

Postal Service Being Boosted For Yule Rush

Three Additional Workers And Extended Hours to Speed Handling of Mail

Expanded postal service for Mason patrons is being made available during the Christmas holidays.

Postmaster William J. Barber announced that three additional carriers have been authorized and that the post-office windows will remain open on the three Saturday afternoons before Christmas.

Two of the special carriers will be Dan Garver and George Bauer. Garver is a student at Alma college and Bauer at Albion college.

Postal authorities are providing extra service, but cooperation on the part of the public will also be a big factor in expediting the delivery and dispatch of mail.

Here are some of the suggestions which postal workers hope Mason people will adopt:

Mail early. Send packages and cards just as soon as possible so as to avoid the rush of the last week.

Sort out Christmas cards as to postoffice before mailing. Band them in packages of about 10 before presenting them properly stamped for mailing.

Wrap and tie packages securely. Make sure that the amount of postage is correct. See that return addresses are properly placed.

Procure postal money orders. Do not send bills or coins through the mail.

CROP Is Asking Ingham Farmers To Donate Wheat

CROP is counting on Ingham farmers for a carload of wheat. The campaign will be officially launched Monday, Rev. Paul Mergener of Eaton Rapids and Earl Salsbury of Williamston are co-chairmen.

Six township committeemen have volunteered to conduct the drive in their communities. They are Harris Hartwell, Locke, Mrs. Paul Jury, Wheatfield; Claude Campbell, Leroy; Harold Artz, Banker Hill; Guy McCue, Delhi; and several others.

Others will be announced following a meeting at the court house last Sunday night.

Church World Service, representing 21 Protestant churches, Catholic Rural Life and Lutheran World Relief sponsors CROP, which means Christian Rural Overseas Program.

Foodstuffs collected in the campaign are sent to Europe and Asia. Cash donations are used to purchase foodstuffs.

In Europe and Asia the foodstuffs are distributed on the basis of need without regard to race, color or religion.

According to statistics furnished the co-chairmen of the Ingham campaign, more than half the world is born hungry. Live longer and die hungry.

There are now more than two million Koreans homeless and hungry," Rev. Mergener said. "Some of the U. S. troops are giving up one meal a day to provide food for women and children who would otherwise be left to starve. Parts of India and Japan are in need of food. Yugoslavia suffered drought last summer and is now short of food.

"The United States is one of the few countries in the world blessed with an abundance of food. That's why we are asking Ingham farmers to donate foodstuffs and city people to contribute cash. Generous contributions will save lives."

War Situation Doubles Red Cross Blood Quota

Reverses in Korea and the threat of war elsewhere has doubled the blood bank quota for Mason. The Red Cross bloodmobile will be in Mason Wednesday, December 20.

Instead of the usual 100 pints, the Red Cross blood bank has set up a quota of 200 donors.

The mobile unit will transform the basement of the Mason Presbyterian church into a hospital ward for the day. Nurses from the Mason General Hospital and members of the Mason Hospital Auxiliary will assist the Lansing Area Red Cross staff.

Mrs. Sterling Moses is chairman of the general committee for the December 20 blood bank. Mrs. Donald Scofield, Mrs. Harold Barnhill and Mrs. Robert Leonard are serving on the committee with Mrs. Moses.

Because of the 200-pint quota the campaign will be carried to Leslie, Holt, Dansville and all the rural area near those towns, Mrs. Moses said.

At a meeting held in Mason last week representatives of community organizations heard Miss Rose Jones and Jack Chester of the Lansing Regional Blood Bank tell of the need for blood.

Those attending the meeting included Mrs. Leola Watkins, Macomb; Mrs. Earl A. Snyder, Dansville; Mrs. Clara A. Mosher, Legion Auxiliary; Mrs. R. P. Azelton, Junior Child Study club; Chalmers Everitt, Ingham county road commission; Miss Florence Lathrop and Mrs. Jennie Kennedy, Eastern Star; Mrs. Nellie Edgar, Aurelius; P. W. Tinkler, Weych Incorporated; James H. Vander Ven, Mason school; Lawrence Parker, court house; Mrs. Mable Evely, Wheatfield Cleaners; Mrs. Donald Scofield, Mason Methodist church; Mrs. W. A. Bergin, Mason Women's club; William Pansoni, Ingham County Farm Bureau; and Mrs. Reva Remar, Holt Rebekahs.

Other organizations backing the blood drive are Mason Legion and VFW posts, Senior Child Study club, Catholic Women's club; Lions club, Church of the Nazarenes, Baptist church, North Aurelius Union church, Holt Methodist and Presbyterian churches, Alameda Ladies Aid Society, Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis club, Holt Legion post, Holt school, Wheatfield Center Methodist church, Mason lodge No. 70, F. & A. M., Mason Rebekahs and Farm Bureau groups.

Pledges of blood may be made through any of the organizations or with members of the committee, Mrs. Moses said.

Because of the shortage of wire and the shortage of money to pay electricians to string it, the Chamber of Commerce directors decided to forego placing the usual decorations on lamp posts. The decorations were badly battered by wind and snow last year and many would have to be replaced, Secretary Robert Ingham told directors.

C. of C. directors joined in urging business men to buy trees of uniform size for placing at the curbs in front of their stores. There are no restrictions on trees of other sizes if they are to be placed at store entrances or in store windows, directors said.

It will be up to business men to light their own trees. Extension cords can be run to the trees from overhead lines, signs or from second-story windows.

Store Hours Set The retail store committee of the Chamber of Commerce recommended that Mason stores remain open nights beginning Friday night, December 15.

Monday night discussed a preliminary report on the proposal to hire a full-time secretary for the Chamber of Commerce. They also discussed property assessment inequities and their effect on city development.

Presidents M. B. Collins and pointed Norman Dart, Al Rice and Dr. D. R. Lethbridge to a nominating committee. Collins asked the committee to prepare a list of candidates for three positions as directors.

Terms of Rice, Dr. Lethbridge and Norman Dart expire this year. Under the by-laws of the organization they are ineligible for re-election.

DR. D. R. Lethbridge is chairman of the charter commission. He assigned commissioners to individual studies.

The assignments were: Leo Harrison, provisions relative to special assessments; Howard A. McCowan, provisions relative to courts and judicial procedure; Gerald A. Parsons, police and fire protection; and Glen Coon, salaries of elected officials.

Another commission meeting is scheduled for next Tuesday night at the council chamber.

Under the present law, rent controls are due to expire December 31. President Truman has demanded that congress extend the controls for at least three months.

"If the controls can be removed before December 31," Dr. Robbins said, "property owners can adjust rentals before the extension becomes effective. I for one will continue to stay in the red on rentals. I might better keep the apartments vacant."

Alderman Alton J. Stroud opposed the removal of rent control. He declared that the city should await the lifting of rent lids under the law.

Lansing's city council adopted an ordinance to remove rent controls. Proceedings are now being reviewed by federal authorities.

Mason Stores Erecting Trees For Christmas

Business Men Responsible For Erecting and Lighting Own Trees Placed at Curb

Rows of trees lining curbs in the business section will mark the holiday season in Mason. Chamber of Commerce directors decided on the decorating plan Monday night and made arrangements with Jean Anderson post of the VFW to supply the trees of uniform shape and size.

The veterans had already made plans to cut their own yule trees near Harrison and Farwell this week end. They will increase the effort to provide the trees for the curbs. Veterans have made arrangements to sell their trees to the public. They have rented a lot from Leo's Standard Service on West Maple, across from the Fox theatre.

Two giant trees will be erected by the Chamber of Commerce. One will be near the war memorial at the corner of Jefferson and Ash. The other will be in the west side business district.

Cuddly Dolls Are Packing Luggage

Raggedy Ann, Sunbonnet Sue, Corporal Sam and all their little friends are looking forward to Christmas Eve rides with Santa Claus. They are now at the home of Eunice Hunt, 440 West Columbia, in Mason.

Miss Hunt learned to make the dolls while in an Ann Arbor hospital. She makes them now at her home. They're all hand-made, stitched by stitch, and are filled with clean cotton.

Making the cloth dolls is one of Miss Hunt's hobbies. For 30 years she has been confined to home and hospital. She was graduated from Mason high school in 1910. Shortly afterward she was stricken with what doctors now believe was infantile paralysis. At the time it was considered the result of a back injury.

While the father, Cordie Hunt, is away at work all day the daughter makes the dolls. She is one of a number of best-read citizens. Neighbors keep her supplied with books from the Hall Memorial library.

The neighbors also drop in frequently to visit with Miss Hunt. In the summer Miss Hunt goes for rides with friends through the country. But when winter comes she stays at home.

Miss Hunt has a cheerful outlook on life, perhaps because she has been on the sidelines for 30 years of it. She greets her friends with a smile. She wants her dolls to gladden the hearts of little boys and girls.

Have You Met? The Stanford Shaffers at 1004 South Lansing street? The Shaffers recently purchased the house of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Erdman and they came to Mason Tuesday from Lansing.

There are three in the family, Mr. and Mrs. Shaffer and their daughter, Linda Lee, who will be three years old in January.

Shaffer is the hydramatic man at Trevellian Oldsmobile Inc. in Lansing. He served 45 months in the army during World War II, much of which time was spent in the European theater of operations. He is a native of Johnston, Pa.

Mrs. Shaffer is formerly of Battle Creek.

Mason charter commissioners continued their study of charter revision Tuesday night. They heard Mayor C. H. Hall and City Attorney O. J. Hood express views as to what revision the charter needs.

The commissioners decided that the charter will be revised, and not a new one adopted. Procedures differ on the two methods. There is no time limit on revision. A new charter must be submitted within 90 days.

John Igleaur of Ann Arbor, on the staff of the Michigan Municipal League, had agreed to meet with the Mason commissioners. He is regarded as an authority on charter revision. Igleaur telephoned that he did not return to Ann Arbor from another mission until seven o'clock and was unable to get to Mason in time.

Legal Maneuvers Are Causing Delay In Recount Start

Ingham Is Ready to Begin Counting Just as Soon as State Officials Give Word, Governor and Canvassers Are Now Quarreling Over Certification Procedure Disputes are delaying the recount of the November 7 vote for governor. County Clerk C. Ross Hilliard and Ingham's board of canvassers are ready to swing into action the minute word is received from the state board of canvassers. That word is being held up until some of the arguments are settled.

The big dispute is over the action of the state board of canvassers in withholding a certificate of election from Governor G. Mennen Williams. The state canvass showed Governor Williams the winner over Harry F. Kelly by 1,154 votes. The state board of canvassers, with a recount already demanded, insists on waiting until after the counting is done again before issuing a certificate of election.

Governor Williams, Attorney General Stephen J. Roth and other Democratic party leaders are shouting that the canvassers are violating the law. Roth has declared that the recount cannot begin until after the certificate is issued.

George R. Sidwell, Claude J. Marshall and Norman D. Reynolds will supervise the Ingham recount. All three are Lansing lawyers. They were recommended by the Michigan State Bar and have been appointed assistant attorneys general to serve without pay.

The Ingham board of canvassers will handle the mechanics of the recount. On it are Mrs. Carmelita Stanley of Lansing, James B. McIntee of Bunker Hill and Ardell Rosenbrook of Onondaga. They will check the seals on the ballot boxes and if certificates which should be on the bundles of ballots inside the boxes.

Ballots Brought to Mason Under the tentative plan, the sealed ballot boxes will be brought to Mason and placed under state police guard. Whether the township clerks will bring the boxes to Mason or whether state police troopers will gather up the boxes is still in dispute.

At Mason there will be five tables placed in the circuit court room and if space is lacking there, in the supervisors' room. That's where the ballots will be counted.

Challengers Present At each table will be two checkers and one tally. They will also be party challengers. Disputed ballots will be taken to what will be known as a master table. At that table attorneys retained by county political committees will be permitted to argue whether or not the disputed ballots should be tallied.

A court reporter will be in attendance to take down arguments of attorneys and rulings of the supervisors.

Appeals from the rulings can be carried up to circuit court. Recounting will be done in public.

Staff Not Chosen Whether the county clerk, the state board of canvassers, the county canvassers or the three special supervisors will choose the checkers and tally clerks has not yet been decided. Ingham applications filed with the secretary of state and the state board of canvassers have been forwarded to the county canvassers at Mason.

The rate of pay and who will pay them is another unsettled issue.

Machines Checked, Too Voting machines used in Lansing precincts will have to be checked, too. They are stored in various public buildings throughout Lansing. A recount crew, accompanied by one or more of the supervisors, will take down the vote totals from each machine.

There is a possibility that votes on all state offices will be recounted. The Democrats are considering such a move to place all state candidates on the same footing as to certification by the state board of canvassers.

