal House

Animal Kingdom, The (1932) 85m.  D: Edward H. Griffith. Ann Harding, Leslie Howard, Myrna Loy, William Gargan, Neil Hamilton, Ilka Chase, Henry Stephenson. Publisher Howard, undergoing a crisis in values, has had a relationship with free-spirited artist Harding but marries manipulative, middle-class Loy. Sophisticated entertainment, still adult by today's standards, adapted from the Philip Barry play. Remade as ONE MORE TOMORROW. ▼

Animalympics (1979) C-80m.  D: Steven Lisberger. Voices of Gilda Radner, Billy Crystal, Harry Shearer, Michael Fremer. Animated spoof of Olympics events and ubiquitous TV coverage by various anthropomorphic characters. Enough clever, funny material for a good short subject, but stretched to feature length. ▼

Anna (1951-Italian) 95m. ½ D: Alberto Lattuada. Silvana Mangano, Raf Vallone, Vittorio Gassman, Gaby Morlay. Thoughtful study of confused young woman who enters convent to avoid deciding which man she really loves; fate forces her to decide. Look quick for Sophia Loren. ▼

Anna (1987) C-100m. ½ D: Yurek Bogayevicz. Sally Kirkland, Paulina Porizkova, Robert Fields, Ruth Maleczek, Stefan Schnabel, Larry Pine. Middle-aged Czech actress, once a star in her native country but now struggling to survive in N.Y.C., takes in an impoverished young immigrant and teaches her the ropes—only to see her succeed where she has failed. Intriguing little film misses the bull's-eye but still has much to offer, especially a riveting and heart-rending performance by Kirkland (who is not Czech). Supermodel Porizkova (who is) makes an impressive screen debut. [PG-13]▼●●

dall Duk Kim, Deanna Yusoff, Geoffrey Palmer. Lavish remake of the now-familiar story (memorably musicalized as THE KING AND I) about a young British widow who travels to Siam in 1862 to work as schoolteacher for the King's 58 children. Put off at first, she and the imperious monarch soon develop an understanding and an unspoken attraction. Unfortunately, film goes on too long, with at least one subplot too many and a terribly contrived action climax. Foster and Yun-Fat are fine. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Anna and the King of Siam (1946) 128m. ½ D: John Cromwell. Irene Dunne, Rex Harrison, Linda Darnell, Lee J. Cobb, Gale Sondergaard, Mikhail Rasumny. Sumptuous production chronicling the experiences of a British governess in 19th-century Thailand, and her battle of wits with strong-willed ruler. Based on Margaret Landon's book about real-life Anna Leonowens (renamed Anna L. Owens in the movie). Dunne and Harrison (in his Hollywood debut) are superb; won Oscars for Cinematography (Arthur Miller) and Art Direction/Set Decoration (then known as "Interior Decoration"). Screenplay by Talbot Jennings and Sally Benson. Later musicalized as THE KING AND I; remade as ANNA AND THE KING. ▼

Anna Christie (1930) 90m.  D: Clarence Brown. Greta Garbo, Charles Bickford, Marie Dressler, Lee Phelps, George Marion. Garbo is effective in her first talkie as girl with shady past finding love with seaman Bickford. Film itself is rather static. From the play by Eugene O'Neill. Beware of 74m. prints. Filmed simultaneously in a German-language version, with Garbo and a different supporting cast. Filmed before in 1923, with Blanche Sweet. ▼●●

Anna Karenina (1935) 95m. * D: Clarence Brown. Greta Garbo, Fredric March, Freddie Bartholomew, Maureen O'Sullivan, May Robson, Basil Rathbone. Tolstoy's tragic love chronicle makes excellent Garbo vehicle, with fine support from March as her lover, Rathbone her husband, and Bartholomew, her adoring son. Filmed before with Garbo as LOVE; remade three times. ▼●●

Anna Karenina (1948-British) 123m. ½ D: Julien Duvivier. Vivien Leigh, Ralph Richardson, Kieron Moore, Sally Ann Howes, Niall MacGinnis, Martita Hunt, Marie Lohr, Michael Gough. Despite its stellar cast, this is a mostly turgid adaptation of the Tolstoy classic about a woman married to stodgy bureaucrat, who falls in love with a dashing army officer. Duvivier and Jean Anouilh were among the scriptwriters. ▼●●

Anna Karenina (1997) SEE: Leo Tolstoy's Anna Karenina

Anna Lucasta (1949) C-86m.  D: Irving Rapper. Paulette Goddard, William Bishop, Oscar Homolka, John Ireland, Broderick Crawford, Will Geer, Gale Page, Mary Wickes, Whit Bissell. Sluggish, watered-down version of Philip Yordan's Broadway play (which featured an all-black cast, as does the 1958 remake). Goddard plays the title role, a woman of the Brooklyn streets who was tossed out of her home by her alcoholic father; her oppressive brother-in-law tries to marry her off, in a money-making scheme. Scripted by Yordan (who also produced) and Arthur Laurents.

Anna Lucasta (1958) 97m.  D: Arnold Laven. Eartha Kitt, Sammy Davis, Jr., Frederick O'Neal, Henry Scott, Rex Ingram. Tepid remake of Philip Yordan's play about a prostitute who tries to leave her past behind. Kitt doesn't so much act as pose, but Ingram is excellent as her father. D

Annapolis (2006) C-103m.  D: Justin Lin. James Franco, Tyrese Gibson, Jordana Brewster, Donnie Wahlberg, Vicellous Reon Shannon, Chi McBride, Roger Fan, McCaleb Burnett, Wilmer Calderon, Charles Napier. Boilerplate service pic about blue-collar boxer Franco and his long-shot selection to the U.S. Naval Academy, where he rooms with a perfect ethnic mix of cohorts, who are only occasionally seen in class or cracking books. Co-cadet Brewster, seen at ringside during bouts or when Franco is punching the bag, takes on the equivalent of Burgess Meredith's role in ROCKY, though she looks cuter in khaki. A non-starter. Super 35. [PG-13] D

Annapolis Story, An (1955) C-81m.  D: Don Siegel. John Derek, Diana Lynn, Kevin McCarthy, Pat Conway. Uninspired reuse of old service-school formula with Derek and McCarthy undergoing rigid training, both romancing Lynn. V

Anne Frank Remembered (1995-British) C/B&W-117m.  $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Jon Blair. Narrated by Kenneth Branagh; diary read by Glenn Close. Deeply moving documentary on the young Jewish girl whose diary became an international best-seller. The filmmakers interview many who knew Anne and even turn up a brief home-movie scene of the girl herself. Perhaps the greatest impression is made by Miep Gies, the matter-of-fact Dutch woman who helped hide the Franks, and who found the diary. Oscar winner for Best Documentary. [PG] V

Anne of Green Gables (1934) 79m.  D: George Nicholls, Jr. Anne Shirley, Tom Brown, O. P. Heggie, Helen Westley, Sara Haden. Utterly charming adaptation of L. M. Montgomery's book (filmed before in 1919) about a spirited orphan with a vivid imagination who endears herself to the older couple who take her in . . . and everyone else around her. Only the conclusion seems hurried and contrived. Anne Shirley took her professional name from the character she played in this film (until then she was known as Dawn O'Day). Followed by ANNE OF WINDY POP-LARS. Remade for TV in 1985. V

Anne of the Indies (1951) C-81m.  $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Jacques Tourneur. Jean Peters, Louis Jourdan, Debra Paget, Herbert Marshall. Peters isn't always believable as swaggering pirate, but surrounded by professionals and good production, actioner moves along. Anne of the Thousand Days (1969) C-145m.  D: Charles Jarrott. Richard Burton, Genevieve Bujold, Irene Papas, Anthony Quayle, Peter Jeffrey. Often inaccurate but totally engrossing, well-acted historical drama centering on Anne Boleyn and King Henry VIII. Lovely scenery, brilliant performance by Bujold, and Oscar-winning costumes by Margaret Furse. Panavision. [M/PG] V

Anne of Windy Poptars (1940) 88m.  D: Jack Hively. Anne Shirley, James Ellison, Henry Travers, Patric Knowles, Slim Summerville, Elizabeth Patterson, Marcia Mae Jones. Uninspired sequel to ANNE OF GREEN GABLES. Anne has grown up and become a dedicated, kind-hearted schoolteacher, but has to contend with local politics and hypocrisy in the small town where she lives and works. Remade for TV.

Annie (1982) C-128m.  $\frac{1}{2}$ D: John Huston. Albert Finney, Carol Burnett, Aileen Quinn, Bernadette Peters, Tim Curry, Ann Reinking, Geoffrey Holder, Edward Herrmann. Overblown adaptation of the Broadway musical hit about the Depression's most famous foundling (based on Harold Gray's "Little Orphan Annie" comic strip). Appealing performances by Quinn, as Annie, and Finney, as Daddy Warbucks, help buoy an uninspired—and curiously claustrophobic—production. Followed by made-for-TV sequel, ANNIE: A ROYAL ADVENTURE! Remade for TV in 1999. Panavision. [PG] V

Annie Get Your Gun (1950) C-107m.  D: George Sidney. Betty Hutton, Howard Keel, Louis Calhern, Edward Arnold, Keenan Wynn, Benay Venuta, J. Carol Naish. Lively filming of Irving Berlin's Wild West show musical about Annie Oakley getting her man—sharpshooter Frank Butler. Songs include "Anything You Can Do," "Doin' What Comes Naturally," "There's No Business Like Show Business." V

and you'll spot future stars Jeff Goldblum (at the L.A. party), Shelley Hack (on the street), Beverly D'Angelo (on a TV monitor), and Sigourney Weaver (as Woody's date seen in extreme long-shot near the end of the picture). [PG]▼●●

Annie Oakley (1935) 88m.  D: George Stevens. Barbara Stanwyck, Preston Foster, Melvyn Douglas, Pert Kelton, Andy Clyde. Lively biography of female sharpshooter Stanwyck and her on-again off-again romance with fellow performer Foster. Tight direction within episodic scenes gives believable flavor of late 19th-century America. Moroni Olsen plays Buffalo Bill. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Annie's Coming Out SEE: Test of Love, A Annihilation of Fish, The (2001) C-108m.  D: Charles Burnett. James Earl Jones, Lynn Redgrave, Margot Kidder. Fish (Jones), a former mental patient who is harassed by a demon named Hank, moves into a dingy L.A. boardinghouse and gradually befriends an alcoholic flake (Redgrave), who is obsessed by Puccini. Ambitious portrait of two nutty, lonely souls means to be poignant but doesn't really gel. Kidder—surprisingly—plays an elderly landlady. Shot in 1999. [R]

Anniversary, The (1968-British) C-95m. ½ D: Roy Ward Baker. Bette Davis, Sheila Hancock, Jack Hedley, James Cosins, Christian Roberts, Elaine Taylor. Human monster Davis uses date of wedding anniversary as excuse to reunite family, continue her stranglehold on them. Adapted from MacIlwraith stage play, black comedy emerges as vehicle for Davis' hammy performance. ▼

Anniversary Party, The (2001) C-115m.  D: Jennifer Jason Leigh, Alan Cumming. Jennifer Jason Leigh, Alan Cumming, Jane Adams, Mina Badie, Jennifer Beals, Phoebe Cates, John Hickey, Parker Posey, Kevin Kline, Denis O'Hare, Gwyneth Paltrow, Michael Panes, John C. Reilly. Cumming and Leigh conceived, directed and star in this seriocomic about an L.A. couple (he's a writer about to make his movie directing debut, she's an actress) who have an eventful and emotional anniversary party. Supporting parts were tailored for the filmmakers' actor friends, and they're all good, but the two children of real-life couple Kline and Cates almost steal the show. Beautifully shot on digital video by John Bailey. [R]▼

A Nos Amours (1984-French) C-102m.  D: Maurice Pialat. Sandrine Bonnaire, Dominique Besnehard, Maurice Pialat, Evelyne Ker, Anne-Sophie Maille, Christophe Odent. A 15-year-old's casual promiscuity runs her family through the ringer, but they've got problems of their own—Pop's moving out, Mom's a screaming neurotic, and Brother's embraces are too hearty to be healthy. Dramatically uneven and somewhat of a downer, but Bonnaire creates a full-blooded, memorable character. Winner of France's César. [R]▼

Another Country (1984-British) C-90m. ½ D: Marek Kaniiewska. Rupert Everett, Colin Firth, Michael Jenn, Robert Addie, Cary Elwes, Anna Massey, Betsy Brantley. Faithful adaptation of Julian Mitchell's hit London play that speculates about the 1930s private-school experiences of Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean, who 20 years later were found to be spying for the Russians. Arguably more meaningful to British audiences, this examination of an oppressive existence that shuns any nonconformity makes for a pretty oppressive movie. [PG]▼●●

Another Dawn (1937) 73m. ½ D: William Dieterle. Kay Francis, Errol Flynn, Ian Hunter, Frieda Inescort, Mary Forbes. Francis is torn between devotion to husband Hunter and officer Flynn in well-paced adventure story set at British army post in African desert.

Another 48HRS. (1990) C-95m.  D: Walter Hill. Eddie Murphy, Nick Nolte, Brion James, Kevin Tighe, Ed O'Ross, David Anthony Marshall, Bernie Casey. Strictly by-the-numbers rehash of 48HRS., without its spontaneity, pizzazz, or humor: Nolte is forced to turn to Murphy (who's just being sprung from jail) to help him solve a case and save his police career. Watchable, but not terribly invigorating; must set some sort of record, however, for breaking more panes of glass than any movie in history. [R]▼●●

Another Gay Movie (2006) C-92m.  D: Todd Stephens. Michael Carbonaro, Jonah Blechman, Jonathan Chase, Mitch Morris, Ashlie Atkinson, Scott Thompson. Four gay high school guys embark on a mission to lose their virginity before graduation, sending up every gay and teen comedy movie cliché along the way. Predictably dumb genre spoof, somewhat funnier and more engaging than many of its ilk. Hilariously meticulous reenactment of the prom scene from CARRIE makes one wish that the rest of the film were so clever. Features cameos by cult celebrities including Graham Norton,

Lypsinka, and Survivor's Richard Hatch (who reveals more than most would want to see). Followed by a DVD sequel. [R]▶

Another Man, Another Chance (1977-French-U.S.) C-132m. ½ D: Claude Lelouch. James Caan, Genevieve Bujold, Francis Huster, Jennifer Warren, Susan Tyrrell, Richard Farnsworth. Virtual remake of Lelouch's A MAN AND A WOMAN, with late-1800s Western setting; Bujold and Caan are widow and widower who fall in love after losing their spouses. Mild-mannered to the point of distraction, and much too long. [PG]▼

Another Man's Poison (1951-British) 89m. ½ D: Irving Rapper. Bette Davis, Gary Merrill, Emyln Williams, Anthony Steel, Barbara Murray, Reginald Beckwith. Bette is feisty, man-hungry novelist on isolated Yorkshire farm who won't let her criminal husband, or his crony Merrill, get in her way. Well-paced melodrama can't hide its stage origins, but Davis wrings every drop out of a showy role. Coproduced by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.▶

Another Stakeout (1993) C-109m. ½ D: John Badham. Richard Dreyfuss, Emilio Estevez, Rosie O'Donnell, Dennis Farina, Marcia Strassman, Cathy Moriarty, John Rubinstein, Miguel Ferrer, Dan Lauria, Sharon Maughan. Lots of fun here for fans of the first STAKEOUT, but little for anyone seeking substance or Shavian wit. The inept cop partners return to track down no-good Moriarty, but are saddled with assistant D.A. O'Donnell and her dog, who are both along for the ride. Highlight: dinner party that goes from bad to worse to hysterical. Madeleine Stowe (costar of the original film) briefly re-creates her role but takes no billing. Panavision. [PG-13]▶

Another Thin Man (1939) 105m.  D: W. S. Van Dyke II. William Powell, Myrna Loy, C. Aubrey Smith, Otto Kruger, Nat Pendleton, Virginia Grey, Tom Neal, Marjorie Main, Ruth Hussey, Sheldon Leonard. Murder strikes at a Long Island estate and the screen's favorite lush-detective couple (along with Asta and newborn son Nick, Jr.) move in to solve it, although motherhood has slowed down Nora's drinking a bit. Enjoyable third entry in the series and the last to be based on a Dashiell Hammett story.▶

Another Time, Another Place (1958) 98m. ½ D: Lewis Allen. Lana Turner, Barry Sullivan, Glynis Johns, Sean Connery. Unconvincing melodrama; Turner suffers nervous breakdown when her lover

Another Woman (1988) C-84m. ½ D: Woody Allen. Gena Rowlands, Mia Farrow, Ian Holm, Blythe Danner, Gene Hackman, Betty Buckley, Martha Plimpton, John Houseman, Sandy Dennis, David Ogden Stiers, Philip Bosco, Harris Yulin, Frances Conroy. Woody ventures into Bergman territory again (with Ingmar's cameraman, Sven Nykvist, no less) with tremendous success. Rowlands plays a woman who has managed to live her life shielding herself from all emotions, until a series of incidents force her to take stock. Searing, adult drama with a magnificent cast and many memorable moments . . . though like Allen's other dramas, it's not to everyone's taste. [PG]▶

Another You (1991) C-98m. ½ D: Maurice Phillips. Richard Pryor, Gene Wilder, Mercedes Ruehl, Stephen Lang, Vanessa Williams, Phil Rubenstein, Peter Michael Goetz, Kevin Pollak, Vincent Schiavelli. Compulsive liar Wilder is released from a sanitarium into the care of parolee Pryor, a street hustler who's got to perform community service; together they become embroiled in an elaborate scam. Anemic comedy relies entirely on its stars to support third-rate material. Sadly, Pryor's real-life health problems are all too apparent. [R]▶

Ant Bully, The (2006) C-89m.  D: John A. Davis. Voices of Julia Roberts, Nicolas Cage, Meryl Streep, Paul Giamatti, Zach Tyler Eisen, Regina King, Bruce Campbell, Lily Tomlin, Cheri Oteri, Larry Miller, Ricardo Montalban, Allison Mack, Rob Paulsen. A boy who's always bullied by the neighborhood kids takes out his frustration on an ant colony in his front yard—until he's shrunk to their size and put to work in their environment. Here he learns hard-won lessons about the value of teamwork and sacrifice. Uninspired morality tale has the novelty of human characters that are designed to look as picturesque as possible. From the children's book by John Nickle. Coproduced by Tom Hanks. [PG]▶

ward, Gale Sondergaard, Akim Tamiroff, Billy Mauch, Ralph Morgan, Henry O'Neill, Scotty Beckett, Luis Alberni. Blockbuster filmization of Hervey Allen bestseller (scripted by Sheridan Gibney) of young man gaining maturity through adventures in various parts of early 19th-century Europe, Cuba, and Africa. Sondergaard won Oscar as Best Supporting Actress in her film debut; rousing musical score by Erich Wolfgang Korngold and Tony Gaudio's cinematography also won. ▼●

Antichrist, The SEE: Tempter, The Antitrust (2001) C-108m.  D: Peter Howitt. Ryan Phillippe, Rachael Leigh Cook, Claire Forlani, Tim Robbins, Douglas McFerran, Richard Roundtree, Tygh Runyan, Yee Jee Tso, Nate Dushku, Ned Bellamy. Young computer whiz leaves his idealistic, computer-geek pals to work for the biggest software company in the world, after being recruited by its charismatic, highly persuasive chief (Robbins). He soon discovers that the company's take-no-prisoners approach to business hides many nefarious deeds. Cleverly plotted, mostly believable conspiracy yarn, a bit heavy-handed at times. David Clennon appears unbilled. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Antonia & Jane (1991-British) C-77m.  D: Beeban Kidron. Saskia Reeves, Imelda Staunton, Brenda Bruce, Bill Nighy, Lila Kaye, Alfred Marks, Richard Hope. Pleasingly quirky, clever chronicle of the relationship between two friends from school. Antonia (Reeves) is attractive and arrogant; Jane (Staunton) is plump, but adventuresome. They share mutual envy (as well as the same therapist) . . . and Antonia's husband is Jane's ex-boyfriend. Very funny little sleeper made for British television. ▼

Antonia's Line (1995-Dutch-Belgian-British) C-105m.  D: Marleen Gorris. Willeke van Ammelrooy, Els Dottermans, Jan Decleir, Mil Seghers, Marina de Graaf, Jan Steen, Veerle Van Overloop, Elsie de Brauw, Thyra Ravesteijn, Wimie Wilhelm. Spirited woman returns to her provincial Dutch village after WW2 and takes up residence there with her daughter. Then, over a span of years, she raises not only her own child but an extended family which comes under the shelter (and aura) of this unusual woman who defies convention. Disarmingly unpredictable comedy-drama is a treat from start to finish. Oscar winner as Best Foreign Film. [R] ▼●

Antony and Cleopatra (1973) C-160m. *½ D: Charlton Heston. Charlton Heston, Hildegard Neil, Eric Porter, John Castle, Fernando Rey. Labor-of-love undertaking by Heston results in sluggish treatment of Shakespearean play, hampered by severe budgetary limitations. Todd-AO 35. ▼

noldo Gooding, Novella Nelson. Newcomer Luke is excellent as the hero of this remarkable true-life memoir, a quick-tempered seaman who reaches a turning point when a Navy psychiatrist forces him to examine his life and confront his troubled childhood. A creditable directing debut for Washington, who also delivers a strong, compassionate performance as a doctor whose own life can use some healing. Cynics may find this sentimental or simplistic, but we bought into it one hundred percent. Screenplay by Antwone Fisher, based on his book. James Brolin appears unbilled. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Any Given Sunday (1999) C-162m.  D: Oliver Stone. Al Pacino, Cameron Diaz, Dennis Quaid, James Woods, Jamie Foxx, LL Cool J, Charlton Heston, Matthew Modine, Jim Brown, Ann-Margret, Aaron Eckhart, John C. McGinley, Lauren Holly, Lela Rochon, Lawrence Taylor, Bill Bellamy, James Karen, Elizabeth Berkley. Strident, one-note concoction about the world of pro football, on and off the field. Pacino is an aging coach who's given his all to the game, Diaz a demanding, mercurial team owner, Foxx an up-and-coming quarterback who gets a big head. Loud and obvious from the word go. Various sports figures play themselves; Stone appears as a booth announcer. Stone completely recut 157m. video version. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Any Number Can Play (1949) 112m.  D: Mervyn LeRoy. Clark Gable, Alexis Smith, Wendell Corey, Audrey Totter, Mary Astor, Lewis Stone, Marjorie Rambeau, Darryl Hickman. Low-key drama of gambling-house owner Gable, estranged from wife Smith and son Hickman. Good character roles breathe life into film. ▼

Any Number Can Win (1963-French) 108m. ½ D: Henri Verneuil. Jean Gabin, Alain Delon, Viviane Romance, Carla Marlier. Aging ex-con Gabin enlists ne'er-do-well Delon in a plot to rob the impregnable vault of a plush Riviera casino. Some tense climactic moments. Dyaliscope. ▼●

C-88m.  D: Luigi Zampa. Ursula Andress, Virna Lisi, Claudine Auger, Marisa Mell, Brett Halsey, Jean-Pierre Cassel. Aside from obvious good looks of four leading actresses, tale of adultery in Italy is not one of that country's better farces. [R] Anything But Love (2003) C-99m. *½ D: Robert Cary. Andrew McCarthy, Isabel Rose, Cameron Bancroft, Alix Korey, Ilana Levine, Sean Arbutckle, Victor Argo, Michael J. Burg, Eartha Kitt. Labored attempt to recall the charm of old MGM musicals, with a love triangle involving a lawyer, a cabaret singer, and a fledgling songwriter. Clearly a heartfelt, loving salute to those '50s films, but some soufflés just fall flat, despite the presence of Kitt. It shows just how skillful those old moviemakers were in making what they did seem effortless. Cary cowrote this with his leading lady. Aka STANDARD TIME. [PG-13] ▼

Anything Else (2003) C-108m. BOMB D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, Jason Biggs, Christina Ricci, Danny DeVito, Stockard Channing, KaDee Strickland, Jimmy Fallon, William Hill, Fisher Stevens, Diana Krall. Acerbic schoolteacher and would-be comedy writer Allen is mentor and advisor to a young man who's caught in an unfathomable relationship with the most obnoxious woman on earth (Ricci). Allen passes the torch to Biggs, who plays a younger version of Woody's archetypal character. The filmmaker's all-time worst movie; you know you're in trouble when it opens with Woody telling a couple of old jokes and even they aren't funny. Panavision. [R] ▼

Anything for Love SEE: 11 Harrowhouse

Anything Goes (1936) 92m. ½ D: Lewis Milestone. Bing Crosby, Ethel Merman, Charlie Ruggles, Ida Lupino, Grace Bradley, Arthur Treacher. Pleasant Crosby shipboard musical retains Merman from the cast of the Broadway show, but scuttles much of the plot and most of Cole Porter's songs (except "You're the Top" and "I Get a Kick Out of You"). Remade (again with Bing) in 1956.

Anything Goes (1956) C-106m.  D: Robert Lewis. Bing Crosby, Jeanmaire, Donald O'Connor, Mitzi Gaynor, Phil Harris, Kurt Kasznar. Flat musical involving show business partners Crosby and O'Connor each signing a performer for the leading role in their next show. Sidney Sheldon's script bears little resemblance to the original Broadway show, though some Cole Porter songs remain. Crosby fared better in the 1936 film. VistaVision. ▶

Any Wednesday (1966) C-109m.  D: Robert Ellis Miller. Jane Fonda, Jason Robards, Dean Jones, Rosemary Murphy. Bedroom farce of N.Y.C. executive using his mistress' apartment for business deductions. Fonda is appropriately addled in unstagy sex comedy. ▼

Anywhere But Here (1999) C-114m.  D: Wayne Wang. Susan Sarandon, Natalie Portman, Hart Bochner, Shawn Hatosy, Bonnie Bedelia, John Diehl, Paul Guilfoyle, Caroline Aaron. Optimistic single mom who can still turn heads and a weary-teen-it-all adolescent daughter leave small-town Wisconsin to seek a new beginning in Beverly Hills, commencing a series of episodic adventures that never take emotional hold. Sizzleless adaptation of Mona Simpson's best-seller pales not only next to ALICE DOESN'T LIVE HERE ANYMORE and MEN DON'T LEAVE, but to the low-budget indie TUMBLEWEEDS. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Any Which Way You Can (1980) C-116m. ½ D: Buddy Van Horn. Clint Eastwood, Sondra Locke, Geoffrey Lewis, William Smith, Harry Guardino, Ruth Gordon, Glen Campbell, Anne Ramsey, Logan Ramsey, Barry Corbin, James Gammon. This sequel to EVERY WHICH WAY BUT LOOSE is funnier, if no more intelligent. Clint's climactic bare-fisted fight with Smith is a highlight, but the filmmakers wisely gave most of the laughs to the star's orangutan friend, Clyde. [PG] ▼●

Anzio (1968-French-Italian-Spanish) C-117m.  D: Edward Dmytryk. Robert Mitchum, Peter Falk, Robert Ryan, Earl Holliman, Mark Damon, Arthur Kennedy, Reni Santoni, Patrick Magee. Undistinguished retelling of Allied invasion of Anzio; all-star cast, large-scale action, but nothing memorable. Aka THE BATTLE FOR ANZIO. Panavision. [M/PG] ▼

Apache (1954) C-91m.  D: Robert Aldrich. Burt Lancaster, Jean Peters, John McIntire, Charles (Bronson) Buchinsky. Pacifist Indian (Lancaster) learns might makes right from U.S. cavalry; turns to fighting one man crusade for his tribe's rights. Overacted and improbable (though based on fact). ▼●

Apache Massacre SEE: Cry for Me, Billy Apache Rifles (1964) C-92m. ½ D: William Witney. Audie Murphy, Michael Dante, Linda Lawson, John Archer, J. Pat O'Malley. Audie is stalwart cavalry captain assigned to corral renegading Apaches. Stock footage and plot mar potentials of actioner. ▼

Rory Calhoun, Corinne Calvet, John Russell, Lon Chaney (Jr.), Gene Evans, Richard Arlen, Arthur Hunnicutt, DeForest Kelley, Johnny Mack Brown, Jean Parker, Don "Red" Barry. No production values, but cast of familiar names may make it possible for some to sit through standard Western where Rory fights both Indians and outlaws. Techniscope. ▼●

Aparajito (1956-Indian) 108m. ½ D:

Satyajit Ray. Pinaki Sen Gupta, Smaran Ghosal, Karuna Banerji, Kanu Banerji, Ramani Sen Gupta. The second of Ray's Apu trilogy is a moving, beautifully filmed story of life and death in a poor Indian family, with the son, Apu (Ghosal), trekking off to college in Calcutta. Aka THE UNVANQUISHED. ▼●

Apartment, The (1960) 125m. * D: Billy Wilder. Jack Lemmon, Shirley MacLaine, Fred MacMurray, Ray Walston, Jack Kruschen, Edie Adams, David Lewis, Joan Shawlee. Superb comedy-drama that manages to embrace both sentiment and cynicism. Lemmon attempts to climb corporate ladder by loaning his apartment key to various executives for their extramarital trysts, but it backfires when he falls for his boss's latest girlfriend. Fine performances all around, including MacMurray as an uncharacteristic heel. Oscar winner for Best Picture, Director, Screenplay (Wilder and I.A.L. Diamond), Editing (Daniel Mandell), Art Direction-Set Decoration (Alexander Trauner, Edward G. Boyle). Later a Broadway musical, Promises, Promises. Panavision. ▼●●

Apartment for Peggy (1948) C-99m.  D: George Seaton. Jeanne Crain, William Holden, Edmund Gwenn, Gene Lockhart. Breezy story of newlyweds trying to live on college campus; old pros Gwenn and Lockhart steal film from young lovers.

Apartment Zero (1988-British) C-124m.  D: Martin Donovan. Colin Firth, Hart Bochner, Dora Bryan, Liz Smith, Fabrizio Bentivoglio. Odd, intriguing psychological drama with political, moral, and sexual overtones. Fastidious film buff Firth's life is profoundly altered when he takes in freewheeling—and mysterious—Bochner as a boarder. Not for all tastes but extremely well acted and definitely worth a look. Set in Buenos Aires; scripted by Donovan and David Koopp. Shortened by 8m. for video by director; the full version is available on DVD. [R] ▼●●

Harrison Ford, Scott Glenn, Tom Mason, Colleen Camp. Coppola's controversial Vietnam war epic, based on Joseph Conrad's Heart of Darkness. Special agent Sheen journeys upriver into Cambodia with orders to find and kill errant officer Brando, leading him (and viewer) on a mesmerizing odyssey of turbulent, often surreal encounters. Unfortunately, film's conclusion—when he does find Brando—is cerebral and murky. Still, a great movie experience most of the way, with staggering, Oscar-winning photography by Vittorio Storaro. Reissued and revised in 2001. The documentary HEARTS OF DARKNESS: A FILMMAKER'S APOCALYPSE chronicles the film's production. Technovision. [R] ▼●●

Apocalypse Now Redux (2001) C-197m. ½ Francis Coppola reedited his 1979 film and put back in footage he'd cut at the time, including a major sequence set at a plantation (featuring Christian Marquand). This is now the "official" version of his still-powerful film. Technovision. [R] ▼●

Apocalypto (2006) C-139m. ½ D: Mel Gibson. Rudy Youngblood, Dalia Hernandez, Raoul Trujillo, Jonathan Brewer, Morris Birdyellowhead, Carlos Emilio Baez. It's the early 16th century. Mayan culture is in decline, and hero Jaguar Paw (a terrific Youngblood) gets it from all directions from a rival raiding party. With his family imperiled and father assaulted, he's abducted to the city for intended slave labor. What follows is a huff-and-puff sprinter's marathon and transparent throwback to Cornel Wilde's THE NAKED PREY (to say nothing of THE MOST DANGEROUS GAME). Bolstered by today's state-of-the-art camerawork and sound technology, it's visceral and exciting despite a tendency to go over the top. Thanks to cutaways at crucial times, it's not always as violent as advertised or feared—but it's still pretty potent. Gibson coproduced and cowrote with Farhad Safinia. HD Widescreen. [R] ●

Apollo 13 (1995) C-139m. ½ D: Ron Howard. Tom Hanks, Bill Paxton, Kevin Bacon, Gary Sinise, Ed Harris, Kathleen Quinlan, Miko Hughes, David Andrews, Chris Ellis, Joe Spano, Xander Berkeley, Marc McClure, Tracy Reiner, Brett Cullen; opening narration by Walter Cronkite. Exhilarating story of ill-fated Apollo 13 moon mission, and how the heroic work of astronaut Jim Lovell and his crew, combined with the dogged persistence of the NASA team in Houston, averted tragedy. A rare instance where special effects actually serve the story and help make it completely credible; perfect 1970s period detail is another asset. Screenplay by William Broyles, Jr., and Al Reinert, from the book Lost Moon by Lovell and Jeffrey Kluger. Director Howard's brother Clint has a good role as one of the Houston eggheads; father, Rance, plays a priest; and mother, Jean, is a treat as Jim Lovell's mom. The real Lovell appears as an officer on the aircraft carrier in the final sequence. Winner of Oscars for Film Editing and Sound. Edited to 116m. for its 2002 release in IMAX. Super 35. [PG] ▼●●

Apostle, The (1997) C-134m.  D: Robert Duvall. Robert Duvall, Farrah Fawcett, Miranda Richardson, Billy Bob Thornton, June Carter Cash, Todd Allen, John Beasley, Billy Joe Shaver. Duvall—in an obvious labor of love as writer, director, producer, and star—is superb as a womanizing Pentecostal minister who is forced to leave his Texas home (and church) after committing a violent act. Fascinating study of a wayward man's journey to understand his life, and the many people who help him find his way. Wonderful small-town Southern atmosphere. Lags a bit, but the performances by Duvall and his supporting cast make up for it. James Gammon appears unbilled. [PG-13] ▼●●

Appaloosa (2008) C-115m.  D: Ed Harris. Viggo Mortensen, Ed Harris, Renée Zellweger, Jeremy Irons, Timothy Spall, Lance Henriksen, James Gammon, Tom Bower, Ariadna Gil, Rex Linn. Western town under the thumb of a despotic ranch owner (Irons) brings in a hired gun (Harris) and his partner (Mortensen) to straighten things out—which they will only do on their own terms. Fairly simple story (from a novel by Robert B. Parker) takes an awfully long time to spin out. Harris and Mortensen make a great team, and their friendship is the most interesting aspect of this long-winded film. Harris coscripted and sings a Western song he cowrote over the closing credits . . . and that's his father Bob playing the judge. Panavision. [R] ▼

Applause (1929) 78m. ½ D: Rouben Mamoulian. Helen Morgan, Joan Peers, Fuller Mellish, Jr., Henry Wadsworth, Dorothy Cumming. Revolutionary early talkie may seem awfully hokey to modern audiences (Morgan plays a fading burlesque queen with a two-timing boyfriend and an innocent young daughter just out of a convent), but Morgan's heart-rending performance, and innovative use of camera and sound by Mamoulian (in his film directing debut), make it a must for buffs. ▼●

Apple, The (1980) C-90m. BOMB D: Menahem Golan. Catherine Mary Stewart, Allan Love, George Gilmour, Grace Kennedy, Joss Ackland. Futuristic musical set in 1994, when a young couple's entry in songwriting contest is sabotaged by devilish Mr. Boogalow. As bad as it sounds—maybe worse—but now celebrated for its awfulness. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Apple Dumpling Gang, The (1975) C-100m.  D: Norman Tokar. Bill Bixby, Susan Clark, Don Knotts, Tim Conway, David Wayne, Slim Pickens, Harry Morgan. Disney Western comedy with gambler Bixby inheriting three children. Predictable doings sparked by Knotts and Conway as bumbling crooks. [G] ▼●●

Apple Dumpling Gang Rides Again, The (1979) C-88m.  D: Vincent McEvety. Tim Conway, Don Knotts, Tim Matheson, Kenneth Mars, Elyssa Davalos, Jack Elam, Robert Pine, Harry Morgan, Ruth Buzzi. More of the same, with Knotts and Conway as bumbling outlaws in the Old West; usual Disney slapstick, without much zip or originality. [G] ▼●

Applegates, The SEE: Meet the Applegates Appointment, The (1969) C-100m. ½ D: Sidney Lumet. Omar Sharif, Anouk Aimée, Lotte Lenya. Brilliant attorney falls in love with a girl who eventually ruins him. Soapy and long. [R]

Appointment for Love (1941) 89m. ½ D: William Seiter. Charles Boyer, Margaret Sullavan, Rita Johnson, Reginald Denny, Ruth Terry, Eugene Palette. Frothy comedy showcasing delightful stars: husband and wife with careers find happy marriage almost impossible.

Appointment in Berlin (1943) 77m. ½ D: Alfred E. Green. George Sanders, Marguerite Chapman, Onslow Stevens, Gale Sondergaard, Alan Napier. Another WW2 intrigue film, better than most, with Sanders joining Nazi radio staff to learn secret plans.

Appointment in Honduras (1953) C-75m. ½ D: Jacques Tourneur. Ann Sheridan, Glenn Ford, Zachary Scott, Jack Elam. Idealistic American (Ford) out to save Latin-American country, corrals villainous companions into helping crusade. Sheridan is not focal point, and a pity. ▼● Appointment With Danger (1951) 89m.  D: Lewis Allen. Alan Ladd, Phyllis Calvert, Paul Stewart, Jan Sterling, Jack Webb, Harry Morgan. Ladd is a U.S. postal inspector aided by nun Calvert in cracking a case. Forget that part of the story; Webb and Morgan are the villains here, and Dragnet fans will be extremely amused. Best bit: Ladd "dropping" Webb on a handball court.

Appointment With Death (1988) C-108m. *½ D: Michael Winner. Peter Ustinov, Lauren Bacall, Carrie Fisher, John Gielgud, Piper Laurie, Hayley Mills, Jenny Seagrove, David Soul. Ustinov returns yet again as Agatha Christie's detective Hercule Poirot in this obvious, depressingly unspensful mystery. It seems that greedy Laurie wants her late husband's money all for herself. How soon will she be murdered? And how soon will Poirot name her killer? Another loser from Winner; scripted by Anthony Shaffer, Peter Buckman, and the director. [PG]▼●

Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz, The (1974-Canadian) C-121m. ½ D: Ted Kotcheff. Richard Dreyfuss, Micheline Lanctot, Jack Warden, Randy Quaid, Joseph Wiseman, Denholm Elliott, Joe Silver. Mordecai Richler's vivid comedy-drama of an ambitious kid from Montreal's Jewish ghetto in the 1940s, determined to make good no matter how many toes he steps on. Pretentious bar mitzvah movie made by Duddy's "client," artsy director Elliott, is just one comic highlight. Panavision. [PG]▼

Apprentice to Murder (1988) C-94m.  D: R. L. Thomas. Donald Sutherland, Chad Lowe, Mia Sara, Knut Husebo, Rutanya Alda. Odd, affected, fact-based account of a practitioner of medieval medicine (Sutherland, in a disappointing performance), and his complex relationship with young Lowe. Filmed in Norway. [PG-13]▼●

Après Vous . . . (2003-French) C-110m. ½ D: Pierre Salvadori. Daniel Auteuil, José Garcia, Sandrine Kiberlain, Marilyne Canto, Michèle Moretti, Garance Clavel, Fabio Zenoni. Agreeable French comedy about a good-hearted maitre d' who comes across a suicidal man one night and agrees to help him turn his life around by getting him a job as a wine steward in his restaurant. Of course, this act of kindness causes all sorts of complications in the lives of both men, but the farcical nature of the story is never overplayed. Auteuil is the perfect foil to Garcia, who is a total delight to watch. A minor but entertaining comedy. [R]▶

April Fools, The (1969) C-95m.  D: Stuart Rosenberg. Jack Lemmon, Catherine Deneuve, Peter Lawford, Harvey Korman, Sally Kellerman, Myrna Loy, Charles Boyer, Melinda Dillon, Kenneth Mars, Jack Weston, David Doyle. Attempt at old-fashioned romantic comedy is forced, unbelievable, unfunny. Lemmon is married businessman who decides to chuck it all to run away with Deneuve, who's wasted, along with Loy and Boyer. Panavision. [M/PG]▼

April Fool's Day (1986) C-88m.  D: Fred Walton. Deborah Foreman, Griffin O'Neal, Clayton Rohner, Thomas F. Wilson, Deborah Goodrich. Practical joker (Foreman) invites college pals to spend a weekend in her family's mansion on an off-coast island; one by one they're threatened and killed. Attempt to bring humor to FRIDAY THE 13TH formula isn't a total washout but doesn't quite click, either. Remade for DVD in 2008. Panavision. [R]▼●

April in Paris (1952) C-101m. ½ D:

David Butler. Doris Day, Ray Bolger, Claude Dauphin, Eve Miller, George Givot, Paul Harvey. Diplomatic corps bureaucrat tries to boost Franco-American relations and falls in love with a showgirl mistakenly chosen to appear in the "April in Paris" show he's staging. Mediocre Warner Bros. musical buoyed by the personalities of Day and Bolger—who make an unconvincing romantic couple.▼●

April Love (1957) C-97m. ½ D: Henry Levin. Pat Boone, Shirley Jones, Dolores Michaels, Arthur O'Connell, Matt Crowley. Engaging musical with wholesome Boone visiting relatives' Kentucky farm, falling in love with neighbor Jones. Pat had a hit with the title tune. Previously filmed as HOME IN INDIANA. CinemaScope.

April Showers (1948) 94m.  D: James V. Kern. Jack Carson, Ann Sothern, Robert Alda, S. Z. Sakall, Robert Ellis. Hackneyed backstage vaudeville yarn with Carson-Sothern teaming, splitting, reteaming, etc.

Apt Pupil (1998) C-111m. *½ D: Bryan Singer. Ian McKellen, Brad Renfro, Bruce Davison, Elias Koteas, Joe Morton, Jan Triska, Michael Byrne, Heather McComb, David Schwimmer, Joshua Jackson, James Karen. A student studying the Holocaust becomes overly absorbed in the subject. When he spots an old man on the bus and realizes that he's a former Nazi war criminal, he cultivates a curious "friendship" with the unrepentant elder. Fascinating premise, from a Stephen King novella, soon grows untenable—and doesn't know when to quit. Good performances by McKellen and Renfro can't save this extremely unpleasant film. Super 35. [R]▼●

Aquamarine (2006) C-103m.  D: Elizabeth Allen. Emma Roberts, Joanna "JoJo" Levesque, Sara Paxton, Jake McDorman, Arielle Kebbel. A mermaid escapes her overbearing father and arrives on land, where she needs to make a man fall in love with her or succumb to an arranged marriage to a merman back home. Meanwhile, her two new human girlfriends have to figure out how to stay together when one of their parents wants to move to another country. They all face the usual "fish out of water movie" calamities, but the infectiously sweet leads keep this from being a total bore. Based on a book by Alice Hoffman. [PG]▶

Aqua Teen Hunger Force Colon Movie Film for Theaters (2007) C-79m. BOMB D: Matt Maiellaro, Dave Willis. Voices of Dana Snyder, Dave Willis, Carey Means, Andy Merrill, C. Martin Croker, Chris Kattan, Bruce Campbell, Fred Armisen. Three fast-food icons, Master Shake (a milk-shake cup), Frylock (a large side of French fries), and Meatwad (a stupid meatball), tackle an immortal piece of exercise equipment, the Insanoflex, which threatens the balance of galactic peace. Feature version of Adult Swim cable

TV cartoon series is strictly for stoners . . . and even they may demand a refund. Artless and unfunny, with a fart joke every ten minutes. Hanna Barbera's Space Ghost makes a cameo appearance. A complete waste of time. [R]▼

Arabesque (1966) C-105m.  D: Stanley Donen. Sophia Loren, Gregory Peck, Alan Badel, Kieron Moore, George Coulouris. Modern secret-agent escapism as Peck is drawn into espionage with Sophia, who was never more beautiful. Exciting, beautifully photographed, minus any message or deep thought. Panavision. ▼●

Arabian Adventure, An (1979-British) C-98m. ½ D: Kevin Connor. Christopher Lee, Milo O'Shea, Puneet Sira, Oliver Tobias, Emma Samms, Peter Cushing, Mickey Rooney, Capucine, John Ratzenberger. Just what the title says; colorful enough to entertain kids, with enough effects gimmicks and cameo performances to intrigue older viewers as well. [G]

Arabian Knight (1995) C-72m.  D: Richard Williams. Voices of Vincent Price, Matthew Broderick, Jennifer Beals, Eric Bogosian, Toni Collette, Jonathan Winters, Bobbi Page, Clive Revill, Kevin Dorsey, Kenneth Williams. Colorful but disappointing (and ultimately, boring) yarn of a lowly cobbler who falls in love with a princess and does battle with a wily wizard named Zig Zag. Some engaging and amusing scenes for kids, with exceptionally interesting graphics and color schemes, but the story is too fragmented to really take hold; the songs are instantly forgettable. This film shows the scars of major production woes; it was begun by Williams in 1968(!), then taken out of his hands in the early 1990s. Retitled THE THIEF AND THE COBBLER (the film's original name while in production) for video. Panavision. [G]▼●

Arabian Nights (1942) C-86m. ½ D: John Rawlins. Jon Hall, Maria Montez, Sabu, Leif Erickson, Turhan Bey, Billy Gilbert, Shemp Howard, John Qualen, Thomas Gomez. Colorful, corny escapist stuff—beautifully mounted in Technicolor—about a dashing hero, an enslaved Sherazade, and an evil caliph. Shemp also memorable as a retired Sinbad the Sailor. First teaming of Montez, Hall, and Sabu. ▼●

Arabian Nights (1974-Italian-French) C-130m.  D: Pier Paolo Pasolini. Ninetto Davoli, Ines Pellegrini, Franco Citti, Tessa Bouche, Margarethe Clementi, Franco Merli. Several Thousand and One Nights tales are framed by the story of slave-girl Pellegrini, who becomes "king" of a great city. Dreamlike, exotic; the last and best of Pasolini's medieval trilogy. Running time originally 155m. ▼●

lor, Henry Jones, Peter Jason, James Handy. Fear of spiders is taken to extremes in this slick comic thriller from Steven Spielberg and Co. Small-town doctor Daniels (who hates spiders) and family play host to a wayward tropical arachnid that promptly sets up web in the barn out back. Essentially Grade Z movie fodder is soaked across here by a big budget and spirited performances. Directorial debut of longtime Spielberg producer Marshall. Not recommended for anyone who's ever covered their eyes during a movie. [PG-13]▼●

Ararat (2002-Canadian-U.S.) C-126m. ½ D: Atom Egoyan. Bruce Greenwood, Arsinée Khanjian, Christopher Plummer, Elias Koteas, Charles Aznavour, Brent Carver, David Alpay, Marie-Josée Croze, Eric Bogosian, Simon Abkarian. Movie-within-a-movie about Turkey's 1915 genocide against Armenia has its moments, and as many subplots. Toronto filmmakers shoot a lame-looking historical epic about the incident, which is contrasted against a modern-day story dealing with sex between step-siblings, a disapproving dad with a gay son, and a lengthy incident involving a customs agent and a member of the film's crew. Heavy breathing, pedantic at times, but interesting and obviously heartfelt, given Egoyan's Armenian background. [R]▼

Architect, The (2006) C-81m. ½ D: Matt Tauber. Anthony LaPaglia, Viola Davis, Isabella Rossellini, Hayden Panettiere, Sebastian Stan, Walton Goggins, Paul James. Chicago architect is unaware that the urban housing project he designed years ago is now a hellhole that one aggrieved mother (Davis) wants to tear down . . . or even that his wife and children aren't at peace in the modern-living space that is their home. Each character is in crisis here, and the brief screenplay (adapted by Tauber from David Greig's play) introduces more dilemmas than it resolves. Still, strong performances make this worth a look. LaPaglia also coexecutive-produced. [R]▼

Arch of Triumph (1948) 114m. ½ D: Lewis Milestone. Ingrid Bergman, Charles Boyer, Charles Laughton, Louis Calhern. Sluggish drama of refugee Boyer falling in love with Bergman in WW2 France, based on Erich Maria Remarque's novel. Archivaly restored to 131m. Remade for TV in 1985 with Anthony Hopkins and Lesley-Anne Down. ▼

archy and mehitable SEE: shinbone alley Arctic Tale (2007) C-96m.  D: Adam Ravetch, Sarah Robertson. Narrated by Queen Latifah. Quasi-documentary six years in the making follows the parallel stories of a walrus and her calf "pup" and a group of polar bears as they try to survive in the frozen arctic. While the footage itself is impressive, the "story" wrapped around it is strictly for very young kids. With cloying narration by Queen Latifah the film is clearly trying to emulate the success of a much more honest doc, MARCH OF THE PENGUINS. Too bad they didn't stick to the facts instead of trying to be BAMBI OF THE NORTH. [G]◆

Are Husbands Necessary? (1942) 79m.  D: Norman Taurog. Ray Milland, Betty Field, Patricia Morison, Eugene Pallette, Cecil Kellaway. And what about this film?

Arena (1953) C-83m. ½ D: Richard Fleischer. Gig Young, Jean Hagen, Polly Bergen, Henry (Harry) Morgan, Barbara Lawrence, Lee Aaker, Robert Horton, Lee Van Cleef. Colorful if utterly predictable story of rodeo star Young, on the verge of divorce from Bergen, falling under the spell of sexy Lawrence. Morgan is a standout as a onetime star reduced to taking a job as rodeo clown. Action scenes skillfully integrated. Filmed in Tucson, Arizona. Originally in 3-D.

Arena, The (1973) C-83m.  D: Steve Carver. Pam Grier, Margaret Markov, Lucretia Love, Paul Muller. Lavish (by Roger Corman standards) spectacle set in an ancient Rome in which all the gladiators are women. Rather surprisingly pro-feminist point of view, but Grier's and Markov's physiques remain the chief attractions. Retitled NAKED WARRIORS. Remade in 2001. Techniscope. [R]▼◆

Are We Done Yet? (2007) C-92m. *½ D: Steve Carr. Ice Cube, Nia Long, John C. McGinley, Aleisha Allen, Philip Bolden, Jonathan Katz, Linda Kash, Alexander Kalugin, Dan Joffe, Pedro Miguel Arce, Tahj Mowry, Jacob Vargas. Inevitable sequel to ARE WE THERE YET? is also an official remake of the 1948 comedy MR. BLANDINGS BUILDS HIS DREAM HOUSE (complete with RKO Radio Pictures logo), but Ice Cube isn't Cary Grant and this script is much more bland than BLANDINGS. Premise is basically the same: a man moves his growing family out of the crowded city and into his "dream house" in the suburbs, where everything goes wrong. Endlessly unfunny slapstick antics may have you looking at your watch asking the real question: "Is it over yet?" [PG]◆

Are We There Yet? (2005) C-95m. *½ D: Brian Levant. Ice Cube, Nia Long, Jay Mohr, Aleisha Allen, M. C. Gainey, Philip Daniel Bolden, Nichelle Nichols. If you wait long enough, just about anything can happen, including Ice Cube turning into Fred MacMurray. Actor Cube isn't the problem here, but a stale premise is: the child-hating owner of a sports memorabilia store transports two headstrong kids over a long, disaster-prone trip to Vancouver, all to help hottie-mama Long out of a scheduling jam while getting into her good graces. Before turning in this box-office success, director Levant did PROBLEM CHILD 2 and SNOW DOGS. Forewarned is forearmed. Followed by ARE WE DONE YET? [PG]▼◆

Ariel (1988-Finnish) C-74m.  D: Aki Kaurismäki. Turo Pajala, Susanna Haavisto, Matti Pellonpää. Surreal, dryly hilarious road movie from one of the most talented directors to emerge on the international film scene in the late 1980s. The scenario chronicles the plight of a mine worker (Pajala) who loses his job and sets out on a cross-country odyssey. ▼◆

Arise, My Love (1940) 110m. ½ D: Mitchell Leisen. Claudette Colbert, Ray Milland, Walter Abel, Dennis O'Keefe, Dick Purcell. Reporter Colbert rescues flyer Milland from a Spanish firing squad in the days before WW2 breaks out in Europe. Bright stars make Billy Wilder-Charles Brackett script seem better than it is; Benjamin Glazer and John S. Toldy received Oscars for their original story.

Aristocrats, The (2005) C-89m. ½ D: Paul Provenza. Stand-up comic Provenza and Penn Jillette (of Penn & Teller) set out to examine a notorious dirty joke that's become a touchstone for comedians of all ages. Comedy aficionados will find this irresistible, as a formidable parade of more than one hundred performers (Robin Williams, Phyllis Diller, George Carlin, Gilbert Gottfried, Larry Storch, to name just a few) cuts loose and dissects the appeal of the gag. Not surprisingly, some of the older comics get some of the biggest laughs . . . including an unannounced guest at the end of the credits. Not recommended for children or anyone easily offended. ▼

Arizona (1940) 127m. ½ D: Wesley Ruggles. Jean Arthur, William Holden, Warren William, Porter Hall, Paul Harvey. Lively story of determined woman battling corruption and plundering while trying to settle in new Arizona territory. Well done, but seems to go on forever. ▼

Confederate spy Keel takes job as sheriff in Arizona and routs Brady, who has been selling weapons to Apaches. Routine Western. Techniscope. ▼

Arizona Dream (1993-French-U.S.) C-119m. ½ D: Emir Kusturica. Johnny Depp, Jerry Lewis, Faye Dunaway, Lili Taylor, Paulina Porizkova, Vincent Gallo, Michael J. Pollard. Odd but intriguing film about a young dreamer (Depp) who's shanghaied into a trip to Arizona, where he catches up with a favorite uncle (Lewis) who wants him to settle down, and falls madly in love with an emotionally frail, childlike woman (Dunaway). European-styled film (from the Yugoslav director of WHEN FATHER WAS AWAY ON BUSINESS) boasts exceptionally good performances—one of Dunaway's best in years, one of Lewis' most impressive—though the often pathetic characters wear out their welcome after a while. Filmed in 1991; 142m. European version earned a brief U.S. theatrical release in 1995. [R] ▼

Obvious and overdone. Panavision. [R] ▼

Armageddon (1998) C-151m.  D: Michael Bay. Bruce Willis, Billy Bob Thornton, Liv Tyler, Ben Affleck, Will Patton, Peter Stormare, Keith David, Steve Buscemi, Owen Wilson, William Fichtner, Udo Kier, Michael (Clarke) Duncan; narrated by Charlton Heston. Opens with a bang, and sets up an exciting (if improbable) story about NASA and the U.S. government turning to a veteran oil-well driller and his motley team to save humanity by flying to an asteroid and planting a nuclear bomb. After a while it becomes so routine, so predictable, and so redundant that all the fun is drained away. Unrated director's cut runs 153m. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Armed and Dangerous (1986) C-88m. ½ D: Mark L. Lester. John Candy, Eugene Levy, Robert Loggia, Kenneth McMillan, Meg Ryan, Brion James, Jonathan Banks, Don Stroud, Steve Railsback. Lame comedy sticks talented costars with unappealing script about two bozos who wind up working for an armed security company—and tangling with a gangland boss (Loggia, wasted in a stereotype role). Even the chase finale is weak. [PG-13] ▼

Armed Response (1986) C-85m.  D: Fred Olen Ray. David Carradine, Lee Van Cleef, Mako, Lois Hamilton, Ross Hagen, Brent Huff, Laurene Landon, Dick Miller, Michael Berryman. Modest actioner of Carradine and family becoming involved in a Chinatown war over a stolen jade art object. Cheapie benefits from a solid cast of both new and old B-movie favorites. [R] ▼

Armour of God (1986-Hong Kong) C-94m. ½ D: Jackie Chan. Jackie Chan, Rosamund Kwan, Alan Tam, Lola Forna, Maria Dolores. Jackie plays an Indiana Jones-style adventurer who must find legendary suit of armor to rescue his girlfriend from a cult. Enjoyable film marred by slow spots and obviously cheated final stunt. Fight with four leather-clad women is a blast. Watch the outtakes at the end to see the mishap that nearly killed Chan. Followed by a sequel. ▼

Armour of God 2: Operation Condor (1991-Hong Kong) C-112m.  D: Jackie Chan. Jackie Chan, Carol (Dodo) Cheng, Eva Cobo deGarcia, Ikeda Shoko, Aldo Sanchez, Ken Lo. Lavish adventure epic sends Chan off to Europe and Africa in search of huge Nazi gold cache, with three female companions in tow. Crackerjack comedy-adventure filled with great fights, stunts, and slapstick; final battle in a wind tunnel is a knockout. One of Jackie's best. Recut, dubbed, and trimmed to 89m. for 1997 U.S. release as OPERATION CONDOR—which isn't as good as the original. Technovision. [PG-13] ▼ back (with his '73 Olds and a chainsaw) to King Arthur's 14th-century turf. Chiseled-grin Campbell's comic book features serve this movie well, as do a few witty bits and an army of skeletons obviously inspired by JASON AND THE ARGONAUTS. Doldrums set in when nifty special effects and verbal exchanges are out grabbing a smoke. Campbell also coproduced. Third in the EVIL DEAD series. Director's cut runs 96m. [R]▼●●

Lino Ventura, Simone Signoret, Paul Meurisse, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Claude Mann, Paul Crauchet, Christian Barbier, Serge Reggiani. Vivid period piece about the exploits of French Resistance agent Philippe Gerbier (Ventura) and the work he and his cohorts accomplish during WW2. Episodic but compelling, all the more so for Melville's matter-of-fact presentation of extraordinary feats. Signoret is featured as an especially ingenious and dedicated Parisian comrade. Based on Joseph Kessel's 1943 book, adapted by the director, who in real life worked for the Resistance.●

Around the Bend (2004) C-83m. ½ D: Jordan Roberts. Christopher Walken, Michael Caine, Josh Lucas, Glenn Headly, Jonah Bobo. Amiable-enough film about a man, separated from his wife, who takes care of his young son and his aged, eccentric grandfather when suddenly his own dad (who walked out when the boy was two) shows up on his doorstep. Culminates in a road trip through the Southwest. Generational story of forgiveness covers familiar emotional turf, but watching Walken is a treat. Written by the director. [R]▼●

Around the World in Eighty Days (1956) C-167m.  D: Michael Anderson. David Niven, Cantinflas, Shirley MacLaine, Robert Newton, Buster Keaton, Jose Greco, John Gielgud, Robert Morley, Marlene Dietrich, all-star cast. Oscar-winning favorite has lost much of its charm over the years, but even so, Mike Todd's version of the Jules Verne tale offers plenty of entertainment, and more than 40 cameo appearances offer plenty of star-gazing for buffs. Great Victor Young score was also an Oscar winner, as was the screenplay (James Poe, John Farrow, S. J. Perelman), cinematography (Lionel Lindon), and editing (Gene Ruggiero, Paul Weatherwax). Remade in 1989 (as a TV miniseries) and in 2004. Todd-AO.▼●●

Around the World in 80 Days (2004-British-Irish-German) C-119m. ½ D: Frank Coraci. Jackie Chan, Steve Coogan,

Cécile de France, Jim Broadbent, Ewen Bremner, Ian McNeice, Karen Joy Morris (Mok), Mark Addy, Will Forte, John Cleese, Macy Gray, Sammo Hung, Rob Schneider, Luke Wilson, Owen Wilson, Kathy Bates, Arnold Schwarzenegger. Absentminded Victorian inventor Phileas Fogg embarks on a global journey with a fugitive from justice (Chan) as his valet. Stumblebum remake of the Jules Verne saga is devoid of wit, and with so many CG effects shows no evidence of globetrotting in spite of having used several international locations. The 1956 movie had cameos by the likes of Sinatra and Dietrich; this one gives us Schwarzenegger in a funny wig. Super 35. [PG]▼●

Around the World in 80 Ways (1986-Australian) C-90m. ½ D: Stephen MacLean. Philip Quast, Allan Penney, Diana Davidson, Kelly Dingwall, Gosia Dobrowolska. Off-center Aussie farce about two brothers who contrive to spring their aging dad from his stultifying rest home and take him on an imaginary trip around the world. Wacky, and more than a bit crude at times, but likable throughout. [R]▼●●

Around the World Under the Sea (1966) C-117m.  D: Andrew Marton. Lloyd Bridges, Shirley Eaton, David McCallum, Brian Kelly, Keenan Wynn, Marshall Thompson. Several TV personalities appear in this undistinguished underwater tour about testing earthquake warnings. Panavision.▼

Arousers, The (1970) C-90m.  D: Curtis Hanson. Tab Hunter, Nadyne Turney, Roberta Collins, Isabel Jewell. Little-known, case-history B movie with topnotch performance by Hunter as lonely Venice, California, psychopath who can't make love to women, so he ends up killing them. Unsung thriller packs a wallop; worth searching out. Originally released as SWEET KILL; aka A KISS FROM EDDIE.▼

Arrival, The (1996) C-109m.  D: David Twohy. Charlie Sheen, Ron Silver, Lindsay Crouse, Teri Polo, Richard Schiff, Tony T. Johnson, Leon Rippey, Buddy Joe Hooker. Radio astronomer is fired when he tells his boss that he's picked up signals proving there's intelligent life in space. Then he learns that the aliens are already here and up to no good. Clever, intelligent sci-fi thriller of the old school, with many bright ideas; suffers from flaccid pacing in the last third but remains fun throughout. Written by the director. Followed by a video sequel. [PG-13]▼●●

Arrivederci, Baby! (1966) C-105m. ½

D: Ken Hughes. Tony Curtis, Rosanna Schiaffino, Lionel Jeffries, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Nancy Kwan. Comic theme about Bluebeard type who murders his wives for their money has been handled more successfully by others. Not very funny. Panavision. ▼

Arrowhead (1953) C-105m. ½ D: Charles Marquis Warren. Charlton Heston, Jack Palance, Katy Jurado, Brian Keith, Milburn Stone. Well-paced account of cavalry scout Heston, who despises Indians, and his response when Apaches return to their reservation and Apache chief Palance arrives on the scene. Watch this, and you will understand why Native Americans have lambasted the manner in which they have been depicted by Hollywood. Keith's first film appearance since his screen debut in 1924, at age three. ▼●●

Arrowsmith (1931) 99m. ½ D: John Ford. Ronald Colman, Helen Hayes, Richard Bennett, A. E. Anson, Claude King, Russell Hopton, Myrna Loy, Beulah Bondi, John Qualen. Seriously flawed and illogical adaptation of Sinclair Lewis' novel about a dedicated young research doctor who spends most of his life facing the temptation of selling out. Worth seeing for some fine performances and stirring moments. Screenplay by Sidney Howard (who fared better with Lewis' Dodsworth). Originally 110m.; cut to 101m. for reissue, restored in recent years to 99m. ▼●●

Arruza (1972) C-75m. ½ D: Budd Boetticher. Narrated by Anthony Quinn. Interesting documentary, many years in production, about bullfighter Carlos Arruza. Well made, but the impact is nowhere near that of Boetticher's own fictional BULL-FIGHTER AND THE LADY. [M/PG] ▼

Arsene Lupin (1932) 84m.  D: Jack Conway. John Barrymore, Lionel Barrymore, Karen Morley, John Miljan, Henry Armetta, Tully Marshall. Ripe detective yarn set in Paris: John is a gentleman, Lionel a detective, Morley a mystery woman. Which one is the title jewel thief? John and Lionel B. make a marvelous team in their first film together.

Arsenic and Old Lace (1944) 118m. ½ D: Frank Capra. Cary Grant, Priscilla Lane, Raymond Massey, Peter Lorre, Jack Carson, Josephine Hull, Jean Adair, James Gleason, Grant Mitchell, John Alexander, Edward Everett Horton. Hilarious adaptation of Joseph Kesselring's hit play (scripted by the Epstein Brothers) about two seemingly harmless old ladies who poison lonely gentleman callers. Frantic cast is excellent, especially Lorre and Massey as unsuspecting murderers holed up in Brooklyn household. Made in 1941. Hull, Adair, and Alexander repeat their Broadway roles. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

aretti, Emmanuelle Devos, Frederic Pierrot, Yahn Tregouet. Biopic of one of the earliest women painters in history, 17th-century Italian Artemisia Gentileschi. Her desire to express herself is tempered by her relationships with two strong men: her loving but rigid father (Serrault) and her mentor (Manojlovic), whose seduction and rape of his protégée leads to a notorious trial. An accomplished if uninspired depiction of this historical figure, whose fate is still debated by scholars and feminists. [R] ▼●●

Arthur (1981) C-97m. ½ D: Steve Gordon. Dudley Moore, Liza Minnelli, John Gielgud, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Jill Eikenberry, Stephen Elliott, Ted Ross, Barney Martin. Winning 1930s-style comedy, written by first-timer Gordon, who died the following year. Spoiled millionaire must choose between continued wealth (in a planned marriage) and true love (with working-class waitress Minnelli). More genuine laughs than most recent comedies put together, and a memorable, Oscar-winning performance by Gielgud as a protective, acid-tongued valet; title song "Arthur's Theme (Best That You Can Do)" also earned a statuette. Followed by ARTHUR 2: ON THE ROCKS. [PG] ▼●●

Arthur 2: On the Rocks (1988) C-110m.  D: Bud Yorkin. Dudley Moore, Liza Minnelli, John Gielgud, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Stephen Elliott, Paul Benedict, Cynthia Sikes, Kathy Bates, Jack Gilford, Ted Ross, Daniel Greene. Arthur goes broke and his wife wants to adopt a baby. The cast tries, and there are scattered laughs, but this schmaltzy sequel (executive produced by Moore) is a disappointment. Gielgud "appears" briefly as a ghost. That's Dudley's then-wife, Brogan Lane, as Liza's hash-slinging colleague. [PG] ▼●●

Arthur and the Invisibles (2006-French) C-94m. *½ D: Luc Besson. Freddie Highmore, Mia Farrow, Penny Balfour, Doug Rand, Adam LeFevre; voices of Madonna, Jimmy Fallon, Robert De Niro, Harvey Keitel, Chazz Palminteri, Emilio Estevez, Snoop Dogg, Anthony Anderson, Jason Bateman, David Bowie. Ten-year-old Arthur (Highmore) enters a fantasy world to find a hidden treasure. Rambling, confusing blend of live-action and below-par computer-generated animation. All-star cast of English-speaking actors dubbed the original French dialogue in the animated sequences. Besson co-scripted, based on his children's book. Super 35. [PG] ●

Article 99 (1992) C-99m. ½ D: Howard Deutch. Ray Liotta, Kiefer Sutherland, Forest Whitaker, Lea Thompson, John C. McGinley, John Mahoney, Keith David, Kathy Baker, Eli Wallach, Noble Willingham, Julie Bovasso, Troy Evans, Lynne Thigpen, Jeffrey Tambor, Rutanya Alda. Heartfelt but disappointingly one-dimensional, "lighthearted" exposé of Veterans'

Administration hospital abuse, focusing on spunky surgeon Liotta and his compatriots, who try to thwart the bureaucracy; Sutherland is the new doc on the block. Hijinks are more reminiscent of DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE than THE HOSPITAL—and that's the problem. [R] ▼ ● ●

Artists and Models (1955) C-109m.  D: Frank Tashlin. Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis, Shirley MacLaine, Dorothy Malone, Eva Gabor, Anita Ekberg. Cartoonist Martin uses Lewis's far-out dreams as inspiration for his comic strips in this deliciously garish Technicolor outing. VistaVision. ▼ ● ●

Art of Love, The (1965) C-99m. * D: Norman Jewison. James Garner, Dick Van Dyke, Elke Sommer, Angie Dickinson, Ethel Merman, Carl Reiner. Ordinary comedy set in France, with a bemused cast headed by Van Dyke as a struggling artist who fakes death to increase the value of his work. Sommer is his virtuous girl, boisterous Merman a local madam with a yen for singing.

Art of War, The (2000) C-117m. ½ D: Christian Duguay. Wesley Snipes, Anne Archer, Maury Chaykin, Marie Matiko, Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa, Michael Biehn, Donald Sutherland, James Hong. Unexceptional action thriller. Snipes is a secret agent for the U.N. who's framed for an assassination, so he tries to unsnarl a tangled plot centering on Chinese trade negotiations. Hong Kong-style fights and good cinematography (by Pierre Gill) help, but you've seen it all before. Title derives from Sun-Tzu's 2,500-year-old treatise on war. Followed by a DVD sequel. Super 35. [R] ▼ ●

Art School Confidential (2006) C-102m.  D: Terry Zwigoff. Max Minghella, Sophia Myles, John Malkovich, Jim Broadbent, Anjelica Huston, Matt Keeslar, Ethan Suplee, Katherine Moennig, Dick Bakalyan. Freshman at an arts college wants desperately to be accepted, if not applauded, but no one will take his drawings or paintings seriously—while charlatans and showoffs thrive. More than anything he wants to impress a beautiful girl who models for his class. As darkly comic as GHOST WORLD (from the same director and writer, graphic novelist and comic book artist Daniel Clowes) but more human; we feel this young man's pain. Malkovich coproduced. Steve Buscemi and Michael Lerner appear unbilled. [R] ●

Ascent, The (1994) C-96m. * D: Donald Shebib. Vincent Spano, Ben Cross, Tony Lo Bianco, Rachel Ward, Mark Ingall, John De Villiers. Beautiful scenery cannot save this unexceptional WW2 drama, set in a POW camp where Italian prisoners challenge their British captors to a race in which both sides will scale nearby Mount Kenya. If they win, they will regain a measure of honor; however, freedom-loving prisoner

As Good As It Gets (1997) C-138m. ½ D: James L. Brooks. Jack Nicholson, Helen Hunt, Greg Kinnear, Cuba Gooding, Jr., Skeet Ulrich, Shirley Knight, Yeadley Smith, Lupe Ontiveros, Bibi Osterwald, Randall Batinkoff, Brian Doyle-Murray. Professional malcontent (and full-time phobic) Nicholson is unavoidably drawn into the lives of his favorite waitress and his gay next-door neighbor. Gradually, and against his own judgment, he begins to show signs of humanity. Wonderful comedy-drama (written by Mark L. Andrus and Brooks) takes the viewer on an emotional journey, with laughs and tears along the way. Both Nicholson and Hunt won Oscars for their roles. Writer-directors Harold Ramis, Lawrence Kasdan, Shane Black, and Todd Solondz all have small roles. [PG-13] ▼ ● ●

Ashanti (1979) C-117m. * D: Richard Fleischer. Michael Caine, Peter Ustinov, Beverly Johnson, Kabir Bedi, Omar Sharif, Rex Harrison, William Holden. Stark, intelligent, perceptive account of the Resistance movement in Poland during the closing days of WW2. Cybulski, the Polish James Dean, came into his own with his portrayal of a young Resistance fighter. The last of Wajda's War trilogy, following A GENERATION and KANAL. ▼ ● ●

Ash Wednesday (1973) C-99m. BOMB D: Larry Peerce. Elizabeth Taylor, Henry Fonda, Helmut Berger, Keith Baxter, Margaret Blye. Liz undergoes a facelift to regain her youth, but she still looks older than Fonda. Sit through this one and you'll need surgery on your posterior. [R] ▼

Ash Wednesday (2002) C-98m. *½ D: Edward Burns. Edward Burns, Elijah Wood, Rosario Dawson, Oliver Platt, Pat McNamara, James Handy, Michael Mulheren, Malachy McCourt, Julie Hale. Writer-director-star Burns tackles grimmer material than usual in this story of two brothers who reluctantly get mixed up with gangsters in early 1980s N.Y.C. Burns is good as the older sibling, but Wood fails to convince us that he is from the same family. Uninvolving story looks as if it was made on a shoestring. [R] ▼ ●

Ask Any Girl (1959) C-101m.  D: Charles Walters. David Niven, Shirley MacLaine, Gig Young, Rod Taylor, Jim

Backus, Elisabeth Fraser. Effervescent gloss of naive MacLaine coming to N.Y., discovering most men have lecherous designs on girls; she wants a husband, however. CinemaScope. ▼

Ask the Dust (2006) C-117m.  D: Robert Towne. Colin Farrell, Salma Hayek, Donald Sutherland, Eileen Atkins, Idina Menzel, Justin Kirk, Jeremy Crutchley, William Mapother; narrated by Richard Schickel. Would-be novelist Arturo Bandini arrives in L.A. in the early 1930s full of ambition, but the reality of day-to-day living smothers his inner fire. He can't even give himself to a woman who might make him happy, a Mexican waitress. Intriguing, handsomely made, but unforgivably dreary adaptation of John Fante's 1939 novel, written by Towne as a kind of companion piece to CHINATOWN. [R] ●

Aspen Extreme (1993) C-115m. *½ D: Patrick Hasburgh. Paul Gross, Peter Berg, Finola Hughes, Teri Polo, William Russ, Trevor Eve, Martin Kemp, William McNamara, Nicolette Scorsese. For two Detroit buddies, the Motown slopes are not enough—so it's off to the Colorado Rockies for sex, tragedy, and skiing success amid the lifestyles of the rich and banal. Satisfactory outdoor scenes, but little else beyond jarring lapses in plot continuity. Hollywood Pictures, which opened this a week after ALIVE, must have gotten a deal on some parkas. [PG-13] ▼●●

Asphalt Jungle, The (1950) 112m. ½ D: John Huston. Sterling Hayden, Louis Calhern, Jean Hagen, James Whitmore, Sam Jaffe, John McIntire, Marc Lawrence, Marilyn Monroe. The plotting of a crime, and the gathering of a gang to pull it off; a taut, realistic film full of fine characterizations (especially Jaffe, and Monroe in a memorable bit). A model of its kind, frequently copied, and remade no less than three times (as THE BADLANDERS, CAIRO, COOL BREEZE). Scripted by Ben Maddow and Huston, from a W. R. Burnett novel. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Asphyx, The (1972-British) C-99m.  D: Peter Newbrook. Robert Stephens, Robert Powell, Jane Lapotaire, Ralph Arliss, Alex Scott. Good fantasy plot has 19th-century scientist Stephens isolating the Asphyx, the spirit of death that appears around a person's body at times of imminent danger. In so doing, he becomes immortal. Lapotaire, who scored internationally on stage in Piaf, appears here as Stephens's daughter. AKA SPIRIT OF THE DEAD. Todd-AO 35. [PG] ▼●

Assam Garden, The (1985-British) C-92m.  D: Mary McMurray. Deborah Kerr, Madhur Jaffrey, Alec McCowen, Zia Mohyeddin, Anton Lesser. Quietly rewarding drama with Kerr in her best role in years (and first theatrical release since 1969's THE ARRANGEMENT), as a stuffy, long-repressed, just-widowed woman. While tending her husband's garden and dealing with his memory, she strikes up a curious complex friendship with Indian neighbor Jaffrey.

Assassin, The (1961-Italian) 105m. ½ D: Elio Petri. Marcello Mastroianni, Salvo Randone, Micheline Presle, Cristina Gajoni. Engaging study of scoundrel Mastroianni implicated in a murder, broken by the police, proven innocent, with a wry ending.

Assassination (1987) C-88m. *½ D: Peter Hunt. Charles Bronson, Jill Ireland, Stephen Elliott, Jan Gan Boyd, Randy Brooks, Erik Stern, Michael Ansara, James Staley, Kathryn Leigh Scott. Bronson is a Secret Service bodyguard, Ireland the wife of the President, in this ridiculous, slapdash political thriller with more explosions than anything else. The First Lady is referred to here as One Mama! [PG-13] ▼●●

Assassination Bureau, The (1969-British) C-110m.  D: Basil Dearden. Oliver Reed, Diana Rigg, Telly Savalas, Curt Jurgens, Clive Revill. Fun tale based on Jack London story of secret club that eliminates unworthy people, until greed more than dedication begins to cloud the operation. [M] ▼●●

Assassination of Jesse James by the Coward Robert Ford, The (2007) C-160m.

½ D: Andrew Dominik. Brad Pitt, Casey Affleck, Sam Shepard, Mary-Louise Parker, Paul Schneider, Jeremy Renner, Garret Dillahunt, Zoey Deschanel, Michael Parks, Ted Levine, Sam Rockwell, Alison Elliott, James Carville, Tom Aldredge, Nick Cave. Retelling of the history leading up to the titular event and the strange relationship between the legendary—and moody—outlaw (Pitt) and his eventual killer (Affleck), who's consumed with hero worship. Well acted, beautifully made (with exquisite cinematography by Roger Deakins), but crippled by overlength—which is not matched by commensurate character development or the intended thematic insight into the nature (and effects) of myth and celebrity. Super 35. [R] ●

Assassination of Richard Nixon, The (2004-U.S.-Mexican) C-95m.  D: Niels Mueller. Sean Penn, Don Cheadle, Jack Thompson, Michael Wincott, Mykelti Williamson, Naomi Watts, Nick Searcy, Brad Henke. Penn is brilliant as Sam Bicke (in real life Byck), who channeled his mounting frustrations with society into a doomed attempt to assassinate the President in 1974.

The saga of a loser, made interesting by observational detail in the script (by Mueller and Kevin Kennedy) and Penn's incisive performance. Thompson is terrific as his bear of a boss; Watts is excellent in a low-key turn as Penn's estranged wife. Coproduced by Alfonso Cuarón, and partly filmed in Mexico. Executive producers include Alexander Payne and Leonardo DiCaprio. [R] Assassination of Trotsky, The (1972-French-Italian-British) C-103m. ½ D: Joseph Losey. Assassination Tango (2003) C-114m. ½ D: Robert Duvall. Robert Duvall, Ruben Blades, Kathy Baker, Luciana Pedraza, Julio Oscar Mechoso, James Keane, Frank Gio, Frank Cassavetes, Michael Corrente. Hit man from Brooklyn is forced to disrupt his happy domestic life to travel to Argentina and carry out an assassination . . . but while he's waiting for the right moment, he takes up with a sexy tango dancer who introduces him to her world. Duvall is great to watch, and so are the tango sequences (some of them involving real-life masters of the art), but the results don't quite make a cohesive movie. Pedraza is Duvall's real-life companion. Duvall wrote and coproduced. [R] ▼●

Assassins (1995) C-132m.  D: Richard Donner. Sylvester Stallone, Antonio Banderas, Julianne Moore, Anatoly Davydov. World's number one paid hit man is dogged at every turn by a young rival. A 12-year-old's family is liquidated in the final days of WW2, and he represses his memories and feelings while growing into manhood. Evocative performances and fine direction enhance a story that is both truthful and heartbreaking. Long, but suspenseful, with many thought-provoking moments. Ethan Hawke, Laurence Fishburne, John Leguizamo, Maria Bello, Jeffrey "Ja Rule" Atkins, Drea de Matteo, Gabriel Byrne, Brian Dennehy, Matt Craven, Dorian Harewood, Aisha Hinds, Kim Coates, Currie Graham. On a snowy New Year's Eve an old Detroit police station prepares to shut down, but the storm forces cops to deposit a handful of prisoners there, including a local crime boss who just killed an undercover officer. Violent remake of the lean, mean John Carpenter B movie adds a variety of plot complications—and with each one, another layer of disbelief. Well crafted but laughable at times. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Thornton is ideal as a proud, independent-thinking Texas farmer who's built a rocket in his barn and has convinced himself (and his loving family) that he's going to fly into outer space . . . until the U.S. government gets wind of his scheme. Capraesque story about a "little guy" who believes in a dream is beautifully rendered; only problem is that the guy in question is nuts! Written by Michael and Mark Polish; the latter plays one of the FBI agents on the case, and their adorable daughters Jasper and Logan play two of Thornton's kids. Bruce Willis appears unbilled. Psychiatrist's wife gets involved with one of her husband's patients, a prison inmate who was found guilty of the brutal murder of his wife. Uneven melodrama serves as a fine showcase for Richardson, playing a conflicted woman whose emotions begin to trump her logic. Csokas, as the object of her fatal attraction, does the best he can with a one-dimensional role. The sum of this film's parts don't add up to a satisfying whole. From a novel by Patrick McGrath. As You Desire Me (1932) 71m. ½ D: George Fitzmaurice. Greta Garbo, Melvyn Douglas, Erich von Stroheim, Hedda Hopper, Owen Moore. OK version of Pirandello play about amnesiac (Garbo) returning to husband she doesn't really remember. Never as compelling as it should be.▼

As You Like It (1936-British) 96m.  D: Paul Czinner. Elisabeth Bergner, Laurence Olivier, Sophie Stewart, Henry Ainley, Leon Quartermaine, Felix Aylmer. Olivier is solid (and handsome) as Orlando in his first attempt at the Bard on celluloid, but Bergner's Rosalind is more a matter of taste. Overall, an enjoyable production of this Shakespeare comedy. Kenneth Branagh's 2006 version debuted in the U.S. on cable TV.▼●●

As Young As You Feel (1951) 77m. ½ D: Harmon Jones. Monty Woolley, Thelma Ritter, David Wayne, Jean Peters, Constance Bennett, Marilyn Monroe, Allyn Joslyn, Albert Dekker. Printing company employee Woolley is "retired" when he turns 65, and he just won't sit still for it. Amiable satire of corporate bureaucracy, with a first-rate cast, based on a story by Paddy Chayefsky.▼●

David Strathairn, Crispin Glover, Kiefer Sutherland. Brooding, but curiously un-moving, story about teenage half-brothers who first get to know their no-account father, and come to realize what a dangerous person he is. Downbeat drama is marked by good acting, thoughtful filmmaking, but emotional impact is muted. Based on a true incident. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

At First Sight (1998) C-128m. ½ D: Irwin Winkler. Val Kilmer, Mira Sorvino, Kelly McGillis, Steven Weber, Bruce Davison, Nathan Lane, Ken Howard, Diana Krall. Driven N.Y.C. career woman falls in love with a self-reliant blind man. Then she finds a doctor who can restore his sight—but is this necessarily a good thing? Overtly soapy romantic drama doesn't pretend to be anything but what it is, and the stars are likable . . . but it goes on too long. Based on a true story chronicled by Dr. Oliver Sacks (AWAKENINGS). Having a George Shearing cut on the soundtrack is a nice touch. [PG-13] ▼●●

ATL (2006) C-105m.  D: Chris Robinson. Tip Harris, Lauren London, Antwan Andre Patton (Big Boi), Mykelti Williamson, Keith David, Lonette McKee, Evan Ross, Lauren Leah Mitchell. Another film about skatin' in the hood (after ROLL BOUNCE), featuring Harris, better known as recording star T.I. Pretends to be a coming-of-age story about young people trying to make it out of the ghetto, but takes itself way too seriously. It's clear the screenwriters aren't channeling Hemingway, and when one girl tells a boy, "I've seen you skate and that's all I need to know about a man," we know we're in for a long sit. From a story by Antwone Fisher (yes, that Antwone Fisher). Coproduced by Will Smith. Panavision. [PG-13] ●

Atlantic City (1980-Canadian-French) C-104m. * D: Louis Malle. Burt Lancaster, Susan Sarandon, Kate Reid, Michel Piccoli, Hollis McLaren, Robert Joy, Al Waxman, Wally Shawn. Rich character study of a city in transition, focusing on small-time losers who've stayed there too long and big-time dreamers who are just arriving. European in its ambience and storytelling approach, though its setting is an American resort. Lancaster gives one of his finest performances as an aging two-bit hood who's all style and no substance. Screenplay by John Guare. [R] ▼●●

Atlantis, the Lost Continent (1961) C-90m. *½ D: George Pal. Anthony Hall, Joyce Taylor, John Dall, Frank de Kova. Famed sci-fi producer George Pal's worst film is set on the island of Atlantis, in the time of ancient Greece. Heroic young fisherman becomes involved in tedious intrigue before, finally, the place sinks. Lots of stock footage, poor effects. Occasionally funny—but not on purpose. ▼●

Atlantis: The Lost Empire (2001) C-95m.  D: Kirk Wise, Gary Trousdale. Voices of Michael J. Fox, James Garner, Cree Summer, Leonard Nimoy, Don Novello, Claudia Christian, Jacqueline Obradors, John Mahoney, Corey Burton, David Ogden Stiers, Jim Varney. Good, old-fashioned animated-fantasy/adventure yam about a young dreamer who tries to make good his father's attempts to find the lost underwater city of Atlantis and locate the key to its advanced civilization. Styled like a comic book, this Disney feature got a bum rap in theaters; it's good family entertainment. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. Digital Widescreen. [PG] ▼●

Atlas (1961) C-80m.  D: Roger Corman. Michael Forest, Frank Wolff, Barboura Morris, Walter Maslow, Christos Exarchos. Praximedes convinces Olympic champion Atlas to represent him in battle, but Atlas eventually fights for the common folk. Slightly hilarious low-budget nonsense, filmed in Greece. VistaScope. ▼●

At Long Last Love (1975) C-118m. *½ D: Peter Bogdanovich. Burt Reynolds, Cybill Shepherd, Madeline Kahn, Duilio Del Prete, Eileen Brennan, John Hillerman, Mildred Natwick. Burt and Cybill are no Fred and Ginger. Bogdanovich's homage to 1930s Hollywood musicals has everything money can buy—including lavish sets and a Cole Porter score—but lacks the proper stars to put it over. Reedited (and ostensibly improved) for TV by the director; that version runs 115m. [G]

Atomic Cafe, The (1982) 88m.  D: Kevin Rafferty, Jayne Loader, Pierce Rafferty. Consistently chilling, occasionally hilarious, arguably monotonal compilation of U.S. government and "educational" propaganda shows how Americans of the 1950s Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb. One-of-a-kind is undeniably provocative, to say nothing of topical, but argues its point a little longer than necessary. ▼

Atomic Submarine, The (1959) 72m.  D: Spencer Bennet. Arthur Franz, Dick Foran, Brett Halsey, Tom Conway, Bob Steele, Victor Varconi, Joi Lansing. Title sub investigates mysterious goings-on in the Arctic Circle. The culprit is an underwater flying saucer piloted by an alien! Typical Alex Gordon production, boasting lots of familiar character actors, is appealing and atmospheric. Mainly for buffs. ▼●●

Atonement (2007-British-U.S.) C-123m.  D: Joe Wright. James McAvoy, Keira Knightley, Romola Garai, Saoirse Ronan, Vanessa Redgrave, Brenda Blethyn, Juno Temple, Patrick Kennedy, Benedict Cumberbatch, Harriet Walter, Gina McKee. In the 1930s, spoiled young woman (Knightley) who has grown up in one of England's stately homes tries to deny her attraction to the housekeeper's son (McAvoy); when she finally gives in, it triggers great resentment in her younger sister (Ronan), who goes in for theatrics, and alters the course of McAvoy's life. Handsome but portentous adaptation of Ian McEwan's novel (by Christopher Hampton) never delivers the emotional impact it should, given its intriguing premise. Oscar winner for Dario Marianelli's score. The interviewer in the final scene is played by filmmaker Anthony Minghella. [R] ▼

Atonement of Gosta Berling, The (1924-Swedish) 91m.  D: Mauritz Stiller. Lars Hanson, Greta Garbo, Ellen Cederstrom, Mona Martenson, Jenny Hasselquist, Gerda Lundquist. Memorable drama, from the Selma Lagerlof novel, about a defrocked priest (Hanson) and his love for a young married woman (a pleasingly plump Garbo, in the role which brought her to world attention). Stiller was, of course, Garbo's discoverer and mentor. Several longer versions run between 105m. and 165m. Aka GOSTA BERLING'S SAGA, THE SAGA OF GOSTA BERLING, THE LEGEND OF GOSTA BERLING, and THE STORY OF GOSTA BERLING. ▼

Ator, the Fighting Eagle (1983) C-100m. BOMB D: David Hills. Miles O'Keefe, Sabrina Siani, Ritza Brown, Edmund Purdom, Laura Gemser. Ridiculous Italian-made imitation of CONAN THE BARBARIAN has muscular O'Keefe as the mythical title warrior, with beautiful blonde Siani along for the ride on his trek against evil. Followed by two sequels: THE BLADE MASTER and ATOR III: THE FIGHTING EAGLE aka QUEST FOR THE MIGHTY SWORD. [PG] ▼

Berenger, Aidan Quinn, Kathy Bates, John Lithgow, Daryl Hannah, Tom Waits, Stenio Garcia, Nelson Xavier. Long, at first lumbering, but ultimately powerful rainforest epic of two Protestant missionaries (one a charlatan, one sincere) who end up doing about equal damage to the jungle Indians they are supposed to serve. Faithful, well-cast film of Peter Matthiessen's great (though admittedly difficult) novel; pace picks up a lot in the second half, leading to memorable finale. [R] ▼●

Attack of the Crab Monsters (1957) 63m.  D: Roger Corman. Richard Garland, Pamela Duncan, Russell Johnson, Leslie Bradley, Mel Welles, Ed Nelson. People are trapped on a shrinking island by intelligent, brain-eating giant crabs. Interesting early Corman thriller is hampered by a low budget—and some very silly monsters—but Charles B. Griffith's script has many ingenious ideas. ▼

Attack of the 50 Foot Woman (1958) 66m. BOMB D: Nathan Hertz (Juran). Allison Hayes, William Hudson, Yvetteickers, Roy Gordon. A harridan with a philandering husband has an alien encounter and grows to mammoth proportions, seeks revenge on hubby. Hilariously awful sci-fi with some of the funniest special effects of all time. Remade for TV in 1993 with Daryl Hannah. ▼●●

Sharon Taylor, George Wilson, Jack Riley, Rock Peace, The San Diego Chicken. Title and opening credits are the funniest things in this low-budget spoof of low-budget science-fiction, which cracks its one joke and then beats it to death for another 85 minutes. A staple at Worst Film Festivals, but nowhere nearly as hilarious as movies that aren't supposed to be. Followed by RETURN OF THE KILLER TOMATOES!, KILLER TOMATOES STRIKE BACK, KILLER TOMATOES EAT FRANCE!, and an animated TV series. [PG]▼●●

Attack of the Puppet People (1958) 78m. *½ D: Bert I. Gordon. John Agar, John Hoyt, June Kenney, Scott Peters. Low-class shocker about mad dollmaker who shrinks people; good performance by Hoyt, otherwise predictable and amateurish. ▼

At the Earth's Core (1976-British) C-90m. ½ D: Kevin Connor. Doug McClure, Peter Cushing, Caroline Munro, Cy Grant, Godfrey James, Sean Lynch. Colorful fantasy-adventure based on Edgar Rice Burroughs' novel. Competent special effects make this yarn palatable. [PG]▼

Auggie Rose (2001) C-108m.  D: Matthew Tabak. Jeff Goldblum, Anne Heche, Nancy Travis, Timothy Olyphant, Joe Santos, Richard T. Jones, Kim Coates. A slick yuppie insurance salesman (Goldblum) drops out of the game and assumes the identity of an ex-con he saw shot to death. He feels so obliged to pay the man tribute that he seeks out and falls in love with his sweet prison pen pal (Heche). Begins like a good short story, but becomes contrived and preachy about the nobility of the working class. Debuted in the U.S. on cable TV. Aka BEYOND SUSPICION. [R] ▼

August (1996-British) C-90m. *½ D: Anthony Hopkins. Anthony Hopkins, Kate Burton, Gawn Grainger, Rhian Morgan, Rhoda Lewis. Uncle Vanya comes to Wales in yet another version of the oft-adapted Chekhov play, with real-life Welshman Hopkins (in his directorial debut) misdirecting himself in the lead. Boring rendition with inaccessible characters about whom we do not care. Incidentally, Hopkins also composed the score. [PG]▼●

August Rush (2007) C-113m. *½ D: Kirsten Sheridan. Freddie Highmore, Keri Russell, Jonathan Rhys Meyers, Terrence Howard, Robin Williams, William Sadler, Marian Seldes, Leon G. Thomas III, Mykelti Williamson, Alex O'Loughlin. Treacily fable of orphan Highmore's trek to find out where, and to whom, he may belong. Set mainly in N.Y.C., film is flooded with music of many types, since the boy is a prodigy. (It was a chance meeting between cellist Russell and Irish rocker Meyers that led to his birth—and his gift—in the first place.) The less said about Williams' new-millennium rendition of Dickens' Fagin the better. Super 35. [PG]●

Au Hasard Balthazar (1966-French-Swedish) 95m.  D: Robert Bresson. Anne Wiazemsky, François Lafarge, Philippe Asselin, Nathalie Joyaut, Walter Green. The sad, cruel life and death of a donkey that passes from owner to owner is used as a symbol for all the misery and inhumanity in the world in this stark and poetic allegory. Bresson also explores crime, adolescence, and family life with customary sensitivity and subtlety. ●

Auntie Mame (1958) C-143m. ½ D: Morton DaCosta. Rosalind Russell, Forrest Tucker, Coral Browne, Fred Clark, Roger Smith, Patric Knowles, Peggy Cass, Joanna Barnes, Pippa Scott, Lee Patrick, Willard Waterman, Connie Gilchrist, Robin Hughes, Jan Handzlik. Colorful film version of Patrick Dennis' novel about his eccentric aunt, who believes that "life is a banquet, and most poor suckers are starving to death." Episodic but highly entertaining, sparked by Russell's tour-de-force performance. Betty Comden-Adolph Green script was adapted from the Jerome Lawrence-Robert E. Lee Broadway play. Musicalized as MAME. Technirama. ▼●●

Austin Powers in Goldmember (2002) C-94m.  D: Jay Roach. Mike Myers, Beyoncé Knowles, Michael Caine, Seth Green, Michael York, Robert Wagner, Mindy Sterling, Verne Troyer, Fred Savage. Third outing for the shagadelic spy opens with such a hilarious, surprising sequence that nothing can top it—and nothing does. No real story follows, as Austin travels to 1975 and hooks up with Foxy Cleopatra (pop singer Knowles). The novelty of seeing Dr. Evil and Mini-Me is gone, Myers' new Goldmember character (sporting a Dutch accent) is more odd than funny; what's left are a lot of really crude jokes and missed opportunities. Worst of all, Caine is wasted as Austin's dad. Lots of stars appear in cameos. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery (1997) C-89m.  D: Jay Roach. Mike Myers, Elizabeth Hurley, Michael York, Mimi Rogers, Robert Wagner, Seth Green, Fabiana Udenio, Charles Napier, Will Ferrell. Swinging '60s spy is cryogenically frozen, then thawed out in the '90s to do battle with megalomaniac Dr. Evil—but he can't quite shake his mod '60s style or argot ("Groovy, baby!"). Myers (who also wrote and coproduced) is fun, especially as Dr. Evil, but this one-joke premise is stretched far beyond its limits. Carrie Fisher and Tom Arnold appear in unfunny cameos. Coproduced by Demi Moore. Followed by two sequels. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me (1999) C-92m. ½ D: Jay Roach. Mike Myers, Heather Graham, Rob Lowe, Michael York, Elizabeth Hurley, Robert Wagner, Gia Carides, Seth Green, Verne Troyer, Mindy Sterling, Kristen Johnson, Will Ferrell, Fred Willard, Charles Napier. More swingin' '60s lunacy as Dr. Evil returns to Earth with a time-travel machine and goes back to 1969 to steal Austin's mojo. More laughs than the original—and more than enough gross-out gags—though it's still spotty. Several star cameos, though Troyer, as Mini-Me, steals the film. Myers cowrote and coproduced. Followed by AUSTIN POWERS IN GOLDMEMBER. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Australia (2008-Australian-U.S.-British) C-165m.  D: Baz Luhrmann. Nicole Kidman, Hugh Jackman, David Wenham, Jack Thompson, Bryan Brown, David Gulpilil, Brandon Walters, David Ngoombujarra, Ben Mendelsohn, Essie Davis, Barry Otto, Kerry Walker. Long, sprawling, deliberately old-fashioned romantic drama is also designed as a tribute to Australia. Britisher Kidman travels there in 1939 to settle her husband's estate and winds up staying, determined to make something of his barren ranch with the help of a cattle drover (Jackman) who refuses to settle down. She also adopts an aboriginal boy (Walters) to save him from being rounded up by the government. If you're looking for subtlety, look elsewhere—but it is entertaining. Cast is filled with Aussie icons, including Thompson, Brown, and Gulpilil. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Auto Focus (2002) C-104m.  D: Paul Schrader. Greg Kinnear, Willem Dafoe, Rita Wilson, Maria Bello, Ron Leibman, Kurt Fuller, Ed Begley, Jr., Michael Rod-

Kinnear gives an excellent performance as clean-cut radio-host-turned-1960s-TV-star Bob Crane, of Hogan's Heroes fame, whose life, career, and happy marriage fall apart as he becomes literally addicted to sex. His pimp/partner in these escapades (Dafoe) also contributes to his decline by getting him hooked on the new technology of home video, which only fuels his obsession. A well-told story of one man's ruination, although it's not clear what the moral (if any) may be. [R]▼

Cornball May-December soaper in which a womanizing, 48-year-old restaurateur (Gere) falls for a gravely ill, Emily Dickinson-loving 21-year-old hat designer (Ryder). Some interesting supporting characters liven this up, and the cinematography (by Changwei Gu) is lovely, but Gere and Ryder lack chemistry; it's a wonder they could read some of their lines with a straight face. Ingrid, a famed concert pianist, locks horns with daughter Ullmann when they visit for the first time in seven years. Autumn Tale (1998-French) C-112m. ½ D: Eric Rohmer. Marie Rivière, Béatrice Romand, Alain Libolt, Didier Sandre, Alexia Portal, Stéphane Darmon. Delicious adult comedy dealing with two lifelong female friends, now in their 40s: one is happily married and would like to see her friend (a moody, independent vineyard owner) settle down, so she places a personals ad in the paper and "auditions" a proper suitor. Meanwhile, the younger generation gets involved providing comic complications. This is Rohmer at his best; glorious fun with a most appealing cast. [PG]▼

KGB head Shaw tries to defect on a Dutch train that's threatened by lots and lots of falling snow. Cast has enough stiffness in it to resemble audition time at the Hollywood Wax Museum. Sadly, final film for both Shaw and director Robson; in fact, most of Shaw's dialogue had to be dubbed by a mimic. Panavision. [PG]▼

Aidan Quinn, Elizabeth Perkins, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Joan Plowright, Lou Jacobi, Leo Fuchs, Eve Gordon, Kevin Pollak, Israel Rubinek, Elijah Wood, Grant Gelt, Bernard Hiller. Deeply felt, personal story by writer-director Levinson of an immigrant's life and times in Baltimore, and the changes the years bring to his large and boisterous family. Long, deliberately paced, and not always successful, but filled with telling moments and loving visual reminders of a way of life that's disappeared from our midst. Video gamers zap between vibrant illusion and grim reality as they earn their livings and risk true death to win entrance to a hallowed heroes' hall. Made by an Asian crew on the WW2-blasted terrain of Eastern Europe, this bleak techno-blitz—alternately mesmerizing and boring—unspools like Andrzej Wajda directing TRON. [R]▼

Avanti! (1972) C-144m. ½ D: Billy Wilder. Jack Lemmon, Juliet Mills, Clive Revill, Edward Andrews, Gianfranco Barra, Franco Angriano. Sadly underrated comedy about stuffy Baltimore millionaire who falls in love with daughter of his late father's mistress when he comes to Italy to claim the old man's body. Avengers, The (1998) C-89m.  D: Jeremiah Chechik. Ralph Fiennes, Uma Thurman, Sean Connery, Jim Broadbent, Fiona Shaw, Eddie Izzard, Eileen Atkins, John Wood. Retread of the popular British TV show of the '60s about two saucy secret agents tries in vain to capture its stylishness and insouciance—but Fiennes is woefully miscast, Connery gives a one-note performance as a bad guy who wants to control the earth's weather, and a fine supporting cast is wasted. Thurman is likable enough, but the film is utterly flat. Patrick Macnee, star of the original series, has an amusing voice-only cameo. [PG-13]▼●●

Avenging Angel (1985) C-93m. BOMB D: Robert Vincent O'Neil. Betsy Russell, Rory Calhoun, Susan Tyrrell, Robert F. Lyons, Ossie Davis, Barry Pearl. Sweet, naïve young woman (de France) comes to Paris and lands a job at a popular bar situated near a theater, concert hall, and auction house. Before long she finds herself involved with a famous actress, a classical pianist, and a wealthy man who's selling off his life's collection of art. These characters face very real crises—but somehow you know it's all going to turn out fine. Light and charming; Thompson's son Christopher cowrote the script with her and costars as the son of the art collector. Original French title FAUTEUILS D'ORCHESTRE. Super 35. [PG-13]●

the middle of some 1928 nowhere with whiny adolescent Arquette. Dull Ernest Gann story barely made it (and understandably so) to theaters; director is the MAN FROM SNOWY RIVER—not MAD MAX—George Miller. [PG]▼●

Aviator, The (2004) C-170m. ½ D: Martin Scorsese. Leonardo DiCaprio, Cate Blanchett, Kate Beckinsale, John C. Reilly, Alec Baldwin, Alan Alda, Ian Holm, Danny Huston, Gwen Stefani, Jude Law, Adam Scott, Matt Ross, Kelli Garner, Brent Spiner, Edward Herrmann, Willem Dafoe. Audacious screen bio of Howard Hughes, the billionaire who sets out to conquer Hollywood (and as many of its glamorous actresses as possible) but makes his real mark in the world of aircraft. Along the way he is dogged by deafness, a belief that he's losing his mind, and hounding from a crooked senator. John Logan's script wisely focuses on a specific period of Hughes' life (the 1920s through the 1940s), and doesn't pretend to be literal. Scorsese stages it in grand fashion, replicating two-color, then three-strip, Technicolor, and using all forms of movie magic, with the help of cinematographer Robert Richardson, production designer Dante Ferretti, set decorator Francesca Lo Schiavo, costume designer Sandy Powell, and editor Thelma Schoonmaker, who all won Oscars. DiCaprio is remarkably persuasive as the iron-willed aviator; Blanchett is great fun in an Oscar-winning turn as Katharine Hepburn. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Aviator's Wife, The (1981-French) C-104m. ½ D: Eric Rohmer. Philippe Marlaud, Marie Riviere, Anne-Laure Meury, Matthieu Carriere. Melancholy but charming story of young man's unhappy involvement with title character being interrupted by happy encounter with stranger in the park. Lovers of MAUD, CLAIRE, and CHLOE will be happy to find Rohmer in near-peak form after long layoff. [PG]▼●

Awake (2007) C-84m. *½ D: Joby Harold. Hayden Christensen, Jessica Alba, Terrence Howard, Lena Olin, Christopher McDonald, Sam Robards, Arliss Howard, Fisher Stevens, Denis O'Hare, Georgina Chapman. Real-life condition of "anesthetic awareness" is used to concoct a preposterous story in which a patient becomes alarmed at what he hears while undergoing open-heart surgery and must find a way to wake himself up. Bigger problem for the filmmakers is finding a way to keep the audience awake. Super 35. [R]●

Awakening, The (1980) C-102m. *½ D: Mike Newell. Charlton Heston, Susannah York, Jill Townsend, Stephanie Zimbalist. Archeologist Heston enters the tomb of Egyptian Queen Kara, whose spirit enters the body of his newborn daughter. Need

we continue? From a novel by Bram Stoker, filmed before as BLOOD FROM THE MUMMY'S TOMB. [R]▼●

Awakenings (1990) C-121m. ½ D: Penny Marshall. Robert De Niro, Robin Williams, Julie Kavner, Ruth Nelson, John Heard, Penelope Ann Miller, Max von Sydow, Alice Drummond, Mary Alice, Anne Meara, Richard Libertini, Dexter Gordon. Powerfully affecting true-life story of a painfully shy research doctor who takes a job at a Bronx hospital's chronic care ward in 1969—and discovers that his comatose patients still have life inside them. Williams is superb as the doctor, and De Niro is his match as a patient who awakens from a 30-year coma to deal with life as an adult for the first time. Steven Zaillian's screenplay is based on the book by (and experiences of) Dr. Oliver Sacks. [PG-13] ▼●

Away All Boats (1956) C-114m. ½ D: Joseph Pevney. Jeff Chandler, George Nader, Julie Adams, Lex Barker, Keith Andes, Richard Boone, David Janssen. Strict, aloof captain Chandler must ignite spark of fighting spirit among inexperienced crew aboard WW2 attack transport Belinda. Exciting, inspiring story of battle action in Pacific Theater. Look fast for Clint Eastwood as a medical orderly near film's end. VistaVision. ▼

Away From Her (2007-Canadian) C-110m.  D: Sarah Polley. Julie Christie, Gordon Pinsent, Olympia Dukakis, Wendy Crewson, Michael Murphy, Kristen Thomson, Alberta Watson. After 44 years of marriage, a couple recognizes that the wife is displaying early signs of Alzheimer's disease and makes plans to move her to an extended-care facility. As difficult as this is for her, it's devastating to him, especially when he sees her developing an attachment to another patient. Intelligent, empathetic film eschews sentimentality as the characters take this difficult journey. Remarkable first feature for actress Polley, who adapted Alice Munro's New Yorker short story "The Bear Came Over the Mountain." The cast couldn't be better, but Christie is especially good. [PG-13]▼

Awful Dr. Orloff, The (1961-Spanish) 95m.  D: Jess Franco. Howard Vernon, Conrado Sanmartin, Diana Lorys, Ricardo Valle, Perla Cristal. Medium spooker about deranged surgeon operating on a series of women, trying to find spare parts to revitalize his disfigured daughter. A long, disjointed Orloff series followed.▼

Awfully Big Adventure, An (1995-British-Irish) C-101m. ½ D: Mike Newell. Hugh Grant, Alan Rickman, Georgina Cates, Rita Tushingham, Peter Firth, Alan Cox, Prunella Scales. Unfocused though rarely boring drama about a capriciously cruel stage director who browbeats a Liverpool rep company in the late 1940s. The screenplay, from Beryl Bainbridge's novel, is by

Awful Truth, The (1937) 92m. ½ D: Leo McCarey. Irene Dunne, Cary Grant, Ralph Bellamy, Cecil Cunningham, Mary Forbes, Alex D'Arcy, Joyce Compton, Molly Lamont. Hilarious screwball comedy; Cary and Irene divorce, she to marry hayseed Bellamy, he to wed aristocratic Lamont. Each does his best to spoil the other's plans. McCarey won an Oscar for his inspired direction. Screenplay by Vina Delmar. Based on a play by Arthur Richman previously filmed in 1925 and 1929; remade in 1953 as the musical LET'S DO IT AGAIN.▼●

Ay, Carmela! (1990-Spanish) C-103m. ½ D: Carlos Saura. Carmen Maura, Andres Pajares, Gabino Diego, Maurizio di Razza, Miguel A. Rellan. Maura shines in this clever, rapier-witted farce as a vaudevillian who entertains the partisans during the Spanish Civil War. Then she, her husband, and their mute assistant find themselves trapped behind enemy lines. Both funny and poignant.▼●

Ayn Rand—A Sense of Life (1998) C/B&W-145m. ½ D: Michael Paxton. Narrated by Sharon Gless. Examination of the popular author, screenwriter, and philosopher, tracing her historic roots in the Soviet Union, her years in Hollywood, her talk show appearances expounding her controversial theories of Objectivism and individual rights, and her testimony before the House Un-American Activities Committee. Also incorporates dramatizations of her works and sequences illustrating her life. Too long—and pedantic—for some viewers, but a must for Rand enthusiasts.▼

Baadasssss! (2004) C-108m.  D: Mario Van Peebles. Mario Van Peebles, Joy Bryant, Terry Crews, Ossie Davis, David Alan Grier, Nia Long, Saul Rubinek, Rainn Wilson, T. K. Carter, Paul Rodriguez, Vincent Schiavelli, Khleo Thomas, Len Lesser, Sally Struthers, Adam West, Glenn Plummer. After his first taste of Hollywood success in the early 1970s, Melvin Van Peebles decides to make an uncompromising film from a black man's point of view (SWEET SWEETBACK'S BAAD ASSSSS SONG) and has to use guerrilla tactics to get the job done. He spares no one along the way, including his young son Mario. The younger Van Peebles gives a great performance as his father and makes us feel as if we're eyewitnesses to this incredible true story. Filmmaker John Singleton appears as a disc jockey; Troy Garity appears unbilled. [R]▼

beth Hanna, Sarah Polley, Chris Wiggins. Entertaining feature-length cartoon based on the classic children's books by Jean and Laurent de Brunhoff. Strictly serviceable (and uninspired) animation is made up for by an engaging storyline that's sure to appeal to young children. [G] ▼●●

Babe, The (1992) C-115m.  D: Arthur Hiller. John Goodman, Kelly McGillis, Trini Alvarado, Bruce Boxleitner, Peter Donat, James Cromwell, J. C. Quinn, Joe Rago, Bernard Kates, Michael McGrady, Stephen Caffrey. Agreeably sentimental, old-fashioned bio of the great Babe Ruth is largely a vehicle for Goodman, who's terrific in the lead. Though facts are tampered with and often ignored, the essence of this larger-than-life character (and his genuine love of baseball) still comes through. [PG] ▼●●

Babe (1995-U.S.-Australian) C-92m. ½ D: Chris Noonan. James Cromwell, Magda Szubanski; voices of Christine Cavanaugh, Miriam Margolyes, Danny Mann, Hugo Weaving, Miriam Flynn, Russi Taylor, Evelyn Krape; narrated by Roscoe Lee Browne. Delightful, disarming family fodder about an orphaned pig taken in by a quietly eccentric farmer who develops a strong attachment to the little fellow. The farmyard animals all converse with one another in this endearing (and often very funny) tale, based on the book The Sheep-Pig by Dick King-Smith. The Oscar-winning special effects, combining real animals, animatronic doubles, and computer technology, are both seamless and convincing. This is one "family film" that adults can enjoy right along with their kids. Followed by a sequel. [G] ▼●●

Babel (2006-Mexican-U.S.) C-142m. ½ D: Alejandro González Iñárritu. Brad Pitt, Cate Blanchett, Gael García Bernal, Kôji Yakusho, Adriana Barraza, Rinko Kikuchi, Said Tarchani, Boubker Ait El Caid, Elle Fanning, Nathan Gamble, Clifton Collins, Jr., Michael Peña. Bold, riveting drama combines stories from three continents: an American tourist (Pitt) in Morocco learns about fear and isolation when his wife (Blanchett) is wounded by a stray bullet. Meanwhile, their children in L.A. are cared for by housekeeper Barraza, who brings them along to her son's wedding in Mexico, little dreaming of the consequences. In Tokyo, a mute teenage girl (Kikuchi), traumatized by her mother's death, reaches out to a police detective. Maintains an extraordinary level of tension while pursuing its central theme about the need to communicate—and listen—in our post-9/11 world. Third of a trilogy written by Guillermo Arriaga, following AMORES PERROS and 21 GRAMS. Oscar winner for Gustavo Santaolalla's score. [R] ●

voices of E. G. Daily, Danny Mann, Glenna Headly, Steven Wright, Stanley Ralph Ross, Russi Taylor, Hugo Weaving, Naomi Watts; narrated by Roscoe Lee Browne. Disappointing (and superfluous) sequel puts Babe and everyone around him, human and animal, in almost continual peril, as the pig is taken to America by Mrs. Hoggett. Overblown, with unpleasant images unsuitable for the youngest children, but rescued somewhat by the indomitable Babe, who's as endearing as ever, and those three singing mice, whose choice of material is quite funny. [G] ▼●●

Babe Ruth Story, The (1948) 106m. BOMB D: Roy Del Ruth. William Bendix, Claire Trevor, Charles Bickford, Sam Levene, William Frawley, Mark Koenig, Mel Allen, Harry Wismer, H. V. Kaltenborn. Perfectly dreadful bio of the Sultan of Swat is sugar-coated beyond recognition; the Babe is depicted as an overgrown child whose behavior is constantly misunderstood. Bendix is badly miscast, and the finale is not to be believed. ▼

Babes in Arms (1939) 96m. ½ D: Busby Berkeley. Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Charles Winninger, Guy Kibbee, June Preisser, Douglas McPhail. Rodgers and Hart's musical, minus most of their songs, and one that's left, "Where or When," is trammed to death. What remains is energetic but standard putting-on-a-show vehicle for Mickey and Judy. Dated fun. Original ending, "My Day," was a production number spoofing Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, which was removed for a 1948 reissue and later restored. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Babes in Toyland (1934) 73m. ½ D: Gus Meins, Charles R. Rogers. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Charlotte Henry, Henry Kleinbach (Brandon), Felix Knight, Jean Darling, Johnny Downs, Marie Wilson. L&H version of Victor Herbert operetta looks better all the time, compared to lumbering "family musicals" of recent years. Stan and Ollie are in fine form, and fantasy element of Toyland—especially attack by Bogeymen—is excellent. Video title: MARCH OF THE WOODEN SOLDIERS. Originally released at 79m. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Babes in Toyland (1961) C-105m. ½ D: Jack Donohue. Ray Bolger, Tommy Sands, Annette Funicello, Henry Calvin, Gene Sheldon, Tommy Kirk, Ed Wynn, Ann Jillian. Colorful but contrived Disneyfication of Victor Herbert operetta has no substance or heart; classic songs, visual gimmicks, clowning of Calvin and Sheldon keep it afloat. Remade for TV in 1986. ▼

Babes on Broadway (1941) 118m. ½ D: Busby Berkeley. Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Fay Bainter, Virginia Weidler, Richard Quine, Ray McDonald, Donna Reed. Showcase for Mickey and Judy's talents, with duo doing everything from imitations of Carmen Miranda and Bernhardt to minstrel numbers. Standout is Judy's "F.D.R. Jones." Film debut of Margaret O'Brien. Look fast for Ava Gardner in the audience watching the final number. ▼

Babette's Feast (1987-Danish) C-102m. * D: Gabriel Axel. Stephane Audran, Jean-Philippe Lafont, Gudmar Wivesson, Jarl Kulle, Bibi Andersson, Birgitte Federspiel, Bodil Kjer. Exquisite, delicately told tale of two beautiful young minister's daughters who pass up love and fame to remain in their small Danish village. They grow old, using religion as a substitute for living life . . . and then take in Parisian refugee Audran, a woman with a very special secret. Subtle, funny and deeply felt, with several wonderful surprises: an instant masterpiece that deservedly earned a Best Foreign Film Academy Award. Axel wrote the screenplay, from an Isak Dinesen short story. Don't miss this one. [G] ▼

Baby, The (1973) C-102m.  D: Ted Post. Anjanette Comer, Ruth Roman, Marianna Hill. Social worker who gets in too deep with a man-child case, has to kill to keep "baby" at home with her. [PG] ▼

Baby Blue Marine (1976) C-90m. ½ D: John Hancock. Jan-Michael Vincent, Glynnis O'Connor, Katherine Helmond, Dana Elcar, Bert Remsen, Richard Gere, Art Lund. Norman Rockwell's America come to life, in bucolic tale of Marine dropout during WW2 who's mistaken for hero by residents of small town. Too bland to add up. [PG]

Baby Boom (1987) C-110m.  D: Charles Shyer. Diane Keaton, Harold Ramis, Sam Shepard, Sam Wanamaker, James Spader, Pat Hingle, Britt Leach, Mary Gross, Victoria Jackson, Paxton Whitehead, Annie Golden, Dori Brenner, Robin Bartlett, Christopher Noth. Keaton is in top comic form as a supercharged business exec whose life changes dramatically when she "inherits" a baby. Amiable comedy takes well-aimed potshots at '80s yuppie motherdom but remains agreeably sweet-natured start to finish, helping it over an occasional story lull. Written by Shyer and Nancy Meyers. Followed by a TV series. [PG] ▼

who lives off his mother and embraces irresponsibility, even though he has fathered two children by two different women. Opens with a bang, but goes on too long, and offsets some strong characterizations—Gibson's straight-talking mother (Johnson) and her ex-con-gone-straight boyfriend (Rhames)—with sloppy storytelling. A companion piece to writer-director Singleton's BOYZ N THE HOOD, also set in South Central L.A. [R] ▼

Baby Doll (1956) 114m. ½ D: Elia Kazan. Karl Malden, Carroll Baker, Eli Wallach, Mildred Dunnock, Lonny Chapman, Rip Torn. Starkly photographed on location in Mississippi, story revolves around a child bride, her witless and blustery husband, and a smarmy business rival bent on using both of them. Condemned by Legion of Decency when released, this Tennessee Williams story, although tame by today's standards, still sizzles. Film debuts of Wallach and Torn. ▼

Baby Face (1933) 70m. ½ D: Alfred E. Green. Barbara Stanwyck, George Brent, Donald Cook, Margaret Lindsay, Douglas Dumbrille, John Wayne. Pre-Production Code item has Stanwyck bartending at a speakeasy, then literally sleeping her way floor by floor to the top of a N.Y.C. office building. Great first half gives way to sappy moralistic conclusion. Wayne's coat-and-tie bit—as one of the office help used by the heroine—is a hoot. Even harsher version discovered in 2004 runs about 5m. longer. ▼

Baby Face Nelson (1957) 85m.  D: Don Siegel. Mickey Rooney, Carolyn Jones, Cedric Hardwicke, Jack Elam, Ted De Corsia. Rooney gives flavorful performance in title role of gun-happy gangster in Prohibition-Depression days; low-budget product, but action-filled.

Babyfever (1994) C-110m. ½ D: Henry Jaglom. Victoria Foyt, Matt Salinger, Dinah Lenney, Eric Roberts, Frances Fisher, Elaine Kagan. An array of career-women at a Malibu baby shower examine, discuss, and discuss some more their own ticking biological clocks. Meanwhile, one of the guests (Foyt) is awaiting results of her own pregnancy test! Shot in Jaglom's usual vérité style, this is best appreciated by fans of the highly personal filmmaker. With the drubbing that men take here, this is definitely not a "first date" film. ▼

Baby Geniuses (1999) C-94m. BOMB D: Bob Clark. Kathleen Turner, Christopher Lloyd, Peter MacNicol, Kim Cattrall, Dom DeLuise, Ruby Dee. Unless you want to see walking, talking toddlers hypnotizing DeLuise into picking his nose, steer clear of this almost history-making comedy clinker about power-mad child psychologist Turner, who's raising these bright babies in her lab. Technically shoddy and recipient of some of the decade's worst reviews (though people did go to see it). If these kids are such geniuses, why can't they spark even a single laugh? Followed by SUPERBABIES: BABY GENIUSES 2. Super 35. [PG] ▼●●

Babylon A.D. (2008-U.S.-French-British) C-90m. BOMB D: Mathieu Kassovitz. Vin Diesel, Gérard Depardieu, Michelle Yeoh, Mélanie Thierry, Charlotte Rampling, Mark Strong, Lambert Wilson, Joel Kirby. Futuristic story in which a mercenary (played with one expression by Diesel) is hired to escort a girl from Eastern Europe to N.Y.C. With an evil high priestess hot on his tail, he soon learns the real purpose of his mission: his charge is carrying either a deadly disease or an organism that is the new messiah. Incoherent plotting makes this attempted sci-fi epic a complete fizzle. Based on the novel Babylon Babies by Maurice G. Dantec. Unrated version runs 101m. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Baby Maker, The (1970) C-109m.  D: James Bridges. Barbara Hershey, Colin Wilcox-Horne, Sam Groom, Scott Glenn, Jeannie Berlin. Childless couple hires young semi-hippie to have a baby by the husband when wife discovers she is sterile. Made at a time when the notion of surrogate mothers was considered bizarre. [R] ▼●

Baby Mama (2008) C-99m. ½ D: Michael McCullers. Tina Fey, Amy Poehler, Greg Kinnear, Dax Shepard, Romany Malco, Sigourney Weaver, Steve Martin, Maura Tierney, Holland Taylor, John Hodgman, Siobhan Fallon Hogan, Denis O'Hare, James Rebhorn. Career-minded Fey decides it's time to have a baby and signs up with an agency to match her with a surrogate mother: white-trash Poehler, who's running a scam. Given the comedic talent involved this is pretty bland, though certainly watchable. Martin has fun in a glorified cameo as Fey's boss, a New Age business mogul. [PG-13] ●

ille, Eddie Bracken. In a "plot" reminiscent of several Swee Pea cartoons, a Chicago baby violently foils kidnapers as he embarks on a parentless Pamper's odyssey to Marshall Field's, the zoo, and to the top of a skyscraper building site. A box office flop despite scripter/coproducer John Hughes' cynical HOME ALONE cloning; in standard Hughes fashion, it's full of kicked-and-torched gonads jokes, but all sweetness and light at the end. [PG] ▼●●

Baby ... Secret of the Lost Legend (1985) C-95m.  D: B.W.L. Norton. William Katt, Sean Young, Patrick McGeehan, Julian Fellowes, Kyaldo Mativo. Old-fashioned yarn about discovery of a dinosaur family follows basic KING KONG outline—and the baby dino is sure to charm kids—but elements of racism, sexism, and much-too-casual violence just about kill it. TV title: DINOSAUR ... SECRET OF THE LOST LEGEND. Super Techniscope. [PG] ▼●●

Babysitter, The (1969) 70m.  D: Don Henderson. Patricia Wymmer, George E. Carey, Ann Bellamy, Cathy Williams, Robert Tessier, James McLarty. Low-budget drive-in fare is dated but still mildly enjoyable; young blonde babysitter seduces the district attorney and hilarity ensues. Lots of double duty on this one; Carey produced, McLarty wrote the script. Followed by nonsequel, WEEKEND WITH THE BABYSITTER. [R]

Babysitter, The (1975-Italian-French-German) C-111m. BOMB D: René Clement. Maria Schneider, Sydne Rome, Vic Morrow, Robert Vaughn, Renato Pozzetto, Nadja Tiller. In misfired melodrama, Schneider is innocently duped into taking part in a kidnapping by roommate Rome. Schneider's nonacting is abysmal, as is miscasting of chubby Italian comedian Pozzetto as her boyfriend. Retitled: WANTED: BABYSITTER. Video title: THE RAW EDGE. ▼●

Babysitter, The (1995) C-90m.  D: Guy Ferland. Alicia Silverstone, Jeremy London, J. T. Walsh, Lee Garlington, Nicky Katt, Lois Chiles, George Segal, Ryan Slater. A beautiful teenager inspires sexual fantasies in the people around her as she babysits for Walsh and his wife. Unimaginative writing (by the director) and slow pace explain why this went straight to video, though it was released in theaters after Silverstone's great success in CLUELESS. [R] ▼●●

summer camp. Then her long-absent father shows up, and wants to spend time with her—but insists she keep his presence a secret. Good-hearted adaptation of Ann M. Martin's hugely popular books for preteen girls. Low-key, episodic, but agreeable entertainment. Director Mayron can be spotted briefly in the opening sequence. Fisk is the daughter of Sissy Spacek. Wanna, Frenchy the Poodle, Ms. Pinky's Larger Sister, Angel, Janet the Planet, Diva, John, Chris, Nancy. Excruciatingly overlong ego trip for musical maverick Zappa. In every fifth shot, it seems, Frankie is in close-up or a fan rushes up to him, kisses him, and screeches for joy. Zappa finally cut it down to 91m. for 1984 reissue. Bruce Bickford's clay animation is film's sole virtue. [R]▼●

Baby Take a Bow (1934) 76m.  D: Harry Lachman. Shirley Temple, James Dunn, Claire Trevor, Alan Dinehart, Ray Walker. Shirley's first starring vehicle seems one of her weakest today, but helped boost her career nonetheless; in typical little-miss-fixit fashion, she helps her ex-con father beat a bum rap. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●

Baby The Rain Must Fall (1965) 100m.  D: Robert Mulligan. Lee Remick, Steve McQueen, Don Murray, Paul Fix, Josephine Hutchinson, Ruth White. Bachelor, The (1991-Italian-Hungarian-British) C-105m.  D: Roberto Faenza. Keith Carradine, Miranda Richardson, Kristin Scott Thomas, Sarah-Jane Fenton, Max von Sydow, Mario Adorf. Subtle, thoughtful story of repressed emotion, about a staid, middle-aged, unmarried doctor and self-described "nomad" (Carradine), and how he responds when his sister and long-time constant companion commits suicide. Richardson, in a dual role, plays the latter, as well as one of a trio of very different women with whom the doctor becomes involved. Based on a novel by Arthur Schnitzler.▼

Bachelor, The (1999) C-101m. *½ D: Gary Sinyor. Chris O'Donnell, Renée Zellweger, Hal Holbrook, James Cromwell, Peter Ustinov, Edward Asner, Brooke Shields, Mariah Carey, Artie Lange, Jennifer Esposito, Sarah Silverman. Hapless O'Donnell would do better aping Buster Brown than taking on the Buster Keaton role in a woeful update of the still uproarious 1925 classic SEVEN CHANCES, playing a misdirected 30-year-old youth who must find a wife immediately or forfeit a $100 million inheritance left him by his crotchety grandfather. A mistake from top to bottom. The view of women here might even offend the Rat Pack. Also available in PG version. [PG-13]▼●●

Bachelor and the Bobby-Soxer, The (1947) 95m.  D: Irving Reis. Cary Grant, Myrna Loy, Shirley Temple, Rudy Vallee, Ray Collins, Harry Davenport. Initially intriguing true story of the man who deserted the about-to-be-Beatles grows tired after a while, especially when Lennon (as played by the dynamic Hart) seems so much more interesting. The period and its music are well captured, however. [R]▼●●

Backdraft (1991) C-135m.  D: Ron Howard. Kurt Russell, William Baldwin, Robert De Niro, Donald Sutherland, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Scott Glenn, Rebecca De Mornay, Jason Gedrick, J. T. Walsh, Tony Mockus, Sr., Clint Howard. Two brothers whose father died fighting a fire now spend their time on the force battling each other. A hoary B-movie-type script fired up by square-jawed conviction, and stunning special effects; also the first film to ever explore a sheer fascination with fire. The gifted Leigh fails miserably playing a normal young woman. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Backfire (1950) 91m.  D: Vincent Sherman. Virginia Mayo, Gordon MacRae, Edmond O'Brien, Viveca Lindfors, Dane Clark, Ed Begley. OK mystery tale has MacRae search for missing friend through maze of murder and romance.

Backfire (1987-U.S.-Canadian) C-92m. ½ D: Gilbert Cates. Karen Allen, Keith Carradine, Jeff Fahey, Bernie Casey, Dean Paul Martin, Dinah Manoff, Virginia Capers, Philip Sterling. Complicated plot with several surprises is best not revealed here, but it does involve wealthy, disturbed Vietnam vet Fahey, his wrong-side-of-the-tracks wife Allen, and mysterious drifter Carradine. Familiar story but well acted; builds up a fair amount of suspense. Good use of Canadian locations. [R]▼●●

Backfire! (1994) C-89m. *½ D: A. Dean Bell. Kathy Ireland, Robert Mitchum, Telly Savalas, Shelley Winters, Josh Mosby, Mary McCormack, Edie Falco. In the wake of AIRPLANE! and THE NAKED GUN comes this astoundingly unfunny comedy about an inept young man attempting to join an all-female fire department. Mitchum (as a semi-senile fire marshal) and Winters have come a long way since THE NIGHT OF THE HUNTER! [PG-13]▼

Back From Eternity (1956) 97m. ½ D: John Farrow. Robert Ryan, Anita Ekberg, Rod Steiger, Phyllis Kirk. Moderately engrossing account of victims of plane crash, stranded in South American jungle, and their various reactions to the situation. OK remake of FIVE CAME BACK.▼●

with Raft swept into Nazi intrigue in Turkey; terrific car chase caps fast-moving tale.▼

Back in the USSR (1991) C-87m. *½ D: Deran Sarafian. Frank Whaley, Natalya Negoda, Roman Polanski, Ravil Issyanov, Dey Young, Andrew Divoff, Brian Blessed, Harry Ditson. American tourist Whaley gets involved in "the case of the disappearing icon" on a visit to Russia. It's almost impossible to follow this loophole-laden script where coincidences abound and the importance of the central object of desire—the icon—is never established.▼●

Backlash (1956) C-84m. ½ D: John Sturges. Richard Widmark, Donna Reed, William Campbell, John McIntire, Barton MacLane, Henry (Harry) Morgan, Edward C. Platt. In the aftermath of an Apache ambush, Widmark (who believes his father was in the doomed party) and Reed (whose husband was killed in the massacre) become involved in a serpentine search for the lone survivor and some missing gold. Plotty Western written by Borden Chase.

Backlash (1986-Australian) C-88m. ½ D: Bill Bennett. David Argue, Gia Carides, Lydia Miller, Brian Syron, Anne Smith. Well-meaning but muddled account of a young aborigine barmaid who's sodomized, then charged with the murder of her assailant, and finally treks across the outback in custody of two mindlessly jabbering cops. Bits of snappy dialogue and intriguing commentary on race relations, but far too much is left unexplained. [R]▼

Backroads (1977-Australian) C-61m. ½ D: Phillip Noyce. Bill Hunter, Gary Foley, Zac Martin, Julie McGregor, Terry Camilleri. Aborigine Foley joins with loutish, self-centered white criminal Hunter, with tragic results. Superior drama is an incisive commentary on racism; in private life Foley is a radical black activist. Noyce's feature directorial debut.

Back Roads (1981) C-94m. *½ D: Martin Ritt. Sally Field, Tommy Lee Jones, David Keith, Miriam Colon, Michael V. Gazzo, M. Emmet Walsh. Attractive leads are scant consolation for thoroughly unfunny comedy about a hooker and a drifter who find love on the road. Not as enjoyable as Hollywood's 10,000 previous derivations of the same script. Panavision. [R]▼▶

Backstage (2006-French) C-115m. ½ D: Emmanuelle Bercot. Emmanuelle Seigner, Isild Le Besco, Noémie Lvovsky, Valéry Zeitoun, Samuel Benchetrit. Teenage girl is obsessed with a beautiful pop singer and manages to work her way into the star's inner circle . . . but their relationship takes many strange turns. Intriguing look at fandom gone amok and a tortured, mercurial, pampered star rings fairly true but goes on too long. Feature debut for writer-director Bercot.▶

Back Street (1932) 89m.  D: John M.

Stahl. Irene Dunne, John Boles, George Meeker, ZaSu Pitts, Arlette Duncan, June Clyde, William Bakewell, Doris Lloyd, Jane Darwell. Dunne shines in oft-filmed Fannie Hurst soaper of spirited young woman who becomes the mistress of Boles and must forever remain in the shadows. Dated, to be sure, but still entertaining. Remade in 1941 and 1961.

Back Street (1941) 89m.  D: Robert Stevenson. Charles Boyer, Margaret Sullavan, Richard Carlson, Frank McHugh, Tim Holt. Fine team of Boyer and Sullavan breathes life into Fannie Hurst perennial soaper of woman whose love for man doesn't die when he marries another.

Back Street (1961) C-107m. ½ D: David Miller. Susan Hayward, John Gavin, Vera Miles, Charles Drake, Virginia Grey, Reginald Gardiner, Natalie Schafer. Lavish, unbelievable third version of Fannie Hurst's story of a woman's love for married man. Doesn't play as well as previous versions but a fashion show for Hayward in Jean Louis designs. Ross Hunter produced. ▼

Back to Bataan (1945) 95m.  D: Edward Dmytryk. John Wayne, Anthony Quinn, Beulah Bondi, Fely Franquelli, Richard Loo, Philip Ahn, Lawrence Tierney. Good, sturdy WW2 action film with officer Wayne leading Filipino guerrillas to victory in the South Pacific. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Back to God's Country (1953) C-78m. ½ D: Joseph Pevney. Rock Hudson, Marcia Henderson, Steve Cochran, Hugh O'Brian, Chubby Johnson. Sea captain Hudson and wife Henderson face rigors of nature and villainy of Cochran in the Canadian wilds. Competent programmer; from James Oliver Curwood's classic story, filmed before in 1919 and 1927.

Back to School (1986) C-96m.  D: Alan Metter. Rodney Dangerfield, Sally Kellerman, Burt Young, Keith Gordon, Robert Downey, Jr., Paxton Whitehead, Terry Farrell, M. Emmet Walsh, Adrienne Barbeau, Ned Beatty, Severn Darden, Sam Kinison, Robert Picardo, Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., Edie McClurg, Jason Hervey. Bombastic, uneducated, self-made millionaire enrolls in college, in order to encourage his student son. Very entertaining comedy, full of hilarious Dangerfield one-liners, but key to the film's success is that Rodney's character is so likable. Kellerman shines, too, as English professor who becomes the apple of his eye. [PG-13] ▼●●

Back to the Beach (1987) C-92m.  D: Lyndall Hobbs. Frankie Avalon, Annette Funicello, Lori Loughlin, Tommy Hinkley, Connie Stevens, Demian Slade; guest appearances by Don Adams, Bob Denver, Alan Hale, Jerry Mathers, Tony Dow, Barbara Billingsley, Edd Byrnes, Pee-wee Herman (Paul Reubens), Dick Dale and

The Del-Tones. Frankie and Annette return to the scene of their youth—older but no wiser—as the parents of teens. The fun wears thin pretty fast in this uninspired comedy—despite the efforts of six writers and the presence of 1950s and 60s TV sitcom stars in cameo roles. The songs are dull, too, though Annette's "Jamaica Ska" has its moments. [PG] ▼●●

Back to the Future (1985) C-116m.  D: Robert Zemeckis. Michael J. Fox, Christopher Lloyd, Crispin Glover, Lea Thompson, Wendie Jo Sperber, Marc McClure, Claudia Wells, Thomas F. Wilson, James Tolkan, Casey Siemaszko, Billy Zane, Jason Hervey. A teenager of the '80s travels back in time to the '50s, where he must arrange for his mismatched parents to meet—or else he won't exist! Wonderful, wacked-out time-travel comedy takes its time to get going, but once it does, it's a lot of fun, building to a frantic climax just like other Bob Gale–Robert Zemeckis scripts (USED CARS, I WANNA HOLD YOUR HAND, 1941). Lloyd is a standout as crazed scientist who sets story in motion. Huey Lewis, who sings film's hit song, "The Power of Love," has cameo as a high-school teacher. Produced by Steven Spielberg and company. Followed by two sequels and an animated TV series. [PG] ▼●●

Back to the Future Part II (1989) C-107m.  D: Robert Zemeckis. Michael J. Fox, Christopher Lloyd, Lea Thompson, Thomas F. Wilson, Harry Waters Jr., Charles Fleischer, Joe Flaherty, Elisabeth Shue, James Tolkan, Casey Siemaszko, Elijah Wood. Joyless, frenetic follow-up to Part I which sends mad inventor Lloyd and young Fox back into their time-traveling DeLorean. Considerable ingenuity, but hardly any laughs, and a surprising amount of unpleasantness. Works best toward the end when it creates a parallel existence to the climactic action in Part I, but then it turns out to be a cliffhanger, advertising the upcoming Part III! Talk about a cheat . . . [PG] ▼●●

Back to the Future Part III (1990) C-118m. ½ D: Robert Zemeckis. Michael J. Fox, Christopher Lloyd, Mary Steenburgen, Thomas F. Wilson, Lea Thompson, Elisabeth Shue, Matt Clark, Richard Dysart, Pat Buttram, Harry Carey, Jr., Dub Taylor, James Tolkan, ZZ Top. Delightful conclusion to this time-travel trilogy sends Fox back to the Old West, circa 1885, in search of Lloyd—hoping to change history and keep him from being shot in the back by a bad guy. The dormant movie Western gets a major dose of adrenaline from this high-tech, high-powered comic adventure, which offers great fun, dazzling special effects, and imagination to spare. There's real movie magic at work here. [PG] ▼●●

Hopper. Dennis Hopper, Jodie Foster, Dean Stockwell, Vincent Price, John Turturro, Fred Ward, Charlie Sheen, G. Anthony (Tony) Sirico, Julie Adams, Sy Richardson, Frank Gio, Helena Kallianiotis, Bob Dylan, Catherine Keener. Contemporary melodrama about a hit man hired to rub out murder eyewitness Foster—but falling in love and taking it on the lam with her instead. Although film isn't particularly distinguished, it is entertaining—especially with that Who's Who cast. (Joe Pesci, despite a substantial role, appears unbilled.) Released first in Europe as CATCHFIRE; Hopper disowned that version. Restored to his cut (116m.) for U.S. release on cable and video in 1991. [R]▼

Backwoods Massacre SEE: Midnight (1981) Bad and the Beautiful, The (1952) 118m. ½ D: Vincente Minnelli. Kirk Douglas, Lana Turner, Dick Powell, Gloria Grahame, Barry Sullivan, Walter Pidgeon, Gilbert Roland. Captivating Hollywood story of ambitious producer (Douglas) told via relationships with actress Turner, writer Powell, director Sullivan. Solid, insightful, witty, with Lana's best performance ever. Five Oscars include Supporting Actress (Grahame), Screenplay (Charles Schnee). David Raksin's wonderful score is another asset. Minnelli and Douglas followed this a decade later with TWO WEEKS IN ANOTHER TOWN. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼

Bad Bascomb (1946) 110m.  D: S. Sylvan Simon. Wallace Beery, Margaret O'Brien, Marjorie Main, J. Carol Naish, Marshall Thompson. Overlong Western with fine action scenes, overshadowed by incredibly syrupy ones with Beery and O'Brien. Bad Behavior (1993-British) C-103m. ½ D: Les Blair. Stephen Rea, Sinead Cusack, Philip Jackson, Clare Higgins, Phil Daniels, Mary Jo Randle, Saira Todd, Amanda Boxer. Amusing comedy with Rea and Cusack as a couple whose marital complacency is challenged by their friends, their jobs, and a bathroom renovation. A quietly quirky slant on domestic life in the Mike Leigh mold (the actors improvised from director Blair's story outline) which rambles along nicely without ever really catching fire. Rea and Cusack are charming in the lead roles.▼

Bad Blood (1981-New Zealand-British) C-104m.  D: Mike Newell. Jack Thompson, Carol Burns, Denis Lill, Donna Akersten, Martyn Sanderson, Marshall Napier. Set during WW2, this provocative drama is a fact-based account of a backwoods farmer (Thompson) who shoots several people and is hunted in the New Zealand bush. The incident ends up being exploited by Lord Haw-Haw, the notorious Nazi propagandist.▼

noche, Denis Lavant, Hans Meyer, Julie Delpy, Carroll Brooks, Hugo Pratt, Mireille Perrier, Serge Reggiani. Pretentious film noir takeoff about two-bit con artist Lavant, who finds himself in way over his head as he becomes involved in a plot to pilfer a serum that's an antidote for an AIDS-like disease; along the way, he falls for beautiful Binoche, the lover of one of his cohorts. Highly regarded by some, but the storytelling is fatally muddled and all the close-ups of faces and legs eventually grow tiresome. Lavant plays the same character in Carax's BOY MEETS GIRL and THE LOVERS ON THE BRIDGE. Released in the U.S. in 2001. [R]▼

Bad Boys (1983) C-123m.  D: Rick Rosenthal. Sean Penn, Reni Santoni, Esai Morales, Eric Gurry, Jim Moody, Ally Sheedy, Clancy Brown, Alan Ruck. Tough urban melodrama about juvenile prison, and a personal vendetta that reaches its peak within prison walls. Criticized by some as being amoral—and not always credible—but certainly scores on an emotional level. Sheedy's feature film debut. [R]▼

Bad Boys (1995) C-126m. ½ D: Michael Bay. Martin Lawrence, Will Smith, Téa Leoni, Theresa Randle, Tcheky Karyo, Marg Helgenberger, Anna Thomson, Joe Pantoliano. Highly formulaic but not altogether disposable Miami actioner about two cops—one married with kids, the other equipped with a bachelor apartment—who are forced to switch roles after they're mistaken for each other during a drug-murder case. A return by producers Don Simpson and Jerry Bruckheimer to the kind of corpse-littered escapism that established them in the '80s; wildly uneven comedy is aided by the spin Leoni puts on her role as a material witness who's hiding undercover with the heroes. A robust half hour padded into two hours. Followed by a sequel. [R]▼

Bad Boys II (2003) C-146m.  D: Michael Bay. Martin Lawrence, Will Smith, Jordi Mollà, Gabrielle Union, Peter Stormare, Theresa Randle, Joe Pantoliano, Michael Shannon, Jon Seda, Henry Rollins. Noisy, overlong sequel pits the Miami tactical team against a Cuban drug lord, while Lawrence's DEA sister (Union) goes undercover after the same prey. This film seemingly exists for the sole purpose of blowing things up, which it does well and often, but there's nothing else to recommend it. The plot is shopworn, and the banter between the two stars is forced and unfunny. Super 35. [R]▼

Bad Company (1972) C-93m. ½ D: Robert Benton. Jeff Bridges, Barry Brown, Jim Davis, David Huddleston, John Savage, Jerry Houser. Highly entertaining sleeper about two young drifters of wildly differing temperaments who rob their way West during the Civil War; aided immeasurably by Gordon Willis' subdued photography,

Bad Company (1995) C-108m. *½ D: Damian Harris. Ellen Barkin, Laurence Fishburne, Frank Langella, Michael Beach, Gia Carides, David Ogden Stiers, Daniel Hugh Kelly, Spalding Gray, James Hong. Ex-CIA staffer is recruited to join a private firm specializing in "covert operations"—like blackmail and murder—but there's more than meets the eye at every twist and turn. Never-ending series of double-crosses leads to a "who cares?" finale. Only some hot-and-heavy sex scenes stand out. Michael Murphy appears unbilled as Smitty. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Bad Company (1999-French) C-93m. ½ D: Jean-Pierre Améris. Maud Forget, Lou Doillon, Robinson Stévenin, Maxime Mansion, Cyril Cagnat, Delphine Rich, François Berléand, Micheline Presle. Incisive drama about Delphine (Forget), a bored, inexperienced 14-year-old who becomes fast friends with the new girl in school and falls in love (or so she thinks) with a manipulative young man. Sobering look at a young person who romanticizes everything from love and sex to depression and suicide, and who confuses sexual desire with emotional need. Not to be missed. Written by Alain Layrac. ▼

Bad Company (2002) C-116m. *½ D: Joel Schumacher. Anthony Hopkins, Chris Rock, Gabriel Macht, Peter Stormare, John Slattery, Garcelle Beauvais-Nilon, Kerry Washington, Matthew Marsh, Brooke Smith, Irma P. Hall. Artificial hybrid of spy caper and Rock comedy that serves no one well, especially the audience. Contrived plot has CIA agent Hopkins training street hustler Rock to imitate his twin brother, who was a smooth operative on the verge of closing a deal for a nuclear weapon in Europe. Needlessly overlong, building to a suspense-free climax. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Bad Day at Black Rock (1955) C-81m. ½ D: John Sturges. Spencer Tracy, Robert Ryan, Anne Francis, Dean Jagger, Walter Brennan, John Ericson, Ernest Borgnine, Lee Marvin. Powerhouse cast in yarn of one-armed man (Tracy) uncovering skeleton in tiny desert town's closet. Borgnine memorably as slimy heavy. Millard Kaufman expertly adapted Howard Breslin's story "Bad Time at Hondo." Excellent use of CinemaScope. ▼●●

Bad Education (2004-Spanish) C-109m. ½ D: Pedro Almodóvar. Gael García Bernal, Fele Martínez, Daniel Giménez Cacho, Luís Homar, Javier Cámara, Petra Martínez, Nacho Pérez, Raúl García Forneiro. A struggling actor (Bernal) approaches a successful filmmaker (Fele Martínez) with an idea for a screenplay based on events that transpired at the Catholic school they both attended as boys. Complex, challenging, highly sexual story told in film noir style; clearly meaningful to Almodóvar, but somewhat distancing for the viewer, in spite of strong performances. R-rated version also available. Panavision. [NC-17]▼

Bad For Each Other (1953) 83m. ½ D: Irving Rapper. Charlton Heston, Elizabeth Scott, Dianne Foster, Mildred Dunnock, Marjorie Rambeau. Idealistic doctor Heston finds Pennsylvania mining town has more worthy patients than idle social set. Pouty Scott and wise Rambeau are good.

Badge 373 (1973) C-116m. *½ D: Howard W. Koch. Robert Duvall, Verna Bloom, Henry Darrow, Eddie Egan, Felipe Luciano, Tina Christiana. Very minor follow-up to THE FRENCH CONNECTION. Policeman Duvall tries to fight crime syndicate single-handedly in N.Y.C. Dull. [R]▼

Bad Girls (1994) C-99m. *½ D: Jonathan Kaplan. Madeleine Stowe, Mary Stuart Masterson, Andie MacDowell, Drew Barrymore, Dermot Mulroney, James Russo, Robert Loggia, Jim Beaver, Cooper Huckabee. Stowe and three other prostitutes go on the lam after a brothel shooting, eventually hooking up with a male outlaw from her past. Troubled production is an uneasy combination of feminist statement, homage to (or rip-off of) THE WILD BUNCH's finale, and an advertisement for good-looking Western duds. A collectible poster in search of a movie. Unrated version also available. [R]▼●●

Bad Influence (1990) C-99m. ½ D: Curtis Hanson. Rob Lowe, James Spader, Lisa Zane, Christian Clemenson, Kathleen Wilhoite, Tony Maggio, David Duchovny. Spader befriends Lowe after the latter gets him out of a tense barroom confrontation, then finds this psychopathic leech calling the shots in his romantic—and professional—life. Slick, high-tech variation on STRANGERS ON A TRAIN knows which buttons to push. Lowe is passable, but he's no Robert Walker. [R]▼●●

Bad Jim (1990) C-90m.  D: Clyde Ware. James Brolin, Richard Roundtree, John Clark Gable, Harry Carey, Jr., Rory Calhoun, Ty Hardin, Pepe Serna, Bruce Kirby. Not-bad Western has three good/bad men purchasing Billy the Kid's horse—and using it to pass themselves off as Billy's gang. Nice locations and welcome cast of veterans help make up for leisurely pace and lack of real action. Screen debut for Clark Gable's son, as the youngest of the bandit trio. [PG]▼●●

Badlanders, The (1958) C-83m. ½ D: Delmer Daves. Alan Ladd, Ernest Borgnine, Katy Jurado, Claire Kelly, Kent Smith, Nehemiah Persoff, Robert Emhardt. Nicely handled reworking of THE ASPHALT JUNGLE, set in 1898 Arizona, with ex-cons Ladd and Borgnine forming

bond and becoming involved in gold robbery. CinemaScope. ▼

Badlands (1973) C-95m. ½ D: Terrence Malick. Martin Sheen, Sissy Spacek, Warren Oates, Ramon Bieri, Alan Vint. Stark, moody, moderately successful thriller inspired by the Starkweather-Fugate killing spree in the '50s. Well-cast film has cult following. [PG]▼●●

Bad Lieutenant (1992) C-98m.  D: Abel Ferrara. Harvey Keitel, Frankie Thorn, Paul Hipp, Victor Argo, Paul Calderone, Leonard Thomas. Also bad husband, bad substance abuser, all-around bad dude. Over-the-top Catholic guilt movie about a cop who starts to pull himself out of the abyss when he investigates the rape of a nun who refuses to press charges. More pretentious than Ferrara's earlier work, though film has substantial critical and cult following. Featured player Zoe Lund (who also coscripted with Ferrara) was formerly Zoe Tamerlis, star of Ferrara's MS. 45. At the very least, this is the first movie that offers full-frontal Keitel and a cameo by Jesus. [NC-17]▼●●

Bad Love (1992) C-94m. BOMB D: Jill Goldman. Tom Sizemore, Pamela Gidley, Seymour Cassel, Richard Edson, Debi Mazar, Jennifer O'Neill, Margaux Hemingway, Joe Dallesandro. BAD MOVIE would be a more appropriate title. Perfectly dreadful drama about hot-tempered, two-bit hustler Sizemore and pretty loser Gidley who commence a hot-and-heavy, ill-fated romance. Poor direction and a laughable script do this one in. [R]▼●

Bad Man, The (1941) 70m. ½ D: Richard Thorpe. Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore, Laraine Day, Ronald Reagan, Tom Conway, Henry Travers, Chris-Pin Martin, Chill Wills, Nydia Westman. Slight but amusing modern-day Western with Beery chewing the scenery as a comically murderous Mexican desperado who descends upon Barrymore and Reagan's ranch. Filmed before in 1923 and 1930 and reworked in 1937 (as WEST OF SHANGHAI!).

Bad Manners (1998) C-90m.  D: Jonathan Kaufer. David Strathairn, Bonnie Bedelia, Saul Rubinek, Caroleen Feeney, Julie Harris. An egotistical musicologist and his companion spend the weekend with his ex-lover, who's now married to a college professor. Sparks fly from the start as the four flinty personalities collide; an exercise in sexual and psychological gamesmanship reminiscent of WHO'S AFRAID OF VIRGINIA WOOLF?, and splendidly acted all around. Adapted by David Gilman from his play Ghost in the Machine. [R]▼●

Badman's Territory (1946) 97m.  D: Tim Whelan. Randolph Scott, Ann Richards, George "Gabby" Hayes, Ray Collins, James Warren, Morgan Conway, Virginia Sale, Chief Thundercloud, Lawrence Tierney, Steve Brodie, Isabel Jewell. Solid Western in which a sheriff (Scott, at his stalwart best) is forced to ride into an outlaws' haven, setting off nonstop fireworks. Rich characterizations, with Hayes fun as the Coyote Kid. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●

Bad Medicine (1985) C-96m. BOMB D: Harvey Miller. Steve Guttenberg, Alan Arkin, Julie Hagerty, Bill Macy, Curtis Armstrong, Julie Kavner, Joe Grifasi, Robert Romanus, Taylor Negron, Gilbert Gottfried. Guttenberg can't get into any domestic medical schools, so he's forced to attend a dubious Central American institution run by Arkin. Cheap jokes and ethnic putdowns abound. Our prescription: skip it. [PG-13]▼

Bad Moon (1996) C-79m.  D: Eric Red. Mariel Hemingway, Michael Paré, Mason Gamble, Ken Pogue, Hrothgar Mathews. Hemingway is glad when her brother comes to live with her and her young son Gamble; only the family German shepherd knows that Paré is really the werewolf that has been killing locals in the Northwest woods. Good-looking horror movie with a strong performance from Paré is underpopulated and predictable, though the dog's great. From the novel Thor by Wayne Smith. Clairmont-Scope. [R]▼●●

Bad News Bears, The (1976) C-102m.  D: Michael Ritchie. Walter Matthau, Tatum O'Neal, Vic Morrow, Joyce Van Patten, Jackie Earle Haley, Alfred W. Lutter. Bright comedy about hopeless Little League baseball team that scores with an unlikely combination: a beer-guzzling coach (Matthau) and a female star pitcher (O'Neal). Some of film's major appeal— young kids spouting four-letter words— may be lost on TV. Clever use of Bizet's music from Carmen. Remade in 2005. Followed by two sequels and a TV series. [PG]▼●●

Bad News Bears (2005) C-113m.  D: Richard Linklater. Billy Bob Thornton, Greg Kinnear, Marcia Gay Harden, Sammi Kane Kraft, Jeffrey Davies, Timmy Deters, Brandon Craggs, Tyler Patrick Jones. Indolent, beer-guzzling exterminator (and ex-ball player) takes the job of coaching a woebegone Little League baseball team. Lackluster remake of the 1976 comedy goes through the motions, and uses foul language just as the first film did, but hasn't any zest or originality; even the reuse of themes from Carmen falls flat. Bill Lancaster's vintage script was adapted by the BAD SANTA team, Glenn Ficarra and John Requa. [PG-13]▼●

Bad News Bears Go To Japan, The (1978)

C-91m.  D: John Berry. Tony Curtis, Jackie Earle Haley, Tomisaburo Wakayama, George Wyner, Lonny Chapman. Curtis is good as a small-time hustler who sees money-making opportunity in the now-familiar baseball team. Third film was the kids' last, and it's easy to see why. [PG]▼●●

Bad News Bears in Breaking Training, The (1977) C-100m. ½ D: Michael Pressman. William Devane, Jackie Earle Haley, Jimmy Baio, Clifton James, Chris Barnes. Sentimental sequel to 1976 hit, with dirty talk largely absent. Star of the kids' baseball team, Haley heads for the Houston Astrodome and enlists the aid of estranged father Devane in coaching the misfits. Sporadically funny. [PG]▼●●

Bad Santa (2003) C-91m.  D: Terry Zwigoff. Billy Bob Thornton, Tony Cox, Brett Kelly, Lauren Graham, Lauren Tom, Bernie Mac, John Ritter, Ajay Naidu. Outrageous, flagrantly foulmouthed black comedy about a self-loathing reprobate who works as a department store Santa with a conniving African-American "elf" who masterminds a series of robberies. Thornton's life reaches a crossroads when he encounters a hapless, isolated kid who truly believes in Santa. Provocative look at the seamiest Santa who ever lived is audaciously funny, but definitely not for all tastes. Dedicated to the late Ritter, who's very funny as an uptight store manager. Cloris Leachman appears unbilled. Unrated 98m. version available on DVD. Also available in R-rated 88m. director's cut. [R]▼●

Bad Seed, The (1956) 129m.  D: Mervyn LeRoy. Nancy Kelly, Patty McCormack, Henry Jones, Eileen Heckart, Evelyn Varden, William Hopper. Stagy but spellbinding account of malicious child McCormack whose inherited evil "causes" deaths of several people. Fine performances; Maxwell Anderson's Broadway play was adapted by John Lee Mahin, with Kelly, McCormack, Jones, and Heckart re-creating their stage roles. The corny "Hollywoodized" postscript is often cut but remains intact on video. Remade for TV in 1985. McCormack later played a bad seed grown up in MOMMY.▼●● entrepreneurs, here to harvest humanity, and battling it out with government hit squad. Quirky, fragmented direction matches subject matter and acting styles. Director Jackson also acted, wrote, edited, produced, and did the uneven but occasionally excellent makeup. A cult hit worldwide.▼●●

Bad Sleep Well, The (1960-Japanese) 135m.  D: Akira Kurosawa. Toshiro Mifune, Takeshi Kato, Masayuki Mori, Takashi Shimura, Akira Nishimura. Actually, it's a variation on Hamlet. Original version runs 151m. Tohoscope.▼●●

Bad Timing: A Sensual Obsession (1980-British) C-129m. ½ D: Nicolas Roeg. Art Garfunkel, Theresa Russell, Harvey Keitel, Denholm Elliott, Daniel Massey. Mesmerizing melodrama triumphs over badly miscast male leads and occasional pretentiousness. Roeg's kinetic style brings the necessary passion to oddball story of a psychiatrist sexually engulfed by a self-destructive tramp. Bagdad Cafe (1988-West German) C-108m. ½ D: Percy Adlon. Marianne Sägebrecth, CCH Pounder, Jack Palance, Christine Kaufmann, Monica Calhoun, Darron Flagg. Nearly plotless charmer from the director and star of SUGARBABY has Sägebrecth stranded in the California desert, making friends with the kooky folks who hang out at Pounder's roadside cafe. Palance provides a special treat portraying an ex-Hollywood set decorator who becomes obsessed with painting Sägebrecth's portrait. German version runs 20m. longer. Later a TV series. [PG]▼●●

Bailiff, The SEE: Sansho the Bailiff

Bait (1954) 79m. *½ D: Hugo Haas. Cleo Moore, Hugo Haas, John Agar, Emmett Lynn. A mining-camp ménage à trois. Heavy-handed Haas at his worst, despite intriguing pre-credit prologue with Cedric Hardwicke as the Devil.

Bait (2000) C-119m.  D: Antoine Fuqua. Jamie Foxx, David Morse, Kimberly Elise, Doug Hutchison, Robert Pastorelli, David Paymer, Jamie Kennedy, Mike Epps. Woe-fully overlong boilerplate urban comedy. A small-time crook is surgically implanted with a tracking device that the Feds think will lead them to hoods who've plundered $42 million in gold. A real mishmash, despite occasionally amusing comic shtick by Foxx, with an ugly climax involving a bomb-threatened baby. Drawing a cinematic-to-culinary correlation, film's title is extremely well chosen. Super 35. [R]▼●

Baker's Hawk (1976) C-98m.  D: Lyman D. Dayton. Clint Walker, Burl Ives, Diane Baker, Lee H. Montgomery, Alan Young, Taylor Lacher. Fine family drama about young boy (Montgomery) who befriends hermitlike Ives, and comes of age as he participates in parents' struggle against vigilante forces. Beautifully filmed on location in Utah. [G]▼●

Baker's Wife, The (1938-French) 124m. ½ D: Marcel Pagnol. Raimu, Ginette

Leclerc, Charles Moulin, Robert Vattier, Robert Brassac, Charpin. Abandoned by his wife for a shepherd, baker Raimu is unable to function; villagers, who love his bread as much as he loves his wife, bring back the wayward woman. Hilarious.▼

Balcony, The (1963) 84m.  D: Joseph Strick. Shelley Winters, Peter Falk, Lee Grant, Ruby Dee, Peter Brocco, Kent Smith, Jeff Corey, Leonard Nimoy. Low-budget, none-too-successful attempt to adapt Jean Genet play to the screen, with Winters as madam who maintains her brothel during a revolution. Grant stands out as Winters' lesbian confidante.▼●●

Ballad in Blue SEE: Blues for Lovers

Ballad of a Soldier (1959-Russian) 89m.  D: Grigori Chukrai. Vladimir Ivashov, Shanna Prokhorenko, Antonina Maximova, Nikolai Kruchkov. Effectively simple, poetic love story chronicling the plight of Russian soldier who falls in love with country girl while on leave during WW2. Works both as a romantic drama and an allegory about the sadness and stupidity of war.▼●●

Ballad of Cable Hogue, The (1970) C-121m.  D: Sam Peckinpah. Jason Robards, Stella Stevens, David Warner, Strother Martin, Slim Pickens, L. Q. Jones, R.G. Armstrong. Peckinpah's lyrical, wholly enjoyable fable of loner who builds a life for himself in remote part of the Old West. Stevens has one of her best roles as whore who joins Cable Hogue in quest for the good life. Overlong. [R]▼●●

Ballad of Gregorio Cortez, The (1982) C-99m. ½ D: Robert M. Young. Edward James Olmos, James Gammon, Tom Bower, Bruce McGill, Brion James, Alan Vint, Rosana DeSoto, Pepe Serna, William Sanderson, Barry Corbin, Tim Scott. True story, told from several points of view, of 1901 incident in which a young Mexican killed an American sheriff, then managed to elude a 600-man posse for nearly two weeks! Authentic to the core—almost like being in a time capsule, in fact—but too subdued, especially in its portrayal of Cortez, whose plight isn't fully explained until the end of the film. A PBS American Playhouse presentation. [PG]▼●●

Ballad of Jack and Rose, The (2005) C-111m. *½ D: Rebecca Miller. Daniel Day-Lewis, Camilla Belle, Catherine Keener, Paul Dano, Ryan McDonald, Jena Malone, Jason Lee, Beau Bridges. Pretentious claptrap about an aging hippie environmentalist who lives in isolation on an island off the East Coast of the U.S. with his teenage daughter. He's dying of heart disease and she's about to come of age, having lived a sheltered, idyllic life; this prompts him to ask his current companion (Keener) to move in with them, her two teenage sons in tow. Attempt at an ethereal fable is clunky from the word go, despite the presence of such solid actors as Day-Lewis, husband of the film's writer-director. [R]▼●

Ballad of Josie, The (1967) C-102m. ½ D: Andrew McLaglen. Doris Day, Peter Graves, George Kennedy, Andy Devine, William Talman, David Hartman, Don Stroud. Uninspired Western spoof with widow Day running a ranch and trying to lead the good life. Techniscope.

Ballad of Little Jo, The (1993) C-120m.  D: Maggie Greenwald. Suzy Amis, Bo Hopkins, Ian McKellen, David Chung, Carrie Snodgrass, Rene Auberjonois, Heather Graham, Sam Robards, Ruth Malaczech, Anthony Heald, Melissa Leo. Fascinating tale of a genteel young woman in 1866 who, disgraced by having a child out of wedlock, flees to the American West and quickly learns that the only way to survive on her own is to pretend that she's a man. Writer-director Greenwald hits all the right notes in this convincing and well-crafted piece of fiction (inspired by a real-life woman), with a first-rate cast making the most of every incident. Amis is a revelation in the leading role. Flavorful music score composed and performed by David Mansfield. [R]▼●●

Ballad of Ramblin' Jack, The (2000) C/B&W-112m.  D: Aiyana Elliott. Son of a Jewish doctor, Ramblin' Jack Elliott left home to befriend and follow Woody Guthrie, eventually becoming a folk music legend himself. Engrossing documentary directed by his somewhat estranged daughter in an honest, unsentimental style. Ultimately, the truth of the chronically footloose Elliott remains elusive. Among those appearing: Arlo Guthrie, Kris Kristofferson, Pete Seeger, Odetta, and Alan Lomax.▼●

Ballad of Tam Lin, The (1971) C-107m.  D: Roddy McDowall. Ava Gardner, Ian McShane, Stephanie Beacham, Cyril Cusack, Richard Wattis, Sinead Cusack, Joanna Lumley. A wealthy, beautiful woman gathers hedonistic young people around her—and seeks to control their destinies. Based (believe it or not) on a Robert Burns poem, reset in England in the Swingin' Sixties. McDowall's only directorial effort is ambitious and unusual, but unsatisfying. Shot in 1969, recut and released under various titles including TAM LIN and THE DEVIL'S WIDOW. Panavision. [PG]▼

Ballad of the Sad Cafe, The (1991) C-101m. *½ D: Simon Callow. Vanessa Redgrave, Keith Carradine, Rod Steiger, Cork Hubbert, Austin Pendleton, Beth Dixon, Lanny Flaherty. Truly odd stab at filming Depression-era tale of Southerner Redgrave, a loner who rules rural hamlet like a despot—until hunchback Hubbert and ex-con husband Carradine appear. Far too theatrical in its look, tone, and pacing; Redgrave's performance may interest drama students, but nothing in film really works. Based on Carson McCullers' novella (and its stage adaptation by Edward Albee). Film directing debut of British actor/stage director Callow. ▼

Ballast (2008) C-94m.  D: Lance Hammer. Michael J. Smith, Sr., Jim Myron Ross, Tarra Riggs, Johnny McPhail, Sam Dobbins, Albert Jay Levy, Dr. Sanjib Shrestha, Zachary Coleman, Anita R. Ballard. A man's sudden suicide numbs his morose twin brother (Smith), his soon-to-be-jobless widow (Riggs), and particularly his teenage druggie son (Ross). The bitter survivors reluctantly bond as a family to save their rural convenience store. Chilly, naturalistic indie doesn't have a single note of music or a smile in it, but it's got heart and a faint hope. Written and edited by the director, who shot it in Mississippi with a cast of mostly local non-pros. Super 35.

Ballets Russes (2005) C/B&W-118m. ½ D: Dan Geller, Dayna Goldfine. Irresistible documentary traces the rise and fall of a Russian-inspired troupe that introduced many Americans to dance in the 1930s, '40s, and '50s and launched a number of great careers. It also chronicles the creation of a rival company and the economic forces that eventually brought an end to these colorful enterprises. The dancers who appear on camera (most of them in their 80s and 90s) to recall their glory days are remarkably colorful and charismatic; a treat even if you have no particular interest in ballet. ▽

Ballistic: Ecks vs. Sever (2002) C-91m. BOMB D: Kaos (Wych Kaosayananda). Antonio Banderas, Lucy Liu, Gregg Henry, Ray Park, Talisa Soto, Miguel Sandoval. Idiotic action film boasts what may be the worst movie title ever coined. Banderas plays an ex-FBI agent still mourning the death of his wife after seven years; his former boss recruits him for a kidnapping case by telling him his wife is still alive, and the kidnapper can lead him to her. But even that sliver of logic dissolves as the story unfolds. Only devotees of cars exploding into fireballs will find any value here. Super 35. [R] ▼

Ball of Fire (1941) 111m. ½ D: Howard Hawks. Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck, Oscar Homolka, Dana Andrews, Dan Duryea, S. Z. Sakall, Richard Haydn, Henry Travers, Tully Marshall, Gene Krupa. Burlesque dancer moves in with eight prissy professors (led by Cooper) to explain "slang" for their new encyclopedia; delightful twist on Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs by screenwriters Billy Wilder and Charles Brackett. Remade (by same director) as A SONG IS BORN. ▼

about a has-been Ping-Pong champ enlisted for an undercover FBI mission in which his table-tennis skills are required to capture an Asian archvillain (Walken, in Fu Manchu mode). Every bit as stupid as it sounds. Fogler hams it up, while Hong, as the blind Mr. Miyagi-like mentor, steals every scene he's in, but, alas, it's petty theft. [PG-13] ▽

Baltimore Bullet, The (1980) C-103m. ½ D: Robert Ellis Miller. James Coburn, Omar Sharif, Bruce Boxleitner, Ruben Blakley, Jack O'Halloran, Calvin Lockhart. Pleasant enough film about major-league pool hustlers Coburn and Boxleitner, and their buildup to a high noon showdown with smoothie Sharif. [PG] ▼

Balto (1995) C-77m. ½ D: Simon Wells. Voices of Kevin Bacon, Bob Hoskins, Bridget Fonda, Jim Cummings, Phil Collins, Miriam Margolyes, Lola Bates-Campbell. Loosely based on a true story of the 1920s, Balto is a half-dog, half-wolf who overcomes his outcast past to guide a sled-carrying urgent medical supplies to a town full of sick children in Alaska. Wholesome, lovingly told, and well animated, this offers humor, romance, villainy, warmth, and gives its young viewers something to think about. You could do a lot worse. Followed by two direct-to-video sequels. [G] ▼

Bambi (1942) C-69m. * D: David Hand. Walt Disney's moving and exquisitely detailed animated feature about a deer, and how the phases of its life parallel the cycle of seasons in the forest. Bambole! (1965-Italian) 111m.  D: Dino Risi. Luigi Comencini, Franco Rossi, Mauro Bolognini, Vira Lisi, Nino Manfredi, Elke Sommer, Monica Vitti, Gina Lollobrigida, Akim Tamiroff, Jean Sorel. Quartet of stories on Italian life that never sparkles. "The Phone Call," "Treatise on Eugenics," "The Soup," "Monsignor Cupid." Re-titled: FOUR KINDS OF LOVE. ▼

Bamboo Saucer, The (1968) C-100m. ½ D: Frank Telford. Dan Duryea, John Ericson, Lois Nettleton, Nan Leslie, Bob Hastings. Better-than-average low-budget sci-fier about American and USSR teams investigating a UFO spotting in mainland China. Nettleton's tongue-in-cheek portrayal of a Russian scientist aids considerably. Duryea's last film. Aka COLLISION COURSE. [PG] ▼

Bamboozled (2000) C-135m.  D: Spike Lee. Damon Wayans, Savion Glover, Jada Pinkett-Smith, Tommy Davidson, Michael Rapaport, Thomas Jefferson Byrd, Paul Mooney, Sarah Jones, Mos Def. Heavy-handed satire has eccentric TV producer Wayans pitching a deliberately offensive idea—a minstrel show for the millennium

starring characters named Mantan and Sleep 'N Eat—hoping to be fired from his network. Instead, the idea takes on a life of its own. Only the vibrant performances of Glover and Davidson make this endless polemic endurable. Several celebrities appear in cameos. [R]▼

Bananas (1971) C-82m. * D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, Louise Lasser, Carlos Montalban, Howard Cosell, Rene Enriquez, Charlotte Rae, Conrad Bain. Hilarious; the usual assortment of good jokes, bad jokes, bizarre ideas built around unlikely premise of Woody becoming involved in revolution south of the border. Funny score by Marvin Hamlisch; look for Sylvester Stallone as hoodlum, Allen Garfield as man on cross. [PG]▼●●

Bandidas (2006-U.S.-French-Mexican) C-92m. ½ D: Joachim Roenning, Espen Sandberg. Penélope Cruz, Salma Hayek, Steve Zahn, Dwight Yoakam, Denis Arndt, Audra Blaser, Sam Shepard. In old Mexico, farmhand Cruz and rich girl Hayek join forces as amateur outlaws when evil gringo Yoakam shoots their dads and grabs their lands. Light and full of action but not very funny; a pratfall-heavy EuroWestern, co-written and coproduced by Luc Besson. Shepard cameos amusingly as the ladies' mentor in bank-robber protocol. Zahn, as the criminologist tracking the bosomy desperados, boasts the only nudity. Technovision. [PG-13]▶

Bandido (1956) C-92m.  D: Richard Fleischer. Robert Mitchum, Zachary Scott, Ursula Thiess, Gilbert Roland, Rodolfo Acosta. Mitchum is gun supplier who tries to play both sides during 1916 Mexican rebellion; constant action, endless cat-and-mouse twists with rival Scott keep this one humming. CinemaScope.

Bandido (2004-Mexican-U.S.) C-99m. *½ D: Roger Christian. Carlos Gallardo, Angie Everhart, Matt Craven, Kim Coates, Ana La Salvia, Karyme Lozano. English-language film made in the spirit of EL MARIACHI by the coproducer and star of that 1992 film. Here, Gallardo plays Maximiliano Cruz (aka Bandido), a master thief coerced by the CIA to retrieve a classified computer disk from the lair of a Mexican underworld czar. Also along for the ride is tough ally Everhart; La Salvia is evil Coates' stunning wife, and prone to sumptuous milk baths. There's gunplay, stunts, music, and titillation, but little sense. Bandidon't. [R]

Bandit Queen (1994-Indian) C-119m.  D: Shekhar Kapur. Seema Biswas, Nirmal Pandey, Manoj Bajpai, Rajesh Vivek, Raghuvir Yadav, Govind Namdeo. Action-packed, fact-based adventure/drama/character study of the notorious female Indian outlaw Phoolan Devi (Biswas), who emerged from a life of poverty and ritual brutalization to be charged with numerous kidnappings, robberies, and killings. Yet she remains beloved by many of her country's poor as a Robin Hood-like legend. The film was as controversial as its subject; while based in part on diaries authored by Devi while in jail, she eventually repudiated the material.▼●●

Bandits (2001) C-123m. ½ D: Barry Levinson. Bruce Willis, Billy Bob Thornton, Cate Blanchett, Troy Garity, Brian F. O'Byrne, Bobby Slayton, January Jones, Stacey Travis, Azura Skye. Film tells in flashback the story of two escaped convicts who become successful bank robbers, but have their lives complicated when a woman joins their roving band. Lighthearted comedy caper is a great vehicle for its three stars, and a fine showcase for Garity (son of Jane Fonda), but it becomes needlessly complicated and goes on far too long. Willis' real-life daughters play a bank manager's kids. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Band of Angels (1957) C-127m. ½ D: Raoul Walsh. Clark Gable, Yvonne De Carlo, Sidney Poitier, Efreem Zimbalist, Jr., Patric Knowles. Flat costume epic from Robert Penn Warren's Civil War novel; Gable is Southern gentleman with shady past, in love with high-toned De Carlo who discovers she has Negro ancestors. Poitier is resolute educated slave.▼●●

Band of Outsiders (1964-French) 97m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Anna Karina, Sami Frey, Claude Brasseur, Louisa Colpeyn. Karina enlists the aid of two male hoods to swipe her aunt's stash, but as usual the supposed plot is only a jumping-off point for Godard's commentary on Hollywood melodramas and other 20th-century artifacts. Among the more entertaining of the director's output; looks delightfully mellow today. ▼

Band of the Hand (1986) C-109m. BOMB D: Paul Michael Glaser. Stephen Lang, Michael Carmine, Lauren Holly, John Cameron Mitchell, James Remar, Gerrit Graham. Five Miami punks are whipped into shape by a Vietnam vet, then form a vigilante unit to wipe out drug dealers. Moronic, way overlong junk from the creators of Miami Vice; Bob Dylan (why, Bob?) sings the title tune. [R] ▼

Bandolero! (1968) C-106m. ½ D: Andrew V. McLaglen. James Stewart, Dean Martin, Raquel Welch, George Kennedy, Andrew Prine, Will Geer, Jimmy and Dino play outlaw brothers whose gang flees across Mexican border with Raquel as hostage. Not exactly like real life, but nice outdoor photography makes it passable escapism. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Band's Visit, The (2007-Israeli-French-U.S.) C-87m.  D: Eran Kolirin. Sasson Gabai, Ronit Elkabetz, Saleh Bakri, Khalifa Natour, Imad Jabarin, Tarak Kopty. Imperial Egyptian police band arrives in Israel to perform at an Arab cultural center and promptly gets lost. Stranded overnight in a remote desert town, the band members and even their stiff, formal leader (Gabai) socialize with the locals. Disarming minimalist comedy brings to mind such Czech New Wave films as THE FIREMEN'S BALL as it explores cultural differences with deftness and charm. Feature debut for writer-director Kolirin. [PG-13] ▼

Band Wagon, The (1953) C-112m. * D: Vincente Minnelli. Fred Astaire, Cyd Charisse, Oscar Levant, Nanette Fabray, Jack Buchanan. Sophisticated backstage musical improves with each viewing. Astaire plays a "washed-up" movie star who tries his luck on Broadway, under the direction of maniacal genius Buchanan. Musical highlights include "Dancing in the Dark," "Shine on Your Shoes," "That's Entertainment," and Astaire's Mickey Spillane spoof "The Girl Hunt." Written by Betty Comden and Adolph Green, based on the 1931 Broadway musical by Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, incorporating many of their songs. ▼

Bang (1997) C-98m.  D: Ash. Darling Narita, Peter Greene, Michael Newland, Luis Guzar, Lucy Liu. A desperate, unemployed actress (Narita) finds personal meaning and empowerment when she masquerades as a policewoman for a day. She also gets much more than she bargains for. Provocative look at L.A. on the brink. Film's shoestring budget and handheld camera work to brutally powerful effect despite uneven performances. ▼

Banger Sisters, The (2002) C-98m. ½ D: Bob Dolman. Goldie Hawn, Susan Sarandon, Geoffrey Rush, Robin Thomas, Erika Christensen, Eva Amuri. Onetime rock groupie who's never quite grown up goes to visit her friend and partner in crime, whom she hasn't seen in 20 years, only to find her transformed into a model wife, mother, and civic leader. Entertaining fluff is a good vehicle for Hawn and Sarandon, but can't stand up to any real scrutiny. Hawn's character makes an interesting bookend to daughter Kate Hudson's role in ALMOST FAMOUS. Amurri is Sarandon's real-life daughter. Written by the director. Panavision. [R] ▼

Bangkok Dangerous (2008) C-99m. BOMB D: The Pang Brothers. Nicolas Cage, Shahkrit Yamnarm, Charlie Young, Panward Hemmanee, Nirattisai Kaljaruek, Dom Hetrakul. Unwisely choosing to remake their own 1999 Hong Kong success, the Pang Brothers drop the ball in this uninspired, incomprehensible rehash about an anonymous hit man sent to Thailand, where he teams up with an impressionable young man and falls for a local deaf girl. Typical lowbrow action merges uncomfortably with awkward romantic subplot. Cage is out of his element in this Pang-ful misfire. Call it BANGKOK BORING. [R] ▼

Bang the Drum Slowly (1973) C-97m. ½ D: John Hancock. Michael Moriarty, Robert De Niro, Vincent Gardenia, Phil Foster, Ann Wedgeworth, Patrick McVey, Heather MacRae, Selma Diamond, Barbara Babcock, Tom Ligon, Nicolas Surovy, Danny Aiello. Touching study of two professional baseball players on fictional N.Y. team drawn to each other under unusual circumstances. Outstanding performances by two leads (Moriarty as hustling star pitcher, De Niro as simpleton catcher) in slightly longish, episodic script. Screenplay by Mark Harris, based on his 1956 novel; first dramatized on TV, with Paul Newman. Aiello's film debut. [PG] ▼

Banjo on My Knee (1936) 96m.  D: John Cromwell. Barbara Stanwyck, Joel McCrea, Walter Brennan, Buddy Ebsen, Helen Westley, Walter Catlett, Tony Martin. Stanwyck's the whole show in riverboat saga, singing with Martin, dancing with Ebsen, scrapping with Katherine DeMille.

Bank, The (2001-Australian-Italian) C-99m. ½ D: Robert Connolly. David Wenham, Anthony LaPaglia, Sibylla Budd, Steve Rodgers, Mitchell Butel, Kazuhiro Muroyama. Brilliant econometrist Wenham believes he's created a computer program that can predict stock-market crashes. La-Paglia is a ruthless bank executive ready to capitalize on anything (or anyone) to make a buck. Aims to be a slick intellectual financial thriller but never finds the right tone or pace, despite an interesting premise and good performances. ▼

Bank Dick, The (1940) 74m. * D: Eddie Cline. W. C. Fields, Cora Witherspoon, Una Merkel, Evelyn Del Rio, Jessie Ralph, Grady Sutton, Franklin Pangborn, Shemp Howard, Russell Hicks, Reed Hadley. Classic of insane humor loosely wound about a no-account who becomes a bank guard; Sutton as nitwit prospective son-in-law, Pangborn as bank examiner match the shenanigans of Fields. Screenplay by "Mahatma Kane Jeeves." ▼

Jason Statham, Saffron Burrows, Richard Lintern, Stephen Campbell Moore, Daniel Mays, Peter Bowles, Keeley Hawes, Colin Salmon, Peter De Jersey, James Faulkner, David Suchet. Tired of just getting by on a series of dodgy schemes, Statham agrees to participate in a daring bank heist engineered by beautiful Burrows—but doesn't know she's acting on behalf of British Intelligence, which needs the contents of a particular safe-deposit box. Well-plotted caper inspired by a real-life 1971 incident known in London as the "Walkie-Talkie Robbery," but as it grows dark and violent it ceases to be fun. HD Widescreen. [R] ▼

Bank Robber (1993) C-94m. BOMB D: Nick Mead. Patrick Dempsey, Lisa Bonet, Olivia d'Abo, Forest Whitaker, Judge Reinhold, Michael Jeter, Joe Alaskey. If you want to kill time, this film beats it to death . . . slowly and painfully. Dempsey plays a robber who pulls one last job and ends up hiding out in a seedy hotel where his anonymity comes at a price. Whitaker and Reinhold are "sensitive" officers looking for him; Bonet plays the good-hearted prostitute who falls for the robber. Video version trimmed for R rating. [NC-17] ▼

Bank Shot (1974) C-83m.  D: Gower Champion. George C. Scott, Joanna Cassidy, Sorrell Booke, G. Wood, Clifton James, Bob Balaban, Bibi Osterwald. Fast-paced, engagingly nutty comedy with criminal mastermind Scott planning a literal bank robbery—making off with the entire building! Based on the novel by Donald Westlake, a sequel to THE HOT ROCK (with Scott in the role played by Robert Redford in the film version of that book). Panavision. [PG] ▼

about corruption and infidelity in and about a swank L.A. golf club. Wagner is the pro with a past, St. John a love-hungry young woman. Music score by Quincy Jones. Techniscope.

B*A*P*S (1997) C-91m. *½ D: Robert Townsend. Halle Berry, Natalie Desselle, Ian Richardson, Martin Landau, Luigi Amodeo, Jonathan Fried, Bernie Mac. With a dream of earning $10,000, waitresses Berry and Desselle (Black American Princesses) head for L.A. where, in contrived movie fashion, they wind up living in the mansion of fabulously wealthy Landau. This silly, fairy-tale-ish spin on the fish-out-of-water comedy formula falls flat on its face. Various sports and music personalities show up in cameos. [PG-13] ▼

Barabbas (1961) C-137m.  D: Richard Fleischer. Anthony Quinn, Silvana Mangano, Arthur Kennedy, Jack Palance, Ernest Borgnine, Katy Jurado. Lavish production, coupled with good script (based on Lagerkvist's novel) and generally fine acting by large cast make for engrossing, literate experience. Overly long. Super Technirama 70. ▼

Baraka (1992) C-96m.  D: Ron Fricke. Strikingly visual, insightful National Geographic issue come to life, which tells the story of the evolution of Earth and Mankind, and the manner in which man relates to his environment. Shot on location in 24 countries. There's no dialogue, only sounds and images; this will lose much of its effect on the small screen. Todd-AO 70mm. ▼

Baran (2001-Iranian) C-94m. ½ D: Majid Majidi. Hossein Abedini, Zahra Bahrami. Terminal goof-off on a construction crew becomes a man when he experiences love from afar. Abedini is shocked to discover that the Afghanistan refugee he's been mocking is a woman in dire straits—and a pretty one at that. Crowd pleaser with strong, accessible characters also benefits from Majidi's credentials as a visual poet. [PG] ▼

Barbarella (1968-French-Italian) C-98m. ½ D: Roger Vadim. Jane Fonda, John Phillip Law, Anita Pallenberg, Milo O'Shea, David Hemmings, Marcel Marceau, Claude Dauphin, Ugo Tognazzi. Midnight-movie favorite based on popular French comic strip about sexy 41st-century space adventuress. Not especially funny, but watchable, with Fonda's striptease during opening credits the principal reason for its cult status. Trivia footnote: rock group Duran Duran took its name from O'Shea's character. Aka BARBAR-ELLA, QUEEN OF THE GALAXY. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Barbarian and the Geisha, The (1958) C-105m. ½ D: John Huston. John Wayne, Eiko Ando, Sam Jaffe, So Yamamura. Twisting of 19th-century history allows Wayne

Barbarian Invasions, The (2003-Canadian-French) C-99m. * D: Denys Arcand. Rémy Girard, Stéphane Rousseau, Marie-Josée Croze, Marina Hands, Dorothée Berryman, Johanne-Marie Tremblay, Dominique Michel, Louise Portal, Yves Jacques, Pierre Curzi. Arcand reunites the characters from his 1986 film THE DECLINE OF THE AMERICAN EMPIRE as they gather to embrace one of their group who is dying. An estranged son flies to his bedside out of a sense of duty, but winds up using his smarts (and money) to help his father through the last phase of his life as peacefully and happily as he can. Arcand's extraordinary script deals with mortality, sexuality, dreams and hopes unfulfilled, the power of money, the erosion of intelligence, and much, much more. A rare film that is both cerebral and emotional; satiric, sophisticated, witty, and profoundly moving. Original Quebec release ran 18m. longer. Oscar winner for Best Foreign Language Film. Super 35. Barbarians, The (1987) C-87m. *½ D: Ruggero Deodato. David Paul, Peter Paul, Richard Lynch, Eva La Rue, Virginia Bryant, Sheeba Alahani, Michael Berryman. Staggeringly silly sword-and-sorcery saga starring two awesome-looking body-builders (brothers in real life), whose main achievement is keeping a straight face while mouthing their dialogue. [R]▼●

Barbaric Beast of Boggy Creek, The, Part II (1985) C-91m.  D: Charles B. Pierce. Charles B. Pierce, Cindy Butler, Serene Hedin, Chuck Pierce, Jimmy Clem. Slight, forgettable story of anthropology professor Pierce, who leads an expedition to find the Boggy Creek monster. Although titled "Part II," this is the third journey to Boggy Creek, following THE LEGEND OF . . . and RETURN TO . . . Filmed in 1983. Formerly titled BOGGY CREEK II. [PG]▼●●

Barbarosa (1982) C-90m.  D: Fred Schepisi. Willie Nelson, Gary Busey, Isela Vega, Gilbert Roland, Danny De La Paz, George Voskovec. Nelson is fine as legendary, free-spirited outlaw constantly on the lam, with able support from Busey as country boy who becomes his protégé. Solid Western, flavorfully directed by Schepisi. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Barbary Coast (1935) 90m. ½ D: Howard Hawks. Miriam Hopkins, Edward G. Robinson, Joel McCrea, Walter Brennan, Frank Craven, Brian Donley. Lusty tale of San Francisco in the late 19th century with dance-hall queen Hopkins running head-on into big-shot Robinson. David Niven can be glimpsed as an extra.▼●●

Barbary Coast Gent (1944) 87m.  D: Roy

Barbershop (2002) C-102m.  D: Tim Story. Ice Cube, Anthony Anderson, Cedric the Entertainer, Sean Patrick Thomas, Eve, Troy Garity, Michael Ealy, Leonard Earl Howze, Keith David. Entertaining comedy about a neighborhood Chicago barbershop, which Ice Cube has inherited from his father; the burden of running this threadbare business puts a crimp in his dreams, but he begins to change his mind after one eventful day in the shop, which serves as a community gathering place. Canny screenplay manages to embrace many points of view, which counterbalances its sentimentality—and overlength. Followed by a sequel, and a spinoff, BEAUTY SHOP. [PG-13]▼●

Barb Wire (1996) C-90m.  D: David Hogan. Pamela Anderson Lee, Temuera Morrison, Victoria Rowell, Jack Noseworthy, Steve Railsback. In 2017, the U.S. is run by a fascist dictatorship. Lee is a bounty hunter and nightclub owner living in a city on the fringe of freedom. Her former lover asks her to help him spirit his wife into Canada to help the rebellion. Lots of gaudy but uninvolved action; surly, pneumatic Lee is no actress, just a 15-year-old boy's fantasy figure. Actually rips off the plot of CASABLANCA! Also available in unrated video version. [R]▼●●

Barcelona (1994) C-100m. ½ D: Whit Stillman. Taylor Nichols, Chris Eigeman, Tushka Bergen, Mira Sorvino, Pep Munne, Nuria Badia, Hellena Schmied, Francis Creighton, Thomas Gibson, Jack Gilpin. Young, nerdy American businessman (Nichols) living in Spain is joined by his Naval officer cousin (Eigeman); the two woo a variety of women and debate anti-American attitudes and actions that prevail among the local populace. Set in the concluding months of the Cold War, film's theme is admirably original, and often amusing, if not always compelling. Writer-director Stillman's second offbeat talkfest (following METROPOLITAN) isn't quite as focused as the first, though reteaming of male costars is a plus. ▼●●

Barefoot Contessa, The (1954) C-128m.

 D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Humphrey Bogart, Ava Gardner, Edmond O'Brien, Marius Goring, Rossano Brazzi, Valentina Cortesa, Elizabeth Sellars, Warren Stevens. Cynical tale of beautiful Spanish dancer Gardner and how director Bogart makes her a Hollywood star. Mankiewicz's script is full of juicy dialogue, as usual. O'Brien won an Oscar as the press agent. ▼●●

Barefoot Executive, The (1971) C-96m. **

Barefoot in the Park (1967) C-105m. ***

D: Gene Saks. Robert Redford, Jane Fonda, Charles Boyer, Mildred Natwick, Herb Edelman, Mabel Albertson, Fritz Feld, Doris Roberts. Plotless, entertaining Neil Simon comedy finds Fonda and Redford newlyweds in five-story walkup apartment. Running gag about climbing stairs grows thin, but film doesn't. Redford and Natwick recreate their Broadway roles; Saks' screen directing debut. Later, briefly a TV series with an all-black cast. ▼●●

Schroeder. Mickey Rourke, Faye Dunaway, Alice Krige, Jack Nance, J.C. Quinn, Frank Stallone. Surprisingly enjoyable portrait of L.A. lowlife, and boozy, foolishly macho writer Henry Chinaski, played with comic bravado by Rourke. Dunaway is exceptional as his alcoholic soulmate. Based on the autobiographical writings of cult favorite Charles Bukowski, who can be glimpsed on one of the bar stools. Veteran character actor Fritz Feld has a lovely bit as a bum who gives Dunaway a light. Matt Dillon later played Chinaski in FACTOTUM. [R]▼●●

Bar Girls (1994) C-95m. ½ D: Marita

Giovanni. Nancy Allison Wolfe, Liza D'Agostino, Camila Griggs, Justine Slater, Lisa Parker, Pam Raines. Amiable (if flawed) romantic comedy with a twist: all of its major characters are lesbians who congregate at L.A.'s Girl Bar. The main character is obsessive, wryly funny Loretta (Wolfe), a female Woody Allen who is forever seeking a perfect significant other while not quite understanding what it means to truly and completely love another person. The film's shortcomings are compensated for by clever dialogue and believable characters. Adapted for the screen by Lauran Hoffman from her play. [R]▼●●

Barkleys of Broadway, The (1949) C-109m.  D: Charles Walters. Fred Astaire,

Ginger Rogers, Oscar Levant, Billie Burke, Gale Robbins. Astaire and Rogers reteam after ten years in this witty Comden-Green script about show biz couple who split, then make up. Songs include "You'd Be Hard to Replace," "They Can't Take That Away from Me." Ginger reading "La Marseillaise" is a definite low point. ▼●●

Barnacle Bill (1957) SEE: All at Sea

Barney's Great Adventure (1997) C-75m.

 D: Steve Gomer. George Hearn, Shirley Douglas, Trevor Morgan, Kyla Pratt, Diana Rice, David Joyner, Jeff Ayres. Preschoolers who cannot get enough of TV's Big Purple Dinosaur will take to this, Barney's first feature, in which he mixes with some kids on a farm; together, they set off on an adventure in search of a missing egg. Inoffensive, to be sure, but for anyone over five it's a real yawn. [G]▼●●

Barnyard (2006) C-90m.  D: Steve Oeder-

kerk. Voices of Kevin James, Courteney Cox, Sam Elliott, Danny Glover, Wanda Sykes, Andie MacDowell, David Koechner, Jeff Garcia, Cam Clarke, Dom Irrera, Laraine Newman. Animated zainness set on a farm where, after sundown, the animals turn the barn into a raucous nightclub. James is Otis, a cow who won't mature, much to the chagrin of his father, Ben (Elliott), who keeps watch for preying coyotes while the others party. Unspectacular, though there are commendable messages for kids regarding adoption and parenting. Irrera stands out as Duke the Dog. Written by the director. [PG]●

Baron Blood (1972-Italian) C-90m. ½ D:

Mario Bava. Joseph Cotten, Elke Sommer, Massimo Girotti, Rada Rassimov, Antonio Cantafora, Alan Collins. Descendant of evil nobleman attempts "novel" rejuvenation principles. Standard plot livened by unusual settings and lighting. Aka THE TORTURE CHAMBER OF BARON BLOOD. Original Italian version runs longer. [PG]▼●●

Baroness and the Butler, The (1938)

75m.  D: Walter Lang. William Powell, Annabella, Helen Westley, Henry Stephenson, Joseph Schildkraut, J. Edward Bromberg. Powell leads double life as Annabella's butler and member of Parliament. He's fine as usual but script is rather thin.

Baron Muenchhausen (1943-German)

C-110m.  D: Josef von Baky. Hans Albers, Brigitte Hornoy, Wilhelm Bendow, Leo Slezak, Ferdinand Marian. Lavish, impressive curio which tells of the legendary, free-spirited Baron, his exploits in Russia, Turkey, Venice, and elsewhere, and his quest for beautiful princesses and empresses. While ostensibly an escapist entertainment, the Baron is an heroic German: noble, shrewd, and ever loyal to the Fatherland. Produced on the order of Goebbels, Hitler's Minister of Propaganda and Public Enlightenment, to mark the 25th anniversary of UFA, the German production studio. This would make a fascinating (if overlong) double bill with Terry Gilliam's THE ADVENTURES OF BARON MUNCHHAUSEN. ▼

Baron of Arizona, The (1950) 96m. ½ D: Samuel Fuller. Vincent Price, Ellen Drew, Beulah Bondi, Reed Hadley. Price has field day as landgrabbing scoundrel who almost gains control of Arizona in the 19th century. Fuller also scripted. ▼

Barquero (1970) C-115m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. Lee Van Cleef, Warren Oates, Forrest Tucker, Kerwin Mathews, Mariette Hartley. Bad guy Oates, on the run after wiping out a town, has to deal with Van Cleef, a feisty ferry operator. [PG]

Barretts of Wimpole Street, The (1934) 110m.  D: Sidney Franklin. Norma Shearer, Fredric March, Charles Laughton, Maureen O'Sullivan, Katherine Alexander, Una O'Connor, Ian Wolfe. Handsome, well-acted, and most entertaining MGM production of classic romance between Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning in 19th-century England. Director Franklin remade this two decades later. Retitled for TV: FORBIDDEN ALLIANCE. ▼

Barretts of Wimpole Street, The (1957-U.S.-British) C-105m. ½ D: Sidney Franklin. Jennifer Jones, John Gielgud, Bill Travers, Virginia McKenna. Tame interpretation of the lilting romance between poets Browning and Barrett, with actors bogged down in prettified fluff. Director Franklin fared better with this in 1934. CinemaScope. ▼

Barrier (1966-Polish) 84m. ½ D: Jerzy Skolimowski. Joanna Szczerbic, Jan Nowicki, Tadeusz Lomnicki, Maria Malicka. Interesting view of youthful attitudes in Poland, combining reportage with fantasy elements. Not a total success, but still intriguing.

Barry Lyndon (1975-British) C-183m. ½ D: Stanley Kubrick. Ryan O'Neal, Marisa Berenson, Patrick Magee, Hardy Kruger, Steven Berkoff, Gay Hamilton, Murray Melvin, Frank Middlemass, Andre Morell, Leonard Rossiter, Marie Kean, narrated by Michael Hordern. Exquisite, meticulously detailed period piece stars O'Neal as Thackeray's 18th-century Irish rogue-hero who covets success but lets it go to his head. Long, deliberately paced but never boring. Won Oscars for John Alcott's photography, Leonard Rosenman's adaptation of period music, Art Direction-Set Decoration, and Costume Design. Screenplay by Kubrick. [PG] ▼

Barry McKenzie Holds His Own (1974-Australian) C-93m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Barry Crocker, Barry Humphries, Donald Pleasence, Dick Bentley, Louis Negin.

