From the Chairman

Dear Friends:

Welcome to summer in the Granite State: longer days, warmer temperatures and carefree times that we wish could go on forever. Unfortunately, we know they can't, so it's best to enjoy the sun while it shines. Take a road trip to the White Mountains, spend an afternoon in the sand and surf of New Hampshire's coast and explore the deep, cool forests of the Great North Woods. It's all right in our backyard, and the options for summer fun are seemingly endless.

While indulging in the natural beauty of our home state, why not bring along a bottle of bright, fresh rosé? In this issue, we take you on a world tour of some of the finest rosé producers around the globe. From Spain and Italy to France and right here in the USA, each producer has its own take on this refreshing wine, providing a variety of tastes on a seasonal favorite.

In the Distiller's Craft, we talk one-on-one with Tito Beveridge, the owner of Tito's Handmade Vodka. This Austin-based distiller is a true character, weaving compelling tales and crafting a 100 percent American spirit. A unique vodka that traces its lineage back to its founder's distilling experiments in the oil fields of Texas, Tito's has evolved into a fantastic brand with a great story – which includes his renowned philanthropic efforts and his inspiring interest in animal welfare.

And as we take advantage of a few long weekends this time of year, what could be better than gathering around a campfire with a few friends and a selection of pre-made cocktails? Our Let's Entertain feature shows you just how to prepare some delicious, infused sippers that go perfectly with campground fare – leaving you free to enjoy the company of your fellow campers.

We also take a trip to Nashua to visit Djinn Spirits – a New Hampshire craft distiller creating some great gins, whiskeys and even a spiced honey liqueur called Krupnik that got its start from a 500-year-old recipe first crafted by Lithuanian monks. A visit to Andy and Cindy Harthcock's Djinn Spirits teaches visitors the ins and outs of all of these spirits, and provides an opportunity to chat with these friendly, knowledgeable, local distillers.

In the meantime, we hope you'll refer to all the information and great opportunities for savings available at LiquorandWineOutlets.com.

As always, thank you for drinking responsibly.

The smooth, bittersweet taste of this classically Italian liqueur, with hints of red grapefruit, spice, orange and honey, make it perfect for unique cocktails or as a relaxing sipper.

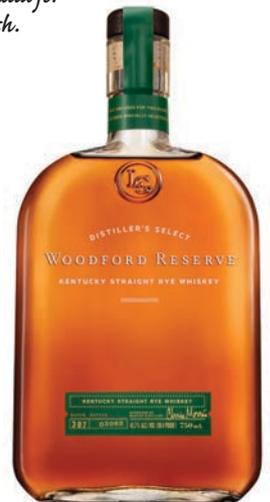

The sweet taste of Salted Caramel is Jackson Morgan Southern Cream's most requested flavor, with a satisfying balance of caramel and real dairy cream.

Floral, butter corn, cotton candy, and fruit on the nose. Sweet, but relatively dry with a rye spice and pecan pie finish.

Light and floral fragrances with sweet and smoky notes set up the perfect balance of spice and oak with a sweet vanilla for a mellow, warm finish.

With a rich, honey appearance, Woodford rye is made in the traditional style of Kentucky ryes and delivers bold flavors of pepper and tobacco with hints of pear and apple. It wraps up with a long fruit and sweetly-spiced finish.

Crafted in Maine, naturally gluten-free and eight times distilled, this smooth vodka has a clean, crisp taste and aroma that lends itself perfectly to classic cocktails.

Aged in American oak barrels for eight months after the distillation process, this Reposado (which translates to "rested" or "calm,") uses hand-selected, organic Weber Blue Agaves that have matured for nine years.

Pinnacle Gin

Imported London Dry style gin infused with exotic botanicals and water from one of Wales' purest springs. Clear. Aromas of baby oil, lemon-lime mousse, and floral juniper.

Serve It: Mixed in your favorite cocktail brings out the best of the juniper and botanical flavors.

Effen Black Cherry Vodka

Continuously distilled, crisp and smooth.

Taste It: Like each EFFEN® Vodka flavor, EFFEN® Black Cherry avoids glycerin or additional sugars by using vanilla — blended here with black cherries to achieve a balanced finish.

Serve It: It's smooth enough to drink straight, though it also complements any mixer with just the right level of sweetness.

EFFEN® Black Cherry and Selzer

- $1\frac{1}{2}$  part EFFEN® Black Cherry Vodka

The London No. 1 Blue Gin

Taste It: A classic gin with fragrance and spiciness of juniper and coriander, combined with angelica and orris root, giving body and structure to the other botanicals. A zesty freshness comes from liquorice root. The London No. 1 is unique in that it also has a final fusion of bergamot oil in the mix – that instantly recognizable perfumed aroma in Earl Grey tea. Its citric qualities marry beautifully with the fresh flavors of orange and lemon peel. The bergamot also reinforces the “holding” role of orris root. These are perfectly offset with the thyme-like aromatics of savory, whilst the sweet, spicy notes of cinnamon and cassia bark complete the recipe.

Serve It: Mix in your favorite gin-based cocktail.

G & Tea

- 1¼ ounce The London No. 1 Gin
- ½ ounce St. Germain Elderflower Liqueur
- ¾ ounce cold Earl Grey tea
- Tonic water
- Lemon peel, for garnish

Add ice, and all of the ingredients except the garnish, to a large rocks glass. Stir to combine, and garnish with lemon peel.

White Wine, Please

“White wine, please” – a simple phrase, and one that for years was all you had to say since many bars and restaurants had only one white wine selection! Times have changed though, and now you can ask for the varietal or a specific style, and if you’re lucky, even a vintage. Life is good.

Summer

It’s hard to get excited about a glass of big, tannic Bordeaux in the middle of a heat wave, or a mind-numbing, 80-degree, high-alcohol Zinfandel while sitting on the beach. But a nice cool Sauvignon Blanc or Champagne? Well, that sounds like it might be just what the doctor ordered.