Rules Subject to Change Some of the rules for the recount have been agreed upon by leaders of both parties. Others are in dispute, and some may have to be placed before the courts for decision.

A lot of recount precedent was established in the Brucker-Groeschbeck recount of 20 years ago. The manner of marking individual ballots has been ruled upon.

If present legal tangles are unknotted the actual recounting is expected to begin next Thursday, Hilliard indicated.

MEN SEARCH FOR PICKLES Ben Weaver and George Madison of Medina, Ohio, are on a trip to Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina inspecting pickles for the H. W. Madison Co. Madison Co. and other cucumber processing companies are short on pickles.

City Unprepared To Enforce Order On Snow Removal

Mason's ordinance providing that all sidewalks be kept reasonably clean of snow and ice will be enforced with certain ifs.

Police Chief Ralph Hall admitted Tuesday that the city is unprepared to take over the cleaning of walks where residents refuse or neglect or are unable to perform their duties. So one if on the enforcement, according to Officer Hall, is "if the city can hire shovellers."

Another if, the officer explained, is about the legality of the ordinance. Some doubt exists, he explained, that charges for shoveling snow can be added to property taxes under the present ordinance. It was adopted in 1938.

There is one positive if, however. If residents will notify another policeman, Kenneth Merindorf, he will use his jeep plow to clear their walks. It's private enterprise. It's his own jeep and he drives it on his own time. The charge is $1.00 per lot per call.

If enough residents along entire blocks will sign up for his jeep service, Merindorf said, the price will be $3.00 per lot for the entire winter. He'll even take on every block in the city at that rate, he declared.

The Merindorf telephone number is 3301, or 2-6801.

Others who are also in the walk-cleaning business, they'll be available by the hour or job, Officer Hall said. Calls for Scouts may be left at the city clerk's office, phone 3241.

Whether the 1938 ordinance can be enforced or not, the order to enforce encouraged many residents to clean their walks Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. The ordinance provides that walks must be cleaned by 10 o'clock in the forenoon of all secular days.

Ingham Bypassed On January Draft Because Ingham and 15 other draft districts have met every draft call 100 per cent they will be bypassed in January.

The 2,173 men Michigan must furnish to the army in January will come from counties which have fallen short of previous quotas, state selective service headquarters announced.

Besides Ingham the districts exempt from the January call are Calhoun, Cass, Huron, Midland, Oakland No. 66, Ogemaw, Presque Isle and Roscommon.

Sixty-two Ingham men have been ordered to report for induction December 5.

Farm Specialist Will Prophecy On Price Outlook

Ingham farmers will have a chance next Tuesday night to learn what they probably ahead of them for next year.

Arthur Mauch, extension specialist in agricultural economics at Michigan State college, will discuss farm prospects at a meeting to be held in the circuit court room in Mason. The meeting, open to all interested, will start at 8:00 p. m.

More inflation, more taxes and controls, higher prices and higher costs and perhaps a little more net income for farmers will be in the picture, according to present indications. County Agricultural Agent Donald Curry has arranged the meeting as part of the extension program.

The purpose of the meeting is to provide farmers with information necessary for studying their farm business and planning ahead any changes in operation for 1951, Curry said.

Mauch will give ample time in his presentation for those present to ask questions, the county agent stated.

Engineer Joining Monsanto Staff James Maguire will be leaving Mason next month to join the staff of the Monsanto Chemical corporation. He will be a staff engineer and expects to be assigned to one of the Monsanto plants in New Jersey or New York.

At Wyeth Incorporated Maguire has been assistant to Chief Engineer W. G. Meier.

Maguire joined Wyeth at Mason five years ago after being released from the army. He was a major with the 26th Division. Before entering the service he was with Boston Edison for two years following his graduation from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is a native of Brockton, Mass.

In Mason Mr. and Mrs. Maguire have been active in community affairs. They are members of St. James Catholic Mission.

"We have found Mason to be a friendly town," Maguire said, "and we are sorry to have to part with friends here. Yet the opportunity offered by Monsanto is challenging and I can not afford to reject it."

Mason Drops Alumni 63-33, Play Blackhawks Here Tuesday

Coach Don Carey got his Mason high school engagers off to a good start Wednesday night with a brilliant 63-33 victory over an alumni aggregation.

Tuesday Mason will start the season play by entertaining the Leslie Blackhawks coached by Walt Gephart. Gephart-coached teams have always been a thorn in the side of Mason. Last year the two teams split.

Gene are such Blackhawk stars as Bill Kunnawin and Bob Campbell but Bob Coppertail is back along with some other clever ball handlers. Under the Gephart system a fast-breaking, ball-handling team will be sure to be on the floor Tuesday night.

Mason has one of its better teams if Wednesday night's session with the alumni means anything. The Bulldogs were slow to start but soon gathered up steam and out-paced the former Mason engagers.

The Mason team has more height than it has had for several years. The ball-handling is much better than was shown last year. There is plenty of experience to draw from.

The alumni held the varsity in check during a slow first quarter. At the end of the period the score was 7-7. In the second quarter the varsity found itself and began pouring in buckets. The Bulldogs were out in front at halftime 21-15.

The last half was a complete rout for the alumni. With Denny Stolz hitting from the floor and Jim Kelly and Bob Jewett dumping them in from under the basket the varsity poured it on.

Denny Stolz proved he has not lost his eagle-eye by dumping in 19 points on eight field goals and six behind with 14 points.

With Jim Rogers, Kelly and Jewett up front the Bulldogs have three men over the six-foot mark. Phil Parisian and Stolz are not too tall but can also get up on those backboards. Jewett is a greatly improved ball player.

Bulldogs Pick Honorary Posts

Reed Montague and Denny Stolz were picked as honorary co-captains of the 1950 grid machine at a team meeting Wednesday.

Wayne Every was voted as most valuable player by his teammates. Montague played an outstanding game at guard while Stolz was a three-year mainstay in the Bulldog backfield. Every is a junior.

He is finished with high school football under the new 19-year age limit. Every was considered one of the best fullbacks in the Capital Circuit.

Coach Lou Lorr handed out 17 varsity monograms for the 1950 football season and 13 reserve awards. Those receiving the varsity black M are Bob Jewett, Bill Wapner, Reed Montague, Don Lyon, Bob Thomas, Jim Critchfield, Jim Kelly, Phil Parisian, Denny Stolz.

Those receiving the reserve awards are Larry Laxton, Aaron Hyde, Bill Gabel, Bill Post, Ray Lassen, Jim Heathman, Lyle Snider, Bruce Douglas, Norm Ostrum, Roger Shepard, Ron Aleo, Dick Mizer and Fred Turner.

Tom Bergeson was awarded a manager's letter.

The alumni was paced by last year's star, Jack Davis, who racked up eight points. Joe Johnson tossed in seven for the old grads.

Reserves Show Promise
Coach Lou Lorr's reserve squad put on an intra-squad game for the curtain-raiser Wednesday night. The two teams battled right down to the finish wire. Standout performers were Loren Shuttuck, Jim Heatman, Norm Ostrum, Lou Scould and Monte Crowell. Shuttuck and Ostrum each racked up five points to pace the red-shirted attack while Scould tossed in seven and Jack Pink added six for the winning blue shirts.

All Teams Open In County League

The entire Ingham County league will see action Friday night. Danville will be at Haslett, Leslie will open against Okemos. Fowlerville will start the season at Stockbridge and Holt will play at Williamston.

Holt has been labeled the team to beat in the Ingham County league. The Ramblers have a veteran team on hand for another season and have given the inside track to repeat as league champions. Leslie will renew its rivalry with the Lakers and Blackhawk's forced Holt right down to the last game last year. This year they will be out to do even better. Stockbridge and Fowlerville may pull some surprises before the season is very old.

On Tuesday three of the County league teams will take on non-league foes. Leslie will renew its rivalry with Mason. Howett will play at Fowlerville and Holt will be at Haslett. The Battle-Holett may be a knock-down affair. Both teams are very evenly matched.

Mothers Staging Football Banquet

Mothers are honoring their athletic sons with a football banquet. The banquet will be held in the Legion Memorial building Monday evening, December 11.

Members of the Legion Auxiliary will prepare and serve the banquet.

The entertainment program is being worked out. Mothers hope to secure a prominent college coach as speaker.

All members of both the varsity and reserve teams will be guests at the banquet. Tickets will go on sale to the public Friday.

Navy Jet Pilot Home on Holiday

Ensign Milton C. Bergeson returned home for the Thanksgiving holidays after completing a six-week tour of duty in Cuba. He has been in the Cuban area evaluating the limitations of operational-type aircraft.

The navy officer reported that he found Michigan weather cooler than what he is used to but the cooking well above par. Presently based in Norfolk, he is leaving mid-December for a three months Mediterranean shake-down cruise testing the carrier-adaptability of the Cutlass, newest navy jet fighter.

Ensign Bergeson has been in experimental aviation since he received his wings last April. He was graduated from Mason high school in 1946 and attended Michigan State college for two years.

High Honors for Michigan 4-H'ers

HIGH HONORS have been accorded 4-H'ers for having the best records in the 1950 National 4-H Dress Revue, Food Preparation, Health and Motor Maintenance programs. Their awards—trips to the National 4-H Club Congress, Chicago, Nov. 26-30, were provided by the program sponsors. Highlights of their club careers are told below.

From the original design to the finished garment was proved both fascinating and rewarding to Marydel Chartrand, 17, of Escanaba, who was judged winner in the 4-H Dress Revue program. Her costume is a green plaid bolero suit. The jacket has long sleeves, notched collar and covered buttons. The skirt is straight with four princess pleats in front. Marydel made a white wool fall length coat to wear over her suit. It is tailored, has large pockets, double breasted front, half-belt and kick-pleat in the back. To complete her costume Marydel wears dark green accessories. She serves her local club as junior leader. In recognition of her abilities, Simply Pattern Co. provided Marydel's trip to the Club Congress—all expenses paid.

A high spot in 4-H Club work was reached by Julia Mead, 18, of Sand Creek, when she was named state winner in the Food Preparation program. A 4-H'er for eight years, Julia has completed 18 projects, specializing in baking. She received a set of breakfast dishes as winner of the county cereal bread contest. Julia became expert in meal planning, and has cooked and served approximately 90 meals, has given 25 demonstrations before audiences totaling 2,250. She has won many awards on her exhibits. The young homemaker was instrumental in organizing home economics projects in the Sand Creek area in 1948, and has been junior leader in this work and livestock ever since. Julia is now serving as junior leader of her club. Her reward, a trip to Club Congress, was furnished by the Kelthorpe Corp., of Detroit.

All of these activities are conducted under the direction of the Extension Service of the State Agricultural College and USDA co-operating.

Marydel Chartrand Julia Mead Robert Kelo Grita Goorke

Three well-balanced meals and eight hours sleep every day, are musts to Grita Goorke, 17, of Cheboygan, who was tops in this year's Michigan 4-H Health Improvement record. A club member for seven years, she realized that following rules for good health was no simple task, but the lessons learned were of lasting value. With the aid of a Boy Scout Handbook and books borrowed from the county nurse, Grita learned to apply bandages. As junior leader of the health and safety project she passed this knowledge along to the other members. She prepared a demonstration on "Some Common Bandages and Their Uses" that placed first at State 4-H Show. Grita has served her club in every office. Her trip was provided by Kellogg Company of Battle Creek.

CAN DO
Make Your Own Yule Decorations

WHO SAID "Christmas?"
Well, you can't ignore it, even if you wanted to, so the thing to do is get ready for it. As a matter of fact, there are many very enjoyable little projects, which you can start work on right now, that will help weave the Christmas spirit even more closely into the fibre of your home.

First of all, make it a safe Christmas. Dig out those Christmas tree lights today and inspect them carefully. Discard any frayed wire. This may sound wasteful, but it actually is better than making even minor wire repairs yourself. The margin of safety on tree lights is just too small to leave room for any loutful practices whatever. So

If there's any question in your mind about whether or not "that string of lights" will short out this season, drop in at your hardware store one day this week and pick up a new string.

The decorations you can make for your home are virtually endless in number. Some of them may be a shade on the fantastic side, but who cares about that at Christmas time?

Scraps of old wire screening, for instance, can be made into colorful ornaments to hang in the windows, doorways, from the ceiling, mantel or any other place that suits your fancy. Cut the screen into Christmas designs—angels, stars, trees, stockings, bells, candies and so on. Paint them with show card colors and overcoat the sharp edges with bright yarn, three or more strands twisted together. Leave a loop at the top to hang them with.

