February 16th, 2022 Meeting Minutes

The Vermont Fish and Wildlife Board held a meeting beginning at 5:00 pm on Wednesday, February 16, 2022, National Life Conference Room in Montpelier. A recording of the meeting can be made available by the Department of Fish and Wildlife upon request.

Board Members Present: Tim Biebel (Board Chair); Brian Bailey; Michael Bancroft; Wendy Butler; Michael Kolsun; Bryan McCarthy; David Robillard; Martin Van Buren; David Fielding Jr; Jamie Dragon; and Brad Ferland. Board Members present virtually: David Deen; Nancy Mathews; and Jay Sweeny.

Department Staff Present: Commissioner, Christopher Herrick; Wildlife Director, Mark Scott; Lt. Sean Fowler; David Sausville, Wildlife Species Program Manager and Waterfowl Project Leader; Nick Fortin, Deer Project Leader; Director of Outreach, Alison Thomas; Staff Assistant, Charlee Drury. Staff present virtually: Col. Jason Batchelder, Law Enforcement Director; Dr. Katy Gieder, Biometrician and Research Manager; and Catherine Gjessing, General Counsel.

Members of the Public (in person): Dennis Mewes, Dummerston VT; Dennis Jensen, Castleton VT; Justin Lindholm, Mendon VT; Joey Davis, Stowe VT; and Tom Decker, St. Johnsbury VT.

Members of the Public (virtual): Mark Green, John Gonter, Jane Tenney, Ann Jameson, Guest Attendee 1, Guest Attendee 2.

Members of the Public Call-in: 1 call in number, no name attached.

Agenda Items:

- 1) Approval of Previous Meeting Minutes,
 - June 16, 2021
- 2) Public Comments (Limited to 2 minutes per speaker)
 - Tom Decker
 - Justin Lindholm
 - Ann Jameson
- 3) Brief Overview of 2021 Deer Hunting Season
 - Mark Scott and Nick Fortin
- 4) Moose Season Recommendation – Preliminary Approval
 - Mark Scott and Nick Fortin
- 5) 2022 Migratory Game Bird Season Preview – Preliminary Approval
 - Mark Scott and David Sausville
- 5) Petition Consideration – Ban Leg Hold Trapping
- 6) Commissioner’s Update
- 7) Roundtable Discussion

The meeting was called to order at 5:01 PM

Approval of Previous Meeting Minutes

Motion: Brian Bailey moved to approve the minutes from June 16, 2021 meeting. Brad Ferland seconded the motion.

Discussion: None.

Vote: 10 yes, 4 abstained vote to approve the previous meeting minutes as amended: Jamie Dragon, David Fielding, Nancy Mathews and David Deen abstained from voting as they were not present at June 16, 2021 meeting.

Public Comments (2 minutes per speaker)

Tom Decker (in person)- Spoke related to the various petitions on trapping that were submitted and open for comment during the June 2021 board meeting. Tom intended to speak last June to the Board but missed the public comment time. Tom defended the Science behind BMP's and various studies related to them as he is one of the main authors of these reports. Tom submitted a letter to the board regarding this (attached).

Justin Lindholm (in person)- Concerned about a potential issue in Rutland County regarding the use of herbicides to control Milfoil in Lake Bomoseen.

Ann Jameson (virtual)- Marshfield VT. Wildlife Advocacy Coordinator, Green Mountain Animal Defenders. Culture for trapping in VT is long overdue for change. Fur has little value. Furbearers trapped feed on small mammals that carry ticks, causing Lyme disease.

Brief Overview of 2021 Deer Hunting Season

Mark Scott introduced Deer Project Leader Nick Fortin and Big Game Supervisor David Sausville. Nick gave a brief overview of 2021 Deer Hunting Season. He referenced season totals, maps, and documents to review. Mark asked the board to email him with any questions or comments for Department to address in preparing the 2022 deer hunting season hunting proposal. Overview of results from 2021 Deer Season Report was handed out (attached). He noted that the harvest was down from 2020.

2022 Moose Season Recommendation

Director Mark Scott introduced the Department's recommendation for the 2022 Moose hunting season. Director Scott noted that the Department's new Wildlife Species Management Program Manager is David Sausville and the lead of the Big Game Team. The recommendation that the Department is going to show tonight originated within the Big Game Team. The proposal has been reviewed and approved by Commissioner Herrick, Director Scott, and the Warden Service ahead of tonight's meeting. Mark then introduced Moose Project Leader Nick Fortin and Research Manager Dr. Katy Gieder. Nick gave a power point presentation on 2022 moose hunting season recommendations, which mirror 2021 management season.

Nick includes Moose population objectives and information regarding WMU E, recommendation is referencing WMU E only and not any other part of VT. WMU E is part of Core Moose Range in New England.

Motions and Vote Outcomes: Martin Van Buren makes motion to approve the recommendation as presented by the Department. Jay Sweeney seconds motion. Board unanimously accepts the proposal as is to receive public comment.

2022 Migratory Game Bird Season Preview – Preliminary Approval

Wildlife Division Director Mark Scott described to the board that the presentation at this meeting is a preview of the proposal that the department wants to put out to the hunting community. Director Scott added that the season proposal covers a complex set of species and parameters and applauded the work that Sausville has done since taking on the project in 2013. The Department is looking for input from the Board Members and an informal straw vote to show approval. David Sausville presented on the Department's proposed plan for the upcoming 2022 migratory game bird seasons. Sausville explained to the Board that Vermont is part of the Atlantic Flyway, a group of 17 states and 3 provincial regions of Canada that runs from Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island down to Georgia. This group of states and provinces works cooperatively to establish annual seasons for migratory game birds. Vermont has three zones for waterfowl hunting: the Lake Champlain Zone, the Interior Zone, and the Connecticut River Zone. New Hampshire sets regulations for the Connecticut River Zone, Vermont and New York Biologist work together to prepare recommendations for the Lake Champlain Zone. Sausville presented the Department's 2022 season proposal which is attached to these minutes. Of note: • Two major surveys, the Eastern Survey area and the Northeast Pair Plot survey were not able to be conducted this year because of COVID, primarily concerns related to bringing the disease to the native peoples of northern Quebec and the Arctic. The only habitat condition data available was via satellite imagery. This imagery indicated lower reproduction rates for some of the arctic nesting birds.