And speaking of the doctor, did you know that Champagne is rich in polyphenols, those antioxidants that can help heart health? More good news: it can also help your brain. New studies suggest that these special French bubbles can help ward off dementia as well. Lucky little lab rats that got to have Champagne before their repetitive maze tests, in what one could only imagine were very tiny little glasses, fared far better than their deprived and besmirched cousins that did not. Science is fun. Anyway, that’s all good enough for me... Champagne anyone?

Time for new discoveries

Champagne, as well as other sparkling wines, is always in style and surely helps the moment become merrier (“happiness in a bottle” is what my wife calls them), but there are worlds of great “still” whites out there that deserve some attention during a long, hot summer, as well. Most of us know Sauvignon Blanc and Chardonnay and a few other whites like Pinot Grigio and Riesling, but there are some new kids in town as well. There’s Albariño – the zesty, bright and fruit-forward Spanish white that is similar in many ways to Sauvignon Blanc, and is a perfect companion with the plethora of great shellfish available to us here in New England. Also from Spain, the lush and full-bodied, elegant Godello is a longstanding favorite of mine.

My relatively newly-discovered gem is “Lugana,” which is made in a diminutive area in northeast Italy from the wonderful yet almost completely unknown grape Turbiana di Lugana. It is lush and exotic like a cross between a great white Burgundy from Meursault and a Viognier from the northern Rhone Valley. Cesari “Cento Filari” is the finest example of this wine that I have discovered, and it is my current favorite white wine.

France

From France, we have many whites that are perhaps the wind beneath the wings of the more famous and sought-after reds. The Loire Valley alone produces several excellent ones, like the light and refreshing “Muscadet” made from the Melon de Bourgogne grape, which is conceivably the best possible wine on earth for oysters! Sancerre and Pouilly Fume, which are 100 percent Sauvignon Blanc, are a resplendent expression of this varietal and can change how you feel about Sauvignon Blanc if you have become tired of it. There is also Vouvray, the off-dry wine made from the Chenin Blanc grape that, as an added bonus, can age surprisingly well. If you didn’t already know it, white Burgundy from France is made from Chardonnay with very rare exceptions, so, if you are a card-carrying member of the ABC club (Anything But Chardonnay), these wines could cause you to save your dues and tear up your membership!

Also from Italy

More specifically, Tuscany – we also have the splendid Vernaccia di San Gimignano. This was actually the first white wine awarded the DOC back in the '60s and has since been upgraded to the highest status of quality with the prestigious DOCG designation, awarded in the mid-'90s. The wine is crisp and dry, often with an interesting nose of honey and apples.

Time to Shop

What all these wines have in common is that they are excellent food wines. Most have good acidity, which is key for pairing with food. Also, as a rule, European wines have lower alcohol, which makes for a more refreshing experience and just might leave room for a before-dinner cocktail.

Cheers! 🍷

Sophisticated Meets Approachable

Nashua's Pig Tale Serves Up Fresh, Creative Fare in Comfortable Setting

A phenomenon is happening from coast to coast: Restaurants run by highly talented chefs and bartenders are popping up in non-traditional locations like strip malls. What was once the hub for mediocre takeouts, salons and packaged goods stores, is now a haven for craft food makers and gastro-pubs. Affordable pricing and customer-friendly strip malls create an ideal spot for seasoned professionals and industry newcomers to spread their wings.

“We loved Nashua because we are in the heart of everything we need,” he says. “It is like nature’s grocery store and feels like home for us.”

Normandin co-owns Pig Tale with his longtime colleague, Chef Robert Jean. The duo met while working for the Boston-based hospitality outfit, Alpine Restaurant Group. Jean is classically trained, and is a master in cooking styles ranging from Italian bistro to Southern comfort. Normandin is an food preparation is open to the dining room. A vintage license plate-sided bar stands as an invitation to watch while the pizza cook crafts Pig Tale’s signature pies. The Mugnaini wood-fired oven warms the space, and was a selling point for the partners.

“The oven was here and was well-seasoned by the former occupants,” states Normandin.

Pig Tale makes its pizza with Caputo 00 Flour. The dough is soft and pliable while stretching and crispy and savory when cooked.

“It’s a great hybrid between New York and Neapolitan styles,” says server Jennifer Wolf. “People love the crunch and the bubbles.”

The restaurant’s namesake pig shows up across the menu, from the Potted Pig, (an unctuous creton-style country pate,) to the eponymous Pig Tails that are marinated in Korean seasonings. The tails come from a regular supplier to farm-to-table eateries around New England. The signature dish is served up after a tender roast in the wood-fired oven, and is topped by a kimchi slaw. The flavors are rich and the texture is addictive.

“Most people don’t eat pig tails on a regular basis,” Normandin says. “They assume it is going to be a curlicue shape instead of this nice piece of meat. We tell them that if they love rich, smoky flavor, they will love the tails.”

Pig Tale is a decidedly pub-style departure for the skillful Chef Jean. The approachable menu, however doesn’t lack sophistication. Each plate is thoughtfully composed and the textures and combinations reflect Jean’s mature culinary knowledge.

Guests can watch as Pig Tale’s signature pizzas are crafted behind a vintage license plate-sided bar.

That trend is alive and well at Pig Tale Restaurant in Nashua.

“We knew we found the right location, close to Boston but in an area where farms surround us and are easily reachable,” says Chris Normandin, co-owner of Pig Tale.

The Restaurant is on Nashua’s Amherst Street: a busy thoroughfare that provides the eatery with accessibility and exposure.

award-winning bartender and house manager. Together, the pair brought their penchant for all-things-craft-food to the location and a focus heavy on fresh ingredients and locally-raised meats.

Pig Tale opened in June of 2015 and quickly become a beloved hot-spot – boasting a packed house most nights of the week. The kitchen is where Chef Jean’s sensibility shines. Part of the

That Tequila Drink

1½ ounces Espolon Blanco Tequila
1½ ounces grapefruit shrub*
2 dashes salt bitters
1 dash habanero bitters (go light on this!)
Spritz of Lagavulin Scotch
Orange peel

Pour the tequila, the shrub and the bitters into a shaker filled with ice. Top and shake vigorously. Fill a canning jar with ice and strain the cocktail into the jar. Spritz the Scotch over the cocktail and top with the orange peel. Makes one cocktail.