WOMAN'S WORLD
Solve Special Laundry Problems By Using Practical Methods
By Erta Haley

"I SOAK MY COLORED clothes overnight before washing, but they're never bright," says a discouraged homemaker. "Is there a way to wash feather pillows?" "What should I do about washing lace trimmings?"

All of these are special laundering problems which can be solved by using practical methods. Ordinary laundering cannot be used for these and other laundry, but when variations of basic methods are used with caution, you can have excellent results.

White clothes, for example can be soaked for longer periods than colored clothes because they are washed in hotter water and may be boiled, then sun-dried to restore their whiteness. Doubtful-colored cottons and linens have to be washed and rinsed quickly because you cannot be certain the color stays in them.

Colored clothes cannot stand the hot water necessary for cottons. They are best when soaked for only a half an hour as then the dirty water cannot lodge in them, making it necessary to wash out along with dirt.

Dark cottons should be washed separately, and in clean water

Self-Wringing Mop

You can have sparkling floors and well-cared hands when you use this new type mop which has a built-in squeezer by means of a chromium attachment for wringing out the water. The cellulose fibers out of which the sponge is made soak up to 20 times their weight in water, leaving the floor as dry as a blotter.

Blankets should be placed on two lines, leaving an air space in between. Brush them gently when dry to raise the nap and keep fluffiness intact.

Woolen clothing should be dried on frames which will dry them in to their original shape. If you have no frame, pat flat on towel while you gently spread it to shape.

Use Bottle Method For Laces, Fine Material
Those who have fragile collars and cuffs, dainty underclothing, or pieces of lace which they hope to use for trimmings often wonder how these may be washed most easily, with least damage to delicate fabric.

Fill a quart container half full of warm water and very mild suds. Place the fine fabrics or lace in this and shake gently to clean. Rinsing may be accomplished in the same manner.

If the materials are too fine ever, to be trusted to this method, baste the lace or fabric to a piece of muslin before using the bottle method.

Long edgings of lace may be wrapped around a bottle and immersed in a bowl of suds. Let the bottle of lace edging in and out until clean, then rinse the same way.

Berut or cream lace which has faded can be restored to its original color by dipping in a weak solution of top or coffee.

Handle Fragile Curtains With Great Care
Fragile lace curtains need almost as gentle care as do fine fabrics. You'll do much toward prolonging their life by frequent washing, rather than by letting them become very soiled and then subjecting them to vigorous washing.

Since curtains gather much dust shake them out thoroughly or hang them outside on the line before washing to get rid of the surface dust. Soak for 10 minutes before laundering.

Curtains should be washed by hand if fragile; otherwise, machine washing may be used. Drying on a stretcher will save ironing.

Bluing will remove their yellowish look. Diluted starch should be used since most curtains have some natural stiffness. Gum arabic is recommended for stiffening organdy curtains.

For curtains which require ironing, wrapping in a bath towel after dampening is best for distributing moisture evenly.

Windy Days Are Best For Washing Pillows
You've never thought of washing your feather pillows at home? They really aren't hard to do especially if you pick a nice windy but warm day, as this helps dry the pillows easily and the wind shakes them so they dry light and fluffy.

Empty the feathers into a muslin bag which is at least twice the size of the tick. Sew together the edges so no feathers can come out. Plunge the bag of feathers into warm sudsy water and shake to clean.

You may also place the pillows into the muslin bag and sew its edges to the pillow ticking, thus making it possible to shake feathers from one bag to the other while washing them.

Washing should take from 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse in warm water. Hang in the wind and shake vigorously from time to time.

Avoid Extremes in Washing Woolens and Blankets
Fine woolens and woolen blankets should be washed during warm weather and sunny days as both are conducive to giving good results.

Lukewarm water and very mild suds are prescribed, and the three rinse waters which follow washing should be the same temperature as the water used for laundering.

Woolens and blankets are not soaked, but it's a good idea to use stain removal methods for spots which need them. Any rubbing, wringing, twisting or squeezing motions should be avoided as these will lock wool fibers and cause shrinkage and hard texture.

Balmy, warm days are wonderful for drying blankets and woolens since all extremes of temperature are to be avoided both in washing and drying.

Drifts Extend Ohio Holiday
Snow extended the Thanksgiving holiday of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Seibert and children of Mason. The Seiberts went to Cleveland for the holiday. They were trapped in the storm. A 32-inch blanket of snow covered Cleveland. Some drifts were 15 to 18 feet high. Principal streets and highways were not opened until Monday.

Sherman tanks were used to handle emergency transportation needs in Cleveland, the Mason man said. Women expecting delivery of children were placed in tanks and taken to hospitals.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Dart left Saturday night for New York City where they are spending the week. They plan to return home Monday.

Harold Weinman of Holt, assistant director of the Michigan Farm Bureau will speak to an estimated 125 roll call workers on the advantage of farmers thinking, planning and acting together on many questions and projects through a farm organization.

President William Panson said, "Ingham County Farm Bureau goal for 1951 is a membership of 799 families. I think we can do it, because we have a lot of farmers who believe in the Farm Bureau program. They are giving their time to help invite every farmer to membership in the Farm Bureau."

Club members decided to hold a baked goods sale at Pfeiffer market on December 16 to help earn money to pay for the sewing machine the club has purchased.

Mrs. Dorothy Head, club leader, handed out bulletins on club work and showed the different kinds of seams which can be used in sewing.

Refreshments of jello and birthday cake were served in honor of Dorothy Head's birthday anniversary. Dorothy was presented a gift from the group.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Judy Pierce on Saturday, December 9, beginning at 2 p. m.

X-Ray Unit Visits Dansville

Bad weather failed to keep 205 residents of Dansville and surrounding area from participating in the mass chest X-ray survey Tuesday.

The Ingham sanatorium mobile X-ray unit was located at the school during the day and teachers, students, and P. T. A. volunteers worked with sanatorium and health department personnel in completing chest X-rays on 11th grade school children and all residents 15 years of age and over who presented themselves.

More and more people are beginning to realize that presumably healthy persons who have no symptoms of disease may have spread tuberculosis and are, therefore, requesting the service of the mobile X-ray unit, the health department reported. As a result, credit for victories in the battle against tuberculosis, most of which have occurred in the past three decades, go largely to our more enlightened public, Dr. R. Lanting, health director added.

Mass chest X-ray survey in Ingham county communities is made possible through the cooperative effort of the Ingham sanatorium and the county health department.

Sponsoring and organizing the survey in Dansville were the school, and the P. T. A. Volunteers helping on the program were Virginia Snyder, Delores Hill, Kathryn Walters, Carolyn Hart, Ben Dalmer, Julia Carr, Virginia Cramer, Mary English, Clarice Nelson, Doris Rice, Barbara Ridgway, Doris Robbins, Lois Jenkins, Nancy Anderson, Barbara Perrine, Vivian Nichols, and Alfreda Frost and Mrs. G. E. Manning, Mrs. George Frost, Mrs. John Brower, Mrs. James Ridgway, Mrs. D. Monroe and Mrs. Edith Waterstradt of the P. T. A.

Grettenberger Charges Draw GOP Answer

In last week's Ingham County News O. K. Grettenberger, Democratic county chairman, accused Republicans of ignoring the law in choosing election board members.

Clyde B. Smith of Lansing, long a Republican leader and for eight years the county chairman, wrote this open letter in answer to Grettenberger's charges:

"I have read with interest the story in the newspapers last week. It was especially interesting to me because of the fact that I spent 20 per cent of my time for the eight years I was chairman of the Ingham County Republican committee trying to ascertain who were Republicans and who were Democrats.

"My experience taught me that the voters are very reticent in stating just what their political affiliations are. In short, they believe that how they vote is no one's business but their own. The ballot is secret and the most of them intend to keep it so.

"Without doubt many of them change their minds at the last minute and if one of these had been selected as a member of an election board the political set-up on that particular board would have been out of line.

"It was my pleasure to meet a great many of the voters in the townships but never one I would not trust to act as a member of the election board. Neither did I ever question any of the appointments made throughout the county. Neither have I ever known of anything questionable as to the elections.

"Furthermore, I find that Fred Alger, candidate for secretary of state, received 2,558 more votes than did Harry Kelly for governor. How would you classify these? Are they Republicans or are they Democrats?

"As for the city of Lansing, East Lansing and Williamston, the election boards are elected on a non-partisan ticket and it must be self evident that with this political set-up they would have no way of knowing who is who or what is what.

"Let's take for example the township of Bunker Hill. Ward Vicary has been supervisor for years and I have always assumed that he is a Democrat, but anyone who would question Ward's ability or honesty in selecting an election board would not be in his right mind.

"The same is true of all the supervisors and I am sure neither party lost any votes through cheating in this county.

"This can not be said of some of the precincts in Detroit.

"We should not forget that some years ago it was necessary to register as to one's political affiliations before voting in the primary. We all recall what a row this caused as the voters maintained it was nobody's business. As a result the law was repealed.

"I shall be very happy if you can tell me just how I can learn the political affiliations of the Ingham voters. I should also like to know how to class those who vote split tickets on a 50-50 basis.

"I have heard of no 'obvious' lack of any sense of fairplay by any of the election boards in this county, and I mean either Democrats or Republicans.

Ferris Institute Checking Alumni

Ferris Institute alumni records were destroyed in last year's fire and an effort is now being made to rebuild the records.

Fred Lorenzen of the class of 1908 is one of the leaders in the move. There are 100,000 alumni.

Fire destroyed the main buildings of the Ferris Institute last February including the alumni list.

"Turmoil resulted from the fire during that period of negotiations when the state of Michigan agreed to accept Ferris Institute as a gift with certain provisions," Lorenzen said.

"All this was unknown to the great majority of students and alumni throughout Michigan and the states.

"Therefore, we are endeavoring to rebuild the alumni list by publicly and word of mouth. The present objective is to have the alumni and all students send their names to Roy Newton, secretary of alumni association, Big Rapids. Those in the Detroit area interested in forming a Detroit Chapter of Ferris Institute Alumni, should address: Box 111, Detroit. Chapters in other cities will be formed."

FARMERS Have Long Known This . . .

and that's why there is a FARM BUREAU!

In this powerful organization, farmers make their own farm programs. National farm policy should not be something developed outside agriculture and handed to the farmer to take whether he likes it or not. It must be the farmer's own policy, which he, in consultation with his neighbors and with farmers all over the country, has determined himself.

Each of the more than a million and a quarter Farm Bureau members has a definite part in making U. S. agricultural policy. Each producer has an influence and a voice through his organization. This voice gains strength in combination with those of other farmers in the community or township Farm Bureau unit, in the county Farm Bureau, in the state and national federations.

Individually, the farmer is powerless to cope with the complex forces affecting his welfare. He does not set the price of the product he sells, nor of the product he buys. He can do little to regulate farm production in accordance with demand. He is helpless in the face of fluctuating industrial activity and employment. Alone, he has little chance to improve rural living standards or to create broader opportunities for country people. But as a part of a strong organization, a farmer can make common cause with people facing problems like his own throughout the nation. He can help decide what programs farmers need, and see to it that they are put into effect.

Farm Bureau offers this opportunity. Join the largest farm organization in the world and add your voice to the growing influence of American agriculture.

Wise Homemakers Examine Labels On Canned Foods

There's a lot of useful information on the label around that can help you buy. Are you taking advantage of it?

We can get a lot more for what we spend for food if we know how to be wise with our buying. One of the wisest habits is to read canned food labels carefully, says Mary Bodwell, agricultural economist, department food specialist at Michigan State college. Making this habit pay dividends also requires a knowledge of how to use this information.

Let's take a look at grades. Although some canned foods do not carry a grade marking, more and more fruits and vegetables are being sold as grade A, B or C. The United States Department of Agriculture sets up these official grades which packers, canners and dealers may use if they wish. If the grade label is used, the product must meet the indicated grade standards.

Homemakers who can afford it may buy grade A or grade B at all times. But grade C products are popular and are usually good "buys" because they give high nutritive value at the lowest price, according to Miss Bodwell. They meet every general requirement in food value.

Those who buy grade B products pay the slightly higher price mainly for better appearance, flavor, tenderness and uniformity. Grade A labels indicate the highest quality. Sanitary and packing regulations are the same for all three grades.

How you plan to use the food product helps to determine the grade to buy. You may buy the lower grade of peas for stew, for example, but you may want grade A quality for servings of buttered peas.

Without grade labels, it's difficult to tell the quality of the food in a can. Canners and distributors usually have separate brands for different qualities of canned foods, but homemakers must learn by actual experience which brands are used for each quality. Often prices are not a safe guide by which to evaluate quality, neither are descriptive words which may have high quality sounds.