Vote: The Board held a straw vote on each section of the proposal and approved all of sections with a unanimous vote. The Board will vote on April 6 to approve the final the 2022 migratory bird hunting seasons and bag limits.

Motions and Vote Outcomes: Jay Sweeney makes motion to approve Michael Bancroft seconds motion to accept recommendation as presented by the department. Board unanimously approves.

Petition Consideration – Ban Leg Hold Trapping

Petitioner: Greater Good, Seattle, Washington.

Mark Scott explains the work that has been done behind this already. Asks the board if they want more information of studies already done. Tim asks board if they have questions, Brian asks if we are obligated to reply to this if a petitioner isn't present.

Catherine suggested to take some action whether it is to accept, table or deny it. The language on replying to a petition is within 30 days of receiving request, the (agency/board) shall initiate rule making proceedings for denial or tabling and give reasonings to petitioner in writing. Catherine says this is not a detailed petition. She can email the petitioners with the board decision and include studies already done.

Motions and Vote Outcomes: Wendy Butler makes motion to deny the petition, Marin Van Buren seconded the motion. 13 vote yes and Nancy Mathews votes no.

Tim informs that we will move forward to deny the petition. Catherine will respond to petitioner with information on denial and previous work done recently on this topic.

Commissioner's Update

Commissioner Herrick updates the board on Bills that are in front of the state house at this time.

Mr. Tim Biebel,
Chair, Vermont Fish and Wildlife Board

Dear Mr. Biebel,

I am writing to you as a member of the public related to Petitions and corresponding material that were submitted to the Vermont Fish and Wildlife Board.

- Fisher Petition submitted by Brenna Galdenzi, POW President and Co-founder, Protect Our Wildlife.
- River Otter Petition submitted by Robert Mullen, Vermont Wildlife Coalition.
- Closure of Vermont Trapping Seasons submitted by Michael Hass, David Kelley, Jennifer Lovett, James White, Vincent Illuzzi, Peggy Larson and Walter Medwid.

I am a Vermont resident and a Certified Wildlife Biologist by training and occupation for over twenty-five years. I write to you out of concern related to citations and conclusions in the Petitions that were submitted to the Board. I am co-author on three references cited in these Petitions related to Trapping and the Management of Furbearers, The North American Model of Wildlife Conservation, and Best Management Practices for Trapping in the United States.

Specifically, these documents are:

The North American Model of Wildlife Conservation, TWS Technical Review 12-04 , The Wildlife Society and Boone and Crockett Club. 2012. Organ, J.F., V. Geist, S.P. Mahoney, S. Williams, P.R. Krausman, G.R. Batcheller, T.A. Decker, R. Carmichael, P. Nanjappa, R. Regan, R.A. Medellin, R. Cantu, R.E. McCabe, S. Craven, G.M. Vecellio, and D.J. Decker. 2012. The North American Model of Wildlife Conservation. The Wildlife Society Technical Review 12-04. The Wildlife Society, Bethesda, Maryland, USA.

Best Management Practices for Trapping Furbearers in the United States: White, H. B., G. Batcheller, E. K. Boggess, C. L. Brown, J. W. Butfiloski, T. A. Decker, J. D. Erb,, M. W. Fall, D. A. Trapping and Furbearer Management in North American Wildlife Conservation. Organ, J. F., T.A. Decker, S. Langlois, and P. G. Mirick. 2015. The Northeast Furbearer Resources Technical Committee, Waterbury, Vermont, USA.

All three of these published documents are very lengthy and comprehensive. My opinion is the conclusions stated by the Petitioners, in documents to the Board, related to the effects of trapping on select species, Department programs, state rules and regulations on trapping and elements of public trust and wildlife management are in fact not supported by the documents where I was co-author. In fact, these documents support regulated trapping, the welfare of wildlife, the utilization of wildlife (including commercially), and the North American Model of Wildlife Conservation related to furbearers in Vermont. The Department of Fish and Wildlife's management principles, regulatory framework, state rules and regulations related to wildlife and furbearers are aligned with tenets and principles outlined in all three of these documents.

I recognize all public programs may have their detractors who do not agree with statements or conclusions and benefits of existing programs, or scientific literature, but the manner and statements related to the citations in the Petitions related to these (e.g. furbearers and regulated trapping) are misleading and erroneous.

The misrepresentations are numerous and warrant more space than I have here to correct. I encourage Board members to review the entire documents, in the context of these issues as you contemplate these important subjects.

Respectfully,

2022 MIGRATORY GAME BIRD SEASON PREVIEW

Summary of Issues for Consideration:

The majority of Vermont's waterfowl season is driven by the federal framework for the Atlantic Flyway. Below are a few issues that must be decided for the 2022 hunting season. The Department would like the Board to consider the following:

- Hold the liberal season allowed under the federal framework related to season lengths and daily bag limits.
- For the 2022 Duck Season.
 - Open the 2022 duck season on a Saturday, October 15.
 - Interior Zone: October 15 and run through December 13.
 - Lake Champlain Zone: October 15 – Oct. 23 and Nov. 5 - Dec. 25.
 - Remove the two-bird daily bag limit on Hooded Mergansers, aggregate daily bag limit for merganser species is proposed as six.
- For the 2022 Goose Seasons
 - Open the resident Canada goose season September 1st and continue through September 25.
 - Open the migratory Canada goose season on October 15 and run through November 13.
 - Open the late resident Canada goose on December 1, 2022. End the season on January 21, 2023. Allow a five-bird daily bag limit. Within the Lake Champlain and Interior zones.
 - Opening the Snow goose season on October 1.
- Hold youth hunting weekend – September 24-25.
- Hold woodcock/snipe season: September 24- November 7.

