The United Nations Environment Programme World Conservation Monitoring Centre (UNEP-WCMC) is the specialist biodiversity assessment centre of the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP), the world's foremost intergovernmental environmental organisation. The Centre has been in operation for over 30 years, combining scientific research with practical policy advice. The Centre's mission is to evaluate and highlight the many values of biodiversity and put authoritative biodiversity knowledge at the centre of decision-making. Through the analysis and synthesis of global biodiversity knowledge the Centre provides authoritative, strategic and timely information for conventions, countries and organisations to use in the development and implementation of their policies and decisions.

UNEP-WCMC provides objective and scientifically rigorous procedures and services. These include ecosystem assessments, support for the implementation of environmental agreements, global and regional biodiversity information, research on threats and impacts, and the development of future scenarios.

Introduction

The analysis of the European Union and candidate countries' annual reports to CITES 2011 provides a detailed discussion of the information submitted by countries describing their trade in species listed in the Annexes of EC Regulation 338/97. This legislation enforces the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) in the European Union.

Following the suggestion by EU Member States to provide more information regarding discrepancies, this document provides a more complete listing of possible discrepancies between imports reported by the European Union and candidate countries, and corresponding trade reported by trading partners.

Trade volumes of less than five units, as reported by the exporting partner, have been excluded from the table as these may be personal effects and could be exempt from import permit requirements, while an exporter-reported quantity of zero could be the result of the exporter not submitting an annual report. Cases where importers'- and exporters'-reported quantities differ by less than 25% were not considered discrepancies of note, and were therefore also excluded. Quantities have been rounded to one decimal place, where applicable.

In order to enable better matching of shipments between trading partners, purpose and source codes were not taken into account in the comparative tabulation. Purpose codes are often reported using different, but equally valid, codes. Some inconsistencies are also apparent in reporting of source codes, for example in the reporting of pre-Convention items.

Many of the entries may be explained by exporters reporting on issued permits which are then not used or only partly utilised, or the transaction taking place in the subsequent calendar year and being reported as such by the importer. However, the highlighting of potential discrepancies remains an essential part of continuing to improve the accuracy and completeness of reporting.

When comments were received from Member States providing additional information on specific discrepancies (e.g. confirming that the trade did not actually take place in 2011), these transactions have been excluded from the Addendum.

Discrepancies of particular note in 2011 include the reported trade in Appendix I cactus seeds, with many EU Member States apparently under-reporting imports compared with exporter-reported data.