Other useful information appearing on food labels includes the name and address of the packer, variety of the fruit or vegetable, style of pack, container size and weight of the contents. Many of the cans give number of average servings and offer tested and proven recipes for use of the product. Making a habit of paying close attention to these helpful facts and suggestions will pay off with greater satisfaction and food value for your dollars spent for canned foods.

An early kind of match, used in the United States in the early 1800s, retained at four cents a light. It consisted of a bottle containing sulphuric acid combined with splints tipped with potassium chloride, sugar and gum arabic.

Homemade Yule Cards Should Have Simple Design

If you have decided to make your own Christmas cards this year, it's time to start working on them. Barbara Hummill, Michigan State college home economist, has some suggestions to help you do a good job.

You may find these same suggestions valuable in helping you choose cards that have been made commercially.

Selecting a simple design is important. It should not be a realistic design. In other words, choose something that gives the impression of form of Santa Claus, a deer or a Christmas tree, but don't include all the detail of the real object. The extra special reception your homemade cards get will repay your hard work.

Paper for homemade Christmas cards should be of a smooth texture because rough paper is hard to work on with pencil or ink. Choose a size which will be right for the design. If the card is too small, the design will look too bulky. If it is too large, the design will look lost. The paper should not be too bright or loud in color or it will detract from the attractiveness of the design.

It is better to use a greeting on the inside of the card which will carry out the idea or impression for the entire card. Consider the spacing and proportion of the letters. Simple easily read messages are in good taste.

If your name is printed or written on the card it should be centered under the greeting.

Give Glamour to Tired Closets With Gay, Colorful Decorations

By Erta Haley

IS YOUR CLOSET just a place to hang clothes and to store unattractive boxes? Do you hate to open it because it's such a stark unattractive corner compared to an attractive bedroom?

Closets, just like other rooms in the house, can have their own particular charm in decorating schemes. They can be done in the same manner as you've done the bedroom or hall, or they can be decorated in a complimentary color scheme.

The old-fashioned, cluttered storage lock which many closets have is now a thing of the past. With fresh ideas put into use, the closet can be an attractive adjunct to the room, a bright and cheerful room all by itself.

With proper use of storage space you can not only get more work out of the closet but also make it possible to give the bedroom or hall a vacation from some of the duties to which it's now accustomed. For example, closets, if large enough, can become a dressing room as well as a storage center when treated properly from a decorative point of view. Even small closets can be used in this way if the door is papered or painted and has a mirror and a small shelf for cosmetic items.

Closets do not take much paint or wall paper, and neither do the accessories require much yardage in chintz or cording, so the expense is small. If you do the decorating and sewing yourself, cost can be cut even more, and what a lot of pleasure you'll be able to get from an attractive closet.

Add Extra Shelves For More Storage

Take a critical look at the closet and see whether or not every inch of space is being properly used. Many closets are high ceilinged affairs and all the space at the top is not in use.

If space at the top is going unused, construct shelves there to use for housing blankets and extra bedding, out-of-season hats and clothing. If you want easy access to the high shelves, you may keep a small step ladder in the closet.

Smaller shelves can be constructed on lower levels to hold such small items as purses, jewelry, belts, gloves, scarves, sewing boxes and cleaning equipment like shoe polish, brushes and cleaning fluid. If you have carpentering available, it may even be more practical to have a row or section made with small drawers for these items.

sizes can be covered to house hats, blankets, seasonal purses, fur pieces and other clothing on the higher shelves so they will be clean.

A good covering for boxes is glazed chintz because it sheds dirt and can be dusted easily. If you have glazed chintz in the bedroom, use the same material. If it's floral, and you want to use something a little different, select one of the colors in the floral and use that.

Be certain to repair boxes first if they are broken. Then make a tissue paper pattern by tracing the box. When cutting the pattern from the fabric make allowances for seams. Stitch the seams together, turn right side out and press seams open. Smooth the cover over the box, gluing firmly in place.

Cording, pleating or eyelet ruffle may be used as a lid trim to add a feminine touch.

Protect Clothing With Garment Aids

Quilted hangers are excellent for hanging clothes because they will not permit the shoulders of dresses, blouses and suits to become pressed if space is crowded. They're easy to make and add a lot of charm to closets, too.

To make them, pad the hanger frame with cotton and then cover with bias strips. If you like, add a perky bow or a sash at the hanger top for added effect.

Shoulder covers and garment bags are wonderful for protecting suits and dresses from dust. When cutting the shoulder cover, add a little extra for garment bulk. These should be from six to ten inches long and the top should be shaped to fit the hanger.

When sewing the front and back sections together, add cording to the seam for a gay decorator touch. You can make cording by cutting for trim in no time at all with the aid of the cording foot attachment for your sewing machine.

Garment bags are good for the "best" dresses since they make such attractive storage compartments. These are made in the same way as the shoulder covers, but are usually cut as long as the garment itself. You may have long ones for dresses, and shorter ones for blouses. When sewing front and back pieces together, leave one side open for snaps or a slide fastener so that you can have easy access to the bag, and at the same time, a dust-proof container.

Garment bags can be made of glazed chintz or other attractive cotton prints that will complement the bedroom color scheme. If cotton print is starched stiffly. Plastics are good, too, since you can see what's in the bag.

Keep Shoes Neat In Proper Compartments

Shoe bags have long been popular for keeping shoes neat and orderly. When contained in a bag, you have some protection against the dust that is so often found on the floor. A bag hung on the door of the closet, or against one of the walls of the closet is an excellent way of keeping the shoes in a place where you can get to them readily.

Shoe bags which match the garment bags will do much to make the closet an attractive place, and the bags are easy to make. It's a good idea to quilt the back of the shoe bag for extra firmness. This accessory when finished should be about 18 inches wide and long enough to house at least four pairs of shoes.

If you have a large shoe wardrobe, and enough wall space you can make a large enough shoe bag to house all of them. It will help to insert a flat wooden piece through the top of the shoe bag to give more strength to the bag and enable it to hang straight. This is inserted like the rod to curtains.

Use the binder attachment to finish tops and pocket edgings for each shoe pouch. This prevents fraying, especially when the bag is cleaned or washed.

For the girl who travels a lot, individual shoe bags are an excellent idea. Make these large enough for a pair of shoes, and have extra long drawstrings at the top for closing them. These can be hung on a row of hooks when at home, to keep the shoes in good order.

The shoe bag idea is also good for keeping evening shoes and summer sandals in order. These can be hung on higher hooks when the shoes are not in use. Sew labels on the bags so you'll know what shoes they house.

Glue Fabric to Box For Storage Use

To permit handy access to a storage box, it's smart to make it with a front opening. Cut one side from a square box. Cover the three remaining sides of the box by gluing fabric in place. Now, rejoin the cut side to the box with gummed fabric labels. Glue fabric to this edge. The front side then can be dropped open for easier use.

If you're using any trimmings on hat and storage boxes, such as pleating or edging, these can also be used on the shelves.

Farmer Peck's Wife

Sally catches chickenpox. School launches 4-H program. Susy and Sally have warm clothing.

Well, we have begun it at last! We were warned that when youngsters started school it was bound to happen and this proves that they were correct. Sally is a very queer looking child since Tuesday evening, as she is spotted, with chickenpox. She acquired a dry, itchy skin from her dad which normally makes her rub and dig. Now she's a regular "Little Itchy-Itchy."

She tossed and turned during the night and had some fever. I putted damp soda on the bumps and that lasted for awhile but in half an hour she was awake again. And those spots come in the most outlandish places. Chickenpox may be listed as a minor disease of childhood but it is definitely one of the most annoying.

One of the worst features is that it means staying out of school. For a beginner who would start out at seven o'clock if we would let her it is hard to stay at home. A couple of big tears rolled down her cheeks and she said, "I won't have to stay out all year, will I?" Then she began to wonder how far Jimmie and Georgie would be in their reading book and how many new words they would have.

Everything in with eyes that do not miss a thing. She is getting everything down pat so every gesture and "fussing" for Sally can be repeated for her in two weeks, in fact, from her un-pocked state she is anticipating them with relief. It reminds me of one of Sally's stories from her reader... "Funny, funny Susy!"

Last Friday afternoon 4-H began at school with an interesting bunch of first year members. The teacher helped build a work bench in the hall and the meetings will be held there instead of here as it was last year. Now the boys can work on their articles during recess and spare time and during bad weather. The second and first year members alternate every other Friday as it is too crowded for the entire bunch and hard to help so many at one time. I wish to go back to school for lessons in wood-working myself.

Pete got his suit back from the cleaners in time to go to Grace's wedding. It was Sally's first attendance at one and she was thrilled. She thought Grace looked like Cinderella! We had to get in line to go into the church and she asked if we had to pay to get in.

Following the panel discussion by the dealers will be other panel groups discussing methods and organizations for carrying on the actual operations necessary in better marketing.

One group, which will include market masters from Benton Harbor and Detroit, as well as several growers, will consider problems and advantages of selling through public wholesale markets.

A third panel, consisting of prominent Michigan dealers and Children get queer impressions sometimes. She thought it was a lot of people to get married at one time as she thought everyone in the wedding party was getting married. She asked why they went up in front then.

Aunt Lella and two nurse friends, Flossie and Fern, came for a chicken supper Tuesday evening to help her celebrate her birthday. Fern brought along her singing birthday cake plate and as it spun around our girls stared fascinated. You would think that after having been married into the family almost 10 years I would know that Aunt Lella didn't like coo-

nut. But, no, I had to sprinkle it generously over the cake and then expect her to like it. She did, too, or at least made a good attempt at pretending.

Susy and Sally wore givon color books that have a hard shiny surface that stands coloring and then crasing with a soft cloth again and again. They certainly are popular around here. I never saw anything like them. The rate with which our youngsters use up color books this should hold them awhile.

It looks like winter was setting in. When I went to the hen house tonight I almost froze my fingers and it's the first time I've worn gloves this fall. . . they make me feel so clumsy and anything that I can do without them, I do.

While the girls seem to be asleep for the time being, at least, guess I'll get out that outfit and make them new pajamas and skirts and surprise them in the morning. Pete says he doesn't see how little kids don't freeze to death the way their mothers dress them. He isn't looking at Susy and Sally when he says that because they wear warm little skirts, panties and out-ging undershirts and I don't consider them dressed odd either.

shippers of produce, will discuss the possibilities and difficulties involved in marketing through a local dealer.

The fourth panel in the program will include representatives of a number of successful cooperatives. This group will weigh the difficulties and advantages of cooperative to attend the conference to learn produce marketing.

Rosa urges all Michigan growers more about marketing problems and practices.

Try These Hints For Christmas Gifts

BY THIS TIME you're probably highly involved in rounding up the gifts for your loved ones and pacing up and down before counters of merchandise on your yearly Christmas shopping spree.

But have you done any Christmas browsing in your favorite hardware store? Try it on your next shopping tour. You'll find that the average hardware store offers a gold-mine of useful gift suggestions. Incidentally, many of them have fine toy departments.

If Dad or Junior is a wood-working hobbyist or, on the other hand, simply enjoys putting around with tools, he'll appreciate getting a tool kit. Some stores offer such a kit in a complete package deal for under $20. The kit includes screwdrivers, chisels, wrenches, hand saw, hacksaw and keyhole saw, hammer, hatchet, plane, pliers, brace and bit and other items.

CHRISTMAS TOYS

Fairly new on the market are the small hand sanding and polishing machines. Operated electrically, these machines have a straight-line, back-and-forth action and are a great boon in refinishing furniture, preparing new wood surfaces for finishing and similar jobs. They also can be used for polishing floors, linoleum and automobiles.

And speaking of automobiles, don't forget that virtually any car owner needs or would like to have more accessories for the family automobile.

Back to the small electric tools again, someone you know might like a hand drill. You can get them individually or, if you want to go a little deeper, electric drill kits are available for about $20 or under. This includes a selection of bits as well as attachments for grinding, polishing, buffing, sanding, brushing and so on.

If you're shopping for a boy, remember that a good pocket knife is an economic gift from your point of view, but worth its weight in pearls to a youngster.

There are many other reasonably priced tools that, given by themselves, make excellent gifts. A good plane or a saw, for instance. A brace and bit set. A carpenter's level or a high quality steel tape rule. And for the outdoor man, of course, there's always fishing tackle and hunting equipment.

To save time when quilting or hemming by hand, thread several needles in a row before removing any thread from the spool. Tie a knot to hold the needles on the thread. Cut thread behind the first needle at the length you want, and knot spool thread again. When you have used all your needles, stop and thread again.

The Postoffice Needs Your Help!