*Make your own shrub by combining 1½ cups vinegar with 1½ cups sugar and two large grapefruits that have been thoroughly peeled and roughly chopped. Shake the ingredients in a large capped jar to dissolve the sugar. Refrigerate for 2 days. Strain and place the liquid in a new container. Keep refrigerated until ready to use.

Pork belly is expertly rendered and crisped, served atop Bibb lettuce, house pickled onions and an orange sour cream. Deviled eggs are topped by a house-cured guanciale that has floral and peppery notes – the perfect foil for the over-sized and creamy farm eggs. The Pig Tale Pizza rounds out the pork-centric menu. The pie is sauced and topped with crispy bacon, sausage, pork belly, and a rich barbecue sauce. The combination is show-stoppingly good and is a “must-eat” for any meat-loving fan.

Drink names on the cocktail menu are matter-of-fact. The list includes: That Gin Drink, That Rum Drink, That Whiskey Drink, and so on. The names match the bar’s congenial style. Regulars can get their favorite liquors blended with Pig Tale’s signature infusions like cucumber-infused gin with elderflower foam, or peach-infused whiskey with mint, agave and lemon.

That Tequila Drink is Pig Tale’s version of the popular Mexican cocktail, the Paloma. Espolon Blanco Tequila is blended with a grapefruit shrub (made by combining the citrus fruit, vinegar and sugar) and is shaken with house made habanero bitters. The mixture is topped by a spritz of Lagavulin Scotch. The result is sweet, sour, smoky and earthy – all the notes that make up a well-rounded and craveable cocktail.

The staff favors small batch liquors like Nashua’s own Ice Pik vodka, distilled eight times from corn.

“We spice our own rum, blend our own amaro, and make limoncello in-house,” says Sarah Buckley, Pig Tale’s bartender. “We don’t buy any liquor that comes pre-flavored, because we want it to be custom and distinct to our place.”

Pig Tale’s amaro is a stand-out: a grassy blend of herbs and citrus is macerated with grain alcohol to create the spirit. It is served straight up or as a digestif. This unusual liquor is a darling of the craft cocktail world, and homemade varieties like Pig Tale’s are singular in the region.

“I make it myself,” Normandin says with a smile.

Normandin also hand-selects the wines and beers on the menu.

“We have an entirely American wine list. American food, American wine,” he says matter-of-factly.

The glass pours rotate weekly and are listed by grape varietal.

“We change based on availability and the seasonality of our menu,” Normandin says.

Well-known vintages like Klinker Brick Old Vine Zinfandel, Dry Creek

Fume Blanc and Jordan Cabernet are popular bottle choices. The Pig Tale team has developed a close relationship with Fulchino Vineyard in near-by Hollis, New Hampshire. Its wines are showcased on the menu.

“They provide us with grass-fed meats and lots of their delicious wines,” says Normandin.

Fulchino’s 603 blend is served by the bottle. It acts as both a talking point for the staff and customers and as a crisp, clean contrast to the Yardbird chicken platter or the house pizzas.

Pig Tale pizzas are a mouth-watering hybrid of New York and Neapolitan styles.

“We have helped them harvest their grapes, and we enjoy doing wine dinners with them,” Normandin says.

The winter series was a success, and the staff plans to repeat the dinners in the upcoming season.

“You know that feeling when you are wide-eyed and excited about the food? That is what we see a lot from our customers,” says Jennifer Wolf. “People forget the outside world, and they are just here, eating great food and having a great time. We love having our customers experience that.” 🍷

Rosé Roundup

A World Tour of Fresh, Delicate Wines of the Season

From luscious pale pinks to robust crimson hues, the delicate, dry, freshness of rosé wines – and their tremendously value-packed prices – are enjoying unprecedented popularity across the globe.

Rosé, one of the oldest wines first created by Romans in the first century B.C., has broken away in the 21st century from the misconception that its blush color links it to sweeter white zinfandels and moscatos. Historically popular in Spanish and Portuguese vineyards, today's rosés encompass a rich plethora of winemaking techniques from a vast variety of vines planted in some of the world's greatest wine-producing regions.

And while newbie fans may consider it a perfect warm-weather libation for outdoor picnics and al fresco dining, experts say rosé is truly a year-round delight, if one can manage to hold on to a few bottles in the wine cellar past Labor Day.

Part of this trick is that rosé is best uncorked young. So invest in 2015 vintages, but keep several for Thanksgiving, when the wine's light tannins and creamy texture will shine with turkey, Grandma's stuffing and cranberry sauce.

France

Aurelie Vix represents the award-winning Château la Gordonne in Provence, France, the creators of the marvelous Chateau La Gordonne Rosé. It is one of the largest properties in Provence with over 350 hectares, 300 of which are vines that wallow in an exceptional microclimate where ripened grapes mix with palm trees for a spectacular vision of nature at its finest. "As a historic site in Provence, Château La Gordonne has always had wide appeal," Vix says. "The Pierrefeu terroir in the Massif des Maures is an exceptional site. In its beautiful setting within a natural schist crater, the Château La Gordonne vineyard enjoys a very special microclimate. Its winters are mild, and the summers are hot and dry, sometimes scorching, which means that the vines can soak up all the strength of the Provençal sun with 3,000 hours of sunshine a year.

"To sum up, what makes the value of our wines is the exceptional quality of our terroir but also our expertise in making rosé wines. The best and oldest parcels of the Gordonne vineyard are carefully selected for this cuvee. Chateau la Gordonne is a blend of Black Grenache, Syrah, and Cinsault grapes. The grapes are exclusively hand-harvested at night to benefit from the low temperatures and maximize the quality."

grapefruit, honeysuckle, peach, and raspberry plus a mineral purity coming from the scrubland hills at the top of La Gordonne. It is a delicate rosé, revealing fresh red fruits and floral notes, thus balanced, and is long and tender on the palate.