Idiotic follow-up to THE ADVENTURES OF BARRY MCKENZIE, about oafish title character, his twin brother (both played by Crocker), and one Edna Everage (Humphries, in drag), who is kidnapped and taken to Transylvania. Panavision. ▼

Bartleby (1972-British) C-78m. ½ D: Anthony Friedmann. Paul Scofield, John McEnery, Thorley Walters, Colin Jeavons, Raymond Mason. Herman Melville's great short story about 19th-century auditing clerk who refuses to leave job after he is fired is admirably attempted in modern-day update, even though story doesn't really lend itself to filming; Scofield is fine as bewildered but sympathetic boss. Remade in 2002. ▼

Bartleby (2002) C-82m.  D: Jonathan Parker. Crispin Glover, David Paymer, Glennie Headly, Maury Chaykin, Joe Piscopo, Seymour Cassel, Carrie Snodgrass, Dick Martin. Quiet Bartleby (Glover) is hired by Paymer to file public records. At first he's energetic, but in response to an innocuous request he replies, "I would prefer not to," and soon is saying it in response to all requests. Colorfully acted adaptation of the Herman Melville story, but cowriter-director Parker strains for effect and diminishes the already unfocused satire by making everyone loony. [PG-13] ▼

Barton Fink (1991) C-117m. ½ D: Joel Coen. John Turturro, John Goodman, Judy Davis, Michael Lerner, John Mahoney, Tony Shalhoub, Jon Polito, Steve Buscemi, David Warrilow, Richard Portnow, Christopher Murney. Self-important N.Y. playwright Turturro comes to Hollywood in 1941 to write a screenplay, and finds it a living hell—in more ways than one. Barbed look at vintage Hollywood, filled with incredible detail and amazing scenes; told in Joel and Ethan Coen's typically flamboyant visual style. BUT, at a crucial point the film takes a sharp left turn toward the bizarre, and never returns. Great performances all around. [R] ▼

BASEketball (1998) C-103m.  D: David Zucker. Trey Parker, Matt Stone, Yasmine Bleeth, Jenny McCarthy, Robert Vaughn, Ernest Borgnine, Dian Bachar, Trevor Einhorn, Bob Costas, Al Michaels, Robert Stack. Sporadically funny gross-out comedy about two goofballs who invent a driveway basketball game that soon sweeps the country—and turns them into professional athletes. Some funny gags, but a surprisingly pedestrian storyline makes it sag. Starring (but not written by) the creators of TV's South Park. Recommended for anyone eager to see Borgnine sing "I'm Too Sexy for My Shirt." [R] ▼

a military training exercise, base commander Daly calls in Travolta, the best interrogator he ever had, to question the remaining members of the group, whose stories don't add up. Essentially a whodunit, this film keeps adding layers of confusion so that it becomes less interesting as it goes along! The final 'twist' seems to negate the entire story, like a bad shaggy-dog joke. Travolta is in great form, however. Panavision. [R] ▼

Basic Instinct (1992) C-127m.  D: Paul Verhoeven. Michael Douglas, Sharon Stone, George Dzundza, Jeanne Tripplehorn, Denis Arndt, Leilani Sarelle, Bruce A. Young, Chelcie Ross, Dorothy Malone, Wayne Knight, Stephen Tobolowsky. In-your-face sex thriller, with Douglas as a San Francisco cop who's fatally attracted to a key suspect in an ice-pick murder: brazenly sexy (and manipulative) Stone. Audacious, erotic, and larger-than-life—with an ending that falls short of real satisfaction. Released overseas in an unrated version that's even more sexually explicit! Both versions are available on video. The notorious eight shots of erotic grappling totaling 42 seconds were restored to 1993 video editions. Followed by a sequel. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Basic Instinct 2 (2006-U.S.-German) C-114m.  D: Michael Caton-Jones. Sharon Stone, David Morrissey, Charlotte Rampling, David Thewlis, Hugh Dancy, Iain Robertson, Stan Collymore. Long-gestating sequel to the notorious 1992 hit isn't the embarrassment you might have expected—or hoped for. What should have been high camp is instead a rather dull psychological-sexual thriller in which slippery novelist Catherine Tramell is up to her old tricks in London when a male companion turns up dead in her car. Did she or didn't she? Stone makes the best of this and looks sensational while the impressive British cast tries hard to keep it afloat. Super 35. [R]

Basil (1998) C-102m.  D: Radha Bharadwaj. Jared Leto, Christian Slater, Claire Forlani, Derek Jacobi, Rachel Pickup, David Ross. Turn-of-the-20th-century tale about a young aristocrat who (with the help of a mysterious friend) becomes entangled with a beautiful but selfish temptress. Murky slice of Gothic suffers from sluggish pacing and lack of passion. Leto struggles with his British accent and the lovely Forlani has one haughty facial expression for every emotion. Based on a Wilkie Collins novel. Never theatrically released. [R] ▼

Basilian Quartet (1982-French-Italian) C-118m.  D: Fabio Carpi. Pierre Malet, Hector Alterio, Omero Antonutti, Michel Vitold, Alain Cuny, Gabriele Ferzetti, Lisa Kreuzer. A violinist suddenly dies and his colleagues, who have lived only for music, must get on with their lives—which are profoundly altered by the young replacement for the deceased. Stark, quietly absorbing, beautifully realized. ▼●

Basketball Diaries, The (1995) C-100m.

 D: Scott Kalvert. Leonardo DiCaprio, Lorraine Bracco, Bruno Kirby, Marilyn Sokol, Mark Wahlberg, James Modio, Ernie Hudson. Drably downbeat and none-too-stylish rendering of poet-musician Jim Carroll's '60s recollections of heroin abuse and on-court prowess at a N.Y.C. Catholic school. DiCaprio is well cast in role intended for River Phoenix, but imprecise updating from Carroll's very specific time frame leads to a fuzzy point of view. [R] ▼●

Basket Case (1982) C-91m. ½ D: Frank Henenlotter. Kevin Van Hentenryck, Terri Susan Smith, Beverly Bonner, Robert Vogel, Diana Browne. Extremely self-conscious but intriguing tongue-in-cheek low-budget horror film about a twin who arrives in N.Y.C. from a small town carrying his deformed telepathic mutant brother in a basket. Some interesting animated sequences in this John Waters-ish film that boasts some effective horror moments. Followed by several sequels. [R] ▼●

Basket Case 2 (1990) C-89m. BOMB D: Frank Henenlotter. Kevin Van Hentenryck, Annie Ross, Jason Evers, Kathryn Meisle, Heather Rattray, Ted Sorel. Van Hentenryck and his monstrously deformed twin brother take refuge in a house of freaks, but are tracked down by tabloid reporter. Arch, pseudo-hip film totally lacks the conviction of the first; icy cold. [R] ▼●

Basket Case 3 (1992) C-90m. *½ D: Frank Henenlotter. Kevin Van Hentenryck, Annie Ross, Gil Roper, Tina Louise Hilbert, Dan Biggers, Jim O'Doherty. Van Hentenryck is separated from his deformed brother, who fathers a set of duodecuplets when the house of freaks from previous entry moves to Georgia. Flatly photographed, with a meandering, uninvolved plot. More serious than previous entry, but still strains for laughs. [R] ▼●

Basquiat (1996) C-108m. ½ D: Julian Schnabel. Jeffrey Wright, David Bowie, Dennis Hopper, Gary Oldman, Willem Dafoe, Michael Wincott, Benicio Del Toro, Claire Forlani, Parker Posey, Christopher Walken, Courtney Love, Tatum O'Neal, Paul Bartel, Sam Rockwell. Meandering though not uninteresting bio of controversial black artist Jean-Michel Basquiat, who went from unknown graffiti practitioner to spent comet between 1981 and 1987. The movie doesn't capture the presumed intensity of a rapid career ascent before death from heroin at 28. Yet the supporting cast is rich, topped by Bowie's portrayal of Andy Warhol, which is precise even down to the pasty skin. Look carefully at the chic party guests Basquiat spies through the gallery window, and you'll spot Isabella Rossellini. Directorial debut for artist Schnabel, who also scripted. [R] ▼●

of the Mary Roberts Rinehart-Avery Hopwood play, with mystery writer Moorehead renting an eerie mansion for the summer; she and her maid soon are plagued by the title fiend. Filmed before in 1915, 1926, and (as THE BAT WHISPERS) in 1930. ▼●●

Bataan (1943) 114m.  D: Tay Garnett. Robert Taylor, George Murphy, Thomas Mitchell, Lloyd Nolan, Lee Bowman, Robert Walker, Desi Amaz, Barry Nelson. Realistically made drama of famous WW2 incident on Pacific island; good combat scenes. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Bathing Beauty (1944) C-101m. ½ D: George Sidney. Red Skelton, Esther Williams, Basil Rathbone, Ethel Smith, Xavier Cugat, Lina Romay, Harry James and His Orchestra. Esther's first starring vehicle gives Skelton and musical guest stars the spotlight most of the way, but does have a spectacular aquatic finale. Silly script, thankless role for Rathbone. ▼●●

Batman (1966) C-105m.  D: Leslie Martinson. Adam West, Burt Ward, Burgess Meredith, Cesar Romero, Frank Gorshin, Lee Meriwether, Neil Hamilton, Madge Blake, Reginald Denny. Quickly made feature to cash in on then-hot TV series pulls out all stops, features the Joker, Riddler, Penguin, and Catwoman trying to undo the caped crusader. Really misses the mark; the campy humor worked better in the TV series. ▼●●

Batman (1989) C-126m. ½ D: Tim Burton. Jack Nicholson, Michael Keaton, Kim Basinger, Robert Wuhl, Pat Hingle, Billy Dee Williams, Michael Gough, Jack Palance, Jerry Hall, Tracey Walter, Lee Wallace. There's razzle-dazzle to spare in this dark, intense variation on Bob Kane's comic book creation—but there's also something askew when the villain (a particularly psychotic villain, played overboard by Nicholson) is so much more potent than the hero! Still, lots to grab your attention, including Anton Furst's Oscar-winning production design and Danny Elfman's terrific score. Prince contributes several songs. Followed by BATMAN RETURNS. [PG-13] ▼●●

Batman & Robin (1997) C-130m. ½ D: Joel Schumacher. Arnold Schwarzenegger, George Clooney, Chris O'Donnell, Uma Thurman, Alicia Silverstone, Michael Gough, Pat Hingle, John Glover, Elle Macpherson, Vivica A. Fox, Vendela K. Thommessen. Coolio. Batman #4 spotlights two colorful villains, Schwarzenegger's lusty Mr. Freeze and Thurman's deliciously nasty Poison Ivy, who (for different reasons) want to destroy Gotham City, but even their antics can't sustain an overlong, episodic film in which the "story" often makes no sense. Clooney is OK but unremarkable as Bruce Wayne/Batman, ditto for Silverstone as the new Batgirl. The action and effects are loud, gargantuan, and ultimately numbing. End of this Batman cycle; followed in 2005 by BATMAN BEGINS. [PG-13] ▼●●

Batman Begins (2005) C-140m.  D: Christopher Nolan. Christian Bale, Michael Caine, Liam Neeson, Katie Holmes, Morgan Freeman, Gary Oldman, Cillian Murphy, Tom Wilkinson, Rutger Hauer, Ken Watanabe, Linus Roache, Rade Sherbedgia, Mark Boone Junior. Highly entertaining reinvention of the Batman legend traces the evolution of Bruce Wayne from privileged son of wealthy, generous parents to avenging crime-fighter hoping to save a corrupt Gotham City. Script (by David S. Goyer and director Nolan) also provides ingenious explanations of how the Caped Crusader came to adopt his various accoutrements. Impeccably cast (with the exception of Holmes, who seems lightweight in such heady company) and executed. Followed by THE DARK KNIGHT. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Batman Returns (1992) C-126m.  D: Tim Burton. Michael Keaton, Danny DeVito, Michelle Pfeiffer, Christopher Walken, Michael Gough, Michael Murphy, Cristi Conaway, Andrew Bryniarski, Pat Hingle, Vincent Schiavelli, Jan Hooks, Paul Reubens. Nasty, nihilistic nightmare movie about an abandoned freak baby who grows up to be The Penguin—a deadly threat to Gotham City, especially when he teams up with megaloma-

niac Max Shreck (Walken). Meanwhile, Batman finds a more personal enemy in Catwoman. Rich performances, dazzling production design, and occasional cleverness can't make up for a dark, mean-spirited (and often incoherent) screenplay. Followed by Keatonless BATMAN FOREVER. [PG-13]▼●●

Bats (1999) C-91m. BOMB D: Louis Morneau. Lou Diamond Phillips, Dina Meyer, Bob Gunton, Leon, Carlos Jacott, David McConnell. Hordes of mutated killer bats attack a Southwestern community. That's all the plot the movie has, but it does feature a top-of-the-line motivation for its mad scientist (Gunton): he creates the bats, he says, because he can. Deplorable. DVD is rated R. Followed by a made-for-TV sequel. Clairmont-Scope. [PG-13]▼●

batteries not included (1987) C-106m.  D: Matthew Robbins. Hume Cronyn, Jessica Tandy, Frank McRae, Elizabeth Pena, Michael Carmine, Dennis Boutsikaris. Steven Spielberg's Amblin Productions has gone to the same well once too often. Cloying sci-fi fantasy has a "family" of small alien spacecrafts arrive to assist New Yorkers whose tenement is about to be demolished. Cronyn and Tandy do far more for the film than it does for them. [PG]▼●●

Battle at Apache Pass, The (1952) C-85m. ½ D: George Sherman. Jeff Chandler, John Lund, Beverly Tyler, Richard Egan, Hugh O'Brian, Jay Silverheels. Chandler reprises his BROKEN ARROW role as Cochise, who tries to prevent Indian wars but doesn't quite succeed.

Battle Beneath the Earth (1967-British-U.S.) C-91m. ½ D: Montgomery Tully. Kerwin Mathews, Viviane Ventura, Robert Ayres, Peter Arne, Al Mulock, Martin Benson. Silly but enjoyable pulp fantasy about Chinese plan to invade U.S. through network of tunnels.▼

Battle Beyond the Stars (1980) C-104m. ½ D: Jimmy T. Murakami. Richard Thomas, John Saxon, Robert Vaughn, Darlanne Fleugel, George Peppard, Sybil Danning, Sam Jaffe, Morgan Woodward, Jeff Corey, Julia Duffy. Not-bad space saga from Roger Corman, with good special effects and a John Sayles script that uses the reliable SEVEN SAMURAI/MAGNIFICENT SEVEN formula (with Vaughn from the SEVEN cast). Sets and special effects were reused for countless subsequent Corman cheapies. [PG]▼●●

Battle Beyond the Sun (1963) C-75m.  D: Thomas Colchart. Edd Perry, Arla Powell, Andy Stewart, Bruce Hunter. Soviet sci-fi film NEBO ZOYOT (1959) is refashioned into so-so American product by producer Roger Corman; story deals with rival space missions to Mars. The names of the director and actors are all pseudonyms; Francis Ford Coppola, credited as Associate Producer, oversaw the English adaptation. His father Carmine (billed as "Carmen" Coppola) wrote the music.▼●

Battle Circus (1953) 90m. ½ D: Richard Brooks. Humphrey Bogart, June Allyson, Keenan Wynn, Robert Keith, Philip Ahn. OK tale of MASH unit during Korean War is well acted, and occasionally exciting, but hampered by too much emphasis on the romance between surgeon Bogart and nurse Allyson. Surprisingly ordinary, coming from writer-director Brooks.▼

Battle Creek Brawl SEE: Big Brawl, The Battle Cry (1955) C-149m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Van Heflin, Aldo Ray, Mona Freeman, Nancy Olson, James Whitmore, Raymond Massey, Tab Hunter, Dorothy Malone, Anne Francis, William Campbell, John Lupton, Fess Parker, Rhys Williams, Allyn (Ann) McLerie. Entertaining version of Leon Uris WW2 Marine novel, with much barracks profanity removed for film, focusing on servicemen in training, wartime romance, and frustrating battle assignments—with Heflin striving to get his men the tough combat action they yearn for. Hunter as wholesome soldier and Malone a love-hungry Navy wife stand out in episodic actioner. Ray gives good performance as rough-hewn gyrene who falls in love with "nice girl" Olson. Film debut of Justus McQueen, who thereafter acted under the name of his character, L.Q. Jones. Musical score by Max Steiner. Screenplay by Uris. CinemaScope.▼●●

Battlefield Earth (2000) C-117m. BOMB D: Roger Christian. John Travolta, Barry Pepper, Forest Whitaker, Kim Coates, Richard Tyson, Sabine Karsenti, Michael MacRae, Kelly Preston. Psychlos (business-minded aliens) conquered Earth a century ago; what remains of humanity are slaves or ignorant savages. Gold-greedy Psychlo security chief Travolta educates bright human Pepper, hoping "man animals" can mine the metal for him. Big mistake. . . . So is the movie, based on the novel by L. Ron Hubbard. Clumsy plot, misplaced satire, unbelievable coincidences and a leaden pace trample Travolta's weird but amusing performance. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Battle for Terra (2009) C-79m.  D: Aristomenis Tsirbas. Voices of Evan Rachel Wood, Brian Cox, James Garner, Chris Evans, Danny Glover, Amanda Peet, David Cross, Justin Long, Dennis Quaid, Luke

Wilson, Mark Hamill, Ron Perlman, Beverly D'Angelo, Danny Trejo, Rosanna Arquette, Laraine Newman. The last remains of the human race, in their quest to survive, threaten to annihilate the inhabitants of a peaceful planet. When a friendship forms between a downed Earthling invader and a Terran princess, they plot together to drive the humans away. Environmentally conscious animated film with a strong antiwar message is a tolerable sit for adults. There are several spectacular aerial action sequences, but character designs are generic and personalities clichéd. Digital Widescreen. [PG]

Battle for the Planet of the Apes (1973) C-92m.  D: J. Lee Thompson. Roddy McDowall, Natalie Trundy, Severn Darden, Paul Williams, Claude Akins, John Huston. Substandard; fifth (and last) apes installment attempts to bring entire series full-cycle. Good footage from earlier films helps, but not much. A TV series followed. Panavision. [G]▼●●

Battleground (1949) 118m.  D: William Wellman. Van Johnson, John Hodiak, Ricardo Montalban, George Murphy, Marshall Thompson, Denise Darcel, Don Taylor, Richard Jaeckel, James Whitmore, James Arness, Scotty Beckett. Star-studded replay of Battle of the Bulge: division of American troops, their problems and reactions to war. Robert Pirosh's slick script, which was awarded an Oscar, lacks genuine insight into the characters; Paul C. Vogel also earned a statuette for his cinematography. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Battle Hymn (1957) C-108m.  D: Douglas Sirk. Rock Hudson, Martha Hyer, Anna Kashfi, Dan Duryea, Don DeFore. Hudson gives convincing performance as clergyman who returns to military duty in Korean War to train fighter pilots; expansive production values. CinemaScope.▼●

Battle in Seattle (2008) C-98m.  D: Stuart Townsend. Charlize Theron, Woody Harrelson, Martin Henderson, André Benjamin, Michelle Rodriguez, Ray Liotta, Connie Nielsen, Channing Tatum, Joshua Jackson, Jennifer Carpenter, Isaach de Bankolé, Tzi Ma, Ivana Milicevic, Rade Sherbedzija. Compelling film about various people affected by the turbulent protests over the World Trade Organization conference in Seattle in 1999. Organizers Henderson, Rodriguez, and Benjamin are sincere in their goal of nonviolent demonstrations, and mayor Liotta is counting on that, but nothing goes as planned. Not all of the personal stories are equally commanding, but first-time writer-director Townsend artfully blends dramatic re-creations with actual news footage to create visceral, immediate drama. [R]●

Battle of Algiers, The (1965-Italian-Algerian) 125m. ½ D: Gillo Pontecorvo. Yacef Saadi, Jean Martin, Brahim Haggiag, Tommaso Neri, Samia Kerbash.

Straightforward drama about revolt against the French by Algerians from 1954–1962. Its impressive pseudo-documentary style helped earn it many awards, and the searing imperialism vs. independence struggle it depicts still resonates today.▼●●

Battle of Britain (1969-British) C-132m.  D: Guy Hamilton. Harry Andrews, Michael Caine, Trevor Howard, Curt Jurgens, Kenneth More, Laurence Olivier, Christopher Plummer, Michael Redgrave, Ralph Richardson, Robert Shaw, Susannah York. Superb wide-screen aerial sequences, which will suffer on TV, hardly redeem yet another "spot-the-star" WW2 epic, this time about British airmen who prevented threatened Nazi invasion. Panavision. Battle of El Alamein (1968-Italian-French) C-105m.  D: Calvin Jackson Padgett (Giorgio Ferroni). Frederick Stafford, Ettore Manni, Robert Hossein, Michael Rennie, George Hilton, Ira Furstenberg. Plenty of action as Italians and Germans, partners in an uneasy alliance, fight the British in the North African desert in 1942. Hossein plays Rommel, and Rennie does an unsympathetic Field Marshal Montgomery (the British are the villains in this one). Cromoscope. [PG]▼●

Originally an Oscar nominee for Best Foreign Film, but when this $12 million spectacle about Nazi invasion of Yugoslavia was cut down from nearly three hours, it lost most of its coherency. Too bad. Panavision. [G]▼

Battle of Shaker Heights, The (2003) C-79m. ½ D: Kyle Rankin, Efram Potelle. Shia LaBeouf, Elden Henson, Amy Smart, Billy Kay, Kathleen Quinlan, Shiri Appleby, William Sadler, Ray Wise, Anson Mount. Second of the prize-winning Project Greenlight screenplays executive produced by Matt Damon and Ben Affleck is a comedy-drama about a high school misfit (winningly played by LaBeouf) who glibly covers the hurt he feels inside from troubles at home. A weekend war reenactor, he teams up with a preppie pal to seek revenge on his high school nemesis . . . then develops a serious crush on his new friend's older sister. Nothing startling or new, but entertaining. [PG-13]▼●

script. Read a good book on the subject instead. Ultra Panavision 70. ▼●●

Battle of the River Plate, The SEE: Pursuit of the Graf Spee

Battle of the Sexes, The (1959-British) 84m.  D: Charles Crichton. Peter Sellers, Robert Morley, Constance Cummings, Jameson Clark. Sparkling British comedy with macabre overtones; Sellers is elderly Scotsman contemplating murder. Supporting cast keeps this moving. ▼

Battle of the Villa Fiorita, The (1965-British) C-111m. ½ D: Delmer Daves. Maureen O'Hara, Rossano Brazzi, Richard Todd, Phyllis Calvert, Martin Stephens. Unconvincing soaper with O'Hara running off to Italy to carry on with widower Brazzi; predictable interference from each's children. Panavision.

Battle of the Worlds (1961-Italian) C-84m. *½ D: Anthony Dawson (Antonio Margheriti). Claude Rains, Maya Brent, Bill Carter, Umberto Orsini, Jacqueline Derval. Rains adds some weight to this English-dubbed cheapie about scientists' frantic efforts to stop alien planet from colliding with Earth. Eerie atmosphere also helps a little. ▼●

Battleship Potemkin (1925-Russian) 70m. * D: Sergei Eisenstein. Alexander Antonov, Vladimir Barsky, Grigori Alexandrov, Mikhail Goronorov. Landmark film about 1905 Revolution. Feature adapted from first episode of short-lived TV series; Greene is commander of starship taking survivors of doomed planet in search of new home. Belongs on small screen, where it's moderately interesting and John Dykstra's special effects come off best. Premiere originally telecast at 148m. [PG] ▼●●

Pampered young millionaire falls in love with a girl during a camping trip, and then has to pretend he's actually a champion prizefighter. One of Buster's weaker silent features still has its share of funny moments. Based on a stage play. ▼●●

Battling Hooper SEE: Something to Sing About

Bat*21 (1988) C-105m.  D: Peter Markle.

Gene Hackman, Danny Glover, Jerry Reed, David Marshall Grant, Clayton Rohner, Erich Anderson, Joe Dorsey. Air Force Colonel and strategist Hackman has only seen the war from 30,000 feet, until he's shot down behind enemy lines. Now it's up to Glover to get him out before the Viet Cong get him, and before his own forces carpet-bomb the area. Taut, compelling film, based on a true story, with fine acting all around. Costar Reed was executive producer and wrote some of the songs for the soundtrack. [R] ▼●●

Bawdy Adventures of Tom Jones, The (1976-British) C-94m.  D: Cliff Owen. Nicky Henson, Trevor Howard, Joan Collins, Terry-Thomas, Arthur Lowe, Georgia Brown. Mild doings, based on London stage musical, can't hold a candle to 1963 classic (TOM JONES). This time, Tom's amorous adventures are pat and predictable, with Collins, as highwaywoman Black Bess, adding only zing. [R] ▼

Baxter (1973) C-100m.  D: Lionel Jeffries. Patricia Neal, Scott Jacoby, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Lynn Carlin, Britt Ekland, Sally Thomsett. Well-acted drama about young Jacoby's emotional problems and his relationship with speech therapist Neal, who tries to correct his lisp. [PG]

Baxter (1991-French) C-82m.  D: Jerome Boivin. Lise Delamare, Jean Mercure, Jacques Spiesser, Catherine Ferran, Jean-Paul Roussillon. Illuminating observation of the human condition as perceived through the unlikeliest of eyes: the title canine, a bull terrier who thinks and feels, and reveals what's on his mind. The most disturbing of his various masters: a seemingly average young boy who turns out to be a fascist-in-training. Boivin coscripted. ▼●●

Baxter, The (2005) C-91m. ½ D: Michael Showalter. Michael Showalter, Elizabeth Banks, Justin Theroux, Michelle Williams, Michael Ian Black, Zak Orth, Peter Dinklage, Catherine Lloyd Burns, Katharine Powell, Paul Rudd. A Brooklyn CPA (Showalter) is standing at the altar when—boom!—the ex (Theroux) of his intended (Banks) crashes the wedding. This nice schlub is characterized as a "Baxter" who can't tell the difference between contentment and happiness. What else to do but turn to the ready advice and willing ministrations of his able temp (a cute Williams). Mild romantic comedy was written by the director, who would have benefited from a less cartoonish leading man. [PG-13] ●

Bay Boy, The (1984-Canadian-French) C-107m.  D: Daniel Petrie. Liv Ullmann, Kiefer Sutherland, Peter Donat, Mathieu Carriere, Isabelle Mejias, Alan Scarfe, Chris Wiggins, Leah Pinsent. Well-meaning but hopelessly predictable portrayal of a teenager (Sutherland, son of Donald), and his coming of age in rural Canadian community during 1930s. You've seen this one many times before; Ullmann in partic-

Bay of Angels (1963-French) 79m.  D: Jacques Demy. Jeanne Moreau, Claude Mann, Paul Guers, Henri Nassiet. Lesser-known but no less rewarding French New Wave drama tells the story of a young man whose chronic gambling leads him into a dangerous affair with a woman he meets in the casino. Their luck at the tables mirrors their own tumultuous relationship. A vividly blonde Moreau is sensational in one of her best, least-seen performances. Z master Costa-Gavras is credited as Assistant to Director. Shot in gorgeous b&w in the South of France; re-quested for 2002 U.S. reissue. Score by frequent Demy collaborator Michel Legrand is one of his best. CinemaScope.▼

Beach, The (2000) C-120m. ½ D: Danny Boyle. Leonardo DiCaprio, Tilda Swinton, Virginie Ledoyen, Guillaume Canet, Paterson Joseph, Robert Carlyle, Peter Youngblood Hills. Young American looking for "something different" goes to Bangkok, hooks up with a French couple, and together they follow a map to an elusive and secluded island beach... but paradise is not all it's cracked up to be. Consistently interesting if sometimes muddled adaptation of Alex Garland's novel is naive at times and leans toward purplish prose in DiCaprio's narration. Super 35. [R]▼

Beach Ball (1965) C-83m.  D: Lennie Weinrib. Edd Byrnes, Chris Noel, Robert Logan, Gale Gilmore, Aron Kincaid. Different group tries a beach picture, but it's essentially the same. Pretty girls, surfing, Edd in drag, and performances by The Supremes, Four Seasons, Righteous Bros., Hondells, Walker Bros.

Beach Blanket Bingo (1965) C-98m.  D: William Asher. Frankie Avalon, Annette Funicello, Paul Lynde, Harvey Lembeck, Don Rickles, Linda Evans, Jody McCrea, Marta Kristen, John Ashley, Deborah Walley, Buster Keaton, Bobbi Shaw, Timothy Carey. Fifth BEACH PARTY movie is the best; amid various plot entanglements (parachuting, kidnapped singing idol Evans, mermaid Kristen), Lynde sneers at everybody, Rickles insults everybody, and Lembeck gets to sing before being cut into two halves by Carey's buzzsaw. The ultimate wallow in '60s surfing nostalgia. Sequel: HOW TO STUFF A WILD BIKINI. Panavision.▼●

Beachcomber, The (1938-British) 92m.  D: Erich Pommer. Charles Laughton, Elsa Lanchester, Tyrone Guthrie, Robert Newton, Dolly Mollinger. Disheveled bum Laughton, living on island paradise, is reformed by missionary Lanchester. Two stars (married in real life) delightful in filmization of W. Somerset Maugham story originally titled VESSEL OF WRATH. The sole directorial outing of esteemed German producer (and Laughton partner) Pommer. Remade in 1955.▼

Beachcomber, The (1955-British) C-82m.  D: Muriel Box. Glynis Johns, Robert Newton, Donald Sinden, Michael Hordern, Donald Pleasence. Remake of Somerset Maugham tale of South Sea island bum entangled with strait-laced sister of missionary is still flavorful.▼

Beaches (1988) C-123m. ½ D: Garry Marshall. Bette Midler, Barbara Hershey, John Heard, Spalding Gray, Lainie Kazan, James Read, Grace Johnston, Mayim Bialik, Marcie Leeds. Bittersweet saga of a 30-year friendship that begins when two girls—one rich and pampered, the other poor and driven to show-biz success—meet on the beach at Atlantic City. OK as soap opera (not much depth to the characters and their motives, and at least two endings too many) but as a vehicle for Midler it's dynamite, and she even gets to sing. Based on a novel by Iris Rainer Dart; Midler coproduced. Director Marshall features his on-screen "regulars" in a variety of cameo roles, including Hector Elizondo as a justice of the peace. [PG-13]▼●

Beachhead (1954) C-89m.  D: Stuart Heisler. Tony Curtis, Frank Lovejoy, Mary Murphy, Eduard Franz, Skip Homeier, John Doucette. Tense WW2 drama in which a small group of Marines sets out to locate a French plantation owner, and a critical message, on a Japanese-held island.▶

Beach Party (1963) C-101m.  D: William Asher. Frankie Avalon, Annette Funicello, Bob Cummings, Dorothy Malone, Harvey Lembeck, Jody McCrea, John Ashley, Morey Amsterdam, Candy Johnson, Eva Six. Anthropologist Cummings studies teenagers' "wild" behavior, but comes to learn they aren't so bad after all. First in long-running series is typical blend of slapstick and forgettable songs, as well as introduction of Lembeck's dopey Brandobiker takeoff, Eric Von Zipper. Sequel: MUSCLE BEACH PARTY. Panavision.▼

Beach Red (1967) C-105m.  D: Cornel Wilde. Cornel Wilde, Rip Torn, Burr De Benning, Patrick Wolfe, Jean Wallace. Hard look at military life in South Pacific attempts to show ugly side of war.▶

Bean (1997-British) C-90m.  D: Mel Smith. Rowan Atkinson, Peter MacNicol, Pamela Reed, Harris Yulin, Burt Reynolds, John Mills, Larry Drake, Johnny Galecki, Tom McGowan, Sandra Oh. Mr. Bean, featured in a series of TV skits and specials, makes his feature-film debut as a guard at the National Gallery of Art in London who's sent to America, posing as a noted art expert, to accompany "Whistler's Mother" as it is unveiled at a California museum. Never quite

as wonderful as you'd like it to be, but often very funny. Bean's misadventures are reminiscent of silent film comedy and largely dependent on the winning silliness of Atkinson himself. Followed by MR. BEAN'S HOLIDAY. [PG-13] ▼●●

Beans of Egypt, Maine, The (1994) C-100m. ½ D: Jennifer Warren. Martha Plimpton, Kelly Lynch, Rutger Hauer, Patrick McGaw, Richard Sanders, Michael MacRae. Episodic, mildly interesting account of the Beans, a large, rough-and-tumble backwoods clan, and the most notorious residents of Egypt, Maine (pop. 729). Film centers on the relationship, sexual and otherwise, between Beal Bean (McGaw), a hot, prideful young stud, and the Beans' neighbor (Plimpton). Based on the best-selling novel by Carolyn Chute. An American Playhouse coproduction. Retitled FORBIDDEN CHOICES for video. [R] ▼●●

Bear, The (1989-French) C-93m.  D: Jean-Jacques Annaud. Bart, Douce, Jack Wallace, Tchéky Karyo, Andre Lacombe. Captivating and unusual film about a bear cub who is orphaned and forced to fend for itself, until it finds a new protector in a giant Kodiak—the tempting target for a pair of hunters. Filmed with utmost respect for animals and a real sense of nature's magnificence, though manipulative, to be sure. Based on The Grizzly King, a 1917 novel by James Oliver Curwood. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Bear Island (1979-British-Canadian) C-118m. *½ D: Don Sharp. Donald Sutherland, Vanessa Redgrave, Richard Widmark, Christopher Lee, Barbara Parkins, Lloyd Bridges, Lawrence Dane. One of Alistair MacLean's best novels became one of his worst films, mixing murder, intrigue and stolen bullion near the top of the world. Strong cast, capable director and scenic locations come to naught. Barely released to theatres. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Bears and I, The (1974) C-89m. *½ D: Bernard McEveety. Patrick Wayne, Chief Dan George, Andrew Duggan, Michael Ansara. Vietnam vet Wayne tries to soothe relations in North Woods between Indians and white bigots. Mild Disney film. [G] ▼●

Beast, The (1971) SEE: Equinox
Beast, The (1988) C-109m.  D: Kevin Reynolds. Jason Patric, Steven Bauer, George Dzundza, Stephen Baldwin, Don Harvey, Kabir Bedi. Soviet tank, cut off from its battalion in Afghan desert, tries to reach safety, while pursued by vengeful Afghan rebels. Eventually, a peace-minded Russian from the tank, left to die by his brutal commander, joins the rebels himself. Serviceable (if predictable) plot is undermined by ponderous pace and stereotyped characters. Filmed in Israel. [R] ▼●

Beast From Haunted Cave (1960) 64m.  D: Monte Hellman. Michael Forest, Sheila Carol, Frank Wolff, Richard Sinatra, Wally Campo. Economically shot (to say the least) by Roger Corman's company on scenic locations near Deadwood, South Dakota, this pits fleeing robbers against a mysterious, spiderlike monster. Charles B. Griffith script has some good dialogue, and Sinatra (Frank's nephew) and Carol showed promise. Monster created and played by actor Chris Robinson. Remake of NAKED PARADISE, with monster added. ▼●

Beast From 20,000 Fathoms, The (1953) 80m. ½ D: Eugene Lourie. Paul Christian, Paula Raymond, Cecil Kellaway, Kenneth Tobey, Donald Woods, Lee Van Cleef, Ross Elliott. Prehistoric rhedosaurus wreaks havoc when thawed after an atom-bomb blast. Good Ray Harryhausen special effects, especially in amusement park finale. Suggested by the Ray Bradbury short story "The Fog Horn." ▼●●

Beast in the Cellar, The (1971-British) C-87m.  D: James Kelly. Beryl Reid, Flora Robson, John Hamill, T. P. McKenna, Tessa Wyatt. Two sisters hide their maniac brother in the cellar; performances of Reid and Robson bring movie to average level. British running time was 101m. ▼●

Beastmaster, The (1982) C-118m.  D: Don Coscarelli. Marc Singer, Tanya Roberts, Rip Torn, John Amos, Rod Loomis. Yet another sword and sandal fantasy with Conan/Tarzan-clone hero who communicates with animals (including, believe it or not, some comedic ferrets), falls in love with slave girl Roberts and seeks revenge against evil priest (Torn) who killed his father. Cinematography by John Alcott (BARRY LYNDON). Followed by several sequels. [PG] ▼●●

Marc Singer, Kari Wuhrer, Sarah Douglas, Wings Hauser, James Avery, Robert Fieldsteel, Arthur Malet, Robert Z'Dar, Michael Berryman, Larry Dobkin. Hero Dar returns (belatedly) to battle another evil wizard (Hauser)—this time, thanks to magician Douglas, in the streets of modern-day L.A. Some cleverness, but cheaply made and contrived. Nine writers are credited. Followed by a TV sequel. ▼●●

Beast Must Die, The (1974-British) C-93m.  D: Paul Annett. Calvin Lockhart, Peter Cushing, Charles Gray, Marlene Clark, Anton Diffring. New twists on the old

werewolf theme make the difference. Millionaire sportsman Lockhart invites guests to his electronically bugged mansion, knowing one of them is a werewolf. Lockhart is overly mannered, while Cushing gains sympathy in his usual quiet but effective way. Like TEN LITTLE INDIANS, this movie gives audience a break to guess killer's identity. From story "There Shall Be No Darkness" by James Blish. Video title: BLACK WEREWOLF. [PG]▼●●

Beast of the City, The (1932) 87m.  D: Charles Brabin. Walter Huston, Jean Harlow, Wallace Ford, Jean Hersholt, Dorothy Peterson, Tully Marshall, John Miljan, Mickey Rooney. "Instead of the glorification of gangsters, we need the glorification of policemen," reads President Hoover's opening statement, and this film delivers, in W. R. Burnett's solid, surprisingly gritty story, a sort of early DIRTY HARRY with a downbeat ending. Harlow is incredibly sexy as a gang moll.▶

Beast of the Dead (1970) C-90m. BOMB D: Eddie Romero. John Ashley, Eddie Garcia, Beverly Miller, Celeste Yarnall. Originally titled BEAST OF BLOOD. [PG]▼▶

Beast of Yucca Flats, The (1961) 60m. BOMB D: Coleman Francis. Douglas Mellor, Tor Johnson, Barbara Francis. Johnson becomes a disfigured monster as a result of exposure to an A-bomb test. Exploitation-type story of detective Cochran tracking down insane sexual assaulter; vivid sequences marred by hokey script. Retitled THIS REBEL AGE. CinemaScope.●

Beat Girl SEE: Wild for Kicks

Beatrice (1988-French) C-128m.  D: Bertrand Tavernier. Bernard Pierre Donnadiou, Julie Delpy, Nils Tavernier, Monique Chaumette, Robert Dhery, Michele Gleizer. Moody and well-mounted, if essentially ugly saga of the Hundred Years War; a father returns home from the front to bully his weaking son and engage his tougher (and beautiful) daughter in incest. Extremely violent and not for all tastes, but obviously the work of an outstanding filmmaker; try reconciling this with Tavernier's A SUNDAY IN THE COUNTRY. Video title: THE PASSION OF BEATRICE. Beat Street (1984) C-106m. ½ D: Stan Lathan. Rae Dawn Chong, Guy Davis, Jon Chardiet, Leon W. Grant, Sandra Santiago, Robert Taylor. Urban ghetto kids find creative outlets in painting graffiti, breakdancing, rapping, and developing new disco d.j. routines. A slicker version of WILD STYLE that places the old Mickey & Judy "let's put on a show" formula into a more realistic contemporary setting. Innocuous trend piece, coproduced by Harry Belafonte. Beat That My Heart Skipped, The (2005-French) C-108m.  D: Jacques Audiard. Romain Duris, Niels Arestrup, Jonathan Zaccari, Gilles Cohen, Linh-Dan Pham, Aure Atika, Emmanuelle Devos. Entertaining reworking of James Toback's FINGERS, centering on a dour young man (Duris) who is unable to decide if he will embrace a life of classical music or law-breaking. Not as gripping or provocative as the original, but still worthwhile.▶

Beat the Devil (1954) 89m.  D: John Huston. Humphrey Bogart, Jennifer Jones, Gina Lollobrigida, Robert Morley, Peter Lorre, Edward Underdown. Huston and Truman Capote concocted this offbeat, very funny satire of MALTESE FALCON-ish movies on location in Italy. Low-key nature of comedy eluded many people in 1954 and it immediately became a cult favorite, which it remains today.▼●●

production from Granger's rash of costume epics. Here, he's the famous 19th-century British Casanova-fop (played by John Barrymore in the 1924 version). ▼

Beaufort (2007-Israeli) C-126m. ½ D: Joseph Cedar. Oshri Cohen, Itay Tiran, Eli Eltonyo, Ohad Knoller, Itay Turgeman, Alon Aboutboul. Beaufort Castle, a 12th-century Crusaders' fort, was captured by the Israeli army in 1982 on the first day of its war with Lebanon, though it was of no strategic importance. Israeli soldiers have been defending it against the bombs of a faceless enemy for almost two decades, and now they are ordered to abandon Beaufort as the Israelis plan their withdrawal from Lebanon. Subtly compelling drama offers an uncompromising portrait of men in combat and the pointlessness of war. Ron Leshem adapted his novel with Cedar. Super 35. ▶

Beau Geste (1939) 114m.  D: William Wellman. Gary Cooper, Ray Milland, Robert Preston, Brian Donlevy, Susan Hayward, J. Carrol Naish, Albert Dekker, Broderick Crawford, Donald O'Connor. Scene-for-scene remake of famous 1926 silent film (with Ronald Colman) isn't quite as good but faithfully retells story of three devoted brothers serving in the Foreign Legion and battling sadistic martinet commander (Donlevy). Nothing can top that opening sequence! Based on the novel by P.C. Wren. Remade in 1966. ▼●●

Beau Geste (1966) C-103m.  D: Douglas Heyes. Telly Savalas, Guy Stockwell, Doug McClure, Leslie Nielsen. The third version of Christopher Wren's adventure about honor in the French Foreign Legion is barely adequate, with brothers battling rampaging Arabs and sadistic commander Savalas. Techniscope.

Beau James (1957) C-105m.  D: Melville Shavelson. Bob Hope, Vera Miles, Paul Douglas, Alexis Smith, Darren McGavin; narrated by Walter Winchell. Flavorful recreation of the political career of Mayor Jimmy Walker in 1920s N.Y.C., based on Gene Fowler's book. Hope is fine in basically non-comic performance. Guest appearances by Jimmy Durante, Jack Benny, George Jessel, Walter Catlett. VistaVision.

Beaumarchais the Scoundrel (1996-French) C-100m.  D: Edouard Molinaro. Fabrice Luchini, Manuel Blanc, Sandrine Kiberlain, Jacques Weber, Florence Thomassin, Jean Yanne, Michel Piccoli, Michel Serrault, Jean-Claude Brialy. Luchini gives a marvelous performance as the 18th-century playwright, wit, and defender of human rights in this episodic biopic that encompasses everything from backstage theatrical drama and royal intrigue to gun-running for the American Revolution. As light and insubstantial as a soufflé, but beautifully crafted and always entertaining. Panavision. ▼

Maurice Ronet, Nicole Garcia, Nathalie Baye, Maurice Risch, Macha Meril. Piano player Dewaere is seduced by his determined stepdaughter, a 14-year-old child-woman (Besse), after the death of her mother. Thoughtful comedy-drama is sensitively, not exploitively, handled by director Blier. Panavision. ▼▶

Beautician and the Beast, The (1997) C-105m. *½ D: Ken Kwapis. Fran Drescher, Timothy Dalton, Ian McNeice, Patrick Malahide, Lisa Jakub, Michael Lerner, Phyllis Newman. Stuck in the salon with her TV aspirations going nowhere, a Queens beautician readily accepts when she's hired (on a blunder) to tutor the emotionally deprived children of Slovetzia's widowed dictator. No nun sings "Climb Ev'ry Mountain," but this comedy can be taken as a warped variation on THE SOUND OF MUSIC. Drescher's beguiling loopyness carries it for a while, but the already limited chuckles halt with a full half-hour to go. [PG] ▼●●

Beauties of the Night (1954-French) 84m. ½ D: René Clair. Gérard Philipe, Martine Carol, Gina Lollobrigida, Magali Vendeuil. Diverting fantasy involving aspiring composer Philipe with penchant for dreams wandering through various eras of history. ▼

Beautiful (2000) C-112m. *½ D: Sally Field. Minnie Driver, Joey Lauren Adams, Hallie Kate Eisenberg, Kathleen Turner, Leslie Stefanson, Michael McKean, Colleen Rennison, Bridgette Wilson. A young girl with the ambition of being a beauty pageant queen grows up to be a win-at-all-costs career contestant (Driver). When she accidentally becomes pregnant, she has her best friend raise the child. Good cast combats an uneven script filled with one-dimensional characters; a distant runner-up to SMILE. Field's feature-film directing debut. [PG-13] ▼▶

Beautiful Blonde From Bashful Bend, The (1949) C-77m. ½ D: Preston Sturges. Betty Grable, Cesar Romero, Rudy Vallee, Olga San Juan, Porter Hall, Sterling Holloway, El Brendel. Film was major flop in 1949, looks somewhat better today; broad Western farce has Grable a gun-toting saloon girl mistaken for schoolmarm in hick town. Hugh Herbert hilarious as nearsighted doctor. ▼●●

Beautiful Country, The (2005-U.S.-Norwegian) C-125m.  D: Hans Petter Moland. Damien Nguyen, Nick Nolte, Bai Ling, Tim Roth, Be He, Xuan Phuc Dinh, Phat Trieu Hoang, Than Kien Nguyen. Boy who was the product of a Vietnamese mother and American G.I. who fought in the war becomes an outcast in his own village due to his mixed heritage. He sets off on a journey, eventually heading to Texas to find the father he never knew. Measured, well-made tale dramatizes the difficulties children of American servicemen encountered once the war was over and their biological fathers deserted them. Damien Nguyen is touching and genuine in his first major role, while Nolte does some of his finest work in what amounts to a cameo near the film's end. Super 35. [R]▼

Beautiful Creatures (2001-British) C-86m. ½ D: Bill Eagles. Rachel Weisz, Susan Lynch, Iain Glen, Maurice Roëves, Alex Norton, Tom Mannon. Two women in Glasgow, each with lousy taste in men, unexpectedly meet and team up in a kidnapping/extortion scheme. Far-fetched variation on a familiar theme, laced with violence and humor. Norton is great as unconventional cop. [R]▼

Beautiful Dreamers (1990-Canadian) C-107m. ½ D: John Kent Harrison. Colm Feore, Rip Torn, Wendel Meldrum, Sheila McCarthy. Free-spirited American poet Walt Whitman (Torn) befriends Dr. Maurice Bucke (Feore), intrigued by his progressive treatment of the mentally retarded. Their combined roguish idealism confounds their peers and sets Victorian sensibilities askew. Trite handling of interesting story, with outstanding performances by Torn and Feore. [PG-13]▼●

Beautiful Girls (1996) C-107m.  D: Ted Demme. Timothy Hutton, Matt Dillon, Noah Emmerich, Annabeth Gish, Lauren Holly, Rosie O'Donnell, Max Perlich, Martha Plimpton, Natalie Portman, Michael Rapaport, Mira Sorvino, Uma Thurman, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Anne Bobby, Richard Bright, Sam Robards, David Arquette. Hutton, on the verge of marrying his girlfriend but unsure of himself, goes back to his Massachusetts hometown and hangs out with his pals from high school, whose lives—and relationships with women—haven't changed a bit. Well-observed and well-cast slice of life about the continuity of small-town working-class existence and the ruts both men and women can find themselves in. Some great moments for precocious Portman, smart-mouthed O'Donnell, and others in the ensemble. [R]▼●●

Beautiful Joe (2000) C-98m.  D: Stephen Metcalfe. Sharon Stone, Billy Connolly, Gil Bellows, Ian Holm, Jumea Smollett, Dann Florek. Good-hearted man, dumped by his wife, takes to the road in search of adventure, and finds it when he meets up with Stone, a woman with a knack for getting into trouble. Familiar and predictable. Connolly deserves a better vehicle. U.S. debut on cable TV. [R]▼

Beautiful Mind, A (2001) C-135m.  D: Ron Howard. Russell Crowe, Jennifer Connelly, Ed Harris, Paul Bettany, Christopher Plummer, Adam Goldberg, Judd Hirsch, Josh Lucas, Anthony Rapp, Austin Pendleton. Unusual story "inspired by incidents" in the life of John Nash, a brilliant West Virginia mathematician who flowers at Princeton in the late 1940s and then goes to work at M.I.T. But his marriage and sanity are put to a painful test.

Central story twist is a doozy—and completely unexpected. Crowe is excellent as usual, and the film offers an overdue showcase for Connelly, as the student who becomes his wife. Oscar winner for Best Picture, Director, Supporting Actress (Connelly), and Adapted Screenplay (Akiva Goldsman). [PG-13]▼

Beautiful People (1999-British) C-109m.  D: Jasmin Dizdar. Charlotte Coleman, Charles Kay, Rosalind Ayres, Roger Slobman, Heather Tobias, Danny Nussbaum, Siobhan Redmond, Gilbert Martin, Edin Dzandzanovic. Sharply observed film about various people—mostly Brits and Bosnians—caught in England's contemporary melting pot, but told with a sense of humor and hope in its heart instead of despair. A striking and believable film from writer-director Dizdar. [R]▼

Beautiful Thing (1996-British) C-89m.  D: Hettie Macdonald. Glen Berry, Linda Henry, Scott Neal, Tameka Empson, Ben Daniels, Martin Walsh. Amiable and insightful tale of two working-class adolescent boys (Berry and Neal), neighbors with very different home lives, who become sexually and romantically involved. Sharp bits of humor and the blue-collar setting add punch to the proceedings, resulting in a winning coming-out/coming-of-age story. Love that Mama Cass sound track! Scripted by Jonathan Harvey, based on his play. [R]▼

Beau Travail (2000-French) C-93m.  D: Claire Denis. Denis Lavant, Michel Subor, Gregoire Colin. Loose adaptation of Melville's Billy Budd is an austere tale of an ex-Foreign Legion officer (Lavant) who recalls his tenure in a dusty, impoverished East African locale, and his disdain for a young recruit (Colin). Denis expertly captures the boring existence of the legionnaires, and says something profound and deeply personal about the politics of male camaraderie.▼

Beauty and the Beast (1946-French) 95m. * D: Jean Cocteau. Jean Marais, Josette Day, Marcel André. Great fantasy, great filmmaking—beguiling on any level.▼●●

Beauty and the Beast (1963) C-77m. *½ D: Edward L. Cahn. Joyce Taylor, Mark Damon, Eduard Franz, Michael Pate, Merry Anders, Dayton Lummis, Walter Burke. Beauty and the Beast (1991) C-85m. ½ D: Gary Trousdale, Kirk Wise. Voices of Paige O'Hara, Robby Benson, Jerry Orbach, Angela Lansbury, Richard White, David Ogden Stiers, Jesse Corti, Rex Everhart, Bradley Michael Pierce, Jo Anne Worley, Kimmy Robertson. Classic Disney cartoon version of the classic tale, with bookish Belle and a ferocious Beast learning to love one another after he makes her prisoner in his desolate castle (where the only signs of life come from humanized household fixtures). Cannily presented in the style of a Broadway musical, with a fine-tuned script by Linda Woolverton, and a rousing, Oscar-winning score by Alan Menken (with another Oscar for Menken and Howard Ashman's title tune). The first animated feature to earn an Oscar nomination as Best Picture. Reissued at 89m. in 2002 with an additional musical sequence entitled "Human Again." Followed by a Broadway musical, a TV series, and two direct-to-video sequels. [G]▼●●

Beauty Shop (2005) C-105m. ½ D: Bille Woodruff. Queen Latifah, Alicia Silverstone, Andie MacDowell, Alfre Woodward, Mena Suvari, Kevin Bacon, Djimon Hounsou, Keshia Knight Pulliam, Bryce Wilson, Golden Brooks, Sherril Shepherd, Della Reese, Wilmer Valderrama, Dondre Whitfield, Paige Hurd. Latifah is back from BARBERSHOP 2 as Gina, now an Atlanta single mom/stylist. Fed up with boss Bacon (over-the-top and foreign), she all too predictably turns an eyesore into a salon of her very own, complete with attitude, plus upstairs neighbor Hounsou as a hunky handyman. The jokes fly, the tresses fall, and Silverstone plays the token role done by Troy Garity in BARBERSHOP. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Beavis and Butt-head Do America (1996) C-80m. ½ D: Mike Judge. Voices of Mike Judge, Robert Stack, Cloris Leachman, Eric Bogosian, Richard Linklater. The unabashedly ignorant, flagrantly antisocial, hormonally charged duo from MTV's animated series find themselves on a cross-country odyssey that begins when someone steals their all-important TV set. Alternately stupid, gross, and hilarious, this modest cartoon feature is certainly true to itself and certain to please B&B fans. Bruce Willis, Demi Moore, and David Letterman contribute unbilled voices, but best of all is the casting of Stack as a hard-nosed Federal agent. Huh-huh-huh. [PG-13]▼●●

Bebe's Kids (1992) C-74m. ½ D: Bruce Smith. Voices of Faizon Love, Nell Carter, Myra J., Vanessa Bell Calloway, Tone Loc, Wayne Collins, Jonell Green, Marques Houston. Raucous animated feature based on a routine by the late comedian Robin Harris (voiced here by Faizon Love) whose date with an attractive woman turns into a nightmare when she brings along her son—and three brats she's looking after. The first animated feature aimed squarely at a black audience is lively, often funny—but a bit protracted. [PG-13]▼●●

Because I Said So (2007) C-102m.  D: Michael Lehmann. Diane Keaton, Mandy Moore, Gabriel Macht, Tom Everett Scott, Lauren Graham, Piper Perabo, Stephen Collins, Ty Panitz, Tony Hale. Meddlesome mother has married off two of her girls but can't leave her remaining single daughter alone; she even takes out a personals ad in order to audition prospects, then steers the likeliest candidate (Scott) her way. But Moore is more attracted to a freewheeling musician (Macht) of whom her mom doesn't approve. Contrived romantic comedy is torpedoed by Keaton's character, who is unbelievably annoying. [PG-13]●

Because of Winn-Dixie (2005) C-106m.  D: Wayne Wang. AnnaSophia Robb, Jeff Daniels, Cicely Tyson, Eva Marie Saint, Dave Matthews, Courtney Jines, Elle Fanning, Harland Williams. Tepid adaptation of Kate DiCamillo's children's novel (and an offbeat choice for director Wang) about a 10-year-old girl and her minister father, whose wife has abandoned him . . . and a dog that changes a community. Genial to a fault, but packed with local eccentrics who seem more out of Central Casting than anyone's real life. Singer Matthews probably fares best as an ex-con who runs a pet shop, though young Robb at least has a winning smile. [PG]▼●

Because You're Mine (1952) C-103m.  D: Alexander Hall. Mario Lanza, James Whitmore, Doretta Morrow, Dean Miller, Paula Corday, Jeff Donnell, Spring Byington, Don Porter, Eduard Franz, Bobby Van. Opera star Lanza is drafted and falls in love with Morrow, the sister of his top sergeant (Whitmore). For Lanza fans only.▼

Becket (1964) C-148m. * D: Peter Glenville. Richard Burton, Peter O'Toole, John Gielgud, Donald Wolfit, Martita Hunt, Pamela Brown, Felix Aylmer. Stunning film, adapted by Edward Anhalt (who won an Oscar) from the Jean Anouilh play, centers on stormy friendship between Archbishop of Canterbury Thomas à Becket and his English King, Henry II. Superbly acted and magnificently photographed (by Geoffrey Unsworth) on location in England. Panavision. ▼●●

Becky Sharp (1935) C-83m. ½ D: Rouben Mamoulian. Miriam Hopkins, Frances Dee, Cedric Hardwicke, Billie Burke, Alison Skipworth, Nigel Bruce. Witty but sometimes ponderous adaptation of Thackeray's Vanity Fair with Hopkins as self-reliant girl whose sole concern is herself. Historically important as first full-Technicolor (3-color) feature, designed by Robert Edmond Jones (and photographed by Ray Rennahan). Long available only in inferior 67m. Cinecolor reissue prints; archivally restored in 1985. Previously filmed in 1923 and 1932, remade in 2004 (all as VANITY FAIR). ▼

Becoming Colette (1992-U.S.-German) C-97m. ½ D: Danny Huston. Klaus Maria Brandauer, Mathilda May, Virginia Madsen, Paul Rhys, John van Dreelen, Jean-Pierre Aumont. Ridiculous tale of the famed French writer Colette (May), depicted as an inexperienced country girl who weds publisher Brandauer. He prints her writing under his name, and sets up a threesome with Madsen (but becomes outraged when the women fall in love). The director is the son of John Huston, but may as well be the protégé of Zalman King. [R] ▼

Becoming Jane (2007-British) C-113m.  D: Julian Jarrold. Anne Hathaway, James McAvoy, Julie Walters, James Cromwell, Maggie Smith, Joe Anderson, Lucy Cohu, Laurence Fox, Ian Richardson. Future novelist Jane Austen (Hathaway) is from humble Hampshire means and should be looking to secure an advantageous marriage. Instead, the headstrong young woman wants life on her own terms . . . but only after falling in love with a brash Irishman (McAvoy) does her writing mature and reveal "life experience." Entertaining film, based on Austen's letters, indicates that this episode in her life inspired Pride and Prejudice. Hathaway fares well in the midst of a mostly British cast. Super 35. [PG] ▼

Be Cool (2005) C-114m. ½ D: F. Gary Gray. John Travolta, Uma Thurman, Vince Vaughn, Cedric the Entertainer, André Benjamin (André 3000), Steven Tyler, Christina Milian, Harvey Keitel, The Rock, Danny DeVito, Robert Pastorelli, Debi Mazar, Paul Adelstein. In this sequel to Elmore Leonard's GET SHORTY, Chili Palmer (Travolta) moves into the music business and chooses a promising young singer (Milian) as his protégée, despite the fact that she's already under contract to ruthless Keitel and his loose-cannon lieutenant, Vaughn. Amiable, good-looking film retains Leonard's story smarts but blunts the impact by allowing its comedic costars (Vaughn, Cedric) to riff to their heart's content. The Rock is especially funny as a bodyguard/Hollywood wannabe. James Woods appears unbilled; other music stars make cameo appearances. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Bed and Board (1970-French) C-97m. ½ D: François Truffaut. Jean-Pierre Léaud, Claude Jade, Hiroko Berghauer, Daniel Ceccaldi, Claire Duhamel. Chapter Four of the Antoine Doinel story. Here, Doinel (Léaud) is married to Christine (Jade); he is confused, immature, becomes a father, and has an affair with Berghauer. Lovingly directed by Truffaut; Jacques Tati has an amusing cameo as M. Hulot. Followed by LOVE ON THE RUN. [PG] ▼

Bed and Breakfast (1992) C-98m. ½ D: Robert Ellis Miller. Roger Moore, Talia Shire, Colleen Dewhurst, Nina Siemaszko, Ford Rainey, Stephen Root, Jamie Walters, Victor Slezak. A debonair stranger makes his impact on a houseful of women, who span several generations. First-rate performances, and a gorgeous setting on the Maine coast, make this modest film worth seeing, especially on the small screen; filmed in 1989. [PG-13] ▼

Bedazzled (1967-British) C-107m.  D: Stanley Donen. Peter Cook, Dudley Moore, Eleanor Bron, Raquel Welch, Alba, Barry Humphries. Cult film updating Faust legend is as sacrilegious as THE SINGING NUN and usually funnier. The laughs aren't always consistent, but the Cook-Moore team is terrific and Donen's direction stylish. And remember the magic words: "Julie Andrews!" Remade in 2000. Panavision. ▼

Bedazzled (2000) C-93m. ½ D: Harold Ramis. Brendan Fraser, Elizabeth Hurley, Frances O'Connor, Miriam Shor, Orlando Jones, Paul Adelstein, Toby Huss, Gabriele Casseus, Brian Doyle-Murray. Sweet-natured nerd sells his soul to a sexy Devil (Hurley) in exchange for seven wishes, but she manages to put a hitch into all of his dreams-come-true. All he really wants is for the coworker he worships from afar to fall in love with him. Funny in spots, with Fraser and Hurley hitting just the right note, but remake of 1967 film never catches fire. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Bedevilled (1955) C-85m.  D: Mitchell Leisen. Anne Baxter, Steve Forrest, Simone Renant, Victor Francen. Bizarre yarn of chanteuse Baxter fleeing from murder scene, protected by Forrest, who's studying for priesthood; filmed in Paris. CinemaScope.

Bedford Incident, The (1965) 102m.  D: James B. Harris. Richard Widmark, Sidney Poitier, James MacArthur, Martin Balsam, Wally Cox, Eric Portman, Donald Sutherland. Strong Cold War story of authoritarian Navy captain (Widmark) scouting Russian subs near Greenland and the mental conflicts that develop on his ship. Poitier is reporter too good to be true, Balsam a sympathetic doctor disliked by Widmark. Cast excels in intriguing battle of wits. ▼

longer) songs, clearer plot, and more of a part for McDowall. [G]▼●●

Bedlam (1946) 79m.  D: Mark Robson. Boris Karloff, Anna Lee, Ian Wolfe, Richard Fraser, Billy House, Jason Robards, Sr. Atmospheric chiller of courageous Lee trying to expose shameful conditions at notorious 18th-century London insane asylum run by corrupt head Karloff. Producer Val Lewton also co-scripted under pseudonym Carlos Keith. Robert Clarke appears unbilled. ▼●●

Bed of Roses (1996) C-87m.  D: Michael Goldenberg. Christian Slater, Mary Stuart Masterson, Pamela Segall, Josh Brolin, Ally Walker, Debra Monk. Business exec Masterson is courted by florist Slater (a young widower), but her past troubled relationships prevent her from committing to him. Attempt at a serious romantic film is emotionally off the mark, though the performers try their best. [PG]▼●●

Bedrooms & Hallways (1999-British) C-95m.  D: Rose Troche. Kevin McKidd, Hugo Weaving, James Purefoy, Tom Hollander, Christopher Fulford, Julie Graham, Paul Higgins, Jennifer Ehle, Simon Callow. Ambitious but flat sex comedy about two gay roommates. One has a hot-and-heavy affair in which the emphasis is on sex; the other has a budding romance with a man who has just busted up with his longtime girlfriend. Good when it explores relationships, less successful in its silly parodies of men's groups and Jane Austen novels. ▼●

Bedroom Window, The (1987) C-112m.  D: Curtis Hanson. Steve Guttenberg, Elizabeth McGovern, Isabelle Huppert, Paul Shenar, Carl Lumbly, Wallace Shawn, Frederick Coffin, Brad Greenquist. An innocent man offers to alibi for his boss' sexy wife, who witnessed an assault from his bedroom window after they made love. This apparently simple gesture snowballs into a web of crime and duplicity, in this attractive, sexy, and suspenseful Hitchcock homage. Guttenberg is no Cary Grant (or James Stewart), but the film is consistently enjoyable—if not always absolutely believable. J-D-C Scope. [R]▼●●

Bed Sitting Room, The (1969-British) C-91m. ½ D: Richard Lester. Rita Tushingham, Ralph Richardson, Peter Cook, Dudley Moore, Harry Secombe, Arthur Lowe, Roy Kinnear, Spike Milligan, Michael Hordern, Mona Washbourne. Moderately successful black-comedy look at distorted, devastated England three years after nuclear war. A few funny bits, great cast, but film doesn't click. Marty Feldman makes his film debut in a brief bit.

Bedtime for Bonzo (1951) 83m. ½ D: Frederick de Cordova. Ronald Reagan, Diana Lynn, Walter Slezak, Jesse White, Lucille Barkley. Often cited as the pinnacle of absurdity in Reagan's career, but in fact it's a cute, harmless little comedy about a professor who treats a chimp as his child for a heredity experiment. Reagan did not appear in the sequel, BONZO GOES TO COLLEGE. ▼●

Bedtime Stories (2008) C-99m.  D: Adam Shankman. Adam Sandler, Keri Russell, Guy Pearce, Courteney Cox, Russell Brand, Richard Griffiths, Jonathan Pryce, Carmen Electra, Lucy Lawless, Teresa Palmer, Aisha Tyler. Story of an underdog whose father's homespun motel has been transformed into a super-luxury hotel where he now works as a handyman. Then he discovers that telling bedtime tales to his niece and nephew has the potential to change his fortunes. Disney film had real potential, starting out as a fable about the power of storytelling . . . but it's been vulgarized (and needlessly cluttered) by Sandler and his writing cohorts. Young kids may still enjoy it but thoughtful parents will steer them elsewhere. Rob Schneider appears unbilled. Super 35. [PG]●

Bedtime Story (1941) 85m.  D: Alexander Hall. Fredric March, Loretta Young, Robert Benchley, Allyn Joslyn, Eve Arden. Fine cast in sparkling comedy of playwright March trying to stop wife Young from retiring so she can star in his next play.

Bedtime Story (1964) C-99m. ½ D: Ralph Levy. Marlon Brando, David Niven, Shirley Jones, Dody Goodman, Marie Windsor. Offbeat casting of stars provides chief interest in lackluster comedy of con men Brando and Niven competing for Jones' affection. Remade as DIRTY ROTTEN SCOUNDRELS. ▼

Bee Movie (2007) C-90m.  D: Steve Hickner, Simon J. Smith. Voices of Jerry Seinfeld, Renée Zellweger, Matthew Broderick, Patrick Warburton, John Goodman, Chris Rock, Kathy Bates, Barry Levinson, Ray Liotta, Sting, Oprah Winfrey, Larry Miller, Megan Mullally, Rip Torn, Michael Richards. It's the ABCs of being a bee, as typified by the experiences of recent college grad Barry B. Benson (Seinfeld), who's disinclined to enter the trade of every family member and friend: keeping those honey coffers going. Brisk animation and a sardonically Seinfeld-ish tone keep this fun, though the relationship between the bee-boy protagonist and a female human he befriends (Zellweger) never really catches fire. More successful around the edges than down the middle, this gleans substantial chortles from its ragging of real-life celebrities. [PG]●

Been Down So Long It Looks Like Up to Me (1971) C-90m. *½ D: Jeffrey Young, Barry Primus, Linda DeCoff, David Brown, Susan Tyrrell, Philip Shafer, Bruce Davison, Raul Julia. Bland, dated film version of Richard Fariña's novel about hip 1960s type trying to endure life on a 1958 campus. [R]

D: Heather Lyn MacDonald. Easy-to-take documentary about the Silver Belles, a troupe of indomitable tap-dancing octogenarians (Marion Coles, Elaine Ellis, Cleo Hayes, Fay Ray, Beryte Lou Wood) formed in the 1980s long after their prime showgirl days working at the Cotton Club and the Apollo. The movie's point, though, is to question how "prime" is defined; every woman here looks (and acts) about two decades younger than her given age. Racially inspired hardships are somewhat skimmed over, though it's intriguing to learn how just a few of these women shut down the Apollo during a strike for better wages. D

Beer (1985) C-82m. ½ D: Patrick Kelly, Loretta Swit, Rip Torn, Kenneth Mars, David Alan Grier, William Russ, Saul Stein, Dick Shawn. Unimaginative, ultimately tasteless spoof of Madison Avenue hype, with Swit as an ad-agency executive who devises a highly successful commercial campaign to sell beer. Not so far from reality—and not terribly funny. [R] ▼

Beerfest (2006) C-110m. * D: Jay Chandrasekhar, Jay Chandrasekhar, Steve Lemme, Paul Soter, Erik Stolhanske, Kevin Heffernan, Jürgen Prochnow, M. C. Gainey, Cloris Leachman, Mo'Nique, Eric Christian Olsen. Two brothers travel to Munich for Oktoberfest and discover an underground "fight club" devoted to ancient beer-drinking games and other sports. They vow to recruit friends, train, and return to compete the next year. Gross-out concoction from the Broken Lizard comedy troupe goes for the most obvious, juvenile college humor, hitting an occasional bull's-eye, especially when Leachman starts in with beer and sausage jokes. Waaaaaay over the top, but harmless enough for the undemanding, possibly inebriated dudes likely to watch it. Donald Sutherland appears unbilled. Unrated version runs 112m. Super 35. [R] D*

Beer League (2006) C-87m. ½ D: Frank Sebastiano, Artie Lange, Ralph Macchio, Anthony De Sando, Cara Buono, Jimmy Palumbo, Joe Lo Truglio, Jerry Minor, Seymour Cassel, Michael Deeg, Laurie Metcalf. Motley group of thirtysomething losers on a slow-pitch New Jersey softball team have to shape up and beat their obnoxious rivals or get booted out of the league, but they spend most of their time boozing, brawling, and carousing. You don't have to be from Jersey to enjoy this affably low-brow, gleefully politically incorrect update of THE BAD NEWS BEARS, although downing a six-pack will certainly help. Tina Fey makes a blink-and-you'll-miss-it cameo. Cowritten by Lange. Aka ARTIE LANGE'S BEER LEAGUE. [R] D

Bees, The (1978) C-83m. ½ D: Alfredo Zacharias, John Saxon, Angel Tompkins, John Carradine, Claudio Brook, Alicia Encinas. After THE SWARM, if you sincerely want to see this low-budget disaster

Bee Season (2005) C-104m. ½ D: Scott McGehee, David Siegel. Richard Gere, Juliette Binoche, Flora Cross, Max Minghella, Kate Bosworth. Ambitious but convoluted drama about the power of words, the meaning of religion, and competition. Sixth-grader Cross almost mystically becomes a champion speller, and her success has a profound impact on the other members of her family. The filmmakers cleverly visualize the words and letters in the girl's mind, but Naomi Foner Gyllenhaal's script (adapted from Myla Goldberg's best-selling novel) lacks cohesion. Panavision. [PG-13] D

Beethoven (1992) C-87m. ½ D: Brian Levant. Charles Grodin, Bonnie Hunt, Dean Jones, Oliver Platt, Stanley Tucci, Nicholle Tom, Christopher Castile, Sarah Rose Karr, David Duchovny, Patricia Heaton, Laurel Cronin, and Chris. Innocuous family comedy about an uptight Dad (Grodin) whose family talks him into keeping a runaway puppy that grows into a big, slobbering St. Bernard. It's fun to watch all-American, clean-cut Jones playing a slimy, raspy-voiced villain. Followed by BEETHOVEN'S 2ND and four DVD sequels. [PG] ▼ D

Beetle Juice (1988) C-92m.  D: Tim Burton. Michael Keaton, Alec Baldwin, Geena Davis, Jeffrey Jones, Catherine O'Hara, Winona Ryder, Sylvia Sidney, Robert Goulet, Glenn Shadix, Dick Cavett, Annie McEnroe. Newly deceased couple in need of help coping with the afterlife, and obnoxious family who's moved into their home, get it in the form of renegade spirit Betelgeuse (Keaton, who pulls out all the stops). Fantastic special effects make this a sort of live-action cartoon. Added treat: Sylvia Sidney as harried case worker in the hereafter. Great fun, and surprisingly good-natured. Music by Danny Elfman, with a strong assist from Harry Belafonte. Oscar winner for makeup. Followed by an animated TV series. [PG] ▼ D*

Before and After (1996) C-107m.  D: Barbet Schroeder. Meryl Streep, Liam Neeson, Edward Furlong, Alfred Molina, Julia Weldon, Daniel von Bargen, John Heard, Ann Magnuson, Larry Pine, Wesley Addy. Sober tale of a New England family torn apart—and ostracized—when the son is accused of murdering a teenage girl and then disappears. The father is willing to cover the boy's tracks, while mother and daughter want to tell the truth, in spite of the consequences. Absorbing and believable story (written by Ted Tally). Look for Paul Giamatti as a courtroom spectator. [PG-13] ▼●●

Before I Hang (1940) 71m. ½ D: Nick Grinde. Boris Karloff, Evelyn Keyes, Bruce Bennett, Pedro de Cordoba, Edward Van Sloan. Contrived but intriguing tale of prison scientist Karloff having youth serum backfire on him, driving him mad at odd moments. ▼●●

Before Night Falls (2000) C-125m.  D: Julian Schnabel. Javier Bardem, Olivier Martinez, Andrea Di Stefano, Sean Penn, Johnny Depp, Michael Wincott, Hector Babenco, Jerzy Skolimowski. Often compelling look at the life of Cuban writer Reinaldo Arenas, spanning several decades as he discovers his homosexuality, blossoms as a writer, then finds that in Castro's Cuba he's persecuted on both counts. Told in episodic fashion, the film has many great scenes, but goes on a bit too long. Bardem's performance is exceptional. Penn appears briefly as a Cuban peasant, Depp in two successive scenes as a transvestite prisoner and a warden. [R] ▼●●

Before Sunrise (1995) C-101m. ½ D: Richard Linklater. Ethan Hawke, Julie Delpy. Young American strikes up a conversation with a fellow train passenger and persuades her to get off in Vienna and share his last night in Europe; they do, in fact, spend the entire night talking and falling in love. A somewhat daring idea for the '90s, buoyed by two engaging performers; it is (unavoidably) awfully talky, but it's also undeniably romantic. Followed by a sequel. [R] ▼●●

Before Sunset (2004) C-80m. ½ D: Richard Linklater. Ethan Hawke, Julie Delpy. Disarming follow-up to BEFORE SUNRISE has the two characters meeting up nine years later as he passes through Paris on a book tour. They catch up in the short time he has before having to head for the airport, walking through various neighborhoods, gradually letting down their guards about their feelings toward one another. A beguiling look at chances lost and taken, the lasting effect of impulsive decisions, and how one meaningful encounter can resonate for years to come. Script is credited to the stars and director. [R] ▼●●

drama, told in time-splintered structure, is well acted and well staged by Lumet, but the utter unpleasantness of the story and the characters becomes repetitious and wearying. [R] ●

Before the Rain (1994-Macedonian-British-French) C-114m.  D: Milcho Manchevski. Katrin Cartlidge, Rade Serbedzija, Gregoire Colin, Labina Mitevska. Fascinating look at several intertwining lives in the newly independent, and strife-torn, Republic of Macedonia (formerly Yugoslavia), where rural poverty and violent rage are prevalent. Story links a young monk, a globetrotting photojournalist, and a stylish young woman in London who is at a crossroads in her personal life. Film's structure resembles PULP FICTION, which debuted almost simultaneously. A strong statement that unfolds slowly; stick with this one. Technovision. ▼●

Before the Rains (2008-Indian-British-U.S.) C-98m.  D: Santosh Sivan. Linus Roache, Jennifer Ehle, Rahul Bose, Nandita Das, Leo Benedict. Set in 1930s India at a time of emerging nationalism, ambitious young Indian man must choose between the past and his own future when he discovers an illicit affair is taking place between his English spice-baron boss and a village woman. First English-language film for Indian director Sivan captures the bustling soul of a community in transition, even if it surrenders to some soapy plotting sensibilities along the way. Based on Red Roofs, a segment in the 2001 film YELLOW ASPHALT: THREE DESERT STORIES. [PG-13] ●

Before the Revolution (1964-Italian) 115m.  D: Bernardo Bertolucci. Adriana Asti, Francisco Barilli, Alain Midgett, Morando Morandini, Domenico Alpi. Bertolucci's second feature (which he wrote when he was 22 years old) dramatizes the dilemma of young, middle-class Barilli. Will he embrace a life of social and political radicalism, or submit to the bourgeois status quo? Revealing 1960s time capsule, loaded with topical ideas, references, and fervor. ▼

Before Winter Comes (1969-British) C-102m. ½ D: J. Lee Thompson. David Niven, Topol, Anna Karina, John Hurt, Anthony Quayle, Ori Levy. Topol is interpreter for British officer Niven in displaced persons' camp following WW2. Uneven comedy-drama with many touching moments, capturing plight of refugees. Topol's warmth shines in winning performance. [MPG]

Beggar's Opera, The (1953-British) C-94m.  D: Peter Brook. Laurence Olivier, Stanley Holloway, Dorothy Tutin, Daphne Anderson, Mary Clare, Hugh Griffith, Laurence Naismith. Celebrated stage director Brook made his film debut with this vivid, energetic version of John Gay's

opera. Coproducer and star Olivier is somewhat miscast but more than makes up for it with his sly portrayal of a jailed highwayman who exaggerates his exploits into a musical revue. B

Beginning of the End (1957) 73m. *½ D: Bert I. Gordon. Peggie Castle, Peter Graves, Morris Ankrum, Thomas Browne Henry. Awful sci-fi outing about giant grasshoppers (thanks to radiation) on the rampage; at the climax, they invade Chicago—but none too convincingly. B

Beginning or the End, The (1947) 112m.  D: Norman Taugog. Brian Donlevy, Robert Walker, Beverly Tyler, Audrey Totter, Hume Cronyn. Engrossing account of atomic bomb development, depicting both human and spectacular aspects.

Beguiled, The (1971) C-109m.  D: Don Siegel. Clint Eastwood, Geraldine Page, Elizabeth Hartman, Jo Ann Harris, Darleen Carr, Pamelyn Ferdin. Offbeat, methodically paced story set in Civil War South. Wounded Eastwood brought to girls' school to recuperate; he becomes catalyst for flurry of jealousy and hatred. Unusual Eastwood fare, but for patient viewers, a rich, rewarding film. [R] B

Behave Yourself! (1951) 81m.  D: George Beck. Farley Granger, Shelley Winters, William Demarest, Francis L. Sullivan, Margalo Gillmore, Lon Chaney, Jr., Sheldon Leonard, Marvin Kaplan, Glenn Anders, Allen Jenkins, Elisha Cook, Jr., Hans Conried. Loud, limp black comedy with Granger and Winters miscast as young marrieds who take in a dog trained to act as a link between two gangs in a smuggling scheme. Good supporting cast is wasted. The title song was cowritten by Buddy Ebsen! B

Behind Enemy Lines (1986) SEE: P.O.W. The Escape

Behind Enemy Lines (2001) C-106m. ½ D: John Moore. Owen Wilson, Gene Hackman, Gabriel Macht, Charles Malik Whitfield, Joaquim de Almeida, David Keith, Olek Krupa, Vladimir Mashkov. A cocky naval airman is shot down behind enemy lines in Bosnia and his commanding officer is unable to rescue him because of political constraints. Action yarn delivers a lot of excitement, but a hyperactive camera may produce motion sickness in some viewers. The corny finale seems to have come from a lesser-grade Hollywood movie of decades past. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. Super 35. [PG-13] B

Behind Locked Doors (1948) 62m. ½ D: Oscar (Budd) Boetticher. Richard Carlson, Lucille Bremer, Douglas Fowley, Thomas Browne Henry, Dickie Moore, Tor Johnson. Pretty good grade-B film noir about a private eye who checks into a sanitarium on a tip that a wanted judge is holed up there. Johnson is put to good use as a former prizefighter kept in solitary confinement. Aka THE HUMAN GORILLA. B

Behind the Iron Curtain SEE: Iron Curtain, The

Behind the Lines SEE: Regeneration (1997-British-Canadian)

Behind the Sun (2001-Brazilian-French-Swiss) C-93m.  D: Walter Salles. José Dumont, Rodrigo Santoro, Rita Assemany, Luiz Carlos Vasconcelos, Flavia Marco Antonio, Ravi Ramos Lacerda. Lyrical, quietly absorbing fable set in rural Brazil in 1910 about two feuding families whose patriarchs dispatch their sons to kill each other's offspring in the name of honor. The unfolding events are seen through the eyes of a 10-year-old (Lacerda) who attempts to free himself and his brother from this ritual of violence. Extremely effective. Super 35. [PG-13] B

Behold a Pale Horse (1964) 118m. ½ D: Fred Zinnemann. Gregory Peck, Anthony Quinn, Omar Sharif, Mildred Dunoock, Christian Marquand, Raymond Pellegrin. Peck and Quinn wage an ideological battle in post-Spanish Civil War story of politics and violence that loses focus, becoming confused and talky. Valiant try by all. B

Beijing Bicycle (2001-Taiwanese-Chinese) C-113m.  D: Wang Xiaoshuai. Cui Lin, Li Bin, Zhou Xun, Gao Yuanyuan, Li Shuang, Zhao Yiwei, Pang Yan. Muddled account of a shy, naïve country boy (Lin), newly arrived in Beijing, who finds a job as a bicycle messenger; then, predictably, his bike is stolen. Potentially compelling allegory of the dreams and hopes of the young is done in by dullness and endless repetition. Obviously inspired by De Sica's BICYCLE THIEVES. [PG-13] B

Being, The (1983) C-79m. *½ D: Jackie Kong. Martin Landau, Jose Ferrer, Dorothy Malone, Ruth Buzzi, Marianne Gordon Rogers, Murray Langston, Kinky Friedman, Johnny Dark. Creature spawned by nuclear waste terrorizes Idaho community. Humor is film's saving grace, but it isn't enough to overcome grade-Z script and production. Producer William Osco (Kong's then-husband) also costars under the name Rexx Coltrane. Filmed in 1980; briefly shown as EASTER SUNDAY. [R] B

Being Human (1994-British-U.S.) C-122m. ½ D: Bill Forsyth. Robin Williams, John Turturro, Anna Galiena, Vincent D'Onofrio, Hector Elizondo, Lorraine Bracco, Lindsay Crouse, Grace Mahlaba, Dave Jones, Jonathan Hyde, Lizzy McInerny, William H. Macy; narrated by Theresa Russell. Queer duck of a movie with Williams as five different men—through five periods of time (spanning 10,000 years)—who are cosmically related. All of them are struggling and striving, without much success, to find happiness. If you can get past the off-putting narration, it's intermittently intriguing, a definite original from writer-director Forsyth. Williams makes this journey worthwhile. [PG-13]▼●

Being John Malkovich (1999) C-112m. ½ D: Spike Jonze. John Cusack, John Malkovich, Cameron Diaz, Catherine Keener, Orson Bean, Mary Kay Place, Charlie Sheen. Remarkable, audaciously original black comedy/fantasy about an iconoclastic puppeteer (Cusack) who discovers a portal into the mind of actor John Malkovich, and decides to exploit its possibilities. A far-out premise (by writer Charlie Kaufman) is ingeniously developed into a full-blown story and acted with pizzazz. Malkovich is a marvel in an especially sly, nuanced performance. Other stars make gag cameos. Feature debut for commercial and music video director Jonze. [R]▼●●

Being Julia (2004-Hungarian-Canadian-British) C-104m. ½ D: István Szabó. Annette Bening, Jeremy Irons, Bruce Greenwood, Miriam Margolyes, Juliet Stevenson, Shaun Evans, Lucy Punch, Maury Chaykin, Sheila McCarthy, Michael Gambon, Leigh Lawson, Rosemary Harris, Rita Tushingham, Thomas Sturridge. Married, middle-aged stage star in 1930s London is rejuvenated by a fling with a younger man but has other personal and professional obstacles to overcome. Bening is radiant and shines as her character blossoms, but the story sags until a deliciously funny finale. Budapest stands in for period London. Ronald Harwood adapted W. Somerset Maugham's novel Theatre. [R]▼●

Being There (1979) C-130m. ½ D: Hal Ashby. Peter Sellers, Shirley MacLaine, Melvyn Douglas, Jack Warden, Richard Dysart, Richard Basehart, James Noble, David Clennon, Ruth Attaway, David Morrissey. A child-like man (Sellers) chances to meet important, powerful people who interpret his bewildered silence as brilliance. Low-keyed black humor, full of savagely witty comments on American life in the television age, but fatally overlong. Adapted by Jerzy Kosinski from his own story. Douglas won Oscar as political kingmaker. [PG]▼●●

Be Kind Rewind (2008) C-101m.  D: Michel Gondry. Jack Black, Mos Def, Danny Glover, Mia Farrow, Melonie Diaz, Irv Gooch, Marcus Carl Franklin, Sigourney Weaver. Odd but endearing film set in Passaic, N.J., where Glover's dilapidated video-rental store—supposedly the birthplace of Fats Waller—is an anachronism, outside and in. When he leaves Def in charge, nutty pal Black (who's become magnetized) accidentally erases all the tapes in the store, forcing the duo to reinvent the missing films (GHOSTBUSTERS; 2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY; THE LION KING) with their old-fashioned video camera and the help of neighborhood allies. An eccentric ode to innocence, creativity, and community. Written by the director. J-D-C Scope. [PG-13]●

Bela Lugosi Meets a Brooklyn Gorilla (1952) 74m. BOMB D: William Beaudine. Bela Lugosi, Duke Mitchell, Sammy Petrillo, Charlita, Muriel Landers, Ramona the Chimp. One of the all-time greats. Mitchell and Petrillo (the very poor man's Martin and Lewis) are stranded on a jungle island, where Lugosi is conducting strange experiments. Proceed at your own risk. Aka THE BOYS FROM BROOKLYN. ▼●

Believe in Me (1971) C-90m.  D: Stuart Hagmann. Michael Sarrazin, Jacqueline Bisset, Jon Cypher, Allen Garfield, Kurt Doderhoff. Still another '70s film about drug addiction, and none too good; clean-cut career girl Bisset becomes addicted to speed in the East Village. Performers do their best. [R]

Believe in Me (2007) C-108m.  D: Robert Collector. Jeffrey Donovan, Samantha Mathis, Bruce Dern, Bob Gunton, Heather Matarazzo, Alicia Lagano, Chris Ellis. Donovan moves to a small Oklahoma town in 1964 to take a coaching job, but when he arrives he learns he's been assigned to a girls' basketball team. What's more, the girls have no self-esteem and little support from the community. Sincere heartland story rises above its familiar sports-underdog formula. Donovan and Mathis (as his supportive wife) are first-rate. Based on the real-life experiences of Jim Keith. Written by the director. HD Widescreen. [PG]●

Believer, The (2002) C-98m.  D: Henry Bean. Ryan Gosling, Summer Phoenix, Billy Zane, Theresa Russell, Glenn Fitzgerald, Ronald Guttman, Henry Bean. Feroocious examination of a yeshiva-educated young man in N.Y.C. who chooses to become a neo-Nazi skinhead. Gosling gives an award-caliber performance as a Jew (loosely based on fact) whose reasoning is questionable but whose passion is real. For mature viewers only. Veteran screenwriter Bean's directorial debut. Released overseas in 2001; U.S. debut on cable TV in 2002. [R]▼●

Believers, The (1987) C-114m. ½ D: John Schlesinger. Martin Sheen, Helen Shaver, Harley Cross, Robert Loggia, Elizabeth Wilson, Lee Richardson, Harris Yulin, Richard Masur, Carla Pinza, Jimmy Smits. Gripping, genuinely frightening story of widower and son who move to N.Y.C. and become involved (in more ways than one) with cultish religion of Santeria, which believes in the sacrifice of children. Well-crafted film knows how to manipulate its audience but shows no mercy, either: a boy sees his mother electrocuted in the very first scene! [R]▼●●

Belizaire the Cajun (1986) C-100m. ½ D: Glen Pitre. Armand Assante, Gail

Youngs, Michael Schoeffling, Stephen McHattie, Will Patton, Nancy Barrett. Assante is well cast as a charismatic herbal dealer in love with the Cajun wife of a wealthy Anglo in this uneven and somewhat predictable drama about Anglo prejudice and violence against Cajuns in 19th-century Louisiana. Made with obvious enthusiasm on a low budget. Robert Duvall, credited as creative consultant, appears briefly as a preacher. [PG]▼

Bella (2007-U.S.-Mexican) C-92m.  D: Alejandro G. Monteverde. Eduardo Verástegui, Tammy Blanchard, Manny Perez, Ali Landry, Angélica Aragón, Jaime Tirelli, Ramon Rodriguez. Sweet, disarmingly simple heart-tugger about a once-promising soccer player (Verástegui), now a chef at a N.Y.C. restaurant, who comes to the emotional rescue of a pregnant waitress (Blanchard) when she's fired by his brother. First-time director (and co-writer) Monteverde shows admirable restraint in telling this story; a big-hearted film. [PG-13]■

Bell' Antonio (1960-Italian-French) 101m. ½ D: Mauro Bolognini. Marcello Mastroianni, Claudia Cardinale, Pierre Brasseur, Rina Morelli. OK seriocomic of what happens when Mastroianni is unable to consummate his marriage to Cardinale. Coscripted by Pier Paolo Pasolini. Video title: IL BELL' ANTONIO.▼

Bell Book and Candle (1958) C-103m. ½ D: Richard Quine. James Stewart, Kim Novak, Jack Lemmon, Janice Rule, Ernie Kovacs, Hermione Gingold, Elsa Lanchester. John Van Druten play becomes so-so vehicle to showcase Novak as fetching witch who charms about-to-be-married Manhattan publisher Stewart. Kovacs and Gingold supply their brands of humor.▼●●

Bellboy, The (1960) 72m.  D: Jerry Lewis. Jerry Lewis, Alex Gerry, Bob Clayton, Sonny Sands. Amusing series of blackouts with Jerry as a bellboy at Fontainebleau in Miami Beach. No plot but a lot of funny gags. Milton Berle and Walter Winchell have guest appearances. Lewis's directorial debut.▼●●

Belle de Jour (1967-French-Italian) C-100m.  D: Luis Buñuel. Catherine Deneuve, Jean Sorel, Michel Piccoli, Genevieve Page, Francisco Rabal, Pierre Clementi, George Marchal, Françoise Fabian. Buñuel's wry and disturbing tale of a virginal newlywed who works the day shift in a high-class Parisian brothel, unbeknownst to her patient husband. Buñuel's straight-faced treatment of shocking subject matter belies the sharp wit of his script (cowritten with Jean-Claude Carrière). Deneuve's finest, most enigmatic performance. Almost 40 years later, Manoel de Oliveira directed a sequel, BELLE TOUJOURS. [R]▼●●

Belle Epoque (1992-Spanish) C-108m.  D: Fernando Trueba. Fernando Fernan

Gomez, Jorge Sanz, Maribel Verdu, Ariadna Gil, Miriam Diaz-Aroca, Penelope Cruz, Mary Carmen Ramirez, Michel Galabru, Gabino Diego. Set in 1931, a time of promise and optimism in pre-Franco Spain, this delightfully earthy, cheerful comedy tells of a hearty young army deserter (Sanz) who's befriended by an elderly recluse, and enchanted by his four beautiful daughters. A multi-award winner in Spain; won Best Foreign Film Oscar. Panavision.▼●●

Belle of New York, The (1952) C-82m. ½ D: Charles Walters. Fred Astaire, Vera-Ellen, Marjorie Main, Keenan Wynn, Alice Pearce. Uninspired musical set in Gay 90s N.Y.C. with Astaire a rich playboy chasing mission worker Vera-Ellen; Pearce adds comic touches.▼●●

Belle of the Nineties (1934) 73m.  D: Leo McCarey. Mae West, Roger Pryor, Johnny Mack Brown, Warren Hymer, Duke Ellington Orchestra. Mae struts, sings "My Old Flame," and heats up a gallery of admirers in amusing example of Western humor.▼●●

Belle of the Yukon (1944) C-84m. ½ D: William Seiter. Randolph Scott, Gypsy Rose Lee, Bob Burns, Dinah Shore, Charles Winninger, William Marshall, Guinn "Big Boy" Williams, Robert Armstrong, Florence Bates. Minor musical of saloon-owner Scott going straight at insistence of his girl (Lee); fast-moving, forgettable. Technicolor is film's best feature.▼

Belles of St. Trinians, The (1954-British) 90m. ½ D: Frank Launder. Alastair Sim, Joyce Grenfell, George Cole, Hermione Baddeley, Beryl Reid. Hilarious filmization of Ronald Searle's cartoons about completely crazy school for girls, run by dotty headmistress whose brother, a bookie, wants to use school to his advantage. Sim plays dual role in delightful madcap farce which spawned several sequels.▼

Belles on Their Toes (1952) C-89m.  D: Henry Levin. Myrna Loy, Jeanne Crain, Debra Paget, Jeffrey Hunter, Edward Arnold, Hoagy Carmichael, Barbara Bates, Robert Arthur, Verna Felton, Martin Milner. Pleasing follow-up to CHEAPER BY THE DOZEN, with a potent feminist point of view. Here, widowed engineer Loy must struggle to support (as well as raise) her maturing brood. 20th Century-Fox backlot seen at its best in recapturing early 1900s America. Clifton Webb makes a brief appearance at the finale. Scripted by Henry and Phoebe Ephron.■

Belle Starr (1941) C-87m. ½ D: Irving Cummings. Randolph Scott, Gene Tierney, Dana Andrews, John Sheppard (Shepperd Strudwick), Elizabeth Patterson. Sophisticated Tierney miscast as notorious female outlaw in slowly paced account of her criminal career. Remade for TV in 1980 with Elizabeth Montgomery.

Belle Toujours (2006-Portuguese-French) C-68m.  D: Manoel de Oliveira. Michel Piccoli, Bulle Ogier, Ricardo Trepa, Leonor Baldaque, Júlia Buisel. In this short, sweet follow-up to BELLE DE JOUR, almost four decades have passed and Henri Husson (Piccoli) spies Séverine (Ogier, replacing Catherine Deneuve) in an auditorium during a concert. He follows her, with the intention of revealing a secret. De Oliveira, who also scripted, was 97 years old when he made this thoughtful meditation on aging and the diminishing of erotic desire as an homage to Luis Buñuel and Jean-Claude Carrière, the original's creators. (D)

Bell for Adano, A (1945) 103m. ½ D: Henry King. Gene Tierney, John Hodiak, William Bendix, Glenn Langan, Richard Conte, Stanley Prager, Henry (Harry) Morgan, Hugo Haas, Fortunio Bonanova, Henry Armetta, Luis Alberni, Eduardo Ciannelli, Grady Sutton. John Hersey's moving narrative of American WW2 occupation of small Italian village; Hodiak is sincere commander, Bendix his aide, blonde Tierney the local girl he is attracted to. Scripted by Lamar Trotti (who also coproduced) and Norman Reilly Raine.

Bellissima (1951-Italian) 112m.  D: Luchino Visconti. Anna Magnani, Walter Chiari, Tina Apicella, Gastone Renzelli, Alessandro Blasetti. Obvious drama about pushy, patronizing stage mother Magnani, obsessed to the point of hysteria with getting her cute, obedient little daughter into the movies. Loud when it should be tender, and ultimately tiresome. (V)

Bell Jar, The (1979) C-107m. ½ D: Larry Peerce. Marilyn Hassett, Julie Harris, Anne Jackson, Barbara Barrie, Robert Klein, Donna Mitchell, Jameson Parker, Thao Penghlis. Sylvia Plath's virtually unfilmable novel about the crack-up of an overachiever in the '50s has a few powerful scenes and a good supporting performance by Barrie, but doesn't really come off. Hassett is well cast but fails to deliver the truly bravura performance this film needs. [R] (V) (D)

Bellman & True (1988-British) C-112m. ½ D: Richard Loncraine. Bernard Hill, Kieran O'Brien, Richard Hope, Frances Tomelty, Derek Newark, John Kavanagh, Ken Bones. Meek computer programmer is drawn into an elaborate bank heist scheme, without ever realizing just how dangerous the people he's associating with can be. More a character study than a caper film, very low key and very drawn out, but with a number of rewarding moments and vignettes. Original running time 122m. [R] (V)

Bells SEE: Murder by Phone

Bells Are Ringing (1960) C-127m.  D: Vincente Minnelli. Judy Holliday, Dean Martin, Fred Clark, Eddie Foy, Jr., Jean Stapleton, Ruth Storey, Frank Gorshin, Gerry Mulligan. Sprightly adaptation of

Broadway musical hit by Betty Comden, Adolph Green, and Jule Styne, with Holliday recreating her starring role as an answering-service operator who falls in love with the man she's known only as a voice on the telephone. Songs include "Just in Time," "The Party's Over." Sadly, Holliday's last film. CinemaScope. (V) (D)

Bells of St. Mary's, The (1945) 126m.  D: Leo McCarey. Bing Crosby, Ingrid Bergman, Henry Travers, William Gargan, Ruth Donnelly, Joan Carroll, Martha Sleeper, Rhys Williams. Amiable if meandering sequel to GOING MY WAY, with Father O'Malley assigned to a run-down parish where Bergman is the Sister Superior. Bing introduces the song "Aren't You Glad You're You?" Also shown in computer-colored version. (V) (D)

Belly (1998) C-95m. *½ D: Hype Williams. Nas, DMX, Taral Hicks, Tionne "T-Boz" Watkins, Method Man. Hyper-stylized, pretentious "gangsta" melodrama about two lifelong buddies (rappers Nas and DMX) whose friendship is violently tested when they get involved in dealing Jamaican heroin. Features some of hip-hop's finest; too bad they can't act. Clichéd script doesn't help. Followed by a DVD sequel. [R] (V) (D)

Belly of an Architect, The (1987-British-Italian) C-108m. ½ D: Peter Greenaway. Brian Dennehy, Chloe Webb, Lambert Wilson, Sergio Fantoni, Stephania Cassini, Vanni Corbellini. Highly personalized chronicle of an architect (Dennehy) and his wife (Webb), who arrive in Rome where he's to curate an exhibition. It's about architecture and art, obsession and omens, immortality and mortality; crammed with symbolism, striking visuals and beautiful cinematography by Sacha Vierny. Some will find it pretentious; others will be fascinated. [R] (V) (D)

Beloved (1998) C-171m.  D: Jonathan Demme. Oprah Winfrey, Danny Glover, Kimberly Elise, Thandie Newton, Beah Richards, Lisa Gay Hamilton, Irma P. Hall, Albert Hall, Tracey Walter, Thelma Houston, Jason Robards, Wes Bentley. Excruciating (if well-crafted) adaptation of Toni Morrison's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel about a woman who's made her way from slavery to a free life in Ohio in 1873, and will do anything—anything—to protect her children. Filled with mysticism and mumbo jumbo, the story demands a leap of faith but doesn't reward the viewer in kind; its lead character isn't sympathetic enough to earn our empathy, even though we understand that she has suffered. Tough going, in more ways than one. Winfrey also produced with Demme. [R] (V) (D)

Beloved Enemy (1936) 86m.  D: H. C. Potter. Merle Oberon, Brian Aherne, Karen Morley, Henry Stephenson, Jerome Cowan, David Niven, Donald Crisp. High-class love story set during Irish Rebellion

Beloved Infidel (1959) C-123m.  D: Henry King. Gregory Peck, Deborah Kerr, Eddie Albert, Philip Ober, Herbert Rudley, John Sutton, Karin Booth, Ken Scott. Ill-conceived casting of Peck as F. Scott Fitzgerald makes romance with Hollywood columnist Sheila Graham (Kerr) in late 1930s more ludicrous than real; lush photography is only virtue of blunt look at cinema capital. CinemaScope.▼

Beloved Rogue, The (1927) 99m. ½ D: Alan Crosland. John Barrymore, Conrad Veidt, Marceline Day, Henry Victor, Lawson Butt, Mack Swain, Slim Sumnerville. Rousing, stunningly filmed story of poet-adventurer François Villon, his battle of wits with Louis XI (Veidt) and his swashbuckling romance with a damsel in distress. Not history, just an eye-filling, spirited, tongue-in-cheek costume tale with Barrymore in great form.▼●●

Below (2002) C-105m.  D: David Twohy. Matt Davis, Bruce Greenwood, Olivia Williams, Holt McCallany, Scott Foley, Zach Galifianakis, Jason Flemyng, Dexter Fletcher, Nick Chinlund. Stultifyingly routine WW2 submarine movie that tries to incorporate elements of a whodunit, horror movie, and conspiracy thriller. Greenwood has recently taken command of his sub and buys trouble when he picks up three survivors from a torpedoed British hospital ship. One of them (Williams) soon discovers that her temporary home is awash in secrets and unexplained events. Hard to believe this was cowritten (and coproduced) by cutting-edge filmmaker Darren Aronofsky. [R]▼●

Ben (1972) C-95m. *½ D: Phil Karlson. Lee Harcourt Montgomery, Joseph Campanella, Arthur O'Connell, Rosemary Murphy, Meredith Baxter. WILLARD sequel finds sick youth befriended by Ben the rat. Title song (sung by young Michael Jackson) summed up situation but spared gory visuals that make this film so bad. [PG]▼

Rob Schneider, David Spade, Jon Heder, Jon Lovitz, Craig Kilborn, Tim Meadows, Molly Sims, Nick Swardson, Norm MacDonald, Reggie Jackson, Bill Romanowski, Rachel Hunter; voice of James Earl Jones. Leaden comedy about nerds who try to reverse their grade school reputations by forming a three-man baseball team to compete against regular

Little Leaguers. Adam Sandler-produced mess starring his aging Saturday Night Live costars has all the flatulence gags you'd expect. Only honest line is saved for last as Lovitz looks into the camera and says, "This was a complete waste of time, wasn't it?" Duh, dudes! [PG-13]●

Bend It Like Beckham (2002-U.S.-British-German) C-115m.  D: Gurinder Chadha. Parminder Nagra, Keira Knightley, Jonathan Rhys Meyers, Juliet Stevenson, Anupam Kher, Archie Panjabi, Shaznay Lewis. Winning comedy set in West London about a soccer-obsessed Anglo-Indian girl whose traditional-minded parents forbid her to play. No surprises (or subtlety) here, but the story is told with verve and filled with warm, amusing characters. A crowd pleaser in the best sense. Title refers to British soccer star David Beckham. Second APES film still has great sets, makeup and ideas, but somebody let it get away as Apes battle human mutants who survived a nuclear blast many years before. Followed by ESCAPE FROM . . . Panavision. [G]▼●●

Beneath the 12-Mile Reef (1953) C-102m. ½ D: Robert Webb. Robert Wagner, Terry Moore, Gilbert Roland, J. Carrol Naish, Richard Boone, Peter Graves. Romeo-and-Juliet-ish tale of sponge-diving families on Key West, Florida. Scenery outshines all. One of the first CinemaScope films.▼●●

Benefit of the Doubt (1993) C-90m. *½ D: Jonathan Heap. Donald Sutherland, Amy Irving, Rider Strong, Christopher McDonald, Graham Greene, Theodore Bikel, Gisele Kovach. Flat thriller in which ex-con Sutherland, jailed for murdering his wife, disrupts the life of daughter Irving (whose testimony helped convict him two decades earlier). With a bit of imagination, this could have been first rate. [R]▼

Bengal Brigade (1954) C-87m.  D: Laslo Benedek. Rock Hudson, Arlene Dahl, Ursula Thiess, Torin Thatcher, Arnold Moss, Dan O'Herlihy, Michael Ansara. Low-level costumer with Hudson badly miscast as a British army officer working to thwart a Sepoy rebellion in India.

Ben-Hur (1925) 141m.  D: Fred Niblo. Ramon Novarro, Francis X. Bushman, May

McAvoy, Betty Bronson, Claire McDowell, Carmel Myers, Nigel de Brulier. Biggest of all silent spectacles holds up quite well against talkie remake, particularly the exciting chariot race and sea battle (both directed by B. Reeves Eason); Novarro (as Judah) and Bushman (as Messala) give the performances of their careers. Trouble-plagued film was years in production, at a then-record cost of $4,000,000, but final result, despite a slow second half, is worth it. Some sequences filmed in two-color Technicolor. Filmed once before (in one reel!) in 1907. ▼●●

Ben-Hur (1959) C-212m. ½ D: William Wyler. Charlton Heston, Jack Hawkins, Stephen Boyd, Haya Harareet, Hugh Griffith, Martha Scott, Sam Jaffe, Cathy O'Donnell, Finlay Currie. Epic-scale rendering of Gen. Lew Wallace's "tale of the Christ." Heston and Boyd are well matched as the proud Jew Ben-Hur and his boyhood friend Messala, whose blind allegiance to Rome turns him into a bitter enemy. Poky at times, but redeemed by the strength of its convictions. Some of the special effects show their age, though the galley-slave sequence, and climactic chariot race (directed by Andrew Marton and staged by the legendary stunt expert Yakima Canutt) are still great. Won 11 Oscars for Best Picture, Director, Actor (Heston), Supporting Actor (Griffith), Cinematography (Robert L. Surtees), Music Score (Miklos Rozsa), Art Direction, Film Editing, Sound, Costume Design, and Special Effects. MGM Camera 65. ▼●●

Benjamin (1968-French) C-100m. BOMB D: Michel Deville. Catherine Deneuve, Michele Morgan, Pierre Clementi, Michel Piccoli, Francine Berge, Anna Gael. Beautiful Deneuve, Morgan, cinematography; otherwise, boring tale of country boy Clementi's initiation into upper-class immorality. Also shown at 105m. and 108m. [X]

Benji (1974) C-86m. ½ D: Joe Camp. Peter Breck, Deborah Walley, Edgar Buchanan, Frances Bavier, Patsy Garrett. Instant classic of a remarkable dog (played by Higgins) who thwarts the kidnapers of two small children. Texas-made feature is ideal for family viewing. Sequel: FOR THE LOVE OF BENJI. [G] ▼●

Benji Off the Leash! (2004) C-99m. ½ D: Joe Camp. Nick Whitaker, Nate Bynum, Chris Kendrick, Randall Newsome, Duane Stephens, Christy Summerhays, Carleton Bluford, Neal Barth. Minor but enjoyable film for kids about a boy who has to hide his mixed-breed puppy from an abusive stepfather who sells pups for a living. Whitaker is appealing, the grown-ups are fine (with broad comedy relief from a pair of bumbling dogcatchers), but it's the dogs who steal the show. Footage during closing credits reveals how they got these canines to perform so well. [PG] ▼●

Benji the Hunted (1987) C-88m. *½ D: Joe Camp. Benji, Red Steagall, Frank Inn. Every dog has his day, but this talented canine deserves a better movie vehicle. Humans are incidental in this story of Benji surviving in the mountain wilds, and it looks as if they were incidental in making the film as well. Followed by BENJI OFF THE LEASH! [G] ▼●●

Benny & Joon (1993) C-98m.  D: Jeremiah Chechik. Johnny Depp, Mary Stuart Masterson, Aidan Quinn, Julianne Moore, Oliver Platt, CCH Pounder, Dan Hedaya, Joe Grifasi, William H. Macy, Eileen Ryan. Sweet-natured film about put-upon auto mechanic Quinn, who tries to look after his mentally ill sister. Almost accidentally he stumbles onto the perfect companion for her: a male misfit who sees himself as a reincarnation of Buster Keaton. Endearing performances put over this fable, which otherwise would strain all credibility. Depp is impressive as he recreates silent-comedy routines by Chaplin, Keaton, et al. [PG] ▼●●

Benny Goodman Story, The (1955) C-116m. ½ D: Valentine Davies. Steve Allen, Donna Reed, Herbert Anderson, Hy Averbach, Berta Gersten, Robert F. Simon, Sammy Davis, Sr., Gene Krupa, Lionel Hampton, Teddy Wilson. Typical Hollywood gloss about the bandleader's rise to fame and his romance with Reed; not 100% factual, with cliché dialogue to spare, but the music is great. Additional guest performers include Harry James, Ziggy Elman, and Martha Tilton. Goodman himself dubbed Allen's clarinet playing. ▼●

Benny's Video (1992-Austrian-Swiss) C-105m.  D: Michael Haneke. Arno Frisch, Angela Winkler, Ulrich Mühe, Ingrid Stassner. Teenaged Benny (Frisch) is addicted to video, shooting images with his camera and endlessly watching ultra-violent tapes. While his parents are away he brings a young girl into his home and dispassionately kills her with a butcher's gun he stole from a farm. Obvious but potent allegory about the way young people can become desensitized. Second in a trilogy by writer-director Haneke, following THE SEVENTH CONTINENT and followed by 71 FRAGMENTS OF A CHRONOLOGY OF CHANCE. ●

Bent (1997-British) C-104m. ½ D: Sean Mathias. Lothaire Bluteau, Clive Owen, Brian Webber, Ian McKellen, Mick Jagger, Nikolaj Waldau, Jude Law, Gresby Nash, Rupert Graves, Charlie Watts, Rachel Weisz. Raw drama following the plight of a brash, manipulative gay German (Owen) under Hitler, and his eventual internment in Dachau with fellow prisoner Bluteau. Stagy film, with undeniably powerful scenes, but not the formidable depiction of Nazi-era homosexuals it might have been. Scripted by Martin Sherman, from his groundbreaking 1979 play. [NC-17] ▼●●

Beowulf (2007) C-114m. ½ D: Robert Zemeckis. Ray Winstone, Anthony Hopkins, Angelina Jolie, John Malkovich, Robin Wright Penn, Brendan Gleeson, Crispin Glover, Alison Lohman, Costas Mandylor. The ancient poem about a kingdom in need of a warrior to protect it from a monstrous attacker is reinterpreted by Neil Gaiman and Roger Avary and filmed in Zemeckis' "performance capture" medium. Hybrid of a superhero action movie and a graphic novel is fun to watch on a no-brainer level. The action scenes are visceral and effective, but the story bogs down and the faces of the female characters (except for Jolie, seen sparsely but memorably) are lifeless. Beowulf himself is a great character who looks nothing like the actor who voiced and acted his part (Winstone). A mixed bag, best appreciated in 3-D or IMAX. Also available in unrated version. Digital Widescreen. [PG-13] D

Beowulf & Grendel (2005-Canadian-British-Icelandic) C-103m. *½ D: Sturla Gunnarsson. Gerard Butler, Stellan Skarsgård, Ingvar Sigurdsson, Sarah Polley, Eddie Marsan, Tony Curran, Rory McCann, Ronan Vibert. In A.D. 500, a brave warrior named Beowulf goes into battle against Grendel, a barbaric troll who favors decapitating his victims. Ponderous adaptation of the famed Anglo-Saxon poem, with the 6th-century characters even getting to employ 21st-century profanity. Worth a look only for those stunning Icelandic panoramas. Super 35. [R] D

Bequest to the Nation, A SEE: Nelson Affair, The

Berkeley Square (1933) 84m.  D: Frank Lloyd. Leslie Howard, Heather Angel, Irene Browne, Beryl Mercer, Samuel S. Hinds. Intriguing fantasy of young American Howard finding himself in 18th-century London, living completely different life. Remade as I'LL NEVER FORGET YOU.

Berlin Affair, The (1985-Italian-West German) C-96m. BOMB D: Liliانا Cavani. Gudrun Landgrebe, Kevin McNally, Mio Takaki, Massimo Girotti, Philippe Leroy, Hanns Zischler, William Berger. English-language misfire adapts Junichiro Tanizuki's novel The Buddhist Cross. Director Cavani (of THE NIGHT PORTER) is slumming in Nazi Germany again for a tale of a lesbian love affair between Landgrebe and ambassador's daughter Takaki. Lifeless film isn't even sexy, quite surprising in view of the casting of A WOMAN IN FLAMES star Landgrebe. Original European running time was 115m. [R] ▼

der. Gunter Lamprecht, Hanna Schygulla, Barbara Sukowa, Gottfried John, Elisabeth Trissenaar, Brigitte Mira, Karin Baal, Ivan Desny. Monumental adaptation of Alfred Döblin's novel about German life in the late 1920s, focusing on a simple Everyman (Lamprecht), who has just been released from prison. He yearns for respectability but is led like a sheep by forces beyond his control into criminality and insanity. An epic if there ever was one, with stunning performances, cinematography (by Xaver Schwarzenberger), and direction. Originally produced for television in 14 episodes. Filmed before in 1931. ▼ D

Berlin Express (1948) 86m.  D: Jacques Tourneur. Merle Oberon, Robert Ryan, Charles Korvin, Paul Lukas, Robert Coote. Taut, suspenseful spy story set in post WW2 Europe. Members of several nations combine efforts to save German statesman kidnapped by Nazi underground. ▼●

Bernardine (1957) C-95m.  D: Henry Levin. Pat Boone, Terry Moore, Janet Gaynor, Dean Jagger, Walter Abel. Very weak look at teen-age life (all different now) marked return of Janet Gaynor to films after 20 years. Wholesome Pat Boone (in his film debut) sings and sings and sings. Eh! CinemaScope.

Berserk (1967-British) C-96m.  D: Jim O'Connell. Joan Crawford, Ty Hardin, Diana Dors, Michael Gough, Judy Geeson. Sadistic shocker with Crawford the shapely owner of a British circus, haunted by series of brutal murders. Supporting cast lacks verve. ▼●

Bert Rigby, You're a Fool (1989) C-94m.  D: Carl Reiner. Robert Lindsay, Robbie Coltrane, Anne Bancroft, Corbin Bernsen, Cathryn Bradshaw, Bruno Kirby, Jackie Gayle. Writer-director Reiner conceived this deliberately old-fashioned musical comedy as a showcase for Lindsay (who scored a smash on stage in Me and My Girl), and that's its only value. He's a delight—singing, dancing, and clowning as a jaunty British coal miner who wants to break into show business—but the well-meaning film is silly and contrived. [R] ▼●

Besieged (1998-Italian-British) C-94m.  D: Bernardo Bertolucci. Thandie Newton, David Thewlis, Claudio Santamaria. Provocative film about an African immigrant who works as housemaid for a reclusive English pianist in Rome. She's intrigued by his mysterious ways, while he is infatuated with her and determines to find a way to prove his love. Sinuous and surprising, with fine performances by the two leads; written by Bertolucci and Clare Peploe, from a story by James Lasdun. Originally made for Italian TV. [R] ▼ D

Best Boy (1979) C-111m. * D: Ira Wohl. Poignant, beautifully filmed documentary about Wohl's 52-year-old mentally retarded cousin Philly and his family's struggle as he learns to relate to the outside world. Sequences related to his father's death and his visit backstage with Zero Mostel—together they sing "If I Were a Rich Man"—are especially moving. A Best Documentary Academy Award winner. Sequel: BEST MAN: 'BEST BOY' AND ALL OF US TWENTY YEARS LATER. ▼●●

Best Defense (1984) C-94m. *½ D: Willard Huyck. Dudley Moore, Eddie Murphy, Kate Capshaw, George Dzundza, Helen Shaver, David Rasche. Unpleasant and unfunny comedy about defense-industry designer who inadvertently acquires blueprint sought by the KGB. "Strategic Guest Star" Murphy is no help. [R] ▼●●

Best Foot Forward (1943) C-95m.  D: Edward Buzzell. Lucille Ball, William Gaxton, Virginia Weidler, Tommy Dix, Nancy Walker, Gloria De Haven, June Allyson. Entertaining film of Broadway musical about movie star Ball visiting small-town school for a lark; score includes "Buckle Down Winsockie." Harry James and his band do definitive "Two O'Clock Jump." Walker, as dynamic plain-Jane, and Allyson make their feature film debuts re-creating their stage roles. Future filmmaker Stanley Donen can be glimpsed in "The Three B's" number, holding De Haven's legs. ▼●●

Best Friends (1982) C-116m.  D: Norman Jewison. Burt Reynolds, Goldie Hawn, Jessica Tandy, Barnard Hughes, Audra Lindley, Keenan Wynn, Ron Silver, Carol Locatell. Lackluster comedy vehicle for two top stars, as screenwriters who function better as lovers than as husband and wife. Some funny vignettes with fine supporting cast (including Richard Libertini as Mexican justice-of-the-peace), but the lead characters aren't terribly interesting. Indulgent script by real-life "best friends" Barry Levinson and Valerie Curtin. [PG] ▼●●

Best House in London, The (1969-British) C-105m. BOMB D: Philip Saville. David Hemmings, Joanna Pettet, George Sanders, Dany Robin, Warren Mitchell. Boring comedy about group of government officials in London who sponsor official bawdy house. Film didn't deserve "X" rating it got at the time. Look for John Cleese in a bit part. [X]

Best in Show (2000) C-90m.  D: Christopher Guest. Christopher Guest, Eugene Levy, Catherine O'Hara, Michael McKean, Parker Posey, Fred Willard, Larry Miller, Bob Balaban, Jennifer Coolidge, John Michael Higgins, Michael Hitchcock, Jane Lynch, Patrick Cranshaw, Don Lake, Ed Begley, Jr., Jim Piddock. Small-scale but entertaining mockumentary from the WAITING FOR GUFFMAN team about the various characters who enter their pets in a prestigious dog show. Largely improvised comedy (officially written by Guest and Levy) offers a lot of

laughs, especially for fans of the filmmakers and cast. [PG-13] ▼●

Best Intentions, The (1992-Swedish) C-182m.  D: Bille August. Samuel Froler, Pernilla August, Max von Sydow, Ghita Norby, Lennart Hjulstrom, Mona Malm, Lena Endre, Anita Bjork. Ingmar Bergman scripted this ambitious epic tale of the courtship and subsequent marriage of his own parents. Henrik Bergman (Froler) starts out as a poor theology student, and wife Anna (August, the director's wife) comes from a wealthy, bourgeois family; their fundamental differences—and stormy relationship—form the crux of the film. A six-hour version was made for Swedish television. A follow-up to FANNY AND ALEXANDER; followed by SUNDAY'S CHILDREN and PRIVATE CONFESIONS. ▼

Best Laid Plans (1999) C-93m. *½ D: Mike Barker. Alessandro Nivola, Reese Witherspoon, Josh Brolin, Rocky Carroll, Michael G. Hagerty, Terrence Dashon Howard. When an old pal comes back to town, a broke local and his girlfriend find themselves caught up in a web of blackmail and deceit. Convoluted film noir plays like a Gen-X USUAL SUSPECTS, but the problem is too many twists, and after a while this gimmicky thriller runs out of steam. Good acting, especially by Nivola in his first lead role. [R] ▼●

Best Little Whorehouse in Texas, The (1982) C-114m.  D: Colin Higgins. Burt Reynolds, Dolly Parton, Dom DeLuise, Charles Durning, Jim Nabors, Robert Mandan, Lois Nettleton, Theresa Merritt, Noah Beery, Jr., Barry Corbin. Flashy but unsatisfying musical (based on Broadway hit) about pressures brought to bear on sheriff (Reynolds) to close a popular establishment called The Chicken Ranch—run by his lady-friend. Dolly's a delight, Durning has a show-stopping number as the Governor, but occasionally film actually tries to get serious and screeches to a halt. Dolly's hit song "I Will Always Love You" (which she also wrote) had been #1 in 1974—and would be an even bigger hit for Whitney Houston in 1992's THE BODYGUARD. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Best Man, The (1964) 102m.  D: Franklin Schaffner. Henry Fonda, Cliff Robertson, Edie Adams, Margaret Leighton, Kevin McCarthy, Shelley Berman, Lee Tracy, Ann Sothern, Gene Raymond, Richard Arlen, Mahalia Jackson. Sharp filmization of Gore Vidal's play about political conventioning with several determined presidential candidates seeking important endorsement at any cost; brittle, engrossing drama. Screenplay by Vidal. ▼●

Best Man, The (1998-Italian) C-106m.  D: Pupi Avati. Diego Abatantuono, Inès Sastre, Dario Cantarelli, Cinzia Mascoli, Valeria

D'Obici. Warm, wildly romantic comedy of manners set in a small Italian town on December 31, 1899, about a young woman who rebels against her arranged marriage to a wealthy businessman and falls in love with his best man during the wedding party. Slight but charming and evocative allegory, symbolically set on the eve of the 20th century. Written by the director. [PG]▼●

Best Man, The (1999) C-120m. ½ D: Malcolm D. Lee. Taye Diggs, Nia Long, Morris Chestnut, Harold Perrineau, Terrence Howard, Monica Calhoun. Galley proofs are circulating for a new novel full of thinly disguised characters, causing no shortage of problems for author Diggs, who has to contend with a slew of offended participants. Overlong feature debut for Spike Lee's writer/director cousin adds nothing new to the wedding-comedy genre, but attractive characters carry it for a while. The end-credits sequence, with spiffily dressed dancers, tries to convince you that you've had a better time than you've had. [R]▼●●

Best of Enemies, The (1961-British-Italian) C-104m.  D: Guy Hamilton. David Niven, Michael Wilding, Harry Andrews, Alberto Sordi, Noel Harrison, Amedeo Nazzari, David Opatoshu. Nice counterplay between Niven and Sordi, as British and Italian officers who constantly, comically cross each other's paths during WW2. Their growing relationship serves to mirror the idiocy of war. Technirama.

Best of Everything, The (1959) C-121m.  D: Jean Negulesco. Hope Lange, Stephen Boyd, Suzy Parker, Diane Baker, Martha Hyer, Joan Crawford, Brian Aherne, Robert Evans, Louis Jourdan. Multifaceted fabrication about women seeking success and love in the publishing jungles of N.Y.C., highlighted by Crawford's performance as tough executive with empty heart of gold; from superficial Rona Jaffe novel. CinemaScope.▼●

Best of the Badmen (1951) C-84m. ½ D: William D. Russell. Robert Ryan, Claire Trevor, Robert Preston, Jack Buetel, Walter Brennan, Bruce Cabot. Band of outlaws (including James and Younger brothers) help former Union colonel Ryan in vendetta against detective Preston. Offbeat Western has more talk than action.▼

Best of the Best (1989) C-97m. BOMB D: Bob Radler. Eric Roberts, James Earl Jones, Sally Kirkland, Christopher Penn, Louise Fletcher, Phillip Rhee, John Dye. Yet another ROCKY-style rip-off in which five young men must overcome differences before they can unite as the U.S. Karate Team and compete in an international match. Top-drawer cast appallingly wasted. Followed by three sequels. [PG-13]▼●●

Best of the Best 2 (1993) C-101m.  D: Robert Radler. Eric Roberts, Phillip Rhee, Christopher Penn, Edan Gross, Ralph

Moeller, Meg Foster, Sonny Landham, Wayne Newton. Sequel to the original flop bucks the odds and actually improves on its lame predecessor. Two former U.S. Karate Team members set out to avenge the death of their friend who was killed during a shady competition. Roberts has actually said he made this film to make up for the first one. What a considerate guy! [R]▼●●

Best of Times, The (1986) C-104m. ½ D: Roger Spottiswoode. Robin Williams, Kurt Russell, Pamela Reed, Holly Palance, Donald Moffat, Margaret Whitton, M. Emmet Walsh, Donovan Scott, R. G. Armstrong, Kirk Cameron. Williams has never lived down the moment he dropped winning pass in a high-school football game—so, 20 years later he fires up former teammate (Russell), the rival team, and his entire home town for a rematch. Some quirky, offbeat touches highlight Ron Shelton's script, and the wives (Reed, Palance) are a treat but seemingly surefire film becomes too strident (and too exaggerated) to really score. [PG-13]▼●●

Best of Youth, The (2003-Italian) C-363m. * D: Marco Tullio Giordana. Luigi Lo Cascio, Alessio Boni, Adriana Asti, Sonia Bergamasco, Fabrizio Gifuni, Maya Sansa, Valentina Carnelutti. Majestically epic film, made for Italian television, deals with the loves, personal tragedies, and contrasting life choices of two brothers against a backdrop of social change in Italy from 1966 through the 1990s, involving Mafiosos, Red Brigades, and even a famed flood in Florence. Shown in two parts, this is one of the few films of which it can be said, "The early going is pretty good, but it really kicks in during the last three hours." A massive investment of time that amply rewards the viewer. Asti is positively luminous. Written by Sandro Petraglia and Stefano Rulli. [R]●

Best Seller (1987) C-110m.  D: John Flynn. James Woods, Brian Dennehy, Victoria Tennant, Allison Balson, Paul Shenar, George Coe, Anne Pitoniak. Dennehy, a cop-turned-author (à la Joseph Wambaugh), is approached by Woods to write the story of his former life as hit man for prominent businessman (Shenar) whose underworld tactics have long been covered up. Despite teaming of two terrific actors, film never quite cuts it, due to many holes in Larry Cohen's script—and Woods' largely unappealing character. [R]▼●●

Best Things in Life Are Free, The (1956) C-104m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Gordon MacRae, Dan Dailey, Ernest Borgnine, Sheree North, Tommy Noonan, Murvyn Vye. Typical of the antiseptic 1950s musicals, this film "recreates" the careers of Tin Pan Alley writers DeSylva, Brown, and Henderson. Highlight: North and Jacques D'Amboise dancing to "The Birth of the Blues." CinemaScope.

Best Years of Our Lives, The (1946)

168m.  D: William Wyler. Myrna Loy, Fredric March, Dana Andrews, Teresa Wright, Virginia Mayo, Harold Russell, Hoagy Carmichael, Gladys George, Roman Bohnen, Steve Cochran. American classic of three veterans returning home after WW2, readjusting to civilian life. Robert Sherwood's script from MacKinlay Kantor's book perfectly captured mood of post-war U.S.; still powerful today. Seven Oscars include Best Picture, Wyler, March, Russell, Sherwood, Daniel Mandell's editing, Hugo Friedhofer's score. Russell, an actual veteran who lost his hands, also took home a second Oscar, a special award for bringing hope and courage to other veterans. Remade as 1975 TVM, RETURNING HOME, with Tom Selleck and Dabney Coleman. ▼●●

Bethune (1977-Canadian) C-88m.  D: Eric Till. Donald Sutherland, Kate Nelligan, David Gardner, James Hong. Thoughtful biography with Sutherland fine as Dr. Norman Bethune, the controversial, humanistic Canadian doctor who, most intriguingly, aided Mao Tse-tung's army during its famous march. Made for Canadian television; Sutherland also played the character in Phillip Borsos' BETHUNE: THE MAKING OF A HERO, a 1990 feature (which was released in the U.S. in 1993 as DR. BETHUNE). ▼

Betrayal (1983-British) C-95m. *½ D: David Jones, Jeremy Irons, Ben Kingsley, Patricia Hodge. Harold Pinter's fascinating play about a triangle relationship—progressing backward in time—falls flat on screen, despite a powerhouse cast. [R] ▼

Betrayal, The (2009) C-96m.  D: Ellen Kuras. Arresting, highly emotional documentary about a large Laotian family whose lives are forever changed after the father is conscripted by the C.I.A. to help covert U.S. military operations there in the 1970s. The government's promises—both implicit and explicit—are forgotten after the Communists take over Laos in 1975; the father is removed and the family is ostracized. They manage to make their way to the U.S., where they start life anew in a squalid apartment in Brooklyn, N.Y. Amazing odyssey is told through footage shot over 23 years' time by cinematographer Kuras (in her directing debut). Her main character, the astonishingly resilient Thavisouk Phrasavath, is credited as editor, codirector, and co-writer. Aka NERAKHOON.

Betrayed (1954) C-108m.  D: Gottfried Reinhardt. Clark Gable, Lana Turner, Victor Mature, Louis Calhern, O.E. Hasse, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Ian Carmichael. Colonel Gable falls for Dutch Resistance member Turner, who's suspected of being in cahoots with the Nazis. Ho-hum WW2 melodrama, with some nice on-location filming in The Netherlands. Clark and Lana's fourth and final teaming. ▼●●

Betrayed (1988) C-127m. *½ D: Costa-Gavras. Debra Winger, Tom Berenger, John Heard, Betsy Blair, John Mahoney, Ted Levine, Jeffrey DeMunn, Albert Hall, David Clennon, Richard Libertini. Appalling botch of a film about the stupidest FBI undercover agent in movie history, who's sent to sniff out white supremacists in America's heartland—but falls in love with her target instead. Important and genuinely upsetting subject matter is dealt with in pedantic terms. Even the moments of straight suspense are muffed! Winger's performance is virtually the only saving grace. Timothy Hutton can be seen fleetingly at the fairgrounds. [R] ▼●●

Betsy, The (1978) C-125m. ½ D: Daniel Petrie. Laurence Olivier, Robert Duvall, Katharine Ross, Tommy Lee Jones, Jane Alexander, Lesley-Anne Down, Kathleen Beller, Edward Hermann. Moderately enjoyable trash, adapted from Harold Robbins' novel about the multigenerational wheelings and dealings between an auto company patriarch and his family. Olivier's hamminess and Down's loveliness are the pluses here. [R] ▼●●

Betsy's Wedding (1990) C-94m.  D: Alan Alda. Alan Alda, Joey Bishop, Madeline Kahn, Anthony LaPaglia, Catherine O'Hara, Joe Pesci, Molly Ringwald, Ally Sheedy, Burt Young, Julie Bovasso, Nicolas Coster, Bibi Besch, Dylan Walsh, Samuel L. Jackson. Amusing social comedy about the plans, preparations, and events surrounding Ringwald's wedding—especially as they affect her father. One of writer-director-star Alda's better outings, a bit cluttered (and occasionally clumsy) but filled with enough truthful observations to strike a great many familiar chords. [R] ▼●●

Better Late Than Never (1982) C-95m. *½ D: Bryan Forbes. David Niven, Art Carney, Maggie Smith, Kimberly Partridge, Catherine Hicks, Melissa Prophet. Two ne'er-do-wells vie for acceptance by a 10-year-old heiress, who's a granddaughter to one of them. Nice locations in the South of France can't compensate for lightheaded script and waste of star talent. [PG] ▼

Better Luck Tomorrow (2003) C-101m.  D: Justin Lin. Parry Shen, Jason Tobin, Sung Kang, Roger Fan, John Cho, Karin Anna Cheung, Jerry Mathers. Provocative, often disturbing look at suburban Southern California high school overachievers whose good grades buy them freedom from parental supervision . . . and the challenge of seeing just how much they can get away with. A fresh, serious-minded look at teenagers that cannily doesn't stress the fact that they are all Asian American. Flirts with melodrama toward the end, but never loses its focus. Exceptionally well filmed by editor, director and cowriter Lin. [R] ▼●

Better Off Dead (1985) C-98m. ½ D:

Savage Steve Holland. John Cusack, David Ogden Stiers, Kim Darby, Demian Slade, Scooter Stevens, Diane Franklin, Curtis Armstrong. Off-kilter comedy about teenage boy who's just lost the girl of his dreams. Frustrating film starts off with lots of funny, original gags—it even has a terrific “hamburger video” by clay-animation specialist Jimmy Picker—then it settles into much-too-conventional story and goes down the drain. Feature debut for writer-director Holland. [PG]▼●●

Better Than Chocolate (1999-Canadian) C-101m.  D: Anne Wheeler. Wendy Crewson, Karyn Dwyer, Christina Cox, Anne-Marie MacDonald, Peter Outerbridge, Marya Delver, Kevin Mundy. Engaging adult comedy about the evolving, hot-and-heavy relationship between college dropout/wannabe writer Dwyer and artist/drifter Cox. Loaded with wit, well-drawn characters, and perceptive commentary on such hot-button issues as censorship, and more personal ones, such as self-acceptance. Outerbridge is a standout as a transgendered lesbian. Unrated version runs 102m. [R]▼●

Better Than Sex (2000-Australian-French) C-84m.  D: Jonathan Teplitzky. David Wenham, Susie Porter, Catherine McClements, Kris McQuade, Simon Bossell, Imelda Staunton. A man and woman meet at a party and agree to a one-night stand, since he's leaving the country in just a few days and there's no chance of entanglements. Or so they think. Eye-opening look at the mating game, exploring what men and women say and don't say before, during, and after sex. A fresh, frank and very sexy film with a delightful sense of humor.▼●

Better Tomorrow, A (1986-Hong Kong) C-95m.  D: John Woo. Chow Yun-Fat, Ti Lung, Leslie Cheung, Waise Lee. Exciting action thriller about a gangster (Lung) who wants to go straight and his brother (Cheung), a dedicated police inspector who blames him for their father's death. Woo's breakthrough film (which became one of Hong Kong's highest grossers ever and gained international attention) is not as assured as his later work, but still has explosive set pieces and a terrific performance by Chow as a mob enforcer. Woo also coscripted. Followed by two sequels.▼●

Andre Braugher, Joe Pantoliano, Natasha Henstridge, Lou Diamond Phillips, Scott Wiper, Mirjana Jokovic, Matt Gallini, Wayne Duvall, Carmen Argenziano, John Basinger, Jeanine Basinger. Young Chicago cop (Wiper) quits the force, intending to move to a small town to be with the one he loves, but there are predictable, violent complications. Not so much a story as a series of vignettes and set pieces that don't hold together. The result is half Eastwood, half Taran-tino, and one total mess. Wiper also scripted. Released direct to video. [R]▼●

Betty (1992-French) C-100m. 1/2 D: Claude Chabrol. Marie Trintignant, Stephane Audran, Jean-Francois Garreaud, Yves Lambrecht, Christiane Minazzoli. Boozy Betty, 28 and long since banished from home, is taken in by an older widow (who also enjoys the grape) in the posh hotel she owns. So-so character study is not one of Chabrol's stronger works; juggling of flashbacks will either keep you on your toes or zone you out into slumber. Adapted from a Georges Simenon novel.▼●

Betty Blue (1986-French) C-120m. 1/2 D: Jean-Jacques Beineix. Jean-Hugues Anglade, Beatrice Dalle, Gerard Darmon, Consuelo de Havilland, Clementine Celarie, Jaques Mathou, Vincent Lindon. Handyman and dangerously schizoid sexpot map-hop France practically waiting for her to crack up; when it finally happens, the grisly violence doesn't quite mesh with the light tone of what's come before. Well-photographed and sometimes quite funny, but ultimately much ado about nothing. If you're watching this for sex, don't miss the opening five minutes. Director's cut runs 185m.▼●●

Between Heaven and Hell (1956) C-94m.  D: Richard Fleischer. Robert Wagner, Terry Moore, Broderick Crawford, Buddy Ebsen, Robert Keith, Brad Dexter, Mark Damon, Harvey Lembeck, Skip Homeier, L.Q. Jones, Carl Switzer, Frank Gorshin. Disjointed psychological drama about thoughtless Southerner Wagner, and how he is changed by his experiences in WW2 (especially while under the command of psycho Crawford). CinemaScope▼●

Between Strangers (2002-Canadian-Italian-U.S.) C-98m.  D: Edoardo Ponti. Sophia Loren, Mira Sorvino, Deborah Kara Unger, Pete Postlethwaite, Julian Richings, Klaus Maria Brandauer, Malcolm McDowell, Gérard Depardieu, Robert Joy, Wendy Crewson, John Neville. Stellar cast founders in this stale story of three women, strangers deeply in need of liberation from their fathers or husbands. Loren is laughably miscast as a haggard grocery store clerk weighed down by her obnoxious, disabled husband; Sorvino is a rising star photographer whose life is controlled by her famous father; Unger is an embittered cellist whose dad has just been released from prison. Ponti—the son of Loren and Carlo Ponti—also coscripted. [R]▼●

Between the Lines (1977) C-101m. 1/2 D: Joan Micklin Silver. John Heard, Lindsay Crouse, Jeff Goldblum, Jill Eikenberry, Bruno Kirby, Gwen Welles, Stephen Collins, Michael J. Pollard, Lane Smith, Marilu Henner, Joe Morton, Southside Johnny & The Asbury Jukes. Thoroughly enjoyable sleeper about the emotional problems of the staff of a Boston underground newspaper which is about to be purchased by a print tycoon. The performances by a then-unknown cast are first rate all the way. Story by Fred Barron and David M. Helper, Jr.; screenplay by Fred Barron. [R]▼

Between Two Women (1945) 83m.  D: Willis Goldbeck. Van Johnson, Lionel Barrymore, Gloria DeHaven, Keenan Wynn, Marilyn Maxwell, Keye Luke, Alma Kruger, Walter Kingsford, Marie Blake, Nell Craig. Dr. Adams (Johnson) gets more screen time than Gillespie himself (Barrymore) in this mild triangle tale involving Johnson, Maxwell, and DeHaven (who finds time to sing "I'm in the Mood for Love"). Late Dr. Kildare series entry.

Between Two Worlds (1944) 112m. ½ D: Edward A. Blatt. John Garfield, Eleanor Parker, Sydney Greenstreet, Faye Emerson, Paul Henreid, Sara Allgood, Isobel Elsom, George Tobias, Edmund Gwenn. Updated remake of OUTWARD BOUND, with various deceased individuals aboard a ship that will take each one to heaven or hell. Flawed, but good acting by Warner Bros. star stock company makes it worthwhile.

Beverly Hillbillies, The (1993) C-93m. *½ D: Penelope Spheeris. Jim Varney, Friedrich Bader, Erika Eleniak, Cloris Leachman, Lily Tomlin, Dabney Coleman, Lea Thompson, Rob Schneider, Penny Fuller, Dolly Parton, Buddy Ebsen, Zsa Zsa Gabor. Big-screen rehash of the corny 1960s TV series, with the backwoods Clampett clan striking oil and moving to Beverly Hills, where they're prey for sharpie Schneider and his girlfriend (Thompson). The actors are earnest and enjoyable, but the script (by four writers—count 'em—four) is more lamebrained than the sitcom ever was, with smarmy sex jokes thrown in for good measure. Even worse, director Spheeris doesn't know how to stage a gag. [PG]▼●●

Beverly Hills Brats (1989) C-90m. *½ D: Dimitri Sotirakis. Peter Billingsley, Martin Sheen, Terry Moore, Burt Young, Ramon Estevez. Annoying, pretentious so-called satire, in which a wealthy but lonely boy arranges his own kidnapping so that parents will give him attention. This one was a family affair: associate producer is Janet (daughter of Martin) Sheen; Estevez is Sheen's son. Moore coproduced, and coauthored the original story. [PG-13]▼●

Beverly Hills Chihuahua (2008) C-91m. ½ D: Raja Gosnell. Jamie Lee Curtis, Piper Perabo; voices of Drew Barrymore, Andy Garcia, George Lopez, Manolo Cardona, Cheech Marin, Paul Rodriguez, Edward James Olmos, Loretta Devine, Luis Guzmán, Plácido Domingo, Eddie "Piolin" Sotelo, Michael Urie, Marguerite Moreau, Nick Zano. Curtis has no idea what she's in for when she asks her impulsive, irresponsible niece (Perabo) to doggy-sit her beloved and spoiled Chihuahua, Chloe (Barrymore).

Perabo drags the pup along when she and her friends go on a Mexican vacation—and that's when the trouble starts. Sweet, likable family film with irresistible four-legged stars and good work by the human cast, too. Super 35. [PG]●

Beverly Hills Cop (1984) C-105m. ½ D: Martin Brest. Eddie Murphy, Judge Reinhold, John Ashton, Lisa Eilbacher, Ronny Cox, Steven Berkoff, James Russo, Jonathan Banks, Stephen Elliott, Paul Reiser, Damon Wayans. Smart-mouthed Detroit cop, who never plays by the rules, goes to L.A. to track down an old friend's killers. Sassy, tough, and very funny vehicle for Murphy, who's in peak form as a guy who's never caught off guard. Deft blend of comedy and violent action, extremely well cast, with terrific song score. Script by Daniel Petrie, Jr. Bronson Pinchot has hilarious scene-stealing role as gay art gallery worker. Followed by two sequels. [R]

Beverly Hills Cop II (1987) C-102m.  D: Tony Scott. Eddie Murphy, Judge Reinhold, Jürgen Prochnow, Ronny Cox, John Ashton, Brigitte Nielsen, Allen Garfield, Dean Stockwell, Paul Reiser, Gil Hill, Robert Ridgley, Chris Rock. Contrived, cold-hearted (and misogynistic) sequel has few laughs, mediocre music, and a ridiculous story: it manages to coast as far as it does on the strength of Murphy alone. All credibility goes out the window at the start when B.H. Captain Cox is seen talking to Murphy about a fishing trip. Are these the same characters we saw in the first film? Super 35. [R]▼●●

Beverly Hills Cop III (1994) C-100m. ½ D: John Landis. Eddie Murphy, Judge Reinhold, Hector Elizondo, Theresa Randle, Bronson Pinchot, Timothy Carhart, John Saxon, Alan Young, Stephen McHattie, Al Green. Detroit Murphy goes back to L.A., site of a theme park whose in-house security cops have hatched a counterfeiting ring—right under the nose of the sweet old gramps figure (Young) who's nominally in charge. Fast pace and inspired setting can't camouflage the bankruptcy of the concept. Gags are subordinate to action here—which, given the gags, may not have been such a bad idea. As usual, Landis features a number of prominent directors (including George Lucas, Joe Dante, Martha Coolidge, Arthur Hiller, Ray Harryhausen, Peter Medak, George Schaefer, Barbet Schroeder, and John Singleton) in cameo roles. Pinchot makes a welcome return from the original COP movie as Serge. [R]▼●●

Beverly Hills Ninja (1997) C-88m. *½ D: Dennis Dugan. Chris Farley, Nicollette Sheridan, Robin Shou, Nathaniel Parker, Soon-Tek Oh, Chris Rock. Baby Farley is washed ashore Moses style in Japan, whereupon he spends a klutzy lifetime being schooled in combat (and apparently, object breakage). Sheridan then hires him for an assignment back in Beverly Hills, where the two become (just as we know they would in real life) romantically involved. Sub-routine comedy. [PG-13] ▼●●

Beverly Hills Vamp (1989) C-89m. ½ D: Fred Olen Ray. Eddie Deezen, Britt Ekland, Tim Conway, Jr., Jay Richardson, Michelle Bauer, Robert Quarry, Dawn Wildsmith, Pat McCormick. Cheerfully cheap little film effectively spoofs itself while also being an entertaining vampire comedy. Jerry Lewis-oid Deeken is pitted against vampire madam Ekland and her three bloodsucking hookers. [R] ▼

Beware, My Lovely (1952) 77m. ½ D: Harry Horner. Ida Lupino, Robert Ryan, Taylor Holmes, O.Z. Whitehead, Barbara Whiting. Brooding, atmospheric psychological thriller with kindly WW1 widow Lupino hiring wanderer Ryan as a handyman and discovering he's a psychopath. ▼●

Beware of a Holy Whore (1970-German) C-103m.  D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Lou Castel, Hanna Schygulla, Eddie Constantine, Marquard Bohm, Rainer Werner Fassbinder, Ulli Lommel, Margarethe von Trotta, Kurt Raab. Fascinating early Fassbinder film about filmmaking, as the cast and crew of a trouble-ridden German production spend most of their time drinking, talking, having sex, and hating each other while holed up in a Spanish hotel. Brutally funny and honest; reportedly based on Fassbinder's experiences filming WHITY in Spain. ▼●

Beware of Children (1961-British) 80m. *½ D: Gerald Thomas. Leslie Phillips, Geraldine McEwan, Julia Lockwood, Noel Purcell. Young married couple transforms an inheritance of land into summer camp for all sorts of children, focusing on tedious, predictable pranks of youngsters. Original British title: NO KIDDING. ●

Beware! The Blob (1972) C-88m. *½ D: Larry Hagman. Robert Walker, Richard Stahl, Godfrey Cambridge, Carol Lynley, Larry Hagman, Cindy Williams, Shelley Berman, Marlene Clark, Gerrit Graham, Dick Van Patten. They should have left it frozen in the Arctic. Weak comedy-sequel finds the gooey mess doing its thing once again. Aka SON OF BLOB; reissued in 1982 with the tag line, "The Film That J.R. Shot!" [PG] ▼●

Bewitched (1945) 65m.  D: Arch Oboler. Phyllis Thaxter, Edmund Gwenn, Horace (Stephen) McNally, Henry H. Daniels, Jr., Addison Richards, Kathleen Lockhart, Minor Watson. Ambitious B film based on Oboler's radio play "Alter Ego," about a woman tormented by a second personality locked inside her. Interesting idea, especially for its time, but heavy-handed.

Bewitched (2005) C-100m.  D: Nora Ephron. Nicole Kidman, Will Ferrell, Shirley MacLaine, Michael Caine, Jason Schwartzman, Kristin Chenoweth, Heather Burns, Jim

Turner, Stephen Colbert, David Alan Grier, Michael Badalucco, Steve Carell, Carole Shelley, Richard Kind, Amy Sedaris. Post-modern riff on the popular 1960s TV series, with Kidman as a real-life witch who decides she wants to live a "normal" life. Instead, egocentric actor Ferrell takes a shine to her and insists she be cast opposite him in a new version of . . . Bewitched. Inoffensive comedy allows Kidman to be cute, but has no genuine emotions or sentiments because its premise is so completely artificial. Carell channels the spirit of Paul Lynde and Shelley does the same for Marion Lorne in two of the film's brighter scenes. [PG-13] ▼●

Beyond, The (1981-Italian) C-87m.  D: Lucio Fulci. Katherine (Catriona) MacColl, David Warbeck, Sarah Keller (Cinzia Monreale), Antoine Saint John (Antoine Domingo), Veronica Lazar. A woman inherits a hotel in Louisiana situated on one of the seven gates to Hell, where it's host to an army of zombies (definitely not good for tourism.) Ultra-gory Italian splatter film has developed a cult, but it's just one bloody set-piece after another, with outlandishly gruesome makeup effects (including crucifixions, acid poured onto faces, etc.). Aka SEVEN DOORS OF DEATH, which runs 82m. Techniscope. ▼●

Beyond a Reasonable Doubt (1956) 80m. ½ D: Fritz Lang. Dana Andrews, Joan Fontaine, Sidney Blackmer, Philip Bourneuf, Barbara Nichols. Far-fetched tale of man who pretends to be guilty of murder to get firsthand view of justice system, unable to prove himself innocent later on. Pale production values. Intriguing idea doesn't hold up. ▼

Beyond Atlantis (1973-U.S.-Filipino) C-89m. *½ D: Eddie Romero. Patrick Wayne, John Ashley, Leigh Christian, Lenore Stevens, George Nader, Sid Haig, Eddie Garcia, Vic Diaz. Low-budget fantasy about lost civilization, represented by amphibious humanoids; combines feminist subplot with philosophizing about modern extinction of cultures. [PG] ▼●

Beyond Borders (2003) C-127m.  D: Martin Campbell. Angelina Jolie, Clive Owen, Teri Polo, Linus Roache, Yorick van Wageningen, Noah Emmerich, Kate Ashfield, Timothy West, Burt Kwouk. A married woman leaves her husband behind when she learns about rescue efforts in Africa and the dedication of one passionate doctor; their relationship continues over many years on several continents. Depiction of conditions in various trouble spots around the world is so vivid, and the urgency of helping victimized people so genuine, that it only heightens the absurdity of the love story that's been pasted onto it. Owen's solid presence keeps his character strong in spite of everything. J-D-C Scope. [R] ▼●

Beyond Evil (1980) C-94m.  D: Herb Freed. John Saxon, Lynda Day George, Michael Dante, Mario Milano, Janice Lynde, David Opatoshu. Saxon and George move into an old house occupied by the spirit of a 100-year-old woman, who does not like this intrusion into her privacy. OK of its kind. [R]▼

Beyond Glory (1948) 82m. ½ D: John Farrow. Alan Ladd, Donna Reed, George Macready, George Coulouris. Predictable account of West Point captain Ladd, a WW2 veteran, on trial for misconduct. Audie Murphy's first film.

Beyond Justice (1992) C-113m. *½ D: Duccio Tessari. Rutger Hauer, Carol Alt, Omar Sharif, Elliott Gould, Kabir Bedi, Brett Halsey, Peter Sands. Preposterous action-adventure story of Chairman of the Board Alt, who employs hired-gun Hauer to retrieve her kidnapped son from his Arab grandfather, Emir Omar. Amid the machine-gun fire we often don't know who is being shot at—nor do we care. [R]▼●●

Beyond Rangoon (1995) C-99m. ½ D: John Boorman. Patricia Arquette, Frances McDormand, Spalding Gray, U Aung Ko, Adele Lutz, Victor Slezak. Emotionally troubled American tourist puts herself at risk during a trip to Burma in 1988. She's soon fleeing from the military and heading to the Thai border with a former university professor who's now a wanted man. Hollow at times, and heavy-handed in its effort to promote awareness of the political situation in Burma (now Myanmar). Biggest problem is Arquette, who just doesn't register. Still, a fairly interesting story from an always-committed filmmaker. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Beyond Reasonable Doubt (1980-New Zealand) C-127m. ½ D: John Laing. David Hemmings, John Hargreaves, Martyn Sanderson, Grant Tilly, Diana Rowan. Adequate docudrama chronicling the conviction on trumped-up charges of innocent farmer Arthur Thomas (Hargreaves) for a double murder. Hemmings is good as the hard-boiled cop who plants evidence that leads to Thomas's downfall. Screenplay by David Yallop, from his book. Panavision. ▼

Beyond Silence (1996-German-Swiss) C-105m.  D: Caroline Link. Sylvie Testud, Tatjana Trieb, Howie Seago, Emmanuelle Laborit, Sibylle Canonica. An eight-year-old German girl serves as the speaking voice (and a sometimes sly interpreter) for her deaf parents. When she matures and becomes a talented clarinetist, she considers heading for a Berlin conservatory, amid the repercussions of possibly leaving the nest. Nicely turned emotional tale of familial love and forgiveness, and a girl's growing pains. [PG-13]▼

Beyond Suspicion SEE: Auggie Rose

Beyond the Door (1974-U.S.-Italian) C-94m. BOMB D: Oliver Hellman (Ovidio Assonitis). Juliet Mills, Richard Johnson, Elizabeth Turner, David Colin, Jr. Mills becomes pregnant with a fetus possessed by the Devil. Vulgar EXORCIST ripoff, complete with pea-green regurgitation, head spins, and Mercedes McCambridge-like voice. Warner Bros. even took legal action against the film. Followed by the inevitable BEYOND THE DOOR II. [R]▼

Beyond the Door II (1979-Italian) C-92m. *½ D: Mario Bava. Daria Nicolodi, John Steiner, David Colin, Jr., Ivan Rassimov. Corpse of dead man possesses his son, seeks vengeance on his wife. Nice directorial touches cannot save confusing, needlessly bloody EXORCIST clone; only resemblances to first film are actor Colin and "possession" plot line. [R]▼

Beyond the Door (1982-Italian) C-116m.  D: Liliana Cavani. Marcello Mastroianni, Tom Berenger, Eleonora Giorgi, Michel Piccoli. Overbaked melodrama centering on complex relationship between jailed father Mastroianni and daughter Giorgi, complicated by arrival of American engineer Berenger. Also known as BEYOND OBSESSION.▼

Beyond the Fog SEE: Horror on Snape Island

Beyond the Forest (1949) 96m.  D: King Vidor. Bette Davis, Joseph Cotten, David Brian, Ruth Roman, Dona Drake, Regis Toomey. Muddled murder story of grasping Davis, her small-town doctor husband (Cotten), and wealthy neighbor (Brian). Davis' overly mannered performance doesn't help. This is the film in which she utters the immortal line. "What a dump!"▼

Beyond the Gates (2006-British-German) C-115m. ½ D: Michael Caton-Jones. John Hurt, Hugh Dancy, Dominique Horwitz, Louis Mahoney, Clare-Hope Ashitey, Nicola Walker, Steve Toussaint. Middling drama, based on the Rwandan experiences of BBC journalist David Belton, takes another screen look at the 1994 genocide against the Tutsis by the Hutu government. Unlike HOTEL RWANDA, this film traces the reactions of mostly white folks: devoted priest Hurt, teacher Dancy, and Belgian U.N. peacekeepers who remain strictly passive even under utmost provocation. Adequate in the day-to-day scenes but rises to the dramatic occasion in its most harrowing confrontations, which do carry power. Original British title: SHOOTING DOGS. Super 35. [R]●

Beyond the Law (1968-Italian) C-91m.  D: Giorgio Stegani. Lee Van Cleef, Antonio Sabato, Lionel Stander, Bud Spencer, Gordon Mitchell, Ann Smyner. Formula Western with a whole lot of Van Cleef and almost as much humor. Bad guy turns good guy, becomes sheriff long enough to get his hands on a shipment of silver, and then

splits. Aka BLOODSILVER. THE GOOD DIE FIRST. Techniscope. ▼

Beyond the Law (1992) C-108m. ½ D: Larry Ferguson. Charlie Sheen, Linda Fiorentino, Michael Madsen, Courtney B. Vance, Leon Rippy, Dennis Burkley, Rip Torn. Traumatized cop Sheen—he was abused as a child—has just been fired by his corrupt boss. Recruited to work undercover, he joins a band of scuzzy, drug-dealing bikers. Not bad of its type, with an unusually high level of character development, but the often illogical scenario eventually does it in. Based on a true story. [R]▼

Beyond the Limit (1983) C-103m. *½ D: John Mackenzie. Michael Caine, Richard Gere, Bob Hoskins, Elpidia Carrillo, Joaquim De Almeida, A Martinez. Muddled adaptation of Graham Greene's The Honorary Consul with Gere miscast as British doctor who becomes involved with revolutionaries in South American country—and sexually involved with the ex-prostitute wife of boozey diplomat (well played by Caine). Slow, murky, completely uninvolving. [R]▼

Beyond the Living (1978) C-88m.  D: Al Adamson. Jill Jacobson, Geoffrey Land, Marilyn Joi, Mary Kay Pass. OK horrorpic in the CARRIE vein. Nurse is possessed by the spirit of a patient who died during surgery and begins killing the doctors who performed the operation. Best scene takes place in a foundry. Released to theaters as NURSE SHERRI. Video titles: HOSPITAL OF TERROR, HANDS OF DEATH, KILLER'S CURSE, BLACK VODOO, THE POSSESSION OF NURSE SHERRI, and TERROR HOSPITAL. ▼

Beyond the Mat (1999) C-102m.  D: Barry Blaustein. Screenwriter Blaustein (best known for his work with Eddie Murphy) indulges his lifelong passion for professional wrestling in this absorbing documentary, which tries to put a human face on the often circuslike sport. Among his subjects: Mankind (aka Mick Foley), a WWF superstar who's nothing like his ring persona; an aging but still potent Terry Funk; and a very troubled Jake the Snake (Jack Roberts). Compelling viewing even for non-wrestling fans. [R]▼

Beyond the Poseidon Adventure (1979) C-122m. *½ D: Irwin Allen. Michael Caine, Sally Field, Telly Savalas, Peter Boyle, Jack Warden, Shirley Knight, Slim Pickens, Shirley Jones, Karl Malden, Mark Harmon, Veronica Hamel. Following THE SWARM, Caine teamed up with Irwin Allen for another career killer—a needless sequel about attempts to loot the vessel before it sinks. Panavision. [G]▼

neurotic singles and their psychiatrists. Given the director and cast, it's hard to believe how awful this is—until you see for yourself! Filmed in Paris, though set in N.Y.C. [R]▼

Beyond the Reef (1981) C-91m.  D: Frank C. Clark. Dayton Ka'ne, Maren Jensen, Kathleen Swan, Keahi Farden, Joseph Ka'ne. In the wake of THE HURRICANE, Dino De Laurentiis produced this innocuous South Seas romance with two attractive leads. Old-fashioned, to say the least. Completed in 1979. Aka SHARK BOY OF BORA BORA and SEA KILLER. [PG]

Beyond the Sea (2004-British-German) C-118m. ½ D: Kevin Spacey. Kevin Spacey, Kate Bosworth, John Goodman, Bob Hoskins, Brenda Blethyn, Greta Scacchi, Caroline Aaron, Peter Cincotti, William Ullrich. Biopic of singer-performer Bobby Darin covers his rise to success, marriage to movie star Sandra Dee, and the drive that came from knowing he didn't have long to live, after suffering rheumatic fever as a child. Takes a fanciful approach, with musical production numbers and a self-conscious device that enables grown-up Bobby to confront himself as a boy . . . of which creates distance between the audience and the inherent emotion of the story. Spacey does his own singing, quite well, in this labor-of-love project, which he also cowrote and coproduced. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Beyond the Stars (1989) C-87m. *½ D: David Saperstein. Martin Sheen, Christian Slater, Robert Foxworth, Sharon Stone, Olivia d'Abo, F. Murray Abraham. Excruciatingly slow story of former astronaut Sheen who once walked on the moon. Would-be astronaut Slater idolizes him, to the consternation of his ex-NASA employee dad (Foxworth). Top cast cannot rise above a poor script. [PG]▼

Beyond the Valley of the Dolls (1970) C-109m.  D: Russ Meyer. Dolly Read, Cynthia Myers, Marcia McBroom, David Gurian, John LaZar, Michael Blodgett, Edy Williams, Erica Gavin, Phyllis Davis, Charles Napier, Strawberry Alarm Clock. Female rock trio attempts to make it (and make it and make it) in Hollywood. Time has been kind to raunchy in-name-only sequel to (and spoof of) VALLEY OF THE DOLLS. Screenplay by Roger Ebert, story by Meyer and Ebert, and picked by two prominent critics as one of the 10 best U.S. films 1968–78. Panavision. [NC-17—originally rated X]▼

Beyond the Walls (1984-Israeli) C-103m.  D: Uri Barbash. Arnon Zadok, Muhammad Bakri, Assi Dayan, Rami Danon, Boaz Sharambi. This potentially powerful drama about life in an Israeli prison, centering on the explosive relationship between Jewish and Arab convicts, is just a standard, predictable, noisy men-in-the-big-house yarn. Incredibly, it earned a Best Foreign Film Oscar nomination. [R]▼

B.F.'s Daughter (1948) 108m. *½ D:

Robert Z. Leonard. Barbara Stanwyck, Van Heflin, Charles Coburn, Richard Hart, Keenan Wynn, Margaret Lindsay. Disastrous film of J. P. Marquand novel, with Stanwyck the domineering girl ruining marriage to professor Heflin.

Bhowani Junction (1956-U.S.-British) C-110m. ½ D: George Cukor. Ava Gardner, Stewart Granger, Bill Travers, Abraham Sofaer. Set in post-WW2 India; Gardner is half-caste torn between love of country and love for a British colonel. Based on John Masters novel; strikingly shot on location. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Bible, The (1966-Italian) C-174m. BOMB D: John Huston. Michael Parks, Ulla Bergryd, Richard Harris, John Huston, Stephen Boyd, George C. Scott, Ava Gardner, Peter O'Toole, Franco Nero. Narrated by Huston. Unsuccessful epic dealing with Adam and Eve, Cain and Abel, Noah and the Flood, etc. (first 22 chapters of Genesis). Only Huston himself as Noah escapes heavy-handedness. Definitely one time you should read the Book instead. Dimension 150. ▼●●

Bicentennial Man (1999) C-131m. ½ D: Chris Columbus. Robin Williams, Sam Neill, Embeth Davidtz, Wendy Crewson, Hallie Kate Eisenberg, Stephen Root, Lynne Thigpen, Kiersten Warren, Oliver Platt. In the near future, a family buys an all-purpose robot, which turns out to have human emotions. His interactions with the family and their descendants are followed over the next 200 years. Sincere, sentimental, but goes for the jokes too often. Williams is good as the robot, too familiar when he becomes human. From a short story by Isaac Asimov and a novel by Asimov and Robert Silverberg. [PG]▼

Bicycle Thieves (1947-Italian) 89m. * D: Vittorio De Sica. Lamberto Maggiorani, Leanella Carell, Enzo Staiola, Vittorio Antonucci. A man whose livelihood depends on his bicycle spends a shattering week with his son searching for the men who stole it. Stunning in its simplicity, this was one of the cornerstones of the Italian neo-realist movement, filmed entirely on natural locations with nonprofessional actors. It also vividly captures life in post-WW2 Rome. Winner of a special Academy Award, given before there was a Foreign Language Film category. One of the all-time greats. Originally released in the U.S. as THE BICYCLE THIEF. ▼●●

Big (1988) C-102m. ½ D: Penny Marshall. Tom Hanks, Elizabeth Perkins, John Heard, Jared Rushton, Robert Loggia. David Moscow, Jon Lovitz, Mercedes Ruehl, Josh Clark, Tracy Reiner. A 12-year-old boy wishes he were "big"—and gets his wish, waking up the next morning as a 30-year-old man! Charming fantasy tackles a rare modern-day subject—innocence—and pulls it off thanks to Hanks' superb, seemingly guileless performance, and Marshall's surefooted direction. A real treat. Written by coproducers Gary Ross and Anne Spielberg. Later a Broadway musical. [PG]▼●●

Bigamist, The (1953) 80m.  D: Ida Lupino. Edmond O'Brien, Joan Fontaine, Ida Lupino, Edmund Gwenn, Jane Darwell, Kenneth Tobey. Compassionate look at lonely man who finds himself married to (and in love with) two different women. Extremely well acted; one of Lupino's best directorial efforts and the only time she ever directed herself. ▼

Big Bad Love (2002) C-111m.  D: Arliss Howard. Arliss Howard, Debra Winger, Paul LeMat, Rosanna Arquette, Angie Dickinson, Michael Parks, Alex Van, Zach Moody; voice of Sigourney Weaver. Off-beat but compelling tale of a frustrated writer who's trying to get his life in order—professionally and personally—having squandered his marriage and chance at fatherhood. Told in nonlinear spurts, combining reality with dreams and nightmares, the film manages to paint a rich picture of its main character, piece by piece. Not a perfect film, but emotionally true. Howard cowrote with his brother James, from Larry Brown's stories; Winger also produced. Super 35. [R]▼

Big Bad Mama (1974) C-83m.  D: Steve Carver. Angie Dickinson, Tom Skerritt, William Shatner, Susan Sennett, Robbie Lee, Dick Miller, Joan Prather, Royal Dano, Sally Kirkland. Sexy knock-off of BONNIE AND CLYDE has Angie and her two teen daughters spending as much time fooling around with partners Shatner and Skerritt as they do robbing banks. Angie's nude scenes make this a cable-TV favorite (and led to a sequel 13 years later!). Flavorful score by David Grisman. [R]▼

Big Bad Mama II (1987) C-83m. *½ D: Jim Wynorski. Angie Dickinson, Robert Culp, Danielle Brisebois, Julie McCullough, Bruce Glover. In this loosely linked sequel (more like a remake), Angie and her two daughters again shoot up rural, Depression-era America, robbing banks to avenge her husband's murder. Culp provides brief love interest. Archie Bunker's Place alumna Brisebois does a surprising topless scene. [R]▼

Big Bang, The (1990) C-81m.  D: James Toback. Fascinating documentary in which Toback poses some basic philosophical questions—why were we born?

who are we? and where are we going?—to a variety of people, from boxer/author José Torres to astronomer Fred Hess, basketball player Darryl Dawkins to film producer Don Simpson. Most amusing are the comments of an ex-mobster, and most sobering are those of an Auschwitz survivor. We even see Toback on camera, trying to finance the film. [R]▼

Big Bird Cage, The (1972) C-88m. ½ D: Jack Hill. Pam Grier, Anitra Ford, Sid Haig, Candice Roman, Vic Diaz, Carol Speed. Amusing spoof of Filipino prison films has pleasant team of Grier and Haig as thieving mercenaries who engineer a prison break from the outside. A follow-up to THE BIG DOLL HOUSE. Big Bounce, The (2004) C-89m.  D: George Armitage. Owen Wilson, Morgan Freeman, Gary Sinise, Sara Foster, Willie Nelson, Vinnie Jones, Bebe Neuwirth, Charlie Sheen, Harry Dean Stanton. Ne'er-do-well Wilson takes up with the sexy mistress of a wheeler-dealer on the North Shore of Oahu, despite friendly warnings from the local district judge (Freeman). Postcard views of

Hawaii and George S. Clinton's evocative music are abetted by plentiful eye-candy shots of shapely Foster, but the movie's good vibes drain away as the caper grows more convoluted. Sinise, Nelson, Neuwirth, and Stanton are wasted in throwaway roles. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Big Brass Ring, The (1999) C-104m.  D: George Hickenlooper. William Hurt, Miranda Richardson, Nigel Hawthorne, Irène Jacob, Ewan Stewart, Gregg Henry, Ron Livingston. Independent politician running for governor of Missouri—with his wife's money—is unnerved when his former mentor threatens to unveil a skeleton in his closet, with an eager investigative reporter waiting to pounce. Strong cast and impressive pedigree (based on an unproduced screenplay by Orson Welles and Oja Kodar) can't change the fact that the film sinks under its own weight. After a while the characters are simply boring. Debuted on cable TV. [R]▼

Big Brawl, The (1980) C-95m. ½ D: Robert Clouse. Jackie Chan, Jose Ferrer, Kristine DeBell, Mako, Ron Max. The martial arts are applied to '30s gangster movie set in Chicago. Big Bully (1996) C-97m. *½ D: Steve Miner. Rick Moranis, Tom Arnold, Julianne Phillips, Carol Kane, Jeffrey Tambor, Curtis

Armstrong, Faith Prince, Tony Pierce, Don Knotts, Stuart Pankin. Having parlayed his newly published book into an offer to teach a course at his old school, author Moranis is horrified to discover that his long unseen childhood tormentor is now the shop instructor. Comedy is so dull in the opening childhood flashbacks that it's already d.o.a. by the time Moranis and Arnold show up. Phillips disappears abruptly in the film's second half—lucky for her. [PG] ▼●●

Bette Midler, Lily Tomlin, Fred Ward, Edward Herrmann, Michele Placido, Daniel Gerroll, Barry Primus, Michael Gross, Joe Grifasi, Mary Gross, Seth Green. Two sets of twins are mismatched and separated at birth; years later the girls who've grown up in the boonies come to N.Y.C. for a showdown with the conglomerate that's going to wipe out their little town, hardly dreaming that the corporation is run by their identical twins! Agreeable farce never really catches fire, though Bette is terrific and the effects are remarkable. [PG] ▼●●

Big Chill, The (1983) C-103m.  D: Lawrence Kasdan. Tom Berenger, Glenn Close, Jeff Goldblum, William Hurt, Kevin Kline, Mary Kay Place, Meg Tilly, JoBeth Williams, Don Galloway. Entertaining, surface-level look at a group of former college-radical friends who've dropped back into Society. Wonderful acting ensemble, irresistible soundtrack of '60s hits help camouflage weaknesses of script—which bears more than passing resemblance to John Sayles' RETURN OF THE SECAUCUS SEVEN. (Trivia note: the deceased friend was played by Kevin Costner, whose scenes were cut from the finished film. But that's still him being dressed for his funeral under the main titles!) [R] ▼●●

Big City, The (1963-Indian) 131m.  D: Satyajit Ray. Madhabi Mukherjee, Anil Chatterjee, Vicky Redwood, Haren Chatterjee, Jaya Bhaduri, Haradhan Bannerjee. A proud Calcutta man is forced by financial circumstances to let his wife work; soon she is the only one with a job. Big Clock, The (1948) 95m.  D: John Farrow. Ray Milland, Charles Laughton, Maureen O'Sullivan, George Macready, Rita Johnson, Dan Tobin, Henry (Harry) Morgan. Tyrannical publisher of crime magazine (Laughton) commits murder; his editor (Milland) tries to solve case and finds all the clues pointing to himself. Vibrant melodrama; taut script by Jonathan Latimer from Kenneth Fearing novel. Elsa Lanchester has hilarious vignette as eccentric artist. Remade as NO WAY OUT (1987). ▼●

Big Combo, The (1955) 89m.  D: Joseph (H.) Lewis. Cornel Wilde, Jean Wallace, Brian Donlevy, Richard Conte, Lee Van Cleef, Robert Middleton, Earl Holliman, Helen Walker. Big Country, The (1958) C-166m.  D: William Wyler. Gregory Peck, Burl Ives, Jean Simmons, Carroll Baker, Charlton Heston, Chuck Connors, Charles Bickford. Overblown Western has ex-sea captain Peck arrive to marry Baker, but forced to take sides in battle against Ives and sons over water rights. Heston as quick-tempered ranch foreman and Ives (who won an Oscar) as burly patriarch stand out in energetic cast. Jerome Moross' score has become a classic. Technirama. ▼●●

Big Cube, The (1969) C-98m. *½ D: Tito Davison. Lana Turner, George Chakiris, Richard Egan, Dan O'Herlihy, Karin Mossberg. Big Daddy (1999) C-95m. ½ D: Dennis

An overgrown, irresponsible slacker tries to look after a young boy who's been dumped on his doorstep; naturally, he becomes attached to the youngster, and vice versa. Sandler vehicle is utterly contrived but delivers expected laughs; the courtroom climax is too silly for words. That's director Dugan as the man who won't cooperate on Halloween. [PG-13] ▼

Big Easy, The (1987) C-108m.  D: Jim McBride. Dennis Quaid, Ellen Barkin, Ned Beatty, John Goodman, Ebbe Roe Smith, Lisa Jane Persky, Charles Ludlam, Tom O'Brien, Grace Zabriskie, Marc Lawrence, Solomon Burke, Jim Garrison. Highly original crime yarn with steamy romance and unique New Orleans atmosphere. A stylish homicide detective (Quaid) runs afoul of the new, uptight assistant D.A. (Barkin) while investigating a local mob murder; soon they're romantically involved, even while they're at odds professionally. Sassy and sexy, with terrific Cajun music score. Written by Daniel Petrie, Jr. Later a cable TV series. [R] ▼

Big Empty, The (2003) C-92m.  D: Steve Anderson. Jon Favreau, Joey Lauren Adams, Bud Cort, Jon Gries, Daryl Hannah, Adam Beach, Gary Farmer, Rachael Leigh Cook, Kelsey Grammer, Sean Bean, Patti Smith, Danny Trejo, Melora Walters, Brent Briscoe. Favreau plays a loser actor who agrees to courier a suitcase to desert town peopled by loony hicks with more than a passing interest in alien visitors. Quirky, low-budget melodrama is ambitious but unsuccessful. The film is aptly titled. [R] ▼

Big Fat Liar (2002) C-87m. ½ D:

Shawn Levy. Frankie Muniz, Paul Giamatti, Amanda Bynes, Amanda Detmer, Donald Faison, Lee Majors, Sandra Oh, Russell Hornsby, Dustin Diamond. Perpetual liar Muniz can't get his dad to believe that one of his school assignments was ripped off by a movie producer—so, with a friend (Bynes), he sets off for Hollywood to prove it's true. There, he's forced to exact revenge on the mean-spirited, egocentric film exec. Kids may enjoy this well-paced slapstick outing; adults will find few surprises. Jaleel White appears unbilled. [PG] ▼

Big Fish (2003) C-125m. ½ D: Tim Burton. Ewan McGregor, Albert Finney, Billy Crudup, Jessica Lange, Helena Bonham Carter, Alison Lohman, Robert Guillaume, Steve Buscemi, Danny DeVito, Missi Pyle, Marion Cotillard. Reporter Crudup ends a long estrangement with his father when he learns the old man is dying, and tries to penetrate his dad's hearty, tale-spinning façade. McGregor plays the younger Finney, whose life is made up of one amazing adventure after another. John August adapted Daniel Wallace's novel, which is perfect fodder for director Burton and his sense of heightened reality—but instead of the bizarre and baroque, we get a world of wonder and amazement. Maintains a consistent and disarming tone from start to finish, with pitch-perfect performances. [PG-13] ▼

Big Fisherman, The (1959) C-149m. ½ D: Frank Borzage. Howard Keel, John Saxon, Susan Kohner, Herbert Lom, Martha Hyer, Ray Stricklyn, Alexander Scourby. Sprawling religious epic, from Lloyd Douglas' book about the life of St. Peter; seldom dull, but not terribly inspiring. Borzage's last film. Originally 184m., then cut to 164m. Super Panavision 70.

Big Fix, The (1978) C-108m.  D: Jeremy Paul Kagan. Richard Dreyfuss, Susan Anspach, Bonnie Bedelia, John Lithgow, F. Murray Abraham, Ofelia Medina, Fritz Weaver. Good vehicle for now-familiar Dreyfuss personality as 1960s-campus-radical-turned-private-eye Moses Wine, who becomes involved in tangled whodunit in which a former hippie cult leader figures prominently. Screenplay by Roger L. Simon, based on his novel. Look fast for Mandy Patinkin as a pool cleaner. Leon Redbone's "I Want to Be Seduced" is not in video version. [PG] ▼

Big Gamble, The (1961) C-100m. ½ D: Richard Fleischer. Stephen Boyd, Juliette Greco, David Wayne, Sybil Thorndike. Not-too-convincing account of Irish adventurer and bride Greco who dally on the African Ivory Coast seeking to build their future the easy way. CinemaScope.

Bigger Stronger Faster* (2008) C-106m.  D: Christopher Bell. Compelling documentary investigates performance-enhancing drugs, presenting many points of view, which yield often-surprising results. First-time filmmaker Bell has personal involvement with the topic (and the film) since he and his brothers grew up idolizing wrestlers and movie musclemen who, in most cases, later turned out to be using steroids. An eye-opening look at a subject that usually provokes knee-jerk responses. Film's asterisked subtitle is THE SIDE EFFECTS OF BEING AMERICAN. [PG-13]●

Bigger Than Life (1956) C-95m.  D: Nicholas Ray. James Mason, Barbara Rush, Walter Matthau, Robert Simon, Roland Winters. Compelling drama of teacher Mason who becomes hooked on drugs, and its devastating effects on him and his family. Mason also produced the film. Quite bold for its time. CinemaScope.

Biggest Bundle of Them All, The (1968) C-110m. ★½ D: Ken Annakin. Robert Wagner, Raquel Welch, Vittorio De Sica, Edward G. Robinson, Godfrey Cambridge. Supposedly a comedy, film is slapdash tale of amateur criminals who try to kidnap American gangster. Filmed in France and Italy, Panavision.▼

Big Girls Don't Cry ... They Get Even (1992) C-96m.  D: Joan Micklin Silver. Hillary Wolf, David Strathairn, Margaret Whitton, Griffin Dunne, Patricia Kalember, Adrienne Shelly, Dan Futterman, Ben Savage. The product of a mélange of multiple divorces and remarriages, teenager Wolf, fed up with various stepparents and half-siblings, hightails it during her current family's vacation. Bittersweet comedy is too superficial (and predictable) to say anything meaningful on a subject relevant to many teens. [PG]▼●●

Biggles: Adventures in Time (1986-British) C-108m.  D: John Hough. Neil Dickson, Alex Hyde-White, Fiona Hutchinson, Peter Cushing, Marcus Gilbert. Curious, occasionally entertaining sci-fi adventure with Hyde-White inexplicably traveling through time from 1986 N.Y.C. to WW1 Europe ... where he assists British flyboy Dickson. Based on characters created by Capt. W. E. Johns. Original British title: BIGGLES. [PG]▼●●

Big Green, The (1995) C-100m.  D: Holly Goldberg Sloan. Steve Guttenberg, Olivia d'Abo, Jay O. Sanders, John Terry, Chauncey Leopardi, Patrick Renna, Anthony Esquivel, Bug Hall. Overly familiar but inoffensive; OK for less discriminating children. [PG]▼●●

tious lawman Van Cleef is hired by a railroad tycoon to track down Mexican bandito Milian, who's accused of raping and murdering a young white girl, but slowly realizes he's being manipulated for a more sinister purpose. Arguably the best non-Sergio Leone spaghetti Western; an exciting, ironic yarn boasting stylish widescreen photography, a great Ennio Morricone score, and an incisive political edge that's even more pronounced in the uncut 105m. foreign-release version. Followed by BIG GUNDOWN 2. Techniscope.

Big Hand for the Little Lady, A (1966) C-95m.  D: Fielder Cook. Henry Fonda, Joanne Woodward, Jason Robards, Charles Bickford, Burgess Meredith. Excellent comedy centering on poker game in old West. Outstanding roster of character actors includes John Qualen, Paul Ford, and Robert Middleton. There's a neat surprise ending, too.▼●

Big Hangover, The (1950) 82m.  D: Norman Krasna. Van Johnson, Elizabeth Taylor, Leon Ames, Edgar Buchanan, Rosemary DeCamp, Gene Lockhart. Ambitious but noble war veteran Johnson, whose allergy to alcohol makes him drunk at inopportune moments, joins a staid law firm. How long will he remain there? And will he hook up with wealthy Taylor? Predictable, as well as silly and boring.▼

Big Heat, The (1953) 90m.  D: Fritz Lang. Glenn Ford, Gloria Grahame, Jocelyn Brando, Alexander Scourby, Lee Marvin, Carolyn Jones, Jeanette Nolan. Time has taken the edge off once-searing story of cop determined to bust city crime ring; famous coffee-hurling scene still jolts, and Grahame is excellent as bad girl who helps Ford.▼●●

Big Hit, The (1998) C-99m.  D: Che-Kirk Wong. Mark Wahlberg, Lou Diamond Phillips, Christina Applegate, China Chow, Avery Brooks, Bokeem Woodbine, Antonio Sabato, Jr., Lainie Kazan, Elliott Gould, Sab Shimono, Lela Rochon. Expert hit man Wahlberg is beset by insecurity, a confusing romantic life, and a treacherous partner (Phillips). The result is gunfire, car chases, explosions, and martial arts galore. Unique action comedy with Hong Kong flavors doesn't always work, but the cast is lively and the stunt work awesome, fueled by a blazing pace. [R]▼●●

Big House, The (1930) 86m.  D: George Hill. Wallace Beery, Chester Morris, Robert Montgomery, Lewis Stone, Karl Dane, Leila Hyams. The original prison drama, this set the pattern for all later copies; it's still good, hard-bitten stuff with one of Beery's best tough-guy roles. Won Oscars for Writing (Frances Marion) and Sound Recording.▼●

and Main are vagabond thieves in colonial America, Conte a moralistic doctor.

Big Jake (1971) C-110m.  D: George Sherman. John Wayne, Richard Boone, Maureen O'Hara, Patrick Wayne, Chris Mitchum, Bobby Vinton, Bruce Cabot. Tough Westerner is called back by estranged wife to rescue their grandson from a gang of kidnappers headed by Boone (who's especially good). Underrated Western; well paced, handsomely shot. Wayne's fifth and final pairing with O'Hara; Chris Mitchum and the Duke's son Patrick play his sons. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Big Jim McLain (1952) 90m. ½ D: Edward Ludwig. John Wayne, Nancy Olson, James Arness, Alan Napier, Veda Ann Borg, Hans Conried. Wayne and Arness are HUAC investigators who go Commie-hunting in Hawaii. One of the Duke's few dull films, but fascinating as a relic of its era. ▼●●

Big Kahuna, The (2000) C-90m. ½ D: John Swanbeck. Kevin Spacey, Danny DeVito, Peter Facinelli. Absorbing adaptation of Roger Rueff's play Hospitality Suite, essentially a three-character piece about two world-weary salesmen and a naive young colleague at an out-of-town convention. Their criticism clashes with the young man's religious fervor as they wait for an important customer to show up at their hotel suite. As photographed plays go this one is pretty good, with top-notch performances, but it never quite becomes a movie. Co-produced by Spacey. [R] ▼●

Big Knife, The (1955) 111m.  D: Robert Aldrich. Jack Palance, Ida Lupino, Wendell Corey, Jean Hagen, Rod Steiger, Shelley Winters, Ilka Chase, Everett Sloane, Wesley Addy, Paul Langton, Nick Dennis. Clifford Odets' cynical view of Hollywood comes across in this involving (albeit occasionally overheated) drama, chronicling a string of crises in the life of movie star Charlie Castle (Palance). Fine performances almost overcome stereotypes; Steiger chews the scenery as a despotic studio head. ▼●●

Big Land, The (1957) C-92m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. Alan Ladd, Virginia Mayo, Edmond O'Brien, Julie Bishop. Cattle owners and grain farmers join together to bring railroad link to Texas; easygoing, familiar.

Big Leaguer (1953) 70m. ½ D: Robert Aldrich. Edward G. Robinson, Vera-Ellen, Jeff Richards, Richard Jaeckel, William Campbell, Carl Hubbell, Paul Layton, Al Campanis. Robinson uplifts this standard baseball tale as real-life ex-major-leaguer John B. "Hans" Lobert, who runs a baseball tryout camp. The scenario follows a group of hopefuls who dream of professional stardom under his watchful eye.

Big Lebowski, The (1998) C-117m. ½ D: Joel Coen. Jeff Bridges, John Goodman,

Julianne Moore, Steve Buscemi, Peter Stormare, David Huddleston, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Flea, Sam Elliott, John Turturro, David Thewlis, Ben Gazzara, Tara Reid. One big shaggy-dog joke, courtesy of the Coen brothers, about a slacker who's mistaken for a crime bigwig of the same name—and then gets hired by the guy to pay off a ransom. Mostly an excuse for off-the-wall character vignettes, some of which are amusing, some of which are just . . . strange. Minor Coen concoction with a most agreeable cast. Turturro is a standout as Jesus the bowler, but Bridges' Dave the Dude has become a pop culture icon. [R] ▼●●

Big Lift, The (1950) 120m. ½ D: George Seaton. Montgomery Clift, Paul Douglas, Cornell Borchers, O. E. Hasse. GI flight technicians involved in post-WW2 Berlin airlift and romance with German women. More interesting for on-location photography than uneven storyline. ▼●

Big Momma's House (2000) C-98m.  D: Raja Gosnell. Martin Lawrence, Nia Long, Paul Giamatti, Terrence Dashon Howard, Ella Mitchell, Jascha Washington, Anthony Anderson, Cedric the Entertainer. FBI agent (and disguise expert) Lawrence and partner Giamatti are sent to Georgia to stake out the home of a woman whose granddaughter may lead them to a dangerous criminal. Eventually, Lawrence pretends to be the aptly named Big Momma. Broad comedy is enthusiastically performed but thin as tissue paper. Followed by a sequel. [PG-13] ▼●

Big Momma's House 2 (2006) C-99m. *½ D: John Whitesell. Martin Lawrence, Nia Long, Emily Procter, Zachary Levi, Mark Moses, Kat Dennings, Chloë Grace Moretz, Marisol Nichols, Sarah Joy Brown, Dan Lauria. FBI agent Lawrence again dons a fat suit and transforms himself into the title character; here, he poses as a nanny to spy on the alleged designer of a deadly computer worm. Gratuitous sequel is an uneasy mixture of stale humor and goopy sentiment. [PG-13] ●

Big Mouth, The (1967) C-107m. ½ D: Jerry Lewis. Jerry Lewis, Harold Stone, Susan Bay, Buddy Lester, Del Moore, Paul Lambert. Typical Lewis effort, with Jerry involved in murder and search for missing treasure in California. ▼

Big Night, The (1951) 75m. ½ D: Joseph Losey. John Barrymore, Jr., Preston Foster, Howland Chamberlain, Joan Lorring, Dorothy Comingore, Howard St. John. Brooding account of rebellious teenager Barrymore's emotional flare-up with humanity at large; well done.

Big Night (1996) C-107m. ½ D: Stanley Tucci, Campbell Scott. Stanley Tucci, Minnie Driver, Tony Shalhoub, Ian Holm, Isabella Rossellini, Campbell Scott, Allison Janney, Caroline Aaron, Marc Anthony. Endearing story of Italian immigrant brothers trying to survive as restaurateurs in 1950s America; one is an artist in the kitchen, the other a would-be businessman. Their bombastic rival (Holm) gives them a shot at the brass ring by inviting Louis Prima to be their guest one night. Finely tuned performances, amusing vignettes and observations make this small endeavor worthwhile, but it's too slow and quiet for its own good. Tucci also coscripted; codirector Scott has a small but funny part as a Cadillac salesman. The feast on-screen is mouthwatering! [R] ▼●●

Puckish pest Moore chronicles the real-life events that occur (mostly at his own instigation) while on a book tour to promote his best-selling Downsize This! Self-aggrandizing documentary is sometimes smarmy, sometimes as invasive as anything on Candid Camera . . . but it's also fast and consistently funny, as Moore routinely shows up at someone's corporate headquarters to launch some mischief. [PG-13] ▼●●

Big Parade, The (1925) 141m. * D: King Vidor. John Gilbert, Renee Adoree, Hobart Bosworth, Claire McDowell, Claire Adams, Karl Dane, Tom O'Brien. One of the best war films ever, and a high-water mark for silent cinema. Clean-shaven Gilbert plays an all-American boy who's shipped off to France during WW1, where he becomes a man in every sense of the word. Adoree is unforgettable as the simple French girl with whom he falls in love. Filled with memorable vignettes and the most harrowingly realistic battle scenes ever put on film (until recent years). A triumph for Vidor and all concerned. Written by Harry Behn and Laurence Stallings. ▼●

Christopher Guest. Kevin Bacon, Emily Longstreth, J. T. Walsh, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Michael McKean, Kim Miyori, Teri Hatcher, Dan Schneider, Jason Gould, Tracy Brooks Swope. Slight but good-natured comedy about Hollywood wheeling and dealing. Bacon is a naive student filmmaker courted by a movie studio exec and swallowed whole into The System. Lots of inside jokes for Hollywood audiences. Very funny performance by Leigh as an arty dingbat, and many amusing cameos, including unbilled Martin Short as an agent. Guest's first feature directing (he also scripted with costar McKean and Michael Varhol). [PG-13] ▼●●

Hard to believe one film could pack so much into its narrative; a rich, moving, realistic, and poetic film. Carradine narrates and plays Fuller's alter ego, complete with cigar. Reconstructed in 2004 to more closely resemble Fuller's intended cut, at 163m. [PG] ▼●●

Big Scam, The SEE: Nightingale Sang in Berkeley Square, A

Big Score, The (1983) C-85m.  D: Fred Williamson. Fred Williamson, John Saxon, Richard Roundtree, Nancy Wilson, Ed Lauter, D'Urville Martin, Michael Dante, Joe Spinell. Barely adequate DIRTY HARRY clone with narc Williamson ignoring the rules and taking on thug Spinell. (In fact, this script was originally commissioned by Clint Eastwood for a Dirty Harry vehicle that never got made.) [R] ▼●

Big Shakedown, The (1934) 64m.  D: John Francis Dillon. Bette Davis, Ricardo Cortez, Glenda Farrell, Charles Farrell, Adrian Morris. Inconsequential tale. Davis rejects husband Farrell when he joins forces with mobster Cortez in cosmetic fraud.

Big Shot, The (1942) 82m. ½ D: Lewis Seiler. Humphrey Bogart, Irene Manning, Susan Peters, Minor Watson, Chick Chandler, Richard Travis, Stanley Ridges, Howard da Silva. OK grade-B gangster yarn with Bogey a three-time loser involved in robbery frameup and prison break.

Big Shots (1987) C-90m. ½ D: Robert Mandel. Ricky Busker, Darius McCrary, Robert Joy, Robert Prosky, Jerzy Skolimowski, Paul Winfield. So-so juvenile adventure about an inexperienced white boy and streetwise urban black who come together and become involved with dead bodies, hired killers and other mayhem. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Big Show, The (1961) C-113m. ½ D: James B. Clark. Esther Williams, Cliff Robertson, Nehemiah Persoff, Robert Vaughn. Drama of family conflict, similar to 1949's HOUSE OF STRANGERS, somehow set in a circus with Williams in a rare dramatic role. Glug! CinemaScope.

Big Sky, The (1952) 122m.  D: Howard Hawks. Kirk Douglas, Dewey Martin, Elizabeth Threalt, Arthur Hunnicutt, Buddy Baer, Steven Geray, Hank Worden, Jim Davis. Camaraderie and conflict as fur-trapper Douglas leads expedition up the Missouri River. Eventful, evocative film adapted from A. B. Guthrie, Jr. book by Dudley Nichols; well directed by Hawks. Originally released at 141m. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼

Big Sleep, The (1946) 114m. * D: Howard Hawks. Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall, John Ridgely, Martha Vickers, Louis Jean Heydt, Regis Toomey, Peggy Knudsen, Dorothy Malone, Bob Steele, Elisha Cook, Jr. Classic mystery thriller from Raymond Chandler's first novel; detective Philip Marlowe (Bogart) becomes involved with wealthy Bacall and her uncontrollable little sister Vickers. So convoluted even Chandler didn't know who committed one murder, but so incredibly entertaining that no one has ever cared. Powerhouse direction, unforgettable dialogue; script by William Faulkner, Jules Furthman and Leigh Brackett. Pre-release version (shown to Armed Forces overseas in 1945) runs 116m., with 18m. of scenes reshot or unused in the official release. This version has less of Bogie and Bacall and a more linear plot, but is somehow less exotic and interesting. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Big Sleep, The (1978-British) C-100m.  D: Michael Winner. Robert Mitchum, Sarah Miles, Candy Clark, Oliver Reed, Richard Boone, James Stewart, Joan Collins, Edward Fox, John Mills, Harry Andrews, Richard Todd, Colin Blakely. Follow-up to FAREWELL, MY LOVELY is less a remake of the Hawks classic than a more faithful rendering of the Chandler novel, albeit updated and set in London. If you can get by that, it's tolerable, with a strong cast, fresh locations, and thankful lack of camp. [R]▼●

Big Squeeze, The (1996) C-98m. *½ D: Marcus De Leon. Lara Flynn Boyle, Peter Dobson, Danny Nucci, Luca Bercovici, Teresa Despina, Michael Chieffo. Boyle works in a bar to support her injured ballplayer husband (Bercovici)—then learns he's neglected to inform her of a $130,000 settlement he's received, so she enlists a drifter-hustler (a miscast Dobson) to get the money. Pretty poor. Video version is 7m. longer, if you care. Aka BODY OF A WOMAN. [R]▼●●

Big Steal, The (1949) 71m.  D: Don Siegel. Robert Mitchum, Jane Greer, William Bendix, Patric Knowles, Ramon Novarro. Mitchum is on the trail of Army payroll thief Knowles; he in turn is chased by Bendix, and becomes involved with enticing Greer. Well-made robbery caper, set in Mexico and shot on location, is full of terrific plot twists.▼●●

Big Store, The (1941) 80m.  D: Charles Riesner. Groucho, Chico and Harpo Marx, Tony Martin, Virginia Grey, Margaret Dumont, Douglass Dumbrille, Henry Armetta. Big comedown for Marxes in weak film of detective Groucho investigating crooked Dumbrille's department store. Low spot is Martin's "The Tenement Symphony."▼●●

Big Street, The (1942) 88m. ½ D: Irving Reis. Henry Fonda, Lucille Ball, Barton MacLane, Eugene Pallette, Agnes Moorehead, Sam Levene, Ray Collins, Hans Conried, Ozzie Nelson and Orchestra. Damon Runyon produced this treacly adaptation of his own Collier's magazine story "Little Pinks," about a timid busboy who devotes himself to a self-centered nightclub singer. Odd (and oddly watchable), with very unconventional roles for both Fonda and Ball.▼●●

Big Tease, The (2000) C-86m. ½ D: Kevin Allen. Craig Ferguson, Frances Fisher, Mary McCormack, David Rasche, Chris Langham, Sara Gilbert, John Pankow, Donal Logue, Charles Napier, Larry Miller, Ted McGinley. Scottish hairdresser mistakenly thinks he's been invited to L.A. to take part in the World Freestyle Hairdressing Championship, but won't be deterred from competing for the Platinum Scissors award. Amusing if lightweight romp through the tresses of Tinseltown. Drew Carey (Ferguson's costar on TV's The Drew Carey Show) is among a handful of celebrity cameos. Cowritten by Ferguson. [R]▼●

Big Time (1988) C-87m.  D: Chris Blum. Tom Waits. Concert footage filmed at L.A.'s Wiltern Theater is combined with scenes of the chameleonlike Waits as various and sundry characters: you'll see Waits the sleazy lounge lizard, Waits the gravel-voiced crooner, and Waits the truly amazing performer. For Tom Waits fans, this is the next best thing to seeing him live. [PG]▼

Big T.N.T. Show, The (1966) 93m.  D: Larry Peerce. David McCallum, Roger Miller, Joan Baez, Ike and Tina Turner, Bo Diddley, The Ronettes, Ray Charles, The Lovin' Spoonful. Follow-up to THE T.A.M.I. SHOW casts a wider musical net, with lesser results, but Diddley, Tina Turner, and Ronnie Spector keep it pumping. Shot on tape, transferred to film; footage re-used in THAT WAS ROCK.

Big Top Pee-wee (1988) C-90m. ½ D: Randal Kleiser. Pee-wee Herman, Penelope Ann Miller, Kris Kristofferson, Valeria Golino, Susan Tyrrell, Albert Henderson, Kevin Peter Hall, Kenneth Tobey, Stephanie Hodge, Benicio Del Toro; voice of Wayne White. Farmer Pee-wee allows a traveling circus to stay on his property, and quickly develops circus fever—as well as a romance with the pretty trapeze artist (Golino). Quirky if overly bland comedy (co-written and produced by Pee-wee's alter ego, Paul Reubens) has many clever moments, along with some curious ones. Ought to please kids and family audiences. [PG] ▼●●

Big Town, The (1987) C-109m.  D: Ben Bolt. Matt Dillon, Diane Lane, Tommy Lee Jones, Tom Skerritt, Lee Grant, Bruce Dern, Suzy Amis, David Marshall Grant, Lolita David (Davidovich), Cherry Jones, Gary Farmer, Sarah Polley. Small-town craps shooter with a "golden arm" comes to Chicago in the 1950s to become a big-time gambler, but still has a lot to learn. With that cast (and Lane as a stripper) it's easy to watch . . . but just as easy to forget. [R] ▼●●

Big Trail, The (1930) 110m.  D: Raoul Walsh. John Wayne, Marguerite Churchill, El Brendel, Tully Marshall, Tyrone Power, Sr., David Rollins, Ian Keith. Epic Western may seem creaky to some viewers, but remains one of the most impressive early talkies, with its grand sweep and naturalistic use of sound. John Wayne was "discovered" for starring role, and already shows easygoing charm. Also filmed in pioneer 70mm widescreen process called Grandeur, at 122m. ▼

Big Trees, The (1952) C-89m.  D: Felix Feist. Kirk Douglas, Eve Miller, Patrice Wymore, Edgar Buchanan, John Archer, Alan Hale, Jr., Roy Roberts, Ellen Corby. Brutally ambitious lumberman Douglas runs afoul of a religious sect—and practically everybody else around him—in this cornball outdoor melodrama. A remake of VALLEY OF THE GIANTS with stock footage from that earlier color movie. ▼●●

Big Trouble (1985) C-93m.  D: John Cassavetes. Peter Falk, Alan Arkin, Beverly D'Angelo, Charles Durning, Robert Stack, Paul Dooley, Valerie Curtin, Richard Libertini. Harried insurance salesman Arkin needs money to put his three sons through Yale, so he becomes involved with ditsy D'Angelo in a plot to kill her loony husband (Falk). Pretty silly stuff, although the sardine-flavored liqueur does provide a couple of chuckles. Reteaming of talents from THE IN-LAWS (1979) had a troubled production and barely received theatrical release. Andrew Bergman wrote the script under the name Warren Bogle. [R] ▼●●

nel, Dwight Meyer (Heavy D), Omar Epps, Jason Lee, Sofia Vergara, Andy Richter. Farcical comedy set in Miami, where various characters' lives collide as two hit men from N.J. (Kehler and a very funny Farina) try to take out a local hotshot (Tucci), while his wife (Russo) falls in love with an ex-newspaperman (Allen). Meanwhile, a stolen nuclear device is being peddled by a couple of transplanted Russians. Lots of funny lines and situations, but goes flat somewhere along the way. Based on a novel by humorist Dave Barry. [PG-13] ▼

Big Trouble in Little China (1986) C-99m. *½ D: John Carpenter. Kurt Russell, Kim Cattrall, Dennis Dun, James Hong, Victor Wong, Kate Burton, Suzee Pai. Blowhard trucker Russell finds himself knee-deep in Chinatown intrigue (and mumbo-jumbo) when a friend's fiancée is kidnapped right in front of his eyes. High-tech INDIANA JONES-style adventure has heavy tongue-in-cheek attitude, but everything else about it is heavy, too . . . including Russell's John Wayne-ish swagger. Good electronic music score by director Carpenter. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Big Wednesday (1978) C-120m. ½ D: John Milius. Jan-Michael Vincent, William Katt, Gary Busey, Lee Purcell, Patti D'Arbanville, Sam Melville, Robert Englund, Barbara Hale, Reb Brown, Steve Kanaly, Michael Talbot, Charlene Tilton. Half of a good flick on surfing, Pacific Coast-style, early '60s. Up to midway point, a ridiculous comedy about macho Vincent and his fun-loving, destructive ways. As he and buddies Katt and Busey get older and action is brought up to '70s, dramatic content improves. Hale (who plays Mrs. Barlow) and Katt are real-life mother and son. Milius later recut to 104m. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Big Wheel, The (1949) 92m. ½ D: Edward Ludwig. Mickey Rooney, Thomas Mitchell, Spring Byington, Mary Hatcher, Allen Jenkins, Michael O'Shea. Rooney is determined race-car driver following in father's footsteps despite dad's death on track; familiar plot well done. ▼

Big White, The (2005-U.S.-German-Canadian-New Zealand) C-94m. ½ D: Mark Mylod. Robin Williams, Holly Hunter, Giovanni Ribisi, Alison Lohman, Tim Blake Nelson, Woody Harrelson, W. Earl Brown. Minor but amusing black comedy set in snowy Alaska, where desperate travel agent Williams concocts a scheme to collect insurance on his supposedly dead brother—and then stumbles onto a body just right for the purpose at hand. Ribisi is terrific as an insurance investigator who obsesses over the obvious fraudulence of the case. [R] ▼

Biker Boyz (2003) C-110m.  D: Reggie Rock Bythewood. Laurence Fishburne, Derek Luke, Orlando Jones, Djimon Hounsou,

Lisa Bonet, Brendan Fehr, Larenz Tate, Kid Rock, Rick Gonzalez, Meagan Good, Salli Richardson-Whitfield, Vanessa Bell Calloway, Kadeem Hardison, Terence Dashon Howard, Eriq La Salle, Tyson Beckford. By-the-numbers action drama about the subculture of California motorcycle clubs, spotlighting males of various ages who are addicted to fancy bikes and challenge each other in illegal road races. Fishburne is the longtime undefeated champ, Luke the ambitious young challenger. Attempts to focus on characters and relationships instead of just action, but the results are uninspired. [PG-13] ▼

Bikini Beach (1964) C-100m. ½ D: William Asher. Frankie Avalon, Annette Funicello, Keenan Wynn, Martha Hyer, Harvey Lembeck, Don Rickles, John Ashley, Jody McCrea, Meredith MacRae, Donna Loren, Candy Johnson, Timothy Carey, "Little" Stevie Wonder, Michael Nader. Third BEACH PARTY movie is second best, with Avalon in dual role as Frankie and a British singing rage called "The Potato Bug" (get it?). Relic of bygone era. Followed by PAJAMA PARTY. Panavision. ▼

Bill & Ted's Bogus Journey (1991) C-98m. ½ D: Peter Hewitt. Keanu Reeves, Alex Winter, William Sadler, Joss Ackland, George Carlin, Hal Landon, Jr., Pam Grier, Amy Stock-Poynton, Sarah Trigger. In this sequel, the dimwitted duo travel to Heaven, Hell, and points in between as they duel with an evil pair of robots who are posing as Bill and Ted. Along the way they meet (among others) Albert Einstein, the Easter Bunny, and the Grim Reaper! Special effects almost take over in this outing, but B&T are even dumber here than in the original film. One more sequel and they qualify as the Hope and Crosby of the '90s, dudes! [PG] ▼

Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure (1989) C-90m.  D: Stephen Herek. Keanu Reeves, Alex Winter, George Carlin, Bernie Casey, Amy Stock-Poynton, Terry Camilleri, Dan Shor. Inseparable teenage airheads, who are about to flunk their history course, are given the opportunity to go traveling through time to meet (and round up) such historical figures as Napoleon, Joan of Arc, and Abraham Lincoln. Radical! Reeves and Winter are great fun as Bill and Ted, but this goofy comedy never takes off as it should. Followed by an animated TV series, a live-action TV series, and BILL & TED'S BOGUS JOURNEY. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Bill Cosby—"Himself" (1982) C-105m. ½ D: Bill Cosby. Likable in-concert film, featuring Cosby on the subjects of child rearing, human nature, family life. Pleasant but hardly "an event." [PG] ▼

Greer are her perplexed parents, Berlinger her boyfriend. Duke sings, runs, prances. Techniscope. ▼

Billion Dollar Brain (1967-British) C-111m.  D: Ken Russell. Michael Caine, Karl Malden, Ed Begley, Oscar Homolka, Françoise Dorléac. Third in series that began with THE IPCRESS FILE finds Harry Palmer (Caine) again up to his neck in exciting espionage, this time in Scandinavia. Based on Len Deighton's novel. Followed 30 years later by a pair of cable TV sequels. Panavision. ▼

Billion Dollar Hobo, The (1978) C-96m. *½ D: Stuart E. McGowan. Tim Conway, Will Geer, Eric Weston, Sydney Lassick, John Myhers, Frank Sivero. Dreary comedy about bumbling Conway becoming a hobo to qualify for inheritance. [G] ▼

Bill of Divorcement, A (1932) 69m.  D: George Cukor. John Barrymore, Katharine Hepburn, Billie Burke, David Manners, Henry Stephenson. Barrymore gives sensitive performance as man released from mental institution who returns to wife Burke and gets to know his daughter for the first time. Dated but worth seeing; notable as Hepburn's screen debut. Originally released at 75m. Remade in 1940. ▼

Bill of Divorcement, A (1940) 74m. ½ D: John Farrow. Maureen O'Hara, Adolphe Menjou, Fay Bainter, Herbert Marshall, Dame May Whitty, C. Aubrey Smith, Patricia Knowles. Adequate remake with Menjou as mentally ill man who suddenly regains his sanity and returns home, with resulting dramatic fireworks. Scripted by Dalton Trumbo. Retitled NEVER TO LOVE.