2022 Waterfowl and Migratory Game Bird Season Proposals:

The Department makes these 2022 recommendations based on findings from the Fall 2015 Waterfowl Hunter Survey, comments received from waterfowl hunters the past six years, data collected on availability of various waterfowl species in Vermont, and frameworks provided by the USFWS. Survey responses from the 2015 survey came from waterfowl hunters with a broad background that varied greatly by age, hunting experience, educational and economic background. The Department is confident that this survey represents the variation in the entire waterfowl hunting user group in Vermont.

* The daily limit of 6 ducks may include no harlequin, and no more than 2 mallards (only 1 of which may be hens), 2 black ducks, 3 wood ducks, 1 pintail, 2 canvasbacks, 2 redheads, 2 or 1 scaup depending on dates, 3 scoters, 3 eiders, and 3 long-tailed duck.

Background On Waterfowl Season Setting and Management:

Migratory game bird managers currently base the migratory bird population estimates and recommendations on predictions derived from long-term biological information and harvest strategies instead of current year surveys. Due to the COVID-19 (SARS-CoV-2) pandemic, most migratory breeding surveys (e.g., the Breeding Waterfowl Population and Habitat Survey, Breeding Bird Survey, and others) conducted by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Canadian Wildlife Service, US Geological Survey, and State and Provincial agencies were canceled in many regions for 2020 and 2021. We therefore have no status information on any duck species as all the estimates or indices for ducks rely on these surveys. In the absence of surveys, the Service used the multi-stock population models and estimate frameworks to predict a median breeding population size. The estimates allow for a liberal season of 60 days with a 6-bird bag limit. Species specific bag limits follow their respective harvest strategies, with the majority of species bag limits being the same as last year.

Tables 4 and 5 provide background information on past migratory game bird hunting seasons. Table 4 shows the hunting seasons approved during 2021 and is provided as a reference while considering bag limits and the seasons frameworks for 2022. Appendix B provides the history, 1942-2021, of Vermont's waterfowl seasons broken down into season type, season length, dates, and bag limits. This may help one's understanding of how Vermont arrived at our current zones and season types.

Table 5 provides a historic look at waterfowl hunter participation and estimated harvest levels, Vermont waterfowl stamps sold, and the number of individuals that registered with the Harvest Information Program (HIP). HIP is a method used to generate more reliable estimates of hunting activity and number of all migratory birds harvested. The HIP program numbers include youth and adult waterfowl hunters, woodcock, and snipe hunters. Only adult waterfowl hunters, 16 years of age and older, are required to purchase the state waterfowl stamp. The Department will populate the remaining portions of the table this summer after the USFWS examines wings collected randomly from last season's hunters and harvest estimates are completed.

Vermont currently has three waterfowl zones (Figure 1):

- Lake Champlain Zone that we share with New York. Vermont sets the dates for this zone.
- Interior Zone that is entirely within Vermont.
- Connecticut River Zone that we share with New Hampshire. New Hampshire sets the dates for this zone as an extension of their inland zone.

Under Vermont's current three zones, Vermont can split any zone once to create two hunting segments. Vermont currently has sixty days to divide between the two segments in an effort to accommodate the diverse desires of the variety of Vermont waterfowl hunters. The zones were also set up to take into consideration the differences in the physiographic regions of the state and the climatic differences each has. Federal regulations allow for zone and split changes every five years. Vermont's next opportunity to adjust zone boundaries and splits is in 2025. Any changes will take effect in the 2026-2031 season and be in effect for 5-years.

2022 Migratory Game Bird Seasons:

Tables 6 and 7 provide the expected USFWS season frameworks for the 2022 duck and goose seasons, respectively, the latter including other migratory game birds as well. Potential changes from 2021 hunting seasons shown on Table 4 includes the removal of the species daily bag limit on hooded merganser from two per day to six per day and the introduction of a late resident goose season starting in December that allows a five-bird daily bag limit. The brant season and daily bag limit will be dependent on the revised harvest strategy, that uses predictions from an Integrated Population Model (IPM), in the Atlantic Brant Hunt Plan beginning with the 2021-2022 hunting season

2022 Duck Season: The 2022 duck season options allow the opportunity to utilize a 60-day season within the dates of September 24, 2022 to January 31, 2023. The allowed daily bag limit is six birds, with species specific limits listed on Table 6. Vermont may allow a possession limit of 18 ducks total. The Board may be more restrictive on the length of the season and bag limits if desired, but the Board cannot set regulations more liberal. The Department recommends taking the liberal hunting option allowed under the federal framework.

The Board has also traditionally held the youth waterfowl weekend the last weekend in September. The Department has withheld any fishing tournament permits for that weekend to reduce conflicts between anglers and youth waterfowlers. The youth weekend must be within 14 days of either end of the federal framework dates.

2022 Goose, Brant, Mergansers, Coots, Snipe, and Woodcock Seasons: Table 7 lays out the season options for geese, brant, mergansers, coots, snipe, and woodcock. The available season lengths, outside dates for the seasons, daily bag limits and possession limits are broken down by species.

We often receive requests to open the migratory Canada goose season in early October. We are not allowed to open the season on migratory Canada geese until October 10th to reduce hunting pressure on the Atlantic population that is flying through the state. Prior to 2010 we were unable to open the season until October 20th. This change came about because of efforts pursued by Vermont and some other New England states. The change in number of breeding pairs of the Atlantic Population of Canada geese is unknown for 2021. Surveys were not conducted due to Covid-19 and concerns for exposing native peoples in northern Canada to the virus from survey staff. Breeding pairs in 2019 totaled 119,500. The total number of birds has decreased from 1.35 million to 622,000 from 2003 to 2019. The overall population has seen an annual decrease of 4% per year, primarily due to low production caused by weather conditions during the nesting and hatching periods.

The Brant Hunt Plan and Harvest Strategy were revised in 2020. The revised plan uses an Integrated Population Model (IPM) to generate a prediction of the brant population. This model prediction will be used in place of the mid-winter survey estimate to determine the annual hunting season recommendation. Advantages of the IPM are that the population estimate is available in the summer, prior to the regulatory flyway meeting and federal register framework publication. In addition, estimates provided by the IPM are less variable than the MWS and will likely result in fewer changes to hunting packages over time. The model prediction for 2022 is 140,000 brant, and the harvest strategy recommends a 50-day season with a 2-bird daily bag limit, which is no change from last year.