The postoffice staff is seeking the cooperation of postal patrons during the approaching holiday season when mail becomes so heavy. We believe that working together we can both benefit by more efficient service!

Mailing Will Be Speeded If You Help Us in These Ways!

1. A small box of rubber bands will be available at postoffice counters so that you can arrange mail in packets, each packet of one class of mail (first, third, fourth, etc.), held together by a rubber band. All letters should be arranged to face the same way, according to size, and separated according to cities (10 to Lansing, 10 to Leslie, 10 to Detroit, etc.)
2. FIRST CLASS MAIL—This is mail bearing 3c per oz. postage and should be kept apart from other mail in separate packets as described above.
3. THIRD CLASS MAIL—This class of mail should also be separated and packaged as described above.
4. FOURTH CLASS MAIL—This is parcel post and is so stamped by postal employees when you present it at the window.
5. NEWSPAPERS, PERIODICALS—This is second class mail of which you may have very little during the holidays. However, it, too, should be separately bundled.
6. BULK MAIL—This is mail usually sent by business firms and should be handled at the window if sufficient space is available or mailed in packets through the drop window.

Mail handled according to the suggestions above can be dispatched in much better shape than mail gathered one piece at a time from the drop. Our desire is to help create a merrier Christmas for everyone, with mail delivered promptly and in good condition. With your help, we know we can do it, and we'll report to you on the outcome of our Christmas mail experiment, which is a strictly local program, not government-instigated nor being used in other communities.

The mongoose, known as a serpent killer, that destroys not only the eggs and young of these creatures but also the most venomous adult snakes, is not immune to the snake's poison. By its agility and quickness of eye, however, the mongoose avoids the fangs of the snake while fixing its own teeth in the back of the reptile's neck.

Rev. Clyde C. Williams has been retained as pastor of the Glad Tidings church in Stockbridge. He submitted his resignation but the general board of the church, meeting in Chicago, asked him to stay on.

The Glad Tidings organization in Stockbridge was launched last summer. Meetings were held in a tent. For the past two months the services have been held in the basement of the new church at the corner of Williams and Elizabeth streets. Services are held Sunday mornings and on Wednesday, Friday and Sunday nights.

Rev. Williams came from Tampa, Florida. His church at Stockbridge now has 50 members and there are 120 enrolled in Sunday school.

Contributions of money and labor by church members and donations from others in the community have been used toward the church. About $5,000 has been spent so far on the building. The completed structure is expected to cost $16,000, Rev. Williams estimated.

Fireproof Tree

CHRISTMAS trees needn't be fire hazards. You can fireproof yours with practically no work by using nature's own process of osmosis. This fireproofing process has been recommended by the department of agriculture.
Get a quantity of ammonium sulphate equal to one-fourth the weight of your tree. That is, if the tree weighs about 16 pounds, get four pounds of the chemical. It's cheap and readily available at most drug stores.
Put the chemical in a container with a narrow neck (to lessen evaporation) and add 1 1/2 pints of water for each pound of ammonium sulphate. Saw the trunk off at the bottom at an oblique angle, then set the tree in the solution in a cool place until the solution is absorbed.

Birds Need Shelter and Safety

Decide on a sheltered spot, safe from pouncing cats and strong winds. If you want birds to come to your winter feeding station, Dr. George M. Sutton, associate professor of zoology at the University of Michigan, advises.

No special equipment is needed for such a counter, the university professor pointed out. In selecting the spot for placing the food, a partial roof or awning above the window is a good thing, though not absolutely essential, Dr. Sutton said.

People who want to attract birds to the feeding station should take advantage of the snowfalls. Many birds will come to the feeding counter when they must take shelter from storm.

Michigan birds have perfectly adequate feather covering and if they have food, they are safe, Dr. Sutton wire through which the birds can peck.

One of the prettiest birds you can have as a "guest" during the winter is the evening grosbeak, a black-white-olive green and yellow bird about the size of a robin, Dr. Sutton said. Bobwhites may also be seen at winter feeding stations occasionally.

The brown creeper, a small defenseless brown, grey and white bird with slender curved bill, will often slip in when the other birds have finished and will stay as long as the others will let him. The titmouse and chickadee may get bold enough to eat out of your hand, Dr. Sutton said.

TB X-Ray Tests At Webberville Next Monday

People in the Webberville area will participate in the rural Ingham county mass chest X-ray survey program Monday afternoon, December 4.

The Ingham sanatorium mobile X-ray unit will be located at Webberville school and will take chest X-rays between 1:00 and 4:30 p. m.

Mass X-ray survey, made possible by the cooperative efforts of the Ingham sanatorium and the county health department, is being sponsored in Webberville by the P. T. A. and the school.

Everyone in the community, 15 years of age and over, is urged to take advantage of this community service. It will not be necessary to remove any clothing for X-ray, only jewelry or ornaments which might interfere with the proper reading of the film. X-ray takes only a few minutes and no advance appointment is necessary.

Helping Mrs. Virgil Leroy, president of the P. T. A., organize the project in Webberville have been Mrs. Ivan Wilcox, Mrs. Charles Gouling and Mrs. Dan White.

Volunteers who will assist with clerical work, hostessing and other duties connected with the project are Miss Joanne Alchin and Miss Mary Maloney, high school students. Mrs. Wilcox and Mrs. Gouling will also be present during the afternoon.

Songs of 30's and 40's Reborn in Color Musical

Though films praising various branches of the armed forces and their exploits during the last war have become quite ordinary of late, the new film at the Fox Theatre on Saturday, "I'll Get By," is a new twist. Titled "Operation Haylift," the film depicts a major heroic effort by the Air Force during peacetime.

The effort, the feeding of millions of livestock from the air after hordes of cattle and sheep out on the range, marks a true achievement in the peacetime exploits of the armed forces.

The film, which stars the Air Force, of course, plus Hollywood's contributions of Bill Williams, Ann Rutherford, Tom Brown and Jane Nigh, is a blend of a dramatic story of one Rocky Mountain ranch family with the overall picture of the famed "Operation Haylift."

Williams and Miss Rutherford are the young cattle raising couple, with Tom Brown and Jane Nigh as the young romantics.

Douty contests are one of the most enjoyable of American institutions. But behind the lovely girls, the ogling males and the general festive air, there's the drama and the heartbreak in the personal lives of the contestants.

This is all brought out in Columbia's "Beauty on Parade," which will be shown at the Fox on Saturday.

Heading the cast of "Beauty on Parade" are Robert Hutton, Ruth Warwick and Lola Albright in the top leading roles, with John Ridgeley, Hilary Brooke, Wally Vernon and Jimmy Lloyd in other important parts.

The long grind which besets aspirants for beauty crowns is depicted with telling effect in "Beauty on Parade." Miss Albright, a beautiful young girl is pushed into the beauty parade by her mother (Warwick) against the opposition of Miss Warwick's husband (Ridgeley), who bemoans his disturbed home life.

Finally, the conflict between the parents as to whether Miss Albright should be exposed to the stern regimen of a beauty contest entrant reaches its climax at the national competition. Miss Albright goes on to win—and Hutton, a handsome newspaperman hits upon a judicious solution that makes everybody happy.

Nine stars, dozen of famous songs and production numbers and fully 52 lavish settings are just a few of the inducements offered by the Fox Theatre's forthcoming attraction, "I'll Get By," Twentieth Century-Fox musical in color by Technicolor arriving Sunday.

June Haver, William Lundigan, Gloria De Haven, Dennis Day and Harry James constitute the top stars gracing "I'll Get By." Thelma Ritter and Steve Allen head the featured complement. For extra measure there is to be a quartet of famous guest stars on hand. Those pitching in to give "I'll Get By" its added luster are Jeanne Crain, Dan Deley, Victor Mature and Reginald Gardiner.

For Miss Haver "I'll Get By," amiable musical comedy about up-and-coming song writers and their girls, is the first modern dress musical in a dozen shows, though "I'll Get By" has its own share of nostalgic in the two dozen song hits of the late nineteen thirties and early forties which are revived in this film about that era. Though Lundigan's talent is non-musical, he has the top romantic spot and leaves the dancing to June Haver and Gloria De Haven, playing a sister act, the singing to Dennis Day and the trumpeting to Harry James.

Presenting one of the most impressive casts ever assembled for a motion picture, Paramount's action-packed outdoor epic, "The Furies," opens next Tuesday at the Fox Theatre, Barbara Stanwyck, Wendell Corey and Walter Huston, in his last screen appearance, are starred, while the supporting players include Judith Anderson, Gilbert Roland, Thomas Gomez, Beulah Bondi, Blanche Yurka and Albert Dekker.

Produced by Hal Wallis, "The Furies" is a story of the great Southwest when men were building empires with guns as their only tools. Violence and treachery meant more than law and order, and a bullet spoke the only language everyone understood.

Playing the last role of his career, Walter Huston gives a performance as the rugged cattle baron who rules his domain with an iron hand.

Barbara Stanwyck plays Huston's fiery-tempered daughter whose beauty masks her consumption

Gloria De Haven and June Haver pay musical tribute to that famous thoroughfare, "Fifth Avenue" in one of the dozen production numbers which highlight Twentieth Century-Fox's technicolor musical "I'll Get By," at the Fox Theatre on Sunday and Monday. The all-star cast also includes William Lundigan, Dennis Day, and ace trumpeter Harry James.

ing passion for power. Wendell Corey, who co-starred with Miss Stanwyck in "Thelma Jordan," teams with her again in the role of a two-faced owner of a gambling house and dance hall.

Captain Blood Returns

"Fortunes of Captain Blood" starts off its crackling story, which relates new escapades of Sabatini's dashing pirate hero with Louis Hayward, the terror of the Spanish Main, sworn to liberate members of his crew who have been made slaves in the pearl fisheries. Disguising himself as a fruit peddler, Hayward, despite a price on his head, roams through hostile territory—fighting, looting, loving—as he conspires to free his men. With the connivance of Patricia Medina, who lulls Alfonso Bejoia, prison overseer, with her charms, Hayward gains entry to the dungeons with a faked pardon, but is forced to fight his way out when his stratagem is discovered. Once aboard the comparative safety of his ship, "The Avenger," Hayward finds himself trapped by a low tide and with George Macready, his blood enemy, pounding the wily buccaner has to use all his wits and generalship to turn the tables. The film is scheduled to be shown at the Fox on Thursday and Friday.

Flames Damage Delivery Truck

Anti-freeze flamed up Friday evening to damage a Mason-Hall Dairy delivery truck.

George Conklin was driving the truck at the corner of Lansing and Oak streets when flames burst from beneath the hood. The fire department had to be called to gain control of the blaze. Damage to the motor and the special body was estimated at $500.

A thermostat had been installed in the circulation system that afternoon. The radiator cap had not been replaced or it had fallen off. Conklin had had anti-freeze put in a few minutes before the fire broke out. The fluid, which had not yet had time to mix with the water, slopped over onto the hot manifold and fire resulted.

The Duty to Think for Ourselves

Too many Americans are content to have their thinking done for them.

Too many of us have fallen for the bait that only Drew Pearson, Walter Lippman or Winchell or some other syndicated thinker is entitled to have thoughts and to express them. Too many of us are content with the entries in John Knight's notebook.

Pearson, Lippman, Winchell, Knight and all other commentators but no higher than ordinary citizens in calling the turns on the national and international scenes. They are as apt to be wrong as any of the rest of us.

In a republic, and this is still a republic despite the misnomer of democracy that is continually tossed about, citizens have not only the right but the duty to think things out for themselves. Only by the consent of the governed do those who govern possess their powers.

The same centralization of thinking that has led us into such national and international messes shows up in other undertakings. We are permitting one man or group of men to say what the Chamber of Commerce or the National Association of Manufacturers think. We rely on Walter Reuther to say when automobile workers will report for duty. We leave it up to John L. Lewis to speak for the coal miners and to Philip Murray to speak for the steel workers. All the people can and should think and speak for themselves.

There are church people willing to accept the edicts of the Federal Council of Churches as gospel. Others let PTA, American Legion and VFW groups speak for them.

There are Democrats who are willing to accept the will of President Truman as their own, and Republicans who rely on Senators Vandenberg or Taft or Morse to say what Republicans should think.

Too often the individuals who do the thinking and the speaking for organizations are thinking and speaking only for themselves or for the small groups which put and keep them in power.

This argument that only a few experts are qualified to think and to speak on international and national problems doesn't stand up. Many of those problems which now confront Americans would never have existed had more of us done our own thinking and speaking.

Americans have the right to think and to speak for themselves; not only the right but the duty.

