King of the Gypsies (1978) C-112m. ½ D: Frank Pierson. Eric Roberts, Judd Hirsch, Susan Sarandon, Sterling Hayden, Annette O'Toole, Brooke Shields, Shelley Winters, Annie Potts, Michael V. Gazzo, Michael Higgins, Mary Louise Wilson, Matthew Laborteaux, Danielle Brisebois, Patti LuPone, Linda Manz, Tom Mason, Rachel Ticotin. Loose adaptation of Peter Maas' best-seller about three generations of gypsies in N.Y.C. Dying Hayden passes tribe leadership to grandson Roberts (in his film debut), skipping over sleazy son Hirsch, who promptly sets out to kill his offspring. Initially fascinating melodrama turns into conventional chase thriller, but still intriguing, with fine acting, moody Sven Nykvist photography, and infectious score by David Grisman and Stephane Grappelli (who also appear in the film). [R] ▼

King of the Hill (1993) C-103m. ½ D: Steven Soderbergh. Jesse Bradford, Jeroen Krabbé, Lisa Eichhorn, Karen Allen, Spalding Gray, Elizabeth McGovern, Joseph Chrest, Adrien Brody, Cameron Boyd, Amber Benson, Kristin Griffith, Remak Ramsay, Katherine Heigl. A 12-year-old St. Louis boy, whose mother is ill and whose flaky father is often away, is forced to fend for himself in the depths of the Great Depression, using his wits to survive against extraordinary odds. One of the most vivid depictions of the Depression ever captured on film; full of rich, often harrowing detail that draws us in to vicariously experience everything young Aaron (Bradford) is going through. Director Soderbergh also scripted this adaptation of the memoir by A. E. Hotchner. Exceptional in every way. Super-35. [PG-13] ▼

King of the Khyber Rifles (1953) C-100m. ½ D: Henry King. Tyrone Power, Terry Moore, Michael Rennie, John Justin. Power is half-caste British officer involved in native skirmishes, Moore the general's daughter he loves. Film version of Talbot Mundy's novel lacks finesse or any sense of Kipling-style reality-fantasy. CinemaScope.

King of the Mountain (1981) C-90m.  D: Noel Nosseck. Harry Hamlin, Joseph Bottoms, Deborah Van Valkenburgh, Richard Cox, Dennis Hopper, Dan Haggerty, Seymour Cassel. Garage mechanic Hamlin and friends guzzle beer and race their cars down L.A.'s treacherous Mulholland Drive. Pretentious, clichéd script and situations, with superficial and obvious finale. Hopper overacts outrageously as a burned-out former king of the Drive. Inspired by David Barry's feature in New West magazine. [PG] ▼

King of the Roaring 20's—The Story of Arnold Rothstein (1961) 106m. ½ D: Joseph M. Newman. David Janssen, Diane Foster, Jack Carson, Diana Dors, Mickey Rooney. Slow-paced narrative of famous gambler's rise and fall miscasts lead role (real Rothstein was short and fat), slightly whitewashes him, and gets most of the facts wrong. Stray gangster-movie elements are inappropriately added. ▼

King of the Underworld (1939) 69m.  D: Lewis Seiler. Humphrey Bogart, Kay Francis, James Stephenson, John Eldredge, Jessie Busley. Far-fetched tale of doctor Francis, falsely linked to gangster Bogart, the "last of the public enemies," setting out to prove her innocence. Remake of DR. SOCRATES.

Kings and Desperate Men (1983-Canadian) C-118m. *½ D: Alexis Kanner. Patrick McGoohan, Alexis Kanner, Andrea Marcovici, Margaret Trudeau, Robin Spry, Frank Moore. Abrasive talk-show host McGoohan is held hostage in his studio by amateurish terrorists seeking public forum to debate plight of their comrade, convicted of manslaughter. Interesting premise sabotaged by poor direction, choppy editing. McGoohan overacts shamelessly. Trudeau has limited footage as his wife. [PG-13]▼

Kings Go Forth (1958) 109m.  D: Delmer Daves. Frank Sinatra, Tony Curtis, Natalie Wood, Leora Dana, Karl Swenson. Soapy but well-done three-cornered romance, set in WW2 France. Two GI buddies both fall for same girl, unaware that she is half-black. Script by Merle Miller; several jazz greats, including Red Norvo and Pete Candoli, put in appearances.▼●●

Kings of the Road (1976-German) 176m. ½ D: Wim Wenders. Rudiger Vogler, Hanns Zischler, Lisa Kreuzer, Rudolf Schundler, Marquard Bohm. Deliberately slow, introspective, disarming tale (written by the director) of itinerant cinema mechanic Vogler, traveling with Zischler along the underpopulated, forgotten border regions between East and West Germany—a dying area that serves as a metaphor for the decline of the German film industry. It's also about cars, rock 'n' roll, and the American cultural imperialism of Wenders' homeland. The last (and best) in Wenders' "road movie" trilogy, after ALICE IN THE CITIES and WRONG MOVE.▼

Kings of the Sun (1963) C-108m. ½ D: J. Lee Thompson. Yul Brynner, George Chakiris, Shirley Anne Field, Richard Basehart, Brad Dexter. Skin-deep spectacle, badly cast, telling of Mayan leader who comes to America with surviving tribesmen and encounters savage Indians. Filmed in Mexico. Panavision.▶

King Solomon's Mines (1937-British) 80m.  D: Robert Stevenson. Paul Robeson, Cedric Hardwicke, Roland Young, John Loder, Anna Lee. Robust adventure given full-blooded treatment by fine cast, exploring Africa in search of treasure-filled mines. One of Robeson's best screen roles even allows him to sing. H. Rider Haggard story remade in 1950, 1985, and for TV in 2004.▼▶

King Solomon's Mines (1950) C-102m. ½ D: Compton Bennett, Andrew Marton. Deborah Kerr, Stewart Granger, Richard Carlson, Hugo Haas. Remake of H. Rider Haggard story is given polished production, with Granger-Kerr-Carlson trio leading safari in search for legendary diamond mines. Scripted by Helen Deutsch. This won Oscars for Cinematography (Robert Surtees) and Editing; excess footage used in WATUSI and other later jungle films.▼●●

King Solomon's Mines (1985) C-100m. *½ D: J. Lee Thompson. Richard Chamberlain, Sharon Stone, Herbert Lom, John Rhys-Davies, Ken Gampu. H. Rider Haggard's adventure yarn is updated for the Indiana Jones generation, but the results are unsuccessful. Cartoon characters and outlandish cliffhanger situations abound—but where's the charm? Followed by sequel (shot simultaneously), ALLAN QUATERMAIN AND THE LOST CITY OF GOLD. J-D-C Scope. [PG-13]▼▶

King Solomon's Treasure (1977-Canadian-British) C-89m. *½ D: Alvin Rakoff. David McCallum, John Colicos, Patrick Macnee, Britt Ekland, Yvon Dufour, Ken Gampu, Wilfrid Hyde-White. Silly, low-budget adaptation of H. Rider Haggard's Allan Quatermain has miscast trio of Colicos, McCallum (with comedy-relief stutter) and Macnee hunting for African treasure, fighting off dinosaurs and meeting Phoenician queen Ekland. Despite ob-

King's Pirate, The (1967) C-100m. ½ D: Don Weis. Doug McClure, Jill St. John, Guy Stockwell, Mary Ann Mobley. Cardboard, juvenile swashbuckler set in 18th century, with McClure the nominal hero. Remake of AGAINST ALL FLAGS.

King's Ransom (2005) C-97m. *½ D: Jeff Byrd. Anthony Anderson, Jay Mohr, Kellita Smith, Nicole Parker, Regina Hall, Loretta Devine, Donald Faison, Charlie Murphy, Jackie Burroughs. Stereotypes abound in this entirely unfunny comedy. A wealthy mogul (Anderson), hated by everyone around him, attempts to get out of paying off his ex-wife-to-be by having himself kidnapped, unaware that someone else is really planning to abduct him. Screwball antics and obvious mix-ups add up to naught, even with this talented cast. [PG-13] ▼

Kings Row (1942) 127m. ½ D: Sam Wood. Ann Sheridan, Robert Cummings, Ronald Reagan, Betty Field, Charles Coburn, Claude Rains, Judith Anderson, Maria Ouspenskaya. Forerunner of PEYTON PLACE still retains its sweep of life in pre-WWI Midwestern town, with the fates of many townsfolk intertwined. Beautiful Erich Wolfgang Korngold music score backs up plush production, fine characterizations. Notable, too, as Reagan's finest performance. Screenplay by Casey Robinson, from Henry Bellamann's best-selling book. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

King's Thief, The (1955) C-78m.  D: Robert Z. Leonard. Ann Blyth, Edmund Purdom, David Niven, George Sanders, Roger Moore, John Dehner, Sean McClory. The king is England's Charles II (Sanders) and the thief is brash Purdom, whose pilfering of a valuable book sets off plenty of intrigue in this lavish costumer. Niven makes a fine villain. CinemaScope. ▼

King's Whore, The (1990-French-Austrian-British-Italian) C-115m. ½ D: Axel Corti. Timothy Dalton, Valeria Golino, Stephane Freiss, Feodor Chaliapin, Margaret Tyzack, Eleanor David, Robin Renucci. Lavishly filmed but dramatically uneven historical melodrama. In the royal court of Piedmont in Northern Italy, king Dalton becomes consumed by his burning desire for beautiful but unwilling Golino, the wife of his chamberlain. Scripted by Corti, Frederic Raphael, and Daniel Vigne. AKA THE KING'S MISTRESS. [R] ▼

Kinjite: Forbidden Subjects (1989) C-97m.  D: J. Lee Thompson. Charles Bronson, Juan Fernandez, James Pax, Kumiko Hayakawa, Perry Lopez, Peggy Lipton, Amy Hathaway, Bill McKinney, Sy Richardson, Alex Hyde-White, Richard Egan, Jr. Glum urban thriller pitting supercop Bronson against scummy pimp Fernandez, who specializes in turning teenage girls to prostitution. Also involved is a Japanese businessman, newly come to L.A., whose daughter is kidnapped by the pimp. Some interesting ideas, but mostly formulaic. [R] ▼

Kinky Boots (2005-British) C-107m. ½ D: Julian Jarrold. Joel Edgerton, Chiwetel Ejiofor, Sarah-Jane Potts, Jemima Rooper, Linda Bassett, Nick Frost, Robert Pugh, Mona Hammond, Stephen Marcus. Comedy in the mold of such feel-good films as THE FULL MONTY and CALENDAR GIRLS, about a transvestite club entertainer who comes to the aid of a young man who's inherited his father's failing shoe factory. When they hatch an idea of creating outrageous boots for man-sized feet they set a course for reinventing the business and saving the soul (or is that sole?) of the company and its workforce. Worth seeing for the high-octane performance of Ejiofor, who looks great in heels and gets to perform such songs as "These Boots Were Made for Walking." Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Kipperbang (1982-British) C-80m. *½ D: Michael Apted. John Albasiny, Alison Steadman, Gary Cooper, Abigail Crutenden, Maurice Lee. Annoyingly lightweight comedy detailing the romantic fantasies and predicaments of young teens and their elders—particularly, their English teacher—in 1948 Britain. Originally made for British television, released here theatrically in 1984. Original title: P'TANG YANG KIPPERBANG. [PG] ▼

Kippur (2000-Israeli) C-117m.  D: Amos Gitai. Liron Levo, Tomer Ruso, Uri Ran Klauzner, Yoram Hattab, Guy Amir, Ran Kauchinsky. A unique vision of the Yom Kippur War as seen through the eyes of two volunteer soldier brothers, both completely unprepared for battle. A painstaking, grueling picture of war. ▼

Craig, Joy Ann Page, Harry Davenport. Colman tries a change of pace playing the "king of beggars," a wily magician whose daughter is wooed by the handsome young Caliph in this plot-heavy Arabian Nights-type tale. Passably entertaining but nothing special, despite opulent MGM production. Best of all is Dietrich, with tongue in cheek and body painted gold for one famous dance scene. Filmed before in 1920 and 1930; remade in 1955 after the Broadway musical version. Retitled ORIENTAL DREAM. ▼

Kismet (1955) C-113m. ½ D: Vincente Minnelli. Howard Keel, Ann Blyth, Dolores Gray, Monty Woolley, Sebastian Cabot, Vic Damone. Handsome but un-inspired filming of the Broadway musical of this Arabian Nights-type tale. Robert Wright-George Forrester songs (based on Borodin themes) include "Stranger in Paradise," "Baubles, Bangles, and Beads." CinemaScope. ▼●●

Kiss, The (1929) 62m.  D: Jacques Feyder. Greta Garbo, Conrad Nagel, Andres Randolph, Holmes Herbert, Lew Ayres, George Davis. Married Garbo gives young Ayres, who is smitten with her, an innocent goodnight kiss, which leads to misunderstanding and tragedy. Sleek, fluidly filmed Garbo vehicle was her last silent and Ayres' first starring role. Farfetched but very enjoyable. ▼●●

Kiss, The (1988) C-101m.  D: Pen Densham. Joanna Pacula, Meredith Salenger, Mimi Kuzyk, Nicholas Kilibertus, Jan Rubes. Occasionally scary horror film builds up to but downplays the sexual implications of its CAT PEOPLE-style story of a family curse passed down to each generation by a woman-to-woman kiss. Salenger is the unlucky target of beautiful aunt Pacula's evil smooch. [R] ▼●●

Kiss and Kill SEE: Blood of Fu Manchu, The

Kiss and Tell (1945) 90m. ½ D: Richard Wallace. Shirley Temple, Jerome Courtland, Walter Abel, Katherine Alexander, Robert Benchley, Porter Hall. Film of successful Broadway play about wacky teenager Corliss Archer is a bit forced but generally funny; one of Temple's better grown-up roles. Sequel: A KISS FOR CORLISS.

Lee, Adam Horovitz. Almost completely ineffectual thriller about an ambitious young sicko who charms—and murders—his way into a powerful family. Young plays twin sisters, enabling us to watch her give two bad performances. Writer-director Dearden even dares to have her looking at Hitchcock's VERTIGO on TV, a reminder (as if we needed one) of the right way to make this kind of film. Ira Levin's novel was filmed before in 1956. [R] ▼●●

Kiss Daddy Good Night (1987) C-89m. *½ D: Peter Ily Huemer. Uma Thurman, Paul Dillon, Paul Richards, Steve Buscemi, Annabelle Gurwitch, David Brisbin. Vague, forgettable melodrama-thriller about a young vamp (Thurman, in her screen debut), who seduces and robs men, and her strange relationship with older bohemian Richards. [R] ▼●

Kissed (1996-Canadian) C-73m. *½ D: Lynne Stopkewich. Molly Parker, Peter Outerbridge, Jay Brazeau, Natasha Morley, Jessie Winter Mudie. A woman infatuated with corpses since childhood gets her dream job working in a mortuary, then meets a man who becomes obsessed with her flirtation with death. Dull, occasionally repulsive thought provoker seeks poetry in necrophilia. Only pluses are Parker and Morley's transfixing performances. Educational value: everything you ever wanted to know about embalming. ▼●

Kiss for Corliss, A (1949) 88m.  D: Richard Wallace. Shirley Temple, David Niven, Tom Tully, Virginia Welles. Puffed-up comedy of teenager Temple convincing everyone that she and playboy Niven are going together; naïve fluff. Limp follow-up to KISS AND TELL with Shirley as Corliss Archer; this was her final film. Retitled ALMOST A BRIDE. ▼●

Kiss From Eddie, A SEE: Arousers, The Kissin' Cousins (1964) C-96m. *½ D: Gene Nelson. Elvis Presley, Arthur O'Connell, Glenda Farrell, Jack Albertson, Pamela Austin, Yvonne Craig, Donald Woods. Elvis has a dual role as military officer trying to convince yokel relative to allow missile site to be built on homestead; good supporting cast, usual amount of singing—mostly forgettable—and dancing. Panavision. ▼●

Kissing a Fool (1998) C-93m. *½ D: Doug Ellin. David Schwimmer, Jason Lee, Mili Avital, Bonnie Hunt, Vanessa Angel, Kari Wuhrer, Bitty Schram. Thoroughly charmless romantic comedy, told via flashback in an irritating narrative form, about a betrothed Chicago sportscaster who badgers a novelist buddy into testing his fiancée's fidelity as he himself is playing around. Subliminally sleazy but wrapped in a cozy sentimental veneer, which means the film doesn't even have the courage of its convictions. A vital is appealing as the pretty book editor who deserves better. Schwimmer also coexecutive-produced. [R]▼●●

Kissing Jessica Stein (2002) C-97m.  D: Charles Herman-Wurmfeld. Jennifer Westfeldt, Heather Juergensen, Scott Cohen, Tovah Feldshuh, Jackie Hoffman, Michael Mastro, Carson Elrod, David Aaron Baker. A single Jewish woman in N.Y.C., tired of looking for Mr. Right, answers a personal ad and hooks up with a woman, which leads to unexpected emotional consequences. Smart, funny romantic comedy that balances sitcom-style moments with clever insights, good supporting characters, and terrific chemistry between Westfeldt and Juergensen, who cowrote the screenplay based on their play Lipschick. [R]▼

Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang (2005) C-102m.  D: Shane Black. Robert Downey, Jr., Val Kilmer, Michelle Monaghan, Corbin Bernsen, Dash Mihok, Larry Miller, Shannyn Sossamon. Thief-turned-actor and a gay detective team up with an aspiring actress (the actor's old flame) to solve several murders. Uneven neo-noir/screwball comedy starts out as mindless entertainment but quickly grows confusing and tiresome. LETHAL WEAPON scribe Black seems awfully impressed with himself for repeatedly having the protagonist break away from the story to mock the film's use of narrative and genre clichés. Enjoyably pulpy characters and charismatic stars make it somewhat bearable. Downey's real-life son plays his character as a boy. Loosely based on a Brett Halliday novel. Super 35. [R]

Kiss Me Deadly (1955) 105m. ½ D: Robert Aldrich. Ralph Meeker, Albert Dekker, Paul Stewart, Cloris Leachman, Wesley Addy, Nick Dennis, Maxine Cooper, Gaby Rodgers, Jack Elam, Strother Martin, Jack Lambert. Meeker is a perfect Mike Hammer in moody, fast, and violent adaptation of Mickey Spillane novel. Years ahead of its time, a major influence on French New Wave

directors, and one of Aldrich's best films. Leachman's film debut. Some video versions have 82 seconds of additional footage that completely change the finale.▼●●

Kiss Me Goodbye (1982) C-101m.  D: Robert Mulligan. Sally Field, James Caan, Jeff Bridges, Paul Dooley, Claire Trevor, Mildred Natwick, Dorothy Fielding, William Prince. Strained romantic comedy-fantasy about young woman who's visited by her dead husband just as she's about to remarry. Attractive cast is pretty much wasted in this reworking of the Brazilian film DONA FLOR AND HER TWO HUSBANDS. [PG]▼

Kiss Me, Guido (1997) C-86m. ½ D: Tony Vitale. Nick Scotti, Anthony Barile, Anthony DeSando, Craig Chester, Dominick Lombardozi, Molly Price, Christopher Lawford. Earnest comedy about a heterosexual Pacino/De Niro wannabe (Scotti) from the Bronx who moves to Manhattan and unknowingly takes a gay roommate. Occasionally funny, even though the set-up is artificial and the characters are stereotypes. Later a TV series: Some of My Best Friends. [R]▼●●

Kiss Me, Stupid (1964) 122m.  D: Billy Wilder. Dean Martin, Ray Walston, Kim Novak, Felicia Farr, Cliff Osmond, Barbara Pepper, Doro Merande, Henry Gibson, John Fiedler, Mel Blanc. Martin plays womanizing crooner named "Dino" whose interest in unsuccessful songwriter Walston might increase if he gets a crack at his wife. Lewd farce (by Wilder and I. A. L. Diamond) was condemned as "smut" when first released, and hasn't improved very much—although it does have its defenders. DVD features the alternate European ending. Panavision.▼●●

Kiss of Death (1947) 98m.  D: Henry Hathaway. Victor Mature, Brian Donlevy, Coleen Gray, Richard Widmark, Karl Malden, Taylor Holmes, Mildred Dunnock. Famous gangster saga is showing its age, with both the cops and robbers a little too polite—except, of course, for Widmark, in his notorious film debut as giggling, psychopathic killer who shoves a wheel-chair-bound old woman down a flight of stairs! Mature is solid as thief who turns state's evidence. Scripted by Ben Hecht and Charles Lederer; filmed on authentic N.Y.C. locations. Remade in 1995. ▼

Kiss of Death (1995) C-101m. ½ D: Barbet Schroeder. David Caruso, Nicolas Cage, Samuel L. Jackson, Helen Hunt, Kathryn Erbe, Stanley Tucci, Michael Rapaport, Ving Rhames, Philip Baker Hall, Anthony Heald, Anne Meara, Kevin Corrigan, Hope Davis. Mediocre '90s remake of '40s crime yarn (with Richard Price script) has Caruso as an ex-con trying to go straight who's swept back into the underworld—then forced to turn stoolie for the D.A. Caruso is OK—nothing more—in first starring film, but Cage is a parody of a mad-dog bad guy. Jackson shines, as usual, in a solid supporting role. Jay O. Sanders appears unbilled as a Federal agent. [R] ▼

Kiss of the Dragon (2001-U.S.-French) C-98m.  D: Chris Nahon. Jet Li, Bridget Fonda, Tch ky Karyo, Ric Young, Burt Kwouk, Laurence Ashley. In Paris on a secret mission, Chinese agent Li is framed for murder by a corrupt French official and has to go on the run. His only ally is mistreated prostitute Fonda. Lots of fights, but not as well staged or photographed as Jet Li's Hong Kong movies. A convoluted plot slows the action, although Karyo is an entertaining villain. Overall, highly forgettable. Cowritten and coproduced by Luc Besson. Technovision. [R] ▼

Kiss of the Spider Woman (1985-U.S.-Brazilian) C/B&W-119m.  D: Hector Babenco. William Hurt, Raul Julia, Sonia Braga, Jose Lewgoy, Nuno Leal Maia, Denise Dumont. Adaptation of Manuel Puig's highly regarded novel actually gets better as it goes along, revealing layers in story of gay man and political activist locked together in South American prison cell. Hurt is superb in Oscar-winning performance as man whose only food for survival is his memory of tacky Hollywood movies. Script by Leonard Schrader. Later a Broadway musical. [R] ▼

Kiss of the Vampire, The (1963-British) C-88m. ½ D: Don Sharp. Clifford Evans, Edward DeSouza, Noel Willman, Jennifer Daniel. Luckless honeymooners run out of petrol in eastern Europe and take refuge in the castle of Count Ravna, leader of a vampire cult. Ornate masked ball anticipates Polanski's FEARLESS VAMPIRE KILLERS. Intelligent Hammer production with many chilling sequences. ▼

Kiss or Kill (1997-Australian) C-93m.  D: Bill Bennett. Matt Day, Frances O'Connor, Chris Haywood, Barry Otto, Andrew S. Gilbert, Barry Langrishe, Max Cullen. Neat, noirish murder mystery with Day and O'Connor well cast as a pair of scam-artists who take it on the lam after their latest dupe unexpectedly dies. The style, impudence, and unusual characters overcome the formulaic story. [R] ▼

Kiss the Blood off My Hands (1948) 80m.  D: Norman Foster. Joan Fontaine, Burt Lancaster, Robert Newton. Disappointing romance-thriller follows the plight of two lost souls, lonely nurse-war widow Fontaine and deeply troubled ex-POW Lancaster, who's on the lam for murder in London. Some potent scenes and good Miklos Rozsa score cannot salvage tepid film.

Kiss the Girls (1997) C-116m. ½ D: Gary Fleder. Morgan Freeman, Ashley Judd, Cary Elwes, Tony Goldwyn, Bill Nunn, Brian Cox, Jeremy Piven, Roma Maffia, Jay O. Sanders, Alex McArthur, Mena Suvari. When a police forensic psychologist learns that his niece has been abducted, he uses his considerable skills to try and identify the culprit—a devious sicko who doesn't kill all his victims, but holds them captive instead. Surprisingly discreet for a '90s film—but in its final segments, increasingly conventional and formulaic. And too long. Freeman is—typically—solid as a rock; Judd is very good as a doctor who refuses to be treated as a victim. Followed by ALONG CAME A SPIDER. Panavision. [R] ▼

Kiss the Girls and Make Them Die (1966-Italian) C-101m. BOMB D: Henry Levin. Michael Connors, Dorothy Provine, Terry-Thomas, Raf Vallone, Beverly Adams, Oliver McGreevy. Dull spy spoof about power-crazy industrialist who has a satellite capable of sterilizing the world, which is something Bond, Flint, and Matt Helm wouldn't mind. Awful film.

Kiss Them for Me (1957) C-105m. ½ D: Stanley Donen. Cary Grant, Jayne Mansfield, Leif Erickson, Suzzy Parker, Larry Blyden, Ray Walston. Forced comedy about romantic entanglements of navy officers on shore leave. CinemaScope.)

Kiss Tomorrow Goodbye (1950) 102m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. James Cagney, Barbara Payton, Luther Adler, Ward Bond, Helena Carter, Steve Brodie, Barton MacLane, Rhys Williams, Frank Reicher, John Litel, William Frawley, Neville Brand, Kenneth Tobey. Violent thriller in the wake of WHITE HEAT, with Cagney as criminal so ruthless he even blackmails crooked cops! Despite impressive cast, Jimmy's practically the whole show; only Adler as shyster lawyer gives him any competition. Cagney's brother William produced—and also plays his brother. ▼

Kitchen Stories (2003-Norwegian-Swedish) C-95m.  D: Bent Hamer. Joachim Calmeyer, Tomas Nordstr m, Bj rn Floberg, Reine Brynolfsson, Sverre Anker Ousdal. Offbeat but warm human comedy set in a remote town in post-WW2 Norway has a research institute sending scientific "observers" to sit in tall chairs in the kitchen corner to study the cooking habits of single men. Although not allowed to speak to the subjects or interrupt any activities, one analyst bends the rules and learns more about himself in the process than he ever possibly imagined. Quirky, completely original movie grows on you as it goes along. Written by Hamer and Jörgen Bergmark. ▼

Kitchen Toto, The (1987) C-96m.  D: Harry Hook. Edwin Mahinda, Bob Peck, Phyllis Logan, Robert Urquhart, Kirsten Hughes, Edward Judd. Moving account of Kenya's final break from British rule in the mid-1950s. This complicated and violent struggle for freedom is told through the eyes of a young "kikuyu" boy slowly drawn into these events when he goes to work in the household of the British police chief after his father is murdered by terrorists. Demanding but ultimately rewarding; first-rate debut for director Hook, who grew up in Kenya during the period depicted here. [PG-13] ▼

Kite Runner, The (2007) C-128m.  D: Marc Forster. Khalid Abdalla, Homayoun Ershadi, Zekiria Ebrahimi, Ahmad Khan Mahmoodzada, Shaun Toub, Nabi Tanha, Saïd Taghmaoui, Atossa Leoni. Iranian man living in San Francisco receives a phone call summoning him home, where he tries to undo a wrong he committed years earlier. In flashback we learn about his boyhood friendship with the son of his father's household servant, their participation in Kabul's kite-flying competition, and the incident that changes both their lives. David Benioff adapted Khaled Hosseini's best-selling novel. Well done, although it never reaches the emotional heights the story calls for. The acting is exceptional, and the faces of the two boys are unforgettable. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Kit Kittredge: An American Girl (2008) C-100m.  D: Patricia Rozema. Abigail Breslin, Joan Cusack, Glenna Headly, Jane Krakowski, Chris O'Donnell, Julia Ormond, Wallace Shawn, Stanley Tucci, Max Thieriot, Willow Smith, Zach Mills. Unusually smart family film with Breslin as a plucky 10-year-old (and aspiring newspaper reporter) who experiences the effects of the Great Depression firsthand in 1934 Cincinnati. Her father leaves home in search of work and her mother is forced to take in boarders, including a magician (Tucci) who bears watching—and not just when he's performing tricks. Evocative look at everyday life in the 1930s has entertainment value for grown-ups as well as kids. Based on Valerie Tripp's stories, which were inspired by a popular line of dolls and books. [G] ▼

nabe senator Forsythe and forcing him to drive to Mexico. ▼

Kitty (1945) 104m.  D: Mitchell Leisen. Paulette Goddard, Ray Milland, Patric Knowles, Reginald Owen, Cecil Kellaway, Constance Collier. Overlong but entertaining costumer of girl's rise from guttersnipe to lady in 18th-century England with help of impoverished rake Milland; one of Goddard's best roles.

Kitty Foyle (1940) 107m. ½ D: Sam Wood. Ginger Rogers, Dennis Morgan, James Craig, Eduardo Ciannelli, Ernest Cossart, Gladys Cooper. Tender love story won Rogers an Oscar as Christopher Morley's working-girl heroine; Ciannelli memorable as speakeasy waiter. ▼

KKK SEE: Klansman, The
Klansman, The (1974) C-112m. BOMB D: Terence Young. Lee Marvin, Richard Burton, Cameron Mitchell, Lola Falana, Luciana Paluzzi, Linda Evans, O. J. Simpson. Thoroughly trashy racial melodrama casts Marvin as a Southern sheriff and Burton as a local landowner who get involved in a hotbed (and hot beds) of racial activity. Original director Sam Fuller (who is still credited as coscripter) wisely took an early hike. Aka THE BURNING CROSS and KKK. [R] ▼

Klimt (2007 - Austrian-German-British-French) C-97m. *½ D: Raúl Ruiz. John Malkovich, Veronica Ferres, Stephen Dillane, Saffron Burrows, Sandra Ceccarelli, Nikolai Kinski. Gorgeous but faux-artsy biopic of the Symbolist radical Gustav Klimt is fop cinema, set in fin de siècle Vienna. Pretentious, factually questionable, and annoyingly hallucinatory, elevated only by the luminous paintings and abundant nudity. A somnolent Malkovich makes not the slightest effort to sound anything but pure Illinoisan. Written by the director, whose version runs 131m. ▼

Klondike Annie (1936) 80m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Mae West, Victor McLaglen, Philip Reed, Helen Jerome Eddy, Harry Beresford, Harold Huber, Soo Young, Lucille Webster Gleason. West and McLaglen are rugged team, with Mae on the lam from police, going to the Yukon and masquerading as Salvation Army worker. West chants "I'm An Occidental Woman in An Oriental Mood For Love." ▼

detective-thriller/character-study, with Sutherland a private-eye searching for suburban husband last seen in N.Y.C. Fonda won Oscar as call girl who once saw man in question. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Knack . . . and How to Get It, The (1965-British) 84m. ½ D: Richard Lester. Rita Tushingham, Ray Brooks, Michael Crawford, Donal Donnelly. One of the funniest comedies ever imported from Britain. One man's a whiz with the ladies, and his buddy simply wants to learn his secret. Fast-moving, constantly funny. Charles Wood adapted Ann Jellicoe's play. Look sharp for Charlotte Rampling (as a water skier) and Jacqueline Bisset.▼●●

Knife in the Head (1978-German) C-113m. ½ D: Reinhard Hauff. Bruno Ganz, Angela Winkler, Hans Christian Blech, Hans Honig, Hans Brenner. Ganz is excellent as a biogeneticist who is paralyzed after being shot in the head in a police raid, then used as a pawn by both police and political radicals. Fascinating, disturbing drama.▼

Knife in the Water (1962-Polish) 94m.  D: Roman Polanski. Leon Niemczyk, Jolanta Umecka, Zygmunt Malanowicz. Absorbing drama grows out of the tensions created when a couple off for a sailing weekend pick up a student hitchhiker. Polanski's first feature film is a brilliant piece of cinematic storytelling, and a must-see movie.▼●●

Knight Moves (1992) C-96m. ½ D: Carl Schenkel. Christopher Lambert, Diane Lane, Tom Skerritt, Daniel Baldwin. Chess master Lambert finds himself a murder suspect during a competition on an island in Washington state. Meanwhile, the killer teases Lambert by providing the chess champion with clues he must decipher for himself. OK thriller; has its moments, but also more than its share of lulls. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Knightriders (1981) C-145m.  D: George A. Romero. Ed Harris, Gary Lahti, Tom Savini, Amy Ingersoll, Patricia Tallman, Christine Forrest, Warner Shook, Brother Blue. Ambitious, unusual film about a traveling band that stages medieval fairs at which knights joust on motorcycles, and their self-styled King Arthur, who tries to get his followers to live under an old-fashioned code of honor. Finely crafted little change-of-pace for horror master Romero, who also wrote the screenplay; Stephen King has a funny cameo as a beer-guzzling spectator. [R]▼●●

Knights of the Round Table (1953) C-115m. ½ D: Richard Thorpe. Robert Taylor, Ava Gardner, Mel Ferrer, Stanley Baker, Felix Aylmer. MGM's first wide-screen film (made in England) was excuse for this pretty but empty mini-spectacle of King Arthur's Court, revealing famous love triangle. CinemaScope.▼●●

Knight's Tale, A (2001) C-132m.  D: Brian Helgeland. Heath Ledger, Mark Addy, Rufus Sewell, Paul Bettany, Shannyn Sossamon, Alan Tudyk, Christopher Cazenove. High-concept moviemaking at its screwiest: a gleefully anachronistic medieval tale of a would-be knight who becomes a jousting champion, set to rock 'n' roll music. If it had gone completely over the top it might be fun, but writer-director Helgeland wants us to care about his characters and story—while undermining them at every turn. Almost rescued by Ledger's star quality and strong supporting performances. (P.S. The jousting itself becomes surprisingly monotonous.) Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Knight Without Armour (1937-British) 101m.  D: Jacques Feyder. Marlene Dietrich, Robert Donat, Irene Vanbrugh, Herbert Lomas, Miles Malleon, David Tree. Secret agent Donat helps countess Dietrich flee Russian revolutionaries. Sumptuous production, charismatic stars.▼●●

K-19 The Widomaker (2002) C-138m. ½ D: Kathryn Bigelow. Harrison Ford, Liam Neeson, Peter Sarsgaard, Joss Ackland, John Shrapnel, Donald Sumpter, Tim Woodward. In 1961, a patriotic Russian naval officer (Ford) takes out a nuclear submarine on its maiden voyage, having just usurped command from a well-liked captain (Neeson) who stays on as executive officer. But the sub, and its crew, are ill prepared for the challenges they will face. Tense and exciting at times, but its main characters' motivations are not always understandable—even less so after a climactic showdown. Much Sturm und Drang in this very long movie, but not enough meaning. Based on a real-life incident. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Knockaround Guys (2002) C-93m. ½ D: David Levien, Brian Koppelman. Barry Pepper, John Malkovich, Vin Diesel, Seth Green, Andrew Davoli, Dennis Hopper, Tom Noonan. Interesting variation on the usual gangster saga, examining the younger generation of today's remaining gangland dinosaurs. Pepper, the son of mob boss Hopper, doesn't have his father's respect, or a career to call his own. He begs for the chance to do something important, so his father finally gives him an assignment, which goes completely awry, sending him and his Brooklyn-based cousins to the wilds of Montana. Good cast and off-beat setting keep this lively, but the finale doesn't entirely add up. Filmed in 1999; re-

Knocked Up (2007) C-129m.  D: Judd Apatow. Seth Rogen, Katherine Heigl, Paul Rudd, Leslie Mann, Jason Segel, Harold Ramis, Jay Baruchel, Joanna Kerns, Jonah Hill, Alan Tudyk, Kristen Wiig, Bill Hader. Fast-rising entertainment reporter (Heigl) finds herself pregnant after a drunken one-night stand with an amiable, scruffy goof-off (Rogen). She decides to have the baby and, to the surprise of both, a wobbly relationship develops between them. Overlong but often hysterically funny comedy is also sweet, romantic, and, despite the exceedingly foul-mouthed dialogue, downright moral. Written by the director. Numerous celebrities appear as themselves. Unrated version also available. [R]●

Knock Off (1998-U.S.-Hong Kong) C-91m. *½ D: Tsui Hark. Jean-Claude Van Damme, Rob Schneider, Lela Rochon, Michael Fitzgerald Wong, Paul Sorvino, Carmen Lee. Van Damme teams up with American agents to combat terrorists. Having Van Damme play a Hong Kong clothing designer/importer in an action film pinned to a plot about designer jeans is peculiar but not interesting . . . which also describes the movie. Director Hark abandons his usual vivid fight choreography for standard swift intercutting instead. Samo Hung appears unbilled. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Knock on Any Door (1949) 100m. ½ D: Nicholas Ray. Humphrey Bogart, John Derek, George Macready, Allene Roberts, Susan Perry. More a showcase for young Derek—as a “victim of society” who turns to crime—than a vehicle for Bogart, as conscience-stricken attorney who defends him. Serious but dated drama. Sequel: LET NO MAN WRITE MY EPITAPH.▼●

Knock on Wood (1954) C-103m.  D: Norman Panama, Melvin Frank. Danny Kaye, Mai Zetterling, Torin Thatcher, David Burns, Leon Askin, Abner Biberman. Superior Kaye vehicle, with ventriloquist Danny involved with beautiful Zetterling and international spies; good Kaye routines.

Knockout (2000) C-100m. *½ D: Lorenzo Doumani. Sophia-Adella Hernandez, Eduardo Yanez, Tony Plana, William McNamara, Maria Conchita Alonso, Paul Winfield. B-movie about an East L.A. homegirl (Hernandez) who becomes a boxer, following in the footsteps of her dad (Plana), who gave up life in the ring to become a cop. Potentially intriguing subject matter KO'd by hammy performances (especially McNamara as a yuppie sleaze promoter), flat direction, and a clichéd script that would shame Syd Field. [R]▼●

Knock Out Cop, The (1978-Italian-German) C-113m.  D: Steno. Bud Spencer, Werner Pochat, Enzo Cannavale, Joe Stewardson, Bodo, Dagmar Lassander. Silly

Knowing (2009) C-121m.  D: Alex Proyas. Nicolas Cage, Rose Byrne, Chandler Canterbury, Ben Mendelsohn, Lara Robinson, Nadia Townsend, Alan Hopgood, Danielle Carter. In 1959, students in a Boston-area school draw pictures to put in a time capsule, but one spooky little girl scribbles down a bunch of numbers on a paper. Fifty years later, the paper winds up with a boy whose father, M.I.T. astrophysics professor Cage, discovers that the numbers accurately predicted the dates, locations, and death tolls of major catastrophes of the past—and quite possibly the future. Intriguing premise would have made a great Twilight Zone episode, but this New Age doomsday thriller becomes increasingly dour and tedious, with a particularly preposterous finale blending science fiction and biblical prophecy. Shot mostly in Australia. HD Widescreen. [PG-13]●

Knute Rockne All American (1940) 96m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. Pat O'Brien, Gale Page, Donald Crisp, Ronald Reagan, Albert Bassermann, John Qualen. Corny but entertaining bio of famed Notre Dame football coach (O'Brien, in a standout performance), with Reagan as his star player, George Gipp. Several long-excised scenes, including O'Brien's famous locker-room pep talk and Reagan's “win just one for the Gipper” speech have now been restored to most prints. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●

Kolya (1996-Czech-British) C-110m. ½ D: Jan Sverak. Zdenek Sverak, Andrej Chalimon, Libuse Safrankova, Ondrej Vetchy, Stella Zazvorkova, Ladislav Smoljak, Irena Livanova. Sentimental tale of a mid-fiftyish cellist, an unattached lothario who unexpectedly is made guardian of a small Russian boy. Set in 1988 Prague, on the eve of independence from the Russians, this is a sweet-natured love story that unfortunately seems too pat and manufactured. You'll laugh and certainly cry, but same essential story has been told on film many times before. Lead actor/screenwriter is the director's father. Oscar winner as Best Foreign Film. [PG-13]▼●●

Konga (1961-British) C-90m. *½ D: John Lemont. Michael Gough, Margo Johns, Jess Conrad, Claire Gordon. Very mad scientist Gough, intent on creating a plant-animal hybrid, occasionally enlarges his chimpanzee friend to gorilla size, then sends the ape out to kill his enemies. A climactic overdose makes Konga king-sized for an exceptionally dull rampage. Brassy, silly Herman Cohen-produced knockoff of

KING KONG has only Gough's juicy, hammy performance to recommend it. ▼

Kon-Tiki (1951) C-68m.  D: No director credited. Narrated by Ben Grauer, Thor Heyerdahl. Oscar-winning documentary based on Heyerdahl's best-selling book about his raft trip from Peru to Tahiti, which substantiated his theory that ancient sailing boats crossed the Pacific Ocean. Revised and rescored in 1995; that version runs 58m. ▼

Kontroll (2003-Hungarian) C-106m.  D: Nimród Antal. Sándor Csányi, Sándor Badár, Zoltán Mucsi, Zsolt Nagy, Csaba Pindroch, Eszter Balla. Highly original thriller set entirely in the Budapest underground system, where a ticket inspector has to deal with gangs of rival workers, a mystery woman who's caught his eye, and a fiendishly clever, elusive murderer. Cowriter-director Antal creates a dense, dynamic universe all his own. [R] ▼

Korczak (1990-Polish) 118m.  D: Andrzej Wajda. Wojtek Pszoniak, Ewa Dal-kowska, Teresa Budzisz-Krzyzanowska, Piotr Kozłowski, Jan Peszek. Tremendously moving, real-life story of a truly remarkable man: Janusz Korczak (Pszoniak, in a powerful performance), a respected doctor, writer and children's rights advocate who operated a house for Jewish orphans in Warsaw during the 1930s and maintained his moral standards after the Nazis invaded his homeland. Simple, poignant script by Agnieszka Holland. ▼

Kotch (1971) C-113m.  D: Jack Lemmon. Walter Matthau, Deborah Winters, Felicia Farr, Charles Aidman, Ellen Geer, Darrell Larson, Lucy Saroyan, Larry Linville. Matthau is the entire show in this winning comedy-drama about a friendly, child-loving septuagenarian who is out of sync with the coolness of the contemporary world, and who helps a young unwed mother-to-be. Lemmon's lone film as director; look fast for him as a mustachioed sleeping passenger on a bus. Farr is Lemmon's wife; Saroyan is Matthau's stepdaughter. [PG] ▼

Koyaanisqatsi (1983) C-87m. * D: Godfrey Reggio. Spellbinding, senses-staggering nonnarrative film soars across the United States in search of vistas both natural and man-made. Much of the photography is slow-motion or time-lapse (the title is Hopi Indian for "life out of balance"), all of it set to a mesmerizing score by Philip Glass. So rich in beauty and detail that with each viewing it becomes a new and different film. Should be seen in a theatre for maximum impact. Followed by POWAQQATSI and NAQOYQATSI. ▼

nutcase is brought to a N.Y.C. mental institution, claiming to be a visitor from the advanced planet K-Pax. Psychiatrist Bridges tries to figure him out, but begins to wonder if the guy isn't telling the truth. Is this movie a warm, fuzzy wish-fulfillment fantasy or a psychiatric case study? Ultimately it fails on both counts, despite the best efforts of its cast. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Krakatoa East of Java (1969) C-101m. ½ D: Bernard Kowalski. Maximilian Schell, Diane Baker, Brian Keith, Barbara Werle, John Leyton, Rossano Brazzi, Sal Mineo. Muddled epic-adventure of disparate group sailing for location of treasure-laden sunken ship. Attempt at Jules Verneish saga hampered by shallow characterizations, dialogue, but action footage is first-rate, climaxed by volcanic explosion and tidal wave. Heavily cut after premiere, leaving story more jumbled than before. P.S.: Krakatoa was West of Java. Retitled VOLCANO. Originally 136m. Super Panavision 70. [G] ▼

Kramer vs. Kramer (1979) C-104m. * D: Robert Benton. Dustin Hoffman, Meryl Streep, Jane Alexander, Justin Henry, Howard Duff, George Coe, JoBeth Williams. Wife walks out on upwardly mobile husband, leaving him to fend for himself and young son; intelligent, beautifully crafted, intensely moving film. Adapted by Benton from Avery Corman's novel and acted to perfection by entire cast. Oscar winner for Best Picture, Actor, Screenplay, Director, Supporting Actress (Streep). [PG] ▼

Kremlin Letter, The (1970) C-120m. *½ D: John Huston. Bibi Andersson, Richard Boone, Max von Sydow, Orson Welles, Patrick O'Neal, Barbara Parkins, Dean Jagger, George Sanders, Raf Vallone. Dull, complicated thriller based on best-seller concerns efforts to retrieve bogus treaty supposedly signed by U.S. and Soviet Union that will pit them against Red China. Good cast is thrown away; film does provide rare opportunity to see Sanders in drag. Panavision. [M/PG] ▼

Krippendorf's Tribe (1998) C-94m.  D: Todd Holland. Richard Dreyfuss, Jenna Elfman, Natasha Lyonne, Gregory Smith, Carl Michael Lindner, Stephen Root, Elaine Stritch, Tom Poston, David Ogden Stiers, Lily Tomlin, Zakes Mokae. Widowed anthropology professor, who's spent all his grant money, is forced to present his findings on an unknown tribe in New Guinea. Trouble is, he never found such a tribe, so he makes one up, then shoots bogus videos with his three kids to back up his claims. Farcical comedy fizzles with wildly inconsistent characters (particularly Elfman) and desperate plot devices. [PG-13] ▼●●

Kristin Lavransdatter (1995-Norwegian) C-144m.  D: Liv Ullmann. Elisabeth Matheson, Bjorn Skagestad, Sverre Anker Ousdal, Henny Moan, Rut Tellefsen, Erland Josephson, Lena Endre. Intense, plodding drama, set in the 14th century, about the title character (Matheson) and how pressures from family and society thwart her from being with her true love and steer her to marry another man instead. It's a conflict between religious obligation and "the sin of passion," and well acted, but never as profound or involving as intended. Ullmann also scripted, based on novel by Nobel Prize winner Sigrid Undset. Originally shown at 180m. ▼●

Kronos (1957) 78m. ½ D: Kurt Neumann. Jeff Morrow, Barbara Lawrence, John Emery, George O'Hanlon, Morris Ankrum. Diverting science-fiction with unique monster: an enormous metallic walking machine capable of absorbing the Earth's energy. Occasionally shaky special effects are compensated for by nice touch of mysterioso and convincing performances, especially by Emery as the alien's catspaw. Regalscope. ▼●●

Marshall is the young hero who must recover a magic ornament to save damsel and kingdom. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Krush Groove (1985) C-97m.  D: Michael Schultz. Blair Underwood, Joseph Simmons, Sheila E., Fat Boys, Daryll McDaniels, Kurtis Blow. Yet another rap musical, with a silly (almost nonexistent) story but lots of music, rapping, and street culture artifacts. Aficionados of this kind of music rate the soundtrack very highly. [R] ▼●●

K-2 (1992-British) C-111m. ½ D: Franc Roddam. Michael Biehn, Matt Craven, Raymond J. Barry, Hiroshi Fujioka, Patricia Charbonneau, Luca Bercovici, Julia Nickson-Soul, Jamal Shah. A Seattle assistant D.A. (brash) and his physics-prof pal (gentle) attempt to climb the world's steepest and most remote mountain. Gritty outdoor expansion of Patrick Meyers' play, which won a Tony for its impressive mountain set; magnificent outdoor footage compensates for that, but not for the stock movie characterizations. Film never tops its first 15 minutes, which are spellbinding. [R] ▼●●

Kuffs (1992) C-100m. *½ D: Bruce Evans. Christian Slater, Tony Goldwyn, Milla Jovovich, Bruce Boxleitner, George De La Pena, Troy Evans, Lu Leonard, Leon Rippey, Mary Ellen Trainor, Ashley Judd. Smarmy Slater desperately needs a job after abandoning his pregnant girlfriend; as luck would have it, his brother gets shot in the line of duty as a private policeman in San Francisco. Unbearably flip, especially during frequent breaks for Slater's straight-to-camera narration. You keep waiting for Dirty Harry to show up and toss this kiddie cop one of his patented glares. [PG-13] ▼●●

Kull the Conqueror (1997) C-95m.  D: John Nicolella. Kevin Sorbo, Tia Carrere, Karina Lombard, Thomas Ian Griffith, Litefoot, Roy Brocksmith, Harvey Fierstein, Edward Tudor-Pole, Douglas Henshall, Sven Ole Thorsen. In ancient times, Kull, a barbarian from Atlantis, unexpectedly becomes king of a troubled country, and soon finds himself involved in swordfights, magic, and palace intrigue. Passionless, incoherent, and routine, with a few good performances, very uneven effects and makeup, and not enough sorcery. Based on a character created by Conan creator Robert E. Howard; in fact, this began life as a script for a third Conan movie. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Kundun (1997) C-134m.  D: Martin Scorsese. Tenzin Thuthob Tserong, Gyurme Tethong, Tulku Jamyang Kunga Tenzin, Tenzin Yeshi Paichang, Tencho Gyalpo, Tsewang Migyur Khangsar, Sonam Phuntsok, Robert Lin. The fascinating saga of the 14th Dalai Lama begins with the discovery that he has been reincarnated in the body of a two-year-old boy. We follow his journey through life, including education, exile, and a confrontation with the Chinese government, led by Mao Tse-tung. Search in vain for a Scorsese "edge"—this is just good, solid storytelling, from Melissa Mathison's script (written with the Dalai Lama's cooperation). A cast of nonprofessional actors is simply remarkable, and so is Philip Glass' score. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Kung Fu Hustle (2005-Hong Kong) C-99m.  D: Stephen Chow. Stephen Chow, Yuen Wah, Yuen Qiu, Leung Siu Lung, Dong Zhi Hua, Chiu Chi Ling, Xing Yu, Chan Kwok Kwan, Lam Tze Chung. In Pig Sty Alley, the brutal Axe Gang terrorizes the locals but doesn't know what to make of a young gangster-wannabe (Chow). Less a story than

a series of action sequences, this heavy-handed mix of martial arts and slapstick (with a dollop of romance) pays homage to everything from THE SHINING and Road Runner cartoons to TOP HAT! The novelty of live-action cartoon violence wears thin pretty fast. Chow cowrote and coproduced; choreographed by Yuen Wo Ping (CROUCHING TIGER, HIDDEN DRAGON, THE MATRIX). Super 35. [R] ▼

Kung Fu Panda (2008) C-91m.  D: John Stevenson. Mark Osborne. Voices of Jack Black, Dustin Hoffman, Angelina Jolie, Ian McShane, Jackie Chan, Seth Rogen, Lucy Liu, David Cross, Randall Duk Kim, James Hong, Dan Fogler, Michael Clarke Duncan, Laura Kightlinger. Entertaining animated feature about a panda who dreams of being a martial arts hero, instead of the son of a dumpling chef. Then, through a quirk of fate, he is chosen as the Dragon Warrior to help save a city that's about to be attacked by a ferocious leopard. Uncommonly handsome production design and exciting action scenes enhance a simple storyline. Black's engaging performance as the slump who wants to make good is matched by Hoffman's deadpan delivery as his kung fu master. Digital Widescreen. [PG]]

Kung Pow: Enter the Fist (2002) C-81m. *½ D: Steve Oedekirk. Steve Oedekirk, Lung Fai, Leo Lee, Chen Hui Lou, Jennifer Tung. Writer-director Oedekirk redubs, and adds deliberately clunky new footage to, a 1976 Hong Kong martial arts movie, TIGER & CRANE FISTS (directed by Jimmy Wang Yu), turning the original into a parody of itself, with a nonstop barrage of gags—occasionally funny, but obvious and repetitive. Oedekirk also stars, as The Chosen One. Not nearly as good as WHAT'S UP, TIGER LILY?, but if you do watch, stay till the end of the credits. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Kwaidan (1964-Japanese) C-164m. ½ D: Masaki Kobayashi. Rentaro Mikuni, Michiyo Aratama, Keiko Kishi, Tatsuya Nakadai, Takashi Shimura. Four tales of the supernatural, based on works by Lafcadio Hearn, focusing on samurais, balladeers, monks, spirits. Subtle, moody, well staged; stunning use of color and widescreen. Released in U.S. in 1965 at 125m., with the second episode (featuring Kishi and Nakadai) deleted. Tohoscope. ▼

La Balance (1982-French) C-102m.  D: Bob Swaim. Nathalie Baye, Philippe Leotard, Richard Berry, Maurice Ronet, Christophe Malavoy, Jean-Paul Connart. Extremely tough, violent Parisian cop movie (directed and cowritten by an American) about effort to nail criminal kingpin by forcing one-time associate (Leotard) to turn informer. Baye is excellent as prostitute in love with victimized pimp. Winner of many

La Bamba (1987) C-108m.  D: Luis Valdez. Lou Diamond Phillips, Esai Morales, Rosana De Soto, Elizabeth Pena, Danielle von Zerneck, Joe Pantoliano, Rick Dees, Marshall Crenshaw, Brian Setzer. Solid musical biography of Ritchie Valens, a poor Mexican-American who became a rock 'n' roll sensation at age 17. Writer-director Valdez can't avoid some standard Hollywood bio trappings, but good-time music and Phillips' commanding, sympathetic performance more than compensate. Morales is excellent as Ritchie's troubled brother. Valens' music is performed by Los Lobos on soundtrack—they appear as the Tijuana band. Original music by Carlos Santana and Miles Goodman. La Belle Noiseuse (1991-French) C-240m. ½ D: Jacques Rivette. Michel Piccoli, Jane Birkin, Emmanuelle Béart, Marianne Denicourt, David Bursztein, Gilles Arbona, Bernard Dufour. Riveting story of the relationship between a once-famed artist and the young woman who inspires him to paint after 10 years of inactivity, and becomes his model. A stunning examination of the artistic process and its accompanying obsessions, with outstanding performances by Piccoli as the artist and gorgeous Béart as his subject. Extremely long, deliberately paced but always involving; beautifully directed by Rivette and photographed by William Lubtchansky. Screenplay by Rivette, Pascal Bonitzer, and Christine Laurent. Dufour, by the way, supplies the artist's hand. A new version, reworked and with a new perspective, was released in 1993. Its title: DIVERTIMENTO, running 125m. ▼

La Bête Humaine (1938-French) 99m. ½ D: Jean Renoir. Jean Gabin, Julien Carette, Simone Simon, Fernand Ledoux, Blanchette Brunoy, Gerard Landry. Locomotive engineer Gabin displays fits of uncontrollable violence against women. When he forms a liaison with the flirtatious wife of a deputy stationmaster, he becomes entangled in a plot to kill the husband. Sublimely atmospheric adaptation of Emile Zola's novel suited the fatalistic mood of Europe in 1938, as the Nazis overran Czechoslovakia. That's Renoir himself in the role of Cabuiche; he also scripted. Aka THE HUMAN BEAST and JUDAS WAS A WOMAN. Fritz Lang remade it in the U.S. as HUMAN DESIRE. ▼

La Boum 2 (1982-French) C-109m. *½

D: Claude Pinoteau. Sophie Marceau, Claude Brasseur, Brigitte Fossey, Pierre Cosso, Shiela O'Connor, Denise Grey. Here teenager Marceau is two years older and has a romance with another student. Her parents are still squabbling. A formula film, no better or worse than the original.

La Buche (1999-French) C-107m.  D: Daniele Thompson. Charlotte Gainsbourg, Emmanuelle Béart, Sabine Azema, Claude Rich, Françoise Fabian, Christopher Thompson, Jean-Pierre Darroussin. Penetrating examination of three sisters who must deal with their problems and differences (not to mention their long-estranged parents) as the Christmas holiday approaches. A refreshing antidote to all those sugary seasonal films. Directorial debut for Thompson, a top French screenwriter, who coscripted with her son Christopher (who also plays Joseph). Super 35. ▼

Labyrinth (1986) C-101m.  D: Jim Henson. David Bowie, Jennifer Connelly, Toby Froud. Teenage girl's baby brother is kidnapped by the King of the Goblins (Bowie); in order to rescue him she must navigate a devilish labyrinth. Entertaining variation on Alice in Wonderland written by Monty Python's Terry Jones, executive produced by George Lucas, and filtered through the sensibilities of The Muppets' Jim Henson. A treat for kids and the young at heart (Muppet fans in particular); only weakness is that it does get slow at times. J-D-C Scope. [PG] ▼

Labyrinth of Passion (1982-Spanish) C-100m.  D: Pedro Almodóvar. Celia Roth, Imanol Arias, Helga Line, Antonio Banderas. Zany, energetic sex farce, most of which is beyond the power of description. It does involve a gallery of comically outlandish characters scurrying about Madrid, including transvestites, punk rockers, nymphomaniacs—and Islamic fundamentalists. Occasionally crude, and always rude, but that's all part of the fun. ▼

La Cage aux Folles (1978-French-Italian) C-91m.  D: Edouard Molinaro. Ugo Tognazzi, Michel Serrault, Michel Galabru, Claire Maurier, Remy Laurent, Benny Luke. A gay couple tries to act straight for the sake of Tognazzi's son, who's bringing home his fiancée and her parents. Entertaining adaptation of French stage farce, with some hilarious moments and a wonderful performance by Serrault as the more feminine half of the middle-aged twosome—but why this became such a raging success is a mystery. Followed by two sequels, as well as a hit Broadway musical. Remade in 1996 as THE BIRD-CAGE. [R] ▼

La Cage aux Folles II (1980-French) C-101m. ½ D: Edouard Molinaro. Michel Serrault, Ugo Tognazzi, Marcel Bozzuffi, Michel Galabru, Paola Borboni, Benny Luke. St. Tropez nightclub owner

La Cage aux Folles 3: The Wedding (1985-French-Italian) C-87m. *½ D: Georges Lautner. Michel Serrault, Ugo Tognazzi, Michel Galabru, Benny Luke, Stephane Audran, Antonella Interlenghi. Pointless sequel has drag queen Albin (Serrault) in line for big inheritance—if he marries and produces a son. This farce has been milked dry by now. [PG-13] ▼

La Cérémonie (1995-French-German) C-111m.  D: Claude Chabrol. Isabelle Huppert, Sandrine Bonnaire, Jacqueline Bisset, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Virginie Ledoyen, Valentin Merlet. Slow-moving but effective Chabrol thriller, with Huppert and Bonnaire as lower-class pals in rural Brittany, who resent the wealthy household in which Bonnaire is employed as maid. Nice turn by Bisset, as sympathetic matriarch. ▼

La Chèvre (1982-French) C-91m.  D: Francis Veber. Pierre Richard, Gérard Depardieu, Michel Robin, Pedro Armendariz, Jr., Corynne Charbit, Andre Valardy. No-nonsense sleuth Depardieu sets out to locate an industrialist's daughter who's disappeared in Mexico, finds himself comically hampered by his employer's accountant (Richard), an amateur detective. Amiable, amusing comedy was a box-office smash in France. Veber also scripted. Aka THE GOAT. Americanized remake: PURELUCK. ▼

La Chienne (1931-French) 95m. * D: Jean Renoir. Michel Simon, Janie Mareze, Georges Flamant, Madeleine Berubet. Renoir's first sound film, and first sound-film masterpiece: a terse, somber drama of mild-mannered bank cashier Simon, with an overbearing wife, who plays into the hands of prostitute Mareze and her scheming pimp. Renoir coscripted; Mareze died in a car accident a couple of weeks after filming was completed. Fritz Lang redid this as SCARLET STREET; what a double bill they would make! ▼

La Chinoise (1967-French) C-95m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Anne Wiazemsky, Jean-Pierre Léaud, Michel Semianko, Lex de Bruijn, Juliet Berto. Five young Maoists share an apartment and try to apply their politics to the reality of their lives. Godard aficionados will be fascinated; others may be bored. ▼

La Ciudad SEE: City, The

La Collectionneuse (1971-French) C-88m.  D: Eric Rohmer. Patrick Bauchau, Haydee Politoff, Daniel Pommerehne, Alain Jouffroy, Mijanou Bardot. No. 3 of Rohmer's "Six Moral Tales" is less compelling than later films, still intriguing for fans of contemplative stories in this series, focusing on young man's attraction to aloof young girl sharing summer villa on the Mediterranean. Made in 1967. ▼

Lacombe Lucien (1974-French) C-137m.

* D: Louis Malle. Pierre Blaise, Aurore Clement, Holger Lowenadler, Therese Giehse. Brilliant, perceptive account of opportunist French peasant Blaise, who joins the Gestapo during the Nazi Occupation—after setting out to join the Resistance—and falls in love with a Jewish tailor's daughter. Subtle, complex tale of guilt, innocence, and the amorality of power; masterfully directed. [R]◆

Ladder 49 (2004) C-114m.  D: Jay Russell.

Joaquin Phoenix, John Travolta, Jacinda Barrett, Robert Patrick, Morris Chestnut, Balthazar Getty, Tim Guinee. Straightforward story of a Baltimore fireman, from the day he reports for work as a rookie to his ultimate challenge inside a burning factory. Warm depiction of firemen's lives as brothers in an extended family. Full of white-knuckle sequences depicting daring (but realistic) rescue operations, which cumulatively pay tribute to some of the bravest men on earth. Solid, old-fashioned storytelling. [PG-13] ▼◆

Stains (1982) C-87m.  D: Lou Adler.

Diane Lane, Ray Winstone, Peter Donat, David Clennon, John Lehne, Cynthia Sikes, Laura Dern, John (Fee) Waybill, Christine Lahti. Antisocial teenage girl decides to become a punk rock star and takes to the road. Unreleased major studio film is strident and unappealing, despite good cast. Lahti shines in her two scenes. Members of Clash and The Sex Pistols appear as a British punk band. [R]◆

Ladies in Lavender (2004-British) C-103m.

 D: Charles Dance. Judi Dench, Maggie Smith, Natascha McElhone, Daniel Brühl, Miriam Margolyes, Freddie Jones, David Warner, Clive Russell. Dames Dench and Smith add luster to this lightly likable drama about a pair of aging sisters in pre-WW2 England whose lives are changed when a handsome young Polish man mysteriously washes ashore one morning near their seaside Cornwall cottage. Not a great film by any means, but it's as cozy and inviting as a warm blanket on a cold winter night. Actor Dance's screenwriting and big-screen directing debut. [PG-13]◆

Ladies in Retirement (1941) 92m. ***

D: Charles Vidor. Ida Lupino, Louis Hayward, Evelyn Keyes, Elsa Lanchester, Edith Barrett, Isobel Elsom, Emma Dunn. Static but well-made gothic melodrama about housekeeper Lupino's attempt to cover up murder in eccentric British household. Not as potent—or as shocking—as it must have been in 1941, but still good. Remade as THE MAD ROOM.

Ladies' Man, The (1961) C-96m. ***

D: Jerry Lewis. Jerry Lewis, Helen Traubel, Kathleen Freeman, Hope Holiday, Pat Stanley, Jack Kruschen, Doodles Weaver, Harry James and His Band. Pretty funny comedy with Jerry the handyman in a girls' boardinghouse run by Miss Wellenmelon (Traubel). Enormous set is the real star; Buddy Lester and George Raft have amusing cameo appearances. ▼◆◆

Ladies Man, The (2000) C-84m.  D:

Reginald Hudlin. Tim Meadows, Karyn Parsons, Billy Dee Williams, Kevin McDonald, Tiffani (Amber) Thiessen, Lee Evans, Will Ferrell, Jimmy Fallon, Julianne Moore, Eugene Levy. Kinky comedy about a sex-driven radio talk-show host who has a bad habit of sleeping with married women. Meadows is exceedingly funny, but the film once again proves that Saturday Night Live TV skits are meant to be just that: skits. Meadows coscripted. [R] ▼◆

Ladies of Leisure (1930) 98m. ½ D:

Frank Capra. Barbara Stanwyck, Ralph Graves, Lowell Sherman, Marie Prevost, Nance O'Neill, George Fawcett. Stanwyck falls in love with playboy-artist Graves, but cannot shake her reputation as gold-digger. Creaky story made worthwhile by Stanwyck's believable performance and Capra's fluent filmmaking technique. Remade as WOMEN OF GLAMOR. ▼

Ladies of the Chorus (1949) 61m.  D:

Phil Karlson. Adele Jergens, Rand Brooks, Marilyn Monroe, Eddie Garr, Nana Bryant. Cheapie musical about mother/daughter burlesque chorines, with young Monroe seemingly headed for the same romantic blunder that mom Jergens made. Worth a look for MM in her first sizable role. Garr (who plays a burlesque clown) is the father of Teri. ▼

Ladies They Talk About (1933) 69m.

½ D: Howard Bretherton, William Keighley. Barbara Stanwyck, Preston Foster, Lyle Talbot, Dorothy Burgess, Maude Eburne, Lillian Roth, Ruth Donnelly. Stanwyck is terrific in this punchy but occasionally silly pre-Code women's prison picture. She's a tough cookie who's sent up the river after participating in a bank heist. ▼◆

La Discreète (1990-French) C-94m.  D: Christian Vincent. Fabrice Luchini, Judith Henry, Maurice Garrel, Francois Toumarkine. Insightful allegory about a heartless writer/Don Juan (Luchini) who allows vengeful publisher Garrel to convince him to toy with the emotions of typist Henry, to extract raw material for a book. Solid performances (especially by Henry) help put this one over. ▼

La Dolce Vita (1960-Italian) 175m. ½ D: Federico Fellini. Marcello Mastroianni, Anita Ekberg, Anouk Aimée, Yvonne Furneaux, Magali Noel, Alain Cuny, Annibale Ninchi, Walter Santesso, Lex Barker, Jacques Sernas, Nadia Gray. Lengthy trend-setting film, not as ambiguous as other Fellini works—much more entertaining, with strong cast. Mastroianni stars as tabloid reporter who sees his life in shallow Rome society as worthless but can't change. Story and screenplay by Fellini, Ennio Flaiano, and Tullio Pinelli, with Brunello Rondi. Piero Gherardi's costumes won an Oscar. Totalscope. ▼●●

Ladrón que roba a ladrón . . . (2007) C-99m. ½ D: Joe Menendez. Fernando Colunga, Miguel Varoni, Gabriel Soto, Julie Gonzalo, Ivonne Montero, Sonya Smith, Saúl Lisazo. Innocuous U.S.-produced Spanish-language OCEAN'S ELEVEN-inspired caper comedy in which a pair of Robin Hood-like thieves plot to rip off a pompous L.A. infomercial king, who has built his fortune by duping poor Latino immigrants. Occasionally clever, but mostly covers familiar ground. Title's English translation is A THIEF WHO STEALS FROM A THIEF; the main actors are veterans of Spanish-language telenovelas. [PG-13] ●

Lady and the Duke, The (2001-French) C-125m.  D: Eric Rohmer. Lucy Russell, Jean-Claude Dreyfus, Alain Libolt, Charlotte Véry, Léonard Coblant, François Marthouret, Caroline Morin. Intelligent, provocative historical drama set during the French Revolution. The lady of the title is Grace Elliott (Russell), a Scottish blueblood expatriate; the duke is Philippe d'Orleans (Dreyfus), a cousin to Louis XVI. The two share a complex relationship as the politics and events of the period swirl around them. Conversation is the hallmark of a Rohmer film, and here it is never less than illuminating. Shot in digital video; the 81-year-old filmmaker also scripted (based on Elliott's memoirs). [PG-13] ▼●

Lady and the Outlaw, The SEE: Billy Two Hats

Lady and the Tramp (1955) C-75m. ½ D: Hamilton Luske, Clyde Geronimi, Wilfred Jackson. Voices of Peggy Lee, Barbara Luddy, Bill Thompson, Bill Baucon, Stan Freberg, Verna Felton, Alan Reed. One of Walt Disney's most endearing animated features about a rakish dog named

Tramp who helps pedigreed canine named Lady out of a jam—and into a romance. Elements of adventure and drama are masterfully blended with comedy and music in this stylish film, the Disney studio's first feature cartoon in CinemaScope. Songs by Sonny Burke and Peggy Lee (who's the voice of Peg, Darling, Si and Am, the Siamese cats). Followed in 2001 by a direct-to-video sequel. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Lady Be Good (1941) 111m.  D: Norman Z. McLeod. Eleanor Powell, Ann Sothern, Robert Young, Lionel Barrymore, John Carroll, Red Skelton, Virginia O'Brien, Dan Dailey, Jimmy Dorsey and His Orchestra. Spunky musical of married songwriters Sothern and Young, with Powell and Skelton along for good measure. Fine score: title tune, "Fascinating Rhythm," "You'll Never Know," Oscar-winning "Last Time I Saw Paris." ▼●●

Lady Beware (1987) C-108m. ½ D: Karen Arthur. Diane Lane, Michael Woods, Cotter Smith, Viveca Lindfors, Peter Nevargic, Edward Penn, Tyra Ferrell. Lane's mildly kinky store-window displays arouse a married psychotic; he soon graduates from irritating phone calls and mail interception to breaking into her window-barred loft. Imperfect, but compelling, feminist exploitation film builds to a satisfying (and surprisingly nonviolent) conclusion; Lane's performance is uneven, but her rage convincing. Filmed and set in Pittsburgh. [R] ▼●●

Ladybird, Ladybird (1994-British) C-102m.  D: Kenneth Loach. Crissy Rock, Vladimir Vega, Ray Winstone, Sandie Lavelle, Mauricio Venegas, Clare Perkins. Shattering, based-on-fact account of a durable but deeply troubled single mother of four (extremely well played by Rock), who has a history of being abused by men; she becomes involved with kindly Vega, but this relationship will not be without its share of crises. Another impassioned look at British working class life from Loach. ▼

Ladybug Ladybug (1963) 84m.  D: Frank Perry. Jane Connell, William Daniels, James Frawley, Richard Hamilton, Kathryn Hays, Jane Hoffman, Elena Karam, Judith Lowry, Nancy Marchand, Estelle Parsons, Miles Chapin, Alice Playten. Ambitious and provocative (if a bit too obvious) account of some rural schoolchildren and their reactions when a civil defense system warns of an impending nuclear attack. Screenplay by Eleanor Perry; a follow-up of sorts to DAVID AND LISA. Based on an actual incident.

cer team—complete with an in-drag male player (the son of his fiancée). Slapdash execution of what sounds like a sure-fire Dangerfield premise; the best zingers concern rival female coach Parsons. [PG-13] ▼●●

Lady Chatterley (2006-French-Belgian) C-168m.  D: Pascale Ferran. Marina Hands, Jean Louis Couliko'ch, Hippolyte Girardot, Hélène Alexandridis, Hélène Fillières, Bernard Verley, Sava Lolov. Beautifully filmed, leisurely adaptation of D. H. Lawrence's erotic novel about a wealthy woman's affair with the gamekeeper on her paralyzed husband's estate. Sensuous and startlingly fine performance by Hands as the Lady who explores her sexual feelings. Graphic, but tasteful, telling of the once-notorious book milks its romantic content for everything it's worth. Winner of five César awards including Best Film. European TV version runs 220m. Also available in R-rated version. ▶

Lady Chatterley's Lover (1981-French-British) C-105m. BOMB D: Just Jaeckin. Sylvia Kristel, Nicholas Clay, Shane Briant, Ann Mitchell, Elizabeth Spriggs, Peter Bennett. Dull, cheap version of the D. H. Lawrence classic, with Kristel as the lady and Clay as the lover. Kristel is beautiful, but still cannot act. From the director of EMMANUELLE. Previously filmed in France in 1955; remade in 2006. [R] ▼●●

Lady Dances, The SEE: Merry Widow, The (1934)

Lady Dracula (1973) C-80m. BOMB D: Richard Blackburn. Cheryl Smith, Lesley Gilb, William Whitton, Richard Blackburn. Perfectly awful low-budgeter about a lady vampire with lesbian tendencies. Bring back Gloria Holden! Aka LEGENDARY CURSE OF LEMORA and LEMORA, THE LADY DRACULA. [PG] ▶

Lady Eve, The (1941) 94m. ½ D: Preston Sturges. Barbara Stanwyck, Henry Fonda, Charles Coburn, Eugene Pallette, William Demarest, Eric Blore, Melville Cooper. Stanwyck is a con artist who sets her eyes on wealthy Fonda—the dolt to end all dolts, who proclaims "snakes are my life." Sometimes silly and strident, this film grows funnier with each viewing—thanks to Sturges's script, breathless pace, and two incomparable stars. Remade as THE BIRDS AND THE BEES. ▼●●

Lady for a Day (1933) 96m. * D: Frank Capra. Warren William, May Robson, Guy Kibbee, Glenda Farrell, Jean

Parker, Walter Connolly, Ned Sparks, Nat Pendleton. Wonderful Damon Runyon fable of seedy apple vendor Robson transformed into perfect lady by softhearted racketeer William. Robert Riskin adapted Runyon's story "Madame La Gimp." Sequel: LADY BY CHOICE. Remade by Capra as POCKETFUL OF MIRACLES. ▼●●

Lady From Louisiana (1941) 82m. ½ D: Bernard Vorhaus. John Wayne, Ona Munson, Ray Middleton, Henry Stephenson, Helen Westley, Jack Pennick, Dorothy Dandridge. Wayne and Munson fall in love, then discover they're on opposite sides of gambling controversy; so-so period piece. ▼

Lady From Shanghai, The (1948) 87m.  D: Orson Welles. Rita Hayworth, Orson Welles, Everett Sloane, Glenn Anders, Ted de Corsia, Erskine Sanford, Gus Schilling. The camera's the star of this offbeat thriller, with the cast incidental in bizarre murder mystery about an Irish adventurer (Welles) who joins seductive Hayworth and her husband (Sloane) on a Pacific cruise. The famous hall of mirrors climax is riveting. Cinematography by Charles Lawton, Jr. Based on novel by Sherwood King; scripted and produced by Welles. That's Errol Flynn's yacht, Zaca, in the seagoing scenes. ▼●●

Lady Gambles, The (1949) 98m.  D: Michael Gordon. Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Preston, Stephen McNally, Edith Barrett, John Hoyt, Leif Erickson. The LOST WEEKEND of gambling films, a well-acted drama chronicling Stanwyck's decline from respectable writer's wife to desperate, addicted gambler and all-around screwup. Look for Tony Curtis—then billed as "Anthony"—as a bellboy.

Lady Godiva (1955) C-89m.  D: Arthur Lubin. Maureen O'Hara, George Nader, Victor McLaglen, Torin Thatcher, Robert Warwick. Cardboard costumer of famed lady and her horseback ride set in Middle Ages England—What a dull ride! Look for Clint Eastwood, billed as "First Saxon." ▼

Lady Hamilton SEE: That Hamilton Woman

Ladyhawke (1985) C-124m.  D: Richard Donner. Matthew Broderick, Rutger

Hauer, Michelle Pfeiffer, Leo McKern, John Wood, Ken Hutchison, Alfred Molina. Overlong but generally entertaining medieval fantasy adventure about star-crossed lovers caught in an evil spell—and a young thief who becomes their unlikely ally. Hauer and Pfeiffer are perfectly cast as stalwart hero and heroine, but Broderick's manner and dialogue seem better suited to a Woody Allen movie! Thunderous music by Andrew Powell. Technovision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Lady in a Cage (1964) 93m.  D: Walter Grauman. Olivia de Havilland, Ann Sothorn, Jeff Corey, James Caan, Jennifer Billingsley, Rafael Campos, Scatman Crothers. Bone-chilling psychological drama in which incapacitated widow de Havilland finds herself stuck in an elevator in her home, then is terrorized by thugs. Allegorical tale of alienation and mindless cruelty in an impersonal society; unpleasant to watch, but undeniably truthful and prophetic. Starkly directed and well acted. ▼●

Lady in Red, The (1979) C-93m. ½ D: Lewis Teague. Pamela Sue Martin, Robert Conrad, Louise Fletcher, Robert Hogan, Laurie Heineman, Glenn Withrow, Christopher Lloyd, Dick Miller. Martin suffers a life on the lam, before and after her period of notoriety as girlfriend of John Dillinger (Conrad). Lurid, low-budget retreat of familiar material is handled with surprising verve. A Roger Corman production; screenplay by John Sayles. Robert Forster appears uncredited in key supporting role. Retitled GUNS, SIN AND BATHTUB GIN. [R] ▼●

Lady in the Car With Glasses and a Gun, The (1970-French) C-105m. ½ D: Anatole Litvak. Samantha Eggar, Oliver Reed, John McEnery, Stephane Audran, Billie Dixon. Eggar is best thing about otherwise unexceptional film. Psychological thriller about attempt to drive young woman crazy is only occasionally interesting. Panavision. [R]

Lady in the Dark (1944) C-100m. ½ D: Mitchell Leisen. Ginger Rogers, Ray Milland, Jon Hall, Warner Baxter, Barry Sullivan, Gail Russell, Mischa Auer. Overproduced Technicolor adaptation of the groundbreaking

Moss Hart Broadway show (minus most of the Kurt Weill-Ira Gershwin songs) about a career woman who undergoes psychoanalysis to find the root of her problems. Intriguing but ultimately ponderous.

Lady in the Lake (1946) 103m. ½ D: Robert Montgomery. Robert Montgomery, Audrey Totter, Lloyd Nolan, Tom Tully, Leon Ames, Jayne Meadows. Raymond Chandler whodunit has novelty of camera taking first-person point of view of detective Philip Marlowe (Montgomery); unfortunately, confusing plot is presented in more prosaic (and dated) manner. ▼●●

Lady in the Water (2006) C-110m. *½ D: M. Night Shyamalan. Paul Giamatti, Bryce Dallas Howard, Jeffrey Wright, Bob Balaban, Sarita Choudhury, Cindy Cheung, M. Night Shyamalan, Freddy Rodriguez, Bill Irwin, Mary Beth Hurt, Jared Harris, Tovah Feldshuh. Superintendent in an apartment complex discovers an ethereal young woman in the swimming pool and senses that she needs protection. As this fable (or bedtime story, as Shyamalan would have it) unfolds, we're given more and more "information" to swallow until it becomes laughably absurd. Giamatti's empathetic performance helps, but writer-director Shyamalan was unwise to put himself in a key role—as mankind's savior! [PG-13] ●

Lady in White (1988) C-112m.  D: Frank LaLoggia. Lukas Haas, Len Cariou, Alex Rocco, Katherine Helmond, Jason Presson, Jared Rushton, Renata Vanni, Angelo Bertolini. Sleeper film combines 1960s nostalgia with supernatural horror in original fashion. An inquisitive youngster (Haas) becomes involved with ghosts in mystery story about an unsolved murder and the legendary Lady in White (Helmond) residing in a spooky house nearby. Villain's identity is a bit too easy to guess, but there are plenty of chills and great period atmosphere along the way. Director's cut version runs 6m. longer. [PG-13] ▼●●

Lady Is Willing, The (1942) 92m.  D: Mitchell Leisen. Marlene Dietrich, Fred MacMurray, Aline MacMahon, Arline Judge, Stanley Ridges, Roger Clark. Agreeable comedy; glamorous Dietrich wants to adopt a baby, so she marries pediatrician MacMurray. Dramatic segment near the end spoils lively mood. ▼

Lady Jane (1985-British) C-142m.  D: Trevor Nunn. Helena Bonham Carter, Cary Elwes, John Wood, Michael Hordern, Jill Bennett, Jane Lapotaire, Sara Kestelman, Patrick Stewart, Warren Saire, Joss Ackland, Ian Hogg, Richard Johnson. Absorbing historical drama about the machinations that put a 16-year-old girl on the throne of England for just nine days. Exquisite looking, well acted, just a trifle slow at times. Same story told before in a 1936 film, TUDOR ROSE. [PG-13] ▼●●

Ladykillers, The (1955-British) C-90m. ½ D: Alexander Mackendrick. Alec Guinness, Katie Johnson, Cecil Parker, Herbert Lom, Peter Sellers, Danny Green, Frankie Howerd. Droll black comedy of not-so-bright crooks involved with seemingly harmless old lady. Guinness scores again (even his teeth are funny) with top-notch supporting cast in this little Ealing Studios gem, written by William Rose. Original British running time: 97m. Remade in 2004. ▼●

Ladykillers, The (2004) C-104m.  D: Joel Coen, Ethan Coen. Tom Hanks, Irma P. Hall, Marlon Wayans, J.K. Simmons, Tzi Ma, Ryan Hurst, George Wallace, Diane Delano, Stephen Root. Obsequiously polite Southern gentleman rents a room from a churchgoing widow, then plots a daring heist in her basement with an ill-chosen group of accomplices. The Coens keep a sure hand on this farcical black comedy with impeccable casting, finely tuned performances, and a bedrock of Southern gospel music (produced by T-Bone Burnett). Remake of the well-remembered Ealing comedy of 1955. [R] ▼●

Lady L (1965-British) C-107m. ½ D: Peter Ustinov. Sophia Loren, Paul Newman, David Niven, Claude Dauphin, Philippe Noiret, Michel Piccoli. Stars and sets are elegant, but this wacky comedy set in early 20th-century London and Paris fizzles, despite Ustinov's writing, directing, and cameo appearance. Panavision. ▼

with Deanna witnessing a murder, then getting involved with nutty family of the deceased tycoon. You'll never guess killer's identity in neatly plotted yarn which even allows Deanna to sing a few tunes. Based on a Leslie Charteris story. ▼●

Lady on the Bus (1978-Brazilian) C-102m. *½ D: Neville D'Almeida. Sonia Braga, Nuno Leal Maia, Paulo Cesar Pereiro, Jorge Doria, Yara Amaral, Claudio Marzo. Braga, the least likely of all actresses to project frigidity, is unresponsive on her wedding night—but wait! Soon she begins sampling other men, and sampling, and sampling. . . Follow-up to DONA FLOR AND HER TWO HUSBANDS has even more sex but far less wit and charm. A dull ride. [R] ▼

Lady Sings the Blues (1972) C-144m. ½ D: Sidney J. Furie. Diana Ross, Billy Dee Williams, Richard Pryor, James Callahan, Paul Hampton, Sid Melton. Black version of Hollywood cliché-biography, sparked by superb performance by Ross (in her acting debut) as Billie Holiday, legendary jazz singer whose life was ruined by drug addiction. Valueless as biography, but OK as soap opera, with excellent support from Pryor as "Piano Man." Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Lady Vanishes, The (1938-British) 97m. * D: Alfred Hitchcock. Margaret Lockwood, Michael Redgrave, Paul Lukas, Dame May Whitty, Gogie Withers, Cecil Parker, Linden Travers, Catherine Lacey. An old woman's disappearance during a train ride leads baffled young woman into a dizzying web of intrigue. Delicious mystery-comedy; Hitchcock at his best, with a witty script by Frank Launder and Sidney Gilliat, and wonderful performances by Naunton Wayne and Basil Radford, who scored such a hit as a pair of twits that they repeated those roles in several other films! Based on Ethel Lina White's novel The Wheel Spins. Remade in 1979. ▼●●

Lady Vanishes, The (1979-British) C-99m. *½ D: Anthony Page. Elliott Gould, Cybill Shepherd, Angela Lansbury, Herbert Lom, Arthur Lowe, Ian Carmichael. Remake of Hitchcock classic retains basic story but is sabotaged by the obnoxious characterizations of its "screwball" stars, Gould and Shepherd. Screenplay by George Axelrod. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Lady Vengeance (2005-Korean) C-115m. ½ D: Park Chan-wook. Lee Yeong-ae, Choi Min-sik, Kim Si-hu, Nam Il-woo, Kim Byeong-ok, Oh Dal-Su. Conclusion of the director's "revenge trilogy" (preceded by SYMPATHY FOR MR. VENGEANCE and OLDBOY) focuses on a woman, wrongfully imprisoned for kidnapping and murdering a young boy when she was 19, who is released after serving 13 years. While trying to reunite with the daughter she was forced to give up for adoption, she executes an elaborate and grisly revenge against the killer for whom she took the fall. Dazzlingly directed film is an undeniable display of cinematic virtuosity, but also a deeply unpleasant experience that seems to revel in brutality and torture, much of it involving children. Super 35. [R]●

Lady With a Dog (1959-Russian) 90m.  D: Josif Heifits. Iya Savvina, Alexei Batalov, Ala Chostakova, N. Alisova. Middle-aged man and young woman, both married, meet and fall in love on vacation. Intelligent tale of adulterous love, sensibly handled, with no contrived ending. Based on the short story by Anton Chekov, also partly the basis of DARK EYES. ▼●

Lafayette (1962-French) C-110m.  D: Jean Dreville. Jack Hawkins, Orson Welles, Howard St. John, Edmund Purdom, Vittorio De Sica, Michel Le Royer. Overblown, badly scripted costumer of famed 18th-century Frenchman; an episodic minor spectacle. Super Technirama 70. ▼

Lafayette Escadrille (1958) 93m.  D: William Wellman. Tab Hunter, Etchika Choureau, William Wellman, Jr., Jody McCrea, Dennis Devine, Marcel Dalio, David Jansen, Paul Fix, Will Hutchins, Clint Eastwood, Tom Laughlin, Brett Halsey. Wellman's final film is a well-intentioned but flat account of the celebrated French flying legion of WWI, spotlighting the coming to maturity of wayward Hunter. Mostly of interest for its cast, with Wellman, Jr., playing his father (who actually was a pilot during the war). Wellman, Sr., wrote the story and narrates. ▼

La Femme Infidèle (1969-French-Italian) C-98m. ½ D: Claude Chabrol. Stephane Audran, Michel Bouquet, Maurice Ronet, Stephen Di Napoli, Michel Duchaussoy. Razor-sharp thriller about a husband who thinks his wife is cheating on him. Audran and Bouquet are well cast in one of writer-director Chabrol's finest films, which chips away at the façade of a seemingly ordinary marriage. Remade in 2002 as UNFAITHFUL. Aka THE UNFAITHFUL WIFE. [R]▼●

La Femme Nikita (1990-French-Italian) C-117m.  D: Luc Besson. Anne Parillaud, Jean-Hugues Anglade, Tcheky Karyo, Jeanne Moreau, Jean Reno, Jean Bouise.

Slick, ultra-violent saga of a hedonistic young woman who runs with a punked-out gang—until she's recruited by a French intelligence officer, determined to make her an undercover agent and "hit man." Stylish and compelling, if not always believable, with a star-making role for Parillaud. Remade in the U.S. as POINT OF NO RETURN, and in Hong Kong as BLACK CAT; later a U.S. cable TV series. Technovision. [R]▼●●

Lagaan: Once Upon a Time in India (2001-Indian) C-224m. ½ D: Ashutosh Gowariker. Aamir Khan, Gracy Singh, Rachel Shelley, Paul Blackthorne, Suhasini Mulay, Kulbhushan Kharbanda, Raghuveer Yadav. India, 1893: an arrogant British military commander offers to cancel the crippling land tax in a drought-ridden farming village for three years if the locals, led by defiant peasant Khan (who also produced the film) can beat his team in a cricket match. If the villagers lose, they'll have to pay triple tax! Long but entertaining historical drama is a quintessential Bollywood epic, expertly combining action, romance, humor, and songs in a resplendent widescreen package. Arriscope. [PG]▼●

L'Age d'Or (1930-French) 63m. * D: Luis Buñuel. Gaston Modot, Lya Lys, Max Ernst, Pierre Prévert. Bishops turn into skeletons and the cow wanders into the bedroom in Buñuel's first feature, a surrealist masterpiece coscripted by Salvador Dalí. Right-wing agitators caused a riot at the film's first (and for a long time, only) public screening; its anticlericalism put it into the "banned film" category for decades. Still has the power to delight, if no longer shock. ▼●●

La Grande Bouffe SEE: Grande Bouffe, The

La Grande Bourgeoise (1974-Italian) C-115m. ½ D: Mauro Bolognini. Catherine Deneuve, Giancarlo Giannini, Fernando Rey, Tina Aumont, Paolo Bonicelli. Strong cast adds some punch to true story about Giannini's murder of sister Deneuve's loutish husband and the political storm it generates. Stylish but not terribly compelling. [R]▼ and curiouser when it turns out worms are the stuff of legend in that area. Bizarre, campy, and altogether outlandish. [R]▼●●

La Guerre Est Finie (1966-French-Swedish) 121m. ½ D: Alain Resnais. Yves Montand, Ingrid Thulin, Genevieve Bujold, Jean Daste, Michel Piccoli. Aging, tired leftist Montand travels from Spain to Paris, reports to his political associates, and visits mistress Thulin. Complex, emotionally powerful drama, with striking direction, performances. Screenplay by Jorge Semprun. ▼●

Lair of the White Worm, The (1988-British) C-94m. ½ D: Ken Russell. Amanda Donohoe, Hugh Grant, Catherine Oxenberg, Peter Capaldi, Sammi Davis, Stratford Johns, Paul Brooke, Christopher Gable. Typically outrageous Ken Russell farce, adapted from a novel by Bram Stoker (of Dracula fame). Strange doings begin when an archaeologist unearths a huge wormlike skull on the grounds of an estate; they get curiouser

Lakeboat (2001) C-98m. ½ D: Joe Mantegna. Peter Falk, Tony Mamet, Robert Forster, Charles Durning, Denis Leary, J.J. Johnston, Jack Wallace, George Wendt, Saul Rubinek. A series of vignettes about the crew of a cargo freighter that travels Lake Michigan. David Mamet adapted his play, with younger brother Tony taking one of the leading roles as a student who signs on for the summer. Never quite becomes a movie, but does offer wonderful dialogue and superb performances. Forster is particularly good. Andy Garcia appears unbilled. Feature directing debut for veteran Mamet actor Mantegna. [R]▼●

Lake House, The (2006) C-98m. ½ D: Alejandro Agresti. Keanu Reeves, Sandra Bullock, Dylan Walsh, Shohreh Aghdashloo, Christopher Plummer, Ebon Moss-Bachrach, Willeke van Ammelrooy, Lynn Collins. Chicago architect Reeves moves into a striking lakefront glass house and finds a letter from its former occupant—doctor Bullock—waiting for him. They begin to correspond, leaving their letters in the old-fashioned mailbox at the front of the property, and eventually discover that they are living two years apart. Romantic drama stretches credulity (to put it mildly) but still creates a moodiness that's intriguing . . . enough to allow a willing viewer to go along for the ride. Based on a Korean film, IL MARE (2000). Super 35. [PG]●

Lake of Fire (2007) 152m. ½ D: Tony Kaye. It's shot in stark b&w, but this scrupulously balanced and profoundly troubling documentary depicts the ongoing debate over abortion in painfully ambiguous shades of gray. Filmed over a 17-year period, Kaye's emotionally and intellectually challenging film forces viewers on both sides of the issue to rethink assumptions while exposing them to archival footage, on-the-street interviews, and sometimes dispassionate, sometimes fanatical testimony from journalists, activists, philosophers, academics, ministers—and, of course, women who have chosen (and, in some cases, regretted their decisions) to have abortions.●

Lake Placid (1999) C-82m.  D: Steve Miner. Bill Pullman, Bridget Fonda, Oliver Platt, Brendan Gleeson, Betty White, David Lewis, Mariska Hargitay, Meredith Salenger. The creature terrorizing a Maine lake (which is not Lake Placid, N.Y.) turns out to be a very large crocodile. Between arguments, paleontologist Fonda, game warden Pullman, sheriff Gleeson, and irritating, wealthy academic Platt try to figure out what to do about it. David E. Kelley, writing down to the material, provides lots of wisecracks, but few scares. Brief but tiresome film tries—but fails—to be a monster movie and environmentally correct at the same time. Adam Arkin appears un-

Lakeview Terrace (2008) C-106m. ½ D: Neil LaBute. Samuel L. Jackson, Patrick Wilson, Kerry Washington, Ron Glass, Justin Chambers, Jay Hernandez, Robert Pine. Mixed-race couple moves into a suburban cul-de-sac next door to an angry veteran L.A. cop (and single father) who feels empowered to impose his moral code on everyone around him. Provocative and well acted, but film's constantly shifting sympathies make it difficult to know what the point is supposed to be. Super 35. [PG-13]●

La Lectrice (1988-French) C-98m.  D: Michel Deville. Miou-Miou, Christian Ruché, Sylvie Laporte, Michel Raskine, Brigitte Catillon, Régis Royer, Maria Casarès, Pierre Dux. Fascinating, multi-textured account of Miou-Miou reading a book aloud to her boyfriend and imagining herself the heroine in the story: a professional reader who becomes involved in the lives of her various clients. Scripted by Deville and his wife, Rosalinde. [R]▼●

La Marseillaise (1938-French) 130m. ½ D: Jean Renoir. Pierre Renoir, Louis Jouvet, Julien Carette, Lisa Delamare. Renoir scripted this stirring account of the French Revolution, featuring dialogue extracted from documents of the 1790s. Begins with news of the fall of the Bastille reaching Louis XVI, ends with the Marseilles Battalion of the French Revolutionary Army storming the Tuilleries and marching to Valmy. Renoir opted for a humanist approach to history, avoiding what he considered the false solemnity of most historical epics.▼●

Lamb (1985-British) C-110m. ½ D: Colin Gregg. Liam Neeson, Hugh O'Conor, Ian Bannen, Rouan Wilmot, Frances Tomelty, Dudley Sutton. Neeson is good in this otherwise obvious drama spotlighting the complex relationship between an idealistic Brother who teaches at a Roman Catholic school for problem boys and a deeply troubled pupil (O'Conor) who is maltreated by the authoritarian headmaster. Not released in the U.S. until 1995.▼●

Lambada (1990) C-98m. BOMB D: Joel Silberg. J. Eddie Peck, Melora Hardin, Shabba-Doo, Ricky Paull Goldin, Basil Hoffman, Dennis Burkley. By day, Peck teaches math to snots in a posh Beverly Hills high school; by night, he tries to "reach" barrio kids in an East L.A. lambada club. In other words, it's STAND AND DELIVER with better buns; avoid at all costs unless you never miss a Shabba-Doo movie. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Lamerica (1994-Italian-French) C-110m. ½ D: Gianni Amelio. Enrico Lo Verso, Michele Placido, Carmelo Di Mazzarelli, Piro Milikani, Elida Janushi. Deeply touching, laced-in-acid drama, set in the wake of Albania's emancipation from communism and detailing the manner in which fate links up a young, arrogant Italian capitalist (Lo Verso) and the just-liberated political prisoner (Di Mazzezzelli) he is attempting to exploit. A politically savvy account of how the downtrodden go from one kind of exploitation to another as political systems change. Amelio effectively captures the feeling of what it's like to be a poor and powerless refugee. Technovision. ▼

La Moustache (2005-French) C-84m.  D: Emmanuel Carrère. Vincent Lindon, Emmanuelle Devos, Mathieu Amalric, Hippolyte Girardot, Cylia Malki, Macha Polikarpova, Fantine Camus. On a whim, a man shaves off his moustache and no one remembers that he ever had one—beginning with his wife. Disturbing, challenging allegorical drama that ponders the nature of intimate human relationships and asks how well two people ever really know each other. Carrère adapted his own novel with Jérôme Beaujour.)

Lancelot and Guinevere SEE: Sword of Lancelot

Land and Freedom (1995-U.S.-Spanish-German) C-109m.  D: Kenneth Loach. Ian Hart, Rosana Pastor, Iciar Bollain, Tom Gilroy, Marc Martines, Frederic Pierrot, Angela Clarke. Perceptive, passionate account of the Spanish Civil War, centered on a young, working-class British Communist (Hart) who comes to Spain to join the anti-fascists in their battle against Franco. Rich human drama of political idealism and reality, if a bit too moralistic at times. Highlight: that pseudo-documentary ad hoc town meeting. ▼

Land Before Time, The (1988) C-69m. ½ D: Don Bluth. Voices of Pat Hingle, Gabriel Damon, Helen Shaver, Candace Hutson, Judith Barsi, Will Ryan, Burke Barnes. A young dinosaur is orphaned and must make his way to a valley green with vegetation where he and his tribe can survive. Along the way he meets other young friends of different dinosaur species, and they make the trek together. Enjoyable if leisurely paced (and plotted) cartoon feature for younger viewers. Followed by far too many video sequels. [G] ▼

Land Before Time II: The Great Valley Adventure, The (1994) C-74m.  D: Roy Allen Smith. Voices of Jeff Bennett, Heather Hogan, Kenneth Mars, John Ingle, Linda Gary, Candace Hutson, Scott McAfee. Charming direct-to-video sequel to earlier animated feature has young brontosaurus Littlefoot and his dino pals contending with omnivores and a baby T-Rex who wants to join their group! Kids will identify with the young reptiles in this delightful adventure. Songs by The Roches; original theme music by James Horner. Followed by several more video sequels. [G] ▼

Land Girls, The (1998-British-French) C-110m.  D: David Leland. Catherine McCormack, Rachel Weisz, Anna Friel, Steven

Mackintosh, Tom Georgeson, Maureen O'Brien, Gerald Down. Disappointing soap opera based on the potentially fascinating story of the Women's Land Army, formed in 1941 to put women to work on English farms whose men had gone off to war. The three attractive young women who come to live with farmer Georgeson wind up dallying with his randy son (Mackintosh), and after a while it all seems rather silly. Leland coscripted from a novel by Angela Huth. Panavision. [R] ▼

Landlord, The (1970) C-113m. ½ D: Hal Ashby. Beau Bridges, Pearl Bailey, Diana Sands, Louis Gossett, Lee Grant, Susan Anspach, Bob (Robert) Klein, Patricia (Trish) Van Devere. Vibrant comedy-drama with Bridges as aimless rich-kid who buys Brooklyn tenement planning to renovate it for himself, changing plans when he meets tenants. Delightful comic touches combined with perceptive sidelights on black experience. Ashby's first film as director. [PG—originally rated R] ▼

Land of Plenty (2004-U.S.-German) C-119m. ½ D: Wim Wenders. John Diehl, Michelle Williams, Richard Edson, Wendell Pierce, Gloria Stuart, Burt Young, Shaun Toub, Bernard White. Psychologically disconnected Vietnam veteran (Diehl) cruises around L.A., looking for suspected terrorists. He and his niece (Williams), newly arrived in town and working in a homeless shelter, investigate the drive-by shooting of a destitute Middle Easterner. This mournful meditation on paranoia, homelessness, and violence in America is at best a plea for peace and understanding in our post-9/11 world, but it meanders and is way overlong. Digital Video Widescreen.)

Land of the Dead (2005-U.S.-Canadian-French) C-93m. ½ D: George A. Romero. Simon Baker, John Leguizamo, Dennis Hopper, Asia Argento, Robert Joy, Eugene Clark, Joanne Boland, Tony Nappo. Survivors of a disaster that turned the dead into flesh-eating zombies hole up in a city on a river with barricades to keep the zombies out. Inside, tensions increase while outside the dead are getting smarter. Romero's fourth walking dead movie is well produced and suspenseful, with a dose of social satire and a standout performance by Leguizamo . . . but we've seen it all before, and it never really catches fire. Title on-screen is GEORGE A. ROMERO'S LAND OF THE DEAD. Also available in unrated version. Super 35. [R] ▼

Land of the Pharaohs (1955) C-106m.

★½ D: Howard Hawks. Jack Hawkins, Joan Collins, James Robertson Justice, Dewey Martin, Alexis Minotis, Sydney Chaplin, James Hayter. Entertaining, if fruity spectacle about building of the Great Pyramid, filmed on an epic scale. Hawks claimed neither he nor his writers (including William Faulkner and Harry Kurnitz) "knew how a pharaoh talked" . . . and it shows. Still worth catching for great revenge ending and now-campy villainy by Collins. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Land Raiders (1970) C-100m. ★★ D: Nathan Juran. Telly Savalas, George Maharis, Arlene Dahl, Janet Landgard, Jocelyn Lane, George Coulouris, Guy Rolfe. Even if you can accept Savalas and Maharis as brothers, this Western about family feuds amidst Indian attacks has little to offer. ▼●

Landru SEE: Bluebeard (1962)

Land That Time Forgot, The (1975-British) C-90m. ★★½ D: Kevin Connor. Doug McClure, John McEnery, Susan Penhaligon, Keith Barron, Anthony Ainley. Edgar Rice Burroughs' 1918 sci-fi novel about Germans and Americans in WW1 submarine discovering unknown land in South America is not bad as adventure yarn, but special effects (dinosaurs, volcanic eruption) are not convincing. Sequel: THE PEOPLE THAT TIME FORGOT. [PG] ▼●

Langrishe, Go Down (1978-British) C-112m. ★★★ D: David Jones. Judi Dench, Jeremy Irons, Annette Crosbie, Harold Pinter, Margaret Whiting, Susan Williamson. Dench is superb in this understated drama, set in the 1930s, as one of the daughters of a faded aristocratic Irish family; she experiences an array of emotions while immersing herself in an affair with a calculating Bavarian intellectual (Irons). Starts off slowly and becomes more involving as it goes along. Scripted by Pinter, from a novel by Aidan Higgins. Originally made for British television, this opened theatrically in the U.S. in 2002. ●

La Notte (1961-French-Italian) 120m. ★★½ D: Michelangelo Antonioni. Jeanne Moreau, Marcello Mastroianni, Monica Vitti, Bernhard Wicki. Moreau is bored and troubled by one-dimensional husband Mastroianni in this study of noncommunication. Moody, introverted, abstract—and superficial—filled with "empty, hopeless images." The second of a trilogy, preceded by L'AVVENTURA and followed by L'ECLISSE. Aka THE NIGHT. ▼●

Lantana (2001-Australian-German) C-121m. ★★½ D: Ray Lawrence. Anthony LaPaglia, Geoffrey Rush, Barbara Hershey, Kerry Armstrong, Rachael Blake, Vince Colosimo, Daniela Farinacci, Peter Phelps. Moving, adult story of relationships thwarted by boredom, habit, and lack of communication. LaPaglia plays a cop whose marriage has stagnated, leading him to sleep with another woman; meanwhile, he investigates the disappearance of a woman whose own marriage is in jeopardy. Beautifully nuanced at every turn. Screenplay by Andrew Bovell from his play Speaking in Tongues. Super 35. [R] ▼●

La Nuit de Varennes (1982-Italian-French) C-133m. ★★★ D: Ettore Scola. Marcello Mastroianni, Jean-Louis Barrault, Hanna Schygulla, Harvey Keitel, Jean-Claude Brialy. Witty historical fable allows such famous figures as Casanova and Thomas Paine to cross paths at the time of the French Revolution. Original French running time 150m. Technovision. [R] ▼

La Passante (1982-French-German) C-106m. ★★★ D: Jacques Rouffio. Romy Schneider, Michel Piccoli, Wendelin Werner, Helmut Griem, Gerard Klein, Dominique Labourier, Mathieu Carriere, Maria Schell. Why does nonviolence advocate Piccoli kill a Paraguayan ambassador, an ex-Nazi living under an assumed name? Interesting drama is ambitious in scope, but could have been better. Schneider, in her final film, plays both Piccoli's wife and the woman who sheltered him as a boy. ▼●

La Pelle (1981-Italian-French) C-131m. ★½ D: Liliana Cavani. Marcello Mastroianni, Burt Lancaster, Claudia Cardinale, Ken Marshall, Alexandra King, Carlo Giuffrè. Distastefully bitter panorama of American troops in Naples after the Liberation, based on the memoirs of Curzio Malaparte (played here by Mastroianni). Overlong; poorly directed and scripted (by Cavani and Robert Katz). A disaster.

La Petite Lili (2003-French-Canadian) C-104m. ★★★ D: Claude Miller. Nicole Garcia, Bernard Giraudeau, Jean-Pierre Marielle, Ludvine Sagnier, Robinson Stévenin, Julie Depardieu, Yves Jacques, Michel Piccoli. A family's country retreat becomes charged with emotion when the hotheaded son—an aspiring filmmaker/artiste—discovers that his girlfriend is intrigued with his mother's boyfriend, a successful director of mainstream movies. Ingenious film inspired by Chekhov's The Seagull, exploring the line between art and life, and how the two affect each other. Screenplay by Miller and Julien Boivent. ●

La Prisonniere (1969-French) 104m. ★★ D: Henri-Georges Clouzot. Laurent Terzieff, Bernard Fresson, Elisabeth Wiener, Dany Carrel, Dario Moreno, Daniel Riviere. From the director of DIABOLIQUE comes this obscure, confused study of woman obsessed with a photographer of sado-masochism. Strikingly photographed.

La Promesse (1996-Belgian-French-Luxembourgian-Tunisian) C-93m. ★★½ D: Jean-Pierre Dardenne, Luc Dardenne. Jérémie Renier, Olivier Gourmet, Assita Ouedraogo, Rasmané Ouedraogo. Harrowing tale of a boy being raised by a father who mercilessly exploits illegal immigrants—as their supposed savior, landlord, and employer. Trouble begins when the boy, who's always obeyed his father unquestioningly, develops a friendship with one of the illegals. Moving in its understated, matter-of-fact look at a young man at a moral crossroads in his life. Remarkably raw . . . and real. Written by the directors. ▼

Laputa: Castle in the Sky (1986-Japanese) C-124m. * D: Hayao Miyazaki. Voices of James Van Der Beek, Anna Paquin, Cloris Leachman, Mark Hamill, Mandy Patinkin, Andy Dick. Magnificent animated adventure fantasy about an orphan girl who is pursued by sky pirates and an evil government agent who want to get their hands on the magical crystal that allows her to float—and also holds the secret to finding a mythical treasure-laden island above the clouds. Stunning visuals, thrilling set pieces and compelling characters make this a masterpiece of action filmmaking, animated or otherwise, inspiring a true sense of awe. Aka CASTLE IN THE SKY. ▼

Lara Croft Tomb Raider (2001) C-100m. *½ D: Simon West. Angelina Jolie, Jon Voight, Noah Taylor, Iain Glen, Daniel Craig, Christopher Barrie, Richard Johnson, Leslie Phillips. Jolie plays the sexy British archaeologist-adventurer who follows her late father's instructions to find—and destroy—both pieces of an ancient relic that can control time. Perhaps the dullest action-adventure film ever made, with flat writing and performances (save for Jolie) and lifeless direction, sparked now and then by some flashy set-pieces. Voight, Jolie's real-life father, plays Croft's dad. Based on a popular computer game. To quote a character in the film itself, "Enough of this twaddle!" Followed by a sequel. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Lara Croft Tomb Raider: The Cradle of Life (2003) C-117m. *½ D: Jan De Bont. Angelina Jolie, Gerard Butler, Noah Taylor, Ciarán Hinds, Djimon Hounsou, Til Schweiger, Christopher Barrie, Simon Yam. Pouting and plundering in a variety of revealing outfits, Jolie returns as the video-game adventuress who teams up with her shady ex in a race to find Pandora's Box before it falls into the hands of an evil scientist who wants to harness its power to create biological weapons. Astonishingly inept and interminable sequel gives new meaning to the word "boring." Game over. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

L'Argent (1983-French-Swiss) C-81m.

½ D: Robert Bresson. Christian Patey, Sylvie van den Elsen, Michel Bruguet, Caroline Lang, Jeanne Aptekman. How the petty maneuverings of some upper-class boys and shopkeepers result in the ruin of working-man Patey: the rich lie, and get their workers to lie for them, but are aghast when the workers lie to them. Subtle, powerful film, simply and effectively directed by a master filmmaker; based on a Tolstoy story. ▼

Larger Than Life (1996) C-93m. *½ D: Howard Franklin. Bill Murray, Janeane Garofalo, Matthew McConaughey, Linda Fiorentino, Keith David, Pat Hingle, Jeremy Piven, Maureen Mueller, Harve Presnell, Lois Smith, Tai. Disappointing comedic misfire of motivational speaker Murray trying to get an elephant cross-country in a hurry. One hysterical sequence of Murray's mishandling of a truck is the only real laugh. Promising possibilities fall flat, with McConaughey way over the top and Fiorentino completely wasted. [PG] ▼

La Ronde (1950-French) 97m. ½ D: Max Ophuls. Anton Walbrook, Serge Reggiani, Simone Simon, Simone Signoret, Daniel Gelin, Danielle Darrieux, Fernand Gravet, Odette Joyeux, Jean-Louis Barrault, Isa Miranda, Gérard Philippe. Wise, witty account of various people having affairs, forming a chain that eventually comes full circle, all held together by sarcastic Walbrook. A film of style and charm, based on an Arthur Schnitzler play. Screenplay by Jacques Natanson and director Ophuls. Remade as CIRCLE OF LOVE and CHAIN OF DESIRE. ▼

Lars and the Real Girl (2007) C-106m.  D: Craig Gillespie. Ryan Gosling, Emily Mortimer, Patricia Clarkson, Kelli Garner, Paul Schneider. Sweet film about socially traumatized Gosling, who purchases a life-sized doll and treats her as if she's real—to the dismay of his older brother and sister-in-law (who feel protective of him) and the neighbors in their tight-knit community. Fortunately, a sympathetic doctor (Clarkson) steers them in the right direction. This could have been written as farce, but instead it's a story about caring and compassion in the face of genuinely odd behavior . . . and it's disarmingly effective. Written by Nancy Oliver. [PG-13] D

Larsen, Wolf of the Seven Seas SEE: Wolf Larsen

La Salamandre (1971-Swiss) 125m. *****
D: Alain Tanner. Bulle Ogier, Jean-Luc Bideau, Jacques Denis. Simple, funny examination of truth: journalist Bideau and writer Denis research facts behind the case of mysterious Ogier, accused by her uncle of attempted murder. Fine performances by the three leads. V

La Separation (1994-French) C-85m. *****
D: Christian Vincent. Isabelle Huppert, Daniel Auteuil, Jerome Deschamps, Karin Viard, Laurence Lerel. Knowingly detailed, beautifully acted chronicle of the simmering tensions between a married couple (Huppert and Auteuil) as their relationship disintegrates. In its best moments, this sobering film compares favorably with Bergman's SCENES FROM A MARRIAGE. Released in the U.S. in 1998. V

Laserblast (1978) C-90m. ½ D: Michael Raye. Kim Milford, Cheryl Smith, Roddy McDowall, Ron Masak, Keenan Wynn, Dennis Burkley. Low-budget sci-fi with teen Milford finding alien ray gun which enables him to become a creature who can destroy his enemies. David Allen's stop-motion effects are a highlight. [PG] V

Laser Mission (1989-German-South African-U.S.) C-83m. * D: Beau Davis. Brandon Lee, Debi Monahan, Ernest Borgnine, Werner Pochath, Graham Clarke, Maureen Lahoud, Pierre Knoessen. Freelance secret agent Lee and tough Monahan travel across a South African desert to rescue laser expert Borgnine, kidnapped by the Soviets. Lee is appealing, but this low-rent 007-type adventure has nothing new to offer. V

Lassie (1994) C-92m.  D: Daniel Petrie. Helen Slater, Thomas Guiry, Jon Tenney, Brittany Boyd, Frederic Forrest, Richard Farnsworth, Michelle Williams, Charlie Hofheimer. A city family with some problems decides to start over again at the old family farm; along the way, a remarkably smart dog "adopts" them. Young Guiry is a standout as the troubled boy who (quite credibly) changes under the influences of Lassie and his new country environment. Painted in broad strokes, for its intended youthful audience. [PG] V

Lassie (2005-British-Irish-French-U.S.) C-100m.  D: Charles Sturridge. Peter O'Toole, Samantha Morton, John Lynch, Peter Dinklage, Steve Pemberton, Jemma Redgrave, Jonathan Mason, Edward Fox, John Standing, Gregor Fisher, Robert Hardy, Kelly Macdonald, Nicholas Lyndhurst. The setting is Yorkshire, 1938: young Joe (Mason) is heartbroken when his impoverished parents are forced to sell his beloved collie to the Duke of Rudling (O'Toole, in fine fettle). But Lassie has no intention of staying with the Duke, even after he brings the dog to his Glasgow estate, and makes the long journey home, meeting a variety of colorful characters along the way. Pleasing, straightforward retelling of Eric Knight's story, filmed before as LASSIE COME HOME (1943). Super 35. [PG] D

D: Fred M. Wilcox. Roddy McDowall, Donald Crisp, Dame May Whitty, Edmund Gwenn, Nigel Bruce, Elsa Lanchester, Elizabeth Taylor. Winning, wonderful film from Eric Knight's book about a poor family forced to sell their beloved dog, who undertakes several tortuous journeys to return to them. A tearjerker of the first order, and one of the all-time great family films. Lassie is played—quite remarkably—by a male collie named Pal. Sequel: SON OF LASSIE. Remade as GYPSY COLT, THE MAGIC OF LASSIE, and LASSIE (2005). V

Lassiter (1984) C-100m. ½ D: Roger Young. Tom Selleck, Jane Seymour, Lauren Hutton, Bob Hoskins, Joe Regalbuto, Ed Lauter, Warren Clarke. A second-story man is shanghaied into doing espionage work in London on the eve of WW2. Stylish and nicely acted, but too plodding to overcome its basic problem of ordinariness. Selleck's second star vehicle is at least an improvement over his first (HIGH ROAD TO CHINA). [R] V

Last Action Hero (1993) C-130m. * D: John McTiernan. Arnold Schwarzenegger, F. Murray Abraham, Art Carney, Charles Dance, Frank McRae, Tom Noonan, Robert Prosky, Anthony Quinn, Mercedes Ruehl, Austin O'Brien, Ian McKellen, Toru Tanaka, Joan Plowright, Tina Turner, Rick Ducommun, Michael V. Gazzo. Noisy, smug, self-conscious blockbuster-wannabe about a boy whose "magic ticket" transports him into an action movie alongside his No. 1 hero, Jack Slater (Schwarzenegger). Genuinely bad writing and an overall air of unpleasantness torpedo this film; good action scenes and occasional clever ideas can't save it. (And how exactly did an Ingmar Bergman picture work its way into the story?) A raft of cameo appearances add to the in-joke tone of the picture. Panavision. [PG-13] V

Last Adventure, The (1967-French) C-102m. ½ D: Robert Enrico. Alain Delon, Lino Ventura, Joanna Shimkus, Hans Meyer. Two adventurers and a beautiful woman go on a very engaging treasure hunt. Techniscope. V

Last American Hero, The (1973) C-100m.  D: Lamont Johnson. Jeff Bridges, Valerie Perrine, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Art Lund, Gary Busey, Ed Lauter, Ned Beatty. Unusual, engrossing saga of Junior Jackson, North Carolinian moonshiner and racing fanatic, pitting his ability against the System. Three-dimensional, believable characters en-

Last Angry Man, The (1959) 100m. *****
D: Daniel Mann. Paul Muni, David Wayne, Betsy Palmer, Luther Adler, Joby Baker, Joanna Moore, Godfrey Cambridge, Billy Dee Williams. Sentimental story of an old, dedicated family doctor in Brooklyn whose life is going to be portrayed on TV. Muni (in his last film) makes it worth seeing. Adapted by Gerald Green from his novel. Look fast for a young Cicely Tyson. Remade as 1974 TVM with Pat Hingle. ▼

Last Boy Scout, The (1991) C-105m. ****
D: Tony Scott. Bruce Willis, Damon Wayans, Chelsea Field, Noble Willingham, Taylor Negron, Danielle Harris, Halle Berry, Bruce McGill. Hardcore action film with Willis as a fired Secret Service agent now supporting himself through sticky gumshoe hire-outs; Wayans is his buddy in bonding (and an ex-pro-football quarterback) who helps him investigate gridiron corruption. More of the same from LETHAL WEAPON screenwriter Shane Black. Violent, even by this genre's standards, but zippy enough to make it an OK view. Panavision. [R] ▼

Last Butterfly, The (1991-Czech-British) C-110m.  D: Karel Kachyna. Tom Courtenay, Brigitte Fossey, Ingrid Held, Freddie Jones, Milan Kuzak, Josef Kemer, Linda Jablonska. Acidly ironic drama of famous French mime Courtenay, who is "hired" by the Nazis to give one performance for the children of Terezin, the infamous "city of the Jews," during WW2. It's meant for propaganda purposes, to show the world that Jews in concentration camps were living the Life of Riley. Occasionally heavy going because of subject matter, but always moving. [PG-13] ▼

Last Castle, The (2001) C-131m. * D: Rod Lurie. Robert Redford, James Gandolfini, Mark Ruffalo, Steve Burton, Delroy Lindo, Paul Calderon, Clifton Collins, Jr., Samuel Ball, Frank Military. After a controversial court-martial, a highly respected general is sent to a military prison, where he squares off against the warden and ultimately leads a revolt. Redford plays the kind of quiet rebel he virtually invented in the 1970s, but the script is swimming in movie clichés, and Gandolfini is too obvious a target. Panavision. [R] ▼

Last Challenge, The (1967) C-96m. ****
D: Richard Thorpe. Glenn Ford, Angie Dickinson, Chad Everett, Gary Merrill, Jack Elam, Delphi Lawrence, Royal Dano. Punk Everett is out to get Marshal Ford in well-cast but routine Western; Angie plays saloon-keeper, which makes one wonder why the two men don't just settle their problems over a drink. Panavision.

Last Chance Harvey (2008-U.S.-British) C-90m.  D: Joel Hopkins. Dustin Hoffman, Emma Thompson, Kathy Baker, James

Brolin, Eileen Atkins, Richard Schiff, Liane Balaban. A poor shlub (Hoffman) whose career is on the skids flies to London for his daughter's wedding but feels alienated from the festivities, presided over by his ex-wife and her new husband. Then he chances to meet a middle-aged working woman (Thompson) and strikes up a conversation. A poignant portrait of two mature people who form a kinship; this shows off the two stars at their very best. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Last Chase, The (1981-Canadian) C-101m. *½ D: Martyn Burke. Lee Majors, Burgess Meredith, Chris Makepeace, Alexandra Stewart, Ben Gordon. Oil shortage causes the demise of auto travel during the 1980s; 20 years later, ex-race-car driver Majors reassembles his Porsche and becomes a "symbol of freedom" as he races across the country. Flimsy drama that reeks of Reaganomics. [PG] ▼

Last Command, The (1928) 88m. ******
D: Josef von Sternberg. Emil Jannings, Evelyn Brent, William Powell, Nicholas Soussanin, Michael Visaroff, Jack Raymond, Fritz Feld. Stunning silent drama of refugee Russian general Jannings, who is now reduced to working as a Hollywood extra—and destined to appear in a movie depicting the Russian revolution. A fascinating story laced with keen perceptions of life and work in Hollywood. Lajos Biro's story was based on an actual person; Jannings' gripping performance won him an Oscar (shared for his work in THE WAY OF ALL FLESH). ▼

Last Dance (1996) C-103m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Sharon Stone, Rob Morrow, Randy Quaid, Peter Gallagher, Jack Thompson, Jayne Brook, Pamala Tyson, Skeet Ulrich. Younger brother of governor's chief of staff arrives in state capitol and gets a make-work job in the Clemency Office. He throws himself into his first case, launching a crusade to save a woman convicted of double murder from being executed. Stone gives a creditable performance in this severely deglamorized role, though it's hard to empathize with a murderer heroine. (By film's end, you can't help but feel something.) Morrow is good, too, but his character's motivations are muddy. Suffers

Last Days, The (1999) C-90m. ½ D: James Moll. Exceptional documentary about five survivors of the Holocaust who suffered through Hitler's "final solution" in the last year of the war in Hungary. Brilliantly compiled from archive footage, vivid interviews and contemporary visits to Germany and Hungary, with five well-chosen subjects whose stories gradually meld into a mosaic. Produced by Steven Spielberg's Shoah Foundation. Oscar winner as Best Documentary. [PG-13]▼

Last Days (2005) C-97m.  D: Gus Van Sant. Michael Pitt, Lukas Haas, Asia Argento, Scott Green, Nicole Vicius, Ricky Jay, Ryan Orion, Harmony Korine, Kim Gordon. Ambitious but ineffective minimalist drama chronicling the final hours in the life of a Kurt Cobain-like rock star (Pitt). Van Sant attempts to get inside the character's head and explore his mental and emotional state; despite some striking images, the result is meandering . . . and the religious references are preposterous. [R]●

Last Days of Chez Nous, The (1993-Australian) C-96m. ½ D: Gillian Armstrong. Lisa Harrow, Bruno Ganz, Kerry Fox, Miranda Otto, Kiri Paramore, Bill Hunter. Aspiring novelist with a teenage daughter endures marital discord when her aimless younger sister moves in. Director Armstrong returns to her roots for this interesting, if not entirely successful, film about relationships—between spouses, siblings, children and parents. (Biggest problem: an enigmatic and unappealing lead character.) A movie for real grown-ups, though it lacks the emotional power of MY BRILLIANT CAREER. Offers a view of Sydney (the bleaker part) that other movies usually don't show. [R]▼

Last Days of Disco, The (1998) C-113m.  D: Whit Stillman. Chloë Sevigny, Kate Beckinsale, Chris Eigeman, Mackenzie Astin, Matt Keeslar, Robert Sean Leonard, Jennifer Beals, Burr Steers, David Thornton, Jaid Barrymore, Carolyn Farina. Two friends, naive but smart Sevigny and critical Beckinsale, hang out at a trendy disco in the early 1980s, trying—like everyone they know—to make the transition from group activity to pairing off. Sardonic but sympathetic to its characters, the movie is amusing and well acted but not particularly insightful. Said to be the last in Stillman's romantic-yuppies trilogy with METROPOLITAN and BARCELONA; some of the characters from those films turn up here. [R]▼●●

out from under the creep's thumb—as a screenwriter. Unsympathetic characters in a harsh and violent world, spouting quirky dialogue amidst the L.A. porn scene; yet another PULP FICTION wannabe. Debuted on U.S. cable TV. [R]▼

Last Days of Man on Earth, The (1973-British) C-78m. *½ D: Robert Fuest. Jon Finch, Jenny Runacre, Sterling Hayden, Patrick Magee, Hugh Griffith, Harry Andrews. Muddled sci-fi comedy set in Lapland, London and Turkey as world nears its end. A few scattered laughs. Longer, original British version (called THE FINAL PROGRAMME, running 89m.) has more substance. Based on one of Michael Moorcock's "Jerry Cornelius" stories; film has gained cult reputation. [R]▼●●

Last Days of Pompeii, The (1935) 96m.  D: Ernest B. Schoedsack. Preston Foster, Basil Rathbone, Dorothy Wilson, David Holt, Alan Hale, John Wood, Louis Calhern. Former blacksmith Foster aspires to wealth and power as gladiator; climactic spectacle scenes are expertly done, by the same special effects team responsible for KING KONG. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Last Days of Pompeii, The (1960-Italian) C-105m. ½ D: Mario Bonnard. Steve Reeves, Christine Kaufmann, Barbara Carroll, Anne Marie Baumann, Mimmo Palmara. New version of venerable tale focuses on musclemen Reeves and synthetic account of Christian martyrs. Very little spectacle. SuperTotalscope.▼

Last Dragon, The (1985) C-109m.  D: Michael Schultz. Taimak, Vanity, Chris Murney, Julius J. Carry 3rd, Faith Prince, Ernie Reyes, Jr., Keshia Knight (Pulliam), William H. Macy. Juvenile film about would-be martial arts master who gets involved with glamorous video deejay (Vanity) and some overwrought gangsters. Campy and heavy-handed; strictly kid stuff, except for one gag: the name of the Chinatown warehouse. Released theatrically as BERRY GORDY'S THE LAST DRAGON. Look fast for Chazz Palminteri as a thug. [PG-13]▼

better Hitchcock-influenced suspense thrillers offers good performances and a punchy climax at Niagara Falls. Fine Miklos Rozsa score; watch for Mandy Patinkin. [R]▼●

Last Emperor, The (1987-Italian-British-Chinese) C-165m. ½ D: Bernardo Bertolucci. John Lone, Joan Chen, Peter O'Toole, Ying Ruo Cheng, Victor Wong, Dennis Dun, Ryuichi Sakamoto, Maggie Han, Ric Young. Remarkable film inspired by true story of Pu Yi, the last emperor of China, who is crowned at age three and lives a cloistered life in the Forbidden City until he is deposed (as a young man) during the revolution and forced to fend for himself in the outside world for the first time. A magnificent journey to another time and place, hampered by unanswered questions in the narrative and a main character who remains somewhat cold. Nothing can top the spectacle of life in the Forbidden City (where scenes were actually filmed)—or the twists of fate that fill Pu Yi's life. Photographed by Vittorio Storaro; music by Ryuichi Sakamoto, David Byrne, and Cong Su. Winner of nine Academy Awards including Best Picture, Director, Adapted Screenplay (Mark Peploe, Bertolucci), Cinematography, Art Direction, Editing, Costume Design, and Original Score. Hong Kong—produced version, based on Pu Yi's autobiography, predates this. Alternate version runs 218m. Technovision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Last Escape, The (1970) C-90m. *½ D: Walter Grauman. Stuart Whitman, John Collin, Pinkas Braun, Martin Jarvis, Gunther Neutze, Margit Saad. O.S.S. Captain Whitman is ordered to sneak rocket expert out of Germany near the end of WW2 with predictable results. [G]

Last Exit to Brooklyn (1989-W. German) C-102m. ½ D: Uli Edel. Stephen Lang, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Burt Young, Peter Dinklage, Jerry Orbach, Stephen Baldwin, Sam Rockwell, Ricki Lake, John Costelloe, Alexis Arquette. Gritty, brutal but stylish adaptation of Hubert Selby, Jr.'s notorious slice-of-life novel set on the mean streets of 1952 Brooklyn, where violence—verbal, physical, sexual, and otherwise—rules. Crammed with local color, but all the characters are thoroughly repellent and the film is difficult to like and to take. Selby himself appears as a cab driver. [R]▼●

Last Flight of Noah's Ark, The (1980) C-97m. ½ D: Charles Jarrott. Elliott Gould, Genevieve Bujold, Ricky Schroder, Tammy Lauren, John Fujioka, Yuki Shimoda, Vincent Gardenia. Typical Disney sentimentality, somewhat effective. Pilot Gould, missionary Bujold, stowaway children, and a planeload of animals are forced down in the Pacific, where they unite with two Japanese soldiers, who didn't know WW2 was over, to convert the plane into an ark. Filmed largely on Waikiki Beach. Story

by Ernest K. (THE HIGH AND THE MIGHTY) Gann. [G] ▼●

Last Frontier, The (1956) C-98m. ½ D: Anthony Mann. Victor Mature, Guy Madison, Robert Preston, James Whitmore, Anne Bancroft. Three wilderness scouts see their lives change with the coming of cavalry outpost and military martinet (Preston). Offbeat characterizations in this cavalry drama. Aka SAVAGE WILDERNESS. CinemaScope. ▼●

Last Gangster, The (1937) 81m.  D: Edward Ludwig. Edward G. Robinson, James Stewart, Rosa Stradner, Lionel Stander, Douglas Scott, John Carradine, Sidney Blackmer, Louise Beavers, Edward Brophy, Grant Mitchell. Robinson's dynamic performance, and slick MGM production, elevate this tale of an underworld chief who's sent away for ten years, obsessed by the thought of the son he's never met. Entertaining story by William Wellman and Robert Carson was originally to have been called Another Public Enemy.

Last Good Time, The (1994) C-91m.  D: Bob Balaban. Armin Mueller-Stahl, Maureen Stapleton, Lionel Stander, Olivia d'Abo, Adrian Pasdar, Zohra Lampert, Kevin Corrigan. Well-observed little chamber drama about an elderly widower who takes in a young woman hiding from her lowlife boyfriend. Well acted all around, and nicely detailed, with a fine score by Jonathan Tunick. [R]▼●

Last Hard Men, The (1976) C-103m. *½ D: Andrew V. McLaglen. Charlton Heston, James Coburn, Barbara Hershey, Michael Parks, Jorge Rivero, Larry Wilcox, Thalmus Rasulala, Morgan Paull, Robert Donner, Christopher Mitchum. Outlaw Coburn leads a gang of men on a jailbreak, then sets into motion plan of vengeance on sheriff Heston: kidnapping daughter Hershey and threatening to gang-rape her. Repellently violent and tasteless Western, loosely based on a Brian Garfield novel, saved only by Parks' interesting performance as reform-minded sheriff. Panavision. [R]

Last Holiday (1950-British) 89m.  D: Henry Cass. Alec Guinness, Beatrice Campbell, Kay Walsh, Bernard Lee, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Sidney James, Ernest Thesiger. Ordinary man is told he is dying and decides to live it up at a swank resort. A droll, biting script by J. B. Priestley (who also coproduced), with sterling performances by all. Remade in 2006. ▼

department store salesclerk who decides to go for broke when she learns she is terminally ill. Squanders its good vibes by going on too long toward an obvious conclusion, but Latifah's warmhearted performance carries it most of the way. Super 35. [PG-13] D

Last Hour, The (1991) C-85m. ½ D: William Sachs. Michael Paré, Shannon Tweed, Bobby Di Cicco, Robert Pucci, Robert Miano, George Kyle, Danny Trejo, Raye Hollitt. A gangster kidnaps the ex-wife of cop Paré and current wife of high-living Pucci, who previously double-crossed the gangster, and holds her hostage in an old L.A. building. Pretty good low-rent imitation DIE HARD with atmospheric photography and occasionally amusing dialogue. [R] **▼●

Last House on the Left, The (1972) C-84m. *½ D: Wes Craven. David Hess, Lucy Grant-ham, Sandra Cassel, Marc Sheffler, Jeramie Rain, Fred Lincoln. Group of thugs rapes and kills two girls, then meets bloody vigilante justice from one girl's parents. Cheap, and looks it. Repellent but admittedly powerful and (for better or worse) influential horror shocker. Surprisingly, based on Bergman's THE VIRGIN SPRING. First film by director Wes Craven. Also available in unrated version. Remade in 2009. [R] **▼●

Last Hunt, The (1956) C-108m. ½ D: Richard Brooks. Robert Taylor, Stewart Granger, Lloyd Nolan, Debra Paget, Russ Tamblyn, Constance Ford. In the Old West, Granger and Taylor form an uneasy partnership to hunt the last remaining herds of buffalo; Granger is sick of killing, Taylor likes it all too well. Complex characters and good dialogue help, but overlength and slow pace damage this serious Western. CinemaScope. **▼

Last Hurrah, The (1958) 121m. ½ D: John Ford. Spencer Tracy, Jeffrey Hunter, Diane Foster, Basil Rathbone, Pat O'Brien, Donald Crisp, James Gleason, Ed Brophy, John Carradine, Ricardo Cortez, Frank McHugh, Jane Darwell, Anna Lee, Charles FitzSimmons, Ken Curtis, O. Z. Whitehead, Jack Pennick, Dan Borzage. Sentimental version of Edwin O'Connor novel of politics,

loosely based on life of Boston's mayor James Curley who in this story is mounting his final election campaign. Top-notch veteran cast makes film sparkle. Remade for TV in 1977 by (and with) Carroll O'Connor. **▼●●

Last King of Scotland, The (2006-British-German) C-121m.  D: Kevin Macdonald. Forest Whitaker, James McAvoy, Kerry Washington, Gillian Anderson, Simon McBurney, David Oyelowo, Stephen Rwangyezi. Aimless young Scottish doctor (McAvoy) travels to Uganda and, through odd circumstances, finds himself personal physician to General Idi Amin (Whitaker). He lives the high life until the dictator's brutal nature is revealed. Provocative story goes exactly where you expect it to but is powered by Whitaker's mesmerizing, Oscar-winning performance, which captures all of Amin's charm and danger. Peter Morgan and Jeremy Brock adapted Giles Foden's novel. Fiction feature debut for documentary filmmaker Macdonald. Super 35. [R] D

Last Kiss, The (2001-Italian) C-114m.  D: Gabriele Muccino. Stefano Accorsi, Giovanna Mezzogiorno, Stefania Sandrelli, Claudio Santamaria, Marco Cocci, Giorgio Pasotti, Martina Stella, Pierfrancesco Favino. A man about to turn 30—and become a father with his lover—begins to regret that he no longer feels great passion. Meanwhile, his friends plan a way to escape their lives and flee, and his lover's mother (Sandrelli), wracked by fear of growing old, attempts to leave her husband. A very passionate, very Italian drama. Remade in 2006. Super 35. [R] **▼

Last Kiss, The (2006) C-104m.  D: Tony Goldwyn. Zach Braff, Jacinda Barrett, Casey Affleck, Rachel Bilson, Michael Weston, Blythe Danner, Tom Wilkinson, Eric Christian Olsen, Marley Shelton, Lauren Lee Smith, Harold Ramis. Braff has a good job and comfortable life, and is contemplating marriage to his pregnant girlfriend . . . but he and his pals are suffering a collective panic attack as they near the age of 30, still wary of accepting adult responsibility. Meanwhile, Braff's future in-laws (Danner and Wilkinson) are going through a crisis of their own. The characters are refreshingly human in this satisfying drama set in Madison, Wisconsin. Paul Haggis scripted this remake of the 2001 Italian film. Panavision. [R] D

Last Laugh, The (1924-German) 87m. ½ D: F. W. Murnau. Emil Jannings, Maly Delschaft, Max Hiller, Hans Unterkirch. Silent-film classic told entirely by camera, without title cards. Jannings plays proud doorman at posh hotel who is suddenly demoted; film details his utter and grievous humiliation. Brilliantly filmed by pioneer cameraman Karl Freund, with towering performance by Jannings. Remade in Germany in 1955. **▼●●

Last Legion, The (2007-British-French-Italian) C-102m. ½ D: Doug Lefler.

Colin Firth, Ben Kingsley, Aishwarya Rai, Peter Mullan, John Hannah, Thomas Sangster, Kevin McKidd, Iain Glen, Rupert Friend. After barbarian hordes invade the crumbling Roman Empire in A.D. 476, a loyal military officer (Firth) and his brave men escort the newly crowned 12-year-old emperor (Sangster) to relative safety in far-off Britannia. There are faint echoes of Robert Louis Stevenson in this fitfully rousing, amusingly retro action-adventure. Kingsley is well cast as a cryptic sage (and occasional wizard) who serves as mentor to Sangster's resilient young hero. Super 35. [PG-13] D

Last Man on Earth, The (1964-U.S.-Italian) 86m.  D: Sidney Salkow. Vincent Price, Franca Bettoia, Emma Danieli, Giacomo Rossi-Stuart, Tony Cerevi. Often crude chiller with Price the sole survivor of plague, besieged by victims who arise at night thirsting for his blood; erratic production. Based on Richard Matheson's I Am Legend; remade as THE OMEGA MAN and I AM LEGEND. CinemaScope. **▼●●

Last Man Standing (1996) C-101m.  D: Walter Hill. Bruce Willis, Christopher Walken, Bruce Dern, Alexandra Powers, David Patrick Kelly, William Sanderson, Karina Lombard, Ned Eisenberg, Michael Imperioli, R. D. Call, Leslie Mann. Willis chances to pass through a dreary Texas town where two Chicago gangs are at each other's throats—and tries to work both sides of the street to his own advantage. Remake of YOJIMBO (which itself became FISTFUL OF DOLLARS), set in the 1930s, is rife with gunplay, but overcome by sheer boredom. Super 35. [R] **▼●●

Last Married Couple in America, The (1980) C-103m. *½ D: Gilbert Cates. George Segal, Natalie Wood, Richard Benjamin, Valerie Harper, Bob Dishy, Dom DeLuise. Likable cast in stupid sex comedy about happily married couple so upset by breakup of married friends that they begin to question their own relationship. Smutty and ridiculous. [R] **▼

Last Metro, The (1980-French) C-133m. ½ D: François Truffaut. Catherine Deneuve, Gérard Depardieu, Jean Poiret, Heinz Bennent, Andrea Ferreol, Paulette Goddard. A beautiful actress struggles to keep her "exiled" husband's theater alive during the German occupation of Paris. A film with charm and style but no point—a problem underscored by its abrupt and quizzical finale. Watching the elegant Deneuve provides most of this film's appeal. [PG] **▼●●

Last Mile, The (1959) 81m. ½ D: Howard W. Koch. Mickey Rooney, Clifford David, Harry Millard, Don "Red" Barry, Ford Rainey, Leon Janney. The "big house" oldie dusted off as a dramatic vehicle for Rooney. Filmed before in 1932.

Last Mimzy, The (2007) C-90m. *½ D: Bob Shaye. Chris O'Neil, Rhiannon Leigh Wryn, Joely Richardson, Timothy Hutton,

Rainn Wilson, Kathryn Hahn, Michael Clarke Duncan. Two Seattle kids find a box sent back from the future; the devices inside increase their intelligence and give them abilities to help them change the future for the better. Treacily misfire tosses science fiction and fantasy elements into the same hopper; wants to be the new E.T. but falls far short. Loosely based on the short story "Mimsy Were the Rogovoges" by Lewis Padgett. The director's day job is running New Line Cinema. Super 35. [PG] D

Last Mogul: The Life and Times of Lew Wasserman, The (2005-U.S.-Canadian) C-110m. ½ D: Barry Avrich. Compelling documentary chronicles the life and career of MCA-Universal kingpin Wasserman from his early days to his huge success as an agent to his years as head of one of Hollywood's most important studios. Told in straightforward fashion, this unauthorized look does not shy away from controversial areas of his life, including his reputed association with mob figures. Still, while well made and researched, the film doesn't appear to cover the whole picture; key people, including family members and longtime associates, are conspicuous by their absence. [PG-13] D

Last Movie, The (1971) C-108m. *½ D: Dennis Hopper. Dennis Hopper, Julie Adams, Peter Fonda, Kris Kristofferson, Sylvia Miles, John Phillip Law, Rod Cameron, Sam Fuller. Hopper's fatally pretentious follow-up to EASY RIDER is interesting only as curio; incomprehensible story of small Peruvian village after a movie company pulls out has lovely photography, good acting by Adams. Otherwise, you've been warned. Among the supporting cast: Dean Stockwell, Russ Tamblyn, Michelle Phillips. Kristofferson's film debut (he also wrote the music). Also known as CHINCHERO. [PG] **▼

Last Night (1998-Canadian-French) C-93m.  D: Don McKellar. Don McKellar, Sandra Oh, Sarah Polley, Callum Keith Rennie, David Cronenberg, Robin Gammell, Genevieve Bujold, Jackie Burroughs. Rumination on the last night of civilization, and how various people deal with their impending demise. Not exactly profound, though Oh's heartrending performance almost makes this worth watching. Written by leading actor McKellar, making his directorial debut. [R] **▼

Last Night at the Alamo (1983) 80m.  D: Eagle Pennell. Sonny Davis, Lou Perry, Steve Matilla, Tina Hubbard, Doris Hargrave. The last night at the Alamo, no famous battle site but a small, obscure Houston bar. A fascinating portrayal of the modern-era "cowboy" as henpecked, alcoholic, ultimately pathetic. Independently produced, with a hilariously profane script

by Kim Henkel, author of THE TEXAS CHAINSAW MASSACRE. ▼

Last of Mrs. Cheyney, The (1937) 98m.  D: Richard Boleslawski. Joan Crawford, William Powell, Robert Montgomery, Frank Morgan, Jessie Ralph, Nigel Bruce. Glossy remake of Norma Shearer's 1929 success, from Frederick Lonsdale's play about a chic American jewel thief in England. Great fun for star watchers, though it was considered a dated dud in 1937. Remade in 1951 as THE LAW AND THE LADY. ▼

Last of Sheila, The (1973) C-120m. ½ D: Herbert Ross. James Coburn, James Mason, Dyan Cannon, Ian McShane, Joan Hackett, Raquel Welch, Richard Benjamin. Super murder-puzzler about jet-set gamester who devises what turns into a deadly game of whodunit. Many red herrings make it all the more fun. Script by Anthony Perkins and Stephen Sondheim, real-life puzzle fans. [PG] ▼

Last of the Dogmen (1995) C-120m.  D: Tab Murphy. Tom Berenger, Barbara Hershey, Kurtwood Smith, Steve Reevis, Andrew Miller, Gregory Scott Cummins, Molly Parker; narrated by Wilford Brimley. Annoyingly clichéd, eminently forgettable adventure with crackerjack tracker Berenger setting out to bring back a trio of prison escapees who meet a horrible fate as he nears their campsite. Could it have been the work of the mysterious, legendary Cheyenne "dog soldiers"? You may not want to stick around to find out. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Last of the High Kings, The (1996-Irish-Danish) C-104m.  D: David Keating. Gabriel Byrne, Catherine O'Hara, Jared Leto, Christina Ricci, Colm Meaney, Stephen Rea, Lorraine Pilkington, Emily Mortimer, Jason Barry, Ciaran Fitzgerald. Solid coming-of-age tale, set in Dublin, which tells the story of idealistic 17-year-old Frankie (Leto) and the individuals who affect his life—beginning with his eccentric, egocentric actor father (Byrne) and his comically pro-Protestant mom (O'Hara, who has never been better). Loaded with charm and thoughtfully scripted by Keating and Byrne. Aka SUMMER FLING. [R] ▼

Last of the Mobile Hot-Shots (1970) C-108m.  D: Sidney Lumet. James Coburn, Lynn Redgrave, Robert Hooks, Perry Hayes, Reggie King. Ambitious flop from Tennessee Williams' Seven Descents of Myrtle about volatile interracial triangle set in Deep South. ("Mobile" refers to the Alabama town.) [R—edited from original X rating] ▼

Last of the Mohicans, The (1936) 91m.  D: George B. Seitz. Randolph Scott, Binnie Barnes, Heather Angel, Hugh Buckler, Henry Wilcoxon, Bruce Cabot, Phillip Reed, Robert Barrat. Effective and exciting adaptation of James Fenimore Cooper novel about conflicts between British Army and Colonial settlers during the French and Indian War. Scott is a stout Hawkeye, Cabot an appropriately hissable Magua. Screenplay by Philip Dunne. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Last of the Mohicans, The (1992) C-113m. ½ D: Michael Mann. Daniel Day-Lewis, Madeleine Stowe, Russell Means, Eric Schweig, Jodhi May, Steven Waddington, Wes Studi, Maurice Roëves, Patrice Chereau, Colm Meaney, Peter Postlethwaite. Rousing, kinetic update of the James Fenimore Cooper classic, replete with 1990s sensibilities, potent depiction of violence, and a charismatic central performance by Day-Lewis as Hawkeye. Wavers between sweep of historical fiction and smaller canvas of its love story, but never fails to entertain. Oscar winner for Best Sound. Screenplay by Mann and Christopher Crowe from Philip Dunne's script for the 1936 film. Evocative score by Trevor Jones and Randy Edelman. Expanded version runs 117m. Panavision. [R] ▼

Last of the Red Hot Lovers (1972) C-98m. BOMB D: Gene Saks. Alan Arkin, Sally Kellerman, Paula Prentiss, Renee Taylor. Appalling film version of typical Neil Simon play concerns Arkin's unsuccessful attempts to carry on sneaky love affair with three different women (not all at once). Actors scream at each other for more than an hour and a half in shoddy production for which the term "photographed stage play" must have been invented. [PG] ▼

Last of the Secret Agents?, The (1966) C-90m. ½ D: Norman Abbott. Marty Allen, Steve Rossi, John Williams, Nancy Sinatra, Lou Jacobi. Tiring spoof on spy movies ends up unintentional self-mockery. Strictly for Allen and Rossi fans. Look for Harvey Korman as a German colonel.

Last of the Vikings, The (1961-Italian) C-102m.  D: Giacomo Gentilomo. Cameron Mitchell, Edmund Purdom, Isabelle Corey, Helene Remy. Filmed with gusto, elaborate epic deals with Mitchell out to punish the Norse for devastating his homelands; poorly acted. Dyaliscope. ▼

Last Orders (2001-British) C-109m. ½

Last Outpost, The (1951) C-88m. ½ D: Lewis R. Foster. Ronald Reagan, Rhonda Fleming, Bruce Bennett, Bill Williams, Peter Hanson, Noah Beery, Jr. Burst of action saves wornout yarn of two brothers on opposite sides of Civil War, teaming up to fight off Indian attack. This was Reagan's first starring Western. Video title: CAV-ALRY CHARGE. ▼●

Last Party, The (1993) C-96m.  D: Mark Benjamin, Marc Levin. Robert Downey, Jr., takes his video camera on an odyssey of America, focusing on 1992 Democratic and Republican national conventions, to get a sense of the country and its political attitudes. Along the way he interviews such colleagues as Sean Penn and Mary Stuart Masterson, and such varied notables as Oliver Stone, Spike Lee, G. Gordon Liddy, Jerry Falwell, and even his father, filmmaker Robert Downey, Sr. Not quite a documentary, but an entertaining journey (in the ROGER & ME vein); ultimately, we learn more about Downey, Jr., than we do about the state of the union. ▼●

Last Picture Show, The (1971) 118m. * D: Peter Bogdanovich. Timothy Bottoms, Jeff Bridges, Ben Johnson, Cloris Leachman, Ellen Burstyn, Cybill Shepherd, Eileen Brennan, Clu Gulager, Sam Bottoms, Randy Quaid, John Hillerman, Noble Willingham. Brilliant study of life in small Texas town during 1950s, and how characters' lives intertwine, from Larry McMurtry's novel (he and Bogdanovich wrote the script). Oscars went to Johnson and

Leachman for sensitive performances, but entire cast works at same level. Beautifully photographed in b&w by Robert Surtees. Shepherd's film debut. Sequel: TEX-ASVILLE. "Special Edition" reedited by Bogdanovich in 1990 includes 7m. of material originally cut from the film. [R] ▼●●

La Strada (1954-Italian) 115m. * D: Federico Fellini. Anthony Quinn, Giulietta Masina, Richard Basehart, Aldo Silvani, Marcella Rovere, Livia Venturini. Deceptively simple tale of brutish strongman Quinn taking simple-minded Masina with him as he tours countryside, where he encounters gentle acrobat Basehart. Best Foreign Film Oscar winner; stunning performances, haunting Nino Rota score. Story and screenplay by Fellini and Tullio Pinelli. ▼●●

Last Rebel, The (1971) C-89m. BOMB D: Denys McCoy. Joe Namath, Jack Elam, Woody Strode, Ty Hardin, Victoria George. Namath plays Confederate soldier who raises havoc in small Missouri town after the Civil War. Film has obvious camp value, but it's not enough; Joe makes Ty Hardin look like John Gielgud. [PG]

Last Remake of Beau Geste, The (1977) C-83m. ½ D: Marty Feldman. Marty Feldman, Ann-Margret, Michael York, Peter Ustinov, James Earl Jones, Trevor Howard, Henry Gibson, Terry-Thomas, Spike Milligan, Roy Kinnear. After uproarious first half, Feldman's Foreign Legion spoof falters and gropes its way to weak conclusion. Enough belly-laughs to make it worthwhile, and sidesplitting performance by butler Milligan. Feldman also cowrote this, his directorial debut. [PG] ▼

Last Resort (1986) C-80m. ½ D: Zane Buzby. Charles Grodin, Robin Pearson Rose, John Ashton, Ellen Blake, Megan Mullally, Christopher Ames, Jon Lovitz, Gerrit Graham, Mario Van Peebles, Phil Hartman. Newly unemployed Grodin decides, on impulse, to take his family to a Club Med-type vacation resort, with predictably comic results. Likable but iffy comedy does have some genuine laughs. First-time director Buzby also appears as resort's baby sitter. [R] ▼●●

Last Resort (2000-British) C-73m.  D: Pawel Pawlikowski. Dina Korzun, Artiom Strelnikov, Paddy Considine, Lindsey Honey. Abandoned by her British fiancé, a Russian woman and her young son are detained in England at a holding area for refugees and befriended by an arcade manager. Spare, affecting story has few surprises, but is compellingly told in quasi-naturalistic style and very well acted.

Last Rites (1988) C-103m.  D: Donald P. Bellisario. Tom Berenger, Daphne Zuniga, Chick Vennera, Anne Twomey, Dane Clark, Paul Dooley, Vassili Lambros. Routine drama of a priest who uses the auspices of the church to protect a girl on a Mafia hit list. Of course, he falls in love with her. Of course, he also happens to be the son of a Mafia chieftain himself. And of course, the studio sent this one straight to video. [R] ▼●●

Last Roman, The (1968-German-Rumanian) 92m.  D: Robert Siodmak. Laurence Harvey, Orson Welles, Sylva Koscina, Honor Blackman, Michael Dunn, Harriet Andersson, Lang Jeffries, Robert Hoffman. Big cast in spears and togas look baffled at what has become of Felix Dann's German bestseller Kampf um Rom about the decline of the Roman Empire. Edited down from a two-part spectacular. Techniscope. ▼

Last Samurai, The (2003) C-154m.  D: Edward Zwick. Tom Cruise, Ken Watanabe, Tony Goldwyn, Timothy Spall, Billy Connolly, Hiroyuki Sanada, Masato Harada, Koyuki, Scott Wilson, William Atherton. Burnt-out U.S. cavalry officer is hired to go to Japan in 1876 and train the emperor's soldiers to fight the last samurai warriors, who oppose their emperor's decision to abandon their traditional way of life. When the American is taken prisoner, he and captor Watanabe develop a mutual respect as fellow warriors, and Cruise comes to appreciate traditional Japanese customs, especially their code of honor. Epic-scale film flirts with greatness but falls short because it succumbs to Hollywood clichés a few times too many. (There's even a scene uncomfortably reminiscent of a famous Cruise moment in RISKY BUSINESS!) Still, there is much to admire, including strong performances and a vivid sense of time and place. Zwick coscripted; Cruise coproduced. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Last Seduction, The (1994) C-110m.  D: John Dahl. Linda Fiorentino, Peter Berg, J. T. Walsh, Bill Nunn, Bill Pullman, Michael Raysses, Zach Phifer. Pathologically evil—and stunningly sexual—woman ditches her husband, grabs the cash he's made in a drug deal, and flees N.Y.C., encamping in a small upstate town where she attracts and mystifies a local man—her latest patsy. Fiorentino's fiery femme fatale makes Stanwyck in DOUBLE INDEMN-

NITY look like Snow White! Sizzling, sexy thriller from modern film noir expert Dahl and writer Steve Barancik. Unrelenting meanness wears it down a bit toward the end. Made U.S. debut on cable. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [R] ▼●●

Last September, The (1999-British-Irish-French) C-103m.  D: Deborah Warner. Maggie Smith, Michael Gambon, Jane Birkin, Fiona Shaw, Lambert Wilson, Keeley Hawes, David Tennant, Gary Lydon. A less-than-compelling look at the last days of the Anglo-Irish, the British ruling class who live in cloistered elegance in Ireland as a storm brews all around them. The year is 1920, and a wealthy couple's young ward (Hawes) enters into a forbidden relationship with a young Irishman who's wanted for murder. Based on Elizabeth Bowen's novel. [R] ▼●

Last Shot, The (2004) C-93m. ½ D: Jeff Nathanson. Matthew Broderick, Alec Baldwin, Toni Collette, Tony Shalhoub, Calista Flockhart, Tim Blake Nelson, Buck Henry, Ray Liotta, James Rebhorn, Jon Polito, Pat Morita. Entertaining farce, inspired by a true story, about an FBI agent (Baldwin) who pretends to produce a movie in order to snare a mobster with ties to the Teamsters union. Baldwin begins to like his "role" as producer, as he brings hope into the life of sincere, would-be filmmaker Broderick. Uneven, but has some hilarious moments. Directing debut for screenwriter Nathanson. Joan Cusack appears unbilled; other actors turn up in gag cameos. [R] ●

Last Starfighter, The (1984) C-100m. ½ D: Nick Castle. Lance Guest, Robert Preston, Dan O'Herlihy, Catherine Mary Stewart, Barbara Bosson, Norman Snow, Cameron Dye, Wil Wheaton. Sci-fi for kids, about a youngster whose video-game prowess makes him a prime recruit to help save real-life planet under attack. Likable but toothless adventure (with an arch-villain who simply disappears from the proceedings) benefits greatly from performances of old pros Preston and O'Herlihy, who's unrecognizable in lizardlike makeup. Preston's last film. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Ron Rifkin, Brooke Smith, Diane Salinger, Kristoffer Tabori. An insecure young movie star (Foyt) arrives in the summer community of East Hampton, Long Island, and becomes involved with the assorted theater folk who comprise a circle of friends-lovers-colleagues. Another of Jaglom's occasionally insightful talk-fest/confessionals in which the characters reveal their jealousies, neuroses, and feelings. For inveterate Jaglom fans only. Scripted by Jaglom and Foyt (who are husband and wife). [R]▼●●

Last Supper, The (1996) C-94m.  D: Stacy Title. Cameron Diaz, Ron Eldard, Annabeth Gish, Jonathan Penner, Courtney B. Vance, Nora Dunn, Ron Perlman, Bill Paxton, Charles Durning, Mark Harmon, Jason Alexander, Bryn Erin. Five grad student friends decide to rid the world of antisocial extremists who don't happen to conform to their worldview. Intriguing premise plays itself out too soon and stretches credibility in the name of satire; ultimately unpleasant and unsatisfying, though the cast is excellent and some of the cameos (Paxton, Durning, Harmon, Perlman) are first-rate. Filmed in 1994. [R]▼●●

Last Tango in Paris (1973-French-Italian) C-129m. ½ D: Bernardo Bertolucci. Marlon Brando, Maria Schneider, Jean-Pierre Léaud, Darling Legitimus, Catherine Sola, Mauro Marchetti, Dan Diament. Expatriate American in Paris tries purging himself of bad memories after his wife's suicide, enters into a tragic "no questions asked" sexual liaison with a chance acquaintance. The most controversial film of its era is still explicit by today's standards, though it's mellowed somewhat with age. A sterling showcase for Bertolucci's camera mastery; Brando's performance is among the best of his career. [X—also shown in R-rated version]▼●●

Last Temptation of Christ, The (1988) C-164m.  D: Martin Scorsese. Willem Dafoe, Harvey Keitel, Barbara Hershey, Harry Dean Stanton, David Bowie, Verna Bloom, Andre Gregory, Juliette Caton, Roberts Blossom, Irvin Kershner, Nehemiah Persoff, Barry Miller. Thought-provoking and deeply felt drama adapted from Nikos Kazantzakis' book which speculates about Jesus' self-doubts when he realizes he has been chosen by God to carry His message. Moments of great power and beauty are diminished somewhat by mundane dialogue and slow stretches; still worthwhile, with a genuine feeling for time and place that helps make the story vivid and real. Music by Peter Gabriel. [R]▼●●

Last Time, The (2007) C-96m.  D: Michael Caleo. Michael Keaton, Brendan Fraser, Amber Valletta, Daniel Stern, Neal McDonough, Michael G. Hagerly, Michael Lerner, William Ragsdale. Country bumpkin Fraser is transferred to the N.Y. home office of a business where sales exec Keaton prides himself on his take-no-prisoners tactics. He mentors the naïve newcomer and winds up in bed with his beautiful wife. There's more going on than meets the eye . . . though the setup is awfully obvious. Minor-league stuff, but Keaton is good. Super 35. [R]●

Last Time I Committed Suicide, The (1997) C-93m. *½ D: Stephen Kay. Thomas Jane, Keanu Reeves, Adrien Brody, John Doe, Claire Forlani, Jim Haynie, Marg Helgenberger, Lucinda Jenney, Gretchen Mol. Morbidly stylized, cliché-laden story of beat icon Neal Cassady, ostensibly based on a letter he once wrote to Jack Kerouac. Totally unsympathetic, angst-filled characters are put to even greater disadvantage by a jittery camera and harsh lighting. [R]▼●●

Last Time I Saw Archie, The (1961) 98m.  D: Jack Webb. Robert Mitchum, Jack Webb, Martha Hyer, France Nuyen, Louis Nye, Richard Arlen, Don Knotts, Joe Flynn, Robert Strauss. Webb's sole attempt at comedy is less funny than some of his more serious films; a pity, because William Bowers' script—based on his own Army experiences—had real potential, and Mitchum nicely underplays as the titular con man. (By the way, the real Archie Hall sued for invasion of privacy!)●

Last Time I Saw Paris, The (1954) C-116m.  D: Richard Brooks. Elizabeth Taylor, Van Johnson, Donna Reed, Walter Pidgeon, Eva Gabor, George Dolenz, Roger Moore. Updated version of F. Scott Fitzgerald story, set in post-WW2 Paris, of ruined marriages and disillusioned people. MGM gloss helps.▼●●

Last Train From Gun Hill (1959) C-94m.  D: John Sturges. Kirk Douglas, Anthony Quinn, Carolyn Jones, Earl Holliman, Brad Dexter, Brian Hutton, Ziva Rodann. Superior Western of staunch sheriff determined to leave Gun Hill with murder suspect, despite necessity for shoot-out. VistaVision.▼●

Last Tycoon, The (1976) C-125m. ½ D: Elia Kazan. Robert De Niro, Tony Curtis, Robert Mitchum, Jeanne Moreau, Jack Nicholson, Donald Pleasence, Peter Strauss, Ingrid Boulting, Ray Milland, Dana Andrews, Theresa Russell, John Carradine, Anjelica Huston. Low-keyed but effective Harold Pinter adaptation of F. Scott Fitzgerald's final novel benefits immeasurably from De Niro's great, uncharacteristic performance as 1930s movie producer (inspired by Irving Thalberg) who is slowly working himself to death. Along with Joan Micklin Silver's TV film BERNICE BOBS HER HAIR, the best Fitzgerald yet put on the screen. Lew Ayres appears unbilled; Kazan's final feature as director. [PG] ▼●●

Last Unicorn, The (1982-British) C-92m. ½ D: Arthur Rankin, Jr., Jules Bass. Voices of Alan Arkin, Jeff Bridges, Mia Farrow, Tammy Grimes, Robert Klein, Angela Lansbury, Christopher Lee, Keenan Wynn, Paul Frees, Rene Auberjonois. Set in the time of Robin Hood, this pleasing animated fable tells of the adventures of a beautiful white unicorn who enters a forest in search of others of its kind. The weakest element: those bland, forgettable Jimmy Webb songs. Scripted by Peter S. Beagle, and based on his novel. [G] ▼●

Last Valley, The (1970-British) C-128m.  D: James Clavell. Michael Caine, Omar Sharif, Florinda Bolkan, Nigel Davenport, Per Oscarsson, Arthur O'Connell. Thinking man's adventure epic is an unfortunate misfire; 17th-century story brings warrior Caine and his soldiers to peaceful valley which has remained untouched by the Thirty Years War. Todd-AO. [PG] ▼●

Last Voyage, The (1960) C-91m.  D: Andrew L. Stone. Robert Stack, Dorothy Malone, George Sanders, Edmond O'Brien, Woody Strode. Engrossing drama of luxury ship that goes down at sea, and the ways the crew and passengers are affected. (To heighten the realism of the film, they really sank a ship.) Sanders is ill-fated captain, Stack and Malone a married couple in jeopardy. ▼●●

Last Wagon, The (1956) C-99m.  D: Delmer Daves. Richard Widmark, Felicia Farr, Susan Kohner, Tommy Rettig, Stephanie Griffin, Ray Stricklyn, Nick Adams, Timothy Carey. Widmark is condemned killer who saves remnants of wagon train after Indian attack, leading them to safety. Clichéd plot well handled. CinemaScope. ▽

Last Waltz, The (1978) C-117m. * D: Martin Scorsese. The Band, Bob Dylan, Neil Young, Joni Mitchell, Van Morrison, Eric Clapton, Neil Diamond, The Staples, Muddy Waters, Emmylou Harris, Paul Butterfield, Dr. John, Ronnie Hawkins, Ringo Starr, Ron Wood. Truly wonderful documentary about The Band's Thanksgiving, 1976, farewell concert, filmed by state-of-the-art Hollywood talent. A pair of studio-shot numbers involving The Staples and Harris are as exciting to watch as listen to, but the whole film is beautifully done. [PG] ▼●●

Last Wave, The (1977-Australian) C-106m.  D: Peter Weir. Richard Chamberlain, Olivia Hamnett, (David) Gulpilil, Frederick Parslow, Vivean Gray, Nanjivarra Amagula. Fascinating chiller about Australian

lawyer (Chamberlain) defending aborigine accused of murder. Modern symbolism and ancient tribal rituals make for unusual and absorbing film. [PG] ▼●

Last Woman, The (1976-French) C-112m.  D: Marco Ferreri. Gérard Depardieu, Ornella Muti, Michel Piccoli, Zouzou, Renato Salvatori, David Biffani, Nathalie Baye. Provocative subject matter is superficially handled in this pointlessly sensationalistic drama about macho, self-absorbed engineer Depardieu, insensitive to women and confused by a world of changing roles and relationships. His final act of self-mutilation is as ridiculous as it is shocking. [X]

Last Woman on Earth, The (1960) C-71m. BOMB D: Roger Corman. Antony Carbone, Edward Wain, Betsy Jones-Moreland. Dull three-cornered romance involving last survivors on Earth after unexplained disaster. Screenplay by Robert Towne—his first. He also costars, using acting pseudonym Edward Wain. Shot in Puerto Rico. Vistascope. ▼●

Last Year at Marienbad (1961-French-Italian) 93m.  D: Alain Resnais. Delphine Seyrig, Giorgio Albertazzi, Sacha Pitoeff. Murky, difficult but oddly fascinating tale in which Albertazzi confronts bewildered Seyrig, claiming they'd had an affair "last year at Frederiksbad, or perhaps at Marienbad." An art-house hit in its day, beautifully photographed (by Sacha Vierny); scripted by Alain-Robbe Grillet. Dyaliscope. ▼●

Las Vegas Hillbillys (1966) C-90m. *½ D: Arthur C. Pierce. Ferlin Husky, Jayne Mansfield, Mamie Van Doren, Richard Kiel, Sonny James, Del Reeves, Bill Anderson, Connie Smith. Las Vegas Lady (1976) C-87m. BOMB D: Noel Nosseck. Stella Stevens, Stuart Whitman, George DiCenzo, Lynne Moody, Linda Scroggs, Joseph Della Sorte, Jesse White. Substandard heist pic about a security guard who flips for title femme. Even LAS VEGAS HILLBILLYS is better. [PG] ▼●

La Symphonie Pastorale (1946-French) 105m. ½ D: Jean Delannoy. Pierre Blanchar, Michele Morgan, Jean Desailly, Line Noro, Andree Clement. Quietly powerful classic about pastor Blanchar's all-consuming passion for blind girl Morgan, whom he takes under his wing and educates. This sensitive study of moral and spiritual corruption was coscripted by the director, and based on an Andre Gide novel. ▼

L'Atalante (1934-French) 89m. * D: Jean Vigo. Michel Simon, Dita Parlo, Jean Dasté, Gilles Margaritis, Louis Lefèvre, Diligent Raya. Naturalism and surrealist fantasy blend beautifully in all-time masterpiece about a young couple who begin their life together sailing down the Seine on a barge. Ultimate in romantic cinema also anticipated neorealist movement by more than a decade; Vigo died at 29, just as film premiered. Restored in 1990 to its full length; avoid 82m. version, which circulated for years. ▼

Late August, Early September (1999-French) C-112m.  D: Olivier Assayas. Mathieu Amalric, Virginie Ledoyen, François Cluzet, Jeanne Balibar, Arsinée Khanjian, Alex Descas, Nathalie Richard. Bittersweet, subtly rendered slice of life about various friends, lovers, and acquaintances who are unable to set down roots—professionally, personally, or romantically. The specter of mortality hangs over the proceedings as one of them, a novelist (Cluzet) who has just turned 40, suffers from an unnamed illness. A heartfelt and potent portrait of self-involvement and emotional stagnation. ▼

Late Autumn (1960-Japanese) C-127m.  D: Yasujiro Ozu. Setsuko Hara, Yoko Tsukasa, Mariko Okada, Keiji Sada, Shin Saburi. Widowed Hara seeks a husband for unmarried daughter Tsukasa. Solid Ozu drama reworking his LATE SPRING. ▼

Late for Dinner (1991) C-99m. ½ D: W. D. Richter. Brian Wimmer, Peter Berg, Marcia Gay Harden, Peter Gallagher, Colleen Flynn, Kyle Secor, Michael Beach, Bo Brundin, Janeane Garofalo. Two friends, on the lam and in need of help, are frozen by a doctor who's experimenting with cryonics; when they're awakened 29 years later, physically unchanged, they stumble to put their lives back together. Offbeat, to say the least, and movingly acted, but the transition from loopy comedy to deeply felt sentiment (in the film's denouement) doesn't quite come off. [PG] ▼

Late George Apley, The (1947) 98m.  D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Ronald Colman, Peggy Cummins, Vanessa Brown, Richard Haydn, Charles Russell, Richard Ney, Percy Waram, Mildred Natwick, Edna Best. John P. Marquand's gentle satire of Boston bluebloods is smoothly entertaining. Colman is perfectly cast as the stuffy patriarch who strives to uphold his family's social status. ▼

Late Marriage (2001-Israeli-French) C-102m. ½ D: Dover Kosashvili. Lior Ashkenazi, Ronit Elkabetz, Moni Moshonov, Lili Kosashvili, Aya Steinovits Laor, Rozina Cambus. Handsome bachelor is caught in the cross fire of tradition and emotion. His Georgian Jewish heritage dictates that he must choose a young virgin to marry, but he is secretly in love with a divorcée who has a six-year-old daughter. Intriguing film contains graphic sexual scenes and nudity. ▼

La Terra Trema (1947-Italian) 154m. * D: Luchino Visconti. Narrated by Luchino Visconti, Antonio Pietrangeli. Powerful, lyrical neorealist classic about a poor family in a Sicilian fishing village, exploited by fish wholesalers and boat owners. Filmed on location, and in Sicilian dialect, with a non-professional cast. Francesco Rosi and Franco Zeffirelli were Visconti's assistant directors. Beware of severely edited versions. ▼

Late Show, The (1977) C-94m. ½ D: Robert Benton. Art Carney, Lily Tomlin, Bill Macy, Eugene Roche, Joanna Cassidy, John Considine, Howard Duff. Carney is an aging private eye who tries to solve murder of his ex-partner (Duff), "helped" by flaky, aimless young woman (Tomlin). Echoes of Chandler and Hammett resound in Benton's complex but likable script; chemistry between Carney and Tomlin is perfect. Later a short-lived TV series called Eye to Eye. [PG] ▼

Latin Lovers (1953) C-104m. ½ D: Mervyn LeRoy. Lana Turner, Ricardo Montalban, John Lund, Louis Calhern, Jean Hagen, Rita Moreno. Hokey romance yarn set in South America, with Turner seeking true love; pointless script. ▼

Latino (1985) C-105m.  D: Haskell Wexler. Robert Beltran, Annette Cardona, Tony Plana, Ricardo Lopez, Luis Torrentes, Juan Carlos Ortiz, Julio Medina, James Karen. Gut-wrenching drama of Vietnam replayed, with Chicano Green Beret Beltran "advising" the U.S.-backed Contras in their war against the Sandanistas in Nicaragua. Unabashedly left-wing; to some it will be propaganda, while to others it will be truth. Striking direction with a fine sense of irony; however, Beltran's relationship with Cardona just doesn't ring true. Filmed in Nicaragua; Wexler's first "fiction" film since MEDIUM COOL. ▼

Latitude Zero (1969-Japanese) C-99m.  D: Ishiro Honda. Joseph Cotten, Cesar Romero, Richard Jaeckel, Patricia Medina, Linda Haynes, Akira Takarada. Better than average imported cast helps usual wide-eyed sci-fi adventure of underwater civilization of benevolent geniuses fighting legions of Malic (Romero), out to control world. Some good sets, but action and suspense poorly handled. Based on the old (American) radio series. Tohoscope. [G] ▼

L'Atlantide SEE: Journey Beneath the Desert

La Traviata (1982-Italian) C-112m. * D: Franco Zeffirelli. Teresa Stratas, Plácido Domingo, Cornell MacNeil, Alan Monk, Axelle Gail. Verdi's opera, adapted from the Alexandre Dumas Camille saga, makes a magnificent film. If Domingo looks too old for Alfredo, he still sings beautifully, while Stratas' performance as the tragic

Violetta matches her brilliant voice. The cinematography and production design are the equal of anything from the Golden Age of moviemaking in a film that even those who dislike opera will enjoy. [G]▼●●

L'Auberge Espagnole (2002-French-Spanish) C-116m.  D: Cédric Klapisch. Romain Duras, Judith Godrèche, Audrey Tautou, Cécile de France, Kelly Reilly, Cristina Brondo. A 25-year-old French grad student goes to Spain for his year abroad and winds up living in a cramped apartment with seven strangers of all different nationalities. Fictitious version of The Real World is bland and overlong despite an appealing cast. Disappointing follow-up from the writer-director of the infinitely more charming WHEN THE CAT'S AWAY. Title translates literally to SPANISH APARTMENT, or in French slang, EURO PUD-DING. [R]▼●

Laughing Policeman, The (1974) C-111m. ½ D: Stuart Rosenberg. Walter Matthau, Bruce Dern, Lou Gossett, Albert Paulsen, Anthony Zerbe, Anthony Costello, Cathy Lee Crosby, Joanna Cassidy. Reasonably engrossing San Francisco cop drama about search for mass slayer of bus passengers. Matthau and Dern are good as cops with contrasting styles. Based on the Martin Beck novel by Maj Sjöwall and Per Wahloo. [R]▼●

Laughing Sinners (1931) 72m.  D: Harry Beaumont. Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Neil Hamilton, John Mack Brown, Marjorie Rambeau, Guy Kibbee, Roscoe Karns. Crawford attempts suicide after Hamilton dumps her; Salvation Army preacher Gable (!) stops her. The rest is predictable.▼●

Laughter in Paradise (1951-British) 95m. ½ D: Mario Zampi. Alastair Sim, Joyce Grenfell, Hugh Griffith, Fay Compton, John Laurie. Notorious practical joker dies, and leaves hefty sum to four relatives if they will carry out his devilish instructions. Pleasant little comedy. Audrey Hepburn appears fleetingly as cigarette girl. Remade in 1969 as SOME WILL, SOME WON'T.

Laughter in the Dark (1969-British) C-101m. *½ D: Tony Richardson. Nicol Williamson, Anna Karina, Jean-Claude Drouot, Peter Bowles, Sian Phillips. Excruciating film from Nabokov novel about wealthy married man (Williamson) whose fascination with young girl (Karina) backfires at every turn, eventually ruining his life. Exceedingly unpleasant, and seemingly interminable. [X]

Laura (1944) 85m. * D: Otto Preminger. Gene Tierney, Dana Andrews, Clifton Webb, Vincent Price, Judith Anderson, Grant Mitchell, Lane Chandler, Dorothy Adams. Classic mystery with gorgeous Tierney subject of murder plot; detective Andrews trying to assemble crime puzzle. Fascinating, witty, classic, with Webb a standout as cynical columnist Waldo Lydecker and Price in his finest non-horror performance as suave Southern gigolo. Based on the Vera Caspary novel; also features David Raksin's theme. Rouben Mamoulian started directing film, Preminger took over. Screenplay by Jay Dratler, Samuel Hoffenstein, and Betty Reinhardt. Joseph LaShelle's cinematography earned an Oscar. Several minutes of dialogue were cut from all prints after initial release; this footage has now been restored.▼●●

Laurel and Hardy's Laughing 20's (1965) 90m. ½ Compiled by Robert Youngson. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Charley Chase, Edgar Kennedy, James Finlayson, Anita Garvin. Some of L&H's best moments on film are included, with everything from pie-throwing to pants-ripping. Also some excellent sequences of Charley Chase, adding to the fun.▼●

Laurel Canyon (2003) C-101m. ½ D: Lisa Cholodenko. Frances McDormand, Christian Bale, Kate Beckinsale, Natascha McElhone, Alessandro Nivola, Louis Knox Barlow, Russell Pollard. Med-school grad Bale and prim fiancée Beckinsale reluctantly move in with his flaky mother (McDormand), a rock-music producer. Soon the uptight young woman is seduced by the free-spirited lifestyle of her future mother-in-law... while the son is attracted to a beautiful doctor. Superficial but diverting hijinks with an attractive cast, and McDormand in a role unlike any she's done before. Follows the same pattern as Cholodenko's previous, more richly textured film, HIGH ART. [R]▼●

Lavender Hill Mob, The (1951-British) 82m. ½ D: Charles Crichton. Alec Guinness, Stanley Holloway, Sidney James, Alfie Bass, Marjorie Fielding, John Gregson, Edie Martin. Excellent comedy with droll Guinness a timid bank clerk who has perfect scheme for robbing a gold bullion truck, with a madcap chase climax. Won an Oscar for Best Story and Screenplay (T.E.B. Clarke); look for Audrey Hepburn in opening scene.▼●●

La Vie Continue (1982-French) C-93m.

*½ D: Moshe Mizrahi. Annie Girardot, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Pierre Dux, Giulia Salvatori, Emmanuel Gayet, Rivera Andres. Dreary sudser wastes Girardot as middle-aged woman whose husband suddenly drops dead of a heart attack; she struggles with her new-found widowhood. Loosely remade in U.S. as MEN DON'T LEAVE. [PG]▼

La Vie de Bohème (1992-Finnish-French-Swedish-German) 100m.  D: Aki Kaurismäki. Matti Pellonpää, Andre Wilms, Kari Vaananen, Christine Murillo, Evelyne Didi, Samuel Fuller, Louis Malle, Jean-Pierre Léaud. Pleasantly offbeat comic/absurdist slice-of-life about three poor, struggling artists: a painter, composer and writer. While at best mediocre talent-wise, each is dedicated to the artistic life and values his books, piano, or paint over all else. A loose updating of a novel by Henri Murger, which was the inspiration for Puccini's La Bohème. ▼

La Vie en Rose (2007-French-British-Czech) C-140m.  D: Olivier Dahan. Marion Cotillard, Clotilde Courau, Jean-Paul Rouve, Sylvie Testud, Pascal Gregory, Jean-Pierre Martins, Emmanuelle Seigner, Gérard Depardieu, Catherine Allégret. Not a conventional biography, but a series of snapshots (jumbled out of chronological order) about the difficult life and transcendent talent of French singer Edith Piaf. Randomness of the narrative is a liability, but a must-see for Cotillard's astonishing Academy Award-winning performance. She transforms herself into the Little Sparrow in her youth, at her peak, and during her precipitous decline . . . and does a remarkable job lip-synching Piaf (and a soundalike who recorded songs from her early years). Oscar winner for Best Makeup (Didier Lavergne, Jan Archibald). Piaf's relationship with boxer Marcel Cerdan, which is detailed here, is also depicted in EDITH AND MARCEL. Original French title: LA MÔME. Super 35. [PG-13]▶

La Vie Privée SEE: Very Private Affair, A

La Vie Promise (2002-French) C-93m.  D: Olivier Dahan. Isabelle Huppert, Pascal Gregory, Maud Forget, André Marcon, Fabienne Babe. A hooker must flee Nice when her estranged daughter commits a violent crime. A new bond develops between the two women as they travel the French countryside, where the mother comes face-to-face with gut-wrenching decisions she made in the past as well as an uncertain future. Exquisite cinematography, eclectic music score, and a fine performance from Huppert (as always) can't redeem this earnest but slow-moving and mostly uninvolved story of a woman at the crossroads of a life that didn't go the way she planned. Super 35.▶

L'Avventura (1960-French-Italian) 145m. ½ D: Michelangelo Antonioni. Monica Vitti, Gabriele Ferzetti, Lea Massari, Dom-

inique Blanchar, James Addams. Massari mysteriously disappears on an uninhabited island after arguing with boyfriend Ferzetti, impelling him and her friend Vitti to look for her. Subtle, incisive allegory of spiritual and moral decay makes for demanding viewing. Antonioni's first international success was also the first of a trilogy (followed by LA NOTTE and L'ECLISSE). ▼●▶

Law, The SEE: Where the Hot Wind Blows!

Law and Disorder (1974) C-103m.  D: Ivan Passer. Carroll O'Connor, Ernest Borgnine, Ann Wedgeworth, Anita Dangler, Leslie Ackerman, Karen Black, Jack Kehoe. Intelligent, original comedy-drama of two middle-aged New Yorkers incensed at rising crime who become auxiliary cops. At first they treat it as a lark, but soon it becomes deadly serious. Full of fine perceptions, interesting vignettes. [R]▼▶

Law and Order (1953) C-80m.  D: Nathan Juran. Ronald Reagan, Dorothy Malone, Alex Nicol, Preston Foster, Ruth Hampton, Russell Johnson, Dennis Weaver, Jack Kelly. Lawman Reagan wants to retire to marry Malone, but first must tame bad guy Foster. Standard Western was filmed far more successfully in 1932. ▼▶

Lawless Breed, The (1952) C-83m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Rock Hudson, Julia (Julie) Adams, John McIntire, Mary Castle, Hugh O'Brian, Lee Van Cleef, Dennis Weaver, Michael Ansara. Solid Western drama that recounts the life and times of legendary (and misunderstood) outlaw John Wesley Hardin (well played by Hudson, in his starring debut). ▼▶

Lawless Heart (2001-British) C-86m.  D: Neil Hunter, Tom Hunsinger. Douglas Henshall, Tom Hollander, Bill Nighy, Clémentine Célarie, Josephine Butler, Ellie Haddington, Stuart Laing, Sukie Smith. Clever three-part story about lives that intersect in a small seaside town when friends and family gather for a young man's funeral: first one person's story is told, then two others that overlap in interesting and unpredictable ways. Satisfying, well written, and original, with rich performances throughout. Written by the directors. [R]▼▶

Lawless Street, A (1955) C-78m. ½ D: Joseph H. Lewis. Randolph Scott, Angela Lansbury, Warner Anderson, Jean Parker, Wallace Ford, Ruth Donnelly, Michael Pate. Hard-bitten marshal Scott tries to eliminate evil forces from western town, then confronts his bittersweet past when musical star Lansbury comes to town. Entertaining Western with disappointing resolution. ▼▶

guing thought-Western about stoic marshal (Lancaster) who comes into unfamiliar town to bring back wanted men, refusing to sway from duty even though entire town turns against him. Unsatisfactory resolution mars otherwise compelling story; Ryan gives one of his finest performances as timid sheriff. [PG]▼●●

Lawn Dogs (1998-U.S.-British) C-100m. ½ D: John Duigan. Kathleen Quinlan, Sam Rockwell, Christopher McDonald, Bruce McGill, Tom Aldredge, Mischa Barton. Odd but intriguing story of the unlikely relationship that develops between a misfit kid who lives in an antiseptic, gate-guarded community, and a drop-out gardener who grew up in the area but has long been an outcast in the community. Sometimes uneasy mix of black comedy and social satire, but marked by good performances and a piquant sense of humor. [R]▼●●

Lawnmower Man, The (1992) C-105m. *½ D: Brett Leonard. Jeff Fahey, Pierce Brosnan, Jenny Wright, Mark Bringleson, Geoffrey Lewis, Jeremy Slate, Dean Norris, Austin O'Brien. Scientist Brosnan needs a guinea pig for hitherto failed experiments in drug therapy and computer instruction; who better than the grinning mental defective who mows his lawn? At least the pyrotechnics at the end (simulating "virtual reality") are full of visual buzz. Fahey in a blond wig is really tough to take. Has nothing to do with the Stephen King short story it's ostensibly based on. Alternate version runs 140m. Followed by a sequel. [R]▼●●

Lawnmower Man 2: Beyond Cyberspace (1996-U.S.-British-Japanese) C-93m.  D: Farhad Mann. Patrick Bergin, Matt Frewer, Austin O'Brien, Ely Pouget, Camille Cooper, Patrick La Brecque, Crystal Celeste Grant, Kevin Conway. Moron-turned-genius Jobe is back, still intent on ruling the world from cyberspace. This involves ruthless billionaire Conway, reclusive computer expert Bergin, doctor Pouget, and young O'Brien, returning from the original film. The plot is both complicated and simpleminded, and aimed primarily at teenage computer fans—but the standardized BLADE RUNNER future, routine action, and only intermittent computer graphics will likely leave them as disinterested as everyone else. Aka: LAWNMOWER MAN 2: JOBE'S WAR. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Law of Desire (1987-Spanish) C-100m.  D: Pedro Almodóvar. Eusebio Poncela, Carmen Maura, Antonio Banderas, Miguel Molina, Bibi Andersson, Manuela Velasco, Nacho Martínez. Surreal, hedonistic, and hilarious comedy focusing on a gay love triangle, with equal doses of passion, sex, fantasy, and tragedy. Maura is a standout as a free-spirited transsexual; this film helped to cement Almodóvar's international reputation. ▼●●

Lawrence of Arabia (1962-British) C-216m. * D: David Lean. Peter O'Toole, Alec Guinness, Anthony Quinn, Jack Hawkins, Claude Rains, Anthony Quayle, Arthur Kennedy, Omar Sharif, Jose Ferrer. Blockbuster biography of enigmatic adventurer T. E. Lawrence is that rarity, an epic film that is also literate. Loses some momentum in the second half, but still a knockout—especially in 1989 reissue version, which restored many cuts made over the years (and made a few judicious trims in the process). Still, the only way to really appreciate this film is on a big screen. Screenplay by Robert Bolt and Michael Wilson, based on Lawrence's book The Seven Pillars of Wisdom. Seven Oscars include Best Picture, Director, Cinematography (Freddie Young), Score (Maurice Jarre), Editing, and Art Direction. O'Toole's first leading role made him an instant star. Beware of shorter prints. Originally 222m. Super Panavision 70. ▼●●

Laws of Attraction (2004-British-Irish) C-90m. ½ D: Peter Howitt. Pierce Brosnan, Julianne Moore, Frances Fisher, Parker Posey, Michael Sheen, Nora Dunn, David Kelly. N.Y.C. divorce lawyer Moore has never lost a case but meets her match in wily opposing counsel Brosnan, who also manages to get her to let her guard down. Romantic comedy never nears the bull's-eye, but showcases Brosnan's easygoing charm and gives Moore a rare comedic opportunity. There are worse ways to spend some time than in their company. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Laws of Gravity (1991) C-100m.  D: Nick Gomez. Peter Greene, Adam Trese, Edie Falco, Arabella Field, Paul Schulzie. Intense, vivid chronicle of three momentous days in the lives of a pair of young blue-collar Brooklyn thieves and their girlfriends. Shot on a minuscule budget, and distinguished by gritty, Scorsese-like realism. The performances are collectively terrific, and Jean de Segonzac's hand-held camera is a major plus. [R]▼

Lawyer, The (1970) C-117m. ½ D: Sidney J. Furie. Barry Newman, Harold Gould, Diana Muldaur, Robert Colbert, Kathleen Crowley. Lively story loosely based on famous Dr. Sam Sheppard murder case; Newman is stubborn young lawyer defending doctor accused of murdering his wife, battling legal protocol and uncooperative client. Unexceptional but diverting; Newman later revived role in TV series Petrocelli. [R]

D: Matthew Vaughn. Daniel Craig, Colm Meaney, Kenneth Cranham, George Harris, Jamie Foreman, Sienna Miller, Michael Gambon, Marcel Iures, Tom Hardy, Jason Flemyng, Sally Hawkins. London drug dealer who tries to approach what he does on a strictly-business basis comes to learn that he has no control over his life or the actions of the people around him. Superficial crime yarn boasts a good cast but travels an all-too-familiar path. First-time director Vaughn (who produced LOCK, STOCK AND TWO SMOKING BARRELS and SNATCH) indulges in look-at-me camera shots that add nothing. Adapted by J. J. Connolly from his novel. J-D-C Scope. [R]▼

Leadbelly (1976) C-126m. ½ D: Gordon Parks. Roger E. Mosley, Paul Benjamin, Madge Sinclair, Alan Manson, Albert P. Hall, Art Evans, Loretta Greene. Poignant biography of the legendary folksinger Huddie Ledbetter, master of the 12-string guitar and long-time convict on Texas and Louisiana chain gangs. Stunning musical performances (including "Rock Island Line," "Goodnight Irene" and many more classics), with Mosley effectively restrained in the title role. Superior entertainment. [PG]

Leading Man, The (1997-British) C-100m.  D: John Duigan. Jon Bon Jovi, Anna Galiena, Lambert Wilson, Thandie Newton, Barry Humphries, David Warner. British backstage theater romance about an American movie star who seduces a playwright's lonely wife and his leading-lady mistress. While it can't quite make up its mind whether it's a comic drama or a light thriller, it's still very entertaining stuff. Bon Jovi is good as the brash, amoral Yankee, and Galiena and Newton are fetching as the women caught in his web. [R]▼

League of Extraordinary Gentlemen, The (2003) C-110m.  D: Stephen Norrington. Sean Connery, Shane West, Stuart Townsend, Naseeruddin Shah, Richard Roxburgh, Peta Wilson, Tony Curran, Jason Flemyng, David Hemmings, Max Ryan. Intriguing premise—a gathering of notorious 19th-century fictional figures, from Dr. Jekyll and Dorian Gray to Dracula's Mina Harker, whose various attributes combine to form a kind of Justice League—is undone by lumpy storytelling, poorly staged action, and out-sized, cartoonish special effects sequences. Connery is charismatic as ever playing Allan Quatermain. Based on a graphic novel by Alan Moore and Kevin O'Neill. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

League of Gentlemen, The (1960-British) 114m. ½ D: Basil Dearden. Jack Hawkins, Nigel Patrick, Roger Livesey, Richard Attenborough, Bryan Forbes, Kieron Moore, Robert Coote, Nanette Newman. Ex-army colonel enlists the aid of former officers (through blackmail) to pull off big bank heist. High-class British humor makes this tale of crime a delight. Forbes also wrote the script. Look for Oliver Reed as a ballet dancer!▼

League of Their Own, A (1992) C-128m.

 D: Penny Marshall. Tom Hanks, Geena Davis, Madonna, Lori Petty, Jon Lovitz, David Strathairn, Garry Marshall, Megan Cavanagh, Rosie O'Donnell, Renee Coleman, Ann Cusack, Tracy Reiner, Janet Jones, Téa Leoni, Bill Pullman. Thoroughly entertaining comedy about the women's baseball league that sprang up when male ballplayers were off fighting in WW2. Davis and Madonna stand out in a first-rate cast, with Hanks giving a terrific comedy performance as the drunken ex-baseball star who manages their team. Good-natured fiction that sheds light on a neglected chapter of real-life sports history. Later, briefly a TV series. Panavision. [PG]▼

Lean on Me (1989) C-109m. ½ D: John G. Avildsen. Morgan Freeman, Beverly Todd, Robert Guillaume, Alan North, Lynne Thigpen, Robin Bartlett, Michael Beach, Ethan Phillips, Regina Taylor. The story of "Crazy Joe" Clark, the real-life baseball bat, bullhorn toting high school principal from New Jersey who whips his students into shape by alternately bolstering and bullying them. Freeman is riveting in the central role, making up for script's shortcomings and Avildsen's all-too-familiar approach. That's Michael Imperioli as one of the kids being kicked out of the school. [PG-13]▼

Leap Into the Void (1979-Italian) C-120m.

 D: Marco Bellocchio. Michel Piccoli, Anouk Aimée, Michele Placido, Gisella Burinato, Antonio Piovaneli. A compassionate comedy about a very unusual topic: suicide. Magistrate Piccoli uses Placido to try to induce his mentally ill sister (Aimée) to do herself in.

Leap of Faith (1992) C-108m. ½ D: Richard Pearce. Steve Martin, Debra Winger, Lolita Davidovich, Liam Neeson, Lukas Haas, Meat Loaf, Philip Seymour Hoffman, M. C. Gainey, Delores Hall. Nicely textured look at an evangelist's traveling tent show—but Martin is never credible as a religious pitchman who connects with his gullible audiences. Director Pearce has a keen eye for detail and atmosphere, but the film's story flaws are hard to overlook. The real treat: watching Winger as Martin's savvy partner-in-crime. [PG-13]▼

Learning Tree, The (1969) C-107m. ½ D: Gordon Parks. Kyle Johnson, Alex Clarke, Estelle Evans, Dana Elcar, Mita Waters. Parks called virtually every shot in brilliantly photographed but surprisingly mild film version of his autobiographical novel about young black growing up in Kansas. Film's appeal lies more in its intentions than in what it actually accomplishes. Panavision. [M/PG]▼

Leather Boys, The (1963-British) 105m.

 D: Sidney J. Furie. Rita Tushingham, Colin Campbell, Dudley Sutton, Gladys Henson. Uncompromising study of impulsive Tushingham's incompatible marriage to motorcycle-loving mechanic, focusing on their opposing viewpoints and sleazy environment. CinemaScope. ▼●

Leatherface: Texas Chainsaw Massacre III (1990) C-81m. *½ D: Jeff Burr. Kate Hodge, Ken Foree, R. A. Mihailoff, Viggo Mortensen, William Butler, Joe Unger. Mostly a remake of the first film: cannibal clan battles three would-be dinners. Severely damaged by prerelease cuts designed to reduce gore but which only make the film incoherent. Followed by TEXAS CHAINSAW MASSACRE: THE NEXT GENERATION. [R] ▼●●

Leather Jackets (1991) C-90m. BOMB D: Lee Drysdale. D. B. Sweeney, Bridget Fonda, Cary Elwes, Craig Ng, Marshall Bell, Christopher Penn, Jon Polito, James LeGros, Neil Giuntoli. Leather-jacketed Elwes and friends rip off and murder a Vietnamese mob bagman, whose associates vow vengeance—and plenty of it. Newly engaged Sweeney and Fonda try to help, and get caught in the crossfire, which they deserve for being in such a turkey. What a bloody mess! [R] ▼●●

Leave All Fair (1985-New Zealand) C-88m.  D: John Reid. John Gielgud, Jane Birkin, Feodor Atkine, Simon Ward. Intelligent, rewarding account of the elderly John Middleton Murry (Gielgud), husband and editor of Katherine Mansfield, and his manipulative relationship with her. She's portrayed in flashback by Birkin, who also appears as a young woman who reminds Murry of her. Stick with this one.

Leave Her to Heaven (1945) C-110m.  D: John M. Stahl. Gene Tierney, Cornel Wilde, Jeanne Crain, Vincent Price, Mary Philips, Ray Collins, Darryl Hickman, Gene Lockhart. Tierney's mother says, "There's nothing wrong with Ellen. It's just that she loves too much." In fact, she loves some people to death! Slick trash, expertly handled all around with Tierney breathtakingly photographed in Technicolor by Oscar winner Leon Shamroy. And how about those incredible homes in New Mexico and Maine! Remade for TV as TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE in 1988. ▼●●

Leave It to Beaver (1997) C-89m.  D: Andy Cadiff. Christopher McDonald, Janine Turner, Cameron Finley, Erik von Detten, Adam Zolotin, Barbara Billingsley, Ken Osmond, Frank Bank, Erika Christensen, Alan Rachins. Cute family comedy based on the vintage TV series, with Finley an appealing Theodore Cleaver, for whom things never seem to go quite right . . . especially when he volunteers to play football in order to please his dad. Brother Wally (who experiences his first taste of puppy love) and unctuous Eddie Haskell are here, too. Billingsley, Osmond, and Bank (June, Eddie, and Lumpy from the original show) make token appearances. [PG] ▼●●

Leaving Las Vegas (1995) C-111m. ½ D: Mike Figgis. Nicolas Cage, Elisabeth Shue, Julian Sands, Richard Lewis, Steven Weber, Valeria Golino, Graham Beckel, Carey Lowell, R. Lee Ermy, Mariska Hargitay, Laurie Metcalf, Julian Lennon, Lou Rawls, Ed Lauter, Xander Berkeley, Susan Barnes. Cage is a hopeless alcoholic who moves to Las Vegas, determined to drink himself to death, while Shue is a prostitute who demeans herself on a nightly basis. Their attachment to one another (and their willingness to accept each other as they are) makes this an unusually powerful and moving love story, in spite of the seamy trappings. Cage and Shue give brave, honest performances (Cage won the Best Actor Oscar). Figgis scripted from John O'Brien's novel and also composed the score, with vocals by Sting. Ironically, O'Brien committed suicide after selling the movie rights to his book. [R] ▼●●

Leaving Normal (1992) C-110m. ½ D: Edward Zwick. Christine Lahti, Meg Tilly, Lenny Von Dohlen, Maury Chaykin, James Gammon, Patrika Darbo, Eve Gordon, James Eckhouse, Brett Cullen, Rutanya Alda. An aggressively cynical cocktail waitress and her quieter, twice-wed friend take off for Alaska after failing to find fulfillment in Normal, Wyoming. Smug collection of on-the-road episodes fails to build a solid foundation, though the film does improve marginally once the characters settle down at their destination. Tilly is well cast, but Lahti is atypically insufferable. Cinematographer Ralf Bode's color vistas help. [R] ▼●●

war and peace, from the mid-'30s to '80s. Set in a ballroom, with no major characters; the actors play different roles, in different time periods. No dialogue, just music and sound effects. Quite different, but most definitely worthwhile. ▼

Le Beau Mariage (1982-French) C-97m. ½ D: Eric Rohmer. Beatrice Romand, Andre Dussollier, Feodor Atkine, Hugette Faget, Arielle Dombasle. Headstrong young woman rather arbitrarily decides she will be married (to no one in particular), initiates an embarrassing pursuit of male with other ideas. If you can accept this hard-to-swallow premise, film is a beautifully acted comedy of humiliation. Romand, incidentally, is the now-grown-up adolescent from Rohmer's CLAIRE'S KNEE, made 11 years earlier. Aka THE GOOD MARRIAGE. [PG] ▼

Le Beau Serge (1958-French) 97m.  D: Claude Chabrol. Jean-Claude Brialy, Gérard Blain, Michele Meritz, Bernadette Lafont, Edmond Beauchamp. Considered to be the first New Wave film, this rural tale also marked the feature directing debut of Cahiers du Cinéma film critic Claude Chabrol. When Brialy returns to his tiny home town, he is stunned to find how drastically his old school chum (Blain) has changed. Perceptive examination of the trials of life in a poor farming community and the moral questions raised by how one treats a friend. Brialy, Blain, and young Lafont (a teenaged nymph) continued to collaborate with Chabrol (who also wrote and produced) for three decades. ▼

Le Bonheur (1965-French) C-87m. ½ D: Agnès Varda. Jean-Claude Drouot, Claire Drouot, Sandrine Drouot, Oliver Drouot, Marie-France Boyer. Happily married carpenter Drouot falls for postal clerk Boyer, feels he can love both her and wife and they will share him. Intriguing, but emotionally uninviting and unbelievable. Drouot's real wife and children portray his cinematic spouse and offspring. Aka HAPPINESS. ▼

Le Bossu SEE: On Guard

Le Boucher (1969-French-Italian) C-93m.  D: Claude Chabrol. Stephane Audran, Jean Yanne, Antonio Passalilla, Mario Beccaria, Pasquale Ferone. Another good psychological thriller from Chabrol, focusing on sympathetic murderer and his relationship with beautiful schoolteacher in small French village. Aka THE BUTCHER. [PG] ▼

Le Cercle Rouge (1970-French-Italian) C-140m. ½ D: Jean-Pierre Melville. Alain Delon, Gian-Maria Volonté, André Bourvil, Yves Montand, François Périer, Rene Berthier. Super-cool gangster Delon is released from prison on the same day another hood (Volonté) makes a daring escape from custody. The two hook up, along with Montand, for an ambitious heist, all the while humiliating a patient police inspector (marvelously played by Bourvil). Another winner from the star and writer-director of LE SAMOURAI. Cut to 100m. for initial U.S. release, restored in 2003. ▼

L'Eclisse SEE: Eclipse

Le Confessionnal (1995-Canadian-British-French) C-100m. ½ D: Robert Lepage. Lothaire Bluteau, Patrick Goyette, Jean-Louis Millette, Kristin Scott Thomas, Richard Frechette, Marie Gignac. Elaborate, challenging, but only intermittently successful tale which intercuts two scenarios set years apart, involving a pregnant adolescent in 1952 Quebec (as Alfred Hitchcock is in town shooting I CONFESS) who is determined not to reveal her lover's identity, and the adopted brother (Bluteau) of her natural father. Fluidly directed, with clever visual references to Hitch, but the result somehow seems disconnected and unnecessarily complex. Worth a look, especially for Hitchcock aficionados. Stage director Lepage's debut feature; he also scripted. ▼

Le Corbeau (1943-French) 92m. ½ D: Henri-Georges Clouzot. Pierre Fresnay, Ginette Leclerc, Helena Manson, Noel Roquevert, Sylvie, Louis Seigner. Ingenious suspenser detailing what happens when a series of mysterious poison pen letters begins circulating in a small French town. Quite controversial in its day, because it was financed by a German movie company and considered to be anti-French propaganda. Remade in Hollywood as THE 13TH LETTER. Aka THE RAVEN. ▼

Le Crabe Tambour (1977-French) C-120m. ½ D: Pierre Schoendoerffer. Jean Rochefort, Claude Rich, Jacques Dufilho, Jacques Perrin, Odile Versois, Aurore Clement. Expertly directed, detailed chronicle, mostly told in flashback, of the complex relationship between dying naval captain Rochefort and legendary officer Perrin, a character out of Soldier of Fortune magazine. Both, along with Rich as the doctor and Dufilho as the chief engineer, offer top-notch performances, and Raoul Coutard's cinematography is breathtaking. ▼

Leda SEE: Web of Passion

Le Dernier Combat (1984-French) 90m.  D: Luc Besson. Pierre Jolivet, Jean Bouise, Fritz Wepper, Christiane Kruger, Jean Reno. Wildly overpraised science-fiction film is basically another post-apocalypse epic. Jolivet is curious survivor wandering around a devastated landscape having odd, pointless encounters with strange people. Novelty item is without dialogue, in b&w, with stereo sound. Widescreen CinemaScope. [R] ▼

Le Deuxième Souffle (1966-French) 150m. ½ D: Jean-Pierre Melville. Lino Ventura, Paul Meurisse, Raymond Pellegrin, Christine Fabrèga, Marcel Bozzuffi, Paul Frankeur, Michel Constantin. Ventura means business as Gu, a tough crook who escapes from jail and becomes involved in a big heist, but is duped into helping the cops. Melville pulls out all the cinematic stops in his definitive caper film, a major reworking of his favorite themes of criminal loyalty, betrayal, and professionalism. ▽

Le Divorce (2003-U.S.-French) C-117m.  D: James Ivory. Kate Hudson, Naomi Watts, Leslie Caron, Stockard Channing, Glenn Close, Thierry Lhermitte, Sam Waterston, Melvil Poupaud, Stephen Fry, Matthew Modine, Bebe Neuwirth, Romain Duris, Jean-Marc Barr, Samuel Labarthe, Thomas Lennon, Nathalie Richard, Daniel Mesguich. Large, impressive cast flounders in this paper-thin comedy-of-manners about the sexual and romantic plight of an inexperienced American in Paris (Hudson) and her pregnant, abandoned sister (Watts). There are plenty of plot complications, but they don't add up to much; the potential for exploring the cultural differences between Americans and the French is wasted. Scripted by Ivory and Ruth Praver Jhabvala, based on Diane Johnson's novel. Panavision. [PG-13] ▽ ▽

Le Doulos (1962-French) 108m.  D: Jean-Pierre Melville. Jean-Paul Belmondo, Serge Reggiani, Jean Desailly, Fabienne Dali, Michel Piccoli, René Lefèvre, Monique Hennessy. Hard-boiled crime tale centering on the search for hidden loot stolen by Reggiani and whether or not fellow crook Belmondo ratted him out to the cops. Slick Melville imitation of an American film noir is a notch below his best, but still an entertaining study of duplicity and honor among thieves. Aka DOULOS—THE FIN-GER MAN. ▽ ▽

Leech Woman, The (1960) 77m. *½ D: Edward Dein. Coleen Gray, Grant Williams, Phillip Terry, Gloria Talbott, John Van Dreelen. In Africa, an aging woman obtains power that restores her youth, but requires her to murder—including her rotten husband. Back in L.A. it's more of the same. Gray is very good; the movie isn't. ▽ ● ●

Newman. Penn's first feature, based on a 1955 Philco Playhouse TV play by Gore Vidal in which Newman starred. See also GORE VIDAL'S BILLY THE KID. ▽ ▽

Left-Handed Woman, The (1978-German) C-119m.  D: Peter Handke. Edith Clever, Bruno Ganz, Michel Lonsdale, Markus Muhleisen, Angela Winkler, Ines de Longchamps, Bernhard Wicki, Gérard Depardieu. Clever, as The Woman, demands that husband Ganz leave her. He complies. Time passes ... and the audience falls asleep.

Left Hand of God, The (1955) C-87m.  D: Edward Dmytryk. Humphrey Bogart, Gene Tierney, Lee J. Cobb, Agnes Moorehead, E. G. Marshall, Benson Fong. Bogart manages to be convincing as American caught in post-WW2 China, posing as clergyman with diverting results. Cinema-Scope. ▽

Left Luggage (1998-Dutch-Belgian-U.S.) C-97m. ½ D: Jeroen Krabbé. Isabella Rossellini, Maximilian Schell, Laura Fraser, Jeroen Krabbé, Marianne Sägebrect, David Bradley, Adam Monty, Chaim Topol, Miriam Margolyes. In 1972 Antwerp, a free-spirited Jewish woman (Fraser), the daughter of Holocaust survivors, hires on as nanny for a Hasidic family and immediately bonds with a mute, cherubic five-year-old who is terrified of his rigid father. Emotionally charged drama explores a host of issues, but despite some powerful moments, is far too obvious and even schmaltzy at times. Opened in the U.S. in 2000. ▽ ▽

Legacy, The (1979) C-100m. ½ D: Richard Marquand. Katharine Ross, Sam Elliott, John Standing, Ian Hogg, Margaret Tyzack, Charles Gray, Lee Montague, Roger Daltrey. Two Americans find themselves among a group of people shanghaied to British mansion where strange deaths and an occult ceremony await. Acceptable fare for fans of this genre. Filmed in England; aka THE LEGACY OF MAGGIE WALSH. [R] ▽ ▽

Legacy of Rage (1986-Hong Kong) C-87m. ½ D: Ronny Yu. Brandon Lee, Michael Wong, Regina Kent, Onno Boelee (Bolo Yeung), Tanya George, Wai-Man Chan, Randy Mang. Lee's debut film has him framed for the murder of a cop by a mobster "friend" who then tries to steal his fiancée; eight years later he's released from prison and is out for blood. Martial arts mayhem is surprisingly kept to a bare minimum in this imitation John Woo crime drama filled with gory shootouts, bone-crushing violence and superkinetic car chases and explosions. ▽ ● ●

Legal Eagles (1986) C-114m. ½ D: Ivan Reitman. Robert Redford, Debra Winger,

Daryl Hannah, Brian Dennehy, Terence Stamp, Steven Hill, David Clennon, John McMartin, Jennie Dundas, Roscoe Lee Brown, Christine Baranski, Jay Thomas. Underwritten, overproduced romantic comedy about assistant D.A. who becomes involved with flaky lawyer (Winger) and her even flakier client (Hannah). Redford's charisma is at its brightest, which helps make up for lack of spark between him and Winger, and film's other weaknesses. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Legally Blonde (2001) C-96m. ½ D: Robert Luketic. Reese Witherspoon, Luke Wilson, Selma Blair, Matthew Davis, Victor Garber, Jennifer Coolidge, Holland Taylor, Ali Larter, Jessica Cauffiel, Alanna Ubach, Oz Perkins, Raquel Welch. A way-perky sorority girl gets accepted at Harvard Law School in order to win her ex-boyfriend back, then discovers she has the right stuff to become a lawyer. Witherspoon is practically the whole show in this very predictable but engagingly silly comedy that, like its heroine, has more smarts than you'd expect. Later a Broadway musical. Followed by a sequel. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Legally Blonde 2: Red White & Blonde (2003) C-94m. *½ D: Charles Herman-Wurmfeld. Reese Witherspoon, Sally Field, Regina King, Jennifer Coolidge, Bruce McGill, Dana Ivey, Mary Lynn Rajskub, Jessica Cauffiel, Alanna Ubach, Bob Newhart, Luke Wilson. Appallingly imbecilic sequel sends Witherspoon's effervescent Elle Woods to Washington (like Mr. Smith, who is briefly invoked) to push through a bill that will prevent chemical testing on animals. She gets some quick lessons on "playing the game," capitol-style. Any film that begins with its heroine hiring a detective to locate her dog's birth mother isn't going for credibility . . . but this one can't even give us an emotionally satisfying climax when Elle addresses Congress! Followed by a DVD sequel. [PG-13]▼●

Legend (1985-British) C-89m.  D: Ridley Scott. Tom Cruise, Mia Sara, Tim Curry, David Bennent, Alice Playten, Billy Barty. Lavishly mounted fantasy, in the Grimm's Fairy Tale mold, about the demon Darkness trying to gain control over young girl who represents absolute innocence. Incredibly handsome but story lacks momentum and characters are not well defined. Kids might enjoy it. Released in U.S. in 1986 with Tangerine Dream score; European version had a Jerry Goldsmith score. Director's cut runs 113m. J-D-C Scope. [PG]▼●●

Legend of Bagger Vance, The (2000) C-127m.  D: Robert Redford. Will Smith,

Matt Damon, Charlize Theron, Bruce McGill, Joel Gretsch, Lane Smith, Harve Presnell, J. Michael Moncrief. A once-promising golfer from Savannah, Georgia, shattered by his experiences in WW1, is goaded into competing against champions Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen in an exhibition match . . . with the help of a mysterious caddy named Bagger Vance. Leisurely paced, beautifully rendered fable; fortunately, some undercooked mysticism doesn't get in the way. Jack Lemmon appears unbilled. [PG-13]▼●

Legend of Billie Jean, The (1985) C-96m.  D: Matthew Robbins. Helen Slater, Keith Gordon, Christian Slater, Richard Bradford, Peter Coyote, Martha Gehman, Dean Stockwell. Texas girl and her brother are implicated in a shooting; unjustly accused of other crimes, they run from police and soon become rebel heroes. Slater is very good, and film is watchable, but its adult characters come out as caricatures and the "message" gets muddy. Christian Slater's first feature film. [PG-13]▼

Legend of Boggy Creek, The (1972) C-90m.  D: Charles B. Pierce. Willie E. Smith, John P. Nixon, John W. Gates, Jeff Crabtree, Buddy Crabtree. Docudrama about sightings of a horrifying swamp monster in an Arkansas community. This modest but well-touted endeavor became a huge success, inspiring many similar films—including RETURN TO BOGGY CREEK and THE BARBARIC BEAST OF BOGGY CREEK PART II (which is actually the third in the series). Techniscope. [G]▼●

Legend of Frenchie King, The (1971-French-Spanish-Italian-British) C-97m. *½ D: Christian-Jaque, Guy Casaril. Brigitte Bardot, Claudia Cardinale, Michael J. Pollard, Patty Shepard, Micheline Presle. Clumsy attempt at bawdy Western in the style of VIVA MARIA, with Bardot and her sisters as female outlaws at a French settlement in New Mexico, circa 1880. Badly dubbed. Aka PETROLEUM GIRLS. [R]▼

Legend of Hell House, The (1973-British) C-95m.  D: John Hough. Roddy McDowall, Pamela Franklin, Clive Revill, Gayle Hunnicutt, Roland Culver, Peter Bowles. Harrowing story of occult phenomena as four researchers agree to spend one week in house known to be inhabited by malignant spirits. Not the usual ghost story, and certain to curl a few hairs. Michael Gough turns up as a corpse at conclusion. Written by Richard Matheson from his novel Hell House. [PG]▼●●

Legend of Lylah Clare, The (1968) C-130m.  D: Robert Aldrich. Kim Novak, Peter Finch, Ernest Borgnine, Milton Selzer, Valentina Cortese, Michael Murphy,

Lee Meriwether, Coral Browne, Ellen Corby. Has-been Hollywood director fashions young woman into the image of his late wife for screen biography; flamboyantly awful, but some think it's so bad it's good. Judge for yourself. Based on a 1963 Dupont Show of the Week TV play by Robert Thom. [R]

Legend of Nigger Charley, The (1972) C-98m. ½ D: Martin Goldman. Fred Williamson, D'Urville Martin, Don Pedro Colley, Gertrude Jeanette, Marcia McBroom, Alan Gifford. Violent, routine black Western about Virginia slave who becomes a fugitive after killing treacherous overseer; Lloyd Price sings title tune. Sequel: THE SOUL OF NIGGER CHARLEY. [PG]

Legend of 1900, The (1998-Italian) C-116m.  D: Giuseppe Tornatore. Tim Roth, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Bill Nunn, Clarence Williams III, Melanie Thierry, Harry Ditson. Expansive fable about an infant named 1900, born (and abandoned) on a huge ocean liner at the turn of the 20th century; he spends his entire life on that ship, and turns out to be a uniquely gifted pianist. Ambitious tale has some wonderful moments—including a piano duel with Jelly Roll Morton (Williams)—but rambles inconclusively. Italian title: THE LEGEND OF THE PIANIST ON THE OCEAN, which runs 170m. Technovision. [R] ▼

Legend of Rita, The (2000-German) C-103m.  D: Volker Schlöndorff. Bibiana Beglau, Martin Wuttke, Nadja Uhl, Harald Schrott, Alexander Beyer, Jenny Schilly, Mario Irrek. Trenchant look at the youthful idealism of headline-grabbing political firebrands who were active in West Germany during the 1970s. The fictional title character (Beglau) is a radical/zealot who finds herself in East Germany living under a false identity and toiling alongside drab, discontented fellow workers. With much irony, Schlöndorff examines the era's politics, passions, and harsh realities. ▼

Legend of the Holy Drinker, The (1988-Italian) C-125m. ½ D: Ermanno Olmi. Rutger Hauer, Anthony Quayle, Sandrine Dumas, Dominique Pinon, Sophie Segalen. Subtle, poetic tale of a down-and-out man (Hauer, in a very uncharacteristic performance), who drinks too much, sleeps under a bridge, and is haunted by his past. The scenario chronicles what happens when he's presented 200 francs by a stranger. As in Olmi's best films, there are often long silences—but those silences are golden.

Perry, John Hart. A middling effort to tell the origin of the Masked Man, which wavers between seriousness and tongue-in-cheek. Some fine action, great scenery, and a promising storyline, but sabotaged by awkward handling, uncharismatic leads (Spilsbury was dubbed to no great effect), and an awful "ballad" narration by Merle Haggard. Bring back Clayton Moore and Jay Silverheels! Panavision. [PG] ▼

Legend of the Werewolf (1975-British) C-87m.  D: Freddie Francis. Peter Cushing, Ron Moody, Hugh Griffith, Roy Castle, David Rintoul, Lynn Dalby. Legend of Zorro, The (2005) C-129m. ½ D: Martin Campbell. Antonio Banderas, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Rufus Sewell, Nick Chinlund, Julio Oscar Mechoso, Shuler Hensley, Michael Emerson, Adrian Alonso, Mary Crosby. In this sequel to THE MASK OF ZORRO, our hero, now married and the father of a son, is persuaded to retire by his wife as Californians vote to become part of the U.S., but the arrival of a mysterious stranger from Europe signals a need for him to return to action. Escapism with a capital E, made with a family audience in mind, full of overflowing with grandiose action and stunts . . . but like the first film, there's too much of everything. The charismatic stars do their best to combat a plot-heavy script. Super 35. [PG] ▼

Legends of the Fall (1994) C-134m.  D: Edward Zwick. Brad Pitt, Anthony Hopkins, Aidan Quinn, Julia Ormond, Henry Thomas, Karina Lombard, Gordon Tootosis, Tantoo Cardinal, Paul Desmond. Sprawling family saga about three brothers raised in Montana by their iconoclastic father—a former cavalry officer who turned his back on bloodshed and the exploitation of Indians. Lumbering, Edna Ferber-esque plot is rife with sibling rivalry, pregnant looks, and heated exchanges. Many moviegoers—especially fans of red-hot Pitt—embraced this film, but its earnest, straight-faced story gets sillier as it goes along. Performances are fairly one-note, as well, except for Thomas as the youngest brother. Based on a novella

Legionnaire (1998) C-99m. *½ D: Peter MacDonald. Jean-Claude Van Damme, Adewale Akinnuoye-Agbaje, Steven Berkoff, Nicholas Farrell, Jim Carter, Ana Sofrenovic. Boxer Van Damme joins the French Foreign Legion in 1925 and flees to Morocco after defying a mobster who orders him to take a dive. The script is so dated and unintentionally hilarious that you keep expecting to see Ramon Novarro show up in a turban, or at least Marty Feldman; but alas, it's all played with numbing seriousness and a lack of style and imagination. Released straight to video in the U.S. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Le Jouet (1976-French) C-92m. ½ D: Francis Veber. Pierre Richard, Michel Bouquet, Fabrice Greco, Suzy Dyson, Jacques Francois. To show up his cut-throat father, a rich boy buys a human toy. Sometimes funny, sometimes not . . . but it's miles ahead of the American remake, THE TOY. Veber also scripted. [PG]

Le Jour Se Lève (1939-French) 93m. ½ D: Marcel Carné. Jean Gabin, Jacqueline Laurent, Jules Berry, Arletty, Mady Berry. A staple of French cinema, from the writer-director team that later created CHILDREN OF PARADISE; factory worker Gabin, trapped in a building, flashes back on events that drove him to murder. Generally holds up, while going a long way toward defining Gabin's screen persona. Written by Jacques Prévert, from Jacques Viot's story. U.S. title: DAYBREAK. Later remade here as THE LONG NIGHT.▼

Lemon Drop Kid, The (1951) 91m.  D: Sidney Lanfield. Bob Hope, Marilyn

Maxwell, Lloyd Nolan, Jane Darwell, William Frawley. Hope is hilarious as race-track tout who owes big money to gangster and must pay or else. Adapted from Damon Runyon story, filmed before in 1934. Film introduced Livingston-Evans Christmas hit "Silver Bells."▼●●

Lemon Sisters, The (1990) C-93m. *½ D: Joyce Chopra. Diane Keaton, Carol Kane, Kathryn Grody, Elliott Gould, Ruben Blades, Aidan Quinn, Estelle Parsons, Richard Libertini, Nathan Lane. Dopey female buddy comedy revolving around the relationships of three women; doesn't take off despite an impressive cast. Although the laughs are few, the scene in which Kane sings "Rawhide" is almost worth a look. This film sat on the shelf awhile before its desultory release to theaters. [PG-13]▼●●

Lemony Snicket's A Series of Unfortunate Events (2004) C-107m.  D: Brad Silberling. Jim Carrey, Liam Aiken, Emily Browning, Kara Hoffman, Shelby Hoffman, Meryl Streep, Jude Law, Timothy Spall, Catherine O'Hara, Billy Connolly, Luis Guzman, Jamie Harris, Craig Ferguson, Jennifer Coolidge, Jane Adams, Cedric the Entertainer. Three newly orphaned siblings are sent to live with their very strange uncle, would-be actor Count Olaf, who intends to do them in and steal their inheritance. When they manage to escape from his clutches, they are taken in by a series of odd and unusual guardians. Grand Guignol family fodder based on three Lemony Snicket novels (written by Daniel Handler), impeccably designed by longtime Tim Burton colleague Rick Heinrichs. Unbeatable cast strikes just the right darkly comic tone, led by Carrey in one of his richest performances. Oscar winner for Valli O'Reilly and Bill Corso's makeup. Stick around for the ingenious, entertaining closing credits. [PG]▼●●

L'Enfant (2005-Belgian-French) C-95m.  D: Jean-Pierre Dardenne, Luc Dardenne. Jérémie Renier, Déborah François, Jérémie Segard, Fabrizio Rongione, Olivier Gourmet. A young, amoral thief and his girlfriend have a baby, but responsibility is such a foreign concept to him that he sells the child to a black-market ring, with unexpected consequences. As forceful and naturalistic as the Dardennes' other films, but the story is uncharacteristically schematic, which dilutes its impact somewhat. Said to be inspired by Crime and Punishment and Robert Bresson's PICKPOCKET. The leading actor starred in the filmmakers' LA PROMESSE when he was a boy. Winner of the Palme d'Or at Cannes. Cluzet and sexy Béart marry, become settled in domesticity and seem very happy—until the husband becomes convinced that the wife is cheating on him. Chabrol ponders some interesting questions—how well can two people know each other? how far can they trust each other?—but result is one-note, with Cluzet becoming a laughable caricature of an insanely jealous man. Scripted by Chabrol, from original screenplay by Henri-Georges Clouzot (which the latter had started filming in 1964 but never completed). [R]▼

Leningrad Cowboys Go America (1989-Finnish) C-80m.  D: Aki Kaurismäki. Matti Pellonpää, Kari Vaananen, Jim Jarmusch, Nicky Tesco. Straight-faced comedy from Kaurismäki about a group of dreadful musicians from Finland; they're so bad that they decide to head for the U.S.—where people will listen to “anything”—and they set out on tour through the modern wasteland of small-town America. Shot in the U.S. and Finland, and scripted by the prolific Kaurismäki; while his films have become known and admired at festivals, this was the first to have a major theatrical release in the U.S. [PG-13]▼

Lenny (1974) 112m. * D: Bob Fosse. Dustin Hoffman, Valerie Perrine, Jan Miner, Stanley Beck, Gary Morton. Powerful biography of troubled nightclub comic Lenny Bruce, whose hip humor and scatological dialogue made him a controversial figure in the 1950s. Fine direction, evocative b&w camerawork (by Bruce Surtees) showcase excellent performances by Hoffman and Perrine (as Lenny's wife, stripper Honey Harlowe). Script by Julian Barry, expanded from his Broadway play. [R]▼

Japanese animated feature based on classic sci-fi novels of American E. E. “Doc” Smith, which also inspired STAR WARS. Unfortunately, this film plays like a mediocre rip-off of the George Lucas film; computer-generated animation sequences are interesting to watch but don't move the story along. Maxime Collin, Ginette Reno, Roland Blouin, Julien Guimar, Pierre Bourgault, Giuditta Del Vecchio, Denys Arcand; narrated by Gilbert Sicotte. Bizarrely funny black comedy about a boy, on the verge of adolescence, surviving in the slums of Montreal. He's stifled by a family he aptly describes as a “black hole,” and is convinced he's the offspring of a contaminated, spermladen tomato! Lauzon penned the semiautobiographical script.▼

Leonard Cohen: I'm Your Man (2005) C/B&W-105m. ½ D: Lian Lunson. Agreeable if unspectacular documentary-concert film that charts the life and times of the famed Canadian songwriter-novelist-poet. Most interesting are Cohen's recollections of his early success and his decision to interrupt his career to pass time in a Zen monastery. Cohen and others (including Nick Cave, Rufus Wainwright, Kate and Anna McGarrigle, Beth Orton, and Jarvis Cocker) perform in a tribute concert at the Sydney Opera House. [PG-13]▼

Even Cosby warned audiences to stay away from this megabomb (for which he receives story and producer credit). [PG]▼

Leon Morin, Priest SEE: Forgiven Sinner, The

Leonor (1975-French-Spanish-Italian) C-90m. BOMB D: Juan Buñuel. Michel Piccoli, Liv Ullmann, Ornella Muti, Antonio Ferrandis, Jorge Rigaud. Medieval mishmash with Lady Liv rising from the dead a decade after husband Piccoli seals her in a tomb. Deadenig and idiotic. Directed by the son of Luis Buñuel. [PG]▼

Leopard, The (1963-French-Italian) C-195m. * D: Luchino Visconti. Burt Lancaster, Alain Delon, Claudia Cardinale, Rina Morelli, Paolo Stoppa. Magnificent spectacle, set in 1860 Sicily, about an aristocrat who tries coming to terms with the unification of Italy. Originally released here in a badly dubbed 165m. version, film was restored in 1983 to proper form (though Lancaster's voice is still dubbed, as it was in original foreign version). Delon and Cardinale are close to the final word in romantic pairings; concluding hour-long banquet scene is among the great set pieces in movie history. Technirama.▼

Leopard in the Snow (1978-Canadian-British) C-90m. ½ D: Gerry O'Hara. Keir Dullea, Susan Penhaligon, Kenneth More, Billie Whitelaw, Jeremy Kemp, Yvonne Manners. First movie produced by publishers of Harlequin Romance paperbacks is predictably tearful love story about English girl who falls for a testy, reclusive American who's afraid to admit his feelings. [PG]▼

Leopard Man, The (1943) 66m. ½ D: Jacques Tourneur. Dennis O'Keefe, Margo, Jean Brooks, Isabel Jewell, James Bell, Margaret Landry, Abner Biberman. Intriguing but flawed Val Lewton thriller about

series of murders in small New Mexico town blamed on escaped leopard. Based on novel Black Alibi by Cornell Woolrich. ▼●●

Leopard Son, The (1996) C-84m. ½ D: Hugo Van Lawick. Narrated by John Gielgud. Sweeping, beautifully filmed documentary following the birth, growing pains, and coming-of-age of a leopard cub. Shot over a two-year period in Africa's Serengeti Plain, this eye-opening film shows just how much luck plays a part in any animal's survival. Parents should know that there are disturbing scenes of animal death, though handled with discretion. Music by Stewart Copeland. Discovery Channel's first theatrical release. [G]▼●●

Leo the Last (1970-British) C-103m.  D: John Boorman. Marcello Mastroianni, Billie Whitelaw, Calvin Lockhart, Glenna Forster-Jones, Graham Crowden. Oddball film about reticent Mastroianni, last in a line of princes, who gradually emerges from decaying London mansion to become involved with people living on his black ghetto block. Enigmatic, unsatisfying film, with occasional bright touches. Boorman explored some of the same ideas 20 years later in WHERE THE HEART IS. [R]

Leo Tolstoy's Anna Karenina (1997) C-108m.  D: Bernard Rose. Sophie Marceau, Sean Bean, Alfred Molina, Mia Kirshner, James Fox, Fiona Shaw, Danny Huston, Phyllida Law, David Schofield, Saskia Wickham, Jennifer Hall. Practically passionless recounting of the oft-filmed tale of the title character (Marceau), a wife and mother who commences an illicit affair with dashing Count Vronsky (Bean) in 19th-century Russia. Handsomely mounted, but dramatically flat. Notable only as the first Western-produced ANNA to be filmed in Russia—in St. Petersburg, to be exact. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Le Petit Lieutenant (2005-French) C-111m.  D: Xavier Beauvois. Nathalie Baye, Jalil Lespert, Roschdy Zem, Antoine Chappey, Jacques Perrin, Patrick Chauvel, Xavier Beauvois. Engrossing, low-key account of life in a Parisian criminal investigation police unit. The main characters are the title one (Lespert), newly graduated from the police academy, who's been assigned to the unit, and his superior officer (Baye), a world-weary recovering alcoholic who's haunted by the death of her son. There's a plot, involving the tracking of a pair of Russian thugs, but the emphasis is on the drudgery—and heartbreak—of everyday police work. Beauvois, who coscripted, also plays one of the cops. ▽

Le Petit Soldat (1960-French) 88m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Michel Subor, Anna Karina, Henri-Jacques Huet, Paul Beauvais, László Szabó, Georges de Beauregard. Godard's second feature concerns the terrorist activities of Algerian rebels who capture French army deserter Subor and blackmail him into committing an assassination. Godard's future wife

Karina makes her feature debut as a leftist activist with whom Subor falls in love. Featuring an unforgettable torture scene, this powerful film was banned in France until 1963; less about politics than personal freedom and the banality of evil. ▼●

Lepke (1975) C-110m. ½ D: Menahem Golan. Tony Curtis, Anjanette Comer, Michael Callan, Warren Berlinger, Milton Berle, Vic Tayback. Cut above usual gangster film, with Curtis surprisingly convincing as title character, head of '30s Murder, Inc. Berle has serious cameo as Comer's father. Recut to 98m. by Golan for cable TV release. Panavision. [R]▼●

Le Plaisir (1951-French) 97m. ½ D: Max Ophüls. Jean Gabin, Danielle Darrieux, Simone Simon, Claude Dauphin, Gaby Morlay, Pierre Brasseur, Pauline Dubost, Madeleine Renaud, Daniel Gelin. The joy and heartache of l'amour and the pursuit of pleasure is explored with subtlety and sophistication in a trilogy of stories by Guy de Maupassant: in "Le Masque," a vain old man tries to regain his youth by donning a mask to a ball; in "Le Maison Tellier," a group of prostitutes travels to the country to attend the first communion of the madam's niece; in "Le Modèle," a free-living artist's affair with a model takes a tragic turn. Brilliantly acted by a superb cast and directed with customary virtuosity and a dazzlingly fluid style. Jean Marais narrates the French version of the film as de Maupassant (Peter Ustinov narrates the English version; Anton Walbrook narrates the German version). ▼●

Leprechaun (1993) C-92m. BOMB D: Mark Jones. Warwick Davis, Jennifer Aniston, Ken Olandt, Mark Holton, Robert Gorman, John Sanderford, Shay Duffin. Inept horror drama in which a pint-sized Irish fairy (Davis) goes on a rampage after being ripped off of a hundred gold-pieces. Gratuitous gore and cheap shocks take the place of moviemaking skill. [R]▼●●

Leprechaun 2 (1994) C-85m. *½ D: Rodman Flender. Warwick Davis, Charlie Heath, Shevonne Durkin, Sandy Baron, Adam Biesk, James Lancaster, Clint Howard, Kimmy Robertson. A spurned, vengeful leprechaun arrives in L.A. from ancient Ireland to claim his bride—the descendant of a lass he was tricked out of 1,000 years ago. Just another excuse for high-body-count gratuitous gore, begorrah! [R]▼●●

Le Rouge et le Noir (1954-French-Italian) C-145m.  D: Claude Autant-Lara. Gérard Philipe, Danielle Darrieux, Antonella Lualdi, Jean Martinelli. Solidly acted, handsomely produced historical drama based on the Stendahl novel about a man of the lower classes (Philipe) and his obsession with making it in society in 1830 France; Darrieux and Lualdi are the women in his life.

European running time 170m. Remade for French TV in 1997. Aka THE RED AND THE BLACK. ▼

Le Samourai (1967-French) C-101m. ½ D: Jean-Pierre Melville. Alain Delon, Nathalie Delon, François Perier, Cathy Rosier, Jacques Leroy, Jean-Pierre Posier, Catherine Jourdan. Delon is the ultimate existential hit man in this tale of an assassin who's hired to kill a nightclub owner, but is double-crossed by his mysterious employers. Alain Delon was never better than in this quintessential Melville policier, a marvelously stylish meditation on crime and solitude that was a direct influence on John Woo's THE KILLER. First released in U.S. as THE GODSON. ▼

Le Sauvage SEE: Lovers Like Us

Les Biches (1968-French-Italian) C-94m. ½ D: Claude Chabrol. Jean-Louis Trintignant, Jacqueline Sassard, Stephane Audran, Nane Germon. Excellent film of rich, aging lesbian who picks up unformed waif who earns her living drawing on the sidewalks of Paris. [R] ▼

Les Bonnes Femmes (1960-French) 93m.  D: Claude Chabrol. Bernadette Lafont, Clotilde Joano, Stephane Audran, Lucile Saint-Simon, Pierre Bertin, Jean-Louis Maury, Claude Berri, Mario David. Offbeat, intriguing Chabrol concoction, an important film of the early French New Wave, about a quartet of French shopgirls and their varied hopes and dreams. The most interesting storyline spotlights dreamy Joano and her fascination with a mysterious motorcyclist. The finale is a real knockout. ▼

Les Carabiniers (1963-French-Italian) 80m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Albert Juross, Marino Masé, Genevieve Galea, Catherine Ribeiro, Gérard Poirot, Jean Brassat, Alvaro Gheri, Barbet Schroeder. In an unspecified time and place, two peasants are offered money and the promise of great adventures if they fight for the king; they accept, but are executed when a peace treaty is signed. Critically lambasted upon its release, this (intentionally) crudely made and anachronistic fable remains one of the few honest films about the insanity and immorality of war: it refuses to romanticize its subject. Written by Godard, Jean Gruault, and Roberto Rossellini. ▼

Les Choristes (2004-French-Swiss) C-97m. ½ D: Christophe Barratier. Gérard Jugnot, François Berléand, Kad Merad, Jacques Perrin, Jean-Baptiste Maunier, Marie Bunel, Jean-Paul Bonnaire, Maxence Perrin. New supervisor reports for work at a reform school for "difficult" boys run by a severe and unenlightened man. By starting a choir, the new man gives his young charges unity and hope. Well made, but obvious from the word go, which undercuts its emotional impact. Coproducer Jacques Perrin plays the conductor in the opening scene; that's his son Maxence as Pèpinot. Remake of LA

Les Compères (1984-French) C-92m.  D: Francis Veber. Pierre Richard, Gérard Depardieu, Anny Duperey, Michel Aumont, Stephane Bierry. Endearing comedy in which beautiful, desperate Duperey manipulates former boyfriends Richard and Depardieu into searching for runaway son Bierry by making each think that the boy is his. This one works primarily because of the stars' knowing performances. Veber also scripted. Remade in the U.S. as FATHERS' DAY. [PG] ▼

Les Destinées (2000-French-Swiss) C-174m. ½ D: Olivier Assayas. Emmanuelle Béart, Charles Berling, Isabelle Huppert, Olivier Perrier, Dominique Reymond, André Marcon, Alexandra London, Julie Depardieu, Catherine Mouchet. Heartfelt, sumptuously filmed but disappointing epic set during the first decades of the 20th century, centering on small-town minister Berling, who agrees to take over his family's porcelain-manufacturing business, and his evolving relationship with beautiful Béart. Sporadically on target when spotlighting the importance of love in a cold, fast-changing world, but never as involving as it should be . . . and terribly overlong. Originally titled LES DESTINÉES SENTIMENTALES. Widescreen. ▼

Les Diaboliques SEE: Diabolique (1955)

Le Sex Shop (1973-French) C-92m.  D: Claude Berri. Claude Berri, Juliet Berto, Nathalie Delon, Jean-Pierre Marielle, Beatrice Romand, Catherine Allegret. Amiable spoof of our preoccupation with sex; failing bookstore owner starts selling porno material, becomes increasingly fascinated by it. Clever idea well done; originally rated X because of its candid (yet unsensational) scenes. [R—edited from original X rating] ▼

Les Girls (1957) C-114m. ½ D: George Cukor. Gene Kelly, Mitzi Gaynor, Kay Kendall, Taina Elg, Jacques Bergerac, Leslie Phillips, Henry Daniell, Patrick Macnee. Charming, sprightly musical involving three show girls who (via flashback) reveal their relationship to hooper Kelly; chicly handled in all departments, with Cole Porter tunes and Oscar-winning Orry-Kelly costumes. John Patrick adapted Vera Caspary's novel. CinemaScope. ▼

Les Misérables (1935) 108m. ½ D: Richard Boleslawski. Fredric March, Charles Laughton, Cedric Hardwicke, Rochelle Hudson, Frances Drake, John Beal, Florence Eldridge, Jessie Ralph, Leonid Kinskey. Meticulous production of Victor Hugo's classic tale. Minor thief March tries to bury past and become respectable town mayor, but police inspector Javert (Laughton) won't let him. John Carradine

has bit part as student radical. Screenplay by W. P. Lipscomb. ▼●●

Les Misérables (1947-Italian) 118m.  D: Riccardo Freda. Gino Cervi, Valentina Cortesa, John Hinrich, Aldo Nicodemi, Duccia Giraldi, Marcello Mastroianni. Intelligent, handsomely mounted version of the oft-filmed Victor Hugo story, with Cervi making a fine Jean Valjean. Mario Monicelli was one of the scripters. Originally 140m. ▼

Les Misérables (1952) 104m.  D: Lewis Milestone. Michael Rennie, Debra Paget, Robert Newton, Sylvia Sidney, Edmund Gwenn, Cameron Mitchell, Elsa Lanchester, Florence Bates. Glossy but thoughtful remake of the venerable Victor Hugo classic. ●

Les Misérables (1995-French) C-178m. ½ D: Claude Lelouch. Jean-Paul Belmondo, Michel Boujenah, Alessandra Martines, Annie Girardot, Clementine Celarie, Philippe Leotard, Rufus, Jean Marais, Micheline Presle, Darrylowl, Salome, Ticky Holgado, Philippe Kohrsand, Nicole Croisille, Paul Belmondo. Extraordinary recycling of Victor Hugo's sprawling novel into a 20th-century landscape, culminating in a story of WW2 France. Belmondo plays a simple man who takes on the qualities of Jean Valjean as he helps a Jewish family fleeing from the Nazis. Lelouch's modern parable/adaptation emphasizes the impact that one good man can have on the lives of people around him; the result is absolutely riveting. Great, humanistic storytelling. Marais (from the Cocteau classics of the 1940s) plays the Monseigneur; Presle plays the Mère Supérieure. The ballerina and her daughter are played by Lelouch's real-life wife and daughter. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Les Misérables (1998) C-131m. ½ D: Bille August. Liam Neeson, Geoffrey Rush, Uma Thurman, Claire Danes, Hans Matheson, Reine Brynolfsson, Mimi Newman. Respectful, well-made adaptation of the Hugo classic, with strong performances from Neeson (as Jean Valjean), Thurman (as Fantine), Danes (as Cosette), and of course Rush (as the villainous Javert). Location filming in Paris (and Prague) is another asset. Yet there is a certain fire missing, especially at the finale, which keeps this from soaring. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

experienced young Marais falling in love with Day, unaware that she's been his father's mistress. De Bray is outstanding as Marais's neurotic mother, who subtly expresses incestuous feelings toward her son. Cocteau scripted based on his play (which featured these same actors). Remade in England as INTIMATE RELATIONS. ▼●●

Lesson in Love, A (1954-Swedish) 95m.  D: Ingmar Bergman. Gunnar Bjornstrand, Eva Dahlbeck, Yvonne Lombard, Harriet Andersson, Ake Gronberg. Obstetrician Bjornstrand, happily married for 15 years to Dahlbeck, has an affair with a patient; Dahlbeck then returns to her former lover—the husband's best friend. Medium Bergman. ▼

Less Than Zero (1987) C-96m.  D: Marek Kaniweska. Andrew McCarthy, Jami Gertz, Robert Downey, Jr., James Spader, Tony Bill, Nicholas Pryor, Brad Pitt. Bret Easton Ellis' nihilistic novel about young, disengaged L.A. have-it-all is sanitized into pointlessness, though a faithful adaptation would have turned off everyone; try to imagine it with Eddie Bracken, Veronica Lake, and Sonny Tufts. The two leads are awful, but Spader is creepy as a drug-dealing slug, Downey exceptional as a wealthy addict. Almost good-bad. [R] ▼●●

Les Visiteurs SEE: Visitors, The (1993-French)

Les Voleurs (1996-French) C-117m.  D: André Téchiné. Catherine Deneuve, Daniel Auteuil, Laurence Côte, Fabienne Babe, Julien Rivière, Benoît Magimel, Didier Bezace, Ivan Desny. Something different from Téchiné (who last teamed with these two stars on MA SAISON PRÉFÉRÉE): a crime picture, laced with his usual emotional/sexual twists. Here, as a boy pieces together his father's death, the viewer meets his outcast uncle, a cop (Auteuil), a cipher-like professor (Deneuve), and the young woman who comes between them (Côte). More an acting exercise than a cogent drama. Aka THIEVES. ▼●●

Let Freedom Ring (1939) 87m.  D: Jack Conway. Nelson Eddy, Virginia Bruce, Victor McLaglen, Lionel Barrymore, Edward Arnold, Guy Kibbee, Charles Butterworth, H.B. Warner, Raymond Walburn, George F. (Gabby) Hayes. Ben Hecht scripted this fascinating Western drama with music about a singing lawyer (Eddy) who returns to his hometown and battles corrupt Arnold. Sermonizes a bit, but its points about the power of the press and a citizen's responsibilities in a free society are as relevant as ever. ▼

Lethal Terminator SEE: Glove, The

prove a good team as they go after a particularly scummy drug ring. Loud, violent, trashy cop movie done to a turn; fast paced and entertaining so long as you don't think about it too much. Director's cut runs 117m. Followed by three sequels. [R] ▼●●

Lethal Weapon 2 (1989) C-113m.  D: Richard Donner. Mel Gibson, Danny Glover, Joe Pesci, Joss Ackland, Derrick O'Connor, Patsy Kensit, Darlene Love, Traci Wolfe, Steve Kahan. Ultraviolent, superslick sequel is just as cartoonish as the first—and possibly even more entertaining. This time around, our heroes tangle with a nefarious smuggling kingpin hiding behind diplomatic immunity, but doesn't reckon with Gibson's reckless ways. A must for action fans. Director's cut runs 118m. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Lethal Weapon 4 (1998) C-127m.  D: Richard Donner. Mel Gibson, Danny Glover, Joe Pesci, Rene Russo, Chris Rock, Jet Li, Steve Kahan, Kim Chan, Darlene Love, Traci Wolfe. Those wacky cops are at it again, this time battling a Chinese ganglord—and facing domestic crises involving pregnancy and marriage. Added this time: Rock, as an overzealous cop, and Li, as a formidable bad guy. The cast is so likable and their energy so infectious that the filmmakers get away with murder, presenting an overlong, incoherent story and peppering it with supercharged action sequences. Fans of the series won't be disappointed; others needn't bother. Richard Libertini appears unbilled. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Let Him Have It (1991-British) C-115m.  D: Peter Medak. Chris Eccleston, Paul Reynolds, Tom Courtenay, Tom Bell, Eileen Atkins, Clare Holman, Mark McGann, Michael Gough, Ronald Fraser, James Villiers, Murray Melvin, Norman Rossington, Clive Revill. Absorbing drama based on the true story of Derek Bentley, a slow-witted youth who was pulled into a life of crime in post-war England and sentenced to death for a murder actually committed by his youthful cohort. Medak's sympathetic point of view is abetted by vivid performances, including Eccleston in the lead, and a gallery of top British actors in supporting roles. [R] ▼●●

son. Uneven, draggy documentary is rescued and abetted by brilliant, Oscar-winning score by The Beatles. When they perform it becomes magical; when others are thrown in it becomes a bore. [G] ▼●●

Let It Ride (1989) C-86m.  D: Joe Pytko. Richard Dreyfuss, Teri Garr, David Johansen (Buster Poindexter), Jennifer Tilly, Allen Garfield, Ed Walsh, Michelle Phillips, Mary Woronof, Robbie Coltrane, Richard Edson, Cynthia Nixon. Disjointed, only sporadically funny tale of a compulsive gambler who finally hits a winning streak at a Florida racetrack. First-time director Pytko tries for a Damon Runyon flavor and a fast pace, but it doesn't come off; screenwriter Nancy Dowd had her name removed from credits. [PG-13] ▼●●

Let No Man Write My Epitaph (1960) 106m.  D: Philip Leacock. Burl Ives, Shelley Winters, James Darren, Jean Seberg, Ricardo Montalban, Ella Fitzgerald. Bizarre account of slum life, focusing on Darren and his dope-addicted mother involved with a variety of corrupt individuals. Sequel to KNOCK ON ANY DOOR. ▼

L'Etoile du Nord (1982-French) C-101m.

*½ D: Pierre Granier-Deferre. Simone Signoret, Philippe Noiret, Fanny Cottencon, Julie Jezequel, Gamil Ratib. Boring tale of down-and-out Noiret murdering wealthy businessman Ratib, and his relationships with gold digger Cottencon and her mother (Signoret). Just talk, flashbacks, and more talk, with insufficient action or character development. Signoret can't save this one. Based on a Georges Simenon novel. [PG] ▼

Let's Dance (1950) C-112m. ½ D: Norman Z. McLeod. Betty Hutton, Fred Astaire, Roland Young, Ruth Warrick, Shepperd Strudwick, Lucile Watson, Barton MacLane, Melville Cooper. Lesser-known Astaire vehicle is still fun, with war widow Hutton attempting to shield her young son from the clutches of his wealthy, stuffy great-grandmother. Astaire is the man who loves her, and his dancing (particularly in the "Piano Dance" number) is wonderful. Songs by Frank Loesser. ▼●●

Let's Do It Again (1953) C-95m.  D: Alexander Hall. Jane Wyman, Ray Milland, Aldo Ray, Leon Ames, Tom Helmore. Musical remake of THE AWFUL TRUTH with Milland in Cary Grant's role, Wyman in Irene Dunne's, and Ray in Ralph Bellamy's. Songs add to spy plot, but no classic like original '37 film.

Let's Do It Again (1975) C-112m.  D: Sidney Poitier. Sidney Poitier, Bill Cosby, Jimmie Walker, Calvin Lockhart, John Amos, Denise Nicholas, Lee Chamberlain. Hilarious follow-up to UPTOWN SATURDAY NIGHT; lodge brothers Poitier and Cosby hypnotize Walker into becoming great boxer, figuring they can clean up on bets. Yes, it's an old Bowery Boys plot, but still well done. Followed by A PIECE OF THE ACTION. [PG]▼

Let's Face It (1943) 76m.  D: Sidney Lanfield. Bob Hope, Betty Hutton. ZaSu Pitts, Phyllis Povah, Dave Willock, Eve Arden. Brassy comedy with loud Hutton competing with Hope for laughs in forced wartime comedy of soldiers hired as male companions.