“Definitely a bargain for a 100 percent Cote de Provence estate wine,” Vix noted.

Spain

“Once it was relegated to just summertime drinking, but now people realize it is a flexible accompaniment to many meals and cuisines,” says Craig Gandolf of Bodegas Muga, the Spanish producer of the highly acclaimed Muga Rioja Rosé. “People are looking for a wine that has the flavor profile of a red, but with a lower alcohol level and lighter finish.”

The Muga Rioja Rosé 2015 is a very light, bright color – mainly pale orange-tinged salmon pink with fresh, tart fruit aromas and mostly citrus and green apple in the mouth, followed by a hint of apricot with a long finish.

“Muga Rosé is made in the dry style,” Gandolf says. “In Rioja, this style of wine is called Clarete. It is a blend of both red and white grape varieties; Garnacha and Tempranillo are red, and Viura is a white grape. Most rosés are made from a single variety of red grapes, but by blending different varieties you get a more complex flavor profile.”

Muga Rioja Rosé is slowly fermented in large oak barrels made on the property and 20 percent is allowed to undergo malolactic fermentation in oak as well.

“Most rosés are made quickly in stainless steel tanks, and few if any are made the old traditional way that Muga does it,” he says. “The production costs are much higher than other rosés yet the price is about the same.”

“The barrel fermentation and malolactic fermentation in the wine making process gives the wine body and depth of flavor that is not immediately evident in the pale color,” Gandolf says.

Rosé vintners recommend its unique complexities are best displayed by taking it out of the refrigerator about 20 minutes before it will be served so it will pour at between 50 and 60 degrees – ideally at 55 degrees. Just remember: cooler than a red wine but warmer than a white.

So whether serving with complex bouillabaisse or spicy Asian cuisine (think sushi!), the proud winemakers of Muga Rioja Rosé say it is definitely a wine for an entire meal.

Italy

Under the Tuscan sun, the Sangiovese grapes known for their excellence from the hills of the family-owned Carpineto Winery make up 100 percent of its delightful Carpineto Dogajolo Rosé, a refreshing pop of color that swirls in shades of peony and carnation pinks when the wine glass is held up to sunlight.

Carpineto Dogajolo Rosé's delicateness brings aromatic hints of strawberry as well as violets and rose petals – floral characteristics that make this medium-body rosé unique, according to Antonio M. Zaccheo Jr., whose father is a co-founder of the world-famous winery.

“It has the tannin to stand up to fresh seafood, and at 12.5 percent alcohol. It's a very light and refreshing drink,” Zaccheo says. “It has just the right acidity.”

Grown in calcareous clay and sandstone soil under the Carpinetos' strict sustainable farming methods, the grapes are hand-harvested in September then fermented in stainless steel vats in Carpineto's new carbon-neutral facility.

The result: bright fruity flavors of crisp red apple, currants, and a hint of sour cherry with a very clean finish.

Zaccheo attributes the world-wide food movement to seasonal, local sourcing as one of the reasons rosé wine is rising in popularity.

“This is genuine food, and to go with it, you need a wine that is genuine,” he says.

For those who favor the tastes of Tuscany, he said, Carpineto Dogajolo Rosé also pairs well with antipasto platters of cured meats and mild cheese, caprese salads (fresh tomato and fresh mozzarella with hand-picked basil, salt and olive oil) and even a simple dish of a thinly sliced prosciutto di parma, a dry-cured, uncooked ham.

“In North America, it's also excellent with fish tacos,” he says with a chuckle.

USA

The cool climate of western Oregon is definitely vital to making the fresh, bright Acrobat Rosé by the renowned King Estate Winery, based in Eugene.

World of Wine

According to winemaker Spencer Spetnagel, what makes Acrobat Rosé unique is the combination of cabernet sauvignon, merlot and syrah grapes that go into creating it. This same fruit is used in the organic winery's multiple, award-winning lines of pinot noirs and pinot gris, but are harvested specifically during the growing season when it will have "a little less sugar and a little less acid than pinot noir," for Acrobat Rosé.

The grapes are cold soaked for 72 hours before being saignée and pressed. The juice is bled off to give the rosé its cheery, bright color. The wine is fermented in 100 percent stainless steel, temperature controlled tanks with cultured yeasts. Aging takes place over 2 months in stainless steel, and then a minimum of three months in the bottle, Spetnagel said.

The 2015 vintage has aromas of fresh apricot, wild strawberries, ripe mango and a smooth start filled with ripe fruit. Then as the wine continues, tropical fruits and citrus mingle with a fresh minerality to deliver a lengthy, lovely finish.

"Acrobat is nice and light, stylistically similar to red wine but without the tannins. Just as Americans continue to learn about rosés, I'm learning every day and am retraining my palate for delicate notes," Spetnagel says with warm laugh.

Thus, a rosé wine is not the same as the rosé wine next to it on the shelf. Each brand glistens with the deep expertise of its region of origin, the excellence of winemakers passionate about creating a perfect release and the joy of consumers who can sample and savor a new bottle every weekend of the summer – and beyond. 🍷

The Wine Enthusiast

Enthusiast:
Crystal S. Seeley,
Director of Sales Operations, Holloway Motor Cars and Partner at Holloway Fiat

Selected Wine:
Commanderie de la
Bargemone Rosé 2015

Avid runner Crystal Seeley had returned from a long training session earlier in the day, when she thought it would be a good time for a glass of wine. She remembered she had a bottle of rosé waiting to be opened. There was just one problem: she never really enjoyed rosés, and wasn't sure if the wine was the right choice.

Spoiler alert: It was.

"I tried to go into it with an open mind," Seeley says of the Commanderie de la Bargemone Rosé 2015. "And this wine exceeded my expectations."