Election May Change Policies Both Foreign and Domestic

By Vernon J. Brown

While the recounters of Michigan are at the herculean task of scanning all the ballots voted in Michigan on November 7 in order to find out who is to be our governor for the next two years there are other matters to which Mr. Average Citizen can turn his thoughts. Like the recent election, most of these matters are entirely beyond his control and out of his hands but that need not stop him from doing some thinking. Thinking, perhaps, if indulged in by enough voters and by them with sufficient intensity and continuity, might lead some of us to change our opinions, especially at election time.

First, there is the matter of the election itself as national affairs are concerned. Unless events turn out far different than in former years there will be new alignments and changed attitudes toward certain economic and international policies for several years now dominating congress and White House decisions.

Added to the voice of the people heard at the election booths scattered throughout the states of the union, are other mutterings coming from foreign capitals and from our Korean war front that will reverberate through senate and house conference and committee rooms during the coming months. With the balance of power resting in the hands of an independent unit of the Democratic party, representing sections of the once "Solid South" and never very friendly with New Dealism and certainly not with Trumanism, there is likelihood that Asiatic foreign policy may change and that European extravagancies long endured may be sorted down, to say the least.

Payday Has Arrived Then too, payday has come to the United States treasury. Since only in 1941 the national treasury on the air, in the press and the radio, and by every other means, has been engaged in selling bonds to the public. Adding the interest to what has been borrowed and spent something more than 23 billion dollars must be dug up from somewhere during the next five years to pay off these bonds as they mature. With another world war in prospect and with a record of consistently, year by year, spending more than the tax collectors dared to ask the public for, the outlook is not too bright.

To speak of billions is nothing at all. No one, not even the government economists, can conceive of what a billion dollars means. By the simple process of dividing the 257 billion dollars which our government now owes among all the people, babies in arms and the old folks all counted in, it is found that each American now owes just about $1850. He may never have signed a note or executed a mortgage and he may have money in the bank, but if an American citizen wants to take inventory then he has to acknowledge this debt and in doing so the wage earner of the family must count in his wife and children and any other dependents.

Family Owes $9,250 A family of five then owes $9,250 and it might just as well face the fact it will be taxed to pay its share. The shares of any others who, because they can dodge the tax man or who do not earn or produce enough, and are left off and do not pay their shares, must be added to what those who do produce must pay.

All this borrowing and spending has led to an inflation of our currency and our business affairs that no longer can be ignored. Inflation now takes about 40 cents out of every dollar used, earned and spent.

Let us go back to this bond business a moment and see what has happened. If in 1941 a citizen took his $87.50 and buried it in the cellar instead of buying a $100 bond and would now dig it up, he would find that it would buy only about $52 worth of merchandise or services when compared with what it would have bought in 1941. On the other hand, suppose he had bought U. S. Savings bonds as all good citizens did. That bond will be falling due in 1951 and for the $87.50 he invested in 1941 he will now receive $100.00. But he can only make it do $80 worth of buying and so he is only eight dollars better off than the fellow who buried his money.

Eight dollars is exactly 8/10ths of one per cent per annum interest and during that time his portion of the wealth and resources of this nation of ours has been washed away, eroded, the soil technician would call it, to an extent far greater than any inflation pressure possible. This taxing and spending and borrowing and spending is the very thing which creates and stimulates and produces inflation or whatever it is that throws values so out of balance. Inflation is indeed a wicked spiral from which escape is most difficult. It can only be hoped that the incoming congress will do what can be done to halt the march and perhaps to seek a turn around which some day will lead us to a pathway leading back to normal.

State Has Wasted Cash In our own state of Michigan we need to seek the road toward a new period of four years. In the face of an ever-mounting increase in sales tax and other revenues, an operating surplus of more than $21 million has been dawdled away and a neat deficit has taken its place. There is some dispute over the exact amount of the deficit but there is no dispute over its existence. During that same period the state has gone in debt through issuance of bonds or their authorization in the tune of around $300 million.

With the prospect of a governor of one political faith and an accompanying social philosophy and a legislature and all other administrative officials of another, the chances for constructive measures on any front are meager indeed. This is no time for demagoguery but everything points to a record-breaking crop during the two years just ahead.

Sharing Weight Taxes

Some resort associations in the north country are openly engaged in the automobile weight tax racket again. The Higgins Lake Property Owners association is one of them.

The Higgins Lake association has sent out appeals to cottage owners to change license applications so that Roscommon county and not the home county of the automobile owner will get the weight tax money. The letters give detailed instructions on how to change over the applications sent out by the secretary of state so that Roscommon county will benefit.

Floyd R. Arnold, president of the association, brazenly says in his letter, "Our tax money has thus gone into the building of many miles of new blacktop highway in Roscommon county, adding greatly to our summer motoring enjoyment."

Arnold didn't say, he didn't need to say, that every dollar thus diverted to Roscommon county comes from some other county.

Michigan law provides that automobile weight taxes be returned to counties where the owners live. That's on the theory that the home county is entitled to the money to maintain and build roads in the county where the owner keeps and uses his car. The intent of the law was not and is not for every car owner to bestow his license money where he wills. Under such a scheme 5,000 people from Ingham, or Genesee or Oakland might be so touched by an appeal from Roscommon or Isocro or Keweenaw resort interests that all the weight tax money would be diverted to build roads for the use of summer people.

If Ingham county has too much automobile license money we might better share it with Eaton, Clinton, Livingston and other neighboring counties. We use their roads a lot more than we do the county and township roads up in Roscommon.

Ingham residents should deny the requests of northern resort interests seeking to divert Ingham highway money.

Ingham highway officials should demand that the secretary of state immediately plug leaks in the weight tax distribution system.

In Case of Fire

Inflation has slashed the value of the fire insurance dollar just as it has the food, clothing and furniture dollars.

Insurance records indicate that coverage on furnishings alone is so low that the average owner stands to collect not more than 60 per cent of the value of his property in case of total loss.

Replacement prices on all home furnishings have climbed rapidly. Furniture prices have more than doubled in the past 10 years. Rugs have nearly doubled in price. Houses have doubled in cost.

In too many instances the insurance coverage remains at the same level it was when the policy was originally written 10 or 15 years ago. Policies are usually written for three-year or five-year periods. Few of them reflect present values. Few of them cover many items such as home freezers, radios, sewing machines, washers and other equipment added since the war.

Fire insurance should be scaled to values of the property at risk. Owners should be sure during the present inflationary spiral that their insurance is in line with replacement costs. And the time to have a look at the policy is before the fire, not afterwards. This week, right now, is the time to act.

Men Against the Snow

Best sellers are written and box office hits are filmed of men pitted against the sea.

That's dramatic. So are men against the snow. Ingham highway employees and members of the city street crew were pitted against the snow last Friday, Saturday and Sunday. They met the challenge. They deserve a hand.

Down by the SYCAMORE

There is no shortage of vanilla for World War III. In fact, the bottom is dropping out of the local market. Mason's Legion Auxiliary took on the agency for a brand of vanilla and then learned that Mason Methodist Women and Mason Rebekahs both have vanilla for sale. So do Legion Auxiliary sisters at Holt and Leslie. The Mason Legion unit has cut prices from $10 to 70c for a big bottle.

Rent decontrol—Truman givesh and the landlord talksh away!

School representatives at a meeting in Ann Arbor last week proposed to abolish just about all interscholastic contests except football and basketball. No one said just why football and basketball were to be exempt. Gate receipts might be the reason.

Interscholastic debating should be banned, school officials said, because it encourages boys and girls to develop posturing and gesturing instead of straight and uninterrupted thinking. If they prepared for debates but didn't meet outside teams the pupils could perfect their thinking. They would not be concerned with impressing the audience or the judges. They would be concerned only with the power and purity of their thoughts. That's what the officials of the North Central Association of Secondary Schools said.

Maybe they're right. That's the hermit approach. A hermit retires and thinks his own thoughts while his hair and his whiskers grow.

School officials reached the same conclusion on interscholastic music contests, and probably on baton-twirling, too. They held that students might better concentrate on self-improvement than to compete. They might better perfect their own techniques than to show up somebody else.

That's a peculiar slant in this competitive world, and it's peculiar that the professors want to apply it only to music and debating. If it is sound theory there it should prove just as sound in football and basketball.

Four years of dribbling and cutting in on practice shots might perfect a basketball player but he would then be so bored by the practice he wouldn't want to play or if he did play he would be afraid of contact with opponents.

We learn best by doing. We learn to think by thinking, and we learn our mistakes in thinking by applying those thoughts. If there is no danger in football and basketball competition then the danger in debate and hand competition seems to be exaggerated.

It's an accomplishment to sing and just as much an accomplishment to know you can't sing.

If practice made perfect there might be some justification for continuous practice. But practice so seldom does. There must be talent to go along with the practice and a performance now and then proves talent or the lack of it.

If it were just a matter of practice we could all buy violins and practice ourselves into Jascha Heifitzes. Or we could buy pianos and become Paderewskis. But it doesn't work out that way.

I once had a guitar. I practiced so long in private that my friends forgot I was musically inclined and I was never asked to play in public.

That's what I told Jim when he lugged a ukelele home from college for the Thanksgiving holiday. I didn't want him to learn any secret vices. I insisted that he practice right out in public. And he did. At the end of the third day he had four numbers down pat. He gets his degree at the end of the winter term.

Mrs. Hugh Brown has been commissioned as Royal Photographer to His Highness, the Sheik of Bahrain. When Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brown were home recently, Mrs. Hugh Brown unlimbered her Kodak Duraflex and took a picture of the couple. They took the picture back to Bahrain with them. The sheik saw it and demanded another just like it, only bigger, to bring in the royal salute. He exercised his royal prerogative and the Mason woman obeyed.

Lt. Byron Stevens with the Fighting 25th Division in Korea has come through unscathed so far. He has become the most expensive Ingham County News subscriber. He has asked to have the paper sent to him airmail every week. The cost runs $10 for postage alone. But it's worth it, declared the Mason officer. The Ingham County News runs more want ads than any other paper now in general circulation in Korea, the officer said.

Some people worry because other people don't worry over atomic bombs falling. As Thomas Carlyle wrote to John Carlyle, "The crash of the whole solar and stellar systems could only kill you once."

"The Black Rose" and "Treasure Island" are two top films. Thanks to the management for bringing them to Mason.

Ancient History

One Year Ago Ingham county's CROP campaign has netted almost a carload of food for Europe.

Delhi will be able to start work on its new town hall project. Judge Charles H. Hayden dismissed the demand for a permanent injunction sought by two taxpayers. The taxpayers maintained that because the contract for the town hall exceeded by $15,000 the estimates placed before electors that the board exceeded its authority.

Fifty-one Mason people volunteered to give their blood when the Red Cross mobile blood unit stopped November 30.

10 Years Ago—1940

Hubert Guy Jerne, Lansing, R. J. Harold M. Schertzing of Stockbridge and Bernard Clave Holmes of Mason were the first three men from Ingham district No. 1 to be inducted. All three volunteered. They left by Michigan Central train November 27 for the Detroit induction center.

Chan H. Robinson of Mason is now in uniform. He left Monday for Fort Custer.

Those who have the major parts in Mason's senior play, "Dollars to Doughnuts," are Charles Henderson, Marjorie Bushnell, Bernard Cady, Lenora Smith, Richard Wolf, Kathryn Felton, Betty Mae McIntyre, Donald Beebe, Vincent Owen and Donna Rusch.

Eugene Hadwin of Vevay was seriously injured during the blizzard Tuesday afternoon. Hadwin had unhitched his team from the wagon in a field on the Sam McMann farm on Howell road. He was driving the team down the road to the barn. When a car passed close to the team the horses reared. Almon Lathrop of Bellaire was driving behind the other car. He tried to stop his car but it skidded on the ice. It swung around and hit the guard rail then careened and hit Hadwin. The Mason youth sustained a brain concussion and was badly bruised. He is recovering, however.

20 Years Ago—1930 George Ackerman of the U. S. department of agriculture has been in Ingham photographing the dairy industry. He took shots at the Walter Carven farm in Vevay, the Bert Green and Frank Thompson farms in Alameda, the J. H. Chamberlain farm, W. A. Hall & Sons and Harry Freshour & Son in Aurelius, the Weigman farm near Holt and the Hugh Ellsworth, Dewitt Kanous and Chris Hansen farms near Lansing.

Charles Davis of Eden is on the Michigan State college livestock judging team picked to compete at the International Livestock show in Chicago next week.

Jess Curtis at Western Michigan, Allen Frederick at Olivet and Loren Leonard at the University of Michigan won freshman football awards this fall.

Adams Bros. have placed a roof over their miniature golf course on West Ash street.

Stockbridge rural routes are being consolidated with some of the territory being given to Leslie, Danville and Mason.