2022 Youth Waterfowl Hunting Days: The Department and Board may select two days per duck-hunting zone, designated as “Youth Waterfowl Hunting Days,” in addition to the regular duck seasons. The days must be held outside any regular duck season on a weekend, holiday, or other non-school days when youth hunters would have the maximum opportunity to participate. The days may be held up to 14 days before or after any regular duck-season frameworks or within any split of a regular duck season, or within any other open season on migratory birds. The daily bag limits may include ducks, geese, mergansers, and coots, and would be the same as those allowed in the regular season. Flyway species and area restrictions would remain in effect.

States are allowed to use their established definition of age for youth hunters. However, youth hunters may not be 18 years of age or older. In addition, an adult at least 18 years of age must accompany the youth hunter into the field. This adult may not duck hunt but may participate in other seasons that are open on the special youth day. Youth hunters 16 years of age and older must possess a Federal Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamp (also known as Federal Duck Stamp). In 2016 Vermont changed the youth waterfowl hunters age to 17 and younger. Vermont also requires all hunters 16 years of age and older to have a state duck stamp. In some years, the end of the resident Canada goose season overlaps the youth waterfowl hunting weekend. This will occur in 2022 for the Saturday and Sunday of youth weekend if we choose September 24th and 25th as the youth days.

Special Falconry Regulations: Falconry is a permitted means of taking migratory game birds in any State meeting Federal falconry standards in 50 CFR 21.29. These States may select an extended season for taking migratory game birds in accordance with the following:
 Extended Seasons: For all hunting methods combined, the combined length of the extended season, regular season, and any special or experimental seasons must not exceed 107 days for any species or group of species in a geographical area. Each extended season may be divided into a maximum of 3 segments. Framework Dates: Seasons must fall between September 1 and March 10.

Daily Bag Limits: Falconry daily bag limits for all permitted migratory game birds must not exceed 3 birds, singly or in the aggregate, during extended falconry seasons, any special or experimental seasons, and regular hunting seasons in all States, including those that do not select an extended falconry season.

Regular Seasons: General hunting regulations, including seasons and hunting hours, apply to falconry in each State listed in 50 CFR 21.29. Regular season bag limits do not apply to falconry. The falconry bag limit is not in addition to gun limits.

Vermont has traditionally run the falconry season during any open migratory game bird season. Last year falconers had the opportunity to begin on September 1st with the resident Canada goose season and ended their season on December 31st. A three-bird daily bag limit was in effect.

In summary, the 2022 waterfowl and migratory bird hunting regulations were made based on the following information:

- Decide when to place the majority of duck hunting days by month. Most hunters prefer October to have the most waterfowl hunting opportunity.
- Determine what day of the week to open the season. Regardless of hunting zone, few (< 12%) hunters do most of their hunting on weekdays. Hunters either hunt weekends or split their time equally between weekdays and weekend hunting.
- Determine what week to recommend opening the season. Vermont hunters chose the second week in October as their preferred opening week for ducks and geese.
- Decide which zones to propose for splits and in which seasons. “Goose hunters in the Lake Champlain zone, regardless of residency, chose straight season more than split seasons. For the Interior Vermont zone, Vermont residents chose straight seasons most commonly for duck and goose seasons”.
- Decide on the length of the Lake Champlain Zone split. Vermont hunters preferred a two-week season split length if one is to be used.

History of Setting Waterfowl and Migratory Game Bird Hunting Seasons in Vermont:

In 2016 the Department began fully reviewing the migratory game bird season options with the Board without being under a very short time constraint. As part of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) of the Department of Interior’s retrospective regulatory review, they developed a schedule for migratory game bird hunting regulations that was more efficient and provided season dates much earlier than was possible under the old process. There are no longer seasons referred to as “early” (September Canada Goose, Woodcock and Snipe seasons) and “late” (migrant Canada Goose, Snow Goose, Brant, and Duck seasons) season frameworks and selections to work through. With the changes that occurred within the federal framework setting process, we now combine late and early season selections into a single process. Under the current process, USFWS will develop proposed hunting season frameworks for a given year in the fall of the prior year and finalize those frameworks a few months later. We also have a final selection deadline of April 30th instead of August, allowing us more time to announce seasons to hunters and to have the syllabus with regulations easily printed and distributed prior to the start of any migratory game bird hunting season.

In 2018 the Atlantic Flyway region implemented a Multi-Stock Adaptive Harvest Management Strategy based on a suite of four duck species that represent the population dynamics and various habitat types used by waterfowl throughout the flyway, in lieu of relying solely upon the status of eastern mallards. The four species include green-winged teal, common goldeneye, ring-necked duck, and wood ducks. These species compose more than 40% of the harvest within the flyway and supply a sufficient time series of estimates of annual abundance, harvest rates and harvest to monitor population trends. This was necessary because one species, the mallard, was driving all the seasons, which had an effect on multiple species. Within this system, species of concern such as mallard and black duck are also evaluated separately with an assessment under the adaptive harvest management strategies developed for the target species. The objectives are to sustain duck populations for all and to allow harvest where appropriate. The strategy will allow for liberal seasons on species above long-term goals, while maintaining restrictions on populations that we wish to allow growth in.

Legal Framework for Hunting Season Decision

Beginning in 2015 the Board was given authority by Legislature to set the migratory bird hunting regulations by procedure instead of rule. Part of Title 10 § 4082 reads:

(b)(1) Except as provided for under subdivision (2) of this subsection, the Board annually may adopt rules relating to the management of migratory game birds and shall follow the procedures for rulemaking contained in 3 V.S.A. chapter 25. For each such rule, the Board shall conduct a hearing but, when necessary, may schedule the hearing for a day before the terms of the rule are expected to be determined.