Her willingness to challenge steadfast tastes is another facet to the fascinating Charleston, South Carolina, transplant. She began work with Holloway Motor Cars in 1997, loves running (she'll pace and crew for her sister in a 100-mile ultramarathon near Seattle this summer – "I come from a line of pretty extraordinary women," she says) and spent time living in Europe with her husband, former professional hockey player and current Manchester Monarchs head coach and general manager, Richard Seeley. While she had developed an appreciation for wine by the time the couple decamped for Vienna, Austria, several years ago to follow Richard's hockey career, it's there she discovered even more wines of note.

"We found wine in amazing places," she says. "We were in Italy all the time, Austria, Slovenia, Croatia, and we always indulged in what was local. I'd write things down and circle back and do research. It was fun, and that way I could better articulate what I liked in a wine."

Through the years and through her evolution as a wine enthusiast, there was one bottle that stands out in her memory. "It was a bottle of Opus One," Seeley says. "A group of us were at a casino in Las Vegas, and people were in awe of this bottle of Opus One. We cracked it open in a suite and I thought, 'wow, this is pretty amazing.' I kind of got it. I also knew I probably wasn't going to get it again. It was mythical. I knew it was really special, complex and interesting."

Seeley recently sampled the Commanderie de la Bargemone Rosé 2015. Bargemone is one of the foremost estates of the Coteaux d'Aix appellation of Provence, a renowned producer of dry rosé – which is great, if you tend to enjoy rosé.

"I'm not usually a rosé fan," Seeley says. "I have friends who travel for work extensively, and they have a favorite rosé that they brought on our boat a few years ago. I wouldn't even taste it."

Seeley said her tastes tend to lean toward stronger, bolder flavors.

"When I was carrying my son, I took a long break from wine," she says. "Now I've returned to it. Before, I was a Cabernet drinker – the bigger the better. That's changed where now I'll venture into Pinot Noir and whites. Ironically, the wine I like the least, normally, is rosé. So I thought with this bottle, maybe it's a rosé I can appreciate."

It was. This rosé offers classic notes of wild strawberries and red currants with light floral character.

"I have to say, I enjoyed this one," she says. "It had a pale color – beautiful. It had just a little tinge of rose to it, just enough one might forget it was a Rosé."

Seeley brought it to a lake house up north, and, though it was cold, it was sunny. The avid runner settled into a waterfront patio, opened the bottle and kept an open mind.

"The first sip, I thought it was kind of different – it wouldn't be my first choice," she said. "But by the second sip, it started to remind me of a Sauvignon Blanc, and I knew I wanted to give it a chance. It was like a fruitier, a bit more crisp Sauvignon Blanc. I could taste pomegranate, almost, some grapefruit, and I could see how it would be really refreshing to sit back and have on a hot day."

She had it again the next night, this time with a frittata with asparagus and goat cheese.

"For this particular bottle, which was beautiful to look at, I must say, it was very reasonably priced, and I will buy this and keep this," Seeley says.

"We do a lot of entertaining up north, out on the water, and I think people will really enjoy it."

"A lot of Chardonnays are a little too buttery, too rich for some palates. For people who may be new to wine, even, I think they would appreciate this. It would be awesome with tapas or summer type fare – a meal of salmon or cheese and crackers with some fruit. Things like that."

The Commanderie de la Bargemone Rosé made a statement, she says. In a word, the wine said "summer."

"Quite frankly, it's pretty approachable," she says. "What I preach about wine is that you don't have to be afraid of it. You don't have to spend a lot of money for a good bottle of wine, and this one really hit that mark." 🍷

“It’s Fun to Make Vodka”

Tito’s Handmade Vodka Founder Reflects on Friends, Fun and Vodka

Ask Bert “Tito” Beveridge about what makes great vodka, and you’ll come away believing that it doesn’t have to drip from a still manned by Cossacks in the heart of the Russian wilderness.

In fact, a Texan in a cowboy hat and a pair of dusty boots will do just fine.

Beveridge is the owner and master distiller of Tito’s Handmade Vodka – an Austin, Texas-crafted spirit whose story is as tasty as its vodka. A San Antonio native, Tito (a shortened version of the nickname “Bertito,” and yes, his given surname is actually Beveridge) studied geology and geophysics at the University of Texas. After college, he went to work in the oil fields, where he began experimenting with creating various fruit-infused concoctions.

“I started making flavored vodkas for my friends as Christmas presents,” Beveridge says while strolling through the backyard of his Texas home. “I’d get a liter of really bad vodka – cheap, store-bought vodka, because if you’re going to put habaneros in it, who cares? I gave away a case of that.”

The tasty mixes became the talk of his friends – some of whom surprised unsuspecting visitors with the molten habanero mixture – so he continued to create inventive spirit combinations. Around that time, he started to discover what he really wanted to do with his life. “I saw a guy on TV who said that, if you wanted to find your passion, you take a sheet of paper and draw a line down the middle,” he says. “On the left side make a list of what you love to do, and on the right side make a list of what you’re good at – and then you wrap a job around that.”

The vision came to him as clear as the liquid inside his now sought-after bottles: his future was in spirits.

“After I did that exercise with a few beers in my belly, I came up with the idea to make regular-flavored vodka,” Beveridge laughs.

But first, he had to make it all legal. It seems that Texas gets a little prickly when it comes to handing out distillery permits – there were none when Beveridge formulated his business plan. Yet the crafty entrepreneur studied the laws, took on the statutes and came away with the state’s blessing.

With that hurdle out of the way, the would-be vodka producer set to work. His original still was cobbled together from two Dr. Pepper kegs and a turkey frying tub.

“Some of the guys I worked with in the oil fields used to build stills,” he says. “So I went and figured it out. I built our stills and filters and everything from scratch. I was broke when I started – I didn’t have any money, so I ‘MacGyvered’ it into existence.”

It took some effort, nineteen maxed-out credit cards and a belief in what he was doing, but Beveridge stuck to his plan to create a vodka with specific characteristics, “clean, smooth but still with a lot of body,” and things began to turn for the better.