Howard Mason, Grand Lodge, Eaton Rapids, Charlotte and East Lansing have signed up for what was to have been the Little Seven athletic conference. Hastings signed a tentative agreement but probably won't join the league.

50 Years Ago—1900 It is time for someone in Mason to start to agitate for standard time. It has advantages over local time.

There has been more rain and snow in November this year than in any other November for many years.

Several newspapers are urging the building of a governor's mansion.

Byron Bushnell of Leslie has enlisted for service in the Philippines.

North Leslie has organized a Grange by telephone, the first time such a thing has happened in Michigan. Perry C. Tower of Lansing, Grange organizer, came on a Wednesday night and reached enough farmers by phone to set up the new organization. M. I. Coveit was elected temporary chairman and Mrs. V. E. Covert was chosen temporary secretary. After the temporary organization was dissolved Manley VanAntwerp became master and C. R. Hasbrouck the secretary. The organization will be known as the Telephone Grange.

George Barr met with a painful accident at the Frank Seely farm Monday afternoon. He was un hitching his team, which became frightened by a steam engine and started to run. One leg was still unfastened and this caused the tongue to swing around and strike Mr. Barr on the left leg with such force as to break both bones just below the knee.

The recount is proceeding for judge of probate. Many ballots have been thrown out. The plurality of Jason Nichols now stands at 40.

The Bunker Hill Methodist church will be dedicated December 9.

BEAUTIFUL VISIT is by a new English author who promises well for the reading public. The scene is England between 1913-1918, and the heroine is the shy and sensitive daughter of a composer who is wealthy at times, and at others, almost destitute. The visit comes as a result of an invitation to spend the Christmas holidays with some country cousins who lead a much more interesting and normal life. She feels that she has really tasted life, and her return to London finds her attempting to escape from her parents' home and its acceptance of shabby failure. Her love affair with a young Scotch officer on leave is well done, but her final marriage with a less sensitive and cruder man seems less real and acceptable.

FOOTSTEPS ON THE STAIRS. Myron Brinig has tried to do what other authors have several times tried to do—the telling of a large family through the eyes of a smaller member of the group, in this case the families live in a copper mining town in Montana. Both are prominent in their own professions. One is composed of the children of a Jewish immigrant who has made money running a clothing store, the other, an Irishman, has made his as a lawyer in a mining company. Small Stephen is the son of Joseph Benjamin and Anna Joyce. The story is interesting, and the events seem acceptable as told, but later analysis makes one wonder if a small boy could have learned so much of his elders' doings.

BLANDING'S WAY is the sequel to Eric Hodgins' BLANDING BUILDS HIS DREAM HOUSE. This is the story of how Blanding tried to become a part of the community of Lansdale. His success is such that half of his fellowmen regard him as a communist, while the other half call for his blood as the type of capitalist who must be liquidated. It is an amusing social satire with incidents of your own experience related so well, that Blanding will have your sympathy while you laugh at his efforts.

Michigan Lions Provide Leader-Dogs for Blind

Michigan Lions are sponsoring and promoting the Leader-Dog League to train dogs to lead the blind.

The week of December 3 to December 9 has been proclaimed "Leader-Dog Week" by Governor C. Mennen Williams.

The Leader-Dog League for the Blind, a Michigan non-profit corporation, has been providing trained leader-dogs for blind persons of this and other states for the past 11 years.

The blind who have secured the help of leader-dogs through the league have found new independence and have been much more successfully rehabilitated in their vocations and professions.

The purpose of "Leader-Dog Week" is to inform the people of Michigan of the work, so that it may be continued and extended to include every eligible blind citizen.

There are approximately 300,000 blind people in the United States, of which an estimated 30,000 to 50,000 would be eligible to use dog guides. At the present time with the combined efforts of all dog guide training centers, only approximately 400 units are produced in a year 100 of the 400 are replacements.

The Lions of Michigan conceived the idea of founding a school to serve the blind, explained Mason Lions President Arthur F. Zickgraf. They have continued their support since that time, and now seek to enlarge the school facilities so that increased production of units will make many more sightless persons mobile.

JUST LOOKING—On the theory that every child is afraid of a new situation, experts on child dentistry suggest that youngsters be permitted to watch the dentist at work on their first visit. Above, three youngsters watch Billy Brotski get a going over from Chicago dentist Anthony Malone. On their next visit, the children will be less likely to cut loose with the anguished screams that unnervy patients in the waiting room.

For never, before television, could you give your loved ones all the whole wide world...

- the exciting world where history happens before your eyes—and the news has meaning as never before
- the world of adventure, where a little girl can be a princess, and a six-year-old boy can tame the West on horseback
- the world of knowledge, where learning is fun, and no one wants to "play hooky"

- the world of sports where champions teach sportsmanship as well as skill
- the world of laughter, which sweeps away the day's cares like a broom
- the world of great music and culture—a world of inspiration and re-awakened faith

Yes, these golden hours are yours to share when you're a television family... but lost forever if you delay.

Never before in all history has there been such entertainment for all the family at so modest a price. Place your order for a TV set now—for this is the Christmas you can give the world to your family.

With TV this magic world is theirs to enjoy every day!

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt
United States Delegate to The General Assembly of the United Nations says:
"To me television offers a magnificent opportunity to increase the education which we make available to the children of today. If parents will supervise carefully the type of show and the time spent by children watching television, they can see the best that television has to offer, which can bring much enjoyment and much that will be valuable in their education. Of course, I am a firm believer in the supervision of children's reading habits, and now that we have television, I think that the same thing should be true for television. It is a parent's duty to see to it that the children get the best in books and the best in television entertainment and education."

The hospital bed, which the lodge owns and loans to residents of the city, will now be housed at the Gamble store when not in use. This bed, to which has added much comfort to invalids, is practically always in use.

Second nominations for officers were held and the election will take place at the first meeting in December.

Three Take Off On Mission Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Harwood Hess and son, Jonathan, left Wednesday, November 22, for Mexico as missionaries under the Wycliffe Bible Translators. They will be gone four years. They expect to be located in the mountainous area about 150 miles northeast of Mexico City among the Otami Indians, a tribe of approximately 40,000.

This tribe is totally illiterate, being unable to read or write. The Indians speak a most difficult language. No one outside has ever learned to speak it. The particular job of the Hesses will be to master the language, reduce it to writing and translate portions of the Bible into the Otami language and then teach some of the Indians to read and write. This usually requires a period of four to 10 years in any tribe. There are 52 such tribes in Mexico whom the Bible translators are endeavoring to reach, hoping to establish among them local indigenous churches.

Harwood Hess was graduated from the Williamston high school with the class of 1929. He is a graduate of Wheaton college in 1947 and the Grand Rapids Theological Seminary in 1950. He is a lieutenant in the Naval Reserve and received two summer courses in linguistics at the University of Oklahoma. Mrs. Hess is a graduate of Wheaton college and has also had two summers of linguistic training.

Mary Ella Hess, sister of Mr. Hess, is in Bolivia under the South American Indian Mission and David Hess, a brother, and his wife, the former Mabel Hitchcock, are leaving soon for Brazil under Mid-Mission. This makes six full-term missionaries on the foreign field, sponsored by the Williamston Baptist church.

Social Security for Farm Help Becomes Effective January 1

By Arthur Muech and E. B. Hill
Michigan State college

Social security for farm workers will be effective January 1, 1951. The program is compulsory for the farmer who must pay the social security tax. This makes it possible for a regular farm worker to qualify for social security benefits at age 65. In case of his death the worker's family is entitled to benefits.

Only a "regular" farm worker is covered. He is "regular" if he works at least a 3-month period for one farm operator and continues to work for the same operator at least 60 days and earns at least $50 in cash in every succeeding 3-month period. Wages paid in the form of room, board, farm products or other perquisites cannot be counted.

The 3-month period must begin in January, April, July or October. The worker may use the last quarter of 1950 to qualify. He pays no tax during the quarter in which he qualifies. If he changes employers, or works less than 60 days, or gets less than $50 he must again work a full quarter in order to be covered in any future quarter.

Cooks and other household workers on farms are considered farm workers. Wages paid by a farmer to his children who are under 21 do not count toward social security, and neither do wages paid by a husband to his wife, by a wife to her husband, or by sons and daughters to their parents.

The farm worker should obtain a social security card from the nearest social security office if he does not already have a card.

Average monthly wage	Retired worker alone	Retired worker and wife	Widow at age 65	Widow and two children
$ 50	$25	$ 37.50	$18.80	$ 40
100	50	75.00	37.50	80
200	65	97.50	48.80	130
300	80	120.00	60.00	150

"DEEP WELD" PLOW SHARES take shocks better

A new welding process gives Allis-Chalmers plow shares a test strength more than twice as great as ordinary shares.

A cross section of the Submerged Weld shows deep penetration along the entire bond between plow gunnel and share. Under test, the original metals will break before the weld. In addition, a thicker, more uniform wearing surface is maintained over the tough, soft center.

Here is more plowing service at modern tractor speeds, plus the precision fit for which A-C shares have long been famous. See us now.

Low Cost Essential For Farm Buildings

Concrete blocks are being used more and more in the construction of farm buildings, according to American Builder magazine. They have been found very serviceable for dairy barn construction, low in first cost and in upkeep.

Attributes that contribute to concrete's value as a building material on the farm are its durability, cleanliness, and weather and insect resistant qualities.

Concrete foundations, masonry unit walls, concrete floors, and precast floor joists can be utilized to construct enduring farm structures and to repair old ones.

If a dairy barn is well-constructed and insulated, body heat of the cows would keep interior temperature at 45 to 50 degrees in almost any kind of weather.

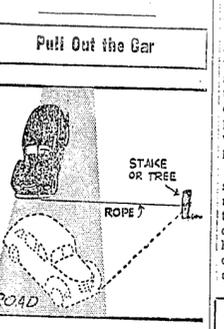

Lightweight aggregates in masonry concrete or in masonry units, vermiculite floors and underlayment, hollow core walls, and masonry units with granular loose-fill cores all have qualities that contribute to the efficiency of rural buildings.

Less Than Half of U.S. Farm Homes Have Baths

Less than one-half of the nation's more than 4,000,000 farm homes have baths and only half of the rooms are heated, a study of rural housing accommodations revealed. Excessive standardization to relieve early postwar housing shortages resulted in the building of mediocre farm homes of rectangular, box-like design with too small rooms, too little privacy and absence of adequate plumbing and heating facilities.

However, under impetus of a U.S. department of agriculture program, farm house plans have recently been developed that are expected to fulfill the fundamental requirements. The new plans call for space, equipment and storage facilities in proportion to the number of persons in the family.

Coupled with the benefits of a 10-year electrification program that has brought electricity to 75 per cent of the farm homes, this new home designing will open an untapped market for manufacturers of automatic equipment and home appliances.

Although most farmers these days live on a hard surfaced road, there may be occasion when it would be necessary to pull a car or tractor out of a ditch. The above illustration shows how to get out of that ditch with the least amount of effort. A tow rope hitched to the front end of the car and tied to a stake or tree at right angle to the side of the road, will give you the leverage to get out of almost any place without help.

Crested-Wheatgrass Seed Production Reported Up

The 1950 production of crested-wheatgrass seed is estimated at 5,330,000 pounds of clean seed. This is 5 per cent larger than the 1949 production of 5,090,000 pounds. Larger crops than last year reported for North Dakota, South Dakota, and Montana, more than offset the smaller crops indicated for Nebraska, Colorado and Washington. The Colorado crop was near failure in 1950.

With the explanation, "We raise 'em and like 'em," Jiggs has his horses pull the plows, planters, harrows and operate the elevator for transferring corn from wagon to crib.

Calumet Farm Makes Profit Grazing Cattle

Proud-faced titans of the turf world and white-faced hereford steers share the lush Kentucky bluegrass carpeting the 1,200 acres of pastures at Calumet farms, Lexington, Ky.

Calumet is grazing some 200 head of hereford steers shipped in last April from the panhandle of Texas. They are bought as long yearlings and grazed through November.

White-faced herefords shown above have become an important factor in pasture control at famed Calumet farm, Lexington, Ky., the home of Kentucky Derby winners.

Since Calumet is not equipped to fatten cattle for the market, manager J. P. Erbnelhardt has keyed his cattle program to the eight-month grazing period. "We find," he says, "our net profit amounts to as much in this shorter period of time as if we had carried them on a feeding program for 12 months."