(2) Beginning with the 2015 hunting season, the Board may set by procedure the daily bag and possession limits of migratory game birds that may be harvested in each Waterfowl Hunting Zone annually without following the procedures for rulemaking contained in 3 V.S.A. chapter 25. The annual daily bag and possession limits of migratory game birds shall be consistent with federal requirements. Prior to setting the migratory game bird daily bag and possession limits, the Board shall provide a period of not less than 30 days of public notice and shall conduct at least two public informational hearings. The final migratory game bird daily bag and possession limits shall be enforceable by the Department under its enforcement authority in part 4 of this title.

For your information, included below is the segment of the federal register that pertains to establishing zones and splits. The information below only applies to the regular duck season.

Federal Register /Vol. 84, No. 199 /Tuesday, October 15, 2019 / Proposed Rules 55126-27

Guidelines for Duck Zones and Split Seasons

The following zone and split-season guidelines apply only for the regular duck season:

- (1) A zone is a geographic area or portion of a State, with a contiguous boundary, for which independent dates may be selected for the regular duck season.*
- (2) Consideration of changes for management-unit boundaries is not subject to the guidelines and provisions governing the use of zones and split seasons for ducks.*
- (3) Only minor (less than a county in size) boundary changes will be allowed for any grandfathered arrangement and changes are limited to the open season.*
- (4) Once a zone and split option is selected during an open season, it must remain in place for the following 5 years.*

Any State may continue the configuration used in the previous 5-year period. If changes are made, the zone and split-season configuration must conform to one of the following options:

- (1) No more than four zones with no splits,*
- (2) Split seasons (no more than 3 segments) with no zones, or*
- (3) No more than three zones with the option for 2-way (2-segment) split seasons in one, two, or all zones.*

Grandfathered Zone and Split Arrangements

When we first implemented the zone and split guidelines in 1991, several States had completed experiments with zone and split arrangements different from our original options. We offered those States a one-time opportunity to continue (“grandfather”) those arrangements, with the stipulation that only minor changes could be made to zone boundaries. If any of those States now wish to change their zone and split arrangement:

- (1) The new arrangement must conform to one of the 3 options identified above; and*
- (2) The State cannot go back to the grandfathered arrangement that it previously had in place.*

Management Units

We will continue to utilize the specific limitations previously established regarding the use of zones and split seasons in special management units, including the High Plains Mallard Management Unit. We note that the original justification and objectives established for the High Plains Mallard Management Unit provided for additional days of hunting opportunity at the end of the regular duck season. In order to maintain the integrity of the management unit, current guidelines prohibit simultaneous zoning and/or 3-way split seasons within a management unit and the remainder of the State. Removal of this limitation would allow additional proliferation of zone and split configurations and compromise the original objectives of the management unit.

Eastern Mallard Collaborative Research Project:

Atlantic Flyway states are conducting a regional study of the eastern mallard population. Vermont is participating and is deploying eight GSM/GPS units in 2022, with the hopes to place out five a year over the remaining three-year period. The project aims to annually deploy 600 GSM/GPS units on female mallards in eastern Canada and Northeast United States to answer several important questions about mallard movements, productivity, and biases within our banded sample. Specifically, the project proposes the following objectives:

- 1) Quantify and compare reproductive metrics such as reproductive attempts, full-term incubation, and brood-rearing between mallards in the northeast US and eastern Canada, and the extent to which behavior and weather explains variation in reproductive metrics.
 - a. Use proportion of stationary behavior from ACC data and daily displacement from GPS data to infer nesting attempts and success
 - b. Develop detailed time activity budgets of mallard behavior throughout the annual cycle at the sub-population scale
 - c. Explore the extent to which behavior and weather patterns (precipitation, temperature, winter severity) influence reproductive success both directly and through cross-seasonal effects
- 2) Estimate seasonal survival rates of female mallards in Eastern Canada vs. Northeastern US
- 3) Quantify and compare female mallard movements and habitat use and selection throughout the annual cycle in the northeastern US and Eastern Canada
 - a. Understand mallard movements during the pre-season banding window to better inform implications for pre-season banding data analyses.
- 4) Characterize habitat-use and selection of mallards and black ducks throughout the annual cycle.

New York and Pennsylvania have secured internal funding to support much of the project but solicited in-kind and financial support from other flyway states, federal and Canadian partners to reach marking sampling goals/distribution and fully fund the project. The project has begun deployments of GSM units during the winter of 2021-2022, coinciding with the American black duck joint venture project.

Public Input and Outreach:

The Department, in conjunction with the Board, is currently planning to hold two public hearings in 2022. Meetings are tentatively planned for the evenings of March 9th (Dead Creek WMA conference room, in person only) and 10th (Essex Junction District office conference room, in person and a virtual component), beginning at 6:30pm. During the hearings, the Department will review the season options, recommendations, current biological information, answer questions, and record public comments for the Board. The public will be encouraged to submit comments through email or a recorded phone line. Hearing times and web access address will be advertised on the Department website and through news releases.

After the Board approves final season dates and bag limits (scheduled for April 6, 2022 Board meeting), the Department will submit selections to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service by April 30th and the information will be sent to a printer for production of the 2022 syllabus of state and federal hunting regulations. The early decision deadlines will allow the Department to have the syllabus available to the public in print version by August 1st, a full month prior to any migratory bird hunting season. Approved seasons will be placed on the Department's website within days after the Board's vote.

Hosting the Summer 2022 Atlantic Flyway Council and Technical Section:

The Vermont Fish and Wildlife Department is once again planning to host the summer meeting of the Atlantic Flyway Council and Technical Section at the Double Tree by Hilton located in Burlington, from August 21-26, 2022. Originally, we were to host the meeting September 20-25, 2020, which was cancelled and held virtually due to the COVID pandemic. The Council and Technical Section consists of Biologists and Agency Directors from the 17 eastern States, Federal government, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, and 6 Canadian Provinces. The Council is responsible for the cooperative management of migratory wildlife species within the Atlantic Flyway of North America. We anticipate between 75-100 plus participants during the week. The Department will keep you updated as the agenda is developed and would like to invite you to attend selected portions or all the general sessions and committee meetings.