“My whole idea was to make it really good and really smooth so an average person would go, ‘Wow, this is different. Really good.’

“And it wouldn’t matter if I didn’t have a big advertising budget. My granddad always said people are smarter than you give them credit for.

BY BILL BURKE

I always trusted my granddad and it all worked out.” This, despite the fact that Texas wasn’t necessarily known for its vodka production at the time.

“The first thing everybody used to say was, ‘why aren’t you selling whiskey?’” he says. “Then they’d go, ‘why not tequila?’ With the name ‘Tito,’ everybody thinks I’m an old Mexican guy, so why not tequila? Well, vodka is the cleanest spirit. Nobody thought vodka should come out of Texas. Now, 21 years later, Texas has a great reputation for vodka.”

Conversation with Beveridge ranges from the hysterical to the thoughtful. Getting pulled into the Tito-sphere-of-influence whips the listener through topics such as his love for dogs and down unexpected alleys that reveal this multi-talented entrepreneur as a playwright and musician. But, first and foremost, he has built a wildly successful business built on a top-notch vodka. In 1997, Beveridge established Fifth Generation, Inc., and his Mockingbird Distillery. That first year, 1,000 cases of vodka were produced. Less than ten years later, that number grew to 160,000 cases, and now production has eclipsed that. It seemed that the little Austin distillery had caught the attention of the spirits world.

Things began to blow up in 2001, when Tito’s Handmade Vodka unanimously won the Double Gold Medal for vodka at the San Francisco World Spirits Competition – besting 71 other high-priced vodkas. Later that same year, it was awarded a four-star ranking from “Spirit Journal,” (it won four stars again in 2007). Of course, that growing success meant expansion: Where there was one pot still, there are now 10; where there was one bottling line, there are now four. But it all emanates from deep in the heart of the Lone Star State, and it's all 100 percent American made.

Tito's is crafted from American-sourced yellow corn, instead of the sunbaked acres of Texas land about 15 miles southeast of Austin. Production has ramped up considerably over the years, yet the vodka is the same Tito's that Beveridge first made in the

Giving Back: Philanthropy a Large Part of Tito's Plan

Spend any time around the Tito's Handmade Vodka distillery, and you'll notice something unique to this Austin-based production facility – every day is “bring your dog to work” day.

An important element in the success of Tito's is its approach to philanthropy, and one of the things close to Tito's heart is caring for animals in need. It all started years ago when he began feeding his own dog near the edge of the property his distillery was founded on. Other dogs – ranch dogs and strays – would wander by and help themselves to the food and water. He saw animals in need and set about helping to make their lives better. It's since become a vital part of the day-to-day life at the distillery.

Employees at Tito's bring their dogs to work, where they can romp around in a pen near the original still shack, or lounge in offices where canine companions can run free. This commitment to helping pets led to the creation of vodkafordogpeople.com, and involvement in Emancipet, which provides affordable spay and neuter services and veterinarian care for all pet owners.

Tito's was awarded Trupanion's first-ever Pet Friendly Seal of Approval award in 2013 and was named one of BARK's Best Places to Work in a directory of dog-friendly companies.

Online: Vodkafordogpeople.com • Emancipet.org more commonly used wheat or potatoes – imparting a mildly sweet aftertaste; it's distilled six times (“any more robs the taste – any less and there are impurities”); and it's certified gluten-free. It all goes into making what Beveridge considers a great vodka.

“You have to start off with how you feel the next morning when you wake up,” he says. “From there, I would say it's a vodka that's got a roundness to it. You can drink it as a martini, and it also goes great with sparkling mineral water and a piece of citrus. I like the stuff you can sit there and sip out of the bottle and go, ‘Man, that's smooth.’” cobbled-together stills years ago. And while the shelves may be stacked with flavors ranging from fruity to cotton candy, Tito's – as Beveridge explains – is just Tito's. Which is to say, the best he can make it.

The distillery itself sits on 26

“I try to do one thing and do it really well, so I put my energy into making the very best vodka out there,” he says. “But, if you like flavors in your vodka, I really encourage you to make them yourself at home or in your bar. There's nothing better than infusing really fresh local ingredients to make your own custom blend, and it's really easy.”

It's not just talk. A video on the company's web site (titosvodka.com/infusions) shows exactly how it's done.

And, of course, there's the bottle: understated, if not exactly flashy. There's a reason for it. If Tito's came in a frosted, colored or otherwise fancified bottle, it would cost more. As Beveridge says, “I would rather put my money into the actual product rather than have people pay more for the bottle.”

It's all added up to a brand with a loyal following, built primarily through its reputation. Tito's best sales tool, Beveridge says, is word of mouth.

“For 10 years, it was all uphill,” he says. “And for the last 11 years, it's been easy. It's the greatest business in the world – the hospitality business, liquor stores, hotels – there are a lot of good people.”

It's a sentiment he echoed when he was awarded the Sidney Frank Award at the Wine and Spirits Wholesalers of America convention in Las Vegas recently – something he cites as one of the proudest moments in his distilling career. In an emotional speech, Beveridge started out in his typical informal manner (“Well wow, that's really cool,”) and then revealed what the recognition meant to him.

“I had this vision that, if I got to the point where if I had enough money to give back to the community, that I would do that, and it's been awesome. It's been a lot of fun. I met a lot of people, had the opportunity to change some lives and it's really cool when you take something like alcohol, tobacco or firearms and you end up doing something that involves a lot of love and goodness and wellness. I just have to say that this industry is by far the greatest way to spend your life – in the hospitality industry. I've made more friends, had more fun, made a ton of bread, drank a lot of vodka.”

It can be helpful to take a step back and look at the big picture when starting a new project.

For Ron Shute, store manager of the newly-opened New Hampshire Liquor and Wine Outlet in New Hampton, that perspective arrived at a sidewalk café in Paris.

“We were in an open-air café,” Shute says. “We sat down, opened a bottle of Bordeaux, and soaked in the culture.”