Let's Get Harry (1986) C-107m. *¹/₂ D: Alan Smithee. Michael Schoeffling, Tom Wilson, Glen Frey, Gary Busey, Robert Duvall, Rick Rossovich, Ben Johnson, Matt Clark, Gregory Sierra, Elpidia Carrillo, Mark Harmon, Jere Burns. Inherently stupid, unbelievable action yarn about a soldier of fortune's attempt to rescue pipeline worker Harmon, who's been kidnapped (along with an ambassador) by an underground group of drug dealers in South America. Busey and Duvall give lively performances, but that's all one can recommend about this turkey. Director Stuart Rosenberg had his name removed from the credits. Barely received theatrical release. Video title: THE RESCUE. [R]▼●

Let's Get Lost (1989) 119m.  D: Bruce Weber. Chet Baker, jazz trumpeter and singer from the "cool" school of the 1950s, is the subject of photographer Weber's high-style, b&w documentary. It's a fascinating (and sometimes disquietingly personal) look at the charismatic musician once referred to as the James Dean of jazz, whose long involvement with drugs never seemed to deter him from making beautiful music. Overlong, but worthwhile.▼

Let's Go to Prison (2006) C-90m. BOMB D: Bob Odenkirk. Dax Shepard, Will Arnett, Chi McBride, David Koechner, Dylan Baker, Michael Shannon. Prisoner vows to get revenge on the judge who put him behind bars by framing his wealthy, spoiled son and introducing him to the horrors of penitentiary life. Quirky, charismatic performers are trapped in a humorless, poorly directed, generally deadening film. Even people who find "don't drop the soap in the shower" jokes amusing will probably be bored. Very loosely based on Jim Hogshire's book You Are Going to Prison. Also available in unrated version. [R]●

Let's Hope It's a Girl (1985-Italian) C-114m.  D: Mario Monicelli. Liv Ullmann, Philippe Noiret, Catherine Denève, Bernard Blier, Giuliana De Sio, Athina Cenci, Stefania Sandrelli. Complex, funny, seriocomic account of what happens when Count Noiret returns to his former wife (Ullmann) and family and attempts to sell part of their estate. The men all have a variety of faults, and the women can very well live without them. Blier is great as the elderly, hilariously senile uncle.

Lawson, Reff Sanchez, Nestor Paiva. Green's ham is just right for this outrageous tale of 12-year-old who tries to kill his uncle because his uncle is trying to kill him over a $5 million inheritance. Lots of hokey thrills involving sharks, tarantulas, and the like. Loosely based on Rohan O'Grady novel.

Let's Make It Legal (1951) 77m.  D: Richard Sale. Claudette Colbert, Macdonald Carey, Zachary Scott, Robert Wagner, Barbara Bates, Marilyn Monroe. Trifling comedy in which Colbert divorces Carey and is tempted to wed ex-beau Scott. Monroe is wasted as a bathing beauty.▼

Let's Make Love (1960) C-118m.  D: George Cukor. Marilyn Monroe, Yves Montand, Tony Randall, Frankie Vaughan, Wilfrid Hyde-White, David Burns. Billionaire Montand hears of show spoofing him, wants to stop it, then meets the show's star, Monroe. To charm her, he hires Bing Crosby to teach him to sing, Milton Berle to coach on comedy, Gene Kelly to make him dance. Bubbly cast, snappy musical numbers. CinemaScope.▼●

Let's Make Up (1954-British) C-94m.  D: Herbert Wilcox. Errol Flynn, Anna Neagle, David Farrar, Kathleen Harrison, Peter Graves. Froth about overimaginative Neagle trying to decide between suitors Flynn and Farrar. Sean Connery has a bit in his film debut. Original title: LILACS IN THE SPRING.▼

Let's Spend the Night Together (1982) C-94m.  D: Hal Ashby. Tired concert film, edited from three separate performances from the Rolling Stones' 1981 tour. Flirts with excitement only when lookers in appropriate garb help Mick Jagger perform "Honky Tonk Woman." This is at least the third Stones concert film, followed in 2008 by SHINE A LIGHT. [PG]▼●

Let's Talk About Men (1965-Italian) 93m.  D: Lina Wertmuller. Nino Manfredi, Luciana Paluzzi, Margaret Lee, Milena Vukotic, Patrizia DeClara, Alfredo Baranchini. Amusing episodic film (four stories tied to a fifth): Manfredi competently and comically plays five different men involved with different women and situations. Made right after Ettore Scola's LET'S TALK ABOUT WOMEN, this took 11 years to cross the ocean but was worth the wait.

Let's Talk About Sex (1998) C-82m. *¹/₂ D: Troy Beyer. Troy Beyer, Paget Brewster, Randi Ingerman, Joseph C. Phillips, Micheline Babich, Tina Nguyen. Let's not and say we did. Miami advice columnist enlists her two roomies to help make a documentary about what women really think about men and sex. Intriguing concept is poorly handled with lame attempts at shock humor and mawkish dramatic material. This film would lead you to believe that the peak of sexual freedom derives from all-night, frozen-yogurt-bingeing, teary-eyed confessionals. Directorial debut for actress Beyer, who also wrote the infantile B*A*P*S. [R] ▼●

Let's Talk About Women (1964-Italian-French) 108m. ½ D: Ettore Scola. Vittorio Gassman, Maria Fiore, Donatella Mauro, Giovanna Ralli, Antonella Lualdi, Slyva Koscina, Heidi Stroh, Rosanna Ghevardi, Walter Chiari, Eleonora Rossi-Drago, Jean Valerie. Nine-episode comedy with Gassman starring in each, and encountering a variety of women. Some segments better than others; one of the best has Gassman discovering that the prostitute he's hired is married to an old friend of his! Lina Wertmuller's LET'S TALK ABOUT MEN came a year later.

Letter, The (1940) 95m. ½ D: William Wyler. Bette Davis, Herbert Marshall, James Stephenson, Frieda Inescort, Gale Sondergaard. Lushly photographed Somerset Maugham drama set in Malaya, tells of murderess (Davis) who tries to cover up her deed by pleading self-defense. Davis quite appealing in her unsympathetic role. DVD offers an alternate ending. Previously filmed in 1929 (also with Herbert Marshall in cast); remade as THE UNFAITHFUL, then again for TV in 1982 with Lee Remick. ▼●●

Letter From an Unknown Woman (1948) 90m.  D: Max Ophuls. Joan Fontaine, Louis Jourdan, Mady Christians, Marcel Journet, Art Smith. Lush romantic flavor of direction and performances obscures clichés and improbabilities in story of Fontaine's lifelong infatuation with musician Jourdan. ▼●

Letters From Iwo Jima (2006) C-141m. ½ D: Clint Eastwood. Ken Watanabe, Kazunari Ninomiya, Tsuyoshi Ihara, Ryo Kase, Shido Nakamura, Hiroshi Watanabe, Takumi Bando, Nae (Yuuki), Mark Moses, Roxanne Hart, Ryan Carnes. Exceptional companion piece to FLAGS OF OUR FATHERS depicts the battle of Iwo Jima from the Japanese point of view: General Kuribayashi (Watanabe) is sent to the desolate island to shore up defenses against incoming American forces, knowing full well that few, if any, of his soldiers are expected to survive. Spare, almost pointilistic examination of human behavior in the shadows of war and death, with Watanabe a tower of quiet strength. Cinematographer Tom Stern's desaturated colors lend grave elegance to the historic events. Screenplay by Iris Yamashita; story by Yamashita and Paul Haggis, inspired by Kuribayashi's published letters. Eastwood's son Kyle cowrote the score. Coproduced by Eastwood and Steven Spielberg. Oscar winner for Sound Editing. Panavision. [R] ●

Letters From My Windmill (1954-French) 140m. ½ D: Marcel Pagnol. Henri Velbert, Daxely, Yvonne Gamy, Rellys, Robert Vattier, Roger Crouzet. A trio of delights from Pagnol: "The Three Low Masses," "The Elixir of Father Gaucher," "The Secret of Master Cornille." The second is best, with monk Rellys leading his monastery into liquor business. Pagnol scripted, and the English subtitles were penned by Preston Sturges! ▼

Letter to Brezhnev (1985-British) C-94m.  D: Chris Bernard. Peter Firth, Alfred Molina, Alexandra Pigg, Margi Clarke, Neil Cunningham, Ken Campbell, Angela Clarke, Tracy Lea. Bored, unemployed Pigg and zany girlfriend Margi Clarke meet Russian sailors Firth and Molina, who are on leave in dreary Liverpool. There's the potential for love, yet in a few hours they'll be far apart, perhaps forever. Charming, disarming fable about taking risks and dreaming dreams, whose many assets far outweigh its few defects. Very much a product of Liverpool. [R] ▼●

Letter to Three Wives, A (1949) 103m. * D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Jeanne Crain, Linda Darnell, Ann Sothern, Kirk Douglas, Paul Douglas, Jeffrey Lynn, Barbara Lawrence, Connie Gilchrist, Florence Bates, Thelma Ritter. Delicious Americana showing reactions of three women who receive a letter from town flirt who has run off with one of their husbands. Celeste Holm provides the voice of the letter's authoress. Mankiewicz won Oscars for his terrific script and direction. Based on a novel by John Klempner, adapted by Vera Caspary. Remade as a TVM in 1985. ▼●●

Let the Devil Wear Black (2000) C-89m. ½ D: Stacy Title. Jonathan Penner, Jacqueline Bisset, Mary-Louise Parker, Jamey Sheridan, Philip Baker Hall, Jonathan Banks, Maury Chaykin, Chris Sarandon. Son of a deceased millionaire returns to L.A. and comes to believe his shady uncle, now linked to his mother, murdered his father. Urban thriller based on Hamlet is alternately insightful and silly (the Hamlet character meets his father's ghost in a toilet). Penner coscripted with his wife, Title. Worth a look. ▼●

certs, highlighted by terrific finale with Berry and Diddley dueting on “Johnny B. Goode.” Imaginative multi-image wide-screen effects are letterboxed on most TV prints. Multi-Screen. [PG]

Let the Right One In (2008-Swedish) C-115m. ½ D: Tomas Alfredson. Kåre Hedebrant, Lina Leandersson, Per Ragnar, Henrik Dahl, Karin Bergquist, Peter Carlberg, Ika Nord, Mikael Rahm, Karl-Robert Lindgren, Patrik Rydmark. Unique gothic horror tale set against the snowy backdrop of a suburban town outside of Stockholm. There, a lonely 12-year-old boy who’s bullied at school finds an unlikely soul mate in a strange girl who lives in the apartment next door—and turns out to be a vampire. Unusual melding of horror and adolescent angst in an utterly ordinary setting; adapted by John Ajvide Lindqvist from his novel. Artfully staged and photographed in wide-screen, this doles out its moments of shock in leisurely fashion—which magnifies their impact when they occur. Super 35. [R]●

Let Us Live (1939) 68m. ½ D: John Brahm. Maureen O’Sullivan, Henry Fonda, Ralph Bellamy, Alan Baxter, Stanley Ridges. Weepy melodrama about innocent man Fonda convicted of murder and his girl O’Sullivan trying to clear him.

Leviathan (1989) C-98m. *½ D: George Pan Cosmatos. Peter Weller, Richard Crenna, Amanda Pays, Daniel Stern, Ernie Hudson, Michael Carmine, Lisa Eilbacher, Hector Elizondo, Meg Foster. Yet one more dreadful ALIEN clone, this one set underwater (like several other 1989 releases), with a team of men and women imperiled as they toil in the depths of the Atlantic. Skip it. J-D-C Scope. [R]▼●●

Levity (2003) C-100m.  D: Ed Solomon. Billy Bob Thornton, Morgan Freeman, Holly Hunter, Kirsten Dunst, Dorian Harewood, Geoffrey Wigdor, Luke Robertson. Released from prison after 23 years, a shell-shocked Thornton seeks out the sister of the young man he murdered and is taken in by a storefront preacher/neighborhood activist (Freeman). Thoughtful, slow-paced rumination on guilt, shame, responsibility, and redemption doesn’t give its characters easy solutions to their dilemmas. Directing debut for screenwriter Solomon, better known for cowriting the BILL & TED movies and MEN IN BLACK. Freeman also executive-produced. [R]▼●

Le Voyage en Douce (1980-French) C-98m. ½ D: Michel Deville. Dominique Sanda, Geraldine Chaplin. What do women talk about when men aren’t around? Friends Sanda and Chaplin travel to the South of France; they gab, flirt, tell each other lies. Sometimes witty, but ultimately disappointing; director Deville asked 15 French writers of both sexes to provide him with sexual anecdotes, which he worked into screenplay.

Aka VOYAGE EN DOUCE. ▼●

Liam (2001-British-German) C-90m. ½ D: Stephen Frears. Ian Hart, Claire Hackett, Anthony Borrows, Anne Reid, David Hart, Megan Burns, Russell Dixon, Julia Deakin, Bernadette Shortt. Vivid evocation of 1930s working-class England, seen through the eyes of a young boy (Borrows) who watches his father lose his job, his mother try to maintain her pride, his sister take a job, and his priest and schoolteacher warn him about the sins that will have him burning in hell forever. Well done in every respect, with a sharp-eyed script by Jimmy McGovern . . . but damaged by an unsatisfying conclusion. [R]▼●

Lianna (1983) C-110m.  D: John Sayles. Linda Griffiths, Jane Hallaren, Jon DeVries, Jo Henderson, Jessica Wight MacDonald, Jesse Solomon, Maggie Renzi. Young woman, trapped in an unhappy marriage, finds herself attracted to another woman, and tries to come to grips with being lesbian. Writer-director Sayles hasn’t a false note or an unsure line of dialogue, though the film goes on a bit too long. As usual, he’s written himself a good role, as a film professor; look for Chris Elliott as a lighting technician. [R]▼●

Liar Liar (1997) C-87m. ½ D: Tom Shadyac. Jim Carrey, Maura Tierney, Jennifer Tilly, Swoosie Kurtz, Amanda Donohoe, Jason Bernard, Mitchell Ryan, Anne Haney, Justin Cooper, Cary Elwes, Randall “Tex” Cobb, Cheri Oteri. Unscrupulous lawyer with a penchant for lying gets his just deserts when his neglected son makes a birthday wish that his dad has to tell the truth for 24 hours—and it comes true. Carrey vehicle delivers the laughs for his fans, but once the premise unfolds it’s pretty formulaic. Bob Hope lived through a similar 24 hours in NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH (1941). [PG-13]▼●●

Liar’s Moon (1981) C-105m. ½ D: David Fisher. Matt Dillon, Cindy Fisher, Christopher Connelly, Hoyt Axton, Maggie Blye, Susan Tyrrell, Yvonne DeCarlo, Broderick Crawford, Mark Atkins, Molly McCarthy. Hokey and obvious but still engaging soaper of poor Dillon and wealthy Fisher falling in love, with a “terrible secret” between them. Director Fisher also wrote the screenplay. Filmed with two different endings; both were released. [PG]▼●

Libel (1959) 100m. ½ D: Anthony Asquith. Dirk Bogarde, Olivia de Havilland, Robert Morley, Paul Massie, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Anthony Dawson, Richard Wattis, Millicent Martin. Engrossing if uninspired filming of Edward Woolf’s vintage play about a baronet (and former prisoner of war) who is challenged in court to prove his identity—which turns out to be unusually difficult. Metroscope.

Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy, Walter Connolly, Charley Grapewin, Cora Witherspoon. Wonderful comedy with the four stars working at full steam: conniving newspaper editor Tracy uses his fiancée (Harlow) and ex-employee (Powell) to get the goods on hot-headed heiress Loy—but everything goes wrong. Sit back and enjoy. Screenplay by Maurine Watkins, Howard Emmett Rogers, and George Oppenheimer. Remade as EASY TO WED. ▼●●

Liberation of L. B. Jones, The (1970) C-102m. ½ D: William Wyler. Lee J. Cobb, Anthony Zerbe, Roscoe Lee Brown, Lola Falana, Lee Majors, Barbara Hershey, Yaphet Kotto, Chill Wills. Wyler's final film is militant tale of racism in the South. Some good performances, especially Falana's, but slow pace and many subplots hurt. [R] ▼

Libertine, The (2005-U.S.-British) C-114m. ½ D: Laurence Dunmore. Johnny Depp, Samantha Morton, John Malkovich, Rosamund Pike, Tom Hollander, Johnny Vegas, Kelly Reilly, Jack Davenport, Richard Coyle, Francesca Annis, Rupert Friend, Claire Higgins. The Earl of Rochester (Depp) promises, "You will not like me." Moreover, this witty social gadfly doesn't like himself, as he proves through his creatively and sexually self-destructive behavior. He squanders the goodwill bestowed upon him by King Charles II (Malkovich) and tests our patience in this often leaden, drawn-out drama . . . but there's still something magnetic about the character as written by Stephen Jeffreys (from his play) and portrayed by Depp. Super 35. [R] ▮

Liberty Heights (1999) C-127m. ½ D: Barry Levinson. Adrien Brody, Ben Foster, Orlando Jones, Bebe Neuwirth, Joe Mantegna, Rebekah Johnson, David Krumholtz, Richard Kline, Vincent Guastaferrro, Justin Chambers, Carolyn Murphy, James Pickens, Jr., Shane West. A family living in a Jewish suburb in 1954 Baltimore must deal with changing times and values represented by "the other kind," i.e., gentiles and African Americans. Director-writer Levinson's fourth Baltimore tale (following DINER, TIN MEN and AVALON) is well mounted and has many insightful and humorous moments, but is also surprisingly bland, with rather pedestrian plot turns and revelations of character and theme. [R] ▼●●

Liberty Kid (2008) C-92m.  D: Ilya Chaiken. Al Thompson, Kareem Savion, Johnny Rivera, Fly Williams, Rayniel Rufino, Anny Mariano, Raquel Jordan, Rosa Ramos. Frank, flavorful slice-of-life about two young New Yorkers, blue-collar workers on Liberty Island (home of the Statue of Liberty), and their plight upon losing their jobs after 9/11. Rambles a bit but offers a sobering look at the struggles of the N.Y.C. underclasses. ▮

Licence to Kill (1989-British) C-133m.

 D: John Glen. Timothy Dalton, Carey Lowell, Robert Davi, Talisa Soto, Anthony Zerbe, Frank McRae, Everett McGill, Wayne Newton, Benicio Del Toro, Desmond Llewellyn, David Hedison, Priscilla Barnes. Tough, mean James Bond adventure, with Dalton pursuing a drug kingpin to avenge an attack on his best friend. Dazzling stunts, high adventure, and a sexy companion for Bond (Lowell) make this one of the best of the series since Sean Connery's departure (yet it still lacks that old-time panache). Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Licensed to Kill SEE: Second Best Secret Agent in the Whole Wide World

License to Drive (1988) C-88m.  D: Greg Beeman. Corey Haim, Corey Feldman, Carol Kane, Richard Masur, Heather Graham, Michael Manasseri, Harvey Miller, Nina Siemaszko, Grant Goodeve, Parley Baer. Noisy teen comedy about a 16-year-old who's just flunked his driver's test, and sneaks his grandfather's prized car out for a "dream" date that turns into a nightmare. Appealing performance by Haim, and a terrific one by the underrated Masur. Uneven comedy; low point: a long, tasteless sequence involving a drunk driver. [PG-13] ▼●●

L.I.E. (2001) C-100m. ½ D: Michael Cuesta. Brian Cox, Paul Franklin Dano, Billy Kay, Bruce Altman, James Costa, Tony Donnelly. Challenging, perceptive mood piece about an upper-middle-class 15-year-old boy who lives near the Long Island Expressway: his mother recently died, his sleazy father is mostly absent, and he has become a lost soul. This would seem to make him easy prey for a local Fagin-like pedester named Big John . . . but things aren't that simple. Intelligent, believable drama whose characters reveal themselves layer by layer. Great performances by Cox and young Dano. Written by the director, Gerald Cuesta, and Stephen M. Ryder. [NC-17] ▼ ▮

small town, only to get involved in a forty-year-old sex scandal, his own adultery, and the demolition of the town's most distinctive building by his lover's husband. So-so material with a truly insane title; directed (overdirected?) with some style by the maker of STORMY MONDAY. Novak, who's wasted, spends most of the film bedridden in a gloomy hospital. Also available in unrated version. [R] ▼●●

Lies & Alibis (2006) C-90m. ½ D: Kurt Mattila, Matt Checkowski. Steve Coogan, Rebecca Romijn, Selma Blair, James Brolin, Sam Elliott, Jaime King, John Leguizamo, James Marsden, Debi Mazar, Henry Rollins, Deborah Kara Unger, Sharon Lawrence, Jerry O'Connell, Allan Rich, Jon Polito. Coogan plays an entrepreneur who runs a service that provides alibis for cheating spouses, but gets in over his head when a longtime client's randy son accidentally kills a woman. Not great by any means but very watchable, with a clever denouement in which all its story threads and characters intersect. It's also unusual to find a modest film in which virtually every part, no matter how small, is filled by a familiar actor! Completed in 2004. Super 35. [R] ●

Lies My Father Told Me (1975-Canadian) C-102m. ½ D: Jan Kadar. Yossi Yadin, Len Birman, Marilyn Lightstone, Jeffrey Lynas. Tender film about young boy in Canadian-Jewish ghetto of the 1920s who idolizes his grandfather, a simple, old-fashioned junk collector. Author Ted Allan plays Mr. Baumgarten. Simple and moving drama. [PG] ▼

Lieutenant Wore Skirts, The (1956) C-99m. ½ D: Frank Tashlin. Tom Ewell, Sheree North, Rita Moreno, Rick Jason, Les Tremayne, Jean Willes. Ewell makes nonsense acceptable as he chases after wife who reenlisted in service thinking he'd been drafted again. CinemaScope.

Life (1999) C-108m. ½ D: Ted Demme. Eddie Murphy, Martin Lawrence, Obba Babatundé, Ned Beatty, Bernie Mac, Miguel A. Núñez, Jr., Clarence Williams III, Bokeem Woodbine, Nick Cassavetes, Anthony Anderson, Barry Shabaka Henley, Poppy Montgomery, Noah Emmerich, Rick James, R. Lee Ermey, Lisa Nicole Carson. A slick Harlem pickpocket and a none-too-bright patsy meet up in the early 1930s and are railroaded into a Mississippi prison, where they spend the next 55 years. Broad comedy is juxtaposed against unexpectedly poignant and serious moments in this episodic film; not always on target, but entertaining just the same. Murphy and Lawrence are very funny, and age believably in Rick Baker's makeup. [R] ▼●●

Life and Death of Colonel Blimp, The (1943-British) C-163m. * D: Michael

Powell, Emeric Pressburger. Roger Livesey, Deborah Kerr, Anton Walbrook, John Laurie, James McKechnie, Neville Mapp. Superb, sentimental story of a staunch British soldier, and incidents that dovetail in his long, eventful life. Opens in WW2 and flashes back as far as the Boer War. Kerr charming as three different women in the Colonel's life. (Title character bears no relation to famous David Low caricature buffoon on whom he's supposedly based.) Heavily cut for various reissues; often shown in b&w. ▼●●

Life and Nothing But (1990-French) C-135m.  D: Bertrand Tavernier. Philippe Noiret, Sabine Azema, Pascale Vignal, Maurice Barrier, François Perrot. Two years after the WW1 armistice, French Army officer Noiret is still tabulating French casualties and identifying bodies, a job which brings him into contact with a wealthy and repressed young woman who's been searching obsessively for her husband. Subject matter is more compelling than the script, which loses its edge; still worthwhile. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Life and Times of Grizzly Adams, The (1976) C-93m. *½ D: Richard Friedenberg. Dan Haggerty, Don Shanks, Lisa Jones, Marjorie Harper, Bozo. Poorly made, clumsily scripted family/wilderness saga, about fur trapper innocently pursued for crime, who finds peace in the mountains where he befriends a massive bear. Followed by THE MARK OF THE BEAR in 1991, GRIZZLY MOUNTAIN in 1998, the 1982 made-for-TV movie THE CAPTURE OF GRIZZLY ADAMS and a TV series. [G] ▼

Life and Times of Hank Greenberg, The (2000) C/B&W-95m. ½ D: Aviva Kempner. Heartfelt but flawed documentary about Hall of Fame baseball player Greenberg. Spotlights his humanity and his travails as a Jew playing in the major leagues during the 1930s and '40s—but leaves the erroneous impression that he was the only Jewish ballplayer of this period. Among the interviewees: Alan Dershowitz, Walter Matthau, and several of Greenberg's ballplayer contemporaries. ▼●

blum, Michael Gambon, Bud Cort, Seu Jorge, Seymour Cassel. A Jacques Cousteau-like figure who's seen better days tries to regain his professional footing when into his life comes a young man who may or may not be his son from a 30-year-old relationship. Droll, quirky comedy expands on ideas and themes from Anderson's other films, but it's his oddest, most elusive and self-indulgent work to date. Devotees will enjoy Murray's deadpan performance, the vocal-and-guitar renditions of David Bowie songs by Jorge (from CITY OF GOD), and Henry Selick's animated sea creatures; others may flounder. Panavision. [R]▼

Life as a House (2001) C-124m. ½ D: Irwin Winkler. Kevin Kline, Kristin Scott Thomas, Hayden Christensen, Jena Malone, Mary Steenburgen, Mike Weinberg, Jamey Sheridan, Scott Bakula, Sam Robards. Talk about a midlife crisis: Kline is divorced, his teenage son won't speak to him (or anyone else in the family), he's just been fired, and he learns he's dying of cancer. So he decides to build his dream house and enlist his son's help, in order to bond with the boy. Uneven film benefits from Kline's commanding performance; manages to push some emotional buttons, but goes for the obvious and wraps things up too neatly. Inspired by Akira Kurosawa's IKIRU. Panavision. [R]▼

Life at the Top (1965-British) 117m. ½ D: Ted Kotcheff. Laurence Harvey, Jean Simmons, Honor Blackman, Michael Craig, Donald Wolfitt, Robert Morley, Margaret Johnston, Nigel Davenport. Follow-up to ROOM AT THE TOP picks up the account a decade later; film lacks flavor or life—best moments are flashbacks to Signoret-Harvey romance.▼

Life Before Her Eyes, The (2008) C-90m. ½ D: Vadim Perelman. Uma Thurman, Evan Rachel Wood, Eva Amurri, Gabrielle Brennan, Brett Cullen, Oscar Isaac, Jack Gilpin, Maggie Lacey. Two girlfriends (Wood and Amurri) share their hopes and dreams—until an outbreak of violence at their high school changes the course of their lives in an instant. This is paralleled by scenes from Wood's later life as a wife and mother (Thurman) who is tormented by the upcoming anniversary of that school incident. Compelling but elliptical drama, based on Laura Kasischke's novel, leads to an unsatisfying conclusion that poses more questions than it answers . . . yet it can't completely negate the interesting drama that has unfolded. Panavision. [R]▼

duced and adapted by Nunnally Johnson from Emyln Williams' play.

Life Begins for Andy Hardy (1941) 100m.  D: George B. Seitz. Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Judy Garland, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford, Sara Haden, Patricia Dane, Ray McDonald. Andy decides to get a job in the Big Apple before starting college and is confronted with the harsh realities of life and love. Unusually adult and cynical addition to the series. Garland's third and final appearance; her songs were cut(!) from the finished film.▼●

Lifeboat (1944) 96m. ½ D: Alfred Hitchcock. Tallulah Bankhead, William Bendix, Walter Slezak, Mary Anderson, John Hodiak, Henry Hull, Heather Angel, Hume Cronyn, Canada Lee. Penetrating revelations about shipwreck survivors adrift in lonely lifeboat during WW2. Bankhead remarkable as spoiled journalist, Slezak fine as Nazi taken aboard. Only Hitchcock would take on the challenge of such a film—and succeed. Jo Swerling adapted John Steinbeck's original story. Remade as a 1993 TVM, LIFEPOD.▼●●

Lifeforce (1985) C-101m.  D: Tobe Hooper. Steve Railsback, Peter Firth, Frank Finlay, Mathilda May, Patrick Stewart, Michael Gothard. Completely crazy science-fiction yarn starts as outer space saga, then becomes a vampire movie, then turns into an end-of-the-world story! Ridiculous, to say the least, but so bizarre, it's fascinating: people disintegrate, London is overrun by zombies, and controlling it all is a beautiful nude space vampiress! After his 15-year high school reunion, Elliott can't decide whether to chuck the title job to become a salesman. Slight drama resembles made-for-TV movie, but attractive cast and locations make it pleasant enough. [PG]▼

Life Is a Bed of Roses (1983-French) C-111m. ½ D: Alain Resnais. Vittorio Gassman, Ruggero Raimondi, Geraldine Chaplin, Fanny Ardant, Pierre Arditi, Sabine Azema. Enchanting, magical, original fable paralleling the stories of wealthy Raimondi building a "temple of happiness" circa WW1, and a conference on alternative education at that site in the present day. Resnais and screenwriter Jean Gruault beautifully illustrate that there are no simple solutions to problems, that those who impose their ideas of perfection on the world are just as dangerous as those who cause disorder. [PG]▼

Life Is a Long Quiet River (1987-French) C-95m.  D: Etienne Chatiliez. Benoit

Magimel, Valerie Lalande, Tara Romer, Jerome Floch, Sylvie Cubertafon, Emmanuel Cendrier. A mixup of babies is revealed twelve years after the fact, and two very different families must learn to deal with the life-changing events it causes. Delightful French comedy that examines the differences between the lower class and the bourgeois. Wry, winning directorial debut for Chatiliez. ▼

Life Is Beautiful (1997-Italian) C-116m. ½ D: Roberto Benigni. Roberto Benigni, Nicoletta Braschi, Giorgio Cantarini, Giustino Durano, Sergio Bustric, Marisa Paredes, Horst Buchholz. Extraordinary film by comedy star Benigni about an irrepressible spirit who refuses to ever give in to adversity, even when he is taken to a concentration camp with his wife (Benigni's real-life wife, Braschi) and young son. He determines that the boy will be shielded from the horrors around them—and somehow finds a way to do it. A unique and beguiling fable that celebrates the human spirit. Benigni cowrote with Vincenzo Cerami. Oscar winner for Best Foreign Language Film. Best Actor, Best Score (Nicola Piovani). Original title: LA VITA È BELLA. [PG-13] ▼●●

Life Is Cheap ... but Toilet Paper Is Expensive (1990) C-89m.  D: Wayne Wang. Spenser Nakasako, Lo Wai, Cora Miao, Victor Wong, Cheng Kwan Min. Courier is sent to Hong Kong with metal briefcase handcuffed to his wrist; upon arrival, he's unable to deliver his mysterious attaché, so he decides to take in the colorful sights of the city instead. Extremely bizarre, graphic, and dense little film, of interest mainly to fans of filmmaker Wang. Some bloody scenes threatened to earn this an X rating, so the film was released unrated and visually intact.

Life Is Sweet (1991-British) C-102m.  D: Mike Leigh. Alison Steadman, Jim Broadbent, Claire Skinner, Jane Horrocks, Stephen Rea, Timothy Spall, David Thewlis. Another slice of working-class life from Leigh, focusing on an endearing couple and their iconoclastic twin daughters—one of whom (Horrocks) is waist-deep in self-loathing. More a series of vignettes than a conventional story, and filled with deliciously offbeat humor; not for every taste, but a bittersweet treat for fans of Leigh's work. Leading lady Steadman was then the director's wife. ▼●●

Life Less Ordinary, A (1997-British) C-103m. ½ D: Danny Boyle. Ewan McGregor, Cameron Diaz, Holly Hunter, Delroy Lindo, Ian Holm, Ian McNeice, Stanley Tucci, Dan Hedaya, Tony Shalhoub, Maury Chaykin, Judith Ivey. Black comedy about a janitor who kidnaps his ex-boss's daughter, a spoiled heiress who finds life a bore. Meanwhile, two emissaries from Heaven (Hunter and Lindo) have to find a way to make these two fated souls fall in love. Fans of the two likable stars will perhaps be more forgiving than others of this oddball, sporadically funny outing from the SHALLOW GRAVE/TRAINSPOTTING team. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Life of Brian (1979-British) C-93m.  D: Terry Jones. Graham Chapman, John Cleese, Terry Gilliam, Eric Idle, Terry Jones, Michael Palin. This Monty Python religious parable will probably offend every denomination equally, but it shouldn't. Story of a man whose life parallels Christ is the funniest and most sustained feature from Britain's bad boys. [R] ▼●●

Life of Oharu, The (1952-Japanese) 146m. ½ D: Kenji Mizoguchi. Kinuyo Tanaka, Toshiro Mifune, Hisako Yamane, Yuriko Hamada, Ichiro Sugai. Clichéd account of beautiful Tanaka, banished for loving a samurai (Mifune, in a small role) below her station, ending up an aged prostitute. Also shown at 118m. and known as DIARY OF OHARU. ▼●●

Life on a String (1991-Chinese-British-German) C-110m.  D: Chen Kaige. Liu Zhong Yuan, Huang Lei, Xu Qing, Ma Ling,

Zhang Zhengguan. Lyrical, beautifully filmed tale of a blind boy who's told by his master that his sight will be restored if he devotes his life to music; he becomes a saintly old man (still without sight) who travels from village to village with his young disciple singing songs, which he finds spiritually nurturing. Thoughtful film crammed with poetic imagery, soundtrack of wonderful folk songs. ▼●

Life or Something Like It (2002) C-103m.

 D: Stephen Herek. Angelina Jolie, Edward Burns, Tony Shalhoub, Christian Kane, James Gammon, Melissa Errico, Stockard Channing, Lisa Thornhill, Gregory Itzin. Career-driven Seattle TV reporter is told by a street prophet that she has one week to live. A down-to-earth cameraman tries to show her what life is really about, even as a tempting job offer looms in N.Y.C. Romantic comedy gives Jolie a good opportunity to show her lighter side, with Burns a likable leading man, but logic goes out the window as the story builds to a pat and improbable resolution. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Life Stinks (1991) C-95m.  D: Mel Brooks. Mel Brooks, Lesley Ann Warren, Jeffrey Tambor, Stuart Pankin, Howard Morris, Rudy De Luca, Teddy Wilson, Michael Ensign, Matthew Faison, Billy Barty, Carmine Caridi. Money-hungry developer Brooks takes a bet that he won't survive on the streets of L.A. for one month without a cent. Usual Brooks smorgasbord of gags, but the success rate is pretty low. Attempts to make meaningful statement about homelessness are thin at best, tasteless at worst. Brooks also cowrote the screenplay. [PG-13] ▼●●

Life With Father (1947) C-118m. * D: Michael Curtiz. William Powell, Irene Dunne, Elizabeth Taylor, Edmund Gwenn, ZaSu Pitts, Jimmy Lydon, Martin Milner. Rich adaptation of long-running Broadway play (by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse) based on Clarence Day's story of growing up in turn-of-the-century N.Y.C. with his loving but eccentric father. Utterly delightful, and a handsome production as well. Screenplay by Donald Ogden Stewart. ▼●●

Life With Mikey (1993) C-91m.  D: James Lapine. Michael J. Fox, Christina Vidal, Nathan Lane, Cyndi Lauper, David Krumholtz, David Huddleston, Victor Garber, Tony Hendra. Former child TV star Fox lackadaisically runs a Manhattan talent agency for kids with his more dedicated brother. Then he tries to turn 10-year-old pickpocket Vidal into a star of cookie commercials and finds himself fired up in the process. Funny film, with serious overtones, is a perfect vehicle for Fox and appealing newcomer Vidal. Audition scenes are particularly good. Ruben Blades appears unbilled as Vidal's father. [PG] ▼●●

Lift, The (1983-Dutch) C-98m. ½ D: Dick Maas. Huub Stapel, Willeke Van Ammelrooy, Josine Van Dalsum, Pret Romer, Gerard

Thoolen, Hans Veerman. Sleek horror thriller set in a new highrise, where the elevators are involved in a suspicious number of accidents. Maas is a better director than writer; smoothly made, suspenseful, and witty, but talky, with no satisfactory explanation for the bizarre events. Remade by the director in 2001 as THE SHAFT. [R] ▼●

Light at the Edge of the World, The (1971-Spanish-Liechtensteinian) C-119m.

*½ D: Kevin Billington. Kirk Douglas, Yul Brynner, Samantha Eggar, Jean-Claude Duout, Fernando Rey. Amidst their fight for possession of an island, lighthouse keeper Douglas and sea pirate Brynner battle it out for affections of shipwreck victim Eggar. Jules Verne tale has some excitement, but is more often unintentionally funny. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Lighthorsemen, The (1987-Australian)

C-111m. ½ D: Simon Wincer. Jon Blake, Peter Phelps, Nick Wateres, Tony Bonner, Bill Kerr, John Walton, Tim McKenzie, Sigrid Thornton, Anthony Andrews. Saga of the Australian Light Horse Brigade, and their involvement in a daunting desert campaign during WW1. Sweeping widescreen adventure, stunningly filmed, but marred by simplistic characterizations, and overlength (though trimmed for U.S. release). Climactic charge on Beersheba is genuinely exciting. Original Australian running time: 128m. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Light in the Forest, The (1958) C-93m.

 D: Herschel Daugherty. James MacArthur, Carol Lynley, Fess Parker, Wendell Corey, Joanne Dru, Jessica Tandy, Joseph Calleia, John McIntire. Absorbing Disney for young people, from Conrad Richter's story of a white boy, raised by Indians, who has difficulty readjusting to life with his real parents. Lynley's film debut. ▼●

Light in the Jungle (1990) C-89m.  D:

Gray Hofmeyer. Malcolm McDowell, Susan Strasberg, Andrew Davis, John Carson, Helen Jessop, Henry Cele, Patrick Shai. Languid story of Nobel prize winner Albert Schweitzer's years as a doctor in Africa, where he battles both the superstitions of the natives and the interference of his European benefactors. Inspired visuals, but choppy storytelling hampers this potentially interesting bio. [PG] ▼

Light in the Piazza (1962) C-101m. ½

D: Guy Green. Olivia de Havilland, Rossano Brazzi, Yvette Mimieux, George Hamilton, Barry Sullivan. Splendid soap about mother who's anxious to marry off retarded daughter but isn't sure she's being fair to suitor. Beautifully filmed on location in Italy. Screenplay by Julius Epstein, from Elizabeth Spencer's novel. Later a Broadway musical. CinemaScope.

Light It Up (1999) C-99m. ½ D: Craig Bolotin. Usher Raymond, Forest Whitaker, Marcello Robison, Rosario Dawson, Robert

Ri'chard, Judd Nelson, Fredro Starr, Sara Gilbert, Glynn Turman, Vanessa L. Williams. Well-intentioned but preachy drama about a group of N.Y.C. students who occupy their high school after their favorite teacher is unfairly suspended and a police officer is accidentally shot. Attempts to deal with a number of serious issues, but results are forced and melodramatic. Written by the director. [R]▼

½ D: Antoine Fuqua. Spirited Blues-tribute concert film, staged in 2003 at Radio City Music Hall, opens with an onstage intro by Martin Scorsese (who also coexecutive produced). Then it rips up the joint. What little backstage material there is proves compelling, but director Fuqua wisely lets the performers dominate a roughly chronological history featuring both veteran and contemporary performers. For a blues movie, smiley-face moments abound: Natalie Cole surprises with a super-charged "St. Louis Blues," while veterans B. B. King and Solomon Burke prove they can still belt, even though they're sitting down. [PG-13]●

 D: Simon Wincer. Paul Hogan, Cuba Gooding, Jr., Beverly D'Angelo, Kamala Gausson, Pat Hingle, Richard Riehle, Frank McRae, Roger Daltrey, L. Q. Jones, Max Cullen. Hogan attempts to repeat his "CROCODILE" DUNDEE success with this amiable but obvious, undistinguished Western/comedy. He's the whole show in his role as two-bit desperado Lightning Jack Kane, but all his charm can't save it. Gooding is his mute sidekick. Hogan also scripted and coproduced. [PG-13]▼●●

Lightning Swords of Death (1974-Japanese) C-83m.  D: Kenji Misumi.

Tomisaburo Wakayama, Masahiro Tomikawa, Goh Kato. Discredited samurai roams medieval Japan pushing his young son ahead of him in baby cart in this edited entry from Sword of Vengeance series. Unending action and beautifully staged fights, with climactic battle rivaling finale of THE WILD BUNCH. Very bloody, though; followed by SHOGUN ASSASSIN. Inexplicably available on DVD as SHOGUN ASSASSIN II. Shawscope. [R]●

Lightning, the White Stallion (1986)

Light of Day (1987) C-107m.  D: Paul

Schrader. Michael J. Fox, Gena Rowlands, Joan Jett, Michael McKean, Thomas G. Waites, Cherry Jones, Michael Dolan, Jason Miller, Michael Rooker. Family angst movie masquerading as a rock 'n' roll tale. Jett and Fox are sister and brother who perform together in a local Cleveland band that starts to gain some recognition, just as personal problems threaten to tear the family apart. Rowlands, in a gratuitous subplot, plays their dying mother. Real-life rock star Jett steals the movie with her compelling performance, but the film degenerates as it goes along. Occasional sparks can't save Schrader's muddled script. [PG-13]▼●

Paul Schrader. Willem Dafoe, Susan Sarandon, Dana Delany, David Clennon, Mary Beth Hurt, Victor Garber, Jane Adams, Paul Jabara, Sam Rockwell, David Spade. Quintessential Schrader Lonely Guy film, with Dafoe an aging sadsack who wants more out of life than his dead-end job taxing cocaine to upscale users in N.Y. Well performed by all, and with surprising dashes of loopy humor—though leading to an inevitable bloodbath given the standard blueprint for most Schrader movies. Quite the image-altering showcase for Delany. [R]▼●●

Light Years (1988-French) C-71m.  D:

Rene Laloux. Voices of Glenn Close, Christopher Plummer, Jennifer Grey, John Shea, David Johansen, Terrence Mann, Penn and Teller. Pretentious animated sci-fi fantasy, about a prince who time-travels into the future; he's surrounded by characters named Ambisextra, Metamorphosis, Chief of the Deformed, and The Collective Voice (so you know this wasn't made with young children in mind). The animation is nothing special, and the talky script is by none other than Isaac Asimov. [PG]▼●

Light Years Away (1981-French-Swiss)

C-105m.  D: Alain Tanner. Trevor Howard, Mick Ford, Bernice Stegers, Henri Vorlogoux. Irritable old Howard, who resides in a deserted, dilapidated gas station, becomes the mentor of drifter Ford. Thoughtful yarn is well acted by its two leads. Filmed in Ireland.

Like a Turtle on Its Back (1978-French)

C-110m. ½ D: Luc Beraud. Jean-Francois

Stevenin, Bernadette Lafont, Virginie Thevenet, Veronique Silver, Claude Miller. Uneven yet absorbing tale of blocked writer Stevenin's efforts to create, offering a hint of the real struggle a writer must make to pound out meaningful sentences on his typewriter.

Like Father, Like Son (1987) C-98m. BOMB D: Rod Daniel. Dudley Moore, Kirk Cameron, Margaret Colin, Catherine Hicks, Patrick O'Neal, Sean Astin. Heart surgeon accidentally sprinkles an ancient Indian potion into his Bloody Mary and presto!—he and his teenage son have somehow switched identities. Moore's mugging talents get a major workout in this Hall of Fame embarrassment, first of four 1987/1988 comedies to utilize an adult-teen switcheroo theme. [PG-13] ▼●●

Like Mike (2002) C-99m.  D: John Schultz. Lil' Bow Wow, Morris Chestnut, Jonathan Lipnicki, Robert Forster, Crispin Glover, Eugene Levy, Brenda Song, Jesse Plemons, Anne Meara. Cute film for kids about an orphaned boy who acquires sneakers that may have belonged to Michael Jordan and turns into a basketball-playing phenomenon . . . but what he really wants is a father. Engaging, well cast, and family friendly, with a notable absence of crude humor, bad language, and violence. Film debut for hip-hop recording sensation Lil' Bow Wow. Many basketball stars appear as themselves. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [PG] ▼●

Like Water for Chocolate (1992-Mexican) C-113m.  D: Alfonso Arau. Lumi Cavazos, Marco Leonardi, Regina Torne, Mario Ivan Martinez, Ada Carrasco. Striking and sensual film (from a novel by Laura Esquivel, the director's then-wife), set in the early part of the 20th century: a young woman's life is shaped first by her stern and unyielding mother, and more important, by the overwhelming power of cooking. Sumptuous fable—not without humor—with a good cast and a top-notch performance from lead actress Cavazos. Piquant, sometimes mystical, and enjoyably unpredictable. Original running time was 144m. ▼●●

Lil' Abner (1940) 78m. *½ D: Albert S. Rogell. Granville Owen, Martha O'Driscoll, Mona Ray, Johnnie Morris, Buster Keaton, Kay Sutton. Actors in grotesque makeup bring Al Capp's Dogpatch comic strip characters to life, but despite the presence of many silent comedy veterans (Keaton, Edgar Kennedy, Chester Conklin, Billy Bevan, Al St. John, to name a few) there's nary a laugh in sight. Later musical is much better. ▼●

ert Strauss. Lively Gene DePaul—Johnny Mercer musical based on Broadway version of Al Capp's comic strip; loud and brassy, with corny comedy, some good songs. Stubby Kaye is fine as Marryin' Sam; other Dogpatch characters vividly enacted. Look sharp for young Valerie Harper and Beth Howland among the chorus girls. VistaVision. ▼●

Lilacs in the Spring SEE: Let's Make Up Lila Says (2005-French-Italian-British) C-90m. ½ D: Ziad Doueiri. Vahina Gocante, Mohammed Khouas, Karim Ben Haddou, Lotfi Chakri, Hamid Dkhissi, Carmen Lebbos, Edmonde Franchi. A Marseille teenager on the brink of manhood thinks about becoming a writer, but he's broke, ghettoized, and pressured by his peers to remain a loser . . . until he meets a blonde bombshell who sparks his literary fuse, and then some. Faintly surreal saga of contemporary French-Arabian relations stays lightweight and nymphet-fixated until its inevitable bittersweet ending. Written by the director. [R] ●

Lilies of the Field (1963) 93m.  D: Ralph Nelson. Sidney Poitier, Lilia Skala, Lisa Mann, Isa Crino, Stanley Adams. A "little" film that made good, winning Poitier an Oscar as handyman who helps build chapel for Skala and her German-speaking nuns. Quiet, well acted, enjoyable. Director Nelson followed this with a TV movie, CHRISTMAS LILIES OF THE FIELD. ▼●●

Lili Marleen (1981-German) C-120m. ½ D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Hanna Schygulla, Giancarlo Giannini, Mel Ferrer, Karl Heinz von Hassel, Christine Kaufmann, Hark Bohm, Karin Baal, Udo Kier. Second-rate Fassbinder about third-rate cabaret singer Schygulla, whose recording of the title song becomes a hit in Nazi Germany. Intriguing subject matter is pretentiously handled. [R]

Lilith (1964) 114m. ½ D: Robert Rossen. Warren Beatty, Jean Seberg, Peter Fonda, Kim Hunter, Jessica Walter, Anne Meacham, Gene Hackman, Rene Auberjonois. Fairly faithful version of controversial J. R. Salamanca novel about a novice therapist who falls in love with a troubled patient. A probing if not altogether satisfying look at the many facets of madness—and love. Director-writer Rossen's last film. ▼●

Lilya 4-Ever (2002-Swedish) C-109m.  D: Lukas Moodysson. Oksana Akinshina, Artiom Bogucharskij, Elina Benenson, Lilia Sinkarjova, Pavel Ponomarjov. Obvious but stinging account of an adolescent girl (Akinshina) who lives in what once was the Soviet Union and yearns to go to America, but is abandoned and abused by everyone around her, starting with her mother. Of the countless films that have focused on child abuse, few are as edgy or as memorable. [R] Lily in Love (1985-U.S.-Hungarian) C-103m. *½ D: Karoly Makk. Christopher Plummer, Maggie Smith, Elke Sommer, Adolph Green, Szabo Sandor. Flat, unfunny (and uncredited) reworking of Molnar's THE GUARDSMAN and THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER. Egotistical actor Plummer disguises himself as an Italian, and courts wife Smith. Tries to be charming and sophisticated, but fails dismally despite Plummer and Smith's efforts. [PG-13] **▼●

Limbo (1972) C-112m.  D: Mark Robson. Kathleen Nolan, Kate Jackson, Katherine Justice, Stuart Margolin, Hazel Medina, Russell Wiggins. Emotional melodrama about three women, whose husbands are either missing or captured in Vietnam, who become friends. One of the first major Hollywood productions to examine homefront repercussions of the war, but its intentions are better than its results. Screenplay by Joan (Micklin) Silver and James Bridges. Aka WOMEN IN LIMBO. [PG]

Limbo (1999) C-126m. ½ D: John Sayles. Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, David Strathairn, Vanessa Martinez, Kris Kristofferson, Casey Siemaszko, Leo Burmester, Kathryn Grody, Rita Taggart. Novelistic film by writer-director Sayles set in modern-day Alaska about characters who find themselves at emotional crossroads: a quiet man with a skeleton in his closet (Strathairn), an itinerant nightclub singer (Mastrantonio) with a habit of picking rotten male companions, and her teenage daughter (Martinez), who's filled with self-loathing and tired of her mother's mercurial relationships. Surprising, intelligent, and richly textured. [R] **▼●

Limelight (1952) 145m.  D: Charles Chaplin. Charles Chaplin, Claire Bloom, Nigel Bruce, Buster Keaton, Sydney Chaplin, Norman Lloyd. Sentimental story of aging, washed-up music hall clown (Chaplin) who saves ballerina Bloom from suicide and regains his own confidence while building her up. Overlong, indulgent Chaplin effort still has many moving scenes, historic teaming of Chaplin and Keaton in comedy skit. Young Geraldine Chaplin (the director's daughter) makes her film debut as a street urchin. This won an Oscar for its score in 1972, the year in which it was first eligible for the competition—because it had not been shown in an L.A. theater until then! **▼●●

Limey, The (1999) C-90m. ½ D: Steven Soderbergh. Terence Stamp, Peter Fonda, Lesley Ann Warren, Luis Guzman, Barry Newman, Joe Dallesandro, Nicky Katt, Amelia Heinle. A taciturn Britisher, just out of prison, comes to L.A. to avenge the suspicious death of his daughter, who fell under the spell of a sleazy music magnate (Fonda). Stylish and understated, with great use of L.A. locations, but the story at the core isn't all that interesting. Stamp appears in flashbacks lifted from his 1967 film POOR COW. [R] **▼●●

Limits of Control, The (2009) C-116m. *½ D: Jim Jarmusch. Isaach De Bankolé, Alex Descas, Jean-François Stévenin, Oscar Jaenada, Luis Tosar, Paz de la Huerta, Tilda Swinton, Youki Kudoh, John Hurt, Gael García Bernal, Hiam Abbass, Bill Murray. Incomprehensible and downright boring drama about a mysterious man with a criminal past who arrives in Spain, ostensibly to finish a job. His journey is never quite clear, taking him to places that may be real or imagined. Mainly he walks around a lot, encountering people who utter clues like, "Wait three days until you see the bread and the guitar will find you." Indulgent exercise by Jarmusch wastes a talented cast, although Swinton, in too brief a cameo, is vibrant and original. Her character sums the whole thing up by saying, "Sometimes there are films where people just sit there." [R]

Line King: The Al Hirschfeld Story, The (1996) C-87m. ½ D: Susan Warms Dryfoos. Outstanding documentary about Al Hirschfeld, the most famous—and durable—caricaturist of the 20th century. The articulate artist is seen throughout and some of his admiring, amused subjects appear, including Lauren Bacall, Carol Channing, Joan Collins and Robert Goulet. Jules Feiffer offers commentary as well. The highest praise possible: the film is truly worthy of its subject. Beware the hour-long broadcast TV version. **▼●

Line of Fire SEE: Sam's Song

Lineup, The (1958) 86m. ½ D: Don Siegel. Warner Anderson, Emile Meyer, Eli Wallach, Richard Jaeckel, Robert Keith. Expanded version of TV series set in San Francisco, focusing on gun-happy hoodlum after a cache of dope. Cult favorite with fans of director Siegel. Pretty ordinary except for final car-chase stunt. ●

Linguini Incident, The (1992) C-98m. *½ D: Richard Shepard. Rosanna Arquette, David Bowie, Eszter Balint, Andre Gregory, Buck Henry, Viveca Lindfors, Marlee Matlin, Lewis Arquette. Even pasta lovers should probably steer clear of this dismal trendy-cutesy-quirky caper comedy. Arquette (quite appealing) is a Houdini-obsessed waitress at a N.Y.C. restaurant who wants to rob the place, Bowie is an illegal alien bartender, and Matlin is a cashier. Story concerns magic acts, wagers, and an antique wedding ring. Julian Lennon and Iman have cameos. [R] ▼●●

Link (1986-British) C-103m. BOMB D: Richard Franklin. Terence Stamp, Elisabeth Shue, Steven Pinner, Richard Garrett. Primatologist Stamp is experimenting on chimps . . . and his activities get predictably out of hand. A horror film that's not horrifying, or suspenseful, or even mildly entertaining. [R] ▼●

L'Innocente (1976-Italian) SEE: The Innocent

Lion, The (1962) C-96m.  D: Jack Cardiff. William Holden, Trevor Howard, Capucine, Pamela Franklin, Samuel Rombold, Christopher Agunda. Beautiful scenery of Kenya is far better than melodrama about young girl attached to pet lion, with family concerned it is turning her into a savage. CinemaScope.

Lionheart (1987) C-104m.  D: Franklin J. Schaffner. Eric Stoltz, Gabriel Byrne, Nicola Cowper, Dexter Fletcher, Deborah Barrymore, Nicholas Clay. Seeking Richard the Lionhearted, who's passing through France headed for the Crusades, runaway young knight Stoltz gradually forms his own children's crusade as more and more homeless children follow him. Richly produced, well acted, with a superb Jerry Goldsmith score, it's a shame this sincere, if slight, film received almost no theatrical release. [PG] ▼●●

Lion in Winter, The (1968-British) C-135m. * D: Anthony Harvey. Peter O'Toole,

Katharine Hepburn, Jane Merrow, Anthony Hopkins, Nigel Terry, Timothy Dalton, Nigel Stock, John Castle. Brilliant, fierce, and personal drama (adapted by James Goldman from his play) of Henry II deliberating over a successor on fateful Christmas Eve. Hepburn co-won Best Actress Oscar for her strong performance as Eleanor of Aquitaine. Oscars also went to Goldman and composer John Barry. Film debuts of Hopkins and Dalton. O'Toole also played Henry II in BECKET. Remade for cable TV in 2004. Panavision. ▼●●

Lion Is in the Streets, A (1953) C-88m. ½ D: Raoul Walsh. James Cagney, Barbara Hale, Anne Francis, Warner Anderson, John McIntire, Jeanne Cagney, Lon Chaney, Jr., Frank McHugh. Cagney, in a Huey Long take-off, is lively as a swamp peddler turned politician, but rambling screenplay prevents film from having much impact. Well photographed by Harry Stradling. ▼●●

Lion King, The (1994) C-88m.  D: Roger Allers, Rob Minkoff. Voices of Jonathan Taylor Thomas, Matthew Broderick, James Earl Jones, Jeremy Irons, Moira Kelly, Niketa Calame, Ernie Sabella, Nathan Lane, Robert Guillaume, Rowan Atkinson, Madge Sinclair, Whoopi Goldberg, Cheech Marin, Jim Cummings. A lion cub raised to take his father's place someday as king of the jungle is sabotaged by his evil uncle—and lives in exile until he realizes his rightful place in the circle of life. With distant echoes of BAMBI, this entertaining Disney cartoon feature (highlighted by Oscar-winning Elton John-Tim Rice songs and Oscar-winning music score by Hans Zimmer) has dazzling scenics, some show-stopping animation, and outstanding voice work—but drama so intense (and comedy so hip), it's not really for very young viewers. Followed by animated TV series, two direct-to-video sequels, and a Broadway musical. Rereleased in Imax in 2002 at 89m. [G] ▼●●

Lion of the Desert (1981-Libyan-British) C-162m.  D: Moustapha Akkad. Anthony Quinn, Oliver Reed, Rod Steiger, John Gielgud, Irene Papas, Raf Vallone, Gastone Moschin. Sweeping "David vs. Goliath" spectacle, with Quinn as Omar Mukhtar, guerrilla leader who stymied Italian forays into Libya between 1911 and 1931. Steiger is Benito Mussolini. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Lions for Lambs (2007) C-88m.  D: Robert Redford. Tom Cruise, Meryl Streep, Robert Redford, Andrew Garfield, Michael Peña, Derek Luke, Peter Berg, Kevin Dunn. Hotshot senator (Cruise) summons a star reporter (Streep) to unveil his plan to attack terrorists in Afghanistan. Meanwhile, a college professor (Redford) tries to inspire a student with great potential who seems to have drifted, even though his last two protégés took his call for involvement to extremes. Unusual chamber piece allows three commanding actors to make long, pointed speeches about everything from Washington games-playing to empty-headed TV journalism. Short on subtlety but obviously impassioned. Screenplay by Matthew Michael Carnahan. Panavision. [R]◆

Liquid Dreams (1991) C-92m. ½ D: Mark Manos. Richard Steinmetz, Candice Daly, Barry Dennen, Juan Fernandez, Tracey Walter, Frankie Thorn, Paul Bartel, Mink Stole, John Doe. Beautiful Daly, determined to uncover her sister's killer, becomes immersed in a world of decadent, nightmarish dance halls and clubs, and various hidden evils. Provocative if overly slick thriller with sci-fi elements. Also available in unrated version. [R]▼

Liquid Sky (1983) C-112m.  D: Slava Tsukerman. Anne Carlisle, Paula E. Sheppard, Susan Doukas, Otto Von Wernherr, Bob Brady. Gleeefully nasty original about a lesbian punker whose Manhattan penthouse patio is trespassed by a UFO. A one-joke movie, but a pretty good joke; Carlisle, who also plays a gay male model, is remarkable, and there's some potent imagery despite the minuscule budget. Not for every taste, but you know that when you read the plot synopsis. [R]▼◆◆

Lisa (1962-U.S.-British) C-112m. ½ D: Philip Dunne. Stephen Boyd, Dolores Hart, Leo McKern, Hugh Griffith, Donald Pleasence, Harry Andrews, Robert Stephens, Marius Goring, Finlay Currie. Jan de Hartog's suspenseful novel of Dutch-Jewish girl in post-WW2 Europe trying to get to Palestine. Exciting film despite gaps in story logic. Stylishly photographed on location by Arthur Ibbetson. Released in England as THE INSPECTOR. CinemaScope.

Lisa and the Devil (1972-Italian-Spanish-West German) C-95m. ½ D: Mario Bava. Elke Sommer, Telly Savalas, Sylva Koscina, Alida Valli, Alessio Orano, Gabriele Tinti, Kathy Leone, Eduardo Fajardo. A tourist (Sommer) gets lost in an unidentified European town and winds up at an eerie mansion replete with rotting corpses, wax dummies, a blind woman, and a man who thinks she's the reincarnation of his dead wife. Oh yes, there's also an evil lollipop-sucking butler (Savalas), who just happens to be Satan. Truly strange, surreal psychological horror tale filled with hallucinatory imagery. RE-edited in 1975 as THE HOUSE OF EXORCISM, with gory new footage and unrelated scenes with Robert Alda as a priest. ▼◆◆

Lisa Picard is Famous (2001) C-87m. ½ D: Griffin Dunne. Laura Kirk, Nat DeWolf, Griffin Dunne, Daniel London. Kirk is a struggling N.Y.C. actress whose (painfully) ordinary life is being documented by filmmaker Dunne. DeWolf is her gay pal, whose success is equally meager. Satire of fame, actors, and the show-business milieu has many sharp moments but wears thin after a while. Written by costars Kirk and DeWolf. Mira Sorvino and Fisher Stevens are two of the producers; they are among many celebrities who pop up in choice cameos. [PG-13]▼◆

Listen, Darling (1938) 70m. ½ D: Edwin L. Marin. Judy Garland, Freddie Bartholomew, Mary Astor, Walter Pidgeon, Alan Hale, Scotty Beckett. Judy and Freddie try to land mother (Astor) a husband; Garland sings "Zing Went The Strings Of My Heart." ▼◆

Listen to Me (1989) C-107m. ½ D: Douglas Day Stewart. Kirk Cameron, Jami Gertz, Roy Scheider, Amanda Peterson, Tim Quill, George Wyner, Anthony Zerbe, Christopher Atkins. Slick travesty about a renowned small-college debating squad, set on the kind of party-school campus where Dick Dale and The Del-Tones wouldn't be out of place. Climactic abortion debate—before the Supreme Court, no less—is cheap and hokey in roughly equal measure. Beware of Cameron's shifting Oklahoma accent. [PG-13] ▼◆

Listen Up: The Lives of Quincy Jones (1990) C-114m. ½ D: Ellen Weissbrod. Ultraslick look at the life and times of Quincy Jones, the famed musician-composer-arranger-producer. Not so much a documentary as a visual and musical collage; sometimes effective, but too often plays like a music video—and is much too self-congratulatory. Dozens of Jones' friends, associates, and admirers appear, including Dizzy Gillespie, Lionel Hampton, Jesse Jackson, Frank Sinatra, Barbra Streisand, Miles Davis, Steven Spielberg, Sidney Lumet, Ella Fitzgerald, Oprah Winfrey, Ray Charles, Ice T, Melle Mel, Big Daddy Kane. [PG-13] ▼◆◆

List of Adrian Messenger, The (1963) 98m.  D: John Huston. George C. Scott, Clive Brook, Dana Wynter, Herbert

Marshall, Tony Curtis, Kirk Douglas, Burt Lancaster, Robert Mitchum, Frank Sinatra, John Huston, Bernard Fox. Good murder mystery has a gimmick: Curtis, Douglas, Lancaster, Mitchum, and Sinatra are all heavily disguised in character roles. All that trouble wasn't necessary; the mystery is good on its own. The director's son Tony (billed as Anthony Walter Huston) plays Wynter's son. ▼●

Lisztomania (1975-British) C-105m. *½ D: Ken Russell. Roger Daltrey, Sara Kestelman, Paul Nicholas, Fiona Lewis, Ringo Starr. So-called biography of Franz Liszt is, in truth, one of Ken Russell's most outlandish extravaganzas; director's devotees may enjoy this visual, aural (and sexual) assault. Others beware! Panavision. [R] ▼●

Little Ark, The (1972) C-100m.  D: James B. Clark. Theodore Bikel, Philip Frame, Genevieve Ambas, Max Croiset, Johan De Slaa. Another good children's film from producer Robert Radnitz; this one concerns two Dutch youngsters who try to find their father after being separated from him during a flood. Panavision. [G]

Little Ashes (2009-Spanish-British) C-112m.  D: Paul Morrison. Robert Pattinson, Javier Beltrán, Matthew McNulty, Marina Gatell, Arly Jover. It's Madrid in the jazz age of the anything-goes '20s when 18-year-old artist Salvador Dali arrives at the university and strikes up a friendship with two other aspiring young talents, director Luis Buñuel and poet Federico García Lorca. As time and events drag on Dali is increasingly attracted (intellectually and otherwise) to García Lorca. Loosely structured quasi-biopic takes mucho liberties with its key subjects and never gets below the surface. Soft-core gay love scene may surprise Pattinson's rabid fans from TWILIGHT, but he does show acting chops as well. [R]

Little Big League (1994) C-119m.  D: Andrew Scheinman. Luke Edwards, Timothy Busfield, John Ashton, Ashley Crow, Kevin Dunn, Jonathan Silverman, Dennis Farina, Jason Robards, Wolfgang Bodison, Scott Patterson. A 12-year-old boy inherits the Minnesota Twins from his grandfather, and decides to manage the baseball team himself. Could have and should have been a cute family movie, but it has no energy—and goes on forever. Special appearances by real-life major leaguers Ken Griffey, Jr., Lou Piniella, Sandy Alomar, Jr., Tim Lincecum, Wally Joyner, and others. Directing debut for producer Scheinman. [PG] ▼●●

pioneer, adopted Indian, drinking pal of Wild Bill Hickok, medicine-show hustler, and survivor of Custer's Last Stand. Rich humor, colorful characterizations, moving tragedy are among ingredients, and they all click. Screenplay by Calder Willingham. Originally released at 150m. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Little Bit of Soul, A (1998-Australian) C-85m.  D: Peter Duncan. Geoffrey Rush, David Wenham, Frances O'Connor, Heather Mitchell, John Gaden. Wacko Aussie black comedy about two scientists (and ex-lovers) working on an immortality serum who make a pact with their married benefactors—who just happen to be your average, everyday Satanists! Attempted satire of science and religion is ultimately too shrill and strained to generate many laughs despite a capable cast. Soundtrack of Louis Jordan oldies helps live things up. [R] ▼●

Little Black Book (2004) C-106m. *½ D: Nick Hurran. Brittany Murphy, Holly Hunter, Ron Livingston, Kathy Bates, Stephen Tobolowsky, Julianne Nicholson, Josie Maran, Sharon Lawrence. Murphy lands a job at a trash-TV talk show and becomes a protégée of ambitious staffer Hunter, who encourages her to spy on her boyfriend using his handheld PDA. Vehicle for Murphy has too many plot threads, many of them dark and unpleasant, and doesn't seem to have a point . . . except to pay homage to better movies like WORKING GIRL and BROADCAST NEWS. The actors (other than Murphy) are photographed in the most unflattering manner imaginable. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Little Boy Lost (1953) 95m.  D: George Seaton. Bing Crosby, Claude Dauphin, Nicole Maurey, Gabrielle Dorziat. Synthetic tear-jerker set in post-WW2 France, where newspaperman Crosby is trying to locate his son, not knowing which boy at orphanage is his.

Little Buddha (1993) C-123m.  D: Bernardo Bertolucci. Keanu Reeves, Chris Isaak, Bridget Fonda, Alex Wiesendanger, Ying Ruocheng, Raju Lal, Rudrapsad, Jo Champa. Disappointing, dramatically muddled Bertolucci epic with obvious similarities to THE LAST EMPEROR, telling the parallel stories of an aged Tibetan monk (Ruocheng) who believes that a young Seattle boy (Wiesendanger) is the reincarnation of his respected mentor, and the young Prince Siddhartha (Reeves), who lived 2,500 years ago. Pretty to look at, but otherwise pretty much of a bore. Technovision (35mm), Arriflex (70mm). [PG] ▼●●

Little Children (2006) C-137m. * D: Todd Field. Kate Winslet, Patrick Wilson, Jennifer Connelly, Gregg Edelman, Noah Emmerich, Jackie Earle Haley, Phyllis Somerville, Trini Alvarado, Helen Carey, Mary B. McCann, Jane Adams, Raymond J. Barry; narrated by Will Lyman. Intensely emotional story, which unfolds in novelistic fashion (complete with narration) about lives that crisscross in an upscale Massachusetts town: a woman who's unhappy as a wife and mother (Winslet), a house-husband who can't get his act together (Wilson), a sex offender (Haley) just released from prison who still lives with his mother, and an ex-cop (Emmerich) who's obsessed with the predator in their midst. Spellbinding look at how frustrated people act out without thinking about the consequences, told with an ironic point of view. Tom Perrotta adapted his own novel with director Field. Super 35. [R]●

Little Cigars (1973) C-92m.  D: Chris Christenberry. Angel Tompkins, Billy Curtis, Jerry Maren, Frank Delfino, Emory Souza, Felix Silla, Joe De Santis. Crime-caper comedy with a midget gang committing the mayhem. Fast and funny, with Tompkins especially good as a former mistress to gangster De Santis, and Curtis, the leader of the tiny troupe. Look for a funny bit by dwarf Angelo Rossitto during a police lineup. [PG]

Little City (1999) C-89m.  D: Roberto Benabib. Jon Bon Jovi, Penelope Ann Miller, Josh Charles, Annabella Sciorra, JoBeth Williams, Joanna Going. Life and loves—gay and straight, platonic and passionate—among a group of young people in San Francisco. Pleasant-enough time-filler, with an attractive cast and postcard views of the city, but nothing special. Released direct to video. [R]▼●

Little Colonel, The (1935) 80m.  D: David Butler. Shirley Temple, Lionel Barrymore, Evelyn Venable, John Lodge, Sidney Blackmer, Bill Robinson. Even nonfans should like this, one of Shirley's best films, as she mends broken ties between Grandpa Barrymore and Mama Venable in the Reconstruction South . . . and does that famous step dance with Robinson. Final scene was filmed in Technicolor. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Little Darlings (1980) C-95m.  D: Ronald F. Maxwell. Tatum O'Neal, Kristy McNichol, Armand Assante, Matt Dillon, Maggie Blye, Nicolas Coster, Krista Erickson, Alexa Kenin, Cynthia Nixon. Tatum and Kristy wager which one will be the first to lose her virginity at summer camp. Not quite as sleazy as it sounds, but not very inspiring, either. McNichol easily out-

acts her costar with a solid performance. Panavision. [R]▼●

Little Dorrit (1988-British)  D: Christine Edzard. Derek Jacobi, Alec Guinness, Roshan Seth, Sarah Pickering, Miriam Margolyes, Cyril Cusack, Max Wall, Eleanor Bron, Michael Elphick, Joan Greenwood, Patricia Hayes, Robert Morley, Sophie Ward, Bill Fraser. PART ONE: NOBODY'S FAULT (C-177m.) Ambitious adaptation of Charles Dickens' satiric novel concerns upstanding but ineffectual Jacobi, and the young seamstress Little Dorrit (Pickering) who lives with her father (Guinness) in debtors' prison. Low-budget production is painstakingly slow moving: viewers will either adore this or despise it. PART TWO: LITTLE DORRIT'S STORY (C-183m.) Second half of saga unfortunately insists on recreating almost the entire first half scene for scene before moving forward. As in first part, there are several good performances (notably Guinness') but screenplay is inadequate. [G]▼●

Little Drummer Girl, The (1984) C-130m.  D: George Roy Hill. Diane Keaton, Yorgo Voyagis, Klaus Kinski, Sami Frey, Michael Cristofer, Thorley Walters, Anna Massey. Adaptation of John le Carré's best-selling spy thriller is long, slow, confusing, not always believable—but still worthwhile, if only for Keaton's strong performance as a mercurial pro-Palestinian actress recruited to perform as Israeli agent. Globe-trotting story about a novice caught in the world of terrorists holds interest throughout, even with its flaws. Kinski is first-rate as Israeli counterintelligence officer. [R]▼●●

Little Fauss and Big Halsy (1970) C-97m. ½ D: Sidney J. Furie. Robert Redford, Michael J. Pollard, Lauren Hutton, Noah Beery, Lucille Benson. So-so character study of two motorcycle racers, one timid and gullible (Pollard), the other a self-centered braggart (Redford) who takes advantage of cohort. Beery and Benson outstanding as Pollard's folks; flavorful song score by Johnny Cash. Panavision. [R] addict who faces all sorts of pressures and temptations while struggling to stay straight. She's surrounded by an array of vividly etched characters, with Weaving and Neill especially good as an addict and a gang lord. [R] **▼●●

Little Fish (2005-Australian) C-114m.  D: Rowan Woods. Cate Blanchett, Sam Neill, Hugo Weaving, Martin Henderson, Dustin Nguyen, Noni Hazlehurst, Joel To-beck, Lisa McCune, Susie Porter. Gritty kitchen-sink drama with the always-watchable Blanchett playing an ex—heroine

Little Foxes, The (1941) 116m. ½ D: William Wyler. Bette Davis, Herbert Marshall, Teresa Wright, Richard Carlson, Patricia Collinge, Dan Duryea, Charles Dingle. Outstanding filmization of Lillian Hellman's play of greed and corruption within a crumbling Southern family on the financial outs, headed by majestic Davis as ruthless Regina. Collinge, Duryea, Dingle, Carl Benton Reid, and John Marriott all re-create their Broadway roles, with Collinge, Duryea, Reid, and Teresa Wright making their film debuts. Scripted by Hellman. Prequel: ANOTHER PART OF THE FOREST. **▼●●

Little Fugitive (1953) 75m.  D: Ray Ashley, Morris Engel, Ruth Orkin. Richie Andrusco, Rickie Brewster, Winifred Cushing, Will Lee. A young boy who thinks he has killed his brother wanders lost through Coney Island. A lyrical little comedy-drama, produced independently and on a threadbare budget. A minor classic. Remade in 2006. **▼●●

Little Giant (1946) 91m.  D: William A. Seiter. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Brenda Joyce, Jacqueline de Wit, George Cleveland, Elena Verdugo, Mary Gordon, Margaret Dumont. Bud and Lou don't work as a team in this atypical comedy with Lou becoming a vacuum cleaner salesman; filled with amusing, tried-and-true routines. **▼●

Little Giants (1994) C-105m. ½ D: Duwayne Dunham. Rick Moranis, Ed O'Neill, Shawna Waldron, Mary Ellen Trainor, Matthew McCurley, Susanna Thompson, Brian Haley, Devon Sawa, Michael Zwiener, John Madden, Harry Shearer, Dabbs Greer. Moranis has always lived in the shadow of big brother O'Neill, a swaggering football star; when Moranis' daughter—a first-rate player—doesn't get picked for O'Neill's Pop Warner football team, she persuades her dad to launch a rival team, as a haven for all the town's misfit kids. Amiable juvenile comedy is formula to the max, but knows how to please its youthful audience. Several real-life football players appear as themselves. [PG] **▼●●

Little Girl Who Lives Down the Lane, The (1976-Canadian) C-94m.  D: Nicolas Gessner. Jodie Foster, Martin Sheen, Scott Jacoby, Mort Shuman, Alexis Smith. Complex, unique mystery with Foster as young girl whose father never seems to be home—and she gets very nervous when anyone goes near the basement. Think you've figured it out? Forget it, Charlie; you haven't even scratched the surface.

Little Hut, The (1957-British) C-90m.  D: Mark Robson. Ava Gardner, Stewart Granger, David Niven, Finlay Currie, Walter Chiari. Busy husband Granger takes sexy wife Gardner for granted. Will her friendship with Niven stay platonic when all three are stranded on an island? Static, flat, talky sex farce, from the Andre Roussin play. **▼●●

Little Indian, Big City (1994-French) C-90m. *½ D: Hervé Palud. Thierry Lhermitte, Ludwig Briand, Patrick Timsit, Arielle Dombasle. Dopey French kiddie comedy about a stockbroker who goes to the Amazon to divorce his estranged wife and discovers he has a 13-year-old son, whom he brings back to Paris. A big hit in France, Disney released it in the U.S., with terrible American dubbing. Jokes are mainly of the scatological variety: the little kid's name Mimi-Siku means "cat pee" in his native tongue. Americanized in 1997 as JUNGLE 2 JUNGLE. [PG] **▼

Little Kidnappers, The (1953-British) 95m. ½ D: Philip Leacock. Jon Whiteley, Vincent Winter, Adrienne Corri, Duncan Macrae, Jean Anderson, Theodore Bikel. Splendid children's story set in Nova Scotia, 1900. Two orphan youngsters "adopt" abandoned baby when strict grandfather forbids them having a dog. Whiteley and Winter won special Oscars for outstanding juvenile performances. British title: THE KIDNAPPERS. Remade for cable TV in 1990 with Charlton Heston.

Little Laura & Big John (1973) C-82m. ½ D: Luke Moberly, Bob Woodburn. Fabian Forte, Karen Black, Ivy Thayer, Ken Miller, Paul Gleason, Cliff Frates. Surprisingly engaging road company BONNIE AND CLYDE set in Everglades country. One-time teen rock 'n' roll idol Fabian made his acting comeback in this one, although Warren Beatty needn't be too concerned about the competition. [R] **▼●

Little Lord Fauntleroy (1936) 98m.  D: John Cromwell. Freddie Bartholomew, C. Aubrey Smith, Guy Kibbee, Dolores Costello, Mickey Rooney, Jessie Ralph. Young New Yorker Bartholomew suddenly finds himself a British lord in this charming film from classic story. Handsome, well-cast production. Previously filmed in England in 1914 and in 1921; remade for TV in 1980 with Ricky Schroder and Alec Guinness, and in Russia in 2003. Also shown in computer-colored version. **▼●

Little Malcolm (1974-British) C-112m.  D: Stuart Cooper. John Hurt, John McEnery, David Warner, Rosalind Ayres, Raymond Platt. Hurt is prototypical angry young man (booted out of art school) who forms neofascist cult and rails out against society in this well-acted adaptation of David Halliwell's play criticizing 1960s protest movements. Warner takes acting honors as Hurt's obsessive verbal adversary. Ex-Beatle George Harrison's first venture into film production. Original British title: LITTLE MALCOLM AND HIS STRUGGLE AGAINST THE EUNUCHS.

Little Man (2006) C-98m. BOMB D: Keenen Ivory Wayans. Marlon Wayans, Shawn Wayans, Tracy Morgan, Kerry Washington, John Witherspoon, Chazz Palminteri, Molly Shannon, David Alan Grier. Diminutive criminal drops a stolen diamond in a woman's purse and is forced to disguise himself as a baby left on her doorstep to get it back. Idiomatic gags involving breast feeding, anal thermometers, and dirty diapers ensue. A running joke in which "the baby" molests unsuspecting women is particularly offensive. The three Wayans who wrote this admit they were inspired by the Bugs Bunny cartoon "Baby Buggy Bunny"—which is funnier (and shorter). See also the Our Gang comedy "Free Eats." Rob Schneider appears unbilled. [PG-13] ▮

Little Manhattan (2005) C-90m.  D: Mark Levin. Josh Hutcherson, Charlie Ray, Bradley Whitford, Cynthia Nixon, Talia Balsam, John Dossett, Willie Garson, Tonye Patano, J. Kyle Manzay, Josh Pais. In an ideal N.Y.C. where nothing bad ever happens, 10-year-old Gabe and Rosemary discover a mutual attraction during karate class, though they've known each other since kindergarten. Wonder Years-style narration and bright, imaginative visual design combine with sweet performances in an Upper West Side story filled with bubbles and balloons. The dialogue is a bit precocious, but this miniaturized romantic comedy is genuinely cute. Super 35. [PG] ▮

Little Man Tate (1991) C-99m.  D: Jodie Foster. Jodie Foster, Dianne Wiest, Adam Hann-Byrd, Harry Connick, Jr., David Pierce, P.J. Ochlan, Debi Mazar, Celia Weston, Danitra Vance, Josh Mostel, George Plimpton. Moving, extraordinarily empathic look at a child genius; his single, working-class mom (Foster) can't give him the support and stimulation he needs—but neither can the director (Wiest) of a school for exceptional children who takes him under her wing. Beautifully realized by Foster in her directing debut; her performance is equally strong. Bittersweet screenplay by Scott Frank; solid jazz score by Mark Isham. Bob Balaban appears unbilled as a quizmaster. [PG] ▮

Little Man, What Now? (1934) 104m. ½ D: Frank Borzage. Margaret Sullavan, Douglass Montgomery, Alan Hale, Catherine Doucet, Mae Marsh, Alan Mowbray, Hedda Hopper. Impoverished German newlyweds are further strapped when wife becomes pregnant. Splendid romance was also the first Hollywood film to deal even peripherally with conditions that resulted in

Little Men (1940) 84m.  D: Norman Z. McLeod. Kay Francis, Jack Oakie, George Bancroft, Jimmy Lydon, Ann Gillis, Charles Esmond, William Demarest. Occasionally cute but slight, predictable adaptation of the Louisa May Alcott novel, focusing on rough adolescent Lydon "learning the ways" at Francis' school. Oakie easily steals the film as an irrepressible con man. Remade in 1998. ▮

Little Men (1998-Canadian) C-98m. ½ D: Rodney Gibbons. Mariel Hemingway, Chris Sarandon, Michael Caloz, Ben Cook, Ricky Mabe, Gabrielle Boni; narrated by Kathleen Fee. Pleasant TV-style period piece based on Louisa May Alcott's followup to Little Women. Jo and Mr. Bhaer are now married and running a home for wayward boys; they turn their kind attention to a newly orphaned street urchin and his rowdy friend. Official title is: LOUISA MAY ALCOTT'S LITTLE MEN. [PG] ▮

Little Mermaid, The (1989) C-82m.  D: John Musker, Ron Clements. Voices of Jodi Benson, Pat Carroll, Samuel E. Wright, Kenneth Mars, Buddy Hackett, Christopher Daniel Barnes, Rene Auberjonois, Ben Wright. Delightful Disney animated feature loosely based on Hans Christian Andersen story about a young mermaid named Ariel who longs to be human. One could squabble about certain story points, but the film is so enjoyable it's foolish to try. Buoyant musical numbers include "Kiss The Girl," "Part of Your World," and "Under the Sea," sung by a Jamaican crab named Sebastian (Wright). Won Oscars for Best Original Score (Alan Menken) and Song ("Under the Sea," by Menken and Howard Ashman). Followed by an animated TV series and a DVD sequel. Later a Broadway musical. [G] ▮

Little Minister, The (1934) 110m. ½ D: Richard Wallace. Katharine Hepburn, John Beal, Donald Crisp, Andy Clyde, Beryl Mercer. Charming film of James M. Barrie story about Scottish pastor falling in love, with Hepburn radiant in period romance. ▮

Little Miss Broadway (1938) 70m.  D: Irving Cummings. Shirley Temple, George Murphy, Jimmy Durante, Phyllis Brooks, Edna May Oliver, George Barbier. Not bad Temple, with Shirley bringing Oliver's theatrical boardinghouse to life; Shirley and Durante are good together. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▮

OF TROUBLE, and again in 1980. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Little Miss Marker (1980) C-103m.  D: Walter Bernstein. Walter Matthau, Julie Andrews, Tony Curtis, Bob Newhart, Sara Stimson, Lee Grant, Brian Dennehy, Kenneth McMillan. Boring remake of the Damon Runyon story, with Matthau as the bookie, Stimson the little girl, Andrews the love interest, Curtis the heavy. Veteran screenwriter Bernstein's first directing credit. [PG] ▼

Little Miss Sunshine (2006) C-101m. ½ D: Jonathan Dayton, Valerie Faris. Greg Kinnear, Toni Collette, Steve Carell, Alan Arkin, Abigail Breslin, Paul Dano, Bryan Cranston, Beth Grant, Wallace Langham, Julio Oscar Mechoso, Mary Lynn Rajskub, Gordon Thomason. Winning comedy-drama about a seriously off-kilter family, including a 7-year-old girl who wants to enter beauty contests. Each family member undergoes a change during an eventful road trip to California in an old Volkswagen bus to get the little girl to an all-important pageant. Impressive feature debut for top TV commercial directors Dayton and Faris, who capture all the telling details in the script by first-time screenwriter Michael Arndt. The cast simply couldn't be better. Oscar winner for Best Original Screenplay and Supporting Actor (Arkin). Super 35. [R] ▼

Little Monsters (1989) C-100m. *½ D: Richard Alan Greenberg. Fred Savage, Howie Mandel, Ben Savage, Daniel Stern, Margaret Whitton, Rick Ducommun, Amber Barretto, Frank Whaley. BEETLE JUICE-inspired fantasy comedy suffers from clumsy script and obvious postproduction cuts. Boy finds prankish monster (Mandel) under his bed; their friendship leads to various crises, in our world and in the dimly lit land of the monsters. Premise was promising but results are dismal. Cast tries hard. [PG] ▼

Little Murders (1971) C-110m.  D: Alan Arkin. Elliott Gould, Marcia Rodd, Vincent Gardenia, Elizabeth Wilson, Jon Korkes, Donald Sutherland, Lou Jacobi, Alan Arkin. Jules Feiffer's ultrablack comedy about life in nightmarish N.Y.C. focuses on aggressive urbanite (Rodd) who lassoes passive photographer Gould into marriage. Superb performance by Gardenia as Rodd's father, hilarious cameo by Arkin as mind-blown detective, but even funniest moments are overshadowed by frighteningly depressing atmosphere. [PG—edited from original R rating] ▼

Little Nellie Kelly (1940) 100m. ½ D: Norman Taurog. Judy Garland, George Murphy, Charles Winninger, Douglas McPhail. Lightweight musical based on George M. Cohan play about Judy patching up differences between father Murphy and grandfather Winninger. Garland sings "It's A Great Day For The Irish." ▼

(1990-Japanese) C-85m. ½ D: Masami Hata, William T. Hurtz. Voices of Gabriel Damon, Mickey Rooney, Rene Auberjonois, Danny Mann, Laura Mooney, Bernard Erhard. Beautifully rendered animation about a young boy's odyssey into the world of dreams—and the perils of Nightmare Land. Starts with a knockout opening sequence, and has much to entertain youngsters (and animation buffs), but its story loses momentum. Inspired by Winsor McCay's comic strip classic. Songs by Richard M. and Robert B. Sherman. Concept for the screen by Ray Bradbury. Not released in the U.S. until 1992. [G] ▼

Little Nicky (2000) C-90m.  D: Steven Brill. Adam Sandler, Patricia Arquette, Harvey Keitel, Rhys Ifans, Tommy "Tiny" Lister, Jr., Rodney Dangerfield, Robert Smigel, Allen Covert, Blake Clark, Kevin Nealon, Reese Witherspoon, Quentin Tarantino. The sweetest of the Devil's three sons must go to Earth and bring back his two errant brothers or his father will die. Meanwhile, his siblings are turning N.Y.C. into a living hell. Outrageous, sometimes appalling, occasionally funny comedy revels in extraordinary crudeness. Full of gag cameos (many by Sandler's onetime Saturday Night Live costars). Sandler cowrote and coproduced. [PG-13] ▼

Little Night Music, A (1978) C-124m. *½ D: Harold Prince. Elizabeth Taylor, Diana Rigg, Len Cariou, Lesley-Anne Down, Hermione Gingold, Lawrence Guitard, Christopher Guard, Chloe Franks. Laughably stilted film version of the Stephen Sondheim-Hugh Wheeler stage musical which in turn was based on Ingmar Bergman's sex-at-a-country-estate comedy, SMILES OF A SUMMER NIGHT. Liz's rendition of "Send in the Clowns" is no chart buster. Filmed in Austria. [PG] ▼

Little Nikita (1988) C-98m.  D: Richard Benjamin. Sidney Poitier, River Phoenix, Richard Jenkins, Caroline Kava, Richard Bradford, Richard Lynch, Loretta Devine, Lucy Deakins. Intriguing premise—young, all-American Phoenix learning that his parents are Soviet agents—fails to catch fire in this sometimes entertaining but ultimately incoherent thriller. Poitier adds a bit of spark as an FBI agent. [PG] ▼

Little Noises (1991) C-110m. ½ D: Jane Spencer. Crispin Glover, Tatum O'Neal, Rik Mayall, Tate Donovan, John C. McGinley, Nina Siemaszko, Carole Shelley, Steven Schub. Ambitious but muddled account of Glover, a failure who calls himself a writer (even though he's never penned anything); he finds status and monetary reward after passing off the poetry of a deaf mute orphan as his own. ▼

Little Odessa (1994) C-98m.  D: James Gray. Tim Roth, Edward Furlong, Moira Kelly, Vanessa Redgrave, Maximilian Schell, Paul Guilfoyle, Natasha Andreichenko, David

Vadim, Mina Bern. Melancholy drama set during a bleak Brooklyn winter, about Joshua (Roth), a hitman whose Russian-Jewish family resides in Brighton Beach. He has been disowned by his adulterous father (Schell), and his mother (Redgrave) is dying; his kid brother (Furlong) is caught between Russian and American cultures, and between his love for Joshua and the knowledge that his brother is evil. Grim, disturbing, brilliantly directed with a distinctive visual style by 24-year-old Gray (who also scripted). Super 35. [R]▼●●

Little Old New York (1940) C-108m. ***
D: Henry King. Alice Faye, Brenda Joyce, Fred MacMurray, Richard Greene, Henry Stephenson. Claims to be story of Robert Fulton and his steamboat; merely serves as framework for standard romance.

Little Prince, The (1974-British) C-88m. ***
D: Stanley Donen. Richard Kiley, Steven Warner, Bob Fosse, Gene Wilder, Joss Ackland, Clive Revill, Donna McKechnie, Victor Spinetti. Antoine de St. Exupéry's children's book is considered a classic, but this musical fantasy doesn't do it justice. Kiley plays aviator who counsels and guides a young boy who wants to learn about life. Unmemorable score by Lerner and Loewe is just one of this fable's major letdowns. [G]▼●●

Little Princess, The (1939) C-91m. ***
D: Walter Lang. Shirley Temple, Richard Greene, Anita Louise, Ian Hunter, Cesar Romero, Arthur Treacher, Marcia Mae Jones, Sybil Jason. Shirley stars as a Victorian waif who makes good in this lavishly mounted, colorful production. Filmed again in 1995. ▼●●

Little Princess, A (1995) C-97m. ***
D: Alfonso Cuarón. Eleanor Bron, Liam Cunningham, Liesel Matthews, Rusty Schwimmer, Arthur Malet, Vanessa Lee Chester, Errol Sitahal, Vincent Schiavelli. A little jewel of a movie about a fanciful young girl (Matthews) whose father deposits her at a boarding school while he goes off to fight in WWI—unaware that the headmistress is a spiteful woman. Devotees of Frances Hodgson Burnett's classic novel (filmed before with Shirley Temple) may be dismayed at liberties taken with the original—moving it to N.Y.C. in the teens, for instance—but its spirit is intact. Hard to believe this handsome production was filmed almost entirely on a Burbank studio backlot! [G] ▼●●

D: Penelope Spheeris. Travis Tedford, Bug Hall, Brittany Ashton Holmes, Kevin Jamal Woods, Zachary Mabry, Ross Elliot Bagley, Sam Saletta, Blake Jeremy Collins. Spanky and the members of the He-Man Woman Haters Club try to sabotage Alfalfa's budding romance with Darla. Aimed squarely at young children, who will probably enjoy it, though it's no match for the original 1930s Hal Roach comedy shorts. The kids are cute, but Alfalfa (played by Hall) is the only standout—along with Pete the Pup. Gag cameos by a few stars and celebrities seem extraneous. [PG]▼●●

Little Romance, A (1979) C-108m. ***
D: George Roy Hill. Laurence Olivier, Diane Lane, Theltonious Bernard, Arthur Hill, Sally Kellerman, David Dukes, Broderick Crawford. Engaging film about relationship of young American girl (Lane, in her film debut) living in Paris and running off with a charming French boy (Bernard), chaperoned by wily old con man (Olivier, wonderfully hammy). A throwback to director Hill's WORLD OF HENRY ORIENT in its winning treatment of adolescence, but not quite as good. Crawford has funny cameo as himself. Georges Delerue's music score won a well-deserved Oscar. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Little Sex, A (1982) C-95m. **
D: Bruce Paltrow. Tim Matheson, Kate Capshaw, Edward Herrmann, John Glover, Joan Copeland, Susanna Dalton, Wendie Malick, Wallace Shawn, Melinda Culea, Bill Smitrovich. MTM Enterprises' first theatrical feature is basically an R-rated TV-movie, with Matheson marrying long-time girlfriend Capshaw hoping it will cure him of his womanizing. It doesn't. Tired but watchable comedy-drama has pretty N.Y.C. locations and pleasing performances, particularly by Herrmann as Matheson's wiser older brother. Capshaw's film debut. [R]▼●

Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come, The (1961) C-108m. **
D: Andrew V. McLaglen. Jimmie Rodgers, Luana Patten, Chill Wills, George Kennedy, Neil Hamilton. Bland family-type film of boy who fought for the North during Civil War and his return to rural life. Based on the 1903 novel by John William Fox. Kennedy's film debut. CinemaScope.

Little Shop of Horrors, The (1960) 70m. ***
D: Roger Corman. Jonathan Haze, Jackie Joseph, Mel Welles, Dick Miller, Myrtle Vail, Jack Nicholson. Classic black comedy about young schnook who develops bloodthirsty plant and is forced to kill in order to feed it. Initially infamous as The Film Shot In Two Days, but now considered one of Corman's best pictures. Nicholson has hilarious bit as masochist who thrives on dental pain; delightful screenplay by Charles Griffith (who also plays the hold-up man and is the voice of "Audrey, Jr.>"). Later a stage musical, which was filmed in 1986. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Little Shop of Horrors (1986) C-88m. ***
D: Frank Oz. Rick Moranis, Ellen Greene, Vincent Gardenia, Steve Martin, James Belushi, John Candy, Christopher Guest, Bill Murray, voice of Levi Stubbs. Very entertaining black comedy/musical about a nebbish (played to perfection by Moranis) whose "unusual" new plant brings him good fortune—but turns into a

Frankenstein. Greene (repeating her stage role) is a delight as his squeaky-voiced heartthrob, Martin hilarious as her macho boyfriend. But when Audrey II, the plant, turns really mean and monstrous, with super-duper special effects, the fun drains away. Based on the off-Broadway musical by Howard Ashman and Alan Menken, which in turn was based on Roger Corman's 1960 low-budget black comedy (written by Charles B. Griffith). [PG-13]▼●●

Littlest Horse Thieves, The (1977) C-104m.  D: Charles Jarrott. Alastair Sim, Peter Barkworth, Maurice Colbourne, Susan Tebbs, Andrew Harrison, Chloe Franks. Well-made Disney period piece, filmed in England, about three children's efforts to save pitponies who work the mines from abuse and death. Set at the turn of the century. Good location photography. Originally titled ESCAPE FROM THE DARK. [G]▼●

Littlest Outlaw, The (1955) C-75m.  D: Roberto Gavaldon. Pedro Armendariz, Joseph Calleia, Rodolfo Acosta, Andres Velasquez, Pepe Ortiz. Unpretentious little Disney film about Mexican boy (Velasquez) who runs away with a horse rather than see it killed for its misdeeds; filmed on location.▼

Littlest Rebel, The (1935) 73m.  D: David Butler. Shirley Temple, John Boles, Jack Holt, Karen Morley, Bill Robinson, Stepin Fetchit, Guinn "Big Boy" Williams. One of Shirley's best films, a Civil War saga set in the Old South, with our heroine managing to wrap Union officer Holt around her little finger and protect her Confederate officer father (Boles). Temple and Robinson do some delightful dancing as well. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●

Little Theatre of Jean Renoir, The (1971-French) C-100m.  D: Jean Renoir. Jeanne Moreau, Fernand Sardou, Francoise Arnoul, Jean Carmet, Marguerite Cassan, Dominique Labourier. Quartet of short sketches about human dignity and goodness of country life (as opposed to surviving in a dehumanized urban wilderness). Renoir's celluloid swan song may not be among his best, but still has much to offer. Made for television in 1969.▼●

Little Thief, The (1989-French) C-104m. ½ D: Claude Miller. Charlotte Gainsbourg, Didier Bezace, Simon de la Brosse, Nathalie Cardone, Raoul Billerey. So-so character portrait of the title lass, an alienated, amoral teen drifting through life in postwar France. If she comes off as a female Antoine Doinel, it's because the original story was cowritten by François Truffaut, who was supposedly planning to film this at the time of his death; resulting film lacks the director's inimitable touch. Miller was for ten years Truffaut's assistant; Gainsbourg is the daughter of Jane Birkin. [R]▼●

Little Treasure (1985) C-95m. *½ D:

Alan Sharp. Margot Kidder, Ted Danson, Burt Lancaster, Joseph Hacker, Malena Doria, John Pearce. A stripper ventures to Mexico to meet her long-lost father but spends most of her time searching for treasure with a dropout American. Unsatisfying story marked directing debut for writer Sharp. Danson comes off best. [R]▼●

Little Vampire, The (2000-German-Dutch-U.S.) C-96m. ½ D: Uli Edel. Jonathan Lipnicki, Richard E. Grant, Alice Krige, Anna Popplewell, Jim Carter, John Wood, Pamela Gidley, Rollo Weeks. A nine-year-old California schoolboy moves to Scotland and makes friends with a nine-year-old vampire who sucks him into his world and shows him the time of his life. Good-natured if uninspired adaptation of Angela Sommer-Bodenburg's popular German children's books. Lipnicki is cute as always, but Weeks steals the show as his vampire pal. [PG]▼●

Little Vegas (1990) C-91m.  D: Perry Lang. Anthony John Denison, Catherine O'Hara, Jerry Suller, Michael Nouri, Perry Lang, Bruce McGill, John Sayles, Jay Thomas, Bob Goldthwait. Subtle comedy revolving around off-beat characters in trailer park located in desolate area that Mafia developers want to turn into a "little" Las Vegas. Intriguing possibilities, but it doesn't quite gel. [R]▼●

Little Vera (1988-Russian) C-133m.  D: Vassili Pitchul. Natalia Negoda, Andrei Sokolov, Yuri Nazarov, Ludmila Zaisova, Alexander Niegreva. Groundbreaking, post-glasnost look at life in modern Russia. Negoda offers a fresh performance as an alienated, working-class, rock music-loving young woman; the depiction of her sexual relationship with Sokolov, plus the manner in which Western culture has affected her life, make this unlike any other Soviet film you've ever seen. Not surprisingly, it was a smash hit in its homeland.▼●●

Little Voice (1998-British-U.S.) C-96m.  D: Mark Herman. Jane Horrocks, Michael Caine, Brenda Blethyn, Jim Broadbent, Ewan McGregor, Annette Badland, Philip Jackson. When a sleazy talent agent (Caine) and an equally greasy nightclub owner (Broadbent) discover that the reclusive daughter of a middle-aged shrew has the uncanny ability to sing like Judy Garland and other show-business greats, they smell money. But the mousy girl, known as Little Voice, sings for other reasons entirely. Vivid adaptation of Jim Cartwright's London play The Rise and Fall of Little Voice, with Horrocks re-creating her sensational performance, joined by a superb cast that (to put it mildly) doesn't hold back. [R]▼●●

Little Women (1933) 115m. * D: George Cukor. Katharine Hepburn, Joan Bennett, Paul Lukas, Frances Dee, Jean Parker, Edna May Oliver, Douglass Montgomery, Spring Byington. Film offers endless pleasure no matter how many times you've seen it; a faithful, beautiful adaptation of Alcott's book by Victor Heerman and Sarah Y. Mason, who deservedly received Oscars. The cast is uniformly superb. Remade in 1949, 1978 (for TV), and 1994. ▼●●

Little Women (1949) C-121m. ½ D: Mervyn LeRoy. June Allyson, Peter Lawford, Margaret O'Brien, Elizabeth Taylor, Janet Leigh, Mary Astor. Glossy remake of Louisa May Alcott's gentle account of teenage girls finding maturity and romance—patly cast. ▼●●

Little Women (1994) C-118m. * D: Gillian Armstrong. Winona Ryder, Susan Sarandon, Gabriel Byrne, Trini Alvarado, Samantha Mathis, Kirsten Dunst, Claire Danes, Christian Bale, Eric Stoltz, John Neville, Mary Wickes. Exquisite rendering of Louisa May Alcott's Civil War-era classic about four devoted sisters who eventually have to leave their New England nest. A perfect cast is led by Ryder as the headstrong Jo, with Sarandon as that tower of strength, Marmee. Not a false moment or false move in the entire film, though purists may object to Marmee mouthing 1990s-style feminist doctrine. Veteran character actress Wickes threatens to steal every scene she's in, as crotchety Aunt March. Screenplay by Robin Swicord. [PG] ▼●●

Live a Little, Love a Little (1968) C-90m.  D: Norman Taurog. Elvis Presley, Michele Carey, Don Porter, Rudy Vallee, Dick Sargent, Sterling Holloway, Eddie Hodges. Elvis manages to land two well-paying photographer's jobs and work them both by hopping back and forth from office to office. Pleasant, if standard, Presley fare. Panavision. ▼●●

Live a Little, Steal a Lot (1975) C-101m. ½ D: Marvin Chomsky. Robert Conrad, Don Stroud, Donna Mills, Robyn Millan, Luther Adler, Burt Young, Paul Stewart. Unremarkable but engrossing tale based on real-life story of two Florida beach bums who engineered "impossible" heist of 564-carat Star of India. Fine TOPKAPI-like caper scenes, plus good speedboat chase. Originally titled MURPH THE SURF and retitled YOU CAN'T STEAL LOVE. [PG] ▼●

Live and Let Die (1973-British) C-121m. ½ D: Guy Hamilton. Roger Moore, Yaphet Kotto, Jane Seymour, Clifton James, Geoffrey Holder, Bernard Lee, Lois Maxwell. Barely memorable, overlong James Bond movie seems merely an excuse to film wild chase sequences; superagent goes after master criminal subverting U.S. economy via drugs. Works on level of old-time serial. This was Moore's first appearance as 007; title song by Paul McCartney. [PG] ▼●●

Live Flesh (1997-Spanish-French) C-100m. ½ D: Pedro Almodóvar. Liberto Rabal, Francesca Neri, Javier Bardem, Angela Molina, Jose Sancho, Penélope Cruz. Smiten son of a prostitute is jailed for accidentally shooting and paralyzing a cop during an altercation with a dishy drug user. Upon his release, he discovers that the woman is married to his victim! What might have been a melodramatic howler is instead Almodóvar's best feature since WOMEN ON THE VERGE OF A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN. After a bumpy start, film becomes a model of how to change moods. The director scripted from the novel by Ruth Rendell. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Live for Life (1967-French-Italian) C-130m. ½ D: Claude Lelouch. Yves Montand, Annie Girardot, Candice Bergen, Irene Tunc, Anouck Ferjac. TV documentary producer Montand leaves wife Girardot for fashion model Bergen in glossy film helped by some good acting; picture was follow-up to Lelouch's A MAN AND A WOMAN.

Live Free or Die (2007) C-90m.  D: Gregg Kavet, Andy Robin. Aaron Stanford, Paul Schneider, Michael Rapaport, Ebon Moss-Bachrach, Judah Friedlander, Kevin Dunn, Zoey Deschanel. Quirky comedy spotlighting John "Rugged" Rudgate (Stanford), a "legendary" criminal who thinks he's a modern-day Al Capone/Billy the Kid but is actually a tenth-rate, self-deluded loser. Schneider does a Will Ferrell imitation as Rudgate's trusting, mentally challenged protégé, and the bizarre scenario consists of an escalating series of misadventures and coincidences. The only problem is that none of it is particularly funny. The directors, who also coscripted, were occasional writers of Seinfeld. [R] ●

Live Free or Die Hard (2007) C-129m.  D: Len Wiseman. Bruce Willis, Justin Long, Timothy Olyphant, Cliff Curtis, Mary Elizabeth Winstead, Maggie Q, Kevin Smith, Željko Ivanek, Yancey Arias, Christina Chang. While snooping on his daughter, NYPD cop (and overprotective father) John McClane picks up a N.J. suspect for a federal sweep of computer geeks and brings him to Washington, just as cyber-lord Olyphant initiates a plan to shut down the entire country. DIE HARD is effectively reinvented for a post-9/11 world, with the techies proving no match for an indestructible old-school cop. Credibility gives way to preposterous action scenes toward the end, but it's still fun to watch. Released overseas as DIE HARD 4.0. Also available in unrated version. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Live It Up SEE: Sing and Swing

Live Nude Girls (1995) C-92m.  D: Julianna Lavin. Dana Delany, Kim Cattrall, Cynthia Stevenson, Laila Robins, Lora Zane, Olivia d'Abo, Glenn Quinn, Tim Choate. A bunch of galspals come together for a bachelorette party and pass the time talking, at which point assorted jealousies, fantasies, and feelings come to the surface. Well intentioned, to be sure, but oh, so predictable. [R] ▼●●

Franchot Tone, Richard Cromwell, Sir Guy Standing, C. Aubrey Smith, Monte Blue, Kathleen Burke, Noble Johnson, Lumsden Hare, Akim Tamiroff, J. Carrol Naish, Douglass Dumbrille. Delightful Hollywood foray into empire building in Northwest India. Cooper and Tone are pals in famed British regiment, Cromwell the callow son of commander Standing whom they take under their wing. Top story, action, repartee—and wonderful snake-charming scene. Grover Jones, William Slavens McNutt, Achmed Abdullah, Waldemar Young, and John Balderston coscripted; from the novel by Major Francis Yeats-Brown. Remade, with obvious changes, as GERONIMO (1939). ▼●●

Lives of Others, The (2006-German) C-137m. ½ D: Florian Henckel von Donnersmarck. Martina Gedeck, Ulrich Mühe, Sebastian Koch, Ulrich Tukur, Thomas Thieme, Hans-Uwe Bauer, Volkmar Kleinert. In 1984 East Berlin a single-minded officer (Mühe) in the Stasi, the country's well-staffed secret police, is assigned to eavesdrop on playwright Koch, refusing to believe that the popular writer is completely loyal to his government. But this obsessive quest has an unexpected effect on the professional spy. Fascinating drama deals with the poisonous nature of a society built on suspicion and doubt. Outstanding performances in this impressive writing and directing debut for von Donnersmarck. Oscar winner as Best Foreign Language Film. Hawk-Scope. [R] ▼

Live Wire (1992) C-85m. ½ D: Christian Duguay. Pierce Brosnan, Ron Silver, Ben Cross, Lisa Eilbacher, Brent Jennings, Tony Plana, Al Waxman, Philip Baker Hall, Michael St. Gerard. FBI bomb expert Brosnan is puzzled when several people in Washington literally explode; his nemesis is terrorist Cross. Silver is a crooked senator, one of Cross' targets. OK thriller with good performances and an unusual, if absurd, premise. Debuted on cable TV. Also available in 87m. unrated version. [R] ▼●●

Living Daylights, The (1987-British) C-130m. ½ D: John Glen. Timothy Dalton, Maryam d'Abo, Jeroen Krabbé, Joe Don Baker, John Rhys-Davies, Art Malik, Andreas Wisniewski, Desmond Llewelyn, Robert Brown. Dalton makes an impressive debut as James Bond in this entertaining, globe-trotting spy story about a double-dealing Russian general; it's brimming with great stunts and gimmicks, and eschews the smirking comic attitude of other recent Bond outings. But like some other Bonds, this one goes on far too long. Caroline Bliss debuts as Miss Money-penny. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Living Desert, The (1953) C-69m.  D: James Algar. Narrated by Winston Hibler. Disney's first True-Life Adventure feature has dazzling footage of the American desert and its inhabitants, but attracted justifiable criticism for its gimmicky treatment of some material like the famous "scorpion dance." Still worthwhile. Academy Award winner. ▼

Living End, The (1992) C-92m.  D: Gregg Araki. Mike Dytri, Craig Gilmore, Mark Finch, Mary Woronov, Johanna Went, Darcy Marta, Nicole Dillenber, Paul Bartel. Frank, impertinent black comedy-road movie about Dytri and Gilmore. Each is twentyish, gay, and HIV-positive, and they set out on a nihilistic journey. Despite the characters' situation, the film is spirited and devilishly funny, but there's still no shortage of rage over their circumstances. Araki also scripted, photographed, and edited this ultra-low-budget gem. ▼

Living Free (1972-British) C-91m. ½ D: Jack Couffer. Susan Hampshire, Nigel Davenport, Geoffrey Keen. Sequel to BORN FREE details further adventures of lioness Elsa and her three cubs. Nice photography but far too leisurely. [G] ▼

Living in a Big Way (1947) 103m.  D: Gregory La Cava. Gene Kelly, Marie McDonald, Charles Winninger, Phyllis Thaxter, Spring Byington. Kelly returns from WW2 to get to know his war bride for the first time and clashes with her nouveau family. A notorious flop in its day, but not all that bad; Kelly does a couple of first-rate dance numbers. ▼

Living in Oblivion (1995) C/B&W-91m.  D: Tom DiCillo. Steve Buscemi, Catherine Keener, Dermot Mulroney, Danielle Von Zerneck, James Le Gros, Rica Martens, Peter Dinklage, Hilary Gifford, Michael Griffiths, Matthew Grace, Robert Wightman. Clever, amusing look at a low-budget movie in progress, from several points of view. Writer-director DiCillo has several tricks up his sleeve to go along with his pointed perceptions about how egos collide—and how things go wrong on every movie set. Most of the cast also worked behind the scenes. [R] ▼●●

Living It Up (1954) C-95m.  D: Norman Taurog. Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis, Janet Leigh, Edward Arnold, Fred Clark, Sheree North, Sig Ruman. Bright remake of NOTHING SACRED. Jerry has Carole Lombard's role as supposed radiation victim brought to N.Y.C. as publicity stunt by reporter Leigh; Martin is Jerry's doctor. Scene at Yankee Stadium is a classic. That's sexy Sheree North, in her film debut, doing what was billed as "the first rock 'n' roll dance on the screen." ▼

Living Out Loud (1998) C-100m. ½ D: Richard LaGravenese. Holly Hunter, Danny DeVito, Queen Latifah, Martin Donovan, Richard Schiff, Elias Koteas, Suzanne Shepherd, Rachael Leigh Cook. Deeply felt comedy-drama about loneliness, focusing on a woman who can't get over the breakup of her marriage and an elevator operator in her Manhattan building who falls in love with her. Because there's no strong storyline it bobs and weaves a bit, but there are many fine vignettes and moments of truth . . . and a dynamite opening, with Latifah singing a beautiful rendition of "Lush Life." Inspired in part by two Chekhov short stories. Directing debut for top screenwriter LaGravenese. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Livin' Large (1991) C-96m.  D: Michael Schultz. Terrence "T.C." Carson, Lisa Arrindell, Blanche Baker, Nathaniel "Afrika" Hall, Julia Campbell, Bernie McInerney, Loretta Devine. Young streetwise black desperately wants to be a TV newsman—and gets his chance by sheer fluke; then he learns that staying on top in the TV game means selling his soul. Farcical comedy has moments, but grows increasingly shallow, predictable; only energetic, likable cast keeps it alive. [R]▼●●

Lizzie (1957) 81m. ½ D: Hugo Haas. Eleanor Parker, Richard Boone, Joan Blondell, Hugo Haas, Ric Roman, Marion Ross, Johnny Mathis. Interesting, if ultimately pedantic, adaptation of Shirley Jackson's The Bird's Nest, with Parker as a mousy woman who turns out to have three distinct personalities. Boone is a psychiatrist trying to help her. A project of rare distinction for cultish director Haas, though he injects his familiar personality by playing a kibitzing neighbor. Parker is excellent. Eclipsed by release of similar (and superior) THE THREE FACES OF EVE soon after.

Lizzie McGuire Movie, The (2003) C-90m. ½ D: Jim Fall. Hilary Duff, Adam Lamberg, Hallie Todd, Robert Carradine, Jake Thomas, Ashlie Brillault, Clayton Snyder, Alex Borstein, Yani Gellman. A teenage girl travels to Rome with her classmates and meets a handsome Italian pop star who offers her romance and adventure—not to mention the chance of posing as his singing partner. Innocuous feature film based on the popular Disney Channel TV series for preadolescent girls. Punctuated by amusing animated vignettes designed by Debra Solomon—including a final nod to Tinker Bell. Super 35. [PG]▼●

Lloyd's of London (1936) 115m. ½ D: Henry King. Freddie Bartholomew, Madeleine Carroll, Sir Guy Standing, Tyrone Power, C. Aubrey Smith, Virginia Field, George Sanders. Handsomely mounted fiction of rise of British insurance company; young messenger boy Bartholomew grows up to be Power, who competes with Sanders for affection of Carroll.▼

Loaded (1994-British-New Zealand) C-105m. ½ D: Anna Campion. Oliver Milburn, Nick Patrick, Catherine McCormack, Thandie Newton, Mathew Eggleton, Danny Cunningham, Biddy Hodson, Dearbhla Molloy. Seven young-adult friends spend a weekend in the British countryside to make an amateur horror movie. They are by turns aimless, repressed, rebellious, scared (etc.); before the weekend ends, recklessness and tragedy permanently alter their relationships. Slow-moving but worthwhile film. Feature directing debut for Anna Campion, sister of director Jane. [R]▼●●

Local Color (2006) C-107m.  D: George Gallo. Armin Mueller-Stahl, Trevor Morgan, Ray Liotta, Diana Scarwid, Samantha Mathis, Ron Perlman, Julie Lott, Charles Durning. Teenaged boy with a passion to paint attaches himself to a Russian émigré who's a great artist—and a foul-mouthed iconoclast. Over the course of a season at the painter's rural summer home the boy soaks up life lessons that will inform his art. Mueller-Stahl is wonderful, and the youthful Morgan keeps up with him at every turn. Deeply felt autobiographical drama by Gallo. Digital Widescreen.

Local Hero (1983-British) C-111m. ½ D: Bill Forsyth. Peter Riegert, Burt Lancaster, Fulton MacKay, Denis Lawson, Norman Chancer, Peter Capaldi, Jenny Seagrove. Enchantingly off-kilter comedy about an oil company rep (Riegert) who's assigned to buy up a Scottish coastal village which is badly needed for a refinery site. Nothing normal or predictable happens from that point on; writer-director Forsyth is more interested in quirkiness than belly-laugh gags, and his film is overflowing with ingenious characters and incidents. A little gem. [PG]▼●●

Local Stigmatic, The (1990) C-54m. ½ D: David Wheeler. Al Pacino, Paul Guilfoyle, Joe (Joseph) Maher, Michael Higgins, Brian Mallon. Lots of chatter in this mostly two-character exploration of envy and evil, centering on a pair of disaffected British hooligans (Pacino, Guilfoyle) who converse, go to a movie, drink in a pub—and commit a senseless act of violence. Not terribly cinematic—which was Pacino's intention—but a must for Pacino completists, as he offers a bravura performance. Based on a one-act play by Heathcote Williams (in which Pacino starred onstage in 1969). Never released theatrically.▶

Loch Ness (1996-British) C-101m. ½ D: John Henderson. Ted Danson, Joely Richardson, Ian Holm, Harris Yulin, James Frain, Kirsty Graham, Keith Allen, Nick Brimble. Lighthearted adventure-fantasy with jaded scientist Danson going to Scotland to prove Loch Ness monster is a hoax, only to discover some real magic and fall in love with single mom Richardson. Innocuous, but amiable, family fare. U.S. debut on network TV. Filmed in 1994. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Locket, The (1946) 86m.  D: John Brahm. Laraine Day, Brian Aherne, Robert Mitchum, Gene Raymond, Sharyn Moffet, Ricardo Cortez. Another of those post-WW2 psychological dramas, with Day as a woman who makes men fall in love with her—blinding them to her true personality (and problems). Famed for its flashback within a flashback within a flashback . . . but not very good. Look for young brunette Martha Hyer as a party guest and Ellen Corby as a household servant. ●

Lock, Stock and Two Smoking Barrels (1998-U.S.-British) C-106m. ½ D: Guy Ritchie. Jason Flemyng, Dexter Fletcher, Nick Moran, Jason Statham, Steven Mackintosh, Vinnie Jones, Sting, Lenny McLean, P. H. Moriarty. PULP FICTION, British style: a young smart aleck tries to beat a professional gambling ring and sinks in over his head, while others peripheral to this action are drawn into a vortex of coincidence, misunderstanding, and violence. Outlandish, audacious, and funny, though it wears thin after a while, and its ultimate resolution is apparent a bit too soon. Followed by SNATCH. [R] ▼ ● ●

Lock Up (1989) C-106m. *½ D: John Flynn. Sylvester Stallone, Donald Sutherland, Darlanne Fluegel, John Amos, Sonny Landham, Tom Sizemore, Frank McRae. With six months to go on his sentence, convict Stallone gets abducted from his country-club cell and transported to a hellhole run by old Hun-like adversary Sutherland. Missing are Linda Blair, John Vernon, a lesbian guard, and 15 gratuitous showers; you do get a body-shop montage backed by Ides of March's "Vehicle." Bottom of the world, ma. [R] ▼ ● ●

Lock Up Your Daughters! (1969-British) C-102m. BOMB D: Peter Coe. Christopher Plummer, Susannah York, Glynis Johns, Ian Bannen, Tom Bell, Elaine Taylor. Film version of Henry Fielding play tries to be another TOM JONES, but tale of mistaken identities in 18th-century England couldn't be more forced. [R]

Locusts, The (1997) C-124m. *½ D: John Patrick Kelley. Ashley Judd, Kate Capshaw, Paul Rudd, Jeremy Davies, Vince Vaughn, Jessica Capshaw. A hunk of a drifter comes to town and is hired by oversexed ranch queen Kate Capshaw to work for her, both day and night; along the way, he develops a friendship with her highly disturbed son. Brooding drama of cruel family secrets gives viewers a reprieve whenever local-girl-with-a-heart-of-gold Judd is on-screen. Set in 1950s Kansas. Super 35. [R] ▼ ● ●

Lodger, The (1926-British) 75m.  D: Alfred Hitchcock. Ivor Novello, Malcolm Keen, June, Marie Ault, Arthur Chesney. The director's first suspense thriller, with a classic Hitchcockian theme: lodger Novello is accused by jealous detective Keen of being a killer. Memorable finale: Novello chased by bloodthirsty mob. Aka THE CASE OF JONATHAN DREW. Remade in 1932 (again with Novello), 1944, and in 1954 as MAN IN THE ATTIC. Look for Hitchcock's first cameo. ▼ ●

lodger at a turn-of-the-century London boarding house may be Jack the Ripper. Good, atmospheric chiller with fine performances. Remade as MAN IN THE ATTIC. ●

Logan's Run (1976) C-120m.  D: Michael Anderson. Michael York, Jenny Agutter, Richard Jordan, Peter Ustinov, Farrah Fawcett-Majors, Roscoe Lee Browne. Dazzling first half, showing life of unending pleasure and extinction at age 30 in the year 2274, canceled out by dreary second half. Earned a special Oscar for visual effects. From novel by William F. Nolan and George Clayton Johnson. Later a brief TV series. Todd-AO 35. [PG] ▼ ● ●

Loggerheads (2005) C-96m.  D: Tim Kirkman. Bonnie Hunt, Kip Pardue, Tess Harper, Chris Sarandon, Michael Learned, Michael Kelly, Robin Weigert. Sincere, low-key drama of several lives that intersect in North Carolina during the 1990s: a drifter who knows he hasn't long to live strives to help endangered turtles on the Carolina shore . . . a woman who's haunted by thoughts of the child she gave up for adoption nearly 20 years earlier . . . and a preacher's wife who has regrets about having driven away her gay son. Everyone hits the right notes in this simply told drama, inspired by a real woman's encounter with adoption bureaucracy in her state. Kirkman also scripted. [PG-13] ●

Lola (1961-French) 90m.  D: Jacques Demy. Anouk Aimée, Marc Michel, Jacques Harden, Alan Scott, Elina Labourdette. Contemporary fable of love, with several disparate people's lives intertwining in port city of Nantes. Aimée is enchanting as cabaret dancer and carefree single mother; Michel is young man looking for life's meaning—and romance. Demy's first feature successfully links coincidence and Hollywood-movie fantasy with '60s realism and sexual frankness. References to Lola pop up in Demy's later films. Music score by Michel Legrand; film is dedicated to Max Ophüls. Franscope. ▼ ●

Lola (1969-British-Italian) C-88m.  D: Richard Donner. Charles Bronson, Susan George, Trevor Howard, Michael Craig, Honor Blackman, Lionel Jeffries, Robert Morley, Jack Hawkins, Orson Bean, Kay Medford, Paul Ford. Sixteen-year-old nymphet initiates relationship with 38-year-old porno book writer; hyperkinetic film misses target, despite good cast and likable performance by Bronson. Released in England as TWINKY, at 98m. Aka STATUTORY AFFAIR. [PG] ▼ ●

Lola (1982-German) C-114m. ½ D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Barbara Sukowa, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Mario Adorf, Mathias Fuchs, Helga Feddersen, Karin Baal, Ivan Desny. Brilliantly directed and edited chronicle of repercussions when cynical, calculating singer-whore Sukowa sets sights on respectable Mueller-Stahl, the new Building Commissioner and only honest politician in town. Striking, unusual use of lighting and color. One-third of Fassbinder's trilogy of life in postwar Germany (with THE MARRIAGE OF MARIA BRAUN and VERONIKA VOSS). [R] ●

Lola Montes (1955-French) C-115m.  D: Max Ophuls. Martine Carol, Peter Ustinov, Anton Walbrook, Oskar Werner, Ivan Desny. Legendary film about beautiful circus performer and her effect on various men nonetheless suffers from Carol's lack of magnetism in title role. Ophuls makes superb use of widescreen and color; the celebrated director's last film. Aka THE SINS OF LOLA MONTES. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Lolita (1962-British) 152m.  D: Stanley Kubrick. James Mason, Shelley Winters, Peter Sellers, Sue Lyon, Marianne Stone, Diana Decker. Sexually precocious Lyon becomes involved with stolid professor Mason, and bizarre Sellers provides peculiar romance leading to murder and lust. Screenplay for this genuinely strange film is credited to Vladimir Nabokov, who wrote the novel of the same name, but bears little relation to his actual script, later published. Winters is outstanding as Lyon's sex-starved mother. Reissued in U.S. with 1m. of additional dialogue from British version. Remade in 1997. ▼●●

Lolita (1997-British-French) C-137m. ½ D: Adrian Lyne. Jeremy Irons, Melanie Griffith, Dominique Swain, Frank Langella, Suzanne Shepherd. Exceptional remake of Vladimir Nabokov's notorious novel about a man's overwhelming (and ultimately, self-destructive) infatuation with a nymphet. In this version we're told the source of his obsession, which is just one reason it stands up against Kubrick's 1962 version and in some ways surpasses it . . . though Peter Sellers is sorely missed. Irons is a perfect Humbert, Swain ideal as his object of desire. Screenplay by Stephen Schiff. [R] ▼●

Lolly Madonna XXX (1973) C-103m. * D: Richard C. Sarafian. Rod Steiger, Robert Ryan, Jeff Bridges, Scott Wilson, Season Hubley, Katherine Squire, Ed Lauter, Gary Busey, Randy Quaid. Modern-day Hatfield-McCoy feud erupts between two backwoods families, prompted by mistaken identity situation involving innocent girl (Hubley). Histrionics galore, but no point to it at all. Aka THE LOLLY-MADONNA WAR. Panavision. [PG]

plays a woman named London, the object of Evans' affection who broke up with him; as the film goes on it's easy to see why. Most of the action occurs in the bathroom as Evans and Statham do drugs, drink, and discuss God, love, and all of life's Big Questions. Depressing and drawn out, with graphic sex and nudity, but there are no revelations, resolutions, or warm feelings here. Super 35. [R] ●

London Kills Me (1991-British) C-107m. BOMB D: Hanif Kureishi. Justin Chadwick, Steven Mackintosh, Fiona Shaw, Emer McCourt, Brad Dourif, Roshan Seth, Tony Haygarth, Stavan Rimkus, Eleanor David, Alun Armstrong. Glossy, phony tale of a homeless, rootless young man who steals and deals drugs, and decides he wants to go straight. This shallow cop-out of a movie does little more than serve as a recruiting poster for thieving and shooting heroin. Directorial debut of playwright-screenwriter Kureishi (MY BEAUTIFUL LAUNDRETTE, SAMMY AND ROSIE GET LAID). [R] ▼

Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner, The (1962-British) 103m.  D: Tony Richardson. Michael Redgrave, Tom Courtenay, Avis Bunnage, Peter Madden, Alec McCowen, James Fox, Julia Foster, John Thaw. Engrossing story of rebellious young man chosen to represent reform school in track race. Superbly acted film confronts society, its mores and institutions. Screenplay by Alan Sillitoe, from his own story. Key British film of 1960s. ▼●●

Lonely Guy, The (1984) C-90m. ½ D: Arthur Hiller. Steve Martin, Charles Grodin, Judith Ivey, Robyn Douglass, Steve Lawrence, Merv Griffin, Dr. Joyce Brothers. Unusually subdued and offbeat vehicle for Martin, who's quite likable as a nerd-ish type who's just been thrown out by his girlfriend . . . only to find he's not alone. Grodin is a delight as a melancholy soulmate who inducts him into the society of Lonely Guys in N.Y.C. Too prolonged and uneven. Based on Bruce Jay Friedman's book The Lonely Guy's Book of Life. Adapted by Neil Simon, scripted by Ed. Weinberger and Stan Daniels. [R] ▼●●

Lonelyhearts (1958) 101m. ½ D: Vincent J. Donohue. Montgomery Clift, Robert Ryan, Myrna Loy, Dolores Hart, Maureen Stapleton, Frank Maxwell, Jackie Coogan, Mike Kellin. Superior cast in interesting adaptation of Nathanael West's book and Howard Teichmann's play, both titled Miss Lonelyhearts.

Clift is would-be reporter assigned to title column and becomes too deeply involved in the problems of his readers. A bit dated by today's standards, but watchable; scripted and produced by Dore Schary. West's book had previously been filmed as ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN. Film debuts of Stapleton and director Donehue. ▼

Lonely Hearts (1981-Australian) C-95m.  D: Paul Cox. Wendy Hughes, Norman Kaye, Jon Finlayson, Julia Blake, Jonathan Hardy. Delightfully quirky romantic comedy about an unlikely match—a middle-aged piano tuner with a flair for theatrics, and a painfully shy office worker. Lovely performances match director Cox's offbeat screenplay. [R] ▼ ● ●

Lonely Hearts (2007-U.S.-German) C-107m.  D: Todd Robinson. John Travolta, Salma Hayek, James Gandolfini, Jared Leto, Scott Caan, Laura Dern, Alice Krige, Dagmara Dominczyk, Michael Rispoli, Ellen Travolta. Real-life story of Ray Fernandez (Leto), who conned women who advertised in "lonely hearts" newspaper ads, and how his twisted relationship with Martha Beck (Hayek) led to a series of grisly murders in the 1940s. Travolta plays Nassau County detective Elmer Robinson (grandfather of this film's writer-director), who became obsessed with capturing these heartless killers. Uninspired treatment of acutely unpleasant material, dramatized before in THE HONEYMOON KILLERS and DEEP CRIMSON. Super 35. [R] ●

Lonely Lady, The (1983) C-92m. BOMB D: Peter Sasdy. Pia Zadora, Lloyd Bohner, Bibi Besch, Joseph Cali, Anthony Holland, Jared Martin, Ray Liotta, Kenneth Nelson. Terrible movie about an aspiring screenwriter who's used and abused while on her way to the Top in Hollywood; adapted from the Harold Robbins novel. Pia does her best, but this is rock-bottom stuff, not even fun on a trash level (although there's campy dialogue to spare). Filmed mostly in Italy. [R] ▼ ● ●

Lonely Passion of Judith Hearne, The (1987-British) C-116m. ½ D: Jack Clayton. Maggie Smith, Bob Hoskins, Wendy Hiller, Marie Kean, Ian McNeice, Alan Devlin, Rudi Davies, Prunella Scales. Smith gives a knockout performance as a lonely, driven Irish woman whose life takes another turn for the worse after moving into a boardinghouse run by snippy Kean. Hoskins is equally fine as a garrulous gentleman with whom she sparks a relationship based on mutual misunderstanding. All the performances are superb in this adaptation of Brian Moore's 1955 novel about a woman's blind faith in the church—and total lack of faith in herself. . . . but the story has a few too many peaks and valleys. [R] ▼

Lone Ranger, The (1956) C-86m. ½ D: Stuart Heisler. Clayton Moore, Jay Silverheels, Lyle Bettger, Bonita Granville,

Perry Lopez, Robert J. Wilke. Action-packed feature version of the popular TV series, focusing on the Masked Man and Tonto as they tangle with scheming rancher Bettger, who has been stirring up trouble with the Indians. ▼ ●

Lone Ranger and the Lost City of Gold, The (1958) C-80m.  D: Lesley Selander. Clayton Moore, Jay Silverheels, Douglas Kennedy, Charles Watts. Typical Lone Ranger Western is fine for younger audiences, involving hooded killers and mysterious clues to a hidden treasure city. ▼ ●

Lonesome Jim (2006) C-91m.  D: Steve Buscemi. Casey Affleck, Liv Tyler, Mary Kay Place, Seymour Cassel, Kevin Corrigan, Jack Rovello, Mark Boone Junior. A young man of vague ambition who's failed in N.Y.C. has nowhere to go but home to Indiana, where he is less than thrilled to be with his parents again. Suffering from "chronic despair," he doesn't know how to deal with a nice, non-neurotic woman he meets. So low-key it makes a Jim Jarmusch film seem like PEARL HARBOR, but grows on you, especially if you share its sly, specific (and dark) sense of humor. Affleck is terrific. Written by novelist James C. Strouse. [R] ●

Lone Star (1952) 94m. ½ D: Vincent Sherman. Clark Gable, Ava Gardner, Lionel Barrymore, Beulah Bondi, Broderick Crawford, Ed Begley. Texas fights for independence, with good guy Gable vs. badman Crawford, Ava the woman in between. OK oater. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Lone Star (1996) C-134m.  D: John Sayles. Kris Kristofferson, Chris Cooper, Elizabeth Peña, Joe Morton, Ron Canada, Miriam Colon, Clifton James, Matthew McConaughey, Stephen J. Lang, Tony Plana, Frances McDormand. Absorbing multicharacter story set in small Texas border town, where the memory of a former sheriff looms large—especially to his son, who's the current lawman. Keenly observed character studies are woven together by writer-director Sayles with his usual eye for detail and ear for good dialogue. Super 35. [R] ▼ ● ●

The Lone Wolf series SEE: Leonard Maltin's Classic Movie Guide

Lone Wolf & Cub: Sword of Vengeance (1972-Japanese) C-83m.  D: Kenji Misumi. Tomisaburo Wakayama, Yunosuke Ito, Fumio Watanabe, Shigeru Tsuyuguchi, Tomoko Mayama, Tomoo Uchida. In 17th-century Japan, Itto Ogami (Wakayama), the Shogun's executioner, is framed by the Yagyu clan, who also murder his wife. Embittered, he becomes a traveling assassin for hire, wheeling his young son Daigoro around Japan in a baby cart loaded with more gadgets than James Bond's Aston-Martin. First in the outstanding series is largely a setup for the sequels; beautifully stylized, gorily violent, and intelligent. Based on a long-running manga series written by Kazuo Koike, illustrated by Goseki Kojima. LIGHTNING SWORDS OF DEATH and SHOGUN ASSASSIN were composed of segments from this and/or the sequels. Tohoscope. ▼●●

Lone Wolf and Cub 2: Baby Cart at the River Styx (1972-Japanese) C-81m. ½ D: Kenji Misumi. Tomisaburo Wakayama, Kayo Matsuo, Minoru Ooki, Shooji Kobayashi, Shin Kishida, Akihiro Tomikawa. Ogami is hired to kill a defecting worker who knows the secret of a dye process, the basis of the prosperity of a province. Best in the series, with amazing fights (Ogami is attacked with a radish at one point), photography, period atmosphere, and a sense of humor about itself. As with all in the series, very violent and bloody. Tohoscope. ▼●●

Lone Wolf & Cub 3: Baby Cart to Hades (1972-Japanese) C-89m.  D: Kenji Misumi. Tomisaburo Wakayama, Goo Katoo, Yuuko Hama, Isao Yamagata, Michitaro Mizushima, Ichiroo Takatani. A man whose insane lord was betrayed hires Ogami to kill the betrayer, now an important official. First in the series to climax with Wakayama defeating a virtual army singlehanded. More conventional than usual, it's still an accomplished, stylish film. Tohoscope. ▼●●

Lone Wolf & Cub 4: Baby Cart in Peril (1972-Japanese) C-81m. ½ D: Buiichi Saito. Tomisaburo Wakayama, Yooichi Hayashi, Michie Azuma, Akihiro Tomikawa, So Yamamura. Ogami is hired to kill a tattooed woman, an expert with a short sword, who's carving up those connected to the man who raped her. Meanwhile, more Yagyū assassins try to kill our stone-faced hero. Stylistically overblown, with flashbacks, narration, and voice-overs galore; slowly paced, but has a great climactic fight. Tohoscope. ▼●●

Lone Wolf & Cub 5: Baby Cart in the Land of Demons (1973-Japanese) C-89m.  D: Kenji Misumi. Tomisaburo Wakayama, Michiyo Yasuda, Akihiro Tomikawa, Shingo Yamashiro, Tomomi Satou, Akira Yamauchi. One by one, five samurai face Ogami to test his skills before hiring him. As each one dies, he gives Ogami another part of his instructions: to kill their lord, his concubine, and their five-year-old daughter. Grimmiest of the lot, but also graced with the finest photography in the series and a powerful incident centering on Ogami's young son. Tohoscope. ▼●●

Lone Wolf & Cub 6: White Heaven in Hell (1974-Japanese) C-83m  D: Yoshiyuki Kuroda. Tomisaburo Wakayama, Akihiro Tomikawa, Junko Hitomi, Goroo Mutsumi, Minoru Ooki, Isao Kimura. Ogami is confronted by the last remaining son of his arch-enemy; this time, the supernatural plays a part, and for the first time the Lone Wolf is afraid—but not for long. Particularly resembles the comic books. Robust battle on a snowy mountain climaxes the series, one of the best, not just in Japanese cinema history, but world cinema. Tohoscope. ▼●●

Lone Wolf McQuade (1983) C-107m. ½ D: Steve Carver. Chuck Norris, David Carradine, Barbara Carrera, Leon Isaac Kennedy, Robert Beltran, L.Q. Jones, R.G. Armstrong, Sharon Farrell. Maverick Texas Ranger Norris takes on gun-running operation headed by Carradine. Played as a spaghetti Western, providing perfect milieu for Norris' fighting skills. A little long, with a sappy emotional sub-plot. [PG] ▼●●

Long Ago Tomorrow (1970-British) C-100m.  D: Bryan Forbes. Malcolm McDowell, Nanette Newman, Georgia Brown, Bernard Lee, Gerald Sim, Michael Flanders. Rather wrong-headed drama of love between paraplegics. Could have been sensitive if script and direction weren't so porous and obvious. Original British title: THE RAGING MOON. [PG] ▼

Long and the Short and the Tall, The (1961-British) 105m.  D: Leslie Norman. Richard Todd, Laurence Harvey, Richard Harris, David McCallum, Ronald Fraser. Well-delineated account of British patrol unit during WW2, focusing on their conflicting personalities and raids on Japanese. Retitled: JUNGLE FIGHTERS.

Long Arm, The SEE: Third Key, The Long, Dark Night, The SEE: Pack, The
Long Day Closes, The (1992-British) C-83m.  D: Terence Davies. Leigh McCormack, Marjorie Yates, Anthony Watson, Aysee Owens, Nicholas Lamont, Tina Malone. Poignant, painterly slice-of-life remembrance by writer-director Davies of working-class England in the 1950s. The depiction of family life is far rosier than in Davies' DISTANT VOICES, STILL LIVES, as a dreary postwar England yearns for an idealized beauty found in Hollywood movies and romantic pop songs. [PG] ▼

Long Day's Dying, The (1968-British) C-93m. *½ D: Peter Collinson. David Hemmings, Tom Bell, Tony Beckley, Alan Dobie. Dull story of three British soldiers and their German captive during weary trek through European countryside. Techniscope. [R]

Long Day's Journey Into Night (1962) 174m. * D: Sidney Lumet. Katharine Hepburn, Ralph Richardson, Jason Robards, Jr., Dean Stockwell, Jeanne Barr. Faithful, stagy adaptation of Eugene O'Neill's detailed study of family in the 1910s. Hepburn is dope-addicted wife, Richardson her pompous actor husband, Stockwell the son dying of TB, and Robards the alcoholic son. Later cut to 136m. Remade for TV in 1987 with Jack Lemmon. ▼●●

Longest Yard, The (2005) C-107m. ½ D: Peter Segal. Adam Sandler, Chris Rock, Burt Reynolds, William Fichtner, Nelly, Michael Irvin, James Cromwell, Nick Turturro, Terry Crews, Cloris Leachman, Courteney Cox, Tracy Morgan. By-the-numbers remake (the second, after MEAN MACHINE) with Sandler as the disgraced former pro quarterback who is sent up the river. There, he is coerced by the hard-nosed warden (Cromwell) into creating a football team out of fellow inmates. Blends comedy and violence as well as the 1974 film, but lacks its freshness and spark. Reynolds takes over the Michael Conrad role with a knowing wink. (Ed Lauter shows up, too.) Populated with many recognizable sports figures . . . and, yes, Rob Schneider. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Long Goodbye, The (1973) C-112m. ½ D: Robert Altman. Elliott Gould, Nina Van Pallandt, Sterling Hayden, Henry Gibson, Mark Rydell, Jim Bouton, David Arkin, Warren Berlinger. Strange, almost spoofy updating of Raymond Chandler's novel, with Gould as a shabby Philip Marlowe involved with mysterious Van Pallandt, alcoholic Hayden, evil Gibson, missing pal Bouton, and Jewish gangster Rydell.

Some nice touches, especially John Williams' jokey score, but Altman's attitude toward the genre borders on contempt. Screenplay by Leigh Brackett, who had earlier coscripted THE BIG SLEEP. Look for Arnold Schwarzenegger as a muscleman, David Carradine as a prisoner. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Long Good Friday, The (1980-British) C-114m. ½ D: John Mackenzie. Bob Hoskins, Helen Mirren, Eddie Constantine, Dave King, Bryan Marshall, Derek Thompson, George Coulouris, Stephen Davies, Pierce Brosnan. Occasionally confusing but otherwise terrific portrait of hoodlum rivalry in contemporary London; takes its rightful place with the best gangster movies of all time. Hoskins, brilliant as underworld entrepreneur, is matched by Mirren as subtly sexy mistress. Original screenplay by Barry Keefe. [R] ▼●●

Long Hot Summer, The (1958) C-117m.  D: Martin Ritt. Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward, Anthony Franciosa, Orson Welles, Lee Remick, Angela Lansbury. Well-blended William Faulkner short stories make a flavorful, brooding drama of domineering Southerner (Welles) and a wandering handyman (Newman), who decides to stick around and marry daughter Woodward. Excellent Alex North score, weak finish to strong film; the Newmans' first film together. Remade for TV with Don Johnson. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Long John Silver (1954-Australian) C-109m. ½ D: Byron Haskin. Robert Newton, Connie Gilchrist, Kit Taylor, Grant Taylor. Newton reprises title role from TREASURE ISLAND (with same director as the Disney film) and chews the scenery in this loose adaptation of Robert Louis Stevenson. Look for Rod Taylor in a small role. Aka RETURN TO TREASURE ISLAND. CinemaScope. ▼●

Long Kiss Goodnight, The (1996) C-120m. ½ D: Renny Harlin. Geena Davis, Samuel L. Jackson, Craig Bierko, Yvonne Zima, Tom Amandes, Brian Cox, Patrick Malahide, David Morse, Joseph McKenna, G. D. Spradlin, Alan North. If you find a kitchen sink, it's the one screenwriter Shane Black forgot to throw into this over-the-top action yarn, which starts out seriously, then changes tone. Davis plays an amnesiac with a young daughter, whose happy life is disrupted when she's forced to confront her past—as a professional undercover assassin! Jackson is a low-rent private eye who goes along for this roller-coaster ride, full of

large-scale stunts and humor with Davis as a combination Pauline (as in PERILS OF . . .) and Rambo. No one seems to mind or care that a child is also part of the mayhem. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Long, Long Trailer, The (1954) C-96m. ½ D: Vincente Minnelli. Lucille Ball, Desi Arnaz, Marjorie Main, Keenan Wynn, Gladys Hurlbut. Lucy and Desi decide to spend their honeymoon visiting scenic spots in the West, traveling and living in the 50-foot house trailer of the title (a perfect "vehicle" for a CinemaScope movie). Though based on the popular novel by Clinton Twiss, this enduringly popular slapstick comedy is almost an I Love Lucy episode on wheels. CinemaScope.▼●●

Long Night, The (1947) 101m.  D: Anatole Litvak. Henry Fonda, Barbara Bel Geddes, Vincent Price, Ann Dvorak, Howard Freeman, Elisha Cook, Jr., Queenie Smith, Charles McGraw. Factory worker Fonda kills Price, then holes up in his boarding house (besieged by police) and relives in flashbacks, and flashbacks within flashbacks, the events leading up to his predicament. Plodding and sullen; a long night indeed. Remake of Jean Gabin film LE JOUR SE LEVE.▼●

Long Ride from Hell, A (1970-Italian) C-94m. *½ D: Alex Burks (Camillo Bazzoni). Steve Reeves, Wayne Preston, Dick Palmer, Silvana Venturilli, Lee Burton, Ted Carter. Title is another instance of truth-in-advertising; dreary Western co-authored by Reeves has to do with rancher who tries to clear himself of phony train-robbery charge. [R]●

Long Riders, The (1980) C-100m.  D: Walter Hill. David, Keith and Robert Carradine, Stacy and James Keach, Randy and Dennis Quaid, Nicholas and Christopher Guest, Pamela Reed, Savannah Smith, James Whitmore, Jr., Harry Carey, Jr. All in the Family out West. The Carradines, Keaches, Quaid, and Guests portray, respectively, the Younger, James, Miller, and Ford brothers in this stylish but extremely bloody film. Typically meticulous direction by Hill, with David Carradine and Reed igniting sparks as Cole Younger and Belle Starr. Excellent score by Ry Cooder. [R]▼●●

Long Ships, The (1964-British-Yugoslavian) C-125m.  D: Jack Cardiff. Richard Widmark, Sidney Poitier, Rosanna Schiaffino, Russ Tamblyn, Oscar Homolka, Colin Blakely. Four lower-middle-class losers borrow $5,000 from the local break-ya-fingas financier to finance a sure thing at the track. Pathetic comedy is full of toilet gags and can't even coast on the good will established by the cast in better days. Mike Nichols (Mike Nichols!!!) executive-produced. [PG-13]▼●

Longshots, The (2008) C-94m.  D: Fred Durst. Ice Cube, Keke Palmer, Tasha Smith, Dash Mihok, Matt Craven, Glenn Plummer, Garrett Morris, Jill Marie Jones, Michael Colyar, Malcolm Goodwin. Routine "inspirational" drama based on true story of a young girl who becomes the only female on a Pop Warner football team. Urged on and later coached by her ne'er-do-well uncle, a former pro player now fallen on hard times, she quarterback a footloose, ragtag group right to the cusp of junior pigskin glory. As she proved in AKEELAH AND THE BEE, Palmer is endearing and irresistible, while Cube gets his best screen outing in a while . . . but neither of them can rescue this by-the-numbers family film swimming in sports-movie clichés. Super 35. [PG]●

Longtime Companion (1990) C-96m.  D: Norman René. Stephen Caffrey, Patrick Cassidy, Brian Cousins, Bruce Davison, John Dossett, Mark Lamos, Dermot Mulrooney, Mary-Louise Parker, Michael Schoeffling, Campbell Scott, Robert Joy. Emotional pre-PHILADELPHIA examination of AIDS in the '80s, focusing on a closely knit group of gay men in N.Y.C. Film spans the entire decade, from first reports of a mystery illness to a time when the disease became a tragic part of everyday life. Craig Lucas's script is insightful, heart-wrenching, and funny. Entire cast is excellent, especially Davison. A PBS American Playhouse presentation. [R]▼●●

John Wayne, Thomas Mitchell, Ian Hunter, Ward Bond, Barry Fitzgerald, Wilfrid Lawson, Mildred Natwick, John Qualen, Arthur Shields, Joe Sawyer, J. Warren Kerrigan. Evocative look at men who spend their lives at sea, adapted (by Dudley Nichols) from four short O'Neill plays. Richly textured drama with many beautiful vignettes; exquisitely photographed by Gregg Toland.▼●●

Long Walk Home, The (1990) C-97m.  D: Richard Pearce. Sissy Spacek, Whoopi Goldberg, Dwight Schultz, Ving Rhames, Dylan Baker; narrated by Mary Steenburgen. Perceptive, extremely well-acted account of the life and changing times in the segregated American South of the mid-1950s. The focus is on the consciousness-raising of Spacek, a privileged pillar of Southern womanhood; Goldberg is her hard-working housekeeper, who's struggling to help support her own family. Fine sense of period detail; most intriguing of all, John Cork's script mirrors the connection between feminism and the civil rights movement. [PG] ▼●●

Long Way Home, The (1997) C-119m. ½ D: Mark Jonathan Harris. Narrated by Morgan Freeman. Exceptional, Oscar-winning documentary about the incredible story of Jews who—once freed from Nazi concentration camps—were forced to endure yet another ordeal. Unwelcome in their homelands, bereft of families, they were held in squalid detention camps or arrested for illegal immigration until the formation of the state of Israel in 1948. Well told through the use of archival footage, on-camera interviews, and the words of survivors and participants. ▼●●

Look At Me (2004-French) C-110m.  D: Agnès Jaoui. Marilou Berry, Jean-Pierre Bacri, Agnès Jaoui, Laurent Gréville, Virginie Desarnauts, Keine Bouhiza. Another smart, sophisticated comedy from Jaoui (THE TASTE OF OTHERS) about a group of people who have all the answers for improving each other's lives but not a clue of what to do about their own. Flawless ensemble includes real-life husband and wife Jaoui and Bacri, who also cowrote the screenplay, set in the world of literature and music, but shining an all-knowing light on the mystery (and fragility) of human nature. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Look Back in Anger (1959-British) 99m. ½ D: Tony Richardson. Richard Burton, Claire Bloom, Edith Evans, Mary Ure, Gary Raymond, Glen Byam Shaw, Donald Pleasence. Look Both Ways (2005-Australian) C-100m.  D: Sarah Watt. Justine Clarke, William McInnes, Anthony Hayes, Lisa Flanagan, Andrew S. Gilbert, Daniela Farnacci, Sacha Horler, Maggie Dence. A woman who sees disaster lurking around every corner and a photojournalist who's facing a genuine health crisis meet under unusual circumstances and feel a connection between them. Meanwhile, everyone around them is dealing with their mortality in one way or another. Fresh, likeable comedy-drama tackles the biggest subjects of all—life and death—using animation to illustrate the characters' deepest fears. Feature debut for animator Watt, who also scripted. Winner of multiple Australian Film Institute awards, including Best Film. [PG-13] ●

Looker (1981) C-94m. BOMB D: Michael Crichton. Albert Finney, James Coburn, Susan Dey, Leigh Taylor-Young, Dorian

Harewood, Tim Rossovich, Darryl Hickman. Conglomerate head Coburn produces the computerized images of gorgeous models to hawk products and political candidates on TV—and also murders his subjects. As he is losing all his clients, Beverly Hills plastic surgeon Finney investigates. Intriguing premise is illogically and boringly handled; even Finney cannot save this turkey. Watch for Vanna White. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Looking for Comedy in the Muslim World (2006) C-96m. ½ D: Albert Brooks. Albert Brooks, Sheetal Sheth, John Carroll Lynch, Jon Tenney, Amy Ryan, Homie Doroodian, Fred Dalton Thompson, Penny Marshall. Brooks (playing his usual on-screen self) is asked by the U.S. government to bridge a vital cultural gap in the post-9/11 world by traveling to India and Pakistan to learn what makes Muslim people laugh. What might have been brilliant as a short is a bit mild at feature length but still has many funny and inspired moments as Brooks targets show-business egotists, government drones . . . and himself. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Looking for Love (1964) C-83m. BOMB D: Don Weis. Connie Francis, Susan Oliver, Jim Hutton, Barbara Nichols, Danny Thomas, Johnny Carson, George Hamilton, Paula Prentiss. They should have looked for a script instead. Plastic show-biz romance with little help from various guest stars, including Carson (who wound up making HORN BLOWS AT MIDNIGHT-type jokes about this—his first film appearance).

Looking for Mr. Goodbar (1977) C-135m. *½ D: Richard Brooks. Diane Keaton, Richard Gere, William Atherton, Tuesday Weld, Richard Kiley, LeVar Burton, Tom Berenger, Brian Dennehy. Sordid rewrite (by director Brooks) of Judith Rossner's novel begins as intelligent study of repressed young girl, then wallows endlessly in her new "liberated" lifestyle. Keaton's performance outclasses this pointless movie. Story recycled in the TVM TRACKDOWN: FINDING THE GOODBAR KILLER. [R] ▼●●

Looking for Richard (1996) C-109m. ½ D: Al Pacino. Al Pacino, Frederic Kimball, Harris Yulin, Penelope Allen, Alec Baldwin, Kevin Spacey, Estelle Parsons, Winona Ryder, Aidan Quinn. Fascinating documentary-style film about Pacino's staging of Richard III and his simultaneous exploration of the relevance of Shakespeare to people in every walk of life. Every scene is dissected—by actors and scholars—before we see it performed, bringing this play to vivid life, especially for those of us who

Looking Glass War, The (1970-British) C-108m. *½ D: Frank R. Pierson. Christopher Jones, Pia Degermark, Ralph Richardson, Anthony Hopkins, Paul Rogers, Susan George, Anna Massey, Ray McAnally, Vivien Pickles. Dull film version of John le Carré's best-seller has Jones risking his life to photograph a rocket in East Berlin. Good opportunity to study the leads' bone structure, since they never change facial expressions. Panavision. [M/PG] ▼●

Lookout, The (2007) C-102m. ½ D: Scott Frank. Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Jeff Daniels, Matthew Goode, Isla Fisher, Carla Gugino, Bruce McGill, Alberta Watson, Alex Borstein, Sergio Di Zio, David Huband. Onetime Midwest high school prince (Gordon-Levitt) now struggles through every day since surviving a devastating car accident. He shares an apartment with a sardonic blind man (Daniels) and holds down a simple job as night janitor at the local bank. This makes him a prime target for crafty Goode, who's planning a bank heist and needs an inside man to help. Cracker-jack thriller is also a superb (if dark) character study. Every person on-screen is well drawn, no matter how small the part; Gordon-Levitt is terrific as usual. Directing debut for screenwriter Frank. HD Widescreen. [R] ●

Looks and Smiles (1981-British) 104m.  D: Kenneth Loach. Graham Green, Carolyn Nicholson, Tony Pitts, Phil Ashham, Cilla Mason. Working-class teenager Green cannot find a job or place for himself in society. Solid, realistic story of alienation, frustration, anger. ●

Look Who's Laughing (1941) 78m.  D: Allan Dwan. Edgar Bergen, Jim and Marion Jordan (Fibber McGee and Molly), Lucille Ball, Harold Peary (The Great Gildersleeve), Lee Bonnell. Bergen's plane inadvertently lands in Wistful Vista, where he becomes involved in a municipal squabble with Fibber and Molly. Slim vehicle for radio favorites only comes alive when Charlie McCarthy takes the spotlight. ▼●●

Look Who's Talking (1989) C-90m.  D: Amy Heckerling. John Travolta, Kirstie Alley, Olympia Dukakis, George Segal, Abe Vigoda; voice of Bruce Willis. Amiable comedy about an unmarried woman who has a baby (by her no-good married boyfriend) and then sets out to find a suitable "daddy" for him. Good showcase for costars Alley and Travolta. Written by director Heckerling. One quibble: though set in N.Y.C., it's all too obvious that it was shot somewhere else (Vancouver, to be precise). Followed by two sequels and the TV series Baby Talk. [PG-13] ▼●●

Look Who's Talking Now (1993) C-92m.  D: Tom Ropelewski. John Travolta, Kirstie Alley, George Segal, Olympia Dukakis, David Gallagher, Tabitha Lupien, Lysette Anthony; voices of Danny DeVito, Diane Keaton. Third entry in the series isn't bad, thanks to some cute dogplay and the delightful voice-over work by DeVito and Keaton, as a kind of live-action LADY AND THE TRAMP, who wreak havoc on the lives of the Umbriccio family. Passable family entertainment. [PG-13] ▼●●

Look Who's Talking Too (1990) C-81m. BOMB D: Amy Heckerling. John Travolta, Kirstie Alley, Olympia Dukakis, Elias Koteas, Twink Caplan, Gilbert Gottfried, Lorne Sussman; voices of Bruce Willis, Roseanne Barr, Damon Wayans, Mel Brooks. Militantly offensive sequel adds a baby girl to the formula—with the voice of Barr. It took a million bad poo-poo jokes and a gratuitous Travolta dance number to pad the running time. Climactic apartment fire may traumatize young children. [PG-13] ▼●●

Looney, Looney, Looney Bugs Bunny Movie, The (1981) C-80m. ½ D: Friz Freleng. Voice of Mel Blanc. Feature-length compilation of classic Warner Bros. cartoons is divided into three parts. In the first, Yosemite Sam must return Bugs Bunny to the Devil in order to save his own soul. Second part has Bugs rescuing Tweety from gangsters Rocky and Mugsy. Third and best segment is a parody of Hollywood award shows featuring Freleng's wonderful 1957 cartoon THE THREE LITTLE BOPS. Also includes Bugs Bunny's Oscar-winning KNIGHTY KNIGHT BUGS (1958). Official billing is FRIZ FRELENG'S LOONEY, LOONEY, LOONEY BUGS BUNNY MOVIE. [G] ▼●

voices of Joe Alaskey, Billy West, Jeff Glenn Bennett, Bob Bergen. Humorless Warner Bros. V.P. of Comedy Elfman is forced to join forces with ex-studio guard Fraser to bring the recently fired Daffy Duck back to the studio, unaware that he's fallen prey to the machinations of the Acme Company's evil chairman (Martin). Bugs Bunny, Daffy, and friends are just as funny as ever, but the live-action story line is strained at best. Even obscure WB cartoon characters make brief but welcome appearances. As always, Dante fills his movie with in-jokes for buffs (watch carefully!) and cameos. Super 35. [PG] ▼

Loophole (1980-British) C-105m. ½ D: John Quested. Albert Finney, Martin Sheen, Susannah York, Colin Blakely, Jonathan Pryce, Robert Morley, Alfred Lynch, Christopher Guard. Slick but very ordinary caper film about an unemployed architect who's persuaded to participate in an ambitious break-in of "impenetrable" London bank. Aka BREAK IN. ▼

Loose Shoes (1980) C-74m. ½ D: Ira Miller. Bill Murray, Howard Hesseman, David Landsburg, Ed Lauter, Susan Tyrrell, Avery Schreiber, Misty Rowe, Jaye P. Morgan, Buddy Hackett, Murphy Dunne. Very mixed bag of spoofs of coming-attractions previews, some hilarious, some duds. Highlights: "Skateboarders From Hell," "The Yid and the Kid" (Chaplin), "The Sneaker" (Woody Allen), "Welcome to Bacon County," "Jewish Star Wars," and unbearably funny "Darktown After Dark." Dunne also composed score and songs. Filmed mostly in 1977. Originally titled COMING ATTRACTIONS. Aka QUACKERS. [R] ▼

Loot (1970-British) C-101m. ½ D: Silvio Narizzano. Lee Remick, Richard Attenborough, Roy Holder, Hywel Bennett, Milo O'Shea, Dick Emery, Joe Lynch. Frantic black comedy from Joe Orton's stage hit. Holder and Bennett knock over a bank, hide the swag in the coffin of the former's mother, and then have a spot of trouble retrieving it. Despite Mod trappings, basically an old-fashioned, door-slamming farce; funny for those in the mood. [PG—originally rated R] ▼

Lord Jim (1965) C-154m. ½ D: Richard Brooks. Peter O'Toole, James Mason,

Curt Jurgens, Eli Wallach, Jack Hawkins, Paul Lukas, Daliah Lavi, Akim Tamiroff. Overlong, uneven adaptation of Joseph Conrad's story about idealistic young man in British Merchant Marine in the 19th century discredited as a coward who lives with scar for the rest of his life. Film's great moments provided by outstanding supporting cast. Super Panavision 70. ▼

Lord Love a Duck (1966) 105m.  D: George Axelrod. Tuesday Weld, Roddy McDowall, Lola Albright, Martin West, Ruth Gordon, Harvey Korman, Martin Gabel, Sarah Marshall, Lynn Carey. Mad-cap black comedy about progressive Southern California high school where botany is called "plant skills." Film wears uncomfortably between comedy and drama at times, but really delivers some belly laughs. Terrific performances in movie that was ahead of its time. Directorial debut of co-writer Axelrod. ▼

Lord of Illusions (1995) C-108m. ½ D: Clive Barker. Scott Bakula, Kevin J. O'Connor, Famke Janssen, Vincent Schiavelli, Barry Del Sherman, Sheila Tousey, Joel Swetow, Joseph Latimore, Susan Traylor, Daniel Von Bargen, Barry Shabaka Henley. Private eye Bakula, a specialist in the supernatural, is in L.A. on a "normal" case when a stage magician is apparently killed during a performance. This is linked to the pending resurrection of an evil sorcerer, and soon Bakula is battling the forces of darkness again. Intelligent thriller, written by the director, is better than the usual genre fodder, but it's thinly plotted, and condescends slightly to its audience. Unrated version runs 122m. [R] ▼●●

Lord of the Flies (1963-British) 90m.  D: Peter Brook. James Aubrey, Tom Chapin, Hugh Edwards, Roger Elwin, Tom Gaman. Unique story of a group of British schoolboys stranded on remote island. Their gradual degeneration into a savage horde is compelling. Adapted from William Golding's novel. Remade in 1990. ▼●●

Lord of the Flies (1990) C-90m. ½ D: Harry Hook. Balthazar Getty, Chris Furrh, Danuel Pipoly, Badgett Dale, Edward and Andrew Taft. Color update of the novel-to-film turns William Golding's savage schoolboys into TV-savvy American kids; it may make the story more immediate (though even that's arguable), but it also purges the original of its poetry. Visceral, and improves as it progresses, but inferior to Peter Brook's 1963 version whose amateur actors, by and large, were superior to this brood. [R] ▼●●

Lord of the Rings, The (1978) C-133m. ½ D: Ralph Bakshi. Voices of Christopher Guard, William Squire, John Hurt, Michael Sholes, Dominic Guard. Ambitious animated version of J.R.R. Tolkien's fantasy saga covers 1½ books of his trilogy (ending rather abruptly). Story of different races in Middle-earth competing for ownership of all-powerful Rings is inspired and exciting, but begins to drag—and confuse—during last hour. Bakshi's technique awkwardly combines animation and live-action tracings. Remade in 2001. [PG]▼

Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring, The (2001) C-178m.  D: Peter Jackson. Elijah Wood, Ian McKellen, Liv Tyler, Viggo Mortensen, Sean Astin, Cate Blanchett, John Rhys-Davies, Billy Boyd, Dominic Monaghan, Orlando Bloom, Christopher Lee, Hugo Weaving, Sean Bean, Ian Holm. Sprawling, epic adaptation of the first part of J.R.R. Tolkien's trilogy about Frodo Baggins, the Hobbit chosen to destroy a powerful ring that threatens Middle-earth. Moves in fits and starts, but intelligent and beautifully executed by director/cowriter Jackson, with phenomenal production values and a fine cast, led by McKellen, perfect as the wizard Gandalf. Won Oscars for Makeup, Visual Effects, Cinematography (Andrew Lesnie), and Original Score (Howard Shore). Extended video version runs 208m. Followed by THE LORD OF THE RINGS: THE TWO TOWERS. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Lord of the Rings: The Return of the King, The (2003) C-200m. ½ D: Peter Jackson. Elijah Wood, Ian McKellen, Liv Tyler, Viggo Mortensen, Sean Astin, Cate Blanchett, John Rhys-Davies, Bernard Hill, Billy Boyd, Dominic Monaghan, Orlando Bloom, Hugo Weaving, Miranda Otto, David Wenham, Karl Urban, John Noble, Andy Serkis, Ian Holm, Sean Bean. Final film in the J.R.R. Tolkien trilogy ends on a high note as Frodo approaches his destiny at Mount Doom and the forces of good prepare for final battle against the evil minions of Sauron. Long, to be sure, with a few too many endings, but still a staggering achievement—alone and in concert with the previous two films. Cast, production, and direction are splendid and the astounding visual effects are always at the service of a story that scales heroic and very human heights. Winner of 11 Oscars: Best Picture, Director, Adapted Screenplay (by Jackson, Fran Walsh, and Philippa Boyens), Costumes (Ngila Dickson, Richard Taylor), Art Direction (Grant Major, Dan Hennah, Alan Lee), Score (Howard Shore), Song ("Into the West"), Sound Mixing, Editing, Makeup, and Visual Effects. Extended version runs 250m. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Dourif, Karl Urban, Andy Serkis. Spectacular continuation of J.R.R. Tolkien's trilogy, with Frodo and a far-ranging group of warriors plunging ahead in the quest to prevent evil Lord Sauron from destroying Middle-earth. Darker, more focused, more deeply emotional, and more exciting than the first installment, with a stunning array of technical wizardry and an ideal cast. Highlighted by the presence of Gollum, an amazing blend of CGI and Serkis' performance. Rhys-Davies also provides the voice of Treebeard. Oscar winner for Visual Effects and Sound Editing. Extended video version runs 223m. Followed by THE LORD OF THE RINGS: THE RETURN OF THE KING. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Lord of War (2005) C-122m.  D: Andrew Niccol. Nicolas Cage, Jared Leto, Bridget Moynahan, Ian Holm, Ethan Hawke, Eamonn Walker, Sammi Rotibi. Biting satire of the arms industry with Cage as a Russian immigrant who's desperate to escape his dead-end life in 1980s Brooklyn, and sees a way out: selling guns, without regard to the consequences of who buys them or why. Ultimately he learns that there is a price to pay for his success. Raw and relevant, this cuts awfully close to the bone, which is why it's no candidate for Feel Good Movie of the Year. Written by the director. Cage also coproduced. Super 35. [R]▼

Lords of Discipline, The (1983) C-102m. ½ D: Franc Roddam. David Keith, Robert Prosky, G. D. Spradlin, Rick Rossovich, John Lavachielli, Mitchell Lichtenstein, Mark Breland, Michael Biehn, Barbara Babcock, Judge Reinhold, Bill Paxton, Jason Connery, Matt Frewer, Sophie Ward. Familiar but satisfactory military school drama, set in 1964 South Carolina. Keith plays senior asked to keep an eye on first black cadet (Breland) who's being systematically tortured by secret society called "The Ten." Good performances, especially by Prosky as school's number-two officer; based on the Pat Conroy novel. Unbelievable as it may appear, most of the film was shot in England! [R]▼

sustain a feature film. Attempts to capture the purity and joy of skateboarding, but instead merely glorifies insufferable behavior. Unrated version also available. [PG-13]▼

Lord's of Flatbush, The (1974) C-88m.  D: Stephen F. Verona, Martin Davidson. Perry King, Sylvester Stallone, Henry Winkler, Paul Mac, Susan Blakely, Paul Jabara, Dolph Sweet. Fun story of a Flatbush gang, circa 1957, with original music score. Training ground for two future stars, with Stallone writing some of the dialogue and Winkler trying out his Fonzie character. Look for Ray Sharkey as a student, Armand Assante as a wedding guest. [PG]▼●●

Lords of the Deep (1989) C-79m. BOMB D: Mary Ann Fisher, Bradford Dillman, Priscilla Barnes, Daryl Haney, Melody Ryane, Eb Lottimer, Stephen Davies. In undersea base of future, menace seems to be manta-shaped aliens, but it's really loony leader Dillman. Clumsy, cheap, and amateurish, this was the fourth and last of 1989's undersea sci-fi thrillers, and the worst by far. Roger Corman appears unbilled (which is just as well). [PG-13]▼

Lords of Treason SEE: Secret Honor

Lorenzo's Oil (1992) C-135m.  D: George Miller, Nick Nolte, Susan Sarandon, Peter Ustinov, Kathleen Wilhoite, Gerry Bamman, Margo Martindale, James Rebhorn, Ann Hearn, Zack O'Malley Greenburg, Laura Linney. True-life story of Michaela and Augusto Odone, who learned their son had adrenoleukodystrophy, an incurable degenerative disease, and proceeded to turn the medical community upside down to keep him alive. Powerful film transcends its "disease of the week" roots, thanks to a highly cinematic visual style and an intelligent script (cowritten by director Miller, a physician by training, and Nick Enright). Nolte and Sarandon are excellent, and Ustinov offers fine support as a sympathetic doctor. The physical torture that Lorenzo goes through is often painful to watch. [PG-13]▼●●

Los Amigos SEE: Deaf Smith & Johnny Ears

Loser (2000) C-95m.  D: Amy Heckerling. Jason Biggs, Mena Suvari, Greg Kinnear, Zak Orth, Thomas Sadoski, Dan Aykroyd, Twink Caplan, Andy Dick, Steven Wright, David Spade, Colleen Camp. Disappointing teen romantic comedy from the director of FAST TIMES AT RIDGEMONT HIGH and CLUELESS about a nice small-town kid who goes to college in N.Y.C. He's branded a loser by his roommates, and falls in love with a classmate who's caught in a bad relationship with an English professor. Gen Y variation of THE APARTMENT has adorable leads but they seem way too smart to endure the contrivances in Heckerling's script. Not helped by abrupt ending. [PG-13]▼

Losing Chase (1996) C-92m.  D: Kevin Bacon. Helen Mirren, Kyra Sedgwick, Beau Bridges, Michael Yarmush, Lucas Denton, Nancy Beatty. Well-acted character-driven drama, set on Martha's Vineyard, about a psychologically troubled woman (Mirren) and her complex relationship with the new mother's helper (Sedgwick) hired to look after her children. This premiered on cable TV prior to theatrical release; Bacon's feature directing debut. Sedgwick (Bacon's wife) executive-produced. [R]▼●●

Losing Isaiah (1995) C-108m.  D: Stephen Gyllenhaal. Jessica Lange, Halle Berry, David Strathairn, Cuba Gooding, Jr., Daisy Eagan, Marc John Jeffries, Samuel L. Jackson, Joie Susannah Lee, Regina Taylor, La Tanya Richardson, Jacqueline Brookes. Dedicated white Chicago social worker adopts a black infant who's been thrown in the trash (literally) by his crack-addicted mother; several years later, when the young woman straightens out her life, she goes to court to reclaim her son. Wrenching (and believable) drama scores points by making all of its characters human and flawed; first-rate performances make the most of Naomi Foner's intelligent script. Only disappointment is the final scene, which isn't very satisfying. Incidentally, Jackson and Richardson, who play opposing attorneys, are real-life husband and wife. [R]▼●●

Losin' It (1983) C-104m. ½ D: Curtis Hanson. Tom Cruise, Jackie Earle Haley, John Stockwell, Shelley Long, John P. Navin, Jr., Henry Darrow, Hector Elias, Rick Rossovich. Pleasant enough but predictable film about three teenagers out for a wild time in Tijuana—with more bluster than experience. Appealing cast gives it extra value. [R]▼●●

Los Olvidados (1950-Mexican) 88m. ½ D: Luis Buñuel. Alfonso Mejia, Roberto Cobo, Stella Inda, Miguel Inclan. Gripping story of juvenile delinquency among slums of Mexico, with surreal dream sequences interspersed. An offbeat winner from Buñuel, aka THE YOUNG AND THE DAMNED.▼●

Loss of Innocence (1961-British) C-99m. ½ D: Lewis Gilbert. Kenneth More, Danielle Darrieux, Susannah York, Maurice Denham. York gives poignant performance as teenager who, through love affair, becomes a woman; events leave her and younger sister and brother stranded on the Continent. Original title: THE GREEN-GAGE SUMMER.

Loss of Sexual Innocence, The (1999-British) C-106m. BOMB D: Mike Figgis. Julian Sands, Saffron Burrows, Stefano Dionisi, Kelly MacDonald, Gina McKee, Jonathan Rhys-Meyers, Bernard Hill, Rossy De Palma. An outlandish, pretentious, and pointless film with parallel story threads from different phases of a man's life contrasting contemporary sexual relations and the first loss of innocence in the Garden of Eden. Almost plays like a parody of an "art" film. ▼

Lost and Delirious (2001-Canadian) C-103m. ½ D: Léa Pool. Piper Perabo, Jessica Paré, Mischa Barton, Graham Greene, Jackie Burroughs, Mimi Kuzyk. Sensitive coming-of-age tale about two budding lesbians at a Canadian girls boarding school and the reverberations of their secret relationship. Though it makes an awkward shift into Gothic melodrama in its second half, the film features handsome production values and a magnetic lead performance from Perabo as a jilted lover. [R] ▼

Lost and Found (1979) C-112m.  D: Melvin Frank. George Segal, Glenda Jackson, Maureen Stapleton, Hollis McLaren, John Cunningham, Paul Sorvino, John Candy, Martin Short. Widowed college prof and British divorcee meet in a French ski resort and quickly cool their romance by marrying. Attempt to recapture the success of the overrated A TOUCH OF CLASS is just more old-fashioned nonsense posing as hip comedy. [PG] ▼

Lost & Found (1999) C-95m. *½ D: Jeff Pollack. David Spade, Sophie Marceau, Patrick Bruel, Artie Lange, Mitchell Whitfield, Martin Sheen, Jon Lovitz, Estelle Harris, Rose Marie, Marla Gibbs, Carole Cook. Spade plots to win his beautiful new neighbor's affections while they search for her missing dog—which he has kidnapped. Crude, offensive, unoriginal, often painful to watch; only redeeming feature is an engaging Marceau. Fundamental error: her "slimy" ex-boyfriend is more likable than the leading man. Spade also takes credit as cowriter. [PG-13] ▼

Lost Angel (1944) 91m. ½ D: Roy Rowland. Margaret O'Brien, James Craig, Marsha Hunt, Philip Merivale, Henry O'Neill, Donald Meek, Keenan Wynn, Bobby (Robert) Blake. O'Brien is winning as precocious child—trained as a genius by scientists—who learns life's simple pleasures when she moves in with reporter Craig. Look for Ava Gardner as a hat-check girl.

Lost Angels (1989) C-116m.  D: Hugh Hudson. Donald Sutherland, Adam Horovitz, Amy Locane, Don Bloomfield, Celia Weston, Graham Beckel, Kevin Tighe, John C. McGinley, Park Overall. Sincere but obvious and compromised drama of teenager Horovitz, unjustly sent to a mental clinic treating teenagers far more troubled than he. Sutherland is sole sympathetic psychiatrist. Shallow story grows increasingly incoherent and uninvolved. Horovitz, of singing group Beastie Boys, is good in acting debut. Super 35. [R] ▼

Canada Lee, Rev. Robert Dunn, Carleton Carpenter. Penetrating, well-meaning if slow-moving account of a dedicated, light-skinned Negro doctor (Ferrer, in his screen debut) who (with his family) passes for white in a small New Hampshire town. A clear-eyed look at segregated America. ▼

Lost Boys, The (1987) C-97m.  D: Joel Schumacher. Jason Patric, Corey Haim, Dianne Wiest, Barnard Hughes, Edward Herrmann, Kiefer Sutherland, Jami Gertz, Corey Feldman, Jamison Newlander. Family moves to California town where the local teenage gang turns out to be a pack of vampires! Slick movie aimed at juvenile audiences; both the humor and the plotting are pretty obvious. Only real fireworks come at the end during final showdown. Followed by DVD sequel. Panavision. [R] ▼

Lost City, The (2006) C-138m. ½ D: Andy Garcia. Andy Garcia, Bill Murray, Inés Sastre, Tomás Milian, Dustin Hoffman, Steven Bauer, Enrique Murciano, Danny Pino, Julio Oscar Mechoso, Nestor Carbonell, Millie Perkins, Richard Bradford, Lorena Feijóo, Tony Plana, Elizabeth Peña, Victor Rivers. Heartfelt attempt to bring Guillermo Cabrera Infante's sweeping saga of the 1950s Cuban revolution to life through the story of one family (a university professor and his three sons, one an apolitical cabaret owner, the others fighting for social change). Captures the spirit of that time and place, along with its music and color, but bites off more than it can chew, and goes on far too long. The romantic story seems trivial and Murray's wisecracks (as a character inspired by Infante) seem out of place. Hoffman is amusing as Meyer Lansky. Labor of love for writer-director-producer-composer-actor Garcia. [R] ▼

Lost Command (1966) C-130m.  D: Mark Robson. Anthony Quinn, Alain Delon, George Segal, Michele Morgan, Maurice Ronet, Claudia Cardinale, Gregoire Aslan, Jean Servais. Taut, well-made story of French-Algerian guerrilla warfare in North Africa, with Quinn as the peasant who has risen to a position of command. Fine international cast, good direction, and some top-notch action sequences blend very well. Panavision. ▼

Lost Continent (1951) 86m.  D: Samuel Newfield. Cesar Romero, Hillary Brooke, John Hoyt, Whit Bissell, Sid Melton, Acquafredda. Lavish production values are obviously lacking as Romero leads expedition to prehistoric mountaintop to recover missing rocket, encounters stop-motion dinosaurs. Some scenes are tinted. ▼

Lost Continent, The (1968-British) C-89m. ½ D: Michael Carreras. Eric Porter, Hildegarde Knef, Suzanna Leigh, Tony Beckley, Nigel Stock, Neil McCallum. Tramp steamer wanders into the seaweed-choked Sargasso Sea and finds isolated freak civili-

Lost Highway (1997-U.S.-French) C-135m. ½ D: David Lynch. Bill Pullman, Patricia Arquette, Balthazar Getty, Robert Blake, Natasha Gregson Wagner, Richard Pryor, Lisa Boyle, Michael Masseo, Jack Nance, Henry Rollins, Gary Busey, Robert Loggia, Marilyn Manson, Giovanni Ribisi. Bizarre Lynchian story that makes Twin Peaks seem as easy to follow as a Sesame Street episode. Basic plot involves Pullman as a jazz musician who, believing his wife is having an affair, suddenly finds himself the main suspect in her murder. Or is he? Or was she? Lynch fans will have fun trying to figure it out; others will find it incomprehensible. Blake is particularly enigmatic as a mystery man with a bad makeup job. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Lost Honor of Katharina Blum, The (1975-German) C-106m. *½ D: Volker Schlöndorff, Margarethe von Trotta. Angela Winkler, Mario Adorf, Dieter Laser, Heinz Bennent, Jürgen Prochnow. Solid drama about a woman persecuted because she is suspected of aiding terrorists that is also a stinging commentary on individual freedom, political repression, and the dangers of media manipulation. Based on the Henrich Boll novel; remade as a TVM, THE LOST HONOR OF KATHRYN BECK with Marlo Thomas. [R]▼●●

Lost Horizon (1937) 132m. * D: Frank Capra. Ronald Colman, Jane Wyatt, John Howard, Edward Everett Horton, Margo, Sam Jaffe, H. B. Warner, Isabel Jewell, Thomas Mitchell. James Hilton's classic story about five people stumbling into strange Tibetan land where health, peace, and longevity reign. A rare movie experience, with haunting finale. Screenplay by Robert Riskin. After being shown in edited reissue prints for years, this classic has been restored to its original length—though several scenes are still missing, and are represented by dialogue only, illustrated with stills. Remade with music in 1973.▼●●

Lost Horizon (1973) C-143m. ½ D: Charles Jarrott. Peter Finch, Liv Ullmann, Sally Kellerman, George Kennedy, Michael York, Olivia Hussey, Bobby Van, James Shigeta, Charles Boyer, John Gielgud. First half hour copies 1937 film scene-for-scene, and everything's fine; then we get to Shangri-La and awful Burt Bacharach-Hal David songs, and it falls apart. "Lost" is right. Script by Larry Kramer. Originally released at 150m. Panavision. [G]

Lost in a Harem (1944) 89m. ½ D: Charles Riesner. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Marilyn Maxwell, John Conte, Douglass Dumbrille, Lottie Harrison, Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra. Slicker-than-usual A&C

(made on infrequent trip to MGM), but strictly routine. Some good scenes here and there with sultan Dumbrille; Maxwell is perfect harem girl.▼●●

Lost in Alaska (1952) 76m. *½ D: Jean Yarbrough. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Mitzi Green, Tom Ewell, Bruce Cabot. Unremarkable slapstick set in 1890s, with A&C off to the wilds to help a friend but doing more hindering.▼●

Lost in America (1985) C-91m.  D: Albert Brooks. Albert Brooks, Julie Hagerty, Garry Marshall, Art Frankel, Michael Greene. Two yuppies drop out of the rat race and take to the road ("just like EASY RIDER") in this low-key, often hilarious satire of upwardly mobile types. Written by Brooks and Monica Johnson. And isn't that Albert's voice on the phone as the Mercedes salesman? [R]▼●●

Lost in La Mancha (2002-U.S.-British) C-92m.  D: Keith Fulton, Louis Pepe. Narrated by Jeff Bridges. Fascinating documentary case study of a movie production where everything goes wrong, as filmmaker and dreamer Terry Gilliam prepares to shoot his longtime pet project, THE MAN WHO KILLED DON QUIXOTE, with Jean Rochefort and Johnny Depp. The director's own drawings, brought to life through animation, give us an idea of what might have been. A unique, close-up study of the many factors—including human folly—that go into making a film. [R]▼●●

Lost in Space (1998) C-122m.  D: Stephen Hopkins. Gary Oldman, William Hurt, Matt LeBlanc, Mimi Rogers, Heather Graham, Lacey Chabert, Jack Johnson, Jared Harris, Edward Fox; voice of Dick Tufeld. In 2058, with the hope of opening a gateway to a new planet for denizens of the overcrowded Earth, a family is launched into space, accompanied by a he-man pilot and the weaselly doctor who tried to sabotage the journey. The 1960s TV series is recreated on a lavish scale, but hurt by crudely episodic story, grim tone, and paper-thin characters. Oldman, curiously, underplays the role of Dr. Smith. Angela Cartwright, Mark Goddard, Marta Kristen, and June Lockhart, stars of the original TV series, have cameo roles. Also available in PG version. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Lost in the Stars (1974) C-114m.  D: Daniel Mann. Brock Peters, Melba Moore, Raymond St. Jacques, Clifton Davis, Paula Kelly. Good American Film Theatre version of the Kurt Weill-Maxwell Anderson musical, based on Alan Paton's CRY, THE BELLOVED COUNTRY (filmed on its own in 1951). Owes much of its power to Peters' portrayal of the South African minister. Filmed in Jamaica, B.W.I., and Hollywood. [G]▼●●

hiro Hayashi, Catherine Lambert. Beguiling mood piece about a wry movie star who travels to Tokyo on business, without his family, and forms a friendship with the young wife of a busy American photographer. A wistful, telling, often very funny film about two lonely people, far from home, who find solace in each other's company. Writer-director Coppola captures the poignancy of that unique life experience, the chance meeting, while observing the natural humor of Americans bumbling their way through the Japanese culture. A perfect showcase for Murray, who seems to ad-lib many of his best lines; Johansson comes across equally well. Oscar winner for Best Original Screenplay. Francis Ford Coppola coexecutive produced. [R] ▼●

Lost Man, The (1969) C-122m. ½ D: Robert Alan Aurthur. Sidney Poitier, Joanna Shimkus, Al Freeman, Jr., Michael Tolan, Leon Bibb, Richard Dysart, David Steinberg, Paul Winfield. Uncomfortable updating of ODD MAN OUT from an Irish setting to present-day black underground has some tension, but doesn't really work. Three stars are good. Panavision. [MPG] ▼

Lost One, The (1951-German) 97m.  D: Peter Lorre. Peter Lorre, Karl John, Renate Mannhardt, Johanna Hofer. Lorre's only film as director is a talky, grim, but not uninteresting drama about the downfall of a German researcher (played by Peter himself, with appropriate weariness), whose girlfriend is thought to have been passing on his discoveries to the British during WW2. Of interest mostly as a footnote to Lorre's career; based on a true story. ▼

Lost Patrol, The (1934) 73m. * D: John Ford. Victor McLaglen, Boris Karloff, Wallace Ford, Reginald Denny, Alan Hale, J. M. Kerrigan, Billy Bevan. McLaglen's small British military group lost in Mesopotamian desert, as Arabs repeatedly attack the dwindling unit. Classic actioner filled with slice-of-life stereotypes, headed by religious fanatic Karloff. Fast-moving fun, great Max Steiner score. Scripted by Dudley Nichols, from Philip MacDonald's novel Patrol. Previously filmed in 1929, as a British silent starring Victor McLaglen's brother, Cyril, in the lead role; reworked many times (BAD LANDS, SAHARA, BATAAN, etc.). ▼●●

Lost Skeleton of Cadavra, The (2004) 89m. ½ D: Larry Blamire. Larry Blamire, Fay Masterson, Andrew Parks, Susan McConnell, Brian Howe, Jennifer Blaire, Dan Conroy. Genial spoof of tacky, low-budget 1950s sci-fi films, with writer-director Blamire as an earnest scientist scouring the countryside (with his wife in tow) in search of a meteor. Along the way they encounter an alien couple who try their best to blend in. The actors never wink at the audience in this affectionate homage, made on a shoestring. Most inspired decision: using authentic 1950s "stock library" music. [PG] ▼●

Lost Souls (2000) C-97m. *½ D: Janusz Kaminski. Winona Ryder, Ben Chaplin, Sarah Wynter, Philip Baker Hall, Elias Koteas, John Hurt, John Beasley, Victor Slezak, John Diehl. Ryder, survivor of a childhood exorcism, becomes convinced that atheist true-crime writer Chaplin will become Satan incarnate on his 33rd birthday. As the directional debut of famed cinematographer Kaminski, it's not surprising that this looks great, and it's well acted, but it's just another religious-themed horror film, more pretentious—and boring—than most. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Lost Weekend, The (1945) 101m. * D: Billy Wilder. Ray Milland, Jane Wyman, Phillip Terry, Howard da Silva, Doris Dowling, Frank Faylen, Mary Young. Unrelenting drama of alcoholism—and a landmark of adult filmmaking in Hollywood. Milland's powerful performance won him an Oscar; there's fine support from bartender da Silva, sanitarium aide Faylen. Won Academy Awards for Best Picture, Director, Actor, Screenplay (Wilder and Charles Brackett). ▼●●

Lost World, The (1925) 93m. ½ D: Harry Hoyt. Bessie Love, Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, Lloyd Hughes. Silent film version of A. Conan Doyle adventure yarn is remarkable for special effects recreating prehistoric beasts encountered on scientific expedition to remote plateau. Interesting as precursor to KING KONG—in story structure and in Willis O'Brien's special effects. Shown in severely truncated prints for years; two restored versions now exist. Remade twice. ▼●●

Lost World, The (1960) C-98m.  D: Irwin Allen. Michael Rennie, Jill St. John, David Hedison, Claude Rains, Fernando Lamas, Richard Haydn. Despite cinematic advances, this remake of the 1925 film doesn't match original's special effects. OK juvenile entry of an expedition into remote territory hopefully inhabited by prehistoric monsters ("played" by photographically enlarged lizards). CinemaScope. ▼●

Lost World, The (1993-Canadian) C-99m. *½ D: Timothy Bond. John Rhys-Davies,

David Warner, Eric McCormack, Nathania Stanford, Darren Peter Mercer, Tamara Gorski, Innocent Chosa, Kate Egan. In 1912, an expedition journeys to an African plateau where dinosaurs still live. Rhys-Davies as Professor Challenger and Warner as his rival are good, but others in the too-large cast are amateurish, and the dinosaurs are not only badly done, but extremely scarce. A cheap, insignificant version of Conan Doyle's wonderful novel, which still deserves a lavish remake. Sequel, RETURN TO THE LOST WORLD (1994), was shot simultaneously. ▼

Lot Like Love, A (2005) C-107m. ½ D: Nigel Cole. Ashton Kutcher, Amanda Peet, Kathryn Hahn, Kal Penn, Ali Larter, Taryn Manning, Gabriel Mann, Jeremy Sisto, Molly Cheek, Amy Aquino, Holmes Osborne. Romantic comedy about how, after a chance airport meeting, two people who are attracted to each other don't get together, for a variety of reasons, over a period of years. The stars are affable enough to keep this afloat, but the story seems one episode too long. [PG-13] ▼●

Lotus Eaters, The (1993-Canadian) C-101m.  D: Paul Shapiro. Sheila McCarthy, R. H. Thomson, Michele-Barbara Pelletier, Aloka McLean, Tara Frederick, Frances Hyland, Andrea Libman, Gabe Khouth, Paul Soles. Amiably amusing 1960s nostalgia set on an island in Western Canada, where a change of wind (signified by the arrival of a new schoolteacher) blows a gust of drama into the lives of a mildly eccentric school principal, his wife, and their two impressionable daughters. Winner of three Genie Awards including Best Actress for McCarthy and Best Screenplay (Peggy Thomson). [PG-13] ▼

Louisa (1950) 90m.  D: Alexander Hall. Ronald Reagan, Charles Coburn, Ruth Hussey, Edmund Gwenn, Spring Byington, Piper Laurie, Scotty Beckett, Martin Milner. Delightful romantic yarn of Byington seeking to become a December bride, undecided between Coburn and Gwenn; most disarming. Film debut of Piper Laurie.

Louisa May Alcott's Little Men SEE: Little Men (1998)

Louisiana Purchase (1941) C-98m. ½ D: Irving Cummings. Bob Hope, Vera Zorina, Victor Moore, Irene Bordino, Dona Drake. Brassy Irving Berlin musicomedy, with Hope's comedy very funny, especially famous filibuster scene in Congress. Zorina, Moore and Bordino re-create their Broadway roles. Opening scene of chorus girls (including Barbara Britton, Margaret Hayes and Jean Wallace) singing lines about characters being fictitious is probably a movie first . . . and last. ▼●

Louisiana Story (1948) 77m. * D: Robert Flaherty. Classic, influential documentary set in the Louisiana bayou, with a young boy observing oil drillers at work. Beautifully made; produced by the Standard Oil Company. Music by Virgil Thomson. ▼

Loulou (1980-French) C-110m. ½ D: Maurice Pialat. Isabelle Huppert, Gérard Depardieu, Guy Marchand, Humbert Balsan, Bernard Tronczyk. Huppert leaves stable hubby for topsy-turvy life with loutish Depardieu. Two leads have terrific sexual rapport in dynamic star vehicle. ▼●

Love (1927) 82m. ½ D: Edmund Gouling. Greta Garbo, John Gilbert, George Fawcett, Emily Fitzroy, Brandon Hurst, Philippe De Lacy. Silent version of Anna Karenina in modern setting, as married Garbo falls in love with dashing military guard Gilbert, an affair doomed from start. Lesser entry for famed screen lovers, with Gilbert's eyebrow-raising gestures at their worst. Garbo's 1935 remake (ANNA KARENINA) is much better. MGM actually filmed two endings—one happy, one sad. ▼●●

Love Affair (1939) 87m. ½ D: Leo McCarey. Irene Dunne, Charles Boyer,

Maria Ouspenskaya, Lee Bowman, Astrid Allwyn, Maurice Moscovich, Joan Brodel (Leslie). Superior comedy-drama about shipboard romance whose continuation onshore is interrupted by unforeseen circumstances. Dunne and Boyer are a marvelous match. Screenplay by Delmer Daves and Donald Ogden Stewart, from story by Mildred Cram and Leo McCarey. Remade by McCarey as AN AFFAIR TO REMEMBER, and a second time (by Warren Beatty). Beware public-domain copy with entirely new music score. ▼

Love Affair (1994) C-108m. ½ D: Glenn Gordon Caron. Warren Beatty, Annette Bening, Katharine Hepburn, Garry Shandling, Chloe Webb, Pierce Brosnan, Kate Capshaw, Paul Mazursky, Brenda Vaccaro, Glenn Shadix, Barry Miller, Harold Ramis, Elya Baskin, Taylor Dayne, Carey Lowell, Dan Castellana, Rosalind Chao, Wendie Jo Sperber, Frank Campanella, Ray Charles, Mary Hart, John Tesh. Soulless remake of the 1939 weepie (itself remade as AN AFFAIR TO REMEMBER), with Beatty as an ex-jock-turned-sportscaster and ladies man who chances to meet Bening on an eventful plane ride. Frustrating film runs hot and cold; high point is the sequence with Hepburn (in her final feature film) as Beatty's feisty aunt. Intrusive songs on the soundtrack are a debit. Conrad Hall's silky cinematography is a plus, but the biggest letdown is the ending, which stops short of a big, old-fashioned sentimental Hollywood finish—just what the movie really needs. Beatty produced and cowrote with Robert Towne. [PG-13] ▼

Love and a .45 (1994) C-101m. ½ D: C. M. Talkington. Gil Bellows, Renée Zellweger, Rory Cochrane, Jeffrey Combs, Jace Alexander, Michael Bowen, Ann Wedgeworth, Peter Fonda. Derivative (although not uninteresting) young-lovers-on-the-lam melodrama, about a white-trash couple who become criminals and outlaws. Features the same over-the-top comic-book violence that made RESERVOIR DOGS an instant cult favorite. [R] ▼

Love and Anarchy (1973-Italian) C-108m.  D: Lina Wertmuller. Giancarlo Giannini, Mariangela Melato, Lina Polito, Eros Pagni, Pina Cel, Elena Fiore. Italian bumpkin Giannini tries to assassinate Mussolini in 1932, falls for a prostitute in the brothel serving as his base of operation. Uneven but stylish drama helped establish Wertmuller's reputation in the U.S. [R] ▼

Love and Basketball (2000) C-124m.  D: Gina Prince-Bythewood. Sanaa Lathan, Omar Epps, Alfre Woodard, Dennis Haysbert, Debbi Morgan, Harry J. Lennix, Kyla Pratt, Glenndon Chatman. A most agreeable hybrid of love story and coming-of-age saga. Lathan plays a precocious, talented basketball player, Epps the cocky son of an

NBA professional; their relationship goes through many phases from the time they're 11 years old to young adulthood, as the story breaks down into four "quarters." A crowd-pleaser from start to finish, if a little long; only the final resolution seems contrived. Feature debut for writer-director Prince-Bythewood. [R] ▼

Love and Bullets (1979-British) C-103m.  D: Stuart Rosenberg. Charles Bronson, Rod Steiger, Jill Ireland, Strother Martin, Bradford Dillman, Henry Silva, Michael V. Gazzo. Bronson is supposed to nab gangster's moll Ireland for the FBI, but falls in love with her during his pursuit in Switzerland. Routine action yarn . . . for Bronson fans only. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Love and Death (1975) C-82m.  D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, Diane Keaton, Harold Gould, Alfred Lutter, Olga Georges-Picot, Zvee Scooler. One of Woody's most pretentious films won applause for its spoofs of Russian literature and foreign films, but this tale of a devout coward in the Napoleonic wars is more like a remake of Bob Hope's MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE. Funny but uneven, with music by Prokofiev. [PG] ▼

Love and Death on Long Island (1997-Canadian-British) C-93m. ½ D: Richard Kwietniowski. John Hurt, Jason Priestley, Fiona Loewi, Sheila Hancock, Maury Chaykin, Gawn Granger, Elizabeth Quinn. Quiet gem about an eccentric, reclusive British writer who stumbles into the wrong movie theater and, while watching HOT PANTS COLLEGE II, becomes intrigued, and then obsessed, with one of its cast members (Priestley). Before long, he flies to Long Island, N.Y., in the hope of somehow consummating his fantasy relationship with the actor. A marvel of nuance and quiet observation, with Hurt simply perfect in the lead; impressive feature directing debut for Kwietniowski, who also scripted (from Gilbert Adair's novel). [PG-13] ▼

Love and Fear (1988-Italian-German-French) C-114m.  D: Margarethe von Trotta. Fanny Ardant, Greta Scacchi, Valeria Golino, Peter Simonischek, Sergio Castellito, Agnes Sorel, Paolo Hendel. Involving if occasionally melodramatic account of the lives and loves of a trio of sisters: the oldest (Ardant) is an intellectual and all too aware of passing time and advancing age; the middle one (Scacchi) has no professional identity and lives by her emotions; the youngest (Golino) is a passionate, idealistic premed student. Crammed with ideas and observations about how life is in constant flux; loosely based on Chekhov's Three Sisters.

Love and Human Remains (1993-Canadian) C-100m.  D: Denys Arcand. Thomas Gibson, Ruth Marshall, Cameron Bancroft, Mia Kirshner, Joanne Vannicola, Matthew Ferguson, Rick Roberts. Arcand's first English-language film is a provocative portrait of confused, restless urban singles, focusing on a pair of ex-lovers who are still roommates: Gibson, a gay, 30-ish former teen TV star who now works as a waiter, and Marshall, who's straight and desperate for tenderness. Meanwhile, there's a maniac on the loose murdering unsuspecting women! An astute look at what it means to fall in love in the era of AIDS, ambiguous sexuality, and pervasive violence. Scripted by Brad Fraser, based on his play. ▼●

Love and Larceny (1963-Italian) 94m. ½ D: Dino Risi. Vittorio Gassman, Anna Maria Ferrero, Dorian Gray, Peppino De Filippo. Saucy comedy of exuberant con-man Gassman making no pretense about his carefree life and pleasures. Totalscope. ▼

Love and Money (1982) C-90m.  D: James Toback. Ray Sharkey, Ornella Muti, Klaus Kinski, Armand Assante, King Vidor, Susan Heldfond, William Prince. Convoluted drama about Sharkey's entanglement in international scheme plotted by billionaire businessman Kinski; has its bright spots, but disappoints nonetheless because director Toback distances himself from his material. Sex scenes with Sharkey and Muti were toned down before film's release. Of interest mainly for presence of legendary director Vidor as Sharkey's senile grandfather. Completed in 1980. [R] ▼●●

Love and Other Catastrophes (1996-Australian) C-76m. ½ D: Emma-Kate Croghan. Frances O'Connor, Alice Garner, Radha Mitchell, Matt Day, Matthew Dyktynski. Agreeable comedy about the various crises, crushes and romances among a group of twentysomething Melbourne University students who are male and female, straight and gay. An amusing look at a point in young adulthood in which switching one's major is a pivotal life decision; also refreshing in its depiction of the easy mixing and socializing between characters with different sexual preferences. A promising debut for 23-year-old director/coscripter Croghan. [R] ▼

Love and Pain (and the Whole Damn Thing) (1972) C-110m.  D: Alan J. Pakula. Maggie Smith, Timothy Bottoms. Charming story of two introverts who miraculously and humorously find each other, fall in love while touring Spain; written by Alvin Sargent. [PG]

Love & Sex (2000) C-82m. ½ D: Valerie Breiman. Famke Janssen, Jon Favreau, Noah Emmerich, Cheri Oteri, Ann Magnuson, Josh Hopkins, Robert Knpper, David Steinberg. Romantic comedy in which a magazine writer (Janssen), doing a piece on how to maintain a relationship, recalls her own involvement with a wisecracking, neurotic painter (Favreau). Director-writer Breiman provides some snappy, sitcom-style one-liners, although the results are predictable. David Schwimmer appears uncredited. ▼●

Love at First Bite (1979) C-96m.  D:

Stan Dragoti. George Hamilton, Susan St. James, Richard Benjamin, Dick Shawn, Arte Johnson, Sherman Hemsley, Isabel Sanford, Barry Gordon, Ronnie Schell, Eric Laneuville. Silly but likable comedy about Count Dracula's adventures in N.Y.C., and love affair with fashion model St. James. Hamilton's comic performance is bloody good. Written by Robert Kaufman. [PG] ▼●●

Love at Large (1990) C-97m.  D: Alan Rudolph. Tom Berenger, Anne Archer, Elizabeth Perkins, Kate Capshaw, Annette O'Toole, Ted Levine, Ann Magnuson, Kevin J. O'Connor, Ruby Dee, Barry Miller, Neil Young. A challenge to Rudolph cultists everywhere, this coy mess involves rival private detectives (male and female) who keep tripping over each other while following a case plagued by problems of mistaken identity. Made watchable by the director's typically beguiling use of color and decor, plus his penchant for offbeat casting. Rocker Neil Young has a straight part (uh... so to speak). [R] ▼●●

Love at Stake (1987) C-83m. ½ D: John Moffitt. Patrick Cassidy, Kelly Preston, Bud Cort, Barbara Carrera, Stuart Pankin, Dave Thomas, Georgia Brown, Annie Golden. Wacky, overlooked comedy spoofs the Salem witch trials in the irreverent Mel Brooks tradition (producer Michael Gruskoff coproduced several Brooks pictures). Ingenues Cassidy and Preston (who plays baker Sarah Lee) are appealing, but the show is stolen by Carrera as a very sexy witch and Pankin and Thomas as corrupt officials. [R] ▼●●

Love at the Top (1974-French) C-105m.  D: Michel Deville. Jean-Louis Trintignant, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Romy Schneider, Jane Birkin, Florinda Bolkan. Slick but superficial, muddled account of club-footed writer Cassel advising Trintignant on how to become rich and sleep with lots of women. Birkin, Bolkan, and Schneider are attractive, but it's all window dressing. Aka THE FRENCH WAY IS. [R] ●

Love at Twenty (1962-International) 113m. ½ D: François Truffaut, Renzo Rossellini, Shintaro Ishihara, Marcel Ophuls, Andrzej Wajda. Jean-Pierre Léaud, Eleonora Rossi-Drago, Zbigniew Cybulski, Nami Tamura, Marie-France Pisier, Barbara Lass. Quintet of middling stories produced in France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Poland; variations on theme of love among younger generation. Truffaut's ANTOINE ET COLETTE is a sequel to THE FOUR HUNDRED BLOWS (the first of his Antoine Doinel films). Original French running time: 123m. Totalscope.

Love Bug, The (1969) C-107m. ½ D: Robert Stevenson. Dean Jones, Michele Lee, Buddy Hackett, David Tomlinson, Joe Flynn, Benson Fong, Iris Adrian. Delightful Disney comedy about a Volkswagen with a mind of its own; subtle it ain't, but the slapstick and stunts are great fun to watch. Followed by four HERBIE sequels and a 1997 made-for-TV movie. ▼●●

Love Cage, The SEE: Joy House

Love Child (1982) C-96m.  D: Larry Peerce. Amy Madigan, Beau Bridges, MacKenzie Phillips, Albert Salmi, Joanna Merlin, Rhea Perlman. Trifling melodrama of prisoner Madigan who has baby by Bridges and fights for the right to motherhood. Plays like an R-rated made-for-TV movie; based on a true story. [R] ▼

Love Crazy (1941) 99m. ½ D: Jack Conway. William Powell, Myrna Loy, Gail Patrick, Jack Carson, Florence Bates, Sidney Blackmer, Sig Ruman. One misunderstanding leads to another in this energetic marital farce that loses steam halfway through. Highlighted by Powell's attempts to prove himself insane and Carson's hilarious characterization as Ward Willoughby. ▼

Love Crimes (1992) C-85m. BOMB D: Lizzie Borden. Sean Young, Patrick Bergin, Arnetia Walker, James Read, Ron Orbach, Wayne Shorter. Astonishingly inept, confusing thriller with Young (in a lifeless performance) playing an assistant district attorney who becomes involved with Bergin who, posing as a fashion photographer, exploits and rips off unsuspecting women. The director's cut (which is unrated and runs 97m.) is far more coherent. However, the scenario remains obvious and superficial. That version is rated . [R] ▼

Loved One, The (1965) 116m. ½ D: Tony Richardson. Robert Morse, Jonathan Winters, Anjanette Comer, Rod Steiger, Dana Andrews, Milton Berle, James Coburn, John Gielgud, Tab Hunter, Margaret Leighton, Liberace, Roddy McDowall, Robert Morley, Lionel Stander, Ayllene Gibbons, Bernie Kopell, Alan Napier, Jamie Farr. Correctly advertised as the picture with something to offend everyone. British Morse attends to uncle's burial in California, encountering bizarre aspects of funeral business. Often howlingly funny, and equally gross. Once seen, Mrs. Joyboy can never be forgotten. Based on the Evelyn Waugh novel, adapted by Terry Southern and Christopher Isherwood. ▼●●

Love Don't Cost a Thing (2003) C-101m.  D: Troy Beyer. Nick Cannon, Christina Milian, Kenan Thompson, Kal Penn, Steve Harvey, Vanessa Bell Calloway, Dante Basco. Remake of the similarly forgettable 1987 comedy CAN'T BUY ME LOVE with a change of color. High school nerd (Cannon) hires the most popular girl in class to pretend to be his girlfriend, and undergoes an extreme personality change once he's perceived as being cool by his classmates. Cannon's character quickly becomes a caricature in this low-grade, superficial teen comedy. [PG-13] ▼

than Kaplan. Michelle Pfeiffer, Dennis Haysbert, Stephanie McFadden, Brian Kerwin, Louise Latham, Peggy Rea, Mark Miller. Small, sensitive film of Dallas beautician (a platinum-blond Pfeiffer) who is enthralled by President and Mrs. Kennedy—and is like an excited schoolgirl at the thought of their fateful 1963 visit to her hometown. (Love Field is the name of Dallas' airport.) Really a road movie, with Pfeiffer deserting her husband and traveling halfway across the country with the unlikely duo of black father and daughter (Haysbert and McFadden). Rich performances (especially Pfeiffer's), rural flavor, and an unflinching look at race relations almost compensate for the sometimes overly contrived plot. [PG-13] ▼●●

Love Finds Andy Hardy (1938) 90m.  D: George B. Seitz. Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford, Betsy Ross Clark, Lana Turner, Gene Reynolds. One of the best of the series finds young Andrew frantically trying to juggle two girlfriends at the same time. Classy support by ingenues Garland and Turner. Judy sings three songs, including "Meet the Beat of My Heart." ▼●●

Love God?, The (1969) C-101m.  D: Nat Hiken. Don Knotts, Anne Francis, Edmond O'Brien, James Gregory, Maureen Arthur, Maggie Peterson, Jesslyn Fax. Comedy for those who are amused by Knotts playing Hugh Hefner type; film is final work of Nat Hiken, who created Sergeant Bilko in better days. [M] ▼

Love Guru, The (2008) C-86m.  D: Marco Schnabel. Mike Myers, Jessica Alba, Justin Timberlake, Romany Malco, Meagan Good, Verne Troyer, Ben Kingsley, Manu Narayan, John Oliver, Stephen Colbert, Jim Gaffigan. Myers hams it up as an American-born self-help guru raised in India, who is hired by the fetching owner (Alba) of the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team to help a struggling star player regain his confidence. Myers also cowrote this silly little farce that has a few laughs but is mostly filled with juvenile double entendres and recycled Austin Powers shtick. A number of celebrities appear as themselves. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Love Happy (1949) 91m. ½ D: David Miller. Harpo, Chico, and Groucho Marx, Ilona Massey, Vera-Ellen, Marion Hutton, Raymond Burr, Eric Blore. No NIGHT AT THE OPERA, but even diluted Marx Brothers are better than none. Putting on a musical forms background for Harpo's antics, with Chico in support. Groucho in a few unrelated scenes. Marilyn Monroe has a brief bit. Among the writers were Ben Hecht and Frank Tashlin. ▼●●

Love Has Many Faces (1965) C-105m. ½ D: Alexander Singer. Lana Turner, Cliff Robertson, Hugh O'Brien, Ruth Roman, Stefanie Powers, Virginia Grey.

Timid attempt at lurid soap; playgirl Turner's costume changes are the highlights. O'Brian and Robertson are gigolos. Filmed in Acapulco. ▼

Love Hurts (1990) C-106m.  D: Bud Yorkin. Jeff Daniels, Judith Ivey, Cynthia Sikes, John Mahoney, Cloris Leachman, Amy Wright, Mary Griffin, Brady Quaid. Unhappily divorced Daniels goes home for his sister's wedding, only to find his ex-wife and their kids staying with his folks. Bittersweet comedy-drama has some good moments, but not enough. Mahoney and Leachman's performances as Daniels' parents border uncomfortably on caricature. [R] ▼

Love in Germany, A (1984-German) C-110m. ½ D: Andrzej Wajda. Hanna Schygulla, Marie-Christine Barrault, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Elisabeth Trissenaar, Daniel Olbrychski, Piotr Lysak, Bernhard Wicki. German shopkeeper, her husband off fighting at the front, risks life and reputation by romancing a much younger Polish POW. Wimpy Lysak doesn't look as if he could drive a girl's hopscootch team into sexual delirium, creating severe credibility problems in this subpar Wajda effort. Barrault is effectively cast against type as conniving Nazi sympathizer. [R] ▼

Love-Ins, The (1967) C-92m. BOMB D: Arthur Dreifuss. James MacArthur, Susan Oliver, Richard Todd, Mark Goddard, Carol Booth. Professor Timothy Leary—er, Richard Todd—advocates LSD, becomes a hippie messiah. A bad trip.

Love in the Afternoon (1957) 130m. ½ D: Billy Wilder. Gary Cooper, Audrey Hepburn, Maurice Chevalier, John McGiver. Forget age difference between Cooper and Hepburn and enjoy sparkling romantic comedy, with Chevalier as Audrey's private-eye dad. McGiver lends good support in witty comedy set in Paris. Wilder's first film cowritten with I.A.L. Diamond, and a tribute to his idol, Ernst Lubitsch. ▼●●

Love in the City (1953-Italian) 90m.  D: Michelangelo Antonioni, Federico Fellini, Dino Risi, Carlo Lizzani, Alberto Lattuada, Francesco Maselli, Cesare Zavattini. Ugo Tognazzi, Maresa Gallo, Caterina Rigoglioso, Silvio Lillo, Angela Pierro. The title tells all in this episodic, six-part neorealist chronicle—filmed cinéma vérité style—of various aspects of romance in Rome. This was supposed to be the first edition of a film journal, known as "The Spectator." Originally 110m.; the Lizzani-directed sequence, about prostitution, was deleted from foreign-release prints. ▼

Love in the Time of Cholera (2007) C-138m. ½ D: Mike Newell. Javier Bardem, Giovanna Mezzogiorno, Benjamin Bratt, Catalina Sandino Moreno, Hector Elizondo, Liev Schreiber, Ana Claudia Talancón, Fernanda Montenegro, Unax Ugalde, John Leguizamo, Laura Harring. Mild-mannered young man falls in love with a woman on sight, and though she marries a wealthy doctor, he never abandons his obsessive dream of being with her. Robust interpretation of Gabriel García Márquez novel captures its "magical realism"—and disarming sense of humor—as it spans 50 years. Filled with colorful characters, beautiful women, and a quixotic central character beautifully played by Bardem. Inspired adaptation by Ronald Harwood; exquisite production design (by Wolf Kroeger) and costumes (by Marit Allen). Super 35. [R] ●

Love in the Time of Hysteria SEE: Sólo Con Tu Pareja

Love Is a Ball (1963) C-111m. ½ D: David Swift. Glenn Ford, Hope Lange, Charles Boyer, Ricardo Montalban, Telly Savalas. Forced froth trying hard to be chic; gold-digging and romance on the Riviera. Panavision.

Love Is All There Is (1996) C-90m. *½ D: Renee Taylor, Joseph Bologna. Renee Taylor, Joseph Bologna, Lainie Kazan, Paul Sorvino, Barbara Carrera, Angelina Jolie, Nathaniel Marston, William Hickey, Abe Vigoda, Connie Stevens, Dick Van Patten. Taylor and Bologna scripted this loud, sentimental, silly romantic comedy of two rival Italian catering families whose children fall in love. This modern-day Romeo and Juliet makeover is set in City Island, The Bronx, where the scenery upstages the largely wasted cast. Filmed in 1994. [R] ▼●●

Love Is a Many Splendored Thing (1955) C-102m.  D: Henry King. William Holden, Jennifer Jones, Murray Matheson, Torin Thatcher, Jorja Curtright, Virginia Gregg, Isobel Elsom, Richard Loo, Soo Yong, Philip Ahn, James Hong, Keye Luke. Well-mounted soap set in Hong Kong at time of Korean War. Eurasian doctor Jones falls in love with war correspondent Holden. Effective telling of true story, beautifully executed, with Oscar-winning costumes (Charles LeMaire), scoring (Alfred Newman), and title song (Sammy Fain and Paul Francis Webster). CinemaScope. ▼●●

Love Is Better Than Ever (1952) 81m. ½ D: Stanley Donen. Elizabeth Taylor, Larry Parks, Josephine Hutchinson, Tom Tully, Ann Doran, Elinor Donahue, Kathleen Freeman. Forgettable froth involving talent agent Parks and dance teacher Taylor. Mild MGM musical, but Liz looks terrific. Gene Kelly has an unbilled cameo. ▼ love jones (1997) C-110m. ½ D: Theodore Witcher. Larenz Tate, Nia Long, Isaiah Washington, Bill Bellamy, Bernadette Clark, Lisa Nicole Carson, Khalil Kain. Age-old boy-meets-girl love story given '90s treatment, set in the upwardly mobile black culture of Chicago. Slightly overlong but refreshing date movie is energized by the chemistry of leads Tate and Long, and fine supporting performances. [R]▼●●

Loveless, The (1983) C-84m. ½ D: Kathryn Bigelow, Monty Montgomery, J. Don Ferguson, Willem Dafoe, Marin Kanter, Robert Gordon, Tina L'Hotsky, Liz Gans. A group of bikers stop in a small Southern town while on their way to the races at Daytona. Uneven homage to THE WILD ONE: pretentious and practically plotless, with about five times as much rockabilly music as dialogue; still, visually stunning, like an Edward Hopper painting of the 1950s. [R]▼●

Love Letter, The (1999) C-88m.  D: Peter Ho-sun Chan. Kate Capshaw, Blythe Danner, Ellen DeGeneres, Geraldine McEwan, Julianne Nicholson, Tom Everett Scott, Tom Selleck, Gloria Stuart. Low-key romantic comedy of New England seaside hamlet; bookstore owner/single mom Capshaw finds a love letter that inadvertently gets passed around town. Fun at first, but slows to a crawl at the midway point. Capshaw coproduced; her daughters Jessica Capshaw and Sasha Spielberg briefly appear. Based on the novel by Cathleen Schine. Jack Black appears unbilled. [PG-13]▼●●

Love Letters (1945) 101m.  D: William Dieterle. Jennifer Jones, Joseph Cotten, Ann Richards, Anita Louise, Cecil Kellaway, Gladys Cooper, Reginald Denny. Artificial soap of amnesiac Jones cured by Cotten's love; only real asset is Victor Young's lovely title song. Ayn Rand adapted Chris Massie's book, Pity My Simplicity.▼

Love Letters (1983) C-98m.  D: Amy Jones, Jamie Lee Curtis, James Keach, Amy Madigan, Bud Cort, Matt Clark, Bonnie Bartlett, Sally Kirkland. Moving drama about a young single woman (nicely played by Curtis) who discovers deceased mother's correspondence with lover, then takes up with a married man of her own (Keach). Originally titled MY LOVE LETTERS. Aka PASSION PLAY. [R]▼●●

Love Liza (2002-U.S.-French) C-90m. ½ D: Todd Louiso. Philip Seymour Hoffman, Kathy Bates, Jack Kehler, Sarah Koskoff, Stephen Tobolowsky, Erika Alexander. Offbeat story of a man desperately trying to cope with an unthinkable tragedy—the suicide of his wife, who's left behind a letter he can't bear to read. Unlike mainstream movies, this one doesn't try to solve its character's problems in a neat and tidy way, which is admirable but also off-putting at times. Interesting and surprising from start to finish. Written by the star's brother, playwright Gordy Hoffman. [R]▼●

Lovely & Amazing (2002) C-89m. ½ D: Nicole Holofcener. Catherine Keener, Brenda Blethyn, Emily Mortimer, Raven Goodwin, Aunjae Ellis, Clark Gregg, Jake Gyllenhaal, James LeGros, Michael Nouri,

Dermot Mulroney. A laid-back character study of two dysfunctional sisters and their well-meaning but screw-loose mother. Keener approaches the world with unbridled anger, while Mortimer has no self-esteem; young children affect the lives of all the women in the story. Uneven seriocomedy from the creator of WALKING AND TALKING is strident at times, but resolves itself quite movingly.▼●

Lovely To Look At (1952) C-105m. ½ D: Mervyn LeRoy. Kathryn Grayson, Red Skelton, Howard Keel, Ann Miller, Marge & Gower Champion, Zsa Zsa Gabor. Second screen version of ROBERTA is a lesser MGM musical, but definitely has its moments as American comic Skelton inherits half-interest in a Paris dress salon run by Grayson and Marge Champion. Miller and the Champions add punch to the musical sequences; Vincente Minnelli directed the fashion show sequence. Songs include "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," "I Won't Dance," and title tune.▼●

Lovely Way to Die, A (1968) C-103m. ½ D: David Lowell Rich. Kirk Douglas, Sylva Koscina, Eli Wallach, Kenneth Haigh, Sharon Farrell, Gordon Peter, Marty Green. Odd detective suspenser. Douglas is likable cop turned private eye assigned by D.A. (Wallach) to protect Koscina, awaiting murder trial. Pacing and script offbeat at right moments, otherwise standard. Look for Ali MacGraw in screen debut. Techniscope.

Love Machine, The (1971) C-108m. *½ D: Jack Haley, Jr. John Phillip Law, Dyan Cannon, Robert Ryan, Jackie Cooper, David Hemmings, Shecky Greene, Maureen Arthur. Ridiculous screen version of Jacqueline Susann's best-seller about Robin Stone (Law), ruthless TV executive who uses others for self-gain. [R]▼

Love Maniac, The SEE: Blood of Ghastly Horror

Love Me if You Dare (2003-French-Belgian) C-94m.  D: Yann Samuell. Guillaume Canet, Marion Cotillard, Thibault Verhaeghe, Joséphine Lebas-Joly, Gérard Watkins, Gilles Lellouche. Alternately whimsical and cruel romantic comedy chronicling the twisted, hypnotic relationship of a boy and girl through adulthood. As children they begin daring each other to commit silly pranks in defiance of authority; years later the challenges become increasingly dangerous, both physically and psychologically. Feature directing debut from animator Samuell employs many gimmicks in this complex tale of love, but it eventually becomes tiresome. [R]▼●

Love Me or Leave Me (1955) C-122m. ½ D: Charles Vidor. Doris Day, James Cagney, Cameron Mitchell, Robert Keith, Tom Tully. Engrossing musical bio (from an Oscar-winning story by Daniel Fuchs) of singer Ruth Etting, whose life and career were dominated by a gangster called the Gimp. Day and Cagney give strong performances. Score includes Doris' hit "I'll Never Stop Loving You," plus oldies like "Ten Cents a Dance," "Shaking the Blues Away." CinemaScope. ▼●●

Love Me Tender (1956) 89m. ½ D: Robert D. Webb. Richard Egan. Debra Paget, Elvis Presley, Robert Middleton, William Campbell, Neville Brand, Mildred Dunnock. Presley's film debut is Civil War yarn of conflicting politics among sons in a Southern family, and their mutual love for Paget. Elvis' singing ("Let Me," "We're Gonna Move (to a Better Home)," "Poor Boy," and the title tune) highlights so-so Western. Elvis' swivel hips might not be authentic period detail! CinemaScope. ▼

Love Me Tonight (1932) 96m. * D: Rouben Mamoulian. Maurice Chevalier, Jeanette MacDonald, Charlie Ruggles, Myrna Loy, C. Aubrey Smith, Charles Butterworth, Robert Greig. One of the best musicals ever made; Chevalier plays a tailor who falls in love with a princess (MacDonald). Along the way they get to sing Rodgers and Hart's "Love," "Mimi," "Isn't It Romantic?," among others. Mamoulian's ingenious ideas, and mobile camera, keep this fresh and alive. Screenplay by Samuel Hoffenstein, Waldemar Young, and George Marion, Jr., from a play by Leopold Marchand and Paul Armont. Originally released at 104m. ▼

Love Nest (1951) 84m.  D: Joseph M. Newman. June Haver, William Lundigan, Frank Fay, Marilyn Monroe, Jack Paar, Leatrice Joy. Cheerful but bland comedy about an Army returnee whose wife has bought a broken-down brownstone apartment, and whose tenants become part of their lives. Interesting only for early looks at Monroe and future TV host Paar. ▼

Love on a Pillow (1962-French) C-102m.  D: Roger Vadim. Brigitte Bardot, Robert Hossein, James Robertson Justice, Jean-Marc Bory. Charitable Bardot bestows her pleasures on young man, hoping to divert his intended suicide; saucy little comedy. Franscope. ▼

Love on the Ground (1984-French) C-126m. *½ D: Jacques Rivette. Geraldine Chaplin, Jane Birkin, Andre Dussollier, Jean-Pierre Kalfon, Facundo Bo, Laszlo Szabo. Boring, confusing, pretentious story of actresses Chaplin and Birkin, hired by Kalfon to rehearse and perform his play—whose ending has not yet been written. For Rivette admirers only.

Love on the Run (1936) 80m.  D: W. S. Van Dyke II. Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Franchot Tone, Reginald Owen, Mona Barrie, Ivan Lebedeff, Charles Judels, William Demarest, Donald Meek. Roving newspaper correspondent Gable takes it on the lam with frustrated heiress Crawford and becomes involved with international spies. This stale IT HAPPENED ONE NIGHT variation relies solely on its star power. ▼●●

Love on the Run (1979-French) C-90m.  D: François Truffaut. Jean-Pierre Léaud, Marie-France Pisier, Claude Jade, Dani, Dorothee, Rosy Varte, Julien Bertheau, Daniel Mesguich. Further romantic adventures of Truffaut's alter ego, Antoine Doinel (Léaud): Here, he divorces wife Jade and sets out again on his hopeless chase after love. Fine, but not top-notch Truffaut. Fifth entry in series, following BED AND BOARD; included are clips of others, which don't work here. Léaud's final appearance as Doinel. [PG] ▼●●

Love Parade, The (1929) 110m.  D: Ernst Lubitsch. Maurice Chevalier, Jeanette MacDonald, Lillian Roth, Lionel Belmore, Lupino Lane, Ben Turpin. Initial teaming of Chevalier and MacDonald is enjoyable operetta with chic Lubitsch touch, about love among the royalty of Sylvania. Acrobatic comedian Lane and personality performer Roth make wonderful second leads. Virginia Bruce is one of Jeanette's ladies-in-waiting. "Dream Lover" is film's best song. Score by Victor Schertzinger (later a film director himself) and Clifford Grey. MacDonald's film debut. ●

Love Potion No. 9 (1992) C-96m.  D: Dale Launer. Tate Donovan, Sandra Bullock, Mary Mara, Dale Midkiff, Hillary Bailey Smith, Dylan Baker, Anne Bancroft. Sluggish, often silly comedy in which two timid people, biochemist Donovan and animal psychologist Bullock, become human guinea pigs for a love potion. Launer also produced and scripted. [PG-13] ▼●●

Lover, The (1992-French) C-110m. ½ D: Jean-Jacques Annaud. Jane March, Tony Leung, Frédérique Meiningner, Arnaud Giovaninetti, Melvil Poupaud, Lisa Faulkner, Xiem Mang; narrated by Jeanne Moreau. Exotic, soft-core adaptation of Marguerite Duras' autobiographical novel about a teenage girl who's initiated into sex by an older Chinese dandy in 1929 Indochina. Borderline tedious, yet offbeat and well mounted enough to amuse anyone inclined to see it in the first place. Peripheral characters are more interesting than the two leads (at least when clothed). Sexier European version is available unrated. [R] ▼●● with resulting predictable complications. Curiously anachronistic, and not even up to sitcom level; a major disappointment from the otherwise dependable Silver. [PG-13]▼●●

Loverboy (2005) C-84m. *½ D: Kevin Bacon. Kyra Sedgwick, Kevin Bacon, Blair Brown, Matt Dillon, Oliver Platt, Campbell Scott, Marisa Tomei, Melissa Errico, Dominic Scott Kay, Sandra Bullock. Story of a woman whose sole goal in life is to have a child. She feeds her obsession by smothering her son with attention and affection in all the wrong ways while everyone around her is oblivious—or just moronic. Director Bacon turns Victoria Redel's novel of an unbalanced woman into an unbalanced film, with his wife in the leading role. He tries hard but can't make this offbeat tale engaging or believable. Bacon and Sedgwick coproduced; their children Sosie and Travis Bacon have small roles. [R]▼

Lover Come Back (1946) 90m. ½ D: William A. Seiter. Lucille Ball, George Brent, Vera Zorina, Carl Esmond, William Wright, Charles Winninger. Bright little comedy of Lucy suing Brent for divorce when she sees his companion during war, photographer Zorina. Retitled WHEN LOVERS MEET.

Lover Come Back (1961) C-107m. ½ D: Delbert Mann. Rock Hudson, Doris Day, Tony Randall, Edie Adams, Jack Oakie, Jack Kruschen, Ann B. Davis, Joe Flynn, Jack Albertson, Howard St. John, Donna Douglas. Early Day-Hudson vehicle is one of the best. Funny, fast-moving comedy has ad exec Doris trying to get account away from rival Rock—unaware that the product doesn't exist! Edie Adams stands out in fine supporting cast.▼●●

Lovers, The (1958-French) 88m.  D: Louis Malle. Jeanne Moreau, Alain Cuny, Jose Luis de Villalonga, Jean-Marc Bory, Gaston Modot. Chic, once-controversial tale of wealthy, married, spiritually empty Moreau and her two very different extramarital involvements. Malle's first major international success, and one of Moreau's most important early credits. Dyaliscope.▼

Lovers (1991-Spanish) C-103m. ½ D: Vicente Aranda. Victoria Abril, Jorge Sanz, Maribel Verdu. Handsome youth snuggles up with his sexy older landlady, while leaving his deceptively innocent fiancée in the lurch. Erotic true-crime saga, based on a murder case from 1955 Franco Madrid. Impressively acted and photographed. Screenplay by director Aranda, Alvaro Del Amo, and Carlos Perez Merinero.▼

Lovers and Liars (1979-Italian) C-96m.  D: Mario Monicelli. Goldie Hawn, Giancarlo Giannini, Claudine Auger, Aureo Clement, Laura Betti, Andrea Ferreol. Forgettable black comedy centering on

Lovers and Other Strangers (1970) C-106m. ½ D: Cy Howard. Gig Young, Bea Arthur, Bonnie Bedelia, Anne Jackson, Harry Guardino, Michael Brandon, Richard Castellano, Bob Dishy, Marian Hailey, Cloris Leachman, Anne Meara. Vividly real, genuinely funny movie about side effects, reverberations when young couple gets married. Film won fame for Castellano, with catch-line "So what's the story?" just one of many memorable vignettes. Gig Young delightful as perennially cheerful father of the bride. From the play by Renee Taylor and Joseph Bologna (they scripted with David Z. Goodman); with Oscar-winning song, "For All We Know." Diane Keaton's film debut. [PG—originally rated R]▼

Lover's Knot (1996) C-88m. *½ D: Pete Shaner. Bill Campbell, Jennifer Grey, Tim Curry, Adam Baldwin, Dr. Joyce Brothers, Anne Francis, Zeldia Rubinstein, Dawn Wells. Cutesy romantic trifle in which cupid Curry must bring together a poetry scholar and a beautiful doctor, then keep them an item for the rest of this movie's seemingly endless running time. Cupid's arrow definitely misses the funny bone here. [R]▼

Lovers Like Us (1975-French) C-103m. ½ D: Jean-Paul Rappeneau. Catherine Deneuve, Yves Montand, Luigi Vanucchi, Tony Roberts, Dana Wynter. Globetrotting screwball comedy has Deneuve and Montand running away from their respective spouses, meeting and falling in love with each other. Nothing special, but easy to take. Original title: LE SAUVAGE. [PG]▼

Lovers of the Arctic Circle (1998-Spanish) C-112m.  D: Julio Medem. Najwa Nimri, Fele Martinez, Nancho Novo, Maru Valdivielso, Kristel Diaz, Victor Hugo Oliveira. Beguiling romantic drama about two young people who first meet as eight-year-old schoolmates and gradually realize they are destined to be together; in fact, their entire lives are linked by a series of odd parallels. It's no coincidence that the main characters' names, Anna and Otto, are palindromes; director Medem's conceit is that love is circular and eternal. Only sour note is film's conclusion. Super 35. [R]▼

Lovers on the Bridge, The (1991-French) C-129m. ½ D: Léos Carax. Juliette Binoche, Denis Lavant, Klaus-Michael Grüber, Daniel Buaïn, Marion Stalens, Edith Scob. Binoche is a lustrous presence in this otherwise hot-and-cold tale as a homeless, half-blind painter who, with manipulative street-performer Lavant, camps out on Paris's crumbling Pont Neuf Bridge while it's closed down for restoration. Some dazzling imagery combined with an air of pretension make this a decidedly mixed bag. Lavant plays the same character in BOY MEETS GIRL and BAD BLOOD (1987). Released in the U.S. in 1999. [R]▼

Loves and Times of Scaramouche, The (1975-Italian) C-95m. *½ D: Enzo G. Castellari. Michael Sarrazin, Ursula Andress, Aldo Maccione, Giancarlo Prete, Michael Forest. Scaramouche has his way with women, and runs afoul of an oafish Napoleon in this energetic but empty-headed farce. Maccione adds some laughs as Bonaparte. Poorly dubbed. Filmed in Rome and Zagreb.▼

Love Serenade (1996-Australian) C-101m. ½ D: Shirley Barrett. Miranda Otto, Rebecca Frith, George Shevtsov, John Alansu, Jessica Napier. Oddball black comedy about a desperate, clingy beautician (Frith) and her reclusive younger sister (Otto) vying for the affections of a self-centered hipster deejay (Shevtsov)—who seems to be the only eligible man in town. Often poignant and deadpan funny, but the ending is unsatisfying. Worth seeing for the performances, especially Otto, a compendium of hilariously paranoid body tics. Film takes its title from a Barry White song, one of many featured on the groovy '70s soundtrack. Written by the director. Super 35. [R]▼

Lovesick (1983) C-95m.  D: Marshall Brickman. Dudley Moore, Elizabeth McGovern, Alec Guinness, John Huston, Wallace Shawn, Alan King, Renee Taylor, Ron Silver, Gene Saks, David Strathairn. "Sick" is right; this romantic comedy (about a psychiatrist who falls in love with his newest patient) needs a shot of adrenalin. Fine cast founders; Guinness' turn as the shade of Sigmund Freud is a waste. Only Silver gets real laughs as a Pacino-like actor. [PG]▼

Love's Labour's Lost (2000-U.S.-British-French) C-95m. *½ D: Kenneth Branagh. Kenneth Branagh, Natascha McElhone, Alicia Silverstone, Nathan Lane, Adrian Lester, Alessandro Nivola, Matthew Lillard, Timothy Spall, Carmen Ejogo, Emily Mortimer, Geraldine McEwan, Richard Briers. Shakespeare's comic romp becomes a 1930s musical. The King of Navarre (Nivola) and three comrades swear off women—just as the King of France's daughter (Silverstone) arrives with three attractive friends. Hollywood-inspired production numbers are downright embarrassing at times; everyone tries hard, but only Lane emerges unscathed. Uses old Fred & Ginger songs, but reminds one more of Burt & Cybill (from AT LONG LAST LOVE). Panavision. [PG]▼

Loves of a Blonde (1965-Czech) 88m. ½ D: Milos Forman. Hana Brejchova, Josef Sebanek, Vladimir Pucholt, Jan Vostrell, Vladimir Mensik. Sweet, poignant tale of idealistic shoe-factory worker Brejchova, and what happens after she spends the night with—and falls in love with—womanizing pianist Pucholt. Gentle comedy-drama is both entertaining and revealing.▼

Loves of Carmen, The (1948) C-99m. ½ D: Charles Vidor. Rita Hayworth, Glenn Ford, Ron Randell, Victor Jory, Luther Adler. Hayworth's beauty is all there is in this colorful but routine retelling of the story of a gypsy man-killer, minus Bizet's music.▼

Love Song for Bobby Long, A (2004) C-119m.  D: Shainee Gabel. John Travolta, Scarlett Johansson, Gabriel Macht, Deborah Kara Unger, Dane Rhodes, David Jensen. Upon the death of her mother, from whom she was estranged, a young woman returns to her New Orleans home, which is now occupied by two of her mother's friends: a boozy Southern character, once an admired professor of English literature, and his emotionally paralyzed protégé. Picaresque, richly imbued with Louisiana flavor, but overlong and unconvincing. Feature debut for writer-director Gabel, inspired by Ronald Everett Capps' novel Off Magazine Street. [R]▼

Love Songs (1986-Canadian-French) C-107m.  D: Elie Chouraqui. Catherine Deneuve, Richard Anconina, Christopher Lambert, Jacques Perrin, Nick Mancuso, Dayle Haddon, Charlotte Gainsbourg. Lightweight, predictable soap opera about the loves and ambitions of rock singers (Anconina, Lambert), focusing mostly on the latter's relationship with an older woman (Deneuve). Attempts to be touching and bittersweet but doesn't ring true.▼

Love Songs (2007-French) C-100m.  D: Christophe Honoré. Louis Garrel, Ludivine Sagnier, Chiara Mastroianni, Clotilde Hesme, Grégoire Leprince-Ringuet, Brigitte Rotan, Jean-Marie Winling, Yannick Renier. Ambitious, generally winning (and very French) romantic musical in which Garrel and Sagnier commence—he wholeheartedly, she reluctantly—a ménage à trois with Hesme. Then tragedy strikes. Bold attempt to explore the way people are drawn to each other, how they deal with their feelings, and the curveballs that life tosses at them. Stylistically, Honoré pays homage to the French New Wave; musical interludes are reminiscent of Demy's THE UMBRELLAS OF CHERBOURG.

Lovespell (1979) C-91m. BOMB D: Tom Donovan. Richard Burton, Kate Mulgrew, Nicholas Clay, Cyril Cusack, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Niall Toibin, Diana Van Der Vlis, Niall O'Brien. Thoroughly inept retelling of the romantic Tristan and Isolde legend. One-take-only filming on Irish locations has static direction and writing from a Classics Illustrated comic book. Mulgrew is too old for the Isolde role, and her American ac-

cent clashes with the rest of the cast. Aka TRISTAN AND ISOLDE. ▼●

Love Stinks (1999) C-93m. *½ D: Jeff Franklin. French Stewart, Bridgette Wilson, Bill Bellamy, Tyra Banks, Steve Hytner, Jason Bateman, Tiffani-Amber Thiessen, Colleen Camp. Love is not the only thing that stinks in this barely funny (and mean-spirited) tale of a television comedy writer (Stewart) who becomes romantically involved with a sociopathic beauty-from-hell (Wilson). Plays like a one-note, R-rated TV sitcom episode. [R] ▼●

Love Story (1970) C-99m.  D: Arthur Hiller. Ali MacGraw, Ryan O'Neal, Ray Milland, John Marley, Katherine Balfour, Russell Nype, Tom (Tommy) Lee Jones. Just what it says: simple, modern boy-meets-girl story set against New England college backdrop, tinged with tragedy of girl's sudden illness. Can't hold a candle to older Hollywood schmaltz, but on its own terms, pretty good (and a box-office smash). Screenplay by Erich Segal, who also wrote the bestselling novel. Francis Lai won an Oscar for his score. Followed by OLIVER'S STORY. [PG] ▼●●

Love Streams (1984) C-141m.  D: John Cassavetes. Gena Rowlands, John Cassavetes, Diahnne Abbott, Risa Martha Blewitt, Seymour Cassel, Margaret Abbott. Typical Cassavetes fodder about a brother and sister with a strong emotional bond: for her, love never ends; and for him, love is an abstract undone by the harsh realities of life. Cassavetes aficionadoes will probably like it; for others, only marginally bearable. Based on a play by Ted Allan, who cowrote screenplay with Cassavetes. [PG-13] ▼

Love the Hard Way (2003-U.S.-German) C-104m.  D: Peter Sehr. Adrien Brody, Charlotte Ayanna, Jon Seda, August Diehl, Pam Grier, Katherine Moennig. Dull noir about a two-bit grifter who seduces a prim college coed into a life of crime, with tragic results. Brody and Ayanna have chemistry (and some steamy sex scenes) but the script fails to make their relationship plausible. Gritty Manhattan atmosphere helps somewhat, as does some off-the-wall comic dialogue (but not enough). Oddly, based on a Chinese pulp novel. [R] ▼●

Love! Valour! Compassion! (1997) C-110m. ½ D: Joe Mantello. Jason Alexander, Randy Becker, Stephen Bogardus, John Glover, John Benjamin Hickey, Justin Kirk, Stephen Spinella. Entertaining but overlong adaptation of Terrence McNally's Tony Award-winning play about eight gay male acquaintances who spend countryside weekends at their host's dream Victorian home over three summer holidays. Too much of the text tiresomely depends on Backbiting! Pettiness! and Sniping!, though Glover (reprising his Tony Award-winning performance) is impressive in a dual role as twins of wildly differing dispositions (last name, uh, Jeckyll). [R] ▼●●

Love Walked In (1998-U.S.-Argentinian) C-90m.  D: Juan J. Campanella. Denis Leary, Terence Stamp, Aitana Sanchez-Gijon, Danny Nucci, Moira Kelly, Michael Badalucco, Marj Dusay. Routine, low-rent film noir about a sour nightclub pianist who agrees to use his beautiful girlfriend as bait to entrap a wealthy admirer. Object: a big cash payoff. Adequate but uninspired time filler. [R] ▼

Love With the Proper Stranger (1963) 100m.  D: Robert Mulligan. Natalie Wood, Steve McQueen, Edie Adams, Herschel Bernardi, Tom Bosley. Nifty, cynical romance tale of working girl Wood and trumpet player McQueen. Much N.Y.C. on-location filming, nice support from Adams. Written by Arnold Schulman. Good bit: the title tune. ▼●

Love Your Mama (1993) C-92m.  D: Ruby Oliver. Carol E. Hall, Audrey Morgan, Andre Robinson, Earnest Rayford III, Kearo Johnson, Jacqueline Williams. Low-budget, semi-autobiographical melodrama about a mother in a Southside Chicago ghetto whose tribulations include an unfaithful, alcoholic husband, a pregnant teenage daughter, and two sons whose lives seem to be headed nowhere. Debuting writer-director Oliver must be commended for surmounting all obstacles to get her vision on the screen; in point of fact, her saga of getting the movie made is more inspiring than the film itself. [PG-13] ▼

Loving (1970) C-90m. ½ D: Irvin Kershner. George Segal, Eva Marie Saint, Sterling Hayden, Keenan Wynn, Nancie Phillips, Janis Young, Roy Scheider, Sherry Lansing. Extremely good drama chronicles Segal's marital and occupational problems. Director Kershner has great feeling for day-to-day detail; film's superb climax involves public lovemaking. [R] ▼●

Loving Jezebel (2000) C-90m. *½ D: Kwyn Bader. Hill Harper, Nicole Ari Parker, Laurel Holloman, Sandrine Holt, Phylicia Rashad, David Moscow. Shriill romantic comedy about a frustrated waiter/writer and his penchant for sleeping with neurotic, unavailable women. Deserves some points for its casual depiction of interracial relationships, but is full of irritating characters and substitutes histrionics for hilarity. The women are gorgeous but are reduced to man-crazed, screaming harpies. [R] ▼●

Loving You (1957) C-101m. ½ D: Hal Kanter. Elvis Presley, Lizabeth Scott, Wendell Corey, Dolores Hart, James Gleason. Publicist Liz and country-western musician Corey discover gas station attendant Presley and promote him to stardom. Elvis' second movie is highlighted by his performance of "Teddy Bear" and the title tune. VistaVision. ▼●●

Lovin' Molly (1974) C-98m.  D: Sidney Lumet. Anthony Perkins, Beau Bridges, Blythe Danner, Edward Binns, Susan Sarandon, Conard Fowkes. Danner is just right in otherwise indifferent filmization of Larry McMurtry's novel Leaving Cheyenne, about two friends in Texas and their lifelong love for the same woman. [R]

Low Down, The (2001-British) C-96m.  D: Jamie Thraves. Aidan Gillen, Kate Ashfield, Dean Lennox Kelly, Tobias Menzies, Rupert Proctor, Samantha Power. Low-low-key slice of slacker London life about a successful artist in his late 20s who lives in a slum neighborhood and grapples with moving up and moving on. Gillen makes for an appealing commitment-phobe but it's hard to care when all he and his mates do is sit around, drink beer and smoke cigarettes. Feature-film debut for music video director Thraves.

Low Down Dirty Shame, A (1994) C-108m. ½ D: Keenen Ivory Wayans. Keenen Ivory Wayans, Charles S. Dutton, Jada Pinkett, Salli Richardson, Andrew Divoff, Corwin Hawkins, Gary Cervantes, Gregory Sierra, Kim Wayans. Occasionally amusing comedy-actioner with Wayans as a private detective hired by the DEA to uncover some missing drug money. However, you might say that it's a low-down dirty shame that this film isn't funnier—or that Wayans (who also scripted) so often resorts to unsubtle stereotyping for cheap laughs. Pinkett really scores as Wayans' loyal assistant. [R] ▼●●

Lower City (2005-Brazilian) C-98m. ½ D: Sérgio Machado. Alice Braga, Lázaro Ramos, Wagner Moura. Two lifelong pals operate a cargo boat, leading a rough-and-tumble existence. Their relationship changes after they give a lift to a beautiful young prostitute in return for sexual favors: both men are deeply attracted to her, and she refuses to choose between them. Resolution isn't terribly satisfying, but story takes a backseat to the atmosphere in this striking, sexy slice-of-life drama. Debut feature for documentary filmmaker Machado, who also coscripted. Walter Salles coproduced. Braga is the niece of actress Sônia. [R] ▼

Lower Depths, The (1936-French) 92m. ½ D: Jean Renoir. Jean Gabin, Louis Jouvet, Suzy Prim, Vladimir Sokoloff, Junie Astor, Robert Le Vignan. Sordid drama about assorted characters in a squalid home for delinquents. Pepel (Gabin), a professional thief, loves the younger sister of his mistress, and commits murder to save her from the clutches of a police officer to whom she has been "given" as a bribe. Loose adaptation of the 1902 Maxim Gorki play changes the setting from Czarist Russia to an imaginary land. Renoir scripted with Charles Spaak. Remade 21 years later by Akira Kurosawa, who was more faithful to the play. Original title: LES BAS-FONDS. ▼

Lower Depths, The (1957-Japanese) 125m.  D: Akira Kurosawa. Toshiro Mifune, Isuzu Yamada, Ganjiro Nakamura, Kyoko Kagawa. Well-directed and acted but endlessly talky drama of tortured, poverty-stricken souls, with Mifune a thief who becomes involved with Kagawa. Based on a Maxim Gorki play. ▼

Low Life, The (1996) C-98m.  D: George Hickenlooper. Rory Cochrane, Kyra Sedgwick, Sean Astin, Ron Livingston, Christian Meoli, Sara Melson, James Le Gros, Shawnee Smith, J.T. Walsh, Renée Zellweger. Wannabe writer Cochrane comes to L.A. and finds himself surrounded by aimless companions and a woman (Sedgwick) who cannot commit. Well acted, but depressing and unfulfilling. [R] ▼●●

Loyal 47 Ronin, The SEE: 47 Ronin, Part I and Part II, The

L. 627 (1992-French) C-145m.  D: Bertrand Tavernier. Didier Bezace, Charlotte Kady, Philippe Torreton, Nils Tavernier, Jean-Paul Comart, Jean-Roger Milo, Lara Guirao. "Lulu" Marguet is a career cop who fights drug dealers with a keen sense of commitment—which is more than can be said for many of his colleagues. Pungent satire of contemporary French police force, and the way an "elite" drug-busting unit tries to function amid the absurdities of red tape and administrative bungling. Funny, yet frightening. Director Tavernier's son plays Vincent. ▼

L-Shaped Room, The (1963-British) 125m.  D: Bryan Forbes. Leslie Caron, Tom Bell, Brock Peters, Avis Bunnage, Emlyn Williams, Cicely Courtneidge, Bernard Lee, Patricia Phoenix, Nanette Newman. French woman crosses the Channel to face pregnancy alone, comes to meet interesting assortment of characters in shabby London boarding house. Caron is superb in the lead. ▼

winning story of a precocious 14-year-old boy who develops a serious crush on the new girl in town—and the various ramifications that follow. One of the few Hollywood films about young people in the '80s that doesn't paint its characters in black and white only. A real sleeper, marking writer Seltzer's directing debut as well as screen debut for Ryder. [PG-13]▼

Lucia, Lucia (2002-Mexican-Spanish) C-110m. ½ D: Antonio Serrano. Cecilia Roth, Carlos Álvarez-Novoa, Kuno Becker. An unhappily married middle-aged author gets a new lease on life when her husband disappears. Two men—one older, one younger—fall in love with her while helping her track him down. Curious romantic comedy-thriller set in Mexico City can't figure out what it wants to be; still a dynamic vehicle for Roth (ALL ABOUT MY MOTHER), who's never been more appealing. Super 35. [R]▼

Lucie Aubrac (1997-French) C-116m. ½ D: Claude Berri. Carole Bouquet, Daniel Auteuil, Patrice Chereau, Jean-Roger Milo, Heino Ferch, Pascal Gregory. Married couple Auteuil and Bouquet are members of the Resistance in Lyon, France. When he is captured by the Gestapo, she determines to free him. WW2 drama emphasizes real-life love story but suffers from deliberate pacing. Based on the book Outwitting the Gestapo by Lucie Aubrac herself. Leading French director Chereau portrays Max. Technovision. [R]▼

Luckiest Man in the World, The (1989) C-82m.  D: Frank D. Gilroy. Philip Bosco, Doris Belack, Joanne Camp, Matthew Gottlieb, Arthur French, Stan Lachow. Scrooge-like businessman Bosco is almost killed in a plane crash, and abruptly decides to change his ways. Gilroy also scripted this unpretentious, well-acted little tale; the "voice" in the bathroom is that of Moses Gunn.