2022 Moose Harvest Recommendation to the

Vermont Fish and Wildlife Board

Vermont Fish and Wildlife Department

The Department’s goal is to improve the health of moose in northeastern Vermont by reducing winter tick abundance and their impacts on moose health, survival, and birth rate. The Department recommends issuing 100 moose hunting permits in WMUs E1 and E2 to reduce the moose population and thereby reduce winter tick abundance. See Table 1 below for specific permit allocations.

The current number of moose in WMU E has been sufficient to sustain winter ticks at high levels that are negatively affecting moose health and survival. Winter ticks are a host-dependent parasite with moose being the primary host responsible for major fluctuations in winter tick densities. Therefore, reduction in moose density decreases the number of available hosts which in turn decreases the number of winter ticks on the landscape. Moose population reduction will be necessary to break the winter tick cycle and improve the health of moose in this region.

Failure to reduce the moose density will perpetuate the current, unhealthy state of the moose population in WMU E for decades and would be inconsistent with the Department’s established objective of managing for a healthy moose population. Importantly, 65% of Vermont residents support maintaining a smaller moose population through hunting if it reduces the number of moose that die each year from winter ticks. Only 15% oppose this approach (Responsive Management 2019).

Although winter ticks can be found on moose throughout the northeast, they do not significantly impact moose populations across the more-peripheral parts of their range, including the rest of Vermont, due to lower moose densities that limit tick abundance.

Summary of Key Points

- The moose population is stable in most of Vermont, including WMU E (E1 & E2).
- Moose density in WMU E remains above the objective of 1 moose/square mile established in the 2020-2030 Big Game Management Plan.
 - No WMU outside of the Northeast Kingdom ever had a moose density of 1/mi².
 - Moose densities greater than 1/mi² support high numbers of winter ticks that negatively impact the health of moose.
 - Moose densities below 0.75/mi² support relatively few winter ticks that do not impact moose populations. This is the case in most of Vermont – winter ticks are present, but do not cause population level impacts.
- Results of moose research in WMU E indicate health of moose is very poor in that region.
 - Adult survival remains relatively good, but detrimental health impacts of winter ticks have caused birth rates to be very low.
 - Heavy winter tick loads can cause more than half of moose calves to die in late winter.
- The Department recommends 100 moose hunting permits (60 either sex and 40 antlerless only) be allocated in WMU E to reduce moose numbers and thereby reduce the impacts of winter ticks on the health of moose and help maintain a sustainable moose population.
 - This would result in the harvest of 51-65 moose, or about 5% of the current estimated population in WMU E. This same permit allocation in 2020 resulted in the harvest of 62 moose.
- No permits are recommended for the remaining 19 WMUs, which cover 93% of Vermont, because moose densities remain below objectives and hunting thresholds established in the 2020-2030 Big Game Management Plan.

Goals

This recommendation aims to improve the health of moose in WMUs E1 and E2 by reducing the impact of winter ticks and to achieve moose population objectives established in the 2020-2030 Big Game Management Plan.

Management Objectives

Moose population objectives for each WMU were established in Vermont's 2020-2030 Big Game Management Plan. These objectives aim to maintain healthy regional moose populations at levels that are ecologically sustainable.

In WMUs D2, E1, and E2, density objectives reflect the impact of winter ticks on the size and health of the region's moose population. Research has found reduced frequency of tick epizootics (where more than 50% of calves die from winter tick infestations) at moose densities below 1.06/mi² and no tick epizootics at densities below 0.75/mi² (Samuel 2007, Jones 2016). The Department will initially try to maintain moose densities at or below 1/mi² to reduce winter tick abundance and the frequency of epizootics, and improve the health of the moose population. However, if tick impacts are not reduced, the moose density may need to be reduced to 0.75/mi². Ultimately, the goal is to have healthy moose, with fewer calves dying each year from heavy winter tick loads and healthier cows with higher birth rates.

Moose density objectives throughout the rest of moose range in Vermont have been set at 0.5 moose/mi² (Figure 1). This lower objective reflects ecological limitations on moose densities in these regions due to limited young forest habitat, higher deer densities, and a warming climate. Moose densities in these WMUs have never reached 1/mi².

Hunting thresholds have also been established for each WMU at 75% of the density objective. The Department will only consider hunting moose when densities exceed this threshold for two consecutive years. This ensures that the other values of moose are maximized at these lower densities.

Population Status

Moose and Winter Ticks

Recent studies in Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine have concluded that winter ticks are the primary cause of moose mortality across their core range in New England (Musante et al. 2007, 2010, Bergeron et al. 2013, Dunfey-Ball 2017, Jones et al. 2017, Ellingwood et al. 2019, Jones et al. 2019, DeBow et al. 2021), with some moose hosting an astonishingly high number of ticks (>50,000/individual; Jones et al. 2019).

Core moose range (continuous red/brown area in Figure 2) in New England extends from northeastern Vermont through northern New Hampshire and western and northern Maine. This part of the region has a colder climate with longer winters, low deer densities, large blocks of forest, and an abundance of young forest created by commercial timber management which allows it to sustain higher densities of moose than more peripheral parts of their range. Importantly, population-level effects of winter ticks have only been observed in the region's core moose range, where moose densities have been high enough to support large numbers of winter ticks.

Although winter ticks can be found on moose throughout the region, they are not impacting moose populations across the more-peripheral parts of their range in the northeast, including the rest of Vermont, due to lower moose densities which limit tick abundance. Moose numbers outside of the Northeast Kingdom have declined, but the main cause of that decline was not winter ticks. Rather, it was likely due to a combination of declining quantity of young forest, increased parasite loads (particularly brainworm linked to increasing deer densities), and fewer moose in core moose range to migrate out to these other regions.

Vermont Research

During 2017–2019, 126 moose (36 adult cows and 90 calves) were fitted with GPS radio collars in WMU E to monitor survival and birth rates. Results of this research clearly showed that chronic, high winter tick loads caused the health of moose in WMU E to be poor. Birth rates were low and overwinter calf survival was poor (49%; DeBow et al. 2021). Although observed adult female survival remained relatively good, it was lower than expected for a population without major predators. Survival of breeding age females has significant influence on population trends in long-lived species like moose.