Billy Budd (1962-U.S.-British) 122m. ½ D: Peter Ustinov. Robert Ryan, Peter Ustinov, Melvyn Douglas, Terence Stamp, Paul Rogers, David McCallum. Melville's classic good vs. evil novella set in British Navy, 1797. Naive, incorruptible seaman is court-martialed for murder of sadistic master-at-arms. Film deals simply with heavier issues of morality. Sterling performances by all. Ustinov also produced and coscripted with DeWitt Bodeen. Stamp's film debut. CinemaScope. ▼

Billy Elliot (2000-British) C-110m. ½ D: Stephen Daldry. Julie Walters, Jamie Bell, Jamie Draven, Gary Lewis, Jean Heywood, Stuart Wells, Mike Elliot, Janine Burkett. Beautifully realized story, set in 1984, about an 11-year-old boy (Bell, in a glorious debut) growing up in a motherless household in a harsh English mining town where most of the workers are on strike. An inadvertent encounter with a dance class opens a new door in his life. A feel-good movie in the very best sense; Lee Hall's script dodges the formulaic ingredients you expect to find. Impressive film debut for theater director Daldry. Later a Broadway musical. [R]▼

Billy Galvin (1986) C-95m. ½ D: John Gray. Karl Malden, Lenny Von Dohlen, Joyce Van Patten, Toni Kalem, Keith Szarabajka, Alan North, Paul Guilfoyle, Barton Heyman. Well-meaning, fairly effective meat-and-potatoes drama about title character (Von Dohlen), who wants to be a construction worker like his old man (Malden), a tough, obstinate codger who does everything to discourage him. Not without its share of moments, but also a bit too obvious. Good performances. An American Playhouse presentation. [PG]▼

Billy Jack (1971) C-114m. *½ D: T. C. Frank (Tom Laughlin). Tom Laughlin, Delores Taylor, Clark Howat, Kenneth Tobey, Bert Freed, Julie Webb. Half-breed karate expert protects a free school imperiled by reactionary townspeople in this grass-roots hit. Its politics are highly questionable, and its "message" of peace ridiculous, considering the amount of violence in the film. Memorable title sequence depicting slaughter of wild mustangs introduced hit song "One Tin Soldier" by Coven. Preceded by BORN LOSERS; followed by THE TRIAL OF BILLY JACK and BILLY JACK GOES TO WASHINGTON. [PG]▼

Billy Jack Goes to Washington (1977) C-155m.  D: Tom Laughlin. Tom Laughlin, Delores Taylor, Sam Wanamaker, Lucie Arnaz, E. G. Marshall, Pat O'Brien. Contrived update of MR. SMITH GOES TO WASHINGTON, with writer-director-star Laughlin, a supposed "everyman," fighting big-time corruption in the Senate. Basic story is still good, but it goes on forever. Panavision.▼

Billy Liar (1963-British) 98m. ½ D: John Schlesinger. Tom Courtenay, Julie Christie, Wilfred Pickles, Mona Washbourne, Ethel Griffies, Finlay Currie, Leonard Rossiter. Cast excels in story of ambitious but lazy young man caught in dull job routine who escapes into fantasy world, offering some poignant vignettes of middle-class life. Based on Keith Waterhouse novel and play; scripted by Waterhouse and Willis Hall (who also cowrote stage version). Followed by a TV series and a musical. CinemaScope.▼

Billy Madison (1995) C-89m. *½ D: Tamra Davis. Adam Sandler, Darren McGavin, Bridgette Wilson, Bradley Whitford, Josh Mostel, Norm Macdonald, Mark Beltzman, Larry Hankin, Theresa Merritt. Another comic celebration of infantilism and crudity, as spoiled rich kid Sandler must repeat grades 1-12 in order to take over his millionaire father's business. A little of this goes a long way. Sandler (who can be funny and endearing when he wants to be) also cowrote the script. His Saturday Night Live castmate Chris Farley and Steve Buscemi appear unbilled. [PG-13]▼

Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe SEE: Diamond Horseshoe

Billy Rose's Jumbo (1962) C-125m.  D: Charles Walters. Doris Day, Stephen Boyd, Jimmy Durante, Martha Raye, Dean Jagger. OK circus picture, at best during Rodgers and Hart songs, well staged by Busby Berkeley. Durante (who had starred in the 1935 Broadway production) and Raye are marvelous. Songs include "The Most Beautiful Girl in the World," "My Romance," "This Can't Be Love." Aka JUMBO. Panavision.▼

Billy's Hollywood Screen Kiss (1998) C-92m. ½ D: Tommy O'Haver. Sean P. Hayes, Brad Rowe, Richard Ganoung, Meredith Scott Lynn, Paul Bartel, Armando Valdes-Kennedy, Annabelle Gurwitch, Holly Woodlawn. Unemployed L.A. photographer Billy (Hayes) decides to recreate a series of classic movie kisses from Hollywood's golden age, utilizing drag queens and other gay pals. He immediately gets sidetracked upon meeting gorgeous Gabriel (Rowe). Flashy low-budget effort that manages to be both humorous and sensitive, though the writer-director isn't kidding when he calls it "A Tom O'Haver Trifle." He says his inspiration came from the ambiguity of the Clift-de Havilland romance in THE HEIR-ESS! Panavision. [R]▼

Billy the Kid (1930) 90m. ½ D: King Vidor. Johnny Mack Brown, Wallace Beery, Kay Johnson, Karl Dane, Roscoe Ates. Realistic early talkie Western with marshal Beery trying to capture outlaw Brown; some performances seem badly dated today. Re-titled: THE HIGHWAYMAN RIDES. Originally shown in early Realife 70 mm. widescreen process.

Billy the Kid (1941) C-95m. ½ D: David Miller. Robert Taylor, Brian Donlevy, Ian Hunter, Mary Howard, Gene Lockhart, Lon Chaney, Jr. Cast looks uncomfortable in remake of 1930 Western, but plot is sturdy enough for OK viewing, with Taylor in title role and Donlevy as marshal.▼

Billy the Kid vs. Dracula (1966) C-74m.  D: William Beaudine. Chuck Courtney, John Carradine, Melinda Plowman, Virginia Christine, Walter Janovitz, Bing Russell, Olive Carey, Harry Carey, Jr. Famed outlaw decides it's time to get married—but doesn't realize that his bride's "uncle" is a vampire. Campy nonsense. [V]●

Billy Two Hats (1974) C-99m. ½ D: Ted Kotcheff. Gregory Peck, Desi Arnaz, Jr., Jack Warden, Sian Barbara Allen, David Huddleston. Offbeat Western filmed in Israel, about a middle-aged Scot and a young half-Indian pursued by the law for bank robbery. Peck is appealing in unusual character role. Retitled THE LADY AND THE OUTLAW. [PG]▼

Biloxi Blues (1988) C-106m.  D: Mike Nichols. Matthew Broderick, Christopher Walken, Matt Mulhern, Corey Parker, Casey Siemaszko, Markus Flanagan, Michael Dolan, Penelope Ann Miller, Park Overall. The further adventures of Eugene Jerome, Neil Simon's youthful alter ego introduced in BRIGHTON BEACH MEMOIRS. Here, WW2 is winding down, and Eugene (Broderick) forsakes Brooklyn for Biloxi, Miss., and ten grueling weeks of army basic training, where he comes that much closer to manhood. Quite wonderful, in its best moments. Followed by TV movie BROADWAY BOUND. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Bingo (1991) C-87m. *½ D: Matthew Robbins. Cindy Williams, David Rasche, Robert J. Steinmiller, Jr., David French, Kurt Fuller, Joe Guzaldo, Glenn Shadix. Basic update of the "boy wants a dog, boy can't have a dog, boy finds a dog who has run away from the circus, boy hides the dog from his parents, boy must move out of town and leave the dog behind, boy finds dog again" genre. Kids might like it, but it's a real bow-wow. [PG]▼●●

Bingo Long Traveling All-Stars & Motor Kings, The (1976) C-110m.  D: John Badham. Billy Dee Williams, James Earl Jones, Richard Pryor, Ted Ross, DeWayne Jessie, Stan Shaw. Bright, original comedy about baseball player Williams trying to buck owners of Negro National League in 1939 by starting his own razzle-dazzle team. Williams' character is modeled after Satchel Paige, while Jones' is based on Josh Gibson. [PG]▼●●

Birch Interval (1977) C-104m.  D: Delbert Mann. Eddie Albert, Rip Torn,

Bird (1988) C-160m. ½ D: Clint Eastwood. Forest Whitaker, Diane Venora, Michael Zelniker, Samuel E. Wright, Keith David, Michael McGuire, James Handy. Heartfelt but overlong biography of legendary saxophonist Charlie Parker, who revolutionized jazz music in the 1940s. While there's much music on hand, this is mostly the story of one man's drug addiction and self-destructive life. Fails to balance its story with any explanation of Parker's influence in the world of music. Excellent and believable performances help. Parker plays on the soundtrack, though all accompanying music was rerecorded in 1988. (The film won an Oscar for sound recording.) [R]▼●●

birdcage, The (1996) C-119m. ½ D: Mike Nichols. Robin Williams, Gene Hackman, Nathan Lane, Dianne Wiest, Hank Azaria, Christine Baranski, Dan Futterman, Calista Flockhart, Tom McGowan, Grant Heslov, Kirby Mitchell. Polished if obvious remake of LA CAGE AUX FOLLES will please anyone who hasn't seen or doesn't remember the original: Williams is fairly subdued as a South Beach, Miami, nightclub owner who's forced to ask his high-strung, drag-queen performer/partner (Lane) to hide away while his son brings his prospective in-laws—an ultra-conservative couple—to dinner. Screenplay by Elaine May, who added fresh lines to the foolproof blueprint of the original. [R]▼●●

Birdman of Alcatraz (1962) 143m.  D: John Frankenheimer. Burt Lancaster, Karl Malden, Thelma Ritter, Betty Field, Neville Brand, Edmond O'Brien, Hugh Marlowe, Telly Savalas. Pensive study of prisoner Robert Stroud who during his many years in jail became a world-renowned bird authority. Film becomes static despite imaginative sidelights to enlarge scope of action. 148m. version used for overseas release now turning up here. ▼●●

Bird of Paradise (1932) 80m.  D: King Vidor. Joel McCrea, Dolores Del Rio, John Halliday, Skeets Gallagher, Lon Chaney, Jr. Exotic but empty South Seas romance with McCrea as adventurer who falls in love with native-girl Del Rio. Handsome but unmoving; remade in 1951. ▼

Bird of Paradise (1951) C-100m.  D: Delmer Daves. Louis Jourdan, Debra Paget, Jeff Chandler, Everett Sloane. Jourdan's marriage to South Sea isle chief's daughter causes native uprising in grandly filmed but vapid tale. Remake of 1932 film.

Warren. Preposterous thriller about a Bulgarian dissenter and an American photojournalist who unite to battle a slimy businessman. Tilly, playing Chamberlain's daughter (and Milushev's love interest), seems to be in another movie. It took four writers to concoct this clinker, which barely earned a theatrical release. [R]▼

Bird on a Wire (1990) C-110m.  D: John Badham. Mel Gibson, Goldie Hawn, David Carradine, Bill Duke, Stephen Tobolowsky, Joan Severance, Jeff Corey. Star power is about all this lame action-comedy has going for it, as drug-running murderers force Mel, who's been hiding in the F.B.I. witness relocation program, and Goldie, his onetime sweetheart, to take it on the lam. Script on a shoestring. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Rod Taylor, Tippi Hedren, Jessica Tandy, Suzanne Pleshette, Veronica Cartwright, Ethel Griffies, Charles McGraw, Joe Mantell, Elizabeth Wilson, Doodles Weaver, Richard Deacon, Suzanne Cupito (Morgan Brittany). Hitchcock's classic about a woman (Hedren) and mass bird attacks that follow her around isolated coastal California community. Not for the squeamish; a delight for those who are game. Hold on to something and watch. Script by Evan Hunter, loosely based on Daphne du Maurier's story. Followed by a terrible TV sequel in 1994. ▼

Birds and the Bees, The (1956) C-94m.  D: Norman Taurog. George Gobel, Mitzi Gaynor, David Niven, Reginald Gardiner, Fred Clark, Hans Conried. Bland remake of THE LADY EVE about rich playboy who breaks off romance with cardshark girlfriend, but later decides he still loves her. Screenplay by Sidney Sheldon (and Preston Sturges). Birds Do It (1966) C-95m.  D: Andrew Marton. Soupy Sales, Tab Hunter, Arthur O'Connell, Edward Andrews, Beverly Adams, Frank Nastasi. Soupy's first starring vehicle has him under the spell of serum that enables him to fly. Fairly entertaining for kids.

Birds, The Bees and the Italians, The (1966-Italian-French) 115m.  D: Pietro Germi. Virna Lisi, Gastone Moschin, Nora Ricci, Alberto Lionello, Franco Fabrizi. Very funny bedroom farce chronicling the sexual and romantic exploits of various residents in a small Italian town.

Bird With the Crystal Plumage, The (1970-Italian-West German) C-96m. ½ D: Dario Argento. Tony Musante, Suzy Kendall, Eva Renzi, Enrico Maria Salerno, Mario Adorf, Renato Romano, Umberto Rano, Werner Peters. American writer living in Rome witnesses attempted murder in gallery; he and his mistress become involved in case. Uneven; best viewed on large screen. Reissued as THE PHANTOM OF TERROR. Cromscope. [PG]▼

Birdy (1984) C-120m. ½ D: Alan Parker. Matthew Modine, Nicolas Cage, John Harkins, Sandy Baron, Karen Young, Bruno Kirby. Cage, reunited with schizophrenically silent Modine in an army hospital, flashes back to their adolescence in working-class Philadelphia and on Modine's lifelong desire to be a bird. William Wharton's allegorical novel, updated from WW2 to Vietnam, makes a surprisingly workable movie despite a weak "gag" ending. Terrific performances, with Modine a standout in a tricky, physically demanding role. Screenplay by Sandy Kroopf and Jack Behr. [R]▼

Birgit Haas Must Be Killed (1981-French) C-105m. ½ D: Laurent Heynemann. Philippe Noiret, Jean Rochefort, Lisa Kreuzer, Bernard Le Coq. Unscrupulous police officer Noiret dupes innocent Rochefort into romancing former left-wing terrorist Kreuzer, intending to have her assassinated and hang the blame on Rochefort! Intriguing idea never really catches fire, despite honorable efforts; might have worked better if the two male stars had switched roles. ▼

Birth (2004) C-100m.  D: Jonathan Glazer. Nicole Kidman, Cameron Bright, Danny Huston, Lauren Bacall, Alison Elliott, Arliss Howard, Anne Heche, Peter Stormare, Ted Levine, Cara Seymour, Zoe Caldwell. A man dies while jogging in Manhattan's Central Park, and a baby is born. Ten years later, as the man's widow is about to remarry, she is confronted by a 10-year-old boy who claims to be her husband. Eerie, riveting drama is remarkably effective in building and sustaining a mood of unease—and uncertainty. Striking score by Alexandre Desplat and cinematography by Harris Savides. Kidman is marvelous. Glazer wrote the screenplay with Jean-Claude Carrière and Milo Addica (who appears as a doorman). [R]▼

Birthday Girl (2002-British-U.S.) C-93m.  D: Jez Butterworth. Nicole Kidman, Ben Chaplin, Vincent Cassel, Mathieu Kassovitz. Nerdy, sexually repressed British bank clerk (Chaplin) orders a Russian bride over the Internet; when she arrives he discovers (to his dismay) that she doesn't speak a word of English . . . but that turns out to be the least of his troubles. The woman's "cousin" and a friend soon show up and turn Chaplin's life inside out. Amusing at first, then unexpectedly dark: either way, the story is unbelievable—and unsatisfying. Super 35. [R]▼

Birthday Party, The (1968-British) C-127m.  D: William Friedkin. Robert Shaw, Patrick Magee, Dandy Nichols, Sydney Tafler, Moultrie Kelsall, Helen Fraser. Uncinematic film version of Harold Pinter's play about boarding house and its mysterious tenant (Shaw) is helped by good acting and playwright's usual superior dialogue. [G]

Birth of a Nation, The (1915) 186m. * D: D. W. Griffith. Lillian Gish, Mae

Marsh, Henry B. Walthall, Miriam Cooper, Robert Harron, Wallace Reid, Joseph Henabery. The landmark of American motion pictures. Griffith's epic story of two families during Civil War and Reconstruction is still fascinating. Sometimes the drama survives intact; other times, one must watch in a more historical perspective. Griffith's portrayal of Ku Klux Klan in heroic role has kept this film a center of controversy to the present day. Running time varies from print to print. ▼●●

Birth of the Blues (1941) 85m.  D: Victor Schertzinger. Bing Crosby, Brian Donlevy, Carolyn Lee, Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, Mary Martin. Fiction about Crosby organizing jazz band in New Orleans has great music like "St. Louis Blues," "St. James Infirmary," "Melancholy Baby" and title tune to uplift fair story. ▼

Biscuit Eater, The (1940) 83m.  D: Stuart Heisler. Billy Lee, Cordell Hickman, Helene Millard, Richard Lane, Lester Mathews. Warm, winning adaptation of James Street story about two boys—one white, one black—who take unwanted dog from litter and try to turn him into champion bird dog. A B picture that was regarded as the sleeper of the year. Remade in 1972.

Biscuit Eater, The (1972) C-90m. ½ D: Vincent McEveety. Earl Holliman, Lew Ayres, Godfrey Cambridge, Patricia Crowley, Beah Richards, Johnny Whitaker, George Spell. Wholesome, uninspired Disney remake with Whitaker and Spell as the young friends who devote themselves to training a champion bird dog. [G] ▼

Bishop Misbehaves, The (1935) 86m. ½ D: E. A. Dupont. Edmund Gwenn, Maureen O'Sullivan, Norman Foster, Lucile Watson, Reginald Owen, Dudley Digges, Lilian Bond, Melville Cooper. Tongue-in-cheek mystery with Gwenn (in his first American film) as an English bishop with a taste for detective stories who gets mixed up in a real jewel heist. Enjoyable but slow paced.

Bishop's Wife, The (1947) 108m.  D: Henry Koster. Cary Grant, Loretta Young, David Niven, Monty Woolley, James Gleason, Gladys Cooper, Elsa Lanchester. Christmas fantasy of suave angel (Grant) coming to earth to help Bishop Niven and wife Young raise money for new church. Engaging performances by all—and fun to see children from IT'S A WONDERFUL LIFE, Karolyn Grimes and Bobby Anderson, appearing together. Also shown in computer-colored version. Remade as THE PREACHER'S WIFE. ▼●●

Bitch, The (1979-British) C-93m. BOMB D: Gerry O'Hara. Joan Collins, Kenneth Haigh, Michael Coby, Ian Hendry, Carolyn Seymour, Sue Lloyd, John Ratzenberger. Weak entry in the Bimbo Chic genre, a follow-up to THE STUD, based on a book by Joan's sister, Jackie Collins. Joan gets involved in everything from smuggling to fixed horse racing in attempts to save her failing London disco, but who cares? And, yes, there is a title song. [R] ▼

Bitter Moon (1992-French-British) C-139m. ½ D: Roman Polanski. Peter Coyote, Emmanuelle Seigner, Hugh Grant, Kristin Scott Thomas, Victor Banerjee, Sophie Patel. Deliciously trashy tale of wealthy, wheelchair-bound jerk Coyote, a failed American writer who's been living in Paris with voluptuous French wife Seigner. Once they were ecstatically in love, but their relationship has taken on a bizarre, sadistic bent; they go on an ocean voyage, and beguile a very proper British couple (Grant, Scott Thomas). Often overwrought, with laughable dialogue and not-to-be-believed sex scenes. A guilty pleasure, to be sure. Polanski also produced and coscripted. Stockard Channing appears unbilled. [R] ▼●●

Bitter Rice (1948-Italian) 107m.  D: Giuseppe De Santis. Silvana Mangano, Vittorio Gassman, Raf Vallone, Doris Dowling, Lia Corelli. Effective portrayal of the dreary, backbreaking existence of women toiling in the Po Valley rice fields, exploited by the rice growers and their go-betweens. The seductive Mangano, as a worker who betrays her comrades, became an international star. ▼

Bitter Sweet (1940) C-92m.  D: W.S. Van Dyke II. Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, George Sanders, Felix Bressart, Lynne Carver, Ian Hunter, Sig Ruman. Ignore plot, enjoy Noel Coward's songs in lavishly filmed operetta. Wonderful Herman Bing provides funniest scene as shopkeeper who hires Nelson and Jeanette to give his daughter music lessons. Filmed before in England in 1933. ▼

Bittersweet Love (1976) C-92m. ½ D: David Miller. Lana Turner, Robert Lansing, Celeste Holm, Robert Alda, Scott Hylands, Meredith Baxter Birney. Excellent cast wasted on improbable story of young married couple (expecting a baby) suddenly discovering they are half-brother and sister. Termination of pregnancy and marriage are then talked to death. [PG] ▼

Bitter Tea of General Yen, The (1933) 89m. ½ D: Frank Capra. Barbara Stanwyck, Nils Asther, Gavin Gordon, Toshia Mori, Richard Loo, Lucien Littlefield, Clara

Blandick, Walter Connolly. May seem antiquated to modern audiences, but Capra's sensuous story of American woman's strange fascination with a Chinese warlord is still dazzling. A moody, beautifully atmospheric, sensitively performed film. ▼

Bitter Tears of Petra Von Kant, The (1973-German) C-119m.  D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Margit Carstensen, Hanna Schygulla, Irm Hermann, Eva Mattes, Katrin Schaake, Gisela Fackeldey. Wealthy lesbian fashion designer Petra Von Kant (Carstensen) worries over habits of inconsistent lover Schygulla and unmercifully bosses secretary Hermann. The action is limited to Petra's apartment, and the pace is annoyingly slow. Based on a Fassbinder play; overrated by some. ▼

Bitter Vengeance (1994) C-90m.  D: Stuart Cooper. Virginia Madsen, Bruce Greenwood, Kristen Hocking, Eddie Velez, Gordon Jump, Carlos Gomez, Tim Russ. Disappointing thriller about a self-pitying bank security guard (Greenwood) who takes out his anger on his supportive wife (Madsen). He eventually begins cheating on her, and concocts a robbery scheme in which his mate will take the fall. Holds your interest for a while, but eventually becomes much too implausible. [R] ▼

Bitter Victory (1957-French) 82m.  D: Nicholas Ray. Richard Burton, Curt Jurgens, Ruth Roman, Raymond Pellegrin, Anthony Bushell, Christopher Lee. Strong WW2 story with Jurgens as unfit commander who receives undeserved citation for mission against Rommel's desert headquarters; Roman is his wife who's had prior affair with officer Burton. 103m. versions now in circulation are from British release of this film. CinemaScope. ▽

Bix: An Interpretation of a Legend (1990-Italian) C-100m. ½ D: Pupi Avati. Bryant Weeks, Emile Levisetti, Sally Groth, Mark Collver, Ray Edelstein, Julia Ewing, Barbara Wilder, Romano Luccio Orzari. Fragmented bio of 1920s jazz legend Bix Beiderbecke, who skyrocketed to fame—and burned out just as fast. Dramatically uneven, but enhanced by loving recreation of the period (using many authentic locations in and around Bix's home town of Davenport, Iowa) and great reproductions of his music by Bob Wilber and some first-class musicians. Originally 20m. longer. ▼

Black and White (2000) C-100m.  D: James Toback. Bijou Phillips, Brooke Shields, Robert Downey, Jr., Allan Houston, Ben Stiller, Claudia Schiffer, Stacy Edwards, Gaby Hoffmann, Elijah Wood, Scott Caan, Jared Leto, Marla Maples, Method Man, Power, Raekwon, Joe Pantoliano, James Toback, Mike Tyson. Edgy N.Y.C. slice-of-life about social and sexual interaction between blacks and whites of various backgrounds, including a white teen hipster (Phillips) who hangs out in

Harlem with an ambitious rap artist, a basketball player (real-life hoop star Houston) who's manipulated by his beautiful white girlfriend (Schiffer) and a documentary filmmaker (Shields) who's shooting a film on why white kids are so fascinated by hip-hop culture. Crammed with interesting ideas and observations. Toback also scripted. Super 35. [R] ▼

Mockumentary follows his efforts to rescue his reputation by gathering a team of underdogs and attempting to win an important competition. Uneven but sweet, with a few laugh-out-loud moments and well-improvised characterizations. Made in 2004. ▽

Blackbeard's Ghost (1968) C-107m.  D: Robert Stevenson. Peter Ustinov, Dean Jones, Suzanne Pleshette, Elsa Lanchester, Joby Baker, Elliott Reid, Richard Deacon. Jones conjures up title character (Ustinov) who helps protect his descendants' home from being taken over by racketeers who want to make it a casino. Engaging slapstick comedy from Disney. ▼

Blackbeard, the Pirate (1952) C-99m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Robert Newton, Linda Darnell, William Bendix, Keith Andes, Richard Egan, Irene Ryan. Newton is rambunctious as 17th-century buccaneer, with lovely Darnell his captive; fun for a while, but Newton's hamming soon grows tiresome. ▼

Black Beauty (1971-British) C-106m. ½ D: James Hill. Mark Lester, Walter Slezak,

Peter Lee Lawrence, Ursula Glas. The story of a horse who passes from owner to owner; fails to capture the qualities that make Anna Sewall's novel a classic, but it's not bad. Filmed before in 1946. [G]▼●●

Black Beauty (1994) C-85m.  D: Caroline Thompson. Sean Bean, David Thewlis, Jim Carter, Peter Davison, Alun Armstrong, John McEnery, Eleanor Bron, Peter Cook, Andrew Knott; voice of Alan Cumming. Handsome remake of the Anna Sewall family classic about a horse's trials and tribulations as it passes from one owner to another in 19th-century England, experiencing everything from benevolent guardianship to ignorant abuse. Narrated, quite engagingly, by the horse itself. Evocative score by Danny Elfman. Screenwriter Thompson's directing debut. Made in England. [G]▼●●

Black Belly of the Tarantula (1972-Italian) C-88m. *½ D: Paolo Cavara. Giancarlo Giannini, Stefania Sandrelli, Barbara Bouchet. Folks are being murdered in mysterious ways at health and beauty salon; none too exciting. [R]●

Glenn Ford, Anne Francis, Vic Morrow, Louis Calhern, Sidney Poitier, Richard Kiley, Warner Anderson, Margaret Hayes, Emile Meyer, John Hoyt, Rafael Campos, Paul Mazursky. Excellent adaptation of Evan Hunter's novel (scripted by the director) of a teacher's harrowing experiences in N.Y.C. school system. Poitier memorable as a troubled youth. Hard-hitting entertainment. This was the first film to feature rock music—Bill Haley's "Rock Around the Clock" is played over the opening credits. Look for a young Jamie Farr (billed as Jameel Farah). Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Black Book, The (1949) SEE: Reign of Terror

Black Book (2006-Dutch-British-German-Belgian) C-145m. ½ D: Paul Verhoeven. Carice van Houten, Sebastian Koch, Thom Hoffman, Halina Reijn, Waldemar Kobus, Derek de Lint, Christian Berkel, Dolf de Vries, Peter Blok. Expansive saga of beautiful Jewish woman who goes to work for the Dutch resistance movement during WW2 and has to cozy up to a Nazi officer to carry out her most vital assignment. Fast-paced film, dotted with action, covers a lot of ground but quickly turns heavy-handed, punctuating its engrossing story with old-fashioned music cues and close-ups of sneering SS officers. Buoyed considerably by van Houten's charismatic and sexy performance. Verhoeven scripted with his longtime Dutch colleague Gerard Soeteman. Super 35. [R]●

Black Bounty Killer, The SEE: Boss Nigger Black Caesar (1973) C-96m. ½ D: Larry Cohen. Fred Williamson, Art Lund, Julius W. Harris, Gloria Hendry, D'Urville Martin. Black Castle, The (1952) 81m.  D: Nathan Juran. Richard Greene, Boris Karloff, Stephen McNally, Paula Corday, Lon Chaney, Jr., John Hoyt. Black Cat, The (1934) 65m. ½ D: Edgar G. Ulmer. Karloff (Boris Karloff), Bela Lugosi, David Manners, Jacqueline Wells (Julie Bishop), Lucille Lund, Henry Armetta, Harry Cording. Polished horror film with bizarre sets, even more bizarre plot. Confrontation of architect/devil-worshiper Karloff and doctor Lugosi is still fascinating. The first of Boris and Bela's many teamings. Look fast for John Carradine as an organist at Satanic Mass. Film bears absolutely no resemblance to eponymous Edgar Allan Poe tale.▼●●

Black Cat, The (1941) 70m. ½ D: Albert S. Rogell. Basil Rathbone, Hugh Herbert, Broderick Crawford, Bela Lugosi, Gale Sondergaard, Anne Gwynne, Gladys Cooper. Herbert and Crawford provide laughs, the others provide chills, in lively comedy-mystery not to be confused with earlier horror film. Look for Alan Ladd in a small role. Dizzying farce about gypsy families who live on the Danube and a bitter rivalry between two elders whose offspring cause them no end of headaches. Kusturica (who also co-scripted) builds to a crescendo of slapstick action in this exuberant film that reminds us how much we all have in common, regardless of nationality. [R]▼

Black Cauldron, The (1985) C-80m. ½ D: Ted Berman, Richard Rich. Voices of Grant Bardsley, Susan Sheridan, Freddie Jones, John Byner, John Hurt. Disney's expensive, ambitious animated feature is a pretty good but unmemorable sword-and-sorcery tale about a young boy who must find powerful black cauldron before it falls into the hands of evil Horned King. Good storytelling for kids, with impressive effects animation for buffs. Supporting characters Gurgi (a good guy) and Creeper (a baddie) have all the best moments. Super Technirama 70. [PG]▼●●

Black Christmas (1975-Canadian) C-98m. ½ D: Bob Clark. Olivia Hussey, Keir Dullea, Margot Kidder, John Saxon, Art Hindle, Douglas McGrath, Andrea Martin. Aka SILENT NIGHT, EVIL NIGHT and STRANGER IN THE HOUSE. [R]▼●●

Black Christmas (2006) C-90m. BOMB D: Glen Morgan. Katie Cassidy, Michelle Trachtenberg, Kristen Cloke, Crystal Lowe, Lacey Chabert, Mary Elizabeth Winstead, Andrea Martin, Oliver Hudson. Someone just had to remake the 1975 frightfest for the blood-and-gore generation. With no fresh ideas in sight, this version sets up a group of celebrating sorority sisters as the next victims of a nutcase who's headed for his childhood home for a little merry slay time. Might have been bearable if we hadn't seen it all a hundred times before. At least the diabolical elf of terror makes clever use of ornaments. Look for Andrea Martin (who appeared in the 1975 version) as a soothing force of sanity for the girls. Unrated version runs 94m. Super 35. [R]●

Black Dahlia, The (2006-U.S.-German) C-121m. *½ D: Brian De Palma. Josh Hartnett, Scarlett Johansson, Aaron Eckhart, Hilary Swank, Mia Kirshner, Mike Starr, Fiona Shaw, Patrick Fischler, James Otis, John Kavanagh, Pepe Serna, Rachel Miner, Gregg Henry, Rose McGowan, Anthony Russell. Torpid story of two L.A. cops in the 1940s whose partnership is strained by reverberations from the grisly murder of would-be starlet Elizabeth Short (Kirshner). Ostensibly based on James Ellroy's novel and the notorious real-life "Black Dahlia" killing, this boring, muddled film turns the case into a sidebar for a much duller tale of two damaged men and the women in their lives. Makes curious use of footage from the silent film THE MAN WHO LAUGHS. Kevin Dunn and k. d. lang appear unbilled. Super 35. [R]●

Black Dog (1998) C-88m. *½ D: Kevin Hooks. Patrick Swayze, Randy Travis, Meat Loaf, Gabriel Casseus, Brian Vincent, Brenda Strong, Stephen Tobolowsky, Charles S. Dutton. An ex-con trucker with a suspended license makes one last run to avoid foreclosure, and his rig turns out to be full of concealed assault weapons that his corrupt boss is planning to sell. Black Eagle (1988) C-93m. ½ D: Eric Karson. Sho Kosugi, Jean-Claude Van Damme, Vladimir Skontarovsky, Doran Clark, Bruce French, William H. Bassett. Standard martial arts adventure. Standard fare. [PG]▼

Black Fist (1976) C-105m. ½ D: Timothy Galfas, Richard Kaye. Richard Lawson, Philip Michael Thomas, Annazette Chase, Dabney Coleman, Robert Burr. Coleman's gritty performance as a crooked cop elevates this standard blaxploitation drama about tough Lawson, hired by a crime boss as a streetfighter. Aka THE BLACK STREET-FIGHTER and HOMEBOY. [R]▼●

Black Fox (1962) 89m. ½ D: Louis Clyde Stoumen. Narrated by Marlene Dietrich. Exceedingly taut, grim documentary tracing the rise and fall of Adolf Hitler, focusing on his use of power during Third Reich. Academy Award winner as Best Documentary Feature. ▼●

Black Friday (1940) 70m. ½ D: Arthur Lubin. Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Stanley Ridges, Anne Nagel, Anne Gwynne, Virginia Brissac. Well-made little chiller with Karloff putting gangster's brain into a professor's body. Jekyll-Hyde results are fascinating; Ridges excellent as victim. Lugosi has small, thankless role as gangster. ▼●

Black Fury (1935) 92m.  D: Michael Curtiz. Paul Muni, Karen Morley, William Gargan, Barton MacLane, John Qualen, J. Carrol Naish, Vince Barnett. Hard-hitting melodrama about exploitation of coal miners, with Muni as robust "bohunk" who gets in over his head. Realistic, strikingly filmed, if a bit uneven dramatically. Muni's accent makes it tough to understand him at times. Based on a true story. ▼

Black Girl (1972) C-97m.  D: Ossie Davis. Brock Peters, Leslie Uggams, Claudia McNeil, Louise Stubbs, Gloria Edwards, Peggy Pettitt, Ruby Dee. One of the best black-oriented films of the 1970s spotlights the complex relationship between the title character (Pettitt), an aspiring dancer, and her emotionally clueless mother (Stubbs). Well acted by the entire cast; scripted by J. E. Franklin, and based on her play. [PG]

Black Gold (1947) C-92m. ½ D: Phil Karlson. Anthony Quinn, Katherine DeMille, Elyse Knox, Ducky Louie, Kane Richmond, Moroni Olsen, Raymond Hatton, Thurston Hall, Darryl Hickman. Effective, if sentimental, tale of Indian Quinn who discovers oil on his land and trains a Chinese orphan (Louie) to be the jockey for his beloved thoroughbred. Low-budget, but warmly acted, with excellent use of Cinecolor process. Quinn and DeMille were then husband and wife. ▼

Black Hand (1950) 93m. ½ D: Richard Thorpe. Gene Kelly, J. Carrol Naish, Teresa Celli, Marc Lawrence, Frank Puglia. If you can buy Kelly as an Italian immigrant in N.Y.C. (circa 1908), you'll probably go along with this naive but entertaining story about a young man's attempt to avenge his father's murder by the infamous—and seemingly unstoppable—Italian crime syndicate known as the Black Hand. ▼

Black Hawk Down (2001) C-143m.  D: Ridley Scott. Josh Hartnett, Ewan McGregor, Tom Sizemore, Eric Bana, William Fichtner, Ewen Bremner, Sam Shepard, Gabriel Casseus, Kim Coates, Ron Eldard, Thomas Guiry, Danny Hoch, Željko Ivanek, Jeremy Piven, Orlando Bloom, Steven Ford, Hugh Dancy. Harrowing dramatization of the disastrous 1993 U.S. mission in Somalia, which resulted in the deaths of 18 American soldiers. Characters and political context take a backseat (intentionally) to the ferocious battle scenes, recreated in brutal detail by Scott, cinematographer Slawomir Idziak, and a team of technical wizards. Not for the faint of heart. Based on the book by Mark Bowden. Won Oscars for Film Editing (Pietro Scalia) and Sound. Alternate version runs 151m. Super 35. [R] ▼

Black Hole, The (1979) C-97m. ½ D: Gary Nelson. Maximilian Schell, Anthony Perkins, Robert Forster, Joseph Bottoms, Yvette Mimieux, Ernest Borgnine; uncredited voices of Roddy McDowall, Slim Pickens. U.S. expedition finds long-lost madman in space about to explore a "black hole." Disney studios' ambitious sci-fi effort is a throwback to 1957 Saturday matinee fodder, with thin story, cardboard characters. OK on that level—with great special effects—but should have been much better. Technovision. [PG—Disney's first] ▼

Black Ice (1992-Canadian) C-90m.  D: Neill Fearnley. Michael Nouri, Michael Ironside, Joanna Pacula, Mickey Jones, Brent Heale, Arne Olsen, Rick Skene. Following the accidental death of her politician lover, Pacula has philosophical cabbie Nouri drive

her from Detroit to Seattle during the winter; they're pursued by murderous Ironside. Good performances, and handsome wintry landscapes, can't overcome a complicated plot—and its unsatisfactory resolution. Unrated video version runs 92m. [R] ▼

Black Jack SEE: Wild in the Sky

Black Knight (2001) C-95m. ½ D: Gil Junger. Martin Lawrence, Marsha Thomason, Tom Wilkinson, Vincent Regan, Daryl Mitchell, Kevin Conway, Michael Burgess, Isabell Monk. A 21st-century homeboy who works at a run-down medieval theme park is magically transported back to 14th-century England, where he must use his wits to survive, and forms an alliance with a disgraced knight (Wilkinson) to help restore a deposed queen to the throne. Comedy vehicle for Lawrence gives you pretty much what you expect, though it would have meant a lot more if a better, more famous actress had played the queen. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Black Legion (1936) 83m.  D: Archie Mayo. Humphrey Bogart, Erin O'Brien-Moore, Dick Foran, Ann Sheridan, Joe Sauer (Sawyer), Helen Flint, Dickie Jones, Henry Brandon. Factory worker Bogart, disappointed at losing a promotion to a coworker named "Dombrowski," becomes involved with a Ku Klux Klan-ish group. Powerful, still-relevant social drama, compactly told. ▼

Black Like Me (1964) 107m.  D: Carl Lerner. James Whitmore, Roscoe Lee Browne, Lenka Petersen, Sorrell Booke, Will Geer, Al Freeman, Jr., Dan Priest, Raymond St. Jacques. Strong drama based on actual history of reporter who took drugs that allowed him to pass for black so he could experience racial prejudice firsthand. Some aspects of presentation are dated, but themes are still timely. ▼

Black Magic (1949) 105m. ½ D: Gregory Ratoff. Orson Welles, Akim Tamiroff, Nancy Guild, Raymond Burr, Frank Latimore. Welles is predictably florid in chronicle of famous charlatan Cagliostro who seeks to rise to power in 18th-century Italy. (He codirected this handsome film, uncredited.) ▼

Blackmail (1929-British) 86m.  D: Alfred Hitchcock. Anny Ondra, Sara Allgood, John Longden, Charles Paton, Donald Calthrop, Cyril Ritchard. Young woman kills man who tries to rape her, then finds herself caught between investigating detective (who happens to be her boyfriend) and a blackmailer. Hitchcock's—and England's—first talking picture is still exciting, especially for fans and students of the director's work. Originally shot as a silent; that version, running 75m., also exists (and is significantly better). Leading lady Ondra had a heavy accent, so her voice was dubbed for the talkie. ▼ Blackmail (1939) 81m. ½ D: H. C. Potter. Edward G. Robinson, Ruth Hussey, Gene Lockhart, Bobs Watson, Guinn Williams, John Wray, Arthur Hohl. Well-respected Robinson, an expert at putting out oil fires, has a secret past: he escaped from jail after being falsely convicted of robbery. Slimy Lockhart shows up and threatens blackmail. Taut, clever drama-thriller, marred only by a pat finale.

Black Mama, White Mama (1972-U.S.-Filipino) C-87m.  D: Eddie Romero. Pam Grier, Margaret Markov, Sid Haig, Lynn Borden. Clichéd, violent female rehash of THE DEFIANT ONES, as blonde Markov and black Grier escape chained together from a Filipino prison camp. Haig is hammy in cowboy costume. Story co-written by Jonathan Demme. [R]▼

Black Marble, The (1980) C-113m. ½ D: Harold Becker. Robert Foxworth, Paula Prentiss, Harry Dean Stanton, Barbara Babcock, John Hancock, Raleigh Bond, Judy Landers, James Woods, Michael Dudikoff, Anne Ramsey, Christopher Lloyd. Insightful but curiously unmemorable love story about sexy cop Prentiss and her new partner (Foxworth), an alcoholic romantic drowning in the reality of his job. Misses much of the humor that marked Joseph Wambaugh's novel. Panavision. [PG]▼

Black Mask (1997-Hong Kong) C-96m.  D: Danny Lee. Jet Li, Karen Mok, Françoise Yip, Lau Ching Wan, Patrick Lung Kang, Anthony Wong. Biologically engineered super-soldier Li gives up a peaceful life to battle his equally enhanced former comrades, who are trying to take over the Hong Kong drug rackets. Smart, stylish, lightning-paced thriller is an ideal showcase for the dazzling skills of Li (who, in his disguise, resembles the Green Hornet's Kato). Recut and revised from 106m. Hong Kong version. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [R]▼

Black Moon Rising (1986) C-100m. BOMB D: Harley Cokliss. Tommy Lee Jones, Linda Hamilton, Robert Vaughn, Richard Jaeckel, Bubba Smith, Lee Ving, William Sanderson. Vaughn's hot-car ring steals the Black Moon, one of those zoom-across-the-salt-flats dream machines no taller than a munchkin's shin; high-tech thief Jones pursues. Punk-rocker-turned-actor Ving wears a coat and tie, but that's about it for novelty value; this one deserves to get a Big Moon Rising. From a story by John Carpenter. [R]▼

Black Narcissus (1947-British) C-99m. * D: Michael Powell, Emeric Pressburger. Deborah Kerr, David Farrar, Sabu, Jean Simmons, Kathleen Byron, Flora Robson, Esmond Knight. Visually sumptuous, dramatically charged movie, from Rumer Godden novel, about nuns trying to establish a mission in a remote Himalayan outpost amid formidable physical and emotional challenges. One of the most breathtaking color films ever made (winning Oscars for cinematographer Jack Cardiff and art director Alfred Junge). Scenes in which Sister Superior Kerr recalls her former life, a key plot element, were originally censored from American prints.▼

Black Orchid, The (1959) 96m. ½ D: Martin Ritt. Sophia Loren, Anthony Quinn, Ina Balin, Jimmie Baird, (Peter) Mark Richman, Naomi Stevens, Frank Puglia. Fabricated soaper of bumbling businessman (Quinn) romancing criminal's widow (Loren) and the problem of convincing their children that marriage will make all their lives better. VistaVision.▼

Black Orpheus (1959-French-Brazilian) C-103m. ½ D: Marcel Camus. Breno Mello, Marpessa Dawn, Lea Garcia, Adhemar da Silva, Lourdes De Oliveira. Street-car conductor Mello and country-girl Dawn fall in love in Rio de Janeiro during Carnival. Lyrical updating of the Orpheus and Eurydice legend is beautifully acted and directed. Oscar winner for Best Foreign Film; rhythmic score by Luis Bonfá and Antonio Carlos Jobim. Remade as ORFEU.▼

Blackout (1978-Canadian-French) C-89m.  D: Eddy Matalon. Jim Mitchum, Robert Carradine, Belinda Montgomery, June Allyson, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Ray Milland. Violent story of criminals who terrorize apartment dwellers during N.Y.'s 1977 power blackout. Balanced with black comedy for so-so results. [R]▼

Black Rain (1989) C-126m. ½ D: Ridley Scott. Michael Douglas, Andy Garcia, Ken Takakura, Kate Capshaw, Yusaku Matsuda, Shigeru Koyama, John Spencer. Tough, violent, foulmouthed action yarn about street-worn N.Y.C. cop and his partner who are supposed to deliver a Japanese mobster to cops in Osaka—then wind up pursuing him on his own turf. Too long, too predictable at times, but slick and entertaining. Super 35. [R]▼

Black Rain (1989-Japanese) 123m.  D: Shohei Imamura. Yoshiko Tanaka, Kazuo Kitamura, Etsuko Ichihara, Shoichi Ozawa, Norihei Miki, Keisuke Ishida. Sombre, restrained, and very moving story detailing five years in the life of a family which survived Hiroshima, and the ways their bodies and souls are poisoned by the fallout—or "black rain." A quietly observant character study with a number of haunting black and white images.▼

Black Rainbow (1991-British) C-100m.

 D: Mike Hodges. Rosanna Arquette, Jason Robards, Tom Hulce, Mark Joy, Ron Rosenthal, John Bennes, Linda Pierce. Offbeat, intriguing psychological drama-chiller with Arquette impressive as a medium who offers public exhibitions of her abilities. During one of them, she "sees" a murder and the killer—just before the crime is committed. Robards is her besotted father, a character worthy of Eugene O'Neill. Occasionally loses its way, but there's more than enough originality and good acting to compensate. Hodges also scripted; filmed in North Carolina. [R] ▼

Black Robe (1991-Canadian-Australian) C-101m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Lothaire Bluteau, August Schellenberg, Aden Young, Sandrine Holt, Tantoo Cardinal. Epic look at a 17th-century Jesuit priest who goes to Quebec to colonize the "Indian" tribes. Director Beresford travels much the same territory as DANCES WITH WOLVES, but paints a much bleaker picture. Beautifully photographed (by Peter James) but graphically violent, this flawed, fascinating film is for demanding viewers. [R] ▼

Black Rodeo (1972) C-87m. ½ D: Jeff Kanew. Archie Wycoff, Clarence Gonzalez, Pete Knight, Marval Rogers, Reuben Heura. Offbeat, frequently interesting documentary about a rodeo that takes place largely in Harlem; background music is performed by such stars as B.B. King, Ray Charles, Dee Dee Sharpe. [G]

Black Room, The (1935) 67m.  D: Roy William Neill. Boris Karloff, Marian Marsh, Robert Allen, Katherine DeMille, John Buckler, Thurston Hall. Excellent, understated thriller of twin brothers (Karloff) and the ancient curse that dominates their lives in 19th-century Hungary. Features one—no, two—of Karloff's best performances. ▼

Black Rose, The (1950) C-120m.  D: Henry Hathaway. Tyrone Power, Cecile Aubry, Orson Welles, Jack Hawkins, Michael Rennie, Herbert Lom, James Robertson Justice, Finlay Currie, Bobby (Robert) Blake, Laurence Harvey. Sweeping pageantry follows Norman-hating Power on Oriental adventures during 1200s; plodding film only somewhat redeemed by dynamic action scenes. Filmed in England and North Africa by Jack Cardiff. ▽

Black Sabbath (1963-Italian) C-99m. ½ D: Mario Bava. Boris Karloff, Mark Damon, Suzy Anderson, Jacqueline Pierreux. Italian three-part film hosted by Karloff, who appears in final episode about a vampire controlling an entire family. Other sequences are good, atmospheric. ▼

nelope Spheeris. Chris Farley, David Spade, Tim Matheson, Christine Ebersole, Gary Busey, Grant Heslov, Timothy Carhart, Bruce McGill. Gubernatorial candidate Matheson needs to keep his bumbling brother (Farley) out of the public eye, and Spade volunteers for the job. Insulting "comedy" reunites the stars of TOMMY BOY for virtually the same movie, which attempts to mine all the humor it can out of Farley's mugging and endless pratfalls, plus Spade's sarcasm. Pitiful and shameless. [PG-13] ▼

Black Sheep (2007-New Zealand) C-87m.

 D: Jonathan King. Nathan Meister, Danielle Mason, Peter Feeney, Tammy Davis, Glenis Levestam, Tandi Wright, Oliver Driver, Nick Fenton. Young man (Meister) with a morbid fear of sheep returns to his sprawling family farm (naturally, a sheep ranch) to sell his portion of the estate to his tweedy, greedy older brother (Feeney). Everything and more goes wrong and bloody hell breaks out as ecoterorists, evil scientists, visiting foreign investors, and our hero are attacked by genetically altered rampaging rams and ewes. Horrifically funny and gruesome Monty Python-esque horror comedy recalls early Peter Jackson. Written by the director. Super 35. ▽

Black Shield of Falworth, The (1954) C-99m. ½ D: Rudolph Maté. Tony Curtis, Janet Leigh, David Farrar, Barbara Rush, Herbert Marshall. Juvenile version of Howard Pyle novel, Men of Iron; Curtis unconvincing as nobility rising through ranks to knighthood in medieval England. Settings, supporting cast bolster production. CinemaScope. ▼

Black Sleep, The (1956) 81m. ½ D: Reginald LeBorg. Basil Rathbone, Akim Tamiroff, Lon Chaney (Jr.), John Carradine, Bela Lugosi, Tor Johnson, Herbert Rudley. Big horror cast cannot save dull, unatmospheric tale of doctor doing experimental brain surgery in remote English castle. Laughable. Reissued as DR. CADMAN'S SECRET. ▼

Black Snake Moan (2007) C-115m. ½ D: Craig Brewer. Samuel L. Jackson, Christina Ricci, Justin Timberlake, S. Epatha Merkerson, John Cothran, David Banner, Kim Richards. Pent-up farmer and blues musician Jackson finds the town nympho (Ricci) beaten and unconscious, takes her in, and decides to heal her spiritually as well as physically—even if it means chaining her to his radiator. Honest. Steamy, sexy Southern Gothic tale benefits from robust, go-for-it performances, but the third act drags and the finale is somewhat ludicrous. Ricci's mother is played by former child actor Richards (ESCAPE TO WITCH MOUNTAIN). Exceptionally well shot by Amelia Vincent. Super 35. [R] ▽

Black Spurs (1965) C-81m. ½ D: R. G. Springsteen. Rory Calhoun, Terry Moore, Linda Darnell, Scott Brady, Lon Chaney (Jr.), Bruce Cabot, Richard Arlen, Patricia Owens, James Best, Jerome Courtland, DeForest Kelley. Ordinary Western with attraction of one-time movie stars including Darnell (her last film). Standard horse opera. Techniscope.

Black Stallion, The (1979) C-118m. *****

D: Carroll Ballard. Kelly Reno, Mickey Rooney, Teri Garr, Clarence Muse, Hoyt Axton, Michael Higgins. Exquisitely filmed story of a young boy's adventures with a magnificent black stallion—from a dramatic shipwreck to a racing championship. Too slow at times, but still worthwhile, with many precious moments, stunning cinematography by Caleb Deschanel, Rooney's lovely performance as veteran horse trainer. Based on classic children's novel by Walter Farley. Followed by 1983 sequel, a TV series (with Rooney), and a prequel in 2003. [G] ▼●●

Black Stallion Returns, The (1983) C-93m. ½ D: Robert Dalva. Kelly Reno, Vincent Spano, Allen Goorwitz (Garfield), Woody Strode, Ferdinand Mayne, Jodi Thelen, Teri Garr. Fair action sequel with Reno, now a teenager, searching the Sahara for his Arabian horse. Those expecting the magic of the original will be disappointed. First-time director Dalva edited the 1979 film. Followed by THE YOUNG BLACK STALLION. [PG] ▼●●

Black Streetfighter, The SEE: Black Fist

Black Sunday (1961-Italian) 83m. ½

D: Mario Bava. Barbara Steele, John Richardson, Ivo Garrani, Andrea Checchi. Intriguing story of the one day each century when Satan roams the earth. Steele is a witch who swears vengeance on the descendants of those who killed her hundreds of years ago. Beautifully atmospheric. ▼●●

Black Sunday (1977) C-143m.  D:

John Frankenheimer. Robert Shaw, Bruce Dern, Marthe Keller, Fritz Weaver, Steven Keats, Bekim Fehmiu, Michael V. Gazzo, William Daniels. International terrorist organization plots to blow up the Super Bowl, enlists the aid of former Vietnam POW Dern, who pilots the TV blimp. Generally compelling adaptation (by Ernest Lehman, Kenneth Ross, Ivan Moffat) of the Thomas Harris best-seller, with Dern at his uninged best. Splendid aerial photography. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Black Swan, The (1942) C-85m.  D:

Henry King. Tyrone Power, Maureen O'Hara, Laird Cregar, Thomas Mitchell, George Sanders, Anthony Quinn, George Zucco. Power is at his dashing best in this lively swashbuckler from the Rafael Sabatini novel about rival pirate gangs in the Caribbean. Sanders seems to be having fun cast against type as a scurrilous brigand. Enhanced by Alfred Newman's music and Leon Shamroy's Oscar-winning Technicolor cinematography. ▼●

Black Tights (1960-French) C-120m. *****

D: Terence Young. Cyd Charisse, Moira Shearer, Zizi Jeanmaire, Dirk Sanders, Roland Petit. Narrated by Maurice Chevalier. Ballet fans will feast on this quartet of stunning performances, featuring some of the era's top dance talent. Our favorite: the ballet of Rostrand's Cyrano de Bergerac, with Shearer a lovely Roxanne. Super Technirama 70. ▼●

Black Tuesday (1954) 80m.  D: Hugo

Fregonese. Edward G. Robinson, Peter Graves, Jean Parker, Milburn Stone. Throwback to 1930-ish gangster films, with Robinson and Graves as escaped convicts being hunted by cops. Nice gunplay, with Parker good as the moll.

Black Voodoo SEE: Beyond the Living

Black Widow (1954) C-95m. * D: Nunally Johnson. Ginger Rogers, Van Heflin, Gene Tierney, George Raft, Peggy Ann Garner, Reginald Gardiner, Virginia Leith, Otto Kruger, Cathleen Nesbitt, Skip Homeier. Broadway producer Heflin takes young writer Garner under his wing, is naturally suspected when she turns up dead in his apartment. Glossy but dull adaptation of Patrick Quentin mystery, with remarkably poor performances by Rogers as bitchy star and Raft as dogged detective. Johnson also produced and wrote the screenplay. CinemaScope. ●

Bob Rafelson. Debra Winger, Theresa Russell, Sami Frey, Dennis Hopper, Nicol Williamson, Terry O'Quinn, D. W. Moffett, Lois Smith, Mary Woronov, Rutanya Alda, James Hong, Diane Ladd. Female investigator for the Justice Dept. becomes intrigued—then obsessed—by young woman who seduces, marries, and murders wealthy men. Handsome, stylishly crafted yarn, loaded with sexual tension, that stops just short of hitting the mark. Winger and Russell are both terrific. Photographed by Conrad Hall; effective music score by Michael Small. Amusing cameo by playwright David Mamet as one of Winger's poker-playing colleagues. [R] ▼●●

Black Windmill, The (1974-British) C-106m. ½ D: Don Siegel. Michael Caine, Joseph O'Connor, Donald Pleasence, John Vernon, Janet Suzman, Delphine Seyrig. Slick, craftsmanlike but generally undistinguished thriller, as espionage agent Caine tries to locate his son's kidnappers. Siegel has done better. Aka DRABBLE. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Black Zoo (1963) 88m. *½ D: Robert

Gordon. Michael Gough, Virginia Grey, Jerome Cowan, Elisha Cook, Jeanne Cooper. Gough, head of private zoo, doubles as leader of cult of animal worshipers. Good cast flounders, but film has a moment or two. From the man who gave you I WAS A TEEN-AGE WEREWOLF. Panavision.

Blacula (1972) C-92m.  D: William Crain. William Marshall, Denise Nicholas, Vonetta McGee, Thalmus Rasulala, Ketty Lester, Elisha Cook, Jr., Gordon Pinsent. Dracula bit a Black Prince and now black vampire is stalking the streets of L.A. Some terrific shocks, and some very lively dialogue. Sequel: SCREAM, BLACULA, SCREAM. [PG] ▼●●

Blade (1973) C-90m. ½ D: Ernest Pintoff. John Marley, Jon Cypher, Kathryn Walker, William Prince, John Schuck, Rue McClanahan, Morgan Freeman. N.Y.-made actioner about female-hating Cypher, who indulges in violent killings, and tough policeman Marley, who tracks him down. A bit pretentious and involved; fairly absorbing. [R] ▼

Blade (1998) C-123m. ½ D: Stephen Norrington. Wesley Snipes, Stephen Dorff, Kris Kristofferson, N'bushe Wright, Donal Logue, Udo Kier, Arly Jover, Traci Lords, Tim Guinee. If you think you've seen bloody urban-vigilante pics before . . . well, you haven't. Snipes is part human and part vampire, which means he's the perfect warrior to combat a megalomaniacal bloodsucker who's plotting world domination. A potentially rousing 90m. gorefest bloated by a half hour, film never tops its spectacularly gross opening set piece in a vampire disco. Based on the character created for Marvel Comics by Marv Wolfman. Followed by two sequels. Clairmont-Scope. [R] ▼●●

Blade II (2002) C-116m.  D: Guillermo del Toro. Wesley Snipes, Kris Kristofferson, Ron Perlman, Leonor Varela, Norman Reedus, Thomas Kretschmann, Luke Goss, Donnie Yen. Our half-human, half-vampire hero makes a highly unlikely move, joining forces with his vampiric enemies in order to wipe out a virulent band of mutants. Not much story here, and not much in the way of character; that leaves action and special effects, which are certainly slick, with lots of visceral violence, but the movie runs out of energy surprisingly early. Followed by BLADE: TRINITY. [R] ▼

Blade Master, The (1984-Italian) C-92m. *½ D: David Hills. Miles O'Keeffe, Lisa Foster (Lisa Raines), Charles Borromel, David Cain Haughton, Chen Wong. Silly sequel to ATOR THE FIGHTING EAGLE has O'Keeffe as the prehistoric warrior on a quest to protect the Earth from a primitive atomic bomb called the "Geometric Nucleus." As in TARZAN, THE APE MAN, O'Keeffe wrestles with an oversize rubber snake, but silliest scene has him hang-glider to storm an enemy castle. Original title: ATOR THE INVINCIBLE. TV title: CAVE DWELLERS. [PG] ▼

Blade Runner (1982) C-118m. *½ D: Ridley Scott. Harrison Ford, Rutger Hauer,

Sean Young, Edward James Olmos, William Sanderson, Daryl Hannah, Joe Turkel, Joanna Cassidy, Brion James. In 21st-century L.A., a former cop (Ford) is recruited to track down androids who have mutinied in space and made their way to Earth. A triumph of production design, defeated by a muddled script and main characters with no appeal whatsoever. However, the film has a fervent following. Loosely based on Philip K. Dick's novel Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep? Futuristic stylings by Syd Mead and Lawrence G. Paull. At least two alternate versions have been released since the original, followed in 1993 by the "director's cut," which the film's champions hail as a vast improvement: Ford's voice-over has been dropped, footage has been added, and the ending has changed. In 2007 a 117m. "final cut" edition was released that clarifies at least one key plot point. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Blades of Glory (2007) C-93m.  D: Josh Gordon, Will Speck. Will Ferrell, Jon Heder, Will Arnett, Amy Poehler, William Fichtner, Jenna Fischer, Craig T. Nelson, Andy Richter, Nick Swardson, Scott Hamilton, William Daniels, Rob Corddry, Tom Virtue, Rémy Girard. Two brawling superstar figure skaters are banned for life in the men's singles competitions after one fight too many. Years later these polar opposites reluctantly team up as the first male pairs skating team, much to the chagrin of a twisted brother-and-sister duo who consider them archrivals. Milking every moment on the ice and exhausting every crotch joke in their canon, Ferrell and Heder fill the rink with laughs. Look for a Luke Wilson cameo and a slew of real-life skating stars. [PG-13] ▼

Blade: Trinity (2004) C-113m. *½ D: David S. Goyer. Wesley Snipes, Kris Kristofferson, Dominic Purcell, Jessica Biel, Ryan Reynolds, Parker Posey, Mark Berry, John Michael Higgins, Callum Keith Rennie, Triple H (Paul Michael Levesque), James Remar, Natasha Lyonne, Eric Bogosian. Blade (Snipes) and the Night Stalkers, a band of vampire hunters, strain to save humanity from the grip of bloodsucking villains and a resurrected Dracula (Purcell). Poorly directed, lackadaisically plotted high-tech actioner may please BLADE fans, but it's pretty lame. Posey is campy fun as a scheming bloodsucker. Unrated DVD version runs 124m. Super 35. [R] ▼

Blair Witch Project, The (1999) C/B&W-87m. ½ D: Daniel Myrick, Eduardo Sanchez. Heather Donahue, Michael Williams, Joshua Leonard. Young woman hires a film crew to accompany her into the Maryland woods to chronicle local, age-old yarns and superstitions about witchcraft. Soon the threesome get lost, and with each day grow more desperate as spooky goings-on at night begin to frazzle their nerves. Largely ad-libbed, this comes off more as a student exercise than a movie, but by the end does create an atmosphere of fear and anxiety. Followed by BOOK OF SHADOWS: BLAIR WITCH 2. [R]▼●●

Blame It on Rio (1984) C-100m. ½ D: Stanley Donen. Michael Caine, Joseph Bologna, Valerie Harper, Michelle Johnson, Demi Moore, Jose Lewgoy. Caine has a fling with his best friend's sexy teenage daughter while vacationing in Rio de Janeiro. Caine's terrific, Johnson is voluptuous, Demi is obviously intimidated in topless beach scenes, and the script is kind of a sniggering TV sitcom, with a heavy-handed music score of too-familiar records. Written by Charlie Peters and Larry Gelbart. Remake of the French film ONE WILD MOMENT. [R]▼●●

Blame It on the Bellboy (1991-British) C-78m.  D: Mark Herman. Dudley Moore, Bryan Brown, Richard Griffiths, Penelope Wilton, Andreas Katsulas, Patsy Kensit, Alison Steadman, Bronson Pinchot, Lindsay Anderson. Behind the dynamic title lies an old-fashioned farce: three guys, named Orton, Lawton, and Horton, check into a Venice hotel, leading to the expected mix-ups after bellboy Pinchot confuses their messages. Brown (as a hit man) and the short running time keep this sometimes sleazy comedy from being a complete ordeal; even at 78m., though, you can feel the padding. [PG-13]▼●●

Blame It on the Night (1984) C-85m. *½ D: Gene Taft. Nick Mancuso, Byron Thames, Leslie Ackerman, Dick Bakalyan, Merry Clayton, Billy Preston, Ollie E. Brown. Plodding tale of rock star Mancuso, who attempts to buy the love of his ultrastraight, illegitimate, military cadet son. Based on a story by Taft and Mick Jagger. [PG-13]▼

Blanche Fury (1948-British) C-95m.  D: Marc Allegret. Stewart Granger, Valerie Hobson, Walter Fitzgerald, Michael Gough, Maurice Denham. Beautifully mounted gothic melodrama about a governess who marries into wealthy family and the headstrong steward (Granger) who aspires to run the estate.▼

Blank Check (1994) C-93m. *½ D: Rupert Wainwright. Brian Bonsall, Karen Duffy, Miguel Ferrer, Michael Lerner, James Rebhorn, Jayne Atkinson, Michael Faustino, Chris Demetral, Tone Loc, Rick Ducommun, Debbie Allen, Lu Leonard. Comedy for blank minds shamelessly rips off HOME ALONE. 11-year-old manages to cash thug Ferrer's check for a million dollars, parlaying it into such life necessities as a dishy grownup girlfriend and a backyard water slide. Hard to swallow even on its own slumming-Disney level, but likely to hit very young children where they live. [PG]▼●●

Robin Givens, Christopher Lawford, Lynne Thigpen, Jon Polito, Jason Alexander. Shrill, witless comedy in which Wayans becomes a crimefighting superhero in a crime-ridden metropolis. He has no super powers; he's aided instead by his own homemade contraptions. Might have some appeal to less-discriminating five-year-old boys. Wayans coscripted. [PG-13]▼●●

Blast From the Past (1999) C-111m. ½ D: Hugh Wilson. Brendan Fraser, Alicia Silverstone, Christopher Walken, Sissy Spacek, Dave Foley, Jenifer Lewis, Rex Linn. Young man emerges after spending his entire 35 years in a fallout shelter with his loving parents, only to find that contemporary life in L.A. is not the way he pictured it to be. Cute-enough comedy benefits from Fraser's enthusiasm, but Silverstone's character is fuzzily defined at best. Spacek and especially Walken are wonderful as the early '60s parents who remain in a time warp. Also available in PG version. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Blaze (1989) C-119m. ½ D: Ron Shelton. Paul Newman, Lolita Davidovich, Jerry Hardin, Gailard Sartain, Jeffrey DeMunn, Garland Bunting, Richard Jenkins, Robert Wuhl. Newman gives a flashy, uninhibited performance as Earl Long, the flamboyant governor of Louisiana in the 1950s who fell headlong in love with stripper Blaze Starr (Davidovich, in her first lead role). Seemingly surefire story, peppered with colorful characters and incidents, falls alarmingly flat after a while and never recovers. Real-life Blaze Starr appears fleetingly as Lily, the stripper whose shoulder Newman kisses backstage. [R]▼●●

Blazing Saddles (1974) C-93m. ½ D: Mel Brooks. Cleavon Little, Gene Wilder, Harvey Korman, Madeline Kahn, Slim Pickens, David Huddleston, Alex Karras, Burton Gilliam, Mel Brooks, John Hilleman, Liam Dunn, Carol Arthur, Dom DeLuise, Robert Ridgely, George Furth. Brooks' first hit movie is a riotous Western spoof, with Little an unlikely sheriff, Korman as villainous Hedley Lamarr, and Kahn as a Dietrich-like chanteuse. None of Brooks' later films have topped this one for sheer belly laughs. Scripted by Brooks, Andrew Bergman, Richard Pryor, Norman Steinberg, and Alan Uger; story by Bergman. Title song sung by Frankie Laine. Panavision. [R]▼●●

phenson, Eric Allan, Joolia Cappleman, Mike Bradwell, Liz Smith. Leigh's debut feature is a potent, deeply human drama, which charts the plight of a lonesome officeworker (Raitt) who looks after her mentally retarded sister and hopes that her relationship with a schoolteacher will lead to marriage. Leigh (who also scripted) offers knowing insight into his characters.▼

Blessed Event (1932) 81m.  D: Roy Del Ruth. Lee Tracy, Mary Brian, Dick Powell, Emma Dunn, Frank McHugh, Allen Jenkins, Ned Sparks, Ruth Donnelly. Tracy's most famous role has him a Walter Winchell prototype whose spicy column makes him famous but also gets him in hot water; Powell makes film debut as crooner. Fast-moving, delightful.▼●

Bless the Beasts & Children (1972) C-109m.  D: Stanley Kramer. Billy Mumy, Barry Robins, Miles Chapin, Ken Swofford, Jesse White, Vanessa Brown. Exciting and well-intentioned, if repetitious, story of six young misfit boys, campers at a ranch, who attempt to free a captive herd of buffalo scheduled for slaughter. The Barry DeVorzon-Perry Botkin music that later became known as "Nadia's Theme" and the Young and the Restless theme originated here. [PG]▼

Bless the Child (2000) C-108m. *½ D: Chuck Russell. Kim Basinger, Jimmy Smits, Holliston Coleman, Rufus Sewell, Angela Bettis, Christina Ricci, Michael Gaston, Ian Holm. Basinger has raised her addict sister's daughter (Coleman) to the age of six; when she shows signs of spiritual powers, the child is sought by millionaire Satanist Sewell, who's involved in a series of child killings. Smits is the detective on the case. Religious horror thriller veers wildly from the promising to the ludicrous, and is never remotely convincing. Based on the novel by Cathy Cash Spellman. Panavision. [R]▼

Blind Date (1984) C-100m. *½ D: Nico Mastorakis. Joseph Bottoms, Kirstie Alley, James Daughton, Lana Clarkson, Keir Dullea. Dr. Dullea tests a portable machine that stimulates vision on blind Bottoms, causing Bottoms to become obsessed with capturing a psycho killer who's on the loose. Solid cast perks up a contrived thriller, filmed in Greece. [R]▼

Blind Date (1987) C-93m. ½ D: Blake Edwards. Kim Basinger, Bruce Willis, John Larroquette, William Daniels, Phil Hartman, Stephanie Faracy, Joyce Van Patten, Alice Hirson, George Coe, Mark Blum, Graham Stark. Tiresome retreat of all-too-familiar farcical material by Blake Edwards. Yuppie Willis takes Basinger out on a blind date, warned that she can't tolerate alcohol—and immediately gives her champagne. Alternately boring and grating. This was Willis' starring debut; guitarist Stanley Jordan makes a musical appearance. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Blind Dating (2007) C-99m. ½ D: James Keach. Chris Pine, Eddie Kaye Thomas, Anjali Jay, Stephen Tobolowsky, Jane Seymour, Sendhil Ramamurthy, Frank Gerrish, Pooch Hall. Self-reliant young man (Pine) who's been blind all his life wants to find a woman to love who won't pity him. After endless dead-end dates he finds himself attracted to an Indian-American woman who works for his eye doctor . . . but she brings her own baggage to the relationship. Comedy-drama shifts tone from sweet sincerity to gross-out comedy, with mixed results. (Seymour, as Pine's psychiatrist, is so turned on during their sessions she feels impelled to shed her clothes!) Blind Faith (1998) C-107m. ½ D: Ernest Dickerson. Courtney B. Vance, Charles S. Dutton, Kadeem Hardison, Lonette McKee, Garland Whitt. Two brothers, one a police captain and the other a defense attorney, find their relationship—and their own sense of self-worth as black men in 1950s America—turned upside down when the captain's son is accused of murder. Hard-hitting drama, which opens in the late '80s, focuses on the racial divide and unjust justice system. Solid performances, especially from the two leads. Released theatrically (at 118m.) after debut on U.S. cable TV. [R]▼●

Blindfold (1966) C-102m. ½ D: Philip Dunne. Rock Hudson, Claudia Cardinale, Jack Warden, Guy Stockwell, Anne Seymour. Attractive cast falters in film that wavers from comedy to mystery. Slapstick scenes seem incongruous as Hudson engages in international espionage with a noted scientist. Panavision.

Blind Fury (1990) C-86m. ½ D: Phillip Noyce. Rutger Hauer, Terrance (Terry) O'Quinn, Brandon Call, Lisa Blount, Randall "Tex" Cobb, Noble Willingham, Meg Foster, Sho Kosugi, Nick Cassavetes, Charles Cooper, Rick Overton. Smiling, sword-wielding, blind Vietnam vet Hauer carves up bad guys, saves a kid, and even duels with his mentor in this brash, lively (but failed) attempt to Americanize Japanese "Zato-ichi" movies. Hauer is perfectly cast, and the film is amusingly tongue-in-cheek, but it doesn't altogether work. [R]▼●

Blindman (1972-Italian) C-105m.  D: Ferdinando Baldi. Tony Anthony, Ringo Starr, Agneta Eckemyr, Lloyd Batista. Blindman (Anthony) seeks revenge on man who stole 50 mail-order brides. Mindless entertainment, though any movie with Ringo as a slimy Mexican bandit can't be all bad. Techniscope. [R]

Blind Man's Bluff SEE: Cauldron of Blind Blindness (2008-Canadian-Brazilian-Japanese) C-121m.  D: Fernando Meirelles. Julianne Moore, Mark Ruffalo, Danny Glover, Gael García Bernal, Alice Braga, Yusuke Iseya, Yoshino Kimura, Maury Chaykin, Don McKellar, Mitchell Nye, Sandra Oh.

Dreary, pointless parable about people suddenly and randomly going blind including, ironically enough, an eye doctor (Ruffalo) but not his wife (Moore), who retains her sight. As they and other victims are herded into captivity by the government, all the worst elements of human nature rise to the surface in a bare-knuckle struggle for survival. Off-putting and ugly, to say the least. Based on a novel by José Saramago. [R] ●

Blind Spot: Hitler's Secretary (2002-Austrian) C-87m. ½ D: André Heller, Othmar Schmiderer. Intense, fascinating documentary in which 81-year-old Traudl Junge recalls her life as Adolf Hitler's private secretary from 1942 until his death (later dramatized in DOWNFALL). There is no archival footage; the film consists of Junge talking, and what she says is so compelling that one can only watch, and listen, in stunned silence as she contrasts personal memories of her boss with the reality of who he was. She also reveals her subsequent guilt about working for him. Junge's recollections of Hitler's final days are especially gripping. She died just as the film debuted in Berlin. [PG] ▼●

Blind Swordsman, The SEE: Zatōichi, the Blind Swordsman

Blink (1994) C-106m. ½ D: Michael Apted. Madeleine Stowe, Aidan Quinn, Laurie Metcalf, James Remar, Peter Friedman, Bruce A. Young, Matt Roth, Paul Dillon. Did she or didn't she see a murderer leaving the scene of the crime? That's the central question when beautiful, strong-willed musician Stowe, blind since childhood, has her sight restored. Story relies on viewer's acceptance of screenwriter's gimmick of "retroactive vision," a post-surgery delayed reaction. Best thing in film is Stowe; otherwise this treads on too familiar blind-woman-in-jeopardy territory. Alternative Irish-American band The Drovers appear as themselves. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Bliss (1985-Australian) C-111m. *½ D: Ray Lawrence. Barry Otto, Lynette Curran, Helen Jones, Miles Buchanan, Gia Carides, Tim Robertson. High-powered businessman has a major heart attack, sees himself dying, then revives—which changes his entire outlook on life. After a dynamic opening this stylized satire slows to a snail's pace and loses its thrust. Nevertheless, it was an Australian Academy Award winner and an international film festival favorite, so judge for yourself. [R] ▼●

Bliss (1997) C-103m. ½ D: Lance Young. Craig Sheffer, Terence Stamp, Sheryl Lee, Spalding Gray, Casey Siemaszko, Ken Camroux, Pamela Perry, Leigh Taylor-Young, Lois Chiles, Theresa Saldana, Molly Parker. Unusual film about a young married couple's emotional journey into sexual awakening with the help of a sex therapist. Stamp excels as teacher and mentor to

the husband, who unwittingly unlocks the door to his wife's forgotten past. Melodramatic story gets in the way of some genuinely interesting and even educational dialogue, though it's almost too clinical at times. Actress Taylor-Young is the sister of the writer-director. Filmed in 1995. [R] ▼●●

Bliss of Mrs. Blossom, The (1968-U.S.-British) C-93m.  D: Joe McGrath. Shirley MacLaine, Richard Attenborough, James Booth, Freddie Jones, Bob Monkhouse, John Cleese. Oddball, original comedy with delicious performances. Wife of brassiere manufacturer keeps a lover in their attic for five years. Bogs down toward the end, but for the most part a delight. [MPG] ▼●

Blithe Spirit (1945-British) C-96m. ½ D: David Lean. Rex Harrison, Constance Cummings, Kay Hammond, Margaret Rutherford, Hugh Wakefield, Joyce Carey. Delicious adaptation of Noel Coward's comedy-fantasy about a man whose long-dead first wife appears to haunt—and taunt—him in his newly married life. Rutherford is wonderful as Madame Arcati, the spiritual medium; this earned an Oscar for its special effects. Scripted by the director, the producer (Anthony Havelock-Allan), and the cinematographer (Ronald Neame). ▼●●

Blob, The (1958) C-86m.  D: Irvin S. Yeaworth, Jr. Steven McQueen, Aneta Corseaut (Corsaut), Earl Rowe, Olin Howlin. Endearingly campy classic of cheap '50s sci-fi has "Steven" (in his first starring role) leading teenagers into battle to save their small town from being swallowed up by giant glop of cherry Jell-O from outer space. Not really all that good, but how can you hate a film like this? (Especially when Burt Bacharach composed the title song.) Later redubbed for comic effect as BLOB-ERMOUTH. Sequel: BEWARE! THE BLOB. Remade 30 years later. ▼●●

Blob, The (1988) C-95m.  D: Chuck Russell. Shawnee Smith, Donovan Leitch, Ricky Paull Goldin, Kevin Dillon, Billy Beck, Candy Clark, Joe Seneca. Needless, if undeniably gooey, remake about a man-made what's-it that wipes out the standard number of vagrants and oversexed teenagers on its way to enveloping a small town. Showstopper finds a restaurant employee getting pulled head first down a kitchen drain after foolishly attempting to "plunge" the Blob. [R] ▼●●

Blockade (1938) 85m.  D: William Dieterle. Madeleine Carroll, Henry Fonda, Leo Carrillo, John Halliday, Vladimir Sokoloff, Reginald Denny. Vivid romance drama of Spanish Civil War with globe-trotting Carroll falling in love with fighting Fonda. ●

Block-Heads (1938) 55m.  D: John G. Blystone. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Patricia Ellis, Minna Gombell, Billy Gilbert, James Finlayson. Stan's been marching in a trench for 20 years—nobody told him

WWI was over! Ollie brings him home to find he hasn't changed. Top L&H. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Blockhouse, The (1973-British) C-90m. ★½ D: Clive Rees. Peter Sellers, Charles Aznavour, Per Oscarsson, Peter Vaughan, Jeremy Kemp, Alfred Lynch. Dismal, downbeat story of laborers trapped in underground bunker when the Allies land at Normandy on D-Day. ▼

Blonde Ambition (2007) C-93m. ★★ D: Scott Marshall. Jessica Simpson, Luke Wilson, Rachael Leigh Cook, Penelope Ann Miller, Andy Dick, Larry Miller, Willie Nelson. Lightweight fluff about a small-town innocent (Simpson) who follows her unfaithful boyfriend to N.Y.C., where she lucks into a job as secretary for the president of a large construction company. Although obviously inspired by WORKING GIRL and LEGALLY BLONDE, this trifle actually plays more like some innocuous Gidget or Tammy comedy of yore. Simpson isn't half bad, and Larry Miller (as her boss) underplays amusingly. Look for a cameo by Penny Marshall, aunt of the movie's director. [PG-13] ▼

Blonde Bait (1956-British) 70m. ★★ D: Elmo Williams. Beverly Michaels, Jim Davis, Joan Rice, Richard Travis, Paul Cavanagh, Thora Hird, Avril Angers, Gordon Jackson. Cheap, toothy blond bombshell Michaels excels as a Yank showgirl breaking out of a sedate British prison for women. British film, originally titled WOMEN WITHOUT MEN, was retitled, reedited, and reshot (with Davis, Travis, and Cavanagh added to cast) for U.S. release.

Blonde Bombshell SEE: Bombshell

Blonde Crazy (1931) 79m. ★★½ D: Roy Del Ruth. James Cagney, Joan Blondell, Louis Calhern, Ray Milland, Polly Walters, Nat Pendleton. Dated fun with Cagney as small-time con man who plays cat-and-mouse with big-time sharpie Calhern. Young Milland appears as businessman who marries Jimmy's girlfriend, Blondell. ▼

Blonde Venus (1932) 97m. ★★★ D: Josef von Sternberg. Marlene Dietrich, Herbert Marshall, Cary Grant, Dickie Moore, Sidney Toler. Episodic story of notorious Dietrich leading unsavory life to support herself and child. A triumph of style over content; this is the film where Marlene appears in an ape suit to sing "Hot Voodoo"! ▼

Blondie series SEE: Leonard Maltin's Classic Movie Guide

Blondie of the Follies (1932) 90m. ★★½ D: Edmund Goulding. Marion Davies, Robert Montgomery, Billie Dove, Jimmy Durante, ZaSu Pitts, Sidney Toler, Louise Carter. Davies and Dove vie for the affection of Montgomery, while ascending to stardom in the Follies. Dramatically wobbly, but the musical numbers are fun.

James Gleason fine as Marion's dad. Best are Davies and Durante spoofing Garbo and Barrymore in GRAND HOTEL.

Blood Alley (1955) C-115m. ★★½ D: William Wellman. John Wayne, Lauren Bacall, Paul Fix, Mike Mazurki, Anita Ekberg. Enjoyable escapism with Wayne, Bacall, and assorted Chinese escaping down river to Hong Kong pursued by Communists. CinemaScope. ▼

Blood and Black Lace (1964-Italian-French-German) C-88m. ★½ D: Mario Bava. Cameron Mitchell, Eva Bartok, Mary Arden. Ghoulish thriller about a sex murderer doing in fashion models. Wooden script and performances don't help. Fans of the genre will at least enjoy Bava's imaginative direction. ▼

Blood and Chocolate (2007-British-German-Romanian-U.S.) C-98m. ★★ D: Katja von Garnier. Agnes Bruckner, Olivier Martinez, Hugh Dancy, Bryan Dick, Katja Riemann, Chris Geere, Tom Harper, John Kerr, Jack Wilson. A teenage werewolf Juliet is torn between loyalty to her pack and love for a human Romeo, while clan leaders violently disapprove. Pallid adaptation of Annette Curtis Klause's 1997 palpably erotic young-adult novel inexplicably (and pointlessly) moves the drastically altered storyline from West Virginia to Romania! Results are thin and semisweet, albeit scenic. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Blood and Concrete (1991) C-97m. ★★½ D: Jeffrey Reiner. Billy Zane, Jennifer Beals, Darren McGavin, James Le Gros, Nicholas Worth, William Bastiani, Harry Shearer. Offbeat but way overbaked comic thriller about third-rate car thief Zane and troubled singer Beals, who fall in love and become involved in murder and mayhem. Tries to be hip and stylish, and occasionally succeeds, but too self-conscious for its own good. The full title is BLOOD AND CONCRETE, A LOVE STORY. [R] ▼

Blood & Donuts (1995-Canadian) C-89m. ★★★ D: Holly Dale. Gordon Currie, Justin Louis, Helene Clarkson, Fiona Reid, Frank Moore, David Cronenberg. Reluctant vampire Currie crawls into his bag when man first walks on the moon, reemerging in contemporary Toronto, where he holes up in a 24-hour donut shop. Characterful comedy/drama plays colloquially, like DINER, but at night and with gangs. Cronenberg plays a gangster. [R] ▼

Blood and Roses (1961-Italian) C-74m. ★★½ D: Roger Vadim. Mel Ferrer, Elsa Martinelli, Annette Vadim, Marc Allegret. This story of a jealous girl's obsession with her family's history of vampirism was based on Sheridan Le Fanu's Carmilla. Despite effective moments, film does not succeed. Same story refilmed as THE

VAMPIRE LOVERS and THE BLOOD-SPATTERED BRIDE. Technirama. ▼

Blood and Sand (1922) 80m. ½ D: Fred Niblo. Rudolph Valentino, Lila Lee, Nita Naldi, George Field, Walter Long, Leo White. Dated but still absorbing story of bullfighter Valentino torn between good-girl Lee and vampish Naldi. Scenes of hero being seduced are laughable, but bullfight material holds up well. Remade in 1941 and 1989. ▼●●

Blood and Sand (1941) C-123m.  D: Rouben Mamoulian. Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Rita Hayworth, Nazimova, Anthony Quinn, J. Carrol Naish, John Caradine, George Reeves. Pastel remake of Valentino's silent film about naive bullfighter who ignores true-love (Darnell) for temptress (Hayworth). Slow-paced romance uplifted by Nazimova's knowing performance as Power's mother; beautiful color production earned cinematographers Ernest Palmer and Ray Rennahan Oscars. ▼●

Blood and Sand (1989-Spanish) C-95m.  D: Javier Elorrieta. Chris Rydell, Sharon Stone, Ana Torrent, Guillermo Montesinus, Albert Vidal, Simon Andreu, Antonio Glez Flores. Cocky young bullfighter achieves success in the arena and forsakes his loving wife for a sexy siren. Authentic Spanish locations and good bullfighting footage compensate for predictability of this drama; hot sex scenes are what distinguish it from the earlier versions. ▼●●

Blood and Wine (1997) C-101m.  D: Bob Rafelson. Jack Nicholson, Michael Caine, Judy Davis, Stephen Dorff, Jennifer Lopez, Harold Perrineau, Jr. Juicy film noir about a Florida no-good with an embittered wife, a resentful stepson, and a sexy Cuban mistress, who takes on an unlikely partner (an oily, consumptive Caine) for a high-risk jewel robbery. Delicious detail fills this well-thought-out melodrama; only fault is that it goes on a bit too long. Nicholson and Caine make a marvelous team. [R] ▼●●

Blood Barrier (1979-British) C-86m. ½ D: Christopher Leitch. Telly Savalas, Danny De La Paz, Eddie Albert, Michael Gazzo, Cecilia Camacho. Savalas plays a maverick border-patrolman who hates slimy Gazzo's exploitation of poor Mexicans, illegally trucked by Gazzo to California to be day laborers. Interesting drama isn't fully developed and suffers from pointless finale. Exteriors filmed in Mexico. Originally titled THE BORDER. Aka BORDER COP. [R] ▼●

Blood Bath (1966) 80m. *½ D: Stephanie Rothman, Jack Hill. William Campbell, Jonathan Haze, Sid Haig, Marissa Mathes, Lori Saunders, Sandra Knight. Another AIP paste-job, with half an hour from a Yugoslavian vampire film worked into tale of California artist who murders his models. Eerie atmosphere, some occasional frissons, but overall a mishmash. Shown on TV as TRACK OF THE VAMPIRE. ▼●

Blood Beast from Outer Space SEE: Night Caller from Outer Space

Bloodbrothers (1978) C-116m. ½ D: Robert Mulligan. Richard Gere, Paul Sorvino, Tony Lo Bianco, Lelia Goldoni, Yvonne Wilder, Kenneth McMillan, Mariu Henner, Danny Aiello. Interesting if somewhat overblown drama about big-city construction workers. Best when actors have opportunity to underplay, e.g., Sorvino's touching story of baby son's death, Gere's interplay with young hospital patients. Gere stands out as son who wants to break away from family tradition. Mulligan later recut this to 98m. [R] ▼

Blood Diamond (2006) C-143m. ½ D: Edward Zwick. Leonardo DiCaprio, Jennifer Connelly, Djimon Hounsou, Kagiso Kuypers, Arnold Vosloo, Michael Sheen, David Harewood, Basil Wallace, Ntare Mwine, Marius Weyers, Stephen Collins, Jimi Mistry, Loud, intense action drama with an Agenda: mercenary DiCaprio learns that a poor fisherman (Hounsou) who's been separated from his family in Sierra Leone has hidden a huge pink diamond . . . and he means to find it, by any means necessary. Strong performances and well-staged action scenes would normally equal good entertainment, but extreme carnage and the heavily pounded message about "conflict diamonds" and their human toll make it difficult to take. Hounsou is outstanding as the simple man whose life is made a living hell in civil war-torn Sierra Leone, circa 1999. Hawk-Scope. [R] ●

inspired by Damon Runyon stories. Brady is "Numbers" Foster, a gambler on the lam who takes a shine to backwoods girl Gaynor and brings her to Manhattan, where she's a fish out of water but catches on fast. Green has too little to do, but future Mouseketeer Baird shines in a featured dance number. D

The cast is game and there are some funny bits, but it's mostly a snooze. Documentary director Brookner's sole fiction feature; he died prior to its release. Blood on the Moon (1948) 88m. *******

by Luke Short) about a drifter who's hired by his former partner to help him bilk some naive landowners. Mitchum sizes up the situation and decides he doesn't like it; Preston is an unrepentant villain. Watch for that great confrontation scene in a darkened barroom. Ruthless, Irish-born Hopper wants to build his railroad through the land of Sicilian immigrant Giannini and his fellow wine-growers in 1890s California. Dreadful film, with lots of explosions; huge, good cast can't save it. Julia Roberts, Eric's kid sister, makes her screen debut as his sibling (and Giannini's daughter). [R] ▼

Blood Relatives (1978-French-Canadian) C-100m.  D: Claude Chabrol. Donald Sutherland, Aude Landry, Lisa Langlois, Laurent Malet, Micheline Lanctot, Stephane Audran, Donald Pleasence, David Hemmings. Flamboyant homage to film noir made on a shoestring by brothers Joel and Ethan Coen in Texas. A cuckolded husband hires slimy character to kill his wife and her boyfriend. . . . but that's just the beginning of this serpentine story. A visual delight, full of show-offy stylistics; just a bit "cold around the heart," to quote an earlier noir classic. McDormand's film debut. Recut, re-mixed, restored, and reissued in 2000 with a new 5m. introduction. [R] ▼●●

ford, Paul Rodriguez, Dylan Walsh. FBI profiler, who was forced to retire after heart transplant surgery, is persuaded to take on a murder case by the sister of the woman whose heart he inherited. Eastwood has never been more relaxed on-screen, and this movie fits him like a glove, but the buildup of the story is much better than the payoff, with a perfunctory finale and an all-too-obvious revelation about the bad guy. Adapted from the novel by Michael Connelly, which has a more satisfactory ending. Panavision. [R] ▼

Bloody Birthday (1986) C-85m.  D: Ed Hunt, Susan Strasberg, Jose Ferrer, Lori Lethin, Melinda Cordell, Julie Brown, Joe Penny, Billy Jacoby, Michael Dudikoff. Bloody Sunday (2002-British-Irish) C-110m.  D: Paul Greengrass. James Nesbitt, Tim Pigott-Smith, Nicholas Farrell, Gerard McSorley, Kathy Kiera Clarke. British soldiers and Irish civil rights workers clash in Derry, Northern Ireland, in 1972, with ramifications that extend to this day. Painstaking re-creation, on the cool side but cumulatively powerful, covers the preliminary events and awful aftermath of what was intended to be a peaceful protest. Documentary-like chronicle is obviously pro-Irish but shows faults on both sides of the conflict. U2's same-named anthem plays over the final credits. [R] ▼

Blossoms in the Dust (1941) C-100m.  D: Mervyn LeRoy. Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon, Felix Bressart, Marsha Hunt, Fay Holden, Samuel S. Hinds. Slick tear-jerker of Texas orphanage founded by Garson when she loses her own child; tastefully acted. ▼

Blow (2001) C-124m.  D: Ted Demme. Johnny Depp, Penélope Cruz, Franka Potente, Paul Reubens, Ray Liotta, Rachel Griffiths, Jordi Molla, Max Perlich, Cliff Curtis, Ethan Suplee, Emma Roberts, Noah Emmerich, Bobcat Goldthwait. Episodic flashback saga of a working-class kid who, having seen his father struggle and his mother nag, vows never to be poor. When he moves to Southern California in the swingin' '60s, he quickly learns that selling drugs is an easy way to make money, and rapidly becomes America's leading cocaine dealer—in between prison terms. Well-acted film based on a real-life figure; only problem is finding a reason to care about him. Panavision. [R] ▼

Blow Dry (2001-British-U.S.) C-90m.  D: Paddy Breathnach. Alan Rickman, Natasha Richardson, Rachel Griffiths, Josh Hartnett, Rachael Leigh Cook, Rosemary Harris, Bill Nighy, Heidi Klum. A small Yorkshire town hosts the National Hair-dressing Championship, forcing an ex-husband-and-wife team to put aside their differences for the big wash and curl. The actors try their best but the material (by FULL MONTY writer Simon Beaufoy) is too contrived and calculated, veering wildly from wacky comedy to tearjerker. [R] ▼

Blowing Wild (1953) 90m.  D: Hugo Fregonese. Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck, Ruth Roman, Anthony Quinn, Ward Bond. Tempestuous Stanwyck is married to oil tycoon Quinn, but sets her sights on wild-catter Cooper, who's fully recovered from their one-time affair. Heated emotions can't warm up this plodding story, filmed in Mexico. ▼

Blown Away (1994) C-121m.  D: Stephen Hopkins. Jeff Bridges, Tommy Lee Jones, Lloyd Bridges, Forest Whitaker, Suzy Amis, John Finn, Stephi Lineburg, Loyd Catlett, Caitlin Clarke, Chris De Oni, Ruben Santiago-Hudson. Dreary action thriller with Irish wacko Jones targeting Boston's bomb removal squad—and one member in particular (Bridges, a former IRA crony)—with his insidious explosions. Irish accents come and go, and so does story interest, which trods on all-too-familiar turf. Bridges Sr. is fun to watch as a wily old son of Eire. Cuba Gooding, Jr., appears unbilled. Super 35. [R] ▼

Blow Out (1981) C-107m. ½ D: Brian De Palma. John Travolta, Nancy Allen, John Lithgow, Dennis Franz, Peter Boyden. Intriguing variation on Antonioni's BLOWUP (with a similar title, no less!) set in Philadelphia, about a sound-effects man who records a car accident that turns out to be a politically motivated murder. Absorbing most of the way, but weakened by show-off camerawork and logic loopholes. Panavision. [R] ▼

Blowup (1966-British-Italian) C-111m. ½ D: Michelangelo Antonioni. Vanessa Redgrave, David Hemmings, Sarah Miles, Jill Kennington, Verushka, Peter Bowles, Jane Birkin, Gillian Hills, The Yardbirds. Writer-director Antonioni's hypnotic pop-culture parable of photographer caught in passive lifestyle during the swinging '60s. Arresting, provocative film, rich in color symbolism, many-layered meanings. Music by Herbie Hancock. ▼

Blue (1968) C-113m. *½ D: Silvio Nar-

izzano. Terence Stamp, Joanna Pettet, Karl Malden, Ricardo Montalban, Joe DeSantis, Sally Kirkland. Undistinguished, poorly written Western about American-born, Mexican-raised boy who trusts no one until bullet wounds force him to trust a woman. See also: FADE-IN. Panavision. ▼●●

Blue (1993-French) C-100m. ½ D: Krzysztof Kieslowski. Juliette Binoche, Benoît Regent, Florence Pernel, Charlotte Very, Helene Vincent, Philippe Volter, Hugues Quester, Emmanuelle Riva, Julie Delpy. Binoche loses her family in a tragic accident and decides to radically change her world; she leaves behind any memories of her husband, a renowned composer, and moves into a Paris flat to contemplate life. Slow-moving drama is borderline interesting but remains more a showcase for its leading lady than anything else. First of Polish director Kieslowski's "Three Colors" trilogy probing life in contemporary Europe: BLUE/"Liberty"; WHITE/"Equality"; RED/"Fraternity." ▼●●

Blue Angel, The (1930-German) 103m. ½ D: Josef von Sternberg. Marlene Dietrich, Emil Jannings, Kurt Gerron, Rosa Valetti, Hans Albers. Ever-fascinating film classic with Jannings as stuffy professor who falls blindly in love with cabaret entertainer Lola-Lola (Dietrich), who ruins his life. Dietrich introduces "Falling in Love Again"; this role made her an international star. Robert Liebman scripted, from Heinrich Mann's novel Professor Unrath. Simultaneously shot in German and English versions; the former is obviously superior. Remade in 1959. Restored on video to 106m. ▼●●

Blue Angel, The (1959) C-107m. *½ D: Edward Dmytryk. Curt Jurgens, May Britt, Theodore Bikel, John Banner, Ludwig Stossel, Fabrizio Mioni. Disastrous remake of Josef von Sternberg-Marlene Dietrich classic, from Heinrich Mann's novel of precise professor won over by tawdry nightclub singer. CinemaScope. ▼

Bluebeard (1944) 73m.  D: Edgar G. Ulmer. Jean Parker, John Carradine, Nils Asther, Ludwig Stossel, Iris Adrian, Emmett Lynn. Surprisingly effective story set in 19th-century Paris. Incurable strangler Carradine falls for smart girl Parker, who senses that something is wrong. ▼

Bluebeard (1962-French-Italian) C-114m. ½ D: Claude Chabrol. Charles Denner, Michele Morgan, Danielle Darrieux, Hildegarde Neff, Stephane Audran, Catherine Rouvel, Françoise Lugagne. Retelling of life of French wife-killer, far less witty than Chaplin's MONSIEUR VERDOUX. Original French title: LANDRU. ▼

Bluebeard (1972) C-125m.  D: Edward Dmytryk. Richard Burton, Raquel Welch, Vima Lisi, Joey Heatherton, Nathalie Delon,

Karin Schubert. Burton doesn't make much of an impression as world's most famous ladykiller. Women are all beautiful, but script gives them little to do. International production. [R] ▼

Bluebeard's Eighth Wife (1938) 80m.  D: Ernst Lubitsch. Claudette Colbert, Gary Cooper, David Niven, Edward Everett Horton, Elizabeth Patterson, Herman Bing. Contrived comedy about a woman determined to gain the upper hand over an oft-married millionaire. One of Lubitsch's weakest films, notable mainly for the way its two stars "meet cute." Script by Billy Wilder and Charles Brackett. Previously filmed in 1923. ▼

Blue Bird, The (1940) C-88m.  D: Walter Lang. Shirley Temple, Spring Byington, Nigel Bruce, Gale Sondergaard, Eddie Collins, Sybil Jason. Released one year after THE WIZARD OF OZ, this lavish Technicolor fantasy (based on the famous play by Maurice Maeterlinck) has everything but charm. Even Shirley seems stiff. Filmed before in 1918, remade in 1976. ▼

Blue Bird, The (1976-Russian-U.S.) C-99m.  D: George Cukor. Todd Lookinland, Patsy Kensit, Elizabeth Taylor, Jane Fonda, Ava Gardner, Cicely Tyson, George Cole, Will Geer, Robert Morley, Harry Andrews. Posh, star-studded but heavy-handed fantasy based on Maeterlinck's play about children seeking the bluebird of happiness. First coproduction between U.S. and Russia is unbelievably draggy. [G]

Blue Car (2003) C-96m.  D: Karen Moncrieff. David Strathairn, Agnes Bruckner, Margaret Colin, A. J. Buckley, Regan Arnold, Frances Fisher. Well-told story of an adolescent girl (Bruckner) who's never recovered from the blow of her father walking out on the family. She finds an outlet in writing poetry, encouraged by her English teacher (Strathairn), who also becomes a kind of father figure—for a while. Impressive feature debut for writer-director Moncrieff. [R] ▼

Blue Chips (1994) C-101m. ½ D: William Friedkin. Nick Nolte, Mary McDonnell, J. T. Walsh, Ed O'Neill, Alfre Woodard, Bob Cousy, Shaquille O'Neal, Anfernee "Penny" Hardaway, Matt Nover, Anthony C. Hall, Robert Wuhl, Jerry Tarkanian, Bobby Knight, Richard Pitino, George Raveling. After his first losing season, hard-driving collegiate basketball coach Nolte agrees to look the other way while fat-cat recruiters bribe new talent to join his team. Reasonably compelling at first, then all too obvious and predictable. Written by Ron Shelton. Towering NBA superstar O'Neal is engaging as one of the recruits; other hoop stars like Larry Bird have small parts, while legendary champion Cousy plays the college athletic

Blue City (1986) C-83m. BOMB D: Michelle Manning, Judd Nelson, Ally Sheedy, David Caruso, Paul Winfield, Scott Wilson, Anita Morris. Perfectly awful film about wiseguy kid who returns to Florida hometown after five years, discovers that his father was killed, and vows to avenge (and solve) his murder. Senseless and stupid; Nelson's unappealing character seems to possess a one-word vocabulary, and the word isn't fudge. Based on a good book by Ross Macdonald. [R] ▼●●

Blue Collar (1978) C-114m. ½ D: Paul Schrader. Richard Pryor, Harvey Keitel, Yaphet Kotto, Ed Begley, Jr., Harry Bellaver, George Memmoli. Punchy, muck-raking exposé melodrama with Pryor, Keitel, and Kotto delivering strong performances as auto workers who find that it isn't just management ripping them off—it's their own union. Schrader's directing debut. [R] ▼●●

Blue Crush (2002) C-104m.  D: John Stockwell. Kate Bosworth, Matthew Davis, Michelle Rodriguez, Sanoe Lake, Mika Boorem, Chris Taloa, Kala Alexander, Faizon Love. Young woman dreams of winning a surfing championship in Hawaii—in spite of prejudice against females in the sport and other obstacles in her path, such as having to make a living and raise her kid sister. Then Mr. Right comes along (a handsome football star who's vacationing on the island) just in time to blur her focus. Bosworth is very watchable, but this sappy story never leaves shallow water. Several professional surfers appear as themselves. [PG-13] ▼●

Blue Dahlia, The (1946) 99m.  D: George Marshall. Alan Ladd, Veronica Lake, William Bendix, Howard da Silva, Hugh Beaumont, Doris Dowling. Exciting Raymond Chandler-scripted melodrama has Ladd returning from military service to find wife unfaithful. She's murdered, he's suspected in well-turned film. Produced by John Houseman. ▼

Blue Denim (1959) 89m.  D: Philip Dunne. Carol Lynley, Brandon de Wilde, Macdonald Carey, Marsha Hunt, Warren Berlinger, Roberta Shore. De Wilde and Lynley are striking as teenagers faced with Carol's pregnancy. Dated and naive, but well-acted adaptation of Broadway play. CinemaScope.

man, Angela Lansbury, Roland Winters, Iris Adrian. Agreeable Presley vehicle bolstered by Lansbury's presence as mother of ex-G.I. (Presley) returning to islands and working with tourist agency. Elvis performs one of his prettiest hits, "Can't Help Falling in Love." ▼●●

Blue Ice (1992-British-U.S.) C-105m. ½ D: Russell Mulcahy. Michael Caine, Sean Young, Ian Holm, Alun Armstrong, Sam Kelly, Jack Shepherd. Retired British agent Caine is dragged out of his beloved jazz club and back into service to help crack an illegal arms ring. Cabaret legend Bobby Short has an acting role here, and unbilled Bob Hoskins turns up briefly as Caine's chum from the old days. U.S. debut on cable TV. ▼●●

Blue Iguana, The (1988) C-88m. BOMB D: John Lafia. Dylan McDermott, Jessica Harper, James Russo, Pamela Gidley, Tovah Feldshuh, Dean Stockwell, Yano Anaya, Flea, Michele Seipp. Amateurish spoof is a hybrid of B Western and film noir, with a down-and-out bounty hunter on a suicide mission to recover $20 million in contraband money from a gaggle of bad guys south of the border. This turkey barely made it to theaters; even an amusing cameo by Stockwell can't save it. [R] ▼●●

Blue in the Face (1995) C-84m. *½ D: Wayne Wang, Paul Auster. Harvey Keitel, Lou Reed, Michael J. Fox, Roseanne, Mel Gorham, Jim Jarmusch, Lily Tomlin, Jared Harris, Giancarlo Esposito, Jose Zuniga, Victor Argo, Madonna, Mira Sorvino, Keith David, RuPaul. Meandering, overindulgent mess filmed immediately after SMOKE and improvised from sketches developed by Wang and Auster in collaboration with the actors. Set mostly in and around the Brooklyn cigar store managed by Keitel. In desperate need of a script. [R] ▼●●

Blue Juice (1995-British) C-99m.  D: Carl Prechezer. Sean Pertwee, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Steven Mackintosh, Peter Gunn, Ewan McGregor, Heathcote Williams, Collette Brown, Jenny Agutter. Low-octane tale of aging, self-absorbed surfer boy Pertwee, who's constantly putting off practical-minded (and increasingly flustered) girlfriend Zeta-Jones to hang with his mates. Superficial and predictable to an extreme; of note only for the early-career presence of Zeta-Jones and McGregor (as an obnoxious, pathetic slacker/drug dealer). [R] ▼●

Blue Kite, The (1993-Chinese) C-140m.  D: Tian Zhuangzhuang. Yi Tian, Zhang Wenyao, Chen Xiaoman, Lu Liping, Pu Quanxin, Li Xuejian. Absorbing, uncompromising saga of the life and times of—and emotional upheaval within—one Chinese family during the tumultuous 1950s and '60s, told from the point of view of a child. An unsubtle condemnation of blind revolution and the political system in Communist China. It was (unsurprisingly) highly controversial back home; at one point its filming was halted because of the scenario's "political leanings." ▼●●

Blue Lagoon, The (1949-British) C-101m.  D: Frank Launder. Jean Simmons, Donald Houston, Noel Purcell, Cyril Cusack, Maurice Denham. Idyllic romance of Simmons and Houston, shipwrecked on tropic isle, falling in love as they grow to maturity; slowly paced but refreshing. Remade in 1980.

Blue Lagoon, The (1980) C-104m. *½ D: Randal Kleiser. Brooke Shields, Christopher Atkins, Leo McKern, William Daniels. Remake of the 1949 film is little more than softcore cinema for the heavy-petting set, as two children become sexually aware of each other after being shipwrecked on an island for several years. Nestor Almendros' photography can't save it. Followed over a decade later by RETURN TO THE BLUE LAGOON. [R] ▼●●

Blue Lamp, The (1950-British) 84m.  D: Basil Dearden. Jack Warner, Jimmy Hanley, Dirk Bogarde, Robert Flemyng, Bernard Lee, Peggy Evans, Patric Doonan, Gladys Henson, Meredith Edwards. Crackerjack manhunt thriller about Scotland Yard's search for murderer of policeman. Unpretentious and exciting—a key British postwar film. Music hall star Tessie O'Shea appears as herself. ▼

Blue Manhattan SEE: Hi, Mom!

Blue Max, The (1966) C-156m. ½ D: John Guillermin. George Peppard, James Mason, Ursula Andress, Jeremy Kemp, Carl Schell. Fantastic aerial photography and memorable Jerry Goldsmith score are the assets of this silly drama, taken from German point of view, about dogfighting in WW1. Steamy Peppard-Andress love scenes aren't bad either. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Blue Monkey (1987) C-98m. BOMB D: William Fruet. Steve Railsback, Gwyneth Walsh, Susan Anspach, John Vernon, Joe Flaherty, Robin Duke, Sarah Polley. Silly monster film set at hospital that's quarantined after a monster escapes. Poorly filmed in semi-darkness. Title is meaningless and randomly selected; it was originally called GREEN MONKEY! Video title: INSECT. [R] ▼●●

Blue Murder at St. Trinian's (1957-British) 86m. ½ D: Frank Launder. Terry-Thomas, George Cole, Joyce Grenfell, Lionel Jeffries, Eric Barker, Lisa Gastoni, Ferdy Mayne, Alastair Sim. OK entry in the series of farces set at the St. Trinian's School for Girls. Ever-mischievous students win a trip to the continent and become immersed in various hijinks. Sim appears too briefly (in drag) as Miss Amelia Fritton, the school's headmistress. ▼

Blueprint for Murder, A (1953) 76m. ½ D: Andrew L. Stone. Joseph Cotten, Jean Peters, Gary Merrill, Jack Kruschen, Mae Marsh. Whodunit has Peters as prime suspect of poison killings, with Cotten seeking the truth. ▼

Blues Brothers, The (1980) C-130m.  D: John Landis. John Belushi, Dan Aykroyd, The Blues Brothers Band, Cab Calloway, John Candy, Henry Gibson, Carrie Fisher, Charles Napier, Jeff Morris, Ray Charles, Aretha Franklin, James Brown, Kathleen Freeman. Engagingly nutty comedy about the title characters (deadpan musical performers introduced on TV's Saturday Night Live) trying to raise money to save their orphanage by reuniting their old band—and nearly destroying Chicago in the process. Off the wall from start to finish, with some fine music woven in, including wonderful numbers by Franklin and Calloway. Numerous cameos include Steven Spielberg, Frank Oz, Steve Lawrence, John Lee Hooker, Twiggy, and Paul Reubens (Pee-wee Herman). Special edition runs 147m. Followed by a sequel. [R] ▼●●

Blues Brothers 2000 (1998) C-123m. ½ D: John Landis. Dan Aykroyd, John Goodman, Joe Morton, Nia Peeples, Kathleen Freeman, J. Evan Bonifant, Frank Oz, Steve Lawrence, Darrell Hammond, Erykah Badu. Just sprung from prison, Elwood Blues reunites his old band (minus brother Jake—the late John Belushi), with a young orphan (Bonifant) in tow. Silly "plot" goes on too long, but high spirits prevail, especially during infectious music numbers like "634-5789" and Aretha Franklin's "Respect." Incredible lineup of guest musicians includes B.B. King, James Brown, Junior Wells, Isaac Hayes, Eric Clapton, Dr. John, Wilson Pickett, Bo Diddley, Eddie Floyd, Jonny Lang, Billy Preston, Travis Tritt, and music supervisor Paul Shaffer. Aykroyd and Landis coproduced and scripted. [PG-13] ▼●●

Blues for Lovers (1966-British) 89m.  D: Paul Henreid. Ray Charles, Tom Bell, Mary Peach, Dawn Addams, Piers Bishop, Betty McDowall. Story of Charles (playing himself) and blind child is maudlin, but fans will like generous footage devoted to Ray's song hits, including "I Got a Woman" and "What'd I Say?" Aka BALLAD IN BLUE. ▼

Blues in the Night (1941) 88m. ½ D: Anatole Litvak. Priscilla Lane, Richard Whorf, Betty Field, Lloyd Nolan, Jack Carson, Elia Kazan, Wallace Ford, Billy Halop, Peter Whitney. Intriguing musical drama abandons early promise for soapy, silly melodramatics, in story of self-destructive musician (Whorf) and his band (young Kazan is featured as clarinetist). Good moments, wonderful Warner Bros. montages, but the great title song is never played once in its entirety! ▼

Blue Skies (1946) C-104m.  D: Stuart Heisler. Fred Astaire, Bing Crosby, Joan

Caulfield, Billy De Wolfe, Olga San Juan, Frank Faylen. Astaire and Crosby play onetime show-biz partners and rivals in this paper-thin vehicle kept aloft by lots and lots of Irving Berlin songs. Highlights: Astaire's terrific "Puttin' on the Ritz," star duo's "A Couple of Song and Dance Men." ▼●●

Blue Skies Again (1983) C-90m. ½ D: Richard Michaels. Harry Hamlin, Robyn Barto, Mimi Rogers, Kenneth McMillan, Dana Elcar, Andy Garcia, Marcos Gonzales. Friendly, well-meaning but ultimately minor-league chronicle of a young woman (Barto) attempting to play professional baseball. [PG]▼

Blue Sky (1994) C-101m. ½ D: Tony Richardson. Jessica Lange, Tommy Lee Jones, Powers Boothe, Carrie Snodgrass, Amy Locane, Chris O'Donnell, Mitchell Ryan, Dale Dye, Tim Scott, Annie Ross, Anna Klemp. A dedicated military man endures continual embarrassment by his teasingly sexy (and emotionally unstable) wife, for one simple reason: he loves her. Intelligent and compassionate drama, set in the early 1960s, loses its way as it gets involved in a nuclear cover-up subplot, but rates as a must-see for anyone who admires its stars: both Jones and Lange (in an Oscar-winning performance) are extraordinarily good. Shot in 1990; director Richardson died the following year. Timothy Bottoms appears unbilled. [PG-13]▼●●

Blue Steel (1990) C-102m. *½ D: Kathryn Bigelow. Jamie Lee Curtis, Ron Silver, Clancy Brown, Elizabeth Pena, Louise Fletcher, Philip Bosco, Kevin Dunn, Richard Jenkins. Stupid thriller with Curtis as a rookie cop stalked by a slick psycho (Silver) in N.Y.C. Laughably ludicrous dialogue is matched by preposterous story turns. [R]▼●●

Blue Streak (1999) C-94m.  D: Les Mayfield. Martin Lawrence, Luke Wilson, Dave Chappelle, William Forsythe, Nicole Ari Parker, Peter Greene. Loud boilerplate action comedy casts Lawrence as a so-called master thief who has socked away a stolen jewel in the innards of a construction site—only to discover, upon his release from jail, that the completed structure is a police precinct. The solution is to become a cop, just as the solution for Lawrence might be to stay away from moldy scripts like this. [PG-13]▼●

Blue Thunder (1983) C-108m.  D:

John Badham. Roy Scheider, Malcolm McDowell, Candy Clark, Daniel Stern, Warren Oates, Paul Roebling, Joe Santos. Slick action film built around L.A.'s police helicopter surveillance team. Fun at first, but gets stupider (and crueler) as film goes on—with villainous McDowell character especially ludicrous. Even escapist fare has to be believable on its own terms. Later a TV series. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Blue Veil, The (1951) 113m.  D: Curtis Bernhardt. Jane Wyman, Charles Laughton, Joan Blondell, Richard Carlson, Agnes Moorehead, Don Taylor, Audrey Totter, Everett Sloane, Cyril Cusack, Natalie Wood, Warner Anderson, Vivian Vance, Philip Ober. Wyman is self-sacrificing nursemaid whose life story is chronicled with intertwined episodes of her charges and their families. Well done.

Blue Velvet (1986) C-120m.  D: David Lynch. Kyle MacLachlan, Isabella Rossellini, Dennis Hopper, Laura Dern, Hope Lange, Dean Stockwell, Jack Nance, Brad Dourif. Terminally weird, though flamboyantly original film about a young man's involvement in a small-town mystery involving a kinky nightclub singer, a sadistic kidnapper/drug dealer, and other swell folks. A highly individual look at the bizarre elements just behind the facade of a picture-perfect American town. Too audacious to be easily dismissed, but too strange to be easily enjoyed . . . yet this was one of the most critically praised movies of 1986! The director also wrote this one. J-D-C Scope. [R]▼●●

Blue Water, White Death (1971) C-99m.  D: Peter Gimbel, James Lipscomb. Vivid documentary on one of the sea's most voracious and feared predators, the great white shark; terrifying underwater scenes but somewhat overstated. Techniscope. [G]●

Blume in Love (1973) C-117m. ½ D: Paul Mazursky. George Segal, Susan Anspach, Kris Kristofferson, Marsha Mason, Shelley Winters, Paul Mazursky. Self-indulgent film about divorce-lawyer Segal refusing to accept fact that his wife (Anspach) has walked out on him, determining to win her back. Good look at modern marriages, but overlong, rambling; Kristofferson delightful as man who moves in with Anspach. [R]▼●

B. Monkey (1999-British-U.S.) C-90m.  D: Michael Radford. Asia Argento, Jared Harris, Jonathan Rhys Meyers, Rupert Everett, Tim Woodward, Ian Hart. Superficial fluff about a mild-mannered British schoolteacher who falls for a sultry bank robber trying to leave her criminal past behind. Radford's first film since IL POSTINO is a disappointment, particularly since most of it reportedly ended up on the cutting room floor. Still watchable, with a smoldering central performance from Argento, daughter of horroremeister Dario Argento. Completed in 1996. [R] ▼

BMX Bandits (1983-Australian) C-88m.  D: Brian Trenchard-Smith. David Argue, John Ley, Nicole Kidman, Angelo D'Angelo, James Lugton, Bryan Marshall. Two adolescent boys crash their BMX bikes. While trying to earn money to fix them, they and pal Kidman stumble onto a cache of stolen walkie-talkies. Harmless popcorn fodder, fashioned to appeal to young teens and pre-teens. One of Kidman's first film appearances. Panavision. ▼

Boarding Gate (2007-French) C-105m. *½ D: Olivier Assayas. Asia Argento, Michael Madsen, Carl Ng, Kelly Lin, Joana Preiss, Alex Descas, Kim Gordon. Argento plays an unscrupulous former hooker involved in corporate espionage and international drug smuggling in Paris and the Far East. She has little interest in her ex (shady businessman Madsen) but has the hots for her tough boss (Ng). Argento is rarely off-screen in this Eurotrashy thriller that had potential, but story of jet-set criminal low-lives isn't as fascinating or meaningful (or coherent or intelligible) as intended, and this globe-trotting film goes nowhere. [R] ▼

Boarding School (1977-German) C-98m. *½ D: Andre Farwagi. Nastassja Kinski, Gerry Sundquist, Kurt Raab, Sean Chapman. Sex comedy with Kinski in one of her first starring roles, as an American girl in an exclusive Swiss boarding school, circa 1956. She devises a ruse of the girls pretending to be prostitutes in order to seduce cute guys at nearby boys' school. Original title: THE PASSION FLOWER HOTEL. ▼

Boardwalk (1979) C-98m. ½ D: Stephen Verona. Ruth Gordon, Lee Strasberg, Janet Leigh, Joe Silver, Eli Mintz, Eddie Barth. Poignant view of elderly couple struggling to survive in decaying neighborhood missteps into DEATH WISH melodramatics for its finale. Fine performances, including Leigh as duty-bound daughter.

Boat, The SEE: Das Boot

Boat People (1983-Hong Kong-Chinese) C-106m. ½ D: Ann Hui. Lam Chi-Cheung, Cora Miao, Season Ma, Andy Lau, Paul Ching. Harrowing, heartbreaking, highly provocative account of Japanese photojournalist Chi-Cheung's experiences in Vietnam after Liberation, particularly his friendship with 14-year-old Ma and her family. [R]

Boat Trip (2003) C-95m. BOMB D: Mort Nathan. Cuba Gooding, Jr., Horatio Sanz, Roselyn Sanchez, Vivica A. Fox, Maurice Godin, Roger Moore, Lin Shaye, Victoria Silvstedt, Richard Roundtree, Bob Gunton, Thomas Lennon. Appallingly bad comedy about two friends who book a cruise in order to meet women—unaware that they're heading out on a ship full of gay men.

Gooding is as likable as ever, but the cumulative effect of this unfunny, tasteless, derivative film is deadening. Will Ferrell appears unbilled. [R] ▼

Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice (1969) C-104m.  D: Paul Mazursky. Natalie Wood, Robert Culp, Elliott Gould, Dyan Cannon, Horst Ebersberg, Greg Mullavey, Lee Bergere. Glossy look at modern lifestyles; ultrasophisticated couple (Wood & Culp) try to modernize thinking of their best friends (Gould & Cannon) about sexual freedom. Sharp observations, fine performances, marred by silly, pretentious finale. Written by Mazursky and Larry Tucker; Mazursky's directorial debut. Later a short-lived TV series. [R] ▼

Bobbie Jo and the Outlaw (1976) C-89m.  D: Mark L. Lester. Marjoe Gortner, Lynda Carter, Jesse Vint, Merrie Lynn Ross, Belinda Balaski, Peggy Stewart. Competent but excessively violent drive-in fare; bored carhop Carter hooks up with Marjoe and his gang for a robbing and killing spree. Noteworthy for a couple of glimpses of Lynda's left breast and the occasional film-buff in-joke (e.g., a tobacco-chewing deputy named Abel Gance), courtesy scribe Vernon Zimmerman. [R] ▼

Bobby (2006) C-120m. ½ D: Emilio Estevez. Harry Belafonte, Joy Bryant, Nick Cannon, Emilio Estevez, Laurence Fishburne, Brian Geraghty, Heather Graham, Anthony Hopkins, Helen Hunt, Joshua Jackson, David Krumholtz, Ashton Kutcher, Shia LaBeouf, Lindsay Lohan, William H. Macy, Svetlana Metkina, Demi Moore, Freddy Rodriguez, Martin Sheen, Christian Slater, Sharon Stone, Jacob Vargas, Mary Elizabeth Winstead, Elijah Wood. Twenty-two lives are interwoven during the course of one day—June 4, 1968—at L.A.'s fabled Ambassador Hotel, from kitchen workers to affluent guests to idealistic campaigners for Senator Robert F. Kennedy. The story ends tragically with the assassination of RFK, who has just won California's Democratic primary. Writer-director Estevez skillfully captures the period and the atmosphere of this grand hotel, but some of his characters' stories aren't terribly interesting or relevant. An emotional finale helps. Super 35. [R] ▼

Bobby Deerfield (1977) C-124m. BOMB D: Sydney Pollack. Al Pacino, Marthe Keller, Anny Duperey, Walter McGinn, Romolo Valli, Stephen Meldegg. Grand Prix race-car driver Pacino romances Florentine aristocrat Keller, who is dying of that unnamed disease that seems disproportionately to afflict movie heroines. Her suffering is nothing compared to the audience's; even Pacino is deadening. Pollack later recut this to 99m. Panavision. [PG] ▼

colm McDowell, Connie Ray, Brett Rice, Aidan Quinn. Overlong sports bio about the celebrated Southern gentleman golfer who was the idol of millions during the 1920s. Scenario lambastes athletes who dare to expect payment for their labors; Jones is depicted as a deity simply because he chose to maintain his amateur standing. Northam is well cast as Walter Hagen, Jones' links rival. Super 35. [PG] ▼

Bob Le Flambeur (1955-French) 102m.  D: Jean-Pierre Melville. Roger Duchesne, Isabel Corey, Daniel Cauchy, Guy Decomble, Andre Garet, Gerard Buhr, Howard Vernon. Witty inversion of THE ASPHALT JUNGLE: hard-luck gambler Duchesne enlists pals in intricate plan to knock over Deauville casino, but everything is so stacked against them that we almost hope he'll call it off. Clever and atmospheric, blessed with eerily sexy Corey and a great closing line. Unreleased in the U.S. until 1982. Remade as THE GOOD THIEF. [PG] ▼

Bobo, The (1967) C-105m.  D: Robert Parrish. Peter Sellers, Britt Ekland, Rossano Brazzi, Adolfo Celi, Ferdy Mayne. Misfire comedy casts Sellers as aspiring singing matador who's promised a booking if he can seduce Ekland, the most desirable woman in Barcelona, within three days. Filmed in Spain and Rome. ▼

Bob Roberts (1992) C-101m.  D: Tim Robbins. Tim Robbins, Giancarlo Esposito, Ray Wise, Rebecca Jenkins, Harry J. Lennix, John Ottavino, Robert Stanton, Alan Rickman, Gore Vidal, Brian Murray, Anita Gillette, David Strathairn, Jack Black. Smart, funny political satire about a right-wing, folk-singing Senatorial candidate who knows how to manipulate an audience—and the media. Turns into a political polemic near the end, using speechifying instead of incident and dialogue to make its points. Still, a stimulating ride, and an impressive writing-directing debut for Robbins, who also composed the songs with his brother David. Funny cameos by a variety of famous actors as air-headed TV news anchors and reporters; Bob Balaban and John Cusack add verisimilitude to a pseudo-Saturday Night Live sequence. [R] ▼

Boccaccio '70 (1962-Italian) C-165m.  D: Vittorio De Sica, Luchino Visconti, Federico Fellini. Anita Ekberg, Sophia Loren, Romy Schneider, Peppino De Filippo, Dante Maggio, Tomas Milian. Trio of episodes: "The Raffle"—timid soul wins a liaison with a girl as prize; "The Job"—aristocrat's wife takes a job as her husband's mistress; "The Temptation of Dr. Antonio"—fantasy of puritanical fanatic and a voluptuous poster picture which comes alive. A fourth episode, directed by Mario Monicelli, was dropped for U.S. release. ▼

Bodies, Rest & Motion (1993) C-93m.

½ D: Michael Steinberg. Phoebe Cates, Bridget Fonda, Tim Roth, Eric Stoltz, Alicia Witt, Rich Wheeler. Low-key vignette about four young people trying to connect with each other—and with their own feelings—in a bleak Arizona town. Too obviously based on a stage play (by Roger Hedden), this laid-back film is often inert, but appealing performances—especially by Fonda and Stoltz—give it some spark. Amusing cameo by Bridget's father Peter Fonda. Stoltz also coproduced. [R] ▼

Body, The (2001) C-100m.  D: Jonas McCord. Antonio Banderas, Olivia Williams, Derek Jacobi, John Wood, John Shrapnel, Jason Flemyng, Muhamed Bakri. Vatican priest Banderas and Israeli archaeologist Williams go head-to-head when they discover an ancient skeleton that just might be the body of Christ. Spiritual thriller isn't quite as hokey as it sounds but it isn't all that great either, especially with its cheesy shoot-out action climax. Shimmering cinematography from Vilmos Zsigmond helps. Shot on location in Jerusalem. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Body and Soul (1947) 104m. * D: Robert Rossen. John Garfield, Lilli Palmer, Hazel Brooks, Anne Revere, William Conrad, Joseph Pevney, Canada Lee. Most boxing films pale next to this classic (written by Abraham Polonsky) of Garfield working his way up by devious means, becoming famous champ. Superb photography by James Wong Howe, and Oscar-winning editing by Francis Lyon and Robert Parrish. Remade in 1981 and for TV in 1998. ▼

Body and Soul (1981) C-100m. ½ D: George Bowers. Leon Isaac Kennedy, Jayne Kennedy, Peter Lawford, Michael V. Gazzo, Perry Lang, Kim Hamilton. Poor remake of the 1947 classic, with welterweight boxer Kennedy shunning corruption and becoming champion. Leon tries, but is defeated by his paper-thin screenplay. Muhammad Ali appears briefly as himself. [R] ▼

Body Count (1998) C-80m. BOMB D: Robert Patton-Spruill. David Caruso, Ving Rhames, Linda Fiorentino, John Leguizamo, Donnie Wahlberg, Forest Whitaker. Good cast in an irredeemably awful film that (understandably) didn't make it to theaters in the U.S. A daring museum heist goes bad, leaving the volatile partners to drive to Miami to make their dropoff—if they can avoid killing each other along the way. A more despicable bunch of characters would be hard to imagine. [R] ▼

Body Double (1984) C-109m. ½ D: Brian De Palma. Craig Wasson, Gregg Henry, Melanie Griffith, Deborah Shelton, Guy Boyd, Dennis Franz. Gullible (and brainless) actor Wasson becomes obsessed with beautiful woman he's been eyeing through telescope and soon finds himself embroiled in labyrinthine murder plot. Another sleazy fetish film from De Palma, who not only rips off Hitchcock (again) but even himself (OBSESSION, DRESSED TO KILL, BLOW OUT). Some clever moments amid the sleaze, and a good performance by Griffith as porno actress. [R]▼●●

Bodyguard (1948) 62m. ½ D: Richard Fleischer. Lawrence Tierney, Priscilla Lane, Philip Reed, June Clayworth, Elisabeth Risdon, Steve Brodie. Hard-boiled homicide cop Tierney is suspended; he reluctantly takes a job as a bodyguard and is promptly framed on a murder rap. Solid little B film, strikingly directed. Based on a story coauthored by 23-year-old Robert Altman!

Bodyguard, The (1992) C-129m. ½ D: Mick Jackson. Kevin Costner, Whitney Houston, Gary Kemp, Bill Cobbs, Ralph Waite, Tomas Arana, Michele Lamar Richards, Mike Starr, DeVaughn Nixon, Robert Wuhl, Bert Remsen, Stephen Shellen, Debbie Reynolds. Cold-as-steel professional bodyguard signs on to protect a music superstar (against his better judgment)—then falls in love with her. Overblown dual-star vehicle makes no sense, but has many crowd-pleasing ingredients—as well as moments of high kitsch. Solid film debut for Houston, who's most effective singing Dolly Parton's classic tune "I Will Always Love You." Lawrence Kasdan's screenplay was written years earlier—reportedly as a Steve McQueen vehicle. Remade in Hong Kong with Jet Li as THE DEFENDER (1994). [R]▼●●

Body Heat (1981) C-113m.  D: Lawrence Kasdan. William Hurt, Kathleen Turner, Richard Crenna, Ted Danson, J.A. Preston, Mickey Rourke. Hurt is a Florida lawyer whose brains work at half speed; Turner is a married socialite who turns on the heat and inspires him to bump off her husband. Over-derivative of 1940s melodramas at first, then goes off on its own path and scores. Turner's first film; Kasdan's directorial debut. [R]▼●●

Body of a Woman SEE: Big Squeeze, The Body of Evidence (1993) C-99m.  D: Uli Edel. Madonna, Willem Dafoe, Joe Mantegna, Anne Archer, Jürgen Prochnow, Julianne Moore, Frank Langella, Stan Shaw, Charles Hallahan, Lillian Lehman. Lawyer Dafoe—the kind of guy you don't want handling your case—falls under the spell of his client (Madonna), who's accused of killing her wealthy lover with too much rough sex. One-note melodrama with "hot" lovemaking scenes that inspire more discomfort than titillation. Also released in unrated version and an explicit NC-17 edition. [R]▼●●

Body of Lies (2008) C-129m. ½ D: Ridley Scott. Leonardo DiCaprio, Russell Crowe, Mark Strong, Golshifteh Farahani, Oscar Isaac, Simon McBurney, Alon Aboutboul, Ali Suliman, Vince Colosimo. High-energy cloak-and-dagger yarn about hotshot

CIA operative DiCaprio, who puts his life on the line every day in the Middle East. His cynical, emotionally detached superior in Langley (Crowe) surveys his every move but keeps valuable information from him that might affect his actions. Entertaining, but lets down and becomes all too conventional toward the climax. Strong makes a vivid impression as DiCaprio's high-level connection in Amman. William Monahan adapted David Ignatius' novel. Super 35. [R]●

Body Parts (1991) C-88m. *½ D: Eric Red. Jeff Fahey, Lindsay Duncan, Kim Delaney, Brad Dourif, Zakes Mokae, John Walsh, Paul Benevictor. Attempt at a hyperkinetic sci-fi/horror shocker is just another variation on the same old "Hands of Orlac" plot: this time, several key body parts of a killer are grafted onto people, with violent results. Escalating plot also escalates viewer's disbelief. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Body Rock (1984) C-93m. *½ D: Marcelo Epstein. Lorenzo Lamas, Vicki Frederick, Cameron Dye, Ray Sharkey, Michelle Nicastro. Formula break-dancing movie (shot by the great Robby Muller!) casts beefy Lamas as hero/heel who dumps his best friend, his bf's quietly voluptuous sis, and other pals when he's hired to emcee a chic uptown club. Watching L.L. clomp to the beat is like watching Victor Mature boogaloo. [PG-13]▼●

Body Shots (1999) C-105m. BOMB D: Michael Cristofer. Sean Patrick Flanery, Jerry O'Connell, Amanda Peet, Tara Reid, Ron Livingston, Emily Procter, Brad Rowe, Sybil Temchen. Trying to shed light on the state of sex and dating in the 1990s, film follows eight twentysomethings as they explore the wild L.A. nightlife. Dark, dreary and derivative attempt to say something "important" about relationships. If this is truly where the world is heading, it's time to get off! Also available in 108m. unrated version. Super 35. [R]▼●

Body Slam (1987) C-89m. ½ D: Hal Needham. Dirk Benedict, Tanya Roberts, Roddy Piper, Capt. Lou Albano, Barry Gordon, Charles Nelson Reilly, Billy Barty, John Astin. Barely released comedy, based on the successful rock 'n' roll/wrestling connection of the early 1980s, deserved better. Benedict is charming as an unscrupulous music promoter who latches onto wrestling as his meal ticket; "Rowdy" Roddy makes an engaging screen debut. Watch for cameos by many grapplers, including the Wild Samoans, Ric Flair, and Bruno Sammartino. [PG]▼

Body Snatcher, The (1945) 77m. ½ D: Robert Wise. Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Henry Daniell, Edith Atwater, Russell Wade, Rita Corday. Fine, atmospheric tale from Robert Louis Stevenson short story of doctor (Daniell) who is forced to deal with scurrilous character (Karloff) in order to get cadavers for experiments in 19th-century Edinburgh. Last film to team Karloff and Lugosi, their scenes together are eerie and compelling. Classic Val Lewton thriller. Screenplay by Philip MacDonald and Carlos Keith (Lewton). ▼●●

Body Snatchers (1994) C-87m. ½ D: Abel Ferrara. Gabrielle Anwar, Meg Tilly, Forest Whitaker, Terry Kinney, Billy Wirth, Reilly Murphy, Christine Elise, R. Lee Erney. Teenage Anwar moves to a military base with her family and soon discovers that pods from outer space are duplicating and replacing everyone there. Third version of Jack Finney's eerie novel is the least satisfactory; impatience, rather than tension, is aroused, and the horror is diminished because it's strangers who are being replaced. (Setting the story at a military base—where everyone is supposed to act alike—may not have been a good idea, either.) Both earlier versions titled INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS. Arriscope. [R] ▼●●

Body Stealers, The SEE: Thin Air

Boeing Boeing (1965) C-102m.  D: John Rich. Jerry Lewis, Tony Curtis, Dany Saval, Christiane Schmidtmer, Suzanna Leigh, Thelma Ritter. A surprisingly subdued Lewis is paired with Curtis in story of American newspaperman who runs swinging pad in Paris, constantly stocked with stewardesses, to the chagrin of housekeeper Ritter. Amusing. ▼●

Boesman & Lena (2000-French-South African) C/B&W-88m. ½ D: John Berry. Danny Glover, Angela Bassett, Willie Jonah. A once-happy, now-embittered couple is forced to survive on the road after the destruction of their shanty home. Rich performances (especially by Bassett) distinguish this faithful adaptation of Athol Fugard's play, filmed in South Africa, but it's all dialogue. Final film for director Berry, who died during postproduction. Super 35. ▼●

Bofors Gun, The (1968) C-106m.  D: Jack Gold. Nicol Williamson, Ian Holm, David Warner, Peter Vaughn, John Thaw, Richard O'Callaghan, Barry Jackson, Donald Gee, Barbara Jefford. British soldier, on the eve of his return home in 1950s, comes tragically face-to-face with a rebellious Irish gunner. Engrossing, well acted.

Bog (1984) C-87m. BOMB D: Don Keeslar. Gloria De Haven, Aldo Ray, Marshall Thompson, Leo Gordon, Glen Voros, Rojay North, Ed Clark. Man in monster suit rises from bottom of lake and goes on rampage, sucking the blood from his victims. Ultra-cheap, ultra-bad time-killer. Filmed in Wisconsin in 1978. De Haven displays her versatility by appearing in a dual role. ▼●

Boggy Creek II SEE: Barbaric Beast of Boggy Creek, The, Part II

Bogus (1996) C-111m.  D: Norman Jewison. Whoopi Goldberg, Gérard Depardieu, Haley Joel Osment, Nancy Travis, Denis

Mercier, Andrea Martin, Ute Lemper, Sheryl Lee Ralph, Al Waxman, Don Francks, Mo Gaffney. Curious fable about a boy whose single mom dies in an accident; his closest relative, a foster aunt (Goldberg), turns out to be an uptight businesswoman with no motherly instincts whatsoever. So he invents a friend, Bogus (Depardieu), who cheers him up and sticks by his side. Odd, melancholy, and vaguely unsatisfying—not to mention long and slow. [PG] ▼●●

Bogus Bandits SEE: Devil's Brother, The Bohemian Girl, The (1936) 71m.  D: James Home, Charles R. Rogers. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Thelma Todd, Antonio Moreno, Darla Hood, Jacqueline Wells (Julie Bishop), Mae Busch. Nifty comic opera with Stan and Ollie part of gypsy caravan. They adopt abandoned girl who turns out to be a princess. ▼●

Boiler Room (2000) C-117m.  D: Ben Younger. Giovanni Ribisi, Nia Long, Vin Diesel, Ben Affleck, Ron Rifkin, Tom Everett Scott, Scott Caan, Jamie Kennedy, Nicky Katt, Taylor Nichols. Young man—like most of his generation, to hear him tell it—wants success without having to work for it. This puts him at odds with his judgmental father (who happens to be a judge) until he signs on at a maverick brokerage house where the money flows freely . . . too freely. Naive at times, but entertaining. Tyro writer-director Younger makes disarming reference to WALL STREET and GLENGARRY GLEN ROSS, which this movie echoes in certain ways. [R] ▼●

Boiling Point (1993) C-92m.  D: James B. Harris. Wesley Snipes, Dennis Hopper, Lolita Davidovich, Viggo Mortensen, Dan Hedaya, Seymour Cassel, Jonathan Banks, Christine Elise, Tony LoBianco, Valerie Perrine, James Tolkan, Paul Gleason. Snipes plays a federal agent determined to nail the man responsible for killing his colleague and friend during a sting operation. Misnamed crime yarn is tepid at best, but well shot on L.A. locations, and filled with familiar faces. [R] ▼●●

Bolero (1934) 83m. ½ D: Wesley Ruggles. George Raft, Carole Lombard, Sally Rand, Gertrude Michael, William Frawley, Ray Milland. Silly, protracted story of cocky dancer's rise to fame is made fun by good stars and production values; dance sequences are first-rate, although much of Raft and Lombard's footwork is "doubled" by professionals. Rand, in a rare film appearance, performs her famous fan dance. Raft and Lombard reteamed for RUMBA.

Bolero (1981-French) C-173m. ½ D: Claude Lelouch. James Caan, Geraldine Chaplin, Robert Hossein, Nicole Garcia, Daniel Olbrychski, Evelyne Bouix. Boring tale of various characters of different nationalities and their love of music, set during a 50-year time span. The actors play more than one character, and the result is confusion. ▼

Bolero (1984) C-104m. BOMB D: John Derek, Bo Derek, George Kennedy, Andrea Occipinti, Ana Obregon, Olivia d'Abo. Colossally boring sexual drama, for Bo-peepers only... though even voyeurs will be yawning during long stretches between nude scenes. Bo also produced the picture. [R] ▼

Bolt (2008) C-96m.  D: Chris Williams, Byron Howard. Voices of John Travolta, Miley Cyrus, Susie Essman, Mark Walton, Malcolm McDowell, Diedrich Bader, Nick Swardson, Chloe Moretz, Greg Germann, James Lipton. The canine star of a hit TV series knows no other world than the make-believe environment in which he plays a doggie superhero. Then he's accidentally shipped in a crate to N.Y.C. and gets his first taste of reality. At first the film threatens to choke on show-biz talk, but it develops a heart as it takes to the road. The character of Rhino, a hamster in a plastic ball (voiced by Disney artist Walton), is one of the all-time great Disney sidekicks. [PG] ▼

Bomba the Jungle Boy series SEE: Leonard Maltin's Classic Movie Guide

Bombay Talkie (1970-Indian) C-105m. ½ D: James Ivory. Shashi Kapoor, Jennifer Kendal, Zia Mohyeddin, Aparna Sen, Utpal Dutt. A bored, pleasure-seeking British writer (Kendal) becomes romantically involved with an Indian movie actor (Kapoor). The subject—the interaction between different cultures—has been a staple in Ivory's films, but the presentation here is less than memorable. Scripted by Ivory and Ruth Praver Jhabvala. [PG] ▼

Bombers B-52 (1957) C-106m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. Natalie Wood, Karl Malden, Marsha Hunt, Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., Dean Jagger. Ordinary love story between army pilot Zimbalist and Wood, with latter's sergeant father objecting, intertwined with good aerial footage of jet plane maneuvers. CinemaScope. ▼

Bombshell (1933) 95m. ½ D: Victor Fleming. Jean Harlow, Lee Tracy, Frank Morgan, Franchot Tone, Una Merkel, Pat O'Brien, C. Aubrey Smith, Ted Healy, Isabel Jewell. Devastating satire of 1930s Hollywood, with Harlow a much-abused star, Tracy an incredibly unscrupulous publicity director making her life hell. No holds barred. Scripted by John Lee Mahin and Jules Furthman, from a play by Caroline Francke and Mack Crane. Retitled BLONDE BOMBSHELL. ▼

Bone Collector, The (1999) C-117m.  D: Phillip Noyce. Denzel Washington, Angelina Jolie, Queen Latifah, Michael Rooker, Mike McGlone, Luis Guzman, Leland Orser, John Benjamin Hickey, Ed O'Neill. The NYPD's leading forensics expert, now a bedridden quadriplegic, enlists the help of a reluctant cop

(Jolie) to be his eyes and ears in tracking down a games-playing serial killer. First-rate suspense thriller/whodunit, based on a novel by Jeffery Deaver. Not for the squeamish. Super 35. [R] ▼

Bones (2001) C-96m.  D: Ernest Dickerson. Snoop Dogg, Pam Grier, Clifton Powell, Bianca Lawson, Michael T. Weiss, Khalil Kain, Merwin Mondesir. Two young suburban brothers (in both senses) buy a dilapidated ghetto brownstone in hopes of turning it into a trendy nightspot... but their entrepreneur father is panicked about the house's sinister history and his own participation in the 1979 slaying of its original owner (Dogg), who's now a ghost. If grossness makes you giggle, this speedy junk has a few grotesque jolts, plus the sight of still-shapely Grier to keep your own dad's heart beating adequately. Super 35. [R] ▼

Bonjour Tristesse (1958) C/B&W-94m.  D: Otto Preminger. Deborah Kerr, David Niven, Jean Seberg, Geoffrey Home, Mylene Demongeot. Teenager does her best to break up romance between playboy widowed father and his mistress, with tragic results. Francoise Sagan's philosophy seeps through glossy production; Kerr exceptionally fine in soaper set on French Riviera. CinemaScope. ▼

Bonnie and Clyde (1967) C-111m. * D: Arthur Penn. Warren Beatty, Faye Dunaway, Michael J. Pollard, Gene Hackman, Estelle Parsons, Denver Pyle, Gene

Wilder, Dub Taylor. Trend-setting film about unlikely heroes of 1930s bank-robbing team has spawned many imitators but still leads the pack. Veering from comedy to melodrama and social commentary, it remains vivid, stylish throughout. When released, violent conclusion was extremely controversial. Screenplay by David Newman and Robert Benton. Parsons and cinematographer Burnett Guffey were Oscar winners. Wilder's first film. ▼●●

Bonnie Parker Story, The (1958) 81m. ½ D: William Witney. Dorothy Provine, Jack Hogan, Richard Bakalyan, Joseph Turkel. With the success of BONNIE AND CLYDE, this film takes on added luster, recounting the lurid criminal life of the female crook (Provine)—though Clyde Barrow isn't even mentioned in this low-budget saga. Superama.

Bonnie Scotland (1935) 80m. ½ D: James Horne. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, June Lang, William Janney, Anne Grey, Vernon Steele, James Finlayson. Plot sometimes gets in the way of L&H, but their material is well up to par; Stan and Ollie inadvertently join a Scottish military regiment stationed in the desert. ▼●●

Bon Voyage! (1962) C-130m. *½ D: James Neilson. Fred MacMurray, Jane Wyman, Michael Callan, Deborah Walley, Tommy Kirk, Kevin Corcoran. Slow, drawn-out Disney comedy about "typical" American family's misadventures on trip to Europe. Aimed more at adults than kids, but too draggy and simple-minded for anyone. ▼●

Bon Voyage (2003-French) C-114m. ½ D: Jean-Paul Rappeneau. Isabelle Adjani, Gérard Depardieu, Virginie Ledoyen, Yvan Attal, Grégori Derangère, Peter Coyote, Jean-Marc Stehlé. A self-centered film star (Adjani), a government minister (Depardieu), and a frail scientist and his determined protégée (Stehlé and Ledoyen) are a few of the disparate people who converge on Bordeaux on the eve of WW2. Film's real lead is the actress's bourgeois former lover (Derangère), who is drawn into the story and finds himself playing the hero. Unusual blend of CASABLANCA-esque intrigue with farce doesn't quite come off as well as intended, but it's fast-paced, fairly broad fun. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Bon Voyage Charlie Brown (and Don't Come Back!) (1980) C-75m.  D: Bill Melendez. Voices of Daniel Anderson, Casey Carlson, Patricia Patts, Arrin Skelley. Charlie Brown and company travel to France as exchange students. Cute animated entertainment for Peanuts devotees. [G] ▼●●

Bonzo Goes to College (1952) 80m.  D: Frederick de Cordova. Maureen O'Sullivan, Charles Drake, Edmund Gwenn, Gigi Perreau, Gene Lockhart, Irene Ryan, David Janssen. Follow-up to BEDTIME FOR BONZO has brainy chimp lead

college football team to victory; good cast takes back seat to monkey-shines.

Boogeyman, The (1980) C-86m.  D: Ulli Lommel. Suzanna Love, Ron James, Michael Love, John Carradine, Raymond Boyden. Shards of mirror that "witnessed" horrible murder cause gruesome deaths. German art film actor-director Lommel lends unconventional angle to this combination of THE EXORCIST and HALLOWEEN. Effects are quite colorful, if somewhat hokey. Followed by BOOGYMAN II. [R] ▼●●

Boogeyman II (1983) C-79m. BOMB D: Bruce Starr. Suzanna Love, Shana Hall, Ulli Lommel. Survivor of BOOGYMAN goes to Hollywood to live with producer who is going to turn her life story into a movie. Moronic slasher film depends mostly on footage from BOOGYMAN, amply used in flashbacks. Almost laughable. ▼●

Boogeyman (2005-U.S.-New Zealand) C-89m.  D: Stephen T. Kay. Barry Watson, Emily Deschanel, Skye McCole Bartusiak, Lucy Lawless, Tory Mussett. You already know the story: a young man returns to his childhood home, the setting of a traumatic experience where as a kid he either saw—or didn't see—a creepy guy/thing suck his loving father into eternal oblivion by way of the closet in his room. Now, years later, he must confront his fears alone . . . and you can guess the rest. Despite its predictable blueprint there are a couple of pretty decent scares to be had here. You might consider chapter-skipping on your DVD to get to the good stuff. Followed by two DVD sequels. [PG-13] ▼●

Boogie Man Will Get You, The (1942) 66m. ½ D: Lew Landers. Boris Karloff, Peter Lorre, Jeff Donnell, Larry Parks, Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom, Maude Eburne, Don Beddoe, Frank Puglia. Good cast in lightweight cash-in on ARSENIC AND OLD LACE. Karloff is dotty scientist attempting to make supermen out of traveling salesmen while Donnell tries to turn his home into Colonial tourist trap; Lorre is screwy doctor/sheriff/notary/loan shark. No great shakes, but pleasant. ●

Boogie Nights (1997) C-152m. ½ D: Paul Thomas Anderson. Mark Wahlberg, Burt Reynolds, Julianne Moore, John C. Reilly, Don Cheadle, Heather Graham, Luis Guzman, Philip Seymour Hoffman, William H. Macy, Alfred Molina, Philip Baker Hall, Robert Ridgely, Ricky Jay, Jack Riley, Joanna Gleason. Extraordinary, intense recreation of life among a "family" of pornographers in the San Fernando Valley, from the late 1970s through the early 1980s. Wahlberg plays a disaffected 17-year-old with no brains but a formidable sex organ who becomes a porn-movie sensation; Reynolds is perfect as the director/paterfamilias who makes him a star. Writer-director Anderson doesn't judge his characters, but makes them—and their actions—seem utterly real. Tough going at times, but gripping and funny as well. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Book of Love (1990) C-82m. *½ D: Robert Shaye. Chris Young, Keith Coogan, Aeryk Egan, Josie Bissett, Tricia Leigh Fisher, Michael McKeen, Danny Nucci, John Cameron Mitchell. Offensively inconsequential '50s teen romance about the usual clichés: James Dean, dilapidated cars, and greasy hair dressings. Standard anachronisms abound, starting with the use of the title oldie (a 1958 hit) in a film set in 1956. Inauspicious directorial debut for New Line Cinema's founder/CEO. Fisher (daughter of Connie Stevens and Eddie Fisher) is the sole standout as a tough girl with a soft heart. [PG-13] ▼●●

Book of Shadows (1973) C-80m. ½ D: Raymond St. Jacques. Raymond St. Jacques, Phillip Thomas, Freda Payne, Hope Clarke, D'Urville Martin, Gilbert Green. Uneven but sometimes enjoyable story of a black numbers-racket operation in a rural town during the Depression. [R] ▼

Book of Shadows: Blair Witch 2 (2000) C-90m. *½ D: Joe Berlinger. Stephen Barker Turner, Tristen Skyles, Erica Leerhsen, Kim Director, Jeffrey Donovan. Some student filmmakers visit Burkittsville, Maryland, hoping to find out what happened to the documentarians who made THE BLAIR WITCH PROJECT. A straight melodrama, not a faux documentary like the first; clever at times, but plodding, gabby and highly uninvolved, with all the spooky stuff confined to the last couple of reels. Fictional filmmaking debut of documentarian Berlinger. [R] ▼

Book of Stars, The (2000) C-98m.  D: Michael Miner. Mary Stuart Masterson, Jena Malone, Karl Geary, D. B. Sweeney, Delroy Lindo. Beautifully acted and directed drama about two parentless sisters, a sweet 15-year-old who is dying of cystic fibrosis and a vulnerable cynic who once published a book of poetry but now pops pills and toils as a hooker. This is no disease-of-the-week tearjerker, but a multi-leveled exploration of sisterly love and guilt. ▼

Boom (1968-U.S.-British) C-113m.  D: Joseph Losey. Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton, Noel Coward, Joanna Shimkus, Michael Dunn. Thud: Only film buffs who admire Losey's very original directorial style are likely to appreciate fuzzy adaptation of Tennessee Williams' The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Anymore. Fine location photography in Sardinia and Rome; good performance by Shimkus can't save this. Panavision. [MPG] ▼

ert Keith, Taylor Holmes, Ed Begley, Karl Malden, Cara Williams, Barry Kelley; narrated by Reed Hadley. Minister's murder brings rapid arrest of an innocent man; prosecuting attorney determines to hunt out real facts. Brilliant drama in all respects. Richard Murphy's tau screenplay, from Anthony Abbott's article "The Perfect Case," is based on a factual incident. Playwright Arthur Miller appears as one of the lineup suspects. ▼

Boomerang (1992) C-118m.  D: Reginald Hudlin. Eddie Murphy, Halle Berry, Robin Givens, David Alan Grier, Martin Lawrence, Grace Jones, Geoffrey Holder, Eartha Kitt, Chris Rock, Tisha Campbell, John Witherspoon, Melvin Van Peebles. Murphy makes a lumpy transition from comic to leading man, as a lifelong womanizer who finally meets his counterpart in his new boss (Givens). The women are fun to watch, but the humor is surprisingly crude at times, and the story is virtually nonexistent. A mixed bag at best, ridiculously padded out to two hours. [R] ▼●●

Boom Town (1940) 118m.  D: Jack Conway. Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert, Hedy Lamarr, Frank Morgan, Lionel Atwill, Chill Wills. No surprises in tale of get-rich-quick drilling for oil, but star-studded cast gives it life. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Boondock Saints, The (1999) C-110m.  D: Troy Duffy. Willem Dafoe, Sean Patrick Flanery, Norman Reedus, David Della Rocco, Billy Connolly, Ron Jeremy Hyatt, David Ferry. Ultra-violent, low-budget Tarantino wannabe focuses on two Irish-American brothers who decide to rub out what they perceive to be evil forces in Boston. With off-the-wall humor and Dafoe's loony, gay FBI agent thrown in for good measure, this ain't no Tea Party. A hit-or-miss affair. Duffy's trials in making this film were chronicled in the documentary OVERNIGHT. Super 35. [R] ▼

Boost, The (1988) C-95m. *½ D: Harold Becker. James Woods, Sean Young, John Kapelos, Steven Hill, Kelle Kerr, John Rothman, Amanda Blake, Grace Zabriskie. An anti-drug movie that's on the screen nearly an hour before you even realize it is an anti-drug movie. Woods is the hotshot salesman who goes to hell (and bankruptcy) via cocaine, with Young the sometime user who tries to stand by him. As with Jack Nicholson in THE SHINING, it's difficult to distinguish the "before" Woods from the "after" in this misfire. [R] ▼●●

even pasta of violence and comedy. Aka TRINITY RIDES AGAIN. Techniscope. [PG]▼

Bootleggers (1974) C-101m.  D: Charles B. Pierce. Paul Koslo, Dennis Fimple, Slim Pickens, Jaclyn Smith, Chuck Pierce, Jr. Typical yahoo action comedy set in 1930s Arkansas with Koslo and Fimple trying to outsmart and outdo rival moonshining family while running their supplies to Memphis. Retitled BOOTLEGGERS' ANGEL to capitalize on Smith's later TV stardom. Todd-AO 35. [PG]■

Bootmen (2000-Australian) C-93m.  D: Dein Perry. Adam Garcia, Sam Worthington, Sophie Lee, Christopher Horsey, Lee McDonald, William Zappa, Richard Carter. Novice director Perry (of the dance group Tap Dogs) used his own steelworking background to create this toe-tapping look at a young man's escape into big-time show business—and then back again—as he rallies his blue-collar tap-dancing cronies to create his own contemporary dance show. Sort of a male FLASHDANCE, with just as lame a script but impressive footwork. [R]▼

Boots Malone (1952) 103m.  D: William Dieterle. William Holden, Johnny Stewart, Ed Begley, Harry Morgan, Whit Bissell. Holden comes alive in role of shady character who reforms when he trains Stewart to become a jockey.▼

Booty Call (1997) C-77m.  D: Jeff Pollack. Jamie Foxx, Tommy Davidson, Vivica A. Fox, Tamala Jones, Scott LaRose, Kam Ray Chan, Ric Young, Bernie Mac. Or, Two Guys in Search of Condoms. Raunchy comedy is definitely PC (politically correct and pro-condom) as these two hapless souls just can't seem to please their hot-to-trot girlfriends until they find the perfect latex helper. Just a couple of genuinely funny scenes in this broad, lowbrow comedy. [R]▼●●

Bopha! (1993) C-120m.  D: Morgan Freeman. Danny Glover, Malcolm McDowell, Alfre Woodard, Marius Weyers, Maynard Eziashi, Malick Bowens, Grace Mahlaba. Tense, involving drama with Glover and Woodard (who played Nelson and Winnie Mandela in the TV movie MANDELA) starring as a married couple residing in a peaceful South African township. He's a police officer who upholds the status quo; their world is sure to crumble when their son (Eziashi) takes part in a rebellion against the discipline and curriculum of the local white-run school. Freeman's directorial debut; Arsenio Hall executive produced. [PG-13]▼●●

Borat: Cultural Learnings of America for Make Benefit Glorious Nation of Kazakhstan (2006) C-82m. ½ D: Larry Charles. Sacha Baron Cohen, Ken Davitian, Pamela Anderson. Writer-producer-performer Baron Cohen adopts the alter ego of Borat Sagdiyev, well-meaning but clueless Kazakhstani television reporter who travels across the U.S. to learn about our country in this mockumentary. His bull-in-a-china-shop approach gets him into all kinds of trouble as he encounters a wide variety of Americans. Baron Cohen and company reveal elements of racism, sexism, homophobia, and xenophobia but envelop them in the context of an audaciously funny, gross-out, one-of-a-kind comedy. [R]■

Bordello of Blood (1996) C-87m.  D: Gilbert Adler. Dennis Miller, Erika Eleniak, Angie Everhart, Chris Sarandon, Corey Feldman, William Sadler, Aubrey Morris. Private eye Miller tries to locate Eleniak's brother, who's wound up at a mortuary brothel staffed by gorgeous vampires and run by Everhart. Fitfully amusing juvenile horror comedy with a heavy t&a quotient; Miller created much of his wise-guy dialogue. Whoopi Goldberg has a cameo. On-screen title: TALES FROM THE CRYPT PRESENTS BORDELLO OF BLOOD. [R]▼●●

Border, The (1982) C-107m. ½ D: Tony Richardson. Jack Nicholson, Harvey Keitel, Valerie Perrine, Warren Oates, Elpidia Carrillo. Border patrolman Nicholson, spurred on by money-hungry spouse Perrine, begins taking payoffs from illegal Mexican aliens he's supposed to be arresting, eventually becomes emotionally involved with young mother Carrillo. Cast and storyline beg for Sam Peckinpah in his prime; mildly interesting, but never really takes off. Nice music by Ry Cooder. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Border Cop SEE: Blood Barrier

Border Incident (1949) 92m.  D: Anthony Mann. Ricardo Montalban, George Murphy, Howard da Silva, Teresa Celli, Charles McGraw. Tension-packed story of U.S. agents cracking down on smuggling of immigrants across Texas-Mexico border. Well directed, and uncompromisingly violent. ■

Borderline (1950) 88m.  D: William A. Seiter. Fred MacMurray, Claire Trevor, Raymond Burr, Jose Torvay, Morris Ankrum, Roy Roberts. Odd thriller-comedy in which L.A. cop Trevor attempts to gather evidence against wily drug smuggler Burr while mixing with tough guy MacMurray in Mexico. Starts out promisingly, but soon bogs down in silliness. Burr makes a vivid villain.▼●●

Borderline (1980) C-105m.  D: Jerrold Freedman. Charles Bronson, Bruno Kirby, Bert Remsen, Michael Lerner, Kenneth McMillan, Ed Harris, Wilford Brimley. Bronson, minus Jill Ireland this time, is a Border Patrol officer searching for a killer. Undistinguished formula vehicle for Old Stone Face. [PG]▼

Border Shootout (1990) C-110m. *½ D:

C. J. McIntyre, Cody Glenn, Jeff Kaake, Glenn Ford, Lizabeth Rohovit, Michael Horse, Russell Todd, Michael Ansara, Michael Forrest. Naive rancher is made deputy in Arizona border town that's fed up with aging sheriff Ford, but the townspeople's lynching of alleged rustlers brings about immediate conflict. Good Western plot (from Elmore Leonard novel) ruined by amateurish production. Ford seems to be walking through his role. ▼

Bordertown (1935) 90m.  D: Archie Mayo. Paul Muni, Bette Davis, Eugene Pallette, Margaret Lindsay. Fine drama of unusual triangle in bordertown cafe, with Davis as flirtatious wife of Pallette with designs on lawyer Muni; her overwrought scene on the witness stand is not easily forgotten. Used as basis for later THEY DRIVE BY NIGHT, but more serious in tone. Also shown in computer-colored version.

Bordertown (2006) C-112m. *½ D: Gregory Nava. Jennifer Lopez, Martin Sheen, Maya Zapata, Juan Diego Botto, Sonia Braga, Antonio Banderas. In contemporary Ciudad Juárez, ambitious Chicago reporter Lopez tries to find out why thousands of female factory workers have disappeared over time. Befriending a survivor who crawled out of the grave places her in the gun sights of smarmy rich villains who casually rape and coldly murder. Director's script wants to be a bleak bilingual thriller, but is only brutal exploitation. Shot in Old and New Mexico. Released direct to DVD in the U.S. [R] ▮

Boris and Natasha: The Movie (1992) C-88m.  D: Charles Martin Smith. Sally Kellerman, David Thomas, Paxton Whitehead, Andrea Martin, Alex Rocco, Larry Cedar, Arye Gross, Christopher Neame, Anthony Newley. Silly live-action version of the fondly remembered "Rocky and Bullwinkle" cartoon series with our dastardly (but dated) Russian spies up to no good as usual. Spirited, but not enough. John Candy, John Travolta, and director Smith pop up in cameos. Made as a theatrical feature in 1988 (when the Cold War was still topical). It debuted on cable TV instead. [PG] ▼●●

B.O.R.N. (1989) C-92m.  D: Ross Hagen. Ross Hagen, Hoke Howell, P. J. Soles, William Smith, Russ Tamblyn, Amanda Blake, Rance Howard, Clint Howard, Claire Hagen, Dawn Wildsmith. Someone is kidnapping young people from the streets of L.A. to cut up as involuntary organ donors, but they didn't reckon with hero Hagen and his ex-cop pal Howell. Wild-eyed, bizarre action thriller has too many characters and too much gunfire but has its moments too. Title refers to "Body Organ Replacement Network." Aka MERCHANTS OF DEATH. [R] ▼ ▮

Born Again (1978) C-110m. *½ D: Irving Rapper. Dean Jones, Anne Francis, Jay Robinson, Dana Andrews, Raymond

St. Jacques, George Brent. If one is inspired by the religious rebirth of Pres. Nixon's Special Counsel (Charles Colson) after his Washington skullduggery, one might be absorbed by this one-dimensional film account. Others beware! [PG] ▼

Born American (1986-U.S.-Finnish) C-95m.  D: Renny Harlin. Mike Norris, Steve Durham, David Coburn, Thalmus Rasulala, Albert Salmi. The Cold War lives on as three young Americans vacationing in Finland accidentally cross the border into Russia, where they fight it out with the local troops. OK action scenes and personable young cast sugarcoat the heavy-handed political overtones. [R] ▼ ▮

Born Free (1966-British) C-96m. ½ D: James Hill. Virginia McKenna, Bill Travers, Geoffrey Keen, Peter Lukoye. Exceptional adaptation of Joy Adamson's book about Elsa the lioness, who was raised as a pet by two Kenya game wardens (played by real-life couple McKenna and Travers). Sincere, engrossing film, a must for family viewing. Oscars for Best Original Score (John Barry) and Title Song (Barry and Don Black). Screenplay by Gerald L.C. Copley (Lester Cole). Followed by a sequel (LIVING FREE) and a brief TV series. Remade for TV in 1996. Story is continued in TO WALK WITH LIONS (1999). Panavision. ▼●●

Born in East L.A. (1987) C-87m. *½ D: Cheech Marin. Cheech Marin, Daniel Stern, Paul Rodriguez, Jan-Michael Vincent, Kamala Lopez, Alma Martinez, Tony Plana. Third-generation American Hispanic gets caught in an immigration raid minus I.D. and is deported to Tijuana; it takes a tiresome hour and a half of screen time to get back. Nothing offensive but also nothing special; Rodriguez's dim-witted comedy relief is a particular drag. Based on Marin's popular Bruce Springsteen parody record. Alternate version runs 93m. [R] ▼●●

Born Into Brothels (2004-Indian-U.S.) C-85m. ½ D: Zana Briski, Ross Kauffman. Photographer Briski, wanting to document Calcutta's red light district, gets the cold shoulder until she makes friends with the children of the prostitutes. Then inspiration strikes: she teaches these often-abused kids to take pictures. Oscar-winning documentary built on the foundation of a great idea; the results are unexpected and genuinely inspiring. Born Losers, The (1967) C-112m. ½ D: T. C. Frank (Tom Laughlin). Tom Laughlin, Elizabeth James, Jeremy Slate, William Wellman, Jr., Robert Tessier. What seemed at the time just another biker film gained new interest in the '70s as the introduction of Billy Jack; he helps free young dropout James from the clutches of Slate's gang. Good action scenes, but Laughlin's use of violence as an indictment of violence is already present. Jane Russell makes a

Born on the Fourth of July (1989) C-144m. ½ D: Oliver Stone. Tom Cruise, Willem Dafoe, Raymond J. Barry, Caroline Kava, Kyra Sedgwick, Bryan Larkin, Jerry Levine, Josh Evans, Frank Whaley, Stephen Baldwin, John Getz, Lili Taylor, Tom Berenger, Abbie Hoffman, Jason Gedrick, Ed Lauter, Michael Wincott, Tom Sizemore, Mike Starr, James Le Gros, John C. McGinley, Wayne Knight, Bob Gunton, Vivica A. Fox. Relentlessly realistic and powerful saga of real-life Vietnam vet Ron Kovic, who joined the Marines as a gung-ho recruit in the 1960s and came home paralyzed from the chest down—only to endure an even greater ordeal of physical and mental rehabilitation before emerging as an antiwar activist. Stone cowrote the screenplay with Kovic, and spares us nothing in recreating some of America's most painful years. Stone's finest film to date. Cruise delivers a top-notch performance; enhanced by a great John Williams score. Kovic can be seen in opening parade scene; Stone plays a TV reporter. Oscar winner for Best Director and Film Editing. Panavision. [R]▼

Born Reckless (1959) 79m. *½ D: Howard W. Koch. Mamie Van Doren, Jeff Richards, Arthur Hunnicutt, Carol Ohmart, Tom Duggan, Jeanne Carmen. Rodeo star Richards divides his time between busting broncos and busting heads of lecherous old cowpokes trying to paw Mamie. Not bad enough to be really funny, but it has its moments; Mamie sings five of film's eight songs, including unforgettable "I'm Just a Nice, Sweet, Home-Type of Girl."

Born Romantic (2001-U.S.-British) C-96m. ½ D: David Kane. Craig Ferguson, Olivia Williams, David Morrissey, Jane Horrocks, Jimi Mistry, Catherine McCormack, Adrian Lester, Ian Hart. Three love-lorn Londoner couples meet up at a local salsa dance club, but they're all left feet when it comes to matters of the heart. Enter Cupid-playing cabbie Lester. Slight, predictable romantic comedy works because of its terrific cast. It's especially fun to see the usually brazen McCormack and meek Horrocks playing against type. [R]▼

Born to Be Bad (1950) 94m. ½ D: Nicholas Ray. Joan Fontaine, Robert Ryan, Zachary Scott, Joan Leslie, Mel Ferrer, Harold Vermilyea. "Little fake" Fontaine, despite attraction to writer Ryan, schemes to win wealthy Scott away from fiancée Leslie. And that's just for openers. Good cast in somewhat overwrought, predictable drama. ▼

Born to Be Wild (1995) C-100m.  D: John Gray. Will Horneff, Helen Shaver, Peter Boyle, Jean Marie Barnwell, John C. McGinley, Marvin J. McIntyre. OK family film grafts a gorilla onto the FREE WILLY formula: a teenage boy forms a bond with an ape on the lam in Seattle, helping her in quest for freedom. Kids might go for it, even if they figure out that the lead "actor" is just an animatronic thespian passing for the real thing. [PG]▼

Born to Dance (1936) 105m.  D: Roy Del Ruth. Eleanor Powell, James Stewart, Virginia Bruce, Una Merkel, Sid Silvers, Frances Langford, Raymond Walburn, Buddy Ebsen, Reginald Gardiner. Powell bears out title in good Cole Porter musical with sensational footwork and fine songs: "Easy To Love," "I've Got You Under My Skin."▼

Born to Win (1971) C-90m. ½ D: Ivan Passer. George Segal, Karen Black, Paula Prentiss, Jay Fletcher, Hector Elizondo, Robert De Niro. Unjustly neglected, but not altogether successful comedy-drama about ex-hairdresser in N.Y.C. and his $100-a-day heroin habit. Very well acted, particularly by Segal. Aka ADDICT. [R]▼

Born Wild (1994) C-98m.  D: Duncan McLachlan. Brooke Shields, John Varty, Martin Sheen, David Keith, Elmon Mhlongo, Norman Ansty, Thembe Ndaba, Renee Estevez. The story of real-life conservationist Varty, who plays himself, and his multi-year relationship with a family of leopards. When documentarian Shields wants to make a film of his experiences, her efforts are predictably sabotaged by jealous colleagues and corrupt game wardens. Set in South Africa, Kenya, and Zambia; extraordinary footage of animals in the wild is trivialized by the Hollywoodization of the movie within the movie. [PG]▼

Born Yesterday (1950) 103m. ½ D: George Cukor. Judy Holliday, William Holden, Broderick Crawford, Howard St. John. Junk-dealer-made-good Crawford wants girlfriend (Holliday) cultured, hires Holden to teach her in hilarious Garson Kanin comedy set in Washington, D.C. Priceless Judy repeated Broadway triumph and won Oscar for playing quintessential dumb blonde. Remade in 1993. ▼

Yarnall, Nora Dunn. Amiable remake of Garson Kanin comedy, set in Washington, D.C., about boorish tycoon who hires bookish reporter to give his mistress some education and couch. The three leads are well cast, but the movie sags after a while, losing its comic punch. [PG] ▼●●

Borrower, The (1991) C-97m. ½ D: John McNaughton. Rae Dawn Chong, Don Gordon, Tom Towles, Antonio Fargas, Neil Giuntoli, Larry Pennell, Tony Amendola, Pam Gordon, Mädchen Amick, Stuart Cornfeld. An alien criminal is "devoled" to human shape and exiled on Earth; when his head explodes, he starts ripping the heads off human beings (and others) and donning them until they go bad, too. Understandably confused cops Chong and Gordon are on his trail. Gleefully outrageous horror premise supported by strong, stylish direction and a well-written script. [R] ▼●

Borrowers, The (1997-British) C-83m. ½ D: Peter Hewitt. John Goodman, Jim Broadbent, Mark Williams, Hugh Laurie, Bradley Pierce, Flora Newbigin, Tom Felton, Celia Imrie, Ruby Wax. Just OK rendering of Mary Norton's children's novels about a household of tiny human pilferers who reduce baddie Goodman to rubble after he cheats a nice family out of their inherited house. Actors acting against oversized sets remains an irresistible concept, but the movie won't make anyone forget THE INCREDIBLE SHRINKING MAN or the wonderful fantasy scenes in Nicolas Roeg's THE WITCHES. A bit too much HOME ALONE-style slapstick violence, but the short running time helps. Filmed before as a TVM in 1973 and as a British miniseries in 1993. [PG] ▼●●

Borsalino (1970-French) C-125m.  D: Jacques Deray. Jean-Paul Belmondo, Alain Delon, Michel Bouquet, Catherine Rouvel, Françoise Christophe. PUBLIC ENEMY, French-style; delightful seriocomic film of two likable hoods who become gangland chieftains in 1930s Marseilles. Stars in top form; Claude Bolling's infectious music helps. Sequel: BORSALINO & CO. [PG] ▼

Borstal Boy (2000-Irish-British) C-91m. ½ D: Peter Sheridan. Shawn Hatossy, Danny Dyer, Lee Ingleby, Robin Laing, Eva Birthistle, Michael York. Nostalgia-soaked, revisionist coming-of-age portrait of an artist as a young man. Loosely based on the memoir of the same name by Brendan Behan, the fabled Irish writer-drunkard, the scenario depicts Behan (American actor Hatossy) as an idealistic 16-year-old I.R.A. member who lands in a British borstal (reform school). York has his best role in years as the borstal's warden. Debut feature for theater director Sheridan, who coscripted;

he is the brother of Jim Sheridan, who co-executive produced. ▼●

Boss SEE: Boss Nigger

Boss, The (1956) 89m.  D: Byron Haskin. John Payne, William Bishop, Gloria McGhee, Doe Avedon, Joe Flynn. Saga of urban politico has WW1 veteran Payne building a corrupt municipal fief. Perhaps Payne's best performance; scripted by a blacklisted Dalton Trumbo.

Bossa Nova (1999-Brazilian-U.S.) C-95m.  D: Bruno Barreto. Amy Irving, Antonio Fagundes, Alexandre Borges, Débora Bloch, Drica Moraes, Giovanna Antonelli, Alberto de Mendoza, Stephen Tobolowsky. Airy romantic comedy-of-errors involving Brazilian-based widow and English tutor (Irving), the successful older businessman who falls in love with her (Fagundes), and a variety of friends and family members whose love lives crisscross around them. Pleasant enough, with attractive scenery, but resolutely ordinary. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Boss Nigger (1975) C-92m.  D: Jack Arnold. Fred Williamson, D'Urville Martin, R. G. Armstrong, William Smith, Barbara Leigh, Carmen Hayworth. Clichéd blaxploitation Western with Williamson as a bounty hunter who predictably outthrusts every white man in sight. In spite of its title, not as offensive as others of the genre (mainly because there's no graphic violence). Williamson scripted; also known as BOSS and THE BLACK BOUNTY KILLER. Todd-AO 35. [PG] ▼

Boss Of It All, The (2006-Danish-Swedish-Italian-French) C-99m.  D: Lars von Trier. Jens Albinus, Peter Gantzer, Fridrik Thor Fridriksson, Benedikt Erlingsson, Iben Hjejle, Henrik Prip, Mia Lyhne, Casper Christensen, Louise Mieritz, Jean-Marc Barr, Lars von Trier. Out-of-work actor (Albinus) signs on to impersonate a company CEO and becomes involved in a contentious negotiation. Insightful satire of corporate chicanery, employer-employee relations, and the psychology/egomania of actors. One of von Trier's more accessible films, but some may find his excessive use of jump cuts disconcerting. Filmed in Automavision, which allows a computer to determine camera angles and movement. ●

Bottle Shock (2008) C-108m. ½ D: Randall Miller. Bill Pullman, Alan Rickman, Chris Pine, Freddy Rodriguez, Rachael Taylor, Dennis Farina, Miguel Sandoval, Eliza Dushku, Bradley Whitford. In 1976, Paris wine-shop owner Rickman travels to Napa Valley, California, to see if there is anything worth importing for a blind taste test he is planning. Meanwhile, struggling vineyard owner Pullman and his footloose son (Pine) may be on the verge of making their first really good wine. Great real-life story should have yielded a better film; there are good vignettes, and Rickman is a treat to watch, but subplot involving Pine's love life is a distraction. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Bounce (2000) C-106m. ½ D: Don Roos. Gwyneth Paltrow, Ben Affleck, Joe Morton, Natasha Henstridge, Tony Goldwyn, Johnny Galecki, Alex D. Linz, Jennifer Grey, Caroline Aaron, Sam Robards. Hotshot ad exec gives his coveted airline ticket to a chance airport acquaintance who's eager to get home to his family . . . then the plane crashes. A year later, the guilt-ridden adman looks up the man's widow, and quickly finds himself attracted to her. So-so soap opera has appealing stars but suffers from a heavy air of contrivance, which is especially surprising from writer-director Roos. David Paymer appears unbilled. [PG-13]▼

Bound (1996) C-109m.  D: The Wachowski Brothers (Larry, Andy). Jennifer Tilly, Gina Gershon, Joe Pantoliano, John Ryan, Christopher Meloni, Richard C. Sarafian. Sexy, stylishly violent noir with a Sapphic twist, about a handywoman (Gershon) and a gangster's moll (Tilly) who conspire to run off together with a suitcase containing two million bucks. The women have chemistry to burn, but Pantoliano steals the movie as the mobster caught in the middle. Impressive directorial debut from the screen-writing-brother duo. Lesbian-erotica author Susie Bright appears in the film, and served as technical adviser. [R]▼●●

Bound and Gagged: A Love Story (1993) C-101m. ½ D: Daniel Appleby. Ginger Lynn Allen, Karen Black, Chris Denton, Elizabeth Saltarelli, Mary Ella Ross, Chris

Damian Chapa, Jesse Borrego, Benjamin Bratt, Enrique Castillo, Victor Rivers, Delroy Lindo, Tom Towles, Carlos Carrasco, Teddy Wilson, Raymond Cruz, Lanny Flaherty, Billy Bob Thornton, Natalija Nogulich, Ving Rhames. Ambitious look at Chicano gang life concerns two half-brothers and a half-white cousin who evolve into a drug-addicted artist, a narcotics detective, and a repeat-offender prisoner. Despite lots of screen time (and a passable beginning), this violent film gives top-heavy emphasis to the cellblock portion of the saga. Script was predominantly written, with shared credit, by acclaimed poet Jimmy Santiago Baca. Video title: BLOOD IN BLOOD OUT. [R]▼●●

Life of folk singer-composer Woody Guthrie, superbly played by Carradine, with great feeling for 1936-40 period as Guthrie travels the country fighting and singing for the underdogs, victims of the Great Depression. Haskell Wexler's Oscar-winning photography is tops throughout, as is Leonard Rosenman's score adaptation (also an Oscar winner). Beware of shorter prints. [PG]▼●●

Bounty, The (1984) C-130m.  D: Roger Donaldson. Mel Gibson, Anthony Hopkins, Laurence Olivier, Edward Fox, Daniel Day-Lewis, Bernard Hill, Liam Neeson. Handsome, well made retelling of history's most famous mutiny (not based on the Nordhoff-Hall book) paints Bligh as repressed and stubborn, not mad, and Christian as a dilettante with no real substance. Interesting all the way, but emotionally aloof. Great use of widescreen. J-D-C Scope. [PG]▼●●

Bounty Hunter, The (1954) C-79m. ½ D: Andre de Toth. Randolph Scott, Dolores Dorn, Marie Windsor, Howard Petrie. Scott is on his horse again, this time tracking down three murderers. Originally filmed in 3-D.

happy ending. Interesting on all three counts. Techniscope.▼

Bourne Identity, The (2002) C-121m. ½ D: Doug Liman. Matt Damon, Franka Potente, Chris Cooper, Brian Cox, Clive Owen, Julia Stiles. Crackling spy thriller, from the Robert Ludlum novel, about a CIA operative who's fished out of the ocean and has no memory of his identity or his mission. Soon, circumstances force him to take it on the lam, alongside a woman he chances to meet who happens to have a car. Kudos to Liman for keeping the action taut, the characters believable, and the excitement at a high pitch throughout. Filmed before as a TV miniseries in 1988. Alternate edition runs 119m. Followed by THE BOURNE SUPREMACY. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Bourne Supremacy, The (2004) C-108m. ½ D: Paul Greengrass. Matt Damon, Franka Potente, Brian Cox, Joan Allen, Julia Stiles, Karl Urban, Gabriel Mann, Marton Csokas, Tom Gallop, John Bedford Lloyd, Michelle Monaghan, Karel Roden. When an assassin tracks down Jason Bourne and his girlfriend, who are living in exile in India, the CIA-trained killer is forced back into action to find out why he's being hunted. Filled with nail-biting car chases and fight scenes, edited in a rat-tat-tat manner, but lacks the humor and sexual spark that made THE BOURNE IDENTITY so good. Brutal and cold-blooded, like its leading character; we're rooting for Bourne not because he's a hero but simply by default. Chris Cooper appears unbilled, briefly reprising his role from the earlier film. Followed by THE BOURNE ULTIMATUM. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Bourne Ultimatum, The (2007) C-115m.  D: Paul Greengrass. Matt Damon, Julia Stiles, David Strathairn, Joan Allen, Scott Glenn, Paddy Considine, Edgar Ramirez, Albert Finney, Joey Ansah, Daniel Brühl. Third chapter in Robert Ludlum's Bourne series has the CIA-trained operative traversing the world as he continues to search for his identity and decide how to settle old scores. All you could ask from an action film, with well-chosen international locales, an intelligently wrought cat-and-mouse narrative, and one breathless action set piece after another. Damon, again, is right on target as Bourne, but his character's virtual indestructibility drains some of the humanity from the proceedings. Oscar winner for Sound Editing, Sound Mixing, and Film Editing (Christopher YOUNG). Super 35. [PG-13]●

Bowery, The (1933) 90m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Wallace Beery, George Raft, Jackie Cooper, Fay Wray, Pert Kelton, Herman Bing. Raft is Steve Brodie, Beery a notorious saloon owner, Cooper his young nemesis in rowdy story of N.Y.C.'s Bowery

during the Gay '90s. Kelton is marvelous as Beery's saloon soubrette.

Bowery at Midnight (1942) 63m.  D: Wallace Fox. Bela Lugosi, John Archer, Wanda McKay, Tom Neal, Dave O'Brien. Lugosi is kindly psychiatrist who leads double life as criminal mastermind in the Bowery. An inexplicable subplot involves reviving the dead. Mild but atmospheric.

Bowfinger (1999) C-97m. ½ D: Frank Oz. Steve Martin, Eddie Murphy, Heather Graham, Christine Baranski, Jamie Kennedy, Robert Downey, Jr., Terence Stamp, Adam Alexi-Malle, Barry Newman. Desperate, down-and-out filmmaker Bobby Bowfinger (Martin) schemes to make a movie with the top action star in Hollywood (Murphy)—without bothering to tell him that he's in the picture! Likable costars carry this comedy a long way; there are some good laughs throughout, but it's never as satisfying as you'd like it to be. Murphy has fun playing a doofus look-alike for the action hero. Written by Martin. [PG-13] ▼●●

Bowling for Columbine (2002) C-123m.  D: Michael Moore. Onetime sharpshooting champion and lifelong NRA member Moore uses his confrontational, highly personal filmmaking style to examine America's love affair with guns. Depending on your point of view, you will find this wide-ranging film to be illuminating or infuriating. Our favorite segment is a condemnation of fear-mongering on TV newscasts... but a climactic interview with NRA president Charlton Heston isn't the showdown it should have been. Oscar winner for Best Documentary. [R] ▼

Boxcar Bertha (1972) C-88m. ½ D: Martin Scorsese. Barbara Hershey, David Carradine, Barry Primus, Bernie Casey, John Carradine. Scorsese's first studio film is yet another BONNIE AND CLYDE cash-in, with small-town girl Hershey falling in with Carradine and his band of train robbers. Good of its kind, but buffs looking for embryonic Scorsese stylistics may be a little let down... although there are two minor characters named Michael Powell and Emeric Pressburger! [R] ▼●●

Boxer, The (1971) SEE: Ripped Off

Boxer, The (1997-U.S.-Irish) C-113m.  D: Jim Sheridan. Daniel Day-Lewis, Emily Watson, Brian Cox, Ken Stott, Gerard McSorley, Eleanor Methven, Ciaran Fitzgerald, Kenneth Cranham. Powerful, straightforward story of a boxer and former IRA member released from prison after 14 years, trying to rebuild his life in troubled Belfast and becoming involved with his old sweetheart, who's married to a political prisoner. Third teaming of Day-Lewis and director/cowriter Sheridan lacks the complexity and resonance of MY

LEFT FOOT and IN THE NAME OF THE FATHER, but is still compelling human drama, anchored by Day-Lewis and the luminous Watson. Stunningly filmed by Chris Menges in Dublin. [R] ▼●●

Boxing Helena (1993) C-107m. *½ D: Jennifer Chambers Lynch. Julian Sands, Sherilyn Fenn, Bill Paxton, Art Garfunkel, Kurtwood Smith, Betsy Clark, Nicolette Scorsese. Dreadful debut feature from the 24-year-old daughter of David Lynch, about an esteemed surgeon (Sands) whose obsession with sextop Fenn leads to a bizarre set of circumstances. Tries to be provocative and shocking, but the result is unintentional laughter (when it's not boring). Originally NC-17, rerated after appeal. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Box of MoonLight (1997) C-107m. ½ D: Tom DiCillo. John Turturro, Sam Rockwell, Catherine Keener, Lisa Blount, Annie Corley, Dermot Mulroney. A very slight slice of whimsy about an uptight engineer, supervising a construction project out of town, who quite by chance falls in with a free spirit who lives in the woods... and finds that he feels liberated as he spends time away from the precision of his normal life. Turturro is excellent, as always, and so is Rockwell as Kid, but the story has few surprises, and its charms are stretched pretty thin. DiCillo also scripted. [R] ▼●●

Boy A (2007-British) C-106m. ½ D: John Crowley. Andrew Garfield, Peter Mullan, Katie Lyons, Shaun Evans, Jeremy Swift, Alfie Owen, Taylor Doherty, Anthony Lewis. In northern England, a taciturn young man (Garfield) has been released from penitentiary and is starting life anew, guided by a dedicated, fatherly social worker (Mullan). While he attempts to build new personal and professional relationships we learn—via small flashback bits—how the former schoolboy got into trouble. Intentionally bleak and a bit contrived, grim film is still quite involving and well acted. Based on a novel by Jonathan Trigell. Debuted on British TV prior to theatrical release. [R] ●

Boy and His Dog, A (1975) C-87m. ½ D: L. Q. Jones. Don Johnson, Susanne Benton, Jason Robards, Alvy Moore, Helene Winston, Charles McGraw, Tiger, voice of Tim McIntire. Cult black comedy is definitely not a kiddie movie, despite its title. In the post-holocaust future, young punk Johnson, aided by his telepathic (and much smarter) dog, forages for food and women, then is lured into bizarre underground civilization. Faithful adaptation of Harlan Ellison's novella. Revised in 1982 to include a 1m. prologue. Techniscope. [R] ▼●●

Boy Cried Murder, The (1966-British) C-86m. ½ D: George Breakston. Veronica Hurst, Phil Brown, Beba Loncar, Frazer MacIntosh, Tim Barrett. A reworking of THE WINDOW set in Adriatic resort town. Youngster noted for his fabrications witnesses a murder; no one but the killer believes him.

Boy, Did I Get a Wrong Number! (1966) C-99m. BOMB D: George Marshall, Bob Hope, Elke Sommer, Phyllis Diller, Cesare Danova, Marjorie Lord. They sure did; result is worthless film that should be avoided. Absolutely painful. ▼

Boy Friend, The (1971-British) C-135m.  D: Ken Russell. Twiggy, Christopher Gable, Moyra Fraser, Max Adrian, Vladek Sheybal, Georgina Hale, Tommy Tune; cameo by Glenda Jackson. Director Russell's homage to Hollywood musicals works on several levels, from tacky matinee performance of a show to fantasy-world conception of same material, all loosely tied to Sandy Wilson's cunning spoof of 1920s musical shows. Busby Berkeley-ish numbers (choreographed by Gable) come amazingly close to spirit and execution of the Master himself. Originally released in U.S. at 110m. Panavision. [G] ▼

Boyfriends and Girlfriends (1987-French) C-102m.  D: Eric Rohmer. Emmanuelle Chaulat, Sophie Renoir, Anne-Laure Meury, Eric Viellard, Francois-Eric Gendron. The sixth of Rohmer's "Comedies and Proverbs" is a typically witty, perceptive, ironic account of two very different young women who strike up a friendship . . . and commence playing romantic musical chairs with a couple of men. Nobody can direct characters who are forever falling in and out of love quite like Eric Rohmer. Originally shown as MY GIRLFRIEND'S BOYFRIEND. [PG] ▼

Boy in the Striped Pajamas, The (2008-U.S.-British) C-94m.  D: Mark Herman. David Thewlis, Vera Farmiga, Rupert Friend, David Hayman, Asa Butterfield, Jack Scanlon, Amber Beattie, Sheila Hancock, Richard Johnson, Jim Norton. Unique Holocaust fable (from John Boyne's novel for young readers) about the 8-year-old son of an SS officer who moves with his family to a new home in the country. He can't help being curious about the "farm" nearby with a barbed-wire fence—and a boy about his age on the other side. Quietly powerful drama personalizes the qualms and contradictions facing German families during the Nazi era. Screenplay by the director. [PG-13] ▼

Boy Meets Girl (1938) 86m. ½ D:

Lloyd Bacon. James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Marie Wilson, Ralph Bellamy, Frank McHugh, Dick Foran, Penny Singleton, Ronald Reagan. Screwball spoof of Hollywood sometimes pushes too hard, but has enough sharp dialogue, good satire in tale of two sharpster screenwriters to make it worthwhile. Script by Samuel and Bella Spewack, from their Broadway play. ▼

Boy Named Charlie Brown, A (1969) C-85m.  D: Bill Melendez. Voices of Peter Robbins, Pamelyn Ferdin, Glenn Gilger, Andy Pforsich. Peanuts gang makes surprisingly successful feature-film debut, with ingenious visual ideas adding to usual fun. Only debit: Rod McKuen's absurd songs. [G] ▼

Boynton Beach Club (2006) C-105m.  D: Susan Seidelman. Dyan Cannon, Brenda Vaccaro, Sally Kellerman, Joseph Bologna, Len Cariou, Michael Nouri, Renee Taylor, Mal Z. Lawrence. Affecting, funny look at love among senior citizens in a Florida retirement community. Vaccaro is the newest (reluctant) recruit for the Boynton Beach Bereavement Club after her husband's sudden demise; in addition to companionship she needs to vent her anger over his needless death. Appealing performances by all the leading actors propel this minor but good-hearted film, one of the few to deal with older people without being coy or condescending. Inspired by Seidelman's mother Florence's experiences in one such community. [R] ▼

Boy on a Dolphin (1957) C-111m. ½ D: Jean Negulesco. Alan Ladd, Clifton Webb, Sophia Loren, Laurence Naismith, Alex Minotis, Jorge Mistral. Loren's Hollywood debut understandably caused a sensation for her initial appearance in a wet, clingy blouse; thereafter, it's an OK adventure about rival teams of divers racing to locate the titular statue, sunk centuries ago off the island of Hydra. Spectacular Greek locations are the real stars; Webb's droll villainy is another asset. CinemaScope. ▼

Boys, The (1961-British) 123m.  D: Sidney J. Furie. Richard Todd, Robert Morley, Felix Aylmer, Wilfred Brambell. Engrossing study of attorney who tries to uncover motives for crimes allegedly committed by four teenagers. CinemaScope.

Boys (1996) C-88m.  D: Stacy Cochran. Winona Ryder, Lukas Haas, John C. Reilly, James LeGros, Skeet Ulrich, Wiley Wiggins, Russell Young, Chris Cooper, Jessica Harper, Catherine Keener. Moody but muddled coming-of-age story about a prep school boy (Haas) who helps a woman (Ryder) after an accident and then becomes entangled in her mysterious past. Frustrating plot takes time getting started, but has no real story to tell. Attractive New England locations and good performance by Haas can't make up for lapses in logic . . . and a tacked-on happy ending. [PG-13] ▼

Boys and Girl From County Clare, The (2005-Irish) C-90m.  D: John Irvin. Colm Meaney, Bernard Hill, Andrea Corr, Philip Barantini, Charlotte Bradley, Shaun Evans, Patrick Bergin. Two brothers (Meaney, Hill) who haven't seen each other in years revive a longtime rivalry when their bands compete in a traditional Ceili music festival. Entertaining comedy set in the 1960s stops just short of being too cute; sentimental, undemanding entertainment with canny performances by the leading actors. Corr, of the Irish pop group The Corrs, is an engaging love interest for Evans. Made in 2003. Panavision. [R]▼●

Boys and Girls (2000) C-94m. BOMB D: Robert Iscove. Freddie Prinze, Jr., Claire Forlani, Jason Biggs, Amanda Detmer, Alyson Hannigan, Heather Donahue, Lisa Eichhorn. Two students (Prinze and Forlani) find their paths constantly crossing; then a friendship develops. Tiresome rehash of WHEN HARRY MET SALLY among the college set, with grating characters you just want to slap silly. [PG-13]▼●

Boys Don't Cry (1999) C-119m. ½ D: Kimberly Peirce. Hilary Swank, Chloë Sevigny, Peter Sarsgaard, Brendan Sexton III, Alison Folland, Alicia Goranson, Jeannette Arnette. Searing drama based on the 1993 case of Brandon Teena (Swank, in an Oscar-winning performance), a girl who passes herself off as a boy in rural Nebraska. Moving to a new town, she/he finds a soul mate who deliberately doesn't ask too many questions . . . but infuriates the girl's trailer-trash friends and family. Well made in every respect, but fails to get inside the characters' heads; the violent conclusion is almost unbearable to watch. Same material explored in the documentary THE BRANDON TEENA STORY. [R]▼●

Boys From Brazil, The (1978) C-123m. ½ D: Franklin J. Schaffner. Gregory Peck, Laurence Olivier, James Mason, Lilli Palmer, Uta Hagen, John Dehner, Rosemary Harris, Anne Meara, John Rubinstein, Denholm Elliott, Steven Guttenberg, David Hurst, Jeremy Black, Bruno Ganz, Walter Gotell, Michael Gough, Prunella Scales. Former Nazi chieftain Dr. Josef Mengele (Peck) has insidious plan to breed new race of Hitlers. Interesting but ultimately silly and unbelievable; worth watching, though, for Olivier's brilliant, credible performance as aging Jewish Nazi-hunter. Based on Ira Levin novel. [R]▼●

Boys From Brooklyn, The SEE: Bela Lugosi Meets a Brooklyn Gorilla

Boys From Syracuse, The (1940) 73m. ½ D: A. Edward Sutherland. Allan Jones, Joe Penner, Martha Raye, Rosemary Lane, Irene Hervey, Eric Blore. Disappointingly ordinary adaptation of Rodgers & Hart's Broadway musical based on Shakespeare's The Comedy of Errors, set in ancient Greece. Songs: "This Can't Be Love," "Falling in Love With Love."