Luck of Ginger Coffey, The (1964-Canadian-U.S.) 100m.  D: Irvin Kershner. Robert Shaw, Mary Ure, Liam Redmond, Tom Harvey, Libby McClintock. Effective kitchen-sink drama with Shaw in one of his best performances as an out-of-work Irish-born dreamer, approaching middle age, who moves to Montreal with wife Ure and their teenage daughter, hoping to find success. Scripted by Brian Moore, based on his novel.▼

Lucky Break (2001-British-German) C-107m. ½ D: Peter Cattaneo. James Nesbitt, Olivia Williams, Timothy Spall, Bill Nighy, Lennie James, Ron Cook, Frank Harper, Christopher Plummer. Cattaneo's follow-up picture to THE FULL MONTY is at best an amusing story of inmates who literally stage an escape by producing and appearing in a musical written by the prison governor. Slight but diverting, well-acted tale should

please fans of British comedy, especially when it finally gets around to the night of the big show. Lyrics for that show were written by Stephen Fry. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Lucky Lady (1975) C-118m.  D: Stanley Donen. Gene Hackman, Liza Minnelli, Burt Reynolds, Geoffrey Lewis, John Hillerman, Robby Benson, Michael Hordern. Star trio make an engaging team, as amateur rum-runner in the 1930s who practices a ménage-à-trois after business hours . . . script goes astray and drags along to a limp, hastily refilmed conclusion. Unfortunate waste of talent; written by Willard Huyck and Gloria Katz. [PG]

Lucky Luciano (1974-Italian-French-U.S.) C-110m.  D: Francesco Rosi. Gian-Maria Volonté, Rod Steiger, Edmond O'Brien, Vincent Gardenia, Charles Cioffi. Fair international coproduction about the deported crime kingpin, given a good interpretation by Volonte. Former federal narcotics agent Charles Siragusa, Luciano's real-life nemesis, plays himself. [R]▼

Lucky Me (1954) C-100m.  D: Jack Donohue. Doris Day, Robert Cummings, Phil Silvers, Eddie Foy, Nancy Walker, Martha Hyer, Bill Goodwin. Bright-faced but doggedly mediocre musical set in Miami, with Doris as star of Silvers' third-rate theatrical troupe who attracts the attention of Broadway songwriter Cummings. Look for young Angie Dickinson in first film appearance. CinemaScope.▼

Lucky Numbers (2000) C-105m. *½ D: Nora Ephron. John Travolta, Lisa Kudrow, Tim Roth, Ed O'Neill, Michael Rapaport, Daryl Mitchell, Bill Pullman, Richard Schiff, Michael Moore, Michael Weston, Sam McMurray. Hapless local TV weatherman Travolta, who's in debt, is persuaded to try rigging the station's weekly state lottery drawing, with the help of "lottery girl" Kudrow. Witless comedy full of unpleasant characters; a total turn-off. [R]▼

Lucky Number Slevin (2006) C-110m. ½ D: Paul McGuigan. Josh Hartnett, Bruce Willis, Morgan Freeman, Ben Kingsley, Lucy Liu, Stanley Tucci, Danny Aiello, Kevin Chamberlin, Mykelti Williamson, Robert Forster. A mysterious figure (Willis) tells a stranger about a crime committed long ago; the rest of the film reveals the other side of that coin. Hartnett is mistaken for a friend he's visiting in N.Y.C. and is summoned by two rival crime bosses (Freeman, cast against type, and Kingsley, as a rabbi-crimelord with a New York accent) who expect him to do their bidding in order to save his life. Challenging, puzzlelike script is never dull but is too self-consciously clever. Liu is a standout as Hartnett's love interest who's also the city coroner. Super 35. [R]▼

Lucky Ones, The (2008) C-113m. ½ D: Neil Burger. Rachel McAdams, Tim Robbins, Michael Peña, Annie Corley, John Diehl,

John Heard, Molly Hagan, Spencer Garrett, Arden Myrin. Three lost souls who have just returned to the U.S. after serving in Iraq take off on a cross-country road trip and discover an America that is at best appreciative of—but mostly indifferent to—their sacrifices. Episodic tale features touching moments and solid performances (particularly by McAdams), but some unnecessary attempts at comic relief fall flat. [R]●

Lucky Partners (1940) 99m.  D: Lewis Milestone. Ronald Colman, Ginger Rogers, Jack Carson, Spring Byington, Cecilia Loftus, Harry Davenport. Far-fetched comedy about Colman and Rogers winning sweepstakes together, then taking “imaginary” honeymoon. Stars try to buoy mediocre script.▼

Lucky Star, The (1980-Canadian) C-110m.  D: Max Fischer. Louise Fletcher, Rod Steiger, Lou Jacobi, Brett Marx, Helen Hughes. Entertaining tale of a young Jewish boy (Marx) whose parents are taken away by the Nazis. He is sheltered on a Rotterdam farm and singlehandedly goes up against German Colonel Steiger. A sleeper. [PG]

Lucky Stiff (1988) C-82m.  D: Anthony Perkins. Joe Alaskey, Donna Dixon, Jeff Kober, Morgan Sheppard, Barbara Howard, Charles Frank, Fran Ryan, Leigh McCloskey, Bill Quinn. Uneven black comedy about cannibalism improves as it goes along. Fat Alaskey, full of jokes and yearning to be married, is romanced by gorgeous Dixon, but doesn't know that she's selected him as Mr. Christmas Dinner for her inbred family. Awkwardly structured script and odd rhythms of film are helped by Alaskey's ingratiating performance. [PG]▼●●

Lucky You (2007) C-124m.  D: Curtis Hanson. Eric Bana, Drew Barrymore, Robert Duvall, Debra Messing, Horatio Sanz, Charles Martin Smith, Joey Kern, Jean Smart, Phyllis Somerville, Robert Downey, Jr., Saverio Guerra, Madeleine Peyroux, Michael Shannon. Poker-faced study of professional gambler Bana, who lives in Las Vegas and plays cards for a living—but can't step out of the shadow of his estranged father (Duvall), a revered poker champion. Movie gets everything right when it comes to the game (even re-creating the 2003 World Series of Poker, with many key players as themselves) but fails to ignite an interesting story for its characters. Amazingly dull. Written by Hanson and Eric Roth. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Lucy Gallant (1955) C-104m. ½ D: Robert Parrish. Charlton Heston, Jane Wyman, Thelma Ritter, Claire Trevor, William Demarest, Wallace Ford. Spiritless soap of success-bent Wyman rejecting suitors Heston et al., wanting to get ahead instead; set in Western oil town. Wyman plays dressmaker, and veteran Hollywood costume designer Edith Head makes a rare on-screen appearance near the end. VistaVision.

Ludwig (1972-Italian-French-German) C-173m.  D: Luchino Visconti. Helmut Berger, Romy Schneider, Trevor Howard, Silvana Mangano, Helmut Griem, Gert Frobe. Lavish film about Mad King of Bavaria keeps main character so cold, aloof that one feels no sympathy; after nearly three hours, effect is deadening. Authentic locations are breathtaking. Schneider and Howard excellent, but slow-moving film doesn't work. Incredibly, the original version of this runs 246m.! Video runs 237m. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Lullaby of Broadway (1951) C-92m. ½ D: David Butler. Doris Day, Gene Nelson, Gladys George, S. Z. Sakall, Billy De Wolfe, Florence Bates, Anne Triola. Musical comedy star Day returns to N.Y.C., unaware that her singer mother has hit the skids. Warner Bros. musical is decent but no big deal: good cast and lots of great old songs keep it moving.▼●●

Lulu on the Bridge (1999) C-103m.  D: Paul Auster. Harvey Keitel, Mira Sorvino, Willem Dafoe, Gina Gershon, Mandy Patinkin, Vanessa Redgrave, Don Byron, Richard Edson, Victor Argo, Kevin Corrigan, Harold Perrineau, Lou Reed, David Byrne; voice of Stockard Channing. Jazz saxophonist Keitel's career abruptly ends after he is a victim of random violence. After coming upon a magic stone on a Manhattan street, he enters into an unusual, intensely romantic relationship with a struggling actress (Sorvino). Jarring, provocative film is crammed with twists and surprises and explores the roles that coincidence and fate play in everyday life. Sorvino has never been lovelier. Solo directing debut for novelist Auster, who also scripted. [PG-13]▼●

Lumiere (1976-French) C-95m. ½ D: Jeanne Moreau. Jeanne Moreau, Francine Racette, Lucia Bose, Caroline Cartier, Marie Henriaux, Keith Carradine, Bruno Ganz, François Simon. Elaborate but not very involving drama about four actresses of different ages and status and their relationships with careers, men, each other. Curio is worth seeing for Moreau's directorial debut. [R]▼

Luminarias (2000) C-100m.  D: Jose Luis Valenzuela. Evelina Fernandez, Marta DuBois, Angela Moya, Diana Ortelli, Sal Lopez, Scott Bakula, Cheech Marin, Robert Beltran, Andrew Kim, Pepe Serna, Liz Torres. Four L.A. Latina women of a certain age cling to one another as they try to find the right men—while battling their own social prejudices. A sharply observed portrait of women with ethnic identity crises, told with vigor and humor. Written by its impressive leading lady, Fernandez. [R]▼●

Lumumba (2000-French-Belgian-German-Haitian) C-115m. ½ D: Raoul Peck. Eriq Ebouaney, Alex Descas, Théophile Sowié, Maka Kotto, Dieudonné Kabongo,

Pascal N'Zonzi. Powerful account of the life and times of Patrice Lumumba (Ebouaney, who is magnetic), the dedicated but ill-fated first prime minister of the Congo (now Zaire) after it was granted independence from Belgium in 1960. Both a top-notch thriller and a fair-minded biography of a courageous, charismatic individual and the complex time in which he lived. Written by Peck and Pascal Benitzer. ▼

Luna (1979) C-144m.  D: Bernardo Bertolucci. Jill Clayburgh, Matthew Barry, Veronica Lazar, Renato Salvatori, Fred Gwynne, Alida Valli, Roberto Benigni. Initially dazzling tale of male adolescent's identity crisis becomes ponderous when it turns into a mother-son soap opera with incestuous implications. Cinematically exciting, though, with a bravura finale. [R]

Lunatics: A Love Story (1992) C-87m. ½ D: Josh Becker. Theodore Raimi, Deborah Foreman, Bruce Campbell, Brian McCree, Eddie Rosmaya, Michele Stacey. Raimi is a gentle paranoid, confined by his fears to his lonely, foil-lined L.A. apartment; Foreman is convinced she causes the death of everyone she loves. Odd low-budget comedy has real, if eccentric, charm. "Presented" by Sam Raimi. [PG-13] ▼

Lunatics and Lovers (1976-Italian) C-93m. *½ D: Flavio Mogherini. Marcello Mastroianni, Claudia Mori, Lino Morelli, Flora Carabella, Adriano Celentano. Aristocrat Mastroianni has an imaginary wife; an organ grinder convinces prostitute Mori to "impersonate" her. When it's not silly, it's dull. ▼

Lunch Wagon (1980) C-88m. ½ D: Ernest Pintoff. Pamela Jean Bryant, Rosanne Katon, Candy Moore, Rick Podell, Rose Marie, Chuck McCann, Vic Dunlop, Jimmy Van Patten, Dick Van Patten. Above average drive-in comedy about trio of young lovelies who set up their lunch truck at a prime construction site, unaware that their competition is really a cover for a planned bank robbery. Good cast, spirited direction; Dale Bozzio sings "Mental Hopscotch." Reissued as LUNCH WAGON GIRLS and COME 'N' GET IT. [R] ▼

Lunch Wagon Girls SEE: Lunch Wagon Lured (1947) 102m. ½ D: Douglas Sirk. George Sanders, Lucille Ball, Charles Coburn, Alan Mowbray, Cedric Hardwicke, Boris Karloff, George Zucco. Ball turns detective in this melodrama, encounters strange characters and harrowing experiences while tracking murderer; pretty good, with top cast. Remake of Robert Siodmak's 1939 French film PIÈGES. ▼

Lurking Fear (1994) C-76m. *½ D: C. Courtney Joyner. Jon Finch, Blake Bailey, Ashley Lauren, Jeffrey Combs, Allison Mackie, Paul Mantee, Vincent Schiavelli. On a hot, sunny Christmas in Massachusetts, crooks and monster fighters confront one another in an old church, waiting for the creatures who live in tunnels below to make their annual attack. Seedy and tiresome, this seems more derived from KEY LARGO than from H. P. Lovecraft's story. Shot in Romania, and looks it. From Full Moon. ▼

Lust, Caution (2007-Hong Kong-U.S.-Chinese) C-157m.  D: Ang Lee. Tony Leung Chiu-Wai, Wei Teng, Joan Chen, Lee-Hom Wang, Chung Hua Tou, Hih-ying Chu, Ying-hsien Kao, Anupam Kher. Idealistic student in late 1930s Shanghai is recruited to join a resistance movement against Chinese people who are collaborating with the Japanese invaders. Her job is to win over a hardened official in order to set him up for assassination, but their relationship becomes so intense—sexually and psychically—that her emotions are blurred. Unusual story unfolds at great length yet maintains an almost hypnotic mood; sex scenes are graphic, but it's the looks in the leading actors' eyes that really tell the tale. Exquisite score by Alexandre Desplat. R-rated version runs 148m. [NC-17] ▼

Lust for Life (1956) C-122m. * D: Vincente Minnelli. Kirk Douglas, Anthony Quinn, James Donald, Pamela Brown, Everett Sloane, Niall MacGinnis, Noel Purcell, Henry Daniell, Jill Bennett, Lionel Jeffries, Eric Pohlmann. Brilliant adaptation of Irving Stone's biography of painter Van Gogh, vividly portraying his anguished life. Quinn won well-deserved Oscar for performance as painter-friend Gauguin, in this exquisite color production. Script by Norman Corwin. Produced by John Houseman. Fine music score by Miklos Rozsa. CinemaScope. ▼

Lust in the Dust (1985) C-85m. BOMB D: Paul Bartel. Tab Hunter, Divine, Lainie Kazan, Geoffrey Lewis, Henry Silva, Cesar Romero, Gina Gallego, Woody Strode, Pedro Gonzales-Gonzales. Hunter and Divine descend on a New Mexico hell-hole—he (like most of the cast) to locate some buried treasure, she (he?) to fulfill a dream of becoming a saloon singer. Dreadful attempt at camp despite an apparently whimsical casting director; what's to say about a movie where Divine's warbling is the comical highlight? Techniscope. [R] ▼

rodeo drama, with ex-champ Mitchum becoming mentor of novice Kennedy—and finding himself attracted to Kennedy's no-nonsense wife (Hayward). Solid going most of the way—until that hokey finale. Well directed by Ray. ▼●

Luther (1973-British) C-112m. ½ D: Guy Green. Stacy Keach, Patrick Magee, Hugh Griffith, Robert Stephens, Alan Badel, Judi Dench. Sincere but placid American Film Theatre re-creation of John Osborne's play about Martin Luther (Keach), leader of the Protestant Reformation. ▼

Luther (2003-U.S.-German) C-113m.  D: Eric Till. Joseph Fiennes, Alfred Molina, Bruno Ganz, Jonathan Firth, Peter Ustinov, Claire Cox, Benjamin Sadler. Handsomely mounted but one-dimensional historical soap opera about the life and times of Martin Luther (Fiennes), the father of the Protestant Reformation. Dramatically over-the-top and filled with corny dialogue, but its major failing is that it reduces complex historical issues to good-versus-evil simplicity. [PG-13] ▼

Luv (1967) C-95m. *½ D: Clive Donner. Jack Lemmon, Peter Falk, Elaine May, Eddie Mayhoffer, Paul Hartman, Severn Darden. Murray Schisgal's three-character hit play about pseudo-intellectuals was not a natural for the screen anyway, but this version is truly an abomination. The cast tries. Look for a young Harrison Ford. Panavision. ▼●

Luzhin Defence, The (2000-British-French) C-106m.  D: Marleen Gorris. John Turturro, Emily Watson, Geraldine James, Stuart Wilson, Christopher Thompson, Fabio Sartor. Intriguing adaptation of Vladimir Nabokov novel about a Russian chess master who falls in love while attending a world tournament in Italy during the 1920s. But his longtime teacher knows his dark secret: chess is not a game for him, but a compulsion. A treat to watch Turturro and Watson in this modest but well-made period piece. [PG-13] ▼

Lydia (1941) 104m.  D: Julien Duvivier. Merle Oberon, Edna May Oliver, Alan Marshal, Joseph Cotten, Hans Yaray, George Reeves. Sentimental tale of elderly woman (Oberon) meeting her former beau and recalling their courtship. Remake of Duvivier's own French classic, UN CARNET DE BAL. ▼

Lymelife (2009) C-94m.  D: Derick Martini. Alec Baldwin, Rory Culkin, Jill Hennessy, Timothy Hutton, Cynthia Nixon, Kieran Culkin, Emma Roberts. Meek, adolescent boy (Rory Culkin) sees his parents' strained marriage dissolve before his eyes, even as he falteringly initiates his first relationship—with the pretty girl next door (Roberts). Coming-of-age tale set in Long Island in 1979, as the boy's father (Baldwin) brashly pursues the American dream, covers familiar turf with some original touches and winning performances. Lean, independent film written by the director and his brother Steve Martini; the real-life Culkin brothers play siblings on-screen. Panavision. [R]

M (1931-German) 111m. * D: Fritz Lang. Peter Lorre, Otto Wernicke, Ellen Widmann, Inge Landgut, Theodor Loos, Gustaf Gründgens. Harrowing melodrama about psychotic child murderer brought to justice by Berlin underworld. Riveting and frighteningly contemporary; cinematically dazzling, especially for an early talkie. Lorre's performance is unforgettable. Older 99m. prints still circulate—with a truncated ending. Remade in 1951. ▼●●

M (1951) 88m.  D: Joseph Losey. David Wayne, Howard da Silva, Luther Adler, Karen Morley, Jorja Curtright, Martin Gabel, Norman Lloyd. Interesting, intelligent re-thinking of Fritz Lang classic set in L.A., with Wayne as child killer hunted down by community of criminals.

Mac (1992) C-118m.  D: John Turturro. John Turturro, Michael Badalucco, Carl Capotorto, Katherine Borowitz, John Amos, Olek Krupa, Ellen Barkin, Joe Papparoni. Rock-solid tale of a trio of Italian-American brothers in Queens, New York, during the mid-1950s. The eldest (Turturro), a carpenter, is fiercely determined to realize his American Dream, so he starts up his own construction company. Crammed with offbeat humor, but most refreshing as a sincere depiction of the lives and struggles of blue-collar Americans. Turturro's directorial debut; he coscripted with Brandon Cole. The film is dedicated to Turturro's father, a carpenter, and inspired by the senior Turturro's life. [R] ▼●●

Macabra SEE: Demonoid, Messenger of Death

Macabre (1958) 73m.  D: William Castle. William Prince, Jim Backus, Christine White, Jacqueline Scott. Weird goings-on in small town where doctor's young daughter mysteriously vanishes—and an anonymous phone caller announces that the child has been buried alive. Film promises much, delivers little. Famous for Castle's gimmick of handing out policies insuring moviegoers for $1,000 against death by fright.

Mac and Me (1988) C-93m. *½ D: Stewart Raffill. Christine Ebersole, Jonathan Ward, Katrina Caspary, Lauren Stanley, Jade Cauley. Slight E.T. clone about Mac, an outer space creature, and his plight in suburban L.A. More a TV commercial than a movie: There's a production number set in a McDonald's, and the alien survives by sipping Coca-Cola. [PG] ▼●●

Macao (1952) 80m.  D: Josef von Sternberg. Robert Mitchum, Jane Russell, William Bendix, Gloria Grahame, Thomas Gomez, Philip Ahn. Flat yarn supposedly set in murky title port, with Russell a singer and Mitchum the action-seeking man she loves. ▼●●

Macaroni (1985-Italian) C-104m. ½ D: Ettore Scola. Jack Lemmon, Marcello Mastroianni, Daria Nicolodi, Isa Danieli, Maria Luisa Saniella. Uptight American businessman goes to Naples and finds some unfinished personal business left over from his last visit—when he was an amorous soldier during WW2. Two of the world's most endearing actors try to keep this soufflé from falling and almost succeed. [PG] ▼●●

MacArthur (1977) C-130m.  D: Joseph Sargent. Gregory Peck, Dan O'Herlihy, Ed Flanders, Sandy Kenyon, Dick O'Neill, Marj Dusay, Art Fleming. Solid, absorbing saga of flamboyant military chief during WW2 and Korean War. Peck is excellent but film doesn't pack the punch of PATTON. Originally trade-screened at 144m. then cut for release. [PG] ▼●●

MacArthur's Children (1985-Japanese) C-115m. ½ D: Masahiro Shinoda. Masako Natsume, Shima Iwashita, Hiromi Go, Takaya Yamauchi, Yoshiyuka Omori, Shiori Sakura, Juzo Itami, Ken Watanabe. Extremely poignant, proud, loving remembrance of life in a small Japanese fishing village immediately following that nation's defeat in WW2. Most effectively delineated are the Japanese reaction to losing the war, as well as the cultural effects of the American occupation—from styles of dress to baseball. [PG] ▼●●

Macbeth (1948) 89m.  D: Orson Welles. Orson Welles, Jeanette Nolan, Dan O'Herlihy, Edgar Barrier, Roddy McDowall, Robert Coote, Erskine Sanford, Alan Napier, Peggy Webber, John Dierkes. Welles brought the Bard to Republic Pictures with this moody, well-done adaptation, filmed entirely on bizarre interiors (which deliberately emphasize its theatricality). Most revival houses now show Welles' original version, which runs 105m. and has the actors speaking with authentic Scot accents. ▼●●

Macbeth (1971-British) C-140m. ½ D: Roman Polanski. Jon Finch, Francesca Annis, Martin Shaw, Nicholas Selby, John Stride, Stephan Chase. Gripping, atmospheric, and extremely violent re-creation of Shakespeare tragedy of young Scots nobleman lusting for power, driven onward by crazed wife and prophecies. Great example of film storytelling, thanks to excellent direction. Todd-AO 35. [R] ▼●●

Macbeth (2006-Australian) C-109m.  D: Geoffrey Wright. Sam Worthington, Victoria Hill, Lachy Hulme, Gary Sweet, Steve Bastoni, Mick Molloy, Matt Doran. Ill-conceived retelling of the Shakespeare classic set among warring gangsters in contemporary Melbourne (but with Shakespearean dialogue intact). Macbeth is depicted as a shaggy-haired hood who resembles a grunge rock star; Lady

Macbeth is a cocaine-snorting, mentally unhinged schemer. There's precious little conversation during the film's first nine minutes, but plenty of bloody corpses. Adapted by Wright and Hill (who plays Lady M.); both coproduced. ▼

Machine, The (1994-French-German) C-96m.  D: François Dupeyron. Gérard Depardieu, Nathalie Baye, Didier Bourdon, Natalia Woerner, Erwan Baynaud, Marc Andreoni, Julie Depardieu. Scientist Depardieu's experiment works better than he expected, and he switches minds with a psychotic killer of women. Suspenseful, well-plotted Gallic variation on old themes; good direction, better acting. From the novel La Machine by René Belletto. ▼●●

Machine-Gun Kelly (1958) 80m. ½ D: Roger Corman. Charles Bronson, Susan Cabot, Barboura Morris, Morey Amsterdam, Wally Campo, Jack Lambert, Connie Gilchrist. With typical efficiency, Corman gives this gangster chronicle pacing and more than passing interest. Bronson is fine in title role. Superama. ▼

Machinist, The (2004-Spanish) C-102m.  D: Brad Anderson. Christian Bale, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Aitana Sánchez-Gijón, John Sharian, Michael Ironside, Larry Gilliard, Reg E. Cathey, Anna Massey. Machine shop worker Bale is deeply troubled: he hasn't slept in a year . . . mysterious notes appear on his refrigerator . . . he converses with a coworker who doesn't appear to exist . . . and he's losing weight at an alarming rate. Eerie, weirdly compelling psychological thriller is beautifully designed and shot. If Franz Kafka ever scripted a movie, this might have been it. Bale's mere presence is disturbing: he shed 63 pounds for this role and moves through the film like a walking skeleton. Super 35. [R] ▼

Macho Callahan (1970) C-99m. ½ D: Bernard Kowalski. David Janssen, Lee J. Cobb, Jean Seberg, David Carradine, Pedro Armendariz, Jr., James Booth, Richard Anderson. Janssen miscast as Civil War POW-escapee, out to kill man who got him arrested in first place; will recognize latter by his yellow shoes. Interesting view of West, but dialogue often unbelievable. Panavision. [R] ▼

Mackenna's Gold (1969) C-128m. ½ D: J. Lee Thompson. Gregory Peck, Omar Sharif, Telly Savalas, Camilla Sparv, Keenan Wynn, Julie Newmar, Lee J. Cobb, Raymond Massey, Burgess Meredith, Anthony Quayle, Edward G. Robinson, Eli Wallach, Ted Cassidy, Eduardo Ciannelli; narrated by Victor Jory. Overblown adventure saga about search for lost canyon of gold, with doublecrosses, conflicts, mysterious clues, etc. Super cast saddled with ludicrous script, made worse by pre-release tampering that cut extremely long film, leaving abrupt denouement, several loose ends. Fine Quincy Jones score; produced by Carl Foreman (who also scripted) and Dimitri Tiomkin. Super Panavision 70. [M]▼●●

Mackintosh and T.J. (1975) C-96m.  D: Marvin J. Chomsky. Roy Rogers, Clay O'Brien, Billy Green Bush, Andrew Robinson, Joan Hackett. Old-fashioned modern-day Western about an aging ranch hand and a young boy. Those charmed by idea of Roy Rogers' comeback will want to see it; others beware. Music by Waylon Jennings. [PG]

Mackintosh Man, The (1973) C-105m. ½ D: John Huston. Paul Newman, Dominique Sanda, James Mason, Harry Andrews, Ian Bannen, Nigel Patrick, Michael Hordern. Well-made espionage thriller has one problem: it's all been done before. Filmed in Ireland, England, and Malta; screenplay credited to Walter Hill. [PG]▼●●

Mack the Knife (1989) C-120m. BOMB D: Menahem Golan. Raul Julia, Richard Harris, Julia Migenes, Roger Daltrey, Julie Walters, Rachel Robertson, Clive Revill. Name cast over-emotes in this ill-conceived, overly stylized version of The Threepenny Opera. More a filmed stage revue than anything else, and not a very good one; Golan adapted the script, and completely misses the spirit of the original. This one blots the memory of Brecht and Weill (not to mention Bobby Darin). [PG-13]▼●●

Macomber Affair, The (1947) 89m. ½ D: Zoltan Korda. Gregory Peck, Joan Bennett, Robert Preston, Reginald Denny, Carl Harbord. Penetrating, intelligent filmization of Hemingway story about conflicts that develop when hunter Peck takes married couple (Preston, Bennett) on safari. Bristling performances help make this one of the most vivid screen adaptations of a Hemingway work. Based on "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber"; scripted by Casey Robinson and Seymour Bennett.

Macon County Line (1974) C-89m.  D: Richard Compton. Alan Vint, Cheryl Waters, Max Baer, Jr., Jesse Vint, Joan Blackman, Geoffrey Lewis, James Gammon, Leif Garrett. In 1954, two fun-loving brothers from Chicago roam the South before military service, but get into trouble with a Georgia sheriff. Drive-in classic was a huge hit and created a sub-genre. Intelligent, well acted and suspenseful; shot around Sacramento, California. And despite the introductory claim, it's not based on a true story. Baer produced and scripted. Followed by RETURN TO MACON COUNTY. [R]▼●

Mad About Mambo (1999-British) C-92m. ½ D: John Forte. William Ash, Keri Russell, Brian Cox, Theo Fraser Steele, Rosaleen Linehan, Maclean Stewart. Belfast lad desperately wants to play football (Americans: read "soccer"), but isn't any good—until he hears a Brazilian pro say it's all in the rhythm, which inspires him to take Latin dance lessons. There he meets a rich girl who's determined to win an upcoming competition. Utterly predictable fluff, but nicely done, with a dollop of social commentary and a radiant Russell. P.S. The film is about the samba, not the mambo. [PG-13]▼

Mad About Music (1938) 98m.  D: Norman Taurog. Deanna Durbin, Herbert Marshall, Gail Patrick, Arthur Treacher, Helen Parrish, Marcia Mae Jones, William Frawley. Excellent Durbin vehicle; busy mother Patrick leaves Deanna in Swiss girls' school, where she pretends Marshall is her father. Holds up better than remake TOY TIGER.▼

Madadayo (1993-Japanese) C-134m.  D: Akira Kurosawa. Tatsuo Matsumura, Kyoko Kagawa, Hisashi Igawa, George Tokoro. Kurosawa's final film, made when he was 83, is a gentle and contemplative series of vignettes depicting two decades in the life of a revered professor—his retirement in 1943, the bombing of his house during an air raid, building a new home, finding and losing a stray cat, etc.—all centered around a string of birthday parties thrown for him by his ex-students at which he shouts "madadayo!" ("not yet!") to indicate he's not ready to be taken by death. A warmhearted and life-affirming finale to the career of a cinematic master. Released in the U.S. in 1998.▼●

Mad Adventures of "Rabbi" Jacob, The (1974-French) C-96m.  D: Gerard Oury. Louis De Funes, Suzy Delair, Marcel Dalio, Claude Giraud, Claude Pieplu. Broad slapstick comedy about hotheaded, bigoted businessman who—for complicated reasons—is forced to disguise himself as a rabbi. Uneven but often quite funny, with echoes of silent-screen humor. [G]▼●

moves and rhythms of a sitcom, with "clever" references for grown-ups in the audience, but it isn't very funny. Instantly forgettable. Co-director McGrath provides the voice of the head penguin. Followed by a sequel. [PG]

Madagascar: Escape 2 Africa (2008) C-89m. ½ D: Eric Darnell, Tom McGrath. Voices of Ben Stiller, Chris Rock, David Schwimmer, Jada Pinkett Smith, Sacha Baron Cohen, Cedric the Entertainer, Andy Richter, Bernie Mac, Alec Baldwin, Sherri Shepherd, Will I. Am, Tom McGrath. The animal characters of the original attempt to return to N.Y.C. but instead find themselves in Africa, where they mix with their wild (rather than zoo-raised) brethren. Computer-animated comedy is a rarity for kids' movies: a sequel that improves on the original. [PG]

Madame (1961-French) C-104m. ½ D: Christian-Jaque. Sophia Loren, Robert Hossein, Julien Bertheau, Marina Berti. Uninspired remake of MADAME SANS-GENE (filmed in 1925) with Loren, who uses looks and wits to rise from laundress to nobility in Napoleonic France. Super Technirama 70. ●

Madame Bovary (1934-French) 102m.  D: Jean Renoir. Valentine Tessier, Pierre Renoir, Max Dearly, Daniel Lecourtois, Fernand Fabre, Alice Tissot, Helena Manson. Uneven, unsatisfying version of the oft-filmed Flaubert story, about the romantic, ill-fated title character. Originally three hours long, Renoir (who also scripted) was forced to drastically edit it. While the first version may have been more compelling than the existing film, the fact remains that Tessier is miscast as Emma Bovary. ▼

Madame Bovary (1949) 115m. ½ D: Vincente Minnelli. Jennifer Jones, James Mason, Van Heflin, Louis Jourdan, Christopher Kent (Alf Kjellin), Gene Lockhart, Gladys Cooper, George Zucco, Henry (Harry) Morgan. Gustave Flaubert's 19th-century heroine sacrifices her husband and their security for love, meets a horrible end. Once-controversial adaptation looks better every year, despite an odd "framing" device involving Flaubert's morals trial. Justifiably celebrated ball sequence is among the greatest set pieces of Minnelli's—or anyone else's—career. Screenplay by Robert Ardrey. Previously filmed in 1932 (as UNHOLY LOVE) and 1934 (in France, by Jean Renoir); remade in France in 1991. ▼●●

Madame Bovary (1991-French) C-130m.  D: Claude Chabrol. Isabelle Huppert, Jean-Francois Balmer, Christopher Malavoy, Jean Yanne, Lucas Belvaux, Jean-Claude Bouilland. Huppert's persona is far too chilly to convey the passion of Emma Bovary in this faithful but exhaustingly dull rendering of Flaubert's classic. Vincente Minnelli's version may turn the novel upside down, but it's a far more significant movie. Even viewers with unusually refined auteurist radar would have a tough time pegging this as a Chabrol. [PG-13]

Madame Curie (1943) 124m.  D: Mervyn LeRoy. Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon, Henry Travers, Albert Basserman, Robert Walker, C. Aubrey Smith. Despite stretches of plodding footage, bio of famed female scientist is generally excellent. Garson and Pidgeon team well, as usual. ▼●●

Madame Rosa (1977-French) C-105m. ½ D: Moshe Mizrahi. Simone Signoret, Samy Ben Youb, Claude Dauphin, Gabriel Jabbour, Michal Bat-Adam, Costa-Gavras. Signoret's magnetic performance gives substance to interesting but aimless film about an aging madam who earns her keep sheltering prostitutes' children. Won Best Foreign Film Oscar. [PG] ▼

Madame Sousatzka (1988) C-122m.  D: John Schlesinger. Shirley MacLaine, Navin Chowdhry, Peggy Ashcroft, Twiggy, Shabana Azmi, Leigh Lawson, Geoffrey Bayldon, Lee Montague. Eccentric, reclusive London piano teacher (MacLaine, wearing clanky jewelry and piles of makeup) implores her students to cultivate their artistic spirit and bring passion to their music. She meets her match in her star pupil, a 15-year-old boy of Indian heritage. Beautifully made film succeeds largely due to the strong emotions being played out, and to the superb supporting cast (especially young Chowdhry and mother Azmi—the latter a major star in her native India). [PG-13] ▼●

Madame X (1929) 90m.  D: Lionel Barrymore. Ruth Chatterton, Lewis Stone, Raymond Hackett, Holmes Herbert, Eugenie Besserer, Sidney Toler. Leaden weeper, filmed previously in 1906, 1916, and 1920, about cold, cruel husband Stone forcing wife Chatterton onto the streets. Their son comes of age believing she's dead . . . and then gets to defend her on a murder charge. A curio at best; the remakes are better. ●

Madame X (1937) 71m. ½ D: Sam Wood. Gladys George, John Beal, Warren William, Reginald Owen, William Henry, Henry Daniell, Phillip Reed, Ruth Hussey. Alexandre Bisson's stalwart soap opera gets polished MGM treatment and a fine performance by Gladys George as the woman whose ultimate sacrifice is never detected by her son. Goes astray toward the end (with Beal a bit much), but worth a look. ▼

Madame X (1966) C-100m. ½ D: David Lowell Rich. Lana Turner, John Forsythe, Constance Bennett, Ricardo Montalban, Burgess Meredith, Keir Dullea, Virginia Grey. Plush remake of perennial soap opera of attorney defending a woman accused of murder, not knowing it's his mother. Fine cast and varied backgrounds bolster Turner's pivotal performance. Constance Bennett's last film. Remade for TV in 1981 with Tuesday Weld. ▼

Mad Checkmate SEE: It's Your Move

Mad City (1997) C-114m.  D: Costa-Gavras. John Travolta, Dustin Hoffman, Alan Alda, Mia Kirshner, William Atherton, Raymond J. Barry, Ted Levine, Robert Prosky, Blythe Danner. Recently fired museum guard Travolta tries to get his job back at gunpoint, accidentally taking some children hostage and giving disgraced TV newsmen Hoffman a chance to get back into the big time. Well-crafted movie with a knockout performance by Hoffman is unfortunately routine and obvious. Does anyone still find it outrageous that a TV newsmen might exploit his subjects for self-gain? Bill Nunn appears unbilled. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Maddening, The (1996) C-97m. *½ D: Danny Huston. Burt Reynolds, Angie Dickinson, Mia Sara, Brian Wimmer, Josh Mostel, William Hickey. Addled Angie and brutal Burt hold Mia and her young daughter captive in backwoods Florida, while her estranged husband searches for her. Over-the-top Southern gothic saddled with a familiar, predictable plot and uneven acting. Filmed in 1994. [R] ▼●

Mad Dog SEE: Mad Dog Morgan

Mad Dog and Glory (1993) C-96m.  D: John McNaughton. Robert De Niro, Uma Thurman, Bill Murray, Kathy Baker, David Caruso, Mike Starr, Tom Towles, J. J. Johnston, Richard Belzer. Offbeat concoction from street-smart writer Richard Price, about a nerdy cop (De Niro) who does a favor for a Chicago hood (Murray), and is repaid by having Thurman delivered to him as a "present" for one week. Though it's low-key, and doesn't quite hit the bull's-eye, it's still oddly endearing. Coproduced by Price, Martin Scorsese, and Barbara De Fina. [R] ▼●●

Mad Dog Morgan (1976-Australian) C-102m.  D: Philippe Mora. Dennis Hopper, Jack Thompson, David Gulpilil, Frank Thring, Michael Pate. Hopper gives lively performance as legendary Australian outlaw of the 1800s in this moody, well-made, but extremely violent film. Retitled: MAD DOG. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Mad Dogs and Englishmen SEE: Joe Cocker: Mad Dogs and Englishmen

Mad Dog Time (1996) C-93m.  D: Larry Bishop. Ellen Barkin, Gabriel Byrne, Richard Dreyfuss, Jeff Goldblum, Diane Lane, Gregory Hines, Kyle MacLachlan, Burt Reynolds, Christopher Jones, Henry Silva, Michael J. Pollard, Billy Idol, Billy Drago, Paul Anka, Rob Reiner, Richard Pryor, Angie Everhart. On another, but almost identical, Earth, gangsters rule supreme. Sleek Goldblum is continually challenged by upstarts, primarily MacLachlan, but his real rival is big boss Dreyfuss, fresh out of prison. Dry and intelligent, but slow and ostentatiously stylish. Goldblum is sensational, however. Written by the director, the son of Joey Bishop, who appears unbilled. Retitled TRIGGER HAPPY. [R] ▼●●

Made (2001) C-95m.  D: Jon Favreau. Jon Favreau, Vince Vaughn, Famke Janssen, Peter Falk, Sean Combs, Faizon Love, Vincent Pastore, Jonathan Silverman. Favreau and Vaughn (who worked so well together in SWINGERS) play L.A. slackers hired by Falk to handle some shady business in N.Y.C. involving big-shot Combs (in his screen-acting debut). The stars' rapport, especially Vaughn's inept character, make MADE a whole lot funnier than many bigger movie comedies. The two stars also produced; Favreau wrote the script. Bud Cort and Sam Rockwell appear unbilled. [R] ▼●

Madea's Family Reunion (2006) C-107m. *½ D: Tyler Perry. Lynn Whitfield, Tyler Perry, Blair Underwood, Rochelle Aytes, Lisa Arrindell Anderson, Boris Kodjoe, Henry Simmons, Cicely Tyson, Maya Angelou, Keke Palmer, Jenifer Lewis. Cliché-ridden comedy-soaper about a class-conscious louse (Whitfield) who relishes manipulating her daughters. One is engaged to an abusive scoundrel, the other is a single mom who's been burned in previous relationships. Like writer-director-star Perry's DIARY OF A MAD BLACK WOMAN, this is based on his play, and he appears in three roles, most prominently the title character, a feisty matriarch. Uneasy mixture of shameless moralizing and crude humor is as subtle as a sledgehammer. [PG-13] ●

Made For Each Other (1939) 93m.  D: John Cromwell. Carole Lombard, James Stewart, Charles Coburn, Lucile Watson, Alma Kruger, Esther Dale, Ward Bond, Louise Beavers. First-rate soaper of struggling young marrieds Stewart and Lombard battling illness, lack of money, Stewart's meddling mother Watson. Fine acting makes this all work. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●

Made for Each Other (1971) C-101m.  D: Robert B. Bean. Renee Taylor, Joseph Bologna, Paul Sorvino, Olympia Dukakis, Adam Arkin. Exceptionally funny tale of two oddball types who meet at encounter session and fall in love. Screenplay by Taylor and Bologna. [PG]

Made in America (1993) C-110m.  D: Richard Benjamin. Whoopi Goldberg, Ted Danson, Will Smith, Nia Long, Paul Rodriguez, Jennifer Tilly, Peggy Rea, Clyde Kusatsu, Lu Leonard. Fiercely proud, independent Goldberg is forced to reveal to her teenage daughter that she was conceived from a sperm bank. The daughter then learns that her "father" is a blowhard car salesman—who's white. Dishearteningly stupid movie based on a clever premise. The two ladies trapped in Whoopi's store, by the way, are Frances Bergen (Candice's mother) and '50s TV leading lady Phyllis Avery. [PG-13] ▼●●

Made in Heaven (1987) C-103m.  D: Alan Rudolph. Timothy Hutton, Kelly McGillis, Maureen Stapleton, Don Murray, Marj Dusay, Ray Gideon, Amanda Plummer, Mare Winningham, Timothy Daly. Young man dies and goes to heaven, where he meets a yet-unborn beauty and falls in love. The Big Question: how long will it take for them to meet, in their new identities on earth, and realize that they were "made for each other"? Potentially sweet fantasy-romance is undermined by too many kinky touches and inside-joke cameos (Debra Winger, in drag, plays Hutton's guardian angel). This is apparently director Rudolph's idea of a mainstream Hollywood movie. Among the other cameos: Neil Young, Tom Petty, Ellen Barkin, Ric Ocasek, David Rasche, Tom Robbins, Gary Larson. [PG] ▼●

Made in Paris (1966) C-101m. ½ D: Boris Sagal. Ann-Margret, Louis Jourdan, Richard Crenna, Edie Adams, Chad Everett. Witless, unpolished shenanigans of Ann-Margret, fashion designer in France, falling for Jourdan. Panavision. ▶

Made in U.S.A. (1966-French-Italian) C-85m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Anna Karina, Jean-Pierre Léaud, László Szabó, Yves Afonso, Ernest Menzer, Marianne Faithfull. Journalist Karina turns into a trench-coated shamus to discover who killed her lover and gets mixed up in a labyrinthine mystery in a place called Atlantic City (even though the action is clearly set in France). Thoroughly whacked-out and completely unauthorized adaptation of a Richard Stark (Donald E. Westlake) novel is a bracing (if sometimes incomprehensible) homage to American noir, filled with typical Godardian movie references, allusions to political conspiracies and assassinations, and characters named Richard Widmark, Donald Siegel, Inspector Aldrich, David Goodis, Robert McNamara, and Richard Nixon. Techniscope. ▶

Madeleine (1950-British) 114m. ½ D: David Lean. Ann Todd, Leslie Banks, Elizabeth Sellars, Ivor Barnard. Superior cast improves oft-told drama of woman accused of murdering her lover. A vehicle for Lean's then wife, Ann Todd, and one of the filmmaker's few disappointments. Retitled: STRANGE CASE OF MADELEINE. ▼

Madeline (1998) C-90m.  D: Daisy von Scherler Mayer. Frances McDormand, Hatty Jones, Nigel Hawthorne, Ben Daniels, Stéphane Audran. Genteel adaptation of Ludwig Bemelmans' beloved children's books about a mischievous orphan girl and the wise nun, Miss Clavel (McDormand), who looks after her and her classmates. Combining elements from several stories with new plot devices, the film captures the spirit of the books and benefits from location filming in Paris. Too bland for older children—and, most likely, their parents—but just right for young ones. [PG] ▼●●

Mademoiselle (1966-British-French) 103m.  D: Tony Richardson. Jeanne Moreau, Ettore Manni, Keith Skinner, Umberto Orsini, Jane Berretta, Mony Rey. Ponderous, sometimes hilariously pretentious film written by Jean Genet, about a sexually repressed schoolteacher in a small French village who secretly poisons animals, sets fires, and tries to destroy an Italian woodcutter whom she can't seduce. Woeful foray into arty s&m was shot in both French and English-language versions. Panavision. ▼▶

Mademoiselle Fifi (1944) 69m. ½ D: Robert Wise. Simone Simon, John Emery, Kurt Kreuger, Alan Napier, Jason Robards, Sr., Helen Freeman. A laundress reveals more integrity and patriotic spirit than her condescending fellow passengers on an eventful coach ride during the Franco-Prussian war. Uneven Val Lewton production (with allegorical implications about WW2), adapted from two Guy de Maupassant stories. ▼●

Mademoiselle Striptease SEE: Please! Mr. Balzac

Made of Honor (2008) C-101m. ½ D: Paul Weiland. Patrick Dempsey, Michelle Monaghan, Kevin McKidd, Kathleen Quinlan, Sydney Pollack, Kadeem Hardison, Chris Messina, Richmond Arquette, Busy Philipps, Whitney Cummings, Emily Nelson, James B. Sicking, Kevin Sussman. Dempsey is a serial womanizer but loves spending time with best friend Monaghan. Only when she announces that she's getting married (to a Scotsman she's just met) does he realize he's going to lose her. As her "maid of honor" he determines to undo her wedding plans. Slick romantic comedy covers familiar ground, but does it with brio—and great Scottish scenery. Dempsey's first star vehicle since his reemergence on TV's Grey's Anatomy. Super 35. [PG-13] ▶

Made-Up (2004) C-96m. ½ D: Tony Shalhoub. Brooke Adams, Lynne Adams, Eva Amurri, Kalen Conover, Light Eternity, Tony Shalhoub, Gary Sinise, Jim Issa, Lance Krall. Actor Shalhoub's directing debut purports to show us the making of a mockumentary about the extremes people go to to counterattack the aging process with all sorts of cosmetic help. A genuine family affair benefits from occasionally amusing script from Shalhoub's real-life sister-in-law Lynne Adams and fine lead performance from his wife, Brooke Adams, as a former actress who's put family ahead of show business. Overdone faux-documentary form is weakly employed here, but rescued by smart, funny dialogue, especially from Amurri's character. ▶

Mad Ghoul, The (1943) 65m. ½ D: James Hogan. David Bruce, Evelyn Ankers, George

Zucco, Turhan Bey, Charles McGraw, Robert Armstrong, Milburn Stone, Rose Hobart. Strong cast buoys grim story of scientist Zucco turning assistant Bruce into a zombie in order to clear the path to romance with Bruce's girl. ▼

Mad Hot Ballroom (2005) C-105m.  D: Marilyn Agrelo. Irresistible documentary about public elementary school students who learn ballroom dancing, with the hope of participating in a citywide competition. Upbeat without being saccharine, this film says a lot about the possibilities that unfold for children when given an opportunity to learn poise, politeness, and self-confidence through dance. The very embodiment of a feel-good movie. [PG] ▼

Madhouse (1974-British) C-89m.  D: Jim Clark. Vincent Price, Peter Cushing, Robert Quarry, Adrienne Corri, Natasha Payne, Linda Hayden. Price plays horror-film actor making a TV comeback after a long mental breakdown—until he's implicated in a series of grisly homicides. Good, if somewhat unimaginative, adaptation of Angus Hall novel Devilday. [PG] ▼

Madhouse (1990) C-90m. *½ D: Tom Ropelewski. John Larroquette, Kirstie Alley, Alison LaPlaca, John Diehl, Jessica Lundy, Bradley Gregg, Dennis Miller, Robert Ginty. Larroquette and Alley find themselves unable to enjoy their new home when unwanted house guests drop in and never leave. Gags are drawn out endlessly; though Larroquette is a talented farceur, he can't sustain the whole film. Humor here would never pass muster on the stars' later TV series. [PG-13] ▼

Madigan (1968) C-101m. ½ D: Donald Siegel. Richard Widmark, Henry Fonda, Harry Guardino, Inger Stevens, James Whitmore, Susan Clark, Michael Dunn, Sheree North. Excellent, unpretentious film blends day-to-day problems of detective Madigan (Widmark) with endless dilemmas facing police commissioner Fonda. Shot largely on location in N.Y.C.; fine work by Guardino, Whitmore, and supporting cast. Adapted as TV series. Techniscope. ▼

Madigan's Million (1968) C-86m. BOMB D: Stanley Prager. Dustin Hoffman, Elsa Martinelli, Cesar Romero. Pre-GRADUATE Hoffman is caught in amateurish movie released to capitalize on later success; he plays bumbling Treasury agent sent to Italy to recover money stolen by recently murdered gangster Romero. Inept. [G] ▼

Madison (2005) C-94m. ½ D: William Bindley. Jake Lloyd, Mary McCormack, James (Jim) Caviezel, Bruce Dem, Reed Diamond, Richard Lee Jackson, Brent Briscoe, Paul Dooley, Chelcie Ross. Old-fashioned underdog story about a man's attempt to overcome a troubling memory and win an annual hydroplane race. Loosely based on a true story; set in Madison, Indiana, in 1971. Sincere and straightforward; definitely not for cynics. Made in 1999. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Mad Little Island (1957-British) C-94m. ½ D: Michael Relph. Jeannie Carson, Donald Sinden, Roland Culver, Noel Purcell, Ian Hunter, Duncan MacRae, Catherine Lacey, Jean Cadell, Gordon Jackson. Sequel to TIGHT LITTLE ISLAND finds that little Scottish isle's tranquility disturbed again, this time by imminent installation of missile base. Not up to its predecessor, but on its own terms, decent enough. Original title: ROCKETETS GALORE!

Mad Love (1935) 70m.  D: Karl Freund. Peter Lorre, Frances Drake, Colin Clive, Ted Healy, Sara Haden, Edward Brophy, Keye Luke. Famous Hands of Orlac story refitted for Lorre as mad Paris surgeon in love with married Drake. He agrees to operate on her pianist husband's injured hands, with disastrous results. Stylishly directed by legendary cameraman Freund; only debit is unwelcome comedy relief by Healy. ▼

Mad Love (1995) C-95m. *½ D: Antonia Bird. Chris O'Donnell, Drew Barrymore, Joan Allen, Jude Ciccolella, Kevin Dunn, Liev Schreiber, Richard Chaim, Robert Nadir, Matthew Lillard. Teen-lovers-on-the-lam movie with a difference: she's mentally unstable. Attractive young stars do the best they can, but the script peters out and leaves them nothing to work with. A waste of time. By the way, this is not a remake of the 1935 movie; too bad—they could have used a dose of Peter Lorre. [PG-13] ▼

Mad Magician, The (1954) 72m. ½ D: John Brahm. Vincent Price, Mary Murphy, Patrick O'Neal, Eva Gabor, John Emery, Lenita Lane, Donald Randolph, Jay Novello. Amusing knockoff of HOUSE OF WAX, made by many of the same hands (and also shot in 3-D). This time Price is an illusionist, but otherwise the plots are pretty much alike. Much better than it has any right to be; Brahm, no stranger to Victorian-era melodrama, keeps it moving swiftly, with Lane upstaging the stars as a nosy crime novelist. Lyle Talbot appears unbilled as a program hawk.

Madman (1978-Israeli) C-92m. *½ D: Dan Cohen. Michael Beck, F. Murray Abraham, Alan Feinstein, Sigourney Weaver, Esther Zevko. Bitterly vengeful Soviet-Jewish mental patient joins the Israeli army, intent on killing Russians. Slow, poorly directed film lacks conviction. Casting of Weaver, in her first leading role, and future Oscar-winner Abraham, gives this film its only distinction. [R] ▼

keeping roads safe from suicidally daring drivers and roving gangs. Top cop Gibson tires and quits, but when his wife and child are murdered by vicious cyclists, he embarks on high-speed revenge. Weird atmosphere and characters combine with amazing stunt work in this remarkable action film. Thrown away by its U.S. distributor (which also redubbed it with American voices), later found its audience in the wake of successful sequel. Todd-AO 35. [R]▼●●

Mad Max 2 SEE: Road Warrior, The Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome (1985-Australian) C-106m. ½ D: George Miller, George Ogilvie. Mel Gibson, Tina Turner, Angelo Rossitto, Helen Buday, Rod Zuanic, Frank Thring, Angry Anderson. In the desolate future Mad Max comes upon Turner's cutthroat city of Bartertown, survives a battle-to-the-death in Roman-style Thunderdome arena, and is exiled to the desert, where he's rescued by tribe of wild children. Thunderdome film has lots of action and stunts, and even some philosophical moments, but lacks the kinetic energy of THE ROAD WARRIOR (MAD MAX 2). Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Mad Money (2008) C-104m.  D: Callie Khouri. Diane Keaton, Queen Latifah, Katie Holmes, Ted Danson, Adam Rothenberg, Roger Cross, Stephen Root, Christopher McDonald, Finesse Mitchell, Meagen Fay. Entertaining comedy about a nouveau poor suburbanite (Keaton) who goes to work as a janitor at the Federal Reserve Bank in Kansas City and realizes there is a way to steal money so it will never be traced or even missed. She recruits two other workers to be her partners in crime, and off they go! Engaging farce is played with verve by the three female costars. Remake of a 2001 British TV movie called HOT MONEY. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Mad Monster, The (1942) 72m. *½ D: Sam Newfield. Johnny Downs, George Zucco, Anne Nagel, Glenn Strange, Sarah Padden, Gordon DeMain. Dull, low-budget mad-scientist thriller drags heavy feet for unintended laughs. Zucco effortlessly steals show as crazed doctor changing man into beast in bargain-basement WOLF MAN knockoff.▼●

Mad Monster Party? (1967) C-94m.  D: Jules Bass. Voices of Boris Karloff, Phyllis Diller, Gale Garnett, Ethel Ennis. Famous monsters are brought together by Baron of Frankenstein (voice of Karloff), who wants to announce his retirement, in this silly animated kiddie feature from Rankin/Bass.▼●

Madness of King George, The (1994-British-U.S.) C-107m.  D: Nicholas Hytner. Nigel Hawthorne, Helen Mirren, Ian Holm,

Rupert Everett, Rupert Graves, John Wood, Amanda Donohoe, Julian Rhind-Tutt. In the late 18th century, England's benevolent King George (Hawthorne) suddenly takes ill, and shows signs of mental instability—opening the door for court intrigue and the usurping of the throne by his ne'er-do-well son, the Prince of Wales (Everett). Hawthorne vividly re-creates his stage performance (surrounded by a first-rate cast) in Alan Bennett's adaptation of his witty and intriguing play; Bennett also appears in a cameo near the end as a member of Parliament. First film for theater director Hytner. Oscar winner for Art Direction.▼●●

Madonna of the Seven Moons (1946-British) 105m.  D: Arthur Crabtree. Phyllis Calvert, Stewart Granger, Patricia Roc, Jean Kent, John Stuart, Peter Glenville. Calvert is pushed in two directions because of strange gypsy curse; she is wife, mother, and mistress at same time. Taut melodrama, may be considered camp in some circles.

Madonna Truth or Dare SEE: Truth or Dare

Madron (1970) C-93m.  D: Jerry Hopper. Richard Boone, Leslie Caron, Paul Smith, Gabi Amrani, Chaim Banai, Avraham Telya. A nun who survived wagon-train massacre and a scowling gunslinger try to elude Apaches on the warpath in this ho-hum Western shot in Israel's Negev Desert. [PG]▼●

Mad Room, The (1969) C-92m.  D: Bernard Girard. Stella Stevens, Shelley Winters, James Ward, Carol Cole, Sverre Darden, Beverly Garland, Michael Burns. Mild but unexceptional remake of LADIES IN RETIREMENT concerns the skeletons in Stella's closet. Grisly tale has a few shocking scenes. [M]▼

Madwoman of Chailott, The (1969) C-132m.  D: Bryan Forbes. Katharine Hepburn, Charles Boyer, Claude Dauphin, Edith Evans, John Gavin, Paul Henreid, Oscar Homolka, Margaret Leighton, Giulietta Masina, Nanette Newman, Richard Chamberlain, Yul Brynner, Donald Pleasence, Danny Kaye. Unfortunate misfire, with Hepburn as eccentric woman who refuses to believe the world no longer beautiful. Stellar cast wasted in heavy-handed allegory that just doesn't work; adapted from Jean Giraudoux's play. [G]▼●

Mädchen in Uniform (1958-German) C-91m. ½ D: Geza von Radvanyi. Lilli Palmer, Romy Schneider, Christine Kaufmann, Therese Giehse. Rather talky story of girls' school and one particularly sensitive youngster (Schneider) who is attracted to her teacher (Palmer). Remake of famous 1931 movie is a shade above average.

Mafia! SEE: Jane Austen's Mafia!

Mafioso (1962-Italian) 99m.  D: Alberto Lattuada. Alberto Sordi, Norma Bengell, Gabriella Conti, Ugo Attanasio, Cinzia Bruno, Katuscia Piretti, Armando Tine. Sicilian Sordi has a good job in Milan and is about to embark on his first vacation in years: a visit home to show off his Northern Italian wife and children to his skeptical family and friends. He soon learns that the village Mafia don, now a grandfatherly figure, has lost none of his power. You'll never guess where this story is headed! Fascinating blend of comedy and drama and a tailor-made vehicle for Sordi, who personifies the Italian working-class hero. Released in the U.S. in 1964; a restored version was released theatrically in 2007. [D]

Mafu Cage, The (1978) C-102m. *½ D: Karen Arthur. Lee Grant, Carol Kane, Will Geer, James Olson. Grant and Kane are sisters in this offbeat, unfocused melodrama of incest, jealousy, and murder. Mafu is Kane's pet orangutan; each protagonist in turn assumes animal's caged, victimized role. Retitled MY SISTER, MY LOVE and THE CAGE. [R] [V] [D]

Magdalene Sisters, The (2002-British-Irish) C-119m. ½ D: Peter Mullan. Geraldine McEwan, Anne-Marie Duff, Nora-Jane Noone, Dorothy Duffy, Eileen Walsh, Mary Murray, Britta Smith, Frances Healy, Eamonn Owens. Harrowing, fact-based drama set in 1960s Ireland in a convent where young women are incarcerated for committing such "misdeeds" as flirting with boys, becoming pregnant out of wedlock, and being raped. They are physically and psychologically abused by the head nun and her sadistic staff, who are convinced they are doing the Lord's work. Sometimes painful to watch, but it's a story that needs to be told. Director Mullan plays one girl's furious father; he based his screenplay on the experiences of actual Magdalene inmates. [R] [V] [D]

Magic (1978) C-106m.  D: Richard Attenborough. Anthony Hopkins, Ann-Margret, Burgess Meredith, Ed Lauter, Jerry Houser, David Ogden Stiers. Ludicrous thriller about demented ventriloquist Hopkins who's tormented by his dummy—even as he tries to rekindle romance with high-school sweetie Ann-Margret. Wait for a rerun of DEAD OF NIGHT (1945) instead. Screenplay by William Goldman, from his novel. [R] [V] [D]

Magic Bow, The (1947-British) 105m. ½ D: Bernard Knowles. Stewart Granger, Phyllis Calvert, Jean Kent, Dennis Price, Cecil Parker. As usual, music overshadows weak plot in biography of violinist Paganini. [V]

Magic Box, The (1951-British) C-103m. * D: John Boulting. Robert Donat, Maria Schell, Margaret Johnston, Robert

Beatty; guests Laurence Olivier, Michael Redgrave, Eric Portman, Glynis Johns, Emlyn Williams, Richard Attenborough, Stanley Holloway, Margaret Rutherford, Peter Ustinov, Bessie Love, Cecil Parker, etc. Practically every British star appears in this superb biography of William Friese-Greene, the forgotten inventor of movies. Beautifully done; one scene where Donat perfects the invention, pulling in a cop off the street (Olivier) to see it, is a gem.

Magic Bubble, The SEE: Unbecoming Age

Magic Christian, The (1969-British) C-93m.  D: Joseph McGrath. Peter Sellers, Ringo Starr; guest stars Richard Attenborough, Christopher Lee, Raquel Welch, Laurence Harvey, Yul Brynner, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Spike Milligan, Dennis Price, John Cleese, Graham Chapman, Roman Polanski. In series of wacky schemes, world's wealthiest man and his protégé wreak havoc on society by demonstrating how people will do anything for money. Fiendishly funny adaptation of Terry Southern's insane novel, scripted by Southern and McGrath, with contributions from Sellers, Cleese, and Chapman. Some prints run 88m. [M/PG] [V] [D]

Magic Flute, The (1974-Swedish) C-134m. ½ D: Ingmar Bergman. Ulric Cold, Josef Kostlinger, Erik Saeden, Birgit Nordin, Irma Urrila, Hakan Hagegard. Lively, intelligent filmization of Mozart's opera of activities surrounding the kidnapping of Urrila, the Queen's daughter, by sorcerer Cold. Shot for Swedish TV, released as a feature in the U.S. Kenneth Branagh directed his own version of this in 2006. [G] [V] [D]

Magic Garden of Stanley Sweetheart, The (1970) C-117m. *½ D: Leonard Horn. Don Johnson, Linda Gillin, Michael Greer, Dianne Hull, Holly Near, Victoria Racimo. Vapid film from Robert Westbrook's novel about sexual and drug-oriented experiences of aimless college student trying to put his head together. A yawn, except for Greer, and Stanley's underground film "Headless." [R]

Magician, The (1958-Swedish) 102m.  D: Ingmar Bergman. Max von Sydow, Ingrid Thulin, Gunnar Bjornstrand, Naima Wifstrand, Bibi Andersson, Erland Josephson. Complex, provocative account of Albert Emanuel Vogler (von Sydow), a 19th-century hypnotist-magician who has studied with Mesmer but finds himself debt-ridden and charged with blasphemy. A thoughtful (and too-long underrated) portrait of a man who is part-faker, part-genius. [V] [D]

Magician of Lublin, The (1979) C-105m. *½ D: Menahem Golan. Alan Arkin, Louise Fletcher, Valerie Perrine, Shelley Winters, Lou Jacobi, Maia Danziger, Lisa Whelchel. Turn-of-the-century Jewish magician tries for the big time in stilted, poorly acted version of Isaac Bashevis Singer's Polish-based novel. However, you do get to see Winters destroy a jailhouse even more impressively than Sam Jaffe's elephant did in GUNGA DIN. [R]▼

Magic in the Water (1995-Canadian) C-101m. *½ D: Rick Stevenson. Mark Harmon, Harley Jane Kozak, Joshua Jackson, Sarah Wayne, Willie Nark-Orn, Thomas (Tom) Cavanagh, David Rasche. In the laid-back community of Glenorky a number of residents believe there's a monster that lives in the lake; a vacationing family comes to learn there is some "truth" to the myth. All the magic must be in the water; there's certainly none on the screen. Routine family film feels like recycled Spielberg. [PG] ▼●●

Magic of Lassie, The (1978) C-100m. ½ D: Don Chaffey. James Stewart, Lassie, Mickey Rooney, Alice Faye, Stephanie Zimbalist, Pernell Roberts, Michael Sharrett, Mike Mazurki. Stewart is worth watching in this bland remake of LASSIE COME HOME, as grandfather of Zimbalist and Sharrett, who are forced to turn over their beloved Lassie to mean owner Roberts. Songs performed by Pat and Debby Boone, plus Faye and even Stewart. [G]▼

Magic Sword, The (1962) C-80m. ½ D: Bert I. Gordon. Basil Rathbone, Estelle Winwood, Gary Lockwood, Anne Helm, Liam Sullivan, Jacques Gallo. Entertaining, often (unintentionally) hilarious adventure. Young knight Lockwood sets out to rescue beautiful princess Helm, who's been kidnapped by evil sorcerer Rathbone. In their better moments, Lockwood and Helm seem like refugees from a Beach Party movie; Rathbone and Winwood offer knowingly hammy performances. ▼●●

Magic Town (1947) 103m.  D: William Wellman. James Stewart, Jane Wyman, Kent Smith, Regis Toomey, Donald Meek. Intriguing satire of pollster Stewart finding perfect average American town, which ruins itself when people are told his discovery. Doesn't always hit bull's-eye but remains engrossing throughout; written by Frank Capra's frequent scripter, Robert Riskin. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●

Magnificent Ambersons, The (1942) 88m. * D: Orson Welles. Tim Holt, Joseph Cotten, Dolores Costello, Anne Baxter, Agnes Moorehead, Ray Collins, Richard Bennett, Erskine Sanford. Brilliant drama from Booth Tarkington novel of family unwilling to change its way of life with the times; mother and son conflict over her lover. Welles' follow-up to CITIZEN KANE is equally exciting in its own way, though film was taken out of his hands, recut and reshot by others. Previously filmed in 1925 as PAMPERED YOUTH. Also shown in computer-colored version. Remade for cable TV in 2001. ▼●

Magnificent Cuckold, The (1966-Italian) 111m. ½ D: Antonio Pietrangeli. Claudia Cardinale, Ugo Tognazzi, Michele Girardon, Bernard Blier. Saucy sex comedy of marital infidelity, with Tognazzi, the businessman husband of Cardinale, outwitted by his curvaceous wife.

Magnificent Doll (1946) 95m.  D: Frank Borzage. Ginger Rogers, Burgess Meredith, David Niven, Horace (Stephen) McNally, Peggy Wood. Rogers just isn't right as Dolley Madison, and historical drama with Meredith as President Madison and Niven as Aaron Burr falls flat. ▼

Magnificent Dope, The (1942) 83m.  D: Walter Lang. Henry Fonda, Lynn Bari, Don Ameche, Edward Everett Horton, Hobart Cavanaugh, Pierre Watkin. Entertaining comedy of hopeless hayseed Fonda who shows up sharper Ameche in big city; Bari is the girl between them. ▼

Magnificent Matador, The (1955) C-94m. ½ D: Budd Boetticher. Anthony Quinn, Maureen O'Hara, Manuel Rojas, Thomas Gomez, Richard Denning, Lola Albright. Another of director Boetticher's bullfighting films has Quinn an aging matador who reexamines his commitment to bullfighting, while protecting his young "protégé" (Rojas) and being romanced by American O'Hara. CinemaScope. ▼

Magnificent Obsession (1935) 101m.  D: John M. Stahl. Irene Dunne, Robert Taylor, Betty Furness, Charles Butterworth, Sara Haden, Ralph Morgan, Arthur Treacher. Dated but sincere adaptation of Lloyd Douglas' story about drunken playboy who mends his ways, becomes respected surgeon in order to restore the eyesight of a woman (Dunne) he blinded in an auto accident. Soap opera gave Taylor his first important lead—and made him a star. Original running time was 112m. Remade in 1954. ●

Magnificent Obsession (1954) C-108m.  D: Douglas Sirk. Jane Wyman, Rock Hudson, Barbara Rush, Otto Kruger, Agnes Moorehead, Gregg Palmer. Director Sirk pulls out all the stops in this baroque, melodramatic remake of 1935 film which remains faithful to original story. Like its predecessor, a smash hit which (once again) boosted its male lead to stardom. ▼●

Magnificent Seven, The (1960) C-126m. ½ D: John Sturges. Yul Brynner, Steve McQueen, Eli Wallach, Horst Buchholz, James Coburn, Charles Bronson, Robert

Vaughn, Brad Dexter. Enduringly popular Western remake of SEVEN SAMURAI, about paid gunslingers who try to rout the bandits who are devastating a small Mexican town. Great cast of stars-to-be; memorable Elmer Bernstein score. Followed by three sequels, starting with RETURN OF THE SEVEN, and a TV series. Remade as a TVM in 1998. Panavision. ▼●●

Magnificent Seven Ride!, The (1972) C-100m. ½ D: George McCowan. Lee Van Cleef, Stefanie Powers, Mariette Hartley, Michael Callan, Luke Askew, Pedro Armendariz, Jr. Newly married gunfighter decides to help his buddy fight bandits after they kidnap his wife. Fourth "ride" for the Seven isn't bad. [PG]●

Magnolia (1999) C-188m.  D: Paul Thomas Anderson. Tom Cruise, Julianne Moore, John C. Reilly, Jason Robards, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Melora Walters, William H. Macy, Philip Baker Hall, Jeremy Blackman, Michael Bowen, Melinda Dillon, April Grace, Luis Guzmán, Ricky Jay, Alfred Molina, Michael Murphy, Henry Gibson, Felicity Huffman, Eileen Ryan. A mosaic of misery, with an array of characters—ranging from a dying man and his angelic male nurse to a precocious kid pressured to perform on a TV game show—who must deal with anger, guilt, isolation, the sins of the fathers, and ultimately, forgiveness, on an almost biblical level. Fine performances in this emotionally exhausting film, including a dynamic Cruise as a self-invented Pied Piper of satyrdom. Overall impact is muted by the film's sheer length. Haunting songs by Aimee Mann. Written by the director. Robards' final film. Panavision. [R]▼●

Magnum Force (1973) C-124m. ½ D: Ted Post. Clint Eastwood, Hal Holbrook, Mitchell Ryan, David Soul, Felton Perry, Robert Urich, Kip Niven, Tim Matheson. Eastwood's second go-round as individualistic San Francisco cop Dirty Harry Callahan. This time he traces a series of mysterious slayings to the police department itself, and finds himself in extra-hot water. Some brutal scenes; not nearly as stylish as the original. Written by John Milius and Michael Cimino. Look for Suzanne Somers as gangster's pool party. Followed by THE ENFORCER. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Magus, The (1968-British) C-117m. BOMB D: Guy Green. Anthony Quinn, Michael

Caine, Candice Bergen, Anna Karina, Paul Stassino, Julian Glover. Pretentious, hopelessly confusing story from John Fowles' novel about a magus, or magician (Quinn), who tries to control destiny of Caine, new arrival on his Greek island. At first mazelike story is fun, but with no relief it grows tiresome. Panavision.●

Mahler (1974-British) C-115m.  D: Ken Russell. Robert Powell, Georgina Hale, Richard Morant, Lee Montague, Rosalie Crutchley. Not for every taste (could it be a Russell film if it were?) but one of the director's best films; a gorgeously shot, set, and costumed bio about the turn-of-the-century composer and his tormented life. If you think this means it's refined, check out the purposely anachronistic Nazi humor. Energetic to a fault. [PG]▼●

Mahogany (1975) C-109m. *½ D: Berry Gordy. Diana Ross, Billy Dee Williams, Anthony Perkins, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Beah Richards, Nina Foch. Silly, contrived affair about fashion designer who becomes world famous, then finds happiness only in arms of unsuccessful boy friend. Wooden performances except for Perkins' extension of PSYCHO role. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Maid, The (1991-U.S.-French) C-91m.  D: Ian Toynton. Martin Sheen, Jacqueline Bisset, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Victoria Shalet, James Faulkner. Wall Street ladies' man Sheen poses as a "maid" to ingratiate himself with French businessmom Bisset and her spoiled young daughter. Warm but predictable romantic comedy which gets off to a faulty start. [PG]▼

Maid in Manhattan (2002) C-105m.  D: Wayne Wang. Jennifer Lopez, Ralph Fiennes, Natasha Richardson, Stanley Tucci, Bob Hoskins, Tyler Garcia Posey, Frances Conroy, Chris Eigeman, Marissa Matrone, Amy Sedaris. Fiennes and Lopez meet cute in a frothy, old-fashioned Cinderella story about a wealthy senatorial candidate who has a whirlwind affair with a hotel chambermaid (and single mother) who he believes to be a socialite. Formulaic to be sure, but Fiennes' charm and Lopez's believability as a hardworking mom make it an enjoyable romantic fantasy. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Maids, The (1975-British) C-95m.  D: Christopher Miles. Glenda Jackson, Susannah York, Vivien Merchant, Mark Burns. Jean Genet's windy, pointless, exasperating play about two maids who hate their mistress. Excellent acting wasted on tripe. An American Film Theater Production. [PG]▼●

Maid to Order (1987) C-96m. ½ D: Amy Jones. Ally Sheedy, Beverly D'Angelo, Michael Ontkean, Valerie Perrine, Dick Shawn, Tom Skeritt, Merry Clayton. Cute fairytale comedy about spoiled rich girl who's robbed of her identity, and forced to work as a maid for a gaudy and self-centered Malibu couple (played to perfection by Perrine and Shawn).

D'Angelo is fun as her fairy godmother, and Ontkean is a sweet Prince Charming. Clayton scores as the household cook who belts out two numbers. Film's good-heartedness makes up for its shortcomings. [PG] ▼●●

Mail Order Bride (1964) C-83m. ½ D: Burt Kennedy. Buddy Ebsen, Keir Dullea, Lois Nettleton, Warren Oates, Marie Windsor, Barbara Luna. Harmless—and plotless—Western with rambunctious young rancher Dullea marrying widow Nettleton to satisfy his late father's old friend (Ebsen). Climactic shoot-out is virtual duplicate of the one in RIDE THE HIGH COUNTRY. Panavision.

Main Event, The (1979) C-112m. *½ D: Howard Zieff. Barbra Streisand, Ryan O'Neal, Paul Sand, Whitman Mayo, Patti D'Arbanville, Richard Lawson, James Gregory, Rory Calhoun, Ernie Hudson. Tortuous farce about a bankrupt executive who inherits a hapless boxer and goads him into resuming his career. O'Neal comes off slightly better than Streisand, but only because his yelling and screaming isn't as abrasive as hers; D'Arbanville tops them both as a girl with a really bad cough. [PG] ▼●●

Maitresse (1976-French) C-112m.  D: Barbet Schroeder. Gérard Depardieu, Bulle Ogier, Andre Rouyer, Nathalie Keryan, Roland Bertin, Tony Taffin. Wickedly amusing comedy about a woman (Ogier) who earns her keep as a dominatrix, and puts her profession aside in her romantic relationship with Depardieu. Decidedly not for all tastes, but delicious fun for those who are game. ▼

Majestic, The (2001) C-152m.  D: Frank Darabont. Jim Carrey, Martin Landau, Laurie Holden, David Ogen Stiers, James Whitmore, Jeffrey DeMunn, Ron Rifkin, Hal Holbrook, Bob Balaban, Brent Briscoe, Gerry Black, Susan Willis, Chelcie Ross, Allen Garfield, Daniel von Bargen, Bruce Campbell. A Capraesque approach to the Hollywood witch hunt of the 1950s. Apolitical screenwriter Carrey loses his memory in an accident and winds up in an idyllic coastal town where he is mistaken for Landau's long-missing son, a WW2 hero. Carrey is good in a Jimmy Stewart-ish role, but the film is long, slow, and maddeningly uneven, relying too often on secondhand emotions. Landau stands out as the owner of the town's dilapidated movie theater. Features the voices of Matt Damon, Rob Reiner, Garry Marshall, Paul Mazursky, and Sydney Pollack. [PG] ▼

as 12-year-old to save train fare, becoming involved with Milland's military school. Wilder's first directorial effort (written with Charles Brackett) is still amusing. Story suggested by Edward Childs Carpenter's play Connie Goes Home and Saturday Evening Post story "Sunny Goes Home" by Fannie Kilbourne. That's Ginger's real-life mom playing her mother near the end of the film. Remade as YOU'RE NEVER TOO YOUNG. ▼

Major Barbara (1941-British) 131m. * D: Gabriel Pascal. Wendy Hiller, Rex Harrison, Robert Morley, Robert Newton, Emlyn Williams, Sybil Thorndike, Deborah Kerr, David Tree, Stanley Holloway. Topnotch adaptation of Shaw play about wealthy girl who joins Salvation Army; Harrison is a professor who woos her. Excellent cast in intelligent comedy (scripted by Anatole de Grunwald and Shaw). Kerr's film debut. Also shown at 115m. ▼

Major Dundee (1965) C-124m. ½ D: Sam Peckinpah. Charlton Heston, Richard Harris, Jim Hutton, James Coburn, Michael Anderson, Jr., Senta Berger, Mario Adorf, Brock Peters, Warren Oates, Slim Pickens, Ben Johnson, R.G. Armstrong, L.Q. Jones, Michael Pate, Dub Taylor. Obsessive Union officer Heston leads a ragtag brigade (including recently sprung Confederate prisoner Harris) to Mexico to rescue three children who've been kidnapped by Apaches. Sweeping, violent, epic-scale Western with an Ahab-like protagonist was severely cut prior to release; Peckinpah disowned the film and its score. In 2005 it was reconstituted to 136m., 6m. shy of its intended length, with a supportive new score by Christopher YOUNG. This version is more meaningful if no less flawed. Panavision. ▼●●

Majority of One, A (1962) C-153m. ½ D: Mervyn LeRoy. Rosalind Russell, Alec Guinness, Ray Danton, Madlyn Rhue, Mae Questel. Compared to Broadway play, this is overblown, overacted account of Jewish matron Russell falling in love with Japanese widower Guinness. Written by Leonard Spiegelgass. ▼

Major League (1989) C-107m. ½ D: David S. Ward. Tom Berenger, Charlie Sheen, Corbin Bernsen, Margaret Whitton, James Gammon, Rene Russo, Wesley Snipes, Dennis Haysbert, Charles Cyphers, Bob Uecker. Bitchy baseball team owner Whitton seeks to get out of her Cleveland franchise by organizing a team that's guaranteed to lose games—and fans. Pleasant but completely unremarkable baseball comedy, with no surprises whatsoever. Followed by two sequels. [R] ▼●●

Major League II (1994) C-104m. *½ D: David S. Ward. Charlie Sheen, Tom Berenger, Corbin Bernsen, Dennis Haysbert, James Gammon, Omar Epps, Eric Bruskotter, Bob Uecker, David Keith, Alison Doody, Margaret Whitton, Takaaki Ishibashi, Michelle Burke, Randy Quaid. Excruciatingly unfunny, decidedly minor-league sequel, with most of the principals returning for a second season; the key exclusion is Wesley Snipes, replaced by Epps as Willie Mays Hayes. Crammed with cheap jokes; except for Uecker's quips, there's barely a laugh in sight. What's more, it's shamelessly loaded with plugs for commercial products. [PG] ▼●●

Major League: Back to the Minors (1998) C-100m.  D: John Warren. Scott Bakula, Corbin Bernsen, Dennis Haysbert, Takaaki Ishibashi, Jensen Daggett, Eric Bruskotter, Ted McGinley, Bob Uecker, Walt Goggins, Kenneth Johnson, Peter MacKenzie. Ex-ballplayer Bakula hires on as manager of a minor league team, transforming it from loser to contender. Sound familiar? Ho-hum comedy isn't as irritating as MAJOR LEAGUE II and does have Uecker around for laughs. [PG-13] ▼●●

Major Payne (1995) C-97m. *½ D: Nick Castle. Damon Wayans, Karyn Parsons, William Hickey, Michael Ironside, Albert Hall, Steven Martini, Orlando Brown, Andrew Harrison Leeds, Damien Wayans. Major Benson Payne is a warrior without a war, a disciplinarian with a rigid military mentality who is oblivious to humanity and feeling. This is about to change upon his taking command of a group of underage cadets. Inane, by-the-numbers comedy, with a miscast Wayans too often hard to take in the title role. Remake of THE PRIVATE WAR OF MAJOR BENSON. Wayans coscripted. [PG-13] ▼●●

Make Mine Mink (1960-British) 100m.  D: Robert Asher. Terry-Thomas, Athene Seyler, Hattie Jacques, Billie Whitelaw, Elspeth Duxbury, Raymond Huntley, Ron Moody, Jack Hedley, Kenneth Williams, Sidney Tafler. Former military man Terry-Thomas organizes unlikely band of fur thieves in this delightful British farce. Beware of shorter version on tape. ▼

Make Mine Music (1946) C-74m. ½ D: Joe Grant (production supervisor). Voices of Nelson Eddy, Dinah Shore, Jerry Colonna, The Andrews Sisters, Andy Russell, Sterling Holloway, and music by The Benny Goodman Quartet. Ten-part Walt Disney animated feature with such segments as "Peter and the Wolf," "Johnny Fedora and Alice Blue Bonnet," and "Casey at the Bat." At its worst when it tries to be "arty," and at its best when it offers bright, original pieces like "The Whale Who Wanted to Sing at the Met," and the dazzling Benny Goodman number "After You've Gone." A mixed bag, to be sure. Video release is missing "The Martins and the Coys" segment. ▼●

Maker, The (1997) C-98m.  D: Tim Hunter. Matthew Modine, Mary-Louise Parker, Jonathan Rhys-Meyers, Fairuza Balk, Jesse Borrego, Michael Madsen, Lawrence

Pressman. Troubled teenager, just coming of age, falls prey to his long-lost older brother who leads him into a life of crime. Off-putting at first, interesting for a while, but overall an unsatisfying brew. Never released theatrically. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Make Way For Tomorrow (1937) 92m. ½ D: Leo McCarey. Victor Moore, Beulah Bondi, Fay Bainter, Thomas Mitchell, Porter Hall, Barbara Read, Louise Beavers. Sensitive film of elderly couple in financial difficulty, shunted aside by their children, unwanted and unloved; shatteringly true, beautifully done.

Making It (1971) C-97m.  D: John Erman. Kristoffer Tabori, Joyce Van Patten, Marilyn Mason, Bob Balaban, Lawrence Pressman, Louise Latham, Dick Van Patten. Uneven, seriocomic "youth picture" with Tabori (son of Viveca Lindfors, impressive in his first starring role) as a 17-year-old with little but sex on his mind—until he shares a traumatic experience with his mother. Filmed in Albuquerque. [R]

Making Love (1982) C-113m. ½ D: Arthur Hiller. Michael Ontkean, Kate Jackson, Harry Hamlin, Wendy Hiller, Arthur Hill, Nancy Olson, Terry Kiser. Repressed homosexual doctor jeopardizes 8-year marriage by coming out of the closet with sexually carefree novelist. Soaper is easy to take, but that's its problem; script, direction, nonstereotyped performances, lack edge in bland attempt to avoid offending anyone. From the director of LOVE STORY. [R] ▼●

Making Mr. Right (1987) C-95m. ½ D: Susan Seidelman. John Malkovich, Ann Magnuson, Glenne Headly, Ben Masters, Laurie Metcalf, Polly Bergen, Harsh Nayyar, Hart Bochner, Polly Draper, Susan Anton. Nerdy scientist Malkovich has created a nearly human android in his own image; public relations whiz Magnuson is hired to sell the concept of Ulysses to the public. Hit-or-miss comedy has good performances and many effective moments, but misses the bull's-eye. Filmed and set in Miami Beach. [PG-13] ▼●●

Making the Grade (1984) C-105m. *½ D: Dorian Walker. Judd Nelson, Jonna Lee, Carey Scott, Dana Olsen, Gordon Jump, Walter Olkewicz, Ronald Lacey, Scott McGinnis. Spoiled rich kid hires young hustler to take his place at prep school. Better than the average raunchy youth comedies of the '80s, but that's faint praise. Andrew Clay plays a character here named Dice. [R] ▼●

Makioka Sisters, The (1985-Japanese) C/B&W-140m.  D: Kon Ichikawa. Keiko Kishi, Yoshiko Sakuma, Sayuri Yoshinaga, Yuko Kotegawa, Juzo Itami. Emotionally distant, occasionally confusing tale of four upper-class sisters, two married and two single, and the manner in which they contend with tradition and social change in pre-WW2 Osaka. Ichikawa coscripted, from a highly regarded novel by Junichiro Tanizaki. ▼●

Mako: The Jaws of Death (1976) C-93m. ½ D: William Greffe. Richard Jaeckel, Jenifer Bishop, Harold Sakata, John Chandler, Buffy Dee. Good horror premise has Jaeckel a friend and protector of sharks who goes berserk when both he and his "friends" are exploited. Shown theatrically as THE JAWS OF DEATH. [PG] ▼

Malaga (1960-British) 97m. ½ D: Laslo Benedek. Trevor Howard, Dorothy Dandridge, Edmund Purdom, Michael Hordern. Bizarre casting in routine robbery tale is primary diversion. Originally titled MOMENT OF DANGER.

Malaya (1949) 98m. ½ D: Richard Thorpe. Spencer Tracy, James Stewart, Valentina Cortese, Sydney Greenstreet. Routine WW2 melodrama set in the Pacific, about Allies' efforts to smuggle out rubber. Good cast let down by so-so script. ▼

Malcolm (1986-Australian) C-86m.  D: Nadia Tass. Colin Friels, John Hargreaves, Lindy Davies, Chris Haywood, Charles "Bud" Tingwell, Beverly Phillips, Judith Stratford. Charming, disarmingly offbeat comedy about a slow-witted young man with a genius for Rube Goldberg-like mechanical devices and his unusual entry into a life of crime. Surefooted directorial debut for actress Tass, whose husband David Parker wrote the screenplay (and designed the Tinkertoys) and whose real-life brother was the inspiration for the character of Malcolm. Infectious music score performed by The Penguin Cafe Orchestra. Australian Film Institute winner for Best Picture and other awards. [PG-13] ▼●

Malcolm X (1972) 92m.  No director credited. Excellent documentary about the life and times of the black revolutionary leader, which allows him to speak for himself. (Passages from his autobiography are spoken by James Earl Jones; his eulogy is read, as it was in real life, by Ossie Davis.) A fascinating time capsule and history lesson. Particularly interesting to see alongside Spike Lee's later film, which was produced and cowritten by Marvin Worth and Arnold Perl, the same partnership responsible for this Oscar-nominated documentary. [PG] ▼

with a superb performance by Washington, and sure-footed guidance from director/cowriter Lee. A surprisingly measured and intelligent portrait of a still-controversial figure, with Lee's expected indulgences limited to the main title sequence and epilogue. Screenplay by Lee and Arnold Perl, based on the book The Autobiography of Malcolm X, as told to Alex Haley. Many famous people appear as themselves. [PG-13] ▼●

Male Animal, The (1942) 101m. ½ D: Elliott Nugent. Henry Fonda, Olivia de Havilland, Joan Leslie, Jack Carson, Herbert Anderson, Don DeFore, Hattie McDaniel, Eugene Pallette. Intelligent, entertaining Elliott Nugent-James Thurber comedy of college professor Fonda defending his rights, while losing wife de Havilland to old flame Carson. Excellent performances in this fine, contemporary film, with spoof on typical football rallies a highlight. Remade as SHE'S WORKING HER WAY THROUGH COLLEGE. ▼

Male Hunt (1964-French) 92m.  D: Edouard Molinaro. Jean-Paul Belmondo, Jean-Claude Brialy, Catherine Deneuve, Françoise Dorleac, Marie Laforet. Spicy romp about trio of Frenchmen avoiding the clutches of marriage-minded women.

Malena (2000-Italian-U.S.) C-94m. ½ D: Giuseppe Tornatore. Monica Bellucci, Giuseppe Sulfaro, Luciano Federico, Matilde Piana, Pietro Notarianni, Gaetano Aronica. Maddeningly uneven farce, set in 1941 Sicily, about an earthy, stunningly beautiful woman (Bellucci) whose husband has gone off to war and who must suffer the brunt of small-town sexism, jealousy, and gossip; one of her ardent admirers is an imaginative, obsessive 13-year-old boy (Sulfaro). A decidedly mixed bag, at once bittersweet and simplistic. Panavision. [R] ▼

Male of the Century, The (1975-French) C-90m. ½ D: Claude Berri. Juliet Berto, Claude Berri, Hubert Deschamps, Laszlo Szabo, Yves Afonso. Writer-director Berri stars in this slight, occasionally perceptive comedy as a jealous chauvinistic husband; his wife is taken hostage during a bank robbery . . . and he's positive that she's becoming sexually involved with her captor.

Malibu Express (1985) C-101m.  D: Andy Sidaris. Darby Hinton, Sybil Danning, Art Metrano, Shelley Taylor Morgan, Lori Sutton, Barbara Edwards. Hinton is a private detective working on a complex espionage and blackmail case, but this film is just an excuse to showcase the charms of numerous Playboy centerfold models (accounting for its frequent programming on pay-cable services). A loose remake of Sidaris' 1973 STACEY. [R] ▼

Malibu's Most Wanted (2003) C-86m.  D: John Whitesell. Jamie Kennedy, Taye Diggs, Anthony Anderson, Blair Underwood, Regina Hall, Damien Dante Wayans, Ryan

O'Neal, Bo Derek, Jeffrey Tambor, Kellie Martin; voice of Snoop Dogg. B-Rad (a character Kennedy introduced on his self-named TV series) is a pampered white boy from Malibu, California, who has adopted the personality and patois of an urban black rapper. His father (O'Neal) is running for governor, so campaign manager Underwood hires two black actors to kidnap B-Rad and scare him out of his pose. Diggs and Anderson, as the "homies for hire," bring the most laughs to this one-joke comedy. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Malice (1993) C-107m. ½ D: Harold Becker. Alec Baldwin, Nicole Kidman, Bill Pullman, Bebe Neuwirth, George C. Scott, Anne Bancroft, Peter Gallagher, Josef Sommer, Tobin Bell, Debrah Farentino, Gwyneth Paltrow. A professor at a New England college finds himself undermined—and overshadowed—by the arrival in town of a hotshot surgeon who rents a room from him and his wife. The plot thickens, and gets progressively sillier, in this slick, engrossing, sexy thriller. Good performances help disguise story holes until the denouement, when it all goes to pieces. Overheated and fairly absurd. [R] ▼

Malicious (1973-Italian) C-97m. ½ D: Salvatore Samperi. Laura Antonelli, Turi Ferro, Alessandro Momo, Angela Luce, Pino Caruso, Tina Aumont. Seriocomic slice of life about a sexy, though innocent young woman who comes to work as housekeeper for a widower and his three sons—and tantalizes both the father and one of his teenage boys. Intriguing but often unpleasant look at mores, morals, and hypocrisy, with typically titillating role for Antonelli. Originally titled MALIZIA. Techniscope. [R] ▼

Malizia SEE: Malicious

Mallrats (1995) C-95m. *½ D: Kevin Smith. Shannen Doherty, Jeremy London, Jason Lee, Claire Forlani, Jason Mewes, Kevin Smith, Michael Rooker, Renee Humphrey, Ethan Suplee, Ben Affleck, Joey Lauren Adams, Priscilla Barnes. Inert, unfunny film, from the creator of CLERKS, about a band of friends, enemies, former girl- and boyfriends, and geeks who hang out at a suburban mall. Don't look for more story than that . . . or much else. Comic book legend Stan Lee plays himself in a rather contrived subplot. Extended edition runs 123m. [R] ▼

Malone (1987) C-92m. *½ D: Harley Cokliss. Burt Reynolds, Cliff Robertson, Kenneth McMillan, Cynthia Gibb, Scott Wilson, Lauren Hutton. Robertson is a megalomaniac plotting to take over America; lucky for us the mountain-town gas station essential to his plans is the same one ex-CIA agent Reynolds stops at for a fill-up. Hybrid of SHANE and a modern-day shoot-em-up turns pretty ludicrous after a passable beginning; note how quickly Burt recovers from a golf ball-size bullet wound. [R]

Maltese Bippy, The (1969) C-88m.  D: Norman Panama. Dan Rowan, Dick Martin, Carol Lynley, Julie Newmar, Mildred Natwick, Fritz Weaver, Robert Reed. Werewolves, haunted houses, good cast, but few true laughs in tired horror-movie spoof. Film tried to cash in on the great success of Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In TV show—and their "bippy" catchword. Panavision. [G]

Maltese Falcon, The (1931) 80m.  D: Roy Del Ruth. Bebe Daniels, Ricardo Cortez, Dudley Digges, Robert Elliott, Thelma Todd, Una Merkel, Dwight Frye. First film version of Dashiell Hammett story is quite good, with Cortez more of a ladies' man than Bogart; otherwise very similar to later classic. Remade in 1936 (as SATAN MET A LADY) and 1941. ▼

Mama's Boy (2007) C-92m. *½ D: Tim Hamilton. Jon Heder, Diane Keaton, Jeff Daniels, Anna Farris, Eli Wallach, Mary Kay Place, Sarah Chalke, Laura Kightlinger. Irredeemably clunky "comedy" with Heder as a self-absorbed 29-year-old slacker whose emotional bullying of his widowed mother (Keaton) is far too creepy to be funny. When mom falls for a motivational speaker (Daniels), the son rightly senses a rival for her attention and sets out to sabotage the budding romance. Keaton and Daniels are better than the movie deserves. Barely released, and with good reason. [PG-13] ●

Mama, There's a Man in Your Bed (1989-French) C-111m.  D: Coline Serreau. Daniel Auteuil, Firmine Richard, Pierre Vernier, Maxime Leroux, Gilles Privat, Muriel Combeau, Catherine Salviat. Unlikely romance between the harried CEO of a yogurt company and the financially strapped cleaning woman who will do anything to keep her five children (from five different marriages) from going hungry. Clever, heartwarming story from the director of THREE MEN AND A CRADLE has a lot to say about class and color differences in a world none too tolerant of either. Original French title: ROMUALD ET JULIET. ▼●

Mambo (1954-U.S.-Italian) 94m. ½ D: Robert Rossen. Silvana Mangano, Michael Rennie, Shelley Winters, Vittorio Gassman, Eduardo Ciannelli, Mary Clare, Katherine Dunham. Offbeat romance set in Venice; young saleswoman, her love life complicated by a penniless gambler and a sickly count, becomes a famous dancer. Strong cast keeps it watchable. Original Italian running time 107m. ▼

Mambo Italiano (2003-Canadian) C-89m. ½ D: Émile Gaudreault. Luke Kirby, Paul Sorvino, Ginette Reno, Claudia Ferri, Peter Miller, Mary Walsh, Sophie Lorain. Or, My Big Fat Gay Wedding. Bombastic, by-the-numbers comedy about a nice Italian-Canadian boy (Kirby) who's struggling to find a way to tell his stereotypically ethnic parents that he's gay. Plays like a tired, dated TV sitcom, though it's based on a play by Steve Galluccio. [R] ▼●

Mambo Kings, The (1992) C-104m. ½ D: Arne Glimcher. Armand Assante, Antonio Banderas, Cathy Moriarty, Maruschka Detmers, Desi Arnaz, Jr., Celia Cruz, Roscoe Lee Browne, Vondie Curtis-Hall, Tito Puente, Talisa Soto. Two brothers leave Cuba for the U.S. in the early 1950s and try to establish their own band. Colorful adaptation of Oscar Hijuelos' Pulitzer Prize-winning novel Mambo Kings Play Songs of Love is disappointingly underwritten and one-dimensional. Most intriguing sequence involves Desi Jr. playing his father and inviting the brothers to appear on an episode of I Love Lucy. Adapted for the stage in 2005. [R] ▼●●

Mame (1974) C-131m. BOMB D: Gene Saks. Lucille Ball, Robert Preston, Beatrice Arthur, Bruce Davison, Joyce Van Patten, Don Porter, Audrey Christie, Jane Connell, Kirby Furlong, John McGiver. Hopelessly out-of-date musical taken from Jerry Herman's Broadway hit and based on AUNTIE MAME will embarrass even those who love Lucy. Calling Fred and Ethel Mertz! Bea Arthur re-creates her Tony-winning stage role; Lucy's final feature film. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Mamma Mia! (2008) C-108m.  D: Phyllida Lloyd. Meryl Streep, Pierce Brosnan, Colin Firth, Stellan Skarsgård, Julie Walters, Dominic Cooper, Amanda Seyfried, Christine Baranski. Cheerful adaptation of the internationally successful stage show based on the enduring songs of Swedish pop group ABBA. Seyfried has been raised by her mom (Streep) on a Greek island; now that she's going to be married, she sends wedding invitations to the three men who might be her father. Thin story strings together a parade of songs by an attractive cast (though Streep's pipes outshine her costars'), with beautiful Greek scenery as the backdrop. The creators of the show also put together this feel-good film, which seemingly has four or five finales... but they're all fun. Panavision. [PG-13] ●

Mamma Roma (1962-Italian) 110m. ½ D: Pier Paolo Pasolini. Anna Magnani, Et-tore Garofolo, Franco Citti, Silvana Corsini, Luisa Orioli, Paolo Volponi. Magnani dominates the screen as the title character, an earthy, larger-than-life woman attempting to abandon her career as a prostitute and enter the middle class. The scenario charts her complex relationship with (and high hopes for) her adolescent son, with whom she is reunited after many years. Pasolini scripted this fascinating, intensely involving drama which is loaded with cinematic references; Mamma Roma would be the same character Magnani played in Rossellini's OPEN CITY had that character not been killed at the finale! Watch for Lamberto Maggiorani, the star of De Sica's THE BICYCLE THIEF, in a small but pivotal role. Released theatrically in the U.S. in 1994. ▼●

Mam'zelle Pigalle (1956-French) C-77m.  D: Michel Boisrond. Brigitte Bardot, Jean Bretonniere, Françoise Fabian, Bernard Lancret, Mischa Auer. Dull doings with Bardot as a schoolgirl who pursues crooner Bretonniere and becomes mixed up with counterfeiter. Scripted by Boisrond and Roger Vadim. Retitled: NAUGHTY GIRL and THAT NAUGHTY GIRL. CinemaScope. ▼●

Man, The (1972) C-93m.  D: Joseph Sargent. James Earl Jones, Martin Balsam, Burgess Meredith, Lew Ayres, William Windom, Barbara Rush, Janet MacLachlan. Black Senator Jones becomes President of U.S. after freak disaster kills chief executive in Europe. Originally made for TV but released theatrically; marginally interesting Rod Serling adaptation of Irving Wallace best-seller plus acceptable performances add up to forgettable experience. Cameo appearance by Jack Benny. [G]

Man, The (2005) C-83m. BOMB D: Les Mayfield. Samuel L. Jackson, Eugene Levy, Luke Goss, Miguel Ferrer, Susie Essman, Anthony Mackie, Horatio Sanz, Rachael Crawford. A case of mistaken identity forces a tough ATF agent (Jackson) to team up with a nerdy dental-supply salesman (Levy) to pull off a sting operation. Contrived, derivative, mismatched-buddies romp mixes lame action and juvenile humor. Yet another waste of Levy's comic talent. [PG-13] ●

ent agent starts keeping a secret daily journal to examine his smileless existence . . . only to have it stolen by a ruthless, amoral reporter. Affleck gives a fine performance as a loser who has everything, but this act of Hollywood self-flagellation, though optically clever, is an unlikely pageant of past and present pain. Written by the director, who also plays a fellow rep. Super 35. [R] Management (2009) C-93m.  D: Stephen Belber. Jennifer Aniston, Steve Zahn, Woody Harrelson, Margo Martindale, Fred Ward, James Liao, Mark Boone Junior, Tzi Ma. Whimsical comedy-drama of an almost childlike 30-something misfit (Zahn) who lives and works at his parents' Arizona motel. When businesswoman Aniston checks in he is instantly smitten, and though she's unresponsive at first, he is undeterred. How—and why—their relationship develops is the heart and soul of this small-scale, entertaining film. At turns disarming, poignant, and funny. Playwright Belber's debut feature as writer-director. [R]

Man Alone, A (1955) C-96m. ½ D: Ray Milland. Ray Milland, Mary Murphy, Ward Bond, Raymond Burr, Lee Van Cleef. Intelligent oater of fugitive from lynch mob (Milland) hiding with sheriff's daughter (Murphy) in small town. Milland's first directorial attempt isn't bad. Man and a Woman, A (1966-French) C-102m. ½ D: Claude Lelouch. Anouk Aimée, Jean-Louis Trintignant, Pierre Barouh, Valerie Lagrange. Moving romantic drama about young widow and widower who fall in love; one of the 1960s' most popular love stories, thanks to intelligent script, winning performances, innovative direction and camerawork, Francis Lai's music score. Oscar winner for Best Foreign Film, Best Original Screenplay. Remade by cowriter/director Lelouch in 1977 as ANOTHER MAN, ANOTHER CHANCE, and followed by A MAN AND A WOMAN: 20 YEARS LATER. Man and a Woman: 20 Years Later, A (1986) C-108m. *½ D: Claude Lelouch. Anouk Aimée, Jean-Louis Trintignant, Richard Berry, Evelyn Bouix, Robert Hossein, Marie-Sophie Pochat. Badly misconceived sequel to one of the '60s' essential "date" movies finds former script girl Aimee now a film producer, race driver Trintignant involved in a Paris-to-Dakar rally. Silly film-within-a-film pays homage to DIAL M FOR MURDER and—in one desert scene—the opening to HATARI! Someone should have reminded Lelouch that "hatari!" means "danger" in Swahili. [PG] Man and Boy (1972) C-98m. ½ D: E. W. Swackhamer. Bill Cosby, Gloria Foster, Leif Erickson, George Spell, Douglas Turner Ward, John Anderson, Yaphet Kotto, Henry Silva, Dub Taylor. Civil War vet and young son take after the thief who has stolen their horse in a kind of black BICYCLE THIEF. Decent enough family film with Cosby in rare dramatic role. [G] Man Apart, A (2003) C-109m.  D: F. Gary Gray. Vin Diesel, Larenz Tate, Timothy Olyphant, Geno Silva, Jacqueline Obradors, Steve Eastin, Juan Fernandez, Jeff Kober. Undercover DEA operatives Diesel and Tate bust a Mexican drug lord whose replacement—a fiendish, mysterious figure called El Diabolo—is even more ruthless than his predecessor. Slick, bullet-riddled action yarn gives Diesel a star vehicle in the mold of earlier Stallone movies, but yields to predictability at every turn. Diesel coexecutive-produced. Super 35. [R] Man at the Top (1975-British) C-92m.  D: Mike Vardy. Kenneth Haigh, Nanette Newman, Harry Andrews, John Quentin, Mary Maude. Feature spin-off of British TV show which in turn is a spin-off of ROOM AT THE TOP, with Haigh as Joe Lampton, now caught in EXECUTIVE SUITE—type business conflicts.

Man, a Woman and a Bank, A (1979-Canadian) C-100m. ½ D: Noel Black. Donald Sutherland, Brooke Adams, Paul Mazursky, Allen Magicovsky, Leigh Hamilton. Needless but inoffensive caper movie about a $4 million bank heist, with pleasing performances by the three leads. Magicovsky isn't too appealing as a suicidal whipped cream freak, but how many suicidal whipped cream freaks do you know that are? [PG] Man Betrayed, A (1941) 83m.  D: John H. Auer. John Wayne, Frances Dee, Edward Ellis, Wallace Ford, Ward Bond, Harold Huber, Alexander Granach. Country lawyer crusades against father of girlfriend to prove that he's crooked politician. Minor melodrama with the Duke in one of his oddest roles. Retitled: WHEEL OF FORTUNE. Man Between, The (1953-British) 101m.  D: Carol Reed. James Mason, Claire Bloom, Hildegard Neff, Geoffrey Toone. Hardened black-market dealer falls in love and finds himself torn between East and West. Taut, moody, and well-acted drama set in post-WW2 Berlin.

Man Bites Dog (1992-Belgian) 88m.  D: Rémy Belvaux, André Bonzel, Benôt Poelvoorde. Benôt Poelvoorde, Jacqueline Poelvoorde Pappaert, Nelly Pappaert, Hector Pappaert. Controversial, no-holds-barred portrait of an unashamedly brutal serial killer (played by codirector Poelvoorde). The nonstop, graphic brutality can be viewed either as sensationalism, a sick joke, or as a comment on violence on-screen and in society. Shot in cinéma-vérité documentary style; codirectors Belvaux and Bonzel play a reporter and cameraman making a film about the killer (whose actions clearly are spurred on by their presence). Definitely not for all tastes. Also available in unrated version. [NC-17] ▼

Man Called Adam, A (1966) 102m.  D: Leo Penn. Sammy Davis, Jr., Ossie Davis, Cicely Tyson, Louis Armstrong, Frank Sinatra, Jr., Peter Lawford, Mel Torme, Lola Falana, Gerald O'Loughlin. Pretentious melodrama of trumpet-player Davis trying to find some purpose in life; amateurishly produced. ▼

Man Called Dagger, A (1968) C-86m. BOMB D: Richard Rush. Terry Moore, Jan Murray, Sue Ane Langdon, Paul Mantee, Eileen O'Neill, Maureen Arthur. Ex-Nazi scientist journeys to L.A. followed by secret agent Richard Dagger to assist former S.S. colonel (Murray!) in world-conquering plan. Embarrassing script, acting.

Man Called Flintstone, The (1966) C-87m. ½ D: Joseph Barbera, William Hanna. Voices of Alan Reed, Mel Blanc, Jean Vander Pyl, June Foray. Feature-length cartoon based on TV series of Stone Age characters satirizes superspy films. Mainly for kids. ▼

Man Called Horse, A (1970) C-114m. ½ D: Elliot Silverstein. Richard Harris, Judith Anderson, Jean Gascon, Manu Tupou, Corinna Tsopei, Dub Taylor. English aristocrat gets captured by Sioux Indians, undergoes torture to prove his worth. Sometimes gripping, sometimes gory; fine score by Leonard Rosenman. Followed by THE RETURN OF A MAN CALLED HORSE and TRIUMPHS OF A MAN CALLED HORSE. Panavision. [M/PG] ▼

Man Called Peter, A (1955) C-119m.  D: Henry Koster. Richard Todd, Jean Peters, Marjorie Rambeau, Doris Lloyd, Emmett Lynn. Moving account of Scotsman Peter Marshall who became clergyman and U.S. Senate chaplain; sensitively played by Todd, with fine supporting cast. CinemaScope. ▼

Man Called Sledge, A (1970-Italian) C-93m.  D: Vic Morrow. James Garner, Dennis Weaver, Claude Akins, John Marley, Laura Antonelli, Wade Preston. Violent Western about a gunman whose gang goes after a cache of gold stored in a prison, and then fights over the loot. Notable mainly for Garner's atypical role as brutal outlaw. Techniscope. [R] ▼

Manchu Eagle Murder Caper Mystery, The (1973) C-80m. ½ D: Dean Hargrove. Gabriel Dell, Will Geer, Joyce Van Patten, Anjanette Comer, Jackie Coogan, Huntz Hall, Barbara Harris. Fairly successful satire of tough private eye melodramas of 1940s. Cast and director on top of their material help make up for cheapness of production. [PG]

Manchurian Candidate, The (1962) 126m. ½ D: John Frankenheimer. Frank Sinatra, Laurence Harvey, Janet Leigh, Angela Lansbury, Henry Silva, James Gregory,

John McGiver, Leslie Parrish, Khigh Dhiegh. Tingling political paranoia thriller about strange aftermath of a Korean war hero's decoration and his mother's machinations to promote her Joseph McCarthy-like husband's career. Harrowing presentation of Richard Condon story (adapted by George Axelrod). Score by David Amram. Rereleased theatrically in 1987; remade in 2004. ▼

Manchurian Candidate, The (2004) C-130m. ½ D: Jonathan Demme. Denzel Washington, Meryl Streep, Liev Schreiber, Jon Voight, Kimberly Elise, Jeffrey Wright, Ted Levine, Bruno Ganz, Miguel Ferrer, Dean Stockwell, Jude Ciccollella, Simon McBurney, Vera Farmiga, Obba Babatundé, Željko Ivanek, John Bedford Lloyd, Anthony Mackie, Robyn Hitchcock, Bill Irwin, Charles Napier, Roger Corman, Tracey Walter. Washington, a veteran of Operation Desert Storm, is obsessed by the feeling that something isn't right about his memories of combat or the decorations given his comrade in arms (Schreiber), who's now running for Vice-President, with his powerful mother, a Senator (Streep), pushing him along. Remake of a genuinely great film puts an intriguing, modern spin on the depiction of backroom power brokers but lacks the chilling edge—and starkness—that marked the original. Tina Sinatra coproduced. [R] ▼

Man Could Get Killed, A (1966) C-99m. ½ D: Ronald Neame, Cliff Owen. James Garner, Melina Mercouri, Sandra Dee, Tony Franciosa, Robert Coote, Roland Culver. Businessman Garner is mistaken for international spy in this so-so secret agent spoof with beautiful Rome and Lisbon locations. Bert Kaempfert's score introduces the hit tune "Strangers in the Night." Panavision.

Mandela (1996) C-120m.  D: Jo Menell, Angus Gibson. Documentary chronicling the life of one of South Africa's greatest leaders, famed political prisoner and Nobel prizewinner Nelson Mandela. From his tribal upbringing to his work with the African National Congress, viewers are given a sense of what shaped his future role under apartheid rule to then become South Africa's first black president. Insightful and inspiring. Coproduced by Jonathan Demme. ▼

Manderlay (2005-Danish-Swedish-Dutch-French-German-British) C-139m. ½ D: Lars von Trier. Bryce Dallas Howard, Isaach de Bankolé, Danny Glover, Willem Dafoe, Jeremy Davies, Lauren Bacall, Chloë Sevigny, Jean-Marc Barr, Udo Kier, Željko Ivanek; narrated by John Hurt. Vernal follow-up to DOG-VILLE, with the same bare-bones staging, finds righteous idealist Grace (now played by Howard) in the Deep South in 1933; she and her gangster father discover a plantation where blacks still live as slaves. Grace opts to remain at Manderlay as liberator, but obstacles and dysfunction make that exceedingly difficult. Writer-director von Trier's contempt for the U.S. practically oozes from the screen. Title may refer to the Manderley estate in REBECCA, with its own themes of domination, and possibly also MANDINGO. HD 24P Widescreen. ▽

Man for All Seasons, A (1966-British) C-120m. * D: Fred Zinnemann. Paul Scofield, Wendy Hiller, Leo McKern, Robert Shaw, Orson Welles, Susannah York, John Hurt, Nigel Davenport, Vanessa Redgrave. Splendid film based on Robert Bolt's play about Sir Thomas More's personal conflict when King Henry VIII asks his support in break with Pope and formation of Church of England. Scofield's rich characterization matched by superb cast, vivid atmosphere. Six Oscars: Best Actor, Director, Picture, Screenplay (Robert Bolt), Cinematography (Ted Moore), Costumes. Remade for TV in 1988 with Charlton Heston. ▽ ● ●

Man Friday (1976-British) C-115m. *½ D: Jack Gold. Peter O'Toole, Richard Roundtree, Peter Celler, Christopher Cabot, Joel Fluellen. Defoe classic rewritten to conform to today's racial standards. Amid gore and confusing flashbacks, Friday revolts against bondage, outwits master Crusoe, and also drives him mad (as shown in Cannes, Crusoe, having failed to "educate" Friday to British standards, and himself refused admission to Friday's tribe, blows his brains out!). [PG] ▽ ●

Man From Button Willow, The (1965) C-84m.  D: David Detiege. Cartoon Western featuring the voices of Dale Robertson, Edgar Buchanan, Howard Keel, Herschel Bernardi, Ross Martin and others is only for small kiddies; story deals with America's first undercover agent in 1869 who prevents crooks from forcing settlers to get rid of their land. ▽

Man From Colorado, The (1948) C-99m.  D: Henry Levin. Glenn Ford, William Holden, Ellen Drew, Ray Collins, Edgar Buchanan. Unusual Western of brutal Ford appointed Federal judge, taking tyrannical hold of the territory. ▽ ●

Man from Elysian Fields, The (2002) C-105m.  D: George Hickenlooper. Andy Garcia, Mick Jagger, Julianna Margulies, Olivia Williams, James Coburn, Anjelica

Huston, Michael Des Barres, Richard Bradford, Xander Berkeley, Rosalind Chao, Joe Santos. A failed novelist with a loving wife and son is so desperate that he accepts a stranger's offer to work for his escort service. He becomes involved with a beautiful woman and, unexpectedly, her husband, a gruff, Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist who is nearing the end of his life. Consistently intriguing fable creates a world of its own, and has enough going for it (including strong, sincere performances) to forgive it its imperfections. Garcia also coproduced. [R] ▽ ●

Man From Laramie, The (1955) C-104m.  D: Anthony Mann. James Stewart, Arthur Kennedy, Donald Crisp, Cathy O'Donnell, Alex Nicol, Aline MacMahon, Wallace Ford. Taut action tale of revenge, with Stewart seeking those who killed his brother. CinemaScope. ▽ ●

Man From O.R.G.Y. (1970) C-92m. *½ D: James A. Hill. Robert Walker, Steve Rossi, Slappy White, Louisa Moritz. Banal counterespionage comedy-drama. Who's got the secrets? [R]

Man From Planet X, The (1951) 70m. ½ D: Edgar G. Ulmer. Robert Clarke, Margaret Field, Raymond Bond, William Schallert. Scottish Highlands are visited by alien from wandering planet; at first he is benign, but evil designs of Schallert turn him against human race. Extremely cheap, but atmospheric; script is stilted but story is strong and somewhat unusual. ▽ ● ●

Man From Snowy River, The (1982-Australian) C-115m. ½ D: George Miller. Kirk Douglas, Tom Burlinson, Sigrid Thornton, Jack Thompson, Lorraine Bayly, Tommy Dysart, Bruce Kerr. Grand, old-fashioned Western saga, based on epic Australian poem, about strong-willed young man who goes to work for an empire-building cattleman, and falls in love with his daughter. Hokey, simplistic, but great fun, with eye-filling scenery and incredible action scenes with some wild horses. Douglas has fun in a dual role; Thompson's part is virtually a cameo. Followed by RETURN TO SNOWY RIVER. Panavision. [PG] ▽ ● ●

Man From the Alamo, The (1953) C-79m.  D: Budd Boetticher. Glenn Ford, Julia (Julie) Adams, Chill Wills, Hugh O'Brian, Victor Jory, Neville Brand, Jeanne Cooper, Dennis Weaver. Ford leaves the Alamo to protect his family but is branded a coward and is forced to prove his heroism

while battling lawless Jory. Typically off-beat Boetticher Western. ▼● Man from the Diner's Club, The (1963) 90m.  D: Frank Tashlin. Danny Kaye, Martha Hyer, Cara Williams, Telly Savalas, George Kennedy, Ann Morgan Guilbert. Labored slapstick comedy about a bungling credit-card company clerk who inadvertently OKs an account for gangster Savalas. Look for Harry Dean Stanton as a beatnik. Cowritten by Bill (William Peter) Blatty. Title song sung (and cowritten) by Steve Lawrence.

Mangler, The (1995) C-106m. *½ D: Tobe Hooper. Robert Englund, Ted Levine, Daniel Matmor, Jeremy Crutchley, Vanessa Pike. An evil, gargantuan steam iron and speed-folder at a rural industrial laundry has been eating the employees lately; a local cop tries to exorcise the demons responsible. Englund is good as the laundry's crazed owner, but ridiculous "scares" and lack of logic defeat this forgettable genre entry based on a Stephen King short story. Horror fans will be disappointed with the results of this Englund-Hooper-King convergence. Unrated version available on video. Followed by two in-name-only sequels. [R]▼●●

Mango Tree, The (1977-Australian) C-93m. ½ D: Kevin Dobson. Christopher Pate, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Robert Helpmann, Diane Craig, Gerald Kennedy, Gloria Dawn. A young man's coming of age in Australia, around the time of WWI; pictorially pleasing, with a warm performance by Fitzgerald as the young man's wise, gentle grandmother, but nothing out of the ordinary. Written and produced by former actor Michael Pate, whose son plays the lead. Panavision.▼

Manhattan (1979) 96m. ½ D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, Diane Keaton, Michael Murphy, Mariel Hemingway, Meryl Streep, Anne Byrne, Tisa Farrow. Bittersweet slice-of-life about a N.Y.C. comedy writer and his cerebral friends; blisteringly accurate and ultimately poignant, a worthy follow-up to Woody's ANNIE HALL. Magnificently photographed (in b&w) by Gordon Willis, with splendid use of Gershwin music on the soundtrack. Wallace Shawn's role is especially funny; that's Mark Linn-Baker as one of the Shakespearean actors, and Karen Allen (in blonde wig) and David Rasche on TV show. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Manhattan Melodrama (1934) 93m.  D: W. S. Van Dyke II. Clark Gable, William Powell, Myrna Loy, Leo Carrillo, Isabel Jewell, Mickey Rooney, Nat Pendleton. Boyhood pals remain adult friends though one is a gangster and the other a D.A. (a plot device reused many times). What might be unbearably corny is top entertainment, thanks to this star trio and a director with gusto. Arthur Caesar's original story won an Oscar. Footnoted in American history as the film John Dillinger saw just before being gunned down at the Biograph Theatre in Chicago. Reworked as a 1942 B movie, NORTHWEST RANGERS. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Manhattan Murder Mystery (1993) C-108m.  D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, Diane Keaton, Alan Alda, Anjelica Huston, Jerry Adler, Lynn Cohen, Ron Rifkin, Joy Behar, Marge Redmond, Aida Turturro. Slight but enjoyable caper, with Allen and Keaton as a married couple who suspect their seemingly harmless neighbor has murdered his wife. A return (of sorts) to "earlier, funnier" filmmaking for Allen, this is no classic but it is consistently entertaining, with the usual quota of one-liners and some very funny set pieces. Best of all is the marvelous chemistry between Allen and Keaton (taking over the role originally intended for Mia Farrow), who play off each other's neuroses with intuitive ease. Allen cowrote the screenplay with his ANNIE HALL and MANHATTAN collaborator Marshall Brickman. [PG]▼●●

Manhattan Project, The (1986) C-117m.  D: Marshall Brickman. John Lithgow, Christopher Collet, Cynthia Nixon, Jill Eikenberry, John Mahoney, Sully Boyar, Gregg Edelman, Robert (Sean) Leonard, Richard Jenkins. Precocious teenager breaks into top-secret plant, steals some plutonium, and builds his own nuclear reactor, ostensibly to make a point but also to show off. Slick, extremely well-acted film is blantly irresponsible and has us cheering for the kid as he outwits the dopey grownups and nearly blows up the world! [PG-13]▼●●

Man Hunt (1941) 105m. ½ D: Fritz Lang. Walter Pidgeon, Joan Bennett, George Sanders, John Carradine, Roddy McDowall. Farfetched yet absorbing drama of man attempting to kill Hitler, getting into more trouble than he bargained for. Tense, well done. Screenplay by Dudley Nichols, from Geoffrey Household's novel. Remade as ROGUE MALE.●

Manhunter (1986) C-121m.  D: Michael Mann. William L. Petersen, Kim Greist, Joan Allen, Brian Cox, Dennis Farina, Stephen Lang, Tom Noonan. Forceful contemporary cops-and-robbers melodrama told with Miami Vice stylistics (and hard-pounding music) by that show's creator, writer-director Mann. Petersen plays a troubled former FBI agent who's called back to service to capture a serial killer, which he does by getting himself to think just like the murderer! Gripping all the way and surprisingly nonexploitive. Don't examine story too carefully or the holes start to show through. Jailed killer Hannibal

Lecter figures in the story; later he'd become the subject of his own story, THE SILENCE OF THE LAMBS. Based on Thomas Harris' novel Red Dragon. Director's cut runs 124m. Aka RED DRAGON, also the name of the 2002 remake. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Mania (1959-British) 87m.  D: John Gilling. Peter Cushing, Donald Pleasence, George Rose, June Laverick, Dermot Walsh, Billie Whitelaw. Deliciously lurid shocker with Cushing going all out as an Edinburgh scientist who employs grave-robbers Pleasence and Rose to supply him with corpses for his experiments. Originally titled THE FLESH AND THE FIENDS (and released at 93m.; European version has more nudity and violence). Aka PSYCHO KILLERS and THE FIENDISH GHOULS (running 74m.). Dyaliscope. ▼●

Maniac (1962-British) 86m. ½ D: Michael Carreras. Kerwin Mathews, Nadia Gray, Donald Houston, Justine Lord. One of the better British thrillers made in wake of PSYCHO, with Mathews as vacationing artist in France arousing hatred of girlfriend's sick father. Good plot twists. Written by Jimmy Sangster. Megascopes. ▼

Maniac (1977) SEE: Ransom (1977)

Maniac (1980) C-87m. BOMB D: William Lustig. Joe Spinell, Caroline Munro, Gail Lawrence (Abigail Clayton), Kelly Piper, Rita Montone, Tom Savini. Unrelenting exercise in nihilistic gore about a cretin who murders women and then scalps them so that he can dress up his mannequins. Although an excellent character actor, coscriptwriter-producer-star Spinell bears most of the blame for this claustrophobic, sickening film. [R]▼●●

Maniac Cop (1988) C-85m. *½ D: William Lustig. Tom Atkins, Bruce Campbell, Laurene Landon, Richard Roundtree, William Smith, Robert Z' dar, Sheree North. Potentially intriguing premise, of a killer on the police force striking terror in the hearts of N.Y.C. residents, is bungled by failed black humor and ham-fisted direction into standard stalk-and-slash fare. Best work is done by North as a crippled, embittered policewoman. Followed by several sequels. [R]▼●●

Manic (2003) C-100m.  D: Jordan Melamed. Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Zoey Deschanel, Michael Bacall, Don Cheadle, Elden Henson, Sara Rivas, Blayne Weaver, Cody Lightning. Interesting but uneven drama about emotionally troubled teens in a mental hospital. Shot with handheld digital cameras, the film has a feeling of spontaneity, which works best in group therapy scenes (led by the rock-solid Cheadle), but the constant use of ultra-tight close-ups becomes tiresome after a while. Written by two of the film's actors, Bacall and Weaver. [R]▼●

Manifesto (1988-U.S.-Yugoslavian) C-

96m. ½ D: Dusan Makavejev. Camilla Söeberg, Alfred Molina, Simon Callow, Eric Stoltz, Lindsay Duncan, Rade Šerbedžija, Svetozar Svetković, Chris Haywood, Patrick Godfrey, Linda Marlowe, Gabrielle Anwar, Ronald Lacey. Set in the 1920s, this anarchic dark comedy depicts a small Balkan community that's a hotbed of assassination plots, sexual freedom, and repressive ideas. Loosely derived from a story by Emile Zola, the film is brightly colored and impishly written (by the director), but eventually becomes too anarchic for its own good. More notable for what it attempts than what it achieves. Makavejev's first film in Yugoslavia after a 17-year exile. Video title: A NIGHT OF LOVE. [R]▼

Man I Killed, The SEE: Broken Lullaby
Man I Love, The (1946) 96m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Ida Lupino, Robert Alda, Bruce Bennett, Andrea King, Dolores Moran, Martha Vickers, Alan Hale. Slick, well-acted melodrama casts Ida as nightclub singer pursued by no-good mobster Alda. Forget logic and just enjoy. This film inspired Scorsese's NEW YORK, NEW YORK.▼●●

Man in a Cocked Hat (1959-British) 88m.  D: Jeffrey Dell, Roy Boulting. Terry-Thomas, Peter Sellers, Luciana Paluzzi, Thorley Walters, Ian Bannen, John Le Mesurier, Miles Malleon. Screwball farce about Island of Gallardia, a British protectorate forgotten for 50 years; when rediscovered, bumbling Terry-Thomas of the Foreign Office is left in charge. British title: CARLTON-BROWNE OF THE F.O.▼●

Man in a Uniform (1993-Canadian) C-99m.  D: David Wellington. Tom McCamus, Brigitte Bako, Kevin Tighe, David Hemblen, Graham McPherson. Startlingly effective TAXI DRIVER variation about an actor (McCamus, who is excellent) who wins a role as a cop on a TV series and begins wearing his costume uniform in public, with jarring results. Film effectively examines the difference between real and reel life in an impersonal, randomly violent society. Well worth watching. Original title: I LOVE A MAN IN UNIFORM.▼●●

Man in Grey, The (1943-British) 116m.  D: Leslie Arliss. Margaret Lockwood, James Mason, Phyllis Calvert, Stewart Granger, Helen Haye, Martita Hunt. Wealthy Calvert befriends impoverished schoolmate Lockwood; years later, Lockwood repays the kindness by trying to steal her husband. Elaborate costume drama, told in flashback, is entertaining, and notable for boosting Mason (as Calvert's hateful husband) to stardom. Originally shown in the U.S. at 93m.▼

Man in Love, A (1987-French-Italian) C-117m.  D: Diane Kurys. Peter Coyote, Greta Scacchi, Peter Riegert, Claudia

Cardinale, Jamie Lee Curtis, John Berry, Vincent Lindon, Jean Pigozzi. Full-blooded romance about a married American actor who falls in love with his leading lady while making a movie in Rome. Coyote and Scacchi are believable (and extremely sexy) in this sensual and intelligent film, written by Israel Horowitz and director Kury, whose first English language film this is. Technovision. [R]▼●

Man Inside, The (1990-U.S.-French) C-93m.  D: Bobby Roth. Jürgen Prochnow, Peter Coyote, Nathalie Baye, Dieter Laser, Monique van de Ven, Phillip Anglim, Henry G. Sanders. Crusading West German investigative reporter infiltrates a scandal-sheet newspaper in order to write an indictment of their sleazy practices. A misfire, despite its intriguing premise and cast; it may just be that the film bites off more than it can chew. Story seems dated already. [PG]▼●

Man in the Attic (1953) 82m. ½ D: Hugo Fregonese. Jack Palance, Constance Smith, Byron Palmer, Frances Bavier, Rhys Williams, Sean McClory, Isabel Jewell, Leslie Bradley. Flavorful account of notorious Jack the Ripper, with Palance going full-blast. Remake of THE LODGER.▼●

Man in the Chair (2007) C-107m. ½ D: Michael Schroeder. Christopher Plummer, Michael Angarano, M. Emmet Walsh, Robert Wagner, George Murdock, Mimi Kennedy, Joshua Boyd, Allan Rich, Mitch Pileggi, Tracey Walter, Ellen Geer. Alcoholic down-on-his-luck former studio gaffer meets a rebellious young filmmaker at a fading revival movie theater. They forge a friendship that leads to a collaboration, which also reinvigorates the lives of several residents of a motion-picture retirement home. Well-meaning drama is awkward at times but Plummer's tour-de-force performance (and a fine supporting cast) make it worth a look. Super 35. [PG-13]

Man in the Dark (1953) 70m. ½ D: Lew Landers. Edmond O'Brien, Audrey Totter, Ruth Warren, Ted de Corsia, Horace McMahon, Nick Dennis. Convict O'Brien undergoes brain surgery to eliminate criminal bent and loses memory in the process; his old cohorts only care that he remember where he stashed their stolen loot. OK remake of THE MAN WHO LIVED TWICE was originally shown in 3-D.

Man in the Glass Booth, The (1975) C-117m. ½ D: Arthur Hiller. Maximilian Schell, Lois Nettleton, Luther Adler, Lawrence Pressman, Henry Brown, Richard Rasof. American Film Theatre version of Robert Shaw's play about a glib Jewish industrialist brought to trial for Nazi war crimes. Schell is good, but overall effect is contrived. Shaw had his name removed from credits of film. [PG]▼●

Man in the Gray Flannel Suit, The (1956)

C-153m. ½ D: Nunnally Johnson. Gregory Peck, Jennifer Jones, Fredric March, Marisa Pavan, Lee J. Cobb, Keenan Wynn, Gene Lockhart, Gigi Perreau, Arthur O'Connell, Henry Daniell. Sloan Wilson's slick novel of Madison Avenue executive struggling to get ahead and to find meaning in his home life. Nice cameo by Ann Harding as March's wife. Scripted by the director; music by Bernard Hermann. CinemaScope.▼●

Man in the Iron Mask, The (1939) 110m.  D: James Whale. Louis Hayward, Joan Bennett, Warren William, Joseph Schildkraut, Alan Hale, Walter Kingsford, Marion Martin. Rousing adventure of twin brothers: one becomes King of France, the other a carefree gay blade raised by D'Artagnan (William) and the Three Musketeers. Fine swashbuckler. Filmed in 1929 with Douglas Fairbanks as THE IRON MASK.▼

Man in the Iron Mask, The (1998) C-132m.  D: Randall Wallace. Leonardo DiCaprio, Jeremy Irons, John Malkovich, Gérard Depardieu, Gabriel Byrne, Anne Parillaud, Judith Godrèche, Edward Atterton, Peter Sarsgaard, Hugh Laurie. Handsome retelling of the durable Alexandre Dumas tale of a man unjustly imprisoned and encased in an iron mask—because his very existence threatens the reigning king of France, the young, selfish Louis XIV. The fate of both are soon in the hands of the aging but still passionate Musketeers. It would be hard to miss with that cast; the film is quite enjoyable, but it does go on too long. [PG-13]▼●

Man in the Middle (1964-British) 94m.  D: Guy Hamilton. Robert Mitchum, France Nuyen, Barry Sullivan, Keenan Wynn, Alexander Knox, Trevor Howard. Unconvincing, confusing film of Howard Fast novel The Winston Affair, about American military officer accused of homicide; static courtroom sequences. CinemaScope.●

Man in the Moon (1961-British) 98m.  D: Basil Dearden. Kenneth More, Shirley Anne Field, Norman Bird, Michael Hordern, John Phillips. Top comedy satirizing space race. Government recruits man unaffected by cold, heat, speed, etc., to be perfect astronaut.

Man in the Moon, The (1991) C-99m.  D: Robert Mulligan. Sam Waterston, Tess Harper, Gail Strickland, Reese Witherspoon, Jason London, Emily Warfield, Bentley Mitchum, Ernie Lively. Ingratiatingly old-fashioned weeper set in rural Louisiana in 1957, about a 14-year-old girl in love with an older boy, who in turn prefers her college-bound sis. Newcomer Witherspoon is unforgettable as the younger sister—more early adolescent lightning for director Mulligan, who guided TO KILL A MOCKINGBIRD and SUMMER OF '42. Nicely shot by Freddie Francis. Waterston has some effective scenes as the girls' father. Mulligan's last film. [PG-13]▼●●

Man in the Net, The (1959) 97m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Alan Ladd, Carolyn Jones, Diane Brewster, Charles McGraw, John Lupton, Tom Helmore. Fair drama of Ladd trying to clear himself of murder charge for wife's death.

Man in the Shadow (1957) 80m. ½ D: Jack Arnold. Jeff Chandler, Orson Welles, Colleen Miller, James Gleason. Welles chomps his way through role of rancher responsible for helper's death. Chandler is the earnest sheriff. CinemaScope.▼

Man in the White Suit, The (1951-British) 84m. ½ D: Alexander Mackendrick. Alec Guinness, Joan Greenwood, Cecil Parker, Michael Gough, Ernest Thesiger, Vida Hope, George Benson, Edie Martin. Guinness is inventor who discovers a fabric that can't wear out or soil; dismayed garment manufacturers set out to bury his formula. Most engaging comedy. Screenplay by Roger Macdougall, John Dighton, and Mackendrick, from Macdougall's play.▼●●

Man in the Wilderness (1971) C-105m.  D: Richard C. Sarafian. Richard Harris, John Huston, John Bindon, Ben Caruthers, Prunella Ransome, Henry Wilcoxon. Trapper Harris abandoned in wasteland, must fight for survival, and revenge as well. Well-made, engrossing, but bloody film. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Manitou, The (1978) C-104m. BOMB D: William Girdler. Tony Curtis, Susan Strasberg, Michael Ansara, Ann Sothern, Burgess Meredith, Stella Stevens. Long-dead Indian medicine man gets himself resurrected through a fetus on Strasberg's neck. Veterans Curtis, Sothern, and Meredith look properly embarrassed. Based on a novel by Graham Masterson. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Mannequin (1937) 95m. ½ D: Frank Borzage. Joan Crawford, Spencer Tracy, Alan Curtis, Ralph Morgan, Leo Gorcey, Elisabeth Risdon. Prototype rags-to-riches soaper, with working-girl Crawford getting ahead via wealthy Tracy. Predictable script, but nice job by stars, usual MGM gloss (even in the tenements!).▼●●

Mannequin (1987) C-89m. BOMB D: Michael Gottlieb. Andrew McCarthy, Kim Cattrall, Estelle Getty, G. W. Bailey, James Spader, Meshach Taylor, Carole Davis. Cattrall is an ancient Egyptian spirit who embodies a department store mannequin; McCarthy is the only one who sees her come to life, and falls in love with her. Attempt to recreate the feeling of old screwball comedies is absolute rock-bottom fare. Dispiriting to anyone who remembers what movie comedy ought to be. Followed by a sequel. [PG]▼●●

Mannequin Two: On the Move (1991) C-95m. BOMB D: Stewart Raffill. Kristy

Swanson, William Ragsdale, Meshach Taylor, Terry Kiser, Stuart Pankin, Cynthia Harris. This inept sequel to MANNEQUIN makes you think the original was not so bad by comparison. Again, a window dresser (Ragsdale) in a department store frees the spirit of a medieval peasant (Swanson) who has been imprisoned inside a mannequin's form for—quite logically—1,000 years. Torpor ensues. [PG]▼●●

Manny & Lo (1996) C-97m.  D: Lisa Krueger. Scarlett Johansson, Aleksa Palladino, Mary Kay Place, Paul Guilfoyle, Glenn Fitzgerald, Novella Nelson. Orphaned 11-year-old Manny (Johansson) and her more naive 16-year-old sister Lo (Palladino) sleep in model homes and drive about in an old station wagon, until it's obvious Lo is pregnant, so they kidnap prissy Place to help with the delivery while hiding out in a woodsy cabin. Wise, warm comedy-drama is fresh and unexpected; a notable debut for writer-director Krueger. Place is particularly good. [R]▼●●

Man of Aran (1934-British) 73m. * D: Robert Flaherty. Colman (Tiger) King, Maggie Dillane. Superb, classic documentary about day-to-day existence, and constant fight for survival, of fisherman in remote Irish coastal community. Scenes at sea are breathtaking.▼●

Man of a Thousand Faces (1957) 122m. ½ D: Joseph Pevney. James Cagney, Dorothy Malone, Jane Greer, Marjorie Rambeau, Jim Backus, Jeanne Cagney, Robert J. Evans, Roger Smith, Jack Albertson, Snub Pollard. Surprisingly dedicated, well-acted biography of silent star Lon Chaney. Cagney as Chaney, Malone as disturbed first wife, Greer as wife who brings him happiness, are all fine. Chaney's life and career are recreated with taste (if not accuracy). Touching portrayal of movie extra by Rambeau. Ralph Wheelwright's story was adapted by R. Wright Campbell, Ivan Goff, and Ben Roberts. CinemaScope.▼●●

Man of Flowers, A (1984-Australian) C-91m. ½ D: Paul Cox. Norman Kaye, Alyson Best, Chris Haywood, Sarah Walker, Julia Blake, Bob Ellis, Barry Dickins. Kaye, a wealthy flower-loving bachelor with a mother fixation, pays artist's model Best $100 a week to disrobe for him on call. Original but monotonal mix of somberness and silliness; may catch your interest if you're in the right mood. Werner Herzog plays Kaye's father in flashback.▼●●

Man of Iron (1980-Polish) C-152m. ½

D: Andrzej Wajda. Jerzy Radziwilowicz, Krystyna Janda, Marian Opiana. Sequel to MAN OF MARBLE finds documentary filmmaker Janda married to son of the fallen hero whose life she had been researching. Rousing march for Solidarity is not quite up to its predecessor, but two films taken together are as epic in scope as our own GODFATHER sagas. Lech Walesa appears briefly as himself. [PG] ▼●●

Man of La Mancha (1972) C-130m. BOMB D: Arthur Hiller. Peter O'Toole, Sophia Loren, James Coco, Harry Andrews, John Castle. Plodding, abysmal adaptation of Dale Wasserman's popular musical based on Cervantes' Don Quixote, with Joe Darion-Mitch Leigh score. Beautiful source material has been raped, murdered, and buried. [PG] ▼●●

Man of Marble (1977-Polish) C-160m. * D: Andrzej Wajda. Krystyna Janda, Jerzy Radziwilowicz, Tadeusz Lomnicki, Jacek Lomnicki, Krystyna Zachwatowicz. Compelling, controversial, brilliantly directed tale of determined filmmaker Janda retracing the life of Radziwilowicz, naive bricklayer lionized in the 1950s as a worker-hero of the State. Wajda celebrates the role of filmmaker as a speaker of truth; ironically, the film's finale, an explanation of the bricklayer's fate, was excised by the Polish censors. Followed by MAN OF IRON. ▼●

Man of No Importance, A (1994-British) C-98m. ½ D: Suri Krishnamma. Albert Finney, Brenda Fricker, Michael Gambon, Tara Fitzgerald, Rufus Sewell, Patrick Malahide, David Kelly, Mick Lally, Jonathan Rhys-Myer (Meyers). While staging Oscar Wilde's controversial Salome at his local Dublin church, a theater-loving bus conductor examines his repressed sexual feelings—toward both his leading actress and the bus' handsome driver. Initially lightweight comedy-drama gradually becomes more complex, possibly taking on more than it can handle; Finney, however, devours the role with his usual feeling and conviction. Later a stage musical. [R] ▼●●

Man of the Century (1999) 80m.  D: Adam Abraham. Gibson Frazier, Susan Egan, David Margulies, Frank Gorshin, Bobby Short, Anne Jackson, Gary Beach, Marisa Ryan, Lester Lanin. A snappy-talking newspaper reporter named Johnny WENNIES (Frazier) lives in a 1920s world, immersed in its slang, customs, and music, unaware of the realities around him, or the very contemporary sexual longing of his girlfriend (Egan). An obvious labor of love, this somewhat amateurish film has enthusiasm to spare, and some amusing cameos, but one overriding problem: it makes no sense. Written by the director and his star. [R] ▼●●

Man of the House (1995) C-96m.  D: James Orr. Chevy Chase, Farrah Fawcett, Jonathan Taylor Thomas, George Wendt,

David Shiner, Art LaFleur, Richard Portnow. Thomas is the center of attention in this tepid comedy, as the sometimes overbearing son of Fawcett, whom district attorney Chase intends to marry. Stepdad-to-be attempts to ingratiate himself with the boy, who plots to eliminate the man from his mom's life. The humor—what there is of it—is plenty predictable, but kids will probably lap it up. [PG] ▼●●

Man of the House (2005) C-97m. ½ D: Stephen Herek. Tommy Lee Jones, Anne Archer, Cedric the Entertainer, Christina Milian, Paula Garcés, Monica Keena, Vanessa Ferlito, Kelli Garner, R. Lee Erney, Curtis Armstrong, Paget Brewster. Destined to go down in history as the movie in which Jones buys tampons, this lamer-than-lame comedy casts him as a Texas Ranger house-sitting a band of cheerleaders who've witnessed a murder. Though there's potential in the idea of the girls giving Jones a makeover, the actor's dyspeptic facial expression seems to have been exacerbated by reading the script. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Man of the West (1958) C-100m.  D: Anthony Mann. Gary Cooper, Julie London, Lee J. Cobb, Arthur O'Connell, Jack Lord, John Dehner, Royal Dano. Dismissed in 1958, this powerful story deserves another look. Cooper plays a reformed outlaw who is forced to rejoin his ex-boss (Cobb) to save himself and other innocent people from the gang's mistreatment. Strong, epic-scale Western, with script by Reginald Rose. CinemaScope. ▼●

Man of the Year (2006) C-108m.  D: Barry Levinson. Robin Williams, Laura Linney, Christopher Walken, Lewis Black, Jeff Goldblum, Rick Roberts, David Alpay. Glib talk-show host Williams runs for President as a lark, then finds himself elected. The reason: there's a flaw in a new computer voting program, and the firm that created it can't afford to admit the mistake. Linney tries to go public with the information, but only Williams seems to believe her. Muddled mess of a movie tries to be topical, funny, suspenseful, and romantic. Scattered sharp, funny moments can't salvage Levinson's unwieldy screenplay. Various TV personalities and politicians appear as themselves. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Man on a String (1960) 92m.  D: Andre de Toth. Ernest Borgnine, Kerwin Mathews, Colleen Dewhurst, Alexander Scourby, Glenn Corbett. Fictionalized account of counterspy Boris Morros, involved in Russian-U.S. Cold War conflict. Taut action sequences.

Man on a Swing (1974) C-110m. ½ D: Frank Perry. Cliff Robertson, Joel Grey, Dorothy Tristan, Elizabeth Wilson, George Voskovec. Mysterious clairvoyant (Grey) offers to help a cop (Robertson) solve sex-slaying that's been troubling him, but generates more questions than answers. Intriguing idea sadly misses the mark by building up to an unsatisfying conclusion. Based on a true story. [PG]

Man on a Tightrope (1953) 105m. ½ D: Elia Kazan. Fredric March, Gloria Grahame, Terry Moore, Cameron Mitchell, Adolphe Menjou, Richard Boone, Robert Beatty. Passable based-on-fact account of an obscure, downtrodden little circus troupe and its escape from Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia to freedom in Austria. Has its moments, but the characters are far too broadly drawn. Scripted by Robert E. Sherwood.

Man on Fire (2004) C-146m.  D: Tony Scott. Denzel Washington, Dakota Fanning, Marc Anthony, Radha Mitchell, Christopher Walken, Giancarlo Giannini, Rachel Ticotin, Jesus Ochoa, Mickey Rourke. Guilt-ridden military ops veteran Washington is hired as a bodyguard for young Fanning to protect her from the constant threat of kidnapping in Mexico City. After a good first hour the film becomes a vigilante saga, urging us to cheer on the violent deaths of scummy characters who "deserve" it. Told in director Scott's self-indulgent style, with uncomfortable ultra-close-ups, smash cuts with loud sound effects, and handheld grainy shots in the middle of scenes for no reason at all. Too bad. Super 35. [R]▼

Manon of the Spring (1986-French) C-113m.  D: Claude Berri. Yves Montand, Emmanuelle Béart, Daniel Auteuil, Hippolyte Girardot, Elisabeth Depardieu, Gabriel Bacquier. Conclusion of the story begun in JEAN DE FLORETTE resumes with Manon, now a beautiful, free-spirited young shepherdess, learning the truth behind her father's death, and plotting her revenge on the pathetic Auteuil and the scheming Montand. Berri spins his story slowly, deliberately, savoring every moment leading to the unexpected conclusion. Only thing missing in this second half is the strong presence of Gérard Depardieu. Filmed before in 1952 by Marcel Pagnol. Technovision. [PG]▼●●

Man on the Eiffel Tower, The (1949) C-97m.  D: Burgess Meredith. Charles Laughton, Franchot Tone, Burgess Meredith, Robert Hutton, Jean Wallace, Patricia Roc, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Belita. Tiresome adaptation of a Georges Simenon thriller with Laughton as Inspector Maigret and Tone as a madman who thinks he can carry out a perfect crime. Meredith's directorial debut, filmed entirely in Paris. Shot in experimental AnsoColor process; most surviving prints don't look very good.▼

Man on the Flying Trapeze, The (1935) 65m. ½ D: Clyde Bruckman. W. C. Fields, Mary Brian, Kathleen Howard, Grady Sutton, Vera Lewis, Walter Brennan. Hilarious Fieldsonian study in frustration, with able assistance from hardboiled wife Howard, good-for-nothing Sutton. Best sequence has W. C. receiving four traffic tickets in a row!▼

Man on the Moon (1999) C-118m.  D: Milos Forman. Jim Carrey, Danny DeVito, Courtney Love, Paul Giamatti, Vincent Schiavelli, Peter Bonerz, Gerry Becker, Leslie Lyles. The writers of ED WOOD and THE PEOPLE VS. LARRY FLYNT, reteamed with FLYNT director Forman, strike out with this bio of the late comedy performer Andy Kaufman. Carrey perfectly embodies his subject, but it's impossible to get inside Kaufman's head and understand what made him so very, very strange, on-stage and off . . . if indeed it's even worth the effort. Some of Kaufman's real-life acting colleagues appear as themselves. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Man on the Roof (1977-Swedish) C-110m. ½ D: Bo Widerberg. Carl-Gustaf Lindstedt, Hakan Serner, Sven Wollter, Thomas Hellberg. A cop killer is the subject of a Stockholm manhunt in this police film with substance and style. Absorbing for its look at police methodology as well as its suspense and action. Based on the Martin Beck novel by Maj Sjöwall and Per Wahloo (Walter Matthau played Beck in THE LAUGHING POLICEMAN). [R]▼

Man on the Train (2002-French) C-90m.  D: Patrice Leconte. Jean Rochefort, Johnny Hallyday, Jean-François Stevenin, Charlie Nelson, Pascal Parmentier, Isabelle Petit-Jacques. A gun-toting stranger comes to a small town and rooms with a retired schoolteacher; the two men couldn't be more different, but as they get to know each other each one sees in the other qualities he's always longed for in his own life. A minor but entertaining fable that makes the most of its two stars' exceptional screen presence. Super 35. [R]▼

Man on Wire (2008-U.S.-British) C-94m. ½ D: James Marsh. On August 7, 1974, daredevil Philippe Petit made big news as he took a leisurely 45-minute stroll back and forth on a steel cable between New York's World Trade Center towers. Vertiginous documentary, based on Petit's 2002 memoir, To Reach the Clouds, unveils his support crew's rehearsals, subterfuge, and reservations, while questioning the sanity of a gutsy artist whose arrest report provides the title. Literally breathtaking account is all a thriller should be, yet it's real, aside from a few dramatic reenactments and one nutty sex scene. Not for the acrophobic. Oscar winner as Best Documentary. [PG-13]▼

Man Outside (1986) C-109m. *½ D: Mark Stouffer. Robert Logan, Kathleen Quinlan, Bradford Dillman, Levon Helm, Andrew Barach. Why has Logan dropped out and chosen to isolate himself and live off the land in rural Arkansas? Anthropology professor Quinlan decides to find out and promptly falls for him . . . even as he's accused of kidnapping a young boy. Slickly made but obvious, overbaked, and a bore. In addition to Helm, other former members of The Band (Rick Danko, Garth Hudson, Richard Manuel) appear. [PG-13]▼●●

Manpower (1941) 102m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Edward G. Robinson, Marlene Dietrich, George Raft, Alan Hale, Walter Catlett, Frank McHugh, Eve Arden. Lively, typical Warner Bros. film, with nightclub "hostess" Dietrich coming between high-voltage power line workers Robinson and Raft. Scene in a diner is worth the price of admission.

Man-Proof (1938) 74m.  D: Richard Thorpe. Myrna Loy, Franchot Tone, Rosalind Russell, Walter Pidgeon, Nana Bryant, Rita Johnson, Ruth Hussey. Flimsy plot with bright stars: Loy and Russell both love Pidgeon, but Tone is ready to step in any time.

Man Push Cart (2006) C-87m.  D: Ramin Bahrani. Ahmad Razi, Leticia Dolera, Charles Daniel Sandoval, Ali Reza, Farooq "Duke" Muhammad. Pakistani immigrant hauls his food cart into place every morning to sell coffee and snacks to a myriad of New Yorkers. His private life isn't nearly as orderly: he's battling his in-laws for custody of his young son, he's abandoned a once-thriving musical career, and his inner turmoil prevents him from making the most of new contacts and acquaintances. Penetrating character study in which location, looks, and silences tell more than dialogue. Writer-director Bahrani's feature debut. Also Razi's acting debut; he used to work as a pushcart vendor.●

Man's Best Friend (1993) C-97m. ½ D: John Lafia. Ally Sheedy, Lance Henriksen, Robert Costanzo, Fredric Lehne, John Cassini, J. D. Daniels, William Sanderson, Trula Marcus, Rick Barker. Investigative reporter Sheedy rescues big doggy, Max, from scientist Henriksen's vivisection lab . . . but Max is genetically engineered with many odd abilities—and a bad attitude. Modestly clever thriller pushes clichés associated with dogs (mailmen, junkyards, cats) to amusingly violent extremes. Derivative but fun. Written by the director. [R]▼●●

Man's Castle (1933) 69m. ½ D: Frank Borzage. Spencer Tracy, Loretta Young, Marjorie Rambeau, Arthur Hohl, Walter Connolly, Glenda Farrell, Dickie Moore. Typically lovely Borzage romance; penniless Young moves in with shantytown tough-guy Tracy, hoping to develop a real relationship in spite of his reluctance. Tracy's ultra-macho character is a bit tough to stomach at times, but film's enormous heart conquers all, bolstered by appealing performances. Originally released at 75m.

Man's Favorite Sport? (1964) C-120m. ½ D: Howard Hawks. Rock Hudson, Paula Prentiss, John McGiver, Maria Perschy, Roscoe Karns, Charlene Holt. Amusing, often labored variation on Hawks' own BRINGING UP BABY. Fishing "expert" Hudson, who in reality has never fished, is forced to enter big tournament by pushy Prentiss (in her best performance). Loaded with slapstick and sexual innuendo; Norman Alden is hilarious as wisecracking Indian guide.▼●

Mansfield Park (1999-British) C-99m. ½ D: Patricia Rozema. Frances O'Connor, Embeth Davidtz, Jonny Lee Miller, Alessandro Nivola, Harold Pinter, Lindsay Duncan, Sheila Gish. In early 19th-century England, an impoverished girl is sent to live with wealthy relatives. Working as their servant she grows to be an astute, imaginative and surprisingly independent-minded woman. Very loosely based on Jane Austen's novel and personal journals. O'Connor shines as the heroine among a top-notch cast, but story lacks the wit and satirical edge of other Austen adaptations. [PG-13]▼●

Man They Could Not Hang, The (1939) 65m. ½ D: Nick Grinde. Boris Karloff, Lorna Gray, Robert Wilcox, Roger Pryor, Ann Doran. First of series of four Karloff vehicles with basically same plot; hanged man brought back to life seeks revenge on judge, jury, et al. Good of its type.▼●

Man to Remember, A (1938) 80m.  D: Garson Kanin. Anne Shirley, Edward Ellis, Lee Bowman, William Henry, Granville Bates, Harlan Briggs, Frank M. Thomas, Charles Halton, Dickie Jones. Character actor Ellis (who played the title role in THE THIN MAN) is showcased as a selfless doctor with an abundance of commonsense wisdom who spends 20 years serving an often-ungrateful town. Kanin's directorial debut was much praised in 1938 and made this a breakout B movie; it seems dated now, but builds up to an unexpectedly moving finale. Remake of ONE MAN'S JOURNEY (1933).●

Man-Trap (1961) 93m. ½ D: Edmond O'Brien. Jeffrey Hunter, David Janssen, Stella Stevens, Hugh Sanders. Capable cast involved in adultery, robbery and disaster; unusual fling at directing by O'Brien. Panavision.

Man Trouble (1992-U.S.-Italian) C-100m. *½ D: Bob Rafelson. Jack Nicholson, Ellen Barkin, Beverly D'Angelo, Harry Dean Stanton, Michael McKean, Veronica Cartwright, David Clennon, Paul Mazursky, Saul Rubinek, Lauren Tom. Opera singer Barkin is troubled by a frightening break-in and other harassment so she hires guard-dog specialist Nicholson to beef up security.

This mongrel of a screwball comedy consistently misses the target. Particularly disappointing in light of reteaming Nicholson with FIVE EASY PIECES director Rafelson and writer Carole Eastman. Way below par for all concerned. [PG-13]▼●●

Manufactured Landscapes (2007-Canadian) C/B&W-87m.  D: Jennifer Baichwal. Provocative documentary portrait of photographer Edward Burtynsky, who takes stark, stunning images that reflect on how natural landscapes are altered by industrialization while showing the impact that industrial waste is having on the environment and the future of humankind. Well worth watching—and pondering.●

Man Under Suspicion (1984-German) C-126m. ½ D: Norbert Kuckelmann. Maximilian Schell, Lena Stolze, Robert Aldini, Wolfgang Kieling, Kathrin Ackermann, Reinhard Hauff. Lawyer Schell investigates the motives behind a young man's act of violence at a political rally. Provocative subject matter—how the roots of fascism must be destroyed before they are given the opportunity to blossom—but low-keyed to the point of tedium, and much too long, though final twenty minutes are fairly effective.

Man Who Came to Dinner, The (1941) 112m. ½ D: William Keighley. Bette Davis, Ann Sheridan, Monty Woolley, Billie Burke, Jimmy Durante, Richard Travis, Grant Mitchell, Mary Wickes, Elizabeth Fraser, Reginald Gardiner. Acerbic radio commentator Woolley (re-creating his Broadway role) is forced to stay with Burke's Midwestern family for the winter, driving them crazy with assorted wacky friends passing through. Delightful adaptation of George S. Kaufman-Moss Hart play, inspired by the celebrated critic and columnist Alexander Woollcott. Scripted by the Epstein brothers. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Man Who Could Work Miracles, The (1936-British) 82m. ½ D: Lothar Mendes. Roland Young, Ralph Richardson, Edward Chapman, Ernest Thesiger, Joan Gardner, George Zucco, Wallace Lupino, Joan Hickson, George Sanders, Torin Thatcher. H. G. Wells' fantasy of timid British department store clerk (Young) endowed with power to do anything he wants. Special effects are marvelous, supported by good cast, in charming film.▼●●

Man Who Cried, The (2000-British-French) C-100m.  D: Sally Potter. Christina Ricci, Johnny Depp, Cate Blanchett, John Turturro, Harry Dean Stanton, Oleg Yankovskiy, Claudia Lander-Duke. Strange, unsatisfying saga—with a capital S—about a girl separated from her father in 1920s Russia. She grows up in England and winds up in

Paris during the 1930s, where she's taken under the wing of a flamboyant nightclub dancer (Blanchett, almost unrecognizable), pursued by a self-important Italian tenor (Turturro), and charmed by a quiet, self-assured gypsy (Depp) as storm clouds gather over Europe. What's the point? We still don't know. Her costars act rings around a blank-faced Ricci. Written by the director. [R]▼●

Man Who Fell to Earth, The (1976-British) C-140m. ½ D: Nicolas Roeg. David Bowie, Rip Torn, Candy Clark, Buck Henry, Bernie Casey, Jackson D. Kane. Title character ostensibly heads world conglomerate, but is actually here to find water for his planet. Highly original, fabulously photographed adaptation of Walter Tevis' classic fantasy novel is riveting for the first two-thirds, goes downhill toward the end. Still tops of its kind. Originally released in the U.S. at 118m. Remade as 1987 TVM. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Man Who Finally Died, The (1962-British) 100m.  D: Quentin Lawrence. Stanley Baker, Peter Cushing, Mai Zetterling, Eric Portman, Niall MacGinnis, Nigel Green, Barbara Everest. Tepid attempt at Hitchcock-like thriller: Baker returns to German home town and tries to discover what happened to his father during WW2. CinemaScope.

Man Who Had Power Over Women, The (1970-British) C-89m. ½ D: John Krish. Rod Taylor, James Booth, Carol White, Penelope Horner, Charles Korvin, Clive Francis, Magali Noel. Seriocomic satire about an executive with ethics in a London talent agency. Andrew Meredith's script (from the Gordon Williams novel) tends toward overstatement, which a good cast tries to moderate. [R]▼

Man Who Haunted Himself, The (1970-British) C-94m.  D: Basil Dearden. Roger Moore, Hildegard Neil, Alastair Mackenzie, Hugh Mackenzie, Kevork Malikyan. Strange psychological drama about Moore encountering a duplicate of himself in the aftermath of a car crash. Mildly interesting; good location footage of London. [PG]▼●

Man Who Knew Too Little, The (1997) C-94m.  D: Jon Amiel. Bill Murray, Peter Gallagher, Joanne Whalley, Alfred Molina, Richard Wilson, Geraldine James, John Standing, Anna Chancellor, Nicholas Woodson. Curiously flat Murray vehicle about a dolt who visits his brother in England, is signed up for an "interactive theater" experience, but walks instead into the midst of a complex espionage scheme. Murray is game as always, in the kind of situation that used to serve Bob Hope and Danny Kaye so well, but the script lets him down. The title is the funniest part of the picture. [PG]▼●●

Man Who Knew Too Much, The (1934-British) 75m.  D: Alfred Hitchcock. Leslie Banks, Edna Best, Peter Lorre, Nova Pilbeam, Frank Vosper, Pierre Fresnay.

Film buffs argue which version of exciting story is better. We vote this one, with Hitchcock in fine form weaving dry British humor into a story of heart-pounding suspense; young girl is kidnapped to prevent her parents from revealing what they've learned about assassination plot. ▼●●

Man Who Knew Too Much, The (1956) C-120m. ½ D: Alfred Hitchcock. James Stewart, Doris Day, Brenda De Banzie, Bernard Miles, Ralph Truman, Daniel Gelin, Alan Mowbray, Carolyn Jones, Hillary Brooke. Hitchcock's remake of his 1934 film is disappointing. Even famous Albert Hall assassination sequence rings flat in tale of American couple accidentally involved in international intrigue. Doris's "Que Sera, Sera" won Jay Livingston and Ray Evans Best Song Oscar. Composer Bernard Herrmann is conducting orchestra at the climax. VistaVision. ▼●●

Man Who Laughs, The (1928) 110m.  D: Paul Leni. Conrad Veidt, Mary Philbin, Olga Baclanova, Brandon Hurst, Cesare Gravina, Stuart Holmes, Sam De Grasse, George Siegmann, Josephine Crowell. Visually dazzling adaptation of the Victor Hugo novel with Veidt well cast as the title character, a man whose smile has been carved into his face. Because of this freakish look, it's almost impossible for him to express his true feelings, even to the love of his life. More striking than moving, this is typical of the European influence on Hollywood filmmaking at the end of the silent era. ▼●

Man Who Lived Again, The (1936-British) 61m.  D: Robert Stevenson. Boris Karloff, Anna Lee, John Loder, Frank Cellier, Lyn Harding, Cecil Parker. Mad doctor Karloff has been transferring personalities from one monkey to another. How soon will he be experimenting with human subjects? Solid, above-par chiller. Original British title: THE MAN WHO CHANGED HIS MIND. ▼●

Man Who Loved Cat Dancing, The (1973) C-122m.  D: Richard C. Sarafian. Burt Reynolds, Sarah Miles, George Hamilton, Lee J. Cobb, Jack Warden, Bo Hopkins, Robert Donner, Jay Silverheels. Western tale of defiant woman who leaves her husband and takes up riding along with a band of outlaws. Sluggish in spots, but enjoyable; script by Eleanor Perry. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Man Who Loved Women, The (1977-French) C-119m.  D: François Truffaut. Charles Denner, Brigitte Fossey, Nelly Borgeaud, Leslie Caron, Genevieve Fontanel. Charming, sophisticated comedy about a bachelor who is obsessed with women and, it turns out, they with him. To make sense of the fact that he falls in love with almost every woman he meets, he writes his autobiography. Remade in 1983. ▼●●

Man Who Loved Women, The (1983)

C-110m.  D: Blake Edwards. Burt Reynolds, Julie Andrews, Kim Basinger, Marilu Henner, Barry Corbin, Cynthia Sikes, Jennifer Edwards, Tracy Vaccaro. Lackluster, snail's pace remake of the François Truffaut film—minus the climactic revelation that gave the earlier movie its point. Reynolds gives one of his most appealing performances, but spends an eternity discussing his adoration of women with stone-faced psychoanalyst Andrews. Director-writer Edwards gave coscreenplay credit to his own psychiatrist! [R] ▼●●

Man Who Never Was, The (1956-British) C-103m.  D: Ronald Neame. Clifton Webb, Gloria Grahame, Robert Flemyng, Josephine Griffin, Stephen Boyd. Good WW2 spy yarn based on true story of Allies planting elaborate red herring to divert attention from invasion of Sicily. CinemaScope. ▼●

Man Who Played God, The (1932) 81m. ½ D: John G. Adolphi. George Arliss, Bette Davis, Violet Heming, Louise Closser Hale, Donald Cook, Ray Milland. Well-acted tale of musician Arliss going deaf, infatuated student Davis sticking by him. Not as stacy as other Arliss films, with Bette getting her first big break and young Milland in a small role. Remake of Arliss' silent vehicle; later remade as SIN-CERELY YOURS.

Man Who Shot Liberty Valance, The (1962) 123m. * D: John Ford. James Stewart, John Wayne, Vera Miles, Lee Marvin, Edmond O'Brien, Andy Devine, Woody Strode, Jeanette Nolan, Ken Murray, John Qualen, Strother Martin, Lee Van Cleef, John Carradine, Carleton Young. Tenderfoot lawyer Stewart helps civilize the West, but needs help from he-man Wayne to do so. Panned and patronized upon original release, but now regarded as an American classic; one of the great Westerns. Producer Willis Goldbeck and James Warner Bellah adapted Dorothy Johnson's story. ▼●●

Man Who Understood Women, The (1959) C-105m. ½ D: Nunnally Johnson. Leslie Caron, Henry Fonda, Cesare Danova, Myron McCormick, Marcel Dalio, Conrad Nagel. Unsatisfactory narrative of moviemaker genius Fonda who hasn't slightest notion of how to treat wife Caron. CinemaScope.

Man Who Wasn't There, The (1983) C-111m. BOMB D: Bruce Malmuth. Steve Guttenberg, Jeffrey Tambor, Lisa Langlois, Art Hindle, Morgan Hart, Bill Forsythe, Vincent Baggetta. Inept—not to mention inane—invisibility comedy that touted its 3-D effects but offered little in any dimension. Better writing, directing, and acting can be found at a nursery school pageant. Panavision. [R] ▼ ton, Frances McDormand, James Gandolfini, Michael Badalucco, Katherine Borowitz, Jon Polito, Scarlett Johansson, Richard Jenkins, Tony Shalhoub, Adam Alexi-Malle, Christopher McDonald. Exquisitely detailed b&w homage to film noir, and James M. Cain in particular, set in the 1940s. Thornton gives a striking performance as a taciturn small-town barber who gets involved in a crime that snowballs out of control. Unfortunately, the script takes one of those Coen Brothers left turns, changes gears, and goes on much longer than it should. Still, there's incredible production design, Roger Deakins' cinematography, and a gallery of rich, colorful performances to compensate. [R] ▼

Man Who Would Be King, The (1975) C-129m. ½ D: John Huston. Sean Connery, Michael Caine, Christopher Plummer, Saeed Jaffrey, Shakira Caine. Old-fashioned adventure and derring-do from Kipling via Huston: two British soldier-pals try to bamboozle high priests of remote Kafirstan into turning over their riches by convincing them that Connery is a god. Caine and Connery are ideal, script is superb, and film is entertaining, if not quite in the realm of GUNGA DIN. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Man With a Cloak, The (1951) 81m. ½ D: Fletcher Markle. Barbara Stanwyck, Joseph Cotten, Louis Calhern, Leslie Caron, Jim Backus, Margaret Wycherly, Joe DeSantis. Intriguing little mystery, set in 19th-century N.Y.C.; housekeeper Stanwyck plots to kill Calhern for his money and romances Cotten, whose identity is kept secret until the climax. Not bad, with spooky David Rakins score, but having Barbara sing was a mistake.

Man With a Million (1954-British) C-92m.  D: Ronald Neame. Gregory Peck, Jane Griffiths, Ronald Squire, A. E. Matthews, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Reginald Beckwith. Often tedious telling of Mark Twain story "The Million Pound Bank Note," in which penniless American Peck is given the title sum of money on a wager, leading to various complications. Original title: THE MILLION POUND NOTE. Remade as A MILLION TO JUAN.

Man With Bogart's Face, The (1980) C-106m. ½ D: Robert Day. Robert Sacchi, Michelle Phillips, Olivia Hussey, Franco Nero, Misty Rowe, Victor Buono, Herbert Lom, Sybil Danning, Dick Bakalyan, George Raft, Mike Mazurki, Yvonne DeCarlo, Henry Wilcoxon, Victor Sen Yung, Jay Robinson. Offbeat mystery about present-day detective who has plastic surgery to resemble his idol and immediately becomes involved in MALTESE FALCON-esque case. Not really a comedy, although it has its lighter moments; good fun, espe-

Man With Connections, The (1970-French) C-93m. ½ D: Claude Berri. Guy Bedos, Yves Robert, Rosy Varte, Georges Geret, Zorica Lozic. Man With Nine Lives, The (1940) 74m. ½ D: Nick Grinde. Boris Karloff, Roger Pryor, Jo Ann Sayers, Stanley Brown, John Dilson, Hal Taliaferro. Scientist Karloff seeks cure for cancer by freezing bodies in suspended animation. Hokey, but fun when Karloff himself thaws out. Also known as BEHIND THE DOOR. ▼

Man With One Red Shoe, The (1985) C-93m.  D: Stan Dragoti. Tom Hanks, Dabney Coleman, Lori Singer, Charles Durning, Carrie Fisher, Edward Herrmann, Jim Belushi, Irving Metzman, Gerrit Graham, David L. Lander, David Ogden Stiers. Flat remake of THE TALL BLOND MAN WITH ONE BLACK SHOE, about an innocent guy wrongly targeted by CIA types for elimination. Wastes the considerable comic talents of its cast—and doesn't allow leading man Hanks to be funny at all! [PG] ▼

Man Without a Face, The (1993) C-114m.  D: Mel Gibson. Mel Gibson, Nick Stahl, Margaret Whitton, Fay Masterson, Gaby Hoffmann, Geoffrey Lewis, Richard Masur, Michael DeLuise, Ethan Phillips, Jean De Baer, Viva. Literate, absorbing drama exploring the evolving relationship between lonely 12-year-old Stahl, who's intent on gaining entrance to a military academy, and reclusive, facially scarred ex-teacher Gibson, who becomes his mentor. Despite some dramatic lapses, Gibson's directorial debut is more than respectable; he and Stahl offer excellent performances. From Isabelle Holland's novel. [PG-13] ▼

Man Without a Past, The (2002-Finnish-German-French) C-97m. ½ D: Aki Kaurismäki. Markku Peltola, Kati Outinen, Juhani Niemelä, Kaija Pakarinen, Sakari Kuosmanen, Esko Nikkari. After being brutally beaten by muggers upon his arrival in Helsinki and miraculously cheating death, a middle-aged man becomes a penniless amnesiac. Without knowing a single person, "The Man" must try to survive. Existential black comedy contrasts society's emphasis on the importance of identity with the individual and idiosyncratic imprint that makes each of us spiritually unique. Fascinating and funny; written and produced by the prolific Kaurismäki. [PG-13] ▼

Man Without a Star (1955) C-89m.  D: King Vidor. Kirk Douglas, Jeanne Crain, Claire Trevor, Richard Boone, Jay C.

Flippen, William Campbell. Boisterous Western with drifter Douglas befriending young Campbell, tangling with manipulative rancher Crain. Kirk gets to sing and play the banjo in this one. Remade as A MAN CALLED GANNON. ▼

Man With the Balloons, The (1965-Italian-French) 85m.  D: Marco Ferreri. Marcello Mastroianni, Catherine Spaak. Mastroianni plays successful businessman who loses his girl, eventually goes mad because he becomes obsessed with finding out how much air a balloon needs before it bursts. Offbeat idea, to be sure, but result is just plain silly. Panoramica.

Man with the Golden Arm, The (1955) 119m.  D: Otto Preminger. Frank Sinatra, Kim Novak, Eleanor Parker, Darren McGavin, Arnold Stang, Doro Merande. Nelson Algren's novel, the first to win the National Book Award, was presumed to be unfilmable until Preminger ignored and thus busted Hollywood's Production Code. The taboo subject was heroin addiction, and Sinatra's performance is still provocative, especially in the actor's famed gets-the-shakes withdrawal scene. Otherwise, the film (which appears to have been shot on the cheap) has lost some, though hardly all, of its power. Two other landmarks: Saul Bass's trendsetting opening credits and Elmer Bernstein's jazz score, which put the composer on the map. ▼●●

Man With the Golden Gun, The (1974-British) C-125m.  D: Guy Hamilton. Roger Moore, Christopher Lee, Britt Ekland, Maud Adams, Hervé Villechaise, Clifton James, Richard Loo, Marc Lawrence, Bernard Lee, Lois Maxwell, Desmond Llewelyn. Moore's second shot as super agent James Bond is good, gimmicky fun but the actor had one more film to go (THE SPY WHO LOVED ME) before actually growing into the character; Lee is excellent as assassin Scaramanga. Great car stunts, worldwide locales. [PG] ▼●●

Man With Two Brains, The (1983) C-93m.  D: Carl Reiner. Steve Martin, Kathleen Turner, David Warner, Paul Benedict, Richard Brestoff, James Cromwell, George Furth, Randi Brooks. While trapped in a loveless marriage with venal Turner, brilliant surgeon Michael Hfuhruhurr (Martin) falls in love with a brain in a jar (voiced by Sissy Spacek) and immediately starts searching for a new "home" for it. As silly as it sounds, but put your brain in neutral and the laughs are there, particularly the decor

Man, Woman and Child (1983) C-99m.  D: Dick Richards. Martin Sheen, Blythe Danner, Sebastian Dungan, Arlene McIntyre, Missy Francis, Craig T. Nelson, David Hemmings, Nathalie Nell. Unabashed tearjerker (from Erich Segal's book) about a happily married man, with two children, who learns that a brief affair he had with a Frenchwoman 10 years ago produced a son—and that the boy has just been orphaned. Simple, honestly sentimental movie. [PG] ▼●

Manxman, The (1929-British) 90m. ½ D: Alfred Hitchcock. Carl Brisson, Malcolm Keen, Anny Ondra, Randle Ayrton. Fisherman Brisson and lawyer Keen, best friends since childhood, both love Ondra. OK melodrama was Hitchcock's last silent film. ▼

Jason Scott Lee, Anne Parillaud, Patrick Bergin, John Cusack, Robert Joamie, Annie Galipeau, Jeanne Moreau, Ben Mendelson, Clotilde Courau. Fascinating, if not altogether successful, fable about an Inuit Eskimo boy plucked from his Canadian homeland and taken to "civilization" by a mapmaker in the 1930s. The rest of the young man's life unfolds like a strange dream. Director Ward's sometimes hallucinatory images and a mystical atmosphere make this a compelling film to watch even when it falters storywise. Filled with extraordinary performances, including a cameo by the always wonderful Moreau. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Map of the World, A (1999) C-126m.  D: Scott Elliott. Sigourney Weaver, Julianne Moore, David Strathairn, Ron Lea, Arliss Howard, Chloë Sevigny, Louise Fletcher. School nurse Weaver, whose family life is fragmented, observes the world with ironic detachment until she's imprisoned for abusing a student. She regards jail as almost a vacation from her responsibilities, but cannot evade her own memories. Excellent performances, especially by Weaver, enliven this intelligent adaptation of the novel by Jane Hamilton. The middle seems to mark time, but the first third is outstanding. [R] ▼

Mara Maru (1952) 98m. ½ D: Gordon Douglas. Errol Flynn, Ruth Roman, Raymond Burr, Richard Webb, Nestor Paiva. Turgid adventure pits Flynn against Burr as they vie for sunken treasure, with Roman the love interest.

Marathon Man (1976) C-125m. ½ D: John Schlesinger. Dustin Hoffman, Laurence Olivier, Roy Scheider, William Devane, Marthe Keller, Fritz Weaver, Marc Lawrence, Richard Bright. Glossy thriller adapted by William Goldman from his book. Basic premise of graduate student Hoffman propelled into dizzying world of international intrigue spoiled by repellent violence and some gaping story holes. Hoffman and arch-villain Olivier are superb but film doesn't do them justice. [R] ▼●●

Marat/Sade (Persecution and Assassination of Jean-Paul Marat as Performed by the Inmates of the Asylum at Charenton Under the Direction of the Marquis de Sade, The) (1966-British) C-115m. * D: Peter Brook. Patrick Magee, Clifford Rose, Glenda Jackson, Ian Richardson, Brenda Kempner, Ruth Baker, Michael Williams, Freddie Jones. Chilling adaptation of Peter Weiss play about "performance" staged by inmates of French insane asylum, under direction of Marquis de Sade. Lurid atmosphere is so vivid that it seems actors are breathing down your neck; brilliantly directed by Brook. Not for weak stomachs. Screenplay by Adrian Mitchell. ▼●●

Marcello Mastroianni: I Remember, Yes I Remember (1997-Italian) C/B&W-98m.  D: Anna Maria Tatò. Film lovers in general and fans of the late actor in particular should savor this full-bodied documentary portrait, made by Mastroianni's longtime companion, who filmed him not long before his death in 1996. Mastroianni reminisces, jokes, reflects on his career and the directors with whom he worked—and, most tellingly, exudes a love of and passion for life. Originally 199m.; made for Italian television. ▼●

March of the Penguins (2005-French) C-80m.  D: Luc Jacquet. Narrated by Morgan Freeman. Entertaining, beautifully filmed documentary about the journey of the Emperor penguins and their cycle of mating, breeding, and surviving in the unbelievably harsh climate of the Antarctic. A simple story compellingly told, with the title characters an endearing, scrappy, and endlessly photogenic lot. Original 85m. French version had actors providing "voices" for the penguins; the American release (wisely) dropped this, added a new music score by Alex Wurman and Freeman's narration. Stay through the credits to get an idea of the conditions the filmmakers faced. Oscar winner for Best Documentary. [G]●

March or Die (1977) C-104m.  D: Dick Richards. Gene Hackman, Terence Hill, Max von Sydow, Catherine Deneuve, Ian Holm. Homage to French Foreign Legion adventures of filmdom's past. Good cast wages losing battle with static script and walks downheartedly through action scenes. Disappointing epic-that-might-have-been. Additional footage tacked on for network showing. [PG] ▼●

who is forced by circumstance to enter the uptown world of a controversial bad-boy rap star (Wayans). Offers nary a laugh, not to mention some mind-bogglingly tasteless stereotypes. Written by Paul Rudnick. Completed in 2001. [R] ▼●

Marco (1973) C-109m.  D: Seymour Robbie. Desi Arnaz, Jr., Jack Weston, Zero Mostel. Lavish but lumbering musical, filmed on Oriental locations, with Arnaz as young Marco Polo and Mostel as Kublai Khan. Disappointing. [G] ▼●

Marco Polo (1962-Italian) C-90m. ½ D: Hugo Fregonese. Rory Calhoun, Yoko Tani, Robert Hundar, Camillo Pilotto, Pierre Cressoy, Michael Chow. Unspectacular epic about medieval adventurer and his journey to China. Calhoun and film lack needed vigor. CinemaScope.

Marebito (2004-Japanese) C-92m. ½ D: Takashi Shimizu. Shinya Tsukamoto, Tomomi Miyashita, Kazuhiro Nakahara, Miho Ninagawa, Shun Sugata. Freelance video journalist totes his camcorder deep into the Tokyo subway system to solve a grisly suicide. There, the electronic-age Orpheus finds his unlikely Eurydice: a chained-up naked girl. With fangs. He takes her home. Subtitled A STRANGER FROM AFAR, this morbid study of a man who shouldn't have thrown away his Prozac is both a descent into the netherworld and an ascent into the metaphysical. Morose and unsettling, but a mundane resolution drags the disturbing back into the ordinary. Script by Chiaki Konaka, from his novel. [R]●

Margaret Cho: Assassin (2005) C-85m.  D: Kerry Asmussen. Cho's fourth concert film, taped in Washington, D.C., is strictly by-the-numbers, with the comedian offering commentary on gay marriage and animal activists, Martha Stewart and Arnold Schwarzenegger, Ronald Reagan, Zhang Ziyi . . . and Laura and George W. Bush. What once was fresh now seems tired, preachy, and only intermittently funny. Strictly for diehard Cho fans.●

Margaret's Museum (1995-Canadian) C-118m. ½ D: Mort Ransen. Helena Bonham Carter, Kate Nelligan, Clive Russell, Craig Olejnik, Andrea Morris, Peter Boretski, Kenneth Welsh. Bonham Carter is terrific as a maverick who lives in a Nova Scotia mining town that seems to be on the edge of civilization; she despises the mines, which have killed her father and brother and embittered her mother (Nelligan). Then she falls in love with a burly former miner (Russell). Well meaning—with some strong moments—but gloomy and predictable. [R] ▼●

Margie (1946) C-89m.  D: Henry King. Jeanne Crain, Glenn Langan, Lynn Bari, Alan Young, Barbara Lawrence, Conrad Janis, Esther Dale, Hobart Cavanaugh, Ann Todd, Hattie McDaniel. Sweet nostalgia about ultra-sensitive teen (Crain) in 1920s who gets more than a crush on her handsome new French teacher. The manner in which the teacher relates to Margie is innocent enough, but it surely would get him thrown in jail today! Loaded with snippets of period songs ("April Showers," "My Time Is Your Time," the title tune, etc.).

Margin for Error (1943) 74m.  D: Otto Preminger. Joan Bennett, Milton Berle, Otto Preminger, Carl Esmond, Howard Freeman, Ed McNamara. Dated, awkward "comedy" of Jewish cop Berle assigned to guard German consul in N.Y.C. during WW2. Director Preminger should have told actor Preminger to stop overacting.

Margot at the Wedding (2007) C-91m.  D: Noah Baumbach. Nicole Kidman, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Jack Black, John Turturro, Ciarán Hinds, Zane Pais, Flora Cross, Halley Feiffer. Margot (Kidman) hasn't talked to her sister (Leigh) in a long time, but agrees to attend her wedding—to a layabout "artist" (Black)—at the home where they grew up in the Hamptons. Yet from the minute she arrives Margot's poisonous mind, and mouth, take over, with little regard for the turmoil she creates—or the effect it has on her vulnerable, adolescent son. Spending time with this spectacularly neurotic family is no fun at all. Occasional insights and observations can't make up for the lack of story, or the loathsome cast of characters, in Baumbach's Chekhovian comedy-drama. [R] ▮

María Full of Grace (2004-U.S.-Colombian) C-101m. ½ D: Joshua Marston. Catalina Sandino Moreno, Wilson Guerrero, Yenny Paola Vega, Jhon Alex Toro, Jaime Osorio Gómez, Guilied López, Patricia Rae. Exceptional film about a 17-year-old Colombian girl, dissatisfied with her dead-end life, who accepts a job as a "mule," digesting packets of drugs and smuggling them into the U.S. She has no idea what lies in store for her . . . and neither do we. There is no artifice in debuting writer-director Marston's presentation of the story, nor is there a feeling of "acting" in any of the utterly believable performances. A knockout. [R] ▼▮

Marianne and Juliane (1982-German) C-106m. ½ D: Margarethe von Trotta. Jutta Lampe, Barbara Sukowa, Rudiger Vogler, Doris Schade, Franz Rudnick. Profound, multileveled, and memorable chronicle of the relationship between two sisters, alike in some ways yet so very different in others. Juliane (Lampe) is a feminist editor working within the system; Marianne

María's Lovers (1984) C-100m.  D: Andrei Konchalovsky. Nastassia Kinski, John Savage, Robert Mitchum, Keith Carradine, Anita Morris, Bud Cort, Karen Young, Tracy Nelson, John Goodman, Vincent Spano, Bill Smitrovich. Young soldier returns home from WW2, after suffering nervous breakdown, and finds himself unable to consummate his love with new bride. Richly atmospheric film, set in Pennsylvania mining town, has fine performances and other attributes, but is unrelievedly ponderous. Opening sequence cleverly integrates footage from John Huston's famous documentary LET THERE BE LIGHT with newly shot material of Savage. [R] ▼▮

Marie (1985) C-112m.  D: Roger Donaldson. Sissy Spacek, Jeff Daniels, Keith Szarabajka, Morgan Freeman, Fred (Dalton) Thompson, Don Hood, John Cullum. Solid drama about divorcée and mother of three who takes a job in Tennessee state government, then blows the whistle on corruption and finds herself in very hot water. Might be hard to believe if it wasn't true (though knowing the outcome of the case will certainly remove a lot of the suspense). Based on Peter Maas' book; defense attorney Thompson plays himself. J-D-C Scope. [PG-13] ▼

Marie Antoinette (1938) 149m. ½ D: W. S. Van Dyke II. Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power, John Barrymore, Robert Morley, Gladys George, Anita Louise, Joseph Schildkraut. Opulent MGM production of life of 18th-century French queen lacks pace but has good acting, with great performance by Morley as Louis XVI. Shearer captures essence of title role as costumer retells her life from Austrian princess to doomed queen of crumbling empire. ▼●●

Marie Antoinette (1955-French) C-108m. ½ D: Jean Delannoy. Michele Morgan, Richard Todd, Jean Morel. Epic on life of famed 18th-century French queen has marvelous Morgan in title role but lacks perspective and scope.

Marie Antoinette (2006) C-123m. ½ D: Sofia Coppola. Kirsten Dunst, Jason Schwartzman, Judy Davis, Rip Torn, Steve Coogan, Rose Byrne, Asia Argento, Molly Shannon, Shirley Henderson, Danny Huston, Marianne Faithfull, Mary Nighy, Sarah Adler. Visually sumptuous account of a teenager's journey from Vienna to the Palace at Versailles and the throne of France. Writer-director Coppola's Marie (as played by Dunst) is a contemporary girl, with modern music set against the pomp and detail of the 18th-century life in the fast lane. Starts to tire after a while and ends with a whimper, not a bang . . . but there's much to enjoy here. Based on Antonia Fraser's book Marie Antoinette: The Journey. Oscar winner for Costume

Marigold (2007-U.S.-Indian) C-112m.  D: Willard Carroll. Ali Larter, Salman Khan, Nandana Sen, Ian Bohen, Helen Khan, Suchitra Pillai, Shari "Truth Hurts" Watson. Obnoxious grade-Z Hollywood actress ("I don't do 'grateful' very well," she admits) flies to India to make a movie, only to find that the production has fallen apart. Before long she's hired to participate in a Bollywood musical, and a mutual attraction grows between her and the handsome choreographer . . . but he isn't forthcoming about his family background. Opening scenes with Larter are incredibly off-putting; the rest is innocuous but trite. Super 35. [PG-13]

"Marihuana" (1936) 58m. BOMB D: Dwain Esper. Harley Wood, Hugh McArthur, Pat Carlyle, Paul Ellis, Dorothy Dehn, Richard Erskine. Some naive, fun-loving kids puff on the title weed, offered them by a man you know is evil incarnate because he has a mustache, and the result is nude swimming, a drowning . . . and worse! This exploitation fare is almost mind-boggling in its dopiness. And don't forget that it was researched "with the help of federal, state and police narcotic officers." A companion piece to REEFER MADNESS. Originally titled "MARIJUANA"—THE DEVIL'S WEED. VD

Marilyn Hotchkiss' Ballroom Dancing & Charm School (2006) C-103m. * $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Randall Miller. Robert Carlyle, Marisa Tomei, Sean Astin, John Goodman, Mary Steenburgen, Donnie Wahlberg, David Paymer, Camryn Manheim, Adam Arkin, Sonia Braga, Elden Henson, Ernie Hudson, Miguel Sandoval, Danny DeVito, Ian Abercrombie. When a recent widower aids a dying accident victim it sets in motion a quest to find that man's long-lost love at a school reunion. This leads to a ballroom dance school and a dreary, hokey, overly sentimentalized story. Based on Miller's 1990 short film, there's more padding here than in a Wonderbra. Meant to be romantic and moving, but succeeds only in wasting its considerable on-screen talent. Panavision. [PG-13] D

Marine, The (2006) C-93m.  D: John Bonito. John Cena, Robert Patrick, Kelly Carlson, Anthony Ray Parker, Abigail Bianca, Jerome Ehlers, Manu Bennett, Damon Gibson. In South Carolina, fleeing diamond robbers make the mistake of kidnapping the wife (Carlson) of a recently discharged Marine (Cena), who doggedly pursues them down highways and through swamps, despite everything in sight exploding in impressive fireballs. Backed by World Wrestling Entertainment, this didn't turn poker-faced wrestler Cena into a movie star; occasionally lively, jokey throwback to 1980s-style action adventures. Patrick is fun as the sarcastic villain. Also available in unrated version. [PG-13] D

Marines, Let's Go (1961) C-104m. * $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Raoul Walsh. Tom Tryon, David Hedison, Barbara Stuart, William Tyler. Tedium about four soldiers, their comic adventures on leave in Tokyo, and their dramatic encounters on Korean battlefield. CinemaScope.

Marius (1931-French) 125m.  D: Alexander Korda. Raimu, Pierre Fresnay, Charpin, Alida Rouffe, Orane Demazis. Amusing, flavorful if a bit too theatrical satire of provincial life, centering on the love of Marius (Fresnay) for Fanny (Demazis). Raimu is wonderful as Cesar, cafe owner and father of Marius. Screenplay by Marcel Pagnol; first of a trilogy, followed by FANNY and CESAR. All three were the basis of the play and movie FANNY (1961). VD

Marjoe (1972) C-88m.  $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Howard Smith, Sarah Kernochan. Oscar-winning documentary about life of fake evangelist Marjoe Gortner is certainly interesting, but is a little too pleased with itself, a little too pat to be totally convincing. Marjoe himself is likable enough. [PG] VD

Marjorie Morningstar (1958) C-123m.  $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Irving Rapper. Gene Kelly, Natalie Wood, Claire Trevor, Ed Wynn, Everett Sloane, Carolyn Jones, Martin Milner, Martin Balsam, Ruta Lee. Wood is only adequate as Herman Wouk's heroine in tale of N.Y.C. girl aspiring to greatness but ending up a suburban housewife, with Kelly her summer romance. VD

Mark, The (1961-British) 127m.  $\frac{1}{2}$ D: Guy Green. Stuart Whitman, Maria Schell, Rod Steiger, Brenda De Banzie, Maurice Denham, Donald Wolfitt, Paul Rogers, Donald Houston. Whitman is excellent in his portrayal of emotionally broken sex criminal who has served time, now wants to make new start. Thoughtful, well-acted adult drama written by Sidney Buchman and Stanley Mann. CinemaScope. VD

Marked for Death (1990) C-94m.  D: Dwight H. Little. Steven Seagal, Basil Wallace, Keith David, Tom Wright, Joanna Pacula, Elizabeth Gracen, Bette Ford, Danielle Harris, Al Israel, Arlen Dean Snyder, Jimmy Cliff. Familiar, brainless actioner with ex-drug agent Seagal taking on Jamaican dope pushers who've, as the title says, marked him and his family for extinction. Cliff and band appear briefly and perform on soundtrack. Super 35. [R] VD

Marked Woman (1937) 99m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. Bette Davis, Humphrey Bogart, Lola Lane, Isabel Jewell, Jane Bryan, Eduardo Ciannelli, Allen Jenkins, Mayo Methot. Bristling gangster drama of D.A. Bogart convincing Davis and four girlfriends to testify against their boss, underworld king Ciannelli. VD

Mark of the Hawk, The (1957-British)

C-83m.  D: Michael Audley. Eartha Kitt, Sidney Poitier, Juano Hernandez, John McIntire. Unusual tale intelligently acted, set in contemporary Africa, with peaceful vs. violent means for racial equality the main theme. Originally titled AC-CUSED. Aka SHAKA ZULU. SuperScope 235. ▼

Mark of the Renegade, The (1951) C-81m. ½ D: Hugo Fregonese. Ricardo Montalban, Cyd Charisse, J. Carrol Naish, Gilbert Roland, Antonio Moreno, George Tobias, Andrea King, Armando Silvestre, Georgia Backus, Robert Warwick, Robert Cornthwaite. Colorful adventure, based on a story by Zorro creator Johnston McCulley, set in 1820s California, then part of Mexico. Dashing Montalban is sent to Los Angeles, which has been besieged by pirates, on a mission that also requires him to romance the gorgeous Charisse. Forget the plot, just enjoy the cast, gorgeous costumes, Charisse's fiery dance number, and the novelty (for 1951) of a Latino as a leading man.

Mark of the Vampire (1935) 61m.  D: Tod Browning. Lionel Barrymore, Elizabeth Allan, Bela Lugosi, Lionel Atwill, Carol (Carroll) Borland, Jean Hersholt, Donald Meek. Delightful, intriguing tale of vampires terrorizing European village; inspector Atwill, vampire expert Barymore investigate. Beautifully done, with an incredible ending. Remake of Browning's silent LONDON AFTER MIDNIGHT. ▼

Mark of Zorro, The (1940) 93m. ½ D: Rouben Mamoulian. Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Basil Rathbone, Gale Sondergaard, Eugene Pallette, J. Edward Bromberg, Montagu Love. Lavish swashbuckler with Power as son of California aristocrat in 1800s, alternately a foppish dandy and a dashing masked avenger of evil: climactic swordplay with Rathbone a swashbuckling gem. Great score by Alfred Newman. Remade for TV in 1974. ▼

Marlene (1984-German) C/B&W-96m.  D: Maximilian Schell. Utterly, unexpectedly fascinating look at Marlene Dietrich, built on unusual foundation of a tape-recorded interview with Schell that she refused to allow to be filmed! How Schell turns this liability into an asset for the film—just one of its layers—and how Dietrich reveals so much about herself even in her stubborn rejection of basic interview questions, is all part of the film's mystique (and Marlene's). Includes most of her finest moments on screen. ▼

Marley & Me (2008) C-116m.  D:

David Frankel. Owen Wilson, Jennifer Aniston, Eric Dane, Kathleen Turner, Alan Arkin, Nathan Gamble, Haley Bennett, Joyce Van Patten. Sweet film about the life of a rambunctious dog and how he affects a young couple and their growing family. Wilson plays a happily married newspaper reporter whose career takes an unexpected turn when he starts writing a column drawn from his own life. Parents and dog lovers should approach with caution: the movie follows the dog's life to its very end. Based on the autobiographical book by newspaperman John Grogan; screenplay by Scott Frank and Don Roos. Super 35. [PG]

Marlowe (1969) C-95m.  D: Paul Bogart. James Garner, Gayle Hunnicutt, Carroll O'Connor, Rita Moreno, Sharon Farrell, William Daniels, Jackie Coogan, Bruce Lee. Slick updating of Raymond Chandler's The Little Sister with Garner as Philip Marlowe, hired by girl to find missing brother. Really belongs in 1940s, but works fairly well; Moreno memorable as stripper who helps solve case in exciting finale, plus hilarious scene where Lee reduces Marlowe's office to rubble. [MPG] ▼

Marnie (1964) C-129m.  D: Alfred Hitchcock. Sean Connery, Tippi Hedren, Diane Baker, Martin Gabel, Louise Latham, Alan Napier. This story of a habitual thief (Hedren) whose employer (Connery) is determined to understand her illness was considered a misfire in 1964 ... but there's more than meets the eye, especially for Hitchcock buffs. Script by Jay Presson Allen. Look for Bruce Dern, Mariette Hartley, and Melody Scott Thomas in small roles. ▼

Maroc 7 (1967-British) C-91m.  D: Gerry O'Hara. Gene Barry, Elsa Martinelli, Cyd Charisse, Leslie Phillips. Slow robbery-murder tale of secret agent out to catch split-personality thief. Panavision. ▼

Marooned (1969) C-134m.  D: John Sturges. Gregory Peck, Richard Crenna, James Franciscus, David Janssen, Gene Hackman, Lee Grant, Nancy Kovack, Mariette Hartley. Glossy but disappointing story of astronauts unable to return to earth, while space agency head Peck tries to keep lid from blowing off. Alternately boring and excruciating; climactic scenes in space produce agony, not excitement. Oscar-winning special effects are chief asset. Retitled SPACE TRAVELLERS. Panavision. [MPG] ▼

Marquise of O, The (1976-French-German) C-102m.  D: Eric Rohmer. Edith Clever, Bruno Ganz, Peter Luhr, Edda Seippel, Otto Sander. Delicate, disarmingly simple story set in 18th-century Italy; a young widow saved from rape by a Russian soldier during Franco-Prussian war finds herself pregnant some months later, and doesn't understand how. Beautiful period flavor, but film's charm is very low-key. [PG]▼

Marriage-Go-Round, The (1960) C-98m. ½ D: Walter Lang. Susan Hayward, James Mason, Julie Newmar, Robert Paige, June Clayworth. Film version of Leslie Stevens' saucy play about marriage: Mason is professor attracted to free-love-oriented Newmar. Amusing, but lacks real bite. CinemaScope.

Marriage Is a Private Affair (1944) 116m.  D: Robert Z. Leonard. Lana Turner, James Craig, John Hodiak, Frances Gifford, Hugh Marlowe, Keenan Wynn. Somewhat dated, glossy MGM yarn of man-chasing Turner, not about to be stopped just because she's married.

Marriage Italian-Style (1964-Italian) C-102m.  D: Vittorio De Sica. Sophia Loren, Marcello Mastroianni, Aldo Puglisi, Pia Lindstrom, Vito Moriconi, Marilu Tolo. Spicy account of Loren's efforts to get long-time lover Mastroianni to marry her and stay her husband. Based on Eduardo De Filippo's 1946 play Filumena. ▼

Marriage of a Young Stockbroker, The (1971) C-95m. ½ D: Lawrence Turman. Richard Benjamin, Joanna Shimkus, Elizabeth Ashley, Adam West, Patricia Barry, Tiffany Bolling. Humorous and sad depiction of marital breakdown; husband indulges in voyeurism, wife has own problems. Good cast working with script that seems uncertain as to what point it wants to drive across. Director Turman, who'd produced THE GRADUATE, hoped lightning would strike twice with this adaptation of novel by same author, Charles Webb. [PG—edited from original R rating]▼

Marriage of Maria Braun, The (1978-German) C-120m. ½ D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Hanna Schygulla, Ivan Desny, Gottfried John, Klaus Lowitsch, Gisela Uhlen. Schygulla shines in the Joan Crawfordesque role of a penniless soldier's wife who builds an industrial empire after the end of WW2. Riveting; the first of Fassbinder's three parables of postwar Germany, followed by LOLA and VERONIKA VOSS. [R]▼

Marriage on the Rocks (1965) C-109m. ½ D: Jack Donohue. Frank Sinatra, Deborah Kerr, Dean Martin, Cesar Romero, Hermione Baddeley, Tony Bill, Nancy Sinatra, John McGiver, Trini Lopez. Frank and Deborah have marital spat, get quickie Mexican divorce, she ends up married to his best pal, Dino. A waste of real talent. Panavision. ▼

Married Life (2008) C-90m. ½ D: Ira Sachs. Chris Cooper, Patricia Clarkson, Pierce Brosnan, Rachel McAdams, David Wenham, David Richmond-Peck. Successful businessman Cooper tells his best friend (Brosnan) that he plans to leave his wife (Clarkson) and disrupt their apparently happy marriage, because he's found a (younger) woman (McAdams) who truly loves him. He just can't figure out how to break the news to his spouse. Intriguing blend of social commentary, soap opera, and noir-ish melodrama set in 1949 plays like one long pregnant pause; elevated by a quartet of good actors in top form. Adapted from John Bingham's novel Five Roundabouts to Heaven by Sachs and Oren Moverman. [PG-13]▼

Married to It (1993) C-112m.  D: Arthur Hiller. Beau Bridges, Stockard Channing, Robert Sean Leonard, Mary Stuart Masterson, Cybill Shepherd, Ron Silver, Don Franks, Donna Vivino. Several married couples meet in Manhattan and become the unlikeliest of friends. Each spouse manages to embrace several annoyingly bland clichés: yuppie, young newlywed, ex-hippie, bitchy stepmother—you get the picture. Cast of decent actors can't begin to save the pedestrian script. This one sat on the shelf for a couple of years. [R]▼

Married to the Mob (1988) C-103m.  D: Jonathan Demme. Michelle Pfeiffer, Matthew Modine, Dean Stockwell, Mercedes Ruehl, Alec Baldwin, Joan Cusack, Trey Wilson, Charles Napier, Tracey Walter, Al Lewis, Nancy Travis, David Johansen (Buster Poindexter), Chris Isaak, Oliver Platt, Todd Solondz. A woman tries to escape from the Mafia after the death of her hit man husband, only to find that the local boss has the hots for her. Amiable, entertaining farce with right-on performances by Pfeiffer and Stockwell (in a neat comic turn as the mafioso). Only director Demme could make a mob movie with likable characters in it! Score by David Byrne. [R]▼

Married Woman, A (1964-French) 94m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Macha Meril, Philippe Leroy, Bernard Noël. Turgid three-cornered romance, with Meril unable to decide between husband Leroy and lover Noël; then, she finds herself pregnant. Godard narrates this pretentious allegory of middle-class alienation. ▼

Marrying Kind, The (1952) 93m.  D: George Cukor. Judy Holliday, Aldo Ray, Madge Kennedy, Sheila Bond, John Alexander, Rex Williams, Phyllis Povah, Peggy Cass, Mickey Shaughnessy, Griff Barnett. Bittersweet drama of young couple on verge of divorce recalling their life together via flashbacks; sensitive performers outshine talky script—but story and situations haven't dated one bit. ▼

Marrying Man, The (1991) C-115m. ½ D: Jerry Rees. Kim Basinger, Alec Baldwin, Robert Loggia, Elisabeth Shue, Armand Assante, Paul Reiser, Fisher Stevens, Peter Dobson, Gretchen Wyler. Engaged L.A. playboy joyrides with buddies to post-WW2 Las Vegas—and falls for a gorgeous chanteuse who happens to be

Bugsy Siegel's mistress. Neil Simon original was notorious for its on-set hijinks, in-fighting, and star egos, causing just about everyone down to the Key Grip to disown the thing. In truth, the picture's fairly entertaining, with sexy Baldwin and super-sultry Basinger hard to resist. [R]▼●●

Marry Me Again (1953) 73m.  D: Frank Tashlin. Robert Cummings, Marie Wilson, Mary Costa, Jess Barker. Mild shenanigans of aviator Cummings and beauty contest winner Wilson's on-again, off-again romance.

Marry Me, Marry Me (1969-French) C-87m.  D: Claude Berri. Elisabeth Wiener, Regine, Claude Berri, Luisa Colpeyn. Delightful story of love and (what else?) marriage, Berri-style. [M/PG]▼

Mars Attacks! (1996) C-103m. ½ D: Tim Burton. Jack Nicholson, Glenn Close, Annette Bening, Pierce Brosnan, Danny DeVito, Martin Short, Sarah Jessica Parker, Michael J. Fox, Rod Steiger, Tom Jones, Lukas Haas, Natalie Portman, Jim Brown, Pam Grier, Paul Winfield, Sylvia Sydney, Jack Black, Lisa Marie, Joe Don Baker, Christina Applegate, Barbet Schroeder. Overly self-satisfied spoof of '50s alien-invasion movies (and '50s attitudes) has Martians landing in flying saucers. President Nicholson urges calm and reason, but the little guys turn out to be predators . . . nasty ones at that! Great effects and animation (of the Martian characters) but awfully broad and one-note in tone, spoofing something that's already funny in the straight-faced originals of the period. One can't completely dislike a film in which Slim Whitman figures so prominently, however. Inspired by a gum card series of the same name. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Mars Needs Women (1968) C-80m. *½ D: Larry Buchanan. Tommy Kirk, Yvonne Craig, Byron Lord, Roger Ready, Warren Hammack, Anthony Houston. Just as the title suggests, Martians Kirk and four pals, hoping to increase birthrate on their planet, arrive here to capture live women. Strangely sincere but extremely silly and distended. Texas-made film written by the director. Most important revelation: Mars abandoned neckties 50 years ago.▼●●

Martha (1973-West German) C-112m. ½ D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Margit Carstensen, Karlheinz Bohm, Gisela Fackeldey, Adrian Hoven, Peter Chatel. Unsubtle account of spinsterish Carstensen, who has spent her life under the control of her father. He dies and she immediately marries, with disastrous results. Very much of its time, when women were discovering feminism. Cineastes take note: Martha's last name is Heyer (as in Martha Hyer), and she lives on Douglas Sirk Street! First made available in the U.S. in 1994.▶

Martha, Meet Frank, Daniel and Laurence SEE: Very Thought of You, The

Martian Child (2007) C-106m.  D: Menno Meyjes. John Cusack, Bobby Coleman, Amanda Peet, Joan Cusack, Oliver Platt, Anjelica Huston, Sophie Okonedo, Richard Schiff, Howard Hesseman. By turns annoyingly sappy and affectingly sentimental, uneven comedy-drama focuses on the father-son bond that develops between a recently widowed sci-fi author (John Cusack) and an orphaned youngster (Coleman) who claims to be an extraterrestrial. Joan Cusack, John's real-life sibling, offsets the schmaltz with her sassy supporting performance as the writer's sister. Based on David Gerrold's novella. [PG]▶

Martians Go Home (1990) C-89m. *½ D: David Odell. Randy Quaid, Margaret Colin, Anita Morris, Barry Sobel, Vic Dunlop, John Philbin, Gerrit Graham, Ronny Cox, Harry Basil. TV songwriter Quaid accidentally summons a billion green wisecracking Martians to Earth; chaos (limited by the film's low budget) ensues. Fredric Brown's classic sci-fi humor novel misfires on the screen, partly because the pesky Martians are all played by mediocre standup comics. [PG-13]▼●●

Martin (1978) C-95m.  D: George A. Romero. John Amplas, Lincoln Maazel, Christine Forrest, Elayne Nadeau, Tom Savini, Sarah Venable, George A. Romero. Typical Romero mix of social satire and stomach-churning gore: 17-year-old Amplas thinks he's a vampire (lacking fangs, he must resort to razor blades); thanks to his frequent calls to a late-night radio show, he's also something of a local celebrity! Intriguing little shocker is worth seeing, but not right after dinner. [R]▼●●

Martin Lawrence: You So Crazy SEE: You So Crazy

Martin's Day (1984-Canadian) C-98m.  D: Alan Gibson. Richard Harris, Lindsay Wagner, James Coburn, Justin Henry, Karen Black, John Ireland. Utterly ordinary "family film" about escaped prisoner who kidnaps (and ultimately befriends) young boy. Bland and unconvincing. [PG]▼

Marty (1955) 91m. ½ D: Delbert Mann. Ernest Borgnine, Betsy Blair, Joe Mantell, Joe De Santis, Esther Minciotti, Augusta Ciolli, Karen Steele, Jerry Paris, Frank Sutton. Borgnine shines as a Bronx butcher who unexpectedly finds love. Paddy Chayefsky adapted his TV play for the screen. Oscar winner for Borgnine, Chayefsky, Mann, and Best Picture. Some prints include a scene with Blair and her parents

that's inexplicably missing from other versions. ▼●●

Marvin and Tige (1983) C-104m. ½ D: Eric Weston. John Cassavetes, Gibran Brown, Billy Dee Williams, Denise Nicholas Hill, Fay Hauser. Tearjerker about a loser (Cassavetes) who takes in an aimless 11-year-old (Brown) who tried to kill himself. Well acted, and well intentioned, but pretty standard stuff. Aka LIKE FATHER AND SON, running 109m. [PG]▼

Marvin's Room (1996) C-98m. ½ D: Jerry Zaks. Meryl Streep, Leonardo DiCaprio, Diane Keaton, Robert De Niro, Hume Cronyn, Gwen Verdon, Dan Hedaya, Hal Scardino, Victor Garber. Affecting adaptation of Scott McPherson's Off-Broadway play about a woman who's devoted her adult life to caring for her stroke-ridden father and a dithery aunt; now she must call on her long-estranged sister and nephews to help out in her own health emergency. A poignant and pointed look at family ties, old wounds, love, and responsibility, with uniformly fine performances. Cronyn adds immeasurable strength, though he says not a word. Rachel Portman's beautiful score is another asset. Broadway director Zaks' film debut. [PG-13]▼●●

Marx Brothers Go West SEE: Go West

Maryjane (1968) C-96m. *½ D: Maury Dexter. Fabian, Diane McBain, Michael Margotta, Kevin Coughlin, Patty McCormack, Terri (Teri) Garr. 1960s version of REEFER MADNESS casts Fabian as high school art teacher who tries to keep his students from smoking grass; terrible, but may play better if you're stoned. Look quickly for Garry Marshall and the film's cowriters, Dick Gautier and Peter Marshall.

Mary, Mary (1963) C-126m. ½ D: Mervyn LeRoy. Debbie Reynolds, Barry Nelson, Michael Rennie, Diane McBain, Hiram Sherman. Unremarkable, stagy adaptation of Jean Kerr's sex comedy about divorced couple trying to screw up each other's new romances. Stick with THE AWFUL TRUTH.

Mary of Scotland (1936) 123m. ½ D: John Ford. Katharine Hepburn, Fredric March, Florence Eldridge, Douglas Walton, Moroni Olsen, John Carradine, Robert Barrat, Ian Keith, Ralph Forbes, Alan Mowbray, Donald Crisp. Lavish historical drama in which Mary, Queen of Scots (Hepburn), returns to her homeland from France, to rule "fairly and justly." She falls in love with lord March and contends with various treacheries. Based on a play by Maxwell Anderson. ▼●●

Dotrice, Matthew Garber, Arthur Treacher, Reginald Owen. There's charm, wit, and movie magic to spare in Walt Disney's adaptation of P. L. Travers' book about a "practically perfect" nanny who brings profound change to the Banks family of London, circa 1910. Oscars went to Richard and Robert Sherman for their tuneful score, the song "Chim-Chim-Cheree," the formidable Visual Effects team, Cotton Warburton for his editing, and Andrews, in her film debut (though Van Dyke is equally good as Bert, the whimsical jack of all trades). That's Jane Darwell, in her last screen appearance, as the bird lady. A wonderful movie. Scripted by co-producer Bill Walsh and Donald Da Gradi. Adapted for the stage in 2004. ▼●●

Mary, Queen of Scots (1971) C-128m.  D: Charles Jarrott. Vanessa Redgrave, Glenda Jackson, Patrick McGoohan, Timothy Dalton, Nigel Davenport, Trevor Howard, Daniel Massey, Ian Holm. Inaccurate history lesson but good costume drama, with strong performances from Redgrave as Mary, Jackson as Queen Elizabeth, rivals for power in Tudor England. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Mary Reilly (1996) C-108m. ½ D: Stephen Frears. Julia Roberts, John Malkovich, Glenn Close, George Cole, Michael Gambon, Kathy Staff, Michael Sheen, Bronagh Gallagher, Linda Bassett, Ciarán Hinds. Intriguing premise: the story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde from the point of view of a housemaid in his employ. Unfortunately, this chamber drama is played out in ponderous fashion and almost sinks under its own weight, despite the interesting performances by its stars. (Admittedly, Roberts' Irish accent comes and goes at whim.) Close is fun in a flamboyant part as a madam. Screenplay by Christopher Hampton from the novel by Valerie Martin. [R]▼●●

Mary Shelley's Frankenstein (1994) C-128m.  D: Kenneth Branagh. Robert De Niro, Kenneth Branagh, Tom Hulce, Helena Bonham Carter, Aidan Quinn, Ian Holm, Richard Briers, John Cleese, Robert Hardy, Cherie Lunghi. Hugely disappointing, "faithful" rendition of the Frankenstein saga. Energetic to a fault, with a camera that refuses to stand still. Branagh allows us to understand what makes Dr. F. tick, but the story goes askew once his creation is unleashed. Further encumbered by story framework with sea captain Quinn. De Niro's monster remains doggedly De Niro-ish, and makes one yearn for Karloff. (Even Peter Boyle would do.) [R]▼●●

Ma Saison Préférée (1993-French) C-124m.  D: André Téchiné. Catherine Deneuve, Daniel Auteuil, Marthe Villalonga, Jean-Pierre Bouvier, Chiara Mastroianni, Carmen Chaplin, Anthony Prada. Story of intertwining relationships, and more interestingly, familial bonds and duties. Deneuve (married, with successful small business but stress at home) and eccentric brother Auteuil (a bachelor and neurosurgeon) make realistic, offbeat leads as adults trying to understand and enjoy life. Deneuve and Marcello Mastroianni's real-life daughter, Chiara, makes her film debut, playing Deneuve's daughter. Talky, but worthwhile. Panavision. ▼●●

Masculine-Feminine (1966-French-Swedish) 103m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Jean-Pierre Léaud, Chantal Goya, Marlene Jobert, Michel Debord, Catherine-Isabelle Dupont, Eva-Britt Strandberg, Brigitte Bardot. Engaging, original concoction mixes politics, sex, comedy, nostalgia with standard boy-meets-girl theme. Interviewer/journalist Léaud has affair with would-be rock star singer Goya; they're Godard's "children of Marx and Coca-Cola." Adapted, oddly enough, from a Guy de Maupassant story! ▼●

MASH (1970) C-116m. * D: Robert Altman. Donald Sutherland, Elliott Gould, Tom Skerritt, Sally Kellerman, Robert Duvall, Jo Ann Pflug, Rene Auberjonois, Roger Bowen, Gary Burghoff, Fred Williamson, John Schuck, Bud Cort, G. Wood. Altman's first major success gave new meaning to the word "irreverence," set new style for contemporary filmmaking; follows black-comedy exploits of wild and woolly medical unit during Korean War in hilarious, episodic fashion. Oscar-winning screenplay by Ring Lardner, Jr.; reissued in 1973 at 112m., with new title music by Ahmad Jamal. Later a hit TV series (*M*A*S*H*). Panavision. [PG—edited from original R rating] ▼●●

Mask, The (1961-Canadian) 83m. *½ D: Julian Roffman. Paul Stevens, Claudette Nevins, Bill Walker, Anne Collings, Martin Lavut, Jim Moran. Low-budget shocker about an ancient Aztec mask that causes wearer to hallucinate and murder. 3-D scenes were put together by famed montage expert Slavko Vorkapich. Retitled EYES OF HELL. ▼●●

Mask (1985) C-120m. ½ D: Peter Bogdanovich. Cher, Sam Elliott, Eric Stoltz, Estelle Getty, Richard Dysart, Laura Dern, Harry Carey, Jr., Lawrence Monson, Marsha Warfield, Barry Tubb, Andrew Robinson. Irresistible film based on true story of Rocky Dennis, teenage boy whose face has been terribly disfigured by a rare disease, and his mother Rusty, who's instilled a sense of confidence and love in her son, though her own defenses are easily broken down. Anna Hamilton Phelan's script dodges cliché, while Cher and Stoltz make their characters warm and real. A winner. Director's cut runs 127m. [PG-13] ▼●●

Mask, The (1988-Italian) C-90m. *½ D:

Fiorella Infascelli. Helena Bonham Carter, Michael Maloney, Feodor Chaliapin, Roberto Herlitzka. Trivial, dull account of self-centered count's son who becomes obsessed with pretty young actress Carter. She's put off by him, so he woos her by donning various masks and changing his identity. Extremely slow-moving.

Mask, The (1994) C-101m. ½ D: Charles Russell. Jim Carrey, Cameron Diaz, Peter Riegert, Peter Greene, Amy Yasbeck, Richard Jeni, Orestes Matacena, Timothy Bagley, Nancy Fish, Ben Stein. A wimpy bank clerk discovers a mask that turns him into a sizzling Superdude who acts out his alter ego's fantasies. Pretty entertaining, though it's seamier (and more violent) than it needs to be, and has some real lulls during its plotter moments. The already rubber-faced Carrey is aided and abetted by stunning digital computer effects, inspired by the manic 1940s cartoons of Tex Avery. Based on the comic book. Followed by SON OF THE MASK and an animated TV series. Also available in PG version. [PG-13] ▼●●

Masked and Anonymous (2003-U.S.-British) C-112m. *½ D: Larry Charles. Bob Dylan, Jeff Bridges, Penélope Cruz, John Goodman, Jessica Lange, Luke Wilson. A faded music legend is freed from jail to headline a televised benefit concert. Dylan and Charles (using pseudonyms) penned this misfire, set in a fictional America that's become a police state. Shaggy storytelling, Dylan's nonperformance, and an air of pomposity do this in. Angela Bassett, Bruce Dern, Ed Harris, Val Kilmer, Cheech Marin, Chris Penn, Giovanni Ribisi, Mickey Rourke, Christian Slater, and Fred Ward are among those who appear in cameos. [PG-13] ▼●

Mask of Diijon, The (1946) 73m.  D: Lewis Landers. Erich von Stroheim, Jeanne Bates, Denise Vernac, William Wright, Edward Van Sloan. Stroheim is hypnotist who has delusions of grandeur, and schemes to commit murder; exciting finish. ▼●

Mask of Dimitrios, The (1944) 95m.  D: Jean Negulesco. Peter Lorre, Sydney Greenstreet, Zachary Scott, Faye Emerson, Victor Francen, George Tobias, Steve Geray, Eduardo Ciannelli, Florence Bates. Fine, off-beat melodrama with mild-mannered mystery writer Lorre reviewing life of notorious scoundrel Scott (in film debut). Frank Gruber adapted Eric Ambler's novel A Coffin for Dimitrios. As always, Lorre and Greenstreet make a marvelous team. ▼

Mask of Fu Manchu, The (1932) 68m. ½ D: Charles Brabin. Boris Karloff, Lewis Stone, Karen Morley, Myrna Loy, Charles Starrett, Jean Hersholt. Elaborate chiller of Chinese madman Karloff menacing expedition searching for tomb of Genghis Khan. Adaptation of Sax Rohmer novel is ornate and hokey, but fun; Loy is terrific as Fu's deliciously evil daughter.

Mask of Zorro, The (1998) C-136m.  D: Martin Campbell. Antonio Banderas, Anthony Hopkins, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Stuart Wilson, Matt Letscher, Maury Chaykin, Tony Amendola, Pedro Armendariz, L.Q. Jones, Victor Rivers. An aging Zorro passes the mantle of public protector to a younger man, who's reluctant at first but soon relishes his secret identity with cape and sword. Exquisite, exciting, with great swordplay and horse action—but has too much of everything, as if the filmmakers want to wear you out. Banderas is an ideal Zorro, Hopkins a surprisingly engaging one, Zeta-Jones a saucy and beautiful heroine. Followed by THE LEGEND OF ZORRO. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Masque of the Red Death, The (1964) C-86m. ½ D: Roger Corman. Vincent Price, Hazel Court, Jane Asher, David Weston, Patrick Magee, Skip Martin, Nigel Green, John Westbrook. The most Bergman-like of Corman's films, an ultra-stylish adaptation of the Poe tale (with another, Hop Frog, worked in as a subplot), starring Price as evil Prince Prospero, living it up in eerie, timeless castle while Plague ravages the countryside. Beautifully photographed in England by Nicolas Roeg. Remade in 1989. Panavision.▼●●

Masque of the Red Death (1989) C-83m.  D: Larry Brand. Adrian Paul, Clare Hoak, Jeff Osterhage, Patrick Macnee, Tracy Reiner. Roger Corman produced this remake of one of his best films. Poe's Prince Prospero (Paul) is still dissipated, but this time more thoughtful and troubled. Despite an interesting approach to figure of the Red Death and literate (if talky) script, overall cheapness and very slow pace cripple this medieval melodrama. [R]▼

Masquerade (1988) C-91m. ½ D: Bob Swaim. Rob Lowe, Meg Tilly, Kim Cattrall, Doug Savant, John Glover, Dana Delany, Erik Holland. Lowe essentially has the ambiguous Cary Grant SUSPICION role: Does he really love delicate (and in this case, filthy rich) spouse Tilly—or is he planning to murder her at the first opportunity? Romantic suspense thriller has its moments, and might have had more with a better leading man. Merely OK, with Tilly, Glover, Delany and lovely Hamptons scenery offering compensation. [R]▼●●

 D: Renee Daalder. Derrel Maury, Andrew Stevens, Kimberly Beck, Robert Carradine, Roy Underwood, Steve Bond. Newcomer to California high school doesn't like the way students are being terrorized by a gang, so he decides to eliminate them, in ultra-violent fashion . . . but that's not the end of the story. Seemingly typical blend of teen and revenge formulas given offbeat twists by writer-director Daalder. [R]▼

Massacre in Rome (1973-French-Italian) C-103m.  D: George Pan Cosmatos. Richard Burton, Marcello Mastroianni, Leo McKern, John Steiner, Anthony Steel. Good drama: priest Mastroianni opposed to idealistic German Colonel Burton, who must execute 330 Roman hostages in retaliation for deaths of 33 Nazi soldiers. [PG]▼●

Massacre Mansion SEE: Nesting, The

Mass Appeal (1984) C-100m.  D: Glenn Jordan. Jack Lemmon, Zeljko Ivanek, Charles Durning, Louise Latham, Lois de Banzie, James Ray, Talia Balsam, Gloria Stuart. Feisty young seminarian rattles the complacency of a popular parish priest in this entertaining filmization of Bill C. Davis' glib Broadway play. Lemmon is first-rate as usual, and though film believes its stage origins it still works fine. [PG]▼●

Master and Commander: The Far Side of the World (2003) C-139m.  D: Peter Weir. Russell Crowe, Paul Bettany, Billy Boyd, James D'Arcy, Lee Ingleby, George Innes, Mark Lewis Jones, Chris Larkin, Richard McCabe, Robert Pugh, David Threlfall. Lavish adaptation of Patrick O'Brian's series of naval novels, with Crowe as British Captain Jack Aubrey of the HMS Surprise against a dangerous enemy during the Napoleonic era. Heavier on atmosphere than on story, but Crowe is an ideal commander, the human element is nicely played, and the physical production is impressive. Screenplay by Weir and John Collee. Oscar winner for Best Cinematography (Russell Boyd) and Sound Editing. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Master Gunfighter, The (1975) C-121m. BOMB D: Frank Laughlin. Tom Laughlin, Ron O'Neal, Lincoln Kilpatrick, Geo Anne Sosa, Barbara Carrera, Victor Campos. BILLY JACK'S creator-star is an intense gunfighter who hates to kill but does it just the same. Lots of rhetoric. Remake of a 1969 Japanese samurai film, GOYOKIN. Panavision. [PG]▼●

Mastermind (1976) C-131m.  D: Alex March. Zero Mostel, Bradford Dillman, Keiko Kishi, Gawn Grainger, Herbert Berghof, Jules Munshin, Sorrell Booke. Enjoyable spoof of Charlie Chan films with Mostel as Inspector Hoku, who tries to protect robot-like invention sought by international interests. Some good slapstick, rousing car chase. Received limited release after sitting on shelf since 1969. [G]▼

Masterminds (1997) C-105m. *½ D: Roger Christian. Patrick Stewart, Vincent Kartheiser, Brenda Fricker, Brad Whitford, Matt Craven, Annabelle Gurwirth. High-tech action/adventure yarn finds evil genius Stewart taking over an exclusive private school for ransom, but former student and computer whiz kid Kartheiser stands in his way. Kids might find the attitude-driven script harmless fantasy, but adults may cringe watching this DIE HARD for preteens. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Master of Ballantrae, The (1953) C-89m. ½ D: William Keighley. Errol Flynn, Roger Livesey, Anthony Steel, Yvonne Furneaux. Robert Louis Stevenson's historical yarn has Flynn involved in plot to make Bonnie Prince Charles king of England; on-location filming in Scotland, Sicily, and England adds scope to costumer. Remade for TV in 1984. ▼●●

Master of Disguise, The (2002) C-80m. *½ D: Perry Andelin Blake. Dana Carvey, Brent Spiner, Jennifer Esposito, Harold Gould, James Brolin, Maria Canals, Mark Devine, Edie McClurg, Austin Wolff. Simpleminded Italian waiter named Pistachio Disguisey must rescue his kidnapped parents from a super-criminal after learning that he's descended from a long line of secret agent-type disguise masters. Purportedly aimed at little kids, yet packed with spoofs of SCARFACE, THE EXORCIST, and other grown-up movies. Silly, fart-filled, often embarrassingly unfunny pretext for Carvey (who also cowrote) to do goofy impersonations and act like an imbecile. Cameos include Bo Derek, Jesse Ventura, and Kevin Nealon. [PG]▼

Master of the World (1961) C-104m.  D: William Witney. Vincent Price, Charles Bronson, Mary Webster, Henry Hull, Richard Harrison. Sci-fi adventure adapted from two Jules Verne novels about a 19th-century genius (Price) seeking to stop war from his ingenious flying machine, a cross between a zeppelin and a helicopter. Bronson (oddly cast) admires his ends, deplors his methods, and sets out to stop him. Very well done. Screenplay by Richard Matheson. ▼●

Masters of the Universe (1987) C-106m.  D: Gary Goddard. Dolph Lundgren, Frank Langella, Courteney Cox, James Tolkan, Meg Foster, Christina Pickles, Billy Barty, Jon Cypher. He-Man (Lundgren) comes to Earth seeking a key that controls the power of the universe, stolen by cosmic crud Skeletor (unrecognizable Langella); somehow two teen puppy-lovers get involved. Elaborate comic book nonsense (which has had another life in kiddie animation) is dumb but inoffensive. [PG]▼●●

Master Touch, The (1973-Italian-German) C-96m.  D: Michele Lupo. Kirk Douglas, Florida Bolkan, Giuliano Gemma, Rene Koldehoff. Safecracker Douglas, just out of jail, attempts to trip up a foolproof alarm and rip off a safe for $1 million. Deaden- ing. Techniscope. [PG]▼

Matador (1986-Spanish) C-106m.  D: Pedro Almodóvar. Assumpta Serna, Antonio Banderas, Nacho Martínez, Carmen Maura, Eva Cobo, Julieta Serrano, Chus Lampreave. Dazzling black comedy chronicles plight of retired matador Martínez, passing time by compulsively watching snuff films—and his young, troubled protégé (Banderas). Opening sequence is a real stunner. ▼●●

Matador, The (2005) C-97m.  D: Richard Shepard. Pierce Brosnan, Greg Kinnear, Hope Davis, Philip Baker Hall, Dylan Baker, Adam Scott. Amusing black comedy/character study about a paid assassin who strikes up an acquaintance with a straitlaced American businessman while on assignment in Mexico. The two men couldn't be more different, but at a moment of crisis, the hit man realizes that the square is in fact his only friend. Low-key from start to finish, but sharply defined performances by Brosnan, Kinnear, and Davis and Shepard's offbeat script make this worth watching. Super 35. [R]●

Mata Hari (1932) 90m.  D: George Fitzmaurice. Greta Garbo, Ramon Novarro, Lionel Barrymore, Lewis Stone, C. Henry Gordon, Karen Morley. Garbo is the alluring spy of WWI, beguiling everyone from Novarro to Barrymore. Highlights: Garbo's exotic dance sequence, Morley stalked by gang executioner. That's an unbilled Mischa Auer in opening scene as condemned man who won't betray Garbo's love. ▼●●

Match Factory Girl, The (1990-Finnish) C-70m.  D: Aki Kaurismäki. Kati Outinen, Elina Salo, Esko Nikkari, Vesa Vierikko. A drab, oppressed young woman allows herself to fall for the wrong man; he unceremoniously dumps her, but her reaction is anything but passive. Clever, ironic pitch-black comedy from prolific Kaurismäki. ▼●

Matchmaker, The (1958) 101m.  D: Joseph Anthony. Shirley Booth, Anthony Perkins, Shirley MacLaine, Paul Ford, Robert Morse, Wallace Ford. Endering Thornton Wilder comedy about middle-aged widower deciding to re-wed... but the matchmaker he consults has plans of her own. Solid performances, fine period detail; later musicalized as HELLO, DOLLY! VistaVision. ▼●●

Matchmaker, The (1997-U.S.-Irish) C-96m.  D: Mark Joffe. Janeane Garofalo, David O'Hara, Milo O'Shea, Denis Leary, Jay O. Sanders, Rosaleen Linehan, Paul Hickey, Maria Doyle Kennedy, Robert Mandan. Cute comedy about a campaign worker for a less than exemplary U.S. Senator from Massachusetts, who's given the job of tracing his relatives to a small village in Ireland and setting up a photo opportunity to entice the state's Irish-American vote. Garofalo arrives in the remote village during its annual matchmaking festival and, despite everything, gets caught up in a relationship. Fanciful, rather than realistic, but entertaining. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Match Point (2005-U.S.-British) C-124m.  D: Woody Allen. Jonathan Rhys Meyers, Scarlett Johansson, Emily Mortimer, Matthew Goode, Brian Cox, Penelope Wilton, Ewen Bremner, James Nesbitt, Rupert Penry-Jones, Margaret Tyzack. Dramatic effort from Allen about an ambitious young tennis coach in London who gets involved with the daughter of a prominent family as well as a sexy American actress, with consequences that no one—he least of all—can foresee. Dark examination of chance and fate covers familiar ground, but Allen responds to the fresh British milieu with some of his most urgent and (surprisingly) passionate filmmaking. Echoes of Crime and Punishment and An American Tragedy abound. [R]●

Matchstick Men (2003) C-116m.  D: Ridley Scott. Nicolas Cage, Sam Rockwell, Alison Lohman, Bruce Altman, Bruce McGill, Sheila Kelley, Beth Grant. Phobic con artist discovers he has a teenage daughter, which casts a new light on his work, his relationship with his protégé-partner, and his life in general. Lively, engaging yarn with pinpoint performances and a nice eye for detail, though it goes on a bit longer than it should . . . and then pulls the rug out. Inventive score by Hans Zimmer and great use of source music, too. Based on the novel by Eric Garcia. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Material Girls (2006) C-97m.  D: Martha Coolidge. Hilary Duff, Haylie Duff, Maria Conchita Alonso, Anjelica Huston, Brent Spiner, Lukas Haas, Marcus Coloma, Obba Babatundé, Colleen Camp, Judy Tenuta. Two spoiled cosmetics industry heiresses lose their money after a controversy involving face cream and a disfiguring skin disease. Forced to suffer indignities like riding the bus and wearing last year's fashions, they eventually learn the value of hard work and fight to reclaim their company's reputation. This movie glorifies "the high life" while praising its heroines for transcending it. Filled with absurdities, but fast paced, colorful, and painless. Super 35. [PG]●

Matewan (1987) C-130m. ½ D: John Sayles. Chris Cooper, Will Oldham, Mary McDonnell, Bob Gunton, James Earl Jones, Kevin Tighe, Gordon Clapp, Josh Mostel, Joe Grifasi, Maggie Renzi, David Strathairn. Compelling and compassionate drama about labor troubles in the heart of coal-mining country, Matewan, West Virginia, in the 1920s. As usual, writer-director Sayles (who appears briefly as a preacher) makes

every note ring true in this meticulous period piece; he even cowrote some phony labor songs! Beautifully photographed by Haskell Wexler. [PG-13] ▼●●

Matilda (1978) C-103m. BOMB D: Daniel Mann. Elliott Gould, Robert Mitchum, Harry Guardino, Clive Revill, Karen Carlson, Lionel Stander, Larry Pennell, Art Metrano. Good cast wasted in awful kiddie pic about a boxing kangaroo, played by a man in a suit (Gary Morgan). Paul Gallico's novel loses everything in translation. [G]▼

Matilda (1996) C-93m. ½ D: Danny DeVito. Danny DeVito, Rhea Perlman, Embeth Davidtz, Pam Ferris, Mara Wilson, Paul Reubens, Tracey Walter, Miami Davael. Cursed with a cretinous family and a witch of a school principal, a bright young girl learns self-reliance—and develops unusual powers. Wilson's irresistible charm anchors this very black comedy from the book by Roald Dahl. The bizarre goings-on, and the strange sensibilities, may play better on the printed page (and in a reader's imagination) than they do when acted out literally on-screen. Anne Ramsey being dead, DeVito had to find another harpy—in this case the furious Ferris. Jon Lovitz appears unbilled; DeVito narrates. Super 35. [PG] ▼●●

Matinee Idol, The (1928) 56m.  D: Frank Capra. Johnnie Walker, Bessie Love, Lionel Belmore, Ernest Hilliard, Sidney D'Albrook. Delightful farce about Broadway star Walker who, while stranded in the country, appears incognito in Love's local play, then brings her amateur theater group to N.Y. to put on a hilariously bad Civil War show. Long-lost Capra silent is an expert mixture of comedy, romance, and sentiment. ▼●

Mating Game, The (1959) C-96m.  D: George Marshall. Debbie Reynolds, Tony Randall, Paul Douglas, Fred Clark, Una Merkel, Philip Ober, Charles Lane. Zippy comedy romp of tax agent Randall falling in love with farm girl Reynolds, with Douglas rambunctious as Debbie's father. CinemaScope. ▼●

Mating Season, The (1951) 101m. ½

D: Mitchell Leisen. Gene Tierney, John Lund, Miriam Hopkins, Thelma Ritter, Jan Sterling, Larry Keating, James Lorimer. Excellent, underrated comedy with cynical undertones about the American dream. Hardworking Lund marries socialite Tierney, suffers embarrassment when his plain-talking mother (Ritter) comes to town and is mistaken for servant. Ritter is simply superb. Written by Walter Reisch, Richard Breen, and producer Charles Brackett.

Matrix, The (1999) C-136m. ½ D: The Wachowski Brothers. Keanu Reeves, Laurence Fishburne, Carrie-Anne Moss, Hugo Weaving, Gloria Foster, Joe Pantoliano, Marcus Chong. A computer hacker (Reeves) discovers the world he is living in is an illusion maintained by computers that have taken over the world . . . and he is thought to be "the chosen one" to save humanity. Cutting-edge visuals and production design compete with an overlong script, written by the directors, that's got a high MJQ (Mumbo-Jumbo Quotient), and a tendency to keep changing its own complicated "rules." Martial arts scenes staged by Yuen Wo Ping are highlights. Oscar winner for Film Editing, Sound, Sound Effects Editing, and Visual Effects. Followed by THE MATRIX: RELOADED and the DVD collection of animated shorts, THE ANIMATRIX. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Matrix: Reloaded, The (2003) C-138m. ½ D: The Wachowski Brothers. Keanu Reeves, Laurence Fishburne, Carrie-Anne Moss, Hugo Weaving, Jada Pinkett Smith, Gloria Foster, Harold Perrineau, Jr., Monica Bellucci, Harry Lennix, Lambert Wilson, Randall Duk Kim, Anthony Zerbe. Big, booming sequel is more straightforward in its storytelling than the original, as our heroes race against time to stop a marauding army from overtaking the last outpost of humankind, Zion. Doesn't have the feeling of stylistic innovation that the first film did, but there's plenty of action and special effects to compensate. Ironically, the highlight of this dense, futuristic saga is a car chase on a California freeway! Followed by THE MATRIX: REVOLUTIONS. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Matrix Revolutions, The (2003) C-130m. ½ D: The Wachowski Brothers. Keanu Reeves, Laurence Fishburne, Carrie-Anne Moss, Hugo Weaving, Jada Pinkett Smith, Mary Alice, Harold Perrineau, Jr., Monica Bellucci, Harry Lennix, Lambert Wilson, Nona Gaye, Anthony Zerbe. No one expected the third JAWS movie to be any good, but the Wachowski Brothers' failure to cap their franchise with any real meaning was one of 2003's bigger disappointments. Like Santa Anna's troops at the Alamo or the Blob in any neighborhood, the so-called Machines are on the march to outpost Zion, with only Neo and the remaining humans left to stop them. Pinkett Smith's piloting of a tricky aircraft is actually more compelling

than the love story between Reeves and Moss. BILL & TED'S BOGUS JOURNEY should not be the better sequel on Reeves' resumé. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Matter of Innocence, A (1967-British) C-102m. ½ D: Guy Green. Hayley Mills, Trevor Howard, Shashi Kapoor, Brenda De Banzie. Plain Jane (Mills) travels to Singapore with aunt, has an affair with Eurasian Kapoor and becomes a woman. Trite soaper with unusual role for suave Howard; from Noel Coward story "Pretty Polly." Techniscope.

Matter of Life and Death, A (1946-British) C-104m. * D: Michael Powell. Emeric Pressburger. David Niven, Kim Hunter, Raymond Massey, Roger Livesey, Robert Coote, Marius Goring, Richard Attenborough. Powell and Pressburger manage to straddle reality and fantasy in a most disarming manner in this unusual story of a pilot during WW2 who claims he was accidentally chosen to die, and must now plead for his life in a Heavenly court. Like most films by this writer-director team, an absolute original—and a gem, too. Original U.S. title: STAIRWAY TO HEAVEN. ▼●

Matter of Resistance, A (1966-French) 92m. ½ D: Jean-Paul Rappeneau. Catherine Deneuve, Philippe Noiret, Pierre Brasseur, Mary Marquet, Henri Garcin, Carlos Thompson. Pleasant French comedy of bored housewife (Deneuve) who welcomes arrival of soldiers to her village prior to Normandy invasion. Originally titled LA VIE DE CHATEAU. ▼●

Matter of Time, A (1976) C-99m. BOMB D: Vincente Minnelli. Liza Minnelli, Ingrid Bergman, Charles Boyer, Spiros Anndros, Tina Aumont, Anna Proclemer. Depressing schmaltz about a chambermaid in pre-WWI Europe taught to love life by a batty contessa. Director Minnelli's worst film, though, for his part, he denounced this version as edited. Final film for both Boyer and the director. Bergman's daughter, Isabella Rossellini, makes her screen debut as a nun. [PG] ▼

Matter of WHO, A (1961-British) 90m. ½ D: Don Chaffey. Terry-Thomas, Alex Nicol, Sonja Ziemann, Guy Deghy, Richard Briers, Carol White, Honor Blackman. Occasionally entertaining mystery with Thomas in a rare straight role as a World Health Organization bureaucrat who turns detective to trace a smallpox carrier. ▼

Maurice (1987-British) C-135m.  D: James Ivory. James Wilby, Hugh Grant, Rupert Graves, Denholm Elliott, Simon Callow, Billie Whitelaw, Ben Kingsley, Judy Parfitt, Phoebe Nicholls, Barry Foster. Typically meticulous Merchant-Ivory production of a literary work (by E. M. Forster) about a young Britisher's coming of age in the 1910s, and coming to terms with his homosexuality. Beautifully realized and extremely well acted all around . . .

but overlong. Helena Bonham Carter makes a cameo appearance. [R]▼●●

Maurie (1973) C-113m.  D: Daniel Mann. Bernie Casey, Bo Svenson, Janet MacLachlan, Stephanie Edwards, Paulene Myers, Bill Walker. Well-meaning but downbeat tearjerker based on true story of basketball star Maurice Stokes (Casey). His sudden paralysis spurs teammate Jack Twyman (Svenson) to devote himself to Maurice's rehabilitation. Too similar to other sports-tragedy films to stand out. Shown on TV as BIG MO. [G]▼

Maverick (1994) C-129m. ½ D: Richard Donner. Mel Gibson, Jodie Foster, James Garner, Graham Greene, James Coburn, Alfred Molina, Paul Smith, Geoffrey Lewis, Max Perlich, Dub Taylor. Lackadaisical update of the fondly remembered '60s TV show relies heavily on personal charm to carry a thin storyline that moseys along much too slowly—and much too long. Gibson is fun as a wily cardsharp on his way to a big-stakes poker game, and the cast is peppered with familiar faces from the world of vintage TV Westerns and contemporary country music; look for a couple of cameos by stars of earlier movies from director Donner. Garner, who starred in the old TV series, is cast here as a marshal. Script by William Goldman. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Maverick Queen, The (1956) C-92m. ½ D: Joseph Kane. Barbara Stanwyck, Barry Sullivan, Scott Brady, Mary Murphy, Wallace Ford. Stanwyck is peppy as outlaw who's willing to go straight for lawman Sullivan. Filmed in Naturama.▼

Ma Vie en Rose (1997-Belgian-French-British) C-88m.  D: Alain Berliner. Michele Laroque, Jean-Philippe Ecoffey, Helene Vincent, Georges Du Fresne, Julien Riviere. Ludovic (Du Fresne), a sweet little boy who resides with his parents in a Belgian suburb, has decided that, when he grows up, he wants to be a girl. To him this is perfectly logical; he already favors wearing dresses and makeup, and is determined to eventually wed the boy-next-door. Needless to say, mom and dad are perplexed and none too pleased. All points of view are well served in this charming and compassionate comedy-drama. [R]▼

Max (2002-Hungarian-British-Canadian) C-109m. *½ D: Menno Meyjes. John Cusack, Noah Taylor, Leelee Sobieski, Molly Parker, Ulrich Thomsen, David Horovitch, Janet Suzman, Caroleen Feeney. What might have happened if Adolf Hitler had been encouraged to pursue a career in art in the days following WW1? Fascinating idea is bungled by writer-director Meyjes, with a miscast Cusack (spouting incongruously modern vernacular) as a German-Jewish art dealer who is drawn to the angry young artist (well played by Taylor). Best/worst line: "Hitler, come on, I'll buy you a glass of lemonade." [R]▼

Max Dugan Returns (1983) C-98m.  D: Herbert Ross. Marsha Mason, Jason Robards, Donald Sutherland, Matthew Broderick, Dody Goodman, Sal Viscuso, David Morse, Kiefer Sutherland, Charlie Lau. Sweet, simple Neil Simon comedy about a long-lost father who tries to make amends to his daughter (a struggling schoolteacher and single parent) by showering her with presents—using money he's obtained by slightly shady means. Acted with verve and sincerity by a perfect cast. Film debuts of Matthew Broderick and Kiefer Sutherland. [PG]▼●●

Maxed Out (2007) C/B&W-87m. ½ D: James D. Scurlock. Outraged, muckraking documentary about our country's consumer-lending industry and the vicious cycle of profit and debt it has created and gladly fuels. Frequently compelling, even eye-opening, but resorts to obvious tactics a bit too much and often confuses self-righteousness with effective reportage. Stay through the end credits.▶

Max et les Ferrailleurs (1971-French) C-110m. ½ D: Claude Sautet. Michel Piccoli, Romy Schneider, Bernard Fresson, Georges Wilson, François Périer, Maurice Auzel, Philippe Léotard. Top-notch film about a moralistic police inspector who, tired of seeing a gang of bank robbers escape, decides to set up a situation where he can be assured of capturing some thieves. This involves forming a relationship with the girlfriend of his target thief, but he doesn't foresee how living a lie will affect his own integrity. A crackling, diamond-hard story, perfectly enacted by Piccoli, Schneider, and Fresson. Written by Sautet and Claude Néron. Aka MAX AND THE JUNKMEN.

Maxie (1985) C-90m.  D: Paul Aaron. Glenn Close, Mandy Patinkin, Ruth Gordon, Barnard Hughes, Valerie Curtin, Googy Gress, Harry Hamlin. Roaring twenties flapper inhabits the body of hardworking eighties woman, and titillates her husband to boot! Very old-fashioned screwball comedy-fantasy just doesn't come off, despite good intentions. Incidentally, the actress playing Maxie in authentic silent movie footage is Carole Lombard. [PG]▼●●

Maximum Overdrive (1986) C-97m. BOMB D: Stephen King. Emilio Estevez, Pat Hingle, Laura Harrington, Yeadley Smith, John Short, J. C. Quinn. Customers and employees of interstate truck stop are terrorized by the trucks themselves, which have come to demonic life as part of a global rebellion of machines. Novelist King, making his directing debut, said he set out to create a junk movie, nothing more . . . but he made it stupid and boring. Remade as a 1997 cable movie, TRUCKS. J-D-C Scope. [R]▼●●

Maximum Risk (1996) C-100m. ½ D: Ringo Lam. Jean-Claude Van Damme, Natasha Henstridge, Jean-Hugues Anglade, Zach Grenier, Paul Ben-Victor, Frank Senger. The

FBI and the Russian mafia are both after former French soldier Van Damme, who's out to avenge the death of an identical twin brother that everyone seems to think he is. He even inherits the brother's dishy girlfriend in the deal. Marginally closer to a real movie than most Van Damme efforts, thanks to some stylish touches by Hong Kong action specialist Lam. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Max Keeble's Big Move (2001) C-86m.  D: Tim Hill. Alex D. Linz, Larry Miller, Jamie Kennedy, Nora Dunn, Zena Grey, Josh Peck, Robert Carradine, Clifton Davis, Noel Fisher, Orlando Brown. Loud, often obnoxious cookie-cutter comedy about seventh-grader Max (Linz), who is harassed at school by fellow students and even the principal. Upon learning that his family is moving out of town, he plots a hit-and-run-style revenge, but there are predictable complications. [PG]▼●

Max Payne (2008) C-100m.  D: John Moore. Mark Wahlberg, Mila Kunis, Beau Bridges, Chris "Ludacris" Bridges, Chris O'Donnell, Donal Logue, Amaury Nolasco, Kate Burton, Olga Kurylenko, Joel Gordon, Jamie Hector, Nelly Furtado. A Dirty Harry-like homicide cop (Wahlberg) seeks revenge against the killers of his loved ones. Good-looking film falls flat dramatically. There's plenty of gore, though it's not graphic enough to earn this an R rating. Based on a popular video game. Unrated version runs 103m. Super 35. [PG-13]●

May (2002) C-93m.  D: Lucky McKee. Angela Bettis, Jeremy Sisto, Anna Faris, James Duval, Nichole Hiltz, Kevin Gage, Merle Kennedy. Wacko who grew up with only a doll for a best friend wigs out in adulthood and goes to gruesome lengths to make a friend . . . literally. Yucky chiller is well acted, but is way too pleased with its own cruelty to be able to watch on a full stomach. The writer-director cameos in a couple of self-serving scenes in an elevator. [R]▼●

Maya (1966) C-91m.  D: John Berry. Clint Walker, Jay North, I. S. Johar, Sajid Kahn, Jairaj, Sonia Sahni. Silly juvenile jungle tale has young North temporarily losing respect for his big-game hunter father Walker, who has lost his nerve. Panavision.▼

Maya Lin: A Strong Clear Vision (1994) C-96m. ½ D: Freida Lee Mock. Respectful, Oscar-winning documentary about artist Maya Lin, best known as the designer of the Washington, D.C., Vietnam Veterans Memorial. While effective as a record of the artist's creative process, her conception for the Memorial and the controversy it created, this is not a particularly insightful or memorable film.▼●

agent wife are desperately trying to have a baby while dealing with the vicissitudes of their show-business careers. Anyone who's faced difficulty getting pregnant will recognize the truth in Elton's amusing screenplay; his leading actors' charm helps make up for the unevenness of surrounding story elements. Cameos by the likes of Thompson and Atkinson don't hurt, either. [R]▼●

Maybe . . . Maybe Not (1995-German) C-93m.  D: Sönke Wortmann. Til Schweiger, Katja Riemann, Joachim Król, Rufus Beck, Antonia Lang, Armin Rohde. Thrown out for cheating on his girlfriend, a heterosexual male finds respite at the home of a gay acquaintance. While the ensuing advances of gay suitors are somewhat humorous, the film is filled with characters about whom we care very little. Based on a series of German comic books, entitled "Der Bewegte Mann" and "Pretty Baby," by comic artist Ralf König. [R]▼●●

Mayerling (1936-French) 92m.  D: Anatole Litvak. Charles Boyer, Danielle Darrieux, Suzy Prim, Jean Dax, Vladimir Sokoloff. Touching, well-made romantic tragedy based on true story of Austrian Crown Prince Rudolph, who dared to fall in love with a commoner. Good performances spark international hit; miles ahead of 1969 remake.▼

Mayerling (1969-British) C-140m. ½ D: Terence Young. Omar Sharif, Catherine Deneuve, James Mason, Ava Gardner, James Robertson Justice, Genevieve Aust. Remake of 1936 version casts Sharif as Austrian prince who defies convention, and his father (Mason), by falling in love with commoner Deneuve. Old-fashioned tragic romance is pleasant but un compelling. Justice steals film as spirited Prince of Wales. Panavision. [M/PG]▼

May Fools (1990-French-Italian) C-108m. ½ D: Louis Malle. Michel Piccoli, Miou-Miou, Michel Duchaussoy, Dominique Blanc, Bruno Carrette, Harriet Walter, Francois Berleand, Martine Gautier, Paulette Dubost. Ensemble piece, set in the French countryside in 1968. A grandmother's death brings assorted relatives to their ancestral home; most of them, like Miou-Miou, are more money grubbing than grieving. Piccoli is splendid as the head of the clan, a contented vintner who truly mourns his late mother. There are romantic entanglements, an interesting subtext of Paris student rebellion, jazz Stéphane Grappelli score—but it's all rather slight. Not top-notch Malle, but still diverting. [R]▼●●

Mayor of Hell, The (1933) 90m.  D: Archie Mayo. James Cagney, Madge Evans, Allen Jenkins, Dudley Digges, Arthur Byron, Frankie Darro, Allen "Farina" Hoskins. Fascinating, somewhat strange melodrama with political-machine appointee Cagney taking a genuine interest in the way kids are being mistreated at reform school run by slimy Digges. Climax is both unexpected and bizarre. Remade as CRIME SCHOOL and HELL'S KITCHEN. ▽

Maytime (1937) 132m.  D: Robert Z. Leonard. Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, John Barrymore, Herman Bing, Tom Brown, Lynne Carver, Rafaella Ottiano, Paul Porcasi, Sig Ruman, Walter Kingsford, Harry Davenport. One of singing duo's best films, despite occasional heavy-handedness and piercing operatic sequence near the end (composed especially for film, based on Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony). Exquisite filming of simple story: opera star and penniless singer fall in love in Paris, but her husband/mentor (Barrymore) interferes. Only song retained from Sigmund Romberg's hit Broadway score is "Will You Remember (Sweetheart)." ▽ ●

Maze, The (1953) 81m.  D: William Cameron Menzies. Richard Carlson, Veronica Hurst, Michael Pate, Katherine Emery, Hillary Brooke. Mysterious doings at a Scottish castle; a low-budgeter with a ludicrous (and unsatisfying) payoff. Stylishly composed as a 3-D movie by designer-director Menzies.