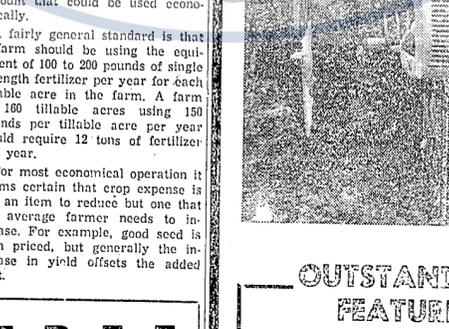

Erbnelhardt and his staff of helpers also prefer herefords "because they seem a quieter type of cattle and handle well in moving from pasture to pasture."

Farmers spend a larger proportion of their income for fertilizer than they did before the war, a recent survey revealed. The average amount used, however, may still be no more than half the amount that could be used economically.

A fairly general standard is that a farm should be using the equivalent of 100 to 200 pounds of single strength fertilizer per year for each tillable acre in the farm. A farm of 100 tillable acres using 150 pounds per tillable acre per year would require 15 tons of fertilizer per year.

For most economical operation it seems certain that crop expense is not an item to reduce but one that the average farmer needs to increase. For example, good seed is high priced, but generally the increase in yield offsets the added cost.

Soil Saving Plan Is Now Available To Most Farmers

Soil conservation districts and their benefits are now available to 62 per cent of the farmers in the United States. Michigan has kept pace with other states with 25 organized districts in 57 counties, covering more than 20 per cent of the actual farm land in the state.

Many people ask the question: Are farmers and soil conservation districts cooperating with each other? They wonder if there actually exists a "movement" toward adoption of soil conservation practices.

Russell C. Hill, Michigan State college extension soil conservationist, makes this comment as an answer: "It is true that only approximately 12,600 Michigan farmers have obtained detailed farm planning assistance in soil and water conservation from soil conservation districts. However, it is estimated that more than 50,000 farmers in Michigan have greatly increased their use of soil and water conservation practices in the past 11 years as a direct result of district activity."

He credits demonstrations, tours, field days and numerous other educational methods and events for farmers using an increasing number of conservation practices, based on the capability and needs of the land.

Hill claims that the ultimate goal is the development of "conservation farmers" as one who really believes that soil and water conservation practices are necessary, that their application will result in more efficient farming for an indefinite period, and one who actually applies conservation practices on the land.

This individual, Hill believes, will practice conservation farming on whatever land he may be located. Such an attitude is important on the part of land operators, since more than 6,000 farms in Michigan change hands each year. In this educational process, the aid from many public agencies and civic groups, working through local leadership provided by soil conservation districts, will be needed, Hill believes.

He concludes by pointing out that "the adoption of conservation farming must be based not only on immediate profits, but also upon a realization that each generation has a moral responsibility to maintain natural resources for use by future generations."

Save Time, Save Trouble, Save Work with a Unico Belt Barn Cleaner

From Gutter To Spreader in 4 Minutes

Cleaning gutters is your second largest daily chore. JUST THINK... One flip of a switch changes a messy-time-consuming job to a quick, belt gutter cleaning operation that will clean out your dairy barn in a matter of minutes.

Above we see the Model "35" with double gutter set up, each 35 feet in length, installed on the LaVerne Eerg farm at DeWitt, Route 1, in Clinton county. Made from wood available on the farm, the Unico Belt GUTTER CLEANERS cost Mr. Eerg about half that of any other competitive bid submitted him.

The Model "55" will clean two barn gutters up to 150 feet in length, for gutter widths from 14 to 18 inches. The tough rubber belting extends the full length of the gutter. Belt and full load of litter are drawn out of the barn and litter drops into the spreader. A return unit pulls the belt into the barn, into the original gutter position.

THIS FARMING BUSINESS

BY CARL COLLIN

The reason farm prices are holding up in spite of abundant crops is that people have more money to buy things. Population has increased too. But basically people are eating a lot more because they can buy more.

Here are some comparisons of civilian eating in 1950 compared with the pre-war period, 1935-1939: per capita pork consumption is up 25 per cent; beef up 15 per cent; eggs up 29 per cent; poultry up 45 per cent; fluid milk up 15 per cent; (it was up higher in 1945-46 than now).

Economists think that consumption of many foods is likely to go up more next year. Pork, for instance, may jump as much as 7 per cent. Heavy government spending under the defense program will pour out extra billions. This will boost employment, wages and buying power.

Food will benefit from increased government spending for defense.

Production of some consumer commodities, such as autos, houses, electrical appliances and TV will be down. So families will have more money to spend on pork chops, butter, beef, eggs, etc. It's the increased competition for food that has government price officials worried. Just when price controls will be applied is the big question. With inflation gaining, best bet now seems to be spring. However, limitation of credit and increased taxes will be used first to try to check inflation.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics pointed out recently that corn has been disappearing fast. We used 535 million bushels of corn in the July-September quarter. The previous record for the same period was 445 million bushels. Grain consumption has just about caught up with production. The surplus has stopped growing. Grain used for feed, food, industrial uses and export will be greater than our total crops this year. Many marketing specialists think that feed grain prices will strengthen in the spring as supplies get tighter. There's a lot of corn in storage under CCC loans. This will come in handy if corn supplies get tight. But it will take a pretty good price to bring this government-held feed out of storage. A feeder would have to pay the price fixed by congress . . . that is the loan rate plus carrying charges, plus 5 per cent.

If you wonder why your money doesn't go very far these days, it's because the purchasing power of the dollar in terms of living costs declined from $1.00 in 1939 to about 57 1/2 cents as of now. In other words, retail prices have gone up about three-fourths.

Egg prices in December will average about 10 cents a dozen below November levels. That's what MSC economists figure. They say that U. S. Grade A Large prices paid to grading stations by first receivers in Detroit will likely average 45 to 50 cents a dozen.

Egg prices won't be supported by the federal government after the end of this year. CCC has purchased huge quantities of eggs to bolster prices. Dried eggs have been a tough article for the government to peddle. Egg prices have been supported since 1942. Currently the program has tried to assure producers an average of price of 37 cents a dozen.

In 1949 the government purchased what amounted to 18 eggs per person under the support price program. In 1950 it probably will rationally to 24 eggs per person. An advertising agency official says that 2 billion dollars spent for advertising eggs would wipe out the egg surplus. Four million dollars would create a shortage. There's a plan in the making to encourage folks to eat more eggs.

Commercial hatcheries turn out about 2 billion chicks a year. If a fee of one-cent to one-half cent were collected per chick at time of purchase, from 2 to 10 billion dollars per year would be collected for advertising purposes. That would be a sizeable budget. The American Meat Institute spends Infra red heat lamps have been used to brood chicks by poultry specialists at the University of Delaware. Income from off the farm is an important source of revenue to many farm families. This is especially true for very low farm income brackets. A survey made by BAE shows that in 1946, income from farm operator families from off-farm sources amounted to 5 and a half billion dollars. Net income from farming was 15 billion.

Since 1946, income from farming has dropped. Most non-agricultural income has increased. So it's likely that off-farm income in 1949 was more important to farm operator families than in 1946. The same holds true for 1950.

Michigan 4-H Champs Go to Chicago

STATE championship honors for 1950 have been won by four 4-H Club members for outstanding work in the National Canning, Canning, Canning and Poultry programs. Their awards are all-expense trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Nov. 26-30. Brief outlines of their achievements follow:

Joyce Arnold, 20, of Marshall, was selected as the 4-H'er with the most outstanding girls' record in Michigan. She had just completed her ninth year in club work when she received this trip award, donated by Montgomery Ward. Canning is a special favorite with Joyce, along with clothing and food preparation. Joyce raised chickens and rabbits to supplement the family meat supply. She has prepared and served approximately 2,000 meals. Joyce has completed 34 projects. She has held several offices in her club and is the junior leader.

Martha Lou Schick, 15, of Vananda, has been in club work five years and completed 60 projects. She always liked to raise chickens and concentrated especially on this project. Learning the newest methods and practices for poultry and egg production enabled her to raise a flock of 900 White Rocks and Leghorns. During one year she set seven hens and raised 87 chickens with them. For the last two years Martha has raised only White Leghorn pullets, feeding them home grain mixed with a concentrate. With the addition of whole corn, fresh water, she gets very satisfactory egg production. Martha Lou is an active member of the County 4-H group, and is junior leader of her club. Her trip was provided by Dearborn Motors.

Barbara Foster, 19, of Richmond, is a hardy with a needle and knows how to buy patterns and fabrics. As state 4-H clothing winner, Barbara has to her credit 48 garments made, mended or altered during six years in club work. Her sewing is not confined to 4-H projects. She finds many practical uses at home sewing for her five brothers and sisters. She serves her club as junior leader. Patricia's trip was provided by Spool Cotton Co.

Long range food preservation trips won for Barbara Foster, 19, of Richmond, in the Canning Achievement program. A 4-H'er for nine years, she has completed 42 projects, and canning has been one of her favorite projects.

All of these activities were conducted under the direction of the Extension Service of the State Agricultural College and USDA cooperation.

Trapping Yields Extra Farm Cash
Trapping wild fur animals offers the farm boy a good chance to earn extra cash, says Charles Shick, extension specialist in game management for Michigan's State college and the Michigan conservation department.

Correct handling of pelts will help increase the income from trapping efforts, he points out. Time and care should be taken when skinning, especially around the head regions of a fur animal. Use stretchers that shape pelts to their natural size. Never overstretch a pelt since this will thin the fur and make it look poor.

Shick advises that all excess fat and tissue should be removed from pelts before they are allowed to dry in a cool, airy place. Fire and direct sunlight should never be used in drying. Pelts should remain in the house until they are dry enough to hold their shape. Never spin green or unstretched pelts, he cautions.

Farm Production Will Be Needed In Defense Plan

Ingham county farmers who make full use of the 1951 agricultural conservation program to control erosion and to stockpile soil reserves will make a substantial contribution to the nation's over-all defense program.

Ralph Glynn, chairman of the Ingham county PMA committee, pointed out that soils as well as servicemen have to be kept in condition to respond when the need arises. "Land that has been overworked and under-fed is unable to respond to the call for increased production," he said.

"Although there is no need now to increase the average of grains and most other field crops, there is a definite need to take advantage of this favorable food situation to continue stockpiling plant food reserves in the soil," Glynn continues. "Our farms then will be ready to meet expanded production needs if and when they come. If we don't stockpile these reserves now, there may come a time when it will be too late."

With this in mind, Glynn emphasized that farmers who sign up their farms in the 1951 agricultural conservation program also will be enlisting in the nation's defense program. The conservation practices carried out will help to keep the farms in condition to respond when needed.

"Just as we must be prepared with ships and guns and planes, we must be ready to back up the men who man these ships and guns and planes with plenty of food," Glynn said. "By keeping farms ready, we are strengthening our national defense in a most vital spot—its food supply."

"There's the added assurance that the stockpiles of soil reserves can serve in peace as well as war. They will help to meet the needs of an ever-increasing population, making possible a more abundant living for more people."

Ballots Sent Out For PMA Posts
Ballots containing the names of candidates for the elective positions of community PMA committee, a dish to pass and a dollar flow in the hands of all eligible farmer-voters in Ingham county, according to Ralph Glynn, chairman of the Ingham PMA committee.

The ballots, which were mailed to all eligible farmer-voters following a series of community nominating meetings, also list the names of candidates for the positions of delegate and alternate delegate to the county PMA convention to be held December 29 at which time the county PMA committee will be elected for 1951.

Glynn said that farmers may return their ballots either by mail or in person to the county PMA office any time between November 21 and December 21. The ballots will be counted by an election board on December 22.

NOT IN NOTTINGHAM?
Air pollution was a problem in the 13th century, when the wife of King Henry III refused to live in Nottingham, England, because of smoke. Nowadays, since it is an established fact that smoke can be eliminated through proper firing and equipment, scientific research is being directed primarily at other air pollutants.

Sheep Need Care To Earn Profits
With the farm-sized sheep flock making a "comeback" in many parts of the nation because of a rising demand for wool, farmers are advised that sheep require more careful management than most farm animals, if the owners expect to make a profit.

One of the most serious obstacles to profitable sheep raising are parasites. Correct nutrition also is highly important in maintaining an efficient flock.

Here are some pointers on guarding health of the flock. Have all sheep treated against parasites in the fall and in the spring. Newly-purchased animals should be treated before allowing them to mingle with the herd. Practice pasture rotation; this helps hold down heavy parasite infestation.

Pay special attention to the feeding of ewes during the winter. The ration should include green hay, protein, minerals and grain. This will help prevent disorders at lambing time.

Avoid letting manure accumulate in lots and sheds during the winter. When spread it should go onto fields where animals will not be pastured.

No one drug is suitable for use against all parasites of sheep. Sheep raisers should get veterinary assistance in planning control measures and in selection of anti-parasitic chemicals.