Boys in Company C, The (1978) C-127m.  D: Sidney J. Furie. Stan Shaw, Andrew Stevens, James Canning, Michael Lembeck, Craig Wasson, Scott Hylands, James Whitmore, Jr., Lee Erme. Shaw (in a standout performance) whips a bunch of green Marine recruits into shape for combat in Vietnam; good, tough film focuses on stupidity of military brass and demoralization of the soldiers. Panavision. [R]▼●

Boys in the Band, The (1970) C-119m. ½ D: William Friedkin. Kenneth Nelson, Peter White, Leonard Frey, Cliff Gorman, Frederick Combs, Laurence Luckinbill, Keith Prentice, Robert LaTourneaux, Reuben Greene. Excellent filmization of Mart Crowley's landmark play about nine men at a birthday party: eight are gay, the ninth insists he's not. Often hilarious, frequently sad, but always thought provoking, and sensationally acted by the original stage cast; a rare case where a single, claustrophobic set is actually an asset. [R]▼●

Boys Next Door, The (1985) C-88m.  D: Denholm Spheeris. Maxwell Caulfield, Charlie Sheen, Christopher McDonald, Hank Garrett, Patti D'Arbanville, Moon Zappa. Alienated teens Caulfield and Sheen, just about to graduate high school, go on a murder spree. A not-uninteresting portrait of desperation and hopelessness that ultimately fails because there's no real insight into the boys' behavior. [R]▼●

Boys' Night Out (1962) C-115m.  D: Michael Gordon. Kim Novak, James Garner, Tony Randall, Howard Duff, Janet Blair, Patti Page, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Howard Morris. Trio of married men and bachelor Garner decide to set up an apartment equipped with Novak. Some interesting innuendos, with comic relief from Blair, Page, and Gabor. CinemaScope. ▼

Boys of Paul Street, The (1969-Hungarian-U.S.) C-108m.  D: Zoltan Fabri. Anthony Kemp, Robert Efford, Gary O'Brien, Mark Colleano, John Moulder Brown. Allegory of children's battle for control of vacant lot in Budapest, from Ferenc Molnar's novel; eloquent statement on war. Filmed before in Hollywood as NO GREATER GLORY. Agascope. [G]

Boys on the Side (1995) C-117m.  D: Herbert Ross. Whoopi Goldberg, Mary-Louise Parker, Drew Barrymore, Matthew McConaughey, James Remar, Billy Wirth, Anita Gillette, Estelle Parsons, Dennis Boutsikaris, Gedde Watanabe. Extremely likable film about three disparate women who travel cross-country and become involved in each other's lives. Any film incorporating physical abuse, premarital pregnancy, AIDS, and lesbianism has got its work cut out for it; three strong, appealing performances make up for story contrivances (and credibility gaps).

Super 35. [R]▼●●

Boys Town (1938) 96m.  D: Norman Taurog. Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney, Henry Hull, Gene Reynolds, Leslie Fenton, Addison Richards, Edward Norris, Sidney Miller, Bobs Watson, Frankie Thomas. Tracy won Oscar as Father Flanagan, who develops school for juvenile delinquents; Rooney is his toughest enrollee. Syrupy but well done; Eleanor Griffin and Dore Schary also earned Oscars for their original story. Sequel: MEN OF BOYS TOWN. Almost 60 years later, Rooney played Father Flanagan in the direct-to-video feature THE ROAD HOME. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Boy Ten Feet Tall, A (1963-British) C-118m.  D: Alexander Mackendrick. Edward G. Robinson, Fergus McClelland, Constance Cummings, Harry H. Corbett. Colorful, charming film about orphaned boy traveling through Africa alone to reach his aunt, who lives in Durban. Cut to 88m. for American release. Originally titled SAMMY GOING SOUTH. CinemaScope.

Boy Who Could Fly, The (1986) C-114m. ½ D: Nick Castle. Lucy Deakins, Jay Underwood, Bonnie Bedelia, Fred Savage, Colleen Dewhurst, Fred Gwynne, Louise Fletcher, Jason Priestley. Sensitive girl moves to a new neighborhood and befriends an autistic (and mysterious) boy next door. Warm, well-intentioned film moves very slowly and makes uncomfortable turn from believable drama to fantasy—undermining much of its effectiveness. Good feelings and good performances (especially Bedelia and newcomer Deakins) help keep it aloft. Written by director Castle. [PG]▼●●

Boy Who Cried Bitch, The (1991) C-101m.  D: Juan Jose Campanella. Harley Cross, Karen Young, Dennis Boutsikaris, Adrien Brody, Gene Canfield, Moira Kelly, Jesse Bradford, J. D. Daniels, Kario Salem, Samuel Wright. Thoughtful, unsettling drama about violent, psychotic 12-year-old Cross, whose mother hasn't given him proper parental attention, and whose psychiatric care is inadequate at best. Well made, extremely well acted, but be forewarned: it's unrelentingly grim and sad.

Boy Who Cried Werewolf, The (1973) C-93m.  D: Nathan Juran. Kerwin Mathews, Elaine Devry, Scott Sealey, Robert J. Wilke, Susan Foster. Boy discovers his own father has become a werewolf and is on the prowl. More like an adventure thriller than a horror movie, but not much good as anything. Odd werewolf makeup. [PG]

Boy Who Had Everything, The (1984-Australian) C-94m.  D: Stephen Wallace. Jason Connery, Diane Cilento, Laura Williams, Lewis Fitz-Gerald, Ian Gilmour.

Uneven, inconsequential account of sensitive first-year university student Connery, his relationships with his mother and girlfriend, and his growing pains. Jason is the son of Sean Connery and Diane Cilento (who plays his mom here). [R]

Boy With Green Hair, The (1948) C-82m.  D: Joseph Losey. Pat O'Brien, Robert Ryan, Barbara Hale, Dean Stockwell, Dwayne Hickman. Thought-provoking allegory of war orphan Stockwell, who becomes a social outcast when his hair changes color. Controversial on its release because of its pacifistic point of view. Dale Robertson and Russ Tamblyn appear uncredited. ▼●●

Boyz n the Hood (1991) C-107m.  D: John Singleton. Larry Fishburne, Ice Cube, Cuba Gooding, Jr., Nia Long, Morris Chestnut, Tyra Ferrell, Angela Bassett, Whitman Mayo. Sober, thoughtful look at life in the black section of South Central L.A. A divorced father strives to raise his son with values—and steer him away from the ignorance and aimlessness that has led to an epidemic of senseless violence in the neighborhood. Impressive debut for 23-year-old writer-director Singleton; longish, and not always on-the-money, but overall quite potent and effective. Singleton has a bit part as a mailman. [R]▼●●

Braddock: Missing in Action III (1988) C-101m. BOMB D: Aaron Norris. Chuck Norris, Aki Aleong, Roland Harrah III, Miki King. Dreary comic book sequel with Colonel Norris returning to Vietnam yet again, this time to look for his wife. Chuck even coscripted, with brother Aaron serving as director. [R]▼●●

Brain, The (1962-British-German) 85m.  D: Freddie Francis. Anne Heywood, Peter Van Eyck, Cecil Parker, Bernard Lee, Maxine Audley, Jeremy Spenser, Jack MacGowran. Brain Candy (1996) C-88m. ½ D: Kelly Makin. David Foley, Bruce McCulloch, Kevin McDonald, Mark McKinney, Scott Thompson, Kathryn Greenwood, Janeane Garofalo. New wonder drug that cures depression has devastating side effect on the population now addicted to the product. This premise intertwines the lives of over 30 characters played by Kids in the Hall, the Canadian TV sketch troupe in their feature-film debut. Funny sequences and bizarre characters don't add up to a satisfying whole, but the cast is energetic in many original and unusual guises, often in drag. Standout moment has Thompson "coming out" in splashy Hollywood musical production number. Brendan Fraser appears unbilled. On-screen title is KIDS IN THE HALL BRAIN CANDY. [R]▼●●

Full-bore attempt to re-create an old-time movie comedy, officially "suggested" by A NIGHT AT THE OPERA, with Turturro as Groucho, Nelson as Harpo, Smith as Chico, and Marchand as Margaret Dumont. Scores high marks for good intentions but pretty much falls flat. Great Claymation title sequence by Will Vinton's studio. Written by Pat Proft. [PG]▼●●

One night in Portland, Oregon, nightclub bouncer Clay helps model Hatcher combat a mob of evil Chinese monks who are after the Red Lotus of Ultimate Power. Brainstorm (1965) 114m.  D: William Conrad. Jeff Hunter, Anne Francis, Dana Andrews, Viveca Lindfors, Stacy Harris, Kathie Brown. Fair thriller about a determined man (Hunter) who attempts the perfect crime in order to eliminate Andrews and marry Francis. Contrived. Panavision.●

Brainstorm (1983) C-106m.  D: Douglas Trumbull. Christopher Walken, Natalie Wood, Louise Fletcher, Cliff Robertson, Joe Dorsey, Jordan Christopher. Research scientists Walken and Fletcher perfect a sensory experience device—in the form of a headset—with explosive potential. Entertainingly old-fashioned "mad scientist" type tale brought up to date, though it's best not to examine story too closely. Fletcher gives film's standout performance, but Wood, in her last film (she died during production in 1981) has a basically thankless role. Sure to lose most of its impact on TV screens since Trumbull's state-of-the-art visual effects were designed for 70mm Super Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Brain That Wouldn't Die, The (1963) 81m. *½ D: Joseph Green. Herb (Jason) Evers, Virginia Leith, Adele Lamont, Leslie Daniel, Paula Maurice. Brainwash SEE: Circle of Power

Brainwashed (1961-German) 102m.  D: Gerd Oswald. Curt Jurgens, Claire Bloom, Hansjörg Felmy, Albert Lieven. Austrian Jurgens' struggle to retain sanity while undergoing intense Nazi interrogation is basis of this psychological drama. Strong performances but weak story mars film.

BrainWaves (1982) C-80m.  D: Ulli Lommel. Keir Dullea, Suzanna Love, Tony Curtis, Vera Miles, Percy Rodrigues, Paul Willson. Young woman, injured in an accident, receives the brain (and brain-waves) of a murdered girl and then is stalked by her killer. A glum-looking Tony Curtis is the modern-day Dr. Frankenstein in this pedestrian thriller. [PG—edited from original R rating]▼●

½ D: Francis Ford Coppola. Gary Oldman, Winona Ryder, Anthony Hopkins, Keanu Reeves, Richard E. Grant, Cary Elwes, Bill Campbell, Sadie Frost, Tom Waits, Jay Robinson, Monica Bellucci. Sumptuous retelling of the Dracula legend. Avenging the death of his beloved wife, a 15th-century Romanian warrior lives on through the ages . . . and sets his sights on Victorian London. Sexual, sinuous, exquisitely realized (using every movie artifice imaginable); occasionally let down by story lags . . . but always has one more goodie up its sleeve. Written by James Victor Hart. Kudos to Thomas Sanders' production design, Michael Ballhaus' cinematography, and Wojciech Kilar's powerful music. Won Oscars for makeup, sound effects editing, and costume design. [R] ▼●●

Branded (1950) C-95m. ½ D: Rudolph Maté. Alan Ladd, Mona Freeman, Charles Bickford, Joseph Calleja, Milburn Stone. Outlaws use carefree Ladd to impersonate rancher Bickford's long-missing son, leading to much different outcome than anticipated; action and love scenes balanced OK. ▼●●

Branded to Kill (1967-Japanese) 91m.  D: Seijun Suzuki. Jo Shishido, Koji Yamamura, Annu Mari, Mariko Ogawa. Stylish and surreal deconstruction of the Yakuza genre, chronicling the bizarre exploits of "Number Three Killer," a hit man with a fetish for smelling boiled rice who finds himself being stalked by "Number One Killer" after he botches an assignment. Typically irreverent and subversive film from cult director Suzuki is also fairly incoherent but technically dazzling. Nikkatsu Scope. ▼

Brannigan (1975-British) C-111m. ½ D: Douglas Hickox. John Wayne, Richard Attenborough, Judy Geeson, John Vernon, Mel Ferrer, Ralph Meeker, Lesley-Anne Down. A criminal flees to London to avoid extradition, and Chicago cop Wayne pursues him. Overlong, but change of locale serves Duke well; highlight is amusing brawl in pub. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Brasher Doubloon, The (1947) 72m.  D: John Brahm. George Montgomery, Nancy Guild, Conrad Janis, Roy Roberts, Fritz Kortner. Rare coin seems to be object of several murders in very uneven version of Philip Marlowe detective mystery. Filmed before as TIME TO KILL.

Brass Bottle, The (1964) C-89m.  D: Harry Keller. Tony Randall, Burl Ives, Barbara Eden, Edward Andrews, Ann Doran. Juvenile comedy-fantasy about genie Ives coming out of magic bottle to serve Randall. Eden fared better when she went into a lamp herself on TV. ▼

Brassed Off (1996-British-U.S.) C-109m.

 D: Mark Herman. Pete Postlethwaite, Tara Fitzgerald, Ewan McGregor, Stephen Tompkinson, Jim Carter, Philip Jackson, Peter Martin, Sonue Johnston. Yorkshire mine workers eke out a living but find solace as members of an amateur, all-male brass band. They are threatened by the not unrelated factors of (a) the mining pit's possible closure and (b) a young woman invading their territory. Seriocomic drama provides an emotional tour de force for Postlethwaite as dogged bandleader, and also for Tompkinson as his beleaguered son. Those are the real-life musicians—members of the Grimethorpe Colliery Band—on the soundtrack. [R] ▼●●

Brass Target (1978) C-111m.  D: John Hough. John Cassavetes, Sophia Loren, George Kennedy, Max von Sydow, Robert Vaughn, Bruce Davison, Patrick McGooan. Rambling thriller speculates that Gen. Patton (Kennedy) was assassinated just after WW2 because of major gold heist perpetrated by his subordinates. Unfocused storyline is major liability; von Sydow is major asset as the killer. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Bratz (2007) C-102m. *½ D: Sean McNamara. Nathalia Ramos, Janel Parrish, Logan Browning, Skyler Shaye, Chelsea Staub, Lainie Kazan, Jon Voight, Kadeem Hardison. Silly live-action trifle, based on a popular line of fashion dolls, about four pretty, perky high schoolers whose friendships are strained by allegiances to rival cliques. May—repeat, may—appeal to preteen girls who treasure their Bratz collections. Super 35. [PG] ●

Bravados, The (1958) C-98m.  D: Henry King. Gregory Peck, Joan Collins, Stephen Boyd, Albert Salmi. Compelling Western starring Peck, seeking four men who raped and killed his wife, discovering that he has become no better than those he hunts. Joe De Rita (later Curly Joe of The Three Stooges) plays the hangman. CinemaScope. ▼●

Brave Bulls, The (1951) 108m.  D: Robert Rossen. Mel Ferrer, Miroslava, Anthony Quinn, Eugene Iglesias. Flavorful account of public and private life of a matador, based on Tom Lea book. Film admirably captures atmosphere of bullfighting. Some prints now available run 114m., with bullfight footage originally deemed too gruesome for U.S. audiences.

Braveheart (1995) C-177m. ½ D: Mel Gibson. Mel Gibson, Sophie Marceau, Patrick McGooan, Catherine McCormack, Brendan Gleeson, James Cosmo, David O'Hara, Angus Macfadyen, Peter Henly, James Robinson, Alun Armstrong, Ian Bannen, Brian Cox. Big, booming, epic tale of 13th-century Scottish rebel warrior William Wallace, who builds a grass-roots resistance to the tyranny of English King Edward I (McGooan). Manages to tell a gripping personal story that grows in scale through a series of eye-popping (and bloody) battle scenes. Only the denouement starts to drag. A powerful, passionate film about a powerful, passionate man. Winner of Academy Awards for Best Picture, Director, Cinematography (John Toll), Makeup, and Sound Effects Editing. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Brave Little Toaster, The (1987) C-90m.

 D: Jerry Rees. Voices of Jon Lovitz, Tim Stack, Timothy E. Day, Thurl Ravenscroft, Deanna Oliver, Phil Hartman. Entertaining animated feature about a group of humanized household appliances who embark on a perilous journey to find their young master. A welcome throwback to the cartoons of yore, with equal doses of heart and hip humor to please both kids and their parents. Some nice songs by Van Dyke Parks, too. Based on the novel by Thomas M. Disch. Followed by two direct-to-video sequels. ▼●●

Brave One, The (1956) C-100m.  D: Irving Rapper. Michel Ray, Rodolfo Hoyos, Fernin Rivera, Elsa Cardenas, Carlos Navarro, Joi Lansing. Predictable but charming tale of peasant-boy Ray and his love for Gitano, a valiant bull destined to meet his fate in the arena. Filmed in Mexico. "Robert Rich" (a pseudonym for blacklisted Dalton Trumbo) received a Best Original Story Academy Award, which went unclaimed until 1975. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Brave One, The (2007) C-122m. ½ D: Neil Jordan. Jodie Foster, Terrence Howard, Naveen Andrews, Carmen Ejogo, Nicky Katt, Mary Steenburgen, Jane Adams, Zoë Kravitz, Larry Fessenden. N.Y.C. radio host Foster turns troubled, gun-toting vigilante after she is attacked and her fiancé killed by hoods in Central Park. As the body count rises, she forms an unusual bond with the detective (Howard) who is investigating her handiwork. Serious attempt to examine a post-9/11 world of violence and paranoia becomes more unhinged (and more improbable) as it goes along and stubbornly remains a high-toned DEATH WISH, for better and worse. Typically strong work from Foster and Howard helps. Panavision. [R]●

Brazil (1985) C-131m.  D: Terry Gilliam. Jonathan Pryce, Kim Greist, Robert De Niro, Katherine Helmond, Ian Holm, Bob Hoskins, Michael Palin, Ian Richardson, Peter Vaughan. Dazzlingly different look at bleak future society (kind of a cross between 1984 and A CLOCKWORK ORANGE) where one hapless clerk (Pryce) clings to his ideals and dreams, including his Dream Girl (Greist). A triumph of imagination and production design, full of incredible black comedy . . . but also a relentless film that doesn't know when to quit: second half is often redundant and ineffectual. Gilliam cut film from 142m. for American release. Screenplay by Gilliam, Tom Stoppard, and Charles McKeown. [R] ▼●●

Breach (2007) C-110m.  D: Billy Ray.

Chris Cooper, Ryan Phillippe, Laura Linney, Dennis Haysbert, Caroline Dhavernas, Gary Cole, Bruce Davison, Kathleen Quinlan. Real-life espionage tale seen through the eyes of ambitious FBI man Eric O'Neill (Phillippe), who's given a thankless assignment. He must earn the confidence of agency veteran Robert Hanssen (Cooper), a devout Catholic and family man who's been selling high-level secrets to the Russians. Solid, straightforward drama with a superior performance by Cooper that reflects the many facets of Hanssen's personality . . . although we never really understand what makes him tick. [PG-13]●

Bread and Chocolate (1973-Italian) C-107m. ½ D: Franco Brusati. Nino Manfredi, Anna Karina, Johnny Dorelli, Paolo Turco, Max Delys. Manfredi is marvelous as a Chaplinesque everyman, an optimistic lower-class worker who treks to Switzerland to make his fortune yet remains the eternal outsider. Memorable sequence in a chicken coop. Original running time: 111m. ▼●

Bread and Roses (2001-British-German-Spanish) C-110m. ½ D: Ken Loach. Pilar Padilla, Adrien Brody, Elpidia Carrillo, George Lopez, Jack McGee, Alonso Chavez, Monica Rivas, Frank Davila. Gripping fictionalized account of the 2000 L.A. janitors' strike focuses on a Latina illegal immigrant (Padilla) who stands up to her corrupt employers and struggles to convince her coworkers to join the union. Plays a bit like an indie NORMA RAE (with Brody in the Ron Leibman role) but even more realistic. Loach's first American-based film stands among his best at capturing the plight of hard-working, disenfranchised people. Written by Paul Laverty. Features cameos from real-life Latino activists; actors William Atherton, Benicio Del Toro, Tim Roth, and Ron Perlman appear briefly as themselves. [R] ▼●

Bread and Tulips (2000-Italian-Swiss) C-114m.  D: Silvio Soldini. Licia Maglietta, Bruno Ganz, Marina Massironi, Giuseppe Battiston, Felice Andreasi, Antonio Catania. Lighthearted drama of a woman's liberation, as a suburban housewife-mother, stranded while on vacation, finds a new, rewarding life in exotic Venice. Sweet-natured wish-fulfillment fantasy manages to convince thanks to the story's attention to detail and assured lead performance by Maglietta. [PG-13] ▼●

Break, The (1998-British-Irish-German-Japanese) C-96m. ½ D: Robert Dornhelm. Stephen Rea, Alfred Molina, Rosana Pastor, Brendan Gleeson, Jorge Sanz, Pruitt Taylor Vince. Rea is excellent, as usual, as an IRA terrorist who unexpectedly becomes part of a Belfast prison break. Before long he's living in N.Y.C., where his long-ago training finds a new outlet as he becomes involved with Guatemalan immigrants. En-

Breakdown (1997) C-93m.  D: Jonathan Mostow. Kurt Russell, J.T. Walsh, Kathleen Quinlan, M. C. Gainey, Jack Noseworthy, Rex Linn, Ritch Brinkley. Married couple moving west have car trouble in the midst of the wide open spaces; a trucker picks up the wife so she can phone for help, but that's the last her husband sees of her . . . and no one seems willing or able to help. Superior thriller delivers the goods with airtight plot and all-too-believable situations. Hang on! Cowritten by director Mostow. Super 35. [R]▼●●

'Breaker' Morant (1979-Australian) C-107m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Edward Woodward, Jack Thompson, John Waters, Bryan Brown, Charles Tingwell, Vincent Ball, Lewis Fitz-Gerald. Potent drama based on the true story of three soldiers whose actions during the Boer War are used as fodder for a trumped-up court martial—in order to satisfy the political plans of the British Empire. Based on a play by Kenneth G. Ross. Winner of several Australian Academy Awards. [PG]▼●●

Breakfast at Tiffany's (1961) C-115m. ½ D: Blake Edwards. Audrey Hepburn, George Peppard, Patricia Neal, Buddy Ebsen, Mickey Rooney, Martin Balsam, John McGiver. Charming film from Truman Capote's story, with Hepburn as Holly Golightly, backwoods girl who goes mod in N.Y.C. Dated trappings don't detract from high comedy and winning romance. Screenplay by George Axelrod. Oscar winner for Score (Henry Mancini) and Song, "Moon River" (Mancini and Johnny Mercer).▼●●

Breakfast Club, The (1985) C-97m. ½ D: John Hughes. Emilio Estevez, Judd Nelson, Molly Ringwald, Anthony Michael Hall, Ally Sheedy, Paul Gleason. A bold experiment in the era of teen raunch movies (written and directed by a man who's made more than his share): five kids sit and talk about themselves, during day-long detention. Alternately poignant, predictable, and self-important, but filled with moments of truth and perception. [R]▼●●

Breakfast of Champions (1999) C-110m. *½ D: Alan Rudolph. Bruce Willis, Albert Finney, Nick Nolte, Barbara Hershey, Glenne Headly, Lukas Haas, Omar Epps, Buck Henry, Vicki Lewis, Jake Johannsen, Will Patton, Owen Wilson, Chip Zien, Alison Eastwood. Lives in confusion: Car dealer Willis is suicidal, his salesman Nolte

is a secret transvestite, and obscure sci-fi writer Kilgore Trout (Finney) is hitching cross-country to be honored for the first time. Rudolph's go-for-broke, in-your-face style does no favors to Kurt Vonnegut, Jr.'s already bizarre novel, which Rudolph adapted and Willis self-financed as a labor of love. Haas and Hershey are excellent. Vonnegut briefly appears. [R]▼●

Breakfast on Pluto (2005-Irish-British) C-135m. ½ D: Neil Jordan. Cillian Murphy, Liam Neeson, Stephen Rea, Brendan Gleeson, Ruth Negga, Laurence Kinlan, Conor McEvoy, Gavin Friday, Ian Hart, Ruth McCabe, Steven Waddington, Eamonn Owens, Bryan Ferry. Episodic account of Murphy, who was abandoned as a baby in Ireland and taken in by a Catholic priest (Neeson). He grows up to be a flagrantly gay cross-dresser who calls himself Kitten, and sets off in search of his real mother. Jordan revisits themes he explored in THE CRYING GAME, including sexual identity and British-Irish politics, but the film is meandering and memorable only for Murphy's performance. Jordan scripted from Patrick McCabe's novel. [R]●

Breakheart Pass (1976) C-95m.  D: Tom Gries. Charles Bronson, Ben Johnson, Richard Crenna, Jill Ireland, Charles Durning, Ed Lauter, Roy Jenson, Bill McKinney, Sally Kirkland, Casey Tibbs. Slam-bang action Western, with second unit work by Yakima Canutt. Based on Alistair MacLean novel and set mainly on a train, it has Bronson as an undercover agent seeking gun runners and confronting a false epidemic. Highlight: incredible fight between Bronson and former boxing champ Archie Moore. [PG]▼●●

Break In SEE: Loophole

Breakin' (1984) C-90m.  D: Joel Silberg. Lucinda Dickey, Adolfo (Shabba-Doo) Quinones, Michael (Boogaloo Shrimp) Chambers, Ben Lokey, Christopher McDonald, Phineas Newborn 3rd, Ice-T. Harmless FLASHDANCE clone, but with the emphasis on break dancing. Here, heroine Dickey waitresses rather than welds. Look for Jean-Claude Van Damme and Lela Rochon as extras in the opening scenes. A sequel followed before the year was out. [PG]▼●●

Breakin' 2: Electric Boogaloo (1984) C-94m. *½ D: Sam Firstenberg. Lucinda Dickey, Adolfo (Shabba-Doo) Quinones, Michael (Boogaloo Shrimp) Chambers, Susie Bono, Lela Rochon (Quinones). Two worthy adversaries—a toothy WASP developer who could rate a centerfold in Forbes and a young urban black whose earring is longer than a bola—clash when the former tries to bulldoze a community rec center. The 18 break dancing standards include "Do Your Thang" and "Oye Mamacita." [PG]▼●●

Breakin' All the Rules (2004) C-85m. **

D: Daniel Taplitz. Jamie Foxx, Morris Chestnut, Gabrielle Union, Jennifer Esposito, Peter MacNicol, Bianca Lawson. Magazine editor gets dumped by his fiancée and writes a survival guide on the subject. Then his cousin, a self-styled player (Chestnut), asks for his help in losing a girlfriend (Union) who's getting too serious—and things start getting complicated. Slick comedy of errors has a lively, likable cast, but plays flat; the story is better told in the coming attractions trailer. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Breaking and Entering (2006-U.S.-British) C-116m.  D: Anthony Minghella. Jude Law, Juliette Binoche, Robin Wright Penn, Martin Freeman, Ray Winstone, Vera Farmiga, Rafi Gavron, Poppy Rogers, Juliet Stevenson. Architect Law opens a new high-tech office with his partner in a dodgy London neighborhood, where they are repeatedly burglarized. He follows a teenage thief home one night, then finds an excuse to talk to his mother, an Eastern European immigrant (Binoche). This blossoms into a surprising relationship that reflects on the malaise of his marriage to Wright Penn. Writer-director Minghella explores issues of morality in a world where absolutes don't stand up anymore. Provocative and original. Super 35. [R] ●

Breaking Away (1979) C-100m. ½ D: Peter Yates. Dennis Christopher, Dennis Quaid, Daniel Stern, Jackie Earle Haley, Barbara Barrie, Paul Dooley, Robyn Douglas, Hart Bochner, Amy Wright, John Ashton, Pamela Jayne (P.J.) Soles. Winning, unpretentious film about four college-age friends in Bloomington, Indiana, who don't know what to do with their lives; one of them (Christopher) has become obsessed with bicycle racing. Dooley stands out in first-rate cast as Christopher's bewildered father. This sleeper hit really comes to life with an audience. Steve Tesich's original screenplay won well-deserved Oscar; later spawned a brief TV series. [PG] ▼●●

Breaking Glass (1980-British) C-104m. ½ D: Brian Gibson. Phil Daniels, Hazel O'Connor, Jon Finch, Jonathan Pryce, Peter-Hugo Daly, Mark Wingett. Rocker O'Connor rises from playing small London clubs to superstardom, finds success isn't everything. Good performances by O'Connor, Daniels (as her youthful manager), Pryce (as a junkie saxophone player) offset predictable storyline. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Breaking In (1989) C-91m. ½ D: Bill Forsyth. Burt Reynolds, Casey Siemaszko, Sheila Kelley, Lorraine Toussaint, Albert Salmi, Harry Carey, Maury Chaykin, Steve Tobolowsky, David Frishberg. Low-key, off-center comedy about an aging safecracker who takes on a young protégé who's got a lot to learn about life, as well as his new profession. John Sayles' script, as interpreted by director Forsyth, is inventive and often quite funny ... but not enough to keep this wispy film afloat. Reynolds is extremely good in his first character role. [R] ▼●●

Breaking Point, The (1950) 97m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. John Garfield, Patricia Neal, Phyllis Thaxter, Wallace Ford, Sherry Jackson. High-voltage refilming of Hemingway's TO HAVE AND HAVE NOT, with Garfield as skipper so desperate for money he takes on illegal cargo. Garfield and mate Juano Hernandez give superb interpretations. Screenplay by Ranald MacDougall. Remade again as THE GUN RUNNERS.

Breaking Point (1976-Canadian) C-92m. BOMB D: Bob Clark. Bo Svenson, Robert Culp, John Colicos, Belinda J. Montgomery, Stephen Young, Linda Sorenson. Svenson is pursued by Mafiosos after he testifies against them in court. Nothing new here. [R] ▼●

Breaking Point (1993-Canadian) C-96m.  D: Paul Ziller. Gary Busey, Kim Cattrall, Darlante Fluegel, Jeff Griggs. After a serial killer known as "The Surgeon" strikes close to home, haunted cop Busey is asked to capture him. This grisly and erotic thriller is titillating, mildly surprising at first, but ultimately predictable. [R] ▼●●

Breaking the Rules (1992) C-100m. *½ D: Neal Israel. Jason Bateman, C. Thomas Howell, Jonathan Silverman, Annie Potts, Kent Bateman, Shawn Phelan. Yet another road movie in which two friends take their dying buddy on one last "journey of life." The story is meant to make you laugh and cry, but it's so manipulative it only induces yawns. Potts is the single standout, as a free-spirited waitress. Filmed in 1989. [PG-13] ▼●●

Breaking the Sound Barrier (1952-British) 116m. ½ D: David Lean. Ralph Richardson, Ann Todd, Nigel Patrick, John Justin, Dinah Sheridan, Denholm Elliott. Grade-A documentary-style story of early days of jet planes, and men who tested them; Richardson particularly good. Originally shown in England as THE SOUND BARRIER at 118m. ●

Breaking the Waves (1996-Danish) C-156m. ½ D: Lars von Trier. Emily Watson, Stellan Skarsgård, Adrian Rawlins, Katrina Cartledge, Jean-Marc Barr, Jonathan Hackett, Sandra Voe, Udo Kier. Extraordinary story of a young, simple-minded, God-fearing Scottish woman who willingly takes lovers in the belief that it will cure her paralyzed husband. A bold, often unsettling examination of love and faith, given immediacy and power by von Trier's documentarylike approach and cinematographer Robby Müller's faded visual scheme, which robs the miraculous in the everyday world. Watson, in her film debut, is absolutely unforgettable in the lead role. Von Trier also wrote the screenplay. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Breaking Up (1997) C-90m. *½ D: Robert

Greenwald. Salma Hayek, Russell Crowe. Tiresome treatise on love in the '90s, showing how many times two self-centered adults can break up, reunite, and break up again. They can't stand each other, and we can't stand them! Screenplay by Michael Cristofer, from his play. Filmed in 1995. [R]▼●●

Break of Hearts (1935) 80m.  D: Philip Moeller. Katharine Hepburn, Charles Boyer, John Beal, Jean Hersholt, Sam Hardy, Susan Fleming, Jean Howard. Temperamental orchestra conductor Boyer, who has been spoiled by success, weds unknown composer Hepburn . . . then there are complications. Stars try hard but do not do anything with sappy, sub-par material. ▼●●

Breakout (1959-British) 99m. ½ D: Don Chaffey. Richard Todd, Richard Attenborough, Michael Wilding, Dennis Price, Bernard Lee, Donald Houston, Michael Caine. Although format is now familiar, this remains an exciting story of British POWs attempting escapes from Axis prison camp during WW2. Fine performances all around. Original title: DANGER WITHIN.

Breakout (1975) C-96m.  D: Tom Gries. Charles Bronson, Robert Duvall, Jill Ireland, John Huston, Sheree North, Randy Quaid. Crisp action film generously laced with comedy touches has devil-may-care bush pilot Bronson taking on the job of spiring Duvall, framed for murder, from a seedy Mexican prison. Awfully violent, though. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Breakthrough (1978-West German) C-115m. *½ D: Andrew V. McLaglen. Richard Burton, Robert Mitchum, Rod Steiger, Curt Jurgens, Klaus Loewitsch, Helmut Griem, Michael Parks. Superficial sequel to CROSS OF IRON, with the focus on the western front during WW2. German sergeant Burton becomes entangled in anti-Hitler conspiracy, saves the life of U.S. colonel Mitchum. Particularly disappointing, considering cast. Also known as SERGEANT STEINER. [PG]▼

Break-Up, The (2006) C-106m. ½ D: Peyton Reed. Vince Vaughn, Jennifer Aniston, Joey Lauren Adams, Jon Favreau, Jason Bateman, Judy Davis, Justin Long, Ivan Sergei, John Michael Higgins, Cole Hauser, Vincent D'Onofrio, Ann-Margret, Peter Billingsley. Typical of what passes for romantic comedy these days: neither Vince nor Jen wants the other to end up with the condo they shared during happier times. Not without laughs, but this odd, unsatisfying film is mainly for viewers who find carping and bickering entertaining. That's Vince's real-life dad, Vernon Vaughn, playing Aniston's father. Stay for a rendition of "The Rainbow Connection" by Higgins' a cappella group, The Tone Rangers, during the

end credits. Vaughn cowrote the story and coproduced. [PG-13]●

Breathing Room (1996) C-90m. ½ D: Jon Sherman. Susan Floyd, Dan Futterman, Nadia Dajani, Edie Falco, Saverio Guerra, David Thornton, Paul Giamatti. Sweet film of contemporary N.Y.C. couple deciding on their future together by separating between Thanksgiving and Christmas. The issue of commitment is honestly explored and feels universal. A "date" movie with more food for thought than might be comfortable for unmarried couples. ▼

Breathless (1959-French) 89m. ½ D: Jean-Luc Godard. Jean Seberg, Jean-Paul Belmondo, Daniel Boulanger, Liliane David. Belmondo is ideally cast as a Parisian hood who, accompanied by American girl (Seberg), is chased by police after stealing a car and killing a cop. Groundbreaking, influential New Wave tale with a classic romanticized gangster-hero and great candid shots of Paris life. Dedicated to Monogram Pictures, with a story by François Truffaut. Remade in 1983. ▼●●

Breathless (1983) C-100m.  D: Jim McBride. Richard Gere, Valerie Kaprisky, Art Metrano, John P. Ryan, William Tepper, Gary Goodrow. Remake of landmark 1959 Godard film follows basic outline of the original—an amoral punk on the lam from police—but lacks its sociological potency. Gere's kinetic performance is something to see, but his character, hooked on Jerry Lee Lewis music and "Silver Surfer" comics, soon grows tiresome. [R]▼●●

Breath of Life (1992-Italian) C-96m.  D: Beppe Cino. Franco Nero, Vanessa Redgrave, Fernando Rey, Lucrezia Rovere, Salvatore Cascio. Grim, episodic psychological study of the wounded lives of a group of Italians in a post-WW2 sanitarium. Nero gives a solid performance as a tubercular professor in love with a mentally troubled ballerina (Rovere). Unfortunately he has little to do with Redgrave here—his former CAMELOT costar and one-time real-life lover.

Breath of Scandal, A (1960) C-98m.  D: Michael Curtiz. Sophia Loren, John Gavin, Maurice Chevalier, Isabel Jeans, Angela Lansbury. Molnar's play Olympia is limp costume vehicle for Loren, playing a princess romanced by American Gavin. Chevalier and Lansbury vainly try to pump some life into proceedings. ▼●

Breed Apart, A (1984) C-101m.  D: Philippe Mora. Rutger Hauer, Powers Boothe, Kathleen Turner, Donald Pleasence, John Dennis Johnston, Brion James. Picturesque but illogical, uninvolving tale of famed mountain climber Boothe, hired to pilfer specimens of a new bald-eagle breed, and his entanglement with conservationist Hauer and fishing-supply store owner Turner. [R]▼

Breezy (1973) C-108m.  D: Clint Eastwood. William Holden, Kay Lenz, Roger C. Carmel, Marj Dusay, Shelley Morrison, Joan Hotchkis. Jaded middle-ager finds Truth with a teenaged hippie in sappy romance. Fine performances by the leads only help up to a point. [R]▼

Brenda Starr (1992) C-87m. *½ D: Robert Ellis Miller. Brooke Shields, Tony Peck, Timothy Dalton, Diana Scarwid, Jeffrey Tambor, June Gable, Nestor Serrano, Kathleen Wilhoite, Charles Durning, Eddie Albert, Henry Gibson, Ed Nelson. This fiasco, based on Dale Messick's comic strip, sat on the shelf for years, and no wonder. Artist Peck enters the strip to talk Brenda out of quitting the paper, is drawn into her adventuresome life. Aimless and uninvolved. The creators have contempt for their source, always deadly in films like this. Filmed in 1986. [PG]▼

Brewster McCloud (1970) C-101m.  D: Robert Altman. Bud Cort, Sally Kellerman, Michael Murphy, William Windom, Shelley Duvall, Rene Auberjonois, Stacy Keach, John Schuck, Margaret Hamilton. Patently indescribable movie following exploits of owlsh boy (Cort) whose ambition is to take wing and fly inside Houston Astrodome. Extremely bizarre; for certain tastes, extremely funny. Altman fans have head start. Panavision. [R]▼

Brewster's Millions (1945) 79m. ½ D: Allan Dwan. Dennis O'Keefe, Helen Walker, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, June Havoc, Gail Patrick, Mischa Auer, Joe Sawyer, Herbert Rudley. Bright, energetic filming of venerable George Barr McCutcheon comedy about ordinary guy (this time, a returning GI) who must spend $1 million in a month's time in order to receive major inheritance. First filmed in 1914; remade in 1985.▼

Brewster's Millions (1985) C-97m.  D: Walter Hill. Richard Pryor, John Candy, Lonette McKee, Stephen Collins, Jerry Orbach, Pat Hingle, Tovah Feldshuh, Joe Grifasi, Hume Cronyn. Seventh film version of venerable novel and play; here baseball player Pryor has one month to spend $30 million. Surefire premise squelched by unfunny script and wooden direction. When Pryor and Candy can't make it work, you know there's something wrong. [PG] ▼

Brian White, Richard Roundtree. Teenaged Gordon-Levitt discovers the dead body of his ex-girlfriend and makes it his business to learn what happened to her. Clever, stylized film noir involving high school kids who speak in a hard-boiled 1930s argot (hard to understand at times though appealing just the same). A bit protracted but still an audacious, original piece of work. Haas turns up well into the story as a flamboyant drug kingpin and steals the show. Neat music score by Nathan Johnson is as offbeat as the film itself. Written by first-time director Rian Johnson. [R]▼

Brick Lane (2007-British) C-101m.  D: Sarah Gavron. Tannishtha Chatterjee, Satish Kaushik, Christopher Simpson, Naeema Begum, Lana Rahman, Zafeen. Compassionate portrait of a Bangladeshi girl whose carefree life with her sister is curtailed after her mother dies and she is sent to London to enter into an arranged marriage. Now she's got a surly teenage daughter and suffers a daily existence with a pompous, ne'er-do-well husband. Then she chances to meet a young man who inspires her to assert herself for the first time in her life. Poignant and believable at every turn; even the husband is portrayed as a three-dimensional character. Abi Morgan and Laura Jones adapted Monica Ali's novel. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Bride, The (1985) C-118m. ½ D: Franc Roddam. Sting, Jennifer Beals, Clancy Brown, David Rappaport, Geraldine Page, Anthony Higgins, Veruschka, Quentin Crisp, Cary Elwes. Revisionist remake of BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN brilliantly captures look and feel of a great gothic horror film—but fails to deliver on its promise of enlightened psychological approach to the story. Both Sting and Beals give one-note performances. Film is easily stolen by Rappaport, as dwarf who befriends Dr. Frankenstein's male monster (Brown); their sequences make film worth watching. [PG-13]▼

Bride & Prejudice (2004-U.S.-British) C-111m. ½ D: Gurinder Chadha. Aishwarya Rai, Martin Henderson, Daniel Gillies, Naveen Andrews, Alexis Bledel, Namrata Shirodkar, Nitin Chandra Ganatra, Marsha Mason, Ashanti. Jane Austen goes ethnic in this clichéd-laden but lightly entertaining update of Pride and Prejudice involving a desperate Indian mother's attempts to find husbands for her four daughters. Rai is a stunning presence as Lalita, the Elizabeth Bennet character, who becomes involved with an American hotel magnate named Darcy (Henderson). Interesting attempt to produce a Bollywood musical for Western audiences. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Bride Came C.O.D., The (1941) 92m. ½ D: William Keighley. James Cagney, Bette Davis, Stuart Erwin, Eugene Pallette, Jack Carson, George Tobias. Unlikely comedy team in vehicle made enjoyable only by their terrific personalities; he's a flier, she's an abducted bride. ▼

Bride Comes Home, The (1935) 82m. ½ D: Wesley Ruggles. Claudette Colbert, Fred MacMurray, Robert Young, William Collier, Sr., Edgar Kennedy. Breezy fluff with wealthy Young competing against roughneck MacMurray for Claudette's affections in vintage comedy.

Bride for Sale (1949) 87m. ½ D: William D. Russell. Claudette Colbert, Robert Young, George Brent, Max Baer. Veteran star trio carries on despite thin story of female tax expert seeking wealthy spouse.

Bride Goes Wild, The (1948) 98m.  D: Norman Taurog. Van Johnson, June Allyson, Butch Jenkins, Hume Cronyn, Una Merkel, Arlene Dahl, Richard Derr. Silly, predictable farce in which irresponsible children's book author Johnson pretends to be Jenkins' widowed father in order to keep illustrator Allyson from exposing his shenanigans.

Bride Is Much Too Beautiful, The (1956-French) 85m.  D: Pierre Gaspard-Huit. Louis Jourdan, Brigitte Bardot, Micheline Presle, Marcel Amont, Jean-Francois Calve. Paper-thin sex farce with Bardot a country girl who becomes a famous model, finds herself the "bride" in a fake marriage. Aka HER BRIDAL NIGHT. ▼

Bride of Chucky (1998) C-89m.  D: Ronny Yu. Jennifer Tilly, Katherine Heigl, Nicky Stabile, John Ritter, Alexis Arquette, Gordon Michael Woolvett, Kathy Najimy, voice of Brad Dourif. Wicked trailer trash Tilly works voodoo to revive Chucky (the killer doll from three earlier CHILD'S PLAY movies), and ends up a literal living doll herself. Better than you'd expect, with good lines and an impressively raunchy performance by Tilly, but it's let down by clumsy plotting. Followed by SEED OF CHUCKY. [R] ▼

Bride of Frankenstein (1935) 75m. * D: James Whale. Karloff (Boris Karloff), Colin Clive, Valerie Hobson, Ernest Thesiger, Elsa Lanchester, Una O'Connor, E. E. Clive, Gavin Gordon, Douglas Walton, O. P. Heggie, Dwight Frye, John Carradine. Eye-filling sequel to FRANKENSTEIN is even better, with rich vein of dry wit running through the chills. Inimitable Thesiger plays weird doctor who compels Frankenstein into helping him make a mate for the Monster; Lanchester plays both the "bride" and, in amusing prologue, Mary Shelley. Pastoral interlude with blind hermit and

final, riotous creation scene are highlights of this truly classic movie. Scripted by John L. Balderston and William Hurlbut. Marvelous Franz Waxman score, reused for many subsequent films. Followed by SON OF FRANKENSTEIN; reworked in 1985 as THE BRIDE. ▼

Bride of Re-Animator (1990) C-99m.  D: Brian Yuzna. Jeffrey Combs, Bruce Abbott, Claude Earl Jones, Fabiana Udenio, David Gale, Kathleen Kinmont. Follow-up to RE-ANIMATOR with more gory fun from that wacky pair of Dr. Frankenstein wannabes, Combs and Abbott. Strong stuff, with much splicing of bloodied body parts; wait till you see the crawling eyeball! This sort-of homage to BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN isn't nearly as successful as original RE-ANIMATOR. Nominally based on H. P. Lovecraft's Herbert West—Re-Animator. Unrated director's cut also available. Followed in 2003 by BEYOND RE-ANIMATOR. [R] ▼

Bride of the Monster (1955) 69m. BOMB D: Edward D. Wood, Jr. Bela Lugosi, Tor Johnson, Tony McCoy, Loretta King, Harvey B. Dunn, George Becwar, Don Nagel, Bud Osborne. A dissipated Lugosi creates giant rubber octopus that terrorizes woodland stream. Huge Swedish wrestler Johnson provides added laughs as hulking manservant Lobo. Another hilariously inept Grade Z movie from the king of bad cinema. Sequel: REVENGE OF THE DEAD (aka NIGHT OF THE GHOULS). ▼

Bride of the Wind (2001) C-99m. *½ D: Bruce Beresford. Sarah Wynter, Jonathan Pryce, Vincent Perez, Simon Verhoeven, Gregor Seberg. Passions run low in this drab period drama set in fin-de-siècle Vienna about Alma Schindler, the real-life muse for many celebrated men, including composer Gustav Mahler (played as a milquetoast by Pryce). Slow as a funeral dirge, the movie features a blur of a central performance from Wynter. All talk about art and obsession without anything to show for it. [R] ▼

Bride of Vengeance (1949) 91m.  D: Mitchell Leisen. Paulette Goddard, John Lund, Macdonald Carey, Raymond Burr, Albert Dekker, Rose Hobart. Medium-warm costumer of medieval Italy with Goddard as a Borgia sent to do mischief but instead falling in love.

Brideshead Revisited (2008-British) C-133m. ½ D: Julian Jarrold. Matthew Goode, Ben Whishaw, Hayley Atwell, Emma Thompson, Michael Gambon, Greta Scacchi, Jonathan Cake, Patrick Malahide, Ed Stoppard, Felicity Jones, Joseph Beattie. Rethinking of Evelyn Waugh's 1945 novel, dramatized so memorably in a 1981 British TV miniseries. An unworlly working-class boy (Goode) arrives at Oxford and is befriended by flamboyant Sebastian Flyte (Whishaw), who reluctantly introduces him to his sister (Atwell) and their imperious mother, who rules over their massive estate—and their lives. Ragged at times as it tries to compress many complexities into two hours' length, but impeccably performed. Thompson is subtly brilliant as Lady Marchmain. Screenplay by Andrew Davies and Jeremy Brock. Super 35. [PG-13]◆

Bridesmaid, The (2004-French) C-111m.  D: Claude Chabrol. Benoit Magimel, Laura Smet, Aurore Clement, Bernard Le Coq, Solène Bouton, Anna Mihalcea, Michel Duchaussoy, Suzanne Flon, Thomas Chabrol. It's happened to almost everyone, and it happens to upwardly mobile career man Magimel: instant attraction to a stranger while attending a wedding. Premise is served with a typical Chabrol twist when the woman he meets turns out to be a sociopath . . . or even worse. The extent to which she (Smet) cajoles him to "prove his love" by committing a fateful act ratchets up suspense little by little. May not be up to the director's masterpieces of the '60s but it's engrossing all the way. Based on a novel by Ruth Rendell.◆

Brides of Dracula, The (1960-British) C-85m.  D: Terence Fisher. Peter Cushing, Martita Hunt, Yvonne Monlaur, Freda Jackson, David Peel, Miles Malleon, Andree Melly. In the Carpathian Mountains, a young teacher (Monlaur) is attracted to a nobleman (Peel) held captive by his own mother (Hunt). When the young woman sets him free, he's revealed as a vampire—and a disciple of Count Dracula. Vampire hunter Van Helsing (Cushing) energetically comes to her aid. Exciting, colorful period horror, this first sequel to HORROR OF DRACULA is one of Hammer's best thrillers. Dracula never turns up—but you won't miss him.▼◆◆

Brides of Fu Manchu, The (1966-British) C-94m. ½ D: Don Sharp. Christopher Lee, Douglas Wilmer, Marie Versini, Tsai Chin. Fu doesn't give up easily, still bent on conquering the world by forcing scientists to develop powerful ray gun. Sequel to FACE OF FU MANCHU, not as good, still diverting; followed by VENGEANCE OF FU MANCHU.▼◆

Bride Walks Out, The (1936) 81m.  D: Leigh Jason. Barbara Stanwyck, Gene Raymond, Robert Young, Ned Sparks, Helen Broderick, Hattie McDaniel. Flat comedy of model Stanwyck who, against her better instincts, goes domestic and weds brash, struggling engineer Raymond. Buffs will enjoy spotting Ward Bond as a taxi cab-driving extra.▼

Bride Wars (2009) C-89m. *½ D: Gary Winick. Kate Hudson, Anne Hathaway, Bryan Greenberg, Chris Pratt, Steve Howey, Candice Bergen, Kristen Johnston, Michael Arden, Victor Slezak. Dreadful comedy pits lifelong best friends against each other when their dream weddings at N.Y.C.'s Plaza Hotel are inadvertently double-booked for the same day and neither will budge. Both women scheme to destroy the other's golden day as they blame each other for the not-so-merry mix-up and act like 8-year-olds. Witless, contrived, and unfunny tale sets the women's movement back about four decades. It's a shame to see such attractive talents as Hudson and particularly Hathaway doing this kind of juvenile slapstick (and Hudson was one of the producers). Only Johnston manages to mine any laughs as Hathaway's desperate choice for her maid of honor. [PG]◆

Bride With White Hair, The (1993-Hong Kong) C-89m.  D: Ronny Yu. Brigitte Lin, Leslie Cheung, Ng Chun-yu, Elaine Lui, Nam Kit-ying. Beautifully made tale based on a famous Chinese fable about rival Ming Dynasty clans and a forbidden love affair between a swordsman and a "wolf girl" who possesses supernatural powers. Highly effective blend of myth, romance and super-stylized violence, plus elegant use of color and widescreen, puts this a cut above the usual Hong Kong actioner. Followed by a sequel the same year. Panavision.▼◆◆

Bride Wore Black, The (1968-French) C-107m. ½ D: François Truffaut. Jeanne Moreau, Claude Rich, Jean-Claude Brialy, Michel Bouquet, Michel Lonsdale, Charles Denner. Hitchcockian suspenser about Moreau tracking down and killing the quintet of men who accidentally killed her husband on their wedding day. Exciting, entertaining homage to The Master, right down to the Bernard Herrmann score (although Truffaut omitted the twist ending of the novel by William Irish, aka Cornell Woolrich).▼◆◆

Bride Wore Boots, The (1946) 86m.  D: Irving Pichel. Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Cummings, Diana Lynn, Peggy Wood, Robert Benchley, Natalie Wood, Willie Best. Witless comedy of horse-loving Stanwyck saddled by Cummings, who does his best to win her total affection; they all try but script is weak.

Bride Wore Red, The (1937) 103m. ½ D: Dorothy Arzner. Joan Crawford, Franchot Tone, Robert Young, Billie Burke, Reginald Owen, Lynne Carver, George Zucco, Dickie Moore. Lowly Crawford is thrust into society on the whim of a count and becomes the romantic object of aristocrat-playboy Young and soulful peasant Tone. Glossy soaper based on a play by Ferenc Molnár.▼

Bridge, The (1960-German) 100m.  D: Bernhard Wicki. Folker Bohnet, Fritz Wepper, Michael Hinz, Frank Glaubrecht.

Unrelenting account of teenage boys drafted into the German Army in 1945, as last-resort effort to stem Allied invasion. ▼

Bridge, The (1999-French) C-90m. ½ D: Gérard Depardieu, Frederic Auburtin. Gérard Depardieu, Carole Bouquet, Charles Berling, Stanislas Crevillen, Dominique Raymond. Normandy, 1962. A housewife/mother (Bouquet, never lovelier) finds release from her working-class existence in the arms of a handsome engineer (Berling). Adultery is not exactly new subject material for French cinema, but this is a subtle treatment of the dissolution of a marriage. Co-director Depardieu shows a sure hand with his actors and acquits himself well as the meek husband. Film's biggest flaw is its lack of resolution. Original title: UN PONT ENTRE DEUX RIVES. ▼

Bridge at Remagen, The (1969) C-115m. ½ D: John Guillermin. George Segal, Robert Vaughn, Ben Gazzara, Bradford Dillman, E.G. Marshall, Peter Van Eyck. Well-acted film about group of Allies defending bridge toward the end of WW2 can't quite overcome familiar plot line; lots of good explosions for those who care. Panavision. [M/PG] ▼

Bridge of San Luis Rey, The (1944) 89m.  D: Rowland V. Lee. Lynn Bari, Nazimova, Louis Calhern, Akim Tamiroff, Francis Lederer, Blanche Yurka, Donald Woods. Thornton Wilder's moody, unusual story of five people meeting doom on a rickety bridge makes a slow-moving film. Previously filmed in 1929 and remade in 2004. ▼

Bridge of San Luis Rey, The (2004-British-French-Spanish) C-120m.  D: Mary McGuckian. F. Murray Abraham, Kathy Bates, Gabriel Byrne, Geraldine Chaplin, Robert De Niro, Émilie Dequenne, Adriana Domínguez, Harvey Keitel, Samuel Le Bihan, Pilar López de Ayala, John Lynch, Dominique Pinon, Mark Polish, Michael Polish. Five people die when a rickety bridge collapses in 18th-century Peru; a priest investigates their lives to find out what brought them all together on that tragic day. Previously filmed in 1929 and 1944, this visually plush version of Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel exploring fate, reason, and religion is emotionally inert and overlong, with most of its illustrious cast giving surprisingly lifeless performances. [PG] ▼

Bridge on the River Kwai, The (1957-British) C-161m. * D: David Lean. William Holden, Alec Guinness, Jack Hawkins, Sessue Hayakawa, Geoffrey Horne, James Donald, Andre Morell, Ann Sears. British soldiers in Japanese prison camp build a bridge as a morale exercise—under single-minded leadership of British colonel Guinness—as Holden and Hawkins plot to destroy it. Psychological battle of wills combined with high-powered action sequences make this a blockbuster. Seven Oscars include Picture, Director, Actor (Guinness), Cinematography (Jack Hildyard), Editing (Peter Taylor), Scoring (Malcolm Arnold—who used the famous WW1 whistling tune "Colonel Bogey March"), and Screenplay (by Carl Foreman and Michael Wilson, based on Pierre Boulle's novel). The writers were blacklisted, so Boulle—who spoke no English—was credited with the script! Filmed in Ceylon. CinemaScope. ▼

Bridges at Toko-Ri, The (1954) C-103m. ½ D: Mark Robson. William Holden, Grace Kelly, Fredric March, Mickey Rooney, Robert Strauss, Earl Holliman. Powerful, thoughtful drama, based on the James Michener best-seller, focusing on the conflicts and exploits of lawyer Holden after he is recalled by the Navy to fly jets in Korea. While the flying sequences are exciting—the special effects earned an Oscar—the ultimate futility of the Korean War is in no way deemphasized. ▼

Bridges of Madison County, The (1995) C-135m.  D: Clint Eastwood. Clint Eastwood, Meryl Streep, Annie Corley, Victor Slezak, Jim Haynie. In the 1960s, an itinerant National Geographic photographer comes to Iowa to shoot covered bridges and chances to meet a woman who's vaguely dissatisfied with life as farm-bound wife and mother. Modern spin on BRIEF ENCOUNTER (based on Robert James Waller's hugely popular book) features a winning and vulnerable Eastwood and a wondrous Streep as an unlikely but convincing couple. A satisfying and romantic film, if a bit long and slow at times. That bass player in the blues band who gets a closeup is Eastwood's son, Kyle. [PG-13] ▼

Bridget Jones's Diary (2001-U.S.-British-French) C-94m.  D: Sharon Maguire. Renée Zellweger, Hugh Grant, Colin Firth, Gemma Jones, Jim Broadbent, Sally Phillips, Shirley Henderson, James Callis, Embeth Davidtz, Celia Imrie, Honor Blackman. Entertaining, often hilarious adaptation of Helen Fielding's book about a 32-year-old single woman and her misadventures with a pair of men—her scoundrel of a boss and a tight-lipped barrister who seems to be a snob. Zellweger, sporting a perfect British accent and extra pounds, is delightful as the self-deprecating title character. Followed by a sequel. Super 35. [R] ▼

Bridget Jones: The Edge of Reason (2004-U.S.-British-French-German-Irish) C-108m.  D: Beeban Kidron. Renée Zellweger, Hugh Grant, Colin Firth, Jim Broadbent, Gemma Jones, Jacinda Barrett, Sally Phillips, James Callis, Shirley Henderson, James Faulkner, Celia Imrie. Pointless sequel to the hit romantic comedy, centering on the title character's involvement with boyfriend Firth and ex-suitor Grant, and her endless mishaps. Appeal of the original has largely evaporated, with

likable, pleasingly chunky Bridget transformed into a charmless dunce. Only comes alive when Grant is on-screen, which isn't often enough. Coscripted by Helen Fielding, based on her published sequel to BRIDGET JONES'S DIARY. Panavision. [R] ▼

Bridge to Nowhere (1986-New Zealand) C-86m. *½ D: Ian Mune. Bruno Lawrence, Alison Routledge, Philip Gordon, Margaret Umbers, Stephen Judd, Shelley Luxford, Matthew Hunter. Kiwi variation on a familiar theme: backpacking kids raise the ire of hermit Lawrence, causing a war for survival. Well made but trite; features a solid role for Lawrence, the ubiquitous star of New Zealand films. ▼

Bridge to Terabithia (2007) C-94m. ½ D: Gabor Csupo. Josh Hutcherson, AnnaSophia Robb, Robert Patrick, Zooey Deschanel, Bailey Madison, Lauren Clinton. Faithful adaptation of Katherine Paterson's much-admired juvenile novel depicts a young loner (Hutcherson) who finds a soul mate in a free-spirited girl who moves in next door (Robb). Her generous nature has a profound effect on Jess; together they fashion a hideaway in the nearby woods and imagine it to be a magic kingdom. Then reality intrudes. Nice captures the heightened emotions of sensitive young people, and boasts fine performances, but by literally showing the world they envision, the film undermines the book's celebration of imagination. [PG] ▼

Bridge to the Sun (1961-U.S.-French) 113m.  D: Etienne Perier. Carroll Baker, James Shigeta, James Yagi. Well-intentioned telling of Southern girl Baker who marries Japanese diplomat Shigeta and moves to Japan at outbreak of WW2. Based on Gwen Terasaki's autobiography.

Brief Crossing (2003-French) C-80m.  D: Catherine Breillat. Sarah Pratt, Gilles Guillain. A thirtysomething Englishwoman and a 16-year-old French boy meet, converse, and engage in a one-night stand while on board a ferry crossing the English Channel. Another of Breillat's cynical forays into male-female expectation and manipulation, this one offering her usual generalizations about male sexuality. Leaves a bitter aftertaste. ▼

Brief Encounter (1945-British) 85m. ****

D: David Lean. Celia Johnson, Trevor Howard, Stanley Holloway, Cyril Raymond, Joyce Carey. Two ordinary strangers, both married, meet at a train station and find themselves drawn into a short but poignant romance. Intense and unforgettable, underscored by perfect use of Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto. Adapted by Noel Coward from his one-act play "Still Life" (from Tonight at Eight-thirty); screenplay by director Lean and Ronald Neame. A truly wonderful film. Remade as a TV movie in 1974 with Richard Burton and Sophia Loren. Later a stage musical. ▼

Brief History of Time, A (1992-U.S.-British) C-84m. ½ D: Errol Morris. Another outstanding documentary from Morris (GATES OF HEAVEN, THE THIN BLUE LINE), this one a portrait of cosmologist Stephen Hawking, who's afflicted with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis and communicates verbally with a voice synthesizer. In Hawking's best-selling book, for which the film is named, he explains the nature of the universe in layman's terms; even those who are bored or perplexed by science will enjoy this unique film. ▼

Brief Vacation, A (1973-Italian) C-106m.  D: Vittorio De Sica. Florida Bolkan, Renato Salvatori, Daniel Quenaud, Jose Maria Prada, Teresa Gimpera. Poorly educated woman leaves terrible job, despicable in-laws, and callous husband for a comparatively pleasant stay in a TB sanatorium. De Sica's sure-handed direction and Bolkan's knowing performance make this worth watching. [PG] ▼

Brigadoon (1954) C-108m.  D: Vincente Minnelli. Gene Kelly, Van Johnson, Cyd Charisse, Elaine Stewart, Barry Jones, Hugh Laing. Americans Kelly and Johnson discover magical Scottish village in this entertaining filmization of Lerner & Loewe Broadway hit. Overlooked among 1950s musicals, it may lack innovations but has its own quiet charm, and lovely score, including "The Heather on the Hill." CinemaScope. ▼

Brigham Young (1940) 114m.  D: Henry Hathaway. Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Dean Jagger, Brian Donlevy, John Carradine, Jane Darwell, Jean Rogers, Mary Astor, Vincent Price. Well-intentioned but ludicrous depiction of Mormon leader with Jagger nominally in the lead, focus shifting to tepid romance between Power and Darnell; Astor all wrong as homespun wife. ▼

Bright Angel (1991) C-94m. ½ D: Michael Fields. Dermot Mulroney, Lili Taylor, Sam Shepard, Burt Young, Valerie Perrine, Bill Pullman, Mary Kay Place, Kevin Tighe, Sheila McCarthy, Delroy Lindo, Benjamin Bratt. Teenaged Montana boy, shaken by events at home, agrees to take a runaway girl to Wyoming so she can bail her brother out of jail. Uneven, sometimes affecting slice of life, with a very stylized script by novelist Richard Ford and a cast full of familiar faces. Mulroney is first-rate in the lead. [R] ▼

Bright Eyes (1934) 83m. ½ D: David Butler. Shirley Temple, James Dunn, Judith Allen, Jane Withers, Lois Wilson, Charles Selton. Early Shirley, and pretty good, with juvenile villainy from Withers in tale of custody battle over recently orphaned Temple. Includes "On the Good Ship Lollipop." Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●

Bright Leaf (1950) 110m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Gary Cooper, Lauren Bacall, Patricia Neal, Jack Carson, Donald Crisp. Loose chronicle of 19th-century tobacco farmer (Cooper) building successful cigarette empire, seeking revenge on old enemies and finding romance. ●

Bright Leaves (2004-U.S.-British) C-107m.  D: Ross McElwee. Another filmic essay by McElwee, this one about investigating his family's roots in North Carolina. On the one hand, there is the intriguing discovery that his great-grandfather (supposedly portrayed, in fictional guise, by Gary Cooper in the 1950 movie BRIGHT LEAF) may have been an unsung hero of the tobacco industry. Then again, there is terrible guilt in pondering the damage that tobacco has wrought on the human race. Amusing, ironic, thoughtful, and highly personal. Patricia Neal, costar of BRIGHT LEAF, appears briefly. ●

Bright Lights, Big City (1988) C-110m. ½ D: James Bridges. Michael J. Fox, Kiefer Sutherland, Phoebe Cates, Swoosie Kurtz, Frances Sternhagen, Tracy Pollan, John Houseman, Charlie Schlatter, Jason Robards, Dianne Wiest, William Hickey, Kelly Lynch, David Hyde Pierce. Everyone gets an A for effort on this adaptation of Jay McInerney's popular novel. Fox gives a good performance as the young Midwesterner whose life has started coming apart at the seams in N.Y.C., where he gets caught up in an endless cycle of drugs and nightlife. But the more cerebral aspects of the book (and some of its purple prose) don't translate to film . . . and it takes a long time to develop any real sympathy for Fox and his plight. Sutherland is convincingly smarmy as his druggie pal. [R] ▼●●

Brighton Beach Memoirs (1986) C-110m. ½ D: Gene Saks. Blythe Danner, Bob Dishy, Jonathan Silverman, Brian Drillinger, Stacey Glick, Judith Ivey, Lisa Waltz, Jason Alexander, Steven Hill, Fyvush Finkel. Pleasant, if mostly undistinguished, adaptation of Neil Simon's celebrated autobiographical play about two families living under the same roof in 1937 Brooklyn. Oddly cast—Danner and Ivey play Jewish sisters—with attractive production design; Dishy underplays nicely as narrator Silverman's father. Followed by BLOXI BLUES and (on TV) BROADWAY BOUND. [PG-13] ▼●●

Bright Road (1953) 69m.  D: Gerald Mayer. Dorothy Dandridge, Harry Belafonte, Robert Horton, Philip Hepburn. Well-intentioned but labored tale of black teacher in small Southern town trying to solve her young pupils' problems. Belafonte's film debut.

Bright Victory (1951) 97m.  D: Mark Robson. Arthur Kennedy, Peggy Dow, Julia (Julie) Adams, James Edwards, Will Geer, Nana Bryant, Jim Backus, Murray Hamilton, Richard Egan. Touching account of blinded ex-soldier who slowly readjusts to civilian life, even finding love. Potentially sticky subject handled well, with Kennedy excellent in lead role. Rock Hudson can be glimpsed as a soldier.

Brilliant Lies (1996-Australian) C-93m.  D: Richard Franklin. Anthony LaPaglia, Gia Carides, Zoe Carides, Ray Barrett, Michael Veitch, Catherine Wilkin, Neil Melville, Grant Tilly. As testimony is given in a woman's sexual harassment suit, her boss is shown to be a chauvinist pig . . . but she's revealed as promiscuous gold digger whose own sister doubts her. The ultimate truth proves to be more complicated than it appears. Absorbing, well-acted adaptation of David Williamson's play about the subjective nature of truth, which unfolds in fragmented flashbacks as each party gives their side of the story. LaPaglia and Gia Carides are a couple in real life. ▼

Brimstone & Treacle (1982-British) C-85m. ½ D: Richard Loncraine. Sting, Denholm Elliott, Joan Plowright, Suzanna Hamilton. Strange, intriguing (but often unpleasant) film about a young man who worms his way into the lives of a vulnerable middle-class couple, whose daughter lies in a coma. Good performance by Sting. [R] ▼●

Latifah, Eugene Levy, Joan Plowright, Jean Smart, Kimberly J. Brown, Angus T. Jones, Missi Pyle, Michael Rosenbaum, Betty White, Steve Harris. Martin is wasted in this crude collection of racial and sexual comic stereotypes as an uptight WASP tax attorney whose Internet chat-room mate turns out to be a black convict (Latifah) who wants him to clear her name. Naturally she loosens him up while straightening out his kids and helping him land a big deal at work. Strictly a routine big-screen sitcom, unless you find the prospect of Martin talking jive and bustin' a groove in hip-hop garb to be the height of hilarity. Latifah coexecutive-produced. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Bringing Out the Dead (1999) C-121m.

 D: Martin Scorsese. Nicolas Cage, Patricia Arquette, John Goodman, Ving Rhames, Tom Sizemore, Marc Anthony, Mary Beth Hurt, Cliff Curtis, Aida Turturro. Life on the N.Y.C. streets from the point of view of a paramedic: a surreal, episodic film about a burnt-out case whose only hope for sanity and salvation is to save someone's life. Based on the book by former EMS driver Joe Connelly, told in harrowing and visually arresting fashion. Script by Paul Schrader; remarkable cinematography by Robert Richardson. Panavision. [R] ▼

Bringing Up Baby (1938) 102m. * D:

Howard Hawks. Cary Grant, Katharine Hepburn, Charlie Ruggles, May Robson, Barry Fitzgerald, Walter Catlett, Fritz Feld, Ward Bond. In her sole venture into slapstick, Hepburn plays a madcap heiress—"Baby" is her pet leopard—who sets her sights on absentminded zoologist Grant and inadvertently (?) proceeds to make a shambles of his life. Not a hit when first released, this is now considered the definitive screwball comedy and one of the fastest, funniest films ever made; grand performances by all. Screenplay by Dudley Nichols and Hagar Wilde, from Wilde's original story. More or less remade as WHAT'S UP, DOC? Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Bring It On (2000) C-99m.  D: Peyton

Reed. Kirsten Dunst, Eliza Dushku, Jesse Bradford, Gabrielle Union, Clare Kramer, Nicole Bilderback, Rini Bell, Lindsay Sloane, Richard Hillman, Ian Roberts, Holmes Randolph. High-spirited, high-energy movie about a championship high school cheerleading squad and its new captain (Dunst), who learns that their routines were stolen from a black, inner-city school. Sharp writing (by Jessica Bendinger), driving direction, and likable performances make this a winner. Followed by four DVD sequels. [PG-13] ▼

Bring Me the Head of Alfredo Garcia

a smorgasbord of psychos; sub-par blood-bath doesn't even have the usual Peckinpah fast pace. [R] ▼

Bring On the Night (1985-British) C-97m.

 D: Michael Apted. Sting, Omar Hakim, Darryl Jones, Kenny Kirkland, Branford Marsalis, Dolette McDonald, Janice Penardavis, Trudie Styler, Miles Copeland. First-rate musical documentary about the formation of Sting's rock-jazz band, culminating in their first concert performance (performing the serious, often politically oriented material on the Dream of the Blue Turtles album). More than just a concert movie, thanks in large part to director Apted. Handsomely photographed by Ralf Bode. [PG-13] ▼

Brink of Life (1958-Swedish) 84m. ½

D: Ingmar Bergman. Eva Dahlbeck, Ingrid Thulin, Bibi Andersson, Barbro Hiort af Ornas, Erland Josephson, Max von Sydow, Gunnar Sjöberg. Realistic, almost documentary-like chronicle of the lives of three women in a maternity ward. Meticulously filmed, but also gloomy and static; one of Bergman's lesser efforts. ▼

Brink's Job, The (1978) C-103m.  D:

William Friedkin. Peter Falk, Peter Boyle, Allen Goorwitz (Garfield), Warren Oates, Genia Rowlands, Paul Sorvino, Sheldon Leonard. Entertaining, comically oriented account of the infamous 1950 Boston heist, masterminded by Falk and motley gang of accomplices. Excellent period and location flavor. [PG] ▼

Britannia Hospital (1982-British) C-115m.

½ D: Lindsay Anderson. Leonard Rossiter, Graham Crowden, Malcolm McDowell, Joan Plowright, Jill Bennett, Marsha Hunt, Frank Grimes, Roland Culver, Fulton Mackay, Vivian Pickles, Mark Hamill, Liz Smith, Alan Bates, Arthur Lowe. Absurdist comedy about a hospital beleaguered by labor woes, protest groups, impatient patients, a resident mad doctor, and an impending visit by the Queen Mother. Heavy-handed satire, but entertaining nonetheless, with some actors in continuing roles from Anderson's IF . . . and O LUCKY MAN! Written by David Sherwin. [R] ▼

Broadcast News (1987) C-131m.  D:

James L. Brooks. William Hurt, Albert Brooks, Holly Hunter, Robert Prosky, Lois Chiles, Joan Cusack, Peter Hackes, Jack Nicholson. Appealing and intelligent comedy about a highly charged, neurotic woman who's a successful TV news producer, and her attraction to a pretty-boy anchorman who joins her network—and represents everything she hates about TV news. All three stars are fine, but Brooks is a special standout as an ace reporter, and Hunter's best friend, who's really in love with her. Nicholson contributes a funny unbilled performance as the network's star anchorman. Written by the director; set and filmed in Washington, D.C. [R]▼●●

Broadway Bill (1934) 102m.  D: Frank Capra. Warner Baxter, Myrna Loy, Walter Connolly, Helen Vinson, Lynne Overman, Raymond Walburn, Clarence Muse, Douglass Dumbrille, Charles Lane, Ward Bond, Margaret Hamilton, Clara Blandick, Frankie Darro, Jason Robards (Sr.), and Broadway Bill. Baxter, who's "sold out" and married money, risks his marriage and his future on a racehorse; Loy, his wife's sister, seems to be the only one who believes in him. The unremitting good cheer of this Capra concoction overcomes its flaws. Script by Robert Riskin, from the Mark Hellinger story "On the Nose." Remade (by Capra) in 1950 as RIDING HIGH—using some of the same actors, and even some of the same footage. Look fast for a young, blonde Lucille Ball as a telephone operator.▼●●

Broadway Danny Rose (1984) 86m.  D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, Mia Farrow, Nick Apollo Forte, Sandy Baron, Corbett Monica, Morty Gunty, Will Jordan, Milton Berle, Joe Franklin. Allen is wonderful as pathetic small-time manager who tries to boost career of over-the-hill singer Forte. Terrific casting, funny show-biz jokes but eventually wears a bit thin; a slight but amusing film. [PG]▼●●

Broadway Melody of 1936 (1935) 101m.  D: Roy Del Ruth. Jack Benny, Eleanor Powell, Robert Taylor, Una Merkel, Sid Silvers, Buddy Ebsen. Pleasant musical-comedy with Winchell-like columnist Benny trying to frame producer Taylor via dancer Powell, whose solo spots are pure delight. Arthur Freed-Nacio Herb Brown songs: "You Are My Lucky Star," "Broadway Rhythm," "I've Got a Feelin' You're Foolin'" (which earned an Oscar for Dave Gould's dance direction).▼●●

Broadway Melody of 1938 (1937) 110m.

Broadway Melody of 1940 (1940) 102m.  D: Norman Taurog. Fred Astaire, Eleanor Powell, George Murphy, Frank Morgan, Ian Hunter, Florence Rice, Lynne Carver, Ann Morriss. Friendship and rivalry between dance partners Astaire and Murphy spark delightful, underrated MGM musical, with hilarious vignettes, fine performance from Astaire, outstanding Cole Porter songs, and matchless Astaire-Powell numbers like "Begin the Beguine" (danced twice in the finale). If only they'd tie up the plot a bit sooner. Douglas McPhail (unbilled) introduces the Porter standard "I Concentrate On You."▼●●

Broadway Musketees (1938) 62m. ½ D: John Farrow. Margaret Lindsay, Ann Sheridan, Marie Wilson, John Litel, Janet Chapman, Richard Bond. Three women who grew up together in an orphanage meet up again as adults, having taken very different paths in life. Snappy remake of the melodramatic THREE ON A MATCH, with some interesting plot variations and a couple of songs from Sheridan.

Broadway: The Golden Age (2004) C-109m. ½ D: Rick McKay. Combining interviews with more than one hundred veterans of Broadway during its heyday (roughly the 1930s through the 1960s), archival footage of N.Y.C., and rarely seen performance excerpts, this simple, straightforward film succeeds in capturing both an era and a way of life for a generation of performers and theatergoers. Highlights include a tribute to the revered Laurette Taylor and a television performance of John Raitt singing the "Soliloquy" from Carousel. A rich, deeply moving experience for anyone who loves Broadway theater or wants to introduce its wonders to a new generation.▶

and unexpectedly fall in love. Despite each subsequently marrying and raising a family, they continue their relationship through the years, always aware of the external limits placed on their true feelings. Bold subject matter (for mainstream audiences) is given sensitive if traditional treatment by director Lee; slow, stately, and often moving, but also a bit distant. Ledger is excellent in a complex, brooding role, and the whole cast matches him. Oscar winner for Director, Adapted Screenplay (by Larry McMurtry and Diana Ossana, from Annie Proulx's short story), and Original Score (Gustavo Santaolalla). [R] (D)

Brokedown Palace (1999) C-100m.  D: Jonathan Kaplan. Claire Danes, Kate Beckinsale, Bill Pullman, Jacqueline Kim, Lou Diamond Phillips, Daniel Lapaine, Tom Amandes, Aimee Graham, John Doe. By-the-numbers cautionary melodrama in which naive best pals Danes and Beckinsale, on a trip to Thailand to celebrate their high school graduation, are set up by a drug smuggler and tossed into prison. Done in by its sheer predictability—and lack of chemistry between the stars. Super 35. [PG-13] (D)

Broken Arrow (1950) C-93m.  D: Delmer Daves. James Stewart, Jeff Chandler, Debra Paget, Will Geer, Jay Silverheels. Authentic study of 1870s Apache Chief Cochise (Chandler) and ex-Army man (Stewart) trying to seek accord between feuding Indians and settlers. Flavorful and effective; good action sequences. Screenplay, credited to Michael Blankfort, was actually written by Albert Maltz, then a blacklisted. Chandler played Cochise again in THE BATTLE AT APACHE PASS. Later a TV series. (D)

Broken Arrow (1996) C-108m.  D: John Woo. John Travolta, Christian Slater, Samantha Mathis, Delroy Lindo, Bob Gunton, Frank Whaley, Howie Long, Vondie Curtis Hall, Jack Thompson, Kurtwood Smith, Daniel von Bargen. Extraordinarily stupid action movie about a high-security, high-tech Air Force pilot who deliberately crashes a U.S. plane in the midst of Utah and plans to hold its nuclear weapons for ransom. He doesn't reckon with his younger copilot (Slater) or the U.S. park ranger (Mathis) who join in a determined pursuit to thwart him. Packed with director Woo's expected action set pieces and stunts, but Travolta's over-the-top bad guy is fairly monotonous, and story continuity/credibility is almost nonexistent. Did it have to be this dumb? Super 35. [R] (D)

Broken Blossoms (1919) 95m.  D: D. W. Griffith. Lillian Gish, Richard Barthelmess, Donald Crisp, Arthur Howard, Edward Piel. Dated but lovely film of Chinaman Barthelmess protecting frail Gish from clutches of brutal father Crisp; still creates a mood sustained by sensitive performances. One of Griffith's more modest, and more successful, films. Remade in England in 1936. (D)

Broken Bridges (2006) C-105m. *½ D: Steven Goldmann. Toby Keith, Kelly Preston, Lindsey Haun, Tess Harper, Anna Maria Horsford, Katie Finneran, Josh Henderson, Willie Nelson, BeBe Winans, Burt Reynolds. The deaths in a training accident of five GIs from the same small Tennessee town set in motion a series of events involving two of the town's natives: Miami TV reporter Preston, who is long estranged from her family, and troubled, fading country-western singer Keith, the father of her adolescent daughter. Languid tale of regret and reconciliation offers a rose-colored view of small-town America. Country singer Keith's film debut; produced by Country Music Television. [PG-13] (D)

Broken English (1996-New Zealand) C-92m.  D: Gregor Nicholas. Aleksandra Vujcic, Julian Arahanga, Rade Serbedzija, Marton Csokas, Madeline McNamara. A Croatian tyrant living in New Zealand goes ballistic when his daughter becomes romantically involved with a hunkish Maori cook. Consistently absorbing drama—and an interesting thematic companion piece to ONCE WERE WARRIORS—gets its surprising NC-17 rating from an exuberant bed-breaking scene of young lovers in love. Seconds were shaved for R version available on video. [NC-17] (D)

Broken English (2007-U.S.-French) C-97m. ½ D: Zoe Cassavetes. Parker Posey, Melvil Poupaud, Drea de Matteo, Justin Theroux, Gena Rowlands, Peter Bogdanovich, Tim Guinee, James McCaffrey, Josh Hamilton, Phyllis Somerville, Dana Ivey, Bernadette Lafont, Roy Thinnis. N.Y.C. career woman Posey makes consistently bad choices in men, so when a genuinely nice, freewheeling Frenchman (Poupaud) is attracted to her she doesn't know how to respond. Uneven romantic comedy is salvaged by Posey's empathetic performance, in a rounded portrait of a woman who keeps screwing up her life because she has no self-esteem. Feature writing-directing debut for Cassavetes, whose mother (Rowlands) plays Posey's mom. [PG-13] (D)

Broken Flowers (2005) C-106m.  D: Jim Jarmusch. Bill Murray, Jeffrey Wright, Sharon Stone, Jessica Lange, Tilda Swinton, Frances Conroy, Christopher McDonald, Julie Delpy, Chloë Sevigny, Heather Alicia Simms, Alexis Dziena, Mark Webber, Larry Fessenden. Deadpan Don Juan (Murray) receives an unsigned letter from a former lover telling him he has a 19-year-old son. His neighbor (Wright), an amateur sleuth, convinces him that he should look up all his old girlfriends to learn who sent the note, and, reluctantly, he does. Writer-director Jarmusch, the ultimate movie minimalist, is as inscrutable as ever, even with an A-list cast. Intriguing but not really satisfying. That's Murray's real-life son Homer near the end of the film. [R]▼

Broken Hearts Club—A Romantic Comedy, The (2000) C-94m. ½ D: Greg Berlanti. Zach Braff, Dean Cain, Andrew Keegan, Nia Long, John Mahoney, Mary McCormack, Matt McGrath, Timothy Olyphant, Billy Porter, Justin Theroux, Jennifer Coolidge, Chris Weitz. Comedy-drama about gay friends in West Hollywood who harass each other as much as they support one another . . . and seemingly spend every waking moment talking about their troubled relationships. Veers from empathic and well observed to self-consciously clever and tiresome. Super 35. [R]▼

Broken Lance (1954) C-96m. ½ D: Edward Dmytryk. Spencer Tracy, Robert Wagner, Jean Peters, Richard Widmark, Katy Jurado, Hugh O'Brian, Eduard Franz, Earl Holliman, E. G. Marshall. Tracy is superlative in tight-knit script (by Richard Murphy, from an Oscar-winning Philip Yordan story) about patriarchal rancher who finds he's losing control of his cattle empire and his family is fragmenting into warring factions. Remake of HOUSE OF STRANGERS (although it owes more to King Lear!). CinemaScope.▼

Broken Lullaby (1932) 77m.  D: Ernst Lubitsch. Lionel Barrymore, Nancy Carroll, Phillips Holmes, ZaSu Pitts, Lucien Littlefield, Emma Dunn. Excellent drama of French soldier who feels guilty for killing German during war, then falls in love with dead man's sweetheart. Retitled: THE MAN I KILLED.

Broken Rainbow (1985) C/B&W-70m.  D: Maria Florio, Victoria Mudd. Narrator: Martin Sheen. Historical voices: Burgess Meredith. Translator: Buffy Sainte-Marie. Touching, biting, appropriately one-sided, yet sometimes unnecessarily romanticized documentary about the relocation—and resistance—of Navajo Indians in Arizona. A Best Documentary Academy Award winner.▼

Broken Sky (1982-Swedish) C-96m. ½ D: Ingrid Thulin. Susanna Kall, Thommy Berggren, Agneta Eckemyr, Margaretha Krook. Ambitious but uneven account of 13-year-old Kall, in the process of breaking free from her childhood, and her relationships with various family members. Thulin also wrote the script.

Bronco Billy (1980) C-119m.  D: Clint Eastwood. Clint Eastwood, Sondra Locke, Geoffrey Lewis, Scatman Crothers, Bill McKinney, Sam Bottoms, Dan Vadis, Sierra Pecheur, Juliette Lewis. Enjoyable yarn about self-styled cowboy hero who runs a fly-by-night Wild West show and the spoiled heiress who joins his entourage of escapees from reality. Locke's rich-bitch character is a bit hard to take, but neither she nor some superfluous subplots can sour the charm of this film. Look fast for Hank Worden! [PG]▼

Bronco Buster (1952) C-81m. ½ D: Budd Boetticher. John Lund, Scott Brady, Joyce Holden, Chill Wills, Casey Tibbs. Minor story of rodeo star Lund helping Brady learn the ropes, forced to fight him for Holden's love. Good rodeo action.

Brontë (1983-Irish-U.S.) C-88m.  D: Delbert Mann. Julie Harris. Engrossing performance by Harris portraying Charlotte Brontë in one-woman show recounting her life and family troubles via intimate, first-person monologues. Unusual, literate film benefits from all-location filming in Ireland. Script by William Luce from his radio play based on Brontë's own writings.

Brontë Sisters, The (1979-French) C-115m. ½ D: André Téchiné. Isabelle Adjani, Marie-France Pisier, Isabelle Huppert, Pascal Gregory, Patrick Magee. Well-mounted but slightly sluggish portrait of the famous literary sisters and their repressed lives. Worth a look mainly to see three of France's most appealing actresses in one film. Also shot in English-language version, which doesn't play as well.

Bronx Tale, A (1993) C-122m. ½ D: Robert De Niro. Robert De Niro, Chazz Palminteri, Lillo Brancato, Francis Capra, Taral Hicks, Kathrine Narducci, Clem Caserta, Alfred Sauchelli, Jr., Frank Pietrangolare, Joe Pesci. Longish but well-observed slice of life, as a boy grows up with two heroes of conflicting nature and beliefs—his loving, hard-working father, and the neighborhood capo, who takes him as a personal protégé. Written by Palminteri, and based on his play; an impressive directorial debut for De Niro, who brings a keen eye and equally strong sensibility to this potent (but ultimately upbeat) material. Incidentally, to re-create the Bronx of the 1960s, De Niro had to shoot this in Brooklyn and Queens! [R]▼

Bronx War, The (1990) C-91m.  D: Joseph B. Vasquez. Joseph, Fabio Urena, Charmaine Cruz, Andre Brown, Marlene Forte, Frances Colon, Miguel Sierra, Kim West. Ambitious, gritty but annoyingly uneven actioner chronicling the plight of Tito Sunshine (Joseph), a product of the mean streets of The Bronx, whose good intentions are obscured by the fact that he's a crack dealer. Dramatically overwrought, unrelentingly violent and profane, but not without its moments. Available on video in R and unrated versions.▼

her own afterbirth while midget clones beat grandparents and lovely young schoolteachers to death with mallets. It's a big, wide, wonderful world we live in! [R]▼●●

Brooklyn Rules (2007) C-99m.  D: Michael Corrente. Freddie Prinze, Jr., Alec Baldwin, Scott Caan, Jerry Ferrara, Mena Suvari, Robert Turano, Phyllis Kay, Monica Keena. Coming-of-age story set in Brooklyn of 1985 about three friends and their relationship with the local Mafia figures who dominate their neighborhood. When tragedy strikes, their lives are irreversibly changed. Screenplay by Terence Winter, a key creative force of The Sopranos, but the movie is Sopranos-lite at best. Baldwin could play the local mob boss in his sleep; only Ferrara (of Entourage) stands out in the young cast. Panavision. [R]●

Brother (2000-U.S.-Japanese-French-British) C-107m.  D: Takeshi Kitano. Beat Takeshi (Kitano), Omar Epps, Kuroudo Maki, Masaya Kato, Ren Osugi, Susumu Terajima, Ryo Ishibashi, James Shigeta. Stoic Japanese gangster Takeshi becomes the Fastest Gun in the West as he arrives in L.A. and becomes immersed in gang rivalries while bonding with a young African American (Epps). Ultraviolent, to be sure, but this is no mindless actioner; rather, it is a meditation on the meaning of loyalty, and deftly contrasts the tough, anarchic urban-American subculture and the rituals of Japanese Yakuza. Signature bits of Kitano's wry humor are added to the mix; he also scripted and edited. [R]▼●

Brother Bear (2003) C-81m.  D: Aaron Blaise, Bob Walker. Voices of Joaquin Phoenix, Jeremy Suarez, Jason Raize, Rick Moranis, Dave Thomas, D.B. Sweeney, Michael Clarke Duncan, Harold Gould, Estelle Harris. The life of a Native American boy takes an unexpected turn when the Great Spirits transform him into the creature he hates the most: a bear. As he sets out to regain his human form, he sees things from a different perspective (even befriending a bear cub) while trying to evade his brother, who's pursuing him on a mission of revenge. Absorbing, beautifully executed animated feature infuses a highly unusual tale with ingredients of traditional Disney storytelling. It's fun to have Moranis and Thomas do a variation on their McKenzie Brothers characters—as moose! Digital Widescreen. [G]▼●

Brother Can You Spare a Dime (1975) 103m. ½ D: Philippe Mora. Documentary on 1930s has fuzzy point of view, and no narration to tie the footage together; it also mixes newsreels and Hollywood clips. If you know and like the period, the footage will speak for itself and provide a certain measure of entertainment. [PG]▼●

genious contemporary fantasy, filmed on a shoestring, about a black visitor from another planet who (like Chance in BEING THERE) impresses most of the people he meets because he doesn't say a word—and lets them do all the talking! Falls apart toward the end with a subplot about drug dealers, but still worthwhile. Fine dialogue by writer-director Sayles, who, as usual, gives himself a funny role (as one of the Brother's outer-space pursuers). ▼●

Brotherhood, The (1968) C-98m.  D: Martin Ritt. Kirk Douglas, Alex Cord, Irene Papas, Luther Adler, Susan Strasberg, Murray Hamilton. Excellent story of Mafia in changing times; tradition-bound Douglas clashes with younger brother Cord who feels no ties to old-fashioned dictates. Pre-GODFATHER, but in the same league. [M]▼●●

Brotherhood of the Wolf (2001-French) C-142m.  D: Christophe Gans. Samuel Le Bihan, Mark Dacascos, Vincent Cassel, Monica Bellucci, Émilie Dequenne, Jérémie Renier. Based on a famous legend, this very strange film chronicles the attempt to track down a mysterious wolflike creature that is terrorizing the French countryside in 1765. A scientist and his Iroquois "blood brother" take on the job for King Louis XV, but they meet resistance at every turn. Bizarre, unsatisfying mélange of costume piece, occult drama, sexual fantasy, and horror film! Super 35. [R]▼●

Brother John (1972) C-94m.  D: James Goldstone. Sidney Poitier, Will Geer, Bradford Dillman, Beverly Todd, Ramon Bieri, Warren J. Kemmerling, Lincoln Kilpatrick, Paul Winfield. Highly entertaining tale of the Messiah's return—only no one knows that he's come, and that he's black. [PG]▼●

Brotherly Love (1970-British) C-112m.  D: J. Lee Thompson. Peter O'Toole, Susannah York, Michael Craig, Harry Andrews, Cyril Cusack, Judy Cornwell, Brian Blessed. Very funny study of relationships in upper-class British household. O'Toole and York are delightful. Original British title: COUNTRY DANCE. [R]

Brother Orchid (1940) 91m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. Edward G. Robinson, Ann Sothern, Humphrey Bogart, Ralph Bellamy, Donald Crisp, Allen Jenkins. Farfetched but entertaining yarn of racketeer Robinson who seeks "the real class" in life. Doubled-crossed by his old mob, he winds up in a monastery, of all places. Sothern delightful as his ever-faithful girlfriend. ▼●●

Brother Rat (1938) 90m.  D: William Keighley. Priscilla Lane, Wayne Morris, Johnnie Davis, Jane Bryan, Eddie Albert, Ronald Reagan, Jane Wyman, William Tracy. Comedy of three pals at Virginia Military Institute isn't as fresh as it was in the 1930s, but still remains entertaining, with enthusiastic performances by all. Albert stands out in his screen debut, in a role he played on the stage. Sequel: BROTHER RAT AND A BABY. Remade as ABOUT FACE.

Brothers (1977) C-104m. ½ D: Arthur Barron. Bernie Casey, Vonetta McGee, Ron O'Neal, Renny Roker, Stu Gilliam, John Lehne. Well-intentioned story based on relationship between militant professor Angela Davis and literate black convict George Jackson during 1960s. Sloppy filmmaking and awkward scripting diminish impact of film's better moments. [R]

Brothers, The (2001) C-106m.  D: Gary Hardwick. Morris Chestnut, Shemar Moore, D.L. Hughley, Bill Bellamy, Gabrielle Union, Susan Dalian, Tamala Jones, Marla Gibbs, Jenifer Lewis, Clifton Powell, Tatyana Ali, Vanessa Bell Calloway. Four childhood friends are now successful doctors, lawyers, etc., all nearing 30, with three of the four still single. Film examines the tumultuous personal lives of these guys, who under the three-piece suits are just hoop-shooting overgrown kids. Overly melodramatic, though comedians Bellamy and Hughley spout some awfully funny, racy lines. Hardwick scripted and appears as T-Boy. [R] ▼

Brothers (2004-Danish) C-110m. ½ D: Susanne Bier. Connie Nielsen, Ulrich Thomsen, Nikolaj Lie Kaas, Bent Mejding, Solbørg Højfeldt, Paw Henriksen. A man leaves his wife and two daughters to fight in Afghanistan, just as his chronic screwup brother is released from prison. The family does its best, feeling the pain of the "good" brother's absence and the tension of the "bad" brother's presence. Subsequent events reveal the true nature of the leading characters. Searing, intense, adult drama; Nielsen (in her Danish feature debut) heads a superb cast. Intimately photographed by Morten Søborg on digital video. Screenplay by Anders Thomas Jensen from a story he co-wrote with director Bier. [R] ●

Brothers Bloom, The (2009) C-109m. ½ D: Rian Johnson. Rachel Weisz, Mark Ruffalo, Adrien Brody, Rinko Kikuchi, Robbie Coltrane, Maximilian Schell; narrated by Ricky Jay. Picaresque fable of two orphaned brothers who find their way in the world as con artists, following scenarios devised by the inventive younger sibling. But during what is planned as their final caper, the older brother (Brody) falls in love with their mark (Weisz), a beautiful recluse who treats the experience as a glorious adventure. Self-consciously clever, to be sure, but it's fun for a while until the air deflates from the balloon at a certain point. The Eastern European settings are colorful, and

Brothers Grimm, The (2005-U.S.-Czech) C-118m.  D: Terry Gilliam. Matt Damon, Heath Ledger, Peter Stormare, Lena Headey, Jonathan Pryce, Monica Bellucci, Petr Rati-mec, Barbara Lukšová, Anna Rust, Jeremy Robson. Fictionalized (and bloated) account of the brothers Wilhelm and Jacob Grimm, here called Will and Jake, depicted as con men who travel from village to village in Napoleonic-era Germany and exploit the superstitions of the townspeople. Eventually they are recruited to determine why the children of one hamlet are mysteriously disappearing. Extravagant sets, costumes, and imagery are pure Gilliam, but the film is hollow and disappointing. This had a long and troubled production history, and it shows. Grimm indeed. [PG-13] ●

Brothers Karamazov, The (1958) C-146m.  D: Richard Brooks. Yul Brynner, Maria Schell, Claire Bloom, Lee J. Cobb, Richard Basehart, William Shatner, Albert Salmi. Set in 19th-century Russia, film version of Dostoyevsky's tragedy revolving about death of a dominating father (Cobb) and effect on his sons: fun-seeking Brynner, scholarly Basehart, religious Shatner, and epileptic Salmi. Exceptionally well scripted by Brooks. William Shatner's first film. ▼

Brother's Keeper (1992) C-104m. ½ D: Joe Berlinger, Bruce Sinofsky. Exceptional documentary/slice-of-life which offers a portrait of backwoods America rarely seen in mainstream movies. It's the story of Delbert Ward, a reserved, uneducated upstate New York farmer who was thrown into jail after being accused of murdering his sickly brother. When he goes on trial, his neighbors, who barely know him, rally to his defense. An intriguing treatise on human nature and a telling look at how the media plays a role in a controversial case like this. ▼●●

Brother's Kiss, A (1997) C-92m.  D: Seth Zvi Rosenfeld. Nick Chinlund, Michael Raynor, Talent Harris, John Leguizamo, Cathy Moriarty, Adrian Pasdar, Rosie Perez, Justin Pierce, Marisa Tomei, Michael Rapaport, Joshua Danowsky. Raw, riveting drama depicting the complex relationship between brothers, Lex (Chinlund) and Mick (Raynor), who came of age on the mean streets of N.Y.'s East Harlem. Mick, the younger, has become a cop, while Lex, who's never been able to catch a break, is a drug addict. Flashbacks to the brothers' childhood are especially effective—and heartbreaking. Based on Rosenfeld's stage play. [R] ▼●●

bert, Maxine Bahns, Connie Britton, Jennifer Jostyn, Elizabeth P. McKay, Catherine Bolz. Three brothers are temporarily living together under one roof; the married one is tempted to stray, the one who's involved with a woman has Catholic guilt about sinning, and the third wears his cynicism about relationships on his sleeve—even after he falls in love. Made on a minuscule budget, this modest film grows more compelling as it goes along, with two assets missing from slicker Hollywood movies: The actors are appealing and their conversations are totally believable. First-time director Burns also wrote the script and costars. [R]▼●●

Brothers of the Head (2006-British) C-93m.  D: Keith Fulton, Louis Pepe. Harry Treadaway, Luke Treadaway, Bryan Dick, Sean Harris, Tania Emery, Diana Kent, Tom Bower, David Kennedy, Elizabeth Rider, Jane Horrocks, Jonathan Pryce, John Simm, Ken Russell, Ray Davies. Various talking heads look back on the lives and careers of conjoined twins who, in the mid-1970s, shined brightly but briefly as proto-punk rockers in this faux documentary. Flashy, potentially intriguing portrait of excess is longwinded and predictable; there's about a half hour's worth of material here. Based on a novel by Brian Aldiss. [R]●

Brothers O'Toole, The (1973) C-90m.  D: Richard Erdman. John Astin, Steve Carlson, Pat Carroll, Hans Conried, Lee Meriwether, Allyn Joslyn, Jesse White. Strictly for the kids in this comedy Western. Actor turned director Erdman has a bit. [G]▼●

Brothers Rico, The (1957) 92m. ½ D: Phil Karlson. Richard Conte, Dianne Foster, Kathryn Grant (Crosby), Larry Gates, James Darren. Incisive gangster yarn; Conte comes to N.Y.C. to counteract nationwide criminal gang's plot to eliminate his two brothers. Based on Georges Simenon novel; remade for TV as THE FAMILY RICO in 1972.●

Brothers Solomon, The (2007) C-93m. BOMB D: Bob Odenkirk. Will Arnett, Will Forte, Chi McBride, Kristen Wiig, Malin Akerman, Lee Majors, Michael Ormsby, Bill Hader, Jenna Fischer, Bob Odenkirk. Distant cousin of DUMB AND DUMBER in which Arnett and Forte play brothers who hatch a scheme to revive their comatose father by delivering him the grandchild he always wanted. Setting out to find a girl to do the deed, the two dopey siblings each try to impregnate her... with predictable complications. Forte wrote this comatose script, which he and Arnett try to bring to life. [R]●

Brother Sun, Sister Moon (1973-Italian-British) C-121m. ½ D: Franco Zeffirelli. Graham Faulkner, Judi Bowker, Leigh Lawson, Alec Guinness, Valentina Cortese, Kenneth Cranham. Zeffirelli's wide-eyed youth-oriented slant on Francis of Assisi story runs hot and cold; some delicate, lovely scenes, but other ideas don't always come across. Songs by Donovan. [PG]▼●

Brown Bunny, The (2004) C-92m. *½ D: Vincent Gallo. Vincent Gallo, Chloë Sevigny, Cheryl Tiegs, Elizabeth Blake, Anna Vareschi. Auteur antics from producer/writer/director/cinematographer/production designer/editor/actor Gallo about a ponderous New Hampshire-to-California road odyssey taken by a motorcycle racer whose secret (divulged in the movie's final quarter) motivates his every move. Cut by almost a half hour from the version that played the 2003 Cannes Film Festival to wide derision and disbelief. A workable idea sunk by too many moments where the camera does little but grind... and a predilection toward the grotesquely weird (Tiegs' scene is mind-bending nonsense). Without the notorious finale, an on-the-level fellatio scene between Sevigny and Gallo, it's tough to imagine that the film would have ever been shown.●

Browning Version, The (1951-British) 90m. ½ D: Anthony Asquith. Michael Redgrave, Jean Kent, Nigel Patrick, Brian Smith, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Ronald Howard, Bill Travers. Redgrave is superb as middle-aged boarding school teacher who realizes he's a failure, with an unfaithful wife and a new teaching position he doesn't want. Cast does full justice to the play by Terence Rattigan; he also scripted. Remade in 1994.▼●

Browning Version, The (1994-U.S.-British) C-97m. ½ D: Mike Figgis. Albert Finney, Greta Scacchi, Matthew Modine, Julian Sands, Michael Gambon, Ben Silverstone, Maryam D'Abo, David Lever. Well-mounted, though stodgy, remake of Terence Rattigan's play of retiring schoolmaster whose dedication is unappreciated and whose marriage is unraveling. Finney is good as man out of step with the times, Scacchi is fine (if oddly cast). Touching and tragic, but it's hard to beat Michael Redgrave's performance in 1951 version. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Michael Rooker, Tobin Bell, Selma Blair, Jack Conley, Kevin Corrigan, Brad Dourif, Harold Gould, Brion James, Barry Newman, William Newman, Valerie Perrine, William Sasso, Jack Wallace. Slug-gish crime yarn, based on a James Ellroy novel, with alcoholic cop-turned-repo-man/P.I. Rooker hired by a corpulent caddie to watch over his sultry kid sister (Blair). Where are Bogie and Bacall when you really need them? 2.35 Research PLC. [R]▼●

Brown Sugar (2002) C-98m. ½ D: Rick Famuyiwa. Taye Diggs, Sanaa Lathan, Mos Def, Nicole Ari Parker, Queen Latifah, Boris Kodjoe. Pleasant romantic comedy about two lifelong friends who love hip-hop music but can't admit they love each other. He's a record exec who marries the wrong woman; she's an eloquent and impassioned music journalist. A likable cast brightens this film, which goes on a bit longer than it has to, given the obvious conclusion of the story. Many recording artists appear as themselves. [PG-13]▼

Emmet Walsh, Richard Ward, Albert Salmi, John McMartin, Wilford Brimley, Joe Spinell, Lee Richardson, Harry Groener, John Glover. Earnest but predictable prison drama based on true story of reform-minded warden who dares to uncover skeletons in corrupt Southern prison system. [R]▼●●

Bruce Almighty (2003) C-101m.  D: Tom Shadyac. Jim Carrey, Morgan Freeman, Jennifer Aniston, Philip Baker Hall, Catherine Bell, Lisa Ann Walter, Steven (Steve) Carell, Nora Dunn, Sally Kirkland, Eddie Jemison, Tony Bennett. TV reporter who feels he keeps getting the short end of the stick winds up cursing God. As a result, he's summoned by the Almighty and given His powers, to do with as he pleases... but before long, the gift seems more like a curse. Entertaining fantasy-comedy stays rooted enough in reality to pull you in. Carrey is at his best, and Freeman is perfect as a down-to-earth Deity. Followed by EVAN ALMIGHTY. [PG-13]▼

Linz, Shirley MacLaine, Gary Sinise, Joey Lauren Adams, Kathy Bates, Miami Davael, Stacey Halprin, Gwen Verdon, Jennifer Tilly, Brett Butler, Lainie Kazan. MacLaine made her feature directorial debut with this fable about a precocious 8-year-old Catholic schoolboy (and spelling-bee whiz) who likes to wear dresses. Quirky comedy-drama has poignant moments, and a gallery of stereotyped characters who are somewhat strident, but funny. Made for theaters, debuted on cable TV. Aka THE DRESS CODE. [PG-13]▼

Burt Lancaster, Hume Cronyn, Charles Bickford, Yvonne De Carlo, Ann Blyth, Ella Raines, Howard Duff, Whit Bissell, Jeff Corey, Sam Levene, Roman Bohnen, John Hoyt, Anita Colby. Tingly, hard-bitten prison film with its few clichés punched across solidly. Brutal captain Cronyn is utterly despicable, but you know he's going to get it in the end. Scripted by Richard Brooks, from Robert Patterson's story. Duff's film debut. ▼●●

WW2, shot down over Ireland, are astonished to learn that they are to be held in a POW camp, right alongside German prisoners—a quintessentially curious way for Ireland to maintain and enforce its official neutrality during the war. Intriguing premise gets mediocre treatment in this superficial and disappointing film. ▼●●

Bubba Ho-Tep (2003) C-92m.  D: Don Coscarelli. Bruce Campbell, Ossie Davis, Ella Joyce, Bob Ivy, Heidi Marnhout. Engagingly silly film takes place in East Texas, where an elderly Elvis Presley shares the same nursing home as a man who claims to be JFK (even though he's black). When they discover that an ancient mummy is prowling their hallways at night, sucking the life out of fellow patients, they team up to save the day. Campbell and Davis play this so well that they manage to draw you in, in spite of yourself! Based on a short story by Joe R. Lansdale. [R]▼

Bubble, The (1966) SEE: Fantastic Invasion of Planet Earth

Bubble (2006) C-73m. ½ D: Steven Soderbergh. Debbie Doebereiner, Dustin James Ashley, Misty Dawn Wilkins, Kyle Smith, Decker Moody. In a drab Midwestern town, coworkers in a doll factory (a middle-aged woman and a younger man) have a pleasant-enough carpool relationship until a younger, prettier woman is hired. Everything about this film is muted, including the colors and the emotions, but Soderbergh creates a tangible and completely believable world with nonprofessional actors. More an experiment than an entertainment, and awfully dry, but well done. HD 24P Widescreen. [R]▼

Bubble Boy (2001) C-84m. BOMB D: Blair Hayes. Jake Gyllenhaal, Swoosie Kurtz, Marley Shelton, Danny Trejo, John Carroll Lynch, Verne Troyer, Stephen Spinella, Dave Sheridan, Patrick Cranshaw, Fabio. An infant, born without immunities, is raised in a plastic bubble by his overly cautious mother and passive father. As a young man he falls for the girl next door; when she moves away to marry another guy he creates a special suit so he can chase her across the country. An insipid attempt at a comedy; even the upbeat attitude of the lead character can't save this panoply of stupid stereotypes, gross-out gags, and inane situations. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Buccaneer, The (1958) C-121m.  D: Anthony Quinn. Yul Brynner, Charlton Hes-

ton, Claire Bloom, Charles Boyer, Inger Stevens, Henry Hull, E. G. Marshall, Lorne Greene, Fran Jeffries, Woodrow (Woody) Strode, Starchy swashbuckler retelling events during Battle of New Orleans when Andrew Jackson (Heston) is forced to rely on buccaneer Lafitte (Brynner) to stem the British invasion; action is spotty but splashy. Quinn's only film as director; executive-produced by his then-father-in-law Cecil B. DeMille, who directed the 1938 original, and whose last film this was. VistaVision. ▼●

Buchanan Rides Alone (1958) C-78m.  D: Budd Boetticher. Randolph Scott, Craig Stevens, Barry Kelley, Tol Avery, Peter Whitney, Manuel Rojas. Scott runs afoul of corrupt family in control of border town; taut B Western written by Burt Kennedy never runs out of plot twists. ▽

Buck and the Preacher (1972) C-102m. ½ D: Sidney Poitier. Sidney Poitier, Harry Belafonte, Ruby Dee, Cameron Mitchell, Nita Talbot. Bucket List, The (2007) C-97m. ½ D: Rob Reiner. Jack Nicholson, Morgan Freeman, Sean Hayes, Beverly Todd, Rob Morrow, Alfonso Freeman, Rowena King. Philosophical garage mechanic who's diagnosed with terminal cancer winds up sharing a hospital room with a self-centered tycoon who gets the same bill of health. They decide to escape and live out their remaining days pursuing Freeman's list of things he's always wanted to do before kicking the bucket. Contrived, borderline-cute screenplay is validated by the presence of two great actors, though Nicholson resorts to mugging. [PG-13]▽

Bucket of Blood, A (1959) 66m.  D: Roger Corman. Dick Miller, Barboura Morris, Antony Carbone, Julian Burton, Ed Nelson, Bert Convy. Wimpy busboy impresses his coffeehouse betters with amazingly lifelike "sculptures." Writer Charles Griffith's predecessor to THE LITTLE SHOP OF HORRORS is nifty semi-spoof of deadbodies-in-the-wax-museum genre. Nicely captures spirit of beatnik era; cult actor Miller's finest hour (he's reused his character's name, Walter Paisley, several times since). Remade for TV as THE DEATH ARTIST in 1996. ▼

Buck Privates (1941) 84m. ½ D: Arthur Lubin. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Lee Bowman, Alan Curtis, The Andrews Sisters, Jane Frazee, Nat Pendleton, Shemp Howard. Dated but engaging Army opus with Bud and Lou accidentally enlisting. Brassy songs (including Andrews Sisters' "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy") and subplots get in the way, but A&C's routines are among their best; their first starring film. ▼●

Buck Privates Come Home (1947) 77m.  D: Charles Barton. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Tom Brown, Joan Fulton (Shawlee), Nat Pendleton, Beverly Simmons, Don Beddoe. One of A&C's most enjoyable romps has boys returning to civilian life and trying to smuggle a young European orphan into this country. Climactic chase a highlight. ▼●

Buck Rogers in the 25th Century (1979) C-89m.  D: Daniel Haller. Gil Gerard, Pamela Hensley, Erin Gray, Tim O'Connor, Henry Silva, Joseph Wiseman, Felix Silla, voice of Mel Blanc. The legendary space hero returns, decked out in contemporary glibness, trying to prove he's not in league with intergalactic pirates. Much of the hardware and gadgetry (along with some footage) is from TV's expensive dud, BATTLESTAR GALACTICA, turned out by the same producers. Pilot for the TV series; released theatrically first. Buddy (1997) C-84m. ½ D: Caroline Thompson. Rene Russo, Robbie Coltrane, Alan Cumming, Irma P. Hall, Paul Reubens, John Aylward, Mimi Kennedy. Sweet-natured film about a most unusual woman, real-life Gertrude Lintz, who in the 1920s kept an incredible menagerie of animals on her Long Island estate. Her greatest challenge: raising a gorilla from infancy and treating him almost like a human child. Russo is excellent, and the film has much charm, but it's too leisurely and likely to make kids squirm in their seats. Based on William Joyce's book. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Buddy Buddy (1981) C-96m.  D: Billy Wilder. Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, Paula Prentiss, Klaus Kinski, Dana Elcar, Miles Chapin, Joan Shawlee. Modest black comedy about a hit man whose current job is mucked up by an intrusive stranger. A simple farce, played to perfection by Lemmon and Matthau, adapted by Wilder and I.A.L. Diamond from the French film A PAIN IN THE A—. Wilder's final film as director. Panavision. [R]▼

Buddy System, The (1984) C-110m. ½

Buena Vista Social Club (1999-U.S.-

Seductive documentary about the title group, composed of veteran Havana musicians and singers brought together by American guitarist Ry Cooder after years in obscurity. Two years after cutting a top-selling, award-winning record, they are filmed by Wenders at a recording session, in concert, and reminiscing about their music and their lives. Some are in their 80s (and even 90s), but their music is timeless and musicianship invigorating. [G]▼●

Buffalo Bill (1944) C-90m. ½ D: Wil-

Buffalo Bill and the Indians, or Sitting

Bull's History Lesson (1976) C-120m.

 D: Robert Altman. Paul Newman, Joel Grey, Kevin McCarthy, Burt Lancaster, Geraldine Chaplin, Harvey Keitel, Frank Kaquitts, Will Sampson. Altman makes the point that Buffalo Bill was a flamboyant fraud, then belabors it for two hours. Not without interest, but still one of the director's duller movies. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Buffalo 66 (1998) C-112m.  D:

Vincent Gallo. Vincent Gallo, Christina Ricci, Angelica Huston, Ben Gazzara, Kevin Corrigan, Mickey Rourke, Rosanna Arquette, Jan-Michael Vincent. Director-star Gallo plays a convict just released from prison who kidnaps a teenage girl (Ricci) and demands that she pose as his wife to impress his parents. Their evolving relationship makes up the bulk of this sincere, rambling film, which has its moments but confuses grittiness and endless repetition with integrity and truth, and fails to create much interest in the characters. Gallo, whose directing debut this is, also cowrote the screenplay and composed the music.▼●●

Buffalo Soldiers (2003-British-German-

In 1989, the peacetime U.S. Army stationed in Germany is largely manned by guys who had a choice of prison or time in the service. One of them (Phoenix) is a clerk who wheels and deals, Bilko-like, under the nose of his ignorant CO (Harris) until a new top sergeant shows up (Glenn) who's determined to make a clean sweep. Not-bad black comedy grows increasingly unpleasant as its story develops. Based on a novel by Robert O'Connor. Completed in 2001. Super 35. [R]▼●

½ D: Fran Rubel Kuzui. Kristy Swanson, Donald Sutherland, Paul Reubens, Rutger Hauer, Luke Perry, Michele Abrams, Hilary Swank, Paris Vaughan, David Arquette, Randall Batinkoff, Candy Clark, Natasha Gregson Wagner. Cute variation on vampire sagas, with high school Valley Girl Swanson turning out to be "the chosen one" of her generation to kill roaming vampires. Sutherland is ideal as her mentor and guide, and Reubens (the former Pee-wee Herman) is fun as one of the fanged menaces . . . but Hauer is an utter disappointment as vampire Uno. Look for Ben Affleck as a basketball player. Ricki Lake appears unbilled. Later a TV series. [PG-13]▼●●

Bug (2007) C-101m.  D: William

Friedkin. Ashley Judd, Michael Shannon,

Harry Connick, Jr., Lynn Collins, Brian F. O'Byrne. Film version of Tracy Letts' play is a challenge to take seriously but not without twisted dazzle if you can accept it as a stunt. Barmaid Judd's motel digs scream "flea-trap," but it's the title critters that are taking it over: the ones imagined by the bugged-out head case who becomes her latest live-in (Shannon, repeating his stage role). As Judd's hunky ex-con husband, Connick rounds out what is predominantly a three-character drama, with Judd giving it her all once her character finds herself too open to Shannon's power of suggestion. Claustrophobic setting is suited for home screens, but Friedkin gives it cinematic flair. Wild finale. [R] (D)

Bugs Bunny's 3rd Movie: 1001 Rabbit Tales (1982) C-76m. ½ D: David Detiege, Art Davis, Bill Perez. Yet another compilation of Warner Bros. cartoons, with better-than-average linking material. Some good episodes with Daffy Duck, Tweety and Sylvester, et al., plus Chuck Jones' classic "One Froggy Evening" (minus the punchline), but these are still better seen as individual shorts, and not as an ersatz feature film. Produced by Friz Freleng. Followed by DAFFY DUCK'S MOVIE: FANTASTIC ISLAND. [G] (V) (D)

Bugs Bunny Superstar (1975) C-91m.  D: Larry Jackson. Narrated by Orson Welles. Terrific computer-animated feature from Pixar studio (of TOY STORY fame), about a well-meaning ant named Flik who tries to help his beleaguered colony from the plundering of Hopper and his grasshopper cronies. Meaning to hire tough insects to fight them off, he unwittingly recruits a circus troupe instead! Consistently clever and funny; in fact, overflowing with gags and visual ideas. Warren Beatty, Annette Bening, Harvey Keitel, Ben Kingsley, Elliott Gould, Joe Mantegna, Richard Sarafian, Bebe Neuwirth, Wendy Phillips, Robert Beltran, Bill Graham, Lewis Van Bergen, Debrah Farentino. Beatty gives the most forceful performance of his career as Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel, the fabled crackpot gangster who helped build Las Vegas. Long but well-told tale manages to dodge gangster clichés. Beatty and Bening set off sparks together (just as they did in real life), and a strong supporting cast fleshes out James Toback's intelligent script (though Mantegna, as George Raft, is wasted). Keitel, cast as Mickey Cohen, played Siegel in the TV movie THE VIRGINIA HILL STORY. Oscar winner for Art Direction—Set Decoration and Costume Design. Extended version runs 149m. [R] (V) (D)

Bugsy Malone (1976-British) C-93m. ½ D: Alan Parker. Scott Baio, Florrie Dugger, Jodie Foster, John Cassisi, Martin Lev. Unique musical spoof of Prohibition-era gangster films with all-kiddie cast; script clichés are intact, but the machine-guns shoot whipped cream instead of bullets. Beautiful production cannot escape coyness and doesn't hold up; plastic rendition of Paul Williams' score doesn't help. [G] (V) (D)

Intense, highly charged story of three friends who leave Hong Kong to reap profits in war-torn 1967 Saigon and get caught up in a whirlwind of troubles that tests their loyalty. An epic film, emotional and overwrought, with action footage and confrontations (particularly a long sequence in a POW camp) that are as bold as anything Woo has attempted onscreen. Woo

Their fortunes and ambitions are unified—often acrimoniously—by a vindictive drug kingpin/car dealer played by a pitifully hammy Caan. Bulletproof Heart (1994) C-100m.  D: Mark Malone. Anthony LaPaglia, Mimi Rogers, Peter Boyle, Matt Craven, Joseph Maher. Prosperous hit man LaPaglia gets a gig he's not quite prepared for: rub out a well-connected knockout who actually wants to die. Four well-shaped, well-played characters—including Boyle's shady mobster and Craven's dimwit sidekick—don't add up to a satisfying whole. The slim story could have used some serious fleshing out. Two pluses: an intriguingly steamy sex scene, and another incisive performance from Rogers. Played the film festival circuit as KILLER. [R] ▼●

Bulletproof Monk (2003) C-103m. ½ D: Paul Hunter. Chow Yun-Fat, Seann William Scott, Jaime (James) King, Karel Roden, Victoria Smurfit, Mako. King plays a monk who never ages while he guards an ancient scroll that possesses the secret of infinite power . . . but now it's time to find a successor, and he thinks it may be young pick-pocket Scott, of all people. Lively and amusing when it doesn't get too silly; alas, special effects take the place of genuine martial-arts action most of the time. Coproduced by John Woo, and based on a comic book of the same name. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Bullets Over Broadway (1994) C-99m.  D: Woody Allen. John Cusack, Dianne Wiest, Jennifer Tilly, Chazz Palminteri, Mary-Louise Parker, Jack Warden, Joe Vitell, Rob Reiner, Tracey Ullman, Jim Broadbent, Harvey Fierstein, Stacey Nelkin, Eddie Falco, Tony Sirico. Delightful Woody Allen bauble about a self-serious 1920s playwright who quickly sells out when he's offered a chance to direct his latest work on Broadway—with a gangster's moll in a key role and an intoxicatingly seductive star in the lead. An actors' field day, with particularly juicy parts for Wiest (who won an Oscar) as the flamboyant actress, Palminteri, as a thug with an unexpected gift, and Tilly as the ditsy moll. The period detail is so rich and right it all seems stunningly real. Allen coscripted with Douglas McGrath. [R] ▼

Bullfighter and the Lady (1951) 87m. ½ D: Budd Boetticher. Robert Stack, Joy Page, Gilbert Roland, Katy Jurado, Virginia Grey, John Hubbard. Cocky American visiting Mexico decides that he wants to tackle bullfighting and enlists the aid of the country's leading matador with tragic results. The movies' best treatment of this subject, a fine, mature drama with unforgettable bullfighting scenes and an appealing love story as well. Roland has never been better; only the second leads (Grey, Hubbard) are a detriment. Produced by John Wayne. Boetticher's version, running 124m., has been restored, and it's even better than the shorter print. ▼

Bullitt (1968) C-113m. ½ D: Peter Yates. Steve McQueen, Robert Vaughn, Jacqueline Bisset, Don Gordon, Robert Duvall, Simon Oakland, Norman Fell, Victor (Vic) Tayback. Definitive McQueen antihero: police detective who senses something fishy behind assignment to guard criminal witness. Taut action-film makes great use of San Francisco locations, especially in now-classic car chase, one of the screen's all-time best; Oscar-winning editing by Frank Keller. Scripted by Alan R. Trustman and Harry Kleiner, from Robert L. Pike's novel Mute Witness. [M/PG] ▼

Bullseye! (1989) C-89m. BOMB D: Michael Winner. Michael Caine, Roger Moore, Sally Kirkland, Lee Patterson, Deborah Barrymore, Mark Burns, Debra Lang, Lynn Nesbitt, Stefanie Pitt, Patsy Kensit, Alexandra Pigg, Jenny Seagrove. Deadly nonsense which completely wastes Caine and Moore as criminals who are dead ringers for a couple of nuclear scientists (up to no good themselves). Confusing story complications and heavyhanded humor make this a dog. Barrymore is Moore's real-life daughter; John Cleese has an unbilled cameo near the end. Released direct to video. [PG-13] ▼

Bullshot (1983-British) C-85m. ½ D: Dick Clement. Alan Shearman, Diz White, Ron House, Frances Tomelty, Michael Aldridge, Ron Pember, Billy Connolly. Occasionally funny Monty Python-ish parody, with Shearman cast as one Captain Hugh "Bullshot" Crummond, a Bulldog Drummond caricature. Plenty of one-liners and slapstick, some humorous and some silly. The screenplay was adapted by Shearman, White, and House, from their stage play. [PG] ▼

Bully (2001) C-106m.  D: Larry Clark. Brad Renfro, Nick Stahl, Rachel Miner, Bijou Phillips, Daniel Franzese, Michael Pitt, Kelli Garner, Leo Fitzpatrick. Scuzzy cinema verité dramatization of a true story. Impressionable teen (Renfro) is convinced by his girlfriend (Miner) to kill his best friend, a sadistic rapist (Stahl) who, ironically, is the golden boy of the group, the only one bound for college. Undeniably powerful at times but Clark mashes your face in so much bruised, sweaty pubescent flesh that the film feels exploitative. ▼

Bulworth (1998) C-107m. ½ D: Warren Beatty. Warren Beatty, Halle Berry, Don Cheadle, Oliver Platt, Paul Sorvino, Jack Warden, Isaiah Washington, Joshua Malina, Christine Baranski, Amiri Baraka, Sean Astin, Laurie Metcalf, Richard Sarafian, Nora Dunn, Jackie Gayle, Michael Clarke Duncan, Debra Monk, Sarah Silverman, Barry Shabaka Henley, Chris Mulkey. Audacious political satire about a California senator, running for reelection in 1996, who solves his crisis of conscience by telling the truth—and embracing the black community. Unsettling at times—as it's meant to be—with trenchant observations on the political process and the plight of the poor. One of Beatty's best films—as actor, director, cowriter (with Jeremy Pikser). William Baldwin and Paul Mazursky appear unbilled. [R] ▼

Bundle of Joy (1956) C-98m.  D: Norman Taurog. Eddie Fisher, Debbie Reynolds, Adolphe Menjou, Tommy Noonan. Labored musical remake of BACHELOR MOTHER has Reynolds as salesgirl who takes custody of a baby, causing scandal that boyfriend Fisher (in starring debut) is child's father. Made when Debbie and Eddie were America's favorite couple. ▼

Bunny Lake Is Missing (1965) 107m. ***
D: Otto Preminger. Laurence Olivier, Carol Lynley, Keir Dullea, Noel Coward, Marita Hunt, Finlay Currie, The Zombies. American Lynley, newly arrived in London, reports the disappearance of her preschool daughter—but police detective Olivier can't help but notice that Lynley has no proof that the child ever existed at all. Well paced, expertly acted, with some interestingly off-beat characters in the margins. Made in England. Panavision. D

Buona Sera, Mrs. Campbell (1969) C-113m.  D: Melvin Frank. Gina Lollobrigida, Peter Lawford, Shelley Winters, Phil Silvers, Telly Savalas, Lee Grant, Janet Margolin. Bright comedy about Italian woman who's accepted money from three American men who all think they fathered her child during WW2. Now they're all coming back to Italy for Army reunion and "Mrs. Campbell" is in a state of panic. Good fun with top cast. [M/PG] **▼●

'burbs, The (1989) C-103m.  D: Joe Dante. Tom Hanks, Bruce Dern, Carrie Fisher, Rick Ducommun, Corey Feldman, Wendy Schaal, Henry Gibson, Brother Theodore, Courtney Gains, Gale Gordon, Dick Miller. Strange new neighbors set a neighborhood abuzz, and lead several slightly cracked compadres to extreme measures so they can learn just what's going on behind closed doors. Comically warped view of suburban life takes far too much time to play out its paper-thin premise, and leads to (mostly) predictable results. [PG] **▼●

Burden of Dreams (1982) C-94m. ½ D: Les Blank. Werner Herzog, Klaus Kinski, Claudia Cardinale, Jason Robards, Mick Jagger. Extraordinary documentary of the filming of Herzog's FITZCARRALDO in the Peruvian Amazon. Despite the filmmaker's high technology, his dream of completing the film is constantly thwarted by nature and clashing cultures. Some find this more compelling than FITZCARRALDO itself. **▼

Bureau of Missing Persons (1933) 75m. ½ D: Roy Del Ruth. Bette Davis, Lewis S. Stone, Pat O'Brien, Allen Jenkins, Ruth Donnelly, Hugh Herbert, Glenda Farrell, Alan Dinehart, George Chandler. Typically fast-paced—but strange—Warner Bros. programmer about big-city bureau of missing persons, where benevolent Stone plays God with the losers and hard-luck cases that come before him. Hip-shooting cop O'Brien is transferred there in hopes he'll mellow out, and we'll bet you a dollar six bits he doesn't. Davis is a mystery woman with whom he gets involved. **▼

Burglar (1987) C-102m. *½ D: Hugh Wilson. Whoopi Goldberg, Bob Goldthwait, G.W. Bailey, Lesley Ann Warren, James Handy, Anne DeSalvo, John Goodman. Whoopi plays a cat burglar who accidentally witnesses a murder—and then tries to solve the crime, in order to clear herself. Unfunny, unspensiveful, and completely unappealing comedy/mystery, with a superfluous, built-up secondary role for Goldthwait (who has a few good moments). Another waste of Whoopi's talent. [R] **▼●

Burglars, The (1972-French) C-117m. ½ D: Henri Verneuil. Jean-Paul Belmondo, Omar Sharif, Dyan Cannon, Robert Hossein. Routine crime film set against lush Greek backdrop, with good cast. One good chase and it's all over. Remake of THE BURGLAR. Panavision. [PG]

Buried Alive (1990) C-91m. *½ D: Gerard Kikoine. Robert Vaughn, Donald Pleasence, Karen Witter, John Carradine, Nia Long, Ginger Lynn Allen. Murky thriller about a mansion where "doctor" Vaughn imprisons young women. Story uses elements from several Edgar Allan Poe stories, but juices them up with sex and gore. Filmed in South Africa. Carradine's last feature film. [R] **▼●

Burke and Wills (1986-Australian) C-140m.  D: Graeme Clifford. Jack Thompson, Nigel Havers, Greta Scacchi, Matthew Fargher, Ralph Cotterill, Drew Forsythe, Chris Haywood. Impressive, larger-than-life historical drama chronicling the title characters' expedition through 1860 Australia, the first two men to cross the continent. Thompson is especially fine as Burke; another version of the saga was made the same year, titled WILLS AND BURKE. Panavision. [PG-13] **▼●

Burmese Harp, The (1956-Japanese) 116m. ½ D: Kon Ichikawa. Rentaro Mikuni, Shoji Yasui, Tatsuya Mihashi, Tanie Kitabayashi, Yunosuke Ito. Private Yasui volunteers to persuade a group of mountain fighters to surrender at the end of WW2 and undergoes a religious experience, becoming obsessed with desire to bury war casualties. Extraordinary antiwar drama is affecting and memorable if a bit overlong. Also known as HARP OF BURMA; remade by Ichikawa in 1985. **▼●

Burn! (1969-Italian-French) C-132m.  D: Gillo Pontecorvo. Marlon Brando, Evaristo Marquez, Renato Salvatori, Tom Lyons, Norman Hill. Egomaniacal Sir William Walker (Brando) is sent by the British to instigate a slave revolt on a Portuguese-controlled sugar-producing Caribbean island. This political drama is visually striking but muddled, with a strong Brando performance. Ed Harris plays the same role in

Burn After Reading (2008) C-95m. ½ D: Joel and Ethan Coen. George Clooney, Frances McDormand, Brad Pitt, John Malkovich, Tilda Swinton, Richard Jenkins, Dermot Mulroney, Elizabeth Marvel, David Rasche, J. K. Simmons, Jeffrey DeMunn. Black comedy of errors set in Washington, D.C., takes off when CIA analyst Malkovich is fired; he then learns that his wife (Swinton) is sleeping with treasury marshal Clooney. Meanwhile, health club employee McDormand has set her sights on some expensive plastic surgery. Mixing ingredients of a political thriller with satiric jibes at Americans' obsession with self-improvement, this never quite jells, though it's fun to watch these talented stars playing morons. Pitt is especially entertaining as a goofball who works at a gym. [R]▼

Burning Hills, The (1956) C-94m  D: Stuart Heisler. Tab Hunter, Natalie Wood, Skip Homeier, Eduard Franz, Earl Holliman, Claude Akins. Burning Secret (1988-U.S.-British-German) C-106m. ½ D: Andrew Birkin. Faye Dunaway, Klaus Maria Brandauer, David Eberts, Ian Richardson. Brandauer offers a splendid performance (as usual) as a charming, amoral baron, a WW1 vet who's nursing a bayonet wound at a sanitarium. In order to get to Dunaway, he initiates a friendship with her impressionable, asthmatic 12-year-old son (Eberts). Generally compelling, and lushly filmed in Prague and Marienbad; however, Dunaway is miscast, and there are several key moments that simply don't work. Based on a Stefan Zweig short story; originally made in Germany in 1933 by Robert Siodmak, as BRENNENDES GEHEIMNIS. [PG]▼●●

Burnt by the Sun (1994-Russian-French) C-135m.  D: Nikita Mikhalkov. Nikita Mikhalkov, Ingeborga Dapkounaite, Oleg Menchikov, Nadia Mikhalkov, Andre Oumansky. The year is 1936, and Sergei Kotov (played by director Mikhalkov) is an aging hero of the Bolshevik Revolution whose eyes are closed to the present-day tyranny of Josef Stalin. All of this is about to change upon the arrival of his wife's ex-lover, who is employed by Stalin's governmental police. Provocative, moving meditation on the political and social realities of life in Stalinist Russia deservedly earned a Best Foreign Film Oscar. Sergei's daughter, Nadia, who has a key role in the story, is played by Mikhalkov's real-life daughter, Nadia.▼●●

Burnt Offerings (1976) C-115m.  D: Dan Curtis. Karen Black, Oliver Reed, Burgess Meredith, Eileen Heckart, Lee Montgomery, Dub Taylor, Bette Davis, Anthony James. Ordinary couple, with young son and aunt in tow, rent an old mansion as summer home, unaware that it's haunted. Strange occurrences lead to totally predictable "surprise" ending. A big buildup to nothing. From Robert Marasco's novel. [PG]▼●●

Burn, Witch, Burn! (1962-British) 90m.  D: Sidney Hayers. Janet Blair, Peter Wyngarde, Margaret Johnston, Anthony Nicholls. Story of witchcraft entering lives of schoolteacher and his wife builds to shattering suspense, genuinely frightening climax. Fritz Leiber's novel Conjure Wife was filmed before as WEIRD WOMAN; this version scripted by Charles Beaumont and Richard Matheson. Later spoofed in WITCHES' BREW. Original British title: NIGHT OF THE EAGLE.▼●●

Bush Christmas (1983-Australian) C-91m. ½ D: Henri Safran. John Ewart, John Howard, Mark Spain, James Wingrove, Peter Summer, Nicole Kidman, Manalpuay, Vineta O'Malley. Agreeable updating of the 1947 Australian classic in which a trio of kids (including Kidman, in her feature debut) head off into the bush—in the company of an Aborigine—to find the thieves who stole their horse. Aka PRINCE AND THE GREAT RACE.▼

Bushido Blade, The (1979-Japanese) C-104m. ½ D: Tom Kotani. Richard Boone, Frank Converse, James Earl Jones, Toshiro Mifune, Mako, Sonny Chiba, Laura Gemser. 19th-century Kung Fu action in Japan as Cmdr. Matthew Perry (Boone) leads a band of his men in the recovery of a treasured sword. Of note: Boone's last role; Mifune plays the Shogun, as he did in later TV miniseries. Aka THE BLOODY BUSHIDO BLADE. [R]▼●●

Bushwhacked (1995) C-90m. ½ D: Greg Beeman. Daniel Stern, Jon Polito, Brad Sullivan, Ann Dowd, Anthony Heald, Tom Wood, Blake Bashoff, Corey Carrier, Michael Galeota, Max Goldblatt. On the lam for a murder he didn't commit, a delivery man "hides out" by posing as the leader of a Ranger Scout troop that embarks on a wilderness adventure neither he nor they will ever forget. Unfortunately, all of us will. Stern is way over the top in this familiar fish-out-of-water premise that draws on two of his past triumphs, CITY SLICKERS and

HOME ALONE. For younger kids only.

Clairmont-Scope. [PG-13] ▼●●

Business As Usual (1987-British) C-89m.

½ D: Lezli-An Barrett. Glenda Jackson, John Thaw, Cathy Tyson, Mark McGann, Eamon Boland, James Hazeldine, Buki Armstrong, Stephen McGann. Passionate but didactic pro-labor drama with Jackson as a Liverpool boutique manager whose arbitrary firing (after she's lodged a complaint about sexual harassment on behalf of an employee) escalates into a national cause celebre. One of the angry anti-Thatcher films of the late '80s; written by first-time feature director Barrett. Excellent performances help a one-sided script. [PG] ▼

Business of Strangers, The (2001) C-83m.

 D: Patrick Stettner. Stockard Channing, Julia Stiles, Frederick Weller. Interesting chamber piece about a female executive who, at the end of a tumultuous, career-changing day, takes up with a young woman at an airport hotel. The younger woman is an expert at playing mind games, and the exec finds herself drawn in, almost to the point of madness. A tour de force for Channing and Stiles, who are terrific, though the story's credibility is debatable. Written by the director. [R] ▼●

Bus Riley's Back in Town (1965) C-93m.

½ D: Harvey Hart. Ann-Margret, Michael Parks, Janet Margolin, Brad Dexter, Kim Darby, Jocelyn Brando, Larry Storch, David Carradine. Muddled William Inge script of folksy people in the Midwest. Parks, ex-sailor, returns home, torn by faltering ambitions and taunted by wealthy ex-girlfriend Ann-Margret. Character cameos make the film worthwhile. ▼

Bus Stop (1956) C-96m. ½ D: Joshua

Logan. Marilyn Monroe, Don Murray, Arthur O'Connell, Betty Field, Eileen Heckart, Hope Lange, Hans Conried, Casey Adams. The film that finally proved Monroe really could act; excellent comedy-drama about innocent cowboy (Murray) who falls for saloon singer and decides to marry her—without bothering to ask. Fine performances by all, with MM's famed rendition of "(That Old) Black Magic" a highlight; adapted by George Axelrod from the William Inge play. Film debuts of Murray and Lange (who subsequently married). Later a brief TV series. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Buster (1988-British) C-102m. ½ D: dreams and a bad track record of success, who wanted the good life for his wife and child. Singer Collins' starring film debut is a diverting (if forgettable) yarn, with Walters a good match as his loving, long-suffering spouse. Great soundtrack includes Collins' performances of "Two Hearts (One Mind)" and "Groovy Kind of Love." [R] ▼●●

Buster and Billie (1974) C-100m. *½ D:

Daniel Petrie. Jan-Michael Vincent, Joan Goodfellow, Pamela Sue Martin, Clifton James, Robert Englund. Blubbery account of high school romance in 1948 rural Georgia (the looses girl in class is redeemed by love) can't overcome clichéd premise. [R] ▼

Buster Keaton Story, The (1957) 91m.

*½ D: Sidney Sheldon. Donald O'Connor, Ann Blyth, Rhonda Fleming, Peter Lorre, Larry Keating. Weak fiction ignores the facts about silent-star Keaton, making up its own. More private life than on-screen moments are detailed with Blyth as his true love and Fleming as a siren. Little comedy in this tale of a great comedian. VistaVision.

Busting (1974) C-92m. ½ D: Peter

Hyams. Elliott Gould, Robert Blake, Allen Garfield, Antonio Fargas, Michael Lerner, Sid Haig, Comelia Sharpe. Realistic if empty comedy-action-drama with Gould and Blake as unorthodox L.A. vice cops. Gay activists complained about film's few minutes of homosexual caricatures. Hyams, once a CBS-TV newsmen, also did script. [R] ▼

Bustin' Loose (1981) C-94m  D: Oz

Scott. Richard Pryor, Cicely Tyson, Robert Christian, Alphonso Alexander, Janet Wong. Despite the (expected) street language, this is at heart a family picture about an ex-convict who shepherds teacher Tyson and a busload of emotionally and physically handicapped youngsters to a new life. Best scene: a KKK band becomes putty in Pryor's hands. Filmed mostly in 1979, but not completed until 1981 because of Pryor's near fatal accident. Pryor coproduced and wrote the story. Later a TV series. [R] ▼●●

Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid (1969) C-112m. * D: George Roy Hill. Paul Newman, Robert Redford, Katharine Ross, Strother Martin, Henry Jones, Jeff Corey, George Furth, Cloris Leachman, Ted Cassidy, Kenneth Mars. Delightful seriocomic character study masquerading as a Western; outlaws Newman and Redford are pursued by relentless but remote sheriff's posse. Many memorable vignettes. Won Oscars for Cinematography (Conrad Hall), Original Score (Burt Bacharach), Song, "Raindrops Keep Fallin' On My Head" (Bacharach and Hal David), and William Goldman's original screenplay, which brims over with sharp dialogue. Look for Sam Elliott as a card player. Followed a decade later by a prequel, BUTCH AND SUNDANCE: THE EARLY DAYS. Then in 1976 Ross returned as Etta Place in TVM WANTED: THE SUNDANCE WOMAN (aka MRS. Stephen Rea, Fiona Shaw, Eamonn Owens, Alan Boyle, Andrew Fullerton, Aisling O'Sullivan, Ian Hart, Sinéad O'Connor, Milo O'Shea, Brendan Gleeson. Arresting film about an Irish boy who doesn't have a chance in life: his father is a perpetual drunk, his mother a mentally fragile soul. Yet he greets the world with bravado and the gift of gab; the only problem is, he's deranged. Bold, darkly (even absurdly) comic, hallucinatory at times, hiding its heartrending truths behind a glib facade—just like its hero. A true original. Written by Jordan and Patrick McCabe, from the latter's novel; McCabe also appears as the town drunk, Jimmy the Skite. [R]▼●

Demi Moore, Jeff Daniels, George Dzundza, Mary Steenburgen, Frances McDormand, Margaret Colin, Max Perlich, Miriam Margolyes, Christopher Durang, Diane Salinger. North Carolina clairvoyant marries a Greenwich Village butcher, then begins dispensing advice: to a lesbian boutique owner, a spinsterish choir director, a soap opera actress and more. So strange that it almost compels a glance. Only Steenburgen, though, seems thoroughly in the swing of this comedy's intended whimsy. [PG-13]▼●

Butley (1974-British) C-127m. * D: Harold Pinter. Alan Bates, Jessica Tandy, Richard O'Callaghan, Susan Engel, Georgina Hale. Bwana Devil (1952) C-79m. *½ D: Arch Oboler. Robert Stack, Barbara Britton, Nigel Bruce, Paul Mvey. Stack is determined to protect his railroad workers in Kenya (not to mention his wife) from being attacked by man-eating lions. Cardboard drama, with lame lion attacks, was the first commercial 3-D feature, but it's laughably clumsy. In some shots actors are clearly standing in front of rear-projection footage! Complete prints include b&w introduction to 3-D by Lloyd Nolan and puppets Beany and Cecil. Same true-life story later inspired THE GHOST AND THE DARKNESS.

By Design (1981-Canadian) C-88m  D: Claude Jutra. Patty Duke Astin, Sara Botsford, Saul Rubinek, Sonia Zimmer. Lesbian fashion designer Astin decides she wants to be a mother. Potentially interesting subject matter is awkwardly handled; one of Astin's few bad performances.▼

idol coming to small town to give "one last kiss" to one of his adoring fans. Lynde stands out as Ann-Margret's father. Remade for TV in 1995 with Jason Alexander and Vanessa Williams. Panavision. ▼

Bye Bye Blues (1989-Canadian) C-116m.  D: Anne Wheeler. Rebecca Jenkins, Luke Reilly, Stuart Margolin, Kate Reid, Michael Ontkean, Wayne Robson, Robyn Stevan. Affectionate WW2 drama of Jenkins, proper, protected, and pregnant, who's stationed with her doctor-husband in India. Intensely moving story of how war affects the lives of those on the home front; if this doesn't give your tear ducts a workout, nothing will. Loosely based on the life of Wheeler's mother and a nice companion piece to her short documentary-drama, A WAR STORY. [PG]▼

Bye Bye Braverman (1968) C-94m. ½ D: Sidney Lumet. George Segal, Jack Warden, Joseph Wiseman, Sorrell Booke, Jessica Walter, Phyllis Newman, Zohra Lampert, Godfrey Cambridge, Alan King. To paraphrase one of the characters, in the sum of its many parts this yields pleasure of a kind; but fuzzy, unresolved story of four Jewish intellectuals on their way to a friend's funeral is ultimately disappointing.▶

Bye Bye Brazil (1980-Brazil) C-110m.  D: Carlos Diegues. Jose Wilker, Betty Faria, Fabio Junior, Zaira Zambelli. Bawdy comedy-drama about a troupe of traveling entertainers is really a travelogue of the country, from jungles to honky-tonk port towns. Not quite the total sensual pleasure of DONA FLOR AND HER TWO HUSBANDS, but still one of the best Brazilian imports. [R]▼

Bye Bye, Love (1995) C-106m.  D: Sam Weisman. Matthew Modine, Randy Quaid, Paul Reiser, Janeane Garofalo, Rob Reiner, Amy Brenneman, Eliza Dushku, Ed Flanders, Maria Pitillo, Lindsay Crouse, Johnny Whitworth, Ross Malinger, Pamela Dillman, Brad Hall, Jack Black. Mediocre sitcom-comedy about three dads, devoted to their kids, trying to make their way through divorcehood. Some sincere moments and occasional comic insights are washed away in a sea of sappiness. Garofalo, as Quaid's hilarious date from hell, almost makes the film worth watching. [PG-13]▼

Bye Bye Monkey (1978-French-Italian) C-114m. BOMB D: Marco Ferreri. Gérard Depardieu, Marcello Mastroianni, Gail Lawrence (Abigail Clayton), James Coco, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Mimsy Farmer, Clarence Muse. Sardonic, bleak comedy about a group of misfits in a decrepit area of Manhattan where rats seem about to displace humanity in all the buildings. Depardieu, irresistible to women as always, prefers the company of a chimpanzee he finds near the carcass of a giant ape, presumably left over from the remake of KING KONG. Good cast is wasted, including Fitzgerald, who also has a love scene with Depardieu. Filmed in English in N.Y.C. ▼●●

By Love Possessed (1961) C-115m. ½ D: John Sturges. Lana Turner, Efreem Zimbalist, Jr., Jason Robards, Jr., George Hamilton, Thomas Mitchell, Susan Kohner, Barbara Bel Geddes, Everett Sloane, Carroll O'Connor. Ultraglossy, well-cast but empty soaper, in which neurotic Turner commences an affair with Zimbalist, the law partner of her impotent husband (Robards). Based on—but not true to—the James Gould Cozzens novel. ▼●●

By the Book SEE: Renaissance Man

By the Light of the Silvery Moon (1953) C-102m. ½ D: David Butler. Doris Day, Gordon MacRae, Leon Ames, Rosemary DeCamp, Mary Wickes, Billy Gray. Set in post WW1, this Booth Tarkington story finds returning soldier MacRae and fiancée Day readjusting to life. Ames wonderful as father thought to be romancing French actress, and Wickes delightful as family maid. Merv Griffin pops up in the closing scene. This old-fashioned musical was a sequel to ON MOONLIGHT BAY. ▼●●

By the Sword (1993) C-91m. *½ D: Jeremy Kagan, John McDonald. F. Murray Abraham, Eric Roberts, Mia Sara, Chris Rydell, Elaine Kagan, Brett Cullen, Doug Wert, Stoney Jackson. By-the-numbers revenge story set in the world of competitive fencing. Roberts is intense as usual, but the story isn't. If it's fencing you want, rent an Errol Flynn movie. Super 35. [R] ▼

Cabaret (1972) C-124m. ½ D: Bob Fosse. Liza Minnelli, Michael York, Helmut Griem, Joel Grey, Fritz Wepper, Marisa Berenson. Stylish film based on Fred Ebb-John Kander Broadway musical, from John van Druten's play I Am a Camera (filmed before in 1955), now more a vehicle for Minnelli in her Oscar-winning performance as Sally Bowles, American girl caught up in phony glitter of pre-war Berlin. Song numbers counterpoint dramatic narrative, including newly written "The Money Song," great duet for Minnelli and Oscar-winner Grey. Screenplay by Jay Presson Allen; the story's genesis was Christopher Isherwood's book Goodbye to Berlin. Won eight Academy Awards in all, including Director, Cinematography (Geoffrey Unsworth) and Score Adaptation (Ralph Burns). [PG] ▼●●

Cabaret Balkan (1998-Yugoslavian-French) C-102m. ½ D: Goran Paskaljevic. Miki Manojlovic, Sergei Trifunovic, Mirjana Jokovic, Lazar Ristovski. In the strife-torn city of Belgrade, all sense of logic and order has evaporated, leaving a society so desperate and stressed-out that even a casual encounter may lead to violence. Powerful series of vignettes—sometimes grim, sometimes absurdly funny—but the film goes on a while after it's made its point. Originally shown in Europe as THE POWDER KEG. ▼

Cabin Boy (1994) C-80m. ½ D: Adam Resnick. Chris Elliott, Ritch Brinkley, James Gammon, Brian Doyle-Murray, Brion James, Melora Walters, Ann Magnuson, Russ Tamblyn, Ricki Lake, Andy Richter. Strange, fitfully amusing comedy of snobby "Fancy Lad" Elliott who accidentally boards a fishing boat with hard-nosed seamen . . . and becomes a man. Film's success depends largely on your tolerance for Elliott's obnoxious comic persona, but there are many clever jokes and an endearingly (and intentionally) tacky visual approach. Several good cameos, particularly one from Elliott's former boss David Letterman—billed as Earl Hofert. Elliott co-wrote the film's story. Produced by Tim Burton. [PG-13] ▼●●

Cabinet of Caligari, The (1962) 104m. ½ D: Roger Kay. Dan O'Herlihy, Glynis Johns, Richard Davalos, Lawrence Dobkin, Estelle Winwood, J. Pat O'Malley. Unimaginative remake of the 1919 German classic, removing all the mystery-exotic appeal; Johns tries hard as lady in ornate modern home confronted by O'Herlihy's sinister Caligari; many bizarre scenes. Written by Robert Bloch. CinemaScope. ●

Cabinet of Dr. Caligari, The (1919-German) 69m. ½ D: Robert Wiene. Werner Krauss, Conrad Veidt, Lil Dagover. Somewhat stiff but still fascinating German Expressionist film about "magician" Caligari and hypnotic victim who carries out his evil bidding. Landmark film still impresses audiences today. Remade in 1962. ▼●●

Cabin Fever (2003) C-93m. *½ D: Eli Roth. Rider Strong, Jordan Ladd, James DeBello, Cerina Vincent, Joey Kern, Giuseppe Andrews, Robert Harris, Hal Courtney. A group of friends celebrate college graduation by going to a mountain cabin together, but things go very bad very fast. Did someone say "flesh-eating virus"? Blood-drenched homage to slasher movies lacks wit or originality, but seems to have pleased some fans of the genre. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Cabin in the Cotton, The (1932) 77m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Richard Barthelme, Dorothy Jordan, Bette Davis, Hardie Albright, David Landau, Berton Churchill, Henry B. Walthall, Tully Marshall. Dated melodrama of sharecroppers, with earnest Barthelme almost led to ruin by Southern belle Davis; exaggerated, but interesting. Bette's immortal line: "Ah'd like to kiss ya, but Ah jes' washed mah hair." ▼

Cabin in the Sky (1943) 100m.  D: Vincente Minnelli. Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Lena Horne, Ethel Waters, Louis Armstrong, Rex Ingram, Duke Ellington and His Orchestra, The Hall Johnson Choir.

Stellar black cast in winning (if somewhat racist) musical fable about forces of good and evil vying for the soul of Little Joe (Anderson). John Bubbles' dancing, Waters singing "Happiness Is a Thing Called Joe" (written for the film) among musical highlights. First feature for Minnelli (who, with Waters and Ingram, came from the Broadway production). ▼●●

Cable Guy, The (1996) C-96m. ½ D: Ben Stiller. Jim Carrey, Matthew Broderick, Leslie Mann, George Segal, Diane Baker, Jack Black, Eric Roberts, Janeane Garofalo, Andy Dick, Charles Napier, Owen Wilson, Kathy Griffin. Black comedy about a cable TV installer who forces his friendship onto a vulnerable customer who's just moved out of his girlfriend's apartment. Many clever, funny scenes, but film wavers between comedy and a darker, more serious tone, which—while also interesting—keeps us off-balance. Repeated digs at TV are among the brightest moments; director Stiller has a funny recurring cameo. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Caché (2005-French-Austrian-German-Italian) C-118m.  D: Michael Haneke. Daniel Auteuil, Juliette Binoche, Annie Girardot, Lester Makedonsky, Maurice Bénichou, Bernard Le Coq, Daniel Duval, Nathalie Richard, Walid Afkir. Parisian host of a book-chat TV show and his wife are baffled by a succession of surveillance videotapes of their home's exterior, each anonymously left on the doorstep. Eventually, other cryptic messages appear, sketches that may have some hidden meaning. Writer-director Haneke (THE PIANO TEACHER) has constructed another icily meticulous, if protracted, drama, framed by a realistic portrait of a marriage and augmented with references to recent French history. [R]▼

Cactus (1986-Australian) C-93m. ½ D: Paul Cox. Isabelle Huppert, Robert Menzies, Norman Kaye, Monica Maughan, Banduk Marika. Slow, deliberately paced story of Huppert's agony when her sight is impaired in an auto mishap and her growing relationship with blind Menzies. Of interest only when it sticks to the story, which isn't often enough. ▼●

Cactus Flower (1969) C-103m. ½ D: Gene Saks. Walter Matthau, Ingrid Bergman, Goldie Hawn, Jack Weston, Rick Lenz, Vito Scotti, Irene Hervey. Glossy comedy was pretty thin for Broadway, even thinner on film, with Bergman as prim nurse to dentist Matthau who blossoms when she realizes she's in love with him. Best moments belong to Hawn, who won Oscar for her first big role. [M/PG]▼●●

Caddie (1976-Australian) C-107m. ½ D: Donald Crombie. Helen Morse, Takis Emmanuel, Jack Thompson, Jacki Weaver, Melissa Jaffer. Adaptation of a popular Australian autobiography set in the late '20s and early '30s, telling story of an independent-minded young woman determined to succeed on her own, despite the pressure of having two children to raise. Moments of insight and originality give way too often to cliché and overriding blandness. Morse is fine in lead. ▼

CaddyShack (1980) C-98m.  D: Harold Ramis. Chevy Chase, Rodney Dangerfield, Ted Knight, Michael O'Keefe, Bill Murray, Cindy Morgan, Sarah Holcomb, Scott Colomby, Brian Doyle-Murray, Chuck E. Rodent. ANIMAL HOUSE-type hijinks at a posh country club; another comedy where irreverence and destruction are a substitute for humor. Saving grace is Dangerfield, whose opening scenes are sidesplittingly funny. Followed by a sequel. [R]▼●●

CaddyShack II (1988) C-99m.  D: Allan Arkush. Jackie Mason, Dyan Cannon, Robert Stack, Dina Merrill, Chevy Chase, Dan Aykroyd, Randy Quaid, Jessica Lundy, Jonathan Silverman, Chynna Phillips, Brian McNamara. In-name-only sequel to 1980 hit gets a big boost from Mason, extremely winning in the role of a plain-talking, self-made millionaire whose daughter wants acceptance by the snooty crowd at a local country club. Unfortunately, film runs out of script (and laughs) after a half hour. [PG]▼●●

Cadillac Man (1990) C-97m. ½ D: Roger Donaldson. Robin Williams, Tim Robbins, Pamela Reed, Fran Drescher, Zack Norman, Annabella Sciorra, Lori

Petty, Paul Guilfoyle, Bill Nelson, Eddie Jones, Judith Hoag. Williams is terrific, as usual, playing an aggressive car salesman who may lose his job, his mistress, his other girlfriend, his Mafioso protector, and his daughter all during one eventful weekend. Wildly uneven film swings from comedy to melodrama, dragging and then picking up again. Elaine Strich appears unbilled as a grieving widow. [R] ▼●●

Cadillac Records (2008) C-108m. ½ D: Darnell Martin. Adrien Brody, Jeffrey Wright, Beyoncé Knowles, Gabrielle Union, Cedric the Entertainer, Columbus Short, Eamonn Walker, Emmanuelle Chriqui, Mos Def, Tammy Blanchard, Jay O. Sanders, Norman Reedus, Eric Bogosian. Colorful look at the birth and flowering of Chicago's Chess Records label in the 1940s and '50s, where Polish immigrant Leonard Chess (Brody) brought blues artists like Muddy Waters (Wright), Little Walter (Short), Howlin' Wolf (Walker), and Etta James (Knowles) to prominence, amidst much personal turmoil. Bites off more than one film can chew but still offers a rich tapestry; each of these personalities deserves a separate film. The actors mostly perform their own songs, quite credibly, and Mos Def is a hoot as Chuck Berry. Vincent D'Onofrio appears unbilled. Super 35. [R] ●

Caesar and Cleopatra (1946-British) C-134m.  D: Gabriel Pascal. Claude Rains, Vivien Leigh, Stewart Granger, Flora Robson, Francis L. Sullivan, Cecil Parker. Two fine stars suffer through static, boring rendition of George Bernard Shaw's play, which seems to go on forever. Occasional wit and intrigue can't keep this afloat. ▼

Cafe au Lait (1994-French) C-94m.  D: Mathieu Kassovitz. Julie Mauduech, Hubert Kounde, Mathieu Kassovitz. Kassovitz' first feature is the SHE'S GOTTA HAVE IT/JULES AND JIM-like story of a young, pregnant Parisian (Mauduech) who is uncertain which of her boyfriends is the father. Is it the African Muslim law student (Kounde)? Or the Jewish bicycle messenger (played by the director)? Sweetly funny, and a heartening look at contemporary relations between the races. Kassovitz also scripted. ▼●

ing his characterization in BREAD AND CHOCOLATE, is a Neapolitan working man illegally selling coffee on the Milan to Naples train. Sometimes funny and profound, more often trite. Manfredi, as usual, is fine. Originally ran 105m. ▼●

Cafe Metropole (1937) 84m. ½ D: Edward H. Griffith. Loretta Young, Tyrone Power, Adolphe Menjou, Gregory Ratoff, Charles Winninger, Helen Westley. Young is courted by penniless playboy Power, who's passing bad checks and posing as a Russian prince. OK comedy, from a story by Ratoff. ●

Cafe Society (1995) C/B&W-107m.  D: Raymond De Felitta. Frank Whaley, Peter Gallagher, Lara Flynn Boyle, John Spencer, Anna Thomson, David Patrick Kelly, Christopher Murney, Richard B. Shull, Paul Guilfoyle, Alan North, Kelly Bishop, Zach Grenier. Atmospheric, fact-based account, set in 1952, about Mickey Jelke (Whaley), a poor little rich boy set to inherit $5 million. Jelke hobnobs with N.Y.C. cafe society, and thinks nothing of pimping, just for the fun of it. Gallagher is the vice cop who's determined to nail him; Boyle (who makes a great noir heroine) is the woman with whom Jelke becomes involved, on several levels. De Felitta, working with a low budget, creates an impressive and authentic period feel. [R] ▼

Cage, The (1978) SEE: Mafu Cage, The Cage (1989) C-101m. BOMB D: Lang Elliott. Lou Ferrigno, Reb Brown, Michael Dante, Mike Moroff, Marilyn Tokuda, James Shiget, Al Ruscio. Pointless, violent film provides viewers with the human equivalent of a cockfight as Ferrigno and Brown go at it in the Asian "sport" of cage fighting. A better title might have been THE INCREDIBLE HOKUM. [R] ▼●●

Caged (1950) 96m.  D: John Cromwell. Eleanor Parker, Agnes Moorehead, Ellen Corby, Hope Emerson, Jan Sterling, Jane Darwell, Gertrude Michael. Remarkable performances in stark record of Parker going to prison and becoming hardened criminal after exposure to brutal jail life. Remade as HOUSE OF WOMEN. ●

Caged Heat (1974) C-84m. ½ D: Jonathan Demme. Juanita Brown, Erica Gavin, Roberta Collins, Rainbeaux Smith, Barbara Steele, Toby Carr-Rafelson. Demme's first feature is tongue-in-cheek but otherwise typical women's prison flick, chiefly novel for being set in the U.S. instead of some banana republic, plus neat turn by Steele as wheelchair-bound warden. Has a sizable cult following. Aka RENEGADE GIRLS. [R] ▼●

Cahill U.S. Marshal (1973) C-103m.  D: Andrew V. McLaglen. John Wayne, George Kennedy, Gary Grimes, Neville Brand, Marie Windsor, Harry Carey, Jr. Marshal Wayne's law enforcement duties

Caine Mutiny, The (1954) C-125m. * D: Edward Dmytryk. Humphrey Bogart, Jose Ferrer, Van Johnson, Robert Francis, May Wynn, Fred MacMurray, E. G. Marshall, Lee Marvin, Tom Tully, Claude Akins. WW2 Naval officers Johnson and Francis mutiny against paranoid, unpopular Capt. Queeg (Bogart) and are court-martialed in this exciting adaptation (by Stanley Roberts) of Herman Wouk's Pulitzer Prize novel. Wartime mutiny scene during typhoon still packs a wallop. Followed by a TVM in 1988. ▼●●

Cairo (1942) 101m.  D: W.S. Van Dyke II. Jeanette MacDonald, Robert Young, Ethel Waters, Reginald Owen, Lionel Atwill, Dooley Wilson. Musi-comedy spoof of WW2 spy films is strained, although stars are pleasant and production is well mounted. ▼

Cake Eaters, The (2009) C-86m.  D: Mary Stuart Masterson. Elizabeth Ashley, Jayce Bartok, Bruce Dern, Miriam Shor, Aaron Stanford, Kristen Stewart, Talia Balsam, Melissa Leo, Jesse L. Martin. In a quiet upstate N.Y. town, teen Stewart (who's afflicted with a neuromuscular disease) is obsessed with losing her virginity to Stanford. His older brother (Bartok), a failed musician, wants to rekindle a romance, and their just-widowed father (Dern) is in a long-term relationship with Ashley, Stewart's grandmother. Potentially powerful kitchen-sink drama is surprisingly mild and inconsequential, but Ashley and especially Dern are a pleasure to watch. Bartok also scripted; feature directing debut for Masterson. [R])

is irresistible as the bombastic, rootin'-tootin' title character in this lively musical, with Keel as Wild Bill Hickok, who only begins to realize his feelings for her when she makes a stab at becoming more "feminine." Sammy Fain—Paul Francis Webster score includes the Oscar-winning "Secret Love." Jane Alexander later played Calamity in a 1984 TV movie. ▼●●

Calamity Jane and Sam Bass (1949) C-85m. *½ D: George Sherman. Yvonne De Carlo, Howard Duff, Dorothy Hart, Lloyd Bridges, Milburn Stone. Tattered retelling of 19th-century cowgirl and Texas outlaw, with De Carlo and Duff a disinterested duo.

Calendar Girl (1993) C-90m.  D: John Whitesell. Jason Priestley, Gabriel Olds, Jerry O'Connell, Joe Pantoliano, Steve Railsback, Kurt Fuller, Stephen Tobolowsky, Emily Warfield, Maxwell Caulfield, Stephanie Anderson, Chubby Checker. Pat, overly familiar coming-of-age tale of three high school grads who head off to L.A. in 1962 to seek out their idol, Marilyn Monroe. Ultimately harmless, but you've seen it a million times before. One of the executive producers was Penny Marshall. [PG-13] ▼●

Revisionist beach party movie finds nerd Christopher trying desperately to fit in with the surfing crowd, blind to the fact that their lives are even emptier than his. Strong drama sometimes bites off more than it can chew, but overall fairly compelling and surprisingly erotic; Wynn also wrote the screenplay. [R]▼

California Split (1974) C-108m. ½ D: Robert Altman. George Segal, Elliott Gould, Ann Prentiss, Gwen Welles, Joseph Walsh, Bert Remsen, Jeff Goldblum. Realistic but rambling look at two compulsive gamblers, their strange lifestyles, and the emptiness of winning. Altman's multi-channel soundtrack only adds to the muddle. DVD version is 3m. shorter, due to music rights issues. Panavision. [R]▶

California Suite (1978) C-103m.  D: Herbert Ross. Jane Fonda, Alan Alda, Maggie Smith, Michael Caine, Walter Matthau, Elaine May, Richard Pryor, Bill Cosby, Gloria Gifford, Sheila Frazier, Herb Edelman, Denise Galik. Four Neil Simon skits set at the Beverly Hills Hotel (and adapted from his Broadway hit). Oscar-winning Smith and husband Caine as gently bickering Britishers in town for Academy Awards come off best; Pryor and Cosby as unfunnily combative "friends" are the worst. Pleasant time-filler, with nice jazz score by Claude Bolling. [PG] ▼●●

Caligula (1980) C-156m. *½ D: Tinto Brass. Malcolm McDowell, Peter O'Toole, Teresa Ann Savoy, Helen Mirren, John Gielgud, Guido Mannari. Film's first $15 million porno (to say nothing of home) movie, produced by Penthouse and set in Rome in the 1st century A.G. (After Guccione), follows ruthless ruler through endless series of decapitations and disembowelings. Chutzpah and 6m. of not-bad hard-core footage earn this half a star for the faithful, but most viewers will be rightfully repelled. And besides, Jay Robinson does much better by the title character in THE ROBE and DEMETRIUS AND THE GLADIATORS. Reissued in 105m., R-rated version—which is considerably changed. [R—edited from original unrated version] ▼●●

Callan (1974-British) C-106m. ½ D: Don Sharp. Edward Woodward, Eric Porter, Carl Mohner, Catherine Schell, Peter Egan. Adequate drama of aging secret agent Woodward, demoted because he cares too much about his adversaries, assigned to kill a German businessman. Woodward had previously played same role on British TV. Video title: THE NEUTRALIZER. ▼

Callas Forever (2002-Italian-French-Spanish-British-Romanian) C-111m.  D: Franco Zeffirelli. Fanny Ardant, Jeremy Irons, Joan Plowright, Jay Rodan, Gabriel Garko, Manuel de Blas, Justino Díaz. Fictional imagining of the great opera diva Maria Callas at the end of her storied career. Her former manager comes back into her life and convinces her to regain her passion by doing a film of Carmen in which she would lip-sync to her great recordings of the past. Sumptuous production values and fine acting make this worth seeing if you are a fan of opera, Callas, or Zeffirelli (who actually directed Callas onstage several times). Barely released theatrically in the U.S. ▶

Callaway Went Thataway (1951) 81m. ½ D: Norman Panama, Melvin Frank. Fred MacMurray, Dorothy McGuire, Howard Keel, Jesse White, Fay Roope, Natalie Schafer, Stan Freberg. Gentle spoof of early-TV "Hopalong Cassidy" craze, with Keel as lookalike who impersonates veteran cowboy star for promotional purposes; good fun until it starts getting serious. Several MGM stars make cameo appearances.

Calle 54 (2000-French-Spanish) C-105m.  D: Fernando Trueba. Chucho Valdes, Gato Barbieri, Jerry Gonzalez, Tito Puente, Eliane Elias, Chico O'Farrill, Bebo Valdes. Fans of Latin jazz will want to catch Oscar-winning director Trueba's valentine to the music he grew up loving. With cameras ready to catch every moment, the filmmaker invited several Latin musicians into an N.Y.C. recording studio, then traveled to their hometowns to provide glimpses into their lives. Particularly gratifying to see Tito Puente still cookin' toward the end of his life. [G] ▼▶

Caller, The (1989) C-97m.  D: Arthur Allan Seidelman. Malcolm McDowell, Madolyn Smith. Strange two-character mystery set mostly in an isolated cabin in the woods; the verbal sparring partners are not what they seem to be. Partly effective, but goes on much too long; might have worked as a Twilight Zone episode. Shot in Italy in 1987. [R] ▼

Call Him Mr. Shatter (1974-British) C-90m. *½ D: Michael Carreras. Stuart Whitman, Ti Lung, Lily Li, Peter Cushing, Anton Diffring. Hammer's entry into the Kung Fu market, begun by Monte Hellman, stars Whitman as a burned-out hit man on assignment in Hong Kong. Plenty of action, but nothing to hold it together; presence of three cinematographers is a tip-off to extensive production woes. Aka SHATTER. [R] ▼●●

Call Me (1988) C-96m. ½ D: Sol-lace Mitchell. Patricia Charbonneau, Patti D'Arbanville, Sam Freed, Boyd Gaines,

Stephen McHattie, Steve Buscemi, John Seitz, David Strathairn. Horny reporter saddled with a lackluster boyfriend begins receiving obscene phone calls and almost finds herself enjoying the experience. Very well acted by Charbonneau, but too many of the supporting roles are weakly cast; excessive melodrama detracts from what could have been a more compelling psychological study. [R] ▼●

Call Me Bwana (1963) C-103m.  D: Gordon Douglas. Bob Hope, Anita Ekberg, Edie Adams, Lionel Jeffries, Arnold Palmer. Hope and Adams on jungle safari encounter Ekberg and Jeffries and nothing much happens. The ladies are lovely. ▼●

Call Me Madam (1953) C-114m.  D: Walter Lang. Ethel Merman, Donald O'Connor, George Sanders, Vera-Ellen, Billy DeWolfe, Walter Slezak, Lilia Skala. Often stazy musical from Irving Berlin tuner based on Perle Mesta's life as Washington, D.C., hostess and Liechtenstein ambassador. Merman is blowsy delight. Songs include "The Best Thing for You," "It's a Lovely Day Today," "You're Just in Love." ▽

Call Me Mister (1951) C-95m. ½ D: Lloyd Bacon. Betty Grable, Dan Dailey, Danny Thomas, Dale Robertson, Benay Venuta, Richard Boone, Frank Fontaine, Jeffrey Hunter. Acceptable plot line helps buoy this musical. Soldier Dailey, based in Japan, goes AWOL to patch up marriage with Grable traveling with USO troupe. Bears little resemblance to the Broadway revue on which it's supposedly based. An unbilled Bobby Short sings "Going Home Train."

Call Northside 777 (1948) 111m. ½ D: Henry Hathaway. James Stewart, Richard Conte, Lee J. Cobb, Helen Walker, Moroni Olsen, E. G. Marshall. Absorbing drama of reporter Stewart convinced that convicted killer is innocent, trying to prove it; handled in semi-documentary style. Retitled: CALLING NORTHSIDE 777. ▼●●

Call of the Wild, The (1935) 81m.  D: William Wellman. Clark Gable, Loretta Young, Jack Oakie, Reginald Owen, Frank Conroy. More Hollywood than Jack London, this Yukon adventure/romance is lots of fun, and Owen a fine snarling villain. Original release was 95m. Remade in 1972 and as a TV movie in 1976, 1993, and 1997. ▽

Call of the Wild (1972-British-French-German-Italian-Spanish) C-100m. ½ D: Ken Annakin. Charlton Heston, Michele Mercier, Maria Rohm, Rik Battaglia. Lackluster version of the Jack London adventure classic, produced by a multinational film combine and wasting the talents of a diverse cast. One redeeming quality: the striking Finnish scenery. [PG] ▼●

Call the Cops! SEE: Find the Lady

Camelot (1967) C-178m. *½ D: Joshua Logan. Richard Harris, Vanessa Redgrave, Franco Nero, David Hemmings, Lionel

Jeffries. Appalling film version of Lerner-Loewe musical has only good orchestrations and sporadically good acting to recommend it; no one can sing and production looks cheap, in spite of big budget. This did, however, win Oscars for Costumes, Scoring, and Art Direction/Set Decoration. Film's nonstop use of close-ups may help it on TV screens. Panavision. ▼●●

Camera Buff (1979-Polish) C-107m. ½ D: Krzysztof Kieslowski. Jerzy Stuhr, Malgorzata Zabkowska, Ewa Pokas, Stefan Czyzewski, Jerzy Nowak. Kieslowski's first international success is a compelling story about an ordinary workingman who buys an 8mm camera so he can shoot home movies as soon as his wife gives birth. Instead, he becomes galvanized by the power and fascination of the camera and ignores his wife and daughter in the process. A somewhat autobiographical story of a man's artistic and political awakening, this is just as powerful as the day it was made. Aka AMATOR. ▼●

Cameraman, The (1928) 69m.  D: Edward Sedgwick. Buster Keaton, Marceline Day, Harold Goodwin, Sidney Bracy, Harry Gribbon, Edward Brophy. Buster plays a lovesick would-be newsreel cameraman in this entertaining silent comedy, a cut below his masterpieces but still brimming with invention, ingenious set pieces, and big laughs. Remade with Red Skelton as WATCH THE BIRDIE. ▼●●

Camila (1984-Argentine) C-105m. ½ D: Maria Luisa Bemberg. Susu Pecoraro, Imanol Arias, Hector Alterio. Shades of ELVIRA MADIGAN, in a story based on 19th-century Argentine fact, about a Jesuit priest and a young Catholic socialite who commit love on the lam as the authorities stalk them for 500 miles. Interesting, but never altogether compelling. ▼●

Camilla (1994-Canadian-British) C-95m. ½ D: Deepa Mehta. Jessica Tandy, Bridget Fonda, Hume Cronyn, Elias Koteas, Maury Chaykin, Graham Greene, Ranjit Chowdhry, Atom Egoyan, Don McKellar. Tandy, in her final film, is the sole reason to see this otherwise so-so road movie about the budding friendship between a young would-be singer-songwriter (Fonda) and an elderly, eccentric (and high-spirited) former concert violinist. Cronyn plays Tandy's former lover, and their on-screen time together is something special. [PG-13] ▼●

Camille (1937) 108m. ½ D: George Cukor. Greta Garbo, Robert Taylor, Lionel Barrymore, Elizabeth Allan, Laura Hope Crews, Henry Daniell, Joan Brodel (Leslie). Beautiful MGM production; in one of her most famous roles, Garbo is Dumas' tragic heroine who must sacrifice her own happiness in order to prove her love. Taylor is a bit stiff as Armand, but Daniell is a superb villain. Filmed before in 1915 (with Clara Kimball Young), 1917 (Theda Bara), and 1921 (Nazimova, with Rudolph Valentino as Armand). Remade for TV in 1984 with Greta Scacchi. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Camille Claudel (1988-French) C-149m.  D: Bruno Nuytten. Isabelle Adjani, Gérard Depardieu, Laurent Grevill, Alain Cuny, Madeleine Robinson, Katrine Boorman. Overblown biography of the French sculptress (Adjani), who has a "madness of mud" and who single-mindedly pursues her art; Depardieu plays Auguste Rodin, with whom she has a complex, turbulent relationship. Potentially provocative story is emotionally uninvolved, with an astonishing lack of depth. Wonderful production values and period detail, but all for naught. Cinematographer Nuytten's directorial debut. Original French running time 173m. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Camorra (1986-Italian) C-115m. ½ D: Lina Wertmüller. Angela Molina, Harvey Keitel, Daniel Ezralow, Francisco Rabal, Paolo Bonacelli, Isa Danieli, Lorraine Bracco. Complex tale of drug traffic, murder, and mayhem, focusing on the trials of ex-prostitute Molina; well-meaning in its depiction of how preteens are used and abused by drug kingpins. Generally better than the director's later work, but miles below her gems of the 1970s. [R] ▼

Camouflage (1977-Polish) C-106m. ½ D: Krzysztof Zanussi. Piotr Garlicki, Zbigniew Zapasiewicz, Christine Paul, Mariusz Dmochowski. Arrogant tenured professor Zapasiewicz challenges the independence of idealistic teaching assistant Garlicki at a summer school-camp for linguists. Pungently funny satire about conformity, the Communist hierarchy.

Camp (2003) C-114m. ½ D: Todd Graff. Daniel Letterle, Joanna Chilcoat, Robin De Jesus, Tiffany Taylor, Sasha Allen, Anna Kendrick, Don Dixon. A straight skater boy at a performing arts camp gets caught in a love triangle with a lovelorn ingenue and a gay Puerto Rican drag queen. Clichéd scripting hampers entertaining, easy-to-like backstage teen musical, but there's no denying the talented young cast. Divas-in-training Allen and Taylor are standouts. Writer and first-time director Graff, a former theater camper himself, knows his milieu; there's even a funny cameo from Broadway god Stephen Sondheim. [PG-13] ▼●

Camp Nowhere (1994) C-96m. ½ D: Jonathan Prince, Jonathan Jackson, Andrew Keegan, Marne Patterson, Melody Kay, Christopher Lloyd, M. Emmet Walsh, Wendy Makkena, Kate Mulgrew, Burgess Meredith, Peter Scolari, Jessica Marie Alba. Computer geeks, show biz wannabes, kid commandos, and other neighborhood cast-offs band together to form their own communal summer camp, supervised by token adult Lloyd, who has somehow managed to convince parents he's a responsible authority figure. Assembly-line, end-of-summer release occasionally has a wittier gag than expected. [PG] ▼●●

Campus Man (1987) C-94m.  D: Ron Casden. John Dye, Steve Lyon, Morgan Fairchild, Jim Delaney, Kathleen Wilhoite, Miles O'Keefe. Glossy but vacuous teen comedy of collegiate entrepreneur (i.e. hustler) who publishes a male beefcake calendar featuring his roommate, a hunky diver, and spawning all kinds of complications. Based on story of Arizona State University alumnus Todd Headlee (the film's associate producer), whose ASU calendar launched the nationwide craze. [PG] ▼●●

Canadian Bacon (1995) C-91m. ½ D: Michael Moore. Alan Alda, John Candy, Rhea Perlman, Kevin Pollak, Rip Torn, Kevin J. O'Connor, Bill Nunn, G. D. Spradlin, Steven Wright, James Belushi, Brad Sullivan. In order to gain a strong platform for re-election, the president of the United States does the unthinkable and declares war on our neighbor to the north, Canada. Moore stumbles with his second film after the terrific ROGER & ME. A top cast is wasted in this one-joke premise which lacks the satiric edge it needs. [PG] ▼●●

Canadian Pacific (1949) C-95m. ½ D: Edwin L. Marin. Randolph Scott, Jane Wyatt, J. Carol Naish, Victor Jory, Nancy Olson. Scott is railroad surveyor helping with construction of train link, fighting Indians while romancing Wyatt and Olson.

Canadians, The (1961) C-85m.  D: Burt Kennedy. Robert Ryan, John Dehner, Torin Thatcher, John Sutton, Teresa Stratas. Cornball nonsense about Mounties who pacify war-happy Sioux. Film features Metropolitan Opera singer Stratas to no advantage. Filmed in Canada; Kennedy's first feature as director. CinemaScope.

Can-Can (1960) C-131m. ½ D: Walter Lang. Frank Sinatra, Shirley MacLaine, Maurice Chevalier, Louis Jourdan, Juliet Prowse. Lackluster version of Cole Porter musical of 1890s Paris involving lawyer Sinatra defending MacLaine's right to perform "daring" dance in her nightclub. Chevalier and Jourdan try to inject charm, but Sinatra is blasé and MacLaine shrill. Songs: "C'est Magnifique," "I Love Paris," "Let's Do It," "Just One of Those Things." Todd-AO. ▼●●

Cancel My Reservation (1972) C-99m. BOMB D: Paul Bogart. Bob Hope, Eva Marie Saint, Ralph Bellamy, Forrest Tucker, Anne Archer, Keenan Wynn, Ned Beatty, Chief Dan George. Hope should have canceled this movie, a time-wasting turkey about a troubled talk-show host who gets involved in a murder case in Arizona. Based on a Louis L'Amour novel! [G] ▼

Candidate, The (1972) C-109m.  D: Michael Ritchie. Robert Redford, Peter

Boyle, Don Porter, Allen Garfield, Karen Carlson, Melvyn Douglas, Quinn Redeker, Michael Lerner, Kenneth Tobey. Keen-eyed political satire doesn't stray far from reality. Redford is idealist talked into running for Senate with promise of absolute integrity in campaign, since he's bound to lose—or is he? Oscar-winning screenplay by Jeremy Lerner. [PG]▼●●

Candlehoe (1978) C-101m.  D: Norman Tokar. David Niven, Jodie Foster, Helen Hayes, Leo McKern, Veronica Quilligan, Ian Sharrock, Vivian Pickles. Con man McKern tries to pass off orphan Foster as Hayes' heiress in order to locate hidden family treasure. Entertaining Disney comedy filmed in England, with Niven as disguise-laden butler. [G]▼●●

Candy (1968-U.S.-Italian-French) C-124m.  D: Christian Marquand. Ewa Aulin, Richard Burton, Marlon Brando, Charles Aznavour, James Coburn, John Huston, Walter Matthau, Ringo Starr, John Astin. Strained sexual satire about a nubile blonde who is attacked by every man she meets. Fair share of funny moments and bright performances (particularly by Burton and Astin), but not enough to sustain 124m. Adapted from Terry Southern and Mason Hoffenberg's book by Buck Henry. [R]▼●

Candy (2006-Australian) C-108m. ½ D: Neil Armfield. Abbie Cornish, Heath Ledger, Geoffrey Rush, Tom Budge, Roberto Meza Mont, Tony Martin, Noni Hazlehurst. Murky account of the evolving relationship between two attractive young people, a poet (Ledger) and a painter (Cornish), both of whom are hooked on heroin. Well acted, but the scenario is overly familiar. Armfield and Luke Davies scripted, based on Davies' novel. [R]●

Candyman (1992) C-93m.  D: Bernard Rose. Virginia Madsen, Tony Todd, Xander Berkeley, Kasi Lemmons, Vanessa Williams, DeJuan Guy, Michael Cuklin. Effectively eerie psychological chiller, filled with clever, unusual touches, about an academic (Madsen) who begins researching the legend of a mysterious serial killer named Candyman (Todd); this leads her to Chicago's crime-infested Cabrini-Green public housing project. Rose (who plays the role of "Archie Walsh") also scripted, from Clive Barker's novel The Forbidden (which is set in Liverpool). Followed by two sequels. [R]▼●●

Candyman: Farewell to the Flesh (1995) C-94m.  D: Bill Condon. Tony Todd, Kelly Rowan, Timothy Carhart, Veronica Cartwright, William O'Leary, Fay Hauser, Bill Nunn, Matt Clark. Title avenger is resurrected in mediocre sequel to terrorize an aristocratic New Orleans family just in time for Mardi Gras. Good production values, including some convincing local color, are undermined by obvious plotting and non-descript supporting cast. Bland but for the menacing Todd in the title role. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [R]▼●●

Candy Mountain (1987-Canadian-French-Swiss) C-91m.  D: Robert Frank, Rudy Wurlitzer. Kevin J. O'Connor, Harris Yulin, Tom Waits, Bulle Ogier, Roberts Blossom, Leon Redbone, Dr. John, Joe Strummer, David Johansen (Buster Poindexter). Uneven account of has-been rocker O'Connor and his trip through America and Canada in search of elusive guitarist Yulin. Intriguing collaboration between photographer/filmmaker Frank, screenwriter Wurlitzer, and an eclectic cast . . . but the results are too often dull. [R]▼

Candy Stripe Nurses (1974) C-80m. *½ D: Allan Holleb. Candice Rialson, Robin Mattson, Maria Rojo, Kimberly Hyde, Dick Miller, Stanley Ralph Ross, Monte Landis, Tom Baker. Last of Roger Corman's five "nurse" pictures is tired sex comedy, focusing on antics of pretty volunteers; kept afloat by cast full of old hands at this sort of thing. Aka SWEET CANDY. [R]▼●

Can Hieronymus Merkin Ever Forget Mercy Humppe and Find True Happiness? (1969-British) C-106m. *½ D: Anthony Newley. Anthony Newley, Joan Collins, Milton Berle, Connie Kreski, George Jessel, Stubby Kaye. Fellini-influenced mess about song-and-dance man who reviews his debauched past. Low-grade in all departments, though Connie reveals why she was "Playmate of the Year." Newley and Collins were then real-life husband and wife. [R—edited from original X rating]

Can I Do It . . . Til I Need Glasses? (1977) C-72m. BOMB D: I. Robert Levy. Victor Dunlap, Moose Carlson, Walter Olkewicz, Joey Camen, Ann Kellogg, Robin Williams. Sophomoric series of sex-related skits, most of which would bore immature 11-year-olds. Williams appears very briefly, in footage tacked on after the film's premiere (and after his Mork and Mindy stardom). [R]▼●

Cannery Row (1982) C-120m. ½ D: David S. Ward. Nick Nolte, Debra Winger, Audra Lindley, Frank McRae, M. Emmet Walsh, Sunshine Parker, Santos Morales, narrated by John Huston. Entertaining tug-of-war romance between baseball-player-turned-marine-biologist Nolte and drifted-turned-floozy Winger is hampered by sloppy, self-conscious direction, awkward continuity. Attractive performances by Nolte and Winger; great set design by Richard MacDonald. Based on John Steinbeck's Cannery Row and Sweet Thursday. Ward's directorial debut. [PG]▼●●

Cannibal Girls (1973-Canadian) C-84m.  D: Ivan Reitman. Eugene Levy, Andrea Martin, Ronald Ulrich, Randall Carpenter, Bonnie Neison. Confused, convoluted low-budget Canadian import, an early effort by young talents Reitman, Levy, and Martin, has funny first half about a couple stranded in eerie town where there's a rather strange restaurant. Second half falls apart. Warning buzzer precedes gore scenes (which aren't much), and doorbell-like sound announces they're over. [R]

Cannibal! The Musical (1998) C-92m. ½ D: Trey Parker. Juan Schwartz (Trey Parker), Dian Bachar, Ian Hardin, John Hegel, Matt Stone, Toddy Walters. Wacky, low-budget musical based on real-life story of Alferd Packer, who led an expedition that degenerated into cannibalism in the Colorado Rockies, circa 1874. Gross-out gags alternate for screen time with some pretty good songs; our favorite is "Shpadoinkle." First feature for the SOUTH PARK team of Parker and Stone. Made in 1993. [R]▼

Cannonball (1976) C-93m.  D: Paul Bartel. David Carradine, Veronica Hamel, Bill McKinney, Gerrit Graham, Robert Carradine, Belinda Balaski, Judy Canova, Carl Gottlieb. Comic account of cross-country road race first depicted in THE GUMBALL RALLY. Funny moments are muted by unpleasant characters and inept stuntwork. As usual, many of Bartel's pals and coworkers appear in bits, including Sylvester Stallone, Roger Corman, and directors Martin Scorsese, Jonathan Kaplan, and Joe Dante. [PG]▼

Cannonball Run II (1984) C-108m. BOMB D: Hal Needham. Burt Reynolds, Dom DeLuise, Shirley MacLaine, Marilu Henner, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis, Jr., Susan Anton, Catherine Bach, Ricardo Montalban, Jim Nabors, Charles Nelson Reilly, Telly Savalas, Jamie Farr, Jack Elam, Frank Sinatra, Sid Caesar, and many others. Sequel to 1981 box-office hit looks like someone's bad home movies. Amateurish action comedy with tons of tacky guest-star cameos. What a waste! Final film roles for Martin and Sinatra. [PG]▼

Can She Bake a Cherry Pie? (1983) C-90m. ½ D: Henry Jaglom. Karen Black, Michael Emil, Michael Margotta, Frances Fisher, Martin Harvey Friedberg. Neurotic, unpredictable Black, whose husband has just left her, takes up with Emil, who never seems to stop talking. A couple of chuckles, but all the rest is rambling, superficial. [R]▼

Can't Buy Me Love (1987) C-94m. ½ D: Steve Rash. Patrick Dempsey, Amanda Peterson, Courtney Gains, Tina Caspary, Seth Green, Sharon Farrell. Known as BOY RENTS GIRL during production, story has nerdy Dempsey paying senior heartthrob Peterson a hard-earned grand to pose as his girlfriend, correctly surmising his own stock will rise. Sentimental rendering of a terrific high school comedy premise. Peterson is excellent, Dempsey just adequate. Remade as LOVE DON'T COST A THING. [PG-13]▼

Canterbury Tale, A (1944-British) 124m.  D: Michael Powell, Emeric Pressburger. Eric Portman, Sheila Sim, John Sweet, Dennis Price, Esmond Knight, Charles Hawtrey, Hay Petrie. Curious and disarming film from the Powell-Pressburger writing-and-directing team draws on British eccentricities—and provincial flavor—to flesh out its simple story about three people whose lives cross in a small English village during the war. There's only the slightest tangent with the Chaucer work from which it draws its title. American version with added footage of Kim Hunter runs 95m. and doesn't retain the charm of the original.▼

Canterbury Tales, The (1971-Italian-French) C-121m. BOMB D: Pier Paolo Pasolini. Laura Betti, Ninetto Davoli, Pier Paolo Pasolini, Hugh Griffith, Josephine Chaplin, Michael Balfour, Jenny Runacre. Travelers recount a number of Chaucer stories—which, unfortunately, are enacted for the viewer. Tiresome, offensive, graphically sadistic, with Pasolini appearing as Chaucer. Italian-English cast; the second of the director's medieval trilogy. Also shown in 109m. English-language version.▼

Canterville Ghost, The (1944) 96m.  D: Jules Dassin. Charles Laughton, Robert Young, Margaret O'Brien, William Gargan, Reginald Owen, "Rags" Ragland, Una O'Connor, Mike Mazurki, Peter Lawford. Enjoyable fantasy, loosely adapted from Oscar Wilde's short story, of 17th-century ghost Laughton, spellbound until descendant, WW2 soldier Young, helps him perform heroic deed. Remade for TV in 1986 (with John Gielgud) and 1996 (with Patrick Stewart).▼

Can't Hardly Wait (1998) C-98m.  D: Deborah Kaplan, Harry Elfont. Jennifer Love Hewitt, Ethan Embry, Charlie Korsmo, Lauren Ambrose, Peter Facinelli, Seth Green, Michelle Brookhurst. On high school graduation night, Embry tries to work up the nerve to express his long-pent-up feelings for Hewitt—who's just broken up with the class jock. Set in and around a wild house party, this cheerful but predictable teen comedy comes off as a poor relation to AMERICAN GRAFFITI aimed at teens of the 1990s. Jenna Elfman, Melissa Joan Hart, Breckin Meyer, and Jerry O'Connell appear unbilled. [PG-13] ▼●●

Can't Stop the Music (1980) C-118m.  D: Nancy Walker. The Village People, Valerie Perrine, Bruce Jenner, Steve Guttenberg, Paul Sand, Tammy Grimes, June Havoc, Barbara Rush, Jack Weston, Leigh Taylor-Young. One or two catchy production numbers aren't enough to salvage otherwise stiff comedy about the music-publishing biz, though some will feel they have to see what V. People and Jenner are doing in same film. Gay subtext abounds, despite eye-boggling profile shots of Perrine. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Canyon Passage (1946) C-92m.  D: Jacques Tourneur. Dana Andrews, Brian Donlevy, Susan Hayward, Ward Bond, Andy Devine, Lloyd Bridges. Plotty, colorful Western mixing action, beautiful scenery, heated love relationships, and Hoagy Carmichael singing "Ole Buttermilk Sky." Well made and entertaining. ▼●

Cape Fear (1962) 105m.  D: J. Lee Thompson. Gregory Peck, Robert Mitchum, Polly Bergen, Martin Balsam, Lori Martin, Jack Kruschen, Telly Savalas, Barrie Chase, Edward Platt. Mitchum is memorably (and believably) creepy as a wily Southern ex-con who blames lawyer Peck for his incarceration and plots an insidious revenge on his family. Dated only in its lack of explicitness, but still daring for its time. Based on John D. MacDonald's novel The Executioners. Musical score by Bernard Herrmann is reminiscent of his best work with Hitchcock. Remade in 1991. ▼●●

Cape Fear (1991) C-128m. ½ D: Martin Scorsese. Robert De Niro, Nick Nolte, Jessica Lange, Juliette Lewis, Joe Don Baker, Robert Mitchum, Gregory Peck, Martin Balsam, Illeana Douglas, Fred Dalton Thompson. Released from prison after 14 years, a self-educated wacko vows to make a living hell for the lawyer who sent him up. Remake of the 1962 thriller fleshes out its characters and adds fascinating psychological layers—but turns a gripping, realistic story into an overblown, unbelievable horror film: CAPE FEAR for the Freddy Krueger generation. Scorsese's brilliant command of the medium is squandered on severely unpleasant material (with an A-list of collaborators, including cinematographer Freddie Francis and composer Elmer Bernstein, adapting Bernard Herrmann's original score). Major asset: exceptionally good performances (including amusingly cast cameos by Mitchum, Peck, and Balsam, who starred in the '62 movie). Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Caper of the Golden Bulls, The (1967)

C-104m. BOMB D: Russell Rouse. Stephen Boyd, Yvette Mimieux, Giovanna Ralli, Walter Slezak, Vito Scotti. Lots of bull but not much gold in this unendurable "thriller" about bank heist in Pamplona. ▼

Cape Town Affair, The (1967) C-103m.

 D: Robert D. Webb. Claire Trevor, James Brolin, Jacqueline Bisset, Bob Courtney, Jon Whiteley, Gordon Milholland. Pedestrian remake of PICKUP ON SOUTH STREET, made in South Africa. Interest here is seeing Bisset and Brolin at the beginnings of their careers and Trevor making something different of the old Thelma Ritter role. Story deals with a Communist spy ring in Cape Town and an elusive envelope containing top secret microfilm. ▼●

Capitaine Conan (1996-French) C-132m.

 D: Bertrand Tavernier. Philippe Torreton, Samuel Le Bihan, Bernard Le Coq, Catherine Rich, François Berleand, Pierre Val. Powerful indictment of militarism and false heroism, centering on reckless title character, who leads French troops in a secret war in the Balkans following the end of WW1, but pays a heavy price for his valor. Torreton won a French César award for his forceful performance, as did Tavernier for his virtuoso direction. Super 35. ▼●

Capone (1975) C-101m. BOMB D: Steve Carver. Ben Gazzara, Susan Blakely, Harry Guardino, John Cassavetes, Sylvester Stallone, Frank Campanella. Gazzara has cotton in his jowls and a cigar in his mouth, making most of the dialogue in this gangster saga incomprehensible—but that's OK, you've heard it all before. One big shoot-out is stock footage from THE ST. VAL-ENTINE'S DAY MASSACRE. [R]

Capote (2005) C-115m. ½ D: Bennett Miller. Philip Seymour Hoffman, Catherine Keener, Clifton Collins, Jr., Chris Cooper, Bruce Greenwood, Bob Balaban, Amy Ryan, Mark Pellegrino. First-rate film about author Truman Capote concentrates on his relentless (and often ruthless) efforts to research and write the seminal book In Cold Blood—and what it cost him. Hoffman won a Best Actor Oscar for his brilliantly nuanced performance, but entire cast is excellent, and director Miller and screenwriter Dan Futterman incisively convey the ambiguity in Capote's motives and methods. Based on Gerald Clarke's book. Miller's first fiction feature. Same story is recounted in INFAMOUS. Super 35. [R] ●

Caprice (1967) C-98m. BOMB D: Frank Tashlin. Doris Day, Richard Harris, Ray Walston, Jack Kruschen, Edward Mulhare,

Lilia Skala, Irene Tsu, Michael J. Pollard. Terrible vehicle for Doris as industrial spy plunged into international intrigue with fellow agent Harris. Muddled, unfunny, straining to be "mod." CinemaScope. D

Capricorn One (1978) C-124m.  D: Peter Hyams. Elliott Gould, James Brolin, Hal Holbrook, Sam Waterston, Karen Black, O. J. Simpson, Telly Savalas, Brenda Vaccaro, Denise Nicholas, David Huddleston, Robert Walden, David Doyle. Whirlwind contemporary adventure plays like a condensed Republic serial. First manned flight to Mars turns out to be a hoax, and when capsule supposedly burns up in re-entry, the astronauts suddenly realize they're expendable. Lots of great chases punctuated by Hyams' witty dialogue; not always plausible, but who cares? Panavision. [PG] **▼●●

Captain America (1990) C-103m. *½ D: Albert Pyun. Matt Salinger, Ronny Cox, Ned Beatty, Darren McGavin, Scott Paulin, Michael Nouri, Kim Gillingham, Melinda Dillon, Billy Mumy. Dismayingly awful adaptation of the great Joe Simon-Jack Kirby comic book. Cap (Salinger) barely gets in one failed WW2 adventure pitted against Red Skull (Paulin), before being frozen in Alaska ice. Thawed out 50 years later, he spends too long in civvies before facing the Skull again. Clumsy, synthetic direction, actionless plot, boring opponents overwhelm the sincerity of Salinger's performance. Never released theatrically in the U.S. **▼

Captain Blood (1935) 119m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Lionel Atwill, Basil Rathbone, Ross Alexander, Guy Kibbee, Henry Stephenson, Robert Barrat, Donald Meek, J. Carrol Naish. Flynn's first swashbuckler, based on Rafael Sabatini's novel, scores a broadside. He plays Irish physician Peter Blood who is forced to become a pirate, teaming for short spell with French cut-throat Rathbone, but paying more attention to proper young lady de Havilland. Vivid combination of exciting sea battles, fencing duels, and tempestuous romance provides Flynn with a literally star-making vehicle. First original film score for Erich Wolfgang Korngold. Beware of 99m. reissue version. Also shown in computer-colored version. **▼●●

Captain Boycott (1947-British) 92m. ½ D: Frank Launder. Stewart Granger, Kathleen Ryan, Cecil Parker, Mervyn Johns, Alastair Sim. Poor Irish farmers band together to combat the abuses of their landlords in early 19th century; interesting but dramatically uneven, with misplaced components of humor and romance. Robert

Donat appears briefly as Charles Parnell; Parker has title role. **▼

Captain Carey, U.S.A. (1950) 83m.  D: Mitchell Leisen. Alan Ladd, Wanda Hendrix, Francis Lederer, Russ Tamblyn. Nicely turned account of ex-military officer Ladd returning to Italy to uncover informer who cost lives of villagers. Theme song "Mona Lisa" won an Oscar.

Captain Corelli's Mandolin (2001-U.S.-British) C-127m. ½ D: John Madden. Nicolas Cage, Penélope Cruz, John Hurt, Christian Bale, David Morrissey, Irene Papas, Piero Maggio, Patrick Malahide. A peaceful, tradition-bound Greek island is invaded by Italian troops during WW2, but they are no more warlike than the residents. Madden beautifully captures a sense of time and place, but the pace lags, the characterizations are inconsistent, and the love story between fun-loving Italian Cage and serious-minded Cruz (Spanish accent intact) is never as gripping as it's meant to be. Based on the novel by Louis de Bernieres. Panavision. [R] **▼●

Cobb, John Sutton, Antonio Moreno, Thomas Gomez, Alan Mowbray, Barbara Lawrence, George Zucco, Ray Roberts, Marc Lawrence, Reed Hadley, Jay Silverheels. Power, driven to avenge the cruel treatment of his family by Spanish Inquisitor (Sutton), eventually serves with Cortez (Romero) during his conquest of Mexico. Captain Kidd (1945) 89m.  D: Rowland V. Lee. Charles Laughton, Randolph Scott, Barbara Britton, Reginald Owen, John Carradine, Gilbert Roland, Sheldon Leonard. Even with Laughton, this is slow-going low-budget stuff. ▼

Unique blend of horror and swashbuckler genres follows sword-wielding stranger as he stalks new breed of vampire across European countryside. Artsy, exciting, almost intoxicatingly atmospheric chiller has developed considerable following; one of the best (and least typical) Hammer productions. Released in Britain as simply KRONOS. [R] ▼

Captain Lightfoot (1955) C-91m.  D: Douglas Sirk. Rock Hudson, Barbara Rush, Jeff Morrow, Finlay Currie, Kathleen Ryan. Fine, flavorful costume adventure about 19th-century Irish rebellion and one of its dashing heroes. Beautifully filmed on location in Ireland in CinemaScope.