Maze (2000) C-97m. ½ D: Rob Morrow. Rob Morrow, Laura Linney, Craig Sheffer, Rose Gregorio, Gia Carides, Robert Hogan. While his best friend's away, an artist with Tourette Syndrome falls in love with his pregnant girlfriend. Lightweight romantic drama and personal project for Morrow isn't as bad as it sounds. Linney, in a lovely low-key performance, steals the show. Playwright Jon Robin Baitz cameos as an art gallery patron. [R] ▽ ●

M. Butterfly (1993) C-101m.  D: David Cronenberg. Jeremy Irons, John Lone, Barbara Sukowa, Ian Richardson, Annabel Leventon, Shizuko Hoshi, The Beijing Opera Troupe. Surprisingly tame and conventional Cronenberg rendering of David Henry Hwang's Tony-winning Broadway play—about the bizarrely extended relationship between a French diplomatic functionary and a Chinese diva/spy who managed to conceal the fact from him that she was a man. Cinematic closeups blatantly telegraph Lone's maleness; it's symptomatic of the movie's failure that office politics and even Irons' weary marriage are more compelling than the central ruse. [R] ▽ ●

McCabe & Mrs. Miller (1971) C-121m. ½ D: Robert Altman. Warren Beatty, Julie Christie, Rene Auberjonois, John

Schuck, Bert Remsen, Keith Carradine, William Devane, Shelley Duvall, Michael Murphy, Hugh Millais, Jack Riley. Richly textured mood piece about an ambitious small-timer who opens bordello in turn-of-the-century boom town. Altman deglamorizes Hollywood image of period with his realistic visions. Beatty is first-rate as the two-bit braggart McCabe. Edmund Naughton's novel McCabe adapted by Brian McKay and Altman. Panavision. [R] ▽ ●

McConnell Story, The (1955) C-107m.  D: Gordon Douglas. Alan Ladd, June Allyson, James Whitmore, Frank Faylen. Weepy yet effective fictional biography of jet test pilot, with Allyson as his understanding wife. CinemaScope. ▽ ●

McCullochs, The SEE: Wild McCullochs, The

McGuffin, The (1985-British) C-95m.  D: Colin Bucksey. Charles Dance, Ritza Brown, Francis Matthews, Brian Glover, Phyllis Logan, Jerry Stiller, Anna Massey, Ann Todd, Bill Shine. Meandering, confusing thriller about film critic Dance, whose curiosity about a couple of his neighbors leads to his involvement in murder and mayhem. Starts off nicely but goes downhill all too quickly. An homage to Hitchcock in general, REAR WINDOW in particular. ▽

McGuire, Go Home! (1965-British) C-101m. ½ D: Ralph Thomas. Dirk Bogarde, George Chakiris, Susan Strasberg, Denholm Elliott. Set in 1954 Cyprus; peppy account of terrorist campaign against British occupation, with side plot of officer Bogarde in love with American girl Strasberg. Video titles: A DATE WITH DEATH; THE HIGH BRIGHT SUN. ▽

McHale's Navy (1964) C-93m. ½ D: Edward J. Montagne. Ernest Borgnine, Joe Flynn, Tim Conway, George Kennedy, Claudine Longet, Bob Hastings, Carl Ballantine, Billy Sands, Gavin MacLeod, Jean Willes. Theatrical feature inspired by popular TV series finds the PT-73 crew doing everything possible to try and raise money to pay off gambling debts. Usual blend of slapstick and snappy dialogue; entertaining for fans. ▽

McHale's Navy (1997) C-109m.  D: Bryan Spicer. Tom Arnold, Dean Stockwell, Ernest Borgnine, Debra Messing, David Alan Grier, Tim Curry, Brian Haley, French Stewart, Bruce Campbell, Tommy Chong. Former Navy man who now wheels and deals from a remote Pacific island is called back to service to do battle with "the second-best terrorist in the world." Broad approach, simplistic script make this strictly a juvenile outing. Very loosely based on the 1960s TV series; Borgnine, who played McHale back then, appears here as a Pentagon security chief. [PG] ▽ ●

McHale's Navy Joins the Air Force (1965) C-90m. ½ D: Edward J. Montagne.

Tim Conway, Joe Flynn, Bob Hastings, Ted Bessell, Susan Silo, Henry Beckman, Billy Sands, Gavin MacLeod, Tom Tully, Jacques Aubuchon. Rather unusual comedy with little relation to either the first feature or the TV series (including no Borgnine). Ensign Parker (Conway) is mistaken for an Air Force hot shot, and the more he screws up, the higher he's promoted! John Fenton Murray's intricate script adds some mild satire to normal quota of slapstick; a genuine curio. ▼

McKenzie Break, The (1970) C-106m.

McLintock! (1963) C-127m.  D: Andrew V. McLaglen. John Wayne, Maureen O'Hara, Patrick Wayne, Stefanie Powers, Yvonne De Carlo, Chill Wills, Bruce Cabot, Jack Kruschen, Jerry Van Dyke, Perry Lopez, Strother Martin. Brawling cattle baron G. W. McLintock (Wayne) locks horns with his feisty, estranged wife (O'Hara) who has returned home to get a divorce; their daughter visiting from college only complicates matters. Rowdy slapstick seldom stops—a giant mud pit free-for-all and a public spanking for O'Hara are just a few of the stops along the way in this Western version of The Taming of the Shrew. Not recommended for feminists. Produced by Michael Wayne. Panavision. ▼

McMasters, The (1970) C-89/97m. ½ D:

Alf Kjellin. Burl Ives, Brock Peters, David Carradine, Nancy Kwan, Jack Palance, John Carradine. Pretty grim drama of bigotry and violence gone crazy as black Union soldier (Peters) returns to ranch of former master (Ives), eventually made co-owner of land. Dual running times indicate two different endings: bad guys (led by Palance) win out or good guys emerge victorious. Both versions were released to theaters. [PG] ▼

McQ (1974) C-116m.  D: John Sturges. John Wayne, Eddie Albert, Diana Muldaur, Colleen Dewhurst, Clu Gulager, David Huddleston, Al Lettieri, Julie Adams. An aging Duke tries to be Clint Eastwood as a Firebird-driving cop out to get the gangster who murdered his partner. Good action, but that's about all. Panavision. [PG] ▼

McVicar (1980-British) C-111m.  D: Tom Clegg. Roger Daltrey, Adam Faith, Cheryl Campbell, Brian Hall, Steven Berkoff, Jeremy Blake, Ian Hendry. Impressive drama about John McVicar (Daltrey), England's Public Enemy Number 1, and his escape from prison. Screenplay by McVicar, who adapted his book; Daltrey is surprisingly good; Faith and Campbell fine

as his prison buddy/fellow escapee and his common-law wife. [R] ▼

Mean Creek (2004) C-90m. ½ D: Jacob Aaron Estes. Rory Culkin, Ryan Kelly, Scott Mechlowicz, Carly Schroeder, Trevor Morgan, Josh Peck. Surprisingly adept tale of a bullied boy (Culkin) who plots revenge, with his older brother and friends, on his tormentor. The performances are realistic, with unforced emotional revelations and insight, but the film can't escape echoes of similar stories. Still, a promising feature debut for writer-director Estes. [R] ▼

Me and Him (1989-U.S.-West German) C-94m. BOMB D: Doris Dörrie. Griffin Dunne, Ellen Greene, Kelly Bishop, Carey Lowell, Craig T. Nelson, Mark Linn-Baker. Embarrassingly unfunny story of a man and his talking sex organ. Based on an Italian novel, clever idea goes absolutely limp. Linn-Baker supplies the voice of Dunne's "special friend." [R] ▼

Me and My Gal (1932) 78m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Spencer Tracy, Joan Bennett, Marion Burns, George Walsh, J. Farrell MacDonald, Noel Madison. Wholly entertaining film blending comedy, romance, melodrama in one neat package; cop Tracy falls in love with waitress Bennett, whose sister and father become involved with a gangster. Stars at their most charming, with bottomless reserve of snappy dialogue.

Mean Dog Blues (1978) C-108m. ½ D: Mel Stuart. George Kennedy, Gregg Henry, Kay Lenz, Scatman Crothers, Tina Louise, Felton Perry, Gregory Sierra, James Wainwright, William Windom. Henry is railroaded onto prison farm run by Kennedy and a team of bloodthirsty Dobermans; unsurprising but well-made action film. [R] ▼

Me and the Colonel (1958) 109m. ½ D: Peter Glenville. Danny Kaye, Curt Jurgens, Nicole Maurey, Françoise Rosay. Franz Werfel's Jacobowsky and the Colonel is source for spotty satire; Jacobowsky is played by Kaye, and Jurgens is the anti-Semitic military officer, both brought together during crisis in WW2. Filmed in France. ▼

Me and the Kid (1993) C-94m. ½ D: Dan Curtis. Danny Aiello, Alex Zuckerman, Joe Pantoliano, Cathy Moriarty, David Dukes, Anita Morris, Abe Vigoda, Demond Wilson, Rick Aiello, Ben Stein. Rich kid is kidnapped in a bungled robbery attempt and sets out on the road with a couple of cons—who get more than they bargained for. Low-budget attempt to cash in on the HOME ALONE bonanza, with a decent cast wasted; recommended only for the most undemanding young viewers. [PG] ▼

Me and You and Everyone We Know (2005) C-90m.  D: Miranda July. John Hawkes, Miranda July, Miles Thompson, Brandon Ratcliff, Carlie Westerman, Natasha Slayton, Najarra Townsend, Hector Elias, Tracy Wright, JoNell Kennedy, Brad Henke,

Ellen Geer, James Mathers. Highly original, observational comedy-drama about lonely people of all ages—from children to senior citizens—who are desperately trying to connect. Hawkes is a newly divorced shoe salesman trying to raise two boys (the younger of whom is making “friends” on the Internet); July plays a struggling artist who’s more comfortable creating videos than dealing with people in person. Earns its R rating with some sexually explicit material. Debut feature as writer-director for performance artist July. [R]▼

Mean Girls (2004) C-97m. ½ D: Mark Waters. Lindsay Lohan, Tina Fey, Rachel McAdams, Tim Meadows, Ana Gasteyer, Amy Poehler, Lacey Chabert, Amanda Seyfried, Jonathan Bennett, Lizzy Caplan, Daniel Franzese, Neil Flynn. Sixteen-year-old who’s been home-schooled (in Africa!) goes to Illinois public school for the first time. She’s immediately torn between two outcasts who adopt her as a friend and a clique of popular girls who set their own agenda and make fun of almost everyone else. Sounds awfully familiar, but the script by Fey (based on Rosalind Wiseman’s book Queen Bees and Wannabes) has sharp, funny moments one doesn’t usually find in teen movies; she also plays a sympathetic teacher. Reverts to formula, but still a cut above the norm. [PG-13]▼

Mean Johnny Barrows (1976) C-85m.  D: Fred Williamson. Fred Williamson, Jenny Sherman, Aaron Banks, Anthony Caruso, Luther Adler, Stuart Whitman, Roddy McDowall, Elliott Gould. Mean but dull; Vietnam vet gets involved with the Mafia. Slow-paced, notable for unlikely cast and Gould’s incongruous comedy relief. [R]▼

Mean Machine (2001-British-U.S.) C-98m. *½ D: Barry Skolnick. Vinnie Jones, David Kelly, David Hemmings, Ralph Brown, Vas Blackwood, Robbie Gee, Geoff Bell, Jason Flemyng, Jason Statham. Disgraced ex-soccer star Jones winds up in a high-security prison, where he is caught between brutal guards and embittered fellow prisoners and ends up involved in a cons-versus-guards soccer match. By-the-numbers remake of THE LONGEST YARD (which was titled THE MEAN MACHINE in the U.K.) is as subtle as a jackhammer and sorely missing the spunk of the original. Strictly for those who delight in bone-crunching brutality. [R]▼

Mean Season, The (1985) C-103m. ½ D: Phillip Borsos. Kurt Russell, Mariel Hemingway, Richard Jordan, Richard Masur, Joe Pantoliano, Andy Garcia. Miami newspaper reporter (Russell, in a very credible performance) becomes sole contact for crazed killer, but as the headlines (and murders) continue, it becomes a question of who is “using” whom. Intriguing and initially believable idea goes awry in latter half of this mean movie. [R]▼

Meantime (1983-British) C-104m. ½ D: Mike Leigh. Marion Bailey, Phil Daniels, Tim Roth, Pam Ferris, Jeff Root, Alfred Molina, Gary Oldman. Downbeat kitchen-sink drama about the problems of a working-class London family; no one captures this milieu quite like director Leigh, though it can be pretty bleak. Molina and Oldman later costarred in PRICK UP YOUR EARS.▼

Meatballs (1979-Canadian) C-92m. *½ D: Ivan Reitman. Bill Murray, Harvey Atkin, Kate Lynch, Russ Banham, Kristine DeBell, Sarah Torgov. Alternately cruel and sloppily sentimental comedy about summer camp will no doubt wow fifth graders of all ages, though myopic screen characters named “Spaz” aren’t really all that funny. Pretty desperate. Followed by several so-called sequels. [PG]▼

Meatballs Part II (1984) C-87m.  D: Ken Wiederhorn. Richard Mulligan, John Mengatti, Hamilton Camp, Kim Richards, Tammy Taylor, John Larroquette, Archie Hahn, Misty Rowe, Paul Reubens (Pee-wee Herman), Elayne Boosler. In-name-only sequel throws in everything from Jewish aliens to FROM HERE TO ETERNITY take-off, as the fate of Camp Sasquatch rides on a boxing match against nearby Camp Patton (“Where Outdoor Living Molds Killers”). Slightly better than its predecessor (which isn’t saying much). [PG]▼

Meatballs III (1987) C-94m. *½ D: George Mendeluk. Sally Kellerman, Patrick Dempsey, Al Waxman, Isabelle Mejias, Shannon Tweed, Ian Taylor, George Buza. What do you say about a movie dealing with a dead porno star who coaches a teen-age nerd on how to lose his virginity at summer camp? As little as possible. [R]▼

Mechanic, The (1972) C-100m. ½ D: Michael Winner. Charles Bronson, Keenan Wynn, Jan-Michael Vincent, Jill Ireland. Detailed study of James Bond-type assassin and youth he trains to take his place. Worth it for the double-twist ending; terse script by Lewis John Carlino. [PG]▼

Medallion, The (2003-Hong Kong-U.S.) C-90m. *½ D: Gordon Chan. Jackie Chan, Lee Evans, Claire Forlani, Julian Sands, Jonathan Rhys-Davies, Anthony Wong, Christy Chung. Hong Kong cop joins forces with Interpol to capture a nefarious villain who has kidnapped a mystic child; his medallion holds the key to immortality. OK

story framework is pounded into senselessness by bad writing, overacting, hammy comedy touches, and incongruous special effects. Chan is still fun to watch, and a handful of action scenes (sans fx) show what he's capable of. Action directed by Sammo Hung. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Medicine Ball Caravan (1971) C-90m. ½ D: Francois Reichenbach. B. B. King, Alice Cooper, Delaney and Bonnie, Doug Kershaw, David Peel. The Caravan is a 150-member troupe that traveled the U.S. during the summer of '70 to spread peace, love, music—and make a movie. Superficially arty direction; Martin Scorsese was associate producer and supervising editor. Techniscope. [R]

Medicine Man (1992) C-106m. ½ D: John McTiernan. Sean Connery, Lorraine Bracco, José Wilker. Connery plays a research scientist, sequestered in the Brazilian rain forest, who's found the cure for cancer—but can't duplicate it. Bracco is his brainy superior from the U.S. who's come to check up on him. Connery carries this movie singlehandedly, and as usual he's commanding to watch, but the film is weak, and Bracco's abrasive performance (and poorly written character) practically sink it. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Mediterraneo (1991-Italian) C-92m.  D: Gabriele Salvatores. Diego Abatantuono, Claudio Bigagli, Giuseppe Cederna, Claudio Bisio, Gigio Alberti, Vanna Barba. It's 1941 and Greek-island males are off fighting in WW2, so some stranded Italian soldiers partake in la dolce vita—for years. Sweet memory movie with double-digit gaffaws, though a slight choice to have won the Best Foreign Film Oscar. ▼

Medium Cool (1969) C-110m. * D: Haskell Wexler. Robert Forster, Verna Bloom, Peter Bonerz, Marianna Hill, Harold Blankenship, Peter Boyle. Arresting, unique film of TV cameraman who remains detached though surrounded by events demanding his involvement. Director/writer/cameraman Wexler used real footage of his actors at 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago, and subsequent riots, as basis for ultrarealistic film. Score by Mike Bloomfield; Paul Butterfield and The Mothers of Invention are among the artists on the soundtrack. [R] ▼

Medusa Touch, The (1978-British-French) C-110m.  D: Jack Gold. Richard Burton, Lino Ventura, Lee Remick, Harry Andrews, Alan Badel, Marie-Christine Barrault, Jeremy Brett, Michael Hordern, Gordon Jackson, Derek Jacobi. Burton has spent his whole life willing people's deaths, and now he's completely out of control; Remick is his psychiatrist in this derivative, unappealing film. [PG] ▼

Meet Bill (2008) C-92m. ½ D: Bernie Goldmann, Melisa Wallack. Aaron Eckhart,

Elizabeth Banks, Logan Lerman, Timothy Olyphant, Holmes Osborne, Jessica Alba, Reed Diamond, Craig Bierko, Kristen Wiig, Marisa Coughlan, Jason Sudeikis. Bill's life is a mess; he hates his job, his wife is cheating on him, and he's unhappy. It isn't until he (reluctantly) begins mentoring a remarkably intelligent but rebellious teenager (Lerman) that he finally gains confidence in himself. Though uneven in tone, this is an honest and relatable comedy with strong performances by Eckhart and Lerman. [R] ▼

Meet Danny Wilson (1952) 86m. ½ D: Joseph Pevney. Frank Sinatra, Shelley Winters, Alex Nicol, Raymond Burr. Minor but engaging musical about a young singer and his piano-playing pal, who make the mistake of signing a contract with nightclub owner/racketeer Burr—then moving in on his "girl." No original songs, but Sinatra does sing plenty of old favorites and even does a winning duet with Winters on "A Good Man Is Hard to Find." ▼

Meet Dave (2008) C-90m.  D: Brian Robbins. Eddie Murphy, Elizabeth Banks, Gabrielle Union, Scott Caan, Ed Helms, Kevin Hart, Mike O'Malley, Pat Kilbane, Judah Friedlander, Marc Blucas, Jim Turner, Austyn Lind Myers. High-concept fish-out-of-water family fantasy about tiny aliens who construct a spacecraft in the image of a man (who looks amazingly like Murphy) and come to Earth on a mission to drain its oceans in order to save their own planet. Predictable complications arise in the form of a pretty single mom (Banks), her bullied son, and the discovery of such human emotions as love. Innocuous and overstretched, but easily amused kids may go for it. [PG] ▼

Meetings With Remarkable Men (1979-British) C-110m. ½ D: Peter Brook. Terence Stamp, Dragan Maksimovic, Mikica Dimitrijevic, Athol Fugard, Warren Mitchell, Gerry Sundquist, Bruce Myers, Natasha Parry, Martin Benson. Uneven account of G. I. Gurdjieff (Maksimovic), the famed, inspirational cult leader, focusing on his quest through Asia to uncover the meaning of human existence. Has its moments of insight, but will ultimately be of interest only to those fascinated by the subject. Based on Gurdjieff's memoirs. [G] ▼

Meeting Venus (1991-British) C-117m.  D: Istvan Szabo. Glenn Close, Niels Arestrup, Erland Josephson, Johanna Ter Steege, Jay O. Sanders, Maria de Medeiros, Ildiko Bansagi. During the tumultuous preparations for a multinational production of Wagner's Tannhauser, a Hungarian conductor (Arestrup) and a Swedish diva (Close, who's outstanding) find themselves involved in an affair. Witty, knowing romantic farce about the politics of art, which also works as a metaphor for the aftereffects of European reunification. Veteran Hungarian director Szabo's first film in English.

Meet Joe Black (1998) C-178m.  D: Martin Brest. Anthony Hopkins, Brad Pitt, Claire Forlani, Jake Weber, Marcia Gay Harden, Jeffrey Tambor, David S. Howard. Death comes to claim a billionaire industrialist (Hopkins), and decides to take human form (Pitt), emerging as a mysterious stranger with a childlike manner and a fondness for peanut butter. Odd rethinking of DEATH TAKES A HOLIDAY adds subplots that make it go on for days, toward a preposterous and unsatisfying conclusion. Hopkins is terrific, but Death's character simply makes no sense. Sumptuous production design. [PG-13] ▼●●

Meet John Doe (1941) 132m.  D: Frank Capra. Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck, Edward Arnold, Walter Brennan, Spring Byington, James Gleason, Gene Lockhart. Overlong but interesting social commentary, with naive Cooper hired to spearhead national goodwill drive benefiting corrupt politician Arnold. Wordy idealism can't bury good characterizations; usual Capra touches exulting populism. Virtually all existing prints (from reissue) run 123m. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Meet Me After the Show (1951) C-86m. ½ D: Richard Sale. Betty Grable, Macdonald Carey, Rory Calhoun, Eddie Albert, Lois Andrews, Irene Ryan. Undistinguished Grable musical lacking bounce of her other vehicles, with usual show biz storyline.

Meet Me at the Fair (1953) C-87m. ½ D: Douglas Sirk. Dan Dailey, Diana Lynn, Hugh O'Brien, Carole Mathews, Rhys Williams, Chet Allen, Scatman Crothers. Dailey is good as a sideshow medicine man who helps a young orphan and courts Lynn; pleasant musical.

Meet Me in Las Vegas (1956) C-112m. ½ D: Roy Rowland. Dan Dailey, Cyd Charisse, Agnes Moorehead, Lili Darvas, Jim Backus, Cara Williams; guest stars Jerry Colonna, Paul Henreid, Lena Horne, Frankie Laine, Mitsuko Sawamura. Charisse's dancing is highlight of mild musical involving rancher Dailey and ballet star Cyd in gambling capital. Cameos by many top stars add to the flavor. Liliane Montevecchi is one of the dancers. George Chakiris (billed as Kerris) has a tiny part. CinemaScope. ▼●

Meet Me in St. Louis (1944) C-113m. * D: Vincente Minnelli. Judy Garland, Margaret O'Brien, Lucille Bremer, Tom Drake, Mary Astor, Leon Ames, Marjorie Main, June Lockhart, Harry Davenport, Joan Carroll, Hugh Marlowe. Captivating musical based on Sally Benson's slice of Americana about a family's experiences during the year of the St. Louis World's Fair, 1903. Judy sings wonderful Ralph Blane-Hugh Martin songs "The Boy Next Door," "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas," "The Trolley Song," while Margaret O'Brien steals every scene she's in as little sister Tootie. (In fact, she won a special Oscar, as the year's best child actress.) Screenplay by Irving Brecher and Fred F. Finklehoffe. Years later adapted for Broadway. ▼●●

Meet Me Tonight SEE: Tonight at 8:30
Meet the Applegates (1991) C-90m. ½ D: Michael Lehmann. Ed Begley, Jr., Stockard Channing, Dabney Coleman, Bobby Jacoby, Cami Cooper, Glenn Shadix, Susan Barnes. Brazilian beetles in human form assimilate (sort of) in U.S. suburbia, but still manage to stock their quota of human prey in the basement. Spotty, but sometimes funny comedy, wittily designed but marred by a weak conclusion. Released on video, for no apparent reason, as THE APPLLEGATES. [R] ▼●

Meet the Browns (2008) C-100m.  D: Tyler Perry. Angela Bassett, David Mann, Rick Fox, Irma P. Hall, Jenifer Lewis, Tamela J. Mann, Frankie Faison, Margaret Avery, Lance Gross, Chloe Bailey, Mariana Tolbert, Sofia Vergara, Tyler Perry. Single mother barely making ends meet gets talked into taking her family to the funeral of the father she never met. She gets more than she bargained for: a boisterous extended family, a new romance, and a surprise piece of ol' dad's "estate." Bassett tries to elevate this but it's typical Perry fodder, veering wildly between broad comedy and overwrought melodrama. Perry appears briefly toward the end in cross-dressing mode as Madea in a shameless preview for his next feature. Aka TYLER PERRY'S MEET THE BROWNS. [PG-13] ●

Meet the Deedles (1998) C-92m. ½ D: Steve Boyum. Steve Van Wormer, Paul Walker, A. J. Langer, John Ashton, Dennis Hopper, Megan Cavanaugh, Eric Braeden, Richard Lineback, M. C. Gainey, Robert Englund. Idiomatic BILL & TED clone about twin surfer dude brothers from Hawaii whose filthy rich father schemes to teach them responsibility by dispatching them to a summer camp. Bottom-of-the-barrel Disney wipeout; less discriminating teens might go for it for about three minutes. Hopper plays a villainous ex-park ranger, and Bart the Bear has a cameo. [PG] ▼●●

Meet the Fockers (2004) C-115m. ½ D: Jay Roach. Robert De Niro, Ben Stiller, Dustin Hoffman, Barbra Streisand, Blythe Danner, Teri Polo, Alanna Ubach, Tim Blake Nelson, Shelley Berman, Owen Wilson. Unnecessary follow-up to MEET THE PARENTS has Stiller taking his future in-laws and fiancée Polo to meet his parents. Hoffman and Streisand are the wacky, liberal, free-spirited Fockers; De Niro and Danner are the stuffed-shirt, conservative Byrneses. Together they make humiliation, embarrassment, and misunderstandings the foundation of a lame comedy . . . but the public loved it! [PG-13] ▼

Meet the Parents (2000) C-108m. ½ D: Jay Roach. Robert De Niro, Ben Stiller, Blythe Danner, Teri Polo, James Rebhorn, Jon Abrahams, Owen Wilson, Phyllis George. A male nurse spends a weekend with his girlfriend's parents, hoping to ask her uptight father for her hand in marriage . . . but the dad is so intimidating that he starts bungling things and can't seem to stop. Funny setup, ideal cast, but the results are frustratingly uneven. Based on a low-budget film of the same name from 1992. Followed by MEET THE FOCKERS. [PG-13] ▼

Meet the People (1944) 100m. ½ D: Charles Riesner. Lucille Ball, Dick Powell, Virginia O'Brien, Bert Lahr, Rags Ragland, June Allyson, Vaughn Monroe and His Orchestra, Spike Jones and His City Slickers, Bobby (Robert) Blake. Complications follow when shipyard worker Powell convinces stage star Ball to bring to Broadway the "common man" musical he's coauthored. OK musicomedey; so-so score. ▶

Meet the Robinsons (2007) C-96m. ½ D: Stephen Anderson. Voices of Daniel Hansen, Jordan Fry, Wesley Singerman, Angela Bassett, Tom Selleck, Harland Williams, Laurie Metcalf, Adam West, Ethan Sandler, Tom Kenney. Orphaned boy becomes a science whiz; then one day he's whisked off to the future by a kid in a time-traveling space vehicle. There he meets a family just like the one he's always longed for. Disney CGI cartoon feature follows a wildly uneven story path, and suffers from some lackluster voice performances (including director Anderson as the villain), but finally hits its emotional stride for the home stretch. Based on the book A Day With Wilbur Robinson by William Joyce. [G] ▶

Meet the Spartans (2008) C-84m. BOMB D: Jason Friedberg, Aaron Seltzer. Sean Maguire, Carmen Electra, Ken Davitian, Kevin Sorbo, Diedrich Bader, Method Man, Jareb Dauplaise, Travis Van Winkle, Nicole Parker. The creators of DATE MOVIE and EPIC MOVIE concocted this moronic, product-placement-laden spoof of the homeroeticism of 300, aimed at adolescent boys. Plot involves King Leonidas of Sparta (Maguire) and his self-adoring, scantily clad warriors as they battle the Persians. Oodles of pop-cultural references are complete duds. Unrated version runs 87m. [PG-13] ▶

Meet Wally Sparks (1997) C-104m. *½ D: Peter Baldwin. Rodney Dangerfield, Debi Mazar, Cindy Williams, Burt Reynolds, David Ogden Stiers, Alan Rachins. Embarrassingly unfunny vehicle for Dangerfield, as a trashy TV talk show host attempting to save his program. Instead of successfully satirizing elements of the morally bankrupt TV talk genre, the screenplay (cowritten by Dangerfield) sinks to its level.

Look for mercifully short cameos from Tony Danza, Tim Allen, Roseanne, Jay Leno, and Gilbert Gottfried. [R] ▼

Megaforce (1982) C-99m. BOMB D: Hal Needham. Barry Bostwick, Persis Khambatta, Michael Beck, Edward Mulhare, George Furth, Henry Silva. Atrocious bubble-gum movie about an ultra-modern fighting force headed by one Ace Hunter (Bostwick, badly miscast). Embarrassing performances, clunky hardware, uninspired action scenes. [PG] ▼

Megiddo (2001) C-106m. *½ D: Brian Trenchard-Smith. Michael York, Michael Biehn, Diane Venora, R. Lee Ermey, Udo Kier, Franco Nero, Jim Metzler. From the people who brought you THE OMEGA CODE (this was subtitled in ads as OMEGA CODE 2) comes another tale of York's desire for world domination. This one includes a flashback of the bad seed's childhood, and his relationship with his brother (Biehn). Silly, pathetic; just another attempt to capitalize on the intriguing premise of Armageddon. [PG-13] ▼

Mein Kampf (1961-Swedish) 117m.  D: Erwin Leiser. Narrated by Claude Stephenson. Technically smooth, impressive documentary chronicle of the horrors of Nazi Germany. Restrained narration allows the visuals to speak for themselves. ▼

Melinda and Melinda (2005) C-100m.  D: Woody Allen. Radha Mitchell, Will Ferrell, Chloë Sevigny, Jonny Lee Miller, Amanda Peet, Chiwitel Ejiofor, Brooke Smith, Josh Brolin, Gene Saks, Vinessa Shaw, Wallace Shawn, Larry Pine, Steve Carell. Two playwrights discuss how they would approach a story they've heard about a young woman who shows up unannounced on an old friend's Manhattan doorstep—one in comedic terms, the other dramatic. Both stories unfold but don't lead anywhere; meandering film offers echoes and reminders of earlier, better Allen movies, though it serves as a good showcase for Mitchell. Ferrell's dialogue is stuffed with Woodyesque one-liners. [PG-13] ▼

Mélo (1986-French) C-110m.  D: Alain Resnais. Sabine Azéma, Pierre Arditi, Andre Dussollier, Fanny Ardant, Jacques Dacqmine, Catherine Arditi. Different sort of film experiment from innovator Resnais, rigorously adapting Henry Bernstein's 1929 play about a tragic love triangle. Top-notch acting and direction make this one a winner, but the (intentionally) stagy production makes it not for all tastes. Previously filmed as MÉLO (1932); DER TRÄUMENDE MUND (1932) and DREAMING LIPS (1937), both with Elisabeth Bergner; and DER TRÄUMENDE MUND (1953). ▶

Melody (1971-British) C-103m.  D: Waris Hussein. Jack Wild, Mark Lester, Tracy Hyde, Sheila Steafel, Kate Williams, Roy Kinnear. Adolescent view of life,

disarmingly played by Lester and Wild (from OLIVER!) as friends who rebel against adult establishment, particularly when Lester and girlfriend Hyde decide they want to get married. Music by The Bee Gees. [G]▼

Melvin and Howard (1980) C-95m. ½ D: Jonathan Demme. Paul LeMat, Jason Robards, Mary Steenburgen, Jack Kehoe, Pamela Reed, Dabney Coleman, Michael J. Pollard, Gloria Grahame, Elizabeth Cheshire, Martine Beswick, Charles Napier, John Glover. Wonderful slice-of-life comedy based on the story of Melvin Dummar, who once gave a lift to a grizzled Howard Hughes and later produced a will naming himself as heir to the Hughes fortune. An endearing, bittersweet American fable, with Oscar winner Steenburgen providing most of the comic highlights, including a memorable TV talent contest. Bo Goldman's script also won an Academy Award. (That's the real Melvin Dummar behind a bus station lunch counter.) [R]▼

Member of the Wedding, The (1952) 91m.  D: Fred Zinnemann. Ethel Waters, Julie Harris, Brandon de Wilde, Arthur Franz, Nancy Gates, James Edwards. Carson McCullers' sensitive account of child Harris prodded into growing up by her brother's forthcoming marriage. Waters, Harris, and de Wilde movingly re-create their Broadway roles, the latter two making their film debuts. Slow but worthwhile. Remade for cable TV in 1997.▼

Memento (2001) C/B&W-113m. *½ D: Christopher Nolan. Guy Pearce, Carrie-Anne Moss, Joe Pantoliano, Mark Boone, Jr., Stephen Tobolowsky, Jorja Fox, Callum Keith Rennie. A man with short-term memory loss tries to keep his life in order while avenging his wife's murder. Is he being helped, or manipulated, by the people around him? Pretentious pap plays with storytelling conventions and juggles "real time," but adds up to zero (though the film has many ardent fans). Panavision. [R]▼

Memoirs of a Geisha (2005) C-144m. ½ D: Rob Marshall. Ziyi Zhang, Ken Watanabe, Michelle Yeoh, Gong Li, Kôji Yakusho, Youki Kudoh, Kaori Momoi, Tsai Chin, Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa, Randall Duk Kim, Mako, Ted Levine. Sumptuous adaptation of Arthur Golden's bestseller about a young peasant woman's training in the art of the geisha, even as its traditions collide with the demands of increasingly modern times and WW2. Intriguing story is Hollywoodized at every turn but still reasonably entertaining thanks to the presence of Zhang, Yeoh, and Li. Spectacular production earned Oscars for Art Direction and Set Decoration (John Myhre, Gretchen Rau). Costumes (Colleen Atwood), and Cinematography (Dion Beebe). Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Memoirs of an Invisible Man (1992) C-99m.  D: John Carpenter. Chevy Chase, Daryl Hannah, Sam Neill, Michael

McKean, Stephen Tobolowsky, Rosalind Wiseman, Clever (but endless) special effects are the star of this stale, paper-thin dud. Chase plays a securities analyst who's rendered invisible after an accident, and finds himself involved in a by-the-numbers spy scenario. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Memoirs of a Survivor (1981-British) C-117m. *½ D: David Gladwell. Julie Christie, Christopher Guard, Leonie Mellinger, Debbie Hutchings, Nigel Hawthorne, Pat Keen. Christie's presence cannot save this dismal, badly directed fantasy about a woman and a teenager (Mellinger) surviving in a decayed urban civilization. Good idea—film is based on a Doris Lessing novel—but poorly realized.▼

Memories of Me (1988) C-105m.  D: Henry Winkler. Billy Crystal, Alan King, JoBeth Williams, Janet Carroll, David Ackroyd, Phil Fondacaro, Robert Pastorelli, Sidney Miller. A heart surgeon, who recently suffered a heart attack himself, seeks out his father, from whom he's been estranged, hoping to put his life in order. Contrived comedy-drama combines comic shtick with mawkish emotional scenes and never quite manages to be convincing. Crystal cowrote the screenplay and coproduced with King. [PG-13]▼

Memory of a Killer, The (2003-Belgian-Dutch) C-123m.  D: Erik Van Looy. Jan Declair, Koen De Bouw, Werner De Smedt, Hilde De Baerdemaeker, Geert Van Rampelberg, Jo De Meyere. An aging professional assassin (Declair) in the early stages of Alzheimer's disease refuses to carry out a hit on a 12-year-old prostitute and tries to help the cops nail the powerful baron who hired him—before he loses his memory. Gripping police procedural/character study is as slick and stylish as any American crime thriller, while offering stinging social commentary with a worldly European sensibility. Super 35. [R]▼

Memory of Justice, The (1976-German-U.S.) C-278m. * D: Marcel Ophuls. Outstanding documentary from the director of THE SORROW AND THE PITY questions how one country can pass judgment on the atrocities of others by examining the Nuremberg trials and their aftermath, the French performance in Algeria and the American intervention in Vietnam. Always riveting in spite of its mammoth length. [PG]

Memory of Us (1974) C-93m. ½ D: H. Kaye Dyal. Ellen Geer, Jon Cypher, Barbara Colby, Peter Brown, Robert Hogan, Rose Marie, Will Geer. Modest, interesting contemporary drama about a happily married woman who begins to question her role as wife and mother; script by star Ellen Geer, whose father Will makes brief appearance. [PG]▼

Memphis Belle (1990-British) C-101m.  D: Michael Caton-Jones. Matthew Modine, Eric Stoltz, Tate Donovan, D.B. Sweeney, Billy Zane, Sean Astin, Harry

Connick, Jr., Reed Edward Diamond, Courtney Gains, Neil Giuntoli, David Strathairn, John Lithgow, Jane Horrocks. If you can make it through the first hour (a virtual catalogue of war-movie clichés) this film ultimately provides an exciting fictional reenactment of the famous B-17's final bombing raid over Germany during WW2. Still, it's hard to believe that such a cornball script could be concocted in 1990. Coproduced by Catherine Wyler, whose father, William Wyler, made the 1944 documentary THE MEMPHIS BELLE. [PG-13]▼●●

Me Myself and I (1992) C-97m. ½ D: Pablo Ferro. JoBeth Williams, George Segal, Don Calfa, Shelley Hack, Betsy Lynn George, Bill Macy, Sharon McNight, Ruth Gilbert. Novelist-TV writer Segal becomes involved with his next-door neighbor, a schizophrenic (well played by Williams) who is intelligent and nurturing when "sane," but otherwise totally off-the-wall. Bizarre comedy is uneven, sometimes enjoyable and other times annoying.▼

Me, Myself & Irene (2000) C-100m.  D: Bobby Farrelly, Peter Farrelly. Jim Carrey, Renée Zellweger, Robert Forster, Tony Cox, Anthony Anderson, Mongo Brownlee, Jerod Mixon, Chris Cooper, Michael Bowman, Richard Jenkins, Rob Moran. A mild-mannered Rhode Island state trooper suddenly develops an alter ego, unleashing years of pent-up fury. Revealing more of the "plot" would be pointless. A typical Farrelly mishmash of oddball characters and non sequitur bad-taste gags, this one has an air of desperation about it. [R]▼●

Me Myself I (1999-Australian-French) C-104m. ½ D: Pip Karmel. Rachel Griffiths, David Roberts, Sandy Winton, Yael Stone, Shaun Loseby, Trent Sullivan. Fiercely independent career woman realizes that she may have made a mistake putting off marriage and family. She gets to see how the other half lives when she comes face-to-face with the husband and kids she would have experienced had she gone the "soccer mom" route. Comedy-drama takes its time unfolding, but Griffiths is good as always in a "dream" role. Directing debut for Karmel, the editor of SHINE. [R]▼●

Men, The (1950) 85m. ½ D: Fred Zinnemann. Marlon Brando, Teresa Wright, Everett Sloane, Jack Webb, Richard Erdman, Dorothy Tree, Howard St. John, DeForest Kelley. Brando excels in film debut as ex-GI adjusting to life in wheelchair after wartime injury; low-key acting is most effective. Story and screenplay by Carl Foreman. Retitled: BATTLE STRIPE.▼●●

Men ... (1985-German) C-95m. ½ D: Doris Dörrie. Heiner Lauterbach, Uwe Ochsenknecht, Ulrike Kriener, Janna Marangosoff. Ingenious comedy-satire about an uptight adman who becomes haplessly jealous when he learns that his wife's having an affair. He promptly befriends her lover and becomes his roommate, with hilarious results.▼

Men (1998) C-93m.  D: Zoe Clarke-Williams. Sean Young, John Heard, Dylan Walsh, Richard Hillman, Jr., Karen Black, Beau Starr, Shawnee Smith, Glenn Shadix, Annie McEnroe. Trite, pretentious tearjerker about a young woman whose journey of self-discovery and sexual fulfillment takes her from N.Y. to California, where she gets involved with a married middle-aged man and a radical young photographer. Young is good, even if she's too old for the part, but much of her dialogue is unintentionally funny. Karen Black, who cowrote the script, livens things up with a cameo as a blind lesbian with an indecipherable accent. [R]▼●●

Menace II Society (1993) C-97m.  D: Allen and Albert Hughes. Tyrin Turner, Larenz Tate, Jada Pinkett, Vonte Sweet, MC Eith, Ryan Williams, Too Short, Samuel L. Jackson, Charles Dutton, Glenn Plummer, Bill Duke. Powerful, unflinching story of life in the Watts district of Los Angeles and one teenager (Turner) who is too immersed in that violent world to get out. Social points are often hammered home, but the atmosphere of tension and random brutality is captured with searing authenticity. Extremely bloody (and profane) but gripping and well acted in naturalistic fashion. Strong debut by Hughes Brothers, who also cowrote story with screenwriter Tyger Williams. [R]▼●●

Menage (1986-French) C-84m.  D: Bertrand Blier. Gérard Depardieu, Michel Blanc, Miou-Miou, Bruno Cremer, Jean-Pierre Marielle. Outrageous, fast-paced farce about a roguish, gay crook (Depardieu), who thoroughly disrupts the lives of an impoverished couple (Blanc and Miou-Miou)—sexually and otherwise. Peters out at the end but still worth a look. Panavision.▼

Me, Natalie (1969) C-111m. ½ D: Fred Coe. Patty Duke, James Farentino, Martin Balsam, Elsa Lanchester, Salome Jens, Nancy Marchand, Deborah Winters, Al Pacino. Soap opera-ish tale about unattractive N.Y.C. girl struggling to find herself gets tremendous boost by Duke's great performance; otherwise, film wavers uncomfortably between comedy and drama. Pacino's feature debut. [M/PG]

Men at Work (1990) C-99m.  D: Emilio Estevez. Charlie Sheen, Emilio Estevez, Leslie Hope, Keith David, Dean Cameron, John Getz, Cameron Dye, John Putsch. Estevez and real-life brother Sheen play garbage men whose freewheeling lifestyle is interrupted when they discover a dead body along their route. Estevez also wrote the screenplay. Laurel and Hardy they're not, but this sibling duo does provide some undemanding fun—if you check your brain at the door. [PG-13]▼●●

lie Korsmo, Kathy Bates. Widowed Lange, left broke with two sons, relocates from small-town Maryland to downtown Baltimore high rise. Erratic but well-performed comedy-drama is compromised by introduction of movie-predictable Mr. Right. Good moments abound, though, particularly between Lange and Cusack. And ultimately, film offers a good cry. Brickman's second directorial credit, following a seven-year layoff after RISKY BUSINESS. Remake of French film LA VIE CONTINUE. [PG-13] ▼●

Men in Black (1997) C-98m.  D: Barry Sonnenfeld. Tommy Lee Jones, Will Smith, Linda Fiorentino, Rip Torn, Vincent D'Onofrio, Tony Shalhoub, Siobhan Fallon. Hip, funny spin on the usual sci-fi invasion saga. Street-smart NYPD cop Smith is recruited to join Jones on the super-secret team that keeps an eye on thousands of aliens who already populate our planet, without most of us knowing it. When one especially violent visitor starts acting up, it's a race to find the prize he's looking for before Earth is destroyed. Outrageous and original at every turn, with great aliens by Rick Baker (Academy Award winner for Best Makeup, with David LeRoy Anderson), sharp pacing that never lets up, and a snappy script by Ed Solomon, based on the Malibu comic by Lowell Cunningham. Followed by a sequel and an animated TV series. [PG-13] ▼●●

Men in Black II (2002) C-88m.  D: Barry Sonnenfeld. Tommy Lee Jones, Will Smith, Rip Torn, Lara Flynn Boyle, Rosario Dawson, Tony Shalhoub, Patrick Warburton, Johnny Knoxville. Agent Smith tries to coax Agent Jones out of retirement to help fight humankind's latest enemy, an alien in the form of a seductress who can morph into other less-appealing creatures at will. All the fun and freshness of the first film have evaporated in this sequel, which feels as if it was manufactured, like so much product. Cheesy, unconvincing special effects don't help, and celebrity cameos offer only fleeting chuckles. A talking dog gets most of the good lines. [PG-13] ▼●

Men in War (1957) 102m.  D: Anthony Mann. Robert Ryan, Aldo Ray, Robert Keith, Phillip Pine, Nehemiah Persoff, Vic Morrow, James Edwards, L. Q. Jones. In Korea, an American platoon, separated from the main force, joins with a sergeant and nearly-comatose general in an effort to rejoin the main group. Grim, low-key, and psychologically valid, this well-acted film is devoid of stereotypes and clichés; deserves to be better known. ▼●●

is doctor torn between study with Hersholt and marriage to society girl Loy. ▼

Men of Boys Town (1941) 106m. ½ D: Norman Taurog. Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney, Bobs Watson, Larry Nunn, Darryl Hickman, Henry O'Neill, Lee J. Cobb. If you liked BOYS TOWN... ▼●

Men of Honor (2000) C-129m.  D: George Tillman, Jr. Robert De Niro, Cuba Gooding, Jr., Charlize Theron, Anjunae Ellis, Hal Holbrook, David Keith, Michael Rapaport, Powers Boothe, Joshua Leonard, Glynn Turman, Carl Lumbly, Lonette McKee. Old-fashioned but rock-solid biopic of Carl Brashear, the first African-American to become a Navy diver, in the 1950s. Gooding is sincere and believable as a young man of extraordinary determination, even in the face of abuse from his superiors—including diver-turned-instructor De Niro. A real crowd-pleaser, if not exactly true to life. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Men of Respect (1991) C-113m. *½ D: William Reilly. John Turturro, Katherine Borowitz, Dennis Farina, Peter Boyle, Rod Steiger, Lilia Skala, Steven Wright, Stanley Tucci. Pretentious modern-day Macbeth: Hood Turturro, pushed by an ambitious wife, rises to the top by helping blow away mob rivals. The classic sleepwalking scene (you keep wondering how it will be staged) takes place in a courtyard with Borowitz carrying a flashlight! Overacted and underlit. Columbia Pictures' first gangster/Shakespeare hybrid since JOE MACBETH; we're in no hurry for them to try it again. [R] ▼●●

Men's Club, The (1986) C-100m. BOMB D: Peter Medak. David Dukes, Richard Jordan, Harvey Keitel, Frank Langella, Roy Scheider, Craig Wasson, Treat Williams, Stockard Channing, Cindy Pickett, Gwen Welles, Ann Dusenberry, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Ann Wedgeworth. Jumbled, barely released expansion of Leonard Michaels' novel (scripted by the author) about seven males who try starting an encounter group in Jordan's home. Undistinguished performances despite that interesting cast; only noteworthy aspect is the elegant brothel for high-rollers, "The House of Affection." Ridiculous finale. [R] ▼●●

Men Who Tread on the Tiger's Tail, The (1945-Japanese) 60m. ½ D: Akira Kurosawa. Denjiro Okochi, Susumu Fujita, Kenichi Enomoto, Suhu Nishina, Masayuki Mori, Takashi Shimura. Lyrical, humanistic (if modestly produced) fable, set in the 12th century and based on a Kabuki play about a lord who is being hunted by his brother; he and six generals dress as monks and set out on a journey across a heavily fortified barrier. Banned first by Japanese censors, who alleged it was not true to its source material, then by the country's post-WW2 military occupiers because of its depiction of feudal militarism; released in 1953. Enomoto is especially good as a porter. ▼

Men With Guns (1998) C-126m.  D: John Sayles. Federico Luppi, Damián Delgado, Dan Rivera González, Damián Alcázar, Mandy Patinkin, Katherine Grody, Tania Cruz. Dedicated, idealistic Central American doctor decides to track down former students from a government-sponsored program to bring good medicine to remote villages and tribes. This trek becomes an odyssey of discovery for the affluent but naive doctor, who acquires some unlikely companions along the way. Writer-director Sayles takes us on a road we've never traveled before—in Spanish, no less—and though it's long, it's a fascinating journey. [R] ▼●●

Mephisto (1981-Hungarian) C-135m.  D: Istvan Szabo. Klaus Maria Brandauer, Krystyna Janda, Ildiko Bansagi, Karin Boyd, Rolf Hoppe. Brandauer is magnetic as a vain, brilliant German actor who sells himself to gain prestige when the Nazis come to power. Engrossing drama is handsomely produced if a bit uneven. Based on a novel by Klaus Mann, son of Thomas, who committed suicide allegedly because he could not get the book published. Oscar winner for Best Foreign Film. First of a trilogy, followed by COLONEL REDL and HANUSSEN. ▼

Mephisto Waltz, The (1971) C-108m.  D: Paul Wendkos. Alan Alda, Jacqueline Bisset, Barbara Parkins, Curt Jurgens, Brad Dillman, William Windom, Kathleen Widdoes. Chiller about young journalist who falls prey to Satanic cult after meeting dying concert pianist Jurgens; good occult story with some truly frightening moments. Adapted by Ben Maddow from the Fred Mustard Stewart novel. [R] ▼

Mercenaries, The SEE: Cuba Crossing
Mercenary, The (1968-Italian) C-105m. ½ D: Sergio Corbucci. Franco Nero, Tony Musante, Jack Palance, Giovanna Ralli. Better-than-average Italian pasta Western with loads of action and violence and a welcome serving of humor. At odds with one another: a stalwart mercenary (Nero), his sadistic rival (Palance), a patriotic revolutionary (Musante), a lusty peasant girl, a greedy mineowner. Video title: A PROFESSIONAL GUN. Techniscope. [PG] ▼

Merchant of Four Seasons, The (1971-German) C-88m.  D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Hans Hirschmuller, Irm Hermann, Hanna Schygulla, Andrea Schober. Fruit peddler trapped in unhappy marriage and frustrated with life disintegrates mentally and emotionally in this surprisingly rich and poignant meditation on mundane existence and failed dreams. ▼

Merchant of Venice, The (2004-U.S.-Italian-British-Luxembourg) C-126m. ½ D: Michael Radford. Al Pacino, Jeremy Irons, Joseph Fiennes, Lynn Collins, Zuleikha Robinson, Kris Marshall, Charlie Cox, Heather Goldenhersh, Mackenzie Crook, John Sessions, Gregor Fisher, Ron Cook, Allan Corduner. Intelligent, frequently riveting adaptation of Shakespeare's controversial tale of Shylock (Pacino), a Jewish moneylender in 1596 Venice, and his plight after advancing 3,000 ducats to merchant Irons. Shylock may have been fashioned as a caricature, but Radford (who also adapted the play) presents the character sympathetically and emphasizes that, in 16th-century Venice, Jews were the victims of prejudice. Exceedingly well acted, particularly by Pacino (despite his New York accent). Aka WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE'S THE MERCHANT OF VENICE. Super 35. [R] ▼

Merchants of Death SEE: B.O.R.N.

Merci Docteur Rey (2003-U.S.-French) C-91m.  D: Andrew Litvack. Dianne Wiest, Jane Birkin, Stanislas Merhar, Bulle Ogier, Karim Salah, Simon Callow, Jerry Hall, Vanessa Redgrave. Campy mystery-comedy involving a young phone-sex fanatic, his diva mother, and several other oddball characters, including a Vanessa Redgrave wannabe (and the star herself, in a brief cameo). Murder, mayhem, and, sadly, a shortage of real wit fill this mixed bag. Without the talents of the glorious Wiest and the sublime Paris locations there would be little to recommend here. A Merchant-Ivory production. ●

Merci Pour le Chocolat (2000-French-Swiss) C-99m. ½ D: Claude Chabrol. Isabelle Huppert, Jacques Dutronc, Anna Mouglalis, Rodolphe Pauly, Brigitte Catillon. Swiss heiress remarries her first husband, a piano virtuoso. Then an attractive young female pianist shows up and reveals she may be part of the family. Subdued psychological thriller is most nuanced talk, with Chabrol favorite Huppert well suited to the role of perverse matriarch. Aka NIGHTCAP. ▼

Mercury Rising (1998) C-112m. ½ D: Harold Becker. Bruce Willis, Alec Baldwin, Miko Hughes, Chi McBride, Kim Dickens, Robert Stanton, Bodhi Pine Elfman, Carrie Preston, L. L. Ginter, Camryn Manheim. An autistic nine-year-old boy innocently cracks a top-secret government code; cold-eyed bureaucrat Baldwin orders him killed, while over-the-hill FBI agent Willis tries to protect him. Except for the boy's autism, a routine suspense thriller, but well made and interesting throughout. Willis's standard action hero character shows a softer side here, while Baldwin plays an out-and-out heavy. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Meridian (1990) C-85m.  D: Charles Band. Sherilyn Fenn, Malcolm Jamieson, Charlie, Hilary Mason, Alex Daniels.

Gothic tale about art student (Fenn) who becomes heiress to Italian castle—and its curse. OK variation on Beauty and the Beast doesn't hold up past the first hour, in spite of extensive nudity. Aka KISS OF THE BEAST. From Full Moon. [R]▼●●

Mermmaids (1990) C-111m.  D: Richard Benjamin. Cher, Bob Hoskins, Winona Ryder, Michael Schoeffling, Christina Ricci, Caroline McWilliams, Jan Miner. Saucy, sexy single mother of two is a source of constant embarrassment to her teenage daughter, who's trying to deal with her own sexual awakening—and not having an easy time of it. Lively mix of comedy and drama set in New England in the early 1960s. Funny and affecting, with a standout performance by Ryder; based on a novel by Patty Dann. [PG-13]▼●●

Merrill's Marauders (1962) C-98m. ½ D: Samuel Fuller. Jeff Chandler, Ty Hardin, Peter Brown, Andrew Duggan, Will Hutchins, Claude Akins, John Hoyt. Gritty war film; a WW2 actioner with Chandler (his last screen role) cast as Brig. Gen. Frank Merrill, leader of a band of GIs battling the Japanese in the Burmese jungle. Fuller coscripted. CinemaScope.▼●●

Merry Andrew (1958) C-103m. ½ D: Michael Kidd. Danny Kaye, Pier Angeli, Baccaloni, Robert Coote. Danny is a British teacher-archeologist with a yen for the circus and one of its performers (Angeli) in this bright musicomedy. Not as wacky as earlier Kaye efforts, but good. CinemaScope.

Merry Christmas Mr. Lawrence (1983-British-Japanese) C-122m.  D: Nagisa Oshima. Tom Conti, David Bowie, Ryuichi Sakamoto, Takeshi, Jack Thompson. Oshima's first film in English (for the most part) is strange, haunting drama set in Japanese POW camp, centering on test of wills between martinet commander Sakamoto and British major Bowie. Quite rewarding for those willing to stick with it, but it does take some effort; splendid performances all around, especially Takeshi as tough sergeant and Conti as title character, camp's only bilingual prisoner. Japanese music superstar Sakamoto also composed the score. [R]▼

Merry Gentleman, The (2009) C-96m.  D: Michael Keaton. Michael Keaton, Kelly Macdonald, Tom Bastounes, Bobby Cannavale, Darlene Hunt, Guy Van Swearingen, William Dick. Austere but stylish chamber thriller about a woman (Macdonald) fleeing an abusive husband (Cannavale) who tries to start a new life in Chicago. Extremely vulnerable, she keeps to herself but strikes up a relationship with another loner (Keaton) who, unbeknownst to her, works as a hit man. Impressive directorial debut for Keaton, working from Ron Lazeretti's screenplay, but it's Macdonald who really makes the film worth seeing. Super 35. [R]

Merry War, A (1997-British) C-102m.

 D: Robert Bierman. Richard E. Grant, Helena Bonham Carter, Julian Wadham, Jim Carter, Harriet Walter, Lesley Vickerage, Liz Smith, Barbara Leigh-Hunt. Sweet, enjoyable comedy-satire about an advertising man (Grant) who is captivated by the concept of offering his life to "art." He quits his day job and embraces a Bohemian lifestyle as he sets out to become a full-time poet, all the while maintaining a relationship with his ex-coworker/girlfriend (Bonham Carter). Based on Keep the Aspidistra Flying, a semi-autobiographical novel by George Orwell; it played the film festival circuit under that title.▼●

Merry Widow, The (1934) 99m.  D: Ernst Lubitsch. Maurice Chevalier, Jeanette MacDonald, Una Merkel, Edward Everett Horton, George Barbier, Herman Bing. Chevalier (as Count Danilo) is sent to Paris to lure a wealthy widow (MacDonald) back to her homeland of Marshovia, where her taxes keep the tiny country afloat. Charming reinvention of the famous operetta gets the fabled Lubitsch touch. Many of the original Franz Lehár songs remain, with new lyrics by Lorenz Hart and Gus Kahn. Filmed before in 1925, again in 1952.▼●

Merry Widow, The (1952) C-105m. ½ D: Curtis Bernhardt. Lana Turner, Fernando Lamas, Una Merkel, Richard Haydn. Franz Lehár's operetta has been rewritten (the widow is now a glamorous American who poses as a Parisian chorus girl) and the production is sumptuous, but there's no zing in this glossy remake.▼

Merton of the Movies (1947) 82m.  D: Robert Alton. Red Skelton, Virginia O'Brien, Gloria Grahame, Leon Ames, Alan Mowbray, Hugo Haas. Lifeless remake of George S. Kaufman-Marc Connelly play (filmed before in 1924 and 1932) about movie-struck simpleton's adventures in Hollywood. A real disappointment. Choreographer Alton's directing debut.▼

Mesmerized (1986-British-Australian-New Zealand) C-97m. ½ D: Michael Laughlin. Jodie Foster, John Lithgow, Michael Murphy, Harry Andrews, Dan Shor, Reg Evans. Weird, ultimately silly drama about innocent orphan Foster who weds older man Lithgow in late-19th-century New Zealand. Laughlin adapted from Jerzy Skolimowski story. Aka SHOCKED. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Message, The SEE: Mohammad, Messenger of God

Message from Space (1978-Japanese) C-105m. ½ D: Kinji Fukasaku. Vic Morrow, Sonny Chiba, Philip Casnoff, Peggy Lee Brennan, Sue Shiomi, Tetsuro Tamba. Embattled planet sends SOS, and intergalactic team comes to its rescue. Cardboard performances take back seat to special effects and "cute" robot, both obviously patterned after STAR WARS. ToeiScope. [PG]

Message in a Bottle (1999) C-132m. ½ D: Luis Mandoki. Kevin Costner, Robin

Wright Penn, Paul Newman, John Savage, Illeana Douglas, Robbie Coltrane, Jesse James, Bethel Leslie, Tom Aldredge, Viveka Davis, Raphael Sbarge, Rosemary Murphy. Sappy, old-fashioned romance based on Nicholas Sparks' novel about a Chicago newspaper researcher who finds a bottle washed ashore and in it a passionate letter from a man to his lover. She becomes obsessed with tracking down the writer, and when she finds him (widower Costner) she doesn't reveal that their meeting was not by chance. Too long, too slow, but enjoyable escapism if you buy into it, with Wright Penn nicely cast against type, and Newman in fine form as Costner's starchy father. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Message to Love: The Isle of Wight Music Festival (1996) C-128m.  D: Murray Lerner. The Who, The Doors, Joan Baez, Joni Mitchell, Jimi Hendrix, Jethro Tull, Emerson, Lake and Palmer, Tiny Tim, The Moody Blues, Kris Kristofferson, Miles Davis, Donovan. Top-notch documentary chronicling the on- and offstage activities at Great Britain's version of Woodstock/Altamont: the 1970 Isle of Wight Festival, a musical smorgasbord that was as ineptly organized as it was musically significant. Pricelless footage of rock acts, including Hendrix and The Doors' Jim Morrison just before their deaths. Because of financing problems, it took Lerner a quarter-century to complete this.▼●●

Messenger of Death (1988) C-91m. *½ D: J. Lee Thompson. Charles Bronson, Trish Van Devere, Laurence Luckinbill, Jeff Corey, Marilyn Hassett, John Ireland, Daniel Benzali. Boring Bronson vehicle casts him as a reporter determined to get to the bottom of an odd murder case involving two warring Mormon sects led by Corey and Ireland. By-the-numbers filmmaking wastes a potentially interesting look at a different culture. [R]▼●●

Messengers, The (2007) C-90m.  D: Danny Pang, Oxide Pang. Kristen Stewart, Dylan McDermott, Penelope Ann Miller, John Corbett, Dustin Milligan. A family trying to make a fresh start moves from the city to an abandoned farm (where, it turns out, the prior owners were mysteriously murdered). Troubled teenage daughter Stewart immediately sees and senses things that her parents are unaware of; before long, these nasty spirits close in on her and her baby brother. Anemic horror film is all setup with little payoff, eerie but not scary. American debut for Hong Kong directors the Pang Brothers. Followed by a DVD sequel. [PG-13]●

Messenger: The Story of Joan of Arc, The (1999-French-U.S.) C-148m. ½ D: Luc Besson. Milla Jovovich, John Malkovich, Faye Dunaway, Dustin Hoffman, Pascal Greggory, Vincent Cassel, Tchéky Karyo, Richard Ridings, Desmond Harrington, Timothy West. Arresting approach to the story of

Joan of Arc, with a vibrant Jovovich as the peasant girl who leads her countrymen into battle. But in this version (scripted by Besson and Andrew Birkin) she also questions herself, which causes the film to lose momentum after a rousing first half that's filled with vivid, in-your-face battle scenes. Alternate version runs 158m. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Meteor (1979) C-103m. *½ D: Ronald Neame. Sean Connery, Natalie Wood, Karl Malden, Brian Keith, Henry Fonda, Martin Landau, Trevor Howard, Richard Dysart. Switzerland, Hong Kong, and Manhattan all get a big piece of the rock when a giant meteor comes crashing to Earth. Late entry in Hollywood's disaster cycle wastes fine cast with dull script, shoddy effects. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Metro (1997) C-117m. ½ D: Thomas Carter. Eddie Murphy, Michael Rapaport, Michael Wincott, Carmen Ejogo, Denis Arndt, Art Evans, Donal Logue, Kim Miyori. Murphy is a self-assured hostage negotiator for the San Francisco police, but this action film needs his thousand-watt personality to keep it afloat. Plotting is cluttered and predictable, with a heinous villain (Wincott) who proves so indestructible that when he finally dies, there's no satisfaction because we're not sure he's really finished! Action highlight: a runaway cable car. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Metroland (1998-British) C-97m. ½ D: Philip Saville. Christian Bale, Emily Watson, Lee Ross, Elsa Zylberstein, Rufus, Jonathan Aris, Ifan Meredith, Amanda Ryan, John Wood. 1977: Chris (Bale), a comfortably married man, is visited by his oldest friend, a vagabond poet, who forces him to reflect on his Bohemian days in late '60s Paris and question the value of middle-class existence in London suburbia. A thoughtful though basically unsurprising examination of compromised dreams, bolstered by the performances of Bale and Watson. Adrian Hodges adapted Julian Barnes' novel.▼

Metropolis (1927-German) 124m. * D: Fritz Lang. Brigitte Helm, Alfred Abel, Gustav Froelich, Rudolf Klein-Rogge, Fritz Rasp. Classic silent-film fantasy of futuristic city and its mechanized society, with upper-class young man abandoning his life of luxury to join oppressed workers in a revolt. Heavy going at times, but startling set design and special effects command attention throughout. Many shorter prints exist; reissued in 1984 at 87m. with color tints and score by Giorgio Moroder. Definitive German restoration debuted in 2002. ▼●●

Metropolis (2001-Japanese) C-106m.  D: Rintaro. Voices of Yuka Imoto, Kei Kobayashi, Kohki Okada, Taro Ishida, Kousei Tomita. A private detective and his nephew track a suspect to futuristic Metropolis, meet a mysterious girl who is actually a very powerful robot, and unravel a plot by a military leader who plans to take over the city. Spectacular Japanese anime with original story inspired by Fritz Lang's classic film. Written by Katsuhiro Otomo (AKIRA), based on a graphic novel by Osamu Tezuka (Astro Boy). Opulent backdrops contrast with cartoony-looking lead characters, but dramatic storytelling and powerful visuals overcome film's shortcomings. [PG-13] ▼●

Metropolitan (1990) C-98m.  D: Whit Stillman. Carolyn Farina, Edward Clements, Christopher Eigeman, Taylor Nichols, Allison Rutledge-Parisi, Dylan Hundley, Isabel Gillies, Bryan Leder, Will Kempe, Elizabeth Thompson. Title might suggest teeming masses, but this thoroughly original little film looks instead at N.Y.C.'s upper crust—specifically, the inner circle of debutantes (who haven't yet "come out"), preppies, and their way of life. Social comedy, brimming with irony, is set during Christmas season, with loner Clements drawn into small clique of friends. Sharply written by first-time director Stillman, and well acted by cast of newcomers; Eigeman, as Nick, is a standout. [PG-13] ▼●●

Me Without You (2001-British-German) C-107m. ½ D: Sandra Goldbacher. Anna Friel, Michelle Williams, Oliver Milburn, Trudie Styler, Marianne Denicourt, Steve John Shepherd, Nicky Henson, Allan Corduner, Kyle MacLachlan, Anna Popplewell. Shy, sensitive Williams and loose, outgoing Friel have been best pals since childhood, but as they come of age their friendship is compromised. Potentially intriguing female buddy film has some forceful moments, but it doesn't gel. [R] ▼●

Mexican, The (2001) C-123m.  D: Gore Verbinski. Brad Pitt, Julia Roberts, James Gandolfini, J.K. Simmons, Michael Cerveris, Bob Balaban, David Krumholtz, Steve Rossi. Barely adequate, overlong caper comedy starring America's sweethearts as a bickering couple who (separately) get involved with thugs all over the Southwest and Mexico. While Pitt hunts down the titular weapon, an antique pistol, amid every conceivable calamity, Roberts and mobster Gandolfini become irrepressible buddies. Gandolfini, predictably, steals the show. Gene Hackman appears unbilled. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Miami Blues (1990) C-99m.  D: George Armitage. Fred Ward, Alec Baldwin, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Nora Dunn, Charles Napier, Jose Perez, Paul Gleason, Obba Babatundé, Martine Beswick. Psychopathic thief and murderer (Baldwin) arrives in Miami, hooks up with a naive young woman who's blind to his problems, and sets a world-weary cop on his trail by stealing the detective's badge and I.D. Three dynamic performances and some hip, high-style filmmaking command your attention—but the rampant amorality and violence leave a bad taste. Jonathan Demme and costar Ward were among the producers. From the Charles Willford novel. [R] ▼●●

Miami Rhapsody (1995) C-95m.  D: David Frankel. Sarah Jessica Parker, Mia Farrow, Antonio Banderas, Gil Bellows, Paul Mazursky, Carla Gugino, Naomi Campbell, Kevin Pollak, Mark Blum, Ben Stein. Young woman is afraid of committing to marriage, given the tumult of her parents' and siblings' marital lives. Only problem is that she can't seem to stop talking about it. Light comedy, with serious undertones, almost sinks under the weight of talk: an incessant stream of one-line, sitcom-style jokes. Written by the director. Overbearing big band-style score by Mark Isham. [PG-13] ▼●●

Miami Vice (2006) C-134m. ½ D: Michael Mann. Jamie Foxx, Colin Farrell, Gong Li, Naomie Harris, Ciarán Hinds, Justin Theroux, Barry Shabaka Henley, Luis Tosar, John Ortiz, Elizabeth Rodriguez, Eddie Marsan, John Hawkes, Isaach De Bankolé. Miami detectives Crockett and Tubbs are back from the stylish 1980s TV series, but this time their pursuit of a ruthless drug lord takes them to Central and South America . . . and Crockett pursues an improbable relationship with the drug czar's sexy business partner. Super-cool cars, boats, planes keep this fantasy version of cops-and-robbers watchable on a make-believe level, but the final showdown is awfully conventional. Mann, who coexecutive produced the original series, also wrote this

Michael Clayton (2007) C-120m.  D: Tony Gilroy. George Clooney, Tom Wilkinson, Tilda Swinton, Sydney Pollack, Michael O'Keefe, Ken Howard, David Lansbury, Denis O'Hare, Austin Williams. The morals of a corporate law firm's "fixer" (Clooney) are put to the test when one of its lead attorneys (Wilkinson) reveals damaging evidence in a huge class-action lawsuit. Rock-solid thriller and character study may fall back on some stock elements, but writer/first-time director Gilroy tells his story with supreme assurance, avoiding a lot of obvious melodramatic pitfalls. Wilkinson is tops in an excellent cast and Clooney offers a textbook lesson in understated acting by a Movie Star. Swinton's performance earned her a Best Supporting Actress Oscar. Be sure to sit through the credits. Panavision. [R]●

Michael Collins (1996-U.S.-Irish) C-132m.  D: Neil Jordan. Liam Neeson, Aidan Quinn, Julia Roberts, Stephen Rea, Alan Rickman, Ian Hart, Brendan Gleeson, Charles Dance, Gerard McSorley, Jonathan Rhys Myers (Meyers). Politically charged story of Irish rebel leader Collins (Neeson), who with charm, guts, and idealistic fervor leads the fight against British rule in the teens and '20s. Dynamic and powerful first half gives way to more sober and inevitable conclusion, in which Collins is forced to become a diplomat and compromiser—sowing the seeds of his own demise. Neeson is excellent and surrounded by a first-rate cast in this persuasive, believable, and violent period piece, beautifully filmed by Chris Menges. Jordan also scripted. [R]▼●●

Mickey Blue Eyes (1999-U.S.-British) C-103m. ½ D: Kelly Makin. Hugh Grant, James Caan, Jeanne Tripplehorn, Burt Young, James Fox, Joe Viterelli, Gerry Becker, Maddie Corman. Fitfully amusing farce about a N.Y.C. art auctioneer who asks his girlfriend to marry him—never dreaming that she's part of an Italian mob family. Soon, he's pressed into doing favors for some of "the boys." Starts out funny but soon sputters. [PG-13]▼●●

Mickey One (1965) 93m. ½ D: Arthur Penn. Warren Beatty, Hurd Hatfield, Alexandra Stewart, Franchot Tone, Teddy Hart, Jeff Corey, Kamatari Fujiwara, Donna Michelle. Nightclub comic in trouble with mob takes it on the lam and assumes a new identity. Offbeat, to say the least; Penn's version of a French New Wave film; heavy with visual symbols but we're not quite sure what it's all about. Fine jazz score by Eddie Sauter with solos by Stan Getz.▼●●

Micki + Maude (1984) C-118m. ½ D: Blake Edwards. Dudley Moore, Amy Irving, Ann Reinking, Richard Mulligan, George Gaynes, Wallace Shawn, John Pleshette, Lu Leonard, Priscilla Pointer, George Coe. Overwrought soap opera featuring several storylines involving characters who frequent a bar at the title locale in Mexico City. Although based on a novel by Nobel Prize winner Naguib Mahfouz, the characters are disappointingly one-dimensional. Hayek is a striking presence as Alma, a poor beauty driven to desperate acts.▼●

Midas Run (1969) C-106m. ½ D: Alf Kjellin. Fred Astaire, Richard Crenna, Anne Heywood, Ralph Richardson, Roddy McDowall, Cesar Romero. British secret serviceman plots a daring gold heist in this routine caper film, enlivened by Astaire's peerless presence in lead. Fred Astaire, Jr., appears briefly as plane's copilot. [MPG]

for pro-football cheerleader Wakeham. Nothing new; inspired by the hit song. [R]▼
Middle of the World, The (1974-French-Swiss) C-115m.  D: Alain Tanner. Olimpia Carlisi, Philippe Léotard, Juliet Berto, Jacques Denis, Roger Jendly. Intelligent, quietly effective tale of married engineer Léotard, running for political office, who has scandalous affair with waitress Carlisi.

Midnight (1939) 94m. ½ D: Mitchell Leisen. Claudette Colbert, Don Ameche, John Barrymore, Francis Lederer, Mary Astor, Hedda Hopper, Monty Woolley. Penniless Colbert masquerades as Hungarian countess in chic Parisian marital mixup; near-classic comedy written by Billy Wilder and Charles Brackett. Barrymore's antics are especially memorable. Remade as MASQUERADE IN MEXICO.▼

Midnight (1981) C-94m. ½ D: John Russo. Lawrence Tierney, Melanie Verliin, John Amplas, John Hall, Charles Jackson, Doris Hackney. Low-budget horror, shot in Pennsylvania, isn't bad. Unfortunate teenager Verliin, driven out of her home by a lecherous policeman stepfather (Tierney), meets two young thieves and then a family of cultists who sacrifice young women. Russo adapted his own novel. Aka BACKWOODS MASSACRE. Followed by a sequel. [R]▼

Midnight (1989) C-86m. *½ D: Norman Thaddeus Vane. Lynn Redgrave, Tony Curtis, Steven Parrish, Frank Gorshin, Wolfman Jack, Rita Gam. Tiresome story of TV horror-movie hostess who finds people around her mysteriously dying. Always-watchable Redgrave does her best, but meager, slow-moving script does her in. A longer "director's cut" had theatrical showings following its video release. [R]▼●

Midnight Clear, A (1992) C-107m. ½ D: Keith Gordon. Peter Berg, Kevin Dillon, Arye Gross, Ethan Hawke, Gary Sinise, Frank Whaley, John C. McGinley, Larry Joshua, Curt Lowens. Top-notch anti-war drama, about a squad of young American GI's (led by Hawke) on a mission in the Ardennes Forest near the end of WW2. Refreshingly unhurried film is filled with insight, irony, and eloquence. Extremely well acted and directed; Gordon also scripted, from William Wharton's novel. [R]▼●

Midnight Cop (1989-West German) C-96m. ½ D: Peter Patzak. Armin Mueller-Stahl, Michael York, Morgan Fairchild, Frank Stallone, Julia Kent, Monica Bleibtreu, Allegra Curtis. Slow but interesting murder mystery pitting quirky Berlin cop against both a serial killer and a blackmailer. Overdone tenor sax jazz score and murky plot developments hamper things, but Mueller-Stahl is very good. [R]▼

Midnight Cowboy (1969) C-113m.  D: John Schlesinger. Dustin Hoffman, Jon Voight, Sylvia Miles, John McGiver, Brenda Vaccaro, Barnard Hughes, Ruth White, Jennifer Salt, Bob Balaban. Emotionally shattering dramatization of James Leo Herlihy's novel was rated X in 1969, but it's essentially an old-fashioned story with some unusual modern twists: hayseed Voight comes to N.Y.C. in hopes of becoming a freelance stud, and develops unusual and deep friendship with seedy Ratso Rizzo (Hoffman). Seamiest side of N.Y.C. is backdrop for compelling, keen-eyed character study that if anything looks better today than it did when it came out. Won Best Picture, Director, Screenplay (Waldo Salt) Oscars. Graphic effects by Pablo Ferro. [R—edited from original X rating]▼●

Midnight Crossing (1988) C-104m. *½ D: Roger Holzberg. Faye Dunaway, Daniel J. Travanti, Kim Cattrall, Ned Beatty, John Laughlin. Hokey, boring, needlessly violent soap-adventure, with insurance agent Travanti intent on recovering some booty he and his late pal buried years before. Dunaway is thanklessly cast as his wife, who is blind. [R]▼●

Midnight Express (1978) C-121m. ½ D: Alan Parker. Brad Davis, Irene Miracle, Bo Hopkins, Randy Quaid, John Hurt, Mike Kellin, Paul Smith. Riveting, harshly violent story of young American Billy Hayes (Davis), who faces physical and emotional brutalization in Turkish prison after being caught drug-smuggling. Great moviemaking, though not as faithful to Hayes' true story as filmmakers would have us believe. Oscar winner for Oliver Stone's script and Giorgio Moroder's score. [R]▼●

Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil (1997) C-155m.  D: Clint Eastwood. Kevin Spacey, John Cusack, Jack Thompson, The Lady Chablis, Alison Eastwood, Irma P. Hall, Paul Hipp, Jude Law, Dorothy Loudon, Anne Haney, Kim Hunter, Geoffrey Lewis, Richard Herd, James Moody. Meandering adaptation of John Berendt's best-seller about some of the more eccentric denizens of Savannah, Georgia. Cusack plays a N.Y. reporter assigned to cover Spacey's A-list Christmas party; when that gracious, nouveau riche bon vivant is accused of murder later the same night, Cusack decides to stick around and see what happens. Never terribly compelling, despite several likable performances, and fatally overlong. [R]▼●

Midnight Lace (1960) C-108m.  D: David Miller. Doris Day, Rex Harrison, John Gavin, Myrna Loy, Roddy McDowall, Herbert Marshall, Natasha Parry, Anthony Dawson. Shriill murder mystery; unbelievable plot line, but star cast and decor smooth over rough spots. Set in London; redone as a TVM in 1980.▼

Midnight Madness (1980) C-110m. BOMB D: David Wechter, Michael Nankin. David Naughton, Debra Clinger, Eddie Deezen, Brad Wilkin, Maggie Roswell, Stephen Furst. Idiotic comedy about college students participating in an all-night scavenger hunt. Nothing to stay up for (unless you want to see Michael J. Fox in his feature film debut). [PG]▼

Midnight Man, The (1974) C-117m. ½ D: Roland Kibbee, Burt Lancaster. Burt Lancaster, Susan Clark, Cameron Mitchell, Morgan Woodward, Joan Loring, Ed Lauter, Catherine Bach, Linda Kelsey, Harris Yulin. Involved, overlong mystery with Lancaster as college security officer looking into a coed's murder. Lancaster and Kibbee also cowrote and coproduced. [R]

Midnight Mary (1933) 74m.  D: William A. Wellman. Loretta Young, Ricardo Cortez, Franchot Tone, Andy Devine, Una Merkel, Frank Conroy, Warren Hymer. Visually arresting story, told in flashback, of hard luck Young, orphaned at nine, seduced at sixteen, sent to prison. Loaded with Wellman flourishes, and Loretta is mesmerizingly beautiful. Story by Anita Loos.▶

Midnight Run (1988) C-122m. ½ D: Martin Brest. Robert De Niro, Charles Grodin, Yaphet Kotto, John Ashton, Dennis Farina, Joe Pantoliano, Wendy Phillips, Richard Foronjy. Socko action-comedy with bounty hunter (and ex-cop) De Niro determined to bring bail-jumper Grodin, an embezzling accountant, from N.Y. to L.A. What De Niro doesn't know is that the Mob is also on Grodin's trail—with orders to kill. Sensational byplay between the stars is matched by first-rate action and a sharply written script by George Gallo. Director Brest handles the blend of violence and comedy as well as he did in BEVERLY HILLS COP. Dynamic music score by Danny Elfman. Followed by a TV series. [R]▼●●

Midnight Story, The (1957) 89m. ½ D: Joseph Pevney. Tony Curtis, Marisa Pavan, Gilbert Roland, Ted de Corsia, Kathleen Freeman. Atmospheric murder yam with Curtis an ex-cop seeking the culprit who killed neighborhood priest. CinemaScope.

Midsummer Night's Dream, A (1935) 117m.  D: Max Reinhardt, William Dieterle. James Cagney, Dick Powell, Joe E. Brown, Jean Muir, Hugh Herbert, Olivia de Havilland, Ian Hunter, Frank McHugh, Victor Jory, Ross Alexander, Verree Teasdale, Anita Louise, Mickey Rooney, Arthur Treacher, Billy Barty. Hollywood-Shakespeare has good and bad points; Cagney as Bottom and the Mendelssohn music are among good parts; Hugh Herbert and other incongruous cast members make up the latter. After a while Rooney (as Puck) gets to be a bit too much. Hal

Mohr's glistening cinematography won an Oscar—the only one ever awarded on a write-in. This was the only sound film of esteemed European stage director Reinhardt. Film debut of Olivia de Havilland (who had appeared in Reinhardt's Hollywood Bowl production of the play a year earlier). Originally 132m.▼●●

Midsummer Night's Dream, A (1966) C-93m. ½ D: Dan Eriksen. Suzanne Farrell, Edward Villella, Arthur Mitchell, Mimi Paul, Nicholas Magallanes. Filmed record of New York City Ballet's presentation of Shakespeare's comedy is mostly for dance buffs; makes some attempt to be cinematic, but not enough. Panavision.

Midsummer Night's Dream, A (1999) C-115m. ½ D: Michael Hoffman. Kevin Kline, Michelle Pfeiffer, Rupert Everett, Stanley Tucci, Calista Flockhart, Anna Friel, Christian Bale, Dominic West, David Strathairn, Sophie Marceau, Roger Rees, Max Wright, Gregory Jbara, Bill Irwin, Sam Rockwell, Bernard Hill, John Sessions. Shakespeare's classic comedy transported from ancient Greece to late-19th-century Italy (complete with newly invented bicycles). Young love runs wild, with Everett and Pfeiffer as King and Queen of the Fairies, Tucci a spirited Puck and Kline (in his element) a buffoonish Bottom. Works better in parts than as a whole, but still enjoyable for lovers of the play. Full on-screen title is WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE'S A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM. 2.35 Research PLC. [PG-13]▼●●

Midsummer Night's Sex Comedy, A (1982) C-88m.  D: Woody Allen. Woody Allen, Mia Farrow, Jose Ferrer, Mary Steenburgen, Tony Roberts, Julie Hagerty. SMILES OF A SUMMER NIGHT, Woody Allen-style; a quirky, entertaining diversion about sexual byplay among three couples on a summer weekend in the country, circa 1900. Appealing cast (including Farrow, in first film with Woody), exquisite Gordon Willis photography. [PG]▼

Midway (1976) C-132m.  D: Jack Smight. Charlton Heston, Henry Fonda, James Coburn, Glenn Ford, Hal Holbrook, Robert Mitchum, Cliff Robertson, Toshiro Mifune, Robert Wagner, Edward Albert, Robert Webber, Ed Nelson, James Shigeta, Monte Markham, Christopher George, Glenn Corbett. Prominent cast acts to reels of stock shots from THIRTY SECONDS OVER TOKYO, antique Japanese war films, and actual wartime footage. Silly soap opera (Heston's ensign son in love with Japanese girl) doesn't help. Still, some of the drama and impact of the great naval battle comes through. Many familiar faces in cast: Tom Selleck, Kevin Dobson, Pat Morita, Dabney Coleman, Erik Estrada, Steve Kanaly, etc. Paul Frees dubbed Mifune's English dialogue. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Midwinter's Tale, A (1995-British) 98m. ½ D: Kenneth Branagh. Michael Maloney, Richard Briers, Mark Hadfield, Nicholas Farrell, Gerard Horan, John Sessions, Celia Imrie, Hetta Chumley, Julia Sawalha, Joan Collins, Jennifer Saunders. Unemployed actor decides to mount a free-form production of Hamlet in a remote English town with an all-volunteer cast and crew. Uneven comedy hits its stride in the final portion of the film as the cast and production for the play come together and the parallels between their real lives and their stage lives are revealed. A little too pat, but likable. Original screenplay by Branagh, who tailored many of the parts for these specific actors. Original British title: IN THE BLEAK MIDWINTER. [R] ▼●●

Mifune (1999-Danish) C-99m. ½ D: Soren Kragh-Jacobsen. Anders W. Berthelsen, Iben Hjejle, Jesper Asholt, Emil Tarding, Anders Hove, Sofie Gråbøl, Paprika Steen, Mette Bratlann. A newly married businessman returns home to take care of his mentally handicapped brother after their father dies. Complications follow when the housekeeper he hires turns out to be an ex-hooker with problems of her own. Filmed according to the spartan cinematic rules of Dogma 95, this has good acting and lovely isolated moments, but not enough to overcome a thin story with few surprises. Mifune, by the way, refers to actor Toshiro. [R] ▼●●

Mighty, The (1998) C-100m. ½ D: Peter Chelsom. Kieran Culkin, Elden Henson, Sharon Stone, Gena Rowlands, Harry Dean Stanton, Gillian Anderson, James Gandolfini, Meat Loaf, Jenifer Lewis. Beautifully realized story of two young misfits who bond together and become, in their hearts and imaginations, invincible as the knights of old. Poetic and heart-rending, with remarkable performances by the youthful leading actors. Screenplay by Charles Leavitt from the novel Freak the Mighty by Rodman Philbrick. [PG-13] ▼●●

Mighty Aphrodite (1995) C-95m.  D: Woody Allen. F. Murray Abraham, Woody Allen, Claire Bloom, Helena Bonham Carter, Olympia Dukakis, Michael Rapaport, Mira Sorvino, David Ogden Stiers, Jack Warden, Peter Weller, Steven Randazzo, Donald Symington, Rosemary Murphy, Tony Sirico, Paul Giamatti. Highly entertaining fluff with Woody as a happily married man whose wife convinces him to adopt a baby; then, years later, he becomes obsessed with learning about (and getting to know) the boy's real mother. Sorvino is sensational in an Oscar-winning performance as the woman in question. [R] ▼●●

Mighty Ducks, The (1992) C-100m.  D: Stephen Herek. Emilio Estevez, Joss Ackland, Lane Smith, Heidi Kling, Josef Sommer, Joshua Jackson, Elden Ratliff (Hansen), Shaun Weiss, Matt Doherty. Harmless, clichéd Disney yarn of self-centered yuppie lawyer Estevez who's busted for drunk-driving, ordered to do community service, and assigned to coach a ragtag inner-city pee-wee hockey team. Guess what happens next. (Anaheim-based pro hockey team was formed by Disney in 1993 called . . . you guessed it.) Followed by D2: THE MIGHTY DUCKS, D3: THE MIGHTY DUCKS, an animated series, and a TVM based on that series. [PG] ▼●●

Mighty Heart, A (2007) C-108m.  D: Michael Winterbottom. Angelina Jolie, Dan Futterman, Archie Panjabi, Irrfan Khan, Will Patton, Denis O'Hare, Adnan Siddiqui, Gary Wilmes, Alyy Khan. Gripping account of Wall Street Journal reporter Daniel Pearl's 2002 kidnapping in Pakistan and the desperate efforts of his journalist wife Mariane (Jolie) and others to find him. Jolie is excellent in this superbly crafted film, which unfolds in documentary style that does not cheapen the tragic subject matter but tends to keep the viewer at an emotional distance. Based on Mariane's memoir. Brad Pitt coproduced. Super 35. [R] ●

Mighty Joe Young (1949) 94m.  D: Ernest B. Schoedsack. Terry Moore, Ben Johnson, Robert Armstrong, Mr. Joseph Young, Frank McHugh. Updating of KING KONG theme has comparable (and Oscar-winning) stop-motion special effects by Willis O'Brien and Ray Harryhausen, but no matching storyline, and Moore is no Fay Wray. Mr. Young is good, though. Last sequence was originally shown with color tints, which have been restored for most prints. Also shown in computer-colored version. Remade in 1998. ▼●●

Mighty Joe Young (1998) C-114m.  D: Ron Underwood. Bill Paxton, Charlize Theron, David Paymer, Regina King, Rade Sherbedgia (Serbedzija), Peter Firth, Linda Purl, Robert Wisdom, Lawrence Pressman, John Alexander, Naveen Andrews. Entertaining update of the 1949 movie: Theron is raised in the jungle alongside a giant gorilla. In order to protect Joe from poachers, she agrees to bring him to an L.A. animal habitat—but no one understands the big guy as she does. What is more, a bad guy is out to get him, leading to an inevitable rampage. Good fun, earnestly done. Terry Moore (star of the 1949 film) and Ray Harryhausen (who helped animate the original Joe) have a cameo together; so does Dina Merrill, whose husband produced the film. Joe was designed by Rick Baker. [PG] ▼●●

Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: The

Mighty Quinn, The (1989) C-98m. ½ D: Carl Schenkel. Denzel Washington, Robert Townsend, James Fox, Mimi Rogers, M. Emmet Walsh, Sheryl Lee Ralph, Art Evans, Esther Rolle, Norman Beaton, Keye Luke. Washington plays the independent-minded police chief of a Caribbean island who's determined to get to the bottom of a murder, even though it apparently involves political sensitivities—and his boyhood pal, a now-notorious character played by Townsend. Colorful locale spices this ordinary tale and makes it a pleasant time-filler. [R] ▼●●

Mike's Murder (1984) C-109m. *½ D: James Bridges. Debra Winger, Mark Keyloun, Darrell Larson, Paul Winfield, Brooke Alderson, William Ostrander, Dan Shor. One of the worst movies ever made by a filmmaker of Bridges' stature; after an acquaintance is butchered in a drug deal, Winger decides to investigate for herself. Filmed in 1982, followed by years at the editing table to no avail; Winfield provides only life as jaded record exec. Escapes BOMB rating only because several critics thought highly of it. [R] ▼

Mikey and Nicky (1976) C-116m. ½ D: Elaine May. Peter Falk, John Cassavetes,

Ned Beatty, Rose Arrick, Carol Grace, Joyce Van Patten. Ragged film (in the editing room for several years) improves as it goes along, examining relationship between small-time hoods who were childhood pals, one of whom may be fingering the other for hit man Beatty. Superb performances by Falk and Cassavetes. [R] ▼●

Mildred Pierce (1945) 109m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Joan Crawford, Jack Carson, Zachary Scott, Eve Arden, Ann Blyth, Bruce Bennett, Lee Patrick, Butterfly McQueen. Crawford won an Oscar as housewife-turned-waitress who finds success in business but loses control of ungrateful daughter Blyth—especially when she finds they're competing for the love of the same man. Solid adaptation (scripted by Ranald MacDougall) of James M. Cain's novel with top supporting cast. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Miles From Home (1988) C-114m. *½ D: Gary Sinise. Richard Gere, Kevin Anderson, Penelope Ann Miller, Laurie Metcalf, John Malkovich, Brian Dennehy, Judith Ivey, Helen Hunt, Terry Kinney. The "Farm of the Year" from 1959 goes bankrupt in 1988; heir Gere burns it down rather than see it taken over by the bank, then takes off on a Midwest spree accompanied by acquiescent brother Anderson. Gere's actions (and performance) are so off-putting that you begin to wonder if he doesn't deserve his fate, which can hardly be the point. Miller and Metcalf put spins on marginal roles. [R] ▼●

Milk (2008) C-127m. ½ D: Gus Van Sant. Sean Penn, James Franco, Emile Hirsch, Josh Brolin, Diego Luna, Alison Pill, Victor Garber, Denis O'Hare, Joseph Cross, Stephen Spinella. Exceptional biopic about Harvey Milk, America's pioneering openly gay elected official, who changed both laws and perceptions as a San Francisco city supervisor in the 1970s. Penn disappears into the character of the sweet but forceful man who never gave up, despite repeated setbacks—and the knowledge that he might be cut down in his prime. Dustin Lance Black's expansive screenplay covers a lot of territory, both personal and public, while Van Sant's seamless interweaving of vintage news footage and re-creations transports us back in time. Milk's crusade, and the vitriolic response to it, has uncanny modern-day resonance. Oscar winner for Best Actor (Penn) and Best Original Screenplay. See also: THE TIMES OF HARVEY MILK. [R]▼

Milk Money (1994) C-102m. *½ D: Richard Benjamin. Melanie Griffith, Ed Harris, Michael Patrick Carter, Malcolm McDowell, Anne Heche, Casey Siemaszko, Philip Bosco. "Family-values" comedy about a 12-year-old who raises funds to ogle a sexy hooker—who later turns up in his hometown! Not as grubby as it sounds, but still an unlikely candidate to contribute to anyone's Irving G. Thalberg Award chances. McDowell overplays it, if that's possible in this kind of DOA dud, as a mobster. [PG-13]▼●●

Milky Way, The (1936) 89m.  D: Leo McCarey. Harold Lloyd, Adolphe Menjou, Verree Teasdale, Helen Mack, William Gargan, George Barbier, Dorothy Wilson, Lionel Stander. Milquetoasty milkman is recruited by scheming fight promoter Menjou after inadvertently knocking out the middleweight champion! Bland but entertaining film is one of Lloyd's best talkies. Remade, almost scene for scene, as THE KID FROM BROOKLYN, with Danny Kaye, but they couldn't top the hilarious ducking scene with Lloyd and matron Marjorie Gateson. Some prints run 83m.▼●●

Milky Way, The (1969-French) C-102m. ½ D: Luis Buñuel. Paul Frankeur, Laurent Terzieff, Alain Cuny, Bernard Verley, Michel Piccoli, Pierre Clementi, Georges Marchal, Delphine Seyrig. Two men making religious pilgrimage through France form basis for string of Buñuel "jokes," parables, surrealistic visions. Heretical, funny, haunting, thoroughly enjoyable. [M/PG]▼●●

Millennium (1989) C-108m.  D: Michael Anderson. Kris Kristofferson, Cheryl Ladd, Robert Joy, Daniel J. Travanti, Brent Carver, Maury Chaykin, David McIlwraith, Al Waxman, Lloyd Bochner. Intriguing premise features time travelers from the future kidnapping doomed passengers from crashing airliners; suspicious crash investigator Kristofferson becomes involved with Ladd, one of the time travelers. Story slowly falls apart, decaying into sheer corn. Highly regarded sci-fi writer John Varley adapted his own short story "Air Raid," but someone didn't trust the audience's intelligence. [PG-13]▼●●

Millennium Actress (2002-Japanese) C/B&W-87m. ½ D: Satoshi Kon.

Voices of Miyoko Shōji, Mami Koyama, Fumiko Orikasa, Shozo Iizuka, Masaya Onosaka. A legendary actress agrees to give a rare interview to a documentary filmmaker and reveals personal secrets that allow the director and his cameraman to vicariously experience her life and times. Mature, literate Japanese animated feature makes innovative use of flashbacks but never quite lives up to the potential inherent in the story. Especially interesting to anyone who knows Japanese film history, as the actress spans the eras of propaganda films, Samurai sagas, and monster movies. [PG]▼

Millennium Mambo (2001-French-Taiwanese) C-119m. *½ D: Hou Hsiao Hsien. Shu Qi, Jack Kao, Tuan Chun-Hao, Chen Yi-Hsuan, Maggie Cheung. Disappointing downer from acclaimed director concerns a young, beautiful girl caught in a dead-end life in Taipei. Scenes with her drugged-out boyfriend and a small-time mobster at the club where she occasionally works don't add up to much. Film's apparent point is that it's tough being young nowadays. Hip score and flashy camerawork can't really compensate for the empty tale being told. [R]▼

Miller's Crossing (1990) C-115m. ½ D: Joel Coen. Gabriel Byrne, Albert Finney, Marcia Gay Harden, John Turturro, Jon Polito, J.E. Freeman, Mike Starr, Al Mancini, Michael Jeter, Steve Buscemi. Moody, stylish, and pretentious take on gangster films by the Coen brothers (Joel directed and cowrote with producer-brother Ethan). Byrne plays a black-hearted Irish mobster with a code of ethics known only to himself, and a vow of loyalty to crime kingpin Finney. Dense and dour, it's almost doggedly off-putting at first, but gets more involving as its serpentine story unfolds. Some bravura moments, along with Bary Sonnenfeld's compelling cinematography. Frances McDormand has unbilled bit as a secretary. [R]▼●●

Millionaire for Christy, A (1951) 91m.  D: George Marshall. Fred MacMurray, Eleanor Parker, Richard Carlson, Una Merkel. 1930s-type screwball comedy; fast, unpretentious, very funny, with winning performances by Parker and MacMurray in tale of gold-digging girl out to snare rich husband.

Millionairess, The (1960-British) C-90m. ½ D: Anthony Asquith. Sophia Loren, Peter Sellers, Alastair Sim, Vittorio De Sica, Dennis Price. Loren is an heiress who thinks money can buy anything, until she meets Indian doctor Sellers, who won't sell his principles, or his love. Sophia is stunning, but this adaptation of G. B. Shaw's play is heavy-handed comedy. CinemaScope.▼

Brian O'Byrne, Margo Martindale. Aging fight manager/trainer reluctantly takes on a 31-year-old woman as his newest client and is soon won over by her heart, determination, and talent. Entertaining, picaresque look at emotionally wounded people who find comfort in each other's protection; propelled by strong performances and flavorful narration by Freeman. Screenplay by Paul Haggis, from stories in Rope Burns by F. X. Toole. Oscar winner for Best Picture, Director, Actress and Supporting Actor (Freeman). Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Million Dollar Duck, The (1971) C-92m. ½ D: Vincent McEveety, Dean Jones, Sandy Duncan, Joe Flynn, Tony Roberts, James Gregory, Lee H. Montgomery. A duck who lays golden eggs spurs predictable twists and turns in this standard Disney comedy. [G] ▼

Million Dollar Hotel, The (2000-German-U.S.) C-122m. ½ D: Wim Wenders. Jeremy Davies, Milla Jovovich, Mel Gibson, Jimmy Smits, Donal Logue, Gloria Stuart, Bud Cort, Amanda Plummer, Julian Sands, Peter Stormare, Charlayne Woodard, Ellen Cleghorne, Harris Yulin, Tim Roth. Wacko, DAVID AND LISA—type story of two mentally ill young lovers in an L.A. welfare hotel. Bono (of U2) cowrote the confounding, convoluted script, which will try your patience, but Wenders's lensing has its share of visual poetry, and Davies and Jovovich are effective leads. Colorful supporting cast helps, too. (Gibson, as an FBI agent with a Frankenstein-like back brace, seems to be in a different movie altogether.) Panavision. [R] ▼

Million Dollar Legs (1932) 61m. ½ D: Edward Cline. W. C. Fields, Jack Oakie, Susan Fleming, Lyda Roberti, Andy Clyde, Ben Turpin, Dickie Moore, Billy Gilbert, Hugh Herbert. Wacky nonsense with Fields as President of Klopstokia, a nutty country entering the Olympics. Oakie is a young American pursuing W. C.'s daughter (Fleming). Joseph Mankiewicz was one of the writers of this little gem. Title on-screen is MILLION $ LEGS. ▼

Million Dollar Mermaid (1952) C-115m. ½ D: Mervyn LeRoy. Esther Williams, Victor Mature, Walter Pidgeon, David Brian, Donna Corcoran, Jesse White, Maria Tallchief. Williams does OK as real-life aquatic star Annette Kellerman, alternating her swimming with romancing Mature. Some typically elaborate production numbers by Busby Berkeley. ▼

Million Dollar Mystery (1987) C-95m.  D: Richard Fleischer. Eddie Deezen, Penny Baker, Tom Bosley, Rich Hall, Wendy Sherman, Rick Overton, Mona Lyden, Kevin Pollak. Bosley, in his dying breath, informs customers at a roadside diner that $4 million is hidden nearby—giving them just enough clues to send the rabid group scrambling. Shameless rip-off of IT'S A

MAD MAD MAD MAD WORLD is directed with more gusto than you'd expect from Fleischer. See how many plugs for Glad Bags (cosponsor, along with De Laurentiis Entertainment Group, of a real-life promotional million-dollar treasure hunt) you can spot. J-D-C Scope. [PG] ▼

Million Eyes of Su-Muru, The (1967) C-95m.  D: Lindsay Shonteff. Frankie Avalon, George Nader, Shirley Eaton, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Klaus Kinski. Tongue-in-cheek tale of murder and women's organization bent on enslaving all of mankind. From a Sax Rohmer story. Techniscope.

Million Pound Note, The SEE: Man With a Million

Millions (2005-British) C-98m.  D: Danny Boyle. Alexander Nathan Etel, Lewis Owen McGibbon, James Nesbitt, Daisy Donovan, Christopher Fulford, Jane Hogarth. A smart, surprising and spiritual change of pace for TRANSPOTTING director Boyle. Two young brothers have one week to spend a bagful of money they've come across, before the British pound switches over to the Euro. The choices the boys make not only say a lot about each of them but serve as a reflection of how society views the conflict between instant wealth and moral values. Newcomer Etel provides genuinely touching moments that are never maudlin. Boyle's zippy visuals are another plus; he forgoes the usually dreary movie look of British neighborhoods to make these sunny English 'burbs look like a Technicolor haven. Super 35. [PG] ▼

Million to Juan, A (1993) C-97m. ½ D: Paul Rodriguez. Paul Rodriguez, Tony Plana, Bert Rosario, Polly Draper, Jonathan Hernandez, Larry Linville, Victor Rivers, David Rasche, Edward James Olmos, Pepe Serna, Paul Williams, Cheech Marin, Ruben Blades. Poor but honest, much put-upon Rodriguez, widowed with a ten-year-old son, is inexplicably given a check for $1 million. Predictable comedy-fantasy is uplifted by some sweet, touching moments. Based on a Mark Twain story, "The Million Pound Bank Note"; previously filmed as MAN WITH A MILLION. [PG] ▼

Milwaukee, Minnesota (2005) C-95m.  D: Allan Mindel. Troy Garity, Alison Folland, Randy Quaid, Bruce Dem, Hank Harris, Debra Monk, Josh Brolin, Holly Woodlawn.

Paper-thin account of a mentally challenged young man who is an expert ice fisherman and the con artists who attempt to exploit him. Aims for a quirky tone, but turns out to be conventional—and forgettable. [R]◆

Mimic (1997) C-105m.  D: Guillermo del Toro. Mira Sorvino, Jeremy Northam, Charles S. Dutton, Alexander Goodwin, Giancarlo Giannini, Josh Brolin, F. Murray Abraham. Entomologist Sorvino creates a non-breeding insect to wipe out a plague of disease-carrying cockroaches. This works, but three years later, the cure is getting out of hand. The hybrids bred after all, and have become giants, capable of disguising themselves as their favorite prey: people. Lively, scary sci-fi thriller becomes conventional in the last third; until then it's great fun. From Donald A. Wollheim's short story. Followed by two direct-to-video sequels. [R]▼●

Min and Bill (1930) 70m. ½ D: George Hill. Marie Dressler, Wallace Beery, Dorothy Jordan, Marjorie Rambeau, Frank McGlynn. Sentimental early talkie with forgettable team of Beery and Dressler as waterfront characters trying to protect Jordan from her alcoholic mother (Rambeau). Dressler won an Academy Award for her performance.▼

Mina Tannenbaum (1994-French) C-123m.  D: Martine Dugowson. Romane Bohringer, Elsa Zylberstein, Florence Thomassin, Jean-Philippe Ecoffey, Nils Tavernier, Stephane Slima, Hugues Quester. Entertaining melodrama about the friendship between two Jewish Parisian girls, an introspective artist and a brash reporter, and its disintegration when they fall in love with the same man. First half plays like a Nora Ephron coming-of-age comedy, while the rest is pure Max Ophuls. Despite the unevenness, the film is buoyed by two great performances from Zylberstein and Bohringer (in the title role). [R]▼

Minbo: Anti-Extortion Woman (1992-Japanese) C-123m.  D: Juzo Itami. Nobuko Miyamoto, Akira Takarada, Masahiro Murata, Yasuo Daichi, Hideji Otaki, Hōboru Mitani, Shiro Ito, Akira Nakao. Wonderful wish-fulfillment comedy with the canny, super-competent (but diminutive) Miyamoto helping hapless hotel managers to confront the most intimidating Yakuza members in Hong Kong. A big hit in Japan, this film also inspired real-life Yakuza to attack writer-director Itami. Aka MINBO: THE GENTLE ART OF JAPANESE EXTORTION.▼

Mind Benders, The (1963-British) 101m.  D: Basil Dearden. Dirk Bogarde, Mary Ure, John Clements, Michael Bryant, Wendy Craig, Edward Fox. Top cast in slow-moving but compelling account of experiments in sensory deprivation, with espionage theme worked into plot.◆

Mind Field (1990-Canadian) C-92m.  D: Jean-Claude Lord. Michael Ironside,

Lisa Langlois, Sean McCann, Christopher Plummer, Stefan Wodolawsky, Harvey Atkin, Eugene Clark. Montreal cop Ironside is plagued by problems on the job, mysterious killings, and strange LSD-like flashbacks connected to CIA researcher Plummer. Complicated, slow movie tries to cover too much ground (including police unions and JFK's assassination). [R]▼●

Mind Games SEE: Agency Mindhunters (2004-British-Dutch-Finnish-U.S.) C-106m.  D: Renny Harlin. Eion Bailey, Patricia Velasquez, Clifton Collins, Jr., Will Kemp, Val Kilmer, Jonny Lee Miller, Kathryn Morris, Christian Slater, James Todd Smith (LL Cool J), Cassandra Bell. A group of FBI agents-in-training are left on an isolated island designed to test their skills as profilers—but one of them is a serial killer intent on murdering the others, one by one. Moderately suspenseful and well-acted thriller sticks too closely to the TEN LITTLE INDIANS formula. Filmed in 2002. Super 35. [R]◆

Mind of Mr. Soames, The (1970-British) C-95m. ½ D: Alan Cooke. Terence Stamp, Robert Vaughn, Nigel Davenport, Christian Roberts. Exceptionally fine sci-fi tale of man who has been in a coma since birth; finally revived, he must be taught 30 years' worth of knowledge in brief span of time. [M/PG]

Mind Snatchers, The SEE: Happiness Cage, The

Mindwalk (1991) C-110m.  D: Bernt Capra. Liv Ullmann, Sam Waterston, John Heard, Ione Skye. Unusual ecological talkfest may be the MY DINNER WITH ANDRE of the environmental movement. Mainly a conversation on the sad state of the world among three people (a poet, a physicist, and a politician) roaming a picturesque French isle. Sometimes fascinating; mostly static, pretentious. If you met up with any of these people at a party, you'd be fumbling for the car keys. [PG]▼

Mindwarp: An Infinity of Terror SEE: Galaxy of Terror

Mini's First Time (2006) C-91m. *½ D: Nick Guthe. Alec Baldwin, Nikki Reed, Carrie-Anne Moss, Jeff Goldblum, Luke Wilson, Svetlana Metkina, Sprague Grayden, Rick Fox. Slutty teen (THIRTEEN's Reed), living in a hilltop L.A. mansion, opts to turn tricks to spite her mother. Soon stepfather Baldwin gets involved—in more ways than one. Tantalizingly overripe performances from the strong cast cannot overcome this unconvincingly scripted satire. [R]◆

Miniskirt Mob, The (1968) C-82m. *½ D: Maury Dexter. Jeremy Slate, Diane McBain, Shery Jackson, Patty McCormack, Ross Hagen, Harry Dean Stanton, Ronnie Rondell. McBain plays leader of female motorcycle gang, even though she looks as if she'd be more comfortable on a Tour-

nement of Roses float. Those who like the title will probably like the film. ▽

Ministry of Fear (1944) 85m.  D: Fritz Lang. Ray Milland, Marjorie Reynolds, Carl Esmond, Dan Duryea, Hillary Brooke, Alan Napier, Percy Waram. Atmospheric thriller of wartime London, with Milland framed in complicated espionage plot; good cast, fine touches by director Lang. From the Graham Greene novel. ▽

Miniver Story, The (1950) 104m. ½ D: H. C. Potter. Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon, John Hodiak, Leo Genn, Cathy O'Donnell, Henry Wilcoxon, Reginald Owen, Peter Finch. Sequel to MRS. MINIVER (filmed this time in England) doesn't work as well, but Garson and Pidgeon have some poignant scenes as family reunited in post-WW2 England. Young James Fox, billed as William, makes his film debut. ▽

Minnesota Clay (1965-French-Italian-Spanish) C-95m.  D: Sergio Corbucci. Cameron Mitchell, Georges Riviere, Ethel Rojo, Diana Martin, Anthony Ross. Standard European oater, with Mitchell giving a good performance as gunslinger who escapes prison to find the man who can clear him. He's going blind and faces his enemies aided by a heightened sense of hearing. ▽

Minnie and Moskowitz (1971) C-114m.  D: John Cassavetes. Gena Rowlands, Seymour Cassel, Val Avery, Timothy Carey, Katherine Cassavetes, Elsie Ames. One of Cassavetes' most likable films chronicles manic romance between lonely museum curator (Rowlands) and crazy parking-lot attendant (Cassel). Touching, amusing, and most enjoyable. [PG] ▽ ▽

Minority Report (2002) C-144m. ½ D: Steven Spielberg. Tom Cruise, Colin Farrell, Samantha Morton, Max von Sydow, Lois Smith, Peter Stormare, Tim Blake Nelson, Kathryn Morris, Jessica Capshaw, Jessica Harper, Arye Gross. In the year 2054, Cruise is the top cop in an elite D.C. unit that uses seers to predict and stop crimes before they occur, but the controversial program is under fire by the Feds. High-tech, highly charged sci-fi saga has many fine ingredients, but goes on far too long (especially considering it was adapted from a short story, by Philip K. Dick). Multiple endings, and growing confusion, diminish the effectiveness of the film, one of Spielberg's harshest. Excellent score by John Williams. Super 35. [PG-13] ▽ ▽

Minotaur (1976) SEE: Land of the Minotaur

Minus Man, The (1999) C-112m. ½ D: Hampton Fancher. Owen Wilson, Janeane Garofalo, Brian Cox, Sheryl Crow, Mercedes Ruehl, Dennis Haysbert, Dwight Yoakam. Serial killer takes up residence in a middle-age suburban couple's spare room and hires on as a fellow postal worker with his landlord. Film's low-budget creepiness, though fairly effective, would have played better years ago before the screen's oversaturation with quiet, sensitive psychotics. Interesting for its sometimes-successful casting against type: comedic Wilson as the killer, the usually acerbic Garofalo as a lonely alcoholic and rocker Crow as a bar-hopper with asthma. [R] ▽ ▽

Minute to Pray, a Second to Die, A (1967-Italian) C-97m.  D: Franco Giraldi. Alex Cord, Arthur Kennedy, Robert Ryan, Mario Brega. Outlaw seeks refuge in Escondido from outlaws, bounty hunters, territorial lawmen, and anyone out to take advantage of his occasional paralytic seizures. Outstanding color photography adds to great atmosphere. Aka OUTLAW GUN. [R] ▽ ▽

Miracle, The (1959) C-121m. ½ D: Irving Rapper. Carroll Baker, Roger Moore, Walter Slezak, Vittorio Gassman, Katina Paxinou, Dennis King, Isobel Elsom. Claptrap vehicle resurrected as glossy, empty spectacle of 1810s Spain, with Baker the would-be nun unsure of her decision, Moore the soldier she romances. Technirama. ▽

Miracle, The (1991-British) C-100m.  D: Neil Jordan. Beverly D'Angelo, Donal McCann, Niall Byrne, Lorraine Pilkington, J. G. Devlin. Evocative coming-of-age drama about Byrne and Pilkington, a pair of bright, bored Irish teens who view the world with youthful cynicism, and become intrigued by a beautiful mystery woman (D'Angelo) arriving in town. Soon Byrne is pursuing her romantically, but he has no idea how her presence will affect his life. Collectively well acted, with intelligent, precise script by Jordan. [R] ▽ ●

Miracle (2004) C-135m.  D: Gavin O'Connor. Kurt Russell, Patricia Clarkson, Noah Emmerich, Sean McCann, Kenneth Welsh, Eddie Cahill, Patrick O'Brien Demsey, Michael Mantenuto, Nathan West. The story of coach Herb Brooks, who's hired to prepare a U.S. hockey team to compete with the unassailable Soviets in the 1980 Winter Olympics. He knows that the only way to do this is to beat them at their own game—and build a team that breathes as one, no matter what sacrifices that requires along the way. Exciting, even though the conclusion is a given. Russell has never been better; most of the younger cast members are athletes making their acting debuts. Karl Malden played Brooks in the 1981 TV movie MIRACLE ON ICE. Super 35. [PG] ▽ ▽

flashback to 1944: four black members of the Buffalo Soldiers division of the U.S. Army are separated from their unit in Italy. As they fend for themselves in a Tuscan village, they contend with internal friction—and questions about their role in the war—as well as partisans, Fascists, racist superiors, a Nazi prisoner, and a frightened boy whom one of them adopts. Long but picaresque, rich with detail about this unique chapter of WW2 history. James McBride adapted his own novel. Super 35. [R]●

Miracle in Milan (1951-Italian) 95m. ½ D: Vittorio De Sica. Francesco Golisano, Paolo Stoppa, Emma Gramatica, Guglielmo Barnabo. Toto the Good (Golisano) brings cheer to a dreary village of poor people, aided by the old lady who raised him, who is now in heaven. Bitingly comic condemnation of the manner in which displaced Europeans were treated after WW2. ▼●

Miracle Mile (1989) C-87m. *½ D: Steve DeJarnatt. Anthony Edwards, Mare Winningham, John Agar, Lou Hancock, Mykel T. Williamson, Kelly Minter, Kurt Fuller, Denise Crosby, Robert Doqui, Danny De La Paz. Good-natured musician who's just gotten to first base with a coffee shop waitress picks up a ringing pay phone and learns that the U.S. has fired a nuclear warhead—which means that the end of the world is about an hour away. Artificial and overwrought from the word go. Credible costars Edwards and Winningham can't do anything with this material. [R]▼●●

Miracle of Fatima SEE: Miracle of Our Lady of Fatima, The

Miracle of Morgan's Creek, The (1944) 99m. * D: Preston Sturges. Eddie Bracken, Betty Hutton, William Demarest, Diana Lynn, Brian Donlevy, Akim Tamiroff. Porter Hall, Almira Sessions, Jimmy Conlin. Frantic, hilarious comedy of Betty attending all-night party, getting pregnant and forgetting who's the father. Bracken and Demarest have never been better than in this daring wartime farce. Filmed in 1942; sort of remade as ROCK-A-BYE BABY. ▼●●

Miracle of Our Lady of Fatima, The (1952) C-102m.  D: John Brahm. Gilbert Roland, Angela Clarke, Frank Silvera, Jay Novello, Sherry Jackson. Thoughtful account of religious miracle witnessed by farm children in 1910s; intelligent script. Retitled: MIRACLE OF FATIMA. ▼●●

Miracle of the Bells, The (1948) 120m. *½ D: Irving Pichel. Fred MacMurray, Valli, Frank Sinatra, Lee J. Cobb, Charles

Meredith. Contrived story of miracle occurring when movie star is laid to rest in coal-mining home town; often ludicrous, despite sincere cast. Screenplay by Ben Hecht and Quentin Reynolds. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Miracle on 34th Street (1947) 96m. ½ D: George Seaton. Maureen O'Hara, John Payne, Edmund Gwenn, Gene Lockhart, Natalie Wood, Porter Hall, William Frawley, Jerome Cowan. Classic Valentine Davies fable of Kris Kringle (Gwenn) working in Macy's, encountering an unbelieving child (Wood), and going on trial to prove he's Santa. Delightful comedy-fantasy won Oscars for Gwenn, Davies, and screenwriter Seaton. Thelma Ritter's auspicious screen debut; an amusing bit for young Jack Albertson, as a postal employee. Remade in 1973 (for TV) and 1994. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Miracle on 34th Street (1994) C-114m. ½ D: Les Mayfield. Richard Attenborough, Elizabeth Perkins, Dylan McDermott, Mara Wilson, Robert Prosky, J. T. Walsh, James Remar, Jane Leeves, Simon Jones, William Windom, Allison Janney, Horatio Sanz. Pretty good remake of the 1947 charmer. Attenborough is wonderful as the man who calls himself Kris Kringle, and Wilson is irresistible as the little girl who doesn't believe in Santa. Loses its way whenever it veers from the original script—as in the relationship between Mara's mom (Perkins) and her neighbor/friend (McDermott) . . . and when it manages to keep the adorable youngster off-screen. Tellingly, this version is almost 20 minutes longer than the earlier film. Produced and written by John Hughes. Joss Ackland appears unbilled. [PG]▼●●

Miracles (1986) C-86m. *½ D: Jim Kouf. Tom Conti, Teri Garr, Paul Rodriguez, Christopher Lloyd, Adalberto Martinez, Jorge Russek. Conti and Garr, recently divorced, are whisked away to South American hellhole by jewel thief Rodriguez in this clone of ROMANCING THE STONE. The stars do their best, but we've seen it all before, and better. Written by first-time director Kouf. Super Techniscope. [PG]▼

Miracles (1989-Hong Kong) C-127m. ½ D: Jackie Chan. Jackie Chan, Anita Mui, Wu Ma, Richard Ng, Bill Tung, Gui Ya-Lei, Gloria Yip, Billy Lau, Lu Lih, Ko Chuen-Hsiang, Yuen Biao, Jacky Cheung, Ricky Hui, Amy Yip. A naïve newcomer to 1930s Hong Kong accidentally becomes head of a powerful mob and battles a rival racketeer. Meanwhile, he befriends a flower seller and agrees to help her impress her visiting daughter, who thinks she's wealthy. Uncredited remake of Frank Capra's LADY FOR A DAY and POCKETFUL OF MIRACLES follows that part of the story faithfully—punctuated by mind-boggling fight scenes! An amusing oddity. Aka MR. CANTON AND LADY ROSE, later retitled BLACK DRAGON. Technovision. [PG-13] ▼◆

Miracle Woman, The (1931) 90m.  D: Frank Capra. Barbara Stanwyck, David Manners, Sam Hardy, Beryl Mercer, Russell Hopton. Stanwyck plays an evangelist (patterned after Aimee Semple McPherson) whose splashy sermons become big business. Manners is a blind man who falls in love with her. Story contrivances overcome by fine performances, direction, and camerawork (by Joseph Walker). ▼

Miracle Worker, The (1962) 107m. ½ D: Arthur Penn. Anne Bancroft, Patty Duke, Victor Jory, Inga Swenson, Andrew Prine, Beah Richards, Kathleen Comegys. Austerely beautiful treatment of William Gibson's play about Annie Sullivan (Bancroft), the remarkable woman who accepts the challenge of getting through to blind, deaf Helen Keller (Duke). There is absolutely no sentiment, which only increases the emotional power of the piece. Bancroft and Duke had been playing these parts on Broadway for over a year, but you'd never know it from their spontaneous and totally compelling performances, which earned them both Oscars. Originally staged as a 1957 Playhouse 90 on TV, also directed by Penn. Remade for TV in 1979, with Duke in the role of Sullivan, and again in 2000. ▼◆◆

Mirage (1965) 109m.  D: Edward Dmytryk. Gregory Peck, Diane Baker, Walter Matthau, Kevin McCarthy, Jack Weston, Leif Erickson, Walter Abel, George Kennedy. Fine Hitchcock-like thriller, with Peck the victim of amnesia, and everyone else out to get him. Matthau steals film as easygoing private-eye; interesting on-location footage in N.Y.C. Remade as JIGSAW (1968). ▼◆◆

Miranda (1948-British) 80m. ½ D: Ken Annakin. Goggin Withers, Glynis Johns, Griffith Jones, John McCallum, David Tomlinson, Margaret Rutherford, Maurice Denham. Cute movie (adapted by Peter Blackmore from his play) about a happily married doctor who's abducted by a mermaid; she agrees to send him back to dry land only if she can accompany him to see what the human world is like. Charming fluff. Amusing to see Johns and Tomlinson together years before they were husband and wife in MARY POPPINS. Title song by Jean Sablon. Followed by a sequel, MAD ABOUT MEN.

Mirror, The (1976-Russian) C-106m. ½ D: Andrei Tarkovsky. Margarita Terekhova, Philip Yankovsky, Ignat Daniltsev, Oleg

Yankovsky. Extremely personal, moving tale of life in Russia during WW2. Superbly directed; overall, it works most effectively as an homage to childhood innocence. ▼◆

Mirror Crack'd, The (1980-British) C-105m. ½ D: Guy Hamilton. Angela Lansbury, Elizabeth Taylor, Rock Hudson, Kim Novak, Tony Curtis, Edward Fox, Geraldine Chaplin, Wendy Morgan, Charles Gray, Pierce Brosnan. A mild Agatha Christie whodunit made enjoyable by its quartet of 1950s stars, particularly Taylor and Novak, fun as catty rival movie stars. Lansbury is a crisp Miss Marple. A highlight: the b&w movie-within-a-movie, Murder at Midnight. [PG] ▼◆◆

Mirror Has Two Faces, The (1996) C-126m. ½ D: Barbra Streisand. Barbra Streisand, Jeff Bridges, Lauren Bacall, Mimi Rogers, George Segal, Pierce Brosnan, Brenda Vaccaro, Austin Pendleton, Elle Macpherson. A nerdy college prof, smarting from love affairs gone bad, enters into a cerebral relationship with fellow professor Streisand in which sex plays no part. Then she begins to long for something more. A Very Barbra Movie—she even cowrote the love theme—that deals with self-image and the impact of physical beauty, then undermines its own convictions in a nonsensical climax. Still, entertaining and attractively cast, with Bacall terrific as Streisand's self-absorbed mother. Based on the 1958 French movie. [PG-13] ▼◆◆

Mirormask (2005-U.S.-British) C-101m.

 D: David McKean. Stephanie Leonidas, Jason Barry, Rob Brydon, Gina McKee, Stephen Fry. Teenage girl who feels alienated from her parents—and their threadbare traveling circus—expresses her frustrations through drawing. When her mother takes ill, the guilt-ridden girl goes into a dream state inspired by those drawings and embarks on an odyssey to keep the world from being overtaken by dark forces. Wildly imaginative fantasy uses THE WIZARD OF OZ as a template, but the visuals are utterly original, the work of famed artist/designer McKean, making his directing debut. Screenplay by McKean's frequent collaborator Neil Gaiman, from a story they cowrote. Presented by the Jim Henson Company. [PG] ◆

Mirrors (2008) C-110m.  D: Alexandre Aja. Kiefer Sutherland, Amy Smart, Paula Patton, Cameron Boyce, Erica Gluck, Mary Beth Peil, John Shrapnel, Jason Fleming. Aja, director of the 2006 THE HILLS HAVE EYES remake, has apparently decided that mirrors have eyes, too. Troubled ex-cop Sutherland takes a job as a night security guard in an abandoned department store, where evil mirrors seem to take on a life of their own. Haunted by the deaths of the previous guard and a family member, and contending with problems at home, Sutherland must convince everyone he's not crazy before it's too late. Pretty lame attempt at horror bumbles what could have been a decent psychological tale of a man in crisis. Based on a 2001 Korean film, INTO THE MIRROR. Super 35. [R]◆

Misadventures of Merlin Jones, The (1964) C-88m. *½ D: Robert Stevenson. Tommy Kirk, Annette Funicello, Leon Ames, Stuart Erwin, Alan Hewitt, Connie Gilchrist. Skimpy Disney comedy about college brain (Kirk) and his misadventures with mind-reading and hypnotism. Sequel: THE MONKEY'S UNCLE. ▼◆

Misadventures of Mr. Wilt, The (1989-British) C-92m. ½ D: Michael Tuchner. Griff Rhys-Jones, Mel Smith, Alison Steadman, Diana Quick, Jeremy Clyde, Roger Allam. Two stars of the hit British TV series Alas Smith and Jones are featured in this silly farce about college lecturer Henry Wilt (Rhys-Jones), who hates his bitchy wife—and becomes the prime suspect when the police think she's been murdered. Smith is the twit of an inspector assigned to the case. Funny—if it hits you in the right mood. Based on Tom Sharpe's best-seller. Original British title: WILT. ▼

Mischief (1985) C-93m.  D: Mel Damski. Doug McKeon, Catherine Mary Stewart, Kelly Preston, Chris Nash, D. W. Brown, Jami Gertz, Terry O'Quinn. Amiable but leaden-paced teen movie set in 1950s. Likable cast and vivid period atmosphere are chief assets—but any film that shows a clip from REBEL WITHOUT A CAUSE and then tries to duplicate the scene is asking for trouble. [R]▼◆◆

Misery (1990) C-107m. ½ D: Rob Reiner. James Caan, Kathy Bates, Richard Farnsworth, Frances Sternhagen, Lauren Bacall, Graham Jarvis. Stephen King white-knuckler about a successful romance novelist who's nursed back to health after a snowy car crash by his Number One Fan—who turns out to be a serious sicko. Extremely well acted, but the suspense ebbs and flows; there was much more nuance, and more interesting development of the relationship between fan and prisoner, in the novel. Bates won an Oscar for her unforgettable performance. Screenplay by William Goldman; striking cinematography by Barry Sonnenfeld. J. T. Walsh has unbilled cameo as a park ranger. Later adapted as a stage play in London. [R]▼◆◆

Misfit Brigade, The (1987-U.S.-British) C-99m.  D: Gordon Hessler. Bruce Davison, David Patrick Kelly, David Carradine, D. W. Moffett, Jay O. Sanders, Keith Szarabajka, Oliver Reed. At once clichéd and lighthearted (!) DIRTY DOZEN variation, about a group of German prisoners who find themselves recruited into the military by the Nazis (who are desperate for fighting men). Aka WHEELS OF TERROR. [R]▼

Misfits, The (1961) 124m.  D: John Huston. Clark Gable, Marilyn Monroe, Montgomery Clift, Thelma Ritter, Eli Wallach, James Barton, Estelle Winwood. Unsatisfying but engrossing parable authored by Arthur Miller, involving disillusioned divorcee Monroe and her brooding cowboy friends. Both Monroe's and Gable's last film. ▼◆◆

Mishima (1985) C/B&W-120m.  D: Paul Schrader. Ken Ogata. Narration read by Roy Scheider. Ambitious, highly stylized drama about Japan's most controversial post-WW2 author, playwright, actor, director, and militarist, Yukio Mishima, whose passion to merge life and art led to his ritualistic suicide in 1970. Scenes of Mishima's life (shot in black & white) are contrasted with vivid dramatizations (in opulent color) of key fictional works that grappled with his emotional crises. Long, difficult, not always successful, but fascinating. Beautifully photographed by John Bailey, swept along by stunning Philip Glass score. [R]▼◆◆

Miss Annie Rooney (1942) 84m.  D: Edwin L. Marin. Shirley Temple, William Gargan, Guy Kibbee, Dickie Moore, Peggy Ryan, Gloria Holden, Selmer Jackson, June Lockhart. Moore gives Shirley her first screen kiss in slight tale of girl from wrong side of tracks in love with rich boy. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Miss Congeniality (2000) C-111m. ½ D: Donald Petrie. Sandra Bullock, Michael Caine, Benjamin Bratt, William Shatner, Ernie Hudson, John DiResta, Candice Bergen, Heather Burns. All-too-predictable comedy about a tomboyish FBI agent who goes undercover as a contestant in the Miss United States beauty pageant to find a dangerous criminal. Likable cast (with Caine a standout) does its best with a disappointing script. Followed by a sequel. [PG-13] ▼◆

Miss Congeniality 2: Armed and Fabulous (2005) C-115m. *½ D: John Pasquin. Sandra Bullock, Regina King, William Shatner, Ernie Hudson, Enrique Murciano, Heather Burns, Treat Williams, Diedrich Bader, Eileen Brennan, Abraham Benrubi, Stephen Tobolowsky. Bullock returns as FBI agent Gracie Hart who, for public relations purposes, becomes the "face of the FBI." When Burns and Shatner are kidnapped, the bureau's beauty and her bodyguard (King) abandon their PR duties and try to find the hostages. Forced (and redundant) sequel has only a couple of bright moments, and never hits a comedic stride. Several celebrities have bit parts. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼◆

Miss Europe SEE: Prix de Beauté
Miss Firecracker (1989) C-102m.  D: Thomas Schlamme. Holly Hunter, Mary Steenburgen, Tim Robbins, Alfre Woodard, Scott Glenn, Ann Wedgeworth, Trey Wilson, Amy Wright, Bert Remsen. Beth Henley's Off-Broadway play, The Miss Firecracker Contest, becomes a most enjoyable movie, with a peerless Hunter recreating her stage role. In a Mississippi hamlet, lonely, pitiful (and hilarious) Hunter yearns for love and self-esteem. Cast is first-rate in this sweet-natured comedy-drama, scripted by Henley; reminiscent of 1930s screwball films. Director Schlammé's feature debut; that's his real-life wife, Christine Lahti, as a neighbor (holding their own newborn baby!). [PG]▼●●

Missing (1982) C-122m. ½ D: Constantin Costa-Gavras. Jack Lemmon, Sissy Spacek, Melanie Mayron, John Shea, Charles Cioffi, David Clennon, Joe Regalbutto, Richard Venture, Janice Rule. A carefully manipulated drama that works, because of Costa-Gavras' convincing direction and Lemmon's emphatic performance as a stiff-backed father who comes to a politically volatile Latin American country in search of his missing son—unable and unwilling to believe that American representatives there might not be telling him the truth. Based on the true experiences of Ed Horman; Costa-Gavras and Donald Stewart earned Oscars for their screenplay adaptation. [PG]▼●●

Missing, The (2003) C-135m.  D: Ron Howard. Tommy Lee Jones, Cate Blanchett, Eric Schweig, Evan Rachel Wood, Jenna Boyd, Steve Reevis, Ray McKinnon, Val Kilmer, Aaron Eckhart, Max Perlich, Simon Baker, Jay Tavare, Sergio Calderón, Clint Howard, Rance Howard. Grim, gritty Western story of a healer (Blanchett), long estranged from her father (Jones), who reluctantly joins him in order to rescue her daughter from the clutches of a mystical Apache and his gang of savages. Engrossing and unpredictable, but also unexpectedly brutal. Strong performances and unfamiliar-looking New Mexico scenery are major assets; overlength is a liability. Based on Thomas Eidson's novel The Last Ride. Unrated version runs 154m. Super 35. [R]▼●

Missing in Action (1984) C-101m.  D: Joseph Zito. Chuck Norris, M. Emmet Walsh, David Tress, Lenore Kasdorf, James Hong. Colonel Norris, an ex-POW in Vietnam, returns to Asia to liberate American prisoners. A simplistic, revisionist fantasy-actioner, in the mold of UNCOMMON VALOR and RAMBO: FIRST BLOOD PART 2. Followed by a prequel. [R]▼●●

Missing in Action 2—The Beginning (1985) C-96m. ½ D: Lance Hool. Chuck Norris, Soon-Teck Oh, Steven Williams, Bennett Ohta, Cosie Costa. In this limp prequel to you-know-what, Norris escapes from a POW camp in Vietnam. For Norris lovers only. Followed by BRADDOCK: MISSING IN ACTION III. [R]▼●●

Missing Pieces (1996) C-93m.  D: Leonard Stern. Eric Idle, Robert Wuhl, Lauren Hutton, Richard Belzer, Bob Gunton, Bernie Kopell, James Hong. Silly slapstick farce about two pals who try to solve the riddle of a mysterious inheritance that's made them a target for some deadly criminals. Amiable enough, but the gags are hit-or-miss. Filmed in 1990, never released theatrically in the U.S. [PG]▼●

Mission, The (1986-British) C-125m. ½ D: Roland Joffé. Robert De Niro, Jeremy Irons, Ray McAnally, Aidan Quinn, Cherie Lunghi, Ronald Pickup, Chuck Low, Liam Neeson, Daniel Berrigan. Productive (and profitable) Jesuit mission in the jungles of Brazil is threatened by greedy merchants and political factions within the church, in the late 18th century. Magnificent-looking film (Chris Menges' cinematography won an Oscar), rich in imagery, goes on so long—to such an inevitable conclusion—that its dramatic power is drained. Literate, high-minded screenplay by Robert Bolt; fine performances by Irons and De Niro. J-D-C Scope. [PG]▼●●

Missionary, The (1982-British) C-90m.  D: Richard Loncraine. Michael Palin, Maggie Smith, Phoebe Nicholls, Trevor Howard, Denholm Elliott, Michael Hordern, Graham Crowden. Fans of Monty Python's Palin may be surprised by this mild comedy, which he also wrote and coproduced. Returning from Africa, young man of the cloth is recruited to run a home for fallen women ("Women who've tripped?") and quickly finds himself the recipient of, uh, fringe benefits. Great supporting cast, gorgeous locations, beautiful cinematography (by Peter Hannan) overwhelm modest picture. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Mission: Impossible (1996) C-110m. ½ D: Brian De Palma. Tom Cruise, Jon Voight, Emmanuelle Béart, Henry Czerny, Jean Reno, Ving Rhames, Kristin Scott Thomas, Vanessa Redgrave. Slick update of the vintage TV spy series about a crack undercover unit is full of high-tech hijinks, as "team leader" Cruise tries to learn what went wrong on a crucial mission in Prague—and discover who set them up. Energy wanes at several junctures, only to be revved up again for a train-and-helicopter chase finale. Lalo Schifrin's memorable TV theme is re-used here, at a much higher decibel level. Emilio Estevez appears unbilled. Followed by two sequels. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Mission: Impossible II (2000) C-126m.  D: John Woo. Tom Cruise, Thandie Newton, Dougray Scott, Ving Rhames, Richard Roxburgh, John Polson, Brendan Gleason, Radé Sherbedgia. Cruise is called into action in Sydney when a ruthless renegade spy (Scott) captures a virus and its antidote and murders its creator. Cruise looks great, performs nifty martial-arts stunts and engages in hair-raising car and motorcycle chases, but there isn't a character to care about, or a story worth two hours' time; after a while it's simply boring, in spite of Woo's flamboyant treatment (and a script by Robert Towne). Anthony Hopkins appears unbilled. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Mission: Impossible III (2006) C-125m.  D: J. J. Abrams. Tom Cruise, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Ving Rhames, Billy Crudup, Michelle Monaghan, Jonathan Rhys Meyers, Keri Russell, Maggie Q, Laurence Fishburne, Simon Pegg, Eddie Marsan. Slambang action yarn and Cruise-controlled star vehicle has the deep-cover agent trying to hide his activities from fiancée Monaghan while jetting around the globe to rescue his protégée (Russell) and deal with a nefarious arms dealer (Hoffman). Debuting feature writer-director Abrams, creator of TV's Felicity, Alias, and Lost, favors ultra-close-ups and handheld camerawork but knows how to stage big action scenes—just as Cruise knows how to work his Movie Star persona. Highlight: a Cruise-Hoffman doppelgänger sequence. Panavision. [PG-13] ●

Mission to Mars (2000) C-112m.  D: Brian De Palma. Gary Sinise, Tim Robbins, Don Cheadle, Connie Nielsen, Jerry O'Connell, Kim Delaney, Elise Neal. Stupefyingly dull drama about a pioneering voyage to Mars in the year 2020, marked by mishap, tragedy, and some mind-blowing cosmic discoveries. Film takes a matter-of-fact approach to space travel that soon becomes deadening, with a spell-it-all-out climax for those who still don't get 2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY. There is, however, an ingenious bit of product placement for Dr Pepper. Armin Mueller-Stahl appears unbilled. Panavision. [PG] ▼ ● ●

Mississippi (1935) 73m. ½ D: A. Edward Sutherland. Bing Crosby, W. C. Fields, Joan Bennett, Queenie Smith, Gail Patrick, Claude Gillingwater. Fine cast in music-comedy of riverboat captain Fields and singer Crosby, with Rodgers-Hart score including "It's Easy to Remember But So Hard to Forget." Unforgettable poker game with Fields. Based on Booth Tarkington's "Magnolia," filmed before as THE FIGHTING COWARD. Look quickly for Ann Sheridan.

Mississippi Blues (1983) C-96m.  D: Bertrand Tavernier, Robert Parrish. Easygoing documentary from American Parrish and Frenchman Tavernier about the American South—its country folk, its landscape, its customs and, most wonderfully, its music.

Mississippi Burning (1988) C-125m.  D: Alan Parker. Gene Hackman, Willem Dafoe, Frances McDormand, Brad Dourif, R. Lee Ermey, Gailard Sartain, Stephen Tololowsky, Michael Rooker, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Park Overall. Two FBI agents—one a tight-jawed, by-the-book type, the other an experienced Southern lawman who knows how to handle people—head the government investigation into the disappearance of three civil rights workers in Mississippi during the summer of 1964. Vivid re-creation of the period and setting helps carry a less-than-perfect script (inspired by real-life events); Hackman gives a dynamic performance as the former small-town sheriff who figures out how to crack the case. Peter Biziou's cinematography won an Oscar. [R] ▼ ● ●

Mississippi Masala (1992) C-118m. ½ D: Mira Nair. Denzel Washington, Sarita Choudhury, Roshan Seth, Sharmila Tagore, Charles S. Dutton, Joe Seneca, Ranjit Chowdhry. Affecting, leisurely paced story of interracial romance between Washington and Choudhury and the problems it causes their respective communities in Greenwood, Mississippi. Starts out fine, with lively characters and interesting observations of a transplanted Indian lifestyle in the Deep South, then bogs down in standard—and extenuated—melodrama. Good performances by Washington (as always) and especially by Seth as Choudhury's proud lawyer father who wants to return home to Uganda. "Masala," by the way, is a collection of hot and colorful spices. Director Nair also appears as a gossipmonger. [R] ▼ ● ●

Mississippi Mermaid (1969-French-Italian) C-123m.  D: François Truffaut. Jean-Paul Belmondo, Catherine Deneuve, Michel Bouquet, Nelly Borgeaud. One of the director's few flops, but any film with Belmondo-Deneuve-Truffaut combo is of interest; story concerns tobacco planter whose mail-order bride turns out to be Deneuve. Always buy brand names. Based on the Cornell Woolrich novel Waltz Into Darkness. Originally shown in the U.S. at 110m. Remade as ORIGINAL SIN. Dyaliscope. [PG] ▼ ● ●

Miss Julie (1950-Swedish) 87m.  D: Alf Sjöberg. Anita Björk, Ulf Palme, Marta Dorff, Anders Henrikson. Masterful adaptation of August Strindberg's tragic play about the love affair between an aristocratic young woman and a commoner. Superbly acted and photographed, with imaginative use of flashbacks. A milestone in Swedish cinema. Remade in 1999.

Miss Julie (1999-British-U.S.) C-103m. ½ D: Mike Figgis. Saffron Burrows, Peter Mullan, Maria Doyle Kennedy. Pungent adaptation of August Strindberg's fiery 19th-century play about the mistress of a household who toys with the affections of her footman—who in turn plays sexual games with her. Well acted, vigorously filmed, but awfully dismal. [R] ▼

Miss March (2009) C-89m. *½ D: Zach Cregger, Trevor Moore. Zach Cregger, Trevor Moore, Raquel Alessi, Craig Robinson, Molly Stanton, Hugh M. Hefner, Geoff Meed, Cedric Yarbrough, Eve Mauro, Alexis Raben. Young man has a terrible accident moments before he is about to lose his virginity to his high school sweetheart. He awakens four years later to discover that she is now a Playboy Playmate. If you're a fan of the stars' work on the TV show The Whitest Kids U' Know you might find this movie funny, but when you don't care about the characters or their objectives, it's hard to enjoy. [R]

Miss Mary (1986-Argentine) C-100m. ½ D: Maria Luisa Bemberg. Julie Christie, Nacha Guevara, Luisina Brando, Iris Marga, Eduardo Pavlovsky, Gerardo Romano. Proper, prim British governess Christie arrives in Argentina in 1938, to look after the children in a proper, prim, upper-class family. A few nice touches but mostly forgettable tale of unreleased passion and emerging sexuality. An offbeat role for Christie. ▼

Missouri Breaks, The (1976) C-126m. BOMB D: Arthur Penn. Marlon Brando, Jack Nicholson, Kathleen Lloyd, Randy Quaid, Frederic Forrest, Harry Dean Stanton. Dynamite star combo in hired gun vs. horse thief confrontation—all for naught. Jumbled, excessively violent pseudo-event; a great director's worst film and one of the worst "big" movies ever made. [PG] ▼

Miss Pettigrew Lives for a Day (2008-U.S.-British) C-92m.  D: Bharat Nalluri. Frances McDormand, Amy Adams, Lee Pace, Ciarán Hinds, Shirley Henderson, Mark Strong, Tom Payne. Headstrong Guinevere Pettigrew (McDormand) has lost one job after another and wanders penniless on the streets of London in 1939, until she bluffs her way into a job as social secretary for flighty would-be actress Delysia Lafosse (Adams), who's juggling three men in her life. Arch, self-consciously cute rendering of Winifred Watson's 1930s novel, though the two female stars give it their all. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Lesser, David Bamber, Phyllida Law, Lloyd Owen, Lucy Boynton. Lifelong dreamer Beatrix Potter marches to her own drummer, to the dismay of her Victorian parents, but the feisty young woman surprises everyone by landing a publisher for her whimsical stories and watercolors about Peter Rabbit. Warm, genteel, and whimsical film about the famous author, with an utterly charming performance by McGregor as the gentleman-publisher who falls in love with his author. Written by Broadway veteran Richard Maltby, Jr. Noonan's first directorial effort since BABE in 1995. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Miss Robin Hood (1952-British) 78m.  D: John Guillermin. Margaret Rutherford, Richard Hearne, Edward Lexy, Frances Rowe. OK mixture of fantasy and farce, Rutherford an elderly nut seeking retrieval of family whiskey formula; Hearne is meek girl's-magazine writer aiding her.

Miss Sadie Thompson (1953) C-91m.  D: Curtis Bernhardt. Rita Hayworth, Jose Ferrer, Aldo Ray, Russell Collins, Charles Bronson. Rita gives a provocative performance in musical of Somerset Maugham's RAIN, previously made as SADIE THOMPSON and DIRTY GERTIE FROM HARLEM U.S.A. Originally in 3-D. ▼●●
Miss Tatlock's Millions (1948) 101m. ½ D: Richard Haydn. John Lund, Wanda Hendrix, Barry Fitzgerald, Monty Woolley, Robert Stack, Ilka Chase, Dorothy Stickney. Original comedy of Hollywood stuntman Lund hired to masquerade as a wealthy nitwit; offbeat, to say the least. Haydn, billed as "Richard Rancyd," appears as a lawyer; watch for cameos by Ray Milland and director Mitchell Leisen. ▼

Mist, The (2007) C-127m.  D: Frank Darabont. Thomas Jane, Marcia Gay Harden, Laurie Holden, Andre Braugher, Toby Jones, William Sadler, Jeffrey DeMunn, Frances Sternhagen, Nathan Gamble. After a fierce storm and the arrival of a mysterious mist, an artist (Jane) and his young son (Gamble) are among those forced to take refuge in a Maine supermarket. Then they learn that there are strange things out in that mist—things that kill. The people in the market gradually form into antagonistic factions. Suspenseful and graced with very good effects, this is a monster movie in the classic mode. It also has some social commentary, ported over from Stephen King's novella by director-writer Darabont. Controversial ending is changed from the story. Also available on DVD in the director's preferred b&w version. Aka STEPHEN KING'S THE MIST. [R] ▼

Mister Buddwing (1966) 100m.  D: Delbert Mann. James Garner, Jean Simmons, Suzanne Pleshette, Angela Lansbury, Katharine Ross, Raymond St. Jacques, Nichelle Nichols. Misfire; over-familiar amnesia plot with Garner trying to fill in his past, meeting assorted women who might have been part of his prior life.

Mister Cory (1957) C-92m. ½ D: Blake Edwards. Tony Curtis, Charles Bickford, Martha Hyer, Kathryn Grant (Crosby). Curtis does OK as poor-boy-turned-rich-gambler who returns to home town to show off his wealth. CinemaScope.

Mister Drake's Duck (1950-British) 76m.  D: Val Guest. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Yolande Donlan, Howard Marion-Crawford, Reginald Beckwith. American newlyweds Fairbanks and Donlan (wife of director Guest) buy a small English farm, then run into maddening military bureaucracy when one—but which one?—of their 60 ducks lays uranium eggs. Mild but diverting spoof of postwar red tape, with good performances. ▼

Mister 880 (1950) 90m.  D: Edmund Goulding. Dorothy McGuire, Burt Lancaster, Edmund Gwenn, Millard Mitchell, Minor Watson. Easygoing comedy, with Gwenn an elderly N.Y.C. counterfeiter tracked down by federal agent Lancaster. Script by Robert Riskin, based on a true story.

Mister Frost (1990-French-British) C-92m.  D: Philip Setbon. Jeff Goldblum, Alan Bates, Kathy Baker, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Daniel Gelin, Francois Negret, Maxime Leroux, Vincent Schiavelli, Catherine Allegret, Charley Boorman. Goldblum is blithe, cheerful serial killer who tells psychiatrist Baker that he's really the Devil, something ex-cop Bates already believes. It all has to do with Lucifer's annoyance over lack of belief in him. Goldblum is clearly having a great time, but you're not likely to. [R] ▼●

Mister Johnson (1991) C-101m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Pierce Brosnan, Edward Woodward, Maynard Eziashi, Beatie Edney, Denis Quilley, Nick Reding. Africa, 1923: an ambitious, educated (and larcenous) black man who works for the local British magistrate continually gets into trouble by being too smart for his own good. Handsome, well-made, well-acted film still leaves one wanting to know more about Mister Johnson and what makes him tick. Based on a novel by Joyce Cary. [PG-13] ▼●●

Mister Lonely (2008-U.S.-British-French-Irish) C-112m. BOMB D: Harmony Korine. Diego Luna, Samantha Morton, Denis Lavant, James Fox, Melita Morgan, Anita Pallenberg, Rachel Korine, Jason Penneycooke, Richard Strange, Werner Herzog, Leos Carax, David Blaine. When a Michael Jackson impersonator meets a Marilyn Monroe look-alike in Paris, she invites him to join her at a mountainside commune filled with doppelgangers (for everyone from Buckwheat to the Pope). Meanwhile, in a jungle somewhere in Latin America, nuns are taking to the skies. Achingly awful movie, though

as one character says of her comrades, "It isn't the Stooges' fault!" Super 35.

Mister Roberts (1955) C-123m. * D: John Ford, Mervyn LeRoy. Henry Fonda, James Cagney, William Powell, Jack Lemmon, Betsy Palmer, Ward Bond, Nick Adams, Philip Carey, Harry Carey, Jr., Ken Curtis, Martin Milner, Jack Pennick, Perry Lopez, Pat Wayne. Superb comedy-drama with Fonda recreating his favorite stage role as restless officer on WW2 cargo ship who yearns for combat action but has to contend with an irascible and eccentric captain (Cagney) instead. Fonda, Cagney, Powell (in his last screen appearance) as a philosophical doctor, and Lemmon (in an Oscar-winning performance) as the irrepressible Ensign Pulver, are all terrific. Thomas Heggen and Joshua Logan's Broadway hit was adapted for film by Logan and Frank Nugent. LeRoy replaced Ford as director sometime during production ... but it certainly doesn't show. Sequel: EN-SIGN PULVER. Remade for TV in 1984 with Kevin Bacon. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Mister Scoutmaster (1953) 87m.  D: Henry Levin. Clifton Webb, Edmund Gwenn, George Winslow, Frances Dee, Veda Ann Borg. Child-hater Webb becomes scoutmaster in this airy film which will appeal mainly to kids.

Mister Superinvisible (1973-Italian-German-Spanish) C-91m. ½ D: Anthony M. Dawson (Antonio Margheriti). Dean Jones, Ingeborg Schoener, Gastone Moschin, Peter Carsten. Engaging comedy made in Geneva has American researcher Jones becoming invisible as he seeks a cure for the common cold. Good for kids, okay for grownups. Techniscope. [G] ▼●

Mister V SEE: "Pimpernel" Smith
Mistress (1991) C-109m.  D: Barry Primus. Robert Wuhl, Martin Landau, Jace Alexander, Robert De Niro, Danny Aiello, Eli Wallach, Laurie Metcalf, Sheryl Lee Ralph, Jean Smart, Tuesday Knight, Christopher Walken, Ernest Borgnine, Stefan Gierasch, Roberta Wallach. Hollywood comedy-drama about a washed-up writer (Wuhl) who gets a chance to try to realize his dream—thanks to a has-been producer (Landau, who's marvelous). Plot concerns rounding up the money—and placating the money-men's mistresses. Paper-thin story has several choice moments, but never builds to a satisfying result. Veteran actor Primus' feature directing debut. [R] ▼●●

Misty (1961) C-92m.  D: James B.

Clark. David Ladd, Pam Smith, Arthur O'Connell, Anne Seymour. Marguerite Henry's popular children's book is nicely realized, with Ladd and Smith as children on island off Virginia coast who fall in love with a wild horse. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Misunderstood (1984) C-91m. ½ D: Jerry Schatzberg. Gene Hackman, Henry Thomas, Rip Torn, Huckleberry Fox, Maureen Kerwin, Susan Anspach. Boy cries out for the love of his father, who's too busy (and too consumed by the loss of his wife) to understand how much the boy needs his attention—and affection. Extremely well acted but emotionally uneven drama. Filmed in Tunisia in 1982. [PG] ▼

Mitchell (1975) C-96m. ½ D: Andrew V. McLaglen. Joe Don Baker, Martin Balsam, Linda Evans, John Saxon, Merlin Olsen, Morgan Paull. Baker plays tough cop whose singleminded pursuit of drug ring leads to expected action and violence; slick handling of typical action fodder. [R] ▼●

Mi Vida Loca (My Crazy Life) (1994) C-92m.  D: Allison Anders. Angel Aviles, Seidy Lopez, Jacob Vargas, Marlo Marron, Jessie Borrego, Magali Alvarado, Julian Reyes, Salma Hayek. Powerful look at hopes and realities of Latina gang girls in L.A.'s Echo Park area. Episodic structure takes some getting used to (as do some of the performances), but writer-director Anders ultimately succeeds in capturing the frustrations of the characters' world and the cycle of social rituals and violence affecting them daily. ▼●

Mixed Company (1974) C-109m. ½ D: Melville Shavelson. Barbara Harris, Joseph Bologna, Tom Bosley, Lisa Gerritsen, Dorothy Shay. Less than heartwarming but still entertaining comedy of losing basketball coach Bologna coping with wife Harris' adopting orphans of mixed ethnic backgrounds. [PG]

Mixed Nuts (1994) C-97m. *½ D: Nora Ephron. Steve Martin, Madeline Kahn, Rita Wilson, Robert Klein, Anthony LaPaglia, Juliette Lewis, Rob Reiner, Adam Sandler, Liev Schreiber, Joely Fisher, Parker Posey, Jon Stewart, Haley Joel Osment. Genuinely strange black comedy (or is it black farce?) about the genially bumbling staff of a suicide helpline in Venice, California, and their misadventures on Christmas Eve. Occasional laughs sputter through the haze, but this oddity never really finds its comic center. Written by Ephron and her sister Delia, based on a 1982 French film, LE PERE NOEL EST UNE ORDURE. Garry Shandling and Steven Wright appear unbilled. [PG-13] ▼●●

Mix Me a Person (1962-British) 116m. *½ D: Leslie Norman. Anne Baxter, Donald Sinden, Adam Faith, Jack MacGowran, Topsy Jane, Walter Brown. Unexceptional drama of psychiatrist Baxter proving teenager Faith innocent of murdering a policeman.

Miyazaki's Laputa SEE: Laputa
Miyazaki's Spirited Away SEE: Spirited Away

Mob, The (1951) 87m.  D: Robert Parrish. Broderick Crawford, Betty Buehler, Richard Kiley, Otto Hulett, Neville Brand, Ernest Borgnine, John Marley, Charles Bronson. Crawford is tough as nails as undercover cop on the trail of waterfront racketeers and their mystery boss. Sharp dialogue (by William Bowers), good suspense in this combination crime drama-whodunit.

Mo' Better Blues (1990) C-127m.  D: Spike Lee. Denzel Washington, Spike Lee, Wesley Snipes, Giancarlo Esposito, Robin Harris, Joie Lee, Bill Nunn, John Turturro, Dick Anthony Williams, Cynda Williams, Nicholas Turturro, Samuel L. Jackson, Ruben Blades, Abbey Lincoln, Joe Seneca. Backstage look at a self-centered jazz trumpeter who manages to keep everyone at arm's length—including the two ladies in his life. Colorful, musically alive, with some good vignettes from members of Lee's stock company, but it goes on forever—with barely enough story to keep it afloat. Branford Marsalis' Quartet with Terence Blanchard is featured on the soundtrack; music score by Bill Lee (Spike's father). [R] ▼●●

Mobsters (1991) C-104m.  D: Michael Karbelnikoff. Christian Slater, Patrick Dempsey, Costas Mandylor, Richard Grieco, F. Murray Abraham, Michael Gambon, Lara Flynn Boyle, Anthony Quinn, Christopher Penn, Nicholas Sadler. What promised to be YOUNG TOMMY GUNS turns out to be simply boring: a fanciful rehash of the Prohibition Era, with youthful actors as Lucky Luciano, Frank Costello, Bugsy Siegel, and Meyer Lansky. Long, convoluted, and unrewarding. Only distinction: Richard Sylbert's handsome production design. [R] ▼●●

Moby Dick (1930) 75m. ½ D: Lloyd Bacon. John Barrymore, Joan Bennett, Walter Long, Nigel de Brulier, Noble Johnson, Virginia Sale. Barrymore is a vivid Captain Ahab, though film is more Hollywood than Melville. Pointless love story added to original narrative, as in Barrymore's earlier silent-film version, THE SEA BEAST. Remade in 1956 and 1998.

Moby Dick (1956) C-116m.  D: John Huston. Gregory Peck, Richard Basehart, Friedrich Ledebur, Leo Genn, Orson Welles, James Robertson Justice, Harry Andrews, Bernard Miles, Royal Dano. Moody version of Herman Melville sea classic, with Peck lending a deranged dignity to the role of Captain Ahab. Fine scenes throughout, including second-unit camera work by the great Freddie Francis. Screenplay by Huston and Ray Bradbury. Francis Ford Coppola executive produced 1998 remake as a TV miniseries with Patrick Stewart. ▼●●

Model and the Marriage Broker, The (1951) 103m.  D: George Cukor. Jeanne Crain, Scott Brady, Thelma Ritter, Zero Mostel, Michael O'Shea, Frank Fontaine, Nancy Kulp. Poignant, perceptive little comedy-drama chronicling the affairs of marriage broker Ritter, who plays Cupid for model Crain and X-ray technician Brady. However, most of her clients don't have pretty faces: they're shy, lonely, desperate for companionship. A winner.

Model Shop (1969-French) C-95m.  D: Jacques Demy. Anouk Aimée, Gary Lockwood, Alexandra Hay, Carole Cole, Severn Darden, Tom Fielding. Twenty-four hours in life of disenchanted young architect (Lockwood), his affair with recently abandoned fashion model (Aimée). Director Demy's eye for L.A. is striking, but overall feel to story is ambiguous. [MP/G]

Modern Affair, A (1996) C-90m.  D: Vern Oakley. Lisa Eichhorn, Stanley Tucci, Caroline Aaron, Wesley Addy, Robert Lupone, Tammy Grimes, Robert Joy. Small, moderately amusing comedy about a successful corporate executive who undergoes artificial insemination, gets pregnant, and then impulsively tracks down the anonymous sperm donor. Results are predictable, but Tucci and Eichhorn lift the material up a couple of notches. This forgettable concoction may play better on the small screen. [R] ▼

Modern Love (1990) C-109m.  D: Robby Benson. Robby Benson, Karla DeVito, Rue McClanahan, Burt Reynolds, Frankie Valli, Louise Lasser, Kaye Ballard, Lou Kaplan. Paper-thin comedy which director-star Benson also produced and scripted. The film should be titled FAMILY AFFAIR: DeVito, Benson's wife, plays his on-screen mate, and their daughter Lyric is cast as the couple's offspring. The scenario—the duo meet, fall in love, wed, and deal with various “modern problems”—is run-of-the-mill. Filmed in South Carolina, while Benson was teaching a university moviemaking class. [R] ▼

Modern Problems (1981) C-91m. *½ D: Ken Shapiro. Chevy Chase, Patti D'Arbanville, Mary Kay Place, Nell Carter, Brian Doyle-Murray, Dabney Coleman, Mitch Kreindel. Air-traffic controller Chase acquires telekinetic powers. A couple of funny bits; mostly flat, boring. [PG] ▼

Modern Romance (1981) C-93m. ½ D: Albert Brooks. Albert Brooks, Kathryn Harrold, Bruno Kirby, Jane Hallaren, James L. Brooks, George Kennedy. Writer-director Brooks plays a world-class neurotic who's obsessively devoted to Harrold but unable to maintain a normal relationship with her. Alternately obnoxious and hilarious, with wonderful in-jokes about moviemaking (Brooks plays a film editor); Brooks' brother Bob Einstein plays a sporting-goods salesman in a nice cameo. Real-life writer-director James L.

Brooks plays a director; he returned the favor by writing Albert a plum role in BROADCAST NEWS several years later. [R] ▼

Moderns, The (1988) C-128m. ½ D: Alan Rudolph. Keith Carradine, Linda Fiorentino, John Lone, Genevieve Bujold, Geraldine Chaplin, Wallace Shawn, Kevin J. O'Connor. Beautifully mounted but dramatically flawed period piece about a community of “artistes” in 1926 Paris. Bland Carradine is a major liability as an art forger; portraits of Hemingway and Gertrude Stein are less than half baked. Lone and Fiorentino are standouts as a menacing U.S. rubber baron and wife, she a lost love of Carradine's. Worthy but iffy. [R] ▼

Modern Times (1936) 89m. * D: Charlie Chaplin. Charlie Chaplin, Paulette Goddard, Henry Bergman, Chester Conklin, Stanley “Tiny” Sandford. Charlie attacks the machine age in inimitable fashion, with sharp pokes at other social ills and the struggle of modern-day survival. Goddard is the gamine who becomes his partner in life. Chaplin's last silent film (with his own music—including “Smile”—sound effects and gibberish song) is consistently hilarious, and unforgettable. Final shot is among Chaplin's most famous and most poignant. One of Goddard's sisters early on is young Gloria DeHaven (daughter of Chaplin's assistant director). ▼

Modesty Blaise (1966-British) C-119m.  D: Joseph Losey. Monica Vitti, Dirk Bogarde, Terence Stamp, Harry Andrews, Michael Craig, Scilla Gabel, Tina Marquand, Clive Revill, Alexander Knox. Director Losey ate watermelon, pickles, and ice cream, went to sleep, woke up, and made this adaptation of the comic strip about a sexy female spy. Filmed at the height of the pop-art craze, it tries to be a spoof at times, doesn't know what it's supposed to be at other moments. ▼

Mod Squad, The (1999) C-94m. *½ D: Scott Silver. Claire Danes, Giovanni Ribisi, Omar Epps, Dennis Farina, Josh Brolin, Michael Lerner, Steve Harris, Richard Jenkins, Bodhi Elfman. Brain-dead rehash of the late '60s-early '70s TV series. Here, the title trio—all young delinquents recruited to work undercover in the LAPD—go into action in a scenario involving the theft of confiscated drugs and other mayhem. Plays like an extended, R-rated episode that was spit out of a computer. [R] ▼

Mogambo (1953) C-115m. ½ D: John Ford. Clark Gable, Ava Gardner, Grace Kelly, Donald Sinden, Philip Stainton, Eric Pohlmann, Laurence Naismith, Denis O'Dea. Lusty remake of RED DUST. Gable repeats his role, Ava replaces Harlow, Kelly has Mary Astor's part. John Lee Mahin reworked his 1932 screenplay. Romantic triangle in Africa combines love and action; beautifully filmed by Robert Surtees and Freddie Young. ▼

Mohammad, Messenger of God (1977-Arabic) C-180m.  D: Moustapha Akkad. Anthony Quinn, Irene Papas, Michael Ansara, Johnny Sekka, Michael Forest, Neville Jason. Spectacle of the beginnings of Moslem religion is sincere effort, more impressive with action than religious angles. In accordance with the religion, Mohammad is never shown. AKA THE MES-SAGE. Panavision. [PG]▼

Mole People, The (1956) 78m.  D: Virgil Vogel. John Agar, Cynthia Patrick, Hugh Beaumont, Alan Napier. Agar and others find lost underground civilization of albino Sumerians, who have half-human creatures as their slaves. Probably the worst of Universal-International's '50s sci-fi movies.▼●

Molière (2007-French) C-120m. ½ D: Laurent Tirard. Romain Duris, Fabrice Luchini, Laura Morante, Edouard Baer, Ludivine Sagnier, Fanny Valette. The great 17th-century French playwright (Duris) learns a valuable life lesson at a crucial moment in his career. He's rescued from debtor's prison by a wealthy man (Luchini) who needs coaching for his first, stumbling effort as an actor-playwright, which is designed to impress the beautiful Sagnier. Meanwhile, Molière becomes involved with the smitten man's neglected wife (Morante). Hints of Molière plays to come are cleverly sprinkled throughout the elegant, bittersweet screenplay by director Tirard and Grégoire Vigneron. A delight. Panavision. [PG-13]●

Moll Flanders (1996) C-123m. ½ D: Pen Densham. Robin Wright, Morgan Freeman, Stockard Channing, John Lynch, Brenda Fricker, Geraldine James, Aisling Corcoran, Jeremy Brett. Daniel Defoe's 18th-century heroine was the inspiration for this newly spun tale of a girl, born to poverty and abuse, who spends her whole life standing up to men (and women) who would "use" her. Wright is rock-solid as Moll, but the interesting story has its share of lulls. Filmmaker Jim Sheridan plays a priest. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Molly (1999) C-91m. *½ D: John Duigan. Elisabeth Shue, Aaron Eckhart, Thomas Jane, Jill Hennessy, D.W. Moffett, Elizabeth Mitchell, Lucy Liu. Female spin on CHARLY is a saccharine vehicle for Shue as a childlike autistic person who gets a major brain upgrade. Solid support from Eckhart as her reluctant older brother and Jane as her shy boyfriend can't make up for a major case of the cutes. Film preaches endlessly (and irresponsibly) about how kooky and free-spirited autistic people can be and how wretched we are for not enjoying the simple things in life as they do. Made its U.S. debut as an in-flight movie! [PG-13]▼

Molly and Lawless John (1971) C-97m.  D: Gary Nelson. Vera Miles, Sam Elliott, Clu Gulager, John Anderson. Slow-moving

but not-uninteresting feminist Western, with Miles doing well as a repressed sheriff's wife who chooses to assist a brash young killer (Elliott) in a prison escape. Their developing relationship forms the basis of the story. [PG]▼

Molly and Me (1945) 76m.  D: Lewis Seiler. Gracie Fields, Monty Woolley, Roddy McDowall, Reginald Gardiner, Natalie Schafer, Edith Barrett, Doris Lloyd. Unemployed actress-turned-housekeeper Fields goes about brightening the life (and solving the problems) of her new boss, a dour and snippy disgraced politician (Woolley). Well played by a fine cast, with Gardiner almost stealing the film as Woolley's butler.

Molly Maguire, The (1970) C-123m. ½ D: Martin Ritt. Sean Connery, Richard Harris, Samantha Eggar, Frank Finlay, Art Lund, Anthony Costello. Well-crafted film about secret society of Irish mine-workers in Pennsylvania, circa 1876, led by Connery; newcomer Harris is working as informer. Vivid atmosphere, good performances, but downbeat film lacks appeal, and is hurt by inconclusive ending. Panavision. [M/PG]▼●●

Molokai: The Story of Father Damien (1999-Australian-Dutch) C-113m. ½ D: Paul Cox. David Wenham, Derek Jacobi, Alice Krige, Kris Kristofferson, Sam Neill, Peter O'Toole, Leo McKern. True story of Father Damien and his battle to get proper medical and religious care for the outcast inhabitants of a leper colony in the Hawaiian islands. Hansen's disease is graphically shown; not for the fainthearted. Beautifully filmed on the site of the original colony, but given the subject matter, film is never as compelling as it ought to be. Super 35.▼

Mom and Dad Save the World (1992) C-88m. *½ D: Greg Beeman. Teri Garr, Jeffrey Jones, Jon Lovitz, Thalmus Rasulala, Wallace Shawn, Eric Idle, Dwier Brown, Kathy Ireland. Perfectly dreadful comedy/fantasy about the megalomaniacal ruler of a tiny planet (Lovitz) who's about to blow up Earth. He becomes attracted to a suburban Mom (Garr) and spirits her and her husband (Jones) to his planet so she can be his bride. Some imaginative visuals can't buoy this strained and unfunny concoction. [PG]▼●●

Moment by Moment (1978) C-102m. BOMB D: Jane Wagner. Lily Tomlin, John Travolta, Andra Akers, Bert Kramer, Shelley R. Bonus. Role-reversal romance with Travolta as sex object, Tomlin as bored Malibu resident gives new dimension to the word "dreary." Panavision. [R]

Moment to Moment (1966) C-108m. ½ D: Mervyn LeRoy. Jean Seberg, Honor Blackman, Sean Garrison, Arthur Hill. Unconvincing, confused murder mystery set on the Riviera, but filmed largely on Universal's sound stage.▼

Mommie Dearest (1981) C-129m. ½ D: Frank Perry. Faye Dunaway, Diana Scarwid, Steve Forrest, Howard da Silva, Mara Hobel, Rutanya Alda, Harry Goz. Vivid, well-crafted filmization of Christina Crawford's book about growing up the adopted and abused daughter of movie queen Joan Crawford (brilliantly played by Dunaway). Knowing that the story is (allegedly) real makes watching this film a creepy experience, something akin to voyeurism . . . though now it's seen as a camp classic! [PG]▼●●

Mommy (1995) C-89m. ½ D: Max Allan Collins. Patty McCormack, Jason Miller, Brinke Stevens, Majel Barrett, Mickey Spillane, Rachel Lemieux, Sarah Jane Miller. Pretty good little thriller set (and shot) in Muscatine, Iowa, with McCormack as The Bad Seed grown up: a smothering mommy who murders freely to get her way (and to protect her beloved daughter). Now the daughter starts to wonder how to deal with Mommy. McCormack is chillingly good, and the film seldom betrays its low-budget status. Scripted by the director, who also wrote (and sings) several songs on the soundtrack! Followed by MOMMY 2: MOMMY'S DAY. ▼●●

Mo' Money (1992) C-91m.  D: Peter MacDonald. Damon Wayans, Marlon Wayans, Stacey Dash, Joe Santos, John Diehl, Harry J. Lennix, Almayvonne. Slapdash, needlessly violent comedy-actioner which barely runs on the energy of its talented stars. Damon Wayans plays a streetwise jerk who, in order to woo Dash, takes a job on the bottom rung of the credit card company where she works, and (with kid brother Marlon) becomes involved with fraud, blackmail, and mayhem. Look for Bernie Mac as a doorman. Damon Wayans also scripted and executive produced. [R]▼●●

Mona Lisa (1986-British) C-104m.  D: Neil Jordan. Bob Hoskins, Cathy Tyson, Michael Caine, Robbie Coltrane, Clarke Peters, Kate Hardie, Zoe Nathenson, Sammi Davis. Absorbing adult drama about a small-time hood who's given a job driving around a high-priced callgirl but remains naive about the life she leads, and about the degree of depravity his underworld chums have sunk to. Director Jordan (who cowrote screenplay with David Leland) leads us into this nether world along with Hoskins, allowing us to discover things at the same time. Hoskins and newcomer Tyson are terrific; Caine is wonderfully slimy in support. [R]▼●●

Mona Lisa Smile (2003) C-119m.  D: Mike Newell. Julia Roberts, Kirsten Dunst, Julia Stiles, Maggie Gyllenhaal, Juliet Stevenson, Dominic West, Ginnifer Goodwin, Topher Grace, Marcia Gay Harden, John Slattery, Jordan Bridges, Marian Seldes. Dedicated, freethinking art history prof Roberts molds young Wellesley women—even spoiled, mouthy Dunst—in the culturally stifling 1950s, but quickly learns that she's bucking the system in and out of the classroom. There's some fun seeing contemporary young actresses in a period setting, but the movie is so smug and condescending that even anti-nostalgists may be put off. Pop culture reminders of the 1950s are laid on with a trowel . . . and even the villains in DELIVERANCE would know Columbia Records' superstar Doris Day did not record for RCA Victor, though one close-up implies that she did. [PG-13]▼●

Monarch of the Moon (2005) C-98m.  D: Richard Lowry. Blane Wheatley, Monica Himmelheber, Brent Moss, Kimberly Page, Will McMillan, Penny Drake, Kyle Vogt. Entertaining parody of 1940s Saturday matinee serials (divided into six chapters), with the heroic Yellowjacket using his winged backpack to soar into action at a moment's notice to protect the interests of the U.S.A.—and locking horns with the evil villainess Dragonfly. Executed on a micro-budget with great verve and humor; even the sometimes-primitive special effects are fun to watch. This is the film SKY CAPTAIN AND THE WORLD OF TOMORROW aspired to be. Made by the same team that created DESTINATION MARS!▶

Mondays in the Sun (2002-Spanish) C-113m.  D: Fernando León de Aranoa. Javier Bardem, Luis Tosar, José Ángel Egido, Nieve de Medina, Enrique Villén, Celso Bugallo, Aida Folch, Joaquín Climent. Fine if somber study of men who have lost their jobs as dockworkers and manage to survive on little more than hope. Bardem is very effective, and the film has something universally important to say. Based on a true story. Winner of the Goya, Spain's Oscar, for Best Picture. ▼●

John Cusack, Debi Mazar, Michael Madsen, Benicio Del Toro, Michael Rapaport, Maury Chaykin, James Gandolfini, Fionnula Flanagan, Philip Seymour Hoffman. True story of unemployed longshoreman who finds over a million bucks which has fallen out of an armored car; he sees it as his ticket to the good life, but it doesn't work out that way. Earnest but drab treatment of an interesting story; promoted as a comedy, which it is not. The real-life Joey Coyle, on whom the film is based, committed suicide shortly before its release. Panavision. [R]▼●●

nard, Jack Kruschen. One of Dean and Jerry's weakest outings is slickly made but wanders all over the place, with Jerry as an aspiring veterinarian who gets involved with gangsters, steeplechase racing, an Arab ruler and his harem. Based on a Damon Runyon story. Originally in 3-D. D

Money Money Money (1973-French) C-113m.  D: Claude Lelouch. Lino Ventura, Jacques Brel, Charles Denner, Aldo Maccione, Charles Gerard. Gang of successful thieves decide that changing times demand their switch to political crimes, which pay more handsomely. Clever, funny spoof of our heated political era as seen through eyes of men whose only belief is in money. Aka L'AVENTURE, C'EST L'AVENTURE. [PG] D

Money Pit, The (1986) C-91m.  D: Richard Benjamin. Tom Hanks, Shelley Long, Alexander Godunov, Maureen Stapleton, Joe Mantegna, Philip Bosco, Josh Mostel. A young couple's slapstick misadventures trying to repair and remodel a lemon of a house. Hanks and Long are very likable, but this yuppie update of MR. BLANDINGS BUILDS HIS DREAM HOUSE loses all contact with reality (and humor). Starts out funny but just gets worse and worse. Produced by Steven Spielberg and Co. [PG] **▼●●

Money Talks (1997) C-95m.  D: Brett Ratner. Chris Tucker, Charlie Sheen, Heather Locklear, Paul Sorvino, Veronica Cartwright, Gerard Ismael, Paul Gleason, David Warner. TV newsman Sheen stumbles into a big story involving fugitive Tucker, and is forced to palm off the hustler as a longtime friend to fiancée Locklear and her rich parents. Surprise box-office success is familiar and lightweight, but has one genuine spark of whimsy: Tucker's phony masquerade as "Vic Damone, Jr.," brought on by the movie's amusingly concocted TV ad for an album of Vic Sr.'s hit recordings. Super 35. [R] **▼●●

Money Train (1995) C-103m.  D: Joseph Ruben. Wesley Snipes, Woody Harrelson, Jennifer Lopez, Robert Blake, Chris Cooper, Joe Grifasi. The costars of WHITE MEN CAN'T JUMP try to reignite their chemistry as randy N.Y.C. transit cops—and brothers (!)—who fight over the same woman, argue over Woody's gambling fever, and get involved in the theft of a money-laden subway car. Violent, overly contrived buddy flick with some big subterranean action scenes. The stars are funny together, but Blake is way over the top as the boys' megalomaniac supervisor. All in all, "token" entertainment. Super 35. [R] **▼●●

Money Trap, The (1966) 92m. ½ D: Burt Kennedy. Glenn Ford, Rita Hayworth, Elke Sommer, Joseph Cotten, Ricardo Montalban. Ford is detective turned crook in pedestrian murder yarn. Hayworth most convincing as middle-aged woman no longer self-sufficient. Rare non-Western from Kennedy; adapted by Walter Bernstein from Lionel White's novel. Panavision. D

Mongol (2007 - Kazakhstaniian - German-Russian-Mongolian) C-126m.  D: Sergei Bodrov. Tadanobu Asano, Khulan Chuluun, Honglei Sun. Surprisingly personal portrait of the man who would be known as Genghis Khan—warrior and conqueror—and his extraordinary bond with the woman he chose to be his wife when he was nine years old. Vivid character portrait is played out on an enormous canvas, with eye-filling images and massive battle scenes, though the film's storytelling momentum flags from time to time. Super 35. [R] D

Mongols, The (1961-Italian) C-102m.  D: Andre de Toth, Leopoldo Savona. Jack Palance, Anita Ekberg, Antonella Lualdi, Franco Silva. Unimaginative spectacle set in 13th century, with Palance the son of Genghis Khan on the rampage in Europe, Ekberg his girl. CinemaScope. **▼

Mon Homme (1996-French) C-95m.  D: Bertrand Blier. Anouk Grinberg, Gérard Lanvin, Valeria Bruni Tedeschi, Olivier Martinez, Sabine Azema, Bernard Le Coq. Gleeefully amoral sex fable about a sweet-natured, nymphomaniac prostitute (Grinberg) and what happens when she falls in love with a homeless man and turns him into her pimp. Full of typically perverse and surreal Blier touches, but also surprisingly affecting. Aka MY MAN. Panavision. **▼

MonkeyBone (2001) C-92m. *½ D: Henry Selick. Brendan Fraser, Bridget Fonda, Dave Foley, Whoopi Goldberg, Giancarlo Esposito, Rose McGowan, Megan Mullally, Lisa Zane, Chris Kattan; voice of John Turturro. Simply awful fantasy-comedy about a cartoonist who's created a mischievous-monkey cartoon alter ego. When he slips into a coma, he enters a bizarre, nightmarish netherworld in which the monkey runs rampant; then the creature wreaks havoc in his "real life" too. Overblown, ugly, unfocused mess; Kattan steals the show in a small but hilarious part. Thomas Haden Church appears uncredited. Based on the graphic novel Dark Town. [PG-13] **▼

Monkey Business (1931) 77m. ½ D: Norman Z. McLeod. Groucho, Harpo, Chico, Zeppo Marx, Thelma Todd, Ruth

Hall, Harry Woods. Four brothers stow away on luxury liner; Groucho goes after Thelma, all four pretend to be Maurice Chevalier to get off ship. Full quota of sight gags and puns in typically wacky comedy, coscripted by S. J. Perelman; their first film written directly for the screen. ▼●●

Monkey Business (1952) 97m.  D: Howard Hawks. Ginger Rogers, Cary Grant, Charles Coburn, Marilyn Monroe, Hugh Marlowe. Grant discovers rejuvenation serum, which affects him, wife Rogers, boss Coburn, and secretary Monroe in this zany comedy. Coburn's classic line to MM: "Find someone to type this." Written by Ben Hecht, Charles Lederer, and I.A.L. Diamond; that's Hawks' voice during the opening credits. ▼●●

Monkey Grip (1982-Australian) C-101m. ½ D: Ken Cameron. Noni Hazlehurst, Colin Friels, Alice Garner, Harold Hopkins, Candy Raymond. Unmemorable drama detailing the trials of singleminded single mother Hazlehurst, particularly her relationship with obnoxious drug addict boyfriend Friels. Nice performance by Hazlehurst, but ultimately just a superficial soap opera. ▼

Monkey Hustle (1977) C-90m. *½ D: Arthur Marks. Yaphet Kotto, Rosalind Cash, Rudy Ray Moore, Kirk Calloway, Randy Brooks. Appealing cast is only saving grace of dumb comedy actioner designed for black audiences, shot in Chicago. Kotto is a black Fagin; ghetto neighborhood's impending demise for an expressway forms a bit of plot. [PG] ▼●

Monkeys, Go Home! (1967) C-101m.  D: Andrew V. McLaglen. Maurice Chevalier, Dean Jones, Yvette Mimieux, Bernard Woringer, Clement Harari, Yvonne Constant. Disney trivia about a man who inherits French olive farm and trains monkeys to pick his crop. Gossamer-thin, for kids only. Chevalier's final film appearance. ▼

Monkey Shines: An Experiment in Fear (1988) C-115m.  D: George Romero. Jason Beghe, John Pankow, Kate McNeil, Joyce Van Patten, Christine Forrest, Stephen Root, Stanley Tucci, Janine Turner. A cute monkey (injected with human brain cells) is enlisted to help a quadriplegic get on with his life. From that premise writer-director Romero tries to build horror and suspense, but it only works in spurts, and taxes our credibility (and our patience) far too often. [R] ▼●●

Monkey's Uncle, The (1965) C-87m.  D: Robert Stevenson. Tommy Kirk, Annette Funicello, Leon Ames, Frank Faylen, Arthur O'Connell, Norman Grabowski. Juvenile Disney comedy has Kirk again as Merlin Jones, college whiz-kid who first tries sleep-learning method on monkey, then sets himself up in makeshift flying machine. Flight sequences provide brightest moments. Unforgettable title song

warbled by Annette and The Beach Boys. Sequel to THE MISADVENTURES OF MERLIN JONES. ▼●

Monkey Trouble (1994) C-95m.  D: Franco Amurri. Thora Birch, Harvey Keitel, Mimi Rogers, Christopher McDonald, Kevin Scannell. Nicely done family film about Eva (Birch), a clever nine-year-old who yearns for a pet; she adopts a Capuchin monkey, whom she hides from her parents. Splendid change-of-pace for Keitel, as a gypsy who'd been using the monkey to pick pockets; the monkey, whom Eva names "Dodger" (played by "Finster"), is a real scene-stealer. Kids Eva's age should love it. Amurri scripted, with Stu Krieger. Ridley Scott executive-produced. [PG] ▼●●

Mon Oncle (1958-French) C-126m. * D: Jacques Tati. Jacques Tati, Jean-Pierre Zola, Adrienne Servantie, Alain Bercourt. Tati's first color film is a masterpiece. M. Hulot's simple, uncluttered life is sharply contrasted to that of his sister and brother-in-law, who live in an ultramodern, gadget-laden home reminiscent of those in Buster Keaton's silent classics. Continuous flow of sight gags (including the funniest fountain you'll ever see) makes this easygoing, nearly dialogue-less comedy a total delight. Oscar winner as Best Foreign Film. Monsieur Hire (1989-French) C-88m. ½ D: Patrice Leconte. Michell Blanc, Sandrine Bonnaire, Luc Thuillier, Eric Berenger. Bald, middle-aged Peeping Tom falls in love with the object of his obsession—a young woman, peripherally involved in a murder, who lives across the courtyard. Cold, but involving and terrifically acted version of a Georges Simenon novel; the short running time helps. Previously filmed in 1946 as PANIQUE. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Monsieur Ibrahim (2003-French) C-94m.

A resourceful Jewish teen (Boulanger) in 1960s Paris gets to know the philosophical Muslim shopkeeper across the street . . . and the neighborhood prostitutes as well. The growing friendship between the elder and the adolescent, along with the life lessons, are nicely played, but story is rather slight and leisurely paced. Adjani has a bit as a movie star. [R]▼

Monsieur N. (2003-French-British) C-128m.

 D: Antoine de Caunes. Philippe Torreton, Richard E. Grant, Jay Rodan, Elsa Zylberstein, Roschdy Zem, Bruno Putzulu, Stéphane Freiss, Frédéric Pierrot, Siobhan Hewlett. Fanciful yarn set on the island of St. Helena, where a British military martinet (Grant) is sent to guard Napoleon Bonaparte (Torreton) in 1815, certain that the ingenious emperor is planning to escape. Told through the eyes of a British lieutenant (Rodan) who suspects, 20 years later, that history has been hoodwinked. Promising story actually grows less interesting as it develops, despite impressive production values. Super 35.▶

D: Charles Chaplin. Charles Chaplin, Martha Raye, Isobel Elsom, Marilyn Nash, Irving Bacon, William Frawley. Chaplin's controversial black comedy about a Parisian Bluebeard who murders wives for their money was years ahead of its time; its wry humor and pacifist sentiments make it quite contemporary when seen today. Broad comic sequence with Raye is particular highlight.▼●●

Monsignor (1982) C-122m.  D: Frank

Saga of ambitious priest who commits every heresy imaginable (including having an affair with a nun!) while operating as the Vatican's business manager. Grows more ridiculous as it goes along—with unintentional comedy on a grand scale—culminating in an astonishing final shot involving the Pope. Another camp classic from the producer and director of MOMMIE DEAREST. [R]▼

113m.  D: Mira Nair. Naseeruddin Shah, Lillete Dubey, Shefali Shetty, Vasundhara Das, Parvin Dabas, Vijay Raaz, Tilotama Shome, Rajat Kapoor. A middle-class Punjabi man plans an elaborate wedding that is well beyond his means for his daughter, who has only met the groom weeks ago. In the days leading up to the event, the tangled relationships of his extended family—and his daughter's own doubts—lead to tumult. Long but richly textured comedy-drama emphasizing how love, betrayal, and ambition impose themselves on even the most tradition-bound societies.▼

D: Roberto Benigni. Roberto Benigni, Michel Blanc, Nicoletta Braschi, Jean-Claude Brialy, Massimo Girotti, Dominique Lavanant, Ivano Marescotti. Bumbling Benigni is mistaken by the police for a wanted serial killer, and he's followed by an attractive female cop hoping to get the goods on him. Moderately amusing comedy will mostly please those who already adore Benigni; others will find fewer laughs. Original title: IL MOSTRO.▼

Monster (2003) C-109m.  D: Patty

Jenkins. Charlize Theron, Christina Ricci, Bruce Dern, Scott Wilson, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Lee Tergesen, Annie Corley. Theron won an Oscar for her raw, no-holds-barred performance as Aileen Wuornos, the infamous prostitute and serial killer who murdered seven men and was executed in 2002. The film works better as a love story between the emotionally scarred Wuornos and a young woman she grows to trust (Ricci) than as an incisive social commentary. Impressive feature debut for writer-director Jenkins. Theron's extraordinary make-up was crafted by Toni G. [R]▼

Monster Club, The (1980-British) C-97m.

Kenan. Steve Buscemi, Maggie Gyllenhaal, Kevin James, Nick Cannon, Jason Lee, Jon Heder, Catherine O'Hara, Fred Willard, Kathleen Turner, Mitchel Musso, Sam Lerner, Spencer Locke. Two adolescent boys and a girl they've just met realize that the

spooky house across the street is actually alive and swallowing up people! Story gets stranger as it goes along (try explaining it to your kids) but offers some good, spooky moments for juvenile audiences. Why it's done with "motion capture," to make animated characters act like real people, is a question adults will have to grapple with. Digital Widescreen. [PG] ▼

Monster in a Box (1992) C-96m.  D: Nick Broomfield. The second film adaptation of a Spalding Gray monologue, this one chronicling various adventures from L.A. to the Soviet Union which interrupt Gray's efforts to write a huge autobiographical novel (the monster of the title). The direction and the music are more obtrusive than in the previous SWIMMING TO CAMBODIA, but Gray's stories and observations are still funny, profound, and extremely compelling. Our favorite anecdote: Gray's semi-disastrous stint as the Stage Manager in a N.Y. revival of Our Town. ▼

Monster-in-Law (2005) C-95m.  D: Robert Luketic. Jennifer Lopez, Jane Fonda, Michael Vartan, Wanda Sykes, Adam Scott, Monet Mazur, Annie Parisse, Will Arnett, Elaine Stritch. Nice girl meets nice guy, and he asks her to marry him. Now she has to contend with the mother-in-law from hell, a vain, controlling woman who'll stop at nothing to prevent the nuptials from taking place. Professionalism (and Sykes' well-calculated one-liners) just barely sustain this obvious, heavy-handed comedy. Fonda is still a formidable presence after 15 years off-screen; too bad she couldn't have found a better script for her return. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Monster in the Closet (1986) C-87m.  D: Bob Dahlin. Donald Grant, Denise DuBarry, Claude Akins, Howard Duff, Henry Gibson, Donald Moffat, Paul Dooley, John Carradine, Jesse White, Stella Stevens. Perceptive and funny homage to 1950s sci-fi flicks. Clark Kent-type reporter Grant and scientist DuBarry team up to track down and destroy California monsters who pop out of closets and kill people. A must for buffs. Filmed in 1983. [PG] ▼

Monster Island (1981-U.S.-Spanish) C-100m. *½ D: Juan Piquer Simon. Terence Stamp, Peter Cushing, Ian Serra, David Hatton, Blanca Estrada. Hamdrum actioner, with Serra and Hatton shipwrecked on an island loaded with gold and strange creatures. Based on a story by Jules Verne.

Monster's Ball (2001) C-112m. ½ D: Marc Forster. Billy Bob Thornton, Halle Berry, Peter Boyle, Heath Ledger, Sean Combs, Mos Def, Coronji Calhoun. A soft-spoken Georgia prison functionary who's repressed his feelings for years—through family tragedies and the emotional upheavals of his job—begins to change after his son, a fellow prison guard, reacts badly to their latest execution. Challenging film tackles issues of darkness and light with great feeling and nuance, as Thornton becomes involved with the unstable widow of the man he just put to death. Unlike some dramas that wallow in misery, this one provides a meaningful—and plausible—catharsis, with superb acting right down the line. Berry's shattering performance earned her a Best Actress Oscar. Written by Milo Addica and Will Rokos. Super 35. [R] ▼

Monsters, Inc. (2001) C-92m.  D: Peter Docter. Voices of John Goodman, Billy Crystal, Mary Gibbs, Steve Buscemi, James Coburn, Jennifer Tilly, John Ratzenberger, Frank Oz, Bonnie Hunt. Clever, funny computer-animated tale of life in Monstropolis, a city powered by the screams of children frightened by monsters who come out of their closets at night. Trouble begins when a little girl named Boo invades this world—to the dismay of furry monster Sully and his talkative squire, Mike Wazowski. Goodman and Crystal give wonderful vocal performances; full of laughs for kids and grownups alike. Randy Newman's song "If I Didn't Have You" won an Oscar. Another winner from Pixar and Disney. Monster Squad, The (1987) C-81m. ½ D: Fred Dekker. Andre Gower, Robby Kiger, Stephen Macht, Duncan Regehr, Tom Noonan, Brent Chalem, Ryan Lambert, Ashley Bank. Young friends belong to a club that's devoted to monsters, but they unexpectedly encounter the horror heavies in real life when Dracula (accompanied by the Frankenstein monster, the Mummy, the Wolf Man, and the Gill Man) comes to their town in search of an amulet vital to his continued existence. Affectionate homage to classic horror films and their monster stars is ultimately too bland and unbelievable (even for a kiddie horror film). Climactic showdown boasts Richard Edlund's super-duper special effects. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Monsters vs Aliens (2009) C-95m. ½ D: Rob Letterman, Conrad Vernon. Voices of Reese Witherspoon, Seth Rogen, Hugh Laurie, Will Arnett, Kiefer Sutherland, Rainn Wilson, Stephen Colbert, Paul Rudd, Julie White, Jeffrey Tambor, Amy Poehler, Ed Helms, Renée Zellweger, John Krasinski. Young woman who's about to be married has a close encounter with a meteorite and becomes a giant. The government seizes her and closets her away with other assorted monsters—then realizes that these creatures might be just the ones to fend off an alien invasion. Jokey monster movie is also (no kidding) a female empowerment story. Innocuous animated family entertainment (especially good in 3-D) but the final gags fall curiously flat. Digital Widescreen. [PG]

rada. Godzilla and Rodan are swiped from Earth to battle Ghidrah on an alien planet. Lesser monster movie from the Toho Studio. Aka GODZILLA VS. MONSTER ZERO. Tohoscope. ▼●●

Monte Carlo (1930) 90m.  D: Ernst Lubitsch. Jeanette MacDonald, Jack Buchanan, ZaSu Pitts, Claude Allister. Dated but enjoyable musical froth with Jeanette an impoverished countess wooed by royal Buchanan, who's incognito, of course. Lubitsch's methods of integrating songs into the film were innovations in 1930; most memorable is "Beyond the Blue Horizon." ●●

Monte Carlo or Bust SEE: Those Daring Young Men in Their Jaunty Jalopies

Monte Carlo Story, The (1957-Italian) C-99m.  D: Samuel Taylor. Marlene Dietrich, Vittorio De Sica, Arthur O'Connell, Natalie Trundy, Mischa Auer. Charming stars try to support thin story of troubled romance between two compulsive gamblers; filmed on location. Technirama.

Montenegro (1981-Swedish-British) C-98m.  D: Dusan Makavejev. Susan Anspach, Erland Josephson, Per Oscarsson, John Zacharias, Svetozar Cvetkovic, Patricia Gelin. Bored middle-class housewife Anspach becomes sexually liberated when she accidentally falls in with Yugoslav workers who frequent a boisterous bar. Funny and entertaining. Aka MONTENEGRO—OR PIGS AND PEARLS. [R] ▼●●

Monterey Pop (1969) C-88m. ½ D: James Desmond, Barry Feinstein, D.A. Pennebaker, Albert Maysles, Roger Murphy, Richard Leacock, Nick Proferes. Otis Redding, Mamas and Papas, Jimi Hendrix, The Who, Janis Joplin, Animals, Jefferson Airplane. First major rock concert film, shot at 1967 Monterey Pop Festival, is still one of the best ever, with Joplin's "Ball and Chain" and Hendrix's pyrotechnical "Wild Thing" among the highlights. Video version includes 9m. extra footage. ▼●●

Monte Walsh (1970) C-106m.  D: William Fraker. Lee Marvin, Jeanne Moreau, Jack Palance, Mitch Ryan, Jim Davis, Allyn Ann McLerie, Richard Farnsworth. Melancholy Western with Marvin a veteran cowboy who finds himself part of a dying West. Sensitive filming of novel by Jack Schaefer (who wrote SHANE). Fine performance by Palance in atypical good-guy role. Directorial debut for noted cinematographer Fraker. Remade for TV in 2003. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Month by the Lake, A (1995) C-94m. ½ D: John Irvin. Vanessa Redgrave, Edward Fox, Uma Thurman, Alida Valli,

Alessandro Gassman. Garrulous, unmarried Brit (Redgrave) vacations at Italy's Lake Como on the eve of WW2. She's interested in a fellow hotel guest, stiff-upper-lip Fox, but her hesitancy opens the door for flirtatious American Thurman. Sweetly entertaining (and picturesque), if painted in very broad strokes. That's Vittorio Gassman's son as the young lothario. Based on the novella by H. E. Bates. [PG] ▼●●

Month in the Country, A (1987-British) C-96m.  D: Pat O'Connor. Colin Firth, Kenneth Branagh, Natasha Richardson, Patrick Malahide, Tony Haygarth, Jim Carter. Occasionally slow but still thoughtful, rewarding drama about shellshocked WW1 vet Firth, and his experiences while uncovering a medieval painting on a church wall in a remote Yorkshire town. Screenplay by Simon Gray, from a novel by J. R. Carr. Stick with this one. [PG] ▼●●

Monty Python and the Holy Grail (1975-British) C-90m. ½ D: Terry Gilliam, Terry Jones. Graham Chapman, John Cleese, Terry Gilliam, Eric Idle, Terry Jones, Michael Palin. The Python troupe's second feature is wildly uneven, starting out well and then getting lost—in the "story" of a medieval quest. Some inspired lunacy, and a lot of dry stretches; awfully bloody, too. Recommended for fans only. Adapted into a stage musical, Spamalot, in 2004. [PG] ▼●●

Monty Python Live at the Hollywood Bowl (1982-British) C-77m.  D: Terry Hughes, "Monty Python." Graham Chapman, John Cleese, Terry Gilliam, Eric Idle, Terry Jones, Michael Palin, Neil Innes, Carol Cleveland. Britain's bad boys invade Los Angeles with this madcap series of sketches and routines, including many old favorites. A must for Python aficionados. Videotaped, then transferred to film. Aka MONTY PYTHON LIVE. [R] ▼●●

Monty Python's Life of Brian SEE: Life of Brian

Monty Python's The Meaning of Life (1983-British) C-103m.  D: Terry Jones. Graham Chapman, John Cleese, Terry Gilliam, Eric Idle, Terry Jones, Michael Palin, Carol Cleveland, Simon Jones. Original, outrageous comedy exploring various facets of life and death—from procreation to the Grim Reaper himself—with typical Python irreverence. Highlights include the world's most obese man (an unforgettable scene, like it or not) and a cheerful, elaborate production number about sperm! A barrel of bellylaughs for Python fans; others beware. [R] ▼●●

Monument Ave. (1998) C-90m.  D: Ted Demme. Denis Leary, Billy Crudup, Ian Hart, Jason Barry, Colm Meaney, Martin Sheen, Jeanne Tripplehorn, Famke Janssen, Noah Emmerich, John Diehl. Substitute Boston-Irish hoods for Martin Scorsese's Italian counterparts, and you get a sense of

what this aspires to be. Serviceable drama deals with the tension between an older mentor and his band of younger car thieves, as well as the women who mourn at the funerals their actions have engendered. Might have been more impressive had it come out ten years earlier. [R] ▼●●

Moolaadé (2005-Senegalese-French-Moroccan-Tunisian-Burkina Faso-Cameroon) C-124m. ½ D: Ousmane Sembene. Fatoumata Coulibaly, Maimouna Hélène Diarra, Salimata Traoré, Dominique T. Zeïda, Mah Compaoré. Deceptively simple but riveting account of a single-minded wife/mother in a small West African village, who defiantly gives refuge to some terrified young girls who want to avoid the ritualistic mutilation of their genitals—a custom throughout many parts of Africa. Difficult subject matter is potently handled by octogenarian Senegalese writer-director Sembene, who has fashioned a multi-layered, politically savvy drama that also brims with charm and wit. This is his final film. ●

Moon and Sixpence, The (1942) 89m.  D: Albert Lewin. George Sanders, Herbert Marshall, Doris Dudley, Eric Blore, Albert Bassermann, Molly Lamont, Elena Verdugo, Florence Bates, Heather Thatcher. Surprisingly adult adaptation of W. Somerset Maugham's novel based on the life of Paul Gauguin, with Sanders as the restless (and selfish) spirit who turns his back on his family, and society, to become a painter. A postscript, tacked on to satisfy Hollywood's moral code, weakly tries to undermine the character that Sanders and writer-director Lewin have just portrayed so well! Climactic scene of paintings originally shown in color. ▼●

Moonfleet (1955) C-89m. ½ D: Fritz Lang. Stewart Granger, Jon Whiteley, George Sanders, Viveca Lindfors, Joan Greenwood, Ian Wolfe. Tepid 18th-century story of Britisher Granger becoming a buccaneer. CinemaScope. ●

Moon 44 (1990-West German) C-102m. *½ D: Roland Emmerich. Michael Paré, Lisa Eichhorn, Malcolm McDowell, Dean Devlin, Brian Thompson, Stephen Geoffreys, Mehmed Yilmaz, Leon Rippey, Roscoe Lee Browne. In the 21st century, a multinational company forces its prisoners to protect their claim on a "moon" from takeover attempt by rival company. Paré plays a tough undercover agent. Annoyingly derivative, dreadfully obvious sci-fi epic. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Moon in the Gutter, The (1983-French) C-126m. *½ D: Jean-Jacques Beineix. Nastassia Kinski, Gerard Depardieu, Victoria Abril, Vittorio Mezzogiorno, Dominique Pinon. Overbaked, pompously surreal tale of dockworker Depardieu, seeking his sister's rapist, and his involvement with wealthy, beautiful Kinski. Both stars couldn't be worse. Panavision. [R] ▼

Moon Is Blue, The (1953) 99m. ½ D: Otto Preminger. William Holden, David

Niven, Maggie McNamara, Tom Tully, Dawn Addams, Gregory Ratoff. Once-saucy sex comedy about a young woman who flaunts her virginity now seems tame, too much a filmed stage play, with most innuendoes lacking punch. Adapted by F. Hugh Herbert from his stage hit. Hardy Kruger (who has a small part here) played the lead in a German-language version that Preminger filmed simultaneously. ▼●

Moonlight and Valentino (1995) C-104m.  D: David Anspaugh. Elizabeth Perkins, Whoopi Goldberg, Kathleen Turner, Gwyneth Paltrow, Jon Bon Jovi, Jeremy Sisto, Josef Sommer. A young woman cannot deal with the reality of suddenly being widowed—despite the support of her best friend, her younger sister, and her stepmother, who rally around her. Unusual subject matter portrayed with skill and unpredictability, though some will find it too talky and/or too studied in its quirkiness. Perkins gives an outstanding performance. Ellen Simon (daughter of Neil) adapted her stage play, based on her own experience. Peter Coyote appears unbilled as Goldberg's husband. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Moonlighter, The (1953) 75m.  D: Roy Rowland. Barbara Stanwyck, Fred MacMurray, Ward Bond, William Ching, John Dierkes, Jack Elam. Drifter MacMurray returns home to find that sweetheart Stanwyck is about to marry his brother. Complications ensue but there are no sparks, though Stanwyck is convincing as a rugged woman of the West. Mediocre Western written by Niven Busch. Originally in 3-D. ●

Moonlighting (1982-British) C-97m. * D: Jerzy Skolimowski. Jeremy Irons, Eugene Lipinski, Jiri Stanislav, Eugeniusz Haczkiewicz. Slow-paced but mesmerizing allegory about a Polish man sent to London with a trio of workmen to renovate a wealthy man's apartment. The supervisor (Irons) must keep their job a secret, since they have no work permits; the pressure increases when he learns that Poland has imposed martial law. Fascinating study of loneliness and desperation, full of irony and bittersweet humor; Irons is superb. Written and directed by Polish emigré Skolimowski. [PG] ▼●●

Moonlight Mile (2002) C-117m. ½ D: Brad Silberling. Jake Gyllenhaal, Dustin Hoffman, Susan Sarandon, Holly Hunter, Ellen Pompeo, Richard T. Jones, Allan Corduner, Dabney Coleman. Young man whose fiancée was murdered just before their wedding continues to live with the girl's parents as they all try to deal with their grief—and he grapples with feelings of guilt and indecision. Delicate material is handled with skill and good humor, until the young hero meets a woman who's too good to be true, and the story's credibility is derailed. Salvaged, to a great degree, by superior acting from Hoffman and Sarandon. Silberling wrote this in response to the murder of his girlfriend, actress Rebecca Schaffer, in 1989. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Moon Over Broadway (1997) C-92m.  D: D. A. Pennebaker, Chris Hegedus. Revealing—and entertaining—documentary about the Broadway production of Ken Ludwig's comedy Moon Over Buffalo, starring Carol Burnett, in her first Broadway play in many years, and Philip Bosco. The assorted behind-the-scenes power trips, emotions, and distresses are captured in vivid detail; a fascinating look at what goes into creating a high-profile Broadway production. A must for theater buffs. ▼

Moon Over Miami (1941) C-91m.  D: Walter Lang. Don Ameche, Betty Grable, Robert Cummings, Carole Landis, Charlotte Greenwood, Jack Haley. Grable, sister Landis, and Greenwood go fortune-hunting in Miami, come up with more than they bargained for in smoothly entertaining musical romance, especially nice in color. Tuneful songs include title number, "You Started Something." Remake of THREE BLIND MICE, also remade as THREE LITTLE GIRLS IN BLUE. ▼

Moon Over Parador (1988) C-105m. ½ D: Paul Mazursky. Richard Dreyfuss, Raul Julia, Sonia Braga, Jonathan Winters, Michael Greene, Polly Holliday, Charo, Marianne Sägbrecht, Sammy Davis, Jr., Dick Cavett, Ed Asner. Amiable comedy about an American actor who's shanghaied into portraying a recently deceased Latin American dictator; reluctant at first, he soon finds he enjoys the charade (and the despot's sexy companion). Entertaining enough, but never hits the bull's-eye. Cowriter/director Mazursky has a hilarious cameo in drag. Inspired by THE MAGNIFICENT FRAUD (1939). [PG-13] ▼

Moon Pilot (1962) C-98m.  D: James Neilson. Tom Tryon, Brian Keith, Edmond O'Brien, Dany Saval, Tommy Kirk, Bob Sweeney, Kent Smith. Dated but enjoyable Disney comedy about astronaut Tryon who meets mysterious girl from another planet (Saval) just before his mission. ▼

Moonraker (1979) C-126m.  D: Lewis Gilbert. Roger Moore, Lois Chiles, Michael Lonsdale, Richard Kiel, Corinne Clery, Bernard Lee, Desmond Llewelyn, Lois Maxwell. James Bond no longer resembles Ian Fleming's creation; now he's a tired punster pursuing an intergalactic madman. Overblown comic-strip adventure is strictly for the bubble-gum set . . . but tune in for eye-popping free-fall opening, the best part of this movie. Lee's last appearance as "M." Panavision. [PG] ▼

does in this psychological melodrama of angry, alienated Clark and his plight after accidentally killing the banker's son who's been taunting him for years. But it's beautifully directed; check out stunning opening shot, and opening sequence. ▼

Moonrunners (1974) C-102m.  D: Gy Waldron. James Mitchum, Kiel Martin, Arthur Hunnicutt, Joan Blackman, Waylon Jennings, Chris Forbes. Action-comedy about modern day bootleggers sputters because of Mitchum's lethargic acting and the script's lack of credibility. Later developed into the Dukes of Hazzard TV series. [PG]

Moonshine County Express (1977) C-95m. ½ D: Gus Trikonis. John Saxton, Susan Howard, William Conrad, Morgan Woodward, Claudia Jennings, Jeff Corey, Dub Taylor, Maureen McCormick. Murdered moonshiner's three sexy daughters decide to compete with local biggie (Conrad) whom they believe caused their father's death. Strong cast buoys good action programmer. [PG] ▼

Moonshine War, The (1970) C-100m.  D: Richard Quine. Richard Widmark, Alan Alda, Patrick McGeehan, Melodie Johnson, Will Geer, Joe Williams, Lee Hazlewood. Tediously plotted mixture of comedy and drama during late Prohibition era enlivened by unusual cast and honest attempt to evoke country atmosphere. Script by Elmore Leonard, from his novel. Look for Teri Garr as the tourist's wife. Panavision. [PG]

Moon-Spinners, The (1964) C-118m. ½ D: James Neilson. Hayley Mills, Eli Wallach, Pola Negri, Peter McEnery, Joan Greenwood, Irene Papas. Disney's attempt at Hitchcock-like intrigue with a light touch has Hayley a vacationer in Crete who becomes involved with jewelry-smuggling ring. Too long and muddled, but still entertaining, with Negri (off-screen since 1943) an enjoyable villainess. ▼

Moonstruck (1987) C-102m. * D: Norman Jewison. Cher, Nicolas Cage, Vincent Gardenia, Olympia Dukakis, Danny Aiello, Julie Bovasso, John Mahoney, Louis Guss, Feodor Chaliapin, Anita Gillette. A gem of a movie that unfolds like a good play, without ever seeming static or stagy. Cher plays an independent young widow who agrees to marry an older man (Aiello)—and then finds herself inexorably drawn to his misfit younger brother (Cage). John Patrick Shanley's script is brimming with wonderful vignettes and acute observations about Italian-American families. Cher, Dukakis (terrific as the mother), and Shanley won Oscars for their work. [PG] ▼

Moontrap (1989) C-92m. ½ D: Robert Dyke. Walter Koenig, Bruce Campbell, Leigh Lombardi, Robert Kurcz. OK entertainment, as aging space shuttle pilot and younger partner are sent to the Moon to investigate alien artifacts, but inadvertently restart alien machinery designed to invade the Earth. Very low-budget production shows ingenuity in its special effects and imagination in the story, but dramatic values are highly variable. [R]▼●

Moon Zero Two (1970-British) C-100m. *½ D: Roy Ward Baker. James Olson, Catherina Von Schell (Catherine Schell), Warren Mitchell, Adrienne Corri, Ori Levy, Dudley Foster. Sci-fi adventure is almost like a Western, with people making mining claims on the moon and having to fight for their rights. You've seen it before without the craters.▼●

More American Graffiti (1979) C-111m. *½ D: B. W. L. Norton. Candy Clark, Bo Hopkins, Ron Howard, Paul Le Mat, MacKenzie Phillips, Charles Martin Smith, Cindy Williams, Anna Bjorn, Scott Glenn, Mary Kay Place, Rosanna Arquette, Delroy Lindo. More is less, in this sequel to 1973 hit, placing that film's likable characters in a quartet of pointless vignettes. Look sharp for Harrison Ford as a motorcycle cop. Panavision (part). [PG]▼●●

More Than a Miracle (1967-Italian-French) C-105m.  D: Francesco Rosi. Sophia Loren, Omar Sharif, Dolores Del Rio, Georges Wilson, Leslie French, Marina Malfatti. Sophia has never looked better but this absurd fairy tale about a prince and a peasant girl is just a waste of time. Franscope.

More the Merrier, The (1943) 104m.  D: George Stevens. Jean Arthur, Joel McCrea, Charles Coburn, Richard Gaines, Bruce Bennett, Ann Savage, Ann Doran, Frank Sully, Grady Sutton. The wartime housing shortage forces Arthur to share a Washington, D.C., apartment with McCrea and crafty old codger Coburn (who won an Oscar for this comic performance). Highly entertaining, with Arthur at her peerless best. Remade as WALK, DON'T RUN.▼●●

Morgan! (1966-British) 97m. ½ D: Karel Reisz. Vanessa Redgrave, David Warner, Robert Stephens, Irene Handl. Decidedly offbeat gem. Artist Warner verges on insanity, keyed off by wife Redgrave's divorcing him, and goes on eccentric escapades. Script by David Mercer, from his play. Vanessa's film debut. Complete title is MORGAN—A SUITABLE CASE FOR TREATMENT.▼●●

Morgan Stewart's Coming Home (1987) C-96m. *½ D: Alan Smithee. Jon Cryer, Lynn Redgrave, Nicholas Pryor, Viveka Davis, Paul Gleason. Inane comedy from the notorious, and pseudonymous, director Smithee (in this case Paul Aaron) about a teenager who returns home from boarding school and tries to change the ways of his obnoxious, politically ambitious parents. Plays like an unsold sitcom pilot. Redgrave is wasted, and even Cryer's considerable charm can't make this worth coming home to see. [PG-13]▼●●

Morgan the Pirate (1961-Italian) C-95m.  D: Andre de Toth. Steve Reeves, Valerie Lagrange, Lydia Alfonsi, Chelo Alonso.

Considering cast and Reeves' career, fairly lively and interesting swashbuckler based on life of illustrious pirate. Original Italian running time: 105m. CinemaScope.▼●●

Morning After, The (1986) C-103m.  D: Sidney Lumet. Jane Fonda, Jeff Bridges, Raul Julia, Diane Salinger, Richard Foronjy, Geoffrey Scott, James (Gypsy) Haake, Kathleen Wilhoite, Frances Bergen, Rick Rossovich. So-called thriller about alcoholic actress waking in bed with a dead man and not knowing how it happened. Tiresome story and ill-defined characters send this one down the tubes, despite promising star combo. Look fast for Kathy Bates as neighbor of victim. [R]▼●●

Morning Glory (1933) 74m.  D: Lowell Sherman. Katharine Hepburn, Adolphe Menjou, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., C. Aubrey Smith, Mary Duncan. Dated but lovely film from Zoe Akins' play about stage-struck young girl called Eva Lovelace who tries to succeed in N.Y.C. Good cast, sharp script, but it's magically compelling Hepburn who makes this memorable; she won her first Oscar for her work. Remade in 1958 as STAGE STRUCK.▼●●

Morning Light (2008) C-97m.  D: Mark Monroe, Paul Crowder. Narrated by Patrick Warburton. Longtime sailing enthusiast (and racing cup holder) Roy E. Disney sponsors a competition to select 15 young people from various backgrounds to participate in the Transpac, a grueling 2,200-mile race across the Pacific Ocean to Hawaii. Curiously uninvolved reality-TV-type fare in which even the finale fails to pack a punch. [PG]

Morocco (1930) 92m.  D: Josef von Sternberg. Gary Cooper, Marlene Dietrich, Adolphe Menjou, Francis McDonald, Eve Southern, Paul Porcasi. Dietrich is alluring and exotic in her first Hollywood film, as a cabaret singer (improbably stuck in Morocco) who must choose between wealthy Menjou and Foreign Legionnaire Cooper. A treat. Marlene sings three numbers, including "What Am I Bid."▼●●

Morons From Outer Space (1985-British) C-87m. ½ D: Mike Hodges. Griff Rhys Jones, Mel Smith, James B. Sicking, Dinsdale Landen, Jimmy Nail, Joanne Pearce, Paul Brown. Chaos reigns supreme in this inventive, uneven, but sometimes hilarious comedy about some very human aliens with British accents—who also happen to be brainless twits—and what happens when their spaceship crash-lands on Earth. Sight gags galore. [PG-13]▼● and Wilson are among those competing in a martial arts tournament with nothing less than the fate of Earth in the balance. Elaborate special effects and impressive set design are helpless against a weak story, uneven acting, and komikally thin karakters. Mostly one fight after another, as you might expect from a movie based on a video game. Followed by a sequel. [PG-13]▼●●

Mortal Kombat: Annihilation (1997) C-95m. BOMB D: John Leonetti. Robin Shou, Talisa Soto, James Remar, Brian Thompson, Lynn "Red" Williams, Irina Pantaeva. Mind-numbing sequel rehashes battle between good and evil for the fate of mankind (yawn). OK visual effects but endless fight scenes and dreadful acting stop film dead in its tracks. Of interest only to American Gladiator fanatics and vidkids with really low attention spans. Remar's morph from David Carradine-style kung fu sensei to turbo warrior is unintentionally hilarious. [PG-13]▼●●

Mortal Storm, The (1940) 100m. ½ D: Frank Borzage. Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart, Robert Young, Frank Morgan, Robert Stack, Bonita Granville, Irene Rich, Maria Ouspenskaya, Gene Reynolds, Ward Bond. Nazi takeover in Germany splits family, ruins life of father, professor Morgan; Stewart tries to leave country with professor's daughter (Sullavan). Sincere filming of Phyllis Botome's novel is beautifully acted, with one of Morgan's finest performances. Screenplay by Claudine West, Andersen Ellis, and George Froeschel. Film debut of Dan Dailey (billed as Dan Dailey, Jr.); look sharp in second classroom scene for Tom Drake.▼

Mortal Thoughts (1991) C-104m. ½ D: Alan Rudolph. Demi Moore, Glenne Headly, Bruce Willis, John Pankow, Harvey Keitel, Billie Neal. Two police detectives question a woman about the incidents surrounding the murder of her best friend's husband, an abusive loat. Interesting, flashback-framed film boasts some good performances, but a cast of characters it's hard to care much about, and a conclusion that pulls the rug out from everything else we've just seen. Meaningless "touches" (like use of slow-motion) don't add anything. Moore coproduced. [R]▼●●

Morvern Callar (2002-British) C-97m.  D: Lynne Ramsay. Samantha Morton, Kathleen McDermott, Raife Patrick Burchell, Dan Cadan, Carolyn Calder, Jim Wilson, Dolly Wells, Ruby Milton. Effectively moody, stunningly visual portrait of reckless youth and aimlessness. Morton is a Scottish supermarket clerk floating through a club-hopping, booze-swilling, pill-popping youth scene; her writer-boyfriend has killed himself, and she shamelessly claims to be the author of his unpublished novel. This cautionary tale about not having goals and accepting responsibilities

exudes a quiet, poignant sadness. Based on the novel by Alan Warner.▼●

Moscow Does Not Believe in Tears (1980-Russian) C-152m.  D: Vladimir Menshov. Vera Alentova, Irina Muravyova, Raisa Ryazonova, Natalia Vavilova, Alexei Batalov. A trio of young women come to Moscow during the late '50s to seek love and work. Enjoyable if slow moving; closer in spirit to THE BEST OF EVERYTHING than WAR AND PEACE. Oscar winner as Best Foreign Film.▼●

Moscow on the Hudson (1984) C-115m. ½ D: Paul Mazursky. Robin Williams, Maria Conchita Alonso, Cleavant Derricks, Alejandro Rey, Savely Kramarov, Elya Baskin. Fine original comedy-drama by Mazursky and Leon Capetanos about a Russian musician who defects during a trip to N.Y.C.—in Bloomingdale's, no less—and tries to come to grips with his new life in a new land. Full of endearing performances, perceptive and bittersweet moments—but a few too many false endings. Williams is superb in the lead. [R]▼●●

Mosquito Coast, The (1986) C-117m. ½ D: Peter Weir. Harrison Ford, Helen Mirren, River Phoenix, Jadrien Steele, Hilary Gordon, Rebecca Gordon, Conrad Roberts, Andre Gregory, Dick O'Neill, Martha Plimpton, Butterfly McQueen, Jason Alexander. Utterly compelling, novelistic saga of iconoclastic inventor and idealist (Ford, in a knockout performance) who moves his family to remote village in Central America where he creates an incredible utopia . . . and proceeds to play God. Not for all tastes, since Ford's character is unsympathetic (though he was even worse in Paul Theroux's novel). Beautifully crafted, with fine screenplay by Paul Schrader. A serious and emotionally gripping film. [PG]▼●●

Mosquito Squadron (1969-British) C-90m. ½ D: Boris Sagal. David McCallum, Suzanne Neve, David Buck, David Dundas, Dinsdale Landen, Charles Gray. Good ensemble performances in tired story of Canadian-born RAF pilot (McCallum)'s crucial behind-the-lines mission to destroy Germany's ultimate weapon project. [G]●

Most Beautiful, The (1944-Japanese) 85m.  D: Akira Kurosawa. Takashi Shimura, Ichiro Sugai, Soji Kiyokawa, Takako Irie, Yoko Yaguchi. One of Kurosawa's earliest features includes considerable WW2 propaganda; young women factory workers are exorted by foreman Shimura (star of Kurosawa's IKIRU and SEVEN SAMURAI) to become production warriors by increasing output of optical weaponry. Tearful young girl Yaguchi later married Kurosawa. Not released in America until 1987.

Most Dangerous Game, The (1932) 63m.  D: Ernest B. Schoedsack, Irving Pichel. Joel McCrea, Fay Wray, Leslie Banks, Robert Armstrong, Noble Johnson.

Vivid telling of Richard Connell's famous, oft-filmed story about a megalomaniac named Count Zaroff who hunts human beings on his remote island. Banks is a florid, sometimes campy villain. Made at the same time as KING KONG by many of the same people. Remade as A GAME OF DEATH and RUN FOR THE SUN, and ripped off many other times. ▼●●

Mostly Martha (2002-German) C-105m.

 D: Sandra Nettelbeck. Martina Gedeck, Maxime Foerste, Sergio Castellitto, August Zimer, Sibylle Canonica, Katja Studt. Food, love and human relationships blend seamlessly in this tasty concoction about a neurotically obsessive chef (Gedeck), whose life of order and isolation is jolted upon the arrival of her 8-year-old niece (Foerste) and a charming new coworker (Castellitto). Nothing spectacular or innovative here, just a diverting entertainment that's as fun to watch as the mouthwatering dishes Martha concocts. Remade as NO RESERVATIONS. [PG] ▼●

Most Wanted (1997) C-99m.  D: David Glenn Hogan. Keenen Ivory Wayans, Jon Voight, Jill Hennessy, Paul Sorvino, Robert Culp, Wolfgang Bodison, Simon Baker Denny, David Groh, John Diehl, Eric Roberts. Wayans coexecutive-produced and scripted this slick but boring, predictable, and instantly forgettable actioner about a G.I., trained as a government assassin, who takes it on the lam after being framed for murdering the First Lady. Voight makes the most of his role as a creepy, power-obsessed general. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Motel Hell (1980) C-92m. *½ D: Kevin Connor. Rory Calhoun, Paul Linke, Nancy Parsons, Nina Axelrod, Wolfman Jack, Elaine Joyce, Dick Curtis, John Ratzemberger. Just what are Calhoun and his rotund sister putting in their smoked sausage out there in the boondocks? Good to see Rory and Wolfman sharing screen credit, but scattered laughs and a lively finish fail to distinguish this gory horror comedy. [R] ▼●●

Mother (1996) C-104m.  D: Albert Brooks. Albert Brooks, Debbie Reynolds, Rob Morrow, Lisa Kudrow, John C. McGinley, Isabel Glasser, Peter White. Typically low-key but likable Brooks movie about a twice-divorced man who decides to move back in with his mother in an attempt to understand the root of his problems with women. A benign comedy of recognition, with Brooks as endearing as ever and Reynolds in a well-modulated, nonjokey performance as Mother. Brooks scripted with frequent collaborator Monica Johnson. [PG-13] ▼●● mother explores rediscovered sexual desire when she secretly carries on a red-hot affair with her whiny daughter's boyfriend, a carpenter half her age. Absorbing and explicit drama benefits from Reid's luminous performance as an older woman not fulfilled just playing with the grandkids. Dramatic sparks between her and Craig (as her hunky lover) lift what could have been perverse melodrama into a different league. Challenging, well-written script by Hanif Kureishi. [R] ▼●

Mother Ghost (2007) C-76m.  D: Rich Thorne. Mark Thompson, Kevin Pollak, Dana Delany, Jere Burns, Charles Durning, Joe Mantegna, Garry Marshall, James Franco, David Keith. Self-assured businessman has been acting strange since the death of his mother a year ago; his wife and best friend tell him he needs help, but he's in denial. Then he chances to hear a radio psychiatrist and impulsively calls in; before long he's spilling his guts. Modestly made film does what few major movies accomplish, focusing on a character who lays bare his emotions. Pollak is especially good as the shrink. Thompson (half of the morning-radio team Mark & Brian) also wrote the script. Made in 2002. ●

Mother, Jugs & Speed (1976) C-95m.

 D: Peter Yates. Bill Cosby, Raquel Welch, Harvey Keitel, Allen Garfield, Larry Hagman, Bruce Davison, Dick Butkus, L.Q. Jones, Toni Basil. Hilarious black comedy about a rundown ambulance service more interested in number of patients serviced than their welfare. Hagman especially good as oversexed driver. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Mother Kusters Goes to Heaven (1975-German) C-108m.  D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Brigitte Mira, Ingrid Caven, Margit Carstensen, Karl-Heinz Böhm (Carl Böhm), Irm Hermann, Gottfried John. When a factory worker goes berserk and commits suicide after killing his boss' son, his shocked widow tries to learn how such a thing could occur, only to find herself being exploited by both right- and left-wing groups as well as her own family. Darkly satirical, politically charged fable is one of Fassbinder's most straightforward, accessible films. ▼●

Mother Lode (1982) C-101m.  D: Charlton Heston. Charlton Heston, Nick Mancuso, Kim Basinger, John Marley. Heston's a meanie here—in twin brother roles—playing a Scottish miner who'll stop at nothing to get his sullied hands on a mother lode of gold in the mountains of British Columbia. Lackluster script was written by his son, Fraser Clarke Heston, who also produced the film. Reissued as SEARCH FOR THE MOTHER LODGE: THE LAST GREAT TREASURE. [PG] ▼

Mother Night (1996) C/B&W-110m.  D: Keith Gordon. Nick Nolte, Sheryl Lee, Alan Arkin, John Goodman, Kirsten Dunst,

Arye Gross, Frankie Faison, David Strathairn, Bernard Behrens, Brawley Nolte. American prisoner in an Israeli jail writes his memoirs, flashing back to his upbringing in Germany, where his career as a successful playwright was interrupted by his recruitment as a U.S. spy. His mission: to pose as a Nazi propagandist on the radio. Nolte takes on the challenging role in this adaptation of Kurt Vonnegut's provocative novel by writer-producer Robert B. Weide. Somber, fascinating, and unsettling. Vivid contributions by Arkin, Goodman, and others in supporting roles. Vonnegut does a cameo near the end of the film. [R]▼●●

Mother of Tears (2007-U.S.-Italian) C-102m. *½ D: Dario Argento. Asia Argento, Cristian Solimeno, Adam James, Moran Atlas, Valeria Cavalli, Udo Kier. American archaeologist in Rome opens an ancient urn, releasing the last witch on Earth, and must elicit her own unsuspected psychic power to rout the evil flooding the city with waves of murder and mayhem. Gory, nonsensical eye-roller was made (unconvincingly) in English, delivering cliché after cliché with little of Argento's usual rococo élan. Third entry in director's "Three Mothers'" trilogy, preceded by SUSPIRIA (1977) and INFERNO (1980), and drawn from Thomas De Quincey's 1845 Suspiria De Profundis. Daria Nicolodi, Asia's mother, plays her ghost mom. Super 35. [R]▼

Mother Riley Meets the Vampire (1952-British) 74m.  D: John Gilling. Bela Lugosi, Arthur Lucan, Dora Bryan, Richard Wattis, Philip Leaver, Judith Furse. Overbearing vampire satire with Lugosi cast as Von Housen, crazed criminal who tangles with Old Mother Riley, a comical store-keeper. Last entry in the Old Mother Riley series of British farces, with Lucan playing the series title character in drag. Aka MY SON, THE VAMPIRE. ▼

Mother's Boys (1994) C-95m.  D: Yves Simoneau. Jamie Lee Curtis, Peter Gallagher, Joanne Whalley-Kilmer, Vanessa Redgrave, Luke Edwards, Colin Ward, Joey Zimmerman, Joss Ackland. Curtis makes an unwise return to the horror genre in this silly mom-who-deserted-family-wants-them-back revenge film. Gallagher, in a rare sympathetic turn, plays the husband, and Edwards is the eldest of three sons (and the one whose buttons Mother tries her best to push). Suspense is minimal, and story is too undermourned to have much bite. Despite one (odd) nude scene, Jamie Lee fans would fare better re-renting HALLOWEEN. [R]▼●●

Mother's Day (1980) C-98m. *½ D: Charles Kaufman. Tiana Pierce, Nancy Hendrickson, Deborah Luce, Rose Ross, Holden McGuire, Billy Ray McQuade. Just about the final word in the horror-misogyny genre. Three college chums are victimized by, then turn the tables on, a hillbilly mother and her two sons. No MURDER, HE SAYS, but Drano/electric carving-knife finale does boast showmanship. ▼●●

Mothman Prophecies, The (2002) C-119m.  D: Mark Pellington. Richard Gere, Laura Linney, Debra Messing, Will Patton, Lucinda Jenney, Alan Bates, David Eigenberg, Ann McDonough. Newspaper reporter Gere's wife has a paranoid experience. Then, several years later, he finds himself in a West Virginia town where scary, unexplainable incidents are happening right and left. Science-fiction meets conspiracy thriller in this muddled film; creepy at first, then simply tiresome. Based on real-life events, but so what? Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Mothra (1961-Japanese) C-100m. ½ D: Ishiro Honda, Lee Kresel. Franky Sakai, Hiroshi Koizumi, Kyoko Kagawa, Emi Itoh, Yumi Itoh, Jelly Itoh. Colorful Japanese monster movie about a giant caterpillar who invades Tokyo to rescue tiny twin girls, who are guiding it with their supernatural powers. Caterpillar then turns into a giant moth (natch), which carries on the destruction. Mothra (or its descendants) turned up in later films too. Tohoscope. ▼

Motorcycle Diaries, The (2004-U.S.-British-Argentinian) C-126m. * D: Walter Salles. Gael García Bernal, Rodrigo de la Serna, Mia Maestro, Gustavo Bueno, Jorge Chiarella. Two friends set off from Buenos Aires in 1952 on a beat-up motorcycle to see South America before they settle down. We share a journey of self-discovery (and political awakening) with these passionate young men as they travel through Chile, Peru, and Venezuela, winding up at a leper colony where they have volunteered their services. One of them will become famous as Che Guevara, but that lies far ahead. Jose Rivera's screenplay is based on the two friends' published memoirs, beautifully realized by director Salles. A profoundly moving film. Oscar winner for Jorge Drexler's song "Al Otro Lado Del Rio." [R] ▼

Mouchette (1967-French) 90m.  D: Robert Bresson. Nadine Nortier, Marie Cardinal, Paul Hébert, Jean Vimenet, Jean-Claude Guilbert. Affecting tale of a 14-year-old girl who tries to escape her unhappy life with an abusive, alcoholic father and invalid mother, but only finds more cruelty and misery in the outside world. Sensitive Bresson study about the inherent pain of existence is relentlessly bleak, but essential viewing for serious students of cinema; beautifully shot by Ghis-

Iain Cloquet. From the novel by Georges Bernanos. ▼

Moulin Rouge (1952) C-119m. ½ D: John Huston. Jose Ferrer, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Suzanne Flon, Eric Pohlmann, Colette Marchand, Christopher Lee, Michael Balfour, Peter Cushing. Rich, colorful film based on life of Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec, the 19th century Parisian artist whose growth was stunted by childhood accident. Huston brilliantly captures the flavor of Montmartre, its characters, and Lautrec's sadly distorted view of life. Excellent cast; memorable theme song by Georges Auric. Oscar winner for its stunning art direction-set decoration and costumes. ▼

Moulin Rouge! (2001-U.S.-Australian) C-128m.  D: Baz Luhrmann. Nicole Kidman, Ewan McGregor, John Leguizamo, Jim Broadbent, Richard Roxburgh, Garry McDonald, Kylie Minogue, Lara Mulcahy. Visually dazzling but maddening, hyperkinetic musical about a star-crossed love affair at Paris' Moulin Rouge circa 1900. A hybrid of Luhrmann's earlier films (STRICLY BALLROOM and WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE'S ROMEO & JULIET), this one is full of extraordinary images—but the "story" is anemic and aloof, leaving the two leads to attempt sincerity in the midst of a grotesque circus. Kidman and McGregor sing quite well: the songs are mostly a pastiche of past pop hits. Oscar winner for Art Direction and Costume Design. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Mountain, The (1956) C-105m. ½ D: Edward Dmytryk. Spencer Tracy, Robert Wagner, Claire Trevor, William Demarest, Richard Arlen, E. G. Marshall. Turgid tale of brothers Tracy and Wagner climbing Alpine peak to reach plane wreckage, for different reasons. VistaVision. ▼

Mountain Men, The (1980) C-102m. BOMB D: Richard Lang. Charlton Heston, Brian Keith, Victoria Racimo, Stephen Macht, John Glover, Seymour Cassel, David Ackroyd, Victor Jory. Heston and Keith star as fur trappers in this unnecessarily bloody, crude, tiresome good-guys-vs.-Indians epic. Screenplay by Fraser Clarke Heston, the star's son. Panavision. [R] ▼

Mountain of the Cannibal God SEE: Slave of the Cannibal God

Mountain Road, The (1960) 102m. ½ D: Daniel Mann. James Stewart, Lisa Lu, Glenn Corbett, Henry (Harry) Morgan, Frank Silvera, James Best. Stewart is always worth watching, but this saga of American squadron working in China during waning days of WW2 is pretty flat. ▼

plorer Sir Richard Burton and his search for the source of the Nile River in the late 1800s. Bergin is a charismatic lead, with Glen as John Hanning Speke, the dilettante who accompanies him. Vivid, stimulating, and satisfying; manages to embrace the sweep of an epic film along with a compellingly personal story. Screenplay by Rafelson and William Harrison, based on the latter's biographical novel Burton and Speke and on actual journals of the two explorers. [R] ▼

Mourning Becomes Electra (1947) 173m. ½ D: Dudley Nichols. Rosalind Russell, Michael Redgrave, Raymond Massey, Katina Paxinou, Nancy Coleman, Leo Genn, Kirk Douglas. Eugene O'Neill's play set in New England and adapted from the Greek tragedy Oresteia. Civil War general is killed by wife and their children seek revenge. Heavy, talky drama, even in 105m. version. British version runs 159m. ▼

Mouse and His Child, The (1977) C-83m. BOMB D: Fred Wolf, Chuck Swenson. Voices of Peter Ustinov, Alan Barzman, Marcy Swenson, Cloris Leachman, Andy Devine, Sally Kellerman. Boring animated film about a toy mouse and his child, and their adventures in the real world. Talk, talk, talk and no action. [G] ▼

Mouse Hunt (1997) C-97m. ½ D: Gore Verbinski. Nathan Lane, Lee Evans, Vicki Lewis, Maury Chaykin, Eric Christmas, Michael Jeter, Debra Christofferson, Camilla Soeberg, William Hickey, Christopher Walken. Two hapless brothers inherit a musty old house and a string factory from their father; the house has promise but is inhabited by one small, very crafty rodent who defies extermination. Black comedy and slapstick combine for surprisingly clever results, but after a while it's simply exhausting. Lane and Evans are an ideal (and very funny) team, but Laurel & Hardy and The Three Stooges did this sort of thing in twenty minutes flat. [PG] ▼

Mouse on the Moon, The (1963-British) C-82m. ½ D: Richard Lester. Margaret Rutherford, Bernard Cribbins, Ron Moody, Terry-Thomas, Michael Crawford. Hilarious sequel to THE MOUSE THAT ROARED, about Duchy of Grand Fenwick. Tiny country enters space race, with little help from its befuddled Grand Duchess, Margaret Rutherford. ▼

Mouse That Roared, The (1959-British) C-83m. ½ D: Jack Arnold. Peter Sellers, Jean Seberg, David Kossoff, William Hartnell, Monty Landis, Leo McKern. Hilarious satire about the Duchy of Grand Fenwick declaring war on the U. S. Sellers stars in three roles, equally amusing. Gag before opening titles is a masterpiece. Roger Macdougall and Stanley Mann adapted Leonard Wibberley's novel. Sequel: THE MOUSE ON THE MOON. ▼

Mouth to Mouth (1978-Australian) C-95m.

½ D: John Duigan. Kim Krejus, Sonia Peat, Ian Gilmour, Sergio Frazetto, Walter Pym. A pair of unemployed, aimless teenage couples steal and hustle to survive. Fascinating, funny, sad, with lively direction by Duigan.

Mouth to Mouth (1995-Spanish) C-105m.

½ D: Manuel Gomez Pereira. Javier Bardem, Maria Barranco, Aitana Sanchez-Gijon, Josep Maria Flotats, Myriam Mezieres. Moderately amusing comedy about an out-of-work actor who soon finds his thespian talents in hot demand on a phone-sex line. Complications arise when he becomes romantically involved with one of his customers. Attractive cast makes this erotic romp actually funnier than it has a right to be. Original title: BOCA A BOCA. Panavision. [R] ▼

Move (1970) C-90m. BOMB D: Stuart Rosenberg. Elliott Gould, Paula Prentiss, Genevieve Waite, John Larch, Joe Silver, Ron O'Neal. One of those comedies that helped to kill Gould's career within a year; porn-writer/dog-walker has problems when he moves from one apartment to another, but not as many as viewers will have trying to make sense out of the film. Panavision. [R]

Move Over, Darling (1963) C-103m. ½ D: Michael Gordon. Doris Day, James Garner, Polly Bergen, Chuck Connors, Thelma Ritter, Fred Clark, Don Knotts, Elliott Reid, John Astin, Pat Harrington, Jr. Woman long thought dead returns from desert island sojourn, to find her husband has remarried. Slick, amusing remake of MY FAVORITE WIFE, with strong cast of character actors milking every laugh. Film was intended to star Marilyn Monroe and Dean Martin, under the title SOMETHING'S GOT TO GIVE, but production was halted early on, and Marilyn died shortly thereafter. CinemaScope. ▼

Movers and Shakers (1985) C-79m. *½ D: William Asher. Walter Matthau, Charles Grodin, Vincent Gardenia, Tyne Daly, Bill Macy, Gilda Radner. Satiric look at movie-making in the '80s, written and coproduced by Grodin, who spent years trying to get it made. Talented cast (including cameos by Steve Martin and Penny Marshall) largely wasted in this unfunny comedy sprinkled with just an occasional insight or laugh. Too bad ... Love in Sex had great possibilities. [PG] ▼

Movie Crazy (1932) 84m.  D: Clyde Bruckman. Harold Lloyd, Constance Cummings, Kenneth Thomson, Sydney Jarvis, Eddie Fetherston. Lloyd's best talkie recaptures the spirit of his silent-comedy hits, telling story of small-town boy who goes to Hollywood with stars in his eyes, gets rude awakening but finally makes good. Includes his famous magician's coat scene. Cummings is a charming leading lady. ●

Movie Movie (1978) C/B&W-107m. ***

Moving (1988) C-89m. *½ D: Alan Metter. Richard Pryor, Beverly Todd, Randy Quaid, Dave Thomas, Dana Carvey, Stacey Dash, Gordon Jump, Morris Day, Rodney Dangerfield, King Kong Bundy. Mass transit engineer Pryor falls into a dream job following his unexpected and unceremonious firing—only hitch: he and the family must relocate from New Jersey to Boise, Idaho. Wallows in the predictable (kids rebel, the movers are psychos), with a modest chuckle every half-hour or so. Pryor seems uncomfortable as Ozzie Nelson. [R] ▼ ● ●

Moving the Mountain (1994-British) C/B&W-83m. ½ D: Michael Apted. Life-affirming documentary about young Chinese student Li Lu and others of his generation who became demonstrators at Tiananmen Square in 1989. The film also chronicles Li Lu's life during the Cultural Revolution and his reasons for deciding to defy his government. Revealing, never less than riveting; the "mountain" of the title is communist Chinese authorities. ● ● ●

Moving Violation (1976) C-91m.  D: Charles S. Dubin. Stephen McHattie, Kay Lenz, Eddie Albert, Lonny Chapman, Will Geer, Jack Murdock, John S. Ragin. Redneck sheriff goes after young couple, leading to usual car chases. So what else is new? [PG] ▼

Moving Violations (1985) C-90m. *½ D: Neal Israel. John Murray, Jennifer Tilly, James Keach, Brian Backer, Sally Kellerman, Fred Willard, Lisa Hart Carroll, Wendie Jo Sperber, Clara Peller, Nedra Volz, Ned Eisenberg, Don Cheadle. Threadbare comedy of adventures in traffic violations school; more potholes than laughs. Wisecrack star Murray is Bill M.'s brother. [PG-13] ▼ ● ●

Mozart & the Whale (2006) C-93m. ½ D: Petter Næss. Josh Hartnett, Radha Mitchell, Gary Cole, Sheila Kelley, Erica Leerhsen, John Carroll Lynch, Nate Mooney, Rusty Schwimmer, Robert Wisdom. Hartnett and Mitchell meet and begin dating. They have much in common: both like animals, both are fragile and vulnerable, and both suffer from Asperger syndrome, a form of autism. Well-intentioned "fictional story inspired by true events" (scripted by Ronald Bass) strives to be meaningful but seems unreal, particularly when people stand by passively as the lead characters are conspicuously loud and emotional in public. While touching at times and well acted, it's just too formulaic. [PG-13]●

Mr. & Mrs. Bridge (1990) C-124m.  D: James Ivory. Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward, Blythe Danner, Simon Callow, Kyra Sedgwick, Robert Sean Leonard, Margaret Welsh, Saundra McClain, Diane Kagan, Austin Pendleton, Remak Ramsay. Portrait of straitlaced, well-to-do Kansas City couple, and how they are affected by the demands of their growing children and the changes that overtake them in the 1930s and '40s. A plethora of intriguing but undeveloped, half-baked story threads make it frustrating and unsatisfying. Newman and Woodward are excellent, as usual. Based on two novels by Evan S. Connell, Mrs. Bridge (1959) and Mr. Bridge (1969). [PG-13]▼●●

Mr. & Mrs. Smith (2005) C-120m.  D: Doug Liman. Brad Pitt, Angelina Jolie, Vince Vaughn, Adam Brody, Kerry Washington, Keith David, Chris Weitz, Rachael Huntley, Michelle Monaghan; voices of Angela Bassett, William Fichtner. Not your parents' romantic star vehicle: a slick, sexy, supercharged showcase for the well-paired Pitt and Jolie, as a bored married couple who discover that they both work as undercover assassins. Never before have a man and woman engaged in a slugfest like the one in this film, but it's not to be taken seriously (or literally). Director Liman attempts to outdo his car chase from THE BOURNE IDENTITY—and succeeds. Dynamic score by John Powell. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Mr. Arkadin (1955-Spanish-French) 99m. ½ D: Orson Welles. Orson Welles, Michael Redgrave, Patricia Medina, Akim Tamiroff, Mischa Auer, Katina Paxinou, Robert Arden. Overblown Welles curiosity (thematically similar to CITIZEN KANE) in which he stars as a famed tycoon with a shady past; the scenario follows his actions after being threatened with blackmail by his daughter's suitor. Filmed in English and Spanish-language versions. Variant prints run 98m. and 105m. Aka CONFIDENTIAL REPORT.▼●●

Mr. Baseball (1992) C-113m. ½ D: Fred Schepisi. Tom Selleck, Ken Takakura, Aya Takanashi, Toshi Shioya, Dennis Haysbert. Pleasant if uninspired comedy about a washed-up big leaguer who's traded to Japan, where his smart-ass attitude almost does him in with his team, his manager, and the young Japanese woman who takes a liking to him. Selleck is ingratiating as usual. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Mr. Bean's Holiday (2007-U.S.-British) C-88m.  D: Steve Bendelack. Rowan Atkinson, Emma de Caunes, Max Baldry, Willem Dafoe, Jean Rochefort, Karel Roden, Steve Pemberton. Bumbling Mr. Bean wins a dream vacation to the south of France, but from the moment he arrives in Paris he finds himself in one jam after another. He also acquires a traveling companion, a boy who's been separated from his father, and becomes the bête noire of a pompous filmmaker (Dafoe) whose latest opus is playing at the Cannes Film Festival. Thoroughly enjoyable sight-gag comedy and follow-up to 1997's BEAN; the last word comes at the end of the credits. [G]●

Mr. Belvedere Goes to College (1949) 83m.  D: Elliott Nugent. Clifton Webb, Shirley Temple, Tom Drake, Alan Young, Jessie Royce Landis, Kathleen Hughes. The sharp-tongued character from SITTING PRETTY enrolls in college, with predictable results. Nothing special. Jeff Chandler has bit as a policeman.

Mr. Belvedere Rings the Bell (1951) 87m. ½ D: Henry Koster. Clifton Webb, Joanne Dru, Hugh Marlowe, Zero Mostel, Doro Merande, Billy Lynn. Another follow-up to SITTING PRETTY isn't as witty. Webb enters old folks' home to prove his theory that age has nothing to do with leading a full life.