Ongoing and Future Research

Fieldwork associated with the survival study concluded in 2019; however, the Department continues to monitor survival and calf recruitment in the remaining collared cows. Additionally, the large amounts of data collected during this study allowed University of Vermont researchers to analyze other aspects of moose and winter tick ecology. This related research focused on understanding 1) How winter tick impacts on moose relate to habitat use and quality (see Blouin et al. 2021a and Blouin et al. 2021b), and 2) How winter ticks affect moose nutritional condition and stress levels (see Rosenblatt et al. 2021).

Other recently completed research at UVM assessed the effect of various fungal pathogens on survival of winter tick larvae (see Sullivan et al. 2020a and Sullivan et al. 2020b). While some of these fungi resulted in high mortality of winter tick larvae in the lab, an important next step is to determine the effectiveness and feasibility of using these pathogens to control winter ticks in the field.

The Department is currently partnering with UVM, the University of Massachusetts, New Hampshire Fish and Game, Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife, Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Wildlife, New York Department of Environmental Conservation, and the US Forest service on a large, regional research effort focused on non-invasive monitoring of moose and winter ticks. The project includes the following: deployment of more than 400 long-term camera monitoring stations across the five states; track surveys; collection and analysis of urine and feces; winter tick surveys; and development of an integrated population model that can incorporate all of these data.

Population Health

Many factors affect the health of individual moose and the overall population. These include diseases and parasites (e.g., winter ticks and brainworm), habitat quality, and environmental conditions. Ultimately, how fast a population grows and how resilient it is to additional sources of mortality is determined by how long individuals can be expected to live (i.e., the survival rate) and how many new individuals are added to the population each year (i.e., the birth rate).

In the early 2000s, moose were overabundant in WMU E. They were causing significant damage to forest regeneration and their physical condition was declining as habitat quality declined. The Department actively reduced the moose population in this area to bring it into balance with the habitat and to improve the health of moose. By 2011, the population had been reduced to a level the habitat could support; however, health measures did not improve (Figures 3 and 4).

Moose are not currently limited by habitat in the core part of their range, including WMU E (Dunfey-Ball 2017). There is enough available habitat and adequate forage to support the current population. However, habitat quality can influence the distribution of moose on the landscape (i.e., higher densities of moose in areas with the highest quality habitat), which can influence local winter tick abundance and impacts on moose health (Healy et al. 2019, Blouin et al. 2021a and b).

Recent Winter Tick Impacts

The severity of annual tick infestations is not only dependent on moose density, but also on climate, including temperature, humidity, wind, and snow. Annual variation in climate conditions results in variation in winter tick loads on moose. As long as climate conditions periodically result in reduced winter tick infestations, moose densities can remain at levels that perpetuate heavy tick loads and unhealthy moose for the foreseeable future.

Vermont has not collared moose calves since 2019. As a result, the Department relies on other sources of information to estimate winter tick impacts since that time. During 2020 and 2021, summer calf recruitment from remaining collared cow moose was better than during 2017-2019 (Figure 4). Additionally, the proportion of yearlings in the moose harvest, small improvements in body weight (Figure 3) and antler measurements of harvested moose, and anecdotal evidence (e.g., reports of dead moose, bloody beds, engorged ticks in snowmobile trails) suggest that tick impacts were lower in Vermont in 2020 and 2021.

While reduced winter tick impacts are encouraging, they are likely the result of unfavorable climate conditions for winter ticks in recent years. The long winter of 2018–2019 likely helped reduce winter tick abundance during 2019, resulting in lower tick loads on moose during the winter of 2019–2020. An early snow event in mid-October 2020 likely ended or significantly reduced winter tick questing, resulting in lower tick loads on moose during the winter of 2020–2021. However, current moose densities in WMU E will allow winter tick abundance and impacts on moose to increase again when climate conditions are more favorable for ticks.

Winter tick counts on bull moose harvested in October 2021 were comparable to those observed in recent years (Figure 5). While this measure provides an indication of tick abundance on the landscape, final tick loads on individual moose will be largely determined by the length of the questing period. The questing period is typically ended by weather conditions (e.g., persistent snow or freezing conditions) that kill questing winter tick larvae. Persistent snow did not arrive in WMU E until mid-November 2021, which may result in more severe winter tick impacts in 2022.

Population Estimates

Regional moose densities in Vermont are estimated from moose sighting rates reported by deer hunters during the November rifle season. This approach, originally developed by the New Hampshire Fish and Game Department, relates sighting rates to moose densities determined by aerial surveys (Bontaites et al. 2000). Aerial surveys conducted in Vermont allowed the Department to modify this model to better fit Vermont sighting data. Sighting rates often vary from year to year due to factors other than the number of moose (e.g., weather conditions), so a 3-year rolling average is used to smooth out some of this variation.

Using this approach, the 2021 (2019–2021 rolling average) density estimates for WMUs E1 and E2 are 1.99 and 1.49 moose/mi², respectively, which are well above the upper density objectives established in the 2020-2030 Big Game Management Plan (1 moose/mi²; Table 2). It appears that moose numbers have been relatively stable at this level in WMU E over the past 10 years (Figure 6).

The Department has received interest for moose hunting from foresters that have documented moose browsing impacts to forest regeneration in areas outside WMU E. They are interested in alleviating these impacts to protect forest health. While some of these local areas could sustain a limited moose harvest, the moose population density in all WMUs except E1 and E2 remain below established hunting thresholds (Table 2).

The uneven distribution of functional moose habitat (and therefore moose) in parts of Vermont is a challenge for management. The Department will be reevaluating moose habitat mapping, taking advantage of recent research efforts (e.g., Pearman-Gilman et al. 2020, Blouin et al. 2021a) to better reflect the area of functional habitat in each WMU. This should allow for more meaningful estimates of moose density in WMUs with less homogeneous moose habitat.