Shute and his wife, Brittany, took the trip to Paris as a spur-of-the-moment adventure. With the new store due to open soon, the couple’s time was limited. Within two weeks of coming up with the idea, they were Seine-side, contemplating what was to come.

It would be one of the last placid moments the 35-year-old would have for several weeks. Upon his return, Shute set about helping to open the state’s newest Outlet in New Hampton.

“It was a blur,” Shute says of the buildup to the grand opening. “It was pretty amazing. In the beginning we didn’t know what the shelf setups would look like, what codes we were going to carry, what wines we were going to carry – to see it all come to life was amazing.

“Setting up and opening a new store seemed like a daunting task until you see everyone come together to help. It was certainly a humbling experience to see just how many people took time away from their jobs to make the drive to New Hampton. From my supervisor, Gary Smith, and his counterparts, to store managers and staff from all over the state, and all of our broker partners. I am truly grateful and still in awe of how quickly we were able to go from empty shelves to an open store.”

The now open New Hampton store is a bright, inviting space that’s larger than the area’s previous location, giving the team the opportunity to fulfill nearly any requests customers may have. Shute cites the expanded selection as one of the best benefits of the new location, which is 12,000 square feet with five registers at the front.

“It’s a great experience to be a part of this organization’s achievements in blending state of the art processes while retaining the traditional New England values of welcoming personal service and a quality experience,” Shute says.

And it’s not just talk. Alongside the store’s new offerings, making selection easier, are a few personal touches that help the new location retain a truly local feel. Full-timer Anthony Brown has instituted a drink board at the front of the store, where he highlights seasonal drink recipes and even provides illustrations.

“I wouldn’t trade him for anything,” Shute says. “Paul is great.”

Shute helped assemble the team now in place, which includes nine part-timers, each of whom brings a unique skill or specialty: Eileen Zewski has an encyclopedic knowledge of wines and Dan Bean is known for his legendary margaritas; Susan Snell – a one-time bartender – can help customers with any drink recipe; Sophie Paradise has a growing knowledge of bourbons; Cait Greene favors Rieslings while Joe Blanchard will praise Silver Oak Cabernet. Patty Happnie, Sara Blay and Anita Sanville round out the team.

“We were looking for people who are great at customer service,” Shute says. “People with bright, cheery personalities.”

One visit to the New Hampton Outlet will reveal: mission accomplished. 🍷

CLYDE MAY NOT YOUR TYPICAL MOONSHINER

Clyde May lived outside the law. He was a moonshiner by trade but a craftsman by heart. Using copper stills, fresh Alabama spring water and the finest local grains, he vowed to make the best darn whiskey Alabama had ever tasted. While others sold their moonshine straight, he aged small batches in charred oak barrels and experimented until he created his own unique finish - Alabama Style.

It's amazing purity, aroma and flavor is the result of careful small batch production. Chamucos are believed to be dark, shadowy, creatures who appear in dreams and only visit briefly at night. Chamucos play both-ersome, frightening and mischievous acts. They have a playful but secretive nature and they thrive on frightening with clever but mostly harmless pranks.

Our slogan, "Si amaneca nos vamos" means, If dawn comes, we will leave.

BLACK SPICED
RUM

The Kraken Rum is named for a sea beast of myth and legend, said to have brought down the world's largest shipment of Caribbean rum.

Like the beast that bears its name,
THE KRAKEN BLACK SPICED RUM
IS DARK, STRONG AND MYSTERIOUS

TASTE THE KRAKEN

LIKE THE INK USED BY THE BEAST TO COVER ITS PREY, THE KRAKEN RUM IS POWERFUL, BLACK, AND SMOOTH. DISTILLED IN THE CARIBBEAN FROM NATURALLY SWEET MOLASSES, THE RUM IS THEN BLENDED WITH SECRET SPICES. NOTES OF VANILLA, CINNAMON, CITRUS, ALLSPICE, CLOVES, NUTMEG, PEPPERCORN, AND ALSO DANGER. LOTS OF DANGER.

MAESTRO DOBEL DIAMANTE

Made with 100% Pure Agave, this exceptional tequila is unique in its category; it has been formulated using a mixture of Extra-Añejo, Añejo and Reposado tequilas. Despite classification as Reposado, it is unlike any other in its class. Maestro Dobel Diamante is completely clear.

It is the first multi-aged tequila aged using wood barrels that come from the Balkan Region of Eastern Europe. After extensive research into countless types of barrels, these barrels were chosen specifically for the unique flavors and aromas they impart. Our aim is to offer a smooth, balanced tequila created using 100% natural processes that give it a soft, yet robust agave flavor enhanced through notes of wood. The result is a pleasant contrast in this crystal clear tequila.

Djinn Produces Unique Spirits With Character

Andy Harthcock describes himself and his wife, Cindy, as the co-owners and distillers of Djinn Spirits – a Nashua craft distiller that produces unique gin, whiskey, and liqueur. But it wouldn't be at all inaccurate to add "mad scientist" to their job titles.

Born and raised in Mississippi, the Harthcocks moved north so Andy could take a position as a Merrimack defense contractor some years ago. While his days were spent fulfilling his program manager duties, Andy's entrepreneurial imagination began casting about for a creative outlet. It was then that Cindy offered up an intriguing option.

"My wife made a stray comment," Andy says. "She said, 'Distilling would be fun.' It struck a chord with me, so I started researching it. The more I looked into it, the more interesting it seemed. It's a mixture of science, which is my background, and art – which I have an interest in from a culinary standpoint."

First, the duo needed to find a location that met some very specific requirements. "Distilleries need really high ceilings to fit the still in," Harthcock says. "And we wanted to be as close as possible to heavily trafficked areas where people might find it convenient to stop in."

The would-be distillers came across just such a spot on Townsend West. The plan was put into motion, and work started on the facility. Coincidentally, that's when some "mad science" started happening.