Mr. Billion (1977) C-93m.  D: Jonathan Kaplan. Terence Hill, Valerie Perrine, Jackie Gleason, Slim Pickens, Chill Wills, William Redfield. Uninspired comedy about a lowly Italian mechanic (Hill, in his American debut) on a mad, cross-country scramble to claim a billion-dollar legacy, and the attempts of scoundrels to swindle him out of it. [PG]▼●

Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House (1948) 94m.  D: H. C. Potter. Cary Grant, Myma Loy, Melvyn Douglas, Reginald Denny, Sharyn Moffett, Connie Marshall, Louise Beavers, Ian Wolfe, Lurene Tuttle, Lex Barker. Slick comedy of city couple attempting to build a house in the country; expertly handled, with Grant at his peak. And no one ever described room colors better than Loy! Norman Panama and Melvin Frank scripted, from Eric Hodgins' novel. Also shown in computer-colored version. Remade in 2007 as ARE WE DONE YET?▼●●

Mr. Brooks (2007) C-120m. ½ D: Bruce A. Evans. Kevin Costner, Demi Moore, Dane Cook, William Hurt, Marg Helgenberger, Ruben Santiago-Hudson, Danielle Panabaker, Aisha Hinds, Lindsay Crouse, Jason Lewis, Michael Cole. Respected businessman, husband, and father (Costner) has a deadly secret: he's a serial killer. He battles his addiction just as an alcoholic would, but he's egged on by his evil alter ego (Hurt). Detective Moore, whose private life is a wreck, is determined to catch the multiple murderer, while eyewitness Cook has a different reaction: he wants in on the adrenaline rush of killing. Interesting ingredients, but a lumpy stew; sometimes laughably absurd. Costner coproduced. [R]●

Mr. Death: The Rise and Fall of Fred A. Leuchter, Jr. (1999) C-92m.  D: Errol Morris. Documentarian Morris has found another oddball to profile: a milquetoast type who's had a lifelong fascination with instruments of death. After becoming an expert at building and repairing electric chairs and the like, he's hired by Holocaust deniers to gather "evidence" as to whether Hitler's gas chambers in Poland were really used for their stated purpose. Leuchter strikes the viewer as amusing at first, then misguided, possibly insidious, and ultimately pathetic. Music by Caleb Sampson. [PG-13]▼●

Mr. Deeds Goes to Town (1936) 115m. * D: Frank Capra. Gary Cooper, Jean Arthur, George Bancroft, Lionel Stander, Douglass Dumbrille, Mayo Methot, Raymond Walburn, Walter Catlett, H. B. Warner. Cooper is Longfellow Deeds, who inherits 20 million dollars and wants to give it all away to needy people. Arthur is appealing as the hard-boiled big-city reporter who tries to figure out what makes him tick. Capra won his second Oscar for this irresistible film, written by Robert Riskin (from Clarence Budington Kelland's story "Opera Hat"). Later a short-lived TV series. Remade in 2002.▼●●

Mr. Destiny (1990) C-110m.  D: James Orr. James Belushi, Linda Hamilton, Michael Caine, Jon Lovitz, Hart Bochner, Rene Russo, Bill McCutcheon, Pat Corley, Courteney Cox, Kathy Ireland. Blah, by-the-numbers fantasy with Belushi an average, bored working stiff who gets to go back in time and replay an at-bat in a high school baseball game—which significantly alters his fate. Well intentioned but heavy-handed; comparisons to IT'S A WONDERFUL LIFE are more hopeful than actual. [PG-13]▼●●

Mr. Hobbs Takes a Vacation (1962) C-116m. ½ D: Henry Koster. James Stewart, Maureen O'Hara, Fabian, John Saxon, Marie Wilson, Reginald Gardiner, Lauri Peters, John McGiver. Glossy Hollywood family fare, '60s-style, about various misadventures as Stewart and O'Hara's clan rent a house by the ocean for the summer. Based on a novel by Edward Streeter, the same man who wrote Father of the Bride. CinemaScope.▼●

Mr. Holland's Opus (1995) C-142m.  D: Stephen Herek. Richard Dreyfuss, Glenn Headly, Jay Thomas, Olympia Dukakis, W. (William) H. Macy, Alicia Witt, Terrence Howard, Jean Louisa Kelly, Nicholas John Renner, Joseph Anderson, Anthony Natale, Joanna Gleason. Disney dips into GOOD-BYE, MR. CHIPS for this sentimental, old-fashioned story of a musician who reluctantly takes a job as a high school music teacher, then spends the next thirty years of his life dedicated to imbuing students with a love of music. It's his own family that suffers. Too much time is spent on the climactic school play, but it's still a heartwarming tearjerker and Dreyfuss is perfect in the lead. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Mr. Hulot's Holiday (1953-French) 86m. ½ D: Jacques Tati. Jacques Tati, Nathalie Pascaud, Michelle Rolla, Valentine Camax, Louis Perrault. Tati introduced his delightful Hulot character in this amusing excursion to a French resort town; a fond throwback to the days of silent-screen comedy. French version runs 114m.▼●●

Mr. Jealousy (1998) C-105m. ½ D: Noah Baumbach. Eric Stoltz, Annabella Sciorra, Chris Eigeman, Carlos Jacott, Marianne Jean-Baptiste, Brian Kerwin, Peter Bogdanovich, Bridget Fonda. Stoltz meets Sciorra and they hit it off, but his suspicions and jealousy over her former boyfriend start driving them both crazy. Talky but humorous romance with real N.Y.C. flavor and some priceless group therapy sequences. Stoltz also executive-produced. [R]▼●

Mr. Jones (1993) C-114m. *½ D: Mike Figgis. Richard Gere, Lena Olin, Anne Bancroft, Tom Irwin, Delroy Lindo, Bruce Altman, Lauren Tom, Anna Maria Horsford, Lucinda Jenney, Taylor Negron. A manic depressive and a shrink on the rebound have a professionally taboo romance. Gere's behavior—bounding on stage during a concert, tightrope-walking a high construction beam—turns this into THE JESTER OF TIDES. Gere is OK; Olin gives an awkward performance and is horribly lit. Sat on the shelf for a year. [R]▼●●

Mr. Kingstreet's War (1973) C-92m. ½ D: Percival Rubens. John Saxon, Tippi Hedren, Rossano Brazzi, Brian O'Shaughnessy. Loner and his wife find idyllic life at African game preserve disrupted by WW2 and set out to do something about it. Interesting and unusual. Aka HEROES DIE HARD.▼

Mr. Klein (1977-French) C-122m.  D: Joseph Losey. Alain Delon, Jeanne Moreau, Francine Bergé, Michel Lonsdale, Juliet Berto, Suzanne Flon, Massimo Girotti, Michel Aumont. A French art dealer exploits Jews who are desperately in need of money during WW2, then finds he is mistaken for a Jew with the same name. Enigmatic, interesting parable about the nature of identity. [PG]▼

Mr. Love (1985-British) C-98m.  D: Roy Battersby. Barry Jackson, Maurice Denham, Christina Collier, Helen Cotterill, Julia Deakin, Linda Marlowe, Margaret Tyzack. Gentle, winning tale of quiet, reserved gardener, in a loveless marriage for almost 30 years and whom most everybody thinks is a joke—so why do all those women appear at his funeral? The CASA-BLANCA scene is a gem. [PG-13]▼

Mr. Lucky (1943) 100m.  D: H. C. Potter. Cary Grant, Laraine Day, Charles Bickford, Gladys Cooper, Alan Carney, Henry Stephenson, Paul Stewart, Kay Johnson, Florence Bates. Gambling-ship-owner Grant intends to fleece virtuous Day, instead falls in love and goes straight. Basis for later TV series has spirited cast, engaging script. Love that rhyming slang!▼

Mr. Magorium's Wonder Emporium (2007) C-93m. ½ D: Zach Helm. Dustin Hoffman, Natalie Portman, Zach Mills, Jason Bateman, Ted Ludzik. A 243-year-old proprietor of a magical toy store prepares to leave his lifelong business and bequeaths it to his number-one clerk. When financial problems are revealed, a crisis ensues as dark and strange things begin to happen to the toys . . . until a young customer takes matters into his own hands. Harmless family fare with amusing, old-fashioned toy creations will appeal primarily to the under-8 set, but the sugar-coated plot may find adults wanting to fast-forward. Hoffman seems to be channeling Ed Wynn. Super 35. [G]▼

Mr. Majestyk (1974) C-103m. ½ D: Richard Fleischer. Charles Bronson, Al

Lettieri, Linda Cristal, Lee Purcell, Paul Koslo, Alejandro Rey. Above average Bronson thriller, casting him as Colorado watermelon farmer (!) marked for destruction by syndicate hit man Lettieri; surprisingly tongue-in-cheek script by Elmore Leonard. [PG]▼

Mr. Mom (1983) C-91m. ½ D: Stan Dragoti. Michael Keaton, Teri Garr, Martin Mull, Ann Jillian, Christopher Lloyd, Frederick Koehler, Taliesin Jaffe, Graham Jarvis, Jeffrey Tambor. Pleasant enough rehash of age-old sitcom premise: Mom gets a job when dad gets fired, leaving him to learn the perils of running a household. Likable stars make it palatable, but you've seen it all before. [PG]▼

Mr. Moto series SEE: Leonard Maltin's Classic Movie Guide

Mr. Music (1950) 113m. ½ D: Richard Haydn. Bing Crosby, Nancy Olson, Charles Coburn, Ruth Hussey, Marge and Gower Champion, Peggy Lee, Groucho Marx. Easygoing vehicle for crooner Crosby as Broadway songwriter who wants to live the easy life. Remake of ACCENT ON YOUTH.▼

Mr. Nanny (1993) C-84m. *½ D: Michael Gottlieb. Terry "Hulk" Hogan (Bollea), Sherman Hemsley, Austin Pendleton, Robert Gorman, Madeline Zima, David Johansen, Mother Love. Lamebrained comedy featuring Hogan as a struggling wrestler hired to look after a pair of spoiled, ignored rich kids (whom weirdo Johansen is plotting to kidnap). Strictly for die-hard fans of the Hulkster. Hemsley and Hogan are no threat to Clark and McCullough. [PG]▼

Mr. Nice Guy (1997-Hong Kong) C-113m.  D: Samo Hung. Jackie Chan, Richard Norton, Miki Lee, Karen McLymont, Gabrielle Fitzpatrick, Vince Poletto. Jackie, a TV chef(!), is pursued by two sets of bad guys who are after an incriminating videotape that's fallen into his hands. One of Jackie's better later films, set in Melbourne and, like almost all his best movies, an action comedy. Dazzling and exciting fights abound, the best (and funniest) staged at a construction site. Only the climax, involving a colossal truck flattening a luxury home, is below par for the astounding Mr. Chan. Director Samo, Jackie's lifelong friend, has a cameo as an irritated bicyclist. Technovision. [PG-13]▼

Mr. North (1988) C-92m. ½ D: Danny Huston. Anthony Edwards, Robert Mitchum, Lauren Bacall, Harry Dean Stanton, Anjelica Huston, Mary Stuart Masterson, Virginia Madsen, Tammy Grimes, David Warner, Hunter Carson, Christopher Durang, Mark Metcalf, Katharine Houghton. Bright but penniless young man makes a major impact on Newport high society in the 1920s by being forthright, ingenious, and possessing an unusual amount of electricity in his body! Agreeable fable based on Thornton Wilder's Theophilus North has many

assets (fine cast, beautiful locations) as well as some liabilities (uneven performances, shifts of tone). Coscripted by John Huston, just before his death; this marks his son's theatrical feature debut as director. [PG] ▼●●

Mr. Patman (1980-Canadian) C-105m. *½ D: John Guillermin. James Coburn, Kate Nelligan, Fionnula Flanagan, Les Carlson, Candy Kane, Michael Kirby. Coburn is well cast in this convoluted, poorly made tale of a charming but slightly mad psycho-ward orderly and his shenanigans. Aka CROSSOVER. ▼

Mr. Peabody and the Mermaid (1948) 89m. ½ D: Irving Pichel. William Powell, Ann Blyth, Irene Hervey, Andrea King, Clinton Sundberg. Mild comedy-fantasy by Nunnally Johnson has its moments, with unsuspecting Powell coming across a lovely mermaid while fishing. Powell makes anything look good. ▼

Mr. Quilp (1975-British) C-118m.  D: Michael Tuchner. Anthony Newley, David Hemmings, David Warner, Michael Hordern, Jill Bennett, Sarah Jane Varley. Entertaining musical version of Dickens' The Old Curiosity Shop with songs by Newley and musical score by Elmer Bernstein. Light-hearted until last reel when it goes serious in the Dickens vein. Retitled THE OLD CURIOSITY SHOP. Remade for cable in 1995. Panavision. [G]

Mr. Ricco (1975) C-98m.  D: Paul Bogart. Dean Martin, Eugene Roche, Thalman Rasulala, Geraldine Brooks, Denise Nicholas, Cindy Williams, Philip Michael Thomas. Martin in offbeat casting as criminal lawyer involved with racist killings, sex and assorted violence, but looks too tired to care. Good mystery angle. Panavision. [PG]

Mr. Rock and Roll (1957) 86m.  D: Charles Dubin. Alan Freed, Little Richard, Clyde McPhatter, Frankie Lymon and the Teenagers, Teddy Randazzo, Chuck Berry, Rocky Graziano, Lois O'Brien, Lionel Hampton, Ferlin Husky, The Moonglows, Brook Benton, LaVern Baker. The saga of how Alan Freed "discovered" rock 'n' roll. In AMERICAN HOT WAX, Berry played opposite Tim McIntire portraying Freed; here, he acts with the real McCoy. Vintage footage of McPhatter, Lymon, Little Richard; Rocky Graziano is along for comic relief. Also of note: The 1999 TVM MR. ROCK 'N' ROLL: THE ALAN FREED STORY.

Mr. Sardonicus (1961) 89m.  D: William Castle. Ronald Lewis, Audrey Dalton, Guy Rolfe, Oscar Homolka. Recluse count with face frozen in hideous grin lures wife's boyfriend/doctor to castle to cure him. Minor fare despite good ending; Castle gave the theatrical audiences the option of voting "thumbs up" or "thumbs down" via a "Punishment Poll" (but only one conclusion was filmed). Screenplay by Ray Russell from his novella Sardonicus. ▼●

Mr. Saturday Night (1992) C-119m. ½ D: Billy Crystal. Billy Crystal, David Paymer, Julie Warner, Helen Hunt, Mary Mara, Jerry Orbach, Ron Silver, Sage Allen, Jackie Gayle, Carl Ballantine, Slappy White, Conrad Janis, Jerry Lewis. Saga of a comedian who turns out to be his own worst enemy. Many moments of truth and insight, but too long, with too many climaxes, and Crystal's old-age makeup is garish and unbelievable. It's also tough to make an appealing movie about an unappealing character. The real treat is watching Paymer in a terrific performance as Crystal's long-suffering brother. Crystal's directing debut; he also cowrote with Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandel (both of whom appear fleetingly as inept TV writers). [R] ▼●●

Mrs. Brown (1997-British-U.S.-Irish) C-103m.  D: John Madden. Judi Dench, Billy Connolly, Geoffrey Palmer, Antony Sher, Gerald Butler, Richard Pasco, David Westhead. Rewarding drama, set in the 1860s. Queen Victoria (Dench) has been in mourning for years, following the death of her beloved husband Albert; living in Windsor Castle, away from London and public life, she only comes out of her shell when her husband's trusted Highland horseman, John Brown (Connolly), refuses to coddle her. An unusual relationship develops between the two—much to the consternation of everyone else on the Queen's staff. Richly detailed, with two superb performances at the forefront; Sher is also impressive as the bemused Benjamin Disraeli. Screenplay by Jeremy Brock. [PG] ▼●●

Mrs. Brown, You've Got a Lovely Daughter (1968-British) C-95m.  D: Saul Swimmer. Herman's Hermits, Stanley Holloway, Mona Washbourne, Sara Caldwell, Lance Percival. A silly excuse for a movie, with Herman and his Hermits heading for London to enter their greyhound in a race. In between the suspense they sing "There's a Kind of Hush All Over the World" and the title tune. Panavision. [G] ▼

Mrs. Dalloway (1998-British-Dutch) C-97m.  D: Marleen Gorris. Vanessa Redgrave, Natascha McElhone, Rupert Graves, Michael Kitchen, Alan Cox, Lena Headey, Amelia Bullmore, Sarah Badel, Oliver Ford Davies, Katie Carr, John Standing, Robert Hardy, Margaret Tyzack, Phyllis Calvert. Redgrave is radiant as the wife of a British M.P. who, on the day of a major soiree, thinks back to her youth when she chose between a safe, secure life and a more daring existence with a man who truly loved her. McElhone is an excellent match for Redgrave in the flashback scenes. Thoughtful, intelligent drama adapted by actress Eileen Atkins from the Virginia Woolf novel. [PG-13] ▼●●

Mrs. Doubtfire (1993) C-125m.  D:

Chris Columbus. Robin Williams, Sally Field, Pierce Brosnan, Harvey Fierstein, Polly Holliday, Lisa Jakub, Matthew Lawrence, Mara Wilson, Robert Prosky, Anne Haney, Scott Capurro. Crowd-pleasing comedy (with serious overtones) about a free spirit whose wife divorces him after fourteen years; he can't bear being separated from his three kids, so he disguises himself as a dowdy British housekeeper (under an Oscar-winning makeup job) and gets himself hired to look after them. Williams is in peak form, and director Columbus keeps story and characters reasonably realistic in order to drive home a humanistic message. Based on the book Alias Madame Doubtfire by Anne Fine. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Mr. Sebastian SEE: Sebastian

Mrs. Henderson Presents (2005-British) C-103m. ½ D: Stephen Frears. Judi Dench, Bob Hoskins, Will Young, Christopher Guest, Kelly Reilly, Thelma Barlow, Anna Brewster, Rosalind Halstead. Recently widowed Dench decides to assert her newfound independence by buying a London theater, The Windmill, and hitting on the idea of staging nude tableaux. With the coming of WW2, the theater becomes a haven for soldiers and war-weary Londoners. Entertaining fluff based on a true story (which inspired the 1945 movie TONIGHT AND EVERY NIGHT). Bright musical numbers, good period flavor, but a bit calculated in its cuteness. Super 35. [R] ●

Mrs. Miniver (1942) 134m. ½ D: William Wyler. Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon, Dame May Whitty, Teresa Wright, Reginald Owen, Henry Travers, Richard Ney, Henry Wilcoxon, Helmut Dantine, Peter Lawford. Moving drama about middle-class English family learning to cope with war. Winner of six Academy Awards—for Garson, Wright, director Wyler, and Best Picture, among others—this film did much to rally American support for our British allies during WW2, though its depiction of English life was decidedly Hollywoodized. Screenplay by Arthur Wimperis, George Froeschel, James Hilton, and Claudine West; based on Jan Struther's short stories. Sequel: THE MINIVER STORY. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

art, Jean Arthur, Claude Rains, Edward Arnold, Guy Kibbee, Thomas Mitchell, Eugene Pallette, Beulah Bondi, Harry Carey, H. B. Warner, Charles Lane, Porter Hall, Jack Carson. Stewart is young idealist who finds nothing but corruption in U.S. Senate. Fine Capra Americana, with Stewart's top performance bolstered by Arthur as hard-boiled dame won over by earnest Mr. Smith, and a stellar supporting cast; Carey is magnificent as the Vice President. Brilliant script by Sidney Buchman; however, Lewis R. Foster's Original Story received the Oscar. Later a brief TV series. Remade as BILLY JACK GOES TO WASHINGTON. ▼●●

Mrs. Palfrey at The Claremont (2005-British) C-108m.  D: Dan Ireland. Joan Plowright, Rupert Friend, Zoe Tapper, Anna Massey, Robert Lang, Marcia Warren, Millicent Martin, Lorcan O'Toole. An elderly widow moves into a residential hotel in London to live out her days. A chance meeting with a charming if rootless young writer develops into genuine friendship, and makes Mrs. Palfrey the most envied member of the sedate but gossipy Claremont "family." Played in broad strokes at first, this comedy-drama deepens and becomes more satisfying as it goes along. A sweet film with a typically commanding—and honest—performance by Plowright. That's Peter O'Toole's son playing Plowright's grandson. Adapted from Elizabeth Taylor's novel by Ruth Sacks. ●

Mrs. Parker and the Vicious Circle (1994) C/B&W-125m. ½ D: Alan Rudolph. Jennifer Jason Leigh, Campbell Scott, Matthew Broderick, Andrew McCarthy, Peter Gallagher, Jennifer Beals, Gwyneth Paltrow, Sam Robards, Martha Plimpton, Tom McGowan, Stephen Baldwin, Wallace Shawn, Lili Taylor, James Le Gros, Keith Carradine, Nick Cassavetes, Jane Adams, Gary Basaraba, Rebecca Miller, Heather Graham, Jake Johannsen, Chip Zien. Closeup look at Dorothy Parker, fabled writer and charter member of the Algonquin Round Table in the 1920s; a vivid re-creation of that period and those celebrated wits, but Parker's chronic unhappiness (and Leigh's often mannered performance) makes for tough going in this lengthy film. Scott is a standout as Robert Benchley in the well-chosen supporting cast; the famous humorist's grandson, author Peter Benchley, appears early on as editor Frank Crowninshield. Stanley Tucci appears unbilled. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Mrs. Parkington (1944) 124m. ½ D: Tay Garnett. Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon, Edward Arnold, Gladys Cooper, Agnes Moorehead, Frances Rafferty, Selena Royle, Dan Duryea, Lee Patrick, Rod Cameron, Tom Drake, Cecil Kellaway, Peter Lawford. Overlong but well-mounted soaper involving poor, naive Garson and how she changes after marrying wealthy, charismatic Pidgeon. ▼●

Mrs. Pollifax—Spy (1971) C-110m. *½

D: Leslie Martinson. Rosalind Russell, Darren McGavin, Nehemiah Persoff, Harold Gould, John Beck, Dana Elcar. A bored widow volunteers as a CIA agent—and gets accepted—in this lame comedy spy caper. Russell's last theatrical film (for which she did the screenplay, under pseudonym) is also one of her worst. [G]

Mrs. Soffel (1984) C-110m.  D: Gillian Armstrong. Diane Keaton, Mel Gibson, Matthew Modine, Edward Herrmann, Trini Alvarado, Jennie Dundas, Danny Corkill, Terry O'Quinn. Interesting but gloomy, emotionally aloof rendering of true story, set in 1901, when wife of Pittsburgh prison warden falls in love with convicted murderer Gibson. Well made, but a pall hangs over entire film. [PG-13] ▼●●

Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch (1934) 80m.  D: Norman Taurog. W. C. Fields, Pauline Lord, ZaSu Pitts, Evelyn Venable, Kent Taylor, Donald Meek, Virginia Weidler. Venerable melodrama about a good-hearted woman and her ever-growing brood gets a shot of comic adrenalin from Fields, who's perfectly matched with Pitts. Not a typical Fields vehicle by any means. Based on the 1901 novel by Alice Hegan Rice; filmed before in 1914 and 1919; remade in 1942. ▼

Mrs. Winterbourne (1996) C-104m. ½ D: Richard Benjamin. Shirley MacLaine, Ricki Lake, Brendan Fraser, Miguel Sandoval, Loren Dean, Peter Gerety, Susan Haskell. Wide-eyed Lake is impregnated by her sleazy boyfriend, who then kicks her out; a coincidental meeting with another pregnant woman on a train leads to mistaken identity, and she's taken in by a wealthy Boston family who think she's one of their own. Likable comedy goes flat, but benefits from earnest performances. Based on Cornell Woolrich's I Married a Dead Man, which was filmed before, more seriously, as NO MAN OF HER OWN (1950) and I MARRIED A SHADOW (1982). Paula Prentiss appears unbilled as an obnoxious nurse. [PG-13] ▼●●

Mr. Sycamore (1974) C-88m. *½ D: Pancho Kohner. Jason Robards, Sandy Dennis, Jean Simmons, Robert Easton, Mark Miller. A milquetoasty mailman with a nagging wife (and a crush on local librarian) decides to escape rat race by turning into a tree! A definite curio, sadly defeated by heavy-handed treatment of material. ▼

Mr 3000 (2004) C-102m.  D: Charles Stone III. Bernie Mac, Angela Bassett, Paul Sorvino, Chris Noth, Michael Rispoli, Brian J. White. A Milwaukee Brewers baseball star with a giant ego retires after making his 3000th hit . . . but is forced to return years later when the statistic is found to be erroneous. Mac somehow makes this insufferable braggart appealing, and the script treats his relationship with sports reporter Bassett in a surprisingly refreshing, adult manner. Entertaining comedy manages to touch all the bases. Various celebrities and sports figures appear as themselves. [PG-13] ▼●

Mr. Toad's Wild Ride SEE: Wind in the Willows, The

Mr. Untouchable (2007) C-92m.  D: Marc Levin. Uneven, occasionally unsettling chronicle of the rise, fall, and ongoing survival of 1970s Harlem drug kingpin Leroy "Nicky" Barnes, who continues to hide from former accomplices he "ratted out" to authorities. Even though Barnes is filmed only in silhouette—director Levin duly notes that his reclusive subject has a $1 million bounty on his head—the unrepentant gangster, living large in exile, has an undeniable star power, which this documentary does little to diminish. [R]●

Mr. Winkle Goes to War (1944) 80m. ½ D: Alfred E. Green. Edward G. Robinson, Ruth Warrick, Ted Donaldson, Robert Armstrong, Bob Haymes, Richard Lane. Wilbert Winkle (Robinson) is timid, henpecked, physically unfit, and past 40, yet he's drafted into WW2. Clever, insightful little comedy. ▼

Mr. Woodcock (2007) C-88m. *½ D: Craig Gillespie. Billy Bob Thornton, Seann William Scott, Susan Sarandon, Amy Poehler, Melissa Sagemiller, Ethan Suplee, M. C. Gainey, Brent Briscoe, Bill Macy, Melissa Leo. Successful self-help book author is confronted with painful high school memories when he comes home to discover his mother is engaged to his terrifying phys. ed. coach. One-joke premise thrusts him into a series of competitions with the gym teacher, who seems to take joy in humiliating his future son-in-law. Gillespie's original version was heavily reshot and retooled by the studio, but it's still a mess, despite Thornton's game efforts. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Mr. Write (1994) C-89m. BOMB D: Charlie Loventhal. Paul Reiser, Jessica Tuck, Martin Mull, Doug Davidson, Jane Leeves, Calvert De Forest, Gigi Rice, Tom Wilson, Wendie Jo Sperber, Darryl M. Bell; voice of Ben Stein. Astonishingly awful comedy about a would-be writer with no talent who falls head over heels for an advertising executive (Tuck) when he chances to work on a TV commercial. Clichéd at best, annoyingly amateurish at worst. This was completed in 1992 before Reiser launched his TV series Mad About You. [PG-13] ▼●

Mr. Wrong (1985) SEE: Dark of the Night
Mr. Wrong (1996) C-92m.  D: Nick Castle. Ellen DeGeneres, Bill Pullman, Joan Cusack, Dean Stockwell, Joan Plowright, Ellen Cleghorne, John Livingston, Robert Goulet, Polly Holliday, Louie Anderson, Hope Davis. Single DeGeneres finds the perfect man in Pullman . . . or so she thinks. Not the light, funny romantic comedy you might expect, but a dark-humored attempt at satire on stalking. DeGeneres, in her starring debut, turns in a fine performance opposite the always reliable Pullman, but an uneven script works against the cast. [PG-13] ▼●●

Ms. Don Juan (1973-French) C-87m. *1/2 D: Roger Vadim. Brigitte Bardot, Maurice Ronet, Robert Hossein, Mathieu Carriere, Jane Birkin, Michele Sand. Bardot, in title role, seduces and/or humiliates everyone in her sight: a priest (who's also her cousin), a politician, a businessman. Glossy but limp; may be good for some unintended laughs. ▼●

Ms. 45 (1981) C-84m. 1/2 D: Abel Ferrara. Zoe Tamerlis, Steve Singer, Jack Thibeaudeau, Peter Yellen, Darlene Stuto. Tamerlis is raped twice, gets her "revenge" by murdering every male in sight. Well-made, violent role-reversal formula film with echoes of PSYCHO, REPULSION, CARRIE, etc., which won some strong reviews and a cult reputation. Aka ANGEL OF VENGEANCE. [R] ▼●●

Much Ado About Nothing (1993-British-U.S.) C-111m.  D: Kenneth Branagh. Kenneth Branagh, Michael Keaton, Robert Sean Leonard, Keanu Reeves, Emma Thompson, Denzel Washington, Richard Briers, Kate Beckinsale, Brian Blessed, Richard Clifford, Ben Elton, Gerard Horan, Phyllida Law, Imelda Staunton, Jimmy Yuill. Shakespeare's comedy of the wooing of Benedick (played by actor-director-screenwriter Branagh) and Beatrice (his then wife, Thompson) is set and shot entirely in and around an Italian villa in Tuscany and features a top-notch supporting cast. Rowdy, high spirited, and remarkably fast paced; this brings vigor to the Bard's text, though the poetry sometimes gets lost in the shenanigans. Branagh does impressive job, but cannot match earlier Shakespearean effort, HENRY V (1989). [PG-13] ▼●●

Mudlark, The (1950) 99m.  D: Jean Negulesco. Irene Dunne, Alec Guinness, Finlay Currie, Anthony Steel, Andrew Ray, Beatrice Campbell, Wilfrid Hyde-White. Offbeat drama of Queen Victoria (Dunne), a recluse since her husband's death, coming back to reality after meeting waif who stole into her castle. Dunne does quite well as Queen, with Guinness a joy as Disraeli. Filmed in England.

Mulan (1998) C-88m.  D: Barry Cook, Tony Bancroft. Voices of Ming-Na Wen, Lea Salonga, Eddie Murphy, B. D. Wong, Donny Osmond, Harvey Fierstein, Miguel Ferrer, Pat Morita, June Foray, Miriam Margolyes, George Takei, James Shiget, Gedde Watanabe, James Hong. Disney's animated musical rendering of an ancient Chinese legend, about a headstrong daughter who disguises as a boy in order to take her father's place in the Imperial Army—and bring honor to her family. Strikingly staged and designed, with a strong and appealing leading character; the constant comedy "relief," while funny, seems jarring and unnecessary in such a strong dramatic tale. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [G] ▼●●

Mulholland Dr. (2001-U.S.-French) C-145m. 1/2 D: David Lynch. Justin Theroux, Naomi Watts, Laura Elena Harring, Ann Miller, Scott Wulf, Robert Forster, Brent Briscoe, Dan Hedaya, Michael Des Barres, Billy Ray Cyrus, Katharine Towne, Lee Grant, James Karen, Chad Everett. A plucky young actress arrives in Hollywood and tries to solve the mystery of an amnesiac woman's identity. Hypnotic, full-bore Lynchian strangeness, loaded with the writer-director's trademark visual fetishes and unexplainable dream logic, anchored by a knockout performance from Watts. Certainly not for all tastes. Originally a rejected TV pilot (!), later reshot and expanded to present length. Miller's final film. [R] ▼●

Mulholland Falls (1996) C-107m.  D: Lee Tamahori. Nick Nolte, Melanie Griffith, Chazz Palminteri, Michael Madsen, Chris Penn, Treat Williams, Jennifer Connelly, Andrew McCarthy, John Malkovich, Daniel Baldwin, Kyle Chandler, Ed Lauter, Aaron Neville. L.A. period piece (and CHINATOWN wannabe) about an elite squad of cops who make their own rules . . . until their leader (Nolte) becomes personally involved in a murder case with far-reaching consequences. Story unfolds in an obvious, heavy-handed way, and much of the cast is wasted. Tiresome, redundant score by Dave Grusin. That's production designer Richard Sylbert (who also worked on CHINATOWN) as the coroner. William L. Petersen, Rob Lowe, Louise Fletcher, and Bruce Dern appear unbilled. [R] ▼●●

Multiplicity (1996) C-117m. 1/2 D: Harold Ramis. Michael Keaton, Andie MacDowell, Harris Yulin, Richard Masur, Eugene Levy, Ann Cusack, Brian Doyle-Murray. Working stiff who feels pulled in all directions by his job and his family finds a solution: he clones himself—again and again and again. Amusing gimmick comedy, in the same vein as Ramis' GROUNDHOG DAY, but not quite as good. Keaton has a field day with his multiple characters, but the premise is stretched way beyond credibility and wears thin. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Mumford (1999) C-112m. ½ D: Lawrence Kasdan. Loren Dean, Hope Davis, Jason Lee, Alfre Woodard, Mary McDonnell, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Zooey Deschanel, Martin Short, David Paymer, Jane Adams, Ted Danson, Kevin Tighe, Dana Ivey. Quirky, novelistic film about a quiet, clean-cut psychologist who wins over a small town with his commonsense approach to their problems—while remaining an enigma himself. Original and amusing in a nice, old-fashioned way, but awfully tidy. Written by Kasdan. Super 35. [R]▼●

Mummy, The (1932) 72m. ½ D: Karl Freund. Boris Karloff, Zita Johann, David Manners, Arthur Byron, Edward Van Sloan, Bramwell Fletcher, Noble Johnson. Horror classic stars Karloff as Egyptian mummy, revived after thousands of years, believing Johann is reincarnation of ancient mate. Remarkable makeup and atmosphere make it chills ahead of many follow-ups. ▼●●

Mummy, The (1959-British) C-88m. ½ D: Terence Fisher. Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee, Yvonne Fumeaux, Eddie Byrne, Felix Aylmer, Raymond Huntley. Against warnings of severe consequences, archaeologists desecrate ancient tomb of Egyptian Princess Ananka. They return to England and those consequences. Stylish Hammer resurrection of Universal's Kharis series. ▼●●

Mummy, The (1999) C-124m. *½ D: Stephen Sommers. Brendan Fraser, Rachel Weisz, John Hannah, Arnold Vosloo, Kevin J. O'Connor, Jonathan Hyde, Oded Fehr. Hokey, jokey, Indiana Jones-ish adventure yarn has little to do with earlier Mummy movies. Librarian and Egyptologist Weisz (a clumsy character in the first scene—then, oddly, never again) hires Fraser to lead her to the "lost" city of Hamunaptra, where the tomb of Imhotep (Vosloo) is desecrated, to everyone's regret. Special effects galore, but no sense of awe or wonder; what's more, it goes on forever. Is that Dick Foran in the mummy attack scene? Followed by THE MUMMY RETURNS. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Mummy Returns, The (2001) C-129m. *½ D: Stephen Sommers. Brendan Fraser, Rachel Weisz, John Hannah, Arnold Vosloo, Oded Fehr, Patricia Velasquez, Freddie Boath, Alun Armstrong, The Rock. Fraser and wife Weisz (with a precocious son in tow) desecrate an ancient crypt and inadvertently discover the means to raise an ancient army from the dead. Big Dumb Sequel to the original Big Dumb Hit has all the same ingredients (plus skeletal pygmy warriors!). A long, noisy action-adventure film made up entirely of climaxes. Followed by THE SCORPION KING and an animated TV series. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Mummy: Tomb of the Dragon Emperor, The (2008-U.S.-German-Canadian) C-112m.

*½ D: Rob Cohen. Brendan Fraser, Jet Li, Maria Bello, John Hannah, Michelle Yeoh, Luke Ford, David Calder, Isabella Leong, Chau Sang Anthony Wong, Russell Wong, Liam Cunningham. Third in the series that began with the 1999 MUMMY finds adventurer Fraser, his wife (Bello), and son (Ford), plus hangers-on, in China battling the resurrected Emperor Han (Li), who's after an immortality formula. Fast-paced, with lots of effects, but a dopey story and ruinously over-edited action sequences sink what might have been a fun film. Li and Yeoh are badly used. Bring back Kharis! Super 35. [PG-13]●

Mummy's Curse, The (1944) 62m. ½ D: Leslie Goodwins. Lon Chaney, Jr., Peter Coe, Virginia Christine, Kay Harding, Dennis Moore, Martin Kosleck, Kurt Katch. Kharis and the reincarnated Ananka, last seen slipping into a New England swamp, are unaccountably dug up in a Louisiana bayou, where he's soon strangling people again. Surprisingly eerie and effective, with a good performance by Christine. Silent star William Farnum has a bit role as a caretaker. Last of the series. ▼●●

Mummy's Ghost, The (1944) 60m. *½ D: Reginald Le Borg. Lon Chaney, Jr., John Carradine, Ramsay Ames, Robert Lowery, Barton MacLane, George Zucco. Sequel to THE MUMMY'S TOMB finds seemingly unkillable Kharis and his mentor (Carradine) on the trail of a woman who is the reincarnation of Princess Ananka. Least interesting of the series, with nothing new or different to offer. Followed by THE MUMMY'S CURSE. ▼●●

Mummy's Hand, The (1940) 67m.  D: Christy Cabanne. Dick Foran, Wallace Ford, Peggy Moran, Cecil Kellaway, George Zucco, Tom Tyler, Eduardo Ciannelli, Charles Trowbridge. Archeologists seeking lost tomb of Egyptian princess get more than they bargained for when they find it guarded by a living—and very deadly—mummy (Tyler). First of the "Kharis" series is entertaining blend of chills and comedy, with good cast, flavorful music and atmosphere. Not a sequel to THE MUMMY (1932), although it does utilize flashback footage; itself followed by three sequels, starting with THE MUMMY'S TOMB. ▼●●

Mummy's Shroud, The (1967-British) C-90m. BOMB D: John Gilling. Andre Morell, John Phillips, David Buck, Elizabeth Sellars, Maggie Kimberley, Michael Ripper. British expedition takes mummy of child pharaoh back to Cairo; boy's guardian, also a mummy, murders those responsible. One of the least of the Hammer horrors. ▼●●

Mummy's Tomb, The (1942) 61m.  D: Harold Young. Lon Chaney, Jr., Elyse Knox, John Hubbard, Turhan Bey, Dick Foran, Wallace Ford, George Zucco, Mary

Gordon. Sequel to THE MUMMY'S HAND finds Khari (now played by Chaney) transported to America to kill off surviving members of the expedition. Weak script and too much stock footage are the real villains. ▼●●

Mumsy, Nanny, Sonny and Girly (1970-British) C-101m. BOMB D: Freddie Francis. Vanessa Howard, Michael Bryant, Ursula Howells, Pat Heywood, Howard Trevor. Rock-bottom murder tale of eccentric family where children's "game-playing" has lethal overtones. Stupid. Aka GIRLY. [R] ▼

Munich (2005) C-164m. ½ D: Steven Spielberg. Eric Bana, Daniel Craig, Ciarán Hinds, Mathieu Kassovitz, Hanns Zischler, Ayelet Zurer, Geoffrey Rush, Michael Lonsdale, Gila Almagor, Mathieu Almaric, Lynn Cohen, Valeria Bruni-Tedeschi, Yvan Attal. In the wake of the 1972 massacre of the Israeli Olympic team, the government of Israel hires a low-level operative (Bana) to head a secret squad. Its mission: to murder the terrorists responsible for the attack. Bana and his cohorts immerse themselves in the cloak-and-dagger world, but before long begin to question their own motives—and the toll the job may be taking on their humanity. Despite a script by Tony Kushner and Eric Roth (based on George Jonas' book Vengeance, which inspired the 1986 TV movie WORD OF GIDEON), there is less here than meets the eye. A seeming lack of focus, and a feeling of treading familiar ground, dissipates the impact of key suspense scenes. Super 35. [R] ●

Munster, Go Home! (1966) C-96m. ½ D: Earl Bellamy. Fred Gwynne, Yvonne De Carlo, Terry-Thomas, Hermione Gingold, John Carradine, Debby Watson, Butch Patrick. Monster family goes to England to claim a castle they've inherited; juvenile production based on the popular TV sitcom. Followed by TV movies in 1981 and 1995. ▼●

Muppet Christmas Carol, The (1992) C-85m.  D: Brian Henson. Michael Caine, Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy, Fozzie Bear, The Great Gonzo, Animal, Rizzo the Rat (Frank Oz, Dave Goelz, Steve Whitmire, Jerry Nelson). Delightful adaptation of the Dickens perennial, with a human Scrooge (Caine, in a nicely modulated performance) surrounded by mostly Muppet characters. Jerry Juhl's script neatly balances humor with the story's robust melodrama, and Paul Williams' songs add perfect punctuation. [G] ▼●●

Muppet Movie, The (1979) C-94m.  D: James Frawley. Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy, Fozzie Bear, and the Muppets (Jim Henson, Frank Oz, Jerry Nelson, Richard Hunt, Dave Goelz), Charles Durning, Austin Pendleton; 15 guest stars. Enjoyable showcase for Jim Henson's irresistible characters, charting Kermit's odyssey from a Georgia swamp to Hollywood. Unnecessary movie-star cameos can't dim Muppets' appeal in their first feature film. Trimmed from 97m. after initial release. [G] ▼●●

Muppets from Space (1999) C-82m. ½ D: Tim Hill. Gonzo, Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy (Dave Goelz, Steve Whitmire, Frank Oz), Jeffrey Tambor, F. Murray Abraham, Ray Liotta, David Arquette, Andie MacDowell, Pat Hingle, Hollywood (Hulk) Hogan. Gonzo learns that he's really a stranded alien, and that others of his race are on the way. Conspiracy-minded Tambor is sure this means an invasion. Weak Muppet outing turns the story over to supporting characters, and loses the edge that sparked their earlier adventures. OK overall. [G] ▼●

Muppet Treasure Island (1996) C-99m. ½ D: Brian Henson. Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy, Gonzo, Fozzie Bear (Steve Whitmire, Frank Oz, Dave Goelz), Tim Curry, Kevin Bishop, Billy Connolly, Jennifer Saunders. The Muppets take on Robert Louis Stevenson's classic pirate story, with Kermit the Frog as Captain Smollett and Miss Piggy as "Benjamina" Gunn. Good fun, but seems longer than it is, and Curry is—of all things—a bit more subdued as Long John Silver than you'd expect. Of course, after Robert Newton, anyone would seem subdued! [G] ▼●●

Murder! (1930-British) 104m.  D: Alfred Hitchcock. Herbert Marshall, Norah Baring, Phyllis Konstam, Edward Chapman. Good early Hitchcock casts Marshall as actor who serves on jury at murder trial and believes accused woman innocent. ▼

Murder Ahoy (1964-British) 93m. ½ D: George Pollock. Margaret Rutherford, Lionel Jeffries, Charles Tingwell, William Mervyn, Joan Benham, Stringer Davis, Miles Maleson. This time out, Miss Marple investigates murder on a naval cadet training ship. Original screenplay (by David Persall and Jack Seddon) based on wonderful Agatha Christie character. ▼●●

Murder at 1600 (1997) C-107m.  D: Dwight Little. Wesley Snipes, Diane Lane, Alan Alda, Daniel Benzali, Ronny Cox, Dennis Miller, Tate Donovan, Diane Baker, Charles Rocket, Harris Yulin, Nicholas Pryor. Muddled, predictable mystery thriller in which Washington, D.C., homicide cop

Snipes wades his way through assorted cover-ups and intrigue upon discovery of the bloody corpse of a beautiful White House staffer in an Oval Office bathroom. One Good Cop vs. Big Bad Bureaucracy scenario is done in by its endless plot holes, not to mention ludicrous finale. [R] ▼●●

Murder at the Gallop (1963-British) 81m.

Murderball (2005) C-88m. ½ D:

Henry Alex Rubin, Dana Adam Shapiro. Electrifying documentary look at a group of gung-ho athletes who play their sport with the same competitive fire as the best pro and amateur jocks—only they are quadriplegics, and their game is rugby in wheelchairs. While the game sequences are riveting, the film is at its best when it focuses on the players' personalities and challenges off the field. [R] ▼▼

Murder by Contract (1958) 81m.  D: Irving Lerner. Vince Edwards, Philip Pine, Herschel Bernardi, Caprice Toriel. Intriguing little film about a hired killer and what makes him tick; ultimately sabotaged by pretentious dialogue and posturing. ●

Murder by Death (1976) C-94m.  D:

Robert Moore. Peter Sellers, Peter Falk, David Niven, Maggie Smith, James Coco, Alec Guinness, Elsa Lanchester, Eileen Brennan, Nancy Walker, Estelle Winwood, Truman Capote. Capote invites world's greatest detectives to his home and involves them in a baffling whodunit. Neil Simon spoofs such characters as Charlie Chan, Miss Marple, and Sam Spade in this enjoyable all-star comedy, with marvelous sets by Stephen Grimes. Simon followed this with THE CHEAP DETECTIVE. [PG] ▼●●

Murder by Decree (1979-Canadian-British)

C-121m.  D: Bob Clark. Christopher Plummer, James Mason, Donald Sutherland, Genevieve Bujold, Susan Clark, David Hemmings, Frank Finlay, John Gielgud, Anthony Quayle. Sherlock Holmes investigates slayings of prostitutes by Jack the Ripper, with surprising results. Involved, often lurid story doesn't sustain through conclusion, but flaws overshadowed by warm interpretations of Holmes and Watson by Plummer and Mason. For another version of Holmes vs. the Ripper, see A STUDY IN TERROR. [PG] ▼●●

Murder by Numbers (2002) C-120m.

½ D: Barbet Schroeder. Sandra Bullock, Ben Chaplin, Ryan Gosling, Michael Pitt, Agnes Bruckner, Chris Penn, R.D. Call. Homicide detective Bullock—a brilliant loner with heavy emotional baggage—works with her new partner (Chaplin) on a brutal murder committed by two high schoolers out to stage the perfect crime, a la Leopold and Loeb. Yet another contemporary thriller that squanders all its good qualities by tacking on a silly, old-fashioned Hollywood finale. By that time, the two sick teenage criminals have worn out their welcome anyway. [R] ▼●

Murder by Phone (1980-Canadian) C-

79m.  D: Michael Anderson. Richard Chamberlain, John Houseman, Sara Botsford, Robin Gammell, Gary Reineke, Barry Morse. Talented cast and director go slumming in this hoary horror exercise involving a crazed killer who literally phones in his murders, doing in his victims by ingenious long distance device. Filmed as BELLS. [R] ▼

Murder, Czech Style (1968-Czech) 90m.

½ D: Jiri Weiss. Rudolf Hrusinsky, Kyeta Fialova, Vaclav Voska, Vladimir Mensik. Clever, gentle spoof of romantic triangle melodramas, with pudgy middle-aged clerk (Hrusinsky) marrying beautiful woman, realizing she's been cheating on him, planning revenge, via dream sequences. ▼

Murderers' Row (1966) C-108m. BOMB

D: Henry Levin. Dean Martin, Ann-Margret, Karl Malden, Camilla Sparv, James Gregory, Beverly Adams. Malden kidnaps A-M's father, threatens to melt Washington, D.C., with a "helio beam"; only Matt Helm can save both. (What if he'd had to make a choice?) Second Helm caper—after THE SILENCERS—offers one funny jibe at Frank Sinatra, absolutely nothing else. Sequel: THE AM-BUSHERS. ▼●

Murder, He Says (1945) 93m.  D:

George Marshall. Fred MacMurray, Helen Walker, Marjorie Main, Jean Heather, Porter Hall, Peter Whitney, Barbara Pepper, Mabel Paige. Zany slapstick of pollster MacMurray encountering Main's family of hayseed murderers. Too strident at times, but generally funny; clever script by Lou Breslow. ▼

Murder, Inc. (1960) 103m.  D: Burt

Balaban, Stuart Rosenberg. Stuart Whitman, May Britt, Henry Morgan, Peter Falk, David J. Stewart, Simon Oakland, Morey Amsterdam, Sarah Vaughan, Joseph Campanella. Solid little fact-based chronicle of the title crime organization, with Falk in particular scoring as Abe Reles, the syndicate's ill-fated number-one killer. Lots of familiar faces (Vincent Gardenia, Sylvia Miles, Seymour Cassel) in supporting roles. CinemaScope. ●

Murder in the First (1995) C-122m. ½

defender's office is given his first assignment: defending an Alcatraz prisoner who murdered a fellow inmate. Only extenuating circumstance: the young prisoner was driven to madness by unspeakably brutal treatment for three straight years. Bacon's bravura performance is the centerpiece of this imperfect but commanding drama, which is a bit too self-satisfied and manipulative. Based on a true story, and set in the 1930s and '40s. Bacon's wife Kyra Sedgwick is amusingly cast in a cameo. With this film, director Rocco has used up his moving-camera allotment for at least 10 years. [R]▼●●

Murder in the Ring SEE: Ripped Off

Murder Man, The (1935) 70m.  D: Tim Whelan. Spencer Tracy, Virginia Bruce, Lionel Atwill, Harvey Stephens, Robert Barrat, James Stewart. Tracy is good as usual playing a hard-drinking newspaper reporter who specializes in covering murders. Snappy little film also offers Stewart in his first feature appearance (playing a fellow reporter named Shorty).

Murder Most Foul (1965-British) 90m.  D: George Pollock. Margaret Rutherford, Ron Moody, Charles Tingwell, Andrew Cruickshank, Stringer Davis, Francesca Annis, Dennis Price, James Bolam. When Miss Marple is lone jury member who believes defendant is innocent, she sets out to prove it. Based on Agatha Christie's Mrs. McGinty's Dead.▼●●

Murder, My Sweet (1944) 95m. ½ D: Edward Dmytryk. Dick Powell, Claire Trevor, Anne Shirley, Otto Kruger, Mike Mazurki, Miles Mander. Adaptation of Raymond Chandler's book Farewell My Lovely gave Powell new image as hard-boiled detective Philip Marlowe, involved in homicide and blackmail. Still packs a wallop. Scripted by John Paxton. Story previously used for THE FALCON TAKES OVER; remade again as FAREWELL, MY LOVELY in 1975. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Murder on Monday SEE: Home at Seven

DEATH ON THE NILE. Remade for TV in 2001. [PG]▼●●

Murderous Maids (2000-French) C-94m.  D: Jean-Pierre Denis. Sylvie Testud, Julie-Marie Parmentier, Isabelle Renaud, François Levantal, Dominique Labourier, Jean-Gabriel Nordmann, Marie Donnio. A new take on the notorious 1933 murder case that rocked all of France. Christine Papin (Testud) and her younger sister Léa, like their mother before them, work as housemaids, but Christine's simmering resentment of her mother, her situation, and her employers boils over in various destructive ways. Denis' unsparing approach to the material doesn't even allow for a music score; Testud's performance is riveting and real. Super 35.▼

Murder She Said (1961-British) 87m.  D: George Pollock. Margaret Rutherford, Arthur Kennedy, Muriel Pavlow, James Robertson Justice, Charles Tingwell, Thorley Walters, Joan Hickson. Miss Marple takes a job as a domestic in order to solve a murder she witnessed. Based on Agatha Christie's 4:50 From Paddington; first of four films starring Rutherford as Marple. Trivia note: Rutherford has several scenes with Hickson, later to play Miss Marple herself in a fine British TV series.▼●●

Murders in the Rue Morgue (1932) 62m. ½ D: Robert Florey. Bela Lugosi, Sidney Fox, Leon Waycoff (Ames), Bert Roach, Noble Johnson, Brandon Hurst, Arlene Francis. Expressionistic horror film based on Poe story, with Lugosi as fiendish Dr. Mirakle, with eyes on lovely Fox as the bride of his pet ape in 1845 Paris. Considered strong stuff back then. John Huston was one of the writers. Remade as PHANTOM OF THE RUE MORGUE, and twice more (once for TV in 1986) under original title.▼●●

Murders in the Rue Morgue (1971) C-87m. *½ D: Gordon Hessler. Jason Robards, Herbert Lom, Christine Kaufmann, Lilli Palmer, Adolfo Celi, Maria Perschy, Michael Dunn. Sensationalistic reworking of Poe story; players at Grand Guignol-type theater suddenly become victims of real-life murders, gory goings-on. Set in Paris, but filmed in Spain. [PG]▼●

Muriel (1963-French-Italian) C-115m.  D: Alain Resnais. Delphine Seyrig, Jean-Pierre Kérien, Nita Klein, Claude Sainval, Jean-Baptiste Thiéree. Poignant drama of alienation, about a widow (Seyrig) and her stepson (Thiéree); she's haunted by the memory of her first love, he by his involvement in the torture and death of a woman named Muriel during the Algerian War.▼

nan, Gennie Nevinson, Matt Day, Chris Haywood, Daniel Lapaine. Ugly duckling with a strikingly dysfunctional family (and a blustery, small-time politico father) yearns for a happier life, and starts on that road by leaving her home town of Porpoise Spit for Sydney, in the company of her fast-track girlfriend. Not the simple, straight-ahead "feel good" movie you might expect, but a darker, more idiosyncratic comedy-drama about friendship, dreams, reality, and the joys of ABBA music. A very satisfying film, full of wonderful performances; written by the director. [R]▼●●

Murmur of the Heart (1971-French-German-Italian) C-118m. ½ D: Louis Malle. Lea Massari, Benoit Ferreux, Daniel Gelin, Marc Winocourt, Michel Lonsdale. Fresh, intelligent, affectionately comic tale of bourgeois, sensuous Massari and her precocious 14-year-old son (Ferreux), builds to a thoroughly delightful resolution. Wonderful performances. [R]▼●●

Murph the Surf SEE: Live a Little, Steal a Lot

Murphy's Law (1986) C-100m. *½ D: J. Lee Thompson. Charles Bronson, Kathleen Wilhoite, Carrie Snodgrass, Robert F. Lyons, Richard Romanus, Angel Tompkins, Bill Henderson, James Luisi, Janet MacLachlan, Lawrence Tierney. All-too-typical Bronson vehicle about a cop framed for murders by psychopathic ex-con he originally sent to prison; only novelty is that the psycho is a woman (Snodgrass). Strictly formula; violent and unpleasant. [R]▼●●

Murphy's Romance (1985) C-107m.  D: Martin Ritt. Sally Field, James Garner, Brian Kerwin, Corey Haim, Dennis Burkley, Georgann Johnson, Charles Lane. Young divorcée (with 12-year-old son) makes fresh start in small Arizona community, where she's attracted to older, laid-back, widowed pharmacist—and vice versa. Charming, easygoing comedy written by Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank, Jr. (from Max Schott's novella), with Garner in a standout performance as Murphy, the last of the rugged individualists. In fact, this earned him his first Oscar nomination. [PG-13]▼●●

Murphy's War (1971-British) C-108m.  D: Peter Yates. Peter O'Toole, Sian Phillips, Philippe Noiret, Horst Janson, John Hallam, Ingo Morgendorf. Well-staged, gripping action sequences combine with psychological study of Irish seaman (O'Toole) only survivor of German massacre, out to get revenge. Good idea, but nonaction sequences tend to bog film down; script by Stirling Silliphant. Panavision. [PG]▼

to BEACH PARTY picks up the pace as the gang finds the beach has been invaded by Rickles and his stable of body-builders. Usual blend of surf, sand, and corn; Rickles' first series appearance and the screen debut of "Little" Stevie Wonder. Sequel: BIKINI BEACH. Panavision. ▼●●

Muse, The (1999) C-96m.  D: Albert Brooks. Albert Brooks, Sharon Stone, Andie MacDowell, Jeff Bridges, Mark Feuerstein, Steven Wright, Bradley Whitford. Brooks plays a Hollywood screenwriter who's told that he's out of touch—until he hooks up with a bona fide muse (Stone), a capricious woman whose working methods are unconventional at best. As with so many of Brooks' movies, the parts are greater than the whole, but his gibes at Hollywood are priceless, and some of the cameo appearances (which we won't give away) are very funny indeed. [PG-13]▼●

Muse Concert: No Nukes, The SEE: No Nukes

Music and Lyrics (2007) C-96m. ½ D: Marc Lawrence. Hugh Grant, Drew Barrymore, Brad Garrett, Kristen Johnston, Campbell Scott, Haley Bennett, Aasif Mandvi, Adam Grupper. Paper-thin but cute romantic comedy about a washed-up '80s pop star (Grant) who's presented with a big break—getting to perform an original song with a contemporary music star (Bennett)—if he can only find a lyricist with whom he can collaborate. She appears in the unlikely person of a ditzzy woman who's supposed to take care of the plants in his N.Y.C. apartment. Grant is at his best, tossing off a steady stream of funny lines. Written by the director. [PG-13]●

Music Box (1989) C-123m. ½ D: Costa-Gavras. Jessica Lange, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Frederic Forrest, Donald Moffat, Lukas Haas, Cheryl Lynn Bruce, Michael Rooker. Chicago criminal attorney Lange is thrown for a loop when her Hungarian-immigrant dad is accused of heinous war crimes and threatened with deportation. She defends him in a sensational trial but has trouble—legally and emotionally—proving his innocence. What could have been a crackling political thriller becomes a high-gloss melodrama instead, plodding and far-fetched, though Lange is good in (rare) ethnic role, and Mueller-Stahl is strong as the enigmatic elder. A disappointment from the director of Z and MISSING. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Music for Millions (1944) 120m. ½ D: Henry Koster. Margaret O'Brien, Jimmy Durante, June Allyson, Marsha Hunt, Hugh Herbert, Jose Iturbi, Connie Gilchrist, Harry Davenport, Marie Wilson, Larry Adler, Ethel Griffies. Teary tale of war-bride Allyson, a cellist in Iturbi's orchestra, gallantly waiting to have a baby—and for husband's return. O'Brien is her precocious kid

sister. While there's plenty of Chopin and Debussy, Durante steals film with "Umbriago." Watch for Ava Gardner in a bit.

Music in Darkness SEE: Night Is My Future

Music in My Heart (1940) 69m. ½ D: Joseph Santley. Tony Martin, Rita Hayworth, Edith Fellows, Alan Mowbray, George Tobias, Joseph Crehan, George Humbert. Cheerful grade-B musical about a singer wanted for deportation who hides out with a friendly family in a colorful, multi-ethnic N.Y.C. neighborhood. The cast couldn't be more appealing, and Tony warbles some good songs (including "It's a Blue World") by Robert Wright and Chet Forrest. ▼●

Music Lovers, The (1971-British) C-122m. ½ D: Ken Russell. Glenda Jackson, Richard Chamberlain, Max Adrian, Christopher Gable, Kenneth Colley. Occasionally striking but self-indulgent and factually dubious account of Tchaikovsky (Chamberlain), who marries and abandons the whorish Nina (Jackson). Overacted, over-directed. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Music Man, The (1962) C-151m. ½ D: Morton Da Costa. Robert Preston, Shirley Jones, Buddy Hackett, Hermione Gingold, Paul Ford, Pert Kelton, Ronny Howard. Peerless Preston reprises his Broadway performance as super salesman/con man Prof. Harold Hill, who mesmerizes Iowa town with visions of uniformed marching band. Faithful filmization of Meredith Willson's affectionate slice of Americana. Score includes "76 Trombones," "Till There Was You," and showstopping "Trouble." Remade for TV in 2003. Technirama. ▼●●

Music of Chance, The (1993) C-98m. ½ D: Philip Haas. James Spader, Mandy Patinkin, M. Emmet Walsh, Charles Durning, Joel Grey, Samantha Mathis, Christopher Penn. A man gives a lift to a fellow stumbling alongside a country road, learns he's a high-stakes poker player, and decides to back him in an upcoming game against two eccentric millionaires. Low-key adaptation of Paul Auster's existential novel offers as many questions as answers while it spins its interesting—but oddball—tale. Coscripted by director Haas, a documentarian making his feature debut. Superior performances by a hand-picked cast; Spader is a particular standout as a slimeball with his own peculiar code of ethics. ▼●

Music of the Heart (1999) C-124m.  D: Wes Craven. Meryl Streep, Aidan Quinn, Angela Bassett, Gloria Estefan, Jane Leeves, Cloris Leachman, Kieran Culkin, Charlie Hofheimer, Jay O. Sanders. Newly single woman moves to East Harlem and starts a violin class, against all odds, giving her kids a sense of discipline, purpose, and pride. Pamela Gray's script sidesteps the

obvious as often as possible, and makes many of the student characters worth caring about. Reaches its emotional peak before the climactic concert—but still a sweet, upbeat film. Inspired by the documentary SMALL WONDERS about the real-life Roberta Guaspari. Isaac Stern, Itzhak Perlman, and many other noted musicians appear as themselves. [PG] ▼●

Music Teacher, The (1988-Belgian) C-95m. ½ D: Gerard Corbiau. Jose Van Dam, Anne Roussel, Philippe Volter, Sylvie Fennec, Patrick Bauchau, Johan Leyson. A familiar plot and stale script sink this musical drama detailing what happens when opera star Van Dam retires at the pinnacle of his fame to train fetching young Roussel and petty thief Volter. The charisma and magnificent singing voice of Van Dam, the Belgian bass-baritone, almost (but not quite) redeem this. [PG] ▼●

Music Within (2007) C-93m. ½ D: Steven Sawalich. Ron Livingston, Melissa George, Michael Sheen, Yul Vázquez, Rebecca De Mornay, Hector Elizondo, Leslie Nielsen, Marion Ross, Clint Howard, Dale Dye. Young man from Portland, Oregon, is stymied in pursuing his dream of public speaking, goes to Vietnam instead, and loses his hearing in an explosion. Back home he overcomes his impairment and becomes a celebrated advocate for the disabled, but doesn't fare as well in his private life. True story of Richard Pimentel seems to have the right stuff—including a showy performance by Sheen as a man with cerebral palsy—but winds up resembling a pat TV movie. Further hampered by a heavy-handed '70s jukebox score. [R] ●

Musketeer, The (2001-German-U.S.-Luxembourg) C-105m. BOMB D: Peter Hyams. Catherine Deneuve, Mena Suvari, Stephen Rea, Tim Roth, Justin Chambers, Bill Treacher, Daniel Mesguich, Nick Moran, Steven Speirs, Jan Gregor Kremp. Clumsily revamped version of THE THREE MUSKETEERS crams in Hong Kong-style martial arts action, but loses many of the characters—not to mention the charm and wit—from the novel. The Three Musketeers barely get a word in! Drab looking, badly photographed (by the director), and seemingly endless, this unattractive film may be the worst version ever of Dumas' evergreen. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Mustang Country (1976) C-79m.  D: John Champion. Joel McCrea, Robert Fuller, Patrick Wayne, Nika Mina. Excellent Western set along Montana-Canadian border in 1925. 70-year-old McCrea most convincing as ex-rancher and rodeo star who shares adventures with runaway Indian boy while hunting a wild stallion. [G]

Must Love Dogs (2005) C-98m. ½ D: Gary David Goldberg. Diane Lane, John

Cusack, Elizabeth Perkins, Dermot Mulroney, Christopher Plummer, Stockard Channing, Tony Bill, Ben Shenkman, Brad Hall, Steven R. Schirripa. Amiable if unremarkable romantic comedy about two divorced people who meet through an Internet personals ad: a woman whose family insists she start dating again, and a guy whose best friend does likewise. Sheer likability of the two stars carries this a long way over familiar territory. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Must Read After My Death (2009) C/B&W-73m. ½ D: Morgan Dews. A woman dies, leaving behind hours of audio recordings and home movies. Dews is her grandson; from this material, he has fashioned an unsettling portrait of an outwardly happy but tragically dysfunctional American family. While the film offers the point of view that families suffered greatly because of predetermined gender roles in pre-feminist 1960s America, there also is the sense that Dews is disrespecting his relatives' privacy. Watching this film is akin to peeking through a window and staring at an open wound. Dews wrote, directed, produced, and edited.

Mutant (1984) SEE: Night Shadows

Mutant Chronicles (2008-U.S.-British) C-101m. *½ D: Simon Hunter. Ron Perlman, Thomas Jane, Devon Aoki, Sean Pertwee, Benno Fürmann, John Malkovich, Anna Walton, Tom Wu, Steve Toussaint, Luis Echegaray. Necromutants unleashed on the planet Earth strive (for no apparent reason other than it's what they do) to turn all humans into violent, blood-lusting creatures like themselves. Perlman plays a monk who believes he's the one to bring the mutants down, and rounds up a group of miscreant soldiers to help. By the time they do, who cares? Futuristic blood-and-guts thriller takes itself much too seriously; not even worth watching for a laugh. Drawn from the popular role-playing board game. [R] ▼

Mutations, The (1973-British) C-92m.  D: Jack Cardiff. Donald Pleasence, Tom Baker, Brad Harris, Julie Ege, Michael Dunn, Jill Haworth. Scientist Pleasence crossbreeds humans with plants—and his unsuspecting university students are abducted as guinea pigs. Predictable story with truly grotesque elements and characters. Not recommended for dinnertime viewing. Video title: THE FREAKMAKER. [R] ▼

Mute Witness (1995-British-German-Russian) C-98m. ½ D: Anthony Waller. Marina Sudina, Fay Ripley, Evan Richards, Oleg Jankowskij, Igor Volkow, Sergei Karlenkov, Alex Burew. The mute makeup artist on an American horror movie being shot in Moscow sees a snuff film being shot after-hours, and soon finds hit men from the Russian Mafia out to kill her. Impressive directing debut for Waller, who makes superb use of locations, but his script is second-rate; the story goes on too long, and is riddled with coincidences. Alec Guinness, in his final film, appears unbilled as a master criminal. Super 35. [R] ▼

Mutilator, The SEE: Dark, The

Mutiny (1952) C-77m. *½ D: Edward Dmytryk. Mark Stevens. Angela Lansbury, Patric Knowles, Gene Evans, Rhys Williams. Sleep-inducing actioner set amidst the War of 1812, with rival sailors Stevens and Knowles vying for adventuress Lansbury. ▼

Mutiny on the Bounty (1935) 132m. * D: Frank Lloyd. Charles Laughton, Clark Gable, Franchot Tone, Herbert Mundin, Eddie Quillan, Dudley Digges, Donald Crisp, Movita, Henry Stephenson, Spring Byington, Ian Wolfe, Mamo. Storytelling at its best, in this engrossing adaptation of the Nordhoff-Hall book about mutiny against tyrannical Captain Bligh (Laughton) on voyage to the South Seas. Whole cast is good, but Laughton is unforgettable. Scripted by three top writers: Talbot Jennings, Jules Furthman, and Carey Wilson. Oscar winner for Best Picture; leagues ahead of its 1962 remake and the 1984 film THE BOUNTY. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Mutiny on the Bounty (1962) C-179m.

½ D: Lewis Milestone. Marlon Brando, Trevor Howard, Richard Harris, Hugh Griffith, Richard Haydn, Tim Seely, Percy Herbert, Tarita, Gordon Jackson. Lavish remake of 1935 classic can't come near it, although visually beautiful; Howard good as Captain Bligh, but Brando is all wrong as Fletcher Christian. Best thing about this version is spectacular score by Bronislaw Kaper. Ultra Panavision 70. ▼

Mutual Appreciation (2006) 110m.  D: Andrew Bujalski. Justin Rice, Rachel Cliff, Andrew Bujalski, Seung-Min Lee, Kevin Micka, Bill Morrison. Deadpan indie about an alternative rock musician who moves to N.Y.C. in search of a gig, stays with an old buddy and his girlfriend, and frets about romance and life. Ultra-ultra low-budget film has some stretches of tedium, but writer/director/editor Bujalski creates an improvisational mood of quiet, gently comic 20-something angst that few films achieve. The characters look, sound, and feel like real human beings. [R] ▼

MVP: Most Valuable Primate (2000-U.S.-Canadian) C-93m. *½ D: Robert Vince. Kevin Zegers, Jaime Renée Smith, Oliver Muirhead, Russell Ferrier, Dave Thomas, Ric Ducommun, Jay Brazeau, Patrick Cranshaw, Bernie, Mac, Louie. Contrived time-filler about a trained chimp who becomes the star player on a minor-league hockey team. This boring AIR BUD on ice may serve as perfect bedtime viewing for young tykes of worn-out parents. Followed by two direct-to-video sequels. [PG] ▼

My American Cousin (1985-Canadian)

C-95m.  D: Sandy Wilson. Margaret Langrick, John Wildman, Richard Donat, Jane Mortifee. Well-acted, nostalgic coming-of-age story set in British Columbia in the summer of 1959, about a young girl's infatuation with her James Dean-like California cousin. Winner of six Genie awards (Canada's Oscar) including Best Picture. Donat is Robert Donat's nephew. Followed by a sequel, AMERICAN BOYFRIENDS. [PG]▼●

My Architect (2003) C-116m. * D: Nathaniel Kahn. The illegitimate son of noted American architect Louis Kahn sets out to learn about his father, who died when the boy was 11. He visits his father's buildings around the world, talks to friends, colleagues (including such admiring architects as Philip Johnson, I.M. Pei, and Frank Gehry), and members of Kahn's "alternate" families. In making such a personal odyssey, the younger Kahn comes up with something much more resonant and universal; a quietly profound and beautiful film about dreams, goals, disappointments, and realities.▼●

My Baby's Daddy (2004) C-86m. BOMB D: Cheryl Dunye. Eddie Griffin, Anthony Anderson, Michael Imperioli, Paula Jai Parker, Joanna Bacalso, Bai Ling, Marsha Thomason, Bobb'e J. Thompson, Method Man, Amy Sedaris, John Amos, Tom "Tiny" Lister, Jr. "Comedy" with alleged heart is story of three buddies (and roommates) whose three girlfriends all become pregnant around the same time. All-too-predictable antics ensue as they grapple with raising infants while still trying to grow up themselves. Griffin also cowrote this time waster. [PG-13]▼●

My Beautiful Laundrette (1985-British) C-98m. ½ D: Stephen Frears. Saeed Jaffrey, Roshan Seth, Daniel Day-Lewis, Gordon Warnecke, Derrick Branche, Shirley Anne Field. Extremely entertaining, perceptive examination of both race relations and the economic state in Britain, centering on a pair of young friends, Omar (Warnecke) and Johnny (Day-Lewis), and what happens when they take over a beat-up laundrette. On-target script by Hanif Kureishi, a Pakistani playwright who resides in England. Originally made for British TV. [R]▼●●

My Best Fiend (1999-German-British) C-95m. ½ D: Werner Herzog. Klaus Kinski starred in many of Werner Herzog's most notable films, but his intensity, ego and near-demented behavior made the productions tough going for everyone; at times the director and star actually plotted to murder each other. Hosting this unique documentary, Herzog revisits the locations of his Kinski films, musing over the actor's bizarre behavior. Funny, insightful, touching and deeply engrossing, it can't really explain Kinski, but it's a grand journey. Claudia Cardinale and Eva Mattes are among those interviewed.▼●

My Best Friend (2006-French) C-94m.  D: Patrice Leconte. Daniel Auteuil, Gary Boon, Julie Gayet, Julie Durand, Henri Garcin, Jacques Mathou, Marie Pillet, Jacques Spiesser. Charming comedy about an antique dealer (Auteuil) who pays more attention to objects than human beings. Challenged by business associates who claim he has no personal life, he claims that he can produce a "best friend" and then desperately tries to find one, settling on talkative, outgoing cab-driver Boon. Super 35. [PG-13]●

My Best Friend Is a Vampire (1988) C-90m. *½ D: Jimmy Huston. Robert Sean Leonard, Evan Mirand, Cheryl Pollak, René Auberjonois, Cecilia Peck, Fannie Flagg, Kenneth Kimmins, David Warner, Paul Wilson. One-joke comedy, in the wake of TEEN WOLF, has a high-school kid transformed into a vampire and trying to cope with it as a fact of life. Solid supporting cast does what it can. [PG]▼●

My Best Friend's Girl (1983-French) C-99m. ½ D: Bertrand Blier. Coluche, Isabelle Huppert, Thierry Lhermitte, Daniel Colas, Francois Perrot. Medium sex comedy with Lhermitte bringing home pick-up Huppert; she moves in, and his best friend (Coluche) falls for her. A familiar Blier theme (the sexual relationship between one woman and two men) is indifferently handled. Panavision.▼

My Best Friend's Girl (2008) C-102m.  D: Howard Deutch. Dane Cook, Kate Hudson, Jason Biggs, Alec Baldwin, Diora Baird, Lizzy Caplan. In the world according to this aggressively foulmouthed but only fitfully funny comedy, any guy who's dumped by his girlfriend can win her back simply by paying Tank (Cook), a smooth-talking rogue, to treat her to the worst date of her life. Complications arise when Tank genuinely falls for the lovely former flame (Hudson) of his best buddy (Biggs). Baldwin steals scenes right and left as Cook's equally swinish college-professor father. Cop-out ending plays like a last-minute improvised compromise. Unrated version runs 112m. [R]●

My Best Friend's Wedding (1997) C-105m.  D: P. J. Hogan. Julia Roberts, Dermot Mulroney, Cameron Diaz, Rupert Everett, Philip Bosco, M. Emmet Walsh, Rachel Griffiths, Carrie Preston, Susan Sullivan, Chris Masterson, Paul Giamatti, Harry Shearer. Roberts and Mulroney are old friends, and former lovers, who have pact to wed at age 28 if they're both still single. When Mulroney springs fiancée Diaz on Julia, she starts to freak out and tries to sabotage the nuptials. Smart and funny romantic comedy (written by Ronald Bass) with Roberts scoring in a tailor-made

role, and Everett stealing every scene he's in as her gay pal. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

My Big Fat Greek Wedding (2002) C-95m. ½ D: Joel Zwick. Nia Vardalos, John Corbett, Michael Constantine, Lainie Kazan, Andrea Martin, Joey Fatone, Gia Carides, Louis Mandylor. Amiable comedy about a Greek-American woman trying to break free of her family's stifling adherence to old-world customs and falling in love with a WASP. You don't have to be Greek to relate to her story, especially with old pros like Constantine and Kazan as her parents. Expansion of Vardalos' one-woman show is slight, predictable, and sometimes broad, but entertaining, and became an unexpected box-office smash. Written by its star. Later a TV series. [PG] ▼●

My Big Fat Independent Movie (2005) C-80m. BOMB D: Philip Zlotorynski. Paget Brewster, Neil Barton, Ashley Head, Eric Hoffman, Brian Krow, Clint Howard; voice of Jason Mewes. Two hit men hook up with a man mistaken for a fellow professional to pull off a "botched robbery" in Las Vegas. SCARY MOVIE-style treatment of independent cinema (PULP FICTION, SWINGERS, etc.) is unfunny, self-indulgent, and a struggle to watch. Brought to you, in part, by the folks at Film Threat. [R] ●

My Blood Runs Cold (1965) 104m. ½ D: William Conrad. Troy Donahue, Joey Heatherton, Barry Sullivan, Jeanette Nolan. Young man thinks girl is long-dead ancestor, and recalls love affair from generations before. Not all that bad, but not worth missing I Love Lucy for, either. Panavision. ●

My Bloody Valentine (1981-Canadian) C-91m. *½ D: George Mihalka. Paul Kelman, Lori Hallier, Neil Affleck, Keith Knight, Alf Humphreys, Cynthia Dale. Another gory HALLOWEEN/FRIDAY THE 13TH clone. Coal miner axes various victims (male as well as female) in the friendly little town of Valentine Bluffs. Ecch. Remade in 2009. [R] ▼●

My Bloody Valentine (2009) C-101m. *½ D: Patrick Lussier. Jensen Ackles, Jaime King, Kerr Smith, Betsy Rue, Tom Atkins, Kevin Tighe. Remake of notorious 1981 slasher flick relied on 3-D gimmickry to increase the shock value of its full-bore gore in theatrical release. In 2-D it's just a routine reprise of a low-budget horror opus that wasn't very good to begin with. While a masked killer fatally applies a pickaxe to various unfortunates in a small mining town, local sheriff Smith suspects a recently returned mining-company heir (Ackles), the ex-boyfriend of the sheriff's wife (King), is behind the killing spree. Rue deserves some sort of good sport prize for remaining feisty and formidable during one of the longest displays of gratuitous nudity in the history of horror movies. Released to theaters as MY BLOODY VALENTINE 3D. [R] ●

My Blueberry Nights (2008-Hong Kong-French) C-90m. *½ D: Wong Kar Wai. Norah Jones, Jude Law, Rachel Weisz, David Strathairn, Natalie Portman, Frankie Faison, Chan Marshall. Jones is a sweet, sensitive young woman in N.Y.C. with romantic problems who makes a friend in cafe owner Law—the dreamiest, most unlikely counter man in all of Manhattan. Balance of film takes place in Memphis and out West, with Jones on a personal, solo odyssey to . . . nowhere. Good cast is wasted; jazz-pop sensation Jones is all too obviously an acting tyro. Inauspicious English-language debut for the noted Hong Kong filmmaker, for whom style often trumps story. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

My Blue Heaven (1950) C-96m. ½ D: Henry Koster. Betty Grable, Dan Dailey, David Wayne, Jane Wyatt, Mitzey Gaynor, Una Merkel. Pleasing miscmedy with Grable and Dailey as radio stars who try to adopt a child. ●

My Blue Heaven (1990) C-95m.  D: Herbert Ross. Steve Martin, Rick Moranis, Joan Cusack, Melanie Mayron, Bill Irwin, Carol Kane, William Hickey, Deborah Rush, Daniel Stern, Ed Lauter, Julie Bovasso, Colleen Camp. Lightweight but entertaining comedy about an Italian hood from N.Y.C. who's moved to suburban California as part of the FBI's witness protection program, where he's watched over by straight-arrow G-man Moranis. No fireworks, but does have some good laughs, and enjoyable performances. Written by Nora Ephron. [PG-13] ▼●●

My Bodyguard (1980) C-96m. ½ D: Tony Bill. Chris Makepeace, Adam Baldwin, Martin Mull, Ruth Gordon, Matt Dillon, John Houseman, Joan Cusack, Craig Richard Nelson. Pleasant little film about high-school boy who hires a behemoth classmate to protect him from toughs at school. Totally likable but ultimately simplistic comedy-drama. Filmed in and around Chicago; look for Tim Kazurinsky, George Wendt, and Jennifer Beals as a classmate. Bill's directorial debut. [PG] ▼●

My Boss's Daughter (2003) C-86m. BOMB D: David Zucker. Ashton Kutcher, Tara Reid, Jeffrey Tambor, Andy Richter, Michael Madsen, Terence Stamp, Jon Abrahams, David Koehn, Carmen Electra, Molly Shannon, Kenan Thompson. Smitten with the title girl of his dreams (Reid), Kutcher is trapped into house-sitting for her wealthy father, a clean-freak who warns him against letting the inevitable happen: the thorough trashing of the family mansion. The leads have no chemistry in this trendily crude comedy that makes a short running time seem longer than the uncut GREED. This sat on the shelf for a couple of years before being dumped on the market. R-rated version also available. [PG-13]▼

My Boyfriend's Back (1993) C-84m. *½ D: Bob Balaban. Andrew Lowery, Traci Lind, Danny Zorn, Edward Herrmann, Mary Beth Hurt, Matthew Fox, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Austin Pendleton, Cloris Leachman, Jay O. Sanders, Paul Dooley, Bob Dishy, Paxton Whitehead, Renée Zellweger. Terminally moronic comedy about a teen (Lowery) who is killed and comes back to life to take pretty Lind to the prom. Easy-to-please 13-year-olds might like it; others, beware. Talented cast is wasted. [PG-13]▼

My Boys Are Good Boys (1978) C-90m. *½ D: Bethel Buckalew. Ralph Meeker, Ida Lupino, Lloyd Nolan, David F. Doyle, Sean T. Roche. Odd little film mixes 1940s approach to juvenile delinquency with far-fetched story of teenagers robbing armored car. [PG]▼

My Brilliant Career (1979-Australian) C-101m. ½ D: Gillian Armstrong. Judy Davis, Sam Neill, Wendy Hughes, Robert Grubb, Max Cullen, Pat Kennedy. Excellent portrait of a headstrong young woman determined to live a life of independent and intelligent pursuits in turn-of-the-century Australia. Armstrong's eye for detail and Davis' performance dominate this fine import, based on a true story. [G]▼

My Brother is an Only Child (2007-Italian-French) C-108m.  D: Daniele Luchetti. Elio Germano, Riccardo Scamarcio, Diane Fleri, Angela Finocchiaro, Alba Rohrwacher, Vittorio Emanuele Propizio. Absorbing tale of two brothers' relationship through the tumultuous 1960s and '70s. The older sibling (Scamarcio) is a Communist agitator, while the younger one (Germano) aligns himself—at first—with old-line Fascists. They also come to care for the same woman. From raucously funny family scenes to highly dramatic events, the film remains more personal than political, which is why it's so affecting. Screenplay by Luchetti and the team that wrote THE BEST OF YOUTH, Sandro Petraglia and Stefano Rulli.▶

My Brother's Wedding (1983) C-118m.  D: Charles Burnett. Everett Silas, Jessie Holmes, Gaye Shannon-Burnett, Ronnie Bell, Dennis Kemper, Sally Easter. Impressive, knowing tragicomedy from the talented director of KILLER OF SHEEP, about a 30-year-old product of the Watts ghetto who is pleased with his lot in life and despises his lawyer brother's upward mobility. Now he reluctantly agrees to be best man at his brother's nuptials. Impressively captures the urban black experience. 2007 director's cut runs 81m.▶

nold, Charlie Ruggles, Spring Byington. Gimmick comedy that's fun at the start but drags to slow finish.

My Chauffeur (1986) C-97m.  D: David Beard. Deborah Foreman, Sam Jones, E.G. Marshall, Sean McClory, Howard Hesseman. Heavily male chauvinist chauffeur service has to contend not only with Foreman's hiring, but her emergence as the most popular employee on the staff. Strange mix of 30s screwball with today's cruder comedies doesn't really come off, yet is enough of a curiosity to keep you watching. [R]▼●●

My Country, My Country (2006) C-90m. ½ D: Laura Poitras. Heartrending (and eye-opening) documentary follows a civic-minded humanitarian Sunni doctor during the months leading up to the January 2005 elections in Iraq. Dr. Riyadh feels it is his obligation to run for office, to serve his community and his country, but the inherent danger frightens his family, and the actions of the U.S. forces cause nothing but anger and frustration. An intimate look at the ripple effect of the American occupation on the Iraqi people. Originally aired on PBS' series P.O.V.▶

My Cousin Rachel (1952) 98m.  D: Henry Koster. Olivia de Havilland, Richard Burton, Audrey Dalton, John Sutton, Ronald Squire. Successful filmization of Daphne du Maurier mystery, with Burton (in his American debut) trying to discover if de Havilland is guilty or innocent of murder and intrigue.

My Cousin Vinny (1992) C-119m. ½ D: Jonathan Lynn. Joe Pesci, Ralph Macchio, Marisa Tomei, Mitchell Whitfield, Fred Gwynne, Lane Smith, Austin Pendleton, Bruce McGill. Very likable (if much too lackadaisical) comedy about Brooklyn "lawyer" Pesci's attempt to defend his innocent cousin (Macchio) and a friend on a murder charge in the Deep South. Pesci is perfect in a tailor-made part, and Tomei (an Oscar-winning performance) is a delight to watch as his girlfriend. But there's no reason for this simple comedy to take so long to get where it's going. [R]▼●●

My Darling Clementine (1946) 97m. * D: John Ford. Henry Fonda, Linda Darnell, Victor Mature, Walter Brennan, Cathy Downs, Tim Holt, Ward Bond, Alan Mowbray, John Ireland, Jane Darwell, Grant Withers, J. Farrell MacDonald. Beautifully directed, low-key Western about Wyatt Earp (Fonda) and Doc Holliday (Mature), leading to inevitable gunfight at O.K. Corral. Full of wonderful details and vignettes; exquisitely photographed by Joseph P. MacDonald. One of director Ford's finest films, and an American classic. Screenplay by Samuel G. Engel and Winston Miller, from a story by Sam Hellman. Based on a book by Stuart N.

Lake. Remake of FRONTIER MARSHAL (1939). In 1994 an archival print was found of the 104m. preview version, containing a number of minor differences and a slightly different finale. ▼●●

My Darling Shiksa SEE: Over the Brooklyn Bridge

My Dear Secretary (1948) 94m. ½ D: Charles Martin. Laraine Day, Kirk Douglas, Keenan Wynn, Helen Walker, Rudy Vallee, Florence Bates, Alan Mowbray. Entertaining (if trivial) comedy of wannabe writer Day hiring on as secretary to best-selling author Douglas. Wynn steals the show as Douglas' comical pal. ▼●

My Demon Lover (1987) C-86m.  D: Charles Loyalist. Scott Valentine, Michelle Little, Arnold Johnson, Gina Gallego, Robert Trebor. Trendy horror comedy has Valentine turning into a variety of monsters whenever he becomes sexually aroused, with Little the modern girl who tries to save him. Cast, including knockout beauty Gallego, is far better than the special effects-oriented material would indicate. [PG-13] ▼●

My Dinner With Andre (1981) C-110m. ½ D: Louis Malle. Andre Gregory, Wallace Shawn. Playwright-actor Shawn has dinner with his old friend, theater director Gregory, who's been having a series of strange life experiences; they talk about them and their philosophies for nearly two hours. A daring and unique film, written by its two principals, with moments of insight, drama, and hilarity—but not enough to sustain a feature-length film. [PG] ▼●●

My Dog Skip (2000) C-95m.  D: Jay Russell. Frankie Muniz, Diane Lane, Kevin Bacon, Luke Wilson, Caitlin Wachs, Bradley Coryell, Clint Howard; narrated by Harry Connick, Jr. Sweet (but not cloying) family film based on Mississippi-born author Willie Morris' memoir of growing up in the 1940s with his beloved English fox terrier, who helps see him through childhood, boyhood, adolescence and young manhood. Warm and winning for grownups as well as children . . . but have a handkerchief handy! [PG] ▼●●

My Dream Is Yours (1949) C-101m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Jack Carson, Doris Day, Lee Bowman, Adolphe Menjou, Eve Arden. Carson makes Day a radio star in standard music-comedy; highlights are Bugs Bunny dream sequence, Edgar Kennedy's performance as Day's uncle. Remake of TWENTY MILLION SWEETHEARTS, with Doris stepping into Dick Powell's role (and reprising the 1934 hit "I'll String Along With You"). ▼●●

tion of Lerner and Loewe's enchanting musical from Shaw's PYGMALION, with Prof. Henry Higgins (Harrison) transforming guttersnipe Hepburn into regal lady, to win a bet. Sumptuously filmed, with "The Rain in Spain," Harrison's soliloquys among highlights. Eight Oscars include Picture, Actor, Director, Cinematography (Harry Stradling), Costumes (Cecil Beaton), Score Adaptation (Andre Previn), Art Direction (Beaton and Gene Allen). Super Panavision 70. ▼●●

My Family/Mi Familia (1995) C-128m.  D: Gregory Nava. Jimmy Smits, Esai Morales, Edward James Olmos, Eduardo Lopez Rojas, Jenny Gago, Elpidia Carrillo, Lupe Ontiveros, Jacob Vargas, Jennifer Lopez, Maria Canals, Leon Singer, Michael De Lorenzo, Jonathan Hernandez, Constance Marie, Mary Steenburgen, Scott Bakula, DeDee Pfeiffer. A Mexican-American writer (Olmos) looks back at his family's colorful history since immigrating to L.A. in the 1920s. Evocative, well-cast, multi-generational saga indulges in melodrama at times, but never seems false, and redeems itself with a healthy sense of humor. Written by Nava and producer Anna Thomas, who also made EL NORTE. [R] ▼●●

My Father Is Coming (1991-German) C-82m.  D: Monika Treut. Alfred Edel, Shelley Kastner, Mary Lou Gräulau, David Bronstein, Michael Masee, Annie Sprinkle, Fakir Musafar. Engrossing low-budget drama of German-born Kastner, who's struggling to find someone to love (whether it be male or female), and make it as an actress in N.Y.C.; her father's visit proves to be an awakening for both parent and child. In its best moments, an astute commentary on the importance of accepting who you are, as well as the differences in others. Notable for the appearances of porn star/performance artist Annie Sprinkle and "modern primitive" Fakir Musafar (who must be seen to be believed). ▼

My Father's Glory (1990-French) C-110m. ½ D: Yves Robert. Philippe Caubere, Nathalie Roussel, Didier Pain, Therese Liotard, Julien Caimaca. Richly rewarding reminiscence, set in rural France at the turn of the century, chronicling the life of a precocious little boy and his family and a summer trip to Provence, where the child becomes immersed in the country and village life. Based on Marcel Pagnol's childhood memoirs. This is story-telling, and moviemaking, of the first order. The story continues in MY MOTHER'S CASTLE. [G] ▼●

My Father The Hero (1994) C-90m.  D: Steve Miner. Gérard Depardieu, Katherine Heigl, Dalton James, Lauren Hutton, Faith Prince, Stephen Tobolowsky, Ann

Hearn, Robyn Peterson, Frank Renzulli. Longtime absentee father takes his resentful 14-year-old daughter on a Caribbean vacation, where (to impress potential suitors) she spins a web of lies—starting with the “fact” that he’s not her father, but her lover. Depardieu recreates his role from the 1991 French film MON PÈRE, CE HÉROS, and brings his considerable charisma and credibility to a potentially silly comedy, making it a lot of fun. [PG] ▼●●

My Favorite Blonde (1942) 78m.  D: Sidney Lanfield. Bob Hope, Madeleine Carroll, Gale Sondergaard, George Zucco, Victor Varconi. Bob and his trained penguin become sitting ducks when spy Madeleine uses them to help deliver secret orders; very funny WW2 Hope vehicle. ▼●

My Favorite Brunette (1947) 87m.  D: Elliott Nugent. Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour, Peter Lorre, Lon Chaney, John Hoyt, Reginald Denny. Better-than-usual Hope nonsense with Bob as a photographer mixed up with mobsters; Lorre and Chaney add authenticity. Two very funny surprise cameos at beginning and end of film. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

My Favorite Martian (1999) C-93m.  D: Donald Petrie. Christopher Lloyd, Jeff Daniels, Elizabeth Hurley, Daryl Hannah, Wallace Shawn, Christine Ebersole, Michael Lerner, Ray Walston. Strictly juvenile update of the 1960s TV sitcom, with Lloyd as the Martian who lands on Earth and moves in with good-natured lunthead Daniels, a TV news producer. Broad, sometimes crass special-effects comedy for undemanding kids. The presence of Walston (from the original show) may bring a smile to those who remember the series. An unbilled Wayne Knight provides the voice of the Suit. [PG] ▼●●

My Favorite Season SEE Ma Saison Préférée

My Favorite Spy (1951) 93m.  D: Norman Z. McLeod. Bob Hope, Hedy Lamarr, Francis L. Sullivan, Mike Mazurki, John Archer, Iris Adrian, Arnold Moss. Bob resembles murdered spy, finds himself thrust into international intrigue. Fast-moving fun, with glamorous Hedy aiding Bob on all counts.

My Favorite Wife (1940) 88m.  D: Garson Kanin. Cary Grant, Irene Dunne, Gail Patrick, Randolph Scott, Ann Shoemaker, Scotty Beckett, Donald MacBride. Dunne, supposedly dead, returns to U.S. to find hubby Grant remarried to Patrick, in familiar but witty marital mixup, re-made as MOVE OVER, DARLING. Inspired by Enoch Arden; Grant’s character even has the same last name. Produced and co-written (with Sam and Bella Spewack) by Leo McCarey. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

My Favorite Year (1982) C-92m.  D:

Richard Benjamin. Peter O’Toole, Mark Linn-Baker, Jessica Harper, Joseph Bologna, Bill Macy, Lainie Kazan, Anne DeSalvo, Lou Jacobi, Adolph Green, George Wyner, Selma Diamond, Cameron Mitchell. Enjoyable comedy about a young writer on TV’s top comedy show in 1954 who’s given the job of chaperoning that week’s guest star, screen swashbuckler and off-screen carouser Alan Swann (O’Toole, in a tailor-made role). Shifts gears, and focus, a bit too often, but has many good moments, and likable performances (including Bologna as Sid Caesar-ish TV star). The woman O’Toole dances with in night club is 1930s leading lady Gloria Stuart. Benjamin’s directorial debut. Musicalized on Broadway a decade later (also with Kazan). [PG] ▼●●

My Fellow Americans (1996) C-101m.  D: Peter Segal. Jack Lemmon, James Garner, Dan Aykroyd, Lauren Bacall, John Heard, Bradley Whitford, Sela Ward, Wilford Brimley, Esther Rolle. Two ex-presidents of the U.S.—longtime enemies—are forced to work together to uncover a plot to blame one of them for a dirty deal conducted by the current head of state. On the lam and left to their own devices, they have to deal with ordinary citizens for the first time in years. Breezy comedy, short on subtlety and long on punchlines and occasional bathroom humor . . . but it works, thanks to the charisma and professionalism of Lemmon and Garner. Bacall (as Lemmon’s wife) has almost nothing to do. [PG-13] ▼●●

My First Mister (2001) C-109m. ½ D: Christine Lahti. Leelee Sobieski, Albert Brooks, Desmond Harrington, Carol Kane, Mary Kay Place, John Goodman, Michael McKean, Rutanya Alda. A suicidal teen-aged girl who hates her life, and especially hates her parents, is unexpectedly attracted to a schlumpy middle-aged clothing salesman. Soon, she is affecting his outlook on life as much as he is hers. A wonderfully fresh comedy-drama written by Jill Franklyn, with great performances by the two stars. An impressive feature directing debut for Lahti. Panavision. [R] ▼●

My First Wife (1984-Australian) C-95m. ½ D: Paul Cox. John Hargreaves, Wendy Hughes, Lucy Angwin, Anna Jemison, David Cameron. Painful, provocative drama about self-centered man who literally goes crazy when his wife leaves him after 10 years. Aching real, superbly acted, but slow and talky at times. Cox coscripted with Bob Ellis, based on his own experiences. ▼

My Foolish Heart (1949) 98m.  D: Mark Robson. Dana Andrews, Susan Hayward, Kent Smith, Lois Wheeler, Jessie Royce Landis, Robert Keith, Gigi Perreau. Deftly handled sentimental WW2 romance tale between soldier Andrews and Hayward; Victor Young’s lovely theme helps. Based on J. D. Salinger’s story “Uncle Wiggily in Connecticut," the only one of the author's works ever adapted to film. ▼●

My Forbidden Past (1951) 81m. ½ D: Robert Stevenson. Robert Mitchum, Ava Gardner, Melvyn Douglas, Janis Carter. Silly tripe about Gardner, who's got a skeleton in her family closet, seeking revenge on Mitchum for jilting her. Fast-moving, watchable nonsense set in antebellum New Orleans. ▼

My Friend Flicka (1943) C-89m.  D: Harold Schuster. Roddy McDowall, Preston Foster, Rita Johnson, Jeff Corey, James Bell. Sentimental story of boy who loves rebellious horse; nicely done, beautifully filmed in color. Followed by sequel THUNDERHEAD, SON OF FLICKA and a TV series. Remade in 2006 as FLICKA. ▼●

My Friend Irma (1949) 103m.  D: George Marshall. Marie Wilson, John Lund, Diana Lynn, Don DeFore, Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis, Hans Conried. Based on radio series, movie concerns Wilson in title role as dumb blonde, Lynn as her level-headed pal, encountering wacky Martin and Lewis in their film debut. Followed by a sequel. Later a TV series. ▼●●

My Friend Irma Goes West (1950) 90m. ½ D: Hal Walker. John Lund, Marie Wilson, Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis, Corinne Calvet, Diana Lynn, Lloyd Corrigan, Don Porter, Kenneth Tobey. Daffy Irma (Wilson) and pals join Martin and Lewis on their trek to Hollywood. ●

My Gal Sal (1942) C-103m.  D: Irving Cummings. Rita Hayworth, Victor Mature, John Sutton, Carole Landis, James Gleason, Phil Silvers, Mona Maris, Walter Catlett. Nostalgic Gay 90s musical about songwriter Paul Dresser (Mature) in love with beautiful singer Hayworth. Includes Dresser's songs, such as title tune and other old-time numbers. The two stars (and knockout Technicolor) really put this one across. That's co-choreographer Hermes Pan featured with Rita in the "Gay White Way" number. Based on the story My Brother Paul by Theodore Dreiser.

My Geisha (1962) C-120m. ½ D: Jack Cardiff. Shirley MacLaine, Yves Montand, Edward G. Robinson, Bob Cummings, Yoko Tani. Occasionally amusing comedy. MacLaine is movie star who tries the hard way to convince husband-director Montand that she's right for his movie. Loosely based on MacLaine's relationship with husband Steve Parker (who produced the film). Filmed in Japan. Technirama. ▼●●

My Giant (1998) C-97m. ½ D: Michael Lehmann. Billy Crystal, Gheorghe Muresan, Kathleen Quinlan, Joanna Pacula, Zane Carney, Jere Burns, Dan Castellaneta, Harold Gould, Doris Roberts, Lorna Luft, Estelle Harris, Steven Seagal. Ne'er-do-well showbiz agent chances to meet a 7'7" giant in Romania—and sees in him a way to resurrect his career and win back his estranged wife and

kid. Sweet and amusing as long as Muresan's stomping around but the film turns borderline mawkish toward the end. Crystal is likeable as always, and then real-life Washington Wizards center Muresan is winning in the title role. That's Crystal's daughter Lindsay as a put-upon production assistant. [PG-13] ▼●●

My Girl (1991) C-102m. ½ D: Howard Zieff. Dan Aykroyd, Jamie Lee Curtis, Macaulay Culkin, Anna Chlumsky, Richard Masur, Griffin Dunne, Ann Nelson, Peter Michael Goetz, Tom Villard, Ray Buktenica. Likeable if soft-centered tale of an 11-year-old girl crying for attention from her widowed father, a mortician who doesn't know how to reach out to his precocious daughter. Bittersweet comedy touches on love, friendship, puberty, and most of all, death, but its telling moments are muted by an overall air of predictability. Appealing cast sparked by Chlumsky's mature performance. Followed by a Culkin-less sequel. [PG] ▼●●

My Girl 2 (1994) C-99m. ½ D: Howard Zieff. Dan Aykroyd, Jamie Lee Curtis, Anna Chlumsky, Austin O'Brien, Richard Masur, Christine Ebersole, John David Souther, Angeline Ball, Aubrey Morris, Gerrit Graham, Ben Stein, Richard Beymer, George D. Wallace. Budding teenager Chlumsky travels to L.A. (where her uncle lives) to try and learn something about her mother, who died giving birth to her; her companion on this odyssey is the son of her uncle's girlfriend. Bland but likeable fodder aimed squarely at young viewers. [PG] ▼●●

My Girlfriend's Boyfriend SEE: Boyfriends and Girlfriends

My Heroes Have Always Been Cowboys (1991) C-106m. ½ D: Stuart Rosenberg. Scott Glenn, Kate Capshaw, Ben Johnson, Balthazar Getty, Tess Harper, Gary Busey, Mickey Rooney, Clarence Williams III, Dub Taylor, Clu Gulager, Dennis Fimple. Aging collection of confusions (Glenn) comes home from the rodeo circuit to care for his father, only to battle sis and her husband, who'd just as soon the old man be put away. If you've seen Sam Peckinpah's sublime JUNIOR BONNER (which also featured Johnson) this has got to ring a bit hollow. Capable cast looks good in blue jeans, but cowpie cinema has been better served. [PG] ▼●●

My Kid Could Paint That (2007) C-84m.  D: Amir Bar-Lev. Fascinating documentary about Marla Olmstead, a 4-year-old girl whose abstract paintings became the hit of the New York art world until questions surfaced about their authenticity. What begins as an amusing look at modern art becomes an unsettling examination of the nature of documentary filmmaking itself, unintended by director Bar-Lev, who found himself caught between his relationship with the Olmstead family and the facts he felt obliged to pursue. The film allows the viewer to draw his own conclusions, and raises questions that are troubling and well worth considering. [PG-13]▼

D: Jim Sheridan. Daniel Day-Lewis, Brenda Fricker. Ray McAnally, Hugh O'Conor, Fiona Shaw, Cyril Cusack, Adrian Dunbar, Ruth McCabe, Alison Whelan. Exhilarating film with Day-Lewis in a tour de force as Christy Brown, feisty Irish artist-writer who was born with cerebral palsy. This is no disease-of-the-week weeper; it's an intensely moving story with just the right touches of humor, warmth, and poignancy. Fricker and McAnally are ideal as Christy's parents, and O'Conor is absolutely remarkable as the young Christy. Sheridan coscripted (with Shane Connaughton) from Brown's autobiography. Lovely score by Elmer Bernstein. Both Day-Lewis and Fricker won Oscars for their performances. [R]▼

My Life (1993) C-112m. ½ D: Bruce Joel Rubin. Michael Keaton, Nicole Kidman, Haing S. Ngor, Bradley Whitford, Queen Latifah, Michael Constantine, Rebecca Schull, Mark Lowenthal, Lee Garlington, Toni Sawyer. Successful ad executive, whose wife is pregnant, learns he's dying and doesn't know how to deal with the unfinished business in his life (particularly his feelings of anger toward his family) or the fact that he may never see his child. Many truthful and poignant moments in this unabashed tearjerker, but contrivances ultimately take over—especially toward the finale. Directing debut for screenwriter Rubin (the screenwriter of another misty-eyed Hollywood concoction, GHOST). [PG-13]▼

My Life and Times with Antonin Artaud (1994-French) 93m. * D: Gérard Mordillat. Sami Frey, Marc Barbé, Julie Jézéquel, Valerie Jeannet, Clotilde de Baysse, Charlotte Valandrey. Slow-moving fiction set in 1946, depicting the curious friendship between Jacques Prevel (Barbé), an eager, starving young poet, and Artaud (Frey), the brilliant but tortured, self-involved, and drug-addicted writer/actor/intellectual who has just been released from an asylum. A real downer, of interest mainly to aficionados of Artaud. Crisply filmed in b&w; also in 1993, Mordillat codirected a companion documentary, THE TRUE STORY OF ARTAUD THE MOMO.▼

My Life as a Dog (1985-Swedish) C-101m.  D: Lasse Hallström. Anton Glanzelius, Tomas von Brömssen, Anki Liden, Melinda Kinnaman, Kicki Rundgren, Ing-mari Carlsson. Warm-hearted look at the tumultuous life of an irrepressibly mischievous 12-year-old boy who's shipped off to live with relatives in a rural village in 1950s Sweden. Both comedic and poignant, this is ultimately an honest depiction of the often confusing nature of childhood. Glanzelius is excellent in the lead; based on an autobiographical novel by Reidar Jönsson. Later a cable-TV series. ▼

My Life's in Turnaround (1994) C-84m. *½ D: Eric Schaeffer, Donal Lardner Ward. Eric Schaeffer, Donal Lardner Ward, Lisa Gerstein, Dana Wheeler Nicholson, Debra Klein, Sheila Jaffe, John Dore, John Sayles, Martha Plimpton, Phoebe Cates, Casey Siemaszko. Tired inside-Hollywood (or fringes-of-Hollywood) comedy might elicit a few approving snorts from the rarefied audience for which it's intended. Aspiring filmmakers exploit any presumed break that comes their way, be it a taxicab encounter with Phoebe Cates or a restaurant encounter with Martha Plimpton. Someone should have put this in turnaround.▼

My Life So Far (1999-English-Scottish) C-93m.  D: Hugh Hudson. Colin Firth, Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, Malcolm McDowell, Rosemary Harris, Irène Jacob, Robert Norman, Tcheky Karyo, Brendan Gleeson. Delightful memoir of growing up in an eccentric family, set in the Scottish highlands during the 1920s and '30s. Firth is a dreamer/inventor, Mastrantonio his patient wife, McDowell his scheming man-about-town brother who has no patience for Firth's peccadilloes, and Jacob the alluring Frenchwoman who captures the imagination of every male in the household. Spirited, funny, and handsomely made. Based on the book Son of Adam by Sir Denis Forman. [PG-13]▼

My Life to Live (1963-French) 85m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Anna Karina, Saddy Rebbot, Andre S. Labarthe, Gylaine Schlumberger. Complex, fascinating 12-chapter portrait of a prostitute (Karina, who was then wed to Godard), told in documentary style. Probing look at the manner in which women and men view one another—and a celluloid valentine to Karina, upon whose mere presence Godard seems to be transfixed. Aka VIVRE SA VIE. ▼

My Life With Caroline (1941) 81m. ½ D: Lewis Milestone. Ronald Colman, Anna Lee, Charles Winninger, Reginald Gardner, Gilbert Roland. Colman's charm sustains this frothy comedy of man suspecting his wife of having a lover.

My Life Without Me (2003-Spanish-Canadian) C-106m.  D: Isabel Coixet. Sarah Polley, Scott Speedman, Deborah Harry, Mark Ruffalo, Leonor Watling, Amanda Plummer, Julian Richings, Maria de Medeiros. A trailer-dwelling mom in her early '20s (Polley) learns that she has incurable cancer. She makes a list of things she wants to accomplish in her remaining time on earth, including preparing her children for her absence and having an affair—in this case, with a Laundromat acquaintance (Ruffalo). Polley nips the potential for any mawkish excess, but modestly moving drama isn't a one-woman show. Richings is a standout as a shy, gentle doctor mortified by his bad-news plight. Adapted by the director from a short story by Nanci Kincaid. Alfred Molina appears unbilled. [R] ▼

My Little Chickadee (1940) 83m. ½ D: Edward Cline. Mae West, W. C. Fields, Joseph Calleia, Dick Foran, Ruth Donnelly, Margaret Hamilton, Donald Meek. Team of West and Fields out West is good, but should have been funnier; W. C.'s saloon scenes are notable. The two stars also wrote screenplay. ▼

My Little Girl (1986) C-113m.  D: Connie Kaiserman. Mary Stuart Masterson, James Earl Jones, Geraldine Page, Pamela Payton Wright, Anne Meara, Peter Gallagher, Page Hannah, Erika Alexander, Traci Lin, Jordan Charney, Jennifer Lopez. Subtle, perceptive account of affluent, romantic, naive young Masterson, who volunteers to work one summer in a children's detention center. Extremely well played by all, with a special nod to Alexander and Lin (as a pair of troubled, abused girls). [R] ▼

My Little Pony (1986) C-89m.  D: Michael Joens. Voices of Danny DeVito, Madeline Kahn, Tony Randall, Cloris Leachman, Rhea Pearlman. Animated fantasy pits the good Little Ponies against an evil witch. Highlight is an encounter with the Smooze, an evergrowing mass of living lava—a good idea hampered by bad animation. Too “cute” for anyone over the age of 7. Followed by a TV series. [G] ▼

My Man Adam (1985) C-84m.  D: Roger L. Simon. Raphael Sbarge, Page Hannah, Veronica Cartwright, Larry B. Scott, Dave Thomas, Charlie Barnett, Austin Pendleton. Yet another youth wish-fulfillment comedy, done as a teen version of UP THE SANDBOX. Sbarge is a pizza delivery boy who fantasizes about dreamgirl Hannah (Daryl's redheaded sister, in her first starring role) and becomes involved in a real-life murder adventure. Barely released film is pleasant but uneventful. [R] ▼

My Man and I (1952) 99m. ½ D: William A. Wellman. Shelley Winters, Ricardo Montalban, Wendell Corey, Claire Trevor, Robert Burton, Jack Elam. Interesting curio about cheerful, kindly Mexican-born Montalban, who despite his trials and struggles is fiercely proud of his American citizenship.

My Man Godfrey (1936) 95m. ½ D: Gregory La Cava. William Powell, Carole Lombard, Gail Patrick, Alice Brady, Eugene Pallette, Alan Mowbray, Mischa Auer, Franklin Pangborn. Delightful romp with

Lombard and crazy household hiring Powell as butler thinking he's a tramp who needs a job; he teaches them that money isn't everything. Auer is impressive as starving artist, sheltered by patroness Brady. But Pallette—as harried head of household—has some of the best lines. Screenplay by Morrie Ryskind and Eric Hatch, from Hatch's novel. Jane Wyman is an extra in the party scene. Classic screwball comedy; remade in 1957. ▼

My Man Godfrey (1957) C-92m. ½ D: Henry Koster. June Allyson, David Niven, Martha Hyer, Eva Gabor, Jeff Donnell. Shallow compared to original, but on its own a harmless comedy of rich girl Allyson finding life's truths from butler Niven. CinemaScope. ▼

My Mom's New Boyfriend (2008) C-97m.  D: George Gallo. Antonia Banderas, Meg Ryan, Colin Hanks, Selma Blair, Trevor Morgan, John Valdetero, Eli Danker, Keith David, Enrico Colantoni, Marco St. John. Flatfooted comedy casts a willing Ryan as Hanks' fat, depressed mother who—while he's gone, training as an FBI agent—slims down and rejuvenates her life. But when he brings his fiancée home he discovers that his now-hot mom is being wooed by a slick art thief (Banderas), who's a wanted man. This might have played better as a broad farce; as it is it just lies there. Released direct to DVD. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

My Mother's Castle (1990-French) C-98m.  D: Yves Robert. Julien Caimaca, Philippe Caubere, Nathalie Roussel, Didier Pain, Therese Liotard. Sweet, warm continuation of the story which begins in MY FATHER'S GLORY. Here, young Marcel further enjoys weekend family outings to his beloved Provence. Based on Marcel Pagnol's childhood memoirs; a notch below the first film, but still most worthwhile (and must-viewing in tandem with its predecessor, as well as with Claude Berri's JEAN DE FLORETTE and MANON OF THE SPRING). ▼

My Name is Joe (1998-British-German) C-105m. ½ D: Ken Loach. Peter Mullan, Louise Goodall, Gary Lewis, Lorraine McIntosh, David McKay, Anne-Marie Kennedy, David Hayman, Scott Hannah. Likable loser Mullan is a recovering alcoholic eking out a life in Glasgow, Scotland. Mullan's tentative romance with health-care worker Goodall is worth a look . . . and more engaging than the melodramatic turn the story takes involving local thugs. [R] ▼

My Name Is John SEE: Legend of Hill-billy John, The

My Name Is Julia Ross (1945) 65m.  D: Joseph H. Lewis. Nina Foch, Dame May Whitty, George Macready, Roland Varno, Anita Bolster, Doris Lloyd. An unsuspecting young woman answers a London newspaper ad for a job and winds up the prisoner of a crazy family. Often cited as a model B movie, it does go a long way on a low budget, though it's a bit more obvious now than it must have been in 1945. Foch's performance is still a standout. Later the inspiration for DEAD OF WINTER.

My Name Is Nobody (1973-Italian-French-German) C-115m.  D: Tonino Valerii. Henry Fonda, Terence Hill, Jean Martin, Leo Gordon, R. G. Armstrong, Steve Kanaly, Geoffrey Lewis. Underrated, enjoyable if overlong Western spoof with Hill as an easygoing gunman who worships aging Fonda, a gunfighter who wants to retire. Filmed in the U.S. and Spain; produced by Sergio Leone. Released in Italy at 130m. Panavision. [PG]▼

My Neighbor Totoro (1988-Japanese) C-86m.  D: Hayao Miyazaki. Voices of Lisa Michaelson, Cheryl Chase, Greg Snegoff, Natalie Core, Kenneth Hartman. Gentle, infectious animated tale of two young sisters in rural Japan and their magical adventures with Totoro, a giant furry forest spirit. Beautiful art direction and excellent English language dubbing raise this a couple of notches above other Japanimation imports. Ideal for small fry and parents; older kids may chafe at the story's leisurely pace. Wait till you see the 12-legged cat-bus! Story and script by Miyazaki, the "Walt Disney of Japan." Released in U.S. in 1993. [G]▼

My New Gun (1992) C-99m. ½ D: Stacy Cochran. Diane Lane, James LeGros, Stephen Collins, Tess Harper, Bill Raymond, Bruce Altman, Maddie Corman, Natasha Lyonne, Philip Seymour Hoffman. Deadpan comedy about a quietly put-upon suburban housewife whose life takes unexpected turns when her loutish husband insists on buying her a .38 pistol. Some amusing moments and wry performances, but the film seems a bit undernourished. Feature debut for writer-director Cochran. [R]▼

My New Partner (1984-French) C-106m. ½ D: Claude Zidi. Philippe Noiret, Thierry Lhermitte, Regine, Grace de Capitani, Claude Brosset. So-so comedy-drama about corrupt veteran cop Noiret, and how he responds when teamed with by-the-book rookie Lhermitte. Noiret is fine as always, but the film is strictly standard (despite its great popularity in France and its Best Picture/Director César awards). Followed by a sequel. [R]▼

My New Partner 2 (1990-French) C-107m. ½ D: Claude Zidi. Philippe Noiret, Thierry Lhermitte, Guy Marchand, Line Renaud, Grace de Capitani, Michel Aumont, Jean-Pierre Castaldi, Jean-Claude Brialy. Intricately plotted sequel finds the amiably corrupt French cops suspended from the force and plotting to oust their replacements, who turn out to be even more corrupt than they were! Breezy farce deals frivolously with such serious issues as police brutality, but has several amusing sequences and the comic chemistry of its stars. Not released in the U.S. until 1997. Aka MY NEW PARTNER AT THE RACES.

My Night at Maud's (1969-French) 105m.  D: Eric Rohmer. Jean-Louis Trintignant, Françoise Fabian, Marie-Christine Barrault, Antoine Vitez. No. 3 of Rohmer's "Six Moral Tales" is most intellectual, with Trintignant as moral Catholic man infatuated with woman completely unlike himself. Talky, fascinating, more specialized in appeal than later entries in series. Barrault's first film. [PG]▼

My Old Man's Place (1972) C-93m. ½ D: Edwin Sherin. Mitchell Ryan, Arthur Kennedy, William Devane, Michael Moriarty, Topo Swope. Moriarty (in his first film) returns home from war with two soldier pals; inevitable tensions lead to rape and murder. Not profound, but moody and interesting. Original title: GLORY BOY. [R]▼

My Own Private Idaho (1991) C-102m. ½ D: Gus Van Sant. River Phoenix, Keanu Reeves, James Russo, William Richert, Rodney Harvey, Flea, Grace Zabriskie, Tom Troupe, Udo Kier. Uniquely distinctive portrayal of male street-hustling in the American Northwest, with Phoenix as a narcoleptic sex-for-hiree and Reeves as the son of Portland's mayor—slumming in the trade. Film opens terrifically, promising to surpass even Van Sant's DRUG-STORE COWBOY—then gets bogged down in a long, dreadfully conceived gay variation on Shakespeare's Henry IV, Part I, from which it never fully recovers. Many potent scenes, though, and Phoenix is excellent; cult status is assured. [R]▼

My Pleasure Is My Business (1974-Canadian) C-85m. BOMB D: Al Waxman. Xaviera Hollander, Henry Ramer, Colin Fox, Kenneth Lynch, Jayne Eastwood. "The Happy Hooker" makes her own attempt at acting in this witless comedy which purports to tell her true story (albeit just as cleaned-up as THE HAPPY HOOKER itself). Hollander is so expressionless she can't even play herself well. [R]▼

Myra Breckinridge (1970) C-94m. BOMB D: Michael Sarne. Mae West, John Huston, Raquel Welch, Rex Reed, Roger Herren, Farrah Fawcett, Jim Backus, John Carradine, Andy Devine, Grady Sutton. Gore Vidal's loosely structured comic novel about sex-change operation was probably unfilmable, but this version doesn't even give book a chance; as bad as any movie ever made, it tastelessly exploits many old Hollywood favorites through film clips. That's Tom Selleck—minus mustache—as one of Mae's "studs." Panavision. [R—edited from original X rating]▼

My Reputation (1946) 94m.  D: Curtis Bernhardt. Barbara Stanwyck, George Brent, Warner Anderson, Lucile Watson, John

Ridgely, Eve Arden, Jerome Cowan, Esther Dale, Scotty Beckett, Bobby Cooper. Well-mounted soaper with Stanwyck excellent as a long-stifled recent widow who causes scandal in her conservative community when she begins dating Major Brent. Completed in 1944. ▀

My Science Project (1985) C-94m. BOMB D: Jonathan Beteul. John Stockwell, Danielle Von Zerneck, Fisher Stevens, Raphael Sbarge, Dennis Hopper, Barry Corbin, Ann Wedgeworth, Richard Masur. Laughless, often tasteless comedy about high school kids who unearth an other-worldly device that can create time and space warps. Lost in the quagmire is Hopper in funny role as a latter-day hippie science teacher. Panavision. [PG] ▀●

My Side of the Mountain (1969) C-100m. ½ D: James B. Clark. Ted Eccles, Theodore Bikel, Tudi Wiggins, Frank Perry, Peggy Loder. Children should enjoy this tale about 13-year-old Canadian boy who runs away from home to get closer to nature. Panavision. [G] ▀

My Sister Eileen (1942) 96m. ½ D: Alexander Hall. Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne, Janet Blair, George Tobias, Allyn Joslyn, Elizabeth Patterson, June Havoc. Amusing tale of two Ohio girls trying to survive in Greenwich Village apartment; strained at times. Belongs mainly to Russell as older sister of knockout Blair. Ruth McKinney, Joseph Fields, and Jerome Chodorov adapted their Broadway hit (based on McKinney's autobiographical book). Remade as a musical in 1955 (and musicalized on Broadway as Wonderful Town). Finale features a gag cameo. ▀●

My Sister Eileen (1955) C-108m. ½ D: Richard Quine. Betty Garrett, Janet Leigh, Jack Lemmon, Kurt Kasznar, Dick York, Horace McMahon, Robert (Bob) Fosse, Tommy Rall. Delightful, unpretentious musical version of 1942 movie about Ohio girls seeking success in the big city, moving into nutty Greenwich Village apartment. Especially interesting to see young Lemmon singing and equally young Fosse dancing; this was the first film he choreographed on his own. Not to be confused with the Broadway musical Wonderful Town, based on the same source. CinemaScope. ▀●

My Six Convicts (1952) 104m.  D: Hugo Fregonese. Millard Mitchell, Gilbert Roland, John Beal, Marshall Thompson, Alf Kjellin, Henry (Harry) Morgan, Jay Adler, Regis Toomey, John Marley, Charles Buchinsky (Bronson). Unusual comedy of prison life centering on title group who manage to make jail routine tolerable, egged on by prison psychiatrist.

My Six Loves (1963) C-101m. ½ D: Gower Champion. Debbie Reynolds, Cliff

Robertson, David Janssen, Eileen Heckart, Hans Conried, Alice Pearce, Jim Backus. Syrupy fluff of theater star Reynolds "adopting" six waifs. VistaVision.

My Son John (1952) 122m. ½ D: Leo McCarey. Helen Hayes, Robert Walker, Dean Jagger, Van Heflin, Frank McHugh, Richard Jaeckel. Archetypal apple-pie parents (Hayes, Jagger) suspect their son (Walker) of being a Communist in this reactionary period piece. Dramatically overwrought, but fascinating as social history. Walker (who's superb) died before film was finished; most shots of him in final reel are cribbed from STRANGERS ON A TRAIN.

My Son the Fanatic (1997-British) C-89m.  D: Udayan Prasad. Om Puri, Rachel Griffiths, Stellan Skarsgård, Akbar Kurtha, Gopi Desai, Harish Patel, Bhaskar Patel. Writer Hanif Kureishi again examines a Pakistani coming to terms with his life in England. In this case it's a taxi driver (Puri) who's alienated from his wife, and whose son is rebelling against him for reasons he can't understand—even while he fosters a relationship with prostitute Griffiths. A multi-layered story, pointed and insightful. ▀

My Son, the Hero (1962-Italian) C-122m.  D: Duccio Tessari. Pedro Armendariz, Jacqueline Sassard, Antonella Lualdi, Giuliano Gemma. Costume picture about evil King Cadmus of Thebes, who defies the gods and faces the wrath of the Titans. Originally released in the U.S. at 111m., with comic dubbing à la WHAT'S UP, TIGER LILY?, which it preceded.

My Son, The Vampire SEE: Mother Riley Meets the Vampire

My Stepmother Is an Alien (1988) C-108m. *½ D: Richard Benjamin. Dan Aykroyd, Kim Basinger, Jon Lovitz, Alyson Hannigan, Joseph Maher, Ann Prentiss (voice of purse), Seth Green, Wesley Mann, Harry Shearer (voice of Carl Sagan). Luscious Basinger, who knows nothing of romance or sex, marries widowed scientist (Aykroyd); he wants to settle into domesticity, while her mind is only on saving her planet from destruction. Somehow, Jimmy Durante imitations get worked into this lowbrow, high-concept comedy. [PG-13] ▀●

Mysterians, The (1957-Japanese) C-85m. ½ D: Ishiro Honda. Kenji Sahara, Yumi Shirakawa, Momoko Kuchi, Akihiko Hirata. Centuries after the destruction of their planet, the title aliens land on Earth, install an impregnable dome by a lake, and demand women. The world does not take this well. Colorful special effects and fast pace make this one of the better Japanese sci-fis. Tohoscope. ▀

Mysterious Island (1961-British) C-101m.  D: Cy Endfield. Michael Craig, Joan Greenwood, Michael Callan, Gary Merrill, Herbert Lom. Deliberately paced fantasy adventure based on two-part Jules

Verne novel, a sequel to his 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea. Confederate prison escapees hijack observation balloon and are blown off course; find uncharted island with gigantic animals. Great special effects by Ray Harryhausen; rousing Bernard Herrmann score. Filmed before in 1929. Remade for cable TV in 2005. ▼●●

Mysterious Lady (1928) 96m. ½ D: Fred Niblo. Greta Garbo, Conrad Nagel, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Albert Pollet, Edward Connelly. Austrian military officer (Nagel) falls in love with Garbo, unaware that she's a Russian spy. Another contrived plot made worthwhile by Garbo herself. ▼●

Mystery, Alaska (1999) C-118m.  D: Jay Roach. Russell Crowe, Burt Reynolds, Hank Azaria, Mary McCormack, Lolita Davidovich, Colm Meaney, Maury Chaykin, Ron Eldard, Michael McKean, Mike Myers, Little Richard. Remote Alaskan town's hockey team is given the chance to play against the professional N.Y. Rangers as a publicity stunt. A hodgepodge of characters and an inevitable big-game finale, coupled with derivative storylines, prove that David E. Kelley (who coscripted and coproduced) should stick to TV. Crowe is the only one to rise above the material. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Mystery Date (1991) C-99m. ½ D: Jonathan Wacks. Ethan Hawke, Teri Polo, Brian McNamara, Fisher Stevens, B. D. Wong, Tony Rosato, Don Davis, James Hong, Victor Wong. Shy Hawke dreams of dating a dishy neighbor, so older brother McNamara rings her up and arranges a date . . . but it turns out he has an agenda of his own, which includes a corpse in the trunk of the car Hawke is driving. Surprisingly black youth comedy with more than a few unexpected twists. Wong is a scream as a criminal rival in McNamara's high-stakes schemes. [PG-13]▼●●

powers uniting to rescue a genuine hero from an evil villain. Good dialogue and a fun cast make up for the overblown special effects and cluttered array of characters. [PG-13]▼●●

Mystery of Edwin Drood, The (1993-British) C-102m.  D: Timothy Forder. Robert Powell, Michelle Evans, Jonathan Phillips, Rupert Rainsford, Finty Williams, Peter Pacey, Nanette Newman, Freddie Jones, Gemma Craven, Rosemary Leach, Ronald Fraser. Dickens' unfinished novel of a suspicious choirmaster, whose deadly jealousy over his fiancée gets him into hot water, gets another go-round here, but the results are mediocre at best. Powell is an uncharismatic lead, but the cast is peppered with familiar British actors. ▼

Mystery of Oberwald, The (1980-Italian) C-129m.  D: Michelangelo Antonioni. Monica Vitti, Ahmad Saha Alan, Paolo Bonacelli, Franco Branciaroli, Luigi Diberti, Elisabetta Pozzi. Static adaptation of Cocteau's play The Eagle Has Two Heads, about a queen who protects and gradually falls in love with an assassin sent to kill her. Notable for being shot on video and then transferred to 35mm., as well as for the director's experiments with some odd and rather labored color effects, which do little to relieve the tedium of the melodramatic plot. ▼

Mystery of Picasso, The (1956-French) C-85m. ½ D: Henri-Georges Clouzot. Fascinating documentary about Pablo Picasso, who discusses his work and creates a number of paintings before the camera (all of which were destroyed after shooting ended, meaning that they exist only on film). Photographed by Claude (nephew of Jean and grandson of Auguste) Renoir. CinemaScope (part). ▼●●

Mystery of Rampo, The SEE: Rampo

Mystery of the Wax Museum (1933) C-77m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Lionel Atwill, Fay Wray, Glenda Farrell, Allen Vincent, Frank McHugh, Arthur Edmund Carewe. Vintage horror film strays somewhat into excess "comic relief" and contrivances, but plot of madman Atwill encasing victims in wax, with Farrell next on his list, is still exciting. Filmed in early two-color Technicolor; noteworthy as first horror film with contemporary urban setting. Remade as HOUSE OF WAX. ▼●●

Mystery Science Theater 3000: The Movie (1996) C-73m.  D: Jim Mallon. Michael J. Nelson, Trace Beaulieu, Kevin Murphy, Jim Mallon, John Brady. Theatrical presentation of cable TV cult favorite has shorter running time than an average episode but just as many laughs. Nelson plays a hapless human trapped on orbiting spaceship with crew of wisecracking puppet robots, forced to watch an edited version of 1955's sci-fi outing THIS ISLAND EARTH. Silhouettes of Nelson and robots appear at lower right of screen, and their running commentary during the film is often hilarious. Brief framing setup and occasional break segments throughout are not so clever, especially compared to original series created by comedian Joel Hodgson. [PG-13] ▼●●

Mystery Submarine (1963-British) 90m. *½ D: C. M. Pennington-Richards. Edward Judd, James Robertson Justice, Laurence Payne, Arthur O'Sullivan, Albert Lieven. Tame WW2 espionage tale of German sub manned by British crew—captured by English fleet. Aka DECOY.

Mystery Train (1989) C-113m.  D: Jim Jarmusch. Masatoshi Nagase, Youki Kudoh, Screamin' Jay Hawkins, Cinque Lee, Nicoletta Braschi, Elizabeth Bracco, Joe Strummer, Rick Aviles, Steve Buscemi, Tom Noonan, Rockets Redglare, Rufus Thomas; voice of Tom Waits. Typically quirky slice-of-life from Jarmusch, trio of stories depicts foreigners' stays in sleazy Memphis hotel. Jarmusch's minimalist style results in some slow stretches, but there are enough genuinely funny moments to make this worth seeing. [R] ▼●●

Mystic Masseur, The (2002-U.S.-French) C-117m.  D: Ismail Merchant. Aasif Mandvi, Om Puri, Ayesha Dharker, James Fox, Jimi Mistry, Sakina Jaffrey, Zohra Segal. Rare directorial effort from the producing half of the Merchant-Ivory team is an adaptation of Nobel laureate V.S. Naipaul's novel about a fledgling author who suddenly becomes known for his "mystical" abilities to heal people. First part of the film is more successful than the second, when it gets bogged down in politics. Acting is first-rate, however, and colorful locations in the Indian community of mid-20th-century Trinidad add flavor. [PG] ▼●

Mystic Pizza (1988) C-104m.  D: Donald Petrie. Annabeth Gish, Julia Roberts, Lili Taylor, Vincent D'Onofrio, William R. Moses, Adam Storke, Conchata Ferrell, Joanna Merlin, Matt Damon. The amorous adventures of three young women who work at a pizzeria in Mystic, Connecticut. Superficial in the extreme but geared for a young female audience. A "nice little film" that isn't all that good. [R] ▼●●

Mystic River (2003) C-138m. ½ D: Clint Eastwood. Sean Penn, Tim Robbins, Kevin Bacon, Laurence Fishburne, Marcia Gay Harden, Laura Linney, Kevin Chapman, Thomas Guiry, Emmy Rossum. The lives of three boyhood pals from a tight-knit, working-class Boston neighborhood intersect years later: one is now a cop, another a potent figure in the community, and the other still bears deep emotional scars from a tragic childhood incident. Brian Koppelman expertly adapted Dennis Lehane's powerful novel about friendship, murder, neighborhood ties, and a criminal code of honor. Penn and his costars are exceptional, and Eastwood's handling of the material is masterful, if perhaps too leisurely at times. Penn and Robbins won Oscars for their performances. Eli Wallach and Kevin Conway appear unbilled. Panavision. [R] ▼●

My Summer Story SEE: It Runs in My Family

My Summer of Love (2004-British) C-86m.  D: Pawel Pawlikowski. Nathalie Press, Emily Blunt, Paddy Considine, Dean Andrews, Michelle Byrne, Paul Antony-Barber, Lynette Edwards, Kathryn Sumner. Emotion-packed coming-of-age drama that happily veers from formula. Two adolescent girls meet one summer at a Yorkshire village and become fast friends: working-class Mona (Press), who is shy and lives with her ex-con, born-again Christian brother, and Tamsin (Blunt), who is aggressive and presents herself as experienced and sophisticated. As their relationship deepens, their story becomes intricate in ways that are better seen than described. Based on a novel by Helen Cross. [R] ●

My Super Ex-Girlfriend (2006) C-96m.  D: Ivan Reitman. Uma Thurman, Luke Wilson, Rainn Wilson, Anna Faris, Eddie Izzard, Wanda Sykes, Stelio Savante, Mike Iorio, Mark Consuelos. After breaking up with a needy art gallery owner with emotional problems, an architect learns the hard way that hell hath no fury like a woman scorned—especially when that woman is actually a superhero bent on revenge. The cast is likable and the concept of a neurotic female superhero is amusing, but the film fizzles out in a welter of mechanical plotting, perfunctory action scenes, and shoddy special effects. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Myth of Fingerprints, The (1997) C-90m.  D: Bart Freundlich. Blythe Danner, Roy Scheider, Julianne Moore, Noah Wyle, Arijia Bareikis, Brian Kerwin, Michael Vartan, Laurel Holloman, Hope Davis, James Le Gros. A dysfunctional New England family reunion at Thanksgiving reveals WASP angst simmering below the surface of gentility. Too many characters leave little time for any depth of understanding. Notable casting includes Wyle as Scheider's son;

he was also associate producer. [R]▼

My Tutor (1983) C-97m.  D: George Bowers. Matt Lattanzi, Caren Kaye, Kevin McCarthy, Arlene Golonka, Clark Brandon, Bruce Bauer, Crispin Glover. Rich, hunky (but still virginal) Lattanzi won't graduate high school unless he passes French, so his folks hire beautiful Kaye to spend the summer tutoring him. Earns points for sincerity, but credulity is low. [R]▼

My 20th Century (1989-Hungarian) 92m.

 D: Ildiko Enyedi. Dorothea Segda, Oleg Jankovskij, Paulus Manker, Peter Andorai, Gabor Maté. Compelling tale of twin sisters, born in 1880 Budapest, who are separated during childhood; one becomes a seductress, the other an anarchist. Enyedi incisively depicts an era that begins with promise, as Thomas Edison (Andorai) demonstrates the wonders of electricity, but develops into an age in which human relations do not keep pace with technological innovation. Segda is excellent as both sisters, and also appears as their mother. Enyedi also scripted.▼

My Wife is an Actress (2001-French) C-

95m. ½ D: Yvan Attal. Charlotte Gainsbourg, Yvan Attal, Terence Stamp, Noémie Lvovsky, Laurent Bateau, Ludivine Sagnier. Sportswriter married to a Julia Roberts-type star must deal with her fame, his jealousies, and trying to live a normal life away from the spotlight. Entertaining froth with star-writer-director Attal (who resembles Al Pacino) delightful as the befuddled hubby. Stamp also scores as the star's latest leading man. Incidentally, Gainsbourg and Attal are married in real life. [R]▼

My Winnipeg (2008-Canadian) C/B&W-

80m. ½ D: Guy Maddin. Darcy Fehr, Ann Savage, Amy Stewart, Louis Negin, Brendan Cade, Wesley Cade. Another ingenious, deeply personal cinematic exercise from Maddin, a self-described "docu-fantasia" in which he plays tour guide on a journey through his Winnipeg, Manitoba, hometown. Maddin narrates and offers up a subjective portrait of his childhood and the city in which he came of age (and which defines him). What is fact and what is exaggeration? Who cares? Just sit back and enjoy. Great to see Savage (of DETOUR fame) as Maddin's mother.▶

Nacho Libre (2006) C-91m. ½ D: Jared Hess. Jack Black, Ana de la Reguera, Héctor Jiménez, Troy Gentile, Moises Arias, Lauro Chartrand, Peter Stormare, Richard Montoya. Extremely offbeat concept for a comedy feature casts Black as a Mexican friar who moonlights as a masked wrestler to raise money for the orphanage where he works. Black's engaging silliness is show-cased against the kind of deadpan-humor landscape you'd expect from the director and writers of NAPOLEON DYNAMITE, but it doesn't jell as one might like. Black also coproduced. [PG]▶

Nada (1974-French-Italian) C-107m. ½ D: Claude Chabrol. Fabio Testi, Michel Duchaussoy, Maurice Garrel, Michel Aumont, Lou Castel, Didier Kaminka, Viviane Romance, Mariangela Melato. Riveting political thriller about a group of hapless left-wing terrorists who kidnap the American Ambassador to France, but then have to deal with a fascistic police chief who's even more violent than they are and doesn't care about getting the hostage back alive. Chabrol is at the top of his cool, calculated, and ultra-cynical form in this superbly filmed blend of razor-sharp action and absurdist humor. Written by Chabrol and Jean Patrick Manchette, from the latter's novel. Original running time: 134m. Aka THE NADA GANG.▼

Nadine (1987) C-82m.  Robert Benton. Jeff Bridges, Kim Basinger, Rip Torn, Gwen Verdon, Glenne Headly, Jerry Stiller, Jay Patterson. Lightweight but pleasing comedy set in 1954 Austin, about a pregnant but nearly divorced hairdresser who accidentally witnesses a murder while trying to retrieve some nude "art studies" she posed for in a weak moment. Very well cast, with Basinger a surprising stand-out; catchy credit tune is performed by Sweethearts of the Rodeo. [PG]▼

Nadja (1994) 92m.  D: Michael Almereyda. Elina Lowensohn, Peter Fonda, Suzy Amis, Galaxy Craze, Martin Donovan, Jared Harris, Karl Geary. Cleverly amusing vampire movie with the vampirish title character (perfectly played by Lowensohn) stalking the streets and late-night clubs of Manhattan's East Village. Fonda is a hoot as "Dr. Van Helsing," who has murdered Nadja's father and now is after her and her twin brother. Most enjoyable, but the stylish visuals sometimes swallow up the story. Filmed in b&w, in part using a plastic toy Pixelvision video camera! Executive produced by David Lynch, who appears as a morgue attendant. [R]▼

Nails (1992) C-100m. ½ D: John Flynn. Dennis Hopper, Anne Archer, Tomas Milian, Keith David, Carlos Carrasco, Charles Hallahan, Cliff De Young. Wired Hopper slips into his profane, law-bending cop bit, battling druggies and crooked politicians. Misplaced theatrical release debuted on cable. ▼●

Naked (1993-British) C-131m.  D: Mike Leigh. David Thewlis, Lesley Sharp, Katrin Cartlidge, Greg Cruttwell, Claire Skinner, Peter Wight, Ewen Bremner. Unique, contemporary, energized examination of a drifter from Manchester (Thewlis) who arrives unannounced at an ex-girlfriend's London flat and proceeds to verbally abuse and amuse everyone in sight. Bleak, often brutal, and frequently hilarious look at people drifting in an alienated modern society, with a very impressive performance by Thewlis; its only real shortcoming is its overlength. Another challenging film from writer-director Leigh. ▼●●

Naked and the Dead, The (1958) C-131m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Aldo Ray, Cliff Robertson, Raymond Massey, William Campbell, Richard Jaeckel, James Best, Joey Bishop, L. Q. Jones, Robert Gist, Lili St. Cyr, Barbara Nichols. Norman Mailer's intensive novel about WW2 soldiers in the Pacific gets superficial but rugged filmization. Ray is the tough sergeant, Robertson the rich-kid lieutenant, Bishop the comic Jew, Jones the hick, Gist the loner, etc. RKO-Scope/WarnerScope. ▼

Naked Ape, The (1973) C-85m. *½ D: Donald Driver. Johnny Crawford, Victoria Principal, Dennis Oliveri, Diana Darrin. Tongue-in-cheek Playboy production loosely based on the pop anthropology of Desmond Morris's nonfiction best-seller. Snickering sex jokes and mediocre animation (by Charles Swenson) add nothing to this episodic summary of 10 million years of Man's evolution. Musical score by Jimmy Webb. [PG]

Naked Cage, The (1986) C-97m.  D: Paul Nicholas. Shari Shattuck, Angel Tompkins, Lucinda Crosby, Faith Minton, Christina Whitaker, John Terlesky. Standard women's prison drama as innocent Stattuck is framed for a bank robbery and ends up in the slammer. [R] ▼

Naked City, The (1948) 96m.  D: Jules Dassin. Barry Fitzgerald, Howard Duff, Don Taylor, Dorothy Hart, Ted de Corsia, House Jameson, Frank Conroy, David Opatoshu, Molly Picon, Celia Adler. Time (and decades of TV cop shows) have dulled the edge of this once-trendsetting crime drama, produced by columnist Mark Hellinger on the streets of N.Y.C., following the investigation of a murder case step by step. Fitzgerald is still first-rate, cast against type as the detective in charge, and the cast is peppered with soon-to-be-familiar character actors (Arthur O'Connell, Paul Ford, James Gregory, et al.). Cinematographer William Daniels and editor Paul Weatherwax won Oscars for their work. Screenplay by Albert Maltz and Malvin Wald. Later a TV series. ▼●●

Naked Dawn, The (1955) C-82m. ½ D: Edgar G. Ulmer. Arthur Kennedy, Betta

St. John, Roy Engel, Eugene Iglesias, Charita. Modern Western about a snowballing series of crimes. Based on a story by Gorky, and much admired by Ulmer buffs.

Naked Edge, The (1961) 99m. ½ D: Michael Anderson. Gary Cooper, Deborah Kerr, Eric Portman, Diane Cilento, Hermione Gingold, Michael Wilding. Uneven suspenser of Kerr thinking husband Cooper is guilty of murder. Cooper's last film, made in London. ▼

Naked Face, The (1985) C-103m. ½ D: Bryan Forbes. Roger Moore, Rod Steiger, Elliott Gould, Anne Archer, David Hedison, Art Carney. Change of pace for Moore, playing a psychiatrist suspected of murdering one of his patients. Low-budget adaptation of Sidney Sheldon novel crudely injects clues and red herrings. [R] ▼

Naked Gun: From the Files of Police Squad!, The (1988) C-85m.  D: David Zucker. Leslie Nielsen, George Kennedy, Priscilla Presley, Ricardo Montalban, O.J. Simpson, Nancy Marchand. A failed (but loyally supported) TV sitcom, Police Squad, is reincarnated as a hilarious feature film, with a deadpan, dead-perfect Nielsen as Lt. Frank Drebin, the stupidest law officer since Inspector Clouseau. Writers David and Jerry Zucker, Jim Abrahams, and Pat Proft can't keep their momentum from slowing a bit during the baseball game finale, but they provide solid, silly laughs from start to finish. Followed by two sequels. [PG-13] ▼●●

Naked Gun 2½: The Smell of Fear, The (1991) C-85m. ½ (what else?) D: David Zucker. Leslie Nielsen, Priscilla Presley, George Kennedy, O. J. Simpson, Robert Goulet, Richard Griffiths, Jacqueline Brookes, Lloyd Bochner, Tim O'Connor, Peter Mark Richman. Frank Drebin is back, this time to save America from a plot hatched by oil, coal, and nuclear power brokers to keep the country from adopting a new energy policy. Lots of gags, some of them funny, but film lacks the freshness of its predecessor and empties out its bag of tricks sooner than it should. [PG-13] ▼●●

Naked Gun 3½: The Final Insult (1994) C-82m. ½ (what else?) D: Peter Segal. Leslie Nielsen, Priscilla Presley, George Kennedy, O.J. Simpson, Fred Ward, Kathleen Freeman, Anna Nicole Smith, Ellen Greene, Ed Williams, Randall "Tex" Cobb. Sloppy sequel in which a now retired Frank Drebin returns to Police Squad for one more case . . . losing the love of his wife in the process. The most slapdash slapstick yet, with some real laughs here and there, and a passel of cameo appearances at the climactic Oscar ceremony. [PG-13] ▼●●

generally watchable backstage comedy about an aspiring playwright who can't decide whether to pursue his career in N.Y.C. or remain with the woman he loves in their Ivy League environment. Stoltz and Macchio aren't aggressive enough for their roles, but Turner (as a soap actress) and Curtis (a Broadway producer) give mild film a boost. Amusing literati cameos. [R]▼●●

Naked Jungle, The (1954) C-95m.  D: Byron Haskin. Eleanor Parker, Charlton Heston, Abraham Sofaer, William Conrad. High-class South American jungle adventure, with Heston and wife Parker surrounded on their plantation by advancing army of ants. Produced by George Pal.▼●●

Naked Kiss, The (1964) 93m.  D: Samuel Fuller. Constance Towers, Anthony Eisley, Michael Dante, Virginia Grey, Patsy Kelly, Betty Bronson. In-your-face melodrama opens with a bang and never lets up, as prostitute Towers arrives in a small town hoping to start a new life. By turns lurid, sentimental, romantic, surprising; a mélange that could only have been concocted by writer-director Fuller.▼●●

Naked Lunch (1991-Canadian-British) C-115m.  D: David Cronenberg. Peter Weller, Judy Davis, Ian Holm, Julian Sands, Roy Scheider, Monique Mercure, Nicholas Campbell, Michael Zelniker, Robert A. Silverman, Joseph Scorsiani. A no-holds-barred, graphic filming of William S. Burroughs' thoroughly unfilmable 1959 novel, weaving elements of the author's life in with the fictional material. Weller is an aspiring writer and N.Y.C. exterminator in 1953; when his loony drug-addict wife (Davis, who's great) dies, the real story takes off. He is immersed in an extended, drug-laced odyssey to a Casablanca-like community that's seething with oddballs and weirdos. Cronenberg was undeniably the right person to direct this, but be warned: mutating, oozing typewriter-size talking bugs fill the screen throughout. [R]▼●●

Naked Tango (1991) C-90m.  D: Leonard Schrader. Vincent D'Onofrio, Mathilda May, Esai Morales, Fernando Rey, Cipe Lincovski, Josh Mostel, Constance McCashin. Very dark look at the Tango underground of 1920s Buenos Aires, in which the famous dance symbolizes the obsessive and strange passions of three people caught up in this forbidden world. Uneasy mixture of sex and violence, with an unconvincing central performance by D'Onofrio, though stunning production design and cinematography compensate a little for the murky storytelling. A real let-down from the producer (David Weisman) and screenwriter (Schrader) of KISS OF THE SPIDER WOMAN. [R]

Namesake, The (2007) C-122m.  D: Mira Nair. Kal Penn, Tabu, Irrfan Khan, Jacinda Barrett, Zuleikha Robinson, Ruma Guha Thakurta, Tamal Roy Choudhury, Glenne Headly, Daniel Gerroll, Linus Roache, Brooke Smith, Amy Wright, Heather MacRae. Richly layered saga of a Bengali family's cultural journey, spanning two generations. After an arranged marriage in Calcutta, a young man and his wife move to N.Y.C., where he pursues a career and she must adjust to life in a strange new land. Their son (Penn) grows up an assimilated American and has mixed feelings about his heritage, his identity, and even his name. Episodic drama covers some familiar territory about the clash of cultures but delves beneath the surface and is ultimately quite moving. Based on a novel by Jhumpa Lahiri. [PG-13] D

Nancy Drew (2007) C-99m. *½ D: Andrew Fleming. Emma Roberts, Josh Flitter, Max Thieriot, Rachael Leigh Cook, Tate Donovan, Amy Bruckner, Barry Bostwick, Laura Elena Harring, Caroline Aaron, Pat Carroll, Adam Goldberg. Pleasant, somewhat bland movie about the teenage sleuth (created in the 1930s by "Carolyn Keene") who accompanies her father to L.A. and moves into a creepy old house; it once belonged to a glamorous movie star whose murder was never explained. Nancy has promised her dad she won't "sleuth" anymore but she just can't help it. Roberts is good as Nancy, who's portrayed as the ultimate square. Bruce Willis, Eddie Jemison, and Chris Kattan appear unbilled. Super 35. [PG] D

Nanny, The (1965-British) 93m.  D: Seth Holt. Bette Davis, Wendy Craig, Jill Bennett, James Villiers, Pamela Franklin, William Dix, Maurice Denham. Nanny Diaries, The (2007) C-105m. * D: Shari Springer Berman, Robert Pulcini. Scarlett Johansson, Laura Linney, Alicia Keys, Chris Evans, Donna Murphy, Paul Giamatti, Nicholas Reese Art, Nathan Corradino, Cady Huffman, Julie White. Aimless working-class college grad stumbles into a job as a nanny for pampered "perfect wife" Linney, who has virtually nothing to do with her little boy. Bland, defanged adaptation of Emma McLaughlin and Nicola Kraus' delicious book, which was based on their real-life experiences tending to spoiled children, impossibly demanding women, and emotionally detached fathers. [PG-13] D

Nanny McPhee (2005-British) C-96m. *½ D: Kirk Jones. Emma Thompson, Colin Firth, Kelly Macdonald, Derek Jacobi, Patrick Barlow, Imelda Staunton, Celia Imrie, Angela Lansbury, Thomas Sangster. Widower with seven unruly children finds the perfect nanny on his doorstep: a serene, strange-looking woman who has almost magical powers to calm the kids and bring out the best in them.

Raucous period variation on MARY POPPINS has an abundance of slapstick and grotesquerie, enacted by a first-class ensemble, but the end result is unmemorable. Thompson scripted from the Nurse Matilda books by Christianna Brand. Super 35. [PG] D

Nanook of the North (1922) 79m. ½ D: Robert Flaherty. Pioneer documentary of Eskimos' daily life withstands the test of time quite well, remains as absorbing saga, well filmed. Napoleon (1927-French) 235m.  D: Abel Gance. Albert Dieudonné, Antonin Artaud, Pierre Batcheff, Armand Bernard, Harry Krimer, Albert Bras, Abel Gance. Hard to put into words the impact of this monumental silent epic. Dieudonné mesmerizingly plays the famed emperor; notable sequences include snowball fight, the Reign of Terror, and eye-popping three-screen Polyvision finale. Recut and shortened many times over the years (often by Gance himself), finally painstakingly pieced together by historian Kevin Brownlow and reissued in 1981 with a serviceable music score by Carmine Coppola. Not the kind of film one can best appreciate on TV. Filmed in part-widescreen triptych. **▼

Napoleon Dynamite (2004) C-90m.  D: Jared Hess. Jon Heder, Jon Gries, Aaron Ruell, Efrén Ramirez, Tina Majorino, Die-drich Bader, Haylie Duff, Trevor Snarr, Shondrella Avery. Deadpan comedy about a geeky high school kid (Heder), his family, and friends, who inhabit an alternate universe but struggle to get by in the real world of rural Idaho. Trying to connect with a female classmate, contending with a macho uncle who moves in when his guardian grandma gets injured, or resentfully feeding the family's pet llama, Napoleon is one of a kind. Not for every taste, but it's the sort of film that gets funnier with repeated viewing. Five-minute epilogue was added after closing titles midway during the film's theatrical run. Vote for Pedro! Written by Hess and his wife Jerusha. [PG] **▼

Narc (2002) C-105m. *½ D: Joe Carnahan. Ray Liotta, Jason Patric, Chi McBride, Busta Rhymes, Anne Openshaw, Richard Chevolleau, John Ortiz, Krista Bridges. Disgraced Detroit narcotics detective (Patric) gets a chance to redeem himself when he is asked to probe the murder of a cop with the man's former partner (Liotta), a violent maverick who may know more than he is telling. Visceral look at the brutal realities of undercover work is relentlessly grim, although the two stars give forceful performances, and the opening sequence is certainly a grabber. Scripted by the director. [R] ▼

Narrow Margin, The (1952) 70m. ½ D: Richard Fleischer. Charles McGraw, Marie Windsor, Jacqueline White, Queenie Leonard. Hard-boiled cop, transporting a gangster's widow against his will to the trial in which she'll testify, must dodge hit men aboard their train who are trying to silence her. One of the best B's ever made—fast paced, well acted, impressively shot in claustrophobic setting. Photographed by George E. Narrow Margin (1990) C-97m. ½ D: Peter Hyams. Gene Hackman, Anne Archer, James B. Sikking, J.T. Walsh, M. Emmet Walsh, Susan Hogan, Nigel Bennett, J.A. Preston, Harris Yulin. Hackman is superb as an assistant D.A. who accompanies murder witness Archer on an eventful train ride through the Canadian Rockies—pursued by henchmen of the gangster who set up the killing she saw. Some sharp dialogue for Hackman and a great action climax atop the train, but dramatically it misses the bull's-eye—and cannot top the original 1952 film. Panavision. [R] ▼

Henry Gibson, Karen Black, Ronee Blakley, Keith Carradine, Geraldine Chaplin, Lily Tomlin, Michael Murphy, Barbara Harris, Allen Garfield, Ned Beatty, Barbara Baxley, Shelley Duvall, Keenan Wynn, Scott Glenn, Jeff Goldblum, Gwen Welles, Bert Remsen, Robert Doqui. Altman's brilliant mosaic of American life as seen through 24 characters involved in Nashville political rally. Full of cogent character studies, comic and poignant vignettes, done in seemingly free-form style. Carradine's song "I'm Easy" won an Oscar; Elliott Gould and Julie Christie appear as themselves. Screenplay by Joan Tewkesbury. Panavision. [R] ▼

Nashville Girl (1976) C-93m.  D: Gus Trikonis. Monica Gayle, Glenn Corbett, Roger Davis, Johnny Rodriguez, Jesse White. OK low-budgeter about small-town girl who wants to make it big as a singer and falls in with typical no-good types in the music biz. Country superstar Rodriguez makes his movie debut. Reissued as COUNTRY MUSIC DAUGHTER. [R] ▼

Nasty Girl, The (1990-German) C/B&W-92m. ½ D: Michael Verhoeven. Lena Stolze, Monika Baumgartner, Michael Gahr, Fred Stillkrauth, Elisabeth Bertram, Robert Giggenbach. Biting serio-comic story of a young woman (Stolze) from a small Bavarian town whose attempts to enter a national essay contest on the subject of "My Hometown

During the Third Reich" results in her obsessive quest for the truth. Stolze convincingly ages from adolescence to womanhood in this remarkable film, which is based on a true story (and scripted by the director). Verhoeven's visual style is equally striking, mixing real locations and theatrical backdrops for his actors. [PG-13] ▼

Nasty Habits (1977) C-96m. *½ D: Michael Lindsay-Hogg. Glenda Jackson, Melina Mercouri, Geraldine Page, Sandy Dennis, Anne Jackson, Anne Meara, Susan Penhaligon, Edith Evans, Rip Torn, Eli Wallach, Jerry Stiller. Labored comedy sets allegory of Nixon and Watergate scandal in Philadelphia convent, with Jackson as conniving Mother Superior, Dennis a dead ringer for John Dean. A one-joke film. [PG] ▼

Nasty Rabbit, The (1964) C-85m.  D: James Landis. Arch Hall, Jr., Micha Terr, Melissa Morgan, John Akana. Weak spoof with serious overtones involving Russian attempt to set loose a disease-infected rabbit in the U. S. Retitled: SPIES A GO GO. Techniscope. ▼

Nate and Hayes (1983-U.S.-New Zealand) C-100m.  D: Ferdinand Fairfax. Tommy Lee Jones, Michael O'Keefe, Max Phipps, Jenny Seagrove, Grant Tilly, Peter Rowley. An adventure movie for people who've never seen a real adventure movie: watchable enough but pretty pale. Seagoing rogue "Bully" Hayes (Jones) helps a young missionary rescue his fiancée, who's been kidnapped by a scurrilous pirate. Lots of serial-type action, but the leading characters lack charisma. Co-written by John Hughes. [PG] ▼

Nathalie . . . (2004-French-Spanish) C-101m.  D: Anne Fontaine. Fanny Ardant, Emmanuelle Béart, Gérard Depardieu, Wladimir Yordanoff, Judith Magre, Aurore Auteuil. Muddled account of the evolving relationship between two women: a married gynecologist and the prostitute she hires to seduce her philandering husband. Even the hooker's vivid descriptions of their sexual encounters fail to light a spark under this pretentious character study. Super 35. ▼

lease. Aka NATIONAL LAMPOON'S MOVIE MADNESS. [R] ▼

National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation (1989) C-97m.  D: Jeremiah S. Chechik. Chevy Chase, Beverly D'Angelo, Randy Quaid, Diane Ladd, John Randolph, E. G. Marshall, Doris Roberts, Julia Louis-Dreyfus, Mae Questel, William Hickey, Brian Doyle-Murray, Juliette Lewis, Johnny Galecki, Nicholas Guest, Miriam Flynn. Funny (if typically spotty, sometimes tasteless) saga of the Griswold family's disaster-filled holiday season, with Chase as the terminally stupid head of the household. Sprinkles some believably poignant moments into its slapstick brew with surprising deftness. Third in the VACATION series. Written by John Hughes. Followed by VEGAS VACATION and a direct-to-video spinoff. [PG-13] ▼

National Lampoon's Class Reunion (1982) C-84m. BOMB D: Michael Miller. Gerrit Graham, Michael Lerner, Fred McCarren, Miriam Flynn, Stephen Furst, Marya Small, Shelley Smith, Zane Buzby, Anne Ramsey. Spectacularly unfunny comedy about a high school reunion shaken by mad killer on the prowl. If you went to school with people like this, no jury in the world would convict you for turning homicidal, either. [R] ▼

National Lampoon's Gold Diggers (2004) C-87m. BOMB D: Gary Preisler. Will Friedle, Chris Owen, Louise Lasser, Renee Taylor, Rudy De Luca, Nikki Ziering. Two inept overgrown teenagers arrive in L.A. hoping to cut their way into the good life. They select a pair of creepily libidinous elderly sisters as their prey. If it's possible to insult the National Lampoon brand, this is the proof. Taylor's husband, Joe Bologna, is credited as "creative consultant"; their son Gabriel plays a jail guard. Unrated version also available. [PG-13] ▼

National Lampoon's Loaded Weapon 1 (1993) C-83m.  D: Gene Quintano. Emilio Estevez, Samuel L. Jackson, Jon Lovitz, Tim Curry, Kathy Ireland, Frank McRae, William Shatner, James Doohan, Charlie Sheen, Bill Nunn, F. Murray Abraham, Richard Moll, Denis Leary, Corey Feldman, Phil Hartman, J.T. Walsh, Erik Estrada, Larry Wilcox, Paul Gleason, Alyce Beasley, Rick Ducommun, Charles Napier, Beverly Johnson, Denise (Lee) Richards. Lethal Weapon, Loaded Weapon, get it? Quality-caboose of the movie-spoof genre has at least a few laugh-out-loud gags: a takeoff on the BASIC INSTINCT interrogation scene and a skewering of the standard cop film convenience-store shootout. Estevez is no Leslie Nielsen, but you know that. [PG-13] ▼

National Lampoon's Movie Madness SEE: National Lampoon Goes to the Movies
National Lampoon's Senior Trip (1995) C-91m.  D: Kelly Makin. Matt Frewer, Valerie Mahaffey, Lawrence Dane, Tommy Chong, Jeremy Renner, Rob Moore. Conniving senator is exposed by expected array of Lampoon honor-rollers: dopers, drop-outs, the class tramp, a Cheetos freak, a self-described "frigid head case," etc. Lower-than-low humor, but fairly fast paced. [R] ▼

National Lampoon's Vacation (1983) C-98m.  D: Harold Ramis. Chevy Chase, Beverly D'Angelo, Anthony Michael Hall, Imogene Coca, Randy Quaid, Dana Barron, Christie Brinkley, John Candy, Eddie Bracken, Brian Doyle-Murray, Eugene Levy, Jane Krakowski. Enjoyable comedy about a sappy middle-class family's cross-country trip by car. Given the obvious premise, there are a surprising number of genuine laughs—including the ultimate fate of Aunt Edna. Written by John Hughes. Followed by three sequels, starting with NATIONAL LAMPOON'S EUROPEAN VACATION. [R] ▼

National Lampoon's Van Wilder (2002) C-95m. *½ D: Walt Becker. Ryan Reynolds, Tara Reid, Tim Matheson, Kal Penn, Teck Holmes, Daniel Cosgrove, Paul Gleason, Erik Estrada, Curtis Armstrong, Edie McClurg. Reynolds is the title character, a slick campus wheeler-dealer who never wants to graduate. Homage to ANIMAL HOUSE and other, better teen comedies even casts actors associated with those films in supporting roles . . . but just a rehash of the same old stuff with new gross-out gags. Tom Everett Scott appears unbilled. Followed by two sequels. [R] ▼

National Lampoon's Van Wilder 2: The Rise of Taj (2006) C-97m. BOMB D: Mort Nathan. Kal Penn, Lauren Cohan, Daniel Percival, Holly Davidson, Anthony Cozens,

Steven Rathman, Glen Barry. Taj (Penn), a protégé of Van Wilder, heads off to England to attend grad school, where he butts heads with an elitist aristocrat while somehow attracting the attention of a sexy scholar. Charmless male-fantasy comedy is sloppily made, with lame humor that will appeal only to the most indiscriminating beer guzzlers. Unrated version also available. Followed by a DVD sequel. [R] ●

National Security (2003) C-88m. ½ D: Dennis Dugan. Martin Lawrence, Steve Zahn, Colm Feore, Bill Duke, Eric Roberts, Timothy Busfield, Robinne Lee, Matt McCoy, Brett Cullen, Stephen Tobolowsky, Joe Flaherty. Two adversarial ex-cops discover malfeasance in high legal places while working as security guards. Buddy comedy doesn't make much sense even on its predictably moronic level, yet Lawrence and Zahn are surprisingly in sync, and as funny as they've ever been. The scene that leads to Zahn getting ousted from the force is first-rate; everything else is pretty much recycled. [PG-13] ▼ ●

National Treasure (2004) C-130m.  D: Jon Turteltaub. Nicolas Cage, Diane Kruger, Jon Voight, Sean Bean, Christopher Plummer, Harvey Keitel, Hunter Gomez, Justin Bartha. Surprisingly entertaining yarn about a man who's devoted (some say "wasted") his life to the pursuit of a hidden treasure, its clues on the back of the Declaration of Independence. The Da Vinci Code lite, this thoroughly engaging action-adventure offers a clever script, good characters, and imaginative use of its Washington, D.C., Boston, Philadelphia, and N.Y.C. locations. Longer than it needs to be, but still fun. Followed by a sequel. Super 35. [PG] ▼ ●

National Treasure: Book of Secrets (2007) C-124m. ½ D: Jon Turteltaub. Nicolas Cage, Jon Voight, Harvey Keitel, Ed Harris, Helen Mirren, Diane Kruger, Justin Bartha, Bruce Greenwood, Ty Burrell, Brent Briscoe, Randy Travis. Treasure hunter Cage has a personal stake in his latest quest: proving the innocence of an ancestor who may have been involved in planning Abraham Lincoln's assassination. Pretty good premise is given slick treatment, with lots of action set pieces and a first-rate cast, although it's all too obvious that it's a sequel, with contrived plotting at every turn. Super 35. [PG] ●

National Velvet (1944) C-125m. * D: Clarence Brown. Mickey Rooney, Elizabeth Taylor, Donald Crisp, Anne Revere, Angela Lansbury, Reginald Owen, Norma Varden, Jackie "Butch" Jenkins, Terry Kilburn. Outstanding family film about a girl who determines to enter her horse in the famed Grand National Steeplechase. Taylor is irresistible, Rooney was never better, and they're surrounded by a perfect supporting cast. Revere won a Best Supporting Actress Oscar as Taylor's mother. Screenplay by Theodore Reeves and Helen

Nativity Story, The (2006) C-101m. ½ D: Catherine Hardwicke. Keisha Castle-Hughes, Oscar Isaac, Hiam Abbass, Shaun Toub, Alexander Siddig, Ciarán Hinds, Shohreh Aghdashloo. Familiar saga of Mary, Joseph, and Jesus gets a reverent (if uninspired) mounting that endows well-known figures with emotional cores. Set in a time—circa 9 months B.C.—when conceiving a child of mysterious parentage is punishable by death, 16-year-old Mary has to deal not only with the imminent birth of the Israelites' deliverer but also how to explain things to her skeptical husband. Detailed script even provides a reasonable explanation for the Star of Bethlehem, but screenwriter Mike Rich fails to credit the original author. Super 35. [PG] ●

Natural, The (1984) C-134m. ½ D: Barry Levinson. Robert Redford, Robert Duvall, Glenn Close, Kim Basinger, Wilford Brimley, Richard Farnsworth, Barbara Hershey, Robert Prosky, Joe Don Baker. Serpentine saga of a young man with a gift for baseball, whose life takes more than a few surprising turns. Freely adapted from Bernard Malamud's offbeat novel, with heavy doses of sentiment and larger-than-life imagery (courtesy of cinematographer Caleb Deschanel). Some effective moments, with a fine cast, but too long and inconsistent. Best of all: Randy Newman's score. Darren McGavin appears unbilled. Director's cut runs 144m. [PG] ▼ ● ●

Natural Born Killers (1994) C-119m. ½ D: Oliver Stone. Woody Harrelson, Juliette Lewis, Robert Downey, Jr., Tommy Lee Jones, Tom Sizemore, Russell Means, Rodney Dangerfield, Edie McClurg, Steven Wright, Joe Grifasi, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Balthazar Getty, Dale Dye, James Gammon, Arliss Howard. Supposed satire of America's infatuation with outlaws and social miscreants, focusing on a hedonistic couple who murder more than 50 people on their "honeymoon." Whatever points Stone wants to make are delivered early on, with a

bludgeon; the rest is all sound and fury. Sixties-inspired hyperkinetic filmmaking style soon becomes boring and repetitious. Story by Quentin Tarantino; three others (including Stone) are credited with the screenplay. Director's cut (with 3m. of new footage) available on video. [R]▼●●

Natural Enemies (1979) C-100m. *½ D: Jeff Kanew. Hal Holbrook, Louise Fletcher, Peter Armstrong, Beth Berridge, Steve Austin, Jose Ferrer, Viveca Lindfors. Successful publisher Holbrook wakes up one day with the urge to kill his family. Cold, uninvolved, and (needless to say) strange little film, written, directed and edited by Kanew. [R]▼

Naughty Girl SEE: Mam'zelle Pigalle

Naughty Marietta (1935) 106m. ½ D: W. S. Van Dyke II. Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Frank Morgan, Elsa Lancaster, Douglass Dumbrille, Cecilia Parker. First teaming of Eddy and MacDonald has her a French princess running off to America, falling in love with Indian scout Eddy. Agreeable operetta with Victor Herbert score, including "The Italian Street Song," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," and the immortal "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life." ▼●

Naughty Nineties, The (1945) 76m.  D: Jean Yarbrough. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Alan Curtis, Rita Johnson, Henry Travers, Lois Collier, Joe Sawyer, Joe Kirk. Ordinary A&C comedy of riverboat gamblers, sparked by duo's verbal exchanges (including "Who's on First?") and slapstick finale. ▼●●

Navajo Joe (1966-Italian-Spanish) C-92m. *½ D: Sergio Corbucci. Burt Reynolds, Aldo Sanbrell, Tanya Lopert, Fernando Rey. Sole survivor of massacre swears revenge on his enemies in this tepid Western, of interest only for Reynolds' presence. Techniscope. ▼

Navigator, The (1924) 69m. ½ D: Buster Keaton, Donald Crisp. Buster Keaton, Kathryn McGuire, Frederick Vroom. Buster plays (yet again) a pampered millionaire who—by sheer circumstance, with a dash of stupidity—winds up on a huge, deserted ship with the woman he wants to marry. Many great gags and amusing sequences, but this silent doesn't have the momentum of Buster's best comedies. ▼●●

Navigator: A Medieval Odyssey, The (1988-New Zealand) C/B&W-92m.  D: Vincent Ward. Hamish McFarlane, Bruce Lyons, Chris Haywood, Marshall Napier, Noel Appleby, Paul Livingston, Sarah Pierce. Engrossing, very imaginative tale of psychic boy in tiny medieval English village who, to protect villagers from the plague, leads a tunneling expedition—which emerges in a modern city in 1988. Directed and written with great clarity, the film has much of the feel of a genuine medieval fable. Beautifully produced on a low budget. [PG]▼

Navy Blue and Gold (1937) 94m. ½ D: Sam Wood. Robert Young, James Stewart, Florence Rice, Billie Burke, Lionel Barrymore, Tom Brown, Samuel S. Hinds, Paul Kelly. Hackneyed but entertaining saga of three pals (one rich and innocent, one a cynic, and one mysterious "with a past") going to Annapolis. Predictable football game climax is fun. That's Dennis Morgan (billed under his real name, Stanley Morner) dancing with Billie Burke. ▼

Navy SEALS (1990) C-113m.  D: Lewis Teague. Charlie Sheen, Michael Biehn, Joanne Whalley-Kilmer, Rick Rossovich, Cyril O'Reilly, Bill Paxton, Dennis Haysbert, Paul Sanchez. Middle Eastern terrorists are mere putty in the hands of U.S. Navy's elite commando unit (SEa, Air, Land); "inspired" by the actual team formed under J.F.K.'s administration. G.I. Joe-level action is name of the game here. Sheen's character operates at the maturity level of Dennis the Menace. [R] ▼●●

Navy vs. the Night Monsters, The (1966) C-90m. BOMB D: Michael Hoey. Mamie Van Doren, Anthony Eisley, Pamela Mason, Bill Gray, Bobby Van, Walter Sande, Edward Faulkner, Phillip Terry. 1) Look at the title. 2) Examine the cast. 3) Be aware that the plot involves omniverous trees. 4) Don't say you weren't warned. ▼

Nazarin (1958-Mexican) 92m.  D: Luis Buñuel. Francisco Rabal, Rita Macedo, Marga Lopez, Ignacio Lopez Tarso, Ofelia Guilmain. Powerful and pointed (if relentlessly grim) drama about saintly priest Rabal, and how hypocritical peasants deal with him as he tries to interpret the lessons of Christ. ▼●●

Near Dark (1987) C-95m. ½ D: Kathryn Bigelow. Adrian Pasdar, Jenny Wright, Lance Henriksen, Bill Paxton, Jenette Goldstein, Tim Thomerson. Better-than-average vampire yarn actually plays more like a werewolf film. Cowboy Pasdar is literally bitten by Wright and joins a band of hillbilly bloodsuckers who roam the West in a van. Stylishly directed horror film reunites three cast members from ALIENS: Henriksen, Paxton, and Goldstein. [R] ▼●●

Necessary Roughness (1991) C-108m. *½ D: Stan Dragoti. Scott Bakula, Robert Loggia, Hector Elizondo, Harley Jane Kozak, Larry Miller, Sinbad, Fred Dalton Thompson, Rob Schneider, Jason Bateman. A 34-year-old quarterback at a Texas college reeling from NCAA penalties discovers that his cute no-nonsense prof is closet football junkie. Formulaic enough to insult anyone's intelligence, with a cast of quirky teammates transparently contrived (swimsuit model Kathy Ireland is the squadron's placekicker). Beware of Bill Conti's feel-good score. [PG-13] ▼●●

Necromancy (1972) C-83m. *½ D: Bert I. Gordon. Orson Welles, Pamela Franklin,

Michael Ontkean, Lee Purcell, Harvey Jason. High priest Welles tries to manipulate Franklin into becoming a witch. Mindless, poorly crafted thriller was originally released without its nude coven scenes, if anybody cares. Some prints run 75m. Video titles: THE WITCHING and ROSEMARY'S DISCIPLES. [PG]▼

Ned Kelly (1970-British) C-100m. ½ D: Tony Richardson. Mick Jagger, Clarissa Kaye, Mark McManus, Frank Thring. Ambitious telling of the life and adventures of Australia's most famous outlaw, emphasizing the Irish-British conflict at the heart of his story. Many good songs on the soundtrack, written by Shel Silverstein. Retitled NED KELLY, OUTLAW. [PG]▼

Ned Kelly (2003-Australian-British) C-109m. ½ D: Gregor Jordan. Heath Ledger, Orlando Bloom, Naomi Watts, Geoffrey Rush, Rachel Griffiths, Laurence Kinlan, Philip Barantini, Joel Edgerton, Kiri Paramore. When he responds to brutal mistreatment from Protestant "policemen," Irish Catholic farmer Ned Kelly is thrown into prison; after serving his time, it doesn't take much to transform him into an outlaw who becomes a folk hero to all the oppressed immigrants of Australia during the late 1800s. Ledger's sturdy performance anchors this well-crafted but dour film. Same story was done in 1970 with Mick Jagger. Super 35. [R]▼

Needful Things (1993) C-120m. *½ D: Fraser C. Heston. Max von Sydow, Ed Harris, Bonnie Bedelia, Amanda Plummer, J. T. Walsh, Ray McKinnon, Duncan Fraser, Valri Bromfield. Bottom-of-the-barrel bore about a devilish old man (von Sydow) who opens a curiosity shop in a small Maine town, with predictably horrific results. Scripted by W. D. Richter, based on the best-seller by (who else?) Stephen King. [R]▼

Negatives (1968-British) C-90m.  D: Peter Medak. Peter McEnery, Diane Cilento, Glenda Jackson, Maurice Denham, Steven Lewis, Norman Rossington. Strange movie about unmarried couple who dress up like notorious Dr. Crippen and his wife for kicks; he later switches his characterization to Baron von Richtofen. Jackson is good, but direction is too mannered. [R]▼

Negotiator, The (1998) C-138m.  D: F. Gary Gray. Samuel L. Jackson, Kevin Spacey, David Morse, Ron Rifkin, John Spencer, J.T. Walsh, Regina Taylor, Siobhan Fallon, Paul Giamatti. One of Chicago's top police hostage negotiators (Jackson) is framed for embezzling money from his union's pension fund—and has a murder pinned on him, to boot. His only chance is to take hostages and clear himself with the help of another crack negotiator (Spacey). Highly watchable, if not 100% credible, but

the two stars (and a strong supporting cast) make the most of it. Super 35. [R]▼

Neighbors (1981) C-94m. BOMB D: John G. Avildsen. John Belushi, Dan Aykroyd, Cathy Moriarty, Kathryn Walker, Lauren-Marie Taylor, Tim Kazurinsky. Appallingly unfunny and tiresome "comedy" based on Thomas Berger's novel about a middle-class milquetoast whose suburban existence is shaken by the arrival of bizarre and destructive neighbors. Screenplay credited to Larry Gelbart. Pointless; sadly, Belushi's last film. [R]▼

Neil Simon's Odd Couple II SEE: Odd Couple II, The

Neil Young: Heart of Gold (2006) C-103m. ½ D: Jonathan Demme. Baby boomers in general and Young fans in particular will savor this sublime concert film, shot during two 2005 performances at Nashville's Ryman Auditorium. Young and his band members perform songs both old and new. What makes the film especially poignant is the knowledge that the folk rocker penned his newer compositions after learning he had a brain aneurysm, for which he successfully underwent surgery. [PG]▼

Nell (1994) C-113m.  D: Michael Apted. Jodie Foster, Liam Neeson, Natasha Richardson, Richard Libertini, Nick Searcy, Robin Mullins, Jeremy Davies. The death of a hermit woman brings a small-town Southern doctor into the backwoods, where he discovers she had a daughter who's been raised completely apart from civilization. He becomes fascinated—and so does a research scientist at a nearby university, who wants to "capture" the woman. Intriguing premise goes flat as the story loses focus, and the characters' motivations and relationships grow fuzzy. Foster gives a bravura performance but it's hard to forget it is a performance. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Nelly et Monsieur Arnaud (1995-French-Italian-German) C-106m.  D: Claude Sautet. Emmanuelle Béart, Michel Serrault, Jean-Hugues Anglade, Claire Nadeau, Françoise Brion, Michel Lonsdale. Subtle, beautifully acted story of a 25-year-old woman in debt and stuck in a nowhere marriage, who meets an elegant and instantly infatuated man some 40 years her senior who offers to pay her bills and give her a job typing his memoirs. Sautet proves that in his 70s he's still as effective as ever in painting the difficulties and heartbreak of human relationships. ▼

Nelson Affair, The (1973-British) C-118m. ½ D: James Cellan Jones. Glenda Jackson, Peter Finch, Michael Jayston, Anthony Quayle, Margaret Leighton, Dominic Guard, Nigel Stock, Barbara Leigh-Hunt. Handsome retelling of Lord Nelson-Lady Hamilton affair, making the "Lady" a slut; interesting but claustrophobic—even climactic sea battle was shot indoors! British title: A BEQUEST TO THE NATION. Panavision. [PG]

Nemesis (1993) C-94m. *½ D: Albert Pyun. Olivier Gruner, Tim Thomerson, Marjorie Monaghan, Merle Kennedy, Brion James, Deborah Shelton, Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa, Nicholas Guest, Jackie Earle Haley. In 2027, tough cop Gruner, who's had many body parts replaced with mechanical duplicates, fights a group of androids (here called "cyborgs") intent on conquering world. Just another amalgam of ideas borrowed from better movies. Gruner has some appeal, though. Followed by two direct-to-video sequels. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Netette et Boni (1996-French) C-103m.  D: Claire Denis. Alice Houri, Gregoire Colin, Valeria Bruni-Tedeschi, Vincent Gallo, Jacques Nolot. Arresting, emotionally involving chronicle of two children of divorced parents: Netette (Houri), who is 15 and very pregnant, and lonely 18-year-old Boni (Colin), who is erotically obsessed with a baker's wife. A potent exploration of a brother-sister bond and how a dysfunctional family damages its youngest and most vulnerable members.▼

Neon Bible, The (1995-U.S.-British) C-92m.  D: Terence Davies. Gena Rowlands, Denis Leary, Diana Scarwid, Jacob Tierney, Leo Burmester, Frances Conroy, Peter McRobbie. Slow-as-molasses Truman Capote-like reminiscence about a young boy coming of age in the American South and his eccentric, melancholy Aunt Mae (Rowlands, who is good as always). Despite its abundant atmosphere and good intentions, this cannot compare with Davies' earlier works. He scripted, based on a novel by John Kennedy Toole. J-D-C Scope.▼●●

Nest, The (1980-Spanish) C-109m.  D: Jaime De Arminan. Hector Alterio, Ana Torrent, Luis Politti, Agustin Gonzalez, Patricia Adriani. Diverting but predictable drama detailing the relationship between

Nest, The (1988) C-88m.  D: Terence H. Winkless. Robert Lansing, Lisa Langlois, Franc Luz, Terri Treas, Stephen Davies, Diana Bellamy, Nancy Morgan. Trifling, ever so familiar chronicle of a failed scientific experiment resulting in the creation of large, hungry cockroaches. [R]▼●

Nesting, The (1981) C-104m.  D: Armand Weston. Robin Groves, Christopher Loomis, Michael David Lally, John Carradine, Gloria Grahame, Bill Rowley. Net, The (1995) C-118m. ½ D: Irwin Winkler. Sandra Bullock, Jeremy Northam, Dennis Miller, Diane Baker, Wendy Gazelle, Ken Howard, Ray McKinnon. The techno-thriller as plodding Sandra Bullock vehicle: She plays a mousy, vulnerable computer whiz. When bad guys need a disc she possesses, they stop at nothing—including deleting, then manipulating her identity on official computer records. Anyone who's ever seen a real thriller will be ahead of this story at every turn. Later a cable TV series. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel in 2005. [PG-13] ▼●●

Network (1976) C-121m. * D: Sidney Lumet. William Holden, Faye Dunaway, Peter Finch, Robert Duvall, Ned Beatty, Beatrice Straight, Wesley Addy, Darryl Hickman, Ken Kercheval, William Prince, Marlene Warfield. Paddy Chayefsky's outrageous satire on television looks less and less like fantasy as the years pass; uninhibited tale chronicles fourth-place network that will air anything for a big rating, including a patently insane, profanity-shouting "mad prophet of the airwaves" (Finch). Entire cast explodes, particularly Dunaway as ruthless programmer, Holden as conscientious newsman, Duvall as sharklike v.p., and Beatty as evangelicalist board chairman. Well-deserved Oscars went to Finch (posthumously), Dunaway, Straight, and Chayefsky. [R]▼●●

Nevada Smith (1966) C-135m.  D: Henry Hathaway. Steve McQueen, Karl Malden, Brian Keith, Arthur Kennedy, Suzanne Pleshette, Raf Vallone, Pat Hingle, Howard da Silva, Martin Landau. Good Western story. Smith swears revenge for senseless murder of his parents at the hands of outlaw gang. Based on character from THE CARPETBAGGERS. Remade as a TVM in 1975. Panavision.▼●●

Never a Dull Moment (1968) C-100m.  D: Jerry Paris. Dick Van Dyke, Edward G. Robinson, Dorothy Provine, Henry Silva, Joanna Moore, Tony Bill. Tired Disney comedy belies title, as TV performer Van Dyke gets involved with gangsters; even Robinson's performance is lifeless. ▼

Never Back Down (2008) C-113m.  D: Jeff Wadlow. Sean Faris, Djimon Hounsou, Amber Heard, Cam Gigandet, Evan Peters, Leslie Hope. Faris plays a hardheaded high school jock whose single-parent family moves from Iowa to Orlando, where it seems every teen lives in nouveau riche decadence. Happily, he stumbles into an underground mixed-martial arts world and starts training at a gym run by spiritual loner Hounsou. Wildly improbable plot piles cliché on cliché but should entertain its target action audience. Nemesis Gigandet can glare with the best of them. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Never Been Kissed (1999) C-107m. ½ D: Raja Gosnell. Drew Barrymore, David Arquette, Michael Vartan, Molly Shannon, John C. Reilly, Garry Marshall, Leelee Sobieski, Sean Whalen, Jordan Ladd, Jessica Alba, James Franco. Twenty-five-year-old newspaper copy editor gets her first chance as a reporter by going undercover and pretending to be a 17-year-old high school student. All this does is bring back vivid memories of her nerdy school days, while the assignment remains vague and unfulfilled. Star vehicle, if ever there was one, is buoyed by Barrymore's charm, but burdened with a muddled and barely believable story. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Never Cry Wolf (1983) C-105m.  D: Carroll Ballard. Charles Martin Smith, Brian Dennehy, Zachary Littimangnaq, Samson Jorah. Smith plays real-life Canadian author Farley Mowat who braved the Arctic, alone, to study behavior of wolves . . . and wound up learning as much about himself. Uneven, but filled with striking moments and passages, plus a wonderful performance by Smith. There's also the irony of a Walt Disney production in which the leading character takes to eating mice! Two decades later, Smith directed THE SNOW WALKER, based on a Mowat short story. [PG] ▼

Never Die Alone (2004) C-88m.  D: Ernest Dickerson. DMX, David Arquette, Michael Ealy, Reagan Gomez-Preston, Clifton Powell, Jennifer Sky, Drew Sidora, Antwon Tanner, Tommy "Tiny" Lister, Aisha Tyler. Narrated by a shot-to-death corpse (all similarities to SUNSET BLVD. end here), off-the-cuff drug melodrama from a Donald Goines novel traces the semi-rise but unambiguous fall of a dealer named King David (DMX), who tricks his girlfriends into snorting truly horrific substances. Arquette is the wannabe journalist who, by stumbling onto David's story, hopes to parlay it into the Bob Woodward big time. Moderately watchable in its tawdriness, but lacks the momentous central figure it thinks it has and the commanding lead actor it needs. Super 35. [R] ▼

NeverEnding Story, The (1984-West German-British) C-92m.  D: Wolfgang Petersen. Noah Hathaway, Barret Oliver, Tami Stronach, Moses Gunn, Patricia Hayes, Sydney Bromley, Gerald McRaney; voice of Alan Oppenheimer. Magical, timeless fantasy built around young Oliver visualizing what he's reading from a mystical book: boy warrior Hathaway is the only hope of saving the empire of Fantasia from being swallowed up by The Nothing. Amazing, unique effects, characters, and visual design (and a not-so-subtle message that Reading Is Good). Followed by two live-action sequels and an animated TV movie and series. U.S. version was cut by 7m. Technovision. [PG] ▼

NeverEnding Story II: The Next Chapter, The (1990-U.S.-German) C-89m. *½ D: George Miller. Jonathan Brandis, Kenny Morrison, Clarissa Burt, John Wesley Shipp, Martin Umbach. Mom's dead, dad's busy, and the swim coach says he suffers from a "high wimp factor." So, it's back to Fantasia (a magic land) for the young boy who loses himself in a storybook, where a child empress (as childlike as Drew Barrymore) is in danger. Poky and cheesy, though kids might take to some of the animal side-kicks. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Never Fear (1950) 82m. ½ D: Ida Lupino. Sally Forrest, Keefe Brasselle, Hugh O'Brian, Eve Miller, Lawrence Dobkin. Young dancer Forrest's life comes apart when she develops polio. Sincere drama scripted by Lupino and her then-husband, Collier Young. Aka THE YOUNG LOVERS. ▼

Never Forever (2007-U.S.-South Korean) C-101m. ½ D: Gina Kim. Vera Farmiga, Jung-Woo Ha, David Lee McInnis. A couple's inability to conceive a child is the only contentious issue in their otherwise happy marriage. Farmiga's oddly curious solution is risky at best. Film rests on the relationship between Farmiga and Jung-Woo, whose likability as a mismatched pair makes it worth watching. [R] ▼

Never Give a Inch SEE: Sometimes a Great Notion

Never Give a Sucker an Even Break (1941) 71m. ½ D: Edward Cline. W. C. Fields, Gloria Jean, Leon Errol, Susan Miller, Franklin Pangborn, Margaret Dumont. Completely insane comedy with Fields (in his last starring film) playing himself; no coherent plot, but a lot of funny scenes. Dumont plays "Mrs. Hemoglobin." Climactic chase is a classic, reused by Abbott and Costello in IN SOCIETY. Story by "Otis Cribblecoblis." ▼

Never Let Go (1960-British) 90m.  D: John Guillermin. Richard Todd, Peter Sellers, Elizabeth Sellars, Carol White, Mervyn Johns. Sellers gives heavy-handed performance as ruthless and sadistic racketeer in weak story about car thievery. Billed as his first dramatic role, it was a poor choice. ▼●

Never Let Me Go (1953) 94m. ½ D: Delmer Daves. Clark Gable, Gene Tierney, Bernard Miles, Richard Haydn, Kenneth More, Belita, Theodore Bikel. Unconvincing yet smooth account of Gable trying to smuggle ballerina-wife Tierney out of Russia. ▼

Never Never Land (1980-British) C-86m.  D: Paul Annett. Petula Clark, Cathleen Nesbitt, John Castle, Anne Seymour, Evelyn Laye, Roland Culver, Heather Miller. Nice little film about lonely child (Miller), her fascination with Peter Pan and connection with elderly Nesbitt. Best for the kids. [G]

Never on Sunday (1960-Greek) 91m. ½ D: Jules Dassin. Melina Mercouri, Jules Dassin, Georges Foundas, Titos Vandis, Mitsos Liguisos, Despo Diamantidou. Charming idyll of intellectual boob coming to Greece, trying to make earthy prostitute Mercouri cultured. Grand entertainment, with Oscar-winning title song by Manos Hadjidakis. Later a Broadway musical, Illya Darling. ▼●●

Never Say Die (1939) 80m.  D: Elliott Nugent. Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Andy Devine, Gale Sondergaard, Sig Ruman, Alan Mowbray, Monty Woolley. Bob marries Martha at Swiss spa of Bad Gaswasser, thinking he has a month to live. Good cast in lively, trivial romp. Cowritten by Preston Sturges. Filmed before in 1924. ▼●

Never Say Goodbye (1946) 97m. ½ D: James V. Kern. Errol Flynn, Eleanor Parker, Lucile Watson, S. Z. Sakall, Forrest Tucker, Donald Woods, Peggy Knudsen, Hattie McDaniel, Patti Brady. Light, predictable comedy with Flynn, the doting father of seven-year-old Brady, attempting to win back her mother (Parker) on the first anniversary of their divorce. ▼

Never Say Goodbye (1956) C-96m. ½ D: Jerry Hopper. Rock Hudson, Cornell Borchers, George Sanders, Ray Collins, David Janssen, Shelley Fabares. Spotty tearjerker of Hudson and Borchers, long separated, discovering one another again and creating fit home for their child. Remake of THIS LOVE OF OURS. Clint Eastwood is cast as Rock's lab assistant.

Never Say Never Again (1983) C-137m. ½ D: Irvin Kershner. Sean Connery, Klaus Maria Brandauer, Max von Sydow, Barbara Carrera, Kim Basinger, Bernie Casey, Alec McCowen, Edward Fox, Rowan Atkinson. Connery's stylish performance and self-deprecating humor make his return performance as James Bond (after 12 years) a real treat—but the film, a remake of THUNDERBALL, is uneven and overlong. Brandauer is a smooth villain, and Carrera a memorably sexy villainess, Fatima Blush. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Never So Few (1959) C-124m. ½ D: John Sturges. Frank Sinatra, Gina Lollobrigida, Peter Lawford, Steve McQueen, Richard Johnson, Paul Henreid, Brian Donlevy, Dean Jones, Charles Bronson. WW2 action/romance tale; salty performances which make one forget the clichés and improbabilities. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Never Steal Anything Small (1959) C-94m. ½ D: Charles Lederer. James Cagney, Shirley Jones, Roger Smith, Cara Williams, Nehemiah Persoff, Royal Dano, Horace McMahon. Odd musical comedy-drama, with Cagney a waterfront union racketeer who'll do anything to win union election. From Maxwell Anderson-Rouben Mamoulian play The Devil's Hornpipe. CinemaScope. ▼

Never Talk to Strangers (1995-U.S.-Canadian) C-102m. *½ D: Peter Hall. Rebecca De Mornay, Antonio Banderas, Dennis Miller, Len Cariou, Beau Starr, Tim Kelleher, Harry Dean Stanton. Criminal psychologist falls for a charming, mysterious stranger, while at the same time unexplained, terrifying incidents begin occurring. Standard-issue thriller would be more at home on television. De Mornay also coexecutive-produced. [R] ▼●●

Never to Love SEE: Bill of Divorcement, A (1940)

Never Too Late (1965) C-105m. ½ D: Bud Yorkin. Paul Ford, Connie Stevens, Maureen O'Sullivan, Jim Hutton, Jane Wyatt, Henry Jones, Lloyd Nolan. Occasionally amusing film version of hit Broadway play about impending parenthood of middle-agers Ford and O'Sullivan. Older performers are funny; Hutton, Stevens, script, and direction are not. Panavision. ▼

Never Too Young To Die (1986) C-92m. *½ D: Gil Bettman. John Stamos, Vanity, Gene Simmons, George Lazenby, Peter Kwong, Ed Brock, John Anderson, Robert Englund. Stamos, son of a spy, takes up with Vanity, one of his father's associates, to find out who murdered his dad. Pretty awful, though Simmons scores a few points for outrageousness in his portrayal of a power-crazed hermaphrodite. [R] ▼●

Neverwas (2007) C-108m.  D: Joshua Michael Stern. Aaron Eckhart, Ian McKellen, Brittany Murphy, William Hurt, Nick Nolte, Alan Cumming, Jessica Lange, Bill Bellamy, Vera Farmiga, Michael Moriarty, Cynthia Stevenson, Ryan Drescher. Fantasy and reality fail to blend in this account of psychiatrist Eckhart, who comes to work at the facility where his father, a mentally ill children's book author, once was treated. It's no wonder that, despite its A-list cast, this paper-thin fairy tale failed to earn U.S. theatrical distribution. Eckhart coproduced. Super 35. [PG-13] ●

Never Wave at a WAC (1952) 87m. ½ D: Norman Z. McLeod. Rosalind Russell, Marie Wilson, Paul Douglas, Arleen Whelan, Hillary Brooke, Louise Beavers, Frieda Inescort. Expanded from a TV play, this farce involves socialite Russell joining the WACs, forced to buckle down to hard work; Wilson as dumb comrade-at-arms is most diverting. [V]●

New Adventures of Pippi Longstocking, The (1988) C-100m.  D: Ken Annakin. Tami Erin, Eileen Brennan, Dennis Dugan, Dianne Hull, George DiCenzo, John Schuck, Dick Van Patten. Dreary Americanization of Astrid Lindgren's popular books about a plucky young girl—here, transformed into a tiresome troublemaker. May entertain undiscriminating children; adults should avoid at all costs. [G]▼●●

New Age, The (1994) C-110m. *½ D: Michael Tolkin. Peter Weller, Judy Davis, Patrick Bauchau, Corbin Bernsen, Jonathan Hadary, Patricia Heaton, Samuel L. Jackson, Audra Lindley, Paula Marshall, Adam West. Deadening deadpan satire, which its studio barely released, about a married couple who launch a born-to-go-bust boutique after they both lose their glitzy jobs on the same Recession-era day. Tolkin wrote THE PLAYER; perhaps this film would have benefitted from Robert Altman's wag-in-the-moon viewpoint. Jackson's sequence, in which he "motivates" some scam-artist telemarketers, is the only one with any real juice. [R]▼●

New Best Friend (2002) C-91m. BOMB D: Zoe Clarke-Williams. Meredith Monroe, Rachel True, Dominique Swain, Mia Kirshner, Taye Diggs, Scott Bairstow, Glynnis O'Connor, Oliver Hudson, Eric Michael Cole. Interminable would-be thriller about a sociopath working-class coed (Kirshner) determined to score with the rich and popular at an exclusive North Carolina college. Dreary teen exploitation is full of RASHOMON-like flashbacks and lesbian sex scenes but is so anemic you're unlikely to care. Terrible performances, with Diggs as a sheriff with an intermittent Southern accent. [R]▼●

New Centurions, The (1972) C-103m.  D: Richard Fleischer. George C. Scott, Stacy Keach, Jane Alexander, Rosalind Cash, Scott Wilson, Erik Estrada, Clifton James, Isabel Sanford, James B. Sicking, Ed Lauter, William Atherton, Roger E. Mosley. Fine, episodic adaptation by Stirling Silliphant of Joseph Wambaugh novel of rookie cops on modern-day L.A. police force, ultimately pessimistic in outlook. Great casting, performances; good storytelling. Panavision. [R]▼●●

New Guy, The (2002) C-89m. *½ D: Ed Decker. DJ Qualls, Eliza Dushku, Zoey Deschanel, Lyle Lovett, Eddie Griffin, Jerod Mixon, Parry Shen, Gene Simmons, M.C. Gainey, Geoffrey Lewis, Illeana Douglas,

Jerry O'Connell, Charlie O'Connell, Tommy Lee, Vanilla Ice, Henry Rollins, David Hasselhoff, Kool Mo Dee, Tony Hawk, Horatio Sanz. A harassed teenage nerd (Qualls) is transformed into an intimidating new person by a prison inmate (Griffin) and proceeds to live the cool life at a different high school. Revenge/teensploitation comedy has enough quirks to make one wonder what might have been with a better script, better director, and better actors. [PG-13]▼●

New Interns, The (1964) 123m. ½ D: John Rich. Michael Callan, Dean Jones, Telly Savalas, Inger Stevens, George Segal, Greg Morris, Stefanie Powers, Lee Patrick, Barbara Eden. Follow-up to THE INTERNS contains unusual hospital soap opera with better than average cast and a nifty party sequence.

New in Town (2009) C-97m. *½ D: Jonas Elmer. Renée Zellweger, Harry Connick, Jr., Siobhan Fallon Hogan, J. K. Simmons, Frances Conroy, Mike O'Brien, Ferron Guerreiro, James Durham, Barbara James Smith. Hopelessly formulaic romantic comedy finds tough-as-nails businesswoman Zellweger sent by a multinational company to a small town to shut down the local factory. After butting heads with the union organizer (laconically played by Connick, Jr.) she predictably falls in love and sets out to find a way to save the plant. Familiar approach of NEW IN TOWN is about as old hat as they come. [PG]●

New Jack City (1991) C-97m.  D: Mario Van Peebles. Wesley Snipes, Ice T, Allen Payne, Chris Rock, Mario Van Peebles, Judd Nelson, Michael Michele, Bill Nunn, Russell Wong, Vanessa Williams, Nick Ashford, Thalmus Rasulala. N.Y.C. police detective hires top maverick ex-cops to bring down a Napoleonic drug lord who's made his fortune selling crack (and whose role model, apparently, is the Al Pacino character in SCARFACE!). Lots of emotional energy, and strong performances, but its clearly stated anti-drug message is clouded by overblown melodrama—and several climaxes too many. [R]▼●●

New Jersey Drive (1995) C-95m.  D: Nick Gomez. Sharron Corley, Gabriel Casseus, Saul Stein, Gwen McGee, Andre Moore, Donald Adeosun Faison. Two teenagers are drawn into the underground world of carjacking in Newark, N.J., and soon find the full weight of the local police force coming down around them. Spike Lee executive-produced this gritty, well-meaning drama; unfortunately, it never shifts into high gear. Corley (in his film debut) once lived the life he portrays on-screen. [R]▼●●

New Kids, The (1985) C-90m.  D: Sean Cunningham. Shannon Presby, Lori Loughlin, James Spader, John Philbin, Eric Stoltz. Unexciting thriller about a brother and sister (Presby, Loughlin), two nice kids who are harassed by meanie Spader and his cronies. There's no gratuitous gore, but there are also no real chills. [PG]▼●●

New Kind of Love, A (1963) C-110m. ½ D: Melville Shavelson. Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward, Thelma Ritter, Eva Gabor, Maurice Chevalier, George Tobias, Marvin Kaplan, Robert Clary. Silly but enjoyable fluff with sportswriter Newman and fashion buyer Woodward tangling, and then falling in love, in Paris. The stars really put this one over; Chevalier appears as himself, title song sung by Frank Sinatra. ▼●

New Land, The (1972-Swedish) C-161m. ½ D: Jan Troell. Max von Sydow, Liv Ullmann, Eddie Axberg, Hans Alfredson, Monica Zetterlund, Per Oscarsson. Sequel to THE EMIGRANTS follows same characters as they settle in Minnesota, up to the ends of their lives. Superior performances, photography, many stirring scenes. A real winner; both films have been edited together for TV, dubbed in English, and presented as THE EMIGRANT SAGA. See also THE OX. [PG]▼●

New Leaf, A (1971) C-102m. ½ D: Elaine May. Walter Matthau, Elaine May, Jack Weston, George Rose, William Redfield, James Coco, Graham Jarvis, Doris Roberts, Renee Taylor, David Doyle. Amusing comedy of destitute Matthau planning to marry and murder klutzy May in order to inherit her fortune. Many funny moments, and May is terrific, but it's wildly uneven. Director/writer/star May disavowed finished film, which was reedited by others. [G]▼

New Life, A (1988) C-104m. ½ D: Alan Alda. Alan Alda, Ann-Margret, Hal Linden, Veronica Hamel, John Shea, Mary Kay Place, Beatrice Alda. Pleasant but pat comedy about a middle-aged couple's trials and tribulations after divorcing. Alda (sporting a beard and curly hair) also wrote the script. [PG-13]▼●

Newman's Law (1974) C-98m. *½ D: Richard Heffron. George Peppard, Roger Robinson, Eugene Roche, Gordon Piment, Louis Zorich, Abe Vigoda. Honest cop Peppard, bounced from the force for alleged corruption, investigates the case on his own. Dreary and predictable. [PG]▼

New Moon (1940) 105m. ½ D: Robert Z. Leonard. Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Mary Boland, George Zucco, H. B. Warner, Grant Mitchell, Stanley Fields. Nelson and Jeanette in old Louisiana, falling in love, singing "One Kiss," "Softly as in a Morning Sunrise," "Lover Come Back to Me," "Stout-Hearted Men." Oscar Hammerstein-Sigmund Romberg score sung before in 1930 filming with Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore. ▼●

New Orleans (1947) 89m. ½ D: Arthur Lubin. Arturo de Córdova, Dorothy Patrick, Billie Holiday, Louis Armstrong,

Woody Herman & Band, Meade Lux Lewis, other jazz stars. Hackneyed fictionalization of the birth of jazz, spanning 40 years, but there's plenty of good music. Holiday (cast as a maid!) does "Do You Know What It Means to Miss New Orleans" with Armstrong and all-star band, and it's sublime. Shelley Winters appears briefly as de Córdova's secretary. ▼●

New Rose Hotel (1999) C-92m. *½ D: Abel Ferrara. Christopher Walken, Willem Dafoe, Asia Argento, Yoshitaka Amano, Annabella Sciorra, Gretchen Mol, John Lurie, Ryuichi Sakamoto. Ludicrously steamy sleaze in which a pair of industrial spies (Walken, Dafoe) attempt to entice a brilliant geneticist (Amano) into switching firms by hiring a hooker (Argento) to seduce him. Meant to be a moody morality tale, but comes off silly and pompous. Based on a short story by sci-fi/cyberpunk writer William Gibson. Shot in 1997. [R] ▼●

Newsfront (1978-Australian) C-106m.  D: Phillip Noyce. Bill Hunter, Gerard Kennedy, Angela Punch, Wendy Hughes, Chris Haywood, John Ewart, Bryan Brown. Enjoyable, well-crafted tale of newsreel filmmakers—centering on dedicated cameraman Hunter—is a valentine to the movie newsreel industry. Among highlights are actual late 1940s and 1950s newsreel footage, nicely integrated into scenario. Cut by 6m. for initial U.S. release. [PG]▼●

Newsies (1992) C-125m. *½ D: Kenny Ortega. Christian Bale, Bill Pullman, Robert Duvall, Ann-Margret, Michael Lerner, Kevin Tighe, Charles Cioffi, David Moscow, Luke Edwards, Max Casella. Or, Howard the Paperboy. Ambitious musical about the 1899 strike by urchin peddlers of Pulitzer's New York World and William Randolph Hearst's Journal. Done in by lackluster score, and cramped production numbers that seem cheap despite the film's hefty production budget. Duvall, looking like one of the Smith Brothers, plays Pulitzer; Ann-Margret needlessly pads film's bloated running time as musical performer who inexplicably befriends the lads. Score by Alan Menken and Jack Feldman. Directing debut for choreographer Ortega. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Newton Boys, The (1998) C-113m.  D: Richard Linklater. Matthew McConaughey, Ethan Hawke, Skeet Ulrich, Vincent D'Onofrio, Julianna Margulies, Dwight Yoakam, Chloe Webb, Bo Hopkins. Lackadaisical true-life saga of four Texas brothers who robbed banks across the country from 1919 to 1924 and lived to tell about it. Gen-X auteur Linklater is largely unsuccessful at making a period actioner; indifferent pacing and superficial characterizations make this "The Mild Bunch." Best performance comes from Yoakam as a meek safecracking expert. Terrific honkytonk score by a group called Bad Livers (!); if you stick it out, the end credits feature interview footage of the real Newton Boys that's more entertaining than anything that preceded it. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

New Waterford Girl (2000-Canadian) C-97m. ½ D: Allan Moyle. Liane Balaban, Tara Spencer-Nairn, Nicholas Campbell, Mary Walsh, Mark McKinney, Andrew McCarthy, Cathy Moriarty. Agreeable but uneven account of dreamy 15-year-old Mooney Pottie (Balaban), who has artistic aspirations and yearns for a life in Paris, New York, or Barcelona . . . all of which makes her an odd duck to the natives in her provincial Nova Scotia hometown. On the money when zeroing in on Mooney and her frustrations, but the scenario often meanders, and some of the comic moments fall flat. U.S. version runs 90m. ▼●

New Wave SEE: Nouvelle Vague

New World, The (2005) C-149m. ½ D: Terrence Malick. Colin Farrell, Christopher Plummer, Q'Orianka Kilcher, Christian Bale, August Schellenberg, Wes Studi, David Thewlis, Yorick van Wageningen, Ben Mendelsohn, Raoul Trujillo, Brian F. O'Byrne, Irene Bedard, John Savage, Noah Taylor, Jonathan Pryce, Ben Chaplin, Roger Rees. Ambitious film about the settlement of Jamestown, Virginia, in 1607 and how Captain John Smith's relationship with a local chief's favorite daughter, Pocahontas, changes the dynamics between the natives and the new arrivals from Britain. Writer-director Malick's third film in 30 years is exquisitely detailed, with a vivid sense of time and place and a wonderfully fresh performance by 15-year-old Kilcher as Pocahontas . . . but it's still a bit like watching paint dry. At least it's beautiful paint. James Horner makes great use of Wagner themes in his score. Cut to 135m. after its initial release; longer version runs 172m. Panavision. [PG-13] ●

New Year's Day (1989) C-89m. ½ D: Henry Jaglom. Henry Jaglom, Gwen Welles, Maggie Jakobson, Melanie Winter, David Duchovny, Milos Forman, Michael Emil, Tracy Reiner. Another personal, hit-and-miss film from Jaglom, who plays a writer attempting to reclaim the N.Y.C. apartment he's sublet to Jakobson, Winter, and Welles. Typically, there is much talk about relationships and sex (among other subjects); some of it illuminating, much of it pretentious. Odd casting: filmmaker Forman as the apartment house janitor. [R] ▼●

New York Confidential (1955) 87m. ½ D: Russell Rouse. Broderick Crawford, Richard Conte, Marilyn Maxwell, Anne Bancroft, J. Carrol Naish. Energetic cast perks up formula exposé-of-racketeer narrative.

New York Minute (2004) C-91m. ½ D: Dennie Gordon. Ashley Olsen, Mary-Kate Olsen, Eugene Levy, Andy Richter, Riley Smith, Jared Padalecki, Dr. Drew Pinsky,

Darrell Hammond, Andrea Martin, Jack Osbourne. Twin sisters have grown apart—one's an uptight super-student, the other a class-cutting slob—but they come together during an adventurous day in N.Y.C. as a would-be spy attempts to kidnap one of them. You get pretty much what you'd expect from this innocuous Olsen vehicle; Levy plays an overzealous truant officer on the trail of his prize prey, Mary-Kate. [PG] ▼●

Next (2007) C-96m. *½ D: Lee Tamahori. Nicolas Cage, Julianne Moore, Jessica Biel, Thomas Kretschmann, Tory Kittles, Jose Zuniga, Jim Beaver, Jason Butler Harner, Michael Trucco, Peter Falk. Grade-B action film that somehow attracted A-list stars. Moore is an aggressive FBI agent pursuing a clairvoyant Vegas lounge magician who she is convinced is the only one who can foil a terrorist plot to nuke L.A. What, David Copperfield had another gig? Cage gamely plays this stuff with a straight face, while the normally reliable Moore looks decidedly uncomfortable. Based on the Philip K. Dick story "The Golden Man." HD Widescreen. [PG-13] ●

Next Best Thing, The (2000) C-108m. BOMB D: John Schlesinger. Madonna, Rupert Everett, Benjamin Bratt, Michael Vartan, Josef Sommer, Lynn Redgrave, Malcolm Stumpf, Neil Patrick Harris, Illeana Douglas. Awful soap opera about yoga instructor having a child with her best friend, who's gay, which works fine until she falls in love with another man. Unconvincing, even condescending at times, despite its self-satisfied script. Everett keeps telling Madonna how beautiful she is, but it takes late '40s-style Joan Crawford lighting to try to put that over. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Next Day Air (2009) C-84m. ½ D: Benny Boom. Donald Faison, Mike Epps, Wood Harris, Omari Hardwick, Emilio Rivera, Darius McCrary, Cisco Reyes, Yasmin Deliz, Mos Def, Debbie Allen, Lobo Sebastian, Malik Barnhardt. When delivery man Faison, perpetually high on weed, unwittingly delivers a large box full of cocaine to the wrong apartment, two inept criminals decide to cash in on this surprise gift while the intended recipient and his girlfriend frantically try to track it down. Farcical premise works in spite of director Boom's efforts to insert pointless violence via quick flashbacks that are jarringly out of place. A game cast keeps it watchable. [R]

Next Friday (2000) C-92m. *½ D: Steve Carr. Ice Cube, Mike Epps, Justin Pierce, John Witherspoon, Don "D.C." Curry, Jacob Vargas, Lobo Sebastian, Rolando Molina, Lisa Rodriguez, Tommy "Tiny" Lister, Jr. Slacker/stoner (Cube) finds that his problems are just beginning when, to escape the wrath of bully Lister, he is dispatched from the 'hood to his uncle and cousin in the 'burbs. Shrill, stupid sequel to FRIDAY is a sloppy pastiche of crude comic skits filled with lame stereotypes. Cube also scripted. Followed by FRIDAY AFTER NEXT. [R] ▼●●

Next Karate Kid, The (1994) C-104m.  D: Christopher Cain. Noriyuki "Pat" Morita, Hilary Swank, Michael Ironside, Constance Towers, Chris Conrad. Harmless, formulaic KARATE KID sequel (fourth in the series) with a twist: the "kid" is now a girl (Swank), an alienated teen who is taught self-esteem and martial arts by the benevolent Mr. Miyagi (Morita). [PG] ▼●●

Next Man, The (1976) C-108m.  D: Richard C. Sarafian. Sean Connery, Cornelia Sharpe, Albert Paulsen, Adolfo Celi, Charles Cioffi. Good melodrama in which scenery (N.Y.C., Bavaria, London, Morocco, etc.) and violence are blended to tell of international hit lady Sharpe falling in love with Saudi Arabian ambassador Connery as he tries to arrange peace with Palestine. Video titles: DOUBLE HIT and THE ARAB CONSPIRACY. [R] ▼●●

Next of Kin (1989) C-108m. *½ D: John Irvin. Patrick Swayze, Liam Neeson, Adam Baldwin, Helen Hunt, Andreas Katsulas, Bill Paxton, Ben Stiller, Michael J. Pollard. Chicago cop Swayze, of Appalachian descent, takes on Mr. Mob with the help of backwoods brother Neeson. High-concept, low-rent star vehicle. Would you stay in a hotel managed by Pollard? [R] ▼●●

Next One, The (1984) C-105m.  D: Nico Mastorakis. Keir Dullea, Adrienne Barbeau, Jeremy Licht, Peter Hobbs. Dullea, a Christ-like visitor from the future, washes up on a Greek island where widow Barbeau, living with her young son, falls in love with him. Mediocre sci-fi strains for significance. Filmed in 1981. Aka THE TIME TRAVELLER. ▼●●

Next Stop, Greenwich Village (1976) C-109m.  D: Paul Mazursky. Lenny Baker, Shelley Winters, Ellen Greene, Christopher Walken, Lou Jacobi, Mike Kellin, Lois Smith, Dori Brenner, Antonio Fargas, Jeff Goldblum. Comic, poignant film about Brooklyn boy Baker who moves to Greenwich Village in 1953 hoping to become an actor. Wonderful period atmosphere and characterizations; Winters is excellent as Baker's domineering mother. Look fast for Bill Murray in a bar. Semiautobiographical script by Mazursky. [R] ▼●●

Next Stop Wonderland (1998) C-104m.  D: Brad Anderson. Hope Davis, Alan Gelfant, Holland Taylor, Jose Zuniga, Phil (Philip Seymour) Hoffman, Robert Klein, Roger Rees. Unabashedly old-fashioned romantic comedy about a recently jilted nurse (Davis) whose love life takes a new turn when her meddling mother (Taylor, fun as ever) secretly places a personals ad for her. Somewhere amidst a sea of overeager bachelors is her Mr. Right (Gelfant), but their lives seem to intersect without so much as a meeting. Indie spin on SLEEPLESS IN SEATTLE has silly subplots but is bolstered by a wintry Boston locale, charm to spare, and a wonderfully bittersweet performance from Davis. [R] ▼●●

Next Voice You Hear . . . , The (1950) 83m. ½ D: William Wellman. James Whitmore, Nancy Davis (Reagan), Lillian Bronson, Jeff Corey, Gary Gray. The voice of God is heard nightly on the radio (but not by the audience) and has a profound impact on average American Whitmore, his wife and son. Ambitious if not terribly successful message film produced by Dore Schary. ▼

Niagara (1953) C-89m.  D: Henry Hathaway. Marilyn Monroe, Joseph Cotten, Jean Peters, Casey Adams, Don Wilson, Richard Allan. Black murder tale of couple staying at Niagara Falls, the wife planning to kill husband. Produced and cowritten by Charles Brackett; good location work. ▼●●

meets her soulmate while they're both shoplifting. Any film that launches a "romance" on that note provides ample warning for viewers who dare to continue. Tunney is unflinching in her performance as the gratingly foul-mouthed girl in this notably unpleasant film that adds a novel spin to lovers-on-the-lam cinema. [R] ▼

Nice Girl? (1941) 95m.  D: William A. Seiter. Deanna Durbin, Franchot Tone, Walter Brennan, Robert Stack, Robert Benchley. Little Deanna grows up in this cute comedy, with Tone and Stack developing amorous ideas about her. Songs: "Love At Last," "Thank You America." Video includes alternate ending. ▼

Nice Girl Like Me, A (1969-British) C-91m.  D: Desmond Davis. Barbara Ferris, Harry Andrews, Gladys Cooper, Bill Hinnant, James Villiers. Orphaned Ferris accidentally becomes impregnated twice by different men, is looked after by caretaker Andrews, whom she really loves. Appealing, silly and predictable. [M/PG] ▼

Nice Girls Don't Explode (1987) C-92m.  D: Chuck Martinez. Barbara Harris, Michelle Meyrink, William O'Leary, Wallace Shawn, James Nardini. Silly comedy (with a memorable title) about a girl who causes things to explode, especially when she gets amorous. Harris and Meyrink, as mother and daughter who share this curse, give it their best, but the sparks don't ignite. [PG] ▼●

Nice Little Bank That Should Be Robbed, A (1958) 87m.  D: Henry Levin. Tom Ewell, Mickey Rooney, Mickey Shaughnessy, Dina Merrill. Cast is game, but story is pure comball about goofy crooks using their gains to buy a racehorse. CinemaScope.

Nicholas and Alexandra (1971-British) C-183m. ½ D: Franklin Schaffner. Michael Jayston, Janet Suzman, Tom Baker, Harry Andrews, Jack Hawkins, Laurence Olivier, Michael Redgrave, Alexander Knox, Curt Jurgens, Irene Worth, John Wood, Brian Cox, Ian Holm. Lavishly filmed (with Oscar-winning art direction-set decoration and costumes), well-acted chronicle of Russian leaders, and revolution that turned their world upside down. Sure and steady, but eventually tedious, despite cameos by Olivier et al. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Nicholas Nickleby (1947-British) 108m.  D: Alberto Cavalcanti. Derek Bond, Cedric Hardwicke, Alfred Drayton, Bernard Miles, Sally Ann Howes, Mary Merrall, Sybil Thorndike, Cathleen Nesbitt. Dickens's classic tale of young man's struggle to protect his family from scheming uncle and a cruel world is vividly brought to life. Can't compare with the Royal Shakespeare Company's 8½-hour stage version—but still quite good. Some American prints run 95m. ▼

Douglas McGrath. Charlie Hunnam, Jamie Bell, Christopher Plummer, Jim Broadbent, Romola Garai, Tom Courtenay, Stella Gonet, Timothy Spall, Anne Hathaway, Juliet Stevenson, Nathan Lane, Barry Humphries, Alan Cumming, Edward Fox, Sophie Thompson. Dickens' colorful story of a young man trying to make his way after the death of his father is good, old-fashioned entertainment, with Hunnam an appealing hero, Bell a poignant sidekick, Plummer an unrepentant villain (Nicholas' heartless uncle), and the best character actors in England filling out key roles. Most inspired casting: American Lane and Dame Edna (Humphries) as the kindhearted owners of a traveling theater troupe. Super 35. [PG] ▼●

Nick & Norah's Infinite Playlist (2008) C-90m. ½ D: Peter Sollett. Michael Cera, Kat Dennings, Aaron Yoo, Rafi Gavron, Ari Graynor, Alexis Dziena, Zachary Booth, Jay Baruchel, Seth Meyers, Kevin Corrigan, John Cho, Eddie Kaye Thomas, Frankie Faison, Devendra Banhart. Heart-sick N.J. high schooler Cera still carries a torch for Dziena but can't pretend he isn't attracted to Dennings, whom he chances to meet during a night on the town in N.Y.C. Alternates between sweet, sincere moments and self-conscious artificiality; at its best capturing the atmosphere of the City at night. Aimed squarely at a teenage audience. Based on a novel by Rachel Cohn and David Levithan. [PG-13] ▼

Nickel Mountain (1985) C-88m. ½ D: Drew Denbaum. Michael Cole, Heather Langenkamp, Patrick Cassidy, Brian Kerwin, Grace Zabriskie, Don Beddoe, Ed Lauter. Warm drama of unwed teenage mother growing up in rural America, befriended by pathetic older man. Winning performance by Langenkamp. Adapted from John Gardner's novel; filmed in 1983. ▼

Nickelodeon (1976) C-121m.  D: Peter Bogdanovich. Ryan O'Neal, Burt Reynolds, Tatum O'Neal, Brian Keith, Stella Stevens, John Ritter, Jane Hitchcock, Harry Carey, Jr. Heartfelt valentine to early days of moviemaking, with O'Neal literally stumbling into his job as director, Reynolds an overnight screen hero. Based on reminiscences of such veterans as Raoul Walsh and Allan Dwan, film unfortunately loses steam halfway through. Entertaining on the whole, sparked by fine cast; script by Bogdanovich and W.D. Richter. Director's version runs 5m. longer in b&w. [PG] ▼

Nickel Ride, The (1975) C-99m.  D: Robert Mulligan. Jason Miller, Linda Haynes, Victor French, John Hillerman, Bo Hopkins. Uneven and generally obscure little drama about a syndicate contact man (Miller) who keeps keys to L.A. warehouses used by dealers in stolen goods. Panavision. [PG]

Nick of Time (1995) C-89m. ½ D: John Badham. Johnny Depp, Christopher Walken, Charles S. Dutton, Courtney Chase, Marsha Mason, Roma Maffia, Peter Strauss, Gloria Reuben, Bill Smitrovich, G. D. Spradlin. Businessman arrives in L.A. with his young daughter and within moments, she's taken hostage while he's instructed to commit murder! Watchable suspense yarn draws you in, but hurls credibility roadblocks in your path at every turn. A game cast gives it 100 percent. Attempt to create heightened suspense by playing out the story in "real time" (with endless closeups of clocks) doesn't pay off at all. [R] ▼●●

Nico-Icon (1995-German) C/B&W-67m.  D: Susanne Ofteringer. Fascinating documentary about a compelling, sadly tragic subject: Christa Päffgen, the beautiful but self-destructive German-born model and singer who re-created herself as Nico, one of Andy Warhol's "Superstars." Nico was no candidate for Mother-of-the-Year: she was a heroin addict who initiated her own son into using the drug! Warhol's interview, along with one of Nico filmed two years before her death in 1988, are among the highpoints. Lou Reed, Jackson Browne, and Paul Morrissey are among those seen on-camera in this trenchant documentary. ▼●●

Nicotina (2003-Mexican) C-93m.  D: Hugo Rodríguez. Diego Luna, Marta Beláustegui, Lucas Crespi, Jesús Ochoa, Rafael Inclán, Rosa María Bianchi, Daniel Giménez Cacho, Carmen Madrid. So-so crime caper/black comedy finds nerdy guy involved with Russian mobsters after he mistakenly delivers the wrong computer disk, throwing several characters' lives into turmoil. Gimmicky movie shot (mostly) in real time also deals with every aspect of cigarette addiction imaginable. Unfortunately nothing else about this film could be described as smokin'. [R]

Night, The SEE: La Notte

Night After Night (1932) 70m.  D: Archie Mayo. George Raft, Mae West, Constance Cummings, Wynne Gibson, Roscoe Karns, Louis Calhern, Alison Skipworth. Story of nightclub owner Raft's infatuation with "classy" Cummings is a crashing bore, but when Mae West comes on the screen lights up. It's her film debut, and she's in rare form. ▼●●

Night Ambush (1957-British) 93m.  D: Michael Powell, Emeric Pressburger. Dirk Bogarde, Marius Goring, David Oxley, Cyril Cusack, Christopher Lee. Taut WW2 actioner set in Crete, with fine British cast. Originally released in England as ILL MET BY MOONLIGHT at 104m. VistaVision. ▼

Night and Day (1946) C-128m.  D: Michael Curtiz. Cary Grant, Alexis Smith,

Monty Woolley, Ginny Simms, Jane Wyman, Eve Arden, Mary Martin, Victor Francen, Alan Hale, Dorothy Malone. Music only worthy aspect of fabricated biography of songwriter Cole Porter, stiffly played by Grant, who even sings "You're The Top." Martin re-creates "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" in film's highlight. ▼●●

Night and the City (1950) 101m. ½ D: Jules Dassin. Richard Widmark, Gene Tierney, Gogie Withers, Hugh Marlowe, Francis L. Sullivan, Herbert Lom, Mike Mazurki, Kay Kendall. Interesting film noir portrait of assorted losers in the netherworld of London, focusing on a young American hustler (Widmark) who's desperate to succeed. Marvelous showcase for Sullivan as an oily nightclub owner. Filmed in England. Remade in 1992. ▼●

Night and the City (1992) C-98m. ½ D: Irwin Winkler. Robert De Niro, Jessica Lange, Cliff Gorman, Alan King, Jack Warden, Eli Wallach, Barry Primus, Gene Kirkwood, Pedro Sanchez. De Niro is dynamic as always, playing a hustler who tries promoting a boxing match—setting himself up for personal and professional disaster at every turn. Colorful N.Y.C. ambience and solid cast combat the utter predictability of the story. Screenplay by Richard Price (who also plays a doctor), based on the 1950 film and its source novel by Gerald Kersh. [R] ▼●

Night at the Museum (2006) C-108m.  D: Shawn Levy. Ben Stiller, Carla Gugino, Dick Van Dyke, Mickey Rooney, Bill Cobbs, Jake Cherry, Ricky Gervais, Robin Williams, Steve Coogan, Kim Raver, Patrick Gallagher, Paul Rudd. Divorced dad (and perpetual screwup) Stiller can't afford to disappoint his son again. Desperate for a job, he tries out as night watchman at Manhattan's Museum of Natural History, unaware that the exhibits come to life every night and cause all sorts of havoc. Engaging fantasy for kids, based on Milan Trenc's book, artfully employs an arsenal of special effects; the imaginative story just happens to involve famous figures in world history. Stiller has a funny scene with a woman at an employment agency—nicely played by his mom, Anne Meara. Owen Wilson appears unbilled. Followed by a sequel. Super 35. [PG] ●

Night at the Museum: Battle of the Smithsonian (2009) C-104m.  D: Shawn Levy. Ben Stiller, Amy Adams, Owen Wilson,

Hank Azaria, Robin Williams, Christopher Guest, Alain Chabat, Ricky Gervais, Steve Coogan, Bill Hader, Jon Bernthal, Jay Baruchel, Craig Robinson, Clint Howard. With a setup that makes the word “contrived” seem mild, onetime security guard Stiller—now inexplicably a TV inventor/pitchman—comes to the rescue of his old friends, the exhibits at the Museum of Natural History, when they’re shipped to cold storage underneath the Smithsonian in Washington, D.C. Hilarity ensues (it says here). Lazy writing and silly, self-indulgent ideas fill this moneyed sequel—but if you’re under 10 years old it will probably play just fine. There are some funny moments, and Azaria is a hoot as the Pharaoh who sounds like movies’ original Im-ho-tep. Jonah Hill appears unbilld along with surprise guests. Super 35. [PG]

Night at the Roxbury, A (1998) C-82m. *½ D: John Fortenberry. Will Ferrell, Chris Kattan, Molly Shannon, Dan Hedaya, Loni Anderson, Elisa Donovan, Gigi Rice, Richard Grieco, Dwayne Hickman, Colin Quinn, Michael Clarke Duncan. The uncool Butabi Brothers from Saturday Night Live get (rather than rate) their feature film debut: a limp comedy about their attempt to wile themselves into the town’s trendiest nightclub. Talk about the last days of disco; five minutes of material gets stretched into nearly an hour and a half. The two stars also scripted. Chazz Palminteri has a cameo. Grieco completists should be aware that he plays himself. [PG-13] **▼●●

Night Before, The (1988) C-85m. * D: Thom Eberhardt. Keanu Reeves, Lori Loughlin, Theresa Saldana, Trinidad Silva, Suzanne Snyder, Morgan Lofting, Gwil Richards, Michael Greene. Mild (and all-too-familiar) comic misadventures, as a high-school nerd tries to remember what happened to him the previous night on the way to the prom. [PG-13] **▼

Nightbreed (1990-U.S.-Canadian) C-99m. ½ D: Clive Barker. Craig Sheffer, Anne Bobby, David Cronenberg, Charles Haid, Hugh Quarshie, Hugh Ross, Doug Bradley, Catherine Chevalier, Bob Sessions, Malcolm Smith, Oliver Parker, John Agar. Mistaken for a serial killer, Sheffer is killed at the gates of mysterious Midian, “where the monsters go.” He returns from the dead to join the monsters there, confusing girlfriend Bobby and enticing his psychiatrist Cronenberg, the

real killer. Intelligent, imaginative horror epic, but as adapted by Barker from his novel Cabal, the complicated film never becomes fully involving. Eye-popping apocalyptic climax. [R] **▼●●

Night Caller (1975-French-Italian) C-91m. * D: Henri Verneuil. Jean-Paul Belmondo, Charles Denner, Adalberto-Maria Meril, Lea Massari, Rosy Varte. Detective Belmondo tackles both a bank robbery case and an obscene phone caller who murders women at the end of the line. Action but little else. [R]

Night Caller from Outer Space (1965-British) 84m. ½ D: John Gilling. John Saxon, Maurice Denham, Patricia Haines, Alfred Burke, Jack Watson, Aubrey Morris. Well-done sci-fi thriller of alien kidnapping humans to take back to his home, a moon of Jupiter. U.S. theatrical title: BLOOD BEAST FROM OUTER SPACE. **▼●●

Night Call Nurses (1972) C-85m. * D: Jonathan Kaplan. Patti Byrne, Alana Collins, Mittie Lawrence, Dick Miller, Dennis Dugan, Stack Pierce. Kaplan’s feature debut is typical drive-in sex comedy; light-hearted and fast-paced, with good comic performances by Dugan and the ubiquitous Miller. Third in Roger Corman-produced series; followed by THE YOUNG NURSES. [R] **▼

Nightcremers, The (1972-British) C-96m. * D: Michael Winner. Marlon Brando, Stephanie Beacham, Thora Hird, Harry Andrews, Verna Harvey, Christopher Ellis, Anna Palk. Poor direction hurts attempt to chronicle what happened to the children in Henry James’ Turn of the Screw before original story began. [R] **▼●●

Night Creature (1978) C-83m. BOMB D: Lee Madden. Donald Pleasence, Nancy Kwan, Ross Hagen, Lesly Fine, Jennifer Rhodes. Macho writer Pleasence lives on Xanadu-like island retreat near Thailand, but a prowling leopard is giving him the jitters. Low-grade thriller, minus the thrills. Aka OUT OF THE DARKNESS. [PG] **▼

Night Creatures (1962-British) C-81m. ½ D: Peter Graham Scott. Peter Cushing, Yvonne Romain, Patrick Allen, Oliver Reed, Michael Ripper, Martin Benson, David Lodge. In 18th century England, country parson is also the notorious “dead” pirate leader of smugglers who pose as ghosts. Good fun with some scary moments. Remake of DR. SYN. Original British title: CAPTAIN CLEGG. **▼

Night Crossing (1981-British) C-106m. ½ D: Delbert Mann. John Hurt, Jane Alexander, Glynnis O’Connor, Doug McKeon, Beau Bridges, Ian Bannen, Klaus Lowitsch, Kay Walsh. Unexceptional though well-cast and not unexciting tale of two families’ escape from East Berlin via hot-air balloon. A Walt Disney production, based on a true story. [PG] **▼

Night Digger, The (1971-British) C-100m.  D: Alastair Reid. Patricia Neal, Pamela Brown, Nicholas Clay, Jean Anderson, Graham Crowden, Yootha Joyce. Odd, usually effective psychological thriller adapted from Joy Cowley novel by Roald Dahl. With the unexpected arrival of young handyman, sad relationship between two country women takes turn for the better, until they discover what he does on off-hours. Excellent performances, fine Bernard Herrmann score. Aka THE ROAD BUILDER. [R]

Night Evelyn Came Out of the Grave, The (1971-Italian) C-90m. *½ D: Emilio Miraglia. Anthony Steffen, Marina Malfatti, Rod Murdoch, Giacomo Rossi-Stuart, Umberto Raho. Dreadful horror whodunit about British lord released from psychiatric clinic following wife's death, who begins to suspect she is still alive when her crypt is discovered empty. Techniscope. [R]▼

Nightfall (1956) 78m.  D: Jacques Tourneur. Aldo Ray, Brian Keith, Anne Bancroft, Jocelyn Brando, James Gregory, Frank Albertson. Fast-moving, well-made story of innocent man wanted by police for killing of friend, chased by actual killers for stolen money he found.▶

Nightfall (1988) C-82m. BOMB D: Paul Mayersberg. David Birney, Sarah Douglas, Alexis Kanner, Andra Millian, Charles Hayward, Susie Lindeman, Starr Andreoff. Hopelessly muddled adaptation of Isaac Asimov's classic short story about an alien world in a three-star solar system whose inhabitants face the coming darkness of nightfall (occurring only once every 1000 years) with abject terror. Birney is miscast in this cheesy production. Remade in 2000 as ISAAC ASIMOV'S NIGHTFALL. [PG-13]▼

Night Falls on Manhattan (1997) C-113m. ½ D: Sidney Lumet. Andy Garcia, Richard Dreyfuss, Lena Olin, Ian Holm, Ron Leibman, James Gandolfini, Colm Feore, Shick Mahmud-Bey, Paul Guilfoyle. Cop turned lawyer joins the D.A.'s staff in N.Y.C. and rises to the top by prosecuting a headline-making case in which his father, a veteran detective, was shot. Then he has to deal with the stickier issue of police corruption, which hits awfully close to home. Intense and watchable saga (adapted by Lumet from Robert Daley's novel Tainted Evidence) suffers from one major flaw: its central character's naïveté. He's constantly shocked by what we in the audience already know—or have guessed. Leibman is dynamite as the bombastic D.A. [R]▼●

Night Fighters (1960-British) 85m. ½ D: Tay Garnett. Robert Mitchum, Anne Heywood, Dan O'Herlihy, Cyril Cusack, Richard Harris, Marianne Benet. Sporadically actionful tale of Irish Revolution, with Mitchum joining the cause against his will. Original title: A TERRIBLE BEAUTY.

Night Flier, The (1998) C-99m. ½ D: Mark Pavia. Miguel Ferrer, Julie Entwisle, Dan Monahan, Merton H. Moss. Black-hearted tabloid reporter meets his match when he tracks a mysterious bloodsucking serial killer who flies a black Cessna plane from crime scene to crime scene. Genuinely creepy mood is bolstered by Ferrer's enjoyably hissable heavy. Not-bad directorial debut for Pavia until the film's final third, which descends into typical gorefest shtick. Originally shown on cable, then released in theaters. Aka STEPHEN KING'S THE NIGHT FLIER. [R]▼●

Night Flight From Moscow (1973-French-Italian-West German) C-113m. ½ D: Henri Verneuil. Yul Brynner, Henry Fonda, Dirk Bogarde, Philippe Noiret, Virna Lisi, Farley Granger, Robert Alda, Marie Dubois, Elga Andersen. Espionage thriller about the defection of Russian diplomat Brynner is compromised by the middling screenplay adapted from Pierre Nord's cloak-and-dagger novel Le 13e Suicide. Night Full of Rain, A (1978-Italian) C-104m.  D: Lina Wertmuller. Giancarlo Giannini, Candice Bergen, Allison Tucker, Jill Eikenberry, Michael Tucker, Anne Byrne. Wertmuller's first English language effort (shot in Rome and San Francisco) is unsatisfying fantasy drama about relationship between journalist Giannini and feminist wife Bergen, who's quite good. Full title: THE END OF THE WORLD IN OUR USUAL BED IN A NIGHT FULL OF RAIN. [R]▼

Night Game (1989) C-95m. *½ D: Peter Masterson. Roy Scheider, Karen Young, Richard Bradford, Paul Gleason, Carlin Glynn. Texas police detective goes after a serial killer. What a shame to find good actors and a talented director wasting their time with such third-rate material. [R]▼●

Night Games (1980) C-100m. *½ D: Roger Vadim. Cindy Pickett, Joanna Cassidy, Barry Primus, Paul Jenkins, Gene Davis. Frigid housewife will make it only with guy who shows up at night in a bird suit. Vadim may be kidding, but it's tough to tell. [R]▼

Night Has a Thousand Eyes (1948) 80m. ½ D: John Farrow. Edward G. Robinson, Gail Russell, John Lund, Virginia Bruce, William Demarest. Intriguing story of magician who has uncanny power to predict the future; script is corny at times. Based on a story by Cornell Woolrich.

Nighthawks (1981) C-99m.  D: Bruce Malmuth. Sylvester Stallone, Billy Dee Williams, Lindsay Wagner, Persis Khambatta, Nigel Davenport, Rutger Hauer, Joe Spinell, Catherine Mary Stewart. Exciting story of two N.Y.C. street cops reassigned to special unit that's tracking a ruthless international terrorist (Hauer). Night Heaven Fell, The (1958-French) C-90m. ½ D: Roger Vadim. Brigitte Bardot, Alida Valli, Stephen Boyd, Pepe Nieto. Turgid drama of Bardot dallying with Boyd, who's planning to kill her uncle. CinemaScope.▼●

Night in Casablanca, A (1946) 85m.  D: Archie Mayo. Groucho, Harpo, Chico Marx, Lisette Veree, Charles Drake, Lois Collier, Dan Seymour, Sig Ruman. No classic, but many funny sequences in latter-day Marx outing, ferreting out Nazi spies in Casablanca hotel.▼●

Night in Heaven, A (1983) C-80m.  D: John G. Avildsen. Lesley Ann Warren, Christopher Atkins, Robert Logan, Carrie Snodgrass, Deborah Rush, Sandra Beall, Alix Elias, Denny Terrio, Andy Garcia. Teacher Warren lets her friends drag her to a male strip joint, where the star attraction (Atkins) is a student she's flunking. Off-beat romantic drama penned by Joan Tewkesbury had real possibilities, but many of them were apparently left on the cutting room floor (note brief running time). Still worth a peek for fine performance by Warren. [R]▼●

Night in the Life of Jimmy Reardon, A (1988) C-90m. ½ D: William Richert. River Phoenix, Ann Magnuson, Meredith Salenger, Ione Skye, Louanne, Matthew L. Perry. Richert's film of his own youthful novel (Aren't You Even Gonna Kiss Me Goodbye?) doesn't work overall . . . but it has something. Phoenix is a high school Romeo preparing for a fall from grace when his more affluent friends prepare to leave for ritzier colleges; Magnuson's cameo (as an amorous family friend) is a standout, but other performances fall short. Handsomely photographed by John Connor. [R]▼●●

Night Into Morning (1951) 86m.  D: Fletcher Markle. Ray Milland, John Hodiak, Nancy Davis (Reagan), Lewis Stone, Jean Hagen, Rosemary DeCamp. Small-town

Nightkill (1980-German) C-97m. ½ D: Ted Post. Jaclyn Smith, Mike Connors, James Franciscus, Robert Mitchum, Fritz Weaver, Sybil Danning. Confused suspense drama involving a love triangle that ends in murder and a cat-and-mouse game between a wealthy widow and a mysterious investigator. Filmed on location in Arizona by a German company.▼

Night Listener, The (2006) C-81m.  D: Patrick Stettner. Robin Williams, Toni Collette, Bobby Cannavale, Rory Culkin, Joe Morton, John Cullum, Sandra Oh, Becky Ann Baker. A radio host who spins stories drawn from his experiences responds to a young fan in a series of phone calls, but soon begins to suspect that something is not right with the boy and his overprotective mother. The nascent intrigue in this adaptation of Armistead Maupin's novel never bears fruit here; a gloomy, unsatisfying film that thwarts a talented cast. Maupin cowrote the film. [R]●

Nightmare (1956) 89m. ½ D: Maxwell Shane. Edward G. Robinson, Kevin McCarthy, Connie Russell, Virginia Christine, Rhys Williams, Meade "Lux" Lewis, Billy May. Location filming in New Orleans is a major asset of this moody psychological drama about musician McCarthy, who has an all-too-real nightmare in which he commits murder. Robinson sparks the proceedings as a crafty homicide detective. Remake of FEAR IN THE NIGHT, based on a story by William Irish (Cornell Woolrich).

Nightmare (1964-British) 83m. ½ D: Freddie Francis. David Knight, Moira Redmond, Jennie Linden, Brenda Bruce, George A. Cooper, Clytie Jessop, Irene Richmond. Linden returns to her family mansion, plagued by nightmares, and fears that she may be turning into an insane killer, like her mother before her. Typical Hammer Films it's-all-a-plot plot in DIABOLIQUE vein is heightened by elegant camerawork and good performances. Hammerscope.▼●●

Nightmare Before Christmas, The (1993) C-75m.  D: Henry Selick. Voices of Danny Elfman, Chris Sarandon, Catherine O'Hara, William Hickey, Glenn Shadix, Paul Reubens, Ken Page. Highly imaginative, stop-motion animation feature about Jack Skellington, the Pumpkin King, who tires of the old routine in Halloween Town and becomes enamored of Christmas instead—unaware that his brand of Grand Guignol and the wintry holiday don't really go together. Constantly surprising visuals and character delineation mesh with Danny Elfman's lively score (he also provides Jack's beautiful singing voice). Produced by Tim Burton, who concocted the story and many of the designs years earlier. Released to theaters in 3-D in 2006 and 2007. [PG] **▼●●

Nightmare in Blood (1976) C-89m. ½ D: John Stanley. Jerry Walter, Dan Caldwell, Barrie Youngfellow, Kathleen Quinlan, Kerwin Mathews. Horror film actor visiting fan convention turns out to be a real vampire after all; low-budget spoof made in San Francisco will appeal particularly to horror buffs for its many in-jokes. Techniscope. [R] **▼●

Nightmare in Wax (1969) C-91m.  D: Bud Townsend. Cameron Mitchell, Anne Helm, Scott Brady, Berry Kroeger, Victoria Carroll. Paraphrase of HOUSE OF WAX has Mitchell as former movie makeup man whose wax museum is full of actors "missing" from the studio. [M] **▼●

Nightmare of Terror SEE: Demons of the Mind

Nightmare on Elm Street, A (1984) C-92m. ½ D: Wes Craven. John Saxon, Ronnee Blakley, Heather Langenkamp, Amanda Wyss, Nick Corri, Johnny Depp, Charles Fleischer, Robert Englund. Several teenagers discover they're all having nightmares about the same character, scar-faced Fred Krueger—a kind of ghost who can enter their dreams at will, and kill them in macabre ways. It's up to surviving teen Nancy (Langenkamp) to try to stop him. Imaginative premise given routine treatment, but this box-office smash led to a handful of sequels and a TV series, Freddy's Nightmares. [R] **▼●●

Nightmare on Elm Street Part 2, A: Freddy's Revenge (1985) C-84m.  D: Jack Sholder. Mark Patton, Kim Myers, Robert Rusler, Clu Gulager, Hope Lange, Marshall Bell, Sydney Walsh, Robert Englund. Reworking of first film's story (set five years later) has teenage boy plagued by dreams of demonic Freddy, who is intent on taking over both his mind and body . . . so he can kill all the neighborhood teens. Gruesome special effects dominate this slasher saga. [R] **▼●●

Nightmare on Elm Street 3, A: Dream Warriors (1987) C-96m.  D: Chuck Russell. Heather Langenkamp, Patricia Arquette, Larry Fishburne, Priscilla Pointer, Craig Wasson, Robert Englund, Brooke Bundy, Rodney Eastman, John Saxon, Dick Cavett, Zsa Zsa Gabor. When troubled teens in a psychiatric hospital begin to be visited in their dreams by the chuckling, murderous shade of Freddy Krueger, Nancy (Langenkamp), the survivor of the first film and now a psychiatrist, helps another doctor and the frightened teens battle Freddy. Well written and imaginatively directed, this is the best of the Elm Street films, and boasts some of the most startling effects as well. [R] **▼●●

Nightmare on Elm Street 4, A: The Dream Master (1988) C-92m.  D: Renny Harlin. Robert Englund, Rodney Eastman, Danny Hassel, Andras Jones, Tuesday Knight, Toy Newkirk, Ken Sagoes, Brooke Theiss, Lisa Wilcox, Brooke Bundy. Revived by flaming dog urine (!), Freddy Krueger finally kills all the children of those who originally burned him to death, and looks for new teens to terrorize, but he's opposed by a "dream master," his spiritual opposite. Series was showing its age by this point, with extravagant effects, a thin story, and far too many wisecracks. A 1989 sequel and TV series followed. [R] **▼●●

Nightmare on Elm Street, A: The Dream Child (1989) C-89m. *½ D: Stephen Hopkins. Robert Englund, Lisa Wilcox, Kelly Jo Minter, Erika Anderson, Whitby Hertford, Danny Hassel. Fifth in the NIGHTMARE series, with everyone except Englund just going through the paces. Here, scarred, dream-haunting Freddy Krueger (Englund) uses the unborn child of Wilcox to strike at her friends. As usual, special effects are a highlight but don't save the film from being a bore. Followed by FREDDY'S DEAD: THE FINAL NIGHTMARE. [R] **▼●●

Nightmares (1983) C-99m.  D: Joseph Sargent. Cristina Raines, Timothy James, William Sanderson, Emilio Estevez, Moon Zappa, Lance Henriksen, Robin Gammell, Richard Masur, Veronica Cartwright, Bridgette Andersen, Albert Hague. Four-part film (originally made for TV) with Twilight Zone aspirations but uninspired writing, and mostly predictable outcomes. Hasn't anyone read O. Henry lately? Themes range from a knife-wielding loony on the loose to a kid who becomes obsessed with beating a video arcade game. [R] **▼●

Nightmaster SEE: Watch the Shadows Dance

Night, Mother (1986) C-96m.  D: Tom

Moore. Sissy Spacek, Anne Bancroft. Unhappy young woman who lives with her mother decides to commit suicide; her mother spends the night trying to talk her out of it. Well acted, directed, and edited, but still just a photographed stage drama, missing the electricity of a live performance ... and without the element of doubt about its conclusion that marked Marsha Norman's Pulitzer Prize-winning play. [PG-13]▼●

Night Moves (1975) C-99m. ½ D: Arthur Penn. Gene Hackman, Jennifer Warren, Susan Clark, Edward Binns, Harris Yulin, Kenneth Mars, James Woods, Melanie Griffith, Dennis Dugan, Max Gail. L.A. detective Hackman puts aside his marital woes to track nymphet Griffith to Florida Keys. Complicated but underrated psychological suspenser by Alan Sharp leads to stunning climax. [R]▼●●

Night Must Fall (1937) 117m.  D: Richard Thorpe. Robert Montgomery, Rosalind Russell, Dame May Whitty, Alan Marshal, Kathleen Harrison, E. E. Clive, Beryl Mercer. Famous film of Emlyn Williams' suspenseful play. Young woman (Russell) slowly learns identity of mysterious brutal killer terrorizing the countryside. Montgomery has showy role in sometimes stacy but generally effective film, with outstanding aid from Russell and Whitty. Screenplay by John Van Druten. Remade in 1964.▼

Night Must Fall (1964-British) 105m. ½ D: Karel Reisz. Albert Finney, Susan Hampshire, Mona Washbourne, Sheila Hancock, Michael Medwin, Joe Gladwin, Martin Wyldeck. Cerebral attempt to match flair of original, this remake is too obvious and theatrical for any credibility. Reisz and Finney produced.

Night My Number Came Up, The (1955-British) 94m. * D: Leslie Norman. Michael Redgrave, Sheila Sim, Alexander Knox, Denholm Elliott, Ursula Jeans, Michael Hordern, George Rose, Alfie Bass. First-rate suspense film will have you holding your breath as it recounts tale of routine military flight, the fate of which may or may not depend on a prophetic dream. Screenplay by R. C. Sherriff, from an article by Victor Gollard.▼

Night of Dark Shadows (1971) C-97m. BOMB D: Dan Curtis. David Selby, Lara Parker, Kate Jackson, Grayson Hall, John Karlen, Nancy Barrett. Ripoff exploitation

film bears little resemblance to popular TV serial in predictable yawner about ghosts and reincarnation in New England. Follow-up to HOUSE OF DARK SHADOWS lacks everything that made first one so good. [PG]▼●

Night of Love, A SEE: Manifesto
Night of the Big Heat SEE: Island of the Burning Doomed

Night of the Blood Monster (1970-Spanish-Italian-West German) C-84m. *½ D: Jess Frank (Jesus Franco). Christopher Lee, Maria Schell, Leo Genn, Maria Rohm, Margaret Lee. Lee is fine as Judge Jeffreys, a brutal magistrate presiding over "Bloody Assizes" after the Monmouth Rebellion against King James II, but movie itself is tedious and grisly. Aka THE BLOODY JUDGE. CinemaScope. [PG]●

Night of the Comet (1984) C-94m. ½ D: Thom Eberhardt. Catherine Mary Stewart, Kelli Maroney, Robert Beltran, Geoffrey Lewis, Mary Woronov, Sharon Farrell, Michael Bowen. World comes to an end, leaving only a couple of California valley girls behind! Smart satire, with clever and occasionally chilling moments, but plays all its cards too soon. [PG-13]▼●

Night of the Demon SEE: Curse of the Demon

Night of the Demons (1987) C-89m. *½ D: Kevin S. Tenney. Cathy Podewell, Alvin Alexis, William Gallo, Mimi Kin-kade, Linnea Quigley, Lance Fenton. On Halloween night, wouldn't you know it, some Typical Teenagers pick the wrong possessed mortuary to party in. Everything about this amateurish movie is gratuitous, including the movie itself. Good makeup, though ... especially the prosthetics on Quigley! Aka HALLOWEEN PARTY. Followed by two sequels. [R]▼●●

Night of the Eagle SEE: Burn, Witch, Burn!