Harvest Recommendation

The results of the moose study clearly show that the current density of moose in WMU E has been sufficient to sustain winter ticks at high levels that are negatively affecting moose health and survival. Research has shown that winter tick abundance is directly related to moose population density. Reducing the density of moose decreases the number of available hosts which in turn decreases the number of winter ticks on the landscape. Moose population reduction will be necessary to break the winter tick cycle and improve the health of moose in this region.

Without management action to reduce the moose population, high tick loads will continue to impact the health of moose in WMU E for the next decade and beyond. The resulting chronic stress, low birth rates, and high calf mortality may prevent the population from growing. However, it will be less resilient to diseases, parasites, and environmental variation, which could cause the population to destabilize. Maintaining a healthy, stable, and sustainable moose population requires action to improve moose health.

Reducing winter tick numbers directly, either by treating moose or the landscape with some form of acaricide or fungal pathogen, is not currently a viable option. Research in this area is ongoing, but the realities of treating an entire landscape or a sufficient portion of the moose population make it unlikely that this will be a practical option soon.

The Department recommends harvesting at least 25 adult cow moose (5% of the cow population) in WMU E during the 2022 moose hunting seasons. The Department further recommends that this be accomplished through the issuance of 60 either-sex hunting permits and 40 antlerless-only hunting permits. Given historical success rates and sex-age composition of the harvest for each permit type, this allocation is expected to result in the harvest of approximately 60 moose (range: 51–65) with an expected breakdown of 31 bulls (range: 27–34), 25 cows (20–30), and 4 calves (3–5). Approximately 60% of permits are recommended to be allocated to WMU E1 due to higher moose densities in that WMU. Approximately 25% of either-sex permits are allocated to the archery season, based on the percentage of total applications that were for this season in recent years and the need to obtain sufficient biological data during the regular season. Allocations to the auction, special opportunity, and veterans are set by statute. Permit breakdown by season, type, WMU, and special allocation is provided in Table 1.

Population Projections

Based on survival rates and calf recruitment observed from collared moose during 2017–2021, the moose population in WMU E would be expected to increase in the absence of any moose harvest (Figure 6). If winter tick impacts are relatively severe each year (as observed during 2017–2019), the population would not increase. However, severe tick impacts do not occur every year due to variation in climate conditions that affect winter tick abundance. Thus, this represents an unrealistic, worst-case scenario, and the moose population should be expected to increase without some additional mortality from hunting. This is consistent with the observed population trend over the past decade, when the average annual moose harvest in WMU E has been 40 moose (range: 0-75).

Importantly, detrimental effects on moose health will continue as long as moose densities remain at levels that support high winter tick loads. Even under a worst-case scenario, taking no management action would perpetuate the current, unhealthy state of the moose population in WMU E for many years and would be inconsistent with the Department’s established objective of managing for a healthy moose population. Importantly, 65% of Vermont residents support maintaining a smaller moose population through hunting if it reduces the number of moose that die each year from winter ticks. Only 15% oppose this approach (Responsive Management 2019).

Starting with a population of 1,000 moose in WMU E (E1 and E2 combined) in the fall of 2022, the harvest of 25 adult female moose annually is expected to reduce the population slowly, assuming tick impacts similar to the previous 5 years, and no change in birth rates or survival rates (Figure 6). If tick impacts are relatively severe each year, it would take approximately 5 years at this harvest level to reach 1 moose/mi². Conversely, if tick impacts are reduced, as in 2020 and 2021, the population would be expected to increase over time.

Figure 6. Moose population projections in WMU E at varying annual cow harvests and winter tick impacts, based on a population of 1,000 in fall 2022 and survival and birth rates from radio-marked moose. Projections assume consistent harvest each year and no change in survival or birth rates. Green shaded area represents the potential range of variation due to varying winter tick impacts at the recommended harvest of 25 cows.

Given the poor health of the moose population and a clearly identified cause, action to address this issue is warranted. The harvest of 29 cow moose in 2021 was an important step toward reducing the number of moose in WMU E, and thereby reducing winter tick abundance and impacts on moose health. Permit allocations and harvest in 2019 and 2020 have been conservative due to uncertainty around population estimates, lower survival and birth rates observed from collared moose during the first 3 years of monitoring, and very low permit numbers in previous years.

The 2022 harvest recommendation remains conservative. It is sufficient to prevent the moose population in WMU E from growing, and, if winter tick impacts are severe, it will facilitate population reduction toward the target of 1 moose/mi².

Ideally, moose health should be improved as quickly as possible. However, low survival and birth rates observed from Vermont moose, uncertainty around apparent improvements in calf recruitment in the past two years that result in higher population projections, and broader, regional declines in moose populations justify a continued cautious approach at this time. Management of moose in WMU E and throughout Vermont must continue to be adaptive and respond to new information as it becomes available. If continued monitoring indicates that health, survival, and birth rates remain poor, and the moose population in WMU E remains above the objective, a more aggressive approach will be necessary to improve the health of the region’s moose.

TOPIC: STOP CRUEL AND INHUMANE ANIMAL TRAPPING

Dear Vermont Department of Fish and Wildlife,

Vermont is one of the most beautiful states in our country, with magnificent wildlife and natural features. But while the rest of the world may appreciate the state's beauty, it is hard to look past the cruel practices that pass as otter hunting in Vermont year after year.

Leg-hold and foothold traps, as well as underwater pocket traps, have been banned in at least 100 countries around the world, as well as several U.S. states. It's widely recognized that these devices cause great pain and suffering to the animals that are trapped by them, as they often languish for days before a hunter returns to check the traps.

Many of these animals even resort to chewing off their own limbs, or are found dead after losing blood in the process.

It is within your jurisdiction to set humane standards for hunting, and that includes hunting practices when it comes to animals being trapped for their fur. At least 75 percent of Vermont residents oppose leg-hold and body-gripping traps, and that number is steadily growing with the support of others around the world.

I demand that you ban the use of leg-hold, foothold, and underwater pocket traps today. It's not a matter of solving overpopulation. It's not a matter of protecting business interests. It's a matter of common decency when it comes to proper hunting practices, and it's time to make the humane choice.

Sincerely,