Captain Newman, M.D. (1963) C-126m.  D: David Miller. Gregory Peck, Angie Dickinson, Tony Curtis, Eddie Albert, Jane Withers, Bobby Darin, Larry Storch, Bethel Leslie, Robert Duvall. Provocative, well-acted comedy-drama about dedicated Army psychiatrist Peck, battling bureaucracy and the macho military mentality on a stateside air base during WW2. Darin is particularly good as a troubled, ill-fated corporal. Based on Leo Rosten's best-selling novel. ▼

Captain Ron (1992) C-100m. BOMB D: Thom Eberhardt. Kurt Russell, Martin Short, Mary Kay Place, Benjamin Salisbury, Meadow Sisto, Emmanuel Logrono, Jorge Luis Ramos, J. A. Preston, Tanya Soler, John Scott Clough. Yuppies Get Away From It All by taking an inherited sailboat into the Caribbean, with eye-patched Russell (the very poor man's Robert Newton) at the helm. Dreadful time-waster establishes its comic credentials by giving Russell the funny role and Short the straight one; pirates and multiple falls into the drink are a given. Paul Anka (you tell us why) plays a boat salesman. [PG-13] ▼

Captains Courageous (1937) 116m. * D: Victor Fleming. Freddie Bartholomew,

Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore, Melvyn Douglas, Charley Grapewin, John Carradine, Mickey Rooney, Walter Kingsford. Captain Sindbad (1963-U.S.-West German) C-85m. ½ D: Byron Haskin. Guy Williams, Heidi Bruhl, Pedro Armendariz, Abraham Sofaer, Bernie Hamilton. Guy Williams is an energetic Sindbad in this elaborate, effects-filled but ponderous fantasy. ▼

Atmospheric wartime drama charting the shenanigans of cocky bush pilot Cagney, who joins the Canadian air force but refuses to follow regulations. ▼

Captain's Paradise, The (1953-British) 77m.  D: Anthony Kimmins. Alec Guinness, Yvonne De Carlo, Celia Johnson, Bill Fraser. Captain's Table, The (1960-British) C-90m.  D: Jack Lee. John Gregson, Peggy Cummins, Donald Sinden, Nadia Gray. Satisfactory comedy involving skipper of cargo vessel (Gregson) who is given trial command of luxury liner, and the chaos ensuing trying to keep order among crew and passengers. ▼

Captive City, The (1952) 90m.  D: Robert Wise. John Forsythe, Joan Camden, Harold J. Kennedy, Marjorie Crosland, Victor Sutherland, Ray Teal, Martin Milner. Small-city newspaper editor Forsythe gradually learns that the Mafia has taken over bookie operations formerly run by corrupt local businessmen. Based-on-fact drama is earnest and intelligent, with fine noir-style photography by Lee Garmes. Sen. Estes Kefauver provides an afterword.

Captive Heart, The (1946-British) 108m. ½ D: Basil Dearden. Michael Redgrave, Mervyn Johns, Basil Radford, Jack Warner, Jimmy Hanley, Gordon Jackson, Ralph Michael, Rachel Kempson. Compelling examination of British POWs during WW2 and their German captors with controlled, flawless performance by Redgrave and excellent supporting cast. Patrick Kirwan's story was scripted by Angus MacPhail and Guy Morgan. Original British running time: 98m. ▼

Captive Hearts (1987) C-97m.  D: Paul Almond, Noriyuki (Pat) Morita, Chris Makepeace, Mari Sato, Michael Sarrazin, Seth Sakai. American soldier shot down and taken prisoner in Japan during WW2 falls in love with a Japanese woman. If that sounds familiar, or simplistic, wait till you see the film! Easy to see why this barely made it to theaters. [PG] ▼

Captives (1995-U.S.-British) C-99m. ½ D: Angela Pope. Tim Roth, Julia Ormond, Colin Salmon, Keith Allen, Siobhan Redmond, Peter Capaldi. Unusual drama set in a contemporary London prison where a lonely female dentist ends up in a deadly game of blackmail when she falls for one of her convict patients. Some melodramatic silliness aside (including scenes of dental foreplay), this is a showcase for two highly skilled actors, Roth and Ormond. [R] ▼

Captivity (2007-U.S.-Russian) C-85m. BOMB D: Roland Joffé. Elisha Cuthbert, Daniel Gillies, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Michael Harney, Laz Alonso, Maggie Damon, Chrysta Olson. A supermodel is stalked, drugged, kidnapped, and imprisoned by a mysterious, unseen assailant. Vulgar, repulsive thriller earned notoriety for its lurid advertising campaign. It's a long way from Joffé's THE KILLING FIELDS. Also available in unrated version. Super 35. [R] ▼

Capture, The (1950) 91m. ½ D: John Sturges. Lew Ayres, Teresa Wright, Victor Jory, Jacqueline White, Jimmy Hunt, Barry Kelley, Duncan Renaldo. Oil field supervisor Ayres begins to ponder whether the payroll robber he shot was really an innocent man. Straightforward, well acted, but slow at times. ▼

Capturing the Friedmans (2003) C-107m. ½ D: Andrew Jarecki. Fascinating and deeply disturbing documentary about a notorious 1980s child molestation case that rocks a seemingly normal, happy, middle-class family on Long Island, N.Y. Thought-provoking examination of the relativity of truth seen through the prism of a domestic breakdown and the surrounding media frenzy. Anchored by amazing home-movie footage the Friedmans shot themselves, almost obsessively, throughout the years, which charts the family's disintegration. What to make of all this is (wisely) left to the viewer. ▼

Car, The (1977) C-95m. *½ D: Elliot Silverstein. James Brolin, Kathleen Lloyd, John Marley, Ronny Cox, R.G. Armstrong, John Rubinstein. Hokey thriller about a killer car demonically running down most of the cast. Twilight Zone once did a tidier, quite similar job in one third the time. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Caramel (2007-Lebanese-French) C-95m.

½ D: Nadine Labaki. Nadine Labaki, Yasmine Al Masri, Joanna Moukartzel, Gisèle Aouad, Adel Karam, Aziza Semaan, Siham Haddad. Lightly likable comedy-drama, reminiscent of such American fare as STEEL MAGNOLIAS and BEAUTY SHOP, about life, love, and leg waxing in and around a Lebanese beauty salon. Director Labaki is first among equals in fine ensemble cast as Layale, owner of the Si Belle beauty shop in downtown Beirut, who's so caught up in a humiliating affair with an inattentive married man that she's slow to note the handsome traffic cop who pines for her. Interesting look at lives of women in a society where men make most of the decisions and almost all of the rules. [PG] ▼

Carandiru (2003-Brazilian) C-148m. ½ D: Hector Babenco. Luiz Carlos Vasconcelos, Milhem Cortaz, Milton Gonçalves, Ivan de Almeida, Ailton Graça, Maria Luisa Mendonça, Rodrigo Santoro. Master filmmaker Babenco came back from serious illness to direct this story of real-life doctor Drauzio Varella, who took his cause for AIDS prevention inside the horrifying Brazilian state penitentiary Carandiru, becoming an eyewitness to degrading conditions that led to a deadly riot in 1992. Surprisingly conventional prison picture with standard-issue characters is rescued by the true nature of the tale and Babenco's smarts behind the camera. Based on Varella's book Carandiru Station. [R] ▼

Caravans (1978-U.S.-Iranian) C-123m. ½ D: James Fargo. Anthony Quinn, Jennifer O'Neill, Michael Sarrazin, Christopher Lee, Joseph Cotten, Barry Sullivan. Expensive-looking version of James Michener's contemporary desert epic about a search through the Middle East for the daughter (O'Neill) of a U.S. senator. Won't fool those who recognize it as just another updated version of THE SEARCHERS. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Carbine Williams (1952) 91m.  D: Richard Thorpe. James Stewart, Jean Hagen, Wendell Corey, Paul Stewart, James Arness. Sturdy history of the inventor of famed rifle, his problems with the law, and his simple family life. Stewart is most convincing in title role. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Carbon Copy (1981) C-92m.  D: Michael Schultz. George Segal, Susan Saint James, Denzel Washington, Jack Warden, Paul Winfield, Dick Martin, Tom Poston. Segal has hidden his identity as a Jew and become a successful corporate executive—until the arrival of his illegitimate 17-year-old son (Washington, in film debut), who is black. Silly, uneven, but not uninteresting blend of comedy and social drama. Written by Stanley Shapiro. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Card, The SEE: Promoter, The
Cardinal, The (1963) C-175m. ½ D: Otto Preminger. Tom Tryon, John Huston, Romy Schneider, Carol Lynley, Jill Haworth, Raf Vallone, Joseph Meinrad, Burgess Meredith,

Ossie Davis, John Saxon, Robert Morse, Dorothy Gish, Tullio Carminati, Maggie McNamara, Bill Hayes, Cecil Kellaway, Murray Hamilton, Patrick O'Neal, Chill Wills, Arthur Hunnicutt. Long, long story of an Irish-American's rise from priesthood to the College of Cardinals. Has some outstanding vignettes by old pros like Meredith, but emerges as an uneven, occasionally worthwhile film. Panavision. ▼●●

Care Bears Adventure in Wonderland!, The (1987-Canadian) C-75m.  D: Raymond Jafelice. Voices of Bob Dermer, Eva Almos, Dan Hennessy, Jim Henshaw, Colin Fox. The Care Bears follow Alice through the looking glass in this typically bland kiddie outing, with music by John Sebastian. [G]▼●

Care Bears Movie, The (1985-Canadian) C-75m.  D: Arna Selznick. Voices of Mickey Rooney, Georgia Engel. Songs by Carole King, John Sebastian. Animated feature based on heavily merchandised characters is strictly for toddlers, tough sledding for anyone older. Produced by Canadian Nelvana animation studio. Followed by two sequels and a TV series. [G]▼●

Care Bears Movie II, A New Generation, The (1986-Canadian-U.S.) C-77m. BOMB D: Dale Schott. Voices of Maxine Miller, Pam Hyatt, Hadley Kay. Your kids deserve better entertainment than this treacly stuff about the Kingdom of Caring. Prefab animation from the era of toy merchandising tie-ins. [G]▼●

Career (1959) 105m.  D: Joseph Anthony. Dean Martin, Anthony Franciosa, Shirley MacLaine, Carolyn Jones, Joan Blackman, Robert Middleton, Donna Douglas. Occasionally shrill, generally forceful presentation of an actor's (Franciosa's) tribulations in seeking Broadway fame; Jones is excellent as lonely talent agent.▼●

Career Girls (1997-British) C-87m. ½ D: Mike Leigh. Katrin Cartlidge, Lynda Steadman, Kate Byers, Mark Benton, Joe Tucker, Andy Serkis. Another satisfying (and unpredictable) slice of life from writer-director Leigh, about two former roommates reunited after six years. Flashbacks reveal how much they've changed and matured from their uncertain college years, when Cartlidge was a mass of tics and Steadman was, in her friend's words, "a walking open wound." Remarkable performances from both actresses. Music by Tony Remy and Marianne Jean-Baptiste (costar of Leigh's previous film, SECRETS & LIES). [R]▼●●

Career Opportunities (1991) C-84m. *½

D: Bryan Gordon. Frank Whaley, Jennifer Connelly, Dermot Mulroney, Kieran Mulroney, John M. Jackson, Jenny O'Hara, Noble Willingham, Barry Corbin, Denise Galko, William Forsythe. Otherwise unemployable teen gets the night watchman job at an all-purpose department store; his first night is an idyllic round-the-clocker with a girl who's hiding out inside, and who just happens to be the town's no. 1 rich dish. Typical ode to arrested development from writer-producer John Hughes, a 10m. idea stretched into a feature. Tolerable only for John Candy's un-billed cameo, and as a showcase for gorgeous Connelly. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Carefree (1938) 83m.  D: Mark Sandrich. Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Ralph Bellamy, Luella Gear, Jack Carson, Franklin Pangborn, Hattie McDaniel. Madcap Rogers is sent to psychiatrist Astaire, and romance naturally blossoms; Fred and Ginger's most comic outing, wacky and offbeat, with good Irving Berlin score including "Change Partners," "I Used to Be Color Blind."▼●●

Careful, He Might Hear You (1983-Australian) C-116m. ½ D: Carl Schultz. Wendy Hughes, Robyn Nevin, Nicholas Gledhill, John Hargreaves, Geraldine Turner. Involving drama about Depression-era custody battle between wealthy Hughes and working-class sister Nevin for their nephew, whose mother is dead and father has abandoned him. Manages to be credible yet larger-than-life at the same time, with wonderful shadings and observations. Makes exceptional use of wide-screen. Michael Jenkins scripted, from a novel by Sumner Locke Elliott. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Caretaker, The SEE: Guest, The
Caretakers, The (1963) 97m.  D: Hall Bartlett. Robert Stack, Joan Crawford, Polly Bergen, Susan Oliver, Janis Paige, Constance Ford, Barbara Barrie, Herbert Marshall. At times incisive view of a West Coast mental hospital, marred by flimsy script and poor editing. Good characterizations by Crawford and Ford as nurses, Bergen and Paige as patients.▼

Carey Treatment, The (1972) C-101m.  D: Blake Edwards. James Coburn, Jennifer O'Neill, Pat Hingle, Skye Aubrey, Elizabeth Allen, Alex Dreier. Good solid whodunit set in hospital, where doctor Coburn is determined to clear colleague of murder charge. O'Neill provides love interest in complicated but satisfying mystery, shot in Boston. Based on the novel A Case of Need by Michael Crichton. Panavision. [PG]

Car 54, Where Are You? (1994) C-89m. *½ D: Bill Fishman. David Johansen, John C. McGinley, Al Lewis, Fran Drescher, Nipsey Russell, Rosie O'Donnell, Daniel Baldwin, Jeremy Piven, Penn & Teller, Tone Loc. This retreat of the hilarious 1960s TV show about N.Y.C. cops with a hefty Keystone quotient is a woefully embarrassing assemblage of gags that would bring up the rear in POLICE ACADEMY. O'Donnell (her screen debut), Drescher, and Piven acquit themselves well, under the circumstances. Despite presence of Al Lewis—reprising his Schnauzer role from the original Nat Hiken series—this turkey sat on the shelf after completion in 1991. [PG-13]▼●●

Caribbean (1952) C-97m.  D: Edward Ludwig. John Payne, Arlene Dahl, Cedric Hardwicke, Francis L. Sullivan, Woody Strode. 18th-century costume vehicle allows Payne to battle pirates and flirt with Dahl.

Cariboo Trail (1950) C-81m. ½ D: Edwin L. Marin. Randolph Scott, George "Gabby" Hayes, Bill Williams, Karin Booth, Victor Jory, Douglas Kennedy, Jim Davis, Dale Robertson, Mary Stuart, Lee Tung Foo. Sturdy Scott vehicle about a cattleman who brings his herd to the Canadian wilderness, where he takes on corrupt Jory. ▼●

Carla's Song (1996-British-Spanish) C-125m.  D: Ken Loach. Robert Carlyle, Oyanka Cabezas, Scott Glenn, Salvador Espinoza, Louise Goodall. Unusual political drama/love story set in 1987 with Glasgow bus driver Carlyle becoming involved with beautiful but deeply troubled Nicaraguan refugee Cabezas. It's difficult to navigate the Scottish accents at first, but the final part of the story, set in the Nicaraguan war zone, is poignant and heartbreaking. ▼●●

Carlito's Way (1993) C-144m.  D: Brian De Palma. Al Pacino, Sean Penn, Penelope Ann Miller, Luis Guzman, John Leguizamo, Ingrid Rogers, James Rebhorn, Joseph Siravo, Viggo Mortensen, Richard Foronjy, Jorge Porcel, Adrian Pasdar. Street-wise Puerto Rican Pacino winds up a five-year jail term and tries to go straight, but loyalty to his sleazy lawyer (Penn), and his inability to accept the fact that "the street" has changed, seal his doom. Flawed but still compelling; based on two Edwin Torres novels about a man with an out-moded code of honor. Pacino is arresting as always; so is an almost unrecognizable Penn. Director Paul Mazursky has a terrific cameo as a judge at the beginning of the story. Followed by a direct-to-video "prequel" in 2005. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Carman: The Champion (2001) C-90m.  D: Lee Stanley. Carman, Michael Nouri, Patricia Manterola, Jeremy Williams, Jed Allan, Romeo Fabian, Betty Carvalho. Retired professional-fighter-turned-preacher re-enters the ring to raise money to expand his and his late father's dream project: an inner-city youth ministry. Along the way to the championship match he battles local gangs, becomes a surrogate father, saves some souls and falls in love. Feature film debut for recording artist Carman (who also co-scripted). Well-intentioned, moralistic tale with a now-predictable pumped-up boxing finale. [PG-13]▼●

Carmen (1983-Spanish) C-102m.  D: Carlos Saura. Antonio Gades, Laura Del Sol, Paco de Lucia, Cristina Hoyos, Juan Antonio Jimenez, Sebastian Moreno. Choreographer prepares dance production of Bizet's opera, but falls under spell of real-life Carmen he casts in leading role. Choreographer/star Gades and sensual Del Sol are superb, though dramatic impact dissipates somewhat during second half. A must for dance buffs. [R]▼●●

Carmen (1984-French-Italian) C-152m.  D: Francesco Rosi. Julia Migenes-Johnson, Plácido Domingo, Ruggero Raimondi, Faith Esham, Jean-Philippe Lafont, Gerard Garino. Disappointing filmization of the Bizet opera is overbaked and unbelievably inept. Still, opera buffs will enjoy the music—if they close their eyes. [PG]▼●●

Carmen Jones (1954) C-105m. ½ D: Otto Preminger. Dorothy Dandridge, Harry Belafonte, Pearl Bailey, Roy Glenn, Diahann Carroll, Brock Peters. Powerful melodrama adapted from Bizet's opera by Oscar Hammerstein II, with exciting music and equally exciting Dandridge as the ultimate femme fatale. Stars' singing voices are all dubbed—Dandridge's by opera star Marilyn Horne. Film debuts of Carroll and Peters. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Carmen Miranda: Bananas Is My Business (1994-U.S.-Brazilian) C/B&W-91m.  D: Helena Solberg. Savvy exploration of the Brazilian Bombshell's life and times, chronicling the sad transition from revered musical artist in her homeland to caricatured cliché in Hollywood. Filmmaker Solberg's lifelong fascination with Miranda is expressed through film clips, revealing interviews with Brazilian and American colleagues and family, and strikingly, re-creations of moments in her life using a female impersonator! ▼●

Carnage SEE: Twitch of the Death Nerve
Carnal Knowledge (1971) C-96m.  D: Mike Nichols. Jack Nicholson, Candice Bergen, Arthur Garfunkel, Ann-Margret, Rita Moreno, Cynthia O'Neal, Carol Kane. Thought-provoking (if depressing) look at the sexual attitudes and obsessions of two male friends, from college through middle age. Ann-Margret won acclaim for performance as Nicholson's kittenish mistress. Jules Feiffer originally wrote this as a play, then adapted it as a screenplay instead; in 1990 it was staged off-Broadway. Kane's film debut. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Carnegie Hall (1947) 134m. ½ D: Edgar G. Ulmer. Marsha Hunt, William Prince, Frank McHugh, Martha O'Driscoll. Lame story about a pushy mother and her pianist son links magnificent concert performances by the cream of the classical music world: Artur Rubinstein, Leopold Stokowski, Jascha Heifetz, Rise Stevens, Lily Pons, Ezio Pinza, Jan Peerce, Gregor Piatigorsky, Bruno Walter and The New York Philharmonic. Some mediocre pop tunes are shoehorned into the proceedings, along with Vaughn Monroe and Harry James. ▼

Carnet de Bal SEE: Un Carnet de Bal Carnival in Costa Rica (1947) C-95m.

 D: Gregory Ratoff. Dick Haymes, Vera-Ellen, Cesar Romero, Celeste Holm, Anne Revere, J. Carrol Naish. Despite fair cast, boring musical of trip to Costa Rica and the shenanigans of newlyweds and their quarreling parents.

Carnival of Souls (1962) 83m. ½ D: Herk Harvey. Candace Hilligoss, Sidney Berger, Frances Feist, Herk Harvey, Stan Levitt, Art Ellison. Eerie little film of "phantom figure" pursuing Hilligoss after she has seemingly drowned. Imaginative low-budget effort. Filmed mostly in Lawrence, Kansas. Has developed a strong cult reputation in recent years. Original running time: 91m. Computer-colored version also available. Remade in 1998 and 2008 (as YELLA). ▼

Carnival Story (1954) C-95m.  D: Kurt Neumann. Anne Baxter, Steve Cochran, Lyle Bettger, George Nader, Jay C. Flippen. Hardened Baxter is involved with sleazy Cochran. "Nice guy" high diver Bettger takes her on as a protégée, and there are complications. When this romantic melodrama is not trashy, it's sluggish. Set in Germany, and not unlike E.A. Dupont's classic, VARIETY. A German version was also filmed, with Eva Bartok, Bernhard Wicki, and Curt Jurgens. ▼

Carnosaur (1993) C-82m.  D: Adam Simon. Diane Ladd, Raphael Sbarge, Jennifer Runyon, Harrison Page, Ned Bellamy, Clint Howard. Brilliant geneticist Ladd hatches man-eating dinosaurs from virus-infected chicken eggs and lets them run amok in an unsuspecting Midwestern city. Roger Corman produced this forgettable film, whose only notoriety will be its legacy as 1993's "other" dinosaur movie (which starred Ladd's daughter, Laura Dern). Followed by two sequels. [R] ▼

Carny (1980) C-107m.  D: Robert Kaylor. Gary Busey, Jodie Foster, Robbie Robertson, Meg Foster, Bert Remsen, Kenneth McMillan, John Lehne, Elisha Cook, Craig Wasson. Striking, atmospheric film about a symbiotic pair of carnival hustlers and the teenage runaway who joins them on the road. Candid, intimate (and somewhat voyeuristic) look at seamy midway life, hurt by unsatisfying and abrupt conclusion. Rock star Robertson also produced and cowrote the film. Wonderful score by Alex North. [R] ▼

Caro Diario (1994-Italian-French) C-100m.  D: Nanni Moretti. Nanni Moretti, Renato Carpentieri, Antonio Neiviller, Carlo Mazzacurati, Claudia Della Seta, Jennifer Beals, Alexandre Rockwell. Witty, thoughtful, three-part feature from Moretti, one of the most acclaimed contemporary Italian film director-comedians. He appears in each as himself. First he romps around Rome on a Vespa. Next he goes island-hopping in southern Italy, where he wryly examines Europeans' obsession with American pop culture. Lastly, and most soberly, he recounts his own cancer treatment. ▼

Carolina (2005-U.S.-Dutch) C-98m.  D: Marleen Gorris. Julia Stiles, Shirley MacLaine, Alessandro Nivola, Mika Boorem, Azura Skye, Randy Quaid, Jennifer Coolidge, Alan Thicke, Barbara Eden. Good cast does its best with a pedestrian (and predictable) script about a young woman who keeps looking for Mr. Right even though her best friend—and next-door neighbor—is the perfect man for her. Did we mention that she was raised by a wacky, eccentric grandmother? Disappointing Hollywood debut for Dutch filmmaker Gorris (ANTONIA'S LINE). Opened in Europe in 2003; released direct to video in the U.S. [PG-13] ▼

Carousel (1956) C-128m. ½ D: Henry King. Gordon MacRae, Shirley Jones, Cameron Mitchell, Barbara Ruick, Claramae Turner, Robert Rounseville, Gene Lockhart. Excellent filmization of Rodgers & Hammerstein's memorable adaptation of Ferenc Molnár's Lilom, with MacRae as rowdy carousel barker Billy Bigelow, who tries to change for the better when he falls in love with Jones. Excitement of wide-screen location filming will be minimized on TV screen, but moving characters, timeless songs remain. Script by Phoebe and Henry Ephron. Filmed before as LILIAM in 1930 and 1934. CinemaScope 55. ▼

Carpetbaggers, The (1964) C-150m. ½ D: Edward Dmytryk. George Peppard, Carroll Baker, Alan Ladd, Bob Cummings, Martha Hyer, Elizabeth Ashley, Lew Ayres, Martin Balsam, Ralph Taeger, Archie Moore, Leif Erickson, Tom Tully, Audrey Totter. Blowzy claptrap based on Harold Robbins novel of millionaire plane manufacturer (Peppard) dabbling in movies and lovemaking à la Howard Hughes. Set in 1920s-30s; exploitative values are tame. Ladd's last film; followed by prequel, NEVADA SMITH. Panavision. ▼

Carrie (1952) 118m. ½ D: William Wyler. Jennifer Jones, Laurence Olivier,

Miriam Hopkins, Eddie Albert, Mary Murphy, William Reynolds. Jones passively plays the title role in this uneven turn-of-the-century soaper of poor farm girl who comes to Chicago, eventually links up with unhappily married restaurant manager Olivier (who is excellent). David Rakksin's score is a plus. Based on Theodore Dreiser's Sister Carrie. DVD includes restored "flop house" scene, which runs almost 3m. ▼●●

Carrie (1976) C-97m. ½ D: Brian De Palma. Sissy Spacek, Piper Laurie, William Katt, John Travolta, Amy Irving, Nancy Allen, Betty Buckley, P.J. Soles, Priscilla Pointer. Evocative story of high school misfit degenerates into cheap, gory melodrama when Spacek unleashes telekinetic powers in revenge against those who have mocked her. De Palma borrows much from Hitchcock, but has little of The Master's wit or subtlety. Screenplay by Lawrence D. Cohen, from Stephen King's novel. Debut film for Irving, Buckley and Soles. Later a stage musical. Remade for TV in 2002. Followed by THE RAGE: CARRIE 2. [R] ▼●●

Carried Away (1996) C-107m. ½ D: Bruno Barreto. Dennis Hopper, Amy Irving, Amy Locane, Julie Harris, Gary Busey, Hal Holbrook, Priscilla Pointer. Hopper gives a thoughtful performance in an unusual role: a small-town Midwestern farmer/teacher who keeps putting off marrying his fiancée (Irving), and then is not unwillingly seduced by teen vamp Locane. Abundant nudity may grab attention. Based on a novel by Jim Harrison. Barreto is Irving's husband, and Pointer is her mother. [R] ▼●●

Carrington (1995-British-French) C-122m.  D: Christopher Hampton. Emma Thompson, Jonathan Pryce, Steven Waddington, Rufus Sewell, Samuel West, Penelope Wilton, Janet McTeer, Peter Blythe, Jeremy Northam. Gifted English painter Dora Carrington is afraid of her own sexuality, until she meets eccentric (and homosexual) writer Lytton Strachey and experiences love for the first time. What's more, he feels the same way . . . except they're never able to resolve their hesitancy about a full commitment. Compelling character study is slowly paced and perhaps redundant at times, but made fascinating by the leads' superb portrayals. Playwright/screenwriter Hampton's directing debut. [R] ▼●●

Carry On Camping (1972-British) C-89m.  D: Gerald Thomas. Sidney James, Kenneth Williams, Joan Sims, Barbara Windsor, Bernard Bresslaw, Terry Scott. The gang encounters hippie types at weekend campsite; usual double-entendre jokes in entry from never-ending series. [R] ▼

Carry On Cleo (1965-British) C-92m. ½ D: Gerald Thomas. Amanda Barrie, Sidney James, Kenneth Williams, Joan Sims,

Kenneth Connor, Charles Hawtrey. Diverting reworking of ancient history to serve as amusing satire on CLEOPATRA epic, sufficiently laced with hijinks by perennial misfits. Aka CALIGULA'S FUNNIEST HOME VIDEOS. ▼

Carry On Doctor (1968-British) C-95m.  D: Gerald Thomas. Frankie Howerd, Kenneth Williams, Jim Dale, Barbara Windsor. Mad-cap group takes on medical profession. As usual, interest wanes after an hour and the amount of laughter varies quite a bit. [PG] ▼

Carry On Henry VIII (1972-British) C-90m.  D: Gerald Thomas. Sidney James, Kenneth Williams, Joan Sims, Charles Hawtrey, Barbara Windsor. Lecherous king, ribald times perfect milieu for "Carry On" gang's brand of farce; for fans only. [PG] ▼

Kenneth Connor, Shirley Eaton, Charles Hawtrey, Hattie Jacques, Terence Longdon, Leslie Phillips, Joan Sims, Kenneth Williams, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Joan Hickson, Jill Ireland, Michael Medwin. Occasionally funny but too often silly farce detailing the various hijinks in a hospital ward. Typical entry in the series is crammed with lowbrow humor. ▼

Carry On Sergeant (1959-British) 88m.  D: Gerald Thomas. William Hartnell, Bob Monkhouse, Shirley Eaton, Eric Barker, Dora Bryan, Bill Owen, Kenneth Connor. Carry On Spying (1965-British) 88m. ½ D: Gerald Thomas. Kenneth Williams, Barbara Windsor, Bernard Cribbins, Charles Hawtrey, Eric Barker, Victor Maddern. Acceptable James Bond spoof with daffy novice spy-catchers on the hunt for enemy agents who stole secret formula.)

Cars (2006) C-116m.  D: John Lasseter. Voices of Paul Newman, Owen Wilson, Bonnie Hunt, Larry the Cable Guy, Cheech Marin, George Carlin, Richard Petty, Michael Keaton, Tony Shalhoub, John Ratzenberger, Michael Wallis, Paul Dooley, Jennifer Lewis, Bob Costas. Hotshot race car gets stuck in a town out West that time (and interstate highways) forgot. He begins to see that there's more to life than hogging the spotlight and winning big-money races. Evoking America's car culture of the 1950s and '60s, this cleverly conceived and designed CG-animated film from Pixar is more wistful and less laugh-oriented than some, but still a winner. It may speak most eloquently to adults of a certain age. Digital Widescreen. [G])

building a railroad through Nevada in the 1870s. OK of its type. D

Cars That Ate Paris, The (1974-Australian) C-91m. *½ D: Peter Weir. Terry Camilleri, John Meillon, Melissa Jaffa, Kevin Miles. The poor people of Paris (Paris, Australia, that is) keep the economy going by inducing traffic accidents and selling the spare parts/scrap metal. Iffy black comedy has its moments; must viewing for those who've followed Weir's directorial career step-by-step into the big leagues. Originally released in the U.S. at 74m, retitled THE CARS THAT EAT PEOPLE; full-length version finally made it here in 1984. Panavision. [PG] VD

Cartouche (1964-French-Italian) C-115m. ½ D: Philippe De Broca. Jean-Paul Belmondo, Claudia Cardinale, Odile Versois, Jess Hahn, Jean Rochefort, Philippe Lemaire, Marcel Dalio, Noel Roquevert. Colorful, exciting exploits of 18th-century French Robin Hood who takes over a Parisian crime syndicate. Belmondo is dashing as Cartouche and Cardinale is ravishing as Venus, his gypsy-mistress, in this rousing action-comedy. Dyaliscope. VD

Car Trouble (1985-British) C-93m.  D: David Green. Julie Walters, Ian Charleson, Vincenzo Ricotta, Stratford Johns, Hazel O'Connor, Dave Hill. Low-key farce about a hilariously hideous couple whose Bickerson-like marriage is put to the ultimate test when he buys his dream car, and she goes for a fateful spin. Walters and Charleson are ideal, and the film offers some genuine belly laughs. [R] V

Carve Her Name With Pride (1958-British) 119m.  D: Lewis Gilbert. Virginia McKenna, Paul Scofield, Jack Warner, Maurice Ronet, Bill Owen, Denise Grey, Billie Whitelaw, Michael Caine. McKenna, widowed during WW2, becomes a courageous British secret agent. Solid and inspiring; based on a true story. VD

Car Wash (1976) C-97m. *½ D: Michael Schultz. Richard Pryor, Franklin Ajaye, Sully Boyar, Ivan Dixon, George Carlin, Irwin Corey, Melanie Mayron, The Pointer Sisters, Garrett Morris, Antonio Fargas, Brooke Adams. Boisterous look at L.A. car wash is light excuse for barely connected comedy set pieces, involving various and sundry characters, and pulsating soul music performed by Rose Royce. Often very funny, but no awards for good taste; written by Joel Schumacher. [PG] VD

club owner Rick (Bogart) finding old flame (Bergman) and her husband, underground leader Henreid, among skeletons in his closet. Rains is marvelous as dapper police chief, and nobody sings "As Time Goes By" like Dooley Wilson. Three Oscars include Picture, Director, and Screenplay (Julius & Philip Epstein and Howard Koch). Our candidate for the best Hollywood movie of all time. Spawned short-lived TV series in the 1950s and the 1980s. Also shown in computer-colored version. VD

Casa de los Babys (2003) C-95m. *½ D: John Sayles. Maggie Gyllenhaal, Marcia Gay Harden, Daryl Hannah, Susan Lynch, Mary Steenburgen, Lili Taylor, Rita Moreno, Vanessa Martinez, Pedro Armendáriz. A group of American women spend time together in a South American town as they wait for their adoptions to come through. Sayles' script explores many characters and points of view, including the locals who resent the "yanquis" taking their babies away and the young women who give up their children because they have no choice. Despite a fine cast, and many good scenes, the film feels like a draft for a screenplay that still needs fleshing out. [R] VD

Casanova (2005) C-110m. ½ D: Lasse Hallström. Heath Ledger, Sienna Miller, Jeremy Irons, Oliver Platt, Lena Olin, Omid Djalili, Stephen Greif, Ken Stott, Charlie Cox, Natalie Dormer, Tim McInnerny, Leigh Lawson. The amorous bed-hopping lover of 18th-century Venice meets his match in a beautiful, headstrong woman, a profeminist who is determined to resist his advances. This is a rare bird known as a romp, and Hallström and company pull it off, maintaining a light touch from start to finish. Location filming in Venice doesn't hurt, either. Fresh, funny, sexy, and smart; everyone is good, but Miller is a standout in a showcase role. Screenplay by Jeffrey Hatcher and Kimberly Simi from a story by Simi and Michael Cristofer. Super 35. [R] D

Casanova & Co. (1976-Austrian-Italian-French-German) C-88m. ½ D: Franz Antel. Tony Curtis, Marisa Berenson, Sylva Koscina, Hugh Griffith, Britt Ekland, Marisa Mell, Umberto Orsini, Andrea Ferreol, Victor Spinetti, Lillian Muller. Misfired slapstick romp debunks the legend with Curtis playing dual roles of Casanova and a lookalike commoner. Diverse female cast (including former Playboy Playmates) disrobes at will, while Tony in drag explicitly mocks his classic SOME LIKE IT HOT role. Video titles: SEX ON THE RUN, SOME LIKE IT COOL, and THE AMOROUS MIS-ADVENTURES OF CASANOVA. VD

Casanova Brown (1944) 94m. *½ D: Sam Wood. Gary Cooper, Teresa Wright, Frank Morgan, Anita Louise, Isobel Elsom. Cooper has divorced Wright, but now she's pregnant; entertaining little comedy with stars outshining material. Filmed in 1930 and 1939 as LITTLE ACCIDENT. ▼

Casanova's Big Night (1954) C-86m.  D: Norman Z. McLeod. Bob Hope, Joan Fontaine, Audrey Dalton, Basil Rathbone, Raymond Burr. Lavish costumed fun with Bob masquerading as Casanova (Vincent Price in an unbilled cameo role) in Venice and wooing lovely Dalton. ▼

Casanova '70 (1965-French-Italian) C-113m. ½ D: Mario Monicelli. Marcello Mastroianni, Vira Lisi, Michele Mercier, Marisa Mell, Marco Ferreri, Enrico Maria Salerno. Dashing Major Mastroianni is only interested in seducing women when there is an element of danger involved. Modest, though amusing. ▼

Casbah (1948) 94m.  D: John Berry. Tony Martin, Yvonne De Carlo, Peter Lorre, Marta Toren, Hugo Haas, Thomas Gomez, Douglas Dick, Katherine Dunham, Herbert Rudley, Virginia Gregg. If you can accept singer Martin as slippery thief Pepe Le Moko (he's actually quite good) you'll enjoy this musical remake of ALGIERS. It's stylishly directed and designed, and features Lorre in one of his best performances as the crafty inspector determined to nail Le Moko. Fine score by Harold Arlen and Leo Robin includes "For Every Man There's a Woman" and "Hooray for Love." Look fast and you'll spot Eartha Kitt, then one of the Katherine Dunham dance troupe. ▼

Casey's Shadow (1978) C-117m. ½ D: Martin Ritt. Walter Matthau, Alexis Smith, Robert Webber, Murray Hamilton, Andrew A. Rubin, Stephan Burns, Michael Hersheve. Generally satisfactory drama about a ne'er-do-well Louisiana horse trainer (Matthau) and his three sons, as he raises a fleet but fragile quarterhorse that just may allow him his one shot at glory. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Cash McCall (1959) C-102m. ½ D: Joseph Pevney. James Garner, Natalie Wood, Nina Foch, Dean Jagger, E.G. Marshall, Henry Jones, Otto Kruger, Roland Winters. Garner is just right as business tycoon who adopts new set of values as he romances daughter (Wood) of failing businessman Jagger. Superficial film from Cameron Hawley novel. ▼

Casino (1995) C-182m.  D: Martin Scorsese. Robert De Niro, Sharon Stone, Joe Pesci, James Woods, Don Rickles, Alan King, Kevin Pollak, L. Q. Jones, Dick Smothers, Frank Vincent, Melissa Prophet, John Bloom (Joe Bob Briggs). Long, tedious tale of a numbers-obsessed gambler sent to Las Vegas by the mob to run a casino in the 1970s. Problem is, neither he nor his loose-cannon pal, who follows him, nor the hustler he decides to marry has any idea how to hold on to what they've got. Disappointing reteaming of Scorsese and writer Nicholas Pileggi, who scored big with GOODFELLAS; this time, their story is overlong, repetitive, and aloof. Stone makes her mark amidst a heavyweight cast with a full-blown dramatic performance. Super 35. [R] ▼

Casino Royale (1967-British) C-130m. ½ D: John Huston, Ken Hughes, Robert Parrish, Joe McGrath, Val Guest. Peter Sellers, Ursula Andress, David Niven, Orson Welles, Joanna Pettet, Woody Allen, Deborah Kerr, William Holden, Charles Boyer, John Huston, George Raft, Jean-Paul Belmondo, Jacky (Jacqueline) Bisset. Gigantic, overdone spoof of James Bond films with Niven as the aging secret agent who relinquishes his position to nephew Allen and host of others. Money, money everywhere, but film is terribly uneven—sometimes funny, often not. Good score by Burt Bacharach, including hit song "The Look of Love." Remade in 2006. Panavision. ▼

Casino Royale (2006-U.S.-British-Czech-German) C-144m.  D: Martin Campbell. Daniel Craig, Eva Green, Mads Mikkelsen, Judi Dench, Jeffrey Wright, Giancarlo Giannini, Caterina Murino, Simon Abkarian, Isaach De Bankolé. The James Bond franchise goes back to its roots with this installment, which shows how the secret agent got his license to kill and pits him against a banker funding worldwide terrorist groups. A bit overextended, but also refreshingly tough-minded, with some terrific set pieces (including an adrenaline-pumping opening sequence) and a worthy love interest in Green. Best of all, Craig (in his debut as 007) makes for a lean, mean, surprisingly human Bond, so good as to rival even our memories of Sean Connery. Filmed before (as a spoof) in 1967. Followed by QUANTUM OF SOLACE. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Casper (1995) C-100m. BOMB D: Brad Silberling. Christina Ricci, Bill Pullman, Cathy Moriarty, Eric Idle, Amy Brenneman, Ben Stein, Don Novello, voices of Malachi Pearson, Joe Nipote, Joe Alaskey, Brad Garrett. High-tech Hollywood "product" takes the vintage cartoon character—a friendly ghost—and literalizes him in this story of a dead boy whose haunted house is invaded by a widowed paranormalist (and daughter) seeking the spirit of his dead wife. Talk about family fun! Absolutely dreadful, wrong-headed movie is strictly for families who are already dead from the neck up. A handful of surprise Hollywood cameos add a few fleeting laughs. Followed by two DVD sequels. [PG] ▼

Cassandra Crossing, The (1977-British) C-127m.  D: George Pan Cosmatos. Richard Harris, Sophia Loren, Burt Lancaster, Ava Gardner, Martin Sheen, Lee Strasberg, O.J. Simpson, John Phillip Law, Ingrid Thulin, Alida Valli, Lionel Stander. Entertaining disaster epic as train carrying

plague approaches a weakened bridge. Filmed in France and Italy. [R]▼

Cassandra's Dream (2008-U.S.-British-French) C-108m.  D: Woody Allen. Ewan McGregor, Colin Farrell, Hayley Atwell, Sally Hawkins, Tom Wilkinson, John Benfield, Clare Higgins, Phil Davis, Jim Carter. Well-intentioned but flawed—and far too predictable—morality tale about British working-class brothers. Trouble simmers when Farrell's gambling gets him into debt and McGregor becomes smitten with a beautiful actress who is the definition of high-maintenance. Allen deals with issues similar to those he explored more successfully in CRIMES AND MISDEMEANORS. Released overseas in 2007. [PG-13]▶

Cass Timberlane (1947) 119m. ½ D: George Sidney. Spencer Tracy, Lana Turner, Zachary Scott, Tom Drake, Mary Astor, Albert Dekker, Margaret Lindsay, John Litel, Mona Barrie, Josephine Hutchinson, Rose Hobart, Selena Royle, Cameron Mitchell. Ordinary adaptation of Sinclair Lewis novel of an upright, upper-crust Minnesota judge (Tracy) whose friends are either corrupt or elitist and his marriage to bright, working-class Turner (in one of her best performances). Walter Pidgeon appears as himself in a cocktail party scene.▼

Cast a Dark Shadow (1955-British) 84m.  D: Lewis Gilbert. Dirk Bogarde, Margaret Lockwood, Kathleen Harrison, Kay Walsh, Robert Fleryng, Mona Washbourne. Tense suspense with Bogarde in fine form as a psychotic Bluebeard who murders rich, aging mate Washbourne. Lockwood and Walsh won't be such easy prey, however.▼

Cast a Giant Shadow (1966) C-142m.  D: Melville Shavelson. Kirk Douglas, John Wayne, Frank Sinatra, Yul Brynner, Senta Berger, Angie Dickinson, James Donald, Luther Adler, (Chaim) Topol. Hokey bio of Arab-Israeli war hero Mickey Marcus has Kirk leaving Angie's bed to join Senta and several other less sexy freedom fighters. Guest roles by big names make film seem even sillier. Panavision.▼●●

Castaway (1987) C-117m. ½ D: Nicolas Roeg. Oliver Reed, Amanda Donohoe, Tony Rickards, Todd Rippon, Georgina Hale, Frances Barber. Scuffy Reed advertises for a "wife" to join him for a year on a desert island; Donohoe is the incongruously vavavoomish adventure seeker who answers it. Visually splendid adaptation of Lucy Irvine's best-seller seems unlikely as told, though it remains a visceral experience, particularly for Roeg fans. Eventually overplays its hand. [R]▼

Cast Away (2000) C-143m. ½ D: Robert Zemeckis. Tom Hanks, Helen Hunt, Nick Searcy, Lari White, Chris Noth, Jennifer Lewis, Wilson. A man whose job depends on organizational skills and awareness of time survives a plane crash and winds up on a deserted Pacific island. Only an actor with Hanks' good will (and acting chops) could make us care as much as we do about this survivor, who battles the elements and struggles to retain his sanity. No narration, little music, just great moviemaking. Screenplay by William F. Broyles, Jr. [PG-13]▼

Castaway Cowboy, The (1974) C-91m.  D: Vincent McEveety. James Garner, Vera Miles, Robert Culp, Eric Shea, Elizabeth Smith, Gregory Sierra. Cowboy Garner is shipwrecked on Hawaiian island, runs into pretty widow and bad-guy Culp who wants her land. Old B-Western plot, Disney-fied on Hawaiian locations. [G]▼

Castle, The (1968-German-Swiss) C-93m.  D: Rudolf Noelte. Maximilian Schell, Cordula Trantow, Trudik Daniel, Helmut Qualtinger. Appropriately vague filmization of Kafka's novel: "K" (Schell), a land surveyor, is called to a castle for work but is unable to gain admittance.▼

Castle, The (1997-Australian) C-84m.  D: Rob Sitch. Michael Caton, Anne Tenney, Stephen Curry, Anthony Simcoe, Sophie Lee, Wayne Hope, Tiriel Mora, Eric Bana, Charles (Bud) Tingwell. Winning low-budget comedy of the unsophisticated Kerigan family, whose home sits atop a toxic landfill—adjacent to an airport runway! When Dad (Caton) decides to fight the government to keep their ramshackle abode, watch out. Equal parts Capresque, goofy, and heartfelt. Conceived by several Australian radio and TV comedy hands; a smash in its native country. [R]▼

Pre-ententious adaptation of William Eastlake's novel about eight soldiers on French border in WW2. Good cast, but film has no coherency. Panavision. [R]▼

Originally released in the U.S. as ASSIGNMENT ISTANBUL. [PG]▼

Castle of the Living Dead (1963-Italian-French) 90m.  D: Herbert Wise (Luciano Ricci). Christopher Lee, Gala Germani, Philippe Leroy, Jacques Stanislowski, Donald Sutherland. Casual Sex? (1988) C-97m. ½ D: Genevieve Robert. Lea Thompson, Victoria Jackson, Stephen Shellen, Jerry Levine, Andrew (Dice) Clay, Mary Gross. Lightweight look at two young women who are looking for something more than a one-night stand—especially in these cautious times—and try their luck at a health and fitness spa. Slight but engaging contemporary comedy from young women's point of view, adapted from the play by Wendy Goldman and Judy Toll. [R] ▼

Casualties of War (1989) C-113m.  D: Brian De Palma. Michael J. Fox, Sean Penn, Don Harvey, John C. Reilly, John Leguizamo, Thuy Thu Le, Erik King, Sam Robards, Ving Rhames. Vietnam War picture focusing on one patrol, led by off-the-wall Penn, and its inhumane treatment of an innocent Vietnamese girl. As the Voice of Reason, Fox is well cast, but his clean-cut decency gets to be a bit much; Penn and Thuy Le (the victim) are more effective. For all its good intentions, film has a jumbled, detached feel to it (though it's scripted by playwright David Rabe, a Vietnam veteran and author of Sticks and Bones and Streamers). Based on a real incident detailed in Daniel Lang's New Yorker article, later published as a book. Extended edition also available. Panavision. [R] ▼

Catamount Killing, The (1974-German) C-93m.  D: Krzysztof Zanussi. Horst Buchholz, Ann Wedgeworth, Chip Taylor, Louise Clark, Patricia Joyce, Polly Holliday. German film made in Vermont with Polish director. Passably interesting story of two small-town people who try to pull off bank heist and then come to grips with themselves as criminals. ▼

Cat and Mouse (1975-French) C-107m. ½ D: Claude Lelouch. Michele Morgan, Serge Reggiani, Philippe Leotard, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Valerie Lagrange. Anyone could've killed wealthy Aumont, philandering husband of Morgan, and Inspector Reggiani finds out who and why. Denouement is only letdown in this delightful comedy mystery, written, directed, and produced by master Lelouch. Dazzling views of Paris and the countryside. Released here in 1978. [PG] ▼

Cat and the Canary, The (1927) 74m.  D: Paul Leni. Laura LaPlante, Tully Marshall, Flora Finch, Creighton Hale, Gertrude Astor, Lucien Littlefield. Delightful silent classic, the forerunner of all "old dark house" mysteries, with nice touch of humor throughout as heiress LaPlante and nervous group spend night in haunted house. Remade several times. ▼

Cat and the Canary, The (1939) 74m.  D: Elliott Nugent. Bob Hope, Paulette Goddard, Gale Sondergaard, John Beal, Douglass Montgomery, Nydia Westman, Elizabeth Patterson, George Zucco. Entertaining remake of the venerable "old dark house", chiller, spiced with Hope's brand of humor. This film cemented his movie stardom and led to the even more successful scare comedy THE GHOST BREAKERS. Remade again in 1978.

Cat and the Canary, The (1978-British) C-90m. ½ D: Radley Metzger. Honor Blackman, Michael Callan, Edward Fox, Wendy Hiller, Olivia Hussey, Carol Lynley, Peter McEnery, Wilfrid Hyde-White. Entertaining remake of the old-dark-house staple, with a likable cast; reasonably faithful to the original, with the nicest twist being Hyde-White's method of communicating with his heirs. [PG] ▼

Cat and the Fiddle, The (1934) 90m.  D: William K. Howard. Jeanette MacDonald, Ramon Novarro, Frank Morgan, Charles Butterworth, Jean Hersholt. Delightful Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein operetta, filled with sly comedy and clever ideas. Novarro is a struggling composer who forces his attentions on MacDonald; Morgan is "benefactor" who comes between them. Songs include "The Night Was Made for Love," "She Didn't Say Yes." Final sequence is in color. ▼

Cat Ballou (1965) C-96m. ½ D: Elliot Silverstein. Jane Fonda, Lee Marvin, Michael Callan, Dwayne Hickman, Tom Nardini, John Marley, Reginald Denny, Jay C. Flippen, Arthur Hunnicutt, Bruce Cabot. Funny Western comedy, with Fonda as Cat Ballou, notorious school-teacher-turned-outlaw. Marvin copped an Oscar for his dual role as a drunken gunman and his twin, a desperado with an artificial nose. Nat King Cole and Stubby Kaye appear as strolling minstrels. Roy Chanslor's novel was adapted by Walter Newman and Frank R. Pierson. ▼

U.S.) C-101m. ½ D: Phillip Noyce. Tim Robbins, Derek Luke, Bonnie Henna, Mncedisi Shabangu, Tumisho K. Masha, Sithembiso Khumalo, Terry Pheto, Marius Weyers. A hardworking, happily married man in South Africa (still under apartheid rule in the early 1980s) is wrongly accused of terrorist activities and tortured by a single-minded government agent (Robbins). This pushes him over the edge and causes him to join the freedom fighters who want to overturn their government. Somewhat simplistic story benefits from an exceptionally strong performance by Luke as Patrick Chamusso; Robbins' character isn't nearly as fleshed out. Chamusso himself appears in the film's closing moments. Screenplay by Shawn Slovo, who also wrote A WORLD APART. Super 35. [PG-13] ▾

Catch and Release (2007) C-112m.  D: Susannah Grant. Jennifer Garner, Timothy Olyphant, Kevin Smith, Sam Jaeger, Juliette Lewis, Joshua Friesen, Fiona Shaw, Tina Lifford, Georgia Craig. Generally uninvolved drama about a young woman whose fiancé dies suddenly, leaving behind a boatload of secrets. As each revelation makes her angrier, she begins to loosen up and accept new possibilities in her life, including romance. Garner valiantly tries to lift this lifeless material above the TV-movie level but the endless banter sinks it. Smith's character has a sitcom-style retort for any situation. Feature directing debut for writer Grant (ERIN KATROVICH, IN HER SHOES). Super 35. [PG-13] ▾

Cat Chaser (1989) C-90m. ½ D: Abel Ferrara. Kelly McGillis, Peter Weller, Frederic Forrest, Charles Durning, Tomas Milian, Juan Fernandez. Wordy political thriller based on Elmore Leonard's novel about an ex-soldier reuniting with old flame whose husband happens to be the head of the secret police in Santo Domingo. Some decent performances, but film is often confusing and dull. Never released theatrically. Alternate, unrated version runs 92m. [R] ▾

Catch Me If You Can (2002) C-141m.  D: Steven Spielberg. Leonardo DiCaprio, Tom Hanks, Christopher Walken, Martin Sheen, Nathalie Baye, Amy Adams, James Brolin, Brian Howe, Jennifer Garner, Ellen Pompeo, Elizabeth Banks. In the 1960s, Frank Abagnale, Jr., not unlike Ferdinand Demara in THE GREAT IMPOSTOR, manages to con his way into a variety of jobs (airline pilot, surgeon, lawyer) using glibness, smarts, and knowledge of forgery... while FBI agent Hanks spends years tracking him. Brightly told for a story with so many dark undertones, with charismatic star performances and a moving turn by Walken as DiCaprio's ne'er-do-well father. Yet when the long tale is over, it has no resonance. Striking animated titles and

a wonderful jazzy score by John Williams. Based on Abagnale's book. [PG-13] ▾

Catch My Soul (1974) C-95m. *½ D: Patrick McGohhan. Richie Havens, Lance LeGault, Season Hubley, Tony Joe White, Susan Tyrrell, Delaney and Bonnie Bramlett. Jack Good's rock-opera adaptation of Shakespeare's Othello, with Havens as sanctimonious preacher and LeGault as his Iago, is uninvolved, heavy-handed stuff. Some good music, but if the play's the thing, this one doesn't make it. Retitled: SANTA FE SATAN. [PG]

Catch That Kid (2004) C-91m.  D: Bart Freundlich. Kristen Stewart, Corbin Bleu, Max Thieriot, Jennifer Beals, Sam Robards, James Le Gros, John Carroll Lynch, Michael Des Barres. Twelve-year-old climbing enthusiast Stewart and her two male best friends (and preteen romantic rivals) break into a bank's high-security vault, 100 feet off the ground, hoping to steal enough money to pay for experimental surgery for her father. Kids will enjoy the story and visual effects, though result is more video game than feature film—and parents may question its dubious ethics. Remake of a 2002 Danish film hit, KLATRETØSEN. [PG] ▾

Catch-22 (1970) C-121m. ½ D: Mike Nichols. Long, labored, expensive film of Joseph Heller's book halfway succeeds in capturing surrealism insanity of WW2 Army life. Heavy-handedness spoils potential; good cast tries its best. Cathy Tippel SEE: Keetje Tippel

Cat in the Hat, The (2003) C-82m. *½ D: Bo Welch. Mike Myers, Kelly Preston, Alec Baldwin, Dakota Fanning, Spencer Breslin, Sean Hayes, Amy Hill, Clint Howard, Paris Hilton. A brother and sister spend an eventful day in the company of a magical cat while their single mom is off at work. Brightly colored adaptation of the beloved rhyming book for young children is a betrayal of everything Dr. Seuss ever stood for, injecting potty humor and adult (wink-wink) jokes into its mixture of heavy-handed slapstick and silliness. Hayes also provides the voice of The Fish. Officially known as DR. SEUSS' THE CAT IN THE HAT, which is an official insult. Super 35. [PG] ▼

Cat on a Hot Tin Roof (1958) C-108m. ½ D: Richard Brooks. Elizabeth Taylor, Paul Newman, Burl Ives, Jack Carson, Judith Anderson, Madeleine Sherwood, Larry Gates. Southern patriarch Ives learns he is dying; his greedy family, except for son Newman, falls all over itself sucking up to him. Tennessee Williams' classic study of "mendacity" comes to the screen somewhat laundered but still packing a wallop; entire cast is sensational. Adaptation by Brooks and James Poe. Remade in 1983 for TV. ▼

Cat o' Nine Tails, The (1971-Italian-German-French) C-112m.  D: Dario Argento. Karl Malden, James Franciscus, Catherine Spaak, Cinzia De Carolis, Carlo Alighiero. Early Argento horror hit has Malden as ex-reporter, now blind, who persuades newsman Franciscus to join him in hunt for a crazed killer. Good atmosphere in uneven story, hurt by terrible dubbing. Techniscope. [PG] ▼

Cat People (1942) 73m.  D: Jacques Tourneur. Simone Simon, Kent Smith, Tom Conway, Jack Holt, Jane Randolph. Storyline and plot elements don't hold up, but moments of shock and terror are undiminished in the first of producer Val Lewton's famous horror films. Smith falls in love with strange, shy woman (Simon) who fears ancient curse of the panther inside her. Followed by THE CURSE OF THE CAT PEOPLE. Remade in 1982. ▼

Cat People (1982) C-118m.  D: Paul Schrader. Nastassia Kinski, Malcolm McDowell, John Heard, Annette O'Toole,

Ruby Dee, Ed Begley, Jr., Scott Paulin, John Larroquette. Virginal Kinski moves in with brother McDowell, a "cat man," and falls in love with zoo curator Heard as a black panther rampages through community. Sexy, bloody, technically well crafted, but uneven and ultimately unsatisfying; Schrader seems more concerned with camera angles and nudity than coherent storyline. Loosely based on the 1942 film. [R]▼

Cats & Dogs (2001) C-87m.  D: Lawrence Guterman. Jeff Goldblum, Elizabeth Perkins, Alexander Pollock, Miriam Margolyes; voices of Tobey Maguire, Alec Baldwin, Sean Hayes, Susan Sarandon, Joe Pantoliano, Michael Clarke Duncan, Jon Lovitz, Charlton Heston, Salome Jens. Beagle puppy is adopted by the family of a scientist trying to invent something that will end humankind's allergies to dogs. The cats (led by Blofeld-like Mr. Tinkles) are out to stop this, opposed by a spy network of dogs. Good premise (executed with a variety of special effects) is undone by an uneven blend of silliness and heavy-handedness. Cat lovers be warned: top billing isn't everything. [PG] ▼

Cats Don't Dance (1997) C-75m. *½ D: Mark Dindal. Voices of Scott Bakula, Jasmine Guy, Natalie Cole, Ashley Peldon, Kathy Najimy, John Rhys-Davies, George Kennedy, Rene Auberjonois, Hal Holbrook, Don Knotts, Betty Lou Gerson. Fairly dreary cartoon feature about a wide-eyed cat from Kokomo who goes to Hollywood to star in musical movies, circa 1939. What he finds instead is a town full of cynics and broken dreams. The villain is a hyper-bratty child star who hates animals. That's entertainment? Unmemorable songs by Randy Newman. Gene Kelly served as a choreography consultant. [G]▼

Cat's Eye (1985) C-93m. *½ D: Lewis Teague. Drew Barrymore, James Woods, Alan King, Kenneth McMillan, Robert Hays, Candy Clark, James Naughton, Patricia Kalember, Charles Dutton. Trio of heavy-handed Stephen King stories, short on irony, long on mean-spiritedness. J-D-C Scope. [PG-13]▼

Cat's Meow, The (2001-German-British) C/B&W-112m.  D: Peter Bogdanovich. Kirsten Dunst, Edward Herrmann, Cary Elwes, Eddie Izzard, Joanna Lumley, Victor Slezak, Jennifer Tilly, James Laurenson, Claudia Harrison. Entertaining speculation about the doings on William Randolph Hearst's yacht in November of 1924, including an unrequited love by Charlie Chaplin (Izzard) for Marion Davies (Dunst) and the murder of down-and-out producer Thomas Ince (Elwes). Well shot and well cast; Herrmann is an ideal Hearst, and Izzard is persuasive as Chaplin. Steven Peros' script (based on his play) captures the spirit of the time, but the events portrayed are strictly from his imagination. [R]▼

Cat's-Paw, The (1934) 98m. ½ D: Sam

Taylor, Harold Lloyd, Una Merkel, George Barbier, Alan Dinehart, Grace Bradley, Nat Pendleton. Harold is a missionary's son, raised in China; he comes to U.S. a babe in the woods, is duped into running for mayor in big city by corrupt politicians who regard him as perfect patsy. Odd Capraesque comedy ends with strange denouement where Lloyd takes law into his own hands. A real curio. ▀

Cattle Annie and Little Britches (1980) C-95m.  D: Lamont Johnson. Burt Lancaster, Rod Steiger, Amanda Plummer, Diane Lane, John Savage, Scott Glenn, Michael Conrad. Very pleasant little Western, which was thrown away by its distributor, Universal. In 1893, Eastern girls Plummer (Annie) and Lane (Britches) join remnants of the Doolin-Dalton gang and inspire them to pull a few more jobs. Winning cast, including Plummer in film debut. Based on Robert Ward's novel. [PG]

Cattle Drive (1951) C-77m. ½ D: Kurt Neumann. Joel McCrea, Dean Stockwell, Leon Ames, Chill Wills. Stockwell does well in role of bratty teenager who learns a sense of values from veteran cowhand McCrea on arduous cow drive.

Cattle King (1963) C-88m.  D: Tay Garnett. Robert Taylor, Joan Caulfield, Robert Loggia, Robert Middleton, Larry Gates, Malcolm Atterbury. Control of grazing land subject of standard Western confrontation saga, Taylor and Middleton squaring off in forgettable drama. Metroscope.

Cattle Queen of Montana (1954) C-88m. ½ D: Allan Dwan. Barbara Stanwyck, Ronald Reagan, Gene Evans, Lance Fuller, Anthony Caruso, Jack Elam. Stanwyck battles to protect her livestock and property from plundering by Indians—and a ruthless villain (Evans). Reagan plays second fiddle to feisty Stanwyck here—but they're both done in by mediocre script. Beautiful scenery helps. ▼●●

Catwoman (2004) C-104m. *½ D: Pitof. Halle Berry, Benjamin Bratt, Sharon Stone, Lambert Wilson, Frances Conroy, Alex Borstein, Michael Masse, Byron Mann. Meek employee of a big cosmetics firm is murdered when she overhears incriminating evidence about a new face cream with gruesome side effects . . . but instead of dying she's resurrected as Catwoman and tries to bring the guilty parties to justice. Nonsensical story concept, illogical in the extreme, sets up impossible relationships and gives us a "heroine" who's scarcely worth rooting for. Berry does her best; Stone manages to be dull even while parodying herself as the lethal wife of the cosmetics manufacturer. Based on the D.C. comic book. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Cat-Women of the Moon (1954) 64m. *½ D: Arthur Hilton. Sonny Tufts, Victor Jory, Marie Windsor, Bill Phipps, Douglas Fowley, Susan Morrow. All-star cast in tacky sci-fi entry about a moon expedition that discovers female civilization and its underground empire. Originally shown in 3-D; aka ROCKET TO THE MOON. Remade as MISSILE TO THE MOON. ▼

Caught (1949) 88m.  D: Max Ophuls. James Mason, Barbara Bel Geddes, Robert Ryan, Frank Ferguson, Curt Bois, Natalie Schafer. Compelling, intelligent story of young girl who marries powerful millionaire, tries to escape her shallow existence with him. Fine performances, skilled direction by Ophuls. ▼

Caught (1996) C-109m.  D: Robert M. Young. Edward James Olmos, Maria Conchita Alonso, Arie Verveen, Bitty Schram, Steven Schub. Tension-packed, if somewhat familiar, film noir about long-married couple whose relationship is disrupted when a drifter (Verveen) comes to live with the couple and work in their fish store; then their married son (Schub) arrives on the scene. This POST-MAN ALWAYS RINGS TWICE variation has atmosphere to spare; sharply acted and scripted (by Edward Pomerantz, based on his novel Into It). [R] ▼●●

Caught in the Draft (1941) 82m.  D: David Butler. Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour, Lynne Overman, Eddie Bracken. The last thing movie star Hope wants is to get drafted, but he accidentally enlists himself. Very funny service comedy. ▼

Caught Up (1998) C-95m. BOMB D: Darin Scott. Bokeem Woodbine, Cynda Williams, Jeffrey Combs, Tony Todd, Snoop Doggy Dogg, LL Cool J, Michael (Clarke) Duncan. Witless blaxploitation/film noir about an ex-con (Woodbine) who falls back into L.A.'s underworld when he gets involved with a sexy psychic (Williams) who's a dead ringer for his ex-wife (also Williams). Marked by convoluted plotting, gross stereotypes, and cameos by star rappers (Snoop plays a drug courier named Cool Kitty Kat—get it?). That's CANDYMAN's Tony Todd as a malevolent parole officer and RE-ANIMATOR's Jeffrey Combs as a Shakespeare-quoting eunuch security guard. [R] ▼●●

Cauldron of Blood (1967-Spanish-U.S.) C-95m. *½ D: Edward Mann (Santos Alcecer). Boris Karloff, Viveca Lindfors, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Jacqui Speed, Rosenda Monteros. Sordid, sleep-inducing tale of blind sculptor (Karloff) whose skeletal models are actually victims of his murdering wife. Also known as BLIND MAN'S BLUFF. Filmed in wide-screen Panoramica. [PG] ▼

Cause for Alarm! (1951) 74m.  D: Tay Garnett. Loretta Young, Barry Sullivan, Bruce Cowling, Margalo Gillmore, Carl Switzer, Richard Anderson. Simple, effective thriller with Young registering as the panic-stricken wife of psychotic Sullivan. Tension builds, and there's a neat plot twist. ▼●●

Cavalcade (1933) 110m. * D: Frank

Lloyd, Diana Wynyard, Clive Brook, Herbert Muddin, Ursula Jeans, Margaret Lindsay, Beryl Mercer, Una O'Connor, Billy Bevan, Frank Lawton. Lavish Hollywood adaptation of Noel Coward's London stage success (which may remind many of TV's Upstairs, Downstairs) chronicling two English families from eve of the 20th century to early 1930s. Nostalgic, richly atmospheric, but also sharply critical of war and the aftershocks that brought an end to a wonderful way of life. Oscar winner for Best Picture, Best Director, and "Interior Decoration" (it is handsome). ▼

Cavalry Charge SEE: Last Outpost, The (1951)

Cave Dwellers SEE: Blade Master, The Caveman (1981) C-92m. ½ D: Carl Gottlieb. Ringo Starr, Barbara Bach, John Matuszak, Shelley Long, Dennis Quaid, Avery Schreiber, Jack Gilford. Stoned-age spoof follows prehistoric Starr's adventures in One Zillion B.C. as a misfit who forms his own tribe, which is composed of outcasts from other caves. Dum-dum comedy saved by fantastic (and funny) special-effects dinosaurs created by Jim Danforth and David Allen. [PG] ▼

Caveman's Valentine, The (2001) C-105m. *½ D: Kasi Lemmons. Samuel L. Jackson, Colm Feore, Ann Magnuson, Aunjanue Ellis, Rodney Eastman, Tamara Tunie, Jay Rodan, Anthony Michael Hall. A once-brilliant piano student now lives as a delusional hermit in an N.Y.C. cave, but turns detective to help solve a murder that takes place in the park outside his dwelling. Strange, unappealing film has almost nothing to recommend it. Screenplay by George Dawes Green, based on his well-regarded novel. [R] ▼

Cave of the Yellow Dog, The (2006-German-Mongolian) C-89m.  D: Byambasuren Davaa. Urjindorj Batchuluun, Buyandulam D. Batchuluun, Nansal Batchuluun, Nansalma Batchuluun, Batbayar Batchuluun. Poignant family drama about a little girl and her puppy who live in a yurt in the Mongolian valleys, where cowpies are her toys, wolves kill livestock, vultures circle, and the anonymous big city beckons. Non-professionals sincerely enact the ethnographic details of daily life—child care, making cheese, sheep skinning—in a simple, satisfying tale not unlike LITTLE HOUSE ON THE STEPPES. Written by the director. Cute pooch. [G]

Cavern, The (1966) 94m. ½ D: Edgar G. Ulmer. Rosanna Schiaffino, John Saxon, Brian Aherne, Peter L. Marshall, Larry Hagman, Hans Von Borsody. Six soldiers are trapped for over a year in a cavern with Schiaffino, but plot contrivance isn't handled badly in above-average programmer. The prolific director's swan song.

C.C. and Company (1970) C-88m. *½ D: Seymour Robbie. Joe Namath, Ann-Margret, William Smith, Jennifer Billingsley, Teda Bracci, Greg Mullavey, Sid Haig, Bruce Glover, Wayne Cochran & The C.C. Riders. Broadway Joe gets sacked in his first starring role as a motorcyclist who tangles with Smith's biker gang while trying (not very hard) to fight off Ann-Margret's advances. Bracci's comedy relief is principal virtue, but the big laughs are unintentional. Produced by Roger Smith (who also wrote the screenplay) and Allan Carr. Aka CHROME HEARTS. [PG—edited from original R rating] ▼

Cease Fire (1985) C-97m. ½ D: David Nutter. Don Johnson, Lisa Blount, Robert F. Lyons, Richard Chaves, Rick Richards, Chris Noel. Earnest drama about Vietnam vet who's still haunted by his experiences 15 years later and unwilling to acknowledge that he has a problem. Sincere, poignant at times, but dramatically uneven. George Fernandez adapted script from his one-act play. [R] ▼

Cagney causes no end of grief for old pal (and boss) O'Brien, especially when he sets his sights on young pilot Travis. Typically machine-gun-paced Hawks drama belies its stage origins; one of the best Cagney-O'Brien vehicles. Based on the play by Frank "Spig" Wead; remade as INTERNATIONAL SQUADRON. ▼

Celebration, The (1998-Danish) C-101m. ½ D: Thomas Vinterberg. Ulrich Thomsen, Henning Moritzen, Thomas Bo Larsen, Paprika Steen, Birthe Neumann, Trine Dyrholm. A prodigal son's return for his prosperous father's sixtieth birthday party sets the stage for a dysfunctional family reunion in the Danish countryside. Harsh, sardonically humorous look at the dark side of relationships—and hidden skeletons. Strongly scripted by the director (who also has a bit as a cab driver) and Mogens Rukov, under the "pure cinema" rules of Dogma 95. [R] ▼

Celebrity (1998) 114m.  D: Woody Allen. Kenneth Branagh, Judy Davis, Joe Mantegna, Leonardo DiCaprio, Winona Ryder, Charlize Theron, Hank Azaria, Melanie Griffith, Famke Janssen, Michael Lerner, Bebe Neuwirth, Larry Pine, Marian Seldes, Andre Gregory, Gretchen Mol, Dylan Baker, Sam Rockwell, Allison Janney, Celia Weston, Aida Turturro, Kate Burton, Patti D'Arbanville, Debra Messing, Donna Hanover, Karen Duffy, Isaac Mizrahi, Jeffrey Wright. Branagh becomes Woody Allen in this rambling look at a neurotic N.Y. magazine writer, his messed-up love life and career. Allen is coasting here, with an attractive cast, some amusing moments, but nothing much to say. Davis is, as always, incredibly good. Shot in black-and-white by Sven Nykvist. [R] ▼

Celeste (1981-German) C-107m.  D: Percy Adlon. Eva Mattes, Jurgen Arndt, Norbert Wartha, Wolf Euba, Leo Bardischewski. Slow-moving but stunningly photographed and detailed account of the relationship between Marcel Proust (Arndt) and his devoted housekeeper (Mattes). Based on the real Celeste's memoirs. ▼

Celine and Julie Go Boating (1974-French) C-193m. ½ D: Jacques Rivette. Juliet Berto, Dominique Labourier, Bulle Ogier, Marie-France Pisier, Barbet Schroeder, Nathalie Ansrar. Librarian Julie (Labourier) strikes up a friendship with magician Celine (Berto), who tells her of a mythical haunted house, which the two visit; they eventually become involved in the "lives" of the ghosts who reside there. Eerie, thoroughly entrancing

(if a bit overlong) comedy-drama-fantasy. Scripted by Berto, Labourier, Ogier, Pisier, Rivette, and Eduardo de Gregorio, based on short stories by Henry James. ▼

Cell, The (2000) C-107m.  D: Tarsem Singh. Jennifer Lopez, Vince Vaughn. Vincent D'Onofrio, Jake Weber, Dylan Baker, Marianne Jean-Baptiste, James Gammon, Patrick Bauchau. Genuinely creepy film about an experimental program in which psychologist Lopez is able to enter the minds of her catatonic patients. FBI agent Vaughn prevails upon her to help him catch sick serial killer D'Onofrio. Full of arresting—but often distressing—images; not for the squeamish. Followed by a direct-to-DVD sequel. Super 35. [R] ▼

Cellular (2004) C-94m. ½ D: David R. Ellis. Kim Basinger, Chris Evans, William H. Macy, Eric Christian Olsen, Jessica Biel, Jason Statham, Richard Burgi, Eddie Driscoll, Adam Taylor Gordon, Noah Emmerich. Not-bad thriller in which science teacher Basinger is kidnapped and imprisoned in an attic. A cell phone is her only link to the outside world, and when a stranger answers her call, she tries to convince the young surfer-slacker (Evans) to help her. Entertaining enough, as long as you ignore the many plot holes; Macy is a big plus as a cop. Based on a story by Larry Cohen, who also wrote PHONE BOOTH. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Celluloid Closet, The (1995) C-102m.  D: Rob Epstein, Jeffrey Friedman. Narrated by Lily Tomlin. Entertaining, insightful look at homosexuality as reflected in movies. Well-chosen clips are sandwiched by interviews with many actors and filmmakers (Whoopi Goldberg, Tony Curtis, Harvey Fierstein, Arthur Laurents, Shirley MacLaine, Tom Hanks, Susan Sarandon, Mart Crowley, John Schlesinger). One highlight: Gore Vidal revealing the gay subtext in his screenplay for BEN-HUR. Tomlin coexecutive-produced. [R] ▼

Celtic Pride (1996) C-91m. BOMB D: Tom De Cerchio. Damon Wayans, Daniel Stern, Dan Aykroyd, Gail O'Grady, Adam Hender-shott, Paul Guilfoyle, Deion Sanders, Christopher McDonald. Two obsessed Boston Celtics fans drunkenly kidnap the arrogant star of the rival basketball team to ensure that theirs wins the championship. Might have worked as a wild farce, but in this "realistic" comic mode, it's a disaster, with repellent characters, leaden pacing, and no laughs. [PG-13] ▼

Cement Garden, The (1992-German-British-French) C-105m. ½ D: Andrew Birkin. Charles Gainsbourg, Andrew Robertson, Sinead Cusack, Hanns Zischler, Alice Coulthard, Ned Birkin, Jochen Horst. Strange, complex account of the way four young siblings react to the death of their parents (and go about hiding the demise of their mom)—with youthful bewilderment, erotic anxiety, and clandestine yearning. Vivid, but also terribly affected. The director (who scripted, from Ian McEwan's novel) is Gainsbourg's uncle, and Ned Birkin's father. ▼

Cemetery Club, The (1992) C-106m. ½ D: Bill Duke. Ellen Burstyn, Olympia Dukakis, Diane Ladd, Danny Aiello, Lainie Kazan, Jeff Howell, Christina Ricci, Bernie Casey, Robert Costanzo, Wallace Shawn, Louis Guss. The friendship of three women (all Jewish, all played—none too persuasively—by Gentiles) is underscored by the loss of their husbands, until one of them enters into a tentative relationship with a man. Burstyn is a joy to watch, but Dukakis' and Ladd's caricatured performances throw modestly entertaining film off-balance. Ivan Menchell adapted his own play, though comic writer Marshall Brickman has "production consultant" credit. Jerry Orbach and Lee Richardson appear unbilled as husbands. [PG-13] ▼●●

Cemetery Girls SEE: Velvet Vampire, The Cemetery Man (1995-U.S.-Italian) C-100m.  D: Michele Soavi. Rupert Everett, Francois Hadji-Lazarou, Anna Falchi, Stefano Masciarelli, Mickey Knox. Zombies rise from the dead a week after their demise, and it's "Cemetery Man's" job to kill them again, with the assistance of a grotesque mute companion. Based on an Italian comic book series, Dylan Dog, a promising concept becomes overwhelming and repetitive. At times outrageous, funny, sexy, and disgusting, with a startlingly enigmatic and fascinating ending. [R] ▼●●

Centennial Summer (1946) C-102m. ½ D: Otto Preminger. Jeanne Crain, Cornel Wilde, Linda Darnell, William Eythe, Walter Brennan, Constance Bennett, Dorothy Gish. Leisurely, plush musical of Philadelphia Exposition of 1876, with sisters Crain and Darnell both after handsome Wilde; nice Jerome Kern score helps.

Center of the Web (1992) C-88m.  D: David A. Prior. Robert Davi, Charlene Tilton, Ted Prior, Tony Curtis, Bo Hopkins, William Zipp, Graham Timbes, Eric Stenson, Charles Napier. Hired killer is murdered, and government agents force a man who looks just like him to pose as the dead bad-guy. Or is that what's really going on? Complicated plot, smoothly directed, but of no real distinction. [R] ▼●●

Center of the World, The (2001) C-86m.  D: Wayne Wang. Peter Sarsgaard, Molly Parker, Carla Gugino, Balthazar Getty, Alisha Klass. Millionaire computer nerd hires a stripper to accompany him to Las Vegas for a weekend—after she sets strict ground rules, including no sex. But his fantasy vision of her, and her illusion of having control, collide with reality as they begin to have genuine feelings for each other. Intense and intimate drama about sexual relationships, with compelling performances by the two leads. Unrated version runs 88m. ▼

Center Stage (2000) C-113m.  D: Nicholas Hytner. Amanda Schull, Zoë Saldana, Susan May Pratt, Peter Gallagher, Donna Murphy, Debra Monk, Ethan Stiefel, Sascha Radetsky, Shakiem Evans. Routine backstage soap about young students at a prestigious N.Y.C. ballet company, focusing on a plucky starlet's infatuation with the company's cocky male lead (American Ballet Theater star Stiefel). Lots of Broadway pedigree behind the scenes, including choreography by Tony Award-winner Susan Stroman, but this plays like Dawson's Creek in Capezio. Only a couple of the dance set pieces really fly. Fun cameo from ex-Chorus Line hooper Priscilla Lopez. Followed by a sequel. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Central Park Drifter SEE: Graveyard Shift (1989)

Central Station (1998-Brazilian-French) C-107m.  D: Walter Salles. Fernanda Montenegro, Vinicius de Oliveira, Marília Pêra, Sôia Lira, Othon Bastos, Otávio Augusto, Stela Freitas. A woman who writes letters for the illiterate at Rio de Janeiro's central train station feels obliged to help a 9-year-old boy whose mother has just been killed. The two form an unlikely bond and journey to a remote area of Brazil to try to find his father. Predictable on one level, but extremely well done, with a shining performance by Montenegro (one of Brazil's leading actresses) and newcomer de Oliveira. Super 35. [R] ▼

Century (1994-British) C-112m.  D: Stephen Poliakoff. Charles Dance, Miranda Richardson, Clive Owen, Robert Stephens, Lena Headey, Neil Stuke, Joan Hickson, Fiona Walker. Romantic drama set in turn-of-the-century London examines the relationships of three very different people as the Victorian era dissolves into the 20th century and the world becomes a different place. Mildly involving period piece, but top-notch cast can't breathe life into a premise that doesn't quite come off. ▼

Ceremony, The (1963) 105m. ½ D: Laurence Harvey. Laurence Harvey, Sarah Miles, Robert Walker, Jr., John Ireland, Ross Martin, Lee Patterson, Noel Purcell. Mishmash about convicted killer rescued by brother who demands liaison with sister-in-law as reward.

Certain Fury (1985) C-87m. BOMB D: Stephen Gyllenhaal. Tatum O'Neal, Irene Cara, Nicholas Campbell, George Murdock, Moses Gunn, Peter Fonda. Atrocious film about two girls on the lam, featuring a pair of Academy Award winners (as the ads proclaimed) giving two of the worst performances in recent memory. Made in Canada.

[R]▼●

Certain Smile, A (1958) C-106m. ½ D: Jean Negulesco. Rossano Brazzi, Jean Fontaine, Bradford Dillman, Christine Carere. Françoise Sagan's novella becomes overblown soap opera. Romance between Parisian students Dillman (in film debut) and Carere interrupted when she is beguiled by roué Brazzi; chic Fontaine is wasted. CinemaScope.

Cervantes SEE: Young Rebel

Cesar (1936-French) 117m. ½ D: Marcel Pagnol. Raimu, Pierre Fresnay, Orane Demazis, Charpin, Andre Fouché, Alida Rouffe. Fanny's son (Fouché), now grown, learns that his father is Marius (Fresnay), not Panisse (Charpin). Raimu steals the film in the title role, particularly when he gives a poignant discourse on death. Third of Pagnol's trilogy, preceded by MARIUS and FANNY. All three were the basis of the play and movie FANNY (1961).▼●●

César and Rosalie (1972-French-Italian-German) C-104m.  D: Claude Sautet. Yves Montand, Romy Schneider, Sami Frey, Umberto Orsini, Éva Marie Meineke, Isabelle Huppert. Appealing stars in typically French story of a menage à trois relationship (a woman and her two lovers) and how it changes over the years. [R]▼●●

C'est la Vie (1990-French) C-97m.  D: Diane Kurys. Nathalie Baye, Julie Bataille, Candice Lefranc, Richard Berry, Jean-Pierre Bacri, Zabou. Autobiographical coming-of-age chronicle, strikingly similar to Kurys' PEPPERMINT SODA, about a 13-year-old girl (Bataille) and her experiences one long-ago summer at a beach resort. Despite the familiarity of them, the film is provocative and charming. A sequel—or, more precisely, companion piece—to ENTRE NOUS, which must be seen to fully appreciate the character of the girl's mother (here Nathalie Baye, in ENTRE NOUS, Isabelle Huppert). Panavision.▶

Cet Amour-là (2002-French) C-98m. ½ D: Joséé Dayan. Jeanne Moreau, Aymeric Demarigny, Christiane Rorato, Sophie Milleron, Justine Lévy, Stanislas Sauphanor, Didier Lesour, Tanya Lopert. Ambitious but uneven depiction of the multilayered relationship between writer-filmmaker Marguerite Duras (Moreau) and Yann Andréa (Demarigny), a student almost four decades her junior who becomes her assistant and lover. Moreau (who appeared in a number of Duras films in her career) is well cast and as fascinating as ever, but the film itself is disappointing. Based on Andréa's autobiographical novel. Panavision.▼▶

Chad Hanna (1940) C-86m.  D: Henry King. Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour, Linda Darnell, Guy Kibbee, Jane Darwell, John Carradine. Rather flat circus drama set in 19th-century New York; colorful but empty.

Chained (1934) 76m. ½ D: Clarence

Brown. Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Otto Kruger, Stuart Erwin, Una O'Connor, Akim Tamiroff. Chic formula MGM love triangle with Crawford torn between love for Gable and married lover Kruger. Watch for Mickey Rooney splashing in a swimming pool.▼▶

Chained Heat (1983-U.S.-German) C-95m. BOMB D: Paul Nicolas. Linda Blair, John Vernon, Sybil Danning, Tamara Dobson, Stella Stevens, Louisa Moritz, Nita Talbot, Michael Callan, Henry Silva, Edy Williams. Innocent Blair finds herself in a prison where the warden has a hot tub in his office. Strictly for the grind-house crowd on 42nd Street. Followed by CHAINED HEAT 2. [R]▼●

Chain Lightning (1950) 94m.  D: Stuart Heisler. Humphrey Bogart, Eleanor Parker, Raymond Massey, Richard Whorf. After WW2, bomber pilot Bogart becomes a test pilot for jet manufacturer Massey. Some romantic rivalry over Parker with inventor Whorf is as low-key as the rest of this bland, uninvolved movie.▼●

Chain of Fools (2000) C-96m. BOMB D: Traktor. Steve Zahn, Salma Hayek, Jeff Goldblum, Elijah Wood, David Cross, Tom Wilkinson, Orlando Jones, Kevin Corrigan, David Hyde Pierce, Lara Flynn Boyle, Craig Ferguson, Michael Rapaport. Wimpy barber accidentally kills a hoodlum, then decides to purloin the valuable coins the guy has just stolen. Woeful, would-be farce might be better described as CHAIN OF OBNOXIOUS IDIOTS. At one point Wilkinson moans, "How did I ever get into this mess?" Indeed. Traktor is the name of a Swedish collective, so no one person can be blamed for this. Released direct to video in the U.S. [R]▶

Chain Reaction (1980-Australian) C-87m. ½ D: Ian Barry. Steve Bisley, Arna-Maria Winchester, Ross Thompson, Ralph Cotterill, Patrick Ward. OK thriller chronicling the repercussions of a nuclear plant accident on a contaminated employee (Thompson) and an innocent couple (Bisley, Winchester) forced to contend with Big Brother. Look quickly for Mel Gibson as a bearded car mechanic. Video title: NUCLEAR RUN.▼●

Chain Reaction (1996) C-106m. *½ D: Andrew Davis. Keanu Reeves, Morgan Freeman, Rachel Weisz, Fred Ward, Kevin

Dunn, Brian Cox, Joanna Cassidy, Nicholas Rudall, Michael Shannon. Machinist working on hydrogen-energy project is blamed for a devastating explosion and takes it on the lam along with a female physicist on the project. What's really behind all this skulduggery? Uninspired, ultimately ludicrous blend of action, chase, and political thriller genres has barely a believable moment. [PG-13] ▼●●

Chains of Gold (1991) C-95m.  D: Rod Holcomb. John Travolta, Marilu Henner, Joey Lawrence, Bernie Casey, Ramon Franco, Hector Elizondo, Benjamin Bratt, Conchata Ferrell, Tammy Lauren. A dedicated social worker (Travolta) transforms himself into a Stallone clone as he sets out to rescue a young friend caught up with a gang of crack dealers. Ludicrous actioner is yet another of Travolta's grade-D pre-PULP FICTION efforts (although he co-wrote this one!). Made for theatrical release in 1989, but debuted on cable TV. [R] ▼●

Chairman, The (1969) C-102m. ½ D: J. Lee Thompson. Gregory Peck, Anne Heywood, Arthur Hill, Alan Dobie, Conrad Yama. Lots of talk but little action in story of American scientist sent to Communist China on super-secret espionage mission. Panavision. [M/PG] ●

Chairman of the Board (1998) C-95m. BOMB D: Alex Zamm. Carrot Top, Courtney Thorne-Smith, Larry Miller, Raquel Welch, Jack Warden, M. Emmet Walsh, Estelle Harris, Bill Erwin, Little Richard, Taylor Negron, Butterbean. Excruciatingly stupid story of inventor/beach bum Carrot Top, who inherits a major corporation from a complete stranger, to the vexation of sleazy corporate nephew Miller. Harris hits the film's low point as his landlady, a woman with a laryngectomy who ceaselessly curses. Someone thought this was funny? [PG-13] ▼●●

Chalk (2007) C-84m.  D: Mike Akel. Troy Schremmer, Janelle Schremmer, Shannon Haragan, Chris Mass, Jeff Guerrero, Jerry Jarmon. Low-budget mockumentary about malcontent teachers with a cause lacks structure and comedic drive, getting by (a little) on goodwill. The two Schremmers are married in real life; he's the movie's focus (a history-teaching newcomer named Troy), and she's the default standout as a gym teacher who would like to make Troy her boy. Affectionate enough and probably even true enough, but just passable. [PG-13] ●

Chalk Garden, The (1964-British) C-106m.  D: Ronald Neame. Deborah Kerr, Hayley Mills, John Mills, Edith Evans, Felix Aylmer, Elizabeth Sellars. Very-high-class soap opera with good cast supporting story of teenager set on right path by governess Kerr; colorful production, quite entertaining. From Enid Bagnold play. ▼

tin Beck. Earl Owensby, William Hicks, Kathryn Thompson, Johnny Popwell. North Carolina-based Owensby's first film (which he also produced) amateurishly goes through the usual vengeance-for-killing-my-family paces. Opening printed crawl celebrates this as return of "clean, decent entertainment," followed by Owensby causing the deaths of various badguys. But don't worry—none of his victims is naked. Dreadful. [PG] ▼

Challenge, The (1982) C-112m. ½ D: John Frankenheimer. Scott Glenn, Toshiro Mifune, Donna Kei Benz, Atsuo Nakamura, Calvin Young. Entertaining but sometimes pretentious actioner, with American boxer Glenn becoming involved in conflict between brothers Mifune and Nakamura over rights to family swords. Scripted by John Sayles and Richard Maxwell. Exteriors shot mostly in Kyoto. Completely recut for TV release as SWORD OF THE NINJA, running 97m. [R] ▼

Challenge for Robin Hood, A (1968-British) C-85m.  D: C. M. Pennington-Richards. Barrie Ingham, James Hayter, Leon Greene, Peter Blythe, Gay Hamilton, Alfie Bass. Hammer Films produced this inoffensive but undistinguished adventure yarn, which is of little interest except to children. Originally 96m. [G] ▼

Challenge To Be Free (1976) C-88m. ½ D: Tay Garnett. Mike Mazurki, Vic Christy, Jimmy Kane, Fritz Ford. Fur trapper is pursued by the law in Arctic surroundings; simple and simple-minded, best for younger viewers. Made in 1972 as MAD TRAPPER OF THE YUKON, this marked last film for veteran director Garnett, who appears briefly as Marshal McGee. [G] ▼

Challenge to Lassie (1949) C-76m. ½ D: Richard Thorpe. Edmund Gwenn, Donald Crisp, Geraldine Brooks, Reginald Owen, Alan Webb, Ross Ford, Henry Stephenson, Alan Napier, Sara Allgood, Arthur Shields. Based-on-fact story, set in 19th-century Edinburgh, about a dog (actually a Skye terrier but played here by Lassie) who keeps returning to a churchyard where its master (Crisp) is buried. Pleasant film, with a fine character-actor cast. Remade as GREYFRIARS BOBBY, which also features Crisp (as the cemetery caretaker). ▼

Chamber, The (1996) C-110m.  D: James Foley. Chris O'Donnell, Gene Hackman, Faye Dunaway, Robert Prosky, Raymond Barry, Lela Rochon, Harve Presnell, Bo Jackson. Young lawyer feels impelled to defend a Mississippi death row inmate, convicted of a racist/terrorist bombing years ago, because the man is his grandfather. Re-opening this volatile case causes pain and hardship for all involved. Curiously unmoving (and talky) adaptation of the John Gresham best-seller. O'Donnell is earnest but unconvincing; Hackman never successfully disappears into the role of a racist pig. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Chambermaid on the Titanic, The (1997-French-Spanish-Italian) C-96m.  D: Bigas Luna. Olivier Martinez, Romane Bohringer, Aitana Sánchez Gijón, Didier Bezace, Aldo Maccione. Utterly original and beautifully filmed fable about fantasy, desire and storytelling, centering on a French foundry worker who wins a trip to watch the launch of the Titanic in England and becomes obsessed with a woman he meets there. When he returns home, he becomes famous for spinning fantastical tales—which may or may not be true—about his wild night of passion with the woman. Unpredictable, unexpectedly moving film from the usually outrageous Luna (JAMÓN JAMÓN). Aka THE CHAMBERMAID. Cinecam-Scope.▼

Chamber of Horrors (1966) C-99m. *½ D: Hy Averback. Patrick O'Neal, Cesare Danova, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Patrice Wymore, Suzy Parker, Marie Windsor, Tony Curtis, Wayne Rogers. Wax museum provides setting for uneven mystery about mad killer on the loose. Intended for TV, it has mark of low-budget film plus two gimmicks: the "Horror Horn" and the "Fear Flasher."●

Chameleon Street (1991) C-95m.  D: Wendell B. Harris, Jr. Wendell B. Harris, Jr., Angela Leslie, Amina Fakir. Knowing sleeper based on true story of William Douglas Street, Jr. (played by Harris), a black man whose uncanny ability to intuit other people's needs enables him to successfully impersonate a reporter, a surgeon, an exchange student, and an attorney. Ingratiating film with a biting comic edge, and something to say. [R]▼●

Champ, The (1931) 87m. ½ D: King Vidor. Wallace Beery, Jackie Cooper, Irene Rich, Roscoe Ates, Edward Brophy, Hale Hamilton. Superb tearjerker about a washed-up prizefighter and his adoring son, played to perfection by Beery and Cooper (in the first of their several teamings). Simple, sentimental in the extreme, but very effective. Beery won an Oscar for his performance, as did Frances Marion for her original story. Remade in 1953 (as THE CLOWN) and 1979.▼●●

Champ, The (1979) C-121m. *½ D: Franco Zeffirelli. Jon Voight, Faye Dunaway, Ricky Schroder, Jack Warden, Arthur Hill, Strother Martin, Joan Blondell, Elisha Cook. Voight is too intelligent to convince as a dumb pug, and Dunaway, as a loving mother, looks as if she wants to bed down with her kid in hopeless remake of the 1931 sudser. Young Schroder cries (and cries) convincingly. [PG]▼●●

Champagne (1928-British) 93m. ½ D: Alfred Hitchcock. Betty Balfour, Jean Bradin, Gordon Harker, Ferdinand von Alten, Clifford Heatherley, Jack Trevor. Romantic escapades of irresponsible socialite Balfour whose father pretends he's broke to teach her a lesson. Overlong silent Hitch is moderately entertaining with the usual quota of striking visuals.▼●

Champagne for Caesar (1950) 99m.  D: Richard Whorf. Ronald Colman, Celeste Holm, Vincent Price, Barbara Britton, Art Linkletter. Genius Colman becomes national celebrity on TV quiz show; sponsor Price sends temptress Holm to distract big winner. Enjoyable spoof; Price hilarious as neurotic soap manufacturer.▼●●

Champagne Murders, The (1967-French) C-98m.  D: Claude Chabrol. Anthony Perkins, Maurice Ronet, Stephane Audran, Yvonne Furneaux, Suzanne Lloyd, Catherine Sola. Sale of champagne company to U.S. conglomerate manipulated by various weird, competing types, complicated by murders which point to playboy (Ronet). Murder-mystery narrative backdrop for odd psychological drama; one-of-a-kind film was shot in both English and French-language versions. Techniscope.

Champion (1949) 99m. ½ D: Mark Robson. Kirk Douglas, Marilyn Maxwell, Arthur Kennedy, Ruth Roman, Paul Stewart, Lola Albright. Unscrupulous boxer punches his way to the top, thrusting aside everybody and everything. Douglas perfectly cast in title role; gripping film, with Harry Gerstad's Oscar-winning editing. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Champions (1983-British) C-115m. ½ D: John Irvin. John Hurt, Edward Woodward, Jan Francis, Ben Johnson, Kirstie Alley, Peter Barkworth, Ann Bell, Judy Parfitt. Formula drama of determined jockey Hurt battling cancer and hoping to make a comeback in the Grand National Steeplechase. The opening is reminiscent of CHARLOTS OF FIRE, the finale of ROCKY; however, the scenes with Hurt and his niece, and Hurt among children undergoing cancer treatment, are quite moving. Based on a true story. [PG]▼●●

Champions Forever (1989) C-87m.  D: Dimitri Logothetis. Fascinating, insightful look back at the careers of five modern heavyweight boxing legends: Muhammad Ali, Joe Frazier, George Foreman, Larry Holmes, and Ken Norton. Interviews with each fighter are juxtaposed with classic footage of their ring battles with Ali the dominant presence throughout. Candor and a subtle pathos make the interviews as poignant as the boxing scenes are exciting.▼●●

Chances Are (1989) C-108m.  D: Emile Ardolino. Cybill Shepherd, Robert Downey, Jr., Ryan O'Neal, Mary Stuart Masterson, Christopher McDonald, Josef Sommer, Joe Grifasi, Susan Rutan, Fran Ryan, James Noble. A woman remains devoted to her husband years after his death . . . and then, one day, his spirit returns in the body of a much younger man. Surprisingly skillful blend of fantasy and romantic comedy manages to maintain its sweet-natured tone from start to finish. Appealing stars are supported by a gallery of top character actors. Written by Perry Howze and Randy Howze. [PG]▼●●

Chandler (1972) C-88m. *½ D: Paul Magwood. Warren Oates, Leslie Caron, Alex Dreier, Gloria Grahame, Mitchell Ryan. Private eye falls in love with ex-mistress of racketeer. Substandard yarn. Panavision. [PG]

Chanel Solitaire (1981-U.S.-French) C-120m.  D: George Kaczender. Marie-France Pisier, Timothy Dalton, Rutger Hauer, Karen Black, Brigitte Fossey. Stylish but cliché-ridden biography of designer Coco Chanel, covering her first 38 years and focusing on her love life. [R]▼●●

Changeling, The (1979-Canadian) C-109m.  D: Peter Medak. George C. Scott, Trish Van Devere, Melvyn Douglas, John Colicos, Jean Marsh, Madeleine Thornton-Sherwood. Good, scary ghost story with Scott as recently widowed musician who moves into old house inhabited by spirit of a child who died there 70 years ago. [R]▼●●

Changeling (2008) C-141m.  D: Clint Eastwood. Angelina Jolie, John Malkovich, Jeffrey Donovan, Michael Kelly, Colm Feore, Jason Butler Harner, Amy Ryan, Geoff Pierson, Denis O'Hare, Frank Wood, Peter Gerety, Reed Birney, Eddie Alderson. The disappearance of a 9-year-old boy in 1928 L.A. pits his distraught mother (Jolie) against the crushingly corrupt police force, which can't afford more bad publicity. Her refusal to be hushed comes at a shocking price to her safety and sanity—but ultimately she finds powerful friends. Then the case expands with the discovery of a serial killer. Incredible story is all true, as documented by screenwriter J. Michael Straczynski. Jolie is superb as the long-suffering heroine of this remarkable tale. Intense, often tough to stomach, but scrupulously filmed by Eastwood. Panavision. [R]●

Change of Habit (1969) C-93m.  D: William Graham. Elvis Presley, Mary Tyler Moore, Barbara McNair, Jane Elliot, Leora Dana, Edward Asner, Doro Merande, Regis Toomey. Moore, a nun, is forced to choose between Dr. Presley and the church in substandard drama that at least represents slight change from typical Elvis fare. Presley's last screen role. [G]▼●

Change of Mind (1969) C-103m. ½ D: Robert Stevens. Raymond St. Jacques, Susan Oliver, Janet MacLachlan, Leslie Nielsen, Donnelly Rhodes, David Bailey. In an emergency operation, the brain of a white district attorney is successfully transplanted into the body of a black man. Racial-protest sci-fi thriller is contrived, to say the least. [R]

Change of Seasons, A (1980) C-102m. ½ D: Richard Lang. Shirley MacLaine,

Anthony Hopkins, Bo Derek, Michael Brandon, Mary Beth Hurt, Ed Winter. College professor Hopkins, drowning in male menopause, has an affair with student Derek, so wife MacLaine decides to take a lover of her own. One of the better midlife crisis films of this period, though many thought its major asset was opening sequence of Bo bouncing in a hot tub. Cowritten by Erich Segal. [R]▼●

Changing Lanes (2002) C-99m.  D: Roger Michell. Ben Affleck, Samuel L. Jackson, Toni Collette, Sydney Pollack, William Hurt, Amanda Peet, Richard Jenkins, Kim Staunton, John Benjamin Hickey, Dylan Baker. Yuppie N.Y.C. lawyer Affleck, who's married to the boss's daughter, crashes into pent-up working-class Jackson's car one rainy morning as the latter is on his way to a custody hearing over his son. When Affleck blithely zips off, Jackson fumes, but the escalating battle of wits between the two only exposes their mutual vulnerability. A rare and compelling Hollywood movie about ethics and human nature. Written by Chap Taylor and Michael Tolkin. Super 35. [R]▼●

Changing Times (2004-French) C-100m.  D: André Téchiné. Catherine Deneuve, Gérard Depardieu, Gilbert Melki, Malik Zidi, Lubna Azabal, Tanya Lopert, Nabila Baraka, Nadem Rachati. Single, middle-aged man (Depardieu) convinces himself that he must win the love of his long-ago girlfriend (Deneuve), who is unhappily married and is mired in family issues. This Tangier, Morocco-set drama is a provocative exploration of life's missed opportunities and the failure of individuals to connect and commit in meaningful ways; it also serves to mirror the differences in European and Muslim lifestyles. ●

Chan Is Missing (1982) 80m.  D: Wayne Wang. Wood Moy, Marc Hayashi, Lauren Chew, Judy Mihei, Peter Wang, Presco Tabios. Wry, low-key comedy of cabdrivers Moy and Hayashi tracking down the mysterious Mr. Chan Hung, who absconded with their $4,000. Independently produced on shoestring budget and shot in San Francisco's Chinatown. ▼

Chant of Jimmie Blacksmith, The (1978-Australian) C-124m. ½ D: Fred Schepisi. Tommy Lewis, Freddy Reynolds, Angela Punch, Ray Barrett, Jack Thompson, Peter Carroll, Bryan Brown. Half-white aborigine Lewis, brought up by Methodist pastor, is caught between two cultures and exploited, with tragic results. Harrowing indictment of racism, a problem certainly not unique to U.S. Based on fact. Director Schepisi's screenplay was adapted from a Thomas Keneally novel (Keneally also plays the role of Cook). Most U.S. prints run 108m. Panavision. ●

Chaos Theory (2007) C-85m. *½ D: Marcos Siega. Ryan Reynolds, Emily Mortimer,

Stuart Townsend, Sarah Chalke, Mike Erwin, Constance Zimmer, Matreya Fedor. Labeled comedy about an efficiency expert whose whole life starts to fall apart when a woman tries to seduce him, triggering a tidal wave of misunderstandings and revelations that threaten his once-happy marriage. Quietly dumped into a handful of theaters on its journey to the DVD bargain bin. Navigation. [PG-13] ●

Chapman Report, The (1962) C-125m. ¹/₂ D: George Cukor. Efreem Zimbalist, Jr., Shelley Winters, Jane Fonda, Claire Bloom, Glynis Johns, Ray Danton, Ty Hardin, Andrew Duggan, John Dehner, Harold J. Stone, Corey Allen, Cloris Leachman, Chad Everett, Henry Daniell, Jack Cassidy. Slick, empty yarn about Kinsey-like sex researchers coming to suburban community to get statistical survey, with repercussions on assorted females. Potboiler material elevated by good performances and direction.

Chappaqua (1966) C/B&W-92m.  D: Conrad Rooks. Jean-Louis Barrault, Conrad Rooks, William S. Burroughs, Allen Ginsberg, Ravi Shankar, Paula Pritchett, Ornette Coleman. Rooks, an alcoholic heroin addict, travels to Paris for a sleep cure and hallucinates while withdrawing. Autobiographical—and vague, surreal, phony. Prints of 82m. and 75m. also exist. ▼●

Chapter 27 (2008-U.S.-Canadian) C-84m.  D: J. P. Schaefer. Jared Leto, Lindsay Lohan, Judah Friedlander, Ursula Abbott, Jeane Fournier, Brian O'Neill. Creepy but ultimately pointless portrait of Mark David

Chapman in the days leading up to his shooting of John Lennon outside his home at the Dakota apartment building in N.Y.C. in 1980. Leto is eerily convincing as the overweight loner who fancies himself to be Holden Caulfield, but when the film is over we don't know much more about Chapman than we did at the start. [R]

Chapter Two (1979) C-124m.  D: Robert Moore. James Caan, Marsha Mason, Valerie Harper, Joseph Bologna. Neil Simon's autobiographical comedy-drama—one of his best Broadway plays—gets lost in screen translation. Caan is miscast as sharp-minded writer who's drawn into new romance (with Mason) before he's really recovered from death of his wife. Long, plastic, and unmoving. [PG] ▼●●

Character (1997-Dutch) C-125m.  D: Mike van Diem. Fedja van Huet, Jan Declair, Betty Schuurman, Victor Low, Tamar van den Dop, Hans Kesting, Lou Landre, Bernhard Droog. Oscar-winning, powerful story of a virtuous young man (van Huet), in 1920s Rotterdam, caught in a web of financial entanglements with his estranged, malevolent father (Declair). Assured feature directorial debut by van Diem feels Dickensian, but moves like wildfire. Strong performances by a cast of stage actors, save Belgian film stalwart Declair; young lead van Huet is a dead ringer for Robert Downey, Jr. [R] ▼●

Charade (1963) C-114m. ¹/₂ D: Stanley Donen. Cary Grant, Audrey Hepburn, Walter Matthau, James Coburn, George Kennedy, Ned Glass, Jacques Marin. Suave comedy-mystery in Hitchcock vein, with Grant aiding widow Hepburn to recover fortune secreted by husband, being sought by trio of sinister crooks; set in Paris. Excellent screenplay by Peter Stone, score by Henry Mancini. Remade in 2002 as THE TRUTH ABOUT CHARLIE. ▼●

Charge at Feather River, The (1953) C-96m. ¹/₂ D: Gordon Douglas. Guy Madison, Vera Miles, Frank Lovejoy, Dick Wesson, Helen Westcott, Onslow Stevens, Steve Brodie, Neville Brand, Henry Kulky. Pretty good saga of Madison leading ragtag "guard-house brigade" toward an inevitable clash with the Cheyenne at title location. Subplots involve a SEARCHERS-like rescue of two white girls raised by Indians and a bit too much comedy relief from Wesson and Kulky. Listen for Lt. Wilhelm! Originally in 3-D; Lovejoy even spits at the camera.

Charge of the Light Brigade, The (1936) 116m.  D: Michael Curtiz. Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Patric Knowles, Henry Stephenson, Nigel Bruce, Donald Crisp, David Niven, C. Henry Gordon, Robert Barrat, Spring Byington, J. Carrol Naish. Thundering action based on Tennyson's poem, with immortal charge into the valley of death by British 27th Lancers cavalry. Lavish production values accent romantic tale of Flynn and de Havilland at army post in India. Max Steiner's first musical score for Warner Brothers is superb. Balaklava Heights charge directed by action specialist B. Reeves Eason. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Charge of the Light Brigade, The (1968-British) C-130m. ½ D: Tony Richardson. David Hemmings, Vanessa Redgrave, John Gielgud, Harry Andrews, Trevor Howard, Jill Bennett, Mark Burns. Exquisitely made, but ultimately disappointing drama of events leading up to British involvement in Crimean War. Stunning battle sequence cannot make up for dramatic loopholes in this story of military minds gone mad. Clever animated segments by Richard Williams. Redgrave and Richardson's young daughters Natasha and Joely are members of the wedding party. Panavision. [MPG] ▼●●

Chariots of Fire (1981-British) C-123m. ½ D: Hugh Hudson. Ben Cross, Ian Charleson, Nigel Havers, Nick Farrell, Alice Krige, Cheryl Campbell, Ian Holm, John Gielgud, Lindsay Anderson, Patrick Magee, Nigel Davenport, Dennis Christopher, Brad Davis. Absorbing and unusual drama based on true story of two men—devout Scottish missionary Eric Liddell, driven Jewish Cambridge student Harold Abrahams—who run in the 1924 Olympics. Fascinating probe of their motives, challenges, and problems, and a case study of repressed emotions even in the midst of exultation. Feature debut for director Hudson. Oscars for Best Picture, Colin Welland's script, Vangelis' excellent score, and Milena Canonero's costumes. [PG] ▼●●

Chariots of the Gods? (1974) C-98m.  D: Harald Reinl. First of too many speculative documentaries about ancient visitors from outer space who helped advance mankind's knowledge centuries ago. Well made and filled with many natural beauties. Based on Erich Von Daniken's book. [G] ▼●●

Charley and the Angel (1973) C-93m. ½ D: Vincent McEveety. Fred MacMurray, Cloris Leachman, Harry Morgan, Kurt Russell, Vincent Van Patten, Kathleen Cody. MacMurray learns he has only a short time left on earth from helpful angel (Morgan) and changes his hard ways with family. Lightly amusing Disney film, but the warmth and nostalgia seem artificial this time around. [G] ▼

Charley One-Eye (1973) C-107m.  D: Don Chaffey. Richard Roundtree, Roy Thinnes, Nigel Davenport, Jill Pearson. Basically two-man show. Black Union Army deserter (Roundtree) and outcast Indian (Thinnes) thrown together in desert wasteland; gradual tragic relationship develops when outside forces interfere. Far too long; should've been a TV movie. [R]

chie Mayo, Jack Benny, Kay Francis, James Ellison, Anne Baxter, Edmund Gwenn, Reginald Owen. Broad but surefire filming of Brandon Thomas play about Oxford student posing as maiden aunt, joke getting out of hand. Previously filmed six other times! Remade as musical WHERE'S CHARLEY? ●

Charley Varrick (1973) C-111m. ½ D: Don Siegel. Walter Matthau, Joe Don Baker, Felicia Farr, John Vernon, Andy Robinson, Jacqueline Scott, Sheree North, Norman Fell, Woodrow Parfrey. Neatly contrived thriller with Matthau as a bank robber who discovers that his small-town take is actually laundered Mafia money. On target all the way, with a particularly satisfying wrap-up. [PG] ▼●●

Charlie and the Chocolate Factory (2005) C-115m. ½ D: Tim Burton. Johnny Depp, Freddie Highmore, David Kelly, Helena Bonham Carter, Noah Taylor, Missi Pyle, James Fox, Deep Roy, Christopher Lee, Julia Winter, AnnaSophia Robb, Jordan Fry, Philip Wiegratz; narrated by Geoffrey Holder. Roald Dahl's classic story (previously filmed as WILLY WONKA AND THE CHOCOLATE FACTORY) about five children—one good, four rotten—invited to tour a strange, reclusive inventor's candy empire. Dazzling production is everything you'd expect from director Burton, but the scenes at the factory are less compelling than those dealing with Charlie and his family. And Depp, though amusing, is no Gene Wilder. Music by Danny Elfman with lyrics from Dahl's text. Roy, through digital technology, plays all the Oompa-Loompas. [PG] ▼●

Charlie Bartlett (2008) C-97m. ½ D: Jon Poll. Anton Yelchin, Robert Downey, Jr., Hope Davis, Kat Dennings, Tyler Hilton, Mark Rendall. Charismatic Charlie has been kicked out of various educational institutions, when all he really wants is to be the most popular kid in school; he finally gets his wish by becoming an all-purpose shrink to his fellow students. He also falls in love with the daughter of the school principal (Downey), who's got plenty of problems of his own. Offbeat comedy with serious undertones wanders all over the map but benefits from Downey's offbeat characterization and Yelchin's appealing performance. [R] ●

Charlie Bubbles (1968-British) C-91m. ½ D: Albert Finney. Albert Finney, Colin Blakely, Billie Whitelaw, Liza Minnelli. Finney's first directing attempt concerns itself with married writer who begins affair with his secretary. Not especially moving, but Minnelli's screen debut adds quite a bit of sparkle to film.

Charlie Chan series SEE: Leonard Maltin's Classic Movie Guide

Charlie Chan and the Curse of the Dragon Queen (1981) C-97m. ½ D: Clive Donner. Peter Ustinov, Lee Grant, Angie Dickinson, Richard Hatch, Brian Keith, Michelle

Charlie's Angels: Full Throttle (2003) C-111m.  D: McG. Drew Barrymore, Cameron Diaz, Lucy Liu, Demi Moore, Bernie Mac, Crispin Glover, Justin Theroux, Robert Patrick, Rodrigo Santoro, Shia LaBeouf, Matt LeBlanc, Luke Wilson, John Cleese, Ja'net DuBois, Robert Forster, Eric Bogosian, Carrie Fisher. The girls are back in action, trying to track down a pair of information-laden rings that could spell disaster in the wrong hands. So much for story! The rest of the movie consists of high-decibel but fragmented sequences of video-game-style action, music, and eye candy, with a couple of extra plot threads—one involving an Angel gone bad (Moore). Much ado about much ado, minus the freshness and martial-arts fun that made the first film entertaining. Many star cameos dot the already busy landscape. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Charlie's Ghost Story (1994) C-88m.  D: Anthony Edwards. Cheech Marin, Anthony Edwards, Linda Fiorentino, Trenton Knight, Charles Rocket, J. T. Walsh, Daphne Zuniga. Occasionally funny story of the ghost of explorer Coronado haunting people to get his bones properly buried so he can finally rest in peace. Actually, it's a rather sad story of child neglect. Archeologist/dad Edwards is so enthralled with his discovery of Coronado's cave, he completely ignores his son, who is the target of the "haunting." Fiorentino is wasted in the thankless role of the family maid. Based on a story by Mark Twain. Aka CHARLIE'S GHOST: THE SECRET OF CORONADO. [PG]▼

Charlie, the Lonesome Cougar (1968) C-75m. ½ No director credited. Narrated by Rex Allen. Ron Brown, Brian Russell, Linda Wallace, Jim Wilson. Average Disney animal adventure-comedy about a friendly cougar who lives in a lumber camp.▼

Adams, Ned Beatty, Emily Blunt, Om Puri, Ken Stott, John Slattery, Denis O'Hare, Jud Tylor. Womanizer and high-living Texas Congressman Wilson (Hanks) is the least likely man in Washington, D.C., to champion the cause of the Afghan people versus the Soviet Army in the 1980s. But using the same bravado with which he lives his reckless life, he cobble together an amazing alliance sub rosa. Geopolitics has never been so entertaining, thanks to Nichols' breezy pacing, Aaron Sorkin's witty script, and pearly performances. Hoffman is perfect as a scruffy but dedicated CIA op. The inevitable conclusion, however, is far from funny. Based on a true story and the best-selling book by George Crile. [R]▶

Charlotte Gray (2001-British-Australian) C-121m. ½ D: Gillian Armstrong. Cate Blanchett, Billy Crudup, Michael Gambon, Rupert Penry-Jones, Anton Lesser, Ron Cook, James Fleet. During WW2, a Scottish woman volunteers to work undercover in France—in part, so she can locate her lover, an airman who was shot down. Once situated, she begins to understand the Resistance fighters' feelings, especially after growing close to one fiery young man. Interesting, handsomely made film never finds its true focus—and asks us to accept English-speaking actors of all nationalities as French. Blanchett is as compulsively watchable as ever. Based on a novel by Sebastian Faulks. [PG-13]▼

Charlotte's Web (1973) C-93m.  D: Charles A. Nichols, Iwao Takamoto. Voices of Debbie Reynolds, Henry Gibson, Paul Lynde, Agnes Moorehead, Charles Nelson Reilly; narrated by Rex Allen. Charming animated feature based on E. B. White classic of barnyard spider who befriends shy piglet. Above average for Hanna-Barbera cartoon studio. Songs by Richard M. and Robert B. Sherman. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel in 2003. Remade in 2006. [G]▼●

Charlotte's Web (2006) C-97m.  D: Gary Winick. Dakota Fanning, Kevin Anderson, Beau Bridges, Gary Basaraba, Siobhan Fallon; voices of Julia Roberts, Dominic Scott Kay, Robert Redford, Steve Buscemi, John Cleese, Oprah Winfrey, Cedric the Entertainer, Kathy Bates, Reba McEntire, Thomas Haden Church, André Benjamin; narrated by Sam Shepard. Likable adaptation of E. B. White's novel, blending live actors with computer-animated creatures, about a runt pig and the animals he meets in a barn. Charlotte, a spider, sets out to save him from the butcher's block by weaving words into her web. Entertaining and well made, but it falls short when compared to the well-loved book. [G]▶

Charly (1968) C-103m. ½ D: Ralph Nelson. Cliff Robertson, Claire Bloom, Lilia Skala, Leon Janney, Dick Van Patten. Robertson won Oscar for fine work as retarded man turned into super-brain in scientific experiment (a role he first tackled on TV's U.S. Steel Hour in 1961). Bloom is sympathetic caseworker who becomes attached to Charly. Based on Daniel Keyes' Flowers for Algernon (and remade for TV in 2000 under that title). First rate. Techniscope. [M/PG]▼●●

Charro! (1969) C-98m. BOMB D: Charles Marquis Warren. Elvis Presley, Ina Balin, Victor French, Lynn Kellogg, Barbara Werle, Paul Brinegar. Attempt to change Presley's image by casting him in straight Western is total failure. Elvis sings only one song. Panavision. [G]▼●

Chase, The (1946) 86m. ½ D: Arthur D. Ripley. Robert Cummings, Michele Morgan, Steve Cochran, Peter Lorre, Lloyd Corrigan, Jack Holt, Don Wilson, James Westerfield. Mildly diverting melodrama with luckless vet Cummings becoming involved with a ruthless racketeer (well played by Cochran) and his melancholy wife (Morgan). Scripted by Philip Yordan, based on a book by Cornell Woolrich. ▼●

Chase, The (1966) C-135m. ½ D: Arthur Penn. Marlon Brando, Jane Fonda, Robert Redford, Angie Dickinson, Janice Rule, James Fox, Robert Duvall, E. G. Marshall, Miriam Hopkins, Martha Hyer. Intriguing, unobvious drama of how prison escape by local boy (Redford) affects worthless Texas town and its sheriff (Brando). Based on a novel by Horton Foote. Notorious for behind-the-scenes conflicts with director Penn, screenwriter Lillian Hellman, and producer Sam Spiegel, it's not surprising that finished product misses the mark. Panavision. ▼●●

Chasers (1994) C-101m. *½ D: Dennis Hopper. Tom Berenger, Erika Eleniak, William McNamara, Crispin Glover, Matthew Glave, Dean Stockwell, Gary Busey, Seymour Cassel, Frederic Forrest, Marilu Henner. Two Navy men are assigned to prisoner-escort duty only to discover that the dangerous criminal they are escorting is—gulp!—a beautiful sexpot. Lowbrow

comedy is no LAST DETAIL, and has little to recommend it, even for fans of t&a. Many of Hopper's acting cronies appear in small roles, and Hopper himself turns up as a perverted underwear salesman. [R]▼●●

Chasing Amy (1997) C-111m. ½ D: Kevin Smith. Ben Affleck, Joey Lauren Adams, Jason Lee, Dwight Ewell, Jason Mewes, Kevin Smith, Matt Damon, Casey Affleck. Winning, original comedy-drama about a comic book artist who lives with his dour work partner—until he meets an attractive up-and-coming female artist with a dynamite personality. He's seriously smitten—and stays that way even after learning that she's gay. Writer-director Smith hits all the right notes in this honest and appealing film, which refuses to take the easy way out (just like its lead character) right to the end. Affleck and Adams are perfect. Smith and Mewes reprise their Silent Bob and Jay characters from CLERKS and MALLRATS. [R]▼●●

Chasing Dreams (1982) C-105m. *½ D: Sean Roche, Therese Conte. David G. Brown, John Fife, Jim Shane, Matthew Clark, Lisa Kingston, Claudia Carroll, Kevin Costner. Hopelessly hokey soaper of insecure, self-conscious farmboy Brown, who "finds" himself by playing college baseball. Of interest solely for early, brief appearance of Costner as Brown's older, medical-student brother. [PG]▼

Chasing Liberty (2004-U.S.-British) C-110m.  D: Andy Cadiff. Mandy Moore, Matthew Goode, Jeremy Piven, Annabella Sciorra, Caroline Goodall, Mark Harmon. Teenage daughter of the President of the United States yearns to break loose, and does just that during a trip to Europe. Little does she know that the guy who helps her escape from the Secret Service is in fact an agent himself. Starts out as what it should have been, a cute romantic-comedy vehicle for Moore in the ROMAN HOLIDAY mode, but descends into tiresome predictability. Even location filming in Europe doesn't add much. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Chasing Papi (2003) C-80m.  D: Linda Mendoza. Roselyn Sanchez, Sofía Vergara, Jaci Velasquez, Eduardo Verástegui, Lisa Vidal, D. L. Hughley, Freddy Rodriguez, María Conchita Alonso, Pete Escovedo, Peter Michael Escovedo, Sheila E. Innocuous Latin-flavored comedy about a handsome advertising exec who has three women—in three different cities—convinced they are his one and only. Then they all decide to drop in on him unannounced. Silly storyline is played with gusto, but there's scarcely a laugh in sight. Paul Rodriguez appears unbilled. Coproduced by Forest Whitaker. [PG]▼●

Chastity (1969) C-83m.  D: Alessio de Paola. Cher, Barbara London, Tom Nolan, Stephen Whittaker. Interesting story of girl who takes to the highway to find life of her own. Cher in solo acting debut is surpris-

Château, The (2002) C-92m. *½ D: Jesse Peretz. Paul Rudd, Romany Malco, Sylvie Testud, Philippe Nahon, Donal Logue, Didier Flamand. Threadbare comedy, shot on digital video, about two American brothers—one white, one black—who bumble their way to France to inspect a castle they've inherited. It turns out a household staff comes along with the residence, and they don't greet the new owners with open arms, for a variety of reasons. Rudd's obnoxious character goes a long way toward sinking this. [R] ▮ ▽

Chattahoochee (1990) C-98m.  D: Mick Jackson. Gary Oldman, Dennis Hopper, Frances McDormand, Pamela Reed, Ned Beatty, M. Emmet Walsh, William De Acutis, Lee Wilkof, Matt Craven, Gary Klar. Energetically straightforward account of man (Oldman) whose mental breakdown (actually post-Korea combat stress) wrongfully landed him in a Karloff-caliber Florida institution. Standard "reform" drama—though based on fact—with Hopper's role (as a fellow patient) a glorified cameo; McDormand and Reed do all right as, respectively, Oldman's wife and crusading sister. [R] ▽ ▮ ▽

Chattanooga Choo Choo (1984) C-102m.  D: Bruce Bilson. Barbara Eden, George Kennedy, Melissa Sue Anderson, Joe Namath, Bridget Hanley, Clu Gulager, Christopher McDonald, Davis Roberts, Tony Azito, Parley Baer. In order to collect inheritance, goofball Kennedy must restore the famous train and make one final 24-hour run from Pennsylvania Station. Spirited cast in a sitcom-level script. Rubber-limbed Azito is amazing as waiter who's never dropped a tray. [PG] ▽

Che! (1969) C-96m. BOMB D: Richard Fleischer. Omar Sharif, Jack Palance, Cesare Danova, Robert Loggia, Woody Strode. Comic-book treatment of famed revolutionary became one of the biggest film jokes of 1960s. However, you haven't lived until you see Palance play Fidel Castro. Panavision. [PG] ▽

lips, Mark Umbers, Jsu García, Matt Damon. Impressively shot but dramatically inert epic is the most elaborate of Soderbergh's indie "experiments" (interspersed between his OCEANS movies). This dramatizes the significant contribution that Argentine Ernesto "Che" Guevara made to the late-'50s revolution in Cuba, and his participation in a failed Bolivian replication during the mid-1960s, culminating in his death. Part One of this two-parter has a narrative advantage because it at least deals with political victory. Throughout, the smaller moments of camaraderie while battling outdoor elements ring truest, which isn't a whole lot to say for a movie running more than four hours. Despite Del Toro's apt casting in the lead, it's the kind of grinder where, when the words "Day 302" are flashed onscreen, you turn to your viewing companion and say, "That's for damned sure." Part One (CHE: THE ARGENTINE) runs 134m.; Part Two (CHE: THE GUERRILLA), 135m. HD Widescreen. [R] ▮

Cheaper by the Dozen (1950) C-85m.  D: Walter Lang. Clifton Webb, Myrna Loy, Jeanne Crain, Mildred Natwick, Edgar Buchanan. Charming turn-of-the-century story of the Gilbreth children, 12 strong, their exacting father (well played by Webb) and mother (Loy). From the Gilbreth-Carey novel. Loosely remade in 2003. Sequel: BELLES ON THEIR TOES. ▽ ▮

Cheaper by the Dozen (2003) C-98m.  D: Shawn Levy. Steve Martin, Bonnie Hunt, Piper Perabo, Hilary Duff, Tom Welling, Richard Jenkins, Kevin G. Schmidt, Alyson Stoner, Jacob Smith, Lilianna Mumy, Morgan York, Forrest Landis, Alan Ruck, Vanessa Bell Calloway. Martin and Hunt are happy, harried parents of 12 kids until a major move and career changes (a football coaching job at his alma mater for him, an extended book-promotion tour for her) throw the family asunder. Cute family comedy, with predictable slapstick moments, is strengthened by Martin and Hunt's performances as genuinely loving parents. Although officially a remake, it has nothing to do with the 1950 film or the book that inspired it. Ashton Kutcher appears unbilled. Followed by a sequel. [PG] ▽ ▮

Cheaper by the Dozen 2 (2005) C-93m.

*½ D: Adam Shankman. Steve Martin, Bonnie Hunt, Tom Welling, Eugene Levy, Carmen Electra, Piper Perabo, Jaime King, Hilary Duff, Taylor Lautner, Alyson Stoner. Depressing sequel to the box-office hit finds the Bakers returning to the vacation spot of their youth, where dad Martin gets into a competitive spat with wealthy Levy. Once again, a comic known for his rapier wit is reduced to Z-list slapstick (e.g., taking falls chasing rodents). A far more compelling if unexplored movie was right under the filmmakers' eyes: Levy's courtship of wife Electra (surprisingly, a leveling influence here). Panavision. [PG]●

Cheaper to Keep Her (1980) C-92m. BOMB D: Ken Annakin. Mac Davis, Tovah Feldshuh, Art Metrano, Ian McShane, Priscilla Lopez, Rose Marie, Jack Gilford, J. Pat O'Malley. Check Is in the Mail, The (1986) C-91m.  D: Joan Darling. Brian Dennehy, Anne Archer, Hallie Todd, Chris Herbert, Michael Bowen, Nita Talbot, Dick Shawn. Cheech & Chong's Next Movie (1980) C-99m. *½ D: Thomas Chong. Cheech Marin, Thomas Chong, Evelyn Guerrero, Betty Kennedy, Sy Kramer, Rikki Marin. After an auspicious debut in UP IN SMOKE, the pothead, put-on comic duo go seriously awry in this crude, incoherent film, which offers only sporadic laughs. Look for Phil Hartman and Rita Wilson in bits. [R]▼●●

Cheech & Chong's Nice Dreams (1981) C-89m.  D: Thomas Chong. Cheech Marin, Thomas Chong, Evelyn Guerrero, Paul Reubens (Pee-wee Herman), Stacy Keach, Dr. Timothy Leary, Sandra Bernhard. Episodic, generally below par C&C comedy finds them as owners of an ice-cream truck that fronts for more lucrative grass trade. Some hilarity involving a sexually jealous biker; Guerrero once again an apt comic foil. [R]▼●●

Cheech & Chong's The Corsican Brothers (1984) C-90m. BOMB D: Thomas Chong. Cheech Marin, Thomas Chong, Roy Dotrice, Shelby Fiddis, Rikki Marin, Edie McClurg, Rae Dawn Chong, Robbi Chong. The boys (in three roles each) and their families (in one role each) star in their first non-drug (but still tasteless) comedy, an inept parody which seems all the more empty because of its magnificent French locations. Staggeringly unfunny even by C&C standards; the previews for START THE REVOLUTION WITHOUT ME have more laughs. [PG]▼●●

Cheetah (1989) C-84m.  D: Jeff Blyth. Keith Coogan, Lucy Deakins, Collin Mochup, Timothy Landfield, Breon Gorman, Ka Vundia, Kuldeep Bhakoo. Two Southern California kids join their parents for several months in Kenya, make friends with a young Masai, and adopt an orphaned cheetah, which they raise as a pet. Simple storyline is aimed squarely at kids, but it's believable and entertaining and teaches good lessons about tolerance and respect for the wild. A Disney release. [G]▼●●

Chef in Love, A (1996-French-Russian) C-100m. ½ D: Nana Djordjadze. Pierre Richard, Nino Kirtadze, Micheline Presle, Timur Kamkhadze, Jean-Yves Gautier, Ramaz Chkhikvadze, Danielle Darrieux. Yet another film which equates food with love and sex. Richard, a fabled French chef, comes to live in Georgia just before the Russian Revolution, where he romances a princess (Kirtadze) and opens a restaurant; his life is irrevocably altered upon the arrival of the Red Army. Despite some mouth-watering scenery (and food), the result is annoyingly uneven. [PG-13]▼

act together. Not uninteresting as a mood piece, with some good performances, but unenlightening and fatally slow moving. Hawke's feature directing debut. [R] ▼

Charlotte Rampling, Alan Bates, Katrin Cartlidge, Owen Teale, Tushka Bergen, Xander Berkeley, Gerald Butler, Andrew Howard, Melanie Lynskey, Ian McNeice, Frances De La Tour, Michael Gough. Melancholy, muted adaptation of Chekhov classic about a once-prosperous Russian family's struggle to cope with the imminent sale of their estate and the beloved title orchard. Made with care and well acted, but not quite effective as either a film or as an "opened-up" play. Adapted by the director. Released in the U.S. in 2002. ▼

Chicago (2002) C-113m.  D: Rob Marshall. Renée Zellweger, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Richard Gere, Queen Latifah, John C. Reilly, Christine Baranski, Lucy Liu, Taye Diggs, Colm Feore, Dominic West. Ditzzy Roxie Hart (Zellweger) shoots a man, then hires the slickest lawyer in Chicago to represent her so she'll become a media star like her idol, nightclub performer Velma Kelly. Entertaining film version of the Bob Fosse-John Kander-Fred Ebb Broadway show treats the musical moments as fragments of Roxie's imagination, contrasted against the dark reality of her life. Some quibbles: director Marshall hammers across every song as if it's the closing number and uses music-video-style cutting to the point of distraction. The stars are good, but Zeta-Jones reveals her experience as a musical performer and provides the knockout punch. Story filmed before in 1927 and as ROXIE HART. Chita Rivera, of the original Broadway cast, has a cameo. Oscar winner for Best Picture, Supporting Actress (Zeta-Jones), Costume Design (Colleen Atwood), Art Direction, Film Editing, and Sound. Chicago Joe and the Showgirl (1990-British) C-103m. ½ D: Bernard Rose. Kiefer Sutherland, Emily Lloyd, Patsy Kensit, Keith Allen, Liz Fraser, Alexandra Pigg, Ralph Nossek, Colin Bruce, John Lahr. Yank soldier-hood Sutherland, stationed in London during WW2, joins a self-deluded British tart (Lloyd) in committing petty crimes that escalate into murder. Lloyd is a lot more interesting than her costar here. [R]▼●●

Chicago 10 (2008) C-110m.  D: Brett Morgen. Voices of Hank Azaria, Dylan Baker, Mark Ruffalo, Roy Scheider, Nick Nolte, Liev Schreiber, Jeffrey Wright, James Urbaniak. Unique documentary approach to the tumultuous events of 1968 when radical groups amassed in Chicago to protest the status quo, and the war in Vietnam, during the Democratic National Convention . . . contrasted with animated renderings of the trial and its instigators (taken verbatim from court transcripts), which became theater of the absurd. Without narration, talking-head interviews, period music, or very much contextual material, this narrowly focused film provides an emotional, empathetic, and immediate portrait of a seminal event in American history. Voices of Zach Braff, Garry Marshall, Joan Cusack, Steve Zahn, Amy Poehler, Don Knotts, Harry Shearer, Patrick Stewart, Wallace Shawn, Fred Willard, Catherine O'Hara, Adam West, Patrick Warburton. No one in the idyllic suburban town of Oakey Oaks will let plucky young Chicken Little forget the time he said the sky was falling; they're certainly not going to believe him when he sees it happening again. Irresistible underdog hero and an amusing ensemble (our favorite: Fish Out of Water) draw you in, but the story goes askew. Likely to please younger kids. This is the Disney studio's first completely computer-generated cartoon feature. 3-D theatrical version contains one additional scene after closing credits. [G]●

Endearingly loopy stop-motion animated feature from the Oscar-winning creators of Wallace and Gromit. The setting is a British barnyard where the chickens are determined to escape their fate and literally fly the coop. Based on an Edith Wharton novel filmed in 1929 as THE MARRIAGE PLAYGROUND. Kingsley and Novak are excellent, but film is irritating and slow, with tiresome use of steadicam. Filmed in Venice and Switzerland. ▼

Children of a Lesser God (1986) C-110m.  D: Randa Haines. William Hurt, Marlee Matlin, Piper Laurie, Philip Bosco, Alison Gompf, John F. Cleary, John Basinger. New teacher at school for the deaf is intrigued by an obviously intelligent but isolated young woman who works there as a janitor. The warmth of Hurt's performance, and the credibility of Matlin's, shine through this moving and unusual love story . . . though it lacks the edge and bite of Mark Medoff's play, on which it's based. An impressive feature-film directing debut for Haines. Matlin, also making her film debut, won an Oscar. Filmed in New Brunswick. [R]▼●●

Children of Heaven (1997-Iranian) C-88m.  D: Majid Majidi. Amir Naji, Mir Ferokeh Hashemian, Bahareh Seddigi, Nafiseh Jafar Mohammadi, Fereshteh Sarabandi. Poignant story of a young boy trying to replace his sister's newly repaired pink shoes. This became Iran's first Oscar contender for Best Foreign Language Film, and deservedly so. Simple tale shows the importance of family, perseverance and honor, as we follow an eight-year-old's seemingly impossible quest to make up for his single misdeed. Well worth watching for children and adults alike. [PG]▼

Children of Huang Shi, The (2008-U.S.-Chinese-Australian-German) C-125m.  D: Roger Spottiswoode. Jonathan Rhys Meyers, Radha Mitchell, Chow Yun-Fat, David Wenham, Michelle Yeoh, Guang Li. Situated in Shanghai during Japan's invasion of China, a young Oxford-educated journalist (Rhys Meyers) manages to coerce his way into the forbidden area, the strife-ridden city of Nanjing, where he experiences the war up close. Reluctantly seeking refuge in an all-but-forgotten, dilapidated children's orphanage moves his life in an unexpected direction. Spotty recounting of British journalist George Hogg's true experiences. Even a good cast can't raise the temperature of what should have been a heartwarming tale. Super 35. [R]■

Children of Men (2006-U.S.-British) C-108m. ½ D: Alfonso Cuarón. Clive Owen, Julianne Moore, Michael Caine, Chiwetel Ejiofor, Charlie Hunnam, Clare-Hope Ashitey, Pam Ferris, Danny Huston, Peter Mullan. Riveting look at the year 2027: women are sterile, and England is a bleak, Fascistic society. Onetime political activist Owen finds himself involved in a resistance movement again because of a girl who has miraculously become pregnant. Visceral action and chase scenes (incredibly shot by Emmanuel Lubezki) give us a real sense of being hunted, as Owen becomes an Everyman hero on the run. Caine adds some light moments as an aging hippie who's managed to survive in his own hideaway compound. Based on a novel by P. D. James, adapted by Cuarón, Timothy J. Sexton, David Arata, Mark Fergus, Hawk Ostby. [R]■

Children of Paradise (1945-French) 195m. * D: Marcel Carné. Jean-Louis Barrault, Arletty, Pierre Brasseur, Albert Remy, Maria Casarés, Leon Larive, Marcel Herrand, Pierre Renoir. Timeless masterpiece of filmmaking (and storytelling), focusing on a rough-and-tumble theatrical troupe in 19th-century France. Barrault plays the mime whose unfulfilled passion for free-spirited Arletty dominates his life, even as he achieves great fame on stage. Wise, witty, and completely captivating. Written by Jacques Prévert. Filming began in 1943 in Nazi-occupied France, but wasn't completed until 1945. ▼●●

Children of Sanchez, The (1978-U.S.-Mexican) C-117m. *½ D: Hall Bartlett. Anthony Quinn, Dolores Del Rio, Melanie Farrar, Katy Jurado, Stathis Giallelis, Lucia Mendez, Duncan Quinn. Quinn is a widowed Mexico City worker who has several common-law wives, and refuses to show affection for his children. Well-meaning look at the folly of machismo, but it's leaden-paced and often excruciating. Chuck Mangione's popular pop-jazz score too often seems to belong to another film. [R]▼

Children of Theatre Street, The (1977) C-92m. ½ D: Robert Dornhelm, Earle Mack. Narrated by Princess Grace (Grace Kelly). Outstanding documentary about Leningrad's famed Kirov Ballet School, among whose graduates are Baryshnikov, Nureyev, Balanchine, and Nijinsky. The focus is on a trio of students, and the rigorous training they undergo. A must for balletomanes, and especially recommended as an introduction to the art of ballet for children. [G]▼

Children of the Corn (1984) C-93m. *½ D: Fritz Kiersch. Peter Horton, Linda Hamilton, R. G. Armstrong, John Franklin, Courtney Gains, Robby Kiger. Laughable adaptation of Stephen King short-short story about young couple who stumble onto Iowa town that's been taken over by sinister juvenile cultists—and then, like all stupid couples in movies like this, fail to get out while the getting is good. Pretty tacky. Followed by six sequels. [R]▼●●

Children of the Corn II—The Final Sacrifice (1993) C-94m. *½ D: David F. Price. Terence Knox, Paul Scherrer, Rosalind Allen, Christie Clark, Ned Romero. Barely based on the Stephen King story. Once again, the kids of an isolated Nebraska farming community are killing the adults and nobody knows why. Nobody knows the reason for this movie's existence either. Followed by five more "sequels"! [R]▼●●

Children of the Damned (1964-British) 90m. ½ D: Anton Leader. Ian Hendry, Alan Badel, Barbara Ferris, Patrick White, Bessie Love. Follow-up to VILLAGE OF THE DAMNED suffers from unimaginative account of precocious deadly children and their quest for power. ▼●●

pire mythology—they sleep underwater with their lungs floating on the surface—is the only novelty, unless you count the highly variable acting. [R]▼

Children of the Revolution (1996-Australian) C-101m. ½ D: Peter Duncan. Judy Davis, Sam Neill, F. Murray Abraham, Geoffrey Rush, Richard Roxburgh, Rachel Griffiths, Russell Kiefel, John Gaden. Fervent Stalinist (Davis) ends up secretly pregnant with the famed leader's son, then watches as he grows up mirroring his father's revolutionary behavior. Australian black comedy tackles the collapse of communism blending humor and tragedy, fact and fiction, but the pacing is uneven and the satire often heavy-handed. Worth seeing for two knockout performances, from the always reliable Davis and from Griffiths, as her police-woman daughter-in-law. [R]▼

Children Shouldn't Play With Dead Things (1972) C-85m. *½ D: Benjamin (Bob) Clark. Alan Ormsby, Anya Ormsby, Valerie Mauches, Jane Daly, Jeffrey Gillen. Young, kinky movie-makers take over a rural graveyard and unwittingly resurrect the evil dead. Weird. [PG]▼

Children's Hour, The (1961) 107m. ½ D: William Wyler. Audrey Hepburn, Shirley MacLaine, James Garner, Miriam Hopkins, Fay Bainter, Karen Balkin, Veronica Cartwright. Updated version of Lillian Hellman's play is more explicit in its various themes, including lesbianism, than original THESE THREE (also made by Wyler), but not half as good. Impact is missing, despite MacLaine and Hepburn as two teachers, Hopkins as meddling aunt, Bainter as questioning grandmother.▼

Child's Play (1972) C-100m. ½ D: Sidney Lumet. James Mason, Robert Preston, Beau Bridges, Ronald Weyand, Charles White, David Rounds, Kate Harrington, Jamie Alexander. Well-acted but somber and confusing account of rivalry between Catholic school professors Mason and Preston, and the seemingly senseless acts of violence perpetrated by some of their students. From the Robert Marasco play. [PG]

Child's Play (1988) C-87m.  D: Tom Holland. Catherine Hicks, Chris Sarandon, Alex Vincent, Brad Dourif, Dinah Manoff, Tommy Swerdlow, Jack Colvin. Scary and clever horror thriller in which only young Vincent knows his new Chucky doll is really a monster, possessed with the spirit of dead murderer Dourif. His mom (Hicks) and the cop on the case (Sarandon) finally believe him but not before two deaths. Sleeper hit packs a wallop, with excellent special effects bringing the doll to life. Followed by four sequels. [R]▼

Child's Play 2 (1990) C-84m. *½ D: John Lafia. Alex Vincent, Jenny Agutter, Gerrit Graham, Christine Elise, Grace Zabriskie, Peter Haskell, Beth Grant, voice of Brad Dourif. Traumatized by Chucky's

1988 antics, affected youngster begins boarding with foster parents. Agutter and Graham ought to be anyone's couple-of-the-month, but the film is utterly worthless until the finale: 15 minutes of doll-factory yuck (with a particular nod to conveyor belts); its unexpected stylishness saves this d.o.a. from a BOMB rating. [R]▼

Child's Play 3 (1991) C-90m. BOMB D: Jack Bender. Justin Whalin, Perrey Reeves, Jeremy Sylvers, Peter Haskell, Dakin Matthews, Andrew Robinson, voice of Brad Dourif. It's been eight years since Chucky first terrorized young Andy Barclay (Whalin), and now the kid is a screwed-up loner of 16 in a military school; to make things worse, the prez of the Play Pals Toy Company is about to put the "C" doll back into production. An amusement park finale is desperately contrived, even by the standards of this junk. Followed by BRIDE OF CHUCKY. [R]▼

Chill Factor (1999) C-101m.  D: Hugh Johnson. Cuba Gooding, Jr., Skeet Ulrich, Peter Firth, David Paymer, Hudson Leick, Daniel Hugh Kelly, Kevin J. O'Connor. Convenience store clerk Ulrich and ice cream truck driver Gooding reluctantly team up to keep an explosive, safe as long as it's cold, from falling into the hands of terrorist Firth. Routine, predictable action movie helped by the likable (if miscast) leads. Panavision. [R]▼

Chilly Scenes of Winter SEE: Head Over Heels (1979)

Chimes at Midnight (1966-Spanish-Swiss) 115m.  D: Orson Welles. Orson Welles, Jeanne Moreau, Margaret Rutherford, John Gielgud, Marina Vlady, Keith Baxter; narrated by Ralph Richardson. Welles combined parts of five Shakespeare plays with mixed results, with his own portrayal of Falstaff the most interesting aspect. Well cast, but limited budget hurt the effort. Aka FALSTAFF.▼

China (1943) 79m.  D: John Farrow. Loretta Young, Alan Ladd, William Bendix, Philip Ahn, Iris Wong, Sen Yung. Pat wartime tale of mercenary Ladd who suddenly realizes his true allegiance while helping enemy.▼

China Doll (1958) 88m. *½ D: Frank Borzage. Victor Mature, Li Li Hua, Bob Mathias, Stuart Whitman. Bizarre storyline can't boost dull film of Air Force pilot Mature accidentally buying Asian wife whom he grows to love. Romantic story with WW2 backdrop from John Wayne's Batjac unit.▼

China Gate (1957) 97m.  D: Samuel Fuller. Gene Barry, Angie Dickinson, Nat King Cole, Paul Dubov, Lee Van Cleef, George Givot, Marcel Dalio. International soldiers under French command attack Communist munitions dumps in Indochina. Interesting subplots flesh out Fuller's dynamic action story, with early view of Vietnam's internal strife. CinemaScope. ▼

China Girl (1942) 95m.  D: Henry Hathaway. Gene Tierney, George Montgomery, Lynn Bari, Victor McLaglen, Sig Ruman, Bobby (Robert) Blake, Ann Pennington, Philip Ahn. American photographer in mysterious Orient during WW2 is background for unbelievable adventure yarn; Bari best item in film.

China Girl (1987) C-88m. ½ D: Abel Ferrara. James Russo, Richard Panebianco, Sari Chang, David Caruso, Russell Wong. Atmospheric romantic thriller about warring Chinese and Italian youth gangs in N.Y.C., with Panebianco and Chang as star-crossed lovers. Director Ferrara provides tremendous energy and some over-the-top violence. [R] ▼ ●

China Moon (1994) C-99m.  D: John Bailey. Ed Harris, Madeleine Stowe, Charles Dance, Benicio Del Toro, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Roger Aaron Brown, Patricia Healy. Small-town cop Harris lusts after unhappily married Stowe in this moody film noir. A couple of neat twists, but production is more than a bit reminiscent of (the superior) BODY HEAT—down to the Florida locale. Directorial debut for Bailey, better known as a top cinematographer (ORDINARY PEOPLE, IN THE LINE OF FIRE). Filmed in 1991. Panavision. [R] ▼ ●

China 9, Liberty 37 (1978) C-102m. ½ D: Monte Hellman. Warren Oates, Fabio Testi, Jenny Agutter, Sam Peckinpah. Sluggish, mythicized Western in which railroad barons save a man from gallows in exchange for killing former gunfighter; gunfighter's wife falls for killer and helps do his dirty work. Title refers to signpost giving distance to two nearby towns. Video title: GUNFIRE. Technovision. [R] ▼ ●

China Seas (1935) 90m.  D: Tay Garnett. Clark Gable, Jean Harlow, Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, Rosalind Russell, Dudley Digges, Robert Benchley, C. Aubrey Smith, Hattie McDaniel. Impossible to dislike film with that cast, even if the story—about mysterious goings-on and relationships on Gable's Singapore-bound ship—is ludicrous. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼ ●

China Syndrome, The (1979) C-123m. * D: James Bridges. Jane Fonda, Jack Lemmon, Michael Douglas, Scott Brady, James Hampton, Peter Donat, Wilford Brimley, James Karen. Heartpounding drama about attempted cover-up of accident at California nuclear plant is as much a probe of television news as it is a story of nuclear power—and it scores bullseye on both fronts. There is no music score; story tension propels film by itself, along with solid performances by Fonda as TV reporter, Douglas (who also produced film) as radical cameraman, and especially Lemmon as dedicated plant exec. Screenplay by Mike Gray, T.S. Cook, and Bridges. [PG] ▼ ● ●

Chinatown (1974) C-131m. * D: Roman Polanski. Jack Nicholson, Faye Dunaway, John Huston, Perry Lopez, John Hillerman, Roy Jenson, Dick Bakalyan, Joe Mantell, Bruce Glover, James Hong, Noble Willingham, Burt Young. Bizarre, fascinating mystery in the Hammett-Chandler tradition (and set in the 1930s) with Nicholson as L.A. private eye led into a complex, volatile case by femme fatale Dunaway. Director Polanski appears briefly as the hood who knifes Nicholson. Oscar for Best Original Screenplay (Robert Towne). Sequel: THE TWO JAKES. Panavision. [R] ▼ ● ●

Chinese Box (1997-Japanese-French-U.S.) C-100m.  D: Wayne Wang. Jeremy Irons, Gong Li, Maggie Cheung, Michael Hui, Ruben Blades. Murky drama set in the final six months of Great Britain's rule over Hong Kong, with the smell of change in the air as China prepares to take over. Irons plays a jaded journalist whose own life is at a crossroads. Li is not well showcased in her first English-language film, as a woman "with a past" whom Irons adores but cannot have. Heavy-handed allegory was conceived by Wang, Paul Theroux, and Jean-Claude Carrière. [R] ▼ ● ●

Chinese Coffee (2001) C-99m.  D: Al Pacino. Al Pacino, Jerry Orbach, Susan Floyd, Ellen McElduff. Chamber piece, clearly based on a play (by Ira Lewis) about a pair of N.Y.C. artists, losers with a symbiotic relationship who spend a long night talking over their failures and resentments. If you're a fan of the two actors, you'll savor their performances, but as a film it never takes off. Lewis adapted his play. Shot in 1997. [R] ●

Chinese Connection, The (1972-Hong Kong) C-107m.  D: Lo Wei. Bruce Lee, Miao Ker Hsiu, James Tien, Robert Baker. Violent Kung Fu film has Lee in Shanghai in early 1900s seeking vengeance on the murderers of his teacher. Graceful, powerful, humorous, and charismatic; Lee at his best. Original title: FIST OF FURY. Aka THE IRON HAND. Shawscope. [R] ▼ ● ●

Chinese Roulette (1976-German) C-86m.  D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Margit Carstensen, Ulli Lommel, Anna Karina, Macha Meril, Brigitte Mira, Andrea Schober, Volker Spengler. Intense, biting comedy about a disabled girl (Schober), who plots to have her parents and their lovers visit a country house on the same weekend. Perceptive—but potentially off-putting—film is recommended mainly for Fassbinder fans. ▼ ● ●

Chino (1973-Italian) C-98m. ½ D: John Sturges. Charles Bronson, Jill Ireland, Vincent Van Patten, Marcel Bozzuffi, Fausto Tozzi, Melissa Chimenti. Offbeat Western that barely received theatrical release here in 1976; Bronson plays halfbreed whose attempts to maintain his horse ranch in peace are short-lived. Aka THE VALDEZ HORSES. [PG]▼

Chisum (1970) C-111m. ½ D: Andrew V. McLaglen. John Wayne, Geoffrey Deuel, Forrest Tucker, Christopher George, Ben Johnson, Glenn Corbett, Bruce Cabot, Patric Knowles, Lynda Day, Richard Jaeckel. Wayne is the real-life cattle baron of the title, but takes a hard seat to Billy the Kid (Deuel) in this routine but handsome Western. It's about the efforts of good ranchers like Wayne and Knowles to prevent the takeover of Lincoln County, New Mexico, by corrupt Tucker. One of very few Wayne Westerns based on historical events. Panavision. [G]▼

Chitty Chitty Bang Bang (1968) C-142m. *½ D: Ken Hughes. Dick Van Dyke, Sally Ann Howes, Lionel Jeffries, Gert Frobe, Anna Quayle, Benny Hill. Children's musical about flying car is one big Edsel itself, with totally forgettable score and some of the shoddiest special effects ever. Loosely based on book by Ian Fleming. Later adapted for the stage. Super Panavision 70. [G]▼

Chloe in the Afternoon (1972-French) C-97m. ½ D: Eric Rohmer. Bernard Verley, Zouzou, Françoise Verley, Daniel Ceccaldi. No. 6 of Rohmer's "Six Moral Tales" depicts married man's fascination with kooky girl during daylight hours. As Chloe, Zouzou becomes more alluring as film unwinds. Remade in the U.S. in 2007 as I THINK I LOVE MY WIFE. [R]▼

Chocolat (1988-French-German-Cameroon) C-105m.  D: Claire Denis. Isaach de Bankolé, Giulia Boschi, François Cluzet, Cécile Ducasse, Jean-Claude Adelin, Jacques Denis, Mireille Perrier. Subtle, slowly paced slice-of-life about a young woman's memories of her childhood in French West Africa, where whites are masters and most blacks are servants. This very personal, autobiographical film (which first-time director Denis co-scripted) is quietly rewarding. [PG-13]▼

Chocolat (2000) C-121m.  D: Lasse Hallström. Juliette Binoche, Lena Olin, Johnny Depp, Judi Dench, Alfred Molina, Peter Stormare, Carrie-Anne Moss, Leslie Caron, John Wood, Hugh O'Connor, Victoire Thivisol. A French village is virtually frozen in time and kept that way by its conservative leading citizen (Molina). Into this rigid community come a chocolatier (Binoche) and her daughter, whose free-spirited ways and tempting delicacies turn the town on its ear. Meant to be charming but hopelessly contrived, in spite of a fine cast. [PG-13]▼

Chocolate Soldier, The (1941) 102m.  D: Roy Del Ruth. Nelson Eddy, Rise Stevens, Nigel Bruce, Florence Bates, Dorothy Gilmore, Nydia Westman. Not the Oscar Straus operetta, but rather a remake of Molnar's

THE GUARDSMAN. Eddy and Stevens are husband-wife opera stars; to test her fidelity, he disguises himself as a Cossack and woos her. Much too talky, and not enough music; remade as LILY IN LOVE.▼

Chocolate War, The (1988) C-103m.  D: Keith Gordon. John Glover, Ilan Mitchell-Smith, Wally Ward, Bud Cort, Adam Baldwin, Jenny Wright, Doug Hutchinson. A Catholic boys school is divided by a power struggle between an idealistic student and a dictatorial acting headmaster, as each tries to deal with The Vigils, a secret society of schoolboys out for control. Chilling and impressive, well directed on a low budget by actor Gordon, who also adapted Robert Cormier's novel. Glover is wonderfully wicked. [R]▼

Choice of Arms (1981-French) C-117m.  D: Alain Corneau. Yves Montand, Catherine Deneuve, Gérard Depardieu, Michel Galabru, Gerard Lanvin. Well-directed drama about retired gangster Montand forced into antagonistic relationship with young punk Depardieu, leading to reciprocal violence. Despite hostility, both men come to understand how similar they are. Good performances by excellent cast, especially Depardieu. Original French running time 135m. Panavision.▼

Choke (2008) C-92m. ½ D: Clark Gregg. Sam Rockwell, Anjelica Huston, Kelly Macdonald, Brad William Henke, Clark Gregg, Bijou Phillips, Gillian Jacobs, Jonah Bobo, Paz de la Huerta, Viola Harris, Joel Grey. Rockwell is perfect as the protagonist of Chuck Palahniuk's novel, a lifelong con man trying to deal with sex addiction while caring for his mother, who's in a mental hospital. Disconnected from society, he desperately needs to know who his father was.

Darkly funny, extreme but inconsistent, this may appeal most to Palahniuk's faithful readers. First-time director Gregg also adapted the book and appears as Rockwell's priggish boss. [R]▼

Choke Canyon (1986) C-94m. ½ D: Chuck Bail, Stephen Collins, Janet Julian, Lance Henriksen, Bo Svenson, Victoria Racimo, Nicholas Pryor. Fun sci-fi about stubborn cowboy physicist (!) who fights off corrupt industrialist's henchmen, trying to protect the environment against nuclear waste dumping on the eve of Halley's Comet's visit near Earth. Terrific aerial stuntwork. Widescreen. [PG]▼

C.H.O.M.P.S. (1979) C-89m. *½ D: Don Chaffey. Wesley Eure, Valerie Bertinelli, Conrad Bain, Chuck McCann, Red Buttons, Larry Bishop, Hermione Baddeley, Jim Backus. Cartoon-makers Hanna & Barbera struck out with this Disneyesque comedy about a young inventor (Eure) and his mechanical dog. Originally rated PG for mild profanities voiced by another dog in the film—then redubbed for kids' sake. Title is acronym for Canine HOME Protection System. [G]▼

Choose Me (1984) C-106m. ½ D: Alan Rudolph. Genevieve Bujold, Keith Carradine, Lesley Ann Warren, Rae Dawn Chong, Patrick Bauchau, John Larroquette, John Considine. Outrageously inventive tale of the various relationships, truths, and lies that link radio sex-talk-show hostess Bujold, bar owner Warren, and mental hospital escapee Carradine, among others. This comedy-drama about the different roles that people play in life is a real kick, with a wonderful from-midnight-till-dawn feel and good performances by all. Evocative use of L.A. locations and Teddy Pendergrass songs. A companion piece to Rudolph's WELCOME TO L.A. and REMEMBER MY NAME. [R]▼●●

Chopper (2000-Australian) C-93m. ½ D: Andrew Dominik. Eric Bana, Simon Lyndon, Kenny Graham, Kate Beahan. Fictionalized bio of Australian criminal Mark "Chopper" Read, who kills at the slightest provocation and mutilates himself, yet somehow becomes a cult hero. Stomach-churning violence might make you steer clear, but there's no denying the chilling lead performance by Bana. Features the nastiest ear-scissing since RESERVOIR DOGS. ▼

Chopping Mall (1986) C-76m. *½ D: Jim Wynorski. Kelli Maroney, Tony O'Dell, John Terlesky, Russell Todd, Paul Bartel, Mary Woronov, Dick Miller, Karrie Emerson, Barbara Crampton, Suzee Slater, Gerrit Graham, Mel Welles. Eight teenagers are trapped overnight in a shopping mall where three malfunctioning guard robots go on a killing spree. Endless injokes and cameo roles (including Bartel and Woronov in their EATING RAOUL characters) fail to save a story that lapses into clichés. Originally titled: KILLBOTS. [R]▼

Chop Shop (2008) C-84m. ½ D: Ramin Bahrani. Alejandro Polanco, Isamar Gonzales, Carlos Zapata, Ahmad Razvi, Rob Sowluski. Remarkably naturalistic look at Alejandro (or "Ale"), a self-reliant, street-smart Latino boy who works at (and lives in) an auto-body repair shop in Queens, N.Y. He persuades his older sister to join him there, hoping to pry her away from the bad influence of her friends and give her a goal to reach for: the purchase of a food van they can operate together. Bahrani (MAN PUSH CART), cowriter Bahareh Azimi, and cinematographer Michael Simmonds create a modern-day equivalent of 1940s neorealist gems like OPEN CITY and BICYCLE THIEVES in this striking—and heartbreaking—film.▼

Chorus, The SEE: Les Choristes

Chorus Line, A (1985) C-113m.  D: Richard Attenborough. Michael Douglas, Terrence Mann, Alyson Reed, Cameron English, Vicki Frederick, Audrey Landers, Gregg Burge, Nicole Fosse, Janet Jones. Auditionees for Broadway chorus line reveal their innermost thoughts and emotions in song and dance before a hard-boiled director (Douglas). Thoroughly uninspired, unmemorable filming of the landmark Broadway musical; watchable, especially if you never saw the play, but what can you say about a musical in which all the singing and all the dancing is mediocre? And the show's biggest number, "What I Did for Love," is treated as a throwaway! Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Chorus of Disapproval, A (1988-British) C-100m.  D: Michael Winner. Jeremy Irons, Anthony Hopkins, Prunella Scales, Sylvia Syms, Lionel Jeffries, Gareth Hunt, Patsy Kensit, Alexandra Pigg, Jenny Seagrove. Shy, simple-minded widower moves to a seaside town and joins an amateur theatrical troupe, in which romantic intrigues abound. Some pearly performances (especially Hopkins, as the director, and Scales, as his wife) can't overcome the slightness of the material and its faltering execution. Adapted from Alan Ayckbourn's play by the author and Winner. [PG]▼●

Chosen, The (1978-Italian-British) C-105m. BOMB D: Alberto De Martino. Kirk Douglas, Agostina Belli, Simon Ward, Anthony Quayle, Virginia McKenna, Alexander Knox. Originally titled HOLOCAUST 2000. Technovision. [PG]▼

Chosen, The (1981) C-108m. ½ D: Jeremy Paul Kagan. Maximilian Schell, Rod Steiger, Robby Benson, Barry Miller, Hildy Brooks, Ron Rifkin, Val Avery. Excellent adaptation of Chaim Potok's novel, centering on friendship between Americanized Jew Miller and Hassidic Benson.

Steiger, as Benson's rabbi father, gives his best performance in years, and even Robby isn't bad. Set in 1940s Brooklyn; later made into a Broadway musical. [PG]▼

Chosen Survivors (1974) C-99m.  D: Sutton Roley. Jackie Cooper, Alex Cord, Richard Jaeckel, Bradford Dillman, Pedro Armendariz, Jr., Diana Muldaur, Barbara Babcock. Good cast in formula nonsense about group of people "selected" to survive future holocaust in underground shelter. Just one hitch: the shelter is invaded by vampire bats. Dialogue and characterizations from grade-Z movies of the past. [PG]●

Christiane F. (1981-German) C-124m. ½ D: Ulrich Edel. Nadja Brunckhorst, Thomas Haustein, Jens Kuphal, Reiner Wolk. Grim, gruesome account of bored teenager Brunckhorst falling in with crowd of junkie-hustler Haustein. Well meaning but uneven; based on a true story. Features unmemorable David Bowie concert sequence. [R]▼

Christian Licorice Store, The (1971) C-90m.  D: James Frawley. Beau Bridges, Maud Adams, Gilbert Roland, Anne Randall, Allen Arbus, McLean Stevenson. Quirky, dated comic study of tennis player Bridges looking for meaning in life. Loads of cameos, including directors Jean Renoir, Monte Hellman, Theodore J. Flicker, and James B. Harris. Filmed in 1969. [PG]

Christian the Lion (1976-British) C-89m. ½ D: Bill Travers, James Hill. Bill Travers, Virginia McKenna, George Adamson, Anthony Bourke. Pleasant docudrama about the efforts of BORN FREE stars—and real-life wildlife expert George Adamson, whom Travers portrayed in earlier film—to return a lion born in London Zoo to its native habitat in Kenya. Expanded from 1971's THE LION AT WORLD'S END. [G]▼

Christine (1983) C-111m.  D: John Carpenter. Keith Gordon, John Stockwell, Alexandra Paul, Robert Prosky, Harry Dean Stanton, Christine Belford, Roberts Blossom, Kelly Preston. Christine Jorgensen Story, The (1970) C-89m. BOMB D: Irving Rapper. John Hansen, Joan Tompkins, Quinn Redeker, John W. Hines, Ellen Clark. Ludicrous biography of famed 50s phenomenon is not exactly an in-depth study; one problem is that actor Hansen looks more masculine as female Christine and vice versa. [R]

Christmas Carol, A (1938) 69m.  D: Edwin L. Marin. Reginald Owen, Gene Lockhart, Kathleen Lockhart, Terry Kilburn, Barry MacKay, Lynne Carver, Leo G. Carroll, Ann Rutherford. Christmas Carol, A (1951-British) 86m. * D: Brian Desmond-Hurst. Alastair Sim, Jack Warner, Kathleen Harrison, Mervyn Johns, Hermione Baddeley, Clifford Mollison, Michael Hordern, George Cole, Carol Marsh, Miles Malleson, Ernest Thesiger, Hattie Jacques, Peter Bull, Hugh Dempster. Superb film is too good to be shown only at Christmastime; always delightful Sim makes Scrooge a three-dimensional character in this faithful, heart-warming rendition of the Dickens classic. Screenplay by Noel Langley. Patrick Macnee plays young Marley. Original British title: SCROOGE. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Christmas Eve (1947) 90m. *½ D: Edwin L. Marin. George Brent, George Raft, Randolph Scott, Joan Blondell, Virginia Field, Ann Harding, Reginald Denny. Slow-moving mixture of comedy and drama as foster sons discover evil intentions of relations to victimize Harding. Retitled: SINNER'S HOLIDAY.

Christmas Evil SEE: You Better Watch Out Christmas Holiday (1944) 92m.  D: Robert Siodmak. Deanna Durbin, Gene Kelly, Gale Sondergaard, Gladys George, Richard Whorf. Somerset Maugham novel reset in America. Crime story with Durbin gone wrong to help killer-hubby Kelly; songs include "Spring Will Be a Little Late This Year."

Christmas in Connecticut (1945) 101m. ½ D: Peter Godfrey. Barbara Stanwyck, Dennis Morgan, Sydney Greenstreet, Reginald Gardiner, S. Z. Sakall, Robert Shayne, Una O'Connor. Airy fluff with Stanwyck, a chic magazine writer who's supposed to be an expert homemaker, forced to entertain a war veteran (Morgan) and her boss (Greenstreet) for the holidays. Standard studio corn it may be, but a wonderful treat for late-night viewing on Christmas Eve. Remade for cable TV in 1992. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Christmas in July (1940) 67m. ½ D: Preston Sturges. Dick Powell, Ellen Drew, Raymond Walburn, William Demarest, Ernest Truex, Franklin Pangborn. Top Sturges comedy about Powell going on shopping spree after mistakenly believing he has won big contest. Walburn and Demarest are at their best. ▼●●

Christmas Story, A (1983) C-93m. * D: Bob Clark. Peter Billingsley, Darren McGavin, Melinda Dillon, Ian Petrella, Scott Schwartz, Tedde Moore. Humorist Jean Shepherd's delightful memoir of growing up in the 1940s and wanting nothing so much as a Red Ryder BB gun for Christmas. Shepherd narrates in the first person, and Billingsley portrays him (delightfully) as a boy. Truly funny for kids and grown-ups alike; wonderful period flavor. Based on a portion of In God We Trust, All Others Pay Cash. Shepherd appears unbilled as a department store customer. Followed by IT RUNS IN MY FAMILY. [PG] ▼●●

Christmas Tale, A (2008-French) C-152m. ½ D: Arnaud Desplechin. Catherine Deneuve, Jean-Paul Roussillon, Mathieu Amalric, Anne Consigny, Melvil Poupaud, Hippolyte Girardot, Emmanuelle Devos, Chiara Mastroianni. The matriarch of a large, rambunctious family has contracted a rare disease and needs a bone-marrow transplant; this lies heavily over the clan's Christmas reunion, the first one that black sheep Amalric has been permitted to attend in a long time, because he may be the likeliest donor. A celebration of our contradictions and complexities as human beings, and how they affect the family dynamic. Deneuve's real-life daughter Mastroianni plays her unwelcome daughter-in-law. Eclectic music score ranges from Mendelssohn to Mingus; it shouldn't work but somehow (like everything else in this film) it does. Written by Desplechin and Emmanuel Bourdieu. Super 35. ●

Christmas That Almost Wasn't, The (1966-Italian-U.S.) C-92m. *½ D: Rossano Brazzi. Rossano Brazzi, Paul Tripp, Lidia Brazzi, Sonny Fox, Mischa Auer. Santa is threatened with eviction from the North Pole in this substandard kiddie film. [G] ▼●

Christmas Tree, The (1969) 110m. *½ D: Terence Young. William Holden, Virna Lisi, Bourvil, Brook Fuller, Madeleine Damien. Sappy tearjerker about relationship between young boy and his wealthy father when the latter learns his son's death is imminent. Cast is divided between those who overact and those who don't seem to care one way or the other. AKA WHEN WOLVES CRY. [G] ▼

Christmas with the Kranks (2004) C-98m. BOMB D: Joe Roth. Tim Allen, Jamie Lee Curtis, Dan Aykroyd, M. Emmet Walsh, Elizabeth Franz, Erik Per Sullivan, Cheech Marin, Jake Busey, Austin Pendleton, Tom Poston, Julie Gonzalo, Felicity Huffman. Noxious holiday movie in which suburbanites Luther and Nora Krank, whose daughter has joined the Peace Corps, decide to forgo celebrating Christmas and take a Caribbean cruise—which, according to their outraged neighbors, is positively un-American. Alleged comedy pays homage to mediocrity, crass consumerism, and love-it-or-leave-it conformity. Screenplay by Chris Columbus, based on John Grisham's novel Skipping Christmas. Panavision. [PG] ●

Sofaer. Stark, slowly paced biography of explorer, with earnest portrayal by March in title role; good period setting. ▼●●

Christopher Columbus—the Discovery (1992-U.S.-Spanish) C-120m. BOMB D: John Glen. Marlon Brando, Tom Selleck, George Corraface, Rachel Ward, Robert Davi, Benicio Del Toro, Catherine Zeta Jones, Oliver Cotton, Mathieu Carriere, Nigel Terry. "In nineteen-hundred-and-ninety-two, Columbus sailed two screen boo-boos." Corraface plays the explorer in this one, which beat 1492: CONQUEST OF PARADISE to the big screen, bringing an infectious smile and notably heavy beard follies to an extremely complex historical character. Brando has a cameo as Spanish Inquisitor Tomas de Torquemada (his dullest performance since DESIREE), while Selleck dresses up as King Ferdinand—the guy with three ships and a lady. Not ripe for rediscovery. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Christopher Strong (1933) 77m. ½ D: Dorothy Arzner. Katharine Hepburn, Colin Clive, Billie Burke, Helen Chandler, Jack LaRue. Hepburn's an aviatrix in love with married Clive. Dated film intriguing for star's performance as headstrong, individualistic woman—and dig that silver lamé costume. Margaret Lindsay appears unbilled. ▼●●

Chrome Hearts SEE: C.C. and Company Chronicles of Narnia: Prince Caspian, The (2008) C-140m.  D: Andrew Adamson. George Henley, William Moseley, Anna Popplewell, Skandar Keynes, Ben Barnes, Peter Dinklage, Warwick Davis, Sergio Castellitto, Vincent Grass, Alicia Borrachero, Tilda Swinton; voices of Liam Neeson, Eddie Izzard. In the second installment of C. S. Lewis' series, the Pevensie children—uncomfortable at home in England—are transported once again to Narnia, but hundreds of years have passed there, and the kingdom has suffered. They readily assume their roles as saviors and strike an uneasy alliance with Prince Caspian (newcomer Barnes) of the Telmarines, whose uncle—a ruthless ruler—has tried to kill him. Solid storytelling, strong performances, and breath-taking scenery put this across, though it's a dark tale, and the climactic battle scenes go on at length. Super 35. [PG] ●

Chronicles of Narnia: The Lion, The Witch and The Wardrobe, The (2005) C-139m.  D: Andrew Adamson. George Henley, Skandar Keynes, William Moseley, Anna Popplewell, Tilda Swinton, James McAvoy, Jim Broadbent, Kiran Shah, James Cosmo; voices of Liam Neeson, Ray Winstone, Dawn French, Rupert Everett. Faithful rendering of C. S. Lewis' beloved book with a newly invented prologue: four children are sent from London to a professor's home in the country during WW2. The youngest, Lucy, discovers a magic wardrobe that leads to a mystical land called Narnia. When she learns it has been taken over by a devious witch (Swinton), she recruits her siblings to help win the battle of good vs. evil. Much of this is truly wondrous, though it does go on a bit and the special effects are extremely variable. Still, an impressive and worthwhile family film. Oscar winner for Best Makeup (Howard Berger, Tami Lane). Alternate version runs 150m. Followed by a sequel. Super 35. [PG] Chronicles of Riddick, The (2004) C-119m. *½ D: David Twohy. Vin Diesel, Colm Feore, Thandie Newton, Judi Dench, Karl Urban, Alexa Davalos, Linus Roache, Yorick van Wageningen, Nick Chinlund, Keith David. Follow-up to the lean, mean PITCH BLACK is a densely plotted, over-produced action/sci-fi extravaganza, with Diesel as the escaped convict who attempts to ward off an invasion of planet Helion Prime by the Necromongers, led by the evil Lord Marshal (Feore). Laden with a self-serious storyline and enormous computer-generated settings and effects, it sinks under its own weight. Unrated director's cut runs 134m. Animated DVD feature THE CHRONICLES OF RIDDICK: DARK FURY bridges story between PITCH BLACK and this film. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Chrystal (2004) C-107m. *½ D: Ray McKinnon. Billy Bob Thornton, Lisa Blount, Ray McKinnon, Harry Lennix, Walton Goggins, Grace Zabriskie, Johnny Galecki, Colin Fickes, Max Kasch, Harry Dean Stanton. A car crash left a little boy dead and his mother physically and psychologically impaired. The father, who was responsible for the accident, returns home seeking salvation after many years in prison. Muddled, slow-as-molasses hogwash set in the Arkansas Ozarks; means to be insightful but more often is dramatically incoherent. Written by the director. [R] ▼

Chubasco (1968) C-100m. ½ D: Allen H. Miner. Richard Egan, Christopher Jones, Susan Strasberg, Ann Sothern, Simon Oakland, Audrey Totter, Preston Foster. Young man working on tuna boat gets along with the skipper until he learns the boy has married his daughter; overlong but likable programmer. Jones and Strasberg were then married in real life. Panavision.

Chu Chu and the Philly Flash (1981) C-100m. BOMB D: David Lowell Rich. Alan Arkin, Carol Burnett, Jack Warden, Danny Aiello, Adam Arkin, Danny Glover, Sid Haig, Ruth Buzzi, Vito Scotti, Lou Jacobi. Maddeningly moronic comedy revolving around bum Arkin, show-biz failure Burnett, and a briefcase filled with secret government papers. A low point in the careers of its stars; Burnett isn't even funny in Carmen Miranda getup. Scripted by Barbara Dana (Mrs. Arkin). [PG] ▼

Ontiveros, Beth Colt, Paul Weitz, Maya Rudolph, Mary Wigmore, Paul Sand. Buck (White), a 27-year-old who's never matured, is reunited with boyhood friend Chuck (Chris Weitz), and decides that they're still best pals. But Chuck feels uneasy, especially with his onetime friend's near-stalker tactics. Extremely offbeat but fascinating portrait of a pest who simply won't be ignored... and the reasons for his attachment. White also wrote this perceptive film; costar Weitz and supporting actor Paul Weitz are better known as screenwriters (AMERICAN PIE). [R] ▼

Chuck Berry Hail! Hail! Rock 'n' Roll (1987) C-120m. ½ D: Taylor Hackford. Chuck Berry, Keith Richards, Eric Clapton, Robert Cray, Etta James, Julian Lennon, Linda Ronstadt. Two delights in one: an overview of rock legend Chuck Berry's career—sparked by interviews with Richards, Clapton, Bo Diddley, Little Richard, Roy Orbison, The Everly Brothers, Willie Dixon, Bruce Springsteen, and the subject himself—and a climactic 60th birthday Berry concert held in his hometown of St. Louis. Whitewashes Berry's womanizing and early 1960s jail term, but his hot temper is much in evidence during some amusing skirmishes with concert producer Richards. Worthy of its title... if slightly overlong. [PG] ▼

Chuck Norris Vs. The Karate Cop SEE: Slaughter in San Francisco

C.H.U.D. (1984) C-90m. BOMB D: Douglas Cheek. John Heard, Daniel Stern, Kim Greist, Brenda Currin, Justin Hall, Christopher Curry, Michael O'Hare, Sam McMurray, Patricia Richardson, Raymond Baker, Peter Michael Goetz, John Bedford Lloyd, John Goodman, Jay Thomas. That's Cannibalistic Humanoid Underground Dwellers, folks—a band of ragtag derelicts who come up to street level at night to munch on human flesh. Greist made this before BRAZIL—but what are Heard and Stern doing in this film? Grumpy on all levels. Followed by a sequel. [R] ▼

C.H.U.D. II—Bud the Chud (1989) C-84m. BOMB D: David Irving. Brian Robbins, Bill Calvert, Gerrit Graham, Tricia Leigh Fisher, Robert Vaughn, Larry Cedar, Bianca Jagger, Larry Linville, Jack Riley, Norman Fell, June Lockhart. Teenagers swipe a corpse (Graham), unaware that it is a cannibalistic CHUD that passes on its tendencies to anyone it bites. Comedy sequel to straight original is far worse, but Graham is genuinely funny as the monster. Script credited to "M. Kane Jeeves." [R] ▼

Chuka (1967) C-105m.  D: Gordon Douglas. Rod Taylor, John Mills, Ernest Borgnine, Luciana Paluzzi, James Whitmore, Angela Dorian, Louis Hayward. Good cast is wasted in routine Western about grizzled gunfighter who tries to promote peace between Indians and some undisciplined soldiers guarding nearby fort. ▼

Chump at Oxford, A (1940) 63m. ½ D:

Alfred Goulding, Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Wilfred Lucas, Forrester Harvey, James Finlayson, Anita Garvin. So-called feature is more like a series of barely related shorts; film is nearly half over before L&H even get to Oxford. Still quite funny, especially when they settle down in the Dean's quarters. Peter Cushing plays one of the boys' tormentors. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●

Chumscriber, The (2005) C-106m.  D: Arie Posin. Jamie Bell, Camilla Belle, Justin Chatwin, Glenn Close, William Fichtner, Ralph Fiennes, Allison Janney, Carrie-Anne Moss, Rita Wilson, Lou Taylor Pucci, Rory Culkin, Caroline Goodall, John Heard, Jason Isaacs, Lauren Holly. Bell is excellent as a misfit who goes even further into his shell when his best friend commits suicide. One-note observation of life in the affluent suburban development from hell, where teens are alienated and overmedicated, parents self-absorbed and clueless. Fine work from the adult cast, with Fiennes a standout as Wilson's fiancé, who experiences an epiphany that no one can share or comprehend. Super 35. [R]▼

Chungking Express (1994-Hong Kong) C-103m. ½ D: Wong Kar-Wai. Brigitte Lin, Takeshi Kaneshiro, Tony Leung, Faye Wang, Valerie Chow. "Piggy" Chan. Two tangentially related stories of lovesickness, obsession, and the peccadilloes of relationships in a modern world. The catalyst for both liaisons, involving young Hong Kong policemen, is the proprietor of a fast-food establishment. Light, funny, and offbeat, though the second tale goes on far too long. Quentin Tarantino's Rolling Thunder company acquired this for U.S. release, and many critics applauded its postmodern approach and stylistics. [PG-13]▼●

Chunhyang (2000-Korean) C-122m.  D: Im Kwon Taek. Lee Hae Eun, Lee Hae Ryong, Kim Hak Yong, Lee Hyo Jung, Cho Seung Woo, Choi Jin Young. Grandly old-fashioned romantic epic about the son of a wealthy governor who falls head over heels for the daughter of a courtesan and the reverberations of their secret marriage. Lush cinematography distracts from the soggy melodrama. Film also uses a traditional pansori (Korean opera singer) as narrator, which can grate heavily on Western ears. Proudly wears its heart on its sleeve but never engages our emotions. [R]▼

Chushingura (1962-Japanese) C-108m. ½ D: Hiroshi Inagaki. Koshiro Matsumoto, Yuzo Kayama, Chusha Ichikawa, Toshiro Mifune, Yoko Tsukasa. Young lord Kayama is forced to commit hara kiri by corrupt feudal lord Ichikawa, and his 47 samurai retainers (or ronin) seek vengeance. A version of an oft-filmed story, based on a real-life event: sprawling, episodic, exquisitely beautiful, if a bit slow. Sometimes referred to as the GONE WITH THE WIND of Japanese cinema. Originally released in Japan in two parts, running 204m. Tohoscope. ▼●

Ciao! Manhattan (1972) C/B&W-84m. ½ D: John Palmer, David Weisman. Edie Sedgwick, Wesley Hayes, Isabel Jewell, Jeff Briggs, Viva, Paul America, Bridget Berlin, Baby Jane Holzer, Roger Vadim, Christian Marquand, Allen Ginsberg. Eerie, fascinating, muddled, and boring mishmash in which Sedgwick essentially plays herself, a strung-out ex-superstar model. Filming started and stopped in 1967, and resumed four years later; Sedgwick died of a drug overdose months after its completion. Aka EDIE IN CIAO! MANHATTAN. [R] ▼●

Ciao, Professore! (1992-Italian) C-91m.  D: Lina Wertmuller. Paolo Villaggio, Isa Danieli, Gigio Morra, Sergio Solli, Esterina Carloni, Paolo Bonacelli. A middle-aged elementary school teacher from an upper-class section of Italy is mistakenly transferred to a run-down school in a decaying town near Naples. Naturally, both he and his students wind up learning a lot from each other. Wertmuller's attempt to comment on her country's educational system, this Italian TO SIR, WITH LOVE is a mostly labored lesson. [R] ▼●

Cider House Rules, The (1999) C-125m. * D: Lasse Hallström. Tobey Maguire, Charlize Theron, Michael Caine, Delroy Lindo, Paul Rudd, Kathy Baker, Jane Alexander, Kieran Culkin, Erykah Badu, Kate Nelligan, Heavy D., K. Todd Freeman. Loving adaptation of John Irving's novel (by the author), telescoped from the sprawling story about a boy raised in a Maine orphanage (and abortion clinic) by an eccentric doctor who treats him like his own son—and begrudges the boy's decision to go out and see the world once he comes of age in the 1940s. Well cast, beautifully crafted; filmed on perfect locations throughout New England. Beautiful score by Rachel Portman and cinematography by Oliver Stapleton. Oscar winner for Best Adapted Screenplay and Supporting Actor (Caine). Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Cimarron (1931) 124m. ½ D: Wesley Ruggles. Richard Dix, Irene Dunne, Estelle Taylor, Nance O'Neil, William Collier, Jr., Roscoe Ates. Edna Ferber's saga about an American family and the effect of empire building on the American West, 1889–1929. Oscar winner for Best Picture and Best Screenplay (Howard Estabrook), it dates badly, particularly Dix's overripe performance—but it's still worth seeing. Remade in 1960. ▼

Cimarron (1960) C-147m. ½ D: Anthony Mann. Glenn Ford, Maria Schell, Anne Baxter, Arthur O'Connell, Russ Tamblyn, Mercedes McCambridge, Vic Morrow, Charles McGraw, Henry (Harry) Morgan, Edgar Buchanan, Robert Keith, Aline MacMahon, David Opatoshu, Mary Wickes. Edna Ferber's chronicle of frontier life in Oklahoma

between 1889 and 1929 becomes an indifferent sprawling soap opera unsalvaged by a few spectacular scenes. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Cimarron Kid, The (1951) C-84m.  D: Budd Boetticher. Audie Murphy, Beverly Tyler, James Best, Yvette Dugay, Hugh O'Brian, Rand Brooks. Uninspired formula Western with Murphy in title role, persuaded to give up his criminal life by his sweetheart. ●

Cincinnati Kid, The (1965) C-113m. ½ D: Norman Jewison. Steve McQueen, Ann-Margret, Edward G. Robinson, Karl Malden, Tuesday Weld, Joan Blondell, Rip Torn, Jack Weston, Cab Calloway. Roving card-sharks get together in New Orleans for big poker game; side episodes of meaningless romance. Robinson, Blondell, and Malden come off best as vivid members of the playing profession. Script by Ring Lardner, Jr., and Terry Southern; Jewison replaced Sam Peckinpah as director. ▼●●

Cinderella (1950) C-74m. ½ D: Wilfred Jackson, Hamilton Luske, Clyde Geronimi. Voices of Ilene Woods, Eleanor Audley, Rhoda Williams, Lucille Bliss, Verna Felton, Mike Douglas. One of Walt Disney's best animated fairy tales spins the traditional story with some delightful comic embellishments, including a couple of mice named Gus and Jaq who befriend the put-upon heroine. Tuneful score includes "A Dream Is a Wish Your Heart Makes" and "Bibbidi Bobbidi Boo." Followed by two DVD sequels. ▼●●

Cinderella Liberty (1973) C-117m. ½ D: Mark Rydell. James Caan, Marsha Mason, Eli Wallach, Kirk Calloway, Burt Young, Bruce Kirby, Jr. (Bruno Kirby), Allyn Ann McLerie, Dabney Coleman, Sally Kirkland. Sensitive, original story by Darryl Ponicsan (based on his novel) about romance between simple, good-hearted sailor and a hooker with an illegitimate black son. Artfully mixes romance and realism, with sterling performances by Caan and Mason. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Cinderella Man (2005) C-144m.  D: Ron Howard. Russell Crowe, Renée Zellweger, Paul Giamatti, Craig Bierko, Paddy Considine, Bruce McGill, Ron Canada, Rosemarie DeWitt. Rousing true-life story of boxer James J. Braddock, reduced to working on loading docks to support his family during the Depression, then given a second shot in the ring. Familiar underdog material pushes all the expected buttons, but is handled with skill and compassion. Colorful period detail and dynamic handling of boxing scenes, crowned by fine work from Crowe as Braddock and, especially, Giamatti as his loyal trainer and manager. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

gina King, Julie Gonzalo, Lin Shaye, Madeline Zima, Andrea Avery, Mary Pat Gleason, Paul Rodriguez, Whip Hubley, Kevin Kilner, Art Le Fleur. Modern-day Cinderella story set in the San Fernando Valley. An orphaned girl who acts as slavey to her oafish stepmother finds a soul mate online but doesn't know his identity until the night of a high school dance. Unfortunately, the story goes on from there. Duff and Murray are likable, but the built-in predictability makes this piece of puff a bore. Followed by a direct-to-DVD sequel. [PG] ▼●

Cinderfella (1960) C-91m. ½ D: Frank Tashlin. Jerry Lewis, Ed Wynn, Judith Anderson, Anna Maria Alberghetti, Henry Silva, Count Basie. Jerry is the poor stepson turned into a handsome prince for a night by fairy godfather Wynn. Fairy tale classic revamped as a pretentious Lewis vehicle, with talky interludes and ineffectual musical sequences. ▼●

Cinema Paradiso (1988-Italian-French) C-123m. ½ D: Giuseppe Tornatore. Philippe Noiret, Jacques Perrin, Salvatore Cascio, Mario Leonardi, Agnese Nano, Leopoldo Trieste. A young boy is mesmerized by the movie theater in his small Italian town (in the years following WW2), and pursues a friendship with its crusty but warm-hearted projectionist. Captivating, bittersweet film, with a perfect finale; Noiret and the boy (Cascio) are wonderful. Written by the director. After abortive Italian release in 1988, film was shortened and awarded a Special Jury Prize at the 1989 Cannes Film Festival; it went on to win the Best Foreign Film Oscar. Reissued in 2002 at 174m. [PG] ▼●●

Circle of Deceit (1981-French-German) C-108m. * D: Volker Schlöndorff. Bruno Ganz, Hanna Schygulla, Jean Carmet, Jerzy Skolimowski, Gila von Weitershausen. Thoughtful, chilling, unrelentingly sober account of German journalist Ganz covering a Lebanese civil war, focusing on how he is affected by his experiences and his relationship with widow Schygulla. Actually filmed in Beirut against a backdrop of political turmoil; a superior film in every respect. Originally shown as FALSE WITNESS. [R] ▼●

Circle of Friends (1995-U.S.-Irish) C-96m.  D: Pat O'Connor. Chris O'Donnell, Minnie Driver, Geraldine O'Rawe, Saffron Burrows, Alan Cumming, Colin Firth, Aidan Gillen. Spirited and individualistic young woman leaves her Irish village to attend university in Dublin and falls madly in love with a handsome lad. He loves her, too, but their relationship is impeded by chance and circumstance. Perhaps more ado than necessary for such a simple tale, but still satisfying; anchored by Driver's irresistible performance as Benny. Adapted from Maeve Binchy's novel and set in the 1950s. [PG-13] ▼●●

Circle of Iron (1979) C-102m. ½ D: Richard Moore. David Carradine, Jeff Cooper, Roddy McDowall, Eli Wallach, Erica Creer, Christopher Lee. Strange, sometimes silly, but watchable blend of martial arts action and Zen philosophy; from an idea concocted by James Coburn and Bruce Lee. Cooper (looking like a California surfer) must pass rites of trial to find secret book of knowledge. Carradine plays four roles in this Stirling Silliphant-scripted fantasy, filmed in Israel as THE SILENT FLUTE. [R] ▼

Circle of Love (1964-French-Italian) C-105m. ½ D: Roger Vadim. Jane Fonda, Jean-Claude Brialy, Maurice Ronet, Jean Sorel, Catherine Spaak, Anna Karina, Marie Dubois, Claude Giraud, Françoise Dorléac. Undistinguished remake of Ophüls' classic LA RONDE: A seduces B, B makes love to C, C has an affair with D—circling all the way back to A. Screenplay by Jean Anouilh; original running time: 110m. Franscope. ▼

Circle of Power (1983) C-103m. ½ D: Bobby Roth. Yvette Mimieux, Christopher Allport, Cindy Pickett, John Considine, Julius Harris, Scott Marlowe, Fran Ryan, Walter Olkewicz, Danny Dayton, Denny Miller, Terence Knox. Intriguing—and disquieting—tale of businessmen and their wives who undergo EDT (Executive Development Training), which, as administered by Mimieux, turns out to be a horrifying and humiliating series of rituals. Based on actual events, believe it or not. Originally released as MYSTIQUE; also known as BRAINWASH and THE NAKED WEEKEND. [R] ▼

Circle of Two (1980-Canadian) C-105m.  D: Jules Dassin. Richard Burton, Tatum O'Neal, Nuala FitzGerald, Robin Gammell, Patricia Collins, Kate Reid. Sixty-year-old artist has romantic but platonic relationship with 16-year-old student. Burton is OK, and Dassin does not go for the cheap thrill, but the result is slight and forgettable. [PG] ▼

Circus, The (1928) 72m. ½ D: Charles Chaplin. Charlie Chaplin, Merna Kennedy, Allan Garcia, Betty Morrissey, Harry Crocker. Not the "masterpiece" of THE GOLD RUSH or CITY LIGHTS, but still a gem; story has Charlie accidentally joining traveling circus, falling in love with bareback rider. Hilarious comedy, with memorable finale. Chaplin won a special Academy Award for "versatility and genius in writing, acting, directing and producing" this. ▼●●

Circus of Fear SEE: Psycho-Circus

Circus World (1964) C-135m. ½ D: Henry Hathaway. John Wayne, Rita Hayworth, Claudia Cardinale, John Smith, Lloyd Nolan, Richard Conte. Made in Spain, film has nothing new to offer, but rehashes usual circus formula quite nicely with the Duke as Big Top boss trying to pull his three-ring wild west show through various perils during European tour. Climactic fire sequence is truly spectacular. Super Technirama 70. ▼●

Citadel, The (1938-U.S.-British) 112m. ½ D: King Vidor. Robert Donat, Rosalind Russell, Ralph Richardson, Rex Harrison, Emlyn Williams, Penelope Dudley-Ward, Francis L. Sullivan. Superb adaptation of A. J. Cronin novel of impoverished doctor Donat eschewing ideals for wealthy life of treating rich hypochondriacs, neglecting wife and friends in the process; tragedy opens his eyes. Weak ending, but fine acting makes up for it. Frank "Spig" Wead, Emlyn Williams, Ian Dalrymple, Elizabeth Hill, and John Van Druten all contributed to the script. Remade in Britain as a TV miniseries. ▼

Citizen Kane (1941) 119m. * D: Orson Welles. Orson Welles, Joseph Cotten, Everett Sloane, Agnes Moorehead, Dorothy Comingore, Ray Collins, George Coulouris, Ruth Warrick, William Alland, Paul Stewart, Erskine Sanford. Welles' first and best, a film that broke all the rules and invented some new ones, with fascinating story of Hearst-like publisher's rise to power. The cinematography (by Gregg Toland), music score (by Bernard Herrmann), and Oscar-winning screenplay (by Welles and Herman J. Mankiewicz) are all first-rate. A stunning film in every way ... and Welles was only 25 when he made it! Incidentally, the reporter with a pipe is Alan Ladd; Arthur O'Connell is another one of the reporters. ▼●●

Gainey, Kenneth Mars, Burt Reynolds, Alicia Witt, Tippi Hedren, Kathleen Noone. Dern is a pregnant chemical-inhaling homeless woman who inadvertently becomes the center of a pro-life vs. pro-choice struggle over her unborn child. A stinging satire of fanaticism, with many funny scenes, though it peters out a bit toward the end; well played by a devoted cast. Diane Ladd has a raunchy unbilled cameo. [R] ▼●●

City, The (1999) 88m. ½ D: David Riker. Fernando Reyes, Marcos Martinez Garcia, Moises Garcia, Anthony Rivera, Cipriano Garcia. Striking neorealist-style film offers four vignettes about Latino immigrants and their struggle for survival in N.Y.C. Alternately poignant, amusing, and heartbreaking, these living portraits are enacted with a keen eye for detail and an overwhelming amount of empathy. Writer-director Riker and cinematographer Harlan Bosmajian shot their film (in black & white) with non-professional actors over six years' time. Aka LA CIUDAD. ▼●

City Across the River (1949) 90m. ½ D: Maxwell Shane. Stephen McNally, Thelma Ritter, Luis Van Rooten, Jeff Corey, Anthony (Tony) Curtis, Richard Jaeckel. Watered-down version of Irving Shulman's novel The Amboy Dukes, involving tough life in Brooklyn slums, with predictable hoods et al.

City Beneath the Sea (1953) C-87m. ½ D: Budd Boetticher. Robert Ryan, Mala Powers, Anthony Quinn, Suzan Ball, Woody Strode. Inconsequential underwater yarn invigorated by Ryan and Quinn as deep-sea divers hunting treasure off Jamaican coast.

City by the Sea (2002) C-108m.  D: Michael Caton-Jones. Robert De Niro, Frances McDormand, James Franco, Eliza Dushku, William Forsythe, Patti LuPone, George Dzundza, Anson Mount, Drena De Niro, Leo Burmester. Dreary, derivative saga of a N.Y.C. cop who returns to his hometown, the once thriving, now desolate beachfront community of Long Beach, Long Island, where his long-estranged son may have committed murder. Tries to paint a tragic saga of fathers, sons, and lost opportunities, but too often rings hollow. Inspired by a true story. Super 35. [R] ▼●

City for Conquest (1940) 101m.  D: Anatole Litvak. James Cagney, Ann Sheridan, Frank Craven, Arthur Kennedy, Donald Crisp, Frank McHugh, George Tobias, Elia Kazan, Anthony Quinn. Cagney makes this a must as boxer devoted to younger brother Kennedy. Beautiful production overshadows film's pretentious faults. A rare chance to see young Kazan in an acting role, as a neighborhood pal turned gangster. Long-missing prologue was restored in 2006, bringing running time to 104m. ▼●● freshly realistic, and even funny; a winner.