Night of the Following Day, The (1969) C-93m. ½ D: Hubert Cornfield. Marlon Brando, Richard Boone, Rita Moreno, Pamela Franklin, Jess Hahn, Gerard Buhr. Good cast makes this sordid tale of young girl's kidnapping somewhat more interesting than it should be; pretty rough in spots. Filmed in France. [R]▼●

Night of the Generals (1967-British) C-148m. *½ D: Anatole Litvak. Peter O'Toole, Omar Sharif, Tom Courtenay, Donald Pleasence, Joanna Pettet, Christopher Plummer, John Gregson, Philippe Noiret. A WW2 whodunit, film has potential but gets lost in murky script, lifeless performances. A dud. Panavision.▼●

Night of the Ghouls SEE: Revenge of the Dead

Night of the Grizzly, The (1966) C-102m. ½ D: Joseph Pevney. Clint Walker, Martha Hyer, Keenan Wynn, Nancy Kulp, Ron Ely, Regis Toomey, Jack Elam. Acceptable Western of rancher Walker overcoming all obstacles, even a persistent vicious bear, to Western life. Techniscope. ▼

Night of the Hunter, The (1955) 93m. ½ D: Charles Laughton. Robert Mitchum, Shelley Winters, Lillian Gish, Evelyn Varden, Peter Graves, James Gleason, Billy Chapin, Sally Jane Bruce. Atmospheric allegory of innocence, evil, and hypocrisy, with psychotic religious fanatic Mitchum chasing homeless children for money stolen by their father. Mitchum is marvelously menacing, matched by Gish as wise matron who takes in the kids. Starkly directed by Laughton; his only film behind the camera. Screenplay credited to James Agee, from the Davis Grubb novel. Remade as a TVM in 1991 with Richard Chamberlain. ▼●●

Night of the Iguana, The (1964) 118m.  D: John Huston. Richard Burton, Deborah Kerr, Ava Gardner, Sue Lyon, Skip Ward, Grayson Hall, Cyril Delevanti. Plodding tale based on Tennessee Williams play; alcoholic former clergyman Burton, a bus-tour guide in Mexico, is involved with Kerr, Gardner, and Lyon. Dorothy Jeakins won an Oscar for her costumes. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Night of the Juggler (1980) C-101m. *½ D: Robert Butler. James Brolin, Cliff Gorman, Richard Castellano, Abby Bluestone, Linda G. Miller, Julie Carmen, Barton Heyman, Mandy Patinkin. A sickie mistakenly kidnaps the daughter of an ex-cop (Brolin), who then leads a city-wide rampage to get her back. Fast-paced but wildly implausible movie paints a notably ugly portrait of N.Y.C. and its people. [R] ▼

Night of the Laughing Dead SEE: Crazy House (1973)

Night of the Lepus (1972) C-88m. *½ D: William F. Claxton. Stuart Whitman, Janet Leigh, Rory Calhoun, DeForest Kelley, Paul Fix, Melanie Fullerton. Rabbits weighing 150 pounds and standing four feet high terrorize the countryside; National Guard, not Elmer Fudd, comes to the rescue. [PG]

Night of the Living Dead (1968) 96m. ½ D: George A. Romero. Duane Jones, Judith O'Dea, Russell Streiner, Karl Hardman, Keith Wayne. Romero's first feature is the touchstone modern horror film: seven people barricade themselves inside a farmhouse while an army of flesh-eating zombies roams the countryside. Once considered the ne plus ultra of gore, film is less stomach-churning by today's standards, yet its essential power to chill remains undiminished despite scores of imitations. Shoe-string production values merely add to authentic feel. Don't watch this alone! Remade in 1990 and 2006. Sequel: DAWN OF THE DEAD. Also shown in computer-colored version. Beware "30th Anniversary Edition" with new footage, dubbing, and music. ▼●●

Night of the Living Dead (1990) C-96m.  D: Tom Savini. Tony Todd, Patricia Tallman, Tom Towles, McKee Anderson, William Butler, Katie Finerman. Until near the end, this is a scene-for-scene remake of the disturbing original; it's in color, with a tougher heroine and more potent violence, but it has almost none of the impact of the first version. Makeup expert Savini's direction can't overcome the extreme familiarity of the material. Romero scripted, none too well. [R] ▼●●

Night of the Living Dead 3D (2006) C-80m. BOMB D: Jeff Broadstreet. Brianna Brown, Joshua DesRoches, Johanna Black, Greg Travis, Ken Ward, Sid Haig. Pointless remake of the 1968 shocker that even 3-D couldn't salvage in its theatrical presentation. A brother and sister drive to a cemetery where their aunt is supposed to be buried; instead, they encounter a pack of flesh-eating zombies, and all hell breaks loose. Undernourished low-budget horror outing foolishly includes scenes of George Romero's original (seen on television), as if to underscore the gulf that separates the two films. [R] ●

Night of the Quarter Moon (1959) 96m. *½ D: Hugo Haas. Julie London, John Drew Barrymore, Nat King Cole, Dean Jones, James Edwards, Anna Kashfi, Agnes Moorehead, Jackie Coogan. Trite handling of miscegenation theme; good cast wasted. Retitled: FLESH AND FLAME. CinemaScope.

Night of the Shooting Stars, The (1982-Italian) C-106m. ½ D: Paolo and Vittorio Taviani. Omero Antonutti, Margarita Lozano, Claudio Bigagli, Massimo Bonetti, Norma Martel. Extraordinarily touching, involving, richly textured drama of a group of Tuscan villagers during WW2, in final days before liberation by Americans. With simple, lyrical images, the filmmakers unravel this life-affirming story of war's absurdities—and hope, survival. [R] ▼●

Night on Earth (1991) C-125m.  D: Jim Jarmusch. Winona Ryder, Gena Rowlands, Giancarlo Esposito, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Rosie Perez, Isaach De Bankolé, Beatrice Dalle, Roberto Benigni, Paolo Bonacelli, Matti Pellonpää. Exhilarating five-part slice-of-life, each story unraveling at the same time in L.A., N.Y.C., Paris, Rome, and Helsinki. All are set in taxis, and spotlight brief but eloquent encounters between cab driver and passenger. The best of many highlights: the scene in which black Brooklynite Esposito and East German refugee Mueller-Stahl reveal to each other their names. [R] ▼●●

Night Passage (1957) C-90m.  D: James Neilson. James Stewart, Audie Murphy, Dan Duryea, Brandon de Wilde, Dianne Foster. Sound Western of Stewart working for railroad, brother Murphy belonging to gang planning to rob train payroll; exciting climactic shoot-out. Technirama.▶

Night Patrol (1985) C-82m. BOMB D: Jackie Kong, Linda Blair, Pat Paulsen, Jaye P. Morgan, Jack Riley, Billy Barty, Murray Langston, Pat Morita, Andrew (Dice) Clay. Threadbare rip-off of POLICE ACADEMY combines Barty's flutulence with crude one-liners. See if you can figure out why the opening sequence has subtitles. [R]▼●●

Night People (1954) C-93m.  D: Nunnally Johnson. Gregory Peck, Broderick Crawford, Anita Bjork, Rita Gam, Walter Abel, Buddy Ebsen, Max Showalter, Jill Esmond, Peter Van Eyck. Keen Cold War time capsule, filmed on location in Berlin, finds infidelistic officer Peck badgered by pushy fat-cat Crawford to somehow spring the latter's corpsman son, who's been kidnapped by Russians and whisked away into their German zone. In her one Hollywood movie Bjork (of MISS JULIE fame) is an East German spy with some personal history with Peck, whose casting here is tailor-made. Baseball fans may be tickled at the scene where Ebsen listens to a real Yankees broadcast of the era, announced by Mel Allen. CinemaScope.

Night Porter, The (1974-Italian) C-115m.  D: Liliana Cavani. Dirk Bogarde, Charlotte Rampling, Philippe Leroy, Gabriele Ferzetti, Isa Miranda. Sleazy, bizarre drama, set in 1957, about a sado-masochistic relationship between an ex-Nazi and the woman he used to abuse sexually in a concentration camp. [R]▼●●

Night Shadows (1984) C-99m.  D: John (Bud) Cardos. Wings Hauser, Bo Hopkins, Lee Montgomery, Jennifer Warren, Jody Medford, Cary Guffey. Yet another tale of toxic waste creating monsters that terrorize small Southern town. Same old stuff, with inferior special effects and makeup. Aka MUTANT. [R]▼

Night Shift (1982) C-105m.  D: Ron Howard. Henry Winkler, Michael Keaton, Shelley Long, Gina Hecht, Pat Corley, Bobby DiCicco, Nita Talbot, Richard Belzer, Charles Fleischer, Shannen Doherty. A nebbish takes a night job at the city morgue, seeking peace and quiet, but his new assistant draws him into wild scheme to start a prostitution business! Delightful, good-natured comedy (despite seamy subject matter) written with verve by Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandel. (Soundtrack features Rod Stewart singing "That's What Friends Are For," years before it became a hit.) Winkler has never been better; Keaton's smash debut performance made him an instant star. Is this a great country or what? Look for Kevin Costner as an extra. [R]▼●●

Nights in Rodanthe (2008) C-96m. ½

D: George C. Wolfe. Richard Gere, Diane Lane, Scott Glenn, Christopher Meloni, Viola Davis, Mae Whitman. Busy mother of two, still smarting from her husband's infidelity, agrees to look after her best friend's seashore bed-and-breakfast inn in Rodanthe, on the outer banks of North Carolina. Her only guest is a handsome doctor who's come there to settle some unfinished business. Before long the man and woman—both in need of nurturing—fall in love. Utterly contrived setup for an agreeable-enough romantic drama adapted from Nicholas Sparks' novel. Gere and Lane are well matched. James Franco appears unbilled. Filmmaking debut for renowned theater director Wolfe. Super 35. [PG-13]▶

Nights of Cabiria (1957-Italian) 117m. * D: Federico Fellini. Giulietta Masina, Francois Perier, Amedeo Nazzari, Franca Marzi, Dorian Gray. Masina is a joy as waifish prostitute dreaming of rich, wonderful life but always finding sorrow. Basis for Broadway musical and film SWEET CHARITY. One of Fellini's best, and a most deserving Oscar winner as Best Foreign Film. Restored in 1998 to put back a 7m. sequence Fellini was forced to cut after the premiere.▶

Night Song (1947) 101m.  D: John Cromwell. Dana Andrews, Merle Oberon, Ethel Barrymore, Hoagy Carmichael, Jacqueline White. Overlong, soapy drama of socialite Oberon falling in love with blind pianist Andrews. Barrymore is very good in the unusual role of comic relief. Artur Rubinstein and conductor Eugene Ormandy appear in the climactic concert sequence, playing the concerto composed especially for the film by Leith Stevens.

Night Sun (1990-Italian-French-German) C-112m.  D: Paolo and Vittorio Taviani. Julian Sands, Charlotte Gainsbourg, Nastassja Kinski, Massimo Bonetti, Margarita Lozano, Rudiger Vogler. Evocative film about an idealistic, sensitive young man (Sands), who wishes to find inner peace in a world of temptation. Based on the Tolstoy story "Father Sergius"; Sands' voice is dubbed into Italian by Giancarlo Giannini. Technovision.▶

Night the Lights Went Out in Georgia, The (1981) C-120m. ½ D: Ronald F. Maxwell. Kristy McNichol, Mark Hamill, Dennis Quaid, Sunny Johnson, Don Stroud, Arlen

Dean Snyder. Kristy, the more ambitious half of brother-sister country music duo, tries in vain to keep sibling Quaid out of romantic scrapes. Poor beginning and conclusion somewhat redeemed by rather appealing middle. Inspired by title-named hit record. [PG]▼

Night They Raided Minsky's, The (1968) C-99m.  D: William Friedkin. Jason Robards, Britt Ekland, Norman Wisdom, Forrest Tucker, Harry Andrews, Joseph Wiseman, Denholm Elliott, Elliott Gould, Jack Burns, Bert Lahr, narrated by Rudy Vallee. Flavorful period-piece about Amish girl (Ekland) who comes to N.Y.C., gets involved with burlesque comic Robards and accidentally invents the striptease. Many nice backstage and onstage moments. Abruptness of Lahr's role is due to his death during filming. Produced and cowritten by Norman Lear. [M/PG]▼

Night Tide (1963) 84m. ½ D: Curtis Harrington. Dennis Hopper, Linda Lawson, Gavin Muir, Luana Anders, Marjorie Eaton, Tom Dillon, H. E. West, Cameron. Lonely sailor Hopper falls for Lawson, who works as a mermaid at the Santa Monica pier, but learns she may be a killer—and a descendant of the sirens. Odd, dreamy little drama is strangely compelling, though not a horror film, as often promoted. Written by the director. ▼●●

Night to Remember, A (1943) 91m. ½ D: Richard Wallace. Loretta Young, Brian Aherne, Jeff Donnell, William Wright, Sidney Toler, Gale Sondergaard, Donald MacBride, Blanche Yurka. Sparkling comedy-mystery of whodunit author Aherne and wife Young trying to solve murder. ▼●●

Night to Remember, A (1958-British) 123m. * D: Roy (Ward) Baker. Kenneth More, David McCallum, Jill Dixon, Laurence Naismith, Frank Lawton, Honor Blackman, Alec McCowen, George Rose. Meticulously produced documentary-style account of sinking of the "unsinkable" passenger liner Titanic. Superb combination of disaster spectacle and emotional byplay; a notable contrast to Hollywood's Titanic films. Vivid adaptation by Eric Ambler of Walter Lord's book. ▼●●

Night Train (1940) SEE: Night Train to Munich

Night Train (1959-Polish) 90m.  D: Jerzy Kawalerowicz. Lucyna Winnicka, Leon Niemczyk, Teresa Szmagielowna, Zbigniew Cybulski. Murky account of young woman on a train, forced to share compartment with a doctor; their lack of communication and presence of killer on train are film's focal points. ▽

Night Train to Munich (1940-British) 93m.  D: Carol Reed. Rex Harrison, Margaret Lockwood, Paul Von Hrenried (Henreid), Basil Radford, Naunton Wayne, Felix Aylmer, Roland Culver. Expert Hitchcockian thriller about British intelligence agent Harrison trying to rescue Czech scientist who escaped from the Nazis to London only to be kidnapped back to Berlin. Stylishly photographed (by Otto Kanturek), sharply scripted by Frank Launder and Sidney Gilliat, who also wrote Hitchcock's THE LADY VANISHES (which introduced the comic characters reprised here by Radford and Wayne). Based on Gordon Wellesley's novel Report on a Fugitive. ▼●

Night Train to Venice (1995-German) C-98m. BOMB D: Carlo U. Quinterio. Hugh Grant, Tahnee Welch, Malcolm McDowell, Kristina Soderbaum, Rachel Rice. Upon completing a book on neo-Nazis, writer Grant travels to Venice to meet with a publisher—and is followed (and menaced) by skinheads. If you're looking for a boyishly charming Grant, look elsewhere; he's a dull dolt in this trashy film, made in 1993 and passed over for theatrical release. [R]▼●

Night Unto Night (1949) 85m.  D: Don Siegel. Ronald Reagan, Viveca Lindfors, Broderick Crawford, Rosemary DeCamp, Osa Massen, Art Baker, Craig Stevens. Somber, unconvincing film about relationship of dying scientist and mentally disturbed widow. Finished in 1947 and shelved for two years. Reagan's performance isn't bad, but script is against him.

Night Visitor, The (1970) C-106m. ½ D: Laslo Benedek. Max von Sydow, Liv Ullmann, Trevor Howard, Per Oscarsson, Rupert Davies, Andrew Keir. An inmate plots to escape from an asylum for the criminally insane for one night, to avenge himself on people who put him away. Heavy in detail, but interesting. Filmed in Denmark and Sweden. [PG] ▼

Night Visitor (1989) C-94m.  D: Rupert Hitzig. Derek Rydall, Allen Garfield, Teresa Vander Woude, Elliott Gould, Michael J. Pollard, Brooke Bundy, Richard Roundtree, Shannon Tweed. Teenage Rydall discovers his most hated teacher (Garfield) is a Satanist and serial killer of prostitutes; when no one believes him, he turns to retired cop Gould for help. Silly, unconvincing blend of teenage comedy and thriller, helped by good performances. [R]▼

Night Walker, The (1964) 86m.  D: William Castle. Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Taylor, Lloyd Bochner, Rochelle Hudson, Judi Meredith, Hayden Rorke. One of the better Castle horror films has Stanwyck as wealthy widow discovering cause of recurring dreams about lost husband. Effective psychological thriller with good cast, unusual script by Robert Bloch. Title on-screen is WILLIAM CASTLE'S THE NIGHT WALKER. ▼

protective of her nephew McNichol, who finally turns to murder. Aka BUTCHER BAKER NIGHTMARE MAKER. [R]▼

Night Watch (1973-British) C-105m. ½ D: Brian G. Hutton. Elizabeth Taylor, Laurence Harvey, Billie Whitelaw, Robert Lang, Tony Britton. Woman (Taylor) believes she has witnessed a murder, but cannot prove it. Tired plot based on Lucille Fletcher play. [PG]▼

Nightwatch (1998) C-101m. ½ D: Ole Bornedal. Nick Nolte, Patricia Arquette, Ewan McGregor, Josh Brolin, Lauren Graham, Alix Koromzay, Lonny Chapman, John C. Reilly, Brad Dourif. McGregor hires on as a part-time night watchman in spooky morgue, while a serial killer is on a city-wide rampage. Arquette is his girlfriend, Brolin his daredevil buddy, and Nolte the police inspector on the case. Remake of writer-director Bornedal's own 1995 Danish hit, NATTEVAGTEN, is stylishly creepy, but weighs down in the final third. And remember: Don't let that door close. Super 35. [R]▼●

Night Watch (2004-Russian) C-114m.  D: Timur Bekmambetov. Konstantin Khabensky, Vladimir Menshov, Valeri Zolotukhin, Mariya Poroshina, Galina Tyunina, Yuri Kutsenko. Russian horror/sci-fi drama focuses on the "Others," a group that divided into forces of darkness and light centuries ago after signing a truce agreeing that the "dark" would control the night and the "light" would patrol the day. Now, in Moscow, the dark Others are out in force in the form of vampires and must be kept in check. Clearly shows the influence of American popcorn fare, with impressive special effects. Doesn't measure up to similar Hollywood product but makes a game attempt to play in the same sandbox. Followed by DAY WATCH. [R]●

Night We Never Met, The (1993) C-99m.  D: Warren Light. Matthew Broderick, Annabella Sciorra, Kevin Anderson, Louise Lasser, Jeanne Tripplehorn, Justine Bateman, Michael Mantell, Christine Baranski, Doris Roberts, Dominic Chianese, Garry Shandling, Ranjit Chowdhry, Katharine Houghton, Tim Guinee. Disappointing romantic comedy in which about-to-be-married yuppie Anderson time-shares his rent-controlled N.Y.C. apartment with Broderick and Sciorra; all are strangers, and use the pad on alternate days. [R]▼●

Nijinsky (1980-British) C-125m. ½ D: Herbert Ross. Alan Bates, George De La Pena, Leslie Browne, Ronald Pickup, Alan Badel, Colin Blakely, Ronald Lacey, Carla

Fracci, Jeremy Irons, Janet Suzman, Sian Phillips. Handsome but disappointing chronicle of the homosexual relationship between the legendary dancer Nijinsky (De La Pena) and Ballet Russe impresario Sergei Diaghilev (Bates). Worthy subject matter defeated by soap-opera scenario, allegedly inauthentic characterizations. Fine performance by Bates, superb one by Badel as a wealthy patron. Irons' film debut. [R]▼

Nijinsky: The Diaries of Vaslav Nijinsky (2001-Australian-German-Swedish-Dutch) C-95m.  D: Paul Cox. Narrated by Derek Jacobi. Striking, sumptuous meshing of words and images in which Nijinsky's diary—written in 1919, as he suffered a mental breakdown—is pictorialized by Cox while read off-camera by Jacobi. The great dancer's words express his deepest feelings and fears, yet the accompanying images are so beautiful that the film may be appreciated for its visuals alone. Cox used a similar approach in VINCENT. ▼

Nil by Mouth (1997-British) C-128m.  D: Gary Oldman. Ray Winstone, Kathy Burke, Charlie Creed-Miles, Laila Morse, Edna Dore, Chrissie Coterill, Jon Morrison. First-time director Oldman also scripted this gritty, in-your-face, cinéma vérité-style portrait of a desperate, dysfunctional family in working-class South London, focusing on an unhappily married couple (Winstone, Burke). Often difficult to watch with its unrelenting rage, despair, and (domestic) violence, but it's heartfelt and well acted (particularly by Burke). [R]▼

Nim's Island (2008-U.S.-Australian) C-96m.  D: Jennifer Flackett, Mark Levin. Abigail Breslin, Jodie Foster, Gerard Butler. Wonderfully imaginative family film, from Wendy Orr's novel about a father and daughter who live on an isolated island in the South Pacific. When he gets lost at sea, the only person who responds to her is her favorite adventure-book author—an agoraphobic woman who's made her acquaintance via e-mail. Ingenious visual presentation, with likable performances from all three stars, including Foster in a rare comedic role. Super 35. [PG]●

Nina Takes a Lover (1994) C-100m.  D: Alan Jacobs. Laura San Giacomo, Paul Rhys, Michael O'Keefe, Cristi Conaway, Fisher Stevens. Nina's husband is out of town for a few weeks, and on the spur of the moment she takes a lover—a Welsh artist. If this is what "woman's pictures" have come to in the '90s, heaven help the genre. Stevens steals every scene he's in—and gives the film its only injection of life—as Nina’s friend’s lover. [R] ▼●●

Nine ½ Weeks (1986) C-113m. *½ D: Adrian Lyne. Mickey Rourke, Kim Basinger, Margaret Whitton, David Margulies, Christine Baranski, Dwight Weist, Roderick Cook. Saga of an obsessive sexual relationship; uninvolved and unerotico, not to mention degrading. Promises sexual fireworks, but all it delivers is a big tease (some explicit material was cut prior to release). Video version is more explicit, though not so much as European version. Followed by several direct-to-video sequels. [R] ▼●●

Nine Hours to Rama (1963) C-125m. ½ D: Mark Robson. Horst Buchholz, Jose Ferrer, Robert Morley, Diane Baker, Harry Andrews. Ambitious attempt to make meaningful story of events leading up to assassination of Mahatma Gandhi; bogs down in trite script. Filmed on location in India. CinemaScope.

Nine Lives (2005) C-112m. ½ D: Rodrigo García. Glenn Close, Robin Wright Penn, Holly Hunter, Sissy Spacek, Kathy Baker, Amy Brenneman, Elpidia Carrillo, Dakota Fanning, Lisa Gay Hamilton, Molly Parker, Mary Kay Place, Amanda Seyfried, Stephen Dillane, William Fichtner, Jason Isaacs, Joe Mantegna, Ian McShane, Sydney Tamiia Poitier, Aidan Quinn, Miguel Sandoval. Exquisitely acted, perceptively told vignettes about nine women, of all kinds, at emotional crossroads in their lives, from a teenage girl who feels trapped by her needy parents to a woman trying to suppress her turbulent emotions while incarcerated. Each segment is a perfect short story (written by the director), enacted in real time in one continuous camera shot, amazingly executed (on film, not digital video) by cinematographer Xavier Pérez Grobet. [R] ●

Nine Lives of Fritz the Cat, The (1974) C-76m. ½ D: Robert Taylor. Voices of Skip Hinnant, Reva Rose, Bob Holt, Robert Ridgely, Pat Harrington. Animated sequel to X-rated original finds Fritz in the '70s, now on welfare with a nagging wife. He smokes pot for escape, and imagines himself in eight other lives—including being an astronaut, as an orderly to Adolf Hitler, and an aide to President Kissinger(!). Not as bold (or as memorable) as the first film, but certainly lively, with some funny moments. [R] ▼●

Nine Months (1995) C-103m.  D: Chris Columbus. Hugh Grant, Julianne Moore, Jeff Goldblum, Tom Arnold, Joan Cusack, Robin Williams, Ashley Johnson, Emily Yancy, Kristin Davis. Farcical tale of a couple whose blissful five-year relationship is blindsided by unexpected pregnancy: He simply can't deal with it. Slick Hollywood concoction tries to coast on Grant's boyish charm and Moore's radiant beauty, with Arnold adding bombastic comedy relief. But utter predictability and oafish silliness drain it dry. Williams' pair of scenes as a nervous, malaprop-spouting Russian obstetrician are definite high point. Based on popular 1994 French movie, NEUF MOIS. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

$9.99 (2009-Australian-Israeli) C-78m.  D: Tatia Rosenthal. Voices of Geoffrey Rush, Anthony LaPaglia, Samuel Johnson, Claudia Karvan, Joel Edgerton, Barry Otto, Leeanna Walsman. Several seriocomic stories are woven together involving inhabitants of a Sydney apartment complex who are searching for meaning in their lives and finding it in unique ways. Most interesting story revolves around lonely widower (Otto) who allows a burnt-out guardian angel (Rush) to share his flat. Title refers to one young resident who finds happiness in a paperback book, called The Meaning of Life, purchased for $9.99. Clever screenplay co-written by director Rosenthal with acclaimed Israeli writer Etgar Keret, based on his short stories. Stop-motion animated film is decidedly not suitable for children. [R]

Nine Queens (2000-Argentinian) C-114m.  D: Fabián Bielinsky. Ricardo Darín, Gastón Pauls, Leticia Brédice, Tomas Fonzi, Celia Juarez. Entertaining Mamet-style thriller about a young con man who teams up with an old pro in present-day economically depressed Buenos Aires to try to sell a forged set of rare stamps . . . but one of them may be trying to double-cross the other. Serpentine story will keep you guessing until the end, and has a refreshing sense of humor. Written by the director, in his feature debut. Remade as CRIMINAL. [R] ▼●

Nines, The (2007) C-99m. ½ D: John August. Ryan Reynolds, Hope Davis, Melissa McCarthy, Elle Fanning, Dahlia Salem, David Denman, Octavia Spencer, Ben Falcone. Reynolds plays a Hollywood star with a dysfunctional private life . . . and a TV series producer . . . and a video-game inventor/family man in this triptych in which the three parts intriguingly overlap. Writer August (who similarly explored multiple-viewpoint narrative in GO) makes his feature-directing debut with this offbeat drama that boasts a number of interesting characters while providing a showcase for Reynolds. [R] ●

976-Evil (1989) C-89m. ½ D: Robert Englund. Stephen Geoffreys, Patrick O'Bryan, Sandy Dennis, Jim Metzler, Maria Rubell, Robert Picardo, Lezlie Deane, J.J. Cohen, Darren Burrows. Snappy CARRIE-like outsider's-revenge horror flick. Introverted teenager Geoffreys calls 976 number that provides him with satanic powers. Story is confusing, and script too jokey, but as often as not, it delivers the goods. Directorial debut for Englund, aka Freddy Krueger of the NIGHTMARE ON ELM STREET series. [R] ▼●●

9 Songs (2005-British) C-71m. *½ D: Michael Winterbottom. Kieran O'Brien,

Margo Stille. A British geologist and an American student hook up in London; in between attending rock concerts, they indulge in sex. That's the sum total of this ponderous, erotic drama featuring realistic, graphically depicted sex. Means to be profound, but the result is profoundly boring. Alternate version runs 64m. ▾

1918 (1984) C-94m. ½ D: Ken Harrison. William Converse-Roberts, Hallie Foote, Matthew Broderick, Rochelle Oliver, Michael Higgins, Jeannie McCarthy, Bill McGhee, Horton Foote, Jr. Stagy, PBSy Horton Foote drama concerns the catastrophic late teens influenza epidemic that hit America—and its tragic effect on a small Texas town. Will probably be seen to best advantage on the small screen; Hallie Foote (the playwright's daughter) is excellent as a woman (based on her own real-life grandmother) whose husband and infant are both stricken. Produced for American Playhouse; followed by prequels ON VALENTINE'S DAY and CONVICTS. 1918 and ON VALENTINE'S DAY were telecast as STORY OF A MARRIAGE. ▽

1984 (1956-British) 91m.  D: Michael Anderson. Edmond O'Brien, Michael Redgrave, Jan Sterling, David Kossoff, Mervyn Johns, Donald Pleasence. Thought-provoking version of George Orwell's futuristic novel. Lovers O'Brien and Sterling trapped in all-powerful state, try valiantly to rebel against "Big Brother." Remade in 1984. ▽

Nineteen Eighty-Four (1984-British) C-115m.  D: Michael Radford. John Hurt, Richard Burton, Suzanna Hamilton, Cyril Cusack, Gregor Fisher, James Walker, Phyllis Logan. Appropriately grim, well-cast version of the Orwell classic, with Hurt as the government functionary who illegally falls in love, Hamilton as his bedmate, and Burton—excellent in his final feature—as the party official who somehow seems human even when feeding his victims' faces to the rats. Superior to the 1956 version, though the oppressive gloominess of the second half does wear you down. Seedily impressive production design. [R] ▼●●

1941 (1979) C-118m. ½ D: Steven Spielberg. Dan Aykroyd, Ned Beatty, John Belushi, Treat Williams, Nancy Allen, Robert Stack, Tim Matheson, Toshiro Mifune, Christopher Lee, Warren Oates, Bobby DiCicco, Dianne Kay, Murray Hamilton, Lorraine Gary, Slim Pickens, Eddie Deezen, John Candy, many others. Gargantuan comedy from the bigger-is-funnier school of filmmaking. Some excellent vignettes and dazzling special effects in free-wheeling story of war panic in L.A. following Pearl Harbor attack, but on the whole suffers from overkill. Written by Bob Gale and Robert Zemeckis. Alternate version runs 146m. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

311m. ½ D: Bernardo Bertolucci. Robert De Niro, Gérard Depardieu, Donald Sutherland, Burt Lancaster, Dominique Sanda, Stefania Sandrelli, Sterling Hayden. Sweeplingly sexy, violent Bertolucci epic, with rapturous Vittorio Storaro cinematography, begins with the same-day birth of sons respectively sired by a landowner and a laborer who works his estate. The rest runs the gamut of 20th-century political bases, starting with the respective fascistic and socialistic leanings these two friendly protagonists develop on their road to middle age. Chain-sawed down to 243m. for an initial U.S. release that pleased no one, this flawed, one-of-a-kind epic of great sweep, humanity, and power doesn't seem fully realized even at its original running time. Yet aiming for the fences, it reaches them often enough to have become one of its era's most notable cult movies. [NC-17—edited from original R rating] ▼●●

Nineteen Nineteen (1985-British) C/B&W-99m.  D: Hugh Brody. Paul Scofield, Maria Schell, Frank Finlay, Diana Quick, Clare Higgins, Colin Firth. Scofield and Schell are former patients of Sigmund Freud, who come together years later to reminisce and remember. Slow and boring, wasting talents of a fine cast.

1990: The Bronx Warriors (1983-Italian) C-84m. BOMB D: Enzo G. Castellari. Vic Morrow, Christopher Connelly, Fred Williamson, Mark Gregory, Stefania Girolami. Bronx gang leaders vs. nasty corporation agent Morrow. Gregory plays a character named Trash, which is the best way to describe this movie. Filmed in the Bronx and Rome. Sequel: ESCAPE FROM THE BRONX. Panavision. [R] ▼

1969 (1988) C-93m.  D: Ernest Thompson. Robert Downey, Jr., Kiefer Sutherland, Bruce Dern, Mariette Hartley, Joanna Cassidy, Winona Ryder. Sutherland is terrific as a sensitive antiwar youth, and Hartley fine as his understanding mother, in this story of troubled times and troubled lives. But playwright Thompson's earnest directorial debut is disconnected and ultimately disappointing. [R] ▼●●

Nine to Five (1980) C-110m. ½ D: Colin Higgins. Jane Fonda, Lily Tomlin, Dolly Parton, Dabney Coleman, Sterling Hayden, Elizabeth Wilson, Henry Jones, Lawrence Pressman, Marian Mercer. Three savvy secretaries have to contend with a dolts boss—and inadvertently find their chance to take revenge. The first half of this comedy is dynamite, culminating in Tomlin's Disneyesque fantasy of murdering the slavedriver, but film takes a disastrous turn, losing its bearings and momentum. Appealing performances by the star trio help make up for the ultimate silliness. Parton's first film. Later a TV series and a stage musical. [PG] ▼●●

Ninety Degrees in the Shade (1964-Czech) 90m. ½ D: Jiri Weiss. Anne Heywood, James Booth, Donald Wolfitt, Ann Todd. Turgid account of Heywood, who works in food store, accused of theft; intertwined with passionate love episodes. Czech-made, with British stars. CinemaScope.

95 Miles to Go (2006) C-77m. ½ D: Tom Caltabiano. Ray Romano, Tom Caltabiano. If you've ever wondered whether Everybody Loves Raymond's easygoing star-comedian has a cranky, neurotic side off-camera, this movie's for you. Romano and his pal/warm-up act Tom Caltabiano (a Raymond TV writer) drive from gig to gig through Florida and Georgia while an intern captures their mundane adventure on video. There's a certain fascination in a multimillionaire stressing over having to foot his buddy's room-service meal, but this comes across mostly as a vanity project for Caltabiano (who coproduced with Romano). The nadir: Ray gets indigestion. [R]

99 Women (1969-Spanish-German-British-Italian) C-90m. ½ D: Jess Franco. Maria Schell, Luciana Paluzzi, Mercedes McCambridge, Herbert Lom. Absurd drama about lesbianism in women's prison. Aka ISLE OF LOST WOMEN. X-rated and unrated versions available. SuperScope. [R] ▼

92 in the Shade (1975) C-93m.  D: Thomas McGuane. Peter Fonda, Warren Oates, Margot Kidder, Burgess Meredith, Harry Dean Stanton, Sylvia Miles, Elizabeth Ashley, William Hickey, Louise Latham. National Book Award-nominated novel about rival fishing boat captains in Florida Keys; directed by the author. Wildly uneven but well cast and frequently hilarious. [R]▼

Ninja III—The Domination (1984) C-95m. ½ D: Sam Firstenberg. Lucinda Dickey, Jordan Bennett, Sho Kosugi, David Chung. Follow-up to REVENGE OF THE NINJA about an evil Ninja, "killed" by the police, who forces his spirit on innocent Dickey. Lots of action; good of its type. [R]▼

Ninotchka (1939) 110m. ½ D: Ernst Lubitsch. Greta Garbo, Melvyn Douglas, Ina Claire, Bela Lugosi, Sig Ruman, Felix

Bressart, Alexander Granach, Richard Carle. Amid much outdated sociological banter, a lighthearted Garbo still shines. Lubitsch's comedy pegged on tale of cold Russian agent Garbo coming to Paris, falling in love with gay-blade Douglas. Supporting cast shows fine comedy flair. Script by Billy Wilder, Charles Brackett, and Walter Reisch was basis for Broadway musical and film SILK STOCKINGS.▼●●

Ninth Configuration, The (1980) C-118m. ½ D: William Peter Blatty. Stacy Keach, Scott Wilson, Jason Miller, Ed Flanders, Neville Brand, Moses Gunn, George Di Cenzo, Robert Loggia, Tom Atkins, Alejandro Rey, Joe Spinell, Steve Sandor. In old castle used by U.S. government as asylum, new head shrink Keach quickly proves to be nuttier than any of the patients. Hilarious yet thought-provoking, with endlessly quotable dialogue and an amazing barroom fight scene. Blatty also produced and adapted his novel Twinkle, Twinkle, Killer Kane (this film's title at one point). Myriad versions run anywhere from 99m. to 140m.; above time is Blatty's cut, and rating applies to this version only. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Ninth Day, The (2004-German) C-93m.  D: Volker Schlöndorff. Ulrich Matthes, August Diehl, Bibiana Beglau, Germain Wagner, Götz Burger, Michael König, Hilmar Thate. Catholic priest (Matthes), incarcerated in Dachau during WW2, is given nine days' leave and returns to his home in Luxembourg, where the Nazis attempt to use him as a political pawn. Stark, riveting drama about a principled, deeply religious man who maintains his integrity, humanity, and spirituality under the most trying circumstances. The sheer horror of Dachau is vividly etched. Loosely based on the prison diary of Father Jean Bernard.●

Ninth Gate, The (1999-French-Spanish-U.S.) C-133m.  D: Roman Polanski. Johnny Depp, Frank Langella, Lena Olin, Emmanuelle Seigner, Barbara Jefford, Jack Taylor, José Lopez Rodero, James Russo. Mercenary N.Y.C. rare-book sleuth Depp combs Europe for an ancient demonic tome. Part mystery, part travelogue, with traces of Polanski's sardonic wit, but can't hold a satanic candle to his 1968 ROSEMARY'S BABY. One scene is strikingly similar to a sequence in Kubrick's EYES WIDE SHUT. Also shown at 127m. Super 35. [R]▼●

Stone. Anthony Hopkins, Joan Allen, Powers Boothe, Ed Harris, Bob Hoskins, E. G. Marshall, David Paymer, David Hyde Pierce, Paul Sorvino, Mary Steenburgen, J. T. Walsh, James Woods, Brian Bedford, Kevin Dunn, Fyvush Finkel, Annabeth Gish, Tony Goldwyn, Larry Hagman, Ed Herrmann, Madeline Kahn, Saul Rubinek, Tony Lo Bianco, Corey Carrier, Tony Plana, Dan Hedaya, Michael Chiklis, John C. McGinley, John Diehl, Robert Beltran, Joanna Going, George Plimpton, Donna Dixon, James Karen. Controversial, fragmented portrait of the U.S. politician and president, presented as a driven man beset by deep-rooted insecurities. Younger viewers might have a hard time keeping track of the players, and may fall prey to director-cowriter Stone's expected, and outrageous, historical inventions. Overlong, to be sure, but still compelling, with Hopkins' persuasive lead performance, and an array of fine supporting players, especially Allen as Pat Nixon. Extended director's cut has 28m. added. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

No Big Deal (1983) C-86m. ½ D: Robert Charlton. Kevin Dillon, Christopher Gartin, Mary Joan Negro, Jane Krakowski, Tammy Grimes, Sylvia Miles. Fair drama about troubled, alienated, streetwise teen Dillon and his attempt to fit in with his peers. A decent effort at portraying adolescent problems, but the result is a bit too pat. Interestingly, Miles is cast as a strict, bureaucratic school principal. ▼

No Blade of Grass (1970) C-97m. *½ D: Cornel Wilde. Nigel Davenport, Jean Wallace, John Hamill, Lynne Frederick, Patrick Holt, Anthony May. Sober-sided film trying to drive home ecology message is just an update of films like PANIC IN YEAR ZERO, with family fleeing virus-stricken London for Scottish countryside, facing panic and attack along the way. Based on John Christopher's popular novel. Panavision. [R]

Nobody Knows (2004-Japanese) C-141m.  D: Hirokazu Kore-eda. Yūya Yagira, Ayu Kitaura, Hiei Kimura, Momoko Shimizu, Hanae Kan, You. Overlong but emotionally engaging drama based on a true 1988 story of four young children left home alone in Tokyo by their mother, who simply disappears. Deliberate pacing may challenge impatient viewers, but film's simplicity and almost complete focus on the kids hit the mark. Kore-eda shot this chronologically over a period of one year. Twelve-year-old Yagira became the youngest ever to receive the Best Actor prize at the Cannes Film Festival for his nuanced performance as a boy who takes on responsibilities far beyond his years. [PG-13] ●

Nobody Lives Forever (1946) 100m.  D: Jean Negulesco. John Garfield, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Walter Brennan, Faye Emerson, George Coulouris, George Tobias.

Well-done but familiar yarn of con man Garfield fleecing rich widow Fitzgerald, then falling in love for real.

Nobody Loves Me (1994-German) C-104m. ½ D: Doris Dörrie. Maria Schrader, Pierre Sanoussi-Bliss, Michael von Au, Elisabeth Trissenaar, Peggy Parnass. Quirky oddity about the trials of Fanny Fink (Schrader), a death-obsessed airport security officer who is turning thirty. She says she doesn't need a man, but is nonetheless desperate to find one. Her gay next-door neighbor (and kindred spirit) tells her she will soon be meeting the love of her life. Not without interest but too often as flaky and unglued as its main character.

Nobody's Fool (1986) C-107m. ½ D: Evelyn Purcell. Rosanna Arquette, Eric Roberts, Mare Winningham, Jim Youngs, Louise Fletcher, Gwen Welles, Stephen Tobolowsky, Charlie Barnett, Lewis Arquette. Innocuous romantic comedy by Beth Henley about a flaky waitress in a small Southwestern town who's become an out-cast (after having a baby out of wedlock), and only begins to find herself when she meets Roberts, who's passing through town. Very modest film that benefits from a relaxed and unmannered performance by Roberts. [PG-13] ▼●●

Nobody's Fool (1994) C-110m. ½ D: Robert Benton. Paul Newman, Jessica Tandy, Bruce Willis, Melanie Griffith, Dylan Walsh, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Gene Saks, Josef Sommer, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Philip Bosco. Picaresque look at a small-town ne'er-do-well and his extended (dysfunctional) family of cronies; after turning his back on his real family years ago, he now finds himself spending time with his grown-up son and his young grandson. An irresistibly appealing Newman is surrounded by wonderful actors in this charmingly unpredictable character study—including Willis, as his friendly nemesis. Benton scripted, from Richard Russo's novel. Elizabeth Wilson appears unbilled as Newman's ex-wife. [R] ▼●●

Nobody's Perfect (1968) C-103m. ½ D: Alan Rafkin. Doug McClure, Nancy Kwan, James Whitmore, David Hartman, Gary Vinson. Witless military service comedy involving pat shenanigans of U.S. submarine based in Japan, with every predictable gimmick thrown in. Techniscope.

Nobody's Perfect (1989-Swiss-U.S.) C-91m. ½ D: Robert Kaylor. Chad Lowe, Gail O'Grady, Patrick Breen, Kim Flowers, Eric Bruskotter, Robert Vaughn. Shy guy at a new college wants to make friends with an attractive girl, but is too tongue-tied, so at a friend's urging, disguises himself as a girl and ends up his target's roommate. Little comedy based on the last line of

SOME LIKE IT HOT is predictable but entertaining. [PG-13] ▼●●

Nobody's Perfect (1981) C-95m. BOMB D: Peter Bonerz. Gabe Kaplan, Alex Karras, Robert Klein, Susan Clark, Paul Stewart, Alex Rocco, Peter Bonerz. Entirely unfunny comedy, made in Miami, about three misfits who decide to fight City Hall when their car is totalled in a pothole and—because of a loophole—they can't sue. Klein does awful imitations of James Cagney and Bette Davis. An inauspicious theatrical directing debut for Bonerz. [PG] ▼

Nobody Waved Goodbye (1965-Canadian) 80m.  D: Don Owen. Peter Kastner, Julie Biggs, Claude Rae, Toby Tarnow, Charmion King, Ron Taylor. Straightforward, perceptive account of alienated teenager Kastner. A sequel, UNFINISHED BUSINESS, is set 20 years later, and details the plight of Kastner and Biggs's own teen offspring.

No Country for Old Men (2007) C-122m. ½ D: Joel Coen, Ethan Coen. Tommy Lee Jones, Javier Bardem, Josh Brolin, Woody Harrelson, Kelly Macdonald, Garret Dillahunt, Tess Harper, Barry Corbin, Stephen Root, Rodger Boyce, Ana Reeder, Beth Grant, Gene Jones. Crackling tale of three men whose lives intersect in the early 1980s: a brutal, psychopathic killer (Bardem) on the loose, an ordinary guy (Brolin) who seizes a chance to get rich quick, and a laconic West Texas sheriff (Jones) who doesn't care for the way civilization is crumbling before his very eyes. Creating tension from the first moments onward (and without the use of music), the Coens' adaptation of Cormac McCarthy's novel is a brooding tale of fate set against a stark backdrop . . . but not without irony and humor. Set on fire by Bardem's Academy Award-winning performance; brilliantly photographed by Roger Deakins. Also won Oscars for Best Picture, Best Director(s), and Best Adapted Screenplay. Super 35. [R] ▼

Noel (2004) C-96m. ½ D: Chazz Palminteri. Penélope Cruz, Susan Sarandon, Paul Walker, Alan Arkin, Marcus Thomas, Chazz Palminteri, Chantal Lonergan, Erika Rosenbaum. Ambitious tearjerker about the interactions of fearful, vulnerable friends, lovers, coworkers, and strangers on Christmas Eve: a lonely book editor (Sarandon) whose mother is suffering from Alzheimer's, a cop (Walker) whose irrational jealousy is stifling his Sophia Loren-esque fiancée (Cruz), and a heartbroken waiter (Arkin) with a strange reincarnation fantasy. Gets better as it goes along, as it zeros in on issues relating to acceptance and reconciliation. Robin Williams appears unbilled in a pivotal role. Super 35. [PG] ▼

No End in Sight (2007) C-102m.  D: Charles Ferguson. Narrated by Campbell Scott. Masterful screen equivalent of the myriad books that share on-the-record accounts from former military/policy players to explain how the Bush administration leaped before it looked in 2003 before invading Iraq. A standout in what is already a litany of Iraq-quagmire documentaries. The interviewees—many still bewildered by how their former superiors arrogantly brushed off or ignored experts with political/geographic/linguistic experience in the region—are photographed in like fashion to comparably dramatic effect, compounding the power of what they have to say. ●

workers are Chinese POWs. Stirring epic mirrors age-old enmity between Japanese, Chinese, and Koreans while offering a deeply felt portrait of a man who must play a deadly balancing act as he struggles to maintain his values. Scripted by Kobayashi and Zenzo Matsuyama, based on a six-volume novel by Jumpei Gomikawa. AKA THE HUMAN CONDITION I; followed by THE ROAD TO ETERNITY and A SOLDIER'S PRAYER. Offbeat, engrossing drama with Stewart as an engineer who desperately tries to convince others that aircraft can suffer from metal fatigue, and should be grounded after a given time. Dietrich is a glamorous passenger on the fateful flight. Based on a novel by Nevil Shute. Made in England, where it was released as NO HIGHWAY. **▼

Noise (2008) C-91m. ½ D: Henry Bean. Tim Robbins, Bridget Moynahan, William Hurt, Margarita Levieva, Gabrielle Brennan, Maria Ballesteros, William Baldwin, Colleen Camp. A New Yorker, driven to distraction by the incessant noise of car alarms, starts vandalizing the cars and disabling the devices—in the guise of The Rectifier—but his vigilante tactics become so obsessive they disrupt his entire life. Darkly funny, thoughtful musing on righteous anger and the absurdity of modern life, though it can't sustain its momentum from start to finish. Written by the director. D

Noises Off (1992) C-104m. ½ D: Peter Bogdanovich. Carol Burnett, Michael Caine, Denholm Elliott, Julie Hagerty, Marilu Henner, Mark Linn-Baker, Christopher Reeve, John Ritter, Nicollette Sheridan. Energetic filming of Michael Frayn's play, a clever variation on a traditional British sex farce—with the added dimension of behind-the-scenes tumult among the acting troupe. This kind of door-slamming comedy doesn't ever work on film—but Bogdanovich comes closer than anyone ever has before, with the help of a willing cast. [PG-13] **▼●●

No Looking Back (1998) C-96m.  D: Edward Burns. Lauren Holly, Edward Burns, Jon Bon Jovi, Blythe Danner, Connie Britton. Working-class romantic triangle provides nice lead role for Holly as waitress with an OK but dead-end life with boyfriend Bon Jovi, thrown off balance by return of old sweetheart Burns. Attractive cast can't overcome a very slight story; the strong soundtrack overpowers the script. [R] **▼●●

No Love for Johnnie (1961-British) 110m.  D: Ralph Thomas. Peter Finch, Stanley Holloway, Mary Peach, Mervyn Johns, Donald Pleasence, Dennis Price, Oliver Reed. Civilized study of politician who cares only about winning the election. CinemaScope. **▼

Nomad (2005-Kazakhstan-French) C-110m.  D: Sergei Bodrov, Ivan Passer. Kuno Becker, Jay Hernandez, Jason Scott Lee, Mark Dacascos; voice of Bai Ling. On the barren steppes of 18th-century Kazakhstan, while rival tribes battle for sovereignty, mystic warrior Oraz (Lee) rescues an infant descended from Genghis Khan who is destined to unite the nation as "Mansur" (GOAL!'s Becker). Historical epic has vicious sabers-on-horseback duels and good production design (real human extras—no CGI!) but plodding storytelling. Reputedly rocky production also had a third filmmaker: Talgat Temenov, who in this dubbed 2007 U.S. release is billed as "Local Director." Original Kazakh-language version runs 112m. AKA: NOMAD: THE WARRIOR. Super 35. [R] D

Nomads (1986) C-95m. *½ D: John McTiernan. Lesley-Anne Down, Pierce Brosnan, Adam Ant, Anna-Maria Monticelli, Hector Mercado, Mary Woronov. Doctor (Down) treats an apparent madman, then undergoes a hallucinatory re-run of his recent experiences: he's a French anthropologist who's come to L.A. and has been drawn to a band of strange street people. Potentially interesting idea for a half-hour Twilight Zone but pretty deadly as a feature. Unpleasant, too. [R] **▼●●

No Man Is an Island (1962) C-114m. ½ D: John Monks, Jr., Richard Goldstone. Jeffrey Hunter, Marshall Thompson, Barbara Perez, Ronald Remy, Paul Edwards, Jr., Rolf Bayer, Vicente Liwanag. Spotty production values mar true story of serviceman Hunter trapped on Guam during the three years Japanese controlled area. ▼D

No Man of Her Own (1932) 85m. ½ D: Wesley Ruggles. Clark Gable, Carole Lombard, Dorothy Mackaill, Grant Mitchell, Elizabeth Patterson, Lillian Harmer, George Barbier. Snappy story of heel reformed by good girl, noteworthy for only co-starring of Gable and Lombard (then not married). **▼●●

No Man of Her Own (1950) 98m. ½ D: Mitchell Leisen. Barbara Stanwyck, John Lund, Jane Cowl, Phyllis Thaxter,

Richard Denning, Milburn Stone. Turgid drama based on Cornell Woolrich tale of Stanwyck assuming another's identity, later being blackmailed by ex-boyfriend. Remade in 1982 as I MARRIED A SHADOW and in 1996 as MRS. WINTERBOURNE.

No Man's Land (1985-French-Swiss) C-110m.  D: Alain Tanner. Hugues Quester, Myriam Mezieres, Jean-Philippe Ecoffey, Betty Berr, Marie-Luce Felber. Sober, provocative account of several characters involved with smuggling contraband across the French-Swiss border, focusing on their motivations and disillusionment. May be effectively contrasted to Tanner's earlier JONAH WHO WILL BE 25 IN THE YEAR 2000.

No Man's Land (1987) C-106m.  D: Peter Werner. Charlie Sheen, D.B. Sweeney, Lara Harris, Randy Quaid, Bill Duke, R.D. Call, M. Emmet Walsh. Rookie cop goes undercover to trap a wealthy young auto buff who operates a hot car ring, finds he likes his target, the target's sister, and stealing Porsches. Good premise largely botched. [R]▼●●

No Man's Land (2001-Bosnian) C-97m. ½ D: Danis Tanović. Brancko Djurić, Rene Bitorajac, Filip Šovagović, Georges Siatidis, Katrin Cartlidge, Simon Callow, Serge-Henri Valcke. Riveting serio-comic war parable about two soldiers, one Bosnian and one Serb, who are trapped together with another unfortunate man in a foxhole between enemy lines in 1993. As a result, no one is willing to take responsibility for their welfare or rescue, including the United Nations forces. Debating writer-director Tanović manages to take a difficult, even remote subject and personalize it—with the welcome addition of dark humor—in this terrific film. Oscar winner for Best Foreign Language Film. Super 35. [R]▼

No Mercy (1986) C-105m. *½ D: Richard Pearce. Richard Gere, Kim Basinger, Jeroen Krabbé, George Dzundza, Gary Basaraba, William Atherton, Ray Sharkey. Chicago cop Gere storms into Louisiana Bayou country seeking the killer of his partner, falls for Cajun beauty Basinger—who's been "sold" to the kingpin perpetrator of the murder. Even mindless melodramas have to make sense, at least on their own terms; this one's pretty ridiculous. The two sexy stars don't really click. [R]▼●●

No More Ladies (1935) 81m. ½ D: Edward H. Griffith. Joan Crawford, Robert Montgomery, Charlie Ruggles, Franchot Tone, Edna May Oliver, Gail Patrick. Crawford marries playboy Montgomery, tries to settle him down by making him jealous over her attention to Tone. Airy comedy. Joan Burfield (Fontaine) made her film debut here.

No My Darling Daughter (1961-British) 97m. ½ D: Ralph Thomas. Michael Redgrave, Michael Craig, Juliet Mills, Roger Livesey, Rad Fulton, Renee Houston. Generally funny film with Mills, rich industrialist's daughter, torn between two suitors, playboy and hard-working businessman.

No Name on the Bullet (1959) C-77m.  D: Jack Arnold. Audie Murphy, Charles Drake, Joan Evans, Virginia Grey, Warren Stevens, Edgar Stehli, R. G. Armstrong, Willis Bouchee, Karl Swenson, Charles Watts, Jerry Paris, Whit Bissell. A quiet, cultured gunman (Murphy, in a fine performance) rides into a small town to kill someone, though no one but he knows who his target is. Guilt and paranoia create their own victims. Slow, philosophical, and intelligent, this is the best of sci-fi director Arnold's several Westerns. CinemaScope.▼

None But the Brave (1965) C-105m. ½ D: Frank Sinatra. Frank Sinatra, Clint Walker, Tommy Sands, Tony Bill, Brad Dexter. Taut war drama focusing on crew of cracked-up plane and Japanese army patrol who make peace on a remote island during WW2. Panavision.▼●●

None But the Lonely Heart (1944) 113m. ½ D: Clifford Odets. Cary Grant, Ethel Barrymore, Barry Fitzgerald, Jane Wyatt, Dan Duryea, George Coulouris, June Duprez. Odets' moody drama of a Cockney drifter features one of Grant's most ambitious performances, and some fine moments, but suffers from censorship restrictions of the time, and misplaced WW2 rhetoric. Barrymore won Supporting Actress Oscar as Grant's dying mother. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●

None Shall Escape (1944) 85m.  D: Andre de Toth. Marsha Hunt, Alexander Knox, Henry Travers, Richard Crane, Dorothy Morris, Trevor Bardette. Trial of Nazi officer reviews his savage career, in taut drama that retains quite a punch. Released before, but set after, the end of WW2.

No Nukes (1980) C-103m.  D: Julian Schlossberg, Danny Goldberg, Anthony Potenza. Jackson Browne, Crosby, Stills & Nash, The Doobie Brothers, John Hall, Gil Scott-Heron, Bonnie Raitt, Carly Simon, Bruce Springsteen, James Taylor, Jesse Colin Young, Jane Fonda. Super Springsteen joins several appealing, if long in the tooth, fellow rock stars to protest nuclear power. Pleasant, if not very magnetic, concert film-documentary does boast chillingly hilarious clip from pro-nuke "Big Picture" episode from early '50s. Aka THE MUSE CONCERT: NO NUKES. [PG]▼

Noose Hangs High, The (1948) 77m. ½ D: Charles Barton. Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Joseph Calleia, Leon Errol, Cathy Downs, Mike Mazurki, Fritz Feld. Mistaken identity leads to complications with the boys robbed of a large sum of money; typical A&C, bolstered by presence of Errol. Highlight: "Mudder and Fodder."▼

No Place Like Homicide! (1962-British) 87m.  D: Pat Jackson. Kenneth Connor, Sidney James, Shirley Eaton, Donald

Pleasence, Dennis Price, Michael Gough. At times strained satire about group of people gathered at haunted house for the reading of a will. Remake of THE GHOUL. British title: WHAT A CARVE UP! ▼◆
Nora Prentiss (1947) 111m. ½ D: Vincent Sherman. Ann Sheridan, Kent Smith, Bruce Bennett, Robert Alda, Rosemary DeCamp, John Ridgely, Robert Arthur, Wanda Hendrix. Proper married doctor Smith falls for kicked-around singer Sheridan, leading to plenty of complications. Entertaining, albeit predictable, drama.

Norbit (2007) C-102m. *½ D: Brian Robbins. Eddie Murphy, Thandie Newton, Terry Crews, Clifton Powell, Cuba Gooding, Jr., Mighty Rasta, Eddie Griffin, Katt Williams, Marlon Wayans. As in COMING TO AMERICA and the NUTTY PROFESSOR vehicles Murphy plays several characters: Norbit, a meek young man brought up by Chinese restaurant owner Mr. Wong and stuck in a terrifying marriage with the hideously overweight Rasputia. All three are in search of a script. Murphy shows his comedic range but is let down by the material, which includes all the fat jokes the writers (including Murphy and his brother Charles) could come up with. Prophetic ad line for the movie asked, "Have You Ever Made a Really Big Mistake?" [PG-13]◆

No Reservations (2007) C-104m.  D: Scott Hicks. Catherine Zeta-Jones, Aaron Eckhart, Abigail Breslin, Patricia Clarkson, Jenny Wade, Bob Balaban, Brian F. O'Byrne, Lily Rabe, John McMartin, Celia Weston. Light, frothy comedy-drama about a career-minded N.Y.C. chef who faces two simultaneous challenges: becoming the guardian of her 9-year-old niece (Breslin) and fending off competition in her restaurant kitchen from a talented sous chef (Eckhart) who develops amorous feelings toward her. Attractive stars help keep this soufflé from falling. Remake of the 2002 German film MOSTLY MARTHA. Super 35. [PG]◆

Normal Life (1996) C-102m.  D: John McNaughton. Luke Perry, Ashley Judd, Darwin Moxey, Tom Towles, Penelope Milford. Fascinating true-crime story of a straight-arrow suburban cop who becomes the classic enabler to a drug-addicted shopaholic wife, leading him to a successful run as a bank robber! Perry and (especially) Judd are terrific in this downbeat, straightforward, morbidly compelling tale of twisted love. Made for theatrical release, debuted on cable TV. [R]▼◆◆

Norman ... Is That You? (1976) C-91m.  D: George Schlatter. Redd Foxx, Pearl Bailey, Dennis Dugan, Michael Warren, Tamara Dobson, Vernee Watson, Jayne Meadows. Leering comedy based on flop Broadway show and revamped with black stars: Foxx is distraught when he discovers his son is gay and determines to "straighten him out." Shot on videotape. [PG]▼

Norman Loves Rose (1982-Australian) C-98m. ½ D: Henri Safran. Carol Kane, Tony Owen, Warren Mitchell, Myra de Groot, David Downer. OK comedy of teenager Owen enamored with sister-in-law Kane. She becomes pregnant, and who is the father? [R]▼

Norma Rae (1979) C-113m.  D: Martin Ritt. Sally Field, Ron Leibman, Beau Bridges, Pat Hingle, Barbara Baxley, Gail Strickland, Lonny Chapman, Noble Willingham, Grace Zabriskie. Field is excellent in Oscar-winning performance as real-life poor Southern textile worker gradually won over toward unionization by N.Y.C. labor organizer. Entertaining, though not entirely believable; haunting theme "It Goes Like It Goes." sung by Jennifer Warnes, also won an Oscar. Panavision. [PG]▼◆◆

No Road Back (1957-British) 83m.  D: Montgomery Tully. Sean Connery, Skip Homeier, Paul Carpenter, Patricia Dainton, Norman Wooland, Margaret Rawlings. Blind and deaf woman sacrifices everything for son, becomes involved with criminals—who then try to pin robbery on the innocent son. Plodding melodrama.

No Room for the Groom (1952) 82m. ½ D: Douglas Sirk. Tony Curtis, Piper Laurie, Spring Byington, Don DeFore, Jack Kelly. Harmless shenanigans of ex-G.I. Curtis returning home to find it filled with in-laws.

Norseman, The (1978) C-90m. *½ D: Charles B. Pierce. Lee Majors, Cornel Wilde, Mel Ferrer, Jack Elam, Chris Connely, Kathleen Freeman, Susie Coelho (Bono), Denny Miller. Stodgy period adventure casts Majors as 11th-century Viking prince who sails to North America in search of his father, a Norse king abducted by Indians. Panavision. [PG]▼

North (1994) C-88m. *½ D: Rob Reiner. Elijah Wood, Bruce Willis, Jason Alexander, Julia Louis-Dreyfus, Dan Aykroyd, Reba McEntire, Kathy Bates, Abe Vigoda, John Ritter, Faith Ford, Richard Belzer, Jon Lovitz, Alan Arkin, Alan Rachins, Matthew McCurley, Alexander Godunov, Kelly McGillis, Rosalind Rao, Ben Stein, Scarlett Johansson. Eleven-year-old boy who's convinced his folks don't appreciate him goes to court and wins the right to choose new parents, then travels the world to find the ideal mom and dad. Wrong-headed movie never connects, and leads to an unemotional and predictable finale. Reiner coscripted with Alan Zweibel, on whose novel this was based. [PG]▼◆◆

comedy starts well but reverts to formula, including obligatory car pile-up finale. Fine actresses like Harris, Clark, and Leachman wasted. [G]▼

North by Northwest (1959) C-136m.  D: Alfred Hitchcock. Cary Grant, Eva Marie Saint, James Mason, Leo G. Carroll, Martin Landau, Jessie Royce Landis, Philip Ober, Adam Williams, Josephine Hutchinson, Edward Platt. Quintessential Hitchcock comedy-thriller, with bewildered ad-man Grant chased cross country by both spies (who think he's a double agent) and the police (who think he's an assassin). One memorable scene after another, including now-legendary crop-dusting and Mount Rushmore sequences; one of the all-time great entertainments. Witty script by Ernest Lehman, exciting score by Bernard Herrmann. VistaVision. ▼●●

North Country (2005) C-126m. * D: Niki Caro. Charlize Theron, Frances McDormand, Woody Harrelson, Sissy Spacek, Sean Bean, Richard Jenkins, Jeremy Renner, Michelle Monaghan, Rusty Schwimmer, Jillian Armenante, Xander Berkeley. Single mom with two kids goes to work in a Minnesota mine in 1989, where the sexual harassment is intense, but no other women want to rock the boat and risk their jobs. Dramatization of a landmark real-life case has good performances (especially Theron's), but it's no NORMA RAE: too pat, too obvious, and too long. Super 35. [R]●

North Dallas Forty (1979) C-118m. ½ D: Ted Kotcheff. Nick Nolte, Mac Davis, Charles Durning, Dayle Haddon, G. D. Spradlin, Bo Svenson, Steve Forrest, John Matuszak, Dabney Coleman. Seriocomic version of Peter Gent's best-seller about labor abuse in the National Football League is the best grid-iron film ever made and one of the best on any sport. Boasts Super Bowl-level performances for the most part. Scripted by its producer (Frank Yablans), director, and author. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Northern Lights (1979) 90m. ½ D: John Hanson, Rob Nilsson. Robert Behling, Susan Lynch, Joe Spano, Henry Martinson, Marianne Astrom-DeFina, Ray Ness, Helen Ness. Inclusive, unforgettable Americana about the struggles of farmers in pre-WWI North Dakota, with Behling attempting to organize populist Nonpartisan League. Fine first feature for Hanson and Nilsson. ▼

Northern Pursuit (1943) 94m. ½ D: Raoul Walsh. Errol Flynn, Julie Bishop, Helmut Dantine, John Ridgely, Gene Lockhart, Tom Tully. Flynn, a Mountie of German descent, pretends to have Nazi sympathies in order to learn the objectives of Nazis operating in Canada, in this standard but slickly done drama. ▼

Northfork (2003) C-103m. * D: Michael Polish. Nick Nolte, James Woods, Anthony Edwards, Daryl Hannah, Peter Coyote, Duel

Farnes, Mark Polish, Josh Barker, Graham Beckel, Jon Gries, Ben Foster, Robin Sachs, Marshall Bell, Kyle MacLachlan, Claire Forlani. Third in the Polish Brothers' Northwest "trilogy" (following TWIN FALLS, IDAHO and JACKPOT) is an allegory about the shuttering of a Montana town in 1955 to make way for a dam. Fascinating at first, but both precious and pretentious as angels and other-worldly characters take center stage; even the imagery, though striking, becomes heavy-handed after a while. Woods also coexecutive produced. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

North Sea Hijack SEE: ffolkles

North Shore (1987) C-96m. * D: William Phelps. Matt Adler, Nia Peeples, John Philbin, Gerry Lopez, Cristina Raines, Gregory Harrison. The top young surfer in Arizona (think about it) pits himself against the famed title Oahu waves, as well as the family of the native Hawaiian local he loves. Exceptional surfing photography carries a generally dippy script only so far. [PG]▼

North Star, The (1943) 105m. ½ D: Lewis Milestone. Anne Baxter, Dana Andrews, Walter Huston, Ann Harding, Erich von Stroheim, Jane Withers, Farley Granger, Walter Brennan. Dramatic battle sequences in WW2 Russia marred by uninteresting stretches until German von Stroheim matches wits with village leader Huston. Good performances all around; script by Lillian Hellman. Later edited to 82m. to deemphasize the good Russians and retitled ARMORED ATTACK. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●

North to Alaska (1960) C-122m.  D: Henry Hathaway. John Wayne, Stewart Granger, Ernie Kovacs, Fabian, Capucine, Mickey Shaughnessy, Joe Sawyer, John Qualen. Fast-moving actioner with delightful tongue-in-cheek approach; prospectors Wayne and Granger have their hands full dealing with latter's kid brother Fabian, con artist Kovacs, and gold-digging (in the other sense) Capucine. CinemaScope. ▼●●

North West Frontier SEE: Flame Over India

North West Mounted Police (1940) C-125m. ½ D: Cecil B. DeMille. Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll, Preston Foster, Paulette Goddard, Robert Preston, George Bancroft, Akim Tamiroff, Lon Chaney, Jr., Robert Ryan. DeMille at his most ridiculous, with Cooper as Dusty Rivers, Goddard a fiery half-breed in love with Preston, Lynne Overman as Scottish philosopher in superficial tale of Texas Ranger searching for fugitive in Canada. Much of outdoor action filmed on obviously indoor sets.

Northwest Passage (Book I—Rogers' Rangers) (1940) C-125m. ½ D: King Vidor. Spencer Tracy, Robert Young, Walter Brennan, Ruth Hussey, Nat Pendleton, Robert Barrat, Addison Richards. Gritty, evocative filming of Kenneth Roberts' book about Rogers' Rangers and their stoic leader (Tracy), enduring hardships and frustrations while opening up new territory in Colonial America. Young and Brennan are greenhorns who learn hard knocks under taskmaster Tracy. The river-fording sequence is a knockout. ▼●

Norwood (1970) C-96m.  D: Jack Haley, Jr. Glen Campbell, Kim Darby, Joe Namath, Carol Lynley, Pat Hingle, Tisha Sterling, Dom DeLuise, Billy Curtis. Ex-Marine Campbell hits the road for series of unrelated adventures with service buddy Namath, a midget, a Greenwich Village girl, a shiftless brother-in-law, a dancing chicken, and a young girl with whom he falls in love. Easy to take, but pointless. Look for Cass Daley and Jack Haley (the director's father) in a brief appearance. [G]

No Sad Songs for Me (1950) 89m.  D: Rudolph Maté. Margaret Sullavan, Wendell Corey, Viveca Lindfors, Natalie Wood, Ann Doran. Moving account of dying mother Sullavan preparing her family to go on without her. Ironically, Sullavan's last film.

Nosferatu (1922-German) 84m. ½ D: F. W. Murnau. Max Schreck, Alexander Granach, Gustav von Wangenheim, Greta Schroeder. Early film version of Dracula is brilliantly eerie, full of imaginative touches that none of the later films quite recaptured. Schreck's vampire is also the ugliest in film history. The making of this film is dramatized in SHADOW OF THE VAMPIRE. Remade in 1979. ▼●●

Nosferatu the Vampyre (1979-West German) C-107m. ½ D: Werner Herzog. Klaus Kinski, Isabelle Adjani, Bruno Ganz, Roland Topor. Spooky, funny, reverent remake of F. W. Murnau's vampire masterpiece should please Dracula fans of all persuasions. Kinski is magnificent as the good Count, and Adjani's classic beauty is utilized to the hilt. English-language version, which runs 96m., also exists. [PG] ▼●●

No Small Affair (1984) C-102m.  D: Jerry Schatzberg. Jon Cryer, Demi Moore, George Wendt, Peter Frechette, Elizabeth Daily, Ann Wedgeworth, Jeffrey Tambor, Tim Robbins, Jennifer Tilly, Rick Ducommun, Tate Donovan. Self-possessed, smart-assy, but virginal teenager becomes obsessed with an "older woman"—struggling rock singer Moore—and will do just about anything to make her like him. Some good moments here and there, but basically unappealing characters torpedo its chances. [R] ▼●●

Nostalgia (1983-Italian-Russian) C/B&W-126m. ½ D: Andrei Tarkovsky. Oleg Yankovsky, Erland Josephson, Domiziana Giordano, Laura Del Marchi, Delia Boccardo, Patrizia Terreno. Deeply personal, stunningly directed tale of a Russian poet (Yankovsky) and his beautiful translator (Giordano) who are trekking across

Italy, inquiring into the life of a long-dead composer. The poet is so immersed in himself that he barely can communicate with those around him; then he meets a recluse (Josephson) who is certain that the end of the world is near. A provocative, insightful epic, lovingly rendered by one of the cinema's true poets. ▼●●

Nostradamus (1994-British-German) C-118m.  D: Roger Christian. Tchéky Karyo, F. Murray Abraham, Rutger Haer, Amanda Plummer, Julia Ormond, Anthony Higgins. Cornball biographical drama about the fabled 16th-century astrologer-physician (Karyo), who is seen prophesizing everything from Hitler's rise to the Kennedy assassination—all the while retaining his allure for the females of his own time. Best watched when in a silly mood. [R] ▼●●

No Such Thing (2002-U.S.-Icelandic-German) C-102m. *½ D: Hal Hartley. Robert John Burke, Julie Christie, Sarah Polley, Helen Mirren, Ilene Bergelson, Helgi Bjornsson. Good cast is completely wasted in this embarrassing takeoff on Beauty and the Beast. A young TV journalist is sent to follow up an investigative news story on a murderous monsterlike creature in Iceland after the original news crew disappears. Hartley goes astray here, with pretensions beyond anything he actually manages to get on the screen. Christie works far too infrequently to turn up in psychobabble such as this. [R] ▼●

No Surrender (1985-British-Canadian) C-103m. ½ D: Peter K. Smith. Michael Angelis, Ray McAnally, Avis Bunnage, James Ellis, Bernard Hill, Mark Mulholland, Joanne Whalley, Michael Ripper, Elvis Costello. Interesting parable of modern British society and its problems, set in a remote Liverpool nightclub where two warring sets of old folks come into conflict, paralleling the troubles in Northern Ireland. Ambitious script by Alan Bleasdale tries to cover too much ground, but McAnally stands out as ruthless Loyalist gunman. [R] ▼

Not Another Teen Movie (2001) C-89m. *½ D: Joel Gallen. Chyler Leigh, Chris Evans, Jaime Pressly, Mia Kirshner, Eric Christian Olsen, Deon Richmond, Eric Jungmann, Ron Lester, Randy Quaid, Paul Gleason, Ed Lauter, Mr. T, Molly Ringwald. On a wager, a high school hunk (Evans) sets out to woo a rebellious plain Jane named Janey (Leigh) and transform her into a prom queen. Barely funny parody lifts plotlines, characters, and entire scenes from a variety of recent films. Loaded with in-jokes, sight gags, and (quite literally) bathroom humor, but the results are tepid at best. Alternate version runs 101m. [R] ▼●

Not as a Stranger (1955) 135m.  D: Stanley Kramer. Olivia de Havilland, Frank Sinatra, Robert Mitchum, Charles Bickford, Gloria Grahame, Broderick Crawford, Lee Marvin, Lon Chaney, Henry (Harry) Morgan, Virginia Christine, Jerry Paris. Morton Thompson novel of Mitchum marrying nurse de Havilland who supports him through medical school despite off-strained relationship. Glossy tribute to medical profession contains excellent performances by all. Producer Kramer's directorial debut. ▼

Not Easily Broken (2009) C-99m. ½ D: Bill Duke. Morris Chestnut, Taraji P. Henson, Maeve Quinlan, Kevin Hart, Eddie Cibrian, Jenifer Lewis, Wood Harris, Albert Hall, Niecy Nash. Although there's enough soap operatics to fill a Douglas Sirk '50s melodrama, this sincere story of a troubled marriage still manages to engage. When Henson is hurt in an auto accident it puts added pressure on her already wobbly relationship with well-meaning husband Chestnut. Adding to their woes is his budding "friendship" with her white physical therapist and her teenage son, and constant interference from Henson's live-in mother. With a rare, male point of view and fine acting by the leads, this recognizable human drama overcomes a rather pedantic plotline to make its points. Based on the novel by T. D. Jakes, who shows up in a brief cameo. [PG-13] ▮

Notebook, The (2004) C-124m.  D: Nick Cassavetes. Ryan Gosling, Rachel McAdams, James Garner, Gena Rowlands, James Marsden, Kevin Connolly, Joan Allen, Sam Shepard, David Thornton, Jamie Anne Brown, Heather Wahlquist, Obba Babatundé. Emotional, richly romantic drama told in flashback, as Garner reads nursing home patient Rowlands the star-crossed love story of a boy and girl. Eventually, the modern story and the vintage one intertwine. A rare, no-holds-barred portrait of love and passion without cynicism or "ironic distance." Gosling and McAdams are exceptionally good. Based on the novel by Nicholas Sparks. J-D-C Scope. [PG-13] ▼ ▮

No-Tell Hotel, The SEE: Rosebud Beach Hotel, The

Notes From Underground (1995) C-88m.  D: Gary Walkow. Henry Czerny, Sheryl Lee. Biting adaptation of the Dostoyevsky novella features a soul-baring performance by Czerny as Underground Man: a sarcastic loner-loser who is at once miserable and proud, brutal and deeply human. At the crux of the narrative is his recollection of a party at school, where his presence was unwanted, and his attempt to connect with a prostitute (Lee). Difficult to watch, at times, because of its stinging insights and emotional truths, but well worth the effort. ▼ ▮

Notes on a Scandal (2006-U.S.-British) C-91m. ½ D: Richard Eyre. Judi Dench, Cate Blanchett, Bill Nighy, Andrew Simpson, Phil Davis, Michael Maloney, Juno Temple, Julia McKenzie. Fascinating drama about a spinster teacher (Dench) who adopts the new art instructor (Blanchett) at her school as a friend, which is more of a burden than the emotionally vulnerable younger woman can possibly realize. When Blanchett has a fling with one of her students, the stage is set for high drama on all fronts. Playwright Patrick Marber (Closer) adapted Zoë Heller's novel What Was She Thinking?: Notes on a Scandal, which was inspired by the real-life case of Mary Kay Letourneau. Sensational performances by both stars (and Nighy, as Blanchett's husband). [R] ▮

Not for Publication (1984-U.S.-British) C-88m.  D: Paul Bartel. Nancy Allen, David Naughton, Laurence Luckinbill, Alice Ghostley, Richard Paul, Barry Dennen, Cork Hubbert, Paul Bartel. Unsuccessful attempt to replicate an old-fashioned screwball comedy. Allen leads double life as the star reporter of a sleazy N.Y.C. tabloid and a worker in the reelection campaign of oddball mayor Luckinbill. Along the way shy photographer Naughton falls for her. [R] ▼ ▮

Nothing but a Man (1964) 92m. ½ D: Michael Roemer. Ivan Dixon, Abbey Lincoln, Julius Harris, Gloria Foster, Martin Priest, Leonard Parker, Yaphet Kotto, Stanley Greene. Quietly powerful look at blacks in the South, with Dixon as a railroad worker who tries to settle down for the first time in his life with schoolteacher Lincoln, and has to deal with a level of prejudice—and self-denial—he's never faced before. Perceptive and honest, this film manages to make its points without melodrama. A small gem. Look for Esther Rolle and Moses Gunn in small roles. ▼ ▮

Nothing but the Best (1964-British) C-99m. ½ D: Clive Donner. Alan Bates, Denholm Elliott, Harry Andrews, Millicent Martin, Pauline Delany. Biting look at social-climbing playboy Bates who commits murder to get ahead in the world. Written by Frederic Raphael.

Nothing but the Night (1972-British) C-90m. *½ D: Peter Sasdy. Christopher Lee, Peter Cushing, Diana Dors, Georgia Brown, Keith Barron, Fulton Mackay, Gwyneth Strong. Uninvolving supernatural thriller about a cult that attempts immortality by projecting their personalities into the bodies of children. Filmed by Lee's production banner in a failed attempt to encourage more serious genre films. Aka THE DEVIL'S UNDEAD and THE RESURRECTION SYNDICATE. [PG] ▼

Nothing But the Truth (2008) C-107m.  D: Rod Lurie. Kate Beckinsale, Matt Dillon, Vera Farmiga, Edie Falco, Alan Alda, David Schwimmer, Noah Wyle, Angela Bassett, Courtney B. Vance, Peter Coyote, Jamey Sheridan. Washington reporter Beckinsale "outs" a CIA agent (Farmiga), who happens to be a fellow mom at her daughter's school. She's willing to go to jail to protect her source, and does, but can't anticipate how great a toll it will take on her life and her family. Potent topical drama inspired by the Judith Miller-Valerie Plame affair of 2005 deals with intriguing, personal facets of a situation that's usually explored only for the principle involved. The punch line packs a wallop. Famed First Amendment attorney Floyd Abrams, who argued for The New York Times' Miller in court, is very good here as the trial judge. Written by the director. Super 35. [R]●

Nothing But Trouble (1944) 69m.  D: Sam Taylor. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Mary Boland, Philip Merivale, David Leland, Henry O'Neill. Lesser L&H vehicle with duo hired as servants, meeting young boy king whose life is in danger. Boland is amusing as usual.▼●

Nothing but Trouble (1991) C-93m. BOMB D: Dan Aykroyd. Chevy Chase, Dan Aykroyd, John Candy, Demi Moore, Taylor Negron, Bertila Damas, Valri Bromfield. Chase and Moore, off on a weekend, get nabbed for speeding in a hellhole town under the complete domination of ancient judge Aykroyd (unrecognizable under mounds of makeup); rest of film deals with their attempted escape. Stupefyingly unwatchable; Aykroyd's directorial debut (he also wrote it). And yes, his nose is supposed to look like a penis. Watch for Tupac Shakur as a "digital underground member." [PG-13] ▼●●

Nothing in Common (1986) C-118m.  D: Garry Marshall. Tom Hanks, Jackie Gleason, Eva Marie Saint, Hector Elizondo, Barry Corbin, Bess Armstrong, Sela Ward, John Kapelos, Jane Morris, Dan Castellaneta, Tracy Reiner. Interminably long, highly uneven comedy-drama about a perpetual adolescent who's forced to deal with his aging, unloving father when his mom leaves him flat. Some poignant, relevant conclusions about love and responsibility (and some funny shots at the advertising business) are undermined by overlength and meandering nature of film. Hanks is excellent; Gleason is abrasive (in his last film appearance). Later a TV series. Super 35. [PG]▼●●

Nothing Lasts Forever (1984) C/B&W-82m. ½ D: Tom Schiller. Zach Galligan, Apollonia van Ravenstein, Lauren Tom, Dan Aykroyd, Imogene Coca, Eddie Fisher, Sam Jaffe, Paul Rogers, Mort Sahl, Bill Murray, Anita Ellis. Strange, occasionally entertaining comedy of aspiring artist Galligan's experiences in a N.Y.C. of the future—and also on a trip to the moon. A most unusual cast; much better seen than described. Written by first-time director Schiller, produced by Lorne Michaels, both of TV's Saturday Night Live. [PG]

Nothing Like the Holidays (2008) C-98m.  D: Alfredo De Villa. Alfred Molina, Elizabeth Peña, Freddy Rodríguez, Luis Guzmán, Jay Hernandez, John Leguizamo, Debra Messing, Vanessa Ferlito, Melonie Diaz. Christmas brings a Puerto Rican family together in the Humboldt Park section of Chicago. One of the three grown children

(Rodríguez) has just returned from active duty in Iraq, while various rivalries, unfinished business, and a mystery surrounding the patriarch (Molina) create emotional tumult in the household. Familiar setup yields a satisfying holiday concoction with comedy, drama, and sentimentality all part of the mix—and an exceptionally good cast to carry it off. Super 35. [PG-13]

Nothing Personal (1980-U.S.-Canadian) C-97m. *½ D: George Bloomfield. Donald Sutherland, Suzanne Somers, Lawrence Dane, Roscoe Lee Browne, Dabney Coleman, Saul Rubinek, Catherine O'Hara, John Dehner, Chief Dan George. Sutherland is a professor attempting to stop a corporation from slaughtering baby seals, Somers a lawyer who helps him. Inane romantic comedy. Look for appearances by Craig Russell, Tony Rosato, Joe Flaherty, and Eugene Levy. [PG]▼

Nothing Sacred (1937) C-75m. ½ D: William Wellman. Carole Lombard, Fredric March, Walter Connolly, Charles Winninger, Sig Rumann, Frank Fay. Classic comedy about hotshot reporter (March) who exploits Vermont girl's "imminent" death from radium poisoning for headline value in N.Y.C. Ben Hecht's cynical script vividly enacted by March and Lombard (at her best). Gershwin-esque music score by Oscar Levant. Trivia note: Connolly's character is named Oliver Stone! Later a Broadway musical called Hazel Flagg. Remade as LIVING IT UP. ▼●●

Nothing to Lose (1997) C-97m. ½ D: Steve Oedekerk. Martin Lawrence, Tim Robbins, John C. McGinley, Giancarlo Esposito, Kelly Preston, Michael McKean, Rebecca Gayheart, Samaria Graham, Irma P. Hall, Steve Oedekerk. Stunned to find his wife in bed with his boss, Robbins drives away in a daze—only to be carjacked by out-of-work Lawrence. Having nothing to lose, Robbins roars off into the desert with his surprised passenger; this being a buddy comedy, they try to help each other out. OK comedy, with a likable cast, is undercut by predictability (and not exploiting the premise for its full comic value). [R]▼●●

No Time for Comedy (1940) 98m. ½ D: William Keighley. James Stewart, Rosalind Russell, Genevieve Tobin, Charles Ruggles, Allyn Joslyn, Louise Beavers. Slick but dated adaptation of S. N. Behrman play about actress who tries to keep her playwright-husband from taking himself too seriously. Smoothly done but artificial. Aka GUY WITH A GRIN.

No Time for Love (1943) 83m. ½ D: Mitchell Leisen. Claudette Colbert, Fred MacMurray, Ilka Chase, Richard Haydn, Paul McGrath, June Havoc. Cute but obvious romance between famous magazine photographer Colbert and down-to-earth MacMurray. The stars give this a lift.

No Time for Sergeants (1958) 119m. ½ D: Mervyn LeRoy. Andy Griffith,

Myron McCormick, Nick Adams, Murray Hamilton, Don Knotts. Funny military comedy based on Ira Levin's Broadway play (which got its start as a 1955 U.S. Steel Hour TV play). Griffith and McCormick repeat roles as hayseed inducted into service and his harried sergeant. Griffith's best comedy, with good support from Adams, and, in a small role as a noncommissioned officer, Knotts. Script by John Lee Mahin. Followed years later by a TV series. ▼●

Not of This Earth (1957) 67m. ½ D: Roger Corman. Paul Birch, Beverly Garland, Morgan Jones, William Roerick. Above par low-budget entry from Roger Corman with blank-eyed Birch as an alien vampire here to get blood for his atomic war-ravaged home world. Good supporting cast; great bit by Dick Miller. Remade in 1988, 1996 (for TV), and 1997 (as STAR PORTAL).

Not of This Earth (1988) C-80m.  D: Jim Wynorski. Traci Lords, Arthur Roberts, Lenny Juliano, Ace Mask, Roger Lodge. Strictly standard remake of the 1957 Roger Corman quickie, in which Roberts comes to earth in search of blood to replenish his dying planet's population. Film's chief interest is the casting of ex-porn queen Lords as a nurse. [R] ▼●●

Not One Less (1999-Chinese) C-106m.  D: Zhang Yimou. Wei Minzhi, Zhang Huike, Tian Zhenda, Gao Enman, Sun Zhimei. A young student (Wei) is asked to act as teacher to her near-peers in a rural Chinese village after the regular schoolmaster leaves for a month to tend to his ailing mother. The stipulation: She must not permit any dropouts if she wants to earn an extra 10 yuan in pay. Based-on-fact story results in a notably slight exercise for China's top filmmaker. The actors are non-professionals, and show it, in lifeless and repetitive scenes. [G] ▼●

Notorious (1946) 101m. ½ D: Alfred Hitchcock. Cary Grant, Ingrid Bergman, Claude Rains, Louis Calhern, Leopoldine Konstantin, Reinhold Schunzel, Moroni Olsen. Top-notch espionage tale by Ben Hecht, set in post-WW2 South America, with Ingrid marrying spy Rains to aid U.S. and agent Grant. Frank, tense, well acted, with amazingly suspenseful climax (and one memorably passionate love scene). Remade for cable TV in 1992. ▼●●

Notorious (2009) C-122m.  D: George Tillman, Jr. Jamal Woolard, Angela Bassett, Derek Luke, Anthony Mackie, Naturi Naughton, Antonique Smith, Aunjanue Ellis, John Ventimiglia. Overlong biopic of mysteriously assassinated-at-24 Brooklyn rap artist Biggie Smalls (aka The Notorious B.I.G.) has the authorized feel that inevitably comes with a movie listing Smalls' mother (played here by Bassett) and Sean Combs (Luke) as producers. Movie reaps sporadic snap from the dynamic performance of Woolard as the sometimes awkward, overweight kid and onetime drug dealer sired by a religious mom, which allegedly led to tension between spiritual living and the flashy pleasures that money and available women can bring. Movie opened theatrically on the Martin Luther King birthday weekend—a stretch. Christopher Jordan Wallace, the real-life son of Biggie and Faith Evans, plays his father as a boy. Super 35. [R] ●

Notorious C.H.O. (2002) C-95m.  D: Lorene Machado. Margaret Cho. Lively, entertaining concert film not only presents Cho's hilarious one-woman show, as performed in Seattle, but takes us backstage and even introduces us to Margaret's mother, who figures so prominently in her monologues. A good follow-up to I'M THE ONE THAT I WANT, with more of Cho's uncensored comedy, tackling sexual and gender issues for an audience packed with fans. ▼●

Notorious Gentleman (1945-British) 123m.  D: Sidney Gilliat. Rex Harrison, Lilli Palmer, Godfrey Tearle, Griffith Jones, Margaret Johnston, Guy Middleton, Jean Kent. Philandering life of irresponsible playboy is told with wit and style in this handsome production. British title: THE RAKE'S PROGRESS.

Notorious Landlady, The (1962) 123m. ½ D: Richard Quine. Kim Novak, Jack Lemmon, Fred Astaire, Lionel Jeffries, Estelle Winwood, Maxwell Reed. Lemmon entranced by houseowner Novak, decides to find out if she really did kill her husband; set in London. Offbeat comedy-mystery written by Quine and Larry Gelbart. ●

Not Quite Jerusalem SEE: Not Quite Paradise

Not Quite Paradise (1986-British) C-105m. ½ D: Lewis Gilbert. Joanna Pacula, Sam Robards, Todd Graff, Kevin McNally, Selina Cadell, Kate Ingram, Libby Morris. Love on a kibbutz; pleasant, low-key story of volunteers from the U.S., England, and other nations adjusting to the hard life on an Israeli farm, where Yank Robards falls in love with sabra Pacula. Not much oomph but an OK, old-fashioned romance. Originally titled: NOT QUITE JERUSALEM. [R]▼

Notre Musique (2004-French-Swiss) C-80m. ½ D: Jean-Luc Godard. Sarah Adler, Nade Dieu, Rony Kramer, Simon Eine, Jean-Christophe Bouvet, Jean-Luc Godard. Mad-denying yet fascinating Godardian foray into the effect of violence on the human spirit, divided into three sections: "Hell," "Purgatory," and "Heaven." There's plenty of theoretical chatter in the skimpy narrative, set at a literary conference in war-ravaged Sarajevo whose attendees include Godard himself and a young Israeli journalist who is researching an article about a place "where reconciliation is possible." Godard contrasts footage of real-life brutality with the violence staged in Hollywood movies to entertain the masses.▼

Notting Hill (1999-British) C-123m.  D: Roger Michell. Julia Roberts, Hugh Grant, Hugh Bonneville, Emma Chambers, James Dreyfus, Rhys Ifans, Tim McInnerny, Gina McKee, Emily Mortimer. Bemused London bookshop owner chances to meet world-famous movie star, and sparks fly . . . but their budding relationship is bumpier than either could imagine. Enjoyable romantic comedy is a complete contrivance, but so smoothly done, and so engagingly performed, that you don't much mind. Written by Richard Curtis, whose script for FOUR WEDDINGS AND A FUNERAL made Grant a star. Alec Baldwin and Matthew Modine appear unbilled. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Not Wanted (1949) 94m. ½ D: Elmer Clifton. Sally Forrest, Keefe Brasselle, Leo Penn, Dorothy Adams. Well-intentioned account of unwed mother seeking affection and understanding; produced and coscripted by Ida Lupino (who also apparently directed most of the film). Later expanded with unrelated material (including childbirth footage) and released as an exploitation film, THE WRONG RUT (aka SHAME and STREETS OF SIN).▼

Not With My Wife You Don't! (1966) C-118m. ½ D: Norman Panama. Tony Curtis, Virna Lisi, George C. Scott, Carroll O'Connor, Richard Eastham. Trivial fluff about air force officer Curtis and bored wife Lisi; pointless and aimless, but attractive to the eye.▼

Not Without My Daughter (1991) C-114m.  D: Brian Gilbert. Sally Field, Alfred Molina, Sheila Rosenthal, Roshan Seth, Sarah Badel, Momy Rey, Georges Corraface. American woman accompanies her Iranian-born husband on a visit to his homeland. Once there, he decides to stay, and she learns (to her horror) that in Iran she has no rights, as a wife or as a woman, so she must find a way to flee the country with her daughter. Absorbing film based on real-life experience of Betty Mahmoody; the drama works because Field is so believable, and because her husband is not portrayed as a one-dimensional monster. Filmed in Israel. [PG-13]▼

Nouvelle Vague (1990-French-Swiss) C-88m. ½ D: Jean-Luc Godard. Alain Delon, Domiziana Giordano, Roland Amstutz, Laurence Cote, Christophe Odent. Delon and Giordano are cast as a handsome, ultra-rich, powerful couple; the narrative focuses on sexual and political issues that run through all of Godard's films. This one's strictly a matter of taste—and one's tolerance for latter-day Godard. Aka NEW WAVE.▼

Novel Affair, A (1957-British) C-83m.  D: Muriel Box. Ralph Richardson, Margaret Leighton, Patricia Dainton, Carlo Justini, Marjorie Rhodes, Megs Jenkins. Amusing tale of Leighton who writes a sexy novel, finding the fantasy come true. Nearly everyone plays dual roles, in real life and scenes from the novel! Original British title: THE PASSIONATE STRANGER.

November (2005) C-78m.  D: Greg Harrison. Courteney Cox, James Le Gros, Michael Ealy, Nora Dunn, Nick Offerman, Anne Archer, Matthew Carey, Robert Wu. Artsy indie about a traumatized woman whose boyfriend has been murdered in a convenience-store robbery. A month later, he telephones her . . . or maybe not. Cox (bleakly deglamorized) passes through denial, despair, and acceptance as she, her mom (Archer), and her shrink (Dunn) try to figure out if she's psychic, psychotic, or merely overmedicated. Bloody and befuddling foray is derivative of both BLOWUP and RUN LOLA RUN. Slow end-title crawl extends a slight film barely over an hour long. The director also edited. [R]▼

Novocaine (2001) C-95m.  D: David Atkins. Steve Martin, Helena Bonham Carter, Laura Dern, Elias Koteas, Scott Caan, Keith David, Lynne Thigpen. Successful dentist who's about to marry his hygienist is fatally attracted to a new female patient, and makes one misstep that quickly snowballs into Big Trouble. Mix of film noir and black comedy starts off well, but becomes distinctly unpleasant, despite some clever twists and good performances. Kevin Bacon appears unbilled. [R]▼

Now About These Women SEE: All These Women

Now and Forever (1934) 81m. ½ D: Henry Hathaway. Gary Cooper, Carole Lombard, Shirley Temple, Sir Guy Standing, Charlotte Granville. Standard jewel-thief-going-straight yarn; Lombard overshadowed by Cooper and Temple. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼

Now and Forever (1983-Australian) C-93m.  D: Adrian Carr. Cheryl Ladd, Robert Coleby, Carmen Duncan, Christine Amor, Aileen Britton. Chic Ladd's husband is unfaithful, then is falsely accused of rape and sent to jail. This puts quite a strain on their marriage. Based on Danielle Steel's novel. If you like Harlequin romances ... Panavision. [R]▼●

Now and Then (1995) C-96m. ½ D: Lesli Linka Glatter. Christina Ricci, Thora Birch, Gaby Hoffman, Ashleigh Aston Moore, Demi Moore, Melanie Griffith, Rosie O'Donnell, Rita Wilson, Willa Glen, Bonnie Hunt, Janeane Garofalo, Lolita Davidovich, Cloris Leachman, Hank Azaria. Essentially a distaff version of STAND BY ME in which we get to know four friends during their last summer of adolescence in 1970. The film is book-ended by sequences of the friends reminiscing at a baby shower 20 years later. Nicely done, but covers awfully familiar territory; strongest asset is the lovely performances of its young stars. Moore also produced. Brendan Fraser appears unbilled. [PG-13]▼●

No Way Out (1950) 106m.  D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Richard Widmark, Linda Darnell, Stephen McNally, Sidney Poitier, Ruby Dee, Ossie Davis, Bill Walker. Violent tale of racial hatred involving bigot Widmark, who has gangster pals avenge his brother's death by creating race riots. Once-provocative film is still engrossing but seems a bit artificial at times. Film debuts of Poitier and Davis.▼

No Way Out (1987) C-116m.  D: Roger Donaldson. Kevin Costner, Gene Hackman, Sean Young, Will Patton, Howard Duff, George Dzundza, Jason Bernard, Iman, Fred Dalton Thompson, David Paymer. Taut melodramatic thriller about a murder and cover-up within the inner circles of the federal government. Young is tantalizingly sexy as the woman involved with both CIA liaison Costner and Secretary of Defense Hackman. Hard to tell at first that this is a remake of THE BIG CLOCK, but it is—except for a ludicrous (and totally unnecessary) "twist" ending. Script by Robert Garland, who also produced. Super 35. [R]▼●

sual design and eclectic cast make for some twisted fun, although the director's taste for gallows humor and brutal violence isn't for everyone. Various pop culture celebrities turn up in cameos. [R]▼●

Nowhere in Africa (2001-German) C-135m. * D: Caroline Link. Juliane Köhler, Merab Ninidze, Matthias Habich, Sidede Onyulu, Karoline Eckertz, Lea Kurka. A Jewish family manages to get out of Germany in 1938, just in the nick of time, and moves to Kenya, where they must rebuild their lives from the ground up. A sweeping, subtly powerful drama that manages to tell its story from three separate points of view—the husband, wife, and daughter—as each one forges an individual relationship with a strange, new environment. Director Link adapted the autobiographical novel by Stefanie Zweig, and presents the story with compassion and a keen eye for detail. Oscar winner for Best Foreign Language Film. Arriscope.▼

Nowhere to Go (1958-British) 97m.  D: Seth Holt. George Nader, Maggie Smith, Bernard Lee, Geoffrey Keen, Bessie Love. Unsung, beautifully realized film noir stars Nader as a smooth Canadian burglar in England who hides out with Smith while on the run. Brilliant deep-focus photography by Paul Beeson and a moody score by jazz trumpeter Dizzy Reece stand out. Smith's film debut. Metroscope.

Nowhere to Hide (1987-Canadian) C-90m.  D: Mario Azzopardi. Amy Madigan, Daniel Hugh Kelly, Robin MacEachern, Michael Ironside, John Colicos. Obvious thriller with Madigan cast as the wife of Marine Kelly. He's killed while investigating suspicious helicopter crashes ... and she becomes a target. Madigan is much better than the material. [R]▼

Nowhere to Run (1993) C-95m. ½ D: Robert Harmon. Jean-Claude Van Damme, Rosanna Arquette, Kieran Culkin, Ted Levine, Joss Ackland, Tiffany Taubman. Embarrassingly awful Van Damme vehicle, in which he's an escaped con who comes to the aid of widow-in-distress Arquette and her two kids. Based on a story by Joe Eszterhas and Richard Marquand; Eszterhas also scripted. [R]▼●

Now, Voyager (1942) 117m. ½ D: Irving Rapper. Bette Davis, Paul Henreid, Claude Rains, Gladys Cooper, Bonita Granville, John Loder, Ilka Chase, Lee Patrick, Mary Wickes, Janis Wilson. Vintage, first-class soap with Bette as sheltered spinster brought out of her shell by psychiatrist Rains, falling in love with suave Henreid, helping shy girl Wilson. All this set to beautiful, Oscar-winning Max Steiner music makes for top entertainment of this kind. Olive Higgins Prouty's best-seller was adapted by Casey Robinson.▼●

Now You See Him, Now You Don't (1972) C-88m. ½ D: Robert Butler. Kurt Russell, Cesar Romero, Joe Flynn, Jim Backus, William Windom, Michael McGreevy, Ed Begley, Jr. Follow-up to THE COMPUTER WORE TENNIS SHOES has student Russell inventing an invisible spray, which of course is coveted by a gang of crooks. Some good special effects in this so-so Disney comedy. [G]▼

Nude Bomb, The (1980) C-94m. ½ D: Clive Donner. Don Adams, Andrea Howard, Vittorio Gassman, Dana Elcar, Pamela Hensley, Sylvia Kristel, Robert Karvelas, Norman Lloyd, Rhonda Fleming, Joey Forman. Secret Agent 86 from 1960s Get Smart sitcom returns in feature-length spoof about a madman whose bombs will destroy the world's clothing; coscripter Bill Dana has a funny bit as fashion designer Jonathan Levinson Siegel. Agreeable time-filler. Shown on TV as THE RETURN OF MAXWELL SMART. Followed by the TV movie GET SMART, AGAIN! [PG]▼●●

Number One (1969) C-105m. ½ D: Tom Gries. Charlton Heston, Jessica Walter, Bruce Dern, John Randolph, Diana Muldaur. Heston turns in his loincloth for a jock-strap in this ludicrous drama about a New Orleans Saints quarterback who's fighting advancing age; interesting subject matter deserves better treatment. [M/PG]

Number One With a Bullet (1987) C-101m. ½ D: Jack Smight. Robert Carradine, Billy Dee Williams, Valerie Bertinelli, Peter Graves, Doris Roberts, Bobby Di Cicco. Carradine and Williams do well in this otherwise standard actioner, cast as a pair of "odd couple" detectives out to dethrone a drug kingpin. [R]▼

Number Seventeen (1932-British) 63m.  D: Alfred Hitchcock. Leon M. Lion, Anne Grey, John Stuart, Donald Calthrop, Barry Jones, Garry Marsh. Screenplay by Hitchcock. ▼●

Number 23, The (2007) C-97m.  D: Joel Schumacher. Jim Carrey, Virginia Madsen, Logan Lerman, Danny Huston, Rhona Mitra, Michelle Arthur, Lynn Collins, Mark Pellegrino, Ed Lauter. City dog catcher reads a book that messes with his mind—because it seems to resemble his own life, it makes him obsess about the number 23 and drives him to believe he's going to murder his wife. Utterly unconvincing thriller, especially when it finally gets around to tying up its loose ends. Visual stylistics are devoid of meaning here. Bud Cort appears unbilled. Unrated version runs 100m. Panavision. [R]●

Numéro Deux (1975-French) C-88m. ½ D: Jean-Luc Godard. Sandrine Battistella, Pierre Dudry, Alexandre Rignault, Rachel Stefanopoli. Fascinating but self-conscious and confusing aural and visual smorgasbord detailing the effects of capitalism on a modern family. Shot on videotape. ▼

Nuns on the Run (1990-British) C-90m. ½ D: Jonathan Lynn. Eric Idle, Robbie Coltrane, Camille Coduri, Janet Suzman, Doris Hare, Lila Kaye, Robert Patterson. Genial farce about two career henchmen, fed up with their violent young boss, who try to make a score for themselves but bungle the job and hide out in a convent, disguised as nuns. Idle and Coltrane are great, and the film is genuinely funny at times—enough to forgive its periodic lulls. Written by director Lynn. [PG-13]▼●●

Nun's Story, The (1959) C-149m. ½ D: Fred Zinnemann. Audrey Hepburn, Peter Finch, Edith Evans, Peggy Ashcroft, Dean Jagger, Mildred Dunnock. Tasteless filming of Kathryn Hulme book, with Hepburn the nun who serves in Belgian Congo and later leaves convent. Colleen Dewhurst, as a homicidal patient, is electrifying. Screenplay by Robert Anderson. ▼●●

Nunzio (1978) C-87m. ½ D: Paul Williams. David Proval, James Andronica, Tovah Feldshuh, Morgana King, Vincent Russo, Theresa Saldana, Monica Lewis. Retarded Brooklyn grocery delivery boy Proval imagines he's Superman, falls in love with bakery assistant Feldshuh. Mild story enhanced by Proval's fine performance; script by Andronica, who plays his tough but loving brother. [R]

Morgan Freeman, Renée Zellweger, Chris Rock, Greg Kinnear, Aaron Eckhart, Tia Texada, Crispin Glover, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Allison Janney, Kathleen Wilhoite, Sheila Kelley. Strikingly original, darkly comic (and perfectly cast) tale of sweet waitress whose fondness for a soap-opera actor turns to obsession after she witnesses a traumatic event. Screenwriters John C. Richards and James Flamberg create wonderfully surprising twists and turns—including some harsh moments of violence—yet tie everything up at the end. Super 35. [R]▼●

Nurse Sherri SEE: Beyond the Living Nutcracker, The (1993) C-92m.  D: Emile Ardolino. Darci Kistler, Damian Woetzel, Kyra Nichols, Bart Robinson Cook, Macaulay Culkin, Jessica Lynn Cohen; narrated by Kevin Kline. Much-too-stagy version of the famed, beloved ballet, set on Christmas Eve and telling the story of a little girl

(Cohen) who finds herself in a fantasy-world of oversized toys. Culkin (the film's star attraction) is nothing special as the Nutcracker Prince. Adapted by Peter Martins, from the New York City Ballet production. Aka GEORGE BALANCHINE'S THE NUTCRACKER. [G]▼●●

Nutcracker Prince, The (1990-Canadian) C-75m. *½ D: Paul Schibli. Voices of Kiefer Sutherland, Megan Follows, Peter O'Toole, Mike McDonald, Peter Boretski, Phyllis Diller. Young girl dreams of aiding toy soldiers in battle against evil Mouse King in this flat reworking of the classic story, set to Tchaikovsky music. Slow-paced low-budget animated feature based on the E. T. A. Hoffmann book The Nutcracker and the Mouse King; a Disney wannabe that simply isn't. [G]▼●●

Nutcracker, The Motion Picture (1986) C-89m. ½ D: Carroll Ballard. Hugh Binyon, Vanessa Sharp, Patricia Barker, Wade Walthall, Russell Burnett, voice of Julie Harris. Much of this version of The Nutcracker, performed by the Pacific Northwest Ballet, is like a music video: quick cutting and close-ups of legs, faces, and elbows. Very annoying. But the Tchaikovsky music is, of course, wonderful, as are Maurice Sendak's sets and costumes. [G]▼●●

Nuts (1987) C-116m.  D: Martin Ritt. Barbra Streisand, Richard Dreyfuss, Maureen Stapleton, Eli Wallach, Robert Webber, James Whitmore, Karl Malden, Leslie Nielsen, William Prince, Hayley Taylor Block. Compelling drama about a belligerent woman assigned a Legal Aid lawyer who must fight for her right to stand trial for manslaughter, when both the state and her own parents insist that she's not in her right mind. Peerless cast of pros, and nimble staging by Ritt, manage to make you forget that this was a stage play, until the climax, when Streisand delivers a lengthy monologue—in loving close-up (she also produced). Tom Topor adapted his play, with Darryl Ponicsan and Alvin Sargent. Streisand also composed the score. [R]▼●●

Nutty, Naughty Chateau (1964-French) C-100m. ½ D: Roger Vadim. Monica Vitti, Curt Jurgens, Jean-Claude Brialy, Sylvie, Jean-Louis Trintignant, Françoise Hardy. Bizarre minor comedy involving the strange inhabitants of a castle romping about in 1750s styles; most diverting cast. Based on a Françoise Sagan play. Franscope.

Nutty Professor, The (1963) C-107m.  D: Jerry Lewis. Jerry Lewis, Stella Stevens, Del Moore, Kathleen Freeman, Med Flory, Howard Morris, Elvia Allman, Henry Gibson. Jerry's wildest (and most narcissistic) comedy casts him as chipmunk-faced college professor who does Jekyll-and-Hyde transformation into swaggering Buddy Love (whom some have interpreted as a Dean Martin caricature). More interesting than funny, although "Alaskan Polar Bear Heater" routine with Buddy Lester is a riot; Lewis buffs regard this as his masterpiece. Remade in 1996. ▼●●

Nutty Professor, The (1996) C-95m.  D: Tom Shadyac. Eddie Murphy, Jada Pinkett, James Coburn, Dave Chappelle, Larry Miller, John Ales. Sherman Klump is a sweet stumblebum of a science professor who's grossly overweight; when he meets a beautiful teaching assistant, he's motivated to try his lab experiments with DNA restructuring on himself and he's transformed into a thin, testosterone-overloaded superstud. Eddie is appealing and convincing as the prof, and hilarious as his alter ego; through camera magic (and the eye-popping, Oscar-winning makeup by Rick Baker and David Leroy Anderson) he also plays almost every member of his family! One ingredient Jerry Lewis never thought of: enough flattery jokes to last ten lifetimes. Followed by a sequel. [PG-13]▼●●

O (2001) C-95m.  D: Tim Blake Nelson. Mekhi Phifer, Josh Hartnett, Julia Stiles, Martin Sheen, Rain Phoenix, Elden Henson, John Heard, Andrew Keegan. Potent modern-day adaptation of Shakespeare's Othello, with Hartnett as the neglected son of a driven prep school basketball coach who turns his anger toward star player Phifer. Contemporary setting allows screenwriter Brad Kaaya to deal with teen angst, racism—and violence—while following the Bard's timeless story of jealousy and deceit. Fine performances all around. Completed in 1999, film's release was postponed because of real-life school shootings. [R]▼●●

Oak, The (1992-French-Romanian) C-105m.  D: Lucian Pintilie. Maia Morgenstern, Razvan Vasilescu, Victor Rebenguic, Dorel Visan. Schoolteacher Morgenstern sets out on a journey of self-discovery after her father (a former secret-police honcho) dies. Fascinating allegory—road movie mirroring the downfall of Communism in Romania. A highly personal film, strikingly directed by Pintilie, who also scripted. ▼

Objective, Burma! (1945) 142m. ½ D:

Raoul Walsh. Errol Flynn, William Prince, James Brown, George Tobias, Henry Hull, Warner Anderson. Zestful WW2 action film with Flynn and company as paratroopers invading Burma to wipe out important Japanese post; top excitement. Screenplay by Ranald MacDougall and Lester Cole. Reworked as DISTANT DRUMS, also directed by Walsh. Some prints cut to 127m. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Object of Beauty, The (1991) C-97m. ½ D: Michael Lindsay-Hogg. John Malkovich, Andie MacDowell, Lolita Davidovich, Rudi Davies, Joss Ackland, Bill Paterson, Ricci Harnett, Peter Riegert. Jet-set couple, who thrive on living beyond their means, find themselves stranded in a London hotel and decide to unload her coveted Henry Moore artifact—the one that may have been stolen by the hotel's newly hired deaf-mute maid. Definitely offbeat, but never really gets going; just enough style to keep it afloat, and the leads are well cast. [R] ▼●

Object of My Affection, The (1998) C-112m.  D: Nicholas Hytner. Jennifer Aniston, Paul Rudd, Alan Alda, Nigel Hawthorne, John Pankow, Tim Daly, Allison Janney, Steve Zahn, Amo Gulinello, Bruce Altman, Joan Copeland. Young woman invites a gay schoolteacher who's just been dumped by his boyfriend to move into her spare room. They enjoy each other's company so much that she proposes a long-term, non-sexual "arrangement." Appealing actors carry this longish, serpentine, unconventional romantic comedy, written by Wendy Wasserstein, from the novel by Stephen McCauley... though the supporting actors (Alda, Janney, Hawthorne) threaten to steal it from the stars. [R] ▼●●

Oblomov (1980-Russian) C-146m. ½ D: Nikita Mikhalkov. Oleg Tabakov, Yuri Bogatyrev, Elena Soloyei, Andrei Popov. Thirtyish civil servant and absentee landlord, nicely played by Tabakov, retires to a listless existence in bed. Lyrical adaptation of Ivan Goncharov's 1858 novel; flashback sequences of Oblomov as a boy in his mother's arms are wonderful. Outstanding cinematography. AKA A FEW DAYS IN THE LIFE OF I. I. OBLOMOV. ▼●

Oblong Box, The (1969-British) C-91m.  D: Gordon Hessler. Vincent Price, Christopher Lee, Alastair Williamson, Hilary Dwyer, Peter Arne, Maxwell Shaw, Sally Geeson. Price plays British aristocrat tormented by disfigured brother who's out for revenge after briefly being buried alive. Hammy performances, long drawn-out narrative, lackluster direction. [M] ▼●●

O Brother, Where Art Thou? (2000) C-107m. ½ D: Joel Coen. George Clooney, John Turturro, Tim Blake Nelson, Holly Hunter, Charles Durning, John Goodman, Michael Badalucco, Stephen Root, Daniel von Bargen. Three escaped convicts share a series of adventures, and inadvertently become a singing sensation performing "old-timey" music in 1930s Mississippi. Delightfully eccentric adaptation of Homer's The Odyssey, full of clever ideas, irresistible music, and sharp dialogue. Screenplay by Ethan and Joel Coen; the title is derived from Preston Sturges' SULLIVAN'S TRAVELS. Innovative use of color by cinematographer Roger Deakins. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Observe and Report (2009) C-86m. *½ D: Jody Hill. Seth Rogen, Ray Liotta, Anna Faris, Michael Peña, Celia Weston, Dan Bakkedahl, Collette Wolfe, John Yuan, Matthew Yuan, Patton Oswalt, Danny McBride, Aziz Ansari. Delusional, bipolar mall cop Rogen decides to be all that he can be, by dating the cosmetics salesgirl he covets (Faris) and joining the local police department, if they'll have him. Flagrantly, proudly perverse comedy produced in an alternate universe where the ravings of a nutcase are considered funny. Or, a queasy drama about a loser who doesn't realize how ill suited he is to exist alongside "normal" people. Or, both. Super 35. [R]

Obsessed (1989-Canadian) C-100m. ½ D: Robin Spry. Kerrie Keane, Daniel Pilon, Saul Rubinek, Lynne Griffin, Alan Thicke, Colleen Dewhurst. Good but slightly meandering drama pitting Keane against Rubinek, the thoughtless hit-and-run driver who killed her son. Well cast and engrossing, marred slightly by tendency toward sensationalism. [PG-13] ▼●

Obsessed (2009) C-105m.  D: Steve Shill. Idris Elba, Beyoncé Knowles, Ali Larter, Bruce McGill, Jerry O'Connell, Christine Lahti, Matthew Humphreys. Elba is a top executive at a financial services company who makes the mistake of being courteous to the smoking-hot new office temp (Larter). With his beautiful wife (Knowles) busy at home with their young baby, Elba's life becomes nightmarish, as the manipulative Larter plays out her own version of FATAL ATTRACTION. Predictably unsurprising genre thriller has its share of loopy logic, and isn't helped by a surprisingly mediocre performance from Elba. Not a whole lot to obsess over here. Super 35. [PG-13]

Obsession (1949) SEE: Hidden Room, The Obsession (1976) C-98m. ½ D: Brian De Palma. Cliff Robertson, Genevieve Bujold, John Lithgow, Sylvia Kuumba Williams, Wanda Blackman. Viewers who don't remember Hitchcock's VERTIGO might enjoy this rehash by De Palma and writer Paul Schrader. Robertson loses his wife and child to kidnappers, then miraculously finds wife "reborn" in another woman. Holds up until denouement. Superb Bernard Herrmann score. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Obsession (1980) SEE: Circle of Two O.C. & Stiggs (1987) C-109m.  D: Robert Altman. Daniel H. Jenkins, Neill

Barry, Paul Dooley, Jane Curtin, Jon Cryer, Ray Walston, Louis Nye, Tina Louise, Martin Mull, Dennis Hopper, Melvin Van Peebles. Quirky (even by Altman standards) film recounts title teens' summer adventures, which consist mainly of making life miserable for the Schwab family and the cutthroat insurance agent father (Dooley) who cut off Stiggs' grandfather's old-age policy. Not without its moments and Altman weirdos—including Hopper as a drug- and gun-dealing vet, Louise as the sexy school nurse, and Curtin as the drunken Schwab matriarch—but ultimately incoherent. Sat on the shelf for several years. Super 35. [R]▼

Ocean's Eleven (1960) C-127m. ½ D: Lewis Milestone. Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis, Jr., Peter Lawford, Angie Dickinson, Richard Conte, Cesar Romero, Patrice Wymore, Joey Bishop, Akim Tamiroff, Henry Silva, Ilka Chase, Norman Fell. Fanciful crime comedy about 11-man team headed by Danny Ocean (Sinatra) attempting to rob five Vegas casinos simultaneously. Entire Rat Pack's in it, but no one does much, including some surprise guests. There is a clever twist ending, though. Remade in 2001. Panavision. ▼●●

Ocean's Eleven (2001) C-116m.  D: Steven Soderbergh. George Clooney, Matt Damon, Andy Garcia, Brad Pitt, Julia Roberts, Casey Affleck, Scott Caan, Elliott Gould, Eddie Jemison, Bernie Mac, Shaobo Qin, Carl Reiner. Remarkably lifeless caper film, based in name only on the 1960 Rat Pack film, with ex-con Clooney masterminding a major Las Vegas heist and gathering ten other "specialists" to pull it off. It also turns out that his victim, casino mogul Garcia, is keeping company with Clooney's ex-wife (Roberts). There's nothing in the script to elicit interest in any of these characters, who succeed only in being "cool." The real standout is old pro Reiner! Cameos include Angie Dickinson and Henry Silva, of the 1960 cast. Don Cheadle appears unbilled. Followed by two sequels. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Ocean's Twelve (2004) C-125m. ½ D: Steven Soderbergh. George Clooney, Brad Pitt, Matt Damon, Julia Roberts, Catherine Zeta-Jones, Andy Garcia, Don Cheadle, Bernie Mac, Casey Affleck, Scott Caan, Vincent Cassel, Eddie Jemison, Shaobo Qin, Carl Reiner, Elliott Gould, Robbie Coltrane, Eddie Izzard, Cherry Jones, Jeroen Krabbé, Jared Harris. Sorry sequel has casino boss Garcia demanding that Ocean (Clooney) and his gang repay the money they stole from him... so they go to Europe to plan a heist or two. Lots of talk (meant to be cool but mostly incoherent) and little action, plus in-jokes and guest-star cameos to show how much fun everyone had making the film. Bruce Willis, Albert Finney, and Topher Grace appear unbilled. Followed by OCEAN'S THIRTEEN. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Octaman (1971) C-90m. BOMB D: Harry Essex. Kerwin Mathews, Pier Angeli, Jeff Morrow, Jerry Guardino, Norman Fields. Rick Baker's "octopus" creation almost—but not quite—makes this dreadful thriller about the title monster discovered on an expedition to Mexico tolerable. Angeli died during shooting.▼

October (1928-Russian) 103m.  D: Sergei Eisenstein, Grigori Alexandrov, Nikandrov, N. Popov, Boris Livanov. Brilliant reconstruction of the Russian Revolution contains some of Eisenstein's most striking use of montage, though most impressive sequences—such as the masterful massacre around the bridges of St. Petersburg—are in the film's first half. Based on John Reed's Ten Days That Shook the World, the film's alternate title. ▼●●

October Man, The (1947-British) 98m.  D: Roy (Ward) Baker. John Mills, Joan Greenwood, Edward Chapman, Joyce Carey, Kay Walsh, Felix Aylmer, Juliet Mills. Stranger with history of mental disorders is suspected of murder and must prove innocence, even to himself. Strong character study and good local atmosphere enhance suspenseful mystery written by Eric Ambler. British running time 110m.▼

October Sky (1999) C-107m. ½ D: Joe Johnston. Jake Gyllenhaal, Chris Cooper, Laura Dern, Chris Owen, William Lee Scott, Chad Lindberg, Natalie Canerday, Scott Miles. Sincere, heartwarming drama based on the true story of Homer Hickam, Jr. (Gyllenhaal), who grew up in an insular West Virginia coal-mining town. When he sees Sputnik soaring across the nighttime sky in 1957, he becomes obsessed with the idea of building his own rocket and enlists his friends to share the dream . . . against the wishes of his father, a harsh man who's the mine foreman. Rich performances, well-drawn characters, and an old-fashioned sense of can-do American spirit make this something special. Written by Lewis Colick from Hickam's book Rocket Boys. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Octopussy (1983-British) C-130m. ½ D: John Glen. Roger Moore, Maud Adams, Louis Jourdan, Kristina Wayborn, Kabir Bedi, Steven Berkoff, Desmond Llewelyn, Vijay Amritraj, Lois Maxwell. Grand escapist fare as Moore, growing nicely into the role of James Bond, matches wits with a handful of nemeses, including title-named character (Adams), whose motives—and modus operandi—are more than a bit vague. Film throws in everything but the kitchen sink for the sake of an entertaining show. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Odd Angry Shot, The (1979-Australian) C-92m. ½ D: Tom Jeffrey. John Hargreaves, Graham Kennedy, Bryan Brown, John Jarratt. Interesting film about a group of Australian professional soldiers stationed in Vietnam. Personal drama emphasized more than combat in poignant, sometimes broadly comic work about soldiers dealing with a war they don't think is really theirs.▼

Oddball Hall (1990) C-87m.  D: Jackson Hunsicker. Don Ameche, Burgess Meredith, Bill Maynard, Tullio Moneta, Tiny Skiefe. Four jewel thieves hole up in an African town, posing as members of a fraternal order called The Oddballs, and waiting to collect on a heist they pulled off years ago; a simpleminded native comes along seeking their help, and they mistake him for an Oddball chieftain. Simplistic farce is good-natured but heavy-handed; the only thing missing is laughs. [PG]▼●

Odd Birds (1985) C-90m. ½ D: Jeanne Collachia. Michael Moriarty, Donna Lai Ming Lew, Nancy Lee, Bruce Gray, Karen Maruyama, Scott Crawford. Awkward direction and uneven performances defeat this sensitive drama about a dreamy teenager with braces who yearns for a career as an actress, and her friendship with compassionate but disillusioned brother-teacher Moriarty. Nice feel for the way real teen girls acted back in 1965, and for the pain of being 15 and shy.▼

Odd Couple, The (1968) C-105m.  D: Gene Saks. Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, John Fiedler, Herb Edelman, Monica Evans, Carole Shelley. Film version of Neil Simon stage hit about two divorced men living together, sloppy Oscar (Matthau) and fussy Felix (Lemmon). Lemmon's realistic performance makes character melancholy instead of funny; other surefire comic sequences remain intact. Later developed into two TV series. Followed by a sequel. Panavision. ▼●●

Odd Couple II, The (1998) C-96m. *½ D: Howard Deutch. Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, Christine Baranski, Barnard Hughes, Jonathan Silverman, Jean Smart, Lisa Waltz, Mary Beth Peil, Jay O. Sanders, Rex Linn, Alice Ghostley, Florence Stanley, Estelle Harris, Amy Yasbeck. Neil Simon wrote this sorry sequel reuniting Felix and Oscar after 17 years when their children announce their impending marriage. The two cronies meet up in L.A., get lost while driving to the ceremony, and find themselves in a series of escalating mishaps. Sporadically funny one-liners can't save this tired film. A real shame. Officially titled NEIL SIMON'S THE ODD COUPLE II. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Odd Job, The (1978-British) C-86m. ½ D: Peter Medak. Graham Chapman, David Jason, Diana Quick, Simon Williams, Edward Hardwicke. British update of time-worn premise (used as early as 1916 by Douglas Fairbanks in FLIRTING WITH FATE): an unhappy man, jilted by his wife, hires a hit man to murder her, then has a change of heart . . . but convincing the hired killer is a formidable challenge! Coscripted by Bernard McKenna and Chapman, of Monty Python fame.▼

Odd Jobs (1984) C-88m.  D: Mark Story. Paul Reiser, Robert Townsend, Scott McGinnis, Paul Provenza, Julianne Phillips, Leon Askin, Richard Dean Anderson. Lame comedy about five college students working for a moving company over the summer. Radio personality Don Imus has a cameo. [PG-13]▼●

Odd Man Out (1947-British) 115m. * D: Carol Reed. James Mason, Robert Newton, Kathleen Ryan, Robert Beatty, Cyril Cusack, F.J. McCormick, William Hartnell, Fay Compton, Denis O'Dea, Dan O'Herlihy. Incredibly suspenseful tale of Irish rebel leader hunted by police after daring robbery. Watch this one! Scripted by R. C. Sherriff and F. L. Green, from the latter's novel. Remade as THE LOST MAN. ▼●●

Odd Obsession (1959-Japanese) C-96m. ½ D: Kon Ichikawa. Machiko Kyo, Ganjiro Nakamura, Tatsuya Nakadai, Junko Kano. Elderly, vain Nakamura tempts beautiful wife (Kyo) into an affair with his young doctor (Nakadai). Uneven soap opera; a few bright moments, but disappointing overall. Original running time 107m. Remade in Italy in 1984 as THE KEY, which is also this film's alternative title (a literal translation of the Japanese title, KAGI). Daiescope.▼

Odds Against Tomorrow (1959) 95m.  D: Robert Wise. Harry Belafonte, Robert Ryan, Shelley Winters, Ed Begley, Gloria Grahame. A smorgasbord trio of "types" plots to rob an upstate N.Y. bank, but one of them is black Belafonte and another is a racist played by Ryan—one of those prime sociopath portrayals on which the actor held the patent. Tough, brutal, and a window to

Wise's versatility, half a dozen years before he directed THE SOUND OF MUSIC. John Lewis did the jazz score, and familiar faces turn up in small parts, including Wayne Rogers, Robert Earl Jones, Zohra Lampert, and a young Cicely Tyson as a bartender. Written by Nelson Gidding and Abraham Polonsky (who was blacklisted at the time and properly credited years later). ▼

Odessa File, The (1974-British) C-128m. ½ D: Ronald Neame. Jon Voight, Maximilian Schell, Maria Schell, Mary Tamm, Derek Jacobi, Klaus Lowitsch. Voight carries this plodding adaptation of the Frederick Forsyth best-seller, set in 1963, about a German journalist who tracks down former Nazis. OK time killer, no more. Music score by Andrew Lloyd Webber. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Ode to Billy Joe (1976) C-108m.  D: Max Baer. Robby Benson, Glynnis O'Connor, Joan Hotchkis, Sandy McPeak, James Best, Terence Goodman. Bobbie Gentry's 1967 song hit provides basis for standard rural romance that grows progressively ridiculous. Benson and O'Connor, reunited after JEREMY, still have appeal. [PG] ▼

Odyssey of the Pacific (1981-Canadian-French) C-100m.  D: Fernando Arrabal. Mickey Rooney, Monique Mercure, Jean-Louis Roux, Guy Hoffman. Slight tale of Rooney, a retired train engineer living near an abandoned railway station, befriending a trio of homeless youngsters. Originally titled THE EMPEROR OF PERU. ▼

Oedipus Rex (1967-Italian) C-110m. ½ D: Pier Paolo Pasolini. Franco Citti, Silvana Mangano, Alida Valli, Carmelo Bene, Julian Beck. Pictorially arresting but dull, disappointing adaptation of Sophocles' Oedipus Rex and Oedipus at Colonus, with Citti, as Oedipus, murdering his father and marrying his mother. Presented in both contemporary and historical settings; that's Pasolini himself as the High Priest. ▼

Oedipus the King (1968-British) C-97m. ½ D: Philip Saville. Christopher Plummer, Orson Welles, Lilli Palmer, Richard Johnson, Cyril Cusack, Roger Livesey, Donald Sutherland. Film version of Sophocles play is OK for students who have a test on it the next day, but others won't appreciate this version. Static, despite that cast. [G]

Off Beat (1986) C-92m.  D: Michael Dinner. Judge Reinhold, Meg Tilly, Cleavant Derricks, Joe Mantegna, Jacques D'Amboise, James Tolkan, Amy Wright, John Turturro, Anthony Zerbe, Julie Bovasso, Fred Gwynne, Harvey Keitel, Austin Pendleton, Penn Jillette, Bill Sadler, Christopher Noth. Library worker Reinhold, filling in for policeman friend at rehearsal for a dance recital, falls in love with female cop. Modest comedy works hard to live up to its name but comes up short. Reinhold and Tilly are so low-key, they almost disappear! Great cast can't save it.

Written by playwright Mark Medoff (who plays Sgt. Tiegher). [PG] ▼

Offence, The (1973-British) C-112m.  D: Sidney Lumet. Sean Connery, Trevor Howard, Vivien Merchant, Ian Bannen, Derek Newark. Intense drama about how London detective Connery's frustrations cause him to beat a suspect to death; a fine performance by Connery. [R] ▼

Officer and a Gentleman, An (1982) C-125m. ½ D: Taylor Hackford. Richard Gere, Debra Winger, David Keith, Louis Gossett, Jr., Robert Loggia, Lisa Blount, Lisa Eilbacher, Victor French, Grace Zabriskie, David Caruso. Two misfits seek direction in their dead-end lives—he by enrolling in Naval Officer Candidate School, she by trying to snag him as a husband. Four-letter words and steamy sex scenes can't camouflage a well-worn Hollywood formula script—with virtually every plot point telegraphed ahead of time! Made agreeable by an appealing cast, though even Gossett's Oscar-winning performance as a drill instructor is just a reprise of earlier work like Jack Webb's in THE D.I. Film's love song, "Up Where We Belong," also won an Oscar. [R] ▼

Office Space (1999) C-89m.  D: Mike Judge. Ron Livingston, Jennifer Aniston, David Herman, Ajay Naidu, Diedrich Bader, Stephen Root, Gary Cole, Richard Riehle. Fitfully funny satire of office life in modern-day corporate America, with Livingston as a computer programmer who hates his job and eventually finds a way to express his disdain for his company—and his boss (Cole). Dry and undernourished, though there are some laughs along the way. Nevertheless, the film has acquired a huge following in the years since its original release. Live-action writing and directing debut for Judge, creator of the animated TV series Beavis and Butt-head and King of the Hill. [R] ▼

Official Story, The (1985-Argentina) C-113m. * D: Luis Puenzo. Norma Aleandro, Hector Alterio, Analia Castro, Chunchuna Villafane. Aleandro is exceptional as woman who lives the good life, sheltered from political turmoil that surrounds her in Argentina ... until she begins to suspect that her adopted daughter may have been the offspring of a political prisoner. One of those rare films that manages to make a strong political statement in the midst of a crackling good story. Hard to believe it was director Puenzo's first feature film (he also scripted with Aida Bortnik). Oscar winner as Best Foreign Language Film. A knockout. ▼

Off Limits (1953) 87m. ½ D: George Marshall. Bob Hope, Mickey Rooney, Marilyn Maxwell, Eddie Mayehoff, Stanley Clements, Jack Dempsey, Marvin Miller, Tom Harmon, Carolyn Jones. Peppy but predictable comedy with fight manager Hope finding himself in the Army; he attempts to romance

Maxwell (whose nephew, Rooney, wants Hope to train him as a boxer). ▼

Off Limits (1988) C-102m. *½ D: Christopher Crowe, Willem Dafoe, Gregory Hines, Fred Ward, Amanda Pays, Scott Glenn, Kay Tong Lim, David Alan Grier, Keith David. Sluggish, predictable, unusually sordid melodrama about two pros in the U.S. Army's Criminal Investigation Detachment (CID) who track down the ghoul murdering Vietnamese hookers in 1968 Saigon. Dafoe's goo-goo eyes at nun Pays are good for a few unintentional chuckles; if you can't guess the murderer, get a new hobby. [R] ▼●●

Offside (2006-Iranian) C-93m. ½ D: Jafar Panahi. Sima Mobarak Shahi, Safar Samandar, Shayesteh Irani, M. Kheyabadi, Ida Sadeghi. A group of Iranian girls disguise themselves as men in order to attend a soccer game in which their national team is competing for the World Cup. In real time, the film shows their arrest and their interactions with their captors and each other. Extraordinarily well-acted film that humorously and movingly demonstrates the struggles of a group of people eager to break free from the shackles of a conservative government's values. Not surprisingly, it was banned in Iran. [PG]]

Offspring, The (1986) C-99m. *½ D: Jeff Burr. Vincent Price, Clu Gulager, Terry Kiser, Harry Caesar, Cameron Mitchell, Rosalind Cash, Susan Tyrrell, Martine Beswick, Angelo Rossitto, Lawrence Tierney. Small-town historian Price spins a quartet of horror tales, each of which took place in his hamlet. None is worth listening to. Helluva cast, however. Aka FROM A WHISPER TO A SCREAM. [R] ▼●●

Off the Black (2006) C-90m. ½ D: James Ponsoldt. Nick Nolte, Trevor Morgan, Sonia Feigelson, Sally Kirkland, Rosemarie DeWitt, Timothy Hutton, Noah Fleiss, Michael Higgins, Jonathan Tchaikovsky. Nolte plays a boozing, aging baseball coach who develops a relationship with a young player whom he convinces to pose as his son for an upcoming high school reunion. Slight, character-driven story gives Nolte a prime acting opportunity and he hits it out of the park. The chemistry between him and Morgan is tangible. Super 35. [R]]

Off the Map (2004) C-111m. ½ D: Campbell Scott. Joan Allen, Sam Elliott, Valentina de Angelis, J.K. Simmons, Jim True-Frost, Amy Brenneman. Beautifully realized story, set in the 1970s, about an individualistic, self-reliant New Mexico family dealing with a precocious adolescent daughter, a father who's fallen into a stupor of depression, and the arrival of an agent from the Internal Revenue Service. Never simplistic or superficial, filled with interesting characters, telling visual and verbal detail, and wonderful performances, including young de Angelis in her film debut. Slowly paced film rewards the viewer for being patient. Joan Ackermann adapted her stage play. [PG-13]]

Of Human Bondage (1934) 88m.  D: John Cromwell. Leslie Howard, Bette Davis, Frances Dee, Kay Johnson, Reginald Denny, Alan Hale, Reginald Owen. Smoothly filmed, well-acted version of W. Somerset Maugham's story of doctor Howard's strange infatuation with a vulgar waitress (Davis). Many find Davis' performance overdone, but by any standards it's powerfully impressive, and put her on the map in Hollywood. Howard, lovely Johnson, others are superb. Remade in 1946 and 1964. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Of Human Bondage (1946) 105m.  D: Edmund Goulding. Paul Henreid, Eleanor Parker, Alexis Smith, Edmund Gwenn, Janis Paige, Patric Knowles, Henry Stephenson, Marten Lamont, Isobel Elsom, Una O'Connor. Henreid and Parker give it the old college try but are fatally miscast in this bowdlerized adaptation of Somerset Maugham's steamy novel about the sado-masochistic relationship between a club-footed artist/medical student and a slutty waitress. Plush production can't compensate for the dearth of erotic heat, which was plentiful in the 1934 Bette Davis version.

Of Human Bondage (1964-British) 98m.  D: Ken Hughes. Kim Novak, Laurence Harvey, Siobhan McKenna, Robert Morley, Roger Livesey, Nanette Newman, Brenda Fricker. Third and least successful filming of Maugham novel of doctor's passion for lowbrow waitress, marred by miscasting and general superficiality. ▼

Of Human Hearts (1938) 100m. ½ D: Clarence Brown. Walter Huston, James Stewart, Gene Reynolds, Beulah Bondi, Guy Kibbee, Charles Coburn, John Carradine, Ann Rutherford, Charley Grapewin, Gene Lockhart, Sterling Holloway, Ward Bond. Odd blend of potent 19th-century Americana and mile-high corn, in tale of dedicated preacher Huston who never established rapport with his son. When Abraham Lincoln (Carradine) lectures Stewart about neglecting his mother, it gets to be a bit much. ▼

Of Life and Love (1957-Italian) 103m. ½ D: Aldo Fabrizi, Luchino Visconti, Mario Soldati, Giorgio Pastina, Anna Magnani, Walter Chiari, Natale Cirino, Turi Pandolfini, Myriam Bru, Lucia Bose. Four satisfactory episodes, three of which are based on Pirandello tales; fourth is actual event in Magnani's life ("The Lapdog"). Actually distilled from two Italian episodic features from 1953 and 1954.

Of Love and Desire (1963) C-97m. *½ D: Richard Rush. Merle Oberon, Steve Cochran, Curt Jurgens, John Agar, Steve Brodie. Beautiful settings (including Oberon's lavish Mexican home) offset over-wrought sexual drama of neurotic woman who plays with the affection of several men—including her own stepbrother.

Of Love and Shadows (1994-Spanish-Argentinian) C-109m. *½ D: Betty Kaplan. Antonio Banderas, Jennifer Connelly, Stefania Sandrelli, Diego Wallraff, Camillo Gallardo. Young fashion journalist meets a mysterious photographer and—well, more than just film develops. Adapted from an Isabel Allende novel, this love story set against the backdrop of a Chilean military dictatorship in 1973 is a complete misfire. Convoluted plot makes little sense, and there's no chemistry between the attractive leads. [R]▼

Of Mice and Men (1939) 107m. * D: Lewis Milestone. Lon Chaney, Jr., Burgess Meredith, Betty Field, Charles Bickford, Bob Steele, Noah Beery, Jr. Chaney gives best performance of his career as feeble-brained Lennie who, with migrant-worker Meredith, tries to live peacefully on ranch. John Steinbeck's morality tale remains intact in sensitive screen version. The film's action begins before the main title credits—an arty innovation for 1939. Script by Eugene Solow. Music by Aaron Copland. Remade in 1992 and for TV in 1968 and 1981.▼●

Of Mice and Men (1992) C-110m.  D: Gary Sinise. John Malkovich, Gary Sinise, Alexis Arquette, Sherilyn Fenn, Joe Morton, Richard Riehle, Casey Siemaszko, John Terry, Ray Walston, Noble Willingham. More than respectable rendering of the Steinbeck warhorse, with Malkovich and Sinise respectively cast as Lennie and George—the sweet simpleton and his weary protector. Rescued from mothballs (and high school English) by the subtlety of today's homeless; robust performances and impressive sun-baked look (photographed by Kenneth MacMillan) make it worthwhile. Screenplay by Horton Foote. [PG-13]▼●

Of Time and the City (2008-British) C/B&W-74m. ½ D: Terence Davies. Profoundly personal memory piece about Davies' coming-of-age in Liverpool, his fascination with the cinema, his cynicism about British royalty and his own Catholicism, and dealing with his homosexual feelings. He also ruminates on how one ages and processes the passage of time. Loaded with footage of Liverpool, accompanied by period music and poetic narration. Beautifully done, and tremendously moving.▶

Of Unknown Origin (1983-Canadian) C-88m.  D: George Pan Cosmatos. Peter Weller, Jennifer Dale, Lawrence Dane, Kenneth Welsh, Louis Del Grande, Shannon Tweed. N.Y.C. businessman, bacheloring it temporarily, is driven to distraction by a giant rodent on the loose in his apartment. Slightly better than simultaneously released rather-themed DEADLY EYES. [R]▼

Ogre, The (1996-German-French-British) C-117m. ½ D: Volker Schlöndorff. John

Malkovich, Gottfried John, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Marianne Sägebrect, Volker Spengler, Heino Ferch, Dieter Laser. Seriocomic anti-Nazi parable is not nearly as good as Schlöndorff's classic THE TIN DRUM, but it's an interesting (if heavy-handed), horrific fairy tale about a childlike Frenchman (a miscast Malkovich) who willingly goes to work for the Nazis after being captured during the war and is used to "recruit" German children to join the army. Super 35.▼

Oh, Alfie SEE: Alfie Darling

O Happy Day SEE: Seventeen and Anxious O'Hara's Wife (1982) C-87m. ½ D: William S. Bartman. Edward Asner, Mariette Hartley, Jodie Foster, Perry Lang, Tom Bosley, Ray Walston, Allen Williams, Mary Jo Catlett, Richard Schaal, Nehemiah Persoff. Only Asner is aware of the presence of wife Hartley, who's a ghost. Earnest but forgettable. [PG]▼

Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mama's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feeling So Sad (1967) C-86m. ½ D: Richard Quine. Rosalind Russell, Robert Morse, Barbara Harris, Hugh Griffith, Jonathan Winters, Lionel Jeffries, Cyril Delevanti. Impressive cast tries to sustain black comedy about overpossessive widow (Russell) and weirdo son (Morse) taking vacation on tropical island accompanied by coffin of her late husband. From the Arthur Kopit play.▼

O. Henry's Full House (1952) 117m. ½ D: Henry Hathaway, Howard Hawks, Henry King, Henry Koster, Jean Negulesco. Fred Allen, Anne Baxter, Charles Laughton, Marilyn Monroe, Gregory Ratoff, Jeanne Crain, Oscar Levant, Jean Peters, Richard Widmark, Farley Granger. Five seriocomic stories by O. Henry, introduced by John Steinbeck: "The Clarion Call," "Last Leaf," "Ransom of Red Chief," "Gift of the Magi," and "Cop and the Anthem." Dated overall but still has some effective moments.▶

Oh, God! (1977) C-98m.  D: Carl Reiner. George Burns, John Denver, Teri Garr, Paul Sorvino, George Furth, Ralph Bellamy, Barnard Hughes, David Ogden Stiers. God appears in person of Burns to summon Denver as His messenger, to tell the world that He's alive and well. Film eschews cheap jokes to build a credible story with warm performances and upbeat message. Followed by a pair of sequels. [PG]▼●

Oh God! Book II (1980) C-94m. *½ D: Gilbert Cates. George Burns, Suzanne Pleshette, David Birney, Louanne, Howard Duff, Hans Conried, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Conrad Janis. Burns returns as title character; here, he enlists a child (Louanne) to remind the world that God is not dead. Contrived sequel with just a trickle of laughs; Pleshette, as usual, is wasted. [PG]▼

Oh, God! You Devil (1984) C-96m.  D: Paul Bogart. George Burns, Ted Wass, Ron Silver, Roxanne Hart, Eugene Roche,

Robert Desiderio, James Cromwell. Third ground for Burns gives him dual role of God and the Devil, with Wass as struggling songwriter and performer who sells his soul for success. Good cast and good-natured attitude can't overcome blandness and predictability of this comedy. Written by Andrew Bergman. [PG]▼●●

Oh, Heavenly Dog! (1980) C-103m. ½ D: Joe Camp. Chevy Chase, Benji, Jane Seymour, Omar Sharif, Donnelly Rhodes, Robert Morley, Alan Sues. Private eye Chase returns to earth in the form of a dog to solve his own murder. Benji (in his third film) is as adorable as ever as Chase's alter ego. Filmed in England. Followed by BENJI THE HUNTED. [PG]▼●

Oh in Ohio, The (2006) C-88m. ½ D: Billy Kent. Parker Posey, Paul Rudd, Danny DeVito, Mischa Barton, Miranda Bailey, Liza Minnelli, Keith David, Robert John Burke. Cleveland high school science teacher feels like less than a man since his wife has never experienced an orgasm. He finally seeks satisfaction elsewhere, and so does she—with the help of a vibrator that soon becomes her best friend. Engaging, amusing adult comedy meanders more than it should but has its fair share of funny moments and likable characters. Heather Graham appears unbilled. [R]●

O'Horten (2008-Norwegian-German-French) C-90m.  D: Bent Hamer. Bård Ove, Ghita Nørby, Espen Skjønberg, Henny Moan, Bjørn Floberg, Kai Remlov, Per Jansen. Railroad engineer Odd Horten (Ove) is forced into retirement, which is troubling for a simple man who's devoted his whole life to the routine of his job. His newfound freedom—even his attempt to attend a farewell party—leads him into a series of mild misadventures in the snowy landscape of Norway. Benign, low-key comedy (with dramatic undertones) is not for viewers seeking excitement or compelling narrative storytelling. . . . but if you appreciate offbeat humor and quiet charm you'll find much to savor here. Written by the director, who achieved the same droll results in his KITCHEN STORIES. [PG-13]

Oh . . . Rosalinda!! (1955-British) C-101m. ½ D: Michael Powell, Emeric Pressburger. Michael Redgrave, Ludmilla Tcherina, Anton Walbrook, Mel Ferrer, Dennis Price, Anthony Quayle, Annelise Rothenberger, singing voices of Sari Barabas, Alexander Young, Dennis Dowling, Walter Berry. Johann Strauss' opera Die Fledermaus is updated to contemporary Vienna but retains its elements of a masked ball, mistaken identity, flirtation, etc. Not entirely successful, but still stylish, witty, and colorful, as you'd expect from the team that brought you THE RED SHOES and TALES OF HOFFMAN. Redgrave, Quayle, and Rothenberger use their own singing voices, by the way. CinemaScope.

Oh! What a Lovely War (1969-British) C-139m. ½ D: Richard Attenborough. Laurence Olivier, John Gielgud, Ralph Richardson, Michael Redgrave, John Mills, Vanessa Redgrave, Dirk Bogarde, Susanah York, Maggie Smith, Jack Hawkins, Kenneth More, Corin Redgrave, Jane Seymour. Actor Attenborough's directing debut; impressive but cumbersome series of vignettes on WW1, ranging from colorful musical numbers to poignant human sidelights. Adapted from stage show. Beautifully designed, wildly cinematic, but too drawn-out to make maximum antiwar impact. Panavision. [G]●

Oh, You Beautiful Doll (1949) C-93m. ½ D: John M. Stahl. June Haver, Mark Stevens, S. Z. Sakall, Charlotte Greenwood, Gale Robbins, Jay C. Flippen. Chipper period musical about song plugger who turns serious composer's works into popular songs. Based on true story of Fred Fisher. Songs include title tune, "Peg o' My Heart," "Dardanella."

Oklahoma! (1955) C-145m. ½ D: Fred Zinnemann. Gordon MacRae, Shirley Jones, Charlotte Greenwood, Rod Steiger, Gloria Grahame, Eddie Albert, James Whitmore, Gene Nelson, Barbara Lawrence, Jay C. Flippen. Expansive film version of Rodgers and Hammerstein's landmark 1943 Broadway musical, filled with timeless songs (and the beautiful voices of MacRae and Jones to sing them) . . . plus a fine supporting cast led by incomparable Grahame as Ado Annie. Enough fine ingredients to make up for overlength of film. Songs include "Oh, What a Beautiful Mornin'" and showstopping title tune. This was filmed in two versions, one in Todd-AO and the other in CinemaScope (made from entirely separate "takes"). Both appear on DVD.▼●●

Oklahoma Crude (1973) C-108m.  D: Stanley Kramer. George C. Scott, Faye Dunaway, John Mills, Jack Palance, Harvey Jason, Woodrow Parfrey. Old-fashioned, nonthink entertainment. Strong-willed, man-hating Dunaway determined to defend lone oil well from pressures of Palance, who represents big oil trust, hires drifter Scott to help her. Scott gives brilliant comic performance in mildly enjoyable film. Panavision. [PG]▼

Oklahoma Kid, The (1939) 80m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. James Cagney, Humphrey

Bogart, Rosemary Lane, Donald Crisp, Harvey Stephens, Charles Middleton, Ward Bond. Cagney's the hero, Bogey's the villain in this sturdy Western about a cowboy seeking redress for the lynching of his father. Classic scene has Cagney singing "I Don't Want to Play in Your Yard." ▼●

Oklahoman, The (1957) C-80m. ½ D: Francis D. Lyon. Joel McCrea, Barbara Hale, Brad Dexter, Gloria Talbott, Verna Felton, Douglas Dick, Michael Pate. Town doc McCrea tries to keep Indian Pate from getting rooked out of his land. Pretty routine, though Talbott cultists may want to see her play an Indian maiden the same year she had the title role in DAUGHTER OF DR. JEKYLL. Laundry note: Hale wears the same outfit in a disturbingly high number of scenes. CinemaScope. ▼

Old Acquaintance (1943) 110m.  D: Vincent Sherman. Bette Davis, Miriam Hopkins, Gig Young, John Loder, Dolores Moran, Phillip Reed, Roscoe Karns, Anne Revere. Well-matched stars of THE OLD MAID are reunited as childhood friends who evolve personal and professional rivalry that lasts 20 years. Davis is noble and Hopkins is bitchy in this entertaining film. John Van Druten and Lenore Coffee scripted, from the former's play. Remade as RICH AND FAMOUS. ▼

Oldboy (2003-Korean) C-120m. ½ D: Chan-wook Park. Min-shik Choi, Ji-tae Yu, Hye-Jeong Kang, Dae-han Ji, Dal-su Oh, Byeong-ok Kim. A man, mysteriously imprisoned in a hotel room for 15 years, has only 5 days after release to find his captor and exact revenge. Extremely violent and unpleasant—check out the live octopus this poor guy has to digest in the sushi bar scene; however, Park's action-packed opus will appeal to his faithful fans. Production values are top grade for this genre. Winner of the Grand Prize at the 2004 Cannes Film Festival. Super 35. [R] ▼

Old Boyfriends (1979) C-103m. BOMB D: Joan Tewkesbury. Talia Shire, Richard Jordan, Keith Carradine, John Belushi, John Houseman, Buck Henry. Distressing botch of an intriguing idea about woman who seeks out her former lovers in an attempt to analyze her past. Shire is too lightweight to carry the acting load, and Belushi is totally wasted. Written by Paul and Leonard Schrader. [R] ▼●

Old Curiosity Shop, The SEE: Mr. Quilp
Old Dark House, The (1932) 71m. ½ D: James Whale. Boris Karloff, Melvyn Douglas, Charles Laughton, Gloria Stuart, Lilian Bond, Ernest Thesiger, Raymond Massey, Eva Moore. Outstanding melodrama (with tongue-in-cheek) gathers stranded travelers in mysterious Welsh household, where brutish butler Karloff is just one of many strange characters. A real gem, based on J. B. Priestley's Benighted; screenplay by

Benn W. Levy and R. C. Sherriff. Remade in England in 1963. ▼●●

Old Dark House, The (1963-British) C-86m. ½ D: William Castle. Robert Morley, Janette Scott, Joyce Grenfell, Tom Poston, Mervyn Johns, Fenella Fielding, Peter Bull. Uneven blend of comedy and chiller, with Poston at loose ends in eerie mansion. Released theatrically in b&w. Check out the 1932 version instead. ▼

Old Dracula (1974-British) C-89m. *½ D: Clive Donner. David Niven, Teresa Graves, Peter Bayliss, Jennie Linden, Linda Hayden. Niven somehow maintains his dignity in this one-joke Dracula spoof that has him extracting samples from the necks of various Playboy Bunnies in search of correct blood type to resurrect his departed wife. British title: VAMPIRA. [PG]

Old Enough (1984) C-91m. ½ D: Marisa Silver. Sarah Boyd, Rainbow Harvest, Neill Barry, Danny Aiello, Susan Kingsley, Roxanne Hart, Fran Brill, Alyssa Milano, Anne Pitoniak. Two adolescent girls from wildly diverse socioeconomic backgrounds forge a tenuous friendship, then try to keep it going through thick and thin. Boyd (the rich one) has infinitely more screen appeal than counterpart Harvest, which further undercuts an already too-mild comedy. Funny subplot about sexy hairdresser who lives in Harvest's building. Written by first-time director Silver. [PG] ▼

Oldest Profession, The (1967-French-German-Italian) C-97m. *½ D: Franco Indovina, Mauro Bolognini, Philippe De Broca, Michel Pfleger, Claude Autant-Lara, Jean-Luc Godard. Elsa Martinelli, Jeanne Moreau, Raquel Welch, Anna Karina, France Anglade, Jean-Pierre Léaud. Totally unfunny six-part story of prostitution through the ages. Original French running time: 115m. ▼●

Old Explorers (1990) C-100m.  D: William Pohland. Jose Ferrer, James Whitmore, Jeffrey Gadbois, Caroline Kaiser, William Warfield, Christopher Pohland, Storm Richardson, Dominique Berrand. Two elderly pals—Ferrer and Whitmore—get together once a week to spin tales and embark on flights of fancy. Imagining themselves as famed adventurers (usually African explorer Henry Stanley or Troy archaeologist Henry Schliemann), they recount fictional quests for lost treasures and safaris to mythical lands. Extremely slow pace robs this interesting idea of its potential. [PG] ▼●

Old Fashioned Way, The (1934) 71m. ½ D: William Beaudine. W. C. Fields, Judith Allen, Joe Morrison, Baby LeRoy, Jack Mulhall, Oscar Apfel. Fields is in fine form managing troupe of old-time melodrama The Drunkard, encountering various troubles as they travel from town to town. Baby LeRoy has memorable scene throwing

W. C.'s watch into a jar of molasses; also contains Fields' classic juggling routine. ▀

Old Gringo (1989) C-119m.  D: Luis Puenzo. Jane Fonda, Gregory Peck, Jimmy Smits, Patricio Contreras, Jenny Gago, Jim Metzler, Gabriela Roel, Anne Pitoniak, Pedro Armendariz, Jr. A youngish spinster, a fiery young Mexican general, and an aging-American writer, Ambrose Bierce, cross paths amid the tumult of Pancho Villa's revolution in 1913. Intense, epic scale drama has its share of flaws, but its rich atmosphere and superlative star performances make it well worth seeing. Director Puenzo and Aida Bortnik wrote the screenplay, from Carlos Fuentes' novel. [R] ▀

Old Heidelberg SEE: Student Prince in Old Heidelberg, The

Old Joy (2006) C-76m.  D: Kelly Reichardt. Will Oldham, Daniel London, Tanya Smith. Two old friends who haven't seen each other for a while set off for a weekend camping trip in Oregon. One (Oldham) is somewhat settled and about to become a father; the other (London) is an aging hippie, still drifting through life. At first their conversations only accentuate how much they've grown apart, but as they reach their destination, the serenity of the setting takes hold. Subtle, graceful mood piece about friendship and the way our environment affects who we are and how we live. Reichardt scripted with Jonathan Raymond (whose original short story was inspired by the photographs of Justine Kurland). ▀

Old Lady Who Walked in the Sea, The (1995-French) C-95m.  D: Laurent Heynemann. Jeanne Moreau, Michel Serrault, Luc Thuillier, Geraldine Danon. Moreau's star presence sparks this entertaining, often outrageous comedy, in which she plays a veteran swindler-hustler-blackmailer named Lady M—an aged, wrinkled version of Barbara Stanwyck's LADY EVE—who becomes the mentor of a good-looking but unrefined young beach boy (Thuillier). Serrault is excellent as always as Moreau's longtime partner-in-crime. ▽

Old Maid, The (1939) 95m. ½ D: Edmund Goulding. Bette Davis, Miriam Hopkins, George Brent, Jane Bryan, Donald Crisp, Louise Fazenda, Jerome Cowan, James Stephenson. Soap opera par excellence based on Zoe Akins play and Edith Wharton novel about the rivalry, romantic and otherwise, between cousins Davis and Hopkins. The two female stars create fireworks as they enact this chronicle of love and hate in the 1860s–80s. ▀

Old Man and the Sea, The (1958) C-86m.  D: John Sturges. Spencer Tracy, Felipe Pazos, Harry Bellaver. Well-intentioned but uneven parable of aging fisherman's daily battle with the elements. Tracy is the whole film, making the most of Hemingway's un-filmic story; Dimitri Tiomkin's expressive score won an Oscar. Remade as a TVM in 1990 with Anthony Quinn. ▀

Old Mother Riley Meets the Vampire SEE: Mother Riley Meets the Vampire

Old School (2003) C-90m. ½ D: Todd Phillips. Luke Wilson, Will Ferrell, Vince Vaughn, Jeremy Piven, Ellen Pompeo, Juliette Lewis, Leah Remini, Perrey Reeves, Craig Kilborn, Harve Presnell, Snoop Dogg. Three 30-something pals try to rekindle their youth by opening an "unofficial" fraternity house. That's the hook for this amusing film that never quite takes off, leaving most of the laughs to individual moments involving Ferrell and Vaughn. Andy Dick and Seann William Scott turn up, presumably as a favor to their ROAD TRIP director. Super 35. [R] ▽

Old Yeller (1957) C-83m.  D: Robert Stevenson. Dorothy McGuire, Fess Parker, Tommy Kirk, Kevin Corcoran, Jeff York, Beverly Washburn, Chuck Connors. Disney's first film about a boy and his dog, from Fred Gipson's popular novel, is still one of the best. Atmospheric re-creation of farm life in 1869 Texas, where Kirk becomes attached to a yellow hunting dog. Sequel: SAVAGE SAM. ▀

Oleanna (1994) C-89m.  D: David Mamet. William H. Macy, Debra Eisenstadt. Maddeningly uneven two-character drama about a frustrated, self-involved male professor whose connection with a troubled, vulnerable female student leads to dire consequences. Potentially dynamic material suffers from too much stagginess and dramatic obviousness. Scripted by Mamet, based on his play. ▀

Oliver! (1968-British) C-153m. ½ D: Carol Reed. Ron Moody, Oliver Reed, Shani Wallis, Mark Lester, Jack Wild, Harry Secombe, Hugh Griffith, Sheila White. Fine film of Lionel Bart's hit stage musical of Dickens' Oliver Twist about young boy (Lester) swept into gang of youthful thieves led by scurrilous Fagin (Moody). Colorful atmosphere; rousing score including "Consider Yourself," "As Long as He Needs Me." Six Oscars including Best Picture, Director, Art Direction, Scoring (John Green), and a special prize to Onna White for her spirited choreography. Panavision. [G] ▀

Oliver & Company (1988) C-72m. ½ D: George Scribner. Voices of Joey Lawrence, Billy Joel, Cheech Marin, Richard Mulligan, Roscoe Lee Browne, Sheryl Lee Ralph, Dom DeLuise, Taurean Blacque, Robert Loggia, Bette Midler, Natalie Gregory. Free adaptation of Dickens' Oliver Twist in the cartoon world: homeless kitten falls in with the jaunty Dodger and his canine pals, who work for Fagin, a human nebbish in debt to the heartless Sikes. Dodger (Joel) has the film's best song, "Why Should I Worry?"—but an excitable Chihuahua voiced by Marin provides the biggest laughs. Disney's grittiest (grungiest?) animated feature is no classic, but it's likeable enough. [G]▼●●

Oliver's Story (1978) C-92m. *½ D: John Korty. Ryan O'Neal, Candice Bergen, Nicola Pagetti, Edward Binns, Ray Milland, Swosie Kurtz, Charles Haid, Kenneth McMillan, Josef Sommer. Vapid sequel to LOVE STORY pits money against money this time around, as O'Neal romances heiress to Bonwit Teller fortune. [PG]▼

Oliver Twist (1948-British) 105m. * D: David Lean. Alec Guinness, Robert Newton, John Howard Davies, Kay Walsh, Francis L. Sullivan, Anthony Newley, Henry Stephenson. Superlative realization of Dickens tale of ill-treated London waif involved with archfiend Fagin (Guinness) and his youthful gang, headed by the Artful Dodger (Newley). Later musicalized as OLIVER! Original British running time: 116m.▼●●

Oliver Twist (2005-British-French-Czech-Italian) C-130m.  D: Roman Polanski. Ben Kingsley, Barney Clark, Leanne Rowe, Mark Strong, Jamie Foreman, Harry Eden, Edward Hardwicke, Ian McNeice, Gillian Hanna, Alun Armstrong. Stark, literate adaptation (by Ronald Harwood) of the Charles Dickens classic, spotlighting young, orphaned Oliver (Clark) and his escapades among the criminal element of Victorian London. Polanski offers a sobering portrait of the muck and grime that engulf the poor in any era. Well done, but still no match for David Lean's 1948 masterpiece. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Olivier Olivier (1992-French) C-110m. ½ D: Agnieszka Holland. Francois Cluzet, Brigitte Rouan, Jean-Francois Stevenin, Gregoire Colin, Marina Golovine, Emmanuel Morozof, Faye Gatteau, Frederick Quiring. Exceptional, fact-based account of a country couple whose young son mysteriously disappears. Six years later he "reappears," but is no longer the special child who was a joy to his family; now he's a Parisian street hustler who claims to have forgotten his childhood. A fascinating film, with characters who prove to be far more intricate than they first appear. Holland also scripted. [R]▼●●

Olly, Olly, Oxen Free (1978) C-83m.  D: Richard A. Colla. Katharine Hepburn, Kevin McKenzie, Dennis Dimster, Peter Kilman. Hepburn plays a colorful junk dealer who befriends two young boys and helps them realize their dream of hot-air ballooning. Kate's always worth watching, but except for airborne scenes, this film is nothing special. Aka THE GREAT BALLOON ADVENTURE. [G]▼

gory with surrealist flavor about young coffee salesman who pushes his way to the top only to fall and rise again. Brilliant performances (several actors have multiple roles) throughout; incredible score by Alan Price. Written by David Sherwin. [R]▼●●

Olympia (1936-German) 220m. * D: Leni Riefenstahl. Two-part record of the 1936 Berlin Olympics, highlighted by truly eye-popping cinematography, camera movement and editing. Of course, it's all supposed to be a glorification of the Nazi state. Various edited versions exist (some of which omit all footage of Hitler, who appears throughout the original print).▼

Omar Khayyam (1957) C-101m. ½ D: William Dieterle. Cornel Wilde, Debra Paget, John Derek, Raymond Massey, Michael Rennie, Yma Sumac, Sebastian Cabot. Childish but spirited costume set in medieval Persia; cast defeated by juvenile script. VistaVision.▼

Omega Code, The (1999) C-99m. *½ D: Rob Marcarelli. Casper Van Dien, Michael York, Catherine Oxenberg, Michael Ironside, Jan Triska, Gregory Wagrowski. TV motivational guru Van Dien gets involved with wealthy businessman York, whose eventual plans to dominate the world are tied in with secret messages encoded in the Torah. Financed by televangelist Paul Crouch of the Trinity Broadcasting Network, film did grass-roots box-office business until rank-and-file filmgoers saw it for what it was: glorified direct-to-video cheese. Followed in 2001 by MEGIDDO. [PG-13]▼

Omega Man, The (1971) C-98m. ½ D: Boris Sagal. Charlton Heston, Rosalind Cash, Anthony Zerbe, Paul Koslo, Lincoln Kilpatrick, Eric Laneuville. Visually striking but unsatisfying second filming of Richard Matheson's sci-fi thriller I Am Legend. Heston is under siege by a race of zombies spawned by apocalyptic germ warfare. Heston is superior to Vincent Price (who had role in THE LAST MAN ON EARTH). Remade once again as I AM LEGEND. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Omen, The (1976) C-111m. ½ D: Richard Donner. Gregory Peck, Lee Remick, Billie Whitelaw, David Warner, Harvey Stephens, Patrick Troughton, Leo McKern. Effective but sensationalistic horror piece on the coming of the "Antichrist," personified in young son of Peck and Remick, Americans living in England. Discreet use of gore and a now-famous decapitation, for those who like that kind of thing. Jerry Goldsmith's score won an Oscar. Followed by three sequels beginning with DAMIEN—OMEN II. Remade in 2006. Panavision. [R]▼●●

faced Schreiber in Gregory Peck's role of an American diplomat who substitutes an orphan for his own stillborn baby without telling his wife, slowly coming to the realization that the child is the Antichrist. Virtually identical copy of the 1976 horror hit (David Seltzer wrote the script for both versions), this polished but pointless retreat merely adds gory CGI effects and tasteless references to 9/11, Hurricane Katrina, and other contemporary disasters. Farrow contributes the few genuinely scary moments as Damien's demonic nanny. [R] D

On a Clear Day (2005-British) C-99m.  D: Gaby Dellal. Peter Mullan, Brenda Blethyn, Jamie Sives, Billy Boyd, Sean McGinley, Ron Cook, Jodhi May, Benedict Wong, Anne-Marie Timoney. A bluff working man in his 50s, just fired from the shipyard where he's worked for 36 years, comes up with a crazy scheme to swim the English Channel. Haunted by the death of one son, distant from his other boy, this adventure becomes a metaphor for everyone around him to take charge of their lives. A little obvious in its message (and more than a bit reminiscent of THE FULL MONTY), but well done. Mullan is perfect in the lead. [PG-13] D

On a Clear Day You Can See Forever (1970) C-129m. ½ D: Vincente Minnelli. Barbra Streisand, Yves Montand, Bob Newhart, Larry Blyden, Simon Oakland, Jack Nicholson. Colorful entertainment from Alan Jay Lerner-Burton Lane show about girl (Streisand) whose psychiatrist (Montand) discovers that she lived a former life, in 19th-century England. Sumptuous flashback scenes outclass fragmented modern-day plot, much of it apparently left on cutting-room floor. Glossy but never involving. Panavision. [G] **▼●●

On an Island With You (1948) C-107m. ½ D: Richard Thorpe. Esther Williams, Peter Lawford, Ricardo Montalban, Jimmy Durante, Cyd Charisse, Xavier Cugat, Leon Ames, Marie Windsor. Splashy musical with navy man Lawford working as technical advisor on movie star Williams' latest film; he's hopelessly in love with her, but she's engaged to costar Montalban. Durante easily steals the show. **▼

On Any Sunday (1971) C-91m.  D: Bruce Brown. Steve McQueen, Mert Lawwill, Malcolm Smith. Fine documentary on many aspects of motorcycling by Bruce Brown of ENDLESS SUMMER fame. Followed by a sequel. Followed in 2000 by ON ANY SUNDAY REVISITED. [G] **▼

On Any Sunday II (1981) C-90m.  D: Ed Forsyth, Don Shoemaker. Undistinguished sequel to ON ANY SUNDAY, documenting the exploits of championship motorcyclists. For cycle fans only. [PG] **▼

On Approval (1943-British) 80m.  D: Clive Brook. Beatrice Lillie, Clive Brook, Googie Withers, Roland Culver. Minor

British gem showcasing the hilarious Bea Lillie as woman who decides to give her prospective husband a trial run, with unexpected results. Drawing-room comedy par excellence. Leading-man Brook also directed, produced, and cowrote script (from Frederick Lonsdale's play)—the only time he ever worked behind the camera! **▼●●

On Borrowed Time (1939) 99m.  D: Harold S. Bucquet. Lionel Barrymore, Cedric Hardwicke, Beulah Bondi, Una Merkel, Ian Wolfe, Phillip Terry, Eily Malyon. Engrossing fable of Death, Mr. Brink (Hardwicke), coming for grandpa Barrymore, finding himself trapped in tree by Lionel and grandson Bobb Watson. Engaging whimsy from the play by Lawrence Edward Watkin. **▼●●

Once (2007-Irish) C-86m.  D: John Carney. Glen Hansard, Markéta Irglová. Dublin busker (Hansard) performs his own compositions every night and attracts the attention of a like-minded woman (Irglová) who's also quite talented. The songs they sing—on the street, in rehearsal, and in recording studios—reflect the development of their relationship over one week's time. Disarming, intimate, and utterly winning, this plays more like a cinéma vérité romance than a musical, yet that's what it is. Hansard and Irglová actually composed all the songs they perform; they won Best Original Song Oscar for "Falling Slowly." [R] D

Once Around (1991) C-115m. ½ D: Lasse Hallström. Richard Dreyfuss, Holly Hunter, Danny Aiello, Gena Rowlands, Laura San Giacomo, Roxanne Hart, Danton Stone, Tim Guinee, Greg Germann, Griffin Dunne. Repressed Bostonian Hunter is swept off her feet by amorous (and obnoxious) supersalesman Dreyfuss, who immediately alienates her close-knit family, and puts her in the center of an emotional tug-of-war. Malia Scotch Marmo's script embraces both offbeat romantic comedy and intense family drama, some of it extremely moving, some of it off-base. As an acting showcase, however, it's superb. Coproduced by costar Dunne; Hallström's U.S. directorial debut. [R] **▼●●

Once a Thief (1965-U.S.-French) 107m.  D: Ralph Nelson. Ann-Margret, Alain Delon, Van Heflin, Jack Palance, John Davis Chandler, Jeff Corey, Tony Musante. When young ex-con tries to go straight, he finds himself the pawn in another crime. Not at all interesting. Panavision.

Once Before I Die (1965) C-97m. ½ D: John Derek. Ursula Andress, John Derek, Rod Lauren, Richard Jaeckel, Ron Ely. Brutal, off-beat story of band of American soldiers in Philippines during WW2, trying to survive Japanese attack. Andress is only woman in group, and you can guess the rest. **▼

Once Bitten (1985) C-93m. BOMB D: Howard Storm. Lauren Hutton, Jim Carrey,

Karen Kopins, Cleavon Little, Thomas Ballatore, Skip Lackey. Inept comedy about vampiress (Hutton) who intrudes on amorous pursuits of some teenagers because she needs the blood of a virgin to maintain her youthful glow. Pretty annoying; Carrey is very restrained. [PG-13] ▼●●

Once in Paris ... (1978) C-100m.  D: Frank D. Gilroy. Wayne Rogers, Gayle Hunnicutt, Jack Lenoir, Clement Harari, Tanya Lopert, Doris Roberts. Gilroy wrote this charming tale of Hollywood screenwriter who goes to Paris to work on script, falls in love instead. Lovely location filming; Lenoir steals the film as Rogers' all-knowing chauffeur (which he actually was prior to this picture). [PG] ▼

Once in the Life (2000) C-107m.  D: Laurence Fishburne. Laurence Fishburne, Titus Welliver, Eamonn Walker, Dominic Chianese, Jr., Paul Calderon, Gregory Hines, Annabella Sciorra, Michael Paul Chan, Andres "Dres" Titus. Well-acted but wearisome look at N.Y.C. drug dealers and a crisis that tests friendship against the pressures of "the life," from which there is no escape. Fishburne's directing debut; he also scripted, from his one-act play Riff Raff. [R] ▼●

Once Is Not Enough SEE: Jacqueline Susann's Once Is Not Enough

Once More, With Feeling! (1960-British) C-92m. ½ D: Stanley Donen. Yul Brynner, Kay Kendall, Maxwell Shaw, Mervyn Johns. Despite sparkling Kendall (her last film) as musical conductor Brynner's dissatisfied wife, this marital sex comedy fizzles.

Once Upon a Crime (1992) C-94m. *½ D: Eugene Levy. John Candy, James Belushi, Cybill Shepherd, Sean Young, Richard Lewis, Omella Muti, Giancarlo Giannini, George Hamilton, Joss Ackland, Elsa Martinelli. One of the loudest—and dumbest—comedies of the early '90s, about a group of strangers traveling through Europe who get mixed up with a murder and a missing dachshund. The real crime is the waste of a good cast. Directed by SCTV performer Levy. Based on a forgettable 1964 film, AND SUDDENLY IT'S MURDER! [PG] ▼●●

Once Upon a Forest (1993) C-80m.  D: Charles Grosvenor. Voices of Michael Crawford, Ben Vereen, Ellen Blain, Ben Gregory, Paige Gosney, Elizabeth Moss, Janet Waldo, Susan Silo. Pro-social animated tale of young "furlings" who leave their forest home to find a cure for a friend who's become ill breathing fumes from a chemical spill. Environmental message is imparted in a steady story with typically cute characters, but there's nothing terribly compelling about the film. [G] ▼●●

Once Upon a Honeymoon (1942) 117m. ½ D: Leo McCarey. Ginger Rogers, Cary Grant, Walter Slezak, Albert Dekker, Albert Basserman, Ferike Boros, Harry Shannon, Hans Conried. Strange but intriguing curio with status-seeking ex-burlesque queen Rogers marrying secret Nazi bigwig Slezak... and radio commentator Grant coming to her rescue. Some boring stretches do it in; however, the scenes in which the star duo are mistaken for Jews and almost sent to a concentration camp are fascinating. ▼●●

Once Upon a Horse (1958) 85m. ½ D: Hal Kanter. Dan Rowan, Dick Martin, Martha Hyer, Leif Erickson, Nita Talbot, John McGiver, David Burns, James Gleason. Oddball Western spoof runs hot and cold, with some nutty gags and enough spark to make it worth watching. Old-time Western stars Bob Steele, Kermit Maynard, Tom Keene, Bob Livingston appear briefly as themselves. CinemaScope.

Once Upon a Time (1944) 89m. ½ D: Alexander Hall. Cary Grant, Janet Blair, James Gleason, Ted Donaldson, Art Baker. Amusing comedy-fantasy of entrepreneur Grant promoting a dancing caterpillar; trivial fun. Based on a Norman Corwin radio play, from Lucille Fletcher short story. ●

Once Upon a Time in America (1984) C-139m.  D: Sergio Leone. Robert De Niro, James Woods, Elizabeth McGovern, Tuesday Weld, Larry Rapp, William Forsythe, James Hayden, Treat Williams, Darlanne Fleugel, Burt Young, Joe Pesci, Danny Aiello, Jennifer Connelly, Brian Bloom, James Russo, T. Scott Coffey. Long, engrossing homage to the gangster film, following the rise and fall of Jewish childhood pals on N.Y.C.'s Lower East Side. Shorn of 88m. for U.S. release, story ceases to make sense at several points, and characters appear and disappear with amazing suddenness. Even so, Leone's feel for this genre, compelling performances by De Niro and Woods, and stunning art direction make this well worth watching. Based on Harry Grey's novel The Hoods. Connelly's feature film debut. Complete 227m. version is quite a different film—and not without flaws of its own. (Even this long version is minus several minutes of violent footage—notably from a key rape sequence—which exist in European prints.) Director's cut runs 229m. Originally released in U.S. at 139m. [R] ▼●●

Once Upon a Time in China (1991-Hong Kong) C-134m.  D: Tsui Hark. Jet Li, Yuen Biao, Rosamund Kwan, Kent Cheung, Jacky Cheung, Yan Yee-Kwan. Jet Li became a Hong Kong superstar in this influential martial-arts epic about legendary 19th-century Chinese folk hero Wong Fei Hung (the subject of over 100 Chinese movies, including Jackie Chan's DRUNKEN MASTER), a Confucian healer and kung fu master who clashes with Western interlopers as well as local criminal gangs. Crude dialogue and silly comic relief take backseat to superbly choreographed fight sequences showcasing Li's

balletic, gravity-defying skills, notably in climactic duel utilizing giant ladders. Also released in a 100m. dubbed version. Followed by five sequels. Panavision. [R] ▼

Once Upon a Time in Mexico (2003) C-101m.  D: Robert Rodriguez. Antonio Banderas, Salma Hayek, Johnny Depp, Mickey Rourke, Eva Mendes, Danny Trejo, Enrique Iglesias, Marco Leonardi, Cheech Marin, Ruben Blades, Willem Dafoe, Gerardo Vigil, Pedro Armendáriz. Rodriguez brings back the guitar-toting gunfighter character from EL MARIACHI, reprised by Banderas in DESPERADO, with a bigger budget (for stuntmen and explosions, one presumes) but not much else. Incoherent script has Banderas involved in a coup d'état, but so many characters are double-crossing each other it's hard to keep track (or care), although Depp is fun to watch as a corrupt CIA agent. Shot on high-definition video by Rodriguez, who also wrote, scored, edited, production designed, and supervised the special effects! HD 24P Widescreen. [R] ▼

Once Upon a Time in the Midlands (2002-British) C-104m. ½ D: Shane Meadows. Robert Carlyle, Rhys Ifans, Kathy Burke, Shirley Henderson, Ricky Tomlinson, Finn Atkins. Goofy homage to spaghetti Westerns set in contemporary working-class England. Volatile criminal Jimmy (Carlyle) returns home to win back his estranged girlfriend and their daughter, but they've moved on. Often laugh-out-loud funny and performed by a pitch-perfect cast, but eventually runs out of ideas. Final chapter in Meadows' so-called Midlands trilogy, following TWENTYFOURSEVEN and A ROOM FOR ROMEO BRASS. Super 35. [R] ▼

Once Upon a Time in the West (1968-U.S.-Italian) C-165m. ½ D: Sergio Leone. Charles Bronson, Henry Fonda, Claudia Cardinale, Jason Robards, Gabriele Ferzetti, Paolo Stoppa, Frank Wolff, Jack Elam, Woody Strode, Lionel Stander, Keenan Wynn. Leone's follow-up to his "Dollars" trilogy is languid, operatic masterpiece. Plot, admittedly lifted from JOHNNY GUITAR, has landowner Cardinale waiting for the railroad to come through, unaware she's been targeted by hired killer Fonda (brilliantly cast as one of the coldest villains in screen history). Exciting, funny, and reverent, with now-classic score by Ennio Morricone; not to be missed. Story by Leone, Bernardo Bertolucci, and Dario Argento. Beware chopped-up 140m. version. Techniscope. [M/PG] ▼

Once Upon a Time ... When We Were Colored (1996) C-111m. ½ D: Tim Reid. Al Freeman, Jr., Phylicia Rashad, Paula Kelly, Leon, Richard Roundtree, Salli Richardson, Isaac Hayes, Polly Bergen. Well-meaning saga of a boy's childhood in a tight-knit black community on the Mississippi Delta, spanning the 1940s to the early '60s. Sometimes suffers from schmaltz and

heavyhanded symbolism, but there are some lovely moments. Freeman and Roundtree are standouts. [PG] ▼

Once Were Warriors (1994-New Zealand) C-103m. ½ D: Lee Tamahori. Rena Owen, Temuera Morrison, Mamaengaroa Kerr-Bell, Julian (Sonny) Arahanga, Taungaroa Emile, Clifford Curtis, Julian Arahanga. Shattering drama about a poor, urbanized Maori family, and the wife's growing realization that she can no longer endure her "macho" husband's abuse—both physical and psychological. Striking and powerful film marks Tamahori's directing debut; trenchant script by Riwia Brown, based on Alan Duff's novel, a best-seller in New Zealand. Not to be missed. Followed by WHAT BECOMES OF THE BROKEN HEARTED. [R] ▼

Once You Kiss a Stranger (1969) C-106m. BOMB D: Robert Sparr. Paul Burke, Carol Lynley, Martha Hyer, Peter Lind Hayes, Philip Carey, Stephen McNally, Whit Bissell. Thinly disguised remake of STRANGERS ON A TRAIN, with Lynley as nut who pulls golfer Burke into bizarre "reciprocal murder" scheme. Slick but empty-headed, laughable. [M/PG]

On Dangerous Ground (1952) 82m.  D: Nicholas Ray. Ida Lupino, Robert Ryan, Ward Bond, Charles Kemper, Anthony Ross, Ed Begley, Ian Wolfe, Cleo Moore, Olive Carey. Effective mood-piece with hardened city cop Ryan softened by blind girl Lupino, whose brother is involved in rural manhunt. Bernard Hermann's score was reportedly his favorite work. Produced by John Houseman. ▼

On Deadly Ground (1994) C-101m. *½ D: Steven Seagal. Steven Seagal, Michael Caine, Joan Chen, John C. McGinley, R. Lee Ermey, Shari Shattuck, Billy Bob Thornton. After the critical/popular success of UNDER SIEGE, Seagal was allowed to direct this fast-fader about the raping of Alaska's interior by an oil company run by evil Caine. Spiritual mumbo-jumbo halfway through looks like an outtake from THE DOORS, and the star's anticlimactic final speech (after the obligatory wrist-snapping) had fans bolting for the exits. Caine looks as if he's undergone cosmetic surgery by Dwight Frye. Clairmont-Scope. [R] ▼

One, The (2001) C-87m. *½ D: James Wong. Jet Li, Carla Gugino, Delroy Lindo, Jason Statham, James Morrison, Dylan Bruno, Richard Steinmetz. Loud, wooden martial arts actioner plays like a video game. Li stars as a villain who's been rampaging through parallel universes, killing his alter egos and absorbing their energy; his last remaining opponent is a nice-guy L.A. lawyer. The climactic showdown is all too predictable. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

One and Only, The (1978) C-98m. ½ D: Carl Reiner. Henry Winkler, Kim Darby, Gene Saks, Herve Villechaize, Harold Gould, William Daniels, Polly Holliday,

Ed Begley, Jr., Brandon Cruz, Charles Frank, Mary Woronov. Winkler is a brash college kid determined to make it in show biz, but winds up a flamboyant wrestler. Some truly funny moments build to gradual disenchantment with his basically obnoxious character. Written by Steve Gordon. [PG]▼

One and Only, Genuine, Original Family Band, The (1968) C-117m. ½ D: Michael O'Herlihy. Walter Brennan, Buddy Ebsen, Lesley Ann Warren, John Davidson, Janet Blair, Kurt Russell. Musical family becomes involved in 1888 Presidential campaign; innocuous Disney entertainment with forgettable songs by the Sherman Brothers. Goldie (billed as Goldie Jeanne) Hawn debuts in tiny part as giggling dancer. [G]▼●

One Crazy Summer (1986) C-93m.  D: Savage Steve Holland. John Cusack, Demi Moore, Joel Murray, Curtis Armstrong, Bobcat Goldthwait, Tom Villard, William Hickey, Joe Flaherty. Holland's follow-up to BETTER OFF DEAD is another loosely connected comedy (styled like a cartoon) about a teenage misfit spending summer on Nantucket Island in New England. Some good sight gags and bright moments but no story or real characterizations to hang on to. [PG]▼●

One Cup of Coffee SEE: Pastime

One Dark Night (1983) C-89m. *½ D: Tom McLoughlin. Meg Tilly, Robin Evans, Leslie Speights, Elizabeth Daily, Adam West. Teenagers spend the night in a mausoleum. You've seen it all before, and you don't want to see it again. [PG]▼

One Day in September (1999-U.S.-British) C/B&W-92m.  D: Kevin Macdonald. Narrated by Michael Douglas. Compelling, if slick, Oscar-winning documentary recollection of the 1972 Munich Olympics, during which Palestinian terrorists took hostage a group of Israeli athletes, with tragic consequences. The event comes alive via footage and interviews (including one with the lone surviving terrorist), but style sometimes outweighs substance, as when heavy metal rock music accompanies images of the hostages' blood-soaked corpses. [R]▼

One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich (1971-British-Norwegian) C-100m. ½ D: Casper Wrede. Tom Courtenay, Espen Skjønberg, James Maxwell, Alfred Burke, Eric Thompson. Another instance where a novel was just too difficult to film; Alexander Solzhenitsyn's story of a prisoner in Siberian labor camp only occasionally works on the screen. Good photography by Sven Nykvist; script by Ronald Harwood. [G]▼●

One Deadly Summer (1983-French) C-133m.  D: Jean Becker. Isabelle Adjani, Alain Souchon, Francois Cluzet, Manuel Gelin, Jenny Cleve, Suzanne Flon, Michel Galabru, Maria Machado. Overlong but engrossing drama with astonishing performance by Adjani as young sexpot whose disturbed behavior masks elaborate revenge plan. Extremely well acted, especially by Souchon as her likable beau and Flon as his deaf aunt, but Adjani's character is just too obnoxious to warrant much sympathy. Sebastien Japrisot's screenplay (from his novel) retains unusual device of having several characters take turns narrating. [R]▼

One Desire (1955) C-94m. ½ D: Jerry Hopper. Anne Baxter, Rock Hudson, Julie Adams, Natalie Wood, Betty Garde. Baxter's strong performance as woman in love with gambler Hudson elevates standard soaper.

one eight seven (1997) C-119m. ½ D: Kevin Reynolds. Samuel L. Jackson, John Heard, Kelly Rowan, Clifton Gonzalez Gonzalez, Karina Arroyave, Jonah Rooney. N.Y.C. high school teacher Jackson is stabbed by a student, and relocates to L.A.'s San Fernando Valley. But conditions at the school there are equally rough, and soon some of his students turn up dead. Pretentious treatment of a genuine problem: violence in American schools. A corny, obvious script doesn't help, but the fine acting from all concerned does. Title refers to California state penal code for murder. [R]▼●

One-Eyed Jacks (1961) C-141m.  D: Marlon Brando. Marlon Brando, Karl Malden, Pina Pellicer, Katy Jurado, Ben Johnson, Slim Pickens, Timothy Carey, Elisha Cook, Jr., Margarita Cordova. Fascinating but flawed psychological Western with outlaw Brando seeking revenge on former friend Malden, now a sheriff. Visually striking, and a rich character study, but overlong. Brando's only directorial effort. VistaVision. ▼●

Greene, Joe Grifasi, Pete Hamill, Anna Maria Horsford, Sheila Kelley, Robert Klein, Amanda Peet, Bitty Schram, Holland Taylor, Rachel York. A rarity in the '90s: a genuinely nice movie about two harried and self-absorbed New Yorkers who meet by chance while taking care of their young children during an impossibly hectic career day. He's a hotshot newspaper columnist, she's with an architectural firm. Cute, funny romantic comedy will surely strike many chords with parents. Pfeiffer (never more likeable) also produced. [PG]▼●●

One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest (1975) C-133m. * D: Milos Forman. Jack Nicholson, Louise Fletcher, Brad Dourif, William Redfield, Michael Berryman, Peter Brocco, Will Sampson, Danny DeVito, Christopher Lloyd, Seatman Crothers, Vincent Schiavelli, Sydney Lassick, Louisa Moritz. Ken Kesey's story is a triumph of the human spirit; a feisty misfit (Nicholson) enters an insane asylum and inspires his fellow patients to assert themselves, to the chagrin of strong-willed head nurse (Fletcher). The first film since IT HAPPENED ONE NIGHT to win all five top Oscars: Best Picture, Actor, Actress, Director, Screenplay (Lawrence Hauben, Bo Goldman). Lloyd's film debut. [R]▼●●

One Foot in Heaven (1941) 108m. ½ D: Irving Rapper. Fredric March, Martha Scott, Beulah Bondi, Gene Lockhart, Elisabeth Fraser, Harry Davenport, Laura Hope Crews, Grant Mitchell. Superior acting in honest, appealing story of minister and wife facing various problems as church life and 20th century America clash. Very entertaining, with memorable scene of minister March going to his first movie (a William S. Hart silent).

One Foot in Hell (1960) C-90m. ½ D: James B. Clark, Alan Ladd, Don Murray, Dan O'Herlihy, Dolores Michaels, Barry Coe, Larry Gates, Karl Swenson. Ambitious but peculiar production of sheriff seeking retribution against small town for negligent death of his wife; cowritten by Aaron Spelling. CinemaScope.

One From the Heart (1982) C-99m.  D: Francis Coppola. Frederic Forrest, Teri Garr, Raul Julia, Nastassia Kinski, Lainie Kazan, Harry Dean Stanton, Allen Garowitz (Garfield), Luana Anders. Lavishly produced but practically plotless romantic comedy about a couple (Forrest, Garr) who quarrel, then seek out other partners (Kinski, Julia). Dean Tavoularis' stylized Las Vegas set and the cinematography by Vittorio Storaro and Ronald V. Garcia are astonishing! Unfortunately, pretty images do not a film make. Tom Waits songs fill the soundtrack while the actors play out one of Coppola's most surreal entertainments. A must for the curious—others beware. Look sharp for Rebecca De Mornay as a restaurant patron. Originally 107m., completely recut by Coppola in 2003, incorporating 7m. of previously unused footage. [R]▼●●

Onegin (1999-British) C-106m.  D: Martha Fiennes. Ralph Fiennes, Liv Tyler, Toby Stephens, Lena Headey, Martin Donovan, Alun Armstrong, Harriet Walter, Irene Worth, Jason Watkins, Francesca Annis. Visually beautiful, sensitively directed love story, set in 1820s St. Petersburg and based on Pushkin's Eugene Onegin, about an aristocratic bachelor who inherits a country estate and becomes involved in a paradoxical relationship with a daughter of his new neighbor. Many nice, subtle touches, though Tyler is miscast. Director Martha is the sister of Ralph (who also executive-produced); brother Magnus Fiennes composed the music and sister Sophie Fiennes has a cameo.▼

One Girl's Confession (1953) 74m.  D: Hugo Haas. Cleo Moore, Hugo Haas, Glenn Langan, Russ Conway. Cleo steals from her loutish guardian, then serves jail sentence knowing the loot is waiting for her. Typical Hugo Haas production, with intriguing premise but flimsy development. Moore is presented as (unbelievably) chaste—but our first look at her is in an alluring low-cut bathing suit. Thanks, Hugo.

One Good Cop (1991) C-114m.  D: Heywood Gould. Michael Keaton, Rene Russo, Anthony LaPaglia, Kevin Conway, Rachel Ticotin, Tony Plana, Benjamin Bratt, Charlaune Woodard. Superficial look at dedicated N.Y.C. cop (and happily married man) who—faced with the prospect of fatherhood—is forced to examine his goals and his morality. Mix of urban grittiness and heart-tugging sentiment doesn't work, especially with its many convenient dramatic turns and shortcuts. Those three little girls are adorable, though. [R]▼●●

One Hour Photo (2002) C-96m. ½ D: Mark Romanek. Robin Williams, Connie Nielsen, Michael Vartan, Gary Cole, Dylan Smith, Eriq LaSalle, Erin Daniels. Suburban family leaves its snapshots with Sy, "the Photo Guy," a friendly fellow at the local chain store, little dreaming that Sy has become obsessed with them. Impressive feature by music video veteran Romanek (who also wrote the original screenplay), built on the sturdy foundation of Williams' persuasive and finely tuned performance. [R]▼

One Hour With You (1932) 80m. ½ D: Ernst Lubitsch, George Cukor. Maurice Chevalier, Jeanette MacDonald, Genevieve Tobin, Roland Young, Charlie Ruggles. Chic romance of happily married couple upset by arrival of flirtatious Tobin. Chevalier is delightful as always, talking (and singing) directly to the camera. Remake of Lubitsch's 1924 THE MARRIAGE CIR- CLE; started by Cukor, completed by Lubitsch with Cukor as his assistant. ●●

One Hundred and One Dalmatians (1961) C-79m.  D: Wolfgang Reitherman, Hamilton Luske, Clyde Geronimi. Voices of Rod Taylor, Lisa Davis, Cate Bauer, Ben Wright, Fred Warlock, J. Pat O'Malley, Betty Lou Gerson. Likable, low-key Disney cartoon feature set in England, about the theft and recovery of some adorable dalmatian puppies by a flamboyant villainess named Cruella De Vil. The story's told from a doggy point-of-view, which is just one ingredient of the film's great appeal. Followed 42 years later by a direct-to-video sequel. Remade in 1996. ▼●●

101 Dalmatians (1996) C-103m. ½ D: Stephen Herek. Glenn Close, Jeff Daniels, Joely Richardson, Joan Plowright, Hugh Laurie, Mark Williams, John Shrapnel. Remake of the Disney animated favorite starts out charmingly well, with Daniels and Richardson a perfect pair (along with their dogs Pongo and Perdita), and Close a flamboyantly funny Cruella De Vil. But once the dalmatian puppies are stolen and Cruella's bumbling henchmen take over, this John Hughes's script becomes yet another heavy-handed HOME ALONE retreat, full of mechanical slapstick gags. Followed by a sequel. Panavision. [G] ▼●●

One Hundred and One Nights (1995-French-British) C-101m.  D: Agnès Varda. Michel Piccoli, Marcello Mastroianni, Henri Garcin, Julie Gayet, Mathieu Demy, Emmanuel Salinger. Playful valentine to the cinema, brimming with ideas and clever homages to films and filmmakers. Piccoli stars as Simon Cinéma, a 100-year-old living symbol of film history. An array of international film personalities briefly appear, including Anouk Aimée, Fanny Ardant, Jean-Paul Belmondo, Alain Delon, Catherine Deneuve, Robert De Niro, Gérard Depardieu, Harrison Ford, Gina Lollobrigida, Jeanne Moreau, and Hanna Schygulla. Among the highlights: Piccoli and Depardieu amusingly recall their various cinematic death scenes, and Deneuve and a French-speaking De Niro picturesquely float on a boat in a lake. Full title is ONE HUNDRED AND ONE NIGHTS OF SIMON CINÉMA. ▼

102 Dalmatians (2000) C-100m.  D: Kevin Lima. Glenn Close, Gérard Depardieu, Ioan Gruffudd, Alice Evans, Tim McInnerny, Ben Crompton, Carol Macready, Ian Richardson, Timothy West; voice of Eric Idle. Excruciatingly shrill Disney sequel about the further adventures of Cruella De Vil (Close) as she continues her evil quest to acquire a Dalmatian-skin coat, this time with the help of a nefarious fur designer (Depardieu). Close's high-camp performance and wardrobe are fun for a while, and young children are sure to take to all those adorable puppies, but the results are spotty at best. [G] ▼

One Hundred Men and a Girl (1937) 84m. ½ D: Henry Koster. Deanna Durbin, Leopold Stokowski, Adolphe Menjou, Alice Brady, Eugene Pallette, Mischa Auer, Frank Jenks, Billy Gilbert. Superior blend of music and comedy as Deanna pesters conductor Stokowski to give work to her unemployed father and musician friends. Brimming with charm—and beautiful music, with Charles Previn's score earning an Oscar. ▼●

100 Rifles (1969) C-110m.  D: Tom Gries. Jim Brown, Raquel Welch, Burt Reynolds, Fernando Lamas, Dan O'Herlihy, Hans Gudegast (Eric Braeden). Overripe Western saga has deputy Brown going after Reynolds, fleeing with shipment of guns into Mexico, but meeting and falling for guerrilla leader Welch. Reynolds easily steals film. [PG] ▼

One Is a Lonely Number (1972) C-97m.  D: Mel Stuart. Trish Van Devere, Monte Markham, Janet Leigh, Melvyn Douglas, Jane Elliott, Jonathan Lippe. Sympathetic performance by Van Devere helps this better-than-usual soapier about life of an attractive divorcee; good supporting work by Douglas and Leigh. [PG]

One Last Thing . . . (2006) C-93m.  D: Alex Steyermark. Cynthia Nixon, Michael Angarano, Sunny Mabrey, Nelust Wyclef Jean, Matt Bush, Gideon Glick, Johnny Messner, Gina Gershon. Inoffensive but artificial comedy-drama about a 16-year-old boy who's dying and announces his official wish: to spend a weekend alone with his fantasy woman, a supermodel whose bikini poster adorns his bedroom wall. Some likable performances keep this from becoming saccharine, but can't invest it with any form of reality. Ethan Hawke appears unbilled. ●

One Little Indian (1973) C-90m. ½ D: Bernard McEveety. James Garner, Vera Miles, Clay O'Brien, Pat Hingle, Andrew Prine, Jodie Foster. Garner is AWOL cavalry corporal escaping through desert with young Indian boy and a camel. Unusual Disney comedy-drama. [G] ▼

One Magic Christmas (1985) C-88m.  D: Phillip Borsos. Mary Steenburgen, Gary Basaraba, Harry Dean Stanton, Arthur Hill, Elizabeth Harnois, Robbie Magwood, Michelle Meyrink, Elias Koteas, Jan Rubes, Sarah Polley, Graham Jarvis. Wife and mom enduring hard times has lost the Christmas spirit, but Santa Claus and guardian angel conspire with her daughter to show her the light. Entertaining Disney family fare, though pretty serious at times. . . . and Stanton is the unlikeliest guardian angel in movie history! Made in Canada. [G] ▼●●

One Man Force (1989) C-89m.  D: Dale Trevillion. John Matuszak, Ronny

One Man Jury (1978) C-104m. *½ D: Charles Martin. Jack Palance, Christopher Mitchum, Pamela Shoop, Angel Tompkins, Joe Spinell, Cara Williams. DIRTY HARRY rip-off with Palance as vigilante cop who administers his own brand of violent justice on some particularly repulsive felons. [R]▼

One Man's Hero (1999) C-121m. ½ D: Lance Hool. Tom Berenger, Daniela Romo, Stephen Tobolowsky, Joaquim de Almeida, Mark Moses, James Gammon, Patrick Bergin. When his men are sent to prison just before the outbreak of the Mexican-American war, Berenger attempts to free them and is attacked by the U.S. Army. The fleeing squadron is then captured by guerrilla forces, but they form a bond and decide to fight together. Obviously a labor of love for star/producer Berenger, and based on a true story, but more earnest than exciting. Super 35. [R]▼

One Man's Way (1964) 105m.  D: Denis Sanders. Don Murray, Diana Hyland, Veronica Cartwright, Ian Wolfe, Virginia Christine, Carol Ohmart, William Windom. Tasteful fictionalized biography of Norman Vincent Peale, his religious convictions and preaching; Murray is earnest in lead role.▼

One Million B.C. (1940) 80m. ½ D: Hal Roach, Hal Roach, Jr. Victor Mature, Carole Landis, Lon Chaney, Jr., John Hubbard, Mamo Clark, Jean Porter. Bizarre caveman saga told in flashback is real curio, made on a big scale. Excellent special effects—from prehistoric monsters to an erupting volcano—which have turned up as stock footage in countless cheapies. Long-time rumors that D. W. One Minute to Zero (1952) 105m.  D: Tay Garnett. Robert Mitchum, Ann Blyth, William Talman, Richard Egan, Charles McGraw, Margaret Sheridan, Edward Franz. Romance and war combine uneasily in this muddled Korean War melodrama. Mitchum is a colonel attempting to do his job despite the intrusions of girlfriend Blyth, a United Nations envoy.▼

One Missed Call (2008-U.S.-Japanese-German) C-87m. BOMB D: Eric Valette. Shannyn Sossamon, Edward Burns, Azura Skye, Ana Claudia Talancón, Ray Wise, Johnny Lewis, Jason Beghe, Margaret Cho, Meagan Good. What if you received a message on your cell phone from your future self, with the date and time of your death? No need to stay awake nights wondering, as this film lets you know how some college students deal with just such a predicament. Another Americanized remake of a Japanese horror film (Takashi Miike's CHAKUSHIN ARI) with a good cast wasted. So bad that the title invites pithy putdowns; it's just too easy. [PG-13]●

One More Saturday Night (1986) C-95m. BOMB D: Dennis Klein. Tom Davis, Al Franken, Moira Harris, Frank Howard, Bess Meyer, Dave Reynolds. Unfunny comedy written by and starring the nerdy duo from TV's Saturday Night Live. Unlike one of their TV skits, this feature, about various goings-on during a Saturday evening in Minnesota, runs an hour and a half. Forget it. [R]▼●

One More Time (1970) C-93m. *½ D: Jerry Lewis. Peter Lawford, Sammy Davis, Jr., Esther Anderson, Maggie Wright. Sequel to SALT AND PEPPER is even worse, with Sammy essentially imitating Jerry Lewis (who directed) as he and Lawford struggle to survive after losing their nightclub—and Lawford assumes his twin brother's identity. Excruciatingly bad; of interest as the only feature Lewis ever directed in which he didn't star. [PG]●

One More Train to Rob (1971) C-108m. ½ D: Andrew V. McLaglen. George Peppard, Diana Muldaur, John Vernon, France Nuyen, Steve Sandor. Peppard seeks revenge on former robbery partner who sent him to jail. Unremarkable Western has some flavor, nice supporting cast of familiar faces. [PG]

One Night at McCool's (2001) C-100m.  D: Harald Zwart. Liv Tyler, Matt Dillon, John Goodman, Paul Reiser, Michael Douglas, Reba McEntire, Richard Jenkins, Andrew Silverstein (Andrew Dice Clay), Leo Rossi, Eric Schaeffer. One-note black comedy about three men obsessed with a beautiful vixen (Tyler)—one poor sucker who sees her for what she is, one who worships her as a goddess, and one who's only interested in kinky sex. Some funny moments, but mostly obvious and repetitive. [R]▼●

One Night in the Tropics (1940) 82m. ½ D: A. Edward Sutherland. Allan Jones, Nancy Kelly, Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, Robert Cummings, Leo Carrillo, Mary Boland. Ambitious but unmemorable musical with songs by Jerome Kern, Oscar Hammerstein and Dorothy Fields, from Earl Derr Biggers' gimmicky story Love

Insurance (filmed before in 1919 and 1924). Abbott and Costello, in film debut, have secondary roles to Jones-Kelly-Cummings love triangle, but get to do a portion of their "Who's on First?" routine. ▼

One Night Stand (1997) C-103m.  D: Mike Figgis. Wesley Snipes, Nastassja Kinski, Kyle MacLachlan, Ming-Na Wen, Robert Downey, Jr., John Calley, Glenn Plummer, Amanda Donohoe, John Ratzenberger, Julian Sands, Thomas Haden Church, Donovan Leitch, Ione Skye, Xander Berkeley. Flashy but empty drama about a TV commercials director (Snipes) caught up in a plastic, unfeeling world, whose life is in for quite a jolt upon renewing a friendship with seriously ill Downey and having a chance encounter with Kinski. Figgis turns up as a hotel clerk. [R] ▼

One Night With the King (2006) C-122m. ½ D: Michael O. Sajbel. Tiffany Dupont, Luke Goss, John Rhys-Davies, John Noble, Tommy "Tiny" Lister, James Callis, Jonah Lotan, Peter O'Toole, Omar Sharif. Old Testament romantic thriller about a Jewish orphan forced to hide her heritage when she's chosen as queen to Persian king Xerxes. Large-scale, rich-looking production, shot in India, is packed with tasty biblical intrigue and treachery. But it also features bad acting and dialogue, both High British and Valley Girl, with Dupont like totally wrong as a woman torn between love and loyalty. Previously filmed as ESTHER AND THE KING. O'Toole is seen for barely 30 seconds as the prophet Samuel. [PG] ▼

..... One of Our Aircraft Is Missing (1942-British) 106m. ½ D: Michael Powell, Emeric Pressburger. Godfrey Tearle, Eric Portman, Hugh Williams, Bernard Miles, Hugh Burden, Emrys Jones, Gogie Withers, Joyce Redman, Pamela Brown, Peter Ustinov, Hay Petrie, Roland Culver, Robert Helpmann, John Longden. Thoughtful study of RAF bomber crew who bail out over the Netherlands and seek to return to England. Powell and Pressburger scripted, from the latter's story. Powell makes an appearance as a dispatcher. Some U.S. prints run 82m. ▼

One of Our Dinosaurs Is Missing (1976) C-93m. BOMB D: Robert Stevenson. Peter Ustinov, Helen Hayes, Clive Revill, Derek Nimmo, Joan Sims. The Disney studio's answer to insomnia, a boring film about spy with secret formula hidden in dinosaur bone, and a group of nannies determined to retrieve stolen skeleton. Filmed in England. [G] ▼

One on One (1977) C-98m.  D: Lamont Johnson. Robby Benson, Annette O'Toole, G. D. Spradlin, Gail Strickland, Melanie Griffith. Benson cowrote this sincere, upbeat film about naive basketball player who tries to buck corrupt world of college athletics, and sadistic coach Spradlin. Director Johnson plays Benson's alumni big brother. [PG] ▼

One Plus One SEE: Sympathy for the Devil

One Potato, Two Potato (1964) 92m. ½ D: Larry Peerce. Barbara Barrie, Bernie Hamilton, Richard Mulligan, Robert Earl Jones, Harry Bellaver, Faith Burwell, Tom Ligon. Frank study of interracial marriage, beautifully acted by Barrie and Hamilton. Perceptive script by Raphael Hayes and Orville H. Hampton.

One Sings, the Other Doesn't (1977-French) C-105m.  D: Agnès Varda. Theresse Liotard, Valerie Mairesse, Ali Raffi, Robert Dadies, Francis Lemaire. Simplistic, sugar-coated feminist story paralleling the lives of two women from the early '60s to 1976. An honest attempt to examine the meaning of womanhood, but awfully superficial. ▼

One Spy Too Many (1966) C-102m.  D: Joseph Sargent. Robert Vaughn, David McCallum, Rip Torn, Dorothy Provine, Leo G. Carroll. Torn tries to take over the world, with Vaughn and McCallum to the rescue. Forgettable feature, edited from The Man from U.N.C.L.E. TV series.

One Summer Love (1976) C-98m.  D: Gilbert Cates. Beau Bridges, Susan Sarandon, Mildred Dunnock, Ann Wedgeworth, Michael B. Miller, Linda Miller. Ambitious but muddled drama of Bridges, just out of a mental hospital, attempting to trace his family; Sarandon, who sells candy in a movie theater, takes a liking to him. Screenplay by N. Richard Nash; originally released as DRAGONFLY. [PG] ▼

1001 Arabian Nights (1959) C-75m. ½ D: Jack Kinney. Voices of Jim Backus, Kathryn Grant (Crosby), Dwayne Hickman, Hans Conried, Herschel Bernardi, Alan Reed. Elaborate updating of Arabian Nights tales featuring nearsighted Mr. Magoo has a nice score, pleasing animation. ▼

1,000 Eyes of Dr. Mabuse, The (1960-West German-French-Italian) 105m.  D: Fritz Lang. Dawn Addams, Peter van Eyck, Gert Frobe, Wolfgang Preiss, Werner Peters, Andrea Checchi. Fast-paced, witty thriller, intricately plotted but crystal clear: using the secrets of the original Dr. Mabuse, a modern-day criminal genius blackmails the wealthy, resorting to murder as necessary. Lang's last film as director, marking a strong return to form. Beware of alternate versions still in circulation: THE SECRET OF DR. MABUSE and THE DIABOLICAL DR. MABUSE. ▼

One Touch of Venus (1948) 81m. ½ D: William A. Seiter. Ava Gardner, Robert Walker, Dick Haymes, Eve Arden, Olga San Juan, Tom Conway. Young man in love with department-store window statue of Venus doesn't know what to do when she magically comes to life. Amusing, but misses the bull's-eye, despite its having been a hit on Broadway. Lovely Kurt Weill—Ogden Nash score includes "Speak Low." Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

One Tough Cop (1998) C-94m. *½ D: Bruno Barreto. Stephen Baldwin, Chris Penn, Gina Gershon, Mike McGlone, Paul Guilfoyle, Amy Irving, Victor Slezak, Luis Guzman. Baldwin is miscast as renegade 1980s N.Y.P.D. detective Bo Dietl who, in this hackneyed, highly fictionalized account of his exploits—based on his "autobiographical novel"—stands up to the nasty Feds when they pressure him to rat out his boyhood best friend, who's now a mob boss. Filled with graphic violence and four-letter words. [R] ▼●●

One-Trick Pony (1980) C-98m.  D: Robert M. Young. Paul Simon, Blair Brown, Rip Torn, Joan Hackett, Mare Winningham, Allen Garfield, Lou Reed, The B-52's, Harry Shearer, The Lovin' Spoonful, Sam and Dave, Tiny Tim. Aging rock star tries to salvage marriage while trying to weather changes in audience tastes. Good premise, impressive supporting cast undermined by haphazard construction, lack of Simon's appeal as a leading man. Scripted and scored by Simon; one of those Hare Krishnas is Daniel Stern. [R] ▼●●

One True Thing (1998) C-127m. ½ D: Carl Franklin. Meryl Streep, Renée Zellweger, William Hurt, Tom Everett Scott, Lauren Graham, Nicky Katt, James Eckhouse, Gerrit Graham, Diana Canova. Exceptional, moving family drama about a young woman forced to temporarily move back in with her parents and come to terms with both her mother (an expert homemaker to whom she's never related) and her literary lion of a father (whom she's always idolized). Superb acting and the constant ring of truth distinguish this adaptation by Karen Croner of Anna Quindlen's best-selling novel. [R] ▼●●

One, Two, Three (1961) 108m. * D: Billy Wilder. James Cagney, Arlene Francis, Horst Buchholz, Pamela Tiffin, Lilo Pulver, Howard St. John, Hans Lothar, Leon Askin, Red Buttons. Hilarious Wilder comedy about Coke executive in contemporary West Berlin freaking out when the boss's visiting daughter secretly weds a Communist. Cagney is a marvel to watch in this machine-gun-paced comedy, his last film appearance until 1981's RAG-TIME. Andre Previn's score makes inspired use of Khachaturian's "Sabre Dance." The script, by Wilder and I.A.L. Diamond, was inspired by a Ferenc Molnar one-act play. Panavision. ▼●●

shipboard romance of fugitive Powell and fatally ill Francis, splendidly acted, with good support by MacMahon and McHugh as con artists. Robert Lord won an Oscar for his original story. Remade as 'TIL WE MEET AGAIN.

One Wild Moment (1977-French) C-88m.  D: Claude Berri. Jean-Pierre Marielle, Victor Lanoux, Agnes Soral, Christine Dejoux, Martine Sarcey. Lightweight, unsatisfying sex farce about two middle-aged buddies (Marielle, Lanoux) who vacation with their sexy teen daughters (Soral, Dejoux). Not nearly as clever as other Berri comedies. Remade as BLAME IT ON RIO. Panavision. [R] ▼

One Woman or Two (1985-French) C-97m. *½ D: Daniel Vigne. Gérard Depardieu, Sigourney Weaver, Dr. Ruth Westheimer, Michel Aumont, Zabou. Paleontologist Depardieu discovers the fossil remains of the first Frenchwoman; crass ad exec Weaver is intent on exploiting this to hype perfume. An utterly silly BRINGING UP BABY derivation, with its two stars wasted. [PG-13] ▼

One Woman's Story SEE: Passionate Friends, The

On Golden Pond (1981) C-109m.  D: Mark Rydell. Katharine Hepburn, Henry Fonda, Jane Fonda, Doug McKeon, Dabney Coleman, William Lanteau. Fonda, in his last feature, is no less than brilliant as crochety retired professor Norman Thayer, Jr., angry at being 80 years old and scared of losing his faculties. Hepburn fine as his devoted, all-knowing wife who shares his summers at Maine lakefront home; Jane is his alienated daughter. Sometimes simplistic comedy-drama, scripted by Ernest Thompson from his play, gets a heavy dose of Star Quality. Fonda, Hepburn, and writer Thompson all won Academy Awards for their work. Remade for TV in 2001. [PG] ▼●●

On Guard (1997-French-German) C-128m.  D: Philippe de Broca. Daniel Auteuil, Fabrice Luchini, Vincent Perez, Marie Gillain, Yann Collette, Jean-François Stévenin, Didier Pain, Philippe Noiret. A faithful swordsman rescues an infant princess from the grasp of her sinister relative; the baby's father was also the swordsman's mentor. Deliciously old-fashioned popcorn movie full of derring-do, and set in the France of Louis XIV. Auteuil is well cast as the hero; Errol Flynn would be proud. Originally titled LE BOSSU, and filmed several times before. Opened in the U.S. in 2002. Panavision. ▼●

On Her Majesty's Secret Service (1969-British) C-140m. ½ D: Peter R. Hunt. George Lazenby, Diana Rigg, Gabriele Ferzetti, Telly Savalas, Bernard Lee, Lois Maxwell, Desmond Llewelyn, Catharina Von Schell (Catherine Schell), Bessie Love, Joanna Lumley. Usual globe-hopping Bond vs. Blofeld plot with novel twist: agent Bond ends up marrying Italian contessa (Rigg)! Lazenby, first non-Connery Bond, is OK, but incredible action sequences take first chair; some 007 fans consider this the best of the series. Panavision. [M/PG]▼●●

Onibaba (1964-Japanese) 103m.  D: Kaneto Shindō. Nobuko Otowa, Jitsuko Yoshimura, Kei Sato, Kuchiki Uno. In war-torn medieval Japan, a widow and her mother-in-law ambush and kill soldiers to sell their armor, until the younger woman falls for one of them. Visceral, erotic, and genuinely creepy folk tale is not for the squeamish, but is expertly made, highlighted by stunning Tohoscope cinematography. ▼●

Onion Field, The (1979) C-127m.  D: Harold Becker. John Savage, James Woods, Franklyn Seales, Ted Danson, Ronny Cox, Dianne Hull, Christopher Lloyd, Priscilla Pointer, Pat Corley. Heart-wrenching true story about a cop who cracks up after witnessing his partner's murder and fleeing; adapted by author Joseph Wambaugh without any studio interference. Well acted and impassioned, but never quite peaks. [R]▼●●

Onionhead (1958) 110m.  D: Norman Taurog. Andy Griffith, Felicia Farr, Walter Matthau, Erin O'Brien, Joe Mantell, Ray Danton, James Gregory, Joey Bishop, Roscoe Karns, Claude Akins, Peter Brown, Tige Andrews. Muddled mishmash with Griffith joining the Coast Guard pre-WW2 and becoming a ship's cook. Tries desperately to be a comedy, romance, and drama all at once, with elements of NO TIME FOR SERGEANTS and MISTER ROBERTS, but is only sentimental and silly. ▼

Only Angels Have Wings (1939) 121m. ½ D: Howard Hawks. Cary Grant, Jean Arthur, Richard Barthelmess, Rita Hayworth, Thomas Mitchell, Sig Ruman, John Carroll, Allyn Joslyn, Noah Beery, Jr. Quintessential Howard Hawks movie, full of idealized men and women (and what men and women!) in this look at relationships among mail pilots stationed in South America—and how things heat up when a showgirl (Arthur) is tossed into the stew. An important star-boosting showcase for Hayworth, too. Jules Furthman scripted, from a story by Hawks. ▼●

Only Game in Town, The (1970) C-113m.  D: George Stevens. Elizabeth Taylor, Warren Beatty, Charles Braswell, Hank Henry, Olga Valery. Romance of chorus girl and gambler takes place in Las Vegas, but was shot in Paris and suffers for it; restriction of action to indoor scenes slows pace of this pleasant adaptation of Frank D. Gilroy's play. Beatty is excellent. Stevens' final film. [M/PG]▼

Only the Lonely (1991) C-102m.  D: Chris Columbus. John Candy, Maureen O'Hara, Ally Sheedy, James Belushi, Anthony Quinn, Kevin Dunn, Milo O'Shea, Bert Remsen, Joe V. Greco, Macaulay Culkin, Kieran Culkin. Chicago cop, who still lives with his mom, falls in love—and has to overcome both his mother's resistance and his feelings of guilt over leaving her. Sweet, sentimental update of MARTY shines with performances that are right on-target, including O'Hara's first since 1973's THE RED PONY. [PG-13]▼●●

Only the Strong (1993) C-96m.  D: Sheldon Lettich. Mark Dacascos, Stacey Travis, Geoffrey Lewis, Paco Christian Prieto, Todd Susman, Jeffrey Anderson Gunter. Ex-Green Beret, his old Miami high school now threatened by a drug lord, turns a dozen of the joint's worst malcontents into crimebusters by teaching them a rhythmic, Brazilian form of martial arts called capoeira. Real-life martial arts champ Dacascos is appealing in a can't-act kind of way. Dopey but inoffensive; at its best in potentially choreographed fight scenes. [PG-13]▼●●

Only the Valiant (1951) 105m.  D: Gordon Douglas. Gregory Peck, Barbara Payton, Ward Bond, Gig Young, Lon Chaney, Jr., Neville Brand, Jeff Corey. Unusually brutal Western tale of hard-bitten Army officer Peck assembling a detail of misfit cavalrymen to hold off rampaging Indians. ▼●●

Only Thrill, The (1998) C-108m. *½ D: Peter Masterson. Diane Keaton, Sam Shepard, Diane Lane, Robert Patrick, Tate Donovan, Sharon Lawrence, Stacey Travis. A fine cast can't save this drab theaterjerker about the thwarted affair between a widowed seamstress and a small-town Texas shopkeeper that begins in 1966, spans three decades, and begins to repeat itself when their grown children fall in love. Stagy, contrived, and never plausible, with some hilariously unconvincing old-age wigs and makeup effects. [R]▼●

Only Two Can Play (1962-British) 106m.  D: Sidney Gilliat. Peter Sellers, Mai Zetterling, Virginia Maskell, Richard Attenborough, Kenneth Griffith. Well-intentioned filming of Kingsley Amis novel That Uncertain Feeling (adapted by Bryan Forbes), striving for quick laughs rather than satire. Sellers is librarian flirting with society woman Zetterling. ▼

Only When I Larf (1968-British) C-104m. ½ D: Basil Dearden. Richard Attenborough, David Hemmings, Alexandra Stewart, Nicholas Pennell. Fun con-game film finds three confidence men scheming to sell militant African diplomat scrap metal in ammunition cases. [G]

Only When I Laugh (1981) C-120m.  D: Glenn Jordan. Marsha Mason, Kristy McNichol, James Coco, Joan Hackett, David Dukes, John Bennett Perry, Kevin Bacon. Bittersweet Neil Simon comedy about alcoholic actress Mason struggling to stay off the bottle and her relationship with teenaged daughter McNichol. Fine performances by the leads, superior ones by Coco as a gay failed actor and Hackett as an aging Park Avenue beauty. Screenplay by Simon, loosely based on his play The Gingerbread Lady. [R] ▼●

Only You (1992) C-85m.  D: Betty Thomas. Andrew McCarthy, Kelly Preston, Helen Hunt, Daniel Roebuck, Denny Dillon, Kid Creole and The Coconuts. McCarthy, dumped by his dishy girlfriend-of-the-moment, meets sexy Preston and winds up taking her on his vacation jaunt to an idyllic beach resort . . . but are looks really everything? Pleasant-enough romantic comedy, with a capable and attractive cast, gets just too predictable to sustain itself. Reni Santoni appears unbilled. Released direct to video. Clairmont-Scope. [PG-13] ▼●

Only You (1994) C-108m.  D: Norman Jewison. Marisa Tomei, Robert Downey, Jr., Bonnie Hunt, Joaquim De Almeida, Fisher Stevens, Billy Zane, Adam LeFevre, John Benjamin Hickey, Siobhan Fallon, Phyllis Newman. Likable confection about a young woman who spends her whole life searching for her perfect mate—whose name was conjured up in childhood on a Ouija board; fate and happenstance bring her to Europe to meet her “other half.” Tomei’s earnest and appealing performance makes the far-fetched story work. Director Jewison provides a dreamy travelogue of Italy (photographed by Sven Nykvist, no less) as her backdrop. Like so many contemporary romantic comedies, this one invokes an earlier one (ROMAN HOLIDAY) to justify its existence. [PG] ▼●

On Moonlight Bay (1951) C-95m. ½ D: Roy Del Ruth. Doris Day, Gordon MacRae, Billy Gray, Mary Wickes, Leon Ames, Rosemary DeCamp. Turn-of-the-century, folksy musical based on Booth Tarkington’s Penrod stories with tomboy (Day) and next door neighbor (MacRae) the wholesome young lovers. Sequel: BY THE LIGHT OF THE SILVERY MOON. ▼●

On My Own (1992-Italian-Canadian-Australian) C-93m. ½ D: Antonio Tibaldi. Judy Davis, Matthew Ferguson, David McIlwraith, Nicolas Van Burek, Michele Melega, Colin Fox, Jan Rubes. Complex, deeply felt, hauntingly powerful coming-of-age drama about 15-year-old Ferguson, who attends a boys’ prep school. His parents are divorced; he’s physically and emotionally distanced from his father, and learns that his mother (Davis, who is superb) is a schizophrenic. The scenario details how he is affected by her illness, her personality, and her fate. ▼

On My Way to the Crusades, I Met a Girl Who . . . (1968-Italian) C-93m. BOMB D: Pasquale Festa Campanile. Tony Curtis, Monica Vitti, Hugh Griffith, John Richardson, Ivo Garrani, Nino Castelnuovo. Weak comedy about Vitti’s chastity belt was held back from release for a long time, and no wonder. Aka THE CHASTITY BELT. [R]

On Our Merry Way (1948) 107m.  D: King Vidor, Leslie Fenton. Burgess Meredith, Paulette Goddard, Henry Fonda, James Stewart, Fred MacMurray, William Demarest, Dorothy Lamour, Victor Moore, Harry James, Eduardo Ciannelli, Dorothy Ford, Hugh Herbert. Silly multi-episode comedy, with a buoyant Meredith posing as an inquiring reporter and asking people what impact a baby has had on their life. Strained slapstick throughout. Protracted sequence, with Stewart and Fonda as laconic musician pals, was written by John O’Hara. Aka A MIRACLE CAN HAPPEN. ▼●

On the Avenue (1937) 89m.  D: Roy Del Ruth. Dick Powell, Madeleine Carroll, Alice Faye, Ritz Brothers, Alan Mowbray, Billy Gilbert, Cora Witherspoon, Joan Davis, Sig Rumann. Tasteful, intelligent musical of socialite Carroll getting involved with stage star Powell. One good Irving Berlin song after another: “I’ve Got My Love To Keep Me Warm.” “This Year’s Kisses,” “Let’s Go Slumming,” “The Girl on the Police Gazette.” ▼●

On the Beach (1959) 133m. * D: Stanley Kramer. Gregory Peck, Ava Gardner, Fred Astaire, Anthony Perkins, Donna Anderson, John Tate, Guy Doleman. Thoughtful version of Nevil Shute’s novel about Australians awaiting effects of nuclear fallout from explosion that has depopulated the rest of the world. Good performances by all, including Astaire in his first dramatic role. Screenplay by John Paxton. Remade for cable TV in 2000. ▼●

On the Double (1961) C-92m.  D: Melville Shavelson. Danny Kaye, Dana Wynter, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Margaret Rutherford, Diana Dors. Danny’s resemblance to English general makes him valuable as a WW2 spy. At one point he does a Marlene Dietrich imitation! Repeats dual-identity gimmick from Kaye’s earlier ON THE RIVIERA with equally entertaining results. Panavision.

On the Edge (1985) C-92m.  D: Rob Nilsson. Bruce Dern, Bill Bailey, Jim Haynie, John Marley, Pam Grier. Well-meaning but predictable, ultimately disappointing tale of middle-aged Dern, who attempts to redeem his life by competing in a grueling footrace. Available in unrated version. [PG-13] ▼

On the Line (2001) C-85m. *½ D: Eric Bross, Lance Bass, Joey Fatone, Emmanuelle Chriqui, Dave Foley, Jerry Stiller, GQ (Gregory Qayium), James Bulliard, Tamala Jones, Richie Sambora, Dan Montgomery, Al Green. Nice guy meets a cute girl on the Chicago el, fails to get her name or phone number, then mounts a campaign to find her. Intended to showcase *NSYNC's Bass, who's likable enough, but this is a simplistic five-minute concept stretched to feature length. (In fact, it's a remake of a short subject by the same writers.) Bass' onscreen friends (including *NSYNC's Fatone) are obnoxious; even Stiller and Foley flounder with unfunny material. [PG] ▼

On the Right Track (1981) C-98m. ½ D: Lee Philips. Gary Coleman, Lisa Eilbacher, Michael Lembeck, Norman Fell, Maureen Stapleton, Bill Russell, Herb Edelman. Coleman is a lovable 10-year-old shoeshine boy who lives out of a train station locker and predicts horserace winners like the hero of THREE MEN ON A HORSE; Stapleton is on hand as a bag lady. Coleman's theatrical starring debut is hardly feature-film material. [PG] ▼

On the Riviera (1951) C-90m.  D: Walter Lang. Danny Kaye, Gene Tierney, Corinne Calvet, Marcel Dalio, Jean Murat. Bouncy musicomedy with Danny in dual role as entertainer and French military hero. "Ballin' the Jack," other songs in lively film. Gwen Verdon is one of chorus girls. Remake of Maurice Chevalier's FOLIES BERGERES. ▽

On the Ropes (1999) C-94m. ½ D: Nannette Burstein, Brett Morgen. Compelling documentary about a former boxer named Harry Keitt who works with young people at a Brooklyn gym, hoping to give them focus and purpose as well as a possible career after they're showcased at the Golden Gloves. The film follows three of his protégés—a promising young woman who's been dealt a bad hand, a cocky young man who thinks he knows the answers, and a real comer who's too easily seduced by the lure of fame and fortune. Rich, real, often heartbreaking . . . a must-see. ▼

ges the span between sequences of astronaut endurance tests and other space-flight maneuvers. CinemaScope.

On the Town (1949) C-98m. * D: Gene Kelly, Stanley Donen. Gene Kelly, Frank Sinatra, Vera-Ellen, Betty Garrett, Ann Miller, Jules Munshin, Alice Pearce, Florence Bates. Three sailors have 24 hours to take in the sights and sounds of N.Y.C. Exuberant MGM musical, innovatively shot on location all over the City, isn't much in terms of plot and discards some of the best songs from the Betty Comden-Adolph Green-Leonard Bernstein show on which it's based . . . but it's still terrific entertainment. Highlight: "New York, New York." Oscar winner for Roger Edens and Lennie Hayton's musical scoring. An impressive directing debut for Kelly and Donen. ▼

On the Waterfront (1954) 108m. * D: Elia Kazan. Marlon Brando, Karl Malden, Lee J. Cobb, Rod Steiger, Pat Henning, Eva Marie Saint, Leif Erickson, Tony Galento, John Hamilton, Nehemiah Persoff. Budd Schulberg's unflinching account of N.Y.C. harbor unions (suggested by articles by Malcolm Johnson), with Brando unforgettable as misfit, Steiger his crafty brother, Cobb his waterfront boss, and Saint the girl he loves. That classic scene in the back of a taxicab is just as moving as ever. Winner of eight Oscars: Best Picture, Director, Actor (Brando), Supporting Actress (Saint), Story & Screenplay, Cinematography (Boris Kaufman), Art Direction-Set Decoration (Richard Day), and Editing (Gene Milford). Leonard Bernstein's music is another major asset. Film debuts of Saint, Martin Balsam, Fred Gwynne, and Pat Hingle. Adapted as a Broadway show decades later. ▼

On the Yard (1979) C-102m.  D: Raphael D. Silver. John Heard, Thomas D. Waites, Mike Kellin, Richard Bright, Joe Grifasi, Lane Smith. Convict Heard makes a fatal mistake by mixing it up with jailhouse kingpin Waites. So-so prison picture seems hardly worth the effort, though Kellin is memorable as an aging loser trying to get paroled. [R] ▼

On Valentine's Day (1986) C-106m. ½ D: Ken Harrison. William Converse-Roberts, Hallie Foote, Michael Higgins, Steven Hill, Rochelle Oliver, Richard Jenkins, Carol Goodheart, Horton Foote, Jr., Matthew Broderick. Literate but unmemorable account of the various goings-on in a small Texas town in 1917. Interesting characterizations, good performances, but doesn't add up to much. Semiautobiographical screenplay by Horton Foote. Followed by CONVICTS; both are prequels to 1918. Produced for PBS's American Playhouse, where it was telecast (along with 1918) as STORY OF A MARRIAGE. [PG]▼

Open City (1945-Italian) 105m. * D: Roberto Rossellini. Aldo Fabrizi, Anna Magnani, Marcello Pagliero, Maria Michi, Vito Annicchiarico, Nando Bruno, Harry Feist. Classic Rossellini account of Italian underground movement during Nazi occupation of Rome; powerful moviemaking gem with excellent performances from a memorable cast. Cowritten by Rossellini, Federico Fellini, and Sergio Amidei. Aka ROME, OPEN CITY. ▼●

Open Doors (1990-Italian) C-109m.  D: Gianni Amelio. Gian Maria Volonte, Ennio Fantastichini, Renzo Giovampietro, Renato Carpentieri, Tuccio Musumeci. Stimulating drama about jurist Volonte, presiding over a murder trial in Fascist Italy. A thoughtful look at the personal implications of judging others, of what it means to condemn another to death even if he is obviously guilty. It also focuses on the need to probe for truth and justice in spite of political repression. [R]▼

Opening Night (1977) C-144m.  D: John Cassavetes. Gena Rowlands, John Cassavetes, Ben Gazzara, Joan Blondell, Paul Stewart, Zohra Lampert. Fascinating if you appreciate Cassavetes' style (he also wrote it); interminable if you don't. Rowlands is an actress facing a midlife crisis triggered by the death of an adoring fan while her play is trying out in New Haven. Blondell fine as the sympathetic authoress, Cassavetes himself no less interesting as Rowlands' costar. Look for Peter Falk, Peter Bogdanovich, and Seymour Cassel. ▼●

Open Range (2003) C-138m.  D: Kevin Costner. Robert Duvall, Kevin Costner, Annette Bening, Michael Gambon, Michael Jeter, Diego Luna, James Russo, Abraham Benrubi, Dean McDermott, Kim Coates, Cliff Saunders. In 1882, some cattle drivers run afoul of a local despot who's declared war on "freegrazers." Instead of moving on, the highly moral Duvall and partner Costner decide to stay and fight for what's right. The story is as simple as a Roy Rogers B movie, writ large, and while some of the dialogue tends toward declarations, it's a classical Western, carefully crafted and moving at a deliberate pace as it follows all of the genre's rituals. Duvall is a pleasure to watch. Production design and use of the Alberta landscape are first-rate. Based on a novel, The Open Range Men, by Luran Paine. Super 35. [R]▼

Open Season (1974-Spanish) C-103m. BOMB D: Peter Collinson. Peter Fonda, John Phillip Law, Richard Lynch, William Holden, Cornelia Sharpe. Sordid mixture of violence and sex as three Vietnam War buddies hunt humans. Video title: RECON GAME. Panavision. [R]▼

Open Season (1996) C-97m.  D: Robert Wuhl. Robert Wuhl, Rod Taylor, Helen Shaver, Gailard Sartain, Maggie Han, Steven C. White, Timothy Arrington, Barry Flatman, Dina Merrill, Saul Rubinek, Tom Selleck, Alan Thicke, Jimmie Walker, Joe Piscopo. Smart, funny satire of television and our competitive society. Wuhl plays a nerdy but straight-arrow worker bee at a ratings company who through personal integrity and candor has a knack for getting himself into trouble; then he stumbles into a job in public broadcasting. Fine supporting cast, including Taylor in a pungent performance as a messianic programming chief. Filmed in 1993. [R] ▼●

Open Water (2004) C-80m.  D: Chris Kentis. Blanchard Ryan, Daniel Travis. Young couple gets away from the stress of daily life with a last-minute vacation south of the border. After a scuba expedition they're somehow left behind by their excursion boat and must find a way to survive on their own, in the middle of the ocean, without food or water, surrounded by sharks. Intense drama eschews Hollywood clichés for a perceptive study of chance, fate, and emotions stripped raw. Debut feature for writer-director-editor-cocinematographer Kentis. His wife, Laura Lau, produced and also did camerawork. Followed by an in-name-only direct-to-video sequel. [R]▼

Open Your Eyes (1998-Spanish-French-Italian) C-119m. *½ D: Alejandro Amenábar. Penélope Cruz, Eduardo Noriega, Chete Lera, Fele Martínez, Najwa Nimri. A handsome young man falls in love, but his jealous former girlfriend deals him a cruel blow. Murky psychological thriller bounces from present-day reality to a nightmarish vision of the past and present. The hero becomes a tortured soul, but why do we in the audience have to suffer too? Original title: ABRE LOS OJOS. Remade in 2001 as VANILLA SKY. [R]▼

Operation Amsterdam (1960-British) 105m. ½ D: Michael McCarthy. Peter Finch, Eva Bartok, Tony Britton, Alexander Knox, Malcolm Keen. Standard war-

Operation Crossbow (1965) C-116m. ½ D: Michael Anderson. George Peppard, Sophia Loren, Trevor Howard, Tom Courtenay, Jeremy Kemp, Anthony Quayle, John Mills, Sylvia Syms, Richard Todd, Lilli Palmer. Fine "impossible mission" tale of small band of commandos out to destroy Nazi secret missile stronghold during WW2. Sensational ending, and the pyrotechnics are dazzling. Scripted by Robert Imrie (Emeric Pressburger), Derry Quinn, and Ray Rigby. Retitled THE GREAT SPY MISSION. Panavision.▼●●

Operation Double 007 SEE: Operation Kid Brother

Operation Dumbo Drop (1995) C-107m. ½ D: Simon Wincer. Danny Glover, Ray Liotta, Denis Leary, Doug E. Doug, Corin Nemec, Dinh Thien Le, Tcheky Karyo, Hoang Ly, James Hong. In the midst of the Vietnam War, a new, by-the-book captain (Liotta) arrives in a strategic village to take the place of Glover, but finds himself on an unlikely adventure to replace the hamlet's all-important elephant. Surprisingly flat until the climax, when things finally pick up. Also an odd choice of setting and subject for a Disney family film . . . which explains the lack of swearing and the toning-down of Leary's conniving character. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Operation Kid Brother (1967-Italian) C-104m. *½ D: Alberto De Martino. Neil Connery, Daniela Bianchi, Adolfo Celi, Bernard Lee, Anthony Dawson, Lois Maxwell. Screen debut of Sean Connery's brother in James Bond spinoff is a disaster, in tale of master criminal (Celi)'s plan to blackmail Allied governments into controlling half of world's gold supply. Operation M SEE: Hell's Bloody Devils

Operation Mad Ball (1957) 105m.  D: Richard Quine. Jack Lemmon, Kathryn Grant (Crosby), Mickey Rooney, Ernie Kovacs, Arthur O'Connell, James Darren, Roger Smith. Weak service comedy about crafty soldiers planning wild party off base. Dull stretches, few gags. O'Connell comes off better than supposed comedians in film.●

Operation Overthrow SEE: Power Play

Operation Pacific (1951) 111m.  D: George Waggener. John Wayne, Patricia Neal, Ward Bond, Scott Forbes. Overzealous submariner Wayne is ultradedicated to his navy command; the WW2 action scenes are taut, and Neal makes a believable love interest.▼●●

Simon, Gavin MacLeod, Madlyn Rhue, Marion Ross, Nicky Blair. Hilarious comedy about submarine captain Grant who's determined to make his injured ship seaworthy again, and con artist Curtis who wheels and deals to reach that goal. Some truly memorable gags; Grant and Curtis are a dynamite team in this happy film. Remade for TV in 1977.▼●●

Operation Thunderbolt (1977) C-125m.  D: Menahem Golan. Yehoram Gaon, Klaus Kinski, Assaf Dayan, Shai K. Ophir, Sybil Danning. Stunning retelling of the famed raid by Israeli commandos on July 4, 1976, to rescue 104 hijacked passengers from a plane at Entebbe in Uganda. The stamp of official Israeli approval given this film and dedicated performances by a basically Israeli cast make this one outshine both star-laden American-made dramatizations, RAID ON ENTEBBE and VICTORY AT ENTEBBE. Opportunists, The (2000) C-89m.  D: Myles Connell. Christopher Walken, Peter McDonald, Cyndi Lauper, Vera Farmiga, Donal Logue, Jose Zuniga, Tom Noonan, Anne Pitoniak, Kate Burton. Walken plays a perpetual screw-up who's persuaded to participate in a robbery that's a "sure thing" . . . even though he served time for his last attempt. Low-key to the point of catatonia, this formulaic yarn gets its only juice from Walken; Lauper is good as his independent-minded girlfriend. [R]

Opportunity Knocks (1990) C-105m. ½ D: Donald Petrie. Julia Carvey, Robert Loggia, Todd Graff, Dana Campbell, Milo O'Shea, James Tolkan, Doris Belack, Sally Gracie, Del Close. Innocuous comedy about a con artist who assumes someone else's identity and falls into a plum job with a bathroom-fixture tycoon, who happens to have a cute daughter. First starring showcase for Saturday Night Live comic Carvey lets him do his dialect shticks, but never catches fire. [PG-13]▼●●

Opposite of Sex, The (1998) C-105m. ***

D: Don Roos. Christina Ricci, Martin Donovan, Lisa Kudrow, Lyle Lovett, Johnny Galecki, William Scott Lee, Ivan Sergei. Bold, clever black comedy about a truculent 16-year-old girl who runs away from home to stay with her gay half-brother, willfully disrupts his relationships, and sets his life into a spin. Writer-director Roos creates a gallery of unusual and interesting characters, but it's a tie who has the smartest, funniest lines—Ricci, as the smart-alecky heroine/narrator, or Kudrow, as the brother's sour confidante. Not for all tastes. [R] ▼●●

Well-heeled musical remake of Clare Boothe Luce's THE WOMEN has stellar cast, but still pales next to brittle original (Shearer, Crawford, Russell, etc.). Major difference: music and men appear in this expanded version. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Opposite Sex (And How to Live With Them), The (1993) C-86m. BOMB D:

Matthew Mesheko. Arye Gross, Courteney Cox, Kevin Pollak, Julie Brown, Mitchell Ryan, Phil Bruns, Mitzi McCall, B. J. Ward, Jack Carter, Kimberlin Brown, Kimber Sissons, Andrea Evans. Painfully strained comedy about courtship rituals between a Jewish jock male and a WASP female with hoity-toity friends. Complete with annoying first-person, eyes-into-the-camera chat-ups to us by all four leads. Sat on the shelf, unreleased, roughly dating back to the Polk Administration. [R] ▼●●

Optimists, The (1973-British) C-110m.

 D: Anthony Simmons. Peter Sellers, Donna Mullane, John Chaffey, David Daker. Entertaining comedy-drama of London busker (street entertainer) Sellers and the two tough little kids he takes in hand. Songs by Lionel Bart include effective "Sometimes." Alternate version runs 94m. [PG] ●

Kasdan. Colin Hanks, Jack Black, Catherine O'Hara, Schuyler Fisk, John Lithgow, Harold Ramis, Jane Adams, Garry Marshall, Dana Ivey, Chevy Chase, Lily Tomlin, George Murdock, Leslie Mann. Southern California teen forsakes his fun-in-the-sun life to become a writer, hoping to be accepted at Stanford University, but his wildly dysfunctional family (including a perpetually stoned brother) keeps getting in the way. Lumpy, goofball comedy suddenly turns serious and sincere toward the end—to no great effect. Written by Mike White, who also appears

briefly. Kevin Kline and Ben Stiller are un-billed. [PG-13] ▼●

Orca (1977) C-92m.  D: Michael Anderson. Richard Harris, Charlotte Rampling, Will Sampson, Peter Hooten, Bo Derek, Keenan Wynn, Robert Carradine. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Orchestra Conductor, The (1980-Polish)

C-101m.  D: Andrzej Wajda. John Gielgud, Krystyna Janda, Andrzej Seweryn, Jan Ciercierski. Uneven drama about aged Polish conductor Gielgud returning to his hometown. Excellent cast is defeated by a superficially philosophical script. Video title: THE CONDUCTOR. ▼

Orchestra Rehearsal (1979-Italian) C-72m.