"Our still is classified as a hybrid pot/column, which I designed myself," he says. "I based it on studying and talking to other distillers – I needed to be able to produce both gin and whiskey, which historically use two different types of stills."

One of the first products to come from Djinn was its gin. One sip of this locally-crafted, award-winning spirit will put any thoughts of a staid, London Dry-style to rest. Djinn's gin is a bold expression of the traditional spirit.

"We created a gin that has a big flavor," Harthcock says. "To call it gin, you have to start with juniper, but, once that's in, you can have fun playing with any number of botanicals you want to use."

While Andy does the technical work, Cindy is responsible for flavor development, so this is where Cindy got busy.

"She approached it as a culinary exercise in balancing out the strong flavor of juniper," he says. "We added floral notes from hibiscus, citrus notes from lemon and grapefruit, spicy notes from cardamom and Grains of Paradise, and a very small amount of licorice root, which provides a subtle uplift through the finish. It's a much bigger flavor than the standard London Dry gin." Yet that big flavor still sits perfectly in a martini or a classic gin and tonic ("which requires the gin to have a flavor that stands on its own," Harthcock says). Djinn is also working up a more traditional gin that will be available later this summer.

Djinn's best-selling spirit is its Krupnik – a spiced honey liqueur produced from a 500 year-old recipe first crafted by Lithuanian monks.

"It's very popular in Poland, where each family has its own particular recipe for it," Harthcock says. "But basically, it's a mixture of honey, high-proof alcohol, and spices." The distillers use a mixture of cinnamon, nutmeg, fresh ginger, black peppercorns, and vanilla beans.

"It's an interesting, three-way balancing act of the honey, the alcohol heat and the spice heat," he says.

Djinn ages its Krupnik in small, charred oak barrels, which allows the flavors to blend together. The added exposure to the charcoal provides a little extra filtration, polishing it nicely.

The duo have also created three distinct whiskeys – all under the Beat 3 label, which is a reference to the Harthcock's southern upbringing and the peculiarities when it came to alcohol production there.

"I didn't have any moonshiners in my family – or at least nobody 'fessed up to it," he says, laughing. "My wife grew up in Lawrence County. Now, the counties in Mississippi are divided into 'Beats', which are basically voting districts. Lawrence County was dry, but, even as a child, she knew that they made moonshine in Beat 3. Everybody knew it."

Thus the name that would adorn the bottles of Djinn's whiskeys was chosen. The two produce a white whiskey – using a charcoal filtering process similar to the "Lincoln County" process used in Tennessee whiskeys. The white whiskey is then aged in charred American White Oak barrels to make their mid-grade Reserve Whiskey, and their premium Single Malt Whiskey, which is aged for one year on new charred barrels for an intense caramel flavor. The aging process adds robust flavors and character to the whiskey, Harthcock says.

"I bottle it at 50 percent alcohol by volume (100 proof) because some like it a little on the hot side," Harthcock says. "But you can add just a little water or serve it over an ice cube, because as the percentage of alcohol goes down, a good whiskey will release more aromatics and flavor."

"I'll stack our Single Malt up against any of the others in the category."

The distillery is open for tours on weekends from noon until 5 p.m. Curious visitors can find out more at www.djinnspirits.com or register for a tour at info@djinnspirits.com. 🍷

Happy Campers

Gather close around the campfire, take a deep breath of fresh air, and let stress and worries of the hectic work week slip away. With a little planning, camping can be effortless and a fabulous way to get away from it all. Here are a few suggestions for getting started.

After hours of driving to your destination, what could be better than settling down in the evening with a refreshing made-ahead drink that's ready to go straight from your cooler? Try these Peach Coolers that you will marinate for a couple of days before the getaway. They'll be perfect by the time you arrive. ☒

Mason Jar Peach Coolers Makes 4

- 4 small Mason jars with lids
- 4 maraschino cherries
- 4 teaspoons sugar
- 2 large ripe peaches, peeled, pitted, and thinly sliced
- 2 cups peach nectar
- 1½ cups peach-flavored vodka
- 1 cup bourbon
- 1 cup club soda

Add one cherry and one teaspoon of sugar to each jar. Muddle and break up with a wooden spoon. Divide the peaches between the Mason jars. Pour the liquid ingredients into a big pitcher, mix well, then pour into the Mason jars. Screw on caps tightly, shake to mix, then refrigerate jars for two days before packing to take camping. Snuggle them into your chilled cooler for the trip.

Pairing: These go great with grilled burgers topped with peach salsa and thinly sliced red onion.

My Camping Mojitos Makes 4

- ¼ cup sugar
- 4 limes, quartered
- 16 mint leaves, plus 4 for garnish
- 2 cups white rum
- 2 cups club soda

To be prepared before leaving on your trip: Put the sugar in the bowl of a food processor. Squeeze in the limes. Add the mint leaves and process for 30 seconds. Place in an airtight container and keep refrigerated. When you are ready to make the cocktail: Scoop the sugar/lime/mint leaves mixture into a pitcher. Pour in the rum and club soda, stir to mix well, and pour into glasses filled with ice cubes.

Pairing: Serve with grilled shrimp. Make a marinade with the juice from 2 limes, 2 tablespoons olive oil, 1 finely chopped clove of garlic, ¼ teaspoon salt, and 3 tablespoons finely chopped cilantro. Toss raw shrimp in this and let marinate for 20 minutes. Thread shrimp on skewers and cook on the grill until just pink.

Iced Coffee and Kahlua Makes 4

- Ice cubes
- 4 8-ounce containers ready-to-serve coffee mocha drinks
- 4 ounces Kahlua
- 4 ounces vodka
- 1 can real whipped cream

Place ice cubes in each glass, then pour one container of coffee mocha into each glass. Stir or float 2 ounces of Kahlua into each. Top with a swirl of whipped cream.

Pairing: Serve up s'mores. Toast marshmallows over campfire until dark brown on the outside. Place them on graham crackers, add a thin milk chocolate bar over the top of the marshmallows while they are still hot, and top with another graham cracker.