City Girl, The (1984-U.S.-Canadian) C-85m.  D: Martha Coolidge. Laura Harrington, Joe Mastroianni, Carole McGill, Peter Riegert, Colleen Camp, Jim Carrington, Geraldine Baron. Solid, uncompromising tale of a young woman (expertly played by Harrington) attempting to advance her career as a photographer, and her various, unsatisfactory relationships with men. Re-

City Hall (1996) C-111m. ½ D: Harold Becker. Al Pacino, John Cusack, Bridget Fonda, Danny Aiello, Martin Landau, David Paymer, Anthony Franciosa, Richard Schiff, Lindsay Duncan, Nestor Serrano, Mel Winkler, Roberta Peters. N.Y.C. deputy mayor Cusack selflessly serves his mayor, a superb politician who really cares about his constituents. When a shootout involving a cop, a drug dealer, and an innocent child escalates into a citywide scandal, however, Cusack finds that the pathway to the truth is a political minefield. Snappy behind-the-scenes-of-urban-politics story pulls you in, then veers toward melodrama, with a finale that's pretty hard to swallow. This was the work of a real-life deputy mayor, Ken Lipper, and no fewer than three top screenwriters (Bo Goldman, Paul Schrader, Nicholas Pileggi!) [R] ▼●●

City Heat (1984) C-97m.  D: Richard Benjamin. Clint Eastwood, Burt Reynolds, Jane Alexander, Madeline Kahn, Rip Torn, Irene Cara, Richard Roundtree, Tony Lo Bianco, William Sanderson, Robert Davi. Two macho stars do caricatures of themselves in this 1930s gangster/detective yarn that takes turns trying to be funny and serious (when they pour gasoline on a guy and set him on fire we're apparently supposed to find it funny). For diehard fans of Clint and Burt only. [PG] ▼●●

City Lights (1931) 86m. * D: Charles Chaplin. Charlie Chaplin, Virginia Cherrill, Harry Myers, Hank Mann. Chaplin's masterpiece tells story of his love for blind flower girl and his hot-and-cold friendship with a drunken millionaire. Eloquent, moving, and funny. One of the all-time greats. ▼●●

City Limits (1985) C-85m. BOMB D: Aaron Lipstadt, Darrell Larson, John Stockwell, Kim Cattrall, Rae Dawn Chong, John Diehl, Don Opper, James Earl Jones, Robby Benson, Danny De La Paz, Norbert Weisser. Disastrous sci-fi followup by the team that made ANDROID, an incoherent mess set 15 years in the future after a plague has devastated the planet, leaving roving youth gangs warring in MAD MAX fashion. Even a strong cast can't save this one, with most of the plot expressed in tacked-on narration by Jones. [PG-13] ▼

City of Angels (1998) C-117m. ½ D: Brad Silberling. Nicolas Cage, Meg Ryan, Andre Braugher, Dennis Franz, Colm Feore, Robin Bartlett, Joanna Merlin, Sarah Dampf. An angel, who longs to know more about human beings and finds himself attracted to a hard-working female doctor, decides to sacrifice his heavenly status and fall to earth so he can experience love. Americanization of Wim Wenders' haunting WINGS OF DESIRE is—by the very nature of American movie conventions—less ethereal than the original film, but still intriguing and in its own way romantic. Only the climax seems routine and therefore disappointing. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

City of Ember (2008) C-94m.  D: Gil Kenan. Saoirse Ronan, Harry Treadaway, Tim Robbins, Bill Murray, Martin Landau, Mary Kay Place, Toby Jones, Marianne Jean-Baptiste, Mackenzie Crook. Citizens of an isolated underground city that's falling apart are afraid to venture beyond its boundaries, unaware that instructions were left behind by a group of wise men who sought to protect them from the demise of civilization aboveground. A plucky girl (Ronan) and her friend (Treadaway), not intimidated by their do-nothing mayor (Murray), start poking around and making interesting discoveries in the dilapidated city of Ember. Adaptation of Jeanne Duprau's novel never fires the emotional response it needs so badly. The real star of the film is production designer Martin Laing. Super 35. [PG]▶

City of Fear (1959) 81m. *½ D: Irving Lerner. Vince Edwards, Lyle Talbot, John Archer, Steven Ritch, Patricia Blair. Programmer involving escaped convict Edwards sought by police and health officials; container he stole is filled with radioactive material, not money.▶

City of Ghosts (2003) C-116m.  D: Matt Dillon. Matt Dillon, James Caan, Stellan Skarsgård, Natascha McElhone, Gérard Depardieu, Sereyvtuth Kem. Dillon plays an American rogue—a con man with a conscience—involved in murky business dealings and general intrigue in present-day Phnom Penh. Joseph Conrad and Graham Greene can rest easy: this lightweight drama is never as credible or compelling as intended. However, it does get points for atmosphere, having been filmed throughout Cambodia. Dillon's feature directing debut; he also cowrote. [R]▼▶

City of God (2002-Brazilian) C-131m. ½ D: Fernando Meirelles. Matheus Nachtergaele, Seu Jorge, Alexandre Rodrigues, Leandro Firmino da Hora, Felipe Haagensen, Jonathan Haagensen, Douglas Silva. Extraordinary portrait of life in the slums of Rio de Janeiro, where young—often incredibly young—hoodlums rule, violence is commonplace, and a rivalry turns the district into a war zone. One boy finds a way out of this existence by learning to use a camera. An arresting, and brutal, mosaic of stories spanning three decades, told with tremendous skill and creativity by director Meirelles, who also adapted Paulo Lins' book, and cast of mostly nonprofessional actors. Kátia Lund is credited as codirector. Followed by Brazilian TV series City of Men and a same-named feature in 2007. [R]▼▶

ison, Kevin Tighe, Barbara Williams, Chris Cooper, Jace Alexander, Todd Graff, Frankie Faison, Gloria Foster, Tom Wright, Michael Mantell, Josh Mostel, Joe Grifasi, Louis Zorich, Gina Gershon, Rose Gregorio, Bill Raymond, Lawrence Tierney, Maeva Kinkead, Ray Aranha. Ambitious multi-character drama about a strife-torn inner city and the people whose lives intersect within it. Writer-director-editor Sayles (who wrote himself a good part, as the slimy Carl) brings vivid and believable characters to life, and makes some pungent comments about contemporary society, but loses his momentum somewhere along the way. Might have been more effective if trimmed a bit. Panavision. [R]▼●

City of Industry (1997) C-97m. *½ D: John Irvin. Harvey Keitel, Stephen Dorff, Famke Janssen, Timothy Hutton, Wade Dominguez, Michael Jai White, Reno Wilson, Lucy Alexis Liu. Depressing story of robbery, deceit, murder, and revenge, set in current-day L.A. Keitel seems like a caricature of himself and Hutton is unconvincing as a sleaze, even with that scruffy beard. Elliott Gould appears unbilled. [R]▼●

City of Joy (1992-British-French) C-134m. ½ D: Roland Joffé. Patrick Swayze, Pauline Collins, Om Puri, Shabana Azmi, Ayesha Dharker, Santu Chowdury, Imran Badsah Khan, Art Malik, Shyamaneand Jalan. Aimless, cynical American surgeon Swayze, living in Calcutta, "finds" himself after becoming involved with a health clinic for the poor, taking on the local mafia, and befriending hardworking but poverty-stricken Puri. Well-intentioned but pretentious film scripted by Mark Medoff from Dominique Lapierre's book. Swayze tries his best, but is outshone by supporting cast; similar territory is covered better in SALAAM BOMBAY! Sam Wanamaker appears unbilled as Swayze's father. [PG-13]▼●

City of Lost Children, The (1995-French-Spanish-German) C-112m.  D: Jean-Pierre Jeunet, Marc Caro. Ron Perlman, Joseph Lucien, Daniel Emilfork, Mireille Mosse, Judith Vittet, Dominique Pinon. Provocative fantasy about a wicked scientist (Emilfork) who is unable to dream, and who goes about purloining children—with the help of remarkable "cloned" henchmen—and invading their dreams. Although dramatically uneven, this mix of Oliver Twist and BRAZIL is a marvel of production design, with sumptuous visuals and painstaking invention. The voice of Irvin, the disembodied brain, is provided by Jean-Louis Trintignant. From the directors of DELICATESSSEN. [R]▼●

City of Men (2007-Brazilian) C-110m.  D: Paulo Morelli. Douglas Silva, Darlan Cunha, Jonathan Haagensen, Rodrigo dos Santos, Camila Monteiro, Naima Silva, Eduardo BR, Luciano Vidigal. Companion piece to CITY OF GOD focuses on two young friends who are about to turn 18—one who's never known his father, the other who's already a reluctant father of a baby boy—and how their friendship is put to the test as gang war breaks out in their mountainside community (or favela). More intimate than its predecessor; immediate and powerful, about young men dealing with responsibility—and the need to make choices—for the first time in their lives. Sprinkled with flashbacks of the boys from CITY OF GOD and the TV series it spawned. [R]●

City of Women (1980-Italian) C-139m.  D: Federico Fellini. Marcello Mastroianni, Anna Prucnal, Bernice Stegers, Iole Silvani, Donatella Damiani. Marcello falls asleep on a train, dreams he has stumbled into an all-female society. Lavish fantasy could only have been made by one filmmaker; a Fellini feast or déjà vu o.d., depending on your mood and stamina. [R]▼●

City on Fire (1979-Canadian) C-101m. *½ D: Alvin Rakoff. Barry Newman, Henry Fonda, Ava Gardner, Shelley Winters, Susan Clark, Leslie Nielsen, James Franciscus, Jonathan Welsh. Dull, fill-in-the-blanks disaster film about citywide fire torched by a disgruntled ex-employee of local oil refinery. Good cast wasted. For pyromaniacs only. [R]▼

City Slickers (1991) C-112m.  D: Ron Underwood. Billy Crystal, Daniel Stern, Bruno Kirby, Patricia Wettig, Helen Slater, Jack Palance, Noble Willingham, Tracey Walter, Josh Mostel, David Paymer, Bill Henderson, Jeffrey Tambor, Phill Lewis, Kyle Secor, Jayne Meadows, Jake Gyllenhaal. Three friends who are going through various degrees of mid-life crisis sign up for a two-week cattle drive, to clear their minds and set them back on-course. Enjoyable comedy, whose generous array of funny lines and good moments makes up for its "serious" pretensions and flaws. Palance won Best Supporting Actor Oscar for his role as the leathery trail boss. Followed by a sequel. [PG-13]▼●●

City Slickers: The Legend of Curly's Gold (1994) C-116m. ½ D: Paul Weiland. Billy Crystal, Daniel Stern, Jon Lovitz, Jack Palance, Patricia Wettig, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Bill McKinney, Noble Willingham, David Paymer, Josh Mostel. A contrived sequel if there ever was one, with Crystal and Stern going back West (with Billy's screw-up brother Lovitz) to locate gold from a treasure map Palance (from the first film) left behind. Lack of plot and purpose are balanced by magnificent Moab, Utah, scenery—and a lot of genuine laughs, in the script by Crystal, Lowell Ganz, and Babaloo Mandel. [PG-13]▼●●

City Under the Sea, The SEE: War Gods of the Deep

countant loses his job and begins spying on his new neighbor, an Islamic college student he suspects of being a terrorist. When no one else buys into his obsession, he takes matters into his own hands. Krause (of Six Feet Under fame) delivers a powerful portrait of a man caught in the grip of media-fueled fear and paranoia. Independently produced nail-biter has echoes of REAR WINDOW but is clearly born out of the events of 9/11. Krause coproduced. [R]●

Civil Action, A (1998) C-115m. ½ D: Steven Zaillian. John Travolta, Robert Duval, Tony Shalhoub, William H. Macy, Željko Ivanek, Bruce Norris, John Lithgow, Kathleen Quinlan, Peter Jacobson, Sydney Pollack, Dan Hedaya, James Gandolfini. Slick Boston injury lawyer gets in over his head when he takes a case against two industrial giants whose alleged pollution of a river caused the deaths of children in Woburn, Mass. Engrossing, literate, well-observed film (adapted by the director from Jonathan Harr's best-seller) explores the foibles of American justice—and how pride, human frailty, and emotions can affect a case. Based on a true story. Kathy Bates appears unbilled. [PG-13]▼●●

Civil Brand (2003) C-91m. ½ D: Neema Barnette. LisaRaye, N'Bushe Wright, Mos Def, Da Brat, Monica Calhoun, Clifton Powell, Reed R. McCants, Tachina Arnold, Lark Voorhies, MC Lyte, Robert Lynn. Forceful story of women who are mistreated in prison by an abusive supervisor and by a corrupt system that turns them into sweatshop laborers. Eye-opening subject matter alternates with melodramatic prison fodder, while some contrived, underscripted characters weaken the overall film. Even with its faults, it's still potent stuff. [R]▼●

CJ7 (2008-Hong Kong) C-88m.  D: Stephen Chow. Stephen Chow, Jiao Xu, Chi Chung Lam, Kitty Zhang Yuqi, Shing-Cheung Lee, Min Hun Fung. Chow works overtime to send his son (Xu) to an impressive private school, hoping that he can grow up and make something of himself. But when he gives his son a toy he finds at the dump, both of their lives are changed forever. Like Chow's other films, the movie's manic zigzagging from wacky to sincere makes it almost impossible to enjoy the story and genuinely care about anyone. Although it has some redeeming moments (due to the animated toy that comes to life), they are few and far between. Super 35. [PG]●

Claim, The (2000-British-Canadian) C-120m.  D: Michael Winterbottom. Wes Bentley, Peter Mullan, Milla Jovovich, Sarah Polley, Nastassja Kinski, Sean McGinley. Thomas Hardy's The Mayor of Casterbridge reset in snowy northern California in the aftermath of the gold rush, in 1867. Mullan runs the town of Kingdom Come with an iron fist, but melts somewhat when his ex-wife and daughter (whom he sold in exchange for a gold claim years ago) turn up. Vivid and well acted, but emotionally hollow. Super 35. [R]▼

Clair de Femme (1979-French) C-103m.  D: Costa-Gavras. Yves Montand, Romy Schneider, Romolo Valli, Lila Kedrova, Heinz Bennent, Roberto Benigni, Jean Reno. Slow-moving chronicle of the relationship between traumatized widower Montand and Schneider, who has been scarred by the death of her young daughter in an auto accident. Characters are one-dimensional, and film is gloomy, gloomy, gloomy. Based on novel by Romain Gary.

Claire Dolan (1998-U.S.-French) C-95m.  D: Lodge Kerrigan. Katrin Cartlidge, Vincent D'Onofrio, Colm Meaney, Patrick Husted, Muriel Maïda. Intriguing portrait of an Irish-American woman who works as a prostitute, caught in a viselike grip by her menacing and manipulative pimp (Meaney), until she decides to break free—if she can. Quiet, well-observed film that doesn't spell everything out about its characters, forcing us to fill in the blanks. Strong performances by all three leads.▼

Claire's Knee (1971-French) C-103m. ½ D: Eric Rohmer. Jean-Claude Brialy, Aurora Cornu, Beatrice Romand, Laurence De Monaghan, Michele Montel. No. 5 of Rohmer's "Six Moral Tales" has widest appeal. A man about to be married is obsessed with a girl he doesn't even like, his attention focusing on her knee. Full of delicious relationships, but too talky for some viewers. [PG]▼

Clambake (1967) C-97m. *½ D: Arthur Nadler. Elvis Presley, Shelley Fabares, Will Hutchins, Bill Bixby, Gary Merrill, James Gregory. Elvis is a millionaire's son who wants to make it on his own, so he trades places with water-skiing instructor Hutchins in Miami. One of Presley's weakest. Techniscope.▼

Clan of the Cave Bear, The (1986) C-98m. *½ D: Michael Chapman. Daryl Hannah, Pamela Reed, James Remar, Thomas G. Waites, John Doolittle, Curtis Armstrong. World's first feminist caveman movie, minus the anthropological detail of Jean Auel's popular book. Hannah is perfectly cast as outsider who joins band of nomadic Neanderthals, but the story (such as it is) is alternately boring and unintentionally funny. Subtitles translate cave people's primitive tongue. Screenplay by John Sayles. Technovision. [R]▼

Clara's Heart (1988) C-108m. *½ D: Robert Mulligan. Whoopi Goldberg, Michael Ontkean, Kathleen Quinlan, Neil Patrick Harris, Spalding Gray, Beverly Todd. Whoopi plays a Jamaican domestic (think of Shirley Booth's Hazel with a reggae bias), a soft-spoken know-it-all who works for insufferable Maryland yuppies and their young, impressionable son (well played by Harris). The kind of movie best described as "nice" by indiscriminating viewers in search of blandness—and seemingly edited with a chainsaw. [PG-13]▼

Clarence and Angel (1980) C-75m.  D: Robert Gardner. Darren Brown, Mark Cardova, Cynthia McPherson, Louis Mike, Leroy Smith, Lola Langley, Lolita Lewis. Aggressive, kung-fu-mad Angel (Cardova) befriends his new schoolmate, shy, illiterate Clarence (Brown), who has recently arrived in Harlem from South Carolina, and teaches him to read. Technically crude, but funny and touching; sequence in principal's office, in which Clarence's mother fakes reading a test score, is a gem.▼

Clarence the Cross-Eyed Lion (1965) C-98m. ½ D: Andrew Marton. Marshall Thompson, Betsy Drake, Cheryl Miller, Richard Haydn, Alan Cailloou. Basis for Daktari TV show is good family entertainment set in Africa with adventure and wholesome comedy well blended.▼

Clash by Night (1952) 105m.  D: Fritz Lang. Barbara Stanwyck, Paul Douglas, Robert Ryan, Marilyn Monroe, Keith Andes, J. Carrol Naish. Moody, well-acted Clifford Odets story of drifter Stanwyck settling down, marrying good-natured fisherman Douglas. Cynical friend Ryan senses that she's not happy, tries to take advantage. Andes and Monroe provide secondary love interest.▼

Clash of the Titans (1981-British) C-118m. ½ D: Desmond Davis. Laurence Olivier, Harry Hamlin, Judi Bowker, Burgess Meredith, Sian Phillips, Maggie Smith, Claire Bloom, Ursula Andress, Tim Pigott-Smith. Juvenile fantasy-adventure based on Greek mythology. Olivier is Zeus, and Hamlin is his mortal son Perseus, who must face a variety of awesome challenges in pursuit of his destiny. Long and episodic, with some fine elements (the taming of Pegasus, the threat of Medusa—who can turn men into stone with one glance), but not enough guts or vigor. As is, mainly for kids. Special effects by Ray Harryhausen. [PG]▼

Class (1983) C-98m.  D: Lewis John Carlino. Rob Lowe, Jacqueline Bisset, Andrew McCarthy, Stuart Margolin, Cliff Robertson, John Cusack, Alan Ruck, Remak Ramsay, Virginia Madsen, Casey Siemaszko, Anna Maria Horsford, Joan Cusack. Naive prep-school boy stumbles (almost literally) into affair with beautiful older woman, unaware of her identity. Slick but uneven mix of romance, comedy, and drama with one-dimensional characters and a lack of credibility. Some good moments lost in the shuffle. [R]▼

Class, The (2008-French) C-124m. ½ D: Laurent Cantet. François Bégaudeau, Nassim Amrabt, Laura Baquela, Cherif Bounaïdja Rachedi, Juliette Demaille, Esmeralda Ouertani, Rachel Régulier, Franck

Keita, Wei Haung. Dedicated teacher in a working-class Parisian school tries to instill a passion for learning in his multicultural classroom but the freedom of expression he encourages makes every day a challenge. Invigorating drama has the spark of spontaneity from start to finish. The leading actor is in fact a teacher who wrote a novel about his experiences and coauthored this screenplay with Cantet and Robin Campillo—with input from the nonprofessional actors playing the students. Original French title: ENTRE LES MURS. Super 35. [PG-13]

Class Act (1992) C-98m. ½ D: Randall Miller. Christopher Reid, Christopher Martin, Meshach Taylor, Karyn Parsons, Doug E. Doug, Rick Ducommun, Lamont Johnson, Rhea Perlman. Straight-A student (Reid) and street-wise juvenile delinquent (Martin) switch identities when they both transfer to a new high school; complications ensue when they find it tough sledding in their new environs. Broad, cartoony comedy is nothing special; neither is the obligatory anti-drug rap song at the end of the film. [PG-13]▼●

Classé Tous Risques (1960-French) 103m.  D: Claude Sautet. Lino Ventura, Jean-Paul Belmondo, Sandra Milo, Marcel Dalio, Stan Krol. Solid crime drama with Ventura as a murderer who's been living in exile in Milan but decides to return to Paris after pulling one last heist. His plans go awry, and while he expects his criminal pals to help him when he arrives in Nice, they send a young guy instead (Belmondo) to pick him up. Tough, ironic tale filled with interesting characters and vivid location work. Great showcase for the young Belmondo, made around the same time as BREATHLESS.▶

Class of '44 (1973) C-95m. ½ D: Paul Bogart. Gary Grimes, Jerry Houser, Oliver Conant, Deborah Winters, William Atherton, Sam Bottoms, John Candy. Sequel to SUMMER OF '42 is less ambitious, lightly entertaining story, with Grimes going to college, falling in love, growing up. Good period atmosphere. Panavision. [PG]▼

Class of Miss MacMichael, The (1978-British) C-99m. *½ D: Silvio Narizzano.

Glenda Jackson, Oliver Reed, Michael Murphy, Rosalind Cash, John Standing, Riba Akabusi, Phil Daniels. Echoes of TO SIR, WITH LOVE don't flatter this shrill comedy-drama of a dedicated teacher with a class full of social misfits. [R]▼

Class of 1984 (1982) C-93m.  D: Mark L. Lester. Perry King, Merrie Lynn Ross, Roddy McDowall, Timothy Van Patten, Stefan Angrim, Al Waxman, Michael J. Fox, Lisa Langlois. Unpleasant, calculatedly campy melodrama about the harassment of high school teacher King by psychotic student Van Patten—with more than a few echoes of BLACKBOARD JUNGLE. As revenge movies go, the buzz-saw finale is not bad. Followed by CLASS OF 1999. [R]▼●●

Class of 1999 (1990) C-98m. *½ D: Mark L. Lester. Bradley Gregg, Traci Lind, Malcolm McDowell, Stacy Keach, Patrick Kilpatrick, Pam Grier, John P. Ryan, Darren E. Burrows, Joshua Miller. Followup to CLASS OF 1984 pictures high school of the near-future as Hell on Earth, with ultraviolent gang members meeting their match in a trio of robots recruited as teachers. Heavy-handed film wavers between high camp and taking itself seriously as a message movie! Keach goes overboard as a maniacal robot operator. Unrated video version also available. 1993 sequel: CLASS OF 1999 II: THE SUBSTITUTE. [R]▼●

Class of Nuke 'Em High (1986) C-81m. BOMB D: Richard Haines, Samuel Weil. Janelle Brady, Gilbert Brenton, Robert Prichard, R. L. Ryan. Obnoxious horror comedy about a New Jersey high school near a nuclear waste spill that creates monsters and disgustingly transforms model teens Brady and Brenton. Dehumanizing, sadistic gags masquerade as lowbrow entertainment. Followed by two sequels. [R]▼●●

Claudelle English (1961) 99m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. Diane McBain, Arthur Kennedy, Will Hutchins, Constance Ford, Claude Akins, Chad Everett, Robert Logan. Trite soap derived from Erskine Caldwell tale of Southern farm gal who gives all to find excitement, with predictable consequences.

Claudia (1943) 91m.  D: Edmund Goulding. Dorothy McGuire, Robert Young, Ina Claire, Reginald Gardiner, Olga Baclanova, Jean Howard. Warm comedy of young Claudia suddenly marrying, facing adult problems, learning a lot about life in short period; beautifully acted. McGuire, in film debut, re-creates her Broadway role. Sequel: CLAUDIA AND DAVID.

Claudia and David (1946) 78m.  D: Walter Lang. Dorothy McGuire, Robert Young, Mary Astor, John Sutton, Gail Patrick, Florence Bates. Enjoyable follow-up to CLAUDIA with McGuire and Young having a baby, adjusting to suburban life; engaging, well acted.

Claudine (1974) C-92m. ½ D: John Berry. Diahann Carroll, James Earl Jones, Lawrence Hilton-Jacobs, Tamu, David Kruger, Adam Wade. Slice-of-life comedy with a serious edge: Romance between garbage-man Jones and young ghetto mother Carroll is charming and credible, but the problems of dealing with her six kids, and their collective poverty, can't be treated so lightly. "Upbeat" finale just doesn't ring true. [PG]▼

Clay Pigeon, The (1949) 63m. ½ D: Richard O. Fleischer. Bill Williams, Barbara Hale, Richard Loo, Richard Quine, Frank Fenton, Martha Hyer. Neat little actioner with Williams, a seaman accused of treason and of responsibility in the death of his friend, on the trail of the real culprit, a Japanese prison guard. Written by Carl Foreman, based on a true incident. ▼

Clay Pigeon (1971) C-97m. *½ D: Tom Stern, Lane Slate. Tom Stern, Telly Savalas, Robert Vaughn, John Marley, Burgess Meredith, Ivan Dixon. Good cast in dull crime melodrama of Vietnam vet settling into drug scene who experiences change of heart and goes after big-league pusher. [R]

Clay Pigeons (1998) C-104m. ½ D: David Dobkin. Joaquin Phoenix, Vince Vaughn, Janeane Garofalo, Georgina Cates, Scott Wilson, Vince Vieluf, Phil Morris. Clever film noir set in a small town out west. A patsy falls prey first to his best friend, then the friend's slatternly wife, and finally to a mysterious stranger just passing through, whose actions bring a cynical big-city FBI agent (Garofalo) to town. Twisty black comedy has much to enjoy but leaves the viewer less than completely satisfied. Overemphatic use of source music is a debit, but the opening is a grabber. [R]▼●●

Clean (2004-Canadian-French-British) C-110m. ½ D: Olivier Assayas. Maggie Cheung, Nick Nolte, Béatrice Dalle, Jeanne Balibar, Don McKellar, Martha Henry, James Johnston, James Dennis, Rémi Martin. Unremarkable account of Cheung, the spouse of a second-tier rocker, who goes through hell after he dies of an overdose. She, too, is a junkie, and struggles to get her life in order. It's difficult to invest emotion in such an unlikable character, though her story becomes more involving as it goes along. Nolte is the best thing in the film, offering a touching performance as the deceased rocker's emotionally generous father. Written by the director. Super 35. [R]▼

Clean and Sober (1988) C-125m.  D: Glenn Gordon Caron. Michael Keaton, Kathy Baker, Morgan Freeman, M. Emmet Walsh, Tate Donovan, Henry Judd Baker, Luca Bercovici, Claudia Christian, Pat Quinn, Ben Piazza. A young hustler enrolls in a drug rehabilitation program in order to duck out of sight for a while—refusing to admit to himself that

he's an addict, too. Powerful drama showcases Keaton in an utterly believable performance, though the film's relentlessness makes it tough to watch. [R]▼●●

Cleaner (2007) C-89m.  D: Renny Harlin. Samuel L. Jackson, Eva Mendes, Ed Harris, Luis Guzmán, Keke Palmer, Robert Forster. Former cop (Jackson) runs a hazardous waste containment enterprise, which includes cleaning up gruesome crime scenes. All is well until he sanitizes a murder scene before the police are notified of the homicide. Jackson and Harris are fine, but there's little surprise beyond the intriguing setup. Humdrum film released direct to DVD in the U.S. Super 35. [R]●

Clean, Shaven (1993) C-80m.  D: Lodge Kerrigan. Peter Greene, Robert Albert, Jennifer MacDonald, Megan Owen. Unusual, subtly chilling psychological drama about Peter (Greene), a schizophrenic released from an institution who is grasping for a human connection. Meanwhile, his young daughter has been put up for adoption by her mother, a cop, who's investigating the brutal murder of another child and becomes convinced Peter is the culprit. A meditation on deep feelings of loss and alienation; not always easy to follow, but challenging, even haunting.▼●

Dana Carvey, Valeria Golino, James Earl Jones, Kevin Pollak, Michael Gambon, Michael Murphy, Olivia d'Abo, Tim Scott, Angela Paton, Jayne Brook, Gailard Sartain, Phil Leeds. Carvey plays a detective who awakens each morning with no memory whatsoever. Did somebody say GROUNDHOG DAY? It's D.O.A. all the way, though there are some mildly amusing gags involving a klutzy terrier named Barkley. [PG-13] ▼●●

Clean and Present Danger (1994) C-141m. ½ D: Phillip Noyce. Harrison Ford, Willem Dafoe, Anne Archer, Joaquim de Almeida, James Earl Jones, Henry Czerny, Harris Yulin, Donald Moffat, Miguel Sandoval, Benjamin Bratt, Raymond Cruz, Dean Jones, Thora Birch, Ann Magnuson, Hope Lange. CIA whiz Jack Ryan finds himself waist-deep in highest-level Washington politics when his ailing mentor (Jones) names him as his replacement. Soon he's caught in the middle of double-dealing with a Colombian druglord. The always watchable Ford plays more a symbol than a character here, and the action climax seems somehow pat. Still, it's an intelligent and entertaining sequel to PATRIOT GAMES. Followed by THE SUM OF ALL FEARS. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

pany responsible for cutting down forests) and naively liberal lawyer Lea (who's failed to halt the destruction in the courts). Presence of graphic violence in the midst of a thought-provoking drama is jarring, to say the least, but the subject, and Greene's performance, make it worthwhile. [R]▼

Clearing, The (2004) C-94m. ½ D: Pieter Jan Brugge. Robert Redford, Helen Mirren, Willem Dafoe, Alessandro Nivola, Matt Craven, Melissa Sagemiller, Wendy Crewson, Larry Pine, Diana Scarwid, Elizabeth Ruscio. A successful, married businessman is kidnapped one morning. As his wife and children go through the ordeal of having their lives invaded by the FBI, while waiting for further word, the victim gets to know his captor as they make their way in the woods. More a character study than a conventional story, this interesting, elliptical film plays with chronology in challenging ways but doesn't lead to a satisfying conclusion. The three stars are excellent. [R]▼●

Cleo From 5 to 7 (1962-French) C/B&W-90m.  D: Agnès Varda. Corinne Marchand, Antoine Bourseiller, Dorothee Blanck, Michel Legrand, Anna Karina, Eddie Constantine, Jean-Luc Godard. Intelligent, fluid account of Parisian songstress forced to re-evaluate her life while awaiting vital medical report on her physical condition. First scene is in color. ▼●●

Cleopatra (1934) 100m. ½ D: Cecil B. DeMille. Claudette Colbert, Warren William, Henry Wilcoxon, Gertrude Michael, Joseph Schildkraut, C. Aubrey Smith, Claudia Dell, Robert Warwick. Opulent DeMille version of Cleopatra doesn't date badly, stands out as one of his most intelligent films, thanks in large part to fine performances by all. Top entertainment, with Oscar-winning cinematography by Victor Milner. ▼●●

Cleopatra (1963) C-243m.  D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton, Rex Harrison, Pamela Brown, George Cole, Hume Cronyn, Cesare Danova, Kenneth Haigh, Andrew Keir, Martin Landau, Roddy McDowall, Robert Stephens, Francesca Annis, Herbert Berghof, Michael Hordern, John Hoyt, Carroll O'Connor. Saga of the Nile goes on and on and on. Definitely a curiosity item, but you'll be satisfied after an hour. Good acting, especially by Harrison and McDowall, but it's lost in this flat, four-hour misfire. Nevertheless earned Oscars for cinematography, art direction—set decoration, costumes, special effects. Released to TV at 194m. Todd-AO. ▼●●

Cleopatra Jones (1973) C-89m.  D: Jack Starrett. Tamara Dobson, Bernie Casey, Shelley Winters, Brenda Sykes, Antonio Fargas, Bill McKinney, Esther Rolle. Black bubblegum stuff with Dobson as karate-chopping government agent chasing drug kingpins. Lots of action and violence. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Cleopatra Jones and the Casino of Gold (1975) C-96m. ½ D: Chuck Bail. Tamara Dobson, Stella Stevens, Tanny, Norman Fell, Albert Popwell, Caro Kenyatta, Christopher Hunt. Wild, woolly, sexy, violent sequel to CLEOPATRA JONES. Stevens plays "The Dragon Lady," a tip-off on what to expect. Panavision. [R]▼

Clerks (1994) 89m.  D: Kevin Smith. Brian O'Halloran, Jeff Anderson, Marilyn Ghigliotti, Lisa Spoonauer, Jason Mewes, Kevin Smith. Black and white, $27,000 wonder by first-time filmmaker Smith is a brash, foul-mouthed, often very funny look at a day in the lives of a New Jersey convenience-store clerk and his abrasive pal, who mans the video place next door—when he feels like it. Well written and well acted; more provocative and entertaining than many glossy Hollywood movies of the '90s. Unrated director's cut runs 92m. Later an animated series. Followed by a sequel in 2006. [R]▼●●

Clerks II (2006) C-97m. ½ D: Kevin Smith. Brian O'Halloran, Jeff Anderson, Rosario Dawson, Kevin Smith, Jason Mewes, Trevor Fehrman, Ethan Suplee, Ben Affleck, Jason Lee, Wanda Sykes. After the Quick Stop burns down, Dante and Randal go to work for a local fast-food joint, but Dante (O'Halloran) has found an escape: a good-looking girl has fallen in love with him, and they're going to move to Florida and get married. His last day at Mooby's is unexpectedly eventful, however. Writer-director Smith is still in touch with his inner imbecile, but this CLERKS has little of the intelligence that made his breakout film so special in 1994... but no shortage of potty-mouthed humor. [R]●

Click (2006) C-106m. *½ D: Frank Coraci. Adam Sandler, Kate Beckinsale, Christopher Walken, David Hasselhoff, Henry Winkler, Julie Kavner, Jennifer Coolidge, Sean Astin, Rachel Dratch. Stressed-out, workaholic architect who never seems to have enough time for his family comes upon a crazy inventor who gives him a remote control that can manipulate his life—and even help him skip the boring parts. Good comedy premise unexpectedly morphs into a self-serious examination of a life gone wrong (as if this was IT'S A WONDERFUL REMOTE)... yet Sandler doesn't want to sacrifice any of his trademark crudity. An odd, unsatisfying mishmash. Rob Schneider appears uncredited. [PG-13]●

Client, The (1994) C-122m.  D: Joel Schumacher. Susan Sarandon, Tommy Lee Jones, Brad Renfro, Mary-Louise Parker, Anthony LaPaglia, Ossie Davis, Bradley Whitford, Anthony Edwards, J.T. Walsh, Walter Olkewicz, Will Patton, Anthony Heald, William H. Macy. Top-flight adaptation of John Grisham's best-seller about an 11-year-old boy who finds himself in hot water with both the Feds (led by Jones) and the Mob when he learns too much from a Mafia lawyer who's about to kill himself. Sarandon is the lawyer who takes the kid's case. Suspense is neatly woven with character development; satisfying entertainment. Later a TV series. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Cliffhanger (1993-U.S.-French) C-118m.

 D: Renny Harlin. Sylvester Stallone, John Lithgow, Michael Rooker, Janine Turner, Paul Winfield, Ralph Waite, Rex Linn, Caroline Goodall, Leon, Craig Fairbrass, Michelle Joyner, Max Perlich. Self-doubting mountain rescue expert Sly is pitted against really rotten Lithgow and his gang, who are after $100 million lost in the Rockies. Eye-popping photography (by Alex Thomson), white-knuckle stunts, a swift pace, and entertaining characters add up to what a well-made action film should be: tons of fun. Story is thin, though. Italy's Dolomites stand in for the Rockies. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Clifford (1994) C-89m. *½ D: Paul Flaherty. Martin Short, Charles Grodin, Mary Steenburgen, Dabney Coleman, G. D. Spradlin, Anne Jeffreys, Richard Kind, Jennifer Savidge, Ben Savage. Moronic comedy in the (unfortunate) mold of PROBLEM CHILD, with Short uninspiringly cast as a cloyingly obnoxious ten-year-old who makes life pure hell for his uncle (Grodin). Short's playing a child is a gimmick which quickly proves tiresome. Completed in 1991, this could have stayed on the shelf. [PG] ▼●●

Clifford's Really Big Movie (2004) C-73m.

*½ D: Robert C. Ramirez. Voices of John Ritter, Grey DeLisle, Cree Summer, Kel Mitchell, Wayne Brady, Jenna Elfman, Judge Reinhold, John Goodman, Wilmer Valderrama, Ernie Hudson, Teresa Ganzel, Jess Harnell, Kath Soucie. Norman Bridwell's Big Red Dog gets the feature film treatment in this benign cartoon aimed at the preschool set. Clifford, concerned about being a financial burden to his owners, joins a carnival in hopes of entering a contest where the prize is a lifetime supply of his favorite doggy treats. Pleasant, undemanding fare for tots. [G] ▼

Climate for Killing, A (1990) C-103m.

 D: J. S. Cardone. John Beck, Steven Bauer, Mia Sara, Katharine Ross, John Diehl, Phil Brock, Dedee Pfeiffer, Lu Leonard, Jack Dodson, Eloy Casados. A grisly murder confronts, and confounds, small-time Arizona cop Beck; he's joined by big city evaluator Bauer, who questions his approach to law enforcement while becoming involved with his daughter (Sara). Solid, engrossing mystery-drama. [R] ▼●

Climax, The (1944) C-86m. *½ D:

George Wagner. Boris Karloff, Susanna Foster, Turhan Bey, Gale Sondergaard, Thomas Gomez, Scotty Beckett, George Dolenz, Jane Farrar, June Vincent, Ludwig Stossel. Technicolor tale of suave but sinister physician to the Vienna Opera House who takes an unnatural interest in their newest soprano (Foster)—just as he did another singer who disappeared ten years ago. No surprises here, but slickly done. ▼●●

Clinic, The (1982-Australian) C-92m. *½ D: David Stevens. Chris Haywood, Simon Burke, Rona McLeod, Gerda Nicolson, Suzanne Roylance, Veronica Lang, Pat Evison. Straightforward but much too obvious comedy-drama about the goings-on in a VD clinic operated by doctor Haywood. ▼

Cloak and Dagger (1946) 106m. *½ D: Fritz Lang. Gary Cooper, Lilli Palmer, Robert Alda, Vladimir Sokoloff, Ludwig Stossel. Professor Cooper becomes a secret agent on his trip to Germany; Lang intrigue is not among his best, but still slick. ▼●●

Cloak & Dagger (1984) C-101m.  D: Richard Franklin. Henry Thomas, Dabney Coleman, Michael Murphy, John McIntire, Jeanette Nolan, Christine Nigra. Young Thomas gets involved with murderous espionage—but no one will believe him. Flawed but enjoyable reworking of THE WINDOW. Coleman's a delight in dual role as his father and his make-believe hero. [PG] ▼●●

Clock, The (1945) 90m. ½ D: Vincente Minnelli. Judy Garland, Robert Walker, James Gleason, Keenan Wynn, Marshall Thompson, Lucille Gleason. Soldier Walker has two-day leave in N.Y.C., meets office worker Judy; they spend the day falling in love, encountering friendly milkman Gleason, drunk Wynn; charming little love story with beguiling Garland. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Clockers (1995) C-129m.  D: Spike Lee. Harvey Keitel, John Turturro, Delroy Lindo, Mekhi Phifer, Isaiah Washington, Keith David, Pee Wee Love, Regina Taylor, Tom Byrd, Sticky Fingaz, Mike Starr, Spike Lee. The night manager of a fast-food restaurant is murdered, but a no-nonsense Brooklyn cop doesn't believe that the young man who confessed to the crime is really guilty. He's got his eye on the suspect's brother (Phifer), who works for the neighborhood drug czar. A penetrating, multilayered look at the reality of life on the street and in "the projects," and a challenging treatise on personal responsibility. It's tough to decipher the street lingo and dialect in the opening scenes, but once the story kicks in, it's dynamite. Richard Price adapted his novel with Lee; a fortuitous merging of two distinctive talents. [R] ▼●●

Clockmaker, The (1973-French) C-100m.

½ D: Bertrand Tavernier. Philippe Noiret, Jean Rochefort, Jacques Denis, Julien Bertheau. Noiret is superb as a watchmaker who is forced to reevaluate his life after his son is arrested for murder. Meticulously directed; based on a novel by Georges Simenon. Tavernier's feature directing debut. ▼

Clockstoppers (2002) C-94m.  D: Jonathan Frakes, Jesse Bradford, French Stewart, Paula Garcés, Michael Biehn, Robin Thomas, Garikayi Mutambirwa, Julia Sweeney, Lindze Letherman. Teenage boy acquires an experimental watch that can stop time, more or less. This scores big points with his new girlfriend, but gets him into a mess of trouble with bad guys who have threatened the watch's inventor—and the boy's scientist dad. Starts as a high-energy, good-time film for young viewers (from Nickelodeon Movies), but begins to drag halfway through its needlessly complicated script. [PG] ▼

Clockwatchers (1997) C-105m.  D: Jill Sprecher. Toni Collette, Parker Posey, Lisa Kudrow, Alanna Ubach, Helen Fitzgerald, Stanley DeSantis, Jamie Kennedy, Kevin Cooney, Paul Dooley, Bob Balaban. Four office temps in corporate hell form a fast friendship that ultimately jeopardizes their attempts at careers. Indie spin on NINE TO FIVE captures working-week tedium hilariously for a while, then gets bogged down in tedious Kafkaesque second half. Posey's bitchy comic flair throughout gives the film its only real juice. [PG-13] ▼

Clockwise (1986-British) C-96m. ½ D: Christopher Morahan. John Cleese, Penelope Wilton, Alison Steadman, Stephen Moore, Sharon Maiden, Joan Hickson. Cleese is a school headmaster, obsessed with punctuality, en route to make a speech at a convention and constantly getting into trouble. A tour de force role that is a must for Cleese fans; others will be disappointed with the thinness of playwright Michael Frayn's script. [PG] ▼

Clockwork Orange, A (1971) C-137m. ½ D: Stanley Kubrick. Malcolm McDowell, Patrick Magee, Michael Bates, Adrienne Cori, Aubrey Morris, James Marcus, Steven Berkoff, David Prowse. A scathing satire on a society in the not so distant future, with an excellent performance by McDowell as a prime misfit. Kubrick's vivid adaptation of Anthony Burgess' novel was too strong for some to stomach in 1971, and it remains potent today. [R—edited from original X rating] ▼

Clone Wars, The (2008) C-98m.  D: Dave Filoni. Voices of Matt Lanter, James Arnold Taylor, Ashley Eckstein, Tom Kane, Ian Abercrombie, Corey Burton, Samuel L. Jackson, Anthony Daniels, Christopher Lee. First entirely computer-animated STAR WARS feature takes place between Episodes II and III in George Lucas' epic space fantasy. Anakin Skywalker, Obi-Wan Kenobi, and a young female apprentice fight the Republic to rescue Jabba the Hutt's infant son from a kidnapping plot. Created as the first three episodes of The Clone Wars TV series—and feels like it. Special effects, alien landscapes, and spaceships are visually dazzling, and the battle sequences are thrilling, but the characters are as wooden and stiff as they look. Much more juvenile than the original movies, which means that kids may enjoy it more than diehard fans. Aka STAR WARS: THE CLONE WARS. Followed by a TV series. Digital widescreen. [PG] ▼

Clonus Horror, The SEE: Parts: The Clonus Horror

Close Encounters of the Third Kind (1977) C-135m. * D: Steven Spielberg. Richard Dreyfuss, François Truffaut, Teri Garr, Melinda Dillon, Cary Guffey, Bob Balaban. Superb, intelligent sci-fi (written by Spielberg) about UFO mystery that leads to first contact with alien beings. Dreyfuss is perfect Everyman struggling with frustrating enigma that finally becomes clear. Powerhouse special effects throughout, plus John Williams' evocative score. Vilmos Zsigmond's impressive cinematography won an Oscar. Reedited by Spielberg to tighten midsection and add alien-encounter material to finale and reissued in 1980 at 132m. as THE SPECIAL EDITION. (Then, for network showings, all existing footage was used!) Reedited yet again by Spielberg in 1998 to 137m. for a Collector's Edition. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Closely Watched Trains (1966-Czech) 89m.  D: Jiri Menzel. Vaclav Neckar, Jitka Bendova, Vladimir Valenta, Libuse Havelkova, Josef Somr. Enjoyable but slightly overrated tragicomedy about naive apprentice train-dispatcher Neckar's attempts at sexual initiation during the German Occupation. Academy Award winner as Best Foreign Film. ▼

Close My Eyes (1991-British) C-109m.  D: Stephen Poliakoff. Alan Rickman, Clive Owen, Saskia Reeves, Karl Johnson, Lesley Sharp, Kate Gartside. Vaguely unhappy woman makes sexual overtures to her brother, which explode into full-fledged incest five years later when she's married and living in a mansion by the Thames. Film is a bit haphazard setting up the basic situation, but soon becomes a riveting view. Extremely well acted, with confident performances by Owen and Reeves (as the taboo-flaunting siblings) and Rickman, in a supporting role as the husband. [R] ▼

Closer (2004) C-104m. ½ D: Mike Nichols. Julia Roberts, Jude Law, Natalie Portman, Clive Owen. Four people fall in and out of love as they fall in and out of bed. Extremely well acted and intimately staged for the camera (though it's still obvious this derived from a stage work); the question is whether we care enough about the characters to endure their endless and brutal playing of mind games. Super-charged performances, especially by Owen and Portman, help a lot. More sexually explicit dialogue than any mainstream Hollywood movie we can remember! Patrick Marber adapted his play. [R] ▼

Closer, The (1990) C-86m. *½ D: Dimitri Logothetis. Danny Aiello, Michael Paré,

Joe Cortese, Justine Bateman, Diane Baker, James Karen, Michael Lerner. Highly successful businessman is forced to retire and creates a tension-filled night of competition in order to pick his successor. Aiello is compelling as always, but this would-be Death of a Salesman never gets out of the gate. Aiello originated the role on Broadway in 1976; Louis L. Russo II's play was titled Wheelbarrow Closers. [R] ▼●

Closer You Get, The (2000-Irish-British) C-90m. ½ D: Aileen Ritchie. Ian Hart, Sean McGinley, Niamh Cusack, Ruth McCabe, Ewan Stewart, Pat Shortt, Cathleen Bradley, Sean McDonagh. Flyweight comedy about a remote Irish island village where the young men decide to do something about the lack of eligible, attractive females: they take a want ad in a Miami newspaper, inviting sexy, athletic, marriage-minded American women to come on over. Self-consciously cute and padded out, but still amusing. Aka AMERICAN WOMEN. [PG-13] ▼●

Closet, The (2001-French) C-86m. ½ D: Francis Veber. Daniel Auteuil, Gérard Depardieu, Thierry Lhermitte, Michèle Laroque, Jean Rochefort, Alexandra Vandermoot, Michel Aumont. Slight but amusing social comedy from writer-director Veber concerning a nonentity who's about to be fired from his company after 20 years. His new neighbor hatches a plan to save the job: pretend he's gay so the firm won't risk the accusation of sexual prejudice. Naturally the ruse snowballs, in more directions than one. Likable, if a bit low key. Technovision. [R] ▼●

Closet Land (1991) C-89m. *½ D: Radha Bharadwaj. Madeleine Stowe, Alan Rickman. Among the oddest of early '90s films: a two-character drama about the political interrogation of an allegedly subversive children's author by one of a totalitarian society's finest. Like a bad play that never went beyond workshop status, though no one can accuse the filmmakers of taking the easy way out. Well performed, under the circumstances. Coproduced by Ron Howard! [R] ▼

Close to Eden (1992-Russian) C-106m.  D: Nikita Mikhalkov. Badema, Byaertu, Vladimir Gostukhin, Babushka, Larissa Kuznetsova, Jon Bochinski, Bao Yongyan. Russian truckdriver accidentally comes into the lives of a Mongol family, adroitly raising the question of who's "civilized" and who isn't. Beautifully filmed in the Mongolian steppe region of inner China by the acclaimed director of DARK EYES. Worth seeing. ▼

Close to My Heart (1951) 90m.  D: William Keighley. Ray Milland, Gene Tierney, Fay Bainter, Howard St. John. Superior soaper; Tierney attaches herself to waif in Bainter's orphanage, but husband Milland won't allow adoption until child's background is traced. ●

Close Your Eyes (2003-British) C-103m.

 D: Nick Willing. Goran Visnjic, Shirley Henderson, Miranda Otto, Paddy Considine, Claire Rushbrook, Fiona Shaw, Corin Redgrave, Sophie Stuckey. Scotland Yard detective Henderson draws hypnotherapist Visnjic into a troubling case involving a serial killer and a little girl who's been traumatized since she was held captive by him. Mixing occult elements with a whodunit, this original, genuinely creepy thriller stays on track right to the end. Based on the novel Doctor Sleep by Madison Smartt Bell. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Cloud Dancer (1980) C-108m. ½ D: Barry Brown. David Carradine, Jennifer O'Neill, Joseph Bottoms, Colleen Camp, Albert Salmi, Salome Jens, Nina Van Pallandt. Uneven tale of aerobic-obsessed Carradine and his relationship with O'Neill. Nice—if too many—flying sequences, hokey melodramatics. Filmed in 1978. [PG] ▼

Clouded Yellow, The (1950-British) 85m. ½ D: Ralph Thomas. Jean Simmons, Trevor Howard, Sonia Dresdel, Barry Jones, Kenneth More, Geoffrey Keen, Andre Morell, Maxwell Reed. Moderately entertaining psychological drama/mystery/chase film in which ex-secret serviceman Howard takes a job cataloguing butterflies, and becomes involved with a strange, fragile young girl (Simmons)—and murder. ▼

Cloverfield (2008) C-85m.  D: Matt Reeves. Lizzy Caplan, Jessica Lucas, T. J. Miller, Michael Stahl-David, Mike Vogel, Odette Yustman, Chris Mulkey. A monster invades N.Y.C. and creates incredible havoc. This 1950s B-movie premise is executed 2008-style through the lens of a video camera held by a guy who starts out shooting a friend's farewell party and then gets caught up in "documenting" everything that happens. Runs on pure adrenaline and never lets up, with some good shocks and a formidable creature. Some people find the shaky handheld camerawork difficult to stomach. Coproduced by J. J. Abrams. [PG-13] ●

Clown, The (1953) 91m. ½ D: Robert Z. Leonard. Red Skelton, Tim Considine, Jane Greer, Loring Smith, Philip Ober. Sentimental remake of THE CHAMP about a washed-up, self-destructive comic with a devoted son who looks out for him. Skelton's not bad in rare dramatic role; Considine is so good he overcomes some of the hokiness of script. Charles Bronson has a bit role in dice game scene. ▼

Clowns, The (1971-Italian) C-90m. ½ D: Federico Fellini. Fellini's homage to circus clowns is itself a clownish spoof of documentaries, a funny, fully entertaining piece of fluff from this great director, even making fun of himself. Made for Italian TV. [G] ▼

Club, The (1980-Australian) C-99m.  D: Bruce Beresford. Jack Thompson, Graham Kennedy, Frank Wilson, Harold Hopkins, John Howard. Thompson is excellent as a football coach in this searing drama about off-the-field politics in a football club. Script by David Williamson, based on his play. Aka PLAYERS. Panavision. ▼

Club Extinction (1990-German-Italian-French) C-112m.  D: Claude Chabrol. Alan Bates, Jennifer Beals, Jan Niklas, Hans Zischler, Benoit Regent, Peter Fitz, Andrew McCarthy, Wolfgang Preiss, Isolde Barth. A wave of suicides shocks near-future Berlin; police investigator Niklas begins to suspect involvement of Beals, spokesperson for an Edenlike resort, who's linked to media baron Dr. Marsfeldt (Bates). Chabrol's attempt at updating Dr. Mabuse (film credits Norbert Jacques' original novel, Mabuse der Spieler) misfires; Bates is miscast, and film lacks any thematic resonances. Still, an interesting curiosity. European title: DR. M. Shot in English. [R] ▼

Clubland (1999) C-94m.  D: Mary Lambert. Jimmy Tuckett, Lori Petty, Brad Hunt, Heather Stephens, Rodney Eastman, Buddy Quaid, Terence Trent D'Arby, Alexis Arquette, Steven Tyler. Young man and his buddies are determined to make it big in the music world by performing at a trendy club on L.A.'s Sunset Strip, but they have to deal with sleazy promoters and personality problems within the band. Contemporary music and trappings can't disguise, or overcome, a soggy story that might have been made as a 1930s B movie. Written by successful music producer Glen Ballard. [R] ▼

Clubland SEE: Introducing the Dwights

Club Life (1985) C-92m. ½ D: Norman Thaddeus Vane. Tony Curtis, Tom Parsekian, Dee Wallace, Michael Parks, Jamie Barrett, Ron Kuhlman, Yana Nirvana, Pat Ast. Hunk Parsekian arrives in Hollywood with stars in his eyes, hoping for a movie career; instead, he finds himself toiling as a bouncer in Curtis' bar. Nicely stylized and acted (if all-too-familiar) tale of Tinseltown decadence. How could you not like a film in which Ast appears as a lesbian bar owner named Butch? Vane also produced and scripted. ▼

Club Paradise (1986) C-104m.  D: Harold Ramis. Robin Williams, Peter O'Toole, Rick Moranis, Jimmy Cliff, Twiggy, Adolph Caesar, Eugene Levy, Joanna Cassidy, Andrea Martin, Robin Duke, Mary Gross, Simon Jones, Carey Lowell. Pleasant cast in pleasant surroundings, lacking only a script and a few more laughs. Williams plays Chicago fireman who retires to West Indian island, goes halfies with native Cliff on turning ramshackle beachfront property into vacation resort. Writers even try to shoehorn a "serious" subplot about exploitation of the natives into the proceedings! Best of all is Cliff's almost nonstop music; his performance isn't bad, either. [PG-13] ▼

Clue (1985) C-87m. ½ D: Jonathan Lynn. Eileen Brennan, Tim Curry, Madeline Kahn, Christopher Lloyd, Michael McKean, Martin Mull, Lesley Ann Warren, Colleen Camp, Lee Ving, Bill Henderson, Howard Hesseman. Silly comic whodunit based on the popular board game of the same name with all the familiar characters (Mrs. Peacock, Colonel Mustard, Miss Scarlet, et al.) gathered for a murderous night in a Victorian mansion. Everyone tries very hard—too hard, since the script, by first-time feature director Lynn, is so slim; addle-brained Brennan and puckish butler Curry come off best. When this played theatrically, audiences saw one of three alternate endings. Video has all three in a row to total 96m. [PG] ▼

Clueless (1995) C-97m.  D: Amy Heckerling. Alicia Silverstone, Stacey Dash, Brittany Murphy, Paul Rudd, Donald Faison, Breckin Meyer, Jeremy Sisto, Justin Walker, Elisa Donovan, Dan Hedaya, Wallace Shawn, Twink Caplan, Julie Brown. Sharp, funny, original take on Beverly Hills high school teens of the '90s, by the director of FAST TIMES AT RIDGEMONT HIGH (and based—believe it or not—on Jane Austen's Emma). Silverstone is perfect as Cher, who with her best friend Dionne—they're both named after famous pop singers—knows everything about being gorgeous, popular, and always in vogue. This laugh-out-loud satire is never mean, which is a big part of its charm; it also introduces wonderfully funny vernacular, which we won't spoil by reciting here. As if! Heckerling also scripted. Later a TV series. [PG-13] ▼

Cluny Brown (1946) 100m. ½ D: Ernst Lubitsch. Charles Boyer, Jennifer Jones, Peter Lawford, Helen Walker, Reginald Gardiner, C. Aubrey Smith, Reginald Owen, Richard Haydn, Sara Allgood, Ernest Cossart, Una O'Connor, Florence Bates, Christopher Severn. Delightful comedy which charts the evolving relationship between orphan Jones and penniless Czech refugee professor Boyer in pre-WW2 England. Takes hilarious pot-shots at the British class system, with the help of a sterling cast of character actors. Screenplay by Samuel Hoffenstein and Elizabeth Reinhardt, from Margery Sharp's novel.

C'mon, Let's Live a Little (1967) C-85m. BOMB D: David Butler. Bobby Vee, Jackie De Shannon, Eddie Hodges, John Ireland, Jr., Suzie Kaye, Bo Belinsky, Patsy Kelly, Kim Carnes. Folk singer Vee enrolls in college, romances De Shannon, is manipulated by student radical Ireland. Perfectly awful. Techniscope.

Coach (1978) C-100m.  D: Bud Townsend. Cathy Lee Crosby, Michael Biehn, Keenan Wynn, Steve Nevil, Channing Clarkson, Sydney Wicks. Olympic gold medal winner Crosby is accidentally hired as a high school basketball coach for boys. Exploitation film that turns out disappointingly tame and predictable. [PG]▼●

Coach Carter (2005) C-137m. ½ D: Thomas Carter. Samuel L. Jackson, Rob Brown, Robert Richardson, Rick Gonzalez, Nana Gbewonyo, Antwon Tanner, Channing Tatum, Ashanti, Texas Battle, Denise Dowse, Vincent Laresca, Sidney Faison, Debbi Morgan, Ray Baker, Marc McClure. New high school basketball coach in a working-class California town is determined to teach his rowdy players discipline and respect. Even when they start winning, he pushes them further, insisting that they improve their grades to earn the title "student athletes" and win a chance of going on to college. A few climaxes too many are the main debit in this inspirational saga, with Jackson a perfect choice to play the real-life Ken Carter. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Coal Miner's Daughter (1980) C-125m. ½ D: Michael Apted. Sissy Spacek, Tommy Lee Jones, Beverly D'Angelo, Levon Helm, Phyllis Boyens, Ernest Tubb. Rags-to-riches story of country singer Loretta Lynn is among the best musical bios ever made, though final quarter does slide over some "down side" details. Spacek won well-deserved Oscar (and did her own singing), but Jones, D'Angelo, and Helm (drummer for The Band) are just as good. Screenplay by Tom Rickman. [PG]▼●

Coast of Skeletons (1964-British) C-91m.  D: Robert Lynn. Richard Todd, Dale Robertson, Heinz Drache, Marianne Koch, Elga Andersen, Derek Nimmo. Edgar Wallace's Sanders of the River is basis for largely rewritten tale of ex-officer hired to investigate scuttling of American tycoon's African diamond operation. Todd repeats role he played in SANDERS (DEATH DRUMS ALONG THE RIVER). Techniscope.

Cobb (1994) C-128m. ½ D: Ron Shelton. Tommy Lee Jones, Robert Wuhl, Lolita Davidovich, Lou Myers, Stephen Mendillo, William Utay, J. Kenneth Campbell. Portrait of Ty Cobb—widely regarded as the greatest baseball player of all time—as an old, eccentric, embittered man, determined to tell his sanitized life story to sportswriter Al Stump (Wuhl). Perhaps a Hollywood first: a biopic that reveals its subject as the meanest sonofabitch who ever lived, with no redeeming qualities whatever. Fascinating for a while, but gets redundant. Worth seeing for Jones' commanding performance. Panavision. [R]▼●

Cobra (1986) C-87m. ½ D: George P. Cosmatos. Sylvester Stallone, Brigitte Nielsen, Remi Santoni, Andrew Robinson, Lee Garlington, John Herzfeld, Art Le Fleur, Brian Thompson, David Rasche, Val Avery. Once more, Stallone wraps himself in the American flag and fights for the greater glory of mankind by going after criminal vermin; this time, he's a cop. Typical low-grade action fare, where all the other cops are stubborn dummies, and all the bad guys are repellent creeps. Some good action sequences. [R]▼●

Cobra Woman (1944) C-70m.  D: Robert Siodmak. Maria Montez, Jon Hall, Sabu, Lon Chaney (Jr.), Edgar Barrier, Lois Collier, Mary Nash. Camp classic, with island beauty Montez, set to wed Hall, finding herself kidnapped and discovering she has an evil twin sister. Sabu plays Hall's faithful (and ever-so-goofy) companion Kado. Co-scripted by Richard Brooks!

Cobweb, The (1955) C-124m.  D: Vincente Minnelli. Richard Widmark, Lauren Bacall, Gloria Grahame, Charles Boyer, Lillian Gish, John Kerr, Susan Strasberg, Oscar Levant, Tommy Rettig, Paul Stewart, Adele Jergens. Good cast in static soaper detailing the goings-on in psychiatric clinic headed by Dr. Widmark; of course, some of the personnel are more unbalanced than the patients. Scripted by John Paxton, produced by John Houseman. Film debuts of Strasberg and Kerr. CinemaScope.●

Coca-Cola Kid, The (1985-Australian) C-94m. ½ D: Dusan Makavejev. Eric Roberts, Greta Scacchi, Bill Kerr, Chris Haywood, Kris McQuade, Max Gillies, Rebecca Smart. Droll, sometimes wacky comedy about a hotshot Coca-Cola sales exec sent on mission to Australia, leading to various misadventures. Roberts' performance strictly a matter of taste, as is this off-beat, mildly satiric film. Sexy Scacchi is the best thing in the picture. [R]▼●

Cocaine Cowboys (1979) C-87m. BOMB D: Ulli Lommel. Jack Palance, Tom Sullivan, Andy Warhol, Suzanna Love, Pete

Huckabee. Dreadful film about rock group that supports itself "between engagements" by dope smuggling; filmed at Warhol's Montauk home, where this film should have remained. [R]▼

Cocaine Cowboys (2006) C-118m.  D: Billy Corben. Pumped-up, gruesome documentary exposé about the Colombian drug lords' invasion of Miami in the 1970s-'80s, and how they turned it into the blood money capital of the U.S., or so the movie asserts. Like a prequel to SCARFACE (1983), but built of chilling, often contradictory interviews with charismatic criminals and determined police, it details the smugglers' elaborate strategies as they try to outsmart the DEA and outshoot rival Cuban gangs. Too flashy and too long, but graphically persuasive. Followed by a DVD sequel. Digital Video/Super 35. [R]■

Cockeyed Cavaliers (1934) 72m.  D: Mark Sandrich. Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey, Thelma Todd, Dorothy Lee, Noah Beery, Franklin Pangborn. Colorful costume comedy with Wheeler & Woolsey trying to crash into society by posing as the King's physicians; lively mix of slapstick, puns, and music. ▼

Cockfighter (1974) C-83m.  D: Monte Hellman. Warren Oates, Richard B. Shull, Harry Dean Stanton, Troy Donahue, Millie Perkins. Offbeat, violent but interesting drama of a man who trains fighting cocks in Georgia. Oates is silent until the very end, his thoughts serving as narration. Filmed in Georgia. Aka BORN TO KILL, WILD DRIFTER, GAMBLIN' MAN. [R]▼

Cockleshell Heroes, The (1955-British) C-97m.  D: Jose Ferrer. Jose Ferrer, Trevor Howard, Dora Bryan, Anthony Newley, Victor Maddern, Christopher Lee. Special task force is trained in the use of kayaks for WW2 mission. Film never gels. CinemaScope.

Cocktail (1988) C-100m.  D: Roger Donaldson. Tom Cruise, Bryan Brown, Elisabeth Shue, Lisa Banes, Laurence Luckinbill, Kelly Lynch, Gina Gershon, Ron Dean, Paul Benedict. Young hotshot comes to N.Y.C. to make his fortune, but winds up becoming a "hot" bartender instead, under the tutelage of self-styled barman/philosopher Brown. Cruise flashes his smile, Shue is cute, but that can't redeem the junior-high-school-level dramatics. [R]▼●●

Cocktail Molotov (1980-French) C-100m.  D: Diane Kurys. Elise Caron, Philippe Lebas, François Cluzet, Genevieve Fontanel, Henri Garcin, Michel Puterflam. Pleasant follow-up to PEPPERMINT SODA, with a trio of teenagers wandering through Europe at the time of the '68 student rebellion. Caron, Lebas, and Cluzet are attractive as the youngsters testing their wings. [R]▼

Cocoanuts, The (1929) 96m.  D: Joseph Santley, Robert Florey. Groucho,

Harpo, Chico, Zeppo Marx, Kay Francis, Oscar Shaw, Mary Eaton, Margaret Dumont. The Marxes' first film suffers from stacy filming and stale musical subplot, but when the brothers have scenes to themselves it's a riot; highlights include hilarious auction, classic "viaduct" routine. ▼●●

Cocoon (1985) C-117m. ½ D: Ron Howard. Don Ameche, Wilford Brimley, Hume Cronyn, Brian Dennehy, Jack Gilford, Steve Guttenberg, Maureen Stapleton, Jessica Tandy, Gwen Verdon, Herta Ware, Tahnee Welch, Barret Oliver, Linda Harrison, Tyrone Power, Jr., Clint Howard. Florida senior citizens discover an actual fountain of youth in this warm, humanistic fantasy-drama, marred only by derivative and too literal science-fiction finale. What a pleasure to watch this cast at work! (Ameche won Best Supporting Actor Oscar.) Screenplay by Tom Benedek, from David Saperstein's novel; another impressive directing job by Howard. Followed by a sequel. [PG-13]▼●●

Cocoon: The Return (1988) C-116m.  D: Daniel Petrie. Don Ameche, Jack Gilford, Gwen Verdon, Maureen Stapleton, Steve Guttenberg, Hume Cronyn, Jessica Tandy, Wilford Brimley, Elaine Strich, Tahnee Welch, Courteney Cox. Disappointing follow-up in which the elderly earthlings return for a visit to their home planet. Most of the magic and warmth of the original are missing; while it's always a joy to see Ameche and company on-screen, the actors are unable to transcend their material. [PG]▼●●

Code, The (1968) SEE: Farewell, Friend Code, The (2002-French) C-106m.  D: Manuel Boursinac. Samuel Le Bihan, Samy Naceri, Clotilde Courau, Marie Guillard, Michel Duchaussoy, Philippe Nahon, Francis Renaud. Routine, brutal gangster drama in which an ex-con who wants to leave his criminal life behind is sucked back in one more time. All the usual clichés of this film genre are trotted out with a French accent. Film never finds a tone that makes it any different from dozens of other GODFATHER wannabes. Aka LE MENTALE. Widescreen. [R]▼

Code 46 (2003-British) C-92m.  D: Michael Winterbottom. Tim Robbins, Samantha Morton, Jeanne Balibar, Om Puri, Essie Davis, Shelley King, David Fahm, Togo Igawa. In the near future, government investigator Robbins is sent to Shanghai to uncover the source of forged identity passes, without which people of the world are locked outside the gates of major cities to fend for themselves amidst the mob. But the normally businesslike agent becomes emotionally entangled with the woman who is his chief suspect. Intriguing idea is terminally aloof and gives us no one to care about. Super 35. [R]■

Code Name: Emerald (1985) C-95m.  D: Jonathan Sanger. Ed Harris, Max von

Sydow, Horst Buchholz, Helmut Berger, Cyrielle Claire, Eric Stoltz, Patrick Stewart, Graham Crowden. Old-fashioned WW2 espionage tale has Harris as a double agent in plot to capture an Overlord (person with information on the plans for the D-Day invasion). Credibility is undermined by miscasting of Stoltz, who looks way too young to be an intelligence lieutenant and the target Overlord. [PG] ▼●

Code Name: The Cleaner (2007) C-84m. *½ D: Les Mayfield. Cedric the Entertainer, Nicollette Sheridan, Lucy Liu, Mark Dacascos, Will Patton, Callum Keith Rennie, Niecy Nash, DeRay Davis. Call it THE BORED IDENTITY. Flat, witless enterprise casts Cedric as a janitor who is suddenly swept up into the world of spies and murder after he is hit in the head and thought to be an undercover agent caught up in a big government conspiracy. Given the kind of lame script Allen and Rossi might have made in the '60s, Cedric walks through the film like a guy lost in an old TV variety show. Liu and Sheridan provide eye candy. [PG-13] ●

Code Name: Trixie SEE: Crazies, The Codename: Wildgeese (1986-German-Italian) C-101m.  D: Anthony M. Dawson (Antonio Margheriti). Lewis Collins, Lee Van Cleef, Ernest Borgnine, Klaus Kinski, Mimsy Farmer. Action footage redeems this comball commando film of Collins and mercenary troops sent to wipe out a Far East drug stronghold. No relation to THE WILD GEESE or its sequel. Widescreen. [R] ▼

Code of Silence (1985) C-101m. ½ D: Andy Davis. Chuck Norris, Henry Silva, Bert Remsen, Molly Hagan, Joseph Guzaldo, Mike Genovese, Dennis Farina. Norris plays a loner on Chicago police force who makes his own rules in dealing with violent gang war. In other words, it's "Dirty Chuckie." Formula action film, and not bad. [R] ▼●●

Code of the Secret Service (1939) 58m. *½ D: Noel Smith. Ronald Reagan, Rosella Towne, Eddie Foy, Jr., Moroni Olsen, Edgar Edwards, Jack Mower. Limp actioner with Lt. Brass Bancroft (Reagan) tangling with counterfeiters in Mexico. Second of a series, following SECRET SERVICE OF THE AIR.

Code Unknown (2000-French-German-Roumanian) C-117m. ½ D: Michael Haneke. Juliette Binoche, Thierry Neuvic, Alexandre Hamidi, Luminita Gheorghiu, Ona Lu Yenke, Josef Bierbichler. Challenging, fascinating tale involving several characters, most of them strangers, whose lives become briefly intertwined on a Paris street corner. They include an actress (Binoche), the discontented brother of her photojournalist lover, a young teacher of African descent, and a Roumanian illegal immigrant. This trenchant look at racism and emotional disconnection also offers food for thought about the nature of cinematic reality. ▼●

Coeurs (2006-French-Italian) C-123m.  D: Alain Resnais. Sabine Azéma, Lambert Wilson, André Dussollier, Pierre Arditi, Laura Morante, Isabelle Carré. In snowy Paris, various characters who are loosely connected go about their lives and look for love in all the wrong places. Meditative exploration of the human condition astutely scrutinizes the way people present themselves to others. What are they looking for? What will they settle for? How well do they know the people around them, the people who pass through their lives? Aka PRIVATE FEARS IN PUBLIC PLACES, the title of the Alan Ayckbourn play on which this is based. Panavision. ●

Coffee and Cigarettes (2004) 96m. ½ D: Jim Jarmusch. Roberto Benigni, Steven Wright, Joie Lee, Cinqé Lee, Steve Buscemi, Iggy Pop, Tom Waits, Cate Blanchett, Meg White, Jack White, Alfred Molina, Steve Coogan, Bill Murray, GZA, RZA, Taylor Mead. Seriocomic anthology of vignettes, filmed as a series of short films beginning in 1986, about actors and musicians partaking in the titular addictive substances. Quintessentially Jarmuschesque in its slow pacing and seemingly random chitchat about everything from tea to Tesla coils. Borderline boring at first, but improves greatly in its second half with amusing sketches involving Blanchett (as herself and her jealous cousin), and Murray meeting up with rappers GZA and RZA from the Wu-Tang Clan. Funniest bit: Brit thespians Molina and Coogan taking a very Hollywood meeting. [R] ▼●

Cohen & Tate (1989) C-85m. *½ D: Eric Red. Roy Scheider, Adam Baldwin, Harley Cross, Cooper Huckabee. In this grim variation on O. Henry's "Ransom of Red Chief," Scheider and Baldwin, the hit men of the title, murderously kidnap young Cross, sole witness to a gang killing; story takes place almost entirely in their car. Clumsy irony, theatrical style, leaden illogic sink the film early. Scheider tries hard. [R] ▼●●

Cold Around the Heart (1997) C-96m.  D: John Ridley. David Caruso, Kelly Lynch, Stacey Dash, Chris Noth, John Spencer, Pruitt Taylor-Vince, Richard Kind. Barely released and highly derivative thieves-fall-out crime drama. Grungy-looking Caruso is out for revenge against ruthless femme fatale Lynch when she double-crosses him after a jewel heist. Decent cast helps, but it's nothing you haven't seen done better about a million times before. Super 35. [R] ▼●

falo, Robert Loggia, Josh Charles. Black comedy about a nerdy young bookkeeper for the mob who finally gets a chance to become a full-fledged hit man—and adapts to the job better than he ever dreamed. Love soon complicates the picture, and also bogs down what could have been a clever, if twisted, story. This “hit” is a miss. Look for Michael J. Fox (who coproduced the film) in a cameo. [R]▼

Cold Comfort Farm (1995-British) C-95m.  D: John Schlesinger. Eileen Atkins, Kate Beckinsale, Sheila Burrell, Stephen Fry, Freddie Jones, Joanna Lumley, Ian McKellen, Miriam Margolyes, Rufus Sewell. Deliciously eccentric comedy about a well-bred young woman who goes to live with distant relatives at their spooky old farm, which is dominated by a dotty grandmother living in the attic. Our heroine then implacably sets about reordering their lives! Good fun, based on a 1932 novel by Stella Gibbons. Made for British TV. [PG]▼●

Cold Creek Manor (2003) C-119m.  D: Mike Figgis. Dennis Quaid, Sharon Stone, Stephen Dorff, Juliette Lewis, Kristen Stewart, Ryan Wilson, Dana Eskelson, Christopher Plummer. Something new in thrillers: a story devoid of suspense. Manhattanites Quaid and Stone decide to move out of the city and give their kids a better life. They buy a run-down mansion in a rural, insular community and soon encounter the resentful former owner (Dorff), who lost the house in a foreclosure just before he went to jail for manslaughter. Obvious at every turn, and overlong to boot; the supposed scare moments are pallid at best. [R]▼

Cold Feet (1984) C-96m.  D: Bruce van Dusen. Griffin Dunne, Marissa Chibas, Blanche Baker, Mark Cronogue, Joseph Leon, Marcia Jean Kurtz. A couple of chuckles are not enough to save this sluggish comedy about the courtship of Dunne and Chibas, who’ve been unlucky in love before. Baker steals the film as Dunne’s flaky ex-wife. [PG]▼

Cold Feet (1989) C-94m. *½ D: Robert Dornhelm. Keith Carradine, Sally Kirkland, Tom Waits, Rip Torn, Bill Pullman, Kathleen York, Vincent Schiavelli. Carradine and Waits (the latter near-psychotic) squabble for hundreds of miles over a horse; marriage-hungry Kirkland is the flake who rounds out the threesome. Reminiscent in tone of coscripter Thomas McGuane’s RANCHO DELUXE (which pops up on a theater marquee here)—but without the laughs; RANCHO’S Jeff Bridges is unbilled as a smalltown bartender. [R]▼●

Cold Fever (1995-U.S.-Iceland) C-82m.  D: Fridrik Thor Fridriksson. Masatoshi Nagase, Lili Taylor, Fisher Stevens, Gisli Halldorsson, Laura Hughes, Seijun Suzuki. Amiable, Jarmusch-like comic road movie that charts the adventures of Atsushi (Nagase), a Japanese businessman who decides to go to Iceland and trek to the site where his parents died, so their souls can rest in peace. In Iceland, there is plenty of snow, ice, and cold, and Atsushi is most definitely a stranger in a strange land. Coscripted by the director and Jim Stark, the producer of several Jim Jarmusch films. Panavision.▼

Cold Heaven (1992) C-105m.  D: Nicolas Roeg. Theresa Russell, Mark Harmon, James Russo, Talia Shire, Will Patton, Richard Bradford. Adulterous wife (Russell) is on the verge of telling her husband (Harmon) that she is dumping him when he is killed in a gruesome vacation boating accident—or is he? Russell’s guilt and paranoia bring on a host of ponderous sturm und drang encounters and experiences. Lifeless and confusing. [R]▼●

Colditz Story, The (1957-British) 97m. ½ D: Guy Hamilton. John Mills, Eric Portman, Christopher Rhodes, Lionel Jeffries, Bryan Forbes, Ian Carmichael, Richard Wattis, Anton Diffring, Theodore Bikel. Super-solid POW saga set in Germany’s Colditz Castle, supposedly “escape-proof” but challenged by various European prisoners, and a hardy British group in particular.▼

Cold Mountain (2003-British-Romanian-Italian-U.S.) C-155m. ½ D: Anthony Minghella. Jude Law, Nicole Kidman, Renée Zellweger, Eileen Atkins, Brendan Gleeson, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Natalie Portman, Giovanni Ribisi, Donald Sutherland, Ray Winstone, Kathy Baker, James Gammon, Charlie Hunnam, Jack White, Ethan Suplee, Jena Malone, Melora Walters, Lucas Black, Taryn Manning, Tom Aldredge, James Rebhorn, Cillian Murphy. A shy young man and a minister’s daughter make a brief but passionate connection before he marches off to fight for the Confederacy in the Civil War . . . and the thought of each other sustains them through the hell they both endure. Minghella’s adaptation of the Charles Frazier best-seller captures both the grimness of battle and the starkness of life on the home front in the South. Meticulously crafted by such outstanding talents as cinematographer John Seale, film editor Walter Murch, production designer Dante Ferretti, costume designer Ann Roth (with Carlo Poggioli), and composer Gabriel Yared, among others, with first-rate performances all around. Oscar winner for Best Supporting Actress (Zellweger). Super 35. [R]▼

Cold Steel (1987) C-90m.  D: Dorothy Ann Puzo. Brad Davis, Sharon Stone, Jonathan Banks, Jay Acovone, Adam Ant, Eddie Egan. Standard actioner about cop Davis, his father murdered by disfigured psychotic Banks; he seeks revenge, natch. [R]▼

has been converted into a predictable action movie with Bronson as American expatriate in France forced into the drug trade by crime czar Mason. [PG]▼●●

Cold Turkey (1971) C-99m.  D: Norman Lear. Dick Van Dyke, Pippa Scott, Tom Poston, Bob Newhart, Vincent Gardenia, Barnard Hughes, Edward Everett Horton, Jean Stapleton, Graham Jarvis. Bittersweet satire of contemporary America; minister Van Dyke leads township crusade to stop smoking, in order to win mammoth contest. Trenchant finale doesn't entirely gibe with rest of film; still worthwhile, with Bob & Ray hilarious as newscasters. Fine score by Randy Newman; Horton's last film. Made in 1969. [PG]▼●●

Cold Wind in August, A (1961) 80m. ½ D: Alexander Singer. Lola Albright, Scott Marlowe, Herschel Bernardi, Joe De Santis. Offbeat account of tenement boy Marlowe having affair with stripper Albright; frank, flavorful tale.

Collateral (2004) C-120m. ½ D: Michael Mann. Tom Cruise, Jamie Foxx, Jada Pinkett Smith, Mark Ruffalo, Peter Berg, Bruce McGill, Javier Bardem, Irma P. Hall, Barry Shabaka Henley, Bodhi Elfman, Debi Mazar, Richard T. Jones, Jason Statham. L.A. cab driver Foxx, who dreams of running his own business, picks up the wrong passenger (visiting hit man Cruise) and becomes embroiled in a long night of mayhem. Crisp action thriller, well shot in a digital format on L.A. locations, builds interesting characterizations, then tosses credibility down the drain during the climax. Still quite watchable, with a strong supporting cast backing up the stars. Panavision/HD 24P Widescreen. [R] ▼●

Collateral Damage (2002) C-109m.  D: Andrew Davis. Arnold Schwarzenegger, Elias Koteas, Francesca Neri, Cliff Curtis, Miguel Sandoval, Harry Lennix, John Leguizamo, John Turturro, Lindsay Frost. L.A. fireman sees his wife and son killed in a bombing—and vows revenge on the terrorist who made it happen, even if it means stalking him in the jungles of Colombia. No worse than any number of other Schwarzenegger action vehicles, with a high body count, a superhuman hero, and a couple of villains who simply refuse to die . . . but we've seen it all before, done better. Anachronistic (to say the least) in the wake of the Sept. 11, 2001, attack on America. [R]▼●

Collector, The (1965) C-119m.  D: William Wyler. Terence Stamp, Samantha Eggar, Maurice Dallimore, Mona Washbourne. Disturbing story of man who collects more than just butterflies, which is where Eggar fits in. Chilling, if not altogether believable. Based on the novel by John Fowles. ▼●●

College (1927) 65m.  D: James W. Horne. Buster Keaton, Anne Cornwall, Flora Bramley, Harold Goodwin, Grant Withers, Snitz Edwards. Highbrow student Buster has to become an all-star athlete to please his girlfriend; episodic gag structure makes this less impressive than other Keaton features, but it's awfully funny. ▼●●

College (2008) C-94m. BOMB D: Deb Hagan. Drake Bell, Andrew Caldwell, Andree Moss, Carolyn Moss, Kevin Covais, Ryan Pinkston, Haley Bennett, Nick Zano. Stop us if you've heard this one before: three high school seniors (a fat one, a geeky one, a hunky one) take a weekend trip to check out a university campus and get indoctrinated by a bunch of mean fraternity brothers. Chock-full of typical adolescent behavior, gross-out gags, sex, and nudity; you won't need a college degree to smell this turkey a mile away. Barely released to theaters. [R]●

College Confidential (1960) 91m. *½ D: Albert Zugsmith. Steve Allen, Jayne Meadows, Marnie Van Doren, Walter Winchell, Herbert Marshall, Cathy Crosby, Conway Twitty, Ziva Rodann, Mickey Shaughnessy. Idiocy involving sociology professor Allen and what happens when he surveys the sexual activities of his students. "Special Guests" include Rocky Marciano, Sheila Graham, Pamela Mason, and Earl Wilson.

College Road Trip (2008) C-83m. ½ D: Roger Kumble. Martin Lawrence, Raven-Symoné, Donny Osmond, Brenda Song, Margo Harshman, Lucas Grabeel, Will Sasso, Josh Meyers, Molly Ephraim, Kym E. Whitley, Eshaya Draper, Armetia Walker. Officer Porter (Lawrence) has planned out every single part of his daughter's life, even deciding what college she'll attend close to home. When she informs him that she'd like to apply to schools that are farther away, he organizes a road trip in hopes of changing her mind. Intertwining remarkable amounts of cheesiness with good-natured comedy, this film goes for all the obvious gags but suits the family audience for whom it was made. Super 35. [G]●

Colonel Chabert (1994-French) C-110m. ½ D: Yves Angelou. Gérard Depardieu, Fanny Ardant, André Dussollier, Fabrice Luchini, Daniel Prevost, Olivier Saladin,

Claude Rich, Albert Delpy, Romane Bohringer, Julie Depardieu. Respectable costumer, adapted from a Balzac novel, about the belated return of an officer supposedly killed in the Napoleonic wars and the effect it has on his so-called widow (who's using his inheritance to boost husband no. 2's career). Well acted and well mounted, but the laundry put in extra starch; debuting director Angelou is the esteemed cinematographer of TOUT LES MATINS DU MONDE and UN COEUR EN HIVER. Julie Depardieu is the actor's daughter. ▼

Colonel Redl (1985-German-Hungarian-Austrian) C-149m.  D: Istvan Szabo. Klaus Maria Brandauer, Armin Muller-Stahl, Gudrun Landgrebe, Jan Niklas, Hans-Christian Blech, Laszlo Mensaros, Andras Balint. Complex, fascinating account—inspired by John Osborne's A Patriot for Me as well as by actual historical evidence—of an ambitious, homosexual career soldier, whose ordinary family background does not hinder his rise to a position of high military rank in the Austro-Hungarian Empire prior to WW1. An incisive examination of the politics of power, highlighted by a superb Brandauer performance. Second in a trilogy, after MEPHISTO and followed by HANUSSEN. [R]▼●●

Colorado Territory (1949) 94m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Joel McCrea, Virginia Mayo, Dorothy Malone, Henry Hull, John Archer, Frank Puglia. Color Me Dead (1969-U.S.-Australian) C-97m.  D: Eddie Davis. Tom Tryon, Carolyn Jones, Rick Jason, Patricia Connolly, Tony Ward. Story of a slowly poisoned man spending his last days tracking down his own murderer was done better as D.O.A. in 1950. Aka D.O.A. II. [R]▼

Color Me Kubrick (2007-French-British) C-86m.  D: Brian Cook. John Malkovich, Jim Davidson, Richard E. Grant, Luke Mably, Marc Warren, Terence Rigby, James Dreyfus, Peter Bowles, Ayesha Dharker, Robert Powell, Leslie Phillips, Honor Blackman, William Hootkins, Marisa Berenson, Peter Sallis, Ken Russell. Sardonic wit, fact-based account of Alan Conway (Malkovich, in a richly textured performance), a flamboyantly gay can artist who convinces ambitious wannabes in London that he is Stanley Kubrick, squeezing them for money, sex, and other favors. A lucid portrait of a deeply troubled personality and a rumination on the power of fame. Soundtrack effectively borrows from 2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY and A CLOCKWORK ORANGE; the director and screenwriter (Anthony Frewin) are former Kubrick associates. Luc Besson

coexecutive produced. Full title is COLOR ME KUBRICK: A TRUE...ISH STORY.▶

Color of Money, The (1986) C-119m.  D: Martin Scorsese. Paul Newman, Tom Cruise, Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, Helen Shaver, John Turturro, Bill Cobbs, Robert Agins, Forest Whitaker. Sharply made, nicely textured sequel to THE HUSTLER, with Newman's Fast Eddie Felson finding a younger, greener version of himself in small-time pool hotshot Cruise, whom he decides to promote for another shot at the big time. Hardboiled script by Richard Price, flashy direction by Scorsese, flamboyant camerawork by Michael Ballhaus, and top-notch performances by Cruise and especially Newman make this a must-see... though film's second half is protracted and disappointing, with a hoped-for climax that never occurs. Newman finally picked up an Academy Award for his fine work here. [R]▼●●

Color of Night (1994) C-125m. BOMB D: Richard Rush. Bruce Willis, Jane March, Ruben Blades, Lesley Ann Warren, Scott Bakula, Brad Dourif, Lance Henriksen, Kevin J. O'Connor, Andrew Lowery, Eriq La Salle, Jeff Corey, Kathleen Wilhoite, Shirley Knight. Ludicrous thriller in which weirded-out therapist Willis (whose patient has just committed suicide before his eyes) heads to L.A. for a breather; he immediately finds himself immersed in a murder mystery, and involved with mysterious March. Much-publicized sex scenes aren't very sexy; this garnered hype for the editing of Willis' full frontal nudity to earn an R rating. Also on video in an "R-rated director's cut," with 17m. of extra footage, including more of Bruce-in-the-buff and some sexy scenes with Warren and March. Rush's first feature since THE STUNT MAN (1980). [R]▼●●

A blind eight-year-old Iranian student, who is deeply sensitive to nature, returns to his home in the heights of Northern Iran, where he must cope with a father who considers him a burden. Simple story, beautifully told, with writer-director Majidi eloquently conveying the young boy's harmony with the world around him. [PG]▼●

Color Purple, The (1985) C-152m. ½ D: Steven Spielberg. Danny Glover, Whoopi Goldberg, Margaret Avery, Oprah Winfrey, Willard Pugh, Akosua Busia, Desreta Jackson, Adolph Caesar, Rae Dawn Chong, Dana Ivey, Larry Fishburne. A black girl's life and hard times in the South, spanning some 40 years: a sprawling saga of characters both frustrated and fulfilled, and at the center a Survivor. Spielberg's controversial interpretation of Alice Walker's Pulitzer Prize-winning book will either grab you emotionally (in which case you'll overlook its flaws) or leave you cold.

Masterfully filmed from Menno Meyjes's script, with striking cinematography by Allen Daviau, moving music score by Quincy Jones (who also coproduced). Rich performances include screen debut for Winfrey. (Avery's singing was dubbed, by the way.) Later a Broadway musical. [PG-13] ▼●●

Penn and Duvall are well matched as street cops assigned to gang detail in L.A. Their conflicts and experiences play out against the backdrop of nihilistic gang life in this realistic if unexceptional slice of life. Only serious flaw: unbelievable and unnecessary subplot with female lead Alonso. Hopper's 127m. version, altered by the theatrical distributor, is available on video. [R] ▼●●

Colors Straight Up (1998) C-95m.  D: Michele Ohayon. Heartfelt, powerful documentary about an L.A. inner-city after-school drama program that gives at-risk Black and Latino teens a chance to strut their stuff onstage. Simply and beautifully done, with some truly amazing young subjects at its center. One teacher tells the group they must learn to "function in disaster and finish with style," and they do exactly that. Guaranteed to move you to tears. ▼

Colossus of Rhodes, The (1960-Italian) C-128m. ½ D: Sergio Leone. Rory Calhoun, Lea Massari, Georges Marchal, Conrado Sanmartin, Angel Aranda, Mabel Karr. Big-budget sword-and-sandal spectacular about a slave revolt against the corrupt leaders of ancient Rhodes. Though Calhoun looks mighty uncomfortable in a toga and the dubbing is poor, Leone's directorial debut is notable for some well-staged battle scenes and impressive sets, including the title edifice. SuperTotalscope. ●

Colossus: The Forbin Project (1970) C-100m.  D: Joseph Sargent. Eric Braeden, Susan Clark, Gordon Pinsent, William Schallert. Well-directed suspense thriller. Computer runs amok and uses its superior intelligence to sabotage man at every turn. Chilling and believable. Aka THE FORBIN PROJECT. Panavision. ▼●●

Colt .45 (1950) C-74m. ½ D: Edwin L. Marin. Randolph Scott, Zachary Scott, Ruth Roman, Lloyd Bridges, Chief Thunderclod. The renowned title gun is star of this sometimes action-filled Western. Retitled: THUNDERCLOUD. ●

Coma (1978) C-113m.  D: Michael Crichton. Genevieve Bujold, Michael Douglas, Elizabeth Ashley, Rip Torn, Richard Widmark, Lance LeGault, Lois Chiles. Someone is killing and stealing patients from a big-city hospital, and a woman doctor bucks male superiors to pursue her suspicions. Bujold and Widmark are well-matched adversaries in original suspense that combines best of hospital pictures and mystery thrillers; scripted by director Crichton from Robin Cook's novel. Look for Tom Selleck as Murphy, Ed Harris as a pathology resident. [PG] ▼●●

Comancheros, The (1961) C-107m.  D: Michael Curtiz. John Wayne, Stuart Whitman, Lee Marvin, Ina Balin, Bruce Cabot, Nehemiah Persoff. Well-paced actioner with Duke a Texas Ranger out to bring in gang supplying liquor and firearms to the Comanches. Curtiz' last film. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Comanche Station (1960) C-74m. ½ D: Budd Boetticher. Randolph Scott, Nancy Gates, Claude Akins, Skip Homeier, Richard Rust, Rand Brooks. Scott rescues a woman from Indian capture, then runs into an old nemesis who wants to turn her in himself—for a fat reward. Typically interesting Boetticher/Scott Western, with a Burt Kennedy script. CinemaScope. ▼●

Comanche Territory (1950) C-76m. ½ D: George Sherman. Maureen O'Hara, MacDonald Carey, Will Geer, Charles Drake, Pedro de Cordoba, James Best. So-so Western in which Jim Bowie (Carey) tangles with fiery bar owner O'Hara as he aids the Comanches, whose treaty with the U.S. government is about to expire. ▼

Combination Platter (1993) C-84m.  D: Tony Chan. Jeff Lau, Colleen O'Brien, Lester (Chit-Man) Chan, Colin Mitchell, Kenneth Lu. A young illegal immigrant from Hong Kong (Lau) toils in a Queens, N.Y., Chinese restaurant, and covets U.S. citizenship—but learns that this may mean having to marry an American, the thought of which staggers him. Hong Kong-born director-cowriter Chan, himself an immigrant, knowingly captures the experience of the foreigner in America. This marks the 23-year-old's directing debut. ▼●

Come and Get It (1936) 99m.  D: Howard Hawks, William Wyler. Edward Arnold, Joel McCrea, Frances Farmer, Walter Brennan, Andrea Leeds, Frank Shields, Mady Christians, Mary Nash. Arnold plays a self-made empire-builder who fights his way to the top in Wisconsin lumber business, sacrificing the one love of his life. Farmer has best screen showcase of her career, in dual role, as a saloon entertainer and (years later) her own daughter; Brennan won his first Best Supporting Actor Oscar playing Arnold's simple Swedish pal. Typically plotty, two-generation Edna Ferber saga. Reissued as ROARING TIMBER. ▼●●

Come and See (1985-Russian) C-142m. ½ D: Elem Klimov. Alexei Kravchenko, Olga Mironova, Lubomiras Lauciavicus. Thoroughly mesmerizing chronicle of the initiation of a young teen (impressively played by Kravchenko) into the horror and insanity of war, as the Nazis maraud through northwestern Russia in 1943. An extraordinary film about the need to maintain one's humanity and dignity no matter what the situation. Don't miss this one. ▼

Come Back, Charleston Blue (1972) C-100m.  D: Mark Warren. Raymond St. Jacques, Godfrey Cambridge, Jonelle Allen, Adam Wade, Peter DeAnda. Further adventures of Gravedigger and Coffin on their Harlem police beat. Loads of violence, no comedy; not nearly as good as original, COTTON COMES TO HARLEM. Fine Donny Hathaway score. [PG] ▼

Come Back, Little Sheba (1952) 99m. ½ D: Daniel Mann. Burt Lancaster, Shirley Booth, Terry Moore, Richard Jaeckel, Philip Ober. William Inge play is emotional tour de force for Booth (who won an Oscar recreating her Tony Award-winning stage role) as slowly housewife coping with drunken ex-chiropractor husband (Lancaster) and boarder Moore, whose curiosity about her landlords sets drama in motion. Screenplay by Ketti Frings. ▼

Comebacks, The (2007) C-88m. BOMB D: Tom Brady. David Koechner, Carl Weathers, Melora Hardin, Matthew Lawrence, Brooke Nevin. Lame genre satire takes aim at an easy target—inspirational sports dramas such as RUDY, REMEMBER THE TITANS, etc.—and repeatedly shoots itself in the foot. Slight plot involving a chronically unsuccessful coach (Koechner) and his hapless college football team exists only as an excuse for a fusillade of AIRPLANE!-style allusions to other movies. Really, there's no excuse for this fiasco. Various comics and sports figures appear in cameos. Unrated version runs 107m. [PG-13] ▼

Come Back to the 5 & Dime Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean (1982) C-110m. ½ D: Robert Altman. Sandy Dennis, Cher, Karen Black, Sudie Bond, Kathy Bates, Marta Heflin. Girlfriends hold 20-year reunion of a James Dean fan club they formed when he was filming GIANT in a nearby Texas town; the get-together becomes an occasion for personal and painful revelations. Strong performances, and Altman's lively approach to filming Ed Graczyk's Broadway play, can't completely hide the fact that this is second-rate material. Cher's first film since CHASTITY in 1969. [PG] ▼

Comeback Trail, The (1974) C-80m. *½ D: Harry Hurwitz. Chuck McCann, Buster Crabbe, Robert Staats, Ina Balin, Jara Kahout. Two-bit movie czar McCann stars faded cowboy hero Crabbe in a film, hoping the resulting disaster will salvage his studio. Dismal comedy, with occasional film buff in-jokes, and guest appearances by Henny Youngman, Irwin Corey, Hugh Hefner, Joe Franklin, and Monte Rock III. Never released theatrically.

Come Blow Your Horn (1963) C-112m.  D: Bud Yorkin. Frank Sinatra, Lee J.

Cobb, Molly Picon, Barbara Rush, Jill St. John, Tony Bill. Sinatra is good as a free-swinging bachelor with wall-to-wall girls and a nagging father (Cobb). He also sings the title song, and teaches kid brother (Bill) the ropes. From Neil Simon play. Panavision. ▼

Come Dance With Me! (1959-French) C-91m. ½ D: Michel Boisrond. Brigitte Bardot, Henri Vidal, Dawn Addams, Noel Roquevert, Dario Moreno, Philippe Nicaud, Serge Gainsbourg. Sometimes amusing mystery-comedy with Bardot a pert dentist's wife who plays detective when her husband is suspected of murder. Video title: DO YOU WANT TO DANCE WITH ME? ▼

Comedian (2002) C-81m. ½ D: Christian Charles. Jerry Seinfeld has a camera crew follow him during his return to comedy clubs as he tries to build an all-new act. His craftsmanship and confidence are contrasted with the desperation of an up-and-comer named Orny Adams. Seinfeld talks shop with Chris Rock, Ray Romano, Colin Quinn, Jay Leno, Garry Shandling, and Bill Cosby in this revealing look at the world of stand-up comedy. [R] ▼

Comedians, The (1967) C-148m. ½ D: Peter Glenville. Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton, Alec Guinness, Peter Ustinov, Paul Ford, Lillian Gish, Raymond St. Jacques, Zakes Mokae, Roscoe Lee Browne, Gloria Foster, Georg Stanford Brown, James Earl Jones, Cicely Tyson. Excellent cast in uninspired adaptation of Graham Greene's novel about political intrigue in Haiti, although film is more interesting today, since the departure of Duvalier. Beware 130m. prints. Panavision. ▼

Comedy of Innocence, The (2001-French) C-99m. ½ D: Raoul Ruiz. Isabelle Huppert, Jeanne Balibar, Charles Berling, Edith Scob, Nils Hugon, Laure de Clermont-Tonnerre. How will Huppert respond when, on his birthday, her young son informs her that his mother is actually someone else, a woman whose little boy died two years earlier? Eerie psychological drama draws you in and keeps you guessing, but leaves too many questions unanswered. ▼

Comedy of Power (2006-German-French) C-110m.  D: Claude Chabrol. Isabelle Huppert, François Berléand, Patrick Bruel, Maryline Canto, Thomas Chabrol, Jean-François Balmer, Pierre Vernier. Huppert shines as an obsessive, highly principled investigative magistrate (whose surname, appropriately, is "Killman") who is determined to topple a gaggle of crooked, high-living politicians and corporate executives. At once a subtle, incisive character study, and an exploration of women, men, and power and the pervasiveness of corruption in high places. Loosely based on one such magistrate's real-life investigation of a scandal-ridden French gas company in the 1990s. ▼

Comedy of Terrors, The (1963) C-84m.

*½ D: Jacques Tourneur. Vincent Price, Peter Lorre, Boris Karloff, Basil Rathbone, Joe E. Brown, Joyce Jameson. Medium horror spoof with undertaker Price trying to hasten customers' demise, "helped" by bumbling assistant Lorre. Great cast; Richard Matheson wrote the screenplay. Panavision. ▼●●

Come Early Morning (2006) C-97m. *****

D: Joey Lauren Adams. Ashley Judd, Jeffrey Donovan, Laura Prepon, Diane Ladd, Scott Wilson, Stacy Keach, Pat Corley, Ray McKinnon, Tim Blake Nelson. Judd shines as an established contractor who boozes it up and parties at night until she finally hooks up with a down-home Arkansas guy who sees her as more than a one-night stand. Perfectly cast star knowingly embodies this lost Southern woman. First feature written and directed by actress Adams is independent to its core and filled with character insight. [R]▶

Come Fill the Cup (1951) 113m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. James Cagney, Phyllis Thaxter, Raymond Massey, James Gleason, Gig Young. Cagney is quite restrained as ex-newspaperman seeking to conquer alcoholism. Fine performance by Gleason as helpful ex-drunk and by Young as drunken playboy.

Come Fly With Me (1963) C-109m. ½ D: Henry Levin. Hugh O'Brian, Pamela Tiffin, Dolores Hart, Karl Boehm, Lois Nettleton, Karl Malden. Flighty fluff of three stewardesses trying to catch husbands, becoming involved with three men on a trans-Atlantic flight. Glossy, easy to take. Panavision.

Come Live With Me (1941) 86m.  D: Clarence Brown. James Stewart, Hedy Lamarr, Ian Hunter, Verree Teasdale, Donald Meek, Barton MacLane, Adeline de Walt Reynolds. Charming romantic comedy with starving writer Stewart marrying Lamarr so she won't be deported. Strong supporting cast, with Reynolds fine as Stewart's grandmother.

Come Next Spring (1956) C-92m.  D: R. G. Springsteen. Ann Sheridan, Steve Cochran, Walter Brennan, Sherry Jackson, Richard Eyer, Edgar Buchanan, Sonny Tufts, Mae Clarke, Roscoe Ates, James Best. Charming slice of Americana, set in 1920s Arkansas. Cochran walked out on his wife and kids nine years ago; now he returns, cold sober and determined to make good (and try to make up for his past transgressions). Appealing performances and a nice feel for the material distinguish this modest film, which Cochran also produced.

Come 'n' Get It SEE: Lunch Wagon

Comes a Horseman (1978) C-118m. ½ D: Alan J. Pakula. Jane Fonda, James Caan, Jason Robards, George Grizzard, Richard Farnsworth, Jim Davis, Mark Harmon. Starkly simple Western story (set in 1940s) about rival ranch owners whose roots are in the land. Low-key to the point of catatonia, but offers some beautiful tableaux and moving scenes. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Come See The Paradise (1990) C-138m.

* D: Alan Parker. Dennis Quaid, Tamlyn Tomita, Sab Shimono, Shizuko Hoshi, Stan Egi, Ronald Yamamoto, Akemi Nishino, Naomi Nakano, Brady Tsurutani, Pruitt Taylor Vince. Hotheaded union organizer Quaid falls in love with Tomita in L.A.'s Little Tokyo in the late 1930s; after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, he is separated from his wife and family when they are sent to a Japanese internment camp. Curiously aloof and unmoving story fashioned around one of the bleaker chapters of American history; should have been much stronger. Written by director Parker. [R]▼●●

Come September (1961) C-112m.  D:

Robert Mulligan. Rock Hudson, Gina Lollobrigida, Sandra Dee, Bobby Darin, Walter Slezak, Joel Grey. Frothy comedy about the younger generation (Darin and Dee) vs. the "older" folks (Hudson and Lollobrigida) at an Italian villa. Good fun, with some dated Darin vocals. CinemaScope. ▼▶

Come Spy With Me (1967) C-85m. ½ D:

Marshall Stone. Troy Donahue, Andrea Dromm, Albert Dekker, Mart Hulswit, Valerie Allen, Dan Ferrone. Except for those who want to tell their friends they actually saw a film called COME SPY WITH ME starring Troy Donahue, this secret-agent film about blond Dromm's attempts to solve murders of two Americans in the Caribbean isn't worth anyone's time. Smokey Robinson sings the title song!

Come to the Stable (1949) 94m.  D:

Henry Koster. Loretta Young, Celeste Holm, Hugh Marlowe, Elsa Lanchester, Regis Toomey, Mike Mazurki. Young and Holm register well as French nuns living in New England, seeking aid from a variety of local characters in building a children's dispensary. Warm, sentimental comedy-drama. Story by Clare Boothe Luce. ▼

Comet Over Broadway (1938) 69m. ½ D:

Busby Berkeley. Kay Francis, Ian Hunter, John Litel, Donald Crisp, Minna Gombell, Melville Cooper. Sappy, dated soap opera tells risible story of stage star Francis and the tragedy caused by her burning ambition. Not even a musical number to save it.

Comfort and Joy (1984-British) C-105m.

 D: Bill Forsyth. Bill Paterson, Eleanor David, C. P. Grogan, Alex Norton, Patrick Malahide, Rikki Fulton, Roberto Bernardi. Another quirky comedy from writer-director Forsyth (GREGORY'S GIRL, LOCAL HERO), though this one isn't as potent or consistent. Paterson plays a popular Scottish disc jockey who's going through some difficult changes in his personal life, then finds himself caught between two underworld families fighting for territorial rights to ice-cream vans! Entertaining and offbeat, though never as on-target as one might like it to be; Pater-son is a delight. [PG]▼

Comfort of Strangers, The (1991-Italian-U.S.) C-105m. *½ D: Paul Schrader. Christopher Walken, Natasha Richardson, Rupert Everett, Helen Mirren. Unmarried couple is befriended by a mysterious local while vacationing in Venice. Shaggy-dog lead-up to an "oh, come on" finale. As murky as canal sewage, offering sharply contrasting male acting styles: Everett is a posturing male mannequin, while Walken is a titan of twitch. Screenplay by Harold Pinter, from Ian McEwan's novel. [R]▼●●

Comic, The (1969) C-94m. ½ D: Carl Reiner. Dick Van Dyke, Michele Lee, Mickey Rooney, Cornel Wilde, Nina Wayne, Pert Kelton, Steve Allen, Carl Reiner, Jeannine Riley. Sincere seriocomic about a silent-movie clown with a destructive ego. Artificial trappings surround truthful portrait (a composite of several real comics) by Van Dyke. Best of all: vivid re-creations of silent comedies. Uneven; of interest mainly to film buffs. [M/PG]▼●●

Comic Book Confidential (1989-U.S.-Canadian) C-90m.  D: Ron Mann. R. Crumb, Will Eisner, Jack Kirby, William M. Gaines, Harvey Kurtzman, Stan Lee, Harvey Pekar, Lynda Barry, Frank Miller. Good introduction to the genuine art to be found in comic books, featuring interviews with many of the top talents of yesterday and today. Marred by too much effort to be "cinematic"; also demonstrates a bias against standard commercial comics.▼●●

Comin At Ya! (1981-Italian) C-91m. BOMB D: Ferdinando Baldi. Tony Anthony, Gene Quintano, Victoria Abril, Ricardo Palacios, Gordon Lewis. 3-D spaghetti Western take-off features rats, bats, and blood, all hugged to death by the camera (and often in slow motion!). No redeeming sense of humor, either. It's films like this that killed 3-D the first time around. Dimensionoscope. [R]▼●

Coming Apart (1969) 110m. *½ D: Milton Moses Ginsberg. Rip Torn, Viveca Lindfors, Megan McCormick, Lois Markle, Sally Kirkland. Fascinatingly bad drama about psychiatrist who sets up concealed movie camera in his apartment to record the messed-up lives of himself and women who visit him. Kirkland's most substantial screen role prior to ANNA in 1987.▼●

Coming Attractions SEE: Loose Shoes

Coming Home (1978) C-127m. ½ D: Hal Ashby. Jane Fonda, Jon Voight, Bruce Dern, Robert Carradine, Robert Ginty, Penelope Milford, David Clennon. Powerful look at the effect of Vietnam war on people at home. Fonda falls in love with paraplegic Voight while her husband (Dern) is overseas. Mature, gripping film, marred only by lapses into melodrama. Academy Awards went to Fonda, Voight, and writers Waldo Salt, Robert C. Jones, and Nancy Dowd. [R]▼●●

Coming-Out Party (1961-British) 100m. ½ D: Ken Annakin. James Robertson Justice, Leslie Phillips, Stanley Baxter, Eric Sykes, Richard Wattis. P.O.W. comedy with prisoner Baxter impersonating lookalike Nazi commandant to help peevish scientist Justice escape camp. Original title: VERY IMPORTANT PERSON.

Coming Out Under Fire (1994) C/B&W-71m.  D: Arthur Dong. Narrated by Salome Jens. A tough ex-Marine, a WAC, a black, a heavily Dixie-toned Southerner, and a N.Y. Jew are among those who recall what it was like to be very, very quietly gay during WW2 and, in the most abjectly humiliating cases, to be mustered out of the service upon detection. A fresh and contemporary documentary despite recalling events that took place half a century earlier; in a clip from one of the era's official army sex education films, 1950s song-and-dance man Keefe Brasselle plays a G.I. with condoms on his mind.▼●

Coming Soon (2000) C-91m. BOMB D: Colette Burson. Tricia Vessey, Gaby Hoffmann, Mia Farrow, Ryan O'Neal, Yasmine Bleeth, Spalding Gray, Peter Bogdanovich, Ashton Kutcher. Seniors in an exclusive N.Y.C. high school go to extremes to achieve orgasms from their less-than-adequate boy-friends. Touted as a female version of AMERICAN PIE; only differences are that this film isn't funny, its characters are despicable, and its script is pointless. [R]▼●

Coming Through (1985-British) C-80m.  D: Peter Barber-Fleming. Kenneth Branagh, Helen Mirren, Alison Steadman, Philip Martin Brown, Norman Rodway. Static tale of young D. H. Lawrence (Branagh), and his relationship with Frieda von Richthofen (Mirren), awkwardly paralleled with present-day story of young man who completely misses the point of Lawrence's writing. Sorely lacking the author's own fire and intensity.▼●

Coming to America (1988) C-116m.  D: John Landis. Eddie Murphy, Arsenio Hall, James Earl Jones, John Amos, Madge Sinclair, Shari Headley, Paul Bates, Allison Dean, Eriq La Salle, Louie Anderson, Calvin Lockhart, Samuel L. Jackson, Cuba Gooding, Jr., Vanessa Bell (Calloway), Frankie Faison, Vondie Curtis Hall. Cute change-of-pace film for Murphy, as the genteel prince of an African royal family who wants to choose his own wife, and decides that he will find her in America. Old-fashioned romantic comedy peppered with director Landis' in-jokes (including an update of TRADING PLACES, in which Murphy starred) and some surprise cameos. Subsequent litigation awarded columnist Art Buchwald with original story credit. [R]▼●●

Coming Up Roses (1986-British) C-93m.

* D: Stephen Bayly. Dafydd Hywel, Iola Gregory, Olive Michael, Mari Emlyn. Whimsical Welsh-language comedy concerns a group of townfolk who band together to save a local cinema by growing mushrooms in the darkness of the empty theatre. Cute, but lacks the wit and sharp ensemble acting of the hilarious British comedies of the 1940s and 1950s. [PG]▼

Comin' Round the Mountain (1951) 77m. ½ D: Charles Lamont. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Dorothy Shay, Kirby Grant, Joe Sawyer, Glenn Strange. Bud and Lou invade hillbilly country in this substandard comedy, with far too much footage of singing Shay.▼

Command Decision (1948) 112m. ½ D: Sam Wood. Clark Gable, Walter Pidgeon, Van Johnson, Brian Donlevy, Charles Bickford, John Hodiak, Edward Arnold, Marshall Thompson, Richard Quine, Cameron Mitchell, John McIntire. Taut, engrossing adaptation of the William Wister Haines stage hit, with Gable a flight commander who knows that, to win the war, he must send his men on suicide missions over Germany. Intriguing look at behind-the-scenes politics of the U.S. war effort. Screenplay by William Laidlaw and George Froeschel. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼

Commandments (1997) C-86m. * D: Daniel Taplitz. Aidan Quinn, Courteney Cox, Anthony LaPaglia, Louis Zorich, Pamela Gray, Pat McNamara, Tom Aldredge, Alice Drummond, Jack Gilpin. When a man's life hits rock bottom he decides to test the whole concept of spirituality by breaking each of the Ten Commandments. Uneven black comedy shifts in tone from light to dark, losing its meaning along the way. Quinn is effective, but this must have looked a lot better on paper. [R]▼

Commando (1985) C-88m. * D: Mark L. Lester. Arnold Schwarzenegger, Rae Dawn Chong, Dan Hedaya, Vernon Wells, David Patrick Kelly, Alyssa Milano, James Olson, Bill Duke, Bill Paxton. Exceptionally noisy comic-book yarn about retired special agent Schwarzenegger, who's forced to go back into action when vengeful goons kidnap his daughter. Film's sense of humor (courtesy scribe Steven E. de Souza) is largely obliterated by all the noise and mindless violence. Director's cut runs 90m. [R]▼

Commandos (1968-Italian-German) C-89m. * D: Armando Crispino. Lee Van Cleef, Jack Kelly, Giampiero Albertini, Marino Masé, Pierre Paulo Capponi, Duilio Del Prete. Cliché-filled war drama with familiar plot; Italian commandos, led by a couple of stalwart Americans, must secure an important oasis in North African desert in advance of Allied landings. Cromoscope. [PG]▼

Commando Squad (1987) C-89m. BOMB D: Fred Olen Ray. Brian Thompson,

Tiresome film features numerous screen veterans, including Marie Windsor and Russ Tamblyn. [R]▼

Commandos Strike at Dawn (1942) 96m. *½ D: John Farrow. Paul Muni, Anna Lee, Lillian Gish, Cedric Hardwicke, Robert Coote, Ray Collins, Rosemary DeCamp, Alexander Knox. Well-intentioned drama of Norwegian Muni aiding British commandos in attack on Nazis who have invaded Norway. Dated propaganda angle lessens impact today.▼

Commitments, The (1991-British-Irish) C-117m. ½ D: Alan Parker. Robert Arkins, Michael Aherne, Angeline Ball, Maria Doyle, Dave Finnegan, Bronagh Gallagher, Félím Gormley, Glen Hansard, Dick Massey, Johnny Murphy, Kenneth McCluskey, Andrew Strong, Colm Meaney. Enormously satisfying tale of an ambitious young Dubliner who takes on the challenge of assembling and managing a band made up of other working-class Dubliners who sing '60s-style soul music! Disarmingly engaging from the word go, with charismatic cast of unknowns; filled with irresistible music. A real treat. Written by Dick Clement, Ian La Frenais, and Roddy Doyle; the first of Doyle's Barrytown trilogy, followed by THE SNAPPER and THE VAN. [R]▼

Committed (2000) C-98m. * D: Lisa Krueger. Heather Graham, Casey Affleck, Luke Wilson, Goran Visnjic, Alfonso Arau, Patricia Velazquez, Mark Ruffalo, Clea DuVall, Summer Phoenix, Mary Kay Place, Art Alexakis, Jon Stewart, Dylan Baker, Carlin Glynn. Young N.Y.C. club manager believes in commitment at work and in her marriage (though she's surrounded by slacker friends), so she's thrown for a loop when her husband (Wilson) bolts to "find himself." Graham is the whole show here, but she's stuck in a lightweight road-movie/culture-clash tale. If this is screwball romance for the new millennium, we're in trouble. [R]▼

Compassionate documentary focusing on five individuals afflicted with AIDS: a former Olympic athlete, a retired U.S. Navy commander, an 11-year-old hemophiliac, a N.Y. writer and gay activist, and an I.V. drug user. Title refers to AIDS Memorial Quilt, consisting of thousands of panels, each dedicated to an AIDS victim. Produced by HBO; a worthy Best Documentary Academy Award winner.▼

Communión (1977) SEE: Holy Terror
Communión (1989) C-107m. *½ D: Philippe Mora. Christopher Walken, Lindsay Crouse, Frances Sternhagen, Andreas Katsulas, Terri Hanauer, Joel Carlson, Basil Hoffman. Psychological thriller with Walken well cast as writer Whitley Strieber, who finds himself visited by strange creatures. Does he need a psychiatrist or an exorcist? A bit overlong, and the dramatic scenes between Walken and wife Crouse don't quite work, but still effectively scary while never gratuitously gory. Strieber adapted his own best-selling book, which he claims is true. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Companeros! (1971-Italian-Spanish-German) C-105m.  D: Sergio Corbucci. Franco Nero, Tomas Milian, Jack Palance, Fernando Rey, Iris Berben, Karin Schubert. Swedish mercenary (Nero) seeks his fortune by running guns in revolution-racked Mexico at the turn of the century. Violent western fare. Techniscope. [R]▼●

Company, The (2003) C-112m.  D: Robert Altman. Neve Campbell, Malcolm McDowell, James Franco, Barbara Robertson, William Dick, Susie Cusack. Life behind the scenes during a season with the Joffrey Ballet of Chicago, focusing on one dedicated dancer (Campbell). Not so much a story as a low-key series of vignettes about the innumerable factors that go into maintaining a company, salvaging bruised egos, and surviving both on and offstage. The dance numbers are exhilarating and beautifully filmed; Campbell shines in a pas de deux set to "My Funny Valentine." Campbell coproduced and cowrote the story. HD 24P Widescreen. [PG-13]▼●

Company Business (1991) C-98m. *½ D: Nicholas Meyer. Gene Hackman, Mikhail Baryshnikov, Kurtwood Smith, Terry O'Quinn, Daniel Von Bargen, Oleg Rudnick, Geraldine Danon. When a planned spy swap comes unglued, two aging agents (one CIA, one KGB) become unlikely allies as the old cold-war espionage rules they once lived by melt away. Interesting premise goes awry in this dumb spy comedy. [PG-13]▼●●

Company Man (2001) C-81m.  D: Peter Askin, Douglas McGrath. Sigourney Weaver, Steven Banks, Douglas McGrath, John Turturro, Anthony LaPaglia, Ryan Phillippe, Alan Cumming, Denis Leary, Heather Matarazzo, Jeffrey Jones. With wife Weaver hungering for social prestige, 1950s high school English teacher/driving instructor McGrath bogusly tells her he's working for the CIA. One thing leads to another, and he actually is recruited by the Agency, eventually landing in the middle of the Bay of Pigs and Castro assassination attempts. Too smart for multiplex dunderheads, but also too silly and mild for savvy folks; affordability and good-sport performances are about all it offers. Woody Allen (with whom McGrath wrote BULLETS OVER BROADWAY) appears unbilled. [PG-13]▼●

Company of Killers (1970) C-88m.  D: Jerry Thorpe. Van Johnson, Ray Milland, Company She Keeps, The (1950) 83m. ½ D: John Cromwell. Elizabeth Scott, Jane Greer, Dennis O'Keefe, Fay Baker, John Hoyt, Don Beddoe. Satisfactory tale of ex-con Greer, who's determined to go straight. She yearns for companionship and makes a play for O'Keefe, the boyfriend of her parole officer (Scott). Produced by John Houseman. Jeff Bridges' screen debut; he's the baby in Greer's arms.

Competition, The (1980) C-129m.  D: Joel Oliansky. Richard Dreyfuss, Amy Irving, Lee Remick, Sam Wanamaker, Joseph Cali, Ty Henderson, Priscilla Pointer, James B. Sicking. Two young pianists, competing for the same prize, fall in love. Nothing much more than that, but smoothly done, with some excellent piano "faking." Screenwriter Oliansky's directing debut. [PG]▼●●

Compromising Positions (1985) C-98m. ½ D: Frank Perry. Susan Sarandon, Raul Julia, Edward Herrmann, Judith Ivey, Mary Beth Hurt, Joe Mantegna, Josh Mostel, Anne De Salvo, Joan Allen. Long Island housewife becomes fascinated with the murder of a local dentist who (it turns out) was also an incredible womanizer. When it sticks to black comedy, the film is sharp and funny, but its other elements (male chauvinism, mystery, romance) don't pan out. Ivey has scene-stealing role as Sarandon's acid-tongued best friend. Screenplay by Susan Isaacs, from her novel. [R]▼●●

Compulsion (1959) 99m. ½ D: Richard Fleischer. Orson Welles, Diane Varsi, Dean Stockwell, Bradford Dillman, E.G. Marshall, Martin Milner. Hard-hitting version of Leopold-Loeb thrill murder case of 1920s Chicago. Good characterizations, period decor, and well-edited courtroom scenes. Story also told in earlier ROPE and later SWOON. CinemaScope.▼●●

Computer Wore Tennis Shoes, The (1970) C-91m.  D: Robert Butler. Kurt Russell, Cesar Romero, Joe Flynn, William Schallert, Alan Hewitt, Richard Bakalyan. The first of Disney's carbon-copy comedies with young Russell as the college whiz injected with a computer-brain, which poses threat to local gangster Romero. Standard slapstick. Followed by NOW YOU SEE HIM, NOW YOU DON'T. Remade as a TVM in 1995. [G]▼

Con Air (1997) C-115m.  D: Simon West. Nicolas Cage, John Cusack, John Malkovich, Steve Buscemi, Ving Rhames, Colm Meaney, Mykelti Williamson, Rachel Ticotin, Nick Chinlund, M. C. Gainey, Brendan Kelly, Danny Trejo, Dave Chappelle. Megastupid megamovie about a federal marshals' plane carrying a cargo of heinous criminals—and a handful of parolees, including Cage, who was unfairly imprisoned in the first place. Once the plane is aloft, the bad guys quickly foil security and take over. Good actors can only do so much with a script this dumb, and dozens of explosions and stunts don't make enough of a difference. Unrated version runs 122m. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Conan the Barbarian (1982) C-129m. ½ D: John Milius. Arnold Schwarzenegger, Sandahl Bergman, James Earl Jones, Gerry Lopez, Mako, Ben Davidson, Sven Ole Thorsen, Max von Sydow, Valerie Quennessen, Cassandra Gaviola, William Smith. The sword-wielding warrior seeks vengeance on the cult leader who enslaved him and massacred his village in this full-blooded (and bloody) adventure epic based on Robert E. Howard's pulp tales. Ron Cobb's spectacular production design and Basil Poledouris' vibrant score help make this superior to the many low-grade imitations it spawned. Written by Milius and Oliver Stone. Also shown at 115m. and 123m. Sequel: CONAN THE DESTROYER. Todd-AO 35. [R]▼●●

Conceiving Ada (1999) C-85m.  D: Lynn Hershman Leeson. Tilda Swinton, Timothy Leary, Karen Black, Francesca Faridany, John O'Keefe, J. D. Wolfe. Clichéd fantasy that contrasts the lives of Emmy (Faridany), a contemporary computer genius, and Ada Byron King (Swinton), the daughter of Lord Byron, who in the mid-19th century helped conceive the Analytic Engine, the forerunner of the computer. Using some digital instruments she has invented, Emmy reconstructs

Ada's life and determines to communicate with her. Premise is intriguing, but result is obvious and far too preachy.▼

Concorde—Airport '79, The (1979) C-123m. BOMB D: David Lowell Rich. Alain Delon, Susan Blakely, Robert Wagner, Sylvia Kristel, George Kennedy, Eddie Albert, Bibi Andersson, John Davidson, Andrea Marcovicci, Martha Raye, Cicely Tyson, Jimmie Walker, David Warner, Mercedes McCambridge. Wagner is a brilliant scientist, Kennedy and Andersson make love by the fire, Davidson's hair stays in place when the plane turns upside down, and McCambridge is a Russian gymnastics coach. Thank goodness Charo is around for credibility. Aka AIRPORT '79. [PG]▼

Concrete Jungle, The (1960-British) 86m.  D: Joseph Losey. Stanley Baker, Margit Saad, Sam Wanamaker, Gregoire Aslan, Jill Bennett, Laurence Naismith, Edward Judd, Patrick Magee. Baker shines in this intense, stunningly directed account of a criminal who must contend with jailer Magee and, most tellingly, hood Wanamaker (with whom he robs a racetrack). More than just a crime drama, it's a story of how greed and lust for money can result in alienation and the destruction of the spirit. Original title: THE CRIMINAL, released at 97m.●

Concrete Jungle, The (1982) C-99m. *½ D: Tom DeSimone. Jill St. John, Tracy Bregman, Barbara Luna, Peter Brown, Aimee Eccles, Nita Talbot, Sondra Currie. Bregman's heel boyfriend gets her wrongly busted for drugs, leading to standard women's prison melodrama with St. John the kind of movie warden who is given glasses to show how uptight she is. Luna's performance as a hard-bitten prison vet is a cut above the others'. Followed by CHAINED HEAT. [R]▼

Condemned, The (2007) C-113m. BOMB D: Scott Wiper. Steve Austin, Vinnie Jones, Robert Mammone, Victoria Mussett, Rick Hoffman. Wealthy, ruthless producer creates an illegal Internet reality show in which ten death-row convicts are attached to bombs, put on an island, and ordered to kill each other. Reprehensible exploitation film disguised as a morality tale, it titillates its audience with a constant stream of brutal violence, then attacks people who find violence entertaining and turn it into a commodity. Sanctimonious moralizing is ironic coming from World Wrestling Entertainment, which produced the film as a vehicle for its star, Stone Cold Steve Austin. [R]●

Condemned of Altona, The (1962-Italian) 114m. ½ D: Vittorio De Sica. Sophia Loren, Fredric March, Robert Wagner, Maximilian Schell, Francoise Prevost. Sluggish pseudo-intellectual version of Jean-Paul Sartre play about post-WW2 Germany involving dying magnate (March), his two sons—one a playboy (Wagner) with an actress wife (Loren); the other an insane Nazi war criminal (Schell). CinemaScope.

Condition Red (1995-U.S.-Finnish) C-86m.  D: Mika Kaurismäki. James Russo, Cynda Williams, Paul Calderon, Victor Argo, Dierdre Lewis. Grittily realistic but ever-so-obvious thriller in which alienated, deeply troubled prison guard Russo becomes involved in a volatile sexual relationship with tough convict Williams, a singer doing jail time to protect her slimy boyfriend. Too many lapses in logic, though the performances are fine. [R]▼

Condorman (1981-British) C-90m.  D: Charles Jarrott. Michael Crawford, Oliver Reed, James Hampton, Barbara Carrera, Jean-Pierre Kalfon, Dana Elcar. Cartoonist Crawford is transformed into Condorman, a comic book superhero who assists Soviet spy Carrera in her efforts to defect. Silly Disney film for only the most indiscriminating children. Panavision. [PG]▼

Conduct Unbecoming (1975-British) C-107m. ½ D: Michael Anderson. Michael York, Richard Attenborough, Trevor Howard, Stacy Keach, Susannah York, Christopher Plummer. Quaintly old-fashioned drama of honor and outrage among the Bengal Lancers, where an officer's widow (York) is sexually attacked. Too stuffy to be fun, yet too modern in other ways to be an antique; star performances are saving grace. [PG]▼

Coneheads (1993) C-88m.  D: Steve Barron. Dan Aykroyd, Jane Curtin, Michelle Burke, Michael McKean, Jason Alexander, Lisa Jane Persky, Chris Farley, David Spade, Phil Hartman, Dave Thomas, Sinbad, Jan Hooks, Michael Richards, Jon Lovitz, Kevin Nealon, Adam Sandler, Garrett Morris, Laraine Newman, Tim Meadows, Julia Sweeney, Ellen DeGeneres, Parker Posey, Joey Lauren Adams. Unexpectably benign (and good-natured) comedy based on the 1970s Saturday Night Live skits. The Coneheads (from the planet Remulak) land on earth in a botched mission and, to their own surprise, adapt to middle-class suburban life. A most enjoyable family film that combines silliness with some sly and unexpected gags. Amusing cameos by a gaggle of past and present SNL cast members. Watch for Drew Carey in a taxi. Aykroyd also cowrote the film. [PG]▼

Coney Island (1943) C-96m.  D: Walter Lang. Betty Grable, George Montgomery, Cesar Romero, Charles Winninger, Phil Silvers, Matt Briggs. Breezy, enjoyable turn-of-the-century musical of saloon entertainer Grable turned into famous musical star by hustling Montgomery. Remade with Grable seven years later as WABASH AVENUE.

Confession (1937) 86m.  D: Joe May. Kay Francis, Basil Rathbone, Ian Hunter, Donald Crisp, Jane Bryan, Dorothy Peterson, Laura Hope Crews, Veda Ann Borg, Robert Barrat. Extremely stylish, well-acted soap opera in the MADAME X vein, with singer Francis recounting events leading up to her murder of oily Rathbone. Visually arresting, this looks more like a 1920s German film than a late 1930s Hollywood product; in fact, director May was a German émigré. Based very closely on the 1935 German film MAZURKA (which starred Pola Negri).

Confession, The (1970) C-138m. ½ D: Costa-Gavras. Yves Montand, Simone Signoret, Gabriele Ferzetti, Michel Vitold, Jean Bouise. True story of Czechoslovakian Communist Arthur London and his unjustified 1951 purge trial for treason; interesting tale well acted by Montand, but film is as talky and overrated as many of Costa-Gavras' other efforts. [PG]

Confessions of a Dangerous Mind (2002) C-113m.  D: George Clooney. Sam Rockwell, Drew Barrymore, George Clooney, Julia Roberts, Rutger Hauer, Maggie Gyllenhaal, Kristen Wilson, Jennifer Hall. Odd but entertaining adaptation of game-show maven Chuck Barris' believe-it-or-don't autobiographical in which he claims he was a CIA assassin. Bold mix of love story, period piece, black comedy, psychological drama, and thriller (by writer Charlie Kaufman) is not seamless, nor does it necessarily add up to anything of substance, but first-time helmer Clooney handles it with style, and Rockwell is terrific as Barris. Real-life Barris colleagues like Dick Clark and Gene Gene the Dancing Machine appear, as do a couple of movie stars in funny cameos. Super 35. [R]▼

Confessions of a Nazi Spy (1939) 102m. ½ D: Anatole Litvak. Edward G. Robinson, Francis Lederer, George Sanders, Paul Lukas, Henry O'Neill, James Stephenson, Sig Rumann, Dorothy Tree, Lya Lys, Joe Sawyer. Fast-paced but obvious drama of FBI agent Robinson investigating vast Nazi spy ring operating in the U.S. Of interest mainly as a reflection of its era; Lukas, as a German-American Bund leader, clearly patterns his mannerisms and speeches on those of Hitler.

Confessions of an Opium Eater (1962) 85m. *½ D: Albert Zugsmith. Vincent Price, Linda Ho, Richard Loo, June Kim, Philip Ahn, Victor Sen Yung. Bizarre low-budgeter. Price is hammy in tale of slave girls brought to San Francisco and the adventurer who aids them. Retitled: SOULS FOR SALE.▼

Confessions of a Peeping John SEE: Hi, Mom!

Confessions of a Shopaholic (2009) C-104m.  D: P. J. Hogan. Isla Fisher, Hugh Dancy, Krysten Ritter, Joan Cusack, John Goodman, John Lithgow, Kristin Scott Thomas, Fred Armisen, Leslie Bibb, Lynn Redgrave, Robert Stanton, Julie Hagerty, Nick Cornish, Clea Lewis, Wendie Malick, John Salley, Christine Ebersole. Manhattan-

ite Fisher is addicted to shopping in spite of her meager income, fending off creditors with a nonstop series of lies. Then she stumbles into a job working for—of all things—a financial magazine, edited by dishy Dancy. Fisher is cute but this frantic, poorly written film makes her such a scatterbrain that it's difficult to root for her. Based on two of the best-selling novels by Sophie Kinsella. Fleeting appearance by Redgrave implies that there was yet another subplot trimmed from the film. Panavision. [PG]◆

Confessions of a Teenage Drama Queen (2004) C-96m. ½ D: Sara Sugarman. Lindsay Lohan, Adam Garcia, Glenna Headly, Alison Pill, Carol Kane, Eli Marienthal, Megan Fox, Sheila McCarthy. Self-styled drama queen Lohan suffers the ignominy of moving with her mom and two sisters from Manhattan to New Jersey, where she immediately finds a soul mate (Pill) and also runs afoul of the class snob. The promise of seeing her rock idol in his farewell concert propels the rest of the story, based on Dyan Sheldon's popular book. Innocuous Disney teen comedy; parents will enjoy Kane's funny performance as a schoolteacher. [PG]▼◆

Confessions of a Window Cleaner (1974-British) C-90m.  D: Val Guest. Robin Askwith, Anthony Booth, Linda Hayden, Bill Maynard, Dandy Nichols. British sex farce about voyeuristic window cleaner was dated when it came out; too obvious to be terribly funny. Followed by other CONFESIONS films. [R]

Confessions of Tom Harris (1972) C-98m.  D: John Derek, David Nelson. Don Murray, Linda Evans, David Brian, Gary Clarke, Logan Ramsey. Offbeat, gritty study of a corrupt, amoral prizefighter, played by Murray, who also produced and wrote the story. Derek also photographed it. Filmed in 1966. First released in 1969 as CHILDISH THINGS. [PG]▼

Confetti (2006-British) C-100m.  D: Debbie Isitt. Jimmy Carr, Olivia Colman, Vincent Franklin, Martin Freeman, Felicity Montagu, Jessica Stevenson, Robert Webb, Jason Watkins, Sarah Hadland, Julia Davis. Reality TV morphs into a big-screen affair when three couples compete in a magazine contest for the wedding of the year. Mockumentary follows all three scenarios as pairs of nudists, tennis players, and musical-comedy enthusiasts express themselves just as you'd expect on their big day. Wants to be another BEST IN SHOW but doesn't have the comic chops, just elaborate setups and a few funny bits. Despite a talented cast it's as disposable as the product that inspired its title. [R]◆

Confidence (1979-Hungarian) C-117m. ½ D: Istvan Szabo. Ildiko Bansagi, Peter Andorai, O. Gombik, Karoly Csaki, Ildiko Kishonti. Bansagi and Andorai, each separately married, fall in love while posing as husband and wife to elude the Germans during WW2. Striking, involving tale of trust and survival.

Confidence (2003) C-98m.  D: James Foley. Edward Burns, Rachel Weisz, Paul Giamatti, Dustin Hoffman, Andy Garcia, Luis Guzman, Donal Brian, Morris Chestnut, Robert Forster, Brian Van Holt. A cocky con man and his team are obliged to work for slimy crime lord Hoffman, while federal agent Garcia tails them at every turn. Strong cast in a disappointing yarn that's never as suspenseful, surprising, or satisfying as it ought to be. What's more, Burns' character is utterly unlikable. Foley uses every visual trick he can to maintain interest. Super 35. [R]▼◆

Confidential Agent (1945) 118m.  D: Herman Shumlin. Charles Boyer, Lauren Bacall, Katina Paxinou, Peter Lorre, Victor Francen, George Coulouris, Wanda Hendrix, John Warburton. Boyer is Graham Greene's hero in engrossing spy yarn of Spanish Civil War; he meets Bacall along the way; they battle enemy agents Lorre and Paxinou.

Confidentially Connie (1953) 74m. ½ D: Edward Buzzell. Van Johnson, Janet Leigh, Louis Calhern, Walter Slezak, Gene Lockhart. Mild chuckles as pregnant wife Leigh schemes to get underpaid professor hubby (Johnson) to leave academic circles. Calhern as Van's rich Texan father is amusing.

Confidentially Yours (1982-French) 111m.  D: François Truffaut. Fanny Ardant, Jean-Louis Trintignant, Philippe Laudembach, Caroline Sihol, Philippe Morier-Genoud, Xavier Saint Macary. Businessman is wanted for murder, and his secretary takes on job of finding real killer while he hides out from the cops. Truffaut's final feature is airy mystery-comedy in the Hitchcock mold, based on an American novel (The Long Saturday Night by Charles Williams); beautifully shot in black & white by Nestor Almendros. No depth whatsoever, but lightly entertaining; Ardant is delightful. French title: VIVEMENT DIMANCHE! [PG]▼◆◆

Conformist, The (1971-Italian-French-West German) C-115m. ½ D: Bernardo Bertolucci. Jean-Louis Trintignant, Stefania Sandrelli, Dominique Sanda, Pierre Clementi, Pasquale Fontunato, Gastone Moschin. Disturbing blend of character study and historical context of 1930s. Repressing homosexual drives, Marcello Clerici strives for "acceptable" life as member of Italian Fascist secret service, and middle-class would-be wife chaser, until odd series of events make him a willing murderer. Film's overall mood uniquely tense. Cut by 5m. for American release; the missing "Dance of the Blind" sequence was restored for 1994 reissue. [R] ▼●●

Congo (1995) C-108m.  D: Frank Marshall. Laura Linney, Ernie Hudson, Tim Curry, Grant Heslov, Dylan Walsh, Joe Don Baker, Stuart Pankin, Mary Ellen Trainor, James Karen. Clumsily written Saturday-matinee nonsense about a gorilla expert who goes on a trouble-laden expedition to Africa with a Roumanian fortune hunter and a high-tech communications expert who's searching for her ex-fiancé. Sort of watchable, but poky pacing, unappealing characters, and senseless script sink it. The big special-effects climax is as unconvincing as Amy, the costarring gorilla. Michael Crichton's novel was adapted by—of all people—John Patrick Shanley (MOONSTRUCK). Joe Pantoliano appears unbilled. [PG-13] ▼●●

Conjugal Bed, The (1963-French-Italian) 90m.  D: Marco Ferreri. Ugo Tognazzi, Marina Vlady, Walter Giller, Linda Sini. Tognazzi is admirably suited to the role of a middle-aged bachelor who weds beautiful young Vlady and must cope with her sexual demands as she desires to become pregnant. A funny, entertaining sex comedy. ▼

Connecticut Yankee, A (1931) 78m.  D: David Butler. Will Rogers, Maureen O'Sullivan, Myrna Loy, Frank Albertson, William Farnum. Mark Twain's classic story of a man who travels back in time to King Arthur's court, rewritten to suit Rogers' genial personality. Full of contemporary wisecracks and funny ideas, though the script gets a bit silly. ▼

Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court, A (1949) C-107m. ½ D: Tay Garnett. Bing Crosby, Rhonda Fleming, William Bendix, Cedric Hardwicke, Henry Wilcoxon, Murvyn Vye, Virginia Field. Mark Twain's story becomes carefree Crosby musical, with Bing transported into past, branded a wizard. No great songs, but colorful production. Previously filmed in 1921 and 1931 (with Will Rogers); remade in 1979 (as UNIDENTIFIED FLYING ODD-BALL); TVMs in 1989 and 1995. ▼●●

Connecting Rooms (1969-British) C-103m.  D: Franklin Gollings. Bette Davis, Michael Redgrave, Alexis Kanner, Kay Walsh, Olga Georges-Picot, Leo Genn. Muddled melodrama of relationships in a rooming house. Davis is a street musician, Redgrave a former schoolmaster, and Kanner the rebellious youth who disrupts their equilibrium. ▼

of their "connection" with heroin, and a documentary filmmaker (Redfield) filming them. Independently produced, based on Jack Gelber's stage play. Original running time 110m.; some prints run 93m. ▼

Connie and Carla (2004) C-98m.  D: Michael Lembeck. Nia Vardalos, Toni Collette, David Duchovny, Stephen Spinella, Dash Mihok, Alec Mapa, Debbie Reynolds. Brassy, sometimes silly crowd-pleaser puts a new spin on SOME LIKE IT HOT: lounge entertainers Vardalos and Collette witness a murder and take it on the lam. They find refuge in West Hollywood, where they perform as drag queens and acquire a new circle of gay male friends. Duchovny is charming as Vardalos' love interest, but the spotlight is on the two stars, who perform show tunes ranging from "Oklahoma" to "Don't Cry for Me Argentina." Written by Vardalos. [PG-13] ▼

Conqueror, The (1956) C-111m.  D: Dick Powell. John Wayne, Susan Hayward, Pedro Armendariz, Agnes Moorehead, Thomas Gomez, John Hoyt, William Conrad. Mongols vs. Tartars, and John Wayne vs. the silliest role of his career, Genghis Khan. Expensive epic has camp dialogue to spare. The film had a sobering real-life aftermath, however: it was shot on location in Utah near an atomic test site, and an alarming number of its cast and crew (including the stars) were later stricken by cancer. CinemaScope. ▼

Conqueror Worm (1968-British) C-98m.  D: Michael Reeves. Vincent Price, Ian Ogilvy, Hilary Dwyer, Rupert Davies, Robert Russell, Patrick Wymark, Wilfred Brambell. As Matthew Hopkins, real-life witch-hunter during era of Cromwell, Price gives excellent nonhammy performance in underrated low-budget (and bloody) period thriller. Literate, balanced script pits him against young sympathetic lovers Ogilvy and Dwyer. Original British title: THE WITCH-FINDER GENERAL. ▼●●

Conquest (1937) 112m.  D: Clarence Brown. Greta Garbo, Charles Boyer, Reginald Owen, Alan Marshal, Henry Stephenson, Leif Erickson, Dame May Whitty, Maria Ouspenskaya, Vladimir Sokoloff, Scotty Beckett. Conquest of Space (1955) C-80m. ½ D: Byron Haskin. Eric Fleming, William Hopper, Ross Martin, Walter Brooke, Joan Shawlee. Despite some good special effects, this George Pal production about the first trip to Mars is hampered by a pedestrian script and an inappropriate emphasis on religion. A disappointment. ▼

Conquest of the Planet of the Apes (1972) C-87m. ½ D: J. Lee Thompson. Roddy McDowall, Don Murray, Ricardo Montalban, Natalie Trundy, Severn Darden. Fourth APES feature shows how apes came to rebel

There's Hell in Suburbia when Kline becomes morally polluted by a leechy neighbor who proposes a wife-swapping pact. Conspiracy Theory (1997) C-135m.  D: Richard Donner. Mel Gibson, Julia Roberts, Patrick Stewart, Cyllk Cozart, Stephen Kahan, Terry Alexander, Troy Garity. Lumpy but entertaining story about a half-crazed N.Y.C. cabdriver who lives a life of paranoia, obsessed with a woman who works for the Justice Department. One day, however, he comes to her with a story that seems to make sense about a conspiracy and cover-up; soon, they're both embroiled in a situation bigger than they ever imagined. Idealistic mountain climber Bradecki refuses to kowtow to a hypocritical bureaucracy and winds up a window cleaner. Incisive, but not top-drawer Zanussi; filmed simultaneously with the director's CONTRACT.▼

Constant Gardener, The (2005-British-German) C-128m.  D: Fernando Meirelles. Ralph Fiennes, Rachel Weisz, Danny Huston, Bill Nighy, Pete Postlethwaite, Hubert Koundé, Juliet Aubrey, Gerard McSorley. When his young, idealistic wife is murdered in Kenya, a low-level British diplomat investigates, for the first time, the cause she was fighting for. He also learns how his own government tried to quash a scandal involving a large pharmaceutical company, while abusing Africans desperate for medical care. Impassioned filming of John le Carré's fact-based novel (adapted by Jeffrey Caine) manages to balance muckraking drama and a love story; Fiennes and Weisz (Oscar winner as Best Supporting Actress) have great chemistry. When demons from hell wreak havoc on earth, who ya gonna call? John Constantine, an exorcist who's actually been to hell. After two hours of this laborious twaddle, we know how he must feel. Intensely romantic story of a Belgian game (Fontaine) who's madly in love with a self-serious and self-absorbed composer (Boyer). He marries a socialite (Smith) without ever realizing the depth of his own feelings for the younger girl. Touching, intelligent, and beautifully realized, with sweeping music by Erich Wolfgang Korngold. Margaret Kennedy's novel and play were adapted by Kathryn Scola. Filmed before in 1928 and 1934.

Consuming Passions (1988-U.S.-British) C-98m. ½ D: Giles Foster. Vanessa Redgrave, Jonathan Pryce, Tyler Butterworth, Freddie Jones, Sammi Davis, Prunella Scales, Thora Hird. Contact (1997) C-150m.  D: Robert Zemeckis. A woman who has devoted her life to studying the stars—believing there's life out there—is ostracized by her superior at the National Science Foundation, and eventually cut off, until she actually receives a message from space. Intensely involving story in which we're drawn into Foster's obsession and share her odyssey into the unknown. Producer Joseph E. Levine didn't seem to understand that Godard, who appears here as Lang's assistant, held him in contempt, making this film a highly amusing "in" joke. Bardot's appearance only adds to the fun. Franscope.▼●●

Contender, The (2000-German-U.S.) C-127m.  D: Rod Lurie. Joan Allen, Jeff Bridges, Gary Oldman, Christian Slater, Sam Elliott, William Petersen, Saul Rubinek, Philip Baker Hall, Mariel Hemingway. The death of the vice president enables U.S. president Bridges to appoint a female Ohio senator as his successor. But a small-minded congressman (Oldman) with an axe to grind decides to humiliate her during public hearings—and she refuses to stoop to his level. Timely, engrossing political drama written by the director, with strong performances. Oldman, a particular stand-out, also coexecutive-produced. [R]▼●

Contest Girl (1966-British) C-82m. ½ D: Val Guest. Ian Hendry, Janette Scott, Ronald Fraser, Edmund Purdom, Linda Christian. Film well conveys glamorous and seamy sides of beauty-contest world. Purdom gives effective performance. CinemaScope.

Continental Divide (1981) C-103m.  D: Michael Apted. John Belushi, Blair Brown, Allen Goorwitz (Garfield), Carlin Glynn, Tony Ganos, Val Avery, Tim Kazurinsky. One of those "concept" movies that's all premise, no payoff: Belushi's a hard-hitting Chicago newspaper columnist, Brown's a self-reliant naturalist at home observing eagles in the Rockies. Can this romance survive? Interesting mainly to see Belushi playing such a "normal" and likable character. Written by Lawrence Kasdan, who obviously couldn't come up with a finish. Steven Spielberg was executive producer. [PG]▼●●

Continental Twist, The SEE: Twist All Night

Contraband (1940-British) 92m. ½ D: Michael Powell. Conrad Veidt, Valerie Hobson, Hay Petrie, Joss Ambler, Raymond Lovell, Esmond Knight, Peter Bull, Leo Genn. Superior spy yarn from Michael Powell and Emeric Pressburger, very much in the Hitchcock vein. Veidt is a Danish merchant sea captain, Hobson an enigmatic passenger—both get caught up with London spy ring. Though set in 1939, film hardly seems dated at all! That's Bernard Miles as a disgruntled smoker. Powell and Brock Williams adapted Pressburger's story. P&P had teamed up with Veidt and Hobson the previous year for THE SPY IN BLACK. Original U.S. title: BLACKOUT.▼●

Contract (1980-Polish) C-114m. ½ D: Krzysztof Zanussi. Leslie Caron, Maja Komorowska, Tadeusz Lomnicki, Magda Jaroszowna. Superb laced-in-acid comedy-satire centering on a wedding between the career-oriented son of a wealthy doctor and his none-too-eager bride. Zanussi incisively chides corrupt politicians and businessmen; Caron is memorable as a kleptomaniacal ballerina. Filmed simultaneously with the director's CONSTANS (THE CONSTANT FACTOR).▼

Contract, The (2006-German-U.S.) C-96m.  D: Bruce Beresford. Morgan Freeman, John Cusack, Jamie Anderson, Alice Krige, Megan Dodds, Corey Johnson, Jonathan Hyde, Bill Smitrovich, Anthony Warren, Thomas Lockyer, Ned Bellamy. Does high school gym teacher Cusack possess the stamina and smarts to thwart renegade contract killer Freeman? Untidy actioner leaves plenty of questions unanswered while offering the barest minimum of thrills. Released direct to DVD in the U.S. Super 35. [R]●

Control (2007-British-Japanese-Australian)

121m. ½ D: Anton Corbijn. Sam Riley, Samantha Morton, Alexandra Maria Lara, Joe Anderson, James Anthony Pearson, Harry Treadaway, Craig Parkinson, Toby Kebbell. Darkly fascinating character study of Manchester rocker Ian Curtis, the moody Joy Division lead singer who committed suicide at age 23 in 1980, just as his band was on the cusp of international success. Effectively filmed in often noir-like b&w, biopic unromantically renders Curtis—played with the perfect balance of vulnerability and volatility by Riley—as an artist undone by the inner demons that informed his art. Based on a memoir by Curtis' wife (played here by Morton). Super 35. [R]▶

Convent, The (1995-Portuguese-French) C-90m.  D: Manoel de Oliveira. Catherine Deneuve, John Malkovich, Duarte D'Almeida, Luis Miguel Cintra, Heloisa Miranda, Leonor Silveira. A professor (Malkovich) is attempting to prove that Shakespeare is of Spanish descent. To further his research, he and his wife (Deneuve) travel to an ancient convent, where there are eerie and mysterious goings-on. Languid tale made by the well-respected Portuguese writer-director de Oliveira (who was 86 years old when this was released!).▶▶

Conversation, The (1974) C-113m. * D: Francis Ford Coppola. Gene Hackman, John Cazale, Allen Garfield, Frederic Forrest, Cindy Williams, Michael Higgins, Elizabeth MacRae, Teri Garr, Harrison Ford, Robert Shields. Brilliant film about obsessive surveillance expert (Hackman) who makes professional mistake of becoming involved in a case, and finds himself entangled in murder and high-level power plays. Coppola's top-notch, disturbing script makes larger statements about privacy and personal responsibility. An unbilled Robert Duvall has a cameo. One of the best films of the 1970s. [PG]▶▶▶▶

Conversation Piece (1975-Italian) C-122m.  D: Luchino Visconti. Burt Lancaster, Silvana Mangano, Helmut Berger, Claudia Marsani, Claudia Cardinale. Ponderous story of aging, aloof professor Lancaster who becomes involved with matron Mangano's hedonistic children and her young lover, Berger. All talk. Filmed in both English and Italian-language versions. Todd-AO 35. [R]▶

Conversations With Other Women (2005) C-84m. ½ D: Hans Canosa. Aaron Eckhart, Helena Bonham Carter, Nora Zehetner, Erik Eidem, Olivia Wilde, Tom Lennon, Cerina Vincent, Brianna Brown, Brian Geraghty. Two people hook up at a wedding reception: His sis is getting married; she's a bridesmaid. They may have met before. In fact, they might have been married and had a daughter. Determinedly ambiguous two-character drama is a one-trick pony in split-screen, a cinematic trope that tries to add

visual flair to a heavily conversational script. HD Widescreen. [R]▶

Convicts (1991) C-95m.  D: Peter Masterson. Robert Duvall, Lukas Haas, James Earl Jones, Starletta DuPois. A young boy (Haas) comes of age observing the violent scenes on a Texas Gulf Coast cane field in 1902—even as life seems to be cycling to an end for imposing plantation boss (Duvall) who survives by using convict labor to work in his fields. A towering performance by Duvall and stark, authentic dialogue by Horton Foote (based on his nine-play cycle The Orphan's Home) are the strengths in this poignant elegy.▶▶▶

Convicts 4 (1962) 105m.  D: Millard Kaufman. Ben Gazzara, Stuart Whitman, Ray Walston, Vincent Price, Rod Steiger, Broderick Crawford, Sammy Davis, Jr., Jack Kruschen. Gazzara gives sincere portrayal as long-term prisoner who becomes professional artist. Oddball supporting cast. Retitled: REPRIEVE.▶▶

Convoy (1978) C-110m.  D: Sam Peckinpah. Kris Kristofferson, Ali MacGraw, Ernest Borgnine, Burt Young, Madge Sinclair, Franklyn Ajaye, Cassie Yates. Amiable comic-book movie based on the hit song about an independent trucker who leads protesting colleagues on a trek through the Southwest. Stupid script and blah acting redeemed somewhat by Peckinpah's punchy directorial style. Panavision. [PG]▶▶

Coogan's Bluff (1968) C-95m.  D: Don Siegel. Clint Eastwood, Lee J. Cobb, Susan Clark, Tisha Sterling, Don Stroud, Betty Field, Tom Tully. Arizona lawman Eastwood comes to N.Y.C. to show city cops a thing or two about tracking down a wanted man. Stylish action film, good location work. Sterling enjoyable as hippie. Later evolved into the McCloud TV series. [R]▶▶▶▶

Cookie (1989) C-93m.  D: Susan Seidelman. Peter Falk, Dianne Wiest, Emily Lloyd, Michael V. Gazzo, Brenda Vaccaro, Adrian Pasdar, Lionel Stander, Jerry Lewis, Bob Gunton, Ricki Lake. Droll comedy about a sassy teenager who gets to meet her mobster dad for the first time when he's sprung from prison after a long stretch. No fireworks here, but the performances are great fun to watch, especially Wiest as Falk's breathless mistress (and Lloyd's mother). Written by Nora Ephron and Alice Arlen. [R]▶▶▶

Cookie's Fortune (1999) C-118m.  D: Robert Altman. Glenn Close, Julianne Moore, Liv Tyler, Chris O'Donnell, Charles S. Dutton, Patricia Neal, Ned Beatty, Courtney B. Vance, Donald Moffat, Lyle Lovett, Danny Durst, Matt Malloy. Picaresque yarn spun in a small Southern town where an eccentric woman's death sets in motion a series of events revealing the true nature—both good-hearted and greedy—of various relatives and friends. Colorful characters abound in this

easygoing, fanciful film, sparked by Dutton's wonderful performance. [PG-13]▼

Cookout, The (2004) C-97m.  D: Lance Rivera, Ja Rule, Tim Meadows, Jennifer Lewis, Meagan Good, Storm P (Quran Pender), Jonathan Silverman, Farrah Fawcett, Frankie Faison, Vincent Pastore, Queen Latifah, Danny Glover, Eve. Hot basketball star signs a $30 million deal and moves from his parents' traditional neighborhood to an exclusive gated community, where he decides to have a cookout for his friends and family, just as he did in his old 'hood. Latifah coproduced and helped cook up what story there is in this frantic, stereotyped, and only sporadically amusing comedy that looks like it was made up as the cameras rolled. [PG-13]▶

Cook, The Thief, His Wife & Her Lover, The (1989-French-Dutch) C-124m.  D: Peter Greenaway. Helen Mirren, Michael Gambon, Tim Roth, Richard Bohringer, Alan Howard. Another stylish, challenging piece of cinema from Greenaway that's set in a plush gourmet restaurant and details the various relationships between the title characters. This parable about love, revenge, and, most of all, greed is both funny and horrifying—and right on target. However, those who do not appreciate Greenaway's cinematic sensibility may be put off. Sacha Vierny's cinematography is an asset. Technovision. [NC-17 and R-rated versions are available]▼●●

Cool as Ice (1991) C-100m. BOMB D: David Kellogg. Vanilla Ice, Kristin Minter, Michael Gross, Candy Clark, Sydney Lassick, Dody Goodman, Naomi Campbell, Bobby Brown. The Sealtest man's rap numbers frame seemingly unreleasable "wandering cyclist" yarn about a numbskull who manages to romance the town's SAT standard-bearer. Oh, did we mention that her father is in the government's witness relocation program? Ice's parlance ("Drop that zero/get with the hero") in his first starring film does not rekindle fond memories of Ronald Colman. [PG]▼●

Cool Breeze (1972) C-101m. *½ D: Barry Pollack. Thalmus Rasulala, Judy Pace, Jim Watkins, Lincoln Kilpatrick, Sam Laws, Margaret Avery, Raymond St. Jacques. Routine remake of THE ASPHALT JUNGLE with plot line updated so that diamond robbery proceeds will go to set up a black people's bank.[R]

Cool, Dry Place, A (1999) C-97m. ½ D: John N. Smith. Vince Vaughn, Joey Lauren Adams, Monica Potter, Devon Sawa, Bobby Moat, Todd Louiso. Hotshot lawyer is raising his five-year-old son since his wife walked out on them. Having lost his job, he tries to build a new life in Texas and meets a woman he likes . . . then the plot thickens. Believable story, if predictable at times; benefits from good performances. [PG-13]▼

Cooler, The (2003) C-102m.  D:

Wayne Kramer. William H. Macy, Alec Baldwin, Maria Bello, Shawn Hatosy, Ron Livingston, Estella Warren, Paul Sorvino, Joey Fatone, M.C. Gainey, Ellen Greene. A lifelong loser makes his living spreading bad luck around an old-style Vegas casino. Then a beautiful cocktail waitress falls in love with him and his luck begins to change. Clever story is perfectly cast; Baldwin is terrific as the hard-edged casino boss who decries the transformation of Vegas into Disneyland. Everything clicks—until the final scene. Evocative jazz score by Mark Isham. Super 35. [R]▼

Cooley High (1975) C-107m.  D: Michael Schultz. Glynn Turman, Lawrence Hilton-Jacobs, Garrett Morris, Cynthia Davis, Corin Rogers, Maurice Leon Havis. Inner-city rip-off of AMERICAN GRAFFITI (set in Chicago, 1964) is nonetheless pleasing on its own terms, though only on the level of a good TV show. Lots of laughs. Look fast for Robert Townsend. Later evolved into the What's Happening!! TV series. [PG]▼●●

Cool Hand Luke (1967) C-126m. ½ D: Stuart Rosenberg. Paul Newman, George Kennedy, J.D. Cannon, Lou Antonio, Robert Drivas, Strother Martin, Jo Van Fleet, Wayne Rogers, Anthony Zerbe, Ralph Waite, Harry Dean Stanton, Dennis Hopper, Richard Davalos, Warren Finnerty, Morgan Woodward, Clifton James, Joe Don Baker. Modern slant on prison camps shows little change since Paul Muni; more irrelevant, however, with memorably funny egg-eating contest. Top-notch film with Kennedy's Oscar-winning supporting performance as prisoner. Panavision.▼●●

Cool Ones, The (1967) C-95m. BOMB D: Gene Nelson. Roddy McDowall, Debbie Watson, Gil Peterson, Phil Harris, Robert Coote, Glen Campbell, Mrs. Miller. Inane "musical" comedy spoofing trendy music business. Embarrassing on all counts, with broad performances. If you turn up your volume, you might hear a faint laugh track. Panavision.

Cool Runnings (1993) C-97m.  D: Jon Turteltaub. Leon, Doug E. Doug, John Candy, Rawle D. Lewis, Malik Yoba, Raymond J. Barry. Family-oriented feel-good movie from Disney—based on a true story—about the unlikely formation of a Jamaican bobsled team to compete in the 1988 Winter Olympics. (The participants have never even seen snow, let alone a bobsled!) Candy is well cast as a disgraced former Olympian who redeems himself. [PG]▼●● piece, it does feature a gritty, realistic—and very un-Hollywood—storyline, which involves a young black teen gang member (Clanton, in his only screen appearance). Based on a novel by Warren Miller and play by Miller and Robert Rossen. Clarke also coscripted (with Lee) and edited. Produced by Frederick Wiseman.

Cool World, The (1964) 105m.  D: Shirley Clarke. Hampton Clanton, Yolanda Rodríguez, Bostic Felton, Gary Bolla, Carl Lee, Clarence Williams (III), Gloria Foster, Georgia Burke, Antonio Fargas. The streets, rhythms, and populace of Harlem are the stars of this justifiably celebrated cinéma vérité film. While primarily a mood

Cool World (1992) C-101m. $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Ralph Bakshi. Gabriel Byrne, Kim Basinger, Brad Pitt, Frank Sinatra, Jr. Pointless live-action/animation feature from Bakshi, who's covered this ground before, much more successfully. Ex-con comic-book artist Byrne discovers his cartoon creations are real, and live in a parallel universe called Cool World. After sexy "doodle" Holli (Basinger) has sex with Byrne, she becomes human and escapes to real world, with detective Pitt in tow. Too serious to be fun, too goofy to take seriously; lead characters unlikable and unappealing. Looks like a Roger Corman version of ROGER RABBIT. [PG-13] ▼●●

Coonskin (1975) C-83m. $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Ralph Bakshi. Barry White, Charles Gordone, Scatman Crothers, Philip (Michael) Thomas. Outrageous, original film about the status of blacks in America is told with live-action and animation vignettes, the best of which are sly parodies of the stories from Disney and Uncle Remus' SONG OF THE SOUTH. Very much in the Bakshi vein; uneven but worth a look. Video title: STREET FIGHT. [R] ▼

Cop (1987) C-110m. $\frac{1}{2}$ D: James B. Harris. James Woods, Lesley Ann Warren, Charles Durning, Charles Haid, Raymond J. Barry, Randi Brooks, Annie McEnroe, Vicki Wauchope. Woods is excellent as usual in this otherwise familiar drama about a dedicated cop, his troubled marriage, and the difficulties he encounters while on a murder case. Woods and Harris coproduced. [R] ▼●●

Copacabana (1947) 92m. $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Alfred E. Green. Groucho Marx, Carmen Miranda, Andy Russell, Steve Cochran, Gloria Jean, Louis Sobol, Abel Green, Earl Wilson. Potentially intriguing Marx-Miranda casting can't save this unengrossing musical comedy. Groucho is a Broadway agent attempting to promote Carmen, his only client, resulting in her being hired for two jobs (in two different guises) at the same nightclub. This was Groucho's first film without his brothers. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Cop & 1/2 (1993) C-93m. BOMB D: Henry Winkler. Burt Reynolds, Norman D. Golden II, Ruby Dee, Holland Taylor, Ray Sharkey, Sammy Hernandez, Frank Sivero. And a hemorrhoid-and-a-half to anyone who sits all the way through it. Circumstances (read: scriptwriter's contrivance) dictate that a cop-addicted black kid become the new partner of a white detective who's trying to crack a drug punk. Abjectly painful comedy. Low point: a urination bonding scene with Reynolds in which the youngster wants to "make swords." [PG] ▼●●

Cop au Vin (1984-French) C-110m. $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Claude Chabrol. Jean Poiret, Stephane Audran, Michel Bouquet, Jean Topart, Lucas Belvaux, Pauline Lafont. Chabrol is in fine form in this diverting, neatly paced thriller about a young mail boy, his widowed, invalid mother, and a greedy trio who attempt to evict them from their home. Murder brings a shrewd cop on the scene to investigate. Followed by a sequel, INSPECTEUR LAVARDIN. ▼

Cop Land (1997) C-105m. $\frac{1}{2}$ D: James Mangold. Sylvester Stallone, Harvey Keitel, Ray Liotta, Robert De Niro, Peter Berg, Janeane Garofalo, Robert Patrick, Michael Rapaport, Annabella Sciorra, Noah Emmerich, Cathy Moriarty, John Spencer, Frank Vincent, Malik Yoba, Bruce Altman, Edie Falco, Tony Sirico, Deborah Harry. Stallone plays a sheriff who's eaten a few too many donuts and is responsible for looking the other way in a New Jersey town inhabited almost exclusively by N.Y.C. cops who exist, it seems, above the law. Keitel is their ringleader, De Niro an Internal Affairs officer on his trail. A solid premise, and a riveting start, give way to increasingly conventional (and predictable) plotting by writer-director Mangold. [R] ▼●●

Cop-Out (1967-British) C-95m. $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Pierre Rouve. James Mason, Geraldine Chaplin, Bobby Darin, Paul Bertoya, Ian Ogilvy, Bryan Stanton. OK murder mystery with dated generation-gap overtones. Reclusive lawyer Mason comes out of retirement to defend his daughter's boyfriend on trumped-up murder charge. Remake of 1942 French film STRANGER IN THE HOUSE.

Copper Canyon (1950) C-83m. $\frac{1}{2}$ D: John Farrow. Ray Milland, Hedy Lamarr, Macdonald Carey, Mona Freeman, Harry Carey, Jr., Frank Faylen, Hope Emerson, Percy Helton. OK Western of post-Civil War days, with Confederate vet Milland faced with decision to assist fellow Southerners who are being harassed as they attempt to mine copper. Lamarr plays the femme fatale. ▼●●

Cops and Robbers (1973) C-89m. $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Aram Avakian. Cliff Gorman, Joseph Bologna, Dick Ward, Shepperd Strudwick, John P. Ryan, Ellen Holly, Dolph Sweet, Joe Spinell. Enjoyable Donald Westlake tale about two policemen who pull a million-dollar caper on Wall Street. Funny and exciting, with good location photography by David L. Quaid. [PG] ▼●

Cops and Robbers (1994) C-93m. $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Michael Ritchie. Chevy Chase, Jack Palance, Dianne Wiest, Robert Davi, David Barry Gray, Jason James Richter, Fay Masterson, Mike Hughes, Richard Romanus.

Veteran cop Palance and a young cohort need to borrow Chase's house to stake out a lowlife who's living next door; this, it turns out, is a dream come true for Chevy, who's addicted to TV cop shows and fancies himself a hero. Premise of a baby boomer living out his pop-culture fantasies echoes CITY SLICKERS (Palance included) but isn't nearly as good. [PG] ▼●●

Copycat (1995) C-125m.  D: Jon Amiel. Sigourney Weaver, Holly Hunter, Dermot Mulroney, Harry Connick, Jr., William McNamara, Will Patton, John Rothman, J. E. Freeman. Psychiatrist (Weaver) who's an expert on serial killers—and now traumatized into an agoraphobic existence—joins forces with dedicated cops Hunter and Mulroney to track down the latest (and smartest) murderer in San Francisco. Slickly made, tense and entertaining, although it, like the concurrent SE7EN, forces us to get to know a sick mind better than we might care to. And like many visceral thrillers, it will not stand up to intense scrutiny. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Copying Beethoven (2006-British-Hungarian) C-103m.  D: Agnieszka Holland. Ed Harris, Diane Kruger, Matthew Goode, Phyllida Law, Joe Anderson, Ralph Riach, Karl Johnson, Nicholas Jones. Fictionalized depiction of an aged, maniacal Ludwig van Beethoven and the female (!) copyist trying to transcribe his Ninth Symphony while suffering his tirades. Harris, in his third teaming with director Holland, manages to be at once solid and hammy as the deaf maestro; Kruger is fine. Best to forget the histrionic subplots and enjoy the climax: the 1824 premiere of the "Ode to Joy" as conducted by its composer. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Coraline (2009) C-100m. ½ D: Henry Selick. Voices of Dakota Fanning, Teri Hatcher, John Hodgman, Jennifer Saunders, Dawn French, Keith David, Ian McShane, Robert Bailey, Jr. Deliciously original stop-motion animated feature about a girl who's just moved into a rambling old house with her parents and is feeling neglected. She discovers a doorway to an alternate world, where her Other Mother offers everything she's missing in real life—but, as she learns, it all comes at a terrible price. Intriguingly creepy and constantly surprising. Director Selick adapted Neil Gaiman's best-selling book and also did the amazing production design, which looks especially striking in 3-D. [PG]

Core, The (2003) C-136m.  D: Jon Amiel. Aaron Eckhart, Hilary Swank, Delroy Lindo, Stanley Tucci, DJ Qualls, Richard Jenkins, Tcheky Karyo, Bruce Greenwood, Alfre Woodard. Strange, seemingly isolated events around the world portend a larger disaster as the earth's electromagnetic field is deteriorating. The only solution involves a perilous journey to the earth's core, which requires the efforts of

a motley band of scientific specialists. Exciting, old-fashioned Saturday-matinee film, packed with vivid special effects sequences; transcends its obvious formula with ample humor, colorfully written characters, and a first-rate cast. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Corky Romano (2001) C-85m. BOMB D: Rob Pritts. Chris Kattan, Vinessa Shaw, Peter Falk, Peter Berg, Chris Penn, Fred Ward, Richard Roundtree. Dreadful comedy from the "idiot as hero" genre. Hyperkinetic Kattan (funny only in small doses) plays the wayward son of a Mob family who's forced to infiltrate the FBI to destroy evidence that would convict his father, Pops Romano (Falk). Clumsy in every department. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Cornbread, Earl and Me (1975) C-95m. ½ D: Joe Manduke. Moses Gunn, Bernice Casey, Rosalind Cash, Madge Sinclair, Keith Wilkes, Tierre Turner, Larry Fishburne. Well-intentioned but overly melodramatic account of a black youth, on his way out of the ghetto on a basketball scholarship, who is mistakenly gunned down by police bullets. Fine performances and warm sense of black life evaporate in TV clichés. Fishburne's film debut. [PG] ▼●

Corn Is Green, The (1945) 114m. ½ D: Irving Rapper. Bette Davis, Nigel Bruce, John Dall, Joan Loring, Rhys Williams, Rosalind Ivan, Mildred Dunnock. Thoughtful acting in this story of devoted middle-aged teacher Davis in Welsh mining town coming to terms with her prize pupil. Emlyn Williams' play was adapted by Casey Robinson and Frank Cavett. Remade, beautifully, for TV with Katharine Hepburn in 1979. ▼

Corporate Affairs (1990) C-82m. *½ D: Terence Winkless. Peter Scolari, Mary Crosby, Chris Lemmon, Ken Kercheval, Richard Herd, Lisa Moncure, Kim Gillingham. Doomed attempt to cross-pollinate WEEKEND AT BERNIE'S with WORKING GIRL. Scolari takes advantage of former lover Crosby when she gives CEO Kercheval a heart attack during a tryst. But is he really dead? Somehow enormous amounts of t&a are shown to advantage in a concurrent office orgy. [R]▼

Corporation, The (2004-Canada) C-145m. ½ D: Jennifer Abbott, Mark Achbar. Fascinating documentary presents a history of corporations, from the time courts granted them great power during the industrial revolution up to the present day, when private industry seems to have more influence on the workings of the world than governments. Hardly unbiased, but well researched and persuasive, including interviews with everyone from Michael Moore and Noam Chomsky to a CEO who underwent a major change of heart and now tries to convince his fellow executives that they cannot destroy the environment in the name of profit. Ambitious, eye-opening film based on the book by Joel Bakan; written by Bakan and Achbar. ▽

Corpse Vanishes, The (1942) 64m.  D: Wallace Fox. Bela Lugosi, Luana Walters, Tristram Coffin, Elizabeth Russell, Vince Barnett, Joan Barclay, Angelo Rossitto. Bela is a scientist who kidnaps brides for the purpose of using their body fluids to rejuvenate wife Russell, an elderly countess. ▼

Corridor of Mirrors (1948-British) 105m.  D: Terence Young. Eric Portman, Edana Romney, Barbara Mullen, Hugh Sinclair, Joan Maude, Lois Maxwell, Christopher Lee. Underrated "art" film, similar to Jean Cocteau's work of this period, has Portman well cast as an artist who lives in the past, surrounding himself with Renaissance-era objects. Beautiful Romney (whose acting is not so hot) is the woman he falls in love with. Stunning sets, photography, and musical score. ▼

Corridors of Blood (1963-British) 86m. ½ D: Robert Day. Boris Karloff, Beta St. John, Finlay Currie, Christopher Lee, Francis Matthews, Adrienne Corri, Nigel Green. Middling account of 19th-century British doctor who experiments with anesthetics, becomes addicted to the narcotics, and winds up consorting with grave-robbers to continue his experiments. Corrina, Corrina (1994) C-114m.  D: Jessie Nelson. Whoopi Goldberg, Ray Liotta, Tina Majorino, Don Ameche, Wendy Crewson, Larry Miller, Erica Yohn, Jennifer Lewis, Joan Cusack, Harold Sylvester, Steven Williams, Patrika Darbo, Lucy Webb. Sweet-natured film about a young widower who hires a housekeeper to help take care of his daughter—little dreaming how important she'll become to both of them. As a document of social mores in the late 1950s this has its ups and downs, but endearing performances and upbeat point of view

Corrupt (1983-Italian) C-99m.  D: Roberto Faenza. Harvey Keitel, Nicole Garcia, Leonard Mann, John Lydon, Sylvia Sidney. Intriguing, entertaining psychological thriller about N.Y.C. policeman Keitel, his victimization by mysterious Lydon, and a hunt for a cop killer. Corrupt Ones, The (1966-French-Italian-West German) C-92m. ½ D: James Hill. Robert Stack, Elke Sommer, Nancy Kwan, Christian Marquand, Werner Peters. Knock-about photographer Stack is befriended by stranger who gives him key (literally!) to ancient Chinese emperor's treasure. With better dialogue for its many grotesque characters, film could've been a knockout. Techniscope. ▼

Corruptor, The (1999) C-110m.  D: James Foley. Chow Yun-Fat, Mark Wahlberg, Ric Young, Paul Ben-Victor, Jon Kit Lee, Andrew Pang, Brian Cox, Elizabeth Lindsey, Byron Mann, Kim Chan, Tovah Feldshuh. Wahlberg is assigned to the otherwise all-Chinese NYPD Asian gang unit and gradually wins the trust of Yun-Fat, leader of the task force. However, not everyone is as honest as they seem. Routine cop action film enlivened—but not enough—by Yun-Fat's sizzling star performance and Wahlberg's solid work. Lee is both silky and slimy in the title role. Super 35. [R] ▼

Corvette Summer (1978) C-105m.  D: Matthew Robbins, Mark Hamill, Annie Potts, Eugene Roche, Kim Milford, Richard McKenzie, William Bryant. High schooler Hamill falls for aspiring hooker Potts while in Vegas tracking down the person who stole the sports car restored by his shop class. Bland comedy drama offers Potts' disarmingly off-the-wall performance to keep your attention. [PG]▼

Così (1996-Australian) C-100m.  D: Mark Joffe, Ben Mendelsohn, Barry Otto, Toni Collette, Rachel Griffiths, Aden Young, Colin Friels, Greta Scacchi, Paul Mercurio. Professionally unfulfilled drifter with a stable law school girlfriend makes a desperate career move when he agrees to stage Mozart's Così Fan Tutte as part of a therapy session for Sydney mental inmates. Unusual but eventually tiresome comedy, from Louis Nowra's play, features lots of familiar faces (to fans of Australian cinema) in supporting roles. [R]▼

Cosmic Eye, The (1985) C-76m.  D: Faith Hubley. Voices of Maureen Stapleton, Dizzy Gillespie, Sam Hubley, Linda Atkinson. Wonderfully imaginative, life-affirming animated feature about the needs, rights, and struggles of mankind, most especially children, around the world. A tapestry that includes pieces of earlier animated shorts by John and Faith Hubley, with music by such notables as Dizzy Gillespie, Benny Carter, and Elizabeth Swados.▼

Cote d'Azur (2005-French) C-90m. ½ D: Olivier Ducastel, Jacques Martineau. Valéria Bruni-Tedeschi, Gilbert Melki, Jean-Marc Barr, Jacques Bonaffé, Edouard Collin, Romain Torres, Sabrina Seyvecou. One randy summer in an old family house on the Riviera, where vacationing parents, progeny, tag-alongs, and old flames all collide in a simmering stew of middle-age lust and teenage hormones. Several overheated characters plus a lot of bedrooms and a shower stall . . . you do le math. Breezy but insubstantial scenario is wistfully unreal, a demi-musical (!) with singing, dancing, and experimental romancing. Written by the directors.▼

Cotter (1973) C-94m. ½ D: Paul Stanley, Don Murray, Carol Lynley, Rip Torn, Sherry Jackson. After tragic rodeo incident, unhappy Indian clown (Murray) struggles to reestablish himself in home town. Good cast in fair script that fares best in creating small-town atmosphere.▼

Charles "Honi" Coles, Larry Fishburne, James Russo, Giancarlo Esposito. Homage to the days of colorful gangsters and Harlem nightlife has style to spare and a wonderful soundtrack full of Duke Ellington music (Gere plays his own cornet solos); all it needs is a story and characters whose relationships make some sense. Visually striking with good scenes scattered about. Not nearly as interesting as the published stories about its tumultuous production! [R]▼

Cotton Comes to Harlem (1970) C-97m.  D: Ossie Davis. Godfrey Cambridge, Raymond St. Jacques, Calvin Lockhart, Judy Pace, Redd Foxx, Emily Yancy, Cleavon Little. St. Jacques is Coffin Ed Johnson, Cambridge is Gravedigger Jones, black cops who suspect preacher Lockhart's back-to-Africa campaign is a swindle. Neatly combines action and comedy, with fine use of Harlem locales; from Chester Himes' novel. Sequel: COME BACK, CHARLESTON BLUE. [R]▼

Cotton Mary (1999-French-British-U.S.) C-124m. ½ D: Ismail Merchant. Greta Scacchi, Madhur Jaffrey, James Wilby, Sakina Jaffrey, Neena Gupta, Prayag Raaj, Laura Lumley, Gemma Jones, Sarah Badel. Stultifying drama, set in India in 1954, in which the Anglo-Indian title character manipulates her way into a British household and causes all sorts of tumult. Potentially interesting story of the clash between British and Indian cultures is full of obvious symbolism; a real snooze. Madhur Jaffrey (who plays Cotton Mary) is listed in the credits as "co-director." [R]▼

Couch in New York, A (1996-Belgian-French-German) C-105m. ½ D: Chantal Akerman. Juliette Binoche, William Hurt, Stephanie Buttle, Barbara Garrick, Paul Guilfoyle, Richard Jenkins, Kent Broadhurst. N.Y.C. therapist Hurt, in desperate need of a change of scenery, switches apartments with Parisian dancer Binoche. Flat, uninspired romantic comedy. [R]▼

Couch Trip, The (1988) C-97m. ½ D: Michael Ritchie. Dan Aykroyd, Walter Matthau, Charles Grodin, Donna Dixon, Richard Romanus, Arye Gross, David Clennon, Mary Gross. Amusing, if somewhat lackluster, comedy about a mental institution escapee who masquerades as a successful Beverly Hills psychiatrist and radio adviser. Some good laughs, served by a solid cast, but the story is pretty thin. [R]▼

Counsellor at Law (1933) 82m. * D: William Wyler. John Barrymore, Bebe Daniels, Doris Kenyon, Onslow Stevens, Isabel Jewell, Melvyn Douglas, Thekla Todd, John Qualen, Mayo Methot. Vivid adaptation of Elmer Rice play about rags-to-riches Jewish lawyer who can't escape his background—and begins to question his success when he learns his wife has been unfaithful. Barrymore gives one of his greatest performances in meaty, colorful role; Wyler keeps this comedy-drama moving at break-neck pace. Scripted by Rice. Cast also includes future directors Vincent Sherman, Richard Quine, and Robert Gordon. ▼

Countdown (1968) C-101m. ½ D: Robert Altman. James Caan, Joanna Moore, Robert Duvall, Barbara Baxley, Charles Aidman, Steve Ihnat, Michael Murphy, Ted Knight. Near-flawless depiction of real-life trials and concerns of American astronauts, their wives, co-workers, leading to first flight to moon. Excellent ensemble performances, intelligent script by Loring Mandel, based on Hank Searls' novel. Dated technology only liability. An early gem from Altman. Look fast for Mike Farrell. Panavision. ▼

Countdown at Kusini (1976-Nigerian) C-101m.  D: Ossie Davis. Ruby Dee, Ossie Davis, Greg Morris, Tom Aldredge, Michael Ebert, Thomas Baptiste. Well-meaning treatment of liberation of fictional African country, "Fahari." Action and ideas are constantly swallowed up by romantic subplot. Financed by DST Telecommunications, subsidiary of Delta Sigma Theta, world's largest black sorority. [PG] ▼

Count Dracula (1970-Italian-Spanish-German) C-98m. ½ D: Jess Franco. Christopher Lee, Herbert Lom, Klaus Kinski, Frederick Williams, Maria Rohm, Soledad Miranda. Flawed but interesting low-budget adaptation of Bram Stoker novel which sticks close to its source; Lee turns in remarkably low-key performance. [PG] ▼

Count Dracula and His Vampire Bride (1973-British) C-84m. *½ D: Alan Gibson. Christopher Lee, Peter Cushing, Michael Coles, William Franklyn, Freddie Jones, Joanna Lumley. Last of the Hammer Films Dracula series is awfully tired, despite modern-day setting; the Count gets hold of a plague virus that can destroy mankind. Cut for U.S. release from original 88m. version called SATANIC RITES OF DRACULA. Video title: THE RITES OF DRACULA. [R] ▼

Counterfeit Commandos SEE: Inglorious Bastards

Counterfeiters, The (2007-Austrian-German) C-98m. ½ D: Stefan Ruzowitzky. Karl Markovics, August Diehl, David Striesow, Martin Brambach, August Zimer, Veit Stübner. Cocky and talented Russian-Jewish counterfeiter is sent to the Sachsenhausen concentration camp to participate in Operation Bernhard, to help the Third Reich bring down the British and American economies by printing millions of phony pound notes and dollars. Chilling portrait of a man who pretends to care only about himself and the price he pays for survival. Based on an incredible true story; Ruzowitzky adapted the book by Adolf Burger, one of the protago-nist's fellow prisoners (played here by Diehl). Oscar winner as Best Foreign Language Film. [R] ▼

Counterfeit Killer, The (1968) C-95m.  D: Josef Leytes. Jack Lord, Shirley Knight, Jack Weston, Charles Drake, Joseph Wiseman, Don Hanmer. Adapted from TV film THE FACELESS MAN, meandering actioner has Lord a secret service man infiltrating a counterfeit syndicate, with predictable results. Video title: CRACKSHOT. ▼

Counterfeit Traitor, The (1962) C-140m. ½ D: George Seaton. William Holden, Lilli Palmer, Hugh Griffith, Erica Beer, Werner Peters, Eva Dahlbeck. Holden is a double agent during WW2, falls in love with Palmer between various dangerous missions. Authentic backgrounds and fine cast. Based on true story. ▼

Counterpoint (1968) C-107m. *½ D: Ralph Nelson. Charlton Heston, Maximilian Schell, Kathryn Hays, Leslie Nielsen, Anton Diffring. Absurd WW2 melodrama about symphony conductor captured by Nazi general, forced to put on private concert; Heston looks comfortable because he doesn't have to change facial expressions while conducting. Techniscope. ▼

Counter Punch SEE: Ripped Off

Counter Tenors, The SEE: White Voices
Countess Dracula (1972-British) C-94m.  D: Peter Sasdy. Ingrid Pitt, Nigel Green, Peter Jeffrey, Lesley-Anne Down. Countess masquerades as her own daughter, needs blood to maintain facade of youth. OK shocker. Based on historical figure Elisabeth Bathory; has nothing to do with Dracula. ▼

Countess From Hong Kong, A (1967-British) C-108m. *½ D: Charles Chaplin. Marlon Brando, Sophia Loren, Sydney Chaplin, Tippi Hedren, Patrick Cargill, Margaret Rutherford. Director-writer-composer (and bit-part actor) Chaplin's attempt to make old-fashioned romantic comedy sinks fast, though everybody tries hard. Sophia stows away in shipboard stateroom of diplomat Brando. Badly shot, badly timed, badly scored. A pity, particularly because this is Chaplin's cinematic swan song. ▼

Count of Monte Cristo, The (1934) 119m. ½ D: Rowland V. Lee. Robert Donat, Elissa Landi, Louis Calhern, Sidney Blackmer, Raymond Walburn, O.P. Heggie, Luis Alberni, Irene Hervey. Superb filmization of classic story of Edmond Dantes, who spends years in prison unjustly but escapes to seek revenge on enemies who framed him. Donat leads excellent cast in rousing classic from Dumas' story. ▼

Count of Monte Cristo, The (1954-French) C-97m. ½ D: Robert Vernay. Jean Marais, Lia Amanda, Roger Pigaut. Serviceable rendition of Alexandre Dumas costume classic. ▼

Count of Monte Cristo, The (1961-French)

C-90m. ½ D: Claude Autant-Lara. Louis Jourdan, Yvonne Furneaux, Pierre Mondy, Bernard Dheran. Faithful adaptation of Dumas novel, but Jourdan hasn't the zest that Robert Donat gave the role in 1934. Originally 120m. Dyaliscope.

Count of Monte Cristo, The (2002-British-Irish-U.S.) C-131m.  D: Kevin Reynolds, Jim Caviezel, Guy Pearce, Richard Harris, Dagmara Dominczyk, Michael Wincott, Luis Guzman, James Frain, Alex Norton. Surprisingly good version of the Dumas evergreen, with Caviezel an impressive Edmond Dantes, who is unjustly imprisoned and vows revenge against those who wronged him. Final section of the story succumbs to the obvious, but overall a nice job. Harris is a standout as Dantes' fellow prisoner. Debut screenplay for veteran TV producer Jay Wolpert. Super 35. [PG-13]

Country (1984) C-109m.  D: Richard Pearce. Jessica Lange, Sam Shepard, Wilford Brimley, Matt Clark, Therese Graham, Levi L. Knebel. Penetrating, believable look at modern farming family torn apart when government threatens to foreclose on loan and take their land away. It's the woman whose strength holds things together (and it's Lange who coproduced the film); all performances are first rate, and William D. Wittliff's script neatly avoids clichés. [PG]▼●●

Country Bears, The (2002) C-88m.  D: Peter Hastings. Christopher Walken, Stephen Tobolowsky, Daryl "Chill" Mitchell, M. C. Gainey, Diedrich Bader, Alex Rocco, Meagen Fay, Queen Latifah, Eli Marienthal; voices of Haley Joel Osment, James Gammon, Brad Garrett, Kevin Michael Richardson, Toby Huss, Stephen Root, Diedrich Bader. "Inspired by" a Disneyland attraction, this lazy excuse for a kid film has a young bear (who's been adopted by a human family) going back to his roots, and helping a legendary music group to stage a reunion and rescue their performance hall. If they spent more time on the script and less time setting up cameo appearances (Willie Nelson, Bonnie Raitt, Elton John, etc.) it might have been better. [G]▼

Country Dance SEE: Brotherly Love

Country Girl, The (1954) 104m. ½ D: George Seaton. Bing Crosby, Grace Kelly, William Holden, Anthony Ross. Kelly won an Oscar as wife of alcoholic singer (Crosby) trying for comeback via help of director (Holden). Crosby excels in one of his finest roles. Writer-director Seaton also won Academy Award for adaptation of Clifford Odets play. Remade for cable TV in 1982. ▼

Country Life (1995-Australian) C-107m.  D: Michael Blakemore. Sam Neill, Greta Scacchi, John Hargreaves, Kerry Fox, Michael Blakemore, Googie Withers, Maurie

Fields, Robyn Cruze, Ron Blanchard. Chekhov's Uncle Vanya is transposed to an Australian sheep farm, circa WW1, and the result is absolutely delightful. Colonial Aussies simultaneously crave and clash with European sensibilities, especially when the enigmatic paterfamilias Alexander (a wickedly fun role, played by writer-director Blakemore) returns from London with the stunning Scacchi in tow. Subtle comedy, high drama, and a great deal of aroused passions ensue. And, yes, that's Britain's Googie Withers (longtime resident of Australia) as Hannah the maid—stealing every scene she's in. [PG-13]▼●●

Count the Hours (1953) 76m.  D: Don Siegel. Teresa Wright, Macdonald Carey, Dolores Moran, Adele Mara, Jack Elam. Lawyer Carey takes case of migrant worker falsely accused of a double murder. Trim, well-directed (if implausible) story; Elam is at his slimiest as an alcoholic psycho.

Count Three and Pray (1955) C-102m. ½ D: George Sherman. Van Heflin, Joanne Woodward, Raymond Burr, Nancy Kulp. Atmospheric rural Americana in post-Civil War days, with Heflin exerting influence on townfolk as new pastor with reckless past. Woodward (making film debut) as strong-willed orphan lass and Burr, the perennial villain, are fine. CinemaScope.

Count Yorga, Vampire (1970) C-91m.  D: Bob Keljan. Robert Quarry, Roger Perry, Donna Anders, Michael Murphy, Michael Macready. Sophisticated, clever vampire (Quarry) establishes coven in modern-day Southern California. Fast-paced and convincing. Alternate version, THE LOVES OF COUNT IORGA, VAMPIRE is rated PG-13. Sequel: THE RETURN OF COUNT YORGA. [PG]▼●●

Count Your Blessings (1959) C-102m.  D: Jean Negulesco. Deborah Kerr, Rossano Brazzi, Maurice Chevalier, Martin Stephens, Tom Helmore, Patricia Medina. Unfunny comedy that even Chevalier's smile can't help. Kerr marries French playboy Brazzi during WW2; he goes off philandering for years. Their child conspires to bring them together again. CinemaScope.

Count Your Bullets SEE: Cry For Me, Billy

Coup de Foudre SEE: Entre Nous

Coup de Grace (1976-French-German) C-96m.  D: Volker Schlöndorff. Margarethe von Trotta, Matthias Habich, Rudiger Kirschstein, Valeska Gert. Disappointing tale of a self-destructive countess (von Trotta, wife of the director), who wastes her life because the officer she loves does not reciprocate her feelings. Bleak, sometimes confusing film, not as emotional or involving as it should be. ▼

Coup de Torchon (1981-French) C-128m. ½ D: Bertrand Tavernier. Philippe Noiret, Isabelle Huppert, Stéphane Audran, Irene Skobline, Eddy Mitchell, Jean-Pierre

Marielle, Guy Marchand. Strong, disturbing black comedy, based on a novel by American Jim Thompson but reset in 1936 Equatorial Africa. Easygoing police chief (Noiret) of small colonial town is a doormat for everyone in sight, especially his wife; he gradually realizes he can use his position to gain vengeance with impunity. Fascinating film eventually overplays its hand, but enthralling most of the way, with marvelously shaded performance by Noiret. Aka CLEAN SLATE. ▼●●

Coupe de Ville (1990) C-99m.  D: Joe Roth. Patrick Dempsey, Arye Gross, Daniel Stern, Alan Arkin, Annabeth Gish, Rita Taggart, Joseph Bologna, James Gammon. Obvious, forgettable formula tale of three warring brothers forced to deal with their feelings as they drive dad Arkin's car from Detroit to Florida. Set in 1963 and—guess what?—there are oldies on the soundtrack. Still, the sequence in which the boys debate the origin of, and words to, "Louie, Louie" is almost worth the price of admission. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Courage Mountain (1989-U.S.-French) C-98m. ½ D: Christopher Leitch. Juliette Caton, Charlie Sheen, Leslie Caron, Joanna Clarke, Nicola Stapleton, Jade Magri, Kathryn Ludlow, Jan Rubes, Yorgo Voyagis. Implausible though inoffensive updating of Johanna Spyri's Heidi, detailing what happens when the teenage girl is sent off to boarding school at the outset of WWI. Sheen is sorely miscast as Peter, her ever-loyal beau. [PG] ▼●●

Courage of Lassie (1946) C-92m. ½ D: Fred Wilcox. Elizabeth Taylor, Frank Morgan, Tom Drake, Selena Royle, George Cleveland, Carl (Alfalfa) Switzer. Third of the MGM Lassie movies has a radiant Taylor trying to rehabilitate the collie after his combat experiences during WW2. Despite title, the dog in question is called Bill, not Lassie, though played by the same collie who starred in the other studio films. Filmed on beautiful locations in Canada. ▼●

Courage Under Fire (1996) C-115m. ½ D: Edward Zwick. Denzel Washington, Meg Ryan, Lou Diamond Phillips, Michael Moriarty, Sean Astin, Matt Damon, Seth Gilliam, Tim Guinee, Scott Glenn, Bronson Pinchot, Kathleen Wildoes, Diane Baker. Compelling tale of a career Army officer, troubled by Persian Gulf War incident in which he was involved in an accidental death. Now he's assigned to investigate the death of a female Captain (Ryan) nominated for the Medal of Honor. In RASHOMON-like flashbacks, we learn that there's more to her story than meets the eye. Intelligent, multilayered story (by Patrick Sheane Duncan) about integrity, personal honor, and public hypocrisy. [R] ▼●●

Court Jester, The (1956) C-101m. * D: Norman Panama, Melvin Frank. Danny Kaye, Glynis Johns, Basil Rathbone, Angela Lansbury, Cecil Parker, Mildred Natwick, Robert Middleton, John Carradine. One of the best comedies ever made has Danny as phony jester who finds himself involved in romance, court intrigue, and a deadly joust. Delightfully complicated comic situations (scripted by the directors), superbly performed. And remember: the pellet with the poison's in the vessel with the pestle. VistaVision. ▼●●

Court Martial (1955-British) 105m.  D: Anthony Asquith. David Niven, Margaret Leighton, Victor Maddern, Maurice Denham. Tense courtroom story of officer Niven accused of stealing military funds. The trial reveals provocations of grasping wife. A solid drama. Originally released as CARRINGTON, V.C. ▼

Court-Martial of Billy Mitchell, The (1955) C-100m.  D: Otto Preminger. Gary Cooper, Charles Bickford, Ralph Bellamy, Rod Steiger, Elizabeth Montgomery, Fred Clark, James Daly, Jack Lord, Peter Graves, Darren McGavin. Low-key drama about trial of military pioneer who in 1925 predicted Japanese attack on U.S. Steiger adds spark to slowly paced film as wily attorney; Montgomery made her movie debut here. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Courtship of Eddie's Father, The (1963) C-117m.  D: Vincente Minnelli. Glenn Ford, Ronny Howard, Shirley Jones, Stella Stevens, Dina Merrill, Roberta Sherwood, Jerry Van Dyke. Cute family comedy with Howard trying to find wife for widower father Ford. Look sharp for Lee Meriwether as Glenn's assistant. Later a TV series. Panavision. ▼●●

Cousin Bette (1998) C-108m. ½ D: Des McAnuff. Jessica Lange, Bob Hoskins, Elisabeth Shue, Hugh Laurie, Aden Young, Geraldine Chaplin, Laura Fraser, Toby Stephens, Kelly Macdonald, Janie Hargreaves, John Sessions, John Benfield. Lange sees her chance for revenge after a lifetime of mistreatment when her beautiful, pampered cousin dies and Lange becomes part of the cousin's household. But her plans go awry as each person in her scheme pursues his or her own selfish agenda. Venomously witty black comedy from the Balzac novel, set in 1840s Paris, dulls its impact by taking a few turns too many. Shue is ideal as a sexy, self-absorbed soubrette. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Cousin Bobby (1991) C-70m. ½ D: Jonathan Demme. Highly personal, intelligent documentary about director Demme looking up his cousin after many years, and learning about his work. The Reverend Robert Castle is a Harlem priest who is steadfastly devoted to his parishioners, and long committed to radical political activism. A fascinating portrait of a complex individual, and of his evolving relationship with his filmmaker cousin. ▼

Cousin, Cousine (1975-French) C-95m.

 D: Jean-Charles Tacchella. Marie-Christine Barrault, Victor Lanoux, Marie-France Pisier. Guy Marchand, Ginette Garcin, Sybil Maas. Barrault and Lanoux, married to others, become cousins by marriage and decide to go way beyond the kissing stage. Mild, easy-to-take comedy that became a surprise box-office sensation in U.S.—where it was later remade as COUSINS. [R]▼●

Cousins, The (1959-French) 112m. ½ D: Claude Chabrol. Jean-Claude Brialy, Gerard Blain, Juliette Mayniel, Claude Cerval, Genevieve Cluny. Complex, depressing, ultimately haunting tale of youthful disillusion, with decadent city boy Brialy and provincial cousin Blain competing for the affection of beauty Mayniel. Superbly directed by Chabrol.▼

Cousins (1989) C-110m.  D: Joel Schumacher. Ted Danson, Isabella Rossellini, Sean Young, William Petersen, Lloyd Bridges, Norma Aleandro, Keith Coogan. A big family wedding sets the stage for romantic intrigues within two colorful clans. Highly enjoyable Americanization of the French hit COUSIN, COUSINE with charming performances by Danson, as a free-spirited soul, and Rossellini, as the married cousin to whom he's attracted. [PG-13]▼●●

Covenant, The (2006-U.S.-Canadian) C-97m. ½ D: Renny Harlin. Steven Strait, Sebastian Stan, Laura Ramsey, Taylor Kitsch, Toby Hemingway, Jessica Lucas, Chace Crawford, Wendy Crewson, Kyle Schmid, Kenneth Welsh. A quartet of teen-boy warlocks, descended from powerful Salem witches, admits a mysterious fifth member into their enchanted group, with the expected blast of repercussions. The dudes' misuse of debilitating magical powers is a heavy-handed allegory of drug addiction, but the theme still resonates. Something of a guys-in-Speedos movie, but darkly atmospheric. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Cover Girl (1944) C-107m.  D: Charles Vidor. Rita Hayworth, Gene Kelly, Lee Bowman, Phil Silvers, Jinx Falkenburg, Eve Arden, Otto Kruger, Anita Colby. Incredibly clichéd plot is overcome by loveliness of Rita, fine Jerome Kern-Ira Gershwin musical score (including "Long Ago and Far Away"), and especially Kelly's solo numbers. Silvers adds some laughs, but Eve Arden steals the film as Kruger's wisecracking assistant.▼●●

Cover Me Babe (1970) C-89m. BOMB D: Noel Black. Robert Forster, Sondra Locke, Susanne Benton, Robert S. Fields, Ken Kercheval, Sam Waterston, Regis Toomey. Depressingly bad movie about student filmmaker who lets nothing stand in the way of gaining a contract. [PG—edited from original R rating]

Cowards Bend the Knee (2003-Canadian) 64m.  D: Guy Maddin. Darcy Fehr, Melissa Dionisio, Amy Stewart, Tara Birtwhistle,

Louis Negin, Mike Bell. Delirious b&w silent melodrama that takes place in the catwalk of a hockey rink and at a seamy beauty parlor. Our hero abandons his girlfriend for a siren who insists that he cut off his hands and replace them with those of her dead father. If you're still reading this you may be ready to sample Maddin's unique semi-autobiographical journey, originally presented as a series of ten Mutoscope shorts in an art installation. Plays like a hallucinatory silent film—a bad, splicy print with jump-cuts during titles that send them out of focus. Twisted, bizarre, and absolutely mesmerizing.●

Cowboy (1958) C-92m.  D: Delmer Daves. Glenn Ford, Jack Lemmon, Anna Kashfi, Brian Donlevy, Dick York. Intelligent, atmospheric Western based on Frank Harris' reminiscences as a tenderfoot. Lemmon is Harris, with Ford as his stern boss on eventful cattle roundup.▼●

Cowboy and the Lady, The (1938) 91m. ½ D: H. C. Potter. Gary Cooper, Merle Oberon, Patsy Kelly, Walter Brennan, Fuzzy Knight, Harry Davenport, Henry Kolker. Bored, aristocratic Oberon, whose father is a presidential aspirant, goes slumming at a rodeo and falls for reluctant cow-puncher Cooper. Slight (if sometimes overly cute) comedy. Leo McCarey cowrote the story; the script had contributions from Anita Loos and Dorothy Parker!▼●●

Cowboy Bebop: The Movie (2002-Japanese) C-114m.  D: Shinichirō Watanabe. Voices of Beau Billingslea, Melissa Fahn, Nicholas Guest, Jennifer Hale. Delightfully stylish, refreshingly humorous animated tale about an eclectic team of space bounty hunters tracking down a bio-terrorist on Mars. Certain details will be lost on those unfamiliar with the TV show on which it's based, and there are a few of the plodding, pretentious moments that plague most anime, but the extremely dynamic action sequences and oddball charm of the characters make for an enjoyable romp. Original Japanese subtitle translates to COWBOY BEBOP: KNOCKIN' ON HEAVEN'S DOOR. [R]▼●

Cowboy from Brooklyn (1938) 77m. ½ D: Lloyd Bacon. Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien, Priscilla Lane, Dick Foran, Ann Sheridan, Johnnie Davis, Ronald Reagan, Emma Dunn. Singing tenderfoot Powell, who has a phobia about animals, hires on at a Wyoming dude ranch, then is mistaken for a cowboy crooner by fast-talking N.Y. agent O'Brien. Silly but enjoyable music-comedy includes songs "Ride, Tenderfoot Ride" and the title tune. Remade as TWO GUYS FROM TEXAS.

worth. Well-produced but sluggish Western about aging rancher forced to take 11 youngsters with him on cattle drive; disappointing film whose message seems to be that violent revenge is good. Carradine's first film. Later a short-lived TV series. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Cowboy Way, The (1994) C-102m.  D: Gregg Champion. Woody Harrelson, Kiefer Sutherland, Ernie Hudson, Dylan McDermott, Tomas Milian, Marg Helgenberger, Luis Guzman, Travis Tritt, Allison Janney, Christopher Durang. Two rodeo pals from New Mexico come to N.Y.C. to see what's happened to a Cuban friend who disappeared there—and soon find themselves caught in underworld crossfire. Needlessly ugly, unrealistic; only the good-natured performances of the two leads carry it. [PG-13] ▼●●

Coyote Ugly (2000) C-100m. ½ D: David McNally. Piper Perabo, Adam Garcia, Maria Bello, John Goodman, Melanie Lynskey, Isabella Miko, Bridget Moynahan, Tyra Banks, Del Pentacost, Ellen Cleghorne, Bud Cort, LeAnn Rimes. Fairly innocuous fantasy/fluff about young woman who leaves New Jersey to make it as a songwriter in N.Y.C.—and winds up strutting alongside some hot-looking babes at a wild all-night bar. Elements of formula films (including producer Jerry Bruckheimer's FLASHDANCE) are cobbled together in routine but likable fashion. Director Michael Bay has a cameo as a photographer. Unrated version runs 107m. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

CQ (2002) C-91m. ½ D: Roman Coppola. Jeremy Davies, Angela Lindvall, Élodie Bouchez, Giancarlo Giannini, Gérard Depardieu, Billy Zane, Massimo Ghini, Jason Schwartzman, John Phillip Law, Dean Stockwell. Emotionally repressed film editor living in Paris in 1969 works on a BARBARELLA-like sci-fi film and becomes infatuated with its beautiful leading lady—while allowing a real-life relationship with a woman who loves him to evaporate. Nearly a good movie, but its scattershot ideas have no dramatic momentum. Debut for writer-director Coppola (Francis' son), with a cameo by sister Sofia and a juicy role for cousin Schwartzman. Giannini is a standout as a bombastic Italian producer, and the movie within a movie is fun—with Law (from the real BARBARELLA) a welcome presence. [R] ▼●

Crackers (1984) C-92m.  D: Louis Malle. Donald Sutherland, Jack Warden, Sean Penn, Wallace Shawn, Trinidad Silva, Larry Riley, Christine Baranski, Charlaire Woodard, Irwin Corey. Remake of the classic caper comedy BIG DEAL ON MADONNA STREET, set in San Francisco, strives for the offbeat (in its motley collection of misfit characters) but forgets to go for the laughs, too. [PG] ▼●

Cracking Up (1983) C-83m.  D: Jerry Lewis. Jerry (Who Else?), Herb Edelman, Zane Buzby, Dick Butkus, Milton Berle,

Sammy Davis, Jr., Foster Brooks, Buddy Lester. Jerry plays various characters in vignettes loosely tied to suicidal klutz seeking help from shrink Edelman. There are funny moments (some mildly risqué), but Jerry refuses to believe that Less Is More. Originally titled SMORGASBORD; shelved after test engagements. [PG] ▼

Crack in the Mirror (1960) 97m.  D: Richard Fleischer. Orson Welles, Juliette Greco, Bradford Dillman, Alexander Knox. Welles, Greco, and Dillman enact contrasting dual roles in intertwining love triangles set in contemporary Paris, involving murder, courtroom trial, and illicit love; novelty eventually wears thin, marring Grade-A effort. CinemaScope.