½ D: Federico Fellini. Baldwin Baas, Clara Colosimo, Elizabeth Lubi, Ronoldo Bonacchi, Ferdinando Villella. Heavy-handed allegory that examines an orchestra as microcosm of troubled world; occasional moments of wit and insight, but overall a disappointment. Made for Italian television. Music by Nino Rota. [R] ▼●●

Orchestra Wives (1942) 98m. ½ D:

Archie Mayo. George Montgomery, Ann Rutherford, Glenn Miller and his Band, Lynn Bari, Carole Landis, Cesar Romero, Virginia Gilmore, Mary Beth Hughes, The Nicholas Brothers, Jackie Gleason, Henry (Harry) Morgan. Hokey storyline (with hotshot trumpeter Montgomery impetuously marrying moony-eyed fan Rutherford) serves as a nice showcase for Miller's band, and features such hits as "Serenade in Blue," "At Last," and "I've Got a Gal in Kalamazoo," featuring Tex Beneke, The Modernaires, and a snazzy dance routine by The Nicholas Brothers. That's young Jackie Gleason as the band's bass player . . . and look fast for Dale Evans as Rutherford's soda-fountain pal. ▼●●

Ordeal by Innocence (1984) C-87m. *½

D: Desmond Davis. Donald Sutherland, Faye Dunaway, Christopher Plummer, Sarah Miles, Ian McShane, Diana Quick, Annette Crosbie. Agatha Christie mystery has American Sutherland as amateur sleuth in 1950s English hamlet. Cast wasted, logic absent in utterly pointless film. Score by Dave Brubeck. Made in England. [PG-13] ▼●●

Order, The (2003) C-102m. *½ D: Brian

Young priest Ledger is sent to Rome to probe the mysterious death of his mentor and discovers an ancient Catholic ritual involving "Sin Eaters," an order of immortal renegade priests who consume people's sins. Boring, bloody, and often risible EXORCIST wannabe; another directing misfire for Oscar-

Order of Myths, The (2008) C-78m. *****
D: Margaret Brown. Mobile, Alabama, hosts the oldest Mardi Gras in the U.S.—but to this day there are two parallel celebrations, one white and one black. Filmmaker Brown (who grew up there) explores the history of the city and reveals how age-old events still resonate there, even as eager participants gear up for the biggest event(s) of the year. A disarming and revealing slice of life that proves regionalism is alive and well in America.▶

Ordet (1955-Danish) 125m.  D: Carl Dreyer. Henrik Malberg, Emil Hass Christensen, Preben Lerdorff Rye. Two rural families, at odds with each other over religious differences, are forced to come to grips with their children's love for each other. Arguably Dreyer's greatest film, but certainly the movies' final word on the struggle between conventional Christianity and more personalized religious faith. Truly awe-inspiring, with a never-to-be-forgotten climactic scene. Based on a play by Kaj Munk, filmed before in 1943.▼

Ordinary Decent Criminal (2000-U.S.-Irish-British) C-94m. *½ D: Thaddeus O'Sullivan. Kevin Spacey, Linda Fiorentino, Helen Baxendale, Stephen Dillane, Peter Mullan, David Hayman, Patrick Malahide, Gerard McSorley, Colin Farrell. Smug Irish criminal Spacey likes to steal and takes pleasure not only in outwitting the police but in humiliating them as well. The main character is so arrogant and unlikely that it isn't fun to watch him taunt authority. Fiorentino and Spacey fumble with their brogues in this otherwise forgettable film. Loosely based on the life of Martin Cahill, whose story was told in 1998's THE GENERAL. Super 35. [R]▼

Ordinary People (1980) C-123m.  D: Robert Redford. Donald Sutherland, Mary Tyler Moore, Judd Hirsch, Timothy Hutton, M. Emmet Walsh, Elizabeth McGovern, Dinah Manoff, James B. Sicking. Superb adaptation of Judith Guest's novel about a well-to-do family's deterioration after the death of the eldest son, told mostly from the point of view of his guilt-ridden younger brother. Intelligent, meticulously crafted film, an impressive directorial debut for Redford, who won an Academy Award, and young Hutton, who took the Best Supporting Actor prize. Other Oscars for screenwriter Alvin Sargent and for Best Picture of the Year. McGovern's film debut. [R]▼

Orgazmo (1997) C-90m. ½ D: Trey Parker. Trey Parker, Dian Bachar, Robyn Lynne Raab, Michael Dean Jacobs, Ron Jeremy, Andrew W. Kemler, David Dunn, Matt Stone. Surprisingly slick—and undeniably funny—low-budget farce about a young Mormon on a mission who winds up being recruited to star in a porno movie being shot in L.A. Written by Parker, and featuring his pal Stone (together, the creators of South Park); raunchy and offensive, but also surprisingly conventional in its storytelling. Unrated 95m. version also available. [NC-17]▼

Original Gangstas (1996) C-98m. * D: Larry Cohen. Fred Williamson, Jim Brown, Pam Grier, Paul Winfield, Isabel Sanford, Oscar Brown, Jr., Richard Roundtree, Ron O'Neal, Christopher B. Duncan, Eddie Bo Smith, Jr., Dru Down, Robert Forster, Charles Napier, Wings Hauser. Fast-paced but very violent action thriller marks a return to the blaxploitation films of the '70s, reuniting many of the genre's top stars. When a gang shoots the father of a former bad boy turned good guy, he enlists the services of his ex-buddies to rid the town of this new urban terror. Serviceable but hardly inspired; it's still fun to see these actors doing what comes naturally. [R]▼

Original Kings of Comedy, The (2000) C-117m. ½ D: Spike Lee. Steve Harvey, D. L. Hughley, Cedric The Entertainer, Bernie Mac. Lee's straightforward filmization of a concert in Charlotte, N.C., by four leading black stand-up comics. Uncensored, funny riffs abound, mostly on the differences between blacks and whites, but the film could've benefited from some tightening. Harvey is hands down most hilarious, whether spoofing TITANIC or praising the virtues of old-school '70s soul music. [R]▼

Original Sin (2001-U.S.-French) C-112m. *½ D: Michael Cristofer. Angelina Jolie, Antonio Banderas, Thomas Jane, Pedro Armendariz, Gregory Itzin, Allison Mackie, Joan Pringle, Cordelia Richards, Jack Thompson, James Haven. Overdone, laughably bad adaptation of the Cornell Woolrich novel Waltz Into Darkness (previously filmed by François Truffaut as MISSISSIPPI MERMAID). Banderas plays a rich Cuban at the beginning of the 20th century who discovers his young bride isn't exactly what he thought. Of interest only for steamy sex

scenes between Jolie and Banderas. Also available in unrated version. Super 35. [R]▼

Orlando (1993-British) C-93m.  D: Sally Potter. Tilda Swinton, Billy Zane, Lorraine Bracco, John Wood, Charlotte Valandrey, Heathcote Williams, Quentin Crisp, Peter Eyre, Ned Sherrin, Jimmy Somerville. Well, it's certainly unique: the story of someone who lives four hundred years (Swinton, in a stunning performance)—first as a man, and later as a woman—evolving from a young nobleman in the era of Queen Elizabeth I (Quentin Crisp portrays the monarch!) to a highly sensitized contemporary woman of the 20th century. Set in, on, and around various continents, time frames, and locales, this adaptation of Virginia Woolf's 1928 book (scripted by the director) is highly recommended for fans of the offbeat. Swinton's young daughter, Jessica, portrays Orlando's daughter at the finale. [PG-13]▼

Orphanage, The (2007-Mexican-Spanish) C-106m.  D: Juan Antonio Bayona. Belén Rueda, Fernando Cayo, Roger Princep, Montserrat Carulla, Andrés Gertrúdx, Edgar Vivar, Geraldine Chaplin. A woman and her husband move into the seaside mansion where she spent part of her childhood when it was an orphanage. Their loving (adopted) son Simon has always had "imaginary" friends, but in this strange new environment "they" turn violent and abduct the boy. Gothic shocker builds suspense and terror in classical fashion, as this densely plotted story unfolds—with unusual parallels to James Barrie's Peter Pan. Bayona's directorial debut; coproduced by Guillermo del Toro. Panavision. [R]▼

Orphans (1987) C-120m. ½ D: Alan J. Pakula. Albert Finney, Matthew Modine, Kevin Anderson. Young punk brings a well-heeled drunk home one night, planning to fleece him, but soon learns that his "victim" is no dummy; in fact, he quickly takes over the lives of the hot-tempered mugger and his slow-witted younger brother. Lyle Kessler's script (from his own play) fails to adapt its stage conventions to the new medium . . . but the performances are so powerful, and the material so emotional, that it's still worthwhile. Besides, Finney can do no wrong. [R]▼

Orphans of the Storm (1922) 125m.  D: D. W. Griffith. Lillian Gish, Dorothy Gish, Joseph Schildkraut, Morgan Wallace, Lucille LaVerne, Sheldon Lewis, Frank Puglia, Creighton Hale, Monte Blue, Louis Wolheim. Griffith's epic about sisters cruelly separated, one blind and raised by thieves, one innocent and plundered by lecherous aristocrats. Implausible plot segues into French Revolution, with lavish settings and race-to-the-rescue climax. For all its creaky situations, and extreme length, still dazzling. Based on a 19th-century French play, The Two Orphans, which was

filmed before in 1915 and again in 1933 and 1955.▼

Orpheus (1949-French) 95m.  D: Jean Cocteau. Jean Marais, Francois Perier, Maria Casarés, Marie Dea, Juliette Greco, Roger Blin. Compelling cinematic allegory set in modern times with poet Marais encountering Princess of Death, exploring their mutual fascination. Heavy-handed at times, but still quite special. Remade by Jacques Demy as PARKING. Original French running time: 112m.▼

Osama (2003-Afghani-Dutch-Irish-Japanese-Iranian) C-82m. ½ D: Siddiq Barmak. Marina Golbahari, Arif Herati, Zubaida Sahar, Mohamad Nader Khadjeh, Hamida Refah, Khwaja Nader. When the repressive Taliban regime shuts down the small Afghan hospital at which a 12-year-old girl assists her widowed mother, any chance of eking out a living is cut off. Women are now forbidden to go outdoors unescorted by a male relative, so the child is disguised as a boy named Osama; then the real dangers begin. Harrowing drama achieves poignancy and power through its straightforward depiction of one person's destiny. Written, edited, and coproduced by the director. First film made in Afghanistan after the fall of the Taliban; in fact, the first film made since the Taliban rose to power and destroyed the Afghan film industry. [PG-13]▼

Oscar, The (1966) C-119m. ½ D: Russell Rouse. Stephen Boyd, Elke Sommer, Eleanor Parker, Milton Berle, Joseph Cotten, Jill St. John, Ernest Borgnine, Edie Adams, Tony Bennett, Jean Hale. Shiny tinsel view of Hollywood and those competing for Academy Awards; Parker as love-hungry talent agent comes off best. Loosely based on Richard Sale novel, with many guest stars thrown in. Some of the dialogue is so bad it's laughable.▼

Oscar (1991) C-109m. ½ D: John Landis. Sylvester Stallone, Ornella Muti, Don Ameche, Peter Riegert, Tim Curry, Vincent Spano, Marisa Tomei, Eddie Bracken, Linda Gray, Chazz Palminteri, Kurtwood Smith, Yvonne De Carlo, Ken Howard, William Atherton, Martin Ferrero, Harry Shearer, Richard Romanus, Kirk Douglas. Stallone is surprisingly enjoyable in a comic change-of-pace, playing 1930s gangster Angelo "Snaps" Provolone, who's trying to go straight, despite the domestic and financial chaos that surrounds him. Farcical comedy, complete with mistaken identities and slamming doors, offers showcases for Palminteri as Snaps' henchman, Curry as a priggish speech teacher, Bracken as a stuttering stoolie, and Shearer and Ferrero as the Finuccis but never quite takes wing. Based on a French play, filmed before in 1967 with Louis de Funes. [PG]▼

Oscar and Lucinda (1997-Australian) C-132m. ½ D: Gillian Armstrong. Ralph

Fiennes, Cate Blanchett, Ciarán Hinds, Tom Wilkinson, Josephine Byrnes, Richard Roxburgh, Billie Brown. Odd romance of two Australian misfits in the mid 1800s: scarred and tormented clergyman's son Fiennes and independent Victorian heiress Blanchett, both of whom are gambling fanatics. The wager of their lives becomes surreal, as an iron-and-glass church is transported by sea and overlaid into the wilderness. Eccentricity upstages romance and passion in this adaptation of Peter Carey's novel. Reminiscent of Herzog's FITZCARRALDO. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Oscar Wilde (1960-British) 96m.  D: Gregory Ratoff. Robert Morley, Phyllis Calvert, John Neville, Ralph Richardson, Dennis Price, Alexander Knox. Morley is ideally cast as famed 19th-century playwright and wit, in film that focuses on his traumatic trials and eventual conviction for sodomy. Released at the same time as THE TRIALS OF OSCAR WILDE with Peter Finch.

Osmosis Jones (2001) C-95m.  D: Bobby Farrelly, Peter Farrelly; animation directors Piet Kroon, Tom Sito. Bill Murray, Elena Franklin, Molly Shannon, Chris Elliott; voices of Chris Rock, Laurence Fishburne, David Hyde Pierce, Ron Howard, Brandy Norwood, William Shatner, Kid Rock, Ben Stein. A slovenly zoo attendant who neglects his daughter takes even worse care of his body; inside his system, a maverick blood cell named Osmosis disobeys orders and tries to defeat an invading virus. Ingenious, well-designed animated film, full of clever ideas about the workings of the human body, is all but undone by a live-action framing story about Bill Murray's character, who is simply disgusting. Clairmont-Scope. [PG] ▼

O.S.S. (1946) 107m.  D: Irving Pichel. Alan Ladd, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Patric Knowles, Richard Benedict, Richard Webb, Don Beddoe, Onslow Stevens. Brisk WW2 espionage film; Ladd is part of the Office of Strategic Services team sent to demolish France's railroad—and one key tunnel. ▼

Ossessione (1942-Italian) 140m. ½ D: Luchino Visconti. Massimo Girotti, Clara Calamai, Juan deLanda, Elio Marcuzzo. Visconti's first feature triggered the great era of Italian neorealism, transplanting James Cain's The Postman Always Rings Twice quite successfully to Fascist Italy; however, as an unauthorized version of the book, it was not permitted to be shown in the U.S. until 1975. Heavy going at times, but fascinating nonetheless. Filmed earlier in France, twice later in the U.S. ▼

Osterman Weekend, The (1983) C-102m. ½ D: Sam Peckinpah. Rutger Hauer, John Hurt, Craig T. Nelson, Dennis Hopper, Chris Sarandon, Meg Foster, Helen Shaver, Cassie Yates, Burt Lancaster. Intriguing, sometimes confusing adaptation of Robert

Ludlum thriller about a controversial talk-show host who's recruited by the CIA to expose some friends who are supposedly Soviet agents. Consistently interesting but aloof and cold, despite a top-notch cast. Peckinpah's final film. [R]▼●●

Otello (1986-Italian) C-120m. ½ D: Franco Zeffirelli. Plácido Domingo, Katia Ricciarelli, Justino Diaz, Petra Malakova, Urbano Barberini. Beautifully filmed version of the Verdi opera, with Domingo in fine voice in the title role; he is more than ably assisted by Ricciarelli as wife Desdemona and Diaz as the evil, manipulative Iago. Nearly flawless in all respects; a must for opera buffs. [PG]▼●●

Othello (1952-Italian) 92m. ½ D: Orson Welles. Orson Welles, Micheal MacLiammoir, Suzanne Cloutier, Robert Coote, Michael Lawrence, Fay Compton, Doris Dowling. Riveting, strikingly directed version of the Shakespeare play with Welles in the title role, lied to by Iago (MacLiammoir) into thinking that wife Desdemona (Cloutier) has been unfaithful. Shot, incredibly, between 1949 and 1952, because of budget difficulties; one of the most fascinating (and underrated) attempts at Shakespeare ever filmed. Joseph Cotten appears as a Senator, Joan Fontaine as a Page. Reconstructed (with its music score rerecorded) for 1992 reissue. Aka THE TRAGEDY OF OTHELLO: THE MOOR OF VENICE. ▼●●

Othello (1965-British) C-166m. * D: Stuart Burge. Laurence Olivier, Frank Finlay, Maggie Smith, Joyce Redman, Derek Jacobi, Edward Hardwicke, Mike Gambon, John McNery. Brilliant transferral to the screen of Shakespeare's immortal story of the Moor of Venice. Burge directed the filming, Olivier staged the production. Panavision. ▼

Othello (1995-U.S.-British) C-125m.  D: Oliver Parker. Laurence Fishburne, Kenneth Branagh, Irène Jacob, Nathaniel Parker, Michael Maloney, Anna Patrick, Nicholas Farrell, Indra Ove, Michael Sheen, Pierre Vaneck, Gabriele Ferzetti, Andre Oumansky, Philip Locke, John Savident. Though not as brilliantly cinematic as Welles' version, Parker's film may be more accessible to modern audiences, as the dialogue is delivered in a naturalistic fashion. Fishburne is very good in the title role, bringing out the warrior Moor's essential innocence and passion, but Branagh is brilliant as the witty, scheming Iago; Jacob, as Desdemona, is less satisfactory. Overall, an intelligent, respectable adaptation. [R] ▼●●

and evil. Stark, chilling mood tale adapted by Thomas Tryon from his novel. [PG]▼

Other Boleyn Girl, The (2008-U.S.-British) C-114m. ½ D: Justin Chadwick. Natalie Portman, Scarlett Johansson, Eric Bana, Kristin Scott Thomas, Mark Rylance, David Morrissey, Jim Sturgess, Benedict Cumberbatch, Oliver Coleman, Ana Torrent, Eddie Redmayne, Juno Temple. Impoverished family's scheme to curry favor with England's King Henry VIII by foisting their daughter Anne (Portman) on him backfires when he shows more interest in her sister Mary (Johansson) . . . at least, at first. Absorbing historical drama is extremely well acted, with Bana an uncharacteristically subdued Henry VIII, but looks cheap at times, and lacks a certain punch. Peter Morgan streamlined Philippa Gregory's best-selling novel, which also was filmed in 2003 for British TV. [PG-13]●

Other Love, The (1947) 95m. ½ D: Andre de Toth. Barbara Stanwyck, David Niven, Richard Conte, Maria Palmer, Joan Lorring, Gilbert Roland, Richard Hale, Lenore Aubert. Dying Stanwyck decides to live wild life with gambler Conte, unaware that doctor Niven loves her. Not convincing, but enjoyable.

Other People's Money (1991) C-101m. ½ D: Norman Jewison. Danny DeVito, Gregory Peck, Penelope Ann Miller, Piper Laurie, Dean Jones, Tom Aldredge, R. D. Call. Ruthless Wall Street predator known as Larry the Liquidator sets his sights on acquiring—and destroying—the New England wire and cable company run in traditional and familial style by Peck . . . but he doesn't count on having to battle a lawyer as smart (or as appealing) as Miller, who just happens to be Peck's daughter. A great vehicle for DeVito, though lacking the bite (and the ethnicity) of Jerry Sternler's off-Broadway play. Slick and engaging, but never really satisfying. [R]▼●●

Others, The (2001-Spanish-U.S.) C-101m.  D: Alejandro Amenábar. Nicole Kidman, Fionnula Flanagan, Christopher Eccleston, Elaine Cassidy, Eric Sykes, Alakina Mann, James Bentley, Renée Asherson. Engrossing ghost story set on the Channel Islands in 1945. A troubled woman whose husband has never returned from the war tries to maintain her creepy old house while protecting—or is it overprotecting?—her two young children. A new household staff may be part of the solution, or just another manifestation of the problem. In the tradition of THE HAUNTING (1963), this eerie film builds tension by showing virtually nothing, but firing our imagination. Written by the director. [PG-13]▼

Other Side of Heaven, The (2001) C-113m. ½ D: Mitch Davis. Christopher Gorham, Anne Hathaway, Joe Folau, Miriama Smith, Nathaniel Lees. Old-fashioned, heartfelt saga based on the life of John Groberg, a dedicated young man who leaves his fiancée in the 1940s to bring religious teachings to the people of Tonga in the South Pacific. Corny and two-dimensional at times, but the film's sincerity ultimately wins out. Although the protagonist is a missionary for the Mormon church, the film does not proselytize. [PG]▼

Other Side of Midnight, The (1977) C-165m. BOMB D: Charles Jarrott. Marie-France Pisier, John Beck, Susan Sarandon, Raf Vallone, Clu Gulager, Christian Marquand, Michael Lerner, Howard Hesseman. Trashy Sidney Sheldon novel gets the treatment it deserves in ponderous story, set from 1939–1947, about a woman who parlays her body into film stardom. Dull, as opposed to lively, drek. [R]▼

Other Side of Paradise, The SEE: Fox-trot

Other Side of the Bed, The (2002-Spanish) C-109m.  D: Emilio Martínez-Lázaro. Ernesto Alterio, Paz Vega, Guillermo Toledo, Natalia Verbeke, Alberto San Juan, María Esteve, Ramón Barea, Nathalie Poza. The gnarled sex lives of two couples unravel and then come together again in this colorful musical, a big hit in Spain. Everyone talks a lot and sings about sex, both straight and gay. Frolicsome, with dance numbers and (mild) sex scenes galore. It's fairly pointless but good-natured fun. Super 35. [R]▼

Other Side of the Mountain, The (1975) C-101m. ½ D: Larry Peerce. Marilyn Hassett, Beau Bridges, Belinda J. Montgomery, Nan Martin, William Bryant, Dabney Coleman, Dori Brenner, Griffin Dunne. Pleasantly performed but undistinguished true-life tragedy about skier Jill Kinmont, once a shoo-in for the Olympics until a sporting accident left her paralyzed from the shoulders down. Followed by 1978 sequel. [PG]▼

Other Side of the Mountain Part 2, The (1978) C-100m. ½ D: Larry Peerce. Marilyn Hassett, Timothy Bottoms, Nan Martin, Belinda J. Montgomery, Gretchen Corbett, William Bryant. Smooth continuation of story of crippled skier Jill Kinmont (Hassett), who finds true love with trucker Bottoms. Timothy's real-life father James plays his dad in this film. [PG]▼

Other Sister, The (1999) C-129m. ½ D: Garry Marshall. Juliette Lewis, Diane Keaton, Tom Skerritt, Giovanni Ribisi, Poppy Montgomery, Sarah Paulson, Linda Thorson, Juliet Mills, Hector Elizondo. Sentimental but unfocused film about a mentally challenged girl and her first attempts to free herself from a smothering mother. Appealing performances by Lewis and Ribisi (as her boyfriend) help make up for the wandering nature of the screenplay, though it would be hard not to shed a tear by the end. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Otley (1969-British) C-90m.  D: Dick Clement. Tom Courtenay, Romy Schneider, Alan Badel, James Villiers, Leonard Rossiter, Fiona Lewis, Freddie Jones, Ronald Lacey. Static spy spoof about petty thief and beautiful secret agent is helped a bit by Courtenay and Schneider, but otherwise has little to recommend it. [M/PG]

Our Brand Is Crisis (2005) C-87m.  D: Rachel Boynton. Savvy documentary offers a revealing exploration of "foreign policy for profit," spotlighting the manner in which consulting firms market political candidates across the globe. The emphasis is on a U.S.-based firm (one of whose partners is James Carville) hired to help a less-than-forthcoming candidate win a presidential election in Brazil. While its message isn't new, the film is a worthy companion piece to such classics of the genre as THE WAR ROOM. ▽

Our Daily Bread (1934) 74m. ½ D: King Vidor. Karen Morley, Tom Keene, John Qualen, Barbara Pepper, Addison Richards, Harry Holman. Landmark experiment by always innovative filmmaker Vidor, who stepped outside the studio system to make this bold, back-to-the-soil drama about communal living. Unfortunately, the acting—especially by leading man Keene—is so pedestrian as to sabotage the film. Climactic irrigation sequence is justly famous, however. ▽●●

Our Hitler (1980-German) C-420m.  D: Hans-Jürgen Syberberg. Heinz Schubert, Peter Kern, Hellmut Lange, Rainer von Arntfels, Martin Sperr. Frightfully pretentious, stage-influenced 7-hour rationalization of Hitler's rise to power would probably play better if shown in four parts, as it was on German TV. A stimulating intellectual exercise for some, a laxative for most; distributed in the U.S. by Francis Ford Coppola. ▽

Our Hospitality (1923) 74m. * D: Buster Keaton, Jack Blystone. Buster Keaton, Natalie Talmadge, Joe Keaton, Joe Roberts. Buster goes to the South to claim a family inheritance, and falls in love with the daughter of a longtime rival clan. Sublime silent comedy, one of Buster's best, with a genuinely hair-raising finale. Incidentally, Buster married his leading lady in real life. ▽●●

Our Lady of the Assassins (2000-French-Spanish) C-101m. ½ D: Barbet Schroeder.

Germán Jaramillo, Anderson Ballesteros, Juan David Restrepo, Manuel Busquets, Wilmar Agudelo, Juan Carlos Álvarez. A middle-aged writer returns to his birthplace of Medellín, Colombia, and begins an affair with a teenaged boy from the streets in the midst of the city's social and moral chaos. Fascinating subject matter, well filmed by Schroeder (in high-definition video). Undeniably powerful at times, but the points about a culture of death are repeated so often that it all loses steam by the end. Screenplay by Fernando Vallejo, based on his novel. [R] ▽

Our Little Girl (1935) 63m. ½ D: John Robertson. Shirley Temple, Rosemary Ames, Joel McCrea, Lyle Talbot, Erin O'Brien-Moore. Usual Temple plot of Shirley bringing separated parents McCrea and Ames together again. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▽

Our Man Flint (1966) C-107m. ½ D: Daniel Mann. James Coburn, Lee J. Cobb, Gila Golan, Edward Mulhare, Benson Fong, Gianna Serra. One of the countless James Bond spoofs, this saga of the man from Z.O.W.I.E. starts briskly, becomes forced after a while. Coburn makes a zesty hero, Golan an attractive decoration; look for James Brolin as a technician. Followed by a sequel (IN LIKE FLINT) and a TVM in 1976. CinemaScope. ▽●●

Our Man in Havana (1960-British) 107m. ½ D: Carol Reed. Alec Guinness, Burl Ives, Maureen O'Hara, Ernie Kovacs, Noel Coward, Ralph Richardson, Jo Morrow. Weak satirical spy spoof, adapted by Graham Greene from his novel. Guinness is vacuum cleaner salesman who becomes British secret agent in Cuba. CinemaScope. ▽

Our Miss Brooks (1956) 85m. ½ D: Al Lewis. Eve Arden, Gale Gordon, Nick Adams, Robert Rockwell, Richard Crenna, Don Porter, Jane Morgan. Fairly amusing feature based on beloved TV series has Arden's Brooks trying to snag Rockwell's Mr. Boynton and interest Adams in journalism. Crenna's screeching serenade, "It's Magic," is a high point. ▽

Our Modern Maidens (1929) 75m.  D: Jack Conway. Joan Crawford, Rod La Rocque, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Anita Page, Josephine Dunn, Edward Nugent, Albert Gran. Entertaining silent jazz-age saga about a young "modern" (Crawford) who disdains conventional morality and tries to help the career of her fiancé (Fairbanks) by coming on to worldly diplomat La Rocque. Special treat for film buffs: Doug Jr. does impressions of John Barrymore, John Gilbert, and his own father! This late-silent release has a synchronized music score, with crowd noises and sound effects. Crawford and Fairbanks were married in real life at this time. ▽●

Our Mother's House (1967-British) C-105m.  D: Jack Clayton. Dirk Bogarde, Margaret Brooks, Louis Sheldon-Williams,

John Gugolka, Pamela Franklin, Mark Lester. Children's scheme to carry on normally when their mother dies works well until their worthless father shows up. Fine performances from all in offbeat film.

Our Relations (1936) 74m.  D: Harry Lachman. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Alan Hale, Sidney Toler, Daphne Pollard, Betty Healy, James Finlayson, Arthur Housman, Iris Adrian, Lona Andre. Stan and Ollie get into snowballing comedy of errors with their long-lost twins. Lots of fun; best scenes in Hale's beer garden. ▼●

Our Time (1974) C-88m. ½ D: Peter Hyams. Pamela Sue Martin, Parker Stevenson, Betsy Slade, George O'Hanlon, Jr., Karen Balkin. Nice nostalgic tale of young love, set in a Massachusetts girls' school in 1955. Bad color photography mars otherwise effective comedic and dramatic elements. [PG] ▼

Our Town (1940) 90m. ½ D: Sam Wood. William Holden, Martha Scott, Frank Craven, Fay Bainter, Beulah Bondi, Thomas Mitchell, Guy Kibbee, Stuart Erwin. Sensitive adaptation of Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize-winning play about small New England town with human drama and conflict in every family. Splendid score by Aaron Copland and production design by William Cameron Menzies. Screenplay by Wilder, Harry Chandlee, and Frank Craven. Craven, Doro Merande, Arthur Allen, and Scott (in her film debut) recreate their Broadway roles. ▼

Our Very Own (1950) 93m. ½ D: David Miller. Ann Blyth, Farley Granger, Jane Wyatt, Donald Cook, Ann Dvorak, Natalie Wood, Martin Milner. Melodramatic account of Blyth's shock upon discovering she is an adopted child. ▼

Our Vines Have Tender Grapes (1945) 105m. ½ D: Roy Rowland. Edward G. Robinson, Margaret O'Brien, James Craig, Frances Gifford, Agnes Moorehead, Jackie "Butch" Jenkins, Morris Carnovsky. Sensitive portrayal of American life in Wisconsin town with uncharacteristic Robinson as O'Brien's kind, understanding Norwegian father. Screenplay by Dalton Trumbo from George Victor Martin's novel. ▼

Outback (1971-U.S.-Australian) C-114m.  D: Ted Kotcheff. Gary Bond, Donald Pleasence, Chips Rafferty, Sylvia Kay, Jack Thompson. Intriguing film about sensitive schoolteacher whose personality disintegrates after interaction with rough, primitive men in Australian outback. Alternate version runs 99m. Unlikely to be endorsed by Australian tourist commission. Original title: WAKE IN FRIGHT. [R]

Kerwin. Crusading military research medic Hoffman must stop a deadly virus that's somehow made its way from Africa to the U.S.—little dreaming that his Army superiors have an agenda of their own. Dynamite suspense thriller with a surprising sense of humor goes almost completely awry in the second half, turning Hoffman into a kind of superhero and everyone else into a caricature or stick figure. What a shame! J.T. Walsh appears unbilled. [R] ▼●●

Outcast, The (1962-Japanese) 118m. ½ D: Kon Ichikawa. Raizo Ichikawa, Shihō Fujimura, Hiroyuki Nagato, Rentaro Mikuni. Schoolteacher Ichikawa hides his identity as member of an outcast class until a writer he greatly respects is murdered. Intense drama is well made, fascinating.

Outcast of the Islands (1951-British) 102m.  D: Carol Reed. Ralph Richardson, Trevor Howard, Robert Morley, Wendy Hiller, Kerima, George Coulouris, Wilfrid Hyde-White. Compelling adaptation of Joseph Conrad story set on Malayan island, where a desperate, misguided man turns to crime and soon becomes the object of massive manhunt. Screenplay by William Fairchild. Good job all around. Some prints run 94m.

Outcasts of Poker Flat, The (1952) 81m.  D: Joseph M. Newman. Anne Baxter, Miriam Hopkins, Dale Robertson, Cameron Mitchell, John Ridgely. Obvious, uninspired remake of Bret Harte tale of social rejects trapped together in cabin during snowstorm. Filmed before in 1937.

Out Cold (1989) C-89m.  D: Malcolm Mowbray. John Lithgow, Teri Garr, Randy Quaid, Bruce McGill, Lisa Blount, Alan Blumenfeld, Morgan Paull, Barbara Rhoades, Tom Byrd, Fran Ryan. Lithgow plays a meek butcher who wrongly believes he has killed his partner after discovering him frozen to death in the freezer. A wonderfully adept cast tries to pull off this black comedy, but the script knocks their efforts out cold. AKA STIFFS. [R] ▼●●

Out Cold (2001) C-89m. *½ D: Brendan Malloy, Emmett Malloy. Jason London, Lee Majors, A.J. Cook, Willie Garson, Caroline Dhavernas, Derek Hamilton, Flex Alexander, Zach Galifianakis, Victoria Silvstedt. Clichés and all-around idiocy dominate this crude updating of a 1960s beach-party movie. A seedy Alaska ski resort is a haven for brainless snowboarding stoners, and a greedy land developer (Majors) wants to transform it into an upscale vacation spot. [PG-13] ▼

Outfit, The (1973) C-103m. ½ D: John Flynn. Robert Duvall, Karen Black, Joe Don Baker, Robert Ryan, Timothy Carey, Richard Jaekel, Sherry North, Marie Windsor, Jane Greer, Henry Jones, Joanna Cassidy, Elisha Cook, Jr., Anita O'Day. Engagingly trashy mob melodrama, with ex-con Duvall tackling the syndicate responsible for his

brother's death. Solid supporting cast helps. Based on a novel by Donald E. Westlake (writing as Richard Stark). [PG]▼

Out for Justice (1991) C-91m.  D: John Flynn. Steven Seagal, William Forsythe, Jerry Orbach, Jo Champa, Shareen Mitchell, Sal Richards, Gina Gershon, Jay Acovone. As if he doesn't have enough trouble snapping wrists when he stops by his scum-infested deli, cop Seagal's main target is childhood buddy Forsythe—from the old Brooklyn neighborhood. Some may consider this one a Seagal stretch, but don't warm up the AFI Lifetime Achievement Award just yet. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Outland (1981) C-109m. ½ D: Peter Hyams. Sean Connery, Peter Boyle, Frances Sternhagen, James B. Sikking, Kika Markham, Clarke Peters, John Ratzenberger. HIGH NOON on Jupiter's volcanic moon Io, as 21st-century marshal Connery discovers that this outer-space mining planet is riddled with corruption—and he's the only one willing to do anything about it. Slickly made, but predictable and unpleasant in tone. Script by director Hyams. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Outlaw, The (1943) 116m.  D: Howard Hughes. Jane Russell, Jack Buetel, Walter Huston, Thomas Mitchell, Mimi Aguglia, Joe Sawyer. Notorious "sex Western" (and Russell's ballyhooed screen debut) is actually compelling—if offbeat—story of Billy the Kid, with principal honors going to Huston as Doc Holliday. Filmed in 1941 and directed mostly by Howard Hawks, though Hughes' interest in Russell's bosom is more than evident. Some prints run 95m. and 103m.▼●●

Outlaw Blues (1977) C-100m.  D: Richard T. Heffron. Peter Fonda, Susan Saint James, John Crawford, James Callahan, Michael Lerner. Ex-convict Fonda is promoted into a country star by back-up singer Saint James, to the consternation of star Callahan, who had stolen Fonda's song. Saint James is good in her first major movie role; the picture is fun when it isn't too silly. [PG]▼●

Outlaw Gun SEE: Minute to Pray, a Second to Die, A

Outlaw Josey Wales, The (1976) C-135m. ½ D: Clint Eastwood. Clint Eastwood, Chief Dan George, Sondra Locke, Bill McKinney, John Vernon, Paula Trueman, Sam Bottoms, Richard Farnsworth. Long, violent Western begins near the end of the Civil War; Eastwood is a peaceful farmer who turns vigilante when Union soldiers murder his family. He in turn has a price on his head, propelling cat-and-mouse chase odyssey. Clint took over direction from Philip Kaufman, who also cowrote the screenplay. Followed by THE RETURN OF JOSEY WALES—without Eastwood. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Outlaw of Gor (1989) C-89m. *½ D:

John "Bud" Cardos. Urbano Barberini, Jack Palance, Rebecca Ferrati, Donna Denton, Nigel Chippes, Russel Savadier. Worthless sequel to GOR (which wasn't any good in the first place). Earthman hero is magically transported back to the barbaric planet Gor, where he's soon branded an assassin by evil priest Palance and wicked queen Denton. Lots of swords, no sorcery. Based on the John Norman novel. Filmed in 1987. [PG-13]▼

Outlaws Is Coming, The (1965) 89m.

½ D: Norman Maurer. The Three Stooges, Adam West, Nancy Kovack, Mort Mills, Don Lamond, Emil Sitka, Joe Bolton, Henry Gibson. The Stooges' last feature is one of their best, with some sharp satire and good Western atmosphere as the boys, their cowardly friend (West), and Annie Oakley (Kovack) combat an army of gunslingers and a genteel crook. Local TV kiddie-show hosts cast as outlaws, Gibson as a hip Indian.▼●

Out of Africa (1985) C-161m. ½ D: Sydney Pollack. Meryl Streep, Robert Redford, Klaus Maria Brandauer, Michael Kitchen, Malick Bowens, Joseph Thiaka, Stephen Kinyanjui, Michael Gough, Suzanna Hamilton, Rachel Kempson, Graham Crowden. Exquisite, intelligent romantic drama based on life of Karen Blixen, who married for convenience, moved from Denmark to Nairobi, and fell in love with a British adventurer and idealist (before gaining latter-day fame as author Isak Dinesen). Pollack's film brilliantly captures time and place, with superb performances by Streep and Brandauer, sumptuous photography by David Watkin, and a rich score by John Barry. Film's only fault is overlength—and biggest challenge is asking us to accept Redford as an Englishman. Oscars include Best Picture, Director, Screenplay (Kurt Luedtke, who synthesized five books into one seamless script), Cinematography, and Music Score. [PG]▼●●

Out of Bounds (1986) C-93m. *½ D: Richard Tuggle. Anthony Michael Hall, Jenny Wright, Jeff Kober, Glynn Turman, Raymond J. Barry, Pepe Serna, Meat Loaf. Iowa farm kid comes to L.A. and within 24 hours is hunted by the police (for murders he didn't commit) and a scuzzy drug dealer (whose stash he mistakenly took from the airport). Outlandish teen thriller might be retitled OUT OF BRAINS. [R]▼●●

Out of It (1969) 95m. ½ D: Paul Williams. Barry Gordon, Jon Voight, Lada

Edmund, Jr., Gretchen Corbett, Peter Grad. Generally amusing film about high school intellectual (Gordon) bucking high school athlete (Voight). A throwback to the days when life was an Archie comic book. [M/PG]

Out of Season (1975-British) C-90m.  D: Alan Bridges. Vanessa Redgrave, Cliff Robertson, Susan George, Edward Evans, Frank Jarvis. Mood-triangle affair: dark stranger returns to English seaside resort 20 years after affair with woman who now has grown daughter. Hints of incest and unresolved ending. Aka WINTER RATES. [R]▼

Out of Sight (1966) C-87m. *½ D: Lennie Weinrib. Jonathan Daly, Karen Jensen, Robert Pine, Carole Shelayne, Gary Lewis and The Playboys, The Turtles, Freddie and The Dreamers, Dobbie Gray. A butler and a blonde band together to halt a spy organization's conspiracy against rock groups. Idiotic combination beach party-spy movie that fails in both departments. Techniscope.

Out of Sight (1998) C-122m. ½ D: Steven Soderbergh. George Clooney, Jennifer Lopez, Ving Rhames, Steve Zahn, Dennis Farina, Albert Brooks, Don Cheadle, Catherine Keener, Nancy Allen, Viola Davis, Isaiah Washington. Career criminal Clooney busts out of Florida prison and uses federal agent Lopez as a shield; though they go separate ways, they've obviously fallen in love and have a need to reconnect, despite their conflicting views of the law. Interesting Elmore Leonard crime caper (adapted by Scott Frank), with a heavy dose of humor, has an appealing cast but needs a shot of adrenaline. Michael Keaton and Samuel L. Jackson appear unbilled. [R]▼●●

Out of the Blue (1980) C-94m. ½ D: Dennis Hopper. Linda Manz, Sharon Farrell, Dennis Hopper, Raymond Burr, Don Gordon. Manz, daughter of ex-biker Hopper and junkie Farrell, cannot cope with the problems of her elders, with tragic results. Taut, low-key drama; could be retitled "Child of Easy Rider." TV title: NO LOOKING BACK. [R]▼●

Cameron Dye, Lynn Danielson, Tracey Walter, Silvana Gallardo, Karen Black, Bud Cort, Starr Andreoff, Geoffrey Lewis, Paul Bartel, Divine, Lainie Kazan, Tab Hunter. A clown-masked killer murders the employees of an L.A. telephone sex-talk service, one by one. Good cast and sense of humor relieve heavy-handed visual approach to the material. [R]▼●

Out of the Past (1947) 97m. ½ D: Jacques Tourneur. Robert Mitchum, Jane Greer, Kirk Douglas, Rhonda Fleming, Richard Webb, Steve Brodie, Virginia Huston, Paul Valentine, Dickie Moore. Mitchum finds he can't escape former life when one-time employer (gangster Douglas) and lover (Greer) entangle him in web of murder and double-dealings. Classic example of 1940s film noir, with dialogue a particular standout. Script by Geoffrey Homes (Daniel Mainwaring), from his novel Build My Gallows High. Remade as AGAINST ALL ODDS. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Out of Time (2003) C-105m.  D: Carl Franklin. Denzel Washington, Eva Mendes, Sanaa Lathan, Dean Cain, John Billingsley, Robert Baker, Alex Carter, Nora Dunn. Chief of police in a small Florida town has been playing around with a married vixen—and becomes a key suspect when foul play rears its head. Every move he makes to cover his tracks only puts him in greater jeopardy, especially when his ex-wife, detective Mendes, is assigned to the case. This film noir wannabe would have been told effortlessly in the 1940s and '50s but seems heavy-handed and overly contrived here. Lathan is a fine femme fatale but Washington is the last person you'd cast as a patsy. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Jack Lemmon, Sandy Dennis, Sandy Baron, Anne Meara, Ann Prentiss, Graham Jarvis, Ron Carey, Phil Bruns, Carlos Montalban, Billy Dee Williams, Paul Dooley, Dolph Sweet, Robert Walden, Richard Libertini. Excruciating Neil Simon script about stupidly stubborn Lemmon and wife Dennis having everything imaginable go wrong on trip to N.Y.C. More harrowing than funny, with curiously unsympathetic leading characters. Remade in 1999. [G]▼●●

Out-of-Towners, The (1999) C-92m. ½ D: Sam Weisman. Goldie Hawn, Steve Martin, Mark McKinney, John Cleese, Gregory Jbara, Ernie Sabella, Josh Mostel, Joe Grifasi, John Pizzarelli. It's one calamity after another when a middle-aged Ohio couple travels to N.Y.C. so he can go on a job interview. Less abrasive and farcical than Neil Simon's 1970 original, this has its fair share of laughs, with Cleese well cast as a haughty hotel manager. . . . but it's Martin's fine performance that really stands out. That's Hawn's real-life son (Oliver Hudson) in the film's opening scenes. [PG-13]▼●●

Out on a Limb (1992) C-93m. BOMB D: Francis Veber. Matthew Broderick, Jeffrey Jones, Heidi Kling, John C. Reilly, Marian Mercer, Larry Hankin. Obnoxious comedy with Broderick cast as a yuppie who comes to the aid of his kid sister in a small town inhabited by one too many screwballs. As illogical as it is crude, and desperately unfunny. [PG]▼●

Outpost in Malaya (1952-British) 88m. ½ D: Ken Annakin. Claudette Colbert, Jack Hawkins, Anthony Steel, Jeremy Spencer. Mostly about marital disharmony on a rubber plantation. Original title: PLANTER'S WIFE.

Outrage (1950) 75m. ½ D: Ida Lupino. Mala Powers, Tod Andrews, Robert Clarke, Raymond Bond, Lillian Hamilton, Hal March, Jerry Paris. Innocent young Powers is sexually molested, and then further victimized by her gossipy, narrow-minded neighbors. The scenario's sugary optimism—specifically relating to a sympathetic preacher—is much too pat, but Lupino (who also coscripted) deserves an A for effort in tackling a then-touchy theme.

Outrage, The (1964) 97m. ½ D: Martin Ritt. Paul Newman, Edward G. Robinson, Claire Bloom, Laurence Harvey, William Shatner, Albert Salmi. Western remake of RASHOMON is pretentious fizzle, with Newman hamming it as Mexican bandit who allegedly rapes Bloom while husband Harvey stands by. Robinson as philosophical narrator is best thing about film. Also shown in computer-colored version. Panavision.▼

Outrage (1993-Italian-Spanish) C-108m. *½ D: Carlos Saura. Francesca Neri, Antonio Banderas, Lali Ramon, Walter Vidarte, Coque Malla, Achero Manas, Rodrigo Valverde. When reporter Banderas falls for circus performer Neri, they have a brief fling at happiness. Unfortunately, a (predictable) rape scene, which is horrifyingly graphic, and a subsequent shooting spree relegate this to the ranks of only diehard Banderas fans. Panavision. [R]▼●

Outrageous! (1977-Canadian) C-100m.  D: Richard Benner. Craig Russell, Hollis McLaren, Richert Easley, Allan Moyle, Helen Shaver. Excellent comedy-drama about a very odd couple: gay hairdresser and a pregnant mental patient. McLaren's effective emoting is outshone by female impersonator Russell's flamboyant playing and imitations of Garland, Davis, Bankhead, etc. Followed ten years later by TOO OUTRAGEOUS! [R]▼

Outrageous Fortune (1987) C-100m.  D: Arthur Hiller. Bette Midler, Shelley Long, Peter Coyote, Robert Prosky, John Schuck, George Carlin, Anthony Heald, Ji-Tu Cumbuka, Chris McDonald, Robert Pastorelli. Raucously funny tale of a female odd couple who learn they were both

Outside Chance of Maximilian Glick, The (1988-Canadian) C-96m.  D: Allan A. Goldstein. Saul Rubinek, Jan Rubes, Noam Zylberman, Susan Douglas Rubes, Fairuza Balk, Nigel Bennet. Pleasing tale of bright 12-year-old Zylberman, growing up in a small Canadian town in the early 1960s, who's caught between his own dreams and desires and his family's traditional Jewish values. Despite its cop-out ending, this intelligent little comedy-drama is perfect fare for preteens. [G]▼

Outside Man, The (1973) C-104m.  D: Jacques Deray. Jean-Louis Trintignant, Ann-Margret, Angie Dickinson, Roy Scheider, Michel Constantin, Georgia Engel, Ted de Corsia, John Hillerman, Alex Rocco, Talia Shire. Okay French-American actioner, made in L.A., as interesting for its cast as its offbeat quality. Hired killer Trintignant kills gang boss Ted de Corsia, then must elude Scheider, who's out to eliminate him. Ann-Margret's plunging neckline and a shootout around de Corsia's bier (he's embalmed in a sitting position) are worth looking at, also Engel's dumb housewife. [PG]▼

Outside Ozona (1998) C-100m.  D: J.S. Cardone. Robert Forster, Sheryllyn Fenn, Kevin Pollak, Penelope Ann Miller, David Paymer, Meat Loaf, Swoosie Kurtz, Taj Mahal, Lois Red Elk. Various characters' lives intersect during an eventful day and evening as a long-dormant serial killer begins to strike again, a radio d.j. vents his frustrations on the air, and several others take to the road. Only fitfully interesting, despite a good cast. [R]▼

Outside Providence (1999) C-103m. ½ D: Michael Corrente. Shawn Hatosy, Jon Abrahams, Alec Baldwin, George Wendt, Tommy Bone, Jonathan Brandis, Jack Fever, Adam Lavorgna, Jesse Leach, Gabriel Mann, Kristen Shorten, Amy Smart, Richard Jenkins. Unremarkable coming-of-age saga set in 1970s New England, with Hatosy as a rowdy blue-collar teen who winds up going away to prep school and falling in love. Notable mainly for casting of Baldwin as an Archie Bunker type, at which he's only marginally convincing. Screenplay by Corrente and Bobby and Peter Farrelly (based on the latter's novel). [R]▼

Outsider, The (1961) 108m.  D: Delbert Mann. Tony Curtis, James Franciscus, Bruce Bennett, Gregory Walcott, Vivian Nathan. Thoughtful biopic with Curtis giving one of his best performances as a reluctant American hero: Ira Hamilton Hayes, the Pima Indian who was one of the marines to raise the U.S. flag at Iwo Jima. Hayes' plight is also recounted in FLAGS OF OUR FATHERS.

Outsider, The (1979) C-128m.  D: Tony Luraschi. Craig Wasson, Patricia Quinn, Sterling Hayden, Niall Toibin, Elizabeth Begley, T. P. McKenna, Frank Grimes. A young American raised on his grandfather's stories of fighting "the Tans" in Ireland goes there to join the IRA—and is used for political and public-relations purposes. No-frills narrative, authentic and interesting, filmed on location. Script by director Luraschi. [R]

Outsiders, The (1983) C-91m. ½ D: Francis Coppola. C. Thomas Howell, Matt Dillon, Ralph Macchio, Patrick Swayze, Rob Lowe, Diane Lane, Emilio Estevez, Tom Cruise, Leif Garrett, Tom Waits, Sofia Coppola. Florid, highly stylized treatment of S. E. Hinton's best-selling book about troubled teenagers in '60s Oklahoma, as seen through the eyes of a boy (Howell) who likes poetry and Gone With the Wind. Ambitious film evokes GWTW and '50s melodramas (right down to overstated music score by Carmine Coppola), but never quite connects, despite some powerful moments. Hinton makes a cameo appearance as a nurse. Revised by Coppola in 2005 as THE OUTSIDERS: THE COMPLETE NOVEL (114m., PG-13), with a new opening and wrapup, plus Elvis-leaning pop replacing the score. This version is definitely improved but still stumbles midway through. Followed by another Coppola-Hinton project, RUMBLE FISH. Later a TV series. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Out to Sea (1997) C-106m.  D: Martha Coolidge. Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, Dyan Cannon, Brent Spiner, Gloria De Haven, Elaine Stritch, Hal Linden, Donald O'Connor, Edward Mulhare, Rue McClanahan, Alexandra Powers, Sean O'Brien, Estelle Harris. A chronic con man fools his pal into joining him for a Caribbean cruise—neglecting to inform him that he's signed them both on as dance hosts. The two likable stars are cast adrift with a boatload of talented costars—and a stupid script that should have been deep-sixed before they ever set sail. O'Connor's final film. [PG-13]▼●●

Overboard (1987) C-112m.  D: Garry Marshall. Goldie Hawn, Kurt Russell, Edward Hermann, Katherine Helmond, Michael Hagerty, Roddy McDowall. Cute comedy about a spoiled heiress who falls off her yacht, suffers amnesia, and is "claimed" at the hospital by her supposed husband, a rough-hewn carpenter with a pack of unruly kids. Lightweight and good-natured, with appealing performances by the star duo. McDowall also served as executive producer; director Marshall has a cameo as a drummer, and Hector Elizondo does an unbilled bit as skipper of a garbage scow. [PG]▼●●

Overcoat, The (1959-Russian) 73m. * D: Alexei Batalov, Roland Bykov, Y. Tolubeyev. Charming, fully realized rendition of Gogol's oft-filmed story about lowly clerk and the effect a new overcoat has on his life. Runs full gamut of emotions in simple, moving style; not shown here until 1965.▼

Over Her Dead Body (1990) SEE: Enid Is Sleeping*

Over Her Dead Body (2008) C-95m. *½ D: Jeff Lowell. Eva Longoria Parker, Paul Rudd, Lake Bell, Jason Biggs, Lindsay Sloane, Stephen Root. Killed in a freak accident on her wedding day (by a decorative ice sculpture), a would-be bride returns as a ghostly presence one year later to prevent her fiancé from finding happiness with another woman. Longoria Parker must have been more desperate than the "Housewife" she plays on TV to think this would make a good starring vehicle. Derivative and forgettable; BLITHE SPIRIT it ain't. Panavision. [PG-13]●

Overnight Delivery (1998) C-87m. ½ D: Jason Bloom. Paul Rudd, Christine Taylor, Reese Witherspoon, Sarah Silverman, Buffy Sedlachek, Richard Cody, Gary Wolf, Larry Drake. As Valentine's Day approaches, Rudd thinks he's caught girlfriend Taylor cheating on him. Witherspoon urges him to send a disgusting breakup letter, but when he learns his girlfriend was faithful after all, he has to find some way to keep the letter from winding up in her hands. Predictable but cute comedy; Witherspoon is adorable. Made in 1996; released direct to video. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Over the Brooklyn Bridge (1984) C-106m.  D: Menahem Golan. Elliott Gould, Margaux Hemingway, Sid Caesar, Burt Young, Shelley Winters, Carol Kane. Brooklyn Jewish restaurant owner Gould wants to borrow money from uncle Caesar to open a fancy Manhattan eatery, but the family objects to his Catholic girlfriend (Hemingway). Some good supporting players (especially Caesar) cannot save this stupid comedy. That's Sarah Michelle Gellar playing Young's daughter. Aka MY DARLING SHIKSA. [R]▼

Over the Edge (1979) C-95m. ½ D: Jonathan Kaplan. Michael Kramer, Pamela Ludwig, Matt Dillon, Vincent Spano, Tom Fergus, Andy Romano, Ellen Geer, Lane Smith, Harry Northup. Powerful, disturbing chronicle of alienated youth in a suburban planned community; 14-year-old rebels without causes who play with guns, deal and abuse drugs, taunt cops, chug whiskey till they're blotto. Perceptive script by Charlie Haas and Tim Hunter; stunning music score by Sol

Over the Hedge (2006) C-84m.  D: Tim Johnson, Karey Kirkpatrick. Voices of Bruce Willis, Gary Shandling, Steve Carell, Wanda Sykes, William Shatner, Nick Nolte, Thomas Haden Church, Allison Janney, Eugene Levy, Catherine O'Hara, Avril Lavigne, Omid Djalili. Funny CG-animated feature about a crafty, selfish raccoon who dupes a group of hibernating forest animals into helping him replace a winter's stash of food he stole from a mean ol' bear. Simple storyline is fleshed out with funny gags, action set pieces, and character moments. Our favorite critter: Verne the turtle leader, voiced by Shandling. Based on the comic strip by Michael Fry and T. Lewis. [PG] ●

Over the Top (1987) C-93m. BOMB D: Menahem Golan. Sylvester Stallone, Robert Loggia, Susan Blakely, Rick Zumwalt, David Mendenhall, Chris McCarty, Terry Funk. Mawkish, heavy-handed variation on THE CHAMP, with Stallone competing with his fat-cat father-in-law for the custody (and affection) of his son. It all climaxes at an arm-wrestling championship in Las Vegas. Stallone tries to underplay (speaking so quietly that you often can't hear what he's saying), but when push comes to shove, he will drive his truck through a living room! Panavision. [PG] ▼ ●

Owl and the Pussycat, The (1970) C-95m.  D: Herbert Ross. Barbra Streisand, George Segal, Robert Klein, Allen Garfield, Roz Kelly. Hit Broadway comedy about semi-illiterate prostitute and stuffy intellectual sometimes substitutes bombast for wit, but the laughs are there. The Streisand-Segal pairing really works; adapted by Buck Henry from Bill Manoff's play. Originally released at 98m. Panavision. [PG] ▼ ●

Owning Mahowny (2003-Canadian-British) C-105m. ½ D: Richard Kwietniowski. Philip Seymour Hoffman, Minnie Driver, Maury Chaykin, John Hurt, Sonja Smits, Ian Tracey, Roger Dunn. Nerdy assistant bank manager in Toronto manipulates bank funds to feed his gambling addiction. His patient girlfriend tries to give him space, while an Atlantic City casino manager tries to "read" this enigmatic new high-roller. Fascinating look at both the banking and gaming industries, based on a true story from the early 1980s. Every character, no matter how small, is interestingly written and colorfully played. A great showcase for the gifted Hoffman. Maurice Chauvet adapted Gary Ross' best-selling book Stung. Super 35. [R] ▼ ●

Ox, The (1991-Swedish) C-91m.  D: Sven Nykvist. Stellan Skarsgard, Ewa Froling, Lennart Hjulstrom, Max von Sydow, Liv Ullmann, Erland Josephson. Acclaimed cinematographer Nykvist directed and co-scripted this stark, compelling chronicle of a desperately poor family's struggle for survival in famine-ravaged Sweden during the mid-1800s. Based on a true story; the plight of their countrymen who chose to leave Sweden and settle in the U.S. is depicted in Jan Troell's THE EMIGRANTS and THE NEW LAND (which also starred von Sydow and Ullmann). ▼

Ox-Bow Incident, The (1943) 75m. * D: William A. Wellman. Henry Fonda, Dana Andrews, Mary Beth Hughes, Anthony Quinn, William Eythe, Henry (Harry) Morgan, Jane Darwell, Frank Conroy, Harry Davenport. The irony and terror of mob rule are vividly depicted in this unforgettable drama about a lynch mob taking the law into its own hands, despite protests of some level-headed onlookers. Based on Walter Van Tilburg Clark's book; superb script by Lamar Trotti. ▼ ● ●

Pacific Heights (1990) C-102m. ½ D: John Schlesinger. Melanie Griffith, Matthew Modine, Michael Keaton, Mako, Nobu McCarthy, Laurie Metcalf, Carl Lumbly, Dorian Harewood, Luca Bercovici, Sheila McCarthy, Dan Hedaya, Miriam Margolyes, Nicholas Pryor. Young couple purchases a Victorian home in San Francisco, fixes it up and rents out two of its apartments, unaware that one of their tenants is a nut case. Likable and reasonably credible, but too often obvious—and never really bothers to explain Keaton's bizarre, destructive behavior. Cleverest touch: making Modine the weaker and Griffith the stronger of the twosome. Beverly D'Angelo appears unbilled in key supporting role . . . and Melanie's mom, Tippi Hedren, plays a Beverly Hills matron. [R] ▼ ● ●

Pack, The (1977) C-99m. ½ D: Robert Clouse. Joe Don Baker, Hope Alexander-Willis, Richard B. Shull, R. G. Armstrong,

Ned Wertimer, Bibi Besch. Predictable but well-made story of resort islanders terrorized by abandoned dogs who have become a bloodthirsty pack. Aka THE LONG, DARK NIGHT. [R]▼

Package, The (1989) C-108m.  D: Andrew Davis. Gene Hackman, Joanna Cassidy, Tommy Lee Jones, John Heard, Dennis Franz, Pam Grier, Kevin Crowley, Reni Santoni, Ike Pappas, Thalmus Rasulala. Slack political paranoia thriller with Hackman as a career Army sergeant who learns he's been used as a pawn in a conspiracy plot engineered by Russian and American military dissidents. Hackman is always worth watching, but the story loses ground (and credibility) just when it ought to be peaking. [R]▼●●

Pack Up Your Troubles (1932) 68m. ½ D: George Marshall, Ray McCarey. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Mary Carr, James Finlayson, Charles Middleton, Grady Sutton, Billy Gilbert. Daffy duo are drafted during WW1; after some Army shenanigans they try to locate relatives of late pal's daughter. Good fun. ▼●

Pad and How to Use It, The (1966) C-86m. ½ D: Brian Hutton. Brian Bedford, Julie Sommars, James Farentino, Edy Williams. Peter Shaffer play The Private Ear is basis for sex romp involving Bedford's attempt to become Sommars' lover.

Paddy (1970-Irish) C-97m.  D: Daniel Haller. Milo O'Shea, Des Cave, Dearbhla Molloy, Judy Cornwell, Donal LeBlanc. Irish lover Cave tries to juggle varied sexual encounters with uninspired home life in ordinary comedy-drama. [PG]▼

Padre Padrone (1977-Italian) C-114m.  D: Vittorio and Paolo Taviani. Omero Antonutti, Saverio Marconi, Marcella Michelangeli, Fabrizio Forte. Sad, illiterate Sardinian boy, brutalized by his peasant father, still grows up to master Greek and Latin and graduate college. Even sadder still, uninvolved and curiously forgettable. Based on an autobiographical book by Gavino Ledda. ▼●●

Pagan Love Song (1950) C-76m.  D: Robert Alton. Esther Williams, Howard Keel, Minna Gombell, Rita Moreno. Stale MGM musical; Keel goes to Tahiti, romances Williams. ▼

Pagemaster, The (1994) C-75m.  D: Maurice Hunt (animation), Joe Johnston (live action). Macaulay Culkin, Christopher Lloyd, Ed Begley, Jr., Mel Harris; voices of Patrick Stewart, Whoopi Goldberg, Frank Welker, Leonard Nimoy. Phobically nervous young boy seeks shelter from a storm in the local library, and is transported to an animated world by living books who represent Adventure, Fantasy, and Horror. Uninspired, often boring cartoon feature (with live-action framework) resembles a TV special more than a movie. Heavy-handed message about the wonder of books might better be told by a book itself. [G]▼●●

Page Turner, The (2006-French) C-85m. ½ D: Denis Dercourt. Catherine Frot, Déborah François, Pascal Greggory, Xavier de Guillebon, Christine Citti, Clotilde Mollet, Jacques Bonnaffé. A 10-year-old girl who's devoted herself to becoming a piano prodigy auditions for a prestigious music conservatory, but is distracted by the president of the jury. Ten years later she insinuates herself into the same woman's home, earns the family's trust, and prepares to exact revenge. Absorbing and well acted but loses its grip as it heads toward its inevitable denouement. ●

Paid in Full (1950) 105m. ½ D: William Dieterle. Robert Cummings, Elizabeth Scott, Diana Lynn, Eve Arden, Ray Collins, Stanley Ridges, John Bromfield, Frank McHugh. Kind-hearted Scott loves nice guy Cummings, but keeps her feelings to herself because he naively desires to wed her selfish kid sister (Lynn). Turgid soap, with a based-on-fact scenario. Film debut of Carol Channing, as a dress-shop patron.

Paid in Full (2002) C-97m.  D: Charles Stone III. Wood Harris, Mekhi Phifer, Kevin Carroll, Esai Morales, Chi McBride, Cam'ron, Elise Neal, Regina Hall. Dry-cleaning delivery boy becomes the king of crack dealing in '80s Harlem. Cautionary tale has style and a propulsive old-school soundtrack but suffers from too-familiar scripting (although based on a true story). Rappers Busy Bee and Doug E. Fresh appear as themselves. Movie takes its title from a rap by Eric B. and Rakim. [R]▼●

Pain in the A—, A (1974-French-Italian) C-90m.  D: Edouard Molinaro. Lino Ventura, Jacques Brel, Caroline Cellier, Nino Castelnuovo, Jean-Pierre Darras. Very funny black comedy about the chance meeting of a hit man trying to make good on a contract and a pathetic would-be suicide who's likely to mess up the job. Wonderful performances by Ventura and Brel in adaptation of Francis Veber's stage hit, later Americanized as BUDDY BUDDY. [PG]▼

Painted Hills, The (1951) C-65m. ½ D: Harold F. Kress. Lassie, Paul Kelly, Bruce Cowling, Gary Gray, Art Smith, Ann Doran. Nicely photographed adventure drama set in the West during the 1870s. Lassie stars as Shep, a collie who is ever-loyal to her prospector owner, with the story involving greed and a gold strike. ▼●

Painted Veil, The (1934) 83m. ½ D: Richard Boleslawski. Greta Garbo, Herbert Marshall, George Brent, Warner Oland, Jean Hersholt, Cecilia Parker, Keye Luke. Set in mysterious Orient, film tells Somerset Maugham's story of unfaithful wife mending her ways. Mundane script uplifted by

Garbo's personality, supported by Marshall as her husband, Brent as her lover. Remade in 1957 (as THE SEVENTH SIN) and in 2006. ▼●

Painted Veil, The (2006-U.S.-Chinese) C-125m. ½ D: John Curran. Naomi Watts, Edward Norton, Liev Schreiber, Toby Jones, Diana Rigg, Anthony Wong, Sally Hawkins. In 1920s London, a socially backward bacteriologist impulsively asks an attractive woman to marry him, and she agrees. When he learns that she's been having an affair, he forces her to accompany him to a remote outpost in China where there's been an outbreak of cholera. Although intended as punishment, this experience gradually changes and deepens their relationship. Beautifully filmed (by Stuart Dryburgh) on location in China, this finely tuned drama becomes a deeply moving love story. Watts has never been better; she and Norton coproduced. Excellent score by Alexandre Desplat. Ron Nyswaner adapted the W. Somerset Maugham novel; filmed before in 1934 and 1957 (as THE SEVENTH SIN). Panavision. [PG-13] ▮

Paint It Black (1989) C-101m.  D: Tim Hunter. Rick Rossovich, Sally Kirkland, Martin Landau, Julie Carmen, Doug Savant, Peter Frechette, Jason Bernard. Meandering, disappointing thriller with Rossovich a sculptor who's ripped off by his lover, art dealer Kirkland, then victimized by weirdo Savant. Never released theatrically. [R] ▼●

Paint Your Wagon (1969) C-166m.  D: Joshua Logan. Lee Marvin, Clint Eastwood, Jean Seberg, Harve Presnell, Ray Walston, Tom Ligon, Alan Dexter. Splashy, expensive musical from Lerner-Loewe play about gold-rush days in No-Name City, California, where prospectors Marvin and Eastwood share one wife (Seberg) whom they bought at auction. Pure entertainment; witty, often risqué script (by Paddy Chayefsky!). Presnell outshines cast of nonsingers with "They Call the Wind Maria." Marvin, however, vocalizes his rendition of "Wand'rin' Star." Beware of shorter prints. Panavision. [M] ▼●

Paisan (1946-Italian) 90m. ½ D: Roberto Rossellini. Carmela Sazio, Gar Moore, Bill Tubbs, Harriet White, Maria Michi, Robert van Loon, Dale Edmonds, Carla Pisacane, Dots Johnson. Early Rossellini classic, largely improvised by a mostly nonprofessional cast. Six vignettes depict life in Italy during WW2; best has American nurse White searching for her lover in battle-torn Florence. Written by Rossellini and Federico Fellini; Giulietta Masina has a bit part. Italian running time 115m. ▼▮

Pajama Game, The (1957) C-101m. ½ D: George Abbott, Stanley Donen. Doris Day, John Raitt, Carol Haney, Eddie Foy, Jr., Barbara Nichols, Reta Shaw.

Adaptation of the Broadway musical hit—with much of its original cast intact—virtually defines the word "exuberance." Day is a joy as the head of a factory grievance committee who unexpectedly falls in love with the new foreman (Raitt, in his only starring film). Richard Adler and Jerry Ross' songs include "Hey, There." Dancer Haney stands out in her "Steam Heat" feature and in the energetic "Once a Year Day" picnic number. Choreography by Bob Fosse. ▼●

Pajama Party (1964) C-85m.  D: Don Weis. Tommy Kirk, Annette Funicello, Dorothy Lamour, Elsa Lanchester, Harvey Lembeck, Jody McCrea, Buster Keaton, Susan Hart, Donna Loren. Fourth BEACH PARTY movie moves indoors, changes director and star (although Frankie Avalon and Don Rickles do have cameos). Kirk plays Martian teenager who drops in and is understandably perplexed. Just fair, though it's always nice to see Keaton at work. Teri Garr is one of the dancers buried in the sand. Went back outside for BEACH BLANKET BINGO. Panavision. ▼▮

Paleface, The (1948) C-91m.  D: Norman Z. McLeod. Bob Hope, Jane Russell, Robert Armstrong, Iris Adrian, Robert Watson. Enjoyable comedy-Western, a spoof of THE VIRGINIAN, has timid Bob backed up by sharpshooting Russell in gun-fighting encounters; Oscar-winning song "Buttons and Bows." Remade as THE SHAKIEST GUN IN THE WEST. Sequel: SON OF PALEFACE. ▼●

Pale Rider (1985) C-113m.  D: Clint Eastwood. Clint Eastwood, Michael Moriarty, Carrie Snodgrass, Christopher Penn, Richard Dysart, Sydney Penny, Richard Kiel, Doug McGrath, John Russell. Eastwood Western starts out just fine, the saga of a Good Stranger coming to the aid of some struggling miners, but winds up draggy, pretentious, and dull—with so much cloning of SHANE as to be preposterous. Well crafted, but attempts to be mythical come off as heavy-handed and ridiculous. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Palindromes (2005) C-100m.  D: Todd Solondz. Ellen Barkin, Stephen Adly-Guirgis, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Emani Sledge, Valerie Shusterov, Hannah Freiman, Rachel Corr, Will Denton, Sharon Wilkins, Shayna Levine, Debra Monk, Richard Masur, Matthew Faber, Walter Bobbie. Meditation on social hypocrisy—tackling such issues as pregnancy and abortion—follows an adolescent girl who doesn't want to give up her baby and runs away from home. That the "girl" is played by a variety of actresses of different sizes, shapes, and races is just one aspect of this very strange (yet often striking) film, which writer-director Solondz positions as a follow-up to WELCOME TO THE DOLLHOUSE. ▮

Pal Joey (1957) C-111m.  D: George Sidney. Rita Hayworth, Frank Sinatra, Kim Novak, Barbara Nichols, Hank Henry, Bobby Sherwood. Sinatra is in peak form as a cocky nightclub singer who makes a move on every "dame" he meets—including innocent showgirl Novak—but meets his Waterloo when wealthy, demanding Hayworth agrees to bankroll his dream of running his own club. Almost complete rewrite of the 1940 Broadway show based on John O'Hara's short stories, but entertaining just the same, with a great Rodgers and Hart score including "Bewitched, Bothered, and Bewildered" (with sanitized lyrics), "The Lady Is a Tramp." Look fast for Robert Reed. ▼●●

Pallbearer, The (1996) C-97m. ½ D: Matt Reeves. David Schwimmer, Gwyneth Paltrow, Barbara Hershey, Michael Rapaport, Toni Collette, Carol Kane, Michael Vartan, Bitty Schram, Jean DeBaer. Friends star Schwimmer's first film vehicle: a nerd is recruited to be a pallbearer for a "friend" he can't quite remember. Soon he's involved with the dead fellow's sexy mother (Hershey), even while pursuing a girl he had a crush on in high school (Paltrow). Protracted story is alternately touching and infuriating, as it slowly covers well-worn territory, with occasional moments of poignancy. Schwimmer's character is alarmingly one-note. [PG-13] ▼●●

Palm Beach Story, The (1942) 87m. ½ D: Preston Sturges. Claudette Colbert, Joel McCrea, Rudy Vallee, Mary Astor, Sig Arno, Robert Dudley, William Demarest, Jack Norton, Franklin Pangborn, Jimmy Conlin. Hilarious screwball comedy with Claudette running away from hubby McCrea, landing in Palm Beach with nutty millionaire Astor and her bumbling brother Vallee; overflowing with Sturges madness—from the mystifying title sequence to the arrival of the Ale & Quail Club (not to mention the Wienie King!). ▼●●

Palmetto (1998-U.S.-German) C-113m. ½ D: Volker Schlöndorff. Woody Harrelson, Elisabeth Shue, Gina Gershon, Rolf Hoppe, Michael Rapaport, Chloe Sevigny, Tom Wright. An exercise in formula film noir with embittered Florida ex-newspaperman Harrelson—just out of jail—a none-too-bright patsy for crafty (and sexy) Shue, who hires him to help her stage a phony kidnapping. Stylish and steamy, with lots of twists and turns . . . but follows a much too familiar pattern. Based on the vintage novel Just Another Sucker by James Hadley Chase. Super 35. [R] ▼●● yarn of group on a spree in resort town is mostly predictable. ▼●●

Palombella Rossa (1989-Italian) C-87m. ½ D: Nanni Moretti. Nanni Moretti, Mariella Valentini, Silvio Orlando, Alfonso Santagata, Claudio Morganti, Asia Argento. Off-the-wall satire about the choices, both political and personal, one makes in life. The hero is Michele (Moretti), a comical communist politician/water polo player; most of the film is set during a competition in which Michele constantly debates the merits of his politics. A representative introduction to one of Italy's most popular comic actor-directors. ▼

Palookaville (1996) C-92m.  D: Alan Taylor. William Forsythe, Vincent Gallo, Adam Trese, Frances McDormand, Robert LuPone, Lisa Gay Hamilton, Kim Dickens, Bridgit Ryan. Charming, whimsical look at a trio of lifelong friends and their amateur foray into the world of petty crime. Set in New Jersey, this comically poignant tale has everyday characters, struggling to survive, who get themselves into some genuinely suspenseful situations. A real sleeper, inspired by the Italian film BIG DEAL ON MADONNA STREET. [R] ▼●●

Panama Hattie (1942) 79m. ½ D: Norman Z. McLeod. Ann Sothern, Red Skelton, Rags Ragland, Ben Blue, Marsha Hunt, Virginia O'Brien. Alan Mowbray, Lena Horne, Dan Dailey, Carl Esmond. Cole Porter's Broadway musical (which starred Ethel Merman) about nightclub owner in Panama falls flat on screen. Porter's score mostly absent, but Lena sings "Just One of Those Things," and sprightly Sothern sings "I've Still Got My Health." ▼

Pancho Villa (1972-Spanish) C-92m.  D: Eugenio Martin. Telly Savalas, Clint Walker, Anne Francis, Chuck Connors, Angel del Pozo, Luis Davila. Noisy but dull period piece has Savalas chewing up scenery in title role, Walker playing gunrunner on his payroll, and Connors as polo-playing military martinet. Hang on, though, for smashing climax as two trains collide head-on. [PG] ▼●●

Pandemonium (1982) C-82m.  D: Alfred Sole. Tom Smothers, Carol Kane, Miles Chapin, Debralee Scott, Candy Azzara, Marc McClure, Judge Reinhold, Paul Reubens (Pee-wee Herman); guest stars, Tab Hunter, Donald O'Connor, Eve Arden, Eileen Brennan. Sporadically funny spoof of slasher films, set in a school for cheerleaders. Some clever ideas (in keeping with Canadian origin of many of those films, hero Smothers is a Mountie), but too often just forced. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Pandora and the Flying Dutchman (1951-British) C-123m.  D: Albert Lewin. James Mason, Ava Gardner, Nigel Patrick, Sheila Sim, Harold Warrender, Marius Goring, Pamela Kellino (Mason). Sorry to say, a big Technicolor bore, one of writer-director Lewin's misfires, about a woman who destroys the lives of all the men around her; then mystical, otherworldly Mason materializes. Intriguing but unconvincing tale, inspired by the legend of The Flying Dutchman, a man cursed to live for all eternity until he can find a woman capable of loving him. Only real attribute is Gardner's breathtaking beauty. ▼●●

Pandora's Box (1928-German) 109m. * D: G. W. Pabst. Louise Brooks, Fritz Kortner, Franz (Francis) Lederer, Carl Goetz. Hypnotic silent film stars legendary Brooks as flower girl who becomes protégée—then wife—of editor, with bizarre and unexpected consequences. Striking sexuality and drama, with Brooks an unforgettable Lulu. Scripters Pabst and Laszlo Wajda adapted two plays by Frank Wedekind. ▼●

Panic (2000) C-88m. ½ D: Henry Bromell. William H. Macy, Donald Sutherland, Neve Campbell, Tracey Ullman, John Ritter, Barbara Bain, David Dorfman. A hit man with a guilty conscience undergoes therapy and, feeling estranged from his own family, takes up with a sexy younger woman. Sort of. Low-key black comedy with Freudian overtones is fresh and interesting but never quite pays off. Excellent performances all around. Writer-director Bromell cut his teeth in episodic TV (Homicide, Northern Exposure). U.S. debut on cable TV. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Panic in Needle Park, The (1971) C-110m. ½ D: Jerry Schatzberg. Al Pacino, Kitty Winn, Alan Vint, Richard Bright, Kiel Martin, Michael McClanathan, Warren Finnerty, Marcia Jean Kurtz, Raul Julia, Joe Santos, Paul Sorvino. Easily the best of many drug-abuse films made in the early 1970s. Spunky small-time crook and decent young girl get hooked on heroin and go straight downhill. Pacino and Winn are tremendous. Screenplay by Joan Didion and John Gregory Dunne, from James Mills' book; produced by Dominick Dunne. [PG—edited from original R rating] ▼●●

Panic in the City (1968) C-97m.  D: Eddie Davis. Howard Duff, Linda Cristal, Stephen McNally, Nehemiah Persoff, Anne Jeffreys, Oscar Beregi, Dennis Hopper. Blah thriller with federal agent Duff attempting to prevent some commie swine from setting off an atomic bomb in L.A. Watch for Mike Farrell as a hospital radiologist. ▼●

Panic in the Streets (1950) 93m. ½ D: Elia Kazan. Richard Widmark, Paul Douglas, Barbara Bel Geddes, (Walter) Jack Palance, Zero Mostel. Taut drama involving gangsters, one of whom is a carrier of pneumonic plague, and the manhunt to find him. Makes fine use of New Orleans locale; Edward and Edna Anhalt won an Oscar for their story. Screenplay by Richard Murphy.

Panic in Year Zero! (1962) 95m. ½ D: Ray Milland. Ray Milland, Jean Hagen, Frankie Avalon, Mary Mitchel, Joan Freeman, Richard Garland. Intriguing film about L.A. family that escapes atomic bomb explosion to find a situation of every-man-for-himself. Loud, tinny music spoils much of film's effectiveness. CinemaScope. ●●

Panic Room (2002) C-112m.  D: David Fincher. Jodie Foster, Forest Whitaker, Jared Leto, Dwight Yoakam, Kristen Stewart, Ann Magnuson, Ian Buchanan, Patrick Bauchau. Solid thriller wastes no time putting Foster and daughter in peril—trapped in a steel-encased "safe room"—inside their new Manhattan brownstone. Three creepy thieves invade the house in search of money that's hidden (where else?) in that very room. Suspenseful from the word go, this entertaining film leads to a disappointingly conventional, violent finale. Written by David Koepp; excellent score by Howard Shore. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Pan's Labyrinth (2006-Spanish-Mexican) C-119m. ½ D: Guillermo del Toro. Sergi López, Maribel Verdú, Ivana Baquero, Alex Angulo, Doug Jones, Ariadna Gil, Manolo Solo, Roger Casamajor. A dark fairy tale plays out against the backdrop of 1944 Spain. A monstrous Fascist captain (López) determines to flush out soldiers of the resistance, as his pregnant wife arrives at his countryside headquarters with her young daughter. The girl (Baquero) escapes the brutality of her new environment by drifting into a fantasy world where she is given challenging tasks to perform by a mysterious faun. Unique fable blends fantasy and fearsome violence, ultimately merging the two stories together. Superbly realized, this is a rare film that invites repeated viewings to absorb all that writer-director del Toro has put into it. Oscar winner for Cinematography (Guillermo Navarro), Makeup (David Martí, Montse Ribé), and Art Direction (Eugenio Caballero, Pilar Reveulta). Coproduced by Alfonso Cuarón. Original Spanish title: EL LABIRINTO DEL FAUNO. [R] ●

fill of the everyday oppression against Black America and began confronting authority during the Vietnam era, becoming pivotal counter-cultural figures. Fascinating, politically loaded subject matter yearns for a more complex, intelligent cinematic rendering. Scripted by the director's dad, Melvin, based on his novel. [R] ▼●●

Paparazzi (2004) C-84m. BOMB D: Paul Abascal. Cole Hauser, Robin Tunney, Dennis Farina, Daniel Baldwin, Tom Hollander, Kevin Gage, Blake Bryan, Tom Sizemore. Hot action-movie actor and all-around nice guy (Hauser) turns real ugly when the paparazzi—and one slimy photog in particular (Sizemore)—start hounding him and his family. Odious, self-righteous revenge thriller. Chris Rock has a cameo as a pizza delivery man. Matthew McConaughey and Vince Vaughn appear as themselves. Mel Gibson coproduced and is seen briefly as a man in anger management therapy. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Papa's Delicate Condition (1963) C-98m. ½ D: George Marshall. Jackie Gleason, Glynis Johns, Charlie Ruggles, Laurel Goodwin, Charles Lane, Elisha Cook, Juanita Moore, Murray Hamilton. Amusing nostalgia of Corinne Griffith's childhood; Gleason dominates everything as tipsy father; set in 1900s. Oscar-winning song, "Call Me Irresponsible." ▼●●

Paper, The (1994) C-112m. ½ D: Ron Howard. Michael Keaton, Glenn Close, Robert Duvall, Marisa Tomei, Randy Quaid, Jason Robards, Jason Alexander, Spalding Gray, Catherine O'Hara, Lynne Thigpen, Jack Kehoe, Roma Maffia, Clint Howard, Geoffrey Owens, William Prince, Augusta Dabney, Bruce Altman. Twenty-four hours in the life of a N.Y. newspaper and its harried editors, who are trying to manage their troubled private lives against the unyielding demands of a deadline (and a few small questions about ethics). Over-the-top, far-fetched, downright silly at times, but so adrenalized—barely stopping to take a breath—that it's fun to watch just the same. Many N.Y. journalists appear in cameo roles. Music by Randy Newman. [R] ▼●●

Paperback Hero (1973-Canadian) C-94m. ½ D: Peter Pearson. Keir Dullea, Elizabeth Ashley, John Beck, Dayle Haddon. Local hockey hero/womanizer leads fantasy life as town gunslinger. Interesting and well acted, but ultimately a misfire. [R] ▼

Paperback Romance (1994-Australian) C-93m.  D: Ben Lewin. Gia Carides, Anthony LaPaglia, Rebecca Gibney, Robyn Nevin, Jacek Koman. Paper-thin black comedy about a disabled romance novelist (Carides) who breaks her leg while stalking handsome, roguish jeweler LaPaglia. Thus, he doesn't realize that she's handicapped; she tells him she was in a skiing accident.

Would-be spoof of schmaltzy novels substitutes slapstick violence for actual laughs. The stars are a real-life couple, but seem mismatched in this film. [R] ▼●

Paper Chase, The (1973) C-111m. ½ D: James Bridges. Timothy Bottoms, Lindsay Wagner, John Houseman, Graham Beckel, Edward Herrmann, Craig Richard Nelson, James Naughton, Bob Lydiard, David Clennon, Lenny Baker. Near-classic comedy-drama about pressures of freshman year at Harvard Law School; Bottoms' obsession with tyrannical professor Kingsfield (Houseman) becomes even more complicated when he discovers his girl friend is Kingsfield's daughter! Splendidly adapted by Bridges from the John Jay Osborn, Jr., novel, with wonderful Gordon Willis photography and peerless acting, led by Houseman's Oscar-winning performance in the role that made him a "star" (and which he continued in the subsequent TV series). Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Paperhouse (1988-British) C-94m.  D: Bernard Rose. Charlotte Burke, Elliott Spiers, Glennie Headly, Ben Cross, Gemma Jones, Sarah Newbold. Insightful fantasy drama of girl on the verge of puberty who has vivid dreams that both reflect her own life and seem to be affecting the life of a boy she has never met—while awake. Tense, even frightening, psychologically valid and well acted . . . but not to every taste. Feature debut of music-video director Rose. [PG-13] ▼●

Paper Lion (1968) C-107m.  D: Alex March. Alan Alda, Lauren Hutton, Alex Karras, David Doyle, Ann Turkel, John Gordy, Roger Brown, Sugar Ray Robinson. Funny film, loosely based on George Plimpton's book, about that writer's experiences when he becomes honorary member of Detroit Lions football team. Even non-football fans should enjoy this one, especially scenes with Karras (then a member of the team). Look for Roy Scheider in small role. Techniscope. [G] ▼●

Paper Mask (1991-British) C-105m.  D: Christopher Morahan. Paul McGann, Amanda Donohoe, Frederick Treves, Tom Wilkinson, Barbara Leigh-Hunt, Jimmy Yuill. Taut chiller is a darkly cynical look at the medical profession. McGann plays a lowly hospital orderly who takes on the identity of a doctor who's been killed in a car crash and gets a job the deceased had applied for in a busy emergency room. Alternately tense, horrifying, and hilarious. [R] ▼

Paper Moon (1973) 102m. * D: Peter Bogdanovich. Ryan O'Neal, Tatum O'Neal, Madeline Kahn, John Hillerman, P. J. Johnson, Burton Gilliam, Randy Quaid. Unbeatable entertainment, harking back to Damon Runyonesque 1930s, as con man O'Neal unwillingly latches onto young girl

(his real-life daughter) who's pretty sharp herself. Tatum made her film debut here, and won an Oscar for her scene-stealing work; Kahn is fun, too, as Trixie Delight. Script by Alvin Sargent from Joe David Brown's Addie Pray. Later a TV series. [PG]▼●●

Paper Tiger (1975-British) C-99m.  D: Ken Annakin. David Niven, Toshiro Mifune, Hardy Kruger, Ando, Ivan Desny, Ronald Fraser. Lackluster tale of a plucky kidnapped lad (Ando) and his English tutor (Niven). Since the boy is the son of Japanese ambassador Mifune, Niven sees the chance to act out his many tales of heroism that have impressed the youngster. Tepid action involving political terrorism and Disney-style cuteness muck up the proceedings entirely. Panavision. [PG]▼

Papillon (1973) C-150m.  D: Franklin J. Schaffner. Steve McQueen, Dustin Hoffman, Victor Jory, Don Gordon, Anthony Zerbe, George Coulouris, Robert Deman, Bill Mumy, Gregory Sierra. Henri Charrière—"the butterfly"—(McQueen) is determined to escape from Devil's Island, despite the odds, in this exciting adventure yarn. Extreme length and graphic realism work against its total success. Script by Dalton Trumbo and Lorenzo Semple, Jr., from Charrière's best-selling book; that's Trumbo cast as the Commandant. Music by Jerry Goldsmith. Cut to 132m. after original release. Panavision. [PG—originally rated R]▼●●

Paprika (2006-Japanese) C-90m.  D: Satoshi Kon. Voices of Megumi Hayashibara, Tôru Furuya, Kôichi Yamadera, Katsunosuke Hori, Toru Emori, Akio Ôhtsuka. Vivid psychedelic images highlight this Japanese anime in which machines invade and record people's dreams. Their creator is a colorless doctor with a freewheeling alter ego named Paprika who also dives into the subconscious. When one of the machines is stolen in order to turn these dreams into nightmares, the Doctor/Paprika must find a way to harness the technology and rein it in. Based on a novel by Yasutaka Tsutsui. With its imaginative visuals, this is a trip worth taking. [R]●

Parade (1974-French-Swedish) C-85m.  D: Jacques Tati. Jacques Tati, Karl Kossmayr, Pia Colombo. Disappointing final feature from the beloved French comic, combining assorted provincial circus acts with Tati himself performing mime routines. The result is a curio for sure, solely of interest for fans of Tati. Shot mostly on video. Originally made for television.▼●

Paradise Case, The (1948) 116m. ½ D: Alfred Hitchcock. Gregory Peck, (Alida) Valli, Ann Todd, Charles Laughton, Charles Coburn, Ethel Barrymore, Louis Jourdan, Leo G. Carroll, John Williams. Talk, talk, talk in complicated, stagy courtroom drama, set in England. Below par for Hitchcock; producer David O. Selznick

also wrote the script. Originally 132m., then cut to 125m. and finally 116m.▼

Paradise (1982) C-100m. *½ D: Stuart Gillard. Willie Aames, Phoebe Cates, Tuvia Tavi, Richard Curnock, Neil Vipond, Aviva Marks. Silly BLUE LAGOON rip-off, with Aames and Cates discovering sex while stranded in the desert. Both, however, do look good sans clothes. [R]▼

Paradise (1991) C-110m.  D: Mary Agnes Donoghue. Melanie Griffith, Don Johnson, Elijah Wood, Thora Birch, Sheila McCarthy, Eve Gordon, Louise Latham. Poignant and appealing story of a boy (Wood) who's sent to friends of his mother's in a quiet country town for the summer; there he's befriended by a precocious girl (Birch), and tries to learn what makes the married couple he's staying with so cold to one another. Idyllic film takes perhaps too much time to reach its (inevitable) climax, but offers many lovely moments. Birch is a standout. Directorial debut for screenwriter Donoghue, who adapted the 1988 French film LE GRAND CHEMIN (THE GRAND HIGHWAY). [PG-13]▼●●

Paradise Alley (1978) C-109m. *½ D: Sylvester Stallone. Sylvester Stallone, Lee Canalito, Armand Assante, Frank McRae, Anne Archer, Kevin Conway, Joyce Ingalls, Tom Waits, Ray Sharkey. Sly made his directorial debut with this Damon Runyonesque story of three none-too-bright brothers from the N.Y.C. tenements, one of whom hopes to make it big as a wrestler. Some nice moments lost in comic-book-level dramatics. Director Stallone clearly admires his star (he also croons the title song!). [PG]▼●●

Paradise, Hawaiian Style (1966) C-91m. ½ D: Michael Moore. Elvis Presley, Suzanna Leigh, James Shigeta, Donna Butterworth, Marianna Hill, Irene Tsu, Julie Parrish, Philip Ahn, Mary Treen. Rehash of Presley's earlier BLUE HAWAII, with Elvis a pilot who runs a charter service while romancing local dolls. Attractive fluff.▼

Paradise Now (2005-Palestinian-Dutch-German-French) C-90m. ½ D: Hany Abu-Assad. Kais Nashif, Ali Suliman, Lubna Azabal, Amer Hlehel, Hiam Abbass, Ashraf Barhoum. Gripping drama of two young men living in the Palestine territory who try to reconcile their lives with family and friends; in 24 hours they will perpetrate a suicide-bombing mission in Tel Aviv. Events do not play out as planned, but we in the audience are all too aware of the literal time bomb ticking every minute. An exceptional film laced with humor and humanity. Written by the director and Bero Beyer. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Paradise Road (1997-U.S.-Australian) C-115m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Glenn Close, Pauline Collins, Cate Blanchett, Frances McDormand, Julianna Margulies,

Jennifer Ehle, Elizabeth Spriggs, Tessa Humphries, Wendy Hughes, Susie Porter, Sab Shimono. Beresford scripted and researched this heartfelt (though cliché-ridden) based-on-fact account of a band of women who become united as they are held in a Japanese POW camp in Sumatra during WW2; they form a symphonic chorus and create beautiful harmony amid their misery. Not without many dramatically effective moments, but done in by repetition and predictability. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Parallax View, The (1974) C-102m. ½ D: Alan J. Pakula. Warren Beatty, Paula Prentiss, William Daniels, Walter McGinn, Hume Cronyn, Anthony Zerbe, Kenneth Mars. Director-photographer-production designer team later responsible for ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN gives this political thriller a brilliant "look" as reporter Beatty investigates a senator's assassination. Frightening story unfolds with each piece of evidence he uncovers. Gripping to the very end. Panavision. [R]▼●

Paranoiac (1963-British) 80m. ½ D: Freddie Francis. Janette Scott, Oliver Reed, Liliane Brousse, Alexander Davion, Sheila Burrell, Maurice Denham. Murder, impersonation, insanity all part of thriller set in large English country estate. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Paranoid Park (2007-U.S.-French) C-84m. ½ D: Gus Van Sant. Gabe Nevins, Jake Miller, Dan Liu, Taylor Momsen, Lauren McKinney, Grace Carter. Portland, Oregon, teenager Nevins seems barely interested in his pretty girlfriend or much of anything else, other than skateboarding with his best friend. He finally starts to care when police investigate a death in an industrial area near a popular skate park. Film is similarly laid-back and artsy (parents are mostly unseen, like a Peanuts comic strip, and as in Van Sant's ELEPHANT, shower scenes pop up), with its long passages playing out of sequential order. This may endear it to fans of the director; others won't see the point of it all. Based on a novel by Blake Nelson. [R]●

Parasite (1982) C-85m. BOMB D: Charles Band. Robert Glaudini, Demi Moore, Luca Bercovici, James Davidson, Al Fann, Cherie Currie, Vivian Blaine. In repressive near-future, scientist who's developed voracious parasites flees with one inside him and (surprise, surprise) it gets loose. Set in the California desert, with several revolting sequences copied from ALIEN. Filmed in 3-D, with blood and parasites thrust at the viewer. StereoScope. [R]▼●●

Pardners (1956) C-90m. ½ D: Norman Taurog. Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis, Lori Nelson, Jackie Loughery, John Baragrey, Agnes Moorehead, Jeff Morrow, Lon

Chaney, Jr. Ironically titled M&L vehicle (they were already on the road to their breakup) is pleasant remake of RHYTHM ON THE RANGE, with Jerry as Manhattan millionaire who cleans up Western town in his own inimitable fashion. Written by Sidney Sheldon. VistaVision. ▼●

Pardon Mon Affaire (1977-French) C-105m.  D: Yves Robert. Jean Rochefort, Claude Brasseur, Guy Bedos, Victor Lanoux, Daniele Delorme, Anny Duperey. Sprightly comedy about efforts of happily married Rochefort to meet and court a dazzling model he spots in a parking garage. Another enjoyable French farce from director Robert. Sequel: WE WILL ALL MEET IN PARADISE. Later Americanized as THE WOMAN IN RED. [PG]▼●

Pardon My Past (1945) 88m.  D: Leslie Fenton. Fred MacMurray, Marguerite Chapman, Akim Tamiroff, William Demarest, Rita Johnson, Harry Davenport. Excellent tale of unsuspecting look-alike for famous playboy, incurring his debts and many enemies; fine comedy-drama.

Pardon My Sarong (1942) 84m.  D: Erle C. Kenton. Lou Costello, Bud Abbott, Lionel Atwill, Virginia Bruce, Robert Paige, William Demarest, Leif Erickson, Samuel S. Hinds, Nan Wynn, Four Ink Spots, Tip, Tap, Toe. A&C in good form as bus drivers who end up on tropical island, involved with notorious jewel thieves. ▼●

Pardon Us (1931) 55m. ½ D: James Parrott. Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Wilfred Lucas, Walter Long, James Finlayson, June Marlowe. L&H's first starring feature film is amusing spoof of THE BIG HOUSE and prison films in general; slow pacing is its major debit, but many funny bits make it a must for fans of Stan and Ollie. ▼●●

Parenthood (1989) C-124m. ½ D: Ron Howard. Steve Martin, Mary Steenburgen, Dianne Wiest, Jason Robards, Rick Moranis, Tom Hulce, Martha Plimpton, Keanu Reeves, Harley Kozak, Dennis Dugan, Leaf (Joaquin) Phoenix, Paul Linke. Insightful multi-character comedy about the trials and tribulations of parenthood, as seen from several points of view within the same large family. Warm, winning, and truthful; Martin is ideal in the lead, and surrounded by a perfect ensemble. Screenplay by Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandel (from a story they concocted with fellow parent Ron Howard). Later a TV series. [PG-13]▼●●

Parents (1989) C-82m.  D: Bob Balaban. Randy Quaid, Mary Beth Hurt, Sandy Dennis, Bryan Madsorsky, Juno Mills-Cockell, Kathryn Grody, Deborah Rush, Graham Jarvis. Coal-black horror comedy set in the 1950s centers on a young boy who worries about where his highly conformist parents get all that meat they eat ... and what goes on down in the basement. Well acted but thinly plotted; a good sense of visual style and amusing production design can't keep it afloat. Feature directing debut for actor Balaban. [R]▼●●

Parent Trap, The (1961) C-124m.  D: David Swift. Hayley Mills, Maureen O'Hara, Brian Keith, Charlie Ruggles, Una Merkel, Leo G. Carroll, Joanna Barnes, Cathleen Nesbitt, Nancy Kulp, Frank DeVol. Hayley plays twins who've never met until their divorced parents send them to the same summer camp; after initial rivalry they join forces to reunite their mom and dad. Attempt to mix slapstick and sophistication doesn't work, but overall it's fun. Erich Kastner's story filmed before as 1954 British film TWICE UPON A TIME. Hayley starred—as mom—in 1986 and 1989 TV sequels. Remade in 1998.▼●●

Parent Trap, The (1998) C-128m.  D: Nancy Myers. Lindsay Lohan, Dennis Quaid, Natasha Richardson, Elaine Hendrix, Lisa Ann Walter, Simon Kunz, Polly Holliday, Maggie Wheeler, Ronnie Stevens. Delightful remake of the 1961 Disney hit about eleven-year-old girls who've been raised separately, meet each other for the first time at summer camp, and contrive to bring their parents back together—though Mom lives in London and Dad in California's Napa Valley. Nicely updated to the 1990s without losing the appeal of the original. Joanna Barnes, who played the "other woman" in the 1961 movie, appears here as that character's mother. Lohan's film debut. Paris Honeymoon (1939) 92m. ½ D: Frank Tuttle. Bing Crosby, Shirley Ross, Edward Everett Horton, Akim Tamiroff, Ben Blue, Rafaela Ottiano, Raymond Hattton. Texan Crosby visits France planning to marry Ross, but meets native Franciska Gaal and falls in love with her.

Paris Is Burning (1990) C-78m. ½ D: Jennie Livingston. Funny, revealing, and compact documentary about N.Y.C. "drag balls"—in which black and Latino men don "vogue-ing" disguises as everything from flamboyant queens to businessmen or members of the military. Fresh and undescending, with a powerful element of tragedy near the end.▼●●

Paris, je t'aime (2006-French) C-120m. ½ D: Bruno Podalydès, Gurinder Chadha, Gus Van Sant, Joel and Ethan Coen, Walter Salles and Daniela Thomas, Christopher Doyle, Isabel Coixet, Nobuhiro Suwa, Sylvain Chomet, Alfonso Cuarón, Richard LaGravenese, Olivier Assayas, Olivier Schmitz, Wes Craven, Tom Tykwer, Gérard Depardieu and Frédéric Auburtin, Alexander Payne. Florence Muller, Bruno Podalydès, Leïla Bekhti, Marianne Faithfull, Steve Buscemi, Catalina Sandino Moreno, Barbet Schroeder, Sergio Castellitto, Miranda Richardson, Leonor Watling, Juliette Binoche, Willem Dafoe, Hippolyte Girardot, Paul Putner, Nick Nolte, Ludivine Sagnier, Bob Hoskins, Fanny Ardant, Maggie Gyllenhaal, Lionel Dray, Aïssa Maïga, Elijah Wood, Olga Kurylenko, Emily Mortimer, Rufus Sewell, Natalie Portman, Melchior Beslon, Ben Gazzara, Gena Rowlands, Margo Martindale. Series of "little romances" set in 18 distinct Parisian neighborhoods. Altogether it doesn't amount to much, but a handful of the vignettes are well told and amusing: Craven's graveyard set piece with Mortimer and Sewell, who are about to marry; the Coens' funny skit with Buscemi as an innocent bystander in the Paris Metro; a bittersweet slice of life with Rowlands and Gazzara (written by Rowlands); Payne's musing on loneliness with a perfectly cast Martindale. [R]●

Paris, Texas (1984-German-French-British) C-150m. ½ D: Wim Wenders. Harry Dean Stanton, Nastassja Kinski, Dean Stockwell, Aurore Clement, Hunter Carson, Bernhard Wicki. Man who's been lost four years tries to put his life back together—and win back his wife and son. Oblique, self-satisfied, and slow, like most of Sam Shepard's writing, but distinguished by fine performances and rich Southwestern atmosphere by Wenders and cinematographer Robby Müller. This won raves from many critics, so it may be a matter of personal taste. [R]▼●●

Paris 36 (2008-French-German-Czech) C-120m.  D: Christophe Barratier. Gérard

Jugnot, Clovis Cornillac, Nora Arnezeder, Kad Merad, Pierre Richard, Bernard-Pierre Donnadiou, Maxence Perrin, François Morel. Atmospheric, beautifully crafted musical salutes the romantic ideal of 1930s Paris just as politics and WW2 are about to change it forever. Three workers try to save the local vaudeville theater, and their jobs, by buying it and reinventing the aging palace as an entertainment mecca. As in LES CHORISTES, Barratier blends coldhearted reality and stylish musical sequences. And don't miss the Busby Berkeley tribute. French title: FAUBOURG 36. Panavision. [PG-13]

Paris Trout (1991) C-100m. ½ D: Stephen Gyllenhaal. Dennis Hopper, Barbara Hershey, Ed Harris, Ray McKinnon, Tina Lifford, Darnita Henry, Eric Ware. Jarring drama, set in the late 1940s, about the mind and soul of an unrepentant racist, with Hopper (never better) as a Southerner who kills a 12-year-old black girl and cannot comprehend how he can be condemned for his action. Probing, bristling script by Pete Dexter, based on his National Book Award-winning novel. This debuted in the U.S. on cable TV. [R]▼●

Paris—When It Sizzles (1964) C-110m. *½ D: Richard Quine. William Holden, Audrey Hepburn, Noel Coward, Gregoire Aslan. Labored, unfunny comedy defeats a game cast, in story of screenwriter and secretary who act out movie fantasies in order to finish script. Paris locations, cameos by Marlene Dietrich and other stars don't help. Remake of Julien Duvivier's LA FÊTE À HENRIETTE (1952). ▼

Park Row (1952) 83m.  D: Samuel Fuller. Gene Evans, Mary Welch, Herbert Heyes, Tina Rome, Forrest Taylor. Good, tough little film with newsman Evans starting his own paper, rivaling newspaper magnate Welch in 1880s N.Y.C. Written by the director, a former newspaperman.

Parnell (1937) 119m. *½ D: John Stahl. Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Edna May Oliver, Edmund Gwenn, Alan Marshal, Donald Crisp, Billie Burke, Donald Meek. Biography of popular and powerful Irish nationalist leader of the late 1800s whose career was destroyed by the exposure of adulterous affair. Plodding film fails to realize great story potential; this was (understandably) a notorious flop in 1937.

Parrish (1961) C-140m. *½ D: Delmer Daves. Claudette Colbert, Troy Donahue, Karl Malden, Dean Jagger, Connie Stevens, Diane McBain, Sharon Huguely, Sylvia Miles, Madeleine Sherwood. Slurpy soap is so bad that at times it's funny; emotionless Donahue lives with his mother (Colbert, in her last theatrical film) on Jagger's tobacco plantation and falls in love with three girls there. Malden overplays tyrannical tobacco czar to the nth degree. Carroll O'Connor and Vincent Gardenia have small roles. ▼

Parting Glances (1986) C-90m. ½ D: Bill Sherwood. John Bolger, Richard Ganoung, Steve Buscemi, Adam Nathan, Patrick Tull, Kathy Kinney. Two longtime gay roommates spend their final 24 hours together before one leaves N.Y.C. on a job transfer. Earnest, intelligent drama is OK within its modest framework; subsidiary characters—one of them dying of AIDS (and played by Buscemi, in an eye-opening performance)—are more compelling than the two protagonists. This was Sherwood's only feature; he died of AIDS in 1990. ▼

Partners (1982) C-98m. BOMB D: James Burrows. Ryan O'Neal, John Hurt, Kenneth McMillan, Robyn Douglass, Jay Robinson, Denise Galik, Rick Jason. Foolish, offensive parody of CRUISING, with straight cop O'Neal impersonating homosexual while investigating gay murder. Hurt is wasted as O'Neal's partner, who really is gay. Screenplay by Francis (LA CAGE AUX FOLLÉS) Veber. Undistinguished feature debut for TV comedy director Burrows. [R]▼

Parts: The Clonus Horror (1978) C-90m.  D: Robert S. Fiveson. Tim Donnelly, Dick Sargent, Peter Graves, Paulette Breen, David Hooks, Keenan Wynn. Part 2, Sounder (1976) C-98m. ½ D: William A. Graham. Harold Sylvester, Ebony Wright, Taj Mahal, Annazette Chase, Darryl Young. Excellent follow-up to SOUNDER, retaining the dignity and human values in the continuing tale of a proud family of Depression-era Southern sharecroppers. [G]

Part 2, Walking Tall (1975) C-109m.  D: Earl Bellamy. Bo Svenson, Luke Askew, Robert DoQui, Bruce Glover, Richard Jaeckel, Noah Beery, Jr. Tepid follow-up to ultraviolent movie about club-swinging Tennessee Sheriff Buford Pusser. Svenson now takes the role of the one-man crusader against organized crime, but makes him come off like a standard TV hero rather than a real-life character. Aka WALKING TALL, PART TWO. Sequel: FINAL CHAPTER—WALKING TALL. [PG]▼

Party, The (1968) C-99m.  D: Blake Edwards. Peter Sellers, Claudine Longet, Marge Champion, Denny Miller, Gavin MacLeod, Steve Franken, Carol Wayne. Side-splitting gags highlight loosely structured film about chic Hollywood party attended by bumbling Indian actor (Sellers). Doesn't hold up to the very end, but has some memorable set pieces. Panavision. ▼●

Party Girl (1958) C-99m.  D: Nicholas Ray. Robert Taylor, Cyd Charisse, Lee J. Cobb, John Ireland, Kent Smith. Crooked lawyer (Taylor) and showgirl (Charisse) try to break free from Chicago mob life. Charisse has a couple of torrid dance numbers; Ray's stylish treatment has won this film a following. Tony Martin (the star's husband) sings the title song. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Party Girl (1995) C-98m. ½ D: Daisy von Scherler Mayer. Parker Posey, Omar Townsend, Sasha von Scherler, Guillermo Diaz, Anthony DeSando, Donna Mitchell, Liev Schreiber, Nicole Bobbitt. Slim, low-budget film is fun, with Posey perfectly cast as a young N.Y.C. career woman without a career. Deciding she should be doing something more with her life than just throwing wild parties, she seeks job fulfillment (with admittedly no skills), and the N.Y. Public Library system will never be the same again. Posey is trendy and insouciant, likable and hilarious, and supporting cast scores as well—including the director's mother as Posey's godmother. Best bit: the Dewey Decimal Record-Spinning System! Later a TV series. [R] ▼●●

Party Monster (2003) C-98m. *½ D: Fenton Bailey, Randy Barbato. Macaulay Culkin, Seth Green, Wilson Cruz, Chloë Sevigny, Natasha Lyonne, Diana Scarwid, Dylan McDermott, Marilyn Manson, Mia Kirshner, Wilmer Valderrama, John Stamos. Culkin gives a mannered, thoroughly annoying performance in an adult "comeback" vehicle—his first film in 9 years—about Michael Alig, a real-life club kid who became king of N.Y.C.'s drug-fueled nightlife in the late '80s and early '90s before he was arrested for murder. There may be an interesting cautionary tale to be told about the era (indeed, the directors made a 1998 documentary with the same title), but this amateurish, shot-on-video excursion into trendy depravity certainly isn't it. [R] ▼●

Party's Over, The (1966-British) 94m.  D: Guy Hamilton. Oliver Reed, Ann Lynn, Clifford David, Louise Sorel, Eddie Albert. Sordid drama of wealthy American girl becoming involved with group of aimless London youths, with tragic results.

Pascali's Island (1988-British) C-104m. ½ D: James Dearden. Ben Kingsley, Charles Dance, Helen Mirren, George Murcell, Sheila Allen, Nadim Sawalha. A largely ignored Turkish spy for the collapsing Ottoman Empire forms a duplicitous alliance with a mysterious Brit to rob the Greek island of Nisi of an archeological treasure. Well-acted drama isn't wholly successful, but it certainly holds your interest. Scripted by the director. [PG-13] ▼●●

Passage, The (1979-British) C-99m. *½ D: J. Lee Thompson. Anthony Quinn, James Mason, Malcolm McDowell, Patricia Neal, Kay Lenz, Christopher Lee, Paul

Clemens, Michael Lonsdale, Marcel Bozzuffi. Trashy WW2 story of Basque guide Quinn helping chemist Mason and his family escape over the Pyrenees with Nazi fanatic McDowell in hot pursuit. McDowell's campy performance must be seen to be disbelieved. Technovision. [R]

Passage to India, A (1984-British) C-163m.  D: David Lean. Judy Davis, Victor Banerjee, Peggy Ashcroft, James Fox, Alec Guinness, Nigel Havers, Richard Wilson, Antonia Pemberton, Michael Culver, Art Malik, Saeed Jaffrey. Meticulous adaptation of E. M. Forster novel set in the late 1920s, about an East/West culture clash, as a young, headstrong British woman goes to India for the first time, accompanied by the mother of her fiancé. Not a great movie, but so rich in flavor, nuance, and the sheer expressiveness of film that it offers great satisfaction, despite its shortcomings (and extreme length). Ashcroft won Best Supporting Actress Oscar for her fine performance as Mrs. Moore. Maurice Jarre also got an Oscar for his anachronistic score. Lean's last film. [PG] ▼●●

Passage to Marseille (1944) 110m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Humphrey Bogart, Claude Rains, Michele Morgan, Philip Dorn, Sydney Greenstreet, Peter Lorre, George Tobias, Helmut Dantine, John Loder, Victor Francen, Vladimir Sokoloff, Edward (Eduardo) Ciannelli, Hans Conried. WW2 Devil's Island escape film marred by flashback-within-flashback confusion. Not a bad war film, just too talky; a disappointment considering the cast. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Passed Away (1992) C-96m. ½ D: Charlie Peters. Bob Hoskins, Jack Warden, William Petersen, Helen Lloyd Breed, Maureen Stapleton, Pamela Reed, Tim Curry, Peter Riegert, Blair Brown, Patrick Breen, Nancy Travis, Teri Polo, Frances McDormand. Likable if lightweight black comedy about the death of a patriarch (Warden) and how it affects the various members of his colorful family. Pleasantly offbeat, with a very appealing cast, though Hoskins is never quite convincing as an American. Peters also scripted. [PG-13] ▼

Passenger, The (1975-Italian) C-126m. ½ D: Michelangelo Antonioni. Jack Nicholson, Maria Schneider, Jenny Runacre, Ian Hendry, Steven Berkoff, Ambrose Bia. Enigmatic narrative about dissatisfied TV reporter on assignment in Africa who exchanges identities with an Englishman who has died suddenly in a hotel room. Some found this brilliant; judge for yourself. Original PG-rated U.S. version runs 118m. [PG-13] ▼●●

crack anti-terrorist expert planning early retirement when he is thrust into the middle of an airline hijacking perpetrated by vile arch-criminal (Payne). Watchable action fare has a few too many coincidences but delivers both on the ground and in the air, thanks largely to the two charismatic opponents. Costar Robert Hooks, who plays FBI agent Henderson, is the director's father. Panavision and J-D-C Scope. [R]▼●

Passengers (2008) C-93m.  D: Rodrigo García. Anne Hathaway, Patrick Wilson, David Morse, Andre Braugher, Clea DuVall, Dianne Wiest, William B. Davis. Grief therapist Hathaway, counseling a batch of oddly argumentative plane crash survivors, develops a special interest in euphoric stockbroker Wilson. When her patients start vanishing from the sessions, she suspects the airline of a murderous cover-up, but . . . Scareless, suspenseless, only mildly intriguing romantic thriller is a middling muddle of conspiracy paranoia, otherworldliness, and kissing. Not recommended for those with a fear of flying. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Passing of Evil, The SEE: Grasshopper, The

Passion (1982-French-Swiss) C-87m. ½ D: Jean-Luc Godard. Isabelle Huppert, Hanna Schygulla, Michel Piccoli, Jerzy Radziwilowicz, Laszlo Szabo. Characters named Isabelle, Hanna, Michel, Jerzy and Laszlo are connected with the making of a film called PASSION, which seems to be more the visualization of a Rembrandt or Delacroix than an actual movie. Meanwhile, the extras are treated like cattle, and the moviemaking art is tainted by commerce. Truffaut's DAY FOR NIGHT celebrates the joy of filmmaking; this is, in its own way, an anti-movie. [R]▼●

Passionada (2003) C-108m.  D: Dan Ireland. Jason Isaacs, Sofia Milos, Emmy Rossum, Theresa Russell, Seymour Cassel, Lupe Ontiveros, Chris Tardio. Flavorful but unmemorable romantic comedy about three generations of women in a close-knit Portuguese fishing town in Massachusetts. The attractive Milos plays a recent widow reluctantly drawn into romance with a handsome Britisher who neglects to tell her certain things about himself. Easy on the eyes, and to be commended for focusing on love among adult characters (a rarity nowadays), but little more than a quick diversion. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Passionate Friends, The (1949-British) 91m. ½ D: David Lean. Ann Todd, Trevor Howard, Claude Rains, Betty Ann Davies, Isabel Dean, Wilfrid Hyde-White. Predictable love triangle among the upper classes, enhanced by strong cast and Lean's craftsmanship. Based on H. G. Wells novel. Originally released in U.S. as ONE WOMAN'S STORY.

Passionate Stranger, The SEE: Novel Affair, A

Passione d'Amore (1981-Italian-French) C-118m. ½ D: Ettore Scola. Bernard Giraudeau, Laura Antonelli, Valerie D'Obici, Jean-Louis Trintignant, Massimo Girotti, Bernard Blier. Hideous D'Obici pursues handsome cavalry officer Giraudeau, who's in love with gorgeous Antonelli. Intriguing Beauty and the Beast story is not completely convincing—and far from Scola's best work. Later musicalized for Broadway by Stephen Sondheim, as Passion. Aka PASSION OF LOVE.▼

Passion Fish (1992) C-135m.  D: John Sayles. Mary McDonnell, Alfre Woodard, David Strathairn, Vondie Curtis-Hall, Angela Bassett, Nora Dunn, Sheila Kelley, Mary Portser, Maggie Renzi. Bitchy soap opera actress is paralyzed in an accident, and returns to her family home in Louisiana where she can be miserable to her heart's content—until her newest nurse/companion (Woodard) stands up to her. Funny, affecting, and satisfying entertainment—if a wee bit long. McDonnell's natural aloofness is put to perfect use by writer-director Sayles, who's given her the part of a lifetime. [R]▼●

Passion in the Desert (1998-British) C-93m. ½ D: Lavinia Currier. Ben Daniels, Michel Piccoli, Paul Meston, Kenneth Colclard, Nadi Odeh, Auda Mohammed Badoul. Unusual drama, from Balzac novella, of French army captain (Daniels) and a painter in his charge (Piccoli) who get stranded in the Egyptian desert during 1798 Napoleonic campaign. The officer eventually comes face-to-face with a leopard, and their unorthodox relationship forms the crux of this story. Impressively crafted (cinematographer Alexei Rodionov also shot ORLANDO), though not for all tastes. Shot in 1995. [PG-13]▼●

Passion of Anna, The (1969-Swedish) C-101m. ½ D: Ingmar Bergman. Liv Ullmann, Bibi Andersson, Max von Sydow, Erland Josephson, Erik Hell. Stark drama, beautifully acted, about von Sydow, living alone on a barely populated island, and relationship with widow Ullmann, architect Josephson, and wife Andersson. Superior cinematography by Sven Nykvist. Original title was simply—and more accurately—A PASSION. [R]▼●

Passion of Joan of Arc, The (1928-French) 117m. * D: Carl Theodor Dreyer. Maria Falconetti, Eugene Sylvain, Maurice Schutz. Joan of Arc's inquisition, trial, and burning at the stake; the scenario is based on transcript of historical trial. Masterfully directed, with groundbreaking use of close-ups; Falconetti glows in the title role. Photographed by Rudolph Maté.▼●

Passion of Love SEE: Passion d'Amore
Passion of Mind (2000) C-105m.  D: Alain Berliner. Demi Moore, Stellan Skarsgård, William Fichtner, Sinead Cusack, Peter Riegert. Romantic piffle about a woman who's either a Provence widow who dreams she's a glamorous New York literary agent... or vice versa. Matters are complicated when she falls in love with two very different men. Indie vehicle for Moore is sleek and watchable but plays like an International Foods Coffee version of THE DOUBLE LIFE OF VERONIQUE. Also similar to JULIA AND JULIA, although in this version scripter Ron Bass actually bothers to solve the mystery. Panavision. [R]▼

Passion of the Christ, The (2004) C-126m. ½ D: Mel Gibson. Jim Caviezel, Monica Bellucci, Claudia Gerini, Maia Morgenstern, Sergio Rubini, Mattia Sbragia, Hristo Naumov Shopov, Luca De Dominicis. Chronicle of the last 12 hours in the life of Jesus Christ dwells, in excruciating detail, on his suffering (or "Passion"). Despite its direct and often powerful approach, the near-obsessive visceral display—which was absolutely director-cowriter Gibson's intention—becomes narrow and repetitive, particularly since it is virtually devoid of any historical context. Also, the use of subtitled Latin and Aramaic languages does not make the narrative seem any more authentic than other sincere interpretations of this story. However, a film that speaks so strongly to those who share its beliefs is difficult to judge objectively. Panavision. [R]▼

Passport to Pimlico (1949-British) 85m. ½ D: Henry Cornelius. Stanley Holloway, Margaret Rutherford, Betty Warren, Hermione Baddeley, Barbara Murray, Basil Radford, Naunton Wayne, Paul Dupuis, Michael Hordern. Salty farce of ancient treaty enabling small group of Brits to form their own bounded territory in the middle of London. Screenplay by Cornelius and T.E.B. Clarke.▼

Pass the Ammo (1988) C-97m. BOMB D: David Beaird. Bill Paxton, Linda Kozlowski, Tim Curry, Annie Potts, Dennis Burkley, Glenn Withrow, Anthony Geary, Richard Paul. Shriill, heavy-handed spoof of televangelists that blunts its satiric edge by making its "heroes" (a young couple out to rob the church) so thoroughly disreputable. This subject cries for a better comedy. [R]▼

Password Is Courage, The (1963-British) 116m.  D: Andrew L. Stone. Dirk Bogarde, Maria Perschy, Alfred Lynch, Nigel Stock, Reginald Beckwith, Richard Marner. Bogarde tops a fine cast in droll account of British soldier's plot to escape from WW2 prison camp. Metroscope.

Past Caring (1985-British) C-77m.  D:

Richard Eyre. Denholm Elliott, Emlyn Williams, Connie Booth, Joan Greenwood, Dave Atkins. Trepid, disappointing tale of roguish Elliott, approaching old age, who finds himself incarcerated in a home for senile senior citizens. Williams scores as an elderly homosexual bent on reliving his youth.

Pastime (1991) C-94m. ½ D: Robin B. Armstrong. William Russ, Glenn Plummer, Scott Plank, Noble Willingham, Jeffrey Tambor, Dierdre O'Connell, Ricky Paul Goldin. Quiet character study set in the world of minor-league baseball, circa 1957, focusing on a 41-year-old relief pitcher whose platitudes and gung-ho attitude alienate him from his younger, cockier teammates. Well-acted but drowsy little film does manage to catch the ambience of small-time baseball. Real-life major-league greats Ernie Banks, Bob Feller, Harmon Killebrew, Bill Mazerowski, Don Newcombe, and Duke Snider appear in minor roles. Film's climax shot at now-demolished Comiskey Park in Chicago. Aka ONE CUP OF COFFEE. [PG]▼

Past Midnight (1992) C-100m. ½ D: Jan Eliasberg. Rutger Hauer, Natasha Richardson, Clancy Brown, Guy Boyd, Ernie Lively, Tom Wright, Paul Giamatti. Romantic thriller of social worker becoming obsessed with her paroled killer client. Hauer (who's Dutch) and Richardson (who's British) sport pretty fair American accents playing two Oregonians. A theatrical film that premiered on cable TV instead. [R]▼

Patch Adams (1998) C-115m. ½ D: Tom Shadyac. Robin Williams, Daniel London, Monica Potter, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Bob Gunton, Josef Sommer, Irma P. Hall, Frances Lee McCain, Harve Presnell, Peter Coyote, Michael Jeter, Harold Gould, Ellen Albertini Dow, Richard Kiley, Barry Shabaka Henley. Pleasant movie based on the true story of a man who wants desperately to be a doctor and help people but rejects the sober protocol of medical school in favor of clowning and making a personal connection with patients. A natural role for Williams if there ever was one but the story, heroes, and villains are all set up a little too obviously for us to derive real satisfaction at the end. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Patch of Blue, A (1965) 105m.  D:

Guy Green. Sidney Poitier, Shelley Winters, Elizabeth Hartman, Wallace Ford, Ivan Dixon, John Qualen, Elisabeth Fraser. Sensitive drama of blind girl (Hartman) falling in love with black man (Poitier); well acted, not too sticky. Winters won Oscar as Hartman's harridan mother. Panavision. ▼●●

Pather Panchali (1955-Indian) 112m. ½ D: Satyajit Ray. Kanu Banerji, Karuna Banerji, Subir Banerji, Runki Banerji, Uma Das Gupta, Chunibala Devi. Unrelenting study of a poverty-stricken Indian family in Bengal. Grippingly realistic, with Karuna and Subir Banerji outstanding as the mother and her young son Apu. Ray's feature debut, and the first of his "Apu" trilogy. Music by Ravi Shankar. ▼●

Pathfinder (1988-Norwegian) C-88m. ½ D: Nils Gaup. Mikkel Gaup, Nils Utsi, Svein Scharffenberg, Helgi Skulason, Sara Marit Gaup, Sverre Porsanger. A teenage boy agrees to lead a group of cutthroats to the hiding place of his fellow villagers, but takes them on a wild goose chase instead. Stunning realization of an ancient folk tale from Lapland is the first film ever made in the Lapp language—and a whale of an adventure, too. Remade in 2007. Panavision. ▼

Pathfinder (2007) C-99m. *½ D: Marcus Nispel. Karl Urban, Russell Means, Moon

Bloodgood, Clancy Brown, Jay Tavare, Nathaniel Arcand, Ralf Moeller, Kevin Loring. Young Norse boy is left behind after Vikings fight some local Indians. Fifteen years pass as he is brought up by the tribe and then must lead them in a new battle when the bloodthirsty Norsemen return and start slaughtering everyone in their way. Ultra-violent tale puts action ahead of accuracy and doesn't seem to have much of a point other than to show inventive ways heads can be lopped off. Grainy cinematography doesn't help this B movie trying to pass itself off as something more. Guesome stuff well worth missing. Based on the 1988 Norwegian film. Unrated version runs 107m. Super 35. [R] ●

Pathology (2008) C-93m. *½ D: Marc Schoelermann. Milo Ventimiglia, Michael Weston, Alyssa Milano, Lauren Lee Smith, Johnny Whitworth, John de Lancie, Keir O'Donnell, Buddy Lewis, Larry Drake, Dan Callahan, Mei Melançon. Take FLATLINERS, add a little SAW, throw in David Cronenberg's CRASH and you have the recipe for this graphic, woefully inadequate horror oddity. A brilliant young pathology intern is sucked into a world of drugs and bizarre sexual practices when his new colleagues enlist his help to commit "perfect murders." Even genre fans might cringe at the slice-and-dice antics and kinky sex. Super 35. [R] ●

Paths of Glory (1957) 86m. * D: Stanley Kubrick. Kirk Douglas, Ralph Meeker, Adolphe Menjou, George Macready, Wayne Morris, Richard Anderson, Timothy Carey, Suzanne Christian, Bert Freed. During WW1, French general Macready orders his men on a suicidal charge; when they fail, he picks three soldiers to be tried and executed for cowardice. Shattering study of the insanity of war has grown even more profound with the years; stunningly acted and directed. Calder Willingham, Jim Thompson, and Kubrick adapted Humphrey Cobb's novel—based on fact. ▼●●

Patrick (1978-Australian) C-96m. *½ D: Richard Franklin. Susan Penhaligon, Robert Helpmann, Robert Thompson, Rod Mullinar, Bruce Barry, Julia Blake. Patrick's in a comatose state after violently murdering his mum, but his psychokinetic powers are still intact, as the hospital staff soon discovers in this tacky thriller. [PG] ▼●

Patriot, The (1986) C-88m. *½ D: Frank Harris. Greg Henry, Simone Griffith, Michael J. Pollard, Jeff Conaway, Leslie Nielsen, Stack Pierce, Glenn Withrow. Underwater action dominates this low-key action film. Dishonorably discharged Henry is recruited to retrieve a stolen nuclear warhead and redeem himself. [R] ▼●●

Patriot, The (1998) C-90m. BOMB D: Dean Semler. Steven Seagal, Gailard Sertain, L.Q. Jones, Camilla Belle, Dan Beene,

Ron Andrews. A paunchy, sleepy-eyed Sealgal plays a peaceful, bespectacled, pony-tailed Rocky Mountain doctor who's kind to kids, animals and local Native Americans, but will snap your spine and shove the stem of a wine glass into your skull if he has to. Of course, he's the perfect man to combat a neo-Nazi militia using chemical warfare. Rock bottom, irresponsible star vehicle dumbs down and bloodies up serious subject matter for the yahoo crowd. Premiered in the U.S. on cable. Panavision. [R]▼

Patriot, The (2000) C-164m.  D: Roland Emmerich. Mel Gibson, Heath Ledger, Joely Richardson, Chris Cooper, Jason Isaacs, Tom Wilkinson, Donal Logue, Rene Auberjonois, Tch ky Karyo, Adam Baldwin, Trevor Morgan. A former hero of the French and Indian Wars, widowed with seven children, refuses to fight in the Continental Army in 1776; he's seen the horror of war firsthand and wants to protect his family. But after his eldest son enlists, fate and circumstance force him into the fray. Gibson gives a charismatic performance in this entertaining, old-fashioned period saga, exquisitely filmed (by Caleb Deschanel) in South Carolina. But Robert Rodat's script and Emmerich's direction are too often heavy-handed, especially in their cartoonish treatment of "bad guy" Isaacs. Also available in 175m. version. Super 35. [R]▼

Patriot Games (1992) C-116m.  D: Phillip Noyce. Harrison Ford, Anne Archer, Patrick Bergin, Thora Birch, Sean Bean, Richard Harris, James Earl Jones, James Fox, Samuel L. Jackson, Polly Walker. Edge-of-the-seat thriller has ex-CIA agent Jack Ryan (Ford) intervening in a terrorist attack—inspiring an Irish radical (Bean) to swear vengeance on him and his family. Ford's an ideal hero in this adaptation of Tom Clancy's book, with Archer and Birch rounding out the kind of family you want to root for—and do. Only the climactic chase doesn't ring true. Alec Baldwin previously played Ryan in THE HUNT FOR RED OCTOBER. Followed by CLEAR AND PRESENT DANGER. Panavision. [R]▼

Patsy, The (1964) C-101m.  D: Jerry Lewis. Jerry Lewis, Ina Balin, Everett Sloane, Keenan Wynn, Peter Lorre, John Carradine, Neil Hamilton, Nancy Kulp. When a top comedian is killed in a plane crash, his sycophants try to groom a bellhop (guess who?) into taking his place. Forced, unfunny combination of humor and pathos, much inferior to somewhat similar ERRAND BOY. Lorre's last film. ▼

Patterns (1956) 83m. ½ D: Fielder Cook. Van Heflin, Everett Sloane, Ed Begley, Beatrice Straight, Elizabeth Wilson. Trenchant, masterfully acted drama of greed and abuse of power in corporate America, about an all-powerful company head (Sloane) who makes life miserable for humanistic underling Begley. Much better than the similar EXECUTIVE SUITE. Scripted by Rod Serling from his 1956 Kraft TV Theatre production (which also starred Sloane and Begley). ▼

Patton (1970) C-169m. * D: Franklin Schaffner. George C. Scott, Karl Malden, Stephen Young, Michael Strang, Frank Latimore, James Edwards, Lawrence Dobkin, Michael Bates, Tim Considine. Milestone in screen biographies; Scott unforgettable as eccentric, brilliant General George Patton, whose temper often interferes with his command during WW2. Malden equally impressive as General Omar Bradley in intelligently written, finely wrought biographical war drama. Winner of seven Oscars, including Best Picture, Actor, Director, Screenplay (Francis Ford Coppola and Edmund H. North). Scott reprised the role 16 years later in a TVM, THE LAST DAYS OF PATTON. Dimension-150. [M/PG]▼

Patty Hearst (1988) C-108m. *½ D: Paul Schrader. Natasha Richardson, William Forsythe, Ving Rhames, Dana Delany, Frances Fisher, Jodi Long, Olivia Barash. Stillborn dramatization of the newspaper heiress's kidnapping and subsequent brainwashing by the Symbionese Liberation Army. Film never recovers from a deadly opening half hour that attempts to convey, from victim's point of view, the effects of highly orchestrated psychological torture. Richardson makes a strong impression, despite having almost nothing to work with. Screenplay by Nicholas Kazan. [R]▼

Paul and Michelle (1974-British) C-103m. BOMB D: Lewis Gilbert. Sean Bury, Anicee Alvina, Keir Dullea, Catherine Allegret, Ronald Lewis. Why anyone would even want a sequel to FRIENDS requires investigation; further antics of those lovable teeny-boppers have about as much bearing on real life as anything Dullea encountered while going through the 2001 space-war. [R]▼

Paul Blart: Mall Cop (2009) C-91m.  D: Steve Carr. Kevin James, Jayma Mays, Keir O'Donnell, Bobby Cannavale, Stephen Rannazzisi, Shirley Knight, Adam Ferrara, Raini Rodriguez, Gary Valentine. Hapless, overweight N.J. mall security guard—who's developed a crush on a cute girl who works at a sales kiosk—steps up to bat when a wily bad guy and his team take over the mall. Straightforward vehicle for the likable James (who cowrote the script) hasn't that many laughs but is innocuous enough to amuse kids and undemanding adults. [PG]▼

his colorful life story—passing from one owner to the next—to a friendly (and lonely) janitor. A sweet-natured film that dares not to be stupid; adults should enjoy it along with their kids. Mohr, who plays the sleazy Benny, is also the voice of Paulie. Written by Laurie Craig. [PG] ▼●●

Pauline & Paulette (2001-Belgian-French-Dutch) C-78m. ½ D: Lieven Debrauwer. Dora van der Groen, Ann Petersen, Julieanne De Bruyn, Rosmarie Bergmans, Idwige Stephaane. Charming, sentimental look at two sisters, the mentally retarded Pauline (van der Groen), and Paulette (Petersen), a charismatic fabric shop owner and amateur opera diva whom Pauline idolizes. When fate brings the two together under one roof, Paulette tries to shove Pauline out of her life. Winner of five Belgian Plateau Awards, the film features outstanding performances by two legendary Belgian actresses and marks the feature debut of cowriter/director Debrauwer. [PG] ▼●

Pauline at the Beach (1983-French) C-94m.  D: Eric Rohmer. Amanda Langlet, Arielle Dombasle, Pascal Greggory, Feodor Atkine, Simon de la Brosse, Rosette. Witty, entertaining comedy of morals and manners that contrasts the hypocrisy of adult relationships and the straightforwardness of young people, as seen when a teenage girl (Langlet) spends the summer with her sexy, self-possessed older cousin (Dombasle). The third of Rohmer's "Comedies and Proverbs" series. [R] ▼●●

Pavilion of Women (2001-Chinese) C-119m. *½ D: Yim Ho. Luo Yan, Willem Dafoe, Shek Sau, John Cho, Yi Ding, Koh Chieng Mun, Anita Luo. Lumbering epic set in 1938 China about free love vs. feudalism. A faithful wife falls for an American priest while her son longs for his father's new concubine. Has the distinction of being the first adaptation of a Pearl S. Buck novel to feature an Asian cast, but its lush production values can't compensate for a soapy script and flat performances. Try not to giggle when a lustful Yan and Dafoe go for a literal roll in the hay. Shot on location in China. [R] ▼●

Pawnbroker, The (1965) 116m. * D: Sidney Lumet. Rod Steiger, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Brock Peters, Jaime Sanchez, Thelma Oliver, Juano Hernandez, Raymond St. Jacques. Important, engrossing film; Steiger is excellent as Sol Nazerman, a Jewish pawnbroker in Harlem who lives in a sheltered world with haunting memories of Nazi prison camps. Notable editing by Ralph Rosenblum and music by Quincy Jones. Edward Lewis Wallant's novel was adapted by David Friedkin and Morton Fine. ▼●●

Payback (1999) C-102m. *½ D: Brian Helgeland. Mel Gibson, Gregg Henry, Maria Bello, Deborah Kara Unger, David

Paymer, Bill Duke, Jack Conley, William Devane, Kris Kristofferson, John Glover, Lucy Alexis Liu. A slick robber is double-crossed and becomes so determined to exact revenge on his betrayer (Henry) and the crime syndicate to which he belongs that he takes on all comers, no matter how great the odds. Brutal story grows more ridiculous with each new plot turn. Based on The Hunter, the same Richard Stark (Donald E. Westlake) novel as POINT BLANK. James Coburn appears unbilled. Director's cut runs 90m. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Paycheck (2003) C-119m. ½ D: John Woo. Ben Affleck, Uma Thurman, Aaron Eckhart, Paul Giamatti, Colm Feore, Joe Morton, Michael C. Hall. Computer whiz Affleck makes big bucks by regularly solving top-secret problems for companies, then having his memory of the entire operation erased. But when he tackles his biggest job yet, for a giant corporation run by Eckhart, things don't go as planned. As Affleck seeks revenge—and answers—after having three years' worth of memory wiped out, the story line grows more and more outlandish. Slick, entertaining-enough escapism if you're not too demanding. Based on a Philip K. Dick story. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●

Payday (1973) C-103m. ½ D: Daryl Duke. Rip Torn, Ahna Capri, Elyse Heilveil, Cliff Emmich, Michael C. Gwynne. Acerbic, colorful portrait of life on the road with a smug, self-centered country music star, a hellion who counts on his manager to "fix" any problems that crop up along the way. Biting, original screenplay by Don Carpenter. One of those prototypical early-1970s movies that makes modern American cinema seem bland. [R] ▼●

Pay It Forward (2000) C-122m.  D: Mimi Leder. Kevin Spacey, Helen Hunt, Haley Joel Osment, Jay Mohr, James Caviezel, Jon Bon Jovi, Angie Dickinson. A teacher assigns his students to do something to change the world, which inspires Osment to help three people, unselfishly. His mom, a single parent with a drinking problem, doesn't understand her son's actions until she meets the teacher—and a romance is kindled. Well-meaning film doesn't deliver on its very real promise; the conclusion is especially unsatisfying. Osment is exceptional. Based on a novel by Catherine Ryan Hyde. [PG-13] ▼●

Payment on Demand (1951) 90m.  D: Curtis Bernhardt. Bette Davis, Barry Sullivan, Peggie Castle, Jane Cowl, Kent Taylor, Betty Lynn, John Sutton, Frances Dee, Otto Kruger. Well-handled chronicle of Davis-Sullivan marriage, highlighting events which lead to divorce. ●

rectness is out of control at Port Chester University which leads to the inevitable clash between a cadre of overly militant student groups and a coed group of dormies who revel in their political incorrectness. This campus comedy gets failing grades. [PG-13] ▼●●

Peaceful Warrior (2006-U.S.-German) C-120m. ½ D: Victor Salva. Nick Nolte, Scott Mechlowicz, Amy Smart, Tim DeKay, Paul Wesley, Ashton Holmes, Agnes Bruckner, Bart Conner, Ray Wise. An arrogant Berkeley gymnast with an eye on the Olympics crashes his motorcycle, ruining his leg and his life. Coached and rewired by a grizzled—and maddeningly nameless—service station mechanic-cum-guru, he learns to overcome himself and live in the Now. Metaphysical KARATE KID is a faithful adaptation of Dan Millman's 1980 semiautobiographical novel, but it's unapologetically crammed with platitudes. Not a movie for people who like things explained. Panavision. [PG-13] ●

Peacemaker (1990) C-90m.  D: Kevin S. Tenney. Robert Forster, Lance Edwards, Hilary Shepard, Robert Davi, Bert Remsen. Yet another alien cop after alien villain movie, pitting Forster against Edwards, with novel twist: both claim to be the cop, causing Earthwoman Shepard any number of problems. Lots of stunts and action, but also lots of absolutely awful wisecracks. Written by the director. [R] ▼●●

Peacemaker, The (1997) C-123m. ½ D: Mimi Leder. George Clooney, Nicole Kidman, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Marcel Iures, Alexander Baluev, Rene Medvesek, Gary Wertz, Randall Batinkoff, Michael Boatman. A nuclear explosion in Russia—which turns out to be a terrorist act—triggers immediate response by a U.S. government troubleshooter team led by an inexperienced Kidman and a cocky, shoot-from-the-hip field agent (Clooney). Good action scenes are set in the midst of a confusing, barely believable yarn, which yields diminishing results as one climax after another piles up. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

Pearl, The (1948) 77m.  D: Emilio Fernandez. Pedro Armendariz, Maria Elena Marques. Mexican-filmed John Steinbeck tale of poor fisherman whose life is unhappily altered by finding valuable pearl; a bit heavy-handed. Beautifully photographed by Gabriel Figueroa. ▼

December 7, 1941: a big Hollywood movie. Occasional silliness and anticlimactic rendering of Doolittle's raid on Tokyo are offset by thrilling (and horrifying) depiction of the infamous bombing attack on Pearl. Oscar winner for Sound Editing. R-rated director's cut runs 184m. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●

Pearl of Death, The (1944) 69m.  D: Roy William Neill. Basil Rathbone, Nigel Bruce, Evelyn Ankers, Miles Mander, Rondo Hatton, Dennis Hoey, Richard Nugent. Deft Sherlock Holmes entry has the sleuth searching for six busts of Napoleon, one of which contains the Borgia pearl, before all the owners are murdered by "The Creeper" (Hatton). Suspenseful story inspired Universal to recast Hatton in two more films as "The Creeper." ▼●

Pebble and the Penguin, The (1995-U.S.-Irish) C-74m. *½ No director credited. Voices of Martin Short, James Belushi, Tim Curry, Annie Golden, Angelyne Ball, B.J. Ward, Hamilton Camp, Will Ryan; narrated by Shani Wallis. Nice-guy penguin ends up on an aquatic globe-trotting odyssey with a gruff sidekick named Rocko, all for the love of a lady who's coveted by an evil penguin rival. Some movies have the smell of doom all over them; this animated feature for kids from the Don Bluth studio (with songs by Barry Manilow) is one of them. [G] ▼●●

Pecker (1998) C-87m.  D: John Waters. Edward Furlong, Christina Ricci, Lili Taylor, Mary Kay Place, Martha Plimpton, Brendan Sexton III, Patricia Hearst, Jean Schertler, Bess Armstrong, Mink Stole. Pecker (Furlong) is a happy-go-lucky guy who loves taking pictures of life as he sees it. When a N.Y.C. art gallery owner "discovers" his work and he's embraced by the art scene, he loses his anonymity, and many of his most cherished friendships. Another slice of Baltimore life from Waters, perhaps his cheeriest yet, with doggedly likable characters in some of the unlikeliest settings. [R] ▼●●

Pedestrian, The (1974-German) C-97m. ½ D: Maximilian Schell. Gustav Rudolf Sellner, Peter Hall, Maximilian Schell, Gila von Weitershausen. Excellent award-winner examines death and guilt, when successful industrialist Sellner is revealed to have been a Nazi officer who participated in the slaughter of a Greek village. Veteran actresses Elisabeth Bergner, Françoise Rosay, Lil Dagover and Peggy Ashcroft appear in one scene. [PG] ▼

Peeper (1975) C-87m. *½ D: Peter Hyams. Michael Caine, Natalie Wood, Kitty Winn, Thayer David, Liam Dunn, Dorothy Adams. Tepid take-off of '40s detective dramas with Caine becoming involved with a weird family while trying to locate the long-lost daughter of his client. Best bit: the opening credits, recited by Bogart impersonator Guy Marks. Aka FAT CHANCE. Panavision. [PG] ●

Peeping Tom (1960-British) C-101m. ***

D: Michael Powell. Carl Boehm, Moira Shearer, Anna Massey, Maxine Audley, Brenda Bruce, Martin Miller. Sensational film—denounced in 1960—went on to develop a fervent following; personal feelings will dictate your reaction to story of psychopathic murderer who photographs his victims at the moment of death. Originally released in the U.S. at 86m. Director Powell plays the father of Boehm in the home-movie sequences. ▼●●

Pee-wee's Big Adventure (1985) C-90m. ½ D: Tim Burton. Pee-wee Herman (Paul Reubens), Elizabeth Daily, Mark Holton, Diane Salinger, Tony Bill, Cassandra Peterson, James Brolin, Morgan Fairchild, Jan Hooks, Phil Hartman. A live-action cartoon (directed by former animator Burton) featuring the cartoonish Pee-wee, a nine-year-old boy in a grown-up's body. Some real laughs and clever ideas as Pee-wee searches for his stolen bicycle, but not enough to sustain a feature-length film. Best sequence: the tour of the Alamo. Wonderful music by Danny Elfman. [PG] ▼●●

Peggy Sue Got Married (1986) C-104m. ½ D: Francis Coppola. Kathleen Turner, Nicolas Cage, Barry Miller, Catherine Hicks, Joan Allen, Kevin J. O'Connor, Jim Carrey, Lisa Jane Persky, Barbara Harris, Don Murray, Maureen O'Sullivan, Leon Ames, Helen Hunt, John Carradine, Sofia Coppola, Sachi Parker. 43-year-old woman, on the verge of divorce, magically travels back in time to her senior year in high school and has to deal with (among other things) her boyfriend and future husband. Turner's radiant star power bolsters this pleasant, often wistful film, whose script leaves far too many plot threads dangling. Cage's annoying performance as the boyfriend is another debit. [PG-13] ▼●●

Peking Opera Blues (1986-Hong Kong) C-104m. ½ D: Tsui Hark. Lin Ching-Hsia, Sally Yeh, Cherie Chung, Mark Cheng, Po-chih Leong. Marvelously entertaining adventure yarn, set in 1913 China, which follows three women who become entangled with revolutionary guerrillas. Dazzling mix of comedy, drama, action, and incredible stunts, all set at a breathless pace by Hark. Proves you can make 'em like they used to, but not (perhaps) in America. ▼

Pelican Brief, The (1993) C-141m.  D: Alan J. Pakula. Julia Roberts, Denzel Washington, Sam Shepard, John Heard, Tony Goldwyn, James B. Sikking, William Atherton, Robert Culp, Stanley Tucci, Hume Cronyn, John Lithgow, Anthony Heald, Cynthia Nixon, Jake Weber. Entertaining thriller based on John Grisham's best-selling book about a law student whose theory (or brief) about the conspiracy behind the assassination of two Supreme Court justices places her in jeopardy. The only person who can help her: investigative reporter Washington. Well cast (with Julia a perfect pick for the lead) and well crafted, though the suspense starts to peter out toward the finish. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Pelle the Conqueror (1988-Danish-Swedish) C-150m. ½ D: Bille August. Max von Sydow, Pelle Hvenegaard, Erik Paaske, Kristina Törnqvist, Morten Jorgensen. Wonderful 19th-century drama about a humble old widower (von Sydow) and his young son Pelle (Hvenegaard), Swedish immigrants in Denmark. They are simple folk with simple, modest dreams, yet they must valiantly struggle for survival in a world rife with everyday cruelties and injustices. The life-sustaining closeness between father and son is especially poignant. Martin Andersen Nexø's four-volume novel (only a fraction of which is depicted here) was adapted by the director. Oscar winner as Best Foreign Film. [PG-13] ▼●●

Pendulum (1969) C-106m. ½ D: George Schaefer. George Peppard, Jean Seberg, Richard Kiley, Charles McGraw, Madeleine Sherwood, Robert F. Lyons, Marj Dusay, Isabel Sanford, Dana Elcar. Half-baked whodunit has intriguing aspects but leaves too many loose ends, as police captain Peppard is suddenly accused of murder. Smoothly done, with flashy role for Sherwood as mother of young criminal, good score by Walter Scharf, but no great shakes. [M] ▼●●

Penelope (1966) C-97m. *½ D: Arthur Hiller. Natalie Wood, Ian Bannen, Dick Shawn, Peter Falk, Jonathan Winters, Lila Kedrova, Lou Jacobi, Jerome Cowan. Neglected Nat robs her husband's bank of $60,000 in this quite unfunny comedy; Winters' bit lasts only three minutes. Panavision.

Penelope (2008-U.S.-British) C-103m.  D: Mark Palansky. Christina Ricci, James McAvoy, Catherine O'Hara, Peter Dinklage, Richard E. Grant, Reese Witherspoon, Simon Woods, Ronni Ancona, Russell Brand. Modern-day fairy tale about a girl who—due to an ancient family curse—is born with a pig snout for a nose. Her mother—afraid of scandal and humiliation—raises her in isolation. Now, at age 28, she interviews prospective husbands, who will receive a handsome dowry if they can stand looking at Penelope. Slim but funny and sweet, for noncynics and the young at heart. Clearly filmed in England with a mixed cast of Americans and Brits doing U.S. accents. Witherspoon (who coproduced) has a small role as a street-savvy woman who befriends Penelope. Super 35. [PG] ▼

Penitentiary (1979) C-99m. ½ D: Jamaa Fanaka. Leon Isaac Kennedy, Thommy Pollard, Hazel Spears, Badja Djola, Gloria Delaney, Chuck Mitchell. Predictable but impassioned prison film, produced, directed and written by Fanaka, about a young black man (Kennedy) wrongly accused and imprisoned who improves his lot by boxing. Hard-hitting look at corruption, violence and homosexuality of daily prison life. Followed by several sequels. [R]▼

Penitentiary II (1982) C-103m. BOMB D: Jamaa Fanaka. Leon Isaac Kennedy, Ernie Hudson, Mr. T., Glynn Turman, Peggy Blow, Malik Carter, Cephaus Jaxon, Marvin Jones. Atrocious, disappointing sequel, with Kennedy back in prison and the ring. Leon Isaac plays "Too Sweet," the villain's name is "Half Dead," the viewer is "Ripped Off." [R]▼

Penitentiary III (1987) C-91m. *½ D: Jamaa Fanaka. Leon Isaac Kennedy, Anthony Geary, Steve Antin, Ric Mancini, Kessler Raymond, Jim Bailey. An improvement over number II—but that's not saying very much. Here, Kennedy is back in jail, where both warden and mob kingpin want him for their boxing teams. Silly and mindless time killer. [R]▼

Penn & Teller Get Killed (1989) C-90m.  D: Arthur Penn. Penn Jillette, Teller, Caitlin Clarke, David Patrick Kelly, Jon Cryer, Christopher Durang, Leonardo Cimino, Celia McGuire. The bad boys of magic, guesting on a nationally televised talk show, touch off gore galore when partner Penn speculates how much fun life might be if some viewer would attempt to kill him. Barely released effort does have the courage of some sicko comic convictions. [R]▼

Pennies From Heaven (1936) 81m. ½ D: Norman Z. McLeod. Bing Crosby, Edith Fellows, Madge Evans, Donald Meek, Louis Armstrong. Minor but pleasant Crosby vehicle about a self-styled troubadour and drifter who befriends orphaned girl (Fellows) and her grandfather (Meek). Bing's rendition of title tune is classic.▼

Pennies From Heaven (1981) C-107m.  D: Herbert Ross. Steve Martin, Bernadette Peters, Christopher Walken, Jessica Harper, Vernel Bagneris, John McMartin, Jay Garner, Tommy Rall. A unique, remarkable film, parts of which are greater than the whole. Dennis Potter adapted his own British TV miniseries about a sheet-music salesman during the Depression whose restless, unhappy life is sharply contrasted with cheery songs of the day. Stunning 1930s-style musical numbers (set to original recordings) clash with bleak, Edward Hopper-esque vision of the period. The mixture is intellectually provocative, but troubling as entertainment. Beautifully photographed by Gordon Willis and designed by Ken Adam. [R]▼

Penny Serenade (1941) 118m. ½ D: George Stevens. Irene Dunne, Cary Grant, Beulah Bondi, Edgar Buchanan, Ann Doran, Eva Lee Kuney. Quintessential soap opera, with Dunne and Grant as couple who adopt baby after their unborn baby dies. A wonderful tearjerker; scripted by Morrie Ryskind, from Martha Cheavens' story. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼

Penthouse (1933) 90m. ½ D: W. S. Van Dyke. Warner Baxter, Myrna Loy, Charles Butterworth, Mae Clarke, C. Henry Gordon. Terrific comedy-melodrama, with Baxter as criminal lawyer who enlists the help of sprightly call-girl Loy to nail a crime kingpin. A neglected gem. Remade as SOCIETY LAWYER.●

People I Know (2003) C-95m. *½ D: Dan Algrant. Al Pacino, Ryan O'Neal, Kim Basinger, Téa Leoni, Richard Schiff, Robert Klein, Bill Nunn, Mark Webber, Paulina Porizkova, Andrew Davoli, David Marshall Grant, Jon Hendricks. Tedious portrait of a once-powerful N.Y.C. press agent who's operating on fumes, with one remaining client, movie star O'Neal, who has him do his dirty work. Story lurches into unexpected territory as Pacino steps on the wrong toes in a world where high-level politics and show business collide. Even Pacino can't bring life to this film. Scripted by playwright Jon Robin Baitz. Completed in 2001. [R]▼

People Next Door, The (1970) C-93m.  D: David Greene. Deborah Winters, Eli Wallach, Julie Harris, Stephen McHattie, Hal Holbrook, Cloris Leachman, Rue McClanahan, Nehemiah Persoff. JP Miller's adaptation of his TV play has dated pretty badly; Wallach and Harris' hand-wringing concern over their junkie teenage daughter now seems stiff, and Winters' overacting just the opposite. Good cast and intentions, but there are many other, better films on the topic. [R]▼

People That Time Forgot, The (1977-British) C-90m. ½ D: Kevin Connor. Patrick Wayne, Doug McClure, Sarah Douglas, Dana Gillespie, Thorley Walters, Shane Rimmer. OK sequel to THE LAND THAT TIME FORGOT. Wayne leads a party back to mysterious island in 1919 to find friend McClure, lost three years before. Based on Edgar Rice Burroughs' book, film has some pretty fierce monsters, though special effects are erratic. [PG]▼

People Under the Stairs, The (1991) C-102m. *½ D: Wes Craven. Brandon Adams, Everett McGill, Wendy Robie, A. J. Langer, Ving Rhames, Sean Whalen. Hoping to help his ailing mother and prevent their eviction from a ghetto slum, 13-year-old Adams finds himself trapped in the bizarre home of their insane, murderous landlords, McGill and Robie. Very strange horror movie (with occasional comedy touches) turns out to be a social parable about the exploitation of the Have-Nots by the Haves. Ambitious but extremely uneven. [R]▼●●

People Vs. Larry Flynt, The (1996) C-127m. ½ D: Milos Forman. Woody Harrelson, Courtney Love, Edward Norton, Brett Harrelson, Donna Hanover, James Cromwell, Crispin Glover, Vincent Schiavelli, James Carville, Richard Paul, Oliver Reed, Miles Chapin. Engrossing saga of an unlikely American "hero": controversial, self-proclaimed smut peddler Larry Flynt, who starts Hustler magazine in the 1970s and quickly discovers that he must fight for freedom of speech in order to keep it on the newsstands. Harrelson is perfect as the mercurial, unpredictable publisher, Love is just right as his loyal but unconventional wife, and Norton is excellent as his long-suffering lawyer. Climactic showdown at the Supreme Court is a dramatic powerhouse. Screenplay by Scott Alexander and Larry Karaszewski. The real Flynt appears briefly as a Cincinnati judge. Panavision. [R]▼●●

People Will Talk (1951) 110m. ½ D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Cary Grant, Jeanne Crain, Finlay Currie, Walter Slezak, Hume Cronyn, Sidney Blackmer, Margaret Hamilton. Genuinely offbeat, absorbing comedy-drama of philosophical doctor Grant, who insists on treating his patients as human beings; a small-minded colleague (Cronyn) is intimidated by his radical approach to doctoring and sets out to defame him. Fine cast in talky but most worthwhile film, which features obvious parallels to the then-current HUAC investigation and McCarthy witchhunt.▼

Pepe (1960) C-157m. BOMB D: George Sidney. Cantinflas, Dan Dailey, Shirley Jones, 35 guest stars. Incredibly long, pointless film wastes talents of Cantinflas and many, many others (Edward G. Robinson, Maurice Chevalier, etc.). This one's only if you're desperate. Originally released at 195m. CinemaScope.

Pepe Le Moko (1937-French) 95m. * D: Julien Duvivier. Jean Gabin, Mireille Balin, Gabriel Gabrio, Lucas Gridoux. Gabin is magnetic (in role that brought him international prominence) as gangster who eludes capture in Casbah section of Algiers, until he is lured out of hiding by a beautiful woman. Exquisitely photographed and directed; faithfully remade the following year as ALGIERS, later musicalized as CASBAH. 9m. originally cut from U.S. release has now been restored.▼

Pepi, Luci, Bom (1980-Spanish) C-80m. *½ D: Pedro Almodóvar. Carmen Maura, Felix Rotaeta, Olvido Gara, Eva Siva. Almodóvar's initial feature is the story of

Pepi (Maura), an heiress/rape victim who becomes an advertising executive; meanwhile, housewife Luci (Siva), whose husband had raped Pepi, leaves him and commences a lesbian relationship with Bom (Gara), a rock singer. Raunchy and outrageous, but poorly made and devoid of laughs. Aka PEPI, LUCI, BOM AND THE OTHER GIRLS and PEPI, LUCI, BOM AND OTHER GIRLS LIKE MOM.▼

Peppermint Soda (1977-French) C-97m.  D: Diane Kurys. Eleanore Klarwein, Odile Michel, Coralie Clement, Marie-Veronique Maurin. Sensitive, keenly realized autobiographical (by Kurys, who also scripted) examination of early adolescence, complete with disciplinarian teacher, parents' divorce, menstrual cramps, first love. Followed by COCKTAIL MOLOTOV; same theme reworked by Kurys 13 years later in C'EST LA VIE. [PG]▼

Percy (1971-British) C-100m. *½ D: Ralph Thomas. Hywel Bennett, Denholm Elliott, Elke Sommer, Britt Ekland, Cyd Hayman, Janet Key. Bennett receives the world's first penis transplant and, curious, sets out to learn about its previous owner. Some interesting points could've been made, but Thomas apparently thought he was making a Carry On film; too bad. Followed by PERCY'S PROGRESS. [R]▼

Perez Family, The (1995) C-112m. ½ D: Mira Nair. Marisa Tomei, Anjelica Huston, Alfred Molina, Chazz Palminteri, Trini Alvarado, Celia Cruz, Diego Wallraff, Angela Lanza, Ranjit Chowdhry, Ellen Cleg-horne, Jose Felipe Padron, Lazaro Perez, Vincent Gallo. Cuban plantation owner, imprisoned for twenty years, is finally released in 1980 and allowed to join the boat migration to Florida, where he yearns to see his wife and daughter; along the way he meets a fiery young woman who has no ties but longs for a better life in America. Meandering comedy-drama has some pleasant and poignant moments, but never quite takes off. Strongest asset: Tomei's strong, sexy (and convincing) performance. Adapted by Robin Swicord from Christine Bell's novel. [R]▼●●

Perfect (1985) C-120m. *½ D: James Bridges. John Travolta, Jamie Lee Curtis, Jann Wenner, Anne De Salvo, Stefan Gierasch, Laraine Newman, Marilu Henner, David Paymer. Rolling Stone reporter Travolta is writing an exposé of L.A. health clubs but finds himself attracted to aerobics instructor Curtis, whom he's about to trash in print. A smug, overlong, misguided, miscast movie, with hints of intelligent intentions; written by Bridges and reporter Aaron Latham. Real-life Rolling Stone editor Wenner plays himself. Wait till you hear John and Jamie Lee expound on Emersonian values! Panavision. [R]▼●●

Perfect Couple, A (1979) C-110m. *****
D: Robert Altman. Paul Dooley, Marta Heflin, Titos Vandis, Belita Moreno, Henry Gibson, Dimitra Arliss, Alan Nicholls, Ted Neeley. Offbeat but endearing romantic comedy about unlikely match-up (by computer dating) of straitlaced Dooley, under the thumb of his overbearing father, and singer Heflin, whose life is wrapped up with her familial rock group. Enjoyable music by Neeley's ad hoc group Keepin' 'em Off the Streets. [PG]◆

Perfect Friday (1970-British) 94m. *****
D: Peter Hall. Stanley Baker, Ursula Andress, David Warner, Patience Collier, T.P. McKenna. Staid bank employee Baker decides to break loose, and plans daring heist, with beautiful Andress and her oddball husband Warner in cahoots. Entertaining caper movie with some delicious twists. [R]

Perfect Furlough, The (1958) C-93m. ½

Perfect Holiday, The (2007) C-96m. ****
D: Lance Rivera. Morris Chestnut, Gabrielle Union, Queen Latifah, Terrence Howard, Malik Hammond, Charlie Murphy, Khail Bryant, Faizon Love. Lightweight romantic comedy with fantasy overtones, about a divorced mom (Union) whose young daughter (Bryant) helps her connect with Mr. Right—a would-be songwriter (Chestnut) working as a department-store Santa—just in time for Christmas. Murphy (Eddie's real-life brother) is a hoot as Union's ex-husband, a flamboyant rap singer. Super 35. [PG]◆

Perfectly Normal (1990-Canadian-British) C-106m. ****
D: Yves Simoneau. Robbie Coltrane, Michael Riley, Deborah Duchene, Kenneth Welsh, Eugene Lipinski. Slight, peculiar comedy about "perfectly normal" guy (Riley) who meets obnoxious restaurateur (Coltrane) with a shady past. Using Riley's inheritance, they open an Italian bistro where the waiters sing opera. Mild farce is too sluggish and awkward. Cowritten by Lipinski. Inventive photography by Alain Dostie. Video version runs 106m. [R]▼

Perfect Man, The (2005) C-100m. BOMB
D: Mark Rosman. Hilary Duff, Heather Locklear, Chris Noth, Mike O'Malley, Caroline Rhea, Carson Kressley, Dennis DeYoung, Aria Wallace, Vanessa Lengies, Ben Feldman. With a cast of TV stalwarts, including teen pop star Duff, this treacly romantic comedy may find an audience on the small screen, but even the most undemanding viewer might prefer having dental work to sitting through this not-so-perfect movie. Hackneyed plot finds Duff inventing the so-called perfect guy for her loser-in-love mom. When the plan works, she has to produce the mythical hunk and, well, let the hi-jinks begin! [PG]▼◆

Perfect Murder, A (1998) C-105m. *****
D: Andrew Davis. Michael Douglas, Gwyneth Paltrow, Viggo Mortensen, David Suchet, Sarita Choudhury, Constance Towers, Novella Nelson. Entertaining suspense yarn which adds a few interesting twists to DIAL M FOR MURDER. Douglas is the cold-blooded husband who hires someone to kill his wife—but this time, the man he hires is her lover! The stars are perfectly cast, and the story unfolds in slick and skillful fashion. Paltrow is a perfect '90s stand-in for Grace Kelly. [R]▼◆◆

Perfect Score, The (2004) C-97m. ****
D: Brian Robbins. Chris Evans, Erika Christensen, Bryan Greenberg, Scarlett Johansson, Darius Miles, Leonardo Nam, Matthew Lillard. A perfect heist is the plan hatched by six high school seniors looking to steal the answers to the upcoming SAT. How fortunate the corporate headquarters of the Educational Testing Service is located in their hometown! John Hughes' films of the '80s did teen-angst comedy better, although ringleader Evans underplays admirably. Real-life NBA star Miles has a role that mirrors his own career. [PG-13]▼◆

Perfect Specimen, The (1937) 97m. ½
D: Michael Curtiz. Errol Flynn, Joan Blondell, Hugh Herbert, Edward Everett Horton, Dick Foran, May Robson, Beverly Roberts, Allen Jenkins. Fairly amusing whimsy about super-rich Flynn, who's kept locked up and sheltered by grandmother Robson until vivacious Blondell comes crashing through his fence and they go off on a whirlwind courtship.

Perfect Storm, The (2000) C-129m. ½
D: Wolfgang Petersen. George Clooney, Mark Wahlberg, John C. Reilly, Diane Lane, William Fichtner, John Hawkes, Allen Payne, Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, Karen Allen, Cherry Jones, Bob Gunton, Christopher McDonald, Michael Ironside. Hard-luck skipper of a Gloucester, Mass., fishing boat roasts his crew on short notice to go for a big haul . . . just as three brutal storms converge off the coast. Adaptation of Sebastian Junger's best-selling book inspired by the real-life 1991 "storm of the century" is drenched with special effects and noisy, exciting seagoing action, but its characters and story points are bathed in cliché. Panavision. [PG-13]▼◆

Perfect Stranger (2007) C-109m. ****
D: James Foley. Halle Berry, Bruce Willis, Giovanni Ribisi, Richard Portnow, Gary Dourdan, Florencia Lozano, Nicki Aycox, Kathleen Chalfant, Gordon MacDonald, Daniella Van Graas, Paula Miranda, Patti D'Arbanville, Clea Lewis. Muckraking undercover reporter Berry, frustrated by a setback on a major story, takes on a more personal investigation after a girlhood friend of hers is murdered. Her high-tech pal Ribisi helps trace e-mails

that point to high-profile ad exec Willis as a likely suspect, so Berry gets a job working for him, hoping to get close. She does. Slick thriller gets sicker as it goes along, leading up to a revelation you can't see coming—because it doesn't make much sense. The camera makes love to Berry in this one. Super 35. [R]●

Perfect Strangers (1945) SEE: Vacation From Marriage

Perfect Strangers (1950) 88m. ½ D: Bretagne Windust. Ginger Rogers, Dennis Morgan, Thelma Ritter, Margalo Gillmore, Paul Ford, Alan Reed. Rogers and Morgan are jury members who fall in love; engaging romance story.

Perfect Weapon, The (1991) C-85m. *½ D: Mark DiSalle. Jeff Speakman, John Dye, Mako, James Hong, Mariska Hargitay, Dante Basco, Seth Sakai. The Korean mob makes a very stupid move: they kill the Asian mentor of an American "weapon" with revenge on his mind. Indistinguishable from other martial-arts/vengeance sagas, which is certainly the least of its problems; to keep things simple, Speakman's character (a loner) is named Jeff. [R]▼●

Perfect World, A (1993) C-137m.  D: Clint Eastwood. Kevin Costner, Clint Eastwood, Laura Dern, T. J. Lowther, Keith Szarabjka, Leo Burmester, Paul Hewitt, Bradley Whitford, Ray McKinnon, Jennifer Griffin, Bruce McGill. A prison escapee (Costner) in 1963 Texas takes young boy along with him as hostage, though they quickly build a relationship; meanwhile, an iconoclastic Texas Ranger (Eastwood) tries to pick up the convict's trail. Something new in screen entertainment: A manhunt movie with no urgency and no suspense. In its place are some interesting character vignettes and a lot of moral ambiguity. Costner, however, is commanding, in an unusually forceful performance. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Performance (1970-British) C-105m.  D: Donald Cammell, Nicolas Roeg. James Fox, Mick Jagger, Anita Pallenberg, Michele Breton, Ann Sidney, John Burdon. Not for all tastes, but a bizarre and unique film; Jagger's performance of "Memo from Turner" a highlight. [R—edited from original X rating]▼●●

Perfumed Nightmare, The (1977-Filipino) C-93m. ½ D: Kidlat Tahimik. Kidlat Tahimik, Dolores Santamaria, Georgette Baudry, Katrin Muller, Harmut Lerch. Surreal, whimsical, thoroughly original fable of an idealistic young Filipino (played by the director), fascinated by American culture and technology, and his awakening to the disadvantages of "progress" while in Paris. Crammed with striking images and a dazzling soundtrack.▼

Perfume: The Story of a Murderer (2006-German-French-Spanish) C-147m.

½ D: Tom Tykwer. Ben Whishaw, Dustin Hoffman, Alan Rickman, Rachel Hurd-Wood, Karoline Herfurth, David Calder, Simon Chandler, Sian Thomas, Jessica Schwarz, Corinna Harfouch; narrated by John Hurt. In 18th-century France, a mistreated foundling has a wretched childhood. As an adult his amazing sense of smell leads him to work for an Italian perfumer (Hoffman), then to strange adventures as he obsessively tries to create the ultimate scent. Unfortunately, this requires the murders of a series of women for their aromatic essence. Strange not-quite-horror movie manages to be both passionate and remote, engrossing and uninvolved, as the lead character is impossible to identify with. Lavishly produced. From a novel by Patrick Süskind. Super 35. [R]●

Perils of Gwendoline in the Land of the Yik Yak, The (1984-French) C-88m. BOMB D: Just Jaekin. Tawny Kitaen, Brent Huff, Zabou, Bernadette Lafont, Jean Rougerie. Idiotic adaptation of erotic French comic strip, seemingly a RAIDERS OF THE LOST ARK spoof, with virginal Kitaen searching for her long-lost dad. Lots of nudity, little else. Alternate director's cut, called GWENDOLINE, runs 105m. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Perils of Pauline, The (1947) C-96m.  D: George Marshall. Betty Hutton, John Lund, Constance Collier, Billy de Wolfe, William Demarest. Lively, entertaining musical-comedy purports to be biography of silent-screen heroine Pearl White, but isn't; energetic Hutton, good Frank Loesser songs, colorful atmosphere, and presence of silent-film veterans make up for it... until sappy denouement.▼

Perils of Pauline, The (1967) C-99m.  D: Herbert Leonard, Joshua Shelley. Pamela Austin, Pat Boone, Terry-Thomas, Edward Everett Horton, Hamilton Camp. Cutesy expanded TV pilot. Boone travels the globe seeking childhood sweetheart Austin; overlton, mainly for kids.

Period of Adjustment (1962) 112m.  D: George Roy Hill. Tony Franciosa, Jane Fonda, Jim Hutton, Lois Nettleton, John McGiver, Jack Albertson. Newlyweds (Fonda and Hutton) try to help troubled marriage of Nettleton and Franciosa, in this heartwarming comedy based on a Tennessee Williams play. Engaging performers make the most of both comic and tender moments.▼

Permanent Midnight (1998) C-85m. ½ D: David Veloz. Ben Stiller, Elizabeth Hurley, Maria Bello, Owen Wilson, Lourdes Benedicto, Peter Greene, Cheryl Ladd, Fred Willard, Charles Fleischer, Janeane Garofalo, Connie Nielsen, Sandra Oh. Adequate film of TV writer Jerry Stahl's drug-abuse-packed memoirs, showing how—for a while—he was able to maintain professional productivity while making a fool of himself at parties and acting irresponsibly toward the British woman he marries (Hurley) so she can obtain a U.S. visa. Bello plays the hotel bed-mate to whom he unloads his past in the subplot that frames the story, and Stahl himself appears as a doctor. Inevitably episodic. [R]▼●●

Permanent Record (1988) C-91m.  D: Marisa Silver. Alan Boyce, Keanu Reeves, Michelle Meyrink, Jennifer Rubin, Pamela Gidley, Michael Elgart, Richard Bradford, Barry Corbin, Kathy Baker. Teen drama packs a wallop in tale of model student Boyce whose unexpected suicide throws high school classmates and officials into turmoil: if he went that route, who's safe? Subtle treatment by Silver of a pressing social problem, aided by excellent cast, especially Reeves as Boyce's underachieving pal. [PG-13]▼●●

Permission to Kill (1975-British) C-96m.  D: Cyril Frankel. Dirk Bogarde, Ava Gardner, Bekim Fehmiu, Timothy Dalton, Frederic Forrest. Fascinating exposé of spying as dirty business. Bogarde, spy chief of "Western Intelligence Liaison," tries to prevent Fehmiu, head of "National Freedom Party" from returning to his dictator-controlled country. Beautiful, exciting production. [PG]▼

Perri (1957) C-75m.  D: N. Paul Kenworthy, Jr., Ralph Wright. Narrated by Winston Hibler. Unusual Disney film combines elements of BAMBI with True-Life nature photography, in a romanticized look at a squirrel through the cycle of four seasons in the forest. Based on Felix Salten's book.●

Persecution (1974-British) C-92m. *½ D: Don Chaffey. Lana Turner, Trevor Howard, Ralph Bates, Olga Georges-Picot. Overwrought, disjointed thriller with Lana as monstrous cat-loving mother of Bates, whom she torments his entire life. Slow, unpleasant, and unintentionally hilarious. Aka THE TERROR OF SHEBA and THE GRAVEYARD. [PG]▼

Persepolis (2007-French-U.S.) C/B&W-95m. ½ D: Marjane Satrapi, Vincent Paronnaud. Voices of Catherine Deneuve, Chiara Mastroianni, Danielle Darrieux, Simon Abkarian, Gabrielle Lopes, François Jerosme. Remarkable animated feature from Satrapi's autobiographical graphic novels about growing up in Iran under the shah's regime in the 1970s (from a child's-eye point of view), then enduring the dehumanizing effect subsequent governments have on a comfortable way of life. Handsomely stylized film uses animation as few artists ever have to tell a highly personal story; starkly dramatic yet also disarmingly funny. One of a kind. English-language version features the voices of Deneuve, Mastroianni, Gena Rowlands, Sean Penn, and Iggy Pop. [PG-13]●

Persona (1966-Swedish) 81m. ½ D: Ingmar Bergman. Bibi Andersson, Liv Ullmann, Gunnar Bjornstrand, Margaretha Krook. Actress Ullmann withdraws and becomes mute, is cared for by nurse Andersson; their minds and personalities switch. Haunting, poetic, for discerning viewers; also shown at 85m. and 90m.▼●●

Personal Best (1982) C-124m. ½ D: Robert Towne. Mariel Hemingway, Scott Glenn, Patrice Donnelly, Kenny Moore, Jim Moody, Larry Pennell. Athletes Hemingway and Donnelly have lesbian relationship while training for the 1980 Olympics. Annoying direction—too many close-ups of feet—but scores touchdowns galore when dealing with feelings, and women's relationship to manipulative coach Glenn. Perceptive, sensitive performance by Hemingway. Directing debut for top screenwriter Towne. [R]▼●

Personal Property (1937) 84m. ½ D: W. S. Van Dyke II. Jean Harlow, Robert Taylor, Una O'Connor, Reginald Owen, Cora Witherspoon. Taylor stiffly maneuvers through a series of masquerades, and finally courts Harlow in this MGM fluff. Remake of 1931 film THE MAN IN POSSESSION.▼

Personal Services (1987-British) C-105m. ½ D: Terry Jones. Julie Walters, Alec McCowen, Danny Schiller, Shirley Stelfox, Victoria Hardcastle, Tim Woodward, Dave Atkins. Naive working woman stumbles into a career as a madam, and becomes bolder as business prospers. Bittersweet comedy, based on the real experiences of Cynthia Payne, is unabashedly adult, but uneven in tone. Benefits from a terrific performance by Walters. Written by David Le-land. Payne's earlier years are dramatized in WISH YOU WERE HERE. [R]▼●●

Personals, The (1981) C-88m.  D: Peter Markle. Bill Schoppert, Karen Landry, Paul Eiding, Michael Laskin, Vickie Dakil. Sweet, lovable—but also honest, realistic—little comedy about what happens when recently divorced, slightly balding Schoppert places a personal ad. Perhaps a bit too much extraneous footage, but still it works nicely, and "Shelly" is a riot. Filmed independently, in Minneapolis. [PG]▼

Personal Velocity (2002) C-86m.  D: Rebecca Miller. Kyra Sedgwick, Parker Posey, Fairuza Balk, David Warshofsky, Brian Tarantina, Tim Guinee, Wallace Shawn, Joel De La Fuente, Ron Leibman, Ben Shenkman, Lou Taylor Pucci, Seth Gilliam, David Patrick Kelly, Patti D'Arbanville; narrated by John Ventimiglia. Three vignettes about women at turning points in their lives: Sedgwick has to decide whether or not to walk out on an abusive marriage; Posey puts her marriage at risk while advancing her career; Balk chooses to help an

aimless young man, but pays a price for her concern. Miller (daughter of playwright Arthur) adapted her own short stories for this insightful and satisfying film; shot on digital video. [R] ▼

Persuasion (1995-British-U.S.-French) C-107m.  D: Roger Michell. Amanda Root, Ciarán Hinds, Susan Fleetwood, Corin Redgrave, Fiona Shaw, John Woodvine, Phoebe Nicholls, Samuel West, Sophie Thompson, Judy Cornwell, Felicity Dean. A young woman has never recovered from her break with a dashing but impoverished sailor whom she was advised to turn away. Seven years later, they meet again in the midst of a tumultuous period in which her family tries to adjust to poverty. A lovingly crafted, beautifully acted adaptation of Jane Austen, this film demands patience but provides ample rewards. Impeccable yet understated period detail brings early-19th-century England to life. Made for British TV. [PG] ▼

Pest, The (1997) C-82m. *½ D: Paul Miller. John Leguizamo, Jeffrey Jones, Edoardo Ballerini, Freddy Rodriguez, Tammy Townsend, Joe Morton, Aries Spears. In a manic performance that makes Jim Carrey look like Ben Kingsley, Leguizamo plays a con artist with a unique talent for transforming himself into just about every type of persona. Soon he finds himself pursued by a variety of whacked-out bad guys. Poor showcase for star/cowriter Leguizamo. [PG-13] ▼

Pete Kelly's Blues (1955) C-95m. ½ D: Jack Webb. Jack Webb, Janet Leigh, Edmond O'Brien, Peggy Lee, Andy Devine, Lee Marvin, Jayne Mansfield, Ella Fitzgerald, Martin Milner. Realistic to the point of tedium. Re-creates the 1920s jazz age and musicians involved. Cast perks goings-on, despite Webb. Peggy Lee, in a rare dramatic role, was nominated for an Academy Award. CinemaScope. ▼

Pete 'n' Tillie (1972) C-100m. ½ D: Martin Ritt. Walter Matthau, Carol Burnett, Geraldine Page, Barry Nelson, Rene Auberjonois, Lee H. Montgomery, Henry Jones, Kent Smith. Slick comedy-drama has its moments as wry bachelor Matthau laconically woos and marries Burnett. Later turn to melodrama doesn't work, however, and supporting characters Page and Auberjonois don't make sense. Enough good points for innocuous entertainment; adapted by Julius J. Epstein from Peter de Vries' Witch's Milk. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Peter Pan (1924) 102m.  D: Herbert Brenon. Betty Bronson, Ernest Torrence, Anna May Wong, Mary Brian, Virginia Brown Faire, Esther Ralston, Cyril Chadwick, Philippe De Lacey. Delightful adaptation of the James M. Barrie classic about the boy who can fly and never wants to grow up, and his adventures as he soars away with Wendy Darling and her brothers to Never Neverland. Bronson makes the role of Peter all her own in this charming fantasy. ▼

Peter Pan (1953) C-77m.  D: Hamilton Luske, Clyde Geronimi, Wilfred Jackson. Voices of Bobby Driscoll, Kathryn Beaumont, Hans Conried, Bill Thompson, Heather Angel, Paul Collins, Candy Candido, Tom Conway. Delightful Walt Disney cartoon feature of the classic James M. Barrie story, with Peter leading Wendy, Michael, and John Darling to Neverland, where they do battle with Captain Hook and his band of pirates. Musical highlight: "You Can Fly," as the children sail over the city of London. Followed in 2002 by RETURN TO NEVERLAND. ▼

Peter Pan (2003-U.S.-Australian) C-113m.  D: P.J. Hogan. Jason Isaacs, Jeremy Sumpter, Rachel Hurd-Wood, Richard Briers, Olivia Williams, Lynn Redgrave, Ludvine Sagnier, Geoffrey Palmer, Harry Newell, Freddie Popplewell; narrated by Saffron Burrows. Handsomely filmed adaptation of the James M. Barrie classic about the boy who won't grow up. Starts off promisingly, but adds new ideas that don't necessarily benefit the story (do we really need to see Captain Hook's severed arm?), and winds up plodding instead of soaring. Kids who've never experienced the magic of earlier stage, film, and TV productions may think this is fine—but they don't know what they're missing. Panavision. [PG] ▼

Peter Rabbit and Tales of Beatrix Potter (1971-British) C-90m. ½ D: Reginald Mills. Beautiful ballet film with Royal Ballet Company tells the adventures of several creatures that live by the pond; interesting version of Beatrix Potter tales. British title: TALES OF BEATRIX POTTER. [G] ▼

Peter's Friends (1992-British) C-100m. ½ D: Kenneth Branagh. Kenneth Branagh, Emma Thompson, Rita Rudner, Stephen Fry, Hugh Laurie, Imelda Staunton, Alphonsia Emmanuel, Tony Slattery, Alex Lowe, Richard Briers. A collegiate musical troupe's weekend reunion, after ten years, sparks feelings of love, envy, anger, and self-doubt. Glibly described as a British BIG CHILL, it stands on its own, filled with honest humor, heartache, and finely etched performances. Thompson is a standout as the group nerd, and Rudner (who also wrote this with real-life husband Martin Bergman) is very funny as a self-absorbed Hollywood star. Thompson's mother, actress Phyllida Law, turns in a fine performance as the housekeeper. ▼

tive dragon. Endearing animated "monster" almost makes up for the live actors' tire-some mugging. Another try for MARY POPPINS magic that doesn't come close. Some prints run 121m.; the 1985 reissue was further cut to 104m. [G]▼●●

Pete's Meteor (1998-Irish) C-103m. *½ D: Joe O'Byrne. Brenda Fricker, Alfred Molina, Mike Myers, John Kavanagh, Ian Costello, Dervla Kirwan, Gavin Dowdall. Myers plays a dramatic part (with an Irish brogue) in this peculiar, poorly written movie about three orphaned kids being raised by their grandmother. When a meteor lands in their backyard, they think it's been sent by their parents from the heavens, so they object when nerdy scientist Molina claims it for study. The film's central character, the oldest boy (Costello), is so off-putting that he makes watching the film a trial. Released direct to video in 2002. [R]▼●

Petrified Forest, The (1936) 83m. ½ D: Archie Mayo. Leslie Howard, Bette Davis, Dick Foran, Humphrey Bogart, Genevieve Tobin, Charley Grapewin, Porter Hall. Solid adaptation of Robert Sherwood play, focusing on ironic survival of the physically fit in civilized world. Bogart is Duke Mantee, escaped gangster, who holds writer Howard, dreamer Davis, and others hostage at roadside restaurant in Arizona. Stagy, but extremely well acted and surprisingly fresh. Howard and Bogart recreate their Broadway roles. Scripted by Charles Kenyon and Delmer Daves. Remade as ESCAPE IN THE DESERT. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Pet Sematary (1989) C-102m. BOMB D: Mary Lambert. Dale Midkiff, Fred Gwynne, Denise Crosby, Brad Greenquist, Michael Lombard, Blaze Berdahl, Miko Hughes. Couple is shocked to discover that danger lurks for their kids just outside a newly purchased rural home; aside from a spooked adjacent pet cemetery, they somehow failed to notice that semis roar down their front-yard highway every 90 seconds or so. A box-office hit whose contempt for its audience was sensed even by undiscriminating moviegoers. Stephen King, who has a cameo as a minister, scripted from his own best-seller. Followed by a sequel. [R]▼●●

Pet Sematary II (1992) C-100m. BOMB D: Mary Lambert. Edward Furlong, Anthony Edwards, Clancy Brown, Jared Rushton, Darlante Fluegel, Sarah Trigger, Lisa Waltz, Jason McGuire. The son of an accidentally killed horror-movie actress discovers the pet cemetery that brings the dead back to life, causing the same kind of gore and horror as in the first film. Brown is a hoot as a resurrected sheriff, but the movie is mean-spirited and gruesome, much worse than the original BOMB! [R]▼●●

Petty Girl, The (1950) C-87m. ½ D: Henry Levin. Robert Cummings, Joan Caulfield, Elsa Lanchester, Melville Cooper, Mary Wickes, Tippi Hedren. Mild comedy of pin-up artist George Petty (Cummings) falling for prudish Caulfield; Lanchester steals every scene she's in.

Petulia (1968) C-105m. * D: Richard Lester. Julie Christie, George C. Scott, Richard Chamberlain, Shirley Knight, Arthur Hill, Joseph Cotten, Pippa Scott, Kathleen Widdows, Richard Dysart, Austin Pendleton, Rene Auberjonois, The Grateful Dead, Big Brother and the Holding Company. Brilliant film, set against mid-'60s San Francisco scene, about recently divorced doctor and his relationship with unhappily married kook. Terrific acting, especially by Scott and Knight, in one of decade's top films; script by Lawrence B. Marcus. From John Haase's novel Me and the Arch Kook Petulia. [R]▼●●

Peyton Place (1957) C-157m. ½ D: Mark Robson. Lana Turner, Hope Lange, Arthur Kennedy, Lloyd Nolan, Lee Phillips, Terry Moore, Russ Tamblyn, Betty Field, David Nelson, Mildred Dunnock, Diane Varsi, Bary Coe, Leon Ames, Lorne Greene. Grace Metalious's once-notorious novel receives Grade A filming. Soap opera of life behind closed doors in a small New England town boasts strong cast, fine Franz Waxman score. Original running time: 162m. Sequel: RETURN TO PEYTON PLACE. Later a hit TV series. CinemaScope.▼●●

Phaedra (1962-U.S.-French-Greek) 115m.  D: Jules Dassin. Melina Mercouri, Anthony Perkins, Raf Vallone, Elizabeth Erey. Mercouri, wife of shipping magnate Vallone, has an affair with stepson Perkins. Well acted and directed; inspired by Euripides' Hippolytus.

Phantasm (1979) C-87m. *½ D: Don Coscarelli. Michael Baldwin, Bill Thornbury, Reggie Bannister, Kathy Lester, Angus Scrimm. Two dull brothers take on a flying object that punctures skulls and a creepy cemetery worker whose ties are so thin he belongs playing "Louie, Louie" at a 1964 prom. Followed by three sequels. [R]▼●●

Phantasm II (1988) C-90m. *½ D: Don Coscarelli. James Le Gros, Reggie Bannister, Angus Scrimm, Paula Irvine, Samantha Phillips, Kenneth Tigar. Bigger-budgeted sequel to the 1979 cult success is similar—psychic teenagers experiencing recurring nightmarish visions of The Tall Man (Scrimm)—only with more graphic and unrelenting gore. [R]▼●●

Phantasm III (1994) C-91m. *½ D: Don Coscarelli. Reggie Bannister, A. Michael Baldwin, Angus Scrimm, Bill Thornbury, Gloria Lynne Henry, Kevin Connors, Cindy Ambuehl, John Chandler, Brooks Gardner. More flying silver spheres, cannibal gnomes, stolen bodies, explosions, and The Tall

Man—still doesn't make much sense. The end is especially unsatisfying, with limp humor, unnecessary sex scenes, and amateurish acting. Followed by another video sequel. [R]▼●●

Phantom, The (1996-U.S.-Australian) C-101m.  D: Simon Wincer. Billy Zane, Kristy Swanson, Treat Williams, Catherine Zeta Jones, James Remar, Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa, Casey Siemaszko, Samantha Eggar, Patrick McGeehan. Lead-footed emulation of Saturday matinee serials, using Lee Falk's masked comic-strip hero ("the ghost who walks"), who starred in a bona fide serial in 1943. His longtime attempt to vanquish a society of evil puts him face-to-face with megalomaniac Xander Drax (a campy Williams). Well-meaning INDIANA JONES wannabe has no energy and offers large-scale stunts without knowing how to stage them! Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Phantom Lady (1944) 87m. ½ D: Robert Siodmak. Ella Raines, Franchot Tone, Alan Curtis, Thomas Gomez, Elisha Cook, Jr., Fay Helm, Andrew Tombes, Regis Toomey. First-rate suspense yarn of innocent man (Curtis) framed for murder of his wife. Secretary Raines seeks real killer with help of Curtis' best friend (Tone) and detective (Gomez). Sexual innuendo in drumming scene with Cook is simply astonishing—the solo was reportedly dubbed by Buddy Rich. Based on a Cornell Woolrich novel; screenplay by Bernard C. Schoenfeld. ▼

Phantom of Liberty, The (1974-French) C-104m. ½ D: Luis Buñuel. Jean-Claude Brialy, Adolfo Celi, Michel Piccoli, Monica Vitti. A dreamlike comedy of irony, composed of surreal, randomly connected anecdotes. Highlighted is a dinner party, in which the openness of eating and the privacy of defecating are reversed, and a sequence in which adults fret over a young girl's disappearance—even though she remains present all along. Phantom of Terror, The SEE: Bird With the Crystal Plumage, The

Phantom of the Opera, The (1925) 98m. ½ D: Rupert Julian. Lon Chaney, Mary Philbin, Norman Kerry, Snitz Edwards, Gibson Gowland. Classic melodrama with Chaney as the tortured composer who lives in the catacombs under the Paris Opera House, and kidnaps young Philbin as his singing protégée. Famous unmasking scene still packs a jolt, and the Bal Masque is especially impressive in two-color Technicolor. One of Chaney's finest hours. Most prints are of the 1929 reissue version, but the original is available on DVD; running times vary. Remade several times, and transformed into a Broadway musical. ▼●●

Phantom of the Opera (1943) C-92m.  D: Arthur Lubin. Claude Rains, Susanna Foster, Nelson Eddy, Edgar Barrier,

Jane Farrar, Miles Mander, J. Edward Bromberg, Hume Cronyn, Fritz Leiber, Leo Carrillo, Steven Geray, Fritz Feld. First talkie version of venerable melodrama often has more opera than Phantom, but Rains gives fine, sympathetic performance as disfigured composer worshipping young soprano Foster. Oscar winner for Cinematography (Hal Mohr and W. Howard Greene) and Art Direction. ▼●●

Phantom of the Opera, The (1962-British) C-84m.  D: Terence Fisher. Herbert Lom, Heather Sears, Thorley Walters, Edward DeSouza, Michael Gough, Miles Malleon. Lom stars in this third screen version of the story. It's more elaborate than most Hammer horror films, but also more plodding, with only occasional moments of terror. ▼●●

Phantom of the Opera, The (1989) C-90m. *½ D: Dwight H. Little. Robert Englund, Jill Schoelen, Alex Hyde-White, Billy Nighy, Stephanie Lawrence, Terence Harvey. Good-looking but gory, slow-moving remake, shot in Budapest but set in London. Changes to Gaston Leroux's novel are no improvements; instead of a mask, the Phantom stitches dead flesh onto his scarred face and has made a deal with the devil. He's still killing people to advance the career of a chosen singer. No chandelier, either. Englund ("Freddy Krueger") ranges from effective to hammy as the Phantom. [R]▼●●

Phantom of the Opera, The (1999-Italian) C-99m.  D: Dario Argento. Julian Sands, Asia Argento, Andrea Di Stefano, Nadia Rinaldi, Coralina Cataldi Tassoni, Istvan Bubik. Argento's gory and erotic take on the classic tale with Sands as the mysterious phantom, who, in this version, is abandoned in the sewer below the opera house as an infant and raised by a loving family of rats! The director's daughter plays the beautiful young singer with whom he becomes obsessed. Disappointingly routine and unimaginative, with only a few of the director's expected flamboyant flourishes. [R]▼●

Phantom of the Opera, The (2004-British) C-142m. ½ D: Joel Schumacher. Gerard Butler, Emmy Rossum, Patrick Wilson, Miranda Richardson, Minnie Driver, Simon Callow, Ciarán Hinds. Overproduced adaptation of Andrew Lloyd Webber's stage musical with unnecessary additions: a superfluous flashback framing device and a "backstory" for the Phantom. The singing is fine, Rossum positively glows as Christine, major numbers like "The Music of the Night" are beautifully done, but Webber and Schumacher subscribe to the "more is more" school of entertainment, alas. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●

Phantom of the Paradise (1974) C-92m.  D: Brian De Palma. Paul Williams, William Finley, Jessica Harper, George

Memmoli, Gerrit Graham. Effective rock version of . . . OPERA, with Finley out for revenge against producer (Williams, miscast but not bad) who stole his songs. A flop in its time—it was sold as a spoof—but now finding a cult; ironically, many of the “weird” rock performers (including Graham as “Beef”) seem pretty tame alongside some of today’s artists. Williams also composed the score, and Sissy Spacek was the set decorator! [PG]▼●●

Phantom of the Rue Morgue (1954) C-84m.  D: Roy Del Ruth. Karl Malden, Claude Dauphin, Patricia Medina, Steve Forrest, Allyn Ann McLerie, Erin O’Brien-Moore. Remake of MURDERS IN THE RUE MORGUE suffers from Malden’s hamminess in the equivalent of Lugosi’s role, plus little real atmosphere. On the other hand, there is Merv Griffin as a college student! Originally in 3-D.▼

Phantoms (1998) C-95m. ½ D: Joe Chappelle. Peter O’Toole, Joanna Going, Rose McGowan, Liev Schreiber, Ben Affleck, Clifton Powell, Nicky Katt. Sisters are frightened to find a Rocky Mountain town totally deserted, except for a few dead bodies; sheriff Affleck shows up to help, followed by scientist O’Toole. The answer is a mysterious underground monster from the beginning of time: intelligent, deadly, and amorphous. Not-bad thriller with good performances, astute use of locations, and some suspenseful scenes. Adapted from his own novel by Dean R. Koontz. Aka DEAN KOONTZ’S PHANTOMS. [R]▼●●

Phantom Tollbooth, The (1969) C-90m.  D: Chuck Jones, Abe Levitow (animation); David Monahan (live-action). Butch Patrick, and voices of Hans Conried, Mel Blanc, Candy Candido, June Foray, Les Tremayne, Daws Butler. Unusual animated feature (the first for both Jones and MGM), based on Norton Juster’s book about bored little boy who enters strange world where letters and numbers are at war. A bit sophisticated for the Saturday matinee crowd, and the songs are pretty icky, but still quite worthwhile, especially for Jones fans. [G]▼●

Phar Lap (1983-Australian) C-108m.  D: Simon Wincer. Tom Burlinson, Martin Vaughan, Judy Morris, Ron Leibman, Celia de Burgh, Vincent Ball. Entertaining chronicle of champion New Zealand-born racehorse Phar Lap, who suddenly and mysteriously died in 1933 in America. Nicely directed and acted; Down Under, the story is now a legend. Reedited for U.S. release from original 118m. Panavision. [PG]▼

Phase IV (1974) C-86m. ½ D: Saul Bass. Nigel Davenport, Lynne Frederick, Michael Murphy, Alan Gifford, Helen Horton, Robert Henderson. Feature directing debut of famed title-maker Bass is visually stunning but rather incomprehensible science fiction about colony of super-intelligent ants (normal-sized, for a change) running rampant at a lonely scientific outpost. Difficult, but not without its rewards. [PG]▼●●

Phat Beach (1996) C-99m.  D: Doug Ellin. Jermaine “Huggy” Hopkins, Brian Hooks, Eric Fleeks, Alma Collins, Claudia Kaleem, Jennifer Lucienne, Coolio, Gregg D. Vance, Tre Black, Tiny “Zeus” Lister, Jr. A wannabe writer (Hopkins) dreams of meeting the perfect girl at the beach, so he heads off to the surf with his best friend. Hopkins’ earnest, charming performance saves this from being a typical hit-the-beach and hit-on-the-girls film. Coolio and Y?N- Vee perform on-screen. [R]▼●●

Phat Girlz (2006) C-99m. *½ D: Nnegeest Likké. Mo’Nique, Jimmy Jean-Louis, Godfrey, Kendra C. Johnson, Jack Noseworthy, Joyful Drake, Eric Roberts. Self-indulgent, sloppily made comedy about a full-figured wannabe fashion designer (Mo’Nique). As she struggles to deal with her issues in a weight-conscious culture, she is pursued by a hunky Nigerian doctor who is attracted to plus-sized women. Supposedly well-intentioned exploration of the importance of accepting who you are and how you look is shrill, one-note, and wallows in nastiness. [PG-13]●

Phenix City Story, The (1955) 100m.  D: Phil Karlson. John McIntire, Richard Kiley, Kathryn Grant (Crosby), Edward Andrews. Fast-paced exposé film, compactly told, with realistic production, fine performances as lawyer returns to corrupt hometown, tries to do something about it. Sometimes shown without 13m. prologue.

Intriguing, humanistic story has ordinary-guy Travolta struck by a bolt of light that transforms him into a genius . . . a “blessing” that turns out to be a curse. Unfortunately, it heads nowhere and takes its sweet time getting there. Beautiful Northern California setting and lovely Thomas Newman score support Travolta’s empathic performance . . . all for naught. Long, slow, and squishy in the center. Remade for TV in 2003 but titled PHENOMENON II. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Joanne Woodward, Roger Corman, John Bedford Lloyd, Anna Deavere Smith, Tracey Walter, Obba Babatundé, Kathryn Witt, Bradley Whitford. Up-and-coming lawyer Hanks is battling AIDS; when he's fired from his prosperous Main Line Philadelphia law firm (for trumped-up reasons), he decides to bring suit. The only lawyer who'll take his case: ambulance-chaser Washington, who doesn't like gays. Well-meaning, mainstream look at AIDS and American homophobia succeeds as a tract but falls short as drama. Hanks is terrific in an Oscar-winning performance, but we don't know anything about him, or his lover (Banderas); his Norman Rockwellian family is (alas) too good to be true. That's the Rev. Robert Castle (subject of Demme's documentary COUSIN BOBBY) as Hanks' father. Bruce Springsteen also won an Oscar for Best Song, "Streets of Philadelphia." [PG-13] ▼●●

Philadelphia Experiment, The (1984) C-102m. ½ D: Stewart Raffill. Michael Paré, Nancy Allen, Eric Christmas, Bobby Di Cicco, Kene Holliday. Sailor on WW2 ship falls through a hole in time and winds up in 1984. Just entertaining enough to cover production flaws and some gaping story holes. Followed by a sequel. [PG] ▼●●

Philadelphia, Here I Come (1975) C-95m. ½ D: John Quedsted. Donal McCann, Des Cave, Siobhan McKenna, Eamon Kelly, Fidelma Murphy, Liam Redmond. Brian Friel adapted his stage play about a young man and his alter ego who debate whether or not he should leave his dreary Irish home town and join an aunt in Philadelphia, U.S.A. Filmed on location; fine performances. ▼

Philadelphia Story, The (1940) 112m. * D: George Cukor. Cary Grant, Katharine Hepburn, James Stewart, Ruth Hussey, John Howard, Roland Young, John Halliday, Virginia Weidler, Mary Nash, Henry Daniell, Hillary Brooke. Talky but brilliant adaptation of Philip Barry's hit Broadway comedy about society girl who yearns for down-to-earth romance; Grant is her ex-husband, Stewart a fast-talking (!) reporter who falls in love with her. Entire cast is excellent, but Stewart really shines in his offbeat, Academy Award-winning role. Donald Oden Stewart's script also earned an Oscar. Later musicalized as HIGH SOCIETY. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Phobia (1980-Canadian) C-90m. BOMB D: John Huston. Paul Michael Glaser, Susan Hogan, John Colicos, David Bolt, Patricia Collins, David Eisner. Absolutely terrible film about psychiatrist whose patients, suffering from various phobias, are being murdered one by one. Relentlessly stupid, illogical, and unpleasant. [R] ▼

Phoebe in Wonderland (2008) C-96m.

 D: Daniel Barnz. Elle Fanning, Felicity Huffman, Patricia Clarkson, Bill Pullman, Campbell Scott, Bailee Madison, Austin Williams, Teala Dunn, Maddie Corman. Young girl seems to live in her own world, but finds a safe haven acting in a school production of Alice in Wonderland for an artsy drama teacher (Clarkson). At the same time, her mother (Huffman) is torn between trying to finish a thesis on Alice and committing to parenting. Ambitious drama plumbs some remarkably deep emotions, especially for a film with a 9-year-old leading lady (Fanning, who's amazing). Excellent score by Christophe Beck. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼

Phoenix (1997) C-107m.  D: Danny Cannon. Ray Liotta, Anjelica Huston, Anthony LaPaglia, Daniel Baldwin, Jeremy Piven, Kari Wuhrer, Xander Berkeley, Tom Noonan, Giancarlo Esposito, Giovanni Ribisi, Brittany Murphy. Gambling-addicted Arizona cop Liotta, deeply in debt to a bookie, hatches a heist with his three corrupt cop buddies to rip off a local loan shark, but naturally things unravel in typical B-movie fashion. Stylishly made neo-noir boasts a superior cast but is sunk by repellent characters and a depressingly derivative, post-modern Tarantino-esque script. Premiered on cable a year before 1998 theatrical release. Panavision. [R] ▼

Phone Booth (2003) C-80m. *½ D: Joel Schumacher. Colin Farrell, Kiefer Sutherland, Forest Whitaker, Radha Mitchell, Katie Holmes, Richard T. Jones, Keith Nobbs, Josh Pais, Tia Texada, Paula Jai Parker. Farrell gives a tour de force performance in this extremely annoying film about a pushy, street hustler-style publicist who picks up a phone on 8th Avenue in Manhattan and finds himself trapped there—literally and psychologically—by a maniacal caller. Larry Cohen's story makes no sense whatsoever, so the film's only value is as an exercise, and on that level it runs out of steam pretty quickly. Super 35. [R] ▼

Phone Call From a Stranger (1952) 96m.

 D: Jean Negulesco. Bette Davis, Shelley Winters, Gary Merrill, Michael Rennie, Keenan Wynn, Evelyn Varden, Warren Stevens, Beatrice Straight, Craig Stevens. Engrossing narrative of Merrill, survivor of a plane crash, visiting families of various victims. ▼

Phynx, The (1970) C-92m. BOMB D: Lee H. Katzin. A. Michael Miller, Ray Chippeway, Dennis Larden, Lonny Stevens, Lou Antonio, Mike Kellin, Joan Blondell, George Tobias, Richard Pryor. A way-off-base satire about a rock group (Miller, Chippeway, Larden, Stevens) recruited to spy behind Iron Curtain and the kidnapping of America's pop-culture heroes (in cameos, Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall, Guy Lombardo, Joe Louis, Johnny Weissmuller, Col. Sanders, Ruby Keeler, Xavier Cugat, Dick Clark, George Jessel, and many others). Diehards may want to see some of these stars, but it's hardly worth it. [M/PG] Physical Evidence (1989) C-99m. *½ D: Michael Crichton. Burt Reynolds, Theresa Russell, Ned Beatty, Kay Lenz, Ted McGinley, Tom O'Brien. Boring drama with Reynolds going through the paces as a tough cop who's been suspended from the force, and is now the prime suspect in a murder case. Russell is badly miscast as a public defender who takes up his cause. [R] ▼●●

π (1998) 85m. ½ D: Darren Aronofsky. Sean Gullette, Mark Margolis, Ben Shenkman, Pamela Hart, Stephen Pearlman, Ajay Naidu. An obsessed math genius thinks the orderliness of numbers may be able to conquer the stock market or determine God's identity, yet his own disordered life finds him at the brink of madness. Filmed in inky 16mm black and white for around $60,000, this attention-getter is a true original. Well acted by a no-name cast and, we hope, a harbinger of things to come from filmmaker Aronofsky. Cowritten by the director, Eric Watson, and leading actor Gullette. [R] ▼●●

Piaf—The Early Years (1974-U.S.-French) C-104m. ½ D: Guy Casaril. Brigitte Ariel, Pascale Christophe, Guy Trejan, Pierre Vernier, Jacques Duby, Anouk Ferjac. Maddeningly uneven depiction of the early life and career of the legendary singer. Fascinating subject matter, good Ariel performance and great music, but melodramatic and sloppily directed. Based on the best-selling book by Simone Berteau, Piaf's half-sister (played here by Christophe). Unreleased in America until 1982. [PG]

Pianist, The (2002-French-German-Polish-British) C-148m. ½ D: Roman Polanski. Adrien Brody, Thomas Kretschmann, Frank Finlay, Maureen Lipman, Emilia Fox, Ed Stoppard, Julia Rayner, Jessica Kate Meyer, Ruth Platt. Emotionally draining story of Polish pianist Wladyslaw Szpilman and his too-fantastic-to-be-anything-but-true life during WW2, beginning in Warsaw during 1939. Devastating in its portrayal of casual Nazi atrocities, but overwhelming in its depiction of survival against all rational obstacles. Brody is splendid as Szpilman, a difficult and essentially passive role. Director Polanski revisits personal memories of his own life with this film. Screenplay by Ronald Harwood, based on Szpilman's memoirs, published in 1946. Oscar winner for Best Director, Actor (Brody), and Adapted Screenplay. [R] ▼●

Piano, The (1993-New Zealand-French) C-121m. ½ D: Jane Campion. Holly Hunter, Harvey Keitel, Sam Neill, Anna Paquin, Kerry Walker, Geneviève Lemon, Tungia Baker, Ian Mune. Haunting, unpredictable tale of love and sex told from a woman's point of view. In the late 19th century, a Scottish woman, her illegitimate daughter (Paquin), and her beloved piano arrive in remote New Zealand for an arranged marriage to farmer Neill. Then headstrong Hunter (who has been mute since childhood) strikes a bargain with moody neighbor Keitel (a Maori convert) involving the piano that leads to eye-opening consequences for the entire community. Writer-director Campion has fashioned a highly original fable, showing the tragedy and triumph erotic passion can bring to one's daily life. Hunter and Paquin both won Oscars for their performances, Campion for her screenplay. [R] ▼●●

Piano Teacher, The (2001-French-Austrian) C-130m. ½ D: Michael Haneke. Isabelle Huppert, Benoît Magimel, Annie Girardot, Anna Sigalevitch, Susanne Lothar. Magnificent, and decidedly adult, study of a middle-aged musician's psyche and her disturbing personal and professional relationships. Huppert has the role of her career as a woman with unusual views on intimacy and sex; costar Magimel matches her intensity. Harrowing and haunting, but not entirely humorless. Scripted by the director, from Elfriede Jelinek's 1983 novel. ▼

Picasso Summer, The (1969) C-90m. *½ D: Serge Bourguignon. Albert Finney, Yvette Mimieux. Boring, rambling tale of young couple so enamored by paintings that they take European vacation to find Picasso himself. Animated sequence midway can stand on its own. Based on the Ray Bradbury story. [M/PG]

Picasso Trigger (1989) C-99m.  D: Andy Sidaris. Steve Bond, Dona Speir, John Aprea, Hope Marie Carlton, Harold Diamond, Roberta Vasquez, Guich Kooch, Bruce Penhall. Harmless, low-budget James Bond-like thriller with U.S. agent Bond tracking assassin Aprea, who uses fish (from a painting he admires) as his emblem. Sequel to HARD TICKET TO HAWAII and MALIBU EXPRESS has usual mix of action and T&A, and some peculiar gadgets (a killer crutch?). [R] ▼●

Picking up the Pieces (2000) C-95m.  D: Alfonso Arau. Woody Allen, Maria Grazia Cucinotta, Cheech Marin, David Schwimmer, Kiefer Sutherland, Alfonso Arau, Sharon Stone, Andy Dick, Fran Drescher, Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Elliott Gould, Lupe Ontiveros, Lou Diamond Phillips, Pepe Serna, Kathy Kinney, Tony Plana, Richard Sarafian, Danny de la Paz, Mia Maestro. A butcher who's hacked his wife into pieces flees to a New Mexico town, where the woman's hand becomes a focal point of worship—and ballyhoo. Whimsical black comedy is an almost total misfire, but the stellar cast maintains interest. Made for

theaters but U.S. debut was on cable. Univision. ▼

Pickle, The (1993) C/B&W-103m. *½ D: Paul Mazursky. Danny Aiello, Dylan Cannon, Clotilde Courau, Shelley Winters, Barry Miller, Jerry Stiller, Chris Penn, Little Richard, Jodi Long, Rebecca Miller, Stephen Tobolowsky, Caroline Aaron, Ally Sheedy, Spalding Gray, Griffin Dunne, Isabella Rossellini, Dudley Moore, Donald Trump. Misfire about an aging, self-involved film director (Aiello) who's in desperate need of a hit, and whose most recent credit is a sci-fi epic about an overgrown pickle. The Turkey would be a more apt title for this opus, scripted by Mazursky, who also has a cameo. [R] ▼

Pickpocket (1959-French) 75m. ½ D: Robert Bresson. Martin Lasalle, Marika Green, Kassagi, Pierre Leymarie, Jean Pélégri, Dolly Scal, Pierre Etaix. A petty thief finds himself inexorably attracted to a life of crime and spurns a woman's love to become a professional pickpocket. One of Bresson's great films, a brilliantly shot and edited minimalist portrait of the criminal as an existentialist. Paul Schrader borrowed the moving finale for the end of AMERICAN GIGOLO. ▼

Pickup (1951) 78m. *½ D: Hugo Haas. Beverly Michaels, Hugo Haas, Allan Nixon, Howland Chamberlin, Jo Carroll Dennison. First of writer-producer-director-actor Haas' tawdry low-budget melodramas is a kind of poor man's THE POSTMAN ALWAYS RINGS TWICE, with gold digger Michaels marrying aging railroad inspector thinking he's got lots of dough. Not as enjoyably bad as Hugo's later efforts.

Pick-up Artist, The (1987) C-81m. *½ D: James Toback. Molly Ringwald, Robert Downey (Jr.), Dennis Hopper, Danny Aiello, Mildred Dunnock, Harvey Keitel, Brian Hamill, Vanessa Williams, Victoria Jackson, Polly Draper, Robert Towne, Lorraine Bracco, Bob Gunton. Womanizing youth meets his match when he falls for the daughter of a boozy gambler in hock to the mob. Standard Toback lowlives integrated into a conventionally romantic framework. Dismal, dour, and deadeningly dull. [PG-13] ▼

Pickup on 101 (1972) C-93m.  D: John Florea. Jack Albertson, Lesley Ann Warren, Martin Sheen, Michael Ontkean, Hal Baylor, George Chandler. Coed who wants to be liberated hits the road with rock musician and friendly hobo in this inoffensive melodrama. Video title: WHERE THE EAGLE FLIES. [PG] ▼

Pickup on South Street (1953) 80m. ½ D: Samuel Fuller. Richard Widmark, Jean Peters, Thelma Ritter, Richard Kiley, Murvyn Vye, Milburn Stone. Pickpocket Widmark inadvertently acquires top-secret microfilm, and becomes target for espionage agents. Tough, brutal, well-made film, with superb performance by Ritter as street

peddler who also sells information. Story by Dwight Taylor; screenplay by the director. Remade as THE CAPE TOWN AFFAIR. ▼

Pickwick Papers, The (1952-British) 109m.  D: Noel Langley. James Hayter, James Donald, Hermione Baddeley, Kathleen Harrison, Hermione Gingold, Joyce Grenfell, Alexander Gauge, Lionel Murton, Nigel Patrick, Harry Fowler, Donald Wolfitt. Flavorful adaptation of Dickens' classic about observations of English society by members of the Pickwick Club. ▼

Picnic at Hanging Rock (1975-Australian) C-110m.  D: Peter Weir. Rachel Roberts, Dominic Guard, Helen Morse, Jacki Weaver, Vivean Gray, Margaret Nelson, Anne (Louise) Lambert. Moody, atmospheric film set in 1900 about three schoolgirls and their teacher who mysteriously disappear during an outing one sunny day. Eerie and richly textured by director Weir; based on a novel by Joan Lindsay. Reedited by Weir in 1998; that version is about 7m. shorter. [PG] ▼

Picture Bride (1994-Japanese) C-95m.  D: Kayo Hatta. Youki Kudoh, Akira Takayama, Tamlyn Tomita, Cary-Hiroyuki Togawa, Toshiro Mifune. A young Japanese woman trying to leave her unhappy past behind travels to Hawaii in the early 1900s as a "picture bride," but soon finds that her new married life is a lot different than she imagined it would be. Slow-moving but engrossing study of the pioneer spirit in Hawaii. Mifune has a nice cameo as a silent-film narrator. [PG-13] ▼

Picture Mommy Dead (1966) C-88m. ½ D: Bert I. Gordon. Don Ameche, Martha Hyer, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Signe Hasso, Susan Gordon. Hokey melodrama with Hyer newly married to Ameche, battling stepdaughter Gordon, possessed by late mother's spirit. ▼

Picture of Dorian Gray, The (1945) 110m. ½ D: Albert Lewin. George Sanders, Hurd Hatfield, Donna Reed, Angela Lansbury, Peter Lawford, Lowell Gilmore; narrated by Cedric Hardwicke. Haunting Oscar Wilde story of man whose painting ages while he retains youth. Young Lansbury is poignant, singing "The Little Yellow Bird" (and her real-life mother Moyna MacGill is the Duchess). Sanders leaves indelible impression as elegant heavy. Several color inserts throughout the film. Harry Stradling's cinematography won an Oscar. Remade in 1970 as DORIAN GRAY and for TV in 1974, with Nigel Davenport. ▼●●

Picture Perfect (1997) C-100m.  D: Glenn Gordon Caron. Jennifer Aniston, Jay Mohr, Kevin Bacon, Olympia Dukakis, Ileana Douglas, Kevin Dunn, Faith Prince, Anne Twomey. Cute starring vehicle for Aniston, as an up-and-comer in the advertising world who invents a fiancé to become more the kind of person her boss wants working for him. Then she has to hire a guy to act the part at a business dinner, and things get complicated. Barely credible romantic comedy is little more than an excuse to showcase Aniston's appeal—but quite watchable on that basis. [PG-13] ▼●●

Picture Show Man, The (1977-Australian) C-99m.  D: John Power. Rod Taylor, John Meillon, John Ewart, Harold Hopkins, Patrick Cargill, Judy Morris. Meandering tale of a traveling showman in 1920s Australia who brings moving pictures to small towns throughout the country. A lovely idea (based on the memoirs of Lyle Penn) that has moments of charm and period atmosphere, but no story, and not much energy. Top-billed Taylor (an Aussie by birth) appears sporadically as Meillon's rival—from Texas! [PG]

Picture Snatcher (1933) 77m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. James Cagney, Ralph Bellamy, Alice White, Patricia Ellis, Ralf Harolde. Fast, funny, exciting little film based on true story of daring photographer who got taboo photo of woman in electric chair. Remade as ESCAPE FROM CRIME. ▽

Picture This: The Times of Peter Bogdanovich in Archer City, Texas (1992) C-57m.  D: George Hickenlooper. Absorbing documentary about filmmaker Bogdanovich's return to the scene of his first great success, THE LAST PICTURE SHOW, to make a sequel, TEXASVILLE. Cybill Shepherd, Jeff Bridges, Timothy and Sam Bottoms, Polly Platt, Randy Quaid, and others recall how the first film affected their lives (including some surprisingly candid revelations)—and townspeople compare Larry McMurtry's locally based fiction to their perception of the truth. ▼●●

Piece of the Action, A (1977) C-135m. ½ D: Sidney Poitier. Sidney Poitier, Bill Cosby, James Earl Jones, Denise Nicholas, Hope Clark, Tracy Reed, Titos Vandis, Ja'net DuBois. Third Poitier-Cosby teaming casts them as con men obliged to help social worker set ghetto kids on the right track. Typical comic crime material offset by serious, preachy moments. [PG] ▼▽

Pieces of April (2003) C-80m. ½ D: Peter Hedges. Katie Holmes, Patricia Clarkson, Derek Luke, Oliver Platt, Alison

Pill, John Gallagher, Jr., Sean Hayes, SisQo, Lillias White, Isiah Whitlock. Young woman living in a N.Y.C. apartment with her new boyfriend attempts to prepare Thanksgiving dinner for her dysfunctional family, but it's debatable as to who's more nervous about the impending get-together. Quirky and funny, as you'd expect from the writer of WHAT'S EATING GILBERT GRAPE and cocenarist of ABOUT A BOY, here making his feature directing debut, though the broader comedy doesn't always work alongside the simpler, more truthful moments. Clarkson is a standout as the flaky mother whose illness has made her even more mercurial than usual. [PG-13] ▼▽

Pied Piper, The (1942) 86m.  D: Irving Pichel. Monty Woolley, Roddy McDowall, Otto Preminger, Anne Baxter, Peggy Ann Garner. Woolley, not very fond of children, finds himself leading a swarm of them on chase from the Nazis. Entertaining wartime film scripted by Nunnally Johnson from a Nevil Shute novel. Remade for TV as CROSSING TO FREEDOM (1990, with Peter O'Toole).

Pied Piper, The (1972-British) C-90m. ½ D: Jacques Demy. Donovan, Donald Pleasence, Michael Hordern, Jack Wild, Diana Dors, John Hurt. Chilling story of piper who rids evil hamlet of rats. While originally conceived as children's tale, director Demy succeeds in weaving grimy portrait of the Middle Ages. [G] ▽

Pie in the Sky (1996) C-95m.  D: Bryan Gordon. Josh Charles, Anne Heche, John Goodman, Christine Lahti, Peter Riegert, Bob Balaban, Christine Ebersole, Wil Wheaton, Dey Young. Comedy about a helicopter traffic reporter who has as many problems sorting out his love life as he does with freeway gridlock. Romantic tale boasts an attractive (and impressive) cast that it almost completely wastes, although Heche is a wonderfully affecting leading lady. Perfect video fodder for your next traffic jam. [R] ▼●●

Pie in the Sky: The Brigid Berlin Story (2000) C/B&W-76m.  D: Shelly Dunn Fremont, Vincent Fremont. Absorbing documentary about the life and times of Brigid Berlin (aka Brigid Polk), the daughter of conservative Republican American aristocracy—her father was president of the Hearst Corporation—who became an Andy Warhol superstar in the 1960s. Revealing portrait of a rebellious daughter, obsessed with food and cleanliness, who becomes her parents' worst nightmare. Archival footage and recorded telephone conversations between Brigid and her disgusted patrician mother are fascinating. Among the talking heads are John Waters, Paul Morrissey, and (most intriguingly) Patty Hearst. ▼▽

Pierrepont (2005-British) C-95m.  D: Adrian Shergold. Timothy Spall, Juliet Stevenson, Eddie Marsan, Cavan Clerkin,

Christopher Fulford, Ian Shaw, Maggie Olerenshaw. Potent drama based on the life of Albert Pierrepoint, the most efficient hangman in England, from the 1930s to the 1950s. He views his work as a job and remains dispassionate—up to a point. Exceptional showcase for Spall, who imbues his character with a wide range of colors. Originally shown at film festivals as THE LAST HANGMAN. [R]◆

Pierrot le Fou (1965-French-Italian) C-110m.  D: Jean-Luc Godard. Jean-Paul Belmondo, Anna Karina, Dirk Sanders, Raymond Devus, Samuel Fuller, Jean-Pierre Léaud. Belmondo and Karina run away together to the South of France; he is leaving his rich wife, she is escaping her involvement with gangsters. Complex, confusing, but engrossing drama, which exudes an intriguing sense of spontaneity. Allegedly shot without a script; also shown at 90m. and 95m. Techniscope. ▼◆◆

Pigeon That Took Rome, The (1962) 101m. ½ D: Melville Shavelson. Charlton Heston, Elsa Martinelli, Harry Guardino, Baccaloni, Marietto, Gabriella Pallotta, Debbie Price, Brian Donlevy. Sometimes amusing WW2 comedy of Heston, behind enemy lines, using pigeons to send message to Allies, romancing local girl in whose home he is based. Panavision.

Piglet's Big Movie (2003) C-75m.  ½ D: Francis Glebas. Voices of John Fielder, Jim Cummings, Andre Stojka, Kath Soucie, Peter Cullen, Tom Wheatley. Winnie the Pooh and his pals set off in search of a depressed Piglet who has wandered into the woods believing he is too small to be of use to his friends. Leisured paced animated feature based on A. A. Milne's Pooh characters is moderately entertaining for young audiences and tolerable enough for their parents. Laid-back theatrical release, produced by Disney's direct-to-video division, comes to life during song sequences written and sung by Carly Simon. [G]▼◆

Pigskin Parade (1936) 93m.  D: David Butler. Stuart Erwin, Patsy Kelly, Jack Haley, Johnny Downs, Betty Grable, Arline Judge, Dixie Dunbar, Judy Garland, Anthony (Tony) Martin, Elisha Cook, Jr., Grady Sutton, The Yacht Club Boys. Entertaining college football musicocomedy with Erwin the hayseed who becomes a gridiron hero, Kelly the coach's wife who knows more about the game than the coach (Haley). Cook appears as an anarchy-spouting campus radical! Garland plays Erwin's kid sister, in her feature debut, and she swings "It's Love I'm After." Alan Ladd appears as a student, and sings with The Yacht Club Boys. ▼◆◆

Pillow Book, The (1996-British-Dutch-French) C-126m. ½ D: Peter Greenaway. Vivian Wu, Ewan McGregor, Yoshi Oida, Ken Ogata, Hideko Yoshida, Judy Ongg, Ken Mitsuishi. Sensual, if dramatically

exasperating, convolution about a young woman (Wu) who seeks revenge for wrongs perpetrated against her calligrapher father, who painted elaborate words and characters on her body during an unconventional childhood. Gorgeously shot by Sacha Vierny, film belatedly hits its stride with its heroine's romance with a doomed lover (McGregor), only to fade fatally during a grueling final half hour. Wu, though, is extraordinary, both as a character and a photographic subject. Super 35. ▼◆

Pillow Talk (1959) C-102m. ½ D: Michael Gordon. Doris Day, Rock Hudson, Tony Randall, Thelma Ritter, Nick Adams, Julia Meade, Allen Jenkins, Lee Patrick, William Schallert, Frances Sternhagen. Rock pursues Doris, with interference from Randall and sideline witticisms from Ritter. Imaginative sex comedy has two stars sharing a party line without knowing each other's identity. Fast-moving; plush sets, gorgeous fashions. Oscar-winning story and screenplay by Stanley Shapiro, Russell Rouse, Clarence Greene, and Maurice Richlin. CinemaScope. ▼◆◆

Pilot, The (1979) C-99m.  D: Cliff Robertson. Cliff Robertson, Diane Baker, Frank Converse, Dana Andrews, Milo O'Shea, Ed Binns, Gordon MacRae. Airline pilot who flies at the end of a bottle discovers that his world is collapsing. Predictable drama given a boost by Walter Lassally's spectacular aerial photography and John Addison's soaring (and seemingly misplaced) score. Video title: DANGER IN THE SKIES. Panavision. [PG]▼

Pilot #5 (1943) 70m. ½ D: George Sidney. Franchot Tone, Marsha Hunt, Gene Kelly, Van Johnson, Alan Baxter, Dick Simmons. GI pilot Tone volunteers to take on a suicide mission. As he flies to his death, his buddies recall his troubled past (including his involvement with a Huey Long-like governor). Good cast uplifts so-so curio; it's intriguing to see Kelly in a supporting part, as a morally bankrupt hot-head. Watch for Peter Lawford at the opening, and see if you can spot Ava Gardner.

its dealer (Franco). This impels Rogen and Franco to take it on the lam, pursued by two violent goons. Audacious comedy not only revives the pothead movie but goes on to spoof violent action films—in surprisingly vivid ways. Uneven but often ridiculously funny, with Franco scoring a bull's-eye as the ultimate stoner. Written by Rogen and Evan Goldberg, from a story they cowrote with producer Judd Apatow. Unrated version runs 118m. Super 35. [R]◆

Piñero (2001) C/B&W-103m. ½ D: Leon Ichaso. Benjamin Bratt, Giancarlo Esposito, Talisa Soto, Nelson Vasquez, Michael Irby, Michael Wright, Rita Moreno, Jaime Sanchez, Mandy Patinkin, Oscar Colon, Miriam Cruz, Robert Klein, Griffin Dunne. Kinetic, nonlinear biography of “Nuyorican” writer-poet Miguel Piñero, who used his prison experience to powerful effect in the award-winning play Short Eyes in the 1970s, but couldn't shake his drug habit or chronic irresponsibility. Bratt is magnetic and persuasive, but we still don't understand what made Piñero so self-destructive. Film's coproducer, Fisher Stevens, appears briefly. [R] ▼◆

Pink Cadillac (1989) C-122m.  D: Buddy Van Horn. Clint Eastwood, Bernadette Peters, Timothy Carhart, Tiffany Gail Robinson, Angela Louise Robinson, John Dennis Johnston, Geoffrey Lewis, William Hickey, James (Jim) Carrey. Harmless but off-the-cuff throwaway comedy about a bail-bond bounty hunter who helps the wife of his latest target rescue her kidnapped baby from the neo-Nazi associates of her weakling husband. No Edsel, but at two hours, seriously in need of a tuneup. Eastwood's uncharacteristically broad performance does more for the film than the film does for him. [PG-13] ▼◆◆

Pink Floyd—The Wall (1982-British) C-99m. ½ D: Alan Parker. Bob Geldof, Christine Hargreaves, James Laurenson, Eleanor David, Bob Hoskins. Visualization of Pink Floyd's somber best-selling album, about a rock star's mental breakdown, is perhaps the longest rock video to date, and certainly the most depressing. Many of the images are hypnotic, but self-indulgence, and a relentlessly downbeat theme, erode one's interest after a while. Striking animated sequences by Gerald Scarfe, who also designed the film. Aka THE WALL. Panavision. [R] ▼◆◆

Pink Jungle, The (1968) C-104m. ½ D: Delbert Mann. James Garner, Eva Renzi, George Kennedy, Nigel Green, Michael Ansara, George Rose. Offbeat blend of comedy and adventure with photographer Garner and model Renzi involved in diamond smuggling in South America. Film shifts gears too often, but provides light-hearted entertainment. Techniscope. ▼

Pink Panther, The (1964) C-113m. ½

D: Blake Edwards. Peter Sellers, David Niven, Capucine, Robert Wagner, Claudia Cardinale, Brenda DeBanzie, John Le-Mesurier, Fran Jeffries. Delightful caper comedy introduced bumbling Inspector Clouseau to the world (as well as the cartoon character featured in the opening titles), so obsessed with catching notorious jewel thief “The Phantom” that he isn't aware his quarry is also his wife's lover! Loaded with great slapstick and especially clever chase sequence; beautiful European locations, memorable score by Henry Mancini. Remade in 2006. Followed by A SHOT IN THE DARK. Technirama. ▼◆◆

Pink Panther, The (2006) C-93m.  D: Shawn Levy. Steve Martin, Kevin Kline, Beyoncé Knowles, Jean Reno, Emily Mortimer, Henry Czerny, Roger Rees, Kristin Chenoweth. As maladroit, oblivious French flic Inspector Clouseau, Steve Martin won't make anyone forget Peter Sellers. Plot doesn't amount to much: the Pink Panther diamond is lifted off the body of a soccer star in front of thousands of spectators. Still, at moments, the movie and Martin deliver the goods (the star also cowrote the script). What's lacking is the wacky grace and clever timing of Blake Edwards. There are a few surprise cameos, however. Followed by a sequel. [PG]◆

Pink Panther 2, The (2009) C-92m. *½ D: Harald Zwart. Steve Martin, John Cleese, Jean Reno, Emily Mortimer, Andy Garcia, Alfred Molina, Yuki Matsuzaki, Aishwarya Rai Bachchan, Lily Tomlin, Jeremy Irons, Johnny Hallyday. Second outing in Martin's updating of Blake Edwards' Inspector Clouseau character is burdened by so much cement whimsy that you'd almost guess its comic stylings were directed by Ethan Edwards from THE SEARCHERS. Fatigued farce deals with high-stakes serial thievery that begins with someone stealing the Magna Carta and eventually involves the Pope. Mortimer offers a sweet, light touch as Clouseau's unconfident not-quite-girlfriend, but most of the fine supporting cast is wasted. Cleese replaces Kevin Kline as Clouseau's beleaguered superior, Dreyfus. Martin coscripted. [PG]◆

Pink Panther Strikes Again, The (1976-British) C-103m. ½ D: Blake Edwards. Peter Sellers, Herbert Lom, Colin Blakely, Leonard Rossiter, Lesley-Anne Down, Burt Kwouk, Andre Maranne. Fifth PINK PANTHER is one of the funniest. Sellers' former boss (Lom) goes crazy, threatens to destroy the world with a ray-gun he has commandeered. Sellers' hilarious Inspector Clouseau is backed up by better-than-usual gags—with the usual number of pain-and-destruction jokes thrown in for good measure. Omar Sharif appears unbilled. Sequel: REVENGE OF THE PINK PANTHER. Panavision. [PG] ▼◆◆

Pinky (1949) 102m.  D: Elia Kazan. Jeanne Crain, Ethel Barrymore, Ethel Waters, Nina Mae McKinney, William Lundigan. Pioneer racial drama of black girl passing for white, returning to Southern home; still has impact, with fine support from Mmes. Waters and Barrymore. ▼

Pinocchio (1940) C-88m. * D: Ben Sharpsteen, Hamilton Luske. Voices of Dickie Jones, Christian Rub, Cliff Edwards, Evelyn Venable, Walter Catlett, Frankie Darro. Walt Disney's brilliant, timeless animated cartoon feature, based on the Collodi story about an inquisitive, tale-spinning wooden puppet who wants more than anything else to become a real boy. Technically dazzling, emotionally rich, with unforgettable characters and some of the scariest scenes ever put on film (Lampwick's transformation into a jackass, the chase with Monstro the whale). A joy, no matter how many times you see it. Songs include Oscar-winning "When You Wish Upon a Star." ▼

Pinocchio (2002-Italian) C-108m. *1/2 D: Roberto Benigni. Roberto Benigni, Nicoletta Braschi, Mino Bellei, Carlo Giuffrè, Peppe Barra, Franco Javarone, Max Cavallari. A carved wooden puppet comes to life as a mischievous boy who can't resist temptation of any kind. Benigni's interpretation of the beloved 1885 story by Carlo Collodi emerges as a test of one's tolerance for the bombastic comic actor. This was a big hit in Italy . . . but then, so was Mussolini. U.S. version was cut to 100m. and dubbed with Breckin Meyer (as Benigni) and a host of stars (Glenn Close, Queen Latifah, Eddie Griffin, Cheech Marin, John Cleese, Eric Idle, Regis Philbin, James Belushi, Topher Grace, David Suchet). Italian title: THE ADVENTURES OF PINOCCHIO. Panavision. [G] ▼

Pinocchio and the Emperor of the Night (1987) C-87m.  D: Hal Sutherland. Voices of Edward Asner, Tom Bosley, Lana Beeson, Linda Gary, Jonathan Harris, James Earl Jones, Ricky Lee Jones, Don Knotts, William Windom. Uninspired continuation of the Pinocchio story: now a real boy, Pinocchio is guided by "Gee Whillikers," a wooden bug come to life, and they enjoy many adventures which parallel the Disney classic. Fully animated by Filmation Studios, but an embarrassment next to the 1940 gem. [G] ▼

Pinocchio in Outer Space (1964-U.S.-French) C-65m.  D: Ray Goossens. Voices of Arnold Stang, Jess Cain. Watchable cartoon adventure for kids, with unmemorable songs. ▼

cles, despite support from Raye and Brown; songs are nil, so is plot. ▼

Pipe Dreams (1976) C-89m. 1/2 D: Stephen Verona. Gladys Knight, Barry Hankerson, Bruce French, Sherry Bain, Wayne Tippit, Altovise Davis, Sally Kirkland. Singing star Knight makes acting debut in highly dramatic story set against Alaskan pipeline. Excellent location shooting. Soundtrack filled with songs by Knight and her group, the Pips. [PG] ▼

Pippi Longstocking (1997-Swedish-Canadian) C-77m. 1/2 D: Clive Smith. Voices of Catherine O'Hara, Dave Thomas, Wayne Robson, Gordon Pinsent, Melissa Altro. Faithful animated version of Astrid Lindgren's story about the world's strongest girl, Miss Pippilotta Delicatessa Windowshade Mackrelmint Efraimsdottir Longstocking, age 9, as she encounters school, friends, the circus, and burglars, all for the first time. Nelvana studio's bright artwork and the script's cheerful characterizations will please fans, but the songs are dreary. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [G] ▼

Piranha (1978) C-92m.  D: Joe Dante. Bradford Dillman, Heather Menzies, Kevin McCarthy, Keenan Wynn, Dick Miller, Barbara Steele, Belinda Balaski, Bruce Gordon, Paul Bartel. Fast-paced, funny spoof of JAWS and countless 1950s sci-fi films; in-jokes and campy supporting cast will make it particular fun for film buffs. Written by John Sayles (who also plays a small role). Followed by a sequel. Remade for TV in 1996. [R] ▼

Piranha Part Two: The Spawning (1981-Italian-U.S.) C-95m. *1/2 D: James Cameron. Tricia O'Neil, Steve Marachuk, Lance Henriksen, Ricky G. Paul, Ted Richert, Leslie Graves. A sequel in name only, this silly horror film is set at a Club Med-type resort where human mating rituals are interrupted by the spawning ritual of mutated flying fish crossed with grunions, which are oversized, deadly killers. You'd have to be psychic to have spotted any talent from director Cameron in this debut picture. [R] ▼

Pirate, The (1948) C-102m.  D: Vincente Minnelli. Judy Garland, Gene Kelly, Walter Slezak, Gladys Cooper, Reginald Owen, George Zucco, The Nicholas Brothers. Judy thinks circus clown Kelly is really Caribbean pirate; lavish costuming, dancing and Cole Porter songs (including "Be a Clown") bolster stacy plot. Kelly's dances are exhilarating, as usual. Based on S. N. Behrman play. ▼

Pirate Movie, The (1982-Australian) C-99m. BOMB D: Ken Annakin. Kristy McNichol, Christopher Atkins, Ted Hamilton, Bill Kerr, Maggie Kirkpatrick, Gary McDonald. Appalling "update" of Gilbert & Sullivan's The Pirates of Penzance not only trashes the original but fails on its own paltry terms—as a teenybopper comedy with bubblegum music. Parodies (and steals from) so many other films it should have been called THE RIP-OFF MOVIE. [PG]▼

Pirates (1986-French-Tunisian) C-124m. ½ D: Roman Polanski. Walter Matthau, Damien Thomas, Richard Pearson, Cris Campion, Charlotte Lewis, Olu Jacobs, Roy Kinnear, Ferdy Mayne, Tony Peck. Rich-looking, robust pirate comedy, filmed on a grand scale (in widescreen), with plenty of broad comedy, a delightful performance by Matthau, a rousing score by Philippe Sarde . . . and a certain lack of story. It's still fun. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Pirates of Blood River, The (1962-British) C-87m.  D: John Gilling. Kerwin Mathews, Glenn Corbett, Christopher Lee, Marla Landi, Oliver Reed, Andrew Keir, Peter Arne. Earnest but hackneyed account of Huguenots fighting off buccaneers. Hammerscope.●

Pirates of Penzance, The (1983) C-112m.  D: Wilford Leach. Kevin Kline, Angela Lansbury, Linda Ronstadt, George Rose, Rex Smith, Tony Azito. Joseph Papp's hit stage revival of the Gilbert and Sullivan perennial is transferred to film with the original cast (plus Lansbury) and director—who decided to make no bones about its theatricality! Not for G&S purists, perhaps, but fun. Splendid production design by Elliot Scott. Panavision. [G]▼●

Pirates of the Caribbean: At World's End (2007) C-168m. *½ D: Gore Verbinski. Johnny Depp, Geoffrey Rush, Orlando Bloom, Keira Knightley, Jack Davenport, Bill Nighy, Jonathan Pryce, Lee Arenberg, Mackenzie Crook, Stellan Skarsgård, Chow Yun-Fat, Naomie Harris, Keith Richards. Seven leagues of boredom. Will (Bloom), Elizabeth (Knightley), and a resurrected Captain Barbosa (Rush) unite to rescue Jack (Depp) from Davy Jones' locker and embark on an epic battle against Jones and the evil East India Trading Company. Convoluted and interminable sequel is just another soulless "product," offering precious little joie de vivre or entertainment, despite the almost nonstop action. Even the Rolling Stones' Richards as Depp's even more grungy father can't live things up. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest (2006) C-151m.  D: Gore Verbinski. Johnny Depp, Orlando Bloom, Keira Knightley, Stellan Skarsgård, Bill Nighy, Jack Davenport, Mackenzie Crook, Lee Arenberg, Kevin R. McNally, Jonathan Pryce, Naomie Harris. Will Turner (Bloom) is sent to find Capt. Jack Sparrow (Depp) and retrieve a valuable compass he uses, for reasons much too complicated to explain here. Davy Jones (Nighy) is also on the prowl for Sparrow with the crew of his ghostly ship and its pirates-in-purgatory. Lumbering sequel has no real tale to tell and drains the

charm out of its three lead characters, who were so much fun to watch in the first movie. Some good action/stunt set pieces can't compensate for this cheerless, seemingly endless voyage. Geoffrey Rush appears unbilled. Oscar winner for Visual Effects. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Pirates of the Caribbean: The Curse of the Black Pearl (2003) C-143m. ½ D: Gore Verbinski. Johnny Depp, Geoffrey Rush, Orlando Bloom, Keira Knightley, Jonathan Pryce, Jack Davenport, Kevin R. McNally, Zoe Saldana. Besotted pirate Jack Sparrow attempts to regain control of his ship, the Black Pearl, in spite of a ghostly curse that's been placed on its crew. Stylishly designed and shot, with rollicking performances, this depends more on special effects than the fabled stunt work of classic pirate films (although there's a nice homage to THE CRIMSON PIRATE). Fans of the original Disneyland attraction will also enjoy the references that dot the film . . . but there's no reason for it to be quite so long or plot-heavy. Followed by two sequels. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Pirates Who Don't Do Anything: A VeggieTales Movie, The (2008) C-85m. ½ D: Mike Nawrocki. Voices of Phil Vischer, Mike Nawrocki, Cam Clarke, Yuri Lowenthal, Alan Lee, Cydney Trent. Elliot (aka Larry the Cucumber), Sedgewick (aka Mr. Lunt), and George (aka Pa Grape) are employees of a dinner theater who dream of putting on a show about pirates, then find themselves magically transported to the 17th century, becoming pirates on a mission to rescue a royal family from an evil tyrant. Well-made but lackluster animated feature may entertain small children with slapstick action and corny puns. Christian messages and themes are more muted than in other VeggieTales stories. [G]●

Pit and the Pendulum (1961) C-80m. ½ D: Roger Corman. Vincent Price, John Kerr, Barbara Steele, Luana Anders, Antony Carbone. Slick horror tale set right after Spanish Inquisition. Price thinks he is his late father, the most vicious torturer during bloody inquisition. Beautifully staged; watch out for that incredible pendulum . . . and bear with slow first half. The second of Corman's Poe adaptations, credited by Richard Matheson. Panavision. ▼●●

Pit and the Pendulum, The (1991) C-97m.  D: Stuart Gordon. Lance Henriksen, Rona De Ricci, Jonathan Fuller, Frances Bay, Mark Margolis, Jeffrey Combs, Oliver Reed. In 1492, Torquemada (Henriksen), Spain's Grand Inquisitor, is haunted by his lust for a baker's wife accused of witchcraft. Strong, well-researched script (by Dennis Paoli) owes little to Poe, but is vividly realized by Gordon; graphic scenes of torture are appropriate here, and Henriksen's intense performance is mesmerizing.

The best film to come from the folks at Full Moon. Shot in Spain. Available in an unrated version. [R]▼●●

Pitch Black (2000-U.S.-Australian) C-107m.  D: David Twohy. Radha Mitchell, Vin Diesel, Cole Hauser, Keith David, Lewis Fitz-Gerald, Claudia Black, Rhiana Griffith. Ambitious but formulaic sci-fi/horror film set in the future, with a motley planeload of passengers crash-landing on a remote planet. Not only do they have to contend with a violent, amoral ex-con (the imposing Diesel) in their midst, but an unknown terror that's magnified by the threat of total darkness. Some exciting scenes and effects, but weighed down by a feeling of déjà vu. Also available in unrated director's cut. Followed by THE CHRONICLES OF RIDDICK. Super 35. [R]▼●

Pitfall (1948) 84m.  D: Andre de Toth. Dick Powell, Lizabeth Scott, Jane Wyatt, Raymond Burr, John Littel, Byron Barr. Married man's brief extramarital fling may cost him his job and marriage. Intriguing film noir look at the American dream gone sour, typified by Powell's character, who's got a house, a little boy, and a perfect wife—but feels bored and stifled.▼●

Pit Stop (1969) 92m. ½ D: Jack Hill. Brian Donlevy, Richard Davalos, Ellen McRae (Burstyn), Sid Haig, Beverly Washburn, George Washburn. Surprisingly entertaining micro-budget drive-in fare about rivalry on the stock-car racing circuit, with some genuinely hair-raising footage during figure-eight races.▼●

Pittsburgh (1942) 90m.  D: Lewis Seiler. Marlene Dietrich, John Wayne, Randolph Scott, Frank Craven, Louise Allbritton, Thomas Gomez, Shemp Howard. Big John loves the coal and steel business more than he does Marlene, which leaves field open for rival Scott. Slow-moving.▼●

Pixote (1981-Brazilian) C-127m. * D: Hector Babenco. Fernando Ramos da Silva, Marilia Pera, Jorge Juliano, Gilberto Moura, Jose Nilson dos Santos, Edilson Lino. Chilling drama about an abandoned 10-year-old street criminal who pimps, sniffs glue, and murders three people before the finale. Haunting performance by the baby-faced da Silva; Pera equally superb as a prostitute. Extraordinarily graphic film is not for the squeamish.▼●

Pizza Triangle, The (1970-Italian) C-99m. ½ D: Ettore Scola. Marcello Mastroianni, Monica Vitti, Giancarlo Giannini. Scene-stealing stars compete in this flamboyant black comedy of two guys both in love with flower seller Vitti. Colorful photography by Carlo Di Palma. Aka A DRAMA OF JEALOUSY. Panavision. [R]

P.J. (1968) C-109m.  D: John Guillermin. George Peppard, Raymond Burr, Gayle Hunnicutt, Brock Peters, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Coleen Gray, Susan Saint James.

Private-eye takes job bodyguarding tycoon's mistress. OK for those who'll sit through any film of this genre, but no big deal. Techniscope.

P.K. and the Kid (1982) C-89m.  D: Lou Lombardo. Paul Le Mat, Molly Ringwald, Alex Rocco, Fionnula Flanagan, Charles Hallahan, Bert Remsen, Esther Rolle, Leigh Hamilton. Stillborn tale of arm wrestling (made several years before the Sylvester Stallone classic OVER THE TOP, but released afterward) teams strong-wristed Le Mat with runaway teen Ringwald on the road to nowhere. With that cast and a mood resembling Le Mat's MELVIN AND HOWARD, this should have been more interesting. [PG-13]▼●

Place Called Glory, A (1966-German) C-92m.  D: Ralph Gideon (Sheldon Reynolds). Lex Barker, Pierre Brice, Mari- anne Koch, Jorge Rigaud. German-made Western about a lawless town's annual celebration, which includes a duel between two duped gunslingers. Bizarre, yet interesting, but hurt by poor dubbing. Techniscope.▼

Place for Lovers, A (1968-Italian-French) C-90m. BOMB D: Vittorio De Sica. Faye Dunaway, Marcello Mastroianni, Caroline Mortimer, Karin Eng. One well-known critic called this "the most godawful piece of pseudo romantic slop I've ever seen!" Love story about American fashion designer and Italian engineer marks career low points for all concerned. [R]

Place in the Sun, A (1951) 122m.  D: George Stevens. Montgomery Clift, Elizabeth Taylor, Shelley Winters, Keefe Bras- selle, Raymond Burr, Anne Revere. Ambitious remake of Theodore Dreiser's AN AMERICAN TRAGEDY derives most of its power from Clift's brilliant performance, almost matched by Winters as plain girl who loses him to alluring Taylor. Depiction of the idle rich, and American morals, seems outdated, and Burr's scenes as fiery D.A. are downright absurd. Everyone gets A for effort; six Oscars included Best Direc- tion, Screenplay (Michael Wilson, Harry Brown), Score (Franz Waxman), Cinema- tography (William C. Mellor), Film Editing, and Costume Design.▼●●

Places in the Heart (1984) C-111m.  D: Robert Benton. Sally Field, Lindsay Crouse, Ed Harris, Amy Madigan, John Malkovich, Danny Glover, Terry O'Quinn, Bert Remsen, Ray Baker. Writer-director Benton's affectionate look at life in his hometown, Waxahachie, Texas, during the Depression 1930s. A bit too calculated and predictable, but Field is so good (as a young widow determined to survive as a cotton farmer), and film is so well made (beautifully shot by Nestor Almendros), it's hard not to like. Field won Best Actress Oscar for her performance as did Benton for his original screenplay. [PG]▼●●

Place Vendôme (1998-French) C-117m.  D: Nicole Garcia. Catherine Deneuve, Jean-Pierre Bacri, Emmanuelle Seigner, Jacques Dutronc, Bernard Fresson, François Berléand. When the director of a jewelry store dies, his alcoholic wife (Deneuve) becomes involved with stolen diamonds and links to past betrayal and love. Quiet, very deliberately paced story works both as low-key thriller and character study, anchored by Deneuve's excellent lead performance. Widescreen. ▼

Plague, The (1991-French-British-Argentine) C-105m. *½ D: Luis Puenzo. William Hurt, Sandrine Bonnaire, Jean-Marc Barr, Robert Duvall, Raul Julia, Victoria Tennant. Obvious, muddled adaptation (by director Puenzo) of the Albert Camus novel, focusing on a dedicated doctor (Hurt), a French TV reporter (Bonnaire) and cameraman (Barr), and various other characters whose lives become intertwined during a deadly plague in a South American city. A major disappointment. Never released theatrically in the U.S. [R] ▼

Plague Dogs, The (1982) C-86m.  D: Martin Rosen. Voices of John Hurt, James Bolam, Christopher Benjamin, Judy Geeson, Barbara Leigh-Hunt, Nigel Hawthorne, Patrick Stewart. Unusual animated adventure, adapted from Richard Adams's novel about a pair of dogs who escape from animal experimentation lab and are hunted down like criminals. A bit slow-moving but beautifully animated and most worthwhile; a poignant plea for animal rights. For adults and older children only. A follow-up to WATERSHIP DOWN from same producer-director. ▼

Plague of the Zombies, The (1966-British) C-90m. *½ D: John Gilling. Andre Morell, Diane Clare, Brook Williams, Jacqueline Pearce, John Carson. Beautiful low-key photography and direction in fairly tense story of voodoo cult in Cornish village. Minor but effective Hammer horror. ▼

Plainsman, The (1936) 113m.  D: Cecil B. DeMille. Gary Cooper, Jean Arthur, James Ellison, Charles Bickford, Porter Hall, Victor Varconi, Helen Burgess, John Miljan, Gabby Hayes, Paul Harvey, Frank McGlynn, Sr. Typical DeMille hokum, a big, outlandish Western which somehow manages to involve Wild Bill Hickok, Calamity Jane, Buffalo Bill, George Custer and Abraham Lincoln in adventure of evil Bickford selling guns to the Indians. About as authentic as BLAZING SADDLES, but who cares—it's still good fun. Look for Anthony Quinn as a Cheyenne warrior. Remade in 1966. ▼

Plainsman, The (1966) C-92m. *½ D: David Lowell Rich. Don Murray, Guy Stockwell, Abby Dalton, Bradford Dillman, Leslie Nielsen. Static remake of the Cooper-Arthur vehicle is dull even on its own.