Crack in the World (1965) C-96m. ½ D: Andrew Marton. Dana Andrews, Janette Scott, Kieron Moore, Alexander Knox, Peter Damon. Believable sci-fi about scientists trying to harness earth's inner energy but almost causing destruction of the world; realistic special effects.

Art critic O'Brien remembers surviving a train wreck that never took place; it's just the first incident in a growing web of intrigue and murder. Tense, fast-paced Hitchcockian thriller with many imaginative touches. ▼●

Cradle 2 the Grave (2003) C-99m. *½ D: Andrzej Bartkowiak. Jet Li, DMX, Gabrielle Union, Anthony Anderson, Kelly Hu, Tom Arnold, Mark Dacascos, Michael Jace, Chi McBride. As an array of baddies and rival half-baddies pursue coveted black diamonds that look like oversized Chiclets, most of the actors playing these parts pursue their dramatically diverse audience demographics. Union is around for the demographic that enjoys seeing semi-unclad lookers, but even those viewers may have trouble with a script about diamonds with nuclear capabilities. DMX's neckwear looks as if it could pick up sandlot baseball games from Radio Havana. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Cradle Will Rock (1999) C-134m. ½ D: Tim Robbins. Hank Azaria, Ruben Blades, Joan Cusack, John Cusack, Cary Elwes, Philip Baker Hall, Cherry Jones, Angus Macfadyen, Bill Murray, Vanessa Redgrave, Susan Sarandon, Jamey Sheridan, John Turturro, Emily Watson, Bob Balaban, Paul Giamatti, Harris Yulin, Barnard Hughes, John Carpenter, Gretchen Mol, Audra McDonald, Stephen Spinella, Jack Black. Sprawling, invigorating concoction uses Orson Welles and John Houseman's legendary stage production of Marc Blitzstein's The Cradle Will Rock as a springboard for looking at 1930s art, culture, politics, and big business. Writer-director Robbins takes liberties with the facts but creates a fascinating patchwork of personalities, ideas, and ideals. Aims high and succeeds amazingly well. Super 35. [R]▼

Craft, The (1996) C-100m.  D: Andrew Fleming. Robin Tunney, Fairuza Balk, Neve Campbell, Rachel True, Christine Taylor, Skeet Ulrich, Assumpta Serna, Cliff De Young, Helen Shaver. Four teenage girls, students at a private L.A. school, dabble in witchcraft. At first, they're gleeful about their powers, but eventually things get out of hand. Surprisingly witty, intelligent movie handles this goofy premise better than you'd think but goes too far at the end. [R]▼

Craig's Wife (1936) 75m.  D: Dorothy Arzner. Rosalind Russell, John Boles, Billie Burke, Jane Darwell, Dorothy Wilson, Alma Kruger, Thomas Mitchell. Russell scored first big success as domineering wife who thinks more of material objects than of her husband. Based on George Kelly play, remade as HARRIET CRAIG.▼

Cranes Are Flying, The (1957-Russian) 94m. ½ D: Mikhail Kalatozov. Tatyana Samoilova, Alexei Batalov, Vasili Merkuriev, A. Shvorin. Lifting love story set in WW2 Russia. Doctor's son (Batalov) leaves his sweetheart (Samoilova) to join the army. She is seduced by his cousin, marries him, and from subsequent tragedies tries to rebuild her life.▼

Crank (2006) C-87m.  D: Mark Neveldine, Brian Taylor. Jason Statham, Amy Smart, Jose Pablo Cantillo, Efen Ramirez, Dwight Yoakam, Carlos Sanz, Reno Wilson. Professional assassin is injected with a dose of lethal poison that will become fatal the moment his heart rate drops. Knowing this, he embarks on a nonstop race against time in which he tries to foil the plot against him and find an antidote. Silly premise may entertain fans with the attention span of a beagle. The action doesn't let up, but forget about logic, good acting, and smart dialogue. It took two directors to make this non-thinking man's thriller. Try the original D.O.A. instead. Followed by a sequel. [R]

Crank: High Voltage (2009) C-96m. *½ D: Mark Neveldine, Brian Taylor. Jason Statham, Amy Smart, Clifton Collins, Jr., Efen Ramirez, Bai Ling, David Carradine, Reno Wilson, Joseph Julian Soria, Dwight Yoakam, Corey Haim. Brainless, tasteless sequel picks up right where its predecessor ended. Thugs rob hit man Statham of his heart, which is implanted in the chest of an aged Chinese mobster (Carradine). The replacement is electrically powered and must be recharged on a regular basis. Ridiculous action thriller has no decipherable storyline and is crammed with gratuitous violence and sex. Strains to be hip, but comes off cheap and vulgar. HD Widescreen. [R]

Jealous invalid husband Ferrer tries to kill wife Lyon, who uses demonic device to cause mayhem on her own. Panavision. [PG] Crash (1996-Canadian) C-100m. *½ D: David Cronenberg. James Spader, Holly Hunter, Elias Koteas, Rosanna Arquette, Deborah Kara Unger, Peter MacNeil. Steely-cold look at alienated people who find sexual excitement in automobile crashes. Filled with explicit sex as well as fetishistic scenes involving car accidents. Curiosity seekers may find it intriguing for a while, but it's awfully hard to take. Cronenberg adapted this fatally unpleasant film from J. G. Ballard's novel. Creeps along at the pace of a Yugo. R-rated version cut by 10m. [NC-17]▼

Crash (2005-U.S.-German) C-112m. ½ D: Paul Haggis. Meditation on the clash of ethnic and racial cultures in L.A. as disparate lives intersect and ignite various characters' simmering anger. Provocative drama has powerful vignettes and performances, offering consistently disturbing (and believable) scenes of anger and bigotry, with tiny glimmers of hope in metaphoric moments. Directing debut for Haggis, who cowrote the screenplay with Bobby Moresco. Oscar winner for Best Picture, Original Screenplay, Film Editing (Hughes Winborne). Later a TV series. [R]▼

Crash and Burn (1990) C-85m.  D: Charles Band. Paul Ganus, Megan Ward, Ralph Waite, Bill Moseley, Eva LaRue, Jack McGee, Elizabeth MacLellan. In the year 2030, a group isolated in a desert installation is menaced by one of them, secretly a killer android. A mix of ideas from THE THING, THE TERMINATOR, and ALIEN is occasionally effective, but too slow and familiar. Some good if brief David Allen effects involving a giant robot turn up at the end. From Full Moon. [R]▼

Crash Dive (1943) C-105m. ½ D: Archie Mayo. Tyrone Power, Anne Baxter, Dana Andrews, James Gleason, Dame May Whitty, Henry (Harry) Morgan. Submarine battleground just backdrop for love story; Power and Andrews both love young Baxter. Oscar winner for special effects, film's main asset.▼

Crawling Hand, The (1963) 89m. *½ D: Herbert L. Strock. Peter Breck, Kent Taylor, Rod Lauren, Arline Judge, Richard Arlen, Allison Hayes, Alan Hale, Jr. Astronaut's disembodied hand instigates rash of stranglings in this amateurish rehash of THE BEAST WITH FIVE FINGERS. Good for a few (unintended) laughs, anyway.▼

Crawlspace (1986) C-82m. BOMB D: David Schmoeller. Klaus Kinski, Talia

Balsam, Sally Brown, Barbara Whinnery. Shameless imitation of PEEPING TOM, as Kinski spies on young women from his apartment's hidden crawlspace area and then kills them, the legacy of his father having been a Nazi war criminal. [R] ▼

Craze (1974-British) C-96m. ½ D: Freddie Francis. Jack Palance, Diana Dors, Julie Ege, Trevor Howard, Suzy Kendall, Michael Jayston, Dame Edith Evans. [R] ▼

Crazies, The (1973) C-103m.  D: George Romero. Lane Carroll, W.G. McMillan, Harold Wayne Jones, Lloyd Hollar, Lynn Lowry. Biological plague hits small Pennsylvania town. The Army is called in to contain it; townspeople rebel, defy soldiers. Gory but exciting. Aka CODE NAME: TRIXIE. [R] ▼

C.R.A.Z.Y. (2005-Canadian) C-129m. ½ D: Jean-Marc Vallée. Michel Côté, Marc-André Grondin, Danielle Proulx, Émile Vallée, Pierre-Luc Brillant, Maxime Tremblay, Alex Gravel, Johanne Lebrun. From childhood, Zach is told he possesses a gift of healing granted to him by Jesus . . . but he's equally troubled by a suspicion that he's gay. Already alienated from his older brothers, this puts him at risk of infuriating his proud, domineering (and homophobic) father. Absorbing comedy-drama covers many years in the life of a family, from 1960 to 1980, as it charts a young man's journey of self-awareness. Runs the emotional gamut but never strikes a false note. Written by Vallée and François Boulay. Winner of ten Genie awards, including Best Picture. ▶

Crazy/Beautiful (2001) C-99m.  D: John Stockwell. Kirsten Dunst, Jay Hernandez, Bruce Davison, Lucinda Jenney, Taryn Manning, Rolando Molina. A wealthy white high school girl, whose hell-raising ways mask a troubled soul, falls in love with a Latino boy from the other side of the tracks. Story makes all the right moves at first, then ducks too many issues and whitewashes too many details to make sense, logically or emotionally. Too bad; this one had some potential. [PG-13] ▼

Crazy House (1943) 80m.  D: Edward F. Cline. Ole Olsen, Chic Johnson, Martha O'Driscoll, Patric Knowles, Cass Daley, Percy Kilbride. Olsen & Johnson take over film studio to make epic in frantic musicomedy with guests galore: Basil Rathbone, Count Basie, Allan Jones, Edgar Kennedy, Billy Gilbert, Andy Devine, etc.

Crazy House (1973-British) C-90m.  D: Peter Sykes. Ray Milland, Frankie Howerd, Rosalie Crutchley, Kenneth Griffith, Elizabeth McClennan. Horror spoof that fails as comedy but succeeds with the chills. Overage entertainer Howerd finds he's related to Milland's greedy family, which is being killed off for an inheritance. U.S. title: NIGHT OF THE LAUGHING DEAD. Video title: HOUSE IN NIGHTMARE PARK. [PG] ▼

Crazy in Alabama (1999) C-104m. ½ D: Antonio Banderas. Melanie Griffith, David Morse, Lucas Black, Cathy Moriarty, Meat Loaf Aday, Rod Steiger, Richard Schiff, John Beasley, Robert Wagner, Paul Mazursky, Elizabeth Perkins, Noah Emmerich, Fannie Flag. Picaresque tale of the mid-1960s South: abused Griffith chops off her husband's head, leaves her seven kids, and goes to Hollywood seeking fame and fortune, toting hubby's head in a hatbox. Meanwhile, her nephew comes face-to-face with racism. Doesn't succeed in tying its parallel stories together but holds your interest. Creditable directing debut for Banderas, whose wife is well cast. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Crazy Joe (1974-Italian-U.S.) C-100m. ½ D: Carlo Lizzani. Peter Boyle, Rip Torn, Fred Williamson, Eli Wallach, Paula Prentiss, Luther Adler. Crime drama based on the bloody career of New York racketeer Crazy Joe Gallo is tolerable, due to its cast. Henry Winkler can be seen as a mustached hoodlum. [R] ▼

Crazy Love (2007) C-92m.  D: Dan Klores, Fisher Stevens. Absorbing documentary about a woman who made headlines in 1959 when her suitor had acid thrown in her face. Today, the two of them are married! A wild, stranger-than-fiction, only-in-New-York yarn that reveals its story one layer at a time, through vintage news accounts and intimate new interviews. Fascinating and well told. [PG-13] ▶

Crazy Mama (1975) C-82m.  D: Jonathan Demme. Cloris Leachman, Stuart Whitman, Ann Sothern, Jim Backus, Donny Most, Linda Purl, Bryan Englund, Merie Earle, Sally Kirkland. Joyous, unrelentingly kitschy celebration of '50s America (opportunity, rock 'n' roll, and the road), made during Demme's exploitation days, follows three generations of women (Sothern, Leachman, Purl) and the men they pick up, on an absurdist crime spree from California to family homestead in Arkansas. Rough in places; overall a gem. Dennis Quaid has bit part in film debut. [PG] ▼

Crazy Moon (1986-Canadian) C-87m.  D: Allan Eastman. Kiefer Sutherland, Peter Spence, Vanessa Vaughan, Ken Pogue, Eve Napier. Occasionally clichéd, but still warm, winning little story of wealthy, alienated teen Sutherland and his romance with bright, independent—and deaf—salesgirl Vaughan. Originally titled HUGGERS. [PG-13] ▼

Crazy People (1990) C-90m.  D: Tony Bill. Dudley Moore, Daryl Hannah, Paul Reiser, Mercedes Ruehl, J.T. Walsh, Bill Smitrovich, Alan North, David Paymer, Dick Cusack, Ben Hammer. Stressed-out ad exec Moore devises a series of brutally

honest (and very funny) advertisements, which prompt his partner to place him in a mental institution. Then, to everyone's amazement, the ads are a sensational success. Though the mock ads are quite funny, film is bland, even dull. Ever likable Dudley chalks up a few extra points. [R]▼●●

Crazy-Quilt, The (1966) 75m.  D: John Korty. Ina Mela, Tom Rosqui, David Winters, Ellen Frye. Korty's first feature is almost a home movie, featuring arresting images but diffuse, whimsical (ultimately pompous) story of girl's various romantic liaisons while her exterminator husband sits around and mopes. Filmed silent, with awkward post-synched dialogue; relies heavily upon Burgess Meredith's narration, unusual score by Peter Schickele.

Crazy World of Julius Vrooder, The (1974) C-89m. ½ D: Arthur Hiller. Timothy Bottoms, Barbara Hershey, George Marshall, Albert Salmi, Lawrence Pressman. Nobody likes this offbeat comedy of a confused Vietnam vet who acts insane to cope with a crazy world, but it has a certain charm. Veteran director Marshall returned to acting here shortly before his death. [PG]

Created to Kill SEE: Embryo

Creation of the Humanoids (1962) C-75m. BOMB D: Wesley E. Barry. Don Megowan, Frances McCann, Erica Elliott, Don Doolittle. Years after an atomic war, human beings are about to be outnumbered by their subservient robots; anti-robot Megowan discovers a plot to replace people with robot duplicates. Andy Warhol loved this slow, stagy cheapie.▼●

Creator (1985) C-107m.  D: Ivan Passer. Peter O'Toole, Mariel Hemingway, Vincent Spano, Virginia Madsen, David Ogden Stiers, John Dehner, Jeff Corey. O'Toole once again plays a Lovable Eccentric (which he does to perfection), this time a university-based scientist who's trying to revive his long-dead wife and who serves as mentor for impressionable student Spano. Amiable but aimless adaptation of Jeremy Leven's novel, redeemed only by O'Toole's magnetism. [R]▼●●

Creature (1985) C-97m.  D: William Malone. Stan Ivar, Wendy Schaal, Lyman Ward, Robert Jaffe, Diane Salinger, Annette McCarthy, Klaus Kinski. Imitation of ALIEN set on Saturn's moon Titan has nondescript cast investigating life forms discovered (fatally) by a previous mission. Guest star Kinski is funny, whether spouting gibberish or munching nonchalantly on a sandwich during otherwise tense scenes. Originally titled TITAN FIND. [R]▼●●

'50s monster movie has been copied so often that some of the edge is gone, but story of Amazon expedition encountering deadly Gill Man is still entertaining, with juicy atmosphere, luminous underwater photography sequences directed by James C. Havens and Scotty Welbourne. Originally in 3-D, but just as good without it. Two sequels: REVENGE OF THE CREATURE AND THE CREATURE WALKS AMONG US.▼●●

Creature From the Haunted Sea (1961) 74m. *½ D: Roger Corman. Antony Carbone, Betsy Jones-Moreland, Edward Wain, E. R. Alvarez, Robert Bean. Creature Walks Among Us, The (1956) 78m.  D: John Sherwood. Jeff Morrow, Rex Reason, Leigh Snowden, Gregg Palmer. Sequel to REVENGE OF THE CREATURE has Gill Man (Ricou Browning in water, Don Megowan on land) captured by humans, subjected to surgery in hopes of humanizing him, returning to the ocean after a few mild tantrums.▼●●

Creature Wasn't Nice, The (1981) C-88m. *½ D: Bruce Kimmel. Cindy Williams, Bruce Kimmel, Leslie Nielsen, Gerrit Graham, Patrick Macnee, Ron Kurovski. Silly monster-loose-in-spaceship parody: Nielsen is the firm but obtuse commander, Macnee the loony scientist, Williams the only woman on board, etc. Believe it or not, this is a musical (one song is titled "I Want to Eat Your Face"). Aka SPACESHIP and NAKED SPACE. [PG]▼●

Creature With the Blue Hand (1970-German) C-74m.  D: Alfred Vohrer. Klaus Kinski, Diana Kerner, Carl Lang, Ilse Pape, Harold Leopold. OK Edgar Wallace story has innocent man accused of murders perpetrated by title creature. Aka THE BLOODY DEAD. [PG]▼●

Creepers (1984-Italian) C-110m.  D: Dario Argento. Jennifer Connelly, Donald Pleasence, Daria Nicolodi, Dalila Di Lazzaro, Patrick Bauchau, Fiore Argento. Typically stylish, bizarre Argento horror opus whose premise—a mad killer running amok at a

Swiss girls' school—serves as a framework for some cleverly weird goings-on. For openers, Connelly plays a girl who has a most unusual relationship with insects. Don't say you weren't warned! Aka PHENOMENA. Also shown in 82m. version. [R]▼●●

Creeping Flesh, The (1973-British) C-94m.  D: Freddie Francis. Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee, Lorna Heilbron, George Benson. Creepshow (1982) C-120m.  D: George Romero. Hal Holbrook, Adrienne Barbeau, Fritz Weaver, Leslie Nielsen, Carrie Nye, E. G. Marshall, Viveca Lindfors, Ed Harris, Ted Danson, Gaylen Ross. Romero nicely captures the look of a comic book in this homage to 1950s E.C. Comics, but Stephen King's five "fantastic tales" of revenge and just desserts are transparent and heavy-handed (King himself stars in the second episode, as an ill-fated rube). Finale has hundreds of cockroaches bursting through the stomach of a man with an insect phobia (Marshall). If that's your cup of tea, tune in. Followed by two sequels. [R]▼●●

Creepshow 2 (1987) C-89m. *½ D: Michael Gornick. Lois Chiles, George Kennedy, Dorothy Lamour, Tom Savini, Domenick John, Frank S. Salsedo, Holt McCallany, David Holbrook, Page Hannah. George A. Romero scripted this trio of Stephen King short stories, but their combined reputations can't lift this cheap-looking movie out of the muck. As in the much slicker CREEPSHOW, all the stories are juvenile and heavy-handed (a wooden Indian comes to life, a hitchhiker run over by a motorist lives on to terrorize her, etc.). King appears briefly as a truck driver. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [R]▼●●

Crest of the Wave (1954-British) 90m. ½ D: John Boulting, Roy Boulting. Gene Kelly, John Justin, Bernard Lee, Jeff Richards. Static account of Navy officer Kelly joining British research group to supervise demolition experiments.

Richard Dreyfuss, Burt Reynolds, Seymour Cassel, Dan Hedaya, Jennifer Tilly, Carrie-Anne Moss, Lainie Kazan, Jeremy Piven, Miguel Sandoval, Fyvush Finkel, Casey Siemaszko. Silly comedy about four Miami senior citizens who yearn to relive their glory days as mobsters . . . and unexpectedly get their chance when they run afoul of a Latino drug lord. Featherweight movie coasts on the good will of its cast. [PG-13]▼●

Cries and Whispers (1972-Swedish) C-106m.  D: Ingmar Bergman. Harriet

Crime Busters (1980-Italian) C-98m. *½ D: E. B. Clucher (Enzo Barboni). Terence Hill, Bud Spencer, Laura Gemser, Luciana Catenacci. Filmed in Miami, this cop-movie parody is a hair better than other Hill-Spencer efforts, but not a patch on the Trinity films; chief novelty derives from watching them go through their paces in a contemporary American setting. Bad dubbing doesn't help. Filmed in 1976 as TWO SUPERCOPS. Originally 115m. [PG]▼●

Crime in the Streets (1956) 91m. ½ D: Donald Siegel. James Whitmore, John Cassavetes, Sal Mineo, Mark Rydell, Virginia Gregg, Denise Alexander, Will Kuluva, Peter Votrian, Malcolm Atterbury. Incisive if over-long drama of angry, alienated teen Cassavetes, who conspires to commit murder. Good performance by Cassavetes, also Mineo and future director Rydell as his cronies and Whitmore as an idealistic social worker. Adapted by Reginald Rose from his 1955 teleplay; Cassavetes, Rydell, and Kuluva repeat their TV performances.▼

Crime of Father Amaro, The (2002-Mexican-Argentinean-Spanish-French) C-

120m. * D: Carlos Carrera. Gael García Bernal, Sancho Gracia, Ana Claudia Talancón, Damián Alcázar, Angélica Aragón, Pedro Armendáriz, Jr. Pointed melodrama about hypocrisy and corruption in the Catholic Church, centering on a handsome, newly ordained priest (Bernal) who becomes sexually involved with a beautiful 16-year-old parishioner. Controversial, to be sure, for its portrayal of desire and temptation (not to mention corruption) within the clergy. Based on a 19th-century Portuguese novel; a major box-office hit in Mexico. [R] ▼●

Crime of Monsieur Lange, The (1936-French) 90m.  D: Jean Renoir. Rene Lefevre, Jules Berry, Florelle, Nadia Sibirskaja, Sylvia Bataille, Jean Daste. Clever (if a bit too talky) tale of an exploited publishing house clerk (Lefevre), who pens stories in his spare time, his evil, lecherous boss (Berry), and a host of complications. Scripted by Jacques Prévert, with a pointed anticapitalist message. ▼●

Crime of Passion (1957) 84m. ½ D: Gerd Oswald. Barbara Stanwyck, Sterling Hayden, Raymond Burr, Fay Wray, Royal Dano, Virginia Grey. Stanwyck is rough and tough as grasping wife who'll do anything to forward police lieutenant husband's career. ▼

Crimes and Misdemeanors (1989) C-104m. ½ D: Woody Allen. Caroline Aaron, Alan Alda, Woody Allen, Claire Bloom, Mia Farrow, Joanna Gleason, Anjelica Huston, Martin Landau, Jenny Nichols, Jerry Orbach, Sam Waterston. Film's title indicates the themes of two separate stories, which are neatly tied up in the final scene. Landau plays a married man who is desperate to cut off an adulterous relationship in this somberly tragic tale. Allen is an unhappy documentary filmmaker who's wooing attractive Farrow while making a film about insufferably self-centered TV producer Alda, in a hilariously bittersweet story. Arguably Woody's most ambitious film, playing heavy drama against often uproarious comedy, and certainly one of his most passionately debated; a one-of-a-kind effort that only he could pull off. Daryl Hannah has an unbilled cameo as one of Alda's chipmunks. [PG-13] ▼●

Crime School (1938) 86m. ½ D: Lewis Seiler. Dead End Kids (Billy Halop, Bobby Jordan, Huntz Hall, Leo Gorcey, Bernard Punsley, Gabriel Dell), Humphrey Bogart, Gale Page. Bogart sets out to improve a reform school, but meets his match in the Dead End Kids. OK reworking of THE MAYOR OF HELL, weakened by the Kids' disreputable personalities and Bogart's unlikely casting as a do-gooder. Story rehashed again as HELL'S KITCHEN.

Crimes of Passion (1984) C-101m.  D: Ken Russell. Kathleen Turner, Anthony Perkins, John Laughlin, Annie Potts, Bruce Davison. Laughlin, trapped in a stale marriage, takes up with mysterious Turner—fashion designer by day, hooker by night. Watchable mess is, given the subject matter, less out of control than other Russell movies. Turner actually gives a performance; Perkins amuses in one of his standard nutso roles. One of the two homevideo versions has several minutes of kinky footage originally seen only in Europe. [R] ▼●

Crimes of the Heart (1986) C-105m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Diane Keaton, Jessica Lange, Sissy Spacek, Sam Shepard, Tess Harper, David Carpenter, Hurd Hatfield. Three Southern sisters, who are equally off-center, share their various woes and idiosyncrasies (along with pent-up jealousies and resentments) during a fateful reunion. Superior performances can't make a really good film out of Beth Henley's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, even though Henley wrote the screenplay herself. [PG-13] ▼●

Crime Spree (2003-U.S.-French-British-Canadian) C-98m. ½ D: Brad Mirman. Harvey Keitel, Gérard Depardieu, Johnny Hallyday, Renaud, Saïd Taghmaoui, Stéphane Freiss, Albert Dray, Abe Vigoda. Disparate group of thieves treks from Paris to Chicago to pull off a heist, but things don't go as planned. Tarantino-influenced comedy-crime film strives to be clever; innocuous fun, with some unnecessary flights into silliness. Depardieu is slumming here but Keitel, playing the underboss of the Chicago Mafia, deftly parodies his tough-guy image. [R] ▼

Crimewave (1985) C-83m. ½ D: Sam Raimi. Louise Lasser, Paul L. Smith, Brion James, Sheree J. Wilson, Bruce Campbell, Reed Birney, Edward R. Pressman, Julius Harris. After a successful debut with EVIL DEAD, director Raimi pays tribute to slapstick comedy with this weird, almost incoherent crime story set in Detroit. Smith and James are well cast as grotesque goons on a robbery/killing spree. This exercise in style was cowritten by Raimi's pals, Joel and Ethan Coen. [PG-13] ▼

Crime Without Passion (1934) 72m.  D: Ben Hecht, Charles MacArthur. Claude Rains, Margo, Whitney Bourne, Stanley Ridges, Esther Dale, Leslie Adams. Bizarre, fascinating melodrama of callous lawyer Rains, jealous of Margo's escorts, who must establish false alibi after shooting her in lovers' quarrel. Helen Hayes (Mrs. Charles MacArthur) and Fanny Brice have brief cameos in hotel lobby scene, and directors Hecht and MacArthur play reporters! Slavko Vorkapich contributed that incredible opening montage depicting The Furies in night flight over N.Y.C.

Crime Zone (1988) C-93m. ½ D: Luis Llosa. David Carradine, Peter Nelson, Sherilyn Fenn, Michael Shaner, Orlando Sacha. Moody sci-fi set in repressive, stratified future society. Upper-caste Carradine recruits young lovers to commit crimes for a surprising reason. Profane, satiric, well-crafted low-budgeter, but loses its way before the finish. Shot in Peru! [R]▼

Reilly, Diego Luna, Maggie Gyllenhaal, Peter Mullan, Jonathan Tucker, Enrico Colantoni, Zitto Kazann, Michael Shannon, Malik Yoba, Ellen Geer, Jack Conley. Cocky, small-time L.A. con artist (Reilly) takes on a protégé (Luna) who knows a trick or two himself. During the course of one eventful day they become involved in what could be the biggest deal of their lives. Entertaining yarn keeps you guessing to the very last minute. A remake of the Argentinean film NINE QUEENS. Jacobs' directing debut; he also cowrote the script with Sam Lowry (a pen name for coproducer Steven Soderbergh). [R]▼

Criminal Code, The (1931) 95m. ½ D: Howard Hawks. Walter Huston, Phillips Holmes, Constance Cummings, Mary Doran, Boris Karloff, De Witt Jennings. Warden Huston—tough but essentially fair—faces a dilemma when his daughter falls in love with prisoner Holmes. Creaky in parts, lively in others, but cast and director make this a must for buffs. Remade as PENITENTIARY in 1938 and CONVICED in 1950.▼

Criminal Law (1989) C-117m. *½ D: Martin Campbell. Gary Oldman, Kevin Bacon, Karen Young, Joe Don Baker, Tess Harper, Elizabeth Sheppard. Weak suspense film, done in by an unsatisfying script and unbelievable story. Slick attorney Oldman (playing an American—and quite well) matches wits with wealthy psychopath Bacon in tale of serial murders in Boston. Unnecessarily pretentious, unintentionally funny, and, unfortunately, filmed nowhere near Boston. [R]▼

Criminal Life of Archibaldo de la Cruz, The (1955-Mexican) 91m.  D: Luis Buñuel. Ernesto Alonso, Miroslava Stern, Rita Macedo, Ariadna Welter, Rodolfo Landa, Andrea Palma. Very minor psychological drama from Buñuel. As a boy, Archibaldo witnesses his governess' death and is fascinated by what he feels; as a man, he's obsessed with murder and dying. Much too talky; it sounds far more interesting than it plays.▼

Crimson Altar, The SEE: Crimson Cult, The

Crimson Blade, The (1963-British) C-82m. ½ D: John Gilling. Lionel Jeffries, Oliver Reed, Jack Hedley, June Thorburn, Duncan Lamont. OK swashbuckler features romance between two young people on opposite side of Cromwell's struggle for power in 17th century; good-looking Hammer production. Originally titled THE SCARLET BLADE. Megascope.

Crimson Cult, The (1968-British) C-87m.  D: Vernon Sewell. Mark Eden, Virginia Wetherell, Christopher Lee, Boris Karloff, Michael Gough, Barbara Steele. Lackluster script and pacing major flaws in standard witchcraft thriller featuring aging Karloff as expert on black magic, Steele (in green makeup) as 300-year-old witch. Original British titles: CURSE OF THE CRIMSON ALTAR and THE CRIMSON ALTAR. [M/PG]▼

Crimson Gold (2003-Iranian) C-92m.  D: Jafar Panahi. Hossain Emadeddin, Kamyar Sheisi, Azita Rayeji, Shahram Vaziri, Ehsan Amani, Pourang Nakhaei, Kaveh Najmabadi, Saber Safaei. A pizza delivery man in Tehran quietly endures a series of social indignities that eventually drive him to take desperate action. A subtle, pointed critique of class conflicts, told in slow, naturalistic style. Leading man Emadeddin was, in real life, a pizza delivery man. Written by (another) famed Iranian filmmaker, Abbas Kiarostami. This was banned in Iran.▼

Crimson Kimono, The (1959) 82m.  D: Samuel Fuller. Victoria Shaw, Glenn Corbett, James Shigeta, Anna Lee, Paul Dubov, Jaclynne Greene, Gloria Pall. Two L.A. detectives investigate a stripper's murder in this offbeat little film; more interesting for Sam Fuller buffs than general viewers, who may find story and treatment too low-key and meandering.

Crimson Pirate, The (1952) C-104m. ½ D: Robert Siodmak. Burt Lancaster, Nick Cravat, Eva Bartok, Torin Thatcher, Christopher Lee, James Hayter. Lancaster and Cravat swashbuckle their way across the Mediterranean in one of the great genre classics of all time. Cult film offers loads of thrills and laughs to both children and adults.▼

Crimson Rivers, The (2000-French) C-110m.  D: Mathieu Kassovitz. Jean Reno, Vincent Cassel, Nadia Farès, Dominique Sanda, Karim Belkhadra, Jean-Pierre Cassel. Compelling mystery-thriller about a police investigator called to a remote French valley where a grisly murder has occurred—the work of a deranged mind. Meanwhile, a detective from a small town miles away looks into the desecration of a young girl's tomb—which leads him onto the same path as his older, more famous colleague. Exciting, unpredictable film, adapted by Kassovitz and Jean-Christophe Grangé from the latter's novel. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Crimson Tide (1995) C-115m.  D: Tony Scott. Denzel Washington, Gene Hackman, Matt Craven, George Dzundza, Viggo Mortensen, James Gandolfini, Rocky Carroll, Jaime P. Gomez, Michael Milhoan, Scott Burkholder, Danny Nucci, Lillo Brancato, Jr., Rick Schroder, Vanessa Bell Caloway, Steve Zahn, Ryan Phillippe. The producer-director team that brought you TOP GUN fashioned this macho power-play saga aboard a Navy nuclear submarine. Tensions run high when the U.S. is pushed to the brink of war with Russia, especially when veteran sub commander Hackman starts showing Capt. Queeg tendencies and his new lieutenant (Washington) tries to assert himself. Obvious, to be sure, with a foregone conclusion, but highly entertaining just the same. Jason Robards appears unbilled. Hip dialogue added (without credit) by Quentin Tarantino. Alternate unrated version is 123m. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Crisis (1950) 95m. ½ D: Richard Brooks. Cary Grant, Jose Ferrer, Paula Raymond, Signe Hasso, Ramon Novarro, Antonio Moreno, Leon Ames, Gilbert Roland. Melodrama of American doctor (Grant) held in South American country to treat ailing dictator (Ferrer); intriguing but slow. Brooks's first film as director. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▽

Criss Cross (1949) 87m.  D: Robert Siodmak. Burt Lancaster, Yvonne De Carlo, Dan Duryea, Stephen McNally. Lancaster returns to hometown, where he crosses path of ex-wife De Carlo, who's taken up with gangster Duryea. Potent film noir look (by cinematographer Franz Planer) and music (by Miklos Rozsa) help compensate for Lancaster's miscasting as an easily manipulated husband. Tony Curtis' screen debut; he's briefly seen as De Carlo's dance partner. Remade in 1995 as UNDERNEATH. ▼●●

CrissCross (1992) C-100m.  D: Chris Menges. Goldie Hawn, Arliss Howard, James Gammon, David Arnett, Keith Carradine, J. C. Quinn, Steve Buscemi, Paul Calderon. Good intentions abound in this low-key drama set in Key West, Florida, in 1969. A 12-year-old boy lives with his mom, trying to survive since his Dad (a messed-up Vietnam vet) deserted them three years ago. The boy's rootlessness and (eventual) moral dilemma are delineated in credible but much too leisurely fashion, making this potential sleeper a yawner instead. [R] ▼●●

Critical Care (1997) C-109m. ½ D: Sidney Lumet. James Spader, Helen Mirren, Kyrá Sedgwick, Albert Brooks, Anne Bancroft, Wallace Shawn, Philip Bosco, Jeffrey Wright, Margo Martindale, Colm Feore, Edward Herrmann. A young resident, already cynical about the medical system and

his career, is drawn into a controversy over a patient who's on a life support system, and whose two daughters disagree about his future. Satire of modern medicine (from the director of NETWORK) is heavy-handed and obvious at times, but redeems itself with a satisfying conclusion. Brooks is fun as the aged, once-brilliant doctor whose memory is now shot. And it's hard to dislike any film that begins with the Delta Rhythm Boys singing "Dry Bones." [R] ▼●●

Critical Condition (1987) C-107m. BOMB D: Michael Apted. Richard Pryor, Rachel Ticotin, Ruben Blades, Joe Mantegna, Bob Dishy, Sylvia Miles, Joe Dallesandro, Bob Saget, Randall "Tex" Cobb, Garrett Morris. Pryor is a con artist who takes charge at a prison hospital, with predictable results. He's in good form, but the material just isn't there; its semiserious and sentimental threads don't work at all, and the comedy is pretty anemic. [R] ▼●●

Critic's Choice (1963) C-100m. ½ D: Don Weis. Bob Hope, Lucille Ball, Marilyn Maxwell, Rip Torn, Jessie Royce Landis, Marie Windsor, John Dehner. An in-joke Broadway play diluted for movie audience consumption. Lucy as a novice playwright outshines Hope who plays her drama critic hubby. Film emerges as tired, predictable comedy, with best moments contributed by supporting players. Based on a play by Ira Levin. Panavision. ▼

Critters (1986) C-86m. ½ D: Stephen Herek. Dee Wallace Stone, M. Emmet Walsh, Billy Green Bush, Scott Grimes, Nadine Van Der Velde, Terrence Mann, Billy Zane. GREMLINS-inspired aliens roll along like tumbleweeds, gobbling everything in sight while chuckling to themselves—until they're menaced by critter-hunters from space. Pretty good little thriller with comic overtones. Followed by three sequels. [PG-13] ▼●●

Critters 2: The Main Course (1988) C-87m.  D: Mick Garris. Scott Grimes, Liane Curtis, Don Opper, Barry Corbin, Tom Hodges, Sam Anderson, Lindsay Parker, Herta Ware, Terrence Mann, Roxanne Kerno-han. The big-mouthed, quill-shooting nasties take on an entire town. Nothing special. Followed by two video sequels. [PG-13] ▼●●

"Crocodile" Dundee (1986-Australian) C-97m.  D: Peter Faiman. Paul Hogan, Linda Kozlowski, John Meillon, David Gulpilil, Mark Blum, Michael Lombard, Irving Metzman. Amiable, laid-back Aussie comedy (that became an enormous worldwide hit) about an adventurer who shows a pretty American reporter around the bush country, then accompanies her to the equally strange terrain of N.Y.C. Irresistibly simple and old-fashioned, with a sweetness that's rare in modern comedies. Hogan, making his movie debut, also cowrote the screenplay (reportedly inspired by TARZAN'S

NEW YORK ADVENTURE). For American release quotation marks were added around CROCODILE—lest anyone think it was about a reptile! Followed by two sequels. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

“Crocodile” Dundee II (1988-U.S.-Australian) C-111m. ½ D: John Cornell. Paul Hogan, Linda Kozlowski, John Meillon, Ernie Dingo, Hechter U Barry, Juan Fernandez, Charles Dutton, Kenneth Welsh, Luis Guzman, Stephen Root, Colin Quinn. Pleasant followup to the runaway hit reverses the original by opening in N.Y.C. and winding up in the bush country of Australia. This time the unflappable tracker runs afoul of an international drug kingpin. So leisurely that after a while you wish they’d get on with it—especially when all suspense about the outcome is eliminated. Hogan’s charisma carries this almost singlehandedly. Written by Hogan and his son Brett. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Crocodile Dundee in Los Angeles (2001-U.S.-Australian) C-95m. *½ D: Simon Wincer. Paul Hogan, Linda Kozlowski, Serge Cockburn, Jere Burns, Jonathan Banks, Paul Rodriguez, Aida Turturro. Mick Dundee accompanies his ‘80s squeeze Sue (Kozlowski) to L.A. when she travels there to run the family newspaper and checks out the sights with their 9-year-old son. First Croco-pic in 13 years is as tired as it sounds, despite cameos by Mike Tyson and George Hamilton (touting coffee enemas. Decaf or regular?). Sue’s investigative reporting attempts to discover why a Hollywood studio keeps producing unwanted sequels, which is more irony than this picture can handle. [PG] ▼●

Crocodile Hunter: Collision Course, The (2002-Australian-U.S.) C-90m. *½ D: John Stainton. Steve Irwin, Terri Irwin, Magda Szubanski, David Wenham, Lachy Hulme, Aden Young, Kenneth Ransom, Kate Beahan. Contrived movie vehicle for the popular Aussie TV host and animal lover Irwin features nail-biting footage of him confronting snakes, spiders, and crocodiles, but it’s surrounded by a storyline so lame (enacted by an equally lame cast) that it hardly seems worth the trouble. For the record, a croc has swallowed a satellite capsule that the CIA needs to recover. Youthful fans are better off watching a rerun of the TV show instead. Super 35. [PG] ▼●

Cromwell (1970-British) C-145m.  D: Ken Hughes. Richard Harris, Alec Guinness, Robert Morley, Dorothy Tutin, Frank Finlay, Timothy Dalton, Patrick Wymark, Patrick Magee, Nigel Stock, Charles Gray, Michael Jayston, Geoffrey Keen. Turgid historical epic has everything money can buy, but no human feeling underneath. Harris is coldly unsympathetic as 17th-century Briton determined to rid England of tyrannical rule; one feels more sympathy for King Charles I (Guinness), which is not the idea. Great battle scenes, great cinematography and Oscar-winning costume design, hampered by Harris and amateurish music score. Panavision. [G] ▼●●

Crónicas (2004-Mexican-Ecuadorian) C-98m.  D: Sebastián Cordero. John Leguizamo, Leonor Watling, Damián Alcázar, José María Yazpik, Alfred Molina. Underdeveloped, repetitive story about a hotshot TV reporter who fancies himself a hero of the people. He intervenes in a lynching but learns that the man whose life he saved may have a connection to a serial killer. He keeps probing deeper, trying to get the elusive story while fending off his boss (Molina)—and carrying on an affair with the man’s wife, who is also his producer. Leguizamo is good as usual, but the story doesn’t add up. [R] ●

Cronos (1992-Mexican) C-92m.  D: Guillermo del Toro. Federico Luppi, Ron Perlman, Claudio Brook, Margarita Isabel, Tamara Shanath, Daniel Cacho, Mario Martinez, Juan Colombo, Farnesio DeBernal. An elderly, kindly antique dealer accidentally activates the Cronos Device, an instrument that grants eternal life—but at a great price: it turns the person who uses it into a (nontraditional) vampire. Howard Hughes-like billionaire Brook sends his chuckling nephew Perlman after the gadget. Inventive, entertaining film blends wit, horror, tragedy, and suspense in about equal doses, adding lots of oddball character details. ▼●

Crook, The (1971-French) C-120m.  D: Claude Lelouch. Jean-Louis Trintignant, Daniele Delorme, Charles Denner, Christine Lelouch. An elaborate kidnapping scheme takes surprising twists in this stylish and clever caper. [G] ●

Crooked Hearts (1991) C-112m.  D: Michael Bortman. Vincent D’Onofrio, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Pete Berg, Cindy Cicchetti, Peter Coyote, Juliette Lewis, Noah Wyle, Marg Helgenberger, Wendy Gazelle. Engaging, multileveled domestic drama showing how husband/father Coyote’s indiscretion affects the various members of his family. A thoughtful, well-acted sleeper. Bortman also scripted, from Robert Boswell’s novel. [R] ▼●●

Crooked Road, The (1965-British) 86m. ½ D: Don Chaffey. Robert Ryan, Stewart Granger, Nadia Gray, Marius Goring, George Coulouris. OK battle of wits between dictator Granger and newspaperman Ryan, who’s got the goods on him.

Crooklyn (1994) C-132m. ½ D: Spike Lee. Alfre Woodard, Delroy Lindo, David Patrick Kelly, Zelda Harris, Carlton Williams, Sharif Rashed, Tse-Mach Washington, Christopher Knowings, Jose Zuniga, Spike Lee, Frances Foster, Norman Matlock, Joie Susannah Lee, Vondie Curtis Hall, RuPaul. At times abrasive, at times embracing comedy-drama about a family’s life and times in 1970s Brooklyn, focusing on young Troy (Harris), who has a special relationship with her fiery mother and warmhearted father—and little use for her four raucous brothers. Vivid, semi-autobiographical film, written by Lee with his brother and sister, has strong performances and many fine moments, but it seems aimless at first and goes on for quite some time. One long sequence is shot in a deliberately distorted format. [PG-13]▼●●

Crooks and Coronets (1969-British) C-106m.  D: Jim O'Connolly. Telly Savalas, Edith Evans, Warren Oates, Cesar Romero, Harry H. Corbett. Crooks Savalas and Oates are hired to rob Evans' estate, but can't bring themselves to do it once they get to know her. Amiable but ordinary heist comedy. Aka SOPHIE'S PLACE. [M/PG]▼

Crooks Anonymous (1962-British) 87m. *½ D: Ken Annakin. Leslie Phillips, Stanley Baxter, Wilfrid Hyde-White, James Robertson Justice, Julie Christie. Cornball comedy with thief Phillips enrolling in Alcoholics Anonymous-type organization for hoods. Christie, in her film debut, plays Babette La Vern, a stripper.

Cross Creek (1983) C-122m.  D: Martin Ritt. Mary Steenburgen, Rip Torn, Peter Coyote, Dana Hill, Alfre Woodard, Joanna Miles, Ike Eisenmann, Cary Guffey, Jay O. Sanders. Leisurely paced but rewarding drama of writer Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings' endeavor to "find herself" by moving to remote Florida backwoods home—and dealing with the simple people around her. Wonderful performances and regional flavor—though Dalene Young's script takes more than a few liberties with the facts. Steenburgen's then real-life husband Malcolm McDowell has cameo as famed editor Maxwell Perkins. [PG]▼●

Crossed Swords (1954-Italian) C-86m. *½ D: Milton Krims. Errol Flynn, Gina Lollobrigida, Cesare Danova, Nadia Gray. Unsuccessful attempt to recapture flavor of swashbucklers of 1930s; set in 16th-century Italy with Flynn out to save Gina and her father's kingdom.

Crossed Swords (1978) C-113m.  D: Richard Fleischer. Mark Lester, Oliver Reed, Raquel Welch, Ernest Borgnine, George C. Scott, Rex Harrison, Charlton Heston. Lester is too old for his dual role in well-acted but flat version of Mark Twain's The Prince and the Pauper. Lavish sets, costumes, and Jack Cardiff's photography are main assets. Aka THE PRINCE AND THE PAUPER. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Crossing Delancey (1988) C-97m.  D: Joan Micklin Silver. Amy Irving, Reizl Bozyk, Peter Riegert, Jeroen Krabbé, Sylvia Miles, Suzzy Roche, George Martin, John Bedford Lloyd, Claudia Silver, Rosemary Harris, Amy Wright, David (Hyde) Pierce. Charming comedy about a self-reliant young N.Y.C. woman whose Jewish grandmother arranges for her to meet an eligible bachelor through the services of a marriage broker ... much to her chagrin. Amusing, sometimes wistful look at the clash between old-world traditions and our modern way of life. Adapted by Susan Sandler, from her play. [PG]▼●●

Crossing Guard, The (1995) C-114m.  D: Sean Penn. Jack Nicholson, David Morse, Anjelica Huston, Robin Wright, Piper Laurie, Richard Bradford, Robbie Robertson, John Savage, Priscilla Barnes, Kari Wuhrer, Richard Sarafian, Joe Viterelli. Introspective mood piece about a man's inability to deal with the drunk-driving death of his young daughter six years earlier, and his pursuit of the killer, who's just been released from prison. Sober and somber, but heavy-handed and never terribly moving. Penn wrote the original screenplay; his mother, Eileen Ryan, plays a jewelry store customer, and his father, Leo Penn, plays the skipper of a fishing boat. [R]▼●●

Crossing Over (2009) C-114m. *½ D: Wayne Kramer. Harrison Ford, Ray Liotta, Ashley Judd, Jim Sturgess, Cliff Curtis, Summer Bishil, Alice Braga, Alice Eve, Jacqueline Obradors, Justin Chon, Melody Khazae, Lizzy Caplan. Police and border officials are confronted daily with the human drama of ethnic strife, urban violence, and fraud. Cross-section of L.A. intersects (à la CRASH) with the thread being illegal immigration and cultural assimilation. Ford and Curtis are fine as U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement agent-partners but, like the other leads, they are stranded in a jumbled film that oversimplifies everything. Exploitative hodgepodge involving multiple races and religions—as well as sleaze—just doesn't jell. Super 35. [R]●

Crossing the Bridge (1992) C-103m. ½ D: Mike Binder. Josh Charles, Jason Gedrick, Stephen Baldwin, Cheryl Pollak, Jeffrey Tambor, Rita Taggart, Hy Anzell, Richard Edson, Ken Jenkins, David Schwimmer. Modest memory movie, set in the 1960s, about Detroit teens tempted to cross the bridge into Windsor, Canada—to transport hashish back into the States. Nothing special, but certainly nothing disgraceful, either. Stephen Baldwin gets a good showcase here. [R]▼

Crossing the Line (1991-U.S.-English-Scottish) C-93m. ½ D: David Leland. Liam Neeson, Joanne Whalley-Kilmer, Ian Bannen, Billy Connolly, Hugh Grant, Maurice Roeves, Rab Affleck. Two-fisted mine worker who's been blackballed out of work accepts an offer from a mysterious millionaire to fight bare-knuckled, but begins to worry that he's abandoned his principles for some quick cash. Serious-minded film has pretensions of eloquence and import, but doesn't really deliver; solid performances and canny filmmaking help. Connolly is a standout as Neeson's cheerfully sleazy friend. Based on William McIlvanney's novel The Big Man (also its video title). [R]▼

Cross My Heart (1987) C-90m.  D: Arnyan Bernstein. Martin Short, Annette O'Toole, Paul Reiser, Joanna Kerns. The story of a date where everything goes wrong, mainly because both the man and the woman refuse to act natural and be themselves. Winning costars bring out the truthful observations in this comic script (by director Bernstein and Gail Parent), but it's just too slight, and too slow. [R]▼

Cross of Iron (1977-British-West German) C-119m.  D: Sam Peckinpah. James Coburn, Maximilian Schell, James Mason, David Warner, Senta Berger, Klaus Loewitsch. Peckinpah's only war film, told from the viewpoint of Germans on the Russian front in 1943, is compelling without being particularly distinguished. The standard Peckinpah action scenes are excitingly done. European version runs 130m. Sequel: BREAKTHROUGH. [R]▼

Cross of Lorraine, The (1943) 90m. ½ D: Tay Garnett. Jean-Pierre Aumont, Gene Kelly, Cedric Hardwicke, Richard Whorf, Joseph Calleia, Peter Lorre, Hume Cronyn. High-grade propaganda of WW2 POW camp with hero Aumont rousing defeated Kelly to battle; Whorf is dedicated doctor, Lorre a despicable Nazi, Cronyn a fickle informer.

Crossover (1980) SEE: Mr. Patman
Crossover (2006) C-95m.  D: Preston A. Whitmore II. Anthony Mackie, Wesley Jonathan, Wayne Brady, Kristen Wilson, Lil' JJ, Phillip "Hot Sauce" Champion, Eva Pigford, Alecia Fears. Onetime sports agent (Brady), now a hotshot gambler, tempts hoopster friends with an offer to escape Detroit and become L.A. superstars. Mackie hopes his underground streetballer skills can shoot him to the big time, while Jonathan aims to become a doctor on an athletic scholarship. So what's it gonna be: no go or go pro, M.D. or MVP? Faustian morality play has visual zip and the hop that's hip, but the director's script is less than a pip. [PG-13]●

Crossover Dreams (1985) C-86m.  D: Leon Ichaso. Ruben Blades, Shawn Elliot,

Tom Signorelli, Elizabeth Pena, Frank Robles, Joel Diamond. Salsa performer Blades starts shafting his pals, enjoying the good life, when he thinks his upcoming album is going to make him a smash with mainstream audiences . . . then the record flops. Standard backstage drama offers nothing beyond novel ethnicity, though Blades has real presence on camera. ▼

Crossroads (1942) 82m.  D: Jack Conway. William Powell, Hedy Lamarr, Claire Trevor, Basil Rathbone, Margaret Wycherly, Felix Bressart, Reginald Owen, Sig Ruman, H. B. Warner. Smooth, clever tale of respected diplomat Powell, who was once a victim of amnesia; he is accused by an extortionist of having a previous identity as a sly petty crook, causing much grief for him and his new wife (Lamarr).

Crossroads (1986) C-96m. ½ D: Walter Hill. Ralph Macchio, Joe Seneca, Jami Gertz, Joe Morton, Robert Judd, Harry Carey, Jr. Cocky young musician tracks down legendary bluesman in a Harlem hospital and agrees to bring him back to his Mississippi home in return for some long-lost songs. Promising idea turns into contrived formula film (with undeveloped subplot about the old-timer having sold his soul to the devil). Gets a shot in the arm from Ry Cooder's music score and Seneca's flavorful performance as the cranky old bluesman. [R]▼●

Crossroads (2002) C-94m. ½ D: Tamra Davis. Britney Spears, Anson Mount, Zoë Saldaña, Taryn Manning, Kim Cattrall, Dan Aykroyd, Justin Long, Beverly Johnson. Teenage girl who's always followed Daddy's wishes finally cuts loose by taking a cross-country road trip with two girlhood friends and a guy with a 1973 Buick convertible. Her goal: to meet the mother who abandoned her when she was three. Debut vehicle for pop star Spears doesn't waste time showing her in her underwear—and also gives her a couple of songs. Innocuous, predictable teen fare with a few serious moments. [PG-13]▼

Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon (2000-Hong Kong-Taiwanese-U.S.) C-119m. ½ D: Ang Lee. Chow Yun-Fat, Michelle Yeoh, Zhang Ziyi, Chang Chen, Lung Sihung, Cheng Pei-Pei. Unusual hybrid of epic, romance, and martial arts, which follows the secret passions that a retiring warrior (Yun-Fat) and his longtime comrade (Yeoh) have for each other, and the dangerous young noblewoman (Ziyi) who affects their destiny. Beautifully filmed, with spectacular, gravity-defying fight sequences . . . but the characters and the (very protracted) story are never as compelling as one would like. Adapted from the novel by Wand Du Lu. The action was choreographed by Yuen Wo Ping, who performed similar chores on THE MATRIX. Oscar winner for Best Foreign Film, Cinematography (Peter Pau), Art

Crow, The (1994) C-100m.  D: Alex Proyas. Brandon Lee, Ernie Hudson, Michael Wincott, David Patrick Kelly, Angel David, Rochelle Davis, Bai Ling, Tony Todd, Jon Polito. A year after his murder and that of his fiancée by inner-city hoodlums, a young rock musician rises from the grave, seeking vengeance; he's guided by a spectral crow. Dark, rainy, and violent, the film's familiar revenge plot is offset by a strong style and an aura of tragic melancholy. Great urban-hell production design, good performances. Lee died shortly before filming was complete; digital movie magic enabled him to appear in the rest of the picture. From James O'Barr's black and white comic book. Followed by a sequel, a TV movie, and TV series. [R]▼

Crow: City of Angels, The (1996) C-84m. BOMB D: Tim Pope. Vincent Perez, Mia Kirshner, Richard Brooks, Iggy Pop, Thomas Jane, Vincent Castellanos, Thuy Trang. Anemic follow-up to THE CROW, concerning a murdered man who returns to life in order to seek revenge on those who killed him and his cute young son. If you last to the end of the film, you'll be wishing he stayed six feet under. Perez is as grating as the nonstop soundtrack. [R]▼

Crowd, The (1928) 104m. * D: King Vidor. Eleanor Boardman, James Murray, Bert Roach, Daniel G. Tomlinson, Dell Henderson, Lucy Beaumont. Classic drama about a few happy and many not-so-happy days in the marriage of hard-luck couple. One of the greatest silent films; holds up beautifully. Written by Harry Behn, John V.A. Weaver, and director Vidor, from the latter's original story.▼

Crowded Sky, The (1960) C-105m. ½ D: Joseph Pevney. Dana Andrews, Anne Francis, Rhonda Fleming, Efram Zimbalist, Jr., John Kerr, Troy Donahue, Keenan Wynn, Joe Mantell, Donald May, Louis Quinn, Edward Kemmer, Jean Willes, Patsy Kelly. Slick film focusing on emotional problems aboard jet liner and Navy plane bound for fateful collision; superficial but diverting.▼

Crowd Roars, The (1932) 70m. ½ D: Howard Hawks. James Cagney, Joan Blondell, Ann Dvorak, Eric Linden, Guy Kibbee, Frank McHugh. Exciting racing-driver tale with Cagney in typically cocky role, familiar plot devices, but well done by Warner Bros. stock company. Remade as INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY.

Crucible, The (1956-French-East German) 140m.  D: Raymond Rouleau. Simone Signoret, Yves Montand, Mylene Demongeot, Jean Debucourt, Raymond Rouleau. Successful French translation of Arthur Miller's stirring play about the Salem witchcraft trials of the 17th century. Signoret and Montand are excellent, recreating their stage performances in the leading roles. Adaptation by Jean-Paul Sartre. Originally titled THE WITCHES OF SALEM. Remade in 1996.▼

Crucible, The (1996) C-123m.  D: Nicholas Hytner. Daniel Day-Lewis, Winona Ryder, Joan Allen, Paul Scofield, Bruce Davison, Rob Campbell, Jeffrey Jones, George Gaynes. Caught performing a "sinful" dance, a group of New England girls, led by Ryder, claim they were overtaken by the Devil; soon their village is caught in a frenzy of accusations, naming various citizens as witches without so much as a shred of evidence. First American film rendering of Arthur Miller's classic 1953 play about parallels between Salem witch-hunts of the 1600s and Communist witch-hunts of the 1940s and '50s. Gets off to a shaky start, but finds its voice as the story deepens, and hits its stride with the arrival of Scofield, who's brilliant as the judge and inquisitor. Miller himself wrote the screenplay. [PG-13]▼

Crucible of Horror (1971-British) C-91m.  D: Viktors Ritelis. Michael Gough, Sharon Gurney, Yvonne Mitchell. Murdered man returns to haunt the living. Nothing new here. [PG]▼

Crucified Lovers, The (1954-Japanese) 100m. ½ D: Kenji Mizoguchi. Kazuo Hasegawa, Kyoko Kagawa, Yoko Minamida, Eitaro Shindo, Sakae Ozawa. Timid scroll-maker Hasegawa loves his master's wife (Kagawa), with tragic results. Superior performances, stunning direction; originally a marionette play written in 1715. Better known by its original Japanese title, CHIKAMATSU MONOGATARI.▼

Cruel Intentions (1999) C-97m.  D: Roger Kumble. Ryan Phillippe, Sarah Michelle Gellar, Reese Witherspoon, Selma Blair, Joshua Jackson, Eric Mabius, Christine Baranski, Swoosie Kurtz, Louise Fletcher, Tara Reid. Contemporary telling of Choderlos de Laclos' 18th-century novel Les Liaisons Dangereuses . . . with teenagers! Wealthy, jaded stepsiblings Phillippe and Gellar bet on whether he can seduce virgin Witherspoon. The cast is good, story is interesting, but sexual decadence among the young is sometimes hard to watch. Followed by video prequel (a failed TV pilot) and sequel. [R]▼

Cruel Sea, The (1953-British) 121m. ½

D: Charles Frend. Jack Hawkins, Donald Sinden, Denholm Elliott, Stanley Baker, John Stratton, Virginia McKenna, Alec McCowen. Well-conceived documentary-style account of British warship during WW2 and its crew. Original British running time 126m. ▼

Cruel Swamp SEE: Swamp Women

Cruising (1984) C-106m. *½ D: William Friedkin. Al Pacino, Paul Sorvino, Karen Allen, Richard Cox, Don Scardino, Ed O'Neil, voice of James Surtorius. Cop Pacino goes underground to ferret out bloody killer of homosexuals in this distasteful, badly scripted film. Gay world presented as sick, degrading, and ritualistic. Filmed on authentic N.Y.C. locations. [R] ▼

Crumb (1994) C-119m. ½ D: Terry Zwigoff. Extraordinarily intimate portrait of underground comic artist (and cult hero) Robert Crumb, creator of "Keep on Truckin'" and Fritz the Cat. Zwigoff traces his career and celebrates his works while exploring the cultural influences that shaped him. By the time we meet Crumb's dysfunctional brothers, we realize that he survived a horrific upbringing and found a way to channel his own demons through his art. Perhaps this documentary's greatest achievement is enabling almost any viewer to feel better about his own family! [R] ▼

Crusades, The (1935) 123m.  D: Cecil B. DeMille. Loretta Young, Henry Wilcoxon, Ian Keith, C. Aubrey Smith, Katherine DeMille, Joseph Schildkraut, Alan Hale, C. Henry Gordon, J. Carrol Naish. Love, action, and great big siege machines in DeMille version of medieval era Holy Crusades spectacle that's good for fun, with Young a luminous queen who's kidnapped by infidels; Wilcoxon as Richard the Lion-Hearted must rescue her. Look fast for Ann Sheridan as a Christian girl. ▼

Crush (1992-New Zealand) C-97m. ½ D: Alison Maclean. Marcia Gay Harden, Donough Rees, Caitlin Bossley, William Zappa. Intriguing, multi-layered (if occasionally overbaked) tale of seduction, betrayal, jealousy and revenge, in which Harden impersonates her friend, literary critic Rees (who's just been injured in a car crash), and becomes involved in the lives of a writer and his teen daughter. Director-coscripiter Maclean's feature debut is crammed with offbeat touches, hidden meanings, and agendas; at its best when exploring the complex relationship of the three female characters. ▼

Crush, The (1993) C-89m. *½ D: Alan Shapiro. Cary Elwes, Alicia Silverstone, Jennifer Rubin, Amber Benson, Kurtwood Smith, Gwynyth Walsh. Ridiculous thriller about a thick-witted, twentysomething journalist (Elwes) who becomes the target of a pretty, obsessive fourteen-year-old Lolita (Silverstone). A completely unnecessary FATAL ATTRACTION/HAND THAT ROCKS THE CRADLE/SINGLE WHITE

FEMALE clone; for a perceptive, non-exploitive look at the same subject, see the 1981 French film BEAU PÈRE. [R] ▼

Crush (2002-British) C-115m.  D: John McKay. Andie MacDowell, Imelda Staunton, Anna Chancellor, Kenny Doughty, Bill Paterson, Caroline Holdaway. Headmistress of a British prep school shares secrets and gossip with two close female friends, but when she plunges into a passionate affair with a much younger man, they disapprove strongly and begin to meddle. Starts out light and funny and turns unexpectedly dark; not always believable, but consistently entertaining. Writer-director McKay wins us over on an emotional level in his debut feature. Panavision. [R] ▼

Crusoe (1988) C-91m.  D: Caleb Deschanel. Aidan Quinn, Ade Sapara, Warren Clark, Hepburn Grahame, Jimmy Nail, Tim Spall, Michael Higgins, Shane Rimmer, Oliver Platt. Solid version of the oft-filmed Defoe classic, with Quinn cast as the title character, a slave trader who's shipwrecked on a deserted isle, where he must deal with loneliness, isolation, survival; most intriguing of all is his evolving relationship with black warrior Sapara. Strikingly photographed by Tom Pinter, mostly in the Seychelles. [PG-13] ▼

Cry-Baby (1990) C-85m. *½ D: John Waters. Johnny Depp, Amy Locane, Susan Tyrrell, Polly Bergen, Iggy Pop, Ricki Lake, Traci Lords, Kim McGuire, Troy Donahue, Mink Stole, Joe Dallesandro, Joey Heatherton, David Nelson, Patricia Hearst, Willem Dafoe. Baltimore, 1954, and good-girl Locane is torn between her pristine roots and kids in black leather—especially the Elvis type (Depp) who'd love her to mount his cycle. More polished than Waters' previous HAIRSPRAY, but not as well focused, though performed with gusto. Uneven and exhausting; a few set pieces really deliver. Director's cut runs 95m. Later turned into a Broadway musical. [PG-13] ▼

Cry Baby Killer, The (1958) 62m. *½ D: Jus Addiss. Harry Lauter, Jack Nicholson, Carolyn Mitchell, Brett Halsey, Lynn Cartwright, Ed Nelson. Nicholson's film debut is a Roger Corman quickie about juvenile delinquent who panics when he thinks he's committed murder. A curio at best, with coscripiter Leo Gordon and Corman himself in bit parts. ▼

Cry Danger (1951) 79m.  D: Robert Parrish. Dick Powell, Rhonda Fleming, Richard Erdman, Regis Toomey, William Conrad. Effective revenge yarn; ex-con Powell hunts down those responsible for framing him. ▼

Cry for Happy (1961) C-110m. *½ D: George Marshall. Glenn Ford, Donald O'Connor, Miiko Taka, Myoshi Umeki. Poor man's TEAHOUSE OF THE AU- GUST MOON, involving Navy photography team in Tokyo using a geisha house for their home. CinemaScope.

Cry for Me, Billy (1972) C-93m.  D: William A. Graham. Cliff Potts, Xochitl, Harry Dean Stanton, Don Wilbanks. Drifter falls in love with Indian girl, with tragic consequences, in this violent Western. Its title (and alleged year of release) keeps changing, but the film doesn't get any better. Aka FACE TO THE WIND, COUNT YOUR BULLETS, APACHE MASSACRE, and THE LONG TOMORROW. Panavision. [R]▼

Cry Freedom (1987-British) C-157m.  D: Richard Attenborough. Kevin Kline, Penelope Wilton, Denzel Washington, Kevin McNally, John Thaw, Timothy West, Juanita Waterman, John Hargreaves, Alec McCowen, Zakes Mokae, Ian Richardson. Sweeping and compassionate film about South African activist Steve Biko (well played by Washington) and his friendship with crusading newspaper editor Donald Woods (Kline). Unfortunately second half of film, minus the Biko character, loses momentum as it spends too much time on Kline and his family's escape from South Africa, but cannily injects flashbacks of Biko to steer it back on course. Screenplay by John Briley. Super 35. [PG]▼●●

Cry "Havoc" (1943) 97m.  D: Richard Thorpe. Margaret Sullavan, Joan Blondell, Ann Sothern, Fay Bainter, Marsha Hunt, Ella Raines, Frances Gifford, Diana Lewis, Heather Angel. Female volunteers join some overworked American nurses on beleaguered island of Bataan during WW2. Reveals its stage origins and incorporates expected clichés, but also presents pretty honest picture of war. Robert Mitchum has a bit part as a dying soldier.

Crying Game, The (1992-British) C-112m. ½ D: Neil Jordan. Stephen Rea, Miranda Richardson, Forest Whitaker, Jim Broadbent, Ralph Brown, Adrian Dunbar, Jaye Davidson. Strikingly original and adult story with Rea as an IRA volunteer who helps capture a British soldier (Whitaker) only to befriend him and later become involved with his lover. What begins as a thriller unexpectedly turns into a poignant and ironic love story, with plot twists that deepen the film's almost dreamlike power. Stunningly acted by Rea, Richardson, and Whitaker, with an amazing debut by Davidson, as Dil. A unique, seductive film that writer/director Jordan pulls off with poetic ease; he earned an Oscar for his screenplay. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Cry in the Dark, A (1988-U.S.-Australian) C-121m. ½ D: Fred Schepisi. Meryl Streep, Sam Neill, Bruce Myles, Charles Tingwell, Nick Tate, Neil Fitzpatrick, Maurie Fields, Lewis Fitzgerald. Astonishing true story of Lindy Chamberlain, an Australian woman accused of murdering her baby, despite her claims that the child was carried off by a dingo (wild dog). Writer-director Schepisi tells his story with almost documentary-like reality, eloquently attacking the process of trial by rumor that made Chamberlain and her husband the most maligned couple in Australia. Streep and Neill are heartbreakingly good. Australian title: EVIL ANGELS. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Cry in the Night, A (1956) 75m.  D: Frank Tuttle. Edmond O'Brien, Brian Donlevy, Natalie Wood, Raymond Burr, Richard Anderson. Why is mysterious, psychotic Burr spying on Wood and her boyfriend? And what happens after he kidnaps her? Overwrought drama, but fascinating as a time capsule of its era, and then prevalent attitudes toward cops and victims. Burr is quite good.

Cry of Battle (1963) 99m. ½ D: Irving Lerner. Van Heflin, Rita Moreno, James MacArthur, Leopoldo Salcedo. Uneven actioner set in Philippines with MacArthur as son of wealthy businessman who joins partisan cause, finding romance and sense of maturity.▼●

Cry of the Banshee (1970-British) C-87m. ½ D: Gordon Hessler. Vincent Price, Elisabeth Bergner, Essy Persson, Hugh Griffith, Hilary Dwyer, Sally Geeson, Patrick Mower. Witch Oona (Bergner) summons servant of Satan to avenge nobleman (Price)'s bloody reign of witch-hunting. Confusion sets in midway. [PG]▼●●

Cry of the City (1948) 95m. ½ D: Robert Siodmak. Victor Mature, Richard Conte, Fred Clark, Shelley Winters, Betty Garde, Debra Paget, Hope Emerson. Refresh of MANHATTAN MELODRAMA about childhood pals, one who becomes a cop, the other a criminal—slick but predictable.

Cry of the Penguins (1971-British) C-101m.  D: Al Viola. John Hurt, Hayley Mills, Dudley Sutton, Tony Britton, Thorley Walters, Judy Campbell. Can a womanizing young biologist find true happiness and redemption among an Antarctic colony of penguins? Do you care? Similar to later NEVER CRY WOLF—except in interest. Famed documentary filmmaker Arne Sucksdorff shot the fascinating but horrifying scenes of life and death among a penguin colony; an uncredited Roy Boulting reportedly directed the scenes with Hayley Mills. Original British title: MR. FORBUSH AND THE PENGUINS.●

Crystal Heart (1987) C-102m.  D: Gil Bettman. Tawny Kitaen, Lee Curreri, Lloyd Bochner, Simon Andreu, May Heatherly, Marina Saura. Young man who must live his life like the "boy in a bubble," confined to a controlled environment, develops a relationship with a sexy rock singer with whom he's fallen in love long-distance.

Mild, predictable outing with music video segments from Kitaen. [R]▼

Cry Terror! (1958) 96m.  D: Andrew L. Stone. James Mason, Rod Steiger, Inger Stevens, Neville Brand, Angie Dickinson, Jack Klugman. Tight pacing conceals implausibilities in caper of psychopath Steiger forcing Mason to aid him in master extortion plot, filmed on N.Y.C. locations. Stevens good as Mason's frightened but resourceful wife. Also shown in computer-colored version.

Cry, the Beloved Country (1951-British) 111m. ½ D: Zoltan Korda. Canada Lee, Charles Carson, Sidney Poitier, Geoffrey Keen, Reginald Ngeabo, Joyce Carey. Simple back-country minister journeys to Johannesburg in search of his son, while fate links his path with that of a wealthy, bigoted white landowner. Heart-rending story chronicles racial divisiveness (and its roots) in South Africa without resorting to preachiness. Alan Paton's book was also basis for stage and film musical LOST IN THE STARS. Some prints run 96m. Re-made in 1995.▼●

Cry, the Beloved Country (1995-U.S.-British-South African) C-106m.  D: Darrell James Roodt. Richard Harris, James Earl Jones, Charles S. Dutton, Vusi Kunene, Leleti Khumalo, Ian Roberts, Dambisa Kente, Eric Miyeni. Moving remake of the 1951 film based on Alan Paton's celebrated novel, about a backwoods minister (Jones) who, in 1946, makes his first-ever trip to the city of Johannesburg in search of his errant son, while wealthy landowner Harris travels there to claim the body of his son, who has just been killed. Excellent performances by Jones, Harris, and a largely unfamiliar supporting cast. Not as understated as the original, but effective in its own way. Screenplay by Ronald Harwood. [PG-13]▼●

Cry Uncle! (1971) C-87m. ½ D: John G. Avildsen. Allen Garfield, Madeleine de la Roux, Devin Goldenberg, David Kirk, Sean Walsh, Nancy Salmon. Private detective gets involved with murder, sex and blackmail in spoof of questionable taste; frequently hilarious, however. [R]▼●

Cry Wolf (1947) 83m.  D: Peter Godfrey. Barbara Stanwyck, Errol Flynn, Geraldine Brooks, Richard Basehart, Jerome Cowan. Static adventure-mystery of Stanwyck attempting to untangle family secrets at late husband's estate.▼

Cry_Wolf (2005) C-90m. BOMB D: Jeff Wadlow. Lindy Booth, Julian Morris, Jared Padalecki, Kristy Wu, Sandra McCoy, Paul James, Jon Bon Jovi, Jesse Janzen, Gary Cole, Anna Deavere Smith. A group of attractive, unlikable prep school students play a prank on their classmates by e-mailing a chain letter claiming that there's a masked murderer on the loose. Not surprisingly, a real killer shows up to murder the members of the clique one by one. First-time director won a contest that awarded him one million dollars to make a film; he wasted a great opportunity. Unrated version also available. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Cuba (1979) C-121m.  D: Richard Lester. Sean Connery, Brooke Adams, Jack Weston, Hector Elizondo, Denholm Elliott, Chris Sarandon, Lonette McKee. Entertaining adventure film/love story has mercenary Connery renewing an old affair with factory manager Adams, set against the fall of Batista in late '59. Director Lester is in pretty good form, with most scenes punctuated by memorable throwaway bits. [R]▼●

Cuba Crossing (1980) C-90m. BOMB D: Chuck Workman. Stuart Whitman, Robert Vaughn, Caren Kaye, Raymond St. Jacques, Woody Strode, Sybil Danning, Albert Salmi, Michael Gazzo. Tough Whitman becomes embroiled in a plot to kill Fidel Castro. Filmed in Key West, Florida, and at least the scenery is pretty. Retitled KILL CASTRO and ASSIGNMENT: KILL CASTRO. Video titles: THE MERCENARIES and SWEET VIOLENT TONY. [R]▼●

Cuban Rebel Girls (1959) 68m. BOMB D: Barry Mahon. Errol Flynn, Beverly Aadland, John McKay, Marie Edmund, Jackie Jackler. Flynn's last film is an embarrassment: playing himself, he aids Fidel Castro in his overthrow of Batista. Shot on location during the Castro revolution. Of interest only to see Flynn teamed with his final girlfriend, 16-year-old Aadland. Aka ASSAULT OF THE REBEL GIRLS and ATTACK OF THE REBEL GIRLS.▼

Cube (1998-Canadian) C-90m.  D: Vincenzo Natali. Maurice Dean Wint, Nicole deBoer, Nicky Guadagni, David Hewlett, Andrew Miller, Julian Richings, Wayne Robson. Or, six characters in search of an exit, from a giant cube with countless compartments—many of them booby-trapped. How and why are they there—and how can they escape? Nerves start to wear thin, which may also apply to the audience, as this intriguing film becomes highly unpleasant . . . with an unsatisfying conclusion. Cowritten by the director. Followed by two direct-to-video sequels. [R]▼●●

Cujo (1983) C-91m.  D: Lewis Teague. Dee Wallace, Danny Pintauro, Daniel Hugh-Kelly, Christopher Stone, Ed Lauter, Mills Watson. Genuinely frightening adaptation of Stephen King thriller about a woman and her son terrorized by a rabid St. Bernard dog. Builds slowly but surely to terrifying (but not gory) climax. Not for children. [R]▼●●

Cul-De-Sac (1966-British) 111m.  D: Roman Polanski. Donald Pleasence, Françoise Dorléac, Lionel Stander, Jack MacGowran, Iain Quarrier, Jacqueline Bisset. Macabre comedy about two wounded gangsters who terrorize middle-aged milquetoast and his beautiful young wife. Not a total success, but good cast and stylish direction make it a winner. Some prints cut to 103m. ▼

Culpepper Cattle Company, The (1972) C-92m. ½ D: Dick Richards. Gary Grimes, Billy "Green" Bush, Luke Askew, Bo Hopkins, Geoffrey Lewis, Wayne Sutherlin. A 16-year-old persuades trail boss to take him along on cattle drive, becomes a man in the process. Fair but excessively violent Western. [R] ▼

Cup, The (1999-Bhutanese) C-93m.  D: Khyentse Norbu. Jamyang Lodro, Orgyen Tobgyal, Neten Chokling, Lama Chonjor, Godu Lama, Thinley Nudi. Sweet, funny comedy in which an adolescent, soccer-obsessed Tibetan monk-in-training (Lodro) schemes to win permission to watch the 1998 World Cup final between France and Brazil on television. Slowly paced but still winning, with an insightful subtext examining spirituality, modernity, consumerism, and Tibet's endless political struggle against China. Writer-director Norbu is himself a Bhutanese high lama. [G] ▼

Curdled (1996) C-94m. *½ D: Reb Braddock. William Baldwin, Angela Jones, Bruce Ramsay, Lois Chiles, Barry Corbin, Mel Gormam, Daisy Fuentes, Kelly Preston, Carmen Lopez. Grisly black comedy about young woman obsessed with the how's and why's of violent crimes, who gets a job scrubbing up after them on the Post-Forensic Cleaning Service. Only for viewers with the darkest sense of humor. Executive-produced by none other than Quentin Tarantino. [R] ▼

Cure, The (1995) C-99m. ½ D: Peter Horton. Joseph Mazzello, Brad Renfro, Annabella Sciorra, Diana Scarwid, Bruce Davison, Nicky Katt, Aeryk Egan, Renee Humphrey. Imperfect but often moving story about two small-town, pre-teen outsiders who become fast friends: new-kid-in-town Renfro and AIDS-stricken Mazzello, who contracted the HIV virus during a blood transfusion. At its best when focusing on the boys' evolving relationship; the title refers to a miracle AIDS cure which plays a key role in the story. [PG-13] ▼

Curious Case of Benjamin Button, The (2008) C-166m. * D: David Fincher. Brad Pitt, Cate Blanchett, Taraji P. Henson, Julia Ormond, Tilda Swinton, Jason Flemyng, Mahershalalhashbaz Ali, Jared Harris, Elias Koteas, Phyllis Somerville, Rampai Mohadi, Elle Fanning. Fascinating premise, from F. Scott Fitzgerald's short story (which in turn was inspired by a remark by Mark Twain): a baby is born in 1918 New Orleans with all the qualities of a shriveled old man and grows younger with each passing year. The story is told in flashback as his soul mate (Blanchett) lies on her deathbed, just as Hurricane Katrina is heading to town. Exceptional, epic storytelling in a rare movie that's long but doesn't feel that way. Even more amazing: director Fincher and his writers (Eric Roth, who collaborated on the screen story with Robin Swicord) avoid sentimentalizing their saga. Kudos to the stars, Alexandre Desplat's beautiful score, and Oscar-winning visual effects, makeup (Greg Cannom), and production design (Donald Graham Burt and Victor J. Zolfo). HD Widescreen. [PG-13] ▼

Curious George (2006) C-86m. ½ D: Matthew O'Callaghan. Voices of Will Ferrell, Drew Barrymore, David Cross, Eugene Levy, Dick Van Dyke, Joan Plowright, Alexander Gould, Frank Welker. A mischievous monkey from the jungle stows away with a friendly man in a yellow hat when he returns to the Big City. Basic, straightforward—if uninspired—cartoon feature for kids. Thankfully this expansion of the beloved books by H. A. and Margret Rey doesn't sacrifice their simple sweetness. A dialogue-free opening sequence works best of all. Original songs by Jack Johnson. [G] ▼

Curly Sue (1991) C-101m. *½ D: John Hughes. James Belushi, Kelly Lynch, Alisan Porter, John Getz, Fred Dalton Thompson, Cameron Thor, Steven (Steve) Carell, Edie McClurg. Homeless con artist and his adopted waif leech onto a tightly wound dish of an attorney. She, in turn, determines that this four-flushing twosome is just what she needs to enrich her life. A John Hughes formula movie where the formula doesn't work, though if there's such a thing as "quintessential James Belushi" this is it. Lynch's obvious discomfort suggests she may have seen the rushes. [PG] ▼

Curly Top (1935) 75m. ½ D: Irving Cummings. Shirley Temple, John Boles, Rochelle Hudson, Jane Darwell, Rafaela Ottiano, Arthur Treacher. Shirley sings "Animal Crackers in My Soup" as she plays Cupid again, this time for sister Hudson and handsome Boles. Based on Jean Webster's Daddy Long Legs. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Curse, The (1987) C-90m. BOMB D: David Keith. Wil Wheaton, Claude Akins, Cooper Huckabee, John Schneider, Amy Wheaton. Actor Keith steps behind the camera to direct this down-home horror movie: a deadly meteorite lands on a Tennessee farm, literally driving the folks crazy after contaminating their food. Loosely based on H. P. Lovecraft's novella The Color Out of Space, previously filmed as DIE, MONSTER, DIE! Aka THE FARM. Followed by three unrelated "sequels." [R] ▼

Cursed (2005) C-97m.  D: Wes Craven. Christina Ricci, Portia de Rossi, Mya, Shannon Elizabeth, Solar, Daniel Edward Mora,

Jesse Eisenberg, Joshua Jackson. Contemporary werewolf-on-the-loose story is a rare miss in the thrills department from the SCREAM team of Craven and writer Kevin Williamson. Film starts out amusing but soon becomes ludicrous as the nubile young victims must fight back to become human again. Already dated picture is set at the now-defunct Craig Kilborn talk show, where Ricci is a producer spending what seems like days prepping an interview with Scott Baio. It's that kind of movie, folks. Unrated version runs 105m. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Curse of Frankenstein, The (1957-British) C-83m. ½ D: Terence Fisher. Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee, Hazel Court, Robert Urquhart, Valerie Gaunt, Noel Hood. OK retelling of original Shelley tale, with Cushing as Baron von Frankenstein, whose experimentation with creation of life becomes an obsession. First of Hammer Films' long-running horror series, and itself followed by six sequels, starting with THE REVENGE OF FRANKENSTEIN. ▼

Curse of the Cat People, The (1944) 70m.  D: Gunther von Fritsch, Robert Wise. Simone Simon, Kent Smith, Jane Randolph, Elizabeth Russell, Ann Carter, Julia Dean. Follow-up to CAT PEOPLE creates wonderful atmosphere in story of lonely little girl who conjures up vision of Simon, her father's mysterious first wife. Despite title, not a horror film but a fine, moody fantasy. Produced by Val Lewton, written by DeWitt Bodeen. Wise's directing debut. Also available in computer-colored version. ▼

Curse of the Crimson Altar SEE: Crimson Cult, The

Curse of the Demon (1958-British) 95m. ½ D: Jacques Tourneur. Dana Andrews, Peggy Cummins, Niall MacGinnis, Athene Seyler, Liam Redmond, Reginald Beckwith, Maurice Denham. Andrews is a stuffily cynical psychologist who doesn't believe that series of deaths have been caused by ancient curse, but film convinces audience right off the bat and never lets up. Charles Bennett and producer Hal E. Chester adapted Montague R. James' story "Casting the Runes." Exceptional shocker, originally called NIGHT OF THE DEMON. 83m. American version circulated for many years. ▼

Curse of the Fly (1965-British) 86m. *½ D: Don Sharp. Brian Donlevy, Carole Gray, George Baker, Michael Graham, Jeremy Wilkins, Charles Carson, Burt Kwouk. In the third and last of original THE FLY series, young escapee (Gray) from a mental institution winds up involved with the DeLambre family, still doggedly trying to make their teleportation machine work. Highly inadequate makeup, weak script, but very atmospheric direction produce oddly mixed results. CinemaScope. ▼

Curse of the Golden Flower, The (2006-Hong Kong-Chinese) C-114m. ½ D: Zhang

Yimou. Chow Yun-Fat, Gong Li, Jay Chou, Liu Ye, Ni Dahong, Qin Junjie, Li Man, Chen Jin. During the Tang dynasty, Chinese emperor Ping (Yun-Fat) and his ailing empress (Li) try to outmaneuver one another during a festival of golden chrysanthemums. Palace intrigue, a mysterious invading army, and Shakespearean-style relationships play out amidst breathtakingly gorgeous sets and costumes. Not quite up to Yimou's other historical epics (HERO, HOUSE OF FLYING DAGGERS), this is still heady stuff, with ripe histrionics occasionally interrupted by martial arts scenes. From a 1930s play by Cao Yu, previously filmed in 1957 (with Bruce Lee!) and 1961 as LEI YU. Super 35. [R] ▼

Curse of the Jade Scorpion, The (2001) C-102m.  D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, Helen Hunt, Dan Aykroyd, Charlize Theron, David Ogden Stiers, Elizabeth Berkley, Wallace Shawn, Brian Markinson, Irwin Corey, John Schuck. Sexist insurance investigator in 1940s N.Y.C. can't abide the fact that his new superior is a woman. The plot thickens when both of them are "put under" by a nightclub hypnotist. Great period flavor, as usual, in this Allen comedy, and Woody is in great form, but many of his one-liners fall surprisingly flat, and Hunt seems too contemporary for her Rosalind Russell-type role. [PG-13] ▼

Curse of the Living Corpse (1964) 84m.  D: Del Tenney. Helen Warren, Roy R. Scheider (Scheider), Margo Hartman, Hugh Franklin, Candace Hilligoss. Tepid old-dark-house murder mystery with dead man supposedly returning to "life" and committing series of killings. Scheider's film debut. ▼

Curse of the Living Dead SEE: Kill, Baby, Kill

Curse of the Mummy's Tomb, The (1964-British) C-81m.  D: Michael Carreras. Terence Morgan, Ronald Howard, Fred Clark, Jeanne Roland, George Pastell, Jack Gwillim, Dickie Owen (as the Mummy). Handsomely photographed but routine Hammer thriller featuring vengeful mummy at large in Victorian London, killing the usual profaners of the tomb in foggy surroundings. Most unusual twist: The (human) villain is in fact the Mummy's brother. Follow-up, not sequel, to THE MUMMY (1959). Techniscope. ▼

Curse of the Pink Panther (1983) C-109m. *½ D: Blake Edwards. Ted Wass, David Niven, Robert Wagner, Herbert Lom, Joanna Lumley, Capucine, Robert Loggia, Harvey Korman, Burt Kwouk, Leslie Ash, André Maranne. Writer-director Edwards' pointless attempt to keep the Pink Panther series alive despite Peter Sellers' death—by putting Wass through Sellers' sight-gag paces, and surrounding him with costars of earlier Panther films, who (all too obviously) shot their cameos at the same time as TRAIL OF THE PINK PANTHER. What a waste! Niven's final film (with his voice dubbed by Rich Little). Panavision. [PG]▼

Curse of the Swamp Creature (1966) C-80m. BOMB D: Larry Buchanan. John Agar, Francine York, Shirley McLane, Bill Thurman, Jeff Alexander. A geological expedition stumbles onto a mad doctor who's trying to evolve a man-monster. Low-budget junk.▼

Curse of the Werewolf, The (1961-British) C-91m. ½ D: Terence Fisher. Clifford Evans, Oliver Reed, Yvonne Romain, Anthony Dawson. Reed has wolf's blood and struggles to control the monster within him; it finally erupts when he is denied his girl's love. Eerie atmosphere pervades this good chiller. Loosely based on novel The Werewolf of Paris by Guy Endore.▼

Curse III: Blood Sacrifice (1990) C-91m. *½ D: Sean Barton. Christopher Lee, Jennilee Harrison, Henry Cole, Andre Jacobs, Zoe Randall, Olivia Dyer. 1950, East Africa. Tribal magic produces murderous demonlike monster (unseen until the end) slaughtering mostly whites. Drearily routine; one would-be "tense" scene (with no payoff) after another. Lee looks very serious. Original title: PANGA. [R]▼

Curtain Call (1998) C-94m.  D: Peter Yates. James Spader, Polly Walker, Maggie Smith, Michael Caine, Buck Henry, Sam Shepard, Marcia Gay Harden, Frances Sternhagen, Frank Whaley. Fine cast in fluffy fantasy about marriage-phobic book publisher Spader, who moves into a Manhattan brownstone that's haunted by the ghosts of a famous old theatrical couple who teach him about love and commitment. Curious, slowly paced blend of supernatural whimsy, romantic comedy and relationship drama never really gels. Made for theaters, this debuted on cable. Valerie Perrine appears unbilled. [PG-13]▼

Curucu, Beast of the Amazon (1956) C-76m. *½ D: Curt Siodmak. John Bromfield, Beverly Garland, Tom Payne, Harvey Chalk. One of the most infamous disappointments (for monster-loving kids of the 1950s) as Bromfield and Garland go after title monster in South American jungle.

Custer of the West (1968-U.S.-Spanish) C-140m. ½ D: Robert Siodmak. Robert Shaw, Mary Ure, Jeffrey Hunter, Robert Ryan, Ty Hardin, Charles Stalnak, Robert Hall, Lawrence Tierney. Fairly ambitious bio of famed general suffers from script that doesn't quite know how to characterize him. Some prints run 120m. Super Technirama 70. [G]▼ always satisfying film about a boozy, belligerent Vietnam vet (Heard) who prods his aimless friend (Bridges) into action after he's seen a man who may be a murderer. Low-key, sometimes enervating adaptation of Newton Thornburg's novel Cutter and Bone (this film's original title), enhanced by director Passer's eye for interesting detail. [R]▼

Cutthroat Island (1995-U.S.-French) C-123m.  D: Renny Harlin. Geena Davis, Matthew Modine, Frank Langella, Maury Chaykin, Patrick Malahide, Stan Shaw, Harris Yulin, Rex Linn, Paul Dillon, Chris Masterson, Jimmie F. Skaggs. Pirate Davis must join forces with roguish Modine to avenge her father's death, find a treasure map and battle her ferocious pirate uncle, Dawg (Langella). Or something like that. Hapless movie has special effects and stunts to spare, but nothing to get you involved. The actors do their best in cardboard roles. Where's Robert Newton when you really need him? Arrrr! Panavision and Technovision. [PG-13]▼

Cutting Class (1989) C-91m. *½ D: Rospo Pallenberg. Donovan Leitch, Jill Schoelen, Roddy McDowall, Brad Pitt, Martin Mull. A slasher is running amok at a high school. This one's only if your idea of a four-star movie is FRIDAY THE 13TH. [R]▼

Cutting Edge, The (1992) C-101m. ½ D: Paul M. Glaser. D. B. Sweeney, Moira Kelly, Roy Dotrice, Terry O'Quinn, Dwier Brown. Bitchy ice skater Kelly is paired with banged-up hockey player Sweeney in a last-ditch attempt to score an Olympic gold medal in paired figure skating. Cute, if predictable, comedy with Sweeney and Kelly building believable sexual tension as they're forced to work together, sniping all the way. Followed in 2006 by a direct-to-video sequel. [PG]▼

Cyborg (1989) C-86m. BOMB D: Albert Pyun. Jean-Claude Van Damme, Deborah Richter, Vincent Klyn, Alex Daniels, Dayle Haddon, Blaise Loong, Rolf Muller. Van Damme plays a savior battling evil gangs who seem to enjoy various plagues and finding gruesome ways to murder people. Even for a post-apocalyptic trash movie, this plumbs new depths. Repulsive. Followed by two unrelated sequels. [R]▼

Cyborg 2087 (1966) C-86m.  D: Franklin Adreon. Michael Rennie, Wendell Corey, Eduard Franz, Karen Steele, Warren Stevens. Future Earth civilization sends cyborg—part machine, part human—back in time to 1960s so future can be changed. Good idea all but ruined due to unconvincing script and TV-style production.

Cycle Savages, The (1969) C-82m. BOMB D: Bill Brame. Bruce Dern, Melody Patterson, Chris Robinson, Maray Ayres, Scott Brady. Psychotic biker/white slaver

Dern is displeased when artist Robinson opens his sketch pad, so he plans to crush the budding Rembrandt's hands. Sadism and torture galore; coproduced by deejay Casey Kasem and record exec Mike Curb, later the lieutenant governor of California. [R]▼

Cyclone (1987) C-83m.  D: Fred Olen Ray. Heather Thomas, Jeffrey Combs, Ashley Ferrara, Dar Robinson, Martine Beswick, Robert Quarry, Martin Landau. TV star Thomas plays second fiddle to a high-tech motorcycle that's stolen by Landau's henchmen. Watch for numerous cameos including Huntz Hall, Troy Donahue, Russ Tamblyn, and Michael Reagan. [R]▼●

Cyclone Z SEE: Dragons Forever

Cyclops, The (1957) 66m.  D: Bert I. Gordon. James Craig, Gloria Talbott, Lon Chaney, Jr., Tom Drake. Expedition scours Mexico in search of Talbott's lost fiancé, discovers that radiation has transformed him into an enormous monster. Nothing much in this cheapie.▼

Cynara (1932) 78m.  D: King Vidor. Ronald Colman, Kay Francis, Henry Stephenson, Phyllis Barry, Paul Porcasi. Badly dated film about British lawyer who has interlude with working girl while wife is away; Colman is good as usual.

Cynthia (1947) 98m. *½ D: Robert Z. Leonard. Elizabeth Taylor, George Murphy, S. Z. Sakall, Mary Astor, Gene Lockhart, Spring Byington, Jimmy Lydon. Sugary film of sickly girl Taylor finding outlet in music; good cast wasted.

Cyrano de Bergerac (1950) 112m. ½ D: Michael Gordon. Jose Ferrer, Mala Powers, William Prince, Morris Camovsky, Elena Verdugo. Ferrer received an Oscar for portraying the tragic 17th-century wit, renowned for his nose but longing for love of a beautiful lady. From Edmond Rostand's play. Previously filmed in 1900, 1925, and 1945; later modernized as ROXANNE, and remade in 1990. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●

Cyrano de Bergerac (1990-French) C-138m. ½ D: Jean-Paul Rappeneau. Gérard Depardieu, Anne Brochet, Vincent Perez, Jacques Weber, Roland Bertin, Philippe Morier-Genoud. Likely to remain the definitive screen version of the Edmond Rostand perennial (depending on your personal passion for Steve Martin's ROXANNE). Quite visceral, and frequently inspired (vide the decision to stage the balcony scene during a mild rainstorm), faltering only a little during the finale, which is overextended. Jean-Claude Carrière and director Rappeneau scripted; English subtitles by Anthony Burgess. [PG]▼●

funeral, which triggers a series of remembrances of his irascible "da." Hugh Leonard's adaptation of his autobiographical stage comedy doesn't work as well on the screen, but remains a touching account of a father-son relationship that isn't interrupted by death. Hughes beautifully re-creates his Tony-winning performance, and Sheen is equally good. Hepburn is marvelous as Hughes' pesky wife; Leonard appears briefly as a pallbearer. Filmed mostly on location in Ireland. [PG]▼●

Dad (1989) C-117m.  D: Gary David Goldberg. Jack Lemmon, Ted Danson, Olympia Dukakis, Kathy Baker, Kevin Spacey, Ethan Hawke, Zakes Mokae, J. T. Walsh. Busy, distracted executive learns his father may be dying; he winds up becoming his dad's caretaker and companion, and they grow closer than they've ever been. Genuinely affecting tearjerker turns sappy and "cute" at the midway point, almost negating Lemmon's fine performance. Why couldn't they have quit while they were ahead? Feature directing debut for TV sitcom producer Goldberg. [PG]▼●

Daddy and Them (2001) C-102m.  D: Billy Bob Thornton. Billy Bob Thornton, Laura Dern, Diane Ladd, Kelly Preston, Andy Griffith, Sandra Seacat, John Prine, Jeff Bailey, Jim Varney, Brenda Blethyn, Ben Affleck, Jamie Lee Curtis. Arkansas husband Thornton, his quarrelsome, jealous wife Dern, and her family drive to Little Rock to meet his kin, who are equally cantankerous. Populated with irritating characters; draggy pace picks up a lot by the second half, but it's a long haul getting there. Thornton also wrote this slice-of-life comedy-drama. Filmed in 1998. [R]▼

Daddy Day Camp (2007) C-89m. *½ D: Fred Savage. Cuba Gooding, Jr., Lochlyn Munro, Richard Gant, Tamala Jones, Paul Rae, Spencir Bridges, Brian Doyle-Murray. Frenetic but only fitfully funny sequel to DADDY DAY CARE, with Gooding filling in for Eddie Murphy as a day-care entrepreneur. This time, he takes over a ramshackle summer camp with a little help from his dad (Gant), a hard-boiled Marine colonel who whips (not literally, but almost) the campers into shape. Intended as a direct-to-video release, and it shows. [PG]●

Daddy Day Care (2003) C-92m.  D: Steve Carr. Eddie Murphy, Jeff Garlin, Steve Zahn, Regina King, Anjelica Huston, Lacey Chabert, Jonathan Katz, Kevin Nealon, Siobhan Fallon Hogan, Laura Kightlinger. When Murphy and his best friend Garlin lose their jobs, the boredom of being househusbands inspires them to start a business—a day-care center for kids—despite their almost complete ignorance of how to go about it. Surprisingly benign, non-cynical comedy with Murphy as a devoted dad who comes to realize what's really important in his life. A refreshing change from the usual run of

so-called family entertainment. Followed by DADDY DAY CAMP. [PG] ▼

Daddy Long Legs (1955) C-126m. ½ D: Jean Negulesco. Fred Astaire, Leslie Caron, Thelma Ritter, Fred Clark, Terry Moore, Larry Keating. Overlong musical remake of oft-filmed story about playboy (Astaire) anonymously sponsoring waif's education—then she falls in love with him. Some good dance numbers, and Johnny Mercer score highlighted by "Something's Got to Give." Previously filmed in 1919, 1931, (as CURLY TOP) in 1935, and in the Netherlands in 1938. CinemaScope. ▼

Daddy Nostalgia (1990-French) C-105m. ½ D: Bertrand Tavernier. Dirk Bogarde, Jane Birkin, Odette Laure. Birkin rushes to the Cote d'Azur to be at the side of her father, who may be dying; during her extended stay she tries to sort out her relationship with him, and understand the life he's led. Utterly believable, but not always compelling; Bogarde's charming (and commanding) screen presence makes it well worth seeing. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Daddy's Dyin' . . . Who's Got the Will? (1990) C-95m. ½ D: Jack Fisk. Beau Bridges, Keith Carradine, Beverly D'Angelo, Tess Harper, Judge Reinhold, Amy Wright, Patrika Darbo, Molly McClure, Bert Remsen. Affection, reminiscence, avarice, and hostility intermingling as a family of memorable oddballs gathers at the old Texas homestead to wait for their father to die and to find out what's in the will. Del Shores adapted his own stage play, and the results run from flat and predictable to sharp and funny; a terrific cast punches everything across. [PG-13] ▼

Daddy's Gone A-Hunting (1969) C-108m.  D: Mark Robson. Carol White, Paul Burke, Scott Hylands, Rachel Ames, Mala Powers, James B. Sicking. Happily married and pregnant, White is horrified when her previous lover turns up, demanding she kill her baby to atone for having aborted his child. Though contrived, story becomes increasingly tense, with nail-biting climax; shot in San Francisco. [M/PG] ▼

Daddy's Little Girls (2007) C-95m. ½ D: Tyler Perry. Gabrielle Union, Idris Elba, Louis Gossett, Jr., Tracee Ellis Ross, Tasha Smith, Malinda Williams, Terri J. Vaughn, Gary Sturgis, China Anne McClain, Lauryn Alisa McClain, Sierra Ayilina McClain. Perry drops his drag act and stays behind the camera for this comedy about a mechanic who gets romantically involved with the upscale attorney who is helping him win custody of his three daughters from his ne'er-do-well ex-wife and her thug boyfriend. Overly dramatic and predictable, but still a somewhat effective look at the difficulties involved when a relationship straddles both sides of the tracks. Perry wrote and coproduced. Aka TYLER PERRY'S DADDY'S LITTLE GIRLS. [PG-13] ▼

Daffy Duck's Movie: Fantastic Island (1983) C-78m. *½ D: Friz Freleng. Fourth and weakest of Warner Bros.' cartoon compilations. Linking material (spoofing TV's Fantasy Island) is flat, and few of the ten cartoon shorts included are better than average. Hardly Daffy's finest hour. [G] ▼

Daffy Duck's Quackbusters (1989) C-79m.  D: Greg Ford, Terry Lennon. Voice of Mel Blanc. Perhaps the most watchable of the Warner cartoon-compilation films, with a clever bridging story incorporating the studio's many vintage horror-movie spoofs. Daffy Duck inherits a fortune and sets up a "ghost-busting" service with pals Bugs Bunny and Porky Pig. Contains the new short THE DUXORCIST and a cameo appearance by Egghead. [G] ▼

Daggers of Blood SEE: With Fire and Sword

Dahmer (2002) C-101m. ½ D: David Jacobson. Jeremy Renner, Bruce Davison, Artel Kayaru, Matt Newton, Dion Basco, Kate Williamson, Christina Payano. Rather than depicting the whole story of serial killer Jeffrey Dahmer, this unusual film dramatizes scenes from his life; it doesn't even include his arrest. The cast is uniformly good, it's well written (by Jacobson) and imaginatively directed, but it remains uninvolved, with an undefinable point of view. [R] ▼

Daisy Kenyon (1947) 99m. ½ D: Otto Preminger. Joan Crawford, Dana Andrews, Henry Fonda, Ruth Warrick, Martha Stewart, Peggy Ann Garner, Connie Marshall. Love triangle starts intelligently, bogs down halfway into typical soapy histrionics (with a plot thread about child abuse surprising for its time). Good performances; handsomely filmed. Look sharp in the Stork Club scene for Walter Winchell, John Garfield, and Leonard Lyons. ▼

Daisy Miller (1974) C-91m. ½ D: Peter Bogdanovich. Cybill Shepherd, Barry Brown, Cloris Leachman, Mildred Natwick, Eileen Brennan, Duilio Del Prete. Handsome, intelligent adaptation of Henry James' story misses the mark; the tone is cold, and Shepherd's hollow performance as a naive American courting European society in the late 1800s nearly sinks the film. Screenplay by Frederic Raphael. Filmed in Italy. [G] ▼

Dakota (1945) 82m.  D: Joseph Kane. John Wayne, Vera Ralston, Walter Brennan, Ward Bond, Ona Munson, Hugo Haas. Sprawling Wayne vehicle with Duke involved in pioneer railroad territory dispute; Vera is his lovely wife! ▼

Dakota (1988) C-97m.  D: Fred Holmes. Lou Diamond Phillips, Eli Cummins, DeeDee Norton, Jordan Burton, Steve Ruge, John Hawkes. Well-meaning but slight, independently produced drama about a youth on the run (Phillips), who works on a Texas ranch and interrelates with various characters. Phillips, who served as associate producer, is the sole interest here; he made the film prior to attaining stardom in LA BAMBA. [PG]▼●●

Daleks—Invasion Earth 2150 A.D. (1966-British) C-84m. ½ D: Gordon Flemyng. Peter Cushing, Bernard Cribbins, Andrew Keir, Ray Brooks, Jill Curzon, Roberta Tovey. Agreeable sequel to *DR. Dallas (1950) C-94m. ½ D: Stuart Heisler. Gary Cooper, Ruth Roman, Steve Cochran, Raymond Massey, Barbara Payton, Leif Erickson, Antonio Moreno. Action-packed post-Civil War Western, with Reb Cooper branded an outlaw, coming to Texas on a mission of revenge.▼

Dalrymple Calhoun (2005) C-93m. BOMB D: Katrina Holden Bronson. Johnny Knoxville, Juliette Lewis, Elizabeth Banks, Kick Gurry, David Koechner, Sophie Traub, Andrew Prine, Beth Grant, James Parks, Matthew Sharp. Slovenly Knoxville morphs into a wildly successful sod seed manufacturer, but his plan to build a public golf course is disrupted by various complications, including the unexpected presence of his estranged, precocious 14-year-old daughter and her mother. Meandering Southern Fried mishmash aimlessly veers from stale comedy to half-baked sentiment. There's a parade of hit songs on the soundtrack to make you think you're being entertained. Writer-director is the daughter of Charles Bronson and Jill Ireland. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Damage (1992-British) C-111m. ½ D: Louis Malle. Jeremy Irons, Juliette Binoche, Miranda Richardson, Rupert Graves, Ian Bannen, Leslie Caron, Peter Stormare, Gemma Clark. Arch-to-a-fault adaptation of Josephine Hart's minimalist best-seller, about a middle-aged Brit politician who squanders his career and family by embarking a hot-sex affair with his son's mysterious girlfriend. Binoche is frigidly one-note as the latter, sinking what in some ways is disappointingly accomplished filmmaking. Richardson is spectacularly good as Irons' spurned wife. Screenplay by David Hare. Fine score by Zbigniew Preisner. Unrated version available. [R]▼●●

Dam Busters, The (1954-British) 119m. ½ D: Michael Anderson. Richard Todd, Michael Redgrave, Ursula Jeans, Basil Sydney. During WW2, British devise an ingenious plan to blow up Germans' Ruhr dam. Exciting and intelligent film. Look fast for a young Patrick McGoochan.▼

Dames (1934) 90m.  D: Ruby Enright. Joan Blondell, Dick Powell, Ruy Keeler, ZaSu Pitts, Hugh Herbert, Guy Kibbee, Phil Regan. Short on plot (let's-back-a-Broadway-musical) but has top Busby Berkeley production ensembles like "I Only Have Eyes for You." Other songs include

"When You Were a Smile on Your Mother's Lips and a Twinkle in Your Daddy's Eye," and classic title tune.▼●●

Damien—Omen II (1978) C-107m. ½ D: Don Taylor. William Holden, Lee Grant, Lew Ayres, Sylvia Sidney, Robert Foxworth, Jonathan Scott-Taylor, Leo McKern, Meshach Taylor. Sequel to huge hit of 1976 is less effective, still has shock value from grisly murders, plus good work by Holden. Best scene is Ayres' death under an icy lake. Scott-Taylor is the demon child; Holden and Grant his stupidly unsuspecting kin. Taylor took over directing from Michael Hodges, who worked on screenplay. Followed by THE FINAL CONFLICT. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Damnation Alley (1977) C-91m. ½ D: Jack Smight. Jan-Michael Vincent, George Peppard, Dominique Sanda, Paul Winfield, Jackie Earle Haley. Five survivors of nuclear wipeout travel cross-country in search of civilization. Futuristic van in which they travel is more interesting than story or characters in this uninspiring sci-fi saga. Distantly related to the Roger Zelazny novel. Panavision. [PG]▼

Damned, The (1969-Italian-West German) C-155m.  D: Luchino Visconti. Dirk Bogarde, Ingrid Thulin, Helmut Griem, Helmut Berger, Charlotte Rampling, Florinda Bolkan. Grim drama depicting the plight of a family of German industrialists during the 1930s; their decline parallels the rise of Hitler. Violent, melodramatic, and controversial, but undeniably illuminating. [X]▼●

Damned Don't Cry, The (1950) 103m. ½ D: Vincent Sherman. Joan Crawford, David Brian, Steve Cochran, Kent Smith, Richard Egan. Follow-up to FLAMINGO ROAD formula; Crawford is well cast as lower-class gal rising to wealth via wit and looks, discovering too late that a gangster's moll has no right to love and happiness.●

Damn the Defiant! (1962-British) C-101m.  D: Lewis Gilbert. Alec Guinness, Dirk Bogarde, Maurice Denham, Nigel Stock, Richard Carpenter, Anthony Quayle. Bogarde vs. Guinness in stalwart tale of British warship during Napoleonic campaign. Production shows great attention to historic detail. CinemaScope.▼●●

Damn Yankees (1958) C-110m.  D: George Abbott. Stanley Donen. Tab Hunter, Gwen Verdon, Ray Walston, Russ Brown, Jimmie Komack, Jean Stapleton, Nathaniel Frey. Aging, frustrated Washington Senators baseball fan says he'd sell his soul to see the club get one good hitter; a devilish Mr. Applegate appears to fulfill his wish, and transforms him into the club's new star. Faithful translation of hit Broadway musical (with Walston, Verdon, and others repeating their original roles) loses something along the way, and has a particularly weak finale, but it's still quite entertaining. Songs include "(You Gotta Have) Heart," "Whatever Lola Wants," and a mambo memorably danced by Verdon and choreographer Bob Fosse. ▼●●

Damsel in Distress, A (1937) 101m. ***

D: George Stevens. Fred Astaire, George Burns, Gracie Allen, Joan Fontaine, Constance Collier, Reginald Gardiner, Montagu Love. Bright Gershwin musical set in London, with dancing star Astaire pursuing aristocratic heiress Fontaine. Burns and Allen have never been better—they even get to sing and dance. Songs include "Foggy Day in London Town," "Nice Work If You Can Get It." The clever "Fun House" sequence won an Oscar for Hermes Pan's dance direction. Based on a novel by P. G. Wodehouse, who cowrote the script. ▼●●

Dante Wayans. Damon Wayans, Jr., Shoshana Bush, Essence Atkins, Affion Crockett, Chris Elliott, David Alan Grier, Brennan Hillard, Amy Sedaris, Marlon Wayans, Shawn Wayans, Keenen Ivory Wayans. Lochlyn Munro appears unbilled. After her mother's tragic death, Megan enrolls at Musical High School and meets a group of kids from the wrong side of the tracks who want to teach her what life is really about. It isn't that hard to mock the dance movie genre, or for that matter musicals and pop culture. That's why the latest film installment of a Wayans' family parody is so disappointing. While there are amusing moments and laughs, simply put, it should be funnier. [PG-13]

Dorothy Arzner. Maureen O'Hara, Louis Hayward, Lucille Ball, Virginia Field, Ralph Bellamy, Maria Ouspenskaya, Mary Carlisle, Walter Abel, Edward Brophy. Innocent young girl (O'Hara) aspires to be a ballerina, but self-centered Ball steers her toward burlesque instead. Film has won latter-day acclaim for feminist angles, especially for O'Hara's burlesque-hall speech; unfortunately, it's not as good as one would like. Lucy is terrific as Bubbles. ▼●●

Dance Goes On, The (1991-Canadian) C-

103m.  D: Paul Almond. Matthew James Almond, James Keach, Genevieve Bujold, Bryan Hennessey, Louise Marleau, Leslie Hope, Cary Lawrence, Deborah Freeland. Young Almond, who's insensitive and money-hungry (because he has grown up in L.A.), arrives in Quebec where he's inherited his uncle's farm. Will he get in touch with his roots, and experience "real life"? Ever-so-predictable (not to mention boring) drama. Actor Almond is the son of Bujold and director Almond (who also produced and scripted). ▼

Dance Hall Racket (1953) 60m. *½ D:

Phil Tucker. Lenny Bruce, Honey Harlowe, Timothy Farrell, Sally Marr. This one could be retitled All in the (Dysfunctional) Family: Lenny plays a hood, real-life wife Harlowe is a bimbo who shows off her cleavage, and mom Marr is along for laughs. Scripted by Bruce; it would make a classy double bill with Tucker's ROBOT MONSTER. ▼●

Dancemaker (1999) C-98m. ½ D:

Matthew Diamond. Fascinating study of choreographer Paul Taylor and the endless difficulties managing his company and its dancers. Footage of his dance creations is artfully interspersed with preparations for the troupe's engagement in India. Film provides an insider's look at what it takes to be a dancer—and a dancemaker. A feast for dance buffs. ▼●

Björk, Catherine Deneuve, David Morse, Peter Stormare, Joel Grey, Vincent Patterson, Vladica Kostic, Udo Kier, Željko Ivanek, Stellan Skarsgård. Ambitious, brazenly off-putting musical (!) about a Czech immigrant (Björk) who is going blind and must arrange an operation to save her son from the same fate. Writer-director von Trier's attempt to expand cinematic musical conventions is certainly thought provoking, but ultimately cold and very literal minded, and not helped by jagged song-and-dance numbers. Björk is impressive; she also composed the film's music. Super 35. [R]▼

Dancers (1987) C-99m. *½ D: Herbert Ross. Mikhail Baryshnikov, Alessandra Ferri, Leslie Browne, Thomas Rall, Lynn Seymour, Victor Barbee, Mariangela Melato, Julie Kent. Trite, inexplicably bad movie about a ballet star/Iothario (Baryshnikov, ideally cast) who's rehearsing a screen version of Giselle, and becomes infatuated with an innocent young dancer. A waste of time. Baryshnikov, Browne, and Ross collaborated 10 years earlier on THE TURNING POINT. [PG]▼

Dancer, Texas Pop. 81 (1998) C-95m. ½ D: Tim McCanlies. Ethan Embry, Breckin Meyer, Peter Facinelli, Eddie Mills, Ashley Johnson, Patricia Wettig, Michael O'Neill. Slight but pleasant LAST PICTURE SHOW-lite tale of four small-town teenage buddies facing life after high school and wondering whether they should make good on a childhood pact to move to L.A. Appealing performances by the male leads make up for their schematic roles. Promising debut for writer-director McCanlies. [PG]▼

Dancer Upstairs, The (2002-U.S.-Spanish) C-124m. ½ D: John Malkovich. Javier Bardem, Laura Morante, Juan Diego Botto, Elvira Mínguez, Alexandra Lencastre, Oliver Cotton, Luis Miguel Cintra. Dedicated police detective Bardem is determined to identify and capture the leader of a volatile guerrilla movement in an unnamed Latin American country. Meanwhile, he finds himself attracted to his daughter's beautiful ballet teacher. Intriguing political drama, with a strong performance by Bardem, is weighed down by its slow pace and extended length. One might also question Bardem's naiveté at the story's conclusion. Nicholas Shakespeare adapted his own novel. Malkovich's feature directing debut. [R]▼

Grant, Floyd Red Crow Westerman, Tantoo Cardinal, Robert Pastorelli, Charles Rocket, Maury Chaykin, Larry Joshua, Wes Studi. Altogether extraordinary film (all the more so for being Costner's directing debut) about an idealistic young Civil War soldier who makes friends with a Sioux Indian tribe and, eventually, becomes one of them. Simply and eloquently told, with every element falling into place (on breathtaking South Dakota locations). A triumph in every respect. Oscar winner for Best Picture, Director, Screenplay (Michael Blake, from his novel), Original Score (John Barry). Cinematography (Dean Semler), Editing (Neil Travis), and Sound Recording. 237m. "special edition" expands the story and characterizations. Pan-avision. [PG-13]▼

Dance With a Stranger (1985-British) C-101m. ½ D: Mike Newell. Miranda Richardson, Rupert Everett, Ian Holm, Matthew Carroll, Tom Chadbon, Joanne Whalley, Jane Bertish. Stylish, trenchant study of romantic self-destruction based on the true story of Ruth Ellis, who in 1955 became the last woman ever executed in Britain. Peaks with about a half hour to go, but Richardson, her leading men, and a haunting atmosphere more than compensate. Ellis' story was earlier told in YIELD TO THE NIGHT (BLONDE SINNER), with Diana Dors. [R]▼

Dance With Me (1998) C-126m. ½ D: Randa Haines. Vanessa L. Williams, Chayanne, Kris Kristofferson, Joan Plowright, Jane Krakowski, Beth Grant. Likable if formulaic (and overlung) film about a Houston dance instructor (Williams) who learns a thing or two from a Cuban émigré who's come to work at the dance studio. What the studio owner (Kristofferson) doesn't know is that the handsome young man is his son. Appealing cast and terrific dance sequences—including a knockout at a Latin dance club—give this life, and Plowright steals most of her scenes as a matronly but enthusiastic student. [PG]▼

Dance With Me, Henry (1956) 79m. *½ D: Charles Barton. Lou Costello, Bud Abbott, Gigi Perreau, Rusty Hamer. Low-grade Abbott and Costello involving the duo's ownership of run-down amusement park and two kids they've adopted; their last film together. ▼

Meryl Streep, Michael Gambon, Catherine McCormack, Kathy Burke, Sophie Thompson, Brid Brennan, Rhys Ifans, Darrell Johnston; narrated by Gerard McSorley. Flavorful filmization of Brian Friel's play about a close-knit rural Irish family—five unmarried sisters—in the 1930s and the return of their brother, Jack (a priest), from his post in Africa. No strong story here but a rich feel for time, place, atmosphere, and character, with fine performances all around. [PG]▼

Developed by Radford and his cast through a series of improvisational workshops, which is all too apparent from the film's extenuated length and meandering nature. Strong performances from the leading actresses are the only compensation. [R]▼●

Dancing Lady (1933) 94m. ½ D: Robert Z. Leonard. Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Franchot Tone, May Robson, Nelson Eddy, Fred Astaire, Robert Benchley, Ted Healy and His Stooges. Glossy backstage romance is best remembered for Astaire's film debut (he plays himself), dancing opposite a less-than-inspired Crawford. Show-biz story, three-cornered romance are strictly standard, but cast and MGM gloss add points. Funniest moments belong to The Three Stooges. Look fast for a young Eve Arden.▼●●

Danger: Diabolik (1967-Italian-French) C-100m.  D: Mario Bava. John Phillip Law, Marisa Mell, Michel Piccoli, Adolfo Celi, Terry-Thomas, Claudio Gora. Entertaining, tongue-in-cheek exploits of super-criminal Diabolik (Law), with wonderfully outré sets and costumes, stylish photography, and a bizarre psychedelic score by Ennio Morricone. An indelible '60s time-capsule based on the European comic-strip character. Originally released as DIABOLIK, at 105m. Panoramica.▼●●

Dangerous (1935) 78m. ½ D: Alfred E. Green. Bette Davis, Franchot Tone, Margaret Lindsay, Alison Skipworth, John Eldredge, Dick Foran. Former stage star Davis, on the skids, is rehabilitated by Tone in good but syrupy tale, with flamboyant Oscar-winning performance by Davis. Remade as SINGAPORE WOMAN.▼●●

a fascinating woman in 16th-century Venice, where women had no rights and no education—but courtesans did. Sacrificing her one true love, she becomes the most notorious, outspoken, and desired woman in Venice. McCormack is superb in the leading role, and Bisset is ideal as her mother, but the story takes a sharp turn toward the end (incorporating the plague and the Inquisition) and loses its dramatic grip. Still a good-looking and, for the most part, absorbing tale, based on a true story. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Dangerous Game (1993) C-105m. BOMB D: Abel Ferrara. Harvey Keitel, Madonna, James Russo, Nancy Ferrara, Reilly Murphy, Victor Argo, Leonard Thomas, Christina Futon. Humiliatingly banal Madonna career-killer about filmmaker whose latest project begins to reflect his own life—or is it the other way around? Barely released, and surprisingly tame, given Ferrara's previous movies, and Madonna's inclination to hang it all out. Working title was SNAKE EYES, which is what the studio rolled when it bankrolled this one. [R]▼●●

Dangerous Ground (1997) C-95m. *½ D: Darrell James Roodt. Ice Cube, Elizabeth Hurley, Ving Rhames, Sechaba Morajele, Eric Miyeni. Dangerous, and silly, too. Back in rural South Africa for a funeral several years after his apartheid-imposed flight to the U.S., literature major Cube fulfills a promise to mom by tracking down his fugitive younger brother who's involved in a drug ring. Despite broad plot parallels, don't look for the solemn tone director Roodt brought to his remake of CRY, THE BELOVED COUNTRY. Hurley, in harsh makeup, is cast as the wayward brother's girlfriend. Dangerous Liaisons (1988) C-120m. ½ D: Stephen Frears. Glenn Close, John Malkovich, Michelle Pfeiffer, Swoosie Kurtz, Keanu Reeves, Mildred Natwick, Uma Thurman, Peter Capaldi. In 18th-century France, an unscrupulous woman manipulates the lives of those around her, just for amusement, with the help of a like-minded count. Excellent adaptation of Christopher Hampton's play Les Liaisons Dangereuses, based on the famous period novel. Close is magnificent, Malkovich good (though miscast). Hampton's screenplay won an Oscar, as did the art direction and costumes. Same story filmed in 1959 (as DANGEROUS LIAISONS 1960), 1976 (as UNE FEMME FIDÈLE, aka GAME OF SEDUCTION), 1989 (as VALMONT), 1999 (as CRUEL INTENTIONS), and 2003 (as UNTOLD SCANDAL). [R]▼●●

Dangerous Liaisons 1960 (1959-French) 106m.  D: Roger Vadim. Gérard

Philippe, Jeanne Moreau, Jeanne Valérie, Annette (Stroyberg) Vadim, Simone Renant, Jean-Louis Trintignant. Modern-dress version of the 18th-century novel of sexcapades among the debauched . . . and who better to film it than Vadim? Faithful in spirit to its origins, though the leads here are a married couple, cavorting in Paris and the Alps. Lots of fun, with gorgeous actors and jazz soundtrack by Thelonious Monk, Art Blakey, and Duke Jordan, who also appear. Don't miss Vadim's priceless prologue, shot for 1961 American audiences. Vadim remade this in 1976 as UNE FEMME FIDÈLE (GAME OF SEDUCTION). French title: LES LIAISONS DANGEREUSES. ▼●●

Dangerous Lives of Altar Boys, The (2002) C-105m. ½ D: Peter Care. Kieran Culkin, Jena Malone, Emile Hirsch, Vincent D'Onofrio, Jodie Foster, Jake Richardson, Tyler Long. Likable enough coming-of-age story about hell-raising teenage boys attending a Catholic school during the 1960s. They fantasize about their lives in the form of comic-book adventures (in which their unforgiving teacher, played by Foster, becomes Nunzilla). These animated sequences, produced by Todd McFarlane, give the familiar storyline considerable pizzazz. Foster also coproduced. [R]▼●

Dangerous Minds (1995) C-99m. ½ D: John N. Smith. Michelle Pfeiffer, George Dzundza, Courtney B. Vance, Robin Bartlett, Bruklin Harris, Renoly Santiago, Wade Dominguez, Beatrice Winde, Lorraine Toussaint, John Neville. Wide-eyed, inexperienced teacher (and ex-Marine) takes over a class of "unteachable" inner-city kids. She learns that changing their attitude requires a deeper understanding of their hard-knock lives. What might seem like a superficial reread of BLACKBOARD JUNGLE or TO SIR, WITH LOVE is a well-meaning, well-acted film, although some of it just doesn't wash (Pfeiffer seems awfully mousy for an ex-Marine). Followed by a TV series. [R]▼●●

Dangerous Moves (1984-Swiss) C-100m.  D: Richard Dembo. Michel Piccoli, Alexandre Arbatt, Leslie Caron, Liv Ullmann, Daniel Olbrychski, Michel Aumont. Dangerous Summer, A (1981-Australian) C-100m. *½ D: Quentin Masters. Tom Skerritt, Ian Gilmour, James Mason, Wendy Hughes, Ray Barrett. Pannavision. ▼●●

Dangerous When Wet (1953) C-95m. ***

D: Charles Walters. Esther Williams, Fernando Lamas, Jack Carson, Charlotte Greenwood, Denise Darcel, William Demarest, Donna Corcoran, Barbara Whiting. Cute musical comedy, one of Esther's best, about a health-conscious family whose leading light tries to swim the English Channel. Williams cavorts underwater with the animated Tom and Jerry in one memorable scene. She later married leading-man Lamas in real life. ▼●●

Dangerous Woman, A (1993) C-99m.  D: Stephen Gyllenhaal. Debra Winger, Barbara Hershey, Gabriel Byrne, David Strathairn, Chloe Webb, John Terry, Laurie Metcalf, Jan Hooks, Paul Dooley. Muddled movie of Mary McGarry Morris' acclaimed novel, with Winger the unceasingly frank nebbish niece of wealthy widow Hershey (who's been having an affair with a married politician). Winger is memorable in an unattractive part; Hershey's role is impossible; and Byrne (as the handyman who comes between them) comes off as the Great Stone Face. The director's children, Maggie and Jacob (Jake) Gyllenhaal, appear in small roles. [R]▼●

Excellent adaptation of E. L. Doctorow's The Book of Daniel, about the children of a couple patterned after Julius and Ethel Rosenberg who must confront their painful heritage in order to deal with their own lives in the protest-filled 1960s. Not without its flaws, but overall a provocative and extremely well-made film. [R]▼●

Dan in Real Life (2007) C-98m.  D: Peter Hedges. Steve Carell, Juliette Binoche, Dane Cook, Dianne Wiest, John Mahoney, Alison Pill, Emily Blunt, Amy Ryan, Norbert Leo Butz, Jessica Hecht. Amiable comedy-drama of newspaper columnist Dan (Carell), the doting but harried single father of three daughters. When the family heads off to New England for a holiday at his parents' seaside home, this widowed dad unexpectedly meets someone (Binoche) who seems to be perfect for him. The family reunion is replete with sibling rivalries, secrets, and resentments. Manages to rise above familiar sitcom level to be an entertaining take on middle-aged affairs of the heart. [PG-13] ▾

Danny Boy (1982-Irish-British) C-92m.  D: Neil Jordan. Veronica Quilligan, Stephen Rea, Alan Devlin, Peter Caffrey, Honor Heffernan, Lise-Ann McLaughlin, Donal McCann, Ray McAnally, Marie Kean. Ambitious but pretentious, unrelentingly dreary melodrama of sax player Rea, who exchanges his instrument for a machine gun after witnessing a double murder. Jordan's directorial debut, which he also scripted; he and leading man Rea later reteamed for THE CRYING GAME. Original British title: ANGEL. [R] ▾

Danny Deckchair (2003-Australian) C-90m. ½ D: Jeff Balmeyer. Rhys Ifans, Miranda Otto, Justine Clarke, Rhys Muldoon, Frank Magree, Anthony Phelan, John Batchelor, Alan Flower. Mildly entertaining Capra-esque romantic fantasy of one of life's "little people," Danny Morgan (Ifans), a cement-truck driver who improbably escapes his everyday existence. On a lark, he ties some helium-filled balloons to a lawn chair and floats through the heavens, whisking him off to a new life and new set of values. Clarke is a find as Danny's calculating girlfriend. Based, apparently, on a true story. [PG-13] ▾

Dante's Inferno (1935) 88m. ½ D: Harry Lachman. Spencer Tracy, Claire Trevor, Henry B. Walthall, Alan Dinehart, Scotty Beckett. No Dante in this yarn of carnival owner who gets too big for his own good; just one elaborate sequence showing Satan's paradise in good Tracy vehicle. Young Rita Hayworth dances in one scene.

Dante's Peak (1997) C-108m.  D: Roger Donaldson. Pierce Brosnan, Linda Hamilton, Jamie Renée Smith, Jeremy Foley, Elizabeth Hoffman, Charles Hallahan, Grant Heslov. Formulaic but entertaining disaster movie about a scientist from the U.S. Geological Survey who sniffs around a mountainside town in Washington just below a volcano that he feels is going to blow at any minute. Along the way he falls in love with the town's mayor. Critics dumped on the first of 1997's two volcano movies, but hey—it ain't supposed to be Henry V. The characters are likable and the effects are completely convincing. Super 35. [PG-13] ▾

Danton (1982-Polish-French) C-136m. * D: Andrzej Wajda. Gérard Depardieu, Wojciech Pszoniak, Patrice Chereau, Angela Winkler, Boguslaw Linda. Literate, absorbing, knowing drama of Danton, Robespierre, and the Reign of Terror following the French Revolution. A brilliant film, with obvious parallels to contemporary political situation in Poland. Depardieu is magnificent in the title role. [PG] ▾

Danzón (1991-Mexican) C-103m.  D: Maria Novaro. María Rojo, Carmen

Salinas, Blanca Guerra, Margarita Isabel, Tito Vasconcelos. Arresting feminist tale about a dreary telephone operator (Rojo) who comes alive only when performing a ballroom dance known as the "danzón." Her life undergoes a transformation when her longtime partner mysteriously disappears, and she becomes obsessed with finding him. The scenes with Rojo and Vasconcelos (playing a transvestite nightclub performer) are especially effective. [PG-13] ▾

Darby O'Gill and the Little People (1959) C-90m. ½ D: Robert Stevenson. Albert Sharpe, Janet Munro, Sean Connery, Jimmy O'Dea, Kieron Moore, Estelle Winwood. Outstanding Disney fantasy about an Irish caretaker (Sharpe) who spins so many tales that no one believes him when he says he's befriended the King of Leprechauns. An utter delight, with dazzling special effects—and some truly terrifying moments along with the whimsy. ▾

Darby's Rangers (1958) 121m. ½ D: William Wellman. James Garner, Etchika Choureau, Jack Warden, Edward Byrnes, Venetia Stevenson, Torin Thatcher, Peter Brown, Corey Allen, Stuart Whitman, Murray Hamilton. Garner does well in WW2 actioner as leader of assault troops in North Africa and Italy, focusing on relationships among his command and their shore romances. ▾

Daredevil (2003) C-104m.  D: Mark Steven Johnson. Ben Affleck, Jennifer Garner, Michael Clarke Duncan, Colin Farrell, Joe Pantoliano, Jon Favreau, David Keith, Erick Avari, Paul Ben-Victor, Leland Orser. Blinded as a boy in N.Y.C., Matt Murdock grows up to be a lawyer by day and crime fighter by night, using his heightened senses to punish bad guys . . . but he's a tortured hero. Colorful, entertaining comic-book fodder, played with conviction by Affleck and a crackerjack cast: Garner as the agile Elektra, Favreau as his comic-relief law partner, Duncan as the menacing Kingpin, and a wild-eyed Farrell as Bullseye. Mark Margolis appears unbilled as Fallon; amusing cameo by comics aficionado Kevin Smith. Based on the Marvel Comics character created by Stan Lee (who also cameo) and Bill Everett. Alternate version runs 120m. Followed by a spin-off: ELEKTRA. Super 35. [PG-13] ▾

Darfur Now (2007) C-98m. ½ D: Theodore Braun. Documentary about various people who are trying to make a difference in strife-ridden Darfur, including a man who operates the World Food Program, a lawyer who plans to prosecute government officials in the International Criminal Court, a local woman whose personal tragedy has led her to become an armed rebel, a young man from L.A. who tries to get the state of California to rid itself of Sudanese investments, and actor Don Cheadle, who uses his celebrity (and that of friends like George Clooney) to draw attention to the crisis. By trying to find the positive in all of this and appeal to a mainstream audience, this well-made film sacrifices deep emotional impact. Cheadle coproduced. [PG] ▮

Daring Dobermans, The (1973) C-90m.

Daring Game (1968) C-100m. ½ D: Laslo Benedek. Lloyd Bridges, Nico Minardos, Michael Ansara, Joan Blackman. Not bad adventure tale of underwater expert (guess who?) in search of husband and daughter of his former girlfriend. ▽

Darjeeling Limited, The (2007) C-91m.

½ D: Wes Anderson. Owen Wilson, Jason Schwartzman, Adrien Brody, Anjelica Huston, Amara Karan, Wallace Wolodarsky, Waris Ahluwalia, Irfan Khan, Barbet Schroeder, Camilla Rutherford, Bill Murray. Three brothers who get on each other's nerves (including Wilson, in heavy bandages) take a stab at reconciling on an India train journey that includes a stop-off to see mom Huston, who's now in a Himalayan convent. Another visually inventive Anderson comedy, though its thin comic story has a melancholy air. For Anderson (and his cowriters Schwartzman and Roman Coppola) it's the journey, not the destination, that matters here. Natalie Portman, seen here in a passing bit, also stars with Schwartzman in the tangentially related short HOTEL CHEVALIER. Panavision. [R] ▮

Dark, The (1979) C-92m.  D: John (Bud) Cardos. William Devane, Cathy Lee Crosby, Richard Jaeckel, Keenan Wynn, Jacquelyn Hyde, Biff Elliott, Vivian Blaine. Dark at the Top of the Stairs, The (1960) C-123m. ½ D: Delbert Mann. Robert Preston, Dorothy McGuire, Eve Arden, Angela Lansbury, Shirley Knight, Lee Kinsolving, Frank Overton, Robert Eyer. Simple, eloquent drama, set in 1920s Oklahoma, with Preston in top form as a traveling salesman caught in a passionless marriage. His relationships with wife McGuire, daughter Knight, and "friend" Lansbury are played out in a series of beautifully acted scenes. Poignant script by Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank, Jr., from William Inge's play.

Dark Backward, The (1991) C-104m. *½ D: Adam Rifkin. Judd Nelson, Bill Paxton, Wayne Newton, Lara Flynn Boyle, James Caan, Rob Lowe, King Moody,

Claudia Christian. Yes, that's a third arm growing out of Nelson's back—and it's putting the necessary edge on his wide professional reputation as the worst stand-up comic in show-biz history. Contrived in an attempt to be culty, but unsuccessful even on those terms. Still, film has a casting mix one could cherish. Lowe is fitted out with what appears to the untrained eye to be Mr. Hyde's dental work. Director Rifkin appears as Rufus Bing. [R] ▽ ● ▮

Dark Blue (2003) C-118m.  D: Ron Shelton. Kurt Russell, Brendan Gleeson, Scott Speedman, Michael Michele, Lolita Davidovich, Ving Rhames, Dash Mihok, Kurupt, Master P. Half-baked look at inbred corruption in the LAPD during the troubled days leading up to the riots of 1992. Russell (in a dynamic performance) plays a third-generation cop who no longer blinks at the methodology of his colleagues and superiors, but his young partner (Speedman) still has ideals. Awkward coincidences and a preposterous finale are just two major flaws in this narrative, which tries to be larger than life and realistic at the same time. Based on an original story by James Ellroy. Super 35. [R] ▽ ▮

Dark Blue World (2001-Czech) C-119m.

½ D: Jan Sverák. Ondrej Vetchý, Tara Fitzgerald, Krystof Hadek, Charles Dance, Oldrich Kaiser. From a 1950 Soviet-ruled Czech labor camp that's punishing a native pilot who flew for the R.A.F., we cut to a 1939 flashback to find the same guy (Vetchý) involved with a Brit (Fitzgerald) whose husband is missing in action. The later story sounds more novel and interesting, but the dominant earlier one provides the flying scenes, which are surprisingly elaborate. Otherwise, there's not much to distinguish this capable but uninspired yarn from hundreds of other WW2 dramas. Arriscope. [R] ▽ ▮

Dark City (1950) 98m. ½ D: William Dieterle. Charlton Heston, Lizabeth Scott, Viveca Lindfors, Dean Jagger, Jack Webb, Don DeFore, Ed Begley, Henry (Harry) Morgan. Moody drama of cynical, alienated Heston, and what happens when he and his cronies take sap DeFore in a card game. It's fun to see Webb and Morgan, both of later Dragnet fame, cast as a wiseguy and ex-pug at each other's throats. This was Heston's Hollywood debut.

Dark City (1998) C-100m.  D: Alex Proyas. Rufus Sewell, Kiefer Sutherland, Jennifer Connelly, Richard O'Brien, Ian Richardson, Colin Fries, Bruce Spence, William Hurt. In a city where it is always night, aliens conduct secret experiments to learn what makes us human. Meanwhile, his memory mostly gone, Sewell is suspected of being a serial killer, and finds he now has telekinetic powers. Richly plotted sci-fi has striking set design and excellent use of special effects; complex, with a new surprise every few minutes. Filmed in Australia. Cowritten by the director. Director's cut runs 111m. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Dark Command (1940) 94m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Claire Trevor, John Wayne, Walter Pidgeon, Roy Rogers, George "Gabby" Hayes, Porter Hall, Marjorie Main. Pidgeon plays character based on 1860s renegade Quantrill, small-town despot who (in this story) launches his terror raids after clashing with new marshal Wayne. Dramatically uneven, but entertaining. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●

Dark Corner, The (1946) 99m.  D: Henry Hathaway. Lucille Ball, Clifton Webb, William Bendix, Mark Stevens, Kurt Kreuger, Cathy Downs, Reed Hadley, Constance Collier. Dark End of the Street, The (1981) C-90m.  D: Jan Egleson. Laura Harrington, Henry Tomaszewski, Michelle Green, Lance Henriksen, Pamela Payton-Wright, Terence Grey, Ben Affleck. Fine performances, particularly by Harrington and Green (as her best friend).

Darker Than Amber (1970) C-97m. ½ D: Robert Clouse. Rod Taylor, Suzy Kendall, Theodore Bikel, Jane Russell, James Booth, Janet MacLachlan. OK action melodrama casts Taylor as John D. Mastroianni gives a tour-de-force performance as a once-young, idealistic, aspiring architect, who settled for a life of wealth and ease after marrying a banker's daughter . . . and proved incapable of holding on to what's important to him. Gotham City (no longer futuristic, as it was depicted in BATMAN BEGINS) is brought to its knees by the evil machinations of The Joker. The new D.A. (Eckhart) wants to clean things up but Bruce Wayne isn't sure he can be trusted—especially since he's dating Rachel Dawes (Gyllenhaal, replacing Katie Holmes). A Batman story for the terrorist era, this is doomsday dark and palpably real. It's also incredibly long. Ledger is a vivid Joker but his character is so sick it's difficult to derive any pleasure from watching him. Oscar winner for Sound Editing and Best Supporting Actor, posthumously, for Ledger. Darkman (1990) C-95m. ½ D: Sam Raimi. Liam Neeson, Frances McDormand, Colin Friels, Larry Drake, Nelson Mashita, Jesse Lawrence Ferguson, Rafael H. Robledo, Danny Hicks, Bruce Campbell. Scientist hot on the trail of a formula for cloning body parts by computer is savagely attacked (and left for dead) by thugs who represent a crooked city developer. Retreating into a shadow world, and seeking revenge, the laboratory genius reinvents himself as Darkman. Grandiose melodramatics, and Raimi's over-the-top approach, are entertaining to a point, but there's a fundamental hollowness to this comic-book script. Old-fashioned laboratory montage and main titles by Pablo Ferro. Jenny Agutter and John Landis appear unbilled. Followed by two video sequels in 1995 and 1996. [R] ▼

Dark Matter (2008) C-86m. ½ D: Chen Shi-Zheng. Liu Ye, Meryl Streep, Aidan Quinn, Blair Brown, Bill Irwin, Joe Grifasi, Tsao Lei, Shan Jing. Brilliant Chinese student wins a scholarship to study for his Ph.D. in the U.S. in the early 1990s, working under famed cosmologist Quinn, but his tenacious interest in exploring "dark matter" threatens to outshine the work of his ego-centric professor. Streep plays a college patron who helps newly arrived Chinese students acclimate to American life. Pointed observation of clashing cultures leads to a disturbing denouement that seems to come out of left field—even though it's inspired by a real-life incident. Film debut for noted stage and opera director Chen. [R] ▼

Dark Obsession (1989-British) C-87m. BOMB D: Nicholas Broomfield. Gabriel Byrne, Amanda Donohoe, Michael Horden, Judy Parfitt, Douglas Hodge, Sadie Frost, Ian Carmichael. Byrne and his regiment buddies run over a chambermaid after a night of drinking—and the only one who feels guilt about the death is the only one who will suffer. Documentary director Broomfield's first fiction feature is an obvious, boring parable about the amorality of the rich and titled. Even Donohoe's frequent nudity quickly becomes dreary. Original British title: DIAMOND SKULLS. Released in U.S. in 1991. Available in both NC-17- (100m.) and R-rated versions. ▼

Dark of the Night (1985-New Zealand) C-89m.  D: Gaylene Preston. Heather Bolton, David Letch, Gary Stalker, Danny Mulheron, Kate Harcourt, Michael Haigh. Dark Past, The (1948) 75m.  D: Rudolph Maté. William Holden, Nina Foch, Lee J. Cobb, Adele Jergens, Stephen Dunne. Absorbing narrative of mad killer holding psychologist prisoner and latter's attempts to talk sense into the maniac. Remake of BLIND ALLEY. ▼

Dark Places (1975-British) C-91m. *½ D: Don Sharp. Christopher Lee, Joan Collins, Robert Hardy, Herbert Lom, Jane Birkin, Jean Marsh. Mild horror thriller. Hardy, heir to an insane murderer's estate, is possessed by his spirit, kills those who try to do him out of it. [PG]▼

Dark Side of the Sun, The (1997-Canadian) C-101m. BOMB D: Bozidar Nikolic. Brad Pitt, Guy Boyd, Cheryl Pollak, Milena Dravic, Constantine Nitchoff. In MEET JOE BLACK, Pitt played Death; here he plays dying. Awful weepie about a young American exile who covers his body from head to toe in leather because of a fatal skin disease. He decides to chuck life for a few days of passion when he meets a traveling actress. Entire film takes place in the Slavic countryside and features an irritating polka score! Even diehard Pitt fans best beware. Made in 1990. ▼●

Dark Star (1974) C-83m. ½ D: John Carpenter. Dan O'Bannon, Dre Pahich, Brian Narelle. Satiric, spaced-out comedy of weary astronauts whose mission is to blow up unstable planets; one of their sentient bombs gets its own ideas. Enjoyable for sci-fi fans and surfers; stretches its shoestring budget pretty well. Carpenter's first feature, expanded from a college short he wrote with O'Bannon. [G]▼●●

Darktown Strutters (1975) C-85m. *½ D: William Witney. Trina Parks, Edna Richardson, Bettye Sweet, Shirley Washington, Roger E. Mosley, Stan Shaw, Christopher Joy. Poor spoof of black and white stereotypes. Story is about Parks attempting to find her kidnapped mother. Original running time: 90m. Retitled GET DOWN AND BOOGIE. [PG]▼

Dark Tower (1987) C-91m. BOMB D: Ken Barnett. Michael Moriarty, Jenny Agutter, Carol Lynley, Anne Lockhart, Theodore Bikel, Kevin McCarthy, Patch Mackenzie. Appallingly bad supernatural

thriller about architect Agutter's husband's ghost, which seems to be committing murder during the construction of her skyscraper. Barnett is a pseudonym for Freddie Francis (who's done far better). [R]▼●●

Dark Victory (1939) 106m. ½ D: Edmund Goulding. Bette Davis, George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Ronald Reagan, Cora Witherspoon, Henry Travers. Definitive Davis performance as spoiled socialite whose life is ending; Brent as brain surgeon husband, Fitzgerald as devoted friend register in good soaper. Bogart as Irish stable master seems out of place. Remade as STOLEN HOURS, and for TV in 1976 with Elizabeth Montgomery and Anthony Hopkins. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Dark Water (2005) C-105m.  D: Walter Salles. Jennifer Connelly, John C. Reilly, Tim Roth, Dougray Scott, Pete Postlethwaite, Camryn Manheim, Ariel Gade, Debra Monk. Newly separated Connelly takes an apartment in a seedy building on N.Y.C.'s isolated Roosevelt Island, hoping the change will do her and her 5-year-old daughter some good. Instead, there are signs of dread and imminent danger everywhere, along with water dripping from the ceiling. Director Salles (in his American debut) milks every possibility for atmosphere in this creepy chiller, a remake of a 2002 Japanese film. Reilly adds a touch of humor as a hilariously sleazy rental agent. Unrated version also available. Panavision. [PG-13]●

Dark Wind, The (1994) C-111m. *½ D: Errol Morris. Lou Diamond Phillips, Gary Farmer, Fred Ward, Guy Boyd, John Karlen. Disappointing feature from acclaimed documentarian Morris: a ponderously slow, muddled account of young Navajo cop Phillips, new to his district, who attempts to solve a mystery amid Navajo-Hopi differences. Script by Neal Jimenez and Eric Bergren, based on Tony Hillerman's novel. One of the executive producers was Robert Redford. Filmed in 1991. [R]▼●

Darling (1965-British) 122m. ½ D: John Schlesinger. Julie Christie, Dirk Bogarde, Laurence Harvey, Roland Curram, Jose Luis de Villalonga, Alex Scott, Basil Henson. Christie won Oscar as girl who rises from commonplace life to marry an Italian noble, with several unsatisfactory love affairs in between. Trendy, influential '60s film—in flashy form and cynical content. Frederic Raphael's script and costume designer Julie Harris also won Oscars. ▼●●

Darling, How Could You! (1951) 96m.

½ D: Mitchell Leisen. Joan Fontaine, John Lund, Mona Freeman, Peter Hanson, David Stollery. Doctor Lund and wife Fontaine return from Central America to their three children, with various comical complications. Strictly sitcom stuff, sometimes sweet but mostly silly and stupid. Based on a James M. Barrie play.

Darling Lili (1970) C-136m.  D: Blake Edwards. Julie Andrews, Rock Hudson, Jeremy Kemp, Lance Percival, Jacques Marin, Michael Witney. Critically lambasted when first released, this entertaining spoof has Andrews and Hudson at their best, along with writer/director Edwards, keeping tongue-in-cheek but not becoming coy in telling story of German spy Julie posing as London entertainer during WW1, falling in love with squadron commander Hudson. Great fun, good music, including Johnny Mercer and Henry Mancini's lovely song "Whistling Away the Dark." Two decades after the fact, Edwards prepared an alternative "director's cut" of the film, more serious in tone, for cable TV; it runs 114m. Panavision. [G]●

Darwin's Nightmare (2005-French-Austrian-Belgian) C-107m.  D: Hubert Sauper. Sobering, stranger-than-fiction documentary about the effect one species of fish, the Nile Perch, has on the economy and ecology of Tanzania. Introduced to Lake Victoria years ago, the predatory fish now consumes all other species in the water, but its desirability as an export item single-handedly sustains the local economy. Following each thread of this story, the film deals with globalization, exploitation, and other issues that affect all of us, not just the poor people of one African nation.●

Das Boot (1981-German) C-145m. ½ D: Wolfgang Petersen. Jürgen Prochnow, Herbert Gronemeyer, Klaus Wennemann, Hubertus Bengsch, Martin Semmelrogge, Bernd Tauber, Erwin Leder, Martin May. Realistic, meticulously mounted nail-biter chronicling a German U-boat on a mission during WW2, with Prochnow solid as its commander. Manages to embrace an anti-war message, as well. Based on Lothar-Guenther Buchheim's autobiographical novel. Originally a 5-hour German TV miniseries, which is available on DVD; later released in a 211m. Director's Cut. Well-dubbed American version is titled THE BOAT. [R]▼●●

Das Experiment (2001-German) C-119m.  D: Oliver Hirschbiegel. Moritz Bleib-

treu, Christian Berkel, Justus von Dohnanyi, Oliver Stokowski, Maren Eggert, Andrea Sawatzki. Compelling drama about 20 men who sign up for a behavioral psychology experiment in which they pretend to be in prison for two weeks—some as inmates, some as guards. Needless to say, things go terribly wrong. A perfect story for the Survivor/Big Brother era, although it was inspired by a real-life incident from the 1970s. Aka THE EXPERIMENT. [R]▼●

Date Movie (2006) C-82m. BOMB D: Aaron Seltzer. Alyson Hannigan, Adam Campbell, Jennifer Coolidge, Tony Cox, Fred Willard, Eddie Griffin, Sophie Monk, Meera Simhan, Carmen Electra, Lil Jon. Witless, brainless spoof of Hollywood romantic comedies involving an overweight young woman (Hannigan, in a fat suit) and the complications that arise when she finds her Mr. Right. Loaded with lame "comic" references to recent-vintage pop movies and tailored to people who think obesity and flatulence jokes are the height of hilarity. Unrated version also available. [PG-13]●

Date With an Angel (1987) C-105m. BOMB D: Tom McLoughlin. Michael E. Knight, Phoebe Cates, Emmanuelle Béart, David Dukes, Phil Brock, Albert Macklin. Aspiring musician Knight, about to be swallowed up by marriage and his future father-in-law's firm, finds salvation with the broken-winged angel who crashes into his pool on the night of his bachelor party. Unbearable comic fantasy despite Béart's appropriately ethereal beauty. J-D-C Scope. [PG]▼●●

Date With Death, A SEE: McGuire, Go Home!

Date With Judy, A (1948) C-113m. ½ D: Richard Thorpe. Wallace Beery, Jane Powell, Elizabeth Taylor, Carmen Miranda, Xavier Cugat, Robert Stack, Scotty Beckett. Musicomedy of two teenagers involved in family shenanigans; highlight is Beery dancing with Miranda. Songs include "It's a Most Unusual Day."▼●●

Daughter of Rosie O'Grady, The (1950) C-104m. ½ D: David Butler. June Haver, Gordon MacRae, Debbie Reynolds, Gene Nelson, James Barton, S. Z. Sakall, Jane Darwell. Formula period musical with Haver in title role singing turn-of-the-century favorites. Talented MacRae is her love interest, and Sakall is forced to give another cuddly stereotype.

Daughters Courageous (1939) 107m.  D: Michael Curtiz. John Garfield, Claude Rains, Fay Bainter, Priscilla Lane, Rosemary Lane, Lola Lane, Gale Page, May Robson, Donald Crisp, Frank McHugh. Enjoyable reworking of FOUR DAUGHTERS, featuring the same cast and chronicling what happens when wanderer Rains returns to the family he abandoned 20 years before. Garfield is fine as the brash charmer who's romancing Priscilla Lane.

Daughters of Darkness (1971-Belgian-French) C-87m. ½ D: Harry Kumel. Delphine Seyrig, Daniele Ouimet, John Karlen, Andrea Rau, Paul Esser, George Jamin, Joris Collet, Fons Rademakers. Sophisticated, witty, but cold tale of honeymooning couple meeting lesbian vampire Elisabeth Bathory (a real historical figure), becoming enmeshed in her schemes. Elegant, but pretentious and slow. Highly regarded by many. Also shown at 96m. Director's cut runs 100m. ▼●●

Daughters of Satan (1972) C-96m.  D: Hollingsworth Morse. Tom Selleck, Barra Grant, Tani Phelps Guthrie, Paraluman. Witches' curses, mumbo jumbo, and a lot of hokum as young girl is lured into witches' coven. [R] ▼

Daughters of the Dust (1991) C-114m. ½ D: Julie Dash. Cora Lee Day, Alva Rodgers, Adisa Anderson, Kaycee Moore, Barbara O, Eartha D. Robinson, Bahni Turpin, Cheryl Lynn Bruce. Poetic, turn-of-the-century tale of the Gullah, descendants of slaves who resided on islands near South Carolina and Georgia and maintained their West African heritage. The material is fascinating, and some of the imagery is stunning, but too much of the historical background remains unexplained, and the slow pace weighs it down. Dash also scripted this American Playhouse theatrical feature. ▼●

Dave (1993) C-110m.  D: Ivan Reitman. Kevin Kline, Sigourney Weaver, Frank Langella, Ben Kingsley, Kevin Dunn, Ving Rhames, Charles Grodin, Faith Prince, Laura Linney, Bonnie Hunt, Parley Baer, Stefan Gierasch, Anna Deavere Smith. Shades of PRISONER OF ZENDA! U.S. president, incapacitated by stroke, is replaced by look-alike (and everyman) Kline, who proceeds to win over the press, public, and even the president's estranged wife (Weaver) in this amusing political comedy. Farfetched premise made believable by winning cast and cameos by celebrities, real reporters, and actual U.S. senators! [PG-13] ▼●●

Dave Chappelle's Block Party (2006) C-103m.  D: Michel Gondry. Freewheeling combination documentary-concert film in which stand-up comic Chappelle plans—and invites one and all to attend—a block party/outdoor concert on a street in rainy Bedford-Stuyvesant, Brooklyn, in 2004. Chappelle's interactions with everyday people are as fresh and funny as his onstage material. Kanye West, Mos Def, Erykah Badu, The Roots, The Fugees, Dead Prez, and others are seen in performance. Unrated edition is 126m. [R] ●

with good production values but generally boring script; only fair performances. ▼●●

David and Goliath (1961-Italian) C-95m.  D: Richard Pottier, Ferdinando Baldi. Orson Welles, Ivo Payer, Edward Hilton, Eleonora Rossi-Drago, Massimo Serato. Juvenile spectacle based on biblical tale, with wooden script, bad acting, Welles as hefty King Saul. Totalscope. ▼●

David and Lisa (1962) 94m.  D: Frank Perry. Keir Dullea, Janet Margolin, Howard da Silva, Neva Patterson, Clifton James. Independently made film about two disturbed teenagers is excellent, sensitively played by newcomers Dullea and Margolin. Da Silva is fine as an understanding doctor. Remade for TV in 1998. ▼●●

David Copperfield (1935) 130m. * D: George Cukor. Freddie Bartholomew, Frank Lawton, W.C. Fields, Lionel Barrymore, Madge Evans, Roland Young, Basil Rathbone, Edna May Oliver, Maureen O'Sullivan, Lewis Stone, Lennox Pawle, Elsa Lancaster, Una O'Connor, Arthur Treacher. Hollywood does right by Dickens in this lavishly mounted, superbly cast production, following David's exploits from youth to young manhood, with such unforgettable characterizations as Fields' Micawber, Rathbone's Mr. Murdstone, Young's Uriah Heep, and Oliver's Aunt Betsey. A treat from start to finish. Screenplay by Howard Estabrook and Hugh Walpole; the latter also portrays the vicar. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

David Holzman's Diary (1968) 74m. ½ D: Jim McBride. L. M. Kit Carson, Eileen Dietz, Louise Levine, Lorenzo Mans. Superior, perceptively funny cinéma vérité feature about a serious young filmmaker who seeks truth by making a movie of his life. A classic of its kind. ▼

Da Vinci Code, The (2006) C-148m.  D: Ron Howard. Tom Hanks, Audrey Tautou, Ian McKellen, Jean Reno, Paul Bettany, Alfred Molina, Jürgen Prochnow, Jean-Yves Berteloot, Etienne Chicot, Jean-Pierre Marielle. While lecturing in Paris, Harvard symbologist Hanks is pulled into a murder case that has deep, dark implications involving a religious sect and links to the paintings of Leonardo da Vinci. Eagerly anticipated adaptation of Dan Brown's bestseller (which became a cultural phenomenon) is a letdown in every respect. Workmanlike at best, not especially well staged or shot, it lacks the electricity—and star chemistry—a thriller of this magnitude ought to have. Material still has pull, but Akiva Goldsman's script makes changes that aren't always an improvement on the book . . . and the movie plods as it heads down the stretch. Alternate version runs 28m. longer. Followed by ANGELS & DEMONS. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Davy Crockett and the River Pirates (1956) C-81m. ½ D: Norman Foster.

Fess Parker, Buddy Ebsen, Jeff York, Kenneth Tobey, Clem Bevans, Irvin Ashkenazy. Second CROCKETT feature strung together from two Disney TV shows; first half is comic keelboat race with Mike Fink (York), self-proclaimed "King of the River," second half is more serious confrontation with Indians. Lightweight fun. ▼●●

Davy Crockett, Indian Scout (1950) 71m.

 D: Lew Landers. George Montgomery, Ellen Drew, Philip Reed, Chief Thundercloud. Humdrum wagon train saga which has nothing whatsoever to do with the legend of Davy C. (Montgomery plays one of his descendants.) Retitled INDIAN SCOUT.

Davy Crockett, King of the Wild Frontier (1955) C-93m.  D: Norman Foster.

Fess Parker, Buddy Ebsen, Basil Ruysdael, Hans Conried, William Bakewell, Kenneth Tobey. Originally filmed as three segments for Disney's TV show, this created a nationwide phenomenon in 1955; it's still fun today with Parker as famous Indian scout and Ebsen as his pal George Russel, whose adventures take them from Washington, D.C., to the Alamo. ▼

Dawning, The (1988-British) C-97m. ½ D: Robert Knights.

Anthony Hopkins, Jean Simmons, Trevor Howard, Rebecca Pidgeon, Hugh Grant, Tara MacGowran. Set in Southern Ireland in 1920, this well-made but curiously ordinary drama chronicles the political turmoil of the time as perceived by a spirited, rapidly maturing 18-year-old girl (Pidgeon) who comes to the aid of a mysterious stranger (Hopkins). Howard's last film; he's cast as her wheelchair-bound grandfather. [PG] ▼●●

Dawn of the Dead (1978) C-126m. ½ D: George A. Romero.

David Emge, Ken Foree, Scott Reiniger, Gaylen Ross, Tom Savini. Sequel-cum-remake of NIGHT OF THE LIVING DEAD is apocalyptic horror masterpiece; as zombie population increases, four people set up quasi-Utopian existence in barricaded shopping mall. Satiric, metaphorically rich adventure jerks viewers' emotions around with stunning ease, as zombies are, by turns, horrifying, heroic, made clownish, and even forgotten. Savini's hideously gory effects are mostly confined to the first and last half hours. Nontheatrical prints run 140m. Remade in 2004. Followed by DAY OF THE DEAD. ▼●●

Dawn of the Dead (2004) C-99m.  D: Zack Snyder.

Sarah Polley, Ving Rhames, Jake Weber, Mekhi Phifer, Ty Burrell, Michael Kelly, Kevin Zegers, Michael Barry, Lindy Booth, Jayne Eastwood, Matt Frewer. Exciting, fast-paced, bloodthirsty fun. The dead return to life and attack the living, constantly increasing their numbers. A group of uninfected survivors holes up in a shopping mall, where most of the story is set. An especially good cast flourishes under confident direction by Snyder, making his movie debut.

Gruesome, yes, but also funny and even touching; compromised only by going too far in end-credits scenes. Super 35. [R] ▼

Dawn Patrol, The (1930) 107m. ½ D:

Howard Hawks. Richard Barthelmess, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Neil Hamilton, William Janney, James Finlayson, Clyde Cook. John Monk Saunders' Oscar-winning story of a beleaguered aerial squadron in WWI France. Devotees of director Hawks prefer this to 1938 remake, but it doesn't hold up as well, particularly the stiff, overdrawn performances.

Dawn Patrol, The (1938) 103m. ½ D: Edmund Goulding.

Errol Flynn, Basil Rathbone, David Niven, Donald Crisp, Melville Cooper, Barry Fitzgerald. Remake of 1930 classic is fine actioner of WWI flyers in France; Rathbone as stern officer forced to send up green recruits, Flynn and Niven as pilot buddies, all excellent. Insightful study of wartime camaraderie and grueling pressures of battlefield command. ▼●●

Day After Tomorrow, The (2004) C-124m.

 D: Roland Emmerich. Dennis Quaid, Jake Gyllenhaal, Ian Holm, Emmy Rossum, Sela Ward, Dash Mihok, Kenneth Welsh, Jay O. Sanders, Austin Nichols, Perry King. Quaid tries to convince his superiors in Washington, D.C. (including a Dick Cheney look-alike) that weather prognosticators are correct and worldwide calamity is imminent—with tidal waves, tornadoes, iceberg movement, etc.—due to global warming. Ultimately, he must make his way to a flooded Manhattan to rescue his son (Gyllenhaal). The characters are likable, the dialogue isn't dumb, and the effects are spectacular: in other words, a pretty good, old-fashioned disaster movie. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Day and the Hour, The (1963-French-Italian) 115m. ½ D: René Clement.

Simone Signoret, Stuart Whitman, Genevieve Page, Michel Piccoli, Reggie Nalder, Pierre Dux, Billy Kearns. In Nazi-occupied France, Signoret is a widow who becomes involved in the Resistance movement; Whitman is an American paratrooper trying to escape to Spain. Franscope. ▼

Day at the Races, A (1937) 111m. ½ D: Sam Wood.

Groucho, Harpo, Chico Marx, Allan Jones, Maureen O'Sullivan, Esther Muir, Margaret Dumont, Douglass Dumbrille, Sig Ruman, Dorothy Dandridge. The Marxes wreak havoc at a sanatorium, where wealthy hypochondriac Dumont is the leading patient; often uproarious comedy features some of the trio's funniest set pieces (Chico selling race tips, the seduction scene, etc.). A perfunctory storyline and unmemorable songs keep it from topping its immediate predecessor. A NIGHT AT THE OPERA ... but the comedy content is sensational. ▼●●

Daybreak (1939) SEE: Le Jour Se Lève

Daydreamer, The (1966) C-98m.  D:

Jules Bass. Ray Bolger, Jack Gilford, Margaret Hamilton, Paul O'Keefe; voices of Tallulah Bankhead, Boris Karloff, Burl Ives, Victor Borge, Terry-Thomas, Patty Duke. Partly animated story of Hans Christian Andersen as a 13-year-old who meets many of the fairy tale characters he later writes about. Surprisingly pleasant. ▼

Day for Night (1973-French) C-120m. ½ D: François Truffaut. Jacqueline Bisset, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Valentina Cortese, François Truffaut, Jean-Pierre Léaud, Alexandra Stewart, Dani, Nathalie Baye. Enjoyable fluff about a motion picture director (Truffaut) and his problems in trying to film a silly love story; bright performances and a loving look into the intricacies of filmmaking. Oscar winner as Best Foreign Film. [PG] ▼

Day in October, A (1990-Danish-U.S.) C-97m.  D: Kenneth Madsen. D. B. Sweeney, Kelly Wolf, Daniel Benzali, Tovah Feldshuh, Ole Lemmeke. Gripping, fact-based drama set in WW2 Denmark chronicles the fate of young Jewish woman (Wolf); she brings a stranger—wounded resistance fighter Sweeney—into her home, disrupting the lives of her family. Knowing parable about the need to take sides (and take action) when confronted by evil. Don't miss this sleeper. [PG-13] ▼

Day in the Country, A (1946-French) 40m. * D: Jean Renoir. Sylvia Bataille, Georges Saint-Saens (Georges Darnoux), Jacques Borel (Jacques Brunius), Jeanne Marken. At a picnic along a river, a bourgeois Parisian mother and daughter find romance while the menfolk try to fish. Nature plays a starring role in this cinematic tone poem about the emotional depth of spiritual love and the sexual high of a romp in the hay. Screenplay by Renoir, from a short story by Guy de Maupassant; among his assistants on this were Yves Allegret, Jacques Becker, Henri Cartier-Bresson, and Luchino Visconti! Renoir cast himself as Poulain the innkeeper. Shot in 1936, only partially completed, and edited in Renoir's absence. Original title: UNE PARTIE DE CAMPAGNE. ▼

Day in the Death of Joe Egg, A (1972-British) C-106m. ½ D: Peter Medak. Alan Bates, Janet Suzman, Peter Bowles, Sheila Gish, Joan Hickson. Excellent black comedy about a couple with a child who contemplate mercy-killing. Not a crowd-pleaser, but extremely well done. Peter Nichols adapted his own play. [R] ▼

Sanders, Karen Young, Claire Bloom, Vanessa Bell Calloway, Barry Newman, Stan Shaw, Colin Fox. Good old-fashioned disaster movie, built on a formulaic foundation. Stallone is a disgraced Emergency Medical Services worker who springs into action when a huge explosion cripples a tunnel under N.Y.C.'s Hudson River, with a handful of survivors inside. Great stunts and special effects. That's Sly's son Sage as a cocky young scam artist being taken to prison. [PG-13] ▼

Day Mars Invaded Earth, The (1962) 70m. *½ D: Maury Dexter. Kent Taylor, Marie Windsor, William Mims, Betty Beall, Lowell Brown, Gregg Shank. Martians are exact doubles for scientist Taylor and family as they wreak havoc on pitiful earthlings. Minor sci-fi B pic. CinemaScope.

Day Night Day Night (2007-U.S.-German) C-94m. ½ D: Julia Loktev. Luisa Williams, Josh P. Weinstein, Gareth Saxe, Nyambi Nyambi, Frank Datolo, Annemarie Lawless. Naïve 19-year-old girl arrives in the N.Y.C. area and is prepared for the task she's signed up for: to act as a suicide bomber in Times Square. Using a literal in-your-face approach, writer-director Loktev deliberately withholds information so we focus on the girl and the immediacy of her situation, not her motivation or her cause. Riveting at times, but peters out, although the filmmaker planned her surprising climax just that way. ▼

Day of Anger (1969-Italian) C-109m. *½ D: Tonino Valerii. Lee Van Cleef, Giuliano Gemma, Walter Rilla, Christa Lindner, Ennio Balbo. Story of callous gunman and his relationship with young protégé is below par, even for an Italian Western; only for the Van Cleef cult. Aka DAY OF WRATH. Techniscope. [MP/PG] ▼

Day of the Animals (1977) C-98m. ½ D: William Girdler. Christopher George, Lynda Day George, Leslie Nielsen, Richard Jaeckel, Michael Ansara, Ruth Roman. Fair action thriller in the nature-on-the-rampage mold, with back packers in the High Sierras at the mercy of hostile creatures crazed by the sun's radiation after the earth's ozone layer has been destroyed. Final score: Beasts 7, Cast 0 (in acting as well as survival). Aka SOMETHING IS OUT THERE. Todd-AO 35. [PG] ▼

Day of the Bad Man (1958) C-81m.  D: Harry Keller. Fred MacMurray, Joan Weldon, John Ericson, Robert Middleton. MacMurray is appropriately stiff in tame account of country judge holding off condemned man's brothers so scheduled hanging can occur. CinemaScope.

Day of the Dead (1985) C-102m.  D: George A. Romero. Lori Cardille, Terry Alexander, Joseph Pilato, Jarlath Conroy, Antone DiLeo, Jr., Richard Liberty, Howard Sherman. Romero's creatures trap a female scientist with some army sexist in an underground bunker; she wants to "study" them, but the army balks at being zombie brunch. Third DEAD entry is relentlessly talky for over an hour, but Tom

Savini's effects do give this a show-stopping finale. Easily the least of the series. Remade in name only in 2007. ▼●●

Day of the Dolphin, The (1973) C-104m.  D: Mike Nichols. George C. Scott, Trish Van Devere, Paul Sorvino, Fritz Weaver, Jon Korkes, Edward Herrmann, John Dehner. Big-budget misfire about scientist Scott using his trained (and talking!) dolphins to foil an assassination plot. A waste of many talents. Scripter Buck Henry also provides the voices for the dolphins. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Day of the Evil Gun (1968) C-93m.  D: Jerry Thorpe. Glenn Ford, Arthur Kennedy, Dean Jagger, John Anderson, Paul Fix, Nico Minardos, Royal Dano, (Harry) Dean Stanton. Very routine Western with Ford and Kennedy going after Indians who abducted the former's wife; Kennedy is smooth in likable-villain role he's played many times. Panavision. [G]

Day of the Jackal, The (1973-British-French) C-141m. ½ D: Fred Zinnemann. Edward Fox, Alan Badel, Tony Britton, Cyril Cusack, Michel Lonsdale, Eric Porter, Delphine Seyrig, Derek Jacobi, Ronald Pickup. Exciting adaptation of Frederick Forsyth's best-seller about plot to assassinate De Gaulle and the painstaking preparations of the assassin. Beautifully filmed throughout Europe with a first-rate cast. Reworked in 1997 as THE JACKAL. [PG] ▼●●

Day of the Locust, The (1975) C-144m. ½ D: John Schlesinger. Donald Sutherland, Karen Black, Burgess Meredith, William Atherton, Geraldine Page, Richard A. Dysart, Bo Hopkins, Pepe Serna, Lelia Goldoni, Billy Barty, Madge Kennedy, Florence Lake, Natalie Schafer, Nita Talbot, Paul Stewart, John Hillerman, Robert Pine, Dennis Dugan, Jackie Earle Haley, David Ladd, Dick Powell, Jr. Excellent adaptation of Nathanael West's sweeping novel about Hollywood's netherworld in 1930s, seen mostly through eyes of a young artist (Atherton) who finds little glamor and a lot of broken-down people in Tinseltown. Disturbing, depressing . . . and absolutely fascinating. Script by Waldo Salt. [R] ▼●●

Serious, stark cinema, peerlessly photographed by Carl Andersson. Some prints run 95m. ▼ ▽

Days of Glory (1944) 86m. ½ D: Jacques Tourneur. Gregory Peck, Alan Reed, Maria Palmer, Lowell Gilmore, Tamara Toumanova. Sincere but plodding WW2 action pitting Russians against Nazis, memorable only as Peck's screen debut. ▼

Days of Glory (2006-French-Moroccan-Belgian-Algerian) C-120m. ½ D: Rachid Bouchareb. Jamel Debbouze, Samy Nacéri, Roschdy Zem, Sami Bouajila, Bernard Blancan, Mathieu Simonet, Benoit Gires, Mélanie Laurent, Antoine Chappey. Moving (and enlightening) saga of North African soldiers who joined their French brothers in combat during WW2—but were never accepted as equals. Built on a timeworn formula of following raw recruits as they become hardened combat veterans; by focusing on a handful of men and personalizing the story, this forgotten chapter of history comes to vivid life. Screenplay by the director and Olivier Lorelle. Original French title: INDI-GÈNES. Hawk-Scope. [R] ▽

Days of Heaven (1978) C-95m. ½ D: Terrence Malick. Richard Gere, Brooke Adams, Sam Shepard, Linda Manz, Robert Wilke, Jackie Shultis, Stuart Margolin. Exquisite mood piece about a turbulent love triangle set against midwestern wheat harvests at the turn of the 20th century. Originally shown in 70mm, its visual beauty almost overwhelms the story—which is second priority here. Nestor Almendros won well-deserved Oscar for his cinematography. [PG] ▼●●

Days of Thrills and Laughter (1961) 93m. * Compiled by Robert Youngson. Third Youngson silent-film compilation combines comedy clips (with Chaplin, Laurel and Hardy, the Keystone Kops) with serials and action films (featuring Douglas Fairbanks, Pearl White, Harry Houdini). Great fun. ▼

Days of Thunder (1990) C-107m.  D: Tony Scott. Tom Cruise, Robert Duvall, Randy Quaid, Nicole Kidman, Cary Elwes, Michael Rooker, Fred Dalton Thompson, John C. Reilly, Jerry Molen. Flashy, noisy race-car saga set in the South, by the filmmakers and star of TOP GUN. Viewer can a) savor crew chief Duvall's fine performance, b) revel in neurosurgeon/love interest Kidman's disdain for racing, c) sit back and soak up Cruise's charisma, or d) count the clichés (cooked up by coauthors Cruise and Robert Towne). Gives new meaning to the term Formula One. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Days of Wine and Roses (1962) 117m. ½ D: Blake Edwards. Jack Lemmon, Lee Remick, Charles Bickford, Jack Klugman, Alan Hewitt, Tom Palmer, Jack Albertson. Modern LOST WEEKEND set in San Francisco, with Lemmon marrying Remick and pulling her into state of alcoholism. Realistic direction and uncompromising writing combine for excellent results; poignant score by Henry Mancini, who also earned an Oscar for the title song with Johnny Mercer. Originally a television play, written by JP Miller.▼●●

Day That Shook the World, The (1977) C-111m.  D: Veljko Bulajic. Christopher Plummer, Florida Bolkan, Maximilian Schell. Plodding historical drama surrounding the events leading up to WW1 with the death of Archduke Ferdinand (Plummer) at Sarajevo. Yugoslavian-made with a humorless international cast, resulting in tedious though epic-sized chronicle. [R]▼

Day the Earth Caught Fire, The (1961-British) 99m.  D: Val Guest. Edward Judd, Janet Munro, Leo McKern, Michael Goodliffe, Bernard Braden. Intelligent, absorbing sci-fi drama of gradual chaos that follows when atomic explosions start Earth spiraling toward the sun. Judd is the reporter who first breaks the story, with the assistance of Munro (whom he romances). Watch for Michael Caine as a policeman directing traffic! Dyaliscope.▼●

Day the Earth Stood Still, The (1951) 92m. * D: Robert Wise. Michael Rennie, Patricia Neal, Hugh Marlowe, Sam Jaffe, Billy Gray, Frances Bavier, Lock Martin. Landmark science-fiction drama about dignified alien (Rennie) who comes to Earth to deliver anti-nuclear warning, stays to learn that his peaceful views are shared by most humans—but not all. Brilliantly acted, more timely than ever, with trenchant script by Edmund North, moody score by Bernard Herrmann. And remember: Klaatu barada niko! Remade in 2008.▼●●

Day the Earth Stood Still, The (2008) C-103m.  D: Scott Derrickson. Keanu Reeves, Jennifer Connelly, Kathy Bates, Jaden Smith, Jon Hamm, John Cleese, Kyle Chandler, James Hong. Strange visitor from another planet arrives on Earth in a giant sphere and adopts human form. The government and the military respond with hostility and weapons but super-smart biologist Connelly makes a personal connection with the alien—though her young stepson (Smith) isn't as easily won over. Pallid remake of the 1951 classic turns Klaatu into a cipher and dissipates the impact of the story. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Day the Fish Came Out, The (1967-Greek-British) C-109m. BOMB D: Michael Cacoyannis. Tom Courtenay, Candice Bergen, Colin Blakely, Sam Wanamaker, Ian Ogilvy. Plot about the loss of two atom bombs over the Aegean Sea provides framework for disastrous comedy about homosexuals; combo of Bergen plus whips, chains, and leather doesn't work.

Day the Hot Line Got Hot, The (1969-French-Spanish) C-92m. *½ D: Etienne Perier. Robert Taylor, Charles Boyer, George Chakiris, Dominique Fabre, Gerard Tichy. Hollow attempt at topicality as secret agents mess up Moscow-Washington hot line, causing international crisis. Taylor's final film. Video title: HOT LINE. [MPG]▼

Day They Robbed the Bank of England, The (1960-British) 85m.  D: John Guillermin. Aldo Ray, Elizabeth Sellars, Peter O'Toole, Hugh Griffith, Kieron Moore, Albert Sharpe. IRA members plan to rob the Bank of England in this meticulous caper film. Metrocolor.

Day Time Ended, The (1980) C-79m.  D: John (Bud) Cardos. Jim Davis, Dorothy Malone, Christopher Mitchum, Marcy Lafferty, Scott Kolden, Natasha Ryan. Sci-fi mishmash about a family living in the desert, who witness strange and terrifying phenomena. Badly scripted, and never really explained. Fine special effects by David Allen. Filmed in 1978 as TIME WARP. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Dayton's Devils (1968) C-107m.  D: Jack Shea. Rory Calhoun, Leslie Nielsen, Lainie Kazan, Hans Gudegast (Eric Braeden), Barry Sadler. Another heist film, this time about plot to rob an Air Force base of $2 million; Lainie's rendition of "Sunny" provides only special moment.▼

Daytrippers, The (1996) C-87m.  D: Greg Mottola. Hope Davis, Stanley Tucci, Parker Posey, Liev Schreiber, Anne Meara, Pat McNamara, Campbell Scott, Marcia Gay Harden. Funny, touching first feature about Eliza, a Long Island wife who discovers what appears to be a clandestine love letter written to her husband; she and her family pile into a station wagon and set off on a road trip to (and through) Manhattan to confront him. Mottola also scripted this thoroughly likable, low-budget winner. [R]▼●

Day Watch (2006-Russian) C-132m. *½ D: Timur Bekmambetov. Konstantin Khabensky, Mariya Poroshina, Vladimir Menshov, Galina Tyunina, Viktor Verzhbitsky. Weak, confusing, and endless sequel to NIGHT WATCH in which the forces of the "light" and the "dark" are at it again. After being framed, Anton (Khabensky) tries to save himself and his son from evil powers in post-apocalyptic Russia. Hollywood-style production proves that Russians can be just as corny as their American counterparts in turning out mindless supernatural drivel. At least the effects are good. Unrated version runs 146m. Super 35. [R]▶

Day Without a Mexican, A (2004-Mexican-U.S.) C-100m. ★½ D: Sergio Arau. Caroline Aaron, Tony Abatemarco, Melinda Allen, Fernando Arau, Frankie J. Allison, Yareli Arizmendi, Maria Beck. Premise has Californians awakening to find there isn't a single Latino left in the state after they all mysteriously disappear. Let the comedy begin! Aiming for satire, the filmmakers miss the mark completely with this insipid, forgettable film, which has only a few amusing moments. Arau (son of Alfonso) and his wife, Arizmendi, originally made this as a short subject. [R]▶

Day Zero (2008) C-93m. ★★ D: Bryan Gunnar Cole. Elijah Wood, Jon Bernthal, Chris Klein, Ginnifer Goodwin, Elisabeth Moss, Ally Sheedy, Sofia Vassilieva. The war in Iraq has escalated, the military draft has been reinstated, and three young men—wishy-washy writer Wood, yuppie corporate lawyer Klein, and gung-ho cabdriver Bernthal—must decide how they will respond. Potentially fascinating subject matter is undermined by a simplistic, meandering storyline and disparate characters whose friendship lacks credibility. [R]▶

Dazed and Confused (1993) C-102m. ★★★ D: Richard Linklater. Jason London, Wiley Wiggins, Sasha Jenson, Rory Cochrane, Milla Jovovich, Marissa Ribisi, Adam Goldberg, Anthony Rapp, Matthew McConaughey, Ben Affleck, Parker Posey, Joey Lauren Adams. Diverting, refreshingly unsentimental mid-1970s time capsule from director-screenwriter Linklater (SLACKER), following a varied group of suburban Texas teens on the last day of school in 1976. Characterization outweighs narrative here: Linklater accurately captures teen lifestyles and attitudes at a specific moment in time. Great soundtrack includes carefully selected period music. Look fast for Renée Zellweger. [R]▶

D.C. Cab (1983) C-99m. ★★½ D: Joel Schumacher. Adam Baldwin, Charlie Barnett, Irene Cara, Anne DeSalvo, Max Gail, Gloria Gifford, DeWayne Jessie, Bill Maher, Whitman Mayo, Mr. T, Paul Rodriguez, Gary Busey, Marsha Warfield. Consistently likable, if loosely wound, comedy about a Washington taxi company staffed by misfits who get their act together when it really counts. [R]▶

D-Day the Sixth of June (1956) C-106m. ★★★ D: Henry Koster. Robert Taylor, Richard Todd, Dana Wynter, Edmond O'Brien. Well-executed study of WW2's Normandy invasion, with massive action shots; film focuses on American officer Taylor and British leader Todd, their professional and personal problems. You may like THE LONGEST DAY better. CinemaScope. ▶

Dead, The (1987) C-83m. ★★★ D: John Huston. Anjelica Huston, Donald McCann, Rachael Dowling, Cathleen Delany, Helena Carroll, Ingrid Craigie, Dan O'Herlihy, Frank Patterson, Donald O'Neilly, Marie Kean, Maria McDermottroe, Sean McClory, Colm Meaney. All-Irish cast helps Huston bring James Joyce's short story (from Dubliners) to life, a vignette about a lively holiday dinner party in 1904, followed by a melancholy confrontation between a loveless husband and wife. Not for every taste, this finely embroidered film celebrates time, place, and atmosphere, without much discernible plot, but with a host of marvelous characterizations. Huston's last film as director scripted by his son Tony. [PG]▶

Dead Again (1991) C-107m. ★★½ D: Kenneth Branagh. Kenneth Branagh, Andy Garcia, Derek Jacobi, Hanna Schygulla, Emma Thompson, Wayne Knight, Campbell Scott, Gregor Hesse, Christine Ebersole, Robin Williams. Unusually constructed film noir thriller about an L.A. gumshoe who tries to help a woman with amnesia, and finds they are both connected—in a strange twist of reincarnation—to a notorious 40-year-old murder. Intriguing, but ultimately the story is too dense, and too artificial, to really work. And talk about artificial—dig that aging makeup for Garcia! Williams appears as one of Branagh's sources. [R]▶

Dead Alive (1992-New Zealand) C-97m. ★★★ D: Peter Jackson. Timothy Balme, Diana Penalver, Liz Moody, Ian Watkin, Brenda Kendall. Pity poor Balme; not only is he in the thrall of his domineering mother, but when the bite of a rat monkey from Skull Island turns her into a hungry zombie, he still has to look after her—and all the other zombies that soon proliferate. Astonishing, vigorous, inventively gruesome comedy is—one hopes—the pinnacle of its kind. Warning: The rating above is strictly for those with a tolerance for extreme violence and gore. Original title: BRAIN DEAD. R-rated video version runs 85m. ▶

Dead and Buried (1981) C-92m. ★★½ D: Gary A. Sherman. James Farentino, Melody Anderson, Jack Albertson, Dennis Redfield, Nancy Locke Hauser, Lisa Blount. Bizarre murders in a small New England town seem even stranger when the corpses come back to life. Gory but well-made chiller; from a Dan O'Bannon story. [R]▶

supremacists around the West. Unpleasant, fact-based action film offers nothing you haven't seen before, except for the hero vomiting on a suspect. [R]▼●●

Dead Calm (1989-Australian) C-96m.  D: Phillip Noyce. Sam Neill, Nicole Kidman, Billy Zane. A married couple, recovering from a family tragedy by spending some time on their yacht at sea, pick up a stranger who proceeds to terrorize them. Full-blooded thriller is so skillfully acted and directed that it enables you to gloss over its flaws—and forgive its slasher-movie-inspired finale. Based on a novel by Charles Williams. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Dead Cert (1974-British) C-92m.  D: Tony Richardson. Scott Antony, Judi Dench, Michael Williams, Nina Thomas, Julian Glover, Mark Digham, Ian Hogg. A horse is drugged before a race, and its owner-rider is killed. There's a massive cover-up, and jockey Antony investigates. Richardson coscripted this muddled mystery, based on a Dick Francis novel, with Dench wasted as the deceased's widow. That's Dench's real-life husband, Michael Williams, as Sandy.●

Dead End (1937) 93m. ½ D: William Wyler. Sylvia Sydney, Joel McCrea, Humphrey Bogart, Wendy Barrie, Claire Trevor, Marjorie Main, Huntz Hall, Leo Gorcey, Gabriel Dell, Ward Bond, Billy Halop, Bernard Punsley, Allen Jenkins. Grim Sidney Kingsley play of slum life shows vignettes of humanity at breaking point in N.Y.C. tenements; extremely well directed, engrossing. Script by Lillian Hellman; magnificent sets by Richard Day. Introduced the Dead End Kids, who appeared in the original Broadway production.▼●●

Deadfall (1968-British) C-120m.  D: Bryan Forbes. Michael Caine, Giovanna Ralli, Eric Portman, Nanette Newman, David Buck. Jewel thief falls in love with beautiful woman who is married to her homosexual father. And you think you have problems? Overdirected film is not as interesting as it sounds. [R]●

Deadfall (1993) C-98m. BOMB D: Christopher Coppola. Michael Biehn, Sarah Trigger, Nicolas Cage, James Coburn, Peter Fonda, Charlie Sheen, Talia Shire, Michael Constantine, Gigi Rice, Angus Scrimm, Micky Dolenz, Marc Coppola, Renee Estevez, Clarence Williams III. Bargain-basement, cliché-ridden vanity project about con man Biehn, who's always been a team with his dad; his world begins to unravel after he accidentally kills the old man. Almost unbearable at times, with an unrestrained Cage chewing and throwing up the scenery as a coke-snorting thug. Coppola is the nephew of Francis (and Cage's brother); he also coscripted. [R]▼●●

Dead Girl, The (2006) C-85m.  D: Karen Moncrieff. Toni Collette, Piper Laurie, Rose Byrne, Mary Beth Hurt, Marcia

Gay Harden, Brittany Murphy, Kerry Washington, Giovanni Ribisi, James Franco, Mary Steenburgen, Bruce Davison, Nick Searcy, Josh Brolin. Five episodes about women dealing with crises in their lives, tied together by a dead girl (Murphy), whose body is discovered in the desert. Intriguing if downbeat vignettes are linked by an overall rumination about violence toward women in our society. Writer-director Moncrieff offers her actors a superior showcase, and they're all terrific. [R]●

Deadhead Miles (1972) C-93m. ½ D: Vernon Zimmerman. Alan Arkin, Paul Benedict, Hector Elizondo, Oliver Clark, Charles Durning, Larry Wolf, Barnard Hughes, Loretta Swit, Allen Garfield, Bruce Bennett, John Milius, Ida Lupino, George Raft. Plotless allegory about a trucker's experiences on the road, with unusual cast, loads of in-jokes. Unreleased and unseen for many years. A real curio, written by Zimmerman and Terrence Malick. [R]

Dead Heat (1988) C-86m. BOMB D: Mark Goldblatt. Treat Williams, Joe Piscopo, Lindsay Frost, Darren McGavin, Vincent Price, Keye Luke. Moronic, occasionally disgusting turkey with cops Williams and Piscopo confronted by criminals miraculously returning from the dead. [R]▼●●

Dead Heat on a Merry-Go-Round (1966) C-104m.  D: Bernard Girard. James Coburn, Camilla Sparv, Aldo Ray, Rose Marie, Severn Darden, Robert Webber. Look quickly for a barely recognizable Harrison Ford, in his film debut, playing a bellhop.●

Deadline (1987-German) C-100m. *½ D: Nathaniel Gutman. Christopher Walken, Hywel Bennett, Marita Marschall, Arnon Zadok, Amos Lavie. Convoluted political thriller with globe-trotting journalist Walken becoming enmeshed in various intrigues and lies in Lebanon. Strictly Grade-D stuff. [R]▼●●

Deadline at Dawn (1946) 83m. ½ D: Harold Clurman. Susan Hayward, Paul Lukas, Bill Williams, Joseph Calleia, Osa Massen, Lola Lane, Jerome Cowan, Steven Geray. Atmospheric but muddled murder mystery, with aspiring actress Hayward attempting to clear naive sailor Williams, who is suspected of murder. Clurman's only film as director. Screenplay by Clifford Odets, from a novel by William Irish (Cornell Woolrich).▼

Deadline U.S.A. (1952) 87m.  D: Richard Brooks. Humphrey Bogart, Ethel Barrymore, Kim Hunter, Ed Begley, Warren Stevens, Paul Stewart, Martin Gabel, Joe De Santis, Audrey Christie, Jim Backus. Biting account of newspaper's struggle to survive and maintain civic duty. Bogey is tops as the crusading editor; taut, knowing script by director Brooks. Most enjoyable. Don't blink or you'll miss a young James Dean in a silent bit part during a newspaper production montage.

Deadly Affair, The (1967) C-107m.  D: Sidney Lumet. James Mason, Simone Signoret, Maximilian Schell, Harriet Andersson, Harry Andrews, Lynn Redgrave, Kenneth Haigh, Roy Kinnear. Top-notch suspense tale with British agent Mason trying to unravel complicated mystery behind an agency official's suicide. Filmed in England and based on John le Carré's novel Call for the Dead.

Deadly Bees, The (1967-British) C-85m.  D: Freddie Francis. Suzanna Leigh, Guy Doleman, Catherine Finn, Katy Wild, Frank Finlay. High-powered shock scenes involving swarming bees are only worthwhile attraction in dull horror film cowritten by Robert Bloch.▶

Deadly Blessing (1981) C-102m.  D: Wes Craven. Maren Jensen, Susan Buckner, Sharon Stone, Lois Nettleton, Ernest Borgnine, Jeff East, Lisa Hartman. Following her husband's murder, widow and two friends are terrorized, apparently by nearby repressive sect, headed by the father (Borgnine) of the dead man. Rural horror thriller has some good shocks but becomes confused and ultimately silly, especially the ending. [R]▼

Deadly Companion SEE: Double Negative
Deadly Companions, The (1961) C-90m. ½ D: Sam Peckinpah. Maureen O'Hara, Brian Keith, Steve Cochran, Chill Wills. Panavision.▼●●

Deadly Eyes (1982) C-93m.  D: Robert Clouse. Sam Groom, Sara Botsford, Scatman Crothers, Lisa Langlois, Cec Linder. Overgrown rats on the warpath, with science teacher Groom and health official Botsford to the rescue. You've seen it all before. Originally titled, appropriately enough, THE RATS. [R]▼

Deadly Friend (1986) C-92m. ½ D: Wes Craven. Matthew Laborteaux, Kristy Swanson, Anne Twomey, Michael Sharrett, Richard Marcus, Anne Ramsey. Inventive teenager, in love with the girl next door, revives her (à la Frankenstein) after she's killed. More heart, and more actual entertainment, than you'd expect from a Wes Craven horror film . . . though it's probably the only movie ever made in which someone is beheaded by a basketball! [R]▼●●

Deadly Games (1982) C-95m. ½ D: Scott Mansfield. Sam Groom, Jo Ann Harris, Steve Railsback, Dick Butkus, Alexandra Morgan, Colleen Camp, Christine Tudor, June Lockhart, Denise Galik. Groom is a cop, Harris a reporter in routine mystery about a slasher on the loose. In-jokes come fast and furious in this very knowing film, keyed to a horror board game played by the principals. Final plot explanation is really stupid. [R]▼

Deadly Illusion (1987) C-87m. ½ D: William Tannen, Larry Cohen. Billy Dee Williams, Vanity, Morgan Fairchild, John Beck, Joseph Cortese, Dennis Hallahan, Joe Spinell. Dead Man (1996-U.S.-German-Japanese) 120m.  D: Jim Jarmusch. Johnny Depp, Gary Farmer, Lance Henriksen, Michael Wincott, Mili Avital, Iggy Pop, Jared Harris, Billy Bob Thornton, Crispin Glover, Eugene Byrd, Gabriel Byrne, John Hurt, Alfred Molina, Robert Mitchum. In 1875, Cleveland accountant Depp heads west for a new job but ends up being pursued as a murderer by bounty hunters. Indian Farmer, who helps him, is convinced that he is the poet William Blake returned to life. One-of-a-kind Western, written by the director, is measured in its pace, full of unusual cameos, and occasionally quite funny though it's not a comedy. Steve Buscemi appears unbilled. [R]▼●●

Dead Man on Campus (1998) C-94m. BOMB D: Alan Cohn. Tom Everett Scott, Mark-Paul Gosselaar, Poppy Montgomery, Lochlyn Munro, Randy Pearlstein, Alyson Hannigan. Dead is right. This black comedy hinges on the urban myth that American universities will award 4.0 GPA's to any student whose roommate kills himself. Clean-cut straight arrow and his spoiled preppe pal team up to find a suicidal candidate. Laughless script aspires to be a teen ripoff of THE FORTUNE COOKIE, but these cocky kids are no Lemmon and Matthau. [R]▼●●

Dead Man Walking (1995) C-122m. ½ D: Tim Robbins. Susan Sarandon, Sean Penn, Robert Prosky, Raymond J. Barry, R. Lee Ermey, Celia Weston, Lois Smith, Scott Wilson, Roberta Maxwell, Margo Martindale, Barton Heyman, Larry Pine, Peter Sarsgaard, Jack Black. Powerful drama based on the true story of a nun in Louisiana who becomes the spiritual advisor to a death row inmate, convicted of the murder of two young adults and awaiting execution. As she tries to redeem his soul, she must also reconcile his needs with the heinousness of the crime and the grief of the murdered children's parents. Strong performances by Sarandon (who won a Best Actress Oscar) and Penn anchor this sobering story which, despite the humanizing of its central character, is not a simple pro- or anti-death penalty treatise. [R]▼●●

Dead Men Don't Die (1991) C-94m. *½ D: Malcolm Marmorstein. Elliott Gould, Melissa (Sue) Anderson, Mark Moses, Mabel King, Jack Betts, Philip Bruns. Ten-cent rip-off of GHOST, with egotistical news anchor

Gould murdered, then rising from the dead, with the assistance of medium/cleaning lady King (aping Whoopi Goldberg). A too-obvious parody of how TV news has become show biz. [PG-13]▼

Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid (1982) 89m.

 D: Carl Reiner. Steve Martin, Rachel Ward, Reni Santoni, Carl Reiner, George Gaynes, Frank McCarthy. A one-joke movie, based on 1940s film noir melodramas, has detective Martin interacting with clips from various vintage films, and a very live client (Ward). Fun at first, but with no story and cardboard characters, it wears thin fast; film buffs will enjoy it more than the average viewer. Dedicated to famed costume designer Edith Head, whose final film this was. [PG]▼●●

Dead of Night (1945-British) 103m. * D: Cavalcanti, Basil Dearden, Robert Hamer, Charles Crichton. Mervyn Johns, Roland Culver, Antony Baird, Judy Kelly, Miles Malleon, Sally Ann Howes, Gogie Withers, Ralph Michael, Michael Redgrave, Basil Radford, Naunton Wayne, Frederick Valk. Classic chiller of gathering at a country house, where guests trade supernatural stories. One of them (Johns) has been having a nightmare that now seems to be coming true; final sequence with Redgrave as a schizophrenic ventriloquist is a knockout. ▼●●

Dead of Winter (1987) C-100m.  D: Arthur Penn. Mary Steenburgen, Roddy McDowall, Jan Rubes, William Russ, Ken Pogue, Wayne Robson. Down-on-her-luck actress is hired for a movie role by an eccentric man who lives in an eerie old mansion; eventually she realizes that she's being held prisoner. Somewhat predictable but extremely well-crafted thriller with crackerjack performances all around. Based, fairly transparently, on the 1940s B movie MY NAME IS JULIA ROSS: a key character name here is Julie Rose. [R]▼●●

Dead Pigeon on Beethoven Street (1972-German) C-102m. ½ D: Samuel Fuller. Glenn Corbett, Christa Lang, Stephane Audran, Anton Diffring, Alex D'Arcy. Fast-paced, tongue-in-cheek Fuller thriller (financed by German TV) has Corbett on a detective mission, aided by lovely Lang (Mrs. Fuller in real life). [PG]▼

Dead Poets Society (1989) C-128m.  D: Peter Weir. Robin Williams, Robert Sean Leonard, Ethan Hawke, Josh Charles, Gale Hansen, Dylan Kussman, Allelon Ruggiero, James Waterston, Norman Lloyd, Kurtwood Smith, Lara Flynn Boyle. Williams is a charismatic English teacher at a staid New England prep school in 1959, whose infectious love of poetry—and insistence that each boy “seize the day” and make the most of life—inspires his impressionable students, not always in the right direction. Well made, extremely well acted, but also dramatically obvious and melodramatically one-sided. Nevertheless, Tom Schulman's screenplay won an Oscar. 13m. added for network showings. [PG] ▼●●

Dead Pool, The (1988) C-91m. ½ D: Buddy Van Horn. Clint Eastwood, Patricia Clarkson, Evan C. Kim, Liam Neeson, David Hunt, Michael Currie, James Carrey. Fifth (and final) DIRTY HARRY movie finds Callahan investigating a bizarre death-threat list, while becoming involved with a female TV reporter. The story's pretty straightforward—check out Carrey as a druggie rock star—the killing almost cartoonish, and the film surprisingly watchable (if not inspired). Eastwood's charisma makes all the difference. [R] ▼●●

Dead Presidents (1995) C-119m.  D: The Hughes Brothers. Larenz Tate, Keith David, Chris Tucker, N'Bushe Wright, Freddy Rodriguez, Rose Jackson, Michael Imperioli, David Barry Gray, Jaimz Woolvett, Jenifer Lewis, James Pickens, Jr., Clifton Powell, Terrence Dashon Howard, Bokeem Woodbine. Absorbing and ambitious chronicle of a young black man's odyssey from the late 1960s Bronx, through a tour of duty in Vietnam, then back . . . to a dead-end existence. Tries to cover a broad landscape (with a passing nod to the Black Revolution movement), then winds up as a crime caper. Imperfect, but still a compelling tale of how the brutality of war spilled over onto America's urban streets. Warning: the violence is jarringly (and purposefully) graphic. Scripted by Michael Henry Brown from Allen and Albert Hughes' story. Seymour Cassel and Martin Sheen appear unbilled. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Dead Reckoning (1947) 100m.  D: John Cromwell. Humphrey Bogart, Elizabeth Scott, Morris Carnovsky, William Prince, Wallace Ford. Bogart's fine as tough WW2 veteran solving soldier-buddy's murder. Well-acted drama. ▼●●

Dead Ringer (1964) 115m. ½ D: Paul Henreid. Bette Davis, Karl Malden, Peter Lawford, Jean Hagen, George Macready, Estelle Winwood. A double dose of Davis, playing twin sisters (as she did earlier in A STOLEN LIFE) bearing a long-time grudge over a man, the sinister one trying to get even. Farfetched but fun; Bette's vehicle all the way, directed by her 1940s costar Paul Henreid. Remade for TV as THE KILLER IN THE MIRROR (1986, with Ann Jillian). ▼●●

Dead Ringers (1988-Canadian) C-115m. ½ D: David Cronenberg. Jeremy Irons, Genevieve Bujold, Heidi Von Palleske, Barbara Gordon, Shirley Douglas, Stephen Lack. Fascinating but extremely unpleasant story of twin gynecologists who share each other's lives—and lovers. Notable for a pair of superb performances by Irons, and the attendant trickery that makes us forget, at times, that we're watching one man play both roles. Based (believe it or not) on a true story! [R] ▼●●

Dead Silence (1989) C-98m. ½ D: Harrison Ellenshaw. Clete Keith, Joseph Scott, Craig Fleming, Doris Anne Soyka, James Austin, Leslie Charles, Bruce R. Barrett. Young screenwriter and would-be director finds a backer for his newest movie—a mafioso type. But after taking his money, he learns that this road-company Godfather expects his stumblebum son to get the starring part in the picture! Amiable comedy about the perils of low-budget moviemaking, with a wonderful final twist. Written by Keith, who plays the filmmaker. Directing debut for special effects whiz Ellenshaw. [R] ▼

Dead Silence (2007) C-90m.  D: James Wan. Ryan Kwanten, Amber Valletta, Donnie Wahlberg, Michael Fairman, Joan Heney, Bob Gunton, Laura Regan, Dmitry Chepovetsky, Judith Roberts. The creators of SAW fashioned this ho-hum horror chiller in which a young husband (Kwanten) sets out to decipher the reason for a brutal killing that occurs after he and his wife receive a mysterious package containing a ventriloquist's dummy. While not as gratuitously gory as many contemporary horror films, it's annoyingly illogical and overly familiar. Unrated version runs 91m. Super 35. [R] ▼

Dead Zone, The (1983) C-103m.  D: David Cronenberg. Christopher Walken, Brooke Adams, Tom Skerritt, Herbert Lom, Anthony Zerbe, Colleen Dewhurst, Martin Sheen, Nicholas Campbell, Jackie Burroughs. Absorbing Stephen King story of young man who emerges from near-fatal accident with the gift (or curse) of second sight—being able to tell a person's fate just by making physical contact. Walken's moving, heartfelt performance is the core of involving, if sometimes meandering movie where (despite reputations of King and Cronenberg) the emphasis is not on blood-and-guts horror. Later a TV series. [R] ▼●●

Deaf Smith & Johnny Ears (1973-Italian) C-91m.  D: Paolo Cavara. Anthony Quinn, Franco Nero, Pamela Tiffin, Ira Furstenberg. Well-made "buddy Western" teams deaf-mute Quinn with upstart Nero as two common-man bystanders during a time of social upheaval in Texas. Beautifully photographed by Tonino Delli Colli. Originally titled LOS AMIGOS. [PG]

Deal, The (2005-U.S.-Canadian) C-107m. ½ D: Harvey Kahn. Christian Slater, Selma Blair, Robert Loggia, Colm Feore, Angie Harmon, John Heard, Kevin Tighe, Françoise Yip. Low-budget suspense thriller had the misfortune to be released in the same year as the similar but far superior SYRIANA. Slater is an associate with a prestigious Wall Street investment firm who is brought in on a deal to complete a questionable merger between a giant American oil group and a Russian company that controls massive amounts of crude. Set during a nondescript future where gas is selling for $6 a gallon, the film is a bit too complicated, although its concerns couldn't be more relevant. Worth a look. [R] ▼

Deal (2008) C-86m. *½ D: Gil Cates, Jr. Burt Reynolds, Bret Harrison, Shannon Elizabeth, Charles Durning, Jennifer Tilly, Maria Mason, Gary Grubbs, Caroline McKinley, Michael Sexton, Vincent Van Paten. Former poker champ returns to the game 20 years after his last tournament to train a hotshot college kid, only to find himself lured back to the tables to compete against his protégé. Dull, derivative rehash of every gambling-movie cliché in the book—and THE COLOR OF MONEY in particular. Reynolds sleepwalks through his role. Several real-life poker champs play themselves. [PG-13] ▼

Deal, The (2008-U.S.-Canadian) C-100m.  D: Steven Schachter. William H. Macy, Meg Ryan, LL Cool J, Elliott Gould, Jason Ritter, Fiona Glascott, Sharon Reginiano, John Carson, David Hunt, Jeremy Crutchley. Suicidal Hollywood producer Macy takes his nephew's unfilmable script about Benjamin Disraeli and uses his considerable wiles to bamboozle a studio into funding its production—with an action star (LL Cool J) in the lead. Only studio exec Ryan seems aware of his chicanery, but watching the unflappable hustler stay one step ahead of seeing his scheme collapse is great fun. Macy and Schachter adapted Peter Lefcourt's knowing novel about the byzantine workings of the movie business. Released direct to DVD. [R] ▼

Dealing: or The Berkeley-to-Boston Forty-Brick Lost-Bag Blues (1972) C-99m. ½ D: Paul Williams. Robert F. Lyons, Barbara Hershey, John Lithgow, Charles Durning, Joy Bang. Dated but still watchable adaptation of Robert and Michael Crichton's lighthearted novel about Harvard law student who runs pot on the side. Lyons is pretty blah, but compensation is provided by Hershey as his free-thinking girlfriend and Lithgow (in film debut) as the head dope. Panavision. [R]

Deal of the Century (1983) C-99m.  D: William Friedkin. Chevy Chase, Sigourney Weaver, Gregory Hines, Vince Edwards, Richard Libertini, William Marquez, Eduardo Ricard, Wallace Shawn. Attempted satire of international weapons merchants. Its leading characters are so cold-blooded and unappealing, and its script (by Paul Brickman) so disjointed, that the results are a mishmash. [PG] ▼

Dear Brigitte (1965) C-100m. ½ D: Henry Koster. James Stewart, Fabian, Glynis Johns, Cindy Carol, Billy Mumy, John Williams, Jack Kruschen, Alice Pearce, Jesse White, Ed Wynn. Guest: Brigitte Bardot. Good cast in OK family farce about an 8-year-old genius (Stewart's son, Mumy) with a crush on Brigitte Bardot (who makes a brief appearance near the end). Tries to be whimsical but is contrived instead. Look fast for James Brolin as student spokesman. CinemaScope. ▼

Dear Detective (1977-French) C-105m. ½ D: Philippe De Broca. Annie Girardot, Philippe Noiret, Catherine Alric, Hubert Deschamps, Paulette Goddard. Girardot is fine as woman cop who becomes involved with old flame (pompous professor Noiret) as she hunts a killer. Sometimes funny, more often predictable and pointless. Remade in 1979 as a TV movie. Retitled DEAR INSPECTOR. Sequel: JUPITER'S THIGH. [PG] ▼

Dear Frankie (2005-British-Scottish) C-105m.  D: Shona Auerbach. Emily Mortimer, Jack McElhone, Gerard Butler, Sharon Small, Mary Riggans, Jayd Johnson. Sweet film set in Glasgow about a woman who lives with her mother and her deaf 9-year-old son. Constantly on the move, to avoid contact with her abusive ex-husband, she has invented a romantic father figure for her boy, telling him that his dad is away at sea; then she's forced to find someone to fill that role, just for one day. Warm, never mawkish, with fine performances all around. [PG-13] ▼

Dear God (1996) C-112m.  D: Garry Marshall. Greg Kinnear, Laurie Metcalf, Maria Pitillo, Tim Conway, Hector Elizondo, Jon Seda, Roscoe Lee Browne, Anna Maria Horsford, Nancy Marchand, Larry Miller, Rue McClanahan, Jack Sheldon, Coolio, Seth Mumy, Jack Klugman, Ellen Cleghorne. Con man Kinnear gets one last chance to go straight, with a job at the post office. There, in the dead-letter department, he and his motley colleagues make "miracles" happen for needy people who write to God. Whimsical comedy gets off to a good start but loses the one thing it needs most: conviction. Director Marshall has a cameo, along with various celebs (including stars of long-ago Marshall-produced TV series). [PG] ▼

Dear Inspector SEE: Dear Detective

Dear Mr. Wonderful (1982-German) C-115m.  D: Peter Lilienthal. Joe Pesci, Karen Ludwig, Evan Handler, Ivy Ray Browning, Frank Vincent, Paul Herman, Tony Martin. Ruby Dennis (Pesci) owns a bowling alley-nightclub in Jersey City, thinks he's on the verge of crashing Las Vegas. The American Jewish working class experience, viewed with a European sensibility, doesn't ring true; still, a thoughtful portrait of a little man who must learn to take what life has to offer. The sequence with Martin is particularly memorable. Video title: RUBY'S DREAM. ▼●

Dear Wendy (2005-Danish-French-German-British) C-105m. ½ D: Thomas Vinterberg. Jamie Bell, Bill Pullman, Michael Angarano, Danso Gordon, Novella Nelson, Chris Owen, Alison Pill, Mark Webber. Thought-provoking allegory about America's fascination with firearms, centering on a band of alienated small-town teens who, despite their pacifistic nature, become obsessed with shooting guns. Provocative, albeit pretentious, film leads to an unsurprising finale. Audiences who are offended by foreign filmmakers who censure the U.S. may find this infuriating. Scripted (not surprisingly) by Lars von Trier. ●

Dear Zachary: A Letter to a Son About His Father (2008) C-95m. ½ D: Kurt Kuenne. Riveting, emotionally charged documentary started out as a visual essay about Dr. Andrew Bagby, the filmmaker's oldest and best friend, who was murdered before the birth of his son. The fact that Zachary's mother became the prime suspect in the case is one of several twists in this chronicle of good and evil that illustrates how real life often is stranger than fiction. Kuenne also composed the film's score. ●

Death and the Maiden (1994) C-103m.  D: Roman Polanski. Sigourney Weaver, Ben Kingsley, Stuart Wilson. Generally fluid filmization of Ariel Dorfman's three-character (and mostly one-room) play about an edgy onetime victim of torture and sexual abuse who gets a chance to exact at-home revenge. Though Weaver's occasionally over-the-top performance contributes to a wobbly midsection, Polanski is pretty much up to the tough claustrophobic challenge. Kingsley is exceptional as a physician who gets the surprise of his life when he drops in to a secluded beach house (presumably in Chile) for a nightcap. [R] ▼●●

Death at a Funeral (2007-U.S.-British-German-Netherlands) C-91m.  D: Frank Oz. Matthew Macfadyen, Keeley Hawes, Andy Nyman, Ewen Bremner, Daisy Donovan, Alan Tudyk, Jane Asher, Kris Marshall, Rupert Graves, Peter Egan, Peter Dinklage. Amiable comedy chronicling the mounting mishaps that occur as family and friends gather to attend the funeral of a British man at his country estate, including the arrival of

the wrong corpse, the accidental ingestion of a hallucinogenic drug, and a mysterious mourner who threatens to unveil a shocking secret. Expert cast gets the most out of this material, which gathers momentum as it goes along in the fashion of a classic farce. [R] ●

Death Becomes Her (1992) C-104m.  D: Robert Zemeckis. Meryl Streep, Bruce Willis, Goldie Hawn, Isabella Rossellini, Ian Ogilvy, Adam Storke, Nancy Fish, Alaina Reed Hall, Michelle Johnson, Mimi Kennedy, Jonathan Silverman, Fabio. Black comedy about a glamorous, self-absorbed star (Streep) who's obsessed with staying young, and a woman scorned (Hawn) who vows revenge against her—at any price. Effects-laden comedy of absurd extremes is told with too heavy a hand, though Streep is a hoot as the egomaniacal actress. Film director Sydney Pollack is also funny in an unbilled bit as a Beverly Hills doctor. Won Visual Effects Oscar. [PG-13] ▼●●

Death Before Dishonor (1987) C-95m.  D: Terry J. Leonard. Fred Dryer, Brian Keith, Paul Winfield, Joanna Pacula, Kasey Walker, Rockne Tarkington. Clichéd, by-the-numbers story of Marine gunnery sergeant Dryer (who keeps a picture of John Wayne from SANDS OF IWO JIMA on his wall), who singlehandedly battles Middle Eastern terrorists after they stage a massacre—and kidnap his superior (Keith). Lotsa stunts, little sense. [R] ▼●●

Death Defying Acts (2008-U.S.-British-Australian) C-97m.  D: Gillian Armstrong. Guy Pearce, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Timothy Spall, Saoirse Ronan, Malcolm Shields, Leni Harper, Ralph Riach. After getting involved in a torrid affair with a beautiful psychic during his 1926 tour of Britain, Harry Houdini is lured into a sensationalized séance by the woman and her daughter in which they "attempt" to contact the magician's mother, from whose death he has never recovered. Disappointing period piece that fails to find the magic, or even any significant dramatic tension, in these colorful events. Pearce is sadly miscast and Zeta-Jones looks bored most of the time. Panavision. [PG] ●

Deathdream (1972-Canadian) C-90m. ½ D: Bob Clark. John Marley, Richard Backus, Lynn Carlin, Henderson Forsythe. Backus is Vietnam vet, thought dead, who returns to his family a virtual stranger with a murderous lust for blood. Grim, fairly shocking. Aka DEAD OF NIGHT. ▼●

Death Game (1977) C-89m. *½ D: Peter S. Traynor. Sondra Locke, Colleen Camp, Seymour Cassel, Beth Brickell. Unpleasant (and ultimately ludicrous) film about two ma-

Death Hunt (1981) C-97m.  D: Peter R. Hunt. Charles Bronson, Lee Marvin, Andrew Stevens, Angie Dickinson, Carl Weathers, Ed Lauter. Tough Mountie Marvin pursues proud, self-reliant trapper Bronson, innocent of a murder charge, across icy Canada. Good action, but not enough of it. Angie is wasted. [R]▼●●

Death in the Garden (1956-French-Mexican) C-92m.  D: Luis Buñuel. Simone Signoret, Georges Marchal, Charles Vanel, Michele Girardon, Michel Piccoli, Tito Junco. Fleeing an unspecified Fascist state, a ragged group—including a prostitute, a miner, and a priest—embark on a surreal trek through the jungles of South America. This may have merely been a “commercial chore” for the great Buñuel, but it’s fascinating nonetheless. Originally titled LA MORT EN CE JARDIN at 97m.; aka DIAMOND HUNTERS, EVIL EDEN, and GINA.▼

Death in Venice (1971-Italian) C-130m. ½ D: Luchino Visconti. Dirk Bogarde, Mark Burns, Marisa Berenson, Bjorn Andresen, Silvana Mangano, Luigi Battaglia. Study of an artist, his loves, his homosexuality, and continuous search for beauty. Thomas Mann’s slow-moving classic is splendidly brought to the screen. Music by Gustav Mahler (whom Bogarde is made up to resemble). Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Deathline SEE: Raw Meat

Deathmask (1984) C-87m.  D: Richard Friedman. Farley Granger, Lee Bryant, John McCurry, Arch Johnson, Barbara Bingham, Danny Aiello, Ruth Warrick. Medical investigator Granger, haunted by the accidental drowning of his daughter, attempts to find the identity of a dead four-year-old boy. Done in by confusing direction, unnecessary exploitation elements. Video version is 103m.▼

Deathmaster, The (1972) C-88m.  D: Ray Danton. Robert Quarry, Bill Ewing, Brenda Dickson, John Fiedler, Betty Ann Rees, William Jordan. Spellbinding stranger (Quarry) leads on a group of unsuspecting hippies; their “guru” turns out to be a vampire in this bloody, run-of-the-mill outing. [PG]●

Death of a Gunfighter (1969) C-100m. ½ D: Allen Smithee. Richard Widmark, Lena Horne, John Saxon, Michael McGreevey, Darleen Carr, Carroll O’Connor, Kent Smith. Downbeat but interesting Western drama of unwanted sheriff who refuses to be fired. Horne wasted as Widmark’s occasional love interest. Directed by Robert Totten and Don Siegel, credited to fictitious Smithee (his directorial “debut”). [M/PG]▼

Death of an Angel (1985) C-95m.  D: Petru Popescu. Bonnie Bedelia, Nick Mancuso, Pamela Ludwig, Alex Colon, Irma Garcia. Inspirational misfire about newly ordained female priest Bedelia getting involved with Mexican religious charlatan Mancuso after her crippled daughter (Ludwig) runs away to join his flock. Well-meaning, well-acted effort is extremely hokey, with a fantasy ending that is wholly unbelievable. [PG]▼●

Death of a President (2006-British) C-93m.  D: Gabriel Range. Hend Ayoub, Brian Boland, Becky Ann Baker, Robert Mangiardi, Jay Patterson, Jay Whittaker, Michael Reilly Burke, James Urbaniak. Politically loaded faux documentary depicts the future assassination of the then-current U.S. President, George W. Bush, while on a trip to Chicago in October 2007. The emphasis is not so much on the crime but its aftermath, and how the act is exploited by those who hold power in the U.S. Intriguing and frightening, depending on how much you buy into the premise. [R]●

Death of a Prophet (1981) C&B/W-60m. ½ D: Woodie King, Jr. Morgan Freeman, Yolanda King, Mansoor Najee-ullah, Sam Singleton, Tommie Hicks, Yusef Iman, Sonny Jim Gaines, Ossie Davis. Low-budget but involving drama (with some documentary scenes) about the last day in the life of a black American leader. He’s clearly supposed to be Malcolm X, though that name is not mentioned. Freeman is excellent, and the film’s documentary style is effective. Yolanda King is the daughter of Martin Luther King, Jr. ▼●

Death of a Salesman (1951) C-115m. ½ D: Laslo Benedek. Fredric March, Mildred Dunnock, Kevin McCarthy, Cameron Mitchell, Howard Smith, Royal Beal, Jesse White. Arthur Miller’s Pulitzer Prize-winning social drama of middle-aged man at end of emotional rope is transformed to the screen intact, with stagy flashbacks. March in title role can’t fathom why business and family life failed; Dunnock is patient wife; McCarthy and Mitchell are disillusioned sons. Superb. Dunnock, Mitchell, and Smith re-create their Broadway roles; McCarthy repeats the role he played on the London stage.

Death of a Soldier (1986-Australian) C-93m.  D: Philippe Mora. James Coburn, Reb Brown, Bill Hunter, Maurie Fields, Belinda Davey, Max Fairchild. Yank soldier in 1942 Melbourne is strangling Aussie women; the U.S. Army—which desperately needs Allied help just after MacArthur’s arrival there from the Philippines—wants to hang the assailant instead of providing the professional help he really needs. Based on fact, but not as interesting as it sounds; Coburn is the American MP who gets caught in the middle. Panavision. [R]▼

Death of Mr. Lazarescu, The (2005-Romanian) C-153m. ½ D: Cristi Puiu. Ion Fiscuteanu, Luminita Gheorghiu, Gabriel Spahiu, Doru Ana, Dana Dogaru, Florin Zamfirescu. Bleak, fascinating, sadly funny film follows an older man, seized with stomach pain, who is shuffled from hospital to hospital as his condition deteriorates during the course of one long night . . . but a middle-aged ambulance attendant (Gheorghiu) refuses to abandon him. Potent meditation on bureaucracy and the inhumanity it breeds. Long but compelling; a humanistic look at the sorry state of health care, which is apparently a universal problem. Written by the director and Razvan Radulescu. [R]●

Death on the Nile (1978-British) C-140m. ½ D: John Guillermin. Peter Ustinov, Bette Davis, David Niven, Mia Farrow, Angela Lansbury, George Kennedy, Maggie Smith, Jack Warden, Lois Chiles, Olivia Hussey, Simon MacCorkindale, Jane Birkin, Jon Finch, Harry Andrews, I.S. Johar. Visually sumptuous but only marginally engrossing Agatha Christie mystery has Hercule Poirot (Ustinov) faced with a shipload of suspects after the murder of Chiles. A deserving Oscar winner for Anthony Powell's costume design; script by Anthony Shaffer. The first of Ustinov's portrayals of the Belgian detective. [PG]▼●●

Death Race (2008) C-105m. *½ D: Paul W. S. Anderson. Jason Statham, Joan Allen, Ian McShane, Tyrese Gibson, Natalie Martinez, Max Ryan, Jacob Vargas, Jason Clarke. In the near future prisons are run like corporations that must make a profit. A tough-as-nails con, wrongly convicted of murdering his wife, is forced to enter a brutal car race (broadcast live on the Internet) in which inmates have to torture and kill one another before the sole survivor can claim victory and freedom. With mean warden Allen calling the shots from the sidelines, this ludicrous scenario exists only to showcase mayhem and violence at every turn. In-name-only remake of Roger Corman's exploitation favorite DEATH RACE 2000. David Carradine provides voice of Frankenstein. Unrated version runs 111m. Super 35. [R]●

Death Sentence (2007) C-105m. *½ D: James Wan. Kevin Bacon, Garrett Hedlund, Kelly Preston, Aisha Tyler, John Goodman, Jordan Garrett, Stuart Lafferty, Leigh Whannell. Bacon is a picture-perfect family man whose life is thrown into a dangerous, downward spiral when a family member becomes an innocent victim in a gang robbery. He turns into a killing machine, and suddenly every B-movie cliché is dredged up. Exactly what you'd expect a pulp revenge film from the director of SAW to be. Almost worth watching for one unusually lengthy chase scene. Actually based on Brian Garfield's novel that was a sequel to his original Death Wish. Also shown in unrated version. Super 35. [R]●

Death Ship (1980-Canadian) C-91m. BOMB D: Alvin Rakoff. George Kennedy, Richard Crenna, Nick Mancuso, Sally Ann Howes, Kate Reid, Saul Rubinek. Luxury liner collides with "death ship." Survivors board "death ship." "Death ship" tries to murder survivors. Forget it. [R]▼

Death Takes a Holiday (1934) 78m. ½ D: Mitchell Leisen. Fredric March, Evelyn Venable, Guy Standing, Gail Patrick, Helen Westley, Kent Taylor, Henry Travers, Katherine Alexander. Fascinating allegory about Death (March) entering the human world to discover what makes us tick, and falling in love. Maxwell Anderson, Gladys Lehman, and Walter Ferris adapted Alberto Casella's play. Remade as a TVM in 1971 (with Melvyn Douglas, Myrna Loy, and Monte Markham), and as MEET JOE BLACK in 1998.▼

Death to Smoochy (2002) C-109m.  D: Danny DeVito. Sleazy TV kiddie show host (Williams) swears revenge on his replacement (Norton), who's ultra-sincere and doesn't realize that he's surrounded by greedy, self-promoting sharks. Satiric black comedy revels in its own nastiness, but pummels all the fun out of the premise with its heavy-handed treatment. A major disappointment considering the talent involved. [R]▼

Death Wish (1974) C-93m.  D: Michael Winner. Charles Bronson, Hope Lange, Vincent Gardenia, Steven Keats, William Redfield, Stuart Margolin, Stephen Elliott, Olympia Dukakis, Christopher Guest, Paul Dooley, Eric Laneuville. Audience manipulation at its zenith: Businessman Bronson's wife and daughter are savagely raped, and his wife dies, turning mild-mannered liberal Bronson into a vigilante on N.Y.C. streets. Chilling but irresistible; a bastardization of the Brian Garfield novel, in which vigilantism as a deterrent to crime is not a solution but another problem. Music by Herbie Hancock. One of the muggers is played by Jeff Goldblum, in his film debut. Followed by four sequels. [R]▼●●

Death Wish II (1982) C-93m. BOMB D: Michael Winner. Charles Bronson, Jill Ireland, Vincent Gardenia, J. D. Cannon, Anthony Franciosa, Ben Frank, Robin Sherwood, Robert F. Lyons, Larry Fishburne. No plot, just a pretext: Bronson's fiancée is murdered on the orders of her mobster ex-husband (Parks), so (yawn) he turns vigilante yet again. Crude, stupid entry in weary series, very badly directed, with an emphasis on torture. [R]▼●●

D.E.B.S. (2005) C-91m.  D: Angela Robinson. Sara Foster, Jordana Brewster, Devon Aoki, Meagan Good, Michael Clarke Duncan, Jessica Cauffiel, Jill Ritchie, Holland Taylor. Leggy young women in short skirts are, in reality, spies. Their assignment: to carry, or at least sustain, a retro secret-agent spoof whose major story hook is lesbian puppy-love. Writer-director Robinson shows visual flair, but leads Foster and Brewster are fatally rapid as the spy and target who develop a yen for each other. Titillation aside, it plays no better than the spy comedies of the 1960s when James Bond was new. Allen and Rossi in THE LAST OF THE SECRET AGENTS?, anyone? Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Decameron, The (1970-Italian-French-West German) C-111m. ½ D: Pier Paolo Pasolini. Franco Citti, Ninetto Davoli, Angela Luce, Patrizia Capparelli, Jovan Jovanovic, Silvana Mangano, Pier Paolo Pasolini. An octet of tales from Boccaccio's Decameron, with Pasolini as Giotto, linking them up. Lively, earthy; the first of the director's medieval trilogy. [X]▼●●

Decameron Nights (1952-British) C-87m.  D: Hugo Fregonese. Joan Fontaine, Louis Jourdan, Binnie Barnes, Joan Collins, Marjorie Rhodes. Boring tale of Boccaccio (Jourdan), on the run after martial law is declared in Florence; he hides out at Fontaine's villa, where in the company of his hostess and her wards a trio of romantic tales are spun (each of which also stars Jourdan and Fontaine).▼

Deceived (1991) C-103m.  D: Damian Harris. Goldie Hawn, John Heard, Robin Bartlett, Ashley Peldon, Tom Irwin, Beatrice Straight, Kate Reid, Maia Filar, Jan Rubes, Amy Wright. In-name-only "thriller" about happily married N.Y.C. yuppie who discovers her husband's litany of duplicities after the guy is supposedly murdered. Hawn's attempt to play it straight is too derivative (to say nothing of incredible) to carry much clout. [PG-13]▼●●

rich kid with temporal lobe epilepsy, hack prostitute Zellweger in two? Pretentious, derivative groaner about Roth's subsequent police interrogation futilely tries to make us care. With its casting—Penn and Rooker as the grilling cops—it's a given that Roth isn't going to be the only one with personal demons. If you must watch, see if you can make sense of Arquette's role as Rooker's sex-starved wife. J-D-C Scope. [R]▼●●

Deceivers, The (1988-British-Indian) C-112m. BOMB D: Nicholas Meyer. Pierce Brosnan, Saeed Jaffrey, Shashi Kapoor, Helena Mitchell, Keith Michell, David Robb. Limp adventure saga of British officer Brosnan going undercover in colonial India to infiltrate a murderous brotherhood. Intriguing premise, deadening result; Brosnan simply fails to register. Produced, oddly enough, by Ismail Merchant. [PG-13]▼●●

December (1991) C-92m.  D: Gabe Torres. Balthazar Getty, Jason London, Brian Krause, Wil Wheaton, Chris Young, Robert Miller, Ann Hartfield. In the wake of the Pearl Harbor bombing in 1941 five young men must decide what to do with their lives. Talky movie takes place mostly in dorm rooms; might have played better on a stage. [PG]▼●●

December Boys (2007-Australian) C-105m. ½ D: Rod Hardy. Daniel Radcliffe, Lee Cormie, Christian Byers, James Fraser, Jack Thompson, Teresa Palmer, Sullivan Stapleton, Victoria Hill, Max Cullen. Four orphan boys spend the holidays with a friendly older couple who live on a beach cove. This break from day-to-day life at their orphanage brings out hopes, longings, and resentments as the boys experience puppy love, attachment to parental figures, and life among a group of genuine eccentrics. Adaptation of Michael Noonan's novel echoes other coming-of-age stories but is told with straightforward sincerity. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

December Bride (1991-British-Irish) C-90m.  D: Thaddeus O'Sullivan. Donal McCann, Saskia Reeves, Ciarán Hinds, Patrick Malahide, Brenda Bruce. Austere but involving romantic drama set in a rural, conservative Irish farm community, in which an independent-minded servant (Reeves) becomes pregnant and refuses to reveal the identity of the father. A story of simple but deeply felt emotion, and an allegory about the constrictions of hell-and-damnation religion. Stunningly directed, and crammed with painterly images.▼

Deception (1946) 112m.  D: Irving Rapper. Bette Davis, Paul Henreid, Claude Rains, John Abbott. Talky but engrossing drama, set in the world of classical music, about a celebrated composer (a charismatic Rains) who seeks revenge when his lover (Davis) weds her old flame (Henreid).▼

Deception (1993) C-90m. ½ D: Graeme Clifford. Andie MacDowell, Liam Neeson, Viggo Mortensen, Jack Thompson, Paul Spencer, Chad Power, Monica Mikala, Jeff Corey, Miriam Reed. Better-than-average mystery follows a determined woman around the world as she sniffs out a trail of bank accounts left by her deceased husband. A pleasant diversion, enhanced by MacDowell and some nice scenery. Filmed as RUBY CAIRO, this languished on the shelf for a while. [PG-13] ▼

Deception (2008) C-108m.  D: Marcel Langenegger. Hugh Jackman, Ewan McGregor, Michelle Williams, Lisa Gay Hamilton, Maggie Q, Natasha Henstridge, Charlotte Rampling, Margaret Colin, Paz de la Huerta, Rachael Taylor. Nerdy auditor (McGregor) warns to the friendly overtures of a slick lawyer (Jackman) who seems to have all the social skills he lacks. When he winds up with Jackman's cell phone he's drawn into a secret sex club—and enjoys it, until things turn sour. A suspense movie made by people who've apparently never seen a suspense movie; painfully obvious from the word go. Jackman coproduced. Super 35. [R] ●

Decision at Sundown (1957) C-77m. ½ D: Budd Boetticher. Randolph Scott, John Carroll, Karen Steele, Noah Beery, Jr., John Litel. Scott tracks down man supposedly responsible for his wife's suicide in this odd but interesting Western. ▼

Decision Before Dawn (1952) 110m.  D: Anatole Litvak. Richard Basehart, Gary Merrill, Oskar Werner, Hildegard Neff, Dominique Blanchard, O. E. Hasse, Wilfried Seyfert. Top-notch WW2 espionage thriller, with Werner an idealistic German medic/POW who agrees to become a spy for his captors. Outstanding work by Werner, Neff (as a sympathetic bar-girl), and the supporting cast. Look quickly for Klaus Kinski as a whining soldier. Perceptive script by Peter Viertel; Litvak coproduced. ●

Deck the Halls (2006) C-95m. *½ D: John Whitesell. Danny DeVito, Matthew Broderick, Kristin Davis, Kristin Chenoweth, Fred Armisen, Alia Shawkat, Dylan Blue, Sabrina Aldridge, Kelly Aldridge, Jorge Garcia, Ryan Devlin, Jackie Burroughs. Two neighbors declare war after DeVito decides to decorate his house with so many lights they can "be seen from space." When people start coming from all over town to see the display it causes great friction between him and Broderick, who feels he is being upstaged. Incredibly dumb holiday comedy that can't even meet the lowball standards set by JINGLE ALL THE WAY and CHRISTMAS WITH THE KRANKS. Deck the screenwriters instead. [PG] ●

Decline of the American Empire, The (1986-Canadian) C-101m.  D: Denys Arcand. Dominique Michel, Dorothée Berryman, Louise Portal, Geneviève Rioux, Pierre Curzi, Rémy Girard, Yves Jacques, Daniel Brière, Gabriel Arcand. Witty, on-target account of how men and women feel about each other, and use each other, in their quests for pleasure and happiness. Focus is on a group of friends: The men prepare a gourmet dinner, while the women exercise in a health club, then they come together. These characters gather again in THE BARBARIAN INVASIONS. [R] ▼

Decline and Fall of a Bird Watcher (1969-British) C-86m.  D: John Krish. Robin Phillips, Colin Blakely, Leo McKern, Genevieve Page, Felix Aylmer, Robert Harris, Donald Wolfitt, Patrick Magee. Un-even, often labored satirical farce about a young man who joins faculty of strange boys' school and becomes involved with manipulative older woman (Page). Adapted from an Evelyn Waugh novel. [PG]

Decline of Western Civilization, The (1981) C-100m.  D: Penelope Spheeris. Alice Bag Band, Black Flag, Catholic Discipline, Circle Jerks, Fear, Germs, X. Funny, revealing documentary record of the whos, whats, and whys of the L.A. punk rock scene at the end of the 1970s: the music, performers, dancing, clubs, violence, desperation. An aptly titled chronicle. Much of cast now dead. Followed by a sequel. [R] ▼

Decline of Western Civilization Part II: The Metal Years, The (1988) C-90m.  D: Penelope Spheeris. Joe Perry, Steven Tyler, Gene Simmons, Paul Stanley, Chris Holmes, Lemmy, Ozzy Osbourne, Faster Pussycat, Lizzy Borden, London, Odin, Seduce, Megadeth. Follow-up to definitive punk rock documentary concentrates more heavily on interviews, juxtaposing thoughts of seen-it-all veterans (Osbourne, Simmons, Perry, and Tyler of Aerosmith) with young aspirants bucking odds for success. Sympathetic to its subjects without condoning lifestyle it depicts; probably only chance you'll ever get to see Osbourne cook breakfast. [R] ▼

Deconstructing Harry (1997) C-96m. ½ D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, Richard Benjamin, Kirstie Alley, Billy Crystal, Judy Davis, Bob Balaban, Elisabeth Shue, Demi Moore, Robin Williams, Caroline Aaron, Eric Bogosian, Mariel Hemingway, Amy Irving, Julie Kavner, Eric Lloyd, Julia Louis-Dreyfus, Tobey Maguire, Stanley Tucci, Hazelle Goodman, Gene Saks, Tony Sirico, Paul Giamatti, Jennifer Garner. A writer uses his life as fodder for his work—infringement his friends, family, and lovers. Unusually candid (and foul-mouthed) self-examination by Allen, incorporating his various encounters as well as enactments of his fables and fancies; nonfans may think it overly indulgent, but Woodyphiles should find it fascinating and extremely funny. No one writes funnier dialogue—or keeps the spirit of Jewish humor alive so well. [R] ▼ ● ●

jorie Woodworth, Phil Van Zandt. Superior low-budget film noir about a gangster's ruthless moll (Gillie) who seduces a sap doctor as part of her outlandish scheme to find $400,000 in buried loot—by reviving her boyfriend after his execution in the gas chamber! Taut B movie, based on a story by Stanley Rubin, doesn't quite live up to its "lost classic" reputation, but the opening and closing scenes are knockouts, and the British Gillie makes an unforgettable femme fatale; Leonard has one of his finest hours as a jaded police detective. D

Dedication (2007) C-94m. *½ D: Justin Theroux. Billy Crudup, Mandy Moore, Tom Wilkinson, Bob Balaban, Martin Freeman, Dianne Wiest, Bobby Cannavale, Peter Bogdanovich, Amy Sedaris, Christine Taylor. Children's book author Crudup is emotionally paralyzed by the death of his illustrator, who's also his only friend (Wilkinson). We soon find out why, as this off-putting movie asks us to show care and concern for a man who puts the funk in dysfunctional. When editor Balaban tries to force a female illustrator (Moore) on his reluctant author, you know romance is in the air—but the air in this movie is terminally foul. [R] D

Deep, The (1977) C-123m.  D: Peter Yates. Robert Shaw, Jacqueline Bisset, Nick Nolte, Louis Gossett, Eli Wallach, Robert Tessier. Endless film of Peter Benchley's novel about innocent couple who hit on treasure and drugs while scuba-diving off Bermuda coast. Gratuitous violence and titillation—not to mention unbelievable plot—sink this handsome production. NBC added 53m. for its first network showing. Panavision. [PG] **▼●●

Deep Blue Sea, The (1955-British) C-99m. ½ D: Anatole Litvak. Vivien Leigh, Kenneth More, Eric Portman, Emyln Williams. Terence Rattigan play of marital infidelity and the repercussions on Leigh, frustrated well-married woman; slow moving, but interesting. CinemaScope.

Deep Blue Sea (1999) C-105m. ½ D: Renny Harlin. Thomas Jane, Saffron Burrows, Samuel L. Jackson, Jacqueline McKenzie, Michael Rapaport, Stellan Skarsgård, LL Cool J, Aida Turro. Floating scientific base is crippled by an unlikely accident, and the super-intelligent sharks developed by researchers ungratefully begin chasing down their creators as the base slowly sinks. Sometimes-exciting combination of JAWS and ALIEN has some surprises, but terrible dialogue and a preposterous premise. Ronny Cox appears unbilled. Super 35. [R] **▼●●

Deep Cover (1992) C-112m. ½ D: Bill Duke. Larry Fishburne, Jeff Goldblum, Victoria Dillard, Charles Martin Smith, Sydney Lassick, Clarence Williams III, Gregory Sierra, Roger Guenveur Smith, Def Jef, Glynn Turman. Fishburne, whose dad was killed during a holdup, grows up to be an undercover narc. Half standard urban action pic—but also half original. Goldblum puts a deliciously eccentric spin on his role as a lawyer who becomes Fishburne's unwitting "partner" in shady drug dealings. Better if taken purely as a genre picture, though there are indications the film wants to be something more; expert action scenes. [R] **▼●●

Deep Crimson (1996-Mexican-French-Spanish) C-114m.  D: Arturo Ripstein. Regina Orozco, Daniel Gimenez-Cacho, Marisa Paredes, Veronica Merchant, Julieta Eguurrola, Patricia Reyes Spindola. Spectacularly unpleasant and disturbing true-life crime story, based on the same "Lonely Hearts" case that inspired THE HONEYMOON KILLERS, about the murderous love affair between an obese nurse and a gigolo who swindle wealthy widows in 1940s Mexico. Extremely well acted and directed study of l'amour fou and the banality of evil. Packs a wallop, and pulls no punches in its horrific depiction of the couple's violent descent into madness. ▼D

Deep End (1970-U.S.-German) C-88m.  D: Jerzy Skolimowski. Jane Asher, John Moulder-Brown, Diana Dors, Karl Michael Vogler. Innocent 15-year-old Moulder-Brown, an attendant in a dreary public bath, falls in love with his 20-ish female counterpart (Asher). Well-made tragedy of obsessive love; set in London, with music by Cat Stevens. [R] **▼

Deep End, The (2001) C-99m.  D: Scott McGehee, David Siegel. Tilda Swinton, Goran Visnjic, Jonathan Tucker, Josh Lucas, Peter Donat, Raymond Barry. A devoted mother of three thinks her teenage son may be accused of killing his gay lover, so she covers up the crime . . . but that's just the beginning of her problems. Intriguing thriller with surprising twists and nuanced character development, but a bit cold. Interestingly set and shot in Lake Tahoe, with a superb performance by Swinton. Based on the same novel by Elizabeth Sanxay Holding (The Blank Wall) that inspired THE RECKLESS MOMENT in 1949. Written by the directors. Panavision. [R] ▼D

Deep End of the Ocean, The (1999) C-109m.  D: Ulu Grosbard. Michelle Pfeiffer, Treat Williams, Whoopi Goldberg, Jonathan Jackson, Ryan Merriman, John Kapelos, Michael Mcelroy. Persuasively acted adaptation of Jacquelyn Mitchard's best-seller about the disappearance of a three-year-old at his mother's high school reunion, and his chance return nine years later. Two-part story is admittedly a whopper, yet it's handled in credible fashion that makes one willing to accept it. Plays like a TV movie at times, but by and large, an exceptional one, with the dynamics between the two newfound brothers ringing true. [PG-13] **▼●●

Deep Impact (1998) C-120m.  D: Mimi Leder. Robert Duvall, Téa Leoni, Elijah

Wood, Vanessa Redgrave, Morgan Freeman, Maximilian Schell, James Cromwell, Ron Eldard, Jon Favreau, Laura Innes, Mary McCormack, Richard Schiff, Blair Underwood, Bruce Weitz, Betsy Brantley, Charles Martin Smith, Leelee Sobieski. Exciting yarn about attempts to ward off a comet hurtling toward Earth—and preparations to save as many people as possible if it hits. Freeman is the rock-solid U.S. President, Duvall a veteran astronaut on a space mission to explode the comet; their authoritative presence adds weight to this saga, while Leoni seems a bit of a flyweight as the ambitious TV newswoman who breaks the story. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Deep in My Heart (1954) C-132m. ½ D: Stanley Donen. Jose Ferrer, Merle Oberon, Helen Traubel, Doe Avedon, Tamarra Toumanova, Paul Stewart, Douglas Fowley, Jim Backus; guest stars Walter Pidgeon, Paul Henreid, Rosemary Clooney, Gene and Fred Kelly, Jane Powell, Vic Damone, Ann Miller, Cyd Charisse, Howard Keel, Tony Martin. The life of composer Sigmund Romberg is not the stuff of high drama, but film sparkles in production numbers with MGM guest stars. Highlights include Kelly brothers' only film appearance together, Charisse's exquisite and sensual dance number with James Mitchell, and an incredible number featuring Ferrer performing an entire show himself. ▼●●

Deep in the Heart (1983-British) C-101m.  D: Tony Garnett. Karen Young, Clayton Day, Suzie Humphreys, Ben Jones. Thought-provoking, if occasionally simplistic, drama about the evolution of a young woman (nicely played by Young) from passivity to violence, resulting from her relationship with macho Texan Day. Originally titled HANDGUN. [R] ▼●

Deep Red (1975-Italian) C-98m. ½ D: Dario Argento. David Hemmings, Daria Nicolodi, Gabriele Lavia, Macha Meril, Glauco Mauri. There's style to burn in senseless horror thriller with Hemmings on trail of sadistic psycho killer. Flashy, bizarre murders set to pounding rock soundtrack. Aka THE HATCHET MURDERS; original Italian version, PROFONDO ROSSO, is 28m. longer and much more violent. Cromscope. [R] ▼●

Deep Rising (1998) C-106m.  D: Stephen Sommers. Treat Williams, Famke Janssen, Anthony Heald, Wes Studi, Kevin J. O'Connor, Djimon Hounsou, Derrick O'Connor. Skipper-for-hire Williams finds himself in over his head when his current clients (a scummy lot led by heavily armed Studi) attack a luxury liner, unaware that the ship has been under siege by some sort of horrific ocean creatures. High-tech scare movie with a hokey script; some fun on a no-brainer level. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Deep Six, The (1958) C-105m. ½ D: Rudolph Maté. Alan Ladd, Dianne Foster,

William Bendix, Keenan Wynn, James Whitmore, Efreem Zimbalist, Jr., Joey Bishop. Ladd is Quaker naval officer during WW2 who compensates for past inaction by heading dangerous shore mission; Bendix gives able support. ▼

Deep Space (1987) C-90m. ½ D: Fred Olen Ray. Charles Napier, Ann Turkel, Julie Newmar, James Booth, Ron Glass, Anthony Eisley, Bo Svenson, Peter Palmer. An ALIEN-like creature runs amok. Ultra-hokey sci-fi thriller with comic overtones. Napier is perfectly cast as a cop on its trail. Good fun for genre fans. Incidentally, title has nothing to do with the film! [R] ▼

DeepStar Six (1989) C-100m. ½ D: Sean S. Cunningham. Greg Evigan, Nancy Everhard, Cindy Pickett, Miguel Ferrer, Taurean Blacque, Marius Weyers, Nia Peeples, Matt McCoy, Elya Baskin, Thom Bray. In the near future, an undersea research and missile-installation base is threatened by a carnivorous swimming crustacean. Plodding, familiar story and talky script (not to mention an elaborate but unconvincing monster) sink this. [R] ▼●●

Deep Valley (1947) 104m. ½ D: Jean Negulesco. Ida Lupino, Dane Clark, Wayne Morris, Fay Bainter, Henry Hull, Willard Robertson. Into Lupino's humdrum life comes an escapee from a nearby prison gang. Odd, artsy film adapted from Dan Totheroh's novel, set against the real-life building of the Pacific Coast Highway extension to Monterey. Lupino is good, if miscast, as an ethereal, sheltered farm girl.

Deer Hunter, The (1978) C-183m. * D: Michael Cimino. Robert De Niro, John Cazale, John Savage, Meryl Streep, Christopher Walken, George Dzundza, Chuck Aspegren. Stunning film about young Pennsylvania steelworkers, their lives before, during, and after wartime duty in Vietnam. Long but not overlong, this sensitive, painful, evocative work packs an emotional wallop. Story by Cimino, Deric Washburn, Louis Garfinkle and Quinn Redeker; scripted by Washburn. Five Oscars include Picture, Director, Supporting Actor (Walken), Editing (Peter Zinner). Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Def by Temptation (1990) C-95m.  D: James Bond III. Cynthia Bond, Kadeem Hardison, James Bond III, Bill Nunn, Melba Moore, Samuel L. Jackson. Southern divinity student visits his older brother in N.Y.C., just in time for the latter to get involved with a seductive succubus who preys on men in bars. All-black sleeper is extremely stylish, aided no end by the photography of Spike Lee's longtime cameraman, Ernest Dickerson. [R] ▼●●

Defcon-4 (1984) C-89m. BOMB D: Paul Donovan. Lenore Zann, Maury Chaykin, Kate Lynch, Tim Choate. It sounds like an industrial-strength roach killer, and it could use one. Three astronauts return to a post-holocaust earth run by some truly slimy punks. Next to C.H.U.D., the grimmest-looking movie of its time (at least that one took place underground). [R]▼●●

Defector, The (1966) C-106m. ½ D: Raoul Levy. Montgomery Clift, Hardy Kruger, Roddy McDowall, David Opatoshu. Hackneyed Cold War spy trivia filmed in Europe, interesting only as Clift's last film; good came by McDowall.▶

Defence of the Realm (1985-British) C-96m. ½ D: David Drury. Gabriel Byrne, Greta Scacchi, Denholm Elliott, Ian Bannen, Bill Paterson, Fulton Mackay. Tough, obsessive journalist Byrne's investigative story causes a British MP to resign—but there's more to the case than he knows. A taut, extremely entertaining political thriller that also touches on the subject of journalistic responsibility and the public's right to know what its government is up to. [PG]▼●●

Defending Your Life (1991) C-111m.  D: Albert Brooks. Albert Brooks, Meryl Streep, Rip Torn, Lee Grant, Buck Henry, George D. Wallace, Lillian Lehman, Peter Schuck, Ethan Randall (Embry). Brooks dies in a car crash and finds himself in Judgment City, where Tom is assigned to defend his life before a tribunal . . . and where he falls in love with fellow candidate Streep, who's too good to be true. Imperfect, like all of Brooks' movies, but full of funny ideas and hard to dislike. [PG]▼●●

Defenseless (1991) C-104m. ½ D: Martin Campbell. Barbara Hershey, Sam Shepard, Mary Beth Hurt, J. T. Walsh, Kellie Overbey, Jay O. Sanders, Randy Brooks, John Kapelos, Sheree North. Suspense thriller in which attorney Hershey discovers her client (and lover) murdered—and finds herself not only suspected of the crime, but stalked by a mysterious killer. Not bad, and a good showcase for a first-rate cast, especially Hurt, who chews the scenery in a change-of-pace part. [R]▼●●

Defiance (1980) C-102m. ½ D: John Flynn. Jan-Michael Vincent, Art Carney, Theresa Saldana, Danny Aiello. Fernando Lopez, Rudy Ramos. Gritty little film about rootless blue-collar loner Vincent, who in an attempt to match up his dying youngster's bone marrow single-handedly tames a vicious N.Y.C. street gang. A synthesis of '30s Warner Bros. melodramas, B Westerns, ON THE WATERFRONT, and BOARDWALK, with atmospheric direction and colorful supporting performances. [PG]▼

Defiance (2008) C-137m. ½ D: Edward Zwick. Daniel Craig, Liev Schreiber, Jamie Bell, Alexa Davalos, Allan Corduner, Mark Feuerstein, Tomas Arana, Jodhi May, Kate Fahy, Iddo Goldberg, Iben Hjejle, Martin Hancock. After the Gestapo and its Russian surrogates have swept through their village in Belorussia in 1941, the three Bielski brothers head for the nearby woods and

soon find themselves leading a growing band of Jewish refugees. Survival is the key, but so is leadership, and the two older siblings (Craig and Schreiber) have opposing points of view about how to deal with the enemy. Overlong and uneven, this is a great untold story of WW2 but not, alas, a great film. [R]▶

Defiant, The SEE: Wild Pack, The

Defiant Ones, The (1958) 97m. * D: Stanley Kramer. Tony Curtis, Sidney Poitier, Theodore Bikel, Charles McGraw, Cara Williams, Lon Chaney, Jr. Engrossing story of two escaped convicts—one black, one white—shackled together as they flee from police in the South. Fine performances by Williams and Chaney as people they meet along the way. Academy Award-winning screenplay by Harold Jacob Smith and Nathan E. Douglas (blacklisted actor-writer Nedrick Young) and cinematography by Sam Leavitt. Remade for TV in 1986 with Robert Urich and Carl Weathers.▼●●

Definitely, Maybe (2008-U.S.-British) C-112m. ½ D: Adam Brooks. Ryan Reynolds, Abigail Breslin, Elizabeth Banks, Isla Fisher, Rachel Weisz, Kevin Kline, Derek Luke, Kevin Corrigan, Adam Ferrara. Soon-to-be-divorced man recounts his romantic past to his 10-year-old daughter, who wants to know how he met her mother. Telling the tale of three separate romances, he weaves a story of how they affected his life and what led him to his current state of unwedded bliss. Attempt to do character comedy in the style of British films like LOVE ACTUALLY doesn't quite come off, though the cast is appealing. Robert Klein plays himself. Super 35. [PG-13]▶

Def Jam's How to Be a Player (1997) C-94m. *½ D: Lionel C. Martin. Bill Bellamy, Natalie Desselle, Lark Voorhies, Mari Morrow, Pierre, Jermaine "Big Hugg" Hopkins, A. J. Johnson, Beverly Johnson, Max Julien, Gilbert Gottfried, Bernie Mac, Elise Neal. Smooth-talking womanizer tries one-upping his sister and her friend after they invite all the "entries" in his little black book to the same party. Completely flat comedy is meant to capitalize on TV's no-holds-barred Def Jam, but the show seems a lot raunchier than this big-screen trifle. [R]▼●●

Déjà Vu (1998-U.S.-British) C-116m. ½ D: Henry Jaglom. Stephen Dillane, Victoria Foyt, Vanessa Redgrave, Glynis Barber, Michael Brandon, Noel Harrison, Rachel Kempson, Aviva Marks. Unusual romance about the inexplicable and profound attraction between an American woman abroad and a London painter. Though already attached to others, at every turn they receive "cosmic confirmation" of their belonging together. The acting is so good and story so satisfying that plot contrivances don't matter. Nepotism is a big plus, with Jaglom's wife Foyt in the lead and Redgrave's mother Kempson in their first joint screen appearance. Writer-director Jaglom's best; Foyt coscripted. [PG-13]▼

Deja Vu (2006) C-126m. ½ D: Tony Scott. Denzel Washington, Paula Patton, Val Kilmer, Jim Caviezel, Adam Goldberg, Elden Henson, Erika Alexander, Bruce Greenwood, Matt Craven, Elle Fanning. During Mardi Gras in New Orleans a sight-seeing ferry explodes, killing hundreds. ATF agent Washington investigates a woman whose anomalous death attracts his interest. When he learns the FBI has a device that can view the past—and perhaps enter it—he goes back in time to find the killer and save the woman (Patton). Science fiction mixed with action and romance results in a shallow but entertaining thriller, though Washington, as always, is first-rate. Super 35/HD Widescreen. [PG-13]

Delgo (2008) C-90m. BOMB D: Marc F. Adler, Jason Maurer. Voices of Freddie Prinze, Jr., Jennifer Love Hewitt, Chris Kattan, Val Kilmer, Anne Bancroft, Kelly Ripa, Malcolm McDowell, Eric Idle, Burt Reynolds, Louis Gossett, Jr., Michael Clarke Duncan, Armin Shimerman; narrated by Sally Kellerman. In a fantasy universe, an alien teenager from one kingdom falls in love with the princess from a rival land, erupting hostilities between the two. Unappealing characters and confusing story combine to sink this animated fantasy, which tries too hard to combine every science-fiction/fantasy cliché into one messy concoction. A complete misfire. Final screen credit for Anne Bancroft, who portrays an evil Queen. [PG]

Delicate Balance, A (1973) C-132m.  D: Tony Richardson. Katharine Hepburn, Paul Scofield, Lee Remick, Kate Reid, Joseph Cotten, Betsy Blair. Edward Albee's Pulitzer Prize-winning play about a neurotic Connecticut family and the old friends who decide to move in with them indefinitely makes for stacy, uninvolved film, extraordinary cast notwithstanding. An American Film Theater Production. [PG]▼

Delicate Delinquent, The (1957) 100m.  D: Don McGuire. Jerry Lewis, Martha Hyer, Darren McGavin, Horace McMahon, Milton Frome. Jerry's first solo effort after splitting with Dean Martin has him as delinquent who becomes a cop with McGavin's help. Agreeable blend of sentiment and slapstick. VistaVision.▼

Delicatessen (1991-French) C-102m. ½ D: Jean-Pierre Jeunet, Marc Caro. Marie-Laure Dougnac, Dominique Pison, Karin Viard, Jean Claude Dreyfus, Ticky Holgado, Anne Marie Pisani, Edith Ker. Post-apocalyptic comedy about a landlord who slices humans into cutlets for nonvegetarian tenants. At the very least, this is the most original and entertaining comedy about cannibalism made to date. Brown-and-white color schemes, which would ordinarily look like a lab mistake, contribute to the film's trenchant visual style. Codirector Caro plays Fox, one of the Cave Dwellers. "Presented" by Terry Gilliam.▼

Delinquents, The (1957) 75m.  D: Robert Altman. Tom Laughlin, Peter Miller, Richard Bakalyan, Rosemary Howard, Helene Hawley. Intriguingly awful exploitation drama about nice boy who becomes involved with a street gang because girlfriend is too young to go steady. Altman's first film, made in Kansas City, with Julia Lee singing "Dirty Rock Boogie."

Delirious (1991) C-96m. *½ D: Tom Mankiewicz. John Candy, Mariel Hemingway, Emma Samms, David Rasche, Charles Rocket, Raymond Burr, Dylan Baker, Jerry Orbach, Renee Taylor. Astonishingly stupid comedy with a neat premise: a beleaguered soap-opera writer gets a conk on the head and dreams that he's stuck in his own story—in a heroic role that enables him to have his way with the woman he worships in real life. Bad writing and ham-handed direction foil a willing cast. [PG]▼

Delirious (2007) C-107m. ½ D: Tom DiCillo. Steve Buscemi, Michael Pitt, Alison Lohman, Gina Gershon, Kevin Corrigan, Callie Thorne, Richard Short, Tom Aldredge, Lynn Cohen, Elvis Costello. Thin but enjoyable satire of fame and celebrity as seen through the beady, bitter eyes of uncouth N.Y.C. paparazzo Buscemi. He grudgingly befriends a homeless actor-hopeful (Pitt) who, of course, may just become The Next Big Thing. DiCillo wrote this for Buscemi and together they have almost as much fun as in their first teaming. LIVING IN OBLIVION. Should amuse anyone who has ever even dreamt of a show-biz career.▶

Deliverance (1972) C-109m. * D: John Boorman. Ron Voight, Burt Reynolds, Ned Beatty, Ronny Cox, Billy McKinney, Herbert "Cowboy" Coward, James Dickey. Superlative re-creation of Dickey novel of four Atlanta businessmen who get more than they bargained for during a weekend canoe trip. McKinney and Coward are two of the most terrifying film villains in history; "Dueling Banjos" scene is equally memorable. Film debuts of Beatty and Cox. James Dickey adapted his own novel, and appears in the film as a sheriff; Ed O'Neill appears as a highway patrolman near end of film. The director's son Charley (later star of THE EMERALD FOREST) plays Voight's son here. Panavision. [R]▼

Deliver Us from Eva (2003) C-105m.  D: Gary Hardwick. James Todd Smith aka LL Cool J, Gabrielle Union, Duane Martin, Essence Atkins, Robinne Lee, Meagan Good, Mel Jackson, Dartanyan Edmonds, Kym Whitley, Terry Crews. Amusing film about a hostile, iron-willed woman who dominates the lives of her three younger sisters, inspiring their men to hire a "player" to distract her so they can carry on their relationships. Ingratiating performances by LL Cool J and Union spark this overlong but entertaining film. [R] ▼

Deliver Us From Evil (2006) C-101m.  D: Amy Berg. Potent documentary juxtaposes interviews with Father Oliver O'Grady (a pedophile whom leaders of the Catholic church repeatedly protected) with first-person stories of some of his victims. Timely film forgoes narration; instead, its interviewees paint a tawdry picture of corruption in a church that looked the other way while O'Grady was moved to several different parishes, where he continued committing his immoral acts. Fascinating and expertly made, but difficult to watch. ▽

De-Lovely (2004) C-125m.  D: Irwin Winkler. Kevin Kline, Ashley Judd, Jonathan Pryce, Kevin McNally, Allan Corduner, Sandra Nelson, Keith Allen, James Wilby, John Barrowman, Kevin McKidd, Peter Polycarpou, Richard Dillane. Handsome but awkward biopic of the great songwriter Cole Porter, whose love for his wife didn't preclude him from pursuing homosexual affairs. Using an awkward framing device (his life as a show), film incorporates many songs, sung by performers who are out of their element (Sheryl Crow, Elvis Costello, Alanis Morissette, Robbie Williams, et al.). Kline is much better than the film; the scene in which he teaches Barrowman how to sing "Night and Day" is a highlight. Oddest moment: Kline watching Cary Grant play Porter in NIGHT AND DAY. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Delta Factor, The (1970) C-91m.  D: Tay Garnett. Christopher George, Yvette Mimieux, Diane McBain, Ralph Taeger. OK Mickey Spillane tale about a private eye on a CIA mission to rescue a scientist imprisoned on an island. [PG]

Delta Force (2007) C-90m. *½ D: C. B. Harding. Larry The Cable Guy, Bill Engvall, DJ Qualls, Keith David, Danny Trejo, Marisol Nichols, Christina Moore, Lisa Lampanelli, Lance Smith, Glenn Morshower. Three moronic army reservists, told they are being sent to Iraq, are instead dropped into the Mexican desert, where Larry and his pals Everett and Bill (apparently Moe and Curly were unavailable) go into action against corrupt federales they mistake for Middle Eastern terrorists. Give this mind-numbingly dumb outing points for originality: it's probably the first (and hopefully last) lame-brained comedy to try milking laughs from repeated references to Shiites and Kurds! [PG-13] ▽

Delta Force, The (1986) C-129m. ½ D: Menahem Golan. Chuck Norris, Lee Marvin, Martin Balsam, Joey Bishop, Robert Forster, Lainie Kazan, George Kennedy, Hanna Schygulla, Susan Strasberg, Bo Svenson, Robert Vaughn, Shelley Winters, Assaf Dayan, Kim Delaney. Surprisingly straightforward and straight-faced (considering that cast) account of terrorist plane hijack in the Middle East—until rescue climax when America's special squadron (led by Marvin and Norris) takes on bad guys in comic-book style. Uneven, to say the least, but never boring. Filmed in Israel. Followed by several sequels. [R] ▼

Delta Force 2 (1990) C-110m. *½ D: Aaron Norris. Chuck Norris, John P. Ryan, Paul Perri, Richard Jaekel, Begonia Plaza, Mateo Gomez, Hector Mercado, Billy Drago. Norris leads his Delta Force brigade into Latin America in an effort to snuff out an elusive drug lord. Strictly by-the-numbers. [R] ▼

Delta Fox (1977) C-92m.  D: Beverly and Ferd Sebastian. Richard Lynch, Priscilla Barnes, Stuart Whitman, John Ireland, Richard Jaekel. Unremarkable action-chase opus about a smuggler on the run from Miami to L.A. ▼

Delusion (1990) C-100m.  D: Carl Colpaert. Jim Metzler, Jennifer Rubin, Kyle Secor, Robert Costanzo, Tracey Walter, Jerry Orbach. Tough, taut thriller about a yuppie computer executive-embezzler and his plight after happening upon a Las Vegas showgirl and her killer-for-hire boyfriend (Secor, in an eye-opening performance) on a Death Valley highway. Thoroughly entertaining tale of desperation and isolation, with a point-of-view. Super 35. [R] ▼

Dementia 13 (1963) 81m.  D: Francis Ford Coppola. William Campbell, Luana Anders, Bart Patton, Mary Mitchel, Patrick Magee. Gory horror film, set in Ireland, about a series of axe murders. Coppola's directorial debut—excluding his earlier nudie, TONITE FOR SURE—filmed for about 29¢ for Roger Corman; may be worth a look for curiosity's sake. ▼

Demetrius and the Gladiators (1954) C-101m. ½ D: Delmer Daves. Victor Mature, Susan Hayward, Michael Rennie, Debra Paget, Anne Bancroft, Richard Egan, Ernest Borgnine. Hokey sequel to THE ROBE has Emperor Caligula (Jay Robinson) searching for magic robe of Christ; Mature dallies with royal Hayward. CinemaScope. ▼

Demolition Man (1993) C-115m. ½ D: Marco Brambilla. Sylvester Stallone, Wesley Snipes, Sandra Bullock, Nigel Hawthorne, Benjamin Bratt, Bob Gunton, Glenn Shadix, Denis Leary, Jack Black, Jesse Ventura. Ex-cop Stallone is sprung after 36 years of deep-freeze imprisonment for manslaughter when blond Snipes (his long-ago psycho nemesis) escapes from his own government-imposed hibernation; the joke is that the "San Angeles" of 2032 is a pacifistic society that nixes violence and profanity (and where every restaurant is a Taco Bell). Fast, surprisingly funny, bloodletter is still only marginally brainier than Sly's TANGO & CASH. Panavision. [R] ▼

Demon (1977) C-95m. ½ D: Larry Cohen.

Tony Lo Bianco, Sandy Dennis, Sylvia Sidney, Deborah Raffin, Sam Levene, Richard Lynch, Mike Kellin, Andy Kaufman. Weird, confusing shocker in which New York cop Lo Bianco investigates motiveless killings by ordinary people possessed by Christ-like demon. Some good scenes. Originally titled GOD TOLD ME TO. Demonlover (2002-French) C-115m. ½ D: Olivier Assayas. Connie Nielsen, Charles Berling, Chloë Sevigny, Gina Gershon, Jean-Baptiste Malartre, Dominique Reynaud. Ill-chosen moniker doesn't describe this dot-com thriller about a cold, calculating corporate spy who gets in over her head playing both sides of a business merger involving porno and torture Web sites. Slickly textured suspenser is seriously kinky and morally ambivalent, but its violence and voyeurism lead to an all-too-certain conclusion. Director's cut runs 117m. Original French version runs 128m. Super 35/Super 16. [R] ▼●

Demonoid, Messenger of Death (1981) C-78m. ½ D: Alfred Zacharias. Samantha Eggar, Stuart Whitman, Roy Cameron Jensen, Erika Carlson, Lew Saunders. Eggar and husband, while working Mexican mine, unearth a hand, which possesses him, wreaking terror and havoc. Inspid direction, a rotten script, and shoddy special effects get in the way of any suspense. Aka MACABRA. [R]▼

Demons (1986-Italian) C-89m. ½ D: Lamberto Bava. Urbano Barberini, Natasha Hovey, Paolo Cozza, Karl Zinny, Fiore Argento, Fabiola Toledo, Nicoletta Elmi. A horror film transforms its audience one by one into drooling, fanged "demons" who attack the remaining humans. Extremely gruesome and violent; no characterization, no logic, no plot. Achieved critical fame in some quarters. Director, who shows some visual style, is son of horror maestro Mario Bava. Cowritten and produced by Dario Argento. Followed by several sequels.▼●●

Demons 2 (1987-Italian) C-88m.  D: Lamberto Bava. David Knight, Nancy Brilli, Coralina Cataldi Tassoni, Bobby Rhodes, Asia Argento, Virginia Bryant. Sequel is improvement on first film but highly derivative of NIGHT OF THE LIVING DEAD and THEY CAME FROM WITHIN. Demonic infection spreads among people in modern apartment building; they transform into fanged, clawed monsters and attack others. Like its predecessor, achieved great acclaim among gore fans. [R]▼●●

Demon Seed (1977) C-94m. ½ D: Don-

Intelligent futuristic thriller, provocatively written, stylishly directed, and well acted, especially by Christie, the beauty terrorized by an ultra-sophisticated computer (voice of Robert Vaughn) that's decided to take over the world. As riveting as it is bizarre. Adapted by Robert Jaffe and Roger O. Hiron from the Dean Koontz novel. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Denise Calls Up (1996) C-80m.  D: Hal Salwen. Tim Daly, Caroleen Feeney, Dan Gunther, Dana Wheeler-Nicholson, Liev Schreiber, Aida Turturro, Alanna Ubach, Sylvia Miles. Nina tries to fix up a friend—no easy task—while Denise (Ubach) surprises Gunther with a phone call he never expected to get. Wickedly funny satire about New Yorkers who never seem to be able to get together and only talk on the phone. A one-joke premise, but writer-director Salwen keeps adding clever twists and touches. [PG-13]▼●

Dennis the Menace (1993) C-94m.  D: Nick Castle. Walter Matthau, Mason Gamble, Joan Plowright, Christopher Lloyd, Lea Thompson, Robert Stanton, Paul Winfield, Amy Sakasitz, Arnold Stang, Ben Stein. Unconscionable, jerry-built ripoff of the HOME ALONES from John Hughes, based on Hank Ketcham's comic strip, with the blond rascal's skirmishes with cantankerous neighbor Mr. Wilson (Matthau) a mere warmup to the more Culkin-ian climactic punch-out of a robber/derelict (Lloyd). Fun for under-8's, but still a desperate collection of crotch and fatulence jokes. Followed by two direct-to-video sequels. [PG-13]▼●●

Departed, The (2006) C-151m. ½ D: Martin Scorsese. Leonardo DiCaprio, Matt Damon, Jack Nicholson, Mark Wahlberg, Martin Sheen, Ray Winstone, Vera Farmiga, Anthony Anderson, Alec Baldwin, James Badge Dale, David Patrick O'Hara, Mark Rolston, Kevin Corrigan, Dorothy Lyman. Potent, violent yarn about Irish crime bosses and cops in Boston, and how the lines cross, even over generations. Underworld bigwig Nicholson has raised and nurtured Damon, who's now his mole in the State Police and assigned to capture his mentor. DiCaprio tries to live down his shaky family history by joining the Boston police department, only to be sent undercover—to work with Nicholson. Tension mounts as the

characters' paths intersect. Vibrant performances dominate the proceedings; the film's main fault is overlength. William Monahan's script was inspired by the 2002 Hong Kong police story INFERNAL AFFAIRS. Oscar winner for Best Picture, Director, Adapted Screenplay, and Editing (Thelma Schoonmaker). Super 35. [R]●

Departures (2008-Japanese) C-131m.  D: Yojiro Takita. Masahiro Motoki, Tsutomu Yamazaki, Ryoko Hirose, Kazuko Yoshiyuki, Kimiko Yo, Takashi Sasano. When a Tokyo orchestra is dissolved, cellist Motoki realizes he can't sustain a musical career, so he and his wife return to his hometown. There he answers a cryptic want ad and is hired as apprentice to a man who performs "encoffinments," elaborately and ritualistically preparing dead people to be laid to rest. Offbeat, leisurely paced, and disarmingly funny at times, this likable film becomes highly emotional as loose ends in Motoki's life are tied up and he comes to embrace his unusual profession. Some will find this manipulative; others will succumb and tears will flow. Oscar winner for Best Foreign Language Film.

Derailed (2005) C-110m.  D: Mikael Håfström. Clive Owen, Jennifer Aniston, Vincent Cassel, Melissa George, Giancarlo Esposito, David Morrissey, Georgina Chapman, Tom Conti, Xzibit, RZA. Chicago businessman Owen misses his commuter train and strikes up a conversation with an attractive woman. This leads to a liaison, but that misstep quickly threatens to destroy everything in Owen's life: his family, his bank account, and his sanity. Modern spin on film noir starts well enough but descends into a state of incredulity and downright silliness. Good cast—including hip-hop stars Xzibit and RZA—is wasted here. Unrated version also available. Super 35. [R]●

Deranged (1974) C-82m. ½ D: Jeff Gillen, Alan Ormsby. Roberts Blossom, Cosette Lee, Leslie Carlson, Robert Warner, Marcia Diamond. Blossom's neat performance uplifts this predictable shocker of a mother-obsessed farmer who preserves the old lady's corpse, then kills and stuffs other women to keep her company. This time it's a journey into a cave in the Appalachian Mountains, but there are sparks flying between two of the participants . . . and the cave houses subhuman flesh-eating creatures! Desert Bloom (1986) C-106m. ½ D: Eugene Corr. Jon Voight, JoBeth Williams, Ellen Barkin, Annabeth Gish, Allen Garfield, Jay D. Underwood. Perceptive, exquisitely realized memoir, set in 1951 Nevada—the dawn of the Atomic Age. Heroine is 13-year-old Gish, whose mother (Williams) only sees what she wants to and whose stepfather (solidly acted by Voight) is an embittered, alcoholic WW2 hero reduced to running a gas station. Corr wrote the poignantly precise script from a story by Linda Remy and himself. [PG]▼●●

Desert Fox: The Story of Rommel, The (1951) 88m.  D: Henry Hathaway. James Mason, Cedric Hardwicke, Jessica Tandy, Luther Adler, Everett Sloane, Leo G. Desert Hearts (1985) C-93m. ½ D: Donna Deitch. Helen Shaver, Patricia Charbonneau, Audra Lindley, Andra Akers, Dean Butler, Jeffrey Tambor. Uptight female professor comes to Reno to get a divorce in the 1950s and is pursued by a young woman who forces her to examine her own sexuality. Debut feature for writer-director Deitch (with a contemporary nod to THE WOMEN) has its moments, but characters are sketchily developed and story moves in fits and starts. [R]▼●●

Desert Patrol (1958-British) 78m. ½ D: Guy Green. Richard Attenborough, John Gregson, Michael Craig, Vincent Ball. Staunch account of British patrol attempting to blow up Axis fuel dump before pending WW2 battle of El Alamein. Originally titled SEA OF SAND. ▼

Desert Rats, The (1953) 88m.  D: Robert Wise. Richard Burton, James Mason, Robert Newton, Chips Rafferty. Fine WW2 actioner with Mason convincing as Field Marshal Rommel (repeating his role from THE DESERT FOX); Burton is British commando trying to ward off Germans in North Africa. ▼●

Desert Song, The (1953) C-110m. ½ D: H. Bruce Humberstone. Kathryn Grayson, Gordon MacRae, Steve Cochran, Raymond Massey, William Conrad, Dick Wesson. Songs: "The Riff Song," "One Alone." Previously filmed in 1929 and 1944. ▼

Designated Mourner, The (1997-British) C-94m.  D: David Hare. Miranda Richardson, Mike Nichols, David de Keyser. Endlessly talky dissertation on the death of culture, set in an unnamed country in what could be the immediate future. Nichols marries into the intellectual upper crust of this mysterious society, which has cast off its artists and rendered them virtual prisoners. Shot in three days, the film (adapted by Wallace Shawn from his play) is a series of monologues and probably should have remained a theater piece. Nichols makes a long-awaited film acting debut, but perhaps he should have waited just a little while longer. [R]▼●

Design for Living (1933) 90m.  D: Ernst Lubitsch. Fredric March, Gary Cooper, Miriam Hopkins, Edward Everett Horton, Franklin Pangborn, Isabel Jewell, Jane Darwell. Ben Hecht adapted Noel Coward's stage comedy about artist Cooper and playwright March, best friends and Americans in Paris, and what happens when they both fall in love with Hopkins. Most of the witty innuendos are left intact (even if the pacing isn't quite right). ●●

Design for Scandal (1941) 85m. ½ D: Norman Taurog. Rosalind Russell, Walter Pidgeon, Edward Arnold, Lee Bowman, Jean Rogers, Mary Beth Hughes, Guy Kibbee. Deft performances in comedy of reporter Pidgeon doing sensational story involving prominent female judge Russell.

American car-designer Cooper falls in love with jewel thief Dietrich. Sophisticated romancer set in Spain; Marlene sings "Awake in a Dream." From the scintillating start to the finish, it bears the stylish stamp of its producer, Ernst Lubitsch. ▼

Desire and Hell at Sunset Motel (1992) C-90m. *½ D: Allen Castle. Sheryllyn Fenn, Whip Hubble, David Hewlett, David Johansen, Paul Bartel. A paranoid salesman and his wife stay at a motel in Anaheim, California, on their way to Disneyland, but get involved in blackmail and murder instead. A "comedy noir" set in 1958, this very low-budget effort never quite escapes its stage origins. Fenn does look great, however. [PG-13]▼●●

Desiree (1954) C-110m. ½ D: Henry Koster. Marlon Brando, Jean Simmons, Merle Oberon, Michael Rennie, Cameron Mitchell, Elizabeth Sellars, Cathleen Nesbitt, Richard Deacon, Carolyn Jones. Tepid, elaborate costumer: Brando plays a confused Napoleon, Simmons his seamstress love who marries another man; Oberon is quite lovely as Empress Josephine. Fiction and fact are muddled backdrop for rise and fall of the Emperor; few action scenes. CinemaScope. ▼●

Desire Me (1947) 91m.  D: No director credited. Greer Garson, Robert Mitchum, Richard Hart, George Zucco, Morris Ankrum. Weak melodramatic romance with Garson caught between new love and old husband, presumed dead, who returns to make problems. Familiar story not helped by limp script. Scripted by Phoebe and Henry Ephron, from the stage play by William Marchant. Merrill's film debut. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Despair (1979-West German) C-119m.  D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Dirk Bogarde, Andrea Ferreol, Volker Spengler, Klaus Lowitsch. Playwright Tom Stoppard's adaptation of the Nabokov novel concentrates too many of its wittiest lines in the first third, but the film still has its moments. Bogarde is brilliant as the Russian émigré who runs a German chocolate factory as Nazis start to take power. ▼

Desperado (1995) C-106m.  D: Robert Rodriguez. Antonio Banderas, Joaquim de Almeida, Salma Hayek, Steve Buscemi, Cheech Marin, Quentin Tarantino, Carlos Gomez, Angel Aviles, Danny Trejo, Tito Larriva. A mysterious stranger arrives in a Mexican town, seeking revenge on the local crime boss. Opens with an amusing shaggy-dog sequence featuring Buscemi and Marin and grabs your attention with its hyperkinetic scenes of gunplay, but soon it becomes clear that the film has no story—and no point. Physical attraction of Banderas and leading lady Hayek provides its only pizzazz. This is Rodriguez's reworking of his inventive debut picture, EL MARIACHI. [R] ▼●●

Ludicrous remake of the better-than-ever 1955 nailbiter, prison escapees Rourke et al. taking over the Hopkins-Rogers household. No suspense, at times laughable use of music, with daughter-victim you'll beg to see coldcocked. Cimino's unmotivated, kamikaze disrobings of attorney Lynch have already entered the realm of modern movie folklore. [R] ▼●●

Destination Mars! (2002) 80m.  D: Richard Lowry. Blane Wheatley, Jessica Schroeder, Bobby Harwell, Henry Amitai, Sheila K, Blake Manion, Adrian Marinovich. Irresistible parody of tacky 1950s sci-fi movies—and Ed Wood's PLAN 9 FROM OUTER SPACE in particular—done in low-grade black & white, with dialogue, costumes, and so-called special effects to match. Trouble begins when Martians discover that earthlings have built an Atmos 4X Vaporizer that can wipe out whole planets. Everyone plays it straight, which is why this is such fun to watch. Destiny Turns On the Radio (1995) C-101m. BOMB D: Jack Baran. Dylan McDermott, Nancy Travis, Quentin Tarantino, James Belushi, James LeGros, Janet Carroll, David Cross, Richard Edson, Bobcat Goldthwait, Barry "Shabaka" Henley, Lisa Jane Persky, Sarah Trigger, Tracey Walter, Allen Garfield. Escaped convict goes to Las Vegas to reclaim his girlfriend and a stash of loot he left with his partner at the Marilyn Motel. However, Fate—in the form of a mysterious dude named Destiny—has its own agenda. Pseudo-hip script, utterly bereft of wit, is directed with no energy. A complete waste of time. [R]▼●●

Destroy All Monsters! (1968-Japanese) C-88m. ½ D: Ishiro Honda. Akira Kubo, Jun Tazaki, Yukiko Kobayashi, Yoshio Tsuchiya, Kyoko Ai, Andrew Hughes. More Toho monsters than there are in heaven (including A-listers Godzilla, Mothra, and Rodan) are assembled for this good-natured monster's ball, as they initially threaten to destroy Earth under the control of female aliens, then are redirected by humans to do battle with an obstinate King Ghidorah. Ninth Godzilla movie, originally intended as a grand finale, is an enjoyable romp, with a rousing score by series mainstay Akira Ifukube. More or less remade in 2004 as GODZILLA: FINAL WARS. Tohoscope. [G]▶

Destructors, The (1974-British) C-89m.  D: Robert Parrish. Anthony Quinn, Michael Caine, James Mason, Maureen Kerwin, Marcel Bozzuffi, Maurice Ronet, Alexandra Stewart. Good Paris-located crime melodrama with Quinn a U.S. drug agent out to stop kingpin Mason. An animated Caine is fine as a likable assassin. Original title: THE MARSEILLE CONTRACT. [PG]▼

Destry (1954) C-95m. ½ D: George Marshall. Audie Murphy, Mari Blanchard, Lyle Bettger, Lori Nelson, Thomas Mitchell, Edgar Buchanan, Wallace Ford. Audie is gun-shy sheriff who tames town and dance-hall girl without violence. The 1939 version—DESTRY RIDES AGAIN—is still unsurpassed. Later a TV series.

Destry Rides Again (1939) 94m. * D: George Marshall. James Stewart, Marlene Dietrich, Charles Winninger, Brian Donlevy, Una Merkel, Mischa Auer, Allen Jenkins, Irene Hervey, Jack Carson, Billy Gilbert, Samuel S. Hinds. Slambang, action-filled Western satire, with

Stewart taming rowdy town without violence and tangling with boisterous dance-hall girl Dietrich. Marlene sings "See What the Boys in the Back Room Will Have" in this Max Brand story, filmed before in 1932, then again in 1950 (as FRENCHIE), and in 1954 (as DESTROY). Screenplay by Felix Jackson, Gertrude Purcell, and Henry Myers. Simply wonderful. ▼●●

Detective, The (1954-British) 91m.  D: Robert Hamer. Alec Guinness, Joan Greenwood, Peter Finch, Cecil Parker, Bernard Lee, Sidney James, Ernest Thesiger. Guinness is in rare form as G. K. Chesterton's clerical sleuth after stolen art treasures; another British gem, superbly cast. British title: FATHER BROWN. ▼

Detective, The (1968) C-114m.  D: Gordon Douglas. Frank Sinatra, Lee Remick, Ralph Meeker, Jacqueline Bisset, William Windom, Al Freeman, Tony Munsie, Jack Klugman, Robert Duvall. Trashy script, based on Roderick Thorpe's best-selling novel, pits cops against homosexuals; more than redeemed by fast, no-nonsense direction, good acting, particularly by Sinatra and Freeman. Panavision. ▼●●

Detective (1985-French) C-95m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Claude Brasseur, Nathalie Baye, Johnny Hallyday, Laurent Terzieff, Jean-Pierre Léaud, Alain Cuny, Stephane Ferrara, Julie Delpy. The scenario takes a backseat in this talky, contrived film noir homage about a variety of characters and their business and intrigues in an elegant Paris hotel. The look and feel are uniquely of the director, but it's ultimately annoying, more a concept than a movie. Godard dedicated this to John Cassavetes, Edgar G. Ulmer, and Clint Eastwood! ▼●

Detective Story (1951) 103m. ½ D: William Wyler. Kirk Douglas, Eleanor Parker, Horace McMahon, William Bendix, Lee Grant, Craig Hill, Cathy O'Donnell, Bert Freed, George Macready, Joseph Wiseman, Gladys George, Frank Faylen, Luis van Rooten, Warner Anderson, Michael Strong, Gerald Mohr. Sidney Kingsley's once-forceful play about life at a N.Y.C. police precinct has lost much of its punch, but is still a fine film. Well cast, with Douglas a bitter detective, Parker his ignored wife, and Bendix, in one of his best roles, a sympathetic colleague. McMahon (the shrewd precinct head), Wiseman (an hysterical thief), Grant (unforgettable as a frightened shoplifter), and Strong (another thief) re-create their Broadway roles. This was Grant's first film—and also her last—before being blacklisted. Screenplay by Philip Yordan and Robert Wyler (the director's brother). ●

sorbing brinkmanship thriller in the vein of FAIL-SAFE, with Pollak (admittedly, an unlikely choice for President of the U.S.) stranded in a Colorado diner during a snowstorm, having to make a tough decision about firing a nuclear weapon, and involving the civilians who happen to be there in the mounting drama. Contrived but exciting; feature writing-directing debut for film critic Lurie. [R] ▼●

Detour (1945) 69m.  D: Edgar G. Ulmer. Tom Neal, Ann Savage, Claudia Drake, Edmund MacDonald, Tim Ryan, Esther Howard. Now-legendary B movie, filmed in less than a week, is the quintessence of film noir. Neal is a hitchhiking drifter who has the misfortune to become involved with a formidable femme fatale (Savage, in an unforgettable performance). Ulmer makes the most of his meager budget. Written by Martin Goldsmith. Remade in 1992 with Tom Neal, Jr. ▼●●

Detroit Heat SEE: Detroit 9000

Detroit 9000 (1973) C-106m. *½ D: Arthur Marks. Alex Rocco, Hari Rhodes, Vonetta McGee, Ella Edwards, Scatman Crothers. Cops pursue jewel thieves. Bloody blaxploitation entry with an integrated cast. Aka DETROIT HEAT. [R] ▼●●

Detroit Rock City (1999) C-94m. ½ D: Adam Rifkin. Edward Furlong, Giuseppe Andrews, James De Bello, Sam Huntington, Lin Shaye, Natasha Lyonne, Shannon Tweed, Joe Flaherty, KISS. Ultra-dopey teen flick about four teenagers trying to scam tickets for a KISS concert, circa 1978. Lots of crude physical comedy and head-banging metal anthems, but that's the point. Plays like a cross between I WANNA HOLD YOUR HAND and an episode of That '70s Show. Shaye's a hoot as a bewigged mom on a crusade to stop rock 'n' roll. The original tongue-wagging glam rockers appear only briefly at the end. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Deuce Bigalow European Gigolo (2005) C-83m. BOMB D: Mike Mitchell. Rob Schneider, Eddie Griffin, Jeroen Krabbé, Til Schweiger, Douglas Sills, Carlos Ponce, Charles Keating, Hanna Verboom. Ads for this woefully unfunny sequel show Schneider sitting under a phallic Leaning Tower of Pisa that appears to be protruding from his groin area. This would have been the film's best joke—except it's not in the film; nor is any other form of humor. Deuce is sent to Holland to train as a high-end Euro man whore. When he discovers some of his fellow gigolos are being killed, he jumps undercover(s). Can we possibly prevent another sequel? Famous faces appear in cameos, if that matters to you. [R] ▼●

Deuce Bigalow Male Gigolo (1999) C-88m. ½ D: Mike Mitchell. Rob Schneider, William Forsythe, Eddie Griffin, Arija Bareikis, Oded Fehr, Gail O'Grady, Richard Riehle, Jacqueline Obradors, Big Boy.

Professional fish-tank cleaner breaks an expensive tank, and in order to pay for it becomes a gigolo. (Why not?) Potty humor and outlandish situations abound, but Schneider's character is surprisingly likable in this silly comedy. Followed by a sequel. [R]▼

Deuces Wild (2002) C-97m. *½ D: Scott Kalvert, Stephen Dorff, Brad Renfro, Fairuza Balk, Norman Reedus, Frankie Muniz, Matt Dillon, Balthazar Getty, Max Perlich, Deborah Harry, Drea DeMatteo, Vincent Pastore, James Franco, Johnny Knoxville, Louis Lombardi. Empty-headed, clichéd dud, a WEST SIDE STORY wannabe set in Sunset Park, Brooklyn, in the late 1950s. The Deuces are a good-guy gang and the Vipers are a bad-guy gang; temperatures rise upon the release from prison of the Viper punk (Reedus) who sold a deadly dose of heroin to the brother of Deuces Dorff and Renfro. An interesting cast is wasted. Panavision. [R]▼

Devil, The SEE: To Bed ... or Not to Bed

Devil and Daniel Webster, The (1941) 85m. ½ D: William Dieterle. Edward Arnold, Walter Huston, James Craig, Anne Shirley, Jane Darwell, Simone Simon, Gene Lockhart, John Qualen, H. B. Warner. Stephen Vincent Benet's story is a visual delight, with Huston's sparkling performance as Mr. Scratch (the Devil) matched by Arnold as the loquacious Webster. Oscar-winning score by Bernard Herrmann, cinematography by Joseph August, and special effects by Vernon L. Walker all superb. Screenplay by the author and Dan Totheroh. Cut for reissue in 1952; restored to 107m. for home video, adding interesting material missing from other extant prints. Aka ALL THAT MONEY CAN BUY and DANIEL AND THE DEVIL. ▼●●

Devil and Max Devlin, The (1981) C-96m.  D: Steven Hilliard Stern. Elliott Gould, Bill Cosby, Susan Anspach, Adam Rich, Julie Budd, David Knell. Gould returns to life to recruit three innocent souls for devil Cosby. Undistinguished Disney fare. [PG]▼

Devil and Miss Jones, The (1941) 92m. ½ D: Sam Wood. Jean Arthur, Robert Cummings, Charles Coburn, Spring Byington, Edmund Gwenn, S.Z. Sakall, William Demarest. Delightful social comedy by Norman Krasna; millionaire Coburn masquerades as clerk in his own department store to investigate employee complaints. A must. ▼

Devil at 4 O'Clock, The (1961) C-126m. ½ D: Mervyn LeRoy. Spencer Tracy, Frank Sinatra, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Kerwin Mathews, Barbara Luna. Static production, not saved by volcanic eruption climax, involving priest Tracy helping to evacuate children's hospital in midst of lava flow. Stars are lost in weak film. ▼●●

Devil Bat, The (1941) 69m.  D: Jean Yarbrough. Bela Lugosi, Suzanne Kaaren, Dave O'Brien, Guy Usher, Yolande Mallott (Donlan), Donald Kerr. Lugosi raises bats and trains them to suck victims' blood on cue. One of Lugosi's more notorious pictures, and fairly entertaining. Aka KILLER BATS. Reworked as THE FLYING SERPENT. Sequel: DEVIL BAT'S DAUGHTER. ▼●●

Devil Bat's Daughter (1946) 66m.  D: Frank Wisbar. Rosemary La Planche, Molly Lamont, John James, Ed Cassidy. In this sequel to THE DEVIL BAT, La Planche is thought to have inherited the murderous tendencies of her late father, but in a bizarre turn of events, Dad turns out to have been a kindly researcher (contradicting the first film entirely!). ▼

Devil Commands, The (1941) 65m. ½ D: Edward Dmytryk. Boris Karloff, Amanda Duff, Richard Fiske, Anne Revere, Ralph Penny, Dorothy Adams, Kenneth MacDonald. Improbable but intriguing chiller of scientist Karloff obsessed with idea of communicating with dead wife. Predictable but fun. Only debit: the absurd narration. ●

Devil Dogs of the Air (1935) 86m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Margaret Lindsay, Frank McHugh. Tiresome potboiler with Marine Air Corps rivalry between Cagney and O'Brien. Their personalities, and good stunt-flying scenes, are only saving grace. ▼

Devil-Doll, The (1936) 79m.  D: Tod Browning. Lionel Barrymore, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Lawton, Robert Greig, Lucy Beaumont, Henry B. Walthall, Grace Ford, Rafaela Ottiano. Very entertaining yarn of Devil's Island escapee Barrymore shrinking humans to doll size to carry out nefarious schemes. Coscripted by Erich von Stroheim. ▼●●

Devil Doll (1964-British) 80m.  D: Lindsay Shonteff. Bryant Holiday, William Sylvester, Yvonne Romain, Philip Ray. Obscure, underrated mystery features an eerily effective Holiday as a hypnotist-ventriquist trying to transfer Romain's soul into that of a dummy, as he had already done with his onetime assistant. An exquisitely tailored, sharply edited sleeper. ▼

Devil in a Blue Dress (1995) C-102m. ½ D: Carl Franklin. Denzel Washington, Tom Sizemore, Jennifer Beals, Don Cheadle, Maury Chaykin, Terry Kinney, Mel Winkler, Albert Hall, Lisa Nicole Carson, Jernard Burks, Barry Shabaka Henley. It's L.A., 1948; Washington is unemployed and thus easy prey for a hood who needs a favor done. All he has to do is find an elusive white woman, the former fiancée of a mayoral candidate. Oozing with atmosphere and period detail, but the look and feel overwhelm the convoluted (and not always compelling) story. Washington is terrific in a tailor-made part as Easy Rawlins; adapted from Walter Mosley's novel. Black point of view is the film's strong suit, making it unique in the film noir genre. [R] ▼●●

Devil in Love, The (1966-Italian) 97m. *½ D: Ettore Scola. Vittorio Gassman, Mickey Rooney, Claudine Auger, Ettore Manni, Annabella Incontrera. Gassman comes up from Hell during the French Renaissance to botch up an impending peace between Rome and Florence, but loses his powers when he falls for Auger. Comedy is both heavy-handed and unfunny.

Devil in the Flesh (1946-French) 110m. ½ D: Claude Autant-Lara. Gérard Philipe, Micheline Presle, Denise Grey, Jacques Tati. Exquisitely filmed, compassionate story of WW1 love affair between married woman and sensitive high school student. Controversial in its day because of sensual love scenes and cuckolding of soldier husband. Remade in 1986. ▼

Devil in the Flesh (1986-Italian-French) C-110m.  D: Marco Bellocchio. Maruschka Detmers, Federico Pitzalis, Anita Laurenzi, Riccardo De Torrebruna. Director Bellocchio remakes and updates the 1946 French classic as another of his studies of madness. Dutch actress Detmers burns up the screen as the going-nutty beauty torn between her terrorist boyfriend (De Torrebruna) and a handsome young boy (Pitzalis). Reportedly the first mainstream film in which a respected actress was involved in an explicitly pornographic sex scene. Available in both R- and X-rated versions. ▼●●

Devil in the House of Exorcism SEE: Lisa and the Devil

Devil Is a Sissy, The (1936) 92m. ½ D: W. S. Van Dyke. Freddie Bartholomew, Mickey Rooney, Jackie Cooper, Ian Hunter, Peggy Conklin, Katherine Alexander. Three top juvenile stars outclass their material in this rambling, episodic tale of tenement-district pals and British newcomer (Bartholomew) who tries to join their gang. ●

Devil Is a Woman, The (1935) 83m.  D: Josef von Sternberg. Marlene Dietrich, Lionel Atwill, Cesar Romero, Edward Everett Horton, Alison Skipworth. Sumptuous-looking film about alluring but heartless woman and the men who all but ruin their lives for her, set against backdrop of 19th-century Spanish revolution. Hypnotic, if dramatically shaky; Luis Buñuel used same source material for THAT OBSCURE OBJECT OF DESIRE. ▼●

Devil Is a Woman, The (1975-Italian) C-105m. BOMB D: Damiano Damiani. Glenda Jackson, Adolfo Celi, Lisa Harrow, Claudio Cassinelli, Arnoldo Foà, Francisco Rabal. Ponderous, superficial melodrama: Jackson, the head of a religious hostel, casts spells over its "permanent residents." The convent is more like a psycho ward than a place for religious meditation. Indifferently acted, technically atrocious. Widescreen. [R] ▼

Devil Makes Three, The (1952) 96m.  D: Andrew Marton. Gene Kelly, Pier Angeli, Richard Egan, Claus Clausen. Kelly (none too convincing in one of his rare non-musicals) plays a soldier returning to Munich to thank family who helped him during WW2; he becomes involved with daughter Angeli and black market gangs.

Devils, The (1971-British) C-109m. ½ D: Ken Russell. Oliver Reed, Vanessa Redgrave, Dudley Sutton, Max Adrian, Gemma Jones, Murray Melvin, Michael Gothard. Fine performances save confused mixture of history, comedy, and surrealism in wide-eyed adaptation of Whiting play and Huxley book dealing with witchcraft and politics in 17th-century France. A mad movie, with fiery finale not for the squeamish. Original British version is 12 minutes longer. Panavision. [R—edited from original X version] ▼

Devil's Advocate, The (1997) C-144m.  D: Taylor Hackford. Al Pacino, Keanu Reeves, Charlize Theron, Jeffrey Jones, Judith Ivey, Connie Nielsen, Craig T. Nelson, Tamara Tunie, Debra Monk, Heather Matarazzo. Wild, over-the-top movie about a young hotshot lawyer from Florida who's recruited to join a sleek N.Y.C. firm run by a charming megalomaniac (Pacino) who earmarks the newcomer for Big Things. But there are devilish hints that all is not right. Reeves is completely believable, and Pacino gives a delicious, pull-out-the-stops performance as his manipulative mentor. The film goes on too long, but it's spiked with arresting scenes and fine performances. Great showcase, too, for Theron as Reeves' impressionable wife. Delroy Lindo appears unbilled. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Devil's Angels (1967) C-84m. *½ D: Daniel Haller. John Cassavetes, Beverly Adams, Mimsy Farmer, Leo Gordon. Killer cyclists head for outlaw sanctuary breaking everything in their way. Lurid and cheap. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Devil's Backbone, The (2001-Spanish-Mexican) C-106m. ½ D: Guillermo del Toro. Eduardo Noriega, Marisa Paredes, Federico Luppi, Iñigo Garcés, Fernando Tielve, Irene Visedo, Berta Ojea. A remote outpost serves as a school and shelter for displaced boys in the midst of the Spanish Civil War . . . and harbors the ghost of one youngster whose spirit cannot rest. A fascinating ghost story with multiple layers, strikingly shot and designed. Cowritten by the director, Antonio Trashorras, and David Muñoz. [R] ▼●

Devil's Bride, The (1968-British) C-95m.  D: Terence Fisher. Christopher Lee,

Charles Gray, Nike Arrighi, Patrick Mower, Sarah Lawson, Paul Eddington. Taut filming of Dennis Wheatley novel. Duc de Richleau (Lee) assists young friend under spell of Mocate, ultra-evil Satanist. Watch out for that climax! British title: THE DEVIL RIDES OUT. [G] ▼●●

Devil's Brigade, The (1968) C-130m.  D: Andrew V. McLaglen. William Holden, Cliff Robertson, Vince Edwards, Michael Rennie, Dana Andrews, Carroll O'Connor, Gretchen Wyler, Andrew Prine, Claude Akins, Richard Jaeckel, Paul Hornung, Patric Knowles, James Craig, Richard Dawson. Standard WW2 fare about reckless recruits fashioned into creditable fighting unit; goes on far too long. Holden is wasted. Panavision. ▼●●

Devil's Brother, The (1933) 88m.  D: Hal Roach, Charles R. Rogers. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Dennis King, Thelma Todd, James Finlayson, Henry Armetta. Stan and Ollie are at their best in this lively adaptation of a 19th-century comic opera, with King as a notorious bandit and our heroes as would-be robbers who become his helpmates. Reissued as BOGUS BANDITS. Originally titled FRA DIAVOLO. ▼●●

Devil's Disciple, The (1959-British) 82m. ½ D: Guy Hamilton. Burt Lancaster, Kirk Douglas, Laurence Olivier, Janette Scott, Eva LeGallienne, Harry Andrews, Basil Sydney, George Rose, Neil McCallum, David Horne, Mervyn Johns. Sparkling adaptation of George Bernard Shaw's satire, set during American Revolution, with standout performances by star trio (notably Olivier as General Burgoyne, who serves as Shaw's mouthpiece). Shows how, in Shaw's view, the bumbling British managed to lose their colonies. Screenplay by John Dighton and Roland Kibbee. ▼

Devil's Doorway (1950) 84m.  D: Anthony Mann. Robert Taylor, Louis Calhern, Paula Raymond, Marshall Thompson, Edgar Buchanan. Well-turned Western with offbeat casting of Taylor as Indian who served in Civil War, returning home to find that he must fight to right the injustices done against his people.

Devil's Eye, The (1960-Swedish) 90m.  D: Ingmar Bergman. Jarl Kulle, Bibi Andersson, Nils Poppe, Sture Lagerwall. A woman's chastity gives the Devil sty in his eye, so he sends Don Juan back to Earth from Hell to seduce her, but the modern-day woman finds his old-fashioned charm amusing rather than irresistible. Droll Bergman comedy is a bit slow, but witty and playful. ▼

Devil's Hairpin, The (1957) C-82m. ½ D: Cornel Wilde. Cornel Wilde, Jean Wallace, Mary Astor, Arthur Franz. Wilde is reckless sports car champion who learns fair play on the track; obligatory racing scenes are above average. VistaVision.

Devil-Ship Pirates (1964-British) C-89m. ½ D: Don Sharp, Christopher Lee, Andrew Keir, Michael Ripper, John Cairney. Good little movie of stray Spanish ships conquering English countryside, unaware Armada has been defeated. Megascope. ●

Devil's Impostor, The SEE: Pope Joan Devil's Island (1940) 62m. ½ D: William Clemens. Boris Karloff, Nedda Harrigan, James Stephenson, Adia Kuznetzoff, Will Stanton, Edward Keane. Above-average Karloff vehicle of innocent doctor exiled to Devil's Island, mistreated by supervisor Stephenson.

Devil's Men, The SEE: Land of the Minotaur

Devil's Messenger (1962-U.S.-Swedish) 72m. *½ D: Curt Siodmak. Lon Chaney (Jr.), Karen Kadler, John Crawford, Michael Hinn. Sultry girl is sent to earth to help Satan carry out master plan that will envelop the world; hazy plot, poor production values. Originally three episodes of unsold TV series 13 Demon Street. ▼●

Devil's Own, The (1966-British) C-90m.  D: Cyril Frankel. Joan Fontaine, Kay Walsh, Alec McCowen, Ann Bell, Ingrid Brett, Gwen Ffrangcon-Davies. Good Hammer chiller with Fontaine as headmistress of private school who learns that a student is to be sacrificed by a local voodoo cult. British title: THE WITCHES. ▼●●

Devil's Own, The (1997) C-110m. ½ D: Alan J. Pakula. Harrison Ford, Brad Pitt, Margaret Colin, Ruben Blades, Treat Williams, George Hearn, Mitchell Ryan, Natasha McElhone, Simon Jones, Julia Stiles. Young Irish terrorist comes to N.Y.C. to broker an arms deal, and gets room and board from a straight-arrow cop who has no idea who he is. Watchable film has two charismatic stars playing deeply committed characters; their separate stories build in intensity, but when their lives finally intersect the story peters out. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Devil's Playground, The (1976-Australian) C-107m.  D: Fred Schepisi. Arthur Dignam, Nick Tate, Simon Burke, Charles McCallum, John Frawley, Jonathan Hardy, Gerry Duggan. Young boys reaching puberty act out sexually while boarded at Roman Catholic school; meanwhile, their teachers have problems of their own. Pointed and well made, if a bit predictable. ▼●

Devil's Rain, The (1975) C-85m. ½ D: Robert Fuest. Ernest Borgnine, Ida Lupino, William Shatner, Tom Skerritt, Eddie Albert, Keenan Wynn, Joan Prather. Offbeat approach to story of Satanists provides some effective horror and also some unintentional humor. Most of the cast melts in a memorable finale. John Travolta makes his debut in a bit part. Todd-AO 35. [PG] ▼●●

Devil's Rejects, The (2005) C-101m. ½ D: Rob Zombie. Sid Haig, Bill Moseley, Sheri Moon Zombie, Ken Foree, William Forsythe, Geoffrey Lewis, Danny Trejo, Leslie Easterbrook, Priscilla Barnes. The three killers from Zombie's previous effort, HOUSE OF 1000 CORPSES, go on a violent road trip and find themselves stalked by a sheriff who shares their sadistic tendencies. Gripping horror film captures the mood and aesthetics of late '60s/early '70s exploitation films, but be warned: it's relentlessly violent, horrifying, and depressing. Filled with B-movie celebrity cameos and retro counterculture themes. Also available in unrated version. [R] ▼

Devil's Wanton, The (1949-Swedish) 72m. ½ D: Ingmar Bergman. Doris Svedlund, Birger Malmsten, Eva Henning, Hasse Ekman. Sober account of desperate girl finding romance with another equally unhappy soul, reaffirming their faith in humanity. Not released in U.S. until 1962. ▼

Devil's Widow, The SEE: Ballad of Tam Lin, The

Devil Wears Prada, The (2006) C-109m.  D: David Frankel. Meryl Streep, Anne Hathaway, Stanley Tucci, Simon Baker, Emily Blunt, Adrian Grenier, David Marshall Grant, James Naughton, Tracie Thoms, Rebecca Mader, Gisele Bündchen. Slick adaptation of Lauren Weisberger's bestselling roman à clef about working as personal assistant to the fashion magazine editor from hell. Streep dominates the proceedings with a wonderfully nuanced performance, never veering toward caricature; Hathaway is just right as the naïve college grad who gets a crash course in office politics and survival at the risk of losing her devoted boyfriend. Nice work, too, from Tucci (as one of Streep's loyal editors) and Blunt (as her long-suffering first assistant). Several fashionistas appear as themselves. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Devil Within Her, The (1975-British) C-90m. *½ D: Peter Sasdy. Joan Collins, Eileen Atkins, Donald Pleasence, Ralph Bates, Caroline Munro, Hilary Mason, John Steiner. Collins' newborn baby is possessed. Another idiotic ROSEMARY'S BABY/EXORCIST rip-off. Aka I DON'T WANT TO BE BORN. [R] ▼

Devonsville Terror, The (1983) C-82m.  D: Ulli Lommel. Suzanna Love, Robert Walker, Donald Pleasence, Paul Wilson. Love (wife of German director Lommel) is the new teacher in the town of Devonsville, a burg haunted by a witch's curse from 300 years ago. Copycat horror film steals its climax directly from RAIDERS OF THE LOST ARK. ▼

Devotion (1946) 107m. ½ D: Curtis Bernhardt. Olivia de Havilland, Ida Lupino, Paul Henreid, Sydney Greenstreet, Nancy

Coleman, Arthur Kennedy, Dame May Whitty. Powerful real-life story of Brontë sisters becomes routine love triangle with Henreid in the middle; worthwhile for intense, dramatic performances. Made in 1943.

D. I., The (1957) 106m. ½ D: Jack Webb. Jack Webb, Don Dubbins, Lin McCarthy, Jackie Loughery, Monica Lewis, Virginia Gregg, Barbara Pepper. Ostensibly realistic account of Marine basic training is today a wonderful exercise in high camp. Webb is emotionally empty sergeant trying to whip his raw recruits (most of them played by actual soldiers) into shape; stubborn Dubbins is the chief thorn in his side. Sequence where soldiers search for a "murdered" sand flea is priceless. Story reused 13 years later (but with a different outcome) for a TVM, TRIBES. ▼

Diabolique (1955-French) 114m. ½ D: Henri-Georges Clouzot. Simone Signoret, Vera Clouzot, Paul Meurisse, Charles Vanel, Michel Serrault. Tyrannical schoolmaster (Meurisse) is bumped off by his long-suffering wife (Clouzot) and mistress (Signoret). Classic chiller builds slowly, surely to final quarter hour that will drive you right up the wall. A must. Older American prints run 107m. Aka LES DIABOLIQUES; remade for U.S. TV as REFLECTIONS OF MURDER (1974) and HOUSE OF SECRETS (1993), and for theaters in 1996. Rereleased theatrically in 1994 with 9m. of footage edited out of original U.S. theatrical version. ▼ ●

Diabolique (1996) C-107m. *½ D: Jeremiah Chechik. Sharon Stone, Isabelle Adjani, Chazz Palminteri, Kathy Bates, Spalding Gray, Shirley Knight, Allen Garfield, Adam Hann-Byrd, Clea Lewis. Top-notch cast founders in this amazingly monotonous (not to mention crude and embarrassing) redo of the 1955 classic, with Palminteri cast as the unmerciful schoolmaster, Stone his icy, murderous mistress, and Adjani his more reserved wife. This dreary film thoroughly trashes the memory of the original—and even the made-for-TV remakes! [R] ▼ ●

Diagnosis: Murder (1975-British) C-95m.

 D: Sidney Hayers. Christopher Lee, Judy Geeson, Jon Finch, Tony Beckley, Dilys Hamlett, Jane Marrow. Psychiatrist is drawn into bizarre sequence of events when his wife disappears and he is accused of murdering her. Solid little suspenser.

Dial M for Murder (1954) C-105m.  D: Alfred Hitchcock. Ray Milland, Grace Kelly, Robert Cummings, John Williams, Anthony Dawson. Frederick Knott's suspense play of man plotting wife's murder and subsequent police investigation: stagey at times but slick and entertaining. Filmed in 3-D. Remade for TV in 1981 with Angie

Dickinson and Christopher Plummer, and in 1998 as A PERFECT MURDER. ▼●●

Diamond Horseshoe (1945) C-104m. ½ D: George Seaton. Betty Grable, Dick Haymes, Phil Silvers, William Gaxton, Beatrice Kay, Carmen Cavallaro, Margaret Dumont. Musical performer Grable has to choose between a long-cherished dream of luxury and life with struggling med student-cum-singer Haymes. Colorful escapism, with good Harry Warren-Mack Gordon songs: "The More I See You," "I Wish I Knew." Original title: BILLY ROSE'S DIAMOND HORSESHOE.

Diamond Hunters SEE: Death in the Garden

Diamond Jim (1935) 93m.  D: A. Edward Sutherland. Edward Arnold, Jean Arthur, Binnie Barnes, Cesar Romero, Eric Blore. Big-budget biography of eccentric millionaire of 19th century whose appetite for money is only matched by love of food and Lillian Russell; Arthur has dual role in re-creation of Gay '90s era. Most entertaining. Screenplay by Preston Sturges.

Diamond Lust SEE: Kingfisher Capers, The

Diamond Men (2001) C-100m.  D: Daniel M. Cohen. Robert Forster, Donnie Wahlberg, Jasmine Guy, Bess Armstrong, George Coe, Kristen Minter. A veteran diamond salesman, about to be put out to pasture, agrees to break in a "new guy" on his route in Pennsylvania. As the older man imparts his wisdom, the younger man tries to help his widowed mentor open himself up to female companionship. A small but irresistibly likable film, anchored by Forster's solid performance, which even makes an off-kilter denouement palatable. Written by the director. ▼●

Diamonds (1975-Israeli) C-101m.  D: Menahem Golan. Robert Shaw, Richard Roundtree, Shelley Winters, Barbara (Hershey) Seagull, Shai K. Ophir. OK heist movie with Shaw in dual role, as diamond merchant who masterminds break-in at Tel Aviv diamond vault and twin brother who designed the security system there. Good location work in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem. [PG] ▼●

Diamonds (1999) C-91m.  D: John Asher. Kirk Douglas, Dan Aykroyd, Corbin Allred, Lauren Bacall, Kurt Fuller, Jenny McCarthy, Mariah O'Brien, John Landis. An elderly ex-boxer goes on a trip with his alienated son and loving grandson that winds up in Reno, where he searches for diamonds he stashed away decades ago. A tailor-made vehicle for Douglas makes excellent use of his macho image, his movie past (through clips from CHAMPION showing him in the ring), and even his real-life stroke in telling its likable, sentimental story. [PG-13] ▼●

Diamonds Are Forever (1971-British) C-119m. ½ D: Guy Hamilton. Sean Connery, Jill St. John, Charles Gray, Lana Wood, Jimmy Dean, Bruce Cabot, Bruce Glover, Putter Smith, Bernard Lee, Lois Maxwell, Desmond Llewelyn, Leonard Barr, Laurence Naismith, Marc Lawrence. After a one-picture hiatus, Connery returned as James Bond in this colorful comic-book adventure set in Las Vegas; closer in spirit to Republic serials than Ian Fleming, but great fun. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Diamonds for Breakfast (1968-British) C-102m.  D: Christopher Morahan. Marcello Mastroianni, Rita Tushingham, Warren Mitchell, Elaine Taylor, Francisca Tu, Maggie Blye. Son of Russian nobleman tries to steal royal diamonds his father gambled away on the night of his birth. Offbeat comedy caper with fantasy elements just doesn't work, relies heavily on Mastroianni charm. [M/PG]

Diamond Skulls SEE: Dark Obsession

Diamonds of the Night (1964-Czech) 71m. ½ D: Jan Nemeč. Ladislav Jansky, Antonin Kumera, Ilse Bischofova. Nemeč's first feature is a landmark of the ill-fated Czech "New Wave": a haunting, startlingly directed chronicle of two Jewish boys' experiences after escaping from a train heading for a Nazi death camp during WW2. Scripted by Nemeč and Arnost Lustig (based on the latter's story). ▼

Diane (1956) C-110m. ½ D: David Miller. Lana Turner, Pedro Armendariz, Roger Moore, Marisa Pavan, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Henry Daniell. Although predictable, medieval romance has good cast, gorgeous sets and costumes, and comes off surprisingly well. Lana looks lovely, and Miklos Rozsa's score helps set the mood. CinemaScope. ▼●

Diary of a Chambermaid (1946) 87m.  D: Jean Renoir. Paulette Goddard, Hurd Hatfield, Francis Lederer, Burgess Meredith, Judith Anderson, Irene Ryan, Florence Bates, Reginald Owen. Uneasy attempt at Continental-style romantic melodrama, with blonde Goddard as outspoken maid who arouses all sorts of emotions in her snooty household. Tries hard, but never really sure of what it wants to be. Meredith as nutsy neighbor and Ryan as timid scullery maid do their best; Meredith also coproduced and wrote the screenplay. Remade in 1964. ▼

Diary of a Chambermaid (1964-French) 87m. ½ D: Luis Buñuel. Jeanne Moreau, Michel Piccoli, Georges Geret, Francoise Lugagne, Daniel Ivernel, Jean Ozenne. Remake of Jean Renoir's 1946 film concerns fascism in France in 1939 and how the bourgeoisie are viewed by maid Moreau. Sharp, unrelenting film from one of the great directors. Franscope. ▼●●

Diary of a Country Priest (1950-French) 120m. ½ D: Robert Bresson. Claude Laydu, Nicole Ladmiral, Jean Riveyre, Nicole Maurey, Andre Guibert, Martine Lemaire. The life and death of an unhappy young priest attempting to minister to his first parish in rural France. Slow moving but rewarding, with brilliantly stylized direction. Bresson also scripted. ▼●●

Diary of a Hitman (1992) C-91m.  D: Roy London. Forest Whitaker, John Bedford-Lloyd, James Belushi, Lois Chiles, Sharon Stone, Sherilyn Fenn, Seymour Cassel, Lewis Smith. Assassin-for-hire Whitaker plans to retire after one last job, but his intended victim (Fenn) tries to convince him to spare her. Riveting little thriller is well directed and extremely well acted by all (with kudos to Whitaker and especially Fenn). Scripted by Kenneth Pressman, based on his play Insider's Price. [R] ▼●●

Diary of a Lost Girl (1929-German) 104m. ½ D: G. W. Pabst. Louise Brooks, Fritz Rasp, Josef Ravensky, Sybille Schmitz, Valeska Gert. Pabst and Brooks' followup to their PANDORA'S BOX is even more sordid, yet in some ways more intriguing: Louise is, in succession, raped, gives birth, is put in a detention home, then a brothel, inherits money, marries, is widowed . . . and writer Rudolf Leonhardt claims only the first half of his script was filmed. Fascinating nonetheless, with an explicitness that's still surprising. ▼●●

Diary of a Mad Black Woman (2005) C-116m. *½ D: Darren Grant. Kimberly Elise, Steve Harris, Tyler Perry, Cicely Tyson, Shemar Moore, Tamara Taylor. Dumped by a hotshot lawyer husband with ties to unsavory characters, Elise reinvents herself by returning to her much humbler family, taking a modest job, and dating a romantically sincere hunk. If you've ever wondered what it would be like to have The Three Stooges show up in an otherwise straight production of A Streetcar Named Desire, this is probably the closest approximation. Perry, who wrote the play on which this is based, plays three characters, including a drag grandma named Madea, who's as broad as any of the Klumps in Eddie Murphy's NUTTY PROFESSOR movies. Elise strives mightily to keep her head above the water with an impassioned performance, but here comes the tide. Followed by MA-DEA'S FAMILY REUNION. [PG-13] ▼●

Diary of a Mad Housewife (1970) C-103m. ½ D: Frank Perry. Richard Benjamin, Frank Langella, Carrie Snodgrass, Lorraine Cullen, Frannie Michel, Katherine

Meskill. Interesting but pointless story of harried N.Y.C. wife finding much needed release via affair with self-centered Langella. Asinine husband Benjamin would drive anyone mad. Peter Boyle has prominent bit in final scene. Script by Eleanor Perry from Sue Kaufman's novel. [R] ▼

Diary of a Madman (1963) C-96m. ½ D: Reginald Le Borg. Vincent Price, Nancy Kovack, Chris Warfield, Ian Wolfe, Nelson Olmstead. 19th-century magistrate Price is possessed by an evil spirit called the Horla, which compels him to murder. Colorful but routine. Based on a story by Guy de Maupassant. ▼●●

Diary of Anne Frank, The (1959) 170m. ½ D: George Stevens. Millie Perkins, Joseph Schildkraut, Shelley Winters, Richard Beymer, Lou Jacobi, Diane Baker, Ed Wynn. Meticulously produced version of Broadway drama dealing with Jewish refugees hiding in WW2 Amsterdam. Unfortunately, Perkins never captures pivotal charm of title character, though Schildkraut is fine as father Frank. Winters won Supporting Actress Oscar as shrill Mrs. Van Daan, ever fearful of Nazi arrest, and the cinematography (William C. Mellor) and art direction-set decoration also earned Academy Awards. Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett utilized Anne's diary for their stage play and its screen adaptation. Later cut to 156m. Remade several times. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Diary of the Dead (2008) C-95m.  D: George A. Romero. Joshua Close, Scott Wentworth, Michelle Morgan, Joe Dinicol, Shawn Roberts, Amy Lalonde, Philip Riccio, Megan Park. When the dead revive and attack the living, a group of Pennsylvania college students try to flee to safety in a Winnebago, making a documentary as they go; this movie is supposedly that film. The scale of Romero's newest "living dead" outing is smaller than most of them. Unfortunately, pacing is erratic (at times boringly slow), and the characters are a mixed bag, including a highly unlikely college professor. Fans will embrace this; others beware. Listen for voice cameos by noted horror writers and actors. Aka GEORGE A. ROMERO'S DIARY OF THE DEAD. [R] ●

Dice Rules (1991) C-87m. ½ D: Jay Dubin. Andrew Dice Clay. Film opens with a series of curious and mostly embarrassing blackout skits with Clay imitating Jerry Lewis! Finally it moves on to the standup comic's sold-out Madison Square Garden concert, in which his audience communication is total, and his sex-oriented material is predictably crude, embarrassing, outrageous—and often very funny. [NC-17] ▼●●

Dick (1999) C-95m.  D: Andrew Fleming. Kirsten Dunst, Michelle Williams, Dan Hedaya, Dave Foley, Saul Rubinek, Harry

Shearer, Jim Breuer, Will Ferrell, Teri Garr, Bruce McCulloch, Ted McGinley, G.D. Spradlin, Ana Gasteyer, Ryan Reynolds. Clever cross of CLUELESS and ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN has two likable teenage airheads (delightfully played by Dunst and Williams) stumbling into all the key players in the Watergate scandal—up to and including President Richard Nixon himself (Hedaya)—but never having an inkling of what is going on. Funny script by Fleming and Sheryl Longin is even more enjoyable if you remember the real-life events of the 1970s. [PG-13] ▼

Dickie Roberts: Former Child Star (2003) C-98m.  D: Sam Weisman. David Spade, Mary McCormack, Jon Lovitz, Craig Bierko, Jenna Boyd, Scott Terra, Alyssa Milano, Doris Roberts, Rob Reiner, Leif Garrett, Barry Williams, Dustin Diamond, Danny Bonaduce, Edie McClurg. Washed-up former TV moppet Spade pays a family to allow him to move in and experience the childhood he never had in order for him to win a part in Reiner's new movie. Alternately smart-alecky and touchy-feely, this comedy (cowritten by Spade) isn't sure what it wants to be. Cast is peppered with real-life former child stars, many of whom appear in a music-video-style finale (including a few ringers like Jeff Conaway and Charlene Tilton). Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Dick Tracy series SEE: Leonard Maltin's Classic Movie Guide

Dick Tracy (1990) C-104m.  D: Warren Beatty. Warren Beatty, Madonna, Al Pacino, Glenna Headly, Charlie Korsmo, Mandy Patinkin, Charles Durning, Paul Sorvino, William Forsythe, Seymour Cassel, Dustin Hoffman, Dick Van Dyke, Catherine O'Hara, James Caan, Michael J. Pollard, Estelle Parsons, James Tolkan, R.G. Armstrong, Kathy Bates. Colorful, high-style adaptation of the Chester Gould comic strip classic, with Beatty redefining the hawk-nosed, jut-jawed hero. Story is simple in the extreme, but there's so much to take in you really don't mind: a galaxy of guest stars as Gould's grotesque villains, eye-popping, Academy Award-winning makeup and art direction and Madonna singing new Stephen Sondheim songs (if a few too many). One of them, "Sooner or Later (I Always Get My Man)," also won an Oscar. Stand-out: Pacino's hilarious, over-the-top performance as Big Boy Caprice. Super 35. [PG] ▼

Did You Hear the One About the Traveling Saleslady? (1968) C-97m. BOMB D: Don Weis. Phyllis Diller, Bob Denver, Joe Flynn, Eileen Wesson, Jeanette Nolan, Bob Hastings, David Hartman, Charles Lane, Kent McCord. You've all heard it, so why bother watching this dud. For only the most fervent Diller fans. Techniscope.

Die Another Day (2002) C-132m.  D:

Lee Tamahori. Pierce Brosnan, Halle Berry, Toby Stephens, Rosamund Pike, Rick Yune, Judi Dench, John Cleese, Michael Madsen, Samantha Bond. Entertaining James Bond outing, in the modern mode: less sophistication, more computer-generated effects. Bond is taken prisoner in Korea, ultimately freed to wage a battle of wits with a megalomaniacal industrialist (Stephens—the son of Maggie Smith and Robert Stephens). Along the way he joins forces with a sexy NSA agent named Jinx (Berry). Some of the effects are absurdly unrealistic (but then, so is Dench's renouncement of her top agent). Goes on one segment too long... but still fun to watch. Madonna sings (and cowrote) the title song, and appears unbilled. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Die! Die! My Darling! (1965-British) C-97m. ½ D: Silvio Narizzano. Tallulah Bankhead, Stefanie Powers, Peter Vaughan, Donald Sutherland, Yootha Joyce. Tallulah, in her last film, has field day as weirdo who keeps Powers under lock and key for personal vengeance against the death of her son. Engaging fun, especially for Bankhead devotees. Script by Richard Matheson. Original British title: FANATIC. ▼

Die Hard (1988) C-131m.  D: John McTiernan. Bruce Willis, Alan Rickman, Bonnie Bedelia, Alexander Godunov, Reginald VelJohnson, Paul Gleason, DeVoreaux White, William Atherton, Hart Bochner, James Shigeta, Lorenzo Caccialanza, Robert Davi, Rick Ducommun, Rebecca Brunschlag. Dynamic action yarn about a N.Y.C. cop who just happens to be visiting an L.A. highrise when it's commandeered by terrorist thieves. Great action scenes and stunts, with Richard Edlund's special effects, and a perfect part for Willis, who plays cat-and-mouse with bad guy Rickman. Marred only by overlength and too many needlessly stupid supporting characters. Followed by three sequels. Panavision. [R] ▼

Die Hard 2 (1990) C-124m.  D: Renny Harlin. Bruce Willis, Bonnie Bedelia, William Atherton, Reginald VelJohnson, Franco Nero, William Sadler, John Amos, Dennis Franz, Art Evans, Fred Dalton Thompson, Sheila McCarthy, Robert Patrick, John Leguizamo, Don Harvey, Vondie Curtis Hall, Colm Meaney, Robert Costanzo. Stupendously unbelievable—but very entertaining—sequel to the action hit; while waiting for his wife to land at Washington's Dulles Airport, Willis dives head-first into trouble when he gets wind of an impending terrorist-type plot. Lots of violent, large-scale action, and lots of fun—just don't look for lots of logic. Based on Walter Wager's novel 58 Minutes. Panavision. [R] ▼

Sam Phillips. A madman (Irons) holds N.Y.C. hostage with bombings—and threats of more—targeting his demands at ousted cop John McClane (Willis), who inadvertently acquires a partner in hostile Harlem storekeeper Jackson. Logic and motivation take a backseat to big-scale action in this nonstop roller-coaster ride; it's like watching 12 chapters of a high-tech Saturday matinee serial all at once. Followed by LIVE FREE OR DIE HARD. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Die Laughing (1980) C-108m. BOMB D: Jeff Werner. Robby Benson, Linda Grovener, Charles Durning, Elsa Lanchester, Bud Cort, Peter Coyote. Benson is star, co-author, coproducer, and composer of this sophomoric black comedy and gives an excruciating performance as a cabbie who accidentally becomes implicated in the murder of a nuclear scientist. Cort is disgustingly oily as fascist villain. [PG] ▼

Die Mommie Die! (2003) C-90m. ½ D: Mark Rucker. Charles Busch, Philip Baker Hall, Jason Priestley, Frances Conroy, Natasha Lyonne, Stark Sands, Victor Raider-Wexler, Nora Dunn, Sara Gilbert. Fitfully amusing spoof of Ross Hunter-style Hollywood melodramas, with drag performer Busch cast as Angela Arden, a faded torch singer unhappily married to a domineering movie mogul and saddled with two twisted children. Based on Busch's play; despite some funny moments, this probably works better onstage. [R] ▼

Die, Monster, Die! (1965) C-80m.  D: Daniel Haller. Boris Karloff, Nick Adams, Freda Jackson, Suzan Farmer, Terence de Marney, Patrick Magee. Based on H. P. Lovecraft story, this thriller has Karloff a recluse who discovers a meteor which gives him strange powers. Good premise is not carried out well. Filmed in England. Remade as THE CURSE (1987). Horrifying Colorscope. ▼●●

Different for Girls (1997-British) C-92m.  D: Richard Spence. Steven Mackintosh, Rupert Graves, Neil Dudgeon, Saskia Reeves. A demure transsexual who writes greeting card verses takes up with a rowdy biker—the same long-ago schoolmate who protected her against adolescent persecutors before the operation that changed her life. One of the more distinctive odd-couple romantic comedies of our time; kept on track by the central performance of Mackintosh, who pulls off a difficult role. [R] ▼

Different Loyalty, A (2004-U.S.-Canadian-British) C-96m. *½ D: Marek Kaniewska. Sharon Stone, Rupert Everett, Julian Wadham, Michael Cochrane, Ann Lambton, Joss Ackland, Jim Piddock. Set during the Cold War, Stone plays an American wife to Everett's British double agent. He's torn between her and his ideals, thus creating turmoil in the marriage. The two leads act their little hearts out, but the film is terminally dull. Loosely based on the life of Eleanor and Kim Philby. Actor Piddock also scripted and coproduced. [R] ▼

Different Story, A (1978) C-108m. ½ D: Paul Aaron. Perry King, Meg Foster, Valerie Curtin, Peter Donat, Richard Bull, Barbara Collettine. Gays King and Foster get married to prevent his deportation, then fall in love. Sounds terrible, but first half is surprisingly good until film succumbs to conventionality. Foster is terrific. [PG—edited from original R rating] ▼

Digby—The Biggest Dog in the World (1974-British) C-88m. BOMB D: Joseph McGrath. Jim Dale, Spike Milligan, Milo O'Shea, Angela Douglas, Norman Rossington. Poor comedy-fantasy concerning liquid Project X, which causes sheepdog Digby to grow to huge proportions. Bad special effects, too. Written by Ted Key, creator of "Hazel," strictly for kids. [G] ▼

Digger (1994) C-92m.  D: Robert Turner. Adam Hann-Byrd, Joshua Jackson, Barbara Williams, Timothy Bottoms, Olympia Dukakis, Leslie Nielsen, P. Lynn Johnson, Lochlyn Munro. An attractive but depressing film of people dealing with losses in their lives: a couple who have buried a drowned child, a boy dying of leukemia therapy complications, and his friend whose parents are divorcing. Dukakis and Nielsen provide welcome relief as older couple in the throes of romance. [PG] ▼●

Diggers (2007) C-87m.  D: Katherine Dieckmann. Paul Rudd, Lauren Ambrose, Ron Eldard, Josh Hamilton, Sarah Paulson, Ken Marino, Maura Tierney, Shannon Barry, Andrew Cherry. Set in 1970s Long Island, film focuses on two generations of clam diggers who are trying desperately to maintain their way of life (and loving) in a town that may be about to pass them by. Low-budget look at the changing ways of small-town America boasts an attractive cast but is less than compelling—unless you dig clams, of course. With its TV-friendly elements this might have been more suitable as a series pilot. Marino (who plays Lozo) wrote and coproduced. [R] ▼

Digging to China (1997) C-98m.  D: Timothy Hutton. Evan Rachel Wood, Kevin Bacon, Mary Stuart Masterson, Cathy Moriarty, Marian Seldes. Sincere but one-note film about the growing friendship between a troubled 10-year-old girl (Wood) and a mentally retarded young man (Bacon). Its offbeat qualities seem a bit too contrived, though the performances can't be faulted. Hutton's feature directing debut. [PG] ▼●●

con-artist just sprung from prison who sets his sights on a high-rolling meanie in a small Georgia town—with boxer Gossett as his lure for big-time bets. The two stars are very watchable, even if the script is contrived. Gossett's then-wife Cyndi plays his spouse on-screen. [R]▼●●

Digimon: The Movie (2000-Japanese) C-82m.  D: Takaaki Yamashita, Hisashi Nakayama, Masahiro Aizawa. Voices of Lara Jill Miller, Joshua Seth, Colleen O'Shaughnessy, Philece Sampler, Bob Glouberman, Mona Marshall. Three short stories (released as theatrical shorts in Japan) based on the animated TV series are strung together to form a "movie." A notch better than the POKÉ-MON movies, with a standout sequence in the middle section as digital monsters battle in a surreal internet world. Otherwise, strictly for wired small-fry. [PG]▼

Dillinger (1945) 70m.  D: Max Nosseck. Edmund Lowe, Anne Jeffreys, Lawrence Tierney, Eduardo Ciannelli, Elisha Cook, Jr., Marc Lawrence. Solid gangster yarn written by Philip Yordan, one of the best B movies of its kind (though a key bank robbery is comprised of stock footage lifted from Fritz Lang's YOU ONLY LIVE ONCE).▼

Dillinger (1973) C-107m.  D: John Milius. Warren Oates, Ben Johnson, Cloris Leachman, Michelle Phillips, Richard Dreyfuss, Harry Dean Stanton, Steve Kanaly. Heavily romanticized gangster movie is aided by some rough, violent gun battles. Story follows Dillinger midway through his bank-robbing career up until his death outside the Biograph Theatre. [R]▼●●

Dillinger and Capone (1995) C-94m.  D: Jon Purdy. Martin Sheen, F. Murray Abraham, Stephen Davies, Catherine Hicks, Don Stroud, Sasha Jensen, Michael Oliver, Jeffrey Combs, Michael C. Gwynne, Anthony Crivello, Bert Remsen, Clint Howard. 1940: released from prison, Al Capone (Abraham) holds captive the family of John Dillinger (Sheen) who, here at least, wasn't gunned down at the Biograph. Big Al wants the famed bank robber to recover 15 million dollars of Capone's ill-gotten gains from a hotel in Chicago. The clever idea is boosted by slick acting, but it soon slides into a routine heist thriller. [R]▼

Diminished Capacity (2008) C-89m. ½ D: Terry Kinney. Matthew Broderick, Alan Alda, Virginia Madsen, Lois Smith, Dylan Baker, Louis C.K., Jimmy Bennett, Bobby Cannavale, Jim True-Frost, Tom Aldredge. First-rate cast in a desperately thin story about a Chicago newspaper columnist (Broderick) recovering from a head injury, who goes home to tend to his aging, memory-challenged uncle (Alda). Takes an odd turn as they return to Chicago to sell a rare baseball card.▶

Dimples (1936) 78m. ½ D: William Seiter. Shirley Temple, Frank Morgan,

Helen Westley, Robert Kent, Stepin Fetchit, Astrid Allwyn. Prime Shirley, with our heroine doing her best to save her destitute father, played by marvelous Morgan. Songs: "Oh Mister Man Up in the Moon," "What Did the Bluebird Say." Also shown in computer-colored version.▼▶

Dim Sum: a little bit of heart (1984) C-89m.  D: Wayne Wang. Lauren Chew, Kim Chew, Victor Wong, Ida F.O. Chung, Cora Miao. Occasionally slow—there are one too many shots of empty rooms—but mostly wise, endearing tale of Chinese-Americans in San Francisco, focusing on the dynamics of a mother-daughter relationship. Characters may be distinctively Chinese, but there's a refreshing, knowing universality to this comedy. [PG]▼●●

Diner (1982) C-110m.  D: Barry Levinson. Steve Guttenberg, Daniel Stern, Mickey Rourke, Kevin Bacon, Timothy Daly, Ellen Barkin, Paul Reiser, Michael Tucker. Problems of growing up are nicely synthesized by writer-director Levinson in this look at a group of friends who hang out in a Baltimore diner in the 1950s. Obviously made with care and affection; a real sleeper. Levinson's directorial debut and first film of Barkin and Reiser. [R]▼●●

Dingaka (1965-South African) C-98m. ½ D: Jamie Uys. Stanley Baker, Juliet Prowse, Ken Gampu, Siegfried Mynhardt, Bob Courtney. Film focuses on contrasting white-black ways of life and the clashes of the two cultures; production bogs down in stereotypes. CinemaScope.▼

Dingo (1991-Australian-French) C-108m. ½ D: Rolf de Heer. Colin Friels, Miles Davis, Helen Buday, Joe Petruzzi, Bernadette Lafont, Bernard Fresson. A chance appearance by jazz trumpeter Billy Cross (Davis) in a boy's rural community inspires him to pursue music himself; now grown up, he still dreams of playing for a living—and winning the approval of his lifelong idol. Amiable but slow-paced story is sparked by Miles Davis' dynamic presence and ingratiating performance. Chuck Findley doubled Friels' trumpeting on the soundtrack. Invigorating score by Michel Legrand and Davis. Panavision.▼

Dinner at Eight (1933) 113m. * D: George Cukor. Marie Dressler, John Barrymore, Wallace Beery, Jean Harlow, Lionel Barrymore, Lee Tracy, Edmund Lowe, Billie Burke, Madge Evans, Jean Hersholt, Karen Morley, Phillips Holmes, May Robson. Vintage MGM constellation of stars portray various strata of society in N.Y.C., invited to dine and shine; Harlow in fine comedy form, but Dressler as dowager steals focus in filmization of George Kaufman-Edna Ferber play. Scripted by three top writers: Herman Mankiewicz, Frances Marion, and Donald Ogden Stewart. Don't miss this one. Remade for cable TV in 1989 with Lauren Bacall. ▼●●

Dinner Game, The (1998-French) C-81m. ½ D: Francis Veber. Thierry Lhermitte, Jacques Villeret, Francis Huster, Daniel Prévost, Alexandra Vandernoot, Catherine Frot. Laugh-out-loud farce (from the writer of LA CAGE AUX FOLLES) about a self-centered publisher who participates in a weekly ritual with his friends: to invite the stupidest person they can find to dinner. Lhermitte has found a doozy, civil servant Villeret (who created this part on stage), but the well-meaning oaf intrudes on his life in unexpected ways. Hilariously funny without being cruel—which is no mean feat. Technovision. [PG-13] ▼●

Dinner Rush (2001) C-100m.  D: Bob Giraldi. Danny Aiello, Edoardo Gero, Vivian Wu, Mike McGlone, Kirk Acevedo, John Corbett, Sandra Bernhard, Summer Phoenix, Polly Draper, Mark Margolis, Ajay Naidu. A tumultuous night in the life of a busy, newly chic N.Y.C. restaurant. Owner Aiello is thinking of giving up his bookmaking activities, his star chef is demanding part ownership of the eatery, two mobsters have come to pay an unfriendly visit, etc. Flavorful film has the ring of truth—inside the kitchen and out—and is brimming with life. Director (and real-life restaurateur) Giraldi is better known for his commercials and music videos. [R] ▼●

Dino (1957) 94m. ½ D: Thomas Carr. Sal Mineo, Brian Keith, Susan Kohner, Joe De Santis, Penny Santon, Frank Faylen, Richard Bakalyan. Mineo at his rebellious best playing juvenile delinquent befriended by a girl (Kohner) and a social worker (Keith). Reginald Rose adapted his acclaimed TV play, and Mineo recreated his starring role. ▼

Dinosaur (2000) C-82m.  D: Ralph Zondag, Eric Leighton. Voices of D.B. Sweeney, Alfre Woodard, Ossie Davis, Max Casella, Hayden Panettiere, Samuel E. Wright, Julianna Margulies, Peter Siragusa, Joan Plowright, Della Reese. Disney story of a dinosaur raised by a family of lemurs; when a meteor shower destroys their island home, they flee to another island where they join a tribe of dinosaurs on a desperate trek to safety. On one level, a children's fable about survival and compassion; on another, a dazzling display of computer animation and technology that's almost overwhelming. But the use of modern dialogue for comedy relief ultimately brands the film as kid stuff. [PG] ▼●

Diplomaniacs (1933) 63m.  D: William A. Seiter. Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey, Marjorie White, Louis Calhern, Edgar Kennedy, Hugh Herbert. Genuinely odd but endearing nonsense musical com-

Diplomatic Courier (1952) 97m.  D: Henry Hathaway. Tyrone Power, Patricia Neal, Stephen McNally, Hildegard Neff, Karl Malden. Power seeks to avenge friend's death in Trieste, becomes involved in international espionage. Cold War film is exciting, well acted. Look for Lee Marvin, Charles Bronson, and Michael Ansara in small, unbilled roles. ▼

Dirigible (1931) 100m. ½ D: Frank Capra. Jack Holt, Ralph Graves, Fay Wray, Hobart Bosworth, Roscoe Karns. Frank "Spig" Wead story about Navy pilots' experimental use of dirigibles in the Antarctic has plenty of action and guts, but a sappy romantic story to weigh it down. On the whole, an interesting antique.

Dirt Bike Kid, The (1986) C-90m. ½ D: Hoite C. Caston. Peter Billingsley, Stuart Pankin, Anne Bloom, Patrick Collins, Sage Parker, Chad Sheets. Strictly formula teen melodrama, with young Billingsley taking on evil banker Pankin and some nasty bikers with the help of a very unusual Yamaha. Harmless and forgettable. [PG] ▼●

Dirty (2006) C-97m. *½ D: Chris Fisher. Cuba Gooding, Jr., Clifton Collins, Jr., Cole Hauser, Wyclef Jean, Keith David, Taboo, Wood Harris, Lobo Sebastian, Robert LaSardo, Aimee Garcia. Two battle-weary L.A. cops set out for a day's work, but Gooding doesn't know that his partner (Collins) has talked to Internal Affairs about their gang-busting unit's unethical tactics. Aggressively foulmouthed and foul-minded, this visually convulsive TRAINING DAY wannabe has ambitions, but offers neither its characters nor its audience any salvation. [R] ▼●

Dirty Dancing (1987) C-97m. ½ D: Emile Ardolino. Jennifer Grey, Patrick Swayze, Jerry Orbach, Cynthia Rhodes, Jack Weston, Jane Brucker, Kelly Bishop, Lonny Price, Charles "Honi" Coles, Wayne Knight. Superficial but audience-pleasing tale of spoiled teenage girl who learns something about real life—as well as a thing or two about dancing—during family vacation at a Catskills, N.Y., resort hotel in the early 1960s. Sparked by some hot dance numbers and charismatic leads. Most of the music is 1980s-style, not 1960s, but it seems to work. For a richer portrait of Catskills life see another 1987 release, SWEET LORRAINE. Oscar winner for best song: "(I've Had) The Time of My Life." Followed by a sequel in 2004, a TV series, and a stage musical. [PG-13] ▼●●

Dirty Dancing: Havana Nights (2004) C-

86m. ½ D: Guy Ferland. Diego Luna, Romola Garai, Sela Ward, John Slattery, Jonathan Jackson, January Jones, Mika Boorem, Patrick Swayze, Mya Harrison, Rene Lavan, Heather Headley. Pleasant-enough fluff about a teenage girl whose family relocates to Cuba in 1958 as political tensions are growing. She loves the freedom of Latin dancing and finds a perfect partner, a boy who works as a waiter at her hotel. The two appealing leads make this fun to watch. Closing narration is clumsy and unnecessary. Swayze, who starred in the original DIRTY DANCING, plays a dance instructor here. [PG-13] ▼

Dirty Dingus Magee (1970) C-90m.  D: Burt Kennedy. Frank Sinatra, George Kennedy, Anne Jackson, Lois Nettleton, Michele Carey, Jack Elam, John Dehner, Henry Jones, Harry Carey, Jr., Paul Fix. Broad, bawdy spoof with Sinatra as $10 outlaw whose attempts to make it big are slightly hindered by equally bungling sheriff Kennedy (not to mention assorted whores, Indians, and the U.S. Cavalry). Subtle it's not, but fast paced and amusing, especially for Western buffs; Nettleton is a delight as Joanne Woodward-ish schoolmarm inappropriately named Prudence. Cowritten by Joseph Heller. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Dirty Dishes (1978-French) C-92m. ½ D: Joyce Buñuel. Carole Laure, Pierre Santini, Catherine Lachens, Veronique Silver. Entertaining but obvious feminist comedy of Laure rebelling against her duties as a housewife. Director Buñuel is the late Luis Buñuel's daughter-in-law. [R] ▼

Dirty Dozen, The (1967) C-150m. ½ D: Robert Aldrich. Lee Marvin, Ernest Borgnine, Jim Brown, John Cassavetes, Robert Ryan, Charles Bronson, Donald Sutherland, George Kennedy, Telly Savalas, Ralph Meeker, Richard Jaeckel, Clint Walker, Trini Lopez. Box-office hit about 12 murderers, rapists, and other prisoners who get a chance to redeem themselves in WW2. Exciting, funny, and well acted, especially by Marvin and Cassavetes. Nunnally Johnson and Lukas Heller scripted from E. M. Nathanson novel. Followed in 1985, 1987, 1988 by trio of inferior TV movies with such original cast members as Marvin, Jaeckel, Savalas, Borgnine; then a short-lived series, Metroscope. ▼

Dirty Game, The (1965-Italian) 91m. ½ D: Terence Young, Christian-Jaque, Carlo Lizzani, Henry Fonda, Vittorio Gassman, Annie Girardot, Robert Ryan, Peter Van Eyck. Hodgepodge of stories dealing with espionage in post-WW2 era; none of episodes is convincing, stars don't help much. ▼

Dirty Hands (1976-French) C-102m.  D: Claude Chabrol. Rod Steiger, Romy Schneider, Paolo Giusti, Jean Rochefort, Hans Christian Blech. Laughable wife-and-lover-conspire-to-murder-husband melodrama; corpses keep turning up alive with boring regularity. However, some striking camera work, eerie sequences. Aka INNOCENTS WITH DIRTY HANDS. [R] ▼

Dirty Harry (1971) C-102m. ½ D: Don Siegel. Clint Eastwood, Harry Guardino, Reni Santoni, John Larch, Andy Robinson, and John Vernon as "The Mayor." Riveting action film with Eastwood as iconoclastic cop determined to bring in psychotic serial killer Robinson, even if he has to break some rules. Brilliantly filmed and edited for maximum impact. Jazzy score by Lalo Schifrin. Filmed "in tribute to the police officers of San Francisco who gave their lives in the line of duty." Followed by MAGNUM FORCE, THE ENFORCER, SUDDEN IMPACT, and THE DEAD POOL. Panavision. [R] ▼

Dirty Knight's Work (1976-British) C-88m.  D: Kevin Connor. John Mills, Donald Pleasence, Barbara Hershey, David Birney, Margaret Leighton, Peter Cushing. Birney enlists Mills' help in solving his father's murder, zeroes in on strange society of latter-day knights with vigilante tendencies. Offbeat and mildly diverting. Original title: TRIAL BY COMBAT. Video title: CHOICE OF WEAPONS. [PG] ▼

Dirty Little Billy (1972) C-92m.  D: Stan Dragoti. Michael J. Pollard, Lee Purcell, Charles Aidman, Richard Evans. Offbeat story based on early life of Billy the Kid. Grimy, muddy, adventurous; not a normal Western by any stretch of the imagination. Produced by Jack L. Warner! [R]

Dirty Mary Crazy Larry (1974) C-93m.  D: John Hough. Peter Fonda, Susan George, Adam Roarke, Vic Morrow, Roddy McDowall. Very fast action as racing driver Fonda, pickup George and mechanic Roarke demolish every car in sight while escaping with supermarket loot. Hardly a letup, and marred only by downbeat finale. [PG] ▼

Dirty Money (1972-French) C-98m. ½ D: Jean-Pierre Melville. Alain Delon, Richard Crenna, Catherine Deneuve, Ricardo Cucciolla, Michael Conrad. Pedestrian melodrama of bank robbery and drug trafficking. Delon and Crenna are muscular, Deneuve and the scenery gorgeous. ▼

Dirty Pretty Things (2002-U.S.-British) C-97m.  D: Stephen Frears. Audrey Tautou, Chiwetel Ejiofor, Sergi López, Sophie Okonedo, Benedict Wong, Zlatko Buric. Gripping story of a sober, hardworking Nigerian immigrant who's running from his past and juggling two jobs in London as a cab driver and hotel clerk. His innate sense of justice (and personal integrity) is affronted when he learns of grisly black-market transactions going on at the hotel, and he feels impelled to intervene. Tautou is his friend, a Turkish illegal who's been working as a hotel maid. Original and surprising at every turn; director Frears makes the most of Steven Knight's script. [R]▼

Dirty Rotten Scoundrels (1988) C-110m. ½ D: Frank Oz. Steve Martin, Michael Caine, Glenna Headly, Anton Rodgers, Barbara Harris, Ian McDiarmid, Dana Ivey. Career con artist Caine, who fleeces women with great elan in the south of France, must find a way to deal with crass new competition: American Martin. Eventually they decide to see who can dupe wide-eyed Headly first. Extremely pleasant but unremarkable comedy, a remake of the 1964 BEDTIME STORY, filmed on beautiful Riviera locations. Later a Broadway musical. [PG]▼●●

Dirty Shame, A (2004) C-89m. ½ D: John Waters. Tracey Ullman, Johnny Knoxville, Selma Blair, Chris Isaak, Suzanne Shepherd, Mink Stole, Patricia Hearst, Jackie Hoffman, Ricki Lake, David Hasselhoff. Ullman plays it to the hilt as a repressed, scowling convenience-store clerk who is conked on the head and awakens a sex addict. Waters' outlandish film depicts a cartoonish world that's gone sex-mad. Occasionally funny, mostly silly; plays like the concoction of a preteen boy who's just learned his first naughty word. R-rated version also available. [NC-17]●

Dirty Work (1998) C-81m. ½ D: Bob Saget. Norm Macdonald, Jack Warden, Artie Lange, Traylor Howard, Don Rickles, Christopher McDonald, Chevy Chase, Chris Farley, Gary Coleman, Ken Norton, John Goodman, Rebecca Romijn. Crude, mean-spirited comedy vehicle for former Saturday Night Live star Macdonald about a shiftless loser who teams up with his best friend to start a "revenge business" for the common man. Potentially clever idea squandered by endless barrage of fat and gay jokes. Lots of comic talent wasted, although Rickles is good as an obnoxious movie theater manager. Adam Sandler appears unbilled. [PG-13]▼●●

Disappearance, The (1977-Canadian) C-88m.  D: Stuart Cooper. Donald Sutherland, Francine Racette, David Hemmings, David Warner, Christopher Plummer, John Hurt, Virginia McKenna, Peter Bowles. Slow-moving account of a hit-man's preoccupation with the disappearance of his wife. Strong Sutherland performance is obliterated by confusing script, pretentiously arty direction. Originally 100m. [R]▼

Disappearance of Garcia Lorca, The (1997-U.S.-Spanish-Puerto Rican) C-108m.  D: Marcos Zurinaga. Andy Garcia, Esai Morales, Edward James Olmos, Jeroen Krabbé, Marcela Wallerstein, Miguel Ferrer, Giancarlo Giannini. Dreary fictionalized account of the mysterious death of the radical Spanish poet-playwright Federico Garcia Lorca at the hands of Franco's Fascists in 1936. Film is good to look at, courtesy Juan Ruiz-Anchia's elegant widescreen photography, but script is hopelessly cliché and contrived, and fails in its attempts to turn historical speculation into a political thriller. Original title: DEATH IN GRANADA. Panavision. [R]▼

Disaster in Time SEE: Grand Tour, The Disaster Movie (2008) C-88m. BOMB D: Jason Friedberg, Aaron Seltzer. Matt Lanter, Vanessa Minnillo, Gary "G-Thang" Johnson, Nicole Parker, Crista Flanagan, Kim Kardashian, Carmen Electra, Ike Barinholtz, Tony Cox. A series of natural disasters are occurring—a massive earthquake has crippled the city and asteroids have struck Miley Cyrus—so a group of twenty-somethings decide to save the world. Spoofing ENCHANTED, HIGH SCHOOL MUSICAL, CLOVERFIELD, Indiana Jones, Amy Winehouse, et al., this ranks low on the parody charts. Amusing moments are few and far between. Also available in unrated version. [PG-13]●

Disclosure (1994) C-127m.  D: Barry Levinson. Michael Douglas, Demi Moore, Donald Sutherland, Caroline Goodall, Dylan Baker, Roma Maffia, Dennis Miller, Allan Rich, Nicholas Sadler, Rosemary Forsyth. Entertaining corporate thriller based on Michael Crichton's book about a not-so-bright exec (Douglas) in a highly competitive computer company who sues his new, sexy shark of a boss (Moore) for sexual harassment! Plotted like a mystery, with plenty of surprising twists and turns. Only complaint: hasn't Douglas played this same kind of role a bit too often? Panavision. [R]▼●●

Discreet Charm of the Bourgeoisie, The (1972-French) C-101m. * D: Luis Buñuel. Fernando Rey, Delphine Seyrig, Stéphane Audran, Bulle Ogier, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Michel Piccoli. A Buñuel joke on his audience, using friends' attempts to have dinner party as excuse for series of surrealistic sequences. Reality and illusion soon blur into one, with delicious comic results. Oscar winner as Best Foreign Film. Screenplay by Buñuel and Jean-Claude Carrière. [PG]▼●●

Dish, The (2000-Australian) C-104m.  D: Rob Sitch. Sam Neill, Kevin Harrington, Tom Long, Patrick Warburton, Genevieve Mooy, Tayler Kane, Billie Brown, Roy Billing, John McMartin. Delightful comedy based on the true story of how an unlikely Australian community put itself on the map in 1969 by having the only satellite dish that could track the progress of Apollo 11 in the Southern Hemisphere as it made its way to the moon. Made by the same filmmaking collective responsible for THE CASTLE. [PG-13]▼

Dishonored (1931) 91m. ½ D: Josef von Sternberg. Marlene Dietrich, Victor McLaglen, Lew Cody, Warner Oland, Gustav von Seyffertitz. Alluring Dietrich makes the most of a creaky script starring her as secret agent X-27 during WWI. Worth seeing for her masquerade as peasant girl.▼

Disney's Teacher's Pet SEE: Teacher's Pet (2004)

Disney's The Kid (2000) C-104m.  D: Jon Turteltaub. Bruce Willis, Spencer Breslin, Emily Mortimer, Lily Tomlin, Jean Smart, Daniel von Bargen, Chi McBride, Dana Ivey, Juanita Moore. A cold-as-ice businessman who suppresses all memories of his childhood and shuns contact with his family is confronted with his 8-year-old self, and doesn't understand why. Well-meaning fable by Audrey Wells has its moments, but doesn't quite come off. Matthew Perry appears hirsute and unbilled. [PG]▼

Disorderlies (1987) C-86m. *½ D: Michael Schultz. The Fat Boys, Ralph Bellamy, Tony Plana, Anthony Geary, Marco Rodriguez, Troy Beyer. Get down with Bellamy, as a Palm Beach millionaire about to be murdered for his estate by a conniving nephew and the valet; the title chubs—kind of a rap version of The Three Stooges—come to the rescue. Pretty desperate, but the ultimate in casting curios. [PG]▼●●

Disorderly Orderly, The (1964) C-90m.  D: Frank Tashlin. Jerry Lewis, Glenda Farrell, Susan Oliver, Everett Sloane, Jack E. Leonard, Alice Pearce, Kathleen Freeman, Barbara Nichols, Milton Frome. First-rate slapstick and sight gags (including a wild chase finale) mix with cloying sentiment as Jerry runs amuck in a nursing home. Best scene: Jerry's suffering of "sympathy pains" as patient Pearce complains of her ills. Title tune sung by Sammy Davis, Jr.▼

Disorganized Crime (1989) C-101m. *½ D: Jim Kouf. Hoyt Axton, Corbin Bernsen, Ruben Blades, Fred Gwynne, Ed O'Neill, Lou Diamond Phillips, Daniel Roebuck, William Russ, Marie Butler Kouf. Witless crime-chase comedy about a quartet of crooks waiting for leader Bernsen, who's plotted the perfect bank heist but has managed to get himself arrested. [R]▼●●

Dispatch From Reuters, A (1940) 89m. ½ D: William Dieterle. Edward G. Robinson, Edna Best, Eddie Albert, Albert Basserman, Gene Lockhart, Nigel Bruce, Otto Kruger. Watchable (if not always inspired) Warner Bros. biography of the man who started famous worldwide news agency by using pigeons to transmit information across the European continent.

Disraeli (1929) 89m.  D: Alfred E. Green. George Arliss, Joan Bennett, Florence Arliss, Anthony Bushell, David Torrence, Ivan Simpson. Somewhat stagy but effective vehicle for Arliss, who won Oscar as cunning British prime minister—a great statesman, devoted husband, and matchmaker (for Bennett and Bushell). Remake of Arliss' 1921 silent vehicle.▼

Distance (1975) C-94m. ½ D: Anthony Lover. Paul Benjamin, Eija Pokkinen, James Woods, Bibi Besch, Hal Miller, Polly Holliday. Impressive, though flawed, independently made drama detailing the problems of two army couples during the 1950s. Fine performances, particularly by Besch and Woods; Lover and producer George Coe were responsible for the classic short THE DOVE. [R]

Distant (2002-Turkish) C-110m.  D: Nuri Bilge Ceylan. Muzaffer Ozdemir, Mehmet Emin Toprak, Zuhul Gencer Erkaya, Nazan Kirilmis. Deliberately paced drama about a 40-year-old photographer in the city who is visited by his recently unemployed country cousin. We gradually recognize how the differences between them and their experiences cause problems in the relationship. Not for everyone, but patient viewers will find themselves rewarded by the simple truths of life the film explores. Toprak was tragically killed in an auto accident before the film's debut; he posthumously shared a Best Actor award with Ozdemir at the Cannes Film Festival. Turkish title: UZAK.▼

Distant Drums (1951) C-101m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Gary Cooper, Mari Aldon, Richard Webb, Ray Teal. Tame actioner of Seminole Indians on warpath in early 19th-century Florida, with Cooper as stalwart swamp fighter. A reworking of the central story idea from director Walsh's WW2 saga OBJECTIVE BURMA.▼●●

Distant Thunder (1973-Indian) C-100m.  D: Satyajit Ray. Soumitra Chatterji, Babita, Sandhya Roy, Gobinda Chakravarty, Romesh Mukerji. Famine strikes Bengal in 1942 and affects the lives of various families in many different ways. Harsh, vividly filmed tale in which one can almost feel the sand and wind blowing across the screen.▼

Distant Thunder (1988-U.S.-Canadian) C-114m.  D: Rick Rosenthal. John Lithgow, Ralph Macchio, Kerrie Keane, Reb Brown, Janet Margolin, Denis Arndt, Jamey Sheridan, Tom Bower. Well-intentioned but gooeey soapier about yet one more emotionally troubled Vietnam vet (nicely played by the ever-reliable Lithgow), who lives alone in the wilderness, and whose long-abandoned son (Macchio) sets out to find him. [R]▼●●

Distant Trumpet, A (1964) C-117m. ½ D: Raoul Walsh. Troy Donahue, Suzanne Pleshette, Kent Smith, Claude Akins, James Gregory. Paul Horgan's novel gets short-circuited in stock presentation of army men in the Old West combatting warring Indians while romancing women on the post; good supporting cast. Panavision.●

Distant Voices, Still Lives (1988-British) C-85m.  D: Terence Davies. Freda Dowie, Peter Postlethwaite, Angela Walsh, Diane McBain, Dean Williams, Lorraine Ashbourne. Strikingly visual evocation of England during the 1940s and '50s, a time when the corny, happy lyrics of popular songs can be contrasted to the drab, stultifying lives of the working class. Davies' autobiographical script mirrors the lives of his various family members, each of whom is brutalized by his irrationally cruel father. While there's little narrative structure and no depth to the characters, the haunting imagery makes this most worthwhile. Sequel: THE LONG DAY CLOSES. [PG-13] ▼●●

Distinguished Gentleman, The (1992) C-112m.  D: Jonathan Lynn. Eddie Murphy, Lane Smith, Sheryl Lee Ralph, Joe Don Baker, Victoria Rowell, Grant Shaud, Kevin McCarthy, Charles S. Dutton, Victor Rivers, Noble Willingham, Gary Frank, Cynthia Harris, James Garner. Florida con artist Murphy realizes that the real con game is the political scene in Washington, D.C.—and gets himself elected to the House of Representatives. Satirical barbs about the System blend neatly with Eddie's irresistible huckster persona for this ingratiating (if somewhat overlong) comedy, aided by a strong supporting cast. [R] ▼●●

District B13 (2004-French) C-84m.  D: Pierre Morel. Cyril Raffaelli, David Belle, Tony D'Amario, Larbi (Bibi) Naceri, Dany Verissimo, François Chattot, Nicolas Woirion. Paris, year 2010: Undercover cop Raffaelli dives deep into a walled-off ghetto, guided by seasoned street rat Belle, to recover a bomb stolen by man-mountain drug lord D'Amario. Meanwhile, police headquarters launches a lethal plan of its own. Politically pointed scenario is a jumping-off point—literally—for a way-cool display of the two leads' spring-loaded parkour stunt work, totally unaided by computer trickery. What you see is what they did. Produced and cowritten by Luc Besson, with a smashing kick-derriere hip-hop score by Da. Octopuss. Super 35. [R] ●

Disturbed (1991) C-96m. *½ D: Charles Winkler. Malcolm McDowell, Geoffrey Lewis, Pamela Gidley, Priscilla Pointer, Irwin Keyes, Peter Murnik. Terrific, funny performance by McDowell can't save this florid thriller set in an insane asylum where what might have been a murder took place 10 years before. Flashy camerawork is merely distracting here; one shot is from the point of view of a penis! [R] ▼●●

Disturbia (2007) C-104m. ½ D: D. J. Caruso. Shia LaBeouf, David Morse, Sarah Roemer, Carrie-Anne Moss, Aaron Yoo, Jose Pablo Cantillo, Matt Craven, Viola Davis. Troubled teen LaBeouf is confined to his home by an electronic ankle bracelet and before long becomes a voyeur, keeping tabs on his neighbors—including a beautiful girl next door, and, more ominously, a man across the street whose behavior seems highly suspicious. Well-made film invites comparisons to REAR WINDOW but plays its cards right and builds considerable suspense, until it becomes obvious (and tedious) by the finale. Casting Morse as the neighbor also sends a transparent signal of what's to come. [PG-13] ●

Disturbing Behavior (1998-U.S.-Australian)

C-83m. BOMB D: David Nutter. James Marsden, Katie Holmes, Nick Stahl, William Sadler, Bruce Greenwood, Steve Railsback, Tobias Mehler, Ethan Embry. Teenager Marsden, a newcomer in town, soon realizes there's a sinister plot by the high school guidance counselor to "reform" troubled kids: they become well groomed, love yogurt and freak out when horny. Predictable, coldly calculated and trendy, this is teen-targeted dreck. Give us SCREAM—or at least I WAS A TEEN-AGE WEREWOLF. Director's cut runs 94m. [R] ▼●●

Diva (1982-French) C-118m. ½ D: Jean-Jacques Beineix. Wilhelmenia Wiggins Fernandez, Frederic Andrei, Richard Bohringer, Thuy An Luu, Jacques Fabbri. Music-loving mailman bootleg-tapes the concert of a superstar diva who's never made a recording, finds himself in even hotter water when his possession is mixed up with a second tape that will incriminate gangsters. High-tech melodrama occasionally rubs your nose in its technique, but still makes for whale of a directorial debut by Beineix. Subway motorcycle chase is an action classic. [R] ▼●●

Dive Bomber (1941) C-133m.  D: Michael Curtiz. Errol Flynn, Fred MacMurray, Ralph Bellamy, Alexis Smith, Robert Armstrong, Regis Toomey, Craig Stevens. Exciting, well-paced aviation film of experiments to eliminate pilot-blackout. Flynn, MacMurray, and Smith perform well in formula story. ▼●●

Divertimento SEE: La Belle Noiseuse

Divided We Fall (2000-Czech) C-122m. ½ D: Jan Hřebejk. Boleslav Polívka, Csongor Kassai, Jaroslav Dusek, Anna Sisková, Jiri Pecha, Martin Huba. To conceal from the local Nazi collaborators that they're hiding a Jew in their home, a reluctant hero uses his wife's so-called pregnancy as the excuse from having to house a Nazi clerk. Unfortunately, it's a matter of public record that husband Josef (Polívka) is sterile. Brilliant film shot in an edgy style that reflects its characters' growing neuroses; walks the tightrope between comedy and drama with Wallenda finesse. Screenwriter Petr Jarchovský scripted from his novel. [PG-13] ▼●●

Divine Intervention (2002-French-Moroccan-German) C-92m.  D: Elia Suleiman. Elia Suleiman, Manal Khader, Nayef Fahoum Daher, Amer Daher, George Ibrahim. Two Palestinian lovers try to carry on their relationship near the Israeli checkpoint that divides their respective cities, Jerusalem and Ramallah, in this funny, absurd, but ultimately sad look at the way some lives are lived in the Middle East. Original and inventively filmed, at times this movie seems as if it is something Jacques Tati might have made given a similar situation. Writer, director, and star Suleiman takes an almost impossible subject and puts a human face on it with insight and humor. ●

Divine Madness! (1980) C-95m. ½ D:

Michael Ritchie. Bette Midler fanatics would probably up this rating a half-star or so, but unevenness and occasional oppressiveness of this concert film may even get to them. Some funny bits, but will someone tell her to quit desecrating rock'n'roll? Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Divine Nymph, The (1979-Italian) C-90m. ★½ D: Giuseppe Patroni Griffi. Marcello Mastroianni, Laura Antonelli, Terence Stamp, Michele Placido, Duilio Del Prete, Ettore Manni, Marina Vlady. Poor melodrama chronicling beautiful Antonelli's involvements with marquis Mastroianni and baron Stamp. Of interest only when Laura doffs her duds. ▼

Divine Secrets of the Ya-Ya Sisterhood (2002) C-117m. ★★★ D: Callie Khouri. Sandra Bullock, Ellen Burstyn, Fionnula Flanagan, Ashley Judd, Maggie Smith, Shirley Knight, James Garner, Angus Macfadyen, Cherry Jones, Ron Eldard. Three lifelong female friends who made a blood pact of sisterhood as young girls in Louisiana try to reconcile the most eccentric and mercurial of their trio (Burstyn) with her grown-up daughter (Bullock). In flashbacks, we learn the reasons for the mother's erratic behavior, rooted in her childhood and beyond. (She's played as a young woman by Judd.) Begins as comedy, then grows much darker. A careful crafting of Rebecca Wells' title novel and Little Altars Everywhere, with strong performances all around. Feature directing debut for THELMA & LOUISE writer Khouri. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Divine Bell and the Butterfly, The (2007-U.S.-French) C-112m. ★★★½ D: Julian Schnabel. Mathieu Amalric, Emmanuelle Seigner, Marie-Josée Croze, Anne Consigny, Patrick Chesnais, Niels Arestrup, Olaz López Gardemdia, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Marina Hands, Isaach De Bankolé, Emma de Caunes, Agathe de la Fontaine, Max von Sydow. Remarkable portrait of Jean-Dominique Bauby, worldly editor of French Elle magazine, who suffered a stroke that paralyzed his entire body except for the left eyelid—and managed to dictate his bestselling memoir, one blink at a time. Potentially depressing subject becomes a visual and emotional tour de force that puts the viewer inside the protagonist's splintered consciousness. Schnabel's brilliant direction (aided no end by cinematographer Janusz Kaminski and editor Juliette Welfling) and Ronald Harwood's screen adaptation create a fascinating world of memory, fantasy, and self-reflection. The whole cast is exceptional, with von Sydow heartbreaking as Bauby's aged father. [PG-13] ●

Divorce American Style (1967) C-109m. ★★★ D: Bud Yorkin. Dick Van Dyke, Debbie Reynolds, Jason Robards, Jean Simmons, Van Johnson, Joe Flynn, Shelley Berman, Martin Gabel, Lee Grant, Pat

Collins, Tom Bosley, Eileen Brennan. Highly entertaining comedy of Van Dyke and Reynolds finding more problems than they expected when they get divorced. Stars are unusually good in offbeat roles. Written by Norman Lear. ▼●

Divorcee, The (1930) 83m ★½ D: Robert Z. Leonard. Norma Shearer, Chester Morris, Conrad Nagel, Robert Montgomery, Florence Eldridge. Stagy but interesting tale of young wife Shearer who puts up with husband Morris' flirtations until she decides to equal him. Shearer won an Oscar for this performance. ▼●

Divorce—Italian Style (1961-Italian) 104m. ★★★½ D: Pietro Germi. Marcello Mastroianni, Daniela Rocca, Stefania Sandrelli, Leopoldo Trieste. Marcello can't stomach wife Rocca, so he schemes to wed sexy young Sandrelli. Hilarious, flavorful comedy, which earned an Oscar for its story and screenplay. The twist ending adds a perfect—and most ironic—touch. ▼●

Divorce of Lady X, The (1938-British) C-91m. ★½ D: Tim Whelan. Merle Oberon, Laurence Olivier, Binnie Barnes, Ralph Richardson, Morton Selten. Cute but extremely dated screwball comedy with lawyer Olivier forced to share a hotel room with mischievous Oberon. He becomes convinced he's the cause of her pending divorce—even though she's not married. ▼●

Dixie (1943) C-89m. ★★★ D: A. Edward Sutherland. Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour, Billy DeWolfe, Marjorie Reynolds, Lynne Overman, Raymond Walburn, Eddie Foy, Jr., Grant Mitchell. Atmosphere overshadows plot in this biography of pioneer minstrel Dan Emmett, who wrote title song; Bing also sings "Sunday, Monday or Always."

Dixie Dynamite (1976) C-89m. ★½ D: Lee Frost. Warren Oates, Christopher George, Jane Anne Johnstone, Kathy McHaley, Wes Bishop, Mark Miller, R. G. Armstrong, Stanley Adams. Johnstone and McHaley wreak havoc on town after they are dispossessed from their farm and their moonshiner father is killed by a trigger-happy deputy. Sound familiar? [PG] ▼●

Django (1966-Italian-Spanish) C-92m. ★½ D: Sergio Corbucci. Franco Nero, Loredano Nusciak, Eduardo Fajardo, Jose Bodalo, Angel Alvarez, Jimmy Douglas. Though not as good as the Leone-Eastwood spaghetti Westerns, this is an above-average example of the genre, with the gimmick of Nero as a ruthless gunfighter who drags around a coffin containing a machine gun wherever he goes. This became a cult film and inspired a slew of European oaters with the name "Django" in their titles. Followed by DJANGO STRIKES AGAIN. ▼●

D.O.A. (1950) 83m. ★½ D: Rudolph Maté. Edmond O'Brien, Pamela Britton, Luther Adler, Beverly Campbell (Garland),

Lynn Baggett, William Ching, Henry Hart, Neville Brand. Gripping, original film noir with O'Brien desperately trying to find who has given him a slow-acting poison—and why. Inventively photographed (by Ernest Laszlo) on the streets of San Francisco and L.A. Written by Russell Rouse and Clarence Greene. Music by Dimitri Tiomkin. Remade in 1969 (as COLOR ME DEAD) and 1988. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

D.O.A. (1981) C-93m. *½ D: Lech Kowalski. Sex Pistols, Dead Boys, Rich Kids, Generation X, Terry and the Idiots, X-Ray Spec, Nancy Spungen. D.O.A. (1988) C-100m. BOMB D: Rocky Morton, Annabel Jankel, Dennis Quaid, Meg Ryan, Daniel Stern, Charlotte Rampling, Jane Kaczmarek, Christopher Neame. Noisy and needless remake of the film noir original, transplanted to academia. Quaid is a college professor fed a slow-acting toxin in a dispute over a prized fiction manuscript; Ryan is an innocent student helping him pursue his "killer." Badly overdirected by the Max Headroom creators; obvious red herrings abound. [R] ▼●●

Jaime Pressly, Holly Valance, Sarah Carter, Devon Aoki, Eric Roberts, Natassia Malthe, Matthew Marsden, Steve Howey, Kevin Nash, Brian White, Kane Kosugi. Three butt-kicking babes in various stages of undress are among the combatants invited to a remote island to compete in a $10 million fighting tournament hosted by a sinister scientist (a shamelessly hammy Roberts). Hong Kong action ace Yuen stages some slick martial-arts battles in this video-game adaptation, in reality a silly t&a jiggle-fest that looks like it was made by Maxim magazine. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Doberman Gang, The (1972) C-87m. ½ D: Byron Chudnow. Byron Mabe, Julie Parrish, Hal Reed, Simmy Bow, Jojo D'Amore. Trim low-budget heist movie about a crook's ingenious plan to use six dobermans to pull off bank job. Dogs steal not only the loot but the picture, and starred in two sequels. [G] ▼

Doc (1971) C-96m.  D: Frank Perry. Stacy Keach, Harris Yulin, Faye Dunaway, Michael Witney, Denver John Collins, Dan Greenburg. Well-crafted but unpleasant anti-Western, telling the story of Wyatt Earp and Doc Holliday in revisionist terms. Script by Pete Hamill. [PG—edited from original R rating]

Doc Hollywood (1991) C-104m. ½ D: Michael Caton-Jones. Michael J. Fox, Julie

Warner, Bridget Fonda, Barnard Hughes, Woody Harrelson, David Ogden Stiers, Frances Sternhagen, George Hamilton, Roberts Blossom, Barry Sobel. Fox is on his way to a career in L.A. plastic surgery when he crashes his car in South Carolina's podunk squash capital and is sentenced to perform much-needed medical community service. Agreeably played but nothing special. Warner has a memorable first scene, and there's an amusing star cameo near the end. Director Caton-Jones appears as a maitre d'. [PG-13] ▼●●

Dock Brief, The (1962-British) 88m. ½ D: James Hill. Peter Sellers, Richard Attenborough, Beryl Reid, David Lodge. Sellers is aging barrister who incompetently represents accused killer Attenborough with strange results; pleasant comic satire. John Mortimer adapted his own play. U.S. title: TRIAL AND ERROR. ▼●

Docks of New York, The (1928) 76m. * D: Josef von Sternberg. George Bancroft, Betty Compson, Olga Baclanova, Mitchell Lewis, Clyde Cook, Gustav von Seyffertitz. Burlly ship stoker Bancroft marries the suicidal girl he saved from the drink, first taking her for granted, then coming to love her. A rival to SUNRISE as the visual apogee of silent cinema, though the smoky hues of von Sternberg's waterfront dive can fully be appreciated only on the big screen. Gaylord Carter's organ score on the video version is a big plus. ▼

Doc Savage: The Man of Bronze (1975) C-100m. ½ D: Michael Anderson. Ron Ely, Darrell Zwerling, Michael Miller, Pamela Hensley, Paul Wexler, Robyn Hilton, William Lucking, Paul Gleason. Film debut of Kenneth Robeson's pulp hero was sold (and accepted) as camp; in reality, it's a straight-faced period adventure that just came out at the wrong time. Story has Doc (Ely) and his Fabulous Five heading to South America to investigate his father's death, tangling with evil Captain Seas (Wexler). Fun for kids and buffs, with amusing score built around Sousa marches; final film of producer George Pal. [G] ▼●●

Doctor, The (1991) C-125m.  D: Randa Haines. William Hurt, Christine Lahti, Elizabeth Perkins, Mandy Patinkin, Adam Arkin, Charlie Korsmo, Wendy Crewson, Bill Macy. Successful surgeon is diagnosed with throat cancer—and for the first time in his career, learns what it's like to be a patient at the mercy of cold-blooded doctors and a bureaucratic hospital. Perkins stands out in a showy role as fellow cancer patient. Engrossing, well acted, and utterly believable; based on Dr. Ed Rosenbaum's own experiences, described in his book A Taste of My Own Medicine. [PG-13] ▼●●

Doctor and the Devils, The (1985) C-93m.  D: Freddie Francis. Timothy Dalton, Jonathan Pryce, Twiggy, Julian Sands,

Stephen Rea, Phyllis Logan, Beryl Reid, Patrick Stewart, Sian Phillips. Serious-minded but unsuccessful (and unappealing) Gothic tale of grave robbers who supply a dedicated doctor who's content not to ask too many questions. Based on a 1940s screenplay by Dylan Thomas, revised by Ronald Harwood. Reminiscent of vintage Hammer horror films; no coincidence, with veteran Francis directing. Made in England. J-D-C Scope. [R]▼

Doctor at Large (1957-British) C-98m. ½ D: Ralph Thomas. Dirk Bogarde, Muriel Pavlow, Donald Sinden, James Robertson Justice, Shirley Eaton, Derek Farr, Michael Medwin, George Coulouris, Anne Heywood, Lionel Jeffries, Mervyn Johns, Ernest Thesiger. Another entry in pleasing series, with novice doctor Bogarde seeking staff position in wealthy hospital. VistaVision.▼

Doctor at Sea (1955-British) C-93m. ½ D: Ralph Thomas. Dirk Bogarde, Brigitte Bardot, Brenda de Banzie, James Robertson Justice, Maurice Denham, Michael Medwin, Raymond Huntley. Preferring the bachelor life, Bogarde signs on as ship's doctor on passenger-carrying freighter, in second entry of this entertaining series. VistaVision.▼

Doctor Blood's Coffin (1961-British) C-92m. ½ D: Sidney Furie. Kieron Moore, Hazel Court, Ian Hunter, Fred Johnson. In Cornwall, young scientist holes up in an abandoned tin mine to work on his theory that placing a live heart in a corpse will bring it back to life. He's right, as it turns out, but unfortunately he's also crazy. . . . Crude but lively imitation-Hammer horror opus.▼●

Doctor Death, Seeker of Souls (1973) C-73m. *½ D: Eddie Saeta. John Considine, Barry Coe, Cheryl Miller, Florence Marly, Jo Morrow. Cheap horror item about the transferring of souls by 1,000-year-old Considine. Few effective moments include The Three Stooges' Moe Howard in a gag bit. Aka DOCTOR DEATH. [R]▼

Doctor Detroit (1983) C-89m.  D: Michael Pressman. Dan Aykroyd, Howard Hesseman, T. K. Carter, Donna Dixon, Lynn Whitfield, Lydia Lei, Fran Drescher, Kate Murtagh, George Furth, Andrew Duggan, Glenn Headly, James Brown. Wimpy college professor becomes embroiled with pimps, prostitutes, and underworld intrigue, but the results are surprisingly bland, and only sporadically funny. Story by Bruce Jay Friedman. Aykroyd later married costar Dixon. [R]▼●

Doctor Dolittle (1967) C-144m. *½ D: Richard Fleischer. Rex Harrison, Samantha Eggar, Anthony Newley, Richard Attenborough, Peter Bull, Geoffrey Holder. Robert Surtees' photography is great, and that's it for this colossal musical dud that almost ruined 20th Century-Fox studios. The charm of Hugh Lofting's stories is gone. One merit: if you have unruly children, it may put them to sleep. Songs by Leslie Bricusse (including the Oscar-winning "Talk to the Animals") and choreography by Herbert Ross. Oscar winner for special visual effects. Originally 152m. Remade in 1998. Todd-AO.▼●

Doctor Faustus (1967-British) C-93m.  D: Richard Burton, Nevill Coghill. Richard Burton, Andreas Teuber, Ian Marter, Elizabeth Taylor. Burton's retelling of Faustus legend lacks everything but a buxom Mrs. Burton in brief sequence as Helen of Troy. Strictly for their fans.▼

Doctor In Clover (1965-British) C-101m.  D: Ralph Thomas. Leslie Phillips, James Robertson Justice, Shirley Anne Field, John Fraser, Joan Sims. New doctor, same old zany situations in sixth entry of series. Doctor studies nurses more than medicine. Not up to the others' standard.

Doctor In Distress (1963-British) C-102m. ½ D: Ralph Thomas. Dirk Bogarde, Samantha Eggar, James Robertson Justice, Mylene Demongeot, Donald Houston, Barbara Murray, Dennis Price, Leo McKern. Pompous chief surgeon falls in love for the first time, and his assistant tries to help the romance along while balancing his own love life. Another entertaining entry in comedy series. Bogarde's last appearance as Dr. Sparrow.▼

Doctor in the House (1954-British) C-92m. ½ D: Ralph Thomas. Dirk Bogarde, Muriel Pavlow, Kenneth More, Donald Sinden, Kay Kendall, James Robertson Justice, Donald Houston, Suzanne Cloutier, Geoffrey Keen, George Coulouris, Shirley Eaton, Joan Hickson, Richard Wattis. Hilarious comedy follows exploits of medical students intent on studying beautiful women and how to become wealthy physicians. This delightful film (from Richard Gordon's stories) spawned six other "Doctor'' movies, plus a TV series. Justice memorable as Sir Lancelot Spratt. Scripted by Gordon, Ronald Wilkenson, and costar Nicholas Phipps.▼

Doctor in Trouble (1970-British) C-90m.  D: Ralph Thomas. Leslie Phillips, Harry Secombe, James Robertson Justice, Angela Scouler, Irene Handl, Robert Morley. Fair entry in the on-and-off British comedy series concerns Dr. Phillips' problems when he stows away on ocean liner; good supporting cast help a bit. [R]▼

Doctor Mordrid (1992) C-89m. ½ D: Albert and Charles Band. Jeffrey Combs, Yvette Nipar, Brian Thompson, Jay Acovone, Keith Coulouris, Ritch Brinkley, Pearl Shear, Murray Rubin, Jeff Austin, John Apicella. A woman discovers her reclusive neighbor is a powerful sorcerer sworn to save the world from his evil counterpart. Satisfying little movie, confident of its intent, with a sensitive performance by Combs. From Full Moon. [R]▼

Doctor Rhythm (1938) 80m. ½ D: Frank Tuttle. Bing Crosby, Mary Carlisle, Beatrice Lillie, Andy Devine, Laura Hope Crews, Sterling Holloway. Amiable but second-rate Crosby vehicle about doctor who masquerades as cop and falls in love with woman he's assigned to guard. Lillie adds her distinctive spark.

Doctor's Dilemma (1958-British) C-99m.  D: Anthony Asquith. Leslie Caron, Dirk Bogarde, Alastair Sim, Robert Morley. Bubbly Shaw period play of young wife Caron conniving to convince medical specialists that her scoundrel husband is worth saving.

Doctors Wear Scarlet SEE: Bloodsuckers (1970)

Doctors' Wives (1971) C-100m. *½ D: George Schaefer. Dyan Cannon, Richard Crenna, Gene Hackman, Rachel Roberts, Carroll O'Connor, Janice Rule, Diana Sands, Cara Williams, Ralph Bellamy. Super-sudsy soaper sparked by mysterious murder of cheating wife; glossy garbage. Scripted by a slumming Daniel Taradash. [R]▼

Doctor Syn (1937-British) 80m. ½ D: Roy William Neill. George Arliss, Margaret Lockwood, John Loder, Roy Emerton, Graham Moffatt. Arliss' final film finds aging star somewhat miscast as English vicar who rides at night as a pirate, but director Neill keeps things moving at his usual pace, and the atmosphere is rich. Remade twice in 1962—as NIGHT CREATURES and DR. SYN, ALIAS THE SCARECROW.▼

Doctor Takes a Wife, The (1940) 89m.  D: Alexander Hall. Ray Milland, Loretta Young, Reginald Gardiner, Gail Patrick, Edmund Gwenn, Frank Sully, Gordon Jones. Milland is mistaken for Young's husband, then forced to pretend he is.

Stars and material spark each other at a lively pace.▼

Doctor X (1932) C-80m.  D: Michael Curtiz. Lionel Atwill, Fay Wray, Lee Tracy, Preston Foster, Robert Warwick, Mae Busch. Police have tracked the "full-moon strangler" to Atwill's experimental laboratory. Ludicrous Grand Guignol chiller (Wray's entrance has her screaming—for no reason at all) is a must for horror-film buffs because of its Anton Grot sets, special Max Factor makeup, and rich use of two-color Technicolor . . . but it creaks badly and seems much longer than it is.▼

Doctor, You've Got to Be Kidding (1967) C-94m. BOMB D: Peter Tewksbury. Sandra Dee, George Hamilton, Celeste Holm, Bill Bixby, Dick Kallman, Mort Sahl, Dwayne Hickman. Dee would rather marry the boss than pursue singing career. Even her singing might have helped this alleged comedy. Panavision.

Doctor Zhivago (1965) C-197m. ½ D: David Lean. Omar Sharif, Julie Christie, Geraldine Chaplin, Tom Courtenay, Alec Guinness, Siobhan McKenna, Ralph Richardson, Rod Steiger, Rita Tushingham, Adrienne Corri, Geoffrey Keen, Jeffrey Rockland, Klaus Kinski, Jack MacGowran, Tarek Sharif. Sumptuous, sprawling epic from Boris Pasternak's acclaimed novel; Sharif is charismatic as Russian poet/doctor, an orphan who marries aristocratic Chaplin but falls in love with politicized nurse Christie. Spans several decades, including WW1 and Bolshevik Revolution, with stirring crowd scenes, gorgeous romantic vistas (set to Maurice Jarre's sweeping music) and a powerful exodus sequence on train. Overlong, but with top production values and superb acting in every role. Won Oscars for screenplay (Robert Bolt), cinematography (Freddie Young), art direction—set decoration (John Box and Terry Marsh; Dario Simoni), costume design (Phyllis Dalton), and score. Reissued at 180m. Remade as a cable miniseries in 2003. Panavision.▼

Dodes'ka-den (1970-Japanese) C-140m. ½ D: Akira Kurosawa. Yoshitaka Zushi, Tomoko Yamazaki, Hiroshi Akutagawa, Noboru Mitani. Episodic chronicle of life in a Tokyo slum; characters include a little boy who feeds himself and derelict dad by scrounging garbage—together, they visualize a dream house; a wan girl who makes artificial flowers to support her alcoholic stepfather; etc. Kurosawa's first film in color. Originally 244m.▼

Dodgeball: A True Underdog Story (2004) C-92m. ½ D: Rawson Marshall Thurber. Ben Stiller, Vince Vaughn, Christine Taylor, Rip Torn, Justin Long, Stephen Root, Gary Cole, Hank Azaria, Alan Tudyk, Missi Pyle, Jason Bateman. Vaughn's dilapidated gym is about to go belly-up and be taken over by snazzier rival Stiller, and it takes 17 minutes in a movie called DODGEBALL to establish that he's going to alleviate his debts by fielding a bunch of guys and a ringer babe who play . . . oh come on, venture a guess. Affable enough, with some funny surprise cameos and the seductive sight of Tom in shoulder-length hair . . . and an excess of gross-out gags. Still coproduced. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Dodge City (1939) C-105m.  D: Michael Curtiz. Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Frank McHugh, Alan Hale, John Litel, Victor Jory, Ward Bond. Errol tames the West and de Havilland, in entertaining large-scale Western, with Warner Bros. stock company and the granddaddy of all barroom brawls. The principal inspiration for BLAZING SADDLES. ▼

Dodsworth (1936) 101m. * D: William Wyler. Walter Huston, Ruth Chatterton, Paul Lukas, Mary Astor, David Niven, Gregory Gaye, Maria Ouspenskaya, Spring Byington, Harlan Briggs. Superb adaptation of Sinclair Lewis novel about middle-aged American industrialist who retires, goes to Europe, where he and his wife find differing sets of values and new relationships. Intelligently written (by Sidney Howard), beautifully filmed, extremely well acted, with Huston recreating his Broadway role. John Payne (billed as John Howard Payne) makes screen debut in small role. Won Oscar for Interior Decoration (Richard Day). Unusually mature Hollywood film, not to be missed. ▼

Dog Day (1983-French) C-101m. ½ D: Yves Boisset. Miou Miou, Lee Marvin, Jean Carmet, Victor Lanoux, David Benent, Bernadette Lafont, Jean-Pierre Kalfon, Pierre Clementi. Tina Louise. Intriguing if gratuitously violent thriller about a tough but doomed American gangster on the lam (Marvin, well cast) who hides out on the farm of a deprived French family. Fairly effective as an ode to the mythical image of the American screen hood. Panavision. ▼

Dog Day Afternoon (1975) C-124m. ½ D: Sidney Lumet. Al Pacino, John Cazale, Charles Duming, James Broderick, Chris Sarandon, Sully Boyar, Penny Allen, Carol Kane, Lance Henriksen, Dick Anthony Williams, Philip Charles Mackenzie. Incredible-but-true story of a loser who holds up a Brooklyn bank to raise money for his lover's sex-change operation, and sees simple heist snowball into a citywide incident. Pacino's performance and Lumet's flavorful N.Y.C. atmosphere obscure the fact that this is much ado about nothing. Frank Pierson won an Oscar for his screenplay (based on an article by P. F. Kluge and Thomas Moore). [R] ▼

Dogfight (1991) C-92m. ½ D: Nancy Savoca. River Phoenix, Lili Taylor, Richard Panebianco, Anthony Clark, Mitchell Whitfield, Holly Near, E. G. Daily, Brendan

Fraser. Title refers to a cruel wager by Vietnam-bound Marines in 1963 San Francisco. Taylor (superb) is a physically plain folkie who becomes an unwitting partner in Phoenix's attempt to bring the ugliest "date" to a party. Original, barely released sleeper is surprisingly unawkward, thanks to a good script by Bob Comfort and Savoca's tough direction. Unusually apt use of period music. [R] ▼

Dogma (1999) C-135m. ½ D: Kevin Smith. Matt Damon, Ben Affleck, Linda Fiorentino, Alan Rickman, Chris Rock, Salma Hayek, Jason Lee, Kevin Smith, Jason Mewes, George Carlin, Alanis Morissette, Janeane Garofalo, Bud Cort. Ambitious comic fantasy in which age-old battles between outcast angels, Lucifer, and God are played out in modern-day America, as a young woman who's lost her faith (Fiorentino) is chosen to save humanity. Irreverent, to say the least; challenging and clever at times, but also puerile and silly, not to mention long. Smith and Mewes reprise their characters from Smith's earlier films. Smith also scripted. Super 35. [R] ▼

Dog of Flanders, A (1999) C-100m. *½ D: Kevin Brodie. Jack Warden, Jeremy James Kissner, Jesse James, Jon Voight, Cheryl Ladd, Steven Hartley, Bruce McGill, Andrew Bicknell. A 19th-century Belgian boy rescues an abandoned dog and uses him to pull a milk-delivery cart for him and his grandfather . . . but the boy really longs to be a painter like the great Reubens. Despite excellent photography of Belgian locations, this adaptation of Ouida's classic children's novel is a joyless, anachronistic, moralistic snoozer. Previously made in 1935, 1959, and in 1975 as a Japanese animated feature. [PG] ▼

Dog Park (1999-U.S.-Canadian) C-91m. *½ D: Bruce McCulloch. Natasha Henstridge, Luke Wilson, Kathleen Robertson, Janeane Garofalo, Bruce McCulloch, Kristin Lehman, Harland Williams. Howlingly bad romantic comedy squanders cute premise about a group of Toronto singles whose lackluster love lives affect their pet pooches. Self-absorbed, unlikely lead characters and meandering subplots don't help. Inauspicious writing-directing debut from Kids in the Hall alum McCulloch; only laughs come from fellow Kids member Mark McKinney as a pet therapist. [R] ▼

Dogpound Shuffle (1975) C-95m.  D: Jeffrey Bloom. Ron Moody, David Soul, Pamela McMyler, Ray Stricklyn, Raymond Sutton. Unpretentious little fable about cynical ex-vaudevillian tap-dancer—now a bum—who must raise $30 to rescue his dog from the pound. Funny and wistful, with excellent character performance by Moody. Aka SPOT. [PG] ▼

Dogs of War, The (1980-British) C-102m.  D: John Irvin. Christopher Walken,

Tom Berenger, Colin Blakely, Hugh Mil-lais, Paul Freeman, JoBeth Williams, Ed O'Neill. Appropriately mean if overly somber adaptation of the Frederick Forsyth best-seller about a mercenary who tangles with an Amin-like dictator in an African hell-hole. Will not promote one-worldism, but Walken takes a screen beating nearly as impressively as Brando. British running time 118m. [R]▼●●

Dog Soldiers SEE: Who'll Stop the Rain

Dogtown and Z-Boys (2002) C-90m. ½ D: Stacy Peralta. Narrated by Sean Penn. Exuberant, impassioned documentary of the pioneering Zephyr skateboarders, a group of misfit Venice, California, teens who revived the sport in the '70s and became overnight media sensations . . . and their bittersweet present-day reunion. Made by Peralta, one of the original thrasher stars of the group. Features candid interviews, a terrific classic rock soundtrack, and amazing footage of their killer moves gliding on the walls of drained swimming pools. Later transformed into a Hollywood feature, THE LORDS OF DOG-TOWN. [PG-13]▼●

Dogville (2003-Danish-Swedish-British-French-German-Dutch) C-177m. ½ D: Lars von Trier. Nicole Kidman, Harriet Andersson, Lauren Bacall, Jean-Marc Barr, Paul Bettany, Blair Brown, James Caan, Patricia Clarkson, Jeremy Davies, Ben Gazzara, Philip Baker Hall, Siobhan Fallon Hogan, Željko Ivanek, Udo Kier, Cleo King, Chloë Sevigny, Stellan Skarsgård; narrated by John Hurt. Provocative and offbeat drama about enigmatic fugitive Kidman, who stumbles into an isolated 1930s Rocky Mountain hamlet and has a disturbing effect on the close-knit community. Dark, avant garde morality tale, with overtly theatrical staging (à la Our Town), fresh casting, and superior acting. Long, demanding, but fascinating and worthwhile. Written by the director. Followed by MANDERLAY. HD 24P Widescreen. [R]▼●

Doing Time (1979-British) C-95m. ½ D: Dick Clement. Ronnie Barker, Richard Beckinsale, Fulton Mackay, Brian Wilde, Peter Vaughan. Barker is a delight as a habitual prison inmate who inadvertently escapes—and wants back in! Reportedly not as funny as the TV series on which it's based, but that's usually the case with feature spinoffs. (The show was tried on American TV as On the Rocks.) Original British title: PORRIDGE.

Doin' It SEE: First Time, The (1983)

the John Dillinger Memorial Penitentiary (yuk, yuk). [R]▼

Doin' Time on Planet Earth (1988) C-83m. ½ D: Charles Matthau. Nicholas Strouse, Andrea Thompson, Hugh Gillin, Adam West, Candice Azzara, Hugh O'Brian, Matt Adler, Timothy Patrick Murphy, Roddy McDowall, Maureen Stapleton. Fresh-feeling but thin teen comedy about boy who feels literally alienated from his family and their Holiday Inn home: cheerful wackos West and Azzara convince him that he's really an alien born on Earth, destined to lead others back to the stars. Amusingly designed, inventively directed, but aimless. [PG]▼

Dolemite (1975) C-88m. *½ D: D'Urville Martin. Rudy Ray Moore, Jerry Jones, Lady Reed. Occasionally funny but amateurish vehicle for standup comedian Moore (who also produced the film), a stout nonactor who combines the personality of Mr. T with a rhyming rap routine. Karate gangster spoof is set in the milieu of black nightclubs where Moore performs. [R]▼●

$(Dollars) (1971) C-119m. ½ D: Richard Brooks. Warren Beatty, Goldie Hawn, Gert Frobe, Robert Webber, Scott Brady. Top-notch caper thriller (scripted by the director) set in Germany with unusual chase that goes on for more than a fifth of the film. Awfully similar to PERFECT FRIDAY. Bouncy Quincy Jones score. [R]▼●●

Dollman (1991) C-86m. BOMB D: Albert Pyun. Tim Thomerson, Jackie Earle Haley, Kamala Lopez, Humberto Ortiz, Nicholas Guest, Judd Owen. Tough alien cop (from a planet identical to a slightly futuristic Earth) chases a villainous flying head to our planet, but surprise! The cop is only 13 inches tall. Underproduced trifle with poor FX and a deadly slow pace. Followed by DOLLMAN VS. THE DEMONIC TOYS. [R]▼●●

Dolls (1987) C-77m.  D: Stuart Gordon. Ian Patrick Williams, Carolyn Purdy-Gordon, Carrie Lorraine, Guy Rolfe, Hilary Mason, Bunty Bailey, Cassie Stuart, Stephen Lee. OK horror from the director of RE-ANIMATOR has unsuspecting people taking shelter from a storm in mansion owned by elderly couple who make murderous dolls. Nothing special here. [R]▼●●

Doll's House, A (1973-British) C-105m. ½ D: Patrick Garland. Claire Bloom, Anthony Hopkins, Ralph Richardson, Denholm Elliott, Anna Massey, Edith Evans. Bloom and Hopkins give thoughtful performances in this rather stagy filmization of Ibsen's play. Still, the words are there and the play is a strong statement about women's (and all people's) rights to be human beings. [G]▼●

Doll's House, A (1973-British) C-106m. ½ D: Joseph Losey. Jane Fonda, David Warner, Trevor Howard, Delphine Seyrig, Edward Fox. Moderately successful, cinematic version of Ibsen play, worth a look for

Fonda's controversial interpretation of a 19th-century liberated woman. Howard shines as the dying Dr. Rank. [G]▼

Doll Squad, The (1973) C-101m. BOMB D: Ted V. Mikels. Michael Ansara, Francine York, Anthony Eiseley, John Carter, Rafael Campos, Lisa Todd. Sexy York leads her all-female trio against ex-CIA agent Ansara, out to rule the world. Poorly made and boring, with very little action. Interesting only as a forerunner to Charlie's Angels; the smart one's even named Sabrina! Aka HUSTLER SQUAD. [PG]▼

Dolly Sisters, The (1945) C-114m. ½ D: Irving Cummings. Betty Grable, John Payne, June Haver, S. Z. Sakall, Reginald Gardiner, Frank Latimore. Sassy hokum about popular vaudeville sister act with two lovely stars and a bevy of old song favorites, plus newly written "I Can't Begin to Tell You."▼●●

Dolores Claiborne (1995) C-131m. ½ D: Taylor Hackford. Kathy Bates, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Judy Parfitt, Christopher Plummer, David Strathairn, Eric Bogosian, John C. Reilly, Ellen Muth, Bob Gunton. A Maine woman is accused of murdering her longtime employer, which brings her estranged daughter home for the first time in years. Now, the two women begin to sort out unanswered questions from the past. Gripping adaptation of Stephen King's novel (by Tony Gilroy) holds your interest from start to finish, as the real story unfolds. Bates' performance is a powerhouse, and the rest of the cast is equally fine. Kudos, too, to Hackford's arresting visual treatment. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Domestic Disturbance (2001) C-89m. ½ D: Harold Becker. John Travolta, Vince Vaughn, Teri Polo, Matt O'Leary, Steve Buscemi, Ruben Santiago-Hudson, Susan Floyd. Divorced but devoted dad Travolta is wary of the man his ex is about to marry, all the more so after his son is eyewitness to a crime that no one will believe took place. Straightforward thriller where, for a change, everything adds up—but perhaps it's a little too neat. An ideal role for Travolta, with Buscemi a standout as Vaughn's sleazy friend. J-D-C Scope. [PG-13]▼

Dominick and Eugene (1988) C-111m.  D: Robert M. Young. Tom Hulce, Ray Liotta, Jamie Lee Curtis, Todd Graff, Mimi Cecchini, Robert Levine, Bill Cobbs, David Strathairn. Heartrending story of a bright young intern (Liotta) and his devotion to a childlike twin brother (Hulce) who needs looking after. An overtly sentimental, sometimes melodramatic, but completely affecting story of love, compassion and responsibility. Hulce's performance as the sweet-natured, slow-witted Dominick is superb. [PG-13]▼●●

Dominion: Prequel to The Exorcist (2005) C-117m.  D: Paul Schrader. Stellan Skarsgård, Gabriel Mann, Clara Bellar,

Billy Crawford, Ralph Brown. Years before exorcising Regan MacNeil in THE EXORCIST, Father Merrin battles internal and external demons during an archaeological dig in East Africa. This film became notorious when it was scrubbed and Renny Harlin was hired to remake it from scratch as EXORCIST: THE BEGINNING. Schrader's version (subsequently saved from movie limbo) is significantly more elegant, ambitious, and thoughtful and Skarsgård gives an effective performance. But in spite of all this, it's still pretty dull. Univision. [R]▼