Plan B (1997) C-102m. ½ D: Gary Leva. Jon Cryer, Lisa Darr, Lance Guest, Mark Matheisen, Sara Mornell. Amiable low-budget film about a group of friends, their romantic snafus, and the roadblocks they encounter in reaching their goals—to become a published novelist, to find the perfect guy, to get that big break as an actor, to conceive a child. Likable performances, reasonably credible situations and dialogue, but there are at least three endings. [R] ▼

Planes, Trains & Automobiles (1987) C-93m. ½ D: John Hughes. Steve Martin, John Candy, Laila Robins, Michael McKean, Kevin Bacon, Dylan Baker, William Windom, Edie McClurg, Ben Stein. Bittersweet farce about a businessman trying to get home for Thanksgiving who encounters disaster at every turn and has to share most of it with a lout who becomes his steadfast companion. Martin mostly plays straight to the overbearing Candy, but writer-director Hughes refuses to make either one a caricature—which keeps this amiable film teetering between slapstick shenanigans and compassionate comedy. Hurt by an awful music score. [R] ▼

Planet of Blood (1966) C-81m. ½ D: Curtis Harrington. John Saxon, Basil Rathbone, Judi Meredith, Dennis Hopper, Florence Marly. Eerie space opera (utilizing effects footage cribbed from a big-budget Russian film) about a space vampire brought to Earth. Best thing is the bizarre climax, if you can wait that long. Originally titled QUEEN OF BLOOD. ▼

Planet of Horrors SEE: Galaxy of Terror

Planet of the Apes (1968) C-112m. ½ D: Franklin J. Schaffner. Charlton Heston, Roddy McDowall, Kim Hunter, Maurice Evans, James Whitmore, James Daly, Linda Harrison. Intriguing, near-classic sci-fi. Heston leads a group of surviving astronauts in shocking future world where apes are masters, humans slaves. Only liabilities: somewhat familiar plot, self-conscious humor; otherwise, a must-see. Michael Wilson and Rod Serling scripted from Pierre Boulle's novel, spawning four sequels and two TV series. Won a special Oscar for makeup created by John Chambers. Remade in 2001. Panavision. [G] ▼

Planet of the Apes (2001) C-120m. ½ D: Tim Burton. Mark Wahlberg, Tim Roth, Helena Bonham Carter, Michael Clarke Duncan, Paul Giamatti, Estella Warren, Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa, David Warner, Kris Kristofferson, Glenn Shadix, Lisa Marie. Entertaining if forgettable rethink of the 1968 film, as an astronaut crash-lands on a strange planet ruled by apes, where humans are slaves and regarded as scum. One ape, the daughter of a prominent senator, thinks otherwise, and even agrees to help Wahlberg escape. A good yarn with great production design and impressive makeup by Rick

Baker. Finale, with Rod Serling overtones, is the major letdown. Charlton Heston is arresting in his unbilled appearance, and Linda Harrison (also from the original cast) appears briefly. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼

Planet of the Vampires (1965-Italian) C-86m. ½ D: Mario Bava. Barry Sullivan, Norma Bengell, Angel Aranda, Evi Marandi, Fernando Villena. Eerily photographed, atmospheric science-fantasy of spaceship looking for missing comrades on misty planet where strange power controls their minds. Shown on TV as THE DEMON PLANET. ▼

Planet on the Prowl SEE: War Between the Planets

Plan 9 From Outer Space (1959) 79m. BOMB D: Edward D. Wood, Jr. Gregory Walcott, Tom Keene, Duke Moore, Mona McKinnon, Dudley Manlove, Joanna Lee, Tor Johnson, Lyle Talbot, Bela Lugosi, Vampira, Criswell. Hailed as the worst movie ever made; certainly one of the funniest. Pompous aliens believe they can conquer Earth by resurrecting corpses from a San Fernando Valley cemetery. Lugosi died after two days' shooting in 1956; his remaining scenes were played by a taller, younger man holding a cape over his face! So mesmerizingly awful it actually improves (so to speak) with each viewing. And remember: it's all based on sworn testimony! Followed by REVENGE OF THE DEAD. ▼

Planter's Wife SEE: Outpost in Malaya

Platinum Blonde (1931) 90m.  D: Frank Capra. Jean Harlow, Loretta Young, Robert Williams, Louise Closser Hale, Donald Dillaway, Walter Catlett. Snappy comedy about wisecracking reporter who marries wealthy girl (Harlow) but can't stand confinement of life among high society. Despite engaging presence of Harlow and Young, it's Williams' show all the way. ▼

Platinum High School (1960) 93m.  D: Charles Haas. Mickey Rooney, Terry Moore, Dan Duryea, Yvette Mimieux, Conway Twitty, Jimmy Boyd. Limp attempt at sensationalism, with Rooney a father discovering that his son's death at school wasn't accidental. Retitled: TROUBLE AT 16. ▼

Platoon (1986) C-120m. ½ D: Oliver Stone. Tom Berenger, Willem Dafoe, Charlie Sheen, Forest Whitaker, Francesco Quinn, John C. McGinley, Richard Edson, Kevin Dillon, Reggie Johnson, Keith David, Johnny Depp. Penetrating first-person account of life on the line as a young soldier in the Vietnam War. Harrowing realistic and completely convincing, though the motives and reactions of its main character (played by Sheen, based on writer-director Stone) are hard to relate to—leaving this otherwise excellent film with a certain degree of aloofness. Academy Award winner for Best Picture, Director, Film Editing (Claire Simpson), and Sound. [R] ▼

Platoon Leader (1988) C-100m. BOMB D: Aaron Norris. Michael Dudikoff, Robert F. Lyons, Michael De Lorenzo, Rick Fitts, Jesse Dabson. Obnoxious, bloody PLATOON rip-off, about a group of American GIs battling the commies in Southeast Asia. Director Norris is the brother of Chuck. [R] ▼

Playboy of the Western World, The (1962-Irish) C-100m.  D: Brian Desmond Hurst. Gary Raymond, Siobhan McKenna, Elspeth March, Michael O'Brian, Liam Redmond, Niall MacGinnis. Simple and eloquent, if a bit stagy, version of J. M. Synge's classic satire. Boyish, boastful Christy Mahon (Raymond) charms a small Irish village with his tale of how he did in his dad. ▼

Playboys, The (1992) C-110m. ½ D: Gillies MacKinnon. Albert Finney, Aidan Quinn, Robin Wright, Milo O'Shea, Alan Devlin, Niamh Cusack, Ian McElhinney, Niall Buggy, Adrian Dunbar. A young woman scandalizes her provincial Irish village in the 1950s by having a child out of wedlock, and refusing to name the father; the arrival of a traveling dramatic troupe stirs things up even more. Flavorful but heavy-handed tale; good performances can only do so much with a script that's so predictable. [PG-13] ▼

Play Dirty (1968-British) C-117m.  D: Andre de Toth. Michael Caine, Nigel Davenport, Nigel Green, Harry Andrews, Aly Ben Ayed. British army captain leads group of ex-cons into the North African campaign in WW2; film invites comparison with THE DIRTY DOZEN and holds its own quite well. Panavision. [M/PG] ▼

Player, The (1992) C-123m.  D: Robert Altman. Tim Robbins, Greta Scacchi, Fred Ward, Whoopi Goldberg, Peter Gallagher, Brion James, Cynthia Stevenson, Vincent D'Onofrio, Dean Stockwell, Richard E. Grant, Dina Merrill, Sydney Pollack, Lyle Lovett, Randall Batinkoff, Gina Gershon. Sharp black comedy about a paranoid young movie executive (Robbins) who is threatened by a disgruntled screenwriter—until he begins taking the law into his own hands. Biting examination of Hollywood greed and power, with eternal renegade Altman near the top of his form (especially during the eight-minute opening tracking shot). Hilarious performances, scores of star cameos (several by Altman alumni like Elliott Gould, Lily Tomlin, Sally Kellerman, and Cher), many inside jokes . . . but a bit too much plot. Adapted by Michael Tolkin from his novel; Tolkin and his lookalike brother, Stephen, also appear as a pair of writers who meet with Robbins. [R] ▼

Players (1979) C-120m. BOMB D: Anthony Harvey. Ali MacGraw, Dean-Paul

Martin, Maximilian Schell, Pancho Gonzalez, Steve Guttenberg, Melissa Prophet. Aspiring tennis pro has to choose between forehand and foreplay when he falls for a "kept" woman. There's something wrong with any movie where Pancho Gonzalez gives the best performance. [PG]▼

Players (1980) SEE: Club, The Players Club, The (1998) C-104m.  D: Ice Cube. LisaRaye, Bernie Mac, Monica Calhoun, A. J. Johnson, Ice Cube, Alex Thomas, Faizon Love, Charles O. Murphy, Adele Givens, Chrystale Wilson, Terrence Howard, Larry McCoy, Dick Anthony Williams, Tiny Lister, Jamie Foxx, John Amos, Michael Clarke Duncan. A college journalism major looks back on the sleazy events that took place during her long employment at a black strip club, among them the lurid apartment parties that took place on the side. Not a bad hook, but the film is done in by its seen-it-all-before limitations and pedestrian script. Cube also wrote the screenplay. [R]▼●●

Playgirl After Dark SEE: Too Hot to Handle (1960)

Playgirl Gang SEE: Switchblade Sisters
Playing by Heart (1998) C-120m.  D: Willard Carroll. Sean Connery, Gena Rowlands, Gillian Anderson, Angelina Jolie, Madeleine Stowe, Anthony Edwards, Ryan Phillippe, Dennis Quaid, Ellen Burstyn, Jay Mohr, Jon Stewart, Patricia Clarkson, Nastassja Kinski, Daniel von Bargen. Talky film—with its heart in the right place—about a handful of L.A. men and women and their fouled-up relationships, ranging from an older couple whose marriage is strained by an illness and a long-ago affair, to a woman who comes to terms with her son for the first time as he lies in a hospital bed dying of AIDS. Attractive, well-cast, but dreary multistory mosaic, written by director Carroll. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Playing for Keeps (1986) C-102m. *½ D: Bob Weinstein, Harvey Weinstein. Daniel Jordano, Matthew Penn, Leon W. Grant, Mary B. Ward, Marisa Tomei, Jimmy Bai, Harold Gould. After finishing high school, a group of friends band together to save a run-down hotel from a greedy developer in an unfriendly town. A youth comedy from the '80s that's aged; worth seeing only for a young Marisa Tomei. Also notable as the only directorial effort by the founders and honchos of Miramax. Beware of the frequently used montage! [PG-13]▼

Playing God (1997) C-93m. *½ D: Andy Wilson. David Duchovny, Timothy Hutton, Angelina Jolie, Michael Masee, Peter Stormare, Gary Dourdan, John Hawkes, Andrew Tiernan. Preposterous story of drug-addicted ex-surgeon Duchovny hired by gangster Hutton to be the personal emergency physician for his shot-up and slashed cronies. The improvised medical treatment is so completely laughable, it upstages the absurdity of the story line. Why this movie was ever made is truly a case for The X-Files. [R]▼●●

Play It Again, Sam (1972) C-87m. ½ D: Herbert Ross. Woody Allen, Diane Keaton, Tony Roberts, Jerry Lacy, Susan Anspach, Jennifer Salt, Joy Bang, Viva. Delightful adaptation of Woody's own play about film buff coached by the ghost of Bogart in fumbling attempts to impress girls after his wife divorces him. More "conventional" than other early Allen films, but just as funny. [PG]▼●●

Play It As It Lays (1972) C-99m. *½ D: Frank Perry. Tuesday Weld, Anthony Perkins, Tammy Grimes, Adam Roarke, Ruth Ford, Eddie Firestone. Film version of Joan Didion's best-seller about neglected wife of self-centered film director is helped by Weld-Perkins casting. Story is believable enough, but rambles inconclusively. Look for Tyne Daly as a journalist. [R]

Play It to the Bone (1999) C-124m. ½ D: Ron Shelton. Woody Harrelson, Antonio Banderas, Lolita Davidovich, Tom Sizemore, Lucy Liu, Robert Wagner, Richard Masur, Willie Garson, Cylk Cozart, Aida Turturro, Jack Carter. Two boxer friends are hired as last-minute substitutes on a primo Las Vegas fight card, and express their doubts and fears while driving from L.A. to Vegas with their mutual ex-girlfriend. Relaxed pace of Shelton's script challenges the viewer to stay interested through the long road trip up to the stormy and eventful fight and its aftermath. Many sports and show-business celebrities appear as themselves. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Play Misty for Me (1971) C-102m.  D: Clint Eastwood. Clint Eastwood, Jessica Walter, Donna Mills, John Larch, Irene Hervey, Jack Ging, Johnny Otis, Cannonball Adderley Quintet. Well-done shocker of late night radio DJ. stalked by homicidal ex-fan Walter. Eastwood's first film as director; his frequent director, Don Siegel, plays Murphy the bartender. [R]▼●●

Play Time (1967-French) C-126m. * D: Jacques Tati. Jacques Tati, Barbara Dennek, Jacqueline Lecomte, Valerie Camille, Leon Doyen. M. Hulot (Tati) wanders through an unrecognizable modern Paris of steel and glass skyscrapers. Sight and sound gags abound in this superbly constructed film, the various episodes of which are linked by Hulot's trying to keep an appointment. Art Buchwald provided dialogue for English-speaking scenes. Alternate version runs 155m. 70mm Widescreen. ▼●●

Plaza Suite (1971) C-115m.  D: Arthur Hiller. Walter Matthau, Maureen Stapleton, Barbara Harris, Lee Grant, Louise Sorel. One of Neil Simon's funniest plays well adapted to screen. Three separate stories about people staying in certain room at famed N.Y.C. hotel, with Matthau in all three vignettes. Best one is the last, with Matthau as flustered father of a reluctant bride. [PG] ▼●●

Pleasantville (1998) C/B&W-123m. ½ D: Gary Ross. Tobey Maguire, Jeff Daniels, Joan Allen, William H. Macy, J. T. Walsh, Reese Witherspoon, Don Knotts, Jane Kaczmarek. A brother and sister are magically transported into their TV set and the black-and-white world of a '50s sitcom called Pleasantville, where everything is swell. Soon, they infiltrate this perfect environment with their worldly sensibilities, and the façade is easily cracked. Excellent performances and a striking visual design (the black-and-white world and its people slowly acquire color) spark this satire, which bites off more than it can chew, becoming slow and somber. Anyway, hooray for Don Knotts! Directing debut for screenwriter Ross. [PG-13] ▼●●

Please Don't Eat the Daisies (1960) C-111m.  D: Charles Walters. Doris Day, David Niven, Janis Paige, Spring Byington, Richard Haydn, Patsy Kelly, Jack Weston, Margaret Lindsay. Bright film based on Jean Kerr's stories about a drama critic and his family. Doris sings title song; her kids are very amusing, as are Byington (the mother-in-law), Kelly (housekeeper), and especially Paige as a temperamental star. Later a TV series. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Please! Mr. Balzac (1956-French) 99m.  D: Marc Allegret. Daniel Gelin, Brigitte Bardot, Robert Hirsch, Darry Cowl. Low-brow THEODORA GOES WILD variation, following Bardot's plight after she pens an anonymous, scandalous book. Scripted by Allegret and Roger Vadim. Aka MADÉMOISELLE STRIPTEASE and PLUCKING THE DAISY. ▼

Pleasure Garden, The (1925-British) 68m.  D: Alfred Hitchcock. Virginia Valli, Carmelita Geraghty, Miles Mander, John Stuart, George Snell. Hitchcock's first feature, shot in Munich; uneven account of a pair of chorus girls, one (Valli) sweet and knowing, the other (Geraghty) a waif who becomes a glamorous bitch. Forgettable silent melodrama.

Pleasure of His Company, The (1961) C-115m. ½ D: George Seaton. Fred Astaire, Lilli Palmer, Debbie Reynolds, Tab Hunter, Gary Merrill, Charlie Ruggles. Delightful fluff, from Samuel Taylor and Cornelia Otis Skinner's play about charming ex-husband who comes to visit, enchanting his daughter and hounding his wife's new husband. Entire cast in rare form. Taylor also scripted.

Pleasure Seekers, The (1964) C-107m. ½ D: Jean Negulesco. Ann-Margret, Pamela Tiffin, Tony Franciosa, Carol Lynley, Gene Tierney, Brian Keith, Gardner McKay, Isobel Elsom. Glossy, semi-musical remake of THREE COINS IN THE FOUNTAIN (by same director) about three girls seeking fun and romance in Spain. CinemaScope.

Pledge, The (2001) C-124m.  D: Sean Penn. Jack Nicholson, Robin Wright Penn, Benicio Del Toro, Vanessa Redgrave, Tom Noonan, Patricia Clarkson, Michael O'Keefe, Aaron Eckhart, Costas Mandylor, Helen Mirren, Mickey Rourke, Sam Shepard, Lois Smith, Harry Dean Stanton, Pauline Roberts. Nevada police detective, on the day of his retirement, becomes involved in the case of a little girl's murder and promises her parents that he will bring the killer to justice. Another great Nicholson performance anchors this fine-tuned film, which sidesteps formula in favor of nuance. Based on a novel by Friedrich Durrenmatt. Filmed twice before in Germany (in 1958 as IT HAPPENED IN BROAD DAYLIGHT and as a 1997 TV movie) and in England (in 1995 as THE COLD LIGHT OF DAY). J-D-C Scope. [R] ▼

Plenty (1985) C-124m. ½ D: Fred Schepisi. Meryl Streep, Charles Dance, Tracey Ullman, John Gielgud, Sting, Ian McKellen, Sam Neill, Burt Kwouk. Filmization of David Hare's play about a British woman who (like Britain itself) experiences her finest hours during WW2, working for the underground . . . and never finds fulfillment or satisfaction the rest of her life. Superlative performances (Gielgud is a particular delight as aging career diplomat) and moments of insight and wit can't overcome the fact that central character played by Streep is so tedious. Schepisi makes excellent use of widescreen. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Plot Against Harry, The (1989) 80m.  D: Michael Roemer. Martin Priest, Ben Lang, Maxine Woods, Henry Nemo, Jacques Taylor, Jean Leslie, Ellen Herbert, Sandra Kazan. Amusing, perceptive slice of N.Y.C. life about an aging racketeer, just sprung from prison, who finds the old order changing, and his life coming apart at the seams. Sad-faced Priest is perfectly cast in this modest, location-filmed production, which was shot in 1969 but never released—until film-festival showings in 1989 won critical acclaim and a distributor. ▼

Plots With a View SEE: Undertaking Betty

Plough and the Stars, The (1936) 78m.  D: John Ford. Barbara Stanwyck, Preston Foster, Barry Fitzgerald, Una O'Connor, J. M. Kerrigan, Bonita Granville, Arthur Shields. Dreary, theatrical filmization of Sean O'Casey's play with Foster as Irish revolutionary leader and Stanwyck as long-suffering wife who fears for his life; script by Dudley Nichols.

Ploughman's Lunch, The (1983-British) C-100m.  D: Richard Eyre. Jonathan Pryce, Tim Curry, Rosemary Harris, Frank Finlay, Charlie Dore. Complex, cynical condemnation of British manners, morals and politics, centering on the activities of thoroughly self-centered radio reporter Pryce and others during the Falklands war. Quite perceptive, within the confines of its viewpoint. [R]▼

Plucking the Daisy SEE: Please! Mr. Balzac

Plumber, The (1980-Australian) C-76m.  D: Peter Weir. Judy Morris, Ivar Kants, Robert Coleby, Candy Raymond. Obnoxious plumber tears apart bathroom of unwilling tenants; film's single joke is stretched no further than it will go in slight but amusing black comedy made for Australian television. ▼

Plunkett & Macleane (1999-British) C-102m.  D: Jake Scott. Robert Carlyle, Jonny Lee Miller, Liv Tyler, Michael Gambon, Alan Cumming, Ken Stott, Claire Rushbrook. Rousing action-adventure about two of England's most notorious 18th-century highwaymen. Plays like BUTCH CASSIDY, with anachronistic hipster humor and a bumping techno score from Craig Armstrong. Don't think too hard about this flashy import; just sit back and enjoy the ride. As a bisexual dandy, Cumming cuts quite a swath. The debuting director is Ridley Scott's son. Super 35. [R]▼

Plymouth Adventure (1952) C-105m. ½ D: Clarence Brown. Spencer Tracy, Gene Tierney, Van Johnson, Leo Genn, Dawn Addams, Lloyd Bridges, Barry Jones. Superficial soap opera, glossily done, of the cynical captain of the Mayflower (Tracy) and the settlers who sailed from England to New England in the 17th century. This won an Oscar for its special effects. ▼

Pocahontas (1995) C-82m.  D: Mike Gabriel, Eric Goldberg. Voices of Irene Bedard, Judy Kuhn, Mel Gibson, David Ogden Stiers, John Kassir, Russell Means, Christian Bale, Linda Hunt, Billy Connolly, Frank Welker, Michelle St. John, James Apanumut Fall. More serious in tone than most Disney cartoon features, this one tells of the brave and free-spirited woman who defied her father—and her tribe—by falling in love with Capt. John Smith, part of a plundering party from England. Entertaining if not particularly memorable, with Pocahontas a strong and appealing character, and her sidekicks, Meeko (a raccoon) and Flit (a hummingbird), providing delightful comedy relief. Songs by Alan Menken and Stephen Schwartz include one standout, "Colors of the Wind." Both that song and Menken's music score won Oscars. Special edition DVD includes one additional song and runs 84m. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [G]▼

Pocketful of Miracles (1961) C-136m. ½ D: Frank Capra. Bette Davis, Glenn Ford, Hope Lange, Arthur O'Connell, Thomas Mitchell, Peter Falk, Edward Everett

Horton, Ann-Margret, Mickey Shaughnessy, David Brian, Sheldon Leonard, Barton MacLane, John Litel, Jerome Cowan, Fritz Feld, Jack Elam, Ellen Corby. Capra's final film, a remake of his 1933 LADY FOR A DAY, is just as sentimental, but doesn't work as well. Bette is Apple Annie, a Damon Runyon character; Ford is Dave the Dude, the racketeer who turns her into a lady. Ann-Margret is appealing in her first film. Panavision. ▼

Poetic Justice (1993) C-110m.  D: John Singleton. Janet Jackson, Tupac Shakur, Regina King, Joe Torry, Maya Angelou, Tyra Ferrell, Roger Guenveur Smith, Q-Tip, Tone Loc, Billy Zane, Lori Petty. Ambitious but fatally pretentious saga of a melancholy South Central L.A. beautician (Jackson), who has retreated from the world after her boyfriend's murder; mailman Shakur attempts to break through to her, with predictable results. Implausibly, the poetry this otherwise ordinary woman composes actually is the work of Maya Angelou (who appears on-screen as Aunt June). Jackson is OK in her screen debut. [R]▼

Point Blank (1967) C-92m. ½ D: John Boorman. Lee Marvin, Angie Dickinson, Keenan Wynn, Carroll O'Connor, Lloyd Bochner, Michael Strong, John Vernon. Marvin, shot and left for dead by unfaithful wife and mobster boyfriend, gets revenge two years later. Taut thriller, ignored in 1967, but now regarded as a top film of the decade. Based on the novel The Hunter by Donald E. Westlake (writing as Richard Stark). Remade as PAYBACK in 1999. Panavision. ▼

Point Break (1991) C-122m. ½ D: Kathryn Bigelow. Patrick Swayze, Keanu Reeves, Gary Busey, Lori Petty, John McGinley, James LeGros, John Philbin, Sydney Walsh, Vincent Klyn, Julian Reyes, Tom Sizemore. Maverick FBI agent Reeves is sent undercover into Southern California's surfing community to investigate a baffling series of perfect bank robberies. Incredible, mind-numbing plotline redeemed by great surfing and skydiving scenes. Assured, fast-moving direction by Bigelow keeps this movie hanging five, if not ten . . . though Swayze is in desperate need of a hair stylist here. Super 35. [R]▼

Point of No Return (1993) C-109m. *½

D: John Badham. Bridget Fonda, Gabriel Byrne, Dermot Mulroney, Anne Bancroft, Harvey Keitel, Miguel Ferrer, Olivia d'Abo, Richard Romanus, Lorraine Toussaint, Geoffrey Lewis, Calvin Levels. An awful, slicked-up Hollywoodization of LA FEMME NIKITA, with punkish criminal Fonda recruited by the U.S. government to shoot up a chi-chi Washington restaurant (with the Washington Post nowhere in sight). Not a genuine emotion to be found until Mulroney shows up; even then, not many more. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Point Zero SEE: Ski Bum, The

Poison (1991) C-85m.  D: Todd Haynes. Edith Meeks, Larry Maxwell, Susan Norman, Scott Renderer, James Lyons. Jarring, disturbing film about what it means to be different, to be alienated from the mainstream, consisting of three skillfully interwoven stories: a mock documentary about a seven-year-old who's shot and killed his father, and summarily disappeared; a 1950s sci-fi movie parody, in which a brilliant scientist ingests some serum and becomes disfigured; and the chronicle of a gay thief who arrives at a prison. Scripted by Haynes, and inspired by the writings of Jean Genet. [NC-17]▼●●

Poison Ivy (1992) C-89m.  D: Katt Shea Ruben. Drew Barrymore, Sara Gilbert, Tom Skerritt, Cheryl Ladd, Leonardo DiCaprio. Blah melodrama about a slutty teen (Barrymore, who is well cast), and the insidious influence she has on the members of a wealthy, troubled family: shy Gilbert, her alcoholic dad (Skerritt) and dying mom (Ladd), and even the pet pooch. More subtlety and character development would have helped. Followed by four DVD sequels. [R]▼●●

Pokémon: The First Movie (1998-Japanese) C-75m. *½ D: Kuniniko Yuyama, Michael Haigney. Voices of Veronica Taylor, Philip Bartlett, Rachel Lillis, Eric Stuart, Addie Blaustein. Kids' video game/TV show/card game phenomenon hits the big screen with OK story about a mutated Pokémon clone, Mewtwo, who plans to take over the world. Not very exciting, with barely adequate animation, but kids probably won't mind. Subtitle on-screen is MEWTWO STRIKES BACK. Followed by four sequels. [G]▼●

Pokémon the Movie 2000 (2000-Japanese-U.S.) C-85m. *½ D: Kuniniko Yuyama, Michael Haigney. Voices of Veronica Taylor, Rachel Lillis, Addie Blaustein, Eric Stuart, Ed Paul. Sequel to hit movie is subtitled THE POWER OF ONE. Once again, young Ash and his pals face off against a powerful enemy, a super-scientific Pokémon collector (and his CGI flying fortress) who unleashes a flying pokémon. Lots of thunderbolts and effects animation, but no one to root for. You can skip the opening short, PIKACHU'S RESCUE ADVENTURE. [G]▼●

Pokémon 3: The Movie (2001-Japanese-U.S.) C-90m.  D: Kuniniko Yuyama, Michael Haigney. Voices of Veronica Taylor, Eric Stuart, Rachel Lillis, Addie Blaustein, Ikue Otani. Most coherent and colorful of the Pokémon movies (admittedly, a small compliment). This time "unknown" Pokémon kidnap a mother and father, and use their small daughter to paralyze a town and challenge our young heroes Ash, Brock, and Misty. Preceded by a short episode with little Pikachu and his Poké-pals getting lost in the big city. Subtitled: SPELL OF THE UNKNOWN. Followed by POKÉMON 4EVER, then, in 2003, POKÉMON HEROES. [G]▼●

Polar Express, The (2004) C-100m. ½ D: Robert Zemeckis. Tom Hanks, Michael Jeter, Peter Scolari, Nona Gaye, Eddie Deezen, Charles Fleischer, Steven Tyler; voice of Daryl Sabara. Boy who desperately wants to see Santa Claus with his own eyes on a snowy Christmas Eve gets more than he bargained for when he boards a railroad train that stops right in front of his house. Expansion of Chris Van Allsburg's beautifully illustrated children's book (set in the 1950s Midwest) retains a feeling of wonder as the boy and newfound friends journey to the North Pole. "Performance Capture" digital animation renders all the characters slightly unreal—the kids look like they're wearing dentures—but aside from enabling Tom Hanks to play five roles it doesn't seem to have been worth all the bother. Still an entertaining-enough adventure for children. Nice songs by Glen Ballard and Alan Silvestri mix with vintage holiday favorites. Also available as a 3-D DVD. Digital Wide-screen. [G]▼●

Pola X (1999-French-Swiss-German-Japanese) C-129m.  D: Léos Carax. Guillaume Depardieu, Katerina Golubeva, Catherine Deneuve, Laurent Lucas, Patachou, Petruta Catana, Mihaella Silaghi. Young aristocrat (Depardieu), the author of a cult novel, is engaged to a sweet, beautiful woman, but then a second woman enters his life. She is crazed, semi-coherent, and claims to be his half sister. This psychological portrait is an exploration of obsession, identity, and madness, but is way overlong and oozes pretension. Ambitious, but awfully hard to sit through. Based on an obscure Herman Melville novel, Pierre, or the Ambiguities. ▼●

Police (1984-French) C-113m. ½ D: Maurice Pialat. Gérard Depardieu, Sophie Marceau, Richard Anconina, Pascale Rocard, Sandrine Bonnaire. Taut but repetitive drama about the thin line separating cop and criminal. Depardieu is a brutal, sex-obsessed, love-starved policeman attempting to break up a drug ring; he becomes involved with tough young Marceau, one of the dealers.

Police Academy (1984) C-95m. ½ D:

Hugh Wilson. Steve Guttenberg, G. W. Bailey, George Gaynes, Kim Cattrall, Bubba Smith, Michael Winslow, Andrew Rubin, David Graf, Bruce Mahler, Leslie Easterbrook, Georgina Spelvin. Generally good-natured comedy (with typical '80s doses of sexism and tastelessness) about a group of weirdos and misfits who enroll in big-city police academy. Winslow's comic sound effects are perfect antidote for slow spots in script. Followed by far too many sequels, a TV series, and an animated TV series. [R] ▼●●

Police Academy 2: Their First Assignment (1985) C-87m. BOMB D: Jerry Paris. Steve Guttenberg, Bubba Smith, David Graf, Michael Winslow, Bruce Mahler, Marion Ramsey, Colleen Camp, Howard Hesseman, Art Metrano, George Gaynes, Ed Herlihy. Dreadful follow-up to 1984 hit (with different writers and director responsible). There are Dragnet episodes with more laughs than this movie. [PG-13] ▼●●

Police Academy 3: Back in Training (1986) C-82m. *1/2 D: Jerry Paris. Steve Guttenberg, Bubba Smith, David Graf, Michael Winslow, Marion Ramsey, Leslie Easterbrook, Art Metrano, Tim Kazurinsky, Bobcat Goldthwait, George Gaynes, Shawn Weatherly. An improvement over #2, but that's not saying much: just another collection of pea-brained gags and amateurish performances. [PG] ▼●●

Police Academy 5: Assignment Miami Beach (1988) C-90m. BOMB D: Alan Myerson. Bubba Smith, George Gaynes, G.W. Bailey, David Graf, Michael Winslow, Leslie Easterbrook, Marion Ramsey, Janet Jones, Matt McCoy. Gaynes is in Miami to receive an award before his mandatory retirement; arch-rival Bailey comes along to gum up the works. Fourth attempt to improve on imperfection is no charm; what can you say about a sequel that Steve Guttenberg won't even appear in? [PG] ▼●●

Police Academy 6: City Under Siege (1989) C-83m. BOMB D: Peter Bonerz. Bubba Smith, David Graf, Michael Winslow, Leslie Easterbrook, Marion Ramsey, Lance Kinsey, Matt McCoy, Bruce Mahler, G.W. Bailey, George Gaynes, Kenneth Mars, Gerrit Graham. Those wacky cops are back to solve a crime wave perpetrated by a trio that makes The Three Stooges look like Nobel laureates. This entry is only—repeat only—for those who thought POLICE ACADEMY 5 was robbed at Oscar time. [PG] ▼●●

Police Academy VII: Mission to Moscow (1994) C-83m. BOMB D: Alan Metter. G. W. Bailey, George Gaynes, Michael Winslow, David Graf, Leslie Easterbrook, Claire Forlani, Ron Perlman, Christopher Lee, Charlie Schlatter. They waited five years to make another chapter in this mindless series. It wasn't worth the wait. [PG] ▼●●

Police Force SEE: Police Story (1985)
Police Story (1985-Hong Kong) C-89m.  D: Jackie Chan. Jackie Chan, Bridget Lin, Maggie Cheung, Cho Yuen, Bill Tung, Kenneth Tong. Lightning-paced kung fu comedy about cop Chan, a one-man police force attempting to get the goods on some thugs. Crammed with incredible stuntwork; a real popcorn movie that's perfect for fans of the genre. Aka JACKIE CHAN'S POLICE STORY and POLICE FORCE. Followed by three sequels. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Police Story Part 2 (1988-Hong Kong) C-90m.  D: Jackie Chan. Jackie Chan, Maggie Cheung, Bill Tung, Lam Kowk-Hung, Crystal Kwok, Hoh Yuen, Henny Ho. This sequel is a slight step down for Chan as his Hong Kong cop tries to stop a wave of bomb threats. Some awesome stunts and fine comic touches, but not as well constructed as its predecessor. Followed by a third installment. Technovision. ▼●●

Police Story III: Supercop (1992-Hong Kong) C-96m. 1/2 D: Stanley Tong. Jackie Chan, Michelle (Yeaoh) Khan, Maggie Cheung, Yuen Wah, Bill Tung Piu, Ken Tsang. Third in series benefits greatly from presence of Khan, a fine action star in her own right. The two stars play cops teaming up against drug smugglers. Highlights include Khan jumping a motorcycle onto a moving train and Chan dangling from a careening helicopter. Plot slows down at times, but climactic action sequences make up for it. 1996 U.S. release version cut to 91m. and redubbed in English with a new music score. Aka SUPERCOP. Followed by POLICE STORY IV: CRIME STORY. Technovision. [R] ▼●●

Polish Wedding (1998) C-101m.  D: Theresa Connelly, Gabriel Byrne, Lena Olin, Claire Danes, Mili Avital, Daniel Lapaine, Rade Serbedzija, Adam Trese, Ramsey Krull, Steven Petrarca. Picaresque slice of life about a Polish-American family in Detroit. The mother of the household (Olin) is an incredible life force who is fiercely proud of her family; her husband (Byrne) has long since resigned himself to a passive role. But their daughter (Danes) is eager to experience life—perhaps too eager. First time writer-director Connelly perfectly captures the look and feel of this unusual family and the suburban atmosphere in which they live. [PG-13] ▼●●

Pollock (2000) C-117m. 1/2 D: Ed Harris. Ed Harris, Marcia Gay Harden, Amy Madigan, Jennifer Connelly, Val Kilmer, Jeffrey

Tambor, Bud Cort, John Heard, Stephanie Seymour, Tom Bower, Sada Thompson. Vivid portrait of a tortured soul, groundbreaking modern artist Jackson Pollock, superbly played by Harris, with Harden in an Oscar-winning performance as Lee Krasner, who forsook her own career to shepherd his and become his wife. First-time director Harris manages to capture the wonder of a genius at work. Difficult but rewarding. Screenplay by Barbara Turner and Susan J. Emshwiller, from the book Jackson Pollock: An American Saga by Steven Naifeh and Gregory White Smith. [R]▼

Pollyanna (1960) C-134m. ½ D: David Swift. Hayley Mills, Jane Wyman, Richard Egan, Karl Malden, Nancy Olson, Adolphe Menjou, Donald Crisp, Agnes Moorehead. Disney's treatment of Eleanor Porter story is first-rate, as "the glad girl" spreads cheer to misanthropes of a New England town, including her own Aunt Polly (Wyman). Fine direction and script by Swift, excellent performances all around. Mills was awarded a special Oscar for Outstanding Juvenile Performance. First filmed in 1920 with Mary Pickford. Remade for TV in 1989 as POLLY.▼

Poltergeist (1982) C-114m. ½ D: Tobe Hooper. Craig T. Nelson, JoBeth Williams, Beatrice Straight, Dominique Dunne, Oliver Robins, Heather O'Rourke, Zelda Rubinstein, Richard Lawson, James Karen. A young family finds its home invaded by unfriendly spirits, who "kidnap" their 5-year-old girl! Sensationally scary ghost story co-written and co-produced by Steven Spielberg. Paced like a roller-coaster ride, with dazzling special effects—and a refreshing sense of humor. Followed by two sequels. J-D-C Scope. [PG]▼

Poltergeist II (1986) C-91m. ½ D: Brian Gibson. JoBeth Williams, Craig T. Nelson, Heather O'Rourke, Oliver Robins, Zelda Rubinstein, Will Sampson, Julian Beck, Geraldine Fitzgerald. The Freeling family is terrorized again by otherworld creatures. Another pointless sequel made palatable by some jolting state-of-the-art special effects and a still-very-likable family. Be warned that an actor receives billing as The Vomit Creature. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Poltergeist III (1988) C-97m.  D: Gary Sherman. Tom Skerritt, Nancy Allen, Heather O'Rourke, Zelda Rubinstein, Lara Flynn Boyle, Kip Wentz, Richard Fire. O'Rourke moves in with uncle Skerritt and aunt Allen—and is still pursued by strange, evil forces. Undistinguished and occasionally plodding; eerily, young O'Rourke died four months before the film's release. [PG-13]▼

Polyester (1981) C-86m. ½ D: John Waters. Divine, Tab Hunter, Edith Massey, Mary Garlington, Ken King, David Samson, Mink Stole, Stiv Bators. Waters' first mainstream feature is wacky middle-class satire; housewife Francine Fishpaw (Divine), driven to the brink by nightmarish husband, children, and mother, is "rescued" by handsome drive-in owner Todd Tomorrow (Hunter). Less offensive than Waters' underground films, but still not for all tastes; Vincent Peranio's sets are hilariously hideous. Released in "Odorama"—with audience members given scratch-and-sniff cards. [R]▼

Pom-Pom Girls, The (1976) C-90m.  D: Joseph Ruben. Robert Carradine, Jennifer Ashley, Lisa Reeves, Michael Mullins, Bill Adler. Comedy about spoiled suburban teenagers who celebrate their senior year having food fights, making love in the back of vans, and stealing a fire truck. Routinely good-natured mayhem. [PG—edited from original R rating]▼

Pompatus of Love, The (1996) C-99m.  D: Richard Schenkman. Jon Cryer, Adrian Pasdar, Tim Guinee, Adam Oliensis, Mia Sara, Kristin Scott Thomas, Arabella Field, Paige Turco, Dana Wheeler-Nicholson, Kristen Wilson, Michael McKean, Fisher Stevens, Jennifer Tilly, Roscoe Lee Browne, Jenny McCarthy. Yet another smug and talky ensemble comedy about self-absorbed guys struggling with life and love in the '90s. Though it's an obvious labor of love for cowriters Schenkman, Cryer, and Oliensis, it's just a passable example of a deadly subgenre. Title takes its name from a song lyric in "The Joker," which is sung here by the original artist, Steve Miller, and also by Sheryl Crow. [R]▼

Ponette (1996-French) C-97m. ½ D: Jacques Doillon. Victoire Thivisol, Matiaz Bureau Caton, Delphine Schiltz, Xavier Beauvois, Claire Nebout, Marie Trintignant. Heart-rending, if unfulfilling, tale of a 4-year-old (Thivisol) who survives a car accident in which her mother is killed. Poignant look at the death of a parent, as the young girl tries to understand and cope with her mom's absence. Doillon, who also scripted, truly captures life through the eyes of a child, but there's more emotion than substance, and the ending is a cop-out. Thivisol's amazingly naturalistic performance is the film's greatest strength.▼

Pontiac Moon (1994) C-108m. ½ D: Peter Medak. Ted Danson, Mary Steenburgen, Ryan Todd, Eric Schweig, Cathy Moriarty, Max Gail, Lisa Jane Persky, J. C. Quinn, John Schuck, Don Swayze. Eccentric pop (Danson) takes 11-year-old son on dusty road trip to coincide with Apollo XI moon landing in July 1969. Think agoraphobic mom (Steenburgen) will finally have the guts to leave the house and follow them? 11-year-olds may like this. Panavision. [PG-13]▼

Pontius Pilate (1962-Italian-French) C-100m.  D: Irving Rapper. Jean Marais, Jeanne Crain, Basil Rathbone, John Drew

Barrymore, Massimo Serato, Leticia Roman. Adequate retelling of events before and after Christ's crucifixion from viewpoint of Roman procurator. Dubbing and confused script hamper good intentions. Barrymore plays Christ and Judas. CinemaScope.

Pony Express (1953) C-101m.  D: Jerry Hopper. Charlton Heston, Rhonda Fleming, Jan Sterling, Forrest Tucker. Exuberant action Western (set in 1860s) of the founding of mail routes westward, involving historical figures Buffalo Bill and Wild Bill Hickok. ▼

Pony Express Rider (1976) C-100m.  D: Robert Totten. Stewart Petersen, Henry Wilcoxon, Buck Taylor, Maureen McCormick, Joan Caulfield, Ken Curtis, Slim Pickens, Dub Taylor, Jack Elam. Good family outing with Peterson joining Pony Express in 1861 to help find the man whom he believes has killed his father. [G] ▼

Pooh's Heffalump Movie (2005) C-67m. ½ D: Frank Nissen. Voices of Jim Cummings, John Fiedler, Kath Soucie, Nikita Hopkins, Ken Sansom, Peter Cullen, Brenda Blethyn, Kyle Stanger. Depending on what you bring to it, Disney's trek back to A. A. Milne's Hundred Acre Wood will either be charmingly unpretentious in a minor key or a lost opportunity. Short running time helps, in any event, as the Wood crew takes off to find the supposedly frightening heffalump, which is actually a baby-Dumbo type named Lumpy and no threat at all to finder Roo (who's also a tot). Movie preaches tolerance to 4- and 5-year-olds, close to the age peak of the target audience. Features songs by Carly Simon. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [G] ▼

Pool, The (2008) C-104m.  D: Chris Smith. Venkatesh Chavan, Jhangir Badshah, Ayesha Mohan, Nana Patekar. Two impoverished young boys fend for themselves on the streets of Panjim, India, doing odd jobs to survive, but one of them (Chavan) has higher aspirations: he's admired the serene swimming pool at an estate on the hill overlooking the city. He tells his friend he's going to swim in it—not by sneaking in, but by invitation. Disarmingly simple film draws on the real lives and personalities of its youthful stars (nonprofessionals working with documentary filmmaker Smith) as its warmly humanistic story unfolds. A sleeper well worth discovering.

Poolhall Junkies (2003) C-94m.  D: Mars Callahan. Chazz Palminteri, Rick Schroder, Rod Steiger, Michael Rosenbaum, Mars Callahan, Alison Eastwood, Christopher Walken, Anson Mount, Peter Mark Richman, Glenn Plummer, Peter Dobson, Ernie Reyes, Jr. Callahan cowrote, directed, and stars in this highly forgettable film about a promising pool player who wants to go pro, but is steered instead toward a life of hustling by his mentor (Palminteri). The rest of the "story" is a mess, with no real focus and poorly delineated characters. Walken (yet again) provides the film's brightest moments as a wealthy man who takes an interest in Callahan. Completed in 2001. [R] ▼

Poor Cow (1967-British) C-104m. ½ D: Kenneth Loach. Carol White, Terence Stamp, John Bindon, Kate Williams, Queenie Watts, Malcolm McDowell. OK drama about working-class loners, centering on promiscuous White's relationship with husband (Bindon), a thief, and his best friend (Stamp), whom she really loves. McDowell's film debut; Loach's feature directorial debut.

Poor Little Rich Girl (1936) 72m. ½ D: Irving Cummings. Shirley Temple, Alice Faye, Jack Haley, Gloria Stuart, Michael Whalen, Jane Darwell, Claude Gillingwater, Henry Armetta. One of Shirley's best films, a top musical on any terms, with Temple running away from home, joining vaudeville team of Haley and Faye, winning over crusty Gillingwater, eventually joining her father (Whalen) and lovely Stuart. Best of all is closing "Military Man" number. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Pootie Tang (2001) C-81m. BOMB D: Louis C.K. Lance Crouther, Chris Rock, Jennifer Coolidge, Robert Vaughn, Wanda Sykes. Jumbled junk, spun off from skits on Rock's HBO show, finds Crouther's "folk hero" compromised by evil mogul Vaughn, who wants to exploit Pootie's sacred rep by getting him to hawk unhealthy products. Without extended credit sequences and painful interludes featuring Bob Costas in faux interviews, this would barely run an hour and small change. Rock plays two roles: a hanger-on and Pootie's laborer dad, killed by a gorilla in a steel-mill mishap. (Don't ask—and don't watch.) [PG-13] ▼

Pop & Me (2000) C-92m. ½ D: Chris Roe. Heartwarming—if slick—documentary of 29-year-old Roe's six-month journey around the world with his dad, Richard, interviewing fathers and sons across the globe (including a random encounter in Monaco with Julian Lennon, who comes clean about his famous genes) and learning about their own relationship in the process. Real-life male weepie is perfect Father's Day fare. [PG-13] ▼

Popcorn (1991) C-93m.  D: Mark Herrier. Jill Schoelen, Tom Villard, Dee Wallace Stone, Tony Roberts, Ray Walston, Elliott Hurst, Yvette Glover, Derek Rydall, Malcolm Danare, Bruce Sular. Film students put on a round-the-clock fundraiser of schlocky '50s horror pics—and who should be haunting the premises and projection booth but a ghoulish psychopathic killer? Amusing idea, awkwardly executed, though there are some knowing re-creations of vintage b&w B's. Stone, Roberts, and Walston must have been hired for about a day's shooting apiece. [R] ▼

Pope Joan (1972-British) C-132m. BOMB D: Michael Anderson. Liv Ullmann, Keir Dullea, Robert Beatty, Jeremy Kemp, Olivia de Havilland, Patrick Magee, Maximilian Schell, Trevor Howard, Franco Nero, Nigel Havers, Lesley-Anne Down, Andre Morell. Dim story of woman who, disguised as man, works her way up to the papacy, only to be destroyed when revealed. Performers seem to be embarrassed, as well they should; screenplay by John Briley. Also shown in 112m. version. Reissued as THE DEVIL'S IMPOSTOR, with much material cut. Panavision. [PG]●

Pope Must Die, The (1991-British) C-97m. ½ D: Peter Richardson. Robbie Coltrane, Beverly D'Angelo, Herbert Lom, Alex Rocco, Paul Bartel, Salvatore Cascio, Balthazar Getty, Peter Richardson, Robert Stephens, Annette Crosbie. So-so satire with Coltrane an honest small-town priest who, via computer error, becomes the new pontiff and finds himself in conflict with cardinal Rocco and mobster Lom. Occasionally clever but goes overboard once too often, descending into outright silliness. Controversy over the title in U.S. release caused its distributor to rename it THE POPE MUST DIET(!) [R]●●

Pope of Greenwich Village, The (1984) C-120m.  D: Stuart Rosenberg. Eric Roberts, Mickey Rourke, Daryl Hannah, Geraldine Page, Kenneth McMillan, Tony Musante, M. Emmet Walsh, Burt Young, Jack Kehoe, Philip Bosco, Val Avery, Joe Grifasi. Richly textured, sharply observant film about a young hustler in N.Y.C.'s Little Italy and his inability to separate himself from a cousin (Roberts) who's a perpetual screw-up. Not so much a story as a collection of character studies; Page stands out in great supporting cast, as harridan mother of crooked cop. Based on Vincent Patrick's novel. [R]●●

Popeye (1980) C-114m. BOMB D: Robert Altman. Robin Williams, Shelley Duvall, Ray Walston, Paul Smith, Paul Dooley, Richard Libertini, Wesley Ivan Hurt, Linda Hunt. The beloved sailorman (Williams, in his starring debut) boards a sinking ship in this astonishingly boring movie. A game cast does its best with Jules Feiffer's unfunny script, Altman's cluttered staging, and some alleged songs by Harry Nilsson. Tune in an old Max Fleischer cartoon instead. Technovision. [PG]●●

Popi (1969) C-115m.  D: Arthur Hiller. Alan Arkin, Rita Moreno, Miguel Alejandro, Ruben Figueroa. Charming story of poverty in the ghetto, focusing on one man's often zany antics in securing better life for his children. Odd ending for far-fetched story. [G]●

Poppy (1936) 75m. ½ D: A. Edward Sutherland. W. C. Fields, Rochelle Hudson, Richard Cromwell, Catherine Doucet,

Lynne Overman. Mild Fields, re-creating his stage role as Hudson's ever-conning dad. Too much romantic subplot, not enough of W. C.'s antics. The Great Man also starred in a silent version, SALLY OF THE SAWDUST.●

Poppy Is Also a Flower, The (1966) C-100m. BOMB D: Terence Young. Senta Berger, Stephen Boyd, E. G. Marshall, Trevor Howard, Eli Wallach, Marcello Mastroianni, Angie Dickinson, Rita Hayworth, Yul Brynner, Trini Lopez, Gilbert Roland, Bessie Love. Incredibly bad anti-drug feature from story by Ian Fleming, originally produced as United Nations project for TV. Acting is downright poor at times. Though never referred to that way, title actually appears on-screen as POPPIES ARE ALSO FLOWERS. Aka THE OPIUM CONNECTION.▼●

Popsy Pop SEE: Butterfly Affair, The Porgy and Bess (1959) C-138m. ½ D: Otto Preminger. Sidney Poitier, Dorothy Dandridge, Pearl Bailey, Sammy Davis, Jr., Brock Peters, Diahann Carroll, Ivan Dixon, Clarence Muse. Classic Gershwin folk opera about love, dreams, and jealousy among poor folk of Catfish Row; a bit stiff, but full of incredible music: "Summertime," "It Ain't Necessarily So," "I Got Plenty of Nothin'." Davis shines as Sportin' Life. Music arrangers Andre Previn and Ken Darby won Oscars. Final film of producer Samuel Goldwyn. Todd-AO.

Pork Chop Hill (1959) 97m.  D: Lewis Milestone. Gregory Peck, Harry Guardino, Rip Torn, George Peppard, James Edwards, Bob Steele, George Shibata, Biff Elliot, Woody Strode, Robert Blake, Norman Fell, Martin Landau, Bert Remsen, (Harry) Dean Stanton, Gavin MacLeod. Gritty Korean War combat film about the taking of a seemingly worthless hill, and the political (and communications) problems that interfere with lieutenant Peck's efforts to get the job done. Impressive cast of stars-to-be. Based on a true story.▼●●

Porky's (1981-Canadian) C-94m. ½ D: Bob Clark. Dan Monahan, Mark Herrier, Wyatt Knight, Roger Wilson, Kim Cattrall, Scott Colomby, Kaki Hunter, Nancy Parsons, Alex Karras, Susan Clark. A lusty, fun-loving bunch of high school guys in South Florida circa 1954 discover that sex is great, revenge is sweet, and Jews are OK after all. Some belly laughs. This raunchy, low-budget comedy made a fortune—and spawned two sequels. [R]●●●

Porky's II: The Next Day (1983-Canadian) C-95m. *½ D: Bob Clark. Dan Monahan, Wyatt Knight, Mark Herrier, Roger Wilson, Kaki Hunter, Scott Colomby, Nancy Parsons, Edward Winter. In-name-only sequel has same cast of kids in new (and tamer) set of escapades—with no coherency, and not even the raunchiness that made the first film so popular. Sequel: PORKY'S REVENGE. [R]▼●●

Porky's Revenge (1985) C-91m. BOMB D: James Komack. Dan Monahan, Wyatt Knight, Tony Ganos, Kaki Hunter, Mark Herrier, Scott Colomby. Will the gang throw the big high school basketball game or won't they? Beware of high-school seniors with post-collegiate hairlines; these guys are starting to look older than the mid-'50s Bowery Boys. This Revenge is preferable to Montezuma's—but not by much. [R]▼●●

Porridge SEE: Doing Time

Portnoy's Complaint (1972) C-101m. BOMB D: Ernest Lehman. Richard Benjamin, Karen Black, Lee Grant, Jack Somack, Jeannie Berlin, Jill Clayburgh. Karen Black's excellent portrayal of "The Monkey" is buried in otherwise incredibly inept filmization of Philip Roth's novel about a not exactly warm relationship between Jewish boy and his mother. Terrible directorial debut by famed screenwriter Lehman. Panavision. [R]▼

Port of Call (1948-Swedish) 95m.  D: Ingmar Bergman. Nine-Christine Jonsson, Bengt Eklund, Erik Hell, Berta Hall, Mimi Nelson. Slim, minor early Bergman drama about troubled young outcast Jonsson and her relationship with seaman Eklund. Setting is a grim harbor slum, and film's ultimately hopeful, upbeat tone just doesn't ring true.▼●

Portrait of a Hitman (1977) C-86m. BOMB D: Allan A. Buckhantz. Jack Palance, Richard Roundtree, Rod Steiger, Bo Svenson, Ann Turkel, Philip Ahn. Gangster Steiger hires "sensitive" hit man Palance to kill Svenson, but there are complications: Svenson is a pal who once saved Palance's life, and both of them are in love with Turkel. B movie has ragged structure that makes it seem like an unfinished feature. Originally titled JIM BUCK.▼

Portrait of a Lady, The (1996-British) C-144m.  D: Jane Campion. Nicole Kidman, John Malkovich, Barbara Hershey, Mary-Louise Parker, Martin Donovan, Shelley Winters, Richard E. Grant, Shelley Duval, Christian Bale, Viggo Mortensen, John Gielgud. Long, often boring, and strikingly ineffectual adaptation of Henry James' novel about a young American woman, determined to live an independent life in Europe during the late 1800s. For reasons never made clear in the film, she decides to marry a man who turns out to be a spiteful, manipulative rotter. Good performances and handsome production can't overcome the dreariness of the material. A very odd, "Campionesque" prologue attempts to set a contemporary tone for what is to follow. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Portrait of Jennie (1948) 86m.  D: William Dieterle. Jennifer Jones, Joseph Cotten, Ethel Barrymore, Lillian Gish, Cecil Kellaway, David Wayne, Albert Sharpe, Henry Hull, Florence Bates, Felix Bressart. Strange otherworldly girl Jones inspires penniless artist Cotten. David O. Selznick craftsmanship and a fine cast work wonders with foolish story based on the Robert Nathan novella. Originally released with last reel tinted green and final shot in Technicolor; the special effects earned an Academy Award.▼●

Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man, A (1979) C-98m.  D: Joseph Strick. Bosco Hogan, T. P. McKenna, John Gielgud, Rosaleen Linehan, Maureen Potter, Niall Buggy, Brian Murray. Literate adaptation (by Judith Rascoe) of James Joyce's legendary first novel; it focuses on Stephen Dedalus (Hogan), who questions his faith as he reaches manhood in turn-of-the-20th-century Dublin. McKenna, Linehan, and Potter play, respectively, Simon and May Dedalus, and Dante; in ULYSSES, which Strick made a dozen years before, they appeared as Buck Mulligan, Nurse Callan, and Josie Breen respectively. Filmed in Ireland.▼●

Poseidon (2006) C-99m.  D: Wolfgang Petersen. Josh Lucas, Kurt Russell, Richard Dreyfuss, Jacinda Barrett, Emmy Rossum, Mía Maestro, Jimmy Bennett, Mike Vogel, Andre Braugher, Kevin Dillon, Freddy Rodriguez, Fergie. When a "rogue wave" overturns a luxury ocean liner, a random group of passengers bands together to find a way to escape—and survive. Who will live? Who will die? Who will care? Well-paced remake of the 1972 hit has everything money can buy, and the requisite moments of suspense and action, but its characters are flat and uninteresting. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Poseidon Adventure, The (1972) C-117m.  D: Ronald Neame. Gene Hackman, Ernest Borgnine, Red Buttons, Carol Lynley, Roddy McDowall, Stella Stevens, Shelley Winters, Jack Albertson, Leslie Nielsen, Pamela Sue Martin, Arthur O'Connell, Eric Shea. Mindless but engrossing, highly charged entertainment—the vanguard of the decade's "disaster film" genre.

Luxury cruise ship capsized by tidal wave, leaving small band of survivors to make way to top (bottom) of ship and hopefully escape. Introductory sequences are laughably bad, but one soon gets caught up in the story and ignores script's weaknesses. Oscar-winning song: "The Morning After"; also earned a special Oscar for special effects. Sequel: BEYOND THE POSEIDON ADVENTURE. Remade in 2006 and for TV in 2005. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Posse (1975) C-94m.  D: Kirk Douglas, Kirk Douglas, Bruce Dern, Bo Hopkins, James Stacy, Luke Askew, David Canary. Offbeat but solid Western about a cynical lawman who tries to fulfill political ambitions by capturing an escaped robber, only to find the people are siding with the outlaw! Well photographed (by Fred Koenekamp) and well performed. Panavision. [PG]▼●●

Posse (1993-U.S.-British) C-109m.  D: Mario Van Peebles, Mario Van Peebles, Stephen Baldwin, Charles Lane, Tiny Lister, Jr., Big Daddy Kane, Billy Zane, Blair Underwood, Melvin Van Peebles, Salli Richardson, Tone Loc, Pam Grier, Vesta Williams, Isaac Hayes, Robert Hooks, Richard Jordan, Paul Bartel, Stephen J. Cannell, Nipsey Russell, Reginald VelJohnson, Woody Strode, Aaron Neville, Warrington and Reginald Hudlin. Noisy, violent, but politically correct Western about a mostly black posse who do battle with a pompous, racist colonel, and a vicious white sheriff who wants to take over a peaceful black frontier settlement. Game attempt at a new take on the Old West, but at its core it's thoroughly conventional. Followed by a video sequel, LOS LOCOS: POSSE RIDES AGAIN. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Posse From Hell (1961) C-89m. ½ D: Herbert Coleman. Audie Murphy, John Saxon, Zohra Lampert, Vic Morrow, Lee Van Cleef. Gunslinger Murphy, a loner, agrees to pursue four deadly outlaws after they've robbed a bank and kidnapped a young woman, but he's saddled with an inexperienced posse. Murphy vehicle is surprisingly thoughtful and well written.

Possessed (1931) 76m.  D: Clarence Brown. Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Wallace Ford, Skeets Gallagher, John Miljan. Factory girl Crawford becomes the mistress of Park Avenue lawyer Gable. Fascinating feminist drama, crammed with symbolism and featuring a radiant Crawford. Outrageous pre-Code script by Lenore Coffee.▼●

Possessed (1947) 108m.  D: Curtis Bernhardt. Joan Crawford, Van Heflin, Raymond Massey, Geraldine Brooks, Stanley Ridges. Crawford gives fine performance in intelligent study of woman whose subtle mental problems lead to ruin. Heflin and Massey are the men in her life; Brooks, as Massey's daughter, is radiant in her film debut. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼●●

Possession (1981-French-West German) C-127m. *½ D: Andrzej Zulawski. Isabelle Adjani, Sam Neill, Heinz Bennent, Margit Carstensen, Michael Hogen. Adjani "creates" a monster, to the consternation of husband Neill, lover Bennent—and the viewer. Confusing drama of murder, horror, intrigue, though it's all attractively directed. Filmed in English; hacked down to 81m. for American release. [R]▼●

Possession (2002) C-119m.  D: Neil LaBute. Gwyneth Paltrow, Aaron Eckhart, Jeremy Northam, Jennifer Ehle, Trevor Eve, Toby Stephens, Anna Massey, Graham Crowden, Lena Headey, Tom Hollander. Two modern-day academics—an impulsive American man and a cool British woman—become unlikely partners in ferreting out a mystery about a renowned romantic poet of the mid-1800s. The period story is beautifully acted and staged, but the modern story is just the opposite—full of ludicrous dialogue and arch, affected performances. Based on a novel by A. S. Byatt. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●

Possession of Joel Delaney, The (1972) C-105m.  D: Waris Hussein. Shirley MacLaine, Perry King, Lisa Kohane, David Elliott, Michael Hordern, Miriam Colon, Lovelady Powell. Uneven but satisfying mix of horror and social commentary with unsympathetic, affluent Manhattanite MacLaine threatened by mysterious transformations of her brother Joel (King). Offbeat throughout. [R]▼●

Possession of Nurse Sherri, The SEE: Beyond the Living

Postcards From the Edge (1990) C-101m. ½ D: Mike Nichols. Meryl Streep, Shirley MacLaine, Dennis Quaid, Gene Hackman, Richard Dreyfuss, Rob Reiner, Mary Wickes, Conrad Bain, Annette Bening, Simon Callow, Gary Morton, CCH Pounder, Sidney Arnus, Robin Bartlett, Anthony Heald, Dana Ivey, Oliver Platt, Michael Ontkean, J.D. Souther. Brilliantly cinematic rendering of Carrie Fisher's novel about a young woman falling prey to drugs while trying to pursue an acting career—in the shadow of a famous show-business mother. Vividly real, biting funny. MacLaine and Streep both have show-stopping musical numbers. Fisher wrote the screenplay. [R]▼●●

Postman, The (1994-Italian-French) C-113m. ½ D: Michael Radford. Massimo Troisi, Philippe Noiret, Maria Grazia Cucinotta, Linda Moretti, Renato Scarpa. A moving film detailing the friendship between exiled Chilean poet Pablo Neruda and the simple Italian man who delivers his mail every day. International talents combined to tell a universal story of how one person can affect another, no matter how different their life experiences may be. Noiret is masterful as always, and Troisi is understated and unforgettable in his final film role; he died of heart disease just 12 hours after the movie finished shooting. Oscar winner for Original Dramatic Score (Luis Bacalov). Original title: IL POST-INO. ▼●●

Postman, The (1997) C-177m. *½ D: Kevin Costner. Kevin Costner, Will Patton, Larenz Tate, Olivia Williams, James Russo, Daniel Von Bargen, Tom Petty, Scott Bais-tow, Roberta Maxwell, Joe Santos, Peggy Lipton, Giovanni Ribisi, Shawn Hatosy. Long, boring, pretentious allegory about an itinerant performer in the post-apocalyptic future who passes himself off as a U.S. mail carrier. In that guise, he personifies hope for several isolated communities who've been beaten down by the cruel tactics of a demagogue (Patton, in a one-note performance). A well-meaning (but complete) misfire. That's Costner's son in the film's final shot; one daughter plays a mail carrier, the other sings "America the Beautiful." Mary Stuart Masterson appears unbilled. Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Postman Always Rings Twice, The (1946) 113m. * D: Tay Garnett. Lana Turner, John Garfield, Cecil Kellaway, Hume Cronyn, Audrey Totter, Leon Ames, Alan Reed, Wally Cassell. Garfield and Turner ignite the screen in this bristling drama of lovers whose problems just begin when they do away with her husband (Kellaway). Despite complaints of changes in James M. Cain's original story (mostly for censorship purposes), the film packs a real punch and outshines the more explicit 1981 remake. Harry Ruskin and Niven Busch scripted (from Cain's novel). Filmed twice before, in France and Italy. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Postman Always Rings Twice, The (1981) C-123m. *½ D: Bob Rafelson. Jack Nicholson, Jessica Lange, John Colicos, Michael Lerner, Christopher Lloyd, John P. Ryan, Anjelica Huston. Exceedingly unpleasant adaptation of James M. Cain's Depression-era novel about a drifter and a sensual young woman who conspire to free her from her loveless marriage. David Mamet's screenplay may be more faithful to Cain than the 1946 version, but who cares? Despite its much-touted sex scenes (more violent than erotic), it's dreary and forgettable. Moodily photographed by Sven Nykvist. [R] ▼●●

Postman's Knock (1962-British) 87m.  D: Robert Lynn. Spike Milligan, Barbara Shelley, John Wood, Miles Malleon, Ronald Adam, Wilfrid Lawson. Milligan is an overly efficient postal worker who upsets the equilibrium of the London post office—and some ambitious thieves. Scattered laughs in this heavy-handed comedy. ●

Pot o' Gold (1941) 86m.  D: George Marshall. James Stewart, Paulette Goddard, Horace Heidt, Charles Winninger, Mary Gordon, Jed Prouty. Very minor item about harmonica-playing, music-mad Stewart, and his experiences with a band of struggling musicians. Stewart called this his worst movie! Look briefly for Art Carney as a radio announcer. ▼●●

Powaqqatsi (1988) C-97m. ½ D: Godfrey Reggio. Follow-up to KOY-AANISQATSI is a visual collage in which scenes of various cultures around the world are edited together to show how Third World societies have been exploited. Beautifully photographed, but the result is somehow shallow—much like a coffee-table picture book—and not nearly as impressive as its predecessor. Music is again by Philip Glass. Followed by NAQOYQATSI. [G] ▼●

Powder (1995) C-111m.  D: Victor Salva. Mary Steenburgen, Sean Patrick Flanery, Lance Henriksen, Jeff Goldblum, Brandon Smith, Bradford Tatum, Susan Tyrrell, Missy Crider, Ray Wise. Rural teen Flanery, whose skin is ghostly white and whose nickname is Powder, is the local pariah; he's scary, shy, brilliant, and seems to have electromagnetic powers (and an odd relationship to lightning storms). Suddenly he's thrust into dealing with people and prejudices for the first time in his life. Combines a zillion 1950s and 1960s B-movie themes (including reform school) into a contemporary fable. Earnest, but doesn't add up to very much. [PG-13] ▼●●

Power (1986) C-111m. *½ D: Sidney Lumet. Richard Gere, Julie Christie, Gene Hackman, Kate Capshaw, Denzel Washington, E. G. Marshall, Beatrice Straight, Fritz Weaver, Michael Learned, J. T. Walsh, E. Katherine Kerr, Matt Salinger. Slick, sanctimonious story of ruthless political media manipulator (Gere) who, it turns out, isn't as smart as he thinks he is. Subject isn't headline news anymore, but this movie treats it that way. Downright embarrassing at times. [R] ▼●●

Power and the Glory, The (1933) 76m.  D: William K. Howard. Spencer Tracy, Colleen Moore, Ralph Morgan, Helen Vinson. Considered by many a precursor to CITIZEN KANE, Preston Sturges' script tells rags-to-riches story of callous industrialist (Tracy) in flashback. Silent-star Moore gives sensitive performance as Tracy's wife.

Power of One, The (1992) C-111m.  D: John G. Avildsen. Stephen Dorff, Armin

Mueller-Stahl, Morgan Freeman, John Gielgud, Fay Masterson, Marius Weyers, Tracy Brooks Swope, John Osborne, Daniel Craig. Precisely what you'd expect when the director of ROCKY and THE KARATE KID tackles a movie about apartheid. Rah-rah mawkishness tells of a white South African lad who promotes integration by getting into the boxing ring with his oppressed black buddies. Offensive trivialization of a great subject, but at least the first half offers Freeman and Mueller-Stahl as the youth's mentors; when they're written out of the script in hour two, film becomes an ordeal to watch. [PG-13] ▼●●

Power Play (1978-Canadian-British) C-102m. *½ D: Martyn Burke. Peter O'Toole, David Hemmings, Donald Pleasence, Barry Morse, Jon Granik. Story of a military coup in a country that looks vaguely European but where everybody sounds British or Canadian. Flat, unsuspenseful drama. Aka OPERATION OVERTHROW. ▼

Powerpuff Girls, The (2002) C-74m.  D: Craig McCracken. Voices of Catherine Cavadini, Tara Strong, E. G. Daily, Roger L. Jackson, Tom Kane, Tom Kenny, Jennifer Hale. Heavy-handed expansion of the clever (and cleverly designed) animated TV series about three little girls, created by a well-meaning scientist, who have superhuman powers . . . and the evil, power-hungry Mojo Jojo, who tries to take over their city and terrorize its citizens. Fun ingredients of the series give way to violence and mayhem here. A Jimmy Durante caricature is an all-too-brief novelty. Preceded by a funny Dexter's Laboratory short subject. [PG] ▼●

P.O.W. The Escape (1986) C-90m. *½ D: Gideon Amir. David Carradine, Charles R. Floyd, Mako, Steve James, Phil Brock. Mindless, one-dimensional RAMBO variation, about some American P.O.W.s, headed by Col. Carradine, who battle their way to freedom as Saigon falls to the Commies. Formerly titled BEHIND ENEMY LINES. [R] ▼●

Powwow Highway (1989-British) C-90m.  D: Jonathan Wacks. Gary Farmer, A Martinez, Amanda Wyss, Joanelle Romero, Sam Vlahos, Wayne Waterman, Margo Kane, Graham Greene, Wes Studi. Big, amiable Cheyenne, on a "medicine" journey to New Mexico in a beat-up Buick, gives a lift to a lifelong friend, an Indian activist. Not a totally successful film, but unusual and satisfying, with a standout performance by Farmer, an immensely likable actor who makes his character both endearing and ennobling. [R] ▼●

Practical Magic (1998) C-104m.  D: Griffin Dunne. Sandra Bullock, Nicole Kidman, Aidan Quinn, Stockard Channing, Diane Wiest, Chloe Webb, Goran Visnjic, Evan Rachel Wood, Alexandra Artrip,

Mark Feuerstein. Two sisters grow up under the curse of their ancestor (a woman hanged as a witch): any man whom they truly love is doomed. Free-spirited Kidman ignores the threat and leaves their New England home. Bullock lives with her witchy aunts, all too aware of the prophecy . . . until circumstance brings the sisters back together to work some magic of their own. Extremely likable stars make this watchable, but it's a lumpy brew. Based on a book by Alice Hoffman. Super 35. [PG-13] ▼●●

Practice Makes Perfect (1978-French) C-104m.  D: Philippe de Broca. Jean Rochefort, Nicole Garcia, Annie Girardot, Danielle Darrieux, Catherine Alric, Lila Kedrova, Jean Desailly. Funny, knowing comedy about bored, self-centered concert pianist, supposedly living ideal life, eventually receiving his retribution. Rochefort is perfectly cast as engaging womanizer. ▼

Prairie Home Companion, A (2006) C-105m.  D: Robert Altman. Meryl Streep, Garrison Keillor, Kevin Kline, Lily Tomlin, Lindsay Lohan, Woody Harrelson, John C. Reilly, Virginia Madsen, Tommy Lee Jones, Maya Rudolph, Marylouise Burke, L. Q. Jones, Tim Russell, Sue Scott, Tom Keith, The Guy's All-Star Shoe Band. The extended family involved in an old-fashioned radio variety show gathers for a final performance in this bit of whimsy inspired by Keillor's real-life public radio program of the same name. Characters drift in and out, with vignettes ranging from surreal to slapstick, in a perfect melding of Keillor's humor and Altman's signature staging of ensemble scenes that seem both effortless and spontaneous. Fans will enjoy seeing performers and musicians who appear regularly on the weekly radio show. Keillor's first screenplay; Altman's final film. HD Widescreen. [PG-13] ●

Prancer (1989) C-102m.  D: John Hancock. Sam Elliott, Rebecca Harrell, Cloris Leachman, Rutanya Alda, Abe Vigoda, Ariana Richards, Michael Constantine. Eight-year-old farm girl Harrell, who marches to her own beat—and whose widowed father (Elliott) is knuckling under to financial pressure—nurses a wounded reindeer she believes is one of Santa's own. While it occasionally is a bit too obvious and cute, it's a charming fantasy about a child's undying devotion to an animal. Followed by a direct-to-video sequel. [G] ▼●●

Prayer for the Dying, A (1987-British-U.S.) C-107m. *½ D: Mike Hodges. Mickey Rourke, Bob Hoskins, Alan Bates, Sammi Davis, Christopher Fulford, Liam Neeson, Alison Doody. Ponderous adaptation of Jack Higgins' novel about an IRA hit man (Rourke, with a dubious Irish accent) who can't escape his chosen calling, even when he tries to. Hoskins is badly miscast as a priest who becomes entangled with

Rourke, while Bates chews it up as a flamboyant racketeer who doubles as a mortician. Heavy going all the way. [R]▼●●

Prayer of the Rollerboys (1991) C-94m. ½ D: Rick King. Corey Haim, Patricia Arquette, Christopher Collet, Julius Harris, Devin Clark, Mark Pellegrino, Morgan Weisser, Jake Dengel, J.C. Quinn. To save his kid brother, orphan Haim goes undercover and joins the Rollerboys, a gang of high-powered, racist-fascist punks whose leader (Collet) might be the great-grandson of Hitler. Set in a future America in which anarchy and homelessness reign; provocative idea weakened by needlessly excessive violence—and a painfully predictable ending. [R]▼●●

Preacher's Wife, The (1996) C-125m. ½ D: Penny Marshall. Denzel Washington, Whitney Houston, Courtney B. Vance, Gregory Hines, Jennifer Lewis, Lionel Richie, Justin Pierre Edmund, Shari Headley, Cissy Houston, Paul Bates, Loretta Devine, Toukie Smith. Appropriately old-fashioned remake of 1947's THE BISHOP'S WIFE concerns a semi-addled angel sent down here to assist a personally and professionally troubled clergyman only to become smitten with the latter's lovely spouse. Much too leisurely and long, but a notable showcase for its stars, and a rare contemporary Christmas movie to recapture the spirit of vintage holiday classics. With Houston as the wife, the gospel numbers have zing. [PG]▼●●

Preaching to the Choir (2006) C-103m. *½ D: Charles Randolph-Wright. Billioah Greene, Darien Sills-Evans, Novella Nelson, Eartha Kitt, Janine Green, Patti LaBelle, Adewale Akinnuoye-Agbaje, Marva Hicks, Tichina Arnold, Tim Reid, Ben Vereen. Amateurish movie aspires to be rousing entertainment but fails to rouse you out of your slumber in between gospel numbers. Almost nonexistent plot deals with the lifelong rivalry of two brothers, one a rap star named Zulu, the other a Harlem Baptist preacher. When Zulu's life is threatened due to bad business dealings, their divergent paths cross in this hip-hop spiritual comedy-musical. Nice to see Kitt still getting work, however. [PG-13]●

Predator (1987) C-107m.  D: John McTiernan. Arnold Schwarzenegger, Carl Weathers, Elpidia Carrillo, Bill Duke, Jesse Ventura, Sonny Landham, Richard Chaves, R.G. Armstrong, Shane Black, Kevin Peter Hall. Schwarzenegger and his super-SWAT-team-for-hire are assigned by the U.S. to a delicate rescue mission in South American jungle . . . but Arnold and his men soon find themselves battling a faceless, ferocious enemy that's picking them off one by one. Solid, suspenseful action film takes time getting started, but emerges a grabber. Followed by a sequel. [R]▼●●

Predator 2 (1990) C-108m. ½ D: Stephen Hopkins. Danny Glover, Gary Busey,

Ruben Blades, Maria Conchita Alonso, Bill Paxton, Kevin Peter Hall, Robert Davi, Adam Baldwin, Kent McCord, Calvin Lockhart. Fast-paced (if too derivative) sequel, minus Arnold. This time, cop Glover and cronies take on the title alien in 1997 L.A. Good production design and lots of hit-'em-across-the-face action, but don't look for anything resembling inventive dialogue or character development. Then again, you wouldn't expect either from a film with Morton Downey, Jr., in its cast. Followed by ALIEN VS. PREDATOR. [R]▼●●

Prefontaine (1997) C-106m.  D: Steve James. Jared Leto, R. Lee Erme, Ed O'Neill, Amy Locane, Lindsay Crouse, Laurel Holloman, Breckin Meyer, Brian McGovern, Kurtwood Smith. Peter Anthony Jacobs. Steve Prefontaine, an athlete from Coos Bay, Oregon, attends college, where he excels in running, eventually going to the Munich Olympics. Well-intentioned but TV-movie-like biopic fails to reveal why the runner is remembered today. Seems endless, but well acted. Story also told in WITHOUT LIMITS. [PG-13]▼●●

Prehistoric Women (1967-British) C-91m. *½ D: Michael Carreras. Michael Latimer, Martine Beswick, Edina Ronay, Carol White, John Raglan, Stephanie Randall, Steven Berkoff. Idiotic Hammer adventure in which Great White Hunter stumbles into lost Amazon civilization where blondes have been enslaved by brunettes. Honest! Nevertheless, this does have a cult following, due to Beswick's commanding, sensual performance as the tribe's leader. Released in Britain as SLAVE GIRLS, at 74m. CinemaScope.▼●●

Prehistoric World SEE: Teenage Cave Man

Prehysteria (1993) C-86m. ½ D: Albert Band, Charles Band. Brett Cullen, Colleen Morris, Samantha Mills, Austin O'Brien, Tony Longo, Stuart Fratkin, Stephen Lee. A family of raisin farmers (!) tries to protect five unusual critters their dog has hatched from eggs she stole from a greedy entrepreneur. An idea that will enchant children of all ages—pet dinosaurs the size of cats—overcomes a routine script. Followed by two sequels. [From Full Moon.] [PG]▼●●

Prelude to a Kiss (1992) C-106m. ½ D: Norman René. Alec Baldwin, Meg Ryan, Kathy Bates, Ned Beatty, Patty Duke, Sydney Walker, Stanley Tucci, Richard Riehle, Rocky Carroll, Annie Golden. It's love at first sight for Baldwin and Ryan, and soon they're wed—but on their honeymoon, he gets the strange feeling she's not the person he fell in love with. Winningly acted romantic comedy turns very, very odd, with a plot twist that's hard to swallow, and even harder to find endearing. A game attempt by all, including featured character actor Walker. Craig Lucas adapted his own play, with Baldwin

re-creating his original N.Y. stage role and Walker repeating the part he played on tour. [PG-13]▼●●

Prelude to Murder SEE: Dressed to Kill (1946)

Premature Burial, The (1962) C-81m.  D: Roger Corman. Ray Milland, Hazel Court, Richard Ney, Heather Angel, Alan Napier, John Dierkes. Title tells the story in another of Corman's Poe adaptations, with Milland oddly cast as medical student with phobia of accidental entombment. Lavish (for this series), but not one of director's best. Panavision.▼●●

Premonition, The (1976) C-94m.  D: Robert Allen Schnitzer. Sharon Farrell, Richard Lynch, Jeff Corey, Ellen Barber, Edward Bell. Muddled script works against eerie atmosphere in this supernatural tale that stresses parapsychology as clue to young girl's disappearance. Mediocre results. Filmed in Mississippi. [PG]▼●

Premonition (2007) C-97m.  D: Mennan Yapo. Sandra Bullock, Julian McMahon, Nia Long, Kate Nelligan, Courtney Taylor Burness, Shyann McClure, Amber Valletta, Peter Stormare, Jude Ciccollella. Bullock is a standard-issue perfect housewife and mother who suddenly seems to be experiencing another reality: she awakens to alternating universes every other day or so. Can she convince everyone that husband McMahon is in peril—or is she just losing her mind? Whatever Hitchcock could have done with this genre thriller is not apparent here, and neither Bullock nor the script are up to the task. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Presenting Lily Mars (1943) 104m.  D: Norman Taurog. Judy Garland, Van Heflin, Fay Bainter, Richard Carlson, Spring Byington, Marta Eggerth, Marilyn Maxwell, Ray McDonald, Leonid Kinskey, Connie Gilchrist, Bob Crosby, Tommy Dorsey. Well, there she is, and there lies the script. Stale story of determined girl getting big chance on Broadway only comes alive when Judy sings. From a Booth Tarkington novel.▼●●

President's Analyst, The (1967) C-103m. * D: Theodore J. Flicker. James Coburn, Godfrey Cambridge, Severn Darden, Joan Delaney, Pat Harrington, Will Geer, William Daniels. Totally nutty, brilliantly maneuvered satire of many sacred cows, as Coburn is pursued by half the government when he quits title job. The ending is a beauty. Screenplay by the director. Beware edited video version. Panavision.▼●●

President's Lady, The (1953) 96m.  D: Henry Levin. Charlton Heston, Susan Hayward, John McIntire, Fay Bainter, Carl Betz. Heston as Andrew Jackson and Hayward the lady with a past he marries work well together in this fictional history of 1800s America, based on the Irving Stone novel.

Heston would again play "Old Hickory" five years later in THE BUCCANEER.▼
Presidio, The (1988) C-97m. ½ D: Peter Hyams. Sean Connery, Mark Harmon, Meg Ryan, Jack Warden, Mark Blum, Dana Gladstone, Jenette Goldstein, Don Calfa. San Francisco cop Harmon investigates a murder that took place on local military base, and clashes with an old nemesis, the presidio's chief provost Connery—whose daughter he's attracted to. Strictly formula stuff, though slickly done, with some good S.F. chase scenes. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Press for Time (1966-British) C-102m.  D: Robert Asher. Norman Wisdom, Angela Browne, Derek Bond, Derek Francis. Bumbling son of a commoner is sent by his government minister granddad to work as a reporter on a provincial newspaper. Wisdom has fun doing three roles; infectious musical score by Mike Vickers.●

Pressure Point (1962) 91m.  D: Hubert Cornfield. Sidney Poitier, Bobby Darin, Peter Falk, Carl Benton Reid, Mary Munday, Barry Gordon, Howard Caine. Intelligent drama, with Poitier the prison psychiatrist trying to ferret out the problems of his Nazi patient (Darin). Based on a true case from Dr. Robert M. Lindner's The Fifty-Minute Hour.▼●

Prestige, The (2006) C-130m.  D: Christopher Nolan. Hugh Jackman, Christian Bale, Michael Caine, Piper Perabo, Rebecca Hall, Scarlett Johansson, David Bowie, Andy Serkis, Roger Rees, Ricky Jay, Edward Hibbert, Daniel Davis, Christopher Neame. Airless, cheerless story of two magicians in London at the turn of the 20th century and how their rivalry develops into an unhealthy obsession. Somehow Nolan (who coscripted with his brother Jonathan, from Christopher Priest's novel) has managed to make a film about magic and illusion without a sense of wonder—or a drop of humor. Panavision. [PG-13]●

Presumed Innocent (1990) C-127m.  D: Alan J. Pakula. Harrison Ford, Brian Dennehy, Raul Julia, Bonnie Bedelia, Paul Winfield, Greta Scacchi, John Spencer, Joe Grifasi, Tom Mardirosian, Anna Maria Horsford, Sab Shimono, Christine Estabrook, Michael Tolan, Jeffrey Wright. Solid, well-cast screen version of Scott Turow's crackling best-seller about a prosecutor assigned to investigate the murder of a sexy assistant prosecutor with whom he'd had an affair. Soon, he's charged with the murder himself! Slow going at times, film misses its potential for greatness but still delivers many powerful moments. Screenplay by Pakula and Frank Pierson. [R]▼●●

Prêt-à-Porter SEE: Ready to Wear

Pretty Baby (1978) C-109m. ½ D: Louis Malle. Keith Carradine, Susan Sarandon, Brooke Shields, Antonio Fargas, Frances Faye, Gerrit Graham, Mae Mercer, Diana Scarwid, Barbara Steele. Malle's first American film is beautifully mounted but distressingly low-keyed story of marriage between a 12-year-old New Orleans prostitute and an older photographer, set around time of WW1. Shields is striking in title role, but Carradine is pretty lifeless. Designed and co-written (with Malle) by Polly Platt; photographed by Sven Nykvist. [R]▼●●

Pretty in Pink (1986) C-96m.  D: Howard Deutch. Molly Ringwald, Jon Cryer, Andrew McCarthy, Harry Dean Stanton, Annie Potts, James Spader, Alexa Kenin, Andrew "Dice" Clay, Margaret Colin, Gina Gershon, Dweezil Zappa, Kristy Swanson. A high school have-not finds herself in a quandary when one of the "richies" asks her out; her fellow outcast and fanatical devotee (Cryer) isn't too happy, either. Credible look at growing pains by writer-producer John Hughes, nicely acted, if a bit slow and self-serious. Stanton, as Molly's dad, has never been so tender on screen! [PG-13]▼●●

Prettykill (1987) C-95m. BOMB D: George Kaczender. David Birney, Season Hubley, Susannah York, Yaphet Kotto, Suzanne Snyder, Sarah Polley. Noxious exploitation film about down on his luck cop and his girlfriend/hooker enmeshed in a case of a slasher who preys on prostitutes. Snyder gives an overwrought performance as a sweet young thing with a dual personality (she lapses into her southern fried incestuous father's voice at times!). [R]▼●●

Pretty Maids All in a Row (1971) C-92m.  D: Roger Vadim. Rock Hudson, Angie Dickinson, Telly Savalas, John David Carson, Roddy McDowall, James Doohan, Keenan Wynn, Amy (Aimee) Eccles, Barbara Leigh. Silly but enjoyable black comedy; high school guidance-counselor/coach Hudson advises frustrated Carson in sexual matters, while school is plagued with murders of pretty female students. Written and produced by Gene Roddenberry. [R]▼

Pretty Persuasion (2005) C-110m. *½ D: Marcos Siega. Evan Rachel Wood, Ron Livingston, James Woods, Jane Krakowski, Elisabeth Harnois, Selma Blair, Danny Comden, Robert Joy, Jaime King, Michael Hitchcock. Superficial, self-satisfied snipe at privileged Beverly Hills kids and their messed-up parents, as seen through an unenlightening portrait of a teenage psychopath (Evan Rachel Wood) who destroys everyone with whom she comes into contact. Glib, just like Woods' portrayal of the girl's scummy, bigoted father. There's no one to root for in this poisonous cast of characters. Panavision. [R]▼

Pretty Poison (1968) C-89m.  D: Noel Black. Anthony Perkins, Tuesday Weld, Beverly Garland, John Randolph, Dick

O'Neill. Oddball arsonist Perkins enlists aid of sexy high-schooler Weld for scheme he's hatching, but soon discovers that she's got stranger notions than he does! Bright screenplay by Lorenzo Semple, Jr. (from Stephen Geller's novel, She Let Him Continue), sparked by Weld's vivid performance. [R]▼

Pretty Village, Pretty Flame (1996-Yugoslavian) C-125m.  D: Srdjan Dragojevic. Dragan Bjelogrić, Nikola Pejaković, Veli-mir Bata Živojinović, Dragan Maksimović. Biting allegorical anti-war drama about two young men, one Muslim, the other Serbian, who came of age together as best pals (depicted in poignant flashbacks) and now find themselves on opposite sides in the Bosnian civil war—and inexorably heading toward a confrontation.▼

Pretty Woman (1990) C-117m.  D: Garry Marshall. Richard Gere, Julia Roberts, Ralph Bellamy, Jason Alexander, Laura San Giacomo, Hector Elizondo, Alex Hyde-White, Elinor Donahue, Larry Miller, Jane Morris. Surprisingly successful variation on an old formula: wealthy, cold-blooded business tycoon Gere chances to meet Hollywood Boulevard hooker Roberts. He hires her to be his companion for a week, spruces her up, and—well, you can figure out the rest. Light, charming, and thoroughly entertaining, with Roberts a delight in a star-making role. Director's cut runs 124m. [R]▼●●

Prey for Rock & Roll (2003) C-103m. ½ D: Alex Steyermark. Gina Gershon, Drea de Matteo, Marc Blucas, Shelly Cole, Ivan Martin, Lori Petty, Sandra Seacat, Ashley Drane, Shakara Ledard, Eddie Driscoll, Texas Terri. All-femme grunge band fights hard for its big break while enduring unrelenting personal tragedies. Star-producer Gershon's feral, strikingly tattooed performance grounds the otherwise predictably gritty proceedings. Based on an autobiographical play by West Coast musician-artist Cheri Lovedog. [R]▼

Price Above Rubies, A (1998) C-117m. ½ D: Boaz Yakin. Renée Zellweger, Christopher Eccleston, Glenn Fitzgerald, Allen Payne, Julianna Margulies, Kathleen Chalfant, Edie Falco, John Randolph, Kim Hunter, Phyllis Newman. An unhappy Hasidic housewife in N.Y.C. yearns for sexual liberation and the freedom to pursue a career. This had critics divided, but offers a truly three-dimensional heroine, and Zellweger is convincing. Worth a look for those who seek mature, alternative fare. [R]▼

Priceless (2006-French) C-106m.  D: Pierre Salvadori. Audrey Tautou, Gad Elmaleh, Marie-Christine Adam, Vernon Dobtcheff, Jacques Spiesser. Charming comedy set in the south of France, where a beautiful gold digger (Tautou) mistakes a bartender (Elmaleh) for a wealthy hotel guest and sleeps with him. When her sugar daddy finds out, he dumps her, and the guileless Elmaleh learns that he hasn't a chance with Tautou because he's a poor working stiff. Amusing and surprising twists follow in this entertaining yarn, which gives us a vicarious taste of how the super-rich enjoy the good life in Biarritz. Panavision. [PG-13] D

Priceless Beauty (1988-Italian) C-97m.

* D: Charles Finch. Christopher Lambert, Diane Lane, Francesco Quinn, J. C. Quinn, Claudia Ohana, Monica Scattini, Joaquin D'Almeida. Reclusive former rock star, consumed by guilt over his brother's death, finds a magic lamp in the ocean and inside it a beautiful genie who tries to rebuild his self-esteem and capacity to love. Mediocre romance (starring then-real-life husband and wife Lambert and Lane) struggles to be whimsical. [R] **▼●●

Price of Freedom, The SEE: Operation Daybreak

Price of Glory (2000) C-118m. *½ D: Carlos Avila. Jimmy Smits, Jon Seda, Clifton Collins, Jr. (Clifton Gonzales Gonzales), Maria del Mar, Sal Lopez, Louis Mandylor, John Verea, Paul Rodriguez, Ron Perlman. Boxing saga centered around a Latino family with Smits pushing his three sons toward a success that eluded him in his fighting days. Earnest performances, and some good action in the ring, but plays like a TV movie. [PG-13] **▼●

Price of Milk, The (2000-New Zealand) C-87m. * D: Harry Sinclair. Danielle Cormack, Karl Urban, Willa O'Neill, Michael Lawrence, Rangi Motu. On a New Zealand dairy farm, a happy bride-to-be starts doubting her loving fiancé. Things get even weirder when she accidentally crashes her car into an old Maori woman who survives without a scratch. For a while this daffy fairy tale plays like a cross between Buñuel and the Brothers Grimm but doesn't sustain itself. Guaranteed to test your whimsy quotient. Featuring a lush soundtrack by the Moscow Symphony Orchestra. Super 35. [PG-13] **▼●

Price of Sugar, The (2007) C-90m. *½ D: Bill Haney. Narrated by Paul Newman. Interesting if overlong documentary offers an admiring portrait of Father Christopher Hartley, a priest who champions Haitian workers employed on sugar plantations in the Dominican Republic. Hartley comes across as equal parts compassionate saint and smooth operator as he challenges a system that sustains a repressive form of virtual slavery. Newman's measured narration is effectively understated. D

Prick Up Your Ears (1987-British) C-108m.

 D: Stephen Frears. Gary Oldman, Alfred Molina, Vanessa Redgrave, Wallace Shawn, Julie Walters, James Grant, Frances Barber, Lindsay Duncan, Janet Dale. Chillingly realistic and evocative look at young British playwright Joe Orton, who was murdered by his longtime lover Kenneth Halliwell in 1967. Stunning performances by Oldman (as Orton), Molina (as the tormented Halliwell), and Redgrave (as Orton's agent) make up for some lags in Alan Bennett's script. Unflinching look at homosexuality in England during the '50s and '60s (when it was a crime), but film offers no insight into Orton's great theatrical success. [R] **▼●●

Pride (2007) C-104m. *½ D: Sunu Goner. Terrence Howard, Bernie Mac, Kimberly Elise, Tom Arnold, Brandon Fobbs, Alphonso McAuley, Regine Nehy, Nate Parker, Kevin Phillips, Scott Reeves, Evan Ross, Gary Anthony Sturgis. Howard plays real-life Philadelphia swim coach Jim Ellis, who in the 1970s tried to turn around the lives of some inner-city teenagers. Straightforward sports biopic has few surprises but keeps the clichés and preaching to a minimum. Howard (who coexecutive produced) and Mac make charismatic leads. Evan Ross, who plays Reggie, is the son of Diana Ross. Super 35. [PG] D

Pride and Glory (2008) C-129m. *½ D: Gavin O'Connor. Edward Norton, Colin Farrell, Jon Voight, Noah Emmerich, Jennifer Ehle, John Ortiz, Shea Whigham, Frank Grillo, Lake Bell, Rick Gonzalez, Wayne Duvall, Carmen Ejogo, Ramon Rodriguez. Saga of a N.Y.C. police family that's strained to the breaking point. Norton, assigned to a special task force investigating the slaughter of four cops, discovers that his brother (Emmerich) and brother-in-law (Farrell) were complicit. No earth-shattering surprises in this brutal film, which plays out ritualistically, like an opera, but the drama is still potent and the performances first-rate. Voight is especially good as the family patriarch. [R] D

Pride and Prejudice (1940) 118m.  D: Robert Z. Leonard. Greer Garson, Laurence Olivier, Edna May Oliver, Edmund Gwenn, Mary Boland, Maureen O'Sullivan, Karen Morley, Melville Cooper, E. E. Clive, Ann Rutherford, Marsha Hunt. Outstanding adaptation of Jane Austen's novel about five husband-hunting sisters in 19th-century England. Excellent cast, fine period flavor in classic comedy of manners; Aldous Huxley was one of the screenwriters. Cedric Gibbons and Paul Grosse's art direction deservedly earned an Oscar. Also shown in computer-colored version. **▼●●

Pride & Prejudice (2005-British) C-128m.

 D: Joe Wright. Keira Knightley, Matthew Macfadyen, Brenda Blethyn, Donald Sutherland, Tom Hollander, Judi Dench, Rosamund Pike, Jena Malone, Kelly Reilly, Simon Woods, Penelope Wilton, Rupert Friend. Vibrant version of Jane Austen's novel about five sisters whose mother is desperate to see them married off, and the reaction of Elizabeth, the most independent-minded of the bunch, to a man she initially despises. Purists will wince at liberties taken, but director Wright and screenwriter Deborah Moggach have fashioned a lively romance with an earthy atmosphere not usually found in such adaptations. Cast is tops, with Knightley enchanting as Elizabeth, Macfadyen an estimable Mr. Darcy. Ending revised for U.S. release. Super 35. [PG] ▼●

Pride and the Passion, The (1957) C-132m. ½ D: Stanley Kramer. Cary Grant, Frank Sinatra, Sophia Loren, Theodore Bikel, John Wengraf. Miscast actioner involving capture of huge cannon by British naval officer (Grant) in 19th-century Spain. Spectacle scenes—filmed on location—are impressive; but most of the film is ridiculous. From the C.S. Forester novel. VistaVision. ▼●●

Pride of St. Louis, The (1952) 93m. ½ D: Harmon Jones. Dan Dailey, Joanne Dru, Richard Crenna, Hugh Sanders, Richard Hylton, James Brown. Dailey does well in this otherwise formula biography of brash, colorful Hall of Fame pitcher Dizzy Dean. Watch for Chet Huntley as a baseball broadcaster. ▼

Pride of the Marines (1945) 119m. ½ D: Delmer Daves. John Garfield, Eleanor Parker, Dane Clark, John Ridgely, Rosemary DeCamp, Ann Doran, Ann Todd, Warren Douglas. Solid acting by Warner Bros. stock company enhances true account of Marine blinded during Japanese attack, with Garfield as injured Al Schmid, Clark as sympathetic buddy. Screenplay by Albert Maltz. ●

Pride of the Yankees, The (1942) 127m. * D: Sam Wood. Gary Cooper, Teresa Wright, Babe Ruth, Walter Brennan, Dan Duryea, Ludwig Stossel, Addison Richards, Hardie Albright. Superb biography of baseball star Lou Gehrig, with Cooper giving excellent performance; fine support from Wright as devoted wife. Truly memorable final sequence. Script by Jo Swerling and Herman J. Mankiewicz, with Oscar-winning editing by Daniel Mandell. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Priest (1994-British) C-97m. ½ D: Antonia Bird. Linus Roache, Tom Wilkinson, Cathy Tyson, Robert Carlyle, James Ellis, Lesley Sharp, Robert Pugh, Christine Tre-marco, Paul Barber, Rio Fanning. Provocative drama about a man of the cloth who finds himself caught between sacred vows and his own personal beliefs, in particular his closeted homosexuality. Deft blend of melodrama and tract that manages to deal with homosexuality, abuse, incest, and the politics of the Church with incisive results—and even a dark sense of humor. Flawlessly acted. Written by Jimmy McGovern. Originally shown at 105m. and trimmed for U.S. release. [R] ▼●●

Priest of Love (1981-British) C-125m.  D: Christopher Miles. Ian McKellen, Janet Suzman, Ava Gardner, Penelope

Keith, Jorge Rivero, John Gielgud, Sarah Miles. Literate account of the last years of D. H. Lawrence (McKellen)—“the one who writes the dirty books”—highlighted by his relationship with his wife (Suzman) and the publication of Lady Chatterley's Lover. Slow moving but rewarding; 11 years earlier, Miles directed the screen version of Lawrence's THE VIRGIN AND THE GYPSY. [R] ▼

Priest's Wife, The (1971-Italian-French) C-106m. *½ D: Dino Risi. Sophia Loren, Marcello Mastroianni, Venantino Venantini, Jacques Stany, Pippo Starnazza, Augusto Mastrantoni. Barely entertaining mixture of drama and humor with Loren as disillusioned singer who thinks she can convince priest (Mastroianni) to obtain release from his vow of celibacy and marry her. Weightier handling of subject matter can be heard on radio talk shows; film seems designed merely as vehicle for two stars. [PG]

Primal Fear (1996) C-129m.  D: Gregory Hoblit. Richard Gere, Laura Linney, John Mahoney, Alfre Woodard, Frances McDormand, Edward Norton, Terry O'Quinn, Andre Braugher, Steven Bauer, Joe Spano, Tony Plana, Stanley Anderson, Maura Tierney, Jon Seda. Hotshot Chicago attorney defends an altar boy accused of brutally murdering a much-loved archbishop—even though all evidence seems to point to the young man's guilt. Gere gives a solid performance in one of his very best roles, as a cocky lawyer who—for once—doesn't have all the answers. Newcomer Norton is also very impressive. Film loses some of its impact by going on too long and by following unrelated story tangents. Still, an intelligent, absorbing drama. [R] ▼●●

Primary Colors (1998) C-143m. ½ D: Mike Nichols. John Travolta, Emma Thompson, Kathy Bates, Adrian Lester, Billy Bob Thornton, Maura Tierney, Larry Hagman, Diane Ladd, Paul Guilfoyle, Caroline Aaron, Rob Reiner, Ben Jones, Mykelti Williamson, Bonnie Bartlett, Tony Shalhoub, Allison Janney. Dynamic adaptation of political roman à clef by Anonymous (Joe Klein) about a Southern governor's Presidential race—and an idealistic staffer (Lester) who sees in him both a true believer in people power and an insatiable womanizer who'll do anything to cover his tracks. Travolta is extraordinarily good in a Bill Clinton-esque characterization, and Nichols has cast every part around him with an unerring eye. Bates is a powerhouse as Travolta's longtime political conscience and troubleshooter. Smart, funny, foul-mouthed screenplay by Elaine May. Super 35. [R] ▼●●

ship with a 23-year-old man, unaware that he is the son of her longtime therapist. Cute comedy has funny and romantic moments, but never quite catches fire. Bolstered by the performances of Streep and especially Thurman, who has never been looser or more appealing on-screen. Written by the director. [PG-13] ▼

Prime Cut (1972) C-86m.  D: Michael Ritchie. Lee Marvin, Gene Hackman, Angel Tompkins, Gregory Walcott, Sissy Spacek, Janit Baldwin. Mob hijinks at a Kansas City slaughterhouse inspire well-cast, fast-moving, tongue-in-cheek trash that fans of sleazy crime melodramas should love. Spacek's first film. Panavision. [R] ▼

Prime Gig, The (2001) C-97m.  D: Gregory Mosher. Vince Vaughn, Julia Ormond, Ed Harris, Rory Cochrane, Wallace Shawn, Stephen Tobolowsky, George Wendt, Jeannette Arnette. Successful telemarketer Vaughn is recruited by Harris for his boiler-room operation and becomes romantically involved with Ormond. Interesting look at scam artists, but Vaughn's ambivalent character flattens the film's dramatic tension instead of heightening it. Good performances help. U.S. debut on cable TV. Panavision. [R] ▼

Prime of Miss Jean Brodie, The (1969) C-116m. ½ D: Ronald Neame. Maggie Smith, Robert Stephens, Pamela Franklin, Gordon Jackson, Celia Johnson, Jane Carr. Oscar-winning showcase for Smith as eccentric teacher in Edinburgh school who wields a spellbinding influence on her "girls." Remarkable character study, adapted by Jay Presson Allen from stage version of Muriel Spark's novel; filmed on location. Smith and Stephens were then real-life husband and wife. Later remade as a TV miniseries. [M/PG] ▼

Primer (2004) C-78m.  D: Shane Carruth. Shane Carruth, David Sullivan, Casey Gooden, Anand Upadhyaya, Carrie Crawford. Quirky, original sci-fi thriller about a couple of young corporate engineers (Carruth, Sullivan) whose lives are altered when they accidentally invent a time-travel contraption. Shot on a budget of 35¢ (actually $7,000), and loaded with ideas and imagination; occasionally bogs down in technical jargon, but still well worth watching—and pondering. Carruth also scripted, produced, edited, wrote the score, and was cinematographer. [PG-13] ▼

Primeval (2007) C-93m.  D: Michael Katleman. Dominic Purcell, Brooke Langton, Orlando Jones, Jürgen Prochnow, Gideon Emery, Gabriel Malema, Linda Mpondo. American reporters reluctantly trek to Africa to capture a huge man-eating crocodile the locals call Gstavie, and become embroiled in a local war. Peculiar blend of JAWS and a BLOOD DIAMOND-like subplot has its moments, but is mostly routine, with herky-jerky editing in the frequent action scenes. Loosely based on real events. Super 35. [R] ▼

Primrose Path (1940) 93m. ½ D: Gregory La Cava. Ginger Rogers, Joel McCrea, Marjorie Rambeau, Miles Mander, Henry Travers. Girl from wrong side of the tracks falls in love with ambitious young McCrea; starts engagingly, drifts into dreary soap opera and melodramatics. Rambeau is excellent as Ginger's prostitute mother. ▼

Prince & Me, The (2004) C-111m. ½ D: Martha Coolidge. Julia Stiles, Luke Mably, Ben Miller, Miranda Richardson, James Fox, Eliza Bennett, Alberta Watson, John Bourgeois. Wisconsin farm girl with big plans is attracted to a handsome exchange student who stumbles into her life . . . little dreaming that he is the Prince of Denmark. Amiable modern-day fairy tale goes on longer than it should given its formulaic nature, but the two leads are engaging and attractive. Followed by two DVD sequels. [PG] ▼

Prince and the Great Race SEE: Bush Christmas

Prince and the Pauper, The (1937) 120m. ½ D: William Keighley. Errol Flynn, Billy and Bobby Mauch, Claude Rains, Alan Hale, Montagu Love, Henry Stephenson, Barton MacLane. Rousing filmization of Mark Twain's story of young look-alikes, one a mistreated urchin, the other a prince, exchanging places. Top-billed Flynn, cast as the boys' rescuer, doesn't appear until around the midway point. Great music score by Erich Wolfgang Korngold. Remade as CROSSED SWORDS. Also available in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Prince and the Pauper, The (1978) SEE: Crossed Swords

Prince and the Showgirl, The (1957) C-117m. ½ D: Laurence Olivier. Marilyn Monroe, Laurence Olivier, Sybil Thorndike, Jeremy Spenser, Richard Wattis. Thoughtful but slow-moving comedy of saucy American showgirl Monroe being romanced by Prince Regent of Carpathia (Olivier) during the 1911 coronation of George V. Filmed in England, with delightful performances by Monroe and Olivier. Script by Terence Rattigan from his play The Sleeping Prince. ▼●●

Prince Jack (1984) C-100m.  D: Bert Lovitt. Robert Hogan, James F. Kelly, Kenneth Mars, Lloyd Nolan, Cameron Mitchell, Robert Guillaume, Theodore Bikel, Jim Backus, Dana Andrews. Yet another chronicle of life among the Kennedys, here focusing mainly on the men and their personalities. Superficial at best. ▼

Prince of Darkness (1987) C-110m. BOMB D: John Carpenter. Donald Pleasence, Lisa Blount, Jameson Parker, Victor Wong, Dennis Dun, Susan Blanchard, Anne Howard, Alice Cooper. The anti-God entombs

wayward son Satan in a canister of glop in an abandoned L.A. church; it's up to priest Pleasence and the grad students of prof Wong to clean up the mess. Not for nothing is the religious sect involved called "Brotherhood of Sleep." Panavision. [R] ▼●●

Prince of Egypt, The (1998) C-97m. ½ D: Brenda Chapman, Steve Hickner, Simon Wells. Voices of Val Kilmer, Ralph Fiennes, Michelle Pfeiffer, Sandra Bullock, Jeff Goldblum, Danny Glover, Patrick Stewart, Helen Mirren, Steve Martin, Martin Short. Animated retelling of the story of Moses features some of the most spectacular animation in the history of the medium, dramatic staging, and an ambitious song score by Stephen Schwartz . . . but the parts are greater than the whole, and the story drags at times. An impressive achievement, but liable to test the endurance of young children. Features Oscar-winning song "When You Believe." Followed on video by JOSEPH: KING OF DREAMS. [PG] ▼●●

Prince of Foxes (1949) 107m. ½ D: Henry King. Tyrone Power, Wanda Hendrix, Orson Welles, Marina Berti, Everett Sloane, Katina Paxinou. Lavish, incredibly handsome costume epic of Renaissance-era Italy (filmed on location), with adventurer Power defying all-powerful Cesare Borgia. Story elements—from Samuel Shellabarger novel—don't match impact of Leon Shamroy's sumptuous cinematography. ▶

Prince of Pennsylvania, The (1988) C-87m. ½ D: Ron Nyswaner. Fred Ward, Keanu Reeves, Bonnie Bedelia, Amy Madigan, Jeff Hayenga, Tracey Ellis. Extremely quirky character comedy of free spirit Reeves (with a strange half-Mohawk hairdo) "finding" himself while battling with his equally wacko dad (Ward, in a marvelous performance). Madigan is excellent as the older woman whom Reeves romances; in-joke has her dressing up in a Freddy Krueger mask for a fake kidnapping. Writer Nyswaner (SMITHEREENS) turns director; many striking scenes unfortunately fail to grip as a whole. [R] ▼●●

Prince of Players (1955) C-102m. ½ D: Philip Dunne. Richard Burton, Maggie McNamara, Raymond Massey, Charles Bickford, John Derek, Eva Le Gallienne, Mae Marsh, Sarah Padden. Burton is 19th-century actor Edwin Booth, embroiled in more offstage drama than on. Shakespearean excerpts thrown in; well performed by earnest cast. Derek plays John Wilkes Booth. Script by Moss Hart. CinemaScope. ▶

sen. Emotionally powerful story (which unfortunately is true) about a cop in a N.Y.C. special investigations unit who blows the whistle on department corruption but finds himself more a victim than a hero. Standout performances by Williams, fellow cop Orbach, weaselly prosecutor Tolkan, but film's extreme length hurts overall impact; there are more details than really necessary to tell the story. Script by Lumet and Jay Presson Allen. [R] ▼●●

Prince of Tides, The (1991) C-132m.  D: Barbra Streisand. Nick Nolte, Barbra Streisand, Blythe Danner, Kate Nelligan, Jeroen Krabbé, Melinda Dillon, George Carlin, Jason Gould, Brad Sullivan. Nolte is both compelling and believable as a man who keeps a lifetime of harrowing memories bottled up inside—until he's forced to spill them to a psychiatrist in order to help save his suicidal sister. How much you like (or believe) Streisand's performance as the doctor may affect your feelings about the film, but she's certainly managed to tell a good story, rich in emotion. Gould (son of Streisand and Elliott Gould) plays Barbra's teenage son. Screenplay by Pat Conroy and Becky Johnston, from Conroy's sprawling novel. [R] ▼●●

Princess and the Pirate, The (1944) C-94m.  D: David Butler. Bob Hope, Virginia Mayo, Walter Slezak, Walter Brennan, Victor McLaglen, Hugo Haas, Marc Lawrence. One of Bob's wackiest; he and glamorous Virginia are on the lam from pirate McLaglen, trapped by potentate Slezak. Brennan is hilarious as a pirate; great closing gag, too. ▼●●

Princess and the Warrior, The (2000-German) C-130m.  D: Tom Tykwer. Franka Potente, Benno Furrmann, Joachim Krol, Marita Breuer, Jurgen Tarrach, Lars Rudolph. Odd, off-putting fable about a nurse in a psychiatric hospital who has a fateful encounter with a deeply troubled ex-soldier and can't get him out of her mind. Long, slow, sometimes downright silly. Film's occasional arresting images linger long after the story's illogicality is forgotten. Tykwer also scripted and collaborated on the highly effective score. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Princess Bride, The (1987) C-98m. ½ D: Rob Reiner. Cary Elwes, Mandy Patinkin, Chris Sarandon, Christopher Guest, Wallace Shawn, Andre the Giant, Fred Savage, Robin Wright, Peter Falk, Peter Cook, Carol Kane, Billy Crystal, Mel Smith. Revisionist fairy tale/adventure about a beautiful young woman and her one true love, who must find and rescue her after a long separation. Some wonderful scenes and character vignettes are periodically undermined by a tendency toward comic shtick (as in Crystal's cameo appearance) and occasional incoherency (as in the opening scenes with Castilian-tongued Patinkin and marble-mouthed Andre the Giant). Best of all: the swashbuckling sequences. Bonus for old-movie buffs: watching Guest, as Count Rugen, imitate Henry Daniell (from THE SEA HAWK). Screenplay by William Goldman, from his novel. [PG]▼●●

Princess Caraboo (1994—U.S.—British) C-96m.  D: Michael Austin. Phoebe Cates, Jim Broadbent, Wendy Hughes, Kevin Kline, John Lithgow, Stephen Rea, Peter Eyre, Jacqueline Pearce, Roger Lloyd Pack, John Wells, John Lynch. Pleasing fairy tale-like yarn about young “mystery woman” Cates who is believed to be a princess from a distant land, and is taken in by a well-meaning British lady (Hughes) in the early 1800s. Based on a true story, believe it or not; handsomely made, acted with gusto by a first-rate cast. Ideal family entertainment. Photographed by the great Freddie Francis. [PG]▼●●

Princess Comes Across, The (1936) 76m.  D: William K. Howard. Carole Lombard, Fred MacMurray, Douglass Dumbrille, Alison Skipworth, William Frawley, Porter Hall, Sig Ruman, Mischa Auer. Lombard, posing as royalty on ocean voyage, meets romantic MacMurray; together they are involved in whodunit. And Fred sings “My Concertina.” Delightful blend of comedy and mystery. ▼

Princess Diaries, The (2001) C-115m. *½ D: Garry Marshall. Julie Andrews, Anne Hathaway, Hector Elizondo, Heather Matarazzo, Mandy Moore, Caroline Goodall, Robert Schwartzman, Erik Von Detten, Patrick Flueger, Sandra Oh, Mindy Burbano. High school oddball/ugly duckling learns she’s a princess from her royal grandmother and blossoms under extensive tutelage (and eyebrow plucking). Cute premise is squandered by a script that goes in a hundred directions—none of them remotely genuine—and never seems to end. Hathaway is appealing, Andrews’ touch of class is more than welcome, but the film is an ordeal. Larry Miller appears unbilled. Based on a novel by Meg Cabot. Followed by a sequel. [G] ▼

Princess Diaries 2: Royal Engagement, The (2004) C-115m. *½ D: Garry Marshall. Anne Hathaway, Julie Andrews, Hector Elizondo, Heather Matarazzo, John Rhys-Davies, Chris Pine, Callum Blue, Kathleen Marshall, Raven Symone, Tom Poston, Larry Miller, Caroline Goodall, Spencer Breslin, Elinor Donahue, Paul Williams. Unnecessary sequel to the 2001 hit has our plucky princess set to rule the kingdom of Genovia only to find, thanks to one of the film’s many gimmicks, she must be married to assume the throne. A series of sitcom scenarios played out over two hours. Brightened by the presence of Andrews and a game supporting cast. [G] ▼

Princess Mononoke (1997—Japanese) C-

115m. ½ D: Hayao Miyazaki. Voices of Billy Crudup, Claire Danes, Minnie Driver, Billy Bob Thornton, Gillian Anderson, Jada Pinkett Smith. Extraordinary animated fable, full of astonishing sights; while the story is difficult to follow at times, it’s worth the effort. Wounded by a dying boar god, a young man tries to get help from a forest spirit. He’s aided by a girl who lives with wolf-gods, and opposed by a shrewd woman who is devoted to technology. Writer-director Miyazaki largely created his own mythology, and raises worthy questions about mankind’s place in the natural world. Complex, thoughtful animated movie aimed at adults rather than children. [PG-13] ▼

Princess O’Rourke (1943) 94m. ½ D: Norman Krasna. Olivia de Havilland, Robert Cummings, Charles Coburn, Jack Carson, Jane Wyman, Harry Davenport, Gladys Cooper. Very dated comedy starts charmingly with pilot Cummings falling in love with Princess de Havilland, bogs down in no longer timely situations, unbearably coy finale involving (supposedly) F.D.R. himself. Krasna won Best Screenplay Oscar. ▼

Princess Yang Kwei Fei (1955—Japanese) C-91m. * D: Kenji Mizoguchi. Machiko Kyo, Masayuki Mori, So Yamamura, Eitaro Shindo, Sakae Ozawa. Emperor Mori takes country girl Kyo as his concubine. He is forced out of power by his greedy family: she is killed, and he worships her statue. Breathtakingly beautiful, poetic love story/fable/tragedy. ▼

Prince Valiant (1954) C-100m. ½ D: Henry Hathaway. James Mason, Janet Leigh, Robert Wagner, Debra Paget, Sterling Hayden, Victor McLaglen, Donald Crisp, Brian Aherne. Hal Foster’s famed comic-strip character is the hero of this cardboard costumed out in 20th Century-Fox splendor, battling and loving in Middle Ages England. Script by Dudley Nichols. CinemaScope. ▼

Prince Who Was a Thief, The (1951) C-88m. ½ D: Rudolph Maté. Tony Curtis, Piper Laurie, Everett Sloane, Jeff Corey, Betty Garde. Juvenile costumer with Curtis fighting to regain his rightful seat on the throne; sparked by enthusiastic performances. ▼

Principal, The (1987) C-109m.  D: Christopher Cain. James Belushi, Louis Gossett, Jr., Rae Dawn Chong, Michael Wright, J.J. Cohen, Esai Morales, Troy Winbush. Following some drunken vandalism on his estranged spouse’s car, school-teacher Belushi is “promoted” to top job at the district’s most crime-ridden school. Unlikely mix of comedy and drama benefits from likable performances and a reasonably tense HIGH NOON finale between Belushi and the school’s leading thug. [R] ▼●●

Priscilla, Queen of the Desert SEE: Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert, The

Prison (1988) C-102m.  D: Renny Harlin. Lane Smith, Viggo Mortensen, Chelsea Field, Andre De Shields, Lincoln Kilpatrick, Ivan Kane. The spirit of a prisoner who was executed 20 years ago seeks revenge on his one-time guard—who's now the warden (Smith). OK special effects and location atmosphere are strongest assets of this clichéd horror film. [R] ▼●

Prisoner, The (1955-British) 91m.  D: Peter Glenville. Alec Guinness, Jack Hawkins, Raymond Huntley, Wilfrid Lawson. Grim account of cardinal in Iron Curtain country undergoing grueling interrogation. Guinness-Hawkins interplay is superb. ▼●

Prisoner of Paradise (2003-Canadian-British-German-U.S.) C/B&W-96m. ½ D: Malcolm Clarke, Stuart Sender. Narrated by Ian Holm. Fascinating documentary about Kurt Geron, a popular German performer and filmmaker of the 1920s and '30s (best remembered as the nightclub owner in THE BLUE ANGEL) who stayed in Europe too long and wound up at the "model" concentration camp in Theresienstadt, where he was commissioned to make one final motion picture—for the Nazis. Extraordinary footage from the period is augmented by a handful of equally compelling interviews with surviving friends and colleagues. ●

Prisoner of Second Avenue, The (1975) C-105m. ½ D: Melvin Frank. Jack Lemmon, Anne Bancroft, Gene Saks, Elizabeth Wilson, Florence Stanley, M. Emmet Walsh. Neil Simon walks a tightrope between comedy and melancholia, and never falls, thanks to warm performances by Lemmon, as suddenly unemployed executive who has a nervous breakdown, and Bancroft, as his understanding wife. Look for Sylvester Stallone as an alleged pickpocket, F. Murray Abraham as a cabbie. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Prisoner of Shark Island, The (1936) 95m. ½ D: John Ford. Warner Baxter, Gloria Stuart, Claude Gillingwater, John Carradine, Harry Carey, Arthur Byron, Ernest Whitman, Francis McDonald. Excellent film based on true story of Dr. Samuel Mudd, who treated John Wilkes Booth's broken leg after Lincoln assassination and was sentenced to life imprisonment. Gripping story; Baxter superb, Carradine memorable as villainous sergeant, Whitman fine as Baxter's black comrade. Scripted by Nunnally Johnson. Remade as HELLGATE and the TV movie THE ORDEAL OF DR. MUDD. ●

assi. Usual costume shenanigans: an evil count imprisons a man who has proof of the nobleman's treachery. Based not on the expected Dumas novel, but on his Ten Years After. D'Artagnan and The Three Musketeers do not appear. Techniscope.

Prisoner of the Mountains (1996-Russian) C-98m. ½ D: Sergei Bodrov. Oleg Menshikov, Sergei Bodrov, Jr., Jemal Sikh-arulidze, Susanna Mekhraliev, Alexei Jhar-kov. Simple, devastating account of two Russian soldiers captured by Chechen rebels and held in an impoverished mountain-top village. Film is based on a Tolstoy story, but seems more pertinent in its present-day setting. Director's son portrays the younger of the two prisoners, an impressionable soldier barely out of school. Catch this one. ▼●● Prisoner of War (1954) 80m.  D: Andrew Marton. Ronald Reagan, Steve Forrest, Dewey Martin, Oscar Homolka, Robert Horton, Paul Stewart, Harry Morgan, Stephen Bekassy. Sincere but two-dimensional drama exposing mistreatment of American POWs during Korean War.

Prisoner of Zenda, The (1937) 101m. * D: John Cromwell. Ronald Colman, Madeleine Carroll, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., C. Aubrey Smith, Raymond Massey, Mary Astor, David Niven, Montagu Love, Alexander D'Arcy. Lavish costume romance/adventure with excellent casting; Colman is forced to substitute for lookalike cousin, King of Ruritania country, but commoner Colman falls in love with regal Carroll. Fairbanks nearly steals the show as villainous Rupert of Hentzau. Screenplay by John L. Balderston, from Anthony Hope's novel. Previously filmed in 1914 and 1922, then again in 1952 and 1979. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

Prisoner of Zenda, The (1952) C-101m. ½ D: Richard Thorpe. Stewart Granger, Deborah Kerr, Jane Greer, Louis Calhern, Lewis Stone, James Mason, Robert Douglas, Robert Coote. Plush but uninspired remake of the Anthony Hope novel, chronicling the swashbuckling adventures of Granger, a dead ringer for a small European country's king. Stick with the Ronald Colman version; this one copies it scene for scene. ▼●●

Prisoner of Zenda, The (1979) C-108m. BOMB D: Richard Quine. Peter Sellers, Lynne Frederick, Lionel Jeffries, Elke Sommer, Gregory Sierra, Jeremy Kemp, Catherine Schell. Famous swashbuckler is played for laughs, but there aren't any. A return to the kind of picture that helped to destroy Sellers' career. [PG] ▼

Prisoners of the Sun (1991-Australian) C-109m.  D: Stephen Wallace. Bryan Brown, George Takei, Terry O'Quinn, John Bach, Toshi Shioya, John Clarke, Deborah Unger, Russell Crowe. Gritty, gripping

post-WW2 drama, set on an Indonesian island where the Japanese had established a POW camp for Australian flyers. The war has ended, and truth-seeking military lawyer Brown must deal with bureaucracy, politics, and clashing cultures as he sets out to prosecute different Japanese charged with mistreating and murdering POWs. Incisive, well-acted tale. Aka BLOOD OATH. [R] ▼●●

Private Affairs of Bel Ami, The (1947) 112m. ½ D: Albert Lewin. George Sanders, Angela Lansbury, Ann Dvorak, Frances Dee, Albert Basserman, Warren William, John Carradine. Delicious, literate adaptation (by Lewin) of Guy de Maupassant's "story of a rogue." Sanders, who gets ahead by using his charm on prominent women, denies himself the real love of Lansbury. Fine performances; beautifully photographed by Russell Metty. ▼

Private Benjamin (1980) C-110m.  D: Howard Zieff. Goldie Hawn, Eileen Brennan, Armand Assante, Robert Webber, Sam Wanamaker, Barbara Barrie, Mary Kay Place, Harry Dean Stanton, Albert Brooks, Hal Williams, P. J. Soles, Sally Kirkland, Richard Herd, Gretchen Wyler, Craig T. Nelson. A bubbleheaded Jewish American Princess enlists in the Army, and after a disastrous initiation finds direction and self-esteem for the first time in her life. Entertaining comedy with more substance than one might expect; Goldie is terrific in this tailor-made vehicle (which she produced). Later a TV series. [R] ▼●●

Private Confessions (1997-Swedish) C-127m.  D: Liv Ullmann. Pernilla August, Max von Sydow, Samuel Froler, Anita Bjork, Vibeke Falk, Thomas Hanzon. Intimate, compassionate autobiographical drama (an extension of THE BEST INTENTIONS) scripted by Ingmar Bergman, which further examines the stormy relationship between his parents: a strict, detached Lutheran minister (Froler) and a dynamic, restless woman caught in an unhappy marriage (August). Von Sydow brilliantly plays a fatherly priest. An exploration of religion, faith, and loneliness. Edited from a Swedish TV miniseries. ▼

Private Duty Nurses (1971) C-80m. BOMB D: George Armitage. Kathy Cannon, Joyce Williams, Pegi Boucher, Joseph Kaufmann, Herbert Jefferson, Jr., Paul Hampton, Paul Gleason. Second of Roger Corman's five "nurse" pictures is the worst. Glum and humorless, it spends more time on then-new waterbeds than in the hospital; dull cast doesn't help. Followed by NIGHT CALL NURSES. [R] ▼●

Private Eyes, The (1980) C-91m. ½ D: Lang Elliott. Tim Conway, Don Knotts, Trisha Noble, Bernard Fox, John Fujioka, Fred Stuthman. Conway and Knotts are bumbling Scotland Yard sleuths—and Abbott and Costello incarnate—in this silly, well-mounted murder-in-an-old-dark-house mystery. One of the better Conway-Knotts comedies. [PG] ▼●●

Private Fears in Public Places SEE: Coeurs

Private Files of J. Edgar Hoover, The (1977) C-112m. ½ D: Larry Cohen. Broderick Crawford, Dan Dailey, Jose Ferrer, Rip Torn, Michael Parks, Raymond St. Jacques, Ronce Blakley, Celeste Holm, Howard da Silva, June Havoc, John Marley, Andrew Duggan, Lloyd Nolan. Sleazy bio of former FBI chief makes for great camp with its all-star lineup of real-life politicians—not to mention that cast! [PG] ▼

Private Function, A (1985-British) C-93m. ½ D: Malcolm Mowbray. Michael Palin, Maggie Smith, Liz Smith, Denholm Elliott, Richard Griffiths, John Normington, Bill Paterson, Peter Postlethwaite. Droll, very British comedy by Alan Bennett set in post-WW2 England, where food rationing is still in force and a contraband pig becomes the center of attention. Often funny, but also cynical and cruel. Smith is hilarious as the social-climbing wife of milquetoasty podiatrist Palin. [R] ▼●

Private Hell 36 (1954) 81m. ½ D: Don Siegel. Ida Lupino, Steve Cochran, Howard Duff, Dean Jagger, Dorothy Malone. Well-balanced account of guilt overcoming two cops who retrieve stolen money but keep some for themselves. Interesting low-budgeter with first-rate cast, but gets awfully talky in the second half. Lupino also wrote and produced the film with Collier Young. ▼●

Private Lessons (1981) C-87m. *½ D: Alan Myerson. Sylvia Kristel, Howard Hesseman, Eric Brown, Pamela Bryant, Ed Begley, Jr., Crispin Glover. Male adolescent from wealthy family finds sexual delight with the maid, unaware that she has other plans for him. Surprise box-office hit is pretty mild piece of sleaze. Written by humorist Dan Greenburg (who also appears as a desk clerk). Followed by an in-name-only sequel 13 years later. [R] ▼●●

Private Life of Henry VIII, The (1933-British) 97m. * D: Alexander Korda. Charles Laughton, Binnie Barnes, Robert Donat, Elsa Lanchester, Merle Oberon, Miles Mander, Wendy Barrie, John Loder. Sweeping historical chronicle of 16th-century English monarch, magnificently captured by Oscar-winning Laughton in a multifaceted performance. Lanchester fine as Anne of Cleves, with top supporting cast. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼●●

but extremely personal Wilder film takes melancholy look at famed sleuth. Acting, photography, and score are tops in neglected film whose reputation should soar in future years. Intended as a 3½-hour film; some deleted material can be seen on the DVD. Made in England. Panavision. [PG] ▼●●

Private Lives (1931) 84m.  D: Sidney Franklin. Norma Shearer, Robert Montgomery, Jean Merkel, Reginald Denny, Jean Hersholt. Sparkling, witty adaptation of the Noel Coward comedy about a divorced couple (Shearer and Montgomery) who marry others and find themselves honeymooning at the same hotel. ▼●●

Private Lives of Adam and Eve, The (1960) C/B&W-87m. BOMB D: Albert Zugsmith, Mickey Rooney. Mickey Rooney, Marmie Van Doren, Fay Spain, Mel Torme, Martin Milner, Tuesday Weld, Cecil Kellaway, Paul Anka, Ziva Rodann. Perfectly awful fantasy about a stranded Nevada couple, Ad (Milner) and Evie (Van Doren), who dream that they are back in the Garden of Eden. Rooney chews the scenery as the Devil.

Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex, The (1939) C-106m. ½ D: Michael Curtiz. Bette Davis, Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Donald Crisp, Alan Hale, Vincent Price, Henry Stephenson, Henry Daniell, James Stephenson, Ralph Forbes, Robert Warwick, Leo G. Carroll. Colorful, elaborate costume drama with outstanding performance by Davis as queen whose love for dashing Flynn is thwarted. Not authentic history, but good drama. Norman Reilly Raine and Aeneas MacKenzie adapted Maxwell Anderson's play Elizabeth the Queen. Adult film debut of Nanette Fabray (Fabares). Aka ELIZABETH THE QUEEN. ▼●

Private Navy of Sgt. O'Farrell, The (1968) C-92m. BOMB D: Frank Tashlin. Bob Hope, Phyllis Diller, Jeffrey Hunter, Gina Lollobrigida, Mylene Demongeot, John Myhers, Mako. Hope tries to import some beautiful nurses to improve his men's morale, gets Diller instead. Of the many terrible Hope comedies of the 1960s, this may be the worst. Unfunny and offensive. [G] ▼●

Private Parts (1972) C-87m.  D: Paul Bartel. Ann Ruymen, Lucille Benson, Laurie Main, John Ventantonio. Truly perverse black-comedic suspense film about runaway teenage girl staying at her aunt's strange hotel where occupants are extremely weird. There's a series of murders but the focus is more on sexual eccentricities including voyeurism, narcissism, and transvestism. If Andy Warhol's CHELSEA GIRLS had been codirected by Alfred Hitchcock and John Waters it would come close to this directorial debut by Bartel. Clearly not for every taste. [R] ▼●

Private Parts (1997) C-109m.  D:

Betty Thomas. Howard Stern, Robin Quivers, Mary McCormack, Fred Norris, Paul Giamatti, Gary Dell'Abate, Jackie Martling, Carol Alt, "Stuttering John" Melendez, Allison Janney, Michael Murphy, Reni Santoni, Edie Falco. Horatio Alger-like saga of radio phenomenon Howard Stern, who only achieves success on the air when he starts giving vent to his most outrageous ideas. This pits him against one station management after another. Highly entertaining, even to non-Stern listeners, and evidence that (as Stern has said all along) he's actually an ordinary guy; the rest is a performance. Stern's real-life wife (at the time) plays an NBC switchboard operator. [R] ▼●●

Private Property (2007-French-Belgian-Luxembourg) C-95m.  D: Joachim Lafosse. Isabelle Huppert, Jérémie Renier, Yannick Renier, Kris Cuppens, Raphaëlle Lubansu, Patrick Descamps. Huppert, bitterly divorced, lives in a large Belgian farmhouse with her slacker twin sons, and is openly sexual in their presence. Emotions flare when she decides to sell the house and open a bed-and-breakfast. Edgy study of extreme dysfunction is provocative and features Huppert as yet another character who is psychologically unhinged. ●

Private Resort (1985) C-85m. BOMB D: George Bowers. Rob Morrow, Johnny Depp, Hector Elizondo, Dody Goodman, Tony Azito, Emily Longstreth, Karyn O' Bryan, Hilary Shapiro, Michael Bowen, Andrew (Dice) Clay. Imbecilic sex comedy about a couple of young fellows on the make at a resort hotel. Notable only for its two up-and-coming stars. [R] ▼●●

Private School (1983) C-97m. BOMB D: Noel Black. Phoebe Cates, Betsy Russell, Matthew Modine, Michael Zorek, Fran Ryan, Julie Payne, Ray Walston, Sylvia Kristel. Raunchy teenage hijinks at a girls' school, with ample nudity but no brains in sight. Even voyeurs might have a hard time sloshing through this heavy-handed, amateurish "comedy." [R] ▼●●

Privates on Parade (1982-British) C-100m. ½ D: Michael Blakemore. John Cleese, Denis Quilley, Nicola Pagett, Patrick Pearson, Michael Elphick. Uneven adaptation of Peter Nichols' British play about SADUSEA (Song And Dance Unit, South East Asia), based in Singapore in the late '40s. Quilley is an aging queen who directs and stars in their camp shows, Cleese his thick-witted commander. Some funny musical numbers mix awkwardly with satire—and unexpected drama. [R] ▼●●

Private's Progress (1956-British) 99m.  D: John Boulting. Richard Attenborough, Jill Adams, Dennis Price, Terry-Thomas, Ian Carmichael, Peter Jones, Christopher Lee. Prize collection of funny men, splendidly played by cast, involved in

Army shenanigans. Sequel: I'M ALL RIGHT JACK.▼

Private War of Major Benson, The (1955) C-105m. ½ D: Jerry Hopper. Charlton Heston, Julie Adams, William Demarest, Tim Hovey, Sal Mineo, David Janssen, Tim Considine, Milburn Stone. Hovey is the little boy at military school who charms rugged commander-turned-schoolmaster Heston into sympathetic person. Remade as MAJOR PAYNE (1995).▼

Privilege (1967-British) C-101m.  D: Peter Watkins. Paul Jones, Jean Shrimpton, Marc London, Max Bacon, Jeremy Child. Overambitious yet effective account of 1970s England where all-powerful welfare state manipulates masses through such media as pop singers. Jones is good as disillusioned teen-age idol.▶

Prix de Beauté (1930-French) 94m. ½ D: Augusto Genina. Louise Brooks, Jean Bradin, Georges Charlia, Gaston Jacquet, A. Nicolle. Brooks is the whole show in this, her first sound film (and last major screen role). The story may be clichéd—a melodrama in which she's cast as a typist who becomes a beauty queen—but Brooks is as lovely and sensuous as ever. The final sequence is truly memorable. René Clair, originally scheduled to direct, had a hand in the script. Aka MISS EUROPE.▶

Prize, The (1963) C-136m.  D: Mark Robson. Paul Newman, Elke Sommer, Edward G. Robinson, Diane Baker, Kevin McCarthy, Micheline Presle, Leo G. Carroll. Irving Wallace novel is mere stepping stone for glossy spy yarn set in Stockholm, involving participants in Nobel Prize ceremony. Newman and Sommer make handsome leads; Robinson has dual role. Fast-moving fun; script by Ernest Lehman. Panavision.▼

Prize Fighter, The (1979) C-99m.  D: Michael Preece. Tim Conway, Don Knotts, David Wayne, Robin Clarke, Cisse Cameron, Mary Ellen O'Neill. If you like Knotts and Conway, you'll probably get through this lame, kiddie-oriented comedy about a dumb boxer and his smart-aleck manager, set in the 1930s. [PG]▶

Prizefighter and the Lady, The (1933) 102m.  D: W. S. Van Dyke. Myrna Loy, Max Baer, Otto Kruger, Walter Huston, Jack Dempsey, Primo Carnera, Jess Willard, James J. Jeffries. Entertaining film breathes life into potential clichés; real-life boxing champ Baer plays a prizefighter who falls for high-class gangster's moll Loy. Exciting prizefight finale.●

Prize of Arms, A (1961-British) 105m. ½ D: Cliff Owen. Stanley Baker, Tom Bell, Helmut Schmid, John Phillips. Hindered by heavy British accents ruining much dialogue, tale unfolds methodical plan for big heist of Army funds.

Prize of Gold, A (1955-British) C-98m.

Prize Winner of Defiance, Ohio, The (2005) C-99m.  D: Jane Anderson. Julianne Moore, Woody Harrelson, Laura Dern, Trevor Morgan, Ellary Porterfield, Simon Reynolds, Nora Dunn. Midwestern woman raises ten kids in the 1950s, repeatedly keeping the wolf from the door by winning slogan contests. Not a slice of rosy-hued Americana but a pointed, often heart-rending look at a woman with indomitable spirit who kept her family together in spite of her loose-cannon, ne'er-do-well husband and the condescending attitude of the men around her. Moore is completely believable as the can-do supermom; Harrelson is equally good as her loving but self-destructive spouse. Anderson adapted Terry Ryan's memoir. [PG-13]▶

Prizzi's Honor (1985) C-129m. ½ D: John Huston. Jack Nicholson, Kathleen Turner, Anjelica Huston, Robert Loggia, William Hickey, John Randolph, Lee Richardson, Michael Lombard, Lawrence Tierney, Joseph Ruskin, Stanley Tucci. Delicious, very offbeat black comedy about a slow-witted hit man from a close-knit Mafia family who gets more than he bargained for when he falls in love with Turner. Nicholson is a joy to watch, matched by a superlative cast (Randolph is a treat as his father). Huston wrings every drop of irony from Richard Condon and Janet Roach's wry screenplay (based on Condon's novel). Beautifully photographed by Andrzej Bartkowiak. Anjelica Huston won Best Supporting Actress Oscar for her sly performance, directed by her father. [R]▶●●

Problem Child (1990) C-81m. ½ D: Dennis Dugan. John Ritter, Michael Oliver, Jack Warden, Amy Yasbeck, Gilbert Gottfried, Michael Richards. Botched comic twist on THE BAD SEED has Ritter as an unlucky father who adopts devil-child Oliver. A promising opening leads nowhere as bad performances and crude jokes prevail. Followed by a sequel, a TV movie, and an animated TV series. [PG]▶●●

Problem Child 2 (1991) C-91m. ½ D: Brian Levant. John Ritter, Michael Oliver, Jack Warden, Laraine Newman, Amy Yasbeck, Ivyann Schwan, Gilbert Gottfried, Paul Willson, Charlene Tilton, James Tolkan, Martha Quinn. The sequel no one asked for has Ritter adopting a second demon-child, this one female and hell-bent to give her stepbrother a run for his money. Any parent who lets an impressionable child watch this stuff ought to have his or her head examined! Followed by a 1995 TVM sequel. [PG-13]▶●●

Prodigal, The (1955) C-114m. ½ D:

Richard Thorpe. Lana Turner, Edmund Purdom, James Mitchell, Louis Calhern, Audrey Dalton, Neville Brand, Taina Elg, Cecil Kellaway, Henry Daniell, Walter Hampden, Joseph Wiseman. Juvenile biblical semi-spectacle, with Turner the evil goddess of love corrupting Purdom; glossy MGM vehicle. CinemaScope. ▼●●

Producers, The (1968) C-88m. ½ D: Mel Brooks. Zero Mostel, Gene Wilder, Kenneth Mars, Dick Shawn, Lee Meredith, Christopher Hewett, Andreas Voutsinas, Estelle Winwood, Renee Taylor, Bill Hickey. Classic piece of insanity stars incomparable Mostel as hard-luck Broadway producer Max Bialystock, who cons meek accountant Wilder into helping him with outrageous scheme: selling 25,000% of a play that's certain to flop, then heading to Rio with the excess cash. One of those rare films that gets funnier with each viewing, highlighted by legendary "Springtime for Hitler" production number. Brooks' first feature earned him an Oscar for his screenplay. Listen for his voice dubbed into "Springtime for Hitler." Later a Broadway musical, which, in turn, was filmed in 2005. ▼●●

Producers, The (2005) C-129m.  D: Susan Stroman. Nathan Lane, Matthew Broderick, Uma Thurman, Will Ferrell, Gary Beach, Roger Bart, Eileen Essell, David Hudleston, Jon Lovitz, Michael McKean, Richard Kind, Debra Monk, Andrea Martin, Brad Oscar. Broadway's worst producer teams up with a naïve bookkeeper to make money by producing a surefire flop, Springtime for Hitler. Valuable as a reproduction of the 2001 Broadway musical with its stars Lane, Broderick, Beach, Bart (and in a bit part, Oscar), but suffers as the stage show did by padding Brooks' original 1968 screenplay and softening some of its perverse, politically incorrect flavor. First-time film director Stroman tries to achieve a Broadway feeling, but the result is an odd hybrid of a stage performance and a movie. If you do watch this, stay through the closing credits. Brooks also dubs the same line in the "Springtime for Hitler" number that he did in the 1968 version. Panavision. [PG-13] ●

Professional, The (1994-U.S.-French) C-109m.  D: Luc Besson. Jean Reno, Gary Oldman, Natalie Portman, Danny Aiello, Ellen Greene. Hit man (Reno) allies with alienated young girl (Portman, in her film debut) and together they battle thugs and cops in N.Y.C. Well-directed U.S. debut for Frenchman Besson (LA FEMME NIKITA) suffers from overly familiar, artificial situations and a bizarre, scenery-chewing performance from Oldman. This was rereleased in France in 1996 as LEON: VERSION INTEGRALE, with 26m. of additional footage.

That version is also on DVD. Technovision. [R] ▼●●

Professionals, The (1966) C-117m.  D: Richard Brooks. Lee Marvin, Robert Ryan, Woody Strode, Burt Lancaster, Jack Palance, Ralph Bellamy, Claudia Cardinale. Bellamy employs four soldiers-of-fortune to rescue his wife from Mexican varmint Palance. Far-fetched story, but real action, taut excitement throughout; beautifully photographed by Conrad Hall. Program, The (1993) C-114m.  D: David S. Ward. James Caan, Halle Berry, Omar Epps, Craig Sheffer, Kristy Swanson, Abraham Benrubi, Duane Davis, Andrew Bryniarski, Joey Lauren Adams. Ambitious but seriously flawed attempt to examine the problems of college football players, and expose abuses in contemporary university sports programs. Few of the characters are sympathetic, so it's difficult to care about them or their plight. Notorious for studio deletion, after the film's opening weeks, of a sequence involving jocks lying in the middle of a busy street to prove their manliness. This came after one teenager was killed, and others seriously injured, allegedly imitating the sequence. [R] ▼●●

Project A (1983-Hong Kong) C-106m.  D: Jackie Chan. Jackie Chan, Yuen Biao, Samo Hung, Dick Wei, Isabella Wong. Turn-of-the-century adventure finds Chan in the Hong Kong coast guard battling pirates, teaming up with cop Yuen and thief Samo. Fantastic action comedy, with many moments reminiscent of Chan's hero, Buster Keaton. The bicycle chase is a highlight. Considered by some to be Chan's best film. Followed by a sequel. Technovision. ▼●

Project A, Part II (1987-Hong Kong) C-108m.  D: Jackie Chan. Jackie Chan, Maggie Cheung, David Lam, Rosamund Kwan, Carina Lau, Bill Tung Pui. Terrific sequel has Jackie dodging vengeful pirates from the first film while fighting corrupt officials. Nice mix of farce and jaw-dropping action. Chan re-creates one of Buster Keaton's most famous stunts at the end of the film. Technovision. ▼●

Projected Man, The (1967-British) C-77m.

 D: Ian Curtis. Bryant Haliday, Mary Peach, Norman Wooland, Ronald Allen, Derek Farr. Using a teleportation machine something like that in all the FLY movies, scientist accidentally disfigures himself and gains the touch of death. Not bad but unoriginal. Techniscope.

Projectionist, The (1971) C-85m. ½ D: Harry Hurwitz. Chuck McCann, Ina Balin, Rodney Dangerfield, Jara Kohout, Harry Hurwitz, Robert Staats. Independently made film has ups and downs, but many pearly moments in story of daydreaming projectionist McCann who envisions himself a superhero, Captain Flash. Many film clips imaginatively used: best of all is coming-attractions trailer for the end of the world. [PG]▼

Project Moon Base (1953) 63m.  D: Richard Talmadge. Donna Martell, Hayden Rorke, Ross Ford, Larry Johns, Herb Jacobs. In the near future, three people make the first trip to the Moon from the American space station circling the Earth, but one of them is an enemy spy. Mediocre acting in this routine but scientifically accurate story. Famed sci-fi writer Robert A. Heinlein co-wrote the movie; the low budget shows.▼

Project X (1968) C-97m. ½ D: William Castle. Christopher George, Greta Baldwin, Henry Jones, Monte Markham, Phillip Pine, Harold Gould. Offbeat but ultimately unconvincing mixture of time travel, biological warfare, and psychology in tale of future Earth civilization searching for secret germ formula. Their amnesiac secret agent has it; how to get it?

Project X (1987) C-108m. ½ D: Jonathan Kaplan. Matthew Broderick, Helen Hunt, Bill Sadler, Johnny Ray McGhee, Jonathan Stark, Robin Gammell, Stephen Lang, Jean Smart, Dick Miller. Young military foul-up is assigned to top secret lab where he works with chimps—and soon becomes enraged at the tests they're being subjected to. Watchable but patently predictable story, with a finale vaguely reminiscent of a 1960s Disney comedy. The chimps (especially Willie, in the role of Virgil) are great, however. [PG]▼

Promise, The (1979) C-98m. BOMB D: Gilbert Cates. Kathleen Quinlan, Stephen Collins, Beatrice Straight, Laurence Luckinbill, William Prince. Boy loves girl. Girl loses face in car accident. Boy thinks girl dead. Girl gets new face from plastic surgeon. Boy falls for old girl's new face. Viewer runs screaming from room. Panavision. [PG]▼

Promise, The (1994-German-French-Swiss) C-119m.  D: Margarethe von Trotta. Corinna Harfouch, Meret Becker, August Zirner, Anian Zollner, Pierre Besson, Hans Kremer. Pointed account of star-crossed German lovers, covering a 30-year time span, beginning with their separation while trying to escape from East to West in 1961. Their relationship mirrors German history during this period and serves as a metaphor for a divided, and then reunified, nation. Another provocative, politically savvy drama from von Trotta. [R]▼

Promise, The (2005-Chinese-U.S.) C-102m. ½ D: Chen Kaige. Dong-Kun Jang, Hiroyuki Sanada, Cecilia Cheung, Nicholas Tse, Ye Liu, Hong Chen, Cheng Qian. Odd mixture of fantasy-romance and martial arts. A goddess offers a young girl (orphaned by a war) a life of wealth and happiness, but she will lose every man she falls in love with unless a spell can be reversed that would make the dead return and snow fall in the spring. Not as easy as it sounds! Extravagantly pictorial fable (stunningly photographed by Peter Pau) melds lofty romance with high-flying martial arts, though it is often marred by cheesy computer-generated effects and chucklesome overacting. A major box-office hit in Asia. Original running time 128m. Super 35. [PG-13]▶

Promise at Dawn (1970-U.S.-French) C-101m. ½ D: Jules Dassin. Melina Mercouri, Assaf Dayan, Francois Raffoul, Despo, Fernand Gravey, Perlo Vita (Jules Dassin). Seventh teaming of Mercouri and husband Dassin, who produced, directed, wrote, and also does a bit role as Russian silent-film star Ivan Mousjoukine. It's mostly Mercouri's show, an uneven but well-acted chronicle of the life of writer Romain Gary and his resourceful actress mother. Dayan is good as the young adult Gary. [PG]▼

Promised Land (1988) C-101m. ½ D: Michael Hoffman. Jason Gedrick, Kiefer Sutherland, Meg Ryan, Tracy Pollan, Googy Gress, Deborah Richter, Sondra Seacat. Uneven but moody little sleeper, set in the rural Northwest, about two casual high school acquaintances whose lives intersect tragically a couple of years after graduation. Ryan is a standout as a tattooed, rod-packing high school learner. Aka YOUNG HEARTS. [R]▶

Promise Her Anything (1966) C-98m. ½ D: Arthur Hiller. Warren Beatty, Leslie Caron, Bob Cummings, Hermione Gingold, Lionel Stander, Keenan Wynn. Limp premise of blue-moviemaker (Beatty) taking care of neighbor Caron's baby. Filmed in England but supposed to be Greenwich Village; screenplay by William Peter Blatty. Look for Bessie Love as a pet shop customer, Donald Sutherland as a baby's father.▼

Promises (2001) C-100m. ½ D: Justine Shapiro, B.Z. Goldberg, Carlos Bolado. Observant, deeply humanistic documentary records the lives of seven Israeli and Palestinian children residing in and around Jerusalem. They live only minutes apart, yet their worlds and worldviews are vastly different. The highlight: Jewish twin boys travel to a refugee camp and spend a day playing with their Palestinian counterparts. Here, the shared humanity of all the children—which transcends religious and cultural differences—shines through.▶

ald Moffat. Unrelievedly depressing (though well-made) film about young girl (Beller) dying of cancer, and her compassionate doctor (Mason). Directorial debut of producer Hellman. [PG]▼

Promises! Promises! (1963) 75m. BOMB D: King Donovan. Jayne Mansfield, Marie McDonald, Tommy Noonan, Mickey Hargitay, Fritz Feld, T. C. Jones, Claude Stroud, Marjorie Bennett, Eddie Quillan, Eileen Barton, Imogene Coca. Dreadful comedy about couples Mansfield-Noonan and McDonald-Hargitay, and their sexual shenanigans on a cruise. Notorious in its day for Jayne's baring her bod, a first for its time. Still, beware: it is a truly bad movie. Mansfield was in real life married to Hargitay; Noonan coproduced and coscripted.▼

Prom Night (1980-Canadian) C-91m.  D: Paul Lynch. Leslie Nielsen, Jamie Lee Curtis, Casey Stevens, Antoinette Bower, Robert Silverman. Killer menaces teens who were responsible for the death of a little girl six years earlier. Not the worst of its type, but that's nothing to brag about. Remade in name only in 2008. Followed by several sequels. [R]▼

Prom Night (2008) C-88m. ½ D: Nelson McCormick. Brittany Snow, Scott Porter, Jessica Stroup, Dana Davis, Collins Pennie, Kelly Blatz, James Ransone, Brianna Davis, Idris Elba, Mary Mara, Ming (Ming-Na) Wen, Jessalyn Gilsig, Linden Ashby, Johnathon Schaech. Three years after a homicidally obsessive teacher (Schaech) murdered her family, a lovely high-schooler (Snow) is stalked by an unwanted admirer on the night of her senior prom. A nominal remake of the post-HALLOWEEN slasher film, this better-than-average teen-skewing thriller relies on minimal graphic violence to sustain suspense. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Promoter, The (1952-British) 88m.  D: Ronald Neame. Alec Guinness, Glynis Johns, Valerie Hobson, Petula Clark, Edward Chapman. Charming comedy about a likable but penniless young man who sees how to get ahead in the world—and seizes his opportunity. Script by Eric Ambler from Arnold Bennett's story The Card, also its title in England.▼

Promotion, The (2008) C-85m.  D: Steven Conrad. Seann William Scott, John C. Reilly, Jenna Fischer, Lili Taylor, Bobby Cannavale, Fred Armisen, Gil Bellows, Jason Bateman. Assistant supermarket manager Scott is aiming for a big promotion when a competitor (Reilly) arrives, seemingly out of nowhere—but actually from Canada. Low-key comedy with serious undertones examines the working-class American dream gone somewhat sour. Bateman has one funny scene as an activities director

at a company retreat. Directorial debut for screenwriter Conrad. Panavision. [R]▼

Proof (1992-Australian) C-91m. ½ D: Jocelyn Moorhouse. Hugo Weaving, Genevieve Picot, Russell Crowe, Heather Mitchell, Jeffrey Walker, Frank Gallacher. A blind cynic who impulsively shoots photographs of everything is perversely manipulated by the housekeeper who'd like to bed him; into their circle comes a far less complex dishwasher, who puts a fresh spin on their sicko games. Assuredly made film is effectively cold, cut to the bone and reminiscent of THE SERVANT. Moorhouse also scripted. [R]▼

Proof (2005) C-99m.  D: John Madden. Gwyneth Paltrow, Anthony Hopkins, Jake Gyllenhaal, Hope Davis, Roshan Seth. A woman who cared for her father—a brilliant mathematician and professor who went crazy—during the last years of his life now questions her own sanity. Her meddlesome sister wants her to move out of the family home and distance herself from the past, while one of her father's protégés is digging through his papers to find any hidden gems (or proofs) among his work. David Auburn's challenging, provocative, and cerebral play (a Pulitzer Prize winner) is well translated to film by director Madden, with fine performances all around; adapted by Auburn and Rebecca Miller. Super 35. [PG-13]▼

Proof of Life (2000) C-136m. ½ D: Taylor Hackford. Meg Ryan, Russell Crowe, David Morse, Pamela Reed, David Caruso, Anthony Heald, Stanley Anderson, Gottfried John, Alun Armstrong, Michael Kitchen, Margo Martindale. Entertaining if all-too-familiar soap-opera/thriller set in Latin America. Hostage-negotiator-for-hire Crowe comes to the assistance of frantic wife Ryan when her idealistic engineer husband is kidnapped by a cutthroat band of political ideologues-turned-drug lords. Caruso almost steals the film as a fellow negotiator. Super 35. [R]▼

Prophecy (1979) C-95m. *½ D: John Frankenheimer. Talia Shire, Robert Foxworth, Armand Assante, Richard Dysart, Victoria Racimo. Classical musician and her doctor husband fight off what appears to be a giant salami in upstate Maine after mercury poisoning turns animals into huge mutants and worse. Ridiculous horror film is good for a few laughs. Panavision. [PG]▼

Prophecy, The (1995) C-93m.  D: Gregory Widen. Christopher Walken, Elias Koteas, Virginia Madsen, Eric Stoltz, Viggo Mortensen, Amanda Plummer. Seminarian Koteas abandons the church during his own ordination to become . . . a homicide cop. Soon he's investigating why Stoltz has murdered an eyeless hermaphrodite with the physiological profile of an aborted fetus. There's either too much mumbo or too much jumbo in this oddball horror pic. Give it perverse points, though, for managing to work in a Korean War subplot and for casting Walken as the Angel Gabriel. Followed by too many direct-to-video sequels. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Proposition, The (1998) C-110m.  D: Lesli Linka Glatter. Kenneth Branagh, William Hurt, Madeleine Stowe, Blythe Danner, Robert Loggia, Neil Patrick Harris, Josef Sommer. Heavy-handed soap opera set in the 1930s gives Branagh a thankless role as a priest with more ties than one could ever imagine to wealthy Boston bigwig Hurt who can't give his wife the one thing he wants most: a child. A fine cast flounders with purple paperback fodder; sputteringly silly at times. [R]▼●●

Proposition, The (2005-Australian-British) C-104m.  D: John Hillcoat. Guy Pearce, Ray Winstone, Emily Watson, Danny Huston, John Hurt, David Wenham, Noah Taylor, David Gulpilil, Leah Purcell, Richard Wilson. Determined to bring law and order to a wild Australia in the 1880s, British officer Winstone makes a Devil's bargain with Pearce: he can save his life, and that of his dimwitted younger sibling, if he will kill his older brother, who raped and murdered a pregnant woman. Austere, violent, and relentlessly harsh, like the time and place it portrays. Nick Cave's screenplay challenges the viewer to find humanity amidst the sturm und drang; it ain't easy. Super 35. [R]●

Proprietor, The (1996) C-113m.  D: Ismail Merchant. Jeanne Moreau, Sean Young, Sam Waterston, Austin Pendleton, Josh Hamilton, Nell Carter, Christopher Cazenove, Pierre Vanneck, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Marc Tissot. Wildly uneven story set in Paris and N.Y.C. finds author Moreau exploring two distinct cultures, past and present life experiences, and relationships old and new as she examines the meaning of her life and the importance of memories. It's always nice to see Moreau in a major role, but this muddled vehicle isn't worthy of her. Rare directorial effort for producer Merchant. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Prospero's Books (1991-British-Dutch) C-129m. ½ D: Peter Greenaway. John Gielgud, Michael Clark, Michel Blanc, Erland Josephson, Isabelle Pasco, Tom Bell. Original, daring but unsatisfactory adaptation of Shakespeare's The Tempest, with almost all of the dialogue spoken by 87-year-old Gielgud (in the role of Prospero); the other actors are little more than extras, and there's a mindboggling amount of nudity. Crammed with stunning, layered imagery, beautiful production design and cinematography—which tend to lessen the impact of the dialogue. Enjoyment will depend on your tolerance for Greenaway's approach to the material. [R]▼●●

Protector, The (1985-U.S.-Hong Kong) C-91m. *½ D: James Glickenhaus. Jackie Chan, Danny Aiello, Sandy Alexander, Roy

Chiao, Bill Wallace. Dismal attempt to bring Chan to the American market as a N.Y.C. cop(!). Leaden directing, cold tone, and lack of comedy smother Chan's gifts; his frustrations with this film led him to make the vastly superior POLICE STORY. ▼●

Protector, The (2005-Thai) C-81m.  D: Prachya Pinkaew. Tony Jaa, Petchtai Wongkamlao, Bongkoj Khongmalai, Nathan Jones, Johnny Nguyen, King Jing, Damian De Montemas. Wrongheaded mix of a kung fu movie and a boy-and-his-dog story, this cheap-looking import from Thailand gets sappy when a young martial arts fighter has his beloved elephant stolen by thugs and shipped to Australia. Following the bad guys there, he hooks up with a Thai-born Australian detective and does battle with evil gangs and others in an effort to retrieve his little Dumbo. Jaa, an international star, offers dazzling footwork, but that can't make up for the sorry script. Original running time 108m. [R]●

Goldie Hawn, Chris Sarandon, Richard Romanus, Andre Gregory, Gail Strickland, Cliff De Young, Keith Szarabajka, Ed Begley, Jr., James Staley, Kenneth Mars, Jean Smart, Joel Brooks, Daphne Maxwell, Amanda Bearse, Kenneth McMillan. Or, Goldie Goes to Washington: a contrived comedy vehicle for Hawn as inadvertent heroine (and overnight celebrity) who's rewarded with do-nothing government job . . . but soon becomes a pawn for dealing with Middle Eastern potentate. Some funny moments give way to obvious satire and a hard-to-swallow finish in which Goldie makes like Capra's Mr. Smith. [PG]▼●●

Proud and Profane, The (1956) 111m. ½ D: George Seaton. William Holden, Deborah Kerr, Thelma Ritter, Dewey Martin, William Redfield, Ross Bagdasarian, Marion Ross. Spotty WW2 romance story has many parallels to FROM HERE TO ETERNITY, but Kerr-Holden romance is never believable. VistaVision.

Proud Ones, The (1953-French-Mexican) 94m. ½ D: Yves Allégret. Michele Morgan, Gérard Philipe, Victor Manuel Mendoza, Michele Cordoue. Well-bred Morgan and down-and-out doctor Philippe cross paths in Vera Cruz, Mexico, in this absorbing tale of love, religion, and the effects of a deadly plague on the impoverished populace. Striking and atmospheric; based on Jean-Paul Sartre novel L'Amour Redempteur (set in China!). Original title: LES ORGUEILLEUX. Aka THE PROUD AND THE BEAUTIFUL. ▼

Proud Rebel, The (1958) C-103m.  D: Michael Curtiz. Alan Ladd, Olivia de Havilland, Dean Jagger, David Ladd, Cecil Kellaway, Henry Hull, John Carradine, (Harry) Dean Stanton. Well-presented post-Civil War

study of two-fisted Southerner Ladd seeking medical help for mute son (played by Ladd's real-life son); de Havilland is the woman who tames him. ▼●●

Providence (1977-British) C-104m.  D: Alain Resnais. Dirk Bogarde, John Gielgud, Ellen Burstyn, David Warner, Elaine Stritch. Odd fantasy marked director Resnais' English-language debut. Prowler, The (1951) 92m. ½ D: Joseph Losey. Van Heflin, Evelyn Keyes, John Maxwell, Katharine Warren. Fairly good thriller about sector car cop Heflin, who complains he's had one too many "lousy breaks." He becomes obsessed with, and seduces, married Keyes . . . and plots to do in her husband.

Prowler, The (1981) C-88m. *½ D: Joseph Zito. Vicki Dawson, Christopher Goutman, Cindy Weintraub, Farley Granger, John Seitz. WW2 veteran kills ex-girlfriend and her new amour with a pitchfork, then suddenly resumes his murderous ways 35 years later. Illogically plotted, with gruesome special effects by Tom Savini. [R]▼●

Prozac Nation (2005-U.S.-German) C-95m.  D: Erik Skjoldbjærg. Christina Ricci, Jason Biggs, Anne Heche, Michelle Williams, Jonathan Rhys-Meyers, Jessica Lange, Nicholas Campbell, Jesse Moss, Zoe Miller, Sheila Paterson. Ricci's raw, intensely emotional performance partly redeems this off-putting adaptation of Elizabeth Wurtzel's best-selling memoir about a Harvard student's downward spiral into drugs and clinical depression in the mid-1980s. Well-intentioned but relentless downer of a film never really makes us care about the unsympathetic heroine's plight. Completed in 2001, released to video in the U.S. four years later! Lou Reed has a cameo as himself. [R]●

Prudence and the Pill (1968-British) C-98m. ½ D: Fiedler Cook, Ronald Neame. Deborah Kerr, David Niven, Robert Coote, Irina Demick, Joyce Redman, Judy Geeson, Keith Michell. Labored comedy treatment of modern sexual mores. Niven thinks he can patch up his in-name-only marriage by substituting aspirin for his wife's birth control pills. Good cast and performances, but weak script. [R] p.s. (2004) C-97m.  D: Dylan Kidd. Laura Linney, Tophér Grace, Gabriel Byrne, Marcia Gay Harden, Paul Rudd, Lois Smith. Thirty-something Columbia University admissions officer Linney is stuck in a rut, until she comes into contact with a brash prospective student (Grace) who eerily resembles an old, long-deceased boyfriend. Linney and Harden are always watchable, but the characters are caricatures and much of the dialogue is artificial, even unintentionally funny. Co-scripted by Kidd and Helen Schulman, based on her novel. [R]▼●

P.S. I Love You (2007) C-126m. ½ D: Richard LaGravenese. Hilary Swank, Gerard Butler, Kathy Bates, Lisa Kudrow, Gina Gershon, James Marsters, Harry Connick, Jr., Jeffrey Dean Morgan. After her young husband develops a brain tumor and dies, a grieving widow starts receiving a series of letters from him instructing her how to get on without him. Since Butler succumbs before the opening credits you can rest assured their courtship and marriage are going to be told completely in flashbacks. Director and cowriter LaGravenese makes this a pleasant ride most of the way, even for reluctant male viewers. [PG-13]●

Psychic, The (1978-Italian) C-89m. BOMB D: Lucio Fulci. Jennifer O'Neill, Gabriele Ferzetti, Marc Porel, Gianni Garko, Evelyn Stewart. O'Neill has frightening premonitions of deaths in this low-grade thriller. Aka SEVEN NOTES IN BLACK. [R]▼●

Psycho (1960) 109m. * D: Alfred Hitchcock. Anthony Perkins, Janet Leigh, Vera Miles, John Gavin, Martin Balsam, John McIntire, Lurene Tuttle, Simon Oakland, John Anderson, Mort Mills, Frank Albertson, Patricia Hitchcock. The Master's most notorious film is still terrifying after all these years, as larcenous Leigh picks the wrong place to spend a night: The Bates Motel (12 cabins, 12 vacancies . . . and 12 showers), run by a peculiar young man and his crotchety old "mother." Hitchcock's murder set pieces are so potent, they can galvanize (and frighten) even a viewer who's seen them before! Bernard Herrmann's legendary (and endlessly imitated) score adds much to the excitement. Script by Joseph Stefano from the Robert Bloch novel. Followed by three sequels (the last for cable TV) and a TV movie (BATES MOTEL) decades later, and remade in 1998. ▼●●

Psycho (1998) C-109m. BOMB D: Gus Van Sant. Vince Vaughn, Anne Heche, Julianne Moore, Viggo Mortensen, William H. Macy, Robert Forster, Philip Baker Hall, Anne Haney, Chad Everett, Rance Howard, Rita Wilson, James Remar, James LeGros. Slow, stilted, completely pointless scene-for-scene remake of the Hitchcock classic (with a few awkward new touches to taint its claim as an exact replica). The result is an insult, rather than a tribute, to a landmark film. [R]▼●●

Psycho II (1983) C-113m. ½ D: Richard Franklin. Anthony Perkins, Vera Miles,

Meg Tilly, Robert Loggia, Dennis Franz, Hugh Gillin. Surprisingly good sequel, with Perkins in a wonderfully canny reprise of his role as Norman Bates—now being released from asylum, supposedly rehabilitated, returning to his mother's creaky old mansion. Director Franklin builds some terrific suspense scenes, but finally goes for graphic violence toward the end, and tacks on a silly conclusion, undermining an otherwise first-rate shocker. [R] ▼●●

Psycho III (1986) C-96m. *½ D: Anthony Perkins. Anthony Perkins, Diana Scarwid, Jeff Fahey, Roberta Maxwell, Hugh Gillin, Lee Garlington. Pointless sequel plays Norman Bates strictly for laughs, but maintains a slasher-film mentality. No suspense, just some gratuitous blood and unpleasantness. Perkins' directorial debut. Good night, Norman. Followed by a TV movie prequel in 1990. [R] ▼●●

Psycho a Go-Go! SEE: Blood of Ghastly Horror

Psycho Beach Party (2000-U.S.-Australian) C-95m.  D: Robert Lee King. Lauren Ambrose, Thomas Gibson, Nicholas Brendon, Matt Keeslar, Andrew Levitas, Amy Adams, Nick Cornish, Charles Busch, Kathleen Robertson, Beth Broderick, Kimberley Davies. Campy spoof of beach movies mixes '50s values with '70s slasher films and is only partly successful. Teenage heroine Ambrose seems virtuous but harbors multiple personalities. Busch adapted his 1987 off-Broadway hit but film version seems forced and overlong. ▼

Psycho-Circus (1967-British-West German) C-65m. ½ D: John Moxey. Christopher Lee, Heinz Drache, Margaret Lee, Suzy Kendall, Leo Genn, Cecil Parker, Klaus Kinski. Confused (due to distributor cuts) Edgar Wallace-based story of murderer stalking odd assortment of characters in big top. Is it hooded Gregor the lion-tamer? Short running time gives film old-style serial-type pacing. Original title: CIRCUS OF FEAR. ▼

Psycho Killers SEE: Mania

Psychomania (1963) 93m. *½ D: Richard Hilliard. Lee Philips, Shepperd Strudwick, Jean Hale, Lorraine Rogers, Margot Hartman, Kaye Elhardt, James Farentino, Dick Van Patten, Sylvia Miles. War hero turned painter, suspected of murdering two beautiful young women, undertakes his own investigation. Exploitive independent production filmed in Connecticut. Originally titled VIOLENT MIDNIGHT. ▼

Psychomania (1973-British) C-95m. ½ D: Don Sharp. George Sanders, Nicky Henson, Mary Larkin, Patrick Holt, Beryl Reid. Pact with Devil brings British motorcycle gang back from the grave. Lots of weird violence as undead bikers blaze a kamikaze trail of destruction across prepunk

England. Screenplay by Julian Halevy. Aka THE DEATH WHEELERS. ▼

Psychopath, The (1966-British) 83m.  D: Freddie Francis. Patrick Wymark, Margaret Johnston, John Standing, Judy Huxtable. A demented killer leaves dolls as his calling card at the scene of the murders; well-made thriller from Robert Bloch script. Techniscope.

Psycho Sisters SEE: So Evil, My Sister

Psych-Out (1968) C-82m. ½ D: Richard Rush. Susan Strasberg, Jack Nicholson, Adam Roarke, Dean Stockwell, Max Julien, Bruce Dern, Henry Jaglom, The Strawberry Alarm Clock, The Seeds, Garry Marshall. Deaf runaway Strasberg comes to Haight-Ashbury looking for missing brother Dern, falls in with rock band led by pony-tailed Nicholson. Any serious intentions have long since vanished; gloriously goofy dialogue ("Warren's freakin' out at the gallery!") and psychedelic Laszlo Kovacs camerawork make this—depending on your age and sensibilities—either amusing nostalgia or a campy embarrassment. Produced by Dick Clark! ▼●●

P.S. Your Cat is Dead! (2003) C-92m. *½ D: Steve Guttenberg. Steve Guttenberg, Lombardo Boyar, Cynthia Watros, Shirley Knight, A. J. Benza, Paul Dillon, Tom Wright. Screen version of James Kirkwood's 1972 novel and 1975 play is obviously a labor of love for debuting director Guttenberg, but some things are better left on the page. Dated premise has down-on-his-luck actor slowly "coming out" to a burglar in a home invasion that has life-changing repercussions for all involved. Claustrophobic, one-set film features stereotypes that seem badly dated. The only character we can work up any sympathy for is the cat, which is never seen. ▼

PT 109 (1963) C-140m.  D: Leslie H. Martinson. Cliff Robertson, Ty Hardin, James Gregory, Robert Culp, Grant Williams, Lew Gallo, Errol John, Michael Pate, Robert Blake, Biff Elliot, Norman Fell. Gung-ho WW2 action yarn based on President John F. Kennedy's experiences in the Pacific as a PT boat captain. Very much of its time; it was released in June of the year JFK died. Panavision. ▼●

P2 (2007) C-98m. *½ D: Franck Khalfoun. Rachel Nichols, Wes Bentley, Philip Akin, Stephanie Moore, Miranda Edwards. Derivative thriller is more PU than P2, taking a well-worn psycho-on-the-loose plot and setting it in an underground N.Y.C. office garage on Christmas Eve. Workaholic woman is the last to leave and finds herself stuck with a creepy psychotic security guard. He proceeds to terrorize her as she is forced to run around wearing a wet white slip for most of the movie. Follows a bloody path to its inevitable conclusion. Super 35. [R]D

Puberty Blues (1981-Australian) C-86m. ½ D: Bruce Beresford. Neil Schofield, Jad Capelja, Geoff Rhoe, Tony Hughes, Sandy Paul. Teenage growing pains, told (refreshingly) from the girls' point of view; simple, honest, but somewhat familiar. Based on a best-selling Australian book by two former surfing groupies. Panavision. [R]▼

Public Access (1992) C-86m. ½ D: Bryan Singer. Ron Marquette, Dina Brooks, Burt Williams, Larry Maxwell, Charles Kavanaugh, Brandon Boyce. Eerie tale of a stranger who starts his own cable-TV call-in show, ostensibly to investigate what's wrong with "our town." Debut for THE USUAL SUSPECTS director Singer is a suspenseful, disquieting film marred by a total lack of motivation for the main character. Fine music score by John Ottman, who also edited the picture. [R]▼●●

Public Enemy, The (1931) 84m. ½ D: William Wellman. James Cagney, Jean Harlow, Eddie Woods, Beryl Mercer, Donald Cook, Joan Blondell, Mae Clarke. Prohibition gangster's rise and fall put Cagney on the map, and deservedly so; he makes up for film's occasional flaws and dated notions. Still pretty powerful, this is the one where Cagney smashes a grapefruit in Clarke's face. Screened for decades at 82m., restored to full length for DVD. ▼●●

Public Eye, The (1972-British) C-95m. ½ D: Carol Reed. Mia Farrow, Topol, Michael Jayston, Margaret Rawlings, Annette Crosbie, Dudley Foster. Stuffy husband hires private-eye to watch his wife, but the sleuth falls for her. Fair expansion of Peter Shaffer's play. Farrow is good, but Topol's grin is flashed once too often. Panavision. [G]

Public Eye, The (1992) C-99m. ½ D: Howard Franklin. Joe Pesci, Barbara Hershey, Stanley Tucci, Jerry Adler, Jared Harris, Dominic Chianese, Richard Foronjy, Richard Riehle, Gerry Becler, Bob Gunton, Del Close, Nick Tate. Intriguing mood piece with a perfect Pesci role: a 1940s photographer who roams the streets of N.Y.C. at night in search of dramatic photo opportunities. An encounter with beautiful Hershey leads only to trouble, however. Great atmosphere and style are undone by an ungainly script and an unconvincing romantic subplot. Script by director Franklin, inspired by famed real-life photographer Weegee, some of whose shots are used in the film. [R]▼●●

Puccini for Beginners (2007) C-82m.  D: Maria Maggenti. Elizabeth Reaser, Justin Kirk, Gretchen Mol, Jennifer Dundas, Julianne Nicholson, Tina Benko. Clever, contemporary romantic comedy about a woman who has a tendency to drive her girlfriends away whenever the prospect of commitment enters the picture. Then quite by chance she finds herself simultaneously attracted to a guy and a girl, little dreaming that they are a couple that's just broken up. Inventive and funny, with appealing performances. Written by the director. D

Pufnstuf (1970) C-98m. ½ D: Hollingsworth Morse. Jack Wild, Billie Hayes, Martha Raye. "Mama" Cass Elliott, Billy Barty, Angelo Rossitto, Johnny Silver. OK theatrical feature based on Sid and Marty Krofft's TV series H.R. Pufnstuf, with Wild as young boy brought by a magic flute to Oz-like kingdom ruled by bumbling witches. Fine for kids; Hayes is fun as "Witchiepoo." [G]▼

Pulp (1972) C-95m.  D: Michael Hodges. Michael Caine, Mickey Rooney, Lionel Stander, Elizabeth Scott, Nadia Cassini, Al Lettieri, Dennis Price. Rooney, a retired expatriate Hollywood actor, hires paperback writer Caine to ghost his autobiography. Uneven, but good fun and well acted, especially by Rooney. [PG]▼D

Pulp Fiction (1994) C-154m. ½ D: Quentin Tarantino. John Travolta, Samuel L. Jackson, Uma Thurman, Harvey Keitel, Tim Roth, Amanda Plummer, Maria de Medeiros, Ving Rhames, Eric Stoltz, Rosanna Arquette, Christopher Walken, Bruce Willis. Audacious, outrageous look at honor among lowlifes, told in a somewhat radical style overlapping a handful of separate stories. Jackson and Travolta are magnetic as a pair of hit men who have philosophical debates on a regular basis; Willis is compelling as a crooked boxer whose plan to take it on the lam hits a few detours. (In fact, there are no slackers in this cast.) This volatile, violent, pumped-up movie isn't for every taste—certainly not for the squeamish—but it's got more vitality than almost any other film of 1994. Tarantino is featured on-screen as Jimmie of Toluca Lake. Roger Avary gets costory credit with Tarantino (they won the Original Screenplay Oscar). Panavision. [R]▼●●

Pulse (1988) C-91m. ½ D: Paul Golding. Joey Lawrence, Cliff De Young, Roxanne Hart, Charles Tyner, Myron Healey. What's got into the appliances in the home of Lawrence and his family? Scary, tense film, written by the director, a cut above the usual sci-fi/horror thriller but seriously damaged by a lack of any explanation for its outrageous premise (a living, evil short circuit). Excellent special effects. [PG-13]▼●●

Pulse (2001-Japanese) C-118m.  D: Kiyoshi Kurosawa. Haruhiko Katô, Kumiko Aso, Koyuki, Kurume Arisaka, Masatoshi Matsuo. A group of college students in Japan install an Internet program that invokes murderous ghosts. Plot seemed less hackneyed when it premiered in Japan four years before hitting U.S. screens; it remains significantly more original than American Internet-related horror films. Kurosawa effectively focuses on the fear and melancholy resulting from the urban isolation that the Internet promotes. A bit overlong and redundant, but philosophical, atmospheric, genuinely scary horror films are few and far between. Aka KAIRO and THE CIRCUIT. ▽

Pulse (2006) C-87m. *½ D: Jim Sonzero. Kristen Bell, Ian Somerhalder, Christina Milian, Rick Gonzalez, Jonathan Tucker, Samm Levine, Ron Rifkin. Ghostly creatures emerge from computers and other machines to drain the will to live (or something) from human victims, driving them to suicide or turning them into soot. This naturally leads to the collapse of civilization. Unexpectedly epic-minded horror movie is occasionally eerie, but more often dull and nearly incomprehensible. Cowritten by Wes Craven. Remake of 2001 Japanese film. Unrated version runs 90m. Followed by two DVD sequels. Super 35. [PG-13] ▽

Pumping Iron (1977) C-85m.  D: George Butler, Robert Fiore. Arnold Schwarzenegger, Louis Ferrigno, Matty and Victoria Ferrigno, Mike Katz. Fascinating documentary about men's bodybuilding, centering on Schwarzenegger and his pursuit of yet another Mr. Olympia title. Schwarzenegger exudes charm and registers strong screen presence; his main rival is Ferrigno, pre-Incredible Hulk. Followed by a distaff sequel. [PG] ▽●●

Pumping Iron II: The Women (1985) C-107 min.  D: George Butler. Pouty-lipped sexpert Rachel McLish, manlike Australian Bev Frasier, and two dozen more female bodybuilders compete in a Vegas nonevent where winners are offered a choice of "cash, check, or chips." Funny, if suspiciously stogy look at the profession buoyed by some hilariously incompetent judges and an "in it for the money" emcee job by smiling George Plimpton. ▽●● drama chronicling the plight of the mother of eight children, who discovers her third husband has been unfaithful. Fine performances all around, with Bancroft a stand-out. Script by Harold Pinter, from the Penelope Mortimer novel. ▽

Pumpkin (2002) C-121m. BOMB D: Adam Larson Broder, Tony R. Abrams. Christina Ricci, Hank Harris, Brenda Blethyn, Dominique Swain, Marisa Coughlan, Sam Ball, Harry Lennix, Nina Foch, Caroline Aaron, Lisa Banes, Julio Oscar Mechoso, Amy Adams. A dippy, pampered college girl, caught up in sorority life, finds herself attracted to a disabled boy who's been brought to campus as a "special" athlete. Oddball film wants to have it both ways, making fun of its characters (and sentimental movies in general), then trying to tug at our heartstrings. Strange, to say the least—and interminable. [R] ▽

Pumpkinhead (1988) C-86m. ½ D: Stan Winston. Lance Henriksen, Jeff East, John DiAquino, Kimberly Ross, Joel Hoffman, Cynthia Bain, Kerry Remsen, Florence Schauflyer, Buck Flower, Tom Woodruff, Jr. Makeup expert Winston made his directorial debut with this interesting horror film set in the backwoods. When his young son is accidentally killed by "city folk," a storekeeper unleashes a powerful, fiendish demon on the interlopers. When he changes his mind, he finds he has no more control over the monstrous killer. Slides into the routine at times, but a nice try. Followed by two direct-to-video sequels. [R] ▽●●

Pump Up the Volume (1990) C-100m. ½ D: Allan Moyle. Christian Slater, Ellen Greene, Annie Ross, Samantha Mathis, Scott Paulin, Lala, Cheryl Pollak, Mimi Kennedy, Seth Green. Slater is terrific as Hard Harry, a high school kid by day who runs a pirate radio station by night, stirring up passions among his young listeners and enraging the adult population in the process. Though uneven, this does have some pertinent things to say that you don't always find in a youth-appeal film. [R] ▽●●

Punch-Drunk Love (2002) C-95m.  D: Paul Thomas Anderson. Adam Sandler, Emily Watson, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Luis Guzman, Mary Lynn Rajskub. A paralyzingly asocial, dysfunctional man encounters a woman who is smitten with him and isn't sure how to respond. An ill-timed phone-sex call only complicates his life. Anderson's cockeyed, fairy-tale version of a romantic comedy is extremely strange, off-putting, and weird for the sake of being weird, though its leading actors certainly can't be faulted. (Sandler, discarding his goofball persona, is quite good.) Anderson's audaciousness is intriguing at first, but like his choice of music on the soundtrack, awfully hard to take. Panavision. [R] ▽

Punchline (1988) C-128m.  D: David Seltzer. Sally Field, Tom Hanks, John Goodman, Mark Rydell, Kim Greist, Pam Matteson, Taylor Negron, Barry Neikrug, Mac Robbins, Max Alexander, Paul Kozlowski, Barry Sobel, Damon Wayans. Well-written, well-cast movie about aspiring stand-up comics, focusing on brash young Hanks, who's got real talent but also a knack for pushing people away, and Field, a housewife and mom who feels driven to become a comedienne. Seltzer's serious script is compassionate and believable and manages to avoid clichés and easy answers. Field and (especially) Hanks

are first-rate; actor-turned-director Rydell is perfect as the unctuous nightclub owner/entrepreneur. Director Paul Mazursky also appears in the opening scene. [R]▼●●

Punisher, The (1989-U.S.-Australian) C-92m.  D: Mark Goldblatt. Dolph Lundgren, Louis Gossett, Jr., Jeroen Krabbé, Kim Miyori, Nancy Everhard, Brian Rooney, Bryan Marshall, Barry Otto, Zoshka Mizak. A cop whose family was wiped out by gangsters retaliates: he wipes out gangsters (125 in five years, and still counting). Cop Gossett and, especially, gangster Krabbé come close to rising above silly script, adapted from a Marvel Comics character created by Gerry Conway. Went straight to video in U.S. two years after being made. Shot in Australia but set in U.S. Remade in 2004. [R]▼●●

Punisher, The (2004) C-124m. BOMB D: Jonathan Hensleigh. Thomas Jane, John Travolta, Rebecca Romijn-Stamos, Will Patton, Roy Scheider, Laura Harring, Ben Foster, Samantha Mathis, James Carpinello, Eddie Jemison, John Pinette. Excruciating adaptation of the Marvel comic book about a retired FBI agent (Jane) who seeks revenge on the mobster (Travolta) and his circle who slaughtered his family. Formulaic idea is powered by repeated scenes of sadism and torture, with ham-handed performances as icing on the cake. Unbelievable, in every sense of the word. Filmed before with Dolph Lundgren. Alternate version runs 140m. Followed by PUNISHER: WAR ZONE. Super 35. [R]▼●

Puppetmaster (1989) C-90m. *½ D: David Schmoller. Paul LeMat, Irene Miracle, Matt Roe, William Hickey, Kathryn O'Reilly, Robin Frates, Merrya Small. Psychics drawn to a remote hotel find a malignant associate has committed suicide. They're then stalked by five living puppets left there in 1939 by famous, mystical puppeteer Toulon (Hickey)—plus another menace. Clumsy, talky script helped by (too scant) special effects by David Allen Productions. Followed by several sequels. [R]▼●●

Puppet Master II (1990) C-90m.  D: David Allen. Elizabeth MacLellan, Collin Bernsen, Steve Welles, Gregory Webb, Charlie Spradling, Jeff Weston, Nita Talbot. The living puppets bring Toulon, inexplicably costumed as the Invisible Man, back from the dead; then, seeking brains for his life-giving elixir, they terrorize a group of paranormal researchers investigating the old hotel. Slow-paced thriller is an inauspicious directorial debut for effects maestro Allen. [R]▼●●

Puppet Master III: Toulon's Revenge (1991) C-86m.  D: David De Coteau. Guy Rolfe, Richard Lynch, Ian Abercrombie, Kristopher Logan, Aron Eisenberg, Walter Gotell, Sarah Douglas, Matthew Faison, Michelle Bauer. The mild best in this low-budget series (so far) is set in

Nazi Germany, pitting the kindly old creator of living puppets (Rolfe) against Nazis who want to create an army of zombies. Minor but OK little thriller. [R]▼●●

Puppet Masters, The (1994) C-109m. ½ D: Stuart Orme. Donald Sutherland, Eric Thal, Julie Warner, Keith David, Will Patton, Richard Belzer, Tom Mason, Yaphet Kotto. U.S. security agency, headed by shrewd, sardonic Sutherland, discovers that the Midwest has been invaded by alien parasites who control the actions of human beings. Good script and performances are hampered by unimaginative direction. Movie imitations of Robert A. Heinlein's classic 1950 sci-fi novel took the edge off this official adaptation before it reached the screen. Aka ROBERT A. HEINLEIN'S THE PUPPET MASTERS. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Puppetoon Movie, The (1987) C-80m. ½ No director credited. Arnold Leibovitch compiled this collage of George Pal's animated short subjects from the 1930s and '40s. Some of them (JOHN HENRY AND THE INKY-POO, TUBBY THE TUBA, JASPER IN A JAM) are terrific, but they're better seen one or two at a time. Still, there's some delightful entertainment here.▼●●

Purchase Price, The (1932) 68m.  D: William A. Wellman. Barbara Stanwyck, George Brent, Lyle Talbot, Hardie Albright, David Landau, Murray Kinnell, Leila Bennett. Pre-Code Warner Bros. film about nightclub singer Stanwyck, who's seen and done it all, taking it on the lam and becoming—of all things—a mail-order bride for a naive North Dakota farmer. Starts out snappy, winds up silly, though Stanwyck is always worth watching.▼●

Pure Country (1992) C-112m.  D: Christopher Cain. George Strait, Lesley Ann Warren, Isabel Glasser, Kyle Chandler, John Doe, Rory Calhoun, Molly McClure. Tuckered-out country star revisits his rural roots, falls for a redheaded rodeo aspirant who doesn't realize who he is. Strait showcase is mostly pure tedium, though film picks up some in hour two with the appearance of Glasser and (as her pop) cowboy vet Calhoun. [PG]▼●●

Pure Formality, A (1994-Italian-French) C-108m.  D: Giuseppe Tornatore. Gérard Depardieu, Roman Polanski, Sergio Rubini, Nicola DiPinto, Paolo Lombardi. Police inspector Polanski, investigating a just-committed murder, interrogates world-famous novelist Depardieu, who can't remember what he was doing that afternoon. Maddeningly tedious film is shot in wide-screen but mostly confined to a dark, leaky room; directed to the hilt. Not quite what you expect from the maker of CINEMA PARADISO. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Pure Hell of St. Trinian's, The (1960-British) 94m.  D: Frank Launder. Cecil

Pure Luck (1991) C-96m.  D: Nadia Tass. Martin Short, Danny Glover, Sheila Kelley, Sam Wanamaker, Scott Wilson, Harry Shearer. A business magnate's accident-prone daughter disappears while vacationing in Mexico, and the father sends detective Glover to find her—accompanied by a man as unlucky as the woman he's out to find. Short's perpetual pratfalls are good for a few laughs, but otherwise this is pretty weak. American remake of French farce LE CHEVRE. [PG] ▼●

Purple Heart, The (1944) 99m.  D: Lewis Milestone. Dana Andrews, Farley Granger, Sam Levene, Richard Conte, Tala Birell, Nestor Paiva, Benson Fong, Marshall Thompson, Richard Loo. Absorbing tale of U.S. air force crew shot down during Tokyo raid receives strong performances by good cast. Produced and co-written by Darryl F. Zanuck. ▼●

Purple Hearts (1984) C-115m.  D: Sidney J. Furie. Cheryl Ladd, Ken Wahl, Stephen Lee, David Harris, Lane Smith, Annie McEnroe, Paul McCrane, James Whitmore, Jr., Lee Ermye. Navy medic falls in love with feisty nurse in Vietnam. What starts out as good bread-and-butter story gets worse as it goes along toward silly conclusion. Overlong, to boot. Panavision. [R] ▼●

Purple Noon (1960-French-Italian) C-118m.  D: René Clément. Alain Delon, Marie Laforet, Maurice Ronet, Frank Latimore, Ave Ninchi. Marvelously photographed (in southern Italy, by Henri Decae), tautly directed suspenser about Delon, who envies playboy-friend Ronet and schemes to murder him and assume his identity. Based on Patricia Highsmith's The Talented Mr. Ripley. That's Romy Schneider among the friends stopping by cafe in opening scene. Remade as THE TALENTED MR. RIPLEY; also see THE AMERICAN FRIEND and RIPLEY'S GAME. ▼●●

Purple People Eater (1988) C-87m. *½ D: Linda Shayne. Ned Beatty, Shelley Winters, Neil (Patrick) Harris, Peggy Lip-ton, Chubby Checker, Little Richard, James Houghton, Thora Birch, Molly Cheek. Corny, unimaginative (if harmless) children's picture based on the famous novelty song hit of 1958, with the title character (looking like a kid in a Halloween costume) coming to Earth to form a rock band with neighborhood teens. The song's original writer-performer, Sheb Wooley, appears as a trapeze teacher. [PG] ▼●●

Purple Plain, The (1954-British) C-102m.  D: Robert Parrish. Gregory Peck, Win

Min Than, Bernard Lee, Maurice Denham, Brenda De Banzie, Lyndon Brook. Absorbing Eric Ambler-scripted drama of love, loss, and survival during WW2, charting the plight of disaffected pilot Peck, whose wife was killed on the night of their wedding during a London air raid. ●

Purple Rain (1984) C-111m. ½ D: Albert Magnoli. Prince, Apollonia Kotero, Morris Day, Olga Karlatos, Clarence Williams III, Jerome Benton, Billy Sparks, The Revolution, The Time. Prince's film debut is about a young Minneapolis black who struggles to gain acceptance for his own brand of futuristic (and sexy) rock music . . . but it's not autobiographical. Right. Dynamic concert sequences are undercut by soppy storyline and sexist, unappealing characters—especially Prince's. Oscar-winning song score includes title tune, "When Doves Cry." [R] ▼●●

Purple Rose of Cairo, The (1985) C-82m. ½ D: Woody Allen. Mia Farrow, Jeff Daniels, Danny Aiello, Dianne Wiest, Van Johnson, Zoe Caldwell, John Wood, Milo O'Shea, Edward Herrmann, Karen Akers, Deborah Rush, Michael Tucker, Glenn Headly. Bittersweet comedy-fantasy about a Depression-era movie fan whose latest idol walks right off the screen and into her life! Farrow and Daniels' wonderful performances help offset the cold cleverness of Allen's script. The finale is a heartbreaker. [PG] ▼●●

Purple Taxi, The (1977-French-Italian-Irish) C-107m. *½ D: Yves Boisset. Charlotte Rampling, Philippe Noiret, Agostina Belli, Peter Ustinov, Fred Astaire, Edward Albert. Confusing, overblown drama about expatriates in Ireland, with Astaire miscast as eccentric doctor who drives title vehicle. Based on Michel Deon's best-selling novel. Originally 120m. [R] ▼

Pursued (1947) 101m.  D: Raoul Walsh. Teresa Wright, Robert Mitchum, Judith Anderson, Dean Jagger, Alan Hale, Harry Carey, Jr., John Rodney. Grim, passionate Western noir, a family saga of love, hate, revenge, and a hint of incest. Mitchum is an orphan raised by Anderson; he falls in love with foster sister Wright, complicated by his having killed her murderous brother. Stunning photography by James Wong Howe. ▼●●

Pursuit of D. B. Cooper, The (1981) C-100m.  D: Roger Spottiswoode. Robert Duvall, Treat Williams, Kathryn Harrold, Ed Flanders, Paul Gleason, R. G. Armstrong. What may have happened to the "legendary" D. B. Cooper (Williams, in a disappointing performance), who hijacked a plane in 1972 and bailed out with $200,000, never to be heard from again. Who cares? Lackluster comedy-chase story, with Duvall wasted as one of Cooper's pursuers. Film was plagued with problems, multiple directors, hastily refilmed ending—and it shows.

Pursuit of Happiness, The (1971) C-98m.

 D: Robert Mulligan. Michael Sarrazin, Barbara Hershey, Robert Klein, Sada Thompson, Arthur Hill, E. G. Marshall, Barnard Hughes, Rue McClanahan. Director Mulligan has made lots of overrated films, but never got enough credit for this sympathetic tale of young man sent to jail more for his attitude in court than any particular offense. Good performances. Watch for William Devane, Charles Durning. [PG]▼

Pursuit of Happyness, The (2006) C-117m.  D: Gabriele Muccino. Will Smith, Thandie Newton, Jaden Christopher Syre Smith, Brian Howe, James Karen, Dan Castellaneta, Kurt Fuller. Chris Gardner's life in San Francisco is falling apart in the early 1980s: his marriage is running on fumes, his income from selling medical equipment is meager, and before long he's out on the street with his 5-year-old son.

The opportunity to turn his life around with an unpaid internship at a major brokerage firm presents itself, but it means living day to day, hour to hour, under almost unbearable stress. Smith gives a powerful, empathetic performance in this remarkable true story of a man who refuses to give up, though his all-too-believable ordeal is often difficult to watch. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Pursuit of the Graf Spee (1956-British) C-119m. ½ D: Michael Powell, Emeric Pressburger. John Gregson, Anthony Quayle, Peter Finch, Ian Hunter, Bernard Lee, Patrick Macnee, Christopher Lee. Pursuit to Algiers (1945) 65m. ½ D: Roy William Neill. Basil Rathbone, Nigel Bruce, Marjorie Riordan, Rosalind Ivan, Martin Kosleck, John Abbott. Lesser Sherlock Holmes entry is still diverting tale of heir to an Eastern throne on a perilous Mediterranean voyage.▼●

Push (2009) C-111m. *½ D: Paul McGuigan. Chris Evans, Dakota Fanning, Djimon Hounsou, Camilla Belle, Cliff Curtis, Ming-Na, Neil Jackson, Maggie Siff. Hiding out in a seamy Hong Kong, American expatriates Evans and a miniskirted Fanning join forces to battle an evil U.S. agency led by Hounsou and his goons. Now pay attention: Evans is a "mover" (with telekinetic powers), Fanning is a "watcher" (more like a "sketcher" who interprets the future on a sketch pad), while Evans' girlfriend Belle and Hounsou are "pushers" (mind controllers). Belle has escaped a government lab with a potent serum everyone is after, which leads to plenty of action. Outrageously abstruse script; almost worth seeing for Fanning's pint-sized Lizabeth Scott homage.

Super 35. [PG-13]●

Pushing Tin (1999) C-124m. ½ D: Mike Newell. John Cusack, Billy Bob Thornton, Cate Blanchett, Angelina Jolie, Jake Weber, Vicki Lewis. Seriocomic slice of life about the high-pressure world of air-traffic controllers. Best-of-the-best Cusack gets caught in a macho competition with the new guy, Zen cowboy Thornton. MASH-like ensemble film starts off extremely well, with strong performances and snappy repartee, but crash-lands in its second half, becoming a dull domestic romantic comedy about Cusack trying to win back his estranged wife. Blanchett's quite good in an underwritten role as a Longuyland housewife. First feature script by Cheers creators Glen and Les Charles. Super 35. [R]▼●●

Pushover (1954) 88m. ½ D: Richard Quine. Fred MacMurray, Kim Novak, Phil Carey, Dorothy Malone, E. G. Marshall. MacMurray is cop who falls in love with gangster moll Novak; good cast covers familiar ground.▼●

Putney Swope (1969) C/B&W-85m.  D: Robert Downey. Arnold Johnson, Pepi Hermine, Ruth Hermine, Allen Garfield, Antonio Fargas. Hilarious, but dated, story of blacks taking over Madison Avenue ad agency, instituting considerable changes. Best bit: series of commercial spoofs. Fargas, as The Arab, steals the film. Actor billed as "Mel Brooks" is not the Brooks we know and love. [R]▼●

Puzzle of a Downfall Child (1970) C-104m.

 D: Jerry Schatzberg. Faye Dunaway, Barry Primus, Viveca Lindfors, Barry Morse, Roy Scheider, Barbara Carrera. Puzzling is the word for this confusing story of fashion model trying to put together the pieces of her unhappy life. [R]

Puzzle of the Red Orchid, The (1962-German) 94m.  D: Helmut Ashley. Christopher Lee, Marisa Mell, Klaus Kinski, Fritz Rasp, Adrian Hoven. Moderate Edgar Wallace entry; Scotland Yard and F.B.I. track down international crime syndicate. Retitled: THE SECRET OF THE RED ORCHID.▼●

Pygmalion (1938-British) 95m. * D:

Anthony Asquith, Leslie Howard. Leslie Howard, Wendy Hiller, Wilfrid Lawson, Marie Lohr, David Tree. Superlative filmization of the witty G. B. Shaw play which became MY FAIR LADY. Howard excels as the professor, with Hiller his Cockney pupil. Shaw's screenplay won an Oscar, as did its adaptation by Ian Dalrymple, Cecil Lewis, and W. P. Lipscomb. Edited by David Lean. ▼●●

Pirates (1991) C-95m. BOMB D: Noah Stern. Kevin Bacon, Kyra Sedgwick, Bruce Martyn Payne, Kristin Dattilo, Buckley Norris. Photography student Bacon and cellist Sedgwick meet, and the sex between them is so intense that they literally start fires. Crudely scripted, ineptly directed; see this only if you're interested in Bacon and Sedgwick's buns. (In real life they're husband and wife.) Set in Chicago, this film gives new meaning to the term "Windy City." [R] ▼

Pyro (1964-Spanish) C-99m. ½ D: Julio Coli. Barry Sullivan, Martha Hyer, Sherry Moreland, Soledad Miranda. Strange chiller of man burned in fire seeking revenge on ex-girlfriend who started it. ▼●●

Pyromaniac's Love Story, A (1995) C-94m.  D: Joshua Brand. William Baldwin, John Leguizamo, Sadie Frost, Erika Eleniak, Michael Lerner, Joan Plowright, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Mike Starr, Julio Oscar Mechoso. A bakery burns to the ground, the work of an unknown arsonist, and the act evokes such unique emotions among a varied group of romantics that just about everyone claims responsibility for the deed—except the real culprit. Minor attempt at generating the same loopy romantic spirit as films like MOONSTRUCK. Feature directing debut for Brand, who co-created the TV series St. Elsewhere and Northern Exposure. [PG] ▼●●

Pyx, The (1973-Canadian) C-111m. ½ D: Harvey Hart. Karen Black, Christopher Plummer, Donald Pilon, Lee Broker, Yvette Brind'Amour. Excellent blend of horror, science-fiction, and detective thriller with a mystical theme. Police sergeant Plummer investigates prostitute Black's death, finds a devil cult, numerous decadent suspects, and a new twist on Catholic guilt. Aka THE HOOKER CULT MURDERS. Panavision. [R] ▼

Q (1982) C-93m.  D: Larry Cohen. David Carradine, Michael Moriarty, Richard Roundtree, Candy Clark, John Capodice, James Dixon, Malachy McCourt. Through plot tissue that discourages elaboration, a pre-historic Aztec deity finds itself flying out of its nest atop a Manhattan skyscraper to rip the heads off rooftop sunbathers and other assorted victims; somehow, all this is integrated into a standard N.Y.C. cop story. Spirited, occasionally hilarious trash sparked by Moriarty's eccentric performance as the loser who knows where the beast resides and intends to cash in on it. Aka THE WINGED SERPENT. [R] ▼●●

Q & A (1990) C-132m.  D: Sidney Lumet. Nick Nolte, Timothy Hutton, Armand Assante, Patrick O'Neal, Lee Richardson, Luis Guzman, Charles Dutton, Jenny Lumet, Paul Calderon, Leonard Cimino. Wet-behind-the-ears Assistant D.A. (Hutton) is assigned to investigate an incident in which veteran street cop Nolte killed a Puerto Rican druggie . . . and soon finds himself waist-deep in corruption. Gritty, graphic, well-acted story gets slower as it goes along, dragging toward an increasingly predictable conclusion. Lumet scripted from Edwin Torres' novel. Ruben Blades' "Don't Double-Cross The Ones You Love" bids fair to become the worst movie song of the '90s. [R] ▼●●

Quackers SEE: Loose Shoes

Quackser Fortune Has a Cousin in the Bronx (1970-Irish) C-90m. ½ D: Waris Hussein. Gene Wilder, Margot Kidder, Eileen Colgan, Seamus Ford. Delightfully offbeat love story. Quackser Fortune follows the horses around Dublin selling their manure for gardening. The day the horses are replaced by cars he falls in love with an American coed. Original in every way. Screenplay by Gabriel Walsh. Reissued as FUN LOVING. [PG] ▼●●

Quadrophenia (1979-British) C-115m. ½ D: Franc Roddam. Phil Daniels, Mark Wingett, Philip Davis, Leslie Ash, Garry Cooper, Sting. Superior mixture of early '60s "Angry Young Man" drama and rock movie tells of teenage gang battles between Mods and Rockers on the English seaside. A real sleeper. Inspired by The Who's record album. Sting makes an impressive acting debut. [R] ▼●●

Quai des Orfèvres (1947-French) 106m. ½ D: Henri-Georges Clouzot. Louis Jouvet, Suzy Delair, Bernard Blier, Simone Renant, Charles Dullin, Henri Arius, Pierre Larquey. When a wealthy "dirty old man" is murdered, there is no shortage of suspects. A police procedural layered with telling character portraits, from a poor simp (Blier) who's suspicious of his coquettish wife, a music-hall singer (Delair), to a dour police detective (Jouvet). Clouzot's staging of key scenes—an argument during a musical rehearsal, a long scene in the back of a theater while chorus girls are dancing—is masterful, as is the overall look of this b&w gem. Title refers to the location of Paris' police headquarters. Originally shown in the U.S. as JENNY LAMOUR. ▼

sical play: "old maid" masquerades as her own niece in order to win back the love of a man who hasn't seen her in 10 years. Filmed before in 1927, with Marion Davies. ▼●

Quantum of Solace (2008-U.S.-British) C-106m. ½ D: Marc Forster. Daniel Craig, Olga Kurylenko, Mathieu Amalric, Judi Dench, Giancarlo Giannini, Gemma Arterton, Jeffrey Wright. In this direct sequel to CASINO ROYALE (2006), a brooding James Bond hunts down the man who caused the woman he loved to betray him. In so doing he uncovers a vast conspiracy led by business mogul Amalric, who's plotting to gain control of a prized natural resource. 007 has been reshaped for a BOURNE audience, turning the formerly suave, witty spy into a one-man demolition derby. Hyperactive editing renders much of the action senseless, though admittedly the film remains watchable throughout. Super 35. [PG-13]●

Quarantine (2008) C-89m. ½ D: John Erick Dowdle. Jennifer Carpenter, Jay Hernandez, Johnathon Schaech, Columbus Short, Greg Germann, Steve Harris, Dania Ramirez, Doug Jones, Denis O'Hare, Bernard White, Rade Sherbedgia, Marin Hinkle. TV news crew, shadowing an L.A. fire brigade on the graveyard shift, answers a routine call that quickly escalates into horrific violence. Forcibly locked inside an apartment building, all fall victim one by one to a plague of bloody madness. New twist on the living dead is well-acted scary stuff, but this remake of the 2007 Spanish thriller [REC], nauseatingly experienced entirely through a shaky video lens, desperately calls for Dramamine. [R]●

Quare Fellow, The (1962-Irish) 85m. ½ D: Arthur Dreifuss. Patrick McGoohan, Sylvia Syms, Walter Macken, Dermot Kelly, Jack Cunningham, Hilton Edwards. Irish-made adaptation of Brendan Behan play deals with new prison guard, well played by McGoohan, who changes mind about capital punishment. Finely acted; excellent script by director Dreifuss.●

Quarrel, The (1991-Canadian) C-88m. ½ D: Eli Cohen. R. H. Thompson, Saul Rubinek. A pair of former friends, both Jews, meet by accident and pass the day discussing the implications of the Holocaust and how it has altered their lives. Provocative subject matter, based on a story by Chaim Grade, but the result is as static as it is thoughtful.▼●

Quartet (1948-British) 120m. * D: Ken Annakin, Arthur Crabtree, Harold French, Ralph Smart. Basil Radford, Naunton Wayne, Mai Zetterling, Ian Fleming, Jack Raine, Dirk Bogarde, Cecil Parker, Honor Blackman. Superb movie with Somerset Maugham introducing four of his tales, each with different casts and moods. Its success prompted a sequel, TRIO.▼

Quatermass and the Pit: Five Million Years to Earth (1968-British) C-98m.  D: Roy Ward Baker. James Donald, Barbara Shelley, Andrew Keir, Julian Glover, Maurice Good, Duncan Lamont. Workers unearth spaceship and remains of alien crew in modern-day London. Good cast, great script complications, and suspense in fine example of what can be done on a meager budget. Only subject matter will turn some viewers off. Superior to the earlier QUATERMASS films, known in the U.S. as THE CREEPING UNKNOWN and ENEMY FROM SPACE. Followed by THE QUATERMASS CONCLUSION. ▼●●

Quatermass Conclusion, The (1980-British) C-107m. ½ D: Piers Haggard. John Mills, Simon MacCorkindale, Barbara Kellerman, Margaret Tyzack, Brewster Mason. Mills is fine as heroic Professor Bernard Quatermass (of earlier screen and television adventures) in this entertaining though poorly produced sci-fi adventure. He comes to the rescue when a death beam from outer space evaporates the world's young. Made for British TV. Original title: QUATERMASS.▼

Quatermass 2: Enemy from Space (1957-British) 84m.  D: Val Guest. Brian Donlevy, Michael Ripper, Sidney James, Bryan Forbes, John Longden, Vera Day, William Franklin. Even better than the original, THE QUATERMASS EXPERIMENT: THE CREEPING UNKNOWN, this tense, scary science-fiction thriller concerns a secret alien invasion and BODY SNATCHERS-like takeovers of human beings. Donlevy is stern as Prof. Quatermass. Followed by QUATERMASS AND THE PIT: FIVE MILLION YEARS TO EARTH.▼●●

Quatermass Xperiment, The: The Creeping Unknown (1956-British) 82m.  D: Val Guest. Brian Donlevy, Margia Dean, Jack Warner, Richard Wordsworth. A spaceship returns to Earth with only one man left on board; infested by an alien entity, he gradually transforms into a hideous monster. Tense, imaginative, adult; well acted by all concerned. Based on hit BBC-TV serial by Nigel Kneale. Followed by three

sequels, beginning with QUATERMASS 2: ENEMY FROM SPACE. ▼

Queen, The (2006-British-French-Italian-U.S.) C-101m. ½ D: Stephen Frears. Helen Mirren, Michael Sheen, James Cromwell, Helen McCrory, Alex Jennings, Roger Allam, Sylvia Syms, Mark Bazeley. Intriguing look inside the private life of England's royal family as Queen Elizabeth II contends with the death of Princess Diana, while her new, "modernist" Prime Minister, Tony Blair (Sheen), tries to persuade her that her stoic silence is out of step with the public's grief. Perceptive, persuasive, witty, and poignant, Peter Morgan's script humanizes the public figures it portrays, while actual TV news footage sets the stage for the events being dramatized. Mirren's flawless, Oscar-winning performance sets a standard met by all of her costars. Evocative and imaginative score by Alexandre Desplat. A follow-up to Frears' and Morgan's British TV movie THE DEAL (2003), in which Sheen first played Blair. [PG-13] D

Queen Bee (1955) 95m.  D: Ranald MacDougall. Joan Crawford, Barry Sullivan, Betsy Palmer, John Ireland, Fay Wray, Tim Hovey. Crawford in title role has field-day maneuvering the lives of all in her Southern mansion, with husband Sullivan providing the final ironic twist. ▼

Queen Christina (1933) 97m. * D: Rouben Mamoulian. Greta Garbo, John Gilbert, Ian Keith, Lewis Stone, C. Aubrey Smith, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Reginald Owen. Probably Garbo's best film, with a haunting performance by the radiant star as 17th-century Swedish queen who relinquishes her throne for her lover, Gilbert. Garbo and Gilbert's love scenes together are truly memorable, as is the famous final shot. Don't miss this one. ▼●●

Queen Margot (1994-French-German-Italian) C-143m. ½ D: Patrice Chéreau. Isabelle Adjani, Daniel Auteuil, Jean-Hugues Anglade, Vincent Perez, Véra Lisi, Jean-Claude Brialy, Dominique Blanc, Pascal Greggory, Claudio Amendola, Miguel Bosé, Asia Argento, Barbet Schroeder. Enormous production, based on a Dumas novel, of the events surrounding notorious St. Bartholomew's Day massacre in 16th-century France. Young Margot (Adjani) is forced to marry Henri de Navarre (Auteuil) by her scheming mother, Catherine de Medici (Lisi), with unexpected and terrible consequences. Excellent film (produced by Claude Berri) boasts strong performances in every role, sumptuous decor, and surprisingly erotic love scenes. Intricate, intelligent and often moving epic. Scripted by Daniele Thompson and director Chéreau. Previously filmed in 1954, with Jeanne Moreau. Original French version runs 166m. [R] ▼●●

Queen of Blood SEE: Planet of Blood

Queen of Hearts (1989-British) C-112m.

½ D: Jon Amiel. Vittorio Duse, Joseph Long, Anita Zagaria, Eileen Way, Vittorio Amandola, Ian Hawkes, Tat Whalley. Extraordinary and unusual film, better seen than described, about an Italian couple who lead a pleasantly quixotic life in England running a family café. Tony Grisoni's original screenplay embraces elements of romance, humor, melodrama, mysticism, and fantasy in a heady mix. Remarkable first feature for director Amiel, who did The Singing Detective for British TV. [PG] ▼

Queen of Outer Space (1958) C-79m.

 D: Edward Bernds. Zsa Zsa Gabor, Eric Fleming, Laurie Mitchell, Patrick Waltz, Paul Birch, Lisa Davis, Dave Willock. Manned rocketship from Earth is abducted to Venus, where the planet is ruled entirely by women. Silly, to say the least, but at least some of the laughs were intentional. Zsa Zsa, incidentally, does not play the title character! CinemaScope. ▼

Queen of Spades, The (1949-British) 95m.

½ D: Thorold Dickinson. Anton Walbrook, Edith Evans, Ronald Howard, Mary Jerrold, Yvonne Mitchell, Anthony Dawson. Exquisite production of an unusual, macabre Alexander Pushkin story about an impoverished Russian officer (Walbrook, in a rich performance) who will do anything to learn the mystical secret of winning at cards known only by an imperious old woman. Brilliant use of chiaroscuro lighting and atmosphere in this sleeper set in 1806. ▼

Queen of the Damned (2002-Australian-U.S.) C-101m. ½ D: Michael Rymer.

Stuart Townsend, Aaliyah, Marguerite Moreau, Vincent Perez, Paul McGann, Lena Olin, Christian Manon. Vampire Lestat awakens after a long deep sleep and goes public in the world of rock music, where he seems to blend in perfectly! But his posturing angers the man who "made" him, intrigues a young woman who's drawn to his world, and lines him up as the perfect mate for the queen of the undead (played by pop-music star Aaliyah, who died before the film's release). Dopey but amusing. Based on one of Anne Rice's The Vampire Chronicles novels. Panavision. [R] ▼

Queen of the Nile (1962-Italian) C-85m.

 D: Fernando Cerchio. Jeanne Crain, Vincent Price, Edmund Purdom, Amedeo Nazzari. Dull account of court life in 2000 B.C. Egypt. Not even campy. SuperCinemascope. ▼

Queen's Guards, The (1960-British) C-110m.  D: Michael Powell. Daniel Massey, Robert Stephens, Raymond Massey, Ursula Jeans. Tedious, patriotic chronicle of young Massey distinguishing himself in service, saving family name; humdrum film. CinemaScope.

Queens Logic (1991) C-112m. ½ D: Steve Rash. Kevin Bacon, Linda Fiorentino, John Malkovich, Joe Mantegna, Ken

Olin, Tony Spiridakis, Tom Waits, Chloe Webb, Jamie Lee Curtis, J. J. Johnson, Kelly Bishop, Ed Marinaro. Title refers not to royalty, but to the N.Y.C. borough. Robust performances half-spark a BIG CHILL-type reunion pic, as old pals and their mates reunite for a wedding. Actor Spiridakis penned the so-so script. Unusually fine rock-oldie score helps. [R]▼●●

Quemada! SEE: Burn!

Querelle (1982-German) C-120m. BOMB D: Rainer Werner Fassbinder. Brad Davis, Franco Nero, Jeanne Moreau, Gunther Kaufmann, Hanno Poschl. Or, "A Guy in Every Port." Davis is the French sailor whose venture into an infamous whorehouse in Brest permits him to discover his true homosexual nature. Fassbinder's final film was rejected even by his admirers; gamy but slickly produced adaptation of Jean Genet novel induces boredom and giggles in equal measure. Technovision. [R]▼●

Quest, The (1986-Australian) C-93m. *½ D: Brian Trenchard-Smith. Henry Thomas, Tony Barry, Rachel Friend, Tamsin West, Dennis Miller, Katya Manning. Abortive Australian attempt to capitalize on young Thomas' success as the star of E.T.; here he plays a precocious child who, along with a couple of pals, visits an aboriginal burial ground where a Loch Ness-style monster lives. Competently made but uninteresting. [PG]▼

Quest, The (1996) C-95m. ½ D: Jean-Claude Van Damme. Jean-Claude Van Damme, Roger Moore, James Remar, Jack McGee, Janet Gunn, Aki Aleong, Louis Mandylor. Epic martial-arts story with high-kicking Van Damme as N.Y.C. pickpocket whose efforts to elude the police lead him to the Far East and into the most exclusive and prestigious fight in the "world." Besides Jean-Claude, film features 15 of the world's greatest martial arts champions. A passable but uninspired directing debut for the star, who also gets story credit. Super 35. [PG-13]▼●●

Quest for Camelot (1998) C-85m. ½ D: Frederick Du Chau. Voices of Jessalyn Gilsig, Cary Elwes, Gary Oldman, Eric Idle, Don Rickles, Jane Seymour, Celine Dion, Bryan White, Pierce Brosnan, Gabriel Byrne, Jaleel White, Bronson Pinchot, John Gielgud. Pretty good Disney-derivative cartoon, about the plucky daughter of a slain knight who wants to follow in her father's footsteps—and does just that when King Arthur's sword, Excalibur, is stolen. Too dark and violent for very young kids, but agreeable enough. Familiar story path, with romance, songs, and comic relief. [G]▼●●

Quest for Fire (1981-French-Canadian) C-97m. ½ D: Jean-Jacques Annaud. Everett McGill, Rae Dawn Chong, Ron Perlman, Nameer El Kadi. Peaceful tribe

living 80,000 years ago is attacked by apes and wolves and loses its fire, essential for survival. They don't know how to make fire, so three of their own trek off to find it again. Not the epic intended, but still funny, tense, touching—and fascinating. Special languages devised by Anthony Burgess, and body languages and gestures by Desmond Morris; the makeup earned an Academy Award. Filmed in Kenya, Scotland, Iceland, and Canada. Panavision. [R]▼●●

Quest for Love (1971-British) C-90m.  D: Ralph Thomas. Tom Bell, Joan Collins, Denholm Elliott, Laurence Naismith, Lyn Ashley, Juliet Harmer, Neil McCallum, Simon Ward. Intriguing sci-fi story of man who accidentally passes into another dimension on Earth almost identical to ours, with some strange differences. Based on John Wyndham's short story.▼

Quick and the Dead, The (1995) C-105m.  D: Sam Raimi. Sharon Stone, Gene Hackman, Russell Crowe, Leonardo DiCaprio, Tobin Bell, Roberts Blossom, Kevin Conway, Keith David, Lance Henriksen, Pat Hingle, Gary Sinise, Olivia Burnette, Fay Masterson, Bruce Campbell. Female stranger comes to the town of Redemption to enter its annual quick-draw competition; her real motive is to seek revenge on the town's evil boss, Herod (Hackman), for what he did to her family years ago. Sluggish Western tries to turn Stone into The Man With No Name, but even on a parody level, it doesn't work; endless close-ups of her beautiful face reveal nothing. One would expect more razzle-dazzle from director Raimi. Woody Strode appears briefly as a coffin maker in the opening scene; this was his final film. [R]▼●●

Quick Before It Melts (1964) C-98m. ½ D: Delbert Mann. George Maharis, Robert Morse, Anjanette Comer, James Gregory, Yvonne Craig, Doodles Weaver, Howard St. John, Michael Constantine. Trivia involving Maharis and Morse in the Antarctic; they have bright idea of bringing in a planeload of girls, with predictable results. Panavision.

Quick Change (1990) C-88m.  D: Howard Franklin, Bill Murray. Bill Murray, Geena Davis, Randy Quaid, Jason Robards, Bob Elliott, Philip Bosco, Phil Hartman, Kurtwood Smith, Jamey Sheridan, Kathryn Grody, Stanley Tucci, Tony Shalhoub. Very low-key but funny outing for Murray as a malcontent who stages a clever bank robbery—disguised as a clown—but can't seem to get out of N.Y.C. with his accomplices, Davis and Quaid. It's possible that only New Yorkers will truly appreciate the anti-City sentiments (and often hilarious vignettes) that permeate the film. Jay Cronley's novel was previously filmed in 1985 as HOLD-UP, with Jean-Paul Belmondo. [R]▼●●

Quick Gun, The (1964) C-87m.  D: Sidney Salkow. Audie Murphy, Merry Anders, James Best, Ted de Corsia, Frank Ferguson, Raymond Hatton. Formula Murphy Western, with Audie redeeming himself by combating town outlaws. Techniscope.

Quick, Let's Get Married (1971) C-96m. BOMB D: William Dieterle. Ginger Rogers, Ray Milland, Barbara Eden, Michael Ansara, Walter Abel, Elliott Gould. Bordello madam Rogers and adventurer Milland perpetrate "miracle" hoax on gullible prostitute (Eden). Gould makes inauspicious film debut as deaf mute. This embarrassment was filmed in 1964. Aka SEVEN DIFFERENT WAYS.

Quicksand (1950) 79m. ½ D: Irving Pichel. Mickey Rooney, Jeanne Cagney, Barbara Bates, Peter Lorre, Taylor Holmes, Wally Cassell, Jimmy Dodd. Minor film noir about auto mechanic Rooney, who is hot for trampy Cagney, and what happens when he "borrows" $20 from his boss' cash register. Lorre is wonderfully menacing as a sleazy penny arcade owner. ▼●●

Quicksand (2002-British-French-German) C-93m. ½ D: John Mackenzie. Michael Keaton, Michael Caine, Judith Godrèche, Rade Serbedgia, Matthew Marsh, Xander Berkeley, Kathleen Wilhoite, Rachel Ferjani. U.S. bank executive Keaton is in Nice to investigate a movie company's finances and instead becomes a fugitive accused of murder. Caine plays an egocentric movie star caught up in the plot. Modestly entertaining thriller with good locations; Caine is amusing as the aging idol. Released direct to video in the U.S. [R] ▼●

Quicksilver (1986) C-106m. ½ D: Tom Donnelly. Kevin Bacon, Jami Gertz, Paul Rodriguez, Rudy Ramos, Andrew Smith, Gerald S. O'Loughlin, Larry Fishburne, Louis Anderson. The lives of big-city bicycle messengers (confusingly shot in three different cities), and one white-collar dropout in particular. Low-gear all the way. [PG] ▼●●

Quid Pro Quo (2008) C-82m.  D: Carlos Brooks. Nick Stahl, Vera Farmiga, Jacob Pitts, Aimee Mullins, James Frain, Kate Burton, Jessica Hecht, Dylan Bruno, Pablo Schreiber. Paraplegic radio personality Stahl begins a highly charged relationship with a mystery woman (Farmiga) who's obsessed with losing the ability to walk. Idiosyncratic exploration of memory and guilt is ambitious but slow moving, and not satisfying dramatically. [R] ●

Quiet, The (2005) C-96m. ½ D: Jamie Babbit. Elisha Cuthbert, Camilla Belle, Edie Falco, Martin Donovan, Shawn Ashmore, Katy Mixon, David Gallagher, Shannon Marie Woodward. Dull, weird, and pointless story of a deaf girl, orphaned by the death of her father, who moves in with her godparents and their scheming daughter. She soon discovers the whole crew is harboring secrets and acting stranger than the Addams Family. Film doesn't know if it wants to be a psychological thriller, a lesbian drama, a dysfunctional family story, or a teen movie. HD Widescreen. [R] ●

Quiet American, The (1958) 120m. ½ D: Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Audie Murphy, Michael Redgrave, Claude Dauphin, Georgia Moll, Bruce Cabot. Sanitized version of the Graham Greene novel, with the book's "un-American" feeling eliminated; naive American Murphy arrives in Saigon with his own plan to settle country's conflicts. More a murder mystery than the political thriller intended. Remade in 2002. ●

Quiet American, The (2002-Australian-U.S.) C-101m. ½ D: Phillip Noyce. Michael Caine, Brendan Fraser, Do Thi Hai Yen, Rade Serbedgia, Tzi Ma, Robert Stanton, Holmes Osborne, Pham Thi Mai Hoa, Quang Hai, Ferdinand Hoang. Remake of Graham Greene's novel about a love triangle, set in 1952 Saigon, between a cynical British journalist, his young Vietnamese mistress, and an American who is not all that he seems to be. Handsomely mounted, with excellent performances by Caine and Fraser, but the central romance and political details—more faithful to Greene than Joseph L. Mankiewicz's 1958 version—are surprisingly uninvolved. Super 35. [R] ▼●

Quiet Days in Hollywood (1996-German-U.S.) C-91m. BOMB D: Josef Rusnak. Bill Cusack, Peter Dobson, Meta Golding, Chad Lowe, Stephen Mailer, Daryl ("Chill") Mitchell, Hilary Swank, Natasha Gregson Wagner, Jake Busey. Messy mishmash of loosely connected vignettes linking various L.A. characters (from waitress to showbiz exec, movie star to junkie), all of whom have sex on the brain. Of interest for the presence of Swank, as a pop culture-obsessed hooker. Aka THE WAY WE ARE. [R] ▼●

Quiet Earth, The (1985-New Zealand) C-100m. ½ D: Geoff Murphy. Bruno Lawrence, Alison Routledge, Peter Smith. Intriguing (and extremely good-looking) end-of-the-world saga; not entirely successful but well worth a look. [R] ▼●●

Quiet Man, The (1952) C-129m. * D: John Ford. John Wayne, Maureen O'Hara, Barry Fitzgerald, Victor McLaglen, Mildred Natwick, Arthur Shields, Ward Bond, Ken Curtis, Mae Marsh, Jack MacGowran, Sean McClory, Francis Ford. American boxer Wayne returns to his native Ireland and falls in love with a spirited lass (O'Hara)—but has to deal with local customs (including the payment of a dowry) and the young woman's bullheaded brother (McLaglen). Boisterous blarney, with beautiful Technicolor scenery, and equally beautiful music by Victor Young. This film was clearly a labor of love for Ford and his Irish-American stars. Maurice Walsh's story was scripted by Frank Nugent. Oscar winner for Best Director and Cinematography (Winton C. Hoch and Archie Stout). ▼●●

Quiet Room, The (1996-Australian) C-91m. ½ D: Rolf de Heer. Celine O'Leary, Paul Blackwell, Chloe Ferguson, Phoebe Ferguson. Revealing and compelling portrait of the disintegration of a marriage as seen completely through the eyes and mind of a seven-year-old girl. Writer-director de Heer vividly captures the truth about the experience through the self-imposed silence of a wise child who clearly sees through adult evasiveness and lies. [PG]▼

Quigley Down Under (1990) C-119m.  D: Simon Wincer. Tom Selleck, Laura San Giacomo, Alan Rickman, Chris Haywood, Ron Haddrick, Tony Bonner, Jerome Ehlers, Conor McDermottroe, Roger Ward, Ben Mendelsohn. Selleck is excellent as a self-assured sharpshooter who travels to Australia to work for despotic land baron Rickman—and takes an instant dislike to him, spawning a deadly game of cat-and-mouse in which only one will be left alive. Expertly filmed on exquisite locations, with its good qualities outweighing occasional dips in interest. Panavision. [PG-13]▼●●

Quiller Memorandum, The (1966-British) C-105m.  D: Michael Anderson. George Segal, Alec Guinness, Max von Sydow, Senta Berger, George Sanders, Robert Helpmann, Robert Flemyng. Good Harold Pinter script about American secret agent who investigates neo-Nazi movement in modern-day Berlin. A relief from most spy films of the '60s. Based on novel The Berlin Memorandum by Elleston Trevor (using pseudonym Adam Hall). Panavision. ▼

Quills (2000) C-123m. ½ D: Philip Kaufman. Geoffrey Rush, Kate Winslet, Joaquin Phoenix, Michael Caine, Billie Whitelaw, Patrick Malahide, Amelia Warner. The Marquis de Sade (Rush, in a delicious performance) is imprisoned in a French asylum, and a laundress (Winslet) smuggles his notorious manuscripts to an eager publisher. When this proves to be an embarrassment to Napoleon, a brutal doctor (Caine) is dispatched to keep him in line. Handsome, witty, and ribald . . . then it turns grim and nasty, leaving a bad taste behind. Doug Wright adapted his play. [R]▼

Quinceañera (2006) C-90m.  D: Richard Glatzer, Wash Westmoreland. Emily Rios, Jesse Garcia, Chalo González, J. R. Cruz, Araceli Guzmán-Rico, Jesus Castaños-Chima, David W. Ross, Jason L. Wood. Disarming slice-of-life set in L.A.'s Echo Park community, where a 14-year-old girl about to have her traditional rite-of-passage party can't explain how she got pregnant . . . and her uncompromising father (a neighborhood pastor) doesn't believe she's innocent. Meanwhile her cousin, already a family outcast, takes up with an upscale gay couple that's moved into the changing neighborhood.

González all but steals the film as the beatific uncle. Writing-directing partners Glatzer and Westmoreland were inspired by real-life events in their community. HD Widescreen. [R]●

Quintet (1979) C-110m.  D: Robert Altman. Paul Newman, Bibi Andersson, Fernando Rey, Vittorio Gassman, Nina Van Pallandt, Brigitte Fossey, David Langton. Pretentious, unappealing story about cutthroat game of survival in a frozen city of the future. Not as puzzling as it is ponderous. [R]▼

Quiz Show (1994) C-130m. ½ D: Robert Redford. John Turturro, Rob Morrow, Ralph Fiennes, Paul Scofield, David Paymer, Hank Azaria, Christopher McDonald, Johann Carlo, Elizabeth Wilson, Allan Rich, Mira Sorvino, George Martin, Paul Guilfoyle, Griffin Dunne, Timothy Busfield, Jack Gilpin, Bruce Altman, Carole Shelley, Ileana Douglas, Calista Flockhart. Engrossing story of the TV quiz show scandal of the late 1950s, focusing on a hotheaded sore loser (Turturro, in a sensational performance) and his successor on Twenty-One: instant hero Charles Van Doren (Fiennes), scion of a socially prominent, intellectual family. Overlength is its only weakness—but it never ceases to be real (if not always exactly truthful). Scofield is a joy to watch as the elder Van Doren, and director Martin Scorsese is well cast as the cold-blooded sponsor of the show. That's film director Barry Levinson as TV host Dave Garroway; look sharp for an unbilled Ethan Hawke in a Columbia University classroom. [PG-13]▼●●

Quo Vadis (1951) C-171m.  D: Mervyn LeRoy. Robert Taylor, Deborah Kerr, Peter Ustinov, Leo Genn, Patricia Laffan, Finlay Currie, Abraham Sofaer, Buddy Baer. Gargantuan MGM adaptation of Henryk Sienkiewicz' novel set during the reign of Nero; Roman soldier Taylor has to figure out how to romance Christian Kerr without both of them ending up as lunch for the lions. Meticulous production includes fine location shooting and Miklos Rozsa score based on music of the era. Remade for Italian TV in 1985. ▼●●

Rabbit-Proof Fence (2002-Australian-British) C-94m.  D: Phillip Noyce. Evelyn Sampi, Tianna Sansbury, Laura Monaghan, David Gulpilil, Kenneth Branagh, Deborah Mailman, Jason Clarke, Ningali Lawford, Myrn Lawford. Amazing true story set in 1931 Australia, as three half-caste aboriginal girls are taken from their mothers—as the law dictates—and transferred to a camp 1,500 miles away, where they will be Anglicized and trained for domestic work. When they escape and head home, the bureaucrat who's in charge of aborigines (Branagh) does everything in his power to capture them, but he doesn't reckon

on their cunning and determination. Told with restraint, this emotional story is underplayed, but the final real-life footage packs a punch. Music by Peter Gabriel. Super 35. [PG]▼

Rabbit, Run (1970) C-94m.  D: Jack Smight. James Caan, Carrie Snodgrass, Anjanette Comer, Jack Albertson, Melodie Johnson, Henry Jones, Carmen Matthews, Nydia Westman, Josephine Hutchinson, Ken Kercheval, Arthur Hill. Brilliant cast, brilliant book (by John Updike), but dull film about former high school athlete who finds that life is tougher than being on the playing field. Panavision. [R]

Rabbit Test (1978) C-86m. ½ D: Joan Rivers. Billy Crystal, Alex Rocco, Joan Prather, Doris Roberts, George Gobel, Imogene Coca, Paul Lynde. Rivers' only film to date is like low-budget Mel Brooks: wacky comedy surrounding slim plot about first pregnant man. Some wild ideas, mostly in bad taste. Many guest-star cameos (including Rivers as a nurse). [PG]▼

Rabid (1977-Canadian) C-90m. ½ D: David Cronenberg. Marilyn Chambers, Frank Moore, Joe Silver, Patricia Gage, Susan Roman. Motorcyclist Chambers has plastic surgery after an accident, develops an insatiable hankering for human blood. Good of its type; well directed by cult favorite Cronenberg. Porn star Chambers removes her clothes—but nothing more. [R]▼

Race for Your Life, Charlie Brown (1977) C-75m. ½ D: Bill Melendez. Voices of Duncan Watson, Greg Felton, Stuart Brotman, Gail Davis, Liam Martin. Third animated feature based on Charles Schulz's Peanuts comic strip is set in summer camp, highlighted by treacherous raft race. Mildly entertaining, but lacks punch. [G]▼

Racers, The (1955) C-87m. ½ D: Henry Hathaway. Kirk Douglas, Bella Darvi, Gilbert Roland, Lee J. Cobb, Cesar Romero, Katy Jurado. Hackneyed sports-car racing yarn, not salvaged by Douglas' dynamics or European location shooting. CinemaScope.▼

Race the Sun (1996) C-105m.  D: Charles T. Kanganis. Halle Berry, James Belushi, Kevin Tighe, Bill Hunter, Eliza Dushku, J. Moki Cho, Casey Affleck, Steve Zahn. An idealistic teacher (Berry) and gruff mechanic (Belushi) team up to mentor eight poverty-stricken kids who build a solar-powered car and take it to a racing competition across Australia. Clichés abound in this "feel-good" film, and the leads are annoying, but the kids are charming (in particular, Cho). Exotic locales help. Written by Barry Morrow (RAIN MAN). [PG]▼

Race to the Yankee Zephyr (1981-Australian-New Zealand) C-108m.  D: David Hemmings. Ken Wahl, Lesley Ann Warren, Donald Pleasence, George Peppard, Bruno Lawrence. Addle-brained drama about good guys Wahl and Pleasence and nemesis Peppard attempting to recover $50 million in gold from DC-3 wrecked during WW2. Video title: TREASURE OF THE YANKEE ZEPHYR. Panavision. [PG]▼

Race to Witch Mountain (2009) C-99m. ½ D: Andy Fickman. Dwayne Johnson, Alexander Ludwig, AnnaSophia Robb, Carla Gugino, Ciarán Hinds, Tom Everett Scott, Cheech Marin, Gary Marshall. Speedy but routine revamping of Disney's 1970s not-quite franchise (ESCAPE TO WITCH MOUNTAIN, RETURN FROM WITCH MOUNTAIN, and some made-for-TV remakes in the 1990s) begins with the artist previously known as The Rock driving a cab in Vegas. Then, it quickly evolves into a yarn of flying saucers, teen space aliens, a cute astrophysicist, a government heavy who actually is overweight, underworld thugs, a country bar band, mouthy dweebs at a sci-fi convention . . . and, oh yeah, Witch Mountain. Affable (if forgettable) entertainment for kids. Kim Richards and Ike Eisenmann, who starred in the 1970s films, make cameo appearances. Super 35. [PG]▼

Race With the Devil (1975) C-88m. *½ D: Jack Starrett. Peter Fonda, Warren Oates, Loretta Swit, Lara Parker, R. G. Armstrong. Two vacationing couples are pursued by local Satanists after witnessing a human sacrifice. It takes quite a human sacrifice to sit through this hybrid car-chase/horror film. [PG]▼

Rachel and the Stranger (1948) 79m.  D: Norman Foster. Loretta Young, William Holden, Robert Mitchum, Tom Tully, Sara Haden. Charming pioneer love story of a farmer, his indentured servant wife, and the farmer's wandering minstrel friend who visits their homestead. Three attractive stars at their prime. Originally reviewed at 93m. Also shown in computer-colored version.▼

Rachel Getting Married (2008) C-113m.  D: Jonathan Demme. Anne Hathaway, Rosemarie DeWitt, Bill Irwin, Debra Winger, Tunde Adebimpe, Mather Zickel, Anisa George, Anna Deavere Smith. Emotionally charged drama, shot like a cinéma vérité documentary, about a troubled young woman (Hathaway) who's temporarily sprung from a rehab facility in order to attend her sister's wedding at the family's home . . . but Hathaway is a raw nerve who sets off sparks willy-nilly, repeatedly undermining her sister (DeWitt) and her long-suffering father (Irwin). She also has unfinished business with her divorced mother (Winger). Superb performances mitigate against the sometimes annoying ambience, but it's all masterfully orchestrated by Demme, who finds the resonance in the debut screenplay of Jenny Lumet (Sidney's daughter). [R]▼

Rachel Papers, The (1989-British) C-95m. ½ D: Damian Harris. Dexter Fletcher, Ione Skye, Jonathan Pryce, James Spader, Bill Paterson, Lesley Sharp, Michael

Gambon. Young Britisher relentlessly pursues an American girl, with the help of his computer. Skye shines (in a role similar to the one she had in SAY ANYTHING . . .) but this is really a showcase for Fletcher. Sporadically charming, adapted by first-time director Harris from Martin Amis' novel. [R]▼

Rachel, Rachel (1968) C-101m. ½ D: Paul Newman. Joanne Woodward, James Olson, Kate Harrington, Estelle Parsons, Donald Moffat, Terry Kiser. Beautifully sensitive, mature film about spinster schoolteacher trying to come out of her shell. Woodward is superb; husband Newman's directorial debut. Screenplay by Stewart Stern, from a novel by Margaret Laurence. [R]▼

Rachel River (1987) C-90m. ½ D: Sandy Smolan. Zeljko Ivanec, Pamela Reed, Craig T. Nelson, James Olson, Alan North, Viveca Lindfors, Jo Henderson, Jon De Vries, Richard Jenkins. Occasionally contrived but mostly intelligent chronicle of Reed, a rural Minnesota mother and radio journalist, and the various people who inhabit her town. Thoughtful performances overcome the occasional insipidness. Screenplay by Judith Guest; a PBS American Playhouse theatrical production. [PG-13]▼

Racing Stripes (2005) C-84m. *½ D: Frederik Du Chau. Bruce Greenwood, Hayden Panettiere, M. Emmet Walsh, Wendie Malick; voices of Frankie Muniz, Whoopi Goldberg, Dustin Hoffman, Mandy Moore, Snoop Dogg, Jeff Foxworthy, Joe Pantoliano, Fred Dalton Thompson, David Spade, Michael Clarke Duncan, Steve Harvey, Joshua Jackson. A zebra falls off a truck and ends up in the rural household of widowed Greenwood and his adolescent daughter (Panettiere), who longs to race him. Barnyard animals speak, BABE-style, which gives work to a condo-mixer cast of voice-over talent, including Spade as a feces-craving horsefly named "Scuzz." To quote Gig Young in THEY SHOOT HORSES, DON'T THEY?. "Yowza!" [PG]▼

Racing With the Moon (1984) C-108m.  D: Richard Benjamin. Sean Penn, Elizabeth McGovern, Nicolas Cage, John Karlen, Rutanya Alda, Carol Kane, Crispin Glover, Michael Madsen, Dana Carvey. Teenage romance set in small California town just as the young man is about to go off to fight in WW2. Appealing stars and loving eye for 1940s detail make up for slow pace. That bowling alley is a gem! [PG]▼

Rack, The (1956) 100m.  D: Arnold Laven. Paul Newman, Wendell Corey, Walter Pidgeon, Edmond O'Brien, Anne Francis, Lee Marvin, Cloris Leachman. Newman is pensively convincing as Korean War veteran—brainwashed as a P.O.W.—now on trial for treason, with Pidgeon

as his overbearing father and Francis his friend. Slick production adapted from Rod Serling teleplay. Robert Blake, Dean Jones, and Rod Taylor have small roles.

Racket, The (1951) 88m.  D: John Cromwell. Robert Mitchum, Robert Ryan, Elizabeth Scott, Ray Collins, William Talman, Robert Hutton, William Conrad, Don Porter. Police officer Mitchum and gangster Ryan spend almost as much time fighting their corrupt superiors as they do each other. Unusual film noir with strong performances (especially Ryan's) and bizarre ending; based on play previously filmed by producer Howard Hughes in 1928. Co-scripted by W. R. Burnett; some scenes were directed by Nicholas Ray. Also shown in computer-colored version. ▼

Racket Busters (1938) 71m.  D: Lloyd Bacon. George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Gloria Dickson, Allen Jenkins, Walter Abel, Henry O'Neill, Penny Singleton. Mobster Bogie's going to take over the trucking business, but Brent doesn't want to cooperate. Standard programmer moves along well; cowritten by Robert Rossen.

Rad (1986) C-91m. BOMB D: Hal Needham. Bart Connor, Lori Laughlin, Talia Shire, Jack Weston, Ray Walston. Connor is supposed to take his SATs, but wouldn't you know it, there's a big BMX race on the same Saturday? "Rad" is short for radical—as in "Radical, man"—which this trash definitely is not: Didn't we see this same plot in late '50s hot-rod and late '70s roller-disco movies? [PG]▼

Radio (2003) C-109m.  D: Mike Tollin. Cuba Gooding, Jr., Ed Harris, Debra Winger, Alfre Woodard, S. Epaphth Merskinson, Brent Sexton, Chris Mulkey, Sarah Drew. South Carolina high school football coach takes an interest in a mentally challenged young man who's been mistreated by some of the football players. Nicknamed Radio, he blossoms under the coach's influence, but some people in his close-knit community don't cotton to this relationship. Although "inspired" by a true story, the film feels pat and hollow, despite good performances by Gooding and Harris. Brief footage of the real coach and his protégé at the very end of the film has more meaning—and impact—than anything in the movie itself. [PG]▼

Radioactive Dreams (1986) C-98m.  D: Albert Pyun. John Stockwell, Michael Dudikoff, Lisa Blount, George Kennedy, Don Murray, Michele Little. So-so post-apocalypse drama about Stockwell and Dudikoff, who've come to maturity in a bomb shelter. They've read all of Raymond Chandler's Philip Marlowe books and have taken on the private eye's personality. Nicely filmed, but it doesn't hold up. [R]▼

Radio Days (1987) C-85m.  D: Woody Allen. Mia Farrow, Seth Green, Julie Kavner, Josh Mostel, Michael Tucker, Dianne Wiest, Wallace Shawn, Tito Puente, Danny Aiello, Jeff Daniels, Tony Roberts, Diane Keaton, Kitty Carlisle Hart, Kenneth Mars, Mercedes Ruehl, Rebecca Schaeffer, Todd Field, Larry David. Richly nostalgic reminiscence (narrated by Woody) about growing up in 1940s Queens, mixing family vignettes with incidents about radio performers from that medium's golden age. The narrative never really gels, though it's always enjoyable to watch . . . especially with Allen's eye for detail and ear for dialogue. Beautifully photographed by Carlo Di Palma and designed by Santo Loquasto; filled with wonderful vintage music. Look sharp for William H. Macy. [PG] ▼●●

Radio Flyer (1992) C-120m.  D: Richard Donner, Lorraine Bracco, John Heard, Elijah Wood, Joseph Mazzello, Adam Baldwin, Ben Johnson. Two young, devoted brothers must find a way to survive their mother's marriage to an abusive drunk; their salvation is escape into a secret world, where they hatch a master plan for their Radio Flyer wagon. Spielberg-like view of childhood seems to suggest fantasy as a solution to child abuse! Despite moving performances from the two boys, this concept just doesn't work. Tom Hanks appears unbilled. Panavision. [PG-13] ▼●●

Radio Inside (1994) C-91m. ½ D: Jeffrey Bell. William McNamara, Elisabeth Shue, Dylan Walsh, Ilse Earl, Pee Wee Love, Ara Madzounian, Steve Zurk. A young man, trying to cope with the death of his father and his own aimlessness, goes to live with his brother and soon falls for the brother's girlfriend. Gentle tale with some good performances, especially by McNamara. ▼●●

Radioland Murders (1994) C-112m. *½ D: Mel Smith. Brian Benben, Mary Stuart Masterson, Ned Beatty, Scott Michael Campbell, Brion James, Michael Lerner, Michael McKean, Jeffrey Tambor, Stephen Tobolowsky, Christopher Lloyd, Larry Miller, Anita Morris, Corbin Bernsen, Bobcat Goldthwait, Robert Walden, Rosemary Clooney, Dylan Baker, Billy Barty, Tracy Byrd, Candy Clark, Anne De Salvo, Jennifer Dundas, Bo Hopkins, Robert Klein, Harvey Korman, Joey Lawrence, Peter MacNicol, Jack Sheldon. Frenetic, wearisome farce about backstage murders on opening night of a Chicago radio network in 1939. Many talented performers are given nothing to do. Executive producer George Lucas apparently concocted this story years earlier. Ariscope. [PG] ▼●●

Radio On (1979-British) 101m. ½ D: Chris Petit. David Beames, Lisa Kreuzer, Sting. Downbeat, rambling story of disc jockey who travels across Britain because of the mysterious circumstances of his brother's recent death. Written and directed by Petit, disciple of German director Wim

Wenders (film's associate producer); plot is only hinted at in this meditation on the bleakness of modern life. ▼

Ra Expeditions, The (1971-Norwegian) C-93m.  D: Lennart Ehrenborg. Narrated by Thor Heyerdahl and Roscoe Lee Browne. Exciting documentary about modern adventurer Heyerdahl's determination to cross the Atlantic in a papyrus boat, to prove theory that such a voyage was made thousands of years ago. Fine follow-up to KON-TIKI. [G]

Rafferty and the Gold Dust Twins (1975) C-92m. ½ D: Dick Richards. Alan Arkin, Sally Kellerman, Mackenzie Phillips, Alex Rocco, Charlie Martin Smith, Harry Dean Stanton. Appealing but aimless film about a pair of women who force nebbish Arkin to drive them to New Orleans from L.A. Retitled RAFFERTY AND THE HIGHWAY HUSTLERS for TV. Panavision. [R] ▼

Rage (1966-U.S.-Mexican) C-103m. *½ D: Gilberto Gazcon. Glenn Ford, Stella Stevens, David Reynoso, Armando Silvestre, Ariadna Welter. Overstated drama of misanthropic doctor Ford who contracts rabies and races clock across Mexican desert to get help.

Rage (1972) C-104m.  D: George C. Scott. George C. Scott, Richard Basehart, Martin Sheen, Barnard Hughes, Nicolas Beauvy, Paul Stevens. When peaceful rancher Scott's young son is killed by chemical testing, he seeks revenge on those responsible for accident. Good photography, but Scott's transition from nice-guy to killer isn't convincing. Scott's directorial debut. Panavision. [PG] ▼●

Rage: Carrie 2, The (1999) C-104m.  D: Katt Shea. Emily Bergl, Jason London, Dylan Bruno, J. Smith-Cameron, Amy Irving, Zachery Ty Bryan, John Doe, Gordon Clapp, Rachel Blanchard, Mena Suvari. Years after CARRIE, another teenaged outsider in the same town is picked on by cruel fellow students, and again unleashes her telekinetic powers in climactic revenge. Well-acted but routine movie clumsily linked to the original. Irving's character, the only one from the original, is synthetically injected into the plot. [R] ▼●●

Rage in Harlem, A (1991) C-115m. ½ D: Bill Duke. Forest Whitaker, Gregory Hines, Robin Givens, Danny Glover, Zakes Mokae, Badja Djola, John Toles-Bey, Ron Taylor, Stack Pierce, George Wallace, T. K. Carter, Willard E. Pugh, Samm-Art Williams, Tyler Collins, Screamin' Jay Hawkins. Smooth operator from Mississippi (Givens) comes to Harlem to unload a stash of gold, and hooks up with a naive, nerdy mama's boy (Whitaker) who sees himself as her protector. Earnest attempt to recreate author Chester Himes' 1950s Harlem milieu doesn't quite come together in spite of some good performances. Can't

hold a candle to COTTON COMES TO HARLEM (though the cop characters Gravedigger Jones and Coffin Ed reappear in this story). [R] ▼●●

Rage in Heaven (1941) 83m.  D: W. S. Van Dyke II. Robert Montgomery, Ingrid Bergman, George Sanders, Lucile Watson, Oscar Homolka, Philip Merivale, Matthew Boulton. Disappointing adaptation of James Hilton novel about mentally disturbed steel mill owner who plots unusual murder-revenge scheme; set in England.

Rage to Live, A (1965) 101m.  D: Walter Grauman. Suzanne Pleshette, Bradford Dillman, Ben Gazzara, Peter Graves, Bethel Leslie, James Gregory, Carmen Mathews, Ruth White. Turgid adaptation of John O'Hara novel charting the premarital and extramarital affairs of emotionally and physically needy Pleshette. Panavision.

Raggedy Ann and Andy (1977) C-85m. *½ D: Richard Williams. Voices of Didi Conn, Mark Baker, Fred Stuthman, Joe Silver. Slow-moving, uninvolved children's cartoon with endless songs by Joe Raposo that stop action dead in its tracks. Appealing characters with nowhere to go; only highlight is Camel with Wrinkled Knees singing "Song Blue." Panavision. [G] ▼

Raggedy Man (1981) C-94m.  D: Jack Fisk. Sissy Spacek, Eric Roberts, William Sanderson, Tracey Walter, Sam Shepard, Henry Thomas, Carey Hollis, Jr. A young divorced woman with two children tries to forge a life for herself and her family in a small Texas town during WW2. Absorbing slice-of-life Americana with a misconceived melodramatic finale. Directorial debut for art director Fisk, who's Spacek's husband. [PG] ▼●●

Raging Bull (1980) C/B&W-128m. * D: Martin Scorsese. Robert De Niro, Cathy Moriarty, Joe Pesci, Frank Vincent, Nicholas Colasanto, Theresa Saldana, John Turturro. Extraordinarily compelling look at prizefighter Jake La Motta, whose leading opponent outside the ring was always himself. That such an unappealing man could inspire so vivid a portrait is a tribute to the collaboration of Scorsese, De Niro, and writers Paul Schrader and Mardik Martin. There's not a false note in characterization or period detail. De Niro and editor Thelma Schoonmaker won richly deserved Academy Awards. [R] ▼●●

Raging Moon, The SEE: Long Ago Tomorrow

Ragman's Daughter, The (1972-British) C-94m.  D: Harold Becker. Simon Rouse, Victoria Tennant, Patrick O'Connell, Leslie Sands. Stylishly filmed kitchen-sink drama written by Alan Sillitoe. Rouse is a young thief who falls in love with beautiful Tennant. Becker's first feature.

Ragtime (1981) C-155m.  D: Milos Forman. James Cagney, Elizabeth McGovern, Howard E. Rollins, Jr., Mary Steenburgen, James Olson, Brad Dourif, Kenneth McMillan, Mandy Patinkin, Donald O'Connor, Pat O'Brien, Debbie Allen, Moses Gunn, Norman Mailer, Jeff Daniels, John Ratzberger, Samuel L. Jackson, Fran Drescher, Michael Jeter. E. L. Doctorow's semi-fictional mosaic of 1906 America is glorious until Michael Weller's script narrows its focus to just one story thread: a black man's fanatical pursuit of justice. While the initial momentum is lost, there's still much to enjoy: fine performances (including Cagney's last in a theatrical film, after a 20-year hiatus), and Randy Newman's delightful score. Jeff Daniels' film debut. Later a Broadway musical. Todd-AO 35. [PG] ▼●●

Raid, The (1954) C-83m.  D: Hugo Fregonese. Van Heflin, Anne Bancroft, Richard Boone, Lee Marvin, Tommy Rettig, James Best, Peter Graves, Claude Akins. Well-handled (and true) story of Confederate prisoners escaping from jail in upper New England, with Bancroft and Rettig on their trail.
